They go on further to say: "The banking community [this is not the Government or the Law] has deployed significant resources to help combat money laundering. Certain banks have named Compliance Officers to help in the application of anti-money laundering services which the internal audit function tests on a regular basis." So, we see that even these people who are meticulously looking to find things, because that is their job, are still saying that we are doing what we are supposed to be doing.

They go as far as to name the laws which are on our statute books which make us an effective jurisdiction when it comes to preventing money laundering. I think it is noteworthy for us to remember what these laws are. They say: "The principal laws providing avenues for anti-money laundering international cooperation between the Cayman Islands and other jurisdictions are:

- 1) Evidence Proceedings in Other Jurisdictions Act, 1975, as extended to the Cayman Islands by the Evidence Proceedings in Other Jurisdictions (Cayman Islands) Order, 1978;
- 2) The Misuse of Drugs Law (Second Revision) As amended in 1989;
- 3) The Mutual Legal Assistance (United States of America) Law, 1986; and
- 4) The Confidential Relationships (Preservation) Law, 1976, as amended in 1979 and 1993."

Since then we have also taken on board the Proceeds of Criminal Conduct Law. Now we are looking at the Misuse of Drugs (International Co-operation) Bill, 1997.

In 1995 the Caribbean Financial Action Task Force said in their report: "It is expected that procedures for assistance will also be put in place to implement the 1988 Vienna Convention ratified by the United Kingdom which was recently extended to the Cayman Islands." So, they said that. Now, it is here before us. Finally, in their report they state that some statistics were included, but, ". . .these are not considered the most important criteria by which the Cayman Islands programme should be assessed. Because of the transitional nature of drug trafficking and money laundering, and in view of the significance of off shore financial services to the Cayman Islands, importance must be attached to two other criteria: 1) The extent to which the existence of the overall programme and the implementation of those measures have had a preventive effect on the money laundering phenomenon. In other words, is the Cayman Islands now less attractive and a less exploited destination for money launderers? 2) The extent to which the authorities and agencies have contributed to multi-lateral initiatives and international cases. In both of the above instances, it is considered that the territory has ac- quitted itself impressively." Now, what better do we want than that?

They say, "The financial industry is clearly well regulated and supervised to a high standard. The authorities are keen to ensure that effective counter money laundering controls are in effect." While I chose excerpts from that report, I think it is obvious that these people were impressed with the way we do what we do in this regard.

All that I have said so far is not to say that we are at a level where we no longer have to worry or keep our eyes open. I am not saying that. What I think we should be very careful of is what the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town alluded to with his illustration of the man who gave away all his clothes.

Now, going into the Bill itself, there are certain areas which I believe need to be addressed regardless of the outcome. First of all, in the Memorandum of Objects and Reasons it states, "Mutual legal assistance in criminal matters specified in Article 3 (1) of the Convention may be requested for any of the following purposes. . ." and it lists (a) through (i). Others have mentioned it before, but an old friend of mine always said repetition bears emphasis.

If we look at Article 3(1) of the Convention, it simply goes from (a) to (g). That means that the proponents of this Bill believe that we should be adding (h) and (i). Item (h) refers to "immobilising criminally obtained assets;" and (i) is "assisting in proceedings related to forfeiture and restitution." It did have "and collection of fines," but an amendment was moved so we do not have to deal with collection of fines, thank God. I ask why, after we have seen that we have been doing more than what should really be expected of us in this regard, do we continue to believe that we should be going beyond everything else? I believe that sooner, rather than later, we are going to find ourselves handcuffed, restricted, encumbered (and every other similar word that can describe it) when it comes to having any kind of edge in this area.

Others have said it in different ways, but I firmly believe that if we lose that competitive edge, the negative effect it will have on our society will not be something that we will want to contend with. We always say how fickle the two main pillars of our economy are. Regardless of which side we take politically, I think we all agree that it is in our best interest to nurture both of those pillars so that we can continue to live at least the way we have been, if not better.

I do not think that we can just think along one line without worrying about what might happen. We must worry about what might happen if we do not do things the right way. So, I cannot accept that we must continue going beyond the call of duty because sooner or later we are going to go too far. I have heard over and over again the Honourable Third Official Member refer to that competitive edge, but the competition keeps getting stiffer elsewhere. It is a fact—because they want to survive, as we do, in this great big world.

Why, then, would we even venture to take a chance that we would be our own undoing? I do not know if what I have just said is agreed to by all, but that is how I feel. I say, please do not bring something like this to me and expect me to say it is wonderful, because I am not going to do that. Whether it causes me to lose face in the eyes of some, that is tough. I believe that what I am saying is right.

Talking about Article 3(1), if we look in the Bill on page 7, section 2(2), we will note there has been an amendment. That amendment causes it to now read: “In this Law references to an offence to which this Law applies are references to the offences specified in Article 3(1) which are offences of the same or a similar nature under the Laws of the Islands.”

Let me show you that how what seems so wonderful had the possibility of causing so much damage. The way this reads to me is, however Article 3(1) is in the Convention, the way we are wording this in our Bill means that we are taking on board however that reads. Bear in mind that while we will not sit here and amend Article 3(1) of the Convention, it can be amended elsewhere. And it is quite possible that it will be. But what we are saying in this is that no matter how they amend Article 3(1), we are happy with that—even though we do not know what that will be. I cannot accept that.

If I am reading it wrong, others will have a chance to show me otherwise. But that is how I read it now. I am not a lawyer, neither am I a chef of flowery language like the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town has been told he is. But I do believe that I can understand English. Unless I am missing something, that is how this reads to me. So, Article 3(1) has two problems in my opinion. What is going to be done about it is a different matter, but I cannot accept that. When we look in section 3 and we see where it says, “Mutual legal assistance in criminal matters specified in Article 3(1) may be requested for any of the following purposes. . .” and it goes down the line. As I mentioned, I do not see why we should have items (h) and (l).

I think it is obvious, because of the nature of the way we do business in the Cayman Islands, that having adopted the Convention there will be more requests made to us than requests that we make to the other participating countries. The question I want to ask is: Has anybody considered at any level what kind of cost that means to this country? When these requests are made, they are not being made with a blank cheque. That is not my understanding of it. The due process which will have to take place means the kind of man-hours I cannot even begin to imagine. I want to know if anybody has thought about the kind of costs we will be involving ourselves with. I will bet that there will come a time when somebody will ask. Maybe there are ways to circumvent that problem. I do not know. I do see it as a potential problem. It is possible that Government will have to hire staff specifically dedicated to dealing with these requests.

Many of the people who made their contribution to the debate on this Bill have spoken about the Central Authority. I think it is also necessary for me to make it very clear that none of the points I have raised have a bearing on any individual—they simply deal with the way the Bill is worded. I am simply talking about the post, not the person.

Section 4 says: “For the purpose of Article 7(8), the Central Authority shall be the Attorney-General who shall exercise his functions under the Convention and this Law.” When the first Bill came in April, there was a big discussion regarding the Central Authority. Questions were raised. I think it is fair comment to say that this new Bill has made some attempt to address the problems which seemed to arise with the Central Authority being the Attorney General.

My understanding is that the way it will work now is that the requests will be made to the Central Authority, which means that the first person to examine the request and decide on its validity is going to be that Central Authority. My question in this area is: When the Central Authority sends the judiciary confirmation that due process can take place with the request will the judge examining the request see everything which was originally sent; or, will the Central Authority decide what to send and what not to send. I have read the Bill as the Devil's advocate, and if that is what I am now, so be it, but nothing states that clearly. The reason I have posed the question is because the nature of the beast is such that if a judge has to ratify the request, it is my opinion that whoever that person is must have total access to all documentation which was sent with the request.

This then begs the question: Why the Central Authority? Why not go straight to the judge with the request? Maybe we will hear more about that.

There are two other very small sections where I think just one word should be changed. Section 8 (1): “The Authority may refuse to comply with a request. . .” and it goes from (a) to (f) listing the various reasons why. As far as I am concerned, if any one of these six reasons which would allow the Authority to refuse to comply with a request exists, then the wording in this Bill should read: ‘The Authority shall refuse to comply with a request. . .’ That is my feeling.

In section 9, a similar situation exists. It reads: “The Authority may postpone giving assistance pursuant to a request where such assistance would interfere in an investigation, prosecution or other proceeding in the Islands.” I say if such is the case and that assistance would interfere in the investigation, then the Authority ‘shall’ postpone it, not ‘may.’ Maybe we will hear more about that too.

Section 12 has two areas I think we need to look at. Section 12(1) reads: “Where, pursuant to a request, the Authority considers it necessary to enter and search any premises, he shall direct a constable to apply to the Grand Court for a warrant in relation to specified premises.” That stems from my previous argument regarding the Authority. As I understand it, if the Authority, after examining the request, decides it is necessary, he will simply instruct the police to apply to the Grand Court for a warrant in relation to the specified premises. It has down below here the various areas which would justify issuing such a warrant.

I hope that I will be able to explain this. I have a problem with the whole chain of command here in that, if a judge is going to make the final decision whether the request is going to be granted, or whether to issue a warrant, I would like somebody to explain to me the real purpose of the Authority. Why is there a difference when the Authority still refers to the judge to get the final decision? Who knows what goes on from the time the request is received until the judge gets it? I am not implying there is any hanky-panky, I am asking, since the judge has to make the final decision, why does somebody else not put the whole thing together and then present it to him? Why not just pass it to the judge and say, 'this is what we want'? I do not understand the real purpose of the Central Authority. Someone will have to explain this better for me to understand the true purpose of it.

In section 12(5) it says: "Where a constable has entered premises in the execution of a warrant under this section, he may seize and retain any material, other than items subject to legal privilege, which is likely to be of substantial value (whether by itself or together with other material) to the investigation for the purposes of which the warrant was issued." The question that comes to mind here is: In this day and age of computer disks, etcetera, if a constable is to seize a computer disk, and that disk contains material which is subject to legal privilege (meaning attorney/client correspondence, and that sort of thing), for the constable to be able to determine that he would still have to see what is contained on that disk. So, what happens in that instance, in my opinion, is that he will still have to see it even though it may be subject to legal privilege. I do not know how to solve that, but I think it could well be a problem.

ADMINISTRATION OF OATHS AND AFFIRMATIONS

OATH OF ALLEGIANCE Mr. Donovan W.F. Ebanks, MBE

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: I, Donovan Ebanks, do swear that I will be faithful and bear true allegiance to Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II, her heirs and successors according to law, so help me God.

The Speaker: Please take your seat. I welcome you on behalf of the Honourable House.

The First Elected Member for George Town, continuing the debate.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Continuing to air my views on the various sections of the Bill, I would now like to refer to section 10. Without reading what the Bill says, my understanding of this section is that it provides for witness orders which, to my mind, are brow-beatings. It is my understanding that this is not a requirement of the UN Convention. If that is true, it seems that there is a fundamental change which allows what legal minds call 'compulsory evidence' to assist in these foreign investigations when the same would not, to my understanding, be allowed for investigation locally. The way I understand it, it seems that there are no rights to cross-examination for whoever the target of the investigation is, and it seems to introduce some form of Grand Jury procedure without any protection whatsoever.

I think the very least that should happen is that there should be some requirement for the country requesting the investigation to undertake not to prosecute anyone who gives this evidence. It could well be a case of an employer/employee situation, where the employee of a commercial bank has to give evidence. While that person may be simply doing his job, who knows where it might take him. That has to be a real fear.

I mentioned costs to the country. What I failed to mention then (but will now) is that there does not seem to be any protection, in respect of costs, to people becoming the subject of an order who will quite likely incur administrative and/or legal costs. There are more chances than not that local people will have to be involved when such requests are made, depending upon where the requests are directed and what information is given. It is quite likely that Caymanians may be subjected to these costs. We need to understand this now, because while it may seem far-fetched, it could well become the normal routine for our people employed in a specific industry having to pay all kinds of costs with no chance for reimbursement. I believe that needs to be addressed.

Let me make it clear that I do not have any problems with the support which the Minister for Health gave to a certain section of this Bill. Let me also make it very clear that I am not suggesting for one moment that the Cayman Islands should not do everything possible, within reason, to ensure that money laundering and ill-gotten gains do not invade our territory. But I think that while we are doing everything we can to prevent that, we must ensure our own survival at the same time. So it is ludicrous for me to be hell-bent on making sure that I do what is right on the one hand, and then expose myself to the killing fields. I hope those in here are prepared to understand that position and accept it.

The Convention and its 34 Articles have been (shall I say?) passed on to us. I accept that as a British Dependent Territory it is something we have to accept. But I find many areas unacceptable in the way they have been presented. I cannot support this Bill as it is. The only possible chance for me to even think of supporting it is if everything I have mentioned is corrected. I will see what is and what is not.

I have been of two minds as to whether I should say what I am about to, but I have decided to say it. Regardless of what positions the Members of this Honourable House decide to take, I think that this is one situation we have to think very carefully about. I firmly believe that what I have stated here today are the thoughts of several people who cannot say so. Whatever it costs me, I have said it. I trust that the Backbench, especially, will understand and accept not just their responsibilities as representatives of the people, but their responsibility for the safety and well-being of the Cayman Islands. I hold true, standing here, that if this Bill is accepted as it is, that somebody is blinding their eyes to the truth.

I will be patient and listen to the Honourable Mover, who I am sure is anxious to wind up; and I will hear what is said regarding the various areas that I and others have exposed. But I want to place on record that getting my support on this Bill will be tough going.

Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

(2.48 PM)

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: This Bill implements a 1988 United Nations Convention against illicit Traffic in Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic substances. The Convention has been ratified and accepted by over 150 countries in the world large and small. It deals with narcotics, not even crimes generally. It is purely a Convention which came in 1988, geared to deal with illicit trafficking of narcotics.

I think that we have to cut through a lot of this talk and ask ourselves: what is this House passing? It is passing a 1988 Convention to stop the trafficking in narcotic drugs and psychotropic substances. What is the public policy of this country? That was one of the questions addressed by one of the Elected Members for George Town. The public policy of this country is that we are against narcotics and illicit trafficking of narcotics. The principle is very clear. We must send a message to the world that we are not going to allow the illegal trafficking of drugs in this country.

This is an 1988 Convention which applies to us quite rightly because this country is not one that is holding out to the world that we are prepared to hide the proceeds of narcotics. We are not prepared to assist narcotic traffickers in this country and we must take a stand against drugs—not just in the Cayman Islands, but we must take our stand against drugs in the world as a whole. If we fail in that, then I believe that the very foundations of society within this country will crumble.

I would say that possibly 80% of this Bill which, by the way, was published on the 27th April in a green copy. There were a few amendments made in this new Bill and I know that several Members made a lot of that. But this Bill was published in its green form on the 27th April, 1997 and had been put out as a white copy to the public several months before that. This is not new to this Legislative Assembly. With the exception of the change of name and some of the amendments made to it, the public has had four month's notice, perhaps more. It should not be confused with earlier Laws, such as the Mutual Legal Assistance Treaty, or the Proceeds of Criminal Conduct Law.

The Proceeds of Criminal Conduct Law does not deal with narcotics because it was specifically kept out and is dealt with in this Bill. It is also dealt with in the other drug laws that are enforced.

It seems that much has centred around the question of the Honourable Attorney General being the Central Authority. I do not intend to spend a lot of time, but I would like to point out a few things on this.

There is a difference between the appointment of a person in his normal capacity and when one exercises one's duties in a different capacity. Much has been made of the Mutual Legal Assistance (United States of America) Law of 1986. I would just like to read what Article 4 states to set up the Central Authority. “For the purposes of Article 2 the Cayman Mutual Legal Assistance Authority should be the Chief Justice who shall exercise his functions under the Treaty and this Law, acting alone and in an administrative capacity or another judge of the Grand Court designated by the Chief Justice to act in his behalf.”

When he acts as the Central Authority, or as it is referred to here, the Mutual Legal Assistance Authority, he acts not in his capacity as Chief Justice of the Cayman Islands, or as judge of the Grand Court, but he acts in an administrative capacity. That is quite right. So, we are not appointing the Grand Court of the Cayman Islands as the Central Authority. I think that is the first point that has to be made.

In this Bill, while the Honourable Attorney is named as the Central Authority, he too holds that position, as does the Central Authority under the other Law, in an administrative capacity. Applications have to be made to the Grand Court as a 'court.' There is nothing wrong in principle with this. If either of those persons as a Central Authority was usurping or taking over, or derogating from the main powers of the court, then I could see where that objection could well be taken in the light that it has been. But this has materially changed. Now, the position is such that the Attorney General will make a decision whether or not the application will be made to the court or not. That is no different than it has been for the 20 years I have been in Government, since 1976 when these matters were handled in an administrative way without any legal framework, when they were handled under the Confidential Relationships Law.

In instances where the Attorney General is involved, there are certain executive ways you can have openings under the Confidential Relationships Law. He makes a decision whether an application goes on to be processed through the court or not. I do not see a problem with this as it is now set out. It would have been different if the Attorney General, rather than exercising administrative powers, was exercising the powers of the court.

I take the point raised by Honourable Members that we have had a lot of legislation coming in relation to confidential relationships. Yes, it has been heavy going and is very complex. But I have no worry with this Bill. I do not think it is, as the Third Elected Member for George Town mentioned, related to public policy, with the Attorney General being judge and jury. That is really not the case.

By the way, it has nothing to do with taxes whatsoever. In fact, it has nothing to do with anything other than narcotics.

I think it is good that Members of this House question complex Bills, such as this, when they come up. If they are not proper when passed we could have some damage, but when dealing purely with narcotics rather than the wider spectrum of the legal framework, it is less worrying. What I would say to the First and Third Elected Members for George Town, if they really would like to see what one of the widest and most worrying (looking at it from our point of view) extensions of the drug criminality principle—which is basically, what is a crime here is a crime in the United States—look at Article 19 over the following four pages. They will see crimes referred to here which do not exist in the Commonwealth—never have and probably never will. This Bill (The Mutual Legal Assistance (USA) Bill, 1986, extends to this country for assistance crimes that are purely and peculiarly those of the United States of America. For example, racketeering, which is a crime in the United States that basically sweeps us nearly any and everything one can do down to the collection of unlawful debts. That is extremely wide.

If you look at the way it is drafted, if you look at the extensions set out in that relating to all sorts of things, even basically corrupt practices in other countries where the United States has no jurisdiction, it is extremely wide. This Bill only deals with narcotics and the psychotropic substances.

I really would not like to go beyond this because I believe that the main thrust of Members was to query some of these. I know that there was questions asked by the Third Elected Member for George Town regarding 3(h) and 3(i). What this says is that: “Mutual legal assistance in criminal matters specified in Article 3 (1) of the Convention may be requested for any of the following purposes (h) immobilising criminally obtained assets;” Surely we want to stop that in this country. We want to immobilise criminally obtained assets. Item (i) is “assisting in proceedings related to forfeiture, restitution and collection of fines.” This has been amended.

These are all areas that are dealing with one of the most important conventions in this country which is narcotics. I do not mind publicly saying that when it comes to drugs I am prepared to take whatever stand I feel is necessary. I am prepared to take whatever stand, whether it is harsh or not because these are people who bring death to our children. We are not playing with a simple criminal—we are playing with people who bring death to your children, the children of this country and the people of the world. Whatever steps we have to take to attack the illicit trafficking of narcotics, whatever it takes for us to stop the proceeds of crime relating to narcotics and crime generally, we must take it. If we do not do so, I believe that our Christian community which has been preserved over the years on proper principles will crumble.

If this was dealing with a subject other than drugs, then I could have some sympathy for some of the things put forward. When it comes to drugs, our position cannot be too harsh. We must take a position and tell the world that we are not going to hide narcotic money in this country; we are not going to assist drug traffickers and that has to be the position that will allow this country with its Christian principles to survive and for my children, your children and the children of this country to be free from drugs.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause) If not, would the Honourable Second Official Member like to do his winding up?

(3.07 PM)

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I would like to begin by commending those Members who have spoken in this debate on the manner in which the debate has been conducted. I think it is right and proper that a complex and serious piece of legislation like this should be debated fully; should have its clauses addressed in some detail, which I know can sometimes be difficult for others who are listening. But it is a very important function of this House that legislators go into the details of a Bill such as this, questioning and examining. I commend those Members who have obviously taken considerable time and trouble to go through the Bill in detail and come up with the questions and posed concerns that they have.

We have heard considerable reference to the Mutual Legal Assistance Treaty with the United States, and the Proceeds of Criminal Conduct Law—both of which are Laws dealing with, in particular, anti-money laundering provisions. Questions were posed asking if this type of legislation is good for business in Cayman. Cayman is a very successful financial centre and nobody—least of all, me—wishes to see anything put forward that could in any way jeopardise that business and the future of Cayman. So it is a very good question to pose.

But I think the answer is very clear. In many ways the Members who debated this Bill have given that answer themselves in the various quotations they have read, and from the extraction from the Evaluation Report from the Caribbean Financial Action Task Force.

The fact that we have the Mutual Legal Assistance Treaty and Proceeds of Criminal Conduct Law is the reason we get the accolades Cayman does get in the financial press. The outside world sees that Cayman is deadly serious in the fight against criminal monies. What is more, it does not just say so, it actually passes and implements legislation that gives effect to this. It is an incontrovertible and inarguable fact that is referred to time and time again in the Press. I would say that it is one of the most valuable marketing tools that the providers of financial services in Cayman have.

The investors who use Cayman to an ever increasing extent do not want to do business in a jurisdiction that welcomes drug traffickers. They do not want to do business in a jurisdiction that tolerates money laundering. They do not wish to say to their business associates, 'We do our business in the Cayman Islands,' only to have someone retort to them, 'What? You do it there? Those people just harbour money launderers.' They want people to say, 'Oh! You do your business in Cayman? Obviously, your business is good, legitimate business.' That is the reaction they want, and that is the reaction they get. It will continue to be so, provided that we stick to this type of legislation that sends the clear message: 'If you have dirty money, if you have illegal proceeds, if you have the proceeds of drug trafficking, do not come to the Cayman Islands with it.'

I would say that this legislation is very good for business in Cayman; and has proved to be so over a considerable number of years.

The Convention which this legislation is implementing (what I have termed the United Nations Vienna Convention) is probably the most significant anti-drugs legislation there is. It has already been ratified and extended to Cayman, therefore, Cayman is already bound by its obligations and terms. We are already committed to offering mutual legal assistance and cooperation in drugs matters in accordance with its terms. That is why we are a party to the Convention. What this legislation does is implement that and allow us to offer that assistance. So, we are already committed and quite rightly so because people would very definitely look askance if Cayman were not a party to this convention. Just about every other country is and there is no doubt that if Cayman was not a party to it adverse reaction would ensue.

Even though it was extended to us at the beginning of 1995, we have been complying with all of its terms apart from the implementation in this Bill before us today. For many years, on a purely voluntary basis, we have shown that we are good world citizens. We have complied with the terms of the UN Convention despite the fact that it had not been formally extended to us at that time. It has now been extended to us, and if we are to honour our obligations under it (as we wish to do), we have to pass legislation which allows us to implement the assistance.

There is something else that I should say, because it has been raised. It has been suggested that Cayman is leading the way, once again, pushing back the bounds by passing this legislation. But, on this occasion that is not true. In fact, Cayman is catching up by passing this legislation (which I hope we will do today). The other jurisdictions in a similar position to ourselves already have this legislation in place. We need to get our compliance in order. So, we are not going far beyond the bounds of anywhere else, we are catching them up in this particular area.

The Third Elected Member for George Town mentioned some concerns of the Law Society, saying that they did not support the Bill. I am sorry to hear that. In fact, a considerable amount of consultation took place with the private sector commencing at the beginning of the year. It was in order to allow the fullest possible consultation that the previous Bill was withdrawn and this Bill was introduced at this meeting. I would not want Members of the House to think that reflects across the board what the financial sector in Cayman thinks of the legislation before you today.

The Caymanian Bar Association wrote to me indicating that their council was satisfied with the Bill; in fact, they proposed an amendment to clause 2(2) which is one of the amendments we have before us which will be considered at the Committee stage. That was the only amendment they proposed, they were otherwise satisfied.

I also have a letter from the Cayman Insurance Manager's Association saying that they had reviewed the Bill and had no further comments, and approved it.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, on a point of clarification, if the Member would give way.

The Speaker: Please continue.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I wonder if the Honourable Member would clarify if the information I gave in this House that the Law Society had not supported this, was the first time he was hearing this. From his statement it would seem that this information first came to his notice when I mentioned it here in this House. I really do not believe that to be the case.

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: I was still working my way through these letters. No, I had a letter from the Law Society which I was about to refer to. I was coming to the fact that I had a letter from the Law Society on 5th June which raised certain issues, all of which have been covered in the debate over the last two days, and which I immediately responded to. I addressed those issues and will continue to address them as I go through my debate.

No, I certainly was not inferring that the first time I knew of any concerns of the Law Society was in this debate. It was one of the letters that I have here. All I wanted to do was not to give Members the impression that the entire financial industry was against this type of legislation, because it certainly is not.

Many of the other associations have not written in one way or the other, and that is exactly as I would expect because very often people do not put pen to paper unless there is something specific they want to say.

I think the easiest way is for me to go through this point by point. Let me first explain that a number of Members have raised the same issues. I do not wish to duplicate what I am saying, so where those issues appear to me to be the same, I will just address them once. If I do not mention a particular Member's name, I hope he will forgive me.

The first issue raised was in the Memorandum of Objects and Reasons. Although I did use that, because it is an easy way to see what the Bill means, it is a little dangerous when we talk about details to look at the Memorandum of Objects and Reasons. As Members of this Legislative Assembly know, when this Bill become Law, the Memorandum of Objects and Reasons falls away. So, I think we need to look at the Law itself. So, I am not starting at the very first section or clause, I will start at clause 3. This deals with the purposes for which assistance can be offered. The question has been raised, whereas paragraphs (a) through (g) follow exactly Article 7 of the Convention, paragraphs (h) and (i) appear to be additional. The question was asked why these were included additionally. You will also recall that the final three or four words of paragraph (i) are going to be deleted at Committee stage.

I can give you a number of reasons why these were included. We thought about it before including them. First of all, these are included in the Mutual Legal Assistance Treaty with the United States. They are part of the assistance we can offer the United States under that Treaty. They are orders that are already attainable under our existing Misuse of Drugs Law, so we can apply to the court for them.

It seemed only right to add them to the list of purposes for which we could offer assistance, as the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning has pointed out. Why would we not want to immobilise criminal assets? Why would we not want to forfeit the proceeds of crime, when it is drug trafficking? Surely, that is exactly what we would want to do, and we have the ability to do it already. You will notice that this Law does not create or implement the means to immobilise assets or forfeit assets because we already have that under the Misuse of Drugs Law. It seemed to me to be the right thing to put in. We should be offering that assistance.

Although it is not one of the specific items in Article 7 of the Convention (which goes from (a) to (g)), you will recall that Article 7 says: "The Parties shall afford one another, pursuant to this article, the widest measure of mutual legal assistance in investigations, prosecutions. . ." So, as we are able to offer that assistance anyway, under our existing legislation, it seemed only right to me to include it in here. That is why I have included it.

A question was asked by a number of Members about why the Attorney General is the Central Authority. A point that seemed to be made was, (1) is the Attorney General a political animal, subject to political influence and not really independent; and (2) is he in some way usurping the function of the court, the judge and so on. Well, I would like to refer Members to the Constitution of the Cayman Islands, in particular section 16(a) which actually deals with the powers of the Attorney General. It deals with the Attorney General's powers in relation to undertaking criminal proceedings, prosecuting and so on. It is a very important part of the Attorney General's role, one that I take extremely seriously.

The independence of the Prosecutor (which is what this means) is one of the fundamentals of the criminal justice system. It is just as important as the independence of the judiciary. It was obviously felt by those who prepared this Constitution that it was so important that it should be inserted into the Constitution, and it has been. At the end of this important section (subsection (5)) it says: "In the exercise of the powers conferred on him by this section, section 24 or section 25 of the Constitution the Attorney General shall not be subject to the direction or control of any other person or authority." In other words, the Attorney General does not defer to anybody when it comes to decisions on prosecution and law enforcement.

There is no question of political interference in these matters and the Constitution ensures that there is none; specifically saying so. I hope that allays those concerns. This Bill ensures that the only orders that can be made under this Bill are made by a Grand Court Judge. Not even just by a court. There is no question of this being dealt with by a summary court. It has to be a Grand Court Judge.

The Attorney General's role as the Central Authority is like a receiving post box, receiving actual requests, processing them, ensuring they comply with the terms of the Convention as set out in this Bill, so that we are not wasting judicial time by putting matters forward that clearly do not comply in the first place. Then, to present correctly and fully in front of the judge the application for whatever order is required so that the judge then makes the order and will ensure that any information he requires is before him. It is the duty of the Crown in this capacity to always put the information before the court. This is a slightly different system that operates under the English Criminal Justice System, which we have in Cayman, and it differs from the American Criminal Justice System.

There is a duty for the Crown to present all relevant facts before the judge and the court. So everything that is relevant to the application will be before the judge and he will make the decision. It will be his order, not the order of the Central Authority.

What it means is that because the Central Authority is the Attorney General there is another safeguard, because the Attorney General looks at the papers when they first come in, assesses them and they have to get past that test before they ever get to the Grand Court Judge. Then it is entirely a matter for the Grand Court Judge whether the order being sought is granted or not.

The question of public policy was raised, but I think the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning has really dealt with that. I can refer to the fact that one of the reasons that the Authority may refuse to comply with a request is if he is of the opinion that the request is likely to prejudice the security, public order, or other essential interests of the islands. I think that covers a similar point as well.

I was referred to clause 18, the question of confidentiality. This came up in a variety of guises too. Of course, generally speaking, when a request is made from one jurisdiction to another, confidentiality is important. The requesting country does not normally want details of the request to be made public. Very often it is asked that the request remain confidential. If that is so, then the Authority can agree that it be kept confidential for a period up to 90 days. That does not prohibit someone from mentioning it in instructing their attorney, but it prevents them from going public with the information.

Confidentiality is also contained in clause 6. This is confidentiality on the other side. The requesting party can only use the material or information for the purpose for which it was requested. In other words, they request it for a specific purpose and it can only be used for that specific purpose unless the Authority states otherwise. Before the Authority can do so it has to apply to the court for directions from the court on that particular matter. So, that ensures that information could not be requested for one purpose with the requesting jurisdiction using it for something entirely different. It can only be used for the original purpose. Under no circumstances will that purpose involve taxes. This relates entirely to drugs and drug trafficking, not even to other serious crimes, just drugs and drug trafficking.

Going back to clause 2(2) which was referred to by a number of Members, you may recall that this is a clause which is also subject to a Committee stage amendment, the amendment proposed and accepted by me from the Caymanian Bar Association.

Clause 2(2) says: “. . . this Law [Misuse of Drug (International Co-operation) Law] applies to the offences specified in Article 3(1) [of the Convention]” which we have been obliged and have made offences in Cayman under the terms of the Convention as are “offences of the same or a similar nature under the Laws of the Islands.” You may have heard me refer to this previously when we debated other Bills as the “dual criminality test.” It means that for a criminal offence to be caught by this Law it not only has to be an offence in terms of being one of the offences set out in the Convention, but it also has to be an offence in Cayman. If we needed any other confirmation, that also strikes out taxation matters because we do not have tax offences here in Cayman.

Members were a little alarmed when they saw the list of approximately 150 countries who are parties to this Convention to whom we, under its terms as another party now, are obliged to give assistance to, because some of those countries are not the place one would go for a holiday. But, if you stop to think twice about this, it is a very good thing that these countries are a party to this convention because the countries that have drugs problems are the very countries that need to be signed up to an anti-drugs convention.

If the countries with drugs problems (and some of them have terrible drugs problems) were absent from this convention, what use would the convention be? Very limited. The convention needs to have all of these countries as committed signatories to it. They need assistance. They have a terrible problem and we certainly do not want to be a part of that problem. We want to be part of the solution. So, it is not surprising that these countries are on that list.

I can understand Members' balking a bit when they see some of the names there, but that is why we have the safeguards built into the convention set out in the Bill before us. That is why the assistance is for certain specific purposes. That is why we say that a request under section 5 of the Bill must contain a considerable amount of information, so that we can make sure that it is not just a fishing expedition, but a genuine request for assistance in respect of a criminal matter where there is some hard evidence they can put before us.

That is why under section 8 we give circumstances in which the Authority can refuse to comply with a request and decline to offer that assistance. That is why we have all these things in here—to make sure that if a country on that list was not producing a request in a genuine manner, we would be able to deal with it. We have the means to deal with it here.

If I have dealt with these correctly I hope I have covered the points raised by the Third Elected Member for George Town. I will now deal with the points raised by the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

The Member asked why, unlike the Misuse of Drugs Law, there was not provision for production orders (which in this Bill are contained in section 11) to be made against Government. We did give consideration to that, and we felt that it might look a little incongruous to put it in here. Really, it is only because of this. There is no great mystery to it. Production orders are orders by a Grand Court Judge which compel particular documents to be produced. They would normally be applied for and granted where the court and the applicant were of the opinion that without such a compelling order those documents would not be produced. If the person were prepared to produce them voluntarily there would be no need to go to the court and ask for that order.

Because the Government has already become a party to this Convention and is therefore obliged to honour its terms, clearly, the Government is not going to decline and refuse to produce documents which are correctly capable of being produced under this legislation. It seems odd and might sound strange that Government would be subjected to a production order. But I have no objection to that going in. I cannot think of any circumstances where a production order would be requested against Government, because I cannot think of any circumstances where Government would refuse. If it were an issue where Government did not wish to volunteer the documents then the Central Authority would not be putting it forward in the first place.

That was the reason behind it and it was a drafting decision. It was felt to look a little incongruous to put it in. But that is a matter we can certainly discuss in Committee stage, and if Members feel that it is important to put it in, I certainly do not mind. That is the only reason it was left out.

The next point was in that same section 11. The lady Member referred me to subsections (9) and (10). These are what we call 'tipping off' offences where an investigation could be sometimes fatally prejudiced by somebody tipping off the villain that a particular investigation was taking place, so allowing that individual to move his assets elsewhere outside the jurisdiction to escape the Law. That is why we have a tipping off offence.

This is not a novel concept in this Law. It is in the Misuse of Drugs Law and in the Proceeds of Criminal Conduct Law.

I think the question the lady Member was asking was that it refers in here to an individual knowing or suspecting that a request has been made, or that an investigation into any matter to which a request is made is taking place. The first question was, everything else refers to a 'request,' why are you suddenly introducing an investigation? Very often the request itself is being kept confidential. It is not necessary that the individual would know that a request had been made, but he would certainly know that an investigation was underway because that is the bit he is tipping off. So, we would not wish him to be able to avoid this offence by saying, "Oh, I knew there was an investigation, but I did not know there was a request." He probably would not know there was a request. So, that is not really the issue. The issue is, if he knows that an investigation into drug trafficking is going on, and he then goes and tips off the subject of that investigation to enable that individual to move his assets to another jurisdiction, then we want to catch him.

She went on to say. . .

The Speaker: Honourable Member, can we take a break, or would you rather continue?

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Perhaps I can finish this section.

The Speaker: Certainly.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: There is a defence to that allegation, which is, that that individual did not know or believe that the disclosure was likely to prejudice the investigation. The lady Member said that we had not put the request in there, we have only said that the defence is that it would not prejudice the investigation, why do you not put in the request as well. The answer is that I am quite happy to put that in to mirror it up with the offence. There was nothing deliberate about that, and I am quite happy to put that in and deal with that at Committee stage.

Mr. Speaker, I have concluded that section.

The Speaker: Proceedings are suspended for 15 minutes.

The Speaker: I will ask the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay to say prayers.

PRAYERS

Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks: Let us Pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived: We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Let us say the Lord's prayer together: Our Father who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done in earth as it is in Heaven; Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us; and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, for ever and ever, Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Proceedings are resumed. Presentation of Papers and Reports. The Traffic (Speed Limits) (Cayman Brac) Regulations, 1997. The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

PRESENTATION OF PAPERS AND REPORTS

THE TRAFFIC (SPEED LIMITS) (CAYMAN BRAC) REGULATIONS, 1997

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I beg to lay on the Table of this Honourable House, The Traffic (Speed Limits) (Cayman Brac) Regulations, 1997.

The Speaker: So ordered. The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: These regulations were requested quite some time ago by the District Administration of Cayman Brac. The normal way in which these regulations are made for speed limits, where they begin and end, is by reference to grid marks. This is done by the Lands and Survey Department.

I believe that the average person reading this regulation will have little knowledge as to where it begins and ends; but it is the intention of the Ministry (and it is in the works) to make a proper press release on this regulation to indicate to members of the public exactly where it begins and ends.

For example, my understanding is that the speed limit referred to in regulation 3, the maximum speed limit of 25 MPH is, in essence, extending the speed limit west of the Government Administration Building in Cayman Brac. That is one reference that we know. I repeat that our intention is to do a press release so that the public will know exactly where these speed limits begin and end.

The Speaker: The Cayman Islands' National Strategic Plan for Health - 1997 -2001. The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

THE CAYMAN ISLANDS' NATIONAL STRATEGIC PLAN FOR HEALTH 1997-2001

Hon. Anthony Eden: I beg to lay upon the Table of this Honourable House, The Cayman Islands' National Strategic Plan for Health - 1997 -2001.

The Speaker: So ordered. The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony Eden: In April 1994 the Executive Council approved the proposal by the newly created Ministry of Health to embark upon a strategic planning exercise for the Cayman Islands Health Services.

The primary objectives were to set clear directions for the delivery of health care, detail the cost of implementation over five years and to elicit support for the proposed plan through the involvement of every sector of the resident population of the Cayman Islands.

The Health Strategic Planning Team representing a wide cross section of professionals and non-professional groups established the mission statement, a belief statement, strategic parameters, an objective and eight strategies which will guide the delivery of health services over the next five years of the proposed plan. A total of 63 action plans were produced by action teams working on both Grand Cayman and Cayman Brac.

Significant elements of the proposed Cayman Islands National Strategic Plan for Health are as follows:

- . Provision of community based health care services.
- . Provision of advanced technology to support the quality of the service.
- . Inclusion of health services personnel in decisions affecting them.
- . Improvement of communications among all health services personnel.
- . Health promotion and the responsibility of individuals to contribute to personal and community health.
- . Promotion of workers' health and safety.
- . Procedures to minimise undue interference in the functioning of the health services.
- . Marshalling of financial, physical, human, community and technological resources.
- . Development of collaborative process between public and private health sectors.
- . Establishment of performance indicators to measure important aspects of health care provision.
- . Provision of the highest quality of services possible.
- . Ensuring the safety and effectiveness of pharmaceuticals.
- . Enhancement of skills of personnel to enable them to adjust to changing requirements.
- . Improvement of morale of health care providers.
- . Improvement of the image of the health care services.
- . Expansion of public health programmes focusing on prevention, rather than cure.
- . Establishment of standards for the practice of alternative non-traditional homeopathic medicine in the Cayman Islands. It should be noted that some aspects of the programme are already in progress. Two obvious examples are the construction of district health centres and the new Cayman Islands Health Services Complex. Others include expansion of public health programmes focusing on prevention rather than cure as a cost effective measure.
- . Improvement of the image of the health services by a reduction in waiting time at the hospital brought about by increased clinic hours.
- . Recognition of meritorious services by health care workers.
- . Provision of staff training in interpersonal skills.
- . Drafting of a health services administrative handbook.
- . Increased involvement of health services staff in promoting the health services. Examples: Batabano and the Cricket Carnival which proved successful.
- . Assignment of health professionals, when requested, to provide expertise and support for non-governmental organisation programmes.
- . Purchasing of new medical equipment with a view to lessening the need for overseas referrals. This process is already well underway.
- . Provision of a pension plan and health insurance scheme. The former has been addressed by the Honourable Minister for Community Development Sports, Women's Affairs, Youth and Culture, and the latter by my Ministry.
- . Leasing out of the hyperbaric chamber operation to private enterprise subject to Government regulatory control. This has already been accomplished.
- . Formulation of a draft national plan for workers' health.
- . Draft protocols for the acceptance by the health services department of gifts, donations, contributions and requests earmarked for the department's use.
- . Appointment of a biomedical engineer to ensure safety, efficiency and maintenance of medical equipment. Such a person is now in place.
- . Implementation of a 9-1-1 Emergency System. This has already been addressed by the Ministry for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

A financial plan for the implementation of the strategic plan for health has been prepared and the total cost to Government has been identified as follows: Capital Expenditure: $38,135,700, includes $960,200 for Capital Acquisitions. Recurrent Expenditure: $29,669,889.

It should be noted that the non-recurrent total includes substantial expenditure which would be incurred by major capital projects, the Cayman Islands Health Services Complex and the construction of six district health centres. The preceding capital expenditure totals approximately $32 million to $33 million of the overall $38 million. The recurrent total includes the significant costs of staffing these greatly expanded facilities. To offset this somewhat, according to estimates provided by the Economics and Statistics Office revenue collection in the year 2001 is expected to be in the region of $25 million.

I am very pleased to be able to table this important document today. I had hoped to do so last year, but the very great pressure of the work in my Ministry did not allow it. I would like to express my sincere gratitude to the members of the Health Strategic Planning Team, the Action Team Leaders and all those who participated in any way, both on Grand Cayman and on Cayman Brac. Everyone did an excellent job in the preparation of the Strategic Plan which will guide the delivery of health care services in the years ahead.

I would like to specifically thank the Permanent Secretary and Senior Assistant Secretary in the Ministry for the many long hours they have spent on this; and for their dedication and their sweat and tears which have gone into this. As I have already indicated, some aspects of the plan were so significant and pressing that the Ministry and Health Services Department decided to proceed with implementing them. In one year's time, the Planning Team will meet again to carry out an annual update. I know that when this takes place it will be found that implementation of the plan is well underway.

I conclude by thanking you for allowing me to table the National Strategic Plan for Health and I commend it to all Members of this Honourable House and the public. I encourage them to familiarise themselves with its contents.

The Speaker: Questions to Honourable Members/ Ministers. Question No. 111, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION NO. 111

No. 111: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development if there have been any recent personnel changes at the Cayman Islands' Stock Exchange.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: As was published via Government Information Services in April, a Chief Executive was appointed to succeed a consultant, whose tenure under a consultancy with Government was completed.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Member state if this change means a change in the philosophy or operational objectives of the Stock Exchange.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: This change is to continue the original set up objectives of the Stock Exchange.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Is the Honourable House to now understand that the Stock Exchange has its full staff complement and, barring any unforeseen circumstances, that there is unlikely to be any further change in personnel?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: There are several reasons to give this assurance. For the time being we have the key personnel and with the growth that we anticipate as the Stock Exchange continues to grow, more personnel will be added.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Member give us some information regarding Caymanian trainees for the Stock Exchange?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The staff complement at the Stock Exchange provides for six persons to be employed. We have four senior management positions; the chief executive officer, the head of listing, the head of surveillance, and the head of technology. These individuals were brought on board because of their relevant experience to get us started. We have two Caymanians currently employed; one in the listing department and one as an administrative assistant.

The Government's objective is to Caymanianise all sections of Government. This will be achieved in time and we are now in a start-up mode. Once the Stock exchange grows, our prime consideration will be to have Caymanians on board. We will also take time out to identify those persons who will, in time, succeed the senior managers within the Stock Exchange.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Is the Honourable Member in a position to say if there is any plan or time table as to when we may reasonably expect that some Caymanians will be recruited to take over administrative positions?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: No. A definite timetable cannot be given at this time. The Stock Exchange commenced operation effective 1st January. We are still putting in place the administrative structure. We need to have experienced persons at this time. We have acquired the expertise of four persons to head positions in various areas as mentioned. We are bringing Caymanian staff on board and this will be determined by the volume of business that takes place. We have two Caymanian officers at this time and hope to identify Caymanian trainees to assume the various positions that will be created as a result of growth. Eventually we hope to have a fully Caymanianised Stock Exchange.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, the next question is No. 112, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 112

No. 112: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development what regulations exist to ensure that no insider trading occurs at the Cayman Islands Stock Exchange.

DEFERMENT OF QUESTION NO. 112Standing Order 23(5)

Hon. George A. McCarthy: In accordance with Standing Order 23(5), I would like to ask that the answer to Question No. 112 be deferred until a later Sitting, or answered in writing is the House concluded its business.

The Speaker: The question is that In accordance with Standing Order 23(5), the answer to Question No. 112 be deferred until a later Sitting, or answered in writing is the House concluded its business. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED. QUESTION NO. 112 DEFERRED UNTIL A LATER SITTING OR TO BE ANSWERED IN WRITING IF THE HOUSE CONCLUDED ITS BUSINESS.

The Speaker: Question No. 113, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 113

No. 113: Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly asked the Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works to state whether or not any claims made by landowners, in Little Cayman, who were adversely affected when the Land Adjudication Tribunal awarded areas of swamp land and interior cliff land to the Crown in the 1970s, have been reviewed by Executive Council since the unanimous passing of Private Member's Motion No. 18/87.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Yes, claims have been made by landowners in Little Cayman since 1987.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Can the Honourable Minister say if these claims have been settled? If not, an undertaking to that regard would be acceptable.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: It is my understanding that since 1987 the following parcels have been transferred from the Crown to private individuals: Block Parcel 87A-41 and 87A-1 Albert F. Ryan and Brenda Dredge Foster.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister give an indication as to how many of these claims may still be outstanding?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: The register from the Lands and Survey Department indicates that there are outstanding claims.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: The question was, can he say how many?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: There answer is no.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, the next question is No. 114, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman

QUESTION NO. 114

No. 114: Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly asked the Honourable Minister Responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works to (a) provide a list of all road works on Cayman Brac and Little Cayman undertaken by the Cayman Brac Public Works Department since 1st January, 1997 to the 23rd May, 1997; and (b) to provide a breakdown of cost on each of these road works for the said period.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister Responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John McLean: A list of road works undertaken from January to May 23rd and a breakdown of the costs is as follows: Capital Works, Southwest Development Road, Cayman Brac - expenditure, $118,480; Guy Banks Road, Little Cayman - $161,432.53.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Can the Honourable Minister say whether or not this Southwest Development Road and Guy Banks Road were roads that were requested by Cayman Brac MLAs, as is the normal custom?

Hon. John McLean: In the Estimates under Head 34-452-2, the list of roads for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman for the amount of $400,000, reads as follows: "Construct and repair the following roads on Cayman Brac: Indie Christian Road and Lindell Frederick Road in Spot Bay; Davelee Tibbetts Road & Winnie Scott Road at Creek; Eli Scott, Huffman Anderson and Foster's Roads at Watering Place; Myrna Pouchie and Julia Ann McLaughlin [and let me repeat that—it was not Julianna O'Connor!—“Myrna Pouchie and Julia Ann McLaughlin...”] Roads at the Bight; Watering Place Bluff Road and Peripheral Bluff Road."

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Are you in a position to say when you were first notified of this Southwest Development Road in Cayman Brac, that is, the Peripheral Bluff Road?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister Responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John McLean: On one of my official visits to Cayman Brac, I became acquainted with the road which the Member is speaking about. I immediately wondered who had authorised it, and upon my return here it was halted until we could find out exactly where it was going. That was my first knowledge of it, and it was my understanding from the Chief Engineer that it was his first knowledge of it.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: I wonder if the Honourable Minister can say if the work on the roads as read out for an expenditure of $400,000 will now be effected, seeing that the total capital expenditure was almost $300,000 spent thus far?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister Responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John McLean: I would have to say to the lady Member that if the additional funds are requested and approved, most definitely we would try to do the work. But it is my understanding that the funds which have been removed from the $400,000 in question would actually apply from last year's vote to this year's Budget. So, I take it that for us to complete the request as she has made and as I read out, it would be necessary for us to get the additional funds to complete them.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Can the Honourable Minister give an undertaking whereby MLAs will be informed of any further usage of the $400,000 which was approved by this Honourable House (once it comes to his knowledge because there seems to have been a problem there), so that we will not have to waste our time getting approval for expenditure and then come to find that it is not being used for that?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister Responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John McLean: As far as road construction and my Ministry is concerned, I would be most happy to continue to inform any Member of the Legislative Assembly. However, I am sure that the lady Member realises that when it comes down to the financing and spending of the money, I have no control over that. But, yes, I will give the undertaking that if certain road works can be done within the funds available at the time, most certainly, I will let them know. (pause) Including Mr. Kurt Tibbetts.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: I wonder if the Honourable Minister can say who makes the request for a change or virement of funds after the Finance Committee approves it?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister Responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John McLean: As I said earlier, I was not aware of the road in question, nor was my Chief Engineer, so I have to take it that it was actually done through District Administration.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: I guess I should preface my question by saying that I am not trying to beat a dead horse, and I am not trying to allocate blame on the Honourable Minister, because I think we can take judicial notice as to what has transpired. But, be that as it may, can the Honourable Minister say whether or not he still has responsibility for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman road works?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister Responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John McLean: Under the Constitution and the instructions I have been given by the Governor, I take it that I should be responsible for road works throughout the Cayman Islands. Of course, as the lady Member would know, there are certain areas that even with responsibility here in Grand Cayman, it seems as if when it is over on the other Islands, it goes haywire. I, too, would like to make sure that we do not have a repeat of something like this because we have also seen it with reference to Planning. I recall very well (I think it was back in 1977), when persons such as Mr. Truman Bodden and I tried to make sure that what applied to Grand Cayman applied to all of the Islands. It was not done then, and I think this is where we need to come to grips with this and make sure that whatever applies in Grand Cayman, applies for the Cayman Islands.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say if, when these changes are made, that he, as the Minister, or his office, is extended the courtesy of being informed of these changes and who authorised the changes?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister Responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John McLean: As I pointed out in answer to an earlier question, it was on an official visit to Cayman Brac that I found out about this road. Thereafter we actually put a halt on it until we could make sure what had taken place. As far as who authorised it, I would not like to stand on the floor of this House and say anything more than this.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Seeing that the Honourable Minister is accountable to Parliament, if these kinds of changes are made in complete disrespect for the fact that he is answerable to the Parliament (which I think is most unfair to him), can I get an undertaking that he will let the guilty parties know and, if possible, the House will have to sanction their efforts in all fairness to the Minister who has to account for things for which he gave no permission?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister Responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John McLean: As my old colleague Jim Bodden used to say, "by God, I tell you that has already been heard." I was very upset about it and I have definitely put on record exactly how I felt about it. As far as I am concerned, I trust it will never happen again.

The Speaker: Before we continue, I would like to get a motion for the suspension of Standing Orders to enable us to continue beyond 11.00 am.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 23 (7) AND (8)

Hon. John McLean: Mr. Speaker, I so move.

The Speaker: The question is that Standing Order 23(7) and (8) be suspended to enable Question Time to continue beyond 11.00 am. I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye... Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 23(7) & (8) SUSPENDED TO ENABLE QUESTION TIME TO CONTINUE BEYOND 11.00 AM.

The Speaker: The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: I will give way to the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: I wonder if the Honourable Minister can say whether or not this is the first time deviation of this nature has occurred during his time?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister Responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John McLean: I will say that it is probably the first time that we have had such a deviation.

The Speaker: The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: I wonder if the Honourable Minister will give this House an undertaking that he will now put a policy in place for any matters under his Portfolio, whether it be in Grand Cayman, Little Cayman or Cayman Brac, that such things do not occur until his permission is granted?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister Responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John McLean: I would like to say that it is not only my Ministry that has such a problem. I know of other Ministries that have had similar problems. As far as mine is concerned, I have tried my best to block that gap. Like all other Members here, I am not satisfied that something like that should have taken place, I have instructed my Permanent Secretary and he has already acted on it. We have put in place what we think will stop such an action.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, the next question is No. 115, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 115

No. 115: Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly asked the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport whether any consideration is being given to amending section 77 of the Traffic Law, 1991, to give the courts discretionary powers in the case of a person who, for proven extenuating circumstances, drives a vehicle, other than an emergency vehicle, in excess of the prescribed speed limit.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: The Government is not presently considering any amendment(s) to section 77 of the Traffic Law, 1991, but is willing to listen to suggestions from Honourable Members.

SUPPLEMENTARY

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Can the Honourable Minister state who should suggestions be directed to?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I would be happy to receive any suggestion on the subject.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, the next question is No. 116, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 116

No. 116: Mr. Linford A. Pierson asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development to state the balances on the following Government accounts as at 31st March, 1997: (i) surplus/deficit account; (ii) general reserves account; and (iii) public debt account.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The balances on the following Government Accounts as at 31st March 1997 are: (i) Surplus/Deficit Account - CI $17,579,000.00; (ii) General Reserves Account - CI $7,601,000.00; and (iii) The Public Debt Account excluding self-financing loans - CI $47,597,526.00.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Can the Honourable Minister state if whether the surplus and deficit account is a surplus or deficit balance, similarly with the general reserves?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The balance of $17,579,000 is a surplus balance, similar to the general reserves.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Is the Honourable Minister in a position to give the comparative balances as at 31st March, 1996?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The balance at 31st March, 1996 follows: Surplus and deficit account: $10,099,494; General reserves: $4,413,371; and the Government public debt excluding self-financing loans : $40,763,718.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Can the Honourable Minister also state if there are any pending liabilities on the advance account that should be written off against the surplus and deficit account?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: As Members will recall, during the Finance Committee meeting held in March, the question was raised in regard to overseas medical advances and what would be done. An undertaking was given then that that account would be reviewed. The review has commenced. At a point in time (later this year) when it is determined what balances are uncollectable, they will be brought here for approval to be written off. That would adversely impact the surplus and deficit account.

But, I should point out that the majority of the balance given is recoverable. So, they will continue to be carried as accounts receivable and, in effect, Government assets.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I thank the Member for that comprehensive answer. Can the Honourable Minister state if there are other liability expenses, other than the $9 million on overseas medical account, which should be written off.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The remaining balances under the advances account are deemed recoverable. I should point out that balancing the advances account we also have the deposit account balance. We always find that that balance runs in tandem with the advances account. These are obligations due the Government, so, in terms of what may have an adverse impact on the surplus and deficit account by way of having to write off advances, there is also the potential for revenue to be generated from the deposit accounts into general revenue.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Can the Honourable Minister state whether the $17 million is part of the $60 million profit we heard about?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I am not clear as to what the Member means by a $60 million profit.

The Speaker: Would you please repeat the question Third Elected Member for George Town?

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I can discuss this matter with the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development after the break, since he is not clear on this.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I thank the Honourable Member, and I welcome the enlightenment.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, that concludes Question Time for this morning.

Item 4. Other Business. Private Member's Motion No. 3/97, Independent Evaluation of the Economic Feasibility of the use of the Port Authority's Crane.

OTHER BUSINESS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 3/97

INDEPENDENT EVALUATION OF THE ECONOMIC FEASIBILITY OF THE USE OF THE PORT AUTHORITY'S CRANE

SPEAKER'S RULING

The Speaker: Before calling on the Honourable Member, I would like to evaluate the position on the pending suit. The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: On the last occasion when the House dealt with this Motion, I indicated that a Writ of Summons had been filed in the Court. That Writ of Summons was served on the Director of the Port Authority on Friday, 13th June, and yesterday (18th June) hearings began in the Court on this subject. I continue to say that the matter is sub-judice.

The Speaker: Do you have a copy of the Summons in your position?

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: My understanding is that the Bailiff walked across to the Port Authority and placed upon the desk of the Director the Writ of Summons. That is the way it was served.

The Speaker: You have stated that proceedings have commenced in court. Can you confirm that proceedings have commenced?

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: They have, Mr. Speaker. Yesterday.

The Speaker: Honourable Members, having taken legal counsel and advice on this, in the circumstances that a Writ of Summons and Application is before the Grand Court of the Cayman Islands, and I have now been informed that hearings have commenced in Cause No. 367 of 1997, between Thompson Shipping Company, Limited, and the Port Authority of the Cayman Islands for an injunction in them; I take the view for the same reasons I indicated on 12th June, 1997, that the House should not now debate the Motion.

However, the proper approach is for the parties to proceed swiftly, rather than for the House to have the need to continue postponing the consideration of Business properly before it. Therefore, I hope I have the full agreement of the House. I order that the matter shall rest at this time.

I direct that the Private Member's Motion No. 3/97 be placed on the Order Paper for the next Meeting of this Honourable House. That is my ruling.

Item No. 5, Government Business, Bills. Withdrawal of The Pensions (Amendment) Bill, 1997. The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

BILLS

THE PENSIONS (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1997 (withdrawn)

Hon. George A. McCarthy: In accordance with the provisions of Standing Order 58, I move the withdrawal of a Bill entitled, The Pensions (Amendment) Bill, 1997. This withdrawal is necessary to correct certain sections of the Bill. It will hopefully be brought back at the next meeting in September.

The Speaker: The question is that Bill entitled, The Pensions (Amendment) Bill, 1997, be withdrawn. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED. THE PENSIONS (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1997, WITHDRAWN.

The Speaker: Bills, Second Reading. The Honourable Second Official Member continuing his winding up.

SECOND READING

THE MISUSE OF DRUGS (INTERNATIONAL CO- OPERATION) BILL, 1997

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Hon. Richard H. Coles: At the adjournment of the House yesterday, I was working my way through various points mentioned by Members in the debate. I will continue along the same line, point by point.

I was asked if there was any limitation period for the criminal offences under this Bill. The answer is no, there is no limitation period. There is no limitation for criminal offences in Cayman, and they will be prosecuted as and when necessary.

I was also asked whether references to 'service by post' included communication by facsimile machine. The answer to that question is no, it does not. So 'service by post' means service by post.

It was also drawn to my attention that there is no general penalty in this Bill. There are some Laws in Cayman where, apart from specific offences, there is (for want of a better word) a 'catch-all' section which says that any offence for which there is no specific penalty will carry such-and-such a fine or penalty. That has been a feature of certain Laws in the past. It will not be a feature in the future because I do not regard such general penalties as good drafting practice, and we shall not be incorporating them. As far as possible we shall avoid that. Where there is an offence, it will be a specific created offence and will carry a specific penalty.

I was asked about the cost of dealing with the requests we are likely to receive under the Convention. It was pointed out that there will be some expense in complying with the requirements and obligations of this Convention. I make no secret of that fact. There will, indeed, be some expenses, not least of all to Government, because the Vienna Convention does require expenditure by Government in terms of money and resources. It behoves those other international jurisdictions to realise and accept that Cayman recognises its international responsibilities and commits considerable resources in terms of, for example, the Mutual Legal Assistance Treaty with the US, in order to comply with its obligations. It is a fact that we recognise and know that it is part of our international obligation under this Convention.

Article 7, paragraph 19, says: "The ordinary costs of executing a request shall be borne by the requested Party, unless otherwise agreed by the Parties concerned. If expenses of a substantial or extraordinary nature are or will be required to fulfil the request, the Parties shall consult to determine the terms and conditions under which the request will be executed as well as the manner in which the costs shall be borne." The general rule is that the expense falls on the party who receives the request. But there is a proviso in here that if some extraordinary or substantial expense was going to be incurred we can enter into discussions with the requesting jurisdiction and see if we can come to some agreement over it.

I was referred to two particular sections, sections 8 and 9 of the Bill. I will deal with them together because it is the same point made in respect to both sections 8(1) and 9(1). The point that was made is that it says at the beginning of section 8(1), "The Authority may refuse to comply with a request...", and in 9(1) "The Authority may postpone assistance pursuant to a request...", and they go on to state the circumstance. What I was asked was why we do not change if from 'may' to 'shall.' There are two reasons why it says 'may' in the Bill. The first reason is because this Bill is implementing the Vienna Convention and that is what it says in the Convention.

If we turn to Article 7 and look at paragraph 15, it says, "Mutual legal assistance may be refused..." and then it goes on to give the circumstances. In paragraph 17, it says, "Mutual legal assistance may be postponed by the requested party..." and it goes on to state the circumstances. So, we followed the wording within the Convention itself, which is clearly the right thing to do because that is what we are implementing.

There is good reason why it says 'may' instead of 'shall' because it gives the discretion to the court making the order and, indeed, to the Central Authority, but more essentially to the judges making the order. There could be some circumstances in that request where, notwithstanding the particular issues, the court decides to grant the order. It just gives that discretion to the judge. Using the word 'shall' shuts the door completely—he has no option under any circumstances to grant it. I think it makes sense, and that is why we put it in.

We then come to section 12. This is the application to the court for a search warrant. The issue raised was that there is power under this section to gather material that can be on a computer, material electronically recorded on a disk. I was asked what happens if there was also privileged material, attorney/client material and so on, on the disk. That is not possible for that to be used pursuant to a request, so I was asked what happens to that. What happens if the police who have a warrant to search the premises find that some of the material is on a computer disk, they will ask what is on the disk. If the answer is that the material is privileged information, if that is then borne out by the party's attorney who say exactly the same thing, as long as it can be substantiated the exception applies and that is the end of that. It does happen now when material is seized.

I think what the Member was asking was if the police looked all through this material to establish whether or not it is privileged. Of course, it never really gets to that stage because the claim is initiated first by the person from whom the disk is taken.

I was also asked about section 10. It deals with taking of evidence. If the request requires evidence (testimony) to be taken then the Central Authority makes an application to the Grand Court and if the court approves and grants the application, the court takes the testimony. The court requires the individual(s) to come to court, appear before the judge and give the testimony. If they wish to be represented, they can be legally represented and many of them are.

We put a specific section in here, subsection (4), just for the avoidance of any doubt, which says, "A person shall not be compelled in any proceedings under this section to give evidence which he could not be compelled to give in criminal proceedings in the Islands." That means that there is no requirement for anybody to give testimony which would incriminate them. So, if someone says when asked a question, "I decline to answer that question on the grounds that it might incriminate me in offences..." that is exactly what this section deals with. That is a fundamental principle of our criminal justice system anyway.

By my calculation I have covered all of the points raised by Members debating this Bill. Those of you who are listening will be no doubt delighted to know that I am finished going through this mass of detail. But I think it is important that I do answer detailed questions with detailed answers because that is what they deserve.

I want to come back to one particular point because I believe there is still some uncertainty over it. I hope that I can clear that up now. It is a point which a number of Members mentioned, and I have talked about it as well.

Back to section 3 of the Bill, the purposes for which assistance can be sought. The two purposes talked about, (h) and (i), and I will read them out: "(h) immobilising criminally obtained assets; and (i) assisting in proceedings related to forfeiture, restitution...." A number of Members mentioned that these do not feature in Article 7 and wondered why I put them in. I will repeat why and draw Members' attention to one or two other things as well.

Article 7 ended at (g), but I wish to make it clear that confiscation of drug proceeds and the proceeds of drug trafficking is very much part of the Vienna Convention. In fact, it is such a substantial part of it that it has its own article dealing with it; that is, Article 5. That deals with confiscation. It starts off: "Each Party shall adopt such measures as may be necessary to enable confiscation of: (a) Proceeds derived from offences established in accordance with article 3 [and if you remember, article 3 sets out the offences, all of which are offences in Cayman now and the confiscation of the drugs themselves.]"

"2. Each Party shall also adopt such measures as may be necessary to enable its competent authorities to identify, trace and freeze or seize proceeds, property, instrumentalities or any other things referred to in paragraph 1 of this article, for the purpose of eventual confiscation."

"4. (a) Following a request made pursuant to this article by another Party having jurisdiction over an offence established in accordance with article 3, paragraph 1, the Party in whose territory proceeds, property, instrumentalities or any other things referred to in paragraph 1 of this article are situated shall:

(i) Submit the request to its competent authorities for the purpose of obtaining an order of confiscation and, if such order is granted, give effect to it...."

I could go on but it is quite a long article. I think Members have the gist of this by now. It is a very important part of the Convention. I think that is a very good reason why it is included in here.

The other thing I want to reiterate is that this is not a novel concept. In fact, (h) and (i) have been taken word for word out of the Mutual Legal Assistance Treaty which was enacted in Cayman in 1986. If we look at Article 1 of that Treaty, which is in the Schedule of the Mutual Legal Assistance Law, 1986, we will see that paragraphs (g) and (h) (they are not the same lettering) are identical "immobilising criminally obtained assets;" and "assisting in proceedings related to forfeiture, restitution [and in this case] collection of fines [which we have struck out of the present Bill." So, we have seen all of this before. In fact, that is exactly what we do at the moment with the United States.

The Cayman Islands has maintained a very strict policy against drugs for many years; one of the toughest policies within the Caribbean region and, I would venture to guess, within the world. We have laws dealing with drugs offences and methods of prosecuting drugs offences which ensures that when we implement these prosecutions in Cayman they are dealt with correctly and that they are dealt with extremely competently. I can say that there are many other jurisdictions that envy (and envy is the right word) the legislation we have in place which they do not and are not able to implement in the way that we do. They would dearly love to have our legislation but, for various reasons, they do not.

Cayman has a very strong anti-drug policy. It is a policy pursued vigorously by the Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation in his campaign to eradicate drug abuse from the Cayman Islands; a campaign he very determinedly follows. We have a successful unit within the Royal Cayman Islands Police Force (RCIP), the Drugs Task Force, which is one of the most successful units within the RCIP, and does a splendid job tackling drugs problem within Cayman. They have had some very significant seizures of large amounts of drugs, and significant arrests.

We also have a very well supported voluntary unit, CASA, which has tremendous support within the islands. All of these people are doing their part in fighting the fight against drugs. This legislation we have before us today is part of that fight. It is an integral part of that fight.

I want to finish off by saying that my point is exactly this: Failure to pass this legislation undermines the good work that these people are doing. It is a sad day for those people who are doing their best to fight drugs; but even more important, it is a great disservice to Cayman itself if this legislation is not passed.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled, The Misuse of Drugs (International Co-operation) Bill, 1997, be given a second reading. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

The House will now go into Committee to discuss two Bills.

HOUSE IN COMMITTEE AT 2.26 PM

COMMITTEE ON BILLS

The Chairman: The House is now in Committee. May I assume that as usual we should authorise the Honourable Second Official Member to correct minor printing errors and such the like in the Bill? Thank you.

The Health Insurance Bill, 1997. The Clerk will read the clauses.

THE HEALTH INSURANCE BILL, 1997

Clerk: Clause 1. Short title and commencement.
Clause 2. Interpretation.
Clause 3. Compulsory health insurance.
Clause 4. Insurance for high risk insurance persons.
Clause 5. Payment of premium.

The Chairman: Clauses 1 through 5 are open for debate.

The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony Eden: Mr. Chairman, I would like to make an amendment to Clause 2 under the suspension of Standing Order 52(2), that amendments may be made without notice.

The Chairman: I will give permission. Do you have a copy of the amendment?

Hon. Anthony Eden: Yes, Mr. Chairman. While the Serjeant is getting copies made, it reflects that in Clause 2 (and this is with thanks to the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town), I would like to add a clause (iii) by inserting at the end of the definition of 'child': "(iii) a child born out of wedlock;"

I will read what it says: "That in Clause 2 under the definition of 'child' the following be inserted at the end: '(iii) a child born out of wedlock.'"

The Chairman: With the permission of the House, let me put the question on Clause 1. That Clause 1 do stand part of the Bill I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

CLAUSE 1 PASSED.

The Chairman: We will await the amendment to Clause 2. The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: I would like to get a bit of clarification on that amendment.

The Chairman: It may be best to await the printed copy. [Addressing the Fourth Elected Member for George Town] Please direct your question to the Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Dr. Frank McField: I am concerned with this particular clause in that the social ramifications could be quite significant. We are trying to legislate for society, meaning a kind of orderly way of doing things. In fact, we do not have that as a total basis in our society. A lot of people do have children born out of wedlock. Would they be responsible for these children? Does this clause mean that we would be able to pin legal responsibility for insuring these children?

Hon. Anthony Eden: The way it was before they would not have been covered. That is why we had to add this brief amendment.

Dr. Frank McField: Would that mean, then, that the Government would have covered these children as a class, similar to people who could not afford to pay?

Hon. Anthony Eden: No. There are many out there who can well take care of these children.

Dr. Frank McField: But if they are born out of wedlock...

Hon. Anthony Eden: Unless they were indigent, then Government would help them. But those who can pay, must pay.

Dr. Frank McField: So, who would be responsible in this case? The father or the mother?

Hon. Anthony Eden: I may have to get some help from the Honourable Second Official Member on this.

The Chairman: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: In the absence of a court order, the legal responsibility would fall with the mother. But, generally speaking, if the identity of the father was known, the mother would be able to take him to court for an affiliation order which would cover this sort of eventuality.

Dr. Frank McField: I would like to register my concern with this particular amendment because, although I believe it is good to cover all persons, we are still starting with a society that is imperfect and I think that the law has to take into account these imperfections in that there many children born out of wed lock. It corresponds very closely with the social economic status of the fathers. We have been experiencing quite a bit of difficulty enforcing court orders with regard to basic weekly or monthly maintenance. If the fathers were deemed responsible for the health insurance policies for these children, although we would like to see things run perfect, I ask if it would not be too much of a burden at this time on that social economic category of person.

Hon. Anthony Eden: If a person gets into difficulty, there is a provision to help them. As the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town noted in his debate, if a provision were not there many of them would not be covered in this.

The Chairman: Is there any further debate?

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Chairman, with all due respect, I am trying to get some clarification on this point. I think it is important to take this into account. Once the Law goes into effect it could create a lot of difficulties. We do not want to weaken the authority of our society by creating laws that do not take into account the pre-existing social weakness and the fabric of our society. Specifically, I think the action of having children is already there. There are men out there who have children born outside of wedlock. When they are seeking permission to get their children status it creates a problem, but when we give them responsibilities it seems to be a completely different situation.

I think our judgment should be used in this particular case, and I think that we should not necessarily put that type of responsibility on men in cases where their children are born outside of wedlock. Somehow the responsibility should rest with the mother until some type of legal clarification is made. We do not want to get into a situation where people start resisting the Law, creating difficulties.

I do not support men having children out of wedlock, but it is a pattern which has existed in the Caribbean society for as long as it has existed. I am very conscious of the efforts made by a previous Member of the Legislative Assembly with regard to enforcing Maintenance Orders. There is also a political type of consideration we must take into account because there is a lot of resistance to this, simply because many people fall into this category who usually fall at the bottom of the social economic level.

Although we would like everybody to be socially responsible, they can only exhibit a certain amount at this particular time. So, a person may have four, five or six children out there and four may be outside of wedlock. In many cases all six may be. Then we have to consider that social phenomenon as well.

Hon. Anthony Eden: The only response I have to that is that if we need to help some of these people we will have to do it. But someone has to be accountable for these actions.

The Chairman: If there is no further debate, the question is that clause 2 be amended. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AMENDMENT TO CLAUSE 2 PASSED.

The Chairman: The question now is that Clause 2, as amended do stand part of the Bill. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

CLAUSE 2 AS AMENDED PASSED.

Hon. Anthony Eden: Mr. Chairman, the other amendment is on Clause 3.

The Chairman: The Clerk has already read Clause 3, so please continue.

Hon. Anthony Eden: The amendment to Clause 3 reads: "That Clause 3(1) be deleted and the following substituted: '(1) Every person resident in the Islands shall unless -

- (a) he is covered by a contract of insurance effected by an employer under subsection (2);
- (b) he is covered by a contract of insurance effected by Government under subsection (3), or where Government does not effect such a contract, medical services are provided to him by Government in accordance with Chapter 18 of the General Orders of the Government; or

- (c) he is an uninsurable person, effect a standard health insurance contract in respect of himself, his unemployed spouse and children."

The Chairman: The amendment to Clause 3 has been moved. Does any Member wish to debate it?

Dr. Frank McField: I was wondering if this would be a good time to look at the Minister's concept of 'employer'?

The Chairman: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony Eden: Can the Member further expand?

The Chairman: What section are you referring to Fourth Elected Member for George Town?

Dr. Frank McField: I asked whether or not, since we are at Clause 3, this would be a good time to deal with his concept of 'employer' since I had a question in regard to the definition.

The Chairman: Can you pinpoint what section in the Bill this is?

Hon. Anthony Eden: It is on page 6, under "interpretations".

The Chairman: That is in Clause 2. We have already passed that. We are now dealing with Clause 3. The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: On the amendment just handed out, maybe the Honourable Second Official Member can advise me if I am wrong, it says, "(1) Every person resident in the Islands shall unless - (a) he is covered by a contract of insurance effected by an employer under subsection (2); (b) he is covered by a contract..." should the next word not be 'or'?

Hon. Richard H. Coles: I am afraid that the draftsman who did this Bill is not here at the moment, so I cannot really assist. I am told that we do not need a second 'or.' There is one at the end. That is what I am told. It is grammatically correct.

The Chairman: Is there any further debate on that amendment? If not, I shall put the question that Clause 3 be amended. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

The Chairman: There is an amendment to Clause 2?

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Yes, notice has been given for an amendment to Clause 2 (2). It reads that Clause 2(2) be deleted and the following substituted: "In this Law references to an offence to which this Law applies are references to such of the offences specified in Article 3(1) which are offences of the same or a similar nature under the Laws of the Islands."

The Chairman: The question is that Clause 2 be amended. Is there any debate? If not, I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

CLAUSE 2 AS AMENDED PASSED.

Clerk: Clause 3. Purposes of Mutual Legal Assistance.

The Chairman: There is an amendment to Clause 3?

Hon. Richard H. Coles: There is one amendment for which notice has been given. It reads: "that: (i) in Clause 3(i) the words 'and collection of fines' be deleted;" I think to make grammatical sense of it, the 'and' wants to be inserted between the words 'forfeiture and restitution.' So it will read: "Assisting in proceedings related to forfeiture and restitution."

There is another amendment that I am afraid we have not given notice of, but it was picked up by the legal Legislative Counsel whilst the Bill was finally being debated. It is purely a matter of grammar. Because we have made an amendment to Clause 2(2), we actually need to make an amendment to the first part of Clause 3. So, instead of it saying, "mutual legal assistance in criminal matters specified in Article 3(1)", it will read "mutual legal assistance to which this law applies." It will then mirror the amendment we made to Clause 2(2).

So, Clause 3 will now read: "Mutual legal assistance in offences to which this Law applies."

Is that clear? We delete the words, "criminal matters specified in Article 3(1)" and substitute in its place, "offences to which this law applies."

The Chairman: Are all Members clear on that?

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Will the amended sentence now read: "Mutual legal assistance in offences to which this law applied in Article 3(1)"?

Hon. Richard H. Coles: No. Article 3(1) is deleted. It will just say, "Mutual legal assistance in offences to which this law applies may be requested for any of the following purposes..."

The Chairman: If there is no further debate, the question is that Clause 3 be amended. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The question is that Clauses 11 through 16 do stand part of the Bill. Is there any debate? The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: I do not have any amendments to propose, but I think it is only fair to point out that the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman mentioned a couple of points from this section. She is not in the Chamber at the moment. I do not know if she wishes to move these or not.

The Chairman: Which clause is that?

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Clause 11.

MOTIONS

GOVERNMENT MOTION NO. 9/97

THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY STANDING ORDERS (1997 REVISION)

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: I beg to move Government Motion No. 9/97, entitled, The Legislative Assembly Standing Orders (1997 Revision), which reads:

"WHEREAS it is many years since there has been a general review of the Standing Orders of this Honourable House and it is now desirable that this should be undertaken (subject always to the provisions of the Cayman Islands Royal Instructions, 1972, and of the Cayman Islands (Constitution) Order, 1972, as amended).

"NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED that this Honourable House shall review its Standing Orders and make such amendments as it deems fit."

The Speaker: Under Standing Order 87(3) I shall put the question that the Motion be referred to the Standing Orders Committee. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE PROVISIONS OF STANDING ORDER 87(3) THE MOTION STOOD REFERRED TO THE STANDING ORDERS COMMITTEE.

STANDING ORDER 70(2)
 CHAIRMAN OF COMMITTEE

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member will act as Chairman to this Committee.

Presentation of Papers and Reports. Suspension of Standing Order 14. The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport

PRESENTATION OF PAPERS AND REPORTS

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 14

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I beg to crave the indulgence of the House. This morning I laid on the Table of this Honourable House the Traffic Regulation for Cayman Brac. As these regulations cannot come into effect until they are laid on the Table, as you know, I do have a regulation that was recently passed by Executive Council and I wish to lay this upon the Table of this Honourable House also. I believe on this occasion it is necessary to suspend Standing Order 14. I so move in order for this regulation to be laid on the Table. This regulation in particular is beneficial for traffic flow in the Cayman Islands.

The Speaker: The question is the suspension of Standing Order 14. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 14 SUSPENDED TO ENABLE THE HONOURABLE MINISTER TO LAY A PAPER ON THE TABLE.

The Speaker: I so order that the regulations be laid upon the Table. Do you wish to speak to is, Honourable Minister?

THE TRAFFIC CONTROL REGULATIONS 1997

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: The Traffic Control Regulation 1997, allows traffic to turn left on a red traffic light, provided it is safe to do so. I believe that this regulation is one that every Member of this House has been requesting for some time. Rather than wait until the September Meeting, I thought it opportune to seek your approval to place this on the Table as required by the Traffic Law, section 113.

This regulation goes on to deal with portable light signals, flashing red and amber signals, as well as other road markings. But I believe the significant benefit of this regulation is the ability to turn left on a red light after coming to a stop, provided it is safe to do so; that there is no oncoming traffic in that direction. I believe this will make a significant improvement to the traffic flow in George Town in the very near future.

Thank you.

The Speaker: That concludes the business on the Order Paper for today. There being no further business, I will entertain a motion for the adjournment of this Honourable House.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Boddan: I am very happy to move the adjournment of this Honourable House until 10.00 AM on 27th August, 1997.

The Speaker: The question is that the House do now adjourn until 10.00 AM, 27th August. Before I put the question, I would like to thank all Honourable Members and Ministers for their courtesy and tolerance to the Chair. I am pleased that it has been a shorter Meeting than the last one, and wish you all a happy vacation if you are able to take one.

I shall put the question that the House adjourn until 27th August, 1997. Those in favour please say Aye... Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House is accordingly adjourned.

AT 3.14 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM WEDNESDAY, 27TH AUGUST, 1997.

EDITED
WEDNESDAY

The Speaker: Prayers by the Third Elected Member for West Bay.

PRAYERS

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Let us Pray.

Allmighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived: We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Let us say the Lord's prayer together: Our Father who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done in earth as it is in Heaven; Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us; and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, for ever and ever, Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. The Assembly is in Session.

Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. Question No. 117 is standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION NO. 117

No. 117: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs to state the number of foreign prisoners serving time at Northward Prison giving nationality, gender, offence committed and time remaining to be served.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: As of 5th August, there were 53 foreign prisoners serving time at Northward Prison. The attached schedule [see Appendix I immediately following page 418] gives the nationality, gender, offence and time remaining to be served by each one.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: In light of the fact that in an answer to a previous question the Honourable First Official Member reported that it cost $20,771.60 per annum to keep a prisoner at Northward Prison, has any attempt been made to see that foreign prisoners are deported to their jurisdictions rather than being incarcerated here at our taxpayers' expense?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Many of the foreign prisoners serving time at Northward Prison are there for importation of illegal drugs. A number of these have fairly lengthy sentences. We believe that if they are simply deported to their own country the message will get out that this country is soft on illegal drugs. Therefore, we have not given serious consideration to general deportation of foreign prisoners.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable First Official Member state whether any attempts have been made to contact the jurisdictions where the majority of these prisoners come from to see if any protocol or agreement can be arranged whereby these prisoners could, upon their deportation from the Cayman Islands, be expected to serve some time in a prison in their jurisdiction?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Yes, Mr. Speaker, contact was made sometime ago with the country where the largest number of foreign prisoners come from. We were told that their prisons were already overcrowded and they could not take these prisoners.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Can the Honourable Member state whether or not some of these prisoners are married to Caymanians?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: I am not in a position to answer that with any degree of accuracy.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: In light of the fact that many of these offences would be considered felonies, what is the procedure for persons who are convicted of these offences after they have served time in prison?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: In every instance that I am aware of where a person has been sentenced to 12 months or longer, they would be deported at the end of their sentence.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Can the Honourable Member state if any consideration is being given to differential punishment for these offenders who are of foreign nationality?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: I am not sure that I understand what the Member is asking. In any event, that would be a matter for the judicial department, upon sentencing.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: In light of the financial burden placed upon this country, I wonder if the Honourable Member can say when last the foreign jurisdictions were contacted in regard to accepting their prisoners?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: I cannot say precisely, it was more than a year ago.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Perhaps the Honourable First Official Member might be willing to give an undertaking to make another attempt with a view to possibly negotiating whereby the Government of the Cayman Islands would pay the country with the largest number of foreign national prisoners at Northward Prison for incarceration in their own country. It still might be cheaper than keeping them here.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: As a matter of fact, that suggestion has already been made and is now in the discussion stages. I propose to pursue that to see whether an arrangement can be worked out. It may very well be possible to house them in their own countries at a lower cost than we are able to house them here.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: In answer to an earlier supplementary question the Honourable First Official Member stated that when a foreign national was sentenced to a period of more than 12 months imprisonment he was automatically deported at the end of the incarceration period. I wonder if the Honourable Member would say if the situation is still automatic even when the foreign national has Caymanian connections, by marriage or otherwise?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: In using the word 'automatic' I should say that there is a procedure. Generally, the court in handing down the sentence will also make the recommendation for deportation. Yes, it is likely that the foreign national, even if married to a Caymanian, will be deported.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Member state if there is any specific time period where, if the marriage is still intact, the foreign national can re-enter the Cayman Islands to remain with his spouse?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Each application to re-enter the Cayman Islands is treated on its own merits.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: So, it is fair to say that there is no specific policy regarding that type of situation?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: I am not quite sure, when the Member says 'specific policy'... but the Immigration Law sets down the procedure. There have been instances in the past when permission has been given by the Governor for re-entry for a specific period of time, and for a specific purpose.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I understand what the Honourable Member is saying. Let me try to be more pointed in my question so that I can get a direct answer. Can the Honourable First Official Member say if Government at any time considers allowing these foreign nationals back into the country to continue living here with their spouses, especially in instances where they have children?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Mr. Speaker, all things are possible, but to my knowledge it has not happened in the past; and it is highly unlikely that it will happen in the future.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Can the Honourable First Official Member say if there are any other females since the preparation of this document (which only reflects two foreign females)?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: I am not able to give an update on the question asked. I know that there are foreign females on remand at Northward Prison. I cannot say if the number of convicted female foreign prisoners has changed.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, the next question is No. 118 which stands in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

No. 118: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs to state how many of the police officers recruited from the United Kingdom are serving beyond their initial two year contract.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: There are currently 32 Officers serving in the Royal Cayman Islands Police Service who were initially recruited in the United Kingdom who are serving beyond their initial two year contract. This figure includes the Commissioner of Police and Deputy Commissioner of Police. Five other Senior Officers, including one Detective Chief Superintendent, one Detective Chief Inspector, two Detective Inspectors and one Inspector. All five are serving beyond their initial two year contract.

Of the remaining 25 Officers, one Detective Sergeant and eight Constables on secondment are serving beyond their initial two year contract. Twelve Constables are on their first two-year contract and four Constables are on local contracts, having resigned from their United Kingdom Force (1) or on career breaks (3). None of the Constables on secondment have served longer than four years.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Member say if any of the constables who were recruited have been promoted since being here, and, also, will the Honourable Member explain what is meant by 'career breaks'?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: The answer to the first question is no. To my knowledge no constable has been promoted. In answer to the question about 'career breaks,' that is simply a term used for an officer who has taken unpaid leave of absence to be employed.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: I recall when we were told that these officers were going to be here for two years, and that would be it. My question to the Honourable First Official Member is: Has there been a change in policy? If so, why?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: I cannot comment on the initial statement the Member referred to. What I can say is that we cannot compromise the efficiency of the Royal Cayman Islands Police Service. If we do not have Caymanians who are willing and suited to serve as efficient police officers, then we will have to recruit from overseas. We must retain the efficiency we now have in the Royal Cayman Islands Police Service.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Before I ask my question, may I say that no one is suggesting any compromise in the Royal Cayman Islands Police Service. My question is: Are these constables who were specially recruited restricted to the uniformed branch, or are they spread over the entire police force including departments where the officers are attired in plain clothes?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: It is my understanding that they are not confined to one area, but are used where needed.

The Speaker: The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Would the Honourable First Official Member say if any of the 32 officers serving in the Royal Cayman Islands Police Service who were initially recruited in the United Kingdom now hold Caymanian Status and are still on contract?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: I am afraid that I do not have the answer for that. It is a bit far from the substantive question.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Are the officers who have been recruited subsequent to the expiration of their initial contracts in any position to compete with our local Caymanians for promotion?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: It is my understanding that in one case an officer was on contract and later resigned his post. He is now on a local contract. It is possible that he could compete with locals. Those on overseas contracts cannot.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable First Official Member say if there is ongoing recruitment of officers from the United Kingdom, or if the recruitment was merely limited to the 32 constables mentioned in the Legislative Assembly when we were briefed by members of the Police High Command?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: We have a regular local recruitment policy and a programme in place where we train police officers. On average for the last three years, we have had approximately 12 officers trained. If we are unable to recruit sufficient staff locally, then we have to look overseas to supplement.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable First Official Member say if there is any differential in the pay scale between constables recruited from the United Kingdom and those recruited and trained locally?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Government's policy in recruiting from overseas—and this does not apply only to police officers, but to the Civil Service generally—is to give consideration to the amount of experience the individual may have. So, in theory, it is possible to have United Kingdom recruited constables starting at higher points in the salary scale than locally recruited officers, unless the local officers have previous experience.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: The Honourable First Official Member mentioned the regular recruitment done locally. Can he say if there are many instances of locals applying for the Royal Cayman Islands Police Service and not being accepted; or is it simply that there are not that many making attempts to join the service?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: I can refer to a specific instance. At the last recruitment exercise ten Caymanians applied. Three were selected, and all three have subsequently quit.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: When these officers from overseas are recruited and brought in, what kind of orientation process do they go through?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: There is an orientation course run for police officers brought in. Part of the orientation familiarises them with our laws and procedures.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable First Official Member say whether recruitment from overseas, in particular from the United Kingdom, specifically seeks to bring in officers with previous experience, or whether officers who are new to their respective forces are also considered?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: If we are going to bring people in from overseas, we are going to try to bring the highest calibre in that category. Naturally, new entrants into a police service would not normally be accepted.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Can the Honourable First Official Member say whether any form of incentive is still being offered to overseas recruits to encourage them to come and take up employment in the Cayman Islands, taking into consideration the high standard of living we have here as compared to the areas from which some of these people are recruited?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: I believe that pensions, that is, United Kingdom pensions, are paid for these officers, and I suppose that would be an incentive. We have not had any problem in recruiting what we believe to be a high calibre of police officer.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, the next question is No. 119, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 119

No. 119: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs to provide a breakdown of all the staff of the Royal Cayman Islands Police Force giving the rank and nationality.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: The breakdown of personnel in the Royal Cayman Islands Police Service by rank and nationality is as follows:

Number	Rank	Nationality
1	Commissioner of Police	British
1	Deputy Commissioner	British with Caymanian status
1	Chief Superintendent	Caymanian
1	Chief Superintendent	British
Number	Rank	Nationality

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable First Official Member outline the policy and procedure for obtaining promotion in the Royal Cayman Islands Police Service from the rank of Sergeant and above?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Rather than give information that would not be completely accurate, I would prefer to give that answer in writing, if I may.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: What is the retirement age in the Royal Cayman Islands Police Service, and are there any officers presently serving beyond that age? If so, why?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Mr. Speaker, I would prefer to answer that in writing as I do not have that information at my fingertips.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: I have a corollary question to the one the Honourable Member preferred to answer in writing. He may likewise consider this: What number of Caymanians have sat and passed examinations, but are waiting on openings for promotion to the rank of Sergeant and above?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Mr. Speaker, I will also give that in writing.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, that concludes Question Time for this morning.

Item number four, Statements by Members of the Government. The Honourable First Official Member.

STATEMENTS BY MEMBERS OF THE GOVERNMENT

Hon. James M. Ryan:

[Certain words were ordered by Motion to be expunged from the record.]

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order.

The Speaker: May I hear your point of order?

POINT OF ORDER (Standing Order 35(2))

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I make reference to Standing Order 35(2) where it states "It is out of order to attempt to revive in any debate a matter or reconsider any specific question upon which the House has come to conclusion. . . ." From listening to the Honourable First Official Member (and I do not wish to interrupt him unnecessarily), it would seem that what he is saying is a repetition of what has already occurred in this Honourable House.

I have to ask what is the real purpose of taking the time of the House at this point to reiterate what has already occurred, or what is common knowledge to the Honourable Members of this House?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Hear, hear!

The Speaker: I interpret this as a matter of clarification, Honourable Member. I think it is absolutely necessary that the chronological order of events be brought to the attention of, not only this Honourable House, but to the listening public. I therefore rule that the Member continue.

Hon. John B. McLean: Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, sir. I think when it comes to matters such as this... if there is a question on it I think it only right that the Minister involved should be notified of it. I knew of no such statement. None of my colleagues on this side knew of this statement. We sat in Executive Council until yesterday... and I think it is completely out of order for us to listen to this statement not knowing exactly what it contains. We are always asked on this side to stick together and support it. I had no questions from the other side of the House in regard to what was stated during Question Time. The answers I gave in this House were given as a result of what was given to me by Government Departments, not by my own undertaking.

I would appreciate it very much if this could be adjourned until Executive Council has an opportunity to fully discuss this. Then, if necessary, we can bring it back to the floor of this House.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, can we take a vote on that, sir?

The Speaker: Let me first say what I have to say.

Honourable Minister, in accordance with Standing Orders, the procedure for a statement by the Honourable First Official Member has been fulfilled. It is the responsibility of the Executive Branch of Government to have their position in order when they request permission for a statement. This has been done, not by me alone, but by every person who has sat in this Honourable Chair. When a Minister brings a statement it is allowed to be delivered at the time requested as information to the country.

If you all crave a short adjournment, I have no objection. But before ruling this out of order, I have a responsibility to see that the Order Paper goes forward.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker. . .

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, it is fairly clear that the Ministers present this morning are not fully aware of what the statement is seeking to achieve, nor were we privy to read it. I believe in all of our best interests it is better to take an adjournment to discuss the matter, and then come back. I support the suggestion to adjourn.

The Speaker: The dilemma I find myself in is that a precedent could now be set where the House can delay a statement being made by an Official Member which is of importance to this nation. I understand what has been said, and I shall adjourn the House for ten minutes while I think about the situation.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.04 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 11.47 AM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Mr. Speaker, I will not be proceeding with the rest of the statement at this time.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

MOTION WITHOUT NOTICE Standing Order 24(9)(h)

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: In accordance with Standing Order 24(9)(h) which deals with a motion being proposed which is the same in substance as any motion which during the previous six months has been resolved, reads: "The following motions may be made without notice - (h) arising out of any item of business made immediately after that item is disposed of and before the next item is entered upon." In accordance with this section, I move that the previous part of the statement as read by the Honourable First Official Member today be expunged from the records since, according to my information, the matter is to be further considered by Executive Council, and that to listen to the part of the statement as read without hearing the total statement would carry confusing information to the public.

The Speaker: The Motion is on the floor at this time.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: I beg to second that Motion.

The Speaker: The Motion has been moved and seconded.

(Addressing the Honourable First Official Member) Would you like to make a comment on the Motion?

Hon. James M. Ryan: That section of the Standing Orders effectively refers to motions. I was not making a motion, but, rather, a statement.

The Speaker: May I direct something to the Third Elected Member for George Town? May I suggest, in view of the fact that Executive Council will now be deliberating on the matter, that it be left in the hands of Executive Council?

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: The purpose for this is really to help the House, and not to try to embarrass anybody because this matter will be broadcast on the radio tonight. To not hear the full statement would be very confusing to the listening public. Until the matter has been fully resolved by Executive Council, it would be better for the part of the statement as read out to be taken off the radio tonight.

The Speaker: Honourable First Official Member, do you agree with that?

Hon. James M. Ryan: Mr. Speaker, you gave permission for the statement to be made, and it was dealt with in accordance with Standing Orders and read in the House. Whether in its totality or in part, I think it should form part of the Hansard and should remain.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: In the interest of parliamentary democracy and the smooth running of our parliament, I have to second the sentiment that the matter be expunged from the record. Otherwise, I, as a Member, would find it too much to ask, and I am afraid that it would be unfair to the persons and positions referred to in the statement, not hearing the full text of the statement. I can only speak for myself, but, quite frankly, I am not prepared to accept any less.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: In support of the motion put forward, I, too, agree that there were certain statements and innuendoes made which could affect myself, not to mention the Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works. I have no privy to what goes on in Executive Council, and I think that in the interest of natural justice I should be given a right of reply.

(Applause)

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak?

The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: I am totally in support of what was said on the other side of the floor. I think that if a portion of the statement were allowed to be aired and to go into the Hansard it would be damaging, not only to myself and to the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, but, indeed, to the Government of this country. A matter of such a high magnitude should have been discussed at Executive Council level.

With due respect to the Chair, I think the Chair should listen to the majority of the House and do exactly as requested.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town has a right to reply.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, there is a motion before the House. My only further comment is that the motion be dealt with at this point.

The Speaker: The question is that the portion of the statement made [by the Honourable First Official Member] be expunged from the records. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

Hon. James M. Ryan: May I have a division, Mr. Speaker?

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived: We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE

QUESTION NO. 120

(Deferred)

No. 120: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs what Government's policy is regarding re-entry into the Cayman Islands by foreign nationals who have immigration charges pending in the Courts of the Cayman Islands.

The Speaker: The Honourable Acting First Official Member.

DEFERMENT OF QUESTIONS NOS. 120, 121 and 122
(Standing Order 23(5))

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: I would ask the leave of the House to defer this question until a later date, as well as questions 121 and 122, as the answers are not quite ready. They will be ready shortly.

The Speaker: The question is that questions 120, 121, and 122 be deferred until a later date. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED. QUESTIONS NOS. 120, 121 AND 122 DEFERRED UNTIL A LATER SITTING.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 123, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 123

No. 123: Miss Heather D. Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport when the Pedro St. James National Historic site will reach the stage where it can offer employment to Caymanians.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Caymanians are currently employed on the restoration of this project and on the construction of the Visitors' Centre which recently commenced. Additionally, the Tourism Attractions Board will be responsible for the administration and operations at the Pedro St. James National Historic Site, the Queen Elizabeth Botanic Park and other tourist attractions which may come on line in the future.

A manager of the Tourism Attractions Board is about to be appointed and once this has occurred, other positions will incrementally come on line. In relation to the Pedro St. James National Historic Site these positions will include, among others, a site manager, tour guides, ticket booth attendants, gardeners, cooks, gift shop attendant and security officers. It is anticipated that these positions will start to come on line at the end of September 1997.

The Speaker: If there are no supplementaries, the next question is No. 124, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town

QUESTION NO. 124

No. 124: Miss Heather D. Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport to give an update on the progress of work at the Pedro St. James National Historic site.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Restoration of the Castle is almost complete and construction has commenced on the Visitors' Centre which will house, inter alia, a Multimedia Centre, a Restaurant and a Gift Shop. The contractor for the Visitors' Centre, Hadsphaltic Ltd., estimates that this phase will be completed sometime in April 1998.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks: Can the Honourable Minister state if the work is on schedule?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: The project has suffered a few delays for a variety of reasons, but I believe that at the present time we are almost back on track. I believe that we can still meet the April 1998 final construction phase of the Visitors' Centre, which will cause the project to be complete.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, the next question is No. 125, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

(Pause)

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister is not in the Chamber. We will move on to question No. 126, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 126

No. 126: Mr. Linford A. Pierson asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development whether Government is considering the introduction of an excise tax on any goods or products produced within the Cayman Islands.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: A recent revision of the Customs Law undertaken by a consultant contained proposals for an excise tax. However, the draft legislation produced is still under review and as a consequence a definitive position as to any locally produced goods being taxed cannot be arrived at until such review is completed.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I recognise the attentive position of the answer, but I wonder if the Honourable Member is in a position to state whether consideration is now being given to introducing an excise tax on beers exported from the Stingray Brewery, specifically?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Whenever the position as to what goods will be affected by the excise tax, if such is agreed upon by the Government... it could affect various products. We are not looking at the Stingray Brewery specifically. For the Member's benefit, it may be useful if I gave a bit of background information as to how this excise tax legislation came into being.

In late 1992, early 1993, this Honourable House called for a review of certain procedures within the Customs Department. It was then suggested that the help of a consultant be sought in order to streamline the operation of the Department. As a result, an advisor was brought in from the United Kingdom Customs Department. When this officer came, certain changes were recommended. One of those was that the Government should attempt to revise the Customs Legislation that we had in place in order to bring it in line with internationally recognised Customs procedures.

As a consequence, another consultant with expertise in the drafting of Customs legislation was engaged to assist with a review of the Customs Law. This is the draft legislation which came out of that exercise. So it was not an exercise that started recently, it goes back to that time. It is a question of what position the Government will take because it will look at the existing legislation and at 'add ons' which include the excise tax provision.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I thank the Honourable Member for that comprehensive answer. I wonder, considering that the Cayman Islands is really not an exporting country, but imports most of its goods, whether the Honourable Member can state if any goods are being exported from the Cayman Islands.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Goods that are being exported would include large quantities of rum cakes, jewellery that is locally manufactured and locally produced liquor, including beers.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: I am aware that in a number of areas we now have a situation where we locally produce a large number of products. To encourage local industry, Government should be looking at giving concessions rather than imposing an excise tax. I wonder if the Honourable Member can say if any such concession is under consideration, as I am aware that there have been a number of requests submitted along those lines.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: At this time the Government has awarded concessions to quite a number of companies that are manufacturing goods within the islands. We have certain sectors of the rum cake market presently enjoying such a concession.

It should also be recognised that an element of an excise tax is not a question of penalising locally manufacturers. One of the things that has to be looked at, and this will be the primary consideration in terms of considering the introduction of an excise tax in any specific area... we have a very finite market for goods being brought into the islands. Let us say that a certain market generates revenue in the region of $10 million. We find that locally produced goods take up 20% of that market share. That would mean having to give up $2 million out of that revenue.

As we know that we have a very limited revenue base, the Government would have to think in terms of introducing of new measures in order to compensate for giving up that amount of revenue, or looking again at existing measures.

At a meeting of the Government Private Sector Consultative Committee where a draft bill was looked at, certain objections were raised to specific goods being considered for excise tax. The request of the Committee was that the Collector of Customs should meet with those companies that would be affected to take their views on board. It does not necessarily mean that at any point in time an excise tax is introduced that it would mirror the importation tax that would be attached to such goods, such as beers, coming into the islands.

First of all, the Government is very cognisant of the importance of encouraging the diversification of the economy. This can only be done by awarding incentives to manufacturing concerns wanting to get into specific areas because we have had quite significant economic ramifications. We want to encourage this.

So, whenever the excise tax is being looked at, all of these factors are being taken into consideration.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I am very pleased to hear the Honourable Member say that every effort is being made to offer incentives. This leads me to my next supplementary.

In view of our economy not being an agri-based or industrial based economy, would the Honourable Member not agree that incentives should be given to any form of manufacturing of goods or products in the Cayman Islands, rather than even considering an excise tax, which would be a dis-incentive to the entrepreneurs wanting to start a business, such as the Stingray Brewery?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I can agree with the Member in part, but we have to look at the wider economic implications. Whatever is being considered by the Government will culminate in an incentive based support for local manufacturing.

As I mentioned earlier, we will look in terms of the overall revenue base of the Government. While incentives should be awarded—and this will be encouraged—anything which eats into that base by taking up a part of the market share will have to be examined. Not to say that it should be driven in terms of the Government's revenue, specifically, but what will be the overall economic implications, and how, if the Government has to give up revenue, it will be compensated for.

The Government's policy is that every effort and incentive is provided to local manufacturing concerns.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: I am aware that Government has to pay attention to the financial implications of these policies, but one of my concerns, because we import everything we have, is that Government should be attempting to encourage local industry as much as possible.

The Honourable Third Official Member mentioned that Government has given certain incentives to encourage local industry. Can he name one or two given to establishments such as Stingray Brewery, or the Savannah Springs Water Company? How were these locally owned businesses encouraged?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I will invite the Member to ask me to respond to that by way of a substantive question in the future. I did not bring details to support that along with me.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Perhaps the Honourable Member could provide the answer to such a question in writing to the Members of the Legislative Assembly at a later date.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I would be quite willing to comply with that undertaking. But at this time there are about 30 concerns benefiting from such concessions.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I am happy to hear that there are so many local business people benefiting, but I think the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town was asking specifically about the Stingray Brewery. Perhaps the Honourable Third Official Member could state if there are any incentives now being given to that particular business enterprise in his answer.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Concessions which are now being given to that concern would include the duty free importation of bottles and labels, and also some of the raw material being used in the manufacturing of beer.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Since local manufacturing does not necessarily equate with local benefits, would the Honourable Member say if any consideration has been given to including Members of the Legislative Assembly in a type of discussion forum that would result in our having some input into this particular policy? It does appear that the assumption is that local manufacturing is equated to local benefits.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: No consideration has been given at this time to such a wide forum as the Member has just suggested. But I can put that recommendation forward for the Government's consideration.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: The Honourable Member mentioned that one of the incentives that Stingray Brewery enjoys is a concession on the importation of bottles and labels. I wonder if he can confirm whether the Savannah Springs Water Company enjoys the same benefits, as far as the importation of their bottles?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Yes, they do enjoy the same level of concessions.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, under Standing Order 23(3), we will return to question No. 125, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

SECOND READING

THE NATIONAL DRUG COUNCIL BILL, 1997

The Clerk: The National Drug Council Bill, 1997.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony Eden: I beg to move the second reading of a Bill entitled, The National Drug Council Bill, 1997.

The Bill is for a Law to establish a National Drug Council to provide for the transfer to the Council of certain functions and assets of the Government; and for incidental and connected purposes. The establishment of a National Drug Council will fulfil, for the most part, the very first strategy of the Cayman Islands National Strategic Plan for Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation which states that we will establish co-ordination of all the efforts of Government agencies, voluntary organisations and concerned citizens.

There are three specific objectives for achieving such results, and these are: (1) To set up a main office for information gathering and dissemination. This has been done since July last year. (2) To establish a mechanism for representation and co-ordination of Government agencies and non-governmental organisations and concerned citizens; and (3) To streamline programmes and services to facilitate the co-ordination of all concerned. Up to this point most of this information has been fragmented.

By establishing the National Drug Council under this Law, we will have achieved the second and third objective previously mentioned, and the office which was set up under the first objective will serve as the office of the National Drug Council.

The Advisory Council on the Misuse of Drugs which was set up under the 1988 Misuse of Drugs Law will cease to exist. Whereas that Council had very limited powers and merely advised, this new National Drug Council will have added powers to formulate policies and programmes of action to prevent and reduce drug abuse. It will be financed through grants from the Government but will also have power to receive, for example, gifts, grants, and endowments. The Governor-in-Council may, after consultation with the Council, give such general directions as to the policy to be followed by the Council in the performance of its functions.

The National Drug Council, with the support of its office will be, as I have said before, the lynch-pin in co-ordinating the implementation of the strategic plan. The Council will be able to harness the energy of an army of volunteers in the war on drug abuse such as these islands have never seen before. Through its efforts more and more of our citizens will be better informed about the dangers of drug abuse and, as envisaged in the sixth strategy of the National Strategic Plan, it "... will generate in each local community the motivation and capacity of residents to develop their own creative solutions" in the prevention of drug abuse.

As a result we expect to see a reduction in the number of new cases of drug abuse in the Cayman Islands. For those already abusing, the National Drug Council and its various committees will work with them and their significant others to turn their lives around and regain their productivity and useful contributions to our society and economy. I believe that through the efforts of the National Drug Council we can also dramatically reduce the prison population at Her Majesty's Prison at Northward.

The Bill for a Law to Establish a National Drug Council was largely modelled after Bermuda's National Drug Commission Act 1993. Indeed, a delegation comprising the Permanent Secretary in my Ministry of Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation, along with a Crown Counsel from the Legal Department and the Chairman of the Advisory Council on the Misuse of Drugs visited Bermuda for two days in October 1996 to hold discussions with relevant organisations to gain further insight into the operation of Bermuda's National Drug Commission. That visit reinforced the belief that the National Drug Commission in Bermuda is a vibrant and effective organisation and that a similar organisational structure would be appropriate for the Cayman Islands.

Clause 4 of the draft Bill enables the National Drug Council, among other things, to formulate policies and programmes of action to prevent and reduce drug abuse; to provide advice and education on, and research into the subject, and Clause 5 enables the Governor-in-Council to give policy directions to the Council.

It has always been the philosophy of the Ministry since we took over three and one half years ago, that the only successful way forward is demand reduction through education of our youth at an earlier age.

Membership on the Council, as proposed in Clause 7 of the Bill, will be 20, and includes the Permanent Secretaries for the Ministries responsible for Health, for Education and for Community Development or their representatives; also, the Financial Secretary and the Commissioner of Police or their representatives.

The Government's estimated annual expenditure for the operation of the National Drug Council will be $300,000. Indeed, with the approval of the Governor-in-Council, and the approval of Finance Committee for the expenditure, the office of the National Drug Council was set up by this Ministry and has been operational since July 1996.

Provision is made in Clauses 16 and 17 of the Bill for the National Drug Council to receive grants, donations, technical assistance and other forms of support locally (and, implicitly, from international organisations) to further the mission of the Cayman Islands National Strategic Plan for Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Finally, Mr Speaker, what is most rewarding is that the present Advisory Council on the Misuse of Drugs has worked with the Ministry of Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation every step of the way in drafting and redrafting this Bill and therefore, as soon as the Law comes into effect, it will be ready and willing to take on its new role.

This briefly sets out, Mr Speaker, some of the highlights of The National Drug Council Bill, 1997 to be debated in this Legislative Assembly and I commend it to the Honourable Members and seek their support in passing it into law.

The Speaker: The question is that A Bill entitled, The National Drug Council Bill, 1997, be given a second reading. The motion is open for debate.

The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: I rise to offer my support to a Bill for a Law to establish a National Drug Council. First of all, I want to congratulate the Honourable Minister, and applaud the efforts of his Ministry in carrying out the responsibilities assigned to them, including the subject of drug abuse.

Members of this Honourable House and the listening public recognise that we have a drug problem in this country. I think the sooner this is established, the quicker we can move on with a programme to address this very serious plague. I believe that the establishment of a National Drug Council will co-ordinate effectively programmes in dealing with drug abuse and prevention in this country.

I must say that I have come in contact with many local persons who do have a problem with drug abuse. One of the difficulties they have experienced with attending counselling sessions is that at one stage these services were all centrally located in George Town. Many of them had no transportation to get back and forth to the meetings. Now, with the establishment of the District Health Clinics, provisions have been put in place whereby persons at the district level will be able to attend these sessions at their local District Clinic.

I want to also applaud those Members of the Advisory Council who have given many hours of their time and their effort on a voluntary basis to this very worthy effort. I think every effort must be made to make help or assistance available to those persons with problems in this area. I believe that every effort (and I am aware that the Government is moving in this direction) must be made to advise our youth at a very early age of the dangers of drug abuse.

We still have a lot of good youths in this country. Unfortunately, they do not make the headlines. We only hear about those with the problems. I do not want to be too long on this subject, so I will close by saying that I have every confidence in the Honourable Minister and his support staff. I encourage him to move forward in addressing the issues that he is responsible for in his Ministry.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks: I rise to support this Bill because drugs in this country have really gotten out of hand. I am glad to see that the Council is moving forward with it. I have to give the Honourable Minister credit for his efforts in trying to help subdue this awful scourge we have in our country.

This morning as I was listening to the radio programme on drugs, I wondered if Government could get that programme here, or put it into the schools. This told people of what the drug habit caused youths to go through in the United States—suicide, etcetera. It really touched me, and I thought it could help to promote a defence against drug abuse here.

With those comments, I say let us push on all the harder to kill that enemy we have—drugs.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: I would like to compliment the Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation on his efforts to rehabilitate affected drug abusers, and prevent those not involved from becoming involved.

We all know that drug addiction is something that the entire world has to deal with. If there were known solutions, at least some countries would rid themselves of this plague. We cannot criticise any effort, even if it is futile, because any attempt seems to be better than none. Nevertheless, drug addiction is something that has been with mankind for centuries. The newest wave in drug addiction caused by cocaine addiction is being popularised by crack addiction and crack houses, in particular in the United States of America with ethnic groups involved in this plague.

There is still a lot we have to learn about drug addiction, and about our particular attention to the question of drug addiction. Why does the society become attentive to drug addiction at a particular point? Why did it not become attentive before when certain groups were suffering from drug addiction? These are questions that are perhaps more relevant in the United States and other developed countries, than in the Cayman Islands. Nevertheless, the information we are getting in regard to the question to solutions to drug addiction are coming from these countries.

I think we need to develop a local strategy and local solutions and perhaps a council is the best way to begin this. I feel that many times we do things in regard to drug addiction and we really need to include those persons who could be most helpful. In other words, it is not just a question of members of our society wanting to be involved in helping people who are addicted to drugs, or helping people to not become addicted; it is not just an exhibition of altruism, it has to also have some type of practical solution. It is not just to say that so-and-so has been the Chairman of this committee, and serving on that committee, and at the end of the day we end up with committees composed of social 'do-gooders' looking to have a particular respect in this society, but have absolutely nothing to contribute when it comes to knowledge of how drug addiction occurs or could be cured.

We have to make sure that we are not establishing a council that is an establishment of another group of people who are going to have access to Government funds, but, from the point of view of actually finding solutions, will find absolutely none because they are not looking in the right direction.

Therefore, I am very concerned by the clause in this Bill that says that "5. The Governor in Council may, after consultation with the Council, give such general directions as to the policy to be followed by the Council in the performance of its functions as appear to him to be necessary in the public interest, and the Council shall give effect to any such directions." Yet, in clause 9 (1) it says, "9. (1) No person may be appointed as or remain a Council member who is an elected member of the Legislative Assembly."

I am trying to find out who the advisors are, and what the motives are behind the advisors' advising that Members of the Legislative Assembly may be disqualified. At the same time they say that the Governor in Council, which means the Elected Members to the Executive Council, have a say—but the Members of the Legislative Assembly will be excluded by this clause from being members of this Council.

There are certain Members in the Legislative Assembly, including me, who feel offended by that particular clause. I am a qualified sociologist, and I have read extensively. I have also had my time with alcoholism. My office is located in the area where people sell drugs and use drugs. I do not try to hide myself from that type of environment. I feel that, as a sociologist and as a person with first-hand knowledge of the problems in this society—which even some of the Members advising the Minister do not have—my being excluded from being a member of this Council while serving in this Legislative Assembly does not make too much sense.

I would also say that the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town is quite a sociologist himself, and is quite interested in the problems of drug abuse and rehabilitation. He is one Member who I think has very good sociological common sense, but as long as he is a serving Member of the Legislative Assembly he can be excluded from this Council. Of course, if I went further I would look to my left and mention the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay who has been very much involved over the years in attempts to keep kids away from drugs, providing them with recreational sporting activities which are much more wholesome.

We have to be careful that in this particular Bill we do not create a situation where in the year 2000 we will find that some very experienced people—who could have offered this Council much information which would have allowed it to do its job—were excluded because somebody seems to have the desire to exclude politics from the Council. But politics is included in the Council in that the Council needs the $300,000 from Government to be established, and because the Governor in Council still has the final say. So, politics is not excluded from anything in society, because society is politics. It is petty nonsense to talk about excluding politics from the Council (if I am reading this right) by excluding Members of the Legislative Assembly.

I am saying that the intention is good. We are not guaranteed that we will have solutions simply because we create a council. We do not want a council of people seeking to become important in this society. Rather, we want a council of people who are ready to work and find solutions, who will be flexible and realise that there are no easy solutions to the question of drug rehabilitation.

So the establishment of a council does not necessarily guarantee us a solution.

We can only be hopeful of a solution if we get the expertise involved on whatever level we can. That is the only time we will find a solution. To write into law something that would exclude me from being a member of the Council—and I am going to be very personal about this—who has been sitting in this country with a Ph.D. for the last 20 years; who confesses to having had problems with alcohol, and have experienced some of the most devastating effects on my personality and my social standing... and they somehow forget when they put these things together that I am not just paper, but a real person. They need to keep that in focus. We need to make it wide open enough to fall back on whomever we need to for assistance.

As one Member said to me before, we have Members of the Legislative Assembly on the Education Council and other councils, why is it now being said that Members of the Legislative Assembly cannot go on this Council? I know that it is not the Honourable Minister's intention to do anything wrong. Perhaps the Council in Bermuda said keep politicians off, but not all of us are so stupid that we cannot make a distinction between our political desire to hurt from our very personal and humane desires as members of society to build up, reconstruct and rehabilitate. We should be left with that decision. We should be trusted. Members of the Legislative Assembly should not be excluded from this particular Council.

I intend to come back to this Legislative Assembly in the year 2000, the year 2004, 2008, 2012, and 2024 and so forth and so on. If I can contribute something positive to this Drug Council, then I would like to be given the opportunity to do so. I hope that the Honourable Minister will entertain the suggestion to at least alter this clause.

The Speaker: This would be a convenient time to take the morning break. Proceedings are suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.15 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 11.50 AM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Debate continues. (Pause) Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause) The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I could not let this opportunity pass without rising to support The National Drug Council Bill, 1997, before the House

I wish to congratulate the Honourable Minister for bringing such a timely and important Bill to this Honourable House. While congratulating him, I also wish to make the point that Government should endeavour (and I know that this is perhaps being considered) to make every effort to involve the community in the process as far as possible. What I really mean is that Government should be seen as the policy-makers, not necessarily as individuals who will be responsible for implementing those policies or providing services.

In this day and age when we hear a lot about the reinvention of Government, every effort should be made to make our services more efficient. That efficiency will not necessarily come by making the Government bigger, or by taking on more services. There are already certain groups very much involved with the rehabilitation process with the drug problems within the Cayman Islands, such as the Canaan Land group. I hope that efforts will be made by Government to put the policies in place and to also empower those individuals who are already involved with the services so that they can provide a better service.

I was also looking at section 4 of the Bill which refers to the function of the Council. I am pleased to see that section 4(a)(i) states that the Council will indeed formulate policies and develop programmes. But I will be watching very closely to see that Government is not getting too involved with the service side of the Council; but that it will be more involved with ensuring that the proper policies and the formulation of those policies are kept up to date.

There are already individuals within the community who have been doing a sterling job in the fight against the drug problem in the Cayman Islands. I think of individuals such as Mr. Hollis Hurlstone, and others in some of the troublesome areas, who have taken it upon themselves to fight this drug problem.

It is important that Government, the churches, the schools and others get involved in the community and work with those community leaders in the fight against the drug problem. The problem will not be effectively addressed from the Glass House, from some administrative office. In order to effectively address the drug problem, individuals involved will have to get into the community and work side by side with the people.

As the Fourth Elected Member for George Town said, it is important for the community to be involved. He gave examples from his own personal experience of what this scourge can do to our people. Many of our churches are already involved in trying to assist with this problem. But I constantly preach that it is not enough for the churches, or for Government, to just provide a programme. They must see that the programmes are properly implemented.

The Honourable Minister has done a sterling job since taking over the Ministry. In the Caymanian Compass of 14th August, 1997, he gave a very good accounting of what the National Drug Council's aims and objectives are and how he hopes they will be fulfilled. It will be interesting to see how these objectives are fulfilled.

The Fourth Elected Member for George Town also raised another very important point, a point which I would like to support. That had to do with section 9(1) of the Bill before us, dealing with the disqualification of Council members. Knowing the Honourable Minister piloting this Bill as I do, I feel that he will work with us in making whatever amendments are necessary to have this corrected. I share the sentiments of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town in that we are all representatives of our people, and have a genuine interest in their welfare. We should also have the opportunity to sit on the Council if we wish to do so.

Because of time constraints on a very important appointment I have at this time, I am unable to continue on this. But I do feel that this is a very good Bill, and it would certainly have been remiss of me in my duties as a representative if I failed to give this my full support. I therefore support this Bill.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I would first like to congratulate the Honourable Minister, his Permanent Secretary, his Deputy Permanent Secretary and all of his staff for this Bill. It is extremely important. I think it is one of the most important Bills dealing with one of the most difficult but important subjects that this House will see.

Prevention being better than cure is a principle I fully adhere to when it comes to drugs. The efforts and strides that have been made by the Honourable Minister to deal with this difficult problem are highly commendable. I can safely say that I have never been on drugs. I do not personally know what it is, but I do know the scourge of it produces death. Therefore, I have always fought to the best of my ability (and will always do so) to eradicate it from our society.

Much has been done, but much remains to be done within the schools. We take this very seriously. There is education on it from the primary schools through to the high schools. The QUEST Programme is effective. That, along with visits from experts, including the Police, have been carried out for many years now. The QUEST Programme was introduced well before my time. I think it may have been in place since the 1980s.

The churches have done a lot, and we have to be thankful to them. They have taken the Christian approach and within their congregational youth programmes they have done a lot. CASA is to be thanked. The public has supported many of the churches and the programmes in their fight against drugs. The Police have impacted heavily on reducing drugs. For that we are very grateful.

Sometime ago we had a Select Committee (two years ago, I think) in which a decision was taken to increase the penalties on drugs in the Penal Code in areas relating to young people, especially in relation to schools. When children are involved in this way by an adult, the penalty will be substantially more than if a juvenile were not involved. I think we have to send a clear message to the people in this country who are involved in the business of drugs, that it is not going to be tolerated and the penalties that follow have to be severe and effective. We must ask the courts to assure that those penalties are suitable and effective in the case.

I will fully support the Honourable Minister in any way whatsoever that I can. I commend him, his Ministry and his Department. I encourage the new Council to steadily move forward and to continue doing what is possible and necessary to eradicate this scourge from our society. That Council will have my full support in dealing with these problems.

While 'prevention is better than cure,' when this happens people who push drugs—who basically sell death to our children—should face severe penalties. They need to be taken out of this society. They are not really needed when they reach the stage where they are pushing drugs. I would like to reiterate that if children are involved, my personal view is that the penalty handed down to an adult using children to peddle drugs should be double that of the normal penalty.

My stand is totally in full support of this Bill and the Ministry.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Miss Heather D. Bodden: I rise to give my full support to a Bill entitled, The National Drug Council Bill, 1997. I think it is very timely, and the sooner this is established, the better.

I would like to say to the Honourable Minister and his very dedicated staff, that I think they have all done an excellent job in their continuing efforts in this fight. I would also like to take this opportunity to encourage those people with drug problems to come forward and take advantage of the opportunity for help.

I would also like to say to those voluntary associations, such as CASA, that I think they are doing an excellent job in their efforts in the fight against drugs. I thank them for everything they are doing.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: The effort to put mechanisms in place to counter the spread of drugs in this community is an effort which is to be commended and encouraged. Anyone who has been in the Cayman Islands for more than a few weeks will soon realise that the scourge of drugs is the single most dangerous threat this society faces. Consequently, attempts such as this take on a greater significance.

When we juxtapose this against the fact that our prison population is predominantly made up of persons who have been incarcerated for drug, and drug related, offences, it brings greater necessity to implement plans and organisations such as the National Drug Council. Just yesterday we were reminded that of the 53 foreign prisoners at Northward Prison, 30 of them are incarcerated for drug, or drug related, offences. I would venture to say that the number of Caymanian prisoners similarly incarcerated is even greater.

While various organisations within the community, including the churches, are fighting a good fight, in order to win this battle we need to marshal every available resource. I see this National Drug Council Bill as a very important tool in the fight against drugs.

One of the things I like about the Bill is that it has de-politicised the effort—even though I take umbrage to the fact (as mentioned by previous speakers) that section 9(1) disqualifies persons who are Members of this Honourable House from sitting on the Council. I will just say that it must have been an oversight, and leave it at that.

I think that the sentiments expressed by previous speakers sends the message that we, as Members of this Honourable House, are united in our concern to conquer this scourge. I want to make a clarification, and I want to say that when we talk about drugs, we also include alcohol. I think the abuse of alcohol poses as great, if not greater, a threat than cocaine and marijuana for the simple reason that alcohol is a legal and accepted drug. Therefore, the cases of abuse arising from that are tolerated, and even ignored in many instances, while the illegal drugs get the rap—and deservedly so.

I am really concerned about the abuse and levels of consumption of alcohol in this society. I think that while I am not advocating intemperance, I think it is time that we educate ourselves to the dangers. I came from a home where I experienced that first hand, and it is not pleasant. Alcohol gets away because it is a legal drug. It is time that we take a closer look.

Going back to what we call the hard drugs, from the newspaper reports it is clear that we have a new onslaught of cocaine entering into this country by virtue of the vehicles and methods used to bring it in. While this Bill may never prevent entry of illegal drugs into the islands, the effectiveness of this Bill will be in promoting education and providing opportunities for people who fall victim to the ravages of drugs.

I am reminded that there is no easy cure. There is no easy way to rescue someone. I believe that it is as much a spiritual matter as it is a physical one by virtue of the fact that it has something to do with a person's self-esteem—or lack thereof—as much as it has to do with the physical addiction. The best attempt is one that prevents people from falling victim in the first place. To a large extent that is why a Bill such as this should be supported.

We are a small community and we cannot afford to lose one person, let alone lose them by the tens to drugs. I certainly would not want us to reach the point where we have to warehouse significant numbers of our young people who are marginally productive, or unproductive because they have this addiction.

I am pleased to give my support to this Bill and I hope that the efforts of all involved will reap the greatest success. As a Member of the Legislative Assembly I am willing to be a volunteer in this fight against illegal drugs. I am happy to know that this Bill has the wide support it does.

Before I round up my debate, in section 9 (2) (c), it says, “(2) The Governor in Council shall terminate the appointment of any Council member who (c) becomes bankrupt or suspends payment to or compounds with his creditors;...”. Bankruptcy may occur under circumstances completely beyond our control. I can understand terminating the appointment of someone who suspends payment, but business is a risk—sometimes we make it, sometimes we do not. Once the bankruptcy is not of a criminal, fraudulent nature, I do not think that someone should be precluded from volunteering or giving of their expertise. As a businessman, I know that it can go either way—either you make it or you do not. It might not necessarily have to do with one's genius or ability.

I do not think we should structure this type of thing in, especially in a small community where the pool of volunteers we have to draw from is limited. I ask that some attention be brought to this section so that a differentiation can be made. Other than that, the Bill and the ensuing efforts have my full support. I wish the Honourable Minister and his staff all the best and God's help in this mammoth undertaking.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause) If not, would the Honourable Minister wish to exercise his right of reply?

Hon. Anthony Eden: It gives me a special feeling to respond. I would like to thank the Members who spoke on this Bill, as well as those who did not. I know that this subject touches every one of us, and is something that can only be dealt with through the support shown here today. The insight of the contributors shows the maturity of this House. A recent editorial bears this out. We can work together for the good of this country.

There was a lady sitting in the visitor's gallery earlier today who is the secretary to the president of the Advisory Council on the Misuse of Drugs. These people have contributed many long hours, and I would like to say a special thank you to the members, both present and past.

One of the areas touched on by the Third Elected Member for West Bay was the provision of counselling rooms in all our new counselling centres. Decentralising was one of the ideas we implemented in developing these community centres. People dealing with this problem seek a certain amount of privacy, which is now afforded them in these areas. We feel that by taking the counselling to the districts the people affected as well as their families can better access the counselling. This forms an integral part of the person's betterment. Not only people who are physically sick, but also those who have drug problems can now find relief in their own districts.

I would also like to thank the communities for their involvement. For a long time CASA and the churches have been involved. I would also like to make special mention of the Lions Club and their efforts, and CASA for financial assistance. I cannot leave out the media, especially with their recent coverage and support. I know one of the writers for the Caymanian Compass has played a tremendous role in helping us get this message out.

I would like to have recorded in the Hansard of this Honourable House the support of Mr. John Redman. He has put forth tremendous efforts in helping us get our message out, and in educating the people so that they know where they can go to get these services. It makes me feel really good when I see the wide cross-section of involvement by all Caymanians.

We have come to the stage where we are dealing with a monster that not one of us can handle alone. It has to be a community effort—not only here, but throughout the world. When we look at the proposals put forward in our National Strategic Plan for Drug Abuse, which has input from hundreds of people, we realise that many long hours went into it.

I am pleased to say that recently the Cayman Islands received international plaudit for the efforts put forward in combating the onslaught of drugs. We have gone back to involving our own Caymanian people, not bringing in consultants and experts from outside. It is the only way we can be successful. As I said in my opening, it can only be through demand reduction and in the educating of our children.

The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town mentioned alcohol. Too many times this is overlooked. I think it was an excellent point. Anything in excess will cause a problem, but alcohol in excess can be deadly.

I appreciate the Fourth Elected Member for George Town pointing out the need for the involvement of Members of the Legislative Assembly on this Council. I understand the feelings of the entire Backbench, and I assure them that at Committee stage we will seek an amendment on that.

In closing I would like to thank everybody. I thank the parents and those who are involved with young ones. I encourage them to be aware—know where your children are. Know who they are with and where they are at all times. Please monitor them. No matter what we do in this Legislative Assembly, no matter how many prisons we build, if we do not start at home we will never be successful. I implore the entire country to support our efforts.

ADJOURNMENT

The Speaker: Honourable Members, that concludes the items on the Order Paper for today. I have received the following letter from the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, which reads:

“Dear Sir,

Under Standing Order 12, I crave the indulgence of the Chair to move the adjournment of the House for the purpose of discussing a matter of urgent public importance.

I have been recently informed that there are at least eight prisoners being transported from Montserrat to the Cayman Islands for safe keeping. In light of the present overcrowding at Northward Prison, I wish to raise the matter on the floor of the House and to state my objections thereto.

[Signed] Roy Bodden, MLA, Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.”

The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I crave the leave of the House to raise...

Hon. John B. McLean: Mr. Speaker, I believe that matters such as this should be done on the adjournment. Perhaps we should move the adjournment, then allow the Member to continue.

The Speaker: I shall entertain a motion for the adjournment. The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, before I actually put the motion, I would just like to get the agreement of the House. It seems that we have finished all of the work for today. There are three Bills that still have some time to run. I am wondering whether or not we should adjourn until Monday, which would give more time for the other three Bills (the time would not be fully run, but it would give a bit more time). Therefore, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House (I saw you nod, sir, so I assume it is in order) until 10 o'clock Monday morning, 1st September, 1997.

The Speaker: The question is that the House do now adjourn until 10 o'clock Monday morning, 1st September, 1997. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye... Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. Prior to the adjournment, the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town will continue.

MOTION ON THE ADJOURNMENT
(Standing Order 12)

EIGHT PRISONERS BEING TRANSPORTED FROM MONTSERRAT TO THE CAYMAN ISLANDS FOR SAFE KEEPING

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, with the leave of the House, I wish to discuss a matter of urgent public importance.

Yesterday evening on the 9 o'clock news (CNN) a report was made that eight prisoners had embarked on a warship of Her Majesty's Navy from Montserrat en route to the Cayman Islands for safe keeping. The extent was until such time as conditions in Montserrat allowed for their return and incarceration there, or until the time the prisoners were scheduled to serve had expired, whichever came first.

This news item was played again and I received calls from several of my constituents, as well as from the local television station, asking me if I was aware of the matter. I made some informal inquiries and was surprised to learn that among the Members of this House whom I queried, no knowledge of such a matter was had.

In light of the fact that our prison system is already overcrowded, and after hearing that we have 53 foreign prisoners in our system already; and knowing that we had to recently expand our prison facility to accommodate them, it is hardly reasonable for us to be expected to accommodate these prisoners. In addition, there is the whole question of financial responsibility for these prisoners. Am I to assume that taxpaying Caymanians will have to bear the financial responsibility for the incarceration of these people?

I cringe at the fact that there has been no public announcement of the impending arrival of these prisoners to our jurisdiction. We do not know what category of prisoner they are, or the duration of the time remaining to be served—we have absolutely no idea. As an elected Member of this House, and as a responsible citizen of this country, I have to express my consternation that these kinds of matters are allowed to take place without any consultation and without the input of the Members whom the people of the Cayman Islands elected to look after their interests. It is a matter which borders on the contemptuous. I hope that some explanation is forthcoming.

I share the matter with my colleagues in the Legislative Assembly and I expect that officialdom can grace us—sooner, rather than later—with an explanation.

The Speaker: The Honourable Acting First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: I, too, have been approached in relation to this story. While the media is certainly a great source of edification, it is not always the source of the full truth. I certainly know of no plans, and have no official information regarding any proposal to bring any prisoners from Montserrat to the Cayman Islands.

Until such time as the House reconvenes, there is nothing more I can say in this forum. Obviously, if the situation were to change I would expect there to be some official announcement. I know of no intentions at this time.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Perhaps now is an appropriate time to ask some questions. We heard what the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town has learned. We have heard the Government's reply through the Honourable Acting First Official Member. I think what has really been said is that as of now, we really know nothing about it.

What if that ship which was mentioned comes to the George Town Harbour with these people on it? Are we going to hear about it then? What if some type of communication is going on while we speak here, and we know nothing about it? What if, by the time we would like to have a say in the matter, it is too late? What if it is indeed true?

The reason I am asking these questions is because I do not believe that the elected Members are satisfied at present. If it is only a rumour, then we would like to have assurance that that is all it is. If it is a situation where no communication is forthcoming at present to either confirm or deny this, then we need to know that. The only thing we know now is that no Member sitting in here seems to know about it—but that does not mean that something is not happening.

I am asking those who have the authority, and who are able to open the right doors faster than we can, to find out now so that we may know.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, the matter which the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town has brought to the attention of this Legislative Assembly is indeed serious. If, in fact, there is no British Warship carrying prisoners steaming in our direction at the present, it is quite possible that there will be in the future.

We know that the situation in Montserrat is very critical. I believe the way in which the British Government is dealing with this situation is appalling. I believe it is very important for us to clearly and categorically state that we are not the dumping ground for the British Colonial remains.

I believe that the United Kingdom exists and has done things politically that are not always in the best interest of the Cayman Islands. Of course, I also realise that we are not responsible for our Internal and External Affairs. But, hopefully, those people who are responsible will at least take the good advice of Members of the Legislative Assembly who are more in contact with the feelings and sentiments of the population of this country.

Caymanian people do not take very kindly to being told, and it is always best to ask. If there is a crisis, we would like to at least have enough time to decide what would be the appropriate humanitarian step to take from this direction. So, my compliments to the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town for having picked up on this, because I think that we might be able to prevent a major crisis in this country.

I know now, because we have spoken in this manner, that the prisoners, if they are coming here, will not be coming here again because there would be no point in bringing them to the Cayman Islands. As he has said, our jails are already overcrowded with foreign nationals who have committed crimes against our people.

As I said, we are appalled—I, in particular—with the offers the British Government is making to the people of Montserrat. I do not understand how a civilised country like Great Britain could be thinking that somehow in this day and age it could resettle people with the amount of money it has offered its citizens. They must remember the days when Montserrat was supplying England with sugar, when slave labour was the labour that they...

The Speaker: Can I interrupt the Honourable Member for a minute?

Standing Order 12(4) says that no more than one matter shall be discussed on that motion. Let us please stick to the matter of the prisoners coming to the Cayman Islands.

Dr. Frank McField: With all respect to you, Mr. Speaker, I do not necessarily believe that you should say that this is a different matter because I bring up the question of slavery here. I do not believe that you are being objective. I am sorry.

The Speaker: I have made my ruling, please abide by it.

Dr. Frank McField: We are big people here. I am talking about something that I do not agree with, and I am stating the reasons why I do not agree with the behaviour. I am asking why this behaviour is taking place in the Caribbean...

The Speaker: May I once again call the Member's... please be seated.

I once again call to the attention of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town the fact that I granted permission for a motion to be moved upon the adjournment. Standing Order 12(4) states "Not more than one such motion shall be made at the same sitting, and not more than one matter shall be discussed on that motion."

We are not having a general debate. We are actually concentrating on the matter of prisoners being transported to the Cayman Islands. The issue of prisoners arriving here is what the motion is all about.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, with all respect, if your ruling will direct the utterances of my conscience, then I would prefer to sit down. Thank you.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak?
The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: I also am concerned about this news. Yesterday during Question Time, a question was raised with regard to ex-prisoners married to Caymanians being allowed to remain in (or return to) the Cayman Islands after serving their time of imprisonment here. One of the answers from the Honourable First Official Member was that it has never been done (where they are allowed back in after serving their sentence).

I think Caymanians are most sensitive. We have always reached out in times of emergency, or in times of need. But I believe that the Cayman Islands is not a jurisdiction where criminal elements should be allowed to come for any reason, safe keeping or otherwise.

I believe that the British Government has to recognise its responsibility and, if necessary, fly those prisoners to the United Kingdom, or take them by warship, it does not matter. But I believe that if it is a fact that these prisoners are on their way without even consulting the Elected Ministers of Executive Council, then I daresay it shows a total lack of respect for the Elected Representatives of this country. I trust that whoever is responsible will make an official announcement as to the true position as soon as possible.

I do not support this action, and I will never accept that position being imposed upon us in the Cayman Islands.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I too wish to make a few short comments on the matter raised by the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, and to also thank the Honourable Acting First Official Member for the information he has passed on to us.

Recognising that the subject of Internal and External Affairs is that of the Governor, and not of Elected Representatives, or even Elected Ministers of Executive Council, I nevertheless feel that this matter is emotionally charged, and important to the people of this country. In view of the fact that any funds necessary must come to the Elected Members of this House, I feel that it is our responsibility and duty to question such a very grave matter. I further feel that it is the duty and responsibility of the Official and Executive side of Government to let us have any information that may be available on this.

I understood the Honourable Acting First Official Member to say that he was not aware of any such arrangement being made. I wonder, since this matter is being broadcast to the people of this country, if it would not be better to stop at this point in time and inquire of somebody who should know—His Excellency the Governor. He should know if there is any such arrangement.

I feel that if this matter is true, it would indeed be showing a gross amount of disrespect, not only to the Government of these islands, but to the people of the Cayman Islands. This is a very serious matter and I feel, since the question is still high in the air, that some attempt should be made to find out from His Excellency the Governor if, indeed, this matter is correct, and whether the people of this country should be worried about having people from Montserrat thrown on the people of the Cayman Islands.

This is not the responsibility of the Cayman Islands, this is the responsibility of the British Government. If what we are hearing is the truth, I am appalled that this would even be considered. It shows a total lack of respect for the people of this country.

I again ask that rather than speculate we try to get the truth of this matter. The only person who would seem to be able to give us that at this point is His Excellency the Governor. Since the next officer in line to him, the Honourable Acting First Official Member, is unable to tell us, perhaps His Excellency can lay this matter to rest.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: This afternoon finds me and in utter amazement. I make that statement against the background of efficient and modern communication, knowing we are here not only speculating, but deliberating on a hypothetical issue which in its truest context can cause a lot of concern, not only in the district which I represent, but, indeed, all three islands.

I am of the humble opinion that such a matter can be easily cleared up with a simple telephone call or by fax, and that this Honourable House—in particular the Executive Council (both Elected and Official Members)—should be given the courtesy from the powers that be for this information to be shared. At the end of the day we, the Elected Members, will have to answer to constituents. With that, Sir, I am prepared to wait for an answer.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I realise that this matter is being raised on the adjournment. I wondered, since it is 3.35 pm, if we could take a suspension and allow 15 minutes to see if we can get ourselves an answer.

The Speaker: If that is the wish of the House, we shall suspend proceedings for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.35 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 3.50 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. The Honourable Acting First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to inform the House that His Excellency the Governor has refuted the story, stating categorically that no prisoners from Montserrat are coming to the Cayman Islands. I trust that Members will find that acceptable, and that we can move on to further matters.

The Speaker: That concludes the business for today. I will now move the adjournment of this Honourable House until 10 o'clock Monday morning, 1st September, 1997. Those in favour please say Aye... Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House is accordingly adjourned.

AT 3.52 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM MONDAY, 1ST SEPTEMBER, 1997.

MONDAY

The Speaker: Prayers by the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

PRAYERS

Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Let us Pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived: We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Let us say the Lord's prayer together: Our Father who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done in earth as it is in Heaven; Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us; and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, for ever and ever, Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please remain standing. Proceedings are resumed.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Would the Honourable Minister undertake to make an assessment with a view to doing some road work on a road off Northward Road called Old Yard Lane? It is not on this list and the road has been in need of serious repair for some time now.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: I will definitely ask that this be looked after.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Miss Heather D. Bodden: I would just like to ask the Honourable Minister if he would do the same for a road named Celina Drive in the Pease Bay area. I would also like to take this opportunity to thank the Honourable Minister and his staff for the work they have been doing on these roads. I appreciate it very much.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: I definitely will check on this road, and I will pass on the lady Member's remarks to my department of Public Works.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, the next question is No. 128, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

No. 128: Miss Heather D. Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works to provide an update on the street lights that have been installed in the Bodden Town district for this calendar year.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: A total of 30 street lights have been installed from January through July.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Miss Heather D. Bodden: I again wish to pass on my comments to the Honourable Minister and thank him for making sure that his has been carried out. The people of Newlands are very grateful for the lights that have just been installed.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: I would like to thank the Honourable Minister for his usual speedy concurrence in the request for street lights. I ask that when repairs are being made, especially in Northward, on some of the roads an attempt could be made to install some street lights as I note that there is a particular need, especially around Mike Watler's Crescent and some of the roads leading off of that. If there are any remaining funds this year, would he give us some consideration in this area? I have had several requests from residents.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: I would like to say that we have been trying to negotiate with CUC to make sure that we look at all of the requests, not only in that area, but throughout the island. We have requests from just about all over the island right now. However, I will point out that initially we started off trying to do the main roads. Because of MLAs' requests, as well as from others, we have been trying to light as much as possible of the whole island.

I have taken note of his request, and as I said we have a list from probably every MLA in here. We will try to deal with them as speedily as possible.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, the next question is No. 129, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 129

QUESTION NO. 128

No. 129: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development to inform the Legislative Assembly as to the purpose and results of the most recent visit to Washington D.C. by himself and other Government Officials.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The purpose of the trip to Washington, D. C., was to meet senior representatives of the United States' Administration in order to heighten the awareness of the Cayman Islands in the United States as to the measures and safeguards that have been implemented for ensuring the effective regulation of its financial industry. The results of this trip were very positive as the United States' Representatives had a very welcoming attitude, were willing to listen and to assist in building working relationships with the Cayman Islands for the future.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: I would just make a request that in the future some similar statement regarding trips such as this could be forthcoming in the press. This is a way to curtail speculation and rumours which might not be conducive to the development and best interests of our country. I noticed that there was some report of the visit, but there was no information given as to what was achieved.

I recognise that matters are sensitive and not everything can be disclosed, but even a statement such as this would have helped to promote an understanding of what was achieved.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The suggestion made by the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town is a very good one and will be followed in the future. This is the first of a series of trips that have been considered and planned by the Government. We recognise the significance of the Cayman Islands as a major financial centre. The role we are playing is very important in the world community.

We have found from past experience that while the understanding of the role we play is accurate in many quarters, there are instances where misinformation and misunderstanding prevail, whether such is contrived or through ignorance.

We have found it important to visit centres such as the United States and we are looking at other destinations to ensure that the information existing on the Cayman islands within the international community is accurate and reflects current developments.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I wonder if the Honourable Third Official Member can say whether the visit to Washington was initiated because of pressure from the Foreign and Commonwealth Office or not?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: This trip was taken on the initiative of the Government of the Cayman Islands, and not through any instruction or insistence from the Foreign and Commonwealth Office.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, the next question is No. 130, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 130

No. 130: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development to state how much money has been collected by the Planning Department for approvals with regard to the erection of real estate signs since January, 1996.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Since January 1996, CI$1,500 has been collected by the Planning Department for real estate sign applications.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Member state what the fee is for erecting each individual real estate sign?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I have been made to understand from the information provided by the Planning Department that the fee normally charged is $50.00. But the Planning Department has introduced a policy in the past whereby charges are only applied where signs are 4' by 8'.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: May I ask whose onus it is to pay this fee, does the person or organisation erecting the sign have to first seek permission and pay the fee, or is it up to the Planning Department to levy the fee?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: As the Member will appreciate, this is not a subject that falls directly under the Portfolio of Finance and Economic Development. Rather than give information that is not as accurate as it should be, I can give an undertaking to seek the information and provide it in writing, or at a subsequent meeting of the Legislative Assembly for the substantive question to be directed to the Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: I have one further question which may be taken into consideration in the proposal made by the Honourable Third Official Member, that is, are there fees for signs smaller than 4' by 8'?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: It would be helpful if I gave a bit of information on what the department is doing.

Recently the Ministry of Education, Aviation and Planning approved a press release regarding signs. Among other things, the press release stated that the following temporary signs, including large real estate signs 4' by 8' require application for Planning permission. The press release is intended to inform the public of the types of signs requiring Planning permission. Strictly speaking, all signs need Planning permission. Over the years, however, the Department and Central Planning Authority have found it onerous to require application for each and every real estate sign. Therefore, the practice has been to require the application for large signs, that is 4' by 8' real estate signs.

Although not specific to real estate signs, the Department is concerned about temporary signs that are not removed according to permission granted, signs that are erected without Planning permission, and signs located on public property.

To that extent a possible solution to the matter is revised legislation giving authority to the Government to remove signs. This would avoid the expense of Government time devoted to often drawn out enforcement proceedings and would send a clear message to the public of the need for Planning permission.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Is the Honourable Member in a position to say if these regulations will also apply to the many 'A' frame signs we find on the sidewalk and public property along West Bay Road on the Seven Mile Beach strip?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: With the Chair's approval, I will respond to that answer in writing.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: I believe that the Planning Department has taken on more than it can handle. I suggest that some consideration be given for approval of signs which are stationary or permanent. I see a lot of signs along the street, but they are only there until a piece of property is sold. In that case what happens when it is moved?

I am also aware that the Planning Department does not have the manpower to monitor compliance to this requirement.

The Speaker: Would you turn that into a question, please?

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Yes, Mr. Speaker. Would the Planning Department consider requiring approval only for signs which are permanent in nature?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I shared some information relating to the fees, but to go beyond that would be attempting to give information that I am not conversant with. As I said earlier, I suggest that at a later meeting of this Honourable House, questions raised in relation to this be directed to the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, the next question is No. 131, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for West Bay.

QUESTION NO. 131

No. 131: Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr asked the Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration if the posts of Registrar and Listing Officer at the Courts Office have been filled, and if so, were they advertised locally.

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Before I give the answer to this question, I would just like to make it clear that the Courts Office is not a department which falls under the Portfolio of Legal Administration, but is, in fact, the responsibility of the Honourable Chief Justice. But, by tradition, I respond to any questions that deal with any of his departments. So, on that basis, I am happy to give the answer, which is as follows:

The post of Court Administrator (formerly designated as Registrar) has been filled and the candidate chosen is expected to start work in early October. The post was not advertised locally.

The post of Listing Officer has been neither advertised nor filled. It will be advertised locally.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Can the Honourable Member state whether or not the candidate chosen is Caymanian?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: No, the candidate that has been selected is not Caymanian.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: I am aware that it is a requirement in the Service for all posts to be advertised before being filled. I wonder if the Honourable Second Official Member can say why, since the post was not filled by a Caymanian, it was not advertised locally?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: I am informed that the decision was taken that there was no one locally with the specialised experience required for the particular post. I assume that is why it was not advertised locally. I am also assuming that it was advertised elsewhere, but I do not actually have a definitive answer to that.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: I recall during the Budget Session that this position was discussed in Finance Committee. There was a decision taken to downgrade the level of the position from what was proposed. I wonder if the Honourable Second Official Member can say at what level this appointment was made, salary-wise?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: No, Mr. Speaker, I am afraid that I am not in a position to give that information. I do not have it and I am not aware of it. I will certainly undertake to obtain that information for the Member and provide it to him in writing.

The Speaker: Before we take another supplementary, we have reached the hour of 11 o'clock. I will entertain a motion to suspend Standing Order 23(7) and (8).

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 23(7)&(8)

Mr. Roy Bodden: I beg to move the suspension of Standing Order 23 (7) and (8) to enable Question Time to continue.

The Speaker: Is there a seconder?

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Mr. Speaker I second that.

The Speaker: The question is that Standing Order 23 (7) and (8) be suspended to enable Question Time to continue. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED. STANDING ORDER 23(7)&(8) SUSPENDED TO ENABLE QUESTION TIME TO CONTINUE.

The Speaker: Supplementaries continuing. The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Member state what the academic requirements are for the post under discussion?

The Speaker: the Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: I do not have a copy of the job description, so I do not know what the requirements are. I can say that the candidate who was selected has experience of some 35 plus years in the Lord Chancellor's Department in England and Wales. That is the department of Government that looks after and is responsible for Courts Administration and Courts Offices.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, the next question is No. 132, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 132

No. 132: Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly asked the Honourable Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs what Government's Immigration policy is in regard to permitting children of non-Caymanian spouses to attend schools in Cayman Brac.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, before you ask the question can we have a specific date when these questions will be answered?

The Speaker: Honourable Acting First Official Member, can you give us an approximate date?

AGREED: THE SPECIAL TRUSTS (ALTERNATIVE REGIME) BILL, 1997, AND PERPETUITIES (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1997, TO BE READ AND DEBATED TOGETHER.

The Speaker: Bills, Second Reading.

THE SPECIAL TRUSTS (ALTERNATIVE REGIME) BILL, 1997

THE PERPETUITIES (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1997

The Clerk: The Special Trusts (Alternative Regime) Bill, 1997, and The Perpetuities (Amendment) Bill, 1997.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: As Members are aware, a modern and innovative legislative framework is a prerequisite to maintaining the attractiveness of the Cayman Islands as an international financial centre. To this end, I rise to present to this Honourable House the Special Trusts (Alternative Regime) Bill, 1997 (known as the Star Legislation), and The Perpetuities (Amendment) Bill, 1997.

The Special Trusts (Alternative Regime) Bill, 1997 (or Star Legislation, as it is referred to) seeks to permit the creation of non-charitable purpose trusts. The Bill provides an alternative legal framework within which trusts of any description may be created, provided their objects are lawful and not contrary to public policy. Under existing Cayman Laws, trusts can only be established for individual beneficiaries or for public charitable purposes. The new legislation is designed to extend this principle so that a trust can now be established for lawful private purposes.

One example of this might be where a company wishes to place money in a special fund for the promotion of certain arts or crafts, or sports, or for the promotion of commerce, or for the provision of health insurance or other benefits for employees. Such transactions are not easily achieved under the general law as it now stands, and will be much easier with this new piece of legislation.

The Government continues to be responsive to the needs of the financial services industry and promotes appropriate legislation in a timely manner. As such, the demand for new legislation comes from major financial institutions and international law firms within international financial centres, including London, New York, Hong Kong and Tokyo—potential business of a very high calibre—covering a very broad range of commercial and private estate planning transactions, and is entirely consistent with the Cayman Islands image as a sophisticated financial centre.

Nearly all other offshore financial jurisdictions now have legislation for this purpose. These jurisdictions include Bermuda, the BVI, Jersey, therefore the introduction of similar legislation in the Cayman Islands will restore our competitive position in this area. Indeed, our Star Legislation has been designed to provide a better and more secure legal framework which should give the Cayman Islands a definite edge.

I will now point out some of the more salient features of this Bill. As provided for in clauses 3 and 4, the existing traditional trust regime will remain entirely unaffected by the Star Legislation. Those who wish to use this legislation will have to make this explicit in the trust document, otherwise the traditional regime will apply.

Clause 6 provides that a special trust may be created for any objects, whether persons, purposes or both, provided they are lawful and not contrary to public policy.

Clause 11 gives the court jurisdiction to vary the terms of a special trust if it proves to be impossible to execute, or, if it proves to be unlawful or contrary to public policy in some respect.

Clause 12 requires that at least one of the trustees of a special trust must be a trust corporation duly licensed under the Banks and Trust Companies Law and certain records must be kept in the Cayman Islands, including the identity of the trustees, the enforcers and settlers, terms of the trust and the property subject to the trust.

Clause 16 prevents land in the Islands from being subject to a special trust. This was done because it was considered undesirable from a public policy standpoint to permit such land to be tied up indefinitely under a special trust. However, a special trust may hold an interest in a company partnership or other entity which holds land in the Cayman Islands for the purpose of its business.

The accompanying Perpetuities (Amendment) Bill, 1997 seeks to exempt trusts formed under the provisions of the Special Trusts (Alternative Regime) Law, 1997 from the rule against perpetuities which is necessary for technical reasons, except as provided for by clause 16 of the Star Legislation.

The Star Legislation and the Perpetuities (Amendment) Bill, 1997 have been the subject of extensive consultation and have the full support of the financial services sector. It is one of a series of legislation required to put the Cayman Islands back at the forefront of developing sophisticated trust legislation. I commend these Bills to this Honourable House.

The Speaker: The question is that Bills entitled: The Special Trusts (Alternative Regime) Bill, 1997 and The Perpetuities (Amendment) Bill, 1997 be give a second reading. They are now open for debate. (Pause)

Does any Member wish to speak? (Pause)

If not, would the Mover of the Bills wish to exercise his right of reply?

Hon. George A. McCarthy: At this time I will make no further comments on the Bills as presented but will thank Members for their tacit support.

The Speaker: The question is that Bills entitled: The Special Trusts (Alternative Regime) Bill, 1997 and The Perpetuities (Amendment) Bill, 1997 be give a second

For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, for ever and ever, Amen.

By and large, we do our best and we normally consult with all Members on matters which go beyond the usual. I am happy, therefore, to lay this on the Table.

The Speaker: So ordered.

The next item is Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. Deferred Question No. 120 is standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE

DEFERRED QUESTION NO. 120

No. 120: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs what Government's policy is regarding re-entry into the Cayman Islands by foreign nationals who have immigration charges pending in the Courts of the Cayman Islands.

The Speaker: The Honourable Acting First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Government's policy regarding re-entry into the Cayman Islands by foreign nationals who have immigration charges pending in the courts of the Cayman Islands has been, and continues to be, to allow those foreign nationals to return to face those charges.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Member state whether this entry is restricted to the person returning to the Cayman Islands to face the charges, or is he allowed to re-enter the Cayman Islands before the charges are called, on social occasions, or vacations or otherwise for example?

The Speaker: The Honourable Acting First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: That would depend upon the circumstances of the particular case.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Am I to understand that as long as the charges are not of a criminal nature in terms of serious criminal offences, that the person would normally be allowed to come and, say, visit for a weekend or so?

The Speaker: The Honourable Acting First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: As I said, it would depend upon the nature of the original charge. Obviously, the Member has given some parameters to his question. Without prejudicing what I said earlier, I would expect that a visit for social or recreational purposes of a short duration would normally be entertained.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I wonder if the Honourable Member could give us an indication of the type of charges that would preclude the entry of such an individual?

The Speaker: The Honourable Acting First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: There is a whole range of charges that would preclude this. As I said, it would depend upon the circumstances of a particular case. Obviously, if a person were travelling with a forged document, I would not expect that we would want to grant that person permission to re-enter for social purposes. But I cannot stand here and give the Member an exhaustive list of the charges, or potential charges, which would preclude someone from returning to the Cayman Islands for a social visit.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: What I am trying to get is an indication (and I will turn this into a question)... I do not expect him to be a walking encyclopaedia and be able to give an exhaustive list. What we need is an indication of some of the charges that would preclude such an individual re-entering the Cayman Islands.

I wonder if the Member is in a position to give examples of any charges other than the one he gave of a forged document?

The Speaker: The Honourable Acting First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: There is a broad range of potential charges related to involvement in gainful employment without permission, whether outside the terms of a work permit, or where no work permit exists at all. That would also preclude someone from coming back for reasons other than to face those charges.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, the next question is deferred question No. 125, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town

DEFERRED QUESTION NO. 125

No. 125: Miss Heather D. Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Agriculture, and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean Environment, Communications and Works to say which access road will be used as the official entrance to the Pedro St. James National Historic site.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications: The access road to the Pedro St James National Historic Site will be the road currently used, that is, Castle Road.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Miss Heather D. Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister state, seeing as how this road will be used much more once the project is completed, if additional street lights will be installed?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: It is Government's intention to do whatever possible to promote Pedro Castle once completed. If it takes street lights and upgrading of the road, I am certain that we will do that.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister state what possible upgrading of the road will take place?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thus far the Minister responsible for Pedro Castle and I have not discussed anything with road works. I take that we would do what is the norm, that is, to resurface the road and bring it up to a higher standard seeing that it will have a lot more traffic than at present.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Will any consideration be given to widening that road?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: The possibility exists, but we will have to wait and see exactly what kind of traffic we have on that road. It is my understanding thus far that the present width of the road can handle the traffic that is actually travelling on it.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister state if there are any other roads through which vehicles may gain access to Pedro Castle?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Not to my knowledge.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Some years ago there was talk of a scenic route running from Manse Road and coming out by the old Pedro Castle Road. I wonder if the Honourable Minister in charge of roads can say whether the Government is prepared to investigate the possibility of developing such a road and ascertaining the feasibility of establishing such a road? I think the proposal at that time was to leave about 400 feet of iron shore so that the view of the sea would be unobstructed.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: The Member is correct. There was a lot of talk about it. Some developers actually stated that they were prepared to come forward with funds to construct it because it would help their developments. But, thus far, it has been only talk and no money. I know of no Government plans to construct this road. If developers come forward and actually put their money where their mouths are, I am sure that Government will try to work along with them.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister state if the road corridor has been reserved, even though it has only been talked about?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: To the best of my knowledge, there was a proposed road corridor.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, the next question is deferred question No. 132 standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

DEFERRED QUESTION NO. 132

No. 132: Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly asked the Honourable Acting First Official Member what Government's Immigration policy is in regard to permitting children of non-Caymanian spouses to attend schools in Cayman Brac.

The Speaker: The Honourable Acting First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Government's immigration policies are contained in the Immigration Law, the Immigration Regulations and the Immigration Directives. There are no immigration policies which are specific to either school attendance or Cayman Brac. Those policies regulate the residence of all non-Caymanians in the Cayman Islands.

Government's education policy in respect of non-Caymanian children is related, however, to the immigration status of those children.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Can the Honourable Member state whether or not any children of a Caymanian with a non-Caymanian spouse are now attending any of the four schools in Cayman Brac?

The Speaker: The Honourable Acting First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: I would not be able to provide an answer at this time, but I will be happy to seek the answer and provide it to the Member in writing.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Thank you. Can the Honourable Member state if he is aware of the fact that there is at least one minor who has not been able to attend the school for some two years, but is allowed to remain in the jurisdiction, taking that against the background that education is mandatory in the Cayman Islands?

The Speaker: The Honourable Acting First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: I am not aware of that situation and I would be grateful if the Member would provide me with additional information so that I can look into it.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I wonder if the Honourable Member is in a position to clarify a situation which is causing great concern, not only in Cayman Brac, but here in Grand Cayman as well. It seems to be a Catch-22 situation. When a parent of an expatriate child goes to the Immigration Department for an extension of time for the child to go to school, I understand that the Immigration Department sends the child to the Education Department so that they can get an indication of whether or not the child is accepted; then before the child can be accepted, he is sent back to the Immigration Department to get permission to stay here.

For the benefit of the public (who are really benefiting from these questions), I wonder if the Honourable Member is in a position to say if there is any specific policy on this so that parents will know precisely what their obligations are in this respect?

The Speaker: The Honourable Acting First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: The Immigration Board in determining whether to allow a child as a dependant may on some occasions require the parent of a child to demonstrate that arrangements are in place for the child's education, and may make some stipulations as to where that education should be provided. So, it is possible that parents sometimes have to consult the Education Department to ascertain if space is available for that child. They then have to convey that information to the Immigration Department.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I thank the Member for the clarification. I wonder if there is any way his office might be able to advise the public of the proper procedure? I know of cases where parents have been sent back and forth between the Immigration Department and the Education Department. It causes much confusion. I wonder if we can get a specific policy on this?

The Speaker: The Honourable Acting First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: There is close liaison between the Education Department and the Immigration Department. I will pursue having those departments jointly issued with guidelines. My understanding is that during the current enrolment process the arrangement, they went as far as posting an Immigration Officer at the Education Department during peak enrolment times to assist with fielding some of those inquiries to which the Member eluded.

But if some release of information can further assist, I will be happy to pursue that.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: May I respectfully request that the Honourable Member consider issuing a release at the same time the Education Department publishes the reminder to parents that it is time to begin the registration process for the new school year? It seems to me that such a release at that time would be beneficial.

The Speaker: The Honourable Acting First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: I am grateful for the Member's suggestion and I will take it on board. It sounds worthwhile.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, the next question is deferred question No. 133, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

DEFERRED QUESTION NO. 133

No. 133: Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly asked the Honourable Acting First Official Member when the Immigration Law will be amended to make provision for the establishment of an Immigration Board for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

The Speaker: The Honourable Acting First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: It is expected that the necessary amendments to the current immigration legislation will be brought to the next Meeting of this Honourable House.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Can the Honourable Member state who has the responsibility for bringing this amendment?

The Speaker: The Honourable Acting First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: I would expect that it would be brought by the Honourable First Official Member.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Can the Honourable Member give an undertaking that this will be done in the next sitting, or is it merely speculation? I am asking that with the clear understanding that he is the Acting Honourable First Official Member.

The Speaker: The Honourable Acting First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: I can give no undertaking other than to say that is the intention and aim. Obviously there are various factors beyond our control which could preclude that, but, certainly, that is the aim at this time.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Can he give an undertaking that while he is Acting he can ask the Honourable Attorney General to assist in this endeavour, as a matter of priority?

The Speaker: The Honourable Acting First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Obviously, the Attorney General's assistance is necessary. I will be drawing on it and giving the request due priority. I will ask him to do likewise.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: This question is indirectly related to requesting an amendment to the Immigration Law. Can the Honourable Member state when we can expect to have the first meeting of the Select Committee on the Immigration Law, since so many requests are now being made for amendments? I believe this Committee was established in March of this year. If this is done within the time frame expected, many of these issues could be addressed.

The Speaker: I do not believe that directly relates to this question, but if the Honourable Acting First Official Member wishes to answer it, he may.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: No, I cannot say. Perhaps the Member could put the question to the Member appointed as Chairman of the Committee. Maybe he can answer it.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: We know that the Chairman of that Committee is the Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration. He is present. I wonder if he is in a position to shed some light on this particular point.

The Speaker: We are actually straying from the substantive question, but if the Honourable Member wishes to answer, he may. The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: I am happy to answer, Mr. Speaker, but I do not think I can give the Member much information other than to say that we are actively preparing for the first meeting of that Select Committee. I cannot give him a date of when it will be called as yet.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: This may be seen to be straying, but I think that most of us consider this to be a very important issue. I seek your indulgence to impress upon the Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration that the Members of the Backbench consider this a very important issue and we would like to start meeting as soon as possible.

I again ask him for some assurance that we will be meeting very soon.

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: I am anxious that when the Committee does meet, it meets constructively. To that end, I and the Clerk of the Committee on my instructions has been obtaining background papers and information for distribution to the Committee before the first meeting. I am hoping that approaching it in that way, when we have our first meeting we can actually get down to some constructive work.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Member give us some kind of time frame?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration. That is asking for his opinion, of course.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: A lot of these questions are, Mr. Speaker.

I can tell the Member that at this very moment I am reading a document for the sole purpose of establishing whether it ought to be circulated to Members of that Committee before the first meeting. So, I am very conscious that we need to meet quickly. Of course, Members are only too well aware that during the summer months, attempting to call Committee meetings is not very fruitful because so many people are off the island.

Now that Members are back, we will be looking to hold that first meeting shortly after this present meeting of the Legislative Assembly comes to an end.

DEFERRED QUESTION NO. 134

No. 134: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development how many contingency warrants have been issued from 1 January to 31 July, 1997.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: One hundred and sixty-five (165) contingency warrants were issued in the period 1st January 1997 to 31st July 1997, to the value of $59,163,159. These warrants covered the following categories of expenditure, with categories 1 and 2 having been necessitated by the fact that the 1997 Budget was not approved until April:

1. Second quarter release of recurrent expenditure: $ 40,682,109
2. Capital expenditure for ongoing projects: $ 12,419,376
3. Unbudgeted recurrent and capital expenditure: $ 6,061,674

The warrants issued under categories 1 and 2, which are recurrent and capital expenditure, were automatically cleared by the passage of the Appropriation Law, 1997. Those issued under category 3 require Finance Committee approval.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: As the Honourable Member is aware, it is customary for Finance Committee to meet every quarter. Can the Member give the specific reason why Finance Committee has not yet met to deal with category 3?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The Member is correct. Finance Committee normally meets every quarter, or as often as necessary. Normally, to have unbudgeted recurrent and capital expenditure of this sum requires not only Finance Committee's approval, but to explain to the Committee how these expenditures will be sourced. The agenda for Finance Committee has been developed and is ongoing by the Budget and Management Services Unit.

A review is currently being conducted to see where savings can be realised within the various departments that have requested releases under contingency expenditures. Often it is found that these contingencies will not necessarily result in over expenditure as such. While there may be shortages under specific subheads, or heads within the Budget, there are off-setting savings within the departments.

So, it is expected that within another two to three weeks there will be a meeting of Finance Committee, at which time necessary approval will be sought. This Honourable House will then be updated as to the Government's financial position and, most importantly, how the expenditure (approval for which Finance Committee will be asked to give) will be financed.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Member state what portion of category 3 is recurrent expenditure and what portion is capital expenditure?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Of the $6 million, I have details on hand to the value of approximately $4.2 million. While it does not specifically show the value under capital and recurrent, it seems to be approximately half for capital, and half for recurrent expenditure.

I can make a copy of this available to the Member.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 23(7)&(8)

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, it is 11 o'clock. So, I beg to move the suspension of Standing Order 23(7) and (8) to enable Question Time to continue.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I beg to second the Motion.

The Speaker: The question is the suspension of Standing Order 23(7) and (8) to enable Question Time to continue. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED. STANDING ORDER 23(7) AND (8) SUSPENDED TO ENABLE QUESTION TIME TO CONTINUE.

The Speaker: Supplementaries continuing. The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Can the Honourable Member state which of the three categories listed in his answer reflects the $280,000 for road works in Cayman Brac which was not budgeted.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: That would be under category 3, within the $6 million amount.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Is the Honourable Member in a position to say whether this item for $280,000 has already been placed on the agenda under this category?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Yes.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Can the Honourable Member state who made the request for these supplementary unbudgeted funds?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I have been made to understand that of this sum approximately $100,000 is as a result of a request by District Administration. But I will have to consult with the Director of Budget and Management Services to see who would have requested the balance.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Taking full cognisance that I am fairly new at procedures, is the Honourable Member in a position to say whether it is normal for a request to be made for such a large amount of supplementary without having the courtesy of notifying the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I would like to think about my response to that question before I advance any view on it. We have to bear in mind that controlling officers within Government are empowered in the carrying out of their duties and responsibilities. Therefore, when a request is initiated by a department, the assumption is made that the normal courtesies, where necessary, would be extended. There are several questions that could be asked, but normally when a request comes to the Portfolio of Finance and Development, and when it is to be passed on to the Director of Budget and Management Services Unit, it would be assumed that the normal clearance and discussion would have taken place prior to the request being officially submitted.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I feel sorry for the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, but I can advise her that it happens for the district of George Town also.

Be that as it may, I wonder if the Honourable Member could state that if it is safe to say that of category 3 ($6,061,000) unbudgeted recurrent and capital expenditure, that when the next Finance Committee meets there will be at least $6 million of supplementary expenditure being sought?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Yes.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Member give us an indication of how much more besides this $6 million is involved?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I will not be able to comment on that until the agenda is agreed on by Executive Council.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: At the last meeting of the House, the Honourable Third Official Member informed us that there was an amount of $17.5 million on the surplus and deficit account. In light of the information given today, with an unbudgeted recurrent and capital expenditure of $6 million, and perhaps other expenditure, I wonder if he is in a position to give an indication of what the surplus and deficit position is at this point in time?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I will not be able to give the specific figures at this time. There is a substantive question that will provide the response the Member is seeking. The Treasury has finalised the figures up through 30th June. The answer will provide that information (although the question is seeking for information as at 30th July).

As the Member is aware, being a past civil servant and also at one time the Deputy Financial Secretary, at the beginning of the year there is a bulk in terms of revenue collected. This diminishes as the year progresses. To look back at what the position would have been at an earlier point does not necessarily mean that will obtain at a subsequent point.

We can say that as of 30th June, from the information provided by the Treasury, the revenue is approximately 1% ahead of the targeted position (looking at trends). We are expecting that we should have a favourable position over all at the end of the year.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I wonder if the Honourable Member is in a position to state whether the 165 contingency warrants which he advised have been issued between 1st January and 31st July is in keeping with the policy of the Finance and Audit Law, specifically the policy of the Auditor General?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The answer to that would be yes. We are looking at an unusual year. Had 1996 not been an election year, and the Budget approved for the year 1997, we would not have had this number of contingency warrants.

The Auditor General can comment in terms of what the interpretation would be of the Public Finance and Audit Law. We have had discussions on this and have seen his views as set out in the Audited Accounts for 1996, but I would like to reserve my comments at this time in order to formulate a response to the position he has advanced.

The Member will appreciate the unusual situation with 1997 in that Government had to continue on an ongoing basis and the necessary authorisation had to be given. I should also point out that the sum of $47 million approved in 1996 in terms of various warrants issued to the departments of Government are also caught up in that number as well.

Although approval was put in place and provisions of the Public Finance and Audit Law used, all of this is embraced within the 165 'contingency warrants.'

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: In light of the information contained in the substantive answer, that the Budget was approved by April, why is it that an unbudgeted $6 million was later approved? How does the late approval in April impact on what seems to have been an unbudgeted expenditure of over $6 million?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: As Members will appreciate, regardless of how astute or careful the Government acts, there will be areas of expenditure that could not be precisely anticipated.

For example, a sum has been budgeted for the Harquail Bypass. Because of the urgency, and given the critical situation with the traffic along West Bay Road, the Government has decided to expedite that project. There are several other projects that have, of necessity, been expedited because of the demand for the services they will provide. Others could not have been foreseen precisely.

This is why we have a culmination of requests amounting to this sum of money.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Is the Member saying that the items he just listed, which are so important, are included in this $6 million, such as the work being done on the West Bay Road?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: For example, the Government took a decision in order to alleviate the traffic congestion on West Bay Road to extend the third lane there. This was not considered initially when the Budget was prepared. Information can be provided by the Honourable Minister with responsibility for roads. The Member can see that work is currently progressing along the West Bay Road to facilitate this. This has been estimated at a cost of $450,000. We have other expenditure which could not be precisely anticipated—overseas medical entailed cases of approximately $1.1 million.

With the best historical data available, a sum can always be budgeted, but there will always be unusual cases arising where the incurring of expenditure can be very substantial. I am pointing this out to expand upon the information given earlier.

The Member will recall that a significant sum of money was put into the Budget for the Harquail Bypass. This is not additional expenditure that is anticipated. That has not been caught up in this $6 million as yet. But because of the fact that there is a need to expedite the work on that road in order to have it completed much earlier than anticipated, it will incur additional expenditure during the course of 1997.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: I wonder if the Honourable Member can say whether or not the $400,000 which was budgeted is included in these contingency warrants which have been released to Cayman Brac and Little Cayman as of today?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: All the expenditure which have not been budgeted for would be included in the release of contingency warrants.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Can the Honourable Member then confirm whether or not there is money remaining of this $400,000?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: There could be funds from that $450,000 remaining, but the exact amount would have to be provided by the Public Works Department.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: On a point of clarification, am I to understand that although the Honourable Member is not in a position to say exactly what amount of funds remain, it is not the case that there are no funds?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I am saying that I cannot give the definite position. It could be that a substantial part of the $450,000 would have been exhausted already; or the larger part could be remaining unspent. The Chief Engineer of the Public Works Department is the controlling officer for that expenditure. It depends upon what warrants have been released to him and what has been expended against it. That is the response I can give at this time.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Can the Honourable Member give an undertaking to supply as of today's date what has been released for the budgeted roads, and what amount remains?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I will be happy to provide that information for the Member.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: In light of the information we have received to date of Government's expenditure, and also in the light of the financial position we were given at the end of March 1997, I wonder whether the Honourable Member could state whether the Government is in a position, based on the vast amount of expenditure to date, to continue this trend and whether or not we may be in danger of running out of funds by the year's end?

The Speaker: I do not think that is really a supplementary. I cannot allow that. It does not come out of the substantive answer.

The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: I recall that during the Budget Session of 1997 (and I am referring specifically to Cayman Brac and Little Cayman) that there was a process with regard to roads. Certain roads were identified to be done with the allocated funds approved by Finance Committee.

My question to the Honourable Member is, what option does an Elected Member have if funds are spent for projects other than those specifically approved in the Budget?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I indicated in a response I provided earlier that when controlling officers are appointed to their various positions they are empowered and given certain responsibilities. If the Chief Engineer, or the District Commissioner, or a controlling officer from another Government Department is authorised under the Appropriation Law to incur certain expenditures, the Portfolio of Finance and Development normally accepts a request put forward as consistent with the approval that has been granted. It does not necessarily mean that once this request comes in (and the Member asking the question can appreciate the difficulty involved in anticipating all of the processes and courtesies that should normally be extended) the Chief Engineer who has the agency appointment for so many departments of Government has consulted the various Elected Members providing representation for the various districts.

We are a small community. Where it would have been appropriate for such to have been done, and where it is not done, the best thing the Member can do is to write to the Minister with responsibility for the subject, pointing out what his concerns are and suggest the line of communication that should have taken place.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: As stated earlier, in June 1997 we were informed that there were $17.5 million on the surplus and deficit account. We have just been provided with information that there is an unbudgeted amount of $6 million that will come out of those funds. My question is (and I believe that this is relevant): If the $6 million at the end of July was extrapolated to the end of the year (31st December) can the Honourable Member give an indication of whether or not we have sufficient funds available or whether we might have to seek additional funds?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: As at the end of June, the approximate balance of the surplus and deficit account was in the region of $20 million. I indicated that the revenue at the beginning of the year is normally bulked. Where we have a balance on the surplus and deficit account, that balance at the end of May, for example, would be much larger. For example, there are certain fees which are paid within a certain time frame—bank licensing fees, company registration fees, etcetera. Certain fees are paid as at 31st January. So, it is normal, in terms of the Government's cash flow projection to look at the money and to manage it to make sure where we have the bulk of the revenue collected at the beginning of the year, that sufficient funds remain to take care of the Government's expenditure needs throughout the end of the year.

We have amounts that are collected on a uniform basis, some more so towards the end of the year, such as, customs import duty. What takes place is that there is a need to have prudent management in place.

I also indicated that in terms of this $6 million it does not necessarily mean over expenditure, although contingency warrants have been released. That is not necessarily the case. The Government's budgeting process is such that where for example the Portfolio of Finance and Development allocated $10 million, we could have a savings on one sub-head significantly more than what is being sought by way of contingency warrants under another sub-head.

The entire picture has to be taken into consideration. We have seen where we have had the Budget approved for a certain sum, subsequent approvals of Finance Committee would have taken the limit much further. But, when we look at the overall expenditure at the end of the year, it turns out to be much less than the original appropriation.

Prudent fiscal management will have to prevail. If the Government would ever be unable to meet its obligations throughout the year, that would have to be looked at very carefully. If it is a question that borrowings would have to take place, Executive Council would first have to be apprised of this through the Portfolio of Finance and Development.

We are expecting that we will be able to meet the expenditures of 1997 from the sources of revenue that have been identified in the Budget, and also the borrowings approved by this Legislative Assembly.

The Speaker: I have exercised a lot of patience, and we have actually had 19 supplementaries on this particular question. I will allow one further supplementary.

The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you for your kindness, Mr. Speaker. The very last part of the Honourable Member's answer, he stated that it is anticipated that recurrent revenue will take care of expenditure through year end. Does this bear in mind the capital expenditure approved in the 1997 Budget, or is this with the anticipation that a large portion of that capital expenditure will not occur?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: It comes down to a question of priorities. For example, if funds have to be used on projects arising during the course of the year which were not included in the original Appropriation Bill, it does not necessarily mean that the Budgeted projects will be scaled back. But, it is a question of looking at the available resources—if need be, not only on the capital side, but also on the expenditure side (or what would have been included in the capital budget) but also on the recurrent side.

The philosophy of the Cayman Islands is to maintain a balanced budget process, which means that at the end of the year, the expenditures should be met from the sources of funds that have been available during the course of the year. This accounts for the success that we have enjoyed up to this time, and what we hope to maintain in the future. To do otherwise could be somewhat imprudent.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 135, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 135

No. 135: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works to provide a list of Government Offices leased by Government giving name of departments occupying, duration of lease and cost per month.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister state whether any of these are leases with option to purchase, or are they straight leases?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: To the best of my knowledge, they are straight leases.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister state what advantage to Government such an arrangement is?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Would the Member repeat that please?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister state what advantage Government derives from such leases?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: The most I can say on that is that Government actually needs space to continue to operate. I guess it would be the use of the premises.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Based on the cost of renting today, and this information (for instance for one rental area we are paying almost $18,000 per month), can the Honourable Minister state whether or not Government has considered a feasibility study to determine if it should provide its own accommodation?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: That is a good question. But the figure of $17,626 happens to cover Economics, Shipping Registry and the Monetary Authority and Stock Exchange. If you divide that it comes out to a lot less than what we are paying for the Post Office at the West Shore Centre, which is $6,760.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I noticed that the West Shore Centre's five-year lease is with effect from May 1996. I wonder if the Honourable Minister can state what type of feasibility study has been undertaken, if any, to determine the cost per square foot of the Economic and Statistics, Shipping Registry, etcetera, which he referred to, that costs $17,000 per month.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: It is my understanding that in all rentals by Government the square footage is looked upon on the various requests by the departments. Thereafter, Government tries to shop around to find where it is most economical and suitable for the departments to actually be housed. As far as I know, this is what took place in regard to what the Member is referring to. I think the normal procedure was in play when we actually took the rental.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: This is quite a significant sum to be paying for rent. May I respectfully request, bearing in mind the decision to rent does not rest with the Minister assuming the responsibility for answering this question, that the Government seriously consider... and may I get an undertaking from the Minister that he will try to impress upon the Government the necessity to seriously consider (a) undertaking some kind of feasibility survey with a view to determining the effectiveness and efficacy of acquiring their own building or buildings; or (b) making some assessment as to whether some of these properties can be had on a lease purchase, or some kind of lease to own arrangement?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: I take note of what the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town has said, and I would like to inform the House that Government is actually looking at providing its own facilities. Until that time, the Government must continue to operate. As a short term measure, we have to take the action which we have. As things progress, I will give the House an undertaking to inform them as to what I know about providing another Government facility. It has been a recommendation of my Ministry.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: I would like to draw the Honourable Minister's attention to the Post Office at the West Shore Centre where it is close to $7000 per month. Taking into consideration that the Crown owns a large track of property just a short distance west of the West Shore Centre, has any consideration been given to establishing a district Post Office on this track of property?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: I do not think any consideration has been given to constructing a Post Office there. While I did mention the figures on this West Shore Post Office, I would like to say that that Post Office serves a great purpose in that area. Although we may consider the rent a bit high, it is actually servicing the people in that area and causing us to not have as much congestion here in George Town as we would normally have.

Government has not taken any action as far as constructing one in that area, but the fact remains that we could look at it and, if the need arises, and Government agrees, I guess we could do it.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I agree 100% with the Minister, that the West Shore Post Office does indeed provide a very useful service. I wonder if he could say what the long term plans are for developing our own office accommodations?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: I think I answered that a while ago. I said that Government had taken no final decision in regard to building, although it has been a recommendation from my Ministry that we should look into it; and I will enlighten the House when I know something further on it.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, the next question is No. 136, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 136

No. 136: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport to outline the method by which financing was arranged for the new crane purchased by the Port Authority.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Litigation is in progress between the Port Authority and a private company in relation to this crane. The matter is, therefore, sub judice. Consequently, it is inadvisable at this time to provide an answer to the question as the issue of financing may well be considered during the course of the litigation.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: In asking this question, I considered the existing situation very carefully. I held the view then, as I do now, that the question that is being asked has no bearing on the litigation that is taking place.

You, sir, approved the question. I would ask you now to make a ruling.

The Speaker: This Honourable House is aware of the pending litigation. The financing of the crane has been discussed at length in this Honourable House on several previous occasions. I do not see where what we discuss here today can be of further knowledge to the public or this Honourable House. I think we should proceed with the next question. My ruling is that this question should not be answered at this time because it may be considered sub judice.

The next question is No. 137, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 137

No. 137: Miss Heather D. Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning to provide an update on the status of the Savannah Primary School bus.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The arrival of the Savannah School Bus as well as the George Town School Bus and the Red Bay School Bus has been delayed due to the fact that special equipment was needed to convert the entry door of each bus from the right to the left side of the school bus, so that it was suitable and safer for driving on the left on Cayman's roads. This work was completed by First Class Coach and Equipment, Incorporated, in the United States of America, and the company's delay in completing the work is due to the fact that Cayman's special order to change the door of each bus from the right to the left side required parts designed for driving on the left which the company does not normally stock.

First Class Coach and Equipment, Incorporated, has staggered the delivery of the school buses upon completion of the installation of entry door on each bus. The delivery of the first school bus to the Miami port for shipment was to be done on 13th August; likewise, the second school bus and the third school bus were to be delivered to the Miami port on 22nd August and 29th August respectively. It should be noted, however, that new American legislation requires that the vehicles for export remain at the United States' port for a minimum of 72 hours after arrival at the port, before a shipping company can be permitted to access the cargo for loading in order to allow a thorough and complete check of vehicles for legal export by United States' authorities. All three buses should be in Cayman by the end of September.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Miss Heather D. Bodden: I want to take this opportunity to thank the Honourable Minister. I know the Savannah Primary School will be happy to hear this. But, can the Honourable Minister state what type of bus and what year bus the Savannah Primary School is getting, and how many students will this bus accommodate?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The bus is new, I believe. Subject to getting the specifications from the development of vehicles, I think it is a 60 or 72 student bus.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, that concludes Question Time for this morning.

Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

Private Member's Motion No. 4/97

ACTUARIAL STUDY FOR THE ESTABLISHMENT OF A PUBLIC OWNED HEALTH INSURANCE CORPORATION

Dr. Frank McField: I beg to move Private Member's Motion No. 4/97 which reads:

"WHEREAS the Government of the Cayman Islands has passed legislation requiring all persons to have health insurance;

BE IT NOW THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT the Government consider contracting the services of an internationally recognised management firm to:

- 1. investigate the feasibility of the Government establishing a public owned corporation to provide health insurance;
- 2. determine what the premium should be for the health insurance package specified by the Law;
- 3. recommend the organisational and managerial structure for the public health insurance corporation;

AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED THAT such reports, as produced by the management firm, be laid on the Table of this Honourable House with the decision of the Government on the matter."

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.
Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: I beg to second the Motion.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 4/97, having been duly Moved and Seconded is now open for debate. The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

(12.27 pm)

Dr. Frank McField: Since I first got an indication from the Members of the Legislative Assembly that they might be willing to consider such a Motion, I have been trying to formulate a Motion that would be acceptable to everyone. It has gone through quite a few changes in terms of what I would be expecting them to support.

I must explain that part of the reason is that my knowledge in this particular area is very limited, and I have had to depend upon sources over which I had no control for information that would have allowed me to form the Motion and speak to it in a sensible manner.

I have attempted to do my best in terms of formulating the Motion in such a way as to not inconvenience the Government in its attempt to get along with its job of providing a law and regulations for health insurance for all of the people of the Cayman Islands.

This Motion does not reflect in any way upon the job the Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation has been doing. This Motion seeks to give the people of the Cayman Islands, including Legislators, the benefit of the doubt by giving us the opportunity to look at all sides of this particular question—the question of health insurance. I know that it is not easy to find solutions for the question of health care and who will be responsible for paying for health and health care.

Many countries have tried different styles of health insurance. I ask that we be given more information as to the different ways in which other countries have dealt with legislating health insurance and the behaviour of the institutions responsible for providing these types of insurance policies.

I think that every Member of the Legislative Assembly is interested in giving much thought and consideration to issues which come before them. I feel that each of us could benefit from more expert advice. It is not to say that a good job was not done in terms of the Minister's presentation regarding public health insurance. But he happened to have benefited from associating with people who were very experienced in the question of health insurance. This is the more technical side of the question and I would like to see more Members of the Legislative Assembly, and the public also, provided with more information.

The question of how we insure the persons in our society, enabling them to be treated in times of sickness, is not just an issue of how best we can make a profit, but it is also the human issue. It is also a political issue; and I feel especially concerned when we live in a society where rapid development has meant that Caymanian people as a group are no longer in control of the economics of the society in which they live.

I am not speaking against development because it has many, many positive aspects. But there are social and political drawbacks. I think that in trying to form and maintain a stable, prosperous and harmonious society, it is necessary to do whatever we can to see that the people believe that they do have control over certain aspects which concern their lives. I think in the area of health it is very important that the people feel they have some say and some control.

I think it is important that the people do not feel totally powerless in determining their future and how business will be conducted in the future. It is not always possible for us to be absolutely in control, but sometimes there is some control left to us and we should make the choice to seize that control—we drive the car, the car does not drive us; we drive the economy, the economy does not drive us.

It is very easy for us to fall back into the feeling that all of the decisions we make in this country in regard to the way we should live together should be based upon market factors rather than on social principles and feelings and values.

This is one instance where I am attempting to assure that the Government, meaning the people of these islands, is involved in the question of health. I think that this question is the essential question when we talk about Caymanian humanity, Caymanian heritage and identity. This is one area where I feel that if we lose the ability to determine how the citizen is affected in regard to health, that we will be losing a very important part of our tradition and heritage. We would be taking from the people that last opportunity to make important decisions as to what happens.

Government involvement in private enterprise is not something that is favourably looked upon in most countries. But we must realise that the Cayman Islands is not like most countries. The Cayman Islands is uniquely different because it did not produce that entrepreneurial class of people that had sufficient capital to invest in the many forms of businesses that we have found necessary to become involved with in order to develop and supply our people with the types of commodities and services they now demand.

It is important that the people of the Cayman Islands act collectively to maintain a certain measure of economic control. The fact that the economic climate is good in the Cayman Islands does not mean that Caymanians own. . . there is a difference between Caymanian people owning the engine of the economy and the Caymanian people benefiting as workers in the economy.

What I am talking about regarding the creation of a corporation that would sell health insurance to the people of these islands is the ability to not say 'Let's not get involved in this because it did not work in England or Australia, etcetera.' I ask that we do a study from our point of view, looking into our uniqueness as a country with a very small population. Let us look into it from the point of view that we are a country which needs to continue to have a say in what happens at our hospital—not just from the point of view of providing technology, but from the point of view of how much a person pays to have access to that technology.

These are the types of considerations I have been able to make. The proof of whether or not this would be useful, because we are not asking the Government to commit itself (we do not have the power to commit Government), we are asking Government to consider it. But I believe that if the consideration is based upon feasible, logic principles, that consideration will lead to a particular action that would result in Government actually having this study done by a management consultant firm.

My Motion is trying to cooperate with the Government in asking that a management consultant firm be used, and not an actuarial study. I appreciate that that would not be what the Minister would find favourable and might not necessarily provide me with the type of social and economic information that I might need. I might be too mathematical.

I think it is very important that we realise that this might be one of the last opportunities the Government of the Cayman Islands has to become involved in some type of profit making venture. I think it is important to realise that we still have the opportunity to make choices, that it is not always good and necessary—there is no law that says Government should only earn money by means of taxation. When Government is in a situation like we are today, where the economy is growing at a rapid rate, the amount of capital needed to become involved in investment is so massive, Government, because it is a collective grouping together of a majority of the people does have the capacity to provide the type of capital to do things that would cause Government to make a profit and therefore need to tax the people less when it comes to raising money.

We have already seen the example of the Port Authority and Cayman Airways, as far as Government being involved, but in some cases we get involved because it seemed natural for Government to do so; whereas, in the case of Government being involved in insurance it does not appear to be natural or necessary. It is not just a question of other companies being available to provide health insurance, but also of being in there with those available providers to the extent where Government could act as a positive free enterprise regulator of the premiums that might be set. Government would not necessarily say that this amount must be charged, but it could be more realistic in terms of determining what they might charge, causing a much more competitive atmosphere among those providers. Those providers might not necessarily be able to get together, three, four or six of them, and decide what they are going to go for so that they do not lose profits and fall apart.

The other question is when a person gets to a particular age who will insure them? Maybe a private insurance company would be interested in insuring me until I get to the age of 55 or 60, or 70, and then they will no longer be interested because the contract I have with them has to be renewed every year. Of course, if my health starts to deteriorate there is always the risk that I might not be able to get that type of insurance.

So, the question is what are we going to do with the older people? When we become older, what will happen to us? Will these insurance companies still be interested in us? Basically, insurance companies are interested in profit. I am not saying that a Government corporation should not be interested in profits. They should. Maybe profit will not be the only consideration. It could be a major consideration, but not the only consideration. The interest in which the Government's own corporation would have in maintaining the health of the society could be slightly different.

There is also the question of insurance companies coming in and being involved for the period of prosperity, the periods in which the country is very prosperous. We do not know what will happen tomorrow. God forbid, but it is possible that this will not be the same place. The companies might not show the same interest in providing us with good rates for insurance. It is possible that we will have more unhealthy people. At present our people are very healthy.

We should keep the doors open. We should increase the possibilities and not decrease the possibilities for an improved atmosphere for benefits when it comes to what insurance companies will be willing to give up. Therefore, Government, by example rather than by sitting on the sidelines trying to regulate through legislation, might be in able to regulate through participation. I think that it is important that we at least allow ourselves the possibility to acquire the information needed to determine if this exercise might be beneficial to us in the future.

Nobody is saying that what has been done by the Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation and his advisor is insufficient. We are saying that we could go one step further and at least provide the public with the assurance that we have done the necessary research and consideration to prove that this is possible or impossible.

My Motion is asking that Government consider. . . and I hope that it will find support in this Legislative Assembly. I shall give other Members the opportunity to express themselves, because I know there are a lot of people who believe there might be some credit to this Motion.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony Eden: I rise to give my response to Private Member's Motion No. 4/97, entitled Actuarial Study for the Establishment of a Public Owned Health Insurance Corporation. The second line of the Resolve Section the words "internationally recognised actuarial firm" has, by an amendment to the Motion been replaced with "management consultant firm."

I would like to make it clear at the outset of my debate that I respect the genuineness of the Mover's and Second's motives in bringing it before this Honourable House.

The issue of health insurance affects us all. For some 20 years now, it has been around in one form or another. A previous effort to implement a National Health Insurance Law gave rise to such widespread concern following the 1992 election that it was suspended.

Ever since becoming Minister responsible for Health some three and one half years ago, I and my Ministry, and the Health Insurance Advisory Committee have been working many long hours to produce a workable law, particularly one which afforded benefits to those over 65 which the Mover spoke about, as well as those under 65, but with one premium applying to all. Our efforts culminated in the Health Insurance Law being passed in this Honourable House in July of this year.

In my contribution to the debate at that time, and on many occasions since, I stated that no law was perfect and no law pleases everybody, and that this law would be no exception. I pointed out that it was almost certain that some fine tuning would have to be applied as we went along and learned more how the law was working. As I also noted at that time, we cannot fine tune an engine until it has been started and running. That remains my point of view today.

I have no objection in principle to the wording of this Private Member's Motion. In fact, I will go on record as saying that I feel there is much merit in Government's considering the services of a management consultant firm to carry out the tasks listed in the Motion which are:

- "1. investigate the feasibility of the Government establishing a public owned corporation to provide health insurance;
- 2. determine what the premium should be for the health insurance package specified by the Law;
- 3. recommend the organisational and managerial structure for the public health insurance corporation;"

My concern is not with the wording, but rather with the timing of this Motion and the tasks it assigns to a management consultant firm.

During our very lengthy deliberations over the last three years, these very same points were raised at one time or another. I became convinced that now was not the time to address these matters. The most essential thing to do is to enact the law and make sure that appropriate mechanisms were put in place whereby we could carefully monitor (after a year or two) how it was performing.

My reason for adopting this approach is that it became apparent to me that while some important statistics relating to health care demands and provisions existed, others which would be crucial to any valid study of the sort requested in the Motion did not. It is my heartfelt belief that if we are to commit ourselves to spending considerable sums of public funds to such a study, we should not expect the consultants to perform like magicians, conjuring their findings and recommendations out of thin air. We have been down that road before and should not be travelling it again.

As we all know, actuaries are statisticians, and while there is always an element of guesswork to what they do, it should be highly informed guess work. A report based on inadequate quantities of hard data will always be accompanied by disclaimers by those preparing the report. I hardly need to remind Members of this Honourable House that we have been down that particular road too. In the interest of a responsible and productive use of public funds, we should not go travel it again.

The 1997 Law, along with the accompanying regulations which will be debated shortly will ensure that after, say, a two year period, the sort of hard reliable data I referred to previously will be in place and will be vital to the creation of a valid study. Such data is not available at present. That is the crux of my whole response.

We have determined, by contacting the various providers of health insurance (who are licensed to do such business in the Cayman Islands), as well as some of the largest employers, that there is not a reliable history of the claims for medical benefits made on providers of health insurance coverage to the resident population of the Cayman Islands. One reason for the absence of this reliable data is that some of the largest companies have medical plans for their employees with overseas health insurance providers not licensed by our local authorities.

We are therefore unable to obtain a record of such claims for medical benefits. We must also add to this scenario all those individuals who have taken out private medical plans with overseas providers. What we are left with are those five or six providers licensed in the Cayman Islands and the records from the Health Services Department concerning the segment of the population that has utilised the services provided at Government facilities, or referred by the Health Services Department to overseas providers of health care not available in these islands.

It has also emerged that prior to 1992 a complete computerised record of Government's provision of health care was not kept. The fact is that Government does not have the benefit of information from the private sector regarding the cost of the provision of health care to the resident population locally and overseas; and what records that have been kept by Government would not be adequate at this time to provide the required data to undertake such a study by a consultant management firm.

Indeed, a small group, including the Permanent Secretary in my Ministry and the Government's Chief Statistician was given a similar task in 1995 as provided in the Private Member's Motion. I now quote from the records of that meeting. "The study group concluded that it could not reliably inform the Committee [that is the Health Insurance Advisory Committee] on the probable standard premium rate for a compulsory national health insurance plan. . ." due to the reasons I have just given—mainly the insufficient data.

I believe that any management consultant firm would be impeded in its work by the absence of reliable data and could not usefully advise the Government on the risks it would be assuming should it choose to establish a public owned corporation to provide health insurance. Neither would the management consultant firm be in a position to determine what the premium should be for the health insurance package specified by the law as proposed in the Private Member's Motion.

We are sailing cautiously into relatively uncharted waters, collecting and compiling the necessary information as we go. In one or two years time our charts will be considerably more reliable than they are now and we will be in a much better position to address the issues raised in the Motion before us.

As I said earlier, I consider the intent of Private Member's Motion No. 4/97 to be genuine and I feel it contains merit in all three of its constituent parts. I am convinced, however, that it is premature to commit public funds to a study of this sort given the lack of necessary statistics.

Concerns are constantly raised about Government becoming involved in an area that is apparently best managed by the private sector. To look at this as a corporation as proposed we must be aware of the tremendous potential liability to Government. As a result, I am unable to offer my support to this Motion at this particular time.

The Speaker: Proceedings are suspended until 2.30 pm.

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.46 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Debate continues on Private Member's Motion No. 4/97. The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: As the seconder of this Motion I rise to offer my support. I think the Fourth Elected Member for George Town should be congratulated for his conscientiousness, and for his genuine interest in the welfare of the people of these islands. I believe that the district of George Town can be proud to have a representative with those qualities.

The request is a very simple one, and one that makes sense. I think it is one the Government should very definitely pursue. By that I mean that it is not unusual. I am aware that even large companies decide, rather than going out into the open market to obtain health insurance coverage, to form their own captive insurance company. They take a piece of the pie and put it with one of the larger insurance companies, such as, Lloyds of London, or others in the re-insurance business.

What this does is give these companies a competitive advantage in that they are in it only for the purpose of the coverage. They are not motivated by the profit motive. It means they are in a position where they can obtain the same coverage for much less.

The last figure I heard about the size of the Civil Service was in the region of 2,000. A sizeable organisation. We now boast of a budget of $250 million. We are talking about a substantial organisation. When we talk about Government finding health insurance for the civil servants, it will be a substantial premium. I see no reason why in this instance Government cannot look into the possibility of forming its own captive insurance company primarily for the purpose of insuring its own risk, that is, civil servants. The public would also be given the option to purchase health insurance coverage through Government.

I hear all kinds of horror stories. My concern is that a person's health insurance will be terminated once a few claims have been made. I believe that what a captive insurance company formed by Government would also do is put Government in a position to address the concerns we had when the Honourable Minister introduced the National Health Insurance Bill over those persons who are aged, indigent and dependent. Government would be in a position to ensure that these persons get the desired coverage.

I also believe that a Government captive insurance will also keep the other private insurance companies in line as far as competitiveness is concerned. I see what always happens, I am a businessman, and I know how things work in the real world, we will come in at a reasonable premium and after we are well established and business is off the ground, those premiums will increase. I believe that if Government can offer this, and we have to take into consideration the cost of administering this, but I think that if Government can state a realistic cost of operation, the premium can be maintained at a reasonable level. It will act as an insurance policy for us in these islands, ensuring that our people who most need this coverage will have access to it.

I am not an insurance specialist, but no one can convince me that it is really that difficult to do what we are asking. It does not take any three or four year study. We know what our base is, 2,000 civil servants plus their dependants. We know what their income is, we know their age and the health of those individuals. It does not take a whole lot of mechanics to put together a reasonable plan and come up with an estimate of what it would cost to cover that risk.

So, I fully support this move. I want to congratulate the Fourth Elected Member for George Town again for his genuine interest in the welfare of the people of the Cayman Islands. I look forward to the Government pursuing this possibility. If they come back and say it cannot be done, I guess I will have to accept that. But I am not convinced at this stage that that is the position.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Boddén: I rise to make my contribution to Private Member's Motion No. 4/97. I spoke to the Honourable Mover of this Motion when I was aware that the Motion was tabled. I told the Member at that juncture that I was of the opinion that the Motion had some merit. I am still of that opinion, although I communicated with the Member later that I was disappointed to see that he had removed, by way of an amendment, the call for the actuarial study, substituting that with a management consultancy firm. I listened to the arguments given, and I remain of the opinion that the call to have an assessment by an actuarial firm was a step in the right direction. Be that as it may, I understand the negotiations and the horse-trading that is sometimes necessary in forums such as this.

The Motion asks that Government consider—key word, 'consider.' The Motion is not asking the Government to accept or adopt, it asks for consideration. Consequently, I think the Motion bears significant examination. Why? Because we are entering a new venture. To say that it would be time consuming to collect the statistics, or to say that it would be onerous is, as far as I am concerned, not a convincing explanation.

What we are doing is giving somebody a wholly captive audience to set terms and conditions, to set fees over which we will have little or no control. To do so without being in a position to say, 'According to our information this is high,' or 'These people should be covered,' is giving to someone, some entity, some organisation, a licence which we will not be able to control easily again.

I think that the essence of this Motion lies in the fact that we would have a base from which to work. Certainly, it is unlikely, once fees are established that they will decrease, even if information is provided to the contrary. It is more likely that they will be maintained at the same level, or rise. So, the absence of some empirical assessment places us at a certain disadvantage. That is borne out by the fact that entities offering this insurance are primarily motivated by the profit motive, rather than by feelings of empathy or by an association with those persons covered.

Also, Government will be at a certain disadvantage in terms of its ability to regulate, by virtue of the fact that it will have to accept information given by the providers as a result of not being in a position to prove to the contrary. The absence of the considerations the Motion is seeking leaves the Government in a weakened position if any bargaining has to take place. It leaves the Government unable to take a serious negotiating line, particularly in regard to regulating cost, increasing coverage, or enlarging areas to be covered. The Government will not be able to say that as a result of this empirical evidence it believes these things should be covered, or lowered, or that more emphasis should be placed on a certain area, etcetera.

I strongly believe that where the Government might have some reservation about entering the market, it is not far-fetched to ask it to weigh the pros and cons of getting into even some limited coverage. Remember, as we said with the pensions, the Government already has a large portion of that whole corpus of the Civil Service. It would certainly increase their bargaining power if they could say, 'This is what we are demanding or expecting. If we do not get this we will have to seriously consider some kind of mechanism to cover the people for whom we are directly responsible.' That would certainly enhance and strengthen the Government's bargaining position when it comes to dealing with private sector entities providing this coverage.

Let me put this another way by saying that while I too would like to see this business given to the private sector, as an option I think the Government should put itself in a position to offer alternatives or make arrangements to cover its own people. I think that would strengthen the Government's position and by trickle down effect might aid those people outside of the Government's umbrella to benefit from such a position advanced by the Government.

In his reply, the Minister suggested that there was concern with the timing of this Motion and the tasks assigned to the management consultancy firm. He suggested that Government was prepared to monitor the situation, and after a year or two make any necessary adjustments.

I accept the Minister's position. However, my argument is that technically speaking the scheme is not yet in place. I come back to the Motion asking for 'consideration.' It is not too late, too inconvenient or too cumbersome to cause certain mechanisms to be put in place so that we may glean this information. One cannot emphasise too strongly that if all the information is coming from the providers, if all of the statistics come from the providers, it stands to reason that Government is not in any position to argue, to object, to counter, because they will have no recourse to evidence stating otherwise. They will always be in a position of acceptance. Therefore, the position of the Government will be significantly weakened when it wants to regulate, control or reduce.

Legally speaking, their case will be non-existent. If I am going to tell you that something is not so, and I have no evidence to the contrary, my position will soon be eroded.

Also, the lack of data will allow the providers (and I am not casting aspersions on anyone, because these people are professionals) to skew policies in favour of a certain position. Who is going to be the beneficiary? If there is no skewing, it is opened to doubt and question.

I certainly do not buy the argument that the records kept by the Government at this time are not adequate. As I understand it, actuarial science is a very precise and specific science. It takes years and years of study to acquire expertise in that science. But, the fact that there are actuaries available now means that we are not precluded from getting this type of information. We must have kept medical records in our system.

I do not see how we can arrive at reasonable comprehensive policies unless we have some access to what some of the more common ailments are around here—whether hereditary, genetic, or communicable through other means—and use this as a base for arriving at these kinds of rates and policies.

Of course, the Minister said that we are going into uncharted waters. The question is: When are we going to chart these waters? After we get ship-wrecked? Are we going to try to chart the waters to ascertain where the shoals and coral heads are before we sail? If there is no attempt to draw up some kind of chart, however rudimentary, it seems that we run a greater risk of wrecking the ship. If we try to make a chart and it is not entirely accurate, that seems to me to be a better position. At least we will have some idea of the kinds of things we should be looking out for.

I am disappointed that the Government has arrived at such a rigid position where it is not even prepared to consider the things this Motion is seeking. I am left to wonder if it this is a situation where, once a position has been taken, there is absolutely no ability to rethink or consider other alternatives.

Since an amendment was made (and I do not know to what extent discussions went on, but knowing the course of discussions here, that amendment was made in an attempt to make the Motion more palatable to the Government), and the Government still refuses to consider, there is little I can do except express my disappointment with the intransigence of the Government and to state my qualified support for the fact that I think this Motion warrants consideration.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: The Motion before us today is one which finds itself in a very peculiar position. The obvious reasons for that are encompassed in the fact that the Motion has four areas of consideration in its Resolve section.

If we are to stick by the rules rigidly, for any support of this Motion one would have to accept it in its entirety. I think we also have a responsibility here to examine the intent of the Motion, and even if it is not going to be accepted by this Honourable House, speaking for myself, I think that some consideration should be given to the merits of its intent.

The part we hear talked about most is the second Resolve section which speaks to determining what the premium should be for the health insurance package specified by the Law. Of course, that would be determined by whether we change it to a management consultant firm or leave it as an internationally recognised actuarial firm. Assessment by either one would do.

The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town hit the nail on the head when he spoke about Government needing to have information to be able to determine what type of premium should be charged by the provider of health insurance. Here is where I believe the most value should be placed on the Motion itself.

If we are to deal hard and fast, if all of the other areas are not supported, then I guess the Motion will fail. But I contend (and I think this is the right opportunity) that Government should work towards finding itself in a position whereby information at hand can help to determine what a reasonable premium should be when it comes to providing health insurance.

To say that statistics are not available for any type of assessment, even if that is totally true, it must not end there. I think that is where the importance should be placed. Accepting the Government's position that there is no information available and no statistics to collate the correct information to make the assessment, I still believe the position we should be taking is to aim towards that.

If it is ill-timed (because this information is not available) it does not mean that it should just be left. I have not heard the Government at this point in time say that while it finds itself in this position that it should be working towards another position. I think that is the point we need to arrive at.

So, while it is very difficult to deal with the entire Motion and say that everything should be accepted, I think that we should point towards understanding exactly what kind of premium should be charged. This is simply because Government should find itself in a position where checks and balances are provided.

If we examine any other area of Government, we will find that checks and balances are totally necessary. I believe the intent of this part of the Motion is for Government to be able to provide checks and balances in this case. It is not acceptable in my view, that because Government is not in a position to do so now, to simply leave it alone.

As it is obvious that the Motion is not going to see safe passage, I would hope that Government would take the view that it should embark upon getting into that position—regardless of how much time it takes.

While I cannot say that I support the Motion in its entirety, I hope that the Government will find itself able to deal with some of the areas I mentioned.

The Speaker: I think this is an opportune time to take a suspension. Proceedings are suspended for 30 minutes.

Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. Deferred Question No. 121 stands in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MEMBERS/MINISTERS

DEFERRED QUESTION NO. 121

No. 121: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs to provide a breakdown of overtime paid to the staff of Northward Prison for the period June 1996 to 31st July, 1997.

The Speaker: The Honourable Acting First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: The breakdown of overtime paid to the staff at Northward Prison for the period June 1996 to 31st July, 1997, is as follows:

• To maintain manning levels (rest day call in, staff sick)	$ 52,685.74
• Hospital watch	31,707.48
• Other (funeral escort, visit sick or dying relatives Queen's birthday parade, rehearsals, staff meetings, principal officer's security checks)	18,070.72
• Clerical staff	14,068.21
• Late court escort	2,170.09
TOTAL	$118,697.24

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Given that overtime paid to staff at Northward Prison has been a perennial concern of the Public Accounts Committee and the Auditor General, can the Honourable Member state what steps have been taken to ensure that overtime is kept to a minimum?

The Speaker: The Honourable Acting First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: The survey of the Department's manpower was done with the Dependant Territory's Prison Co-ordinator earlier this year to specifically look at how manning levels could be better set in order to continue to reduce the overtime. I would add that overtime in 1995 was approximately $278,000, and just over $146,000 in 1996.

While it is hoped to continue the reduction this year, if the current rates were to continue, the overtime would be in the vicinity of $135,000. I hope that this demonstrates a decreasing trend.

The Speaker: The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Can the Honourable Member expand a little bit on why overtime is paid for the Queen's Birthday Parade rehearsals and staff meetings, and also on that paid to clerical staff?

The Speaker: The Honourable Acting First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: As Members are aware, the Prison normally takes part in the Queen's Birthday Parade and rehearsals are done by all the uniformed branches prior to that parade. In light of the staffing and occupancy levels at the prison, it simply has not been practical to do those rehearsals during the normal course of duty. On some occasions in order to fulfil the number of staff, they have had to do this outside of their working hours.

The overtime in respect of clerical staff simply relates to the various administrative duties, some of which have been exacerbated by the increase in occupancy levels.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: I think he missed overtime being paid for staff meetings. Can he expand on that?

The Speaker: The Honourable Acting First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Again, because of the rostered situation of 24 hour service at the Prison, and the tightness with which the rosters are done, in order to have staff who need to attend present at meetings it is invariable that off-duty staff will have to be brought in for meetings.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Can the Honourable Member give a breakdown on the first item, in particular staff sickness? How much of the $52,000 plus would be allocated for that particular category?

The Speaker: The Honourable Acting First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: I do not have a breakdown for staff sickness, but I will be happy to provide that for the Member in writing.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, the next question is Deferred Question No. 122, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

DEFERRED QUESTION NO. 122

No. 122: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Acting First Official Member if the investigations into the alleged theft of the Prison Officer's Welfare Fund at Northward Prison have concluded.

The Speaker: The Honourable Acting First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: The answer is no. The Royal Cayman Islands' Police are conducting an investigation into the matter and I would not wish to comment further at this time.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 138, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 138

No. 138: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration to state whether the Cayman Islands has received any request, directive, or instruction from the United Kingdom Government to amend any current Laws or to enact any new law obliging the Cayman Islands to share tax information with the G7 Countries and to extend "Dual Criminality" to any such offence.

The Speaker: the Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: The answer is a very simple and short one. The answer is an unequivocal no. However, I think it might be helpful if I expanded a little on that, although I suspect that that answer is the one that gives Members the reassurance they are requesting, and is no doubt what the financial industry in Cayman and its customers would wish to hear as well.

There are three questions on the Business Paper covering this exact same topic. This is the one that has come up on the Order Paper. The answer is the same to all of them. What might be helpful is if I read part of the press release given out by Government a few weeks ago. No doubt this press release was subsequent to these questions being tabled. It does not do any harm to emphasise some of these things, so with your permission, Mr. Speaker, I will read some extracts of a letter from the Foreign and Commonwealth Office in London, dated 29th July, dealing with this very same issue. It reads as follows:

"The United Kingdom is committed to ensuring that financial legislation and regulation in its Caribbean Dependant Territories meets the highest international standards. Good progress has been made on regulation. All the Caribbean Dependant Territories have introduced effective licensing guidelines and gateways to allow full cooperation with international regulators.

"We are equally committed to the introduction of measures against money laundering. The Caymans have already extended their money laundering legislation to cover the proceeds of all serious crimes. The others will follow suit in the near future.

"On the specific question of tax offences, it is relevant that Cayman's legislation, like the United Kingdom's is based on the principle of dual criminality. Since there is no income tax in the Cayman Islands, there is no law criminalising income tax evasion."

There was also a statement issued by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office on 1st August. I will quote from that as well.

“The Foreign and Commonwealth Office has not instructed the Cayman Islands to introduce legislation to assist foreign countries with tax investigations, nor is there a letter from London requesting that Cayman open up its bank records to foreign countries investigating tax evasion cases. As I told you in my letter of 29th July, we have asked all five Caribbean Dependant Territories to introduce legislation to prevent the use of their financial systems by money launderers.

The British Government were pleased that the Cayman Islands were the first to introduce such legislation with the introduction of the Proceeds of Criminal Conduct Law in December 1996. As one of the world’s leading banking and offshore finance centres, it is right that the Caymans should want to meet the highest international standards of financial regulation in order to prevent criminal money from entering its financial system.

The British Government has fully supported the Cayman’s actions to meet this objective and will continue to do so.”

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: The first part of the question asked the Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration to state whether the Cayman Islands had received any request, directive, or instruction from the United Kingdom Government to amend any current Laws. May I ask the Honourable Member if there have been any requests from the United Kingdom to the Cayman Islands Government regarding any amendments to the Proceeds of Criminal Conduct Law?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: I would not have thought I could have given a much more definite and unequivocal answer than ‘No’, which I have already given.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: It is my understanding that the British Government is now negotiating with the other Dependant Territories to enact the same piece of legislation. I wonder if the Honourable Member can confirm if the British Government is insisting that the piece of legislation which comes into effect does have the tax provision?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration .

Hon. Richard H. Coles: I rather gather that the Member is asking me to comment on the British Government’s policy with regard to other Caribbean Dependant Territories. I do not think that I am in a position to do that. I do not know what the British Government’s policy is.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: The substantive question by the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town asked the Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration to state whether the Cayman Islands has received any request... and the answer was no. I wonder if the Honourable Member could state whether the Government, not having received the request, is considering any change in regard to dual criminality, especially in regards to taxation?

The Speaker: Are you asking the Member to give an opinion?

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I am really endeavouring to speak perfect English here, I cannot see why my supplementary is not understood. I am saying that the substantive question asked whether the Cayman Islands has received any request, directive, or instruction from the United Kingdom Government to amend any current Laws, etcetera.

My question, in the absence of having received a request from the United Kingdom, is: Is the Government considering at this point in time any amendment to any of these Laws regarding dual criminality as it would apply to taxation?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: The answer is exactly the same as what I gave to the substantive question. I am assuming that the Member is asking me what Government’s policy is on this particular issue. The answer is ‘No.’ The Cayman Islands Government is not considering any such amendment or change in policy.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Member state if any agreement or protocol in this regard between the G7 Countries would extend to the Cayman Islands?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: It is difficult for me to answer that sort of question without the Member actually telling me what protocol he is talking about. I just do not know how much more positive I can be in terms of an answer I have given already. There is no obligation, certainly as far as I am aware, upon the Cayman Islands to disseminate this information. The policies and protocols of the G7 Countries are exactly that—the protocols of the G7 Countries. Cayman is not one of those.

I can only repeat what I have already said. The answer to the substantive question is 'No.' The answer to the further question of whether or not the Cayman Islands Government has any policy in place to implement this is also no. Certainly, as far as I am aware, and as far as the Cayman Islands Government is aware, there is no obligation upon the Cayman Islands to consider such a policy.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Am I then to understand the Honourable Member is saying that although the Cayman Islands is a dependant territory of Great Britain, and Great Britain is a member of the G7 group of countries, that any agreement and protocol which concerns Great Britain in this and other regards does not extend to the Cayman Islands?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: With due respect to the Member, when I give an answer, it is my answer; I am not having words put into my mouth. What I said was that I am not aware of any protocol that applies to the Cayman Islands on this particular issue.

Of course, there are treaties and conventions that apply to the United Kingdom which are extended to the Cayman Islands on a whole variety of issues. But I am not aware of anything relating to this issue that applies to the Cayman Islands. That is what I said.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Member state if the Government has had any discussions in recent months regarding making any amendments to the Proceeds of Criminal Conduct Law?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: The Cayman Islands Government is in continuous discussion with the United Kingdom Government over the whole issue of its financial industry. As the press release said, the United Kingdom Government supports the actions that the Cayman Islands Government has made, and is making. It is a continuous process. I just do not think I can add to anything else I have already said.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I asked a specific question. I did not ask a generic question. I was not talking about continued negotiations generally. I was speaking about making changes to the Proceeds of Criminal Conduct Law. If possible I would like an answer.

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: As far as I am aware, the Cayman Islands Government has received no request from the United Kingdom Government to make an amendment to the Proceeds of Criminal Conduct Law.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, for purposes of clarity, let me go over it again. I was not speaking about the United Kingdom, I was speaking about the Cayman Islands Government having any discussions. For purposes of clarity, I meant among themselves.

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: As far as I am able to—and I am very conscious of the fact that I am not at liberty to freely discuss or tell anyone the confidential discussions of Executive Council. But all I can repeat is what I said before, that the Cayman Islands Government has no policy, no intention, no wish, to amend the Proceeds of Criminal Conduct Law, or any other Law, to accomplish what this question seeks to ask.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: The substantive question before this House is a very important matter. I am surprised that this question was answered with a single word, 'No.' The supplementary asked by the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town is directly related to the agreement and protocol by the United Kingdom.

Would the Honourable Member undertake to advise this Honourable House if and when he receives any such request as has been discussed here today?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: I am sure that any request from either the British Government or the G7 Countries would not come to my office. It would either come to the Office of His Excellency the Governor, or possibly to one of my colleagues on Executive Council. So, I am not sure that I can give that undertaking.

If any such request did come, the proper course for it is to no doubt be considered by Executive Council. But, subject to that criteria (which is the normal criteria for anything that comes to the Cayman Islands), I see no reason why Members of this House should not be informed. But I do not think I am the person to give that undertaking.

The Speaker: I think we have pretty well exhausted the supplementaries on this question. I will allow one more. (pause) If there are no further supplementaries, the next question is No. 139, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 139

No. 139: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning to list the number of new students registered to attend classes for the September term at the Red Bay Primary School, George Hicks High School and John Gray High School.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: The number of students registered for the September term at Red Bay Primary School, George Hicks High School and John Gray High School are as follows:

Red Bay Primary	George Hicks High	John Gray High
Year 1: 58 (new)	Year 7: 28 (new)	Year 9: 27 (new)
Year 2-6: 5	From Primary: 234	From G. Hicks: 272
	Year 8 & 9: 53 (new)	Year 11 & 12: 1
Total: 63	Total: 315	Total: 300

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Of the 58 new students going into year 1 at the Red Bay Primary School, can the Honourable Minister state how many classes they are divided into?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: They are divided into two classes. There is one teacher and one aide in each class.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister state if in the Red Bay Primary School in years 2-6 there are any years with more than two classes?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: While my memory is good, there is no way in the world I can remember how many classes are in each school. I can get that for the Honourable Member. We are dealing with approximately 50 classes between the 18 schools.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: The Minister always carries his entourage along with him, I would have thought he would be able to answer that. I am sorry if it was a bit too much.

With regard to the Red Bay Primary School, can the Honourable Minister state if any new students applying were rejected this year?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: If they were coming in through years 2 through 6 they were not accepted. I do have this information, and I am always happy to oblige the Honourable Member. I now have that from my 'entourage.' In year 2 there are three classes, and in year 3 there are three classes. The balance have two classes only.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Let me thank the Minister for giving the answer to that. The Minister stated that if there were applications for students to be admitted for years 2 through 6 they were rejected. Can the Honourable Minister state if any applications for students going into year 1 were refused?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: While I do not have a certain answer, I understand that if they were late they may have been refused. But I would like to point out that on the one hand the Opposition slaps me for having too many children in a class, and now we have the Opposition imputing that I should have more. They cannot have their cake and eat it too.

The classes are just about full throughout. I have tried to keep the student per teacher ratio as low as I can, but on the other hand if the class is large we try to put in one teacher with an aide. I have the other overriding duty to accept Caymanian students into the classes. We balance this as best we can.

I should point out that the classrooms in the new schools are large enough to accommodate larger classes. Having the teacher plus an aide really does balance out to what we would have in a smaller class of, say, 25 or so.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: If the Honourable Minister would listen to the slamming he is talking about he would know that any slamming comes because of the lack of space and the lack of number of teachers—not from number of students!

With regard to the Red Bay Primary School, the Minister has stated that there were two years with three classes, and I am assuming that the other years have two classes. Can the Honourable Minister state that if the exact number of existing classes prevail, by the time years 2 and 3 get up to years 5 and 6 (with the same numbers coming into the school prevail) there will be enough space or enough classrooms to hold all of the students?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I think the Honourable Member is asking me to give an opinion that perhaps he should ask the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, who seems to have all of the answers in his crystal ball. I really do not know, sir. It depends upon how many children.

I understand what the Member is asking, but I would not like to speculate on how many students would be in there next year, nor how we can perhaps deal with different classes. We are looking at another school, both for West Bay and George Town, if it becomes necessary.

All I will say to him is that I will endeavour to ensure that whatever is done is in the best interest of the students within the best of my ability.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Needless to say, while we make light of certain things sometimes, this is a serious issue.

I wonder if the Honourable Minister could give an undertaking with regard to the primary level students, especially in the district of George Town—and even if he answers that this is being done, I would still ask for this undertaking. . . I think we are looking at projections. I think it is fair comment to say that the number of students will not decrease, but, based on the track record, will increase. I am asking the Honourable Minister to ensure that whatever capital investment has to be made for primary education is done. He mentioned a school for George Town and West Bay—I am asking him to give an undertaking to ensure that a crisis does not occur before anything is done.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I am happy to give that undertaking. I always endeavour to do so, with the exception of the Lighthouse School where the Opposition created the chaos existing among the primary levels there.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, trust me, that is a matter for debate. If the Minister wants to debate that right now, and you allow it, I will be happy to.

Going on to the George Hicks High School, can the Honourable Minister state if the 53 new students are all being transferred from private schools?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I do not have that answer, but I can get it for the Honourable Member. Obviously some would be from private schools and some from Government. The larger amount would be from Government. Some would be from private and some would be new students coming to the island registering for the first time. I do not have those numbers.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Would the Minister be prepared to provide that answer in writing?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Yes, I will give it in writing.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: The Minister mentioned that there were plans for a new primary school for West Bay and George Town. Can the Honourable Minister give us a status report on the plans for the new primary school for West Bay?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: We are now looking into getting the property, and there is some money in the Budget for the one in West Bay which is presently needed more. That school is very large. I hope that we can come to some agreement on the property. We need sufficient property to build a nice school with a nice play field for sports, because sports is a very important part of a child's life. I will then move on as quickly as possible with it. The property has been looked at, and I hope to get together with the Members for West Bay shortly after this Legislative Assembly meeting.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister state if the new figure of 315 students for George Hicks High School this year is more, or less, than the figure last year?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I only managed to bring three of my computers here. That is in the fifth and sixth one which I did not bring. I will have to get that information and send it back.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, the next question is No. 140, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 140

No. 140: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development if there are any plans to table the Medium Term Financial Strategy Plan before the next Budget Meeting of the Legislative Assembly.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The Medium Term Financial Strategy has been prepared and is currently under review by Executive Council. It is unlikely that the review will be completed in time to table the document during this Meeting which, in turn, means that the earliest time this could now be done is during the Budget Meeting.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 23(7)&(8)

The Speaker: Before we take the supplementaries, I will entertain a motion to suspend Standing Orders to enable Question Time to continue beyond 11 o'clock.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I beg to move that we suspend Standing Order 23 (7) and (8) to enable Question Time to continue.

The Speaker: Do we have a seconder?

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I second the Motion.

The Speaker: The question is that Standing Order 23 (7) and (8) be suspended to enable Question Time to continue. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED. STANDING ORDER 23(7) AND (8) SUSPENDED TO ENABLE QUESTION TIME TO CONTINUE.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Member state when, during his term as Third Official Member, a Medium Term Financial Strategy was prepared, how many times it has been reviewed since then, and if any one of these has ever been tabled?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Before I respond to that question, I would like to ask if the Member would allow me to respond to him in writing?

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Perhaps for the benefit of Members who have never seen anything of this Medium Term Financial Strategy, which seems to be an intangible item, the Honourable Third Official Member could explain exactly what the Medium Term Financial Strategy is.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The Member asking that question is aware that the Medium Term Financial Strategy is not an intangible item. In fact, at the last meeting of Finance Committee the question was raised as to what progress had been made on the Medium Term Financial Strategy. We went into great detail on it. I would not like to rehash those details at this time.

Essentially, if we were to think in terms of the main objectives of the Medium Term Financial Strategy, they could be considered as achieving a balanced budget through a combination of expenditure control and revenue enhancement measures; maintaining relatively low debt service payments (this is on the national debt); building up the General Reserves of the Government.

The Medium Term Financial Strategy should not be taken in isolation but should be looked at in relation to the Public Sector Investment Programme. If we think in terms of those documents being related, I think it could be easily said that the Medium Term Financial Strategy and the Public Sector Investment Programme document are essentially reference documents outlining the Government's development objectives and the possible capital projects and financial policies that could be employed to meet these objectives over a defined period of time.

When we went into the detailed discussion on this, it was pointed out that this document was being developed over a three year period of time. It will be a rolling plan. This is what has been put forward for the Government's consideration. We have been looking at this, and this House has been informed that while such a document has not been tabled, we have in effect been using segments of it. In fact we have been culling one-year sections from it. This has really been presented by way of the economic section of the Budget. When this document is presented it will look at the year 1997, and the expectations for 1998 and 1999.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: The Member mentioned the Public Sector Investment Programme. I did hear the tie-in between that and the Medium Term Financial Strategy. If he can isolate the Public Sector Investment Programme for a minute, I would ask whether that only involves Government's capital programmes, or does it involve anything else?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: It is restricted to the capital programmes of Government, not only looking at central Government, but how the capital programmes of the Statutory Authorities would impact upon the Government as a whole.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, the next question is No. 141, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 141

No. 141: Mr. Linford A. Pierson asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development if Government is giving any consideration to reducing import duties on goods used in the construction of buildings in the eastern districts as an incentive to developers to target development in those areas.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The Government has not considered it necessary to date to provide for such import duty reduction. The rationale is that given the state of full employment in Grand Cayman, and labour mobility between the districts, there seems to be little economic justification for such concessions at this time. In this context, any development incentives which are not carefully thought out could generate spin-off effects which may not cause any significant economic benefits to accrue to the country as a whole.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I am somewhat amazed by the answer to this question, considering the potential benefit that could accrue to the eastern districts and to the Cayman Islands as a whole merely by the reduction of traffic congestion from East End to George Town, and in George Town and the West Bay Road.

Would the Honourable Member state that after hearing these comments he would now agree that some consideration should be given to reducing the import duties so that more development could be done in the eastern districts?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I am cognisant of the ideas advanced by the Member. I will agree in part, if we look specifically at the activities within the districts. But if we take the Cayman Islands as a whole, we could look in terms of certain unfavourable development taking place. We have a defined labour market at this time providing labour for the various sectors of the economy. For example, if a person from East End who is filling a job in George Town were kept in East End (given the fact that the transportation of this person from East End to George Town adds to the traffic congestion) and prevented from coming into George Town because of a new job created in East End, how would the vacancy in George Town be filled?

What would happen is that someone will have to be brought in from outside. The Cayman Islands infrastructure has a given carrying capacity. We have to bear in mind that everybody who comes into the community adds a given level of stress or demand against it—not only in terms of additional cars on the road, but we are talking about the likelihood of children being put in the schools, the medical services and one more individual in the Cayman Islands. I am saying that we have to balance this very carefully.

It is not a question that Government should not sit down and look at the overall picture in terms of the advantages and disadvantages of creating opportunities in other districts. We have to think in terms of whether it is exceptionally onerous for someone to drive from North Side or East End, to George Town or West Bay.

I cannot really sit here this morning and say that it has been researched and looked at carefully. It is a matter we will have to consider against the overall advantages and disadvantages.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Perhaps the Honourable Member did not also take into the equation the fact that if job opportunities were opened up in East End and the eastern districts, that those jobs could be filled with persons from within those areas, and would not necessarily take someone from George Town. Can the Honourable Member state if he has given consideration to this type of diversification?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: As I said earlier, the Member has advanced a very good suggestion. I think we will have to look at everything being relative. It is true that if a development takes place in East End, it is likely that that development would not necessarily be in George Town whereby having to attract the labour that would otherwise be coming from East End. But this matter needs to be looked at very carefully because it seems that one cannot be sure in terms of whether import duty reduction would cause a hotel that would otherwise be built in George Town to move into East End.

It is not to say that this consideration is not being given at this time, because we have one major hotel development in East End that has benefited from import duty reduction under the concession provision specifically allowed. When these projects are put forward to the Government for consideration, they are looked at very carefully.

I am not saying that the Member's suggestion does not have any merit, but up to this point in time in an economy with full employment and with the small size of Grand Cayman, I think this has lent itself to certain advantages whereby mobility from one district to another has not been seen as exceptionally onerous. If it is a question of alleviation of traffic congestion, I know that is a significant factor. But when weighed against the other benefits, if the disadvantages are seen as outweighing the advantages, this is when it is necessary for us to sit down and look very carefully in terms of what policy decision should be taken.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Is the Honourable Member in a position to make an assessment, based on this consideration, on the first time home buyer in these areas with respect to the impact and feasibility of this as it would relate to the Budget?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I am not in a position to give a definitive response at this time, but I should say that regarding the concessions that have been granted (not necessarily with the import duty reduction because at the last Budget what was considered was the waiving of stamp duty), the revenue that would otherwise be lost from the waiving of stamp duty will be offset from the increase in import duty because of the fact that more individuals will be building homes. The loss of revenue is being compensated for in another area—by the revenue the added import duty will be contributing to.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: I am a little bit confused here this morning by the reply to this question. I would like to ask the Honourable Third Official Member, should the Government consider a reduction in import duty for a development in the eastern districts? Am I to assume that this will be refused on the grounds of labour mobility and economic justification for such concession?

Have we looked at the benefits that will be derived, particularly for mothers in the hospitality field being able to work in their own districts and spend more time with their families? Can you just give me an answer as to whether these applications for the eastern districts for reduction would at least be considered by Government?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The Member saying she is confused, I would say is an inappropriate choice of words. The answer makes it specifically clear in terms of the consideration, looking at the advantages and disadvantages. We are talking about major developments. Working mothers that are undertaking major developments in terms of the concessions being sought here, it would seem to me that they would not have the problems the Member envisages would arise.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I will say this a little bit slower because tempers seem to be flaring here and we want to calm the atmosphere for other things to come.

In the absence of the necessary research, and thus putting the Honourable Member in a position where he is unable to give an informed opinion in this matter, I wonder if the Honourable Third Official Member would give the undertaking that he will seriously look into this matter.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: If it seems tempers have been flaring on this side, I will apologise to this Honourable House. It is a response, if we were to think in terms of what was suggested by the Honourable lady Member, and what is being suggested by the Third Elected Member for George Town, that is quite reasonable. But I would not also regard that as not providing an informed response.

What I will agree to, is to carry out the necessary research and also seek the Government's views as to whether such consideration can be given. The point I am making is that there is always a balancing factor. It is not a question of putting a project in a specific location in order to alleviate traffic congestion only. We have to look in terms of having a defined labour market. Knowing that we have full employment at this time. . . and we have often heard questions raised in this House in terms of the number of persons being brought in to fill various positions.

A person brought into George Town, or a person who comes from one of the outer districts to George Town, is coming to fill a specific position. If that person is not available it means that other sources of labour will have to be examined. These are the factors that have to be taken together to look at the advantages and disadvantages in order to come to the right conclusion as to whether import duty reduction should be allowed. While looking at the benefits, let us look at the disadvantages as well.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, the next question is No. 142, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 142

No. 142: Mr. Linford A. Pierson asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation to provide a progress report on the new Hospital.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony Eden: The construction phase of the new Health Services Complex is on schedule and is now approximately 50 per cent complete. All seven of the new structures are under construction and two have been fully completed and handed over to the Ministry. If there are no unforeseen delays such as excessively bad weather or difficult foundation conditions, it is anticipated that the five remaining buildings will be finished by late summer of 1998.

The two buildings which have been handed over will accommodate the following departments: Intensive Care Unit, Physiotherapy, Mental Health Clinic, Morgue, Hyperbaric Chamber and the Forensic Laboratory. These buildings are being prepared for occupancy by installing medical equipment and furnishings. Move in for some of the departments is planned for early to mid September.

A temporary location was prepared for the Casualty Unit and Medical Records so that the final building on the construction site could be started. The move to the temporary facilities occurred in mid July and both units are functioning well.

In the not-too-distant future, we will be organising a tour of the new facility and I will be extending a warm invitation to you and the other Members of this Honourable House to join us in seeing just how much progress has been made since the beginning of the project and even since the last visit we had a few months ago.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I thank the Honourable Member for his comprehensive answer. This should serve as an example to some of his colleagues. What is the estimated cost of the new hospital on completion, and is he able to say how this compares with the original estimated cost?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony Eden: As the Honourable House probably remembers, in a question during the last meeting of the Legislative Assembly we increased the contingency from 2% to the realistic standard in the construction industry of 10%. That is the only difference. We did this to cover the inflation, and so on.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: For clarity, is the Honourable Minister saying that other than that there will be no other costs involved?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony Eden: Not to the best of my knowledge at this time.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, the next question is No. 143, standing in the name of Third Elected Member for West Bay.

QUESTION NO. 143

No. 143: Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr asked the Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration what is the enrolment at the Cayman Islands Law School; and (b) to provide a breakdown of students by nationality.

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: The answer to (a): The Law School is currently on summer vacation and the following figures are, of necessity, approximate only. It is anticipated that when classes recommence in early October the total enrolment in all programmes will be approximately 79 students.

(b) Student enrolment, by nationality, is expected to be as follows:

Caymanian	32
Married to Caymanian	4
Jamaican	20
Canadian	7
American	8
British	8
Total:	79

Breakdown by programme of study is expected to be as follows:

Degree:
Caymanian	17
Married to Caymanian	2
Jamaican	18
Canadian	7

American	7
Total:	57

Diploma in Legal Studies:

Caymanian	12
Married to Caymanian	2
Jamaican	2
American	1
Total:	19

Registration as a general student:

Caymanian	3
Total:	79

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: From the information provided it appears that 54% of the enrolment is non-Caymanian—20 Jamaican, seven Canadian, eight American and eight British. Can the Honourable Member state if these are residents who are attending the Law School, or are they students coming from the outside to attend the Law School here in the Cayman Islands?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: I assume the Member is asking if these students were resident in Cayman before they applied to join the Law School. I understand the question, but I do not know the answer. Whether they were resident here before applying or whether they applied from overseas and are coming to Cayman for the purpose of study, I suspect it is a bit of both. Some were resident here, and some are coming specifically to take up studies.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Can the Honourable Member state what the tuition is for foreign students as compared to Caymanians to attend the Cayman Islands Law School?

The Speaker: I think we are straying outside the scope of the substantive question. If the Member has the answer, he may answer it.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: I think I know the answer, but I am not certain that I am going to give the correct figures. I would rather not risk giving incorrect figures. I can say that the fees were increased substantially for overseas students in the last Budget. Overseas students pay considerably more than local Caymanian students. A policy with which I whole heartedly agree. But that is the situation.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: In light of the large number of foreign students enrolled, can the Honourable Member state what provisions are in place, in addition to the differential in fees, to ensure that suitably qualified Caymanians who apply are guaranteed a place in the school?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Caymanian applicants who apply and meet the academic requirements are always given preference. The available places are first allocated to all Caymanian applicants and it is only if there are any excess places that they are offered to overseas students.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Is the Honourable Member in a position to say whether foreign graduates return to their country of origin upon graduation, or do they remain in the Cayman Islands competing for employment with and among Caymanian graduates?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: I am not sure if I can give a comprehensive answer to that because that is a very large question. I can say that overseas students who complete their studies here in Cayman are not permitted to take the Professional Practice Course and thereby be admitted as attorneys in Cayman. So there is no possibility of them qualifying as attorneys at the Law School, thereby staying in Cayman and taking jobs from Caymanian attorneys. That is not allowed.

To be fair to those students, they are told that unequivocally when they first apply to come to the Law School. So that does not happen. As for whether any of the students who obtain an Honors degree in Law who wish to stay in Cayman to follow employment, I really cannot answer that question.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Member state whether the cost of tuition is straight across the board, or is it different for Caymanians?

The Speaker: That question was just answered.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Sorry, I was out of the Chamber.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: It was my understanding that in order to attend the Cayman Islands Law School you had to be articled to a specific law firm or Government Legal Department. I wonder if he can confirm if that policy has changed?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: I think the Member is referring to the Professional Practice Course. The LL.B. Honors Degree awarded by the Law School can be used, and is very often used as the first step in the path to becoming a qualified attorney. But many students find a law degree a very helpful academic qualification to have, even though they have no intention of becoming a qualified lawyer, or practising law. That is purely an academic qualification.

For Caymanian students who wish to qualify as lawyers and who wish to do the Professional Practice Course at the Law School, then, yes, there is a requirement for a period of articles. Sometimes that is in the Legal Department.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, the next question is No. 144, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for West Bay.

QUESTION NO. 144

No. 144: Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr asked the Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration if any Caymanian students have been denied admission to the Cayman Islands Law School and, if so, why.

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: The minimum entrance requirements for attending both the degree and diploma programmes at the Law School are prescribed by Liverpool University. The criteria for admission is currently two Advanced Level passes in addition to a prescribed combination of GCSE passes. Qualifications deemed to be equivalent, such as an Associates Degree, are also a recognised basis of admission. Students who successfully complete the University of Liverpool's Mature Students' Entrance Examination also qualify for admission.

Any student who fails to meet this entrance standard is not qualified to enter either of the tertiary educational programmes offered by the Law School. Qualified Caymanians are always given preference over other applicants. Moreover, due to the strong competition for places, the Law School generally applies stricter entrance criteria in the admission of overseas students.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: The answer given really does not answer the question. The question was: Have any Caymanian students been denied admission to the Cayman Islands Law School and, if so, why?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: I would have thought that the answer followed what I read out. If a student, Caymanian or otherwise, does not meet the academic qualification standards (which I just read out), they would not be admitted to the Law School.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: I wonder if the Honourable Member can say if he is specifically aware of any student who had the qualifications but was denied admission to the Cayman Islands Law School?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: I most certainly do not. If the Member is aware of any Caymanian student who fulfils those academic standards and was (or is) being denied admission to the Cayman Islands Law School, I would be very grateful if he would bring that to my attention.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: I wonder if the Honourable Member can give us an undertaking to inquire as to whether or not this is a fact and, if so, provide that information to us in writing?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: I think I have offered to hear of any instance the Member knows of. Not only would I be prepared to listen to it, but I will be very grateful if he will tell me. I am not sure how I can undertake an inquiry into something that I understand does not happen. If my understanding is incorrect in any way, I very much want to know about it. But I think I need to know if there is a specific instance.

If he wishes to tell me that in confidence, of course I will be pleased to respect that.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: It is my understanding that qualified Caymanian students were denied admission to the Cayman Islands Law School. I got the impression that it was based on space availability. Can the Honourable Member state if the Cayman Islands Law School has additional capacity at this stage for admissions?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: There are normally applications for space at the Law School far in excess of the number of spaces available. That is because there are a number of applications from potential overseas students. As I have already said, preference is given to Caymanians who wish to come to the Law School. It is only when those applications have been satisfied that we look to the overseas applicants.

I cannot say here and now exactly what the full capacity of the Law School is, but the 79 students read out in the substantive answer must be very close to that capacity. If the Member can identify a Caymanian student who has been wrongly refused admission, I certainly give an undertaking that I will ensure that the Law School will do everything in its power to admit him/her.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Initially, the reason for the establishment of the Cayman Islands Law School, was to enable local Caymanians the opportunity to pursue a recognised degree in law here in the Cayman Islands. It appears that policy has changed in regard to admissions. I wonder if the school is at capacity now (79), what is going to happen to additional Caymanian students who have an interest in attending the Law School? Are we going to turn some of the non-Caymanians who are already enrolled away? How are we going to accommodate the additional demand?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: The policy of the Law School and the Government has not changed at all. The primary purpose of the Cayman Islands Law School is to enable Caymanians to receive an education in Law and to obtain an LL.B. Honors Degree, and, if they wish, to go on and be admitted as Cayman Islands attorneys. That has always been the primary purpose of the Law School, and will continue to be so. I may be so bold as to say that if that is not the purpose of the Law School, why on earth do we have a Law School in the Cayman Islands? That must be the sole purpose of it.

The courses are advertised to enable applicants to apply to the Law School. Of course, we are coming up to the start of an academic year in October, so you would expect the Law School to have filled its places. Each year students move on, hopefully successfully, from the Law School, freeing up space for other students who wish to apply. That same criteria would apply—that Caymanians who apply are considered first.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Can the Honourable Member state if he is aware of any Caymanian either within his department or the judiciary who has already received a diploma and is yet being refused permission to enter the Law School?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: I am not sure I quite understand that question, Mr. Speaker. I think she is asking about a student who already has a diploma. Do they wish to come back to the Law School again? I do not understand what the lady Member is asking.

Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Is the Honourable Member cognisant of any persons now employed in the Legal Department or the Judiciary who have already met the requirements of the Law School, in that they have diplomas, but have been denied permission for the past three years to go to the Law School?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: If they meet the academic requirements (and I am assuming that she is saying that they do meet those requirements by whatever previous qualification they have), they would get the same priority I talked about. Before any overseas student would be considered they would have priority for the space available.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Following up on the question asked by the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, the space might be available, but in order to attend any classes the civil servant needs the approval of the Head of the Department. Is that not necessary in order to attend?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: I understand the question. We are not talking about the policy of the Law School, or if the Law School will admit them, but whether their employer will allow them to attend. I think that is straying rather beyond what I am qualified to give an answer on. I do not know the answer to that. There are many issues a student has to deal with before going to college. If they are employed, getting their employer's permission is one of them. It would not be right for me to comment on that. I am not sure that I am the correct officer to ask.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: To clarify the question just asked of the Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration, I think the individuals referred to were employed in the Legal Department. If being the case, perhaps the Member can answer the question.

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Mr. Speaker, I have not been asked by any member of the Legal Department for permission to attend the Law School. I am not aware of it being requested, and it follows that I am certainly not aware of it being refused.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, the next question is No. 145 standing in the name of the Member for North Side.

QUESTION NO. 145

No. 145: Mrs. Edna M. Moyle asked the Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration when the recommendations contained in the Second and Final Report of the Select Committee established in 1993 to review the Penal Code, and laid on the Table of this Honourable House on 1st December, 1994, will be implemented.

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: The recommendations of the Select Committee are being incorporated into a complete redrafting of the Penal Code. This has been a complex and lengthy project. I have not actually given a date here, but I can say that every effort is going to be made to have this redrafting completed by the end of this year.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Can the Honourable Member state if any specific drafting personnel are in place for drafting of legislation or amending recommended by this Honourable House.

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Yes. This project is being undertaken by a Legislative Counsel in conjunction with an experienced Crown Counsel. It is a joint project.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Can the Honourable Member state, since this report was laid on the Table of this Honourable House almost three years ago, if any priority whatsoever is given to drafting and recommendations made by this Honourable House?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Priority is always given to drafting requirements from this House. Priorities, of course, change as time goes by, but this is a matter which has been given priority right from the start, and is still being given that priority. I can understand that the lady Member feels that a long time has elapsed. Indeed, it has. But, this particular redrafting of the Penal Code is a very complex matter, one in which a number of factors have to be looked at. A considerable amount of legislation has to be gone through in order to accomplish this particular task—not just the Penal Code, but many other pieces of legislation—to make sure that it is right. We want to make sure that it is right.

It has made good progress. It is at a fairly advanced stage now and I am doing my best to ensure that we have it completed by the end of this year.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Can the Honourable Member confirm, since he stated that priority is always given, but that priorities change from time to time, if this is one example where priorities changed?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: I am not sure that would be a fair assessment. When I say that priorities change, of course as this House well knows, matters come along which particular departments are asked to put at the top of the list. Legislative Drafting is not different from any other department. So, to that extent, priorities always change. But, I would not say that what the lady Member said is a fair comment.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, that concludes Question Time for this morning. We shall suspend proceedings for 15 minutes.

"Mr. Speaker, this statement would be incomplete if I did not mention the splendid performance of Mr. Charles Whittaker who created history on June 14, 1997, in the Cayman Islands when he won the vacant Inter-Continental W.B.A., world title by unanimous points decision. This was an excellent performance, and I would like to use this fo-

The Speaker: Other Business, Private Member's Motion No. 4/97. Continuation of debate thereon. The Third Elected Member for George Town.

OTHER BUSINESS

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 4/97 ACTUARIAL STUDY FOR THE ESTABLISHMENT OF A PUBLIC OWNED HEALTH INSURANCE CORPORATION

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I rise to make my contribution to Private Member's Motion No. 4/97, entitled Actuarial Study for the Establishment of a Public Owned Health Insurance Corporation. In doing so, I also recognise the amendment that was made to this Motion.

The preamble to the Motion states:

"WHEREAS the Government of the Cayman Islands has passed legislation requiring all persons to have health insurance;

"BE IT NOW THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT the Government consider contracting the services of a management consultant firm [it originally read 'an internationally recognised actuarial firm' but has now been amended to read 'management consultant firm'] to:

- "1. investigate the feasibility of the Government establishing a public owned corporation to provide health insurance;
- "2. determine what the premium should be for the health insurance package specified by the Law;
- "3. recommend the organisational and managerial structure for the public health insurance corporation;

"AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED THAT such reports, as produced by the management firm, be laid on the Table of this Honourable House with the decision of the Government on the matter."

This was moved by the Fourth Elected Member for George Town, Dr. Frank McField, and seconded by the Third Elected Member for West Bay, Mr. John Jefferson, Jr. I wish to congratulate the Mover and Seconder of this Motion. Although there are certain areas of the Motion that I cannot specifically support, the overall merit of the Motion is without question.

Before going into the details of my contribution, I must mention that it took me by surprise to see the headline in today's paper which stated, "Government Rejects Motion on lack of data." A Motion is not rejected in this House until the question is put. It seems that the Caymanian Compass was completely out of order to have written an article such as this. It was premature. It shows a total lack of respect for Members who have not yet spoken on this Motion. I think they assumed much, before even half of the Members of this House had spoken, to state that it had been rejected. I know that it may not have been the intention to show disrespect for the Members who had not yet spoken, but that is certainly the way it comes across. My advice would be that in the future more respect be shown for the Honourable Members of this House.

As mentioned earlier, the Resolve section of this Motion asks for Government to investigate the feasibility of the Government establishing a public owned corporation to provide health insurance. There are certain sections I am unable to support, and I will give my reasons. This is one such area, mainly because I am of the philosophy that our Government should be seeking to streamline the public service, thus reducing the size of Government, concentrating more on the reinvention side by providing policies under which service providers operate.

That is not to say that an investigation or feasibility study should not be undertaken as asked for in this Motion. I feel that there is a justification for a feasibility study as requested by this Motion to determine what the premium should be for the health insurance package specified by the Law. In saying this, I also recognise that consideration must be given for the type of liability that could possibly arise if an insurance company is set up in these islands, by Government or otherwise, and it lacks the proper funding. That particular point must be taken into consideration.

That said, I am also aware that back during the 1988-1992 Government a report was commissioned called the Raynor Report. That report was along the same lines, determining a reasonable premium, even though I understand there were certain qualifications to that report because of the lack of necessary data. I would have thought that would have formed a proper basis for further study, and for the Government Bench to take the attitude that there is insufficient data—thus the rejection of this Motion—is to me, not sufficient. That is not a good enough reason.

I feel that Government should seriously consider conducting a feasibility study to determine what the premium for the health insurance package should be. I can hardly see any Elected Member, be he a Member of the Backbench or of Executive Council not supporting that section of the Motion if he has the interest of the people of this country at heart.

The Health Insurance Legislation was passed on 19th June, 1997. The Business Paper states that the Health Insurance Regulations will be tabled during this meeting of the House. Even though I will not be debating this, I would like to make reference to it. One of the sections, I believe it is section 6, states, “Each approved provider shall prior to its first effecting any standard health insurance contracts notify the Authority of its standard premium.” My question is, Why should an approved provider notify the Authority of the standard premium if that Authority has no idea whether the premium is reasonable or not? Or has conducted no study to determine what level of premium should be charged?

We have the Government putting into regulations a condition they are unable to fulfil. It seems that they are reluctant to even look into it. How can they say that they are going to regulate insurance in the Cayman Islands if they are not prepared to do the necessary studies to determine what level of insurance premium should be charged? How can any Member of this Honourable House say that he is representing the interests of the people of these islands while at the same time stating that he is reluctant to check into the level of insurance premium they will be forced to pay?

We cannot talk out of both sides of our mouths. If we are representing the interests of our people, we have to do it with honesty and sincerity. It will be interesting to see what Member will reject that duty he has to his constituents.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Only if we call for a division!

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, a division should be called at the end of the day, and I am hoping that the Honourable Members on both sides of this House will forget about party affiliation or partisan politics and consider the interests of the people of paramount importance. It is their duty as representatives to ensure that they do all within their power to see that their constituents are protected.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Preach, brother, preach! You are telling the truth.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: What I also find somewhat strange is that the Fourth Elected Member for George Town, in his efforts to have this Motion passed, amended it. The Motion would have had a much more significant effect if it had been presented and moved in its original form.

The original Motion read: “BE IT NOW THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT the Government consider contracting the services of an internationally recognised actuarial firm.” Mr. Speaker, a management consultant firm is not qualified to do the work that an actuarial firm would. But in the Mover’s cooperation and efforts to try to have the Motion passed, he agreed to reduce it down. He got the impression that if he changed the wording of the Motion it would be accepted by the Government Bench.

How could the Government Bench agree for the Mover to amend this Motion and then turn around and reject it? I have never seen this done before. It is totally incorrect. It should not have happened. When a Member of Executive Council—and I have sat on that side of the House, Mr. Speaker, as a Member of Executive Council—tells a Backbencher that if he is prepared to amend a Motion in accordance with the wishes of the Member of Executive Council, the impression is given that the Member of Executive Council is accepting that Motion. I say this with reluctance because I think the world knows that I have the very highest regard for the Honourable Minister. But I am surprised that after the Mover of the Motion agreed to amend it by reducing its effectiveness, that even at that stage it has been rejected.

The excuse given is that we do not have sufficient data. At what stage are we going to have sufficient data? Why are we not prepared to accept this Motion and start working on obtaining and collating the necessary data?

In Moving this Motion, the Fourth Elected Member for George Town admitted that getting the necessary information is not going to be an easy job. But something should be done, a start needs to be made. In the same way that every department of Government is bringing in experts to advise them, the same sort of service should be provided to accommodate this Motion. How is Government going to regulate the Health Insurance if they do not have proper guidelines? This cannot be emphasised enough. When will they be making an effort to put these guidelines in place?

The people of the Cayman Islands need to take their representatives to task and hold them accountable on a Motion of this importance—not only the Backbenchers, but Ministers of Executive Council alike. The year 2000 may seem like it is a long way off, but we are looking at just a little over two years. I hope that the people will make a note of those Members who are interested in their welfare.

It is not too late for Honourable Members to change their minds. We are not saying that this Motion can be dealt with overnight. The Mover and Seconder are not asking for miracles, they are asking the Government to consider the merits of the Motion and consider a study to determine whether certain things can be done or not. How can Government say 'No', when it has not even made an attempt to look into what the Motion is calling for? Government should have accepted this Motion.

I too had some reservations, as I mentioned earlier. But with sufficient thought to what the Motion was seeking to obtain, I am now able to support the Motion with the qualifications I have made. Such a report as I have called for would prove an invaluable tool which would ensure that our people are charged reasonable premiums.

Before winding up on this, I wish to clarify that my reservations on this Motion are based primarily on sections 1 and 3. I am of the view that Government in the process of its reinvention and re-engineering should be concentrating now on providing appropriate policies whereby services can operate; and not necessarily getting involved in providing those services. If this Motion is seriously considered by Government, it can still accomplish those aims and objectives.

I wish to extend to each Honourable Member of this House, especially the Elected Members, the invitation to once again consider the importance of this Motion and what it calls for.

I support this Motion.

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2. 59 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Debate continues on Private Member's Motion No. 4/97.

The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: I believe that every Member of this House would say (and has said) that the Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation has, in his quiet way, moved forward and done more for health in this country than any other Minister, including me who had responsibility for Health for some eight years. He has always put forth his views in a firm, fair and honest way, and for the first time the people of this country are at a stage where health insurance will be a reality.

Past Governments have tried and not succeeded. The time comes when a Minister, and Members of this House, must take their decisions on the principle of what is good for the people of the country, and move forward. Today we are at a stage where the Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation has finally succeeded in moving forward and is on the verge of bringing in a health insurance scheme that will benefit everyone in this country.

I do not believe that there is anyone in this House who would not be prepared to say that we must move forward with health insurance now. People without health insurance are crying out for the scheme to become mandatory where they will be entitled to the medical benefits due anyone within this (or any) country. With that background in mind we have to look at the importance of moving forward now with what is definitely of benefit to the country, and to get on with the health insurance at this stage.

I believe that the Mover and Seconder of this Motion, and those who have supported it, obviously are genuine in their approach. I have some sympathy with what the Motion is trying to achieve. I hope that when we look at the two parts of this Motion... because one part is for Government to look at establishing a public-owned corporation to provide health insurance, and the organisational and managerial structure for the public health insurance corporation; the other is that we should appoint this actuarial firm to determine what the premium should be for health insurance package specified by the Law. There seems to be some controversy around this second part.

The question of what premium is fair or not fair, can only be established when there are proper statistics in place upon which to determine it. Very shortly, regulations will be brought into this Honourable House providing the basis upon which those statistics can be gathered. In a couple of years' time, they will be in place. I do not feel holding this up at this stage and bringing in a actuary, whether international or local. . . considering the fact that the Insurance Committee had access to a lot of expertise in this country very capable of looking at premiums and coming to a conclusion as to what should be fair and reasonable.

The Third Elected Member for George Town spoke about the 1988-1992 Actuarial Report. So, there is a Government Report that has looked at this. But, what the Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation has pointed out is that there is not sufficient statistics now. The proof of the pudding lies in the fact that when the 1988-1992 Government commissioned this, the actuary basically told them the same thing. So, if anyone should be convinced that information in the local market on health statistics has to be received, it should be the Third Elected Member for George Town who was a Member of the 1988-1992 Government.

Based on the actuarial report of the 1988-1992 Government, they determined that the premium should be $45. If one was over 65 years of age, it should be $178. The Honourable Minister is helping the public because the premium now being looked at is well under this figure. With the 1988-1992 Government, with their many studies, their actuarial study in this case, had produced figures that would have hurt the public. What the public really wants from us is, first, health insurance; and, second, a reasonable premium. The Minister for Health is doing that.

The question of what was going to happen to the older people of this country was asked by one Member. The older people, under the actuarial report, were going to pay $178, now they will pay $35. For the life of me, I cannot understand how delaying things for an actuarial report is going to help the people of this country. We know what the premium is. What the report clearly brought out (and I think this is very important) was that what had to happen was a period during which they would, and I quote. . . . Well, I do not want to quote from this because I do not know if it went public. What was made very clear was that they had to develop statistical reporting requirements for the insurance companies. Once those requirements were received, then what the actuary said was that the statistics and forms would allow the experience of each insuring entity to be assessed and the experience of the Cayman Islands in respect of the standard benefits to be looked at as a whole.

What the Government is really saying is that the time will come when a meaningful actuarial report can be done. But, what the report brought out very clearly was that at the time it was dealt with there were clearly not sufficient statistics, nor were the necessary regulations in place to gather necessary statistics. What the Honourable Minister has very capably and cleverly done is, if he had brought in an actuary. . . and the actuary was out of Bermuda, as the Third Elected Member for George Town knows, in the days when they wanted the elderly to pay $178. That is a very astonishing thing. The people who need it. . . I think the Mover of this Motion asked what will happen to the older people? Under the present scheme they will pay the same fee that the person who is young (or middle-aged) would pay. There is no prejudicing of the elderly or young when the liability to the insurance companies would be less.

The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation has stated that in fairness this Honourable House should be cautious in passing a resolution which could not effectively be carried out in the very near future. He has had this report. He has had people on the Committee with insurance experience. There must have been people with this experience because it is in the public's interest that we do not follow the actuarial report which has stated that premiums should be $45 up until 65 years of age, and then $178.

It would be unfortunate for an impasse to come on a matter so important as health insurance in this country. What does the public ask the Minister in this House to do? They ask him to provide health insurance. Their children are suffering without this health insurance, there are people who do not have it. Those people will be covered fairly shortly. That is the first point. So he has discharged his duty to the public.

The second point is that the premium must be reasonable. The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation has stated that the average premium is $35. The actuary said $45, and $178 if you are over 65. I do not believe that going in and paying out good money on an actuarial report is going to achieve anything at this time.

If this Motion came back in two or three years when the proper statistics are in place, then perhaps that would be the time for the assessment. The Mover and Seconder of this Motion had no way of knowing that an actuarial study had been done, but the Third Elected Member for George Town knew, because it was during his Government's time that the premium was set. He, as Minister. . .

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: That was five years ago.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: That bears my point out even more. The Honourable Member said, "five years ago." If the actuary said $45, and $178 five years ago, the actuary would double it now.

The Honourable Minister has brought in health insurance, something no other Government in this country has been able to do, including my past Governments and those of the Third Elected Member for George Town.

The report that set the figure at $45 and $178 was in February 1992. Can you imagine what figure they would come up with five years later?

Mr. Roy Bodden: It could be less!

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Has anybody's health insurance gone down in the last five years? Members must deal with reality. We live in a realistic world. It is utter nonsense to speculate that five years down the line things are cheaper than they were five years ago.

I would like to point out that the Mover and Seconder and the other Members who spoke on this, had no way of knowing that the report was here. I can well see how they could have put this Motion the way they did. But I hope that now that they have seen this they will bring this Motion in a couple of years' time, once the statistics are in place. I want to stress this because the consulting actuary, Mr. John Raynor put exceptions in his actuarial report. Because there were no statistics, he said the decision had to be the Minister's, then, Mr. D. Ezzard Miller.

As the Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation has said, actuaries are not magicians. They can only come up with figures, then a decision has to be taken. From the public's point of view, I am saying that they are finally getting health insurance and it is a cheap premium. When you have both things right—the public wants health insurance—I say let us take it and move on. In two years we can look at the statistics that have been gathered. Regulation 13 provides the basis to refer to an actuarial report to get the statistics needed for an actuary, further down the line, to make a proper decision.

There is nothing wrong with the Motion, and I am very sympathetic to it, but I believe that if there had been knowledge of the actuarial report which had already been carried out five years ago—and was obviously worked on over a period of time, but came up with such surprisingly high premiums—then it would have been different. If this Motion comes again in two years when we have the statistics, it could be meaningful. At this stage, in light of the fact that the actuarial report hurts the public—and I want to point this out. The actuarial report here now hurts the public because it increased the premium from $35 to $45, and the $178. . .

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker.

POINT OF ORDER
(Misleading the House)

The Speaker: What is your point of order?

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: The Honourable Minister is misleading this House. The actuarial report he is talking about was only mentioned in passing. I mentioned that it was never tabled in this House. He is giving the public the impression that it was adopted and tabled in this House and used as a guide by the Government. That is not true.

The Speaker: I think the Honourable Minister did say that he would not quote from it because it had not been tabled.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I have been very careful not to quote. I am sitting here with Erskine May opened to the page about it. I will not quote from it. What I am holding here is the Motion, but the hard facts are that the Law came out in 1992 with $45 for people up to 65, and $178 for people over the age of 65. It was a heartless and brutal Law on the aged of this country. And it was based on a report.

The approach taken and advanced by the Third Elected Member for George Town. . . and I am addressing a lot of these comments, through you, Mr. Speaker, to the Member because he knows better. The Mover and the Seconder were really not privy to the report.

The other area which asks Government to investigate the feasibility of establishing a public owned corporation to provide health insurance is like the question of looking at captive insurance. It is complex. It carries a lot of liability because when you insure a lot of people there is a lot of contingent liability involved. But if I may be frank, I do not believe that Government should get into a business that it does not know and run it. A public insurance company takes a lot of skill and a lot of effort.

If a study needs to be done in that area, the best place for it to be done is here because this country runs more captive insurance companies than any place else in the world, other than Bermuda. But I have to point out that even Lloyds of London, the largest insurance company in the world that survived 400 years of insuring, somehow got into trouble. I would be very reluctant for the Government of this country to get into the insurance business. I believe that there is a lot of risk. I know it! A study in that area would have to be extremely convincing before I would say yes to having the public's funds going in to fund an insurance company. A lot of capital would have to be put into it.

I am not saying that if the public feels their money should be put into an insurance company that I would not carry that out. It would be my duty. But I would caution Members of this House that a Government public corporation to do insurance carries some heavy liability. This Government could pay a lot of money if things went wrong.

The other area is that insurance carries unknown risks. One of the things that would have to be very clearly established is the extent to which the Government was personally responsible to pick up in the event the company suffered losses. I am merely stating a very cautious approach. If we are taking in premiums of, say, $4 million or $5 million per year in a public owned company, and suddenly we are hit with heavy overseas liability for insurance, we could pick up a substantial loss in that year. Overseas medical is not cheap.

I believe that the intent of the Motion is good and that the Mover and Seconder are genuine in their motives, but I also believe that I would rather see health insurance up and running—let us look at it and see what the risk is. Let us not get into the unknown of it at this stage. If the risk has to be run, then let private companies run it. They have spread their risk far beyond Grand Cayman—they have spread it to North America, Europe; big companies like Lloyd's and Aetna, those that are world-wide, have spread it. We do not have the size in this country to do so.

On this second part I am saying that extreme caution has to be exerted to ensure that the public's money does not go into a company that could have very heavy losses. Not only that, but if the policies could not be honoured, the public would suffer. I am saying that the idea is good, but it has to be looked at very cautiously.

I have sympathy with the part of the Motion dealing with appointment of an actuary. I feel that the Mover and Seconder mean well. But, in reality, as the actuary has said, 'the proper statistics have to be put in place before a meaningful actuarial report can be done.' There is already an actuarial report, and it is not meaningful.

The Law brought to this House in June 1992 by the 1988-1992 Government had premiums of $45 and $178 for those over 65. What the Minister for Health is putting forward calls for premiums beginning in the area of $35, but with the elderly of this country protected. You must remember that it is our duty to see that that protection goes in. How is the public protected? A lot was said about wasting public funds but not protecting the public.

The public in this instance is protected, first of all, by health insurance. The Minister has put that forward. Second, the premium is low. Now, the premium is $35 to begin with, depending on the family size, but the premium was $45 before and $178. So, on both counts, I think the Minister has done what is right.

I would like to see the public get health insurance at a low premium. I do not believe that an actuary will help us at this stage. If five years ago it was far more—vastly more than it is now—an actuary will not bring it in at any less.

The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation has very honestly and effectively, in his quiet way, moved forward with health insurance. It is about to be a reality. The public is about to benefit. I hope that politics does not come in the way to either delay it or do anything that would increase the premium the Minister has so carefully and effectively negotiated.

He has achieved what no one else in this House has been able to achieve in the 20 years I have been here. We are on the verge of giving the public what they need—health insurance at a premium lower than what was recommended in June of 1992, more than five years ago. What more can this House ask of the Honourable Minister? I ask the Members to please rethink this. Maybe there is a way that there can be a meeting of the minds, but if not, they should not delay what the public is going to get or do anything that will increase the premiums.

I fully support the Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation. I have sympathy for the Motion and with the Mover and Seconder of it, but I believe that what the public is getting now is for their benefit. The public is being protected. What is moving forward now should be brought in as quickly as possible so that the public can have health insurance. I believe that is what the public wants and what this legislature should give.

PRAYERS

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Let us Pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived: We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

READING BY THE SPEAKER OF MESSAGES AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: I have received apologies for late attendance from the Honourable Third Official Member who will be arriving late this morning.

Item number two, Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. Question No. 146 stands in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION NO. 146

No. 146: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning to state the monetary value of tickets donated as prizes for various events and given as promotional gestures by Cayman Airways Ltd from January 1996 to June 1997.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: It is very difficult to answer this question as asked. For example, Cayman Airways Ltd works with the Department of Tourism to bring many travel agents and travel writers to the Islands on promotional trips. The airline also supports many local businesses and charities by giving airline tickets as prizes. However, these tickets would have no value unless the winners would otherwise have paid for a ticket. Many of these prizes are restricted either by flight number, by day of use, or even by period, such as Easter or Christmas. As the National Airline, Cayman Airways Ltd responds to its duty to support the efforts of the Department of Tourism and the community at large by making this facility available. However, the Airline does not do this lightly, and each request is decided upon its merits.

SUPPLEMENTARY

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister state if any provision is made for these types of donations within each financial year? For example, many companies include in their budgets an amount for public relations, an amount for advertising and for donations to charities. Is a similar provision practised by Cayman Airways? If so, why is he unable to say what amounts are set aside each year for these purposes?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: What the Member has stated would be the norm in a company that was trading otherwise. Most of the tickets, in fact the vast majority, are space available tickets, where we would not have been carrying anyone in that seat anyway; or, as we say, there would be restrictions where they could not fly during Easter or Christmas. So we do not actually put any amount in the accounts for it.

There is an argument that perhaps some amount could be put in there and I will take that point on board. We will look at that to see if it would be the better course.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, the next question is No. 147, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 147

No. 147: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning how many approvals for the placement of antennas have been granted since CITN became operational.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Approval has been granted for the installation of 52 antennas since April 1993, which is when CITN became operational. CITN then began the installation of antennas for Weststar Cable. Prior to this, the only means of receiving any television channels other than the local stations was via satellite dishes.

It should be noted that not all above antennas are for television. At least two approvals were for amateur radio antennas and at least seven approvals are for telecommunications' antennas installed by Cable and Wireless on or near buildings, banks in particular.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister state if it is necessary for some fee to be paid prior to receiving approval for the antennas?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The answer is yes, a fee is charged.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister state whether all the fees and charges have been collected in the case of the antennas for CITN?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I have been advised that we are not owed any money in Planning for these. . . . I cannot say anything beyond that.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, the next question is No. 148, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 148

No. 148: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Acting First Official Member for Internal and External Affairs what arrangements exist to ensure that prisoners who have to be outside the prison compound on work detail are properly supervised at all times.

The Speaker: The Honourable Acting First Official Member for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Prisoners participate in work details outside the prison compound under two types of arrangements, namely: (a) Work parties of no more than eight prisoners of category 'C', the lowest risk category under the prisoner classification system, are supervised by one Officer for the duration of a work period; and (b) Individual prisoners perform regular tasks outside the prison compound, but on prison property, in an unsupervised but regularly monitored basis.

Eligibility of prisoners for participation in this "unsupervised work" is limited to category 'C' prisoners who must meet additional criteria, including being Caymanian and having less than six months to serve.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Member say what procedures are in place to prevent prisoners from wandering outside of the range of supervision; and what the procedure for retrieving these prisoners to the work detail is?

The Speaker: The Honourable Acting First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: In respect of the supervised prisoners, anyone wandering away from the party and detected by the supervisor would occasion an alert and some physical search for the prisoner. There are no electronic or other devices attached to the prisoners to afford any alert. In the case of the unsupervised prisoners, anyone detected during monitoring as having strayed from the assigned task and location would similarly occasion an alert and search.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: In the event of prisoners working in close proximity to occupied areas, can the Honourable Member state if residents are alerted to the fact that prisoners are going to be working in the area, and asked to keep a lookout for prisoners who may wander away, prior to the work detail being put in place?

The Speaker: The Honourable Acting First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: All of the areas that prisoners work in are areas on prison property. The work details, as such, are of an ongoing and continuous nature, except for Saturday and Sunday. I cannot say what ongoing arrangements or notifications exist. I expect that people in that area are aware of the proximity of the prison and would naturally alert the prison authorities if they saw someone either on the public road or on property that was theirs or someone else's.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Is the Honourable Member aware of the fact that there are some prisoners in 'category C' as indicated in his answer, who leave the compound and go visiting and come back at will?

The Speaker: The Honourable Acting First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: No, Mr. Speaker. I am certainly not aware of any such liberties. I will certainly inquire of the prison authorities.

QUESTION NO. 149

No. 149: Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly asked the Honourable Acting First Official Member for Internal and External Affairs if Government has any policy in regard to the renting of the backhoe at the Cayman Brac Public Works Department to private persons or companies.

The Speaker: The Honourable Acting First Official Member for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Yes, the policy for hiring Government equipment is laid down in Financial and Stores Regulations 7.82.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Can the Honourable Member say whether Financial and Stores Regulations 7.82 have been changed within the past four weeks?

The Speaker: The Honourable Acting First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Not that I am aware, sir.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: If there was a conspicuous change to Regulation 7.82 in the past four weeks is the Honourable Member saying that is was not with his consent or knowledge?

The Speaker: The Honourable Acting First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Mr. Speaker, I am sorry, but I did not follow the lady Member's question. Perhaps she could repeat it.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Am I to understand that if there was a conspicuous change to Regulation 7.82 that it was done without the cognisance of the Honourable Acting First Official Member?

The Speaker: The Honourable Acting First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: If there was a change, I am aware of it.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Would the Honourable Member give an undertaking, if I bring to his notice this change, that he will assist in rectifying it if it were not done in accordance with the set traditional, conventional procedure?

The Speaker: The Honourable Acting First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: I would certainly be grateful for any information which indicates that someone may not be complying with the regulation. As far as a change, I would expect that a change could only be made by the Governor in Council whose regulations I understand these to be. As far as reversing that change, I really do not see what undertaking I can officially give.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: I thank the Honourable Member for his honest answer.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, the next question is No. 150, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

QUESTION NO. 150

No. 150: Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation has the storage shed at the Faith Hospital been constructed and if not, why.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

DEFERMENT OF QUESTION NO. 150 Standing Order 23(5)

Hon. Anthony Eden: Mr. Speaker, I was just made aware of this question this morning. I will undertake to answer it shortly.

The Speaker: Are you saying that you will give the answer in writing?

Hon. Anthony Eden: Yes, Mr. Speaker. It depends on the length of this sitting of the House.

The Speaker: Please move a motion that the question be deferred so that I may put the question.

Hon. Anthony Eden: I move that the necessary Standing Order be suspended so that this question may be taken at a latter sitting of this House.

The Speaker: The question is that question No. 150 be deferred until a later sitting or answered in writing. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Mr. Speaker, on a point of clarification, did the Honourable Minister say in writing or at a later sitting?

The Speaker: It can go either way, but it is my understanding that the Business on the Order Paper will be completed today. We would then not have another Question Time. It can come again in the next Meeting.

Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Provided that it is no problem for the Minister. It would be my preference to have it at the next Meeting so that it can be heard.

The Speaker: You would prefer to have it as an oral answer?

Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: That is correct.

The Speaker: The question is that it be deferred until the next Meeting. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED. QUESTION NO. 150 DEFERRED UNTIL THE NEXT MEETING.

The Speaker: That concludes Question Time for this morning. Item three, Other Business, continuation of debate on Private Member's Motion No. 4/97, Actuarial Study for the Establishment of a Public Owned Health Insurance Corporation

The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

OTHER BUSINESS

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 4/97

ACTUARIAL STUDY FOR THE ESTABLISHMENT OF A PUBLIC OWNED HEALTH INSURANCE CORPORATION

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I have circulated an amendment to this Motion. With your permission, I seek leave to move that.

The Speaker: The amendment has been circulated, would you like to speak to it?

AMENDMENT TO PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 4/97

Standing Order 52(1) and (2)

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: This Motion reads: "1) in paragraph 1) by adding at the end thereof the words 'for Civil Servants, their families, indigents, pensioners and other persons for whom Government has responsibility for medical expenses'; and "2) in paragraph 2) at the end thereof by adding the words 'for such corporation.'"

If this amendment is accepted, Private Member's Motion No. 4/97 would then read:

"BE IT NOW THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT the Government consider contracting the services of [and there was an amendment] a management consultant firm to:

"1) investigate the feasibility of the Government establishing a public owned corporation to provide health insurance for Civil Servants, their families, indi-

gents, pensioners and other persons for whom Government has responsibility for medical expenses;

"2) determine what the premium should be for the health insurance package for such corporation specified by the Law;

"3) recommend the organisational and managerial structure for the public health insurance corporation;

"AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED THAT such reports, as produced by the actuarial firm, be laid on the Table of this Honourable House with the decision of the Government on the matter."

I believe that as originally presented this Motion was not clear as to its intent, and how the section relating to the health insurance package tied in. I looked at that as a separate part, and not tied into the publicly owned corporation. Normally, when Motions like this come we have sufficient time. . . people are not on leave, or off the island as they are in July, August and September. But I did not understand it that way.

The concept of this, to carry out this study. . . there is a lot of information. Government has the cost and details of carrying out its medical insurance. This is something we do have, because we pay for this. It is therefore simpler for an actuary to look at that and say that maybe we should go with an insurance company.

I would like to say that there will obviously be interim reports. I would like to make it clear that if in an interim report, or at any stage, it appears that this should be extended further to allow people (ordinary citizens) to voluntarily—not compulsorily—come into the company, and if it is feasible, then the study should also take this in. But, for it to work it must have the Government's civil servants. We are looking at 2,000 employees. We are looking at spouses and children. So we are probably looking at close to 4,000 people coming under this.

Government has looked at how it should go. We are spending a large amount of money. Every year this legislature votes a lot of money. There are three ways Government could go: It could remain as it is now, where it just pays out of recurrent each year; it could set up an insurance company (what is commonly called a captive insurance company). That company would then insure a layer of that because Government may not wish to take full liability. There are ways in which, say, the first $50,000 or $100,000 of claims could be accepted by Government which would limit our liability considerably. The rest would be laid off in a market abroad.

It could also be (and I am sure the actuary would look at it from this point of view) that the insurance company would take the full amount of the local expenses for medical services in Cayman. But it may want to take, say, $50,000 of the first part of the insurance in the United States or Jamaica, somewhere abroad. We would find that Government could, depending upon the report (and everything that I am saying here would depend upon the report), self insure in a prudent way. The profits, if there were any, would then be the profits of the people.

I hope, if it is sought at a later stage to open it and allow the public at large to voluntarily come under the umbrella of it, that it would then be run as a non-profit corporation. If members of the public are involved, the Government should not look for profit in that area. I doubt if they would anyhow.

I believe that the premiums received by that corporation should be segregated so that they do not fall into the general pool that politicians generally pay expenses from. The same as with the Government's pension, I believe that should also be segregated, and kept separate and apart from the general pool of money.

The reason for saying that is that many countries, including the United States in relation to pension and social security, find that they are under funded. I am happy to say that the pensions are just about to the stage. . . this Government found $4 million, and I think there are now $23 million in the pension reserves. If we had followed other Governments we could have put $19 million into the General Reserve. How good that would have looked. But we have a responsibility to the civil servants and to the public to get that pension fund on the proper footing. I think that we should do the same with this.

I hope that as we always try to have a meeting of the minds, a bit of give and take. . . and I must say that the House has remained considerably quiet when compared to some of the sessions from the past. We always try to find a compromise that satisfies all Members of the House, at least as many Members as possible.

I would like to stress that without civil servants in a captive insurance company. . . there are not sufficient people for this to get off the ground. So the initial decision has to be (in relation to Government anyhow) whether we go with a captive insurance company. If we find that the study says it is feasible, then the risk to the public has been removed. If the public voluntarily—and I want to stress that it is voluntary, because I want this separate from the past where we were talking about Government running mandatory health insurance (which I totally disagree with)—if they voluntarily wish to come under it, then there is no reason why it could not be opened up.

I would like to say that with the amendments the insurance committee has looked at these three alternatives for Government because we do have a large number of civil servants, and their medical has to be covered. I believe that the study will show a more prudent way of insuring the civil service. If the scheme is good and it works, then it could be extended.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: I would like to make a few brief comments regarding the proposed amendment. In so doing, I would also like to say that I am quite happy with the way in which Government is dealing with this particular situation in that it continues to concede that the idea is not moved only because of genuine motives, but because of some good logic. In fact, what Government has done is stretch the possibilities for this Motion to become successful.

The more we talk about the Motion, the more we realise that it really does make sense. My concern with the Honourable Minister's amendment is that I feel by adding at the end of thereof the words "for Civil Servants, their families, indigents, pensioners and other persons for whom Government has responsibility for medical expenses," he is defining the scope of the study, the task. When we hire someone and they come back and tell us that they have collected information and analysed the situation based upon the consideration of these 4,000 or so people, they are not obligated to provide us with any additional information that would cause us to be able to decide whether or not this public corporation could serve an even larger number of people in this country.

The essence is to see that premiums are reasonable and that the burden of paying for health insurance does not become so great that it causes any type of inconvenience to any member of the population, whether or not they work for the Government, are indigent or are pensioners. The question is to try to spare the population as a whole the burdensome task of having to pay for health insurance that would perhaps be expensive if the Government does not become involved in a scheme that it is capable of participating in because of the numbers already within its fold.

I am saying that there are many different types of insurance. There is no one particular way in which different countries have approached this problem, because there is no absolute solution to it. We are still experimenting on perfecting it. Although we could say that Government involvement did not work in one country or another, we cannot look at any country and say the private concept, the laissez faire concept, of insurance has worked. There is no proof that that can work; and that by Government not becoming involved in the question of providing insurance that we will have a perfect situation.

What will take place as a result of the Government having brought in this Law compelling everyone to have insurance is debatable. What the future will hold is debatable. We are trying to determine as far as possible what the future will be by gathering information that will cause us to make sensible and reasonable decisions. I believe that if we are going to do a study, we might as well do a complete one.

Although I realise that this is an interesting compromise for the Government to be making, my approach is that we were all elected by the people of these islands. We are all equal in this parliament. The Government does not have a monopoly on intelligence. We are not trying to embarrass the Government, we are trying to educate it by way of talking about the specific problems that we have become concerned with. I think this is good, because Government cannot get out among the people to the extent we can because of its busy schedule. This is how democratic process works. The Government comes in here at least four times a year by Law, and at that particular time it leaves the fourth floor and comes down to the bottom floor where we are all equal.

Democracy, because we are all equal, has to do with numbers. Basically, we are playing a numbers game. But we all have one equal vote. The vote of a Minister of Government is not more powerful than a Backbencher's vote. It is about time that the Backbench exerted the power it has four times a year. The Ministers come here to be influenced by the Backbench. If all that happens is that the Ministers come to influence the Backbench, then the democratic, collective process is not really working.

I am happy that the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning has become involved with the dynamic process of evolving the Motion to the extent where it makes good sense for everybody to accept it. But in that process of evolving this Motion he has pointed out the necessity of the Motion, and that he has to a certain extent. . . and he has a lot of things to deal with, he cannot deal with everything. I am a full-time MLA, and I sit in my office and think about things like this. I take telephone calls from people and I listen to them.

I feel that I am being very helpful to the Government when I ask it to consider . . . because I am not imposing anything upon it. I do not have the power in this parliament to impose any Motion on the Government that would commit it to spend funds not included in the Budget. Therefore, the word 'consider' is the major point.

I have tried to not discuss the philosophy of Government being involved in certain things or not being involved in certain things. I have tried not to discuss how I think the company would look, and who it would insure. I have tried not to discuss this, because to discuss it would be from the point of view of opinion and therefore from the point of view of disadvantage.

We are approaching the 21st Century. We have many different ways to arrive at conclusions that are much more scientific. We are hoping that we are evolving a democracy here that will be based upon scientific opinions rather than on opinions of what we like. It is a little bit more complicated when we are dealing with more people than just ourselves. The process of thinking for more than ourselves depends upon being able to collect information to arrive at these conclusions.

If the exercise is to collect information so that we can make a decision, why are we trying to make the decision here as to what will happen? We are trying to make a decision to cover civil servants, indigents, and pensioners—but that is not what the Motion is asking for. The Motion is not asking us to make a decision about who will be covered by this publicly corporation; it is asking us to consider a study that would provide us with the information to decide whether or not the public owned insurance company would be feasible in the first place. If it were, that would be one thing. Maybe it would not be politically desirable, although economically feasible. But that is another stage of the decision-making process.

We are trying to accomplish two things here today, and I do not think that was what the Motion called for. It called for consideration of a study to make a decision about who should be covered.

My attempt in soliciting the support of the Third Elected Member for West Bay (knowing that he is a Backbencher for the National Team) was not to cause him any inconvenience in terms of his loyalty to his particular Ministers, but it was to suggest that some positive things can come from the Backbench; and that the Backbench can conduct itself with a certain amount of dignity in terms of advising the Ministers in a public forum—the only forum where we can advise them. It does not mean that it has to be politically violent, saying that they have not done their jobs. That was not the point of this Motion. I would not have tried to involve the Third Elected Member for West Bay in this Motion if I did not have the feeling that we were in agreement when discussing the question of health insurance when voting on the Health Insurance Bill

I believe that the Government can, in good conscience, support the amendments I made to this Motion; and that the Government does not need to come back with amendments to my amendment. It creates a problem in that it does not make the Government ambitious enough. The total ambition of the Government should be to know, and only through knowledge can we make correct decisions. But if they limit the research, they will limit what they should know.

I think it is very important that the Minister understand that the semantics involved here limits research. If you tell someone that their brief is to look into the feasibility of setting up a public corporation that would be interested in providing health insurance for Government civil servants and their families, indigents and pensioners, that is as far as they are supposed to go. You are determining that now. We are saying let how far Government goes be determined by the outcome of an intelligent study.

I do not think that the Minister really disagrees with me here. Hearing his remarks, I can almost say that I do not disagree with the Minister. But let us give the people who do the study the benefit of the doubt and allow them to go as far with their research as their mission statement will allow.

In speaking to the amendment, part of the reason why the Motion was not first accepted was because of the lack of information. Now, what is being said is that we do have some information (at least in regard to civil servants and their families). That is fine. At least we know that one part of the study could rely upon a body of information that is surely there. The other part of the study would not necessarily be as scientific because of the lack of data, but it could nevertheless give us an indication.

When I started to prepare for this Motion, I tried to contact the Economics and Statistics Department to know that what they said was that they contacted the public insurance companies for their information. I was unable to get any kind of assistance with this from the Government Departments. They said to me that if the insurance companies provided them with the information then they would be able to provide me with the information. I am saying that the information is coming at this particular point from the insurance companies, and that they have an interest in providing information that will cause particular types of decisions to be made where we could therefore call for a study.

It would still be interesting to not limit this study, but to allow it to take its full course and advise the House. The Government still has the possibility to make whatever decision it has to make. We are not asking Government to set up a public insurance company; we are asking it to conduct a study. I think it would prejudice the outcome of the study when we say this. It is assumed that there could be a feasible proposal here—this could work if Government insured families of civil servants and pensioners. But since we are doing the exercise rather than judging, we would like the Government to go a little bit further.

In speaking on this amendment, I do not want the Government Bench to feel that it is not doing its job. I voted with it, I have supported it, and I would like it to show me a certain amount of respect and gratitude by voting with my Motion as it was amended by me.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: I rise to offer my contribution on the amendment to Private Member's Motion No. 4/97 as proposed by the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

The Fourth Elected Member for George Town mentioned semantics and a few other things. It was my concept that whatever the feasibility study suggested, it would start with the Civil Service and their families, indigents and pensioners for whom Government has direct responsibility at this stage.

The way I see this corporation (if deemed feasible to establish), is along the lines of how the Civil Service Credit Union evolved. I remember that initially the idea was to establish an entity that would directly and exclusively assist civil servants. That entity did a tremendous job in that respect. As it grew, it was decided to extend the opportunity to members' immediate families. That is the way it evolved over the years. Today we have a Credit Union boasting of several million dollars a year in income. It has been doing a tremendous job providing a service badly needed in this country.

Establishing a Credit Union did not put the commercial banks established in this country at a tremendous disadvantage. I think it has been proved that there was space for both types of entities to exist here and remain profitable. I think the same can be said about this concept of a publicly owned insurance company.

I believe that the amendment being proposed is a genuine attempt to allow us to arrive at the same position in that we at least have an entity owned by the people of this country for a specific purpose.

I mentioned in my contribution the Motion itself that I believe it makes financial sense for Government to look at the feasibility of providing an entity to cover its own obligations in regard to health insurance, that is, for civil servants, their families, pensioners and the other members of the public it is responsible for providing this service for. I see it starting in the manner proposed here and eventually evolving to the extent that both the Fourth Elected Member for George Town and I see it evolving.

I believe that such an entity would act as a monitoring influence with regard to premiums. Government will probably not have to charge as much as the private sector as regards administrative expenses. They will be able to keep their premiums reasonable. I believe the mere fact that such an entity exists will keep the private insurance companies on their toes in regard to remaining competitive and being reasonable with their premiums.

I must congratulate the Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation for the work he has done in arriving at a reasonable premium for the National Health Insurance Plan. I think it is about $35 per individual. He must be commended along those lines. I am aware that this $35 is only the start. Five years down the road it may not be the same, because as costs to provide that service increase, premiums will have to increase accordingly.

I believe that if the Government is in the business of providing the same service for the people, they can judge what is reasonable and what is not. At that stage, if it is deemed necessary, the Government can say (and we can bring back a resolution if we have to) the premiums of the private insurance companies are no longer reasonable and members of the general public can have the option of continuing their coverage with the private company, or becoming part of the Government's scheme. I believe if that decision becomes necessary, we legislators can see that that happens.

I think the proposal is a good one. I thank the Government for attempting to reach a reasonable compromise. At the end of the day the only thing I am concerned with is that it happens. If that means we need a compromise in order to ensure that, then I think it is a reasonable compromise.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: In rising to speak on this amendment there are a few points that I wish to make.

First of all, it bears some emphasis to say that the effort to have the Government consider the substantive Motion is, in my estimation, an effort borne out of genuine sincerity and concern for the best, most comprehensive approach so that our people will be the ultimate beneficiaries. I would also like to remark that there is some evidence to suggest that the effort by the Honourable Minister with his amendment seems to be borne out of genuine sincerity to reach as widespread and comprehensive a settlement as possible. Therefore, I am compelled to say that there is so much overlap in the two efforts, that if we examine them closely we will see that the similarities far outweigh the differences.

Regarding the amendment, one glaring fact I would like to bring to the attention of Honourable Members is that, while the Minister has made an attempt to be as comprehensive as possible by including civil servants, their families, indigents, pensioners and other persons for whom Government has responsibility for medical expenses, he has still left out one category of people. Although civil servants, their families, indigents, pensioners and other persons for whom Government has responsibility is inclusive, there are still people who fall outside of this category whose numbers I argue are just as significant, if not more so.

What about the mass of people who labour outside of the Civil Service and do not fall within the parameters of the people here? I would like to think that, with all due respect to the categories listed here, the numbers excluded form the majority by a significant number. That is one shortcoming with the first paragraph in the Honourable Minister's amendment.

The second thing is that the Honourable Minister has conceded that Government already has the cost and details necessary for the carrying out of its own insurance. In exercises such as this, it would be literally impossible to use every individual case to extrapolate information. What is done in cases like this, is that empirical evidence is collected from samples of the population. If there is a corpus of knowledge already which can be gleaned from Government's own insuring of its civil servants, all that has to be done in many cases is to transpose that information to the wider sample.

Pollsters do not poll everyone in the population for an opinion, they pick a sample. From the information extrapolated from the sample polled, they apply that across the general population. I am saying that by his own admission the Minister has said that a corpus of knowledge exists. If we transpose that, the consideration which the original Motion asked for should be a simplified process to obtain by virtue of the fact that we extend that information to the country as a whole, or to wider groups.

It is important to recognise that no one is suggesting that the Government should have any monopoly on the provision of any service; or for the development of any such corporation offering these services. I want to say that I see the exercise, as does the Fourth Elected Member for George Town, as an exercise in reciprocity. I do not think anyone would be so unfair as to expect that the Government would have a monopoly, or expect the Government to be so all-encompassing on every occasion that it could bring legislation here that could not be improved upon, amended or even re-worked to a more comprehensive level.

It is not a question of partisan or adversarial politics; it is a question of what is best in the long run for the general populace of this country. The intention of the Backbench in this case is as pure and complimentary and sincere as that of the Government. I hope that Government understands. I cannot put it any more succinctly than did the Fourth Elected Member for George Town who suggested that were his intention other than honourable he would not have chosen as the seconder the person he did.

That being the case, I cannot see why it was necessary for the Government to move this amendment—unless, of course, the Government wishes to test the debating skills of the Backbench Members. It is a question of knowledge and sounding of public opinion. I believe that persons who sit on the Backbench are, by virtue of the fact that their responsibilities of office are not as formal as the Government Ministers, eminently equipped to offer the kind of suggestion offered in this Motion. They are eminently equipped to understand and articulate that the amendment brought by the Government Minister, with all its sincerity, still falls short of what our people expect; and would still fall short of the type of coverage we advocate by virtue of the fact that we are able to move around, to speak with and hear the concerns, complaints and constraints members of the public face. I appeal to the Government to bear this into consideration when arriving at a position of accepting or rejecting these things.

Let me say that our system can work very well if the Government would accept that the level of intelligence and energy on the Backbench could be used as a vehicle to help it improve and implement policies which are comprehensive and in the best interest of the country. It seems to me that in a circumstance such as this the Government would be well advised to take into consideration the efforts and opinions of the Backbench in an attempt to arrive at the best available policy for the people.

It has been the question of big boy versus little boy for too long—with Government seeing itself as the 'big boy,' and the Backbench as the 'little boy.' Government feels that it does not have to take our opinion because it is elevated; it only sees us four times a year and it does not regard our position worthy of being listened to. This is an exercise in democracy, and for it to be successful it means sometimes that we are right and the Government should listen—just as we sometimes have to listen to them.

As gracious as I am to receive this amendment (and I compliment the Minister for his efforts), it still falls short of what would be in the best interest of the people. While I compliment him on his attempt to be accommodating, it falls short of my expectations. I cannot in good faith support it.

I want to say that it is a test today to see if the Government is sufficiently accommodating, sufficiently porous, sufficiently true as to be persuaded by the logical arguments laid down by the Fourth Elected Member for George Town. It is a test to see whether the Government holds the respect for the Backbench Members of this Honourable House they claim to hold, when the situation is convenient to make such pronouncements. It is a test for the Government to see if they respect the opinion of their own Backbench which has seen the wisdom, logic and necessity to support the substantive Motion brought by the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Perhaps it bears repetition: If the intentions and motives were not pure, and mischief were the intent, or adversarial politics, or political mileage, then the Fourth Elected Member for George Town could have had available to him other persons who would have seconded the Motion.

When I saw who seconded this Motion, I realised the sincerity right away. The Honourable Member did not come to me. He knew that if he did it would get shot down, however pure his motives were. I was not offended. I complimented him on his wisdom, being here such a short time, in understanding the dynamics and politics of the situation, and therefore avoiding me like the plague.

I hope that the Government will soften its heart and understand that we appreciate the attempt being made with the amendment (speaking for myself), and understand the purity of the motive. But I am disappointed because it falls short of what I would have expected it to be. Let the substantive Motion which was so brilliantly argued by the Mover and those who spoke on it take its rightful place in the annals of legislation, requests and motions in this country.

The Speaker: Proceedings are suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.30 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12.09 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Does any other Member wish to speak? (pause)

Does the Honourable Minister wish to exercise his right of reply?

The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Boddien: I would like to thank the Members who spoke. I guess in everything in life there is give and take and compromises, and I would hope that all Members will find it convenient, and will within their own minds feel that they can support the amendment, in which case things will move forward. I believe we will achieve what both speakers in opposite terms propose to achieve.

Mr. Speaker: The question is that the amendment to Private Member's Motion No. 4/97 do pass. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED. AMENDMENT TO PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 4/97 PASSED.

Mr. Speaker: Does any other Member wish to debate the original Motion? (pause)

Would the mover wish to reply?

WITHDRAWAL OF AMENDMENT TO MOTION

Standing Order 25(6)

Dr. Frank S. McField: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

In replying I would like to ask the leave of the House to withdraw the original amendment I made and which was circulated, and that the substantive Motion stand as it was originally moved in the House. So I will read the Motion.

“Actuarial Study for the Establishment of a Public owned Health Insurance Corporation

“WHEREAS the Government of the Cayman Islands has passed legislation requiring all persons to have health insurance;

“BE IT NOW THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT the Government consider contracting the services of an internationally recognised actuarial firm to:

- "1) investigate the feasibility of the Government establishing a public owned corporation to provide health insurance;
- "2) determine what the premium should be for the health insurance package specified by the Law;
- "3) recommend the organisational and managerial structure for the public health insurance corporation;

“AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED THAT such reports, as produced by the actuarial firm, be laid on the Table of this Honourable House with the decision of the Government on the matter.”

Mr. Speaker: The question is that under Standing Order 25(6), the notice of amendment as circulated, proposed by the Fourth Elected Member for George Town and seconded by the Third Elected Member for West Bay, be withdrawn. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The amendment is withdrawn.

AGREED. NOTICE OF AMENDMENT TO PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 4/97 WITHDRAWN.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

CONTINUATION OF DEBATE ON PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 4/97

Dr. Frank S. McField: It is with a special feeling of accomplishment that I rise to conclude this debate. I would like to just take an opportunity, briefly, to say that perhaps my style of debate is slightly different from many Members in that I always attempt to give background to points I am trying to make. Really, I would say that this has a lot to do with the type discipline that I am part of—I am not just a sociologist, but I also have a kind of social history background. I feel that to look at any questions, one needs to look at the history of the question or the history of the predicament that one is examining. Everything has to, therefore, be looked at within a particular context and should not be isolated.

It was with this type of position in mind that I brought the Motion. I asked the Government to consider a study because I felt. . . and until we started to debate the Health Insurance legislation, I had no idea this would be a Motion that I would bring before the House, or a Motion that would even be feasible—the possibility of Government establishing its own Health Insurance Corporation. So, I cannot fault anybody for not having made the consideration that I made. As I said, up until the point we were discussing the Health Insurance legislation, it was not a consideration that I myself had made.

I assure Members that I did everything possible to at least come to this House with an informed position based upon data. It is unfortunate that there is such a monopoly on information in this country where even Members of the Legislative Assembly find it difficult to have information available to them. It is not only the Government that finds it difficult to find data which might be necessary to make certain types of decisions. We on the Backbench also have a very difficult time getting information. So, we are always starting at a disadvantage. I like for my decisions not to be based upon my opinions and feelings, but to be based upon information.

I tried to get assistance, as I said, in regard to this particular Motion, but was unable to get the information. Nevertheless, it was a Motion that could be developed without the availability of this information. Common sense should tell us that it would be possible for Government to establish a publicly owned insurance corporation that would at least insure Members of the Government, their families, indigents, and so on.

It is important to realise that this Motion comes from the Backbench. It is important to realise that this Motion was moved by me, an independent Member of this Legislative Assembly, in an attempt to demonstrate that if we work collectively we will accomplish. But, if we continue to sabotage the efforts of individual Members and to break the principle of collective responsibility—not between the Executive Council Members, but between us here in this Parliament. . . . We all have a collective responsibility to the people of these Islands to make sure that we have left no stone unturned in our quest to see that we are giving them the best kind of representation; that our decisions are based upon information and not upon individual prejudices with regard to who should own this and who should control that.

I must say that I am not satisfied at this particular time that the Government and the Honourable Minister responsible did go far enough in terms of showing us what types of alternatives might exist. Therefore, in bringing this Motion (especially at this particular time) I think it is important that I say the amendment which was made somehow comes at a late date; somehow does not satisfy me that the Government is taking the total position that it should be taking; because the Government did come with the excuse that there was no data here, and no data there.

Mr. Speaker, I am happy with the results. Somehow we have gotten part of what we should have had. It is said that 50 per cent of a company is better than no per cent of a company. I will be satisfied with 50 per cent of the company, but I would like to see that this Motion does not wind up someplace where they say, "Well, we will do it in two years"; because the Government has admitted, in taking up the responsibility for the Motion—in amending the Motion in such a way—that it would be acceptable. The Government has accepted responsibility for the Motion by accepting that the Motion has the merits, that this exercise should be done, and that this exercise should have been done.

It will not hold up Health Insurance legislation, because that has already passed. The Regulations will be coming in soon. This Motion calls for a separate study, and it is important that the study be done as soon as possible so that the Government, when it is compelled by Law to make sure that its Members are insured and the families of its workers are insured, that the Government can at least make a decision, since we have been debating this Motion based upon the idea that we know that it is a good decision.

We know that it is a good decision. We know it is feasible. We have pre-judged the outcome of the research. In the amendment we have projected that what will happen at the end of the day is that it will be seen as feasible and prudent for the Government to establish its own health insurance company.

Now, I would like to say that this is not national health. We are not calling for a national health scheme, and I hope that they bear that in mind. The general public will realise that all Government will be doing is saying that Government is an employer, and Government, because of the Law, will now have to insure its workers and the families of its workers with a privately owned insurance company.

That insurance company, if it were able to get 5,000 people to come into it, would basically become rich overnight. The Law has created the possibility, for one or two insurance companies—even if we spread it out among the six, the money that they would collect. . . . And what is it based upon? That one day the risk, the disaster, will come and we will have so many sick people and they will have to pay out—and if it were Government doing it they would go broke; but these insurance companies because they have spread their risk out over a wider geographical area, will not go broke. It is the same thing as having faith and confidence in other people and in not having faith and confidence in yourself. Somehow, one has to be big enough to put on one's own shoes.

Everybody knows from the very beginning without a study that this is a good idea—at least when it comes to Government providing a health insurance corporation to cover its own workers, their families, pensioners and indigents, as the amendment to the Motion suggests.

Since that is the amendment to the Motion, Mr. Speaker, in conclusion I am asking the Government to go ahead and see that this study is contracted as early as possible; that we have results as early as possible. Our collective admittance is that it seems to be a very feasible and good idea. We should not wait until health legislation becomes mandatory a year from today before we make a decision as to how Government will insure its workers, their families, the indigents and others.

I have asked, of course. . . and I hope that the Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning, will remember that he did say there will be more reports—that the study will not just be one final report, but that there will be preliminary reports and that he could extend it to also look into if it might be feasible for others to participate in this particular scheme.

I realise that there is a risk here. I realise that if we have six insurance companies active here, they will feel that Government is not looking out for their best interest if Government will now have access to 6,000 people that they might have had access to. But Government must look out for the interests of the people—the majority—and not the interest of the insurance companies.

I understand and accept that Government is doing its job, because the Honourable Ministers, especially the Honourable Minister for Health, have shown us that this is what they intend to do. They intend to uncover the rest of the stone. It is also possible that we will get a lot of flak from the insurance companies because of what we are desiring to do. Nevertheless, until a study is concluded, Government has not made any commitment because it would have to come back here with a separate decision in regard to that.

It is already believed that six health insurance companies being active on these Islands would reach a saturation point. So, to get another insurance company in these Islands might cause concern to some of the insurance companies. Therefore, we can see their concern about Government moving into this field. But, we have to abide by the principle that the reinvention of Government means that Government must have a different approach to spending money. We should not spend more money, we should spend less money. We should shop around, just like any good citizen in a free-market economy.

The Government, if it can save money, should save money by creating schemes that would allow it to. But the reinvention of Government does not necessarily mean that Government has to get smaller, that it has to get to the point where the only thing it controls is the violence of the state; control the Prisons and the Police Departments. That is not all what Government is here for. Nobody would advocate getting rid of Government because if we got rid of Government how would people be able to secure their persons and their property? The supreme concept of the social contract is security. But, security comes from more than the Government monopolising upon the instrument of violence.

Security also comes from Government creating policies that will maintain social harmony and balance in our society. My point is that in a society developing as rapidly as this one—if we look at the letter, for instance, that was written in the paper by Capt. Charles Kirkconnell—we see that the capital which is necessary for Caymanians to become involved in the private sector is more, and more, and more.

We hear the complaints from the little boat people. We hear the complaints from a lot of people. So, it is not that Government can now sit back and legislate and say that this is the way that the economy should go. Government can only continue to have Caymanian participation by itself participating in certain areas. So, I do not understand how the concept can be forwarded in this country that Government should not become involved in this and that, because someone we talked to from another country said that it failed there.

I have probably spent as much time abroad as anyone here. I know that no country has solved its problems in the past, in the present, or will solve them in the future. Everybody is juggling, weighing, and trying to keep things going. It is a balancing act as we go along. We are not asking the people to take up a fixed position with regard to Government's involvement in anything. We are asking for flexibility so that we can do what is good for the people, because they are ultimately what cause us to be good or bad. If the people benefit, the Government is good. If the people do not benefit, the Government is bad, regardless of what principles the Government believes in. I think it is important that we remember that.

So, we are not attacking private enterprise. We are not attacking the insurance companies. We are trying to provide a package for the Caymanian people that will at least—even if it is just the 5,000 to 6,000 people associated with the Civil Service—keep them away from some of the harsh burdens that will come from having to pay insurance premiums.

For example, let us say that the Honourable Minister for Health is right in saying that some previous actuarial study proved that an old person would pay $178 per month, and that a healthy, young person would pay $45. Now, with this system of guesswork they would be paying $35. We could believe that. We could go to sleep, but the next day we will awaken and know that could not be true.

We know that somehow health insurance burdens will not be any less in Cayman than they are in any place else in the world, because technology is growing, and as a result of the growth, the medical technology expense goes up. Medical expectations go up. People want treatment today that they did not demand yesterday. The cost of medicine is going up, regardless of whether or not we are insured. Government will have to find more money because of the increase in technology, the increase in medical care and our awareness of our health. So, the cost and premium will go up because people will be checking in with their doctors. People will be getting worked on because of technology. People are attempting to find a cure for AIDS and cancer, and all these things and will cause the prices to go up.

When the insurance companies get hit with these bills because of the high expectations of the participants in these programmes, what will those insurance companies do? We do not want to guess about that. We do not want to say that they will be negative, but we want to give the people a degree of security, which is part of our primary purpose in being a government—to keep order, and giving security. To accomplish that it would be wise at this particular stage to do exactly what we have decided to do, which is to look into the possibilities.

Again, Mr. Speaker, I must credit you, as well, in helping us to arrive at this wonderful compromise. Although I could say that I would have been happier if we had gone the full mile, I still have enough belief and confidence in the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning, to know that the exercise will not stop here if it should go further.

I am very happy that this has happened. I would like to conclude by saying that this is my first Motion, and although my substantive Motion is not what will probably be accepted here (since the amendments have already been voted upon) I am convinced that the approach I have taken up, the approach of us not being aligned to anyone but the people, is the correct approach.

I would like to compliment the Third Elected Member for West Bay for his courage and his trust in me in seconding the Motion, because had he perhaps been a more suspicious person he might have said, 'Well, Frank McField is just going to try to cause some problems,' or, 'It might be a good Motion, but what if he tries to misuse it?' He has a side, too, that he would like to see supported and he would like his side not to be discredited.

I hope that what I have done in here has been a credit to him and his side as well as to the other Members of the Backbench—including the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, who I think has supported this Motion and given a degree of clarity to my intention that I was not capable of giving at the time I began talking about this Motion.

I think that this is a triumphant day for the Parliament of the Cayman Islands and for the people of the Cayman Islands. We have gone back to the old days of listening to one another. We have moved from this Chamber to the common room and to the prayer room, and at the end of the day I think that history will prove that the Members of this Parliament made the right decision to give the people of the Cayman Islands the choice to have an alternative to privately owned insurance—not that they have made a decision that this should be, but at least that it should be looked into. I do not think that the people of these Islands can expect any more from the Members of the Legislative Assembly but that we give attention to their concerns.

Mr. Speaker, the Motion was genuinely brought to this Parliament because of rumours and concerns that I had heard from the grass-root people about their inability to absorb these payments.

Again, I believe that we are on the right foot. The papers have written about it. The Honourable Minister of Health commented about the kind of spirit we have had in this Parliament. I hope that the Honourable Minister for Health realises that no attempt has been made to say that he has not done his job. The attempt has been made to assist him in doing his job as best he can with the assistance of the people who elected to support him in accomplishing what it is that they would like him to do.

Mr. Speaker, I shall sit down in the spirit of co-operation. Again, I would like to compliment the Members of the National Team and the National Team Government and the National Team Backbench for the support which they have given this Motion.

Again, I would like to mention in particular the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town for giving clarity to this, and I would also like to thank my other two colleagues for George Town. Regardless of what people may think, I think it is important that they realise that this is at least a beginning. We have worked together. The four Elected Members for George Town, in particular, have worked together to make this possible.

Thank you very much.

Mr. Speaker: I shall now put the question on Private Member's Motion No. 4/97, as amended. For clarity I shall read it as amended.

SECOND READINGS

THE PLANTS BILL, 1997

MOTION TO DEFER FURTHER READINGS OF THE BILL

Hon John B McLean: Mr. Speaker, a few days ago we had the First Reading of the Plants Bill, 1997, and I mentioned to the Honourable House that there were several Members who had concern about a few clauses of the Bill. It has been agreed that we will have a section drafted as soon as possible, so I seek the indulgence of the Chair to have this Bill laid over until the next Meeting of the House.

The Speaker: The question is that under Standing Order 58, the Plants Bill, 1997, be withdrawn. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.
AGREED. THE PLANTS BILL, 1997, WITHDRAWN.

Hon. John B. McLean: Excuse me, Mr. Speaker. I do not think we need to withdraw the Bill, sir. What I would strongly suggest is that, since we have had the First Reading of the Bill, we just defer it until the next Meeting of the House.

Mr. Speaker: As the Honourable Minister said we will reverse that motion and move a motion that it be deferred until the next Meeting of the House. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED. THE PLANTS BILL, 1997, DEFERRED UNTIL THE NEXT MEETING OF THE HOUSE.

Mr. Speaker: The next item is Government Motions. The Honourable Minister responsible for Health Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

MOTIONS

GOVERNMENT MOTION NO. 10/97

HEALTH INSURANCE REGULATIONS, 1997

Hon. Anthony Eden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I beg to move Government Motion No. 10/97 which reads:

“WHEREAS the Health Insurance Bill 1997 was passed by the Legislative Assembly on the 19th day of June, 1997;

“BE IT THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT the said Regulations, now being laid on the Table of this Honourable House, be hereby approved in accordance with the provisions of section 19 of the Health Insurance Law, 1997.”

Mr. Speaker: The Motion has been duly moved and is open for debate. Does the Honourable Minister wish to speak to it?

Hon. Anthony Eden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I just wish to draw to the attention of this Honourable House that the Health Insurance Regulations, 1997, which are now being laid on the Table, are the same as the Regulations which were Tabled in the Legislative Assembly on the 18th June this year, with the exception of an amendment which has been brought about as a result of representations made to my Ministry.

The amendment relates to Part 3 of Schedule 1. The amendment is as follows:

(a) by the insertion of the following new paragraph after paragraph 21, new paragraph 22:

“22. Treatment, medicine or other supply which is experimental.”; and

(b) the deletion of sub-paragraph (ii) in the definition of “experimental”, and the substitution of the following:

“(ii) in relation to medicine or other supply means medicine or other supply which is not included in the British National Formulae or the Physician’s Desk reference unless it has been approved for use in the Islands by the Chief Medical Officer;”.

Mr. Speaker, the effect of such a change is to enable the insured person, with the approval of the Chief Medical Officer, to make a claim for benefits provided under a standard health insurance contract with respect to medicine or other supply approved for use by the authorities in the United Kingdom, or the United States of America, but still awaiting the next update of the British National Formula or the Physician’s Desk Reference mentioned in Part 3 of Schedule 1, sub-paragraph (ii).

I would just like to urge Honourable Members to give the Health Insurance Regulations, 1997, their full support.

Thank you.

Mr. Speaker: Does any Member wish to speak to the Motion? The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I would certainly like to endorse these Regulations since the Law has already been passed. But I would ask if the Honourable Minister could at least say what will be done in regard to Members of the Legislative Assembly since section 20 of the Regulations says: “The Government may, in respect of each employee and his dependants in the following categories, effect, with an approved provider, a health insurance contract which shall provide benefits not less than those provided by the Government in accordance with Chapter 18 of the General Orders prior to the commencement of the Law.”

My concern is over who is responsible for Members of the Legislative Assembly. Are the Members of the Legislative Assembly employed? Who are they employed by? Who would the employer be? What would the Law do in this specific case? Would the Law say (and I will use myself as an example, if I am permitted to do so) that the Fourth Elected Member for George Town, who is a full-time Member of the Legislative Assembly, has no job, and therefore has no employer?

Dr. Frank McField: Well, that is your problem. I have one. I know because I go to my office every morning at 8.30 and leave there sometimes later than 5.30 in the evening. So I do work for somebody, and it is not for a ghost.

Dr. Frank McField: That is right.

So, I would like to know what the position of the Law would be, for instance, if I did not go out and get a private health insurance myself. Would they come and hold the Government responsible for the fact that I do not have any insurance? Because in cases when people working with the Kirkconnell's, or others, do not have any insurance, they will hold those people responsible.

So, I do not think the situation is any different here, and I am hoping that it is just an oversight. I think that it is something that we could go on to ignore because of the possible public debate on this as to whether or not Members of the Legislative Assembly should have health insurance.

I think I would like to know what the position would be because I, at this particular point, do not feel that I should be privately insured. I think my employer, as the Law states, should be responsible for seeing that I comply in the first instance with these Regulations.

Mr. Speaker: Is it the intention of the Honourable Minister to lay a copy of the Regulations on the Table?

Hon. Anthony Eden: Yes, Mr. Speaker, I did lay a copy.

Mr. Speaker: So ordered.

Mr. Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak?

I would like to remind the House that it is being asked to approve the Motion before the House. The Regulations are made by Executive Council and the House is asked to give an affirmative or negative vote to the Motion.

The Third Elected Member for Boddin Town.

Mr. Roy Boddin: Mr. Speaker, in another forum I alluded about some concerns I have with these Regulations, and, of course, I had my opportunity to offer input in regard to the Law when that came to the Legislative Assembly. I continue to have some reservations about these Regulations. I have extreme difficulty in accepting some of the prescribed health care benefits as they have been laid out in the Schedule.

For one thing, I have some problems when it comes to accepting the limit of $100 each calendar year for outpatient benefits as laid out in Part 2. I do not know if there will be any inclination to make adjustments down line, but I, for one, will be attuned to feed-back from my constituents in regard to these Regulations and the Law.

While I am prepared to give the Honourable Minister every vehicle, and to offer no impediment in his attempt to get this mechanism working, I also put the Honourable Minister on notice that if there are any reasonable discrepancies or burdens upon my constituents, I certainly will be petitioning for adjustments to be made. I would hope that the Honourable Minister remains sympathetic and that he would give the commitment that his Ministry would be so inclined to listen and to undertake any necessary adjustments.

I think that in the spirit of what has transpired it is reasonable to allow the Regulations and the Law to come into place, but, at the same time, to advise the Honourable Minister that this is a new vehicle and new instrument and that I certainly reserve the right to make the necessary criticism, and petition him for changes where they may be deemed appropriate.

Having said that, Mr. Speaker, I undertake to do my best to promote an understanding and acceptance of these instruments, and hope that we can get some kind of system which is workable and acceptable, my reservations notwithstanding.

Mr. Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak?

If no other Member wishes to speak, does the Honourable Minister wish to exercise his right of reply?

Hon. Anthony Eden: I want to thank those two Members who commented on the actual Regulations.

In reference to section 20, which the Fourth Elected Member for George Town spoke on, my memory was that up until 1993 Members of the Legislative Assembly were actually covered by Government. My understanding now is that the coverage extends to Members of the Legislative Assembly only upon their retirement. However, I will give the undertaking to the Member that I will sit down with him and go over this section to see how this can best be addressed for active Members.

In reference to the Third Elected Member for Boddin Town, the reasoning behind the $100 per calendar year was an attempt also to keep the premium down. As most Members of this Honourable House know, this is probably the first time in a long time that Regulations passed by affirmative resolution have been brought to this House, which means that amendments will be made in Executive Council, but before being finalised would have to be brought back here so the Members would be involved.

Our attempt, as I said on many occasions, is that we need to get this up and running. It is going to be a learning experience for us all as we fine-tune and keep going. I think that all of us, as was demonstrated earlier in the day, are trying to do what is best for our people and this will come out in the long run. I look forward to that support and the continued input from all Members of this Honourable House in such a very important piece of legislation.

Thank you.

Mr. Speaker: The question is that Government Motion No. 10/97 which contains the Regulations now laid on the Table of this Honourable House be approved. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED. GOVERNMENT MOTION NO. 10/97 PASSED.

Mr. Speaker: That concludes all business on the Order Paper for the day. I will entertain a motion for the adjournment of this Honourable House.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until 31st October, 1997 at 10 o'clock in the morning.

The Speaker: Before I put the question on the adjournment, I would like to thank all Honourable Members for their courtesies and tolerance to the Chair, and for the unusually co-operative spirit which has existed during this meeting. We are all very grateful for that.

I would like to thank the Clerk, the Deputy Clerk, the office staff, the Hansard officers, the Serjeant-at-Arms and also Anita for the services they have rendered to us, and the very efficient way in which they have performed their duties. This concludes our deliberations and I wish you all the very best as we adjourn.

The question is that the House do now adjourn until at 10.00 AM, 31st October, 1997. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye... Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House is accordingly adjourned.

AT 3.03 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM FRIDAY, 31ST OCTOBER, 1997.

EDITED
5TH NOVEMBER, 1997
10.08 AM

The Speaker: Prayers by the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

PRAYERS

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived: We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Let us say the Lord's Prayer together: Our Father who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name. Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us; and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. The Legislative Assembly is in Session.

ELECTION OF MINISTER FOR EXECUTIVE COUNCIL

APPOINTMENT OF SCRUTINEERS

The Speaker: Item number 2, The Election of one Member to Executive Council. The procedure for this item is laid down under section 5 of the Constitution and under Standing Order 5 of the Orders of this House which govern the proceedings. The Chair proposes, subject to there being no objections from Members, to appoint the First Official Member and the Third Official Member to act as Scrutineers if a ballot is required.

I now put the question that the Honourable First and Third Official Members be appointed Scrutineers for the election. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The Honourable First and Third Official Members are appointed Scrutineers for the election.

AGREED: THE HONOURABLE FIRST AND THIRD
OFFICIAL MEMBERS APPOINTED SCRUTINEERS
FOR THE BALLOT COUNT.

The Speaker: Before I call for nominations to the Executive Council, I crave the indulgence of members of the public gallery.

I am aware that there has been some concern in the community within recent weeks, and the result of this election is eagerly awaited. But I must ask that everyone refrain from any comments, sounds or other expressions of jubilation or disappointment.

This is a very serious matter, and the process can be more fluid if members of the general public desist from any manner of audible expression. I can assure you that at the appropriate time an opportunity will be given for you to manifest your agreement.

I shall now call for nomination to the Executive Council by voice. Each nomination will require a mover and a seconder. I should say at this time that we are electing one Member only to Executive Council. I should also say that the names of Honourable Members nominated will be used. Usually in this Honourable House you are referred to by districts, i.e., the First Elected Member for George Town, or the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town. For clarity, today we will refer to Members by name. This will avoid any misunderstanding by the general public.

We are now open for Nominations to the Executive Council. Again, I remind you that we are nominating one Member.

The First Elected Member for West Bay.

NOMINATIONS AND BALLOTS (Standing Order 5)

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush : Mr. Speaker, I rise to nominate Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly for the vacancy in Executive Council.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Mr. Speaker, I rise to second that nomination.

The Speaker: The nomination of Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly has been duly moved and seconded. Are there any other nominations?

(Pause)

The Speaker: Are there no further nominations?

(Pause)

The Speaker: I shall now ask the Honourable First and Third Official Members to take their place at the Clerk's Table. We will then distribute the ballots to all Members.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush : Mr. Speaker, on a matter of order, if there is only one nomination, do we still need to take a ballot?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, if I may have the privilege of addressing you briefly. . .

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Just to point out that the Standing Orders do not provide for an acclamation and I believe that it is the safest course to merely run quickly through the procedure to ensure that there can be no question. However, I would say that there is a Standing Orders Committee and I believe that this has to be addressed in the new Standing Order 5.

The Speaker: Thank you.

Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly, will you accept the nomination?

Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Indeed, it is my honour and privilege to accept the said nomination.

The Speaker: At this time we will suspend while the Ballot Papers are prepared, and then we will take a secret ballot.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 10.20 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 10.25 AM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed.

I will now ask the Honourable First and Third Official Members to take their place at the Clerk's Table.

I will now say a few words about the procedure. I think I am right in saying that there has only been one person nominated. The procedure for this election is that (and this I am saying for the benefit of the public) the Standing Orders decide or declare that we shall have a ballot. Members will vote by secret ballot, and the Clerk is handing out the name of the one who has been nominated and seconded.

Under the present Constitution there are five Members in Executive Council, and we have one vacant seat. You will vote for only one Member. You should not sign your paper. There should be no mark other than the 'X' on your papers. Your papers should not be identifiable. I am suggesting that perhaps you may fold the paper so that it will remain a secret ballot.

The Serjeant will then return the box to the Clerk in front of the two Scrutineers. The Clerk and the two Scrutineers will count the number of votes. They will then pass the list to the Chair for reading out. The results will be read by the Presiding Officer, then the candidate will be declared duly elected.

This is how I plan to carry out the proceedings, and I ask that the gallery remain as quiet as possible.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

MOTION TO CLOSE NOMINATIONS

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, in our enthusiasm to stack the deck, it seems that we have forgotten to close the nominations. I so move, sir.

The Speaker: I did ask if there were any further nominations, but if that is necessary, the nominations are now closed. Is there a seconder?

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I second the motion that the nominations be closed.

The Speaker: The motion was made by the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town and seconded by the First Elected Member for George Town. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

Will the Serjeant please distribute the ballots?

BALLOT PAPERS

The Speaker: If all Members have now completed their vote, I would ask the Serjeant to collect them in the box. Please fold your papers small enough so that they fit easily into the Ballot Box.

Will the Scrutineers begin the count?

Hon. James M. Ryan: (The Honourable Member read out the result of each Ballot Paper.)

The Speaker: The Scrutineers may take their seats.

BALLOT RESULTS

The Speaker: Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: 8 votes, 5 blank votes.

The Speaker: I therefore declare Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly elected to Executive Council. Please take your seat on the Government Bench. I must say that it is the choice of the Members of Executive Council to seat themselves however they choose. We have no prescribed seating.

(Applause)

The Speaker: I take this opportunity to congratulate Mrs. O'Connor-Connolly on her appointment.

BUDGET ADDRESS 1997 DELIVERED BY THE HON. GEORGE A. MCCARTHY, OBE, JP, FINANCIAL SECRETARY

Mr. Speaker, in the last Budget Address presented just over seven months ago, several initiatives were highlighted aimed at advancing the economic and social well-being of the people of the Cayman Islands. Some of the major ones included the setting up of the Cayman Islands Stock Exchange; the creation of a Monetary Authority; reviews of financial legislation; and incentives for the development of Cayman Brac. Also mentioned were regulations for the National Pension and Health Insurance programmes.

It is indeed a pleasure to report to this Honourable House, that the Cayman Islands Stock Exchange, which started operations just ten months ago, is making excellent progress. The Exchange has attracted some of the world's major hedge funds and debt arrangers, as well as leading members of the mutual fund industry. To date, there are 26 entities listed on the Exchange, mainly mutual funds with a diverse range of investments.

The mutual funds are managed mainly out of North and South America, and listing enquiries continue daily from as far away as Moscow and Hong Kong. Fund managers are attracted by the high standards of regulation maintained by the Exchange, together with its flexibility and understanding of the needs of the offshore industry's sophisticated investors.

Mr. Speaker, apart from the mutual fund industry, the Exchange is now targeting leading international finance houses who may wish to utilise its facilities for some of their more sophisticated trading strategies. It is also currently developing facilities to list and trade derivative financial instruments. Our long term aim, Mr. Speaker, is for the Cayman Islands Stock Exchange to become the Exchange of choice for the international financial community.

Turning to the Monetary Authority, Mr. Speaker, you will recall that one of the reasons for the establishment of the Cayman Islands Monetary Authority was to attract competent and highly-skilled staff. I am pleased, therefore, to report that three top positions have recently been filled by personnel of a very high calibre, one of whom is a Caymanian.

In May of this year, the Authority appointed a new Managing Director with extensive regulatory and supervisory experience in the financial sector—garnered both in public and private sector environments, and in diverse regions of the world ranging from North America (that is, Canada) to Africa and the Caribbean.

Mr. Speaker, this high-level appointment was followed by two others—the Head of Banking, Trusts and Investment Services, and the Head of Policy and Research.

The Policy and Research Division is a new arm of the Monetary Authority and is headed by a Caymanian who has an in-depth understanding of the financial industry, having been with the regulatory regime since 1986. This division is responsible for the production of financial statistics, analysis of regulatory issues, and formulation of policies to guide the sector's overall development. It will work closely with the private sector and, from time to time, issue formal, written statements in areas requiring policy stances.

I would like to emphasise, Mr. Speaker, that the Monetary Authority has a very important regulatory role to play in the smooth functioning of the financial industry. In fact, in recent weeks, its role as custodian for the industry was highlighted when it took the hard but very necessary decision to recommend that Executive Council revoke the licences of Gulf Union Bank and First Cayman Bank.

It is indeed regrettable that such action had to be taken. But I can assure you that if this had not been done, the effects on the depositors and the Islands as a whole would have been far worse.

The Cayman Islands has worked long and hard to become one of the world's premier international financial centres. I am sure that none of us would like to see this position destroyed overnight. Investor confidence is central to the continuing success of our well-nurtured financial industry. If this is eroded, then there will be rippling effects throughout all sectors of the economy.

Not only would the financial industry suffer, but the vitally important tourism industry would also be seriously affected. With the twin pillars of the economy weakened, a series of economic and other problems would ensue, including high unemployment, flight of capital and a marked drop in the standard of living.

Government is aware that many persons are hurting as a result of the closure of First Cayman Bank and it is continuing to monitor the situation with a view to finding a solution. However, it is recognised that open dialogue with those affected is necessary in order to arrive at a meaningful solution. I am therefore pleased to report, Mr. Speaker, that on Friday 31st October, some Members of Executive Council held a meeting with representatives of the First Cayman Bank Depositors Committee and discussed a number of issues of concern to depositors.

Government has spent a great deal of time analysing the present situation and evaluating the various options available. One avenue which it intends to explore is the introduction of a Depositors' Insurance Scheme to help provide protection to depositors. It is likely that a Bill will be introduced at this meeting of the Legislative Assembly to introduce the Scheme.

Arising out of this issue, another important piece of legislation will also be brought forward at this meeting. This is an amendment to Section 7(1) of the Insurance Law (1995) Revision, which is aimed at providing protection to domestic policyholders. It will require a licensed insurer, in respect of its general domestic business, to maintain funds within the Islands in cash, short-term securities or other approved realisable investments to match current liabilities, life insurance and annuity funds.

Mr. Speaker, turning to other developments in the legislative framework for the financial industry, I am pleased to inform you that on 1st September the Legislative Assembly passed two connected bills.

The first bill, the Special Trusts (Alternative Regime) Bill, 1997 or STAR, allows for the setting up of special trusts; and the second bill, the Perpetuities Law (the Perpetuities (Amendment) Bill, 1997), amends the Perpetuities Law to exempt special trusts from the rule against perpetuities.

These new Laws are expected to provide a better and more secure legal framework for Special Trusts, and will help to improve the competitive position of the Cayman Islands in this area.

Mr. Speaker, in July of this year, a team comprising persons from both Government and the private sector, met with senior representatives of the US administration in Washington, DC. The meetings were aimed at increasing awareness of the measures and safeguards implemented for ensuring the effective regulation of Cayman's financial industry.

I am pleased to report that those meetings were very positive ones; and they laid the foundation for the building of a solid working relationship in the future.

Over the next two years, the Cayman Islands will host some very important, high-level meetings. In October 1998, the Caribbean Financial Action Task Force Ministerial Meeting will take place here in Grand Cayman, at which time we will hold the position of Chair. Then, in 1999, Cayman will host the prestigious Commonwealth Finance Ministers' Meeting. This meeting will attract Finance Ministers from some 54 countries in Asia, Africa, Europe, North America and the Caribbean. Mr. Speaker, I can also point out that this meeting was held in Bermuda two years ago, and at that time, it was chaired by the then Chancellor of the Exchequer. It is likely that the new Chancellor will also be the principal chairperson for this meeting.

Mr. Speaker, Grand Cayman will also provide the venue for training of the Caribbean Financial Action Task Force Examiners, who will undertake mutual evaluations of member countries. These training sessions will commence in 1998.

Turning to developments in Cayman Brac, Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to state that the special incentives which were introduced by Government in 1996 to stimulate investment have been extended for a further year. Cayman National Bank has also extended its special mortgages to July 1998.

These incentives have given a further boost to both the real estate market and the construction industry, as land sales and planning approvals have seen appreciable increases over the past few months.

The Cayman Brac and Little Cayman Economic Development Steering Committee which has been set up to further economic development on the Islands has been quite active. The culmination of its first year's work has resulted in the preparation of a set of Proposals for the Strategic Development of Cayman Brac. These proposals, together with a list of projects identified by the Caribbean Development Bank, are now under consideration.

Mr. Speaker, in 1997 key pieces of legislation were passed in the Legislative Assembly to help advance the social well-being of the people of the Cayman Islands. The National Health Insurance Law was passed in June; and the National Pensions Law came into effect on 1st July, with a moratorium on enforcement until 1st January, 1998. The National Pensions Law covers all employers and employees in the Cayman Islands, with a five-year phase-in provision for contributions by eligible employees.

THE WORLD ECONOMY

Mr. Speaker, world output is expected to increase by 4¼% in both 1997 and 1998—slightly higher than the 4% recorded in 1996. This is the most rapid pace of growth enjoyed in a decade, and is particularly impressive because it is associated with moderate inflation in almost all of the advanced economies.

The US economy is projected to grow at 3.7% in 1997; growth in the UK is expected at 3.9%; and the recovery is expected to strengthen in Canada and across continental Western Europe. Overall, growth in the advanced economies as a group is projected to increase to 3% in 1997 and 1998, from 2¾% in 1996.

Insofar as the developing countries are concerned, real GDP [Gross Domestic Product] growth of this group is expected to be about 6½% in 1997 and 1998. But recent events in Asia may have the effect of dampening growth in the short run.

Asia has been in the spotlight in recent months because several countries have been experiencing financial market pressures in that region. These pressures have been most acute in Thailand, where the existence of large external deficits and fragile banking systems have affected investor confidence, leading to a sizeable depreciation of the Thai currency, the baht. Neighbouring countries—the Philippines, Malaysia and Indonesia—have suffered adversely from the Thai crisis.

The Thai government moved swiftly to formulate a Medium-Term Policy Strategy to help restore confidence in its economy and maintain economic stability. This action encouraged the provision of financial support from neighbouring countries and the international community—support which is expected to assist in the lowering of external deficits and building of official reserves.

Elsewhere in Asia, China's economy has maintained an impressive growth rate of 9%, while reducing inflation to an estimated 4½% in 1997. China is expected to be a major 'growth pole' in the 21st century.

THE DOMESTIC ECONOMY

The Cayman Islands continued to prosper in 1997. All the main sectors recorded good growth—finance, tourism, real estate and construction; and inflation averaged only 1.9% for the first half of the year. Overall, a growth rate of 5.0% is expected for 1997.

Mr. Speaker, I will now report on developments in the main sectors of the economy.

FINANCIAL AND BUSINESS SERVICES

The external environment for financial services continues to be quite favourable. This, coupled with the dynamic role played by the private sector and effective monitoring and legislation by the Government all contribute to the continuing success of the Cayman Islands' financial industry.

In the first nine months of the year, the financial and business services sector performed quite well. This includes all the main areas: banking, insurance, mutual funds and companies formation.

Mutual funds, the most dynamic branch of the financial industry, registered a 28.3% growth over the past year. As at September 1997, there were 1,593 regulated mutual funds and 135 entities licensed as mutual fund administrators. Compared to September 1996, the number of mutual funds increased by 351 and the number of mutual fund administrators by 17.

Mr. Speaker, the banking sector also performed well in 1997. The number of banking and trust licences increased from 577 at the end of September 1996 to 593 at the end of September 1997. There are now 45 of the top 50 banks in the world licensed in the Cayman Islands. In addition, four of the top 50 banks obtained additional banking licences.

The growth in company registrations also continued, with 6,453 new companies registered as at September 1997. This is an increase of 19.5% over the same period in 1996. In order to increase the efficiency of the Companies Registry, on-line general information services were introduced to the private sector in January of this year.

In terms of the insurance industry, the Cayman Islands continues to be a major centre for captive insurance companies. As at September 1997, gross assets of the captive insurance industry amounted to $8.0 billion and a total of 30 new captive licenses were issued over the past year.

The United States remains the most important area for captive insurance companies. But new areas are being explored in South and Central America, where insurance markets are now opening up, following liberalisation efforts.

The Cayman Islands continues to be recognised as the favoured domicile for healthcare captives. Once again, in December of this year, the International Business Conference's "Health Care Sponsored Captives Conference" will be held here in Grand Cayman.

Turning to shipping, Mr. Speaker, there has been minimal growth in the register. 1997 represented a period of consolidation, following an exceptionally good year in 1996, when growth in excess of 100% was recorded. However, the Shipping Registry is continuing many of the activities initiated earlier this year. The full-scale review of primary shipping laws has been completed, and a review of associated regulations is now being undertaken. With these and other initiatives being pursued, the Shipping Register is expected to record strong growth in 1998.

This year the Cayman Islands hosted the first Caribbean Port State Control Committee Meeting in February and the Second in April. The Third Shipowners' Advisory Council Meeting will also be held in Grand Cayman in November.

TOURISM

The tourism industry continues to make a sterling contribution to the economic well-being of the people of the Cayman Islands. For the first eight months of the year, total visitor arrivals to our shores was 863,174. Of this amount, cruise ship passengers numbered 592,658, or roughly 70% of the total, and stay-over visitors were 270,492.

1997 has been a difficult year for Caribbean tourism, but I am pleased to say that in spite of these difficulties our industry has registered positive growth. Compared to the January-August period in 1996, the number of cruise ship passengers grew by 15.3%; and the number of stay-over visitors by 2.7%.

The USA continues to be Cayman's major market, and growth in this area has been fairly stable. But stay-over visitors from Canada has shown a remarkable growth of 18.5%.

Mr. Speaker, in June of this year, the Department of Tourism, in conjunction with the Hotel and Condo Association, launched a significant retail programme designed to support the traditionally slow summer season. This marketing campaign, along with other targeted advertising efforts, has contributed significantly to ensuring that the Cayman Islands maintains its share of Caribbean tourism.

Other developments in the tourism sector include: commencement of construction of the Visitors' Centre at Pedro St James Castle; appointment of a Tourism Attraction Board; and preparations for the erection of a small tourism office in Cayman Brac.

AGRICULTURE

Over the past few months, the Department of Agriculture continued to assist farmers in a variety of ways. One important achievement has been the attainment of self-sufficiency in green banana and mango production. The Department was also successful in stemming the threatened introduction of the Hibiscus Pink Mealy Bug and other diseases into the Islands.

Turning to the Farmers' Market, gross revenue for the January-September period this year amounted to $1.2 million and an estimated $1.6 million is projected for the whole of 1997. At year-end, an overall growth of 23% is expected.

BANKING

Data for the first half of the year show that the total amount of loans and advances made to residents in 1997 was $947.5 million. This reflects a growth of 11.6% over the first half of 1996, which registered a total of $837.0 million.

The boom in the real estate sector increased the demand for loans, for a total of $139.2 million was approved for real estate purposes. This was a 3.7% increase over the previous year. But personal loans remained the largest category — with a total of $435.4 million approved for the year.

Mr. Speaker, total deposits amounted to $402.7 million—an increase of 7.9% over the June 1996 figure. Of this total, fixed deposits were $243.6 million; demand deposits, $80.1 million; and savings deposits, $78.9 million.

REAL ESTATE AND CONSTRUCTION

The 'boom' experienced by the real estate sector in 1996 continued into the first eight months of 1997. The value of land transferred as at August 1997 was $199.3 million, some $15 million more than for the same period in 1996. Government revenues from land and property transfers also increased significantly over the same period—from $15.8 million to $17.8 million. This reflects an increase of 10.7%.

In the construction sector, there was a similarly buoyant trend. With strong investor confidence in the economy, plans for new construction valued at $214.6 million were approved in the first nine months of the year. This represented an increase of 35% over the same period in 1996, resulting mainly from expansions in the construction of apartments and condos as well as in commercial buildings.

The value of planned new construction for "Apartments and Condominiums" was $68.8 million. The "Residential" and "Commercial/Industrial and Other" categories also had sizeable Planning approvals amounting to $47.9 million and $74.2 million respectively.

ECONOMIC OUTLOOK

Mr. Speaker, growth prospects for the domestic economy in 1998 continue to be bright. For the year ahead, an economic growth rate of around 5.0% is predicted. Mr. Speaker, I shall now turn to a review of the public finances.

THE STATE OF PUBLIC FINANCES THE 1997 REVISED BUDGET

Mr. Speaker, all Honourable Members are asked to note that the Treasury Department's projections for 1997 are used in the following comparisons, as opposed to the 1997 revised figures found in the Budget Document that is now before this Honourable House. The reason for this is that the Treasury's projections are more up to date than those found in the Document, as many of these figures were entered several months ago when the 1997 Budget compilation process began.

Based on Treasury projections, the total expenditure for 1997 is expected to reach $250.7 million which is approximately 1.9% less than the original estimate of $255.5 million set out in the 1997 Budget.

Total receipts are projected by the Treasury at $245.8 million, which falls below the original 1997 estimate of $249.9 million by about 1.6%. This shortfall in total receipts is caused mainly by the delayed implementation of, and removal of, some of the initial revenue-enhancement measures proposed in the 1997 Budget.

However, the 1.9% under-spending, along with the $5.8 million accumulated surplus brought forward from 1996 is expected to offset this shortfall. Therefore, the projected 1997 accumulated surplus is $0.9 million which is $0.2 million better than the original estimate of $0.7 million.

GENERAL RESERVE FUND

The General Reserve Fund balance at the beginning of 1997 stood at $7.6 million. This balance is expected to rise to approximately $8.9 million by 1997 year-end as a result of interest earned during the year and the inflow of the $1.0 million budgeted contribution from 1997 Recurrent Revenue. The 1998 Budget also includes a budgeted contribution to the Fund of $1.0 million.

PUBLIC SERVICE PENSION FUND

The balance on the Public Service Pension Fund at year-end 1997 is expected to be $29.5 million which represents a 33.5% increase in the Fund's balance during the year and a $23.2 million increase over the past 5 years. During 1998, the Fund is expected to exceed the $40.0 million mark as result of employer ($6.7 million) and employee ($2.3 million) contributions and the expected investment earnings on the Fund during that year.

HOUSING RESERVE FUND

The balance on the Housing Reserve Fund is expected to reach approximately $0.5 million by year-end 1997. Honourable Members will recall that this Fund was established to support any calls on guarantees issued by the Government under the Guaranteed Home Mortgage Scheme. To date, some 178 loans valuing $17.3 million have been approved and $6.0 million of guarantees have been issued. However, no guarantees have been called to date.

PUBLIC DEBT

Mr. Speaker, as at 1st January 1997, the Total Public Debt stood at $67.6 million, of which $50.1 million was Central Government Debt, and $17.5 million was Self-Financing Debt owed by statutory authorities but guaranteed by Government. After taking into consideration loan repayments and draw-downs during 1997, total Public Debt will rise to approximately $82 million by year-end 1997.

Notwithstanding these changes, however, the total annual debt service (principal and interest) is expected to represent 6.8% of 1997 Recurrent Revenue which is below the debt service ceiling of 10% established by the Government. This percentage is exceedingly conservative when compared to that of most other governments.

DRAFT ESTIMATES FOR 1998

Mr. Speaker, Total Recurrent Revenue is expected to be $248.2 million, up 12.8% over the 1997 figure projected by the Treasury of $220.1 million.

The Total Recurrent Expenditure is $204.0 million, up 9.5% over the 1997 figure of $186.3 million projected by the Treasury. In addition, New Recurrent Services totalling $2.4 million are also budgeted for the staffing of health care facilities and various government schools.

The total ongoing Statutory Expenditure is $20.2 million and represents debt repayment costs, pensions payments and gratuity payments.

In addition, the Government and its employees have budgeted to contribute a total of $9.0 million (employer $6.7 million and employee $2.3 million) to the Public Service Pension Fund during 1998.

Other Fund Contributions from Recurrent Revenue (except for the Pension Fund mentioned above) include: $1.0 million to the General Reserve Fund; $0.2 million to the Housing Reserve Fund; and $3.9 million to the Capital Development Fund.

Total expenditure against the Capital Development Fund is budgeted at $28.6 million and is financed as follows: $3.93 million contribution from Recurrent Revenue; $2.0 million contribution from the Infrastructure Development Fund; $2.04 million from the Environmental Protection Fund; and $20.6 million from existing and new borrowings. I should mention, Mr. Speaker, that the approval for the setting up of these funds will be sought during the Finance Committee meeting on the Budget.

Of this total loan, new borrowings are $19.5 million and cover mainly health facilities, education facilities and roads development. The balance of $1.1 million is budgeted for the continued development of the Pedro St. James Heritage Site. Honourable Members will recall that a loan was approved in 1996 for this specific purpose.

Mr. Speaker, the net result of these figures is an estimated Accumulated Surplus at year-end 1998 of $0.1 million. In addition, the Environmental Protection and Infrastructure Development Funds are expected to have positive balances of $0.41 million and $0.24 million, respectively, at year-end 1998.

CONCLUSION

Mr. Speaker, I wish to thank all public service employees who assisted with the preparation of the 1998 Budget and the public service in general for its continued advice and support.

I recommend the Appropriation Bill (1998), 1997, which proposes total expenditure of $244.4 million, broken down as follows: Recurrent Expenditure ($204.0 million); New Services ($2.4 million); Capital Acquisitions ($8.2 million); Contributions to the General Reserve and Housing Reserve Funds ($1.2 million); and Capital Development ($28.6 million).

Mr. Speaker, as is customary, these figures do not include a statutory provision of $29.2 million, which is broken down into $20.2 million for ongoing public debt, pension and gratuity payments, and $9.0 million in employer ($6.7 million) and employee ($2.3 million) contributions to the Public Service Pension Fund. This expenditure is covered by other legislation and is accordingly not included in this Bill.

Mr. Speaker, before closing, Members are asked to note that there are some differences in detail but not in the "bottom line" between the 1998 Draft Budget Document and the Appropriation Bill. These differences in detail arise because of the reclassification of employee pension contribution from Recurrent Expenditure to Statutory Expenditure, and the introduction of the fund accounting concept in the 1998 Budget. Prior to the commencement of the deliberations of Finance Committee, these differences will be highlighted and explained in full. However, I am quite willing to meet with any Member who requires clarification prior to the commencement of the Finance Committee meeting.

Mr. Speaker, for the sake of clarity, Members are asked to note that the information provided in this Budget Address corresponds with the Appropriation Bill which sets out the definitive figures.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to thank you and Honourable Members for the opportunity to present this Budget Address and the Appropriation Bill on behalf of the Government. Thank you.

The Speaker: I will now entertain a Motion by the Honourable Third Official Member to defer the debate.

MOTION FOR THE DEFERRAL OF DEBATE

Hon. George A. McCarthy Mr. Speaker, I would like to move that the debate on the Appropriation Bill be deferred until Wednesday of next week. Thank you.

The Speaker: The question is that the debate on the Appropriation Bill be deferred until Wednesday 12th November, 1997. All in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

AGREED: THAT THE DEBATE ON THE BUDGET ADDRESS BE DEFERRED UNTIL WEDNESDAY, 12TH NOVEMBER, 1997.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. This may be an appropriate time for us to take our morning break. We shall suspend for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.12 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 11.52 AM

The Speaker: Pleased be seated. Proceedings are resumed.

CORRECTION OF BALLOT COUNT

The Speaker: Before proceeding, I would like to advise the Honourable House that there was an omission of one ballot cast for the Fifth Seat on Executive Council. I have discussed this with the Scrutineers and the Clerk and have reviewed the ballots cast. In order to correct the records of the House, I now advise that a total of 14 ballot papers had been circulated and cast, nine of which were in favour of Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly, and five were spoiled, or blank ballots with no vote cast. Therefore, I wish to have the record corrected to state that there were a total of 14 votes cast.

SECOND READINGS

THE JUDGES' EMOLUMENTS AND ALLOWANCES BILL, 1997

The Clerk: The Judges' Emoluments and Allowances Bill, 1997.

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles I move the Second Reading of The Judges' Emoluments and Allowances Bill, 1997.

Perhaps I can begin my debate by saying that although I am moving and introducing this Bill to the Honourable House, it in no way implies that I have any control over the Judiciary in Cayman. I am introducing the Bill on behalf of His Excellency the Governor and in fulfilment of my role in dealing with matters that affect the Judiciary in this Honourable House. I would not like there to be any misunderstanding over that.

The independence of the Judiciary is at the heart of a democracy such as in Cayman, and is a matter of considerable significance to us to the extent that it is enshrined in our Constitution. The independence and freedom of the Judiciary to be not constrained and to be independent from other arms of Government is absolutely fundamental, particularly in a jurisdiction which has such an international reputation as the Cayman Islands. The appointments of judges are already made by His Excellency the Governor acting in his discretion; they are not appointments that are made through the Public Service Commission. This Bill merely takes, in terms of the emoluments and allowances, that particular process a stage further.

As I said, the Constitution enshrines and ensures the independence of the Judiciary by regulating both the appointment of judges and, indeed, if necessary, their dismissal. It is worth my pointing out where the relevant sections in the Cayman Islands (Constitution) Order of 1993 are. The sections that deal with the Grand Court and the Grand Court Judges are sections 49H through to section 49M. There are also sections dealing with the Cayman Islands Court of Appeals just immediately prior to those sections, at 49A through to 49G.

Indeed, it does not stop there because there are two other offices for which independence is an essential ingredient: the office of the Attorney General, and the office of the Auditor General. They, in turn, are referred to in the Constitution at section 55A, which deals with the office of Attorney General, in particular the Attorney General's role as the prosecuting authority in Cayman; and section 55B deals with the Auditor General who is the watchdog over Government's financial affairs, in particular, and the workings of Government. It is extremely important that all of those offices are independent and are seen to be independent—both in Cayman and internationally.

The Bill before us today is an extremely short Bill and is designed to fulfil section 49I subsection (5) of the Cayman Islands (Constitution) Order 1993. I will read that subsection out for Members: "The emoluments and allowances of a Judge of the Grand Court shall be prescribed by law and shall be charged on the revenues of the Islands, and the emoluments and allowances of a judge shall not, without his consent, be reduced during his continuance in office." The significance of that section is obvious—it is so that pressure cannot be brought to bear on Members of our Judiciary by intimidating them in respect of their salaries or, indeed, as far as the Constitution is concerned, their security of tenure here. It is to enable them to become truly independent and unaffected by those sorts of considerations. It is to fulfil that that this Bill has been prepared and brought before the House.

As I said, it is very short and straightforward and it merely confirms what is, in reality, the situation in any event; which is, that the emoluments, the annual salary, any pensions and other allowances that are due to both the Chief Justice and the other judges of the Grand Court of the Cayman Islands, shall be prescribed from time to time by the Governor acting in his discretion. That means, for the avoidance of doubt, that it has nothing to do with the Executive Council of the Cayman Islands, or, indeed, the Government. It is entirely a matter for the Governor, himself, acting in his discretion. This preserves the separation of powers between the Judiciary and Executive arms of Government.

Once this Bill has been passed and the Governor has been empowered to fulfil the constitutional requirements of the Cayman Islands Constitution, then it cannot be said that the Legislative Assembly, or any of the Executive arms of Government are in some way retaining any control over the Judiciary. We can proudly say what has always been the case in the Cayman Islands, that our judges and courts are entirely independent and preserve the freedom of democracy in Cayman.

Mr. Speaker, with those words, I commend the Bill to this House.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled The Judges' Emolument and Allowances Bill, 1997 be given a second reading. The motion is open for debate.

The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField Mr. Speaker, I would just like to make a few comments so that the Honourable Attorney General and other Members of the Legislative Assembly will know that I am fully in agreement with this Bill. We need to make it clear to the public that there should be a separation of powers in this country. I think it is very important that it be made clear that the Executive Council will not have any role in this matter.

I am very pleased that the Honourable Second Official Member has brought this Bill before the Legislative Assembly for approval.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I too wish to give my support to this Bill. I think that it is a very important Bill. What it is doing is putting into law provisions that had already been made in our Constitution for the protection of the Chief Justice and other judges of the Grand Court.

I was pleased to hear the Honourable Second Official Member clarify the point, making it quite clear that he was moving this Bill on behalf of the Governor and not usurping the position as he recognises that the Judiciary is an independent arm of Government.

He stressed the importance of the separation of powers. That the position of our judges is protected is very important as is the position of the Attorney General, and, indeed, the Auditor General, especially with the very important role that they have to play. The emoluments of the Chief Justice and officers of the Grand Court are not subjected to the whims and fancies of the Executive Council as such.

The Fourth Elected Member for George Town also made that point, which I think is a very important point, that this is done with the Governor acting in his discretion as Governor and not as Governor in Executive Council. So this is entirely a matter for the Governor. I think the listening public should understand that he alone has the discretion to interfere, to make any changes to the salaries or other emoluments of the Chief Justice and the Grand Court Judges.

I want to congratulate the Mover, the Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration, for the clarity and for the time he took explaining the points raised under this Bill. Of importance is that in the wisdom of this Honourable House, in 1993 (and I trust that no Honourable Member will jump up and say that it was his Government that did this) this was enshrined in our Constitution, ensuring the protection of the salaries of judges of the Grand Court. Long before 1993 this had been in the pipeline.

The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration also referred to section 49I(1) which states, "The Judges of the Grand Court shall be a Chief Justice and such number of other judges (if any) as may be prescribed by law. . ." So that section makes it abundantly clear who we are referring to.

Section 49I(5) states, inter alia, "The emoluments and allowances of a Judge of the Grand Court shall be prescribed by law and shall be charged on the revenues of the Islands, and the emoluments and allowances of a judge shall not, without his consent, be reduced during his continuance in office." This is very important that this is also protected in the Constitution, that Members of this Legislative Assembly will not have the power to amend and change the emoluments of the Chief Justice or a judge of the Grand Court as they see fit, or because they may not like a particular officer, be he the Chief Justice or other officer or judge of the Grand Court. This also is enshrined in the Constitution. It is very timely that we now have a Bill which seeks to put that into Law.

Also, in section 28 of the 1993 Amendment Order to the Constitution, an attempt is made under the transitional provisions to clarify the situation as regards any reference to the existing Grand Court. In other words, pensions and other benefits that have accrued will be protected by the reciprocal effect of this Law. This is very important, that these benefits are also protected.

I will not take up a lot of time reiterating the points that have already been made by the Honourable Mover of this Bill, only to say that this is a very timely Bill and I give it my one hundred percent support.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause). If not, does the Mover wish to reply?

Hon. Richard H. Coles Just to thank Members who spoke for their support on this Bill, and for the tacit support of other Members.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled The Judges' Emoluments and Allowances Bill, 1997, be given a second reading. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: THE JUDGES' EMOLUMENTS AND ALLOWANCES BILL, 1997 GIVEN A SECOND READING.

The Speaker: Second Readings, continuing.

THE ANIMALS (AMENDMENT) (PROTECTION OF AIRCRAFT) BILL, 1997

The Clerk: The Animals (Amendment) (Protection of Aircraft) Bill, 1997.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean Mr. Speaker, I beg to move the second reading of a Bill for a Law to Amend the Animals Law (1996 Revision).

Although a very short Bill, this Bill is very important. This Bill seeks to amend section 78 of the Animals Law (1996 Revision) to permit the Governor to grant exemptions from the Law so that measures may be taken to ensure that aircraft are not endangered by birds or straying animals.

We have been very lucky in these islands with regard to safety of aircraft because of birds on several of our airports. It is a fact that each time an aircraft ingests a bird through an engine it costs a huge amount to repair. But money cannot be weighed against the life of an individual. We, as sensible legislators, seek every precaution to try to eliminate the danger which is presently before us. It is my understanding that costs could range from $200,000 to $400,000 whenever an engine is repaired.

Here in Grand Cayman, especially (and I think also in Cayman Brac), the type of bird mostly creating the problem is the egret which harbours around areas such as airports and swampy areas. This amendment to the Animals Law will allow the Governor to instruct capable persons to have this nuisance removed in a safe manner. Indeed, at the same time we will be protecting not only the aircraft, but the life we save may be our own.

So, Mr. Speaker, I ask all Members of this Honourable House to offer this short amending Bill their support.

The Speaker: The question is that The Animals (Amendment) (Protection of Aircraft) Bill, 1997 be given a second reading. It is now open for debate. (Pause)

If no Member wishes to debate would the Mover like to say anything further? The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean Just to say thanks to all Members of the House for understanding the importance of this Bill and I do appreciate their silent support.

The Speaker: The question is that The Animals (Amendment) (Protection of Aircraft) Bill, 1997 be given a second reading. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: THE ANIMALS (AMENDMENT) (PROTECTION OF AIRCRAFT) BILL, 1997, GIVEN A SECOND READING.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 24(5)

Hon. Truman M. Bodden I move the suspension of Standing Order 24(5) to enable the motions to be taken.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 24(5) SUSPENDED.

The Speaker: Government Motion No. 11/97, The Development Plan 1997. The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

GOVERNMENT MOTION NO. 11/97

THE DEVELOPMENT PLAN 1997

Hon. Truman M. Bodden Thank you, Mr. Speaker. This Motion, as well as the other Motion, was handed out in draft form some time back, and was actually also given to the press, even though I subsequently filed it sometime after. It has also been reported in the press. The Motion reads:

“WHEREAS: In May 1991, the review of the Development Plan 1977 commenced pursuant to section 7(1), Development and Planning Law (1995 Revision). To broaden the scope of public involvement a Development Plan Review Committee and committees for each of Grand Cayman's five (5) electoral districts were formed. The Development Plan Review Committee was the liaison unit between the Central Planning Authority and the District Review Committees.

“Between May 1991 and December 1993, the Authority and the District Review Committees held numerous meetings to seek public input for the exercise. To reach as wide an audience as possible, public meetings were held in each of the districts, questionnaires were distributed to the public, and discussions were held with the essential utility providers (Caribbean Utilities Company Ltd., Cable and Wireless, Water Authority and Cayman Water Company Ltd.) and Government departments.

“As a result of this information-sharing exercise, the Central Planning Authority (CPA) accepted the Fourth Draft of the proposed amendments in December 1993 and put a Plan on public display for two months, starting in December 1994. This period was extended by another month to allow additional public input.

“In late March 1995, the CPA started reviewing all the objections and representations as well as rezoning applications that were previously refused. Three Tribunals were formed to expedite the process. By October 1995, the CPA had submitted the reports to the Ministry of Education and Planning, for transmission to the Development Plan Tribunals. The Development Plan Tribunals held hearings from January until July 1996, after each person who had made representations was afforded at least 28 days' notice of the hearing. The Tribunals submitted their reports between June 1996 and March 1997.

“The Tribunals’ reports were submitted to the CPA during three meetings in April 1997. After careful consideration and deliberations during these meetings, as well as those in May and June 1997, The Development Plan 1977 was prepared.

“The Development Plan 1997 still incorporates some of the guiding principles of the Development Plan 1977 as well as the Development Guidelines for Development in Cayman Brac and Little Cayman (Appendices 1 and 2). The Plan is still intended to reflect the heritage and aspirations of the Islands—their self-reliance, their seafaring, their free enterprise and land ownership interests. The Plan is still intended to take the form of practical guidelines to be applied with flexibility, understanding and common sense by the Authority.

“Three new zones (Environmentally Sensitive, Environmentally Protected, and Neighbourhood Tourism) recommended by one of the Development Plan Tribunals and the road reserves were not published in the 1994 Draft Plan, and therefore the public had no opportunity to make objections and representations on the said three zones in accordance with section 8 of the Development and Planning Law (1995 Revision). The Executive Council shall, under the provision of the Law, require the Authority, within two months of the passing of the Development Plan 1997, to expeditiously carry out a fresh survey of the said three zones and the road reserves which is expected to be completed and presented to the Legislative Assembly within 15 months.

“NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED THAT in accordance with Section 7 of the Development and Planning Law (1995 Revision), the Central Planning Authority hereby submits to the Legislative Assembly the report of the survey, together with the proposals for alterations and additions to the Development Plan 1977 consisting of the written statement and the zoning map, both of which are attached hereto and which shall hereafter be and be deemed to be the Development Plan for the Cayman Islands and shall come into force one month after the passing of this resolution.”

Mr. Speaker, I so move this Resolution.

The Speaker: Government Motion No. 11/97 has been duly moved. Does the Member wish to speak to it?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden The Motion sets out a lot of detail relating to the Plan, as this House regards this Plan as extremely important. It is the first amendment in twenty years. I would just like to address a few areas that I think are important to explain.

The first one is the paragraph in “Whereas” clause number 7, that three new zones, as well as reserves for future roads, were not published in the 1994 Draft Plan. The people who own the land, who would have been afected by the three zones and the reserves for the roads, did not have an opportunity to object or make representation, because the three zones and the road reserves were not part of that Plan. To keep in line with the Planning Law, it is important that any affected landowner have a full right, in accordance with the Law, to be heard—and to be heard in person, if they so wish—by the Tribunals, of which there are three.

That right is so important that the proper course, for any failure of any part of that very important democratic right which affects this Plan in relation to those three zones and the road reserves, is to have it sent back for the owners to have an opportunity to make representation. I will possibly be bringing (either in this meeting or the next meeting of the Legislative Assembly) an amendment of the Appeals Rule for the Development Plan so that it is put beyond doubt that notice shall be mandatory to any person who may be affected by a new zone.

This Plan began in 1991 under the then Minister, the current Third Elected Member for George Town who was succeeded by the Minister for Tourism, and subsequently by myself. However, it has been looked at by every Member of Executive Council who has held that position over the past twenty years. I guess it is significant that this is twenty years (give or take a few months) since the Development Plan was passed in 1977.

I had the opportunity of meeting with the National Trust and I amended this Motion in paragraph 7 in relation to the zones to comply with requests made by Rev. Alson [Ebanks] and Mrs. Wendy [Moore], the Chairman and Secretary of the National Trust, to make it mandatory that within two months of the passing of the Plan the Central Planning Authority would begin the process in relation to the three new zones and the road reserves.

I also had the opportunity of meeting with the Chairman of the Tribunal who recommended these three zones. He, being a lawyer, also understood the difficulty which arose as a result of the fact that when zones are actually produced from a tribunal after the period for the public to object, then it deprives the public of objecting in relation to those zones.

I am satisfied that this amendment to the Development Plan is one that has complied with the Law, and that the full democratic rights. . . and I must say that they are the most bureaucratic, yet protective, of public rights that any Law has in it, and that is why it takes a very long time to reach the stage we have reached today with this Plan.

The Plan itself comprises the written statement and a map so that the public, as well as Members of this Honourable House, can easily see the amendments to the Plan. I have set out in the front part of this (the preface) that the part in bold type is new, and the part in normal, lighter type is old and remains from the 1977 Plan. Also, on the map where it is striped on a zone that means that it was an amendment made by this Plan. So there can be no doubt whatsoever, and anyone who picks this up knows exactly what the amendments to the Plan are.

The complexity of this Plan can be best borne out by the fact that over the past twenty years successive Governments, including several that I have been in, were not able to complete it. This Plan is the culmination of three Executive Council Members who have had responsibility for this Plan.

For the benefit of Members and the public, while we did not (or could not, in my view) legally incorporate the zones, there are several (in fact many) areas where this Plan makes reference to conservation. One of these is found in paragraph 1, subparagraph 2, on page 2 where we have added “subject thereto its environmental character.” There is a further reference on page 3, and I am not going to try to read all of these, but I just wanted to point out that while the conservation zones are not in here, there are amendments which have tightened considerably the conservation aspect of this. At page 3, subparagraph (g) of 1.3 says, “to encourage the necessary conservation of existing fresh water supplies.”

There is a further full paragraph set out at page 6, the third paragraph which deals with the mangrove areas or wetlands in which an application may be made subject to an environmental analysis. Perhaps I should read that because this did arise from the Tribunals' recommendations. It reads:

“New developments proposed in the mangrove areas or wetlands may be subject to the environmental analysis provisions contained in Appendix 3 and other relevant provisions of the Statements in a manner which enables the Authority to be satisfied that -

- “(i) the application site is suitable for the use and form of development proposed;
- “(ii) the development will not have a detrimental impact on the natural, human and built environments of the area; and
- “(iii) the scale, density and design of development take proper account of a site's physical and environmental characteristics.”

Appendix 3 at the end states: “The submission of an Environmental Impact Statement (EIS) for development projects which, because of the characteristics of the site of the particulars of the proposal, may be required in order for the Authority to carefully examine the potential impacts of the development prior to the determination of the application.

“An environmental impact statement shall include the appropriate plans, information and date in sufficient details to enable the Authority to determine, examine and assess the potential environmental impacts of the proposal.”

There are two further references in bold right at the end of 1.3, and I do not intend to belabour this any further. Paragraph 2.5 also has references, as well as at the bottom of page 8 “Marine Commercial.” This seemed to have been a concern of the public that in the Marine

Commercial area, boats may not be properly containing and discharging on land the sewage that derives when people live on boats, or when a large number of people are on a boat using the toilet.

In the “Hotel/Tourism Zone” at page 10. . .

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, would this be a convenient time to take the luncheon suspension, or would it break your train of thought?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: We can take a break, sir. Thank you.

The Speaker: Proceedings are suspended until 2.15.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.45 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.29 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Debate continues on the Government Motion Number 11 of 1997. The Honourable Member for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I would like to make it clear that the Development Plan 1997 before this Honourable House deals only with Grand Cayman. The guidelines from 1977 relate and continue to relate to Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, even though preparation is beginning now for plans in those two Islands. So nothing that is being said today in this Plan affects Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. Everything that was preserved before is preserved in this.

Mr. Speaker, other areas in which there have been some changes are where there was only one Industrial Zone, there is now a Heavy Industrial Zone and a Light Industrial Zone. The Public Open Space Zone has not been affected; and the Agricultural Residential Zone has had a few variations to it. Scenic Coastline has had added to it the following, which, I believe, is in line with the wishes of the National Trust: “the panoramic views and vistas provided by these coastlines are natural assets which are to be safeguarded for present and future generations.”

The Historic Overlay Zone is one that derived and came from the report of the Appeals Tribunal that dealt with the Development Plan, chaired by Mr. W.S. Walker, and it provides as follows: “The purpose of the Historic Overlay Zone is to promote and encourage the perpetuation of historic buildings and structures with the underlying zone remaining in effect. Development will be strictly controlled to conserve the Cayman Islands' historical and architectural heritage.

“Subject to the Development and Planning Law and Regulations, the Authority shall apply the Historic Overlay Zone provisions and other relevant provisions of the Statement in a manner best calculated to —

- "(a) preserve and protect the established historical, architectural or cultural character of the area;
- "(b) preserve any significant aspect, appearance or view of the area; and
- "(c) preserve and protect any prospect or view, being an environmentally important prospect or view, from any public area."

The section "Land Above Water Lenses" has not changed, nor has the "National and Community Parks." "Road Requirements" is substantially the same except that there has been an addition: to encourage the utilising of common roads in a subdivision.

"Subdivision of Land" is a new section on page 14, that really puts into effect what substantially is the practice at present.

Mr. Speaker, one of the underlying things here, and I say this in relation to the three zones that were not put in this Plan, as well as the road corridors, and Mr. Speaker, these zones and the corridors are important. That is why we have asked for this to begin within the next two months. But the underlying factor is that if a zone is put in, for example, one of the preservation zones, then, Mr. Speaker, the persons who own that property must be fully compensated in accordance with the Law, to the extent of the diminution in value of that property.

And there are sections in the Law that deal with property that is subject to acquisition, but basically they follow the same principles that are set out in the Land Acquisition Law, which are that Government, if it decreases the value—for example, if I take the best example, the wetlands in the Duck Pond and area between Rum Point and down to the Booby Cay area, those lands, if they are ultimately zoned with one of the two new zones that are going in there, then, in my view, persons who are affected, or are damaged, or the value of the land is reduced, are entitled not only to compensation but they are entitled to object, because many of them have put their life savings into this.

So the underlying aspect of this Plan is really that on those zones, when they come up, this Honourable House would have to take a decision on whether it is going to appropriate the money. Because under the Law, if that appropriation is not made, I think within a year, subject to looking at the Law, then once a request is made from those people, the zone will fall away.

Mr. Speaker, I believe that those wetlands are important, and I believe that, as far as possible, subject to the funds and within the Law, there should be protection of them. I also personally would assist the National Trust as far as I can to purchase lands that are environmentally sensitive, where they feel that is necessary.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to repeat that my thanks go out, and I did this in somewhat more detail in a press release, to the Honourable Members of this House first, and also to the people of the Cayman Islands who assisted and made representations or objections in this Plan; to the present and former Ministers and Members of Executive Council who were involved in this; to the past and present Director of Planning; also to the Chairman and members of the Central Planning Authority and all the staff there; and especially to my staff in my Ministry.

Mr. Speaker, while the document that is presented here today may appear to be a simple document, it has taken more effort from not just me but a lot of people. And especially I would like to thank the Chairmen and the members of the Development Plan Tribunals and the Appeals Tribunal, but it has taken a lot more effort over a period of nearly four years now, or more than that, in fact five years, to get to this stage. And while nothing is ever perfect, Mr. Speaker, the thing about this plan is that it has run a very lengthy, full democratic process, and what we have here today is, in my view, what the public wishes as a development plan.

I must say it brings back a bit of nostalgia from the days in 1977 when the 1977 Plan came before this Honourable House, in which the country was in a state of turmoil, and the process relating to that was very much expedited, and I think within a matter of less than six weeks the full process was run through and it was brought in. So the time has come, twenty years later, to revise that Plan and amend it, and I would ask Members to please support this, because I really believe if this Development Plan does not go through this time, it could sit on the shelf for another twenty years, and that is not in the interests of the Cayman Islands. Thank you, Sir.

The Speaker: This is now open for debate. Does any other Member wish to speak to the motion? If no other Member wishes to speak . . . the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In responding to Government's Motion No. 11/97, let me say first of all, that I had an opportunity beforehand to go through some of the "WHEREASES" which the Minister and his advisors formulated. I am not on my feet because I would like to criticise anything with regard to this Plan. In fact, I am on my feet because I would like to express an inability on my part, in that I do not have sufficient knowledge of the entire details to be able to somehow critically assess the pros and cons of this new 1997 Development Plan.

It is something I often like to refer to in saying that somehow one is at a disadvantage in being a simple Backbencher in the Legislative Assembly, and one is at an even greater disadvantage being an individual, independent Member of the Legislative Assembly, in that one has very few bureaucracies or individuals to fall back on in order to make intelligent decisions when it comes to such programmes of such magnitude.

I came back to this country in 1977 with a Ph.D., and during that time I understood, or had followed in the papers while in Germany, that the Unity Team had come to power as a result of the fact that Caymanians en masse were dissatisfied with the activities of the Cadastral Survey; and that the Caymanians in fact wanted a Development Plan that gave them certain types of commercial possibilities with regard to use of their private properties.

Mr. Speaker, the reason I am going back is in order to give myself some grounds for discussion. I am saying that I do admit that it is not easy to arrive at a conclusion for such a plan, and that it would take long to arrive at a conclusion, but perhaps by the time one arrives at the conclusion, the conclusion that one has arrived at is no longer a valid conclusion. That is also a possibility, Mr. Speaker.

If I have not made it clear before, I am becoming an advocate of systematic planning. I am becoming an advocate in saying that we need to have an overall plan for these Islands. In other words, not, Mr. Speaker, that we have, saying that we are going to have one from Column A and one from Column B and two from Column C, but that we have a concept of where we are going as a people.

Mr. Speaker, for us to know where we are going as a people, we have to have collective agreement with regard to what is important to us as a people. Of course land forms the background, or land is the substance from which a people are nurtured. And in developing any type of programme or plan for a people, it is necessary to take the land considerations into account.

In the many discussions I have heard over the past years with regard to dredging, with regard to preservation of the wetlands, with regard to the preservation of the North Sound, with regard to the preservation of the environmentally sensitive parts of our Islands, with all of the discussions from all of the different types of positions, I have never, never heard any anyone clearly define and anchor themselves to any position with regard to where we are going. Because as soon as people start talking about preserving the environment, we hear them criticising something else.

Our society is riddled with these types of contradictions, in fact. And in debating whether or not I accept this Development Plan at this particular point—because somehow I feel that when it is stated that this is a development plan, a development plan, it is a physical development plan. It is not a development plan, and that is misunderstanding to call it a development plan. Development is more than about physical development. Physical development sets the stage for other developments, and can determine, to a very large extent, whether or not certain types of economic and social development are possible.

Now, as I am discussing this from a somewhat disadvantaged position, in that I am not a Minister of Government who has access to a wide body of experts and expertise, it is my understanding that the Minister responsible for this particular plan did consult the public, and did give the public sufficient time to be able to respond in a way in which they could. There is no doubt in my mind that the Minister has done his job from a particular point of view.

But Mr. Speaker, I think that the people cannot respond properly if the people are not working with the right assumptions. And for us to allow the assumption to be among the people that we are dealing with a Development Plan here, is to mislead people right away. It is to cause people not to make the supreme type of consideration. Because the supreme type of consideration would involve, not just the use of the land, but also who can use the land, who can buy the land, who can exploit the land in certain ways and certain cases.

The assumption I am trying to bring in here, is that somehow, we need to look at what we call land and what is the use of that thing which we call land, which we must then further trade, on the open market, in order to achieve commodities and services we desire as a people. So the whole concept of land, and how we look at land, should be introduced into any sensible programme or plan for the 21st century. We cannot continue to look at land, land value and land use in the old traditional ways. We must look at land, land value and land use in a much more developed and dynamic manner.

Land and the use of land is not a static exercise, but a dynamic exercise that changes social relationships between people and between countries. And for this reason, it is important that we at this particular point, in talking about a development plan, in talking about a physical development plan, also deal with the social and philosophical and political implications of land, land use and land ownership.

This makes a lot of sense to anyone who tries to dabble with economics, in that if we are members of a society, or if we are a country that has only one real commodity, which is land, all other commodities we have stem from that land, the desire of people to use that land. Whether it be for recreational purposes, or to play Monopoly® on the international exchange markets, by buying that land or condominium, which basically springs from the land, and then further, selling it in order to make a profit.

So land in Cayman, we have thought about it in a very inactive sense. We must begin to think of land in a more active sense. We must understand the active role land is playing in creating the wealth within this country. And how we deal with land, how we redistribute land, how land ownership is determined, is very important for the continuation of our economic progress.

Now if we are to continue our progress, we will have to make more and more of our land available to members of the foreign community seeking to do certain types of investments in the Cayman Islands. In doing so, what we do is escalate the value, or we increase the value of our land, which members of our society consider to be very positive. Because if I have a piece of property, and through the zoning of the property, or the non-zoning of the property, in a commercial area or a tourist residential area, if I can increase the value of my land, that is an asset to me as an individual. But it could, at the same time, turn around and be very short-sighted, and be a disadvantage to me as a member of the society.

Because if we are going to create poor people as a result of how we deal with the question of land and land ownership and land zoning, if we are going to take off the market, or prevent by the high prices, middle-class Caymanians from being able to afford land and being able to afford homes, then we are also, at the same time, creating certain types of social and political problems that might rob us of our present economic stability.

So, Mr. Speaker, it is very clear to me, even without the experts, even without the consultation with the general public that the Minister has had access to, it is very clear to me that we are not just dealing with a physical plan, we are not just dealing with a physical problem, we are dealing with a social, economic and political problem or consideration as well.

In making these considerations, I have had people say to me, look, I want my piece of land zoned commercial, because if our piece of land in Rock Hole is zoned commercial, it means that we could sell this piece of land and make a good profit. But the question is, to us in Rock Hole, who is going to come to buy that piece of land? Not one of us! So maybe in this particular instance it might be, for the good of the people, better to let the land remain non-commercial, let the people continue to live in Rock Hole, and rather than moving out to Prospect and paying $36,000 for a lot of land that you cannot grow breadfruit trees on, maybe that they continue to buy land in Rock Hole at a still affordable price.

Those are types of considerations that have to be made in any kind of planning. And like I said, I am not familiar enough about this to say that all of these exercises have been excluded. But in referring to the "WHEREAS," Mr. Speaker, I get the feeling that the Minister did take into account, and I know the people in the Planning Department, especially Mr. Carson Ebanks, who was the former Director of Planning, and Kenneth Ebanks—I know these people think about planning, not just as physical planning, but also as social and economic planning or issues as well.

And in the "WHEREAS," I get the feeling that somehow, at the bottom of what is being said here, is the attempt to give us guidelines that will not only manage the physical allocation and labelling of land and land spaces, but also give us a particular guideline as to what type of economic activities should be or could be pursued in certain areas.

So again, my point is not to condemn what has been done so far. I must commend it to a certain extent, but to say that we have to get down to the question of asking ourselves, where is this country going? Where is this country going economically, if land and our use of land have to do with economics? How much of this economics can be controlled by Caymanians, if that is desirable or if that is not desirable?

And Mr. Speaker, as we go along, we will find out also that zoning will probably influence what type of stamp duties are paid. Those again are questions. So I call this "Zone A" and he pays more, and he calls this "Zone B" and he pays a little less, depending upon how it is zoned.

But the mere fact of us having to consider zoning, is almost primitive, because it is not the real question of whether or not this is agricultural, this is industrial, this is this and this is that. The labelling of these things is not essentially the question. What is essentially the question is use. Who has access to these lands? Are we, at the end of the day, going to say that the mangrove is important in the long term, but in the short term, what is important is our cash flow, is how our balances look, is how our stamp duty transfer collection looks? So sometimes, in fact, what we do is compromise for short-term results, we compromise long-term goals.

I believe that a rightful development plan must take into account the question of land ownership by Caymanian people. Land ownership, not to build condominiums, but land ownership at least to build homes. So somehow, if I could be told how these considerations have been made in the summing-up by the Minister, I should be very grateful. But in his exercise here, he says, this plan has been prepared for the purpose of regulating the development and use of land in the Cayman Islands, and applies to all the Cayman Islands, except Cayman Brac, which again in this situation, comes under a different concept or a different strategy, and rightfully so. We need to have a specific strategy, we need to have that specific strategy identified, and that specific strategy must take into account the number of people in this country who are going to be without land, the number of people in this country who no longer will inherit lands from their fathers, and who will not be able to buy lands in this country because the price of land will not be determined by local demand, but by international demand. That is where I am talking about economics and its relation to the social and political structure. All of this must be thought out. I must be persuaded that all these considerations have been duly thought out in this whole exercise process, otherwise this Plan is not going to be useful to us for very long.

Every year, when we see children graduating from high school, we see that they are born indebted, in fact. Once their parents remove their active support from the children, we see that in fact the children are indebted. They have to go to the bank to borrow money to buy a car. They have to save a certain amount of money to put on a deposit for an apartment. So the person actually coming into the world in the Cayman Islands is drastically different from the person who came into the world in the Cayman Islands in 1977, when most of us owned land. My father inherited land. I am not going to inherit anything that I do not work for!

My grandfather had about twenty kids, and every single one of them inherited a substantial portion of land! Therefore, their desire was not to own; their desire was to sell. My desire is not to see our people sell, but for our people to own. Those are two basically different philosophies that should be expressed in any consideration of the physical development of the Cayman Islands.

The physical and material development of these Islands must take into account the real aspirations of the people. The real aspirations of the people, the undercurrents I feel, the real aspirations of the people, the people are saying, How can we acquire land? How can I get a piece of land? People are coming to me and saying, if I had a little piece of land, Frank, I could even build a little house there.

Again we have Planning Regulations to such an extent that they stimulate a lifestyle that a lot of people are not able to afford at the moment. They are not being able to stay with the standard, because the standard is becoming too expensive to afford. Therefore we have people dropping behind in greater and greater and greater numbers, until we will have the "have-nots" who have no land on one side, the "haves" who have land, on the other side. And the "have-nots" will be the Caymanians, and the "haves" will be people who could afford it from someplace else.

We have to have a development plan that actively pursues a solution to the question of land ownership in this country. It is a very relevant question. And although we have been capable of passing on land ownership from one generation to the next, at least since 1832, this country has been unique in that. People in this country have owned land, and it has conditioned their personalities and it has made the social and political atmosphere in this country different than in any other place because of land.

Land is at the centre of our personalities. Land is at the centre of our progress. Land will be, if we do not manage it properly, at the centre of our demise.

Mr. Speaker, we must take into consideration, in addition to this, the aspirations of the people to acquire land, and to be considered members of the society. Without that, it will be difficult. And one knows too well that the Minister for Community Development, Youth and Women's Affairs pursued a policy of guaranteeing mortgage loans to people based on the philosophy that the ownership of a home, which means also a piece of land, would cause people to take more responsibility for their society. They would be better citizens if they owned something.

So in our Development Plan, Mr. Speaker, we must not only talk about selling and what people can build once we have sold them this, we must talk about ownership; and we must not just talk about foreigners owning, we must also talk about Caymanians being able to own. I believe it is high time in this country for at least certain areas of this country to be set aside, and that we restrict foreign economic ownership and activity in these areas. These areas, like native reserves in America and in Canada, should be reserved for Caymanians, so we can at least manage the prices of land in this area; so that we will not be, at the end of the day, caught with a situation where this is the most desired country in the world, but to get in here you have to have at least a million dollars.

When the day comes when the Caymanian cannot start in to the social structure, start in to the economic structure without a few hundreds of thousands of dollars, it will become a very dark day for us, a very difficult day for us. We must give and must reserve the rights of our people to have access to land, and this must be spelt out in any sensible development plan. I know that we would like to run a laissez faire economy here, and I am an advocate of free trade, but we must understand the unique role which land plays, and which land will continue to play in balancing our social and political structure. And for this reason, Mr. Speaker, it makes good sense to give that additional thought. Thank you.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden Mr. Speaker, it is clear that over the years many efforts by many seemingly well-meaning persons have gone into the construction of the Development Plan that is being discussed in this Honourable House at this time, and many attempts have been made, and perhaps will continue to be made, to poll and seek input from persons from the various walks of life in the Cayman Islands, so to speak. But I must say also that if the intention, and if the extent of this Plan, is mainly to regulate physical development without any scope or thought given to a concomitant social and economic development, then all the efforts made over the years will be futile, and will soon be obsolete.

For to view the matter solely as physical development is to be courting disaster by taking the narrowest of approaches. Mr. Speaker, it has been said many times by persons much wiser than I, that land is the source of all wealth, and if the development is such that for whatever reason, advertent or inadvertent, it precludes a certain sector or certain sectors from participating in the economic development, then we run the risk of creating an imbalance in the society, an imbalance which is fraught with danger.

I know very well the risk of advocating certain things, because I remember only too well in 1978, I was so unwise as to make certain suggestions, and Mr. Speaker, I am still paying for that sin which was visited upon me by some persons present in this Assembly at this time.

But I contend, Mr. Speaker, that history will bear out that if any development takes place in such a way that those sectors, for whatever reason, believe they have no hope, then perhaps my bones may be bleached, but someone will realise that a serious folly has been committed.

I do not know if there is any easy way. Because when young people come to me expressing the frustrations that I have heard other Honourable Members claim have been expressed to them, I tell them, it seems that we are on a treadmill from which we cannot descend easily. Unfortunately, Mr. Speaker, that is not a palatable enough excuse to satisfy someone who expresses frustration that they can never afford a house lot because they can never get themselves in a position where they are sufficiently free of financial obligations to pay cash, and oftentimes, not even to afford the requisite down payments.

It is a situation, Mr. Speaker, that I appreciate the efforts which have been made to redress by arriving at this Development Plan. But I say, as we stand poised on the eve of the twenty-first century, and we have a physical Development Plan, let us, when we are so convinced that this Plan is workable, use that Plan as a stepping-stone to craft some more sophisticated mechanisms so that we take up along with us as many elements of our population as we can, so that all and sundry can share, to some extent, in our development.

I realise too, Mr. Speaker, that countries with far more sophisticated machinery and bureaucracies than we have, have taken years to effect physical development plans, and also that such plans are not without their points of contention and controversy. And I say that to say that it was not the suggestion, as far as I ascertained from my listening, that this Plan is a finality. I welcome the thought and the suggestion that this Plan is a base from which preparation is made for constant review, and that we may continue.

I believe that there is reason, in spite of all the problems, to be optimistic, and I also believe that if we are sincere, this Plan is a beginning. But we have to be prepared, after we get it into operation, to take it at the next stage. And to that extent, Mr. Speaker, I am prepared to do whatever a lowly, castigated and humble Backbencher like myself can do to promote an understanding, and to help in this instance, because I believe it is an honourable and worthy cause. Thank you.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I quite honestly had no intention of speaking on this, because as a former Member of Executive Council who was involved with it, I well appreciate the tremendous amount of work that has been put into this, and I think that the Honourable Minister moving this (even though I do not often find a good reason to do this) must be commended for moving this ahead and bringing it to this Honourable House.

I say this, Mr. Speaker, because I am aware that the Development Plan has been a very sensitive issue over the years. So much so that provision is made in the substantive Development Law that a revision should have been undertaken every five years. No revision of this Law or Plan was undertaken since 1977 until it was commissioned back in 1991 by the Government of the day. And, Mr. Speaker, I am happy to see that the successive Government has carried this through to completion.

We have heard comments made, and some very valid comments, as regards the definition that should be applied to this Plan and how it will work. But Mr. Speaker, even though I hate to give too much credit sometimes, because it could appear as if I am changing my position here, I must say that the architects of this Plan did in fact clarify much of the queries raised this afternoon.

To start with, it is quite clear, even on the front page of the Development Plan 1997 that this Plan is strictly for the zoning and physical development, and they have here "the Cayman Islands," but in fact the specific Plan is for Grand Cayman. And I believe the Honourable Member did in fact correct this in his introduction.

There are several types of plans, but the two major plans for our country would have to be the physical development plan and the economic development plan. I believe, Mr. Speaker, that it is difficult to separate one from the other. They are very much interlaced, interrelated, and one forms an integral part of the other.

If we look under the assignments of subjects, it is quite clear to see that the officer with responsibility for the economic development plan of this country would have to be the Third Official Member. I believe, when we look at the Objectives of the Development Plan, it makes it abundantly clear that the physical Development Plan must work hand-in-glove with the economic development plan. I will also be demonstrating this particular point without debating the Budget, but making reference to the impact that real estate and the physical part of our development, that is land use, has had on the economic development of this country.

The Objectives, state: "The general aim of the plan is to maintain and enhance the quality of life in the Cayman Islands by effectively directing development so as to safeguard the economic, cultural, social and general welfare of the people, and subject thereto the environment." That is a primary Objective, Mr. Speaker. But a secondary Objective of the planning statement is "to provide for and encourage better co-ordination and co-operation among interested entities, be they private or public."

Mr. Speaker, there are also policies put in place under this strategy that will be used, which collectively are intended to achieve the objectives which are summarised under certain strategies contained in the Plan.

As was mentioned by previous speakers, Mr. Speaker, this is just, indeed, a beginning. I think the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town made that quite clear, and there is still much to be done, but it is indeed a beginning. As I mentioned earlier, successive Governments have shied away from the very unpopular role of bringing a Development Plan to this Honourable House. To show, Mr. Speaker, the interrelation of the physical development plan with the economic development plan, reference has only to be made to the major contribution that land use and land sales make to the economic well-being of this country.

By extension, Mr. Speaker, it can be said that when money goes into the economy, it has a trickle-down effect, that has a direct benefit on all our people. The value of land transferred as at August 1997 was almost $200 million. And, Mr. Speaker, this was something like $15 million more than the year before. With this sort of an input into the economy, not only are the real estate people benefiting directly, but indeed, the whole country benefits from this input into the economy.

I take and share the view with the previous speaker that some kind of a control must be exercised. But we would be tearing down the same economy we are trying to build up if we do not encourage the laissez faire system within our economy that has brought us thus far. The only way we could guarantee that certain lands are protected from that laissez faire system is if we put mandatory controls on those properties.

As long as you have a willing seller and a willing buyer within our economy, you will find that there will be buying and selling of land by a wide cross-section of our community, be they the poor people or the richer people, and it will be very difficult for any Government to control that type of economic activity.

Mr. Speaker, another area I want to touch on is the question of the map we have showing the divisions of properties within Grand Cayman. And Mr. Speaker, this is something that can be corrected, but it is rather confusing when one looks at the map, and the key or legend to the map, to see that they hardly correspond. One only has to look, for instance, at "Low density residential," which is in a solid yellow, and you will see that not only do we have a solid yellow on the map, but we have yellow streaks, yellow marks, and it is confusing exactly what that applies to.

I believe that the Honourable Minister presenting it will no doubt clarify this particular point. Mr. Speaker, the Honourable Minister has mentioned from across the way that those with the streaks are indeed changes that were made. Perhaps this could be indicated somewhere on the map for the benefit of the public. But one taking up the map, looking at it as it is, it is rather confusing.

But as I said, Mr. Speaker, it is indeed a beginning, and there are much improvements that will have to be made as we progress. I see a note here, Mr. Speaker, below the legend, that the striped colours denote areas of a zone reclassification. I am not sure what those reclassifications are, but the note is there, Mr. Speaker.

But this is not to criticise, because as I have well acknowledged, this has been a very sensitive and time-consuming exercise, and the mover of this motion is to be commended for undertaking this at this time. I also know, Mr. Speaker, that it has gone through a number of tribunals, and that in fact this is perhaps the fourth or fifth draft since the exercise started.

Mr. Speaker, I support this motion, and would ask that other Members do so likewise, with the understanding that it is a beginning, but what I consider a beginning in the right direction. Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: Would this be a convenient time to take our afternoon break? We will suspend for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4:31 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. We have now reached 4.30 PM; I would entertain a motion. The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 10(2)

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Mr. Speaker, it is the wish of the House that we continue as we are nearly to the end of these two motions, because they are similar, and I would therefore move that we suspend Standing Order 10(2) to do so, Sir.

The Speaker: The question is, should we suspend Standing Orders in order to finish the business on the Order Paper? Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 10(2) SUSPENDED.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, I rise to support the motion before us. I understand what the Plan is all about. It is a zoning plan, and to have reached this far with it is a credit to the Ministry and all those involved with the process. Mr. Speaker, I understand that the Plan in 1977 was supposed then to have been temporary, but successive Governments did not come to grips with it.

This could be, because the Islands are made up of such an independent people, so independent that at times, there are those who refuse to have anyone tell them what to do. We all say, if we own a piece of land, or a business of any kind, no one must tell us what to do with it. And we have all been guilty of not wanting or accepting the process of planning. It seems to me, what exists in the country, was a desire for loose arrangements, which left most people to do what they wished with their businesses, be it a property or otherwise.

Today, having come this far in our development, the Cayman Islands need this Plan and the national Development Plan spoken about by several Members. Several Members, Mr. Speaker, referred to planning nationally, or national development plans. However, Sir, national development plans or planning for national development, means greater tests, means greater sacrifice. It means national discipline.

For instance, either we need a vastly expanded road network, or a reduction in the growth of the number of road users. Either a very large increase in the expenditure of funds for roads, or a reduction in the number of cars imported. This is the kind of national discipline I am referring to. The question is, when do we get to that kind of planning process or stage? And when we get there, will we all be willing to put forward or agree if someone else puts forward these kinds of cures.

Nobody is going to give anything, especially when it comes to land. For those that have any property, it is either their investment or their heritage, and everybody guards it carefully. Mr. Speaker, to ask for national plans, development plans, would entail such things as sites for public buildings, and such things as proposed public beaches, and in any kind of sensible national development plan, you will have time-frames for acquisition and actual development of those sites or properties.

These then will entail large sums of expenditure on the part of a national development plan. Yes, national development plans, but it also means national discipline. The social development aspect, which must come with the kind of plan talked about by some Members already, must deal with growth policy with regard to population. This will deal with permits, for instance, and you know what a touchy subject that is on both sides of the fence. For those persons who do not understand what a business needs, and those who have the business, which also relates to housing, and the ability of people to provide for it, and perhaps the role Government can play in housing assistance.

We have done some work on this, Mr. Speaker, in the last Budget when we gave consideration to people who purchase land in the area of $30,000 and who purchase homes for $100,000 or in that area. But national development planning will have to take these kinds of things into consideration, and it means national discipline.

You are not going to be able to come into the Legislative Assembly and say one thing, or catch a Minister in the corner and say one thing, and then go on national television and say something else. It is going to mean discipline, straightforward thinking, for the public to accept it, for the public to feel part of it. I am all for that, because I believe we have reached the time that the public will accept some of these cures talked about.

The Development Plan 1997, Mr. Speaker, deals briefly with many considerations. It deals with some population trends, some land availability, ecology, fresh water supplies, sewerage and sewage disposal. Mr. Speaker, the country right now is in that stage of development where we must pay attention to these things. But again, are we going to have the national will ourselves as legislators to go out there and encourage the kind of national discipline that comes with it?

I support the motion, Mr. Speaker, and again thank the Minister and all concerned for getting this far.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr Thank you. Mr. Speaker, let me add my congratulations to the Minister responsible for Planning, for having the courage to bring this Plan before the Legislative Assembly for approval. Because, Mr. Speaker, I am aware that, since 1976, this is a national issue that no successive Government wanted to attack. But it is impossible for a country to continue to develop without a proper national development plan.

I also agree, Mr. Speaker, with the process to which these proposals we have before us were subjected. I recall that there was a main committee pulled together, that consisted of representatives, civil servants, and the members of the general public, in order to look at the process, to look at the proposals, and to offer input. I also recall, Mr. Speaker, that the process went from district to district, meeting with the people, taking their input, and making whatever adjustments were necessary to the Plan.

I believe that this is the right approach, and that the people should have an opportunity to say exactly how they feel about certain proposals, because, Mr. Speaker, I learned a long time ago that we do not know everything. The other thing I learned is that if you keep your mouth shut long enough, you might learn something from somebody else.

And I believe as a result of the process this issue took, we got input from a wide cross-section of persons, and I also agree, Mr. Speaker, that with regard to the other three proposals that were not a part of the Plan, input should also be invited and welcomed with respect to roads, etc.

So Mr. Speaker, I do support this issue. I want to congratulate the Minister, his staff, and all those persons who were instrumental in providing for us what we have before us this evening, that we call the Development Plan 1997. Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? If no other Member wishes to speak, would the Mover wish to reply? The Honourable Minister for Aviation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I would like to thank all the Members who spoke, who all supported this, and I take the points made by the Third and the Fourth Elected Members for George Town, as well as my colleagues, the First and Third Elected Members from West Bay. The Development Plan is, quite rightly, a zoning and physical development plan.

There are several other plans we have now in place, such as the Drugs, Tourism, Agriculture plan, the plan for the Port, for the schools, for the medical, and all of these will ultimately, I assume, be pulled together under one plan. I would like to thank Members very much for supporting this, and I must say, it is quite a relief because I was not too sure, since it has destroyed a lot of politicians over the past twenty years, exactly what the position would be. But I really thank Members, I sincerely do.

The Speaker: I shall now put the question. Will those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: GOVERNMENT MOTION NO. 11/97 PASSED.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

GOVERNMENT MOTION NO. 12/97

DRAFT DEVELOPMENT AND PLANNING (AMENDMENT) (NO. 3) REGULATIONS, 1997

Hon. Truman M. Bodden Mr. Speaker, this states as follows, Sir:

“WHEREAS these amending Regulations are complementary to the Development Plan 1997, now therefore be it resolved that pursuant to section 38 of the Development and Planning Law 1995 Revision, this Honourable House hereby approves the attached draft Development and Planning Amendment (No. 3) Regulations 1997.”

I so move, Sir.

The Speaker: Government Motion Number 12 of 1997 has been duly moved. Does the Member wish to speak to it?

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Mr. Speaker, this is complementary, as it says, to the Development Plan. It is an integral part of it. What I have said in relation to that, Sir, applies to this, and what other Members as well have said on the other motion obviously does apply to this. I chose to put it in two motions; it really could have been put in one. Thank you, Sir.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak to the motion? If not, does the Mover wish to reply?

If not, I shall put the question that Government Motion Number 12 of 1997, Draft Development and Planning Amendment (No. 3) Regulations 1997, be passed. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: GOVERNMENT MOTION NO. 12/97 PASSED.

The Speaker: That concludes the business on the Order Paper for today. I will entertain a motion for the adjournment.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Mr. Speaker, I am happy to move that this Honourable House do now adjourn until next week, Wednesday the 12th at 10.00 AM.

The Speaker: The question is that this House do now adjourn until Wednesday, November 12th. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House stands adjourned until November 12th at 10.00 AM.

AT 4.54 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM WEDNESDAY, 12TH NOVEMBER, 1997.

PRAYERS

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Let us Pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived: We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Let us say the Lord's prayer together: Our Father who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done in earth as it is in Heaven; Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us; and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. The Speaker: I would like to recognise the students in the gallery from the North Side Primary School, grades 4 and 5. We welcome you.

Item number 2, Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. Question No. 151 is standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION NO. 151

No. 151: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning how many teachers' aides are employed at the Savannah Primary School.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: One teacher's aide or support assistant is employed at the Savannah Primary School.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Minister say if at any time within the last three years there was more than one teacher's aide employed at this school?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: (I have been instructed) Not to my knowledge.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say what the role and function of this teacher's aide is?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Perhaps I should just explain the position there. Last year there was one physically challenged child, a boy, in year two. This year there is an additional child in year one. Both of the children have cerebral palsy and are in wheelchairs. The support assistant usually spends the first half of the day with the little girl in year one. Typically she used to take her from her seat to wherever necessary (say, to the bathroom), see that she is properly seated in a chair and she also assists that child with mobility exercises. In the afternoon she works with the boy in year three.

In addition to the support assistant, a parent volunteer works half a day and assists, as do teachers. In the case of the year three boy, students assist in moving the wheelchair. Physical Therapists from the Lighthouse School worked with the two teachers and support assistants for the first six weeks to ensure a smooth transition to the school.

The Therapists from the Lighthouse School have provided training to the teachers at Savannah Primary in how to deal with the children and how to properly lift them, etcetera, from the chairs. The school is equipped with ramps for wheelchairs, although there is no paved walkway between the new block and the rest of the school.

One of the students has a computer and does work on it. The year one student will also be provided with a computer. At this stage, I am instructed that this is working well. There are obviously further things that can be done. I think it is important, and this is perhaps even more important in getting the Lighthouse School near to a Government primary school, because this is an example of how children who have progressed to a certain stage at the Lighthouse School can then move into a normal primary school and really get the assistance and support that they need to lead as normal a life as possible.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Minister say if in this case there is any monitoring, or assessment, to find out how the situation might be improved?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: With these children this is under constant assessment. I give the undertaking that, not only for these two children but for all children who are specially challenged, we will do everything we can to make them feel as normal within the school as we possibly can.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, the next question is No. 152, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 152

No. 152: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation what modifications to the original plan have been made to date on the new Health Service complex in George Town.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony Eden: The following modifications to the original plan have been, or will be, implemented:

- (i) structural alterations to the building foundations to accommodate the varied and unanticipated sub soil condition found throughout the hospital site;
- (ii) relocation of the In-patient Psychiatric Unit to larger quarters in an existing building to be remodelled;
- (iii) minor alterations to the floor plan layouts of General Ward, Paediatrics, Morgue and Casualty Areas to enhance the day-to-day operation and flow of these units;
- (iv) addition of a roof over the open atrium at the front entrance and a covered walkway beside the Materials Management Building to protect the public from inclement weather;
- (v) addition of an automatic door opener at the front entrance to accommodate the needs of handicapped patients;
- (vi) upgrading of the exterior glass windows and doors to the very latest hurricane standards to maximise patient safety;
- (vii) addition of a pressurised nitrogen system in the Operating Theatres for pneumatic tool usage.

I am pleased to say that the project continues to be on time and within budget.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: The Minister said that these alterations were of such a nature that they do not affect the budget of the hospital. Can the Honourable Minister say if these alterations were of such a minor nature that they did not incur any additional cost?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: No, Mr. Speaker, that is not exactly what I said or meant. Earlier, in an answer to a Parliamentary Question, I mentioned that I did increase the contingency which most of these, or all of these things will be covered under.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Can the Honourable Minister say whether or not the morgue will be open this month as he had previously stated in the Legislative Assembly?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, everything is just about ready to go and once they are ready to move in there, it is ready.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, the next question is No. 153, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 153

No. 153: Miss Heather D. Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation to say if the Counselling Room at the Bodden Town District Clinic is being used by people seeking help and how often is it being used.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony Eden: Yes, the Counselling Room at the Bodden Town District Health Centre is being by people seeking help and it is used on an average once every two weeks.

Some individuals who attend the Bodden Town District Health Centre are also receiving help from programmes at the Cayman Counselling Centre. These people would not have been referred to the Cayman Counselling Centre if they had not first come to the Health Centre seeking help.

Literature and educational videos on Substance Abuse are made available to the people of Bodden Town through the Health Centre. I must add that the other district centres now have this capability. In addition, Cayman Counselling Centre staff members converse with the medical staff of the Health Centre answering questions and providing information on Substance Abuse and related issues.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Miss Heather D. Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say if he expects to see an increase in the number of people seeking help through the district clinics for their substance abuse problems?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, we certainly expect to see a significant increase in the number of people seeking help in the health centres as the public becomes more aware of the service available. You probably noticed in recent times the constant awareness in the press and television of the available services and also of the opening of the new health centres in each district. We feel that this can become an integral part of bringing services direct to the communities.

The Speaker: The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Would the Honourable Minister state what the hours are for this counselling at the district clinics?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: I do not have the specific times right now. But I will undertake to provide them. Normally, people can go there during the day, and it is envisaged that in the evenings. . . as we all remember in the opening of the centres, there is a door that locks off the main functions of the clinic from the counselling centre. So it will also be available in the evenings.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, question No. 154 is standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

No. 154: Dr. Frank McField asked the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport whether any hotel has gone on, or intends to go on the Internet or World-wide Web to advertise jobs available in these Islands.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: The five major hotels were polled and only one indicated that it has advertised local jobs on its corporate web site. The others indicated that they do not intend to advertise jobs through this medium in the future.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: I would just like to thank the Honourable Minister for providing me with that information.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister state if the one hotel that indicated that it had advertised local jobs on its corporate web site indicated that it would continue to do so?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I am unable to answer that question at the moment. I undertake to give the First Elected Member for George Town the answer in writing.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Understanding the Minister's inability to answer that question, I just ask the Minister, if he intends to find that out, if he would also investigate whether it is confirmed that the positions advertised cannot be filled locally.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I would expect that wherever it is advertised it still has to have Immigration approval. But I will follow up his request.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I understand the procedure, but the Minister must also understand that sometimes that is questionable at best.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? If not, the next question is No. 155, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 155

No. 155: Dr. Frank McField asked the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport to specify how many Caymanians hold managerial positions within major hotels providing details on each hotel and positions individually.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: There are 42 Caymanians holding managerial positions in the licensed hotels in the Cayman Islands. A list of the hotels showing the number of Caymanians versus non-Caymanians in managerial positions is attached.

Number of Caymanians in Senior Managerial positions:

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: If possible, can the Honourable Minister comment on the type of salary the average Caymanian manager receives at some of these major hotels?

The Speaker: I think that is outside the scope of the substantive question, but if the Honourable Minister wishes to answer, he may. The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I do not have that information available at the present time.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: If I ask a question of the Minister and he provides me with a list of positions, somehow I think that, having gone through that exercise, he might have been able to somehow come across what these people are being paid, as position is related to salary.

The Speaker: If you want that information, you should put that down as a substantive question. Are there any further supplementaries?

The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Seeing as the ratio of non-Caymanian professionals in managerial positions to Caymanians is two to one, can the Minister state if there is any thrust by the Ministry, or any plans by the Ministry to try and change this ratio by way of incentives to train Caymanians for such positions?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: It was about two years ago that we established the first fully funded tourism scholarship for a local Caymanian to pursue higher education in the United States. At the present time we have two studying hotel management—one at the University of South Florida and the other at Cornell. We are certainly using our influence with the hotels to continue to train Caymanians who are with their organisations. I know that in one particular instance a young Caymanian is being sent overseas to be trained, or to gain further experience, in human resource management.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: I wonder if the Honourable Minister would say if, in using his influence, it would be possible for him to look into the wages these managers are receiving? In terms of creating incentives, it appears that the qualification might be one issue, but the rewards another issue. A lot of people seem to think that they can make more money working in the condominiums as managers, than in the hotels as managers.

If I may be allowed to rephrase the question, can the Honourable Minister say whether or not in his day-to-day dealings with these issues the question of salaries for managers is not an important issue?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Obviously, salary is a major issue in just about every job. I give the Fourth Elected Member for George Town my word that I will continue to use my influence in the direction he has stated.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: In a follow-up to the supplementary I asked regarding the ratio of non-Caymanians to Caymanians, in the answer the Minister gave he indicated that there were two Caymanians on scholarships. My understanding is that there is a scholarship which is fully funded and available once a year to Caymanians. I am sure the Minister realises, while this is certainly encouraging to hear, that it will not change that ratio much in the future if left alone. Also, he mentioned that he knew of one instance where a Caymanian was being sent abroad by one of the hotels for further training. While appreciating all of this, the point I wish to make to the Minister is that I feel it is more than important that the hotels are led down the right path. So I am going to be asking the Minister if he would try to ensure that beyond influence (I do not think that is important), if some type of situation could arise where the Ministry could liaise with these hotels to set up some type of programme that is tangible where the results will be seen in a short time.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: In my answer given earlier, in relation to this ratio of non-Caymanians to Caymanians in managerial positions in the hotels, I referred to two specific cases of scholarships funded by the Ministry of Tourism. However, I failed to mention many young people on scholarships from the Education Council. I am aware that the figure could be as high as ten. So, I would go on to say that it is certainly the Ministry's intention, and we have various training workshops on an annual basis within the hospitality industry, to provide young people and others with the kinds of skills required to cause the Cayman Islands to continue to be a quality destination. But we have to remember that there is a cross-over here—I am the Minister for Tourism. I am not the Minister for Labour. I need to be in liaison with the Minister for Labour in order to address some of the questions posed today.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I do appreciate the Minister's answer, but the fact is that there is one Government regardless of how many different departments. So I just ask that a liaison happen.

The Speaker: The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Of the 21 hotels listed here there are only five who have no Caymanians employed in managerial positions. I wonder if the Honourable Minister could say if any reasons were given why these hotels were unable to have Caymanians in managerial positions as I notice that some of these with no Caymanians in managerial positions are some of the oldest hotels in these islands?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I would not care to speculate in this particular case, but I will undertake to have the information and then provide it to the lady Member for North Side in writing.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: The Honourable Minister mentioned some of the incentives that Government has put in place to encourage Caymanians to go into management in the hotel industry. I wonder if he is aware of any such programmes in place at the major hotels to encourage and train Caymanians to go into management in this area?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I am aware that the Cayman Islands Hotel and Condo Association does put on training courses from time to time and I am aware that some of the hotels put on training courses from time to time. I am not au fait at this moment with the total extent of that training or the quantum in terms of numbers. The Community College of the Cayman Islands also puts on training in the hospitality industry.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: I was specifically asking if there were any scholarships offered by the hotels for young Caymanians who want to go into the hotel industry and move into management.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: There are scholarships given by some of the hotels from time to time. I know of at least two individuals who have been sponsored recently by one of the hotels here.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: In putting this matter to rest (and I know it is hard when we have such a fragmented concept of Government where one person is responsible for what the other person is not responsible for) I would like to ask the Minister to seriously undertake the reason why the Beach Club Colony and Spanish Bay Reef, which I understand are owned by the same person, do not have or attempt to have Caymanians in managerial positions.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I could be mistaken, but I think the lady Member for North Side asked the same question and I undertook then to gather the information and provide the answer. When I do have it, I will be quite willing to pass it along to the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, the next question is No. 156, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 156

No. 156: Mr. Linford A. Pierson asked the Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works to state the current status of the proposed Dolphin Tourist Attraction project.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: The Board of Directors of the Cayman Turtle Farm, at a recent meeting, took the decision to put the proposal on hold.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I wonder if this answer is intended to give the impression that this whole matter may be brought up again in the near future? Is "being put on hold" temporary?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: If the Board of Directors wishes to have it back on the agenda, it will definitely be back on the agenda.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister state the reason why the proposal was put on hold?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: No, Sir.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Minister state whether he does not know the reason, or he does not care to answer the question?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: As Chairman of the Board of the Cayman Turtle Farm, there are certain things I can divulge on the floor of this House and others I cannot—not to say that I do not know the answer.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Having stated that he is Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Cayman Turtle Farm, the Honourable Minister is perhaps in a position to answer the following supplementary: Has he been aware of the public outcry against this project being implemented in the Cayman Islands, and, if so, has any action been taken by his Board to ensure that this project is not only put on hold but discontinued?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: I have pointed out that the Board of Directors took a decision to put this on hold. Most definitely, anybody who has been reading the papers over the last few months would have seen the outcry, I would call it the outcry in the wilderness. In most cases, some of the letters and comments we have seen in the papers. . . we have never really stopped to think of their actions in selling off all of the public beach in the islands; areas where, for example, it was a known fact that turtles nested over the years, but, because of development and the greed for money, these areas no longer exist.

We could also weigh one against the other in regard to the North Sound and Stingray City. But, for whatever reason, it seems as if some people have just become completely taken up with the dolphins and instead of giving this an opportunity to come to something that could be an added attraction for the country, they have decided to take a one-sided view on it.

Yes, I have seen everything that has been in the papers and I have heard individuals directly. The Board of Directors did take a decision to put it on hold, and sensibly so, in order to look into the matter further.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister tell the House if prior to this undertaking any feasibility surveys were conducted to determine the public acceptance of such a venture?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: I guess we could ask the same question about the Turtle Farm. However, today we are proud to know that the Turtle Farm is a very good tourist attraction and has provided a source of meat for the country. Of course, if one does not take chances, as far as a feasibility study is concerned, I would like to make it abundantly clear to this House and the listening public that this is not a venture for the Cayman Turtle Farm or the Cayman Islands Government. We were merely going to lease property to this company so that the project could go on here.

I will further state that this is not only something that would be happening here in Cayman. If the project had taken off, this would be something done in neighbouring islands such as Nassau, Cuba and other West Indian Islands. We have Sea World in Florida and in California, and all of these various areas that have been proven have been consulted as I understand it. Of course, feasibility studies would have to be carried out for any businessman to go forward with such a large project.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: It is not my intention to prolong the discussion on this subject, but in the substantive answer, the Honourable Minister stated that the Board of Directors of Cayman Turtle Farm at a recent meeting took the decision to put the project on hold. There must have been some reason for that. He also stated that he heard the outcry of the public against this. He said they were 'crying in the wilderness.' He also alluded to the fact that there is a problem now in the North Sound in regards to, specifically, Stingray City. My supplementary is: Considering these unsatisfactory conditions would not the Minister state that this matter should be given top priority at this stage, and not just put on hold? Or is he saying that he is ignoring the plea of the public and are they, indeed, people crying in the wilderness?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Some people may interpret things they way they want to hear it. First of all, I am not stating that there is a problem in the North Sound. What I am saying is that from day to day one could go to the North Sound and see exactly what is happening at Stingray City in regard to a similar animal.

The fact remains that the Board of Directors took the sensible decision. As I said a while ago, there were many on the radio, and if they were not on the radio they were in the papers, making noise about what was happening with the dolphins and it was all something that should not have happened because the fact remains that no decision was taken by the Board of Directors and if we were not giving the public a chance to have their input, and for the Board of Directors to have further input into it, we would not have put it on hold. So, I think it was a very sensible decision for us to put it on hold so that the matter could be looked into further.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I hate to have to be going on about this, but this is a very important issue, too important to be swept under the carpet by an answer saying that the decision was to put the proposal on hold. I wonder if the Honourable Minister could say whether his Ministry has an opinion as to how this matter should go forward?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Mr. Speaker, we are all subject to opinions. My opinion, or my Ministry's opinion is not valid in this, as it is the Board of Directors who took the decision at this time.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I wonder if I can rephrase that? Since the Honourable Minister did not get the benefit of consulting with his Ministry can he state whether he had any technical advice to help him form an opinion as to how this matter should go forward?

Hon. John B. McLean: I beg to differ with the Member who has alluded to the fact that I have not consulted with my Ministry. He knows well—he has been in charge of that Ministry—that my Permanent Secretary also sits on the Board of Directors. He knows, because he has been there before, that he has input from the Ministry as well as from myself. I think that is taking it a bit far, however as far as I am concerned, I come back to the point that the Board of Directors took a decision and it is a sensible one. Until the Board decides on something else, I will say no more on the floor of this House.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 23(7)&(8)

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: It is now that magical hour, so I move that the relevant Standing Order be suspended to continue Question Time.

The Speaker: Do we have a seconder?
The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: I second the Motion.

The Speaker: The question is that Standing Order 23 (7) and (8) be suspended to enable Question Time to continue. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED. STANDING ORDER 23(7) AND (8) SUSPENDED TO ENABLE QUESTION TIME TO CONTINUE.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: One final supplementary on question 156, having understood what the Minister said, and understanding that there is certain information which cannot be divulged on the floor of this House, may I ask the Honourable Minister if the decision taken by the Board of Directors of Cayman Turtle Farm was a decision based on public outcry and input, or on technical advice and knowledge received?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: As I said a while ago, the Board of Directors, like all other members of the public, saw and heard various concerns from individuals in regard to the dolphins. A decision has been taken by the Board of Directors to look into this project further, and that is exactly where it stands.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I wonder if the Honourable Minister could give the undertaking that he will inform this Honourable House of any future plans for this project.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: As I pointed out a while ago, Mr. Speaker, the matter has been deferred by the Board of Directors and when they see fit it will go back on the agenda. If there is something new that the House should know, as is the custom around here, we lay the Financial Statements on the Table of the House, I will have no problem informing the House of what is taking place in regard to this project.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: As the Honourable Minister is well aware, any paper laid on the Table of this Honourable House creates history—it is something that has been done. What we are trying to seek is an undertaking that before it reaches that far, Members be consulted in one way or another that this matter has been revived, and whether or not it is the Government's intention to give it the go ahead.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: As I stated earlier, Mr. Speaker, it is a matter for the Board of Directors. If they take a decision that this will be a project that will go forward, we will definitely make normal announcements as is customary.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister inform the House why the Board in the first place took the decision to go to Mexico for this joint venture, or whether the Board of the Cayman Turtle Farm was approached by the Mexicans? In other words, which party initiated the discussions?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Prior to my time in the Ministry, a previous Member had also investigated a similar attraction for the Turtle Farm. It is my understanding that he travelled much further than Mexico. I think he went to places in the United States and looked at a much larger project.

In the case of the project presently, it is my understanding that the first contact was made by the Mexicans to the Turtle Farm. Thereafter, talks were conducted between the Turtle Farm and the Mexicans and the proposal was then put before the Board of Directors.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Could the Honourable Minister provide details as to the extent of the negotiations that were entered into by his predecessor and give the House specific information as to what this project entailed?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: I think I am in order in saying that if the Member so wishes an answer he should put down a question on the Order Paper, because it certainly does not come out of the original question.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, with all due respect, the Honourable Minister will realise that he brought the subject up, thus opening the way for supplementary questions on the matter.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Mr. Speaker, as far as I am concerned, we ask supplementaries on the original question—not supplementaries on supplementaries.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, may I have your ruling on the matter, sir?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works is correct. The supplementary question must arise out of the answer to the substantive question. That is my understanding from the time I came into this Honourable House.

If there are no further supplementaries, the next question is No. 157 standing in the name of the First Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 157

No. 157: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning whether any teacher has been employed at the Savannah Primary School to deal with the physically challenged students attending that School.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: No additional teacher has been hired for the physically challenged students, although a support assistant is used to assist the students in getting around the school.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I know that this question basically follows a previous question this morning, but can the Honourable Minister state if there has been any professional assessment made in regard to the needs of these two students, bearing in mind the way the situation is presently being handled?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The answer is yes, and I set out the situation in total detail before. I do not know if you wish me to repeat that, but the matter is being properly dealt with at the school.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I do not necessarily need those details repeated, but could the Honourable Minister explain what professional assessment was made and how the decision to handle the situation at present was arrived at so that we can understand exactly why it is being handled in that manner?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: They were assessed through the Lighthouse School and through the Early Intervention Programme where we have professionals. I would say that we have to be a little bit careful as to how much detail we go into here. I mention that for what it is worth.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: The Minister must understand that the reason for the line of questioning has to be based on some dissatisfaction resting someplace. Therefore, the further supplementary question I wish to ask is: Have the parents of these children been consulted, and has the situation been properly explained to them to arrive at their being satisfied with what obtains at present?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Boddan: I understand that the Principal has been in communication with the parents.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Minister categorically state that the Principal is satisfied with the situation that obtains?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Boddan: Mr. Speaker, this is getting into extremes. I do not have a crystal ball and I do not have the Principal here now (presumably she is [satisfied]), or I would have known about it. I cannot know what people are thinking. If that Honourable Member has something specific, would he please make the statement, as I know he is very candid, and let us get on with the business of the House?

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, if I knew all of the answers, I would not be standing up asking questions. I am not in a position to know the answers. I still do not have the answer, and if the Minister is unable to answer it, all he has to do is say so.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Boddan: I say so.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, that concludes Question Time for this morning. The next item is Government Business, Bills, Third Readings.

I have been advised by the Honourable Third Official Member that there are errors in the Draft Estimates tabled in this House on 5th November. I have granted permission for the Honourable Member to lay on the Table corrected copies of Estimates of Revenue and Expenditures for the year ending 31 December, 1998.

The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

PRESENTATION OF PAPERS AND REPORTS

AMENDED DRAFT ESTIMATES OF REVENUE AND EXPENDITURE OF THE GOVERNMENT OF THE CAY- MAN ISLANDS FOR THE YEAR 1998

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I should mention the need for the amended document is not based on errors, as such, but certain changes had to be made. The changes are as follows, and they fall into two categories. The first one gives recognition to the changes that have been made within the various Ministries and Portfolios, the transfer of departments that were with some Ministries to others. On page 17 of the original document, there is a figure shown under 'Recurrent and Statutory Expenditure' of $240,374,850 as a single figure. It was felt more expedient to break this figure down and align the various components of this figure with the summary page as found in the original document and also in the revised document.

The figures have been broken down to show the recurrent portion, the element constituting the statutory elements and these are made up of contributions to pensions and also the loan repayments that will have to be made, and also the transfer to reserve funds, namely the General Reserve and the Housing Reserve fund.

The total in the document has not been changed. It remains essentially the same. This document is to be regarded as a refinement. The amounts there should line up with the summary page being shown for 1998, setting out the financial position for 1998.

At this time I will table an amended copy of the document. Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Bills, Second Reading. Commencement of the debate on the Budget Address delivered by the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development on Wednesday, 5th November, 1997.

The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

SECOND READING

THE APPROPRIATION (1998) BILL, 1997

COMMENCEMENT OF DEBATE ON THE BUDGET ADDRESS DELIVERED BY THE HONOURABLE THIRD OFFICIAL MEMBER RESPONSIBLE FOR FI- NANCE AND ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT ON WEDNESDAY, 5TH NOVEMBER, 1997

(12.12 PM)

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Budget Address delivered by the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development on 5th November, 1997, is the Budget of the National Team Government. All persons except those who wear rose-tinted glasses have reason to be concerned with the Budget.

I realise that the Honourable Financial Secretary is but the technical advisor of the Government, and has to go by the dictates of the elected Members of Executive Council. So, I want to make it clear from the outset that my comments exclude that honourable gentleman. In many cases it strikes me that what is contained in that document goes against positions previously stated by that honourable gentleman in this House. I, therefore, hold no brief with the honourable gentleman, realising that he, as a professional, has a job to do.

I marvel at the document that has been presented to this Honourable House because it is quite obvious that there have been fundamental changes from previous years. It would have been better if these changes would have made the Budget document more understandable to the laymen upon whose interpretation of that document voting of monies for the running of this country depends. It seems to me that there has been a clear and deliberate attempt to obfuscate and make more difficult the voting of some of these monies. I am not satisfied that there has been a clear enough indication of how the people's money is going to be managed.

Before I get to that point, I want to draw a little on what I call the history of this whole departure from responsible financial management by craving your indulgence to make reference to some of the positions taken in the past by previous Financial Secretaries in their outlining of the Budgets.

As we approach the 21st Century, it becomes clear to me that the contour of national life in the Cayman Islands will depend in no small part on the ability of the National Team Government to effectively manage our monies over the next few years. That this performance does not give us reason to be optimistic is borne out by the following: In 1992 (sic) [1991], in what was an historical Budget Address, the then Financial Secretary, now the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport, suggested, and I quote: There has been a marked divergence in the growth trends between realised local revenue and actual current expenditure. . . , and that if this trend is allowed to continue unchecked, public finance would be drifting in the wrong direction." (Hansard 15th November, 1991, Volume II, page 1092)

The Financial Secretary at that time went on to underscore what has now become a most relevant point. I pause before mentioning this to make the distinction that there were those people who believed that his position and his reference at that time signalled his departure from his position as Financial Secretary. Be that as it may, he left us with a most relevant point which I quote: If the public trusts us to spend its money, then the public has a right to know what it is going to get for its money." (Hansard 15th November, 1991, Volume II, page 1093) This is a point, to which I will return later, bearing full relevance and appropriateness to my position.

In his first speech as Financial Secretary (upon taking over from the present Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport) the Honourable Third Official Member demonstrated his knowledge and his concern over our sensitive position when he commented on the necessity to bear a prudent course in our fiscal management, and I quote: This means, above all, ensuring that the growth of public expenditure in real terms is in step, and remains in step with the rate of economic growth, and more importantly, with the rate of growth of local revenue. To this end, we will have to develop a credible strategy to effectively place limits on growth in public expenditure, without seriously impairing the effectiveness of public sector programmes. We cannot, and will not, achieve in one year or four years, all that we would like to achieve; therefore, we must determine priorities, order them, and make choices that are realistic and achievable. Some of these choices will be difficult and may turn out to be unpopular as well. The Government will continue to seek the hand of the people in making these choices, fully aware that a Government that walks hand-in-hand with the people will find the people walking hand-in-hand with them." (Hansard 5th March, 1993, Volume I, page 15) How sage that advice was, and is. How appropriate and beneficial it would have been for the National Team Government in determining this Budget to have taken the position of walking hand-in-hand with the people!

It is unfortunate (perhaps it is the rule of the game where it seems the winner takes all) that the people's representatives were never consulted—except, of course, out of political expediency. Other people who were rejected by the people find themselves in favourable positions where their advice can be proffered, while persons on the Backbench, like my other colleagues and I, are left out of the decision-making process; and yet, we are expected to come here and vote blindly on matters when we were never extended common courtesy . . . and now, with the modification of the document which we cannot even easily follow. It has never been the nature of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town to be a blind follower, and in my fifth decade there is absolutely no way.

The Honourable Financial Secretary went on further and said: In terms of resources and priorities, we have to cut our suit to fit our cloth." It is a pity that the National Team does not have this on a recording playing over, and over again, repeated infinitely. At a time when the private sector economy is booming, the National Team insists on competing and fuelling the economy further by carrying out a myriad of capital projects on the cause of political expediency and because they want to look good and impress the people, when they should be putting more into the general reserves of this country and getting ready for the lean times which must surely come because economic booms are cyclical.

One does not have to be Milton Friedman to understand that that is a fundamental principle of good money management. I am not surprised, Mr. Speaker, because the National Team has no clear vision of where this country is going, no clear vision of where it came from, and they lack the capability to pilot this country into the 21st Century.

I serve notice that I am going to say some hard and unpalatable things. But I have no apologies to make because everyone knows that my presence here is in spite of the National Team, not because of any help from them. I am going to call it, by Jove, as I see it! I only account to God and my constituents, in that order. So they can expect no quarter from me because I asked for none.

We have a Government which, in spite of their campaign promises, has abandoned prudent financial planning for political expediency. They cannot blame the previous Government because they are the previous Government.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Hear, hear!

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, that there has been poor money management is borne out by a number of things not the least of which is their flaunting of the Public Finance and Audit Law by not holding regular Finance Committee meetings. I am waiting until the clean-up exercise comes to see the size of supplementary appropriations that we are going to be asked to ratify.

The present Financial Secretary had something to say on that too. Voicing his concern over this dangerous practice, in 1993 he commented thus: . . . there may be nothing wrong at first sight . . . governing the use of supplementary appropriations. However, while supplementary appropriations are a necessary backup mechanism, and may be inevitable in many cases, reliance on, and too frequent a use of this mechanism undermines the discipline necessary to restore budgetary balance and fiscal stability." (Hansard 5th March, 1993, Volume I, page 19) Oh, if his advice had only been heeded!

The honourable gentleman goes on: To make this point more strongly . . . reliance on supplementary appropriations not only tends to encourage fiscal indiscipline in planning and preparing budgetary submissions, but together with too frequent a use of supplementary appropriations, these practices must be considered 'concealed time bombs' that threaten restoration of budgetary balance and ultimately fiscal stability.” (Hansard 5th March, 1993, Volume I, page 19) Long may that gentleman be around! I only wish that those to whom he has to give advice would heed it.

I am left to wonder what the excuse is going to be when the National Team Government gets up to defend its budget. Perhaps the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning, Leader of Government Business, with his degrees in credit management and administrative accounting may succeed in misleading those of us he likes to describe as ‘defunct’, into believing that he is some kind of wizard who can wave a wand.

I notice, Mr. Speaker, that when the kitchen gets hot he has to run. I wonder what line he is going to take to convince the ‘defunct,’ as he often refers to Members like myself.

I have always been a proponent of fiscal responsibility. My record in this Honourable House bears that out. I have seen the dismantling of all of the mechanisms that would allow the Government to manage its money prudently. Where is the Economic Development Unit? Where is the Manpower Planning Unit? Where is the Medium-term Financial Strategy that we have been promised so faithfully would be laid on the Table of this House so many times? It has not yet made its arrival. I wonder who is stopping it? Perhaps it will arrive before the 21st Century. I only hope it arrives before the door is closed and the doorman says ‘Too late. If you’re not in now you can’t get in.’

It goes further than that, Mr. Speaker. It goes to such an extent that we should realise that our management—or lack thereof—is cause for concern. I remember on the most recent trip made to the United Kingdom by the former Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, Mr. Gilbert McLean, and I, one of the issues raised by those members of the Foreign and Commonwealth Office whom we met was this whole question of financial management. While they agreed that the United Kingdom had a moral obligation, they made it crystal clear that it ended with that moral obligation and they were not prepared—as they said it would have been unheard of and would spell the death of any United Kingdom politician who proposed it—to bail out any entity in the colonies, or any colonial government that got into trouble.

I say that to say that we have to be careful. The United Kingdom’s position is borne out in the Contingent Liabilities in the Dependent Territories, the Report by the Comptroller and the Auditor General. I am sure a copy of this has been made available to you, as it exists in this Honourable House. Indeed, it is in the Clerk’s office. So, what I am saying is not coming off the top of my head, it is borne out in this. And I want to make the point, because it bears repetition: you do not need to have degrees in financial management and administrative accounting to be a good manager. All you need is to have a little common sense and the political will to exercise that capacity. So, perhaps, instead of some people flaunting what they have, and trying to put other people (like me) down—which can never happen!—what they should do is exercise the responsibility which has been entrusted to them; because when that is not done, I am going to get on their case. As long as I am here I will be a bulldog barking. Mr. Speaker, I will bite if necessary too; and you know, Mr. Speaker, any sensible biter would have to bite the leader first!

Mr. Roy Bodden: It is true that many strides have been made in improving the mechanisms in this country. I am now referring specifically to the Honourable Financial Secretary’s reference to the creation of the Cayman Islands Stock Exchange, the financial legislation, recent incentives for economic development in Cayman Brac, and the establishment of the Monetary Authority.

I have to say, however, that as far as the Monetary Authority goes I am somewhat disappointed in its obvious lack of autonomy. To my mind, the Monetary Authority should have the ability to take certain actions, within reason. It strikes me now that the Monetary Authority is but an advisory body to the Executive Council and lacks the ability, the capacity and the will to take certain decisions which begs the question: Why is it necessary for the Elected Executive Council to put themselves up as some Orwellian ‘Big Brother’ watching over everything that goes on? Why can they not have the confidence to give these experts the autonomy and the ability to make the decisions based on their professionalism?

I have to pause here to inject a little humour, and I hope that the Executive Council is not like this. I had a girlfriend one time who was very jealous. I got a bit upset and went to my mother (who is my confidant) and told her about the situation. She said, “My son, take my advice. Stay far from her because it is not that she is jealous of you, it is that she cannot trust herself.” So, Mr. Speaker, I now have to pose the question: Is the reason why the Executive Council has to know everything because the Executive Council cannot trust itself? They have created a body, staffed by professionals—the best available—and yet the ability to make a decision on their own is missing.

Now, I am saying that I would like to believe that the country’s Ministers are so busy that it is not necessary for them to know every little petty occurrence. Also, one has to bring in the question of their ability—their qualifications—to understand the wider ramifications of these questions that deal with a speciality, a significant expertise in particular areas. I mean, give me a break!

No man is an island unto himself. We all have our limitations. So I do not see how the Executive Council can be in a position to have the final say on decisions taken by such a highly professionalised and competent authority. It seems to me that that handcuff weakens the capability. If we were to equate our Monetary Authority with a central bank or the Federal Reserve. . . Alan Greenspan does not have to consult Robert Rubin, or whoever the Treasury Secretary is, when he makes a decision regarding interest rates or any other relevant matter. He does not even have to consult Bill Clinton. He makes it on his professional assessment and on the advice of his technical people.

To my mind, that is the weakness of our Authority, and I would hope that we will learn from the present dilemma that we need to re-examine and recast its role and that we need to exercise confidence in the staff. Otherwise, it is an Authority with no authority.

In this country today we have a great challenge, a great dilemma. Perhaps it can be more accurately addressed as an Aegean mess that cries out for a Hercules. I am referring to this whole fiasco with the First Cayman Bank. The Financial Secretary realises the depth of this because I quote what he said: “Government is aware that many persons are hurting as a result of the closure of First Cayman Bank, and it is continuing to monitor the situation with a view to finding a solution. However, it is recognised that open dialogue with those affected is necessary in order to arrive at a meaningful solution. I am therefore pleased to report, Mr. Speaker, that on Friday 31st October, some members of Executive Council held a meeting with representatives of the First Cayman Bank Depositors Committee and discussed a number of issues of concern to depositors.” (Budget Address)

Mr. Speaker, it strikes me that the Government has a moral obligation to bear with these people, to explore every reasonable avenue to help these people. If what was reported in the media (and I have no reason to doubt its accuracy). . . I would have to say that the Government bears some culpability in misleading these people into thinking all was well when all was not well. I draw reference to the Caymanian Compass of 10th October, 1997, in which a statement attributed to the Government said that the Government was negotiating with a buyer. Then, a week later, on 17th October, 1997, the bank was ordered to close. Therefore, from where I stand, I say that the Government now has a moral obligation, those being the circumstances, to stand with these people until some modicum of relief is had.

The depositors are making their position clear, as I noticed up to a short while ago there was a demonstration. It is good that in a democracy we are allowing those affected to express their concern, even if those concerns are not always expressed in the most diplomatic language. But when people lose their money, they hurt. I suppose that that gives them some entitlement, within reason, to express that hurt. What concerns me (and I do not know of any delicate way to express this, because I have said it over and often) is the lack of sophistication in our political bureaucracy so as to eliminate conflicts of interest and insensitivity.

I have been reminded many times in this House, by persons from across the floor, that I am not successful. Well, I have taken the view that it depends upon how that success is measured. I put no faith in horses and chariots. I am not interested in accumulating wealth. I am only interested in setting a good example, in being a good beacon, in walking a clear path. Long ago I took a personal decision about certain things which I regarded as conflictual with my position as a representative of the people would not ever interest me.

Certain forms of deprivation have never been far from my life, but I can say this: Any time I lie down I have a clear conscience. I would not be so reckless and insensitive to make any statement to anyone with any loss, however insignificant, that a bank closes in the United States every day. We, in this country, have to thank God that we have the kind of political culture we do, because in some other cultures people who lose their money would not behave so civil. And to be greeted with that kind of insensitivity, Mr. Speaker. . . such persons must have the soul of a ghoul, because they could never be human. Never!

I wonder, if the situation were reversed, and it was the entities to which they are concerned, are a part of and hold offices in. . . how they would accept that if they were greeted in such a fashion when they dared to make enquires about the possibility of recouping their honest and hard-earned cash. We who hold political responsibility in this country must also realise that we are accountable, and that what goes around comes around.

Mr. Speaker, do you know what I sometimes say? The chickens have come home to roost! I may never, ever amass wealth, but I also do not possess the soul of a ghoul. I am human! And I understand what deprivation and loss is. But I will tell you this, when I walk the street I get respect, and the comments that are made behind my back, while I cannot account for all of them, whatever is said behind my back can be said in my face because I try to live my life so that no one can say that I put them down for whatever reason.

It is not often that I get self-righteous, but I think some of our leaders clearly lack understanding. I am praying for them, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: Would this be a convenient time to take the luncheon break?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Sir.

The Speaker: Proceedings are suspended until 2.30 PM.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.53 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.30 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, continuing the debate.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I hope the Government has not gone too far underground, because I would really like for them to hear some of what I have remaining.

When we took the luncheon suspension, I was developing the argument that I welcomed the expressed concern by the Government and their empathy with the depositors of First Cayman Bank. I am particularly pleased to note that the Financial Secretary has suggested in his Budget that the Government is going to be looking at the introduction of measures to protect future depositors.

I am aware that the United States has a corporation called the FDIC, which is an arm of the Federal Government. I do not know, because the Financial Secretary did not elaborate, but I would hope that any mechanism which we set up could be structured in such a way so that depositors are not asked to directly bear the cost. I shall therefore be looking forward to seeing how our system is going to develop.

As a corollary, I note that what the Bahamian Government has done seems to be very fitting and appropriate, in that while they did not actually close the bank and order a liquidation process, they have set up their insurance scheme in such a way that depositors in the bank branches in their jurisdiction could be the beneficiaries of the insurance scheme which they propose to implement.

I would hope that, while these things are not usually retroactive, we could devise a scheme which could cover the depositors of First Cayman Bank and I would encourage the Government to examine carefully and lose no time in exploring the possibilities because this gesture would be well received and these people would be deserving of such consideration; while, at the same time, freeing the Government from a position where they would have to go into the coffers of the Treasury to come up with this money.

But I want to belabour another important point which I think has to do with the continuing evolving sophistication of our system. And I am a purist in this regard, Mr. Speaker. I am saying (as I have said) that the time has come for us, when we attain certain positions of responsibility, to remove ourselves from certain apparent conflicting positions. I want to say that I believe it is incumbent upon the further development of Parliamentary democracy that Ministers must extricate themselves from certain positions where conflicts of interest can be called into regard.

What I want to say is that Ministers on Executive Council have to take certain decisions and these are not easy decisions as in the case of whether a bank is to be closed or not closed, or whether management is to go in, or to accept certain advice. But to the purist, if there are persons who hold positions in other organisations where they have to take decisions against other organisations, I am saying that such persons lay themselves open to suspicion, conjecture, innuendo and rumour, or worse. No less a political advisor than Machiavelli, in his famous treatise The Prince, says that the Prince must not only be above reproach, but must be seen to be above reproach. So I am saying that out of this must arise a lesson to us all so that we must, if we are conscientious, forthright and committed, use this to further extricate, lay the mechanisms in place. We already have some of the beginnings. Now we have to generate the political will.

Aristotle said that it is not enough to be good, a wise leader must also appear good. Conversely, a person who is not internally virtuous who does not try to act with regard for what is good for men in general can only be clever, not practical wise. The time has come for us to be practical and wise. I shall be watching with interest to see how far we take the lessons which are to be learned from this sad, devastating experience, and I shall lobby, as I have lobbied and continue to lobby, for distinct, clear demarcations. The area has been greyed for too long. Perhaps the lesson to learn is that we should put less emphasis on individual wealth and success and more emphasis on carrying out our responsibilities for the good of the general will.

I note with interest also, and lend my full and wholehearted support to the Financial Secretary in his efforts to amend the Insurance Law so that protection is given to local subscribers and local policy-holders in respect to domestic business. I think it shows the perception and wisdom of the gentleman. As the Hansards of the House will show, this is an area that I have been very concerned about to the extent that I have asked some questions.

In a neighbouring jurisdiction many of these institutions have been into serious liquidity problems. I take note of the fact that much of the business written in this country is not written by companies that have their headquarters here, but which are headquartered elsewhere. So, I welcome the efforts by the Financial Secretary to offer greater protection to Caymanian subscribers. I am sure that it is an effort that my colleagues in the Parliament will lend their support to. It is a step in the right direction. The Financial Secretary, although he does not need me to tell him so, is on the right track. This is timely and it will certainly be appreciated by the country.

We have in this country been continually making efforts to improve our image with regard to our position as an international financial centre. I have heard the Financial Secretary on many occasions come to this Honourable House and express concerns as to our reputation in the wider world. The Hansards of the House bear out that he has piloted numerous Bills, if not personally, with his encouragement, expertise and guidance. Recently we have taken great strides. But it is an uphill struggle because we suffer from the competition trying to put us down, as well as what I term the metropolitan countries, the more advanced G7 countries, who cast a wary and suspicious eye upon us.

Any effort to travel to the metropolitan capitals to try and impress upon the people that we are not a hole in the wall, that we are not insensitive to their concerns, and that we are always cognisant of the efforts and the necessity to be responsible—and we have been. Every time we have been called upon we have met our obligations willingly. I draw specific reference to the Honourable Financial Secretary's statement in July of this year where he said: "A team comprising persons of both Government and the private sector met with senior representatives of the US administration in Washington, DC. The meetings were aimed at increasing awareness of the measures and safeguards implemented for ensuring the effective regulation of Cayman's financial industry." The gentleman went on to say that those meetings were very positive ones and laid the solid foundation for the building of a working relationship. However, the weakness in that was that those of us on this side of the House only knew of those meetings when we read it in the paper and subsequently brought questions to this Honourable House.

I am saying that in matters where all of us have certain obligations, it is not unreasonable to request that we (children of a lesser god) be briefed. Because we, in our positions, can help project the image of meticulousness and sophistication. For the life of me, Mr. Speaker, I cannot understand this big boy/little boy relationship; this distrust. I know who the author of that is, you know, but I do not want to say who because he is my friend, although he is on the other side!

I just hope that one of these days that honourable gentleman can believe in us enough to say, 'We are going to let them in, because, if after nine years they cannot be trusted, heaven help us!'

Quite seriously, we are not asking for any disclosure of sensitive and intricate details, but for someone to say, 'Gentlemen, let us tell you where we went, who we met with, what happened.' We have constituents who ask us (when they see that the Government has travelled someplace) 'What did they go for?' Ultimately, the buck stops with us because we are going to have to vote the funds, even though we often vote them after the fact. So, in the future, it would be good if someone could call us in (how do they say it in street terms?) and give us a 'bly' as to what has transpired. I am sure that request and my be-moaning will not be lost on my good friend in the future.

I will not offer any detailed comments on the situation in Cayman Brac except to say that I am happy that at long last it seems that we have found a way to stoke the fire of the Brac's economy. But I notice that the whole exercise is predicated on the sale of land. As someone with a knowledge of the social well-being, I have to say that I hope that in our efforts to provide an economic well-being, we do not sacrifice and do not (how shall I put this?) sacrifice the ability of the Brac's land owners by forcing them into a position where they have to sell all of their land in order to improve their economic well being. I think that, to some extent, that is the mistake we made on Grand Cayman. I think the trade-off was inordinately skewed against the land holders. So now we have arrived at the position where land is really valuable and people do not have a bargaining chip because they cut it loose at a time when the prices were not of the magnitude they are now. We are at somewhat of a dilemma. We should use the experience to avoid those kinds of pitfalls in Cayman Brac.

The Financial Secretary also mentioned the National Health Insurance Law and the Pensions Law. I have a concern about that. While I gave my implicit support to both of these Bills, there are still a number of questions begging to be answered. To this point, no one, including the Honourable Financial Secretary, has told us what the inflationary effect of implementing these two important Bills is going to be. Remember, too, that they are going to be implemented simultaneously which means that a significant amount of cash will be taken out of circulation. Certainly, in the case of the Pensions, a great percentage of this is going to be invested abroad.

I have great difficulty with that for this reason: What control do we have over what happens to that money? What guarantees do we have? I do not feel comfortable with that because I think the greatest statement that could be made in regard to these funds is that they could have in some way been reinvested in our country to bolster the private sector and our developmental infrastructure. In countries of Europe, Holland, Switzerland, Germany, these funds are made available to business people to borrow to develop housing, to develop other kinds of things to benefit the society at rates which are less than the commercial banks, but still attractive enough to provide long-term, safe funding. I am not advocating that the total amount be so invested, because there would be a need to put some into stocks and bonds for greater return. But I think it is only fair, since the money is coming from the Caymanian people, that some portion of it should be available for Caymanian entrepreneurs and business people. I hope that it is not too late to explore these kinds of possibilities.

Our percentage of economic growth for this next year is posited at 5%. Quite frankly, I believe that this is above the ideal. I believe the ideal is 3%. I think that 5% is fuelling the economy a little too much. I am reminded of the recent situation in what are called the 'New Tigers' of the Far East—Thailand, Malaysia, Singapore. I think that one of the problems they had was the economic development was at too rapid a rate for which they were not prepared. As a consequence, this rapid development encouraged so much speculation that the bottom dropped out of their market and some of these countries are still reeling.

I am not saying that this is going to happen, but I am saying that it would be good in our case if we could tailor the development at a lower rate and try to prolong, much like a good athlete pacing himself in a race, rather than accelerating at the beginning. If we could find a comfortable pace and play that out until the end of the race, it would be better for us; because we may go at 5% for a year or two and then fizzle down to 1.25% or 1.5% and take a radical depression. That is my suggestion and from what I know of development economics, that is what many people in developing countries prefer because the argument is that that is a more realistic and sustainable pace of development.

I heard where Mr. Michel Camdessus, the President of the World Bank, was saying to the people of Thailand that one of the reasons they got into problems was because the development rate was too rapid. What he would like to see now (when they get on track again) is the development rate lowered and more sustainable, not fuelling so much growth so as to be unmanageable. I think that in our instance this makes sense in other areas as well, particularly if we ponder the fact that most all of our workers now are imported. The faster we develop, the more people we have to bring in on work permits, and the less chance we have of preparing our own people to take certain positions. You must understand, the growth is so fast and fuelled so much that there is little to no time for training—you have to bring in trained people. As a consequence, the vast majority of our people come in at the bottom end of the work force.

So, while it is true that we have been successful in sending an increasing number of our young people to universities and colleges, we still have a significant number who come in on the bottom rung. This is a situation that needs careful scrutiny because we should be in for the long haul. We should get ourselves in a position where we prepare our people for the long term. If we have a slow down, heaven forbid, what is going to happen is that those people who are transient in our society will go back to their own jurisdictions and we will be no better off, in that we will have a pool of people who are ill-prepared because when things were good we were unable to give them the kind of training we should have.

The development of tourism has to be viewed as a corollary of our economic success. It is safe to say that tourism has now earned its place along with international finance as an equal partner—not second anymore—in the provision of monies to fuel our economy to sustain our growth and to provide jobs for our people. But, I have said before that I think we are approaching the time where we have to ask ourselves, Is there an optimum number to which we would like to cater per year? Are we approaching that optimum? How are we preparing our people and the infrastructure to deal with that?

I appreciate the politics of the situation where it is good to say that the situation improved this year over last year; and this Government has improved it and expanded it and increased it over the last Government. But we cannot be caught up in this kind of entrapment wholly and solely. While that makes good political propaganda, we have to ensure that along with this increase we have increased the training, the employment opportunities and also the ability of our people to participate as owners and entrepreneurs in these ventures catering to tourists.

I would like to see a situation where young Caymans are encouraged and can access the resources to enter this seemingly lucrative field. I do not feel content with the situation where all we get out of it is busboys, bellhops, bartenders, dishwashers, and low-level managers. I am saying that now that we have reached the level in the stratosphere that we have, it is time to exact some conditions. So we should be in a position to say, 'Listen, you want to come in? We welcome you, but here is the situation: We want certain guarantees—understudies, certain availability so that our people can bid on certain concessions; we want certain availability for joint ventures between some of our people and some of your entrepreneurs.' It is only by so doing that in the long run our people are going to feel content to continue to exert and to produce and to welcome.

I am saying that our people's patience will be tried if all we are getting out of it are maids, bellhops and bartenders. Let us examine it more closely and try to effect a strategy to push our people as far up as we can so that they have some economic say and some economic possibility.

The numbers are really impressive and there is no doubt that efforts are bearing fruit. I want to underscore that I do not think the efforts have really originated with the National Team, although in all fairness and candour I have to give them some credit. I think we are reaping the efforts of past political directorates. It is not my position to make the National Team look good, but it is my position to tell the truth, and in so doing I have to give them some credit.

So, we are doing fine with numbers. As a result of that we have certain other factors impinging on us. I do not want to get into this whole question of how the pie is to be shared and who is to get what, other than to say that it is forcing us (because the industry is becoming so lucrative) to now arrive at a clear-cut position with regard to how much of a laissez faire economy we are prepared to tolerate; how much competition. One only has to read the papers to see celebrated cases where controversy abounds vis-à-vis who should have a licence to do what. This was not important before the numbers became so great.

I say that because the growth of the industry is not an isolated incident now. We have to examine other factors that this growth impinges on the social and economic development. While there is nothing that the Minister can do about this, I think that those of us who hold responsibilities as legislators and elected representatives of the people have to bear this in mind and try to put our shoulders to the wheel to arrive at a sensible and acceptable position before this type of situation becomes one of 'us against them' and 'me against you'. I believe that the economic success of the country was a marriage. It has to continue as a marriage. Maybe now we have to go to the counsellor, that sometimes happens in marriage, and work a couple of things out.

I notice that every year we seem to become more dependant on two sources of revenue—land sales (and by inference property transfers), and Custom duties. I am worried about this. Do you know why? Because these two areas have the potential to upset the social balance in the country. My position has always been that land, and I guess to a certain extent you could include property, is the source of all wealth. What if the situation develops to a state where all the business is being transacted at the upper echelon, and there is a gap in the mid and lower level? Then we stand a chance of alienating and isolating an important element in our society.

I am also not comfortable with the fact that there seems to be increasing importance placed on our Customs Department to break records in terms of collection of revenue. Yes, collection of revenue is an important and fundamental element. But, we have to be careful that we do not get ourselves in a position where our officers are crusaders with no ability to exercise discretion, and no ability to view cases on individual merit. I say this because I hear complaints from people who take weekend trips to Miami. It is increasing. They get hassled.

Mr. Speaker, you know that there are three sides to the story—my side, your side and the truth. But I have to say that the complaints I have been hearing are increasing and I have heard them from people who are not rule-breakers, who have no record of being petty traders but are just casual weekenders who went to buy a couple of items and declared them. It may be that our officers are conscientious. I am not blaming the officers. I am just saying that we should not put ourselves in the position where we unconsciously pressure them to wring every dollar they think can be wrung because they want to say in August that they have surpassed the record of the previous August. That defeats the purpose. When you do that, you force people into creating an underground economy. They will find ways, believe you me. The human mind is full of ingenuity.

I like what the Jamaicans say. Sometimes you have to give them a bly, or it may be sufficient to say, 'Look, I know you are running a little scam on me, but I just want you to know that I am watching you.' I think it goes without saying that is another reason why we have to manage our natural resources more carefully and enter into prudent financial planning—so that these resources can spread faster. Which brings me to the topic of fiscal responsibility.

That is a bad word in this Parliament. Those people who were so ill-advised to introduce that concept did not do so well. I remember when my colleague, who was then the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, brought the motion asking the Government to consider setting up a Fiscal Responsibility Law. He used as a model the Fiscal Responsibility Act of New Zealand. That was in 1994. My good friend from across the way found every reason and excuse in the book to belittle, castigate and chide us. I say now, I repeat, it is time that we have such a law. I am quite familiar with the promises. I am quite familiar with the pristine asseverations, but like Aesop's fable they have yielded nothing.

With some trepidation I have to say that Members of the Government must have a little more respect for people on the Backbench when they bring these things than to trace them down and castigate them. I am hurt. There is a side of me that cannot easily accept this kind of put down. We, on this side, have been nothing but responsible. I want to quote something, the author of which is my friend, from the Hansard of 14th September, 1995. . .

The Speaker: Honourable Member, would this be a convenient time to take the break?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Sir.

The Speaker: Proceedings are suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.27 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.01 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town continuing.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

On the eve of the break I was making the point that in 1995 when some of us dared to bring a Motion to this Honourable House calling for a Fiscal Responsibility Law, the Hansards of the House will show that the only support that Motion got was from the Fourth Elected Member for George Town (now The First Elected Member for George Town), the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman (now, out of the House), and me, as the Mover.

We were reminded then by the Leader of Government Business and the Leader of the National Team, my good friend the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning, that: "We have not been borrowing for most of the work that we are doing; there have been very few borrowings and the beclouding of the finances in relation to the $20.0 million borrowed for Cayman Airways was not ours. It was to pay past debts. This Government borrowed it but it was to pay for debts of the past Government's spending. This is what responsible fiscal policy is all about." [Hansard—14th September, 1995.]

Mr. Speaker, if I borrowed something, I really fail to see how that is not mine; how I am not responsible. Whether I borrowed it to pay the debt of my brother, my sister or anyone else, the fact is that I borrowed it. I am the legal entity. But that is not atypical of the type of Voodoo economics that sometimes come from my good friend.

He goes on: "Madam Speaker, I can speak with a considerable amount of authority because I am one who continues to be active in my profession. I am a qualified banker [But he could not save First Cayman Bank !] for nearly 30 years, I hold a degree in banking. I am actively a banker; I hold a degree in Credit Management, one in Administrative Accounting (all current, I am not defunct in these) and therefore I can speak with a considerable amount of authority that I would never sit by and see fiscal irresponsibility in this country." Mr. Speaker, believe you me, I am going to prove that Honourable Minister wrong because I sat up last night and made some mathematical calculations that are going to disprove him as the 'fiscal responsibility' animal he touts himself to be. But more of that later, sir.

The Honourable Minister continues: "I am not frustrated over the politics of the country. I will never do anything that is in any way irresponsible from a fiscal point of view because I have found. . .and as I will lay the accounts of Cayman Airways tomorrow, they will see what fiscal responsibility is all about. [I wonder if fiscal responsibility is also increasing the subsidy from $4 million to $5 million?] There are no secrets in this country, Madam Speaker. There are a number of questions asked in this House [That is true!] by two Honourable Members exceeds probably every question asked for every other Members in the past 30 years. [And he goes on] So Madam Speaker, in real life what we come back to is really the integrity of the people who run the finances of the country. Anything that is asked of the Government, within our ability to give, we give it. If there is any doubt in any area then questions are always asked and we give it."

Now, Mr. Speaker, the National Team needs to be careful about how they talk about integrity because they might get choked. Fiscal integrity, as I am going to show... I do not know if increasing the national debt and continuous borrowing is a criterion to say that you have fiscal integrity. In my book that is a contradiction. ". . . within the team of the Executive Council there is more ability to deal with the finances of the country than, I submit, has ever existed. Which I also submit is non-existent under the Opposition and their colleagues, perhaps with the exception of one who seemed to have drifted away from the camp. [That one is right back here now.] He has a degree in accountancy." And he, I might add, will speak for himself. Oh, how I am anticipating that speech!

I have to say that my good friend, the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning, never ceases to try to put us down. He can never quite achieve that. I like it when he reminds me that I am defunct, because do you know what I do when I go home? I plug in my old 'Energiser' and get ready for the next day. And if he does not notice that every time he calls me defunct I come in and whip him, then I cannot help him. I whip more, and I am going to chase him, and chase him, until I chase him to the sea. . . . So I hope he can swim, or he will have to roll his pant legs higher than he did in that picture I saw of him at Randyke Garden Apartments!

Mr. Roy Bodden: I believe that this call for some kind of effort at fiscal responsibility at this time is timely. With the introduction of this Budget I take the opportunity quite seriously to reiterate that we in this House need to seriously buckle down and stop playing games of one-upmanship. If we consider the future important, just a couple of years away from the new millennium, if we want to lay a good foundation I think that we have to find a way—Government and Backbench—to arrive at this position. If we do not, history and our progeny will not be kind to us. If we send this country into economic disaster we will be committing a grave error, an unforgivable error.

I have to say again, because it bears repeating, that the efforts of the National Team in this Budget are not near as much as they should be because we are only tucking away a million dollars in the general reserves at a time when the private sector is booming and the Government is booming. We should be putting more than that away. I have to wonder, if I can see that and I am not a banker, what is the banker seeing? I hope that when that Honourable Member chooses to speak that he explains to us why.

When certain people are nice to me, I am most suspicious. What did they say in the Trojan War? Beware of the Greeks, especially when they come bearing gifts. Trust me, I have never fallen for flattery, and at 50 I do not need that.

The whole format of the document, I submit, is constructed in a way to lose people—particularly when they do not have degrees in financial management and administrative accounting. I felt so seriously about this, Mr. Speaker, that last night I stayed up quite late doing research on this whole business of Ministerial accountability as far as it concerns getting the best value for money and getting the peoples' representatives to understand what is going on.

I found out that Sir Ivor Jennings (acknowledged to be the most authoritative writer on British Constitutional Law and Practice) believed that the doctrine of Ministerial Responsibility to Parliament is the most essential characteristic of the political relation. So I am saying that if we are not in a position to know what the Ministers have in this document, if we are not in a position to clearly flush out what is in this document, how can we be expected to support it or vote for it? And we claim to be intelligent people. The bottom line is that it is time for the game playing to stop. It is obvious that someone does not want us to understand what is going on with the country's finances and where it is going. I say again, I am not prepared—and I am going to search my heart as I consider myself an intelligent representative—to support what I do not understand. I am accusing the Government of a consistent pattern of obfuscation and contradiction and hide-and-seek. I look forward to hearing what their excuse is going to be.

It goes against what the current Financial Secretary laid out as I quoted earlier, it goes against what his predecessor laid out as I quoted earlier; the whole system has broken down, deliberately so. It must come to an end. This odious practice goes against the heart of democracy and is anathema to the Westminster system.

I would like to further quote Sir Ivor Jennings: "The essential characteristic may no longer be the accountability of Ministers to Parliament. It may rather be that the central characteristic is now the zealous application of the doctrine of value for money and accountability to customers. While Ministers pay constant lip service to adherents to cherished constitutional values, there seems to have been a considerable weakening of commitment to and devaluation of the structure and operation of Parliamentary accountability." That is even more important because this document is in contradiction to the whole effort the Government is now undertaking called 'Re-invention of Government'.

What is happening? The horse is going one way, and the cart is going another and the rider on the horse is facing backwards looking at the cart. I am saying that it cannot continue because it should be a concert. The political arm cannot expect to operate at cross purposes and the executive body cannot expect to keep the legislative body in the dark. There could be but only one author of that strategy!

I just would like it known that after all this time that strategy is becoming crystal clear to me now. The oldest trick in the book. I am becoming somewhat of an expert at detecting it myself. I realise now that I made a mistake. I should have gotten a couple of degrees in credit management and administrative accounting instead of wasting all that time on education. (Members' laughter)

The intentions must be well-meaning. But somewhere along the line, something got twisted. I cannot fathom how it could be deliberate. I do not understand what purpose would be gained by so much confusion and inability to understand. I know that a lot of one-upmanship goes on.

It comes down to this: Of all the pronouncements of financial integrity, of ability to grasp good management concepts, degrees obtained, all of us are Caymanians. Mr. Speaker, the only difference between me and my friend is that he is more buckra than me, but the blood is just as blue in me. I want the same for my country. I think it is time that Honourable Minister realises that. Do I have to be here until I reach the age of Methuselah before he understands that the only difference is that he sits there and I sit here? There should not be any of these kinds of secrets and obfuscation, this hide-and-seek.

It does not matter. Years ago I was told that my support was not necessary, they had the numbers. I am not a bad guy, and in spite of what some people think I do not oppose for the sake of opposition, but I am not compromising my principles. I will not sacrifice my position out of political expediency, I cannot bring myself to support what I do not understand or have difficulty accepting. If that is wrong, I have to take the consequences, but until it is expressed in jargon and in ways that I can understand. . . and I want to say this in defence of myself and others: We are not the biggest dunces, because to get elected in this country suggests that you are a survivor. As you will appreciate yourself, Mr. Speaker, it is not easy on the hustings. Sometimes a man has to live by his wits—especially those of us who do not have too much money in our pockets when campaign time comes.

It is not that we lack the capacity to understand certain things, rather, it is that certain things are not shared with us. It is high time we changed the system. The system must be changed if only for that reason. I have to say again that this is a Chamber of musical chairs. I do not know, the orbit is not as pronounced as the orbit of the earth, but every four years some changes occur. So, what goes around, comes around. It might not be me. I do not necessarily hold those aspirations, but some of my colleagues. . . or it is not far-fetched to think that fortune might not smile upon me. So, if it is a game, we might get our chance to be where we can make the decisions too. But that does the country no good.

So, I want to debunk the notion that the National Team's record is in tact, that they are the epitome of fiscal responsibility. They are not! They have their transgressions like others. Now, on the eve of the 21st Century, theirs may turn out to be greater than those in the past.

I come back to the business of borrowing. We are borrowing again. We borrowed last year. And we had revenue enhancement measures last year. I am going to predict, layman that I am, that we are going to have to borrow next year again to keep up the services. I say again that we are on a treadmill and if we do not control our pace, we are not going to keep up, and not be able to get off the treadmill. We will be hurtling out of control. Then it will make absolutely no sense whether it was my Government, the National Team's Government, your Government, or the First Elected Member for George Town, all of us will have to pay. Like the Jamaicans say, 'All of we will be one.'

Mr. Speaker, I cannot completely discount this: At that time my friend might be away, out of the vocation of politics and those of us who have to stay around, because we do not have certain other choices, might be taking the rap, getting the blame for bad management. At the very best case we will have to be trying to clean up the mess. But I would like to let him know that if I am in deep trouble I am coming to get his expertise. So I hope he will be charitable enough to share some solutions, because I will appeal to his good moral conscience—which I know he has—not to leave me in the lurch.

I want to make the point that in the modern management concept and principle this document, as it is structured and laid out, really goes against the grain of what the professional people lay down. We are talking about monies with no ability for performance monitoring or setting up of performance objectives. Various jurisdictions have various methods. I understand that the New Zealand method, which is very popular, says one thing. I was happy to know that some of our high Government officials, civil servants, visited that jurisdiction. I am somewhat of an advocate of that system. But I want to make the point that budgets and appropriations across the spectrum of the free world, even in the great United States, the construction of these is evoking great interest. I am sure, Mr. Speaker, that you are familiar with the battle that President Clinton has, and the threats that he gave to his Congress of vetoing them. He wanted line items. He said that if they did not give him line items and the information he wanted, he was going to draw his red pen through it and send it back. He said that they could not give him that document asking for $300 billion without his having the ability to see item for item. So, if the richest country in the world can do that, and the biggest and most powerful country, why are we at this time departing from what was our practice, limiting ourselves and taking away the ability to set performance objectives and proper performance monitoring?

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived: We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. Question No. 158 is standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION NO. 158

No. 158: Dr. Frank McField asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport to provide a list of positions within each major hotel stating the number of Caymanians or expatriates employed in these positions.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The answer: Honourable Members are referred to the attached list, as it would be too time-consuming for me to read it aloud.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries? The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Minister say for those positions which would be regarded as executive, and held by staff other than Caymanians at those hotels, if there is an understudy programme in place so that Caymanians can prepare themselves for some of these positions?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, there are a number of individuals in the middle management positions. There are 88; and there are a number of Caymanians in the senior management position of 42, similar to the answer given yesterday. There are individuals within some of the hotels who are in the position, to some degree, of understudy to persons senior to themselves. I do not believe, Mr. Speaker, that I have official information from which I can speak on this, so I am a little bit reluctant to give information to Members as if I do. But if it is the wish of the House, I can undertake to gather that information through the Ministry responsible for Labour, and pass it on.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I would like to express my appreciation. Perhaps the Honourable Minister might like also to consider providing this information, if it is not now available: whether these programmes are operated on a formal basis with a regular monitoring schedule, or whether they are strictly on an informal basis, which is left entirely to the discretion of the various hotels to implement.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, I am not in a position to answer that particular aspect either; as referred to earlier, I have no official documentation from which to speak on that, but as I indicated earlier, I would undertake, in conjunction with the Minister for Labour, to gather that information as well. I think it is also important to point out that the former Minister for Labour did a statement in this House, speaking to training generally in the Cayman Islands, which also includes training in the Tourism industry.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, please allow me to say that some of these figures are seriously alarming, but I would like to ask the Minister if he feels satisfied with the status quo. I am not asking his opinion, but based on his policy. There are here bartenders, servers, waiters—at the Hyatt, for instance, where we have four Caymanians and 48 non-Caymanians, servers, waiters at the Hyatt. In the area of laundry attendants and room attendants. . . for room attendants we have 13 Caymanians and 18 non-Caymanians. And for laundry attendants we have one Caymanian and four non-Caymanians. I was wondering if the Ministry is paying attention to these figures, and what they propose to do with regard to seeing that an equal amount of Caymanians receive employment or training for employment in these areas.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, I think the answer to the first question, as to whether the Ministry is satisfied with the status quo, is obviously not. There is no move on my part to give any alibis for it, Mr. Speaker. But I think it is important to realise that the number of positions available in this country cannot be staffed by Caymanians, because there are not enough numbers of Caymanians to go around.

While I am as keen as any other person in this House to see that the training of Caymanians to rise to whatever level they have the capability to do, we have jointly, not individually, jointly within the Government, to put that training programme together and to walk hand in hand in partnership with the industry to make sure that it works. Until that happens, I am afraid, Mr. Speaker, we are going to be in this same scenario asking questions and not getting the answer you really wish to get.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: I have no idea what that was all about, Mr. Speaker, but I suggest seriously that the Minister take a look again at the figures for the Hyatt where servers and waiters are numbered four, and expatriates are 48. Now, seriously, there is no high degree of qualification needed for those particular positions, and it could have something, perhaps, to do with the type of hotel, and what the hotel really feels it deserves.

So I would like to see if he could at least undertake, accepting that he is a Minister of Government, and implying that he is collectively responsible, not just his Tourism Department, but the Labour Department, the Education Department — if they could collectively undertake to see that these figures. . . which could be very easily affected, I believe, because I know there are a lot of young girls coming to me and complaining about the fact that they cannot get jobs. So it is not a question that we do not have Caymanians. If they could at least undertake to see that these types of figures change in the future, and it might mean that they will have to work together as a group, but we assume that is what they are doing anyway.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, I think the Member from George Town does understand the answer I gave, given the comment he just made, and I believe that we need to be practical about whether or not we can find as many waitresses in this Island as we think we can. When you walk around to restaurants and you do not find them, do you expect to find them in hotels?

I am just as keen as any Member of this House to try to achieve a total Caymanian staff in the private industry, as well as in the public industry, but is it going to happen today or tomorrow? The numbers are not there to cause it to happen. So we have to work this marriage in the interests of the Cayman Islands in the long term, and yes, we need training, and yes, this Government will make sure it happens.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Could the Honourable Minister say, based on the answer he just gave, if there are any specific initiatives being put forward to work that marriage between industry and the Ministry regarding training of Caymanians?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, the marriage is already there, working in different areas, not only in this specific area which he is talking about. The marriage has not risen to the level he is presently speaking of, but we have training which is put on by the Department of Tourism on an annual basis, and several times during that annual exercise, we have individuals from the private sector, we have individuals from Customs, we have individuals from Immigration, we have individuals from the Police, who are part and parcel of a training exercise.

All of us would like to see it happen tomorrow, and to change the present figures which we look at with some degree of not appreciating that we should allow this to happen or continue in that way, but we have the marriage, Mr. Speaker. It is a matter now of working the marriage fully into that area, together with the Education Ministry, who is now also responsible for training, and cause some important and significant impact in this area. That is the agenda we are on. We are moving to this matter shortly.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Mr. Speaker, I understood what the Minister just said, and I will just ask a further supplementary regarding the same issue. In the Minister's answer, he spoke in a generic fashion regarding what the aims and objectives are regarding training. I am asking the Minister if there is anything specific regarding this training that is to be achieved that is being implemented, or if it is still in the ground stages where it is being worked at. That is the kind of answer I am seeking.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, if my recollection is correct, the initiative was the statement read by the Minister responsible for Community Development in a recent meeting of this House. That initiative has to include the Ministry for Education, the Tourism industry, the Ministry responsible for training, and those three ministries, not to say that is an exhaustive list. Working together will cause an impact to happen.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. I too remember that initiative being introduced in this Honourable House. Perhaps the Minister at this point in time could give us an update as to how the initiative is coming along.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, it was not my statement.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker, I well know that, but the Minister was using it to answer his question, so I am very surprised that he cannot use it to answer mine.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I think we are here to deal with the Budget, and I am quite sure that the Minister would like a little co-operation when it comes to the Budget. I think we would like a little co-operation when it comes to some explanations. We need to find out as much as possible about what is being done to alter these figures. Can anyone, or can the Minister say, whether or not he is at least satisfied with the collective initiatives with regard to training of Caymanians for these positions?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, quite frankly, I was trying my best to answer a question that I do not really have responsibility for. Training is not my responsibility personally as a Minister. Indirectly it is, so as far as being co-operative is being concerned, I thought I was trying my best to do just that. But training is something, Mr. Speaker, that has been talked about for the last twenty years in Cayman. Every Government has tried to make its initiative in that area. It is dealing with people, young people, maybe I should say, who have to be given skills, to use those skills in the marketplace, and deliver the service to the customer in such a way that they move on in a satisfied manner.

The present position regarding Caymanian and non-Caymanian is nothing new, Mr. Speaker, and it does not mean that it has to stay that way. But I think what we all have to realise is that we are dealing with an inadequate number of Caymanians to do all the jobs within this country. So whether you pick on waitresses, on bank managers, on teachers, or any other profession in this country, you are going to find that you do not have sufficient to meet the number of jobs in this country. So what we have to do, rather than talking about it, we now have to put together an action where we can justifiably say, 'The position is now in hand and we are moving forward together.'

Mr. Speaker, there are two sides to this story. First we want to have development, and we continue to have development because we want the country to prosper. But if you have development along the lines we have had in the last ten to fifteen years, you are going to have more jobs than there are people in the country to deal with it.

It has been this way for the last twenty-five years, and I would put to everyone in this House that it is going to be that way for the next ten to fifteen years, given the prosperity of this country and the rate of growth. We have to ensure that Caymanians have their opportunity, through training and otherwise, to rise to the highest possible level in this country.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? If there are no further supplementaries, question No. 159 is standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 159

No. 159: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister with responsibility for Tourism, Commerce and Transport: How much money did Government spend on the Caymanian delegation which attended DEMA Asia 1997?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, the answer. The Government spent CI$12,837.22 on the Caymanian delegation which attended DEMA Asia in 1997.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries? The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Honourable Member say what is the purpose of attending such shows?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, I guess I should begin by saying that one-third of the visitors who arrive in the Cayman Islands (and last year we had around 370,000) are divers. DEMA means "Dive Equipment Marketing Association." They provide the largest possible show in diving in the United States. They are now moving to different areas of the world.

This is the second time they have put on DEMA Asia in Malaysia. It draws people from all around the travel market, whether they are providing equipment to divers, or dives to divers, or travel agents, or any type of connection with the dive industry. The audience can number as much as 2500 to 3000 or 3500 people.

I believe the whole initiative with DEMA Asia is to spread the word about the Cayman Islands, not only its ability to be one of the premier dive sites in the world, but also when you make that move, Mr. Speaker, you are alerting the world as to where the Cayman Islands is, and its facilities including the financial industry facilities.

The Speaker: Supplementaries? The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, we spent some two and a half million dollars for official travel and subsidies this year. So in relating to a supplementary on this question, I would just like to ask the Minister whether or not he intends to concentrate, in terms of recruiting tourists, on the globe, or whether or not he has certain designated areas, like North America, South America and Canada.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, may I begin by answering that question in this way. We have Department of Tourism representatives in Japan, in Germany, in Italy, in Spain, in France, in the Benelux countries, and we have regional offices in United Kingdom, New York, Chicago, Los Angeles, Houston, Miami; and we have district sales managers in Boston, Baltimore, Dallas, Tampa, and Atlanta. We also have representation in Canada.

So the answer is, we are concentrating world-wide. We are concentrating world-wide for a variety of reasons. Because if we were ever privileged to attend, for example, what I call the largest travel show in the world, which is held in Berlin, called ITV Berlin, generally in March of any year, we will find that any country you can possibly dream of is there. And they are all there for one reason: trying to draw Caymanians to their shores, or trying to draw Asians to their shores, or trying to draw Europeans to their shores, or people from South America, or people from the United States, or people from Japan, or people from the Caribbean or from the Pacific.

So you have to be in that arena in order to continue to compete. And when we think of the Internet and its facilities which it provides to the customer in his own den at home or his office, you can book anything you want in any part of the world. So you have to play on a world circuit. But I must point out, Mr. Speaker, that the amount of money spent by the Ministry for travel in 1997 will be in the area of $50,000.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? If there are no further supplementaries, question number 160, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 160

No. 160: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister with responsibility for Tourism, Commerce and Transport: What changes have been instituted to the vehicles' licensing and re-licensing procedure since its transfer to the new department?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, the responsibility for the Vehicle Licensing Department was transferred to the Ministry of Tourism, Commerce and Transport on the 15th day of October, 1997. No changes have been instituted to the vehicles' licensing and re-licensing procedures since that time; however, the Department has introduced, since that time, longer opening hours for the convenience of the public. The Department is now open from 8.00 AM to 4.30 PM Monday through Friday.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries? The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. I wonder if the Minister could state, although he just answered that no changes have been instituted, if there are any plans to institute any changes in that Department?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, there is a series of changes being proposed, and I have held discussions with all Members of this Honourable House about those changes in order to get input from them on those changes.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I wonder if the Minister could say if there will be any change in personnel structure at the Department.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, the Vehicle Licensing Department, as I mentioned earlier, was transferred from the Police Department to within the responsibility of the Ministry for Tourism, Commerce and Transport. Prior to the Ministry accepting that responsibility, we now have a Director of Vehicle Licensing Department and he is a Caymanian, giving some of the questions that were asked earlier. I am not at the moment able to say whether there will be any changes in the structure in the not-too-distant future. That matter has not been discussed, and as Members appreciate, it is a civil service matter.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: It might be a civil service matter, Mr. Speaker, but when we come to the Budget, it will be a matter for this Parliament as well. I just wanted to ask the Minister whether or not (and he can refer me back to the civil service, but I will ask him anyway) there is anybody in that Department sufficiently qualified to head the Department, in that they have been heading that Department already.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, to the best of my recollection, the position being filled, Director of Licensing, was done from within the Police Department, and obviously all the other members of the Vehicle Licensing fell within the Police Department. Perhaps I have missed the question the Honourable Member is asking me, but I am not aware of any other person who was connected and worked within that building, who would be qualified to be Head of the Department, other than the Director himself.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Is the Minister saying that, although the Department had been previously run by the Police Department, and the staff that ran the Department were not police officers — they were civilians, civil servants — that these people themselves are not capable of continuing to run this Department?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, obviously everyone who works within a Department makes a contribution to the efficient running of the Department. I thought what I was speaking about was those who are within it at the moment and previously were not, according to my understanding from the civil service process, eligible, or neither was it agreed that they had sufficient experience and skills to take over and be the Head of Department, other than the person who was actually appointed.

The Speaker: Any further supplementaries? No further supplementaries. Question number 161, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 161

No. 161: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works if there has been any recent importation of Rottweiler dogs into the Islands.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The answer: No known legally. Dog breeds which are prohibited are Rottweiler, Pit Bull Terrier, Staffordshire Terrier, Neapolitan Mastiff, Fila Brazeleiro, Dogo Argentino, Japanese Tosa and Belgian Malinois.

There are over 200 pure-bred breeds of dogs. Eight breeds are prohibited because of the danger they pose to the public. Rottweilers are prohibited from entering the Cayman Islands. Many are bred to be fighting dogs. They are powerful and aggressive and can inflict serious injury. Rottweilers are particularly powerful and have, on well-publicised rare occasions, even killed children.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementary, the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Honourable Minister say if the restrictions and arrangements in place to prevent the importation of such dogs is indeed effective? And can the Minister give the House the assurance that it would be well nigh impossible for any of these types of dogs to pass through the system his Ministry has set up?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Mr. Speaker, in any system that is put in place, there is a chance that you will have culprits who will go behind and do other things that they can do, something contrary to the law. But to the best of my knowledge, what we have in place has been working. As a matter of fact, it has been so tight that I know of one occasion in the district of Bodden Town, where an individual wanted to bring in one of these attack dogs, and because of the surveillance which we had in place, I received letters even from his lawyers threatening me with encroaching on his privacy, as it was called. However, I was pleased to know that the Department had in place such enforcement that we were able to curtail that importation.

The Speaker: Supplementaries? Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Honourable Minister give the House the assurance that all officers responsible for the detection and prohibition of these dogs being imported into the Island are completely familiar with the physical characteristics of the dogs, and are completely educated on what to look for, so that no one can bring these dogs through the channels unless they commit an offence, namely by making a false declaration?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Any person importing an animal into the Cayman Islands needs to have an import permit from the Department of Agriculture. If an animal arrives at any port of entry, be it the airport, or the port by vessel, it will be confiscated if it does not have proper documents. In the case of a dog as we are questioning at this time, if one of those actually arrived there, I would have no hesitation in saying that it should be put down.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 23(7)&(8)

The Speaker: Before we take the supplementaries, I will entertain a motion to suspend Standing Orders to enable Question Time to continue beyond 11 o'clock.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I so move, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town has moved. Seconded?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Seconded, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The motion has been made and seconded. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED. STANDING ORDER 23(7) AND (8) SUSPENDED TO ENABLE QUESTION TIME TO CONTINUE.

The Speaker: Question Time continues. Supplementaries? Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, this is a little away from the original question, but it has to do with the same subject. Is the Minister in a position to say whether the strict controls which are placed on importation are also effective in preventing the breeding and distribution of any of these types of dogs which may currently be on the Island, and which were brought in before such strict controls were in place?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Mr. Speaker, I have to agree with the Member asking the question. I think it is far away from the original question, and that question would be subject to some consultation with my CAVO [Chief Agricultural and Veterinary Officer].

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I accept that, and I would ask you, Sir, to implore the Honourable Minister if he would so do, and perhaps provide the answer in writing at a later date.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Mr. Speaker, I certainly will.

The Speaker: Any further supplementaries? Question number 162, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 162

No. 162: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning: Does the staff of Cayman Airways Ltd provide ramp and office service to any other airlines flying into Owen Roberts International Airport?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, the answer: Cayman Airways Ltd provides ground handling services at Owen Roberts International Airport for the following air operators:

- ◆ Scheduled airlines: British Airways, US Air, Delta (proposal to commence 7th December 1997);
- ◆ Scheduled Charter Operators: Islena, Aero Caribe;
- ◆ Ad Hoc Charter Operators: Miami Air, Royal Airlines, Sun Country.
- ◆ Cayman Airways Ltd also provides "on-call maintenance" services in addition to the above for: American Airlines, Northwest Airlines and Air Jamaica.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries? Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Honourable Minister tell the House if this is a contractual arrangement for which Cayman Airways is paid a regular sum, or if this is a complimentary service?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, we are paid hard cash. The days of giving away Cayman Airways ceased about five years ago.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Honourable Minister say whether the staff of Cayman

Airways benefits from any of these monies realised from this extra service, by way of bonuses or regular supplements to their pay as a result of monies derived from these services?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, when the staff work outside their regular work hours, they are paid in accordance with the law.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Is the House then to understand, Mr. Speaker, that when these extra services are provided in the regular 8 to 5 day, no extra pay is given, although this is work over and beyond what they would have provided for Cayman Airways?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, as I understand it, they work eight hours a day, and if they work beyond the eight hours, they are paid overtime or paid extra for it.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, if I can recall correctly, the Honourable Member for Aviation mentioned that the days of Cayman Airways giving away money ended five years ago. I wonder if that Honourable Member could give some specific examples of what he is talking about.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I was just trying to get a little bit of humour into the seriousness of this place. I do not want to get into Cayman Airways five years ago when it was losing $15 million a year. I am not going to get into that. And in fact, in my Budget speech, I am going to keep it nice and positive as well, Sir. So I am not going to say it then.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, is that Honourable Member admitting that he is being very frivolous, as usual, in this House?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, that is a statement. The Honourable Member is entitled to his views. I was trying to get a bit of humour, and everyone at least is smiling in here now, which is the way that business can positively move forward.

The Speaker: Any further supplementaries? No further supplementaries. Question number 163, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

STANDING ORDER 23(6)

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, under Standing Order 23(6) I am refusing to ask this question, because it would be a clear contravention of the Standing Order which says, “Not more than three questions requiring an oral answer shall appear on the Order Paper in the name of the same Member for the same day, and any question in excess of this number shall not be called by the Presiding Officer, but shall be answered as provided in paragraph (8).” Thank you, Sir.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, that must have been a frivolous oversight on my part, but since it is in favour of the Opposition, if he wishes, since we waived the Standing Orders this morning, if he wishes it answered, I would be happy to answer it, Mr. Speaker. I always try to help the Opposition as much as I can.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I feel like having that question placed on the next Order Paper, Sir. Thank you.

The Speaker: That concludes Question Time for this morning.

Item number 4, Other Business: Private Members' Motions. It is my understanding that the Private Member's Motion is not ready. I will ask for suspension of Standing Order 14(3) so that we can proceed with Government Business. Since today is Thursday, Private Member's Motion takes precedence over Government Business.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 14(3)

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, once again, to assist the Opposition, I am going to move the suspension of Standing Order 14(3) as it is the wish of the Opposition that they move on (of the Honourable Members, I should say) with the Budget speech today. So I am happy to move that that be taken after the Budget is completed, so that the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town may proceed.

The Speaker: I put the question: Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED. STANDING ORDER 14(3) SUSPENDED TO ENABLE GOVERNMENT BUSINESS TO TAKE PRECEDENCE OVER OTHER BUSINESS.

The Speaker: Government Business: Bills, Second Reading, continuation of debate on the Budget Address delivered by the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development on Wednesday the 5th of November. The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town continuing.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS BILLS SECOND READING

THE APPROPRIATION (1998) BILL, 1997

DEBATE ON THE BUDGET ADDRESS DELIVERED BY THE HONOURABLE THIRD OFFICIAL MEMBER RESPONSIBLE FOR FINANCE AND ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT ON WEDNESDAY, 5TH NOVEMBER, 1997

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. When we took the adjournment yesterday afternoon, I was speaking about the new format, what I consider an improvement in the presentation of the document, and was encouraging the Government to adopt the New Zealand model. I was lamenting the fact that in the document we have there is a lack of information, which prevents proper performance monitoring or the ability to measure performance objectives. I would encourage the Honourable Financial Secretary to think in terms of expressing with greater clarity, and adopting the output or service costs when he is doing his next Budget. I will be listening with interest to hear what his disposition is in his reply.

Mr. Speaker, I make a case for what I am suggesting by referring to page 10 of the Caymanian Compass of today, the story carries the headline, “Impersonator to pay fine, costs” and it details the case. But we are not so much interested in the case as we are interested in this. “Mr. Graham [obviously Mr. Justice Henry Graham] had earlier asked Mr. Roberts [who was the Crown Prosecutor in this particular case] what the prosecution costs would be. The Crown Counsel said the Legal Department has not been in the habit of determining costs. . . .”

The point I wish to make is that with the New Zealand model that information, with the costs for these services, would be readily available. Thus, when the Honourable Justice called upon the Crown Prosecutor, that information would be readily available. If you check the New Zealand system, their Budget document, those services are listed by costs, so that information is literally at the fingertips at any given time. I would like us, Mr. Speaker, to take that route and, rather than looking in terms of individual items, look in terms of complete service costs. I think it would be a definite improvement. It would certainly help the layman; it would help us in this Honourable House, and it would help the civil servants.

Performance monitoring is an increasingly complex environment, and we in the Cayman Islands need to expand the scope so that we can better be able to keep track of what is described in the jargon as the “three Ds” — the manager’s capacity for diagnosis of new problems, design of solutions, and development and implementation of strategies. That is where the New Zealand model is very strong, is very appealing to jurisdictions, and it is becoming very popular.

Even we in the Cayman Islands — I think it was the Deputy Chief Secretary and some other top-level civil servant — spent some time in New Zealand. I would hope that the Financial Secretary could be so persuaded that he would express to this House his disposition as to whether he is prepared to pursue this model in our budgetary management and control development. I think, going into the 21st century, it would serve us well in our attempt to maximise and realise output and measure ability of our services to develop.

The Speaker: Would this be a convenient time before you go on to another topic, to take the morning break?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Certainly, Sir.

The Speaker: We shall suspend for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.15 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.43 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Debate continues. The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I would like to continue with my debate and to move on now, Sir, into some very important areas, working my way towards winding down. I want to talk about Government’s role in the economy, and I would like to draw reference to some comments which the Financial Secretary made on the 5th of November 1993, when he explained what he saw Government’s role being. I quote from the 1993 Hansard, Volume II, page 769, “Madam Speaker, I now turn to the issue of Government’s role in the economy. Traditionally, Government has adhered to a free market economic approach with regards to regulating local economic activity. Although this is still so today, Government has expanded in both its size and the quantity of public services it provides.” He went on to say, “However, high operational costs associated with this expansion has led to Government expenditure growth which has surpassed that of local reve- nue growth. The result has been a recurrent budget deficit before financing since 1990 through 1992. Therefore, Government has taken the initiative to improve its financial performance through a staff streamlining programme which has reduced the size of the civil service; amalgamations of several Government departments aimed at maintaining the quality of services while improving the efficiency of remaining civil servants; and expenditure controls aimed at reducing Government spending at all levels.”

And he expressed the hope thus: “It is hoped that by gradually reducing its role in the economy Government can improve its financial position, without substantially increasing the tax burden to the public and still provide incentives for private sector led growth.”

Mr. Speaker, I draw that reference to make the point that at the end of this exercise now we have achieved absolutely nothing because the Civil Service is as bloated as it was. As a matter of fact, it is more so now, as I am reminded by the editorial in the Compass of Wednesday 12th November 1997, the paragraph where it says, “The estimates show, for instance, that there will be 2,576 established posts in the civil service next year, together with 117 new posts, the bulk of them in Health Services, with the new hospital complex coming on line.” And the editorial goes on to say, “However, when something like one in eight employed persons is employed directly by Government, it should raise the question: Just how big ought government to get?”

I want to underscore, Mr. Speaker, that we are on a treadmill from which it seems we cannot get off. We had an amalgamation, or retrenchment, in 1993, and here at this point in 1997 going into the 1998 Budget, the Civil Service is as bloated as it ever was. I make the point that something needs to be done, and we know what needs to be done. We have to change the whole system. I do not know what we are going to do, I just hope that now we can be on the right track. But what I want to say is this: The Government, the political arm of the Government, needs to realise that the system needs to change. There needs to be more dialogue, if only for the simple reason that we have a different breed of animal coming into the Assembly now. We have educated, trained, qualified people who are not prepared to be rubber-stamps who sit by and say, ‘Aye’ to every proposal that comes, but who are demanding that they must be a part of the political process.

Mr. Speaker, if this is not realised in a sensible way, then I am afraid that. . . . You know, the democratic system allows for people to be challenged—and they are going to be challenged—and if they do not yield ground willingly, there is going to be a showdown and they might have to yield it unwillingly. They might have to yield more than they are prepared to yield. The process has to be a consultative process. We understand that there is a distinction between the Executive and the Legislative, but remember, the Executive has to come to the Legislature for approval. So what happens one day if they come and they do not get the approval? That can happen. Because there are those people who are not prepared to vet the system if they do not participate. This is not a presidium where the decisions just come here to be ratified. So I raise the hope again, and I not only raise the hope, but I lay the challenge down, that the powers that be realise that it is time for us to try to work together at a more practical and acceptable system.

Mr. Speaker, we have certainly had enough warnings and suggestions. From the time I have been here, I wondered about the purpose of coming here and listening to Throne Speeches and Budget debates with proposals made. . . . Mr. Speaker, it seems to me that it is pure lip service—it is read, but no one follows it up. I cringe, the organised person that I am with my level of intellect, at the fact that nobody takes one Budget from one year to the next and says, ‘You know what we said last year? Let us make mention of this proposal, how far we have reached, if it has failed, why we think it has failed.’

Every one of these Budgets and Throne Speeches, Mr. Speaker, is a separate document with no connection to the other one. How in the world can we as a country move forward if that is so? Absolutely no continuity! This year’s Budget Speech is different from last year’s Budget Speech, no interconnection, no assessment of the objectives. I see people on the other side who believe they know it all—and I laugh! Do you know what? It is a good thing they did not come to me, because believe you me, I would fail them resoundingly.

People have to stop boasting and talking nonsense about what they have and what other people do not have, and get on with the business they have been elected to do, working together to run this country for the betterment. Mr. Speaker, believe you me, I have my little journal, and one of these days I hope I can get a couple years teaching at some university and poke fun at the system, and at some of these people who are up in here believing that they have all the answers.

Mr. Speaker, I am saying that this country under the National Team’s management, really and truly is not as well off as some people would have us believe. Before I get into the notes that I made to substantiate my position, I want to read again from the Hansard of the 18th of November 1993 (page 918). The Minister of Aviation was debating the Budget, and that Minister said, “They [meaning the previous Government that they succeeded] had the knack, Madam Speaker, of creating debts that had to be repaid immediately after they went out of office, of leaving sizeable projects that they had no money for, and leaving the [new] Government to find money to pay for them.

“The Budget itself has been very carefully prepared by the Honourable Financial Secretary and his staff, and the Estimates reflect not only the views and the input of the Executive Council, but also that of Members of the National Team because we believe that it is through the teamwork and partnership that we were elected on that must continue to be the basis of our success in guiding the Cayman Islands back to a sane and sensible economic position.”

And the gentleman went on, “Madam Speaker, over a matter of four years, from December 1988 to September 1992, the Public Debt, less the General Reserves, went from $31 million to $130 million. If there is one thing that the previous Government can take credit for, it is creating the largest amount of debt that this country will ever see for which they had no idea how they were going to repay it, and they have left the new Government saddled with an extra $100 million of debt.”

That would be fine, Mr. Speaker, were it not repeated by the National Team Government. The very same Government that came in and said it was going to do better has done just as badly—or worse—because we are already up to $80-something million and its term has not finished yet! So heaven knows how much we are going to be up to when its term is finished!

I am saying, Mr. Speaker, it is time for the political lip service to be done away with, and the political gamesmanship must be put away. And you know, Mr. Speaker, that gentleman, the leader of the National Team, knows how it should be done because he said, on page 919, “I believe that you have to get the principle right at the beginning because, as the saying goes, if one gets on the wrong track in the early stages, it is very hard to get back on the right track. Government, the Legislature, and the public’s aim, has to be a Budget where the Government and the Legislature is living within its means. There can be no other long term solution to dealing with the horrendous debt that this country is saddled with and for which there definitely has not been good value for money.”

How true, Mr. Speaker, how true! If only that Member had practised what he was preaching. In the Budget of March 1993 (the first Budget for which the National Team held responsibility) the total expenditure was around $153 million. In June of 1993, the National Team boasted that they borrowed US$20 million, which they claimed could not have been borrowed by the previous Government, because the previous Government had no credibility. Further, in 1994, the National Team again borrowed $4.7 million. At this time, there were also revenue enhancement measures of $4.6 million. In the 1996 Budget, loan financing amounted to $22 million. In the 1997 Budget (which came out in 1996), there were revenue enhancement measures to the tune of $20 million. This was in addition to a loan of $20 million.

Now in 1998 it is proposed to borrow another $20 million. This position, Mr. Speaker, is further compounded by the fact that the National Team continues to funnel money away from the statutory authorities. For example, the Port Authority recently floated a loan to buy a crane. That Authority could have purchased the crane for cash, had the National Team not depleted the funds in that Authority. Then too, and I brought this up last year, Mr. Speaker, there is the duplicity surrounding the Infrastructure Development Fund and the Environmental Protection Fund, where monies are going out of these funds, again into the Treasury.

Mr. Speaker, do you know what the National Team's management reminds me of? Robert Maxwell and what he did to his pension fund. Robert Maxwell bled the pension funds of his companies and his employees. That is mismanagement by people who like to claim. . . and I suppose when I sit down they will get up and make the claim again. But I hope after they have made the claim, they answer the charges I put to them—that I am defunct? That I am a mongrel? That I am not successful? But I am serious! When they get through saying that, I want them to leave enough time to answer the questions I have posed, and for them to tell the country why they have done this, when they promised they would not raise taxes.

We have a way of expressing it on the street, when we say, 'That's the 'fust' thing they did after they were elected.' I even hear some of their hard supporters crying over that, saying, 'Boy, Roy, they fool us, y'know.'

So Mr. Speaker, I hope that the National Team realises that these are indeed serious times, and that there are those of us out here who are prepared to hold them accountable. What also needs to be realised is that in the time since they first took office in 1992, the National Team has doubled the country's budget—doubled it!—and will take the public debt into the stratosphere of $100 million by the year 2000.

Mr. Speaker, if anyone believes that the situation is not serious, they need only take heed of what outside people are thinking about us. I am not even going to read this again—although its importance and starkness necessitates that it should be driven home—but we drew reference to this document before, The Dominion Bond Rating Service Report of December 10, 1996, when they warned that we are entering a debt spiral. I believe that this document was laid on the Table of the House, so you, Sir, can have easy and quick reference to it if you so desire, by making the request of the Clerk.

We are entering a debt spiral, and Mr. Speaker, I want to hear the National Team and their response when I sit down. Get up and crow and blame the previous Government now! Let them blame the previous Government now! I would like them to explain why, with all the pristine promises, they have gotten us into the shape we are in, and when and how they are going to get us out. Inflating the civil service! Ballooning the infrastructure! Competing with the private sector, when they should be slowing down, and pumping more into the General Reserves.

It is a fat time now, and nobody hears about any unemployment; the place is booming, the private sector and the public sector. Indeed, we have to keep bringing in more—which brings me to another point. What the National Team Government needs to realise is that the economic situation in this country is really not going to significantly improve for any long term unless they face the truth, and sort out the Immigration system we have where we have people here for years and years with no status! Dangling as if on a pendulum. No security of tenure!

Mr. Speaker, I make the point, Sir, that if these people were treated fairly and given security of tenure, they have plenty of money they could let loose in this economy. They would invest here. They have plenty of money! But they are holding onto it because they do not know when they are going to hear 'knock, knock, knock—Pack up and go!' And we cannot blame them, Sir, we cannot blame them at all! So that is another challenge, an additional challenge for the National Team Government—that says it is the be-all and end-all—to get straight. I challenge them to do it! Deal with it! I will tell them that they will see the economic spin-offs, the positive economic spin-offs, if those people are dealt with the way they should be dealt with.

Mr. Speaker, it is not essential that the prince should have all the good qualities enumerated, but it is most essential that he should seem to have them. Mr. Speaker, to know what to do is one thing, but to exercise the political will and the honesty to do it is another thing. This country is greater than any of us individually, and is only as great as all of us collectively act to develop it in the best possible way.

I realise that under our system the relationship between the Executive and the Legislature can only go so far, because it is the Executive has the mandate to be the final arbiters and to make the final decisions. But I am saying that democracy demands and dictates that the dialogue be broadened and expanded, if for no other reason than, at this time, the persons coming into the Legislative Assembly are more educated, more prepared, more experienced—less willing to be extension cords. And ground can still be given without compromise. The balance of power can still be held by the Executive, by the Ministers who have that mandate. But at the end of the day, all of us are elected to do the people's and the country's business to the best of our abilities.

Posterity will not be kind to us if we ruin our country by gamesmanship and one-upmanship, not exercising the political will to do what is right when we know what is in the country's best interests. It is not my business, but certainly no one can fault me and say that I have been less than candid with proffering positions. I hope when I sit down, Mr. Speaker, that I do not hear any nonsense my advocating independence, or that I am radical, or that I am a communist, or that I am a socialist, or that I am defunct. I have heard that too many times, and that is immaterial. Believe you me, Mr. Speaker, as important as I think I might be, I pale in significance alongside the business of this country. So I do not want to hear that. My mother gave me my pedigree before I left home. There is no need for anyone to remind me of that in this Assembly.

Mr. Speaker, I have always prided myself on calling the shots as I have seen them. Before I wind up, I want to talk a little about some constituency matters. I do not know whose fault it is, I do not know who is to blame, but I want to make public a situation that I think is grossly sickening. There is an MLA office in Bodden Town. It is an office that I was instrumental in getting my good friend (the former Member for Agriculture and Works, Mr. Pierson) to set up. I used to have a key. That office is in the Civic Centre. I used to have a key to the Civic Centre and a key to the office. The locks have been changed to the Civic Centre, and the locks have been changed to the office, so I have been denied access to an office where I could meet my constituents in comfort and privacy in Bodden Town.

But I have access to an office, because Team Cayman has an office in George Town which I use. The point I wish to make is that that is typical of the National Team! And I know that is by design and not accident! But Mr. Speaker, what goes around comes around. The first game I learned was hardball, so I can play that game too. No, I do not want anybody coming to me giving me any key now, I do not want it! And I do not want any apologies either! They can keep the key and keep the apologies! And if the Jews are to have no dealings with the Samaritans, that is fine by me too! I can live that way.

[Addressing a Member across the floor] Maybe when you get up, you can explain it, but I do not want any apologies.

Pardon me, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Speaker, I notice that some roadwork went on in the constituency, and I am appreciative of that. But I wish to make a point about the roadwork that was done in the Cumber Crescent/Gun Square loop. I received some complaints from the residents in that area. The road is just chip and spray, and it is very dangerous, because that is an area where from the time I can remember, from the time it opened up, young children play. The loose gravel is causing serious problems, coupled with the fact that the houses are very close to the road, and when the vehicles drive, they kick up the little stones. So I am wondering if some consideration could not be given to asphaltting the road to eliminate the possibility of the stones flying up, hitting someone in the eye, or breaking some windows. I hope that the Government can see fit to consider that.

I would also hope that in the next Budget year, we can get our library facilities. I notice that work is being done on the play field. Some work has been done, for which I am grateful. But I bring to the attention of the Government the request I made concerning the Cumber Crescent/Gun Square loop, and the fact that I am disappointed that we do not yet have the library.

Mr. Speaker, I believe that I have said all I want to say at this time. But before I wind up, I just want to say that I have always tried to be a responsible representative. And I will always try, as long as I am here, to cooperate, and to work to the best of my ability with the Government to do what is best for constituency and country. But, Mr. Speaker, I will not sacrifice my principles. I will not stifle my conscience for political expediency. I expect that when I sit down many things will be said. It really does not matter, as far as I am concerned. A lot of things have been said already, and everyone knows that my presence here is in spite of—and not with the help of—any Member of the National Team.

Mr. Speaker, when I was a young man leaving home, my paternal grandfather gave me a little note. I learned some years after that he was not the author of that note, but it was something that he himself had discovered, and I want to share it, because it is something that I have always held close, especially as he was my hero. It goes like this: "If you are ignorant, the world is going to cheat you. If you are weak, the world is going to kick you. And if you are a coward, the world is going to keep you running." Mr. Speaker, I would not be the representative of my constituents if I were either of those three. And I would not be my grandfather's grandson if I were any less outspoken than I am. Thank you.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I will be keeping my debate of a high quality, keeping it positive, and keeping out of getting down in the mud because that is not what is good for this country.

While I will develop some of my arguments relating to this as time goes on, I would like to state right at the beginning that a lot of the statements made about the Budget are in fact not really facts. This year, Mr. Speaker, we have proposed to borrow $19.5 million, but in that same Budget, we are paying $17.41 million. The difference between what we are borrowing and what we are repaying is $2 million. The results of what we have done are obvious. Go and look at the Hospital, look at the new buildings at the Schools, the George Hicks, the Primary School s. Look at the four new Health Centres that have been put there. These are things that have been paid for without very much of a net borrowing. So you cannot just look at one side of the table without looking at the other. That is short-sighted, and to take that approach is not a fully representing one.

Mr. Speaker, from 1992 to 1996 (and I will have better details of this in the morning), we repaid $45,021,000 on loans, the majority of which we inherited. During that period, down to 1996, when you take out the Cayman Airways loan (which was really not our debt), we borrowed $29.7 million. These are facts. Up until 1996 we had repaid approximately $16 million more than we borrowed. These are tables I have been given from the Accountant General's office or the Treasury. These are things we cannot get away from. This is not as if what has been borrowed for the Hospital or the Schools has just gone up. At the same time we are bringing down the old debt that we inherited. So that is the first point.

The second point, Mr. Speaker, is that the Reserves of Pensions for Government have moved from $6 million in 1992, this year it will be over $40 million! We could have done what other Governments did and taken the $34 million and put it into General Reserves! That is a tremendous sum! $34 million has gone to pay for pensions that have been accrued over the last twenty or thirty years that previous Governments did not provide for. We have continued, though, to put each year, this year a million dollars into the General Reserves. It is therefore, Mr. Speaker, quite clear from the Budget that the Budget is well-balanced, because we are contributing again from the recurrent to the capital in the area of $13 million. So that is $13 million that we are spending less than we are taking in from General Revenue and we are contributing that to capital and to capital acquisitions.

The capital is high, Mr. Speaker, but like I said before, we are doing some very large projects. Surely, a person's health is one of the most important things on this earth. And the Honourable Minister for Health has done a fantastic job, finishing four clinics and he will finish, God willing, the Hospital during his tenure, perhaps the only Minister who has ever totally achieved everything he promised to achieve!

Figures, Mr. Speaker, do not lie. These are facts. If we look back somewhat, we will find that only twice in the history of this country was there ever a Budget that was not balanced. In other words, when money was borrowed to pay for civil servants' salaries and expenditure, and that was to the extent of $1.2 million in 1990 and $3.6 million in 1992. In every other year, there have been very heavy contributions to capital. In 1993 we contributed $11.2 million to capital. In 1994, $13.9 million. In 1995, $26.3 million. In 1996, $23.6 million. And this year we expect in 1997 to contribute $14.5 million.

But Mr. Speaker, the proof of the pudding is in the eating. Look at the economy of this country! How in the world can anyone stand up in here and say that this country is not progressing, when you look at an economic boom that has extended over the past 4 1/2 years? That is the proof! People who cannot see it, Mr. Speaker, are not wanting to see! And we must take, in this Legislative Assembly, for the good of the people of this country, because we are three years away from an election, leave the rhetoric, leave the mud-slinging until down then when tempers rise six months before the election. But let us get on with this country and try to move it forward and help the people in this country.

Now, I have had to shut my ears to the little rumblings I hear on the other side. I am not going to let anybody pull me down in the mud on this debate. I am going to keep it positive and I am going to keep it in good spirits.

We have seen the Budget of this country continue to expand. The economy has expanded. We have over-employment. It is a fact, Mr. Speaker, that we do not have sufficient people in this country to fill all jobs, because the economy—not just what we have done, but also past Governments—has been so good for a very long period of time, and our population is small. I would like to just dispel a rumour that started a couple of mornings ago on the television, that there was no money for education. I think it was my friend the Third Elected Member from Bodden Town. Because looking at the Estimates, which the Member must have had . . .

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order . . .

POINT OF ORDER
(Misleading)

The Speaker: Let me hear your point of order, please.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, the gentleman is misleading the House. That was not the statement, Sir.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I have vowed not to get into any argument. I am going to move on. Somebody made a statement, Mr. Speaker, that education was not getting enough money. And the Estimates are very clear. . . Mr. Speaker . . .

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, do I have a point of order?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: How can you have a point of order when I have not said anything since?

The Speaker: I have to hear what you are talking about before I can understand.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, the statement made on the television was that there was no explicit mention of education in the Budget—education and training, Sir. And the Honourable Minister should withdraw his misleading statement otherwise.

The Speaker: I did not hear the Honourable Minister say that, but would you please explain?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I do not want to have an argument in here. I withdraw whatever was said. All I am saying, anyone who says that education has not gotten its share has to be blind to the Budget, because it is clear. You look at page 15, and in 1997, Education was receiving $22,920,000, and in 1998, $24,066,000. Now you cannot just take, Mr. Speaker, one or two lines out of what the Budget says. The Budget Speech cannot put everything in. But it is very clearly here in the Estimates. And this House has always been kind to Education. And this year is no exception.

At present, we are showing Education with 15% of the total Budget. That is the highest in any developed country that I know about. So not only have we increased up there, but throughout the pages, Mr. Speaker, it is very clear that education has continued to do well. There are new things in this, for example, site-based planning has the sum of $173,000 in it. That is to deal with planning on the sites. And the ambit of the vote sets out clearly what has been done, and the new services, Mr. Speaker, provide for approximately another 13 or 14 officers, mainly teachers, for the schools. This is found at page 182.

I am developing this, Mr. Speaker, because it is very easy for people to make implications and give the wrong impression to the public, when those persons should know what the truth is. Throughout this Budget, there are very clear and defined sums which I do not want to have to get into too much detail (I know that is not what is for here), but to dispel this rumour that has been started, I would like to just mention a few of these things to show that education has gotten quite a bit in this Budget.

Beginning at page 259 (I will move very quickly), there is a sum to install a fire alarm system at the John Gray High School. There is re-roofing and upgrading/extending covered walkways at the John Gray High School; refurbishing works at John Gray; construct phase 2 of the George Hicks, comprising art block, changing facility and extension to administration building at George Hicks; install fire alarm and upgrade fire alarm system at George Hicks; re-roofing and upgrading of walkways at George Hicks, and these are sizeable sums, that is like $100,000, for example. Replace windows on north and south side of all buildings at George Hicks (I am not too sure why they are replacing all of them there, but . . .); various minor refurbishing works at George Hicks; extend fire alarm system at old building at West Bay Primary; re-roofing walkways at North Side Primary; landscaping and bus shelter at North Side Primary; Red Bay Primary field (and that is well on now); construction of a new playfield to the Red Bay Primary School, and it goes on and on.

Just a few other areas: Community College - there is a sum in there for the plan and design of a sewage plant to go in for the George Hicks, John Gray, Community College, and the Truman Bodden Sports Complex. And then there is a new schools' programme in there, Mr. Speaker, where we will now start on the plans for a West Bay and George Town Primary School and also for a new secondary school for Grand Cayman.

There is a programme to air condition, insulate classrooms, which is something we promised; the money is in there to begin it. There are the high schools: a programme of new development, renovation projects for high schools in Grand Cayman and Cayman Brac. Once again, renovation of projects in Primary Schools in Grand Cayman and Cayman Brac, and these are sizeable amounts. New development and renovations are $1,214,000. The one I referred to before is $753,000, and there is $1.5 million for the primary schools. It goes on — re-roof, Cayman Brac programme for buildings at Cayman Brac high school, re-roof and upgrade breezeway and covered walkway at the East End primary school, re-roofing programme to buildings at Spott Bay primary, replacement programme for fence at Creek Primary school, construct new facility for 150 students, that is at Light-house School, and a million dollars is in there to begin that. The Red Bay Primary Admin., construction of a new Admin. Block, the Red Bay Primary, the schools, Mr. Speaker, have gotten their fair share out of the Budget. In fact they probably have gotten one of the largest slices of the Budget on the capital subject to the new Hospital, the new health facilities.

So it is very clear, Mr. Speaker, that anyone who says that the schools are lacking in anything or not mentioned in the Budget, they are definitely are mentioned where it is important, and that is in this document which has the money standing against them.

The Speaker: Would this be a convenient time to take the afternoon break?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Yes, Sir.

The Speaker: We shall suspend for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.34 PM.

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.07 PM.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The Planning Department has continued to process more and more applications, and for the first time, projects have actually exceeded $200 million in the last year. This year as well there is also a record up to the 10th of September of 968 applications with a construction value of $158 million. What is significant here, Mr. Speaker, is that the time of hearing of applications has been reduced from about 90 days to about 42 days. Out of that period is a mandatory 21 days of notice that has to be given to the public, which normally stretches into about 28 days.

When the development fee was put on early in the year, there were the prophets of doom, and many of them in the real estate and construction industry, saying how this was going to cause a recession. In fact, I remember one of the local architects actually saying that land would not be sold in these areas. I am very happy to say that the value of land, and I am reading here from the Honourable Financial Secretary's speech, "The value of land transferred as at August 1997 was $199.3 million, some $15 million more than for the same period in 1996."

There can be no doubt. And what is even better than that, the revenues received from land and property transfers increased significantly this year from $15.8 million to $17.8 million, an increase of 10.7%. So the prophets of doom there, Mr. Speaker, I think the Government has shown that what is really important in a country is stability, and people who have a positive and upward-thrusting approach to the country's economic and financial position.

Also, I am happy to report that the appeals process is now considerably reduced, and in fact there are not many pending appeals that remain. At one stage I think it was only about eight or nine, and these have been effectively heard by the Appeals Tribunal. I guess Planning's greatest effort in the last 20 years has been on the Development Plan which, Mr. Speaker, thank God, has now passed and the country for the first time since the 1977 Plan, does have a Development Plan.

In Planning, the move now is to begin the public procedure on the Cayman Brac and the Little Cayman Development Plans, which will be dealt with in accordance with the wishes of the people of those two Islands. Hopefully by early in the year the public process would start on that. There will be proper consultation, Sir, with the MLAs and the public generally on this matter. I think the time has come when both of those two Islands (and I believe it is right) should have a plan—a plan that the people want to have, to guide them over the next five or ten years, however long it remains in.

The only other area (and this really is under Aviation, but it relates to those Islands, Mr. Speaker) is that I hope within the next month or two to begin the advertising process for the Little Cayman airport. That would be one where I would once again consult, put it out to the public and hear whatever representation is made on it. That I think is long due, and if I can, during my tenure the next three years here, if God spares my life, be able to deal with the two Brac and Little Cayman Development Plans, and get the Little Cayman airport in place, I think it will set Planning in a position where the Islands can now move forward and do so with certainty, and in an organised way.

I am happy to say that despite what has been said about plans, there is in place a plan that is updated annually on Education, also on Cayman Airways, we know this in many other areas, Tourism, Hospital, Drugs, Rehabilitation, Port has a plan, Agriculture has a plan. So there are many plans there, which the medium term financial plan will draw on and will do a comprehensive overall relating specifically to the financial aspects of the country. That will hopefully come this time.

But many of the individual plans, such as the Development Plan that deals with the physical side, are important that they are stand-alones, because they deal with this country's main resource of wealth—land. And it is one that the Caymanian public has a full and very long democratic process in having their say into it.

Mr. Speaker, those plans provide the basis for the country moving forward, and if these plans had not been in place, and a stable Government, a stable Legislature, when I say that, in place, we could not have progressed as fully and as rapidly as we have done. And what I would like to ask, and unfortunately, so far we have not really heard this, it is all well and good for persons who regard themselves as opposition to criticise, but my question is always, where are the solutions? In this life, anybody can criticise. But I am asking that they now come forward constructively with solutions to the problems. The country does not want to hear a lot of talk that is just tearing the country down, they want solutions. This is what the National Team and the Government has done, and it is a duty on a responsible Opposition to be constructive and produce solutions. I am still waiting to hear those solutions when the other two Members get up later on.

The New Zealand plan, and whatever may be said, Mr. Speaker, is the one thing that the Opposition cannot say, we have consulted more in this Government than has ever been done. When I was opposition, Government would not even speak to me for four years! We never had a meeting with them! And we have tried to, we circulate bills in draft, there was consultation on First Cayman Bank, which I will deal with later on. And also on things like the Cuban crisis, things where we had to get together, and we continue to do this, extending the olive branch and trying to get them into a constructive mode.

So the New Zealand approach, Mr. Speaker, I have had a bit of time to read on this, and I was really interested to see how brief that aspect of the Budget was. In fact, education was summed up—I do not necessarily want to go into a lot of depth on it, on three-quarters of a page. They set targets, they have a strategy, money is given in fairly well in bulk to them, they are expected to meet those targets. I have no problem with that. What it will do, Mr. Speaker, is it will remove this massive document we have here, all the little details I read out, of all the nice things being done at the schools that I have money for — that will go, and the thrust as I understand it, will be that the Minister for that area will be given a vote and targets to meet, and it is up to them, with some flexibility within the Budget, how they attempt to reach it.

And while on that, Mr. Speaker, the present Budget, while it is going through a stage of reform, has done a lot to make things simpler. It is still very heavy. But for example, you may have votes that were split between three different areas. It was nearly impossible to go through the old Budget and add up all of the amount for your vote. In fact, at times, I must tell you, I too would get lost in it. Now it is set out much clearer, and there is a heading, a subhead 54, that pulls this all together. So you can look down now and see how much education is getting overall, you do not have to look under three different heads, depending on where it was financed or whether it came out of local revenue or whatever. And the summary that is set out in the front of it is also very good. But it is going through a stage of change, and we cannot expect miracles overnight on this. But I congratulate the Honourable Financial Secretary because this year has been a difficult year generally. A lot of his time had to be taken in other areas of responsibility while the Budget and the Deputy Financial Secretary and all of their support staff, the economists and everyone who, budget officers who were trying to deal with this. But I think you have to look at the good points. And one of the main things now is that there is a consolidation of votes, and you can look up, at least I can look up and see with certainty, rather than having to add up part of it as coming out of a loan or part of it out of local revenue, or part stuck somewhere else.

I believe that the reinvention process will bear results. We have to give it time. It is no good attempting to judge results until it runs its process. And I believe that with the costing of services, that that is attempting to achieve, that we will for the first time be able to look at a specific service and say, It costs x dollars, why are we not collecting the money for it? Or this is how much we are losing on it.

I too share the views of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, that perhaps the civil service, at 2,576 posts is obviously getting heavy. It is consuming more and more of the recurrent Budget, but I really think that the reinvention process needs to run its course and we need to see exactly how that will impact on all of this. And in fact the largest recurrent expenditure increase was in the area of the largest single amount was in the area of salaries, which naturally includes salaries for us here, not just civil servants, but also for MLAs and all expenditure.

Moving on from that to just give a few more statistics on this, the Planning Department is well-staffed at present, and it is working well, and like I said, I get and I review normally about every two weeks, a full spreadsheet and an ageing form on all applications that come in, and when they are there too long, we query them, try to find out why they are not being speeded up. We still have staff shortages in Cayman Brac, and I think especially with the coming in of the Plan, we must reach a stage where there are sufficient staff to cover Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, both on the planning and on the enforcement side. Because for the Development Plan coming in, it is going to be important that the persons are in place to effectively make that operate and to ensure that people are building in accordance with the Building Code, which does apply to them and keeping it to high standards.

The Civil Aviation Authority, Mr. Speaker, reached its height this year when we had a Category One status for it, and that is basically the highest category that a civil aviation authority can have. It is an international acknowledgement of the highest safety, the highest performance that can be expected of any country. I would like to congratulate the staff there. It was a lot of hard work — I know I did a lot of hard work between Christmas and the New Year of last year on this. Also a number of areas started by the former Minister, such as Immigration arrivals hall, the Customs hall, the departure hall, those extensions were completed.

Earlier this year, Mr. Speaker, the Civil Aviation Authority installed a new traffic control satellite system that allows direct communication with Jamaica, and it increases the Civil Aviation Authority's efficiency. Currently this system is used by nine countries in the region, including Cuba.

The Tariff filings are always detailed, but we continue with that, and in due course, that will be turned over to us by the United Kingdom Department of Transport. We have worked hand in hand with Tourism on this to ensure that the airport is such that it is conducive to both local and persons and tourists who are coming in, and that things flow smoothly, and also with the Immigration and Customs. I know sometimes we get long lines for Immigration going out when several planes are scheduled to leave, and we try to separate them as far as possible, but sometimes this is not all that easy.

While I remember, I just have one point from May's Parliamentary Practice on the Budget in the United Kingdom. What I understand from there is that on the contents of the Estimates, 696, "the estimates [which is what the booklet we have with the Estimates here] are limited to setting out only the sums which it is calculated will be paid in the current year, and do not show the value of assets held or the liabilities outstanding from the previous financial year or to be spread over future years." And it is divided up, Mr. Speaker, and part one gives a formal description of the services to be financed from the vote known as its ambit. The ambit is reproduced in the Appropriation Act and provides a statutory description in that Act of the purpose which the supply demanded in the Estimate is granted.

They obviously do not have what in the present Budget is basically policy. The fact, for example, that I have amended the Planning Law, I have amended the Education Law.

It seems that the form of the Estimates in the United Kingdom is a much simpler and a much smaller document, perhaps more along the lines of what New Zealand has suggested. And I know that when this document gets cut down, everybody in the Budget Department will breathe a sigh of relief. But as the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town said in an earlier address when this motion was moved, about the New Zealand system budget, it leaves a scope of flexibility.

Tomorrow I wanted to really deal with the fact that many times the supplementary estimates are duplicating money that is in the budget but for another purpose that is never used. So sometimes you may get $20 million worth of supplementaries, or $30 million or whatever. At the end of the year, the total budget is no more, because you have to get new approval for something new, and the old one falls away. So I would welcome something where targets are set. I am used to dealing with that, and where you are expected to achieve those targets, or you have to explain them and naturally face this Honourable House if you fail to do so.

But I have every confidence that our very able and capable Financial Secretary will deal with the transformation of that over this coming year, and I believe it will be a relief to all of us to see a much smaller document, and a lot less detail than we have at present.

Miss Heather D. Bodden: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived: We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Item number 2, Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers of Government. Question number 163, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION NO 163

No. 163: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister with responsibility for Education, Aviation and Planning why did Cayman Airways Ltd discontinue the Atlanta service?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, the Atlanta service was operated via Tampa, which resulted in it being given a low priority display in the airline computerised reservations system. These reservations systems are the most potent marketing tool available to airlines. Because of its indirect routing (via Tampa), the service did not attract sufficient transfer traffic at Atlanta; as a result, the route was not showing sufficient growth. However, the ATL/TPA/ATL sector took up an extra 3 1/2 hours of aircraft time which impacted negatively on Tampa and other scheduled services.

Dropping the Atlanta route made more capacity available on Tampa and significantly improved the Tampa, Houston and Kingston routes. It also allowed a Wednesday afternoon flight to Cayman Brac. The airline has already started to see an increase in Tampa traffic.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries? The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Based on the answer just given by the Honourable Minister, could he say if, when the feasibility study was done, all of these facts would not have been known? Or did they have to go through the motions to find out?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, this was done prior to my time in Government and I would have thought that the 1988 to 1992 Government did carry out a feasibility survey, and perhaps the Honourable Member could ask — we do have one of the previous ExCo Members in here. I would have assumed a feasibility study was carried out, and presumably they acted on it. But, like I say, it was before my time. This was done with the 1984 to 1988, or maybe the 1988 to 1992, somewhere in that time.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I hear what the Minister is saying, but I have never heard of that Minister listening to anything that was done by that previous Government before, so why this time?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I gave a very straight answer. I am not in here to argue this morning,

Mr. Speaker. The fact of the matter is that I did not do the feasibility study, so I do not know! And the only way that Honourable Member can find out is to ask the Government that did the feasibility study. That is a statement of fact. I do not want any argument. If I knew the answer to that, Mr. Speaker, I would tell the Honourable Member. But I do not have the answer of six, eight, ten years ago when this was done.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Minister say how long this route was in operation?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I know it was longer than six years, because I have been in Government nearly six. It was started, I would say, maybe — it had to be somewhere in the 1988 to 1992 Government, I would have thought, Sir.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I had hoped that the Minister could have been more precise than that, because this is a serious matter. My question is, how long did it take his administration to find out that the route was not profitable?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, if the Honourable Member looks at the question, he will see that what I have said is that it was not showing sufficient growth. That route probably always has been unprofitable. However, when with the two aircraft and operating out of Tampa, the decision of the Board was to carry it on for a while, but if you are looking at the unprofitable side, it should never have been started. And that decision should have been taken ten years ago.

The Speaker: Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I wonder if the Honourable Minister would say if sufficient growth on the Atlanta leg of Cayman Airways was due to the fact that it was stopping in Tampa, and if any study was done to see if a direct flight out of Atlanta would have been a profitable leg for the airline.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, that was looked at. But with only two aircraft, we do not have the capacity to run directly in. It is a very long flight, and it would have taken up far more time than this. However, the other thing that has to be remembered is, at the time this route was established, Cayman Airways had three brand new 737-400s, one 737-300, and one 737-200 — had five aircraft! But the question is very relevant from the point of view of when we do get a third aircraft, I think that study should be repeated, because it is a good route, and I do not understand either why it just did not do better. But I believe the stop in Tampa was it. So what the lady Member has proposed, once we do have a third aircraft, I would see that a study is carried out, because I think she is probably right on the point, that it is a good route if run direct.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister say since his administration took over in November of 1992 how long during that administration before the decision was made to stop the Atlanta route?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, it was stopped this year, so it would have taken five years to do so, if I add up right.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Minister then say that his administration operated that Atlanta route longer than any other one?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, probably so. This Government was stuck with so many bad decisions of the past, it took us some time to unwind them.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Minister then say that based on the many problems his administration encountered when they took over, this was not a priority, and five years then was a very reasonable time to have made the decision while the route was losing during those five years?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, that is an opinion and I am not going to attempt to give it. But all I would say is that the decision was taken by the Board.

I would like to explain something. Atlanta contributed to the direct cost. There are two areas of cost in the airline business. One is direct, one is the indirect cost. Provided that the airline on a route is having a contribution over and above the direct cost to the indirect cost, then it is regarded as a route that, even though the net profit is not there, there is a gross profit going in to it. And Atlanta did contribute to that bottom line. However, with two aircraft, the feeling was that this could be better used, as we said, on the other three routes as well as doing Tampa direct. So while there was a net loss on the route, Atlanta actually contributed to the bottom line. In other words, the jets would have been doing nothing during that stage, so it was better to have a contribution in towards that, provided it was paying all its expenses. And it did always pay its expenses. I want to point that out. The cost of fuel, of the landing rights, all this, were paid for.

Over and above that, there was, if you want to put it, a recurrent profit that went towards the fact that you have a jet you are already paying for, you have pilots you are already paying, you are already paying all the staff at Cayman Airways who do the ticketing and who do everything else. There always has been a contribution to that. So it was not as if Cayman Airways was out of pocket on the route. It is just that it did not have as substantial a contribution to the indirect costs of the airline as did other routes.

I do not know if I have made that clear, because in the airline business, when you have equipment, you already have staff in place, this is the indirect costs, and the contribution to that was — So we were showing a profit on the direct costs, fuel, landing, food, this sort of thing. But not when you put in the cost of the jet, the cost of staff, which you allocate to each route.

The Speaker: The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The Honourable Minister has said in his answer that the dropping of the Atlanta route has significantly improved Tampa, Houston and Kingston routes. I wonder what this has done to improve the Orlando route, or would it have been better to drop the Orlando route and do a direct flight from Atlanta?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, the view of the Board was that it was better to do improvements on four routes, rather than to do Atlanta direct. But as I have said to the lady Member, and she does have a point, I think when we have a third plane — which hopefully we will find a third plane we can buy, because we are now buying one and leasing one — then I believe that the point she has made would show that that is a good decision. Hopefully we will find a jet this year or next year, and I know it is the will of this House, because everyone in here has said, You buy a jet, you do not lease it, and I fully endorse that. I have no end of questions on this. We are trying to find a jet to buy. But as I said, I think I gave a reply to a question on that. We have been trying, we just have not been able to match the two jets. When that happens, I think we can actually buy a third jet, then . . .

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Minister say what arrangements, if any, have been made, so that Cayman Airways can still benefit from traffic out of Atlanta.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, we have entered into, or are in the stage, rather, of entering into, arrangements for Delta (which we are handling that is coming out of there) and I think this will assist us.

Let me just say something that I think is very important here for us to understand and to accept with these routes. While I have to look at what is good for Cayman Airways, I have to first look at what is good for the Cayman Islands and its people. We will have that Atlanta/Cayman flight done by Delta. So Cayman as a whole will benefit from it—tourists will continue to come in on that route. Agreed, Cayman Airways is not running it, but the overall benefit to the Cayman Islands and to tourism and to the local residents is there. There is still a route — it is beginning, I think, the 6th of December — coming in there. Cayman Airways will handle Delta.

We will still see the benefits to the Cayman Islands as a whole, but yes, it will hurt Cayman Airways as it has given up a route. But it was one we just could not sustain, because like I said, the bottom line really showed that with two planes, it was better to improve on the other four routes.

And let me just say, this is a decision of the Board of Cayman Airways, and I have to rely on their good judgement in it after study was done that showed this.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, having listened carefully to the answer given by the Minister for Aviation, I think it leaves me more confused than ever. I am not sure whether the Honourable Minister —maybe could clear this up — is suggesting that because of all of the benefits derived from other airlines, the Cayman Airways under the National Team administration is maybe now becoming redundant.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I have a good sense of humour this morning, and I guess I will just smile with my good friend, the Third Elected Member from George Town, because all I would say, Mr. Speaker, and the Honourable Member take this in a way of jest — his Government bankrupted and just about got rid of Cayman Airways, but thank the good Lord, I have not come for any extra money for five years since I have been here. And if I were thinking of making Cayman Airways redundant, it would not be my decision, it would be a decision of the people of this country, and a resolution of this Honourable House, because as the Opposition Members know, I always keep them up to date on all the important matters, and I meet with them, and I would undertake to meet with them if the thought ever went through my head. But I would never make Cayman Airways redundant unless we got back to where we were in 1991 where we were losing fourteen, fifteen million dollars a year. Then I think the public may well say, 'Look, bite the bullet and do something.' But we are not in that stage any more. The airline has stabilised, and it is moving on. It is doing a lot better now than it has ever done. And we own a jet, in fact, Mr. Speaker, talking about redundancy, for the second time, first during the Jim Bodden administration, we bought two jets which, as we know, were sold, twelve and a half million dollars were spent. But we now have another jet that we only owe three million dollars on and it is worth seven and a half million dollars. But it is not in Cayman Airways.

The four and a half million dollars profit on that jet is not in Cayman Airways, it is in a separate company, and it has therefore made Cayman Airways look worse from a financial point of view, because Government owns the jet in a leasing company. But that is four and a half million dollars worth of profit that has been built up over maybe three years. And we are buying those jets again, so I hope Governments in the future just do not make the mistake of selling the two jets as they did the 727-200s and spent the twelve and a half million within about nine months. But I am not going to say any more about the past, Mr. Speaker, I need to get back to the future.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush : Mr. Speaker, I do not know if the Member gave this answer in his substantive answer or in supplementary, but can he say whether the re-scheduled service, since dropping Atlanta, provided Cayman Brac with a better service?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Yes, Mr. Speaker, we put in an extra flight on Wednesday afternoons, and also we improved, as the Honourable Member knows, the Tampa times and the Houston and the Kingston times as well. Yes, I am glad my Honourable friend there reminded me to remind the Legislative Assembly.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I want to thank the Honourable Minister for his good mood this morning. In answering me, Mr. Speaker, he failed to explain to the House that they are operating two old planes, and that he does not seem to be able to get out of the time capsule from 1988 to 1992. The Honourable Minister has not answered my question, and I wonder if he would stop being a little frivolous and now seriously answer my question.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town, would you repeat your question please to the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I am amazed, Mr. Speaker. The Honourable Member answered a question and he did not even understand what it was! My question was, in view of the information given by the Honourable Minister as to the benefits derived from the airlines coming in to the Cayman Islands, benefits derived by Cayman Airways with two old planes, is he suggesting that Cayman Airways may be now becoming redundant?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, first to deal with the old planes. We had two new planes, two 727-200s, one was eighteen months and one was six months, which that Honourable Member's Government sold for twelve and a half million dollars, spent it in 1992, spent it within nine months, so that is the first thing. And we were buying those two new planes, Mr. Speaker. 727-200s carried 165 passengers, had first class.

They then leased three new planes that just about bankrupted the Government. It was $105 million — $105 million in contingent liabilities. They flew them for a few years, but within nine months, Mr. Speaker, came to this House and admitted they made a mistake. They could not afford them.

The two planes I now have are newer than the two old planes I was left with when they took back the three new planes. In fact, Mr. Speaker, one of the jets that my good friend, the Third Elected Member from George Town's Government left me with was one-third older. They were twenty-odd years old! At least the ones we are buying now have a good value and they are much newer. But the fact is, Mr. Speaker, if this Honourable House wants to buy two 737-400s, I can tell you what they cost. They are round about $70 million. And the least cost then was $312,000 per month per plane, in other words $3.6 million a year per plane! They were losing $14 million a year which this Government could not afford. The people could not afford. The people had to take the money out of their pockets and pay — and Mr. Speaker, I am going to go into this a bit later — they had $40 million of debt in 1992, and I am going to lay, if I need those accounts, on the Table to show the debt that was run up on the three new planes.

Mr. Speaker, there were options to take a further two 737-400s at another contingent liability, I think in the area of $95 million. Now I did not get rid of the three new planes. The people who owned the planes and leased them took them back because the Government that my good friend, the Third Elected Member from George Town piloted between 1988 and 1992 could not pay for them! They could not pay for one of the jets. In fact, Mr. Speaker, buying two 727-200s, the two new jets that the last Government sold, we were only paying $105,000 per month. In other words, we were paying about $1.2 million per jet. So they could have bought two bigger planes for two-thirds of the cost of renting one plane! So I have two old jets because the 1988 to 1992 Government bankrupted Cayman Airways, and because the lessors took back the three new jets they had and one went — the 300 went in the North Sound — and that went back, too.

Now the question of — the other thing, Sir, the 727-200s took 10,000 pounds more freight than we can take on these 737-200s, and yes, they are not as good planes as our 727-200s that we were buying that were sold, but they are all the country can afford, and they are good, safe jets. And they are newer jets than the two 737-200s we were left with when they took back the other three jets. So the question of redundancy, Mr. Speaker, is not one that I would wish to raise, and if the Honourable Member thinks that Cayman Airways should be made redundant, let him go and talk to the 250 staff they have here and also to the public and see what they will say.

The Speaker: Honourable Members, I think we have gone far away from the substantive answer. I would ask Members, let us try to return to the question that is before the House. The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, thank you Sir. On a point of clarification: I heard the Honourable Minister say that he consults widely with the Opposition. I do not know, Mr. Speaker, whether that is a deliberate attempt at falsehood, or just a statement which was made unintentionally, I wish to declare for the record of this Honourable House that that is as far from the truth as east is from the west. The only time. . . and, Mr. Speaker, I am eminently equipped to make this declaration, because I got up here on the 27th day of November, 1996, and declared myself the Opposition—although now it seems that there are other people—the only time that Honourable Minister seeks to consult the Opposition is when he is in trouble to his neck out of political expediency, and when he is looking for help and sympathy. Let it be borne out in the records of this House that his statement of ‘wide consultation’ with the Opposition is a falsehood.

Hon. John B. McLean: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order, this is question time, and I have listened long enough to a statement.

The Speaker: I think I will let the Member continue, but I agree that we are at question time. But please continue what you were doing, the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I consider that I have made my point.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, in reply to that statement, the Third Elected Member from Bodden Town, when he was the First Elected Member from Bodden Town with the National Team, signed a statement in opposition stating basically what I have said—that the Honourable Member, the Third Elected Member from George Town, should not have sold the 727-200s. He, Mr. Gilbert McLean, myself and other Members signed it. So he has to agree, Mr. Speaker, with the statement I have made, and it was a very hard, harsh minority statement put in signed by all of us. We were all in . . .

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order.

POINT OF ORDER

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I think you gave a ruling on this already, that we were going to move away from this subject. Now if we are going to continue, I would like to say more about it too, but I think we should move away from it.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I agree we move away, Sir.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town. Let us try to go on a different avenue, please.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, in one of the answers the Minister gave to the question, he mentioned that the Atlanta route was operating with a gross profit but not a net profit. Could the Minister state if there are any routes that Cayman Airways operates presently that do operate with a net profit?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, that is not a part of the question. I am not going to get into it. If we open up a whole different area on the other four or five routes, we will never get out of here today, Sir.

The Speaker: I am going to allow two more supplementaries on this question and then we are going to move on. The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, thank you very much for your attention. I have been trying to get that for some time. I wanted to briefly say that I think that the Minister for Aviation says he is not doing politics, but I perceive that there is a political dialogue between the two sides of the House. In my capacity as an independent Member of the House, I would just like to ask the Minister whether the discontinuation of the Atlanta route had to do with the fact that it is now being served by another airline, whether it is conceivable that other routes will be discontinued that are being serviced by other airlines as well?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I would like to answer this by saying that at present there are no others that are under review, and also to point out, Mr. Speaker, that none of the references in the earlier supplementaries there actually were meant towards the Fourth Elected Member for George Town. I was really just dealing with the three Members who were asking supplementaries.

We keep the routes under constant review, and from time to time the routes are looked at, normally annually.

The Speaker: Any further supplementaries? No further supplementaries. Question number 164, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 164

No. 164: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister with responsibility for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation how many new posts have been created since January 1997 in the Health Services?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The answer: One hundred and eleven (111) new posts were approved in the 1997 Budget, with funding being provided on a phased basis to coincide with the development of new services and the commissioning of new facilities. From 1st January 1997 to 15th October 1997, 64 new posts were established and staff were recruited to fill the vacancies. It is anticipated that all new posts approved for 1997 will either be filled or in the process of recruitment by the end of December 1997.

And Mr. Speaker, for those Members who may wish to see the actual breakdown of these posts and what they covered, they may be found in pages 401 to 403 of the 1997 Budget document.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries? The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Is the Minister in a position to say how many of these posts are being filled by Caymanians?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, I do not have that information with me, but there is another question coming later on with which I will provide that information to him.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, supplementary.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Honourable Minister state whether all of these posts have to do with the new Hospital facility?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: No, Mr. Speaker, approximately 35 of the new posts were required to meet existing demands on the Health Services. As we know, the nurses specifically worked many, many long hours of overtime, and this was one of the areas we needed to address and to relieve that problem.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Honourable Minister tell the House on what basis was the number of new posts arrived at? In other words, whether there had been any kind of study done to determine the actual number and designation of these posts.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The posts are the result of considerable research, and a filtering process carried out first by the New Services Working Group, and then by the New Services Working Group subcommittee. The first-named Committee consisted of medical personnel from all areas of the Health Services Department, chaired by the Chief Medical Officer. The second was chaired by the Senior Assistant Secretary in the Ministry of Health, and to name some of the other members who were on these Committees that did this amount of research were the Director of Health Services, the Chief Medical Officer, the Chief Statistician, the Accountant General, the Chief Nursing Officer, the Health Services Accountant, the Assistant Secretary in the Finance and Development Unit, the Senior Nursing Officer, and the acting Senior Information Officer of Government Information Services.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Minister say whether this number represents the full complement of staff which will be needed for these services, or whether it is anticipated that additional staff may have to be used?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: No, Mr. Speaker, this is not yet the full complement. We are trying to do this as the Hospital keeps coming on line, the different sections of it, and in the New Services, which is in the back of our present document for 1998, the Budget document, there are, I think, 102 more new posts requested.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Is the Minister in a position to tell the House when we may expect these services will have reached their full complement?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, this will not necessarily be completed. As you know, the Hospital will be finished toward the end of next year, and as these services come on line, I am almost positive that by the end of 1999, there may be just a handful in there. But what we have been trying to address here in the recruitment of these posts is a situation that has existed for several decades, where the Health Services, and when you look at, I think it is the PAHO or United Nations breakdown of nurses and doctors per population, you will see that Cayman ranks way down on the nurses per population. This is one of the main areas we are trying to address and bring it up to standard.

The Speaker: The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I wonder if the Honourable Minister would say if, included in these new posts, there are additional staff to allow the outer district clinics to be open longer to provide a service later at night for the public.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, Mr. Speaker, the Honourable Member is absolutely correct. When you see some of the figures of the amount of services and the utilisation of these district health centres, I know specifically in the Bodden Town, where we have a doctor there on Monday nights, Wednesdays and Fridays, and there are doctors recruited for the other districts, it will make a significant change.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In light of the large staff complement that will be required by the new Hospital in the area of nurses and doctors, I wonder if the Honourable Minister can say how many Caymanians are now in training in these areas? And what is being done to encourage other Caymanians to go into the medical field in the area of nurses and doctors?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, I do not have the exact figures of that, but I do know there are several nurses, doctors that are due to come back within another year or so. Also we are actively now going into the schools, and we have seen a significant response of the high school level, or as a matter of fact, several of them come to the Hospital and we assist them. We are going into the schools, making them aware of what is going on there, and encouraging them, and going to the different job fairs and sharing that with them.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay continuing.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I am aware that one of the difficulties that Caymanians wanting to enter the medical field face, especially in the area of doctors, and especially attending universities other than universities in the Commonwealth, is that you had to go through, on your own expense, the first phase of your degree before you got into medical school. I think this has discouraged a lot of Caymanians from choosing the medical profession in the area of doctors. I wonder if the Honourable Minister can say if any thought or effort has been put in place, maybe in conjunction with the Education Department or the Ministry of Education, to ensure that scholarships are available for young Caymanians who wanted to go into the medical field.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, there certainly is now encouragement for those students who would like to get into medicine, and the availability now through the Education Council and the servicing of scholarships make it a lot easier than what it used to be.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In one of his answers, the Honourable Minister gave an indication that the ratio of nurses to the general population, according to PAHO, was a very low ratio. My question is, if this particular category of staff increases, are they based solely on the fact that the Cayman Islands Government is improving the number so as to meet the ratio recommendations set by these organisations? Or has there been a demonstrated need for an increase in this particular category of staff?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. It would be the latter, it is on demonstrated need, because we are going from 59 beds to 128, and it will be on need to service these.

The Speaker: No further supplementaries? Question number 165, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 165

No. 165: Miss Heather D. Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation, if, with the coming on line of several new district health clinics, patients' waiting time at the George Town Hospital has been reduced.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: It is anticipated that with the recent opening of four new District Health Centres, and the increased doctors' clinics, more patients will utilise their District Health Centres.

A total of 25,955 patients were attended to at the District Health Centres and 5,201 home visits were made in 1996. During the period January to August 1997, 19,363 patients were attended to at District Health Centres and 3,469 home visits were made.

Patients seen by doctors at the District Health Centres have increased from 4,665 during the period January to August 1996 to 6,406 for the same period in 1997 — a 37% increase. Doctors' visits to the District Health Centres increased in October 1996 and will be further increased in phases over the next year. A separate George Town Health Centre does not yet exist. All categories of patients attend the Casualty Department, causing delays to non-urgent cases. When the new emergency facility is completed in June 1998, only the emergency cases will be treated in the emergency room and non-urgent cases will be attended to elsewhere on the hospital site.

At the time of the opening of the temporary emergency unit, a triage system was established whereby patients without an appointment are assessed by qualified staff to determine their need for immediate care. Before the new triage system was introduced, it could take 19 minutes or longer for a patient to be seen by a nurse. A recent survey indicated that 91% of the patients were seen within 5 minutes of arrival. Of seriously ill patients, 97% are seen by a doctor within 30 minutes and the more seriously ill within 11 minutes.

Depending upon the urgency of the case, the waiting time varies from 11 to 50 minutes which is a very considerable improvement over past performance.

And just as a note, Mr. Speaker, one of the examples recently used by the Government's reinvention team as one of the successes shared at Government House in recent times was the new approach of the casualty area in improving the period of people having to wait to see a doctor or a nurse.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 23(7)&(8)

The Speaker: We have reached the hour of 11.00. I would entertain a motion for the suspension of Standing Order 23(7) that Question Time can continue beyond 11.00 AM.

The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, I so move.

The Speaker: Do I have a seconder? The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I beg to second that, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The question is that Standing Order 23 (7) and (8) be suspended to enable Question Time to continue. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED. STANDING ORDER 23(7) AND (8) SUSPENDED TO ENABLE QUESTION TIME TO CONTINUE.

The Speaker: Question time continues. Supplementaries? The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

Miss Heather D. Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Honourable Minister say if he has received any feedback from the public since the waiting time has been reduced?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, Mr. Speaker, as we all know, especially Members of the Legislative Assembly, there has always been, in the past, a constant complaint of having to wait. In recent times, there is a significant improvement, and Mr. Speaker, better still, when the new facilities are opened, and especially the emergency area in the middle of next year, it will still be much more improved.

The Speaker: The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I wonder if the Honourable Minister would say if the creation of the new posts that we just discussed will even make this time period at the casualty and emergency shorter, because I have known for some time that that section of the Hospital has been understaffed.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, that is an excellent point and observation made by the Honourable Member from North Side, and it will go a long way, because of the lack of staff, and some people have to attend in another section. This increase in staff will make a significant improvement there also.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I notice that in the substantive answer here, it says on the first page at the bottom, "A separate George Town Health Centre does not yet exist." Does this mean that there will be a separate George Town Health Centre? And if so, could the Minister explain briefly why?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, Mr. Speaker, to relieve the congestion in the Emergency Room, the review team is diligently looking at this, and this will be brought in once the new Hospital is finished, to make services even better.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Could the Honourable Minister say if this new facility that is being looked into would be located outside of the premises of the existing Hospital, or as a part of the premises?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, a final decision has not yet been made, but because of the many available services, like X-ray, physiotherapy, and the other services that are needed within, and with George Town being the biggest of all the districts, we are hoping to incorporate that in the present site.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Would that then mean new building or buildings, or part of what exists and is being constructed now?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, we envisage this as one of the buildings that would be vacated, that being remodelled.

The Speaker: Any further supplementaries? Question number 166, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 166

No. 166: Mr. Linford A. Pierson asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning to state the set-back requirements for the various categories of development along the Seven Mile Beach.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Seven Mile Beach is zoned for hotel- and tourist-related development. Pursuant to regulation 9 of the Development and Planning Regulations (1995 Revision), setback requirements for hotel and tourist zones are as follows:-

- ◆ minimum setbacks are 100 feet from the low-water mark for buildings up to two storeys, with an additional 30 feet setback for each additional storey;
- ◆ minimum side setbacks are 50 per cent of the height of the building with a minimum of 15 feet;
- ◆ minimum rear setbacks are 25 feet from the road edge of lot boundary as the case may be.

The above setback requirements apply to all categories or types of development in hotel and tourist zones, including ancillary uses such as pools, fences, cabanas and seawalls.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries? The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, I would like to thank the Honourable Minister for the comprehensive answer on this. I wonder if he is able to say what the setback was on the Radisson Hotel when that was built.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I understand that Radisson was opened in February 1990. The Honourable Member was a Minister then, and these setbacks have existed since 1977, so I assume Radisson complied with the Law when he had responsibility for it.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, I am trying to see if I can take that Minister out of that mothball, the old time capsule, because he seems not to be able to get out of the 1988-1992 mode. I am really asking this because hopefully it would have helped him. But really why I am trying to find this out, Mr. Speaker, he has his Director of Planning there. I do not keep all of these facts in my head, and the Director of Planning should know the information. There has been a lot of writing recently, Mr. Speaker, regarding the problem that the new Marriott is experiencing at that same area, and I wondered whether the proper setback requirements were agreed upon when the hotel was built, or whether that might have been a problem there from the initial stages.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, the hotel was opened in February 1990. It is a fact that the Honourable Member asking the question was the Minister with responsibility for it. I have consulted the Director of Planning, who was in the Planning Department at the time, and in February 1990 the hotel did not comply with the setbacks in the Law. I guess I should ask the question to the Honourable Member, why not?

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: That is a good question, Mr. Speaker. What I want to find out is whether the Planning Department gave instructions to the hotel to comply with the proper setback requirements, but whether they obtained lawyers to compel Government to comply with their requirements.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I find these questions to — this is the first time I have ever been in this situation, where the Honourable Member, Third Elected Member for George Town, was responsible for Planning, responsible for the Planning Department, the Central Planning Authority, and they allowed the hotel to go down which did not comply with the Law. And now I am asked to answer for it. With due respect, Mr. Speaker, the only person who can answer that question is the Honourable Third Elected Member from George Town. I do not know. All I can say was that he had responsibility, Mr. Speaker, that Honourable Member had responsibility, and they did not comply with the Law in February 1990. I do not know why. And if he wishes me to do research or perhaps he could do the research, because it was his responsibility. I am not being funny here, Mr. Speaker, I honestly do not know. But the Honourable Member asking the question has to know, because he had responsibility for it, and maybe he should tell the public why they did not comply with the Law.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, I am satisfied, from listening to the Honourable Minister, that I sincerely believe he really does not know.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Could the Honourable Minister say if at present there is a clear — when the Minister is through talking I will ask the question, Mr. Speaker. Could the Honourable Minister say if there is any clear definition by Law at present as to what the low water mark is? Especially on the Seven Mile Beach.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I understand that it is based on the vital benchmark, and that the Lands & Survey Department determine it.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Could the Honourable Minister state if this is done on a case by case basis, or if it is calculated or pre-calculated along the coastline of these properties on the Seven Mile Beach?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, the Director of Planning has instructed me that as the coastline does change from time to time, at the relevant time it is determined, so it would seem to me that when one goes to set out the building, at that time is probably the relevant time to determine where the low water mark is to do the measurements. It would not naturally alter with mangroves or with ironshore, but obviously with beach, with sand, it could be different from time to time.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The Honourable Minister's answer is getting to the point that I wish to make. The question I therefore ask is, Is it possible then that when plans are approved on the Seven Mile Beach and buildings are laid out at the given time and they meet the requirements, that if one were to go back and do the same process six months later, it is possible then that they would not meet the requirements?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I guess with sand shifting, that could happen. But with the Radisson they did not comply with the Law at the time it was built. It was not a question of shifting sands, so let me make that clear. Because I was specifically asked on that point. I understand that a survey has to be current on it, perhaps I think within six months. But there is a difference between the sand varying and the compliance at the relevant time, than non-compliance at the relevant time.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I think the Honourable Minister is getting closer to an answer to my original supplementary. The point is . . . he made that point, and I will turn this into a supplementary, Mr. Speaker, but at the Radisson area it is known that the sand shifts there from time to time, and you could get a setback of 100 feet today and maybe in three months' time that setback will have been reduced to 50 feet. And this is exactly what I understood happened when the Radisson was built. The proper setback was given by the Planning Department, but by the time the Radisson started to build, it had shifted then, and that is where the argument came with the Planning Department. They wanted them then to do a setback from that shifting area another 100 feet back, when in fact the first setback requirement was correct. And I would like to ask the Honourable Minister, if he does not know maybe he can consult with his Director of Planning, if this is not correct.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Boddin: Mr. Speaker, I knew that Honourable Member knew the answer to it. How can I contradict him? He was the Minister responsible! But at the time, as I have been instructed, at the relevant time that the Radisson was built, it did not comply with the Law or the Regulations. That is all I can say. The Honourable Minister has the answer to this question. I really do not have it, Sir. And to be frank, I cannot pursue that question any further. I do not really know why it was asked me originally.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, question number 167 is standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for George Town.

WITHDRAWAL OF QUESTION NO. 167
STANDING ORDER 22(1)(f)(x)

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, I am satisfied that this question, which is to provide a status report on the proposed amendments to the Development Plan 1997 may have received its answer with the laying on the Table of the Revised Development Plan 1997, and may have in fact become redundant under section 22(1)(f)(x) which basically states that the answer is now available from official publication, and I accordingly would wish to withdraw it, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The question is that question number 167 be withdrawn. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED. QUESTION NO. 167 WITHDRAWN.

The Speaker: That completes Question Time for this morning. This may be a convenient time to take the morning break. We shall suspend for approximately fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.19 AM

THE APPROPRIATION (1998) BILL, 1997

DEBATE ON THE BUDGET ADDRESS DELIVERED BY THE HONOURABLE THIRD OFFICIAL MEMBER RESPONSIBLE FOR FINANCE AND ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT ON WEDNESDAY, 5TH NOVEMBER, 1997

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Hon. Truman M. Boddin: Mr. Speaker, it is very important that the level of debate in this Honourable House on this important matter (the Budget) be kept very high. I propose to continue doing that.

I would like to turn to the further question of education. This is obviously something that has been very dear to me throughout the years. The Community College at present offers seven full-time one year technical and vocational certificate programmes in Auto Mechanics, Construction, Electronics, Electricity, Business Secretarial, Business Commercial, Hospitality Studies, and Professional Cookery. It also offers three part-time professional programmes in Accounting, Insurance, and Banking. A-Levels in Economics, Geography, History, Chemistry, Physics and Maths, and a wide variety of academic, technical, vocational, professional and leisure courses in the evening.

Those different courses are set out in the Community College Calendar for 1997 and 1998. They range over a wide area from Motor Mechanics through to Computers, Business Administration and also the sciences. If I remember correctly, there are some 20 different subjects, the vast majority of them are in the technical and vocational area.

The most significant thing about the College has been the introduction of the Associate of Arts Degree.

These programmes have now started and are offered in 12 different areas. Along with this, the recognition of these Associate Degrees by US and United Kingdom Universities and just about to that stage of acceptance with the University of the West Indies, and this is a milestone because it allows our students to complete two years of their Associate's Degree here with only two years to be done overseas. But they can transfer their credits. Very good universities accept our credits, such as the University of Miami, the Florida Institute of Technology, the University of South Colorado, Howard University, and also the University of North London, and the University of Tampa. So there is a wide range accepting these, and I am very proud of this and I commend the Principal and the staff for their hard work.

There has been, since 1992, an annual increase in the number of part-time students. In September 1997, more than 70% of those enrolled were Caymanian. In the Associate Degree Programme, September 1997, 78.8% of the 120 students enrolled were Caymanians, with the remainder from 12 overseas countries. Work programmes are in existence. These allow the students to spend time in the relevant areas of the work that they are expecting to go into. We were very happy to welcome two Caymanians to the staff, Miss Juliet Johnson and Miss Julie Adams. Miss Johnson joined as head of the Hospitality studies, a very qualified and able young lady; and Miss Adams joined as Co-ordinator for Student Personal Services.

The proof of a school's ability and standards is judged mainly by the exam results, and these are external exam results. I am happy to say that the results in 1997 are the best ever to be achieved. For the first time in the history of the John Gray High School, over 30 students achieved seven or eight higher level passes. Thirty students achieved seven higher level passes and one student who sat French as an additional subject gained eight. This is significant when you see the number of good passes per student increasing.

Equally significant is the increase in the number of students who achieved four or more higher level passes and this year 79 students achieved this performance compared to 62 in last year's class which reflects a 27% increase. Sixty-five students achieved five or more higher level subject passes.

There can be no doubt that the Government schools have produced good results, and that is the test of the pudding. They have a very high standard and have consistently improved on the passes in those schools. Those passes range over not just the academic area, but also the technical and vocational area.

In the general exam, there was a total of 43 candidate entries, an outstanding 74% of these students achieved grades one and two which is an increase of 9% from 1996. This percentage clearly shows a high academic calibre and determination on the part of this particular group of students and the dedication and commitment of their teachers. I would like to thank all of the principals and all of the teachers and all of the staff. And those last results were in relation to the Cayman Brac

High School. The first ones were over all, but it does show both High Schools have very high standards.

Important also is the fact that the private schools have approximately one-third of the pupils. As Honourable Members know, we assist them. But I would just like to point out that for the assistance of less than $1 million per year, if the Government system had to school the extra one-third students, we now pay $22 million per year dealing with two-thirds, would be another. . . well, $24 million, I am sorry. The vote this year increased. It would cost Government another $12 million per year, not to mention another $40 million or $50 million to build the schools to house them.

So, from a budgetary point of view, it is very important to appreciate that if a third of the students are schooled—and remember, schooling is compulsory and free with Government—by Government it would cost us a further $12 million per year on the recurrent side. That is significant. It is a savings of $12 million per year that most of the schools, or all of them, are supplemented by their churches.

One of the other areas I would like to touch on is the School Inspectorate. We have two senior inspectors, Mrs. Mary Rodriguez, who is for the Secondary Schools, and Mrs. Diane Montoya, the Senior Inspector for the Primary Schools, along with the Chief Inspector, Mr. Vic Green. They make up the present Inspectorate. They are starting now with one Government school and already they have carried out short inspections on the North Side, Savannah, and Red Bay Primary Schools. They will be starting this inspection.

I would just like to point out that the importance of the Inspectorate is that they are there to assist. They are not there to simply find problems. Their duty is to assist with the team work that is so important and to assist schools in raising the standards and dealing with. . . . Really, the simplest statement is this: The ultimate aim of the Inspectorate is to help improve educational standards in the Cayman Islands and to provide an accurate assessment of the quality of our schools. So, for the first time, and I know this was put forward by the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town sometime back at least accepting the principle that schools do require this assistance through inspectorates.

The standard of education I am very happy with. I think the people of this country are too. On the humorous side, Mr. Speaker, the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town had listed three or four of my eight or nine qualifications, but seriously, my aim would be that every student here with the capability would follow as near as possible with getting as many qualifications as they can as at early an age as they can. If they want to take the way I have worked and studied over the years—and I am very proud of my qualifications, Mr. Speaker—but my aim would be to get as many students as possible to have as many qualifications as they can.

In this day and age, I think one of the best things that we can give to the future leaders of this country is a good education. My aim, because I believe I have followed as much as anyone else in pursuing higher education throughout my career, and that should be what every parent and every student should endeavour to do.

One other significant aspect is that despite a bit of fear that I had that the school enrolment would increase considerably, in fact, it really did not except in three schools. We were able to hold the population in the schools to substantially what it was in the previous year. But this meant that there may have been some schools that we had to close early to avoid getting an excessive amount of students in each class.

Also, I would really like to thank the private schools which, by the way, actually have 1,707 students between the seven private schools as compared to 3,701 in the total Government system, so it is actually just under one-half of the students. But I would like to thank them for this assistance.

The 1700 students in those private schools, by Law, could have gone into (not all of them, but those who are Caymanian) the . . . well, everyone could have gone into the Government schools. There is really no distinction in the Law as I remember it.

Later on this year the Caribbean Examinations Council will hold its annual conference here. I look forward to that. I would also like to thank the Education Council members, they worked long and hard. In fact, we have done a lot of work this year, we covered a lot in it. So, whatever may be said, I think everyone will agree that the school system has reached a very high level, the results this year were extremely good. I ask Honourable Members to continue that support of the schools.

When I go along with the Permanent Secretary and the Chief Education Officer to the schools, we always ask the MLAs. None of them can deny that. I have always asked them. I know that we did not visit all the schools yet this quarter, but I know that in George Town the MLAs did attend and I appreciate that. They can see first-hand what is happening at the schools. I think that is important and I will continue to ask my three colleagues from George Town, whenever we are going to the George Town schools to attend.

The Lighthouse School is something that is near and dear to me, and is a top priority this year, next year and the coming year, that we now get on and build that school. In the supplementaries I will be asking for funds to purchase a site for it. I think we must move on. I am not going to address that at length now, only to say that I am asking Honourable Members that when I get a time from the Lighthouse School, that all Members visit. I ask your indulgence, Mr. Speaker, that maybe we spend an hour at the Lighthouse School which many MLAs have not had the opportunity to go to and really have a look at it, forget the politics and really try to get on with the setting up of a new Lighthouse School. The children who are specially challenged deserve the best we can give them because life is difficult enough for them and their parents as it is, and in the school they are now in, it is very cramped, as Honourable Members will see.

One principle has come through in the line of questioning that I had from the Savannah School where we have two special children, is the fact that it is very important for the Lighthouse School to be placed near a school in which we can begin to bring the children from the Lighthouse School back into the mainstream of the school. Red Bay Primary is well equipped for it. It has much larger areas to move wheelchairs and that sort of thing. Whatever else may be needed we will do to ensure that the Lighthouse School is fully functional as soon as possible. There is money in the Budget. This time, if it becomes necessary, and this Government has never used the Compulsory Acquisition Law except once for someone whose address could not be found in Cayman Brac, I think, for the airport. But if it becomes necessary to use that Law to get the Lighthouse School, then I believe that this Honourable House will support me in what I have to do with that.

Turning to the question of First Cayman Bank, and I will only deal in limited detail with it, The different press releases that went out left no doubt. In my view they were very clear and well drafted. The one that went out on 9th October said "The Cayman Islands Monetary Authority has today confirmed that negotiations have reached an advanced stage concerning the purchase of First Cayman Bank by another local banking institution. Further details will be disclosed in due course." There is no way that could mean anything other than what it says.

Subsequently, there were a series of press releases and basically, it was not until the Friday afternoon, as the decision was made on Saturday to close the bank on Monday, that the question of the serious problems relating to the fraud arose. And on Saturday morning the full Executive Council met and took the decision. It could not have been done any quicker.

The move throughout was to assist the bank with perhaps finding a buyer so that it could continue on. This was pursued over a matter of days, but I know that all Members put in a lot of time. Executive Council even sat on Saturdays and Sundays due to the effort to try to deal with the matter.

The last statement that was made, and I would like to just read that: "Following the meeting last Friday between Members of ExCo, Representatives and concerned depositors of First Cayman Bank, in keeping with its existing policies Government's intention is to assist those experiencing real hardship. However, the Council has said that neither the Government nor the Monetary Authority will accept liability in relation to First Cayman Bank or Gulf Union Bank. In a statement today, Executive Council said that Members of Executive Council share the concerns of depositors and every effort will be made to have those legally responsible repay depositors to the fullest extent and in a speedy manner. In the interim, Government is actively considering ways to support those experiencing real hardship. This is in keeping with Government's past and existing policy of helping those in genuine need. Applications for assistance should be made to the Department of Social Services and will be assessed in accordance with that Department's normal guidelines. While we understand the anxiety of depositors of the two banks, neither the Cayman Islands Government, nor the Monetary Authority accepts any liability whatsoever in relation to arising from First Cayman Bank and Gulf Union Bank. We have acted at all times responsibly within the Laws and Regulations of the Islands. The issuing of information to the public: ExCo said, 'While wishing to keep the public fully informed, great care has to be taken not to prejudice either the liquidation process through the court or the ongoing criminal investigation.'"

So, Government has made a statement and I should say that we met twice with all Members of this Honourable House on First Cayman Bank on the Saturday on which the suspension was made, or we contacted the Members. Three were in Cayman Brac at the time, but they were all contacted. Also, on the question of what to do with those in need. What I have read in relation to assistance is what was the consensus of all Members of this Honourable House.

I would like to point out two things: What the Bahamas has said is that they are going to assist depositors who have Bahamian dollar deposits. That is totally different from what has been said before. So they are really going to assist local people with local deposits.

The Honourable Financial Secretary has said that there will be legislation coming this time, and I will support that, to ensure that a certain level of deposits, whatever that may be, for 'x' thousand dollars ($10,000, $15,000 or whatever) will be secure in the banks. Let me just say this: While I know there has been some criticism by the Opposition as to why this legislation did not come earlier, every Member of this Honourable House can put a motion. They could have put a motion to bring this legislation in. So I am saying that this is hindsight. The thing is that we move forward and correct it. But with the multitude of questions and motions put in this House in the past five years, none was a motion to bring in deposit insurance for banks. So they did not realise it anymore than the Government did. The thing now is that we move forward and correct it.

If it is a scheme that deals with the insurance of deposits it is a fact that the largest deposit insurance scheme in the world, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, could not bail out some savings and loans in the United States when they went under. So I would question whether the route to go is insurance. Let us not forget that Lloyds of London, the largest, the oldest, the grandfather of all insurance companies itself got into trouble a few years ago. As we know, they called on what are referred to as names [?], persons who have unlimited liability in it. So perhaps the way to go with that legislation is to go what I would term the safe way and perhaps that legislation should be geared to say that deposits up to a certain level would not fall into the general creditors pool during a liquidation or bankruptcy. Failing that, it has to go the insurance route. As I said before, even Lloyds of London has had financial problems. In fact they reorganised.

Just one other thing on this. I do not believe, while I accept it is a democratic right of persons who have been holding up the posters and that sort of thing. It is their democratic right and they can do so, but I do not believe it is helping the situation to have a few depositors, especially when the committee representing the depositors were made up of a minority of Caymanians who formed the vast majority of depositors there to be out in the street day after day. And if we look at who are holding some of those placards, it is obviously not in the best interest.

As a bit of humour, Mr. Billy Adam was in the crowd, and I specifically asked him if he was a depositor. He said no (and this was in front of the cameras). I asked him what he was doing there. He just smiled. So, I accept that people have the democratic right to stage demonstrations. They may do so if they wish. But I am asking at this stage that there be some careful consideration because this matter has now gone into liquidators in court as to the extent to which this continues. It cannot be good for the country to have this continue day after day. But, and I point out again, it is their democratic right.

I go back to the fact that no Opposition Member put any motion to bring in deposit insurance that will be coming in this time. I know that it was a situation that now there is a problem, you know, the Government and this Honourable House I am sure will pass what is necessary to ensure that proper legislation is in place for the future.

Moving to another area, the area that is perhaps more recently been in relation to the conservation side and animals. I would just like to say that while I think there has been quite a stir in relation to dolphins, perhaps more relevant to these islands would be a good hard look at the stingrays and other areas that are local to the Cayman Islands. Mr. Michelle Cousteau, two or three years ago, stated that perhaps popular dive sites should be given a breather. I think he might have said lay fallow for a year or two. This is something that the diving community should perhaps look at. I know in relation to the stingrays something should be done to ensure that they have some protection.

Going back specifically to the Budget, the increases throughout, for example, in banking where we have seen a considerable increase in the number of banks and the number of deposits; we have seen real estate go up; we have seen increases in the stamp duty from it; we have also seen that the economy itself has now increased overall and continues to be very good. That is one of the tests of a good Government—if you have a good Government, you have a good economy.

The Civil Service Pension Fund has had approximately $33 million increase in the last five years and it now up to $40 million. That $33 million, a large part of which pays back pensions because it was so badly underfunded. We chose not to do what had been done in the past and put that $34 million into general reserves. But once the Pension Fund reserve is built up, then these large amounts of reserves can go into the general reserve. We have consistently put into the reserves, as we are doing this year for a further $1 million.

The position has to be looked at from a point of view of the fact that the debts, or the borrowing this year, which is at about $19 million, which I doubt if we will really borrow that amount, the repayments of that are $17.5 million as set out in table 2(A), so that the net borrowing is only about $2 million give or take interest on how much of the repayment of $17.5 million is actually principal and what is interest.

The contribution this year to capital, which is really the surplus that we have between recurrent revenue and recurrent expenditure, is $14.5 million. So we do have a profit of $14.5 million going towards the capital that we are spending on it. Also, from 1993 to 1997 the borrowings, when you remove the amount for Cayman Airways, we saw that repayments over the period from 1993 to 1997 were $45,021,900, while the total borrowings over that period amounted to approximately $34 million or $35 million. So far more has been repaid during our five years in Government than we have borrowed. I think this is very important because most of those repayments have been made in relation. . . I see there is a bit of smiling over there. But let me just point out, since I must give details to this, that in 1992 the repayments were $2.5 million; in 1993 repayments made on past debts were $9.5 million; in 1994 repayments made on past debts were $8.7 million; in 1995 repayments on past debts were $15.3 million; and in 1996 it was $10.1 million; and in 1997 it is estimated to be $13.9 million which gives a total of $58 million paid in the past years from 1993 to 1997.

If we look at the borrowings we will see that in 1993 all that was borrowed was $1.6 million with the $20 million for Cayman Airways that basically was not our borrowing, even though we had to deal with it, and $4.7 million in 1994; $1.8 million in 1995 (and I am reading here from the Treasury's Financial Summary), and in 1996 $22.4 million. b

Some of the projects, such as the hospital and the schools, we have to borrow for. There is no way around this. This year, even though we will be putting $14.5 million into capital projects, there will have to be borrowings to finish them up. But health is the best thing that I think anyone can have and I believe that all Members of this Honourable House fully support this new hospital and the work that the Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation has done, the four new clinics in the districts.

George Town has a vote in there for roads this year. In the last two years it has probably had more road work than it has had in many, many years. A lot of concrete asphaltting was done on the main roads. I would aim to follow this through and see that this is extended as we know we are starting on the Smith Road. In fact, it was the first major road work in about 12 years.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: (inaudible interjection)

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I have taken the First Elected Member for George Town all over the Primary School, all over the Red Bay School. . .

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: (inaudible interjection)

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Of course, I am always happy to carry that Honourable Member. And I hope that they will keep the level of debate in here real high, so that we do not find that it deteriorates into mudslinging.

But I always, whenever I go anywhere, take my three colleagues. . . invite, rather, my three colleagues to come. They know I did this on the schools. You cannot deny that, can you?

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Not on roads.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Well, I have not visited the roads, so how can I carry them along?

In any event it is not my responsibility. . .

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: But you just said the roads!

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: My responsibility is the schools and I will always see that they will go with me when I go there. It is good to have them because I know that they must support the vote in this Honourable House when it comes up for those schools otherwise they will be less than fair with what they do.

I actually invite the three Members from George Town, my colleagues, to join me in trying to take a positive approach to this. The Elections are three years off. I ask all Members of this House to please keep the level of debate high because if it deteriorates—as we are now beginning to get from time to time—the public of this country in my view has heard enough political rhetoric over the last year and they are tired of it. That is why I have kept what I have said here of a very high calibre. I have kept away from any sort of. . . and I have even been overly kind when I have been interrupted not to carry on with anything that could be seen to be less than the highest quality of debate.

But speaking seriously, I believe that the people of the Cayman Islands are tired of political rhetoric. As we heard this morning, in my debate I have stuck to the facts and kept it short. Once again, I think that is important. One can say within a short period good things. I would really ask Honourable Members to try to keep the level of debate high throughout, not just this sitting, but the other sittings as well. As can be seen, there was only one objection in the early stages of my debate. I have really, I hope, set the tone for a statesman rather than a politician worried about the next election. So, I would ask Members, seriously,

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: You may laugh, but the public out there is tired of people getting up in this Honourable House and carrying on in a way they normally would not carry on in their own life outside of this House. I am very seriously and genuinely calling on Members of this Honourable House to keep the level of debate high and keep the dignity of this House.

In conclusion, I would say that the schools are in a very good shape. The results are there and I do not think that much criticism can be levelled in that area.

The Development Plan has passed through the second phase. I have given an undertaking that it will begin and it will begin. We hope to get on with the plan for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman as well as dealing with the airport there.

In relation to the Civil Aviation Authority, we are a category one. The first in the Caribbean to get that more recently another country has gotten it.

With Cayman Airways, to be frank, I have a booklet here that I could have stood up and spoke for four hours on, but we have to keep Cayman Airways out of politics if it is going to survive. I have been over careful not to get into areas beyond the positive side of that.

There is one area that may perhaps be raised, and I think I forgot to deal with.

Mr. Roy Bodden: I am glad to see that the Minister is following my example by keeping to a high level of debate.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Well, I will give that Honourable Member credit, the latter part of his debate was of a good high standard.

The position, and I think I better deal with this. In 1993 the Audited Accounts showed that the current liabilities remaining after the $20 million cash was put in was $19,294,287. I have over the past few years repaid $1,750,000 at $50,000 per month. But Members will see that there is a sum in the Budget for $1 million which is in there and will be used to repay the pre 1992 debts of Cayman Airways. The position after the $20 million was put in in about July of 1993, all of which went to pay past debts—I want to make that clear. The liabilities that remained as can be seen (and I have copies of the audited statements) after the US $20 million was put in showed that the remaining amounts after the that was put in were $19 million. There is no way that Cayman Airways can pay off that extra $19 million. Let us not kid ourselves about it.

Cayman Airways pays Royal Bank as much as they can. But a lot of this, nearly $2 million that we repaid has obviously gone in interest. I am asking this Honourable House to apply $1 million this year towards that. It will go for past debts that are owed and continue to be owed on Cayman Airways. The accounts are here for anyone who wishes to look at them. In 1992 the current liabilities were $36,054,422. That reduced to $19,294,287. This is all in United States Dollars.

The only thing I can say about this, and I am speaking frankly now, at least the Government, through Cayman Aviation Leasing, owns a jet which has a value of $7.5 million which we have repaid from a loan of $5.2 million down to $3 million. So $2.2 million has been paid from Cayman Airways on that. I believe that the only way Cayman Airways will ever pay off that large amount of debt is for Government to assist it with paying it off because from the current revenue there is no way it can pay off that amount.

I have never been back to this Honourable House to ask for an increase in the subsidy which was granted in 1993, a subsidy of $4 million. I think it is a considerable credit that Cayman Airways has stabilised to a stage where the subsidy during that period has not had to go up. Now pressures obviously remain because of this, what I would call, long term portion of debt that remains there. But I believe that we have to come to grips with it. It sat there for five years and we have to begin repaying it. I am happy to show any Members who wish, because accounts were laid on the Table, how much existed before and after the $20 million were paid.

The Honourable Financial Secretary knows that all of the $20 million went to pay past debts. In fact, that was a Motion of this Honourable House. The money did not even come to Cayman Airways. The $20 million that the previous Government put a borrowing in place, and we completed in June of the following year, was paid directly to Government for the past debts of Cayman Airways. I would really ask that in looking at this the MLAs look at it from a serious point of view and that we basically take a decision to remedy that long outstanding debt because I really have no way of paying off that money and a million dollars is not a lot; it is probably what the interest is on it. But at least it is a start in the right direction. And Government does have four and a half million dollars of value in the new jet, so Government is getting something.

And by the way, Mr. Speaker, that four and a half million would be profiting Cayman Airways if I took it in there on a revaluation of the jet. It would at present show $2.2 million in pure profit, and a further $2.3 million upon the revaluation of it. Also, not just the revaluation, but Cayman Airways has put a lot of improvements. We put in new seats, a new overhead bin, something called a T-cass, which is a navigational instrument, a GPS, we removed long-term tanks, new carpets were put in, we continue to upgrade that jet, the one that Government owns.

So Mr. Speaker, finally, the Budget is before this Honourable House. I know it is a good Budget. Like every Budget or like everything, it can be criticised. But I call on Honourable Members of this House that when they criticise, they also come up with solutions to the problems, because it is easy to criticise but it is not easy many times to produce [solutions]. These problems we have are national problems, Mr. Speaker. They should be dealt with at a national level, and looked at seriously, and it is only in that way that I see the Cayman Islands moving forward.

I have always attempted to be open because, Mr. Speaker, I answer everything on Cayman Airways these days. But there was a time when the trading and the accounts, or anything else on Cayman Airways. . . you could not ask a question on the floor of this House. I mean, that is a fact. I am not going to go back in that, but I have always tried to answer, to the best of my knowledge and openly, on Cayman Airways, and I believe it has come a long way out of being a political football. I think it is too important to go back to that stage.

We have 250 dedicated staff, and we really have the economy of this country depends heavily on Cayman Airways. So I would ask Members to look at it from that point of view, and once again to keep the level of debate high and try to look constructively at solutions to the problems that we face, because at the end of the day, Mr. Speaker, it is the guidance and the standing of this Honourable House that shows the standing of this country and to move forward I think we must take a constructive approach. So I would ask Honourable Members to, as you obviously have to do, criticise where criticism is necessary, but also to offer solutions and to look candidly at the problems of the country, and together let us try to move forward and try to deal with the problems of this country and try to come up with solutions in the best interests of the Cayman Islands, and of this country.

I give the undertaking that as we have done in several instances when there are very important issues at stake, we will continue to meet with all Members of this Honourable House—as they know I have done several times, for example, the Development Plan, more recently with another Bill where it is possible to circulate drafts to Members before bills are put into rigid form to come here—we will do so. Obviously, it is not possible to consult on everything, but major issues we will continue to do that in the spirit of co-operation. Thank you.

The Speaker: I shall suspend proceedings until 2.30 PM.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.56 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.53 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed.

READING BY THE SPEAKER OF MESSAGES AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

APOLOGY

The Speaker: I have an apology from the Honourable First Official Member who will be absent for the rest of the afternoon on official business.

Continuation of debate on the Appropriation Bill. Does any other Member wish to speak? The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I would like to begin by bringing to the attention of the Legislative Assembly (at least to those Members who did not know), that today is the fifth anniversary of the passing of my father, Charles Vernon McField. He died while I was in exile from this country in Germany, trying to somehow put myself back together again—being one of the few Humpty Dumpties that fell off the wall and had the courage to not wait for somebody to reassemble him, but to do that reassembling himself. I, of course, Mr. Speaker, still feel a bit of regret and slight remorse that my father was not able to see me in the condition I would have so much liked to have had him see me in. But, because of faith my father was able to see the end, and therefore able to see me at the end of my mission in this world; to know me, not by the day-to-day step, but as the completion of a wonderful purpose which God Himself has had in store for me and my family.

Mr. Speaker, I do not come here to speak any other politics than the politics of necessity. There is in this country a great need for us not just to think about our material prosperity, but also our spiritual, or, let us say ideological or principled being and development. Too often we forget that through economic development and prosperity is born, not out of falsehoods and clichés about what is necessary to please people, but out of a genuine belief that what motivates people in society are their characters.

For if we begin to create people with character, which was what our society afforded us, it was the wealth that was brought forward, that we were able to translate into dollars. The wealth was the character of the Caymanian, and we should not forget this when we go along forgetting about the people and talking about the fact that we cannot wait on them. We have to bring the people along with their prosperity. We have to remember that prosperity is not composed of statistics. It is not a mathematical exercise, Mr. Speaker, it is a human social exercise that at the end of the day we must be able to see what a dollar does concretely to the development of the human character, to the development of the Caymanian character; to the development of the national character, and the national identity.

Wealth has to be tangible. It cannot just exist. It must have a relationship to the people. It is a resource that is there, not to rule the people, but the people themselves created it, so that they might rule the universe, that they might rule the elements that God Himself put under the control of His special creatures—human beings.

Mr. Speaker, in all I do, I try to remember that nationalism and the concept of nationality is the most primitive type of concept we have of ourselves. And I try to remember, Mr. Speaker, that 2000 years ago, Christ Almighty said that he was not here to talk about Jews, he was here to talk about Gentiles as well. And he united the world! He united the world long before television, Mr. Speaker. He united the world as one village.

So when the Minister for Aviation and Education gets up and makes references to political behaviour or the behaviour of people who have been dispossessed of their wealth because of fraudulent activities at the First Cayman Bank, he must also remember that whether or not they come from the Cayman Islands, they trusted the Cayman Islands sufficiently to invest their dollars in the Cayman Islands. Therefore, the expression of grief, the expression of remorse even, if we want to say that, should not be mocked, should not be shunned, should not be pushed and castigated into the types of corner that they pushed my activities into when I went out into the streets of this country, with my degrees, as a so-called "madman" to show people that there was something wrong with the system. The system was not full of faith and affection and love and care for people, but the system was losing this, it was becoming bureaucratic, it was becoming mathematical, it was becoming mechanical and it had no use for people with intellect and creativity, people like myself, who my father had to sacrifice to see get an education.

Mr. Speaker, my skin today is a testament to the times in which I spent in front of the furnaces in England with the coal burning, Mr. Speaker, and that smut coming and choking the very possibility for the skin to get its air, because it was so cold in York where I was taking instructions and reading. For me to get an education, Mr. Speaker, it was not easy. I come from a very poor family. But thank God I have come to realise that wealth is creativity, wealth is character. It is not what creativity and character make that is wealth. It is that which makes those things.

I always return to what my brother George says, he says, Frank, the chair you are sitting in was an idea before it was a chair. So the Budget must have been an idea before it became a piece of paper with figures on it. Because what comes first? The creation, or that which is created?

If we go back to the carpenter who uses the blueprint. . . what does the carpenter do? He takes his blueprint and he finds out exactly how to cut the lumber to fit the size of the house the person has designed. I feel that this is the same job the Financial Secretary has. The Financial Secretary is rightfully the tailor—but he is not the designer! He cannot be the designer because he is not empowered by the people to design the system for them! The Parliament of this country who elects the elected Members of the Executive, are the people in power to design this Budget, to create this Budget. Because the creation comes first. First was the creation! Then other things came to be. But you cannot say now that you are going to put the creation last. We cannot put Members of the political Government last and say, 'We have created this for you and this is what it is.' So if there is any attempt by Members of this Honourable House to make Frank McField believe, or the Fourth Elected Member for George Town believe that somehow this Budget is a result of civil servants' contemplation of what is important in this country, if they are to make me believe that somehow the issues that appear in this Budget, that this Budget attempts to resolve, the puzzles it analyses is a result of civil servants, then we might as well get rid of this Assembly and let the country be run by civil servants.

So we have to clearly be able to show the people the process, how the process works. How this one as leader does this, and how this group as managers do the bidding of the leaders.

I think that part of my consideration of the Budget is a consideration of the economic well-being of our country. The financial state of our country has to somehow be connected with the real assets which we have available.

The choices we might have or that we should make in preserving and improving upon those assets. Believe it or not, we have the human asset. We do not just have physical assets, not just machinery. Because we have to realise that man created the machines, the machines did not create man. Man is the first. The machine comes after. Therefore, we cannot give the machine more attention than we give the man. Because without the man, first of all, we do not have any use for the machine, and the machine would not be able to fix itself, and to realise and be aware of its own existence.

And somehow, Mr. Speaker, this world has to do with awareness. God has put us here and has made us different from the animals because he has given us the power to choose by making us aware. Self-awareness, the power to choose. Leadership therefore springs from that knowledge and that conviction that it is something that is ingrained in us as human beings. When we lose that, when we give that up, we have given up our power as human beings. We have given up our humanity when we give up the power to choose. Therefore leadership, what leadership does, whether or not it exists, is a very important contemplation. It is an important fact especially to be discussed at this very important time, especially when we look and see the Caymanian Compass and the different headlines over the last few weeks.

It is a very important part of the economic well-being of this country. Because leadership, good leadership or bad leadership, is a good asset or a bad asset. And we might not find that this is accounted for in the Budget, but we might say, Let us call it goodwill. Good will—if I have a business and it has been trading for a while, I might say this is what I call good will. The Cayman Islands might, in trading for a long time, have a lot of good will, because people say, Well I have heard all the time that this place is a nice stable community where you can go and get things done, and people will not cheat you and people will care for you. But how can you say that at this particular point?

How can you say that we are not trading in our assets, stripping assets, stripping those assets, the human assets, the people, the assets in the leadership, when we begin to tell people that if they go out and hold up placards saying that Government needs to pay them their money back, and that they need their money and they want their money and they want it now, that somehow that is wrong. That it makes us look bad? What has made us look bad has been our own inertia! What has made us look bad is our inability to deal with the crisis when the crisis came, or before the crisis came! What has made us look bad is the fact that we have shown people that there is no leadership and no leadership ability in this country. That is what has made us look bad.

When a man has a character, the character does not need to know that $2+2=4$, because he is propelled by character to do what is right. He does not have to sit by and didda-didda here and dally-dally there and ask this one their opinion. He knows what he should do because his conscience tells him so. I do not need to consult about what is right and what is wrong. That I should know by now. I do not have to consult about loss and deprivation because that I should know by now.

When a man studies for many, many years, and people say, 'You have no right to earn, you have no right to demonstrate, you have no right to tell us that you are aggrieved and bereaved because of our ridicule of you and our treatment of you,' I say that person is callous. Those persons, that system, has no conscience. So when I see it happening on a slightly different scale today, when I know of people who have lost — Caymanians! — $70,000 — who have worked hard for it and they have no, NO right to show outwardly to the public, regardless of who that public is, their hurt, their concerns, their shock.

We cannot run a country when people do not have the possibility to have redress for their grievances. And it must not just be the court. It can also be through the political process. And that can start with a demonstration. Because those groups of people who started that demonstration are going to cause this Government to go down and a new Government to come up! So the process had to start someplace. It had to start, Mr. Speaker, someplace. It might look silly. We do not want to have to think somehow that Cayman is South Africa, but what about Mandela and the African people when they were demonstrating and everybody was saying, Look at all those old Africans out there on the street, and how they are going on, and things like that. But it got them where they were going! And the world respected them for standing up for what they believed in!

A lot of people have achieved so-called democratic rights and privileges without any kind of sacrifices, and they do not really know at the end of the day exactly how precious freedom really is. So it is not correct to say on one hand that you have a democratic right, but you should not express that democratic right. That is not right. If it is a democratic right you should be allowed to express it as long as you do not harm the person or the person's property.

The demonstrations we have seen have been peaceful demonstrations. People have uttered things, but they are peaceful. They are peaceful. It is hard to suffer in peace. And it is a virtue to be able to suffer in peace, to be peaceful while you suffer. Jesus Christ taught us that is the greatest form of suffering, to suffer peacefully, non-violently. But sometimes, Mr. Speaker, things hurt so much you have to communicate that to the other human beings around you. And you have to try to find out whether or not you are still in reality. And you need to find out from the other person if they can help you or they will help you. But, Mr. Speaker, when we do not feel the pain, we do not react the same way as the person who is feeling the pain.

I am talking, on this fifth anniversary of my father's death, personally about this to a certain extent. I know what it is to be deprived. I know what it is to be fired two times from the Civil Service for speaking out, and to be pleased with the reinvention of Government. If Government were perfect it would not have to be reinvented. Obviously Government could not have been perfect back in 1977 when I came and started work as Social Development Officer and told them we had certain problems in this country. Because if Government had been perfect then, it would not have to be reinvented now. Why is Government being reinvented now? So we can accept that somehow Frank McField was not the only one who was at fault in the relationship. God knows I will take my blame, too. Because I was not perfect, I am not perfect, and I probably will never be perfect, but I shall strive to at least be honest about what I feel other people should be allowed to feel about their own problems. And if I am going to tell somebody that you cannot feel this way about your loss. . . God knows people have a right to feel about their loss. And as long as they do not break the laws of this land in demonstrating, please allow them to express their disappointment in the leadership of this country.

The leaders of this country have failed the depositors of First Cayman Bank and the people of the Cayman Islands, and me in particular grossly. I do not even know any more who is the first Member of the Executive Council; I knew before, because I knew where my vote went. I no longer know who is the first and who is the last, and nobody has even attempted to try to explain to me who is the first and who is the last and whether or not it matters at all in the scheme of things. But I feel pretty well taken advantage of as a young person coming into this experience and saying, My mind will be open, my heart will be open, my conscience will be open. I will not close my mind to anything said, because I got here on my own two feet. As a man I have a right to say I will listen and then I will make my decision based upon what I believe to be correct. But I have listened; this is my second Budget, and I have seen as a result of my short stay here in the Legislative Assembly some of the biggest problems. We had revenue measures the last time. We stopped the proceedings. It was chaos! Nobody knew who had to speak. Nobody knew who had to stop speaking. It was a situation like I say in this particular play here, this little script here about leadership: "Who is going to be the captain? And who is going to be the captain if we only have one boat? Who is going to be the chief if we only have one Government?" Well, you know, the decision was to cut the boat in three! So we could all be captains of our own boat! And it seems that what we have done is to cut the Government at least into five pieces so that we can all be chief of our own Government! So there is no Government!

There is no Government in the idea. And I say the idea comes first. It is the first creation. There is no Government. Why? Because there is no leadership. Why is there no leadership? Because there does not appear to be leadership. Why does there not appear to be leadership? Because when situations arise whereby I at least feel that leaders would come out and take a position, they do not! Because they say, 'I am not responsible for that Portfolio, and I am not responsible for that!' 'He is responsible for that!' 'No, it is not him, it is him.' 'No it is not him, it is her!' Wait a minute! This is about reality! Sirs! Reality hurts! You know it when you are Humpty Dumpty, like I am! When you fall off the wall, it hurts to get back on your feet again! So when 3,000 lose their livelihoods it is going to hurt them, Sirs, to get back onto their feet again. Some will never recover from this.

Maybe it is good that we are away from the days when people used to lose money and then go commit suicide. I think that was one reason they started inventing companies that would not give the individual those tremendous types of burdens. But a lot of people will become indebted. There are a whole heap of things, and we cannot really sit and speculate about what will happen to people. It is just like how people say, Well, we fired him before Christmas 1992. . . . What was it? 1992? 1993? I cannot even remember. But they fired me! It was almost Christmas, about this time. They dismissed me from my job at Environmental Health, picking up tin cans; not caring about the fact that I had a wife who had just come here with me, not caring about how I felt.

This is what I am talking about—the callousness of certain people. And I will not, I shall not participate with it! I shall not! And on this fifth anniversary of my father's death, I shall resolve even more that I shall not give way to those types of reactions to human beings' conditions. Ultimately we are all about trying to assist one another to become better, and not to burden one another unnecessarily. If people save, then at least at the end of the day we should go and tell them how we are going to deal with this problem.

I feel that this is a very important part of the Budget. I feel that this is a very important part of the financial conditions of this country, because the country needs to re-establish good will. Good will is a very important part of doing business. If I believe that I am not doing business with gentlemen, I tend to feel that I might not do it as willingly, and therefore those individuals will suffer. We do not want the people of the Cayman Islands to suffer. We have to decide on the price we will pay. There is a price for everything. The world is about trade-offs. If you are going to trade something here you will gain something down the coast of time.

I had to make a big trade in my life. I had to decide whether or not it was important for me to stand up for what I believed was right, although people said it was crazy, it was radical, it was bad, it did not make any sense. There are people in the country today saying that Frank McField is perhaps the only person who is making any sense. I hope to God that they continue to believe that I will always be truthful to that; that I always will have respect for right, but absolutely no tolerance for what is wrong and wicked and corrupt! Whether or not it comes from that side, or this side, or the other side, it is the same thing. The character is disease, it is spoilt, it is no good; has no heart, has no soul, has no might, has no creativity, is animalistic!

When I went to university I learned that the better-off people taught their children to make decisions. They did not teach their children to dig holes, to pound nails, to act as clerks. They had arrived, even at that time and perhaps even before, that basically there was a difference and a distinction between management and leadership. Unfortunately, I was trained to be a leader, and that perhaps was too obvious in 1977. As a result I had to take a duck. But God knows that it has made me stronger.

I wondered, therefore, as we were considering a replacement on the Executive Council, and how I came in here as an independent Member of the Legislative Assembly, and that I did support however I could the Government, that not one consideration, not one gesture was ever made towards me. I wonder if that has to do with my character, or what people conceive as my character—which is the dirt that was piled up on me, not the real Frank McField. God knows you are hearing the real Frank McField on this fifth anniversary of my father's ascent to heaven—someone who can come out and say, 'Yes, Sir, I fell upon the ground, Yes Sir, you might even help me to go on the ground.'

But that is not important. What is important, Sir, are the relationships we can have with one another, the relationships and ties that we can build with one another. But we cannot build that thinking about the past. We cannot build that with outdated ideas about political behaviour and about leadership being clerical, that as long as I can quote, and as long as I can do this and I can do that, somehow I am capable of analysing. We need people who can analyse the progress up until today, and we need people who have programmes for the development of tomorrow.

Now I might not be the nicest looking man, but I have made it in this world 49 years. As a matter of fact, I got married five years ago on October the 17th, which was my 45th birthday. It took me that long because I was distracted by a whole heap of things, and I did not like compromise. When I say I will compromise. . . I will compromise, but when I say I am not going to compromise because I think it is wrong you cannot change my mind!

I came back here to get married, and I remember my father coming out to play dominoes on the back porch in Red Bay with us. He did not come to the wedding, he was not feeling well. I remember the last time I saw my father, which was at the airport, and we were supposed to have breakfast at Biggie's Steakhouse that morning, but we were late in getting there and did not even know that was my father's intention because he did not really communicate all that much. We did not know sometimes what he really wanted, how he really felt. We do have a real serious problem with communication in this country. But anyway, we went there, and I saw that he wanted something. And I saw in his eyes somehow that he was happy. Do you know why? He knew the end. You must know the end, gentlemen. Know the end, see the end, contemplate the end, and then you will know if where you are standing is the correct spot; if where you are sitting is really where you should be! Know the end!

I could tell by the smile on his face and the contentment in his body that I would not see him again. It was not hard to know that, because he could communicate it to me and say that he had to make a decision about his life. He suffered from emphysema. He was a proud man, but he could do nothing for himself. He made the decision to have an operation at a time when he knew that his chances of recovery were 50%. That took courage. On the fifth anniversary of his death I resolve that I still, at 49, have the same kind of courage. I will put myself in whatever condition necessary to see that this country has a soul that is above the souls of most countries, that is, the soul of petty nationalistic jealousies and individualistic envy.

I am not a part of it, and I will not be a parcel to it. We need to go above that. We need to strive above that. I would like to continue by saying that he taught me a great lesson, my father, and he did not go to any university. So although I might have a Ph.D., I do not put it before the university of life that he went to. Do you know what he said? He said, "If you got to do it, you got to do it. If that is what you think is right, then you must do it." I have done things in my life that I thought were right, and I cannot criticise people for mistreating me. I might have thought it was mistreating me, or whatever, because they felt what they had to do was also right. I must thank the people of the Cayman Islands so much for what they have done for me—for taking me off the street, for taking me from being the idiot on the road, a mockery of the society, and elevating me to this position.

I shall not abuse or see abused their privileges, because I am here because no one else would give me a job! A chance to earn a living! Now how can you have a society being prosperous? How can it be prosperous? How can it be on the right economic track when it is destroying and distracting and humiliating people like me with my degrees? If it is doing that to people like me, Frank McField, what is it doing to the little guy who is looking for a job as a dishwasher at the Hyatt? Until I am convinced that the hearts of certain people have changed, I will be asking for changes in this country—for changes in the leadership of this country. We must get away from the conceitedness that we politicians have built economic prosperity. All we have done is benefit from prosperity. We never built it. The people who built it are the Cayman Islands people and those people who came here to do business with them. Government has only created, let us say, perhaps the conduct, created the laws, the environment that determines the conduct; but it has not produced these things.

So when Governments get up and talk about past Governments or even future Governments and say, We did this and they did not do that, we can do that! I can get up and say, Well, they balanced the Budget or they did not balance the Budget but they are borrowing money. Hey! I am not interested in that! I am not interested in saying, 'Well, you borrowed some money,' because the people gave me a job here. . . and you know what? I just borrowed money again! I just went and bought a car! I did not wait until I could pay for it! How long would it take me before I would be able to pay for it! I bought a house! And it is not a million and a half dollar house, it is actually $125,000. I paid for it. But I did not pay cash. I have a mortgage. And I do pay my mortgage.

I am very thankful that the people gave me a job so I can have a house for my wife and myself, and my five cats! I do not have any children. Perhaps one of the reasons I do not have any children is because at the time when I should have been having children, I was here trying to teach people by walking around the street demonstrating, showing people what they had done to me, and that they should not have done that to me. And now I am here, but I am here to see that that does not happen to other people. I am not going to sit by and let it happen to other people. I am not going to become a part of this. If I see it happening to other people, I am going to call the Ministers, and say, Minister, do something about this! This could be a problem for our country. Because we will not have economic progress without political stability. And we will not have political stability without stable principles, steering principles.

We need those principles, and they have to come from us. Leaders! We have to show that we have those principles. We have to show that we care, that we have integrity, that we care for people. And if people find themselves defrauded by crooks, all their money gone, and all we can tell them is that they look like a bunch of fools out there demonstrating, basically — I had a one-man demonstration in this country! I did a one-man demonstration in this country! Me, by myself! Why? Because I was hungry! I was thirsty! I was exhausted! I was exhausted and I was only demonstrating to say, 'Look at me!' 'Help me!' And what did they say? 'Oh, look at that old fool out there. Look at that fool.' That is like what they are saying about these people. You cannot say that! People, when they get desperate, are going to find desperate solutions. And we are still happy in this country that people do not take up arms! That something does not happen to one of us politicians.

We are talking about the state of the nation — where my office is, the kids are selling drugs there, and I tell them to keep out of there. I call the police, and they get angry with me, and I hope that they do not disrespect me to the extent that they harm me physically. But that goes with the turf.

Let us not make our jobs any worse than they already are, I mean from the point of view of the conditions we have to fight against. When people go around and say that politicians are corrupt, and you can buy them off, and they are not any good, and Look at Frank McField, he is just in there that time, look at the big old car he has and the big old house he has, and all the things he has, just like the bunch of them too.

Hey! We do not make our children good by saying bad things about them. I would just like for the listening public to know that we will not make our politicians good by saying bad things about them. If you want good politicians, start being positive about your politician, and start insisting that they act a particular way if you feel they are not acting that way. But do not go around saying that they are this and that and the other, because when the moral character and when the moral fabric of your political machinery falls apart, your entire society is going to fall with it! You are only as strong as the top, and when that goes, the whole thing goes.

So let us be careful how people talk about their elected officials. We know we are not perfect. But we do not need to give people additional ammunition to be able to say that we are not honest, that we have no integrity, and that we are totally selfish. We have to be careful what we become involved with, and we have to be careful how we deal with problems that may arise.

The Speaker: Would this be a convenient time to take the afternoon break?

Dr. Frank McField: Yes, Sir.

The Speaker: We will suspend for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.35 PM.

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.05 PM.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Debating continuing. The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Yes, Mr. Speaker. The little break we had kind of made me believe somehow that I should really be teaching rather than preaching! And I had originally intended to teach and not to preach, because I notice that when we start preaching, people run away! They disappear. They do not want to come back into the Chamber. And I think perhaps then I shall try to not make people feel too down. I will try to perhaps start saying how great everything is, and then we can go home and have a good weekend while those poor people who lost all their money at First Cayman Bank will probably not feel the same way, but nevertheless, who cares?

We are trying to give economics a human face here, Mr. Speaker, and I would just like to read that management is doing things right. So we do not have any problems with the Financial Secretary and his groups of people, because we realise that the Budget is done right. I have a little bit of a problem once in a while adapting to the new change. Like everybody else, I resist change too! But I know that change is the only reality. And we need to change. I guess after a while I will learn this new accounting procedure and be able to accept it.

I think where we really fall down, Mr. Speaker, is that although management is about doing right things, leadership is doing the right things. Management is doing things right, and leadership is doing the right things. We have to make a distinction, therefore, between the Executive branch of our Government and the managerial part of our Government. And so when I say that we lack leadership, I am saying that we are not doing the right things. And we are not doing the right things when things are done that affect so many people and that certain people do not even feel that they owe these people and people related to them explanations.

I was very concerned, therefore, when the Minister for Aviation mentioned a good gentleman in our society, who provides a lot of us with books to read, and perhaps improving and enlightening our minds, making them more creative, more productive — Mr. Billy Adams, when he said more or less that, What was he doing with these people from First Cayman Bank? He did not have any money there. In other words, if you did not have any money there, you should not be concerned, you should not be involved. That is not the right attitude. That is not leadership. That is not doing the right thing. That is what I am saying.

Leadership has to have a human character, it cannot have a mechanical character. It has to have a feeling character. It cannot just have a telling character. We lead by example, we do not lead by pushing people around. We do not lead by intimidating people. We do not get up and say to the listening public that when somebody becomes concerned about the business of Government, somebody like myself who is paid over $60,000 a year to do the job, that when I become concerned about what is happening in this country, somehow I am politicking! That is my job, to put the Government of this country under scrutiny and cause the Government of the country to always remember that they are answerable to the people through us, the Backbenchers. They are answerable to the people through us, the Backbenchers.

Chaos would be the order of things if all the people had to come in here and ask questions of Ministers at the same time. So trying to be orderly, they elect a few people to do this job. So when we are asking questions of Ministers, I myself would appreciate some helpful answers. And I am tired and fed up with the arrogance that I have heard in this Legislative Assembly, not just in this sitting, but over years. Over years! Not just this Government but Governments before. Questions are being asked so that we can know the state of affairs in the country. And we will not know the state of affairs in the country if we are not allowed to question the Ministers, because we have nothing to do with the Civil Service.

This country is arranged in such a way, of course, that the cart pulls the horse. We cannot go ask the civil servants any questions because those people have nothing to do with the political persons. So we have to ask the Ministers who sit in Executive Council with the main chief civil servant, that being the Governor. So we would not know what is happening at First Cayman Bank. We would not know what went wrong. We would not know why it was allowed to fester, as it was allowed to fester. We would not know that. Because, like I said in a few of the press interviews I have made, as I said in a letter I wrote, we have a problem with information in this country because there are certain people who do not believe that the public has a right to know. And they do everything to obstruct people who proceed to get information with regard to so many things.

Sometimes the things are so petty that they are hiding. So after while they cannot distinguish what to hide and what not to hide, and they are hiding things that are not important to hide that they should be sharing with people, because it would make for a much more orderly Government and a much more orderly country. Because of the people know they can approve. If you have consensus, then you know where you are going. But if you do not have consensus you do not know where you are going in a democracy, but you can only have consensus based upon information. So without the existence of information in a democracy, it cannot function.

Gentlemen, ladies, a democracy cannot function without the existence of information. And if the information only belongs to the bureaucrats, and to the few selected politicians who sit on Executive Council, it is not going to work. Because when we come in here, we are going to want to know. I am going to want to know, because people come and ask me questions. They even come to my house when I am trying to eat. I am under scrutiny, so I intend to put you under scrutiny too. I am under scrutiny.

They say, 'Well, Frank, what did you do for all the money we are paying you? You are driving a new car. You have a house. What are you doing? Are you working?' And I say, 'Yes, I am working. I go to work at 8.00 in the morning when I take my wife and land her off at her job, I go to my office. I open my office. I leave my office after 5 to pick her up at 5.30. I work for my money.'

I am here to tell you that I spend a whole heap of time thinking about the state of this country, the conduct of leaders in this country. I have a lot of time to think because leadership again means quality consideration. We cannot spend five seconds with this person and ten seconds with this person and think that we are going to be leaders that way. We have to leave the fidgeting and the mechanical aspects to the managers, and get about spending quality time. We need to spend time with the Ministers. Ministers need to make time available, not get themselves involved in the administrative process of Government. They are not administrators, they are not managers, they are leaders! And things would be working much better and they would know what they are doing, and they would have a collective sense of direction. Since they have collective responsibility, they need a collective sense of direction.

If this is so, I am saying that I needed to have been informed about the situation at First Cayman Bank. I think the situation of First Cayman Bank. . . and of course again we should not talk about these things. We should not talk about problems, because problems mean that we are going to create problems. Now it always happens this way in this country, that the problem is not a problem, but the problem is your considering the problem. So we become the problem simply because we are considering the problem. So Frank McField is now the problem, right? Frank McField is now the problem because he is considering the problem. But we cannot shove that thing off on people so easily any more. The Committee for the depositors at First Cayman Bank are now the problem, right? They are not the problem! They are not the problem. The problem started a long time ago, and it is about time we decide to deal with the problem. It is about time we decide to deal with the problem.

We need to decide to have a new conduct in the way we do business. We need to have a new way. So if I am told that as a result of what transpired at First Cayman Bank, and I have a whole heap of newspapers here, and you just get one thing after the other thing after the other thing, all making headlines, which means it is important. It is important to the economy of the Island, to the state in which we are. It is an important happening.

We came in here not too long ago and we voted for another Minister of Executive Council and it is as if everything is, you know, the princess waved her wand and everything is cool and everything is good and everything is okay. But we are not getting the message. We are not getting the message that somehow something is wrong in the way in which we are organised; in the way which we tell the public we are organised; in the way in which we analyse and make decisions; in the way in which we tell the public that we analyse and make decisions.

Now on Thursday the 23rd of October of this year, the Caymanian Compass printed a headline saying that the "National Team requests Bush to resign." And it says, "The National Team has asked its colleague, McKeeva Bush, to resign as a Minister, according to a fax received by the Caymanian Compass at 5.32 PM yesterday." Nobody told me anything about that at that time. So somehow I was not consulted.

What I am trying to make here is again the case of the lack of leadership involved in the managing of our society, in the management of our economy. Now it says here that nine Members of the National Team asked for the resignation of the Honourable Minister, and my name was not included because I am not—have never been, nor will ever be—a member of the National Team. I said that on television, and I meant it. It did not mean, of course, that I could not come in this Honourable House and support Government policies if I felt they were correct. And a lot of people accuse me of being this, and of being that, simply because I agreed with most of the policies that emanated from the National Team. I did not have any solutions for most of those things, and, like one Member said, if you do not have any solutions, what are you getting up to talk about?

So at least I had to go along in many cases with what was being suggested. I say, it was okay.

But I want to make it absolutely clear that if the country has a National Team, a political party that makes decisions as to who and when we should choose leaders, then that is not being done by this Legislative Assembly, and the people should know. I tell most people, 'Look, I am only a Backbencher, and a Member of the Legislative Assembly. I am not a member of Government. I am excluded from knowing certain things. And not all national secret things, just things!' Because that is the way we are. We brush him out, he does not need to know. You do not need to know. So I try to tell the people that. People in the Cayman Islands do not have the possibility of electing their own Government—they elect Members to the Legislative Assembly, but they do not elect their own Government. That Government is then elected by the Members of the Legislative Assembly. So if the majority of Members in the Legislative Assembly are National Team Members, then it is important that the public be informed by every Member of the National Team that they are National Team Members, because it will affect the way in which decisions are made.

We have seen that it has affected the way decisions were made. That is the honest to God truth. It is perhaps easy for us, in reflecting, to analyse the situation and see that that is quite clear: That when the National Team Government was short of a Minister, because that National Team asked one of their Ministers to resign, they certainly did not choose from outside their ranks. They chose very much from inside their ranks. If this is not the case, it is because I have no other information to go by other than what I see clearly with my eyes. I therefore called the Caymanian Compass up today to find out what they said about nine members giving their signatures to the request for the resignation. I went through my mind and counted. I wanted to find out whether or not the initials of the new Minister for Community Development and Sports were on that request for that resignation, and I was told that there were initials there that looked very much like that Member's initials.

So what am I supposed to assume? That a process of decision-making is being followed, but at the same time people are being deceived because they are not being given the type of information that would allow them to understand how the process would take place? Many people thought that they might choose that person. Some people are still under the opinion that Mr. Kurt Tibbetts (because he is the First Elected Member for George Town), should get a position on the Executive Council, not knowing that that is not the way our Legislative Assembly works. You have to be chosen—not by the majority of the people, but by the majority of the Members of the Legislative Assembly. We need to get that message home to people. People are a little confused about this process.

One does not get a position because of education, it is because people feel that they can work with you or not work with you. And that could depend upon a whole heap of reasons. Maybe Frank McField is too stubborn, they do not want to work with me. Maybe Frank McField might be too critical, he might not toe-the-line. Who knows? But it is important that we get the people to understand that the reason they do not choose people like me is not because I fell down in dirt, not because I got pushed down because I stood up for principles that are right and correct—and I will do it again—but because they do not think they have come to that situation where I could be an instrument of convenience, because I am an opinionated person, I have my own mind, my own character and my own value, and will not be led. I am a leader. I make decisions based upon my character.

It is very important that at this particular time the country does not feel it is over the problem of lack of leadership, of confusion in the ranks, of the necessity to show determination and character and direction. We are not over that point. And I will not be silent about it! I will not let somebody tell me that somehow if I keep talking I am going to run the foreign investor away, like they told me when I was talking about the need for pre-schools in this country; when I was talking about the crime growing in this country, about the drug problems in this country, that I was going to run the foreigners away. And now those problems are the problems that are running the foreigners away. I am going to talk about how lack of leadership would really run foreigners away, and not us saying that we have a problem and we need to deal with it. We are human just like they are human.

Let me tell you that we cannot hide our problems because we are no longer the little village—it is now the global village. People in Africa have the possibility of knowing what is happening in the Cayman Islands, people in the United States, we can see what is happening there. We can see that political conduct and political discourse in those countries have changed dramatically because of television. We have seen now that political conduct and political behaviour will be changed in this country drastically over the next few months and the next few years because of the advent of television here too. So we cannot sweep things under the table, under the bed, and hide them any more.

We have to begin to deal with the problem. Are we going to cut the boat in three and all be captains of our own boat? Or are we going to have one captain? Are we going to cut our Government in five and have five different Executive Councils, or are we going to have one? Now I do not believe that any Member should cheat the public by becoming leader of Government Business, or by becoming what I consider to be the Chief Minister in this country. Either you are the Chief Minister because it is formally decided or you are Chief Minister because everybody believes that you are so educated that you should be calling the shots anyway. But that is your role and that is your position, and we should tell the people that is the way we conduct political business in this country and get it over with. Frank McField is here, he will see it, and he will talk. The only thing I will not talk about is what I do not know to be correct. What I know to be correct I will talk about.

I say that we have a party system functioning in this country, and that the National Team campaigns saying there should be no party system—that it was destructive. At the same time, they have conducted business this way by asking the Honourable McKeeva Bush to resign. He was not asked formally by this Legislative Assembly to resign, he was asked by the National Team. It was the pressure from them, more than anything else, that caused him to hand in his resignation, and that is the God-honest truth. So they should not make the people believe that something else is at spiel here.

The play is about party politics. The play is about a well-disciplined party machine that needs no formal registration. Even when a boxer is a good boxer, do you know what they say? 'You have to register those hands because they are offensive weapons.' When you are a party you should register yourself because you are a weapon, because you have discipline. What type of discipline must an organisation really have to be able to have a new Member voted on to the Executive Council without even one other person being nominated from that political group? That suggests incredible party discipline and party loyalty. And that should be known by the people.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Let us Pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived: We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: We also have apologies from the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town. Item number 2, Questions to Honourable Members/ Ministers. Question No. 168 is standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION NO. 168

No. 168: Dr. Frank McField asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation to state what action, if any, has been taken to date in furtherance of Private Member's Motion No. 4/97 which was passed by the Legislative Assembly on 5th September, 1997.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: The Ministry of Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation, in conjunction with the Portfolio of Finance and Economic Development, has short-listed four professional firms which can perform the actuarial study referred to in Private Member's Motion 4/97. Funds to cover the costs of the study have been placed in the 1998 Budget Estimates for the Ministry of Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: I would just like to thank the Minister for having made these efforts and I am quite pleased and quite sure that all Members of the House are also pleased with the progress he is making in this area.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister state if there is any time line presently for completion of this actuarial study?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: We have in our departmental plan, March 1998, but this depends upon the Finance Committee ratifying the Budget.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Assuming that there is no problem with the funds being approved, and assuming that it will be within the next 30 days, can the Minister give us some sort of indication as to when the study might start and be completed?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Once the funds are approved, we will ask that the study be immediately undertaken. Hopefully by the March sitting, and no later than the June sitting, I will be able to present the results to this Honourable House.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Minister state what the next step is after the study is completed?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: The Motion calls for it to be submitted to the House with Government's recommendation which will be done as soon as it is completed.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, question No. 169 is standing in the name of the First Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 169

No. 169: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning to list any shortages of teaching staff at the public schools in Grand Cayman and Cayman Brac.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Boddin: There are 326 teachers and 12 assistant teachers employed in Government schools. There are no vacancies in any school in Cayman Brac. In Grand Cayman, the following posts are unfilled:

John Gray High School:	Business/Information Technology (due to resignation)
Alternative Education Centre:	Special Teacher (due to resignation)
George Hicks High School:	Spanish Teacher (due to resignation)
Primary School:	Peripatetic Music Teacher (new post).

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: According to the answer it appears there are posts for 330 teachers and 12 assistant teachers within the Government schools. Is the Minister in a position to state what, if any, other requests were made by the principals of the various schools in the public system for additional teachers to be hired for the September term?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Boddin: As I understand the system, requests are put in by each principal. Then the department, presumably in consultation with the principal, fixes the number of posts. I would think there were always some requests that either the Legislature does not pass, or the Education Department does not approve. However, I have been told by the Chief Education Officer that the posts approved as we can see is quite an achievement—out of 338 posts only to have four vacant. Those were caused through resignations. If the Honourable Member could be more specific, I would see if the Chief Education Officer has the answer. If he wishes to do this off the floor of this House, that would be another way and I could provide the answer in writing if I do not have the answer.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Let me go back to what I asked first: It seems from the answer, given the four vacancies that exist along with the 326 teachers employed, there are 330 posts available in the public system for teachers, and there are 12 assistant teachers. It is my understanding that there were several schools which, in anticipation of additional students being registered at those schools, made requests for additional teaching staff to accommodate the new students. I am asking if based upon the requests that were made, if there are any requests. If so, which requests were denied?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Boddin: I have consulted the Chief Education Officer and my Permanent Secretary, and I am really not sure which school we were looking at. The number of pupils only increased in three schools. I would like to point that out. Between this year and last year, there were only increases, as I understand it, in three schools. One of these was Savannah. I am wondering if that may be the one. I would be happy, since I cannot answer the Member on the floor, if he would give me something specific, I will give him a written reply on it. It may well have been a school where they expected an increase because in 1996 we had, as the Member knows, a very high increase. But this year things levelled out—mainly because private schools took a considerable amount of the students who would have otherwise been in the Government system. I am happy to provide an answer, but I cannot give the Member an answer beyond this.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I would be very happy if the Minister would give an undertaking to provide the answer, specifically regarding the Savannah School, in writing. But the question was not limited to the Savannah School, I was also querying the George Hicks High School, and perhaps if he cannot answer that one, he can provide the answer in writing for both of them.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I would have to give the Member the answer in writing, but I will give it to him on all schools.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, question No. 170 is standing in the name of The First Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 170

No. 170: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning to advise on the status of on-going maintenance/capital works at: (a) George Hicks High School; and (b) John Gray High School.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The status of the on-going maintenance/capital works at (a) George Hicks High School; and (b) John Gray High School is as follows:

George Hicks High School:

- The PE changing rooms have been completed and were occupied prior to the opening of the school.
- The new Art Block was completed and has been fully utilised since the opening of school.
- Replace windows on north and south side of all buildings (contracts were signed on 29th October 1997. Work was scheduled to begin on 31st October 1997. Public Works Department and the Principal have made arrangements for this work to be done in phases on consecutive Fridays and week-ends so as to minimise disruption of the instructional programme).
- Re-roof and upgrade walkways (Phase 2 of this project is completed. Phase 3 is scheduled to be completed by the end of October. Work is in progress on Phase 4. Completion of this phase is scheduled for the second week in November).

- Upgrade fire escape facilities (awaiting drawings; work scheduled to begin before the end of this year and finish early in 1998.
- Install fire alarm system (work in progress; scheduled for completion by end of year).
- Install security lights (completed).
- Upgrade fencing with footing and gates (90 per cent of this work is completed. Completion is expected by mid-December).
- Convert old PE changing rooms to toilet facilities (major work is scheduled to be completed by mid-November. Dispensers are on order and will be installed as soon as they are available).
- Various minor refurbishing works (completed).

John Gray High School:

- Re-roof and upgrade walk-ways (Phase 7 - completed).
- Install fire alarm system (work is in progress).
- Re-roof English and Math Block (completed).
- Air-conditioning of Islay Conolly Hall is underway and is scheduled for completion before Christmas.
- Various minor refurbishing works (completed).

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: I noticed that the re-roofing and upgrading of walk ways and the re-roofing of the English and Math Block were being done while school was still in session. May I ask the Honourable Minister to give the House an undertaking that in the future this kind of work is not done while school is in session? I visited the site with the First Elected Member for George Town and the Third Elected Member for George Town, and we came across some very dangerous situations where a serious accident could have occurred. So, will the Honourable Minister give the House that undertaking?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The period during which children are not in school, as the Member knows, is just a little over two months. We do as much as we can during those two months, but that list of works that were done. . . I could stand here all morning and read to you. There are so many things that are to be done. The re-roofing of the English and Math Block was an emergency and I was told that it did begin later. However, I guess what I am saying is that probably 95% to 97% of all work is done during the summer, but some is either too major to be completed during the summer, or, even with contractors we do go outside and get private contractors along with Public Works. I must tell you, dealing with all of the schools during the summer is really a major task. I have to personally, at least once per week sit down. . . it consumes my time, the Permanent Secretary's time, the Chief Education Officer's time and the Senior Education Officer who deals with it, but we do give it priority. I really mean this. The one thing that I religiously do is follow up on it. But not everything can be done during the summer. It is just physically impossible at times.

I would like to point out that re-roofing on the English and Math Block was an emergency and that is why it started late on that specific one.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Will the Honourable Minister agree that re-roofing is a major project and would suggest that proper preventive maintenance had not been done and that is why the roof deteriorated to such a standard that it needed re-roofing? I noticed that the Honourable Minister did not say whether he was disposed to exploring the request I made.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I thought I had made it clear. I did not just explore the request the Member made, I do this every summer. I give this priority each summer. I have replaced 11 roofs on the George Hicks High School, which, if the previous Government had done them right, we would not have had to replace. But when water is coming through the roof in an emergency like this, I have to fix it. I mean, what do I do? Leave the children there in water until the following summer and then repair it during the summer? The children would have to vacate it.

I can give the Member assurance that I do everything I can during the summer, but if that Member thinks it is a small task. . . some time I will show him that there are probably 30 to 40 pages of things that have to be done throughout all the schools in Grand Cayman and those in Cayman Brac and the mere scheduling of this within a two month period is a problem. Sometimes both Public Works and the contractors get behind because of rain during the summer, and because of the fact that they do not get all the materials.

But I give this House my assurance that I personally stay on top of this and I do everything I possibly can to get things done. I get an update every week of what has been completed, how much is completed, percentage wise, I get the original date it is scheduled to be completed and I also get the practical completion date when they think things will be completed. When it over runs, I also ask why. I do as much as I can to get everything done.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: With the number of complaints that Honourable Minister is making, is he suggesting that perhaps the job is too much for him to handle?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: If that Honourable Member's Government had put the 12 roofs on the George Hicks High School right, it would have saved this Government $1.5 million and me a lot of time I could have spent doing things that should properly be done. We had to rip the roof off every major building at the George Hicks High School because they were designed wrong, and wasted this country's money to put them back.

Who was in charge of Public Works? The Honourable Member. So he must know the answer for that.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Had I woken up on the wrong side this morning I would have asked the Honourable Minister which of his Government Members is a roofing contractor, but I am not so inclined this morning.

What I would like for the Minister to answer so that it can be clear to all of us, is exactly what the procedure is when it comes to maintenance of Government school buildings. Just so he understands what I am asking, and so that I do not have to ask four or five times, where do the requests for maintenance emanate from? What is the chain of command through which it comes, and how is it decided as to when the maintenance will be done?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: There is a walk through of all of the buildings with the Principal of the school and with Public Works. There is a scheduling of that with Public Works and then this is gone through. The signing off of what is done—and this has only been within the last few years that the signing off has come in—has to now be done by the Principal because I found that sometimes the Public Works schedule and the Principals may not have tallied. So this is a joint signing off at this stage rather than a single one.

I also go to the schools myself and go through with the Principals. I also go through with the Elected Members for George Town for example who were with me on a visit to the schools. In fact, right after the just after the schools start, right after summer (maybe a month or so ago), after all of the teachers are back I make sure that they too are satisfied with their rooms. There is a senior person in the Education Department responsible, and a liaison officer in Public Works. Then there is his boss and I normally meet with the senior person on this.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Minister say if at these schools presently there are any maintenance personnel whose job description would include making assessment of any major works beyond their capabilities and bringing this to the attention of the Principal? Someone who could give a professional opinion on what needs to be done so that there could be a regular schedule of preventive maintenance.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Basically the Principals say what they wish to have done. If it requires a professional, or a technical person, then that person is provided by Public Works. If it is something major, it is obviously drawn up by an architect. If it is something minor, it is done by the maintenance officers at Public Works.

I would like to say this too: I have found the co-operation of Public Works with the schools to be the best that I believe can be given. I know that from time to time there has been criticism of Public Works, but when it comes to schools they do give it priority. Mr. George Manderson is a top-notch person and he is always helpful.

If it is something that an architect or a quantity surveyor needs to be on, then we get that either from Public Works, or they contract that person in.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Minister say who advises the Principal on any works which may need to be done?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: If the Principal needs something done, either a liaison officer or a professional out of Public Works. . . like I said if they are too busy the contractor will deal with it.

If the Member would be bit more specific, and if I can get the answer on it I will give it to him. If not, I am happy to write to him if I do not have the answer to it.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Let me try to express it this way: Is the House to understand that one of the functions of the Principal is to go around making physical assessments of the buildings ascertaining and determining any construction work or repairs needed to be done?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The Principal is the head officer in the school. It is his/her responsibility to ensure that the physical facilities needed are requested. Obviously, they are not builders or architects. The liaison officer. . . and I repeat this again, from the Department of Education, as well as whoever is necessary from Public Works, would go with them. But if a toilet is broken, for example, then somebody has to tell them if it comes up outside of the liaison officer's visit. If somebody says to the Principal that something needs to be repaired, then, obviously, they have the responsibility. So they do have the overall responsibility to do it with the help of Public Works.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I thank you for your indulgence. What I am trying to find out, and the Minister has finally hit upon it, is if there is some person, some being, some creature who could be described as a maintenance man whose responsibility would be to bring the broken toilets to the attention of the Principal, so that the onus to walk around and physically check these would be off the Principal? Is there in place at the schools a creature described as a 'maintenance person' whose responsibility is to check these things and also to carry out minor repairs?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, the first thing I learned in law was to stand up, speak up and shut up. If the Honourable Member would ask me the specific question he needs the answer on, I could have given this to him some time back. But I just was not sure what he was asking.

There is. . .

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I could not ask that question because I am not a lawyer.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: You will probably never be either!

The answer to that is that there is a liaison officer who spends most of his time inside of the schools checking on these things. So his duty is to move throughout all the schools and check on this. But the overall responsibility lies with the Principal. Obviously, if he says he is going to do something, the Principal would have to be consulted. But the Principal does not have to walk around at every bathroom and classroom to see if a fan is not working or whatever, which I think is what the Member is asking. Yes, we do have a liaison officer.

Now, over and above that we have full-time, or part-time maintenance people at, say, John Gray and George Hicks and a lot of the other schools who do little things. Sometimes some of that is only maintenance of the compound, but maybe something, a hinge needs to be replaced. They can do that. But the Principals' time is not taken up—and I think that this is the assurance the Member wants—going around trying to figure all of the little things that need to be done.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: In one of his supplementary answers, the Honourable Minister spoke about a walk-through which the Principal and others did at the various schools. My first question is how often is this done? Is it once a year, twice a year or once every two years? How often?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: There is one formal walk-through a year, but there is constant liaison. Remember, there is a liaison officer in there full time. There is constant liaison between the schools and the Education Department.

What actually happens, if they are having a problem with anything that is important to be done, is that I have requested the Education Department to contact me directly. Sometimes (not all the time) I am able to get things done a bit quicker in that I can reach people at a higher level if there is a problem. So the liaison officer is in there fairly constantly in all the schools. The Principal and the liaison officer are in touch with the Department and also with Public Works. In fact, the liaison officer deals directly with Public Works on some things.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: In the latter part of his substantive answer, the Minister did not mention for the John Gray High School any specific areas of grounds maintenance. Can he state if he knows of any reason why the grounds of the John Gray High School, at the same time the visit alluded to by the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town was made was in such dilapidated condition?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Would the Member be specific on what areas were in dilapidation?

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: That I can. Every area that had a blade of grass was above my knee.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: We have people on staff that should be cutting the grass and those things. I know what the Member is referring to. As I understand it, that has now been rectified. But, like everything else, I guess, I try to see that most things are dealt with, but what I will be doing is getting a measuring tape and once the grass gets up to that size, if necessary I will commission a lawn mower myself and try to get in there.

Humour aside, the Honourable Member is right. They did get behind.

All I can say is that people are not perfect and sometimes things do get behind and I understand it has been rectified now.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I understand what the Minister has said, and far be it from me to expect perfection. I only consider it part of my responsibility to let the Ministers, and others, be aware of matters such as this.

I think throughout this question, in between the [banter] back and forth, the seriousness of the whole issue is this. And I will ask a question, Mr. Speaker, I just crave your indulgence so that the Minister can clearly understand the point.

There are occasions that I know of when requests are made by the Principals of the schools from earlier in the school year for the very same reason, to try and have these works completed without disrupting class time, and I think that it is possible (and I do not know the sequence of events, so I can only give an opinion) that the various agencies involved from A to Z may not fully appreciate and accept the urgency of the matters until it comes to the end results and people start to question why it was not done before.

The question being begged of the Minister is (notwithstanding that he may be on top of it the best way he knows how): Would he, in the future, try to ensure that all works that are possible to be done outside of school time, whether it is summer or Christmas or Easter, be completed during that time? The important thing is that they be scheduled in such a matter. I think that is the whole crux of the question.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning, I will entertain a motion for the suspension of Standing Order 23(7) in order for Question Time to continue.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 23(7)&(8)

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I am happy to move that motion to assist the Member with my reply, if he will second it.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I second the Motion.

The Speaker: The question is that Standing Order 23 (7) and (8) be suspended to enable Question Time to continue. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED. STANDING ORDER 23(7) AND (8) SUSPENDED TO ENABLE QUESTION TIME TO CONTINUE.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, I think the Minister moved the motion to avoid answering the question, but I am sure he will.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I like it when Members on the other side have a good sense of humour because look at how happy everyone appears this morning. . .

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I can assure him that I have no sense of humour for him.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I always have a sense of humour for that Honourable Member. He just does not appreciate it at times.

The reply, Mr. Speaker, is yes. I agree with what the First Elected Member for George Town has asked me. I always endeavour to do this. He is quite right, when the pressure comes on in the last two to three weeks before school begins, there is very intense pressure. Believe me, as the Member knows, I can put pressure on when I need to and I do press them to get this done.

I know that the PTA did a clean-up this weekend at the George Hicks and they did find areas of this. I am big enough to apologise, even though I did not know it happened and I will undertake to try to get everything that I can done on the schools during the summer. So I give that undertaking unreservedly.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, question No. 171 is standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 171
(Deferred)

No. 171: Mr. Linford A. Pierson asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works to provide an up-to-date report on the malaria eradication programme.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: As this happens to be a health matter, the question has been passed on to the Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation to be answered at a later date.

The Speaker: The question is that question No. 171 be deferred. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it

AGREED. QUESTION NO. 171 DEFERRED.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 172, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 172

No. 172: Mr. Linford A. Pierson asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works to state when the three-lane road works on West Bay Road will be completed and at what cost.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Mr. Speaker, the answer was prepared some days ago therefore, as it states: The Public Works Department expected to complete the three-lane works by 15th November. Delays had been incurred due to inclement weather, heavy traffic and unexpected difficulties in setting out the lane markings. However, 99% of the work has been completed and working fairly well.

Projected cost to complete the works is $190,000.00 which includes the hot-mix overlays, lane markings and installation of the pedestrian refuges.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: In a previous meeting of this House, the Honourable Minister gave an undertaking that the National Roads Plan would be laid on the Table of the House within the not-too-distant future. I wonder if the Minister could state if this particular work being carried out on the West Bay Road is in keeping with that particular plan?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. As you are aware, there is another question on the Order Paper dealing with the National Road Plan. However, there are certain things I have mentioned before such as markings on the road, the Harquail Bypass, Crewe Road Bypass, which will definitely form a part of the National Plan.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Could the Minister state, since he mentioned this National Road Plan, if it is presently being worked on and at what stage it is?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: I did not mention the National Road Plan, it was asked of me in a supplementary. The most I can say is that it is subject to another question which will be answered later.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, that concludes Question Time for this morning.

READING BY THE SPEAKER OF MESSAGES AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: I neglected to extend apologies for absence from the Third Elected Member for West Bay. Maybe this would be a convenient time to take the morning suspension. Proceedings are suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.07 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 11.40 AM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Debate continues on the Appropriation (1998) Bill, 1997. The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS BILLS SECOND READING

THE APPROPRIATION (1998) BILL, 1997

DEBATE ON THE BUDGET ADDRESS DELIVERED BY THE HONOURABLE THIRD OFFICIAL MEMBER RESPONSIBLE FOR FINANCE AND ECONOMIC DE- VELOPMENT ON WEDNESDAY, 5TH NOVEMBER, 1997

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Dr. Frank McField: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I would like to continue by, first of all, making it absolutely clear that in discussing a Budget and the principles of Government administration associated with the Budget, it is necessary to take into account (as I started to do) the very important aspect of leadership. Leadership is so important to the overall functioning of an economic environment. Leadership is also very necessary if we are going to get any type of feedback as to what we have done right and what we must continue to do, or what we must change in terms of our activities.

I also see economics as something that has to do with people. Because of this, and because I am a sociologist, I tend to always go the social way in that I talk about social aspects of our economic environment. I know that there will be other speakers, in particular the Third Elected Member for George Town, who will emphasise the more figure part of our economic exercise.

I started to talk about leadership because if we are going to make the type of money that we have outlined in the Budget, we must make sure that this present level of economic activity is sustained, at least through 1998. If this level of economic activity is to be sustained, it is my contention that certain errors that were committed in 1997 will have to be corrected. One of the major errors in our economic and political environment in 1997 relates to the First Cayman Bank situation.

I think it is necessary for me to clarify the misconception in this country which is that once we begin to deal with problems that people begin to see us as the problem. As soon as you become critical and say that certain things can be, and should be, improved, you get a bad name. It was quite clear to me that it was the intention of the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning to lay the foundation for this misconception when he said that since we are one year away from the election that we should have no politicking. As I stated before (and please allow me to briefly say again), I believe that we are here to critique the actions and activities of our Government.

As long as I feel that I am not doing it simply for political mileage, but to give people a clearer picture of what is happening in the country, I feel quite justified in talking about not only figures and facts, but about feelings and perceptions of reality. I spoke about the feelings of the people who have lost at First Cayman Bank, and I will not go back to that point. I think I made it quite clear that it is my understanding that the Government of the Cayman Islands is not just morally responsible, but responsible; which means that they bear some type of monetary or financial responsibility in regard to this situation.

I am quite sure that many people will ask what the Government has to do with private enterprise, or what the Government has to do with a bank after it has given it a licence. Obviously, if I had a company and it went broke, the Government could not be considered responsible. But a normal company in this society is considered to have minor importance—a bank is considered to have major importance. One reason why banks have major importance is because we know that banking is the major industry in this country. So our relationship from the very beginning is structurally different with regards a bank or say a company trading luxury goods, or paint or other maintenance material.

For this reason we have laws which define what the conduct should be. It also sets up, or attempts to establish, certain institutions that will regulate the activities or supervise the activities to see that the banks do not endanger the reputation of the country, and do not defraud or carelessly misuse or mismanage the monies of the depositors. That is quite clear, at least in the motive. Now, whether or not this has been accomplished by the establishment of the Monetary Authority is a question that I would like to put before the House in debating the finances of this country and the ability of this country to remain financially stable.

I think that it is quite obvious that the Monetary Authority, in conception, was a brilliant idea. But, again, certain persons believe that leadership is management. For this reason I believe that our Executive Council became involved with the management part of this Law, rather than leaving this to the Monetary Authority.

If we would examine the power that the Monetary Authority has, and the power that the Executive Council has, it becomes quite clear that the Executive Council retain power control authority as regards the regulation of banks in this country so that authority was never delegated or given to the Monetary Authority. I believe that this is one reason why we have the First Cayman Bank fiasco—bad financial management on the part of the Government of this country in that they did not see that it would be better in the long run to have had their insurance policy being that you had an authority supervising the activities that would not have the same type of political interest.

Once we have the situation that we do have, where the Executive Council is making decisions about licences and about whether or not it be taken away, whether or not a licence is suspended; when the Executive Council is coming down and making decisions, or at least giving the public the perception that they are in charge of these issues, it is quite obvious that those of the public who are affected will say that the Executive Council is, in fact, responsible because that is the image that was projected to the general public.

Therefore, in considering this Budget we must consider that there is no sum of money that has been put aside to effectively right the situation at First Cayman Bank. There is no sum of money in this Budget that deals with Government having the foresight to understand that in order to make this country trustworthy and stable that they will have to repay the monies which the depositors lost at this bank because it was their lack of, let us say, foresight and planning which led to the problem in the first place.

Now, if we concentrate on some of the issues which led up to the suspension of the licence of First Cayman Bank, we will understand that at one particular point in May there seemed to have been individuals (or an individual) interested in buying First Cayman Bank. In fact, according to those individuals, and according to the person who was said to have owned the bank, the bank was sold. If the bank was sold in May, what do we know? Did Executive Council get involved in saying that the bank could not be sold, or was really not sold? Or is Executive Council responsible for making decisions as to who can own a bank? How does it really work? If the bank had been sold, or if these persons had been allowed to purchase the bank, what would have happened? Would we still be in the same situation we are now? What was it about these persons business or personal records? What was discovered in May that caused Executive Council not to allow the bank to be sold to the group of individuals who would later on be said to have had some type of relationship in regard to the action that led to the depletion of the liquid cash at the bank?

It is necessary for us to see that even those of us in the public who did not have a full view of the events, that enough facts were actually coming out through the seams for us to have been able to begin to make up our minds as to what might later on happen. Many people in the public knew that there would be a problem. So, people went to the bank and asked for their money, and the people at the bank said, 'No, don't worry. There will not be a problem because we have this thing under control. The bank will be sold, everything will be all right.' The Monetary Authority made certain statements that I believe convinced people again, because this is the Cayman Islands, this is a stable, economic community. If the Government makes a statement saying that the bank has no liquidity problems, then people will believe that.

It is going to be harder now for the Government to make statements and get people to believe them. But I did not cause that. The people demonstrating to get their money back, the depositors, the Committee trying to get the money back are not responsible for the Government's lack of credibility. The Government is responsible for this lack of credibility itself in not being able to manage a situation that, according to our information anyway, should have been managed. It is quite possible to say that it could not be managed because they have information that I do not have, but I can only discuss and debate the issue from my point of information.

In terms of the First Cayman Bank, it is necessary for the Government in putting together its finances for 1998 to consider seriously what it is going to do regarding those people. I am saying again that we cannot just treat it as a bank failure. It must be treated as a leadership failure, a failure in the leadership of this country. The two are connected.

We also have certain consequences related to the demise of First Cayman Bank that relate directly to the leadership in this country in that, as I said, there is a change of at least one Member of Executive Council. Why was that Member of Executive Council asked to resign? Did that Member do anything morally or criminally wrong? If so, what type of investigations are being pursued at this particular time? If not, why was that Member asked to resign? Was that just another attempt by the Members of the National Team Government to create a situation to make it appear as if they are not responsible for the failure of First Cayman Bank? Is it an attempt to say to the public, 'Look, we are responsible and this is our response. This is how we deal with the concept of responsibility—we chastise one of our own Members. We take him from up high and put him down on the back bench. Therefore, we have solved the problem. We have responded. We have dealt with it. I am not satisfied.

I believe that credibility in this country can only be established by our going one step further and not punishing one person. That is not good enough. We have to make sure that the Government accepts responsibility for what happens—say there was a failure in terms of the communication network. Say, 'We will see that it never happens again. We know what the loopholes in the system were and that we will cover them up and see that this never happens again.' But, please, do not continue in the old traditional way of hiding away the problems because they will show up again at a later stage in our system.

One Member suggested during Question Time that perhaps those of us who are not lawyers are of an inferior quality educationally. I would like to say that stacking up the Executive Council with lawyers and technocrats will not solve the leadership problems of this country. Leadership has to do with more than interpretation of already existing facts. Leadership has to do with creativity, with sensitivity. Therefore, if the country is to remain stable, if we are going to be able to collect the amount of money that we are prophesying that we will collect, we have to change our attitudes towards people—because people generate economic credibility and economic trust and value. People generate that. Therefore, our people management is very important to our management of the physical result of human labour.

So, to say that what we are interested in is how well Government manages dollars, and not interested in how well Government manages people is a misconception of the whole human experiment and condition.

I was very taken back to know that in all we do there has been so much talk about change, and then when we look in the Budget we see that there is no money allocated toward MLA offices. I am very concerned about this, and I have expressed this concern to the Governor. I said when I was campaigning that I was going to be a full-time Member of the Legislative Assembly, and I established an office in January. I go to my office and work a full-time job. But I have to pay for that out of my own money. No attempt has been made by those persons who prepare the Budgets to see that people like me do not have to pay to work more. So the guy who does not do anything is being rewarded, while the person who is doing something is penalised. That is the way this system is set up.

We need leaders who perceive that and can make the necessary changes, because if we have little Members of Parliament, like me, out there working hard, interacting with the people, bringing towards you the ideas and feelings of the people so that you can better understand and represent them, you will be better off. But if everybody is saying that they are not going to work full-time jobs because at the end of the day you have to pay for everything—your office, your phone, your air-conditioning—because Government does not feel it should absorb those particular costs. . . . But at one time that was all right for people to not work full time. It is not all right today because we can see the magnitude of the situation we are dealing with.

I am saying that sometimes bad leadership is the result of lack of time to concentrate on the issues at hand because they must be considered from so many different angles. We are dealing with people here, and people are not statistics—people are feeling beings. So there is a necessity in dealing with all issues to spend more and more time—time that we cannot necessarily quantify in the Budget. You cannot really say how much time I have worked over the last year, because when I go home on week-ends, I am still working. When I wake up in the morning I am still working because in my brain is where the activity takes place. I do not necessarily need to be in an office to work, and I am not saying that those of us who do not have offices are not working. But I am going to show that there is a need for us, if we are going to bring clarity to the situation and leadership, if we are going to bring solutions, to spend more quality time, not just with our constituents, but on the type of issues our constituents bring to us. This should be reflected in the Budget document. This should be reflected in the Budget Address.

One of the most pressing issues in this country today is what direction our economy is going in. Are we going to remain a laissez faire economy, or are we going to become an economy where Government intervention takes place more often on a day-to-day basis? Government intervention without Government consideration or Government planning?

I had a constituent of mine come to me and say that he had applied for a piece of small equipment to do some digging. I think the name of it is a BobCat. It is a little tractor with two little arms and looks like a toy that could relieve people from the manual intensity of digging. The person said he had made the application and nothing was being done. He needed it right away and asked if I could see what I could do about it. I immediately came in and spoke to the Minister responsible to find out that they are dealing with it on a Ministerial level, but it still has to be dealt with on another level because we have the Heavy Equipment Association that also has an input into whether or not people can bring this type of equipment in here.

Now, when we are going to run an economic system and we are going to have persons who already have specified economic interests dictate on a day-to-day level whether or not I can have a shovel. . . . Hey! That is no longer talking about free enterprise. Enterprise is not so free when we have people saying. . . in fact the Liquor Licensing Board in particular, that a situation is being served only as it was with the Island Companies application to sell retail liquor in the harbour. In other words, if we have two distributors there already, then it is all right. These are individuals coming in making decisions just like you have in Communist countries. The bureaucracy in those Communist countries made decisions, and those decisions were not made by market factors.

So, if we are going to talk about the economy which we are supposed to be doing in Budget Addresses, I think that we have to understand that in certain instances we are beginning to choke growth, we are beginning to choke the entrepreneurship of some of our people. We are beginning to tell them that they can expand so far, that they cannot really choose from using ten Jamaican labourers to one BobCat, because at the end of the day that is a natural evolutionary process that we go from intensified manual labour to machine labour. These are some of the types of considerations. The system has to be constantly re-examined. We have to spend quality time re-examining the system in order that we can improve it, so that we can reach the targeted amount of money in terms of income, and so that we can decrease the amount of money we are spending in expenditure.

When we are told that we have gained self-sufficiency in green bananas and mangoes (because this is basically where I should have started my debate) and say that we are now self-sufficient with green bananas and the mangoes. This is the great accomplishment of the National Team Government—self-sufficiency. Now, if I did not eat a lot of mangoes, I might not have information to query this. But, when you say self-sufficiency, you mean that the price of mangoes is up so high that the demand is down so low, then of course you are self-sufficient. But if you mean truly that all the human desires for mangoes are being satisfied in this country, then you are off-base—because the desire for mangoes is certainly not being satisfied. Some of us have to put aside that desire because the price of mangoes is so high. Where is self-sufficiency with regard to mangoes?

As to the green bananas, Sir, I eat enough ackee and codfish and have my green banana there, to know that somehow the quality of green bananas is very good, and that I would not debate the statement about self-sufficiency in green bananas because I really do not know it that well. But I go to the Farmers' Market quite often, and I do not always see nice green bananas there. I go to the Farmers' Market quite often and I do not see very good anything there most of the time. Because the quality of agricultural products at the Farmers' Market is very low indeed. This I do not have to second-guess. This I know because I make trips there all the time.

This as a criticism means that I would like to see the quality improve. This as a criticism simply means that I believe that those who take my criticism seriously will put those they hire to work, to work harder to achieve more. This is the way the system must work. The system must work because people spot how it can be improved, and unfortunately, in this Island, we always think that when people tell us something is wrong, they are insulting our personalities and our dignity. No, we are not talking about persons, we are talking about things. I can talk about mangoes without really talking personally about other people. So the fact that the Financial Secretary says in his Budget Address that we have gained self-sufficiency in green bananas and mangoes goes to show the lack of seriousness in this place.

We have to consider the whole principles of our economic environment. We have to consider these principles because they influence all things. When we are talking about economics, Mr. Speaker, we are talking about immigration as well. And the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town mentioned that if something positive was done with regard to long-term residents in this country, maybe we would have money flowing into the economy that did not have to come from outside the economy. It is already here, and people have already accumulated it here over a period of fifteen and twenty years. But if we are going to have the idea that if we cannot completely control labour—if labour cannot be indentured labour, semi-servile labour—it is risky to have. . . on one hand we have the so-called indigenous Caymanian that forms part of the labour force—that is supposed to be the free labour force—and on the other hand we have the so-called semi-servile labourer who comes from other places, in that the bureaucracy again, in the name of the Immigration Board, regulates the conduct of this particular labour. And we are very slow in allowing people to pass from work permit holders to Caymanians, in that they would not be restricted by the same laws.

When we have the whole problem of supply and demand in this country being so much dictated by Government and Government boards, and therefore individuals who sometimes have their own special interest groups to serve as well—But if I argue for a position, I want to see how that position fits my concept of reality. As we see that wages are not rising in this country, and one of the reasons that wages are not improving is because the supply of labour can be gotten from outside, and therefore people are capable of influencing that fact by saying, You can bring this person in, and therefore the Caymanian who is competing is not seen as valuable. Because if the concept of supply and demand really was a concept that just had to do with the Cayman Islands, and we say, Let us just put a wall around this place—all the supply of labour we have, and we would find that the supply of labour we have is smaller than the demand for labour we have, which would automatically push the price up of labour. So the person who is working here would be making more money. But we say, If there is competition, we bring in people from someplace else. So you might have the Caymanian carpenter who might be making the same amount of money basically he was making ten years ago, or nine years ago, or five years ago, and the increase has been very gradual because he has to compete against the mason or some person from someplace else; whereas if that person had a status after he was here fifteen years, he might join the Caymanian labourer and they might learn how to co-operate to a certain extent in terms of being able to present a case for an improvement in the amount of dollars which they can earn hourly.

We have many considerations, because many things influence our economic environment. The way we handle people influences our economic environment. But what I have always found odd—and I find this when we deal with tourism, when we ask questions about tourism, and as the Financial Secretary has said about the positive growth in tourism in Cayman, is again, Is it improving consumption? To what extent? Could it improve consumption more? Would it improve consumption more and therefore the duty or the tax we are receiving, could that be improved if we had more Caymanians working in better positions in the hotels? Sure, because those Caymanians working in those better positions would be spending money in our local economy that would cause Government revenue to be improved.

So we have to see the interconnection between these things we are talking about. We have to see how, by giving money to education, we are giving money back to Government. So if the educational ability of your Caymanian is improved, the consumption will be improved, and therefore the general taxes of the Government and the coffers of the Government will be enhanced.

The call to improve the training of people at the hotel is not an idle call. We are saying that regardless of how difficult the problem might be, we should continue to pursue training the Caymanians. Because to a certain extent, it does not all have to do with giving them any type of skill other than a social skill, an awareness skill, a change in attitude type of situation. But this means process, and process usually means time and it means care and it means consideration, and this again is where we get the failure in leadership.

We get the failure in leadership because certain people believe that they are leading people that somehow they should not have any kind of emotional and sensitive relationships with, that somehow people can be motivated just by making laws, by creating policies. That people do not have to be motivated through beliefs and inspiration. The leadership failure has to do with not inspiring the people by way of ideas and desires. Because it is ideas, at the end of the day, that really motivate us. I know, because I went to the Honourable McKeeva Bush in January of this year with a programme called "College Discovery." I think he was excited about the programme. But he was careful, because he did not want to conflict with the programmes or the educational responsibility of the Member responsible for Education and Aviation, so he called him in on the discussion. The Minister for Aviation said to me that they have a community college here. In other words, that because he has a community college here, I guess he was saying that my College Discovery programme was not valuable. In other words, he had things under control. But what I was trying to give him was a different concept of how to reach down into the grass roots of this country and motivate people, and give them opportunities, because not every opportunity is an opportunity. Unless the person to whom you are giving it perceives it as an opportunity, it is not an opportunity. We cannot say we are giving the people opportunities when the people do not see these things as opportunities. We have to continue to work with them and motivate them in such a way that they will see them as opportunities.

I just got the mid-term report cards from eight students at Marathon Methodist College in Tennessee, students of this College Discovery programme. I am happy to report that they are doing fine. I flew up there three weeks ago to see them. It was my first time in the South, in Pulaski, Tennessee, a very small town with some 9,000 or 12,000 people. The College has been established since 1860; it is a Methodist college with strong Christian principles. I saw these kids there in a different environment. One of the first things that shocked me, when I saw them, I said, They are okay. You know why? Because I could see that they were different from the way they are here.

Now they will come back here and pretend they are the same, because they have to pretend to everybody who does not believe in change, that they are the same way they were before they went away. I saw there that they were willing to be different, because the environment caused them to be different. It expected that they were different. It expected that they fit in to that environment that has been there since 1860. So they were different.

But now, if I were to find them on the streets of this country in summer, or Christmas time, they might be pretending as if they have not changed. But they have changed! Thank God, they have changed! And it is a good thing we have done. These are the types of programmes we need to talk about. We do not just need to talk about how much money we are spending on education and to say in the Budget that we are spending 15% on education, and that is as much as they spend in any developed country, or a little bit more than they spend in a developed country. We are just getting started, they are getting finished! How can you compare those statistics? We are getting started! When you are starting an engine it takes more fuel than when the engine is running!

So to say we have spent this amount of money, and we have a community college, and to say that we have this school and that school, does not mean that we are dealing with the problem of education in this country. Because the problem of education in this country is a very, very, very intense one. Because we are dealing with a country that is going through a transition, and a very serious transition from the point of view of values and ideas. And everybody looks, not at the ideas or the values, they only look at the so-called income. The income. But what about the outcome? Not just what we spend. What do we really get at the end of the day?

And now I understand that the reinvention of Government, which obviously is part of what we are looking at here, because maybe it promises us that in the future we will not have to spend as much money, because we will not have to employ as many civil servants, because the system will have been redefined, and that it will function much better because communication would have been improved, motivation would have been stimulated, self-reliance would have been better off.

So if we are saying we are going to improve and change the need for additional expenditures by creating an educational system in the country, we have to understand that we cannot just create a dynamic educational system by employing persons from outside the Cayman Islands and bringing them here and expecting them to educate our children. We have to understand the value deficiencies which exist in our environment. Again, it is not to put down our people, but to show somehow that we are moving from an old communal type of system, non-competitive communal system, to a very competitive of free enterprise system. That means, gentlemen and ladies, Mr. Speaker, a significant change in the ideas.

A lot of the schooling here does not concentrate on ideas and values. It bypasses it and gets down to teaching people to do mathematics or biology or Spanish, but if they cannot do it, what happens? What happens then? Productivity in our country is also dependant upon the people who are non-professionals, the people who are not academics, also understanding their role. We have such a great need in this country for services, for people to repair things, to keep things, to maintain things.

We can bring the car from Japan, but we cannot bring the Japanese engineer here, because even if we were to give him a work permit, he might not want to leave Japan and come here. So we need people on the ground here to fix the cars the Japanese make. I am not saying we should aspire to become self-sufficient in the production of cars, but I am saying we should at least aspire to be able to produce and train the people to fix those cars, regardless of what the cost is, because it will pay off in the end.

Too often we get involved in asset-stripping, which means we do not pay sufficient attention to our people. We put them by the way, we send them to Northward, we have them as outcasts rather than saying, Let us go back, because these are all the assets we have, and let us repair them. I have seen places in the world where you go and you cannot get a new car, so the people are fixing the new cars. This is a place where it is not easy to get new people. Let us try to fix some of those people who have some problems and put them back in the mainstream again. Bring them back into the mainstream by actually spending some money to be creative. This demands a much more creative, much more human approach to the administration of Government and through using finances for the improvements.

Mr. Speaker, I think my words might fall on very dead ears because while I am speaking, I know there are people who are already prepared to respond to what I have said, rather than perhaps to think about what I have said. It seems that is always a question of ducking in this place—ducking. Nobody wants to change, you know, nobody really wants to change. My format is different. I come from the school that says that leaders are not clerks, but leaders are people who have vision, people who have determination, people who have desire, people who have the people's interests at heart. Then there are those people who say that type of thinking should be kept out of this reality for as long as possible, as it was before.

But I think there are some people in this country who are beginning to understand that there is a significant interconnection between our social and our material environment. That if the Caymanian people were not good people in the first place, we would not have had the kind of economic prosperity which we do have. That if the Caymanian people are not encouraged and are not fed the values and the stimulus which are necessary to cause them to remain different than people in other jurisdictions, we will lose the wealth and the prosperity. That the people were the key in the beginning to the establishment of wealth, and the people are the key to the preservation of that wealth.

How we treat them, whether or not we say that we have solved the problems of education, as I say, when we know that, for instance, the after-school programme brought in by the Honourable McKeeva Bush, at that time, who was in Community Development, has helped tremendously, tremendously, to enhance the job being done by the Education Portfolio. So we are beginning to understand that there is a connection between the child going to school and the child coming home, because the child cannot just be educated in the school environment, the child also needs to be educated, or that education needs to be reinforced in his primary environment, his neighbourhood.

If we are going to send kids to school from 8.00 to 3.00 and then what are they going to do from 3.00 until 8.00 the next morning? What happens to them? Do we consider this? Do we have people on the ground here, do we have strategists on the ground here who are not just speaking their opinions, but from a scientific or a social scientific approach, have evidence to suggest—this goes all the way back to 1977, when I wrote a letter with regard to pre-schools and the need for parents to be assisted with the instruction of their children. Because when a person goes to school, the teacher says things, but unless it is repeated, it falls away. So that needs to be practised. If you are doing theatre, the first thing you do when you want to learn your lines, is to put yourself in the situation, so that it becomes easier to remember. But just take, for instance, a child who is learning British history, or learning things with relevance . . .

The Speaker: I would like to call to your attention that Standing Order 36(1) says, "Except on a motion for the adjournment of the House, the debate shall be relevant to the matter of question before the House . . ." I appreciate the fact that you are elucidating on what is in your mind, but I would ask that you come back to the Throne Speech, the Appropriation Bill. We are now debating the Appropriation Bill and I am saying that a Member shall direct his speech to the question under discussion, and avoid digression or irrelevance. So please attempt to do that. Thank you. Please continue.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I am sorry about the irrelevancies of my utterances. I realise that most of what I have said has been irrelevant for a very long time, and it probably will continue to be irrelevant for a much longer time. But if I were to be allowed, Sir, with all due respect, to bring to your attention the fact that I have a Budget Address in one hand and I have financial statements in another hand—two completely different documents, Sir.

I would like to also bring to your attention, Sir, that under certain Heads here in terms of the Budget Address, which I am debating, it has "Introduction," "World Economy," "Domestic Economy," "Financial and Business Services," "Tourism," "Agriculture," "Banking, Real Estate and Construction," it has "Economic Outlook," "the state of Public Finances," "the 1997 Revisited Budget," "General Revenue Fund," "Public Service Pension Fund," "Housing Service Fund," "Public Debt," and so on and so on and so on.

If I might say, in discussing the question of education, if I am talking about specific funds, if I say, okay well they are going to spend $25 million on education and they are going to do this at John Gray High School, and I thought that is what we are doing in the Finance Committee. So what I have a real problem with is the fact that—and I think this is what should improve a forum—is the different perspectives. Obviously my perspective is a different perspective.

If I am talking about education from the point of view of whether or not we are spending enough money, and whether or not we are spending enough money in the right direction, because we might not perceive the problems as they should be perceived—I mean, where else do you address this, but in this type of situation? I think the Financial Secretary challenges us when he paints a picture of where it is all fantastic. I have to show to a certain extent that maybe the figures are all incredibly large in terms of our intake, but when we look into the root, into the soul of this country, what we do not have is a beautiful picture like this.

Because reality is not stagnant. Reality is dynamic, and we are chasing after what is real, what is important, what is pertinent to be considered. I do not mind if you think that I am totally off-course here, but it is a question of different perceptions of reality, and if my reality has to be thrown out again, it shall be. But I do not have any way of knowing how to change what I learned. And what I learned is that everything is interconnected, and if you deal with one part and do not deal with the other part, you really have not dealt with it.

So I believe that if I got back to the whole question of the fact that the Government had spent too much money, and Government should not be borrowing, people would probably understand that a little bit more. I am not saying that Government is spending too much money, because I cannot tell if Government is spending too much money. The reason for this should not be because Government is borrowing. So borrowing does not make what Government is doing good or bad, not to me. So I do not want to discuss that! It does not mean anything! What does it mean if they borrow $60 million? As long as the economy keeps vibrant, their ability to pay back not damaged by bad leadership. It does not matter.

My stress has been that the lack of leadership is much more detrimental and could change the possibility of us being able to raise the amount of money we need to raise, because people might not have any trust in dealing with certain people! Not the fact that somebody goes and borrows a certain amount of money, because at the end of the day, our ability to pay is what we should be considering.

So I might disagree with the opposition right there, but I do not suppose that will necessarily make me any worse a person. I am saying also that in terms of a rainy day—I do not believe that saving for a rainy day means putting up the apples, or putting up the corn, and not planting something. Saving for a rainy day, as far as I am concerned, means that we are always prepared, that we are improving upon what we have. So I do not see anything wrong with the position taken by the Financial Secretary with regard to borrowing. I am not critical of that. But when we come to issues like people's freedom . . .

The Speaker: May I interrupt you just one moment? Before you go into another section, this would be a convenient time to take the luncheon break. We shall suspend until 2.30.

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.52 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Continuation of debate on the Appropriation Bill. The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, before I stopped for the afternoon break, I had reached for the Government's Estimate of Revenue and Expenditures for the year ending December 31st, 1998, so that I might attempt to make my comments more in line with your request for relevance. On page 210 under "Details of Capital Acquisitions by Classifications," item 06 1701 under "Communications Equipment" for the Special Branch, there is a mini-camcorder for evidence-gathering purposes during public meetings and demonstrations; two Olympic micro-cassette recorders. This is equipment the Government feels is necessary to purchase, and as I tried to show in a later point, there is a direct connection between things and social and political realities. Because if there will be evidence-gathering during public meetings and demonstrations, it goes to show that somehow, in voting for this Budget, I will be condoning a particular type of behaviour. I think that is exactly the purpose of my being here in this Legislative Assembly, to be able to distinguish between what is right and what is not. And to vote money for that which I consider to be right and correct, and not allow money to go towards things I find to be not morally correct.

Now the United States of America was created as a reaction to this whole process of taxation. The Government would have no revenue without tax measures, and tax measures are, in the end, connected, whether or not we believe in them. The House of Representatives in the United States convenes to give approval for monies. This approval, if we go back to the history, just to make an example, is that they say, No taxation without representation. So if I am to vote for the continuation of taxation, I want to make sure that the people I am representing have representation, that I am allowed to represent what they consider to be the realities as well.

I think it is only clear that when we consider the Standing Orders with regard to Standing Order 63(2) on the motion of the Second Reading of an Appropriation Bill, "Debate shall be confined to the financial and economic state of the Islands, and the general principles of Government policy and administration, as indicated by the Bill and the Estimates." So, in order not to get into the details, I have tried to show, and I will continue to show, the relationships between the money that is being spent and the task that is being accomplished or not accomplished. Perhaps I have not been talking about Government administration and Government policy, but perhaps the lack of it.

I would like, therefore, to see in the future, some of the views I have expounded upon included in Budget preparations, and I would like to see some of the things I have considered to be important considered when we are financing Government's expenditure, just like when we see the amount that will go towards providing the Special Branch with equipment because somebody decided at some particular point that was important, that it was important to tape record people at demonstrations and public meetings.

I might not think it is important, and therefore I might not want to vote for this, and therefore I might have to explain the social realities that I understand, in order to justify my position. So there is need for me to show, in relationship to certain instances, how my position comes to be the position it is. I think the public deserves that explanation; I think the House deserves that explanation. For when we go into Finance Committee, I am quite sure that Members of the Government will find that I will not react the way I did in the last Budget sitting.

It is quite obvious that some people have taken from the Hansard from the year 1992. They have quoted at length what is the relevance of what happened in 1992 to what is happening today. I am not going to be one who goes back to Hansards to remind people of what they said, because I do believe people are changing. So what you say tomorrow might not have any relevance to what you are today. And I do not like to remind people of what they said yesterday, I just like to remind them that as dynamic human beings, they always have a possibility to be something different today than they were yesterday. That is how I have tried to live my life.

In also taking up time to disclose my view of this Island's state of affairs, and to talk about the general principles of Government policies and Government administration, I also want to take this one opportunity to thank Mr. McKeeva Bush for what he has done also in the area of sports . . .

The Speaker: Honourable Fourth Elected Member for George Town, would you sit just one moment? Standing Orders state that you should refer to the Member by position and not by name. Please do that in the future.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, thank you very much for the correction. I do appreciate it, but I forgot where exactly he was, and the position he had. But now I remember he is the First Elected Member for West Bay.

In talking about the Budget, Mr. Speaker, I realise also the very important role that sports plays in our society, and what he has done in seeing that sport was brought to the level to which it has been brought. Just Monday, I was at the Truman Bodden Sports Complex, watching a football game between Scholars United and George Town Sports Club, and the stadium was packed. The T.E. McField stand was absolutely packed with people, and everybody was having a wonderful time. I had to reflect, Mr. Speaker—when we talk about value for money, when we are talking about spending, there were some difficulties with the George Town Sports Club at the end, because they felt they should have won and they did not win. But, Mr. Speaker, I said to one of the players, Do you realise what people would be doing or not doing if you had not been playing football? Do you realise how many people you were entertaining and enlightening for those 90 minutes? So, although we give to sports, sports also gives back to us.

I also mentioned the amounts of money that have been spent on pre-schools, after-schools, and I have said that is a wonderful programme, and I hope that Government continues to support it. I notice that there have been some changes in terms of responsibilities in the area, that the Portfolio is not the same, it has been split up. I am wondering also if I might comment on that, since we are going to pay money out for it, if it would be wise for me to say perhaps at this particular time that certain things should be kept together, because they evolved together. I cannot see how we separate community development from social services, because essentially they are the same. And I see a little bit of lack of wisdom or hastiness or convenience stepping in there.

Maybe it is quite possible to imagine that the new Member had other areas of interest, and perhaps those should be the responsibilities that Member is charged with. But, as you go along, Mr. Speaker, I am saying that my support for this Budget, my vote to allocate this amount of money, will depend upon whether or not I feel satisfied with the performance of the Government over the year 1997.

In looking at some of the policies, in examining the policies and examining the whole administration, again I have concern here, and it is not a praise but it is a concern, and it could come under some title, in that I have a little bit of a problem with the whole idea of Cayman Brac District Administration being under an elected Minister at this particular time, Mr. Speaker. I have a serious concern about that. I would ask that in consideration that Members in a position to make these types of decisions remember that when they are making these decisions, they must come back to the House for the money to carry out such decisions, and that they might come up against obstacles when their reasoning seems unjustified sometimes.

So we have to make sure, in making changes and trying to put the House back in order, that we make changes the Backbenchers can understand and can accept. Because, believe it or not, Mr. Speaker, this House is here, not just to consider money once a year. This House is about money. Representation is all about the right to take money out of people's pockets in order to put them into areas we consider to be the priorities of the society. This House is about taking away individual rights and freedoms to an extent in order that we might improve collective rights and freedoms. This House is all about money, because without the money, we could not do these things. But without having to do these things, we would not have to be talking about the money in the first place.

So the fact that we are discussing the Budget in the first instance means that we are making greater social considerations than are contained in these Estimates. If we go back to the old way in which the Budgets were prepared, and I think in this new Budget it is the same way, they call it the Ambit, and they give us an idea of what they need to accomplish, and they give it to us in a social and philosophical language, and I would like to demonstrate that point. This is under the Treasury, to exercise a mission statement is, "To exercise financial control and ensure efficient collection of revenue, control of payments, and safe custody of public moneys, and to prepare timely and accurate Government accounts and financial information." The Ambit of the vote, what they can use it for: "To maintain the statutory [Government] accounts; provide budgetary control of government expenditure, financial reports and forecasts of revenue and expenditure; manage the implementation of new financial procedures and IT systems; determine financial," it goes on and on.

So even though this Budget is condensed to a few pages, or a few hundred pages, and although there are a lot of figures in this, there is a lot of figurative language. There is a lot of use of language and concept that implies that they have taken into consideration a greater social reality than appears to the unschooled.

In looking again at what our Government is asking us to do, the Government is asking me to vote along with a Budget that will borrow money. The problem here right away is that most people in the Cayman Islands have been politically educated to think that borrowing money is bad. But yet, although those people might say this is so for the Government, we have to look at (just excuse me for a second, I was just trying to get to the point of Personal Loans on page 10 of the Budget Address). It says that "Personal loans remain the largest category—with a total of $435.4 million approved for the year." And we look at the total amount of deposits, which are $402.7 million, and we notice that the amount of loans is higher than the amount of deposits.

The amount of personal loans is higher than the amount of deposits. What does that go to show? It demonstrates again that in seeking justification for borrowing, the Government would get consideration for this from a person like myself, who sees the apparent contradiction, that if the citizens of the country carry on and conduct their personal economics in this particular way, it suggests that, by way of consensus, they would have no reason to suggest that Government should not borrow money, because they are living to a certain extent, off loans.

Again to show justification for that, I might need to suggest that, with the development of surplus value in our societies, which is a result of man's collective history, we find that I do not have to work for a house before I can afford a house, because the production of the house is independent of my working for it. Therefore I can have the house, I can have the car, without working for it. As long as there is a possibility that I will be employed, or that the person could be employed, I find nothing criminally wrong with people borrowing money.

So I do not have a problem with the Government borrowing within what they consider to be the internationally acceptable margins because of the same type of accounting, and I am not going to play politics with them. I say you can borrow as long as you show me that you can pay. And you can show me that you can pay by showing me that your administration is sound, that your policies are sound, and for me to be able to know this, I have to examine your administration and your policy at the time in which you come to me for the money. So again, they get let off the hook when it comes to borrowing.

I cannot go and tell the general public that I am displeased with this Budget because it is borrowing a certain amount of money, and because of this and that. My displeasure will only be connected to what I consider to be bad management and not because . . . I am saying that this country can continue to be prosperous if we educate your people, if we teach the people the value of what they have, if we teach the people how economics has to do with interdependencies rather than with independence. We are not independent, but we are all interdependent, just like how all issues of this Budget are interdependent in order to make concrete Government policy.

In coming to what should be my conclusion, since I think I have rounded off my point, and I think I have made my point, and I thank the Speaker very much for his indulgence. My style is a new style: It shows the interdependence between things. It shows that if we have an egg, we cannot praise that egg without praising the hen. It shows that if we mistreat the hen, we will not get any more eggs. This is always the story about the Goose That Laid the Golden Egg. Cayman laid the golden egg. The people of the Cayman Islands laid the golden egg; they are the goose. We have to make sure we do not kill that goose. Because if we kill that goose, we will not have the eggs. We have to implant in our whole concept a humanistic view, and that brings back my memory of my first debate in this Legislative Assembly—talking about the human characteristic, the special Caymanian humanity.

We must protect that, and again, in summing up, I would say that protecting our Caymanian humanity has a lot to do with what we are dealing with now today with regard to First Cayman Bank . . . How we deal with those poor depositors will reflect whether or not I was correct in saying that we have, in our heritage, a special heritage, and that we have a special humanity. Not that we will not lose money when we try to rectify the situation, but at the end, Mr. Speaker, I am saying that it would be an investment, not only in our humanity, but it would be an assurance to the entire world of how we do business and how we conduct business. And that, Mr. Speaker, rather than sweeping things under the rug, is the correct approach.

Because I have lived abroad, I know that people abroad see what is happening here all the time. That is why people from abroad were able to come in here and make the types of investments in our economy they made, because they had an overview of the situation here. They do not think we are perfect. We do not have to be perfect. We do not have to say, We do not make mistakes. We just have to say that we are responsible people, responsible enough and human enough to respond to our errors just like any developed person would respond. That is by saying, We will correct it, we will see, if possible, that it never happens again.

We are dealing with human beings. And although I might have seemed a little callous in terms of my critique, I want people to remember that I still remember that I am dealing with human beings, whether or not I am dealing with the Government. The Government is composed of people, and I know that people can make mistakes, that we can sometimes not catch all the things we are supposed to pay attention to.

So in summing up, I just want to say that when I came in here, I came in here with the idea of trying to get a motion to take duties off foodstuff, and I ended up supporting additional revenue measures. And I went ahead and I did that, and I explained to people why I did that, and I went on television and I explained, when other National Team members did not go on television and explain. I supported them then, but I have a problem with this Budget.

The problem with this Budget stems from my experience in this House so far. Because I do not feel that we are conducting this Parliament as if it is an open Parliament. We are conducting it as if it is a Parliament where we have a group of people in a political party that is controlling what happens and what does not happen, and therefore what I do or do not do, does not have anything to do with anything.

My support or my rejection of something does not seem to be important. We saw that in the election of the last Minister to replace the Honourable McKeeva Bush. We saw that my vote did not mean anything. And I would like to make it absolutely clear before I finish here, that I voted, and I will tell the country how I voted in November when we chose an Executive Council. I voted for one person because that was my contact with that particular group of people, because that man did a lot to help me out of the hole I was in. My loyalty to that group went down when that man crossed and came over here.

And I know I am not going to be a criminal in not saying that I did not ask for him to step down, but I think it is about time that if we have reasons to believe that something went wrong, at least the country should know.

If nothing went wrong, then maybe he should not be on this side at all.

So when it comes to scrutinising the Budgets, when it comes to saying to the Government that it can get a certain amount of money and spend, and that I will go back to the people and explain to them this thing, they do not have it in me this time. They do not have it in me because I have lost moral confidence in them. I have no confidence in the National Team Government at this time. I have no confidence in their ability to continue to manage the country, and therefore, Mr. Speaker, I do not think they should be given any money until they come and tell us how they are going to deal in particular with the First Cayman Bank situation. Thank you very much.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? The floor is open to debate. Does any other Member wish to speak? If no other Member wishes to speak? (Pause) Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause) I cannot wait too much longer, so please make up your mind.

The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. When I am through, I do not think you will have a problem getting anybody to stand up and speak.

The Speaker: Thank you.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Truman, you hear me. . . I am sorry, Mr. Speaker—Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning, and I would like to deal with that Honourable Member before I get into the meat of my debate. I have a lot of respect for that Honourable Minister, Mr. Speaker, but like many members of the public, I am getting somewhat tired of the juvenile approach that Minister has in jumping up in this House, trying to let other people feel that they have never been to school.

He is always boasting about some nine qualifications. Now, had it not been for the fact that each Member of this Honourable House was elected because of some quality or another that the people saw in them for leadership, we would not be here. Mr. Speaker, I am not aware of any Rhodes scholars in this Legislative Assembly. I am not aware of any Oxford graduates, Cambridge graduates, Harvard graduates, or any of those level of academic achievements. Mr. Speaker, we are here because the people feel that we are suitable for representation.

I am not saying this, Mr. Speaker, because I feel that I cannot stand with the best of them when it comes to qualifications, because I feel as qualified as any Member in this House to speak on this Budget. It is a financial document, and I believe the people who are qualified to speak on the accounts of a country, or even a corporation, are professional people in that particular discipline.

There are two qualified professional accountants in this House, Mr. Speaker, and I happen to be one of them. I hate to do this, Mr. Speaker, because many people know of my capabilities, and I do not need to come into this House and keep reminding the Members that I am a qualified person. There are many Members of this House, Mr. Speaker, who do not have professional qualifications, that I would take my hat off to. They are very good representatives indeed.

And Mr. Speaker, I hope that will cease from this time onward. Either the Minister, and any others who want to follow his example, put up or shut up. Let us see the qualification, Mr. Speaker. Could it be that they—70-80% of those qualifications—are honorary, based on maybe one or two good academic qualifications, and you are then able to join a number of other bodies and use those titles? Let us stop that, Mr. Speaker.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order, what is the relevance at this stage of spending twenty minutes on my qualifications?

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: He spoke about it, Mr. Speaker.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I merely replied to what Mr. Roy Bodden . . .

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, the relevance is answering that Minister.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker . . .

The Speaker: Continue.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, that Member is the first to get up in this House—I knew I would have him jumping up—he is the first to get up in this House and talk about keeping his debate on a high level. Mr. Speaker. It is difficult to defend the indefensible. He has really nothing to defend in this Budget, that is why he is taking such a low profile on it. But I would like for that Honourable Minister to give an assurance that this sort of behaviour will cease. He is no more qualified than any other professional in this House. So it should stop. I do not know who he is trying to impress, but certainly not anybody on this side of the House.

Now, Mr. Speaker, I wish to make my contribution to the Budget debate, and in so doing, by inclusion, to speak to the Second Reading debate on the Appropriation Bill 1998. It was Sir Harold McMillan, former Prime Minister of England, who said, “I have never found, in a long experience of politics, that criticism is ever inhibited by ignorance.” I trust that in my comments on this Budget Address, I will indeed throw some light on the debate, and may not be so accused.

Mr. Speaker, before speaking on this Budget debate, I wish to make it quite clear that I fully appreciate the difficulties that the Financial Secretary, the Honourable Third Official Member, and his capable staff, the Deputy Financial Secretary, Mr. Joel Walton, and others have had in putting this Budget together. I see them as managers of Government funds. I view the Executive Council, and in particular, the elected Ministers of Executive Council, as the management, or the board of directors. They are the people who set the policies.

The civil servants, be it the Third Official Member of Council or otherwise, carry out those policies. I have no problem with even the projections made by the Government officials, even though, as I move on, I will make reference to one or two of those projections I feel may be somewhat unrealistic.

Further, Mr. Speaker, I wish to make it quite clear that I hold the Honourable Financial Secretary, the Third Official Member, in the very highest regard. So any reference I have made here, or that I will make, during my Budget debate, will have no direct bearing on that Honourable Member. Because I see this Budget as the National Team Budget.

I admire the courage of the Third Official Member in reading this national Budget, and his zeal in delivering it is exemplary. But alas, Mr. Speaker, the Budget, in my opinion, is somewhat unrealistic and unattainable. But as I mentioned, this is not his Budget, it is the National Team's Budget.

I have heard mention that if we are going to critique this Budget, we should come up with the solutions. That has been tried in this House before, and the Honourable Member for Education is the first to take it and tear it apart and throw it in the face of the people trying to help. We have seen this happen many times in this Honourable House.

Mr. Roy Bodden: The Fiscal Responsibility Law is a good example.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, they were elected to the Executive Council because it was felt that they had the ability to govern. There are certain things, Mr. Speaker, that have been done over the years that I feel require some level of appreciation, and one of those is the development of the Stock Exchange over the past ten months. But much of this credit must go to the private sector involvement under the very able and capable chairmanship of one Mr. Anthony Traverse and his Board. And Mr. Speaker, I wish to record my appreciation for the very hard work that people like him in the private sector have done in the development of this Stock Exchange.

Unfortunately, the same cannot be said about another area, another authority, which has been recently established, namely the Monetary Authority. While I support the view that the Authority is fortunate to have attracted some competent and highly skilled staff, they nonetheless seem to lack the autonomy and the authority to operate as freely as they should. There appear to be too many Government controls, and, unfortunately, too much Government interference.

An example of the erosion of this Authority was the handling of the affairs of the First Cayman Bank . It is my understanding that as far back as 1994, there was a red flag raised concerning the operations of that Bank. The question that comes to mind is, Why was not immediate action taken to address the problems at that time? Why was it left to become a crisis? I have to ask the question that begs to be asked, Is this another example of the crisis management of the National Team Government?

Notwithstanding the assurances given by Mr. Neville Grant, Managing Director of the Monetary Authority, in his letter—this is a public letter, that is why I am referring to it, Mr. Speaker—in reply to Mr. Rex Rankine, I have to say that if he, in his role as the Managing Director of the Monetary Authority, felt that he was not equipped with appropriate laws, then it was his responsibility to make sure that they were put in place. I found it a complete waste of the public's time, and Government funds, for him to have wasted almost a whole page of the Compass, quoting sections of the Bank and Trust Companies Law to the public. What was the purpose of it, Mr. Speaker? The question is today, Why did not the Government, the Monetary Authority, take appropriate action on the First Cayman Bank before it got to the point where it had to be closed down? And where the victims of this action were the poor depositors.

The bigger question is, Who is to be blamed? Is it correct that through perhaps some form of information, be it insider information or otherwise, I do not know, but it is talked that major deposits were withdrawn from that Bank within two weeks before the licence was revoked. Is this correct? These are some of the speculations out there that need to be put to rest. What is all this secrecy about?

I was very shocked when I heard the Minister for Education admit in this Honourable House that he questioned one of the people who was consoling the depositors—a man who is highly respected in this community, a Mr. Billy Adams—because he was seen talking with the depositors. He asked him if he had any deposit in the Bank! And then appeared to think it was funny because he had an interest but had no deposits in the Bank. I do not see anything in that to laugh about. The Minister gets up in this House and says he is trying to lighten the atmosphere. But you know, Mr. Speaker, his antics sometimes would be laughable if they were not so serious. This is a very callous statement for someone in that responsible position to have made to a member of the public. I wonder what he would have said if he had been one of those poor victims—one of those depositors who lost their money.

I also understand that remarks were made to some of the depositors that they should not be worried about what is going on, because banks go under every week in the States—another callous remark. Some of these people lost their whole life's savings. And somebody will have to accept the responsibility. If the Monetary Authority and, by extension, the Executive Council, knew from 1994 that the First Cayman Bank was experiencing liquidity problems, or any other form of problems, then a red flag should have gone up, regardless of what assurances were given by the management of that Bank. And by a similar extension, Mr. Speaker, if any blame is to be placed, it must be placed firmly and squarely on the shoulders of the Monetary Authority and the Government Executive Council.

One has to ask whether this would not also involve collective responsibility. We are fortunate to live in a country, to live in a territory that is considered one of the premier international financial centres. I think we have much to be proud about. I think we are miles ahead of many of our competitors, miles ahead of some of the more developed regional neighbours. With 35,000 people, I think we have done a great job to be the fifth largest financial centre in the world.

We run a grave risk of losing investor confidence if we allow a situation like this to go unattended and in a timely manner. It is not good enough for anybody to get up in this Honourable House and talk about the matters being handled by the liquidators. I am a qualified accountant! I have done liquidations, and I happen to know that every accountant looks forward to a liquidation! Because if he has not yet made it, he will be on his way to making it financially. And why is that? Where would the money come from, if not from the liquidation process?

So the liquidators are in there, Mr. Speaker, to get as much as they can. And somebody has to move in, and move in fast to protect the investments of the depositors. I am not here to say that Government must write a cheque to every depositor. I am here to say that they cannot callously walk away and say that banks go under every week in the United States, and think that is the answer to the problem.

If confidence is lost in our ability to properly manage our affairs, our financial industry, and indeed other sectors of our economy including tourism, will be seriously damaged. Because we know that for many years, the financial industry and tourism moved hand-in-glove.

The Speaker: Would this be a convenient time to take the afternoon break, or would this break your train of thought?

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: This is okay, Mr. Speaker, thank you.

The Speaker: We shall suspend for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.49 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.17 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Debate continues. The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Just to let you know, sir, that you can call for the adjournment at 4.30 and not give me extra time, because I will be continuing tomorrow, God willing.

The Speaker: On Wednesday.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Wednesday, sorry.

(Members' laughter)

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Even Mr. Truman is admitting that everybody makes mistakes. That is good to hear coming from him.

On the question of First Cayman Bank, I am happy to see the managing director of the Monetary Authority here in the Gallery. I am just a bit disappointed that he did not come a bit earlier as I cannot repeat my comments on the Authority, but he can get excerpts from the Hansard on what I said.

The gist of it was where the Monetary Authority is concerned, and it happened during the National Team Government of 1992 to 1996, in 1994. The Auditors, from what I understand, qualified the financial statements. They were not happy with the conditions at First Cayman Bank. I do not believe that the present managing director of the Monetary Authority was in office at that time, but some three years ago (and perhaps before) there were signs that there was a problem at First Cayman Bank. My question is: Why was it left to deteriorate to the stage where millions of dollars at that bank are now in jeopardy?

It is not good enough for the Monetary Authority, as far as that goes, the Executive Council, to say at this stage that it is just a matter for the liquidators. It goes further than that. As I said earlier, if the Monetary Authority, or, indeed, Executive Council, feel that the Bank and Trust Companies Laws need to be strengthened, then they should bring the appropriate amendments to those Laws.

I was saddened to learn from some of the depositors that there seems to have been some directive that went out to those demonstrating—and it was a peaceful demonstration—that if they are foreigners without work permits that they should not demonstrate. They were not told that they could not put their money in the banks of the Cayman Islands. Yet, when they stand out there with a placard, because they are not Caymanians, they are told that they should not demonstrate. How callous can we get?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Undemocratic.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: The Financial Secretary told us that he and his staff will continue to monitor the situation with a view to finding a solution. Knowing the gentleman as I do, I know that he will honour this commitment. But I must say to that gentleman, with all due respect, that the question is: How long will it take Government to find that solution? Now we are told that it is Government's intention to explore the possibility of depositor's insurance, to provide protection to depositors. As far as I know, there are several banks in the Cayman Islands with 'A' Licences, fully licensed, that can accept deposits over the counter. But most of those banks are branch banks, or subsidiaries of very large international banks. I do not think that this deposit insurance will apply or be practical to the operation of banks such as Barclays Bank, Royal Bank, CIBC, Bank of Nova Scotia, and so on. This deposit insurance would be more applicable to the smaller banks. I believe that it is coming late.

One Minister said that hindsight is 20/20. It is a pity that the National Team Government did not long ago put the necessary financial mechanisms in place. By that I mean that we should have a proper financial plan for these islands. What has happened to the Medium Term Development Plan? What has happened to the promised revision to the Finance and Audit Law? What has happened to the promised revision to the Finance and Stores Regulation? What has happened to the promised revision of the Public Sector Investment Programme? The National Team Government is being managed by crisis—no plans! No vision! For lack of vision, our people perish.

The question today which has been in existence ever since the problem with First Cayman Bank is: What plans are being made by Government to help the depositors? I was talking to one of the depositors who told me that she had $112,000 in the bank, all the savings she has ever had to help school her daughter. Today she has nothing. Many of those depositors are in that same position—they have lost everything that they had!

Mr. Speaker, I would not be going on about this if I felt that it was an ordinary collapse of a bank, in the normal course of business. There were sufficient signs that something was wrong. I understand that in 1994 the Auditors even resigned the audit, and that in 1996 they refused to give a clean report. But I have no way of verifying this since everything is so secretive. Something needs to be done. Somebody has to take the responsibility for this bank.

I understand that it has even been said that the blame now for even the run on another bank was publicly stated to be the fault of the depositors. I can understand if somebody says that in a private group, but when you are going to publicly state something like, it is quite a serious statement.

MOMENT OF INTERRUPTION—4.30 PM

The Speaker: We have reached the hour of 4.30. I will entertain a motion for the adjournment.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock.

The Speaker: The question is that this House do now adjourn until 10 o'clock Wednesday morning. Those in favour, please say Aye. . . . Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AT 4.30 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM WEDNESDAY, 19TH NOVEMBER, 1997.

EDITED
WEDNESDAY
19TH NOVEMBER, 1997
10.24 AM

The Speaker: Prayers by the Third Elected Member for West Bay.

PRAYERS

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived: We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Let us say the Lord's prayer together: Our Father who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done in earth as it is in Heaven; Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us; and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, for ever and ever, Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. Question No. 173 is standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MEMBERS/MINISTERS

WITHDRAWAL OF QUESTIONS NOS. 173 AND 174

Mr. Roy Bodden: I crave the indulgence of the Chair, and the support of the House to withdraw these questions, that is, 173 and 174, as the Financial Secretary has made some mention of this in his Budget Address, and in all candour, I think that the honourable gentleman may not be prepared. I really do not want to put him on the spot. In return I ask that he so inform his colleague, the Leader of Government Business that some insight and perception can come from the Opposition seeing that without exchanging any notes we were able to arrive at the need for these kinds of mechanisms.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I am always very grateful when that Honourable Member is so nice to me, sir.

The Speaker: The question is that Questions Nos. 173 and 174 be withdrawn. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it

AGREED. QUESTIONS NOS. 173 AND 174 WITHDRAWN.

The Speaker: Question No. 175 is standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for George Town.

WITHDRAWAL OF QUESTION NO. 175

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Similarly, Mr. Speaker, this question directed to the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development also seems to fall by the wayside through redundancy as the Honourable Member has already made reference to this in his Budget Address. I would move that this also be withdrawn.

The Speaker: The question is that Question No. 175 be withdrawn. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it

AGREED. QUESTION NO. 175 WITHDRAWN.

The Speaker: Question No. 176 is standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 176

No. 176: Mr. Linford A. Pierson asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs to provide the Mission Statement and the Aims and Objectives of the Government's Reinvention programme.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Government's Reinvention initiative was started by His Excellency the Governor in July of 1996 when he appointed a two-man team to head the initiative. They were given written terms of reference. The terms of reference are attached to this answer (set out below). The reinvention initiative did not have a formal Mission Statement. The Aims and Objectives are included in the terms of reference.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I wonder if the Honourable Member is able to give an indication as to the completion of Term 1, which states: "To establish an inventory and profile of all Government services to identify the customer base and provide a true cost and income for each service." Can he give a progress report on this job undertaking?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Most departments have completed this, but for those who may not have, the deadline is the end of this month.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I wonder if the Honourable Member can say if one of the objectives of the re-engineering programme is to cut back on inefficiencies, which would include the trimming back of the staff of the Civil Service where necessary?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: When the Governor announced this initiative, he said to the Civil Service, "I want you to question every service carried out or offered by the Civil Service. Critically question each of these services whether the way the things are being done is necessarily the best most cost-effective way, and whether those services need to be offered at all." Perhaps it would be better to have certain services offered by the private sector.

Yes, it is hoped that as the initiative progresses, as the Service looks at what is done, how it is done, generally taking a critical view, and if it is found that there is more staff than necessary carrying out certain services, then this will have to be addressed.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I wonder if the Honourable Member is in a position to say what the net benefits derived thus far from the reinvention programme might be, that is, whether there has been a net increase or decrease in the size of the Civil Service since the reinvention programme started.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: I do not know if any department has yet identified areas where there can be a cutback in staff, but I expect that as we go along this is likely to happen. I should say that in one or two departments that have been particularly diligent we are seeing greater efficiencies in the services rendered to the public and we believe that we will see a savings or a reduction in staff in the future.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Member state if the reinvention exercise extends itself to Statutory Authorities also?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Initially the exercise was aimed directly at central Government, at the Civil Service. But we hope that it will be extended and that the Statutory Authorities will be able to use the ideas and improve efficiency where necessary.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Boddén: Can the Honourable Member say what procedures are being taken in the event of any reduction, to reduce the stress and alleviate the anxiety in any department where personnel may be cut or required to be trimmed?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: As there have been no staff cuts to my knowledge, no remedial action has yet been taken. If and when these cuts are identified, the matter will get careful consideration in an effort to avoid stress and concern to individual civil servants, should it become necessary to make certain posts redundant.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: This question may seem unrelated, but it would strike me that it bears a logical and direct connection to what we are discussing. Does the Government have any service in place to which they can refer civil servants when they are under stress and duress emanating from pressures of work or impending re-trenchment pressures?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Yes, there is the Employment Assistance Programme that has been available to civil servants for some years now, and they can be referred there in stressful instances; in fact, even in instances where there are personal matters on which they need counselling and assistance.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Member state if it is a fact that the Reinvention exercise is not aimed at trimming the Civil Service, but rather to increase the efficiency of the Service?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: The Member is quite correct. It is not necessarily a staff cutting exercise, it is an exercise geared at efficiency. If, in the process it is found that we can reduce the size of the Civil Service without sacrificing efficiency, then this will be done.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, question No. 177, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 177

No. 177: Dr. Frank McField asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture if she is aware of any major hotel in the Cayman Islands paying gratuities to any manager (i.e. food and beverage, housekeeping or accounting managers) in contravention of the Labour Law, 1987, and, if so, which one(s) and why.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: There are a number of hotels where our enquiries indicate a strong possibility that some management personnel are sharing in the distribution of gratuities, contrary to the present Labour Law. As investigations into these suspected violations are ongoing, I am sure Honourable Members of this House will understand that I am not at liberty to disclose any details or to discuss this matter further at this time.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, question No. 178, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 178

No. 178: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture to state how "Project Prepare" will enable its participants to better cope with a life outside prison.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: "Project Prepare" is a comprehensive programme that aims to provide structure in the social development of ex-offenders and the unemployed populous. The building blocks for social development in "Project Prepare" are:

- a) Education
- b) Vocational Training
- c) Vocational Counselling
- d) Drug Counselling
- e) Probation Intervention.

These building blocks are the foundation that will enable the ex-offenders and the unemployed to become productive members of the society. While in "Project Prepare" participants must challenge themselves in accepting responsibility for their social change.

The programme offers monetary incentives for participants who have regular attendance and meet academic requirements. The sole focus of this programme as regards ex-offenders is to improve their behaviour and reduce the recidivism rate of our offender population with an outcome of more productive self-supporting citizens in our community.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say whether this is a mandatory programme, or is it voluntary? Also, can the Minister tell the House how many persons are enrolled in this programme at this time?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: This is a voluntary programme and at present I understand that there are some 17 persons enrolled. Ten of these are ex-offenders who are now in the assessment stage of their rehabilitation process.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Minister state what, if any, is the private sector's role in this programme?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: It is my understanding that there are a number of private sector personnel who are footing half of the cost by way of salary and Government is supporting the other half.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Minister say whether this involvement extends to the point of any offers of employment for those who successfully complete this programme, even if those offers are on a probationary basis?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: It is my understanding that that is one of the fundamental conditions for such involvement with the private sector and there is at least one I am aware of who is prepared to take some of these. The Community College, although a Government entity, also is helping. We presently have some in their computer programme. The Department of the Environment and Public Works have also been very supportive. So it is a partnership agreement.

The Ministry would be extremely grateful if any Members of this House, be they on the Government side or the Backbench, would assist in creating a more positive partnership between the private sector and Government in this regard.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Minister tell the House what support these participants will be receiving once they have matriculated from the programme?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: In addition to the financial remuneration they will be receiving free follow-up counselling from Government departments related to that aspect.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Minister say if, while these enrollees are employed there will be any system where they will be regularly visited by probation officers, or by staff from Project Prepare to ascertain that they are on the right track and remain co-operative, but, above all, to offer them moral support and professional assistance in the challenges they may have in coming back into main stream society?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Again, it is my understanding that this is being done at present on a weekly basis and is carried out under the direction of Mr. Banks' office.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Minister state the number of staff members and the ratio of such persons to the numbers of people enrolled in this programme?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Presently there is one staff member that is fully dedicated to this programme with the understanding that the other ancillary staff in the department will help from time to time. However, I should add that since taking over the Ministry, this matter is one of my priorities and I am looking at the Project Prepare, as well as rehabilitation of prisoners in order to come up with a policy that I feel is in the best interest of the country. I would ask Members for their indulgence to give us some time in that regard.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Could the Honourable Minister state by what means prisoners and ex-prisoners are informed so that they all know the programme exists?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: This relevant information is conveyed through the prison itself and through probation officers.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: In some of the answers to supplementary questions, it is obvious that this programme extends itself to various locations depending upon the needs of the individuals. Can the Honourable Minister state if there is a base location for the programme, or is it simply based on the needs of the individuals?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: It is my understanding that it is based within the Department of Human Resources. I am not sure if that is the specific answer the Member wanted. If not, if he will so specify I will endeavour to answer.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Yes, Mr. Speaker. That is what I was trying to determine. But also, if it is based in the Department of Human Resources, could the Minister (as a matter of information because some of us do not know how it works) inform us exactly how this programme works within that office and how all the agencies become attached to the various needs that arise?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: I wonder if the Member would accept an undertaking from me to provide that answer in writing as all the information is not at my disposal at the present time?

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I am sure the Honourable Minister knows that she did not have to ask me that, but certainly, there is no problem. Just so that the question will be clearly understood: If the Department of Human Resources is the base for the operation, what I would really like to know is, after the ex-prisoners in the rehabilitation process are exposed to the programme, does the Department of Human Resources take over that individual, or do they work in tandem with probation officers?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: It is my understanding that they work in tandem with the probation officers and Cayman Counselling Centre.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, that completes Question Time for this morning. The next item is Government Business, Bills, Second Reading. The Continuation of the debate on the Appropriation (1998) Bill, 1997. The Third Elected Member for George Town, continuing.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS BILLS SECOND READING

THE APPROPRIATION (1998) BILL, 1997

DEBATE ON THE BUDGET ADDRESS DELIVERED BY THE HONOURABLE THIRD OFFICIAL MEMBER RESPONSIBLE FOR FINANCE AND ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT ON WEDNESDAY, 5TH NOVEMBER, 1997

(10.52 AM)

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: On Monday at the adjournment I was discussing the involvement of the Monetary Authority in the process of the demise of First Cayman Bank; also, by extension, the involvement of the Executive Council.

Before continuing, I wish to clear up one particular point that has been mentioned to me, and I believe it has been talked about generally on the Marl Road. That has to do with the first meeting of the depositors which took place on the court steps. A number of people have questioned why the three Opposition Members, namely the First Elected Member for George Town, the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town and I, did not get involved. There is no big secret to it, it is simply that we were given the assurance, not only by His Excellency the Governor, but by the National Team Government that the matter was being dealt with. By that assurance we felt that urgent action would have been taken. The reason why I am now debating this particular point is that unfortunately, and sadly, no significant action has been taken to date. Because of the assurance the three of us got, we felt that it might have been somewhat premature for us to have judged the motives, or not believed in the assurance given to us.

I have also heard that it was said that we let down certain other individuals who took part in that first meeting. The three members involved (the First Elected Member for George Town, the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, and I) are intelligent and seasoned politicians. We made the decision that we would not become involved in that first meeting, and we gave it a lot of thought. We realised that this matter would not go away overnight. I speak on behalf of myself, and not necessarily for my colleagues, but I believe they share the same sentiments when I say that we really do not need anybody to dictate to us what course of action we should take. We are intelligent people and we weigh a situation. In that respect we decide when it is right. I feel that at this time it is right for me to speak in this Honourable House on this subject because nothing of significance has been done to date.

On the question of the supervisory aspects of the Monetary Authority, I wish to make it quite clear that I am aware that the present managing director of that Authority, Mr. Neville Grant, only physically took up that position in May of this year. I also understand that he is a gentleman who comes to the position with a wealth of experience. I am looking forward to the improvements, through legislation or however else he chooses to make those improvements, being made in due course. It is my understanding that he is part of a committee now that is seeking to improve the operations of the Monetary Authority. I wish to record my appreciation for that gentleman's ability to carry out the job. But I want to underscore that I am aware that he did not come to the job until early this year. My reference was to the red flag that had been raised as far back as 1994, three years ago. The further question I raised at the time was why did the Government not take action before the crisis took place?

Had the depositors not been given the assurance that their deposits were safe, and that they had nothing to worry about, I would not be elaborating on this point. But it was against that background that I said what I said on Monday; and that is, briefly, that the Government is ultimately responsible because these assurances came through the Government.

I am experienced enough to know the process of bank liquidations to know that it would normally run its course without any direct involvement of Government. But this is not a normal liquidation. This is a situation which was known about for quite some years; a situation where depositors were given assurances that they had nothing to worry about, that everything was in order. So, Government has to take some responsibility for giving this assurance.

Another good thing I must credit the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development with is the proposed amendment to the Insurance Law. This is something that has been needed for quite a long time where insured people can now be assured that when the time comes to draw on their insurance benefits that money will be available. It is noteworthy that this long overdue legislation will require a licensed insurer, in respect of domestic business to maintain funds within the Cayman Islands in cash or in short term securities or other realisable investments to match the current liabilities of life insurance companies.

Many of our companies are headquartered in countries where there is much financial turmoil and a lot of fluctuation in currencies and tremendous vagaries in the economy. Because of that I feel it is incumbent upon the Government to ensure that every protection is given to our people who are insured with these companies. They are paying out their hard-earned dollars in premiums. When the time comes for them to get the benefits and protection, I feel that the funds should be available.

I have decided that my debate on the Budget Address will take pretty much the same format as the Honourable Financial Secretary has outlined in his Address. Accordingly, I am pleased to see the appointment of the Honourable Minister of Executive Council from Cayman Brac and Little Cayman who will have responsibility for those islands. I wish to offer Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly, the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture, my congratulations on her appointment.

I trust that since the major reasons given for this move is to have someone responsible for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman that we will indeed see significant improvement in the economy of those islands in due course. With that, I hope that we will see employment opportunities for the residents of those islands.

Thus far, only token provisions, or incentives, have been made by the National Team Government under their stewardship towards Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. But I must congratulate the Honourable Minister for Tourism, and I give credit where it is due, for his efforts in trying to revive the economy of Cayman Brac.

This only points out that it is not really necessary to have a Member directly responsible, or a born Cayman Bracker, able to get benefits directed to Cayman Brac. Even in the absence of such a Member directly from Cayman Brac, I am aware that Cayman Brac and Little Cayman received tremendous benefits in past years. I can recall that in the 1988 to 1992 administration, Cayman Brac and Little Cayman may have received more benefits during that period than any other four year period of any other Government administration. No born Cayman Bracer was then responsible. This will only help to prove the point that where there is direct interest in any area of Government administration, benefits will accrue.

Over the past years, in particular since the early 1990s, the world in general has experienced record growth. The Honourable Financial Secretary did a fantastic job in outlining this growth. I rarely like to refer to anything written by economists, even though I have the greatest respect for those present, because I was once told that the best economist is a one-handed economist since they tend to tell you 'on the one hand', this, and 'on the other hand' that. Nevertheless, I do have the greatest respect for one of the world's leading magazines, The Economist. I am grateful to the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town who, I continue to say, is one of the best-read people in these islands. He used to put a lot of fear into my heart when I was on the Government Bench whenever he got up to speak. But I am glad I have him as a colleague, so I am not worried about that any more.

This honourable gentleman brought my attention to the cover story on The Economist magazine for the period November 15-21. It is captioned "Will the world slump?" I believe I would recommend this to each Member of Executive Council, the policy makers, to have a look at. It is too detailed for me to read the whole article, but with your permission, since it is so relevant to the Budget and the world's economy, I would like to read short excerpts from it.

It says: "To do justice to the various uncertainties clouding the outlook for the world economy just now, a certain intellectual agility is required. . . . The advanced economies, in other words, could look forward to uninterrupted years of strong growth and low inflation, and the exuberance of equity prices around the world was thereby explained. Then global stock markets tumbled;. . ." We have seen that in recent weeks, the havoc caused. We saw the situation in Southeast Asia, we saw the Dow Jones Industrial Average, we saw the situation with the stock exchange in London, Hong Kong, throughout the world we saw them crumbling. Yet, it does not seem to have even had one bit of an effect on our own policy-makers. One would have thought that with this experience in mind we would have seen a more prudent and conservative Budget brought to this Honourable House.

The article goes on under the sub-caption "Double trouble". But of importance, and this is a small excerpt, it states: "The period of much slower growth that, even on the most cheerful assumptions, must now ensue, . . ." I hope that these words will be taken seriously because for many years economists and other financial experts have been warning that this growth rate we are now experiencing will soon take a slump. The question is: What has Government done to start preparing for this possibility?

I will be going into more detail on the lack of reserves this Government has put in place. The one point I want to make is that despite the bad Government of the National Team administration, we have been the happy recipients of unprecedented economic growth in these islands. But the public should not be led to believe that the National Team Government had anything to do with this growth, or with the boom that we are now experiencing. We have experienced an economic boom in spite of the crisis management; we have been the proud recipients through external forces. Whenever a situation occurs in the United States of America, we are the happy or sad recipients.

In the period during 1988 to 1992, we were the sad recipients of a recession. There was nothing that we could do to avoid that recession. But the National Team would have the people believe that the boom experienced now is because of policies they have put in place. That is not true. It is in spite of their bad management.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Only $1 million in reserves. Imagine that!

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: At a time when this country is experiencing an average of 5% growth in our economy—that is above the world average which is something like 3.9%, we are way above—we have only managed to scrape up $1 million to put in reserve out of almost $250 million in revenue.

Mr. Roy Bodden: True!

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: What is also sad is that they will tell you that they have a general reserve balance accumulated at the end of this year estimated to be something in the region of $9 million. Mr. Speaker, that is no funds for a country as wealthy as the Cayman Islands. Nine million dollars is less than the expenditures of this country for two weeks.

That is against the background of a policy that was accepted in this Honourable House in 1991 that Government would undertake that policy. If I am not mistaken, it was under one of the better Chairmen of the Public Accounts Committee, the Third Elected Member for Bodden

Town, that this policy was put in place—that Government would endeavour to maintain a reserve equivalent to three months of recurrent expenditure. Yet, at the end of 1997, after five years of the National Team Government, they have less than two weeks in general reserves, as opposed to the three months they should have. Three months would put us near $20 million or more.

That is the bad management of the National Team Government. They should be removed! If I felt that I could get a vote of no confidence on them, I would move it tomorrow because of the bad management of the country's funds.

Mr. Roy Bodden: True! Do to them what they tried to do to you in 1990.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: That three months of expenditure was attained in 1989 during the worse recession this country has seen in decades. Three months is equivalent to 25%, and anyone can check those figures. Whether I am speaking in this Honourable House, or in a public meeting, I do my homework. That is why I was in a position during the 1996 election campaign to challenge the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning to a debate on the financial position of Government—because I felt the people were being misled by his statements.

They can get up and say whatever they want. There are some elected Ministers of Executive Council who I must say are doing a good job. . .

Mr. Roy Bodden: But do not call their names now.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I cannot call their names now.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Now is not the time for that!

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker. I am afraid that they are few and far between.

It might be the view of certain Members that we do not need to save for a rainy day, but because of my discipline, my training, I have always believed that the end purpose of a Budget is to reflect the prudence that is expected from the Governing body. Otherwise, why have a Budget? You just come in and spend as you wish. We can only spend what we can afford to spend, thus the need for a Budget.

I wish to now move to the subject of the domestic economy and to deal with that in a bit more detail. As I mentioned earlier, we have seen the devastating effects of the vagaries in the financial markets world wide. This has been despite the economic fundamentals, depositor fundamentals that have been boasted about by the United States, Hong Kong and some of the other major international markets. Just to clarify what we are talking about, the fundamentals are normally low interest rates, low unemployment, low inflation rates and so on and so forth. I am sure there are a few more.

Despite the fact that they have remained strong in some of the industrialised countries like the United States, the United Kingdom, the European and Asian countries, we still see the problem of a downturn in the economy looming. Why do we need to prepare or save for that rainy day? What type of risk management is being put in place by this Government? Other governments are considering that. Countries like Bermuda and others, are putting in place risk management.

What type of risk management is being put in place now by these islands? What happens tomorrow if, for whatever reason, there was a downturn in our tourism industry? What happens tomorrow, and God forbid, if there was another major catastrophe within our financial industry? I know that we have been given the assurance by the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development that a deposit insurance will be put in place, or is being considered, and that also protection for the insurers, life insurance and so on. But, that is not enough. If we had a major natural disaster here tomorrow, as experienced recently in Mexico and other places, where are the reserves for us to fall back on? Right now, if we had to fall back on reserves, even under our normal recurrent expenditure, our day-to-day expenditure, we would not be able to continue beyond two weeks.

Is that good enough? For a territory that is regarded as one of the premier financial centres of the world, is that good enough? The problem, Mr. Speaker, is a lack of vision. For the lack of vision the people perish. We heard a lot being said during 1996 about a vision for the 21st Century. The question is: Where is the vision?

As I mentioned earlier, I intend to take a closer look at the financial performance of the National Team Government over the past five years, 1993 to 1998. I have done my homework and I have the facts available.

READING BY THE SPEAKER OF MESSAGES AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

NATIONAL DAY OF PRAYER

The Speaker: Proceedings are suspended until 2.30 as today is the day of prayer and there will be a meeting of the Ministerial Association in this Chamber.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.27 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.57 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. The Third Elected Member for George Town continuing the debate.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: At the break I had reached a point where I was going to give a breakdown of some of the figures I alluded to earlier in my speech. With your permission, Mr. Speaker, before doing that I wish to congratulate yourself and Madam Clerk for allowing the Cayman Minister's Association to have the prayer meeting here in this Honourable House. I think it was most fitting that we would take part in this National Day of Prayer and Fasting. It was very touching to hear the Red Bay Children's Choir singing "I'm Thankful to be a Caymanian".

Many times we hear the saying that it is impossible for a politician to be a Christian. I have to take issue with that because I know of a number of very Christian individuals in this Honourable House, including yourself, Mr. Speaker, that lead very Christian lives. Speaking personally, I am glad to say that I too am trying to make that change. Sometimes it is difficult, but with the help of God it is possible.

Since 1993 when the National Team Government came into power, there has been a huge deficit each year after accounting for capital expenditures. During the period 1993 to 1997 the country was able to accumulate some $58 million to $60 million of recurrent revenue to be applied to capital expenditure. But during that same period the country spent over $140 million. That was more than twice the contribution that the country was able to make from recurrent revenue.

Mr. Speaker, this money came from borrowings and also some from reserves. The net result is that at the end of 1998 it is estimated that the public debt of this country will have exceeded $100 million. That is a major figure, notwithstanding that it may not have reached the 10% of recurrent revenue in the service cost of those loans.

The question lingering today with each one of us is: Where is all this crazy spending taking us? And when is it going to be normalised? The estimate of the total expenditure in the five years of the National Team Government between 1992 to 1997 is almost $1 billion. This is broken down into $827 million in recurrent expenditure and $141 million in capital expenditure, including capital acquisitions and the basic capital expenditure. By any stretch of the imagination, that is an astounding figure to look at—almost $1 billion in five years.

We have seen a change in the Budget document, and I have to say, as an accountant, that I welcome it because I can see some improvements in it. But it should have been gradually phased in. Not all of us understand it easily, and it is somewhat confusing to some of the Members. I do not think it is good enough to say, if you need a schedule to show the details or to explain it, 'we will provide those schedules.' The document should be made easy for as many as possible.

There is no question at all (and this is still under Domestic Economy) that the Cayman Islands have done very well over the past number of years. As I mentioned earlier in my debate, it has out-paced. . . it is in excess of the average growth world-wide today, which is some 3.9%. We have been able to maintain over the past number of years an average of some 5%. I hope that this Government will not see the debates in this House as just a responsibility of Members to get up and speak, but that they will, indeed, give some thought to some of the good points that are being raised in these debates.

How many countries, how many territories with a population of approximately 36,000 to 37,000 people can boast an annual gross domestic product of some $1 billion? How many countries can do that? But what do we have to show for it?

If it had not been such a serious situation I would find it somewhat ludicrous that out of a Budget of almost $250 million that we have only been able to carry forward a surplus of $100,000. I am not manufacturing these figures, I refer any Member to table one of the Budgets where it gives the 1998 Budget Highlights. It states that the accumulated balance as at 1st January 1998 was $900,000. The total receipts for 1998 is $273 million with total expenditure and contributions of $274 million, which leaves an accumulated surplus at the end of December 1998 of $100,000.

That is the position, not including the supplementaries that might have to be accounted for and bringing to date the contingency warrants that have not yet, as far as I am aware, been brought to this Honourable House to be ratified.

What is even worse, is the apparent disregard and contempt that Elected Ministers of Government have for the Report of the Auditor General. Ever since the National Team Government came to power in 1992, from 1993 the Auditor General has been asking them in his report to follow the proper accepted accounting principles for Government. They have disregarded that advice. So much so that in 1995 the Auditor General had to do something no other Auditor General (to my knowledge) had done before, and that was to qualify the accounts of Government. That, in itself, is a major indictment on any good Government.

As I mentioned earlier, in 1991 the Public Accounts Committee recommended that a certain course of action be taken, even as regards the building up of general reserves. That also has been ignored, as I pointed out this morning. The total amount of general reserves in the coffers now is less than the equivalent of two weeks recurrent expenditure. It should now be, after six years, at a level of 25% or three months expenditure. With total recurrent expenditure of $235 million, three months of that, or a quarter of that, would be showing almost $59 million. And they are proud to tell me and this country that the total general reserves is eight point something million? when in fact it should be near $59 million now.

They have a Minister—I refer to him as ‘All things to all men’, all knowledgeable—who has the ability to make figures look however he wants them to. Like the $6 million profit. . . but I will not go into that this afternoon, the $60 million profit. I think he knows that was a major mistake and that it misled the public. But if he says anything over there, I will go into the depth of it.

In Monday’s paper it carried an excerpt, quite a detailed summary of that Honourable Minister’s speech. He was very happy to say that they are only borrowing $19.5 million this year. What he did not say was that that $19.5 million added to what is here already will take the total public debt to over $100 million during their period.

Mr. Roy Bodden: That is the same thing they were trying to fault your Government for!

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: He went on to say that out of that $19.5 million they had repaid $17.41 [million]. Then, if he only needs $2 million, why is this bill here before us to borrow $19.5 [million]? Are we going to get an amendment asking that this bill be reduced to $2 million?

Mr. Roy Bodden: A Daniel has come to judgement!

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: There is nothing wrong with the Honourable Minister’s intelligence, I worked with him. He is a very bright man. But he can fool some of the people some of the time, but not all of the people all of the time. And people are getting to know him. He knows this is not right and that he should not have put it this way.

He also went on to say that had it not been for the contribution to the pension plan that they would have been able to put $34 million in general reserves. What he did not say was that that $34 million is divided between employer and employee contributions. The sin of omission is sometimes worse than the sin of commission.

Mr. Roy Bodden: That is what they are talking about in South Africa now, the sin of omission.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: That Honourable Minister said that the Budget is well balanced. I can only say, God help us if it was not, because being well balanced in his opinion has this country in a big mess.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Preach, brother, preach.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Looking further at table 2A summary of the 1998 Estimates of Revenue and Expenditure, we see where the only way they were able to show an accumulated surplus of $100,000 out of total recurrent revenue of almost $250 million was to use some pretty bogus accounting. And I am going to show you, Mr. Speaker.

The brought forward figure from 1997 is shown as $900,000. Nothing could be further from the truth. Had this Government complied with the Auditor General’s recommendation and report as they should have, they would have adjusted the $10 million plus that is still on an advance account for overseas medical cases. He has been asking for that to have been done from 1993, and each year it is ignored. The only time that was complied with was in 1992 before the 1988 to 1992 Government was taken out of power. It was when we had $10 million on reserve and we adjusted that reserve by approximately $7 million to clear off that advance account. Since then, nothing has been done. I consider it a gross contempt of proper financial procedures as recommended by the Auditor General.

If that $10 million had been adjusted as it should have been, we would not have been looking at $900,000 being brought forward on 1st December, but rather, over $9 million in the deficit. We would not now be looking at $100,000 surplus at the end of 1998, but over $9 million deficit. That is what these accounts should be reflecting.

This was what I challenged that Honourable Member to debate during the 1996 election.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Was that when he went into hiding?

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: They have, for whatever reason (you see this in table 2A (i), (ii) and (iii)), where they have shown some kind of fund accounting. They have opened up an Environmental Protection Fund, they have opened up an Infrastructure Development Fund, a Capital Development Fund. Mr. Speaker, from the Environmental Protection Fund and the Infrastructure Development Fund, they have stripped it to spend it on the capital expenditure. One wonders why they did not put those funds directly into revenue rather than trying to confuse the issue.

Another aspect of the Budget that I will show which will support my argument that this is not a good Budget and that it is unattainable is the very development of the revenue side of the Budget. I say this with all respect to the people preparing it. But I regard this as being unrealistic. I would like for anybody, including my good friend the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development to show me how he plans to get $9 million more out of import duty. I would like to know if during 1997, when they brought all of the revenue measures, the most they could get out of import duties was $3 million increase from an approved Budget of $48 million to a revised Budget of $51 million, where are they going to get an approximately additional $9 million?

I also want to know, under this same total duty, if the actual for 1996 (which was a good year) was $100 million, the approved for 1997 was $113 million, but the revised for 1997 was only $116 million which accounts for that $3 million, where will they get the $132 million estimated for 1998? There was only a $3 million increase in the revised figure over the approved figure for 1997, yet they presumed to be able to find an additional $16 million for 1998. That is why I say that this Budget is unrealistic.

Not only have they not adjusted the accounts as they should, not only have they disregarded the pleas—because it has been going on since 1993, so there are no more requests. The poor Auditor General must be on bended knees now begging, 'Please comply with proper accounting principles.' That is what he is saying. But it has been totally ignored.

I feel that the responsibility at some stage is going to have to rest somewhere. Government does not have $100,000 surplus. That is rubbish! They are more like $9 million in the hole, if the proper accounting were done. If you apply that $9 million in the hole to the general reserves of almost $9 million. . . you tell me. What do they have? It is a broke government.

Mr. Roy Bodden: God bless you.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: They have $9 million reserve, but they owe $9 million. . . that should be adjusted. So, what do they have? It is a broke government.

Mr. Roy Bodden: The chickens have come home to roost.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I challenge anybody to refute those figures. I am prepared right now to take my seat and let anybody interrupt me and prove me wrong.

Mr. Roy Bodden: A broke and leaderless Government, and Daniel has come to Government to tell them so.

(pause)

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The Honourable Member was going to give way.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: What the Honourable Member is trying to prove does not add up. It is a known fact that the surplus this year is about $14.5 million between the recurrent revenue and the recurrent expenditure. So, to begin with we have $14.5 million worth of profit.

Paying out of that, that money will go towards paying for capital. Those capital works are matters such as hospital and roads and all of these things. So how the Member gets it to a stage where he comes to the conclusion that nine versus nine is zero, when really we are not dealing with nine versus nine, we are dealing with a surplus of $14.5 million.

It is like a person who is building a house. You cannot build your house out of the money you make in wages and pay for it all in one year, you pay for it over a period of time. So the projects of Government are paid for on long-term, such as the hospital, the roads, the schools, over a period of time. It is a fact that that we have repaid more over the past four years than we have borrowed.

When you look at the borrowings, this question of $9 million, you will see that in effect the position is that the repayments made of some $54 million are more than what we have borrowed over that period. So what has happened, Mr. Speaker, the country is much better off because we own all of these capital assets, including a plane. It is not correct, Mr. Speaker, and the Honourable Member has given way, so he has to be tolerant. . .

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, I would be tolerant but the Honourable Minister is just creating confusion for himself. He is not answering the point that I raised so...

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, I would like to return to my speech.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I did not give way. The Honourable Member told me to get up and address it. I have. If he would leave me I would finish.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: You are taking too long.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: It goes to show. . .

The Speaker: Would you attempt to be brief?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Yes, sir. . . that when you are not genuine sometimes and you throw out this carrot, people sometimes take you up on it. And the position is, that the Government is well off with a well balanced budget of $14.5 million worth of profit and that is a fact.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, I am so happy that that Honourable gentleman decided to be a lawyer and not an accountant, because he does not understand accounts. He should stick to what he understands. A little learning is a dangerous thing—one cannot be Jack-of-all-trades and Master of none!

Mr. Roy Bodden: Hear, hear!

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: That Honourable gentleman should stick to what he knows and leave accounting to the accountants.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Hear, hear!

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: He is talking about a profit of $14.25 million. I wonder if that Honourable gentleman is in a position to even define what a profit should be? I wonder if he understands that a profit is not necessarily a difference between one set of expenditure and another, that it takes into account total expenditures. Whether you are building a house or not.

So that Honourable gentleman should stick to what he understands. An accountant he is not, so he should leave accounting alone. He does not understand it. The time has come when he will not be allowed to get up in this Honourable House and mislead the public. I will see to that.

What he was talking about was an accumulated surplus before contribution of $14.25 million. But what he did not state was that there were other expenses that reduced that recurrent revenue available for capital expenditure to $4 million. But on top of that, he is borrowing $19.5 million from the banks around here, I guess; and $1.1 million from Caribbean Development Bank to be able to finance almost $29 million worth of expenditure.

He told the people (and I did not want to touch on this, but since he brought it up I will) in 1996 that this country had recurrent profits of $60 million. He knows, as well as I do, that that was misleading the public. He knows that. He should not have done that, Mr. Speaker. I expect better from the Honourable gentleman.

What he should have said to the public at the time was that the $60 million was only a part payment towards the $140 million in capital expenditure that his Government spent. It was no profit. How can you have a profit if you use it up? If he needs a lesson in accounting, I will take him after classes, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Oye, oye, oye! Is he still around?

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: What he did not also say was that there was a total of almost $60 million in contingency warrants between 1st January to 1st July this very year.

Mr. Roy Bodden: What?

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Almost $60 million. Why did he not, as Leader of Government Business, even try to call a Finance Committee, or get the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development, the Honourable Financial Secretary, to do so?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, the Honourable Member. . .

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, he interrupted me. What point of order?

POINT OF ORDER MISLEADING

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I have a point of order, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: May I hear the point of order?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The Honourable Member is misleading this House and the public in saying that I can call a meeting of Finance Committee. Please withdraw it. That is incorrect.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: What I said, and he was so busy trying to write notes to contradict me that he did not listen. I said that that Honourable Minister should have asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development to call a meeting, as leader of Government Business. That is what I said.

Mr. Roy Bodden: True.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker I ask for the minutes on that.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, is that a point of order?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I have a right, Mr. Speaker. We differ on what he has said. If he is withdrawing. . . I have no problem.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, I am on the floor. If he has a point of order he can interrupt me.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I am taking a point of order, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: I would have to see the minutes to see what he actually said. We shall suspend for the afternoon break.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.35 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.02 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. The excerpts from the Hansard read as follows:

“Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Almost $60 million. Why did he not, as Leader of Government Business, even try to call a Finance Committee, or get the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development, the Honourable Financial Secretary, to do so?”

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker. . .

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I do not have the power to call the Finance Committee, and therefore, it misled this House and the public, the Honourable Member, to state that. I do not have that power. So I ask the Honourable Member to withdraw, as is set out at page 381 of May's, he withdraw the offensive words.

The Speaker: I would further say that under Standing Order 75(5), it clearly states that the “Financial Secretary may at any time, whether or not there is a meeting of the House in progress, summon a meeting of the Finance Committee at the earliest possible date, or at any other date proposed. The authority is given to the Financial Secretary only.” The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, I am very happy that that seems to be the only problem the Honourable Minister for Education and Aviation has with what I said. I thought, Mr. Speaker, that the Hansards would show that I quickly went on to say the Third Official Member, but if that Honourable Member, Mr. Speaker, feels any better, then I would like to make it abundantly clear that it was meant for the Third Official Member.

Mr. Speaker . . .

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you.

The Speaker: Honourable Member, will you withdraw it? You do withdraw the part pertaining to him?

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Yes, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: Please continue.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: But Mr. Speaker, I wonder if that Honourable Member would be also prepared to get up in this Honourable House and apologise to the public for misleading them, not only in 1996, but more recently, in telling them that the National Team Government had accumulated $60 million recurrent profit. I wonder if he would be so charitable as to also ask an apology for that for misleading the public! But Mr. Speaker . . .

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I hate . . .

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Unless he is rising on a point of order . . .

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I am rising on a point of order, and I hate to press this, but Mr. Speaker, that Honourable Member has never said, “I withdraw the abusive words in accordance with May's.” When you said, Do you withdraw it, he said yes. But I would ask him to please say that he withdraws those words. I think I am entitled to that, Sir.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, I think that you asked the question, and I answered you in a positive manner. If that is not clear enough English for that Honourable Member, I do not know what else I can say. I find that it is a waste of time for him to be going on and on about this little point.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town, for the benefit of the listening public, would you just audibly say that you withdraw that?

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, even though it is against my better judgement, for the sake of you, Mr. Speaker, because you know I have so much respect for you, I will do that. I will say that I withdraw that. But it is very difficult for me to say it to the Honourable Member, Mr. Speaker. I find it very difficult. But I say it for your sake, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Speaker, that Honourable Member has a knack of getting up in this Honourable House and saying little things that irk other people, and then saying it is just joke, he is making a joke. If he wants to make jokes, Mr. Speaker, I recommend that he go down to the Coconut Comedy Club. The Legislative Assembly is no place for making such jokes, such serious jokes. Further, Mr. Speaker, that Honourable Member, before I move from this thing, to do with the Finance Committee, that Honourable Member is leader of Government Business. The country knows that. He is also chairman of the Business Committee. The country knows that. And he, as a Minister of Government, has as much interest and should be as responsible as any other Member of this House, to request that a Finance Committee is called.

I wonder if that Member could say whether he requested the Third Official Member to call Finance Committee. And I understand, Mr. Speaker, that the agenda was prepared almost three months ago. What is there to hide, Mr. Speaker? I wonder if that Honourable Member, since he seemed to be so happy to jump up and contradict me, if he can say that is not true?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Truthfully! If he can truthfully say so.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Truthfully say so, Mr. Speaker. Mr. Speaker, what is ridiculous in this House is when Honourable Ministers, especially the Ministers over on the other side, not all of them, but some, attempt to mislead this Honourable House. That is what is ridiculous.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker . . .

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, the Finance Committee . . .

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order.

POINT OF ORDER

The Speaker: Let me hear your point of order, please.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, the Honourable Member has said again — now you just requested him to withdraw something misleading — he has turned around again and made a statement saying that Honourable Ministers on this side are misleading the House. He must, Mr. Speaker, he cannot make a . . . that Honourable Member cannot make a statement alleging that Ministers are misleading, unless he refers to what the misleading is and is specific. He cannot just paint all Ministers with that.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I will be happy to do so, Mr. Speaker. I was referring to that same Member, the Honourable Minister for Education, when he stated that this country had, the National Team Government had, over $60 million in recurrent profits. That is misleading the House! And he should go in the papers and correct it!

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order.

POINT OF ORDER

The Speaker: Let us hear your point of order.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: What was said, I assume, that Honourable Member is referring to a specific statement, and he must show me that statement, produce that statement in due course, and then let me see what he is referring to. It is not good enough to just stand up and make long sweeping statements. But Mr. Speaker, the Honourable Member has to keep away from words such as 'misleading' which . . .

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, is that gentleman still on a point of order?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I am on a point of order, Mr. Speaker, because I have never misled this House, and I never will, I never will, . . . Mr. Speaker, would the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town . . . we have been rumbling for the whole afternoon, just . . .

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, please, make a ruling.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: No, I am on a point of order. Mr. Speaker, if he makes an allegation, then he has to show the proof of what I said. Then we can decide at that stage . . .

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, documentation abounds! They are all over the place! They were made public, where that Honourable Minister even went on the television and stated that this country—his Government—had $60 million recurrent profit from 1993 to 1997!

The Speaker: We are supposed to be debating the Budget. We are going back to the 1996 election campaign. Please continue with the debate on the Budget.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: And I would ask you, Mr. Speaker, to ask that gentleman to show some respect and stop interrupting me. I am looking at the 1998 Budget. I know that he has got to say that what I am saying is giving him hell. But Mr. Speaker, it is the truth, and it only sounds like hell.

Mr. Speaker, this Budget shows — I know it is nothing for you to be proud about, Mr. Minister, but it is your Government — it shows that the accumulated surplus before contribution was $14.25 million. But after contribution it is $4 million. And then you show a surplus. In other words, a net profit of $100,000. And Mr. Speaker, I am saying that that is erroneous. It is not correct.

But I go back, Mr. Speaker, to the Finance Committee. I cannot recall, in my time in this Honourable House, from 1984 to 1988, 1988 to 1992, and now for the past few months, that such a long time elapsed as has elapsed since our last Finance Committee. And Mr. Speaker, I further state that there are a number of contingency warrants and a number of supplementary expenditures that should be brought up to date. They are not reflected in here.

Mr. Speaker, the time has come for reckoning. And the people will know the financial state of this country.

Mr. Roy Bodden: True enough, true enough.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, in 1992, when the National Team Government came to power, they found a public debt of $16 million, $15.9 million to be exact. And the position, Mr. Speaker, estimated for the end of 1998 will be approximately $100 million. Is that prudent financial management? The General Reserves, Mr. Speaker, — I see that gentleman walking around, looking for some information — to help him, I have some here, he could borrow.

Mr. Speaker, between 1988 and 1992, the General Reserves of the country were as follows: In 1988, we had $11 million. In 1989, $18 million. And it was the first time we came close to having the three months of expenditure reflected in reserves. Because the General Reserves in 1989 stood at $18.177 million, as against recurrent expenditures of $75.309 million, approximately 25% or three months.

But even — and that was done, Mr. Speaker, during a major recession. But even in the boom period, the greatest boom this country has seen, has been the recent boom caused by external factors, nothing to do with the National Team. They have — I will tell you what their record was, Mr. Speaker. In 1993, they had $3.5 million in General Reserves. In 1994, $3.9 million in Reserves. In 1995, $4.3 million; 1996, $7.5 million. And they are hoping that by the end of this year, it will be something like $8.9 million. They have not reached, Mr. Speaker, even during their boom period, one year, that they have reached the equivalent of what the 1988 to 1992 Government did during the worst recession this country experienced. So what do they have to be proud about?

Mr. Speaker, you also hear mention made of putting money into the Pension Fund, and that is where it went instead of going into General Reserves. Again, Mr. Speaker, the sin of omission! What they did not state was that at the end of December 1991, there was $3.4 million already in the Pension Fund that was started by the previous Financial Secretary under the 1988-1992 Government, and that they have only built on this in accordance with the Public Service Pension Fund, and in accordance with the Pension Law. They have not done anything of their own accord, or anything that was not done by the previous Government, Mr. Speaker!

Mr. Speaker, I know that the truth hurts. But whatever I am saying here can be backed up by facts. Mr. Speaker, some Members get up in this Honourable House and they talk about keeping debates at a high level. But the Hansards will show, when debates are taken off that high level, who is responsible for it. The Hansards in this House will also show that in my period in this House I have always kept my debates at a high level, because that is the only way I know to go.

Mr. Speaker, I make reference to an article that appeared in the Caymanian Compass on Friday the 7th of November, 1997. It was a report made on the Honourable Financial Secretary's speech, the Honourable Third Official Member. It is captioned, "McCarthy upbeat in Budget Address." Mr. Speaker, with all due respect to the Honourable Third Official Member, I really cannot agree that the National Team Budget is anything to feel upbeat about. However, I must say that in the wisdom of the editor of the Caymanian Compass, they did in fact throw out a word of warning. In that same paper, the editorial read as follows, "A word of caution." It stated, Mr. Speaker, and I would like to repeat some of this for the record, "In his Budget Address, the Financial Secretary, Mr. George McCarthy, presented a [glowing] picture of Cayman's economy. Everywhere he looked things were booming: mutual funds were up, bank licences were up, captive insurance companies were up, company registration was up, tourism was up, banking loans and deposits were up, real estate sales were up, plans for new construction were up, agriculture showed Cayman was self-sufficient in green bananas and mangoes."

It went on to say, Mr. Speaker, "We would not detract from Mr. McCarthy's moment in the spotlight. Careful and prudent management of Cayman's finances over the last five years or so by him and his team has played no small part in this success built as it is to a great extent on investor confidence."

"However, it is germane to ask why, while the good times roll, are we not putting more away against a rainy day?" A very pertinent question, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. McCarthy announced a $1 million contribution to the General Reserve Fund. In the past, the goal for this fund has been set at three months. Mr. Speaker, at the end of 1997, as I stated, the National Team Government has accumulated a Reserve of less than two weeks! And from 1991 this has been set for three months.

It states, "We realise that in a fast-developing country Government is under tremendous pressure to increase services and upgrade the standards of those it already offers. Indeed, such efforts are part of the process of encouraging development. On the other hand, services offered should not get ahead of Government's ability to sustain them." I would like to repeat that, Mr. Speaker. "On the other hand, services offered should not get ahead of Government's ability to sustain them, should the cold wind of recession blow through the world's economy again. It must be hoped too that the National Team remembers what it was that brought it to power in 1992" That was condemning us of excessive borrowing. Yet, Mr. Speaker, we are seeing unprecedented rates of borrowing since they have come to power!

"A little borrowed here, and a little borrowed there can be very habit-forming," the editorial continues. "It may not seem much at the time, but it can mount up. Public debt is rising, and rising faster than revenue. Revenue is estimated to be up by 12.8% next year." And Mr. Speaker, what is astounding is that public debt, on the other hand, is expected to rise by 21.3%. Revenues increase by 12.8%, but public debt, on the other hand, has increased by 21.3%. Mr. Speaker, the editorial closes by saying, "No doubt these are figures we can bear in days of boom, but what legacy will they leave for days of recession?"

This morning, Mr. Speaker, I read from The Economist, where some of the leading economists in the world today are warning us of the looming days ahead of such a possibility for recession.

Mr. Speaker, in this 1998 Budget, we find a lot being asked for in the way of capital expenditure, but the major question raised earlier, Can the recurrent revenue sustain such a heavy load of capital expenditure? Mr. Speaker, by the very fact that we are going outside the normal trend, which in preparing a budget, you extrapolate in accordance with the trends set in past years, and that you do by using a similar average from one year to the next. But when you see a Budget jumping from 3% to a 14% increase, you have to ask the question, Is this a realistic Budget? Is it attainable, Mr. Speaker?

Mr. Speaker, I know that other speakers will get up after me and try to contradict what I have said. But Mr. Speaker, I am assured that my debate is based on facts, and if any speaker can cut away from the normal political rhetoric and contain himself far enough to deal with the Budget as we see it, then they will have no choice but to support my views. Nobody, Mr. Speaker, can get up after me and dispute the fact that the public debt at the end of 1997 is $82 million, and that by the end of 1998, adding the $19.5 million — I am not even adding the amount coming from CDB, just the $19.5 — you will have over $100 million. If I am wrong, Mr. Speaker, then the figures presented by the Honourable Third Official Member have a problem, because I am taking the figures from the Estimates.

Mr. Speaker, I have a bit more to go, and I notice it is 4.30. I do not know if you . . .

The Speaker: We will adjourn. I will entertain a motion for the adjournment.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I move the adjournment of this adjournment of this Honourable House until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Speaker: The question is that this Honourable House adjourn until 10.00 AM tomorrow. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House stands adjourned until 10.00 tomorrow.

AT 4.30 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM THURSDAY, 20TH NOVEMBER, 1997.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MEMBERS/MINISTERS

DEFERRED QUESTION NO. 171

No. 171: Mr. Linford A. Pierson asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation to provide an up-to-date report on the malaria eradication programme.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: To eradicate the particular form of malaria exhibited recently by three patients, all of whom resided within a three mile radius in George Town, it is necessary for a co-ordinated approach by both the Public Health Department and the Mosquito Research and Control Unit (MRCU) to take place. A combined approach such as this involves both the treatment of infected persons and the control of the mosquito capable of carrying the parasite that can cause the disease and is designed to break the cycle of transmission of the disease.

The following information relates to the mosquito control aspects of the programme: Immediately upon receiving information as to the occurrence of falciparum malaria, MRCU ceased all non-essential activities and mounted a full-scale response against Anopheles albimanus, the mosquito capable of carrying the disease. Specific control measures adopted to date are outlined as follows:

1. Intensified spraying by aircraft and vehicle-mounted units against the adult flying stage of the mosquito, concentrating initially in George Town. The immediate response included daytime fogging, repeated after sunset, as a precautionary measure. The classes of insecticides used are alternated to increase their effectiveness. These control efforts are continuing to date.
2. Targeting resting adult mosquitoes by the application of a residual (long lasting) insecticide to the surfaces of external walls around George Town Hospital and all buildings in selected areas of George Town. This programme has now been completed.
3. Treatment by vehicle-mounted and hand-held equipment of mosquito breeding sites using a variety of larvicides to kill the aquatic larval stages. This programme has been completed for George Town, the area immediately to the north and locations surrounding South Sound swamp and is presently expanding eastwards. Treatment of sites in George Town will be repeated as rainfall patterns and filed information dictate.
4. Field inspection of all potential breeding sites of Anopheles albimanus is also expanding eastwards. This involves the collection of larvae and pupae and return of samples to the laboratory for positive identification. Field inspections are on-going at this time and will continue indefinitely.

5. Mapping of information gathered from field inspections is presently being undertaken and enables reliable recording of data. Instructions can then be issued to larviciding crews to target specific locations and to re-treat particular sites at prescribed intervals.
6. Daily monitoring of the numbers of adult Anopheles albimanus caught each night in light-traps identifies those areas in need of attention and allows spraying operations to be scheduled the same day. This programme is on-going and is conducted seven days a week.
7. An additional measure is the sending of all collections of Anopheles albimanus to the Caribbean Epidemiology Centre (CAREC), Trinidad, for examination for the presence of malaria parasites.

The strategy of the control methods that I have outlined has been to target the adult and larval stages of the mosquito. The successful results of these intensified efforts is witnessed by the very significant reduction of the order of 80 per cent in the numbers of Anopheles albimanus now being recorded.

I turn now to the medical aspects of the malaria eradication programme. Every year in the Cayman Islands we have a few imported cases of malaria occurring. In the last ten years, for example, imported cases varied from 2 to 10 per year. For malaria transmission to take place it is necessary to have a patient with the parasite and a mosquito. The mosquito has to bite the affected person and it must then live for 10 to 12 more days before biting another healthy person. Only then can malaria transmission take place. When affected patients are successfully treated, the mosquitoes have no parasites to access. At the same time, existing infected mosquitoes are destroyed by MRCU's mosquito control measures and the combination of both these factors breaks the cycle, thus preventing the establishment of local transmission.

In October of this year, we had three malaria affected patients, none of whom had travelled to a country where malaria is endemic. Investigation suggests that these cases occurred as a result of an imported case, a visitor to the Island in August 1997.

From the medical stand-point, the following action was taken:

- I. The three cases were admitted to the Hospital and successfully treated.
- II. Physicians were alerted to be on the look-out for possible malaria patients.
- III. The general public was informed of the situation, and what precautions to take, at a media conference held on 13th October 1997.
- IV. Home visits were made by Public Health nurses and laboratory staff to about 20 homes near the residences of the affected patients. Control measures were taken and information leaflets distributed. Blood smears for analysis were collected from about 100 residents. No antibodies against malaria were detected among them, indicating that there has been no local transmission in recent years.

- V. A consultant from CAREC visited the Island at the request of the Medical Officer of Health and confirmed that the necessary steps had been taken by the agencies involved.

No additional cases have been detected, so we are confident that the present outbreak has been contained.

In closing I would like to say that I have been told recently that there was a similar outbreak affecting four patients that occurred in Puerto Rico. Two of the patients actually died because treatment could not be provided for two days. In contrast, we, in Cayman, were ready. I would also like to take this opportunity to thank the two gentlemen behind me, Dr. Petrie and Dr. Kumar, also the Ministry of Agriculture and the Ministry of Tourism as we got together once we found out this was going on and they worked hard on this project.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I wish to thank the Honourable Minister for this very comprehensive answer. The purpose of the question was to get this type of information for the benefit of the public. In paragraph 6 of the answer dealing with the daily monitoring of the adult mosquitoes caught each night in the traps, I wonder if the Honourable Minister can give an indication of the type of numbers we are looking at and the areas concerned?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: I have been reliably informed that the areas where these mosquitoes actually breed are literally island-wide, and it is in fresh to brackish water. As of yesterday, there were only five mosquitoes identified.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: I wonder if the Honourable Minister can say if there are any of these light traps in my district of North Side?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, Mr. Speaker. There are five located in the district of North Side.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Can the Honourable Minister confirm how recently these traps in the District of North Side have been checked?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: I am told that they are checked seven days a week, so up until this morning they should have been checked.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Minister tell the House whether the programme mentioned in paragraph 3 of his answer (which states that it has been completed for George Town) is going to be extended to any other jurisdiction, and, if so, when?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, Mr. Speaker, as indicated further down it is presently expanding eastwards and I have been told that it is now up to Spotts Newlands area.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: I notice from popular literature that malaria seems to be on the rise and there is a world-wide concern. Can the Minister say if we in the Cayman Islands can expect any help from PAHO or the World Health Organisation on our drive to prevent the resurgence of malaria in the Cayman Islands?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, we do receive assistance from PAHO and also CDC in Atlanta.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: As falls true in other cases I wonder if the Minister could state if the insecticide used in this eradication programme could possibly get to the point where the larvae are resistant to it, and it has to be changed, or is it something consistently used?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: There is always the threat of resistance, but the approach used by MRCU is to alternate the kinds used.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Minister state how many types are used and at what intervals?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, I am informed that over six different formulations of the insecticide are used over a different period of days.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: The reason for that question is because in the past we have had people complain about the types of insecticides used, especially by the aircraft in regard to crop damage. Can the Minister state if any attention is being paid to assure that none of these types of insecticides are of that nature?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: I am informed that we only used EPA approved insecticides at the required dosages.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Can the Minister say how the first case of malaria was recognised? What process was involved?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: When an individual comes to the hospital with some of the indications that may lead to this, the person is tested. The prime area of this is fever and flu-like symptoms. Once this is identified, the blood is tested.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: I would appreciate it is the Minister is in a position to be more specific. My question was to ascertain as to whether the hospital staff was successful in detecting that the person had malaria when the person first visited the hospital?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Minister tell the House what procedures, or preventative measures are in place regarding the visit of aircraft and vessels using the Cayman Islands as a port of call to prevent the possible spread of mosquitoes from these vessels?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: I am told that we spray all incoming aircraft and boats that come into the island, with the exception of the cruise ships.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I wonder if the Honourable Minister is in a position to say during the clearing of the traps they have come across any of the Aedes aegypti Mosquitoes, or are they totally eradicated from the island now?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: I am informed that we have found no Aedes aegypti since November 1996. Hopefully, with the help of God, we have eradicated that now.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Minister say whether there is any travel advisory relating to Caymanians who may visit areas where there have been malaria outbreaks in recent months?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: One of my notes that I have here says, What has been done to prevent imported cases? Travellers to malarious countries are advised against mosquito bites, leaflets prepared by the Centre for Disease Control in Atlanta are available in the Public Health Department. As we all know there is no vaccine available to prevent malaria. Travellers can take drugs for prevention of malaria. Prescriptions can be obtained from Public Health or any doctor.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Minister say whether this information was disseminated through the media, or whether it is purely on the basis of interested parties picking it up from one of the health centres or the hospital?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: This was done through the media. It will continue to be done and what we also do is advise the travel agencies in regard to this.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I wonder if the Honourable Minister, since he has the doctors there with him, is in a position to say whether there is any form of preventative medicine which can alleviate or assist with this major problem.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, one of the drugs used is Chlorquine. I am made to understand that within a day or two this can literally instantly stop the transmission of malaria.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Minister say whether the programme he described in paragraph 2 of his answer has been extended to any of the other districts?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, this will be expanded. One of the interesting things about this mosquito that I am made to understand is that its distance of travel is very limited and it does not go far from where we have originally found the infection.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, question No. 179 is standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 179

No. 179: Mr. Linford A. Pierson asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture to state the Mission Statement and the Aims and Objectives of Cayfest (Cayman Festival of Arts).

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: The Mission Statement of Cayfest is "To Provide an Annual Showcase for all Residents who wish to Display their Talent in the Creative Arts". Apart from the obvious entertainment aspects, the aims of the Festival are:

- to foster the enrichment and growth of all our creative people of all ages by arranging for their work to be seen on a national scale and at the district level;

- through this exposure, to encourage more participation in the Arts;
- to develop a sense of worth and pride in both performers and audience; and
- to contribute to the general mandate of the Cayman National Cultural Foundation, as stated in the CNCF Law which is "To develop the Caymanian culture generally".

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I wish to thank the Honourable Minister for this comprehensive answer, and for her efforts in co-operating with the Backbench in trying to get an idea of what the question is trying to obtain.

I recognise (and I will turn this into a question) that the work of CAYFEST is really progressing nicely. I want to congratulate those people. But, CAYFEST has existed for quite a long time, since 1973. I wonder if the Honourable Minister is in a position to verify that a Mr. Andrew Vessey was the first chairman of the first Cayman Festival of the Arts in 1973?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: I am aware that there was a movement in 1973, but I am informed that the CAYFEST proper as it now stands today, is slightly different. However, I would say from the information which I read leading back to 1973, I would like to thank all of those persons who participated and contributed, but I would also like to emphasise that in the past two years, the efforts seem to have been rekindled. I would like to thank all those involved in that venture as well.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I do not have any further supplementaries, I just wanted to make the point that CAYFEST had been in operation for that number of years.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush : Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the Honourable Minister responsible for Culture how many programmes, projects. . . or, indeed, what did CAYFEST do from 1973 until two years ago when the Ministry of Community Development and Culture put it forward?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Mr. Speaker, I wonder if I can give this House an undertaking to provide that in writing in that I have only familiarised myself for the past two years which would not give a complete comparative answer at this time.

The Speaker: Certainly. If there are no further supplementaries, question No. 180, is standing in the name of the First Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 180

No. 180: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development if the Government is considering any salary increases at present.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, the answer: A salary study has been conducted by a Civil Service committee. However, this study has not to date been presented to the Governor in Executive Council for consideration.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries? The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Could the Honourable Third Official Member state when this study was completed, and if this study was in line with the thought that has been going on for the past few years within the Service regarding salary adjustments that might be necessary?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, this study was completed in October. I should point out, Mr. Speaker, that this study has been carried out by a committee that has been formed by the Honourable First Official Member of Executive Council, and the chairperson of that committee is the Deputy Financial Secretary. The committee reports directly to the First Official Member, and I have not been consulted in the process as to the specifics of the terms of reference, and exactly what the results of the study entail at this time.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you very much, Honourable Third Official Member, for heading me off at the pass. Just for purposes of clarity, could the Honourable Third Official Member explain — not getting into terms of reference — just explain the process and how a final decision is made with regard to any adjustments to civil service salaries.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, as I mentioned to the First Elected Member for George Town, I will not be able to give him the specifics, but using my judgement on this, a committee has been appointed. Consultation would have taken place with the Public Managers' Association, and also representative of the Civil Service Association. Their views would be embodied in a report. The report would be submitted to the First Official Member for consideration, who in turn would submit his report to His Excellency the Governor. I understand from the First Official Member that this has been done.

The report is presently with His Excellency the Governor. I would take it that further feedback on that once His Excellency the Governor has studied the report, he will then come back to the First Official Member to suggest any changes to be made. At this point in time, the First Official Member could take the decision that the report, with the Governor's approval, should be shared with Executive Council, whereby the input of Executive Council would then be sought.

Once it is dealt with by Executive Council, then before a decision can be taken as to the level of funding, if the report is accepted as presented, then further discussions would have to be held with the broader membership of the Public Managers' Association, and not just their executive committee members, and the same would have to take place with the Civil Service Association, so that there would be consensus across the board.

Once this consensus is achieved, whatever the agreed position as arrived at, would have to be costed. A decision would have to be taken at that point in time, based on the level of costing, or whatever sum has been quantified for salary adjustment, how that funding will be met, and whether it meets with the approval of the Government as a whole.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: The very last part of his answer to the supplementary question was whether it meets with the approval of the Government as a whole. Could the Honourable Third Official Member expand on that? I am simply trying to get to where the final decision is made.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, I should mention that the answer has been given. The final decision to be taken on this will have to be in the Finance Committee of the Legislative Assembly, but the process leading up to that, in terms of what consensus has been achieved on it, there will have to be agreement on both sides. Because whatever is agreed in Executive Council to be supported on behalf of the Civil Service Association, once that is agreed, the Government will have to take a decision whether they are prepared to support this position in the Finance Committee of the Legislative Assembly.

The Speaker: Any further supplementaries? Question number 181 standing in the name of the First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I might add that it is refreshing to be given straight answers that one can understand when questions are asked.

QUESTION NO. 181

No. 181: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Third Official Member if the proposed Medium Term Financial Strategy and Public Sector Investment Programme will be tabled during the Budget meeting.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, the answer: As promised during the August meeting of this year, the Medium Term Financial Strategy and the Public Sector Investment Programme will be tabled during this meeting of the Legislative Assembly.

SUPPLEMENTARY

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town, a supplementary.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Member state if, as is customary for such important documents, in tabling the document there will be any discussions in the Legislative Assembly regarding the document itself?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, when the document is presented, there will be an overall report given by myself in terms of setting out, giving a summary of what the document entails. It is a question for the Legislative Assembly to decide as to whether the report will be debated. But there would be no objections to that, Mr. Speaker, as far as I can determine at this time. I have not consulted with Executive Council on this, but in terms of agreeing the procedure, first of all, the document is being tabled in the House for the benefit of providing information to Government. . . and I have just been reminded by the Deputy Director of Economics and Statistics, that the document is being done in two parts. The first part, the Medium Term Financial Strategy, is the document that will be presented to the Legislative Assembly. This is what is presently being worked on. The Public Sector Investment Programme will follow at a later meeting.

The Speaker: Any further supplementaries? If there are no further supplementaries, that concludes Question Time for this morning. Item Number 3, Other Business: Private Members' Motions. It is my understanding that the Mover has agreed to suspend Standing Order 14(3) in order that Government Business can take precedence over Private Members' Motions. I would entertain a motion for the suspension of Standing Order 14(3).

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 14(3)

Hon. Truman M. Boddin: Mr. Speaker, as the Honourable Mover is not here, I would make that motion on his behalf, and I would move that the Standing Order be suspended, Sir, so that the debate on the Budget can go on, Sir, be suspended until after the debate on the Budget, or next Thursday, whichever first comes.

The Speaker: The question is that suspension of Standing Order 14(3) the Government Business can take precedent over Private Member's Motion. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 14(3) SUSPENDED TO ENABLE GOVERNMENT BUSINESS TO TAKE PRECEDENCE OVER OTHER BUSINESS

The Speaker: Item number 4, Government Business: Bills, Second Reading, Continuation of the Debate on the Appropriation (1998) Bill 1997. The Third Elected Member for George Town continuing.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

BILLS

SECOND READING

THE APPROPRIATION (1998) BILL, 1997

DEBATE ON THE BUDGET ADDRESS DELIVERED BY THE HONOURABLE THIRD OFFICIAL MEMBER RESPONSIBLE FOR FINANCE AND ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT ON WEDNESDAY, 5TH NOVEMBER, 1997

(Continuation of debate thereon)

(10.48 AM)

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Mr. Speaker, during my contribution to the Budget debate thus far, I have endeavoured to comply with the financial procedures with regard to the Second Reading of the Appropriation Bill. Mr. Speaker, Standing Order 63(2) states, and I quote, "On the motion for the Second Reading of an Appropriation Bill, debate shall be confined to the financial and economic state of the Islands and the general principles of Government policy and administration. . . ." This is as indicated by the Bill and the Estimates.

Mr. Speaker, this Standing Order 63(2) is quite wide and offers any Member of this Honourable House debating the Budget the latitude to not only debate the financial and economic principles relative to the Budget, but also to deal with appropriations on a departmental basis. Mr. Speaker, with the exception of the Monetary Authority, I have therefore deliberately steered away from debating any matters relating to individual portfolios, departments or statutory authorities, as I feel, Mr. Speaker, that such debate should be confined to the Finance Committee.

Mr. Speaker, as regards the Loan (Capital Projects 1998) Bill, 1997, I have taken a similar approach, as that Bill, which provides authority for the Governor-in Council to borrow up to $19.5 million to pay for the 1998 capital projects, can rightly be debated separately on the Second Reading debate. And Mr. Speaker, I shall look forward to debating the merits and/or demerits of this Bill in due course.

It is most important that it is understood that it is appropriate for any Member debating the Budget to make reference to any financial or economic document which has been laid on the table of this Honourable House, however long ago. This authority is provided under Standing Order 63(2), which I read a few minutes ago. Debate should in fact ". . . be confined to the financial and economic state of the Islands and the general principles of Government policy and administration. . . ." It is therefore, Mr. Speaker, with this knowledge and authority, and against this background, that I now make reference to the 1995 Auditor General's report, to verify some of the statements made thus far in my debate, as I have already done with respect to the 1992 Auditor General's report. That was done in order to confirm the financial state, the accurate financial state of these Islands.

The 1992 Auditor General's report provides a summary in Table 1 of the Revenues and Expenditures, as well as the Surplus and Deficit Accounts, and also the General Reserves for each year from 1988 to 1992. As stated, the only year where these Islands have been able to put aside sufficient funds, as recommended by the Public Accounts Committee, the equivalent of three months' recurrent expenditure, was during 1989. This has not been done since to my knowledge, Mr. Speaker.

The Auditor General's report in any year is an authentic and correct financial position of these Islands over previous years. The Auditor General is the authority on the financial position of these Islands at any given period of time. He is the only authority who can legally provide a report on the financial statements and conditions of the Government of the Cayman Islands and have that dealt with by the Public Accounts Committee, and laid on the Table of this Honourable House. It is again, Mr. Speaker, against this background, and armed with this knowledge, that I have stated in this Honourable House, that figures quoted by me during my debate of this Budget are indeed factual. They have in the main been taken from the Auditor General's report, as well as from other financial and/or economic documents laid on the Table of this House and thus made public documents.

During my debate thus far, I made reference to the current 1998 Budget as being unrealistic, and also incorrectly stated. But before taking my seat I wish to verify what I said regarding the 1998 Budget being unrealistic and incorrectly stated, and I wish to do this, Mr. Speaker, against the Auditor General's report.

Mr. Speaker, as the 1996 Auditor General's report has not yet been tabled in this Honourable House and is still regarded to have been distributed to Members on a confidential basis, I am unable to make reference to that document at this time. Standing Order 73(3) refers.

So Mr. Speaker, the latest available document to me, authentic record of Government finances, would be the Auditor General's report for 1995. I stated in my debate that the Budget does not present the correct financial picture, in that the "Brought Forward Balance" at the beginning of 1998 is incorrectly stated. I will certainly hope that someone speaking after me will be able to clear up this very serious point.

I also stated, Mr. Speaker, that at least $10 million in respect of outstanding overseas medical expenses has been incorrectly stated in the Government accounts. The most recent information provided to this House, Mr. Speaker, by the Honourable Financial Secretary, the Honourable Third Official Member, verifies that the figure is now approximately $10 million.

I want to make it quite clear that I have no problem with the service being provided to our people in respect of overseas medical services. I think this is necessary. I also know that some of our people are unable to pay, and that many of them may be pensioners, etc. So my query is not with the service being rendered. I think in all cases this is perhaps necessary. My query is regarding the incorrect accounting principles that have been applied to these expenses.

As I will shortly point out, the Auditor General of these Islands is also very concerned. Because of this distortion in the Government accounts, the whole Budget is similarly distorted. I now wish to read the Auditor General's opinion as stated by the Auditor General in his report on the 1995 accounts. As stated earlier, I am not allowed to quote from the 1996 accounts report, which is the most recent report from the Auditor General, because that has not yet been tabled in this Honourable House.

But I have no doubt, Mr. Speaker, when we see that report, that the situation would not have improved over 1995. My reason is to confirm the correctness of the statements which I have made in this Honourable House regarding the 1998 Budget, when I said that the Budget is distorted and does not reflect the correct position of these Islands and of their accounts. This is in view of the incorrect accounting principles that have been used, that have been employed in the Surplus and Deficit accounts, which have been incorrectly adjusted on the Advance Account. I will go into that in a little bit more detail.

This is reflected in what the Auditor General had to say in his report on the 1995 accounts. He stated, under his audit opinion, and I quote, "As more fully described in paragraph 1.20 to 1.22, I have qualified my audit opinion on the 1995 annual financial statements because I consider the accounting policy for overseas medical advances is inappropriate." This document has already been laid on the Table of this Honourable House, and anybody can have a copy of it.

It further states, Mr. Speaker, "Overseas medical expenditure is not being brought to account at the date of payment but is classified as a recoverable advance and is shown as an asset in the annual Statement of Assets and Liabilities. Amounts accumulated in the advance account are brought to account periodically, usually accompanied by conversion of individual debts to long term loans." What he goes on to say is very important, Mr. Speaker, "The effect of this accounting policy, which has been followed for many years, is to defer recognition of expenditure to future periods." He further says, Mr. Speaker, "I drew attention to this situation in both my 1993 and 1994 Reports, and warned that the annual financial statements were being distorted by late and inconsistent accounting treatment."

So when I say that these accounts are distorted, I am using the exact words that have been used by the Auditor General of the Cayman Islands. He stated, Mr. Speaker, and I quote, "I did not qualify my audit opinion in either 1993 or 1994 because the amounts involved were within acceptable materiality limits. As at the 31st December 1995, accumulated overseas medical expenses charged to advances stood at $7.7 million." He says, "In my opinion at least $4 million [$4,005,188] relating to 177 completed cases should have been classified as expenditure between 1993 and 1995."

He also says, "In my opinion the accumulated deficit is understated." The accumulated deficit is the surplus and deficit account, Mr. Speaker, that I have been speaking about. The Auditor General has said, "In my opinion the accumulated deficit is understated." I would invite anyone to go back, as I referred to yesterday, to 1992, when during that year, the 1988 to 1992 Government adjusted over $6 million to clear off the overseas medical expenses and to ensure that the accounts were properly dealt with. But since 1993, Mr. Speaker, nothing has been done by the present Government, the present National Team Government, to correct this situation.

As an auditor, as a qualified accountant, I can tell you that when an auditor qualifies his audit opinion, that is one of the greatest indictments an auditor can put on any financial statement.

Mr. Roy Boddén: True, true. In the private sector that causes managers to be fired.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, the reason for reading that was to make it quite clear that the statements, the figures I have given in this Honourable House, since I started my debate, have been factual. They are based on the audited accounts of these Islands. This anomaly and distortion of the accounts should be corrected forthwith. If this were corrected, as I said yesterday, we would not be showing a balanced budget with $100,000 surplus. If it were properly corrected, we would be showing a negative figure of over $9 million in the red.

Until this correction is made, the 1998 Budget and all future budgets will continue to be incorrectly stated. This correction must be made forthwith. This is not a situation we can play around with. We are looking at the future of our people. I want to underscore the fact that we — I want to make this quite clear — are not looking at a balanced Budget, as has been said by at least one previous speaker. But we are realistically looking at a loss, a deficit position.

I further want to underscore, Mr. Speaker, that with a $9 million deficit, which the position is if it is properly adjusted in accordance with the Auditor General's rulings, the country is technically broke, because the country has only $8.9 million estimated at the end of this year, and would not be able to even cover that amount of money.

In addition, Mr. Speaker, that $8.9 million, if it was even available, could only take care of the recurrent expenses of this country for less than two weeks.

Another matter of grave concern to me is the use or perhaps misuse, but I would say the use of contingency warrants. Contingency warrants should be used only in circumstances where the Financial Secretary is satisfied that due to exceptional circumstances an urgent need has arisen. But it appears that many of these contingency warrants issued do not arise as a result of exceptional circumstances. Many of the contingency warrants, Mr. Speaker, are really, truly and genuinely, requests for supplementary funds. It would therefore seem, Mr. Speaker, that the use of contingency warrants is not being properly handled.

In 1995 there were a total of 96 contingency warrants issued at a total cost of almost $8 million — $7.9 million to be exact. In 1996 there were 125 contingency warrants issued, totalling $10.6 million.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Bad management!

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: And in answer to a Parliamentary question earlier this year, the Honourable Financial Secretary, the Honourable Third Official Member, advised this House that between January this year to the 31st of July this year, 165 contingency warrants had been issued to the value of $59 million. Of this $59 million, $6 million was in respect of unbudgeted recurrent and capital expenditure. Mr. Speaker, $6 million was in respect of unbudgeted recurrent and capital expenditure! And the Government would have the people believe that this is a good and prudent Government?

As contingency warrants should be used only for exceptional circumstances, where an urgent need has arisen, they should be brought to this House within at least three months and subsumed by the accounts respectively provided in the Appropriation Law.

In addition to these contingency warrants requiring ratification and approval, there is a list of long outstanding supplementary appropriations that should have been approved in this Honourable House long ago. But Mr. Speaker, for whatever reason, no meeting of Finance Committee has been called this year to have these unapproved expenditures dealt with.

As I said yesterday, Mr. Speaker, this is the first time (to my knowledge) that such a long period has elapsed without a Finance Committee being called. I make the point now that I do not hold the Honourable Financial Secretary directly responsible for the delay in this, because it is my understanding that he had an agenda prepared quite some time ago. Previous Government administrations have called meetings of the Finance Committee on a regular basis, in keeping with the Public Finance and Audit Law. The question is, Mr. Speaker, why has this procedure been discontinued? Why has no meeting of the Finance Committee been called this year?

This is another example of a departure from proper procedures that were complied with in the past, under past administrations. I know this particular subject of the lack and delay in calling a Finance Committee has touched sensitive nerves in this House, so I will say no more on that subject. But I know that the public are very dissatisfied that right now we are not even sure whether all expenditures that should have been brought within the Budget are being accounted for because of the lack of calling the Finance Committee to deal not only with supplementary expenditures, but with contingency warrants as well.

This non-compliance with established laws, rules and regulations regarding contingency warrants and supplementary expenditures is most unsatisfactory. In my contribution to this 1998 Budget debate, I have attempted to deal as thoroughly with the correctness or lack thereof of the Budget as I possibly could. I have dealt in some detail with the points raised by the Honourable Financial Secretary in his Budget Address. Though I did encounter some amount of what I feel were unwarranted interruptions, I am gracious enough and experienced enough to know that this is a part of the normal workings of most Parliaments.

I have pointed out that not only is the Budget not properly balanced, but that the growth in public debt is frightening. It is outpacing the growth in our revenue position. I showed where the public debt had increased by some 21% as compared with an increase in revenue of 13%. This is not a good state of affairs, especially in a country, in Islands, with no risk management, and less than two weeks' expenditure provided under our General Reserves. This is a serious situation for any country to be in. This should not happen, especially during a time like this, when these Islands are experiencing one of the highest growth rates in our economy in our history.

As I mentioned earlier, we are experiencing a 5% growth rate when the world as a whole is experiencing less than 4%, 3.9% to be exact. With a gross domestic product of some $1 billion in this country, one would have expected to have found a healthier position in our coffers. I feel that I have demonstrated beyond any doubt the serious situation of the finances of these Islands. I am not afraid of anyone coming after me to try and disprove anything I have said, as my debate has been factual and of a high standard.

But as I mentioned to this Honourable House in my opening, the delay you saw in trying to get somebody to speak before I did, I do not think you will have to worry about that when I sit.

All in all, I believe that I have covered the Budget fairly thoroughly. It was Lord Mancroft who said, "A speech is like a love affair. Any fool can start one, but to end it requires considerable skill." Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: This is a convenient time for us to take the morning break. We shall suspend for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.24 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12 NOON

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Continuation of debate on the Appropriation Bill. Does any other Member wish to speak? The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush : Mr. Speaker, and Honourable Members, I intend to be as brief as possible in my remarks on the Budget Estimates before us. While I intend to say quite a bit about my tenure in Executive Council in the Throne Speech debate, God willing, I want to at this time thank my faithful staff for their dedication and the hard work in the Ministry. A better group of people you cannot find. In spite of having a large workload, they always found time to look at the needs of all who came to the Ministry. They genuinely cared for people. They are not just good, loyal civil servants, but good people. I have the greatest amount of respect for them because I know the kind of effort they have put in, and I take my hat off to them.

I want to also say a word of thanks to all those civil servants who assisted me in my time, but as I said, I intend, God willing, to — while I believe I have the space, the latitude, to say much more in the Throne Speech debate.

But I also wish to thank my faithful constituents, supporters and friends throughout the Islands for standing by me and being a friend and a source of strength. I do not profess to be the best Christian. I wish I could, but I am not a hypocrite. Throughout my life I have always depended on and recognised the awesome power of a superior being. The Heavenly Father has always taken care of me in whatever situation I have found myself from the time I was a child without a father at home. There is a contemporary chorus which we sing in church. It says, "Our God is an awesome God; he reigns in heaven on high with wisdom, power and love. Our God is an awesome God." It is He that I lean on and put my trust in to clear the air in times like these.

The Cayman Islands have a tremendous amount to be thankful for. When we consider the plight of some of our neighbours, and when we look at the world in general, we do have a lot to be thankful for. When we look at situations like Montserrat, surely in spite of our differences and the problems each one of us has, and the cares and concerns that confront us, we can realise just how much Divine Providence has been taking care of us, and we must be thankful for it.

Mr. Speaker, as a depositor at First Cayman Bank, I sympathise with the other depositors at this time. Hopefully there will be some solution to the problem in the not too distant future.

There has been quite a bit said about the Budget in very eloquent terms from this side of the House, and I do not have to traverse the same ground. However, from what I see, there is a healthy revenue income. The inflows to General Revenue, that is Recurrent Revenue, is $248,150,000. That is a healthy estimate. I wish to tie that to the revenue measures put in place earlier this year. We must remember that fears about the measures stifling development have not materialised. There is no slowdown, as has been acknowledged from Members on this side of the House. The boom is sustained. Yet, to raise that kind of revenue and still have to borrow $19.5 million, simply means that we are not prioritising our projects, and the resulting expenditure is the evidence.

We know one thing about the future: globalisation will mean more intense competition. To stay ahead, the Cayman Islands will have to sharpen our competitiveness. The information technology revolution experienced around the world today will speed up the process of change itself, and it is most obvious we must keep on learning, and be quick to adapt to changes.

Twenty years ago, we had no idea that information technology would so change the way we live. Given that changes will be even more rapid and drastic in the future, what kind of world, what kind of country will we live in in ten to twenty years' time? How do we prepare this country for this unknown future? I do believe that it is our duty, as far as we can, to somehow help our people to understand the nature of what we are facing and what is before them. I believe that Members of this House are well-equipped to do that, on both sides of the House. When we do that, our people must have a goal, a goal to chase and a vision to carry this country forward.

We face a dual challenge, Mr. Speaker, in economics and social development. Programmes for a country usually need four to five years to materialise. Going for short-term benefits and missing long-term, bigger benefits will cause us to lose our strategic way. We need to look soberly into the future, weigh the strategic choices, and make the right strategic decisions. As I said earlier, this House will lead the Cayman Islands into the next millennium. It should be a future-oriented House, one with ideas, and one which will deliver. This shall be my work on this back bench in this Honourable House over the next three years, God willing.

As I said, we face a dual challenge. First is the economic challenge to maintain growth, maintain good jobs, and attract investments. We must do this to survive as a country. We live in an increasingly integrated and competitive world. We cannot foster the thought that we can be indifferent to everything or everyone around us. We must, to do well, motivate and reward risk-takers and entrepreneurs, the skilled and the more able. We must be user-friendly. We must be investor-friendly. To think that we can do without investors is to say we are prepared to allow our country to die! And this is exactly what would happen to us without continued input of foreign investment. We would die.

The mobility of investments across international borders can mean quick change in our socio-economic structure. And while we are in a boom period today, it can also turn the other way quickly, and we all know that in times of recession, where we have high unemployment, it would cause insecurity and much social turbulence.

We have good examples of this from countries around us where job insecurity and loss of confidence are straining their social fabric. When the question is asked, who are we developing for? My answer today (and always has been and will be) is: We are developing for our people. We cannot afford to chase away foreign investment because of an indifferent and selfish attitude.

As is evident by the large amount of gainful occupation licences, work permits, caused by a booming economy and a small population, we for many years will have to depend on outside labour in all sectors of our Island's economy. So too, will we always have the need for the foreign investor and their capital. It is no time to be chasing away or being unfriendly. We all must think, those of us who can, of the positives rather than the negatives.

No one wants to pay taxes or more taxes of any kind. No one wants to see increases. We have always said and maintained in recent times that there are not many areas left for us to increase. We also have to be very, very careful in trying to borrow more funds. The way we know best is to allow continued development. This has to be a balanced growth between our infrastructure and the construction in our economy. In looking at development and what we gain from it in terms of revenue, in our current situation we need to make it palatable for the foreign investor, as well as our own people, for instance, who rent residential or commercial space, or purchase their homes in our Islands.

The plan put forward by the Minister for Planning contains some positive changes, and I want to thank the Minister of Planning and those involved in it. It is that Plan, those kinds of plans, that will enable the country to move forward if applied correctly. Over the last decade, we have witnessed a significant rise in the cost of land. In both the hotel tourism and commercial sectors we have seen increases to the initial cost of the product, while there has been no addition to the quantity of storeys and the height of a building that can be constructed. Hence we have seen, for instance, a sharp increase in annual rent for both commercial and residential buildings. This increases the pressure on our young entrepreneurs who seek to start their own small business, and other people who are renting in our society.

Another hindrance to the investor, is that the cost of developing a condo or an apartment has risen due to the limitations, the number of apartments allocated to the size of a property. It certainly makes sense to increase the number of storeys of a building in any zone. I have had a little bit of feedback on the negative side about it, but I think it makes sense to increase the number of storeys of a building.

For instance, on the Seven Mile Beach corridor, the Plan says five storeys. I believe that we could go as high as seven storeys for a commercial building in George Town and other areas, and four storeys for residential apartments.

Over the course of the next year I believe that we shall experience some increase in the cost of construction. Several economic indicators acknowledge this upcoming trend. We have the badly needed implementation of the Pensions Law, and Health Insurance, which I have acknowledged will add to the budget of contractors. So it will affect the cost of their finished product. However, on the very positive side, the investor will be able to build more and hence increase the return on his investment.

The Government will derive financial benefits from this increase in building heights throughout the islands. Planning and infrastructure fees will be greater as the number of units increase. More materials imported means more duty, and stamp duty will increase as the number of apartments and condos are sold. So, in doing this we are being what I call investor friendly. It is going a long way in making him feel well received in our islands, most of all, it allows him to increase his net return on his capital investment. I believe that in doing this we can also maintain a competitive edge on our neighbouring islands and other international off shore financial centres.

Our second challenge is to maintain and improve the islands social behaviour, nurture our young, care for our aged and build better family ties. I could debate this aspect all day, perhaps even a week, but my intention is to be very brief on this Budget examination. However, I must look at a few areas in the Budget.

Close to the heart of our policy was to take good care of our old people, the elderly and the handicapped, those old people who built this country and made it what it is today; those who worked for nothing and today need Government assistance because they have no pension to lean upon. Before I left the Budget scene, there was a request to add $50 on the financial grant to our elderly. From what I can see, after I left the Budget preparation process, there seems to have been some rearranging of amounts originally put in place for certain programmes and projects, and also changes in priorities.

It was our stated intention in our campaign, in fact today, being one year ago, that we would bring the amount given to our elderly up to some $400. We also said that we would make a law to ensure that this happens, and that was given as a grant. I always thought that I had full agreement to do this. But there is, from what I can see, information I have received, a small increase of $100,000 perhaps. I do not know, perhaps when we get into Finance Committee we will be able to better tell what the position is.

You know, there are really no good reasons why in a Budget of over $248 million of revenue, and over $203 million of recurrent expenditure that increase would not be able to be put forward in 1998; especially where we have a surplus on the recurrent side of some $14 million which is, of course, going toward capital projects. We all understand that there are budgeting constraints and a worry over the economics. But, this is not some senseless or meaningless part of the Budget like building a boat ramp. This is our elderly and we must temper building parks, boat ramps or castles—material things, let us say—with compassion and responsibility to our ageing population who today do not have the earning power. Just a few months ago, we all said that we would continue our policy. I make that call again, and ask that I get some sort of response.

It is not difficult. Perhaps I do not have to remind all that it is not enough just to have handsome buildings, whether two storeys or five or seven storeys, it is not enough just to have a million tourists come to visit us, because that is where we get our money from, some of it; it is not enough to have a world class financial centre. We must be gracious, we must be caring, we must be considerate as we enter the next millennium. We have an ageing population that does not have pensions and we must continue to take care of them. We must do that.

Before I left Executive Council, there was an agreement that those who were elderly being given financial assistance would be given a card which authorises their free medical. The Minister now responsible for the Social Services Department, who actually took an interest in the matter with me, has assured me that this project will be completed. I am sure that I can depend upon him for that. We must make sure that the handicapped and elderly are given this kind of support.

I do not need to say what the country was like when the foundations were being laid. I do not need to say that there were hordes of mosquitoes here. I do not need to say that there were some who went to the Mosquito Quay Banks to fish, even in war time to help sustain the country. I think that all of us know that. Most of the time I speak with passion on this subject, but it was never done before. I trust that we will continue it and make the increase because for one, it is Government's statistics that say it takes somewhere in the $1100 bracket to maintain a small family, I think of two people. The only sustenance, the only income some of these people have—the vast majority of them—is that $200.

I see my friends the statisticians smiling. Those figures were from some time ago. I do not know how they have changed, but, certainly, the cost of living is not static. It is going up. There have also been cuts in sports. I expected that there would be cuts in capital expenditure. However, let me say that there was only just over $300,000 in expenditure for capital in 1996 from the Ministry of Sports. In fact, in the Ministry of Community Development, the money was not spent.

There is still much work to be done. Much has been said in the past about the expenditure on sports, but even though no one can deny, or dispute the local and international advancements made, because of the phased process used over the five year period that I was in Executive Council, at no time was there crippling expenditure on sports to any one budget. At no time.

The whole Cayman Islands rejoiced with Jamaica on their win. I too congratulate, and I too hail Jamaica. However, this is not just a Jamaican win. It is also a Caribbean win. I think someone said that already. What is very pertinent here is that three years ago Cayman beat Jamaica. Now the question has been posed: Where goeth Cayman's football future? I believe that Jamaica's triumph must be the catalyst, the inspiration for those involved in football here to take a long look and a serious examination of what we are about.

In 1994 Cayman beat Jamaica, and knocked them out of the Shell Cup competition. Today, they have qualified for World Cup finals in France. That is a serious turn around. They went back and examined themselves; took a long look and made changes. It showed, as my good friend is reminding me, the discipline. I believe that since we produced Whittaker, Kareem Streete, Mothersil, and others

(but they in particular are recognised in the world). Cayman has facilities comparable to most places in the world. Programmes are also in place. Now proper management and private sector support with Government and visionary planning can take us into the 21st Century. We hail Jamaica. One day I have a hope for Cayman to achieve the same dream.

Speaking on Culture, I said in my acceptance speech on 27th November that we would make the necessary changes as a priority as part of our policy so that our culture is not overshadowed by any other, so that our people are more aware of it. I believe strongly that this needs to be done because of the impacts upon us.

Some years ago, when visiting Trinidad right after Carifesta, my then Permanent Secretary (Mr. Leonard Dilbert) and I had a look at what they were doing in the communities in Trinidad. One of the things was the way they organised Carifesta, the way the young people were involved in wholesome, educational and cultural activities. On the way back I wrote the ideas for Cayfest.

The Cultural Foundation had plans to do some sort of festival. But I wanted mine to be very young-people oriented. We married the two ideas together and thus Cayfest was born. Of course, we did not have the name, that was by competition. Now with two years under its belt, Cayfest is continuing to show growth with widening interest and good input. Volunteers in most areas continue to be high. It is not an easy undertaking.

Such a festival is a complex undertaking. There are many events, come 60-odd in the festival. Next year there will be improvements. A photo competition, the idea of 'youngtion', which is the young people's day created by Cayfest which has proved so popular among the high school crowd that a second version, a junior youngtion will start next year at a separate site. Since it was being conceived to cater specifically to primary school children, the response from the principal has been very high with the Saturday afternoon.

A major refinement for 1998 is the expansion of the Cayman Brac contribution for this Cayfest which drew over some 200 people to the Aston Ruddy Centre this year. They intend to run a mini Cayfest over there using as a model many of the events originally created for Cayfest and they will have their own Cafe Cayman, their own praise, their own youngtion, photo competition and an art show. They plan also to revive the fun and games.

The Quadrille, which is dear to my heart, has really caught on in the Brac. Next year all have agreed that Cayfest will change to a different month. This is good. So, I am very enthused that this is an event that will assist us in making sure that our culture is carried to the districts in a positive manner. There was no intention to take over Pirate's Week. That is a completely different festival. This is very good, very clean and I want to thank the co-ordinator, Mr. Martin and the workers, Mr. Gary Ebanks and others for all that they have done. Probably, I am going too far into this area, as I am sure the Minister wants to mention certain things as well.

I just want to say that the 1973 festival was not the same thing as Cayfest. It was completely different.

Mr. Speaker, I see where the housing vote has been cut. . .

The Speaker: Honourable Member, since you are going into a new subject, I wonder if we can pause here for the luncheon break?

Mr. W. McKeever Bush : Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: We shall suspend proceedings until 2.30 PM.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.50 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.59 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Continuation of debate on the Appropriation Bill. The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush : Thank you, Mr. Speaker. When we took the break for lunch, I was going on to deal with the vote for housing assistance, which from what I can see has been cut. That vote was for the needy, the handicapped, and the aged, to make repairs to their homes and for other persons when they have an emergency and fall into need. Repairs such as repairing roofs, and other such general repairs.

Now, Sir, with an ageing population, and the housing stock for that age bracket getting older, and the need of repairs each year, and with the changes in the atmospheric conditions, as have taken place in recent times, where we have had such severe rains and floods, there have been quite a few roofs needing repair throughout the Islands. As I said, this stock of housing in that particular age group is getting much older. This is no time, Mr. Speaker, to cut the vote, and from what I see, unless something else has been done with it, it is a drastic cut. Again I say that there are other areas which could better take a reduction.

The worst mistake we can make in this House as legislators and policy makers, or in the Glass House, is to believe that we know it all about the circumstances of others. Let me say, and I am sure that many of us are aware, if not all of us, that there are a lot of people hurting out there for many different reasons. A lot of people are hurting. A lot of our elderly are in need of assistance in different areas. We cannot just be a judge on situations existing by looking at material in front of us on paper. We all have to feel the feelings and we all have to walk the walk. I say no more.

I paid tribute to my staff in the Ministry and I want to take time out here to pay thanks to Mr. Charles Branch and his staff. Here is a good man. And you know what? We often talk about foreign staff, but here is a good man who is not Caymanian, but thinks and does a lot in his own way for Caymanians. He is very conscientious, and his staff are the same, and they too have the programmes and children's interests at heart. I also want to include Mrs. Lookloy and Mrs. Jen Dixon, Director and Deputy Director of Social Services, and their staff, for all their hard work. I had more dealings with the two of them because they were on the management level. They took a special interest in the policies of the Government, and did their best to have them carried out.

The family study was ready to be tabled at this meeting. I look forward to the public feedback and involvement in the carrying out of the recommendations, and of course the tabling of those recommendations.

There is a new Minister, Mrs. O'Connor, and — Mrs. O'Connor-Connolly, I had better get that right! — but she is more specially known to us as Julie. But the Honourable Minister, Mr. Speaker, having just taken up the post, I must say that I am pleased she is there, and will do what I can to assist her. I believe she, as I said earlier, is one of those that feels the feelings, and can walk the walk, and I am going to say to her that that is what I am expecting. I will do all I can to help her.

The Governor has embarked on reinvention of Government, which is actually trying to modernise the process of Government, to make more efficient the way Government is doing business. I look forward to positive results from this exercise in the future, as I support what the Governor and his team is trying to accomplish. It is time that we find new ways, be innovative in the way we conduct business in Government. This is a good start, and I believe it has a lot of support. But it means involvement of everyone, and I trust that soon the general public will be brought up to date in what is actually taking place.

Before I close, I want to talk a little bit about the District of West Bay. There are many areas and much to be done and that can be done, and as a representative, I will be undertaking several projects, hopefully in each year, that are workable and attainable. In the next year we propose to do a District gym. When I say we, that is myself as a representative, the Community Development Action Committee (CODAC) there in West Bay, the Scholars Football Club. Mr. Cline Glidden Jr., the young man who is president of the CODAC has a good team with him, and they are very enthused about doing a District gym.

West Bay has some 8,000 people, and today there is no doubt that people are health-conscious, and we need to encourage good health by regular exercise. We are taking this on as a community project. We will be using the old Republic supermarket, some of that building, and hopefully get started next year.

Before I left, Mr. Speaker, Executive Council had plans to develop the old District Clinic into a Seaman's Hall. Also, we intend to do this as a community project with some assistance from Government, because some funds are in place to develop or renovate the District Clinic.

The main project I would like to see carried out by Government in my district is the new Primary School, and the John Cumber Primary School Hall. I know that everybody is clamouring for their share of the Budget. The pie is smaller, but this is a priority, this is urgently needed. I know the Minister knows that, and all we have to do is give him sufficient funds, and he will carry it out.

John Cumber Primary School, Mr. Speaker, has well over 400 children. It is bursting at its seams. On a visit there just a couple of weeks ago with the Minister, they made us aware of what they have to contend with. This is not something, Mr. Speaker, that can be put off. This is one of those projects—Education—that must get the funds it needs to finish the project. This is not something that can wait. This is our children's future. As I said, I know that if we give the Minister the money, the job will be done.

The Primary School there, Mr. Speaker, is a good school. I want to salute the contribution the school has made to the well-being of our community over the past 30 years or so, building on a foundation that was already established, of course. I certainly know that my children benefited from their time at John Cumber Primary School, as I did from my time at the Town Hall School. It is true to say today, as it was some 30 years ago, when I attended, that this school has a wonderful atmosphere of family about it. The relationship between the teachers is very good, and their efforts to involve and encourage parents are exemplary.

This adds immeasurably to the environment for learning, and I am sure makes it possible for the children to do so whether in academic study, extracurricular activities, the Festival of the Arts, or in sports — whatever! I must congratulate the teachers. We have to pay special homage to the teachers in this country, because sometimes the only home some children know is the schoolroom. The only special attention they get is that of the teacher. I am not one of those to criticise teachers. They have a very strong PTA, and I congratulate and encourage those parents who are involved with the children and supporting the school. So I ask that serious consideration be given to starting the building of the new school, and the Hall.

We are not a dead country. As I said some two weeks ago, we are dependent on the outside world, and we must start medium- and long-term plans and strategies. We are being monitored. We therefore have to focus on remaining competitive. We also must continue to monitor developments in the national economy.

I believe, taking all things into consideration, even when there are things we disagree with, Cayman can expect to continue to enjoy good growth, if we focus our efforts on staying competitive, prioritising local policies and projects, and remaining responsive to the external environment.

I believe, as I said that night, I say again, I believe that while the future is not guaranteed, it can be bright. My vision, Mr. Speaker, for the Cayman Islands in the 21st century, is for us to be a home for our people, a home where we feel comfortable with ourselves, where we look after one another, where everyone makes the country succeed, does their part.

My vision for these Islands is not a house of blocks and cement, but our home, OUR HOME, with hearts and dreams, people who feel confident and secure, people who believe in the Cayman Islands and its future. Let us all work together to make these Islands our best home for all of us. As for me, Mr. Speaker, "The woods are lonely, dark and deep, but I have promises to keep and miles to go before I sleep, miles to go before I sleep." Thank you, Mr. Speaker, and I wish you and your family the very best — and Members — this upcoming holiday season.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Miss Heather D. Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I rise to offer my contribution to the 1998 Budget Address delivered by the Honourable George McCarthy, Financial Secretary.

I must begin by saying that I am pleased in general with the way this Address has gone. While there have been some points raised in dispute of the Budget, I am comfortable that most concerns have been answered. In my opinion, this situation speaks well for the 1998 Budget, and I am therefore pleased to say to the people of my district, as well as the people of these Islands, that I support the Budget wholeheartedly. The outlook for 1998 is very positive.

Mr. Speaker, I am especially pleased to see that the Government of these Islands is continuing to provide a foundation that is most superior in comparison to other countries in the region, and one that is on par with many countries world-wide.

I also echo the Hon. Truman Bodden's sentiments about making and maintaining a professionalism during this debate. It is easy to comply with this standard when you have the confidence that Government is leading us in the right direction. First and foremost, I would like to offer my support for the amount of money budgeted for education. To reiterate, the Budget for 1998 has allocated 15% towards educating the people of these Islands. There is no way anyone can argue with this expenditure, particularly knowing that we all want our people to have the opportunity to grow into the positions now enjoyed by those from other countries. There is only one way to accomplish this, and that is by education.

It is also very pleasing to know that Government is investing more money in their people than any other developed country known. The payoff is evident, according to the results of the external exams, which were the highest ever achieved. I support the building of new primary schools in George Town, West Bay, and the high schools in Grand Cayman and Cayman Brac. Crowded schools make it very difficult for children to get the proper attention. I also fully support the allocation of $100,000 for the insulation and air conditioning of all Government schools. This should have happened many years ago, and I am thankful now that all children will soon be able to learn in comfort.

I support the plans for the Lighthouse School. These children need every opportunity made available to help them become productive members of our society. The Lighthouse School students have special needs, such as equipment, space location, and attention, and it is definitely time that they receive what they deserve. Some people may feel that $1 million is a lot of money. However, unless you have lived with the difficulties some families face, you cannot possibly know how much they need our help.

On a positive note, I would like to take the opportunity to say how proud I am to be associated with the Honourable Anthony Eden. I am especially proud . . .

The Speaker: Could I just ask the Honourable Member to refer to them by their Ministry or as Members from certain Districts?

Miss Heather D. Bodden: Thank you, Sir, I most certainly will. On a positive note, I would like to take the opportunity to say how proud I am to be associated with the Honourable Minister responsible for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse and Rehabilitation. I am especially proud since he comes from my district. He has served as an invaluable role model for me, and it pleases me to hear all the positive comments that are being made about him, not only here in this Honourable House, but also on the street.

I support the decision to finish the job the Minister has started with the District Health Clinics. Four districts in Cayman now enjoy accessible health care, and George Town will be coming on line soon with the new Hospital. These new clinics will take the pressure off the present facilities, which is needed to fulfil the long-term plan for the Hospital.

I must also say that I am personally looking forward to the completion of the Hospital project, knowing what the Minister has planned for us. Soon we will enjoy the same health care as those who live abroad, and I might add that it will be in the comfort of our own home.

Needless to say, it becomes a very expensive undertaking when you must travel abroad to receive certain types of medical assistance, not to mention the discomfort of those who must travel when they are ill. Anyone who has had to go through this experience will support the Minister's efforts wholeheartedly.

At this point I would like to address the Drug Rehabilitation Centre in Breakers. I know this project has not come easily for the Minister, but I applaud his persistence. I recognise the need for help in this area, as we are not seeing any decline in drug abuse on these Islands. The Police Service is doing everything it can to intervene in drug trafficking, but those persons who abuse are ill, and need assistance. $300,000 is not that much money when you think of the lives that can be turned around as a result.

As for the portion of the Budget allocated to my district, I can only say how pleased I am for my people. Much has been accomplished, and we are moving forward at a rapid pace to bring them everything they need, want and deserve. First, let me offer my sincere thanks for the hard work being done by Public Works. There has been much improvement in our roads so far, and I am thrilled to report that there is much more to come. Constituents who have called and asked for roads to be repaired recently will hopefully see these repairs in 1998. I therefore support 100% the $300,000 allocated to continue the programme of upgrading existing roads with spray and chip products.

I also fully support the road works programme providing hot mix for resurfacing over the next three years. With the rapid rate of development in our District and elsewhere, all of our roads are taking a beating, and we need to be mindful of this going forward as we continue to debate our capital expenditures.

Naturally, I am very pleased with the allocation of funds to complete the Bodden Town playing field. The completion of the field is very important for the children of my district. Soon, with God's help, they will have a place that will accommodate all the sporting activities we presently enjoy playing. Comfortable seating will be provided in a place the parents can go to observe their children and support their children in comfort.

To date, the underground irrigation is complete and topsoil is being spread. Once the soil has been completed, the grass seed will be planted. Hopefully in the first quarter of 1998, the field will be ready for bleachers and hard courts and other equipment. This is clearly one of the best ways to keep our young people off the streets, and to keep them moving in a positive direction.

I am also very thankful that funds are being provided for a Senior Citizens' Home. Now, and hopefully in the near future, families can rest assured that the elderly, incapable of taking care of themselves, will soon receive the attention that is needed at that age, such as proper medical supervision, as well as diet and nutrition.

Lastly, the people of our district will soon have the library they have been asking for. Again, this is another healthy way to keep our children off the streets.

Finally, Mr. Speaker, although I support the request of the Honourable Minister for Aviation, Planning and Education, to keep this debate positive and professional, I am left with no choice but to respond to the Third Elected Member's comments regarding the keys to the Bodden Town Civic Centre and the MLA office.

The reason I am responding is not to dignify his ridiculous accusations of being locked out by the National Team, but because he has stated that his constituents will now have to travel to an office in George Town to be heard. This is not fair to them, particularly when they have a nice facility located right in their own neighbourhood.

Finally, Mr. Speaker, I question the comments of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, that what comes around, goes around, and that he knows how to play hardball too. I look forward to his explanation.

Mr. Speaker, in closing, I would like to thank the Financial Secretary and his capable staff, who have spent many long hours preparing this document. And I too look forward to the positive results these monies will bring to our people. Thank you.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I could not run the risk of losing my chance to speak. I know the Ministers on the other side are 'champing at the bit' to speak, but they will get up after me.

First of all, let me congratulate the Third Official Member, the Honourable Financial Secretary for his Budget Address and for the contents of his speech. I was looking back over some of my contributions to the Budget over the past nine years I have been here, and I have preached from day one the importance of us as a country living within our financial means. My first address was delivered, I think, in February 1989, and that is the theme that was put forward from then.

I am a firm believer that that has been one of the key ingredients to our continued financial success. The unfortunate position that the National Team Government found itself in when it took over some five years ago, that there were so many services, facilities and programmes that were needed in this country, that it was almost an urgency to ensure that our people were provided with some of these facilities, programmes and services. But you know, back in 1993, I remember after we took over the Government, which at that time was virtually broke, we made a conscious decision, and that was this: We do not have any money to spend this year. We believe we have to provide the country with an opportunity to catch its breath and give the finances time to recover before we embarked on any massive or aggressive capital spending programmes. I saluted that approach, and I believe as a result we enjoy the position we do at the present time, as far as the financial position of Government.

The fortunate position we are in at the present time, is that if we went to Government bankers right now and said, We need $30 million, they would ask you, When? Because I believe that over the past five years, Government, headed by the Third Official Member who is in charge of finance, has demonstrated that it is responsible. They have a concern with regard to public spending. And we have put our financial house in order. The temptation there, Mr. Speaker, because credit is so easily available, it is very difficult for you to sit back and say, You know something, we need a new hospital, we need new sporting facilities, we need a new Lighthouse School, we need to complete the Pedro Castle project, we need so many different things. Why not go and borrow it? why not go and borrow it, rather than continuing on the approach we have taken over the years, that is, let us take our time, let us do it according to our ability, in-house, to finance some of these projects.

I do not believe that anyone can accuse the National Team Government of not spending money on capital projects. I think we have the facilities and evidence there that the money was well spent. But what I am concerned about as an individual, and as a representative of the people, is that we continue to adhere to that discipline that is necessary in order to ensure that we have and enjoy continued financial independence in this country.

I personally am very concerned that the present Budget we are now debating, the 1998 Budget, according to my calculations, Mr. Speaker, something like 98% of the Budget, revenue that is, is going towards paying civil service pensions, salaries and other benefits. And we have about $4 million to contribute towards our capital projects.

Now if you are in business on a personal basis, you and I both know that you cannot survive on a percentage of 95% just going to salaries and benefits and other related services. If it is 50%, Mr. Speaker, it is reasonable, because you have money available then to take care of the other services you want to provide.

I think one of the difficulties we have is that Government has adopted the position, and not necessarily this Government, Mr. Speaker. This has been the position down through the years, in that Government attempts to provide all services to everyone, rather than saying, Why not look at encouraging the private sector to offer this service, rather than Government taking it upon itself to do it?

The concern I have right now is that unless we find some new sources of revenue — and I have heard a few recommendations which I would not support — we need to really watch very carefully our expenditure. I want to congratulate the Minister for Health for his foresight and ambitions with regard to providing this country with first class medical facilities. That is, not only on a central basis, but also at the District level. I was very pleased to attend two official openings recently, one in East End, and the long-awaited one in my own District in West Bay, of our new health facility. It is first class, second to none, and it is deeply appreciated by our people.

But we have been talking about that — I know I have been talking about it — since I was elected in 1988. So it took us eight or nine years to get it! But we have it! This is what I am concerned about. It appears that we recognise we need all these services and facilities, and we want it tomorrow, rather than saying, Let us make sure that we finish the Hospital. That is some time next year, September or October next year, we will have a brand spanking new Hospital, which we can be proud of. But after that, it creates a little space for some of the other projects we need in our District, and on a national level.

The other thing I think is a priority . . .

The Speaker: Would this be a convenient time, if you are going to a new subject, to take the afternoon break?

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Yes, Sir.

The Speaker: We shall suspend for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.43 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.10 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Debate continues. The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Mr. Speaker, prior to taking the suspension, I was dealing with some of the demands that have been placed on the present Government to provide programmes, facilities and services. I made a note of a couple of those demands, Mr. Speaker: national health insurance, national pension plan — are some of the issues that we as a Government have been faced with. We now have these two programmes at the level where we are able, I think, in terms of implementation of these plans — I still believe that we need to provide a little more consideration to the pension plan before we actually put that into operation, but I am quite sure that those responsible will address these issues.

The other problem we are faced with is the idea of providing a proper pension plan, a vested pension plan, for our civil servants. An actuarial study was done and it was determined that it is several million dollars. What the Government has been attempting to do is move along with regard to vesting these pensions as quickly as possible. That also creates a demand for additional funds for budget purposes. I believe that this is a step in the right direction. The only thing I would caution is that we try to do it over a reasonable timeframe, because of the numbers involved.

I am not sure how long Government or the civil service has been around, but we have been here quite a while, and we have never failed to provide for those civil servants who have made a contribution and qualified for a pension. So I think we need to move along with it, but move along with it at a pace that we can accommodate, taking into consideration our limited resources available.

I mention also the temptation of borrowing. That is, should I say a good temptation to have available, because when we took over in 1992, that was not the case. The previous Government did not enjoy that privilege because no bank in the country would lend them the money they needed. For example, I remember that we had passed in this Legislative Assembly a loan bill authorising Government to borrow some US$20 million to assist Cayman Airways. The 1988-1992 Government was unable to get those funds, because no bank would loan them those funds.

As I mentioned, we are in a dilemma, in that we recognise that these services and facilities have to be provided. All I am asking and all I am recommending is that we move ahead and move along in providing these services, programmes and facilities at a pace that can be accommodated by our limited revenue resources.

The Hospital was a major commitment as far as this Government is concerned, but it is a project that has the full support of the people of this country. The Minister responsible has been very honest with regard to telling people exactly how much it was going to cost, and the people have basically said, 'Go ahead, provide the facility. We are prepared to support it.' Because of that we went ahead and embarked on a massive construction programme to provide a first class hospital facility in this country.

The approach I have appreciated with regard to the present Minister for Health is that he has allowed his support staff an opportunity to provide their input for this facility. He has allowed input from the representatives of the people, and on a number of occasions, we have been invited to go along to tour the site and the project, to see for ourselves that progress is being made with regard to its completion.

I also believe that because of his approach to the job, he empowers the people. That is, he allows them to make decisions on their own after consulting with him. Not only that, he is also prepared to give others credit for what they do. So I am looking forward to the completion of the new Hospital. In this year's Budget there is a substantial provision for the completion of the Hospital, for the equipping of the Hospital, and for the staffing of the Hospital.

The only caution I would throw out is that the people of this country, like any other country, have to recognise that once that facility has been completed, those who can afford to pay must pay. Because I do not know what the percentage is now with regard to the subsidy for health care in this country, but it is substantial. And I believe that we cannot continue as a country to subsidise health care or any other programme to the extent we are presently doing.

So we will continue to ensure that those people who cannot afford it will not be denied or deprived of the health care services they need. But the mentality has to change that because Government is providing it, it has to be free of cost. The average Caymanian who goes to a private practitioner has no problem regardless of how poor they are, in saying, You know, it is going to cost me $100 and I am prepared to pay the $100 for that service. That is the approach we need to take with regard to the new Hospital.

I was invited, probably about two weeks ago, to a briefing on the reinvention of Government exercise. I was proud of the fact that the health care providers were put up as examples of how this process will work. They did a good job with regard to improving the services, the attitude, and the time it takes to provide those services to the general public. One of the things I was very pleased with was to learn that the dental facilities are in a position where they are basically taking care of their own expenditure. It speaks well, Mr. Speaker, for that Minister and his support team.

So that is a priority as far as capital expenditure is concerned, that is the new Hospital, and we should be in a position where we say, We need to provide for this, make sure the funds are there to complete the contract. Because once it is completed, other than with regard to the recurrent expenditure side of it, we for a long time will not be in a position where we have to provide any additional health care facilities in this country.

In the last election, that is the 1996 election, one of the big issues was the funding, I guess you would call it, for the facility for the Lighthouse School. I remember telling the Minister at the time that this, I believe, is a project that has the support of the community and that a few people who appeared on television should not have detracted from that particular mission, of providing that service. Even some of the Members from his district made it a political issue on their platform. But we must recognise how fortunate we are in this country, that is to enjoy good health. But there are some people among us, there are others among us who are not so fortunate, and we must ensure that they are properly taken care of. I am aware that in this year's Budget there is a provision for the purchase of the property and for providing that facility that is so badly needed because of the overcrowded situation presently at the Lighthouse School. I applaud the Minister of Education for taking the bold step and moving forward with that very needed project.

I was a part of the Budget process, and I made my input and my contributions. For the 1997 Budget, I supported the things that were put forward as far as revenue measures, and I also supported the borrowings put forward in order to fund the 1997 Budget. In 1997, according to the information I have available, we found it necessary to borrow $23.8 million as part of the funding required for the 1997 Budget. Like I said, it has always been my philosophy that we have to be very cautious with regard to public borrowing. You can justify anything, Mr. Speaker. That is the position I take. You can justify anything. But the concern I have is that we are very prudent and very disciplined with regard to our external financial commitments. Because I would hate for us to be in a position where many of our Caribbean neighbours find themselves, where the IMF [International Monetary Fund] comes in and dictates to you what goes on in your country. They will tell you, Mr. Speaker, You cut the civil service by 15%. You do this, you do that, as part of the financial measures required in keeping with your loan commitment we have made to you.

I personally am very concerned that for the 1998 Budget we have had to come forward again to borrow over $19 million. According to my information, at the end of 1998, public debt will be in the region of $100 million. Now I do not know whose attention that gets, but it gets my attention. According to a statistic I saw recently, and this was with respect to the year 1996, public debt — and I do not have the current statistics — amounted to something like 11% of our gross domestic product, our output in this country.

When you do not have a tax base like many of the other developed countries have, where they can continue to raise the percentage on personal income tax, real estate tax, and all the other taxes they have available as part of their society, you have to be very careful. Like you, Mr. Speaker, I am a churchgoer and a believer. I recall the story of a Pharaoh who had a dream that greatly disturbed him. He called his magicians and his astrologers in and said, "I want you to interpret this dream." He finally was put in contact with Joseph.

Joseph said, "Your Majesty, here is what your dream means. There will be seven years of plenty." The King smiled. "That sounds good, makes me look good." But Joseph said, "During the seven years of plenty, ensure that you plant, you reap and you store. Because after the seven years of plenty, we will have seven years of famine." Mr. Speaker, after he told the Pharaoh that, the Pharaoh said, "Joseph, you are in charge to ensure that exactly what you told me happens."

We all know the moral of that story, that we put aside in good times for the hard times that will eventually come. That is all I am saying, as far as this Government is concerned. Let us be cautious. And I think we have been very blessed in this country over the last five years because we have enjoyed unprecedented success in this country economically.

Mr. Speaker, I am going to move on to another subject, and I notice it is 4.30.

The Speaker: I would accept a motion for the adjournment.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. Question No. 182 is standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION NO. 182

No. 182: Mr. Linford A. Pierson asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works to state what plans are being considered to address the traffic problems at the four-way junction at Thomas Russell Road and Bobby Thompson Way.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: The Public Works Department will install a traffic signal at the intersection in early 1998. Equipment for the signal is currently on order. The proposed intersection improvements have already been gazetted.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I am very happy to learn that this action will be taken in this area and I am sure that it will assist the problems at the airport junction. I wonder if the Honourable Minister can say if any studies have been done as to what improvement we can expect in that area?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: It is my understanding that with the additional lights being in place at Thomas Russell Way and the proper improvements at the intersection by the Farmers' Market and the adjustments to the lights by Graham's Esso, that the intersection at the airport should flow more easily than it is now.

I am aware that there have been back-ups caused by that junction and no doubt everyone knows that since the road was put in, in somewhat of a hurry, it has been working fairly well with certain adjustments. But the situation has been monitored continuously.

As I said, we have made certain adjustments, especially the junction by Kirk Motors and the Airport. We are constantly monitoring the one by the junction of Smith Road going east. Hopefully, with these other lights and the adjustments we will make, this will flow much better.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I wonder if the Honourable Minister is also able to say if any study has been done on the junction of South Sound and Red Bay Road?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: I trust it is the junction where we branch off to go to Lions Centre and down to Old South Sound?

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: No, Mr. Speaker, the junction further up by the end of South Sound Road that goes into the Red Bay Road to Bodden Town.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Again, as part of the plan for the eastern districts, we are hoping to do the Crewe Road By-pass. I think that about two years ago we did an additional lane on the road which runs up to Red Bay Plaza. This has been working fairly well, however, it has never been done to standard because we had to do it within the [budget] we had to work with. We are looking at that area and also we are looking at the area on Spotts straight. We are hoping to make an additional lane there. Hopefully that will alleviate the problem, and persons coming down in the morning will be able to branch off earlier going into South Sound and not have to come back and go through the Prospect area.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: To revert to the substantive question, is the Minister in a position to say what is being done at the junction of Thomas Russell Road and Bobby Thompson Way while we are waiting on the erection of the traffic signal?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: We have tried our best to adjust things there. We have put in an additional side lane for the motorists travelling east. I guess we could call that a second lane in that area. I think the problem now remains with the Bobby Thompson Way and the alignment of it. We are hoping that with the adjustments I have mentioned we will be able to align the road better and have a completely different flow of traffic. Right now, for example, if you are coming from Bobby Thompson Way you cannot flow too easily onto Thomas Russell Way. So this will alleviate the problem there presently.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: I realise that this is not the Minister's responsibility, but I raise the matter in hope that the Member responsible will take it with the seriousness it deserves. I notice that very often the presence of a police officer directing traffic alleviates the possibility of accidents. I have made the request of the traffic department several times, myself, and I admit that a couple of times they responded. My question now is: Is it possible in the interim to get a police officer during the peak hours consistently to supervise and direct traffic at this very busy intersection until we get this traffic signal?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Sometimes, when we see the police on the road, I get complaints that they are holding up traffic. But I am glad that the Member raised this question because this request has come in and has been made to the police. We will definitely have someone there to do that.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Minister say if it is because of the alignment problems with that intersection that a four-way stop system has not been implemented?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: I would have to say that that road has never really been aligned. One would realise that Bobby Thompson Way was constructed at one stage as, I would say, a single entry out there. The other roads have constantly been worked with. So the system we are trying to put in place now will align the four areas together, hopefully giving a better flow. The reason the four-way stop was not considered was exactly that—it was never aligned properly.

We found that even the way we have actually widened Bobby Thompson Way created some problems. As a matter of fact, I played police officer in that area this morning because I saw a school teacher overtaking where he should not have, on the left side. I had to stop (he could not go any further) and say to him that he was doing something contrary to the Law. So this is the reason, we need to have it properly aligned and get it all flowing properly. Once we have the lights, I believe this will alleviate the problem.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Minister say if whatever land needs to be acquired has been, and if everything is all right with the landowner involved?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: I mentioned that the intersection had been gazetted. Once that corridor is gazetted then we have sufficient property to do the intersection.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Could the Minister state if funds are available in this Budget for whatever expenditure is necessary for the equipment, which I understand will arrive early in 1998?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Contrary to what I guess people think of the Public Works Department, it is my understanding that because of their good works, we were able to save funds on the Harquail Bypass and we will be able to utilise some of those funds for this intersection.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Unless I am misunderstanding, if funds are left over at the end of the year, they go back into the general pool. I wonder if the Minister could explain how this is going to happen in 1998?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: There is no problem with that. I said in my answer to the substantive question that Public Works will install traffic signals at the intersection in early 1998. I did not state that we were going to take funds from this year's Budget into 1998.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: The Honourable Minister stated that funds were saved on the work being done at the Harquail Bypass. My understanding of that answer is that was for the year 1997. If that is the case, I still ask the same question.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: I do not know how else to answer the question because, like I said awhile ago, the lights will be installed in 1998. What I am saying is that there will be a savings from the Harquail Bypass as the Member knows that road will hopefully be done (weather permitting) at the end of December. So I am saying that there has been a savings on that. It is my understanding from the Public Works Department that we will utilise those funds for the lights we have ordered. Or, I should say, some of the funds.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Perhaps the Minister wants to add something to that answer before I ask my supplementary?

Hon. John B. McLean: No, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Is the Minister then saying that the works to be carried out at that intersection will be paid for during the 1997 year?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: We were talking about the installation of traffic signals. I have tried to explain to the Member that I understand there is a savings from the Harquail Bypass and we are going to try to put those traffic signals in there to put the intersection in order. I do not know what else I can say on that. If there is a savings from the Harquail Bypass it is recommended that we utilise some of those funds for the traffic signals. If it is from the 1997, as he well knows, we would have to utilise those funds this year, not in 1998.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I well know what the Minister just answered so I will ask him then, will the equipment be paid for in 1997?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: It is my understanding that when equipment is ordered such as this, we actually pay for it. That is what I was trying to get across to the Member. If we are going to utilise some of the funds, which are savings from the Harquail Bypass out of the 1997 Budget, we will have to have the lights installed in 1998.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Just for clarity, the Minister is then saying to me that the equipment ordered for this intersection is paid for?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: I do not have anymore to say on this. I think I have made the point, and I think the Member honestly understands what I am saying. If there is anything further on that, I would have to bring somebody from Public Works to say when it was done. . . I do not have that information here.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I am only seeking to fully understand so I hope the Minister does not misunderstand my intentions. I will go through it in the sequence of his answers. The Minister stated that the lights to be installed in early 1998 at the intersection of Bobby Thompson Way and Smith Road/Thomas Russell Way have been ordered. The Minister has stated that when such equipment is ordered they have to be paid for. My understanding from that is when you order it you pay for it when you order. If this is the case, I am simply asking the Minister if what he has said directly means that the equipment has been ordered and paid for. That is all I am asking the Minister to say.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries?
The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, with the greatest of respect, while the Minister has stated that he has no more to say, I do not feel that is an unfair question and I think it should be answered.

The Speaker: Will you turn it into a question then? You have made a statement.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, with the greatest of respect I have asked the question: if the Minister would say if the equipment has been paid for.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Mr. Speaker, I have said as much as I am going to say on this question. I think that if we listen to both sides of this you will understand that I have given the answer.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries the next question is No. 183, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 183

No. 183: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works if the Public Works Department has any record of any road works that have been paid for and have not been completed by private contractor(s).

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: The Public Works Department does not have record of any private road works which have been paid for, but not carried out by private contractors. Payments to private contractors are not made prior to road works being carried out. Contractors submit requests for payments following completion of works and the Public Works Department supervising officer for the contract certifies the completion of the works prior to issuance of a payment certificate for the contractor.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Before I go into the supplementaries, I just wish the Honourable Minister to understand that my line of questioning is not to get at him, but simply to get information. The substantive answer contains one part which says, "Payments to private contractors are not made prior to road works being carried out." Can the Minister state if when it gets close to the end of the financial year and road works are being carried out, that with all good intention some payments may be made before these road works are completed simply to use the funds up before the year ends?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: The most I can say on that is that I know for sure that it is not a procedure that the Finance Department agrees to and I cannot say of any case where this has been done. If it has, I would say that somebody must have been out of order because it is not something that I would be directly involved with. It would have to be done in the department, and I hope that nothing like this has happened.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Would the Minister then just give an undertaking to investigate if anything like that has happened? He can perhaps then give the answer in writing.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: As I mentioned a while ago, if something like this has happened, it would not be my Ministry to actually do the investigation. Under the Public Finance and Audit Law it would be contrary to what has to be done. Along with me bringing it to the attention of my department, I trust that the Financial Secretary has taken note and that through his Portfolio we will also have an investigation there.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I take the Minister's point and I will use the regular channels to ask a substantive question at a later date to the people directly involved.

Getting back to the original question, would the Minister explain if, when Public Works contracts road work out to these private contractors, Public Works has the latitude when doing payments to charge payment for certain jobs to other job and be able to do so internally?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Again, I think I am trying to answer a question that is more with finance. It is my understanding that certain things which are authorised by the Chief Engineer can be done. It is my understanding that things like virements can be done, especially at the end of the year when they are trying to do a clean-up in the Budget. Not necessarily the Budget but with Government's finances. This is the only thing I can think about and if the Member has something different, again, I would be happy to have it investigated.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries the next question is No. 184 is standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 184

No. 184: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning how many persons have enrolled in the Cayman Islands' Training Initiative.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Six persons enrolled in the Cayman Islands' Training Initiative programme to undertake hospitality studies and of those six, one withdrew.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister provide the House with an update on the progress of these students up to this point?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I understand. . . well, as I mentioned one withdrew and a second one has withdrawn for medical reasons.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Would the Minister be in a position to explain how individuals are processed and accepted into the Cayman Islands Training Initiative, and if there is any specific time during the year this can be done, and times it cannot be done?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The acceptance of students is in September, this is the first year, as the Member would appreciate, and it will be again in February. I understand the process. . . and I need to just mention here that this is something that has only come to my Ministry a few days ago, but I understand that under this programme they apply to the Community College and once they are accepted it then goes to the Ministry of Community Affairs. They then approved the initiative.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: In the Minister's answer he said that the two times a year these potential students are processed is September and February. Could the Minister explain if this has to do with the semesters or if it is an arbitrary time that has been decided upon?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I understand that the programme is structured on the basis of two half-years, so there is entry at the beginning of each half-year. So it is the English system of division rather than the semester—the US division.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. It has been my experience, Mr. Speaker, and I accept that this is a new programme for all concerned, but it has been my experience that there are many individuals, either through ignorance, or simply not being made aware of this programme, who have found out about this training initiative since the month of September. The fact that there are only four people there now, as I understand what the Minister answered, would that in any way allow for the latitude of possibly the Community College accepting other students before the month of February, because I am sure four students really do not take that much to deal with.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, even though we only have four from this programme, they are in a larger class with other students. That is the first part.

The second thing is, I am instructed, Mr. Speaker, that promotional campaigns including district visits were under way in May and continued until September when the classes began. I have the principal of the College here, and as I think we all know, they need to begin when the course starts. To try to bring them in the middle, I do not think is to their benefit or ours, because it is a course that will go on over a full year. However, I am naturally sympathetic to them, and naturally anything we can do to assist, I am sure the College will do.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I recall that at the inception of this programme there was an absence of any participation by the Ministry of Tourism, Ministry or Department of Tourism. My question is, Has this Department been involved recently? And if not, why?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, apparently the College and the other Ministry have been holding meetings with the Tourism Ministry, and a new programme will be starting this coming year. That sort of covers it.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you. Mr. Speaker, permit me to say that I am not trying to give this any political stance, Sir. It is a programme which I deem very important, and the principal of the Community College as well as the Minister for Education will realise that I am really serious.

My question now is, What can we, in our capacity as Members of the Legislative Assembly, do to help with the promotion of this programme and public relations, so that this programme can get the response that I am certain it needs, seeing that in our daily movements in the society, we meet people who can benefit from this kind of exposure and experience? I would request of the Honourable Minister, if he does not have the information at hand, to please feel free to contact us with anything we might do. I ask this question in all sincerity — anything we might do to help with this programme, because there is a dire need for this as well as a dire need to help our young people.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, what we can do is to make the packets of information available to all Members. That is the first thing. I think then Honourable Members, as they meet people, would be in a position to know fully what is being offered, and if they could then assist in promoting it.

Let me just say, Mr. Speaker, that sometimes I must tell you, I get a bit disheartened as well because we have courses there and many times, our people do not really take advantage of them. Not just this one, I am talking about generally, Sir. I know, especially on the technical side, this Honourable House has had a lot of interest in it. We have pushed it, and I think many of the employers have assisted. I know from some of the private institutions, they will pay for their tuition, they will release them.

But sometimes, if Caymanians can move up the ladder, because we are in an over-employment stage, without having to exert a very large amount of energy to do so, sometimes people take that course and really do not take as much advantage of these initiatives.

So I am very happy that the Honourable Member has raised this, because I think there is a duty on all of us to encourage these people, our people, especially the young ones, to take advantage of what has to be one of the most beneficial and heavily subsidised training and education programmes anywhere in the world, Sir.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Just to let the Minister know that I echo the sentiments of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town. Could the Minister explain, as he mentioned earlier in one of his answers, that there are meetings going on between the principal of the Community College and the Ministry of Tourism. Was that correct?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: It was not with the Minister, let me point out, but . . .

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: The Ministry. . .

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: . . .with the staff within the Ministry, I understand.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Could the Honourable Minister explain what role it is intended for the Ministry of Tourism to play in this initiative?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I can only say I hope that we will both play a very active role. It is within an area that is directly the responsibility of the Minister of Tourism, and naturally, anything that Honourable Minister says to me, basically, will carry the heaviest weight anything can. Basically I will carry out whatever he feels is good for the tourism industry to the best of our ability.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Again, to the Minister, and I know it is a bit repetitious but this is something that is near and dear to many of us, so this line of questioning has nothing to do with anything else. I am just letting you know. So having understood that and my asking the question about the Ministry, the reason I ask the question is because I think it is important for us to understand that there are so many people out there who can really reap the benefits of this initiative, once it is exposed to them. I would ask the Honourable Minister, seeing as the next recruitment time for this initiative is in February, if he could, through whatever channels have to be used, organise a more embellished way of advising the public as to what was done initially. I will give an example so he will understand why I am asking the question. I know that in George Town, when the people went around in the various districts, I know when they came to George Town, no one showed up. On many occasions, while you think your job is done by doing what you do, you have to go the extra two miles to get to people. So I am asking the Minister, in order to get the initiative really off the ground, if some innovation could be used to try and get more people involved, because lots of times people do not realise the benefits of participation until after it is already gone.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I am very happy to give that undertaking. Whatever I do, or we do rather, we will do jointly with the Tourism Ministry and the Tourism Department.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Since the Minister is happy with that, I hope he will be happy with this other one. Could the Minister also give an undertaking to provide in writing, as I am quite aware that he will not be able to answer now, to provide in writing to us the terms of reference under which the Ministries will work hand in hand in order to achieve success with this initiative?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I am very happy to give that undertaking, and I would also ask that Members please, whenever they find applicants, would they please direct them into the College, and that I think would also assist.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The Minister has our undertaking with his last request. I want to bring a matter to the Minister's attention, and ask for his close and careful examination and possible assistance. I have noticed, through talking to some young people who would be interested in this, that many of them, particularly young girls, have a problem, in that they have one child or more already, and so, Mr. Speaker, it comes to the question of some form of assistance while they are enrolled in this programme. I would like to ask the Honourable Minister to tell the House if, while these young people are enrolled in this programme, they get any kind of stipend or financial assistance, and what are the limitations on this?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, at present they get $200 per month, but I think what the Honourable Member is saying — every month — a monthly allowance of up to $200 per month, so they can . . . But what I think the Honourable Member is saying, over and above that, that some form of child care support and perhaps the Third Ministry, new Ministry that has that, it is something that I would, well, the Honourable Minister is here and he hears what you say.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Perhaps, Mr. Speaker, this is a golden opportunity to prove that there are five different Ministries but one Government!

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I always take these jokes in the way they are given—in a nice, human . . . It is good to see the Legislative Assembly happy, Sir. They produce better and make better laws when they are happy.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 23(7)

The Speaker: We have reached the hour of 11.00. I would entertain a motion for the suspension of Standing Order 23(7) in order that question time can continue beyond 11.00 AM. The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, I so move.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I beg to second that motion.

The Speaker: The motion has been made and seconded that we suspend Standing Order 23(7) in order that question time can go beyond 11.00 AM. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. Question time continues.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 23(7) SUSPENDED TO ENABLE QUESTION TIME TO CONTINUE.

The Speaker: Any further supplementaries on that question? No further supplementaries. Question number 185 standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 185

No. 185: Mr. Linford A. Pierson asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development to state whether, in view of the high cost of land, Government would consider amending the Stamp Duty Law to increase the waiver of the 7 1/2% stamp duty from C$25,000 to C$35,000 in order to assist individuals who qualify for this exemption.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, no representations have been made to Government to consider such an amendment, and Government would not normally initiate such a course of action in the absence of compelling reasons to do so. The experience to date with the waiver as it stands suggests that it is operating quite satisfactorily, and quite a number of applicants have benefited.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries? The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, either the Honourable Third Official Member did not understand the import of this question, or maybe I have not stated it correctly. My question was, Would Government consider amending it? My question was not whether Government had already received representation. To help the Honourable Third Official Member, perhaps I could tell him that the intention for asking this question was not to embarrass the Portfolio, but to try to help the public, because I have received a number of representations, as a representative of the people.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, I understand the importance of the question, and I do appreciate the goodwill of the Third Elected Member for George Town, not to attempt to embarrass the Portfolio. Let me point out that I am quite prepared to put this as a request to Executive Council. But there is some information that I think would be useful to yourself and Honourable Members of this House, Mr. speaker. So far, to date, 133 applications have been approved under the Scheme for the abatement of Stamp Duty. The value of revenue given up under this abatement scheme amounts to $628,222. The recommendation will be put forward, but it must be borne in mind that when we widen the basis for such consideration to be given, we are really giving up quite a big chunk of revenue.

To date, Mr. Speaker, and I think that Honourable Member referred to this, I am not sure if I am being accurate, but it is recognised in this House that we have a very narrow revenue base. So whenever issues such as this are to be considered, that will have to be taken into account. Probably what we may want to do is to establish a more stringent set of criteria to move the limit from $25,000 to $35,000. But this is something that should be examined very carefully, Mr. Speaker, in the absence of alternative measures being put in place to compensate for the likely revenue to be lost.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the Honourable Third Official Member for that assurance that he would consider looking at this matter. He did give some statistics, Mr. Speaker, that to date, I believe I am quoting him right that 133 applications had been approved to a value of $628,000. That is to substantiate the point that I am making. I know that under the procedures (and I will turn this into a question) that the debt service ratio on mortgages is something like 26.5% with a total of a 40% debt equity ratio.

The point that I want to make here is that at the fixed 3% above prime (and prime can fluctuate a lot) the applicants are experiencing quite a lot of hardship in that land prices are getting more and more expensive. I wonder if the Honourable Member might want to consider increasing the income allowance from 50% for co-applicants to maybe 100% of their income?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I am prepared to put that proposal to Executive Council for consideration.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I know that what I am going to ask the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development is not part of the substantive question, but since he has indicated that he is going to make a request perhaps he would consider adding. . . I know there is a stamp duty waiver up to $125,000 for first time home owners. Many people have made representation to me because it is very difficult, especially for middle-income young people to find property and house which will cost less than that. Perhaps the Member would look into the possibility of allowing the waiver up to $125,000 even if the property costs more than that for that portion of stamp duty to be waived rather than if it exceeds $125,000 there is no waiver at all.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: As a part of the recommendation to be made to Executive Council, the approach I will take on it is to ask the Economics and Statistics Department to meet with the Lands Registry and modify the level of revenue that would be given up under each stage of the scheme. While it is being considered by Executive Council, I am going to suggest that a meeting also be held with Members of the Legislative Assembly to look at this.

If we extend it as far as what has been suggested by the First Elected Member for George Town, the impact on revenue could be quite significant. It would be very useful for Members of the Legislative Assembly to be made aware of the level of revenue that will be given up to see if there are any alternative measures which can be put in place to compensate for that.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I wish to thank the Honourable Member for that assurance. The reference I made (and I will turn this into a question very shortly) to the fixed 3% above prime which gives an effective rate of 11.25% as stated in the document, we know that this prime rate can fluctuate upwards to any limit and could effectively have a detrimental effect on the applicant. I wonder if the Member would also undertake while looking into this matter to ensure that where there is a fluctuation in the prime rate the overall rate would not exceed, say, 12%; that if there is any adjustment it is done on the over-ride. We know that this over-ride is in respect of the level of risk involved.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The Honourable Member has raised a very good point. But in addition to mentioning it to Executive Council, I think it has implications beyond a decision being taken. It is a question where we would have to meet with the representatives of the retail banks and probably look to the possibility of the introduction of certain measures to achieve this. It is something that will involve quite a bit of discussion. We will have to look at it very carefully. At this point I will not commit myself to any other understanding other than that it will be mentioned. It will have to be pursued and it is quite likely that this will be one of the points that will have to be discussed with Members of the Legislative Assembly before a final position is taken on that.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I appreciate that undertaking. We do know that the Honourable Member has a lot of weapons he can use when discussing this with the banks because the Government is providing a guarantee of up to, I think it is 35% on these loans. So, I request that the Honourable Member remind the banks of that. Perhaps he would give this undertaking.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: That would be a point that would be brought up quite naturally. But there are other issues the Member realises would have to be considered.

It could even involve legislative amendments to certain legislation.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries the next question is No. 186 is standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 186

No. 186: Mr. Linford A. Pierson asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development to state Government's policy in regard to the use of contingency warrants.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Section 21(1) of the Public Finance and Audit Law allows for the Financial Secretary to issue contingency warrants which are written authorisations to meet urgent needs for expenditure where no provision or insufficient provision is shown in the approved Budget, and which expenditure cannot be deferred without detriment to the public interest. A contingency warrant, however, is an interim measure and ultimately the approval of Finance Committee must be obtained in order to clear any such warrant.

Currently, the procedure is that the Financial Secretary obtains Executive Council's authorisation for all contingency warrants in excess of $10,000, except in time-critical situations where it is not possible to do so. In these extraordinary cases, the Financial Secretary will subsequently seek Executive Council's approval to include warrants issued on the next available Finance Committee's agenda.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I wonder whether the Honourable Member is in a position to provide this House with the number and amounts of contingency warrants to date, this year; or perhaps the latest information available to him?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The number of contingency warrants issued from the 1st January through 24th October is 199 for a value of $70,521,305. But included in this are 36 warrants issued to cover the second quarter recurrent expenditure for a value of $40,682,109. This was subsumed in the Budget.

Also included in this 199 is a further 67 warrants that were issued to deal with the continuation of capital projects for a value of $12,419,376. The remaining warrants that fall outside of this and for which Finance Committee's approval will be required is 96, for a value of $17,419,820.

At this time work is being done to identify savings in order to offset a significant portion of this expenditure.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I figured the Honourable Member would have this answer available. I wonder if The Honourable Member can state whether the 163 warrants that equal something like $30 million . . . was that amount unbudgeted? You said that was not subsumed in the Appropriation Bill.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, it was an error on my part. The $12,419,376 was also covered in the Budget, so the amount that falls outside of it is the $17,419,820.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Under the Finance and Audit Law, I think there is a specified period in which contingency warrants should be dealt with. I wonder if the Honourable Member can say whether this has been complied with; and while I am up, Mr. Speaker, whether he can say, if the period has not been complied with, why not.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, the period has not been complied with. I should point out at this stage that not to have had a meeting of Finance Committee as yet is not a proper course of action, and in fact it is an imposition on the good will of the Parliament. However, in saying that, I think we will have to look at what took place during the course of the year to date. Members will recall that the Appropriation Bill was not presented to this House until late March. I do not have the exact date, but I think the approval was not completed until late April, first part of May.

Following this, there was a request by Executive Council for an agenda to be prepared, and this agenda would embrace all requests by controlling officers for supplementary funds, in terms of what had come into the Budget and Management Services Department. The agenda was prepared and submitted to Executive Council in July, which would be around two months after the Appropriation Bill had been dealt with.

But it was quite evident to Executive Council at that time that what a significant number of controlling officers had done, amounts that were not allowed in the Budget were included in their supplementary requests, thus making up the gap in terms of what had been approved and what was initially requested. The supplementary agenda,

Mr. Speaker, was so large that the Government took the view that it would be inappropriate to take such an agenda to the Legislative Assembly.

The decision was taken, in terms of putting in place procedures to deal with that, Ministers would ask their Permanent Secretaries to instruct controlling officers to examine very carefully the requests as set out in the supplementary agenda, and to see if it is possible for them to reduce the amount requested or to identify savings.

This procedure went from July into August. When the amended agenda was then submitted to Executive Council in August, it became very difficult following that, because of the commitments of various Ministers of Government to establish a time that would be convenient for all the Members to get together in the Legislative Assembly in Finance Committee.

Although we had a meeting of the Legislative Assembly in September of this year, the problem still obtained that emerged in July, which was that it was evident that controlling officers did not look seriously at their initial requests as were made. In September, while being here, the problem of preparing the Budget for 1998 emerged—not a problem really. Time and attention got focused on that.

As Members of this Honourable House can appreciate, in terms of how time-consuming that exercise is, an attempt to hold a meeting of Finance Committee between that period up through the presentation of this Budget had to be placed in — not a question of diminished importance, but put behind the Budget process as such. This is why we are now at a stage where we are now debating the Appropriation Bill and immediately following that the Supplementary Agenda for 1997. Hopefully the cleanup requests for the year will be dealt with as well.

Because of this, I recognise as Financial Secretary that it is not an appropriate course of action, and in Executive Council I could probably have been more persistent to say that the agenda should have been finalised and submitted to this House. When I come to the Legislative Assembly, in order to convene a meeting of Finance Committee, I like to give Members the assurance that first of all, the agenda has been thoroughly examined.

One of the things to be recognised under the procedures as they now stand under the Public Finance and Audit Law, is that controlling officers have a certain level of independence, whereby if a controlling officer comes forward and sees that I need an additional, for example, half a million dollars, although it can be said by myself through the Budget and Management Services Unit, this is what is available, one of the things we cannot do to the controlling officer is to say that the amount you are requesting is less than really what is needed. So it is all of these factors plus other issues that Members are aware of that are currently under consideration at this time, where the Governor and Executive Council have had to be involved with, while at the same time considering the Budget process. This is what has put us into this position.

In fact, as a solution to this, I spoke recently with the Auditor General, and we have an advisor out from the United Kingdom at this time who is carrying a review of the Public Finance and Audit Law, and I pointed out to the Auditor General that one of the recommendations that will be made at this time, is to set out in the revised or redrafted Public Finance and Audit Law, that Finance Committee shall be held, on a minimum, quarterly, four times for the year.

So it removes it from what I would call the discretion of Executive Council and it will have to be held. So if there are any items that have been submitted by controlling officers to the Portfolio of Finance and Development, for Executive Council's consideration, Finance Committee must be held at least to apprise the Parliament of the current financial position of the Government.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, we want to thank the Honourable Third Official Member for that very comprehensive answer to the supplementary. Recognising that the Third Official Member is indeed the Member responsible for finance, and thus for calling the Finance Committee, I wonder if that Honourable Member can say that under the principle of collective responsibility, he had in fact submitted the agenda as far back as July, and then an amended agenda in August, but that he did not get the okay by his colleagues on Executive Council to bring it forward to Finance Committee.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, what the Third Elected Member for George Town has outlined is correct, but I cannot excuse myself as a part of that process. I pointed out that the first agenda was submitted in July. It was quite evident that controlling officers had really used that as an opportunity to include items that were excluded, could not be allowed. The amended agenda was hardly an improvement over the first agenda. That was a problem.

Government felt it was imprudent to bring an agenda to the House, because when an agenda is to be brought to the Legislative Assembly—and the Third Elected Member for George Town, being previously in Executive Council, is aware of the procedure. I am just pointing this out to say, first of all, the Government must identify the source of funds in order to cover the additional expenditure, because if such is not the case, the Government will have to determine what measures will be implemented in order to achieve that expenditure.

Executive Council took the view that some of the requests were imprudent, and before they could be put forward, controlling officers should re-examine their budget allocations very carefully to see if it is possible that they could identify areas in which expenditures would not be taking place, or areas where cutbacks could be introduced, in order to make funds available to cover the new requests, or additional requests, that were being put in.

For example, we take Personal Emoluments. When a budget is brought to this House—take for example the Portfolio of Finance and Development—there may be one or two vacancies within the Portfolio that, to allow for the recruitment of two officers, salaries would be provided against those posts, but if there is a need to incur urgent expenditure in other areas, a decision can be taken in order not to pursue those recruitments and to make the monies available.

One of the things I cannot do—let us say, for example, the Finance Portfolio needs to incur expenditure in other areas. Not because savings are available under Personal Emoluments it means that you can spend in other areas. The approval of the Legislative Assembly must be sought in order to move funds from one classification to another. This is where the problem has come about, Mr. Speaker.

As I said earlier, a meeting of Finance Committee should have been held and it was not. We know that quite a number of issues came to the fore that prevented this from taking place, but it is such an important consideration, and it is not one where this Government or any other Government, including myself as Financial Secretary, should presume upon the good will of the Parliament. It is not proper, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. In the substantive answer the Honourable Third Official Member gave, he said that currently the procedure is that the Financial Secretary obtains Executive Council authorisation for all contingency warrants in excess of $10,000. Could he state if in general — and if he wishes to use the 199 that he just mentioned earlier on he can do so — could he state if in general the fact is that these requests for authorisation come from the various Departments, or if in fact Ministers of Executive Council bring some of those for him to approve?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, the requests would be initiated by the Departments in question, and they would flow up through the Permanent Secretaries to the Ministers. But before the requests are put to Executive Council the Ministers normally seek the endorsement, or normally have a discussion with the Financial Secretary, and in my absence, the acting Financial Secretary.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, that concludes question time for this morning. We shall now suspend for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.31 AM.

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12.02 PM.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Debate continues on the Appropriation (1998)

Bill, 1997. The Third Elected Member for West Bay continuing.

THE APPROPRIATION (1998) BILL, 1997

DEBATE ON THE BUDGET ADDRESS DELIVERED BY THE HONOURABLE THIRD OFFICIAL MEMBER RESPONSIBLE FOR FINANCE AND ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT ON WEDNESDAY, 5TH NOVEMBER, 1997

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. When I closed my comments at the adjournment yesterday, I was talking about the need for prudence. I must say that — and I believe the people of this country recognise and appreciate the efforts and results of the National Team Government over the past five years, as far as re-starting the economy, getting real estate and construction back on the right track, and attempting as best as possible, to provide those services that we need in this country.

But as I mentioned in my opening remarks yesterday, there are some concerns I have with regard to this Budget, and I will get into them in a little more detail as we go along. At this stage let me look more closely at the specifics mentioned in the Budget Address by the Honourable Third Official Member.

The first area I would like to comment on is the area of the Stock Exchange and the Monetary Authority. I supported the recommendation of consolidating these areas. I believe the decision to establish a Stock Exchange over the years will prove to be a very prudent one, in that it will attract companies to have their stock listed on a stock exchange that operates in a tax-free and stable financial environment. It is costing us quite a bit of money, but we all recognise that before you see a return, there must be an investment. I am positive we will see the type of returns that have been projected in this area, and I look forward to some of those goals being realised.

With regard to the Monetary Authority, and in specific, the Financial Services Department that deals with bank supervision, let me just say that I was the first Caymanian employee of the Inspector of Banks office when that was established back in 1975. While I was with Government, I was exposed to extensive training in bank supervision in North Carolina and Washington, D.C., so I had the advantage of looking at supervision from both perspectives, that is the US and the British approach to supervision. My philosophy has always been that whoever holds a position of managing director, or whatever the term is now, and the supporting staff, have to have the ability, in-house, to go out and visit banks that they suspect are having financial difficulties. The US approach is that they have their own team of inspectors, and they go in and do their annual inspections or audits themselves, rather than relying on a firm of qualified accountants or auditors to go in and do the job for them, which is the approach we take here in the Cayman Islands.

The advantage of that approach, as far as I am concerned, is that when an auditor goes in, he goes in to determine the financial accuracy of the statements and other supporting documentation of the institution. But the US approach is that they look more deeply into the operation of the bank, that is, they look at management to ensure that there are qualified people in place, and they are comfortable that they are capable of handling the job of running the bank in a very prudent manner. I believe that is the direction, or one of the considerations that has to be given by the Financial Services Division.

When I was in the Inspector of Banks office in 1978, acting as Inspector of Banks, the then Financial Secretary asked me to put my thoughts in writing to him with respect to what I felt bank supervision was all about, and the needs. One of the things I dealt with was the issue of depositors' insurance. I recognise that the majority of our commercial banks here are branches of large banks, so as far as I was concerned, there was not a whole lot of concern from that standpoint, in that I was always under the impression — I think the impression still exists — that if a local branch got in trouble, the headquarters would step in and pick up the liability or make things right. But your individual or private commercial banks, I felt, were subject to some risk in that in the case of a problem, they did not have a resource or a pool of funds to fall back on to assist them. This is why I was recommending that we had some look at the time with respect to the possibility of deposit insurance.

Now in the United States, Mr. Speaker, individual deposits are insured up to $100,000. So there is some level of comfort as far as depositors are concerned. What people generally do is to ensure that the balances in those accounts do not exceed that amount, to ensure that in case of a problem, they have a good possibility of getting all their money back. I am pleased that some twenty years later, the Financial Secretary has mentioned now that this is an area we will be looking at, that is, depositor insurance, and I look forward with anticipation to see when that is put into place.

With respect to tourism, it continues to make a very valuable contribution to our economy. It is one of the main pillars of our economy. It provides a lot of employment for our people, and funds spent by visitors are enjoyed by all sectors of the economy. But recently there was an article in the Caymanian Free Press with respect to a new major hotel, the Ritz-Carlton, and it was anticipated that it would involve an investment of something like $100 million. I think — $200 million, I was corrected, which is even more than I thought — I think we have reached the stage in our development in this country where we can ask ourselves objectively, Do we need another major hotel? The question is, Who will benefit from this major project? I guess the real estate agents will be very happy, because they will probably make a good commission off the contract or the sale of the property.

The reality is that we live in a society where we enjoy over-employment. That is, we just do not have enough local bodies to go around to staff all the vacancies or positions available in this country. What it will mean as far as I am concerned is probably another 300 to 400 work permits, more strain on our infrastructure, our roads, our health facilities, our available housing, and an increase in the expatriate population compared to the local population.

I do not know if it is the sad part about this whole situation, on the other hand it is an asset as far as I am concerned, in that our local population, that is the Caymanian population, has not been growing at a very rapid pace at all. That is an advantage in one way in that you only have a limited number of people to worry about providing employment for. On the other hand, because it is growing so slowly compared to the demand for expatriate labour being brought in, there are some concerns being expressed by the local residents and Caymanian population here in these Islands. I believe it is a genuine concern, and one that we as representatives, have to address.

I believe that if this project is approved to go forward, it is important that all Ministries involved—and I am aware that there is a piece of legislation being proposed to deal with large projects, and I think this is the right approach to take. I think we need to sit down and look at such projects in a very objective and professional manner. By that I mean that the person in charge of training should be in a position to say, A condition of this new project is that we want you to set aside, in management, four, five or six positions for Caymanians. If you cannot find a qualified Caymanian to do that, one of the conditions would be that you take on some person who has the ability to be trained, train them, and eventually be in a position where they take up their positions in the organisation.

Just recently (in this sitting), the Minister for Tourism answered a question, "To provide a list of positions within each major hotel stating the number of Caymanians and expatriates employed in these positions." I personally was amazed at how few Caymanians we have in top management. As a matter of fact, one of the major hotels (that is the last one that was built here, the Westin Hotel) did not have one Caymanian in senior management! As far as I am concerned it is good to say we have tourism booming and we have construction booming, and everybody is employed, but I believe that it is time that we insist that our people get their fair share — not as maids, bellhops, these areas — but in management.

Every year we have requests, for example from the Community College, for expansion, for equipment and other things the college needs in order to operate. But it appears that there is very little being done to train and to insist that Caymanians who have the ability get an opportunity to serve in top management in these establishments. I have noticed over the years that you get one or two of the tokens being employed by these major hotels, and because it is a Caymanian say, Well, okay, they are doing something — that is one, compared to about three or four hundred people on a work permit? I believe we have to be in a position where we look very objectively at these additional major projects.

The other condition I would throw out is that they be required to establish a scholarship fund to train Caymanians who are interested in the hospitality industry. I know the Minister of Tourism, about four or five years ago, launched a scholarship for Caymanians who wanted to go into tourism, but I do not think that the burden of training and the expense of training has to always fall solely on Government! We could say, The scholarship fund must be sufficient to train at least two Caymanians on an annual basis. I am aware that the tourism scholarship established by the Ministry of Tourism is something in the region of about $24,000 a year, which is a substantial amount of money. I believe we should require no less from any additional establishment, and even the existing establishments that are doing business in this country.

I recall one of our themes, that is the National Team's theme, in the 1992 campaign was training—training Caymanians, ensuring that Caymanians had an opportunity. It was amazing how that word got around, because everywhere you went, and you talked to people, people were preparing to make an effort to ensure that they had something in-house to ensure that they could not be accused of not wanting to train Caymanians. But shortly after we took office in 1993, the Chamber of Commerce said, You are being too tight on work permits, you opened it up, and now there is no incentive at all with regard to training, because why should somebody invest in training somebody when they can go pick somebody up by way of work permit and put them in place immediately? I believe we have to assist these establishments in thinking that more has to be done in this area.

One of the things that constantly concerns me (and I deal with it almost on a weekly basis) is the number of calls I receive in regard to gratuities. I know the Minister of Tourism is not responsible for gratuities, but it affects his area of responsibility, that is, hotels and condominiums. A lot of our people depend on employment in these areas. Even in this sitting there was a question asked whether or not management is still sharing in the distribution of gratuities. It is a prevalent practice in the industry! And it appears that no one is prepared to once and for all address the issue and see to it that those people who are responsible for this abuse are dealt with and to ensure that our people who earn these funds through providing their services benefit from this pool of funds which is set aside for that purpose. I believe that if the hotels and condominiums want to bring in persons in the area of management, they should pay them sufficient salaries so that these persons do not have to depend upon gratuities to supplement their salaries.

I know this is a very touchy area to everyone, but I have always been an advocate of controlling work permits. My attitude has always been that work permits must be justified. I understand that the philosophy which presently exists is that if people did not need a work permit they would not apply for it; so if they apply for it, we must approve it. Now, I do not believe we can continue to have that type of attitude, and we all recognise that there are certain areas where our people do not have an interest in serving. Those areas are areas where we will have to continue to allow people to come in on work permits. There are other areas that our people at the present time are not qualified to fill. But it must all be tied in as a condition with respect to the issuance of a work permit. The time frame should be established with regard to a work permit. In those areas where you can find Caymanians, and you have Caymanians who are interested and capable, who could be trained and qualify, to ensure that gradually our people are put into a position where they can enjoy and reap some of the cream of the crop, rather than continuing to fight among themselves for the pickings or the leavings.

The other thing I have never been able to appreciate or accept, is that in most instances where you have a qualified Caymanian working alongside an expatriate doing the same job, their terms and conditions are totally different. I recall back in 1981-1982, a young lady from my district came to my office and said, "Mr. Jefferson, I just want you to know that I completed my qualification as a new teacher. I am from West Bay. They have stationed me in Savannah, and I work along with the expatriate teachers there and they get mileage allowance, but because I am a Caymanian I am not qualified to get that allowance." The Caymanian employee has to pay for gas like everybody else, so why should there be any difference? These are the kinds of things that constantly annoy me with regard to the system we have here in this country.

In the area of real estate and construction, I want to say that when we took over in 1992 we had a large number of persons, especially in the construction area, that were sitting on their hands—contractors as well as unskilled labour. That is not the case at the present time. Our people are employed, and the attitude of most contractors right now is that they have more work than they can handle. But the thing we have to be concerned about, and we cannot tell the private sector what they should do as far as their contracts are concerned, who to award them to, but I believe that when it comes to Government contracts, I know we have the Financial and Stores Regulations to follow as far as tendering, and that is followed. But I believe that there are additional conditions we should consider, especially for, not massive Government contracts, but the smaller Government contracts, with regard to construction of a value of a million and under, and I am aware that some of these conditions have been put in place, in that it should prohibit your large contractors from being able to bid on these contracts first of all.

The problem we had initially, and I think it has been addressed to some extent, is that a lot of our small contractors were not qualifying because of the mobilisation fee. I believe Executive Council did something regarding this, so there has been some relief in this area. But even large Government contracts — one of the conditions should be that, as much as possible by way of materials, supplies and even furnishings should be sourced locally. The attitude at the present time is — and you know, our large Government contracts have basically been taken by McAlpine or Hadsphaltic — that we bring in everything we need from the outside, let us bypass these local boys who are in a position to offer a service, and even on a competitive basis, we are going to totally ignore them and bring in everything we need from the outside. I think that is wrong because as a Government and as representatives, we have to be concerned about the welfare of our people.

One of the concerns I hear presently being circulated by people I speak to in regard to large landholdings by a very few of the super-wealthy individuals. We have a few now, Mr. Speaker, we have quite a few of them here who are wielding their influence and attempting to buy up everything that is available. I think we might be a little late for this, but one of the proposals or recommendations that has been offered is that maybe Government should consider changing the policy whereby you lease property on a long-term basis rather than absolute sale of that property. What that means is that maybe it is fifty years down the road, or a hundred years down the road, but at least you have a possibility of that eventually being able to come back for the benefit of the people.

It is becoming much more difficult for the young Caymanian who wants to buy property and build a home in this country to do so. Because he is out there competing with these super-wealthy individuals who have the money to say, Okay, well, they can offer $20,000 an acre, I offer $30,000. Our people as a result are suffering because of this condition that exists. The attitude I find hard to accept — and we have it here in the Cayman Islands among a lot of our Caymanians — is that as long as I am benefiting, it does not really matter who else benefits. I think we have to change that type of mentality. We have to be in a position where we say everyone has the right to live and to enjoy the success we have in this country.

It is a well-known fact that any society that can boast of land owners and home owners is a very stable society. At the present time I would hate to be a young person trying to make it in this country as far as finding property, finding financing for a new home, because of the cost involved. I recall back in 1975 when I built my home, and it was close to 3,000 square feet, it cost me C$30,000. Today the simplest little two-bedroom home costs you in excess of $100,000. You may say that we are making more money now, but the value of money does not go any further than it did back in 1975, so it is all relative.

It sounds good when we can say we made $17-18 million off stamp duty on the sale of property, but land is a commodity you do not make any more of, and we have a limited amount in this country. I would implore Caymanians who own property to ensure that they have property available to pass on to their children, and if you do not have a piece of property and you can buy a piece in an area that is still affordable, you better do so, because it is becoming a very expensive exercise. I am one of those Caymanians who feel good when I see other Caymanians benefiting. That is the way I have always felt. I feel very strongly when I see my people not getting their fair share of what is available.

The area I would like to turn to now is the area of the General Reserve Fund. I think in 1998 we are setting aside another million dollars to General Reserves. I do not think that speaks well for us at all, having a budget of $274 million, and we can only afford to set aside a million dollars in reserves. We all live under this fallacy that things are going to continue to be the way they are today, two, three, four, five years down the road. That is not necessarily a fact! So we have to be good stewards, and I believe what we should be doing at this stage is not only providing those capital projects and programmes we need in this country on a priority basis, but taking a conscious decision and saying we have $274 million in this year's budget. Let us ensure that we set aside a percentage — let us say it is 2%, let us say it is 3%, or even 4%— it would be much better than what this reflects, which is a million dollars.

We should take the same approach with regard to General Reserves as we do the Pension Fund for the Civil Service. We have recognised, or somebody came on an air plane to tell us that this is something we have to address. What have we done? We say if that is the case, if this is what has to be done, let us do it! This year I think it is something like nine million dollars that has been set aside, not only Government's contribution but civil service as well, nine million dollars is being set aside for pensions for the Civil Service. But a million dollars for General Reserves.

I would be happy as a representative if at the end of the day when I say, You know something, I am going to pick up my bag and I am going to tell the people thanks for the opportunity of serving you, but I am going to fade into retirement, to be able to say that under our stewardship we were able to put aside $100 million.

As politicians we have a problem. I made a statement, I think it was during my first term here, that I am not a politician but rather a businessman in politics. And there is a slight difference. Because the only thing a politician is concerned about, one of the things a politician is concerned about, is being re-elected! So what do you do? The four years you are in here you say let us get as much as we can, so when you go to the polls, we look good. In the process we might be broke as a country, but we have all kinds of things to show for it. My attitude has always been, we have to have priorities, we have to recognise what they are, and we need to budget accordingly.

As far as I am concerned right now the priority has to be health, because of the huge investment we have in our new Hospital, and that is going to take a substantial investment. But it is going to be something at the end of the day that we as representatives and as people can be proud of. I am going to go through the list I have been provided with, maybe after lunch, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: Would this be a convenient for us to break for lunch? I would remind Honourable Members that there is a planned visit to the Lighthouse School at 1.00 PM today, so I will suspend proceedings until 3.00 PM.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.43 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 3.18 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. The Third Elected Member for West Bay continuing.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: When we took the lunch break I was dealing with the general reserves. I mentioned that I thought the $1 million proposed to be transferred to general reserves this year (1998) out of a budget of $274 million does not speak well for us. I had an opportunity during the break to ask the Financial Secretary what was an acceptable percentage of recurrent revenue that should be budgeted or allocated to the general reserves, and he said about 2%. That means that in this Budget we should have set aside a minimum of $5 million for general reserves.

It is also this Government's objective, and any Government that exercises prudence, to try to build reserves to a minimum of three months' worth of expenditure. I did a rough calculation based on what is being proposed in this Budget, and recurrent expenditure is $203.97 million. That means that if we were adhering to that policy, we would need something in the region of $45 million to $50 million in our reserves to fall back on for any unforeseen need for expenditure. At the end of December it is estimated that the general reserves will amount to about $7.8 million. That amounts to about 15% of what we really need in that account. I believe that any Government, including this one, should exercise prudence in setting aside something for the lean years that must eventually come.

Moving on to the Public Service Pension Fund. I mentioned that it has been estimated (off the top of my head, I cannot recall exactly, but it is an alarming figure) that we are short as far as a pension fund to accommodate those civil servants who will be retiring, and those who have, in a comfortable manner. The balance of the Public Service Pension Fund at year-end 1997 is expected to be $29.5 million which represents a 33.5% increase in the Fund during the year and a $23.2 million increase over the past five years.

This is a very positive move as far as Government is concerned. I believe that you need to set aside funds to accommodate persons who give you their service and spend such a long period of time with you. But my attitude has always been, and continues to be, that what we are attempting to do is vest this fund too quickly. We have never been in a position where we could not pay civil servants who have retired. I believe that we will continue to be in a position to accommodate any retiree as far as their pension is concerned. But I believe that this is a long-term objective that has to be funded over a considerable period of time. In this Budget there is $8.99 million being contributed from Government toward this Pension Fund.

Personal Emoluments in this Budget, as compared to last year, increased over $10 million. The increase consists of the contributions to the Pension Fund and a few other increases. But I believe that our philosophy in regard to the Budget is all wrong in that every year (and I am aware that this happens) the Financial Secretary, or his Department, sends a circular to Heads of Departments that basically says, 'Try to maintain your proposed increased for the next budget year. . . ' within a percentage, be it 5%, 6% or whatever it is. It is a massive exercise every year. I know it starts sometime in July, and come October/November, they are still grappling with the idea of trying to cut back the requests to a reasonable amount. This year was no exception. But there comes a time when you have to say, 'We only have $100 million projected for recurrent revenue this year, so we may not be in a position to accommodate the 5% or 6% increase we are normally accustomed to.'

I am aware—and it did cost the Government the election—that if you are not in a position to maintain prudent financial measures and you get into trouble with excess borrowing and deficit financing as far as the Budget is concerned, pretty soon somebody is going to come in and say, 'Here are the rules: Cut the Civil Service by 10% or 15% because you have to get back to a manageable situation.' That happened recently in Turks and Caicos. They had no choice—they were told to cut back their Civil Service by a certain percentage. They had to do it. The reason why they were told to do it is because they are dependent on the United Kingdom for a grant or subsidy. It was dictated to them.

I have always promoted and supported a well paid, efficient Civil Service. But the numbers are really getting too large. The sad part about it is that when you walk through the Civil Service today, there are so few people that you recognise. I know that Government is no exception, they need professionals from the outside, but a lot of the people who make up the Civil Service are not Caymanians. It appears that somebody comes here on contract in the private sector and it is very convenient for the wife to get a job in Government because, first of all, they do not need a work permit, and they are in a position to have two incomes. Mr. Speaker, I do not believe that we can continue to accommodate that type of thinking in this country.

Bearing in mind the difficulty we had in putting together this Budget, what is going to happen to the 1999 Budget and the Budget for the year 2000 if we continue the trend and direction we are going in? An example of what I am talking about—and this is not the first time I have commented on this issue, as I said this in regard to the 1988 to 1992 Government—is that our recurrent revenue is not keeping pace with the percentage of increase in recurrent expenditure. An example is that since 1992, when we took over, recurrent revenue has been pretty consistent, about 12% per year. For 1997, the Budget we just recently passed, recurrent revenue was forecast to amount to 12.8% increase over the year before, whereas expenditure, that is recurrent and statutory expenditure, amounted to approximately 20%.

It does not really take the Third Elected Member for George Town, who has determined that he is the only qualified accountant in the House, to tell us that if our revenue is only. . .

POINT OF ORDER

(Misleading)

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order.

The Speaker: May I hear the point of order please?

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I said in this Honourable House there were two qualified accountants. I did not say that I was the only qualified accountant. I would like the Third Elected Member for West Bay to withdraw that misleading statement.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Mr. Speaker, if I did not correctly hear what the gentleman said, I apologise. But I recall hearing him say that he was the only qualified accountant.

Mr. Roy Boddan: He did not say that.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: If he did not say that, then I apologise, Mr. Speaker. But it really does not take him, or any other qualified accountant, to tell us that if our revenue is only growing by 12% per year, and our expenditure is growing 20% per year that pretty soon we are going to get in trouble. It is as simple as that.

What is difficult for me to accept is that out of a Budget of $274 million, we can only contribute $4.03 million from the recurrent side towards capital. If I recall, our capital expenditure projection for 1998 is in the region of about $35 million. That is capital and capital acquisition (and all the other labels they have, but it is still spending money) which means that if we do not have it in recurrent revenue and we want to spend it, we are going to have to borrow money for it.

Now, when we came in in 1992, I supported our borrowing $16 million for Cayman Airways. It was a crisis situation and something that we had to deal with, so I supported it 100%. I was very pleased that the financial institutions accommodated the request and we got the money. Shortly after we came in, as I said in my opening remarks, we took a decision as a Government (because the 1988 to 1992 Government was so fiscally irresponsible), that we were going to be very prudent and if we did not have the money to spend, we would not spend it.

I believe that because of that approach we sent the economy and the financial industry in this country the correct signal. Investor confidence returned and the results speak for themselves. We are now experiencing a financial boom in this country like we have never had. Unfortunately, a lot of us believe that it is going to last forever. The approach is let us get as much as we can and forget about what happens tomorrow. I am a part of the National Team Government, so I am criticising myself in saying that we cannot do everything in one year.

I want to thank the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning for arranging the tour of the Lighthouse School we had at lunch time. That is a priority to me. That is an urgent priority. For us to be a country boasting of so much financial wealth and success to have our special needs children continue to be accommodated in that kind of surrounding is totally unacceptable. I am aware that the present Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning has made this a priority and is moving forward with it. If we have to borrow money for that type of expenditure, I have no problem with that.

We committed ourselves some two or three years ago to a brand new hospital. That is well underway and I think that it is anticipated to be completed in September/October next year. That is a priority. But we cannot do everything at one time. We have four years. What is wrong with doing something this year, and if it does not get done this year, it gets done next year. We have four years to do it. We may have to extend some of these projects over five years. We cannot do everything at one time. I am not comfortable supporting another loan of over $19 million to balance this Budget for projects which I personally feel are not a priority.

I did not say that the projects that have been identified are not worthwhile or necessary. One of my colleagues was kind enough to give me an outline of the projects in this year's Budget to be funded by the $19.5 million that we are anticipating borrowing. For example, medical equipment—$2 million; there is no use in building the hospital and not equipping it. Healthcare Facilities—$4.9 million to help finish the building of the hospital. There is $4.5 million for road works. The Drug Rehab Centre—$300,000; District Post Offices—$500,000; the new Agriculture Building—$400,000; an Abattoir—$300,000; High Schools for Grand Cayman and Cayman Brac—$750,000; New Primary School West Bay and George Town—$1.5 million. . . I could go on and on. They are all identified as being very necessary and very valuable projects. All I am saying is let us leave some of these projects for the next Budget.

Some of us have an affinity for good cars, but if I cannot. . . and my ideal car is an Infinity Q45. It probably cost $35,000 to $40,000. But I will continue to drive my 1992 Crown Victoria until I am in a financial position to pay cash. I am not going to go and borrow $40,000 for a new car so that the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development can compliment me. All I am trying to say is that we need to learn to continue to live within our means. I know that I will get a chance to speak on the Loan Bill, so I will not say too much more in that area, but I am really concerned.

We have always said, and always used our Caribbean neighbours as examples of (should I say?) unwise fiscal management. I am concerned that if we are not careful we could be headed down the same path. I want us to be in a position to continue to enjoy the financial independence we have in this country for many years to come. Unfortunately, the demands that we have placed on us as a Government. . . because a lot of the previous governments did not do what they were supposed to in ensuring that some of these programmes were put in place, . . . but I believe that if the National Team Government did not do another major project between now and the year 2000, we could continue to enjoy success at the polls. People recognise what we have done. They recognise that we have provided facilities and programmes that we need in this country. They have been good investments.

I am an avid sports fan. This is an area in which I have a great deal of interest. I want to applaud the former Minister for Sports for his five years in that position and for his commitment to providing the proper sporting facilities that we needed in this country. Today we can boast of some of the most modern facilities of any place in the world. That is good. The investment has paid off. Our national basketball team has done very well. Just recently I accompanied them to Jamaica to attend the Caricom Games. Many Caribbean countries competed. Overall, we ended up fifth in the competition. A lot of the other Caribbean countries, such as Jamaica, brought in players from all over the place. . . some whose grandparents were Jamaican, and took advantage of the situation. But our boys held their own. Why? First of all, we put in place through our commitment to sports, a national coach for basketball who has implemented a programme that has worked. If any Member of the House has time, they should go by the Lions Centre any evening. The boys and girls are there practising and getting ready to compete.

One of the things we still need in this country, one which I am prepared to push for, is a proper indoor facility for our sports—basketball, volleyball, boxing, etcetera. I am going to push for that because I think it is very necessary. I believe that it is long overdue.

When we travel around. . . and we have a tendency here in the Cayman Islands to look down on some of our Caribbean neighbours, for example, Jamaica. But the other day when I went to the Caricom Games, I was very impressed with their indoor facilities for basketball. I think it cost them several million dollars to do it, but they had the commitment and they did it. That investment has paid off.

We can boast of modern healthcare facilities in every district. That speaks well of the Government. But it took time. I have been advocating the one for West Bay since 1988. This is 1997. That is some nine years, but we finally got it because the Budget was able to accommodate it.

The note I want to end on is: let us move cautiously. Let us continue to exercise financial and fiscal prudence. Let us continue to adhere to the policy of living within our financial means, rather than continuing to borrow money just to get things we feel are priorities, because some day somebody will have to pay for those loans.

PRAYERS

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived: We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Let us say the Lord's prayer together: Our Father who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done in earth as it is in Heaven; Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us; and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, for ever and ever, Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

QUESTION NO. 187
(Withdrawn)

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I crave the leave of the House to have this question withdrawn, seeing that the information has been gleaned from an earlier question.

The Speaker: The question is that Question No. 187 be withdrawn. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it

AGREED: QUESTION NO. 187 WITHDRAWN.

The Speaker: Question No. 188 is standing in the name of The First Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 188

No. 188: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works to give an update of the work being done on the Harquail By-pass, including costs to 30th September 1997 and projected total cost.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Mr. Speaker, Public Works Department has completed the upgrade works on the project, and is currently working on the sub-base layer. This stage of the project involves filling up to 8 inches below the finished level of the road. Public Works Department is currently approximately 75% complete with this activity. Other activities in progress include installation of drainage culverts, installation of utility pipes, and preliminary clearing and preparation for installation of the signal at the northern end of the project (West Bay Road Intersection).

Total project costs up to September 30th were $3,941,795. Projected completion costs are approximately $5,400,000. This includes the paving of two lanes and installation of the signal at the West Bay Road Intersection.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister say if the projected completion cost of $5.4 million includes the other activities he mentioned in his substantive answer, that is the installation of drainage culverts, installation of utility pipes and clearing and preparation for installation of the signal at the northern end of the project.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: I would think yes, because the project as pointed out here is $5.4 million and as I mentioned a few days ago in answer to another question, we are going to save quite a bit of money on this which we will be diverting to do some other works here in George Town.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: In the substantive answer the Honourable Minister stated that Public Works is filling up to 8 inches below the finished level of the road. Can the Honourable Minister just fill us in as regard to what happens after that part of the project is completed?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: The final part of the road which includes the paving of the road will then be applied.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say how much, if any, money went to compensate landowners for land used in this bypass?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: I do not have that information here with me, however it is no problem to supply that to the Member asking the question.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister state if this amount forms a part of the total as he has given in his answer?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: The answer I gave said "Projected completion costs are approximately $5,400,000." As I said earlier, it was my understanding from the Public Works Department and in an answer given a few days ago that we had a savings on it so therefore, I would think that the figure we are giving here would be the cost of whatever the road is going to take us up to that point.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Would the Honourable Minister give an undertaking to provide the information as to compensation for the land used at his earliest possible convenience?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: In the last answer I gave, I stated it would be no problem to provide that to the Member asking the question.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister tell the House if any part of the project is going to be sub-contracted out to any private contractors?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: As we are all aware, the Public Works Department does not presently have a hot mix asphalt plant. Therefore, that section of the road will definitely have to go to somebody in the private sector.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister state if the tendering process has been completed?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: It is my understanding from Public Works Department that the road will be completed at the end of December. It is also my understanding that the only asphalt concrete company on the island will be doing the job. So I do not see, even if we are hoping to complete at the end of December, us going out to tender because there is only one company to deal with it.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: So that the Honourable Minister will understand, the reason I asked that question is because they have a projected cost of $5.4 million. I simply wish to find out if a quote had been received even if it is not by the tendering process and by the only company who can do the job.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: I guess that is exactly why we could have a projected completion cost at approximately $5,400,000. There is one company, and there is no problem getting a quotation for the cost of the project because there is no other for us to go to.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: With the pending completion of the Harquail Bypass, I wonder if the Honourable Minister could state if there are any future or immediate plans regarding any further road works along the West Bay peninsula?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: It is a good thing that the First Elected Member for George Town is my good friend, because he is aware that he is straying far from the original question. As he is quite aware, we have done quite a bit of work along the West Bay Road in recent times.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: So that the Honourable Minister can understand the line of questioning, what I was trying to determine was if there are any plans for any major road works—not existing roads—new roads along that area.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: I was trying to be polite. It is straying from the original question and if my friend has any further questions to ask me on this, it will need to be in a substantive question.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I will certainly take the Honourable Minister's advice and he will receive that question in due course.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries that concludes Question Time for this morning. The next item is Government Business Bills, Second Reading on The Appropriation (1998) Bill, 1997. Continuation of debate thereon.

SECOND READING

THE APPROPRIATION (1998) BILL, 1997

DEBATE ON THE BUDGET ADDRESS DELIVERED BY THE HONOURABLE THIRD OFFICIAL MEMBER RESPONSIBLE FOR FINANCE AND ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT ON WEDNESDAY, 5TH NOVEMBER, 1997

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I can easily see with the vast numbers the Government has . . . the way they can set the stage for whatever they wish to accomplish. It is also very heartening to see that some of them can do this without even smiling. Oh, he laughed. All right.

The Budget Address delivered by the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development certainly deserves various comments from Members. Mr. Speaker, before I really begin, I wish to crave your patience during the course of my contribution because there are several areas in my line of argument where I will need to quote from various documents. I trust that, given a bit of time, you will see the relevance. I just wanted to let you know that before we got going.

Going through the Budget Address the first area I wish to get out of my way is the area where he mentioned the Monetary Authority. The Financial Secretary said in his Budget Address that “the Monetary Authority has a very important regulatory role to play in the smooth functioning of the financial industry.” He went on to say, “In fact, in recent weeks its role as custodian for the industry was highlighted when it took the hard but very necessary decision to recommend that Executive Council revoke the licences of Gulf Union and First Cayman Bank.”

I am not quite sure what approach the Government is going to take, having experienced the difficulties it has in regard to the closure of those two entities, but if my understanding of the Monetary Authority is correct, then I think that, first of all, the Government has to take a very serious look at the autonomy of this Authority. The way that I understand it, the Monetary Authority has as its Chairman the Honourable Financial Secretary and that Authority simply reports and makes recommendations to Executive Council which makes the final decision on whatever those recommendations are.

Members of Executive Council having directorships in financial institutions was mentioned, and people have varying views as to whether or not this should be allowed. But regardless of whether this is allowed or not, I hold the view that if the Monetary Authority is to function with the expertise it has, then certainly it has to retain a certain amount of autonomy. That is, the chairman, in my view, should not be a Member of Executive Council, and secondly, I think the Authority should have the same word, the authority, to act on its findings and not simply to have any political thoughts be part of any decision-making process.

Those who do not subscribe to that train of thought are going to say that the Executive Council is the policy-maker, so the final decision should rest with the Govern-nor-in-Council. If that is the case, we need not have the Monetary Authority. We would simply need some little choirboys who can gather all the information and throw it in their laps and let them decide what they want to do. But I know that they know that is not the case. So I would implore the Financial Secretary to address this issue, and I am sure that he certainly has the ability to see the wisdom in making some types of changes with regard to the operation of the Monetary Authority.

As he mentioned regarding the Monetary Authority, Mr. Speaker, he spoke about First Cayman Bank and its closure. There has been much debate, much talk publicly about the closure of First Cayman Bank, and there have been varying views regarding the stewardship of the Government in the way the matter has been handled. For the sake of the listening public, I believe it is important that they know the truth about the matter. While I believe the Government has to be very careful in the way it handles this situation, because of the wider-reaching ramifications, I firmly believe that as far as possible, it should continue to let the public know exactly what is happening.

I was looking for a document which I will find, but—there are two things which come to mind regarding the closure of First Cayman Bank and the revocation of the licences. Quite recently, the Bahamas announced that the domestic depositors at Gulf Union Bank in the Bahamas, which was closed down by the government, would be protected. I think the government has given an indication that depositors who have deposits in Bahamian currency are not at risk. It is my view that, bearing in the mind the situation that obtains in the Cayman Islands, the Bahamian government has made this decision in an attempt to upstage us, since we are naturally the competition they face in the region. I think it is important that Government look at this situation very seriously.

Since all of that occurred, I think by now we all know that the tenth largest bank in Japan has failed also. On Monday, November 17th, a week ago, a major Japanese bank collapsed. There is an article regarding this collapse, Mr. Speaker, and I just wish to quote two short sections regarding that collapse. I think it is important that Government also take a look at this view.

The article reads, “The deputy US Treasury Secretary, Lawrence Summers, and the Japanese Finance Minister, . . . today expressed concern about the fall in the value of the yen. When [this bank collapsed], the Japanese government immediately intervened after its failure. It extended emergency Central Bank loans and arranged for another bank, North Pacific Bank, a regional institution based in northern Japan, to take over the failed bank’s deposits and outstanding loans. Mr. Summers hailed the intervention by the government on the failed bank, and said that the market’s response appears to confirm the importance of decisive action.” That market’s response that he referred to was the Nikkei index, which had seen a continuous fall for quite some time, but with the government’s quick decision, investor confidence was restored, and on the very day of their announcement regarding what they were going to do, there was a serious upsurge in the market trends there.

While that does not exactly parallel the situation we face in Cayman, I think it is important that Government ensures, by closely examining the wider ramifications of the situation, that we do not have a continued fallout here. Several things have happened since this problem with the First Cayman Bank and Gulf Union Bank. I think, more than anything else, through rumours, there was a problem at British American Bank, which has steadied itself. Thank God that was not very serious. But I think we have to be very careful, because if I am hearing it right, there are still some people outside of us who are nervous about what is going on here.

Personally, I do not think it is a serious matter we face internally, but I think it is a serious matter for us to ensure that in the eyes of the world-wide public, we are still seen to be the stable economy that we are. Government cannot take this situation lightly. I am not suggesting they are. I am reinforcing the issue to ensure that they do everything possible and be open about their actions, so that the world at large will still have the good faith they have had in the past about us.

It is not good enough for us to hope that it will fall away, because I do not think it will. I know there are processes which have to take their course. There is also a liquidation which is going on. But I would implore Government to keep a hands-on approach to ensure that nothing else goes wrong, because in situations like this, whatever can, will go wrong.

As the Honourable Third Official Member stated, and I quote, “Investor confidence is central to the continuing success of a well-nurtured financial industry. If this is eroded, then there will be rippling effects throughout all sectors of the economy. . . Not only would the financial industry suffer, but the vitally important tourism industry would also be seriously affected. With the twin pillars of the economy weakened, a series of economic and other problems would ensue including high unemployment, flight of capital and a marked drop in the standard of living.”

That was two mouthfuls that was said, not one. I quoted that just to say that if we make any mistakes here that are long-lasting, all the fears indicated by the Honourable Third Official Member could well become reality. It will not be any good for us afterwards to be blaming each other as to whose fault it was, because all of us will be in the same boat. Let us make sure that we are diligent about this matter, and even if some decisions are hard to make, once we know they are the right decisions, let us make them. Let me say for now that I firmly believe there are decisions that have not been made yet that will have to be made, and they had better be made fast. I will not elaborate on that.

The Honourable Third Official Member also mentioned, as he went on, regarding the introduction of a depositors’ insurance scheme to help provide protection to depositors. He mentioned that it is likely a bill will be introduced at this meeting of the Legislative Assembly to introduce the scheme.

I noticed while the leader of Government Business was making his contribution, he mentioned something about the Opposition not having brought any bill to this House regarding something along the lines of depositors' insurance. In my view, it does not matter whether it is the Opposition or the Government that deals with matters such as this, and I would suggest to him very seriously that he and others stop living in a world where they have to find somebody to blame, and start thinking about what we should continue to do in the future to make things better. That was not to take a jab at him, Mr. Speaker, but he well knows the attitude I am talking about.

So it is heartening to know that the Government is thinking seriously about doing something about depositors' insurance. This is another lesson in the learning, and I have said more than once, and I will continue to say, it is time for us to be pro-active and not re-active. We seem to have this uncanny knack that something has to happen, bad, for us to do what is right. Hopefully another lesson in the learning may lean us towards addressing issues before something bad happens.

As we go further into his Address, we note where the Financial Secretary made mention of one of my pet peeves. He set the stage by talking about Asia. He said, "Asia has been in the spotlight in recent months because several countries have been experiencing financial market pressures in that region. These pressures have been most acute in Thailand where the existence of large external deficits and fragile banking systems have affected investor confidence, leading to a sizeable depreciation of the Thai currency, the baht. Neighbouring countries—the Philippines, Malaysia and Indonesia—have suffered adversely from the Thai crisis."

Then he said, "Mr Speaker, the Thai government moved swiftly to formulate a Medium-Term Policy Strategy to help restore confidence in its economy and maintain economic stability." I am sure that when he was reading this, he was thinking about me. I will bet him any money he was! He said that because these people in Thailand were having serious problems, "they moved swiftly to formulate a Medium-Term Policy Strategy." I would equate that with what we now know and dream as the Medium-Term Financial Strategy, which has been talked about for so long, but which we have not seen.

Mr. Speaker, I have to deal with that because for four years now I have been asking when we will see this become a reality. In good faith, the Financial Secretary has answered each time with what he thought, I believe, to be a real situation, and we have had at least four different time-lines for when we were going to have delivery of the goods. We have received a delivery date this time again. I am sure he will frown, but I know the nature of the man, and he will not hold it personally against me. But as of now I have to see it to believe it.

I understand from what has been said on other occasions that there have been at least four, if not five or maybe six revisions, because the Medium-Term Financial Strategy has been developed, and it is exactly that: a medium-term strategy, which means that when you develop it today, if you do not exercise it, and you go back at it two years from now, you have to make changes because that time has passed, and what was seen two years before as medium-term is now present. So it leaves me begging the question, If so much time and energy have been placed on preparing such a strategy, and continually revising it, why has it not been brought here?

I will not venture a guess as to why. All I can say is, someone has sinned somewhere, because some bright person once said, "For the lack of vision, a nation perishes." I believe we will if we do not find that vision. There are some people who will believe that I, for instance, would just cling to that just to have something to argue about. Let me tell you something, Mr. Speaker. I realised quite some time ago that this world is changing, and changing fast. And even with the best of visions, it is difficult to keep up. But with no vision, you are dead before you start. We have to find that vision. We have to plan.

Since we are talking about that, Mr. Speaker, now is as good a time as any, I believe, to address a few issues with the contribution made by the leader of Government Business. He need not get excited because whatever I have to say I am sure he will accept is in good faith and certainly hoping for things to be better.

First of all, in his contribution, the Honourable Minister mentioned, regarding Education, the good results that continue to come in each year on exams. That is very heartening, and I am happy for those students who continue to be successful within the system. The Honourable Minister must not think for a minute that I am just being picky. But if the Honourable Minister thinks back, he will know he has heard me say this over and over and over again. Every year when we have those exams, Mr. Speaker, even as good as they are, or the better they get, we still have a certain amount of students at the bottom end who are left roaming the wilderness.

Ten years ago, there were so few of them, you could pretend they did not exist, because they were scattered and dispersed widely enough within the society that they were contained well enough that the worry was not so great. But misery seeks company at all times. And as the years have gone on, those people I am talking about continue to multiply. And because they are miserable, they find each other.

It is a sore topic, and it could easily be that some of us might prefer not to address it. Regardless of what type of educational system we have, regardless of how well the public system performs by way of results, regardless of how affluence allows for private schools to function well, if the top end of your society is functioning well, and the bottom end continues to falter, you are going to get your feet kicked from underneath you. The threat we have in this country today from that single area is worth us channelling all of our energies in that area to do something meaningful about it, and it is not something that will be accomplished overnight. But the longer it is left, the wider the cancer spreads.

The crime, the children without fathers, the broken marriages, the unwanted children—that is where all of that is coming from, and it is going to ruin us if we leave it alone. This may be a Budget debate, and somebody might wonder where I am going with this. But there is reasoning behind it because if we do not get the vision I am talking about to deal with that specific situation in a positive manner, then all the budgets in future will not mean a thing, because we will not have a country left. We cannot sit here and believe that because we can leave here every day, get in the car, go where we have to go, and then cock up and relax for the rest of the evening, that life is fine. It is not! It is far from that! And the sooner we understand and accept the responsibility that we have to do something about it, the better off we are.

So to move on, let me just summarise that area by saying—and I am not pinning this on any one individual, because that is not the case. The fact is, all of us are responsible for it. If we are talking about education, we must find the means to educate all. We must find the ways to have all of our people with the right amount of self-esteem and the right amount of drive to be somebody in our society, and to participate as responsible citizens, and it is not happening. I do not wish to hear the usual crap about what this one did not do in the past, and what this Government did not do. That is hogwash! It is sick! Today is today and tomorrow is coming, whether we like it or not. Let us stop talking about what did not go right, and let us sit down and do something about it now!

In the area of education, the Honourable Minister for Education mentioned the urgent need to have new premises and a new facility for the children at the Lighthouse School. I am not going to be arguing about that this morning. I just want him to know that speaking for myself, I fully understand and recognise the dire need to have proper facilities for those children. I just take this opportunity to say, I hope when the time comes, we go to deal with this issue. And it is going to take all of us in here, not any Government and Opposition, that is for when it suits. There are times when that does not matter. That is one of them.

I hope when we go to deal with that issue, all of us are able to deal with it with open minds, because if we do not have that ability, we will find what happened before. If we go back just a year ago, we found each other blaming each other for something not being done about that. The Government blamed the so-called Opposition for making it a political football. The Opposition had some problems with the way the situation was being handled by the Government. Money was approved, but nothing was done. It was an election year, and I understand what happened. As the Honourable Minister stated in his contribution, this is not an election year, so let us get some stuff done. I am right with him on that. Let us see if we can get it done!

Mr. Speaker . . .

The Speaker: Are you going to a new topic at this time?

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Yes, Sir.

The Speaker: Would this be a convenient time to take the morning break?

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Yes, Sir.

The Speaker: We shall suspend for fifteen minutes.
PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.15 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.57 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. The First Elected Member for George Town continuing the debate.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Before I continue, I wish to call to your attention that we do not have a quorum. Regardless of whether they want to listen to me or not, I think we should start with a quorum. So, if you do not mind, maybe we could get one before we start.

The Speaker: Serjeant, will you call the Members please?

(Pause while Serjeant-at-Arms summoned Members to Chamber)

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town, please continue.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you.

I could have been sorely tempted about discussing time-wasting tactics, but I will not do that this afternoon. When we took the break, I was making reference to some of the areas in the contribution made by the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning, Leader of Government Business. There are just a few more that I want to refer to, then I will get on with my main contribution on the Budget Address.

First of all, I cannot leave alone what the Honourable Minister said about the Opposition. “And what I would like to ask, and unfortunately, so far we have not really heard this, it is all well and good for persons who regard themselves as Opposition to criticise, but my question is always, where are the solutions? In this life, anybody can criticise. But I am asking that they now come forward constructively with solutions to the problems. The country does not want to hear a lot of talk that is just tearing the country down, they want solutions.” (Hansard 13th November, 1997, page 557) Then, Mr. Speaker, with nerves of steel he said, “This is what the National Team and the Government has done, and it is a duty on a responsible Opposition to be constructive and produce solutions. I am still waiting to hear those solutions when the other two Members get up later on.” Of course, he had to cap it all off by saying, “and we continue to do this, extending the olive branch and trying to get them into a constructive mode.”

The Leader of Government Business has been here a lot longer than I have, and I do not know what his idea of being constructive is, but in my five years here, I have found him talking about other people more than anything about what the country needs. I have not been the one doing that. I do not mind if that is the way he wants that now, but I really do not subscribe to him telling me that that is not what people like me have been trying to do all along. You know—I will not say that yet, I will wait until it bears more merit as we move on.

In part of his contribution, the Leader of Government Business, in talking about the finances of the country, mentioned a few figures. I just wish to clear the air here so that no one in the public is misled. When he spoke about general reserves and the Pension Fund, he went on to say, “The position has to be looked at from a point of view of the fact that the debts, or the borrowing this year (this year meaning the year 1998) which is at about $19 million [$19.5 million is what it is] which I doubt if we will really borrow that amount. . .” Before I get on to the figures, let me just talk about the fact that the Honourable Minister stood up and said “which I doubt if we will really borrow that amount.” I have been arguing for years that it makes no sense to bring a Budget into this Honourable House if the Members who are part and parcel of making that Budget know that is not how it is going to be.

So the Honourable Minister gets up and says that the borrowing is going to be $19 million. I am giving a slight correction, it actually calls for $19.5 million in the document. But immediately, without taking a second breath, he says that he doubts that amount will be borrowed. What that tells me is that he and others know different, but still bring it here presented the way it is. Now he, or whoever else comes afterwards can argue all they want, I am going by what he said. They can tell me what it meant when they have the opportunity. It seems to be an unimportant point, but I still contend that at the end of the day, when the process is supposedly completed, it is known that as figures are presented to Members of the Legislative Assembly within the Budget Document that at the end of the day that is not how the figures are going to be. Ever since I have been here, that has proven to be true. So I wonder what is the sense in having it.

Since I am right at that juncture, let me use a very pertinent example in my opinion. In the Budget document, on page 276, 26-500-1, “George Town Hospital—continuing construction of George Town Hospital.” The Estimate for 1998 is $4 million. The projected Estimate for 1999 is $3.5 million. I know there are other figures within the document which allow for the purchase of equipment and the like. I understand that these two figures are the actual cost of construction for the Hospital.

Now if memory serves me right, completion date set for the Hospital is August of 1998. I may not be perfectly right, but they are still going to have something to answer, I can promise. If the Hospital contract calls for completion in August 1998, regardless of what the conditions are and what amount has to be held back until they make sure everything is fine, I want to know which contractor is going to wait until 1999 to get the other $3.5 million! What that says to me is that before too long, they are going to come back to Finance Committee for supplementaries to pay out the contractor for the Hospital when the job is completed. If that is totally wrong, then let them clear the air and tell me that.

That is only one example, Mr. Speaker, and in my opinion, there are too many areas like that where the Government knows better and knows that it will not work like that, but to bring something that is palatable, that is the way it is done. It comes back to something I said much earlier, it comes back to reactive Government, not pro-active Government, Government with no vision.

You see, it could well be said that from the point of view of any Opposition, they have to find fault with what the Government does so they can be seen to be doing their job. That is partially true, and I understand how it is because I live it. But believe me, I do not just spend my time looking for what is wrong to be able to find something to row about! I do not! I am not known as one of those who passes on a lot of congratulatory remarks to people, but I also do not think I am known as one who just likes to find fault. I have contended for many, many years, relatively speaking, that it is wrong, it is wrong in every sense of the word, to bring the Budget to this Parliament, to debate it and go through the process of Finance Committee, and expect each and every one of us to support the Budget that comes to us, when there are so many areas within that Budget, that the people who prepare the Budget know full well, that before the end of the year is out, the whole picture is going to change. It has to be wrong! If it is not wrong, then we should change the whole system, and plebes like me do not need to participate in it, and the bigger boys can just do what they please!

But you know, one of these days that is going to change, if I am around or not. Somebody is going to have good sense one of these times. Either that, or enough things are going to happen which are a direct result of doing it in that way, that will force people to do so. And I pray God that the second one is not what happens.

Mr. Speaker, after the Honourable Minister says, “which I doubt if we will really borrow that amount,” he goes on to say that the repayments of that are $17.5 million as set out in Table 2A. What he means is that when we borrow $19.5 million in the year 1998, our repayments for the public debt will be $17.5 million, so that the net borrowing is only about $2 million.

And here is how he makes it so nice and easy so people can understand, so that the net borrowing is only about $2 million, give or take interest—no big thing, just a couple of dollars—give or take interest. And how much of the repayment of $17.5 million is actually principal, and what is interest? By inference—and I am going to come to the main point, Mr. Speaker—the Honourable Minister is saying to the public, ‘Look fellas, don’t worry about that. We’re borrowing $19.5 million, but don’t make them other fellas scare you at all that we should be careful. They don’t understand how this thing works. We are borrowing $19.5 million but we are paying back $17.5 mil- lion, so give or take a few little dollars, the truth of the matter is, we are only borrowing $2 million.' That is what that tells me! But you see, in matters like these, while I do not claim expertise, trends are something you have to pay attention to. In 1995, the country paid back to its debt $6 million—I want to make sure of what I am saying here—in 1995, total repayments on principal the country made for its debt was $11.2 million. They also paid $4.1 million, nearly $4.2 million in interest. In 1996, they paid back $6.7 million of principal, and $3.5 million of interest. The estimate for this year, 1997, is that $9 million will be paid back on principal, and $4.8 million will be paid back in interest. That means you can almost, as a lawyer would say, generally speaking, use a ratio of two to one to what you pay on principal to what you pay on interest.

So if we are paying back $17 million in 1998, you could feel comfortable to say that somewhere between five and six million dollars out of that is going to be interest. So the couple of little dollars being mentioned, give or take, is somewhere in the vicinity of $6 million. I really hope that is not how lightly some of us treat money. As the figures show, the estimated balance of total loans for 1997 is $82.4 million. If we are borrowing $19.5 million, that carries it over the hundred million dollar mark, that is $102 million. But to be fair, we will take off $10 million that will have been paid down on principal for existing loans and the new loans. So instead of $102 million, it will be $92 million. That is still $92 million.

What that does not say, and what I do not know, is part of the country's total public debt includes self-financing loans, which are mostly engaged in by the statutory authorities, whereby they actually, on the majority of occasions, are able to make the repayments, but Government has to guarantee these loans, so while it is a contingent liability, Government still holds the ultimate responsibility for these loans. I do not know if any of the authorities are going to be engaging in any more loans during the course of 1998. It is not impossible, but I do not know that. So when I say that at the end of 1998, in truth and in fact, we are looking at about $92 million, that is with some unknowns that I cannot guess from here. So I really do not know. It is important for us to understand that position.

I remember hearing someone say recently that as time goes on, everything becomes relative. That is quite true. But relative or not, we see a trend here. In 1996, borrowing exceeded $22 million. The estimated borrowing for 1997 will again exceed $22 million. What is proposed in the Budget document so far for 1998, and we do not know if anything else might come, is $19.5 million. I want to add something else so we can really get a perspective of where we are headed, and what we have to be careful of. If the Government listens carefully, I am not just trying to find things wrong. But we have to understand exactly where we are going.

As of now, with what we have to work with, we are looking at the end of 1998 with a total public debt exceeding $90 million. In the Minister's contribution, when he was talking about Cayman Airways, I have to quote him again, Mr. Speaker: "In 1993, the audited accounts showed the current liabilities remaining after the $20 million cash was put in was $19.3 million."

I quote him again. He is talking about Cayman Airways now. "I have over the past few years repaid $1.75 million at $50,000 per month. But Members will see that there is a sum in the Budget for $1 million which is in there and will be used to repay the pre-1992 debts of Cayman Airways." There we go again! We have to go back and dig up all who were wrong. We are not looking solutions here it does not seem like. The position after the $20 million was put in, in about July of 1993, all of which went to pay past debts—I will even read it for him if that is how he likes to hear it—"The liabilities that remained, as can be seen, and I have copies of the audited statements, after the US$20 million was put in, showed that the remaining amounts after that was put in were $19 million."

Here is the beauty now, Mr. Speaker. He steps back, he takes a breath, and then he lands it on us. He says, "There is no way that Cayman Airways can pay off that extra $19 million. Let us not kid ourselves about it." What he tells me is, "Look out fellas, whoever it was cause all this problem don't really matter any more. We got another $19 million we gonna have to pay off." That is what he is telling me! And that is what he is telling this country! You see, he talks about solutions, and that we must find them. I want to know what kind of solution it is to continually talk about whose fault it was.

Now again, I have never been a part of any Government, Mr. Speaker, I have only had the opportunity, which I am very grateful for, to be a representative of the people, thus far. But it does not matter where those losses occurred to me right now, and when it happened. It matters to me why, so that at least the same thing does not happen again. We need to understand that. But the fact is, those losses exist.

So while if we wish we can push this other $19 million aside, we just got our first warning that this is coming, fellas! "We put a million dollars in the Budget this year and we want to make sure you guys understand why you got a million dollars in the Budget." That is only going to help pay off some of the interest at the bank! It means if you do not address it, by next year it is going to be more than $19 million. And the year after it is going to be more again! So it has to be addressed! That is the way I read the picture.

The person who knows most about Cayman Airways in this Legislative Assembly has told us that there is no way Cayman Airways can pay that money off. The only other alternative is to finance it some other way for Government to pay. It makes no sense to talk about how it happened and all of that, that is just a matter of a lesson in the learning. If we want to understand the true picture of the state of affairs of the country, it is situations like this we have to bear in mind.

I do not want us to be frightened because this is something most of us did not know about. But you see, it is better for us to know about it. But let me just—I am truly amazed that we were made aware of this, because what I am used to is it being hidden and then it is a fist-fight and a war to understand all about it, where if everybody were told up front from the very beginning the whole truth, [there would be] less argument. That is when you look for solutions. You do not have much time looking for solutions when you have to fight three-quarters of the time to get information! That is what has to change! What has to change is when I as a representative want legitimate information, I do not have to find out if this one will allow it to happen! Yeah! That is what has to change, Mr. Speaker. Not all of us have hidden agendas. Some of us really want to serve the country and see some positive results before we fall away.

So when the Honourable Third Official Member is winding up his debate, I trust that the $19 million about Cayman Airways is addressed in some form or fashion, because it is real. The quicker we know about it, the quicker we decide how we are going to handle it, the better off we are. I am sure he understands a lot more than I do about how financing works, when you do not pay your debts off, what interest does to you.

So Mr. Speaker, those few areas I addressed, with what the Honourable Minister had in his contribution, were matters that I simply wanted to clear up. Some of those specific areas will tie in further down the line as I expand the contribution I am going to make, but I thought it of interest that certain points had to be made.

There are just a couple more. There is an issue I almost take umbrage to that I have been hearing very recently. The Honourable Minister for Education has said in his contribution, "We have seen the Budget of this country continue to expand. The economy has expanded. We have overemployment." That is what I want to make mention of. "We have overemployment. It is a fact, Mr. Speaker, that we do not have sufficient people in this country to fill all jobs because the economy—not just what we have done, but past governments—has been so good for a long period of time, and our population is small." Now on the surface that sounds to be the most fair statement one could hear if one looks around. But it is those things that fool us so easily that cause damnation in a country, when you become lax and really do not understand the true picture.

Mr. Speaker, as much overemployment as we may seem to have, I contend—it can be refuted all it wants to be, but I live it in my daily life and I believe I am right. I contend that there are still several hundred young people in this country who are unemployable. So if we want to say that we have overemployment, and pretend they do not exist, if others can be happy about that, that is fine. I cannot be, because I know they do exist.

I addressed it earlier this morning in a different way, but Mr. Speaker, I feel compelled to give it a little poke again. It is not something that is easy even to think about. Collectively and individually they probably are the most difficult people one will have to deal with, but they exist! And while they may not really worry about themselves, if we do not take it on our own to start worrying about them, they are going to be the death of us all. I have talked about this for years, and I keep trying to hit home about it, because I keep praying to God that somehow we will find the will within us. Because if we do not have the will, solutions will not come. Solutions are difficult! I do not have them all! I really do not. But I have always prayed that somehow those of us in the process will realise the importance of this, because it has been the ruination of many societies. It has caused more damage than anything else I can think of, because the truth is, their existence is not the problem. It is all the other stuff on the periphery because of their existence which causes the problems. And the only way you do not have that kind of thing happening is if they do not exist. And for them not to exist you have to pull them out of where they are. You have to find some meaning for them in their lives. But I guess that is not an exciting topic to talk about. Pray God that one day, the policymakers and the decision-makers will pay the right attention to that area.

We can talk about money and budgets until the Good Lord comes, but if areas like that are not addressed, we do ourselves and our country a great disservice. We do.

Mr. Speaker, there is one last area of the Minister's address I have to touch on. I am sorry I cannot make any better sense out of it, but this is the transcript I have, and I will have to read what it says, and I think he probably got side-tracked somewhere along the line. But I know what he was alluding to. He says, "So the New Zealand approach, Mr. Speaker, I have had a bit of time to read on this, and I was really interested to see how brief that aspect of the Budget was. In fact, education was summed up—I do not necessarily want to go into a lot of depth on it, but it was summed up on three-quarters of a page. They set targets, they have a strategy, money is given in—fairly well in bulk to them and they are expected to meet those targets. I have no problem with that. What it will do, Mr. Speaker, is it will remove this massive document we have here." He is talking about the Budget document, the Estimates. "All the little details I read out, of all the nice things being done at the schools that I have money for, that will go. And the thrust, as I understand it, will be that the Minister for that area will be given a vote and targets to meet, and it is up to them, with some flexibility within the Budget, how they attempt to reach it." So he is talking about the New Zealand approach, which I think by now most of us are familiar with.

Mr. Speaker, when he was talking about the New Zealand approach, I believe that he was not only alluding to the new method by which budgets will be presented in the future, but I think he was tying all of that in with the reinvention process, the reinvention of Government services, because he goes on to say, shortly after that, "I believe that the reinvention process will bear results. We have to give it time. It is no good attempting to judge results until it runs its process." So I think it is fair comment to make the assumption that he was talking about preparation of the Budget document, but also at the same time, talking about the reinvention process.

Mr. Speaker, in 1995, there was a Private Member's Motion, number 10 of 1995, entitled the Fiscal Responsibility Act. That Motion simply said, “Be it resolved, That the Government consider adapting a Fiscal Responsibility Law similar to the Fiscal Responsibility Act 1994 of New Zealand.” Now the Fiscal Responsibility Act of New Zealand is basically the same New Zealand approach the Honourable Minister referred to earlier on. The Motion was brought by the then Second Elected Member from Cayman Brac, or rather it was brought by the Third Elected Member from Bodden Town, and seconded by the then Second Elected Member from Cayman Brac. Now there are a couple of areas I need to address here, but since I am speaking about the Honourable Minister for Education, when this Motion was brought, Mr. Speaker, in his contribution, his first words when he got up were, and I quote, “Madam Speaker, this Motion is one which is extremely short, and one which the merit is about as large as the length of the Motion.” So the Motion is short, and the merit of the Motion was very short. 1995. Here is what he goes on to say, “This Motion and many other motions that have been brought to this House are being picked up to pave the way in my view for the independence of this country.” That was the song and dance at that time. He repeats himself again. “This seems to me really as paving the way as has been done so many times in the past, to squeeze in one other law that could begin pushing us on the road to independence.” Then he comes with a classic, “Madam Speaker, fiscal responsibility at the end of the day depends on the quality and the ability of the people who manage the finances of the country. We can pass laws here until we are blue in the face, but until there is a continuity of responsibility persons in this Honourable House who take responsibly the position of the country’s finances, and who are watchdogs for the people’s money, then that is the way the country will remain, in the stable financial position we are now in.” I wonder who he was talking about. He had no brief for the Motion, but he simply said it was not any good. I do not have to defend anybody in this Honourable House, and it is not my style, and will never become my style. But I know that he took that position because of who brought the Motion. I know that! The point about it is, having said all of that, as I read before, he is now happy to see that approach being taken. And the only thing that has transpired since then that is different is that we owe more money. That is the only thing! So if the good Lord has in His own way helped him to see the error of his ways, that is fine too. I will not have any big long talk about that. That is all right.

Mr. Speaker, he mentioned earlier about the way of thinking and the Opposition should be acting responsibly. I am going to take just a minute to quote a couple of areas where I made my contribution to that same Motion. And I remember hearing them outside, you know, vividly. I remember hearing several of them, ‘Boy, Kurt, don’t follow them boys, they gonna lead you down the path of destruction.’ As if I cannot think for myself! So I said, “The very important point from the excerpt”—and I had read an excerpt before—“is the incentive to pur- sue policies in the country’s long-term interest.” And I go on to say, “I daresay it is known that this is one of my pet peeves regarding the state of our country today, which has nothing to do with the government of the day. It has all to do with a mindset for the country. I personally believe that more long-term planning needs to be the order of the day.” That was in 1995. I go on to say, “But during the time that we are here, it is our responsibility, regardless of whose side we are on, to ensure that what we deal with is with the knowledge that is in the best interests of the country.” I say, “The Motion does not wish to address what has transpired in previous governments or the existing Government. It simply seeks to identify areas that are relevant to be considered in order to set the course for this country in the long term. The whole idea, as I look at the Motion, is simply for a method to be employed which is sensible, worthwhile, and relevant to the financial operations of this country. As we grow, we need not look for systems to suit bodies. We need to employ proper systems and try to find the bodies to suit them, because proper systems will prevail as bodies, namely us Members, come and go. As I understand the position the Government has taken, and while I am supporting this Motion, it seems as if it is a done deal in regards to the end result. I can only say that just as the Third Official Member who replied on behalf of the Government pointed out, there are many relevant sections of the Act, which is being compared now. So too will I hope to see due consideration being given to extracting from these relevant areas in order for us to put it to good use in this territory.” So what we had was a Motion that was rejected for what seemed to be lack of merit. But here we are two years later, and we are hearing how good it is for us to have a look at what New Zealand is doing, because there is much for us to learn.

The Speaker: This will be a convenient time for us to take the afternoon break. We shall suspend for fifteen minutes. And I would ask Members to try to be back in fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.46 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.05 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. I would like to call to the attention of Honourable Members that the debate is dragging on. We are losing a lot of time on our breaks. I would like to ask for Members’ co-operation in trying to reduce break times. Also, with Members’ approval, it is the intention of the House to sit until 6.00 PM on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

Debate continues. The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

While referring to the Budget Address, I mentioned the Medium-Term Financial Strategy. What I failed to do at that time was to mention the accompanying dream to that, which is Public Sector Investment Programme. I use the word 'dream' because they are both dreams at present. Hopefully they will become reality. The truth is that both of these thoughts work hand-in-hand. While we have been given assurances that the Medium-Term Financial Strategy will be tabled during this Sitting, we were told that the Public Sector Investment Programme would be at a later date. While that brings some disappointment, because of the situation which prevails we will be understanding about it and we look forward in the very near future to seeing that programme come into play. I mention it because during my contribution I mentioned long term planning. Even though my ideas would call for a longer term than 'medium term', I think any start is better than none. So I would be quite happy to see what comes forth with the Medium-Term Financial Strategy.

The Public Sector Investment Programme will be geared towards dealing with national priorities. It is very important that we have this new wave of thinking which is engendered with innovation. Over the years (and this casts no aspersion on anyone here, I am speaking generally) political agendas have superseded national priority. There has always been the big argument of parochial politics taking charge and issues of national importance coming somewhere down the ladder behind that. It is important for us to understand exactly where vision comes in. If we are going to be dealing with Budgets year to year and not have any set goals, several things are going to happen which should not. Based on the little experience I have had observing the way the country is run, if you do not get value for money your actions become sporadic to say the least, and there is no sense of direction at any time. That does not bode well for any of us because we are supposed to have enough will to lead the country on. We cannot continue to talk about it.

When we talk of national priorities, we cannot segregate a district and say it is time they got something. It does not work like that. Not any more. We have to learn to stop sacrificing the numbers game to maintain political advantage. I have seen it happen in here where in order to retain the numbers, Government has had to deal with each individual situation to pacify everybody to keep the troops in check, when in truth and in fact, when it was all over, there was no consideration given to issues of national importance. We all have to understand and accept the responsibility that that can no longer be the order of the day. We are losing too much ground—regardless of what side who is on.

The Public Sector Investment Programme will allow for clear goals to be set within a given time frame. What it will also accomplish is (and I have also seen this happening). . . we find at times the Ministries within the whole Government structure are all headed in different directions. We find people crying for this, that and the other thing for each Ministry because they have their own individual goals. But they have not taken the time out to put all of those goals together to have one set of goals for all concerned. It is a fact. And it is not today. But that also does not bode well for us.

I will give you an example in these Estimates to show you what I am talking about. If I understand it correctly, under Health Services there is some $250,000 less allocated this year than last year. First of all, it seems obvious to me that as the hospital nears completion and the various areas are being put into effect that it is certainly going to cost more to get everything going and started up. Nevertheless, we have a quarter of a million dollars less allocated in the 1998 Estimates than for 1997. That brings to mind two questions, and I am not subscribing to either one, I am just saying what comes to mind. It was either proven that money was wasted in 1997, or the Budget could not be balanced so a few people took some cuts although they know that before the year is out they are going to need that money back.

We are talking about national priorities here compared with all other matters. I happen to know for a fact that sometime in the middle of this year the pharmacy at the hospital was without several types of medication for a period of time, and not able to fill prescriptions. Why? Because there were no funds available. If that happened in the middle of this year, and this is 1997, how can we possibly be appropriating less funds in 1998?

We see some additions in other areas. I think we see in excess of $2 million for Tourism. The policy-makers, I am sure, prudently decided why that had to be an extra $2 million (approximately) from 1997. The point in hand is not whether I question that that $2 million more for 1998 in the Tourism budget will be used wisely or not. That does not matter, and is not the point. I am sure that the Government well knows what happened at the Pharmacy. I was not told by them. I heard it (shall I say?) on the street. But I took the time out to verify it afterwards. Here we have an entire nation depending upon that service. It does not matter which district they come from, the entire nation depends upon that service provided by Government. But I guess it might happen before the middle of next year if that is what happened this year. We will see.

That was just a simple example to show that the way we have to do business from here on in is with vision, with a plan, and with set goals. We are always crying about working together. I really pray to God that one of these days we will get a good grip on that because we all use the term 'let's work together' so loosely. We need to understand what working together is. We cannot work together if we do not have specific goals in mind. That is so important.

I mentioned the Public Sector Investment Programme. It is all going to tie in if we can ever learn to let go of the reigns and accept what is right for the country. It is going to take some doing, but the policy makers need to accept that there needs to be a change. When we talk about change, it is the end result of all true learning. Change involves three things, and the first one is the hardest. The first thing that change involves is a dissatisfaction with self. That means you have to be objective and honest with yourself in understanding and accepting that you are doing something the wrong way. It all has to do with a mind set.

The second thing is that you have to feel the need to make the change. This is what we need to do. We have to come to grips with it and make a decision to change to fill that need. Here comes the one that is really easy if you can get through the others: You need conscious dedication to the process of growth and change. You need to have the will to act and to make that change.

This evening I say to the Government, while I know there is a move afoot with certain things which I believe will head the country in the right direction—we are talking about the reinvention process, the new way of dealing with the Budgetary process. I know there are hiccups involved, and I will not be one of the stumbling blocks preventing this from happening. But with all that we are talking about, if the policy makers are not prepared to let go and be objective about the entire process, it will be to no avail. It will be worse if they say all the right things but not do them.

Everybody seems to be issuing challenges—let us act responsibly, let us do the right things, let us work together. My challenge is: Let us find a vision. Let us understand and accept that a change has to be made. Let us believe in the change; let us contribute to the change, and let us walk into the next millennium with a purpose, with goals, with the satisfaction of being totally open as a Government and still be able to function even under great adversity.

At some point in time we have to come to grips with the fact that we have to do what is right—not what is politically correct, but what is right. That is the cross-road we are at today, and have been for quite some time. But the boat is not going to wait much longer for us.

Talking about change, vision and purpose, I wonder sometimes if we look at our personal lives and think about family responsibilities. We want the best for our children, we want to see them in certain positions with certain opportunities. We all have those aspirations. That is vision. We want them to go to college, so we try to find a means to prepare for the cost when the time comes once they are in a position to go to college. That is vision. The vision is no different for the country. It is just with a broader base—the principle is the same. Sometimes I am totally amazed at why it seems so difficult. I guess it is probably the most difficult six-letter word in the English language.

If I seem to cling to that a bit too long, Mr. Speaker, it is only because I believe that almost continuously politics get in the way. I know that we have to deal with a little bit of it as we go along to add some spice to it. But we have to get serious. I fully believe, and I am totally confident that the Civil Service is ready, willing and able, and simply waiting in the wings for this change. They too have their role to play. As the system works, the policy makers create the policy and the Civil Service is the policy-makers' check and balance to carry out those policies in the best way possible.

Mr. Speaker, I can stop here if you wish.

The Speaker: I will entertain a motion for the adjournment of this Honourable House.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, before I do so, I would like to thank you, Sir, and all Members of the Legislative Assembly for going out to see the Lighthouse School on Friday, and today to see the Community College. I really appreciate it. Thank you for your time.

Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker. On a point of procedure. I believe that it would be good if we took the vote on the business of continuing until 6.00 beginning on Wednesday. I believe it was informally done, but to be absolutely safe, I respectfully beg the Chair to allow us to put it in the form of a motion so that we can vote on it and have it properly ratified in the record.

The Speaker: A motion will have to be put on Wednesday at 4.30 to continue beyond 4.30. I can do it now if you so desire, but a motion will have to be put at 4.30 on Wednesday afternoon.

The question is that this House do now adjourn until 10 o'clock Wednesday morning. Those in favour, please say Aye. . . . Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AT 4.30 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM WEDNESDAY, 26TH NOVEMBER, 1997.

EDITED
WEDNESDAY
26TH NOVEMBER, 1997
10.10 AM

The Speaker: Prayers by the Honourable Minister responsible for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

PRAYERS

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived: We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth, that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly, that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy great Name's sake.

Let us say the Lord's Prayer together: Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name. Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us. Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace, now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed.

MESSAGES AND ANNOUNCEMENTS BY THE SPEAKER

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: I have apologies from the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay and from the Second Official Member, who will be arriving late this morning.

Item number 2: Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers of Government. Question number 189, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION NO. 189

No. 189: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation to provide a breakdown by nationality, qualification and experience of all staff recruited since January 1997 to work in the Health Services of the Cayman Islands.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. A breakdown of all staff recruited since January 1997 to work in the Health Services Department is provided as an attachment. Mr. Speaker, of the 64 posts, 22 will be filled by Caymanians, eight by foreign nationals with Cayman Residence, and two by persons married to Caymanians.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries? The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Minister say, in the case of those recruited from abroad, in which jurisdictions advertisements were placed?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, in the United Kingdom and in the West Indian territories.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, supplementary.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Is the Minister in a position to say if this recruitment is near the complement of what is anticipated, or is the house to expect that we are going to have a similar number of recruits in the years up to the completion of the new Hospital?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, in the 1998 Budget there is a request for a further approximately 100 or 102 people, but that should just about finish everything and bring us up to strength.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Minister say how it is envisaged to deal with these staff members, that is, whether they are going to fall into the regular corpus of the civil service, or whether there is any intention of resorting to an Authority?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, the framework provided at this time is still within the ambit of civil service. Maybe down the line there is the possibility of an authority, but that is not considered at this time.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Is the Minister in a position to tell the House what kind of impact this will have financially on the recurrent expenditure of the country? That is, how much money will the new staff necessitate?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, for the posts next year which will be phased in, it is an impact of around $2 million. We are trying to do in two to three years, what most other departments have taken fifteen or twenty years to do. Many of the posts, especially nursing—and I know the Honourable Member from North Side has, on many occasions, pushed to try to get some support there—those nurses have to work extremely long, hard hours and a lot of overtime, which I will mention in my response to the Budget Speech. There is a need for help in those areas.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Minister say what percentage of these recruits will be Permanent and Pensionable, as against on contract?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, with the Honourable Member's permission, instead of giving an answer I am not quite sure of, I would prefer to give that to him in writing.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, as a supplementary, I would like to ask the Minister to give me, if possible, a brief description of the situation with regard to two Cubans with Caymanian Residence who seem to have a substantial amount of medical experience, but nevertheless are listed as Physician Assistants.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, in the case of the Cubans, their qualifications under the Health Practitioners' Board is not recognised until they are approved by other territories.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the Minister if this then has anything to do with the pay structure, and how are they paid? Are they paid for their experience, or are they paid as a result of how they are classified?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, I am informed that they are paid by the classification of the posts they have taken.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I notice from the answer the Minister has provided that these Cubans have 24 and 22 years of experience respectively. My question to the Minister is, does their age allow the Government the flexibility to see that these persons are certified, or take the requisite Board exams which will allow them to become full MDs in our jurisdiction? Is any provision being made to give them proficiency in English? I believe some arrangement exists whereby they do a six-month secondment in Jamaica, or someplace, prior to taking the Board exams.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, at the present time, the Health Practitioners' Board recognises only doctors who have been approved in the United Kingdom, Canada, the United States and Jamaica, but I am sure that as they serve here, we will assist them in trying to get that qualification.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I believe these individuals came here as refugees some time ago. If so, I would ask the Minister whether he would be willing to make an extra effort to see that they do qualify, because if they did come here as refugees, it implies that they will be here permanently. I think, therefore, they should have priority over someone from overseas. Would he be prepared to make efforts to see that they do get these qualifications? Because it is, in my opinion anyway, a waste of very good resources.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I am in agreement with the Honourable Member.

The Speaker: Any further supplementaries? If there are no further supplementaries, question number 190, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 190

No. 190: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation to state who signed the final plans for the various units of the new hospital.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The process by which we reached the final plans for the new Hospital was as follows:

The Health Services Facilities subcommittees, consisting of technical health services personnel from the various departments, and chaired by a senior member of those departments, submitted, after considerable discussion, proposals for the new areas to the Facilities Committee. This group consists of senior managers in the Health Services Department. After review and input, the proposals were submitted to our design consultants, who incorporated them into their plan for the new Hospital. This plan was reviewed by the Facilities Committee, and the subcommittees, and further modifications made to maximise such things as patient comfort, efficient utilisation of space, etc.

Mr. Speaker, the responsibility for the final signing off of the plans rests with the Health Services Complex Steering Committee, which is charged with ensuring that this project is completed on time and within budget. Any change proposed at this time has to be approved by this Committee, and approval will be given or denied only after careful consideration of the effect on the allocated budget and the timing of the project.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries? The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Minister say if this procedure has been adhered to up to this point? Also, can the Minister tell the House what happens in the event that modifications are needed, or what happens in the event of those modifications which have been made to this point?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, Mr. Speaker, up to this point these guidelines have been adhered to. I wonder if he could repeat the last part of his question.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker, I am happy to. The second part of the question to the Minister was, can the Minister say what happens in the case of any recommended modifications or changes to the original plan?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, it is taken back to the Steering Committee which considers it, and if it is justifiable and within the contingency, it is given to the Project Manager to implement.

The Speaker: Supplementaries? If there are no further supplementaries, question number 191, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for West Bay.

QUESTION NO. 191

No. 191: Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr. asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs to provide an update on the proposed amendments to the Liquor Licensing Law, 1985, as was called for in Private Member's Motion No. 6/96, as amended.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Mr. Speaker, the answer: The amendments to the Liquor Licensing Law, 1985, called for in Private Member's Motion No. 6/96 as amended, are being drafted; and after presentation to and approval by Executive Council, they will be brought to this Honourable House.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries? The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The amendments that were proposed were for establishments applying for a liquor license not to be closer than 1500 feet from a church, a civic centre, or a school. The other one was a moratorium on liquor licences in residential areas. I wonder if the Honourable Member could say whether he is aware of any licences in the meantime having been issued in residential areas, or issued to establishments within 1500 feet of schools, churches, or civic centres.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Error! Bookmark not defined. Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I am not in a position to say if any licences have been issued that fall in the category as pointed out by the Member, but I hope to have the amendments as requested incorporated into the Law in the very near future.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, that completes Question Time for this morning.

Item 3, Government Business, Bills, Second Reading, The Appropriation (1998) Bill, 1997, continuation of debate thereon. The First Elected Member for George Town continuing.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS BILLS SECOND READING

THE APPROPRIATION (1998) BILL, 1997

DEBATE ON THE BUDGET ADDRESS DELIVERED BY THE HONOURABLE THIRD OFFICIAL MEMBER RE- SPONSIBLE FOR FINANCE AND ECONOMIC DEVEL- OPMENT ON WEDNESDAY, 5 NOVEMBER, 1997

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Error! Bookmark not defined. This morning, as I continue with my contribution, I will be dealing for a short time with the Budget document itself, as has been presented to us. Before I move into that area, I wish to comment on a statement made by the Honourable Third Official Member regarding the Shipping Registry. As he stated in his address, “Turning to shipping, Mr. Speaker, there has been minimal growth in the register. 1997 represented a period of consolidation, following an exceptionally good year in 1996 when growth in excess of one hundred percent was recorded. However, the Shipping Registry is continuing many of the activities initiated earlier this year.”

Mr. Speaker, while I understand what the Third Official Member stated in his address, I for one question the Registry and its operations, why there was such a huge growth in 1996, but none so far in 1997. I also have serious questions about the Shipping Registry, with regard to any Caymanians being employed. The way the Budget document is presented, the Shipping Registry is all under the General Registry, and from the way it is presented, I cannot determine what funds are being spent within the Shipping Registry or the other parts of the General Registry.

I seriously wonder if there is any move to try to train Caymanians in this area, because, as far as I know, there may be only one Caymanian working within the Shipping Registry. I do not have a problem with those working there now, I just think we should be trying to entice Caymanians to that area. I am not sure, but it is my understanding that some money has been allocated for training within the Shipping Registry. I would rather see funds being spent by Central Government for training, to be put to good use by training Caymanians. I do not know what the case is, but perhaps the Honourable Third Official Member will address that when he winds up his contribution on his Budget Address.

Now, Mr. Speaker, getting to the actual Budget document itself: Let me first of all state that not having been part of the process at any level in the preparation of the docket, I cannot state that I know exactly what the process is, or what took place, to be able to have the document completed. So where any fault lies, I do not know, but it really does not matter. I wish to state that in my view there are several areas of this document which bring a lot of questions to mind.

In the capital section, and I do not think I will be pressed to give specific examples—I will if I need to—but in the capital section, based on my limited experience dealing with budgets, there are too many items that are under-budgeted. As far as I am concerned, and I have had this beef for a long time, the Budget document is prepared, and especially under the capital section, funds are allocated for various specific items to be either acquired or for work or services to be done, and it is known that the funds allocated cannot complete the task at hand.

Many of these tasks, if started within the financial year, and if the funds allocated are used, will not be completed. Not all of them are going to spill over into next year, because there is not enough time to complete the jobs. The point I make is, is it not better for us to decide on what we are going to do this year, and make the funds work, in order of priority? If we have to wait until next year to do the other jobs, we say so, and we say why, but at least we have a clear sense of direction. In this document, the pie is being split up into as many pieces as possible to show concern for that specific area, knowing full well that you will not get anything done with it!

I do not see the sense in continuing to bring the document to us like that, and you hear, We know that won't complete it, but chances are we won't be able to do something else, so we'll draw funds or vire them from elsewhere to get this done if we can. That is 'schoolboys saving their lunch money,' Mr. Speaker. We cannot continue to deal with it in this fashion.

This document, unlike all others I have seen, has no performance indicators in it. It has no review of last year's achievements within the departments, or non-achievements. If we say we are going to change the whole style of preparing the Budget and presenting it to Finance Committee, and the whole process is drawn out, then I contend we should change whatever legal process there is, and Finance Committee should not have to deal with the Budget. How can I, not having seen the document before, be presented with a generic document and be able to sensibly decide, Well, this is in line, not having access to what has gone on before, what the plans are for tomorrow, or anything of that nature. Even the Objectives are totally generic. There is no timeline, no cost-line.

Those who live with it daily might feel satisfied, because they either know or somebody else is going to tell them during the course of the events. People like me do not have that luxury. If I am to be part of the process, the methodology has to change. I know I do not speak for myself alone.

Mr. Speaker, I move on to the lack of what the Government terms the D-Plans. In 1995, in his contribution to the debate on Private Member's Motion 10/95, the Fiscal Responsibility Act, the Honourable Third Official Member made a statement regarding these D-Plans. He said: "Madam Speaker, since 1992, the annual budget has provided for the preparation of Departmental Plans (D-PLANS), 3-year projections of capital expenditure and, in some cases, 3-year projections of recurrent and statutory expenditure tied to these Plans. [Makes sense all the way.] In addition, the draft Medium Term Financial Strategy and Public Sector Investment Programme document is currently undergoing its third revision to encompass the period, 1996-1998. It is expected that with the finalisation of this third revision, combined with the rationalisation of, and enhancements to the budget preparation and implementation process; the ongoing activities of the Public Sector Investment Committee; and the update of the computerised debt recording and management system; that the key elements of a medium to long term fiscal planning process would have been put in place." (Hansard 14 September 1995)

It is obvious from this statement made on 14 September 1995, that the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development and his team knew then the direction in which they should be headed. He went back as far as 1992 to talk about the Departmental Plans, and here we are with a Budget for 1998 and all of that is through the window. I am told it is an interim measure and will be corrected in the future. I contend, if that is the case and we can throw away a whole year (and it is not a big deal, we can pick it up next year) when it comes to the country's money and how it is spent, I wonder if any of us is acting responsibly.

I mentioned on Monday that with the absence of these Departmental Plans in a Budget Document, accepted and approved by Finance Committee, I would like to understand how the departments operate. Where are their specific goals for the next year? I am not saying they do not have them, but certainly, enshrined in a Budget document gives it much more credence and cause for much more accountability.

I hold the view that without these D-Plans in the document, the discipline of working towards specific goals is gone. Even as legislators, without knowing what these plans are, how are we expected to participate in the process? As we talk about participating in the process this is something that I cannot fail to mention here. The way I understand the operation of the Budget process, departments are given deadlines to prepare their budgets for the next year, that is, what they think they need to operate during the next fiscal year. Heads of Departments then deal with the Permanent Secretaries to whom they are directly responsible. After a certain amount of hashing out, the Ministers, or Official Members responsible for the departments, see what is happening and it goes back and forth a couple of times. I think we all know that because every Budget has had to be cut. People always jack things up a little bit (because they know cuts are coming) with the hope that it will strike its own level and get to where it should be.

After that is put together, Executive Council sits and thrashes certain things out and more cuts go on to ensure a balanced Budget. Then they get to the real McCoy and put the figures together. Mr. Speaker, I am not standing here today begging anyone to allow me to be part of the process. But I am going to tell you what grieves me to my. . . I cannot tell you where!

I understand that during the process of the preparation of this Budget. . .

Mr. Roy Bodden: And the last one! And the one before!

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: . . . there was either an individual or individuals—it does not matter if it was one or ten, and it does not matter who it is, I am not dealing with persons. I am dealing with principle here. I understand that individuals who have nothing to do with either being Members of the Legislature, being civil servants in appointed positions, but simply members of the public were part and parcel of the decision-making process of how this country's money is going to be spent.

When a Head of Department, who is a civil servant, has to come into a meeting. . . and as it is known and as it is practised, the National Team (the Government of the day) gets together with their 'members'—even those who are not part of Executive Council (I hear all of that)—and they sit down and thrash things out. They feel that that is what keeps them together. That is fine. They have the numbers. But when you have a Head of Department coming in to be drilled by those people, and somebody who is simply a member of the public, but by some association with the National Team sits down in front of that Head of Department and questions that Head of Department. . . it is a shame!

They can say what they want to say, they can come back to me and roll me all over the place, but if that is not contrary to the Democratic process, then I want somebody to tell me what is!

Mr. Roy Bodden: Hear, hear! Especially as they were rejected at the polls!

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: They keep coming back about the Opposition acting in a responsible fashion. I mean, the reason I chose to say that in this public forum, Mr. Speaker, is because it must stop! All walls have ears. I know it, but they know it too. I have found that just to talk rationally sometimes, not only am I not listened to, but people use the opportunity to turn it against me. So, in instances like these, they can turn against me all they want to, the rest of the world is going to know about it too.

We have a Budget which tells me nothing about what is going on with my country for the next year, besides a few figures. There are four of us who sit in this Legislative Assembly who had nothing to do with the preparation of the Budget. I am not going to bat for the four of us. That is not my point. But if we really want to get technical, the four of 'us' I am referring to are: the Third Elected Member for George Town, the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, the Fourth Elected Member for George Town, and me.

There were over 5,000 votes cast among these four people. Are you going to tell me that individuals who were rejected by the public are going to sit and participate in the process and when it is over bring it to people like me, and I must participate and say 'yes'?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Hear, hear! Now you are putting it right!

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, I do not know how they see that, but to me that is an insult to the people of this country!

Mr. Roy Bodden: God bless you. Preach, brother, preach!

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: That is an insult to the people of this country.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Exactly. Now you are putting it right! That's my kind of expression now!

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, I will move on, but let me just say that as long as I am here—and I am not the one who rants and raves all of the time, the world knows that—if I know that happens again, I will personally take to the streets of this country, because it is morally wrong to deal with that. . .

Mr. Roy Bodden: It is against the Westminster style of government too.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: . . . and expect that everything must go smooth and. . . Talking about that, another thing I have to mention is that it is a shame that the Civil Service in this country lives in fear of some portions of the political directorate. It is a crying shame! It is so unfortunate that some of us can only perform when those are the circumstances that prevail. It is almost like we are afraid of our own shadow. Because of that they have to make everybody afraid of theirs. But God is not sleeping, and a change is coming. I think the good, sensible people of this country are going to see that happens by due process.

We look at the general reserves. There is a figure of $1 million this year. It has been said that because there are other priorities, Public Service Pension Fund and a couple of other things, it is difficult to deal with any more funds going to general reserves. The Third Elected Member for George Town and a few others have mentioned that the figure in the general reserves now is disproportionate to what it takes to run the country on an annual basis. What we have to bear in mind is that these are the boom times. The Government continuously speaks about the boom, and the rest of us are grateful to God that we still enjoy a fairly good life. But, that is not the way it is going to be all the time: Because of outside forces there are going to be lean times.

I contend that regardless of what else we want to do, we must save for a rainy day. When those lean times come it takes Government to help jump-start the economy. It has happened before. If we go by history, it will happen again. The only way Government is in a position to do that is if there are reasonable general reserves, so that it can either be creditable with borrowing or use some of those reserves to deal with certain capital projects to get the ball rolling. The way we are going now, if we get into the next millennium and have a downward trend, $12 million in general reserves will not do anything.

For the past three years, every Budget has called for us to engage in somewhere around $40 million worth of capital projects—and that is normal! So that is a word of warning. Regardless of how you have to balance your Budget, there are certain priorities that have to line up. After that you deal with what you can. That is my position.

The borrowing of 1996 to 1997 to this Budget going into 1998 have shown a specific upward trend. The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development has quoted the magic figure that debt service should not exceed ten percent of recurrent revenue. Every time some of us question the trend, we are told 'But, we are not above ten percent.' I know. But we keep inching closer to that.

Let me tell you what else nobody has taken into consideration in the whole scheme of things, Mr. Speaker. The people in the public live every day. If Government's position is that it has to continuously placate the public, put them into a mindset that every year we must find some other better service to keep providing for the public, with nobody bearing in mind what the cost is; as we increase services (and it does not take a genius to understand this) it is going to increase recurrent expenditure next year because whatever that service is, we will have to continue operating it. As we inch closer to that magic figure of ten percent, I want to know which person (or persons) after many years of a trend, after having a certain mindset, is going to suddenly get up and say, 'OK, fellas, it is time now, we are at ten percent. It has to stop'? I want someone to tell me that.

Mr. Roy Bodden: And deprive them of services to which they have become accustomed?

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Do you know what that trend is, Mr. Speaker? Political expedience is going to be the order of the day.

Mr. Roy Bodden: That is the term.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Whoever is returned to power, in order to maintain that political power base, is going to try to satisfy the public. The public does not know any better—that is what you have been telling them all the time.

Mr. Roy Bodden: True.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Some little voice crying in the wilderness is going to get slaughtered because it said something sensible. That is what is going to happen to us. But we must not talk like that. We must not tell the truth. The public does not want to hear that. They had better hear it, because it is going to happen!

Mr. Roy Bodden: Sooner rather than later.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: If every year we have to borrow, that means that Government continually provides more services than its earning power will allow. If it were not doing it, it would not have to borrow.

Somebody will now say that my thought is insular because we sometimes have to borrow. Correct. So, let it not be said that I am suggesting that the country does not need to engage in borrowing from time to time. Nothing like that. But, when you are borrowing based on how you wake up every morning, that is not right. You must have a plan; you must know where you want to get. Then you can say, 'After having costed out what it is going to take for us to get where we want to get, this is how we are going to prudently borrow as we go along and keep paying as we go until we get there.' But that is not what we are doing. We are like a chicken with its head cut off.

Every time the Budget comes around, everyone is scrambling and crazy to get it all put together to be able to present with nice words this wonderful document and the country is in good shape. That is what is happening to us.

Mr. Roy Bodden: I personally know who can speak now with great airs and flowery language!

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I hold the view that as the rest of the world is advancing, if what I saw happen this time around is allowed to continue, we are simply going back into the dark ages.

How can we have Ministries and Portfolios with their own individual plans, aspirations and hopes, and have nothing put together as a financial plan which will allow all those aspirations to become reality? Do you know what we do? We wait until we realise we cannot make it this time, so we find which other dead horse we can beat for more revenue. No innovation whatsoever.

If we need to help balance the Budget with our projected revenue, we jack up one area which is always doing well, and that helps. Hopefully at the end of the year the shortfall will not be so high that we cannot make up for it somewhere else. Let me tell you something else: Every Jack, man and his brother who understands the process knows that what I am saying is one hundred per cent true. I want to see if without any war we can suddenly come up with a concerted effort to get it right for the sake of the people of this country.

We will wake up one morning and find out it is all gone, just from living in this fancified dream world in which everything is nice. It takes a little bit of gumption, a little hard work, a little fortitude and a testing of the minds to be able to develop medium- and long-term plans, and to have the will to understand and accept that this is how we should see ourselves ten years from now.

But because nothing has happened thus far that we have not been able to handle, we sit back and relax and figure that everything will be all right. By the time something really bad happens, I will be out of it. I will not have to worry. It will be somebody else's worry. The majority of us here have children. I think that, with respect, some of us may have grandchildren. That makes the responsibility heavier. Having said that I will wait, with regard to the Budget itself, to hear how wrong I have been.

Against that backdrop, the problem I have with the way the Budget was presented this time leaves me to take the view that that method (whatever it was) goes totally against the new reinvention process supposedly taking place.

My understanding is that the reinvention of the Public Service is about doing things differently but with increased efficiency; being open about the use of public funds; being held accountable for the use of public funds. Reinvention is a quest for better government. My understanding is that reinvention is not about changing what is, but, rather, about creating what is not. It is about changing people's attitudes and their mindset. Of course, I understand that this has to be an ongoing process to be able to continue to work. What I just mentioned about the Budget tells me the exact opposite of what reinvention is all about.

There have been some visits to New Zealand. With this whole reinvention of the Public Service, there have been many areas in New Zealand's approach to running their country that some people feel are good examples for us to follow, to apply to our own circumstances. The reinvention of the Government Services is integral to the way budgets will be prepared, and in general, to the way the country's money will be spent, and also to the vision the country will have. I am going to take a few minutes here, with your permission, Mr. Speaker, to read a few excerpts from a couple of documents, with the hope that those in the political process, especially, who, if they are only at the level of tolerance with this reinvention process, might see the light and go a bit further, not just to tolerate what might be happening, but to try to help it, to speed it up, so we can get somewhere. Because as much as we talk about the economy booming, when it comes to the management of a country, we are as stagnant as Meagre Bay Pond.

Mr. Speaker, the Fiscal Responsibility Act of 1994 for New Zealand, in its commencement, says a few things I think are very pertinent, and I will quote:

“An act to improve the conduct of fiscal policy by specifying principles of responsible fiscal management, and by strengthening the reporting requirements of the Crown.” In our case that would simply be the Government. And in particular, “(a) by requiring the Minister of Finance to report regularly to the House of Representatives on the extent to which the Government’s fiscal policy is consistent with the specified principles of responsible fiscal management, and to justify in his or her report any departures made by the Government from those principles.

“(b) by requiring all the Crown’s financial reporting to be in accordance with generally accepted accounting practice.

“(c) by requiring the Minister of Finance to publish, at least three months before the start of each financial year, a budget policy statement containing the Government’s long-term objectives for fiscal policy, its broad strategic priorities for the budget for that financial year, and its fiscal intentions for that and the next two financial years.”

So you see, there is a path to follow, and also, “to lay before the House of Representatives on the day on which the first Appropriation Bill relating to a financial year is introduced, a fiscal strategy report assessing the consistency of the budget with the budget policy statement, and providing progress outlooks for the next ten years, and an economic and fiscal update prepared by the Treasury for the next three years.” So you have your long-term plan, and your medium- to short-term plan.

“To publish in December of each financial year an economic and fiscal update prepared by the Treasury for the next three years, [I think I read that] and to publish before each general election [this is another important one] an economic and fiscal update prepared by the Treasury for the next three years.

The purpose of that, Mr. Speaker, is even if your political directorate changes hands, you have a course. If the captain dies on the ship, she is on her way to a port if somebody has to take over. There is a reason for all of this.

Lastly it says, “To lay before the House of Representatives towards the end of each financial year a fiscal update prepared by the Treasury for that year, including forecast estimated actual financial statements for the Crown.”

So in a few short paragraphs, if we were to grab that, take it and run with it, first of all the person who is just hearing it is going to say, ‘That’s gon’ cost us a whole pile a’ money!’ Not so! It is costing us more in my view now to do nothing! Because the same people in place doing all the other things being done now for us can easily operate a system of that manner, in my view. I am no expert, but the way I visualise it, I see it can be done. It is all a different mindset, and having specific goals.

Mr. Speaker, to give an idea of what I believe we should be doing with the entire process—and I am not for a minute saying that I have sat down and figured all this out for myself—it is just that as you read the experiences of others, sometimes you are able to place that into your own situation and make some sense out of it. That is the whole purpose. Others benefit from others as we go along.

There were two documents circulated not too long ago from the same New Zealand effort. The first one is “New Opportunities.” It is a Government strategy statement towards 2010. In the foreword, the Prime Minister of New Zealand says, “The Government has done its part by using the extra resources available to it to carefully balance competing demands. Debt repayment has been central to our strategy. We will continue to reduce public debt. Net public foreign currency debt is projected to be eliminated altogether in the next coming financial year. Spending will continue to be directed to areas of highest priority.” They have good sense! “We will be introducing new initiatives to strengthen our communities and to better protect the environment.” Now Mr. Speaker, I do not think that man is a genius, but in simple language, what he is saying they have been doing, and it works, is the mindset we must have in this country. And it will work! It will work! We are doing everything wrong now and it is working, imagine if we did it right!

The Speaker: Would this be a convenient time to take the morning break?

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Yes, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: We shall suspend for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.20 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12.17 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Debate on the Appropriation Bill continues. The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Mr. Speaker, I am going to move on to show some of the vision from the territory of New Zealand, and to show how similar we should be with the vision I am talking about. Let it be known to the Government that I am not just speaking on my behalf, but I am speaking on behalf of the Opposition, of whom they are wondering if we are responsible.

Before I get into specifics, I forgot to say earlier when I was speaking about the Fiscal Responsibility Act of 1994, that the lady who was then the Minister of Finance for New Zealand, by the name of Ruth Richardson, piloted that piece of legislation through the New Zealand Parliament. She is a lawyer by profession, too, Mr. Speaker. She made a statement, “The richer your country is, the longer you can afford to be stupid." Any sensible person would take heed from that statement, Mr. Speaker, and I am not going to talk five or ten minutes about that. I just hope we will remember that and understand what that means so we do not wait until we are poor to stop being stupid.

Mr. Speaker, as the documents continue to be produced by the New Zealand Government to keep their vision intact, here are their thoughts about the people of their country. In the introduction to the next document that was produced, called "The Next Three Years," the Prime Minister said, "The need to further improve the Government's financial position is urgent. Accumulated debt and the pressures we will face early next century mean we must save for our future now. This document highlights the reasons for the sustained economic growth we are now experiencing, but," he warns his people, "this growth cannot and must not be taken for granted." He is basically saying that we have to be careful and prudent with our fiscal policies, and how we manage our country's money; we must make sure that our public debt does not get out of hand; and we must save for a rainy day.

He goes on to say, "We want all New Zealanders who are able to work, to do so." He justifies his statement by saying, "Studies show the longer people are out of work, the harder it becomes to get them back into the labour force." It has been touted that we have over-employment. I have discussed that before. But if we have over-employment, then those who are not employed seem not to exist, Mr. Speaker. Those are the types of goals we must have in mind.

He talks about a number of New Zealand families facing a particular disadvantage, problems such as poor health and housing, limited education, work experience, and social skills that can be passed from generation to generation. Some of us might think it does not happen here, but it has been happening and it continues to happen. He calls that a "cycle of disadvantage." Those are the issues we need to be addressing. He says, "The Government is committed to breaking the cycle and to helping those that are most disadvantaged." He goes on to say that there is a new plan that is going to be implemented called "The Skill New Zealand Programme." That programme will be expanded with the aim of placing all school-leavers into training if they do not go on to post-secondary study or work.

Mr. Speaker, that is so important. He is saying that all school-leavers will find themselves in three categories: they either go to post-secondary, or tertiary education; they go into the work force; or they exist. We have those same three categories here, but he is saying they will be implementing a programme with the aim of placing all of them into training if they do not fall into the other two categories.

Those highlights are leaning to a vision, a vision, I contend, we must similarly have in this country. In 1995, after both documents I quoted from were produced, there is no ease-up because it is an ongoing process. He talks about budget now, and he says, "The strategic result areas are published together with a budget policy statement and investing in our future as part of the series of public documents. These documents aim to share the results of the strategic management process and build an understanding with the people of what Government intends to accomplish." That is what we should be doing. It will also tell how it plans to go about using its own agencies. That is the same thing as our departments. "These strategic result areas demonstrate in quite real terms what we are asking our departments to focus on over the next three years. Experience to date indicates that the strategic result areas for the public sector are helping to translate and operationalise the Government's strategy." Simple but important! There is a plan. There is a forward movement. There is a new wave with a way of thinking. He outlines the various areas in very real terms, Mr. Speaker. "Particular emphasis will be placed on meeting the objectives for sound fiscal management set out in the Fiscal Responsibility Act of 1994, to achieve and sustain a prudent level of debt, to achieve positive net worth, [that's your savings] to ensure the prudent management of fiscal and business risk, and to ensure stable [and here's a wonderful statement] and predictable tax rates." That means they are not going to wake up one morning and have to tell the public, 'Look, sorry we didn't tell you this, but we're going to have to up the duty on so-and-so and so-and-so.'

He goes on to talk about the "establishment, implementation and monitoring of legislative frameworks for the fair and efficient conduct of business." Then he talks about the "development of policies for the sustainable growth of the tourism sector, based upon avoiding, remedying or mitigating adverse effects on the environmental attractions on which the industry depends, and upon the development and maintenance of an appropriate infrastructure." That's the vision we must have, Mr. Speaker!

There are just a few more areas I want to show when we are talking about where we are going and what we should be aiming towards. When it comes to education and training, he says, "Particular emphasis will be placed on development of programmes and a curriculum that will enable an increasing proportion of children to receive effective early childhood care and education, particularly those at risk." He talks about "improved systems for the effective delivery of resources to students and providers to enable the flexible provision of educational services to the community, and in particular, to target groups within it."

When he mentions about education, Mr. Speaker, and talking about reaching all the children, for us, we should be looking to do the same, rather than when we quote statistics about success on exams, the way we figure the percentages is based only on how many children took the exams. Everybody who reads those results say they are wonderful. But we are not saying who did not take the exams! That is the kind of stuff we need to be dealing with!

When it comes to social assistance, social services, he says, “Particular emphasis will be placed on development of policies and procedures to provide greater incentives for more people to make the transition out of benefit dependency and towards work force participation.” If we talk about our Social Services Department, Mr. Speaker, I know the social workers have in their minds this same thing. They would love to see their clients get back into the workforce and become their own breadwinners. But they do not have anything to work with to get it done. That is what we need to be working at.

He talks about “development of comprehensive and well-tailored programmes to address the needs of the long-term unemployed.” We have them here too! But you know what we are doing with them? We are fingering them as we pass on the roads, “Che! He don’ wanna work, she don’ wanna work, don’ fool with her.” That is what is going to ruin us.

Then he talks about “development of housing policies that broaden the options available to low income New Zealanders.” We have given that some lip service here too, but that is all it has been.

Mr. Speaker, when he quotes Central Government finance, here is how the projections are working:

“1994 Public Debt, $46.4 billion

1995 Public Debt, $44 billion

1996 Public Debt, $41.5 billion”

That is a bigger country, so we are talking billions of dollars. But you notice, it goes from 46 down to 44 down to 41. Cayman, 1995, $51 million; 1996 $67 million; 1997, $82 million; 1998 unknown, but more still. The total opposite.

All the things I just mentioned that they are doing in New Zealand were to show that without reinventing the wheel, we have access to change the way we are doing things and make it better. Any time I speak about Government, it is because they are the Government of the day. It does not matter who it is. What is being done today was being done yesterday, and the day before, and the year before. I am saying that regardless of who was there, or who is there, we now understand it—we know we have to change the way we do business in this country. Let us do it! That is what I am saying. It is not meant to show up this one or the next one. It is not that I am apologising for what I have said. I am saying that if we are going to be the responsible representatives and policy-makers we are supposed to be at the two levels of this legislature, let us do it right, because we now know what we have to do, to do it right.

The Opposition has been challenged to provide alternatives rather than oppose for the sake of opposing. I think we have just done that. We do not profess to know it all, and there are others who know what we are talking about here too. We did not get it first. But our attempt is to make sure that all of the people in the process take a hands-on approach and help it along so that we can see a brighter tomorrow for us and for those who come behind us. That is what we are here for, if we call ourselves representatives of the people.

The 1994 Fiscal Responsibility Act and its addendum, when the Motion was brought in 1995, were cut away because it came from the wrong source. I am asking that we forget who is who; let us remember that we are supposed to be working toward the same goals. Let us respect opinions passed by others and decipher any merit they may have.

We talk about vision. The Opposition takes the position that we need to have two visions—how the Government should work and the direction the country should take. That is the way we think. We believe Government should work on the basis of accountability. We believe security of tenure must be based on performance. But we also believe that the policy-makers who are the elected arm of Government must be willing to allow the experts in the Service enough autonomy to perform their duties to the best of their abilities.

The policy-makers develop the plan, the Civil Service executes the plan. If the policy-makers know more than the Civil Service how to execute the plan, what is the purpose of the Civil Service? The reason I mention a certain amount of autonomy within the Service is because for what it is going to take to move forward—and I pray to God that He puts it in our minds to do so—we are going to need a certain amount of innovation.

This thing cannot work like the courts work—English Common Law based on precedents. We cannot continue to look back at how somebody did something last week or last year in the Service and do it the same way. Times are changing. We cannot do that. For them to be able to do what they have to do, they too have to have a certain amount of autonomy. It is not frightening because if there is accountability along with autonomy they are going to do it right, and you will not have to worry about it.

The truth of the matter is that if the policy-makers want it to work right, they must display enough confidence in those who are going to execute the task. There is no reason why they should not. I just remembered. . . let me tell you what the problem is, Mr. Speaker. In a document handed out to us about the reinvention of the Public Services, and this is a local document, and here is where we get different thinking. We get the public saying, ‘Boy, they can waste money.’ We get the public servant saying, ‘No one appreciates how hard I work. But at least (the way the system works) they can’t fire me.’ We get the Heads of Departments at a different level, because they are trying to make the whole thing work, saying to themselves, ‘If the policy-makers would only tell me today what they want done tomorrow, maybe I would survive.’ That is the vision.

Of course, the policy-makers as a rule say they cannot trust anyone. So, we are dysfunctional!

Mr. Roy Bodden: True! I wish they were here getting this lesson in public administration.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: We have to change the way we do it. I mentioned earlier what I hold very near and dear to me, that the Civil Service should not feel muzzled. They should be able to function.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Hear, hear! They are equal partners.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: If it is working right, and being done right, what is there to hide? I am making a general comment. I, too, understand that there are matters which are confidential. I have no problem with that. Truthfully, I do not want to know it, because then I cannot make a mistake about it. I have no problem with that. But the ordinary day-to-day happenings, and I have seen it time and time again. . . no one knows where a good suggestion might come from if the working relationships were on an even keel and confidence built. Someone might hear that something is happening and with their experience could say, 'If you thought about it like this, maybe. . .' Sure. But that cannot happen because they fear their own shadow.

That is how we feel Government should work. When it comes to the direction the country should take, much of what I read from the New Zealand documents can be taken out, fine-tuned to fit our own situation, and acted upon. We will find good things happening for us.

Something you will hear on the odd occasion, but which we consider very important, Mr. Speaker, we need to know or to decide as a country ten years from now what our population should be. We should not be fighting with Immigration policies morning, noon and night reacting to this, reacting to that. Too many people who are innocent are hurting because of it. And at the end of the day we do not know what we are doing. If we could come to grips with that, we would be able to set out a plan to achieve that population level within that given time. But we do not do that.

Immigration policies are continually based on situations that arise. We have reactive measures to those situations, and natural justice never takes its proper course.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Boy, you are speaking like a Daniel come to judgement now!

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: We talk about population growth and population levels, and it extends itself to the very schools. If you know what population you would like the country to have, based on sustainable growth (because that is all in the plan), and you want your people to survive and live the way they have been or better, you would know, based on population trends and statistics, how many bodies you must have schools for. You do not wait until you have more students than the schools can accommodate, you start to build them. There lie your priorities.

It all sounds complicated, but once you get used to it, it is the same as doing your bank deposit—counting your money, putting it in the bank and keeping your balance so you know how much you can spend.

It is probably time for me to rest now. There were a few things, but I think they may be better left unsaid at this point. There will be other times. But the thrust of my argument with regard to the Budget and the Budget Address is that we need to work out where we are going.

The very last thing that came to my mind in a discussion very recently. . . and let me show you the difference between precedent and what is right. As long as this Parliament has existed, we have the presentation of the Budget prior to the Throne Speech. It never occurred to me, because I, too, was stereotyped into the system, but let us think about it: When the Budget process is completed it decides how the money is going to be spent for the next year in the country. Four or five months later, His Excellency comes to the nation to give a State of the Nation Address and state the aspirations for the next year—but it has already been decided how the money is going to be spent.

Mr. Roy Bodden: True.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: So, which is right?

Mr. Roy Bodden: You have new thinkers on this side now.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Which is right? No problems, life has gone on; but that is the kind of thing we need to think about. If we have our policy documents in place when we know how much money we have to spend, we can determine in order of priority how it will be spent and we will know from there on what the priorities will be for next year and the year after.

Mr. Roy Bodden: True. We here are the visionaries of the twenty-first Century.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Far be it from me to think I know it all. Whatever I have said today has been gathered from another document or from discussion with other individuals. But I am not for one second afraid to say that my life will continue to be a learning process. I trust that others in here will accept that principle and let us move on to make this country a better one.

I say, finally, in regard to the way the country must be doing business, that I firmly believe that the principles of the reinvention process can be applied to make things a lot better. I also firmly believe that those involved directly with the process, namely, the Civil Servants, are capable and ready for that process to take place; they are anxiously awaiting the change because they want to see better results.

Let us, as elected representatives, whether on the Back Bench, or as Members of the executive arm of Government, do what we must to make sure that becomes a reality, works the right way. Let us throw political expedience out the window; let us do what is right. I am sure when we will fall away from here and go to pasture, we will feel a lot better knowing we made our mark on our country by doing the right thing to plan for the future.

Thank you.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Hear, hear! Excellent. That should show where the vision is—on this side of the House!

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak?
(Pause) Does any other Member wish to speak?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, under Standing Order 23(8) I move that the question be put.

The Speaker: I would like to give every Member a chance. Does any other Member wish to speak?

The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

As I rise to make my contribution and respond to this Budget Address for 1998, which was so eloquently presented by the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development, I would first like to give thanks to Almighty God for His faithfulness, His mercy, love, grace and blessings which He continues to bestow upon me, personally, as well as the entire Cayman Islands. Truly, if we count our many blessings we must be grateful for all God has done for us in our beloved Cayman Islands.

As with most things in life, we will experience many problems. We do not live in a utopia. Regardless of which Government occupies these five chairs across the floor of this Honourable Chamber forming the Executive Council, there will still not be a perfect world.

The Psalmist reminds us “a nation without a vision shall perish.” I fully concur. But I also adhere to the ideology that if we continue to prosper financially or otherwise, obedience to God’s commandments must form the central core of this vision for our country. This vision, I daresay, is not solely the responsibility of Executive Council. I make this statement because each Member of Executive Council is elected by the elected Members of this House who are first elected by the people of these wonderful islands. Therefore, I am of the view that this vision should evolve from a consultative process commencing with what our people want, passed on to their representatives and then to Executive Council for formalisation, crystallisation and then implementation.

Permit me, please, to also sincerely thank those Members who supported my nomination, as well as the five other Members across the floor who exercised their discretion not to support the nomination. For the avoidance of doubt, let me hasten to say categorically that whether I received the support of Members has absolutely no bearing in my commitment to serve the people better. That is all of the people, Mr. Speaker.

When I campaigned back in 1996, my motto was (and still is) that I was committed to serve our beloved people of the Cayman Islands better. My commitment remains the same, even as I stand in this Honourable Chamber. Therefore, I will publicly solicit the assistance of all Honourable Members. I feel confident that in the exercise of their civic duty all Members will wholeheartedly support my Ministry—an entire Government for the betterment of the people in our Islands. I look forward to working closely with each Member of this Honourable Parliament for the betterment of the same.

Turning now to Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, I am happy to say that the special economic incentives which the Government introduced back in 1996 have been extended for a further year. Further, Cayman National Bank has extended the special mortgages to July 1998. Both of these moves have met the objective of jump-starting the ever sluggish economy on Cayman Brac in particular. The construction and real estate industries have started to show some positive signs of revival. Consequently, we are slowly beginning to see a positive ripple-down effect on Cayman Brac.

I am encouraged by confirmation of the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development in his Budget Address that the proposal for the Strategic Development of Cayman Brac is now under consideration. The Committee which was set up some time ago, the Brac Economic Steering Committee, now a full Committee, has worked long, hard hours showing their dedication and commitment to Cayman Brac. I am of the view that they are concerned citizens desirous of working toward a better Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. I now recommend that the priority which the Committee spent time formulating be given serious consideration by the Government and the entire House with the view of reaching the implementation stage as soon as possible.

Further, I believe that much can be gained in regard to the Brac if attention were also centred around sustainable economic growth and efforts directed at identifying projects or any other viable and practical thing that would achieve this goal.

Mr Speaker, the following are but a few of the things I believe will assist in this journey towards achieving sustainable economic growth on Cayman Brac:

1) Approved air transport link with Grand Cayman and the United States.

2) reduced telephone tariff between Grand Cayman and Cayman Brac and Little Cayman rather than the extremely high rate which the residents there now have to pay. I believe if this is done, it will not only assist the residents of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, but will serve as a positive catalyst for encouraging businesses to bring some of their office work to the Brac in particular.

3) Relocation of Government back office work to the Brac. This is an area that has been discussed year after year. On behalf of the people, I would be extremely grateful to see the first move in this direction, as I believe our people have waited long enough for this to occur.

4) Augmenting the Planning Office by increasing the staff complement on the Brac. I would like to thank the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning and the Government for voting the funds this past year so that the Planning Office can, after such a long time, have a proper facility in which to operate and to accommodate the growing needs of the public on the Brac.

5) I believe that the construction of a hangar and a maintenance facility at the Gerrard Smith Airport would also be a move in the right direction, especially if there is a private person wishing to do it. That would obviate the need for Government having to spend this money, which could be used in many other crucial areas, either on Cayman Brac and Little Cayman or Grand Cayman.

6) Looking at the possibility of the creation of a free trade zone, this has been flirted with, but I believe the time is right for this to be further pursued. If pursued in the right direction, I believe this can help to sustain economic growth in Cayman Brac.

7) Improvement to the West End Channel. The need for this was so very evident during the visit of the cruise ships since November 1996, when problems were experienced with this very dangerous channel. I can speak of this first-hand as I was present on the Brac for the first cruise ship arrival when we had the unfortunate mishap. I found myself in the sea with water almost to my shoulders trying to salvage the situation. We all know that the tourism industry is a very fickle and delicate industry. If we want to see cruise tourism prosper on the Brac, it is my humble and respectful opinion that we must be prepared to put in the necessary infrastructure to facilitate this industry.

8) Relocation of the landfill site on the Brac. Again, this has been an area talked about for many, many years. I am happy to see allocation in this year's Estimates for this to take place. I look forward to this actually being passed. The site is presently located in one of our prime areas for hotel/condo and tourism development. To say that its present location is not aesthetically pleasing is an understatement.

9) Extension of the Water Authority pipelines throughout the entire island. The former Minister of Community Development, as I understand, while visiting the Brac with Executive Council some months ago, gave an undertaking to have these waterlines extended. Although this responsibility no longer rests with my Ministry, but has been passed on to the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works, I have every confidence that he will honour the undertaking of the former Minister. But, more importantly, he will do all that is possible to meet our people's needs.

It was encouraging to note that all the main sectors of our domestic economy recorded good growth in 1997. It is also important to note, however, that this does not necessarily reflect all three of the Cayman Islands. Those figures would basically reflect the situation on Grand Cayman, as Cayman Brac and Little Cayman did not experience this degree of prosperity. Nonetheless, the people of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman are extremely appreciative of all the efforts being made to stimulate their economy.

Moving on to the area of tourism as it related to the Budget Address, there has been a small tourism office established in the West End of Cayman Brac in the vicinity of the West End Community Park. I daresay that the location is a very appropriate and aesthetically pleasing environment for both the domestic and international tourist.

Further, the sinking of the Russian Destroyer, the MV KP Tibbetts, has proved to be a project which was visionary—one that attracted much criticism at the time it was sought to be implemented. It has proved to be one of the most popular dive sites both for the local as well as expatriate tourist divers who come to our shores. This certainly has acted as a positive catalyst in stimulating our dive industry in Cayman Brac in particular.

It is also hoped that cruise tourism will once again get off to a healthy start on the Brac. We realise that we are in need of infrastructural development to implement this venture. For example, the docking facilities are in need of extension and repair. I look forward to this project being started in the very near future and seek the support of all Members, as I believe this is a project that should be prioritised and contained in any Budget.

Further, I believe that the West End Channel needs to be improved. I am happy to see that a figure has been put into the 1998 Estimates to do this. If the funds prove insufficient, I ask all Members to render their whole-hearted support, because in so doing it would allow the people of Cayman Brac to achieve the goal of being financially independent, and we will not have to come to this Honourable House so often seeking support. Until that time, I ask Members to continue to give their vote, be it sympathetic or otherwise, for the betterment of those people who are Caymanians as well.

Like the Honourable Third Official Member, I too anticipate that with the help of Almighty God, 1998 will be a brighter year for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman and Grand Cayman. I note, however, with an element of concern, that recurrent expenditure is up by 9.5% over the 1995 figure projected by the Treasury Department. I am also fully cognisant that our people continue to require more and more services. This is not uncommon in an affluent and service-conscious community as we have here in the Cayman Islands. But there has to be a balance with the issue of affordability and whether or not it is economically feasible.

Of course, there will always be exceptions. And any good Government should have the inherent flexibility to accommodate such exceptions.

Mr. Speaker, I see that it is nearing the time, and perhaps we could take the break now, as I plan to move on to a totally different area.

The Speaker: We will suspend until 2.30.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.39 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.55 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Debate on the Appropriation Bill continues. The Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Continuing my contribution to the Budget Address, I would now move to the Kirkconnell Community Care Centre in Cayman Brac. Indeed, I am extremely grateful that this Centre has now been placed with my Ministry, and I am thankful for the support Government and this entire Honourable House has given to this Community Care Centre. It is quite obvious that it was a very needed service, as already there are a number of persons who need to be in this facility, but because of space limitations, or fiscal restraints, they cannot be accommodated presently.

I am also delighted to see that there is an allocation in the 1998 Estimates for air conditioning of the rest home, as presently the elderly there are experiencing much discomfort under such hot and humid conditions. Mr. Speaker, I am also grateful for the assistance which Government has given to the residents of the Brac who were badly affected by severe flooding in June of this year. However, presently there are still persons remaining who were affected by the flood, and have not yet been assisted because of time and fiscal restraints. But, as we Caymanians have always been a caring, considerate and generous people, I believe I am safe when I say that all Honourable Members will support the financing of this humanitarian act.

Mr. Speaker, I fully realise it is sometimes easier to cut areas where the tangible results are slow in coming, but I would implore all Honourable Members to continue to support the social needs and welfare of our three Islands because, Mr. Speaker, unless we pay special attention to the needs of our people, irrespective of what district they come from, we will in effect be inciting a cancerous social cell which will ultimately determine our future success. Mr. Speaker, the family is a basic, fundamental building block in our society. It is not a machine, but it is an emotional entity, and money and time spent to improve family life will benefit the entire Cayman Islands.

Sir, we are also entering an era where persons are finally becoming more aware of their culture, and having the courage to ask questions like, Who am I? Where did I come from? Where do I want to go? And what role does my culture have to play in this journey of life? Mr. Speaker, unlike some segments of our society, I am of the persuasion that we do in fact have a Caymanian culture, which is by no means static, but continues to evolve as time moves on. Again, this is an area with which my Ministry is concerned, and I am grateful for the support of all Members in this regard. I am of the view that this is but one area whereby our educational institutions, be it private or public, can formulate a partnership, and they can be a vehicle whereby our Caymanian culture can be taught and experienced.

Cayfest is but one area, Sir, that the Ministry utilises to initiate and facilitate the awareness and actuality of culture in our community. Cayfest incorporates a diverse number of events, which are continually being improved upon, and with the requisite funds being made available, the Ministry looks forward to having a bigger and even better Cayfest in 1998.

Mr. Speaker, I am also grateful that there is an allocation for improvements to the museums, and the Ministry is pleased with the great strides which have been made by both the Archives and museums. The Ministry is of the view, Sir, that we must preserve our history, because if we do not know and appreciate where we are coming from, it is going to be all the more difficult to know where we are going.

Mr. Speaker, a definitive history of the Cayman Islands was commissioned by the Ministry and the past Minister, and this, I am pleased to say, is progressing quite well, as the first and second chapters have already been drafted.

Turning now to the issue of sports as it related to the Address, I believe that sports (as are most, if not all, the responsibilities given to me), are extremely dear to my heart. The Budget Address forecast for 1998 is that it will be a bright year, and the continued unwavering support of sports in our Islands, if continued by this Honourable Parliament, will certainly bring a brighter year. During the past few years, our country has had to play "catch-up," as far as sports is concerned, due to the fact, in my humble and most respectful opinion, that more consideration and priority should have been given. Because of that lack, it is only in the past few years that the Cayman Islands have been given due attention in the area of sports, and a considerable amount of money, I am happy to say, has been expended by the Government. Without fear of contradiction, this has proven to have been a very intelligent and prudent investment. Sports has numerous benefits, and it is my intention to fully publicise these benefits and present them in a more detailed fashion during the Throne Speech response in the upcoming session early next year.

It was indeed a delight to have been afforded the opportunity to open the Women's Centre yesterday afternoon. I would like to once again publicly thank the Mover and the Seconder of the Motion brought in 1995 by the lady Member from North Side, and the past lady Member from George Town, respectively, for their foresight and vision in bringing such a timely Motion to this Honourable House, and indeed, for the past Minister, his dedicated staff, and all Honourable Members who saw fit to support the Motion.

In the midst of such prosperity in the Cayman Islands, our families are under very severe stress, and other social attacks. We must therefore, in my view, commit to repair the breach, and to do all that is within our power to assist in this regard. This Centre, Sir, is but a small step in the right direction. But what is significant about the opening of the Centre is the fact that it is the right step. I trust that all women will avail themselves of this lovely facility, and I look forward to the day when all realise, and live their lives to reflect, that love is not abuse, and abuse is not love. May we quickly approach the level of zero tolerance when it comes to domestic violence and other social ills. Mr. Speaker, as we plan for 1998, let us set our priority to being a unified Caymanian group, with love being the golden clasp holding us each together.

I am a firm believer in successive planning, and that planning must be a consultative process. And, speaking for myself, having been involved in the planning process in these Islands for a number of years as it relates to the physical development, I know it takes much more than mumbling and grumbling to carve out a policy, and to this end I look forward to constructive criticism during the next three years.

Mr. Speaker, I believe that one never stops learning, and I am open to any suggestions and/or recommendations that will improve the well-being and life of my beloved people in the entire Cayman Islands. Mr. Speaker, my colleague, the Second Elected Member from Cayman Brac, and indeed all the residents of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, continue to be extremely grateful and supportive of all the positive efforts being made by the entire Government, be it Back Bench or Executive Council, with respect to these two Islands.

Mr. Speaker, again speaking for myself, and being fully cognisant that I am bound by collective responsibility—but for me, I have my own connotation of that, and I trust it will not contravene the traditional interpretation—but I believe that collective responsibility is only a challenge for one to improve the art of negotiation, and that although those negotiations are to take place, for the most part, in private, it does not mean, certainly for this Member, that my brain will be going into hibernation for the next three years. I would ask that all Honourable Members first think of ourselves as Caymanians and not merely as politicians, and may we use this element—the Caymanian element—as a bonding agent in all our deliberations. Let us therefore purpose in our hearts, mind, body and soul, to continue to remove self, thereby placing our country, our beloved Caymanian people and their needs, where they rightly belong—first and foremost.

Our youth, Sir, are looking on. Our elderly are looking on. Our churches are looking on. Our middle-aged are looking on. And most importantly, and most significantly, God our Creator, is looking on. Let us all strive to put Him in full control, and then and only then will our vision for the Cayman Islands be perfect, satisfying, and complete. Thank you.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I too will try to be as brief as possible. Everybody knows the length of time we have been in the House, and still a long way to go. There has been, in recent days, quite a maturity in the approach of business to this House, and I feel that this is something we can all look forward to as we continue working toward making Cayman a better place for all.

Mr. Speaker, the Budget Address delivered by the Honourable Third Official Member, was quite upbeat. He outlined the improvements we have made with the introduction of the Cayman Islands Stock Exchange, the long-anticipated introduction of the Monetary Authority, and I think in the years to come we will see the dividends from taking this bold step, as many of the other countries in the areas around us have similar vehicles in place.

It was suggested that there was a failure in leadership that may have caused the major problems associated with First Cayman Bank. I personally do not support that train of thought. What has been presented to me, Mr. Speaker, is that what really happened there was that a handful of mischievous people took advantage of the system, and brought ill repute to the Bank. But we have to allow the machinery that has been in place, not only for a situation like this, but has existed for many years in these Islands, which is that when these difficulties occur, they will be addressed through due process of law. This is what we are looking forward to. We must not circumvent the system or undermine it, because one of the biggest assets of the Cayman Islands is the respect people have for our financial industry.

We must be careful with what we do, and how we deal with, not only the local situation, but the foreign involvement. We spent many long hours, seven days a week, trying to alleviate this problem, and we honestly felt it could be salvaged, but it so happened it was not possible, and we had to take the necessary action. As the Honourable Third Official Member said, investor confidence is central to the continuing success of our well-nurtured and well-managed financial industry. In light of what has happened, I feel quite certain that when the depositors' insurance legislation is brought to this House, it will be supported. I look forward to that. It is like locking the gate after the horses get out, but it is never too late to do good, and this is what we are attempting at this time. With the combined efforts of all Members of this Honourable House, this will go a long way toward protecting our people from a similar tragedy in the future.

Touching briefly on development in the Sister Islands, Cayman Brac specifically, the initiatives have been put in place; we have hired a project manager to assist us in going forward; and on a recent visit we all saw the positive results in Cayman Brac. We must address this situation, Mr. Speaker, because if we do not, down the line it could become a huge liability to all of us. We must provide for Cayman Brac and support whatever infrastructure needs to be put in place there. I still think and feel that there is a lot of back office work that could be done over there. They have one of the finest infrastructures per capita of any island in the world, and it is time we put in place what is necessary to bring that beautiful Island back to a decent way of making a living.

The National Health Insurance Law, as we know, was passed in June; also, the National Pensions Law, which covers all employers and employees in the Cayman Islands, with a five-year phase-in for contributions by eligible employees. An insurance scheme was supported years ago, by all Members and people of the Cayman Islands. We must face reality, not only with insurance but with pensions. What are we doing? It is time we encourage our people to save for a rainy day. We cannot go into the twenty-first century with the philosophy that Government must continue to help and help. We help when it is needed, but the people must make provision for their futures. None of us can face the burden of having to repay the cost of medical care if we have to go overseas because of a serious accident or illness. Naturally it is going to cost a few more dollars, but what will it save the people and this country down the line if we gently introduce this? Teach our people! It is our responsibility to let them be aware that it is time to act responsibly and prepare where they can for easing their burdens. Naturally, not all people can do it, and Government will continue to do what it has always done in the past, help those who are unable to do it. But those who can, I say, they should help provide for these services.

It was good to see, regarding the inflation rate, that it was less than two percent for the first half of the year. Yet, we expect an overall growth of over five percent. When we compare this to the other countries around us and throughout the world, I would like to have some of the chronic complainers go around and see some of these places, and then they will much more appreciate how blessed we are in the Cayman Islands. As previous speakers have said, we need to work together to keep that. We must strive toward keeping and making Cayman a better place, and it can only be done with all of us working together for the good of these Islands. There is no place on earth, Mr. Speaker, like our beloved Cayman Islands, and it is time we stopped the negative rhetoric and criticisms, trying to constantly tear each other down, and start working to make these Islands a better place for all of us to live in.

In the Third Official Member's effort to continue to make Cayman the leading financial centre it now enjoys, he has put in place a lot of programmes. One of them that has been very successful is the PSCC—the Public Sector Consultative Committee—where members of the private sector join with Government in planning for the future of this country. This has been very successful, as we have seen when we had to deal with the Proceeds of Criminal Conduct Bill last year. We spent many, many hours bringing this to a solution, one that not only Government could live with, but also the private sector. It shows, Mr. Speaker, what can be done when we work together. When we travelled to the United Kingdom for discussions, we were able to take some of these people with us, and, thank God, we have been successful.

As the Third Official Member said, mutual funds, the most dynamic branch of the financial industry, showed an almost thirty percent increase over the year. When we encourage offshore financial companies to come in here, we have to put fewer taxes on our people. The more we can encourage and make this a better place for people to invest, to establish the confidence they need here, the better off it is for our Caymanians. This confidence has gone over to the banking sector, where we now have almost 600 banks at the end of September 1997. Forty-five of the top fifty banks are now registered here. This indicates to me that we are on the right track. We are doing the right thing, and we must continue this approach by working together with people in the private sector, and, as is evidenced in the last few months, involving all Members of the Legislative Assembly.

Mr. Speaker, regarding tourism, once again the results are there. The efforts put forward by the Honourable Minister have been successful, and it is now said that the Cayman Islands, especially for the tourist ships, is the destination of choice. We have to be aware of what is going on, and continue to work toward making Cayman a better and safer place for all of us to live, thus encouraging the foreign investor.

The development of Pedro St. James Castle, and Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II Botanic Park—it is a special feeling when you go out there and see what we have been able to put together here, and for visitors to see this. It brings back some fond memories, Mr. Speaker, of the little old house with the sand yard and the conch shells of the olden days. These are the days when we were younger and growing up, the days when the men were at sea and the women took care of Cayman. Those are the days that in certain respects Cayman has gotten away from, and we are now suffering in the development of some of our young people, but it is time that we get back to those days.

Continuing to look at the banking situation, total deposits amounted to $402.7 million, an increase of almost eight percent. Fixed deposits were $243.6 million, demand deposits $80 million, savings deposits almost $80 million. It is evident by these figures that maybe Government cannot save money, but the private sector, the people out there, are putting up a nest egg for themselves. I too look forward to the day when so many demands are not placed on Government that we can build a reserve, that in the event of any problems, we will be able to deal with them.

I remember earlier this year, when we introduced certain revenue measures, when we increased, on the Seven Mile Beach area, Stamp Duty from 7 1/2 percent to 10 percent. Doomsday speakers said we would kill development in this country. But according to the figures, Government revenues from land and property transfers increased significantly over the period, from $15.8 million to $17.8 million. We asked these developers to help contribute toward Government's expense in developing the infrastructure to make the Planning Department a financially viable section. It was no more to break even. They fought us all the way, but it did not kill what we did there.

Construction amounting to $214.6 million was approved in the first nine months of the year, a 35% increase over the same period last year. Once again, when we asked the developers to help bear the burden of the expense, it was going to run people away. Thank God, that did not happen. The burden is not as heavy on central Government as it was in the past. As the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development said, the prospects for economic growth in the domestic economy in 1998 continue to be bright.

Regarding the Public Service Pension Fund, there has been a significant increase in the reserves put there. By the end of 1998 it will be over $40 million. This is a significant improvement over 1992 when this Government took over. We will continue to support this Pension Fund because the people who have worked hard for many years should know with confidence that upon their retirement there will be money for them.

When the First Elected Member for West Bay put forward the Housing Reserve Fund, there was much controversy. But it is pleasing to know that some 178 loans valuing $17.3 million have been approved, and that $6 million of guarantees have been issued. Once again, thank God, no guarantees have been called to date.

With regard to the Public Debt, I agree with previous speakers that it is a bit high. Thank goodness we can easily service it. As indicated, it is less than seven per cent of recurrent revenue, well within the ten per cent debt service ceiling established by Government. We must not allow it to get out of hand. These are times of economic boom and it is time that we discipline ourselves with regard to capital development in this country, and slow things down a bit, so when the economy slows we will be able to generate work.

I agree that we should not have to continue to get loans for capital development. But let us look at what this money is used for: road works—and everybody knew we had to do something on the West Bay Road, the Harquail By-pass. It was significant to learn that a project that had been estimated to cost between $7 million and $8 million is probably coming in around $5 million. That does not happen too often.

We spent money on schools and health services. The greatest quantum leap in the history of these islands has taken place in the last two or three years. I will go into more detail on that later on. Mr. Speaker, it seems like we are constantly trying to catch up to the economic boom that has brought pressure upon us to provide services. It is time we looked at more involvement from the private sector, as we know that we have a very limited tax base.

Much has been said about the reinvention of the Government Service. This is a new and exciting approach. We must attempt to make a change. We owe this to our people. Cayman cannot continue to do business as usual. In the approach indicated for the reinvention of the public service, the philosophy put forward, the customer is king. Look under each stone and question everything. We will learn from other people's mistakes, but we will use a unique methodology for the Cayman Islands. This is a revolutionary approach to doing business in the Cayman Islands. We have to look at it in detail and apply it as it works in our system. The only way to achieve change is to work together. How true that is.

The public service vision for the future is result-oriented, performance-based, empowered managers, increased accountability, partnership with the private sector. Continual change is involved in this new approach, the use of unique methodologies and above all involvement at all levels. There must not only be a perception of change at the top, it must go right down to the bottom of the ladder. Everyone is involved in this approach. They must feel part of the system or it will not work. As I have been able to have a team approach in my Ministry, we have been quite successful in involving everyone.

In regard to the approach to this by the Health Services Department, I am not bragging, but I am very proud of the department's involvement, and there have been marked improvements from using the reinvention approach. I must add that we will not rest on our laurels but will continue to strive toward better overall services.

Even in the area of the Budget, and I do know that the presentation has been different, but we must take this approach now. We cannot wait until our economy starts to slow down. I do not know about anybody else, but I am fed up with the way we approach the Budget. It is time we run this like a business. Under this new approach, the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development can lead us into a new era when it is approached in that matter.

There is no intention to deprive Members of the Legislative Assembly of necessary information. In my attendance at the meetings of the reinvention of Government, documentation needed could come as an appendix. But I am sure that no one will be deprived of that information to make a decision on what Government Departments and Portfolios are doing. But we must decide to do something about the approach. There must be a change. Wherever we need to put the necessary documentation, let it be put there. The approach now being used must be changed and we should no longer tolerate the many hours that legislators and the public service personnel have to put in to put this Budget document together.

I would now like to leave the Budget debate to comment in depth on the Health Services Department and regarding an editorial in the Caymanian Compass of 18 November 1997. It was entitled 'Health Care Personnel' and it is worthy of comment because it does pertain to this Budget. I crave your indulgence to go into detail, as it is a significant part of the Budget. I think I must enlighten not only the House, but the public, on the approach we have been taking over the last four years.

I think it is fair to paraphrase this editorial by saying that it registered surprise at the number of new staff required for the Health Services Department, very many of whom of course are necessitated by the coming on-stream of the new Hospital. Clearly, the editor is wondering if all these posts are necessary, because she writes, "Caymanians want good medical facilities and adequate, well-qualified personnel, but they do not want extravagance." That is true, Mr. Speaker. We must not put up at any time, not only in the Health Services, but anywhere else, with extravagance. She further hopes, and I quote, "that the need for such extensive increases in health staff will be fully explained and justified for members of the public."

Mr. Speaker, I have no problem in general with the editorial. Concerns about increases in the civil service complement are quite understandable. The country cries out for more and better services, and these only come by increasing recurrent and often capital expenditure, as has been indicated by several speakers prior to me.

In the case of the Health Services Department, the editor is correct. Caymanians want excellent facilities, and staff, and more services available here on the Island. Not only that, they want, and justifiably, in my view, more and better services at the district level, be it an ambulance service in each district, more doctors' clinics during the day and evening in the health centres, or more home visits by doctors, nurses and other health care providers. These increased expectations, combined with a steady growth in the population, have led to greater utilisation of services and a resultant strain on existing services. These are all embodied in the Health Strategic Plan. They are also attested to by repeated demands on the Health Services Department and the Ministry of Health, to provide the type of health care that is vital to the country at this point in its development.

Mr. Speaker, I think we should all bear in mind that many Government sectors such as Education have gradually expanded over a period of time, perhaps so gradually that they have hardly been noticed. But the situation with respect to the Health Services Department has been different. With no private general hospital facility to assist in providing services, the Health Services Department has experienced a very significant increase in the utilisation of all services. I would like to read a few comparative statistics between the years 1990 and 1996, to show the sort of pressure which has put an intolerable strain on the Health Services Department:

Outpatient visits	45,533	61,777
District clinic visits	24,322	36,339
Laboratory tests (local)	117,212	260,944
Prescriptions (an area in which many people expressed concern in 1990)	78,885	133,623

These are just a few figures to demonstrate the ever-increasing demands on the Health Services, a demand not matched by a corresponding increase in staffing. In order to keep the health care system running, considerable overtime had to be paid. For example, from January to the end of September 1997, overtime paid was $1,446,517. If we prorate this to the end of December 1997, it would equate to $1,928,690.

I may add, Mr. Speaker, that quite apart from having to pay out such substantial sums in overtime to keep up with demand, it is not desirable to have already over-stretched personnel stretched even further, doing double shifts with only a short rest between. It is under circumstances such as these when exhausted staff make mistakes, raising the possibility of Government incurring serious and very costly liability claims.

Mr. Speaker, we are expending the money, but at the same time running the risk of liability claims. At present it is necessary, but it is a state of affairs that must be remedied and will be remedied when these new posts are filled.

Following on from this, there is a need to get away from principles and practices which may have been acceptable years ago, when the pressure on services was not so intense, but which are inappropriate as we prepare for the twenty-first century. Some of these examples are: reduced staffing during the so-called "silent hours"; restricted hours in some support departments, for example the pharmacy, X-ray, laboratory; increased waiting time for appointments in all the main specialities; inappropriate use of highly paid, skilled staff to do not only their own jobs, but that of executive or clerical officers. The failure to match staffing with increased demand began to be addressed in 1996, but it is only with the coming on-stream in 1997 and 1998 of the new Health Services Complex, and the more than one hundred percent increase in space and beds it provides, and the building between 1995 and 1997 of four new ultra-modern district health centres, that it has become possible to provide the quantum improvement in health care services that has been so urgently needed for so long.

Mr. Speaker, unlike in the case of other Government departments, the fact that we are bringing the Health Services up to required staffing levels within a very short time-frame of two or three years, people are quite understandably sitting up and taking notice. Had it been done over fifteen or twenty years, the increase would not have been so visible. In determining the new staffing resources that are required, the Health Services Department and the Ministry have had to satisfy themselves that all requested posts could be justified on any of the following grounds:

- (a) remedying an existing shortage;
- (b) providing enhanced services;
- (c) providing necessary new services.

Mr. Speaker, for over two years the health services facilities review committees met to determine what services were at present stretched to breaking point. Which ones required expansion? What new services were essential, given the ever-changing size of the population and the nature of its needs? A careful analysis was made of mortality and morbidity patterns, that is, patterns of death and disease, in order to ensure that there was a match between the requested new services and the need for them.

In order to address the problems of the understaffed nursing services, a staffing plan was prepared, utilising recommended international staffing guidelines, and taking into account the requirements of hospitals' three-shift system, running around the clock for 365 days a year.

I would like to share with the Honourable House some of the figures taken from the PAHO/World Health Organisation 1996 Basic Indicators, regarding the health situation in 48 countries of the Americas, of nurses per 10,000 population, just to give an indication of comparison with other territories and the Cayman Islands: Canada had 95.8 per 10,000; Bermuda, 88.6, United States of America, 87.8; Cuba, 75.2; French Guyana, 73.2; St. Kitts-Nevis, 59; Cayman Islands, 51.8.

So Mr. Speaker, when you look at the 48 countries in the western hemisphere, and when you see where we were with our staffing ratio, we can now better understand the significant improvement that had to be made.

Mr. Speaker and fellow colleagues, we have a choice. We can make a change, a significant change. It is up to us to do that. I would like to stress this last point because it is one which is often forgotten, Mr. Speaker, and that is with regard to the personnel at the Hospital having to work 365 days of the year. The general public may not be aware of this. Most institutions have set, regular hours of opening and closing, including weekends and public holidays. Not so the Hospital! It is open twenty-four hours a day, seven days a week, not excepting even the major holidays of Christmas, New Year's and Easter.

But rather too simply, I admit, Mr. Speaker, the three-shift system means that where a normal 8 to 5, five day-a-week institution requires one person, the hospital would require somewhat in excess of three, to cover three shifts, that is twenty-four hours for seven days per week. This is an important factor, Mr. Speaker, in the large number of posts we are seeking to have approved and filled.

I spoke earlier of the need to remedy existing shortages. After a close analysis of this by the Health Services Department and the Ministry, we have identified that between 35 and 40 of the new posts being sought in the last year's and this year's budget, bring the Department up to current required staffing levels. So we are still in the process, Mr. Speaker, of trying to catch up.

The second purpose of the new posts is to cover the expansion of services currently offered. I will try to cover this briefly to help clarify our need for substantial increases in staff. The present facility is some 56,815 square feet, and has around 55 beds. We have all heard complaints about no beds being available for inpatients or inpatients located in corridors. And Mr. Speaker, at the stage of development in this country, this should never happen, and it is because of stupid politics, one person, one Minister or Member trying to outdo the next one. I have even had Parliamentary questions directed to me about this, and the other related matters.

Mr. Speaker, we all agree that this cannot go on. But when we took over in 1992, we all made a decision what we would do with the Health Services in this Island, and thank God, in a year or so, we will see that come to fruition. The new Hospital has 128 beds and encompasses some 152,652 square feet. It was designed by the Facilities Review Committees to meet the existing, the short-term, medium-term and long-term health care needs of the people of these Islands. Mr. Speaker, I must add, when those of you who have had the opportunity to visit there (and I will arrange another visit in due course), the nonsense that is going around about this being a refurbished and a renovated Hospital is pure hogwash! How can you add almost 130,000 square feet of new space and call it refurbishing and renovating?

The first building we put down there was a 10,000 square foot materials management building. We put that down, Mr. Speaker, because we were paying over $100,000 a year in rent outside, just to store our facilities. It is my understanding that the materials management design for the first site, the old Hortor site, was 4,000 square feet. Mr. Speaker, right now, if you look inside the 10,000 square foot building we have built, it is almost filled to the top. All I am saying is that in less than no time, if they designed something for 4,000 square feet, already they would now have to be building or looking to expand that site.

Mr. Speaker, this is not my Hospital, this is not National Team Hospital, this is a Hospital designed by the technical people, the medical people of this country, and this is why, thank God, we have been able to have the success and the support—overwhelming support—of all the people regarding its development. The morale is at an all-time high. With the help of God, the whole country will be proud of what we have been able to accomplish without involving politics. The physiotherapy services have been expanded and will continue to be expanded; we will also be developing the laboratory, mental health—we have lagged so far behind in that, Mr. Speaker—the pharmacy, X-ray, all of which have been operating under unacceptably restricted conditions because of a lack of staff, and importantly, a lack of space to locate additional staff. I said earlier that the Health Services Department and the Ministry had to satisfy themselves that all requested new posts could be justified because they either remedied an existing shortage, provided expanded services, or provided a necessary and new service. I stress necessary because, of course, if we were to be guilty of extravagance, as the editor of the Caymanian Compass puts it, there is no end to the services we could provide. My Ministry, the Department and I are very serious and responsible about every aspect of this project, staffing not excepted. The only new services which we will be introducing are those which this country needs to ensure an excellent and affordable health care system.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to comment briefly on some of these new services which have been or will be introduced:

(a) general practice services: The fundamental of medical care, namely, family practice, has hitherto been a very obvious omission from the Health Services. This has now been established and we will provide more general practice clinics in the districts, home visits, well woman and well baby clinics;

(b) cardiology: Cardiovascular problems are the biggest cause of disease and death among residents and visitors to the Islands. With the appointment of a cardiologist, we will very greatly improve our ability to carry out cardiological investigations with the resulting savings coming from a decrease in overseas referrals.

(c) imaging services: A new solid state spiral CT [computerised axial tomography] scanner and additional ultrasound capabilities will enable far more in-depth investigation, and lessen the need for local and overseas referrals. Mammography will also be introduced, Mr. Speaker.

(d) intensive care unit: This is an expensive but absolutely vital service. In 1998 we will be opening a new, fully equipped and fully staffed intensive care unit, which exceeds the Level II standard for ICUs in the United Kingdom.

(e) casualty: Those of us in the past, Mr. Speaker, who have visited that department will welcome a new, fully staffed emergency room equipped with first-class monitoring systems that will be opened in 1998. Sadly, Mr. Speaker, accidents are the fourth most common cause of death among our residents, and in fact, in the age group 15-44 years, they are the most common. 58% are road traffic accidents and 16.2% are drownings. Clearly our emergency service must be of the highest quality.

(f) dentistry: It is hoped to appoint a dental promotion officer next year. It is well known world-wide these days, Mr. Speaker, that prevention can save millions of dollars in the long term. This officer would work closely with the school dental programme, and is expected to have a significant impact on improving the state of the dental health of our people in the years ahead.

I would like to conclude this part of my speech, Mr. Speaker, by saying a few words about the number of nurses being requested in the New Services part of the Budget, as I promised this morning. Nursing staffing is critical, not only because it is costly, but because it also relates specifically to the care of patients. Staffing to meet patients' needs is not done in a vacuum. Far from it, staffing is influenced by many factors, and at all times, quality and cost must be balanced. There are many variables that impact the human resources requirement of staffing, and these were considered when the staffing requirements for the new facilities were made. Some of these variables are international staffing guidelines, consumer expectations, nursing service philosophy, overtime costs, staffing policies and scheduling plan, patient needs and requirements of care, vacation, illness, rescheduling requests, days off, public holidays, study days, emergencies, addition of new programmes for services and new technology. Consumers are demanding more and more of health services, and in an effort to satisfy them, it is important to make changes. These changes can be extended clinic hours or more sophisticated care delivery systems, such as those to treat trauma and the critically ill.

For Members' information, the Chief Medical Officer is a specialist in trauma. In the past few years, because of his initial care, a number of lives have been saved. When the patients got overseas, they learned that without that initial care, they would never have lived to get there. Also, for probably the first time in our history, the Chief Medical Officer is now listed in the MPS, the Medical Protection Services of the United Kingdom, a directory of expert witnesses. That means if they had to go to court and needed expert testimony, this gentleman could be one of the persons they utilise.

We have come a long way, Mr. Speaker, and we still have a long way to go, but by working together we can get much accomplished. The days when the general nurse is the accepted norm are passing, as nurses are now specialising in neonatology, maternal and child health, paediatrics, cardiology, coronary intensive care, and surgical intensive care, among others. In order to fulfil our mission, we have to recruit to provide the highest care possible to meet the needs of our patients. Mr. Speaker, the Caymanian Compass editorial says, and I quote, "There are four more midwives. Will people have more babies once the new Hospital is completed?" No, Mr. Speaker, that is not the point! The point is that the maternity unit has been understaffed for the past four years. As a result, the situation necessitated significant expenditure for overtime, and the part-time employment of additional midwives. The purpose-built modern maternity unit in the new Hospital will have fourteen beds and will be able to deliver a higher level of care, including the care of high-risk cases, which would normally be referred overseas. At least two midwives will be required for each shift, three times a day, 365 days a year. This is where the addition of those four new midwives comes in.

I could go on for some time about such things as the new and expanded maternity and paediatric units, the three new operating theatres and so on, but I think I have said enough. This is not merely an upgrading of services, this is a quantum improvement in the provision of health care in these Islands. Of course, it comes with costs attached. I anticipate that when Finance Committee meets, Members will wish to question the Health Services senior personnel about these new posts. I know they are more than willing, and very able and capable to explain their needs, as they articulated last year when they came here.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to conclude this part of my debate by letting Honourable Members know that my Ministry and the Health Services Department are very conscious of the cost implications of what I have called this quantum improvement in the provision of health care, and we are going to do all we can to enhance revenue collection and effect savings. As another comparison from the World Health Organisation report of 1996, for the 48 countries of the Americas, the Cayman Islands in the early 1990s was ranked 27th in the region in percentage of Gross Domestic Product spent on health, at 4.7%. We have seen a significant improvement in that in the last few years, and I am thankful to this Honourable House for their wholehearted support. I cannot do it alone, Mr. Speaker. It has to be done by all of us.

As far as savings are concerned, we have estimated, based on 1996 figures, that once the Hospital is up and running, we will save over a million dollars on overseas referrals. Using 1996 figures again, we estimate that we will save a further $371,000 on local referrals by being able to provide the services in the new Hospital. The outlook on revenue collection in the year ahead is decidedly better than it has been in recent years. In 1996, the Economics and Statistics Office estimated that actual revenue collected in the year 2001 will be in the region of $25 million. This projection was based on several still valid assumptions, including the following: paying patients increase by four percent per year, based on the rate of population increase in Cayman; increase in patient use of about 67% with the introduction of the new services and the increase in bed capacity; increased collection of fees to about 90% brought about by the implementation of the National Health Insurance Plan; the increase in fees charged to realistic levels by the year 2001. We all know that in comparison to the services offered, the collection rate is low. Right now, Mr. Speaker, we are collecting about 30% of the costs of services we provide. We have to take a serious look at what we can do about this. We have to look at the approach that somehow, all people who visit there have to make a contribution toward these services. The days are past, except for those adjudged to be in need, where one can walk in the door and go out the next one without paying one cent when they are off to the bank smiling, and a lot of them already have insurance in place. That must come to a stop, and it can only come to a stop if we work together and put in the necessary programmes.

In order to have as accurate a picture as possible of future expenditure and revenue figures, my Ministry and the Department will, in 1998, be using the services of a short-term consultant for all aspects related to the financial management of health care services in the Cayman Islands. Detailed terms of reference have already been drawn up, and I expect this consultancy to begin early in 1998. I will share the findings of this consultancy with the Honourable House and the people of these Islands. As we know, my good friend, the Fourth Elected Member from George Town, brought a motion earlier this year regarding looking at the coverage for civil servants and those Government has to take care of, of ways we can deal with this. My Permanent Secretary has attended a seminar overseas regarding putting in place a stop-gap type of insurance, where this country's liability will be limited in the case of a serious accident. These are some of the things we have planned for 1998.

Mr. Speaker, I read some of the bad standings of the Cayman Islands in the 48 countries of the western hemisphere, but we are doing some good things. I would like to share a couple of them. The Cayman Islands was first overall in life expectancy at birth, at an average of 77.5 years. Also, we were tied for second place in infant mortality, that is children dying under five years of age. We do have some things we can look up to, Mr. Speaker, and we will continue to build on them.

Before I forget, I would like to take this opportunity to thank all the dedicated staff members in my Ministry and the associated departments, under the able leadership of my Permanent Secretary, Senior Assistant Secretary, Assistant Secretary, Director of Health Services, Chief Medical Officer, and all the other people who are involved in the day-to-day operation of the Hospital. As I have said earlier, I will arrange again for a tour of the Hospital for those Members who did not make the last one. It is good for legislators to see what we are doing, where the money is going, and what is involved.

Mr. Speaker, before closing, I would like to briefly touch on some of the developments in the Social Services Department. I have only briefly been involved in this, and I ask that you bear with me until I can get my feet on the ground and find out what is going on. But I must give credit to the former Honourable Minister. As I have told him, and I have said before his face and behind his back, he has done more in that area, helping the elderly and the youth, than any other person I know who has been in Government. He has put in place many policies. In the area of sports, the infrastructure has been put in place to enable us for the first time ever to host the Shell Cup, Carifta. It was a proud moment for us all. The more we can get our youth involved in sports, Mr. Speaker, it is a better way to keep them off the street. I know the Honourable Fourth Elected Member from George Town is making tremendous effort and sacrifice trying to get assistance for some of our children who go to school, to a university in the States, and I think wherever possible, we should give that support.

Back to the 1997 achievements of the Social Services Department: continued to provide high quality service to the public in the areas of child protection, family and marital counselling, custody and adoption services, financial aid, housing, probation and prison services, court-related matters, and community development initiatives. Training was the heavy emphasis this year, Mr. Speaker, including local training on the new Children's Law in June, as well as a four-day adolescents' training workshop held November 18 to 21. Both training sessions were critical to the ongoing work of the Department, and of special importance to the work with our country's young people.

In addition, three Caymanian staff members were sent on a three-week attachment to the United Kingdom with regard to the Children's Law. The Department appointed the first Caymanian caring home supervisor on the first of October of this year. She understudied the previous post holder for one year, prior to taking over from her in October. In May of 1997, the probation and aftercare unit of the Department was established, with one probation aftercare supervisor and two probation aftercare officers. In the few months of its operation, the officers have been doing a significant amount of work within the Prison, as well as the community, with probationers as well as persons on community service orders.

The final report and recommendations on the Family Study were presented to the Ministry of Community Affairs in March of 1997. It is hoped to have this report tabled in this Honourable House in the first sitting of 1998. A multidisciplinary team for the management of all child abuse matters was formed this year as well. Presentations have been made at all Government and private schools regarding how this team is to work, its aims and objectives, and emphasising the need for all persons working with children to be more aware of the issues of child abuse and how to handle such matters.

A Summer Play Scheme was operated in West Bay as a pilot project for the month of August by the Community Development unit of the Department. This was a most successful undertaking, and it is hoped that they will be able to do this in several districts in 1998. In general, the Department has had a very busy and successful year. The movement is to do more preventive work, with a focus on the Community Development arm of the Department.

The Speaker: Would this be a convenient time for interruption? I would entertain a motion for the suspension of Standing Order 10(2) in order that proceedings of this Honourable House may proceed beyond 4.30.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, I so move, and it is my understanding that we will go over to the Court-house and return in about fifteen or twenty minutes.

The Speaker: The question is that Standing Order 10(2) be suspended in order for the House to proceed beyond 4.30. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. I will now suspend proceedings for thirty minutes. It is my intention that the House will resume at 5.00 and continue until 6.00 PM.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 4.21 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 5.09 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Debate continues on the Appropriation Bill, the Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation continuing.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. When we took the refreshing break, I was just touching on some of the accomplishments of the Social Services Department in 1997. I will now go to the 1998 objectives. I would like to reiterate my thanks for the able leadership by the Minister of Community Development over the last two years, the First Elected Member for West Bay. I think he has made tremendous strides in the improvement of all areas of social development in the Cayman Islands. I know, especially with the elderly, he is looked up to with a tremendous amount of respect, and we look forward to continuing what has been put in place, and helping those who are genuinely in need. I think that has always been the philosophy of this Government and this country.

The Social Services Department is very conscious of the need to build on the community development aspect of services. As such, needs assessments are underway this year in North Side and Bodden Town, to survey the residents as to their specific needs. Through this, it is hoped to minimise or eliminate community social problems by working with community members to address the issues identified.

Another major objective for 1998 is the development of Regulations for the Children's Law, enabling social workers to properly execute their duties in the areas of care and protection of children and young parents. I was passed a note that was clipped out of the USA Today—I do not have the date on this—with regard to deadbeat parents. It says, "Deadbeat parents in the State of Georgia have paid $7 million in child support since the State threatened to take away their professional and driver's licences. 'The law enacted last year has been a very effective tool,' said Robert Riddle of the Department of Human Services." This is quite a significant development. I am not advocating at this time that it be implemented here, but it goes to show that parents should not be abdicating their responsibility to the children, which I will touch on later.

Another major focus for 1998 will be ensuring the safe and humane treatment of youths who require placement in a secure setting with the appropriate programmes to meet their needs. I know the previous Minister has advocated this, and every one of us as Members of the Legislative Assembly who have seen the terrible circumstances in which the young people are incarcerated at the West Bay Lockup, feel we must do something about it and do it promptly. It is a disgrace to this country that our young people have to spend time in there. If this continues, how can we have any hope for them, when they are locked up in a place in such deplorable conditions?

Additionally, our goal is to care for and protect a maximum of ten boys who are exposed to physical and/or moral danger in their own homes, by providing an alternative caring home environment for them. Following on this is the setting up of a proper after-care programme for youths who are leaving the Department's care to transition them properly into independent living, employment and/or continuing education. As most people know, my feeling toward education of our youth is that if we provide the necessary education for our young people, it goes a long way to alleviating their problems, because they then have the tools with which they can make themselves better.

Mr. Speaker, before closing my debate, I would like to touch on a few things in the District and in the Islands as a whole. There was mention of the MLA office in Bodden Town, and I have to give all the credit to the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town, who has recently begged and pleaded to help it get to a position in which it can become functional. I feel that by having it there, all three of us as representatives should be able to utilise it. My understanding was that the change in the door was actually done by changing from wooden doors to some glass doors, and some other changes which were done by Public Works, for which we are thankful.

In the area of the playfield in Bodden Town, this is something that has been around for probably six years, but thank God it is coming to a stage where next year it should be ready for utilisation. We have done a good job in getting it ready, and we all welcome it. We have several hundred young players in the Bodden Town district who have been very successful, and I think each time their senior team plays now it seems to go from strength to strength. This is being done even without proper facilities. It goes to show the dedication of these young people and what can be accomplished when they have the proper facilities with which to play.

The two primary schools continue to be two outstanding schools in the District. Many of us pushed for the ball court at the Bodden Town Primary School. That school has been one of the leaders for the last four or five years, winning the championship, and it gives me a great feeling of accomplishment. We finally have a nice court for them to play on, and they do not have to get their knees torn up skidding on the asphalt. There is a new bus in the making for Savannah School that has been requested for some time, and I am made to understand that we should take delivery of that shortly. It goes to show in these schools, specifically in Bodden Town and Savannah, the involvement of the PTAs [Parent-Teacher Associations]. They are a very dynamic and hard-working group of people who do not sit and wait for Government to do everything. If there is something they see they need—some of them are working on obtaining more computers, yard beautification—this is a great feeling when you see the community effort being put forward by these parents, and I encourage and look forward to them continuing to give that support to the schools.

I look forward to the retirement home in Bodden Town being sorted out next year. Money is in the Budget. Rotary had promised to help us last year, but for whatever reason, this has not come to fruition. In the District of Bodden Town there are not a lot of people who will need to go there for a long-term period, but it is a good place for them to go during the day and spend time with friends and families, be able to socialise. This alleviates a lot of problems they experience, when they can mix with people and be able to talk and have some company.

We are looking to developing the Town Hall into a library. We have had many requests, especially from the Bodden Town Primary School. Right now it is rarely used for anything, and we feel it would be a good investment. There is a big area out front where the children will be protected from vehicles, and we look forward to developing the Town Hall as a library. I feel sure that all three of the Bodden Town representatives welcome this, because the Primary School is not far away, and if the kids have to go there, there is the element of safety, being quite a distance from the road. I look forward to its development. As far as I know, only West Bay and Bodden Town do not have libraries, and with the help of God, that too will soon come.

I would like to talk about road congestion on the Bodden Town arterial road. I know significant work has been done on the West Bay road. I am hoping that the Harquail Bypass will provide some relief, but for those of us who have to travel from East End, North Side, and on down, the distance feels much longer than the traffic that builds up on the West Bay road. I am hoping that the construction of the Crewe Road bypass will go a long way to relieve that. If you make the mistake of leaving the eastern part of the Island after 7.15 AM, it is going to take you from half an hour to forty-five minutes to an hour to get into town. Transportation is something we have to come to grips with. We cannot continue with the amount of cars coming into this Island. It is almost to the stage that there is nowhere to put them. We must look at a viable and sensible way of public transportation, something that can be dependable. I am sure, if a dependable service is provided, many people who drive their cars now would utilise it. We cannot possibly continue, even if we build more roads. Where are we going with the cars? If you come to George Town, you cannot find anywhere to park. Coming from West Bay, it is becoming frustrating. We need to look at a proper transportation programme and I think if all of us as legislators come together, we can solve this problem. It is not going to get any better. We raised duties on the cars, but the cars keep coming in. It is just terrible when it takes you one or two or three hours to go eight or ten miles in the early mornings and evenings. That is not good enough for Cayman. We need to come together as legislators, put aside petty politics, and come to a solution to this problem.

Mr. Speaker, I am very pleased with the amount of roadwork we have been able to get done in the District of Bodden Town over the last two years. There are well over thirty roads, and I feel, without fear of correction, that this is the most roadwork ever done in the Bodden Town District. There is still much to be done. People have waited patiently, but there is approximately half a million dollars in the Budget for continued roadwork in Bodden Town, and I ask the people to bear with us. We will get to these roads and address them. As most of the people know, Bodden Town probably has more subdivisions than any other district on the Island, and it is a pity that in the old days when the subdivisions were being put in, the proper road infrastructure was not also created. Even in recent times I know of developers who were forced to put in barber green roads, whereas others could put in a dirt track. This has to stop, Mr. Speaker. These developers take the money and eventually you are driving over a road, mashing up your car, sometimes knee-deep in water before you can get to your house. I am hoping that this can be addressed. As I said, in Bodden Town we have so many subdivisions, but with the help of God, I see light at the end of the tunnel. We will be able to get most of these brought up to a standard that the other districts now have.

The street light programme continues, and it is very welcome. I feel it has contributed significantly to the control of crime. As we go forward with this, Mr. Speaker, it is better for this Island. The requests keep coming in. If there are areas people have concerns about, we need the block and parcel number so we can pass it on to the Public Works Department, who in turn passes it on to CUC.

The health centres in Bodden Town and throughout all the districts of Grand Cayman, are probably up to the highest standard of any territory in the Caribbean. We look forward next year to putting in more doctor clinics and utilising the rooms for counselling. By working together and spreading the word, making the public know of the availability of these services, it can go a long way to make these Cayman Islands a better place for all to live. It is the community effort, Mr. Speaker, that can significantly improve this place.

I would like to give credit to the Community Development officers in our District. They are Miss Donna Connolly, ably supported by Mr. Tony Scott; and in recent times Miss Darlene Ebanks and others have been involved in the development going into Northward Road. They are working on a community park there, Mr. Speaker, and it is good to see that community effort once again. I know Government has given some assistance, for which we are grateful. Involvement of the community makes a district a much better place for people to live.

Mr. Speaker, back to the national scene. As I said earlier, I welcome the reinvention of Government and its approach. It is incumbent on us as legislators to attempt to improve, through change. Everyone wants results but nobody wants to take the action that would give us these much-needed results. But I think there is a firm resolve from all of us—those who have attended the meetings for the reinvention of Government—and I must give great credit to the Deputy Chief Secretary and the officer of Budget and Management, the presentation and the amount of time they have sacrificed in bringing and sharing with us. I know from the last Legislature, not this one, when my colleague from Bodden Town and at that time the Second Elected Member from Cayman Brac told us about the reinvention system and the approach that was being used by New Zealand. It is ironic that we are now back to that stage, and I ask that everyone pitch in and support, where possible, the new approach being put forward. We can succeed if we work together on this.

With regard to the Development Plan, Mr. Speaker, I must praise the Honourable Minister for Education and Planning, and also the two Ministers previously responsible—the Minister for Tourism and his predecessor, the Third Elected Member for George Town—for the time and effort put into this. The population welcomes this undertaking. It is an accomplishment that we as legislators should be proud of. We have been able to succeed where no other Government in over two decades has, and I think it is well done.

Also, when Members said that the Budget was unrealistic and unattainable, I must say I do not agree with that. I feel that if we all work together, it can be done. It will take sacrifices and dedication, but we have demonstrated in recent times that we can work together. We are working together for the good of these Islands.

I know the Honourable Minister for Education has taken a lot of criticism, a lot of pounding, but I have worked with him. I have seen his dedication. I have seen this gentleman when we had to go overseas for some very intense negotiations, and I can assure you that if you were to see the level at which he operated in representing this country, we all would be proud of what he has been able to do for us. I think his contribution has been exhibited in his dedication toward the school system, and the tremendous emphasis we are now placing on the Lighthouse School. It was good yesterday to visit the Community College. It is quite an impressive setting, Mr. Speaker, and I just wish that somehow we as legislators could share with our young people what is available. I know when we were all growing up, if we had that opportunity, there was nothing like that existing on the Islands. But now we have all the modern amenities needed to get the education job done, and for Caymanians there is very little cost involved. I would encourage us all to tell our young people and our families about this. Not only the young people, Mr. Speaker, but those who are older, as was demonstrated there yesterday, can go to that College and benefit.

Also the International College of the Cayman Islands, Mr. Speaker, for twenty-something years was waiting to be recognised. I am looking forward to the day when the Public Service Commission—the Honourable Third Official Member and I are two of the many people who have been through that facility, and yet, up until this day, I think they are still waiting to be recognised in the proper light. The time has come to give ICCI the proper recognition.

As I spoke earlier about tourism, we have come a long way, and we continue to grow. Once again this year we will set a new record for arrivals. When we took over in 1992, tourism was on the decline. The present Minister instituted a certain style for spreading the tourism message throughout the Islands and throughout the world, and it is now paying off. I think he has done a great job in the development of Pedro Castle, for which I bear special feelings, as it was part of my heritage; and the Queen Elizabeth Botanic Park. It is a tremendous job and now we as adults can take our young people and let them see what is so wonderful. Things we did not have when we were growing up, we can now relate to and be able to utilise.

Agriculture continues to do well, Mr. Speaker, and I know there were certain things about self-sufficiency in bananas and mangoes, but it is a step forward. Farmers have had a very difficult time. We will continue to have difficulty because of the type of rainfall we have here. There are certain times of the year we do not get any rain, and no matter how much irrigation we put in place, there is nothing like that “sky juice.” So we have to bear with the farmers and support them wherever possible. They make their contribution.

I welcome aboard the new Minister for Community Affairs, and I know she will be able to deal with the situation, get things going and continue programmes that have been put in place for a long time. One of these was evident yesterday evening, Mr. Speaker, when many of us attended the opening of the Resource Centre for Women. This is something we all have to come to grips with. It shows once again our maturity as politicians, and that of Caymanians as a whole, that we will no longer and tolerate spousal abuse. It has to come to a stop, Mr. Speaker. When it comes to the stage that you have to beat your spouse, I think it is time one should get away. Why brutalise a human being? It is not called for, it is not shown in my Bible, and I do not think we should tolerate it.

Mr. Speaker, the Honourable Financial Secretary has started something special here: devotions which we hold before we come back after the lunch break. It is very stimulating and uplifting to see the change in all of us when we come back out. Sometimes a handful of us continue to be a bit hypocritical, but that is human nature. But with the help of God and with the leadership of the Financial Secretary, I know we can overcome these things and work toward making these Islands the finest place on earth, which they are without a doubt in my mind. I have been all over the place, and there is nowhere like my beloved Cayman Islands.

I will always remember what my good friend from Bodden Town and my fellow colleague, the Third Elected Member says: We are our brother's keeper. We need to take responsibility for our brothers.

Mr. Speaker, when we look at what is happening in the great United States, it is terrifying to see the legislators take the prayers and the Ten Commandments out of the schools. We have to be vigilant here, that these very same things do not happen in our Cayman Islands. I implore our families and our churches to be more vigilant. Please get involved with your children. Know where they are. Know who they are keeping company with. It is our God-given responsibility to raise our children in the proper manner, and God will not forgive us if we do not. I know it is more difficult now, but let me tell you, Mr. Speaker, when I was growing up, when they talk about poverty and poor, I can remember my parents heating up cornmeal porridge on a kerosene lamp. So poverty is something many of us experience, but it is no excuse in this world for parents to abdicate their duty and allow their children to go bad, and not monitor what they are doing.

So with these few words, I would like to close and ask that we continue to work for the betterment of these Islands.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Perhaps it will be like Henry VIII told his girlfriend, "I shan't keep you long!" given that there are only fifteen minutes left before we are supposed to adjourn this House, at least by my watch. But I wish to congratulate the Third Official Member, the Honourable Financial Secretary, for the comprehensive Budget Address which he delivered three weeks ago. I think the contents were well put together, well-presented, and the Budget is one about which all of us can say, at least, there are many pages of information to digest.

But as I have listened to the debate for the last three weeks, Mr. Speaker, I found that the common thread running through it included certain items as contingency warrants, Monetary Authority, public debt, spending, borrowing, training in the hotel industry, new hotel application, banking, and really the contents of the 1998 Budget. Some of those items, Mr. Speaker, were spoken to by the last speaker in an attempt to outline the Government position.

Let me take the item of new hotel applications, Mr. Speaker, in the beginning of my contribution. I believe one of the Members across the floor talked about the new Ritz-Carlton Hotel. Do we need it? He went on to say that it will create much strain on infrastructure, roads and employment, etc. Mr. Speaker, the arrangement as I understand it is that the Holiday Inn, which is the oldest hotel chain in the Cayman Islands, dating back to 1972, will be involved with the new Ritz-Carlton, and that the Holiday Inn as we know it is scheduled to close its doors in April or May of 1998; and that the principles and management of that Holiday Inn, who have spent millions and millions of dollars, Mr. Speaker, to maintain the quality of their accommodations, have reached the decision. They have seen the wisdom of upgrading their ownership by participating in a Ritz-Carlton Hotel which I know, and I think just about every Member of this House knows, is top of the line in hotel accommodation.

Most countries, and certainly cities, would jump at the opportunity of a Ritz-Carlton. We should not turn our backs on a proposal by a hotel of this calibre, if we live by the words that the Ministry and Department of Tourism are selling to the outside world, that is, Cayman is a quality destination with quality services. The Holiday Inn, Mr. Speaker, provides 215 rooms to its guests, and the proposal for the Ritz-Carlton, as I understand it, provides 315 rooms, an increase of 100 rooms. The strategy of the Ministry and Department of Tourism is to attract the visitors at the top half of the economic strata in their respective countries. By that I mean those individuals whose household earns $100,000 or more. In essence, the persons who have the disposable income which allows them to spend more money in the Cayman Islands than others who are lower down on the economic totem pole.

Hotels such as the Ritz-Carlton, Mr. Speaker, have their own reservation systems, and their guests generally will prefer to stay at a Ritz-Carlton. So I view it as a positive move in the development of our attractiveness as a premier warm-weather destination. The strain on the infrastructure should not be too significant, Mr. Speaker. Adding one hundred rooms to the tourism plant, and moving the quality of the accommodation to a four- or five-star from where it is, as far as the Holiday Inn accommodation is concerned, I submit, must be in the right direction for the Cayman Islands.

But Mr. Speaker, we also need to be mindful that the construction of this hotel, with its various buildings, which will include villas as well, will be an important continuation of benefits that will flow to the construction industry, Government, real estate, and retail businesses. So when we look at that project, and use what I have heard many times in my economics classes, the multiplier effect, I think we will see the positive benefits which will spread across the economy of the Cayman Islands.

Mr. Speaker, Government has also requested that the staff of the Holiday Inn be treated beyond the letter of the law. I understand their severance pay and benefits have been morally right, some say generous, in relation to the law. I understand too that it has been explained to all of them.

One other point I should make, Mr. Speaker, is that the Ritz-Carlton is a chain, and is known in the marketplace as one of the best trainers of their staff. I have requested their assistance to work with the Ministry of Education and our Ministry, to call on their resources as another arm to allow us to bring to action the need to train our people to work in the tourism industry.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Good, good. That is what we like to hear!

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, Holiday Inn, as I mentioned earlier, was established in 1972, and although the Government of that era tried diligently to attract another good quality hotel, it was not until 1986-87 that the Hyatt was constructed and brought into service. And may I remind Honourable Members and the public, we have a sleeping giant to the north of us, and when their doors are fully opened to visitors from the United States, in particular, we do not want to be scratching to compete with them. I hear Members in this Honourable House using the word 'vision.' May I say, my vision is that we must do everything possible to prepare the Cayman Islands for that day, because none of us, no matter how great the crystal ball, are going to be able to predict when it will come. My approach is, it is going to come sooner than we think, so let us prepare for it. So Mr. Speaker, if we can get a four- or five-star hotel for the price of adding a hundred rooms to the tourism plant, and to create a little strain on the environment, I say to the public, it is a good investment in the future of these Cayman Islands!

Let me talk a little bit more about training in the hospitality industry. Sometimes we focus only on hotels and condominiums, and we do not pay attention to the restaurants and the watersports activities. I recall answering a question in this Honourable House earlier in this sitting. I recall also Members calling for training for our people, for them to be able to take advantage of the career opportunities within the tourism industry, and Mr. Speaker, I hope that the impression I created is, lest they forget, I welcome their wishes, their support, to effect a greater accomplishment in this particular area. It is an area many governments have wrestled with. It is an area no one Ministry can accomplish. It is an area which is going to require everybody holding hands to do something about it. For the first thing we have to do, to some extent, is to change attitudes. And while some people think that is an easy thing to accomplish, Mr. Speaker, my experience tells me it is one of the most difficult areas to accomplish.

But I believe sincerely—and let me use the word ‘marriage’—I believe that with a marriage between the private sector and the Government, and I will be even more specific, by every Member of this Legislative Assembly, and the resources we have within the public and private sectors, I believe it can be done! I believe it needs to be done! I believe we need to join hands and say, You have my support. What can I do to make that contribution? I am not talking about lip service, Mr. Speaker! I am talking about action when called to assist.

Go back to that word ‘vision.’ I heard that mentioned all over the place the last couple of weeks—vision. My vision is that we have to work in a marriage between the private and public sector if we are ever going to be successful. We need to address this training wish of ours in a practical methodology. The academics, yes a little bit, but Mr. Speaker, there is a small number of general manager positions. So we do not want to overtrain academically for that area. There are many managerial and/or supervisory positions, and there is a much larger number of positions below those. So we will need a variety of training courses that address the skills of each position. I am a firm believer that training needs to be a mixture of the classroom intervention, heavily laced—and I emphasise heavily laced—with hands-on training within the industry. By that I mean, within the hotels, the condos, the restaurants and other places.

Mr. Speaker, earlier in this meeting I answered a Parliamentary question on training within the tourism industry. I went on to say that although I am not responsible for the training, I did undertake to use my influence. If my memory serves me correctly, some Member or Members across the floor wanted me to use more than my influence, if necessary.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Are you going to get physical or what?

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: But Mr. Speaker—no physicality, not to get physical, no—but Mr. Speaker, I am also a firm believer that when you think you have some difficulty, one of the best ways to address it is to sit down and discuss it. Discussing that subject, and seeking co-operation in my view is the first step. So I undertook to have open discussions with representatives of the industry. And Mr. Speaker, I have carried out that undertaking, and the response, as I expected, is co-operative and favourable. I also remember, Mr. Speaker, that I am the Minister responsible for Tourism. I am not the Minister responsible for Education and Training. So I will say that in conjunction with the Minister of Education, I will keep this House informed of progress made on this subject, so that at some stage in the future, and hopefully near future, we will be in the position to say to those Members who volunteered to support, Here is where I need your help.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Fair enough!

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, this is a national objective. This is not a political issue, and if you are ever going to settle this issue, we have to join hands and leave the petty politics aside, because we are talking about the training of our young people into wholesome careers, into an industry that has great potential and reward.

Mr. Speaker, I was about to move on to some other subjects.

The Speaker: Would you care to adjourn at this time?

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I believe so, Mr. Speaker, I am happy to. And if you call for it, Mr. Speaker, I would move the adjournment of this Honourable House.

The Speaker: I would entertain a motion for the adjournment.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Thank you. I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until 10.00 tomorrow morning.

The Speaker: The question is that this Honourable House do adjourn until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House stands adjourned until 10.00 AM tomorrow, 27 November.

AT 6.00 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM THURSDAY, 27 NOVEMBER 1997.

PRAYERS

Dr. Frank McField: Let us Pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived: We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Let us say the Lord's prayer together: Our Father who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done in earth as it is in Heaven; Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us; and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, for ever and ever, Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. Question No. 192, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION NO. 192

No. 192: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development what is the expected inflationary cost associated with the cost of living when both the National Pensions and the National Health Insurance come on line in January 1998.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: There are two elements to consider and combine, namely, the impact on expenditure of employees and the impact on operating costs for firms doing business in the Cayman Islands. The increase in expenditure for a working person associated with pension contribution is estimated at 2.1%. The increase in expenditure per working person associated with the impact of health insurance is an estimated average of 2.6%.

On the employer's side of the equation, the estimated increases in the Wage Bill associated with the National Pension Scheme and with the Health Insurance Scheme translate into an estimated increase in overall operating costs for firms of 1.1% on an average of .55% respectively. Therefore, taking estimated increases in expenditure per working person and an overall operating cost per firm together, and making the necessary adjustments to take account of the health and pension contribution already being made, the combined estimated inflationary effect of the National Pension Scheme is 1.6%, and of the Health Insurance an average of 1.6%. The total estimated inflationary impact of both schemes together is therefore 3.2%.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Seeing as there is no price control in the Cayman Islands, and bearing in mind the answer the Honourable Third Official gave. . . in truth and in fact, is it not very possible for the projected figure to be a lot more by the time the merchants and everybody else add what they wish to add to the additional cost?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Based on the advice I have received, there is a possibility that it could happen, as well as it could remain within the 3.2% range.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Does the Government any type of mechanism to monitor such a situation so that if it becomes a reality some measures can be taken to control it?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The Economic and Statistics Department will be able to provide a monitoring mechanism. Depending upon the results of that, subsequent decisions can be taken as to what intervention should be made by the Government where increases seem to not be in line with known inflationary impact.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Member state if in his answer he was directly relating the percentages to the consumer, or if the situation has worked out where the percentage of the cost of living to the actual consumer could in reality be a lot more than the figures presented in the answer?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: One will have to assume a good faith element. If the overall effect of these two schemes is passed on based on the figures as projected by the Economics and Statistics Department, it suggests that the inflationary impact could be 3.2%. The overall effect of this could be a burden on the consumer—this is where retailers and wholesalers may choose to pass this on. But these are issues which will have to be addressed when the schemes become operational.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Bearing in mind the answers to these supplementaries, I think the Member could give us an undertaking that the situation will be monitored very carefully once the two schemes come into effect.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: We can pay specific attention to that area because surveys are carried out on a regular basis. The results of these are normally passed on to the Government's attention before they are published. Whenever it comes to light that these increases are being passed on and are going beyond what the known inflationary impact should be, an intervention can be made at that time.

At this point in time, one will have to assume that inflationary impact will be contained within the known projection developed by the Economic and Statistics Department.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: It is almost impossible to make predictions, as the Honourable Third Official Member has attempted to in his answer, since he has to take into account the behaviour of those involved in the market, in other words the behaviour of the wholesalers and retailers, as well as the behaviour of the consumer. It is quite possible they could behave in a very irrational manner. Their prices might have nothing to do with these added costs, but they might use this as an instance to put prices up, as we saw with the high prices that came as a result of the new duties on cigarettes and alcohol.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: There is a possibility that a number of things could happen. As I mentioned earlier, one would have to assume a good faith element on the part of the retailers and wholesalers that the inflationary impact will be contained within the projected figures as provided by the department. We would trust that this would not be used as a mechanism to make further adjustments over and above what is warranted.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Member say if the Government has a contingency available to it at this time in the event the inflation anticipated has a negative effect on the economy?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I should say that we will have to look at what contingency measures should be introduced in the early stages of the implementation of these plans. A decision could then be taken as to the appropriate mechanism introduced in the event that what is being passed on seems to be going beyond what the inflationary impact should be.

A factor one could consider to be quite favourable is the fact that the Pensions contribution will represent savings. It is a savings scheme for the employee. This in itself will provide a mechanism that would suggest that a good faith approach should be taken in this regard. One should hope that the awareness brought to these issues through questions raised in the Legislative Assembly and what the public is expecting, if costs passed on seem to be going out of bounds in terms of what is projected, this in itself should trigger certain measures being considered for implementation.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Given that this will represent monies being taken out of circulation in the country, what plan does Government have for addressing any shortfall or inconvenience that may be experienced by both the employers and employees in this event?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I am not in a position to respond to that aspect of the question. We will have to look at the schemes and the appropriate Ministries to see if the answers can be provided. I can undertake to write to the respective Ministries to see if that information can be gleaned.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Can the Honourable Member concur with my assumption (which is based on the supplementary asked by the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town) that if money is taken out of circulation by the implementation of these schemes businesses will feel a crunch, and therefore tend to react by increasing prices, which if not monitored and handled can get out of proportion?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: What the Fourth Elected Member for George Town has suggested is quite plausible. Because of the fact that it requires an opinion to be rendered, I would rather have the Economic and Statistics Department look at it and do an overall assessment whereby a balanced position can be presented to Members.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: I would appreciate if the Honourable Third Official Member would undertake to present us with this type of information because an opinion is really not what I am asking for. I am asking for his expert opinion and the opinion in that sense is not an opinion but, in fact, a fact because it is based upon expert consideration. I would have assumed that he would have made these types of considerations before, therefore it should not be an opinion I am soliciting here.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, the reason I am responding that way, and the Member can appreciate that what he is saying is that money is being taken out of circulation so he is looking at the multiplier aspect. The same thing can happen where the community as a whole decides to increase its level of savings. This can take money out of circulation unless such monies are loaned out and put back into the community by way of mortgages and consumer loans. So all of these are factors which will have to be considered.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: I would just like the Member to say whether or not he is saying that there could be a substantial alteration in the present economic climate when that legislation is brought into effect.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, I am not making such a statement. When we look in terms of economic theories today and the various issues that have to be considered whenever any aspect of the economic variables are varied, it is not difficult to do a scientific assessment based on the behaviour of consumers, because there are a quite a number of situations that can occur in the community whereby individuals may choose to increase their level of savings, or otherwise. This is one that warrants a proper assessment and study, and it can be done. I would rather draw my conclusion after such a study is carried out rather than to sit here at this time and concur with the position that has been put forward.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries the next question is No. 193, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 193

No. 193: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development to provide details of the travel expenses of Ministers of Executive Council since January 1997, broken down by Minister, destination and purpose.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

QUESTION NO. 193 DEFERRED Standing Order 23(5)

Hon. George A. McCarthy: It was brought to my attention about five minutes ago that the answer prepared for circulation contains a discrepancy. In accordance with the provisions of Standing Order 23(5) I would like to ask that the question be deferred until tomorrow morning.

The Speaker: The question is that Question No. 193 be deferred. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it

AGREED: QUESTION NO. 193 DEFERRED.

The Speaker: Question No. 194 is standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION NO. 194

No. 194: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development upon whose authority Government's assistance to the indigent and veteran's pensions was deposited at First Cayman Bank.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The authorisation procedure for all payroll payments is that the respective Ministry or Department completes an appropriate or starter sheet which includes the employee's full name, job title, monthly salary, monthly deductions to be made, bank account to send the salary to. The starter sheet is signed by an authorised signature from the initiating Department or Ministry. Once the original documentation is received by the payroll section of the Treasury it is processed.

In this instance the payments to indigents and veterans deposited in First Cayman Bank were made upon the documented instructions to Treasury from the Ministry of Community Development, Sports, Women's Affairs, Youth and Culture.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Minister say if it is also necessary for such a request to be approved by the Executive Council, or does one Ministry, any Ministry, have the authority and power to direct these kinds of actions without having the approval of the Cabinet?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: May I ask the Member to restate the question? My attention was diverted to deal with another issue.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Member say whether such decisions necessitate the approval of the full Executive Council, or can these kinds of decisions be taken by any one Ministry?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Such a decision would not normally be brought before Executive Council. It would not be different from a person entitled to receive a payment from Government on a regular basis. Once arrangements have been put in place normally the individual advises. . . let us say, for example, a person comes into the Portfolio of Finance and Development to work. This individual would be asked if he has a bank account established at a bank, and whether he wanted his salary to be remitted to that account. This information is normally taken up by the payroll officer within the section. It is included on the starter sheet mentioned earlier and then forwarded to the Treasury Department to be acted upon. I am not aware of this matter being approved by Executive Council, or brought to Executive Council for approval.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: I noticed that the Honourable Member said that it is not normal. In cases where new arrangements are made, what is the normal procedure for handling these kinds of payroll, or financial assistance matters?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Whenever new arrangements are made, in effect these new arrangements are entitlements to an individual, or individuals. An individual would have to advise the department from which he would be receiving payment as to what bank his funds should be remitted to. The assumption would be made that the persons entitled to receive these payments would have advised the Ministry that their money should be remitted to a particular bank.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries that concludes Question Time for this morning.

Item No. 3, Government Business, Bills, continuation of the second reading debate on the Appropriation (1998) Bill, 1997. The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport, continuing.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

BILLS

SECOND READING

THE APPROPRIATION (1998) BILL, 1997

DEBATE ON THE BUDGET ADDRESS DELIVERED BY THE HONOURABLE THIRD OFFICIAL MEMBER RESPONSIBLE FOR FINANCE AND ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT ON WEDNESDAY, 5TH NOVEMBER, 1997

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: When we adjourned last night I was completing my thoughts on training in the hospitality industry, and I was about to move on to another subject. Perhaps what I am going to say is more background information than anything else, but I have been directly involved with every annual Budget since 1977—in the early days as Deputy Financial Secretary and for the last ten years (1982 to 1992) as the Financial Secretary of this country. So I have been responsible for and have prepared, or developed, many Budgets. I have seen the lean years and the good years. I have witnessed the concerns of Members of this Honourable House over the size of the Civil Service, their call for more details to be provided in the Estimates where, today, the 1997 Budget is, I believe, 500 pages.

I have also witnessed years when there were lumpy capital requirements, meaning, the capital needs were so large that they could only be done through borrowing. I think an early example of this was in 1971-1972 when Government borrowed $4 million against the 1972 Budget of $6.6 million (which is about 60% of the Budget), and that borrowing was to address the infrastructural needs of this country. To be more specific, to put in place a new Court Building, a new Legislative Assembly Building, of which we are all proud, and a new Police Building.

Other years capital projects were so large it was impossible to fund them from local revenue. These included the installation of the public sewerage system along Seven Mile Beach, and the public water system in George Town which now extends almost to Breakers. In 1996 and 1997 and even in 1998 we are back into this infrastructural need to remove bottlenecks within the system, the need to improve facilities for the benefit of our population and visitors to our shores.

The need to put in place a modern hospital in our country will take a substantial amount of money, if we are going to do it right and provide the necessary staffing and equipment for the diagnostic work, as well as the service delivery by doctors and nurses.

When we look at what has taken place over the past two years, in particular dealing with the hospital for which I believe the Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation deserves a real vote of thanks for the way in which he has managed it. . . he has dealt with it by being up-front with the public, he has told us all the estimated cost. When we visit (as we did recently) the facilities being provided for our people, I can only think of the words 'well done.' When facing a construction bill of $27 million, and then staffing needs, because you do not just put structures up and not staff them properly; and in addition you have to buy additional equipment and sometimes new equipment to provide better service to the country. . . no Budget is going to fund that from local revenue.

I have also seen Budgets where the revenue (and this is in recent times—not during our time in office, of course) was unable to meet the recurrent and statutory expenditure. In that year all capital expenditure was funded by borrowing. I even heard a Member reading the relevant part of my Budget Address dealing with that same era. That time was a time—even in hindsight—where the country, in my view, was going off the rails of prudent management of the financial resources.

Then again, I have seen Budgets with capital expenditure where we had a $10 allocation against an item. Why? Because we wanted to do the project. So we said to Members of this Honourable House, 'Here is this project. We can only allocate $10. But if the revenue improves during the year, we will come back and ask for supplementary approval for that project.'

One of the areas in a Budget that we all need to pay very close attention to is the spiralling recurrent expenditure. I believe that in the 1998 Budget. . . actually, what I am about to say even goes back to 1996. . . . When we look at the Personal Emoluments section of the Budget we find that for 1996 the actual figure was $86 million. By 1997 it had risen to $100.4 million and is expected to rise to $108.5 million in 1998. I will say that I am concerned when the Personal Emolument section of the recurrent expenditure increases in excess of $22 million in two years. We can look at all kinds of ratios, but I think that when we look at the dollar figure it may cause us to raise more than an eyebrow.

To my recollection, there were no salary increases in 1997, neither is any proposed for 1998. I appreciate that the majority of the Civil Service is on an incremental salary scale. Those increments generally increase the annual amount in the Budget in the area of $2.5 million to $3 million. I want to make it clear that I am talking about the money. Having been a civil servant myself from 1971 to 1992, I pay a lot of attention to this area. Let me say that I believe in a well-paid, lean Civil Service. I believe there should be an even distribution of the work load. Someone will ask if that is ever possible, given what the Ministers' work loads are sometimes. I believe that all civil servants should be held accountable for how the public's money is spent and should individually make a serious effort to give good service to the public for their salaries and wages.

I raise this concern because it is the Minister for Education who has been saying for some time that the excess of revenue over recurrent and statutory expenditure for a particular period is $60 million. When you have that excess you are then able to fund capital expenditure. If you do not have that excess, you have to borrow or forget about capital expenditure. There is no half-way house here, Mr. Speaker.

There is an underlying reason why I raise this: If we do not pay attention to this particular area and allow it to drift on—and God knows that we get more and more requests for the Government to provide more services—if we answer every one of those requests adding to the number of civil servants, one day this revenue we talk about will not be sufficient to meet all of the recurrent expenditure as it was back in 1991. I raise this because I support the words of reinvention. I do not believe that reinvention only deals with the money part; I believe it must deal with the manpower part as well because the two together will actually provide a winning situation.

I know that there are a lot of requests in the Budget. I know that as you look through the capital with all of its various pages (which I referred to earlier, 500 pages of the Budget), the average person could get lost in it. Even the more seasoned person needs to spend a lot of time trying to understand what is there. Therefore, I am in support of what I hear the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development saying: that, by God, if it is 500 pages, we must find a better way to present that factual information in a more concise manner so that we can all digest it more easily.

At the end of the day the Budget. . . and I am always mindful of one thing: The past does not equal the future. Because we did the Budget a particular way, and it worked then. . . it has come to the point where it is not working as it did five or ten years ago. We need to address that issue. It is important for the Government and the people of this country to receive value for money by having a different system; a system which says, 'We are going to count the outputs of this Budget. We are going to give the department a certain amount of money to do a particular task. We are going to find a way of measuring whether the department did it well, or did not do it well.' I think that leads to obtaining the maximum value for the money spent.

We talked about the New Zealand system. I think if we search around we will find other systems. What is important is that we take all the input we can and then evolve a system that will be the system for the Cayman Islands Government and its people that will cause us all to be certain about the outcome of the 1997/1998 Budget and those of the future.

The changes that appear in the 1998 Budget versus the 1997 might have come as a bit of a surprise. But it is in the right direction. I think Honourable Members probably reacted to it because it came as a bit of a shock. We needed to have a day or two to digest it and then come and make our comments. The absence of certain data, be they departmental plans or whatever. . . I do not know if it always needs to be set out in the Budget. I believe that Members of this Honourable House must know what they are and must be in agreement with the approach so that they are accountable and can answer the public's questions. I believe that the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development will assure that this happens.

I do not want to dwell on the Budget. I believe we will have time to look at that in detail in Finance Committee, if that is the wish of all Honourable Members. I am going to leave that subject and move on to another.

When I began last night I spoke about the common thread that seemed to run through most of the contributions to the Budget Address. Another one was contingency warrants. When in November we have an Election, it is physically impossible to start the following year with a Budget because there are no Members of this Honourable House to approve it. We all disappear at the end of September to go out and campaign for our district office.

There must be a methodology by which the Government continues to provide services to the public in a smooth and efficient manner. On this occasion it was contingency warrants. Actually, even though you have a Budget presented to the House, and that Budget could be passed in Finance Committee in this Honourable House, but the legality of it is the Appropriation Law. The day that Law is actually gazetted is when you can legally spend the money in that Budget (in this case, the 1997 Budget). I noted that the Appropriation Law of 1997 was not gazetted until July of this year. So seven months passed without any legal authority to spend any money in this country unless the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development were to find a vehicle to provide those funds for the people of this country to have their service delivered.

I heard questions and answers from the Honourable Third Official Member that between the period of 1st January and 24th October, 1997 the contingency warrants issued were over $70 million. Quite frankly, I am not alarmed. When we realise that we have to provide funds in excess of a $250 million Budget—funds for departments and capital works—for seven months before we could even spend money legally for the 1997 Budget. . . . No wonder we had contingency warrants. What other methodology would we use?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Don't forget the concealed time bomb!

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Anything can be a time bomb—it depends upon who is holding the trigger. You could walk around all day with a grenade and not have it blow up. When you pull the pin it is time to scatter quick. We are not there. Hopefully, and I pray to Almighty God, we will never get there.

I understand, having been in this House for a while, the role of the Opposition. I appreciate the role of the Opposition.

We all went on to wrap this contingency warrant into. . . you know, Finance Committee is another cry this year. Let me try to put it into perspective: Can you have a Finance Committee on the 1997 Budget if it is not legally approved until July? Can you really have a Finance Committee between January and July?

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: You put it in the papers that you were having it in July.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, I put it to you that although the supplementary requests were compiled in July, I do not think effectively we could have done it in July.

When we look at what actually happened in 1997—and we are not throwing any alibis, we are looking at the year as it was—nothing really became legal until July 1997 when the Appropriation Law was gazetted. Supplementary expenditure could have come in August, but we all know the kind of work load and official commitments and the need for all of us to get a little holiday. So I think the majority of us found at least a week in August to take that holiday.

When we call a meeting of Finance Committee the Government always wants all of its Members present. This is a sensible thing to do. Not being able to hold it in August, September came and with it the Meeting of the Legislative Assembly, which we all got involved with. In September and October we were dealing with the First Cayman Bank difficulties and the preparation of the Budget which is presently before us. This is not a normal thing, Mr. Speaker.

I am certain that in 1998, God willing, we will not be in the House arguing about properly calling Finance Committee meetings. I am sure that will happen. We are just in a year when all of the things which have transpired did not come together to allow us to have a Finance Committee as easily as some of us might have thought earlier.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: You do not understand the role of the Opposition.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I do understand the role of the Opposition.

While I am on this subject, I want to deal with a comment made by a Member from across the floor. That comment was that when the National Team came to power in 1992 they found a public debt of $16 million. The Member went on to say, '$15.9 million.' All of the information provided by the Treasury says that this figure is not correct. The information I have from the Treasury indicates that figure to be in excess of $40 million. Sometimes when we are trying to justify our case we are willing to use the Auditor General's Report. So let us use it on this occasion.

The 1992 Auditor General's Report says on page 5: "Total public debt excluding short term overdrafts increased from $38.753 million to $42.903 million." If we are going to talk about 1992 in the future, perhaps it would be good to divorce ourselves from this figure of $16 million that has been going around for quite some time and talk about an accurate figure. You do not have to use mine, use the Auditor General's. I think he is the authority on this.

While I am on that, may I go on to say that when we came to power we also found that Cayman Airways was in such financial difficulty, and the Government itself was in such financial difficulty that they could not borrow US$20 million from any bank in the Cayman Islands. After we were in power, it took until the first quarter (towards the end of it, I believe). I believe the bankers, having seen the Budget we were willing to present (1993 Budget), agreed to lend the Government US$20 million to pay off some of the debts of Cayman Airways—$16.7 million to be exact.

As one Member said, the public debt is edging up. I do not think any one of us should try to say that it is not. But I believe that we need to look at what we are trying to accomplish—what has been accomplished—with a combination of using local revenue and borrowing together to make an impact of creating the kind of hospital I can visualise (because I have seen it recently) we are going to have. Or, look at it from a different point of view: Since 1993 we have spent in excess of $20 million in construction of roads in this country. We never saw as much hot mix put on George Town roads as we did in 1996. I think it was more than the last ten years put together.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: You did it for the Election then.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: It needed to be done, Mr. Speaker. A survey was carried out. We even widened the roads in Bodden Town and did our fix-up there too.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: (Inaudible interjection)

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, I understand the role of the Opposition to steer me off of my course.

I want to say that $82 million at the end of 1997 is a substantial figure. I think it is a figure that all Honourable Members—not just the Ministers—who are responsible to the people need to take a careful look at where we are going with this public debt. I cannot walk away from my experience of dealing with public debt and try to go down a different avenue because I think that at the end of the day, the people are going to hold us all responsible. We have to be just that.

When there is a justifiable need, I think we can do it. If we are going to construct schools, we do not have the money and there is an urgent demand for the school to be put in place within the next 12 months, we should do it. If there is a need to create. . . and here we are again, right back at the same situation infrastructural difficulties. No one in this House will tell you that there is not an infrastructural problem with the roads. Although we have spent $20-odd million from 1993 to 1996 (I have not counted 1997 yet) there is a tremendous number of roads to be dealt with in a proper way so that our cars stay smooth on the road and not suffer from potholes.

I must personally say that I am getting tired when every time we fix a road somebody comes and digs it up.

Some Members: True. Hear, hear!

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I think it is about time they paid for it. Whatever exemption was made as far as payment is concerned, let us change that as well. I think that when you damage something and then have to pay for it, you will be more responsible next time. I believe we should do it. It does not matter who it is. It could be a Thomas Jefferson company—and I confess that I have no construction business whatsoever or road laying business, although they spread all kinds of rumour on me.

Mr. Speaker, if you would like to take the break, I am happy to do so.

The Speaker: Proceedings will be suspended for 15 minutes.

AT 11.18 AM PROCEEDINGS WERE SUSPENDED

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 11:55 AM

The Speaker: Please be seated. The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport, continuing.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I am sure it is appropriate to say that we all need to thank Almighty God for how blessed we are in the Cayman Islands, and that the people too understand the good quality of life this Government has sought to provide, and is providing for them. Although there will be differing views on subjects, I want the listening public to know that that is basically all it is. I have my view, and other Members have theirs. So there will be differences at times. I pray to Almighty God that we leave it to subjects rather than personal attack.

Some Members, when talking about the National Team and the amount of money that has been spent since this Government took over. . . and I hope I am not misinterpreting what they said when they asked 'What did we get for it?' I mentioned (and I have tried to update the figure) that during the period 1993 (and as far as what we can tell in 1997) this Government spent in excess of $26 million on roads. I think that everybody will say 'thank you' for that. There is a lot more to be done.

If my calculator is right, we have spent on medical, the construction of district health clinics, the construction of new facilities at the hospital, the equipment that goes along with it, $17 million to $18 million. We have built a new Post Office facility at the Airport. It was badly needed to ensure that the mail facilities and service in this Island is handled in a competitive way. Let us not forget that the service we provide all around is what makes us attractive.

We even spent in excess of $7.5 million buying land. I know I am talking global figures, but let us be more specific. On schools, in capital new construction, at the George Hicks High School, for example from 1994 to 1997, we will have spent $3.3 million to upgrade the Technical Studies block, to expand the Arts and Administration Building, among others. So I am trying to answer the query, 'What did we get for it?'

We have spent in excess of $8 million, maybe more as there is no total figure on this page. We have spent almost $900,000 at the John A. Cumber Primary School in West Bay; $825,000 at the George Town Primary School; $831,000 at the Savannah Primary, providing classrooms for our children; $1.3 million at the Red Bay Primary School providing classrooms from 1993 to 1997. We even did hard courts and halls. That is the new construction.

Other capital expenditure in the area of schools includes over $900,000 at the John Gray High School between the years 1993 to 1997; $4.4 million spent at George Hicks High School; $1.2 million at George Town Primary School; $1.9 million at the John A. Cumber Primary School; another $1.9 million at the Savannah Primary School and another $1.4 million (and I am just selecting the large figures) at the Red Bay Primary School; in excess of $100,000 for the North Side Primary School.

I hope, without getting into too much detail, I have answered some of the question about what we got for it. I think that what we also got is further stimulation of an economy that we are all saying must now slow down. They tried that seven years ago. They did not slow it down, it actually almost came to a halt—so much so that people in the construction industry could not find any work, whether they were labourers or owners of a construction company. So let us all be careful with those words about slowing down. Let us try to control the growth, yes; but we must be careful as to how we administer the brakes because the brakes in this vehicle sometimes cause the vehicle to come to a dead stop.

There is no Alan Greenspan in this country, Mr. Speaker. I heard a Member across the floor talking about Alan Greenspan and the way in which he utilises the facilities of the Federal Reserve System, likening it to the Monetary Authority of this country. What a comparison! That is like comparing General Motors to the garage up the road that repairs cars. No comparison whatsoever!

You cannot effect the currency in circulation in this country and control economic growth. External factors are the prevalent economic vehicles that stimulate this economy. Let us not forget that for one minute. When we look at it through practical eyes prices are quoted in United States Dollar and Cayman Island Dollar in this country which tells you that control of the Cayman Islands Dollar is going to be totally ineffective if that is what you are going to try to do. But there are methods of dealing with it, and in utilising those methods we have to proceed with openness, caution and fair play.

When we think of the Budget (and I am not trying to second guess debate on the Loan Bill) the number of items in the Budget. . . almost $4.5 million for roads. Which one of us is going to tell the public that we do not need that? There is $4.9 million for health care facilities. I believe that should even be increased. Even the medical equipment that is going to be required in 1998 is about $2 million. We plan to spend quite a bit of money on those same details I was reading a while ago— $1.5 million on schools to provide a new primary school in West Bay. One million dollars for the construction of the Lighthouse School. God knows that is not going to be enough, but we have to begin somewhere.

There is really nothing wrong with putting a sum in the Budget, provided you know and agree that it is the amount you are going to need for that particular year. Not every project can be scheduled to begin in January, or even February. It is physically impossible because the Public Works Department (God bless it) cannot really deal with that volume. How are they going to schedule $28 million, get it all in place and start it on January 2? Impossible. So if we utilise the allocation in the Budget to begin a particular project and carry it on and hopefully fund that project from revenue in 1999, that is not unusual.

I started off by saying that I am not trying to pre-empt the debate on the Loan Bill, so I am going to move on before you remind me, Mr. Speaker. It is getting close to Christmas so we are going to be rather generous today without throwing too many darts across the floor.

There was also a query about gratuities, and I am not the Minister responsible for that, but the subject of gratuities is one that has been going around and around for at least the last ten years and no Government seems to have been able to deal with it in an effective way, and a way that pleased the people who seem to be collecting gratuities. I believe that this subject must be addressed. I am quite prepared to offer my support in addressing it, and am quite prepared to ask the learned Members across the floor, especially those Members from George Town, to help us to solve it. Maybe the reference was not correct—the Honourable Members from George Town, not the learned. Learned has the connotation of legal training.

Whether or not they have been asked before, the call is now for them to support a methodology that brings some semblance of order and fair play to that system. I am sure that they are willing to deal with it. They offered their support yesterday when we were talking about training in the hospitality industry. I believe what they have said in that context. I think they know me well enough to know that I will call and say, 'It is time for you to offer your support' when the time comes.

I want to also say that the Ministry and Department [of Tourism] has representation for this country spread basically to the four corners of the globe. We have representation in Germany, France, the Benelux, Spain, Italy, the United Kingdom, Canada, and Japan. We also have regional offices in New York, Chicago, Los Angeles, Houston, and Miami. We also have district sales managers, persons who operate from their own residences, in Boston, Baltimore, Atlanta, Tampa and Dallas.

I want to say to the people of the Cayman Islands that I have been honoured to work with these representatives. I believe that when you look at the number of countries being represented around the world, and you look at the staffing of those organisations, you could never find people more loyal to a country than they are to the Cayman Islands. We have regional sales managers who have been working for us since the late 1970s. What they tell me when I ask them if they have not received a better offer from some other country or airline (and you might think that is a strange question for me to raise—it is better for me to raise it than to get shocked by it happening!) they generally say, 'I am quite satisfied. In my own mind I have a good product that I can sell. The Cayman Islands have the image in the market place that is quite understood. It is the warm-weather destination in this part of the world. The quality of the service and facilities provided within the Cayman Islands is first class.'

When we begin our advertising programme in any particular year, we need to ensure that we are not just talking about the television or the glossy travel magazines, the newspaper or the radio. We need to also think carefully about where all these people are visiting to do promotions. These must all work hand-in-hand if we are to get the maximum benefit of the funds which Honourable Members have approved to the people of this country.

I believe that most people, if not all, in this country would agree that the tourism industry promotions being done throughout the world are causing this country to reap substantial benefits from that pillar of the economy. It would be fitting for me to say too that we need to ensure that adequate tools are provided for them to do the kind of job we wish them to do. So when you are seeing this tourism budget move from one year to the next, let us be mindful that if we are asking the department to stay within a 5% increase over last year it creates a real problem. It creates a problem because we are not spending money within the Cayman Islands only, we are caught by the increases in services in many different countries. When we talk about advertising and paper costs, in the United States in particular, it is increasing between 10% and 20%, depending upon which one you are talking about.

So, when you use the figure of 5% or 7%, if you follow that rule you are going to end up (and I am in agreement with rules, but they must be practical) where the money you have is less than it was two or three years ago. Let me explain: Every year the cost is going up. If you hold the dollars the same, those dollars are going to buy less for you, and that is my concern. The Tourism Ministry and Department focuses on making money, it does not really focus on spending money.

If I spend $20 million and the country benefits $375 million, I say 'keep going, it is a good deal.' But I sound the warning that if you short change the Ministry and Department you are in for sticky times because you are going to have to cut back. I cannot set the wrong examples having told you that I was Financial Secretary for ten years. I have to live by the rules in play.

Let me go on to another subject: The Ministry and Department of Tourism are also moving forward to establish a Web-site in an effort to provide more access by the consumer to the services offered in Miami. We know that we have a Cayman Islands Reservation Service in Miami that has been there for probably 20 years or more, but they deal primarily with the travel agent or wholesaler. We are looking to develop a Web-site that allows the consumer to ask questions of the Cayman Islands Reservation Service and for them to deal directly with those consumer wishes to make bookings and accommodations, or airline tickets, or dive packages, whatever it may be. Simultaneously those within the marketplace will be a part of that Web-site, so that when the consumer logs on to the Internet and clicks on the Cayman Islands Web-site, relevant questions about accommodation, water sports, restaurants, which airlines are servicing the country, will be on that site as well. We can utilise that site to also maximise the dollars given to us by this Honourable House.

We are fast moving on to the integrated marketing communications system where we pull together in a team work effort the advertising, the marketing, the promotions, so that the units are conversant with what the other party is doing to negate the possibility of duplication or ineffective use of our dollars. We have recently employed a new sales and marketing manager for the United States and a new deputy sales and marketing manager as well. I do not need to tell Members about the competition out there in the market place. When we think of competition, we must think in a global context because everybody is trying to attract the same people—the people from Europe are trying to attract the Americans, and the Americans are trying to attract the Europeans. We, in the Cayman Islands are trying to attract the people from Europe, as well as from Japan, Canada and the United States. So we are all in that global market-place, and we need to pay attention to what the competition is doing to make sure we maintain our market share.

Earlier, one of the Members across the floor spoke about the Japanese market and the collapse of a brokerage house. I believe he also spoke about the way in which the Japanese government handled it. On the Internet the other night, I found a document about the Yamaishi Securities Ltd., the oldest Japanese brokerage house which shut down resulting in the country's biggest financial failure since World War II. The article went on to say, "Financial sources say that a last-ditch review at a meeting of the Yamaishi Board of Directors determined that it had no chance of surviving the credit crunch, shrinking business in a high profile scandal." But that was not the only one. That crisis follows the collapse in the past month of a second tier brokerage firm, Sanyo Securities Company, and the tenth ranking commercial bank Hokkaido Bank.

We have to be realistic about what any particular government, or any regulatory system can do. What we have to bear in mind is that no system in place in any country today will catch the person who wants to do mischief. The American system does an inspection. According to the Americans, that is the perfect system. But the inspection carried out yesterday afternoon may say the bank was perfect—yesterday afternoon—it does not talk about today, tomorrow or next week. So if the mischief is done today or tomorrow or Monday, that system does not catch that either.

In its original design, the system of the Bank of England was a document system, where the banks had to report their position. They found that did not work either. Between the reporting came the problem which was brought to the forefront, including in a public forum, before the next reporting period. I believe that they now have a revised system where they have the ability to look at systems, but they also have a provision within the law to go in and inspect them. I say to this Honourable House and to the public that neither system will catch the person who wants to be mischievous. If they are there in that system long enough, they would wait until the inspection is over, have an idea when the next inspection will come, and within that period commit their 'rascality,' if I can use that expression.

It is no different in the Cayman Islands. The Monetary Authority which flows from the Financial Supervisory Department is a new entity. It was the right decision to have taken, in my view. Some people talk about autonomy. Let me put it this way: If you have one man with autonomy versus eight people with autonomy, which way do you believe you are more secure? I am a firm believer. . . and I know this is sensitive, I do not have my head buried in the sand, but I think there is a need to bring this point out and I do not want to get into personalities. Any Organisation with one person at the top having all the legal power and authority, who does not have to report to anybody, needs to be sure that the entire system within Government and that Authority has checks and balances. I feel safer, personally, having a system as it is right now, rather than trying to say that a system that has been upgraded in recent times is better able to handle the situation of this country than the Executive Council of this country. I do not believe it, and I will not tell anyone that is so.

Mr. Roy Bodden: We would not expect you to say anything else.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: What I say is my opinion.

There is the other side of this coin too. If you have a company which is insolvent and there is no tangible hope of keeping that organisation alive, the Companies Law says you have to act, otherwise you are as guilty as anybody else. I believe that what was done, and to the best of my knowledge every Member of this House knew what was going to be done, was the last resort without any hope of saving it.

What is also important, as far as the Executive branch is concerned, is that once the Judicial arm of Government says 'This is my authority,' the separation of powers dictate that we do not interfere with the process. I hear great calls, and I am in complete sympathy with all the depositors who are obviously going to lose some amount of money. . . and I even heard the rumour that Thomas Jefferson had a large amount of money, that I withdrew it and that created the problem. My Almighty God above knows that that is inaccurate. But they spread all kinds of rumours on me, it must be because I am over six feet.

Mr. Speaker, this area is one that the Government has to find a solution for so that in the future the impact of another closure. . . and let us be practical, it is going to happen. No country with banks or companies registered or licensed has never had a failure. So we are not operating in a Utopia, we are operating in a practical world. I believe that Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development is going to address that in his reply. We have a Bill that will be circulated to Members on that subject dealing with depositors' insurance.

Some people will probably say that it should have been in place years ago. When those same people had the influence to put it into place they did not do so.

I want now to move on to another subject. I do not know if you would like to take the luncheon suspension.

The Speaker: We can go on for another ten minutes, or would that interrupt your train of thought?

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I would appreciate a break. But I hope, with your words to us days ago, we reconvene properly.

The Speaker: Proceedings are suspended until 2.15 PM.

AT 12:36 PM PROCEEDINGS WERE SUSPENDED

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2:35 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport continuing.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Before we took the break I was trying to answer the question of what the people of the Cayman Islands received for the amount of money the Government spent. In answering that I made reference specifically to the health services and indicated that I did not have an accurate figure, but would say that at least $18 million was spent. Thanks to the Minister responsible for Health in these islands I do have an accurate figure: From 1994 until 31st October, 1997, this Government spent $25.9 million in trying to provide modern health care facilities for the people of this country at the George Town Hospital as well as in the districts of West Bay, Bodden Town, East End and North Side. We have spent $4.6 million in medical equipment, and $21.3 million in the construction of medical facilities.

Shortly before the break I was also talking about the First Cayman Bank situation. There was another query which I did not address. Maybe it was more of a comment made within the public place about Executive Council Members being directors of banks, asking if we, in our positions as Members of Executive Council, are really directing ourselves if we are directors of banks. The system has always been that the technical work is done within the Monetary Authority or the Financial Supervision Department (if we go back a couple of years). No Minister or Member of Executive Council interferes with the process—we are not allowed to. We basically deal with the recommendation that comes from the head of the Monetary Authority, and make a decision.

Long before the Registry of Interests was put in place by this Honourable House every Member of Executive Council had to (and still does) declare their interest to the Governor of the Cayman Islands, who is the Chairman of Executive Council. When that matter comes before the Council for a decision process, any Member who is a director of a bank must declare his interest. If it is the wish of the Chairman, he can be asked to leave the table, allowing the discussion to go on in his absence. Being quite familiar with the process, I am able to intelligently say that the system presently caters well to any possible disadvantage a person may think of, or any rumour that may be spread about a Member of Executive Council being a member of a Board taking advantage of any particular position. I do not believe it is so.

I wanted to make a few comments in particular about the Pedro St. James Castle, the birthplace of democracy in this country. Sometimes we hear much about vision. I believe that most people who have vision in this Government take a lot of licks. Every time we come up with a vision, we take many different blows for it. The vision here of restoring Pedro Castle, and then going to the bank to secure funding for it, caused that bank to do an appraisal document of the project which put the project (according to their estimate) at an excess of $8 million. I do not believe that I have to remind too many people in the Cayman Islands of the brouhaha that went on, particularly during the latter part of 1996, about this $8.6 or $8.7 million for it. Put it all down to politics.

I think I said at that time (and I say again) there is no way that this Government would spend that amount of money on a project such as Pedro Castle. I am proud to invite any member of the public or any Member of this Honourable House to come visit and see what is being done; see what has been restored at Pedro St. James, (which we all call Pedro's Castle), and what is available to locals and visitors alike. The castle is complete with furniture of that era and is ready to be brought into operation. The visitor's centre is being constructed which will be comprised of a multi-media theatre, a cafe, additional parking facilities, offices for the manager and staff, and all indications are that the project will be completed by the end of April. We look forward to formally opening that attraction shortly.

I would not claim that the figure I have is the final figure, but we are at $3.8 million for the entire project. There is that famous contingency warrant being released, but I do not know what amount of money has been spent from it as yet. If we look at it realistically, the persons who prepared the document will be the most surprised persons of all to see that we have come in much below what they said the project would cost.

The Botanic Park captures many acres for the future population of this country. We have spent a good bit of money there to ensure that we have the proper facilities. We have the Heritage Gardens which some of us talk about, the sand yard with the conch shells leading into the 100 year old cottage, and the traditional medicinal plants and flowers. We have a new visitor's centre that has some accommodation for staff, a lecture/conference room, a gift shop, a snack bar. We have a colour garden which I think is magnificent, especially when rainfall is prevalent. I believe that it is time to consolidate and make sure that we have the operations properly managed and move with the objective of making the project a self-financing one. It is a tall order, but I believe we can make serious in-roads in that one as well.

Mr. Roy Bodden: (inaudible interjection)

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, we are going to ask the Member for Bodden Town to give us sufficient funds to build the road that leads into it. I know his support will come. There is a need (if I heard him correctly) to ensure that that road is properly paved. We have been working on that. It is not a public road, so we first have to make it a public road before we spend serious money belonging to the people of this country. In the meantime we will try to ensure that the road is passable.

In dealing with traffic, it is my wish to place on the Table of this Honourable House during this Meeting the Seat Belt Regulation. We have had discussions on it with Members of this Honourable House. The amendments to the regulation are presently with the Legal Draftsman, and hopefully next week we can move it on to Executive Council and have it formally approved and laid upon the Table of this Honourable House before this Meeting ends.

We wish to move on with our vision (I got caught up in this word used by the First Elected Member for George Town) regarding driver and vehicle licensing. I believe it is high time that we moved to decentralise this process. We do not require everybody who lives in the Cayman Islands to drive to George Town to license their vehicle. I believe that new vehicles, and I mean manufactured new, should not need to be inspected on an annual basis. If they are inspected at the end of three years, that is probably adequate, provided they have had no major traffic accidents.

Mr. Roy Bodden: True.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I think this is in keeping with making that process of inspection and registration a bit more user friendly. It would also be good if the inspection process could be done in the respective districts by some competent mechanic in that area.

The decentralisation of this process will be one of the key areas the Ministry, and will be moving forward in 1998 and 1999. First of all, the computerised system they are using which captures all of the licence plates of the vehicles registered in this country is so obsolete, I am wondering how it actually works. One of the first things we propose to do in 1998 is to put a proper computerised system in place. We want to look at how this system can be extended into the districts, whether at the Post Office or some other facility within the districts and cause the inspection and registration to be done in the districts, and for those district operations to have access through a computerised system. Any activity of registration will be recorded in the system and retrievable whether you are pulling it up on the screen at headquarters, or you are looking at it in East End. I believe that is a must. I believe that the facilities in George Town need major improvement. We are going to look at that seriously in 1998.

We are also going to look at regularising the buses travelling between the districts. We are going to look for a system that requires them to not only be licensed to operate the bus, but also to secure a licence to operate the route. In that way, you will have the authority to be moving passengers between West Bay and George Town, for example. If you do not have that licence, you will have no authority to be doing it. We have to bring some order to this process. We have to join hands. It is another national issue.

If we allow people to pick us all off, putting this one against the other one, this issue will never be settled. God knows, as well as the Third Elected Member for George Town, that this issue has been around for the past 20 years or more. One thing we should do within the next 24 months is solve it. It is a hot pepper, but I think we have to bite it and move on.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Encourage them to form co-ops.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, I hear the comment from my friend from Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: I give my consultancy free too.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: He is offering consultancy and everything else. As I said earlier, you will have your time as well as everybody else. There will be a call for assistance because we cannot do this by ourselves.

It is getting close to Christmas, I am mindful of that. I am going to move on to the district of West Bay to say that I certainly welcome and appreciate the assistance of the Ministry for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation in providing the people of West Bay a modern district health facility. I hear on a daily basis positive comments about that. I can only say that I too look forward to the garage being used by an ambulance so that we have one in our district. The traffic along Seven Mile Beach is not easy to negotiate. If you are critically ill you may need treatment not available at the district health centres.

We have some money in the Budget for roads. As I understand it, on an annual basis we are going to try to re-surface roads throughout the islands district by district. May I point out, Mr. Speaker, that the comments I made earlier about what we got, in terms of how much money this Government has spent. . . I hope the listening public heard the comments I made in relation to the buildings for education. It is an example of the way in which this Government has spent money. We have spent it throughout this country. We have not limited it to any particular district, or only to the districts of the Ministers on Executive Council.

We look forward to the beginning of our Civic Centre. In recent times every graduation of the children of the John A. Cumber Primary School could not be accommodated within the district of West Bay. There is no facility that can hold them. They used the Town Hall at West Bay for many years. That is now grossly inadequate. There is a need from both a centre for activities (be it for sports or otherwise), and also for a hurricane shelter for the people of our district. I think that the funds provided in the Estimates will actually be sufficient to start the project and hopefully complete it in 1999.

We have funds allocated for the parking lot and boat ramp near our public beach within the district. It was about two years ago that we bought the additional land. We have not moved forward with it for a variety of reasons, but we hope, assuming this Honourable House approves the sum of $75,000, to do the parking lot and have a small launching ramp there as well in 1998.

I must say that in my movements in and out of the district I have to pass the public beach. Every time I pass by it is being utilised by not only the residents of the district, but sometimes residents of other districts and visitors here on a temporary basis. Even the people from George Town come to West Bay. We have a nice district. A lot of people like to come there. We might even see a few people from Bodden Town soon too.

Mr. Roy Bodden: I believe so!

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Those are my words and my contribution to the Budget Address. I again congratulate the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development on his presentation.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause) The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

As I stand to offer my contribution to the debate on the Appropriation (1998) Bill, 1997, there is not much more that can be said. We have had the lawyer's contribution, the sociologist's contribution, the educator's contribution, the account's contribution, and, last but not least, the economist's contribution.

There have been various headlines in the local newspaper over the last week. Some have read, "The Government is broke," some have said, "Most concerns were answered," some have said, "Let's live within our means," and the list goes on. I am sure that the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development will have a very difficult time coming up with answers to the various queries that have been posed by previous speakers on the 1998 Budget, but I am sure that with his capable staff and his ability that he will guide us and make the proper corrections as may be needed.

I will have to join my good friend the First Elected Member for George Town, in giving the layman's contribution to the debate on the Budget Address and the Estimates of these islands.

First of all, I would like to say (as did the Honourable Financial Secretary in his Address) that the economy of these islands has recorded good growth in all the main sectors. I can see this, but I wonder why we are not putting away more for a rainy day while the economy is booming? If there were a recession, we would then have funds to tide us over.

I, too, would like to say that I feel sorry for the depositors of the First Cayman Bank. Not being privy to exactly what took place, I will not elaborate, but I wonder if the Government—and I am sure that it has—has considered what effect the closing of this bank will have on the financial industry of the Cayman Islands. Thus my plea to put more funds away for a rainy day.

I will deal with the Budget more or less as the Financial Secretary presented it to us.

Tourism: I would like to congratulate the Honourable Minister and his staff for their efforts in promoting these Islands, and in bringing more tourists to the Cayman Islands. As he said this morning in his debate, the Tourism Department and the Ministry investing $21 million will bring back some $375 million to these Islands. I say, well done. I would like to congratulate him on the Botanic Park, which is located in my District, which any government or any people would be proud of.

Agriculture: I believe that the Agricultural Department and Ministry are playing a vital role in assisting farmers throughout these Islands, and they must be congratulated on their small achievement. But as was said in the Budget Address, it is important to be self-sufficient in green bananas and mangoes, even though I know one of my colleagues on this side would probably disagree with me. They have a long way to go, Mr. Speaker. We all know that the Cayman Islands are not blessed with large tracts of land that can be developed in agriculture. We know our soil tends to be in small pockets, and it will be some time before the Agriculture Department can see results as we all would like to see.

Health services: Mr. Speaker, I personally cannot give this Honourable Minister enough praise for his dedication and commitment to providing these Islands with proper health care facilities which our people deserve. Mr. Speaker, I would stress that health care facilities are a priority in the Cayman Islands, and I believe that if this Honourable Minister needs $7 million to complete the George Town Hospital, we, as Members of this Parliament should be prepared to grant that $7 million, putting into effect those famous words we all use, 'country before self.' If I am called upon to give up the money in the Budget for my District in 1998 to provide proper health care facilities for the people of the Cayman Islands, I am prepared to do that and suffer the political consequences in the year 2000. That is my contribution, Sir.

Mr. Speaker, I believe that prioritising projects in these Islands at this time is a must. We must deal with those of a priority nature—the Hospital, schools, tourism projects, roads. We cannot stress enough that money for our schools is needed, as the education of our children is the future of these Islands.

Roads—and I know the Honourable Minister for Works and Communications will be speaking after me, and I would ask him to deal in depth with what is going to be done to help the people of the eastern districts. today, Mr. Speaker, I would like to be in this Parliament looking at a road plan for the future, not just a blanket amount of $4 million for roads, but a plan to tell me where that $4 million is going to be spent. The road from Pease Bay in Bodden Town to Frank Sound, which I am certain the Members from the District of Bodden Town will bear me out, is about the worst piece of road in the entire Cayman Islands. It has more traffic on it due to the fact that the only supplier of crushed rock, particularly for the Harquail Bypass or any other road in these Islands, is in the eastern districts. Some mornings there are fifteen trucks in a convoy travelling on that road. It is being destroyed. And Mr. Speaker, if something is not done now, the amount of money to be spent in the future will be tremendous.

The people from the eastern districts, Mr. Speaker, have severe traffic problems, perhaps more so than those of my good friends travelling from the District of West Bay. They have traffic now being blocked or stopped all the way to Lower Valley and sometimes into Guard House Hill in Bodden Town. The people, and I speak particularly of my North Side people, Mr. Speaker, were hit the hardest earlier this year when we brought a tax package with the tax on the gasoline. They are spending more money on gasoline than any other residents in the Cayman Islands, and I believe, Mr. Speaker, it is only fair to the people of the eastern districts to be given some consideration in providing them with a better traffic flow into George Town in the mornings. If parents do not leave North Side by 6.45 in the morning to drop their children off at school, they will not reach work by 8.30, and I say this is not fair! I would ask the Honourable Minister, because he is from the District of East End, to tell me in his reply exactly what amount of money is earmarked for the Crewe Road Bypass to assist the people of the eastern districts.

Mr. Speaker, as I have said before, I will continue to support any funds that are needed for education in the Cayman Islands, because a proper education for Caymanian children, or any children in this country, is a must. The Lighthouse School has my support one hundred percent. This, Mr. Speaker, is another priority.

Mr. Speaker, I have gone through the Budget document. . . and I know the Honourable Minister for Education is quite capable of explaining this to me. He has already spoken on the Budget and I am sure he will be come out firing on the Loan Bill. I have seen certain figures in the Budget—$1.550 million for new school programmes, primary schools; $1.45 million for new secondary schools for Grand Cayman; and then I see New School Programme of New Development and Renovations projects for high schools in Grand Cayman and Cayman Brac. Mr. Speaker, I support whatever is done for the people of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, but I honestly hope that it is not the intention to develop a new high school in Cayman Brac, when I understand that there are just some one hundred or one hundred plus students. I feel if that money is available, and with all due respect to the people, that new high school should and must be built in Grand Cayman to alleviate the burden of the John Gray High School. . .

Mr. Roy Bodden: . . . and to serve the eastern districts.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: . . .and to serve the eastern districts, as I am reminded by my friend, the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Here, here!

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: And when the time comes, should it come, that there is a need in Cayman Brac and Little Cayman for a high school, you will have my support one hundred percent. I believe, Mr. Speaker, that if the primary school is needed more in West Bay than George Town at this time, or if it is needed more in George Town than West Bay, or if we are in a position to afford both primary schools, we should go ahead and build these primary schools. But let us put sufficient monies in the Budget to complete these projects. Maybe this can be done by dropping some projects that are not priorities, or that are not as urgently needed.

Mr. Speaker, I was just speaking on the high school situation in your District, that of Cayman Brac, I am very pleased and happy that the incentives given by the Government have given a boost to the real estate market and the construction industry in your Islands. I believe that the Government should continue with these incentives as long as it takes, so that help can be provided for the people of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. But, Mr. Speaker, as I have said from the floor of this Parliament before, and being the representative for the District of North Side, I once again ask Government to look at providing some similar incentive to encourage some development to move to the eastern part of this Island.

Maybe people will not believe this, but in the District of North Side there was one small hotel that has closed. The people who were working in that small hotel are now unable to find employment. Not that they do not want to work, Mr. Speaker, but all employment is in George Town, or the majority of it. These people are not in a position to buy a motor car. There is no reliable public transportation. Unfortunately for them, they have to sit at home, or they have to take in somebody's laundry, or they leave the District completely.

Mr. Speaker, as hard as it is for me to say this today, if something is not done for the young people in my District (because they are all moving out)—some shorter travel route, some easement of the traffic congestion—in another five to ten years my District will be a ghost town. I personally use my kids as an example. I am not a person who likes to go out in public and sing praises or bring notice to my life, but they are in a position where they could have over 200 acres of property in the District of North Side to build houses on or apartments. However, because of the distance and the traffic congestion, they have all chosen to leave that District to buy apartments in George Town.

As I am reminded by my very good friend from Bodden Town, relocating does put economic hardships on these young people. I can use the example of my own kids again. Had it not been for Mom and Dad being there to help them, they could not have made it. I implore the Government to urgently look at some ways and means to help the eastern districts get some controlled development, ease for the traffic congestion, some shorter route for their travel. You know, some people will say, it is mind over matter in regard to the travel to George Town being so long. Mr. Speaker, I have travelled that road many, many years. I travelled it when I was a race car driver. I travelled it when I had slowed down, and I am travelling it now at an old woman's pace. But it is actually a half hour drive, not any more. I left my home in North Side on Monday morning at ten minutes to seven, and I arrived at my daughter's apartment on Crewe Road at ten minutes past eight.

Mr. Speaker, these are my concerns. Maybe these young people from the other districts are being passed up for promotions at their job sites, over the mere fact that they are not able to get to work on time. I would ask the Financial Secretary, the Ministers of Executive Council, to please give some consideration to the eastern districts. I know, Mr. Speaker, they will not let me down.

I now turn to Sports: I know the Honourable First Elected Member from West Bay is not going to expect to hear from my mouth words congratulating him on what he has done for sports in these Islands. I would like to say to him that he has done a fantastic job!

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: But why shouldn't I expect it now? All these many years you've been congratulating me! You shouldn't stop now!

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: I would like to thank him for what he has done in my District, providing proper sporting facilities. Having been an athlete in my younger days, a sports-woman, I know the part sports can play in developing a positive way of life for the young people. It played a tremendous part in my life. It made me so independent, Mr. Speaker, that I think I am too independent right now for my own good! But, Mr. Speaker, I would like to say that maybe it is time for us to complete the facilities in all the districts that are going on at the moment, to see that these facilities are being utilised properly; coaching be extended to the outer districts; and then next year we can once again start on our new projects.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to congratulate the Financial Secretary on the depositors' insurance he is about to bring to this Parliament. I would like to say to him that maybe it is time for the Government to look at some consumer protection along with the depositors' insurance, because I believe that this consumer protection legislation is long overdue.

Mr. Roy Boddén: Here, here!

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Should I have to bring a motion to Parliament asking my very good friend from George Town, the First Elected Member, to second it so that we can provide some sort of legislation to protect the consumer, I will at the next meeting. But I know the National Team, being the good Government it is, will work on it before it comes to that.

Recurrent expenditure: Much has been said about the increase in recurrent expenditure, the increase in the civil service, the numbers. But what else can we as Parliamentarians expect, if every year we are going to go into 26, 34, 36 million dollars of capital expenditure, providing new facilities, new services? These facilities have to be staffed! There are other recurrent expenditures that go along, so we have to make up our minds whether we want to continue the trend of spending these vast amounts of money on capital projects every year, hoping to control recurrent expenditure. I do not think it can happen. It is impossible. Maybe when the reinvention is completed, it will prove that some of the services now being offered by the Government should be offered by the private sector, thus helping with the recurrent expenditure.

In going through the Budget, the Estimates, I am a little bit concerned when I see the constant increase in grants, contributions, subsidies and so forth over the year. I am certain that these are all justified. But for my ease of mind, I would really appreciate some sort of explanation. I particularly would refer to the pensions, and I do not want anyone inside this Parliament or outside this Parliament to think I am not interested in the well-being of our elderly. But what has come to my attention in my District is pensions for the needy over 60. I am constantly being bombarded by every soul who has reached the age of 60, telling me they are now entitled to $200 from the Government. I need this to be explained to me so that I, in turn, can explain it to them. I tell them that as far as I know it is not so. But they are telling me, 'Yes, I applied, and I got it. Now I have told my friend and they applied.' I am concerned, Mr. Speaker, and I was hoping that the Honourable Financial Secretary would have been able to answer the question this morning.

I am not concerned about the official travel of Ministers. I do realise that the Ministers of Parliament have to travel. But I am concerned in the increase of official travel in the Budget year after year. I do not believe that this includes the Monetary Authority official travel. It does not include official travel by members of the Port Authority. It does not include the Civil Aviation—none of those authorities. It does concern me, Mr. Speaker, and for my ease of mind, I would appreciate if the Honourable Financial Secretary could give me something as to why these are increasing annually.

Women's Affairs: I intended to speak on this subject before, but the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, now the Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture was not in the Chamber. I would like to offer my sincere congratulations to her on her election to Executive Council, I am certain that she will do as good a job as any of the men on Executive Council, and in my humble opinion, being a woman, maybe better in some instances.

I was a little bit disappointed. . . and I cannot blame this on the past Minister, because I have heard him say in the Common Room that he was not involved in the Budget process. I cannot blame it on the new Member responsible for Women's Affairs. But I am going to throw it out to the new Member to see if somewhere along the line something can be done. I was disappointed in not seeing some financial provision in the Budget for a place of safety for battered persons. I say battered persons, Mr. Speaker, because when I brought the motion for the Women's Affairs Office (I think you will recall my debate), I said I wanted it done in partnership with male counterparts. So I say 'battered persons,' whether that person is a male or whether that person is a female.

The time has come, and it is a priority, to have a place of safety where we can take these people. My biggest concern, Mr. Speaker, is the children that need this place of safety maybe even more, because they are the ones who are suffering the most. I am sure that the new Minister will do her best to have some sort of financial assistance somewhere along the line to provide this facility.

Mr. Speaker, you know I am not one of those long-winded speakers, and I think I have even gone beyond the time I normally speak, but I would ask the Government to think long and hard about going into another Loan Bill at this time. Let us do priorities, let us provide these for our people. I have heard that we do not have to worry until we have to borrow to pay recurrent expenditure. Mr. Speaker, no one can be sure of when that could happen to these Islands, so I say, let us be careful.

Mr. Speaker, I have seen, projects for my District in our Budgets over the past three years that have not been touched, back in the Budget again in 1998. I would leave Executive Council and the Honourable Financial Secretary with this question: Is it possible for the Public Works Department to complete some $28.6 million worth of capital development in 1998? If it is not, Mr. Speaker, let us cut back and not put forward this amount of money.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to thank Honourable Members for listening to me, and I hope that I, not as a professional but just as a humble person looking at the Budget, have been able to contribute something. Thank you.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Once again, it is indeed a proud moment for me to be able to stand here and debate a Budget for this country. Although many have been critical of the Budget which we have before us, I say that we should be on our knees thanking Almighty God that we are able to offer the people of this country the standards we do.

I know that this House is a House of politicians and politics, but what is real is real. I do not agree with everything in this Budget, but the fact remains that I know it is what is right at this time for this country. There is a saying that you must cut it according to the cloth you have. We have taken many, many weeks trying to put something together within the means of this country. I think it is unfair that some persons ridicule a Budget, and, in ridiculing, put our country down.

Thank God for the Cayman Islands. I am pleased to know that I am standing here delivering my 21st Budget Address. I thank others for their contributions, but let us not forget, Mr. Speaker, that what we have today took many hard years to build, but we can destroy it overnight.

Politics is one thing. Running this country is another. I have heard so much on this Budget. I do not hope to repeat all that I have heard, because I think it would be a waste of time. I am going to deal with the areas I am responsible for, and, as everyone knows, I have the largest Ministry.

Mr. Speaker, I will start with the part that is near and dear to my heart. I speak of agriculture. Let me say, as an old farmer once said, if one is not aware of how a seed is planted, then he will never know how to reap the crop. I heard some rhetoric in this place a few days ago, with regard to what is happening with agriculture in this country. Dear God, one really wonders where that individual has been! Anyone who knew what this country was some time ago, as far as agriculture is concerned, knows that today the standards of agriculture have surpassed what they were many-fold.

When I heard about the Farmers Market and the type of bananas, and this thing and the next thing that are actually sold there, I really wondered if it was the one I actually go to each day. I am pleased to know that I can stand here and say that animals and plants and all the crops we produce here today are of the highest standard. Not only here in Grand Cayman, Mr. Speaker, but I can also boast about Cayman Brac, because there are certain crops grown in Cayman Brac that we are not successful with here. As a matter of fact, in a few days we will have another induction into the Agricultural Hall of Fame. One of those stalwarts will be from Cayman Brac.

I recall that when I took over Agriculture, Mr. Speaker, we talked about cattle in Cayman, but we talked about 'scrub' cattle. I was most pleased that at every Agricultural Show persons coming down from the United States (where the standards are very, very high) told us that it was commendable to see the type of animals and crops, especially the things we are almost self-sufficient in, such as bananas, plantains, mangoes, avocados, and the list goes on. But if you do not know how to plant a seed, you cannot reap a crop.

I will now move away from agriculture, and I will go to roads. I know much has been said on roads, and I would like to say to this House and to the listening public that I wish, as Minister who is aware of what goes on with roads throughout the Cayman Islands, that my Government had sufficient funds to say to me, 'Fix the roads throughout the Islands.' But let me say, Mr. Speaker, that we must work in accordance with the monies available from our revenue.

When I hear stupidity, sometimes, talked about what has caused congestion from one area or the other, well knowing that we, through the Public Works Department have planned as much as we can, have made recommendations to the Government. . . . Thank God, thus far, we have almost completed with the Harquail Bypass. Everyone knows I have constantly told the House where we are with that. We hope that will alleviate the problem on the western end of the Island.

We have plans in place to start the Crewe Road Bypass, come next year. We have already Gazetted the corridor. Mr. Speaker, when there was a helicopter on the Island, my Chief Engineer and we actually followed the traffic flow, especially to the eastern districts. We know exactly what the problem is. We know where the problem areas are. Like I said, I pray to God for the money—if we had had it, the road would have already been built.

We know the areas, certainly they are not in North Side, not in East End. We know the problem starts in the Spotts area. The congested area is in Prospect and Crewe Road. Our plans are to actually put in a third lane on a portion of Spotts straight, to tie in to the old Prospect Road, then into the Crewe Road Bypass, which we hope will alleviate the problem.

Mr. Speaker, I would like for somebody to tell me—and I think I am as much travelled as anybody in this House—what happens when they go to Miami, to Tampa, to England, or to Jamaica, and they have 7AM traffic, 12 land, or to Jamaica, and they have 7AM traffic, 12 noon traffic, 5 o'clock traffic. Tell me what happens! I know there is no place in the world like Miami with more bypasses and more roads, but they have congestion.

The other question I would like to pose is: How many families in this country today are prepared to have one vehicle? We talk about no bus service. Dear God, that is some of the congestion on the road! Sometimes I believe we have too many buses on the road! But the fact remains, and I will say I am as guilty of this as anybody else, a household with five vehicles leaving literally the same time. . . where are we going? If we are coming from the eastern districts into George Town, how much traffic can George Town absorb at one time? You can filter into George Town, but if you do not have parking, then you get the domino effect and it backs up! You only need to see it one time, Mr. Speaker. You can go out there at 7 o'clock in the morning (if you leave home at a reasonable time) and not going to get into the congestion. But if you are going to leave at that peak hour, you need only one person to ride his brakes and stop and let somebody out—the domino effect could go back to Bodden Town. It is as simple as that. Give me the money, and I will try to correct it.

I know that in this Budget we do not have sufficient funds to complete the Crewe Road Bypass, but I believe in stages. I am man enough to make a suggestion that I have not heard in here before, because it seems as if a lot of people believe that dredging is a bad word, and everybody jumps on the bandwagon. I am expecting that I will see letters about what I am going to say now, but I have no apologies. I am certain that what I am going to say makes sense financially, and it would save this country a lot of money. The fact remains, that Almighty God gave us the natural resources. I totally agree we should not abuse them, but the fact remains, if it is the survival of the country, I think we should utilise them in the right way. It is my belief that, cost-wise, if Government would take a decision, we have acres and acres of property alongside the airport. We have a mound of marl where we could pump our own marl up there, build this road, and I am sure that in so doing, Mr. Speaker, we could probably save $4 million on the cost of that road.

But you know what? Like I said, I am sure you will hear now that John McLean is supporting dredging in the North Sound. Sensible dredging, yes! And I think that is sensible for this country, and it would save us the money that I hear people talking about should go into General Reserves. Right here is where we could take money and put it into the General Reserves of this country and at least have $4 million in there one time.

Mr. Speaker, I would like very much to touch briefly on the Ministry of Health, just to say how pleased I am, with the efforts put into working along with other districts and making sure that the standards of health have risen. I am certainly pleased to say that today in my District, we have a beautiful clinic. There is also one in West Bay. We have a lovely Hospital coming on line, and I think I am speaking on behalf of the people of this country when I say that the Minister should be commended. While it has been a joint effort, he has given his all, and the people of this country can be thankful.

In recent times we have taken on more responsibilities in my Ministry. I am proud to know that I could assist by taking it on. I am also pleased to know that one of the things that has been taken on is the Water Authority. Some work has been carried out For the eastern districts, and it is my intention and commitment that we will do as much as is humanly possible to continue to put good, fresh water into those districts. I was told a couple of days ago now that the Water Authority has been passed over that project will come to an end. That is far from being the truth. This is the sort of propaganda that goes around this country, Mr. Speaker. I would like for the country to know that as soon as we have worked out certain things, we are going to be continuing as speedily as possible to make sure that is done.

When I speak of the eastern districts, I would like everyone to realise that I have lived in the eastern district. I was born and raised there. I too have a special love for those districts. Do you know what? Whatever is going to be good for George Town is going to be good for those districts as long as I am here. That has always been my motto. I have always tried to get what was best, not only for East End, but for the eastern districts.

I could easily revert to speaking a little bit on road works, George Town to East End and North Side, especially in congested areas such as the Bodden Town area, where we have a very narrow road. If we are going to tell the truth today, we know that we have tried our best to widen where we could widen, and we have put it as good as we could with the funds available for us to work with.

I am also going to say this: As far as working with things here in Grand Cayman, and especially with things such as water and anything else that falls under my Ministry—and of course I am going to support my other Ministers who have responsibility for other things—as far as I am concerned, there are three things I must continue to support, that is, education, health and (the bad word we hear about all the time) roads in the Cayman Islands. Quite necessary!

Recently we heard so much in this country which will in some cases cause some damage to these Islands in the long run. I speak of the incident—and I am not going into this in depth, but I must mention it. . . I am appealing to the public with regard to what has been taking place here in regard to the bank to realise what they are doing. We have built one of the best financial centres in the world in this country. It is here now. Mr. Speaker, it can leave us tomorrow. I am appealing that what has been taking place in this country be relaxed, and let it take the proper course. Instead of going out there and stirring people up, I think we should go out there and try to say to them, 'Be responsible.' Mr. Speaker, God knows the last thing we need is to lose the goose that has been laying the golden eggs for this country.

The Speaker: Would this be a convenient time for you to take a break?

Hon. John B. McLean: Yes, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: We will suspend for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.53 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.18 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works continuing.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker. Just for the information of the House, I was here in the building, and I was not trying to escape, as someone said the other day that I was disappearing when I needed to speak. But I have news for them!

Anyway, Mr. Speaker, I would like to touch on a couple of the other matters which are handled by my Ministry. Before going into that, I would like to touch once again on our plans for water. I think I mentioned in a broad way that we were dealing with it as speedily as we could here in Grand Cayman. I would also like to say that as soon as possible, we will be doing everything possible to look at water in Cayman Brac, and, of course, we will look at Little Cayman. My motto has always been, whatever is good for one of these Islands, if I have anything to do with it, it has to be in the others.

To go a little further, now that I am speaking about Cayman Brac, I would like to mention that for the first time in the history of the Cayman Turtle Farm we have been able to now supply Cayman Brac and Little Cayman with products fresh meat. It is being done now. We intend to do whatever possible to make sure that the supply will continue. On a regular basis we will be shipping to those Islands. I would also like to say that, especially with the turtle meat, you, Mr. Speaker, and the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, have been very influential in assisting me to make sure that the supply has been passed on to the Sister Islands.

Mr. Speaker, I could not but speak on behalf of the Public Works Department, because it is a fact that everyone at some time tends to quarrel with, talk about, run down or do whatever you want to say about Public Works. But, Mr. Speaker, the fact remains that it is a good thing we still have good old Public Works! Every Ministry, and not only every Ministry, but every Member in here must depend upon Public Works in their respective districts. I am not here to say that everything that is done by Public Works is correct. I would be wrong to say that. But I think that credit should be given where it is due. We should not always hear the negative things about the Public Works Department. The truth is that as we drive around this country today, we can see some very good works from the Public Works Department. That does not only include roads, but it includes schools, and all buildings that Government presently has been constructing over the years. Very high standards!

This Department is often criticised, especially the men who have to work on roads. I constantly receive calls saying, 'Your guys are out there, wasting Government money. There are six of them sitting under the tree.' You know, Mr. Speaker, that is really, really bad, because the fact remains, that we sit in this House where we enjoy air conditioning. When we are out there in the sun. . . how can we compare the two? It is only right that when somebody is actually out there working, they should have a right to take a few minutes to rest. I am not saying that I am agreeing that anybody should go off from their job, but let us be realistic about it. I am not casting aspersions at any one individual here.

As I mentioned a while ago, everyone tends to criticise them. I am taking this opportunity to congratulate that Department, and to say to them that I hope and trust that they will continue to do as good a job, and in the future do even a better job.

I promised the Third Official Member that he could make his reply this evening, and I am going to be true to my word, but I would like to touch on another thing that seems to become a football, especially in the newspapers. I refer to the project with the dolphins. Much has been said on this, Mr. Speaker. If I could explain fully, as I tried to do here before in answering a question, Government in no way committed itself to that project. The arrangements were done between the Cayman Turtle Farm, mainly to lease the property not to become involved in what is known as "Swim with the Dolphins." There was spare land there; the Board of Directors felt it was something the Farm could make additional funds from by leasing the property. That was the extent of it. Government was not directly involved in it. As far as I am concerned, my opinion is that the way this country caters to tourists, we need more attractions in this country. Not only for tourists, but for our people alike!

Sometimes when I pick up the paper and read the comments made, I believe this is the only place in the world that ever thought about putting down a project like that. Yet, some of those same people will travel from Cayman to Disneyworld to see the same dolphins! Some of the same people have ruined more of our beach land, some of the same people have literally ruined the North Sound. . . but there is nothing wrong with that! Yet this Government and the Turtle Farm were ridiculed because we were trying to put in something decent for this country.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 10(2)

The Speaker: Could I interrupt you one moment? I would entertain a motion for the suspension of Standing 10(2) so that we can continue beyond 4.30.

Hon. John B. McLean: I so move the suspension, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The question is that we suspend Standing Order 10(2) in order to continue beyond the hour of 4.30. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 10(2) SUSPENDED.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works, please continue.

Hon. John B. McLean: Mr. Speaker, as you heard, I have the support of the First Elected Member for George Town to even call the names of some of these people who have literally ruined the North Sound and the beaches, and in some areas, if I may go back on it, created nasty-looking property by shifting material to fill other areas. But I will not go into that, because by now the public is aware of what I am saying, and they have been reading the papers like me. They know exactly who those (if I may use the word) 'culprits' who are actually trying to kill this project are.

As I said before, Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to know that Almighty God has allowed us once again to at least have a Government in place that is capable, with the guidance of the Honourable Financial Secretary and his good staff, to put a Budget together that we hope will run this country for the next year. With God's help we hope to be able to look after another budget and many, many other budgets. It is my hope that God will smile on us and that this country will be no worse off, but will continue to progress. As one of my colleagues used to say, God bless the Cayman Islands.

The Speaker: I think all Honourable Members have spoken. Honourable Third Official Member, do you wish to exercise your right of reply?

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Yes, Mr. Speaker. We will have to overlook the jokes being passed by some of my colleagues!

First, let me begin by thanking all Honourable Members who made their contribution to this Budget debate in a very lively and stimulating fashion. I would also like to thank Members for the confidence they expressed in me, in the Deputy Financial Secretary, in the Director of Budget and Management Services and his capable staff; the Director of Economics and Statistics; the Deputy Director. I would also like to add the Accountant General and the Accountant General-Designate, Mrs. Sonia McLaughlin.

Mr. Speaker, I should mention that she has been earmarked to take over the position of Accountant General following the expiration of the contract of the incumbent. We know that we have a very competent officer who will be taking over that position. In fact, she has now assumed day-to-day administrative responsibilities. The incumbent is now acting more in an advisory role and deals with special tasks.

I would also like to thank the various controlling officers and other staff members who have worked quite hard to contribute to the compilation of the Budget document, because this is not the effort of one individual. I would also like to thank the Members of Executive Council and other Members who assisted in the exercise, in order to bring the document to its final stage.

I listened intently to all views expressed during this debate. Many different perspectives on the Budget were offered, ranging from broad philosophical underpinnings to the very detailed practical concerns. Although it is not possible to respond to all the issues raised, I would like to comment on some of the main points.

In connection with the modification or changes to the Budget document, I wish to assure Members of this Honourable House that there has not been a deliberate attempt to make the Budget document obscure, nor to make the process of voting funds more difficult. In fact, far from it, Mr. Speaker, the intention was always to make the document more user-friendly by streamlining some sections of it. In so doing, no attempt was made, nor was there any intention to remove or reduce the degree of legislative control of the Budget. Accordingly, no fundamental changes to the Appropriation Bill were proposed. The four main changes to the Budget document are as follows:

(1) Capital development and Capital Acquisitions have now each been allocated a specific Head number. Capital development is now Head 54, and Capital Acquisitions is now Head 44. Projects can now be viewed in one place in the document. In the past, projects had been split among as many as three classifications, depending on the funding source. This made it difficult to understand the full capital cost implications of a project.

For example, taking the broad Head 'Capital Development.' Previously, we had Head 51, which would identify projects or parts of projects funded by local revenue. We had Head 52, which would identify projects or parts thereof funded by local loans; and we had Head 53, identifying projects funded by external borrowing. For example, we take the development of the Pedro St. James Castle. Looking at the Budget document for 1997, it can be seen that there was an element under Head 51 funded by local revenue, and the remaining funds appearing under Head 53 representing external borrowing, or borrowing from Caribbean Development Bank.

Another approach taken to capital development, Mr. Speaker, is that we now have a capital development fund. Honourable Members of this House will take note that the Loan Bill that has been brought to this House has not identified projects as done in the past. The reason for this—let us say, for example, $20 million were allocated in a given year, $5 million to cover projects to be funded by local revenue, and $15 million to cover projects funded by loans. Because of the way the funds were classified in the Budget, we could get to a point where, at the end of the year or expiration of a period, instead of $20 million being spent on capital development it may be that only $16 million were spent. If the $16 million related to the $15 million against projects to be funded by borrowing, that $15 million would have been used up by way of being drawn down from the bank. Of the remaining $4 million that was not spent, if that came from local revenue, at the end of the year the authorisation for that money would have lapsed. So we would have found that $20 million would have been approved for projects comprised of $5 million from local revenue, $15 million from loans; $16 million of projects completed, $15 million from borrowing, $1 million from local revenue; and at the end of the year, that $4 million from local revenue would be surrendered. That would have the effect of making the bottom line of the Government's financial position look very good. We would show a surplus position.

What is being proposed is that a capital development fund be established. That money, as we have seen $4 million will be going into the fund from local revenue, and funds from other sources of borrowing. First of all, before any money is drawn down against any loan or any borrowing, that $4 million will have to be used up. If it gets to the end of 1998, and there are funds remaining in the Capital Development Fund, representing projects not completed—for example, $2 million remaining—that will not be transferred out into the surplus and deficit account. That will not be the case. That will remain in the Capital Development Fund account.

A separate bank account will be established, and it means that during the course of any given year, with the new policy being approached or implemented by the Government, a certain percentage of General Revenue will be put into that fund. If a decision is taken that 10% should be transferred into that fund, and 10% of local revenue, and if that amounts to $25 million, if a decision is taken that capital projects for that given period will only be $20 million, it means an additional $5 million would have gone into it, so the fund will be building up. The idea behind this is to recognise the concepts advanced by this Government, and Members of this House, and they came to light, particularly during the revenue-raising measures considered earlier this year, that certain revenues to be raised should be targeted to specific projects, and not be put into the general pot, as such, to be used up in funding recurrent expenditure.

So we have a situation that, at the end of the year, we may find that the bottom line of Government's financial position may not be as healthy in showing large sums of money being transferred or carried in the surplus and deficit account. But it would mean that whatever has been transferred out of local revenue and put into the Capital Development Fund would be used up. It would not be forming a part of the surplus and deficit account balance. This would mean that, for example, the same $20 million is the total (we know it is different for 1998), but just sticking with a figure I mentioned earlier—and $16 million would have been spent, that $16 million, first we would have represented the $4 million transferred from General Revenue. But instead of drawing down the full amount of borrowing to the tune of $15 million, what would be drawn down in effect would be $12 million. This will have the effect of reducing the public debt, managing the public debt, and it means we are managing the cash flows of Government. Because at one hand, public debt is increasing, but we are also showing balances in the surplus and deficit account. It becomes contradictory. It looks good on paper, but at the end of the day, there is a cost being incurred.

So we are really taking on board all the views shared in this Honourable House so far, and also those imparted by the Government, we are refining the process. We are managing the funds for the benefit of the Cayman Islands community. At the end of the day, this is what we really want to get to, to know that a certain portion of recurrent revenue is being allocated in order to fund capital projects. That money is being used up and only borrowing that is necessary will be drawn down.

Another question that will be posed is, Why not identify specific projects to be funded by loans? We have in place the Public Sector Investment Programme. We have a committee. This, as an action committee, a committee that is in place to vet the capital projects being put into the Estimates and rolled into the Medium-Term Financial Strategy, or both of them blending together, it means the projects set out in the Budget document would have gone through the Public Sector Investment Committee. So projects will run equally. If Government takes, for example, the value of projects of $20 million to be looked at, and a decision is taken that this will represent the limit of projects to be carried out in any one given year, if it is a question that there is an urgent need—because it is only the good Lord above who absolutely knows everything—human beings are frail, we try our best, and we try to use good judgement, but oftentimes circumstances will dictate that changes be made. If such be the case, and other projects come to the fore with a greater urgency, then a decision can be made, looking through the list of projects as set out in the Public Sector Investment Programme, and take a decision what is not so urgent and can be sacrificed, or deferred. So we stay within the context of that $20 million.

Also, first of all, when the Medium-Term Financial Strategy is tabled, when the Public Sector Investment Programme is tabled, we are looking at the initiatives of Government, or the Capital Development Programme over a discrete period of time. We are looking at values, we are looking at projects that would have been identified. But during the course of that, when we come to this House to table the Budget and to debate it, we can always look at the variations and see the reasons for such.

Reverting now to some notes I have made. The number of Heads under Capital Acquisition have been reduced from 23 to 9, and under Capital Development from 34 to 9. There is a very good reason for that. There are certain heads or classifications that are homogeneous, they can blend together—for example, public buildings. We need not say public buildings A, B, C and D. Within the range of the Estimates, all this information can be broken down. So we have commonality in grouping projects. The new format should provide for simplicity and flexibility. However, the level of detail contained in the project description has not changed. All the various categories of expenditure falling under department heads have now been brought together to give a full picture of each head. For example, under Head 10, Legislative, on page 68 of the Budget document, you can now see the total expenditure for that Head. This includes recurrent and statutory expenditure, capital acquisitions and capital development expenditure. Previously you would have had to refer to at least three parts of the old-style budget document for this information. There has been a reduction in the level of detail provided in the departmental plans. We accept that the format of the D-Plans as presented in the 1998 document should be modified and does not fully support the underlying principles of objective, outcome-oriented budgeting. Accordingly, we will make available to Finance Committee the departmental plans in the format provided in prior years, with the exception of the outline programme section, which really relates to the day-to-day operations of departments.

Mr. Speaker, with your permission I would like to Table these documents. The documents which are being tabled are two, one deals with the Departmental Plans, giving all of the details as I have outlined, and also a detailed Estimates of Revenue and Expenditure for the year ending 31 December, 1998, the same as what has been presented to Honourable Members of this House. But instead of restricting it to items at the Head and Subhead level, we have gone to the item level. So everything is here in full.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: If we were to take an historical perspective of the Budget process, looking back in early 1990 a Budget Review Committee was established to examine the existing annual budget preparation and implementation process and to recommend reform measures to streamline and increase the effectiveness of the process. This exercise resulted in significant reforms including the introduction of annual budget planning sessions in July of each year, formulation and circulation of budget guidelines in August; increased computerisation of the process and the conducting of training workshops and budget interviews with all controlling officers.

These reforms facilitated an increase in information flow and decentralised the responsibility for budget input to controlling officers. The concept of departmental plans was also introduced to provide a basis for departmental budgets. This made the budget document more meaningful since it summarised the performance of Ministries, Portfolios and Departments and showed what would be achieved by each department with the money allocated for the year ahead.

In addition, the concept of a Medium-Term Financial Strategy Public Sector Investment Programme was introduced and an automated debt recording and management system put in place. As changes were made to the budget process over the years, both the format and content of the budget document changed. Instead of simply showing figures, the budget document sought to provide detailed information on operational issues and on-line item expenditure. It is now used more widely than in the past, both for policy discussion at the Legislative Assembly as well as for micro-management at the operational level.

This shift towards providing more information has had its drawbacks however. Whereas in the 1980s the document was just 200 pages, in 1997 it grew to over 500 pages. Not only had the document become quite cumbersome, but the level of detail provided on line item expenditure served to detract somewhat from the policy issues and overall expenditure picture. In fact, the principal reason behind the changes is to enable Members of this Honourable House to focus more on the overall picture and policy issues. Notwithstanding this, details on expenditure line items will still be available to Members at Finance Committee meeting.

As discussed at the recent reinvention seminar at Government House, we need to concentrate more on the outputs and outcomes from the services provided and less on the detailed cost of inputs. In the future we intend to move toward a budget that is service based as opposed to function based. If that is the wish of this Honourable House. This year we have attempted to move in that direction.

Turning now to Overseas Medical Advances Account. Mention was made that if the balance on the overseas medical advances account were recognised in the 1997 accounts instead of having a brought forward surplus balance of $.9 million there would be in effect a deficit balance. This is quite correct and has been correctly commented on by the Auditor General in his 1995 Budget and the 1996 Report which is yet to be tabled.

Members will recall that questions were raised as to how the Government intended to address this issue during the Finance Committee debate on the 1997 Budget. At that time it was pointed out that a review would be conducted in order to ascertain what portion of this sum was uncollectable, what portion should be classified as long-term loan and what should be treated as short term. The result of this exercise, when completed, would be brought to the attention of Finance Committee with the appropriate recommendation. I am pleased to say that this exercise is currently underway. However, in the interim I could recommend that the entire amount be written off to expenditure, pending the breakdown into the classifications which are now being finalised. While this would have the effect of immediately complying with the Auditor General's recommendation I would not, at the time of seeking the approval of Finance Committee, be able to state with any degree of accuracy the following information:

- What portion of this balance is uncollectable/unsecured, and what should be written off?
- What portion is collectable over the medium-to-long-term and should be transferred to loans?

This should be handled very carefully. We know that it is a recurring problem, one that has been reported upon. But this is money which has already been spent. It is a question of now bringing it to account; it is a significant asset and should be examined very carefully before bringing to Members information that would be incomplete and unable to inform Members precisely what the status of this account is.

Also during the Finance Committee meeting on the 1997 Budget it was pointed out that the introduction of the National Insurance Scheme would permanently address the problem of having to absorb this expenditure which is quite significant as part of the annual recurrent Budget. It has also been long established that there are quite a number of recipients of this benefit who are in a position to make good on their obligations, but who do not seem to treat such obligations with any degree of priority. Intensified efforts are now being pursued by the Health Services Accounting Department in an attempt to obtain settlement of the outstanding balances owed by such persons.

On the issue of Duty projection, some questions were raised in the debate as to the validity of the revenue projections, particularly Head 61—Duty. Let me state at the outset that the duty projections for 1998 are not unrealistic. They are in line with the economic realities of the day and must be seen within the context of recent changes in Government policy. Between 1994 and 1996 the annual average rate of growth in import duties was 12.7%. In 1997 duties rose by an estimated 18%, some 5.3% higher than the period's average. This faster growth was mainly due to increases in duties which were announced as part of the revenue enhancement exercise in March of this year.

The higher duties were only applicable to the last nine months of 1997. The 1998 projections are $105.6 million. This absolute level may appear high, but we must consider that 1998 is the first full year in which the higher duties will apply. In fact, the estimated growth rate of import duties in 1998 is 15.7%. While this is some 3% higher than the period average, it is actually 2.3% lower than in 1997.

There is an additional point which I would like this Honourable House to note: Actually collections under Head 61—Duty, have exceeded all budgeted figures since 1994. Further, based on present trends, actual collections for 1997 are expected to exceed not only the Budgeted figures, but the revised ones.

On the subject of fiscal responsibility, there have been a myriad of concerns surrounding the issue of fiscal responsibility. Several speakers have pointed to the rapid growth in capital expenditure, the rising public debt and the low level of general reserves. I would like to assure Members that all three of these issues have been addressed in the Medium-Term Financial Strategy which will be tabled during this Meeting. The approach in the document is to formulate specific policies in all key areas and to set targets for the attainment of objectives. This will allow monitoring and evaluation of the strategy over the period.

In addition to the Medium-Term Financial Strategy, the Public Sector Investment Programme, the Public Finance and Audit Law and the Financial and Stores Regulations will be tabled at the March 1998 Meeting. All of these documents together will go a long way in ensuring the prudent management of our public finances.

I should mention that at this time we have engaged the services of a consultant from the National Audit Office in the United Kingdom. He has been with us since August of this year. We have been meeting periodically and hoping that he will have the first draft of the document for Executive Council to look at and that prior to the document being brought to this House, there will be a full meeting of Members of the Legislative Assembly.

On the question of First Cayman Bank, let me reiterate that the Government intends to explore all possibilities to assist depositors. The Bill for the Depositor's Scheme will be tabled soon in this Honourable House at which time details will become available.

On the subject of the Monetary Authority, a suggestion was made for the Monetary Authority to be independent in order for it to carry out its regulatory functions more effectively. I would like to inform the House that a review is currently underway. A sub-committee of the Board of Directors has recently been formed to examine current legislation governing the operation of the Authority. This sub-committee is expected to make recommendations to the Government as to its findings and, where necessary, legislative changes are to be made.

On the subject of Pensions and the National Insurance Programme, the National Pensions and National Insurance Laws are due to come into effect in January 1998. I am sure that every Member of this Honourable House will agree that these two pieces of legislation are desirable. Both of these Bills include a strong element of savings in them since a general concept is one of putting aside for a rainy day, a point that many Members have stressed during this and other Budget Debates.

There have been some concerns raised, and justifiably so, on the possible inflationary impact associated with these two Bills. One of the major reasons behind phasing the introduction of the Pensions Law over a five year period was to minimise the initial impact on expenditure of individuals and employers. This will serve to lower the impact felt in any one year.

We have attempted to quantify the impact these two Bills will have on the general cost of living in these islands. Since we do not have quite accurate information on the number of employees and employers already contributing to the Health Insurance and Pension Schemes, our analysis assumes that everyone will start payments in January 1998. The result shows that with regard to pension contribution, the average increase in expenditure of employees is estimated to be 2.1%. For employers it is estimated to be an increase of 1.1% on operating costs. The impact of the Health Insurance was based on quotations from three insurers, estimates of the projected work force and the number of dependants per worker. This impact on expenditure of employees was estimated to range from 1.7% to 3.4%, while the impact on operation cost to employers ranged from .07% to 1.4%. As I mentioned earlier, these estimates assume that everyone starts paying pension and health insurance for the first time in January 1998. Since this is not the case the overall impact is likely to be much smaller and likely to be at least half.

This is not contradicting the information I gave this morning saying that the overall impact is based to be 3.2%. Certain assumptions have been made that there is a significant percentage of employers and employees who are presently contributing to pension schemes and the National Health Insurance program.

On the subject of economic growth: A suggestion was put forward for the Government to slow down the pace of economic growth. It is felt that Cayman is growing too fast and that we should aim for a more modest growth rate, perhaps 3%. The issue of what is an appropriate rate of growth of an economy is a very complex one, one on which there is seldom any consensus. Slow growth also means a reduction in investment opportunities, fewer jobs and decline in the standard of living. But even if we agree that a lower rate of growth is preferable, there is another issue that we need to address: To what extent can we control our rate of growth?

Let me first of all explain that there are different ways in which a Government can influence the level of economic activity. It could, for example, work through the mechanism of monetary policy and raise interest rates. This is a method used most frequently by the Chairman of the United States Federal Reserve, Mr. Alan Greenspan. Higher interest rates make borrowing more expensive, lower investment activities and reduce the rate of output. As you are well aware, Mr. Speaker, the Government of the Cayman Islands cannot directly influence the level of interest rates in these islands in such a manner.

In terms of fiscal policy, the Government does have some leverage here, both on revenue and expenditure sides. In regard to revenue policy, it can increase indirect taxes, fees and charges. This will have the effect of raising prices, reducing consumption and, hence, the rate of economic growth. Revenue enhancement mechanisms, however, are never popular. This was clearly evident earlier this year when attempts to implement revenue enhancement measures met with great resistance.

In regard to expenditure, Government can control economic activity by varying the level of its spending. However, because of the sustained growth in the economy of the Cayman Islands in recent years, it has become necessary for Government to undertake large infrastructural projects, particularly in areas such as health, education and road construction. Balancing needs with available resources is not always an easy task. But I must assure you that Government is aware of the need to prioritise and phase projects so as not to place any undue strain on the finances of these islands.

At this point in time I would like to bring to Members' attention that a question was raised by the Member for North Side as to whether the Government plans to build a new high school in Cayman Brac. Mr. Speaker, this is not the case. If you look at the narrative, it says "High Schools, programme of new developments and renovation projects for high schools in Grand Cayman and Cayman Brac." This is where new facilities are to be added and renovation works carried out—not the building of new high schools.

Turning now to the World Economy: Mention was made of a recent article in The Economist, entitled, "Will the world slump?" This article was written against the backdrop of the serious banking and financial crises which are now being experienced in Asia. You will recall that I made reference to this situation in the Budget Address. Since that time, however, the crisis in Asia has deepened and fears abound as to their likely impact. South Korea, a wealthy and prosperous economy, is now seeking a $20 billion IMF Loan. The Japanese economy is currently under threat due to its failure to sufficiently address its problems in the banking sector.

No one knows for certain what impact these crises will have on the world economy. The article mentioned two different scenarios: one extreme is the possibility of a world-wide slump. This will arise if world supply outstrips world demand and the overall price level drops resulting in world-wide deflation. At the other end is a minimal impact on the world economy, a lowering of growth by .02 percentage points in America and Europe.

Let me point out that we should not just be concerned with evaluating whether one scenario will prevail over the other. World deflation is a rather rare phenomenon. The only time in history when this occurred was during the Middle Ages and the Great Depression of the 1930s. Even so, this was for intermittent periods. The message that is really important for us is contained in the last two sentences, and I quote: "World-wide deflation is an entirely avoidable disaster. But only governments will decide whether it is avoided."

In a world undergoing rapid change and where there is closer integration of economies, governments have to act responsibly. We must remember that investor confidence is fragile and can be easily destroyed, and that capital is mobile. But today it is not just national governments that have a vested interest in maintaining economic stability. The global community as a whole is mindful of the dire consequences of economic failures. Leaders at the APEC Summit have endorsed a plan for an IMF Package to assist the Asian countries. Let us hope that these efforts will help to avert disaster on that continent as was the case a few years ago in Mexico. The present crisis acts as a reminder to us that the future is not guaranteed, and that we must not be complacent; we need to formulate proper policies, manage our economy and plan well for our future.

Turning now to the subject of Strategic Vision: Since we are on the subject of the future, I would like to comment briefly on a concern expressed that Cayman lacks a vision for the future. I would like to inform Members that this very important issue is being addressed at the highest level. His Excellency the Governor will soon be launching an initiative on Strategic Vision for the Cayman Islands. This exercise will consider all of the various economic, social and environmental issues which now confront our islands. It will seek to outline a set of clearly stated national goals and priorities for the next ten years. In mapping out this vision the results of existing sectorial and other plans will be considered. But, more importantly, every person will get a chance to make an input into this exercise whether he is in the public or the private sector, a member of a non-governmental organisation or whether he lives on Grand Cayman, Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

The ultimate aim is to have a hierarchy of plans to guide our future. This Strategic Vision will sit at the very top and this important document will inform all of our other planning initiatives, that is, the Medium-Term Financial Strategy, the Public Sector Investment Programme, our Sectorial Plans and Departmental Plans. In the future, when we meet to discuss our Budget Document, it would be within the context of a set of well defined national goals and priorities. We should then be able to benefit from the synergy connected in all of these various initiatives.

One final point, Mr. Speaker. The Member for North Side said that everyone that has gotten to a certain age believes that he or she is entitled to a pension from the Government. That is not correct. The basis for which the sum of $200 is being paid out (and the sum varies upward) is. . . Mr. Speaker, that information, as I mentioned earlier is not correct. I would just like to state that for the record.

I think I have covered all of the major points that have been raised. At this point, I crave your indulgence, Mr. Speaker, to extend on behalf of yourself, Honourable Members of this House, the Civil Service and, in particular, the Portfolio of Finance and Development, condolences to the family of the late Mrs. Veronica Dilbert. She retired from the Civil Service as Assistant Financial Secretary, a position she held for many years. Prior to that she was a Budget Officer within the Portfolio of Finance and Development. She will be sadly missed. She is another one of the ladies who was a trail blazer for the women of the Cayman Islands.

Mr. Speaker, I thank you for allowing me to respond to the comments that were raised on the Budget. I would like to join in giving thanks to Almighty God for the blessings he has been pouring out upon us as a community. As mentioned during the Budget Debate, we have come a long way, but we have a long way yet to go. There is a favourite quote that the First Elected Member for West Bay uses, I cannot say the source of it, but he always says, "The woods are lonely, dark and deep; and I have promises to keep, and miles to go before I sleep."

Every member of the Cayman Islands community is very much committed to preserving the good life that God has blessed us with. Whether we are here by birth, or residing here, even temporarily, it has been a haven for many people. We enjoy certain privileges and freedoms here that we often times take for granted. There are many things that need to be corrected in order to keep the good ship Cayman Islands afloat.

I feel heartened, even with the criticisms that have been directed by the Caymanian Compass in terms of putting forward certain suggestions. I view everyone as a member of the crew on board, trying to make sure that whatever needs to be done should be done in order for us to maintain our vision and in order for us to keep the Cayman Islands afloat and take it into the future.

As leaders of the country and Members of the Legislative Assembly, we have all been entrusted by God with certain responsibilities to the community of the Cayman Islands. It is one that we are going to be accountable to Him for. We are to be good stewards of our time and we have seen that we need not be experts in every area. We have seen in the Bible where our good Lord Christ Jesus used a parable wherein he mentioned that one was given five talents, another one three or two, another just one. What is important is that we use the abilities and use the initiatives, use the gifts God has given us in serving our fellow man.

The Speaker: Prayers by the First Elected Member for West Bay.

PRAYERS

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush : Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived: We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Let us say the Lord's prayer together: Our Father who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done in earth as it is in Heaven; Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us; and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, for ever and ever, Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed.

Statement by Minister/Member of the Government. The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

STATEMENT BY MINISTER/MEMBER OF THE GOVERNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Just to mention the procedure and what Honourable Members now see on the Order Paper. We had a meeting of the Business Committee over the lunch period during the adjournment. Under the Standing Orders there has to be a report to the House from the Finance Committee, which, as Honourable Members will see, is first a report on the Appropriation Bill. The other matter is that the Supplementaries were not yet fully completed to be laid on the Table in accordance with Standing Order 67, after which it reverts into Finance Committee. To get on with the business of the House, Sir, the Business Committee has therefore put the balance of the Bills and business, with the exception of the tabling of certain Reports which will be done at the end (there are about four or five Reports that need to be tabled then, Sir).

SECOND READING

THE LOAN (CAPITAL PROJECTS 1998) BILL, 1997.

The Clerk: The Loan (Capital Projects 1998) Bill, 1997.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, I beg to move the Second Reading of a Bill entitled, The Loan (Capital Projects 1998) Bill, 1997. As set out in the Memorandum of Objects and Reasons, this Bill will provide authority for the Governor-in-Council to borrow up to $19,500,000 to pay for capital projects specified in the Schedule. Any amounts borrowed and the expenses incurred by the Government would be charged on the revenue and assets of the Island.

As explained during the winding-up on the Budget debate, this will be made to form part of the Capital Development Fund balance, as shown in Table 2A1 of the Estimates, and will form part of the sum of $27,704,692 as approved under Head 54 of the Estimates. The Schedule of projects to be financed, which forms part of the Capital Development Fund, can be found on page 178 of the Estimates, and a further breakdown of the sum can be found on pages 256 to 280 of the Estimates.

I am giving this overview because we have just come out of Finance Committee where details of all of the capital projects falling under Head 54 were gone into thoroughly, and Members are quite aware of the various projects set out in the document. However, Mr. Speaker, if you will permit, I will go over the classification of the various items (the subheads) falling under Head 54 again:

"54 101 Public Buildings	$12,272,682
Roads	655,000
Recreational and Cultural Facilities	4,765,500
Cemeteries	286,800
Harbours and Docks	715,000
Purchase of Lands	560,000
Landfill Development	285,000
Health Care Facilities	4,924,080
Agricultural Development	240,630"

Mr. Speaker, as explained during the winding-up on the Budget debate, rather than being allocated against specific projects a decision has been taken that this sum of $19,500,000 will be injected directly into that Fund since the Capital Development Fund has been put in place. It was also explained that in previous years what used to happen. . . for example, we have capital development projects to the value of $27 million-plus to be financed. Let us say, for example, that $5 million was coming out of recurrent revenue with the remaining $22 million coming out of loans. Depending on the nature of expenditure that took place against the various projects, we could have those projects financed by loan funds, fully completed, and the borrowings exhausted, and there were cases where projects identified to be funded by local revenue were not fully completed. As a result of that, savings would revert to the surplus account of Government.

Putting in place the Capital Development Fund forms part of the innovative process currently in train in terms of reforming the Government's financial system. This means that any allocation from General Revenue will have to be used up first before any draw-downs can take place against borrowing. So at the end of the year the Surplus and Deficit Account balance may not be as robust as it used to be in previous years. But this will also introduce a certain level of management to the public debt, because it will mean that only expenditure exceeding the amount allocated to be funded by local revenue, to the extent that there is a difference between that and the amount spent on capital development, will reflect the amount to be drawn down against loan financing.

So this innovation has been put in place with a view to streamlining the Government's accounting system, and at the same time managing the Public Debt Programme. Most importantly, putting in place a Capital Development Fund will ensure, on an annual basis, that a certain allocation from local revenue or general revenue will be made into that fund. So, at the end of the day, the Government will be much further ahead and this will keep the public debt balance in check.

This is taking it as close as possible to what we have been reputed to be advocating, that is, the balanced budget concept. At the end of any given year the amount of local revenue together with draw-downs against loans should equal, as closely as possible, the amount of expenditure that would have taken place between recurrent statutory and capital acquisitions and capital development.

Mr. Speaker, I submit this Bill for Members' consideration.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled, The Loan (Capital Projects 1998) Bill, 1997, be given a Second Reading. It is now open to debate.

The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I know that we are into the Yuletide season, but it is difficult to be charitable under these circumstances. While I do not profess to be Scrooge, from that famous Charles Dickens story A Christmas Carol, on this occasion I have to be a little stingy. It is good to have a knowledge of history. When things were going well, and people behaved recklessly and pounded me and other persons up. . . it is good to be in the position now to return some of that with interest.

Mr. Speaker, I am surprised to have to stand up here this afternoon and hear that the National Team proposes to borrow $19.5 million in order to effect the work of the 1998 Budget. When circumstances were different a few years ago, they chided, going from constituency to constituency, district to district, and island to island, and destroyed that entity they like to call 'the previous Government.' I am going to be graphic and read back to them this afternoon—because I have been studying this all these years, some pieces I know by heart!—what they said on several of those occasions.

The Leader of Government Business and of the National Team is the author and creator of the strategy which they claim brought them success. Reading from the Hansard of 10th November, 1994, I would like to remind that Honourable Minister of some of the statements he made. On page 13, the Honourable Minister said, "We have taken this country from a stage of economic depression, from a stage of economic recession, back into an economic boom. With this Budget the country is now poised to go into very good financial times. This is what the people of this country want to see. They want to see a Government that manages and lives within its means." Oh, Mr. Speaker, would that that Government were in place now.

He went on, "The means are the means of the people and when it is squandered and wasted then it is the people who suffer as a result. The containment of expenditure is an important aspect. . . ." Mr. Speaker, I want to read this part again, "The containment of expenditure is an important aspect. Indeed, it is more important, perhaps, than increasing the revenue. In these areas we have been very successful in so doing." May I add in soliloquy that he has lost the formula of that success and is doomed not to find it again.

"What has contributed to that success has been the ability and, more importantly, the discipline in the Legislature itself—the National Team seeing that the country's finances are properly run. It is well known that where a country borrows, and borrows, and borrows. . . and, Madam Speaker, we have about $140 million of debt that we are just now beginning to repay that this Government did not borrow."

I wonder how much debt we are going to have which this Government borrowed and the next Government will have to repay? The Honourable Minister said that when the country borrows, and borrows, and borrows. . . they are up to that level now—they borrowed last year, they borrowed the year before, they are borrowing this year, and I predict that they are going to have to borrow next year.

He continued, "Because of the inability and lack of living within one's means and the squandering of the public's money, we now have these massive loans." I wonder if that Honourable Minister can tell us the reason why we now have these massive loans. Do you know what the reason is, Mr. Speaker? Bad management—no plan, no vision, no purpose, no consultation. This is not all, because what is not included in this is what is going to be needed to be done to set Cayman Airways right—which is going to be about another $19 million or $20 million. Where is it going to end?

I had an elderly school mistress. When things went radically wrong, she was fond of saying, "My, my, my, my. This would not even make sense in the creation of crabs." Mr. Speaker, this policy, this course we have embarked upon would not even make sense in the creation of crabs. We have an acknowledged economic boom. We have been borrowing ever since—borrowing ourselves into oblivion.

I want to quote that Honourable Minister again, because he is famous for these kinds of things. On page 12 of the same Hansard, he said, "What is important is simply this: It is the equivalent of a person receiving a certain amount of income and having a surplus left. In other words, spending much less than what they are making so that they have money to set aside to use for capital purchases, such as to buy a house or office, or that sort of thing. It is very different from what we saw in the immediate past where all of the capital expenditure in the country was borrowed. In other words, we are living within our means. This is something that did not happen under the previous two Governments." Mr. Speaker, you can shoot this one down too, it did not happen under them either.

So we have a situation where the preacher has not practised what he has been preaching. As a result, the country has gone astray. It has departed from the path it should have been on. The general reserves are not that much better off, we are increasing in debt. Mr. Speaker, I want to remind the Honourable House that a year or two ago the Dominion Bond Rating Service said we were entering the debt spiral. That Minister, who said he had a grip on things, is leading us head-long into that debt spiral.

It is one thing to come in here and try to one-up people and put them down, reminding them of their pedigree and telling them they are defunct. But it is another thing to demonstrate proper management. Here is as good a time to say this as there ever will be: I have found out (even more so on this occasion) that the ability to run this country is as much, or greater, on this side in this corner, than it is anywhere else in this Honourable House. There is one thing that can be said for the people who inhabit this corner: They have not had their chance.

I contend that the Honourable Member here who had a chance did a good job. At least something was left for the National Team to work with. I am not so sure the same will be said when they leave office. In all fairness, I cannot really dump it all on the Leader of Government Business, although the leader must understand that he has to bear the brunt of the responsibility. The Honourable Minister for Tourism had his share too. I am going to read what he said. He said, "Things were so bad. . ." and I am quoting now from the Hansard of Thursday, 17th November, 1994, page 11, he said, "Things were so bad that when the last Government tried to borrow $20 million. . ."

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order.

POINT OF ORDER (Relevance)

The Speaker: May I hear your point of order, please?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The Honourable Member has been speaking throughout on the 1994 Budget. What is before this House now is a Loan Bill. While there can be some reference, I submit that he has gone on for a very long period and has really said nothing on the Loan Bill.

The Speaker: I understand that. I will ask the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town to not to dwell too long, but I really do not think that is a point of order. Please continue, Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I am confident the Chair realises that this position we are in now cannot be taken out of context. This is relevant, because what I am trying to do is give a history of the financial situation of the country up to this point. I cannot just pluck the position out of a hat because the position we are in did not just happen now. This Loan Bill that we are debating did not just appear out of the blue. Everything has a history.

The point I am making is that the reason they have to borrow money at this point is as much a result of their bad management as the position they claimed was a result of the bad management of the Government from whom they inherited the halls of power. I was reading that the Honourable Minister for Tourism was saying that the situation was so bad that the Government of the day could not borrow $20 million—the $20 million he was confused about earlier because he said it was drawn down in 1992. That is what the Leader of Government Business said, when in fact it was not drawn down until 1993.

The point I must reinforce, Sir, is that the National Team cannot get away from the fact that the reason they have to borrow this money now is that they have mismanaged the financial affairs of the country. That is crystal clear! It becomes even more glaring when one considers that they have had the luxury of an economic boom in the five years they have been in the Government.

Let us analyse the situation. What have we got to show for their five years of stewardship? Of course, we have capital projects on line, but we also have an increased national debt through borrowings. Where are we headed? There are those of us who believe that were we not borrowing, and had we not borrowed last year, last year's Budget would not have been balanced and this year's Budget would not have been balanced. So there is no other explanation for the position they have put us in up to this point except deficit budgeting. This is why we could not find it in our hearts to support the Appropriations Bill, and, certainly, I am not supporting this Loan Bill.

Now the people who claim they are geniuses, the people who claim they inherited the mantle, or won the right to lead the country because they had a better record of financial stewardship and management, have failed dismally. They have failed miserably. I wonder what they are going to tell the public who so faithfully believed what they were told (that some of us were unemployed and unemployable, that we were not qualified to be leaders). . . Mr. Speaker, do you know what I am realising? Leadership is sometimes inherited, sometimes it is thrust upon people; but, on at least one occasion, some people are going to inherit it by default. Do you know why, Sir? Because all those other self-professed geniuses will have failed miserably and then the slogan is going to be: 'We Have Tried Those Who Claimed They Were Best, Now Let's Try The Rest!'

The writing is on the wall. It is a time of vision and visionaries. They do not have the vision and they are not the visionaries. Believe you me, Mr. Speaker, the year 2000, the new millennium, the 21st Century, is going to usher into this country a new breed of political animal, a new leader—one who believes in transparency, in fiscal responsibility and in the consultative process. Check the happenings in the House of the recent past and hear from which representatives and from which corner these principles were being echoed.

This Loan Bill can be like what Gottel Rothschild told the people of Europe when the storm clouds were gathering and her sons were the richest people in Europe. She said, "There will be no war because my sons will not finance it." The Government can get the Bill passed, but the blood of my countrymen will not be on my hands. I refuse to saddle them with debt. It will not get the support of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Speaker, I have incurred the wrath of Ministers and the National Team before and survived. I say No! One million times, No!

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush : It must be the business of any legislator to be concerned about the borrowings in our country. I had hoped that I would not have seen any proposals to borrow funds to further increase our public debt.

The test of borrowing is the ability to repay. Certainly we are getting close to the position which we said we must not go beyond—the 10% position. I had hoped that in trying to revamp the Budget process we would also have revamped our priorities on this matter.

On the position of the Budget and the resulting borrowings, I feel that we must prioritise. When we look at what we propose to borrow for we should ask ourselves whether in fact we should be borrowing for those things. We must come to some realisation that if we do not have the money, Members of the House should be prepared to prioritise in their constituencies in order not to have to borrow $20 million.

Again, I come back to the position of the country. The country is receiving a lot of revenue. We find that after recurrent expenditure we have $14 million. Out of that $14 million we are only saving $1.23 million ($1,230,000 I guess that is) for the reserves—funds for a rainy day. We are making a sizeable statutory contribution to the Public Service Pension Fund which was an undertaking given here several years ago. That needs to be brought up to date and I am happy to support it. I supported it before and I support it again at this time.

The Budget for our country with so many needs, so many people having input, is not easy. But there are projects—and this is what the Bill is for, projects—that I would think we should stand and say we are going to spend this amount at this time, and that is what we will budget. If we need the schools to be brought into a condition where everybody is happy, maintenance takes a lot of money. Additional buildings take a lot of money. If we want to get the schools up to par, then we should say we are going to budget for this year and get it completed. Then next year, or later on in the year, if revenue does better than we expect, we do some other things.

I must come back to the point where the West Bay Primary School hall is not yet built. When I, as a representative, consider what the district of West Bay needs and the projects planned. . . for instance, we have the Civic Centre, the Library, the new School and the John A. Cumber Primary School hall. These have been in various budgets from the time I first sat on Executive Council—and we still do not have them five years hence.

I believe, even with the need for those projects, we still must prioritise. I believe that our children's' education must come first. When I look at my constituency I would say that the school and the hall are priorities at this time. Looking nationally, I note that George Town has its needs. The Red Bay School has its needs. There is a handicapped school which the Minister has been trying to get, and we need it. But, simply looking at it, there are not enough funds to do the work that the Minister has been called upon to do. We do not have the funds.

We have been put in a bad position because what we have done is gone through the Budget and we have all sat down and said we need this and that on each page—we want channels, we want cemeteries, we want everything that we took six or seven days to go through. Now, we all feel bad because we have to borrow for those projects because only some $4 million out of the revenue is going to capital expenditure. So we are short $19 million. All legislators in this House have been put in the position. . . we sat down for days, asking for this, that, and the next thing, and now if you want it you have to borrow. I saw this coming miles away.

I recall (and I am speaking here without any notes) in 1996 my Ministry did some $300,000 worth of capital works. I felt in March that we should have carried on with what we had planned and not started other projects. But we fell into the trap and started other things. Now we come to the 1998 Budget and we are in that same position again. I know the situation that Ministers are caught in because they sit down, they look at the Budget and everybody wants their share. We must prioritise. The handicap school is seriously needed. Many times throughout the past couple of days the situation with the hospital has come to light. These are considerations that Government must deal with.

I did not prepare a lot of notes because I specifically do not want to carry on a long debate on this Bill. But, suffice it to say that I am alarmed, after having the kind of capital development we had scheduled for this year, that we could not get some of it done and we are having to borrow again. While I wish my colleagues on the Government bench well, I cannot tell them that I am happy with the situation.

Before I sit down I am going to say that we have to pay particular attention to the schools in the country. That is a must. No longer can we put it off, in my district in particular. I repeat that: Items have been in the Budget for several years with nothing done. It is because money is shared up, and shared up. But at some point we have to prioritise.

Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause) The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Standing to make my contribution to the Loans (Capital Projects 1998) Bill 1997, is somewhat of a novel and strange position to be in, being a new Minister. But, having said that, I am fully cognisant that the money to carry out the numerous capital projects has to come from somewhere. It was made quite clear that after the deduction of the recurrent expenditure and other contributions, statutory and otherwise, there is some $4 million which can be allocated to the capital projects. Although there is a cry that the sum is a large amount (and I am not standing here to dispute that), to say that we are to prioritise each thing, with each Member still not wanting to give way and offer a positive alternative in this regard brings us back to square one, which my friend, the Third Elected Member for George Town, has been recorded as calling 'parochial politics'. I agree there is a time and place for that, but at the same time I believe that we cannot choose to blow hot and cold. Yes, we must set our priorities, and I believe that we must be able to sieve the needs and wants of our constituents, not only districts but on a national perspective as well. We see projects for Education which I believe must be of paramount consideration. We are now in a very competitive era and if we are going to 'Caymanian-ise' the various occupations, as we all like to stand up and say we support, we must provide the necessary educational institutions and facilities so that our children will be in a better position to compete.

There is also a large amount in for hospitals, a commitment we have all conceptually agreed is well needed. It has been started, and I believe that we have a legal obligation to complete the same.

There are funds in for roads, which as it stands is, I believe, insufficient. Needless to say, it is better than not having any funds at all. Speaking for my own district of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, there is some $375,000, and an extra $190,000 and $10,000. It would be remiss of me to say that I would not like to have perhaps $1 million to do the roads. I believe that the Government has prioritised and has tried to be as fair and as equitable as possible in the distribution of the limited resources, but still, we find ourselves in a position where we have to borrow.

I believe that the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development has said and can confirm that the danger is not borrowing, but in our ability to repay. Providing the projects are essential—and I believe that they are, Sir—then I have no problem in supporting the Loan Bill. It is not an ideal situation but I believe that we have done the very best in the interest of all of the people of the Cayman Islands in putting forward this Budget.

If I may revert back to the hot issue of prioritising, I would just ask all Members that in so doing it not just be a matter of tautological reasoning, or for the sake of verbalising. In all seriousness, we all understand and are fully cognisant that that is an essential part of any Budget. But with that we must be committed because our performance is based on commitment and we must do more than merely say that it must be prioritised, we must offer positive alternatives and make suggestions as to what should be cut, if anything, and be prepared to stand here whether or not we will lose votes. Let us be statesmen and not just politicians when it comes to the Loan Bill, or otherwise.

Mr. Speaker, there are other projects mainly with sports. If anyone is reasonable and fair-minded they will see that in the Budget there has been a dramatic decrease in the sum of money allocated to sports, and in some areas Social Services. I believe those are very crucial areas. At the same time, I do not expect to get 100% of the economic pie. I believe that if revenue increases, or the forecast becomes more positive in 1998, then all Members here, being the fair-minded persons they are, will support this supplementary expenditure needed in that regard.

I hope that all Members will not take the Loan Bill lightly or use it as a political football but will, indeed, make positive and constructive alternative suggestions in the best interest of the entire Cayman Islands, and not for one district in particular or from a personal perspective. Again I say that I realise there are things in this Budget which as a new Minister I would have changed had I been in there at an earlier stage. But at some stage we must be able to exercise discretion weighing all factors and doing what is best for the country. With that, Mr. Speaker, I will support this Bill.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak?

The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Boddin: Mr. Speaker, the Loan Bill that we have before us today is a Bill that supports the Budget which has just been passed. This Bill is a necessary part of the Budget.

This Bill includes all of the capital that has gone into the Budget, matters such as healthcare facilities, the hospital, and the medical equipment. If there is anyone here who can say that a hospital and the equipment is not needed, then I think that they have their priorities wrong. Those amounts come up to $6.924 million. In it also are the costs of matters such as the Lighthouse School, the new schools in George Town and in West Bay, and the Red Bay School. We have seen in relation to schools where this Loan Bill will support additions to Creek Primary. It will deal with buildings at the Red Bay Primary. It includes buildings at the East End Primary, a bus shelter at the Boddin Town Primary. At the John A. Cumber School there are three different things listed in it. The Savannah Primary is also one of the schools that will be benefiting from this Loan Bill. The George Town Primary School is also in for a fair amount of funds in this, as is the Spot Bay School for the construction of a multi-purpose hall. Also the secondary schools, the George Hicks, the John Gray and the Cayman Brac High School. So, in one sweep we have basically covered the full spectrum of the schools and medical equipment in the capital projected for this coming year.

The diversity of this capital and the spread of it, other than in relation to the medical equipment and the new hospital, are very sizeable amounts. But the balance of this Budget depends on this Loan Bill and it is spread over many, many areas of capital in these islands. We are looking at matters such as the Drug Rehabilitation Centre, and the district Post Offices.

This loan, while we are contributing about $15 million of capital from the recurrent surplus, will go to pay for several of these long-term projects that I have stated. The district Post Offices are important and are necessary to the specific districts they relate to. There are other areas such as the new Agricultural Building, and areas as well that relate to important areas of this Budget which is supported by the Loan.

We have just been through an extremely long meeting of Finance Committee that has approved. . . in fact, the votes put on the Heads of the Budget, to my recollection went through the House without any objection or any opposition to the vote. So we have now approved a Budget that has as an integral part of it these capital development matters.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order.

The Speaker: May I hear your point of order, please?

Point of Order
(Misleading)

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: It would seem to me that the Honourable Minister is misleading the House when he says that the Budget went through without opposition. There was a vote taken at the end of the Appropriation Bill on the Third Reading when the vote was six to four—with four people voting against it. I may have misunderstood him, but my understanding is that he said the Budget went through without opposition.

The Speaker: [Addressing the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning] Would you correct that please?

Hon. Truman M. Boddin: Mr. Speaker, what the Member has said is obviously correct. What I was referring to was when we went through the Estimates, which I refer to as the Budget. What was passed on the majority vote was the Appropriation Bill, which I regard as different from the Estimates that we go through in detail. I guess what I am saying, Mr. Speaker, is that those Estimates, despite there being a lot of talk on this, the vast majority of those different sections of the Bill went through unanimously.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, again on a point of order.

POINT OF ORDER
(Misleading)

The Speaker: Please state your point of order. . . actually, I agree that there was opposition on the division, but we did agree as we went along on what was said. The final thing was disagreed on. I know that each person had their equal say over a period of five or six days. We had open, frank discussion. But let me hear your other point of order.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I do not want to prolong this, but I think we need to clarify this matter. We know that in Finance Committee the Budget was looked at in detail. I think it is understood that on the Third Reading the final position on the Appropriation Bill is voted upon. It was on that reading that Members exercised their right to take a division. In that division there were six people supporting the Appropriation Bill and four against. I think to state it otherwise is misleading to the House and to the public.

The Speaker: Honourable Member, you are absolutely correct on your figures. But I think what the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning has said. . . he used the word 'Budget' when talking about our deliberations in Finance Committee. But I take your point.

Honourable Minister, would you restate what you said?

Hon. Truman M. Boddin: Mr. Speaker, what I would like to do at this stage is call for the transcript of the Finance Committee's votes to see whether there was opposition to the votes on the Heads and whether a division was called. That will settle the matter.

POINT OF ORDER
(Misleading)

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order. That is really confusing the issue. My point is that the Honourable Minister misled the House and the listening public by stating that the Budget received unanimous passage here in the House. He said that all of us supported that. That was the impression given. For us to try to distinguish now between the Budget and the Appropriation Bill is, I believe, splitting hairs. We voted on the Third Reading of that Bill, against the Bill—four against, six in favour. I think that is the way the record should read.

Hon. Truman M. Boddin: Mr. Speaker, in that case, what I would do is ask for the transcript of the votes on the Heads in Finance Committee and let us see how many voted against the Heads there. Mr. Speaker, that is the only way I see, in fairness, that this can be settled. I just distinguished between, and I corrected that part, on the Appropriation Bill here.

The vote, as the Member stated, is correct. But when we dealt with the Estimates in here, to the best of my knowledge, and it was over many days, there was no division on the votes that were put, and those Heads passed. What I am asking, since there is a discrepancy between that Member and myself on that, I am asking for the transcripts on those votes so that we can see whether. . . . [inaudible interjections]

I decide what I put up. Since there is a conflict, let us see whether there were any votes against specific Heads in the Estimates.

The Speaker: What specific Head are we talking about? That is the question that I would like to have answered.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, that is a good question and on a point of order, Sir. The Appropriation Bill is not fully considered until the vote is taken on the Third Reading. We cannot talk about votes taken on individual subheads. We talk about the final vote on the Third Reading. I believe that Honourable Minister knows his Standing Orders well enough to know that.

The final vote was taken. That was a six-to-four vote. That is the one that stands—the final vote on the Appropriation Bill. If that vote had been lost by Government all the agreements during the Finance Committee would have been of naught. It is that final vote that counts and the Honourable Minister knows that. For him to now say that we should go to the transcript is a colossal waste of time. It is totally unnecessary. That is why he came back to the House.

The Speaker: I understand what you are saying. He has repeatedly said that he agrees the division is correct. I add that there were seven absent in addition to the number called.

The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: My point—and I would like to have the transcript of the votes on the Heads—is that they passed through this House to the best of my knowledge without either a division or any vote against them. Unless the Budget has passed that process, under the Standing Orders it cannot then come back to this House to go on for the vote on the Appropriation Bill. So, what I am asking for is the transcript on those votes taken in Finance Committee to show whether I am right or wrong that the vast majority of those were all passed unanimously by the House.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, sorry to have to continue on this, but on a point of order, Sir. What happened in Finance Committee is really somewhat irrelevant because some Members did not even vote. If, at the end of the Third Reading the Government Bench had suffered a loss, what happened in Finance Committee would have been irrelevant. It is the vote at the end of the Third Reading that really makes sense, that is really important. The Honourable Minister knows this. To go and look at the different votes taken in Finance Committee is throwing a red herring on the whole thing and confusing the issue. He knows better.

MOMENT OF INTERRUPTION—4.30 PM

The Speaker: We have reached 4.30 PM. I would now call for a motion for the adjournment of this House and you can bring any transcripts you want tomorrow.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

The Speaker: Before I put the question I would like to say to all Honourable Members that today is Mrs. Bernice Svavarsson's last day. She is moving to Iceland to join her husband. On behalf of the House and the staff I would like to wish her all that is good and to thank her for her services rendered to us here. I have a note which she has passed on to me, and I shall copy it to all Members.

The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: I would just like to extend an invitation to the whole House to join the Business and Professional Women's Club at the Domestic Gender Violence Rally on the Court steps at 6.00.

The Speaker: The question is that this House do now adjourn until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. Those in favour, please say Aye. . . . Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AT 4.30 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10 AM THURSDAY, 11TH DECEMBER, 1997.

The Speaker: I have to advise this Honourable House that a former Member of the Executive Council, Captain Charles Kirkconnell, a Member of this House and a Member of the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association, is today undergoing triple bypass surgery in Miami at Baptist Hospital. I feel sure that all Members of the House would offer their prayers for his speedy recovery and to

Suspension of Standing Order 14(2)

The Speaker: I would ask for the suspension of Standing Order 14(2) to proceed with Government Business, as it is my understanding that the mover of the Private Member's Motion will give way to Government Business.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I move the suspension of Standing Order 14(2) to enable Government Business to take precedence over other business.

The Speaker: The question is that we suspend Standing Order 14(2). Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER
14(2) TO ENABLE GOVERNMENT BUSINESS TO TAKE PRECEDENCE OVER OTHER BUSINESS.

The Speaker: A continuation of debate on the Loan (Capital Projects 1998) Bill, 1997.

Before I call on the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning, when this House adjourned yesterday, we were discussing a point of order. During the recess, I have given serious consideration to this matter. I would like to say to all Honourable Members that the Third Elected Member for George Town raised a valid point inasmuch as on the division on the Third Reading, there was a count of six in favour, four against, with seven absent. I would also at this time like to call the attention of all Honourable Members of the House to Standing Order 67(4): "When the motion 'That the Finance Committee approves the proposal/proposals set out in the paper', or that motion as amended, has been agreed upon in the Finance Committee, and the report of the Finance Committee is laid on the Table the Member of the Government who moved the motion shall report the motion or the motion as amended in the Finance Committee, and the House shall thereupon be deemed to have agreed to the motion or to the motion as amended, as the case may be."

The necessity for the division was simply as a courtesy to those calling for the division, and I would like to further state that in reviewing the situation, the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning raised a very valid point. In reviewing the report of the Finance Committee, on all Heads, there were no divisions. Each Head was taken individually and there was no call for a division during that time. Therefore all Members accepted the Heads as they were approved individually.

Having said this, I would ask now that Honourable Members realise that we are now debating the Loan Bill and not the Appropriation Bill. The Appropriation Bill is history, and I would ask Members to let us continue now debating the Loan (Capital Projects 1998) Bill, 1997, the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning continuing.

SECOND READING

THE LOAN (CAPITAL PROJECTS 1998) BILL, 1997

(Continuation of debate thereon)

(10.40 AM)

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The Loan Bill is an integral part of the Budget that has just been passed, and one which is moderate. It is clear that the loan is in relation to capital projects, not recurrent projects. This is the difference: A balanced budget is when the recurrent revenue exceeds recurrent expenditure, and there is a surplus on the recurrent account. We have that, Mr. Speaker, in that $14.5 million will be contributed to capital and to capital projects.

There can be no doubt, except for two years that I will refer to, Mr. Speaker, that budgets in this country have been balanced, and there has been no borrowing for recurrent expenditure. In other words, if a country has to borrow to pay for civil servants' salaries, or to repay its debts, or to pay for electricity or water, that means the budget is not balanced. When there is a surplus, and the Government or a company, pays for all its recurrent expenditure and has a surplus left over to apply towards capital projects, then a budget is balanced. This Budget, Mr. Speaker, has $14.5 million of recurrent surplus. There can be no doubt. That is clearly set out in the Estimates, which have been unanimously accepted by this Honourable House.

The position is that the loans for capital that we have borrowed in recent years are short- to medium-term. The large loan of $20 million for Cayman Airways was, as far as I know, an eight-year loan. Therefore repayments in these years are heavy. Even at that, Mr. Speaker, we are only applying 6.8 percent of the total recurrent revenue to service to repay principal and interest. We are a way off from what the Honourable Financial Secretary has said, and if I may quote him on this, "The total annual debt service (principal and interest) is expected to represent 6.8 percent of 1997 Recurrent Revenue which is below the debt service ceiling of 10 percent established by the Government." We also know that ten percent is what is internationally accepted by world organisations such as World Bank, International Monetary Fund, and the other international financial agencies. We are way, way under this.

We have, between 1993 and 1997, repaid $58,902,190 on principal and interest, so we have repaid a very substantial part. In fact, we have repaid more than we have borrowed over that period. We have clearly shown that this amount—and agreed, it is principal and interest, but the bulk of this is repayment of principal—does exceed the amount borrowed during that timeframe. It is not as if this borrowing is in isolation. This year alone, the repayment is $17.41 million of principal and interest, and borrowing is $19.5 million. A large part of past debt is being repaid, and notwithstanding that, we still have a surplus of $14.5 million.

The total loans, to 1997, are a few million dollars less than that amount. While I know one Member has taken the point that it includes principal and interest, the larger part of that is obviously payments of principal.

Therefore, while it is fair for one to say that the loan bill is for $19.5 million, it is fair also to say that the repayment on past loans of principal and interest is $17.41 million, and that over the total period, there have been repayments in excess of what has been borrowed. While repayments on principal may be somewhat less, when you add both together, we have put back in more than was borrowed.

The position therefore is not one that needs to cause any worry whatsoever, because the $19 million that is being borrowed is for long-term projects. It is not to pay salaries or to pay recurrent expenditure. These, as we know, Mr. Speaker, include the Hospital, the schools, the roads. Six or seven million will be going into the Harquail Bypass this year alone, and the many roads that have been put through George Town and the other districts here, and on the other Islands. Money is being put into civic centres. Four full medical health centres have been opened in the districts. These are assets. This money being borrowed is going into very good projects.

At this stage, we are undoubtedly in an economic boom. There can be no doubt that this is the best the country has ever been. Our revenues are high, and this is the time that, if we are going to do projects which are large, such as the Hospital, for example, and very large roads, such as the Harquail Bypass, we need to do it during this stage. The Crewe Road Bypass also is one that is scheduled into this Budget.

The point that has been made in relation to reserves, I think applies equally to the question of loans. Over the years from 1992 and including the Budget in 1998, we would have put $34 million into pension reserves. That $34 million, Mr. Speaker, had it been applied against debt, or to general reserves, would have raised the general reserves by $34 million; alternatively, it could have reduced the debt by $34 million. We are responsible to the civil service, Mr. Speaker, and past governments, including the Government I was in in the late 70s, 1976 to 1984, none of the governments then, nor before nor after that, had fully made provision for civil service pensions. It is a contingent liability that has to be paid by the Government. We could have done what the government I was in from 1976 to 1982, and every other government has done, take the $34 million or a part of it, even $20 million, put it in general reserves and say, 'We have $20 million more in general reserves.' In fact, you would not have it, because the liability is owed to the civil service.

The total amount put into capital in the last four years is $147.7 million. That says a lot for this Government when borrowing was in the area of about $50 million. This is borne out by the accounts that show the amounts contributed to capital, nearly $80 million. About $80 million of recurrent surplus was put into projects such as the Hospital, the schools, and roads, civic centres, medical centres in each district. That was—and I am reading here from Appendix VII of what was given by the Accountant General—in 1993, $11.2 million of surplus was put into capital; 1994, $13.9 million was put from surplus into capital; in 1995, $16.3 million of surplus was put into capital projects; and in 1996, $23.6 million was contributed. This year, it is estimated that $14.5 million will be contributed, or $79.5 million of recurrent surplus was put to buy long-term projects.

No individual and no company is able to buy a house out of their salary in one year, so it is a myth to believe that this country is any different. If we have long-term projects, then they have to be financed and paid for over a period of time, and every government has followed that principle. We are well under the percentage for servicing those loans, so we have a lot of credit left if it ever became necessary to borrow further.

Only twice in the history of this country that I know about, at least in the past twenty years, the Budget of this country was not balanced. In 1990, the recurrent revenue was $101.8 million, and the recurrent and statutory expenditure was $103 million, making a deficit which had to be borrowed to pay for recurrent expenditure, of $1.2 million. The other time, Mr. Speaker—and I am reading from the Accountant General's summary, was in 1992, when the recurrent revenue was $121 million and the recurrent and statutory expenditure was $124.6 million, leaving a deficit of $3.6 million that had to be borrowed. That is only twice in the history of this country that the budget has not been balanced.

In all of the previous years—and I only have from 1984 here—but from 1976 to 1984, I am sure that, and perhaps in the earlier years, there was always a recurrent surplus, so in every year we have been here, as I have just mentioned, the five years have created $79.5 million of surplus. We have never had any deficits between recurrent revenue and recurrent and statutory expenditure, and that is taken from Appendix VII of the Accounts headed "Cayman Islands Government Financial Summary" at page 42.

This country, Mr. Speaker, is not only in a boom, it is in a very good financial position. What is significant at this stage is that boom periods can only come when the people, the financial institutions, the business companies, have faith in the government. The day that falters, we will find that the country's economic boom will shift and we will get a recession. Thank the Lord, we have continued for probably, I am sure, the longest period of a boom that this country has ever seen. But it has been a controlled growth. The growth has always been under five percent, and therefore the movement upward has been at such a controlled pace to ensure that it could be stretched over as long a period as possible.

In the past, the economic cycles in this country went up and down every two to three years, and that was during periods when I was in government in the past, and I am not referring now to any specific government, but the economic cycle of a boom to recession basically came every two to three years. Thank the Lord, we have had about four good years now, and there is no reason, as I see it, for that to change in the future. At some time it will plateau out, and that is something to be expected. At present and for the foreseeable future, the position looks good.

One of the things I would like to mention is that while quotations have been done on public debt, the debt overall has to be looked at along with the self-financing debt. Before 1992, many of the self-financing loans were put into statutory corporations, such as the Health Services Authority and two or three other authorities that were involved. Those loans have now been brought back into Government debt, so this has to be looked at as a whole. It is therefore not correct to just isolate the public debt and say nothing of the statutory authorities' debt, because Government is responsible for that debt.

At the end of the day, the figures down to December 1996, what is estimated for this year, Mr. Speaker, are going to be subject to fluctuation. The public debt and the self-financing loans—and I am taking this from Debt Summary No. 1 that Members were given—at 31 December 1993—this is after the Cayman Airways loan—the total debt was $54,126,799. That was split between $27 million of public debt and $25.5 million of self-financing debt. At the end of 1996, the debt had increased to $67.5 million. It was only up approximately $13 million because many repayments were made during this period, which are also set out in here.

The statutory authorities' debt at that stage was only $16 million and the public debt was $50 million. I am saying this because while it has not yet been done, when we are looking at the debt of the country, it must be looked at overall. The debt brought back in from the statutory authorities on the self-financing debt has now shifted to public debt. The total debt and loans during that period only increased by $13 million. I am reading here from the Summary the Honourable Financial Secretary produced, which sets out the borrowing repayments.

Any attempt to isolate and talk about public debt without talking about self-financing debt is misrepresenting and not showing the whole picture. I submit that we have to look at the full picture. Mr. Speaker, with that increase of $13 million, we did approximately $130 million of capital works. That is not an insignificant sum. $130 million went into schools, roads, hospitals, district clinics, civic centres and many, many other areas that are so badly needed.

What I would like to do now, because a lot has been said about where Government is and is not. . . and we can speculate and give estimates on what is happening, but facts are facts and I am happy to either lay this on the Table or give copies of it to Members. The actual figures to 30 September 1997 showed recurrent revenue of $163,754,000. The recurrent and statutory expenditure was $144,712,000, giving a recurrent surplus of $19.042 [million]. The difference between revenue and expenditure was $19,042,000.

We had capital expenditure of $29,788,000 and we had loan financing of $8.8 million only. To the end of September, having spent $29.7 million of capital, the only loan financing we drew down was $8.8 million. These are the figures, so no matter what is said and how anyone tries to misinterpret the position, the position is very clearly that at the end of September we had $19,042,000 of revenue surplus. Along with $8.834 million of loans, we had spent $29.788 million on capital.

I go back to this, Mr. Speaker. A balanced budget is when the recurrent revenue, less the recurrent expenditure and statutory expenditure, shows a surplus. This is something I am happy to lay on the Table if copies of this can be made and given to Members. Whatever may be said, down to the end of September 1997, this country has been, and continues to be, in a very healthy surplus. Our revenue is well in excess of the cost of what we pay out for salaries and to service the debts. No one can dispute this.

What will happen, and I will warn this House and the public to watch out for, is when people come in giving what they estimate things are going to be. Anyone can estimate it. We may estimate it conservatively; the Opposition may estimate it in a pessimistic way. Facts and figures do not lie. As at 30 September we had a recurrent surplus of $19,042,000 and we had only borrowed $8.834 million, and had spent $29.788 million.

Much of this would have been on the Hospital. The Harquail Bypass has also been an expensive road, but it is an asset. Many of the schools were done. There was work in Cayman Brac and Little Cayman and throughout all the districts. Whatever may be surmised, these are hard facts that put this country in a very good position.

I would ask that Honourable Members of this House and the public accept these figures. They are signed by the Accountant General designate and I will lay this on the Table of the House so it can be given to Members.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, Monday afternoon, and again yesterday, I saw a barrage of attacks on me. . .

Mr. Roy Bodden: We are giving you what you gave us! You have more to get!

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I am not going to be drawn into this, either at this stage or in the future. I had prepared a considerably lengthy reply, but I thought I had to stay above getting down into areas that are not becoming in debate in this House. The public is well aware that I have been targeted and attacked, again and again and again. In the interest of this country, I have taken it. That is why in my two debates. . .

[inaudible interjection]

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: . . . and I am sure the public can hear one Member across there trying to interrupt me. I am not going to get into any sort of rhetoric across the floor of the House because I have certain standards and I intend to keep them high. I do not intend to have anyone. . .

[inaudible interjection]

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: (Addressing the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town) I really wish you would shut up, please.

I am not going to let anyone pull me down into the gutter on debate.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Hypocrites, Mr. Speaker.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I do not, therefore, intend to get into any sort of across-the-floor debate in this matter. I have kept my debate high, I have dealt with facts; I have kept away from names and it is unfortunate if other Members do not follow. I will say this: The public is smart and these attacks provide their own punishment at the polls. Members need to remember that. I think the public is tired of rhetoric and fighting.

I know Members of this Honourable House are tired of being here, Mr. Speaker. Yesterday was a good example when seven Members were not here. I would urge Members to get on with the business of the House. There is a lot left. Keep the debate short, keep the standards high and debate the facts and the facts only.

In summary, this country is in an economic boom. There can be no doubt about it. The percentage of recurrent revenue that is needed to service the debt is only 6.8 percent. Many of the loans are short- and medium-term loans, mainly medium-term, not long-term. The repayments are higher.

Also, the principal and interest that was repaid by this Government over the last five years exceeded the total loans drawn down. Also, we have put $34 million into pension reserves that we could have put into general reserves if we had followed what other governments in the past (including my Government) did in the early days.

We have continued to build the general reserves and they are moving up. They are not moving as fast as I think we would all like to see, but, on the other hand, we stayed here and went through this Budget and no one was able to say, "Cut this or that large project." At the end of the day, the loans are to finance projects that were in the Budget.

The last aspect I pointed out is that the Government's financial position up to September 1997 shows a very large surplus of $19 million (I do not have the exact figures because I have laid them on the Table), and it shows that we only borrowed a bit over $8 million to finance $29 million of capital. That is the position. Whatever may be said, it is only people's opinion. That is why I have stayed with facts in here. For the five years that I have been in this House, the Budget of this country has been balanced and, as I said, some $79 million of surplus has been accumulated—$79.5 million over the past five years—that has gone towards financing $147.7 million.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, on a point of elucidation, if the Member would give way.

The Speaker: Will you give way?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I am not getting into any fights on this. I have stayed very calm. I am not going to give way. I would just like to finish my speech and sit down, please. I do not have to give way, and I am not going to, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: Please continue.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Obviously, the aim is to break one's train of thought. I need a minute to try to figure out where I was.

The position is that we have had a surplus of $79.5 million over the past five years and this has financed assets of $147.7 million of capital projects—schools, hospitals, whatever. This has been done because of prudent financial policies. We have always contributed from a surplus to the capital. Mr. Speaker, you cannot pay for your full house out of one year's salary. We know that. Every one of us who has a house has paid for it over a period of fifteen or twenty years. Therefore, it cannot be expected that a Government, a company or anyone else, would have sufficient funds out of their revenue, which in the case of an individual would be their salary, to finance buying all of its capital such as its houses, or, if it is a business, its offices. It is done over a period. That is something we have always done. We have lived within our means, we have repaid more than we have borrowed—agreed, it is with capital and interest. That says something.

Most importantly, the public of this country, and internationally—and we have to appreciate that internationally there is good faith in this Government and in this Island because the economy in the private sector is booming, and both the international financial and business industries fully support this country and this Government. That was so clear in the Financial Secretary's speech showing the rapid increase in banks, insurance companies, in companies and all the other businesses around here. The real estate is in a booming stage.

These things speak for themselves, no matter what is said. Hard facts cannot be changed. That $19 million of surplus down to 13 September might not be liked by some of the Members of this House, but that is hard facts and only $8.8 million was borrowed.

I would make a plea for Honourable Members to try to keep their debate high, try to keep out of areas that are going to waste time, or to cause the House to get disrupted, and to try to live up to what I think the public, those who voted us in here, and the public in the Cayman Islands as a whole would like to see, that the debate is kept high and that the standards of this Honourable House, which is the highest council in this country, stays and keeps its standards to those which the public would expect of us.

With that, I am very happy to commend the Honourable Financial Secretary on a Budget well done, one that passed through this House and we are now on the Loan Bill, and to say to him, Keep up the good work, because the public out there knows that things are going well and those are hard facts. I just pray to the good Lord that things continue to go well in the future. Thank you.

The Speaker: Proceedings are suspended for fifteen minutes, and I ask all Members to be back in fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.20 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 11.48 AM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Debate continues on the Loan Bill. The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, while listening to the Minister for Aviation and Education defend the Government's desire to borrow $19.5 million, I was sort of lost, to a certain extent, because there were so many figures mentioned, that at a point, I truly had the feeling that I was sitting in the wrong place, because my understanding of economics and accounting suggests that all of that could have been made quite simple.

Perhaps if it were made any simpler than that Minister made the exercise, we would see that Government, yes, needs to borrow. Government is capable of repaying the amounts, especially with short notes, as Government has demonstrated over the last five years.

The philosophy I would like to briefly discuss is not the question of whether Government is capable at this time of paying to do additional projects, or render additional services. The economy being what it is—and the Minister did mention those facts—we know that investors have a certain amount of trust in our economic system that allows us to say that we should continue, if there are no down-turns in the world economy, to prosper and not to suffer from any type of economic recessions or retrogressions.

Mr. Speaker, I believe that our economic situation is the result of the fact that we do not have to render unto Caesar what is Caesar's. In fact, I should hope that, if Caesar does come to the Cayman Islands, we do not give him any temporary or permanent residency. By Caesar I mean the taxman. I mean the one who collects tributes from the people and feels it is somehow his right to take from those who are truly the creators of wealth in a country, and to distribute that in the way he sees fit, without being questioned by those responsible for paying tribute.

It is very important that we, in developing this country, do not get so enthusiastic about delivering services and delivering capital projects, to the extent that we begin to erode the taxation system we have in the country at present. My point is that when we begin to create more and more, and focus on more and more needs, and when we begin to convince the people and ourselves that these needs must be met by Government, in fact we are creating the need to raise new revenues, or to borrow in cases where revenue is not sufficient.

Therefore, for us to labour the point that revenue is good, we simply forget about the fact that in March of this year, when we met to discuss the Budget, we also had a Loan Bill, which I supported at that time as part and parcel of the Budget, because I felt that my newness to this experience did not place me in a position where I could truly say that Government could do without borrowing this amount of money.

Now I have become more clear as to what has been happening. Mr. Speaker, I said that there was a lack of leadership in this country, a lack of creative leadership, an inability for us to visualise the future, and an inability to take what we were visualising as the future and bring it into the workings of the present, to integrate those two—our desires for the present and our desires for the future—to integrate them in such a way that leadership learns to manage. We need to see that we are not acting as if democracy means the rule of the mob, or democracy means somehow that we can all get in at the same time to the same points and at the same time get what we want. We have to learn to manage our priorities. We have to learn to assist the people in structuring priorities.

A case in point is the opening of the health centres in the different districts. We are having the openings of three, four health centres at the same time that we are building a major Hospital. We are using a whole lot of money. We are having to borrow money for the Hospital projects, yet we are building the health centres.

Even if we find that we are borrowing money to pay for the Hospital, but we are taking from our recurrent expenditure money to pay for the health centres, then it goes to say that the reason we are borrowing money to pay for the health centres is because we are using recurrent expenditure. The fact that we have to borrow is the question here. Why do we have to borrow? We have to borrow, not just because we need. We have to borrow because we are structuring our priorities incorrectly.

We know the need exists. The need exists because the priorities are not being structured properly. This is one reason I said, in my last debate on the loan bill, I did not want to get in the way of the Government doing the country's business by saying to them they cannot borrow the money. I would agree with that. I need to see at this particular juncture that the priorities are being set in place. That if this one says, 'My District needs a civic centre'—and it might not necessarily need a civic centre because we already have a civic centre in that particular area—if people really were creative, they would learn how to use that facility. If we could teach people that co-operation rather than pulling apart is what we need in this country, if we could teach people that the collective processes are superior to that kind of parochial consciousness, then the people themselves will come to us and say, 'You do not need to spend all this money. You do not need to build us all district clinics at the same time you are building us a Hospital, because this might endanger the security and financial stability of the country down the road.'

Mr. Roy Bodden: Preach! Preach! Preach! Preach!

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Hear, hear!

Dr. Frank McField: Not today, when we are prosperous. Not today when people are rushing to get into our doors, but maybe tomorrow!

Mr. Roy Bodden: Preach man, preach!

Dr. Frank McField: This is what is important: That we do not try to do all things for all people at one time. It makes the Government look good. They can come back and say, 'Look at what we did. We did this, we did that, we did the other thing, we did that, we did that, the last people didn't do anything.' They have done it as a result of the growth in recurrent revenue. They have done it as a result of the growth in the revenue of the country, and by borrowing. That is how these things have been accomplished, and therefore, it is important from the very beginning to get rid of the superstition we have in this country that Government exists in terms of its financial ability independent from the citizens of the country. Government spending is directly related to the people's labour.

Every time we see that we can do more, it is not individual people in Government doing more. The people in the country are producing more, and therefore the revenues increase, and the Government is allowed to achieve what they have structured as important within the country.

This is a small country. I know we have a very high standard of living in this country. I am beginning to see that somehow—and I believe, Mr. Speaker, that before I am cautioned about moving away from the Loan Bill, what I am trying to say is why I cannot support the Loan Bill. There is a philosophy here—not facts and figures, as the last speaker mentioned—but I am dealing here, Mr.

Speaker, with concepts. I am dealing here with principles; and principles and concepts are very important to the task we are here to do. It is not good enough for us to say, 'Well we put $34 million into a pension fund. If we did not put it into the fund, it would show up here, in the accounting system.' You have already identified that as a priority, and you have done it! It's gone! It is not as if the State belongs to any one group of politicians! The State continues! The responsibility of the State will continue after the National Team period in Government, just as it has continued until the beginning of their period in Government.

Regardless of where they decide to put money, regardless of whether or not more money is coming in now than was coming in before, and they can afford to be a little bit more generous in terms of answering the immediate demands of the people, they must not fail us in attempting to grab the bull by the horns, and to structure the priorities, and to have dialogue with the people, and to consult the people, and to find out how we can begin to change the very distorted priorities we have for ourselves here in this country, not just as individuals, but as a Government as a whole.

Immediate gratification is simplistic; it is animalistic; and we have to get to a higher stage of development. Only through structuring our priorities in a logical and constructive manner, will we really be able to show our sophistication in this country.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Hear, hear!

Dr. Frank McField: Character sometimes is not built by wealth, but by not having, by poverty. People are forced to become more creative, less wasteful, more appreciative than saying, 'Government needs to do this.' I hear this all the time, because every time the people say, 'We want,' Government realises that if they do not answer the people's wants, they might not be in Government any more. We have to think about ourselves. And to think about ourselves, we have to sometimes say, 'I know it is hard to persuade this member of my constituency that this is not needed or cannot be afforded at this time, but I have spent more time, because it is my job, thinking about this, therefore I should attempt to convince that person.' Given a little bit of time, we can convince these people. This is one reason I am a full-time representative and why my job should be considered a full-time job. It takes a lot of time to persuade people that maybe what they want is not what is necessarily the best for everybody. We have to be looking, not just at what is good for one person or two people, or one district or two districts, but what is good for the country.

We need to develop a national perspective in this country, and therefore I believe that the Minister of Education's policy on education should not just be the Minister of Education's policy, but the Government policy on education. The Minister of Tourism's policy should not just be the Minister of Tourism's policy, but Government policy. When we get an integrated policy concept, then we will be able to structure needs. Then we will be able to see a budget brought before the Legislative Assembly that does not represent scrambling, 'Let's get to the point, let's see who gets this and let's see who gets that, because if I don't get this, it's going to make me look bad.' If I have to give up something as a Minister, it would be hoped that in the Government achieving a greater picture, what I had to forsake as one individual Minister, is not being betrayed, because at the end of the day, the greater purpose, the greater good is still being served.

This is why I am approaching this Loan Bill from this point of view, in saying I cannot support it. I am calling upon the Government, and I will be calling upon them for the next three years, to streamline priorities in such a way that although we are capable of borrowing, and although we are capable of paying back what we borrow, we do not borrow simply because we can borrow! I am sure that when I voted for the increased revenue measures in March, I gave the Government a possibility to bring in more money in voting, but yet they have come back to borrow again.

They borrowed in March. They are borrowing almost the same amount again, although there was an increase in revenue. What does that say to me? It says that they are not willing to live within certain limitations. Yes, the country needs development. Yes, if we stimulate the economy, it will mean we will have to finance infrastructural development. Even in stimulating development, the Government should be looking at whether it will be able to pay for the infrastructural development.

When we are deciding to have a Stock Exchange, we also have to decide how much it is going to make for us. What kind of infrastructural development is it going to demand? Will we be able to pay for those infrastructural developments out of recurrent revenue? If we are not going to be able to pay for it out of recurrent revenue, then we will obviously have to bring in new revenue measures, which we did in the last Budget sitting of this House. We brought in new revenue measures! I suspect that the reason we had not sufficient funds, the reason we had an $18.2 million increase in recurrent expenditure, was because of what we have been spending on capital projects! Believe it or not, capital projects also mean an increase in recurrent expenditure! If we are going to live within our means, then we have to make sure we are not putting too much food in the stomach at one time! The stomach will begin to bulge! You feed the system too much, the bulge is there! We see it.

We have to make sure that we know, when we are building a big Hospital, we are going to have an increase in recurrent expenditure. Not only do we have to ask ourselves, 'Can we afford to build a hospital by borrowing?', we have to ask ourselves whether we will be able to have enough recurrent expenditure to support the Hospital. If we are going to build the health centres, we can build them by borrowing, but do we have enough money, through recurrent revenues, to be able to support all these projects? At the end of the day, Mr. Speaker, if we do not have, we have to go back to revenue raising. We have to bring in revenue measures.

This is one reason I said that we have to be careful about Caesar. Caesar comes back, and Caesar does not say he has made a mistake. His tactics were wrong. His armies were pinned down and ambushed, and it was his mistake as General, and therefore he will wait for another five years before he raises money to take another army someplace else. Caesar comes back to the people and says, 'Look, I am Caesar! Give me your money!' He brings in measures, and he justifies it through laws, and his power. We have to make sure that this will not be the philosophy in this country.

I am not talking to the National Team about this. The National Team is only here until the year 2000. It is important that we recognise that whoever inherits their positions understands that you cannot continue to be more responsible for recurrent expenditures in this country with the kind of tax base we have. The type of tax base we have will no longer allow this. This is a very important point. Although I know there are certain Members who are being entertained by the situation, I would like them to reflect upon this point. If you have no more points to develop your tax base, yet you are developing your recurrent expenditure through building, what will happen? That is what we need to be talking about. Not about all the $34 million that got taken and put because they were not responsible for this. Not because of the fact that the previous Government or most previous governments did not do this or do this. We have to understand, gentlemen, that if we do not get our priorities right, if we do not get out there and help the people decide what the priorities in this country will be or should be, we are going to enter a position whereby we can no longer finance through recurrent expenditure—not just building, but recurrent expenses. That is a very dangerous position.

In borrowing, I am not saying that Government cannot afford to borrow, from the point of view that it does not have the credibility to borrow. I am not saying that Government could not, that there are not needs in the country. There will always be needs in this country. There will always be serious and immediate needs in this country. The question remains, are we going to be responsible enough to assist one another and assist the people in prioritising those needs? We hear that coming from Members of the Back Bench. 'We need to prioritise our projects. We need to prioritise our needs.' When I came first, I was going to vote for the Loan Bill, because I voted for the loan bill the last time. I voted for the loan bill the last time because I said I did not want to be accused of disrupting the normal flow of Government. I do not come here to create barriers between Members of the Government and me. I do not come here to create ill feelings. I do come here to do my job. I am a highly paid person for the job I am doing, and I expect to be paid well, so I expect that people will expect that I will do my job well! I know we have heard quite a few people make comments about this Finance Committee we have just finished. Many people are pleased by the way things are going in Finance Committee. They see that there is a new vision! There is a new day! Not with Cayman Airways, but there is a new day here in this House.

We continue to believe that you have the mandate from the people, that you will stay here for three years. We are not going to push you out. All we can do is question you, put you on the spot, and then you will find solutions, and then you will be improved. When you come back in the year 2000, the people might elect you again simply because we have been so good in assisting you to go from good, better, best and never stopping until your best is your very best!

Let us not get the feeling here that all we say should fall on dead ears, simply because you can vote away what the Fourth Elected Member for George Town said. You can vote it away! You can vote for the Loan Bill! You can pretend that what I said does not really have any relevance! It is a very important point that the country is listening to, gentlemen. The country will hold you accountable in the year 2000, gentlemen.

If I were borrowing the money as an individual, then it would be a totally different thing. I thought about that. I have borrowed for a house. I have borrowed for a car. Then again, I did not inherit anything, you see. I was without a job for a long time. Government has been raising revenue for a very long time. Government has inherited something. In that sense, gentlemen, we should be able to afford to pay for some of the capital projects. If we work out a system whereby we only use recurrent revenue to pay for recurrent expenditures, and everything we have to build, we have to borrow to build, then we are creating a very dangerous precedent: That because we are not paying for salaries, we can borrow. That is not true! What company operates under that principle? Do you think if the Kirkconnells were operating under the principle that as long as they are not borrowing to pay the people working for them, they are okay? They would go broke! They would never be able to buy additional machinery, and additional property that way. They must make sure that if they are borrowing to buy, what they buy is going to be productive, what they are buying is going to cause them to be making some money as well. We have to see that.

We have to see that if we borrow, for instance, for the Port Authority, the Port Authority makes money! I am not going to sit here and criticise that type of borrowing! I would not! If we borrow for Cayman Airways and Cayman Airways is making money, that is okay! We are borrowing at the same time for projects that, although they are capital, as the last speaker said, they are assets. They are not assets that actually cause any revenue to be accrued. They only cause money to be spent. They cause money to be spent, and that is the point I am making.

Mr. Speaker, I am saying that we need to try to not put the future politicians in this country in the predicament that past politicians have borrowed and borrowed, and therefore if there was an emergency, they would have no possibility to borrow because they would already have been so in debt. We have to stop that here at this point. I am appealing to the Members responsible, that even if they pass this Bill this time, they take it very much into account. Just as we came one day and found that paying into the civil servants' pension fund was a priority and we had to put $34 million in there, another generation in the next four or eight years might come and find other priorities too, and might need to see that those priorities are solved all of a sudden. We cannot know the future. We do not know that there will not be a recession. We hope to God that there will not be, but there could be. There could be. It could be that people do not love us after all, and they begin to go someplace else. That could happen too. It might not happen, God forbid that it does, but it could happen.

We cannot just live saying everything is okay, so we need not plan for tomorrow. We have to put ourselves in the position that we have alternatives. We need to stay flexible. We are a rich enough country to afford ourselves that kind of flexibility. It is not good enough, at the end of the day, not to me, not at this stage. Many people will see inconsistencies in the things I am saying. As I develop, I will change. Thank God I at least have that capacity, and I have that over a whole lot of people who are always the same, who will always be the same. As I develop and learn, I will change my perspective. I will alter it. I now say, it is not good enough for us to say, as a small country like this one, as a prosperous one like this one, that we are below the internationally recognised borrowing standards. If they say it is ten percent of your recurrent income, as long as you stay at six percent it is okay and it is cool. That is not good enough, because we can do better. I am asking that we do better. I am asking that we do what is necessary with what we have found here, borrowing we are talking about now. We need schools. We have not developed any other kind of alternative.

Look at it, gentlemen and ladies, we have a bill for health insurance. People are going to be forced to pay for medicine through that. If people pay for medicine, then I will ask, why can't they pay for education? Why can't people pay for education? Maybe these are . . .

[inaudible comment from the Chamber]

Dr. Frank McField: Well, it means that you have to put your thinking caps on and start thinking! I am just throwing these things out! I have thought about them, but I am not going to give you the puzzle to this, because then you will get back in the year 2000!

[Laughter]

Dr. Frank McField: You will have to find your ideas someplace else. I am saying that although we think this is all we can do, there is a lot more we can do. We can start to adjust the way we think, and through adjusting the way we think, we will find that our priorities will also be adjusted. Once our priorities are adjusted, through adjusting the way we think, we will find the way money is spent changes. This is what I am asking we do, and do collectively, and do in here.

I will finish by saying, Mr. Speaker, that I voted against the Budget. The last speaker said that the Loan Bill is an essential part of the Budget. Therefore if I wanted to vote against the Loan Bill, I would have to vote against the Budget. If I wanted to vote against the Budget, I would have to vote against the Loan Bill. It appears that the Loan Bill is a part of the Budget, Appropriation Bill. They are complementary parts of the same parcel, and I had problems with the Budget. It is true, Mr. Speaker, that I was one of the persons who came here and asked that there be reconsideration regarding allotments under certain heads, and I was upset. There are people who might think, 'This was your position, so now because you were involved with the process, you should take final responsibility for the final product or the final outcome of that process.' I do not think that is necessarily true. I think I have assisted the Government in restructuring the priorities in the Budget in such a way that it will be more helpful to them, and to the people. At the end of the day, I am still not satisfied by the overall structuring of priorities and the cost that has been a result of the way in which these priorities have been structured.

I am using my position outside here to send the message to say, like I said before when I voted for the revenue measures, I have come into the Legislative Assembly to try to get the duties off foodstuff, but found Government needed that $8 million or so, so I could not expect this to happen. I voted for the revenue measures. I cautioned that next time, maybe I would not be so generous. I would have a different perspective. I am warning again: Next time, I might have a totally different approach to Government's budget and Government's loan. I wish them all the luck with this, because I know it is not for any one of us here, but it is all for the country's good. Although I will not share historical responsibility in voting for this, because I am saying that until we can get our priorities right, we have to stop borrowing.

When you go to banks, the first thing the bank manager says, 'Do you have your priorities right? How much are you paying for this? How much are you paying for that? How much are you paying for that? What percentage? Do you have your priorities right?' If your priorities are not right, if the bank manager feels your priorities are not right, then you do not get the loan. That is my position. It is not that I do not think Government is capable. It is not that I do not think Government should. It is just that I do not think the priorities are right, and therefore I am not going to support this Loan Bill.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak?
The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I rise to offer my few comments on the Loan Bill, requesting authority to borrow $19.5 million to supplement the Budget for 1998. In my Budget contribution, I mentioned my concerns about borrowing, and I also mentioned, and it has always been my philosophy, that one of the keys to our financial success and stability has been our ability to live within our means. I did a rough calculation of what we have borrowed since 1993, and it is about $91.2 million. The people elected the National Team Government on the promise of good fiscal management, and I recall in 1993 when we took office, there was no money to spend. We tightened our belts. We recognised what had to be done. We also recognised, at the time, the financial position of the country. We recognised that we had to create some breathing room in order for us to get our financial affairs in order.

I believe it is imperative—and I am talking to my Government now, Mr. Speaker—it is imperative for us to arrive at national priorities. We cannot get everything we want in one year. There are many projects; there are many needs in this country, but we must all recognise that we cannot get it all at one time. What is disturbing, Mr. Speaker, is that in order for us to balance the 1997 Budget, we had to borrow $25.8 million in addition to a revenue-enhancement package that was to realise something like $6 million in revenue.

Right now, we have a major project underway that will be completed in 1998. That is the Hospital. We all recognise that we could not finance that project out of recurrent revenue. Not all of it, Mr. Speaker. We recognised that we would have to borrow some money to provide our people with that project. I do not believe that the people of the country felt hard, about Government borrowing for that purpose. Many questions were asked in this House about space at the Hospital. Many times we were told that people showed up there sick, there were no beds, there were not sufficient beds to accommodate them, so they had to be given some painkillers and sent home, saying, 'Come back tomorrow. Hopefully you will live out the night.' Mr. Speaker, that is a priority, as far as I am concerned. We have been working on this project now for the last two years, I think. We have one more year in order for that project to be completed. Once that project is completed, it will create some space in the capital side of the budget for other projects.

I also recognise, Mr. Speaker, that the new Hospital will add some pressure to recurrent expenditure, but it must be understood that when that facility is completed and properly equipped and ready for service, those persons who can afford it must be required to pay for those services offered at the Hospital. We have a very strange mentality in this country, Mr. Speaker, some people that is, in believing that once Government provides it, it has to be free. I believe the time has come when we have to change that, because Government cannot continue to provide all services free to the general public.

What concerns me is that in my District, we have some great needs, and I recall, since 1989, pushing for a proper hall or civic centre where we could, as a District, gather for social and other events. Because of financial restraints we have had to, year after year, say, 'We cannot do it this year. Let's do it next year. There is a provision put in the Budget.' Next year comes, it is still not done. We have a primary school in West Bay. I understand enrolment is now over four hundred kids. I recall the First Elected Member from West Bay and I chastising the past Government for having to house our kids at the old West Bay Town Hall because the facilities were not given a priority.

In many budgets now we have had a provision for a multi-purpose hall, or an assembly hall, for our West Bay Primary School. Until last year—up until this year, I think—we had provision in the Budget. Nothing has been done! Now when that school holds a function, we have four hundred kids plus parents and guardians. There is no facility in West Bay that can accommodate them. I recall last Christmas attending the Christmas programme. They had to have it on the West Bay Town Hall Field. Why? There is no facility in the District to accommodate a function of that size. We must make this a priority, as far as I am concerned.

The problem we run into is that we are all politicians, and everybody is trying to get everything for their respective districts all at one time! We must say, 'North Side got their civic centre last year. Where is the next priority as far as a civic centre is concerned? Is it West Bay? Is it George Town? Is it Bodden Town?' Just because we get one in West Bay you have to have one in Bodden Town, you have to have one in East End . . . it cannot work. It cannot work, Mr. Speaker. I think we have to come to grips with the fact that we cannot just sit there and share out the revenue between districts on an annual basis and expect the budget to balance without borrowing.

It also has been identified, Mr. Speaker, that the districts of West Bay and George Town are in dire need of new primary schools. I am aware that there was a provision in the Budget this year to attempt to buy the property. That was not successful. There is a $700,000 provision in this year's Budget for that purpose. Can $700,000 purchase property and build a school that is going to house probably four or five hundred students in West Bay and George Town? I do not think so, Mr. Speaker. I have noticed over the years that when it comes to cutting and giving up—and I must give the Minister credit—the area we seem to be giving up all the time is the area of education in order for the budget to be able to balance, because everybody else wants their priorities.

We recognise that health and education are probably the two most important items for any people. I believe this Budget should be a health and education budget! I do not mind borrowing money. On a personal basis, I have had to do that on occasion, but borrowing money must be justified. Not because it is not ours and we are not paying for it out of our pockets, that we do not have to have concern! We have to be concerned, Mr. Speaker, because the people of this country have elected us as their representatives to come in here and look after their affairs.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: That's right, Johnny, tell 'em!

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Mr. Speaker, I learned a long time ago that if you do what you are supposed to do, when you come to the polls you do not have to worry about being re-elected, because the people recognise that you are doing your best. At the same time you are being good stewards. You still have money in the Budget. You have money in reserves in case there is an emergency. They value you and they respect you and they continue to support you.

This cannot go on, this idea that everybody is going to get everything they want, and we do not care how we are going to have to pay for it. At the end of 1998, Mr. Speaker, public debt will amount to about $100 million. Now I am not concerned that Government does not have the ability to repay it. That is not my concern! I do not even have the concern that Government does not have the ability to go out and borrow it! That is not my concern! I think over the last five years, because of our stewardship, the country is in an impressive financial position. Any banker out there will lend us whatever amount of money we want. That is not what I am concerned about! I am concerned about the attitude that we have to do everything at one time.

Every district in this country has needs, every one. As representatives from the respective districts, you are concerned about getting what your district needs, including you, Mr. Speaker. I am quite sure that you do your best to make sure that Cayman Brac and Little Cayman get their fair share! They have, Mr. Speaker, over the years they have! We have to be in a position, and we have to be men and women enough to say, 'Let's sit down as a group.' One of the things I appreciate about this sitting, Mr. Speaker, there seems to be more of a sense of co-operation. That is, the ability to sit down sensibly and discuss issues and arrive at favourable solutions. You could take the same approach, Mr. Speaker. We cannot do everything at one time. I am not prepared at this stage to give my approval for Government to go out there and borrow another $19.5 million. I am not prepared to do that, Mr. Speaker.

The capital side of this Budget—there are some priorities. I have identified those priorities in my Budget contribution. The Hospital must go forward with its completion, equipping and staffing. The Lighthouse School has to be a priority! If we had to go out and borrow money for those specific purposes, I have no problem with that whatsoever. There are too many other things that are tagged on to the recurrent revenue side of it, that push many these items that are so essential into a Loan Bill.

Mr. Speaker, we should be in a position where, even with the new Hospital, we are required to go out and borrow only eight or nine million dollars. Very reasonable! Next year, in next year's Budget, we will not have to worry about the Hospital. That will be completed, hopefully. I must say, the contractors are doing a fantastic job completing that project. Next year we can look at other projects much more objectively.

We need to prioritise our projects, our needs in this country. What cannot be done this year, Mr. Speaker—I know it is quarter to. If you want to take a break that would be fine.

The Speaker: Would this be a convenient time for the luncheon break?

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Sir.

The Speaker: We shall suspend until 2.15.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.43 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.07 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Debate on the Loan Bill continues, the Third Elected Member for West Bay continuing.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. When we took the lunch break, I was dealing with the priorities I am prepared to support in this year's Budget. I would like to list what I think are the priorities. I believe that if we did only these in 1998, it would probably be sufficient work for Public Works to accommodate. That is a significant consideration, Mr. Speaker. It is no good for us to put thirty-five or forty million dollars in the capital Budget and expect Public Works to do it, because Public Works is responsible for managing the capital projects, when their ability might be only ten or fifteen million dollars for the year.

I listed as my priorities, as I see them:

- complete and equip the new Hospital—and we had some figures that were given to us: Medical equipment, provision was put in for $2 million; to continue the construction of the new Hospital, $4.9 million; so I have no problem supporting borrowing for that purpose.
- a provision for the new Lighthouse School, and that is at the top of my priorities, Mr. Speaker.
- a new primary school, multi-purpose hall for the West Bay District and for the George Town District, a new primary school. The people of West Bay definitely need and deserve consideration for a new civic centre. In our conscientiousness, that is the Members from West Bay, Mr. Speaker, we put a provision in this year's Budget of $750,000. That will put us in a position where we probably can go to tender; we can probably award the contract; and hopefully construction will start on the project sometime late next year.

In my Budget address, I mentioned that after reviewing the projects I saw in the capital side of the Budget, they are all essential services and facilities, but I do not believe that if we are in a position where we have to defer some of these in the interest of good management or good government, and in consideration of ensuring that we do not become carried away with public borrowing, because it is very easy to borrow money. After that we have a problem.

- The other thing I think is a priority, and there is a provision in the Budget for that—I must congratulate Public Works and the Minister for Communications and Works for the fantastic job they are in the process of doing regarding the Harquail Bypass. I understand that the estimates on the project were about $7.5 million. By them doing it themselves, we are probably going to end up saving a million dollars.

- The other priority as far as roads are concerned, Mr. Speaker, is that we have to provide some relief for traffic coming from the eastern districts. I am prepared to vote funds or support borrowing for a bypass, I think, according to the Honourable Minister, the Crewe Road Bypass. I understand that may run as much as $6.5 million. I believe that is a priority. The public wants it. I have had the experience myself of having to come from that direction and unless you get on the road before 7 o'clock in the morning, it is bumper-to-bumper for miles until you can get into George Town. I think traffic is a real concern to our people. Anything we can do to eliminate that, we should support.

I believe that all those priorities I have outlined can be accommodated in this Budget—can be accommodated with, should I say, reasonable borrowing. That means that some of the projects we have in the Budget might have to be pushed into 1999. I am prepared to support that. I believe that here we have to be responsible, we have to be conscientious, and I believe that our people understand more than we probably give them credit for, in that they recognise they need facilities. They recognise that they need projects, capital projects. I still believe that our people want us to be wise, prudent and disciplined to say, 'Yes, over a time, we will provide those services and facilities for you, but we cannot do it all at one time.'

I mentioned before the lunch break that one of the projects we have been talking about for West Bay, that we just had the privilege of seeing open back in October was a new health clinic for the District. A District health clinic! It took us eight years, at least from my standpoint—the First Elected Member was here before me. I am quite sure he probably recommended it long before that. It took us eight years to accomplish that. Now we have a facility that the people of West Bay can be justly proud of, and it was an expenditure we could comfortably accommodate in our Budget.

After next year, Mr. Speaker, there is going to be room on the capital side of the Budget for some of the other projects we need to provide in this country. The unfortunate position the National Team has found itself in is that previous governments have done so little to provide facilities that are necessary, that now we have to play catch-up. Even taking that into consideration, we still need to move forward on a prioritised basis as far as the projects are concerned, and we need to do those things we feel are the most essential at this stage.

I trust that the Government will be prepared to sit and revisit some of the projects they are proposing we finance this year, with a view to reducing the amount we have to borrow. I believe that is very possible, if we all maintain an open mind and an attitude of co-operation. I am considering the interests of the people of these Islands. Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? We have approximately ten minutes until normal adjournment.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, under Standing Order 38, I move that the question now be put.

The Speaker: If no other Member wishes to speak—I hate to deprive any Member of the opportunity to speak, and I would like to protect the minority, but if no one wishes to speak, I shall. . . This is my last call. Does any other Honourable Member wish to speak? If no other Member wishes to speak, does the Honourable Member wish his right to reply?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, as I understand the closure motion, it also deprives the Financial Secretary of winding up the question.

The Speaker: I am not invoking the closure motion. I gave an opportunity after that.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I am sorry, Sir?

The Speaker: I did not invoke the closure motion.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Oh, I am sorry, Sir. I beg your pardon.

The Speaker: Does no other Member wish to speak? The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. This Loan Bill, “a Bill for Law to authorise the borrowing of up to $19.5 million for the financing of specified capital projects,” so far has had much varied debate. It has been obvious from the contributions made that there is a very definite concern as to the amount of borrowing in which the country presently is engaging. I too have some major concerns, Mr. Speaker. I have aired some of those concerns in my contribution to the Budget address by the Honourable Financial Secretary, the Third Official Member, but I will attempt, in my contribution, to outline some of the specific areas which show, in my mind, reason for concern.

It has been said by the Leader of Government Business that the Budget is a balanced budget, and so that I do not misquote his reasoning for saying it is a balanced budget, I wish to quickly quote what the Minister said. In his very beginning this morning, he said, “Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The Loan Bill is an integral part of the Budget that has just been passed, and one which is moderate. It is clear that the loan is in relation to capital projects, not recurrent projects. This is the difference: A balanced budget is when the recurrent revenue exceeds recurrent expenditure, and there is a surplus on the recurrent account.” I want to repeat that, Mr. Speaker. “A balanced budget is when the recurrent revenue exceeds recurrent expenditure, and there is a surplus on the recurrent account. We have that, Mr. Speaker, in that $14.5 million will be contributed to capital and to capital projects.” In two minutes, Mr. Speaker, he made two grave errors. He said the Budget is balanced, and without taking a breath, he said, “$14.5 million will be contributed to capital and to capital projects.”

Mr. Speaker, when I contend that the Budget is not balanced I am taking into account the expenditure that is obvious the country will have to go through within the fiscal year. In broad terms, if a budget is balanced for the next fiscal year, to me it means that what your earning power is and what you are going to spend will at least equate, if not being left with some savings.

I intend, in my contribution, to show several areas—certainly not all of them, but enough of them—to prove that what is stated in the Budget, and certain amounts in the Estimates, are known to be incorrect at this point in time, but have simply been put in, to make sure the equation works right. It is done with the knowledge that those amounts will increase before the year is out, because those amounts will not take care of the projects they are calling to take care of. Not only the projects! There are some recurrent amounts in the Recurrent and Statutory section of the Estimates, which, as was very obvious with the amounts put in originally for the Social Services Department, will prove that they are insufficient.

MOMENT OF INTERRUPTION—4.30 PM

The Speaker: Honourable Member, we have reached the hour of 4.30. I realise you will not be finishing shortly, so I would entertain a motion for the adjournment.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until 10.00 AM tomorrow.

The Speaker: The question is that this Honourable House do adjourn until 10.00 AM tomorrow. All in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AT 4.30 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM FRIDAY, 12TH DECEMBER, 1997.

EDITED
FRIDAY
12TH DECEMBER, 1997
10.30 AM

The Speaker: Prayers by the Elected Member for North Side.

PRAYERS

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Let us Pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived: We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Let us say the Lord's prayer together: Our Father who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done in earth as it is in Heaven; Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us; and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, for ever and ever, Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed.

The Speaker: We have apologies from the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport and from the Third Elected Member for George Town.

Government Business, Bills. Continuation of Second Reading debate on the Loan (Capital Projects 1998) Bill, 1997. The First Elected Member for George Town continuing.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

BILLS

SECOND READINGS

THE LOAN (CAPITAL PROJECTS 1998) BILL, 1997

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: When we adjourned yesterday afternoon, I had just read a portion of the debate on this Loan Bill made by the Honourable Minister for Education, where he spoke about a budget being balanced. He also mentioned that there was a surplus on the recurrent account of $14.5 million, and said that this $14.5 would be contributed to capital and to capital projects.

I am long past the days of going to school, but I respect the fact that each day provides another opportunity for me to learn. I have noticed that whenever that Minister wants to persuade the public of this country that a situation is a certain way, or the way he wants them to believe it, he preaches his sermon and repeats himself continuously with the hope that as many times as the people of this country hear it, they will simply believe it. I daresay he has been doing that for 20 years.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Twenty years too long!

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Perhaps that is why he does not want to change anything.

In Table 2A of the Estimates it clearly states that of the $14.5 million surplus on the recurrent account, $1 million out of that $14.5 million is termed as a "contribution" to the general reserves, $.23 million is going to the Housing Reserve Fund, and $8.99 million is a statutory contribution going to the Public Service Pension Fund. All three of these figures added together have to be taken out of the $14.5 million before anything can be put towards the capital projects for the year which leaves recurrent revenue available to fund capital development of $4.03 million.

It is important that the public understands that it is not $14.5 million of recurrent "profit," as he terms it, going to the capital—it is only $4.03 million. The almost $9 million that is going to the Public Service Pension Fund was a decision consciously made by the Government with the knowledge of the Backbench. If this is not done the contingent liability is simply going to get more out of hand than it is at present. We understand what has to be done with that and we do not have any complaints, but it is wrong. It is facetious of the Minister to make the public believe that we have $14.5 million to put towards capital before we start to talk about any borrowings.

One thing that I am not going to do, because I have too high a regard for the public of this country, is stand up in this forum and try to say anything that I know not to be the truth. Neither will I stand up and try to paint a picture the way I want it to be understood by the public by simply telling them a half-truth, or less. I will come to that point right now.

Mr. Speaker, during his contribution, the Minister tabled this wonderful little piece of paper where he had figures of the surplus and deficit account. To suit him and his Government he went on during his debate, and I will quote him. . . and, by the way, this is another thing where he is trying to put a mind-set on the public of this country by repetition. I counted seven times that he repeated these figures before he finished. Here is what he said: “What I would like to do now, because a lot has been said about where Government is and is not. . . we can speculate and give estimates on what is happening, but facts are facts and I am happy to either lay this on the Table or give Members copies of it. But the actual figures to the 30th September, 1997, showed recurrent revenue of $163,754,000; the recurrent and statutory expenditure was $144,712,000, giving a recurrent surplus of $19.042 [million] the difference between the revenue and the expenditure was $19,042,000.”

Here is what he did to try to convince the people of this country that everything was Kosher: We are in the month of December. The financial year for the Government of the Cayman Islands is from January 1st until December 31st of any given year. Those of us who have had the experience know full well that to arbitrarily pull a figure at any given time during the course of the year never paints a true picture of the financial affairs of the country. Payouts on behalf of the Government are done in order at various times of the year. When these figures for September were copied to us yesterday, had we not known any better we would have said, ‘Gee, things are really nice.’

Let me go back to the Estimates to prove my point. The 1997 Forecasted, Revised, Accumulated Surplus Balance for December 31st. . . it is forecasted because we are not at December 31st yet. The reason it is forecasted is because the people in the Department of Finance know exactly what Government has to deal with before year end. It is quite easy for them to extrapolate those figures to come up with a fairly accurate forecast. That figure, unlike the $19.042 million the Minister spoke about yesterday, is projected to be $900,000. That is not even 5% of the surplus the Minister spoke about yesterday. Do you see my point? The Minister takes the end of September in order for it to look wonderful, when we know full well that at the end of the year we are going to have less than $1 million surplus. If that is what he considers his job to be, so be it. I will let the people decide.

I am a reasonable person. There are times when the Government forecasts are not exactly as they are expected to be when it is all over. I am going to quickly quote some figures just to show the track record the Government has with their forecasted figures. It will prove my point.

In 1992 the Estimates called for $152.9 million to be spent. The revised end of year figure (which is what we call the ‘actual’) was $154.4 [million]—less than $2 million difference. In 1994 the Estimates called for $157.2 [million], and the end of year actual was $156.3 [million]—less than $1 million difference. In 1995 the Estimates called for $177.9 million, the actual end of the year was $181.9 [million]. In 1996 it was $202.7 million, the actual was $205.6 [million]. In 1997 it called for $255.5 [million], the actual was $250.676 [million].

If you look at the track record. . . and as the years go by and the Budgets get bigger they have to fine tune it as certain new things come on stream. I understand all of that. Using these figures (and nobody has to even remember the figures) there is less than a .5% variation in the Estimates with the actual amount spent on most occasions. What I have quoted since 1993 bears true. It is a fair assumption that at the end of the year the $.9 million surplus projected will not vary to any noticeable degree.

It may not seem important, and I know we are talking about the Loan Bill, but it grieves me to know that anyone would try to paint the Government’s picture in such a fashion to have the people of this country saying, ‘We are in wonderful shape. So-and-so told us last night on the radio,’ . . . when it is not so! If what I am saying is not right, or there is no merit to what I am saying. . . unlike the Minister yesterday, I will give way right now for anyone from the Government, or any Official Member to refute what I just said. (Pause)

I do not see any movement, so I guess they do not care to try to refute it.

Mr. Speaker, the figures I just quoted also serve another purpose. From 1993 to 1998 (five years), the Budgets have successively increased in this country to the tune of over $120 million. I am by no means suggesting that the obvious trend every year will be to not have an increase in the Budget. Not for a second. If we bear all of the natural factors in mind, it must happen. I accept that. I also accept that we will have continued growth in our Budgets if our economy is fairly buoyant and there are capital projects that the country is always playing catch-up with. I do not have a problem with that.

Let us compare now, apart from the various Budgets from 1993 to 1998, the borrowings. In 1993, $17.5 million was borrowed. So that no one thinks that I am trying to skew my argument, I immediately accept that the vast majority of that amount was the loan for Cayman Airways which was being negotiated from 1992. The fact of the matter is, whether it was being negotiated in 1992 or 1982, the country started to owe that money in 1993. Whoever wants to lay blame for borrowing that money, the country still has to pay it back. They can kick up whoever they want to kick up, the country still has to pay back the money. It does not matter about who, or why, or where, or when. The fact is that in 1993 $17.5 million was borrowed.

In 1994 it was the meagre sum of $4.7 million. In 1995 it was slimmer yet, $1.8 million. In 1996—Election year, Mr. Speaker!—it jumped from $1.8 million to $22.4 million. The year 1997 is post election. . . and I have heard all kinds of arguments in here. There is no election right now, so let us get on with the job. But after election year of 1996 with $22.4 million we move into 1997, and the figure is $25.8 million.

The year 1997 is just about over. The Yuletide season is here. So we get another black-top document. 'O.K. fellows, here it is. Nice and juicy, a wonderful Budget.' The borrowings call for $19.5 million. I am only sorry that the Minister is not here, because if he thinks that I only want to talk behind his back, he has another guess coming. If he had been left alone yesterday, he would have added to that $19.5 million too. He might still try to do it. Then we will see who has good sense in here.

There was a trend, Mr. Speaker. The argument is salient because we are discussing the Loan Bill. I hear his footsteps, that is why I just said what I said.

The reason I am using these figures is to come to the reason why I am not prepared to support this Loan Bill. Let me tell you what I see is wrong with the way it is being done. When it comes time to do the Budget, the first thing to be done is to notify the Department Heads. They are asked to send in their itemised estimates of what it is going to cost to run their departments through the course of the financial year. Then, after all of that is gathered, the Financial Secretary and his staff prepare an estimate and a projection of how much money the country is going to earn that year. Then the rest of the gang is called in.

So we now have what it is going to cost to run the various Government departments for the year, we have personal emoluments included and everything else. Then we have how much we think the country is going to earn. We try to figure out if any money is going to be left over at the end of the year and we take that into consideration. Then we start to get the wish lists from the gang and what they consider to be the most needed projects in their districts.

I venture to state here this morning that what has never, ever been done in this country is for someone, or some group of people to say, 'Let's look at the overall picture. Let's look at the overall numbers. Let's look at how we want to see ourselves five or ten years from now and take what we have to work with and head towards that.' If it has been done, or even thought about being done. . . in five years I have never seen the results. Mr. Speaker, that is where we are going wrong.

Mr. Roy Bodden: True!

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: That is why I am no longer prepared to support any Loan Bill for this country until I see hard evidence that there is some type of sensible planning for the future of this country.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Visions, and visions, and visions.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I had an experience just a few days ago, and it comes back to the argument the Minister for Education brought yesterday about what a balanced budget is. I want to quickly repeat what he said a balanced budget is. He said: "A balanced budget is when the recurrent revenue exceeds recurrent expenditure, and there is a surplus on the recurrent account." At least four of us (possibly five) do not know anything about this Budget until we see it. (If it is five they can raise their hands. I know I can raise mine.)

There is trouble in the camp. We have been presented with this wonderfully balanced budget, Mr. Speaker, but this is how they balanced it: When we go into Finance Committee and we looked at the previous Estimates. . . and I am going to isolate one department—the Department of Social Services. The poor woman who had to come down to bear witness to us ugly fellows on the Backbench can only tell the truth. She cannot do anything else. It is her job.

When the Social Services Department sent in the amount, based on the history of their department that they thought they would need to operate this year, the section for housing throughout the islands asked for $478,000. I am not in a position to say whether that figure was a bit much, whether it was reasonable, or whether it was not, but it was based on the track record they have had over the past few years with requests for indigent housing in the islands. What came out in the final document instead of $478,000, was $165,000, or something like that.

Then, in their other section, I think it is called Temporary Assistance, for people in the country who face hard times. This is not the $200 per month business. This is where people find themselves in hardships at various times during the year, either by losing their job or something with the children, sickness. . . . Social Services does their assessment and if it is genuine, they assist the people of this country the best way they know how. Social Services, based on the track record they have had, asked for $543,000 in that category. What came out in the final document for that. . . .

I just made a mistake, Mr. Speaker. The Housing was not $165,000. Housing asked for $478,000 and ended up with $50,100. In the Housing they asked for a total of $478,000 and they got $50,100! In the other category for Temporary Assistance, they asked for $543,000 and got $165,000. That was changed. They got everybody together and started to juggle the figures. That was changed because they knew full well that it could not work. I will be a monkey's uncle this morning if the intention was not to balance that Budget. No one had said a word, knowing full well that by April or May a contingency warrant would have to be signed to give them money to operate with, and then whenever Finance Committee met (if it were December 30th or 31st) they would bring it here for us to rubber stamp it. That is the way it has been going and it is wrong!

Mr. Roy Bodden: Dead wrong.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I am not finished yet. Who wants to jump up and down and act tough?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Make them uncomfortable. Light the fire under them.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Here we are. Today is December 12th. The Budget has just been approved. The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning swears it was unanimous. He can use all of his legal terms to prove that, but he must have deaf ears with all the arguments he had about it, since it was so unanimous. Anyway, that is. . .

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, that Minister taught me something yesterday when he would not give way. I am not giving way today.

The Speaker: He is rising on a point of order, please.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, he would not give way yesterday on a point of order for the Third Elected Member for George Town.

The Speaker: This is not a question, he is rising on a point of order and I must hear it. Please take your seat.

POINT OF ORDER (Misleading)

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, it is a misrepresentation of both what I said and what was stated as fact. What happened, Sir, is that in the Finance Committee all 27 Heads (I think there are 27 Heads) which were voted on in this Legislative Assembly, went through unanimously without any 'Noes'. In the Third Reading of the Appropriation Bill there was a division of six Ayes and four Noes. What I said was that the Estimates that were dealt with in Finance Committee passed this House unanimously, and those are the facts, Sir.

The Speaker: Thank you.

First Elected Member for George Town, please continue.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Semantics. I, too, understand the Queen's English. I know that the public understands the way I explained it too. He can run his mouth all he wants.

Mr. Roy Bodden: He just lost his job!

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: He, too, has a knack for breaking one's train of thought.

Getting back to the situation with the Estimates and the balanced budget business: I contend that as long as I have been here—barring no time—the Estimates have come to us in Finance Committee with the Government having full knowledge that there were areas where the allotted funds were inadequate, and they also had full knowledge that they would have to come back for supplementaries during the course of the year. If anybody can squeeze out of that the word 'balanced' . . . then, I guess I will have to change my name.

Mr. Roy Bodden: True! Talk the truth.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: If you use the word 'balanced' in the way the nine-degree person uses it, what it means is that the figures add up right. What I call a balanced budget is a true budget; when it comes to me I know that, barring unforeseen circumstances, what is in it is totally reasonable.

I used a figure for the Social Services Department to show the people of this country that what I am saying is right. It has to change. It is simply not the truth. The day is going to come when all of the anticipated excess revenue in this country that they patch everything up with during the course of the year is not going to be there. What are we going to do then?

By that time some of us will be ready to go home. 'Leave it to those fellows. Let them have the worries.' No more! Even their own Backbench understands it now and they are not prepared to deal with it.

Mr. Roy Bodden: A leader with no followers.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I am going to get on to the capital section because the Minister mentioned a balanced budget and he only dealt with recurrent revenue and recurrent expenditure. If the capital section is not part of the Budget, I want to know where it fits in. It must be something that drops out of the sky.

The November 12th document, in the details of Capital Development by Classification and Project (The argument came up before but this is where we talk about this supplementary business. God forbid they ever invented the word.), the Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation was not present when I asked a question about the 1998 Estimates for the continuing construction of the George Town Hospital. For 1998 there is $4 million in the Estimates. The hospital contract is due to be completed August 1998. Within reason there may be some few extensions. . . . The difference in the whole fyah-fyah argument they are bringing is not about a few days or a few weeks. I understand that can happen. But if the contract is due in August, and you are involving yourself with prudent, fiscal management you must have in your estimates what it is going to take to pay out that contract if it has to be paid out in August. If you say your retention fee is going to go to January or February of next year and you are squeezing it tight, take out your retention fee—no problem—but it is short $2.5 million in these estimates to pay out the contract to the contractor.

None of them over there can tell me that they know when the hospital is going to be finished. They only know what the contract calls for. You cannot live your life assuming that you are going to have extensions to it. What happened if they do not fulfill the contract? What happens to all the penalty clauses on their behalf if they do not do what they are supposed to do? How can we assume they are going to fail? We cannot do that. That is one item that is short in the Budget.

Mr. Speaker, here is another item: Construction of the Crewe Road Bypass. Nobody is arguing that the Crewe Road Bypass is not a very necessary part of the infrastructure. Nobody is suggesting it should not be done. We are dealing with this supposedly wonderfully balanced Budget. There is $200,000 in the Budget for 1998 for the Crewe Road Bypass. Unless I did not hear it right, the Minister responsible said sometime earlier on that it was his understanding that they were going to seek loan funds to complete the Crewe Road Bypass. If that statement is not correct, I am happy to give way to be corrected. That is what I understood.

The Crewe Road Bypass is expected to start in the coming year. The corridors have been gazetted, I understand. When that Crewe Road Bypass is started, it is going to be considered such an important piece of infrastructure for the people who live beyond the district of George Town that Government is not going to have any choice but to see it through. If there is only $200,000 in this Budget for 1998, I wonder where the money is coming from to continue it. I will not be so bold as to say that it will be completed in 1998, although that is not impossible; but I will be bold enough to say that if it is estimated to cost $6.5 million we are going to need at least half of that during 1998 because nobody works for nothing anymore. If Public Works is doing it, it will still cost something for them to do it—they will have to pay men, they will have to keep their equipment up, they will have to buy material from private people. They will need the money. So, the $200,000 in here is like me taking a glass of water and dropping it in Hog Sty Bay, hoping to get it back out of the sea water there.

George Hicks, phase II construction: We had some juggling of figures there. That is a very needed thing. I am not going to try to make a point out of that one.

The very next one I am going to show is the construction of the new offices for the Department of Agriculture in Lower Valley. In the 1998 Estimates, it is $400,000. Projected to be spent in 1999 is $260,000. The Minister has stated that it will probably cost $1 million to do the entire project. It is also expected that the project will take about 26 weeks to complete. It is also expected for the project to start very early in the new year of 1998. There is $400,000 in the Budget. The year 1998 (like every other year) has 52 weeks in it. If it is going to take 26 weeks to complete the project and it starts early in the year and is going to cost $1 million, we are going to need $600,000 more in 1998.

So that what I am saying is clear, I am not disputing the worthiness of the projects. That is not the point. The point is that the Estimates is a cat-and-mouse game, a game of chance. If anything goes wrong no one will be able to keep us right the way that we are operating this country. The Financial Secretary is a man of prayer—oh, how he needs it!

However many times they come back. . . this is another little ruse they use, by the way. They come to you, and after you fight and argue about it they bring you a whole pretty list of capital projects they are going to do for the year. First of all, the reason they bring that long list of capital projects within the district is to satisfy the crew.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Parochialism.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: That is to satisfy the crew now, so they can get them off their backs. When you privately ask them how we are going to do all of these things, do you know what you hear from them? 'We know we can't finish all of these things. What's wrong with you?' (Members' Laughter)

We see projects that have been in the Estimates for three, four or five years that keep coming back. Money is put in, but they are not done. We hear the representatives for West Bay crying almost on bended knees about a second school because the children are climbing all over each other.

It is not my intention to offend anyone, Mr. Speaker, but I am going to speak the truth here. Just look at what we call priorities now: The Minister for Education has stated that a new West Bay Primary School and a Lighthouse School are the two major priorities for the year. But we have $450,000 in the Estimates for a second Civic Centre for East End. When I look at the way these Budgets are done the only conclusion I can come to is that the country's money is manipulated to buy loyalty and to keep the troops in line. It must stop! It has to stop!

I am getting older too. I am not quite finished yet, but I do not want to be standing up in here (if the people allow me another opportunity to represent them) saying the same thing over and over again. It has to stop!

Mr. Roy Bodden: True!

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Do you know the worst part about it, Mr. Speaker? They know it!

The Civil Service is there with all the expertise that they need. It is the fault of the policy makers—that is, the elected arm of Government, not the Civil Service. The Civil Service is simply the mechanism to carry out the wishes of the policy makers, to ensure that their wishes are carried out in a correct fashion based on all the things they have to go by so that they do not do anything wrong. That is the way it is interpreted. But their job is more than that, if they would give them a chance.

You know my little sing song about the Medium Term Financial Strategy? And we are talking about a balanced Budget and another Loan Bill? The Medium Term Financial Strategy. . . if it has not been completed and revised five times, it has not been done once. It is still not tabled here yet. I know the Financial Secretary has given assurance that it is going to be this time, but as he well knows, Kurt Tibbetts will not stop talking about it until he sees it on the Table. That is the only time I will believe it!

This Loan Bill will probably see passage. . .

Mr. Roy Bodden: It will just squeeze through.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: . . . just for the country to be able to function. I will tell you this: I was no part of the preparation process. I totally disagree with that preparation process and I will have no hand in the country borrowing one cent more until they change and mend their ways.

During his discourse, the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning started talking about economic cycles in the country. He said, and I quote, “In the past, the economic cycles in this country went up and down every two to three years, and that was during periods when I was in government in the past, and I am not referring now to any specific government, but the economic cycle of a boom to recession basically came every two to three years. Thank the Lord we have had about four good years now, and there is no reason, as I see it, for that to change in the future.” Mr. Speaker, I never cease to be amazed.

The lips from whence these words cometh have occupied these halls for 20 years. [He has] as much experience as you could want in any human being in this field—in fact, too much. History has continually proven that the economic cycle from boom to recession is about every two or three years. That is what he said. This one now has gone on for four years. Obviously, this is the only time it has happened. With all of the other track records we have available, and this one time it went on for four years. . . Which one is the fluke? This one, or the rest of them?

Mr. Roy Bodden: (Laughter)

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: There is a reason I am saying what I am saying. I thank God that it has gone on for four years. Obviously, we cannot be stupid enough to believe that it is going to continue. We must prepare.

He went on to say: “At some time it will plateau out, and that is something to be expected. But at present and the foreseeable future, the position looks good.” My God, Mr. Speaker, how far ahead can he see?

The point is that if we have historically had a recession every two or three years, however slight or major it is, and this time around we have extended it to four years. . . and do not let anybody fool you into believing that we control that. You and I know better. Maybe when we go into the Common Room you can explain it to them, but I know we know better than that. It is not we who control all of that.

If by chance the forces that assist us allow it to go on for four years, must we sit down and say (because it has gone on for four years) that the foreseeable future will stay like that? That is crap! (I know that is not a word I should use, and I am sorry.)

The Speaker: It is unparliamentary language.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: It will be said when I am through that I am picking. But I am not. The lesson has to be learned. I will tell you something else too. Recent experience has taught me two things: One (and it took me a while because I am as ordinary as the next man), I will never stand or sit in this arena and let anyone intimidate me again—ever!—with any scare tactic or any other means. And there is something else I learned very recently, we do not have any one-man armies inside here at any time.

Mr. Roy Bodden: True! And we are not giving up leadership to those who have not won the battle.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: If anyone thinks it is going to work like that again. . . If they believe in reincarnation, fine, but until then, no way.

I do not want anything from anyone. I do not have any hidden agenda; nobody has to make me any false promises or true promises. I only want the opportunity to be the best representative I can be for the people of this country. That is all! I am not going to allow anybody to prevent me from doing that. I will give allowance for any variance of opinion. I have no problem with that. We will not always agree, but no one is going to shove anything down my throat any more under any circumstance—budget, loans, or anything else.

If the Government wants to do right what it should do is take some of the preaching that has been going on here for several years now and put its priorities right to benefit the most people in this country; not try to tie up loose ends mid year and at the end of the year.

Oh! I forgot. I was talking about the financial year, Mr. Speaker, ending 31st December. Let me tell you what this country has been relegated to, and they talk about prudent fiscal management. The Minister did not want me to say it a while ago that is why he distracted me, but I just remembered it. I was saying that the financial year for this country is 1st January to 31st December. Here we are in the Yuletide season, the Budget has just been approved (that is what I was saying). In the month of July (I am not sure whether it was reported by the reporter facing me today or another reporter for the Caymanian Compass), the Leader of Government Business was quoted as saying that there would be a meeting of Finance Committee called in a couple of weeks to deal with certain matters. If I am not mistaken, one of those matters was the Lighthouse School. This is December. The Budget for the next fiscal year is just about finished, except for this Loan Bill, and that Finance Committee has not been held yet.

It was supposed to be held in the month of July. If it comes sometime before 31st December (if we are lucky) that is when they will call the clean-up exercise.

The agenda had to be prepared around the time the Minister said he was holding the meeting, so if not in July (depending on what time—he said a couple of weeks later he would have the Finance Committee meeting, or, rather, it would be held). . . well, let us say it was prepared in August. They have had an agenda since August and four months later they are going to do the clean-up exercise. This Budget, these Estimates had to be done on the premise that everything in that agenda for that Finance Committee would be passed and approved, if it had not already been spent. I do not know, it may be spent, and may need a rubber stamp the size of me!

As disjointed as some of my arguments might seem, I think that I have proven beyond a shadow of a doubt that the management of the country's money is not being handled in a prudent fashion. It is incumbent upon the Government to totally change its style if it is going to be the responsible Government it should be.

Mr. Roy Bodden: That they profess to be.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: They cannot profess that any more.

They should be quite willing to mend their ways, listen to the professionals who know, and be prepared to do what is right for this country. Perhaps if we could see some sort of future planning, rather than money being spent left, right and centre, not knowing how disjointed it is going to be at the end of the day, we might not feel uncomfortable with borrowings.

The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning, the Leader of Government Business, said that the amount of money that has to be used out of recurrent revenue to pay back the public debt is only 6.8% of that recurrent revenue so it has not reached the magical figure. He says it is way below the magical figure. I know that. But for the last three years it has inched its way up. Do you know what that leads me to believe? That he figured he could go on and on until it reached that and by that time he would be ready to quit and people like me would have to deal with it. No way!

Their way of operating is going to stop now. Do you know what, Mr. Speaker? The people of this country know it. I will leave them alone until they bring the next Loan Bill and see the way they present it. But they will do this one without me.

I am going to make a prediction: Before fiscal year 1998 is over this country is going to need a minimum of $15 or $20 million of supplementary expenditure to keep everything going. That will be in the Hansards. That is why I am saying it here today. The only reason it will not happen is if some bright soul on the Government Bench stops the capital projects just so that I cannot say that again. How they want to handle it is up to them.

The Speaker: Would this be a convenient time to take the morning break?

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Yes, Sir.

The Speaker: Proceedings are suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.30 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12 NOON

The Speaker: Please be seated.

The First Elected Member for George Town continuing.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: During that short break I remembered two other items in the Estimates that I think are worth mentioning in order to reinforce my point about the figures provided in the Estimates not being accurate.

The first one is the construction of the Visitor's Centre at the Pedro St. James Castle. The Minister responsible stated that that project should be completed sometime in May or June of 1998. The amount in the Estimates for this project is $1.1 million, which is a spill-over of the loan from last year. The question was asked earlier regarding the total cost to pay the contractors when the Visitor's Centre is completed. To date, I have not received an answer. It can only lead me to assume that the $1.1 million in the Budget is insufficient. The truth of the matter is that although the project will be finished by mid-year 1998, there is $1.146 million projected for 1999. Maybe the contractor will wait a year to get paid. There can be no mistake about what that money is for 1999, Mr. Speaker, because the Minister stated that funds to operate the Pedro Castle project were already placed elsewhere in this Budget. That leaves me to believe that in order to balance the Budget the funds were spread over two years knowing full well that all of the funds would have to be paid out in 1998. If I am not correct, I will give way now to be corrected.

The last example I want to use is one where there seems to be a fair amount of argument. It is the Lighthouse School. In the Estimates it says, "To construct a new facility for 150 students at the Lighthouse School in Grand Cayman" and there is $1 million for 1998. I think we all want to see this facility completed as soon as possible. I know that a site has to be identified. I know that plans have to be drawn. I know that the Minister is very anxious to get the project underway.

If the will which is supposed to be there is there, then, certainly, more money than this would have been provided in the Estimates to carry that project through to the end of 1998. The Estimates provide for $1 million in 1998 and $2 million in 1999. The project certainly cannot take that long to complete once it gets underway. The Estimates for the facility (while no one knows exactly what it is going to cost) vary between $3 million and $5 million. Because I know it is the will of this House to see that project completed as soon as possible, once it gets underway no one is going to get in its way which will mean more supplementary funding for that project.

In all of this is the glaring fact that there are many, many figures provided in these Estimates that the people who created those figures well know are not correct. What that means to people like me on the Backbench (and I might not be able to speak for all, but I speak for several of us) is that whether we approve or not, at this point in time we still do not know the true position of the country's finances. We can know what money is expected to be had and we can know some of what will be spent, but we have no idea as to what the true picture will be.

I wish to come back to one last point about borrowing since we are dealing with the Loan Bill. When the Honourable Minister for Education was making his pointed attempts to convert the people of this country with the information he was trying to provide, he also stated, and I will quote him: “We have, between 1993 and 1997, repaid on principal and interest, $58,902,190. . .”

Mr. Roy Bodden: Not true.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I am not disputing that the country has not paid that, but he goes on to say, “. . . so we have repaid a very substantial part. In fact, we have repaid more than we have borrowed over that period.”

Mr. Roy Bodden: That is not true!

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, I have the figures. If you add up the money that was borrowed from 1993 to 1997, the correct figure is $72.2 million. It is my belief that when he made that statement he made an attempt to exclude the money that was borrowed in 1993 for Cayman Airways. The way that he lives his life, or the way he portrays that to the people of this country, is that he has no responsibility for that money. I want to know who is responsible for it.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Why is he paying it then?

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: He can exclude that in his thought process, but he cannot stand up and tell the people of this country that we borrowed less than $59 million during those years. The fact is that we borrowed $72.2 million. I am not responsible for it! The country is responsible for it. Mr. Speaker, if that is not misleading, I want to know what misleading is.

By 1998 year end, based on what is proposed in the Estimates and the borrowings, the country, without fail, will owe in excess of $90 million. If there is any truth to what I have been saying regarding the figures that have not been put into the Estimates, it may be more. As I mentioned before in another debate (Although it will be what you call self-financing loans—the country is ultimately responsible for them too.) we do not know if, or when, any of the Statutory Authorities will engage in borrowing during the course of 1998 which will increase the total public debt.

If we want to separate those authorities because they are supposedly self-financing loans, we can do so, but the fact is that the Cayman Islands Government is ultimately responsible for those debts even though the Authorities may be servicing the debts on their own. If anything goes wrong where any of those Authorities cannot service their debt, it falls back on the country. So it cannot be excluded, regardless of how you place it. While it may not exceed the magical 10% of recurrent revenue to service them, I contend that it is creeping up and creeping up. I do not believe that we should wait until we get to that 10% to decide to do what we should do right and operate this country differently.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Good point. What about future generations?

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: We are not always going to be here. It is totally unfair for us to look at the business of this country in a fashion which only extends to our life in this House or even our lifetime.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Typical selfishness.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: We cannot assume when the good Lord is coming. I am sure He would agree with me in saying that the least we can do while we are here is to do it right and prepare for the future.

Mr. Speaker, I believe that if we are going to be able to continue to relate a success story about this country it is incumbent upon each and every one of us as legislators, whether Backbench or Government, to look to the future well-being of this country and not just get up every morning and react to whatever we have to deal with. We cannot continue to do that.

In closing, let me simply say that my reason for not supporting this Loan Bill is based on the fact that I believe we are handling the finances of this country incorrectly. I am simply saying that we have to stop living the way we have been. I trust, regardless of whatever personal attitude might prevail, that my points, which I know are relevant, will be taken the way I wish them to be—which is to simply expose the bad way in which we are doing the business of this country. We have to stop it!

Until I, as a representative of the people, see it being handled in a fashion which I feel more comfortable with, I will never, ever support anything else the Government proposes to do with the finances of this country regardless of what reason it comes for. They must demonstrate to me and to the country that they are doing the business of this country in the proper fashion.

Thank you.

The Speaker: It is our intention to suspend at 12.30. In view of the fact that we only have nine minutes to go I think we should suspend at this time until 2.15 PM.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, if I may, Sir. Yesterday afternoon there were only seven minutes left and someone had to get up and speak. I contend that there is more than that left, Sir, and if you are going to close at 12.30, someone should get up and speak if we want to get the business of the House done.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I second that.

The Speaker: I thank you for your view, but I have made my decision. Proceedings are suspended.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.18 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.42 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Debate on the Loan Bill continues. Does any other Member wish to speak? The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Thank You, Mr. Speaker.

I am mindful that we have been dealing with this Budget Session since 5th November, 1997. I do not propose to make any long-winded speech, but there is a need to clarify many of the issues we have heard. I will try to do that before taking my seat.

I will begin by saying that the 1997 Budget and the Appropriation Law were not legal to spend from until 8th July, 1997. To the best of my knowledge there has to be an acceptable and legal way for Government to cause the smooth operations of this country to continue. One way is what was used—contingency warrants. Many were issued. In an answer given to this House by the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development, there were 190 of them totalling in the area of $70 million. When we realise that seven months of the year had just about transpired by then, and with a Budget in the area of $250 million, $70 million in the first six or seven months is not a big issue. The majority is covered within the allocations of the 1997 Budget. I am drawing some relevance and moving on, so I have no intention of dwelling on that.

There were comments about supplementary expenditure. I reiterate what I said when dealing with the Budget Address: There is no methodology that I know of where you can have a supplementary expenditure to a budget that is not yet legal. So the supplementary expenditure cannot come and be legal unless it is after 8th July, 1997, when the Appropriation Law comes into effect which governs all of the budgetary matters in the 1997 Budget.

The other point I wish to make (and I may repeat some of what I said in my contribution to the Budget Address) is that all of us tend to want a little holiday, so in August some of us did. All governments that I have known during the past 25 years I have been in government do not want to call a Finance Committee unless all of the government members are present. That is the basic reason why we could not do so in August. I use the word 'Government' specifically, because in Finance Committee we only have five Ministers. Five Ministers cannot carry votes in Finance Committee unless they have their Backbench support.

Then came September and the House was back in session. We were involved with the proceedings of the House. We also got involved then with the matter of First Cayman Bank. Then, in October, we prepared for the 1998 Budget.

Mr. Roy Boddén: But we could have had the Finance Committee meeting in early September.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Hindsight is always 20/20. When you are involved with running a Government. . . and this is not the 1971 or 1965 Government. The job of a Minister—take it from me—is full-time. We have so many issues within our own Ministry's that keep us full-time. Everybody is saying that it is not just one Minister who runs the Government, that it is all the Ministries and their Backbench support. When an issue such as First Cayman Bank comes along we can be occupied in meetings, and we were—all week, including Saturday and Sunday. Now, which is more important? Dealing with that? Or coming to Finance Committee? I think that is what we have to decide. I am not going to belabour that point. The point I am leading up to is that because of all those issues the Budget itself was not presented on the original day but had to be deferred, which is evidence of the involvement by the Ministers, in particular, during that period of time.

There will be need for supplementary expenditure, even if it is to authorise the amounts that have been issued by contingency warrants. That will hopefully be dealt with before this House adjourns.

During this last week, in particular, we also saw the 1998 Budget gain approval in Finance Committee. We had open and frank discussions, and, as the Caymanian Compass said, some "outbursts." We all have our moments when we lose the patience that we generally have.

[Inaudible interjection]

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I did ask the Member to please go outside and have a smoke. And he agreed to do that.

This 1998 Budget was prepared by more than just the Ministers and the Official Members. . . maybe the word 'prepared' is not totally accurate, but it was seen. Discussions were held and information was passed, so many Members of this Honourable House knew the contents. Even in Finance Committee, the Opposition made proposals and the Government asked for time to consider; we went into the committee room and made our decisions. We moved funds around within the total capital allocation. We cut out $1 million for roads. We gave in excess of $350,000 for housing repairs and financial assistance. We approved $175,000 for the emergency housing fund. We provided an allocation to buy an incinerator, particularly to deal with health and medical waste issues. We granted an additional $200,000 for hot mix on roads in Cayman Brac.

There was some generosity within that too. The lady Member for North Side gave up $50,000 of her allocation for the North Side Senior Citizens Centre and also $12,000 for a workshop, slated for the Civic Centre I believe. I raise that point to say that to the best of my knowledge those were the only items in the 1998 Budget that were asked to be changed—and were changed by this Government. So no issues are concrete, we have made compromises in the best interest of the people of this country.

The Government's financial position at the end of September 1997 shows recurrent revenue in excess of $163.7 million, recurrent and statutory expenditure of $144.7 million, and with an excess of revenue over those two expenditures (recurrent and statutory) of more than $19 million to be utilised to fund capital expenditure. At the end of September 1997 the surplus was $3.85 million. The financial position of the country is still good.

Let me make another point: The prosperity in this country over the past five years was done by the National Team. People are walking around with money in their pockets, buying their Christmas gifts, buying their new cars, taking their flights to Miami. . . the economy of this country, Mr. Speaker, has never been better!

Mr. Roy Boddén: We are not denying that. We are saying what about the rainy day?

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, I am speaking now. I am saying what my heart says I should to the public. They have had their opportunity. It is my turn.

The employment situation in this country for a local individual has really never been better. Yes, we can do more about training; yes, we intend to do more about training. I underscore those points just to draw relevance to how this country is today—the economy, the financial position of the Government, the fiscal management of the Government. We did not bring any taxation this year.

Let me make one other point. Some people may have seen recessions in this country. I have seen several myself. Because we have a Budget that says we are going to spend 'X' number of dollars, when the recession begins to bite we have to revise our Budget; otherwise there will be claims of financial negligence on the part of the Government in power at that time. It happened in the mid 1970s, to use one particular example. When we look at the number of things that the Government should be doing, we could come up with a list of probably 100 items that are not quite like we would like them to be. But are we not living in a practical world today? Are we not living in a practical world where needs have to be addressed? Evidence of that is the amount of money we shifted from capital back into financial assistance and housing repairs. We addressed the needs of the community, and we have to look out for those less fortunate and those who are not able to work due to illness, age and other reasons.

Many Members spoke about priorities and the need for Government to prioritise. Some of those same Members did not do it themselves. We have seen Budgets. . . and let me repeat what I said during the contribution to the Debate on the Budget Address: I have been involved with Budgets directly since 1977. We have seen Budgets where a $10 allocation was put in with the view that the Legislative Assembly accepted the project, but did not have sufficient funds to do it. We would put the $10 in and then during the year look to see whether the revenue of the country was as good as the Estimates. If it were better than estimated, perhaps there would be room to do that project.

We have seen where allocations were put in the Budget with the view that a project would not start until September of that year. Therefore, there is no need to put the total value of the project in the 1997, or 1998, or 1999 Budget. We know that a project is going to take 12 to 18 months, and therefore will span two financial years. We will use the allocation for the quarter to begin the project and finalise it in the final year.

I am in support of the Loan Bill before this House for $19.5 million. I think it is important to say that the Government, in dealing with the 1998 Budget, wished to do a number of projects in that year. What is clear is that in the 1998 Budget there is $28.5 million in capital expenditure which covers a variety of heads and subheads. When I look at page 178 of the Budget I see a total allocation of $12.3 million for Public Buildings; I see $3.5 million for roads, because we took $1 million off of it; I see $4.8 million for Recreational/Cultural Facilities; I see $286,000 for Cemeteries; $715,000 for Harbours and Docks. I see $560,000 for Purchase of Lands; $285,000 for Landfill Development and $4.9 million for Healthcare Facilities. I see $240,000 for Agricultural Development. I have been rounding some of these figures off. The Government's view is that this is the amount of money we will live with. It is tied to the Loan Bill.

I heard a Member talking about his priority list. When I jotted down the things he was talking about he too ended up at $19.5 million. The prioritisation that the Government will address at this time is, within the framework of this $28.5 million, putting forward hospital funding as priority number one. The Lighthouse School is priority number two. We are going to stay within the ambit of the $19.5 million of that Loan and deal with those two projects in particular.

I will repeat what I said: Within the $19.5 million loan the Government is going to address (and this is not all of the projects, I am giving two examples) the capital needs of the hospital and fund it from this Loan; the purchase of land, if that is what is necessary, for the Lighthouse School and the construction of the school, if that is what is decided. There are other projects in this Budget. Obviously, I am not going to try to go priority one through 20, or 25. The Government will sit down, rationalise, prioritise along the same lines I have just described.

We all know—the Member across the floor says he knows—that there is a particular sum of money needed for the hospital. Well, we do too. We are saying that within this $19.5 million the hospital construction and capital expenditure needs will be funded. The Lighthouse School needs—whatever option is chosen—will be funded from this. I am not talking about $4 million or $3 million, I am talking about two projects, the hospital—whatever the capital construction expenditure needs are will be taken from this loan. If it is $5 million, $7 million, $8 million, it is priority number one. Whatever the needs are for the Ministry of Education to establish a proper Lighthouse School, it will be taken from this Loan. Whatever the need is in terms of dollars, whatever the need is for West Bay Primary, the multi-purpose hall, it is going to be taken from this Loan.

We stand by our commitment to Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. There is no problem there at all. The Government understands what needs to be done. Sometimes even when you burn the midnight oil, it runs out before you finish the job and you need to continue the process.

(Members' applause)

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Well, well. . . clapping by the First Elected Member for George Town, the First Elected Member for Bodden Town and the Fourth Elected Member for George Town. Thank you very much, gentlemen.

Dr. Frank McField: Priorities established.

Mr. Roy Bodden: That is right.

Dr. Frank McField: That is what we want too.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Well, Mr. Speaker. I am overwhelmed. I think I should sit down now.

(Inaudible interjections)

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, I have reached such a point. I believe I should sit down at this particular time, and not waste any more time of this Honourable House—not to say that the issue is not important, I could spend another 30 minutes. But I thank all Honourable Members for their support.

(Applause)

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause) If not, I will ask the Mover if he would like to exercise his right of reply.

The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I have taken note of Members' comments on this Loan Bill. The Government has just made it clear that it intends to prioritise the projects that will be allowed during the course of the year within the limit of the sum approved. With that, I would like to thank Honourable Members and you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled, The Loan (Capital Projects 1998) Bill, 1997, be given Second Reading. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED. THE LOAN (CAPITAL PROJECTS 1998) BILL, 1997, GIVEN A SECOND READING.

The Speaker: Second Readings continuing.

THE MERCHANT SHIPPING BILL, 1997

Clerk: The Merchant Shipping Bill, 1997.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I beg to move the second reading of a Bill entitled, The Merchant Shipping Bill, 1997.

This House is aware of the ongoing efforts of the Cayman Islands to develop the Cayman Islands Shipping Register to a high standard. As part of these efforts the Government, assisted by a legal consultant and the Shipping Sector Consultative Committee, undertook an extensive review of the Cayman Islands Shipping Legislation with a view to its consolidation and streamlining. This was done while simultaneously updating the legislation to reflect current international shipping practices, and to bring into Cayman law a number of relevant provisions of shipping related international conventions to which Cayman is already party to via the United Kingdom. At this time I will provide a brief overview of each section.

Part I, the Preliminary, contains the Short title, Commencement clause and the Interpretation clause. The definitions are taken mostly from existing Cayman Islands legislation and, where appropriate, from the United Kingdom's Shipping legislation.

Part II deals with Registration of Ships. This part addresses all matters pertaining to registration of ships including the Bareboat Charter Registration Regime. The qualifications for owning a Cayman Islands ship have been expanded to enable persons and corporate entities from a wider range to have access to the Cayman Islands registry. At the same time, checks and balances have been retained in the legislation to ensure the continuation of a responsible and quality register. The provisions, mostly taken from the existing Cayman Islands legislation, have been appropriately streamlined.

Part III deals with the National Charter and Flag. This part reflects well established law on the subject. It is largely based on current Cayman Islands legislation.

Part IV deals with Propriety Interest in ships. This part addresses transfers and transmission of proprietary interests in ships and ship mortgages, their registration and discharge. The legal principles already embodied in existing Cayman Islands legislation have been retained with some progressive modifications.

Part V deals with the Masters and Seamen. This part is comprehensive and up-to-date and incorporates all of the principles of the major international labour organisations conventions relating to seafarers and standards for training and certification of Watchkeepers Convention.

Part VI deals with the Prevention of Collisions and Safety of Navigation. The provisions reflect the rules of collision liability contained in the 1910 Collision Convention and relevant requirements contained in the Safety of Life at Sea Convention relating to the safety of navigation. It also provides for the Authority to make regulations incorporating the conventions on the international regulations for the prevention of collision at sea.

Part VII, Safety of Life at Sea, reflects the salient features of the Safety of Life at Sea Convention and largely consists of such matters as surveys, certification, et cetera, for passenger and cargo ships and other technical requirements. It also provides for regulation-making powers to enable secondary legislation to be developed incorporating the numerous technical aspects of maritime safety emanating from the Safety of Life at Sea Convention.

Part VIII deals with Safety of Submersibles. Part IX deals with Load Lines. Part X deals with Carriage of Bulk Cargoes and Dangerous Cargoes.

Part XI deals with Unsafe Ships. This regulation consists of regulatory laws relating to statutory sea worthiness of ships. Part XII deals with Wreck and Salvage operations. Part XIII deals with Control of, and Returns as to Persons on Ships. Part XIV, Liability for Oil Pollution, compensation for oil pollution damage.

Part XV deals with liability of Shipowners and Others. Part XVI is Enforcement Officers and their Powers, Part XVII is Inquiries and Investigations into Marine Casualties. Part XVIII is Legal Proceedings. Part XIX Supplemental provisions and the Schedules 1 through 6.

Schedule 1 provides for the issuing of statutory forms in relation to registration of ships mortgages, et cetera.

Schedule 2 provides for forms prescribed under Part VIII dealing with submersibles. Schedules 3 and 4 set out transactional provisions required in relation to the operation of International Convention on Civil Liability for Oil Pollution Damage and International Convention on the Establishment of an International Fund for Compensation for Oil Pollution Damage.

Schedule 5 sets out the list of existing Cayman Islands legislation which would have to be repealed. Schedule 6 sets out the standard scale of fines as contained in existing Cayman Islands legislation and is subject to revision.

Mr. Speaker, this is a comprehensive revision of our Shipping Legislation and I would like to thank you for allowing its second reading.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled, The Merchant Shipping Bill, 1997 be given a second reading. This item is open for debate. (Pause)

If there is no debate, does the Mover wish to add anything further?

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I have nothing further to add, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled, The Merchant Shipping Bill, 1997 be given a second reading. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED. THE MERCHANT SHIPPING BILL, 1997, GIVEN A SECOND READING.

The Speaker: Second Readings continuing.

THE DEVELOPMENT AND PLANNING (AMENDMENT) (DEVELOPMENTS ADVISORY BOARD) BILL, 1997

Clerk: The Development and Planning (Amendment) (Developments Advisory Board) Bill, 1997.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Boddan: I move the second reading of a Bill entitled, The Development and Planning (Amendment) (Developments Advisory Board) Bill, 1997.

This Bill sets up an Advisory Board that will deal with large projects which are set out in the Bill itself. These are basically apartments or hotels with more than 21 units, commercial developments over 20,000 square feet and subdivision of land into 21 or more lots, industrial development of more than 10,000 square feet and for special purpose projects.

This has been discussed with all Members of the House and the amendment put forward by the Opposition has been put into this Bill. The Bill itself is fairly short and follows what has been done for many years prior to this. It now puts this into Law and has restarted this again after a gap of several years.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled, The Development and Planning (Amendment) (Developments Advisory Board) Bill, 1997, be given a second reading. This item is open for debate. (Pause)

If there is no debate, does the Mover have anything further to add?

Hon. Truman M. Boddan: No, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled, The Development and Planning (Amendment) (Developments Advisory Board) Bill, 1997, be given a second reading. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED. THE DEVELOPMENT AND PLANNING (AMENDMENT) (DEVELOPMENTS ADVISORY BOARD) BILL, 1997.

The Speaker: Second Readings continuing.

THE COMPANIES (AMENDMENT) (PROTECTION OF DEPOSITORS) BILL, 1997

Clerk: The Companies (Amendment) (Protection of Depositors) Bill, 1997.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I beg to move the second reading of a Bill entitled, The Companies (Amendment) (Protection of Depositors) Bill, 1997.

Honourable Members are aware of the desirability of having in place a mechanism that protects depositors against loss of their deposits with banks. This Bill is accordingly being presented. This is particularly important for a small depositors who can ill-afford to lose their savings. The introduction of The Companies (Amendment) (Protection of Depositors) Bill, 1997, will go a long way towards achieving this objective.

The Bill will provide for certain classes of depositors to be given precedence in the event of the failure of a bank. This will be achieved by amending section 161 of the Companies Law to include in the preferential debts in the winding up of a category A bank, the first $20,000 of a customer's deposit with the bank.

There are, of course, other conditions and provisions set out in the Bill. Deposits in all currencies will be covered with the deposit in foreign currencies being converted to Cayman Island Dollars. Also, deposits owned by the same person will be pooled and treated as one deposit. Deposits that are owned jointly will be treated as a deposit in equal amounts by each of the joint depositors. Deposits made on behalf of clients will be treated as separate deposits as long as they have been clearly and previously declared as such.

If a depositor who is eligible for preferential payment has any liability to the bank for which there was a right of set-off, then the amount he would have received will be reduced by the liability. For a number of reasons, certain classes of depositors will not be eligible for the preferential payments. These include affiliated companies and other banks as licensed deposit holders, both local and overseas. Anyone who was responsible for, or who profited from the winding up of the bank will not receive preferential treatment. Others that will not be eligible include a director, controller, manager or shareholder with more than 5% of the shares of the bank. It can be seen that anyone who would have control or influence over the conduct of the bank's operations will not be eligible for preferential treatment.

This Bill has been discussed with the representatives of the Bankers Association and with the local representatives of the Accounting Association. They have given their comments which have been reflected in the Bill, or they endorse the Bill as it now stands.

This Bill is necessary to provide bank depositors with additional protection from economic and social hardships and to avoid any possible instability in the banking industry. Members are asked to give this Bill their support.

I should point out that there is an learning curve in any given situation, particularly with the experience we have had with First Cayman Bank. We know that the remaining class A banks forming the retail banks providing services to the local community are banks with very strong parental backing. Where we have local banks included in the pool, they are being well managed and properly regulated. It is unlikely that we will have a situation as what has recently occurred. Every effort will be made by the Monetary Authority, and the Government as a whole to examine carefully the experiences we have had over the years and in light of the recent experience with First Cayman Bank. We will streamline where necessary our regulatory procedures in order to enhance the strength that institutions such as our Monetary Authority should have in place.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled, The Companies (Amendment) (Protection of Depositors) Bill, 1997 be give a second reading. This is now open for debate.

Hon. John B. McLean: Mr. Speaker, before going into a debate, I wonder if the House would favour going straight through, instead of taking the usual break, until 4.30 this evening.

The Speaker: Is that the wish of all Members?

Mr. Roy Boddan: No, Mr. Speaker. We would like to take the break, Sir, because it gives us an opportunity to do some caucusing which we are not able to effectively do while the House is in session.

The Speaker: We will now take the break, but I ask Members to please come back in 15 minutes. Proceedings are suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS WERE SUSPENDED AT 3.29 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 3.53 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. The second reading of The Companies (Amendment) (Protection of Depositors) Bill, 1997, is now open for debate.

The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

In reviewing this Bill to give priority to certain classes of depositors in the winding up of a bank, and for incidental and connected purposes, I would like to briefly refer to the circumstances necessitating the consideration of this Bill. It is with great regret that I must repeat myself in saying that hindsight—and to echo other Members of the Backbench “crisis management”—seems to be constantly in focus every time we attempt to deal with an issue in this Honourable House. It is not to blame the Honourable Third Official Member, since he is a part of the machinery of Government. I have been here long enough to understand that he cannot make reform, or in most cases he will not bring Bills to the House which do not first meet with the approval of elected Members of Government. Therefore, I am saying that in five years of managing this country they failed to take into account that something, such as what happened with the First Cayman Bank, might occur and give rise to such legislation. It would be obvious even to the Pope's dog at this point that legislation of this nature might become necessary since the crises of the storm has not yet subsided.

Just today there was a demonstration by affected creditors of First Cayman Bank outside of the Legislative Assembly Building. I remember seeing a small symbolic coffin with a sign stating that those demonstrating had buried their confidence in this Government. The number of persons who demonstrated today was, as before, small. It goes to show that the Caymanian people, in terms of their political behaviour, do not see demonstrations as a way of resolving grievances. That does not mean that the affected 3,000 creditors are not grieved, angered and disappointed by the way this situation continues to be handled.

For this reason, in discussing this Bill I must say that this piece of legislation, even coming at this late date, is an important attempt at solving local banking and lending problems. Perhaps it will most benefit those two smaller class A banks. . . one has already been adversely affected as a result of the lack of confidence in Government's ability to manage the banking and lending situation in these islands. Legislation like this would obviously strengthen the position of those two local banks and give those two banks the confidence they need to continue to develop parallel to the international banks with subsidiaries in these islands.

Of course, when we look at this legislation we know that we have very few banks owned by the Caymanian people, and that the banks we are talking about (the class A banks) are international banks that guarantee a great deal of security. The legislation is coming because we do not imagine that the problem we are legislating for will happen again in the future. I believe that most Members of this House believe that this legislation is totally unnecessary. It is only necessary to re-establish the customer's confidence. It is also necessary to give the two smaller class A banks a certain security. We might also see that the motive to bring this Bill to the House at this time does not bring any amendments to the relationship between the Monetary Authority and Executive Council.

In my debate on the Budget Address I stated that I was not satisfied with the arrangement made between the Monetary Authority and Executive Council. I mentioned the fact that we had Members of the Executive Council who serve as directors of banks and that I believe that if Executive Council continues to have the power over regulating the financial matters of public banks in this country that there should be some amendment brought to this House as complementary legislation. To bring it in this particular form is only to bring part of the solution that we should be seeking at this moment. It is not good enough to tell the people that we are solving the problem by plugging the hole. It will leak again and could burst. Something could happen in the future. It could be imagined that this is not the real solution to the problem; the real solution has more to do with adjusting the Monetary Authority in such a way that it does become an 'Authority' without having to answer on a day-to-day basis to Members of Executive Council.

It would appear that we are trying to do something in bringing this Bill; that we are sorry about what happened at First Cayman Bank, that we are amending the situation by bringing legislation that will probably not be needed in the future. The public would be fooled.

[Addressing the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport] Mr. Jefferson, you are always telling people that when you are speaking they should allow you to speak. I would like to build my case, please.

Mr. Speaker, I would appreciate it if the Members of the Government Bench would allow me to develop my argument. I think it would be very useful for them. As we saw with the Loan Bill, they altered their course of action and that alteration might very well be the result of our suggestions from the Backbench that might prove to be very good for the country at the end of the day.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, with respect, we were neither talking to nor about the Honourable Member. We were not discussing anything relating to him.

Mr. Roy Bodden: On a point of clarification. I think that the Honourable Members need to understand that some people get distracted more easily than others. While I can take a lot and still not get distracted, I think it must be appreciated that their conversation is distracting the Honourable Member.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, with respect, who makes more noise and slaps the desk more than the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town? He constantly does it, Sir.

The Speaker: Please continue, Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, thank you for letting me to continue. Of course, I am very new here. Mr. Truman Bodden is a seasoned veteran. I am only asking for a little bit of consideration here. Perhaps what I am asking for is impossible and totally unrealistic. Nevertheless, I have asked for it and I now apologise that I have asked for that type of respect.

What I have tried to do is to show that we have to go beyond this Bill. If I were to sit and vote for this Bill without mentioning the fact that the reform I was calling for, especially during the Budget Debate, was for more than this Bill. . . I was looking for an attempt by the Government to understand the magnitude of the problem, to understand that the problem that was created by the collapse of First Cayman Bank was not just a problem created by the lack of such legislation—it was a problem created by the lapse in regulations, by the fact that the regulatory institution responsible for being a watchdog for these banks was not in the position to do its job properly. It will not be possible for the Monetary Authority to continue to do its job if reforms are not made elsewhere.

A report which I read in the paper today said that the provisional liquidators are saying that the depositors will receive between 25 cents to 40 cents. That does not sound too encouraging, especially when we are dealing with Christmas and people sitting in this Chamber being paid good salaries saying we need to get home for Christmas. Well, there are certain people who might have nothing for Christmas, or what they have might be very much lessened by the fact that they have lost their money and might not have a real chance to regain a decent portion of it.

I have not asked for this law to be retroactive. The reason why I have not. . . and this actually creates a conflict for me because, on the one hand, I would really like to see these depositors (unlike some of my colleagues) receive back at least some of the fruits of their labour. At the same time I would not like to endanger the economic structure and creditability of these islands in attempting to do that. For this reason I am very cautious not to suggest that this law be retroactive.

I have thought about this situation because I have thought about these people. I did say in my debate on the Budget Address that I would not be supporting the Budget because I did not see any provision in the Budget to repay the depositors of First Cayman Bank. When I said that I had intended to advance an argument that would suggest that this law would only be accepted by me if it were made retroactive, but I understand that in making that retroactive we might be giving people the idea that we might be able to make other laws retroactive; that we are easy to change our minds about what the past was, to move the goal post, in fact. For this reason I am very cautious. I am still considerate of those persons who have been adversely affected by the situation at First Cayman Bank.

I know there are people who would like all of these debates to be short, but I did not come here to be a rubber stamp. I am very well paid—I must say that again—and I am very thankful, especially at this Christmas time, that I have a job and I am going to do my job. At one particular time my job might actually mean replacing some people in here, too, with people who can listen and develop and have sympathy for people who have lost something.

I would like to see Government come back with a plan of action that would not involve making this law retroactive, realising the type of credibility that we could lose by making this law retroactive—realising that, but nevertheless realising the obligation we have to the depositors at First Cayman Bank. The mere fact that we are bringing this Bill suggests that we could have been more vigilant. The mere fact that we are now bringing this Bill suggests that we could have acted differently, that we did not do our job completely. Otherwise this Bill would not now be before this Honourable House. That is a fact.

I know that business is business, and that we are all taking risks when we do business. Sometimes we realise that if we do not minimise the risks certain people take we will create chaos and anarchy in our society. It is the same reason people have been allowed to trade as companies and not as individuals, simply because it minimises the risk individuals must take.

Although we can say to people, 'Look, that it is business. You made your decision to go there, and it is your risk,' at the end of the day it should be our attempt, if we can help, to minimise the risk. If we had had such legislation in place, the risk would have been minimised. Since we did not have it in place, and if we can now help the people to see that they can overcome some of the difficulties they face, we should do that. We should have a plan of action for that.

Although there were just a few people outside, and we might look at them and think, 'Oh, they're back again. They are making fools of themselves. The public does not like that anyway and the more they do that the more the public will be on our side and believe that Government is right in its approach and method.' I say that we could probably do something to assist these people. I know there is supposed to be some money someplace from one bank, but I do not want to say certain things because I am not quite sure what is still top secret and what is not. . . but as we saw when the Cuban refugees came to the Cayman Islands, we spent a substantial sum of money. . .

Mr. Roy Bodden: Six million dollars.

Dr. Frank McField: . . . $6 million on them, getting them set up and housed, getting them in order to travel on to their desired destinations. We did that. We found money for that. We paid rent to the United States at Guantanamo Base.

The Chief Secretary says no.

Anyway, the case I am making is quite simple: It is a conflict. It is not an easily decided situation because part will say, 'Let them absorb the risk, let them absorb the loss.' I am saying that if we had done things differently, if we had the insight and the foresight, and not the hindsight, this Law would have been in place and those depositors would not have lost all that they have lost. Therefore, in considering this legislation I wish that Members would also address the situation that led to the need for this legislation to be brought before the Legislative Assembly. If Members do not address the circumstances which gave rise to this Bill, then I feel they are trying to push the situation away, to dismiss the situation of the creditors of First Cayman Bank.

I am leaving an open challenge for Members to discuss the circumstances which led to the formulation of such a Bill.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak?
The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: I was almost tempted to play that famous waiting game Members so often like to play in this Chamber; but the business of the country, this Bill before us is too serious, and I dare not incur the wrath of the Chair and waste the Honourable Assembly's time by playing such a game when we are so far into the Yuletide season.

The Speaker: Thank you.

Mr. Roy Bodden: This piece of legislation could accurately be described as a conundrum or a paradox in that it seeks to address a situation without really addressing the situation. It proposes to make arrangements for future occurrences but proceeds to neglect present circumstances.

If I can use this analogy, it is like a man buying insurance to protect him from a situation which may occur in the future, but not take into consideration the same situation which is affecting him at present. This is going to be effective without having a certain effect.

I do not need to remind the Honourable House of the circumstances which brought this legislation to this Chamber at this time. What I will say is that if the Government has any conscience it will understand that accepting this (and passage of this legislation is almost guaranteed) does not exonerate and absolve the Government of its moral obligation to address this situation which the country is facing: namely, what of the depositors of First Cayman Bank? We would be deluding ourselves if we believe that by passing this legislation that situation is going to go away.

Those of us who occupy these hallowed halls are fortunate because many of us have escaped the pangs and pressures of those people. There are those of us on this side who deeply and dearly sympathise and have empathy for them. It is not easy to have lost all of one's hard-earned savings. This is particularly difficult for the small depositors, because heaven knows that they will not have anything put away in any other institution. Those people with meagre resources, those people with humble earnings are likely to have lost all that they had because they did not have the luxury of dispensing their financial resources in various institutions.

The paradox is made even more stark when we consider that sometime ago we went to great lengths in this country to accommodate people who were, one could say, in a similar plight in that they were dispossessed of their assets; persons to whom we had nothing but a moral obligation. We spent $6 million on such persons. Are you telling me now that we have blood—kith and kin and fellow citizens—in destitute positions, having lost all of their financial resources, and all we are going to offer them is ignorance and pretend that the problem does not exist? Are we going to be ostriches and bury our heads in the ground and hope that the problem simply goes away?

Every time I see those people exercise their democratic right, I say, 'Thank God for the political culture of the Cayman Islands.' I hate to use this word, and my knowledge of political science does not allow me to use it easily, so I use it here guardedly—that people are so 'civil'. Having lost all of their financial resources they are content to picket the Parliament. They are content to be so polite in their demonstrations that all they do is build a coffin stating they have lost confidence in the Government and set it up in front of the Legislative Assembly Building. Those civil and considerate gestures alone should demand more from our consciences than we have to this point been willing to yield.

Hindsight is 20/20. The Government is fond of saying that the Backbench does not bring any viable alternatives. There are those in the Government who would have the Caymanian public believe that there are persons on the Backbench incapable of bringing viable alternatives. However, I am satisfied that that era is dying. Those antiquated ideas have been debunked and are continually being debunked because this corner here has been shining since November 5th.

I noticed that the National Audit Office of the United Kingdom in their Contingency Plans for the Dependent Territories suggested the establishment of what they called "Natural Disaster Funds." I think that Bermuda is well on the way to setting up the infrastructure for such a fund. But they took it a step further. Not only would the fund provide monies and resources in the event of a hurricane or earthquake, they extended it to what I call certain political or economic phenomena which could happen in other parts of the world that would negatively affect the economy of those countries—namely, a large number of financial institutions failing, or if the stock market fell, or if there was a flop in a tourist season. I want to remind the House that in the last Parliament the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman and I brought a motion to this House asking the Government to establish what we called a Disaster Relief Fund. We were primarily thinking of things like an especially devastating hurricane.

The point I wish to make is that any Government with creativity and the gumption could have taken that idea and extended it to do what we are now doing. But, it would be literally impossible, because to do that would be admitting that the former Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman and I were not 'defunct'. The Government—particularly that Honourable Minister who likes to describe us that way—would have been too charitable.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Why did you not bring a Motion for depositor's insurance?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I do not have to do that, Sir. It was my responsibility to try to see that a need was filled, and I did that. If certain Ministers were as smart as they try to make people believe they are, and if their thinking was convergent, they would have said, 'Ah, ha! Here is an idea we can build upon. Let us not only limit it to natural disasters, but try to build for any eventuality such as a major failure in our financial sector or the flop of the world wide economic system that may negatively impact upon us.'

We have to remember that the Backbench has proposed many things, even during this Parliament; but not all have been accepted. It is incumbent upon any Government claiming to be responsible and having the country's best interests at heart, to see the efficacy of any motion brought to this House and to use it to the betterment of the country.

Having said that, I wish to go on record as saying that I believe that a golden opportunity was lost to have set in place mechanisms that could have been extended to these kinds of eventualities.

MOMENT OF INTERRUPTION—4.30 PM

The Speaker: May I interrupt you for just a moment? I do not imagine that you will be finishing within the next few minutes.

THE COMPANIES (AMENDMENT) (PROTECTION OF DEPOSITORS) BILL, 1997

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Mr. Roy Boddén: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Economist magazine of April 27 to May 3 of 1996 carried as its title "How safe is your bank?" Inside the magazine there is a special section entitled, "The domino effect: A survey of international banking." That section covers some 38 pages and gives some idea of the complexity of international banking. What is important about this special section and this issue of The Economist magazine is that it was almost prescient in its prediction of the crisis in some international banks. It begins by tracing the history of the failure of the Barings Bank and goes on to chronicle the failure of Japanese banks.

It is a document from which I am going to be taking several quotations and I have made provision to lay a copy on the Table, and I have a copy for you, Mr. Speaker. I will now ask the Serjeant-at-Arms if he would do the necessary courtesy.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I would like to begin on page 4 under the heading, "Why banks are special." The article says:

"When it comes to banking, however, politicians everywhere seem especially reluctant to let the industry's flagships fail.

"Why? One reason is that governments fear the political backlash that the failure of a big bank would cause. Most of these financial giants have thousands of small depositors, many of whom keep a substantial portion of their wealth in their accounts. Ensuring that Aunt Agatha, Anna and Akiko-san have somewhere safe to invest their savings is widely considered to be the government's responsibility. Hence the strong political will to keep large banks afloat.

"But there is another, even more serious threat associated with bank failures that strikes fear into the hearts of politicians and central bankers everywhere. Dubbed 'systemic risk', this is the danger that the sudden and unexpected demise of one or several banks could trigger a domino-like collapse throughout an entire banking system. The prospect of a financial meltdown is such a serious worry because its impact is likely to be felt on Main Street as well as Wall Street."

There are two significant points in this short quotation which I would like to share with Honourable Members. The first is that it is recognised that it is the responsibility of the government to ensure that banks are safe for depositors, a responsibility in which, in our case, Government seems to have either been delinquent or abnegated altogether.

The second is a phenomenon that we very nearly experienced here—the failure of any one big bank could trigger what the article describes as "systemic risk." Indeed, we know that there was a serious run on at least one other bank. There is a danger in any of the large banks failing. I have to say that this seeming lack of positive action on the Government's part to assist the depositors in the case of First Cayman Bank violates the Caymanian's sense of propriety, the Caymanian notion of neighbourliness, and displays a callousness and disregard uncharacteristic of the Caymanian psyche. I would like to go on record as saying that I, for one, do not wish to see this kind of callous disregard, this lack of action, this lack of expression of serious empathy. I do not wish to see this become a fixed or immutable part of our political culture.

I again call into question the effectiveness of this proposed Bill when it takes no steps to deal with the situation at hand. I cannot see the logic in making preparation for a future situation when we have made no attempt to deal with the situation at hand. It is like a patient going to a doctor and saying, 'I would like a vaccination to prevent me from catching the flu.' When the doctor checks the patient he says, 'Sir, you have a more immediate problem. You are suffering from cancer.' But the patient tells the doctor, 'Forget about the cancer, just give me the vaccination to keep me from catching influenza.' The patient may never get the flu, but he has a case of cancer needing immediate attention.

We could speculate. There may never be another bank failure in the Cayman Islands. But we have a situation with the First Cayman Bank that we need to deal with now. The logic of this proposed Bill to deal with future failures escapes me when there is no attempt made to deal with the situation at hand.

That we should have known a crisis like this was bound to occur one day is the fault of many people. We should have prepared for this. The absence of any formative preparation does not bode well for the smartness of those of us who like to get up in this Honourable House and proclaim that we have a monopoly on events in the country; those who like to have the listening public and Members in this Chamber believe that we should always have the reigns of government because we are eminently equipped either because of our success in private life, or privileges to rule. Mr. Speaker, those days are gone.

I want to again refer to the Report by the National Audit Office and the Auditor General on the Contingent Liabilities in the Dependent Territories, at page 51 under the section that deals with Bermuda and disaster preparedness. I mentioned before that this document is presently held in the Clerk's office. This is my personal copy so I did not bother to bring a copy to lay on the Table.

Under "Disaster Preparedness," number 6, Bermuda: "The Monetary Authority has also produced a disaster recovery plan for the financial services sector to identify the possible risks attached to the sector in the event of a major crisis. For example, a collapse of tourism, the housing market, the economy generally, natural disasters, significant fraud, major bank liquidation or a major political crisis. It aims to encourage the development of contingency plans by all relevant private and public sector organisations." If our Monetary Authority wants to demonstrate creativity and initiative, perhaps they should take note of what the Monetary Authority in Bermuda has done.

But there is one problem with our Monetary Authority here, and I contend that until this problem is resolved, our Monetary Authority is handcuffed and will never be able to perform effectively. It is curtailed in its activities by the requirement to report its actions to the Executive Council.

That should not be. Let me state emphatically and categorically that there is a penchant for charges of conflict of interest, or worse. I want to find out how an Authority can report to a body, some of whose Members sit as directors of banks. I have to say that some people are lucky because in other jurisdictions that would not be allowed. I say again that the time has come for us to erase the greying of the area, to set the Monetary Authority up so that it can function as it should function.

This Bill, with its notable absence of dealing with the situation at hand, reminds me of the story of the drunk looking for a lost coin under a street lamp instead of where he dropped it. His excuse for searching under the street lamp was that the light was better there. Like the tale, this Bill illustrates the trait of human foolishness. If it fails to address the situation at hand, how can the people now affected have confidence in the Government? How do they feel when they realise that the Government is bringing a Bill to address the situation from which they are now suffering, yet offers no relief for them?

The move to provide a safety net for depositors is certainly a move in the right direction. But I hope that by the time debate is over, Government will realise that their efforts fall short of being effective. There are relatively few countries in the world that offer any kind of organised safety net with deposit insurance. Of the jurisdictions offering this, none offers full, that is one hundred percent, coverage. Let me say that I am not being unreasonable, proposing that the Government offer full coverage, because even in jurisdictions like the United States, that cannot be done. In all candour, the effort to redress the situation by offering a portion of the deposits is a good one. Where the effort falls flat on its face is that it fails miserably in taking the present situation at hand.

The history of deposit insurance is relatively new. Indeed, the United States did not seriously get into it until the endemic failure of the savings and loan institutions in the 1980s. The necessity for deposit insurance first became clear during the stock market crash of the 1930s, but was unable to get off the ground at that time. The article referenced in The Economist magazine on page 17 gives a chart showing those jurisdictions which have deposit insurance. It gives some of the details covering them. I crave the Chair's indulgence to share this with Honourable Members in the Chamber. In the United States, the level of protection extends up to a maximum of $100,000 per depositor. It is compulsory. In Britain, 90% of protected deposits, with a maximum of £20,000, or the equivalent of US$30,000, and it too is compulsory. In France, FF400,000 (which is US$79,000 at the conversion rate in 1996); it is compulsory. In Germany, the system is a little different. The level of protection is up to 30% of a bank's liable capital, but the US dollar equivalent an individual would get is not available. Also, the coverage is voluntary. In Japan, it is ¥10 million (US$93,000) and compulsory. In Switzerland, it is SFr30,000 (US$25,000) and voluntary.

The article in The Economist goes on to point out that there are several models for insurance coverage in the banking system. There is actually a model which I discovered quite by coincidence (page 31) was initiated in New Zealand which does not deal with any actual insurance, but protects depositors by legislating that regulation is done so that the results are made public; depositors and creditors of the bank have access to these statements, which must be audited twice yearly and a two-page summary placed in all branches of the respective banks. Depositors have access to the bank's risk management system, to the kinds of transactions the bank has engaged in; they are therefore able to make a judgement whether the bank is investing its money properly and reasonably.

In the United States the legislation governing bankruptcy and liquidation has a clause. I would like to have seen something like this incorporated into this Bill. The United States further protects its depositors by having a clause in its bankruptcy laws which states that up to three months prior to an institution going insolvent, or into liquidation, any monies which have been withdrawn have to be returned. The premise is that up to that time the entities withdrawing such monies may have had notice of the imminent insolvency of the institution. Such funds can be recovered only if the withdrawers can prove that the withdrawals were made on the basis of no previous knowledge, so this whole business of preferred creditors is limited. Any transaction within three months has to come back into the pool of funds which eventually will be liquidated.

While I give the Government credit for attempting to plug a hole, and for attempting to address the situation, I cannot stand here in good conscience and say that I will support this Bill. I said at the beginning that it was a conundrum or a paradox because it proposes to address a situation without really addressing it.

Over the weekend I did much soul searching and research. The situation of the Government reminds me of a quotation from Dr. Martin Luther King, that quintessential civil rights advocate and leader in the struggle for the down-trodden. He said, "The ultimate measure of man is not where he stands in the time of comfort and convenience, but where he stands in the time of challenge and controversy." He went on to say that a true neighbour would "risk his position, his prestige and even his life for the welfare of a friend." That quotation is as relevant today as it was during the era in which it was authored. The Government's position regarding this Bill and the situation of depositors of First Cayman Bank is that the Government should first try to address that situation. Therefore, I cannot stand here today in good conscience, claiming that I am sensible, and vote for this Bill knowing full well that up to Friday there was a demonstration before these hallowed halls by depositors of First Cayman Bank because they have lost their money; because up to this point they have no reasonable hope that the Government is ever going to address this situation.

Mr. Speaker, it is like Paul in the Acts of the Apostles when he appeared before Felix. When he related his story, "Almost, thou persuadest me." Almost the Government persuades me—but not quite. I am not going to vote for this Bill because the Government has left out the people who are most affected. There may never be another bank failure in the Cayman Islands, but we have before us 3,000 depositors who are out in the cold. Enough said.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause) If not, would the mover care to exercise his right of reply? The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I have taken note of the various comments offered on this Bill. It is true that hindsight is 20/20. Given the sophistication of the Cayman Islands as a financial centre and the fact that we have so many banks resident and doing business here, a Bill such as the one now under review by the Legislative Assembly should have been brought a long time ago. But, as the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town just pointed out, it was in the 1980s that the United States looked to provide protection for depositors after several major events had taken place.

Late though this Bill may be, it is being brought at this time. It is one that is being recommended to Honourable Members of the Legislative Assembly. The Government (and that includes me) is very much concerned about what took place at First Cayman Bank. We know the matter is presently before the courts. It is being adjudicated, going through that process. There are various views that can be offered at this time, but as one can appreciate, I will have to be very cautious with the views advanced at this time.

We do know, however, that the substantive owners of that bank are persons of 'deep pocket.' We are hoping that eventually they will be reached to assist in putting in place the funds to assist the persons affected by First Cayman Bank. The Government is very much aware that it is not easy for one to lose one's life savings. But as I indicated in an earlier presentation, this is one that, although it precipitated this Bill coming into being, will have to be isolated and addressed. Although it is connected in circumstance, it is one which is difficult to envisage how the Bill would have allowed for retroactivity.

This is one of those instances in which we would have liked to find a way to address the issue of First Cayman Bank, tying it into the current legislation before the House. However, this is not possible because the liquidation is now before the court. We have liquidators who have been appointed and are currently reviewing the affairs of First Cayman Bank. They are reporting to the courts.

We have looked at various means by which a protection scheme could have been put in place. This was deemed to be the most viable, one that gives protection. Had this scheme been in place, a certain amount of money would have been guaranteed to all the depositors of First Cayman Bank. Without going into the legal process, up to a value of $20,000 would have been set aside for each depositor. This money would have been made available to them as quickly as the amount of cash available in the financial institution could have been ascertained. We know from the record that had this legislation been in place this would have been done quite comfortably from the available assets.

The Monetary Authority is reviewing other aspects of its operations as well. The other members of the board of directors (I have excluded myself from this subcommittee as Chairman of the Monetary Authority) are carrying out a review of its operations. They will look at the current legislation and the perceived or inherent problems within the operation of the Monetary Authority, and a recommendation will be made to the Government regarding what issues should be addressed.

It is hoped that this review will be finalised to make whatever changes to the legislation that should be considered at the first Meeting of the 1998 Session of the Legislative Assembly. This is to convey to Honourable Members that action is underway, looking at the structure of the Monetary Authority.

We have come a long way in our regulatory operations. About four or five years ago, we had a separate regulatory regime for banking and trusts, and one for insurance companies. Since that time, we have amalgamated both sections and put in place what was first known as the Financial Services Supervision Department. We introduced legislation to deal with the regulation of mutual funds. This has become a very big segment of the financial industry market as it now stands. This is another area that is being satisfactorily regulated by the Monetary Authority.

Apart from the Registrar General's Office that functions independently, specifically dealing with companies formation, all aspects of the operations of the financial industry now fall under the review process of the Monetary Authority. When the Monetary Authority was started, looking at the way the legislation was structured, certain aspects of it could have been addressed differently. It is unfortunate that we have had this recent experience with First Cayman Bank, suggesting that the autonomy of the Monetary Authority should be challenged. We are hoping that this will be addressed and that the year 1998 will be a time of audit, not only for the Monetary Authority, but also for all aspects of the regulations of the financial industry.

The contingency plan referred to, set out by the National Audit Office, has made us aware that the Government of Bermuda (or the Monetary Authority) has carried out a review of its financial sector. It has looked at what problems would arise if there is a major disaster within the financial sector. We know that the Cayman Islands will be putting in place a ten-year national plan. Quite recently, the Governor met with managing partners of various auditing firms. I was in attendance at that meeting, along with the Auditor General. This was to allow them to review the terms of reference and determine what input they would have in that plan. I am sure the Governor will be talking more about that plan when he gives his Throne Speech in the early part of next year, but it will look at contingent liabilities, because that will be a very salient segment of that plan.

We are hoping to address this and to have a plan in place that looks at all major sectors of the economy—financial services, the tourism sector—and also at the possible eventualities. What is more important, I am hoping that a separate review of the financial industry will be carried out. We know things can go wrong and there is the possibility for everything to go wrong. But there is a very high probability that one can pre-empt such things that may go wrong by careful and prudent management, to put in place corrective measures to avoid such eventualities.

We have to tie a number of variables together to achieve this. We have a financial industry that has operated very successfully over the years. We have many persons in the community to whom we must give credit. I had to congratulate Sir Vassel [Johnson] when I saw him at a Monetary Authority board meeting on Saturday for pioneering what we have today in terms of a very successful financial industry.

When we look at the failures that have occurred over the past three decades, they have been minimal in comparison to other financial centres. When I say minimal, I am not downplaying the impact on those persons affected, especially when the failure of a bank occurs in the local community. The size or the number of failures that have occurred over the years does not matter, but who is affected. If a person loses $1,000, $3,000, $5,000 or $15,000 in a failed institution, that person does not want to hear about statistics. This person wants to hear how he or she will be assisted.

Looking at the 'macro' approach to the financial industry, we at Governmental level and as a society can be very proud of the way our financial industry has been managed. We know that financial transactions are becoming more and more complex. We know that we are being asked to look at financial transactions that often challenge the competence of the regulators, of even those individuals offering such services. When I say this, I am thinking of complex issues such as derivatives. But I must say that we are quite happy to report that we have on hand, even if outside our regulatory regime, persons with the desired competence within the community, and also members of the Government Private Sector Consultative Committee, with the necessary expertise to assist the Government, and to identify the type of expertise that should be brought on board to regulate such activities.

That being said, we have had a very senior officer who has come on board. His last assignment was on the Isle of Man. He is now heading the banking section. He comes with good expertise in the regulation of collective investment schemes. We have a managing director of the Monetary Authority who is highly qualified academically and he was also a very senior person in the Canadian Central Bank with responsibility for the regulation of banks. All banks in Canada, through their regulatory process, were reporting to this officer.

Again, when we look at the insurance sector, we have two very senior officers who have come on board. Not only are they able regulators, but we have seen the growth taking place in the insurance sector—not only growth in terms of numbers, but good quality business coming to Cayman.

We have to look very carefully at the structure of the Monetary Authority. We know that no institution will be perfect. We will not get rid of all of the imperfections, but this is an opportunity to look very carefully. I do not take anything said by any Member who spoke on this Bill as a form of criticism. In fact, I have accepted all the views shared as constructive. Every Member of this Honourable House is very concerned that our financial industry continue to be recognised as a leading one. Wherever there is a need for corrective action to strengthen any aspect of it, this should be done. We should continue to review our regulatory process.

At this time, I would like to thank you very much, Mr. Speaker.

THE INSURANCE (AMENDMENT) (LIABILITIES SUPPORT) BILL, 1997

The Clerk: The Insurance (Amendment) (Liabilities Support) Bill, 1997.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I beg to move the second reading of a Bill entitled, A Bill for a Law to Amend the Insurance Law (1995 Revision); to Provide that the Domestic liabilities of Insurers are Supported by Assets; and for Incidental and Connected Purposes.

The Government has always been concerned to ensure the adequate protection of insurance policy holders in the Islands who benefit from the protection afforded by all types of insurance policies, including life assurance policies. The Insurance Law (1995 Revision), Clause 7, provides that licensed insurers carrying on domestic business may be required to hold in the Islands such cash, securities and investments as will be sufficient to match their current liabilities and their life and annuity funds.

This provision of the Insurance Law has, to date, not been implemented. The Monetary Authority has in the past, and indeed continues to, monitor the position of every insurance company operating in the Islands. It is clear that not all companies have in the past retained sufficient funds domestically to cover their local liabilities. The Government now wishes to implement the provisions of clause 7 of the Insurance Law and in so doing to bring the provisions of that clause in line with modern international insurance practices.

The terminology used in the Bill is somewhat technical in nature and refers to specific accounting reserves held by insurance companies in respect of both general (that is property and casualty business, including motor or life) and annuity business. Clause 3(1)(b) has four definitions of earned premium reserve. This was explained earlier to Members when the Bill was going through a preliminary discussion. The second one is 'outstanding claim reserves'; the third is 'reserve for claim incurred but not reported'; and the fourth is 'expired risk reserve.'

To quickly go back over these definitions, (1) 'Unearned premium reserve' is the reserve for unearned premiums which represents the proportion of premiums relating to periods of insurance subsequent to the balance sheet date. (2) 'Outstanding claim reserves' comprises the estimated cost of claims incurred but not settled as at the balance sheet date. (3) 'Reserves for claims incurred in current year but not reported at balance sheet date'. (4) 'Unexpired risk reserves' is a provision made based on the information available as at the balance sheet date for any estimated future underwriting losses relating to unexpired risks.

I should now like to refer to clause 3(c). The object of this clause is to ensure that the Insurance Regulatory Authorities can maintain access, if necessary, to assets backing insurance liabilities. The Government believes this is necessary to retain sufficient control over those assets. However, clause 3(c) has been drafted to allow insurance companies operating locally as much flexibility as possible in the way in which they hold such assets. The Monetary Authority will at all times exercise diligence in the supervision of the requirements of clause 3(c) and will grant individual approval to each company operating in these Islands regarding the manner in which assets are held.

I commend this Bill to this Honourable House.

The Speaker: The question is the second reading of a Bill entitled The Insurance (Amendment) (Liabilities Support) Bill, 1997. It is now open for debate. (Pause)

THE PENSIONS (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1997

The Clerk: The Pensions (Amendment) Bill, 1997.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I beg to move the second reading of a Bill entitled The Pensions (Amendment) Bill, 1997.

This Bill seeks to amend the Pensions Law to achieve the following:

- 1) define "group employee" as applying to Caymanians;
- 2) expand the definition of "personable emoluments" to include acting allowance as set out in Clause 2 sub-clause (b);
- 3) introduce the 'prudent man' rule for investment purposes as set out in Clause 3;
- 4) allow Government's contribution to be varied by regulations and that Government employees who start their employment on or after 1st January 1998 transfer to any defined contribution scheme which may be introduced within a year of the commencement of their employment as set out in Clause 4; and
- 5) expand the Public Service Pension Fund investment options as set out in Clause 5.

A further change to the Law is considered necessary to define the term 'group employee' as applying to Caymanians only for the purpose of pension benefits. Non-Caymanian group employees and all other employees currently not participating in the Public Service Pension Plan will be addressed by the Pension Law Review Committee with the necessary provisions for such employees to be detailed in the Public Service Pensions Law, expected to be tabled during the March 1998 meeting of this Honourable House.

From time to time officers are appointed to acting positions for which they are paid an acting allowance. In some cases, these appointments are of a long-term nature, resulting in the payment of acting allowances over extensive periods of time. It is widely recognised within the Civil Service that this practice needs to be embodied in the Law, and can be achieved by expanding the definition of pensionable emoluments to include acting allowances.

Clause 3 provides for the Public Service Pensions Board as Trustees of the Public Service Pensions Fund to invest the fund in a prudent manner with the advice of the investment managers appointed to the Board. This clause also requires any future changes to the approved investment to be approved by at least two-thirds of the contributors, that is, employees, as an added protection to the beneficiaries of the fund.

Approved investments as proposed in the third Schedule of the Bill will allow the fund to improve its investment returns over the long term. This is in line with the recommendation of the fund's actuaries and in conjunction with the increase in contribution rates, if necessary, for the fund to become self-sustaining.

This, in essence, represents the amendments as set out in the Bill, and it is commended to Honourable Members.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled The Pension (Amendment) Bill be given a second reading. This is now open for debate.

If there is no debate, would the mover care to add anything further?

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Again, I thank Members for their tacit support.

GOVERNMENT MOTIONS

GOVERNMENT MOTION NO. 13/97

THE PUBLIC FINANCE AND AUDIT LAW (1997 REVISION) (ESTABLISHMENT OF A CAPITAL DEVELOPMENT FUND)

Hon. George A. McCarthy: This is one of the Motions that Honourable Members were advised would be presented as set out in the Budget document. Government Motion No. 13/97 seeks to establish a Capital Development Fund. It reads as follows:

“WHEREAS it is necessary to establish a capital development fund to ensure that appropriations received are kept separate from general revenue of the Islands and are expended on capital development projects;

“BE IT NOW RESOLVED -

"1)that a capital development fund be established in accordance with the powers contained in section 30 of the Public Finance and Audit Law (1997 Revision);

"2)that the Legislative Assembly or the Finance Committee may make appropriations to the fund from general revenues, borrowing or other funds of Government.

"3)that disbursements from the fund may only be made in accordance with resolutions made by the Finance Committee, and under the authority of the Financial Secretary, for the purpose of defraying expenditure incurred on capital development projects within the Islands;

"4)that if at the close of account for any financial year it is found that expenditure charged to the fund is less than the sum appropriated to the fund, the surplus shall be held in the fund for disbursement in future years; and

"5)that the Accountant-General shall prepare a statement of accounts for this fund as part of the Government's annual financial statements.”

The Speaker: Government Motion No. 13/97 has been duly moved. Does the Member wish to speak to it?

Hon. George A. McCarthy: As I said, this Honourable House was put on notice that this Motion would be coming. It is one of three as set out in the Budget document. The first is the Capital Development Fund, the second is the Environmental Protection Fund and the third is the Infrastructure Fund. All three are connected.

Turning to the Capital Development Fund, Government Motion No. 13/97, in accordance with section 1 of section 30 of the Public Finance and Audit Law (1997 Revision), approval by this Honourable House is being sought for the establishment of a Capital Development Fund. The purpose of this fund is to manage and control capital development projects within a separate fund which will record monies appropriated each year from recurrent revenue, borrowing or other funds, and all expenditures on individual capital projects.

In the 1998 Budget, this Honourable House was asked to vote on an overall sum of money for capital development as shown under Head 54—Capital Development, of approximately $28 million. This sum was analysed by sector and discussed in great detail in Finance Committee. The Government intends that details on the capital development projects will be presented to this Honourable House each year in a document as mentioned earlier which will be known as the Public Sector Investment Programme which, along with the Medium Term Financial Strategy will support the figures as set out in future budgets. This will allow the House to approve funding on a project-by-project basis and to vote an overall sum of money for capital development.

As indicated during the Budget Address, a Public Sector Investment Programme will also be a part of the documentation submitted. This document will take a three-year look ahead and feature those capital projects already approved and underway, plus any new projects proposed. Capital development projects will be analysed by sector and all projects over an agreed financial limit separately identified. Each year a public sector investment programme will be presented for approval by this House as part of the Budget so that the House can debate on the revisions or additions to the programme. Each capital development project will be expected to be contained within the approved financial limit and any request to increase this financial limit will require approval by this Honourable House.

When reference is made to the Medium Term Financial Strategy, as mentioned during the course of this meeting, the first such document will be tabled during this meeting. This will be available to Honourable Members. This document will have to be updated on an annual basis because it is a 'rolling' document. The previous year will be dropped, and it will take into account projects proposed for the current year and look two years ahead. This is how the document is intended to operate.

As mentioned earlier, the Capital Development Fund will focus attention on individual projects with their costs clearly identified rather than on the funding source. It was pointed out that rather than having a separate set of projects to be funded by local revenue, and another set funded by borrowing, it could be that those funded by borrowing could be implemented and those funded by local revenue, if they are not done during the course of the year, that money would be forfeited or returned to the surplus and deficit account.

The Capital Development Fund takes a different approach to this, in that the money from recurrent revenue will be the first to be used up and then funding for projects following once the general revenue portion has been used up, will then be met from borrowing.

If at the close of any financial year it is found that expenditure charged to the Capital Development Fund is less than the sum appropriated, the surplus shall not be surrendered but held in the fund for appropriation in future years. This will provide flexibility in the use of resources and timing of capital development projects.

The Accountant General shall prepare a separate statement of accounts for the Capital Development Fund as part of the Government's annual financial statements. This will be subject to examination and audit by the Auditor General in accordance with section 43 of the Public Finance and Audit Law (1997 Revision).

I have gone over the details that have already been provided to Members of this House as to how this fund will operate. I thought it would be useful to 'recap' for the benefit of supporting the Motion. Thank you.

The Speaker: Does any Member wish to speak? (Pause) If not, would the Mover like to add anything further? The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I thank Members for their support.

The Speaker: The question is Government Motion No. 13/97—The Public Finance and Audit Law (1997 revision) (Establishment of a Capital Development Fund). I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: GOVERNMENT MOTION NO 13/97—THE PUBLIC FINANCE AND AUDIT LAW (1997 REVISION) (ESTABLISHMENT OF A CAPITAL DEVELOPMENT FUND) PASSED.

The Speaker: Government Motion No. 14/97—The Public Finance and Audit Law (1997 Revision) and The Miscellaneous Provisions (Fees and Duties)(Temporary) Law, 1997 (Environmental Protection Fund).

The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

GOVERNMENT MOTION NO. 14/97

THE PUBLIC FINANCE AND AUDIT LAW (1997 REVISION)

~and~

THE MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS (FEES AND DUTIES) (TEMPORARY) LAW, 1997 (ENVIRONMENTAL PROTECTION FUND)

Hon. George A. McCarthy: This Motion seeks to establish the fund known as the Environmental Protection Fund, and reads:

“WHEREAS under section 7 of the Miscellaneous Provisions (Fees and Duties) (Temporary) Law, 1997 environment protection fees are to be collected from passengers on vessels and aircraft;

“AND WHEREAS it is necessary to establish an environmental protection fund to ensure that the fees collected are kept separate from general revenue of the Islands and are expended to protect and preserve the environment of the Islands;

“BE IT NOW RESOLVED-

"1)that an environmental protection fund be established in accordance with the powers contained in section 30 of the Public Finance and Audit Law (1997 Revision);

"2)that all environmental protection fees collected under section 7 of the Miscellaneous Provisions (Fees and Duties) (Temporary) Law, 1997 shall be credited to the fund;

"3)that the Legislative Assembly or the Finance Committee may make additional appropriations to the fund from the general revenues, borrowing or other funds of Government;

"4)that disbursements from the fund may only be made in accordance with resolutions made by the Finance Committee, and under the authority of the Financial Secretary, for the purpose of defraying expenditure incurred in protection and preserving the environment of the Islands;

"5)that if at the close of account for any financial year it is found that expenditure charged to the fund is less than the sum appropriated to the fund, the surplus shall be held in the fund for disbursement in future years; and

"6)that the Accountant-General shall prepare a statement of accounts for this fund as part of the Government's annual financial statements."

As I mentioned earlier in presenting Government Motion No. 13/97, this is another of three funds envisaged to be established in the Estimates and also in the Budget Address. In accordance with subsection (1) of section 30 of the Public Finance and Audit Law (1997 Revision), approval is being sought for the establishment of an Environmental Protection Fund.

The purpose of the fund is to manage and control schemes to protect and preserve the environment of these Islands within a separate fund. The Environmental Protection Fund will record monies collected as Environmental Protection Fees under the amended section 7 of the Miscellaneous Provisions (Fees and Duties)(Temporary) Law, 1997. Establishment of this fund will enable monies to be set aside for specific environmental schemes.

I recommend the establishment of this fund to Honourable Members.

The Speaker: Government Motion No. 14/97 has been duly moved. Does any Member wish to speak? (Pause) If not. . . The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

In reading this Motion my contribution will be very short. I notice in the 'Resolved' section, number 4 says: "that disbursements from the fund may only be made in accordance with resolutions made by the Finance Committee, and under the authority of the Financial Secretary, for the purpose of defraying expenditure incurred in protecting and preserving the environment of the Islands. . . ."

In the Budget document presented to us for the financial year 1998, there is an amount of $2.04 million to be transferred to the Capital Development Fund. While this was before this Motion, it is now my opportunity to ask, how does the $2.04 million to be transferred from the Environmental Protection Fund to the Capital Development Fund relate to section 4 of the Government Motion? I think it is important that the Motion, as it calls for, is carried out. I would like an explanation from the Mover as to how the $2.04 million applies to defraying expenditure incurred in protecting and preserving the environment of the Cayman Islands.

MOMENT OF INTERRUPTION—4.30 PM

The Speaker: Before we go any further, it is now 4.30. If the House desires to continue on, I will entertain a motion for the suspension of Standing Order 10(2).

The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock.

The Speaker: The question is that this House do now adjourn until 10 o'clock Wednesday morning.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, in light of the fact that the Christmas season is fast approaching and we had taken the decision last week to go on until 6.00 in the afternoon, we could go until at least 5.00 this afternoon to allow us to clear off the business at hand. I am moving to proceed until 5.00 this afternoon.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, I would like to second that motion. I believe that it will not take very long for the mover of this Government Motion (No. 14/97) to clear up that particular point raised by the First Elected Member for George Town. In view of the points raised by the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, I suggest that we agree to continue until 5.00 so that we can clear up the Government Motion before the House.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush : Mr. Speaker, I have no problem whichever way we go; however, there are two Motions now before the House, which is not allowed. The Leader of Government Business made a motion to adjourn, and the last motion was made by the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town and the Third Elected Member for George Town. There are two motions before the House and that cannot be allowed. But whichever way it goes, I am willing.

The Speaker: The question is that the House do adjourn until 10.00 tomorrow morning. Those in favour, please say Aye. . . . Those against, No.

AYES AND NOES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can we have a division, please?

The Speaker: Madam Clerk, please call a division.

The Speaker: Prayers by the First Elected Member for George Town.

PRAYERS

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Let us Pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived: We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Let us say the Lord's prayer together: Our Father who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done in earth as it is in Heaven; Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us; and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, for ever and ever, Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed.

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: We have apologies from the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture; from the First Elected Member for West Bay, who will be arriving late; from the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay, who is not well; from the Fourth Elected Member for George Town, who will be arriving late; and from the Third Elected Member for George Town, who is off the Island.

At this time I recognise the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

STATEMENT BY MEMBER/MINISTER OF GOVERNMENT

WEST BAY ROAD JAM-UP

Hon. John B. McLean: I would like to render apologies on behalf of the Public Works Department and my Ministry for the work that is being carried out on the West Bay Road. I would like to ask that employers here in George Town be tolerant with their employees, understanding that the delay this morning was not their fault in most cases. We urgently need the Harquail Bypass, and we have been rushing the project in order to have it ready by the Christmas season. We are presently trying to tie it into the main road.

I would like to say that, as with any inconvenience, at a later date we will find some convenience with this. It is our belief that once this is in place the traffic to and from George Town and West Bay will be flowing much better than at present.

Once again, I would like for employers, especially, to understand that it was a delay in regard to road works this morning. I also received a lot of complaints from persons with cellular phones and we are trying to do our best to speed this up. It is something we have to do the right way or it will definitely not work.

The Speaker: Presentation of Papers and Reports. The Community College of the Cayman Islands Annual Report 1996/1997. The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

PRESENTATION OF PAPERS AND REPORTS

THE COMMUNITY COLLEGE OF THE CAYMAN ISLANDS ANNUAL REPORT 1996/1997

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I beg to lay on the Table of this Honourable House the Community College of the Cayman Islands Annual Report 1996/1997.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: What I say on this will also apply to the other paper, which is the financial statements. I am wondering if it would be better if I lay the second one and just speak on both. I think it would save time.

The Speaker: That will be fine.

FINANCIAL STATEMENTS OF THE COMMUNITY COLLEGE OF THE CAYMAN ISLANDS - 31ST DE-CEMBER, 1996 AND 1995

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: I beg to lay on the Table of this Honourable House the Financial Statements of the Community College of the Cayman Islands - 31st December, 1996 and 1995.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: The Community College has, especially over the past few years, been a very excellent example of the way an educational institution can be developed. It caters to the education of a very broad spectrum of people in the Cayman Islands. It covers not only people who wish to continue their education later on in life, but it deals with students coming out of school who wish to further their education.

The 1996 academic year was very significant in that we saw the introduction of the Associate Degree programme for the first time. We are now a fully comprehensive institution giving equal priority to academic, technical and vocational, professional, community service programmes and courses; in other words, we cover the full spectrum of education.

I would like to thank you, Mr. Speaker, and all Members of this Honourable House for joining me at the Community College and touring the campus, seeing the work going on there. It is good to see firsthand exactly what is going on. Members were able to get a much better feel for the efficient way in which the tuition at that college proceeds.

In August 1997 we were happy to welcome two Caymanians, Ms Juliette Johnson, who joined as the Head of Hospitality Studies Department, and Ms Julie Adams as Coordinator for Student Personal Services. We have seen expansion in several areas and the completion of the library.

The most significant developments during the last academic year were in the curriculum. In September 1996 the College offered seven full-time, one-year technical and vocational certificate programmes in: Auto Mechanics, Construction, Electronics, Electricity, Business Secretarial, Business Commercial, Hospitality Studies and Professional Cookery; and three part-time professional programmes in Accounting, Insurance and Banking; 'A' Levels in Economics, Geography, History, Chemistry, Physics, and Mathematics; and a wide variety of academic, technical, vocational, professional and leisure courses in their evening programme.

The College has been responsive to the changing needs of the Caymanian work-force and three new programmes, an Associate of Arts Degree in Condominium Management, a Certificate in Computer Applications, and a Certificate in Banking were developed and approved for introduction in September of this year. The College also saw the need for flexibility in the short-term course offerings and created two academic positions in computing and business studies. Also in September of 1997 the College began a wide variety of one- and two-day courses in Computing and short courses in Accounting, English and other business related areas.

The most significant innovation, however, was the introduction of Associate Degrees in 12 areas of specialisation in September 1996. This was, by far, the most demanding and challenging of the new offerings, not only because there was need for policies and procedures, but the syllabus for each of the 87 subjects had to be written, and resources acquired. The added responsibility was to ensure that these degrees were accepted by overseas institutions. I am happy to say that an agreement was signed first with the University of Tampa, which allows the transfer of up to 64 credits. The University of North London, England, has confirmed that they will consider applications from students of the College who have completed the Associate Degree programme. The University of Miami, the Florida Institute of Technology, the University of Colorado and Howard University have all confirmed that they will accept the Associate Degree from the Community College.

There are other institutions, such as Stetson University and University of South Florida, that have given permission to their students to take courses with the Community College with a transfer of credits. In addition, the United States Department of Veteran Affairs has approved the Community College as the centre for studies leading to Associate Degrees in computer studies. We do not foresee, but we expect that more and more colleges in the United States and United Kingdom will accept degrees from the Community College. There are articulation arrangements now with the University of the West Indies for the Associate Degree in physical science and this is ongoing.

As you know, Mr. Speaker, the Community College has for many years now carried programmes that assisted the people of the Cayman Islands in dealing with the continuation of their studies, be they academic, technical or vocational. Twenty-six programmes are offered and a wide variety of courses.

Since 1992 we have seen an annual increase in the number of part-time students enrolled at the College, and I am happy to say that in September 1997 more than 70% of those enrolled were Caymanians and more than 60% were female. The enrollment is also healthy in the Associate Degree programmes. In September this year, 78.8% of the 120 students enrolled in this area were Caymanian and the remainder are from 12 overseas countries. I merely state these statistics to show that the Community College is fulfilling a major role in the education of our Caymanian people.

It is a success. If all of my other Statutory Authorities (although I must say the Civil Aviation Authority has been about as trouble free as this) were as trouble free and as carefully developed as the Community College then life would be much simpler.

The programme that the College now has with the certificate programmes is so structured that it requires students to be on campus for two and one-half days and employed for two and one-half days. This permits them to put time in work and in study. The other certificate programmes require persons to be on campus four days per week, with one day of work experience attachment.

I would like to thank the Principal of the Community College, the Board of Governors of the College and the Chairman. I also would like to thank the staff at the Community College and the staff at my Ministry who deal specifically with this. I would like to thank my Permanent Secretary and Mr. Michael Carter, the senior assistant PS who deals with Education generally, for all the hard work they have put in, thus making the Community College a very successful College which is filling a role so important to Caymanians. That role is complementary to and in many ways compatible with the International College of the Cayman Islands which also fulfills a very important role in education, as does the Law School with specialised training for lawyers and persons earning diplomas in Law for other professions.

Education in Cayman, with the Community College, International College of the Cayman Islands (ICCI), and the Law School, covers a broad spectrum and gives a wide opportunity for Caymanians to train and move upward. My one plea is for Caymanians to take advantage of higher education in Cayman and to work towards higher qualifications which will put them in a key position to advance upward in whatever area of work they may choose. We are never too old to increase our education, to widen it, to look at further horizons. One thing I believe bears as true as it did when an elderly gentleman said to me many years ago is that time spent in education is time that is best spent. I believe that despite the fact that there is less and less time as these islands advance, I would ask that Caymanians make every effort. . . and I know that the many companies here assist their staff with education. I ask them to please take advantage of higher education in Cayman and abroad and use their time well to further educate themselves.

I am very proud that I spent some nine years in higher education. I encourage others to think of the qualifications they need to move into key positions in business and industry in this country.

I would like to thank the Principal, the Chairman and the Board of Governors of the Community College for a job well done and ask them to keep up the good work. I ask Members of this Honourable House to continue to support the Community College in its endeavour to achieve more and higher education in relation to Caymanians and the people of these islands.

The Speaker: Civil Aviation Authority of the Cayman Islands Annual Report 1995. The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

CIVIL AVIATION AUTHORITY OF THE CAYMAN ISLANDS ANNUAL REPORT 1995

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I beg to lay on the Table of this Honourable House the Civil Aviation Authority of the Cayman Islands Annual Report 1995.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, 1995 proved to be a year of sufficient change at the Civil Aviation Authority, including changes in both the chairmanship and management of the organisation. Our first Caymanian Director, Mr. Sheldon Hislop, retired and was succeeded by a new Caymanian Director, Mr. Richard Smith.

There were other personnel changes, including the appointment of a much needed Financial Controller and a full-time Air Worthiness Operations Officer. Air Traffic control took a step forward in 1995. The CAA successfully acquired and installed a new Air Traffic Control Communications Switching System. The new equipment is in line with advanced technological developments in the field. This will allow for more efficient air traffic control operation.

Aircraft movements handled by the Air Traffic Control Unit in Grand Cayman increased by 12% while aircraft movement handled by Cayman Brac saw a slight decrease. This was due to the change in Island Air Ltd.'s operations, with direct service to Little Cayman rather than shuttling across. It put direct service to both Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

The flights at both airports remain at a fairly high level. Passenger movement continued in an upward trend. As in the previous period reflecting higher demand from European and North American regional destinations, British Airways and Caledonian started a scheduled charter service. The combination of scheduled and chartered flights gave rise to a 6% increase. A total of 802,798 international passengers were handled and international freight increased by 2.5%. Domestically, 52,800 passengers were handled between Cayman Airways and Island Air which was an increase of 5% over the 1994 figures.

Plans for extending the Arrival and Departure Halls were drawn up and, as we know, have been completed. This has assisted congestion during peak hours. In 1995 the CAA contributed $2 million to Government and turned a profit of over $800,000.

I would like to thank the past Director of the Civil Aviation Authority, and the present Director especially for his work, as well as the members of the Civil Aviation Authority who have worked hard to keep the Civil Aviation Authority as a top Authority in the Caribbean and in the world. They have worked efficiently with the staff. I would also like to thank the staff at the Civil Aviation Authority and my Ministry, especially Miss Amy McLaughlin who deals with this part of my Ministry's work.

As you know, Mr. Speaker, this culminated in the Civil Aviation Authority being granted a number one category —being the first in the Caribbean where the FAA, the US Federal Authority, the Department of Transport in the United Kingdom, and the International Air Transport Association accepted that the standards were that high. We were the first Caribbean country to be awarded a category one certificate, which means there are no restrictions whatsoever, and that the safety of the operations of the Civil Aviation Authority are of the highest standard required around the world.

Mr. Speaker, this Authority has been run efficiently. It is very aware of the heavy responsibility that rests on the shoulders of the Director of Civil Aviation, as well as the Civil Aviation Authority, to ensure safety—and safety is first among them. When that has been tested internationally, and we have been granted the category one, Mr. Speaker, it says a lot for the work of the Civil Aviation Authority. I am very proud to know that, as was the past Director, the present Director is a Caymanian. It shows that the potential for Caymanians to rise to the top is there, but it takes hard work and continued education. It takes sacrifice, which comes with being at the top. So I am very happy, Mr. Speaker, to lay this Report on the Table for another successful year at the Civil Aviation Authority.

The Speaker: The First Interim Report of the Select Committee of the whole House on Immigration Law, The Local Companies (Control) Law, and The Trade and Business (Licensing) Law. The Honourable Second Official Member.

THE FIRST INTERIM REPORT OF THE SELECT COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE HOUSE ON THE IMMIGRATION LAW, THE LOCAL COMPANIES (CONTROL) LAW, AND THE TRADE AND BUSINESS (LICENSING) LAW

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I beg to lay on the Table of this Honourable House the First Interim Report of the Select Committee of the whole House on The Immigration Law, 1992, The Local Companies (Control) Law, (1995 Revision), and The Trade and Business (Licensing) Law, (1996 Revision).

The Speaker: So ordered.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. This Select Committee was established by the Legislative Assembly on the 21st of April of this year with the passing of Government Motion No. 1/97, moved by the Honourable First Official Member responsible for the Portfolio of Internal and External Affairs. The Motion reads as follows:

“WHEREAS there is considerable inter-relationship between the Immigration Law, 1992, the Local Companies (Control) Law (1995 Revision) and the Trade and Business (Licensing) Law (1996 Revision);

“AND WHEREAS there has been considerable passage of time since these Laws were enacted or substantially amended;

“AND WHEREAS a Select Committee entitled ‘Select Committee (of Elected Members) Control of Local Businesses’ made certain recommendations in its final Report to this Honourable House;

“BE IT NOW THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT the Immigration Law, 1992, the Local Companies (Control) Law (1995 Revision) and the Trade and Business (Licensing) Law (1996 Revision) be referred to a Select Committee of the whole House, without prejudice to the final Report of the Select Committee (of Elected Members) Control of Local Businesses, for review to formulate principles in accordance with which specific amendments to these and any other relevant laws may be drafted and brought to this Honourable House by the Honourable First Official Member;

“AND BE IT NOW THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT, in considering the matter, the Select Committee seek input from the public.”

Mr. Speaker, you appointed me to be the Chairman of that Committee, and as a Committee of the whole House, all Members of this Honourable House are Members. The Committee met four times during 1997, and its interim report, in accordance with Standing Order 74(1), states as follows:

“In accordance with the provisions of Standing Order 74(1), the Committee wishes to report that it has not yet concluded its work, but is in the process of developing a discussion paper which will focus on issues of priority concerns and importance in regard to the Immigration Law. The Committee, in the discussion paper, will endeavour to establish the major immigration concerns, whilst also providing the ramifications of the issues and possible solutions. This paper, once developed, will be published for the public to consider over a period of time, who will then be given the opportunity, within a time-frame, of making representations to the Committee, either orally or in writing.”

Mr. Speaker, the Committee recognises that this whole subject is a very important, complex, and sensitive subject, and for that reason decided to stimulate discussion by producing a discussion paper, which will be made public. That discussion paper is in its initial draft stage, and has been partially considered by the Committee, but there is still more work to be done on it. Once it has been refined, it will be given as much publicity as possible. It is intended to be a focal point to stimulate discussion, but in no way restricts that discussion merely to the subject matter of the paper. In other words, the public will be able to give input to the Committee on anything that relates to Immigration. It was felt that this discussion paper would provide a focal point, and will hopefully assist the public in giving input. Then it will be open to the members of the public who wish to let the Committee know their views, either in writing, or by making application to the Clerk of the Committee to give oral evidence. However, that will be properly advertised in the local press, and there will be ample opportunity, as I said, for public input which the Committee certainly seeks.

The Committee also decided to try to make this somewhat simplified, and will deal with the Immigration Law first. So this discussion paper will confine itself to Immigration matters; and then will deal with the Local Companies (Control) Law and the Trade and Business (Licensing) Law in either separate discussion papers or possibly a discussion paper dealing with those two Laws. It was felt that to have one discussion paper dealing with all three Laws would only confuse rather than clarify matters.

I will continue with the printed report now. “The Committee urges all members of the public to play an active part in the Committee’s work, and it is hoped that the discussion paper will arouse much thought and debate, and solicit constructive representations to assist the Committee in arriving at sound recommendations on what will perhaps be quite sensitive and moral issues. It is also anticipated that a discussion paper in regard to the Local Companies (Control) Law (1995 Revision) and the Trade and Business (Licensing) Law (1996 Revision) will also be developed and published for public input as well.”

Mr. Speaker, I would also say that the Committee will be recommending its work as soon as possible in 1998, with a view to this discussion paper being made public during the course of 1998. Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The First Interim Report on the Select Committee of the Whole House on the Standing Orders (1997 Revision). The Honourable First Official Member.

THE FIRST INTERIM REPORT ON THE SELECT COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE HOUSE ON THE STANDING ORDERS (1997 REVISION)

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I beg to lay on the Table of this Honourable House the First Interim Report of the Select Committee of the Whole House on the Legislative Assembly Standing Orders (1997 Revision).

The Speaker: So ordered. Do you wish to speak to it?

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Select Committee of the Legislative Assembly Standing Orders (1997 Revision) was established by the Legislative Assembly on the 19th day of June of this year, with the passing of Government Motion 9/97, moved by myself. The Motion read:

“WHEREAS it is many years since there has been a general review of the Standing Orders of this Honourable House and it is now desirable that this should be undertaken (subject always to the provisions of the Cayman Islands Royal Instructions, 1972, and of the Cayman Islands (Constitution) Order, 1972, as amended);

“NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED that this Honourable House shall review its Standing Orders and make such amendments as it deems fit.”

In accordance with the provision of Standing Order 78(2), the Committee consisted of the whole House, and I was appointed Chairman. Thus far the Committee has held one meeting. With this interim report the Committee, in accordance with the provisions of Standing Order 74(1), wishes to report that it has not yet concluded the matter of reviewing the Standing Orders and wishes to advise that the work of the Committee continues.

With that, I simply wish to state that the Committee will continue its work early next year and we will work as expeditiously as possible.

The Speaker: First Interim Report of the Select Committee (of the whole House) on the Elections Law (1995 Revision). The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

FIRST INTERIM REPORT OF THE SELECT COMMITTEE (OF THE WHOLE HOUSE) ON THE ELECTIONS LAW (1995 REVISION)

Hon. James M. Ryan: I beg to lay on the Table of this Honourable House First Interim Report of the Select Committee (of the whole House) on the Elections Law (1995 Revision).

The Speaker: So ordered.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Like the earlier Select Committee, this Select Committee (of the whole House) on the Elections Law (1995 Revision) was established by the Legislative Assembly on 21st April, 1997, with the passing of Government Motion No. 2/97, moved by myself. The Motion reads as follows:

“WHEREAS there has been a considerable passage of time since the Elections Law was enacted;

“BE IT NOW THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT the Elections Law (1995 Revision) be referred to a Select Committee of the whole House for review and for it to formulate principles in accordance with which specific amendments to this and any other relevant laws may be drafted and brought to this Honourable House by the Honourable First Official Member.”

In accordance with Standing Order 72 you, Mr. Speaker, nominated me to serve as Chairman of this Committee of the Whole House. Thus far the Committee has held one meeting. In accordance with the provision of Standing Order 74(1), the Committee wishes to report that it has not yet concluded the matter of reviewing the Elections Law and wishes to advise that the work of the Committee continues. We will resume in early 1998.

The Speaker: Annual Report of the Water Authority of the Cayman Islands for 1996. The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE WATER AUTHORITY OF THE CAYMAN ISLANDS FOR 1996

Hon. John B. McLean: I beg to lay on the Table of this Honourable House, the Annual Report of the Water Authority of the Cayman Islands for 1996. As this was under the Chairmanship of another Minister, I do not care to speak to it.

The Speaker: So ordered.

The Financial Statements of the Port Authority of the Cayman Islands - December 31st 1996 and 1995. The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

THE FINANCIAL STATEMENTS OF THE PORT AUTHORITY OF THE CAYMAN ISLANDS DECEMBER 31ST 1996 AND 1995

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I beg to lay upon the Table of this Honourable House the Financial Statements of the Port Authority of the Cayman Islands - December 31st 1996 and 1995.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: The year 1996 saw the Port Authority earning income of approximately $6.8 million with expenditure of $5.1 million, and a net income for the year of approximately $1.7 million. In that year the Port Authority contributed to the Government's general revenue approximately $.5 million.

It is fair to point out that these Financial Statements cover two Port operations, one in Grand Cayman and the other in Cayman Brac. When looking at Cayman Brac, the total income for 1996 was $246,700 with operating expenses of $412,000, thus sustaining a loss of $165,000. I must say that the revenue is increasing in relation to the total operating expense, and we hope to see in the not-too-distant future a break-even period for Cayman Brac.

I think Members of the Legislative Assembly and the public realise that the funding for the Brac operation is done from the Grand Cayman Port. Over a period of time the funding is in the area of $2.7 million (I cannot locate the page at the moment).

We recently celebrated the 20th Anniversary of the Port Authority, and I believe the public was well informed by the supplement in the Caymanian Compass together with the special documentary which was aired on Cayman 27 Television. At this point I will take my seat, but before doing so I wish to compliment the members of the Port Authority Board, management and staff for the excellent work done over the years, most recently in 1996 and 1997.

The Speaker: The Traffic (Seat Belts) Regulations 1997. The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

THE TRAFFIC (SEAT BELTS) REGULATIONS 1997

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: In accordance with section 113 of the Traffic Law, I beg to lay on the Table of this Honourable House The Traffic (Seat Belts) Regulations 1997.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I first have to say that the earlier version of this regulation circulated some days ago has been superseded by the regulation circulated this morning. There was a small technical point which required some amendment.

I know that members of the public have for a number of years been wishing for the Government to pass regulations to cause the wearing of seat belts to be mandatory with the specific purpose of the passenger's safety. I believe that this regulation could not come at a better time. I realise that the Christmas season is upon us, and perhaps we will not get it gazetted in time to come into force before that day, but I believe that it is in the best interest of the public—residents and visitors alike—to have a regulation requiring seat belts to be worn.

I am grateful for all of the support and input given to me by all Members of this Honourable House and the public, and I thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: Government Business, Bills, Suspension of Standing Order 46 to enable the Planning (Amendment) (Advertisement Control) Bill, 1997, to be taken. The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

BILLS

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 46

Hon. Truman M. Boddin: Mr. Speaker, I beg to move the suspension of Standing Order 46 to enable us to take the Planning (Amendment) (Advertisement Control) Bill, 1997.

The Speaker: The question is the suspension of Standing Order 46 to enable us to take the Planning (Amendment) (Advertisement Control) Bill, 1997. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED. STANDING ORDER 46 SUSPENDED TO ENABLE THE PLANNING (AMENDMENT) (ADVERTISEMENT CONTROL) BILL, 1997, TO BE TAKEN.

The Speaker: First Reading.

FIRST READINGS

THE PLANNING (AMENDMENT) (ADVERTISEMENT CONTROL) BILL, 1997

Clerk: The Planning (Amendment) (Advertisement Control) Bill, 1997.

The Speaker: The Bill is deemed to have been read a first time and set down for Second Reading.
Second Reading.

SECOND READINGS

NATIONAL PENSIONS (SUSPENSION) BILL, 1997

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: I beg to move the second reading of a Bill for a Law to suspend the operation of the National Pensions Law, 1996, and for incidental and connected purposes.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: This short, yet important, Bill seeks to suspend the operation of the National Pensions Law, 1996 (which came into force on 1st July, 1997), until the suspension is lifted by an order made by the Governor in Council. A period of suspension is necessary to allow further time for employers to prepare for the introduction of the secondary legislation and for the Government administrative arrangements to be completed.

At this time I would also like to give notice that I will be seeking to move an amendment to the Bill which will set a specified date in a substantive provision of the Bill.

Members of the. . .

The Speaker: May I interrupt you for just a minute?

I should say that under Standing Order 52(2) I have given permission to waive the required time. Please continue.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Members of the public are aware that the National Pensions Law, 1996, was passed in this Legislative Assembly in July 1996. The legislative package came about largely as a result of the Ministry's initiative to implement Government's policy on this important subject. It was done largely through the work of the National Pensions Plan Advisory Committee established in June 1994, which submitted its report in August of 1995.

The entire initiative was indeed an historic one in the sense that it involved a very broad array of individuals, professionals and trade organisations, as well as local and international expertise. Overall, there was a significant amount of public consultation which was done in a spirit of genuine partnership with a view to developing a national system which was, first of all, workable, acceptable and beneficial for all employees and employers in the Cayman Islands.

In order to allow for sufficient time to conclude all pending matters such as approval of the numerous regulations, appointment of the Superintendent of the National Pensions Board, registration of the Pensions Plans, Government adopted with the Ministry at the time that there would be a grace period of six months which would actually conclude at the end of December. This general extension was done under advice that it could have been accommodated under section 6(2) of the Law. The extension was well received by the employers and providers who were all affected by this Law.

Section 95, subsections (1) and (2) of the National Pensions Law dealing with the commencement allowed for the staggering in of different provisions of the Law which was deemed expedient for the orderly implementation of the provisions for the purposes of this Law. However, in the Commencement Order no such conditions were adopted.

It is felt that all the unfinished business could have been completed by the Ministry, but for whatever reason it is still outstanding. I am sure that Members will appreciate that I am a new Minister and I am speaking as I found it.

There were a number of delays with the following aspects which were crucial to the completion of this matter:

- 1) There were delays in securing contractual arrangements for the technical assistance and the review of the regulations and the drafting of the actuarial valuation for the regulations.
- 2) There were delays in securing authorisation for the lease of office premises. That, I am happy to say, has been put in place since I have been in the Ministry. So there is a very genuine commitment despite the Marl Road rumours.
- 3) There were delays in the recruitment process for the important post of Superintendent and for the Administrative Officer. Again, since taking the Ministry, my PS has attended the United Kingdom for the short-listing and interviewing of such persons. That shows that the commitment is there by this Minister and the Government as a whole.
- 4) There were also delays in the selection and appointment of members to the National Pension Board. Together with the superintendent of Pensions and the appointment of this Board (which is quite an important Board). . . if the Law went into force on 1st January, there would not be a regulatory body in place. I am sure that Members are aware of the legal ramifications of the same.

These delays caused, what are in my humble and respectful submission, valid reasons for what seemed to be a generous period between the passage of the Law and the enforcement to be deemed insufficient. Additionally, due to the state of implementation of the said legislation, employers who are not offering or subscribing to a pensions plan may now technically be in contravention of the Law. While these parties may not necessarily be at fault they could, by their ignorance or otherwise, technically be liable to the penalties as stipulated in section 4(3) of the Law, or other penalties contained therein.

Everyone is aware that from September until fairly recently Executive Council was significantly preoccupied with First Cayman Bank and other imminent matters. These heavy commitments did not leave much flexibility to deal with these complex matters. Having read it several times, even as an attorney, I can say that there are complex matters, and may no one attempt to fool the public in this regard.

It is also obvious that the change in the Ministers is also another important consideration in all of this. At present there are deferred matters that have not yet been dealt with on Executive Council's agenda. I should say at this juncture that it seems somewhat unreasonable to expect the new Minister to collate and bring this comprehensive and complex legislation, seeing that it should have been brought from September 1. Perhaps those who are now opposing it can answer those questions when they stand upon this Honourable floor.

Due to the factors as outlined herein, the Commencement Order was approved by Executive Council and the grace period was put in place for the commencement on 1st January, 1998. After very careful consideration it was felt prudent to bring this Bill seeking a suspension of the Commencement Order. It is the intention of this Ministry and the entire Government to bring the requisite legislation at the very next meeting of this Honourable House, being the March meeting, with the regulations to follow thereafter.

My Ministry has submitted the Bill to the Legislative Assembly for circulation, and all Honourable Members should be in possession of the same by this time. The Bill, as stated, is a Bill for a Law to suspend the operation of the National Pensions Law, 1996, to allow further time for employers to prepare for the introduction of the legislation and for Government's administrative arrangements to be finalised so as to be fully prepared to administer the Law.

On behalf of the Government, I sincerely apologise for any inconvenience this delay has or will cause employees, employers and prospective approved providers. I trust that the enthusiasm and partnership of everyone will remain in tact, and that in the very near future we can have this long overdue initiative fully implemented.

To those employers who have been pro-active in upgrading their plans, or who are now subscribing to a new plan which complies with the Law, I urge you to continue with your contributions. I also urge all others to continue to prepare early so as to be in compliance with the Law when its new commencement date comes into force, which is anticipated to be 1st June, 1998, if passed.

In anticipation of Members' support, I thank each one for their cooperation in this matter, and I trust that they will agree with the Government that at this stage there was no other practical and reasonable option available to us. I look forward to their contributions at which time I will have more to add in my response.

Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled, The National Pensions (Suspension) Bill, 1997, be given a second reading. It is now open for debate.

The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: The National Pensions (Suspension) Bill, 1997, raises several important matters and poses serious questions with regard to the preparedness of the Government, and its political will to implement a measure that has been greatly debated, discussed, long overdue, and now I can add long accepted.

The history of the idea of a national pension in this country has been mooted by many persons in these hallowed Chambers. Certainly, one can recall the efforts of what the National Team Government likes to describe as the "previous Government" and the debate surrounding the efforts of the former Minister to get some form of pension in the country.

Following those efforts (which for one reason or the other did not come to fruition), when the National Team took over there was a great national hullabaloo when the idea of national pensions was proposed by the former Minister, the First Elected Member for West Bay. It is accurate to describe the state of affairs of the country as being thrown into flux. There were many camps—some vehemently and vociferously in favour, some vehemently and vociferously opposed. Time and events, however, mellowed the Opposition into a kind of tacit acceptance. It is safe to say that up to this point the country had been lulled into some expectation that the Bill would be coming into effect in January 1998.

This culminated in the efforts of many people, not least of which were the providers of the pensions, who sought to go around holding seminars and presentations, campaigning, soliciting and cajoling. Employers themselves played a significant role because they impressed upon their employees the necessity to protect themselves by subscribing to one of these plans.

This is a good point to interject that according to the press and common knowledge there were three providers in the forefront. It is safe to say that a good start had been made. There was the plan that the Chamber [of Commerce] had, then British Caymanian came on line, and the most recent one, called Silver Thatch, emanated from a joint effort between Coutts and MeesPierson. What I like about that is that the public had a choice. The competition was good and the providers took a responsible attitude. I have my bias, and have been quite contentedly enrolled in a plan by one of these providers for some time, prior to the legislation coming into effect. I also followed the progress of the competitors and was satisfied to know that they offered what was, according to the Law, a reasonable plan.

We have to consider that people in this part of the world are not really disciplined or accustomed to saving money for the distant future. Not that we lack the capacity to discern the distant future, but partly because of the pressures of living and, I suppose, exposure to television and consumerism, we often fall into the temptation of tucking money away in a bank account. This is good, but the weakness is that it is too easily accessible once we put it into a savings account, or a current account, or even worse, a checking account. I think it is nationally recognised that there is a necessity to set aside for the long term in a more permanent way. That is the strong point of pension plans and that is what all of these plans allow to be done.

I also received many complaints when it was announced that the Pension Plan Law was going into effect about merchants raising prices in anticipation. Quite naturally so. There was, however, no corresponding raise in wages and, indeed, some establishments sought to explain that they were not in a position to give employees a raise because they were going to use that part of their contribution to the Pension Plan in lieu of a raise. What happened was that prices were raised but wages were not because employers told employees they were going to use what they would have given as a raise as their 5% contribution into the Pension Plan. There are those who are prepared to argue that that is legally wrong. I cannot take the legal argument, but I can certainly say that it seems to be a question of morality and may not be ethically in order. However, it was generally accepted. Efforts, for the most part, by employers and employees were well accepted.

For the Government to now delay—when they are so near to this becoming Law, and when the whole country has made preparation and provision and has generally accepted that this is a given. . . . I also noticed that on the initial Suspension Bill there was no time limit. The Government, realising its position of weakness and knowing it was going to be taken to task, was quick to bring an amendment taking on the 1 June, 1998.

While that may be some attempt to alleviate the concern, I say it is still not good enough. Any delay at this point must call into question the responsibility and political will of the Government to implement this. I smell a skunk! I think there is some ulterior motive. That motive, believe you me, Mr. Speaker, will not escape us for long because we have been searching and perusing, and we believe that we are upon it.

I have to ask: Were the providers consulted as to the kinds of effects this delay might have? I am glad to see that the Government Members are so interested and so concerned that they are studiously researching the Hansards. I guarantee you that by the time they have finished, they will have to research more than Hansards—they might even have to research the Bible!

I have to wonder if any input from the providers regarding this delay was sought. Why is that important? Because I happen to know that these providers (at least one of them) went to great lengths to stage an elaborate presentation. I understand from others that there was an element of cooperation among the providers which is scarce and seldom seen in the cut-throat business of finance, insurance and economics.

The point I wish to make is that delaying implementation at this point is going to put pressure on the providers. I have to ask if, after all the expense to which some of them have obviously gone to with presentations, seminars and re-routing and redistributing of staff, and so on and so forth, if there is not going to come a point where these people are going to say, 'Enough! We have expended enough money and do not see any visible return in sight. Before we sink any more money into what may well be an exercise which may not come to fruition, we will draw back.' Mr. Speaker, that is not impossible. I want to know if the Government has held any discussions with the providers to assure them that such a situation will not exist. I look forward with eager expectation to what the Minister will have to say in regard to this question.

I note the excuses, and I have to wonder when I group them together if there was not some implicit attempt to blame persons who previously held responsibility for the implementation of this. Quite frankly, I am surprised that the Government would attempt to have us believe that because all of the mechanisms were not in place this Law could not come into effect.

It was easy for the Government to appoint members to the National Pensions Board. We have a plethora of qualified and knowledgeable people. The Cayman Islands are a haven for lawyers, accounts, insurance people. To say that certain actuarial reports were not available is, again, not a good enough reason. Certainly, we had ample knowledge that these would have been necessary and preparations should have been made.

Regarding the post of Superintendent and Administrator, I understand from the Honourable Minister moving this Bill that certain people have gone to the United Kingdom to recruit for these posts. I have to ask if any attempts were made locally to recruit officers for these posts. We have to shed this habit of looking outside for everyone and everything without looking inside. We have to begin to practice what we so often preach about in these hallowed halls, and we have to first search among ourselves.

I just heard the Minister for Education make a plea (which we all support him in) for Caymanians to come forward and educate themselves in order to take advantage of the opportunities offered. We have to be sure that when our people do that, we, in positions of responsibility, take them the next step by exercising confidence and giving them the opportunities. I believe there were persons in this jurisdiction who could have handled the posts of Superintendent and Administrator of the Pensions Board.

I hope that there is no loss of interest with this delay. I understand from at least one provider that as the deadline was approaching there was a rush of persons to sign up into plans. That is not uncommon. That seems to be the nature of how we operate—we wait until the last possible minute to do something. My informant told me that the number of people signing up was more than encouraging. When this delay becomes common knowledge, that enthusiasm is going to wane—it will be like pouring cold water over burning coals.

Judging by the effort it took to drum up the enthusiasm in the first place. . . and I vividly recall the former Minister (now First Elected Member for West Bay) at a meeting at the Clarion. I recall the fire that gentleman took. He even had to remind some that they had to be either fish or fowl, they could not be both. Now, you are going to tell me that we are going to lose that momentum because of a group of jumbled excuses? We can find an excuse to delay anything. What we have to do is weigh whether it is better in the national interest to delay, or to implement. Who is prepared to go through this whole education and re-education effort, campaigning from district to district, Town Hall to Town Hall, hotel to hotel? I heard that people were budgeting and saying they had to take it easy because in January they were going to have to begin their National Pension contributions.

I brought a question to this House asking the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development about the inflationary effect. The answer was that it would be around 2.6%. We realise the delay is going to alter this. Let us hope that it alters it in our favour and that the inflationary effect will be less rather than more. You must also realise that you run the risk of it being more rather than less, compounding the situation.

I wonder on what else the Executive Council will blame their preoccupation with the affairs of First Cayman Bank? Any government must be prepared for certain contingencies. To say that they were preoccupied with the affairs of First Cayman Bank to such an extent they could do nothing else, is to say that the Government is one dimensional. Is that what they want to tell us—that they are one dimensional? There are those who argue—and I am one—that their handling of the problems with First Cayman Bank left much to be desired. If they are telling us that because they are one dimensional they could not deal with two things at one time, then I can understand.

I cannot see where the registration of pension plans should delay matters to this extent. I think, for the most part, that the providers already had certain mechanisms in place. I think the least the Government could have done was to have consulted with those providers to see how best this situation could have been rectified. Is it going to be one of these situations where the Government, again, unilaterally decrees something and then all the people, including the providers, have to tailor their operations accordingly? I do not believe, of all the reasons that I have heard, that I have heard one which is overwhelmingly convincing that this important matter should be delayed for another six months. Delay is dangerous in this case.

Let me say that if we do not get a pension plan in this country the people of this country will eventually have to face some form of taxation they do not have now. We come here screaming about the number of people who are seemingly unable to keep pace—the indigent, those who have marginal incomes and are not able to save enough to tide them over a rainy day. So let the Government beware. They have a serious obligation and a responsibility to not kill this plan.

Just a few days ago the First Elected Member for George Town and I were in the presence of a man who related to us the story of an old lady who is a dishwasher at one of the restaurants around here. She is in her twilight years. She had been enrolled in a pension plan for a few years and has at this point $16,000. While we know that $16,000 is not exactly a fortune, depending upon the life span of that old lady (and I hope she lives as long as Methuselah and Noah put together), that gives her dignity in her old age; she will not have to be an indigent begging on the street or depending on some relative who has responsibilities of their own. That is one of the primary reasons why we must get a pension plan in this country. I said that before when I spoke at length about pensions.

Cayman has so evolved that, unfortunately, the progeny cannot take financial and economic responsibility for their parents as they used to do, and want to do as has been the custom. All of us now have our own families and responsibilities—mortgages, car loans, telephone bills, other utility bills and school fees. The lifestyle of the Cayman Islands does not allow us to be as generous and charitable to our hardworking family members and parents who, so deservedly in many cases, need financial assistance from us. If we get this mechanism in place it will ease our moral and financial obligation.

The Speaker: Would this be a convenient time to take the luncheon suspension?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Yes, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: We will suspend until 2.15 PM

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.44 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.45 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Debate continues on the National Pensions (Suspension) Bill, 1997. The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, continuing.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, when we took the break for lunch, I was about to make the point that it is a rather awkward position for a new Minister to be in, having to come to the House and move the withdrawal of business which was, in essence, spawned in some controversy. One could almost draw the conclusion that one's colleagues were rather insensitive and inconsiderate. However, that is not my problem, that is the problem of the National Team. I will not be so presumptuous as to say any more on that.

I noted the Minister's sensitivity to the matter by the fact that she offered apologies for any inconvenience this delay may cause. I also noted with interest her plea beseeching employers to continue to be pro-active in the upgrading of their plans, and in the continuation of their responsibilities.

Mr. Speaker, it is a well known fact that I, like many other persons, held rather strong views regarding the implementation of pensions in the country. Indeed, there was a point at which I was very sceptical—one might even say cynical—about the exercise. However, being one who has always endeavoured to keep an open mind, I saw that the benefits of a pension scheme far outweighed any disadvantages. As time, debate and dialogue progressed I tailored my views, because I was convinced that in the long run the country needed something like this. I think, Mr. Speaker, if I might say so myself, it was a reasonable position to adopt, and is, perhaps, the position of many if not the majority. I think to recognise and be persuaded in the merits of something that one once held an opposing view on is a sign, Mr. Speaker, of intelligence and common sense, and certainly a sign that one is alive and thinking.

I continue to hold the view that the provision of pensions for our people is an excellent provision. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I have to express my concern over any delay. I might be prepared to consider delaying the implementation until March—a case which could have been made, I think, given some of the reasons outlined.

The notice of this motion coming to the House was moved by the Leader of Government Business, the Honourable Minister of Education and Aviation, even though the Honourable Minister who has responsibility for this matter was in the Chamber. Mr. Speaker, I can only hope that this was a matter of procedure. I also noticed that that Minister was researching the Hansards. Mr. Speaker, it is that Member's right and prerogative to search, but when that Minister searches he is usually looking for some kind of bogeyman.

The Speaker: Could I just interrupt the Member speaking for a minute? Would you repeat what you said about moving the motion?

Mr. Roy Bodden: I said that when notice of the motion came to the House, it was made by the Minister with responsibility for Education and Planning.

The Speaker: Not the actual moving of the motion.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Not the actual moving, no, Sir.

The Speaker: Thank you. Please continue.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I do not see the necessity for delay at this time. It is not in the best interests of what is desired. I will find it difficult to support this Bill.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush : Mr. Speaker, I want to apologise for being late today. I was stuck on West Bay Road. I left home at about 9.20 a.m., pulled off the road for about ten or fifteen minutes, and arrived here at twenty minutes to one. I am sorry I was not able to hear the Minister's explanation, but I read what she said in the Hansard.

The report of the National Pensions Advisory Committee was submitted to Executive Council in September of 1995, and I believe it is incumbent upon me to provide the House with some of the major highlights of the report, based on the extract from the report which was made public in early 1996. Because of what was said by my colleague, the Minister, I think the House needs to hear all of the matters pertaining to pensions—that is, from day one up to the time I left Executive Council. Perhaps this would not have been necessary, but what the Minister said could mislead the House into believing that there were delays on my part. The Minister said, "It is felt that all the unfinished business could have been completed by the Ministry, but for whatever reason, it is still outstanding." Mr. Speaker, there was another area left open for people to believe that the fault was deliberate or otherwise.

Mr. Speaker, in September 1985, I was lucky to have a Private Member's Motion passed by the Legislature. This asked Government to commission a study and report its findings on the feasibility of a contributory pension scheme for these Islands. "Since that time, there have been two proposals presented by Government, one in 1986-87 and another in 1990-91. These proposals were for a pension system which was, to a large extent, government-controlled, and social security in nature. These proposals were very unpopular, and after much debate and opposition from the public each proposal was shelved."

"As a result of this debate, much awareness has been fostered on the subject of pensions, and retirement planning generally, amongst the general public. However, in the absence of guidelines or legislation mandating pensions and specifying minimum standards, there has not been a significant quantitative improvement in the availability of pensions for today's working population. As years elapse, a greater number of Caymanians will reach retirement age; without adequate provision for their golden years these older citizens will become a burden on their families and on Government's social welfare purse."

Mr. Speaker, we do not need to stress the problem we have funding what we presently have, much less what will happen if this thing gets left out. What will happen to Government as far as caring for our old people is concerned?

“A number of pension plans are in existence—for the Public Sector and for several Private Sector employers. While the organisations and businesses who have had the foresight and social responsibility to offer these deferred benefits must be commended for so doing, we must also now accept that many of the plans have to be more closely regulated, and in some cases revamped, if they are to provide a meaningful retirement benefit for the contributors.

“There is minimal monitoring of these plans, and the provisions of these plans are wide-ranging and potentially problematic, for example, with regard to the Vesting period (that is, the length of time required for one to be eligible for retirement benefits); portability (keeping one’s benefits even though one may change an employer); control of the plan, investment guidelines for the fund, and protection of the accumulated funds and reserves.”

Government-operated social security schemes around the world have met with many insurmountable problems, such as underfunding of the ever-increasing benefits, and vague investment policies. We could go on adding to the list. Similarly, privately operated schemes have suffered from some of the same inadequacies, as well as problems associated with the lack of oversight and supervision by a regulatory agency operating under suitable legislation and regulations. Many countries have undergone a period of reform in their pension legislation and system so as to create more viable and accountable retirement benefit systems, and, simultaneously, to encourage greater commitment and participation by contributors, that is, employers and workers.

The Committee shared Government’s concern about the lack of pension provisions for working Caymanians, and those persons working in our Islands. And let me say this up front: There were people in Government (and probably still are today)—and not only in Government, but in the private sector—who did not want people on work permits to be covered. The Committee felt, and I shared the view, that all persons working here, with the exception of domestic helpers, should be covered. So the Committee agreed that the situation would not improve unless pensions were mandatory through legislation which applied to all workers in the Cayman Islands.

“The Committee concurr[ed] with Government’s sensitivity to the fact that any national pension legislation should be workable and acceptable to the people whom it seeks to assist. This is the basis on which that Committee tackled its work and submitted its report.”

The process assumed broad participation and consultation, together with dialogue conducted in an environment of openness, and, I believe I can say, good will. The Committee was hopeful that the life insurance industry and all other pension providers would assist with the smooth implementation of this initiative, by developing and marketing pension plans compatible with the proposed framework now in the Law. Mr. Speaker, I believe I can say that the entire business sector was galvanised into action over the past several months and was prepared to get moving. The Committee also urged that employers and other business and professional associations would be able to move in earnest towards offering suitable pension plans to their employees. As I said, that has happened.

In July 1994, the Governor-in-Council approved the appointment of the National Pensions Plan Advisory Committee. This Committee, comprising fourteen Members representing a broad cross-section of knowledge and expertise from the private and public sectors, began its work in October of 1994. The members of the Committee were myself, as Chairman and Minister at the time; Honourable Truman Bodden, the Minister of Education, who was Deputy Chair; Mr. Mario Ebanks as secretary, who is a Senior Assistant Secretary in the Ministry; Mrs. Edna Moyle, or the Member from North Side as a member; Mr. Leonard Dilbert as Permanent Secretary at the time; Mr. William (Billy) Adam, Miss Juliette Johnson, Mr. Carlisle McLaughlin, Mr. Greg Merren, Mr. John Law, Mr. Hubert Bodden, Mr. Allan Myles, Miss Judy Carlman, Mr. Norman Klein, another lawyer in the private sector.

The Governor-in-Council approved the terms of reference for the Committee, and the Committee set to work. The Committee met on 27 October, and 15 of November, 1994; 18 January 1995; 6 and 28 February, 14 and 28 March; 11 and 25 April; 13 May; 1 July, 6, 21 and 24 August, 1995. However, various assignments were delegated to some members of the Committee to undertake, and ongoing research and co-ordination by Ministry representatives on the Committee was performed in consultation with local expertise.

As the Committee began its work, it set out to consider which types of pension plans were best suited for Cayman’s labour market. In so doing, it identified a menu of prudent, and what I thought were equitable, provisions, guidelines and safeguards which should be in place in order to support Government’s policy on pensions. The Committee felt that pensions should be viewed as a part of the employee’s remuneration package. As such, his contribution, together with the employer’s contribution benefit, would be his right. With that in mind, pension plan benefits would not be used to force an employee’s longevity of service with a particular employer. In order to ensure the highest possible benefit to all contributors, the Committee supported the concept of immediate vesting with allowances for existing plans, as would be discussed later from this report. Therefore the Committee recommended that the vesting period should be reasonable and come into effect immediately upon employment. Under this type of environment, existing plans which had vesting periods of five to ten to fifteen years would obviously have to be amended accordingly. With regard to portability, it was similarly the Committee’s view that as the vested pension of an employee is his right, it should be able to move with him through various specified methods if he moves to another employer.

The Committee undertook a survey of private sector employers to gather information on existing policies and practices regarding the subject. Approximately 800 survey forms were sent to a broad cross-section of employers via eighteen of their respective professional or trade associations, and the Chamber of Commerce. Only a small percentage of these forms was returned, despite several reminders in the media, and contact with the secretariat and officials of several associations.

The Committee recommended that the office of Superintendent of Pensions would be established within the Financial Services Supervision Department, but that was not what was agreed to by Government. It was decided for the Superintendent of Pensions to be kept within the Ministry. Consideration was given in the 1996 Budget for the new initiative. In accordance with standard procedures, the Personnel Department was going to be asked to assist with assessing the staffing needs of this new office. The Committee recommended that during the period when the discussion draft was undergoing public consultation, every effort would be made to create ample opportunity for all interested parties to understand the provisions of the proposed legislation, and to appreciate the philosophy surrounding this initiative. The Committee also recommended that a specific multimedia public awareness and education campaign be mounted prior to and after the passage of the legislative framework. This campaign was coordinated by Government Information Services, and included the Chamber of Commerce pension plan trustees, the Life Insurance Underwriters' Association, the Cayman Islands Bankers' Association, and several other persons.

One matter that caused quite a bit of debate was the Committee's recommendation that the Crown be bound. They sought to allow the provisions of the Law to bind Crown workers in the public sector making them subject to the Law as were their counterparts in the private sector. After some debate, the Government did not accept that recommendation.

In June 1995, the Committee wrote to five leading life insurance companies in Grand Cayman to solicit projections for the contributions needed to fund the national pensions benefit for the working population, based on a series of assumptions provided by it. The Committee requested projected contribution rates for three final pension benefits: 60%, 70% and 80%, providing for a joint and survivor annuity. There were two inflation assumptions used: 3% and 5%; and investment earnings of the fund assets of 6%. The members of each plan were assumed to enter the plan at age 20, with a base salary of $2,000 per month. Retirement age was assumed at age 60 for men and women. Projections were received from three of these companies, based on a retirement benefit of 60% of final salary.

The Committee anticipated that it would be very likely that there would be those in our community who would bitterly complain that this initiative would impact negatively on the cost of living generally, the cost of doing business, and profitability. It was also reasonable to expect employees to object to any deduction from their gross salary, a very new concept in Cayman for those employees who are not now participating in a contributory pension plan. While the cost to the public will be one undeniable output of this initiative, the benefits to the employee and the country for the long term will be significant.

Pensions should be viewed by the employer and employee as a deferred remuneration, that is, part of employment package, and not simply as a deduction. National benefits, such as encouraging a saving society, new sources of funding for investments, improved retirement planning and provision, and the reduction in the need for Government intervention with old age assistance, are some of the obvious positive results of this pension plan.

Section 48(2) and (3) of the draft Law provided for the phasing in of the contribution rate over a period ranging from three to five years for employees between the ages of 20 and 45; employees over age 45 would not have the option of a phase-in of the contribution rate. The Committee felt that this phase-in option would help to introduce the discipline to the work force in a more easily acceptable basis. Suffice it to say that the vast majority of people have accepted pensions, and are now ready to contribute and move forward.

The Committee recommended also that the cost of the supervisory and regulatory functions to be offered through the office of the Superintendent of Pensions should be recouped wherever possible. For example, any cost incurred by the office as a result of performing functions, or retaining actuarial services in respect of a particular plan or provider, should be recouped from the same. No one should ask why there has to be some small deduction, because they all said they did not want Government to run the schemes. No one should expect the private sector to run the schemes, incur costs and not recoup those costs.

The Committee also recommended that each approved provider, administrator, or trustee, would have to pay an annual fee to the Superintendent for this privilege. Each employer and self-employed independent contractor would also file an annual return and declaration confirming participation by all employees in an approved pension plan, accompanied by a small fee. This ends some of the background of the Committee's 1995 report.

I would now like to illustrate to the House some of the rationale the Committee used in drafting instructions for the Law. The Committee felt that an overview of how this Law incorporates Government's policy objectives would be useful. It was recommended that this draft be carefully read and studied. (The Committee had by now produced the draft Law.) It was recommended that this draft be carefully read and studied in order to get a clearer understanding of its intent and relationship to other legislation and the workplace in general.

The Applications section of the Law sought to establish the scope of operation in regard to Cayman's workplace and work-force. Section 5 underscored that the Law proposed to prescribe minimum standards, and did not prevent any employer from offering benefits in excess of these minimums. I will say that again: Section 5 underscored that the Law proposed to prescribe minimum standards, and did not prevent any employer from offering benefits in excess of these minimums.

The Registration and Administration section sought to establish procedures for the application and registration of approved providers of pension plans in this jurisdiction. The certification and ongoing review or oversight of pension plans by the Superintendent of Pensions, the requirements and responsibilities of the administrator of pension plans, the confirmation of portability through the provision and recognition of reciprocal transfer arrangements with other pension plans in other jurisdictions. The proposal allowed for both the defined benefit and defined contribution type of plans.

The Disclosure of Information section set out the information which the administrator was to provide to each member of his pension plan, established procedures for the approval of amendments to a plan, and established procedures for the inspection of records relating to a particular plan.

The Membership section prescribed that all employees who are eighteen years or older and self-employed are required to participate in a pension plan. Regular part-time or casual workers are also eligible participants in a pension plan. As I said earlier, this was later changed to exclude domestic workers. That is how the Law stands today. Domestic workers are not included in the Law.

The Retirement and Vesting section established the normal retirement age of 60 years, and made provision for continuing participation after retirement if a person chose. Provision was also made for non-Caymanians to terminate their membership in a pension plan if they were not residing in these Islands and had not been contributing to an approved pension plan for five or more consecutive years. The suggested Benefit section would provide for the benefits which would be prescribed in regulations.

The Contribution section of the then proposed discussion draft prescribed that all approved pension plans would need to be fully funded, that is, be able to meet all of its pension liabilities. A staggered period to achieve this objective was also proposed. A phasing in of the required contribution rate was also proposed in that section. Procedures for the collecting, custody and payment of contributions were also proposed. Provision was also made for the establishment and regulations of investment guidelines for the purposes of investing the pension contributions.

It was anticipated also that these guidelines would be for a conservative (that is, low risk) portfolio, with a prudent mix of units. There was a salary cap of CI$60,000 on which contributions would have to be paid. In other words, employees earning more than CI$60,000 per annum would not have to pay a contribution in respect to the amount in excess of $60,000.

The Locking In section confirmed that once someone had been a member of a plan for a certain time, he loses the ability to withdraw contributions from the plan.

This does not interfere with the normal portability arrangements or disability and survival benefits which may be prescribed in the Law or regulations.

The section on Winding Up outlined the circumstances which would dictate the partial or full winding up of a pension plan, and the rules and provisions governing the winding up.

The Surplus section confirmed that any surplus in a pension plan would be paid into the fund for the benefit of the contributors and not the employer.

The section on Sales and Transfers and new plans set out the operational parameters of pension plans in the event of a change of ownership of the employer's business, particularly in respect of continuing benefits and terms.

The Orders section set out the basis under which the Superintendent may issue orders for action or remedy.

The Hearing and Appeals section provided for notice, powers of the Superintendent, documentation panels appeal, and other administrative aspects which are self-explanatory.

The Pension Inspectorate section sought to establish the regulatory system, particularly the Superintendent of Pensions, the Advisory Board, and outlined the functions and powers of each. This section also highlighted the importance of safeguarding the accumulated funds by requiring audits, reports to the Minister responsible, and so on.

The General section proposed inspectors, penalties, actions and enforcement. Provision was also made for regulations in this section. This section also suggested a very universal and participative procedure for proposing amendments to the Law.

As I mentioned earlier, the Committee undertook a survey of all economic sectors in these Islands and mailed out 800 survey forms to nineteen associations. I wish to provide the House with a brief overview of a few of the findings from that survey:

- The Cayman Contractors' Association:
Number of forms returned: 4
Number of employees: 210
Question asked, "Do you offer a pension plan?"
Answer: No pension plan.
- The Cayman Islands Restaurant Association:
Number of forms: 3 (When we say 'forms' three companies answered.)
Number of employees: 376
Question asked: "Do you offer a pension plan?"
Answer: 33% offered; 67% said they had no interest from employees.
"What is the vesting period?" Five years.
"Is your plan portable?" No. If they left the job, they left their money. They could not take their plan with them.
- The Cayman Islands Bankers' Association:
Number of forms returned: 27 (that is, 27 companies answered).
Number of employees: 902.

Question asked: "Do you offer a pension plan?"

Answer: 66% offered a pension plan. 34% had no pension plan.

Of those that had a pension plan, 31% were contributory and 69% were non-contributory. The contributory rate was 2-4% from employee and employer. The vesting period: from immediate, 10% per annum for five years, ten years, ages 40-45 with 10-15 years' service. That is how long it would take to get some people even when they start out young, in some plans. "Is the plan fully funded to cover current and future retirement benefits?" 91% said yes.

That, Mr. Speaker, gives the House some idea of what is needed out there, and how urgent it is.

I noted that my colleague, the Minister, said, "It is felt that all the unfinished business could have been completed by the Ministry, but for whatever reason it is still outstanding." Mr. Speaker, in May of last year, after much public input a discussion draft was released. That was the Pensions Bill, in May 1996. In June of 1996 the draft bill was tabled in the House, and in July 1996 the Bill was passed. We all know we went through the electoral process, and in January of this year, Executive Council approved regulations to be released. On 14 March 1997, I made a statement concerning regulations. That statement said that I was ". . . pleased to be able to release the Discussion Draft of the Pensions Regulations [to the House] today. These are the first two sets of what is intended to be three sets of Regulations. The two sets which my Ministry is able to release today are the National Pensions (Pension Fund Investments) Regulations, and the National Pensions (General) Regulations. As implied in the names, the first set deals with the investment guidelines which any approved pension plan or fund operating in Cayman will have to comply with, and the second set of Regulations deals with a number of general and procedural matters.

"I would have liked to have released these Drafts earlier, but other considerations and activities impeded this." But as I said, that was on the 14th of March. "My Ministry appreciates the work of the National Pensions Law Advisory Committee and the Legislative Drafting Department in connection with these Drafts.

"As the House is aware, the National Pensions Law which was passed in the Legislative Assembly in July 1996, and is scheduled to come into effect on 1st July, 1997, is very comprehensive and contains many of the provisions which are normally contained in regulations. Therefore, by referring to the Law and these Draft Regulations, employers and prospective Approved Providers will be able to assess the 'state of readiness' of their pension plan, or know what they need to do to comply with the legislation.

"I am releasing with the Drafts, a summary of the main sections for ease of reference. Government is seeking the services of outside technical expertise to assist in the Drafting of the third set of Regulations.

This set would deal mainly with valuation procedures for new or existing Defined Benefit Pension Plans, as well as various actuarial provisions. I hope to have this third set available for review some time in April. Subject to the results of this public consultation exercise, it is my Ministry's intention to take the Regulations to the Legislative Assembly in June for the Affirmative Resolution which is required under section 94 (6) of the National Pensions Law."

Mr. Speaker, due to the long delays with the 1997 Budget approval (which, as we all should remember, was set down for February but was then delayed and did not come to the House until March of this year, and did not get finalised until May of this year), and with delays in legal advice pertaining to the contract with the consultants, the Ministry could not execute a contract with the successful consultant, that is, Towers Perrin. We could not because the Budget had not been finalised.

I further quote, "My Ministry would appreciate receiving written feedback by the end of April. If necessary, meetings can be held with associations, employers or individuals during this consultation period. Early feedback is needed as this may impact the drafting of the third set of Regulations. Copies of the Draft Regulations can be collected from my Ministry or from the Legislative Assembly."

"Finally, let me say that in tandem with the drafting of Regulations and any necessary tidying-up of the legislation, Government will also be making arrangements for the institutional framework—particularly the Superintendent of Pensions. It is hoped that the office of the Superintendent can be established by June, so that when the Law comes into effect on 1st July we will have ample time to ensure that all employers are in compliance with the Law by 1st January, 1998.

"Government has not yet approved or registered any firms or individuals as Approved Providers, however I encourage all employers (including self-employed persons) to review any proposals which are presented to them and to seek advice from my Ministry if necessary."

The Speaker: If you are going to go to another subject, would this be a convenient time to take the afternoon break?

Mr. W. McKeever Bush : Yes, I was going to another point in that statement, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: We will suspend for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.48 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.07 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. The First Elected Member for West Bay continuing.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush : Thank you, Mr. Speaker. When we took the break, I was going through a summary of the main sections of the Regulations as tabled on the 14th of March. The Pension Fund (Investment) Regulations seek to regulate the practices of the administrator, investment manager, custodian, and any other specified entity which may undertake transactions on behalf of the pension fund of approved pension plans. Particularly, it seeks to establish a prudent and low-risk asset allocation to guide the investment strategies, and to also prohibit certain investments.

Regulation 5 requires the administrator to pay particular attention to the asset allocations. Regulations 7-10 and 12-16 provide other investment guidelines. Regulation 11 provides the guidelines for financial statements. The general regulations establish the regulatory framework for the processing of applications for the registration of plans and providers, as well as for amendments thereto.

Regulation 7 specifies the contribution rate for the five-year phase-in period in respect of employees and employers and self-employed persons. Regulation 8 provides guidelines for the distribution of any surplus which may exist in a defined benefit pension plan. Regulation 9 provides guidelines for the filing of the annual information return by the administrator to the superintendent. Regulation 10 specifies the types of retirement savings arrangements into which the accumulated pension funds of retirement person can be deposited. Regulation 11 specifies the details which the insurance contract for a life annuity must provide.

Regulation 13 specifies the wind-up notice. Regulation 14 specifies information which the notice of entitlements to members should include. Regulation 15 specifies who can prepare the wind-up report and the contents of such a report, and the filing of documents after the winding up. Regulations 16-19 deal with disclosure notice and explanations. Regulation 20 specifies the contents of the annual statements. Regulation 21 outlines the contents of the statement of benefits entitlement after the death of a member.

Regulation 22 specifies the contents of the statement to be given to the member sixty days prior to his normal retirement date. Regulation 23 specifies the documents required in respect of an inspection of the administrator's records. Regulation 25 specifies the exemption which is applicable in relation to conflict of interest. Regulation 26 describes the eligibility for the administration of a pension plan by a trust corporation. Regulation 27 specifies the contents of a notice relating to the intention of offering a pension plan and the choice of the approved provider. Regulations 28-32 are short general provisions which are self-explanatory.

Mr. Speaker, the National Pensions Law came into effect by a commencement order of Executive Council on 21 January of this year. In September my Ministry also circulated a discussion draft bill (when I say circulated, I mean circulated to the public) to amend the Pensions Law. The Memorandum of Objects and Reasons of that Bill provided a good introduction to the rationale for the amendments, and the vast majority of the amendments are meant to clarify several ambiguous provisions of the Law.

The only amendment which has policy implication is clause 6, which amends section 6 of the Law by prescribing circumstances in which existing schemes may continue without being required to register. This particular amendment would primarily affect suitable existing defined benefit plans which are currently offered by multinational employers such as banks and trust companies. The proposed amendments to the Law are as a result of representations received by my Ministry through the National Pensions Law Advisory Committee from the following people and associations: Towers Perrin of Canada (our consultants), the Cayman Islands Bankers' Association, the Chamber of Commerce, Ms. Myrna Gregson, attorney at law, Mr. John Law of Cayman National Corporation, Caribbean Utilities Company Ltd., William Mercer of Canada, and Price Waterhouse of Canada.

Mr. Speaker, as is normal in any legislative process, certainly one with as much scrutiny as our National Pensions Law, it is normal to have to fine tune. The amending bill is just for that purpose. There are no substantial changes proposed to the substantive Law in that amending legislation, with the exception, as I said, of a provision which makes it clearly understood that plans which are currently in existence can continue if the employee is better off as a result of remaining in that particular plan. I say that provision makes it clearer, because it is already provided for in section 6 of the substantive Law.

Mr. Speaker, I want to say to this House that there were no policy changes in the proposed amending Bill, up to the time I had it, that would affect the draft Regulations which had been circulated to the public. I want to repeat that: There were no policy changes in the proposed amending Bill, up until the time I left Executive Council, that would affect the draft Regulations circulated to the public two times this year. Two times this year!—in March and in September—and accepted by the public.

Mr. Speaker, on 8 October I submitted a paper to Executive Council for approval of the revised draft Bill, which Executive Council had approved in August for public distribution and feedback. Copies of that were hand-delivered to the media houses, and 20 copies to the Chamber of Commerce for distribution to the Council of Associations. During the consultation period, 150 sets of the package were provided to the Legislative Assembly for collection by the public. We did get feedback from the public. Representations were received from Mr. Peter Harty, the Cayman Islands Hotel and Condo Association, Jacques Scott & Co. Ltd., and the Chamber of Commerce Council of Associations, signed by representative groups: the Chamber of Commerce, Merchant Association, Contractors' Association, Watersports Operators' Association, Real Estate Brokers' Association, Caymanian Bar Association, Agricultural Society, Society of Financial Analysis, and Society of Caymanian Builders and Contractors and Labour. On 8 October, Executive Council deferred that paper.

As to the Regulations, on 15 October I submitted a paper to Executive Council for approval of the revised draft Regulations, which had gone the full circle of public consultation. Again, on the draft Regulations, copies were hand-delivered to the media houses, 20 copies to the Chamber of Commerce for distribution to the Council of Associations, and during this period 150 sets of the package were provided to the Legislative Assembly so the public could have further consultation. At the closing date which we had given to the public, representations came back from Peter Harty, Cayman Islands Hotel and Condo Association, Jacques Scott, Cayman National Bank, Midland Bank, and the Chamber of Commerce Council of Associations, again signed by representatives from the following groups: Chamber of Commerce Merchants' Association, Contractors' Association, Watersports Operators, Real Estate Brokers, Caymanian Bar, Agricultural Society, Society of Financial Analysis and Society of Caymanian Builders and Contractors, Trade and Labour.

In addition to that, Mr. Speaker, the Senior Assistant Secretary in the Ministry, Mr. Mario Ebanks, and the First Legislative Counsel, Mr. Grenyer, travelled to Toronto, Canada, to hold meetings on the 2nd and 3rd of October with our consultants, Towers Perrin. The feedback (what I remember) was that they were thoroughly examined, and that necessary representations which were received were scrutinised; necessary clarifications and fine tuning were effected to two sets of Regulations, that is, the Investment Fund and the General Regulations. The third and the new set of regulations dealing with actuarial and transfer matters, prepared by the actuarial department of Towers Perrin and re-formatted by the First Legislative Counsel, was also examined in detail and necessary changes were made to clarify and keep consistent with what we wanted.

It was intended also for that to have the consultation exercise that we would have gone through with all the rest of the papers. I had also been asked to address the Chamber of Commerce on 29 October to provide an update. Suffice it to say, Mr. Speaker, that paper was also deferred.

I want to give the Government, and in particular the new Minister, the benefit of the doubt, and would like to even support the amending Bill before us. But the Bill is open-ended, and to suspend the Law completely will not allow for any further registration of pension plans to take place, and no contribution. Therefore, I would like to see this Bill we have before us amended.

As I said, it now has a cut-off date (from the amendment circulated by the Minister) of June 1. I am very concerned because originally we tried to separate the time of coming into force of the Pensions and Insurance Laws, because we knew there would be a cost factor which business persons—indeed all of us—would be concerned about. Putting the Law back to June when the insurance was slated to come into effect, will have a double impact at the same time. While we have to put these two needed pieces of legislation in place, and we have to bear the cost, we were wary of putting the two together.

In the Memorandum of Objects and Reasons to the Bill before the House to suspend the operations of the National Pensions Law 1996, it says that the suspension is necessary so that the private sector employers can have more time to prepare for the legislation, and for the Government administrative arrangements to be completed. Mr. Speaker, as I said, I want to give the Government the benefit of the doubt. The Minister is new, and I want to give her and my other colleagues on the Executive Council the benefit of the doubt; but I do believe that what needs to be done can be finished in three months. I believe we can finish by April. The Minister has circulated an amendment, and I believe we are prepared to go to that amendment, but I cannot support fully suspending the Law.

Mr. Speaker, I believe it is that time.

MOMENT OF INTERRUPTION—4.30 PM

The Speaker: We have reached the hour of 4.30. I do not imagine you will be finishing any time in the near future. I would entertain a motion for the suspension of this Honourable House.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, under the relevant Standing Order, I beg to move the adjournment of this Honourable House until 10.00 AM tomorrow morning.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, I beg to second that motion, Sir.

The Speaker: The question is that this House do now adjourn until 10.00 AM tomorrow. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those opposed, No.

AYES and NOES.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush : Mr. Speaker, I have a commitment, and I would like to get to that commitment if Members could accommodate.

The Speaker: I was somewhat concerned about the road obstruction on the West Bay Road myself, so . . .

Hon. John B. McLean: The fact remains, Sir, the later we stay here the easier it will be to get home, because there will be less traffic.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, that Minister is all wrong, although he is the Minister for Works.

The Speaker: I will ask for a division.

Hon. John B. McLean: I do not mean to get into dialogue with him, but I am the Minister for Works and I know exactly what I am saying, because I know how we are going to work.

The Speaker: I did not count the votes, so I guess the only thing we can do is take a division. Madam Clerk, will you call a division, please?

The Clerk:

Division No. 23/97

The Speaker: The result of the division is seven Ayes, eight Noes, two absent. The Noes have it. The House continues.

AGREED BY MAJORITY: THAT THE HOUSE NOT ADJOURN AT 4.30 PM.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush : Mr. Speaker, I would like to find out how long we are going to go.

The Speaker: What is the wish of the House? How long shall we continue?

(Inaudible interjection)

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush : Really, Mr. Speaker, can I hear how long we are going to go?

The Speaker: You state an hour and I will put it to the vote. That is all I can do.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush : I did not ask for any time, I asked to suspend, but anyway. . . I am trying to determine from the Government, since they say we must stay, how long are we going to stay?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, another hour. Until 5.30.

The Speaker: Until 5.30? [Addressing the First Elected Member for West Bay] Can you stay that long?

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush : Mr. Speaker, no, I cannot stay that long, and I want to thank my colleagues on Executive Council for their generosity. I am prepared to carry on with my debate.

The Speaker: Please continue.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush : I should say, Mr. Speaker, leaving here at 5.30 could put us right out in the middle of traffic. That is what I would think from what I witnessed this morning, and normally . . .

(Inaudible interjection)

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush : Mr. Speaker, I believe that there is a better way to go about achieving the objective of allowing more time. They need to get the Superintendent in place; they need to set up the Board and pass the Regulations and the amending Bill. I have said what my concern is about full suspension of the Law. I will now outline two simple amendments to the National Pensions Law which could be effected which deal with the problem but would not be as disruptive to private sector employers and pension providers.

Section 4(1) of the National Pensions Law makes it mandatory for every employer to provide or make contributions to a pension plan for every person employed by him in the Cayman Islands. In order to allow more time, and not breach the provisions of section 4(3) which deal with penalties, I am recommending that section 4(1) be amended to indicate that the effective date for employers to provide or contribute to a pension plan be March 31, 1998. The Government will have another three months to prepare but will not be left wondering when the Law will come back into effect.

The second and companion amendment which can be made to allow more time for existing pension plans to be registered is in section 6(2). This presently allows an unregistered plan to be administered for 180 days after the commencement of the Law (which was 1st July, 1997), approximately six months from 1 July, 1997 is 31 December 1997. Again, this section could be amended to say 270 days. This would allow a further three months for the superintendent of pensions to rate the plans. The new effective date for registration would also be 31 March 1998.

While the substantive Law does not give any flexibility, what Government must remember is that a moratorium of six months was given by Executive Council which ends 31 December. That was a policy decision. By doing this, no one can contravene the Law, although the Law is in effect. If we amend the Law sections in 4(1) and 6(2) as I recommended, this would extend the legal time for another three months. Rather than suspending the Law, we could put in these two minor amendments to legally cover everyone.

Even if the Minister and the Government want to go to June, I will agree with them. What I do not agree with is suspending the Law in its entirety. What I am suggesting now will cover them and do what they want to, while at the same time allowing those persons in the private sector who have reached a distance with their provisions to carry on. If they suspend the Law in its entirety now, they are not being fair to the public. Whether they want to close down the House now, at 6.00, or come back tomorrow morning, my contention with Government is the full suspension of the Law because there are people who are doing things.

If we had anticipated the delays in getting the legal advice and the drafting of the contract with the consultants, Towers Perrin, if we had anticipated the delays in drafting of regulations; if we had anticipated that Executive Council would not agree on the price when we went to get the office space, we could have put the commencement order further back, rather than January. We could have staggered in certain sections of the Law.

I note from the Minister's explanation to the House there were four main reasons why the Law should be suspended until June:

"(1) Securing contractual arrangements for the technical assistance and the review of the regulations and the drafting of the actuarial valuation for the regulations.

"(2) There were delays in securing authorisation for the lease of office premises."

I would like to correct the Minister where she says that that has been put in place since she arrived in the Ministry. I do not know what more has been done, but the lease was approved by Executive Council and came into effect on 1 November. I had taken the matter to Executive Council and received approval for the offices to be put in place at Piccadilly Square.

The Minister said, and I quote her: "Additionally, due to the state of implementation of the said legislation, employers who are not offering or subscribing to a pensions plan may now technically be in contravention of the Law. While these parties may not necessarily be at fault they could, by their ignorance or otherwise, technically be liable to the penalties as stipulated in section 4(3) of the Law, or other penalties contained therein." I want to say again to the Minister that the moratorium which ends on 31 December protects all persons from breaching the Law. If Executive Council is minded to amend the Law in the places I have suggested, they can have more time and further protect the public from these penalties.

I argue again that suspending the Law in its entirety is not fair to the public. I ask the Minister to reconsider the position. If she wants to go to June, I will even support that. What I cannot support is the full suspension of the Law.

The Minister mentioned the Board. As I recall, on the list of possible members for the Board that would be set up under section 77 of the Law were: Mr. Billy Adams, Mr. Carlisle McLaughlin, and Mrs. Sherri Ebanks. There could be somebody from the legal profession, the contractors' Association, the Bankers' Association, the Hospitality Industry, someone from Government and an employees' representative. So we are not far away from creating a Board. That cannot take forever to do.

We have these amendment that were supposed to come back here. Everybody was busy. . . and there are various reasons, but I do not want to leave the impression that my work was not done because that is what the impression is. As she said, ". . . all the unfinished business could have been completed by the Ministry, . . ." Due to the hold up in Executive Council for various reasons.

I am not knocking what Executive Council says, everybody has a full work load. I am saying: Do not lead the world to believe that I had not done my work. I have taken enough blame for things that I have not done. Give me credit when I have done something.

I want to say in closing that I want to give my colleagues on Executive Council and the new Minister the benefit of the doubt. I would also like to say this, and I say this so that there can be some peace here because if I give the impression that I am having a war, and they do the same thing, that is what it is going to be—a war! No one supports the Minister like I do—I went to great lengths to do so. But they must give some consideration, to be fair. The Minister is new, and I give her my full support. But to do as they are doing puts people at a great disadvantage and I cannot agree with it.

Just in case they do not know (we got a bit muddled up where we were), let me repeat: Section 4(1) of the Pensions Law makes it mandatory for every employer to provide or make contributions to a pension plan. In order to allow more time and not to breach the provisions of section 4(3) which deals with penalties, I am recommending that section 4(1) be amended to indicate the effective date for employers to have to contribute to a pension plan be either March 31, 1998 (that is the date I would like, but if they want their date I will even support that), that is, they will have another three to six months to prepare but not be left wondering when the Law will come back into effect.

The second and companion amendment which can be made to allow more time for existing pension plans to be registered is in section 6(2). This presently allows an unregistered plan to be administered for 180 days. If we amend that it will allow a further three months or six months for the superintendent of pensions to rate the plans.

These amendments are my alternative to achieve the Government's aims for a short extension of time versus a full suspension of the Law during this time. I know that they are going to come behind me and say, 'Oh, but the moratorium ends on the 31st.' I hope they understand that what we are recommending will allow the people to be protected after the 31 December. So they cannot say that I am being unfair, all I am asking is for them to be fair to the people who already have spent two years making preparations and who are ready.

I want them to bear in mind (and I think they know this already) that there are those in the public who say that if Government suspends the Law they are going to suspend what they are doing. That is being said.

Mr. Roy Bodden: True. I told them that too.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Who will that help? Who will it hurt? That is the danger, and they cannot do anything if they suspend the Law. They can do what the Minister said, “To those employers who have been pro-active in upgrading their plans, or who are now subscribing to a new plan which complies with the Law, I urge you to continue with your contributions.” That is like whistling in the dark! If the Law is suspended, and the Honourable Minister has to understand this, then those whom she is urging can suspend what they are doing. This is what we are trying to guard against. There are people who have said they will suspend if Government suspends. I do not think we need to reach that stage.

I believe that I have tried to put things into perspective as to where we came from with this Law, where we are presently, and the amount of work that the Ministry has accomplished. I would like to take time out to thank the committee, Mr. Billy Adams in particular, Mr. Carlisle McLaughlin, and Mr. Mario Ebanks from the Ministry. There was a lot of midnight oil burned on this thing. Notwithstanding delays, the Government can still do what is necessary and everybody will be more or less happy. But if they clamp down and say they are going their way, then I cannot support them in it.

I would like to thank them again for their generosity.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause) The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: I would just like to apologise for being late this morning. I did try to call in to say that I was stuck in traffic on the West Bay Road. I had a totally new experience in the Cayman Islands—I found myself wondering how pleasant it would be not to have to use a car. It took me from 10.30 am until 1.00 pm to drive from the Turtle Farm in West Bay to the Legislative Assembly. Some people say this is planning!

Mr. Roy Bodden: (Laughter)

Dr. Frank McField: As I make my comments about the National Pensions (Suspension) Bill, 1997, let me say that it will be impossible for me not to repeat what other Members have said. I think the last speaker made quite clear why the Pensions Law was brought in the first place by the National Team Government, which is now seeking to suspend it.

To many people the word ‘suspension’ means that we are going to push it back. When a child is suspended from school we clarify if the child is suspended for one week, two weeks, three or four weeks, or indefinitely. The use of the word ‘suspension’ in the title of the Bill obviously gives the general public the impression that the Law is being negated, that the Bill is being eradicated.

Since I was not here because of the traffic problem this morning, I had to refer to the Hansard in order to make sense of the debate as it originated. I noticed that the last speaker mentioned several points from the lady Minister’s speech. When it is said that the National Pensions Law, 1996 (which came into force on 1 July, 1997), will be suspended until the suspension is lifted by an order made by the Governor in Council. . . we have no control over the Governor in Council. We only have control over what happens here in the Legislative Assembly. I therefore think it is understandable that Members will seek to have some type of input at this stage since. If the Suspension Bill is passed in this particular matter, we will not necessarily be taken into Executive Council with regard to what would be. . . (pause)

Mr. Speaker, I see there is an amendment to this for 1 June. I am not quite sure when notice of this amendment was given.

The Speaker: Permission was given for her to move it during her presentation.

Dr. Frank McField: Do you see how traffic can confuse the country?

(Inaudible interjection)

Dr. Frank McField: Yes, that is true too. It just takes people who plan evil things.

Mr. Speaker, in trying to debate the Bill, I think you will take into consideration that I was held up this morning and I missed that amendment. A lot of the formulations I had come to were related to the fact that I understood Executive Council would have the final say. Now that the Minister is committing herself to the 1 of June, I will begin to look at it in a slightly different way.

Nevertheless, when the former Minister of this Portfolio gets up and indicates that there is doubt in his mind as to the intention of the Government to see this Bill through; when that is not being done by the so-called Opposition, but by the person who spearheaded this particular movement in this country, then it is not being political or destructive when we put on the breaks and begin to look at the motives behind the suspension of this particular Bill.

Mr. Roy Bodden: True!

Dr. Frank McField: Who better knows the hidden motives of the Members of Executive Council responsible to see that this Law comes into effect than the person who was a Member of that Council for the last 15 (sic) years.

Because there may not be a serious intention to bring this Bill into effect, I think it is necessary for us to understand that there is a lot of public opinion regarding the negative effects of pensions and health insurance. This is a very important point in a country that has not been used to Government legislating behaviour: We have Government legislating the behaviour of people in regard to savings, and we have two instances coming into effect basically at the same time—the Pensions Law in June, and the Health Insurance Law in July.

Nobody can convince me that they are seriously thinking of doing these at the same time, expecting that the society, the electorate which is already resisting the whole concept of pensions and health insurance (something that is almost foreign to our society up until this point) will accept these two deductions being made from their salaries almost simultaneously. I do not believe that anybody seriously thinks that is possible. I feel that there is some hanky-panky going on in the background.

(Applause)

Dr. Frank McField: One has to suffer. Both pieces of legislation were brought in because both methods—pensions and protecting the people's health—were considered necessary by the National Team Government.

The National Team Government was able to win almost a landslide victory in 1996 based upon those policies. I keep saying that if the National Team Government is going to change its policies it should make people aware of the fact that it is not holding fast to its political manifesto, and that it had no intention of holding fast from the very beginning.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Hear, hear!

Dr. Frank McField: I think that the whole social policy of the ex-minister for Community Affairs suggests that ingrained in the concept of the National Team Government was a caring idea for the people of the Cayman Islands. Emanating from that whole political alliance were social policies which were seriously being brought into effect in this country for the first time. Past Governments avoided these policies simply because it was so difficult to get people to understand that immediate gratification does not necessarily create security. People have to go beyond what they need today and save for what they need tomorrow.

The moral obligation of Government for the needy will continue to exist as it does in this country today. One reason why the social service expense in this country is so high today is because companies that came in here some 20 or 30 years ago were used to the whole idea of when a person was no longer valuable to a firm or company, or when they were no longer productive, they were set aside. They were used to these concepts in North America and in Europe. Yet, they came here and allowed this idea of pension and health insurance to lie dormant in this society until it was awakened and brought forward by the former Minister for this particular Portfolio under which pensions fall.

That was not an easy job because there were cries of 'socialist,' there were cries of 'communist,' there were cries of 'anti-this' and 'anti-that' because there were certain people who did not want to make the necessary adjustments in their profits in order to be able to compensate the working people in this country. Now that that Minister has the political mandate of the people (based upon selling them the idea that he would bring in social policies to protect the working people in this country). . . this is where the National Team Government is going? They are going in a direction which causes people like me to become worried about their seriousness when it comes to health insurance and pensions. Unless they are really fixated on crisis management there would be no need for them to bring health insurance and pensions at almost the identical time.

Serious planners have to think about people's reactions. It is like what happened this morning with the traffic. If that had been planned and thought out that would not have happened. I would not have been stuck in traffic from 10.30 until 1.00, the Governor would not have been 40 minutes late to work this morning.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Hear, hear!

Dr. Frank McField: We can blame it on people. We can blame it on the stupid pedestrians who stopped to look, and all the other things. But basically it is a failure with planning. We must take those 'customers,' as they say in the re-invention of Government, into consideration. How are we taking the customer into consideration when we are bringing these two pieces of legislation into effect at the same time? When the poor person who has not gotten used to the whole concept of what a pension can do for him, or what health insurance can do, because he does not have the subjective experience nor the objective experience of living in a society where that exists to see the benefits of this, . . . we are trying to show the people of this island something that is very abstract at the end of the day. Maybe to legislators it is not so abstract, maybe it is very concrete because some of us who are prosperous operate within the concept that it makes sense to save for the days when we can no longer work to provide for ourselves. We do not necessarily put that responsibility upon our children.

There have been remarks in this House already that people who are qualified for social help, people over 60, should be cared for by their children. We do not want to be saying that in the next 20 or 30 years. We need to solve the problem now. I know that Honourable Members will think that somehow I am not speaking about the point, but I was not here when the discussion was going on about pensions. But I have listened to the debate. I knew from what was happening on the street that a lot of people thought in the beginning that pensions meant that their employers contributed to a fund that they would have access to when they reached a particular age. Most people in Cayman wanted pensions because they thought they would get something without having to contribute on a weekly or monthly basis. Once people found out that deductions would be coming from their pay cheque, they began to think that this would not necessarily serve them, especially when we consider the fact that wages for normal working people have not increased in this country over a long period of time.

What we are taking money from today is very small. Are you going to tell me that we are going to take out both pension and health insurance this year at almost the same time? Are we going to move health insurance further into the future? Or are we going to take that as a priority because we need to pay for the hospital? There are a lot of people who have invested in creating a positive atmosphere to allow pensions to be accepted by the population of this country and we cannot miss the opportunity to take advantage of this very receptive atmosphere which we have at the moment.

Suspension of the Pensions Law, even until June, will mean that people will think that Government will somehow suspend whenever it is convenient for them to suspend. They will not take Government's position seriously in regard to this. I believe that the last speaker, the First Elected Member for West Bay, had some very good points to share with us. Why does it take so long to put a Pensions Board together? This is a small society. We basically know who we would have on this Board anyway. It should not take that long to put a Pensions Board together.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: That should have been done last year.

Dr. Frank McField: The Honourable Minister now responsible for pensions is saying that is what should have been done from last year. If that Member who was supposed to be responsible last year did not do it, I would blame him too.

All I can deal with here is the fact that the National Team Government, of which the past Minister was also a part, has come to this Parliament at this point telling us that they have not done their job and that they need more time. This is an instance of crisis management. Although I like to be creative about the terms I use, I am going to have to borrow this one because it sticks in my brain. Every time I see things, like the traffic situation this morning. . . . If that is not crisis management, Mr. Speaker, I would like to see what is!

I do not think that the Government will not implement the Pensions Law if it is suspended. I do not believe that they would be that uninformed about the needs of their society. Nevertheless, when we go by their actions we must assume what members of the private sector are assuming. I have letters here, and if people think that I am speaking just about my impression of what Government is doing, then they need to read some of these letters.

There is one letter where a person wrote, "During our marketing effort it was clear during the first and second quarters of this year that the Pension Law had received almost total acceptance from the public and employers." If we already arrived this year at a situation where we had almost total acceptance. . . and I would tend to agree with that—I know there are many employers who have schemes already chosen and in place. They are just waiting because they think that Government might not bring it in. They know that some people are still politically saying that it would be suicidal for the National Team to bring in pensions and health insurance because they would not get re-elected in the year 2000. This is the reason for the suspicion.

Mr. Roy Bodden: (Laughter)

Dr. Frank McField: The suspicion is truly based upon fact. We see that Members continued the debate in this House—knowing that some of us were tired from the traffic jam—in order to have their way so that we could somehow think this is something that is also taking place when, in fact, they do not want to face the music. They do not want to do what might be politically unpopular, because people are going to feel it in regard to prices in this country and what they have in their pockets.

Everybody knows there will be a certain amount of additional expense which will demand other adjustments in this country, perhaps even in regard to wages. I have already heard people saying that if we bring a Pensions Bill and prices go up, then we will have to perhaps deal with minimum wage. I am not a defender of minimum wage—not yet—but I am saying that a lot of people realise that there is a certain amount of political fall out that will result because of these two pieces of legislation.

The National Team got re-elected even with these pieces of legislation basically in place. I contend that although working people will have difficulty absorbing these out-of-pocket payments, they will recognise that the future benefits far out-weigh the present sacrifice they will have to make.

In making my speech I am making sure that Members and the public realise that I support the Pension Law because I have no other solution to the question of what to do with people who are no longer considered useful by industry once they turn 65 or even 60. They might live until they are 85, 86 or 87. With improved medicine they might live for a much longer time. Therefore, the quality of life could be drastically improved for our people if we convince them to accept pension savings as a necessary part of future life savings.

I do not believe that the conflict I heard on the floor of this House today between the former and present Minister responsible for pensions, and the Executive Council as a whole, is an indication that we are all resolved to pursuing this, or convincing our people of this.

I am amazed at some of the statements made by the present Minister for Community Affairs. When it was said that it is felt that all the unfinished business could have been completed by the Ministry. . . I am of the opinion that the Civil Service is there to ensure continuity. Whether it is from one election to the next, or one Minister to the next, the Civil Service is there to ensure continuity. I do believe that if we use the Civil Service properly we will always find that the work will be done. It does not really have to be done by the Minister, but it should be done by those who are managers. On many occasions I have pointed out the difference between management and leadership. I see Ministers as being leaders, not managers.

If we want to assure the public that we are not going to take away from them certain benefits that came basically on the shoulders of the First Elected Member for West Bay, then we will not cut the vote to Social Services; we will not show our insensitivity or lack of understanding for social planning by separating Social Services from Community Development. When putting those things into perspective, I have to examine what is happening. There is a story evolving here. I have to read into it. I must say that I am not too bad at interpreting social behaviour and social action. That is my field. I am not a lawyer, but I am a sociologist. If I had not been a sociologist I would not have been able to get up off my feet and come back into these Honourable Chambers.

As a sociologist I am asking, What is the picture? Did the country cry out and say it did not want these social reforms? Yes, there is a part of the country that is suspicious of any social progress. I had to deal with that back in the 1970s when we started to develop social policies, because people were suspicious. On the one hand you want to help people, but on the other hand in helping people you become responsible to those people. They begin to look to you as the person responsible. So we have to always be careful how we administer our caring natures, because that nature can be taken advantage of.

At the same time we have to prevent ourselves from becoming too cold and callous; from becoming too formed by routine and law. We must realise that we are the creators of the law, the law does not create us. It is necessary for us to exhibit a certain amount of sensitivity towards the general public when we make laws. We must show a certain amount of consistency, we must be organised. Therefore, Government as a whole must accept responsibility for the request that the law be suspended at this particular time. It was their job to do.

The Pension Advisory Committee established in June of 1994. . . and we are going into 1998, Mr. Speaker. We are talking about four years to bring this plan to fruition. That is a long time. The people have discussed it over and over in their minds, 'A pension is no good.' 'A pension is good.' 'How much are they going to take out?' they have gone through the whole psychological adjustment. As is asked in one of these letters from one of the providers, "Why disrupt this? Is it for the convenience of the Government?" Why disrupt the entire psyche of the population for the convenience of the Government? Government has to learn to govern in accordance with the psyche of the people rather than out of sync, expecting that every time it does something the people will have to adjust themselves to what it has done—because that is the way Government does it, and the people just have to adjust.

That is not democracy. Democracy has to be tolerant. We have to have tolerance if we are going to live in a democracy. And, by George, that is where we are going to live—in a democracy. That is one reason why the debates in this House have tried the patience of certain Members. They are not used to other people getting up and talking because that is not necessarily a part of their sub-culture.

Mr. Roy Bodden: True!

Dr. Frank McField: We are talking to broaden their horizons, to broaden our own horizons and to broaden the horizons of the people. I am saying that we should not act and expect the people to react, we should be proactive. Government should never have been caught in a situation like this where it now must come saying it desires to suspend the Pensions Law, when, in fact, all we have heard over the years is how important pensions are. So we are putting the Law at risk.

What are we saying? We are saying that there is no risk to it because regardless of how people react to it now, they are going to have to do it anyway. Whenever we get ready to do it, they are going to have to do it. So we are not thinking about the little guy who might say he does not believe Government is serious about it, so he will not be serious either. He has to comply because we are the boss! That is not the way we should do it. We should encourage our people, not coerce them. Coercion is what is necessary when we come to the point where we are not communicating with our people, where we have to get up all of a sudden and say that the pension everybody is prepared to have come into effect in January cannot come into effect because Government is not ready.

The Speaker: Would this be a convenient time to adjourn?

Dr. Frank McField: Yes, Sir.

The Speaker: I will ask for a Motion for the adjournment.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

The Speaker: The question is that this House do now adjourn until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. Those in favour, please say Aye. . . . Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

The Speaker: Prayers by the First Elected Member for West Bay.

PRAYERS

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush : Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived: We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth, that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly, that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy great Name's sake.

Let us say the Lord's Prayer together: Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name. Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us. Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace, now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Presentation of Papers and Reports, the Central Planning Authority & Development Control Board - Annual Report 1996. The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

PRESENTATION OF PAPERS AND REPORTS

CENTRAL PLANNING AUTHORITY & DEVELOPMENT CONTROL BOARD - ANNUAL REPORT 1996

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I beg to lay upon the Table of this Honourable House the Cayman Islands Government Central Planning Authority & Development Control Board - Annual Report 1996.

The Speaker: So ordered. So you wish to speak to it?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I will be brief. As predicted, 1996 was a very busy year for the Planning Department. The number and value of development applications reached an unprecedented high, the highest it has ever reached. Nine hundred applications, with a total value of $215 million were approved by the Central Planning Authority and the Development Control Board. These figures represent increases of 3.7% on the number of applications, and most impressively, 24% over the 1995 values. This is the first time the value of approved projects has exceeded $200 million.

The Central Planning Authority processed an average of 24 applications per meeting in 1996. The types of applications received by the Planning Department followed past trends. The four sectors that continually receive the majority of applications are: residential (or houses), apartment/condominiums, commercial and others. Others includes applications such as sub-divisions, pools, walls, fences and signs, and similar matters.

The distribution of applications according to districts has also been constant with George Town, Bodden Town, and West Bay having the most development activity. Two hundred eighty-one final certificates (or Certificates of Occupancy) were issued in 1996, for a 23% increase over 1995. This means that 23% more projects were completed in 1996 than in 1995.

The long-range section of the Planning Department was very busy preparing for and attending appeal tribunal hearings and development plan tribunal hearings. Three hundred and sixty-four representations covering in excess of 2,000 parcels of land and approximately 1,000 people in total, because some of the representations were signed by a fair amount of people, but 364 representations were made by the public regarding the proposed amendments to the 1977 Development Plan.

I would like to thank Miss Amy McLaughlin, as well as Mr. Kenneth Ebanks, who dealt with these hearings. In fact, three tribunals sat, sometimes two simultaneously, and only one member of my staff in the Ministry dealt with all of those hearings, and that was part-time. These are formal hearings, in person and a lot of work went into it.

I would also like to say that on Cayman Brac and Little Cayman the Development Control Board has experienced a steady flow of applications and the number of approvals granted has remained fairly stable over the last three years. In the past five years the number and value of approvals has increased. The year 1996 was no exception to this trend. Despite the increased work load, the Planning Department was able to improve the level of customer service offered and significantly reduced the number of complaints received. This is a trend which continued in 1997 and it is one of the department's goals for 1998.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the Chairman and all members of the Central Planning Authority, the Chairman and all members of the Development Control Board, the staff, both in Grand Cayman and Cayman Brac, who have dealt so efficiently with the applications and matters.

When I first took over Planning a couple of years ago, I personally dealt with the public's grievances and problems. I felt it was very important that I know what the problems were. While many times I may not have provided the solution, I channelled the grievance to those people who could deal with it. That has now dropped off considerably, even though I have continued to do this. I know that this, together with improved reporting which I now can get on fairly short notice. . . I can get applications that have come in and there are about eleven different columns from the time the application is logged in, when it goes to the planner, to plumbing, to electrical, if it has to go to the Department of the Environment, if it has to go to the Water Authority. All of these are logged in and out, so I can look at an application on one line and see from beginning to end where the application is and why so much time may have been spent in any one area. In the last report I had we were down about 40 days, of which nearly 30 are statutory (21 days' notice must be given and there is a delay with sending it out in the post because it goes in registered mail and a few days for it to come back). So the turnaround is very quick.

Also, the recording of minutes is now computerised (has been for some time) and standard phrases that apply are automatically put in. So I am very happy that the Central Planning Authority and the department have completed the Development Plan. I would like to thank all Members on that.

I look forward this coming year to the Development Plans for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman which must be, and I will see that they are, in accordance with the wishes of a majority of the people of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. The success of the plan here was ensuring that people had the proper representation. As I said, 360 representations came in and were fully heard after following the democratic process.

I thank Members of this Honourable House for the support they have given to Planning and for voting the money each year. I ask them to continue to assist us because the physical planning of this country is very important to our development and to preserving our heritage and areas that should be conserved for our future.

The Speaker: Item number three, Other Business, Private Member's Motion No. 5/97. The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

OTHER BUSINESS

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 5/97

ESTABLISHMENT OF A STANDING SELECT COMMITTEE OF PRIVILEGES

Mr. Roy Bodden: I beg to move Private Member's Motion No. 5/97 Establishment of a Standing Select Committee of Privileges, standing in my name, which reads:

"WHEREAS Standing Order 79 provides that the House may appoint other standing select committees as required from among its Members;

"BE IT NOW THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT this Honourable Legislative Assembly appoints a Standing Select Committee of Privileges to consider and report on any matter affecting the privileges of this Honourable House;

"AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the Committee comprise a Chairman and three other Members of this Honourable House."

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: I second this Motion.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 5/97 has been duly moved and seconded. Would the Mover care to speak to it?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Legislative Assembly stands at the heart of democracy in the Cayman Islands. The standard of conduct observed by the Members of this Honourable Assembly is crucial to the political, social and economic well-being of these Islands. These standards have always been self-imposed and self-regulated because the Legislative Assembly is our supreme institution. They should, to remain effective, always be self-imposed and self-regulated.

I have always held that Parliament and its Members form a fraternity. Like other fraternities, there should be some commonly accepted norms and forms of conduct. I think that we must begin with the presumption that there should exist a modicum of respect among ourselves for one another. I think this is an important point, one that I will amplify later in my presentation. If the membership of the fraternal order has no respect, no feelings of sincerity, passion and identification among its members, that order is weak and chaotic, and cannot be held in high esteem by persons outside that order.

We can say that the past year has been a rough one for politicians, more so than previous years. As a consequence, this Motion gives an excellent opportunity for Members of this Honourable House to set in place a mechanism to re-establish public confidence in our performance and in the institution of Parliament. We should seize this opportunity and not seek to divert the debate down any particular channel because what comes out of this debate, the end result, will not only affect the way we in here are being viewed, but will no doubt affect the way the fraternity and its members will be viewed in the future.

It is self-evident that Ministers and Members of the Legislative Assembly must not be open to aspersion, innuendo, doubt or slander, whether during active service or after they have passed out of these hallowed chambers. I have always held the view that we should try to be like Julius Caesar when he insisted that his wife must be above suspicion of any wrongdoing. Julius Caesar is quoted to have said, "I wish my wife to be not so much as suspected." The circumstances surrounding this quotation illustrate that the standard of conduct for public officials must be high.

I am reminded of that quintessential advisor of princes and politicians, none other than Niccolò Machiavelli, who was reported to have said, "It is not important that the prince have all the qualities which I have enumerated. But it is absolutely important that he be seen to have them." I say this because it is incumbent upon Members to set the rules by which we wish to abide, which we think are necessary, good, transparent, and which will be accepted. We must, both literally and figuratively, be our brother's keeper. But we cannot be our brother's keeper if we stand up and speak falsehoods, utter political diatribes and misrepresent circumstances, behaviour, and speeches of other people. I am saying that charity must begin at home. "Physician, heal thyself." Before we can expect the public, the press and the media to be fair with us, we have to be fair with ourselves—the person speaking not excluded. I am not excluding myself. I am saying that we have to be more honest and open and I am calling for that in this House.

I cannot lay this down without drawing attention to some detrimental, demeaning and mischievous statements made by Members of this Honourable House against each other with the full realisation that these things are not true, only to gain so-called political advantage. I would be less than candid if I did not say that I, at times, have indulged in some of that behaviour myself although lately I have tried to part ways with the more odious of that behaviour especially as I profess to be a born-again Christian.

So, I would accept that when Honourable Members get up to debate the Motion, the Motion will not be led down any particular path or watered down. What is at stake here is greater than me individually or all Members of this Honourable House collectively, because it will be something set down for history and historical precedent. I hope that we can be totally open and honest.

I think it is high time we had a written code which goes beyond our Standing Orders. I think, by the way politics is developing in this country, it is necessary for us to have some sense of prudence and circumspection. I want to make this point because it is important: It is also necessary for us to close rank on occasion and to speak responsibly for one another when certain things are being espoused. Any fraternity which expects to be dynamic has to operate on the presumption that its members are up to a certain standard. Regrettably there are those who seem to thrive on the adversity of others whether they are fraternal members or not.

I hope that with this debate a new vision can be on the horizon. I believe that among people who put themselves up for public office, integrity must be the watchword. We all share a responsibility in this Honourable House and elsewhere by reinforcing the public's confidence in the public service.

So it is incumbent upon us to make the vocation which we have adopted one in which young Caymanians can be inspired by our performance and our conduct to take up when we have vacated (whether that be voluntary or not). The calling of politics and public service is a high calling, second, I contend, only to the call to be a "fisher of men." So, as far as the public's confidence is concerned, we who are privileged to be the trustees of the people should conduct ourselves in every aspect of our lives so that we can be positive role models.

As far as Parliament is concerned, it is for the Parliament to decide the way in which to proceed. It is for the Parliament to decide what avenue should be taken. I have considered many models, but I believe that the best form of regulation and discipline is self-imposed. I believe that the best code we could arrive at is a code which we have structured ourselves. Human nature being what it is, there is always a certain element of resentment against anything which is enforced from the outside. I believe that Members, certainly all of us who are here, have demonstrated and exercised a certain intelligence and more than a modicum of responsibility—although sometimes our behaviour would demonstrate otherwise.

I believe that the Honourable House is eminently equipped to arrive at a mechanism to set up a code of standards and privileges. It is also important that the House have a way of ensuring that whatever is decided upon in this regard, whatever the effort leads to, is maintained. I would hope that we never have to exercise this avenue, but I would feel comforted and assured that if we are ever confronted with such a situation, we have the mechanism at hand and would not have to resort to crisis management or impromptu, or unfamiliar avenues or methods of redress.

The country expects openness from its Elected Members. The citizens of the Cayman Islands must know that their representatives are motivated solely by the noble objectives of public service. Contrary to what many people, including some Ministers and Members of this Honourable House, would like to believe and have espoused from time to time, leadership in the country does not have as its pre-requisite being successful in business, or any particular degree, or being a millionaire, or a director or manager. Leadership in the country has as its pre-requisite a willingness, a nobleness and a desire to be honest, frank, candid and respectful, first of oneself, and then one's peers.

There could be no debate on an issue such as this without mention of Acton's famous dictum, "All power tends to corrupt, and absolute power corrupts absolutely." I think it is important for us to show that while we may be influential, some may even say powerful, we are not averse to humbling ourselves, to let the public and those we serve know that we are prepared to regulate ourselves, not only privately, but in such a way that if there is a serious travesty, we are willing to take embarrassment, although, heaven forbid it reaches such a level. I think at this point the public's confidence in their servants will be reinforced.

There are several models we could adopt. I alluded earlier to the fact that I believe the most effective would be something devised by Honourable Members themselves. In some jurisdictions there is what is called a 'Parliamentary Commissioner.' This commissioner would be like an ombudsman who is responsible for investigating complaints received against Members. In our jurisdiction, the weakness of this method is that those commissioners are usually not elected Members, they might be persons who are not even eligible to be elected, hence, I would have some reservations with someone ineligible sitting in judgement of the fraternity. While that may be one model, the weakness is that we would be subjected to external entities who, by virtue of the fact that they do not meet certain criteria cannot understand certain situations and implications. The strength of it would be that such a person would be contracted and therefore impartial, by virtue of the fact that they would be brought in from outside, no connection real or apparent. Their judgement would be strictly based on the facts at hand. They would be paid as a professional to perform.

The other model, which I think is more aptly suited to our case, is one in which Members sit in judgement. A man is judged by his peers. It could happen two ways—it could happen using the Speaker as Chairperson, or it could be a system in which there are three, five, or seven Members with a Chairman elected from among them. I think that would be the more apt model in our case, because whatever decision we arrive at, we would have to set up an appellate body. If we have a system in which three, five or seven Members chose from among themselves a chairman, and they sit as an investigative body, and there is an eventuality for an appeal, that appeal could take place in the larger corpus of Members sitting, and the Speaker occupy the Chair, as he does now in the Legislative Assembly. So we would have a small investigative body passing judgement and if someone is aggrieved, they could appeal to the full Legislative Assembly with the Speaker sitting, as he does now, as Chairman. If the matter was so grave and the lower body wanted to refer it to the full assembly, the Speaker would still sit and occupy the Chair as the Speaker does now, of the Legislative Assembly.

I think, of the three models I have outlined, that one seems to be the most logical. If it is a very controversial case, one is bound to conclude that there is likely to be some aggrieved party. One could say they did not think the punishment was sufficient and would want to take it to the higher body. Or the person aggrieved could think that they were overly harsh and would want an appeal. If it goes beyond the Speaker, it would have to be taken external to Parliament. If someone is suspended for a year or whatever the case may be, they may want to take it to a higher body yet. I am saying that we have to set up a process so that there is an avenue for the person, if he is dissatisfied, to appeal it to the next body.

I am cognisant that we have in our Standing Orders and in Erskine May some provision for dealing with some matters of misconduct. But I also contend that these are, for the most part, related to internal matters. I am sure that Members are familiar with this. I draw their attention to the First Report of the Committee on Standards in Public Life by Lord Nolan in the United Kingdom. This investigation into the conduct of public servants emanated from several concerns. Some people described it as a 'culture of sleaze'—various incidents of misconduct, various accusations. As a matter of fact, in the United Kingdom, some Members of the Conservative Party were recently prosecuted when it was discovered that some of them had taken monies from a wealthy entrepreneur to ask questions in Parliament.

In our jurisdiction, we do not have things like that to worry about, thank God. We do not have any 'culture of sleaze,' or corruption. We do not have any culture of people paying Members to ask certain questions or to take a certain line in debate or a vote. But that does not mean that we cannot establish a standard of privileges so that we can say to the public, 'Here is what we are conscious can happen, and here is what we have done in the eventuality.' It goes back to Machiavelli's famous dictum: It is not important that the prince have the qualities, but it is important that he be seen to have them.

So we can say 'We believe we are doing well and to show that we are conscientious and straightforward, here is what we are prepared to do.' In other words, it is an acknowledgement that we realise that public life and conduct in public life is based on certain standards and principles by which we are prepared to abide.

I like the notion the ancient Greeks had. They talked about virtue. Virtue can be taken to mean many things: most elementary, truth, forthrightness, being candid. But also, in terms of public service, when the Greeks said that a man or a woman was virtuous, they often meant that the person was sincere, willing to humble themselves, to be an example. Those who are familiar with the annals of early Greece will know that it was always a contentious issue. Socrates was tried, great, brilliant teacher and orator though he was, on charges that he was a corrupter of the youth. There was a big debate and his protégé, Aristotle, went to great lengths to defend him.

If we have read Plato in the Republic, we will discern some of the qualities which the Greeks thought necessary for their public servants. To stand up and say that all that is necessary for someone to lead is that they be degreed, or be a millionaire or come from a certain caste or that they have a certain power of oratory is to be seriously flawed. I believe that great leaders, and history shows this, have risen from among the humble—Mahatma Gandhi, Dr. Martin Luther King. Perhaps the quintessential modern example is a person named Nelson Mandela. Right now he is in the news, a man who at 79 years of age, in the pinnacle of power, has demonstrated his humility, not by turning the African National Congress on the white minority and getting even, but by establishing a Truth Commission and by accepting and embracing all as brothers.

He has now done the ultimate as a leader—because many of us get drunk and arrogant and hold on and stay in, as I have heard Members say, to keep someone else out. He is leaving when he is at the pinnacle. Right now he is setting wheels in motion so that his successor, Thabo Mbeki, can take over in 1999. I know people here who are probably going to die here because they think they are going to keep other people out.

The standards we set have as much to do with that kind of thing as it has to do with our conduct outside these halls, how we address one another and how we speak to one another. This country and this Parliament are greater than any individual—greater than the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town and greater even than Ministers. It is incumbent that we realise that there are standards by which we have to abide.

I would like to quote this text because when I studied public affairs, this author, William Greider, was how Moses is in the Bible. In his book, "Who will tell the people—The betrayal of American democracy," on page 12 he writes this:

"At the highest levels of government, the power to decide things has instead gravitated from the many to the few, just as ordinary citizens suspect. Instead of popular will, the government now responds more often to narrow webs of power—the interests of major economic organizations and concentrated wealth and the influential elites surrounding them. These organizations and individuals manage to shape the largest outcomes to the extent that anyone does, while they neutralize or deflect what ordinary people think and believe.

"In place of meaningful democracy, the political community has embraced a permissive culture of false appearances. Government responds to the public's desires with an artful dance of symbolic gestures. . . ."

He goes on to say, and this is the most important part, "When ordinary people organize themselves to confront the deception, they find themselves too marginalized to make much difference."

Mr. Speaker, I believe it is high time we set in writing a code which will take us out of any position of situational ethics, any appearance of what one author terms "the appearance of impropriety." The final point I wish to make before I retire to my seat is that no country is immune from these threats or encroachments from time to time—the ancient Greeks, and now the great United States. There is a loud and acrimonious debate going on right now in the United States with accusation and counterac-cusation between the Republicans and Democrats, between individuals and the machinery. They have the benefit of over two hundred years of participatory democracy. They realise that they have not covered all the boundaries.

We are well on our way, but there are many things that we can do. So, Mr. Speaker, this Motion is a good opportunity for us to demonstrate our sincerity, to demonstrate our maturity, our willingness. I will not be surprised if there are attempts to deflect or water down, or suggest that what is proposed is not important or is already covered. There may be those with self-serving interests who do not wish to have any regulatory mechanism, be it self-regulatory or otherwise. It has happened before. I witnessed it vividly when we brought the Motion on the Register of Interests.

I have faith and confidence that truth and sincerity will prevail. So, to the hypocrites I say: If the righteous can scarcely be saved, I wonder where the ungodly will stand. Having made my point, I will take my seat and hope that the Motion will be seen for the merit it bears.

Thank you.

The Speaker: Before asking other Members to speak, this may be a convenient time to take the morning break. It is my understanding that Standing Committees need to meet during the break and I recommend that we break for thirty minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.28 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12.17 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Debate continues on Private Member's Motion No. 5/97. Does any other Member wish to speak? The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

This Motion deals with one of the most serious matters in any Parliament, that of the Privileges of Parliament. I understood from the Mover and the Seconder (who is not here now) that the Motion was going to be put over until the following session. As a result, I am afraid that I am not quite as prepared as I would like to have been, because this is a serious matter.

One of the first things Privilege brings to bear is that when Members of this House give their word, they should try to stick by their word.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order.

The Speaker: May I hear your point of order?

POINT OF ORDER

(Misleading)

Mr. Roy Bodden: If the Minister is insinuating that any word was given that this Motion was going to be deferred, the Minister is misleading the House. I said I would consider deferring it. Indeed, it has been deferred up to this point.

The Speaker: That is an elucidation.

Please continue, Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I do not dispute what was said there, but my clear impression was that when he said he was going to do something, if he considered otherwise he should have at least had the courtesy of telling the person elucidating it as has now been done by the Member.

Having said that, this matter is so important that to have a Chairman and three other Members of this House make privileges for this House is not right. It must be a Committee of the full House with you, Sir, sitting as Chairman, and I would like to show why that is the position.

It is very clear in our Standing Orders that the enforcement of order in this House, under Standing Order 40 says, “The Presiding Officer is responsible for the observance of the rules of order in the House and in Committees of the whole House respectively, and his decision upon any point of order shall not be open to appeal and shall not be reviewed by the House save upon a substantive motion made after notice.”

It then goes on to deal with power on breaches in 41(1) which reads: “(1)The Presiding Officer, after having called the attention of the House, or of a Committee, to the conduct of a Member who persists in irrelevance or tedious repetition, either of his own arguments . . .” It goes on in different areas and details of what is called “naming a Member” which permits you, Sir, to suspend a Member from the service of the House under Standing Order 41(4).

I am very surprised that a Motion of this importance would be brought here without any terms of reference. The first thing that has to be made very clear is that the powers of the Chair to enforce order—and it seems to me that no differentiation was made by the Mover of this Motion between the enforcement of order by you, Mr. Speaker, and what your traditional rights throughout hundreds of years in other countries have been defined. So this Motion, first of all, cannot deal with what the Standing Orders deal with, and is, therefore, badly flawed.

If we look at Mays, the 21st Edition, at page 392, it states in paragraph (4), Powers of the Chair to Enforce Order, “In so large and active an assembly as the House of Commons, it is absolutely necessary that the Speaker should be invested with the authority to repress disorder and to give effect promptly and decisively to the rules and orders of the House. The ultimate authority on all these matters is the House itself; but the Speaker is the executive officer by whom its rules are enforced.”

“In most cases the breach of order is obvious and is immediately checked by the Speaker. . . .” and it goes on. In the following paragraph it says, “The power to punish disorder derives from the ancient usages of the House in proceeding against a Member; but in modern times the Speaker has been armed by standing orders, with precisely defined summary powers, which largely supersede those exercised under ancient usage.”

First of all, I believe the Motion should have had in it terms of reference, but given that perhaps the Mover was unable to do those terms of reference, the only thing that could be done with that is with a full Committee of all Members, with you presiding, then those terms of reference should be made. But they have to exclude the powers of the Speaker in here. There can be no question about a scenario where there is some appellate body, or appellate committee that deals with reviewing decisions. That just cannot be on a committee with three, and a chairman who may not even be the Speaker of the House.

At page 82 of Mays, we find this short section which says, “Throughout the long history of parliamentary privilege, the need to balance two potentially conflicting principles—both first enunciated in the seventeenth century—has become clear. On the one hand, the privileges of Parliament are rights ‘absolutely necessary for the due execution of its powers’; and on the other, the privilege of Parliament granted in regard of public service ‘must not be used for the danger of the commonwealth’ . . .” It goes on to talk about the passing of the Parliamentary Privileges Act of 1770, which dealt with the privilege of freedom from arrest that was enjoyed by Members.

One other area that may throw some light on this is. . . I perhaps better come back to that because it is further on. It deals with the development of those privileges over the years. Privileges of Parliament have been extensive throughout the years. That is why I think it is important when you look at the many privileges that exist—freedom of expression in here, freedom of speech, the early powers of freedom from arrest, the immunities that were given—this is not a committee to be taken lightly.

What is more important. . . and I heard a preacher once say, “I’d rather see a sermon than hear one any day; I’d rather one should walk with me, than merely show the way.” Making these rules in here, if we are going to have Members of this House continuously interrupting in the background, or if we are going to have Members of this House when you, Mr. Speaker, ask them to take their seat, stand up and not sit and say that they are not giving way. These are serious matters and have to be looked at.

The passing of these is like any other law, if it is not followed it will not have any effect. At the end of the day the thrust of conduct and privilege and etiquette in this House has to come from the Members themselves.

Mr. Roy Bodden: He is saying the same thing I said.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, this is what I am talking about. The largest number of interruptions—and I can safely say this, Mr. Speaker—that are done in the background, are by that same Third Elected Member for Bodden Town who is now bringing this Motion.

So what I am saying, rather than preaching this, Members should live by it. When each Member gets up he has a right to speak without interruption from other Members, and having his chain of thought broken by the constant pounding of desks and interruptions in the background that are heard continuously, especially during this session. Some, I know, is allowed. Do not get me wrong, Mr. Speaker. It is your discretion. Many times it may not be audible to you whereas it is to us. But giving Members the right to speak without unnecessary interruptions is important.

There have been times when one could really wonder whether the laws made here are laws which Members here should follow fully. I mean, one of these is the Register of Interests. Some Members, prior to the election, did not fill in the section that dealt with contributions to their campaigns—a very vital thing. In instances where there was. . .

(The Fourth Elected Member for George Town rose)

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: What are you rising on?

Dr. Frank McField: A point of order.

The Speaker: May I hear your point of order?

POINT OF ORDER

Dr. Frank McField: I was just reading in Mays Parliamentary Bible [Practice] here that the reports, or what is done in a committee cannot be reported before it is brought back to the House.

The Speaker: I really do not understand what you are speaking about.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Neither do I, Mr. Speaker. I am just going to . . . (addressing the Fourth Elected Member for George Town) Go ahead.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: I am a Member of the Committee for the Register of Interests. It is from that privileged position that I am suggesting that what the Minister is saying has to do with certain things we discussed in the Committee today.

The Speaker: I do not think that either you or he should bring that into this Honourable House.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: That Honourable Member is breaking the rules of this House. What I was referring to I have legally obtained under section 3 subsection (3) of the Register of Interest Law, 1996 which says, “The Register shall be open for public inspection at the office of the Legislative Assembly at all times during normal business hours.” I inspected it in accordance with that and that is what I am referring to. I do not know what that Member is referring to, maybe he should retract whatever he may have said in relation to the Committee if he wishes to. What I am saying has nothing to do with any Select Committee, it is rights I have under this Law, and which all Members of the public have under this Law.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town, do you understand what the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning is saying? He is not referring to that. You are referring to a specific standing House Committee meeting and that is not permitted. Please do not go into that any further.

The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning, please continue.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The point I am making is that making rules, making Standing Order, making laws, it is the duty of Members of this House, first of all, to familiarise themselves with the laws and rules, then to follow them. I pointed to that one area, I did not call any names, where it was obvious that a very important part of the Register of Interests had not been filled in.

The other aspect that Privileges are built on is the acceptance in a democracy of ‘majority rule.’ While we remain a democracy, this House and Committees operate on that principle. It is something that needs to be humbly accepted at times as the votes in different areas move in different ways from time to time.

I would like to go back to Mays, the 21st Edition, turning to page 135. About six lines down it says, “That Committee [a committee of privileges] made their recommendations following their examination of the Report of the Select Committee on Parliamentary Privilege. . . in which it was suggested that in general the House should exercise its penal jurisdiction (i) in any event as sparingly as possible, and (ii) only when satisfied that to do so was essential in order to provide reasonable protection for the House, its Members or its officers from improper obstruction or attempt at or threat of obstruction causing, or likely to cause, substantial interference with the performance of their respective functions.” We see there some elucidation of areas that could be raised.

Page 392, which I read from earlier, read with these other sections, makes it very clear that this House, this Committee of Privileges, should not try to hive out and grant itself privileges that go beyond those that exist now, Mr. Speaker. It seems that we have just about all the privileges needed. But if they must do so, then your position as Speaker, has to be preserved, and the authority that you have within the Standing Orders and beyond that, hopefully whatever is approved will follow the privileges that are ancient and have been used in other commonwealth Parliaments.

So, the Honourable Member who moved this Motion may wish to amend it so that the Committee of Privileges will consist of all Members of this House with you, Mr. Speaker, as Chairman, and there will be some undertaking that there will be proper terms of reference. What I have heard today as possibilities for a Committee of Privileges cannot, in some of those areas, be dealt with by this Committee. Very early in this long, long session, I called on Members of the House to avoid making angry speeches, to avoid making speeches that were charged, and to try to keep to relevant matters and that, I think, is one of the most important things this Committee should confirm.

The duty of any profession is to discipline itself from within. To be frank, Mr. Speaker, most privileges and conduct are basically common courtesy to one's fellow man. I would say to Members that the most important thing I find with this is that the saying I learned from a minister, "I'd rather see a sermon than hear one any day; I'd rather one should walk with me than merely show the way": show by example that one can be courteous, that one can be polite, and that one has respect for the authority of the Chair and for fellow Members. This has to be the cardinal rule of privileges within this House.

For my part, and I believe it is supported by Members, we do need and we can support a Committee of Privileges, but terms of reference would have to be made right after. Secondly, it should have, as I understand is customary in other jurisdictions, the Speaker in whom 90% of privileges fall within this House. Your decisions are final and absolute. This Committee would be dealing with matters mainly that go beyond that, or complaints raised in relation to Members on matters outside the proceedings of this House.

I am for the Motion, provided there can be an amendment. Mr. Speaker, I did speak to the Seconder of this, the First Elected Member for George Town, and told him I could support this if he would make these amendments. I will stick to my word on that. It is a bit late in the day for anyone else to try to draft amendments to it, but I would stay by my word, and if these amendments can be made, I will be happy to support it. Thank you.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak?
The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: I would like to begin my contribution to Private Member's Motion No. 5/97, To Establish a Standing Select Committee of Privileges, by briefly referring to what the previous speaker said about the powers of the Chair to enforce order. He mentioned page 392 in Erskine May, but did not go as far as page 393 where it says, ". . . the Speaker has been armed by standing orders, with precisely defined summary powers . . ." That is, the ancient concepts regarding privileges have been refined and modified slightly over a long period of time in Parliamentary history. Some of the privileges had to do with the conflict with the Commons and the Crown and the Lords in feudal societies. Many of the privileges Parliament enjoys come out of historical experiences that may, to some extent, no longer be relevant. Therefore, it is not fair to take these powers of the Chair to enforce order to the extent that one does not point out that the Speaker himself is guided by Standing Orders.

I hope I understand correctly when I say that what is being attempted here is not to deal with those types of privileges. We have a situation, and I refer to page 84, where:

"Subject to the rules of order in debate. . . , a Member may state whatever he thinks fit in debate, however offensive it may be to the feelings, or injurious to the character, of individuals; and he is protected by his privilege from any action for libel, as well as from any other question or molestation.

"At the same time, article IX preserves the authority of both Houses to restrain and even punish their Members who, by their conduct, offend the House."

My understanding of this Motion is that as a result of the privilege of freedom of speech, the freedom to debate, in order that Parliament might carry out its constitutional duties to the citizens of a country, for Members not to be impeded in carrying out their responsibilities, certain privileges had to be established, especially at a time in history when democracy was not accepted as progressive and beneficial to the entire society. In fact, the old feudal hierarchy was trying to preserve its privileges existing outside the House of Parliament.

Those of us who understand the historical evolution of the concept of freedom of speech also realise that those freedoms are being abused today by certain persons and organisations that take it to mean that we can have freedom without responsibility. When we are talking about responsibility, I understand that we are not talking about heated debates, where Members are speaking to one another. Because I believe, as somebody who comes from the outside, not too long ago was on the outside, more damage and more insult is done to the general public who cannot defend themselves than is done to individual Members in this House who can get up and defend themselves. In a lot of cases the Speaker would bring it to attention that the Member on the floor is imputing certain types of immoral or unethical principles on the part of their colleague. So the whole concept that there exists a fraternity among politicians tends to give them a certain amount of protection, regardless of how their attitudes towards one another might be inflamed by debate.

The concept of privileges was not evolved historically to safeguard the debate primarily between Members, but to ensure that Members in debating would not be impeded by the Crown that was sovereign, and by the House of Lords; that they could be protected in terms of their desires, consciences and convictions, to carry out debate in such a way that it would be beneficial to the entire society. But it is not something that has to do with what one Member says to the other Member. I think politics and Members are thick-skinned enough to be able to get through those hurdles. But what about people on the outside, who are occasionally, I remember, brought into focus, especially during the political campaigning period that takes place shortly before general elections in this Legislative Assembly? I believe, and I understand, that this Motion might help in saying that we have a code we should follow, and my interest is not in safeguarding the position of the politician. It is not in making that more comfortable, so he can sit and not feel grieved by what another Member is saying. My desire is to see that the general public's rights are not obstructed, that the question of privilege is not used in this House to erode the freedoms we are here to protect in the first place. That is a balancing act. I think most Parliaments have realised it is a tremendous task.

But Mr. Speaker, the kind of political advantages we sometimes get, especially shortly before elections, from violating what we know to be the correct code of conduct, supersedes, in most cases, our own principles of self-righteousness.

Mr. Roy Bodden: True.

Dr. Frank McField: Because, Mr. Speaker, there is this feeling of self-righteousness in this House that sometimes grieves me.

Mr. Roy Bodden: True, true enough.

Dr. Frank McField: We can believe that we are good, but the enforcement of good should not be left to individuals' consciences. We should make the enforcement of good the subject of laws or regulations. If we do that for our citizens, there is no reason we should not do that for ourselves. So we are asking that we as a group realise the need for some form of conduct, and the policing of conduct, that would cause us to be more sensitive and more careful in using our privileges. Because although these privileges are necessary, in the historical sense, they are very extreme principles, and therefore in modern times, there is a necessity to modify or alter these principles in such a way that they do not create hardships for individual persons in our communities. We know too well how persons come by and say, 'They said this about me in the Legislative Assembly, but if I said that about them out here, they would take me to court for libel.' I believe a change in the attitudes of Members of Parliament would be well-desired by the general public. I believe the general public is behind such a motion, that when the people understand that what is being sought here is not to remove the Speaker from his position to enforce order in the Legislative Assembly, but to make his position easier. Because we are establishing a code of conduct which will assist him in not having to always remind us of our duties and our obligations in using these very privileged positions.

Mr. Roy Bodden: True.

The Speaker: Are you going to another point now? This would be a convenient time for lunch.

Dr. Frank McField: Yes, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: We will suspend until 2.30 PM.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.56 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.40 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Debate on Private Member's Motion continues. The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, before we took the mittagpause, we were considering the merit of Private Member's Motion 5/97, To Establish a Standing Select Committee of Privileges. Mr. Speaker, we first need to define "privileges." The concept of privilege is designed to ensure the proper workings of Parliament. As I had mentioned before, I did not agree with the previous speaker, that establishment of this Committee would somehow erode Standing Order 41, which gives the presiding officer the power to deal with breaches of order in the House. I have had the opportunity to go through the sections of Standing Order 41, and Mr. Speaker, I do not agree that it would lessen the position of the presiding officer, since most of what is in this Standing Order deals with issues and conduct affecting the ways in which debates are conducted and handled, and gives the Speaker, therefore, the final authority in seeing that the business of the House can be carried out, and should not be interrupted by Members.

On page 393, in dealing with the disciplinary powers under Standing Order 41, the areas we are looking at regarding the Speaker's power are "irrelevance, or tedious repetition, minor breaches of order, the use of disorderly or unparliamentary expressions, grossly disorderly conduct, grave disorder, and obstruction of the business of the House otherwise than by disorderly conduct or persistence in irrelevance or tedious repetition." This is, more or less, giving us a pretty good indication that Standing Orders attempt to put into statute the powers of the Chair, and to define those powers. Not to limit the ability of the Chair to rule over the House, but to give Members a quick indication of the powers of the Chair, so we do not have to guess about it, or question the Chair regarding establishing and accepting these powers.

So again I would like to point out that the last Member's suggestion, or building the argument, based upon the concept that this Committee, if it were established, would be taking away or eroding or duplicating the powers of the Chair, is not founded.

I think we must be careful not to develop a culture of slackness with regard to the political behaviour of Members of the Legislative Assembly. To avoid this, I think there is a strong need to establish a Select Committee of Privileges. This does not mean that the Committee would take away any privilege from Members, but it would hold individual Members accountable for the ways in which these privileges are exercised. Again, I feel it is important for us to realise that although we might have examples from other countries, we have to use our own creativity and insight to create a political atmosphere or culture in this country that will not only serve us as present serving Members of the Legislative Assembly, but will go to assist future generations in what their conduct and behaviour should be.

If the people in England did not write down or come to some resolution as to what must be as a result of their political experiences, we would not have very many guidelines to go by. But we are in the process of making political experiences for ourselves, and we are a small Parliament. We are aware of many of the difficulties that exist regarding usage of some of these privileges, in particular, the freedom of speech. It is for this particular reason that I support bringing a motion of this type to the House. I would hope that all Members would support this motion, not because it is easy to understand what this motion is, but because the word "privilege" has many connotations. It could suggest that the Committee is trying to superimpose its will on the will which the Parliament of this country has inherited, the right to be able to do the people's business without being hindered.

It is also important whether this Committee is a Committee of the whole House. I think the Committee should be a small Committee to begin with. Then if there were a need for a person brought before the Committee to appeal a decision, that appeal should go to the Speaker of the House. So in a sense, the Speaker of the House, although he is not on a day-to-day basis involved in the actual workings of the Committee, is the final arbiter regarding what is right and correct in use of these privileges. So rather than have the Speaker involved, or have the whole House involved in some of these matters—because hopefully it would be a Committee that would be established, with a term of reference established thereafter, and hopefully the Committee would have no work to do, in the sense that it would not have to discipline its Members, because as we all know, the Members of this House are all perfect! So we would assume that at least for the next three years, the Committee would have no work to do.

We would therefore have a Committee established, not just to deal with this political generation or term, but it would begin to crystallise and formalise what we, as a political generation, think would be good political behaviour, how we should use the privileges which have been handed down to us.

Many, many times I have to think that people who have received their freedom, rights and privileges, not as a result of any struggle of any kind, not like the Americans got their rights as a result of the American Revolution. Not as the English House of Commons and the common people in England got their rights as a result of the struggles in England during the sixteenth century; not like the people in France got their rights as a result of the struggles towards the end of the eighteenth century. People who have had to struggle, people who have had to sacrifice to have privileges, really, truly know the value of those privileges.

But sometimes when privileges are handed down like second-hand clothes, people begin to forget why those privileges were established in the first instance. Therefore there is a need for a reawakening regarding privileges. There is a need for us to go back over what we consider to be our inherent privileges as legislators. In many cases, we have had, in other parliaments of the world, modifications to privileges, and we have had parliaments that have surrendered certain types of privileges as well.

We would be looking for, in this sense, an honest assessment from Members, especially those who have had parliamentary experience over the last twenty years, say, to be able to say in what way they might want to modify certain privileges, in order that the general public can be protected from parliamentary assaults against them, especially nearing elections.

Mr. Speaker, I believe I have dealt with most of the points brought up by the last speaker, in that I have been able to say that the establishment of this Committee would not rob the Chair of its responsibility for the enforcement of order. In fact, the terms of reference could be made right after the passing of this Motion. We are at a cross-roads, when it is no longer possible to think that only legal minds can run countries. I say this because some people have the attitude that as we do things, those things are not well done if they are not formulated in a particular manner. But it depends how a process begins. A process can begin from a humanistic point of view. It can begin with a desire to see something done. So the desire to see that the motives of Members of the Legislative are in line with certain principles of virtue, principles of ancient and modern political behaviour, principles having to do with lack of selfishness, with integrity, objectivity, accountability, openness and honesty. To see that somehow there is an awareness established, institutionalised among us, by way of a Committee, to see that our actions and our attitudes are questioned on a day-to-day basis, is something I consider a move to be complimented. I would like to compliment the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town for bringing this Motion to the House, for allowing me the possibility to understand that what he is saying here is more than the words. Because when we take the word 'privilege' for instance, we find out that we can experience a whole heap of experiences, just through looking at the historical evolution of how parliaments gained privileges in the first place. And we can have an understanding of whether politicians or elected Members should sit selfishly by and guard those principles that people had to accumulate because of the conflicts in which they were found, and today we do not have those same conflicts, but yet we are saying that we want to preserve our privileges, where the general public out there cannot answer back to us. I am in particular concerned regarding statements made by way of this House, in this Legislative Assembly, that cannot necessarily be easily corrected or monitored or controlled by the Chair, because they have to do with individuals' characters and individual people's businesses outside the Legislative Assembly. It has nothing to do with the conduct in here.

Therefore, again, I say that I must compliment the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, who is not a lawyer! Who does not always formulate things in a rigid legalistic manner! But in his words and in his sayings and in his attitude, there is a uniqueness and a softness and a sensitivity that we know is real. Therefore the Motion has to be taken seriously. Not because of its wording, but because of the implication of the entire exercise. We can always sit down and reword it if we want to, but I think everybody knows exactly what the Motion is attempting to establish. We need to realise that there are different types of education. There are different types of knowledge. And when we live in a very specialised world, when we must make laws for a society that has become very specialised and very complex, we need integrated experiences. We need people with different types of qualifications. And not one of those qualifications, like the spoke in the wheel, is any more valuable than the others. So I believe that when motions come from this side of the Parliament, they will be taken seriously, because even if those motions are defeated, the general public knows that there was sincerity and consideration, and that means that there is a need for this type of motion, and the country will be better off, and the people as a whole would be better off if this were put into play. So I am asking other Members to support this motion, and I am—I am sorry for that short break. I was just trying to get my words together, since I feel that this is a very important Motion. I get the feeling that it might not be supported by the House, Mr. Speaker. There is the concern that it would be truly a waste of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, if this effort of his, this sincere concern of his, was not given some serious, sensitive consideration.

Mr. Speaker, the establishment of a Standing Committee regarding a Register of Interests in this country, obviously I was not here at that time. But apparently it was also an introduction into the structure and government of Members of the House that was not necessarily viewed by all as having any relevance. But as we go along, we find out that these things do play a very important part in protecting the public. So I believe that this legislation would be in the same vein as that of registration of interests. So the privilege of an elected Member is being managed by the existence of such a Committee, because we no longer have the same rights and privileges regarding being involved in business, and at the same time serving in the House, that we had before. We do not have the same ability not to register our involvement with businesses as do members of the public. We can see that there is a move in these halls to see that we scrutinise one another, that we act in such a way as to guarantee the public, or at least show the public, that we are willing to live by self-discipline, by rules and regulations which we create to guide ourselves as we continue to do their work.

I would like to say in closing that Members who are more experienced than I am could probably say many more positive things about this Motion, could probably get up and say more about why it is needed, because they have much more experience. A lot of them went through that election campaign of 1996 that was very, very harsh and very hard on people. All sorts of things came out of it. This is what the public will remember me for saying. The public will remember me for saying that the reason the Standing Committee on Privileges should be established is not to protect Members of the Legislative Assembly, but to protect the public from Members of the Legislative Assembly. I think that if we cannot give the public that type of consideration, it shows that our reasoning might be right, but our feelings are completely wrong.

The Speaker: It is open to debate. Does any other Member wish to speak? The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

So that the public of this country can really understand what this Motion is all about, Private Member's Motion No. 5/97 calls for establishment of a Standing Select Committee on Privileges. This Motion is spawned from a desire for truth. Simply put, that is all it is. It reads:

“WHEREAS Standing Order 79 provides that the House may appoint other standing select committees as required from among its Members;

“BE IT NOW THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT this Honourable Legislative Assembly appoints a Standing Select Committee of Privileges to consider and report on any matter affecting the privileges of this Honourable House;

“AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED THAT the Committee comprise a Chairman and three other Members of this Honourable House.”

Before we get into the meat of the matter, so that the Motion is very clear, the Chairman of that Committee does not have to be a Member of this Honourable House. It might be, but it does not have to be. I see the Leader of Government Business looking up. While I was not here this morning, I had my commentary. I am not finished, in fact, I have not even started.

The people of this country must understand why this Motion is here right now: It will not change, regardless of what they said before, and the reason it will not change is because they live a lie.

Do not look at me like that, Mr. Speaker. I will explain.

The Speaker: It is not a word I particularly care for.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I am sorry, Sir.

Mr. Speaker, the Government juxtaposes every position in their favour. Right now they had better call all of their numbers in because, trust me, when I am finished it will not be good. I will not stray, Sir, I am going to deal with the Privileges of this House.

The biggest culprit in this Honourable Legislative Assembly is the Leader of Government Business. For twenty years he has led the people of this country to believe that anything he says is Bible. He has used the privileges of this House to say so. Mr. Speaker, I will not fail again, but he does not understand the truth. He cannot!

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order, Sir. The Honourable Member is imputing that I do not understand the truth and that I do not say the truth. Are we discussing privileges? He must support a statement that wide, with respect.

The Speaker: Please be careful with what you are saying. Explain what you. . .

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I am very careful and I proved last Friday that the Member I am talking about, the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning, the Leader of Government Business, did not speak the truth. If I am lying, we can call off everything now and you can bring the Hansards because I do not lie, and I will not lie to this country.

If he is calling a point of order about the truth, I say so and I say so again—and I say why I say so because he does not know the truth. If he did I would not be able to tell him last Friday what the truth is.

He called the point of order, Sir. I ask you to make a ruling.

The Speaker: Shall we adjourn and look at the Hansard? Is that what you are requesting?

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, any way you choose, Sir. I am saying that the Minister for Education who is the Leader of Government Business does not know the truth. When I said what I said Friday, I proved that he does not know the truth. If what I am saying is not true, let him prove me different, Sir.

The Speaker: I do not think we are dealing with what you said last Friday, we are dealing with what you are saying today.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, on this same point of order, we are now discussing privileges in the House and being courteous to each other. I hope the public listens to this. But he is making a general statement that I do not understand the truth. I mean. . .

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, let me explain to you, and I will, Sir.

The Speaker: Please continue.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: For twenty years of this country's life the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning has misled this country. He can call a point of order. . .

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I take a point of order. He said for twenty years I misled this country? With due respect, this has to stop somewhere. I mean, this is untrue.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Would you let me finish, please? The Member was not even in this House twenty years ago.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I will let him finish, Sir, but twenty years ago I was still listening. And, Mr. Speaker, so as not to put you in a spot, Sir, I will sit down, take my time and I will come back. But I said what I said, and I meant what I said, and the people of this country can decide whether what I said was true or not.

The Speaker: I would like to call to your attention that under Standing Order 28(1) it says: "A Member who wishes to raise a matter which he believes affects the privileges of the House shall do so at the first available sitting of the House. He shall inform the Presiding Officer of his intention, stating the matter which he proposes to raise." You have not done that.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Yes, Sir, and I apologise.

The Speaker: Can you move on to another portion of your speech, and come back to this at a later time?

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I will do that, Sir. No problem. I will come back at a later time.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, may I just ask, is the Honourable Member withdrawing the statement that for twenty years I have lied, or not told the truth? Or are you going to leave that hanging before the public? Misled the country, rather.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, again, trust me. I do not wish to put you on the spot. But he will have to deal with that with you because I am not withdrawing that statement. I did not say he lied, I said (and I will say it again) that for twenty years he misled this country. He will never do it again, Sir.

The Speaker: Are you prepared to move under Standing Order 28 at a later date?

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Yes, Sir.

The Speaker: Then please move on.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker.

As I said very early in my contribution to this debate, this Motion is spawned by a desire for truth. I quoted the Motion. The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town has lived under the continual attempts of retribution from the Second Elected Member for George Town. There are times when this country has to know what truth is. And, Sir, my respectful submission before I go any further is that the truth will prevail—it might take some time, but it will prevail. The difference with me is simply that I am here because I have a desire to serve the people of this country. I am not here because I want to be 'god' to anyone.

The beauty in all of that is as I said before, and I am going to use the same style as the Minister for Education who is the Leader of Government Business, I am going to repeat the point I want to make. The difference is, I am going to tell the truth. I want to be here for the people of this country to understand the truth. He is pulling every book that he can now, Sir, to see what he can call a point of order on. And he can call it all he wishes. In fact, if he really has no alternative, I will sit down and give way if he wants to say something. But tell him not to be long, Sir. This is only the beginning, Sir, not the end.

He thought that because I was not here this morning I would not know his commentary. He also thought, I believe, that I would not be here this afternoon. But I am!

I go back to the Motion. The Motion is based on a simple desire for the truth. It might seem like I am pointing every argument today and tomorrow to the Minister for Education, who is the Leader of Government Business. So be it. But I am not going to stray from the point of argument to prove why this Motion is as valid as anything else that has ever happened in this House. I will do that, Sir.

As he looks, he can pull every paper in the book. He can call his battery of lawyers. It does not matter to Kurt Tibbetts. I might go home, but he will not send me home. Not him.

I am going to use an example to show you, the Members of this Honourable House, and the country why this Motion is being brought. When I am through speaking, if there is anything I say which is untrue, I will give way any time for anyone to tell me and prove that it is not true. But I have to use this example to show you why I feel the way I do.

His red pen does not matter. He could have ten of them.

Mr. Speaker, in 1996 on 27 September, the last day of the sitting of this Honourable House, when it had to be prorogued for the people to decide who they wanted to represent them again, that is, for the General Elections, the Leader of Government Business, the Second Elected Member for George Town . . . he can look all he wants Sir, but half-way through, if he stops me it does not matter because I want him to tell me it is a lie. The difference with me, Sir, is that when I stand up in front of you, trust me, Sir, I will not lie to you or to the people of this country. I will not lie. When I am through, I want him to get up and tell me that it is not true because. . .

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order.

The Speaker: Let me hear your point of order, please.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: This is really getting to a stage where any attempt under [Standing Order] 28(1) to raise a matter that affects the privileges has to be at the sitting after. This is quite a few sittings beyond the one in September. Secondly, Sir, if you look at Standing Order 35(3) which states "It is out of order to use offensive or insulting language about other Members," I am sitting here, Mr. Speaker, and basically that is what that Honourable Member has been doing for some time. It really must stop. We are in here debating and discussing matters and to point out and continue to insult me, in my view, is something that should stop.

The Speaker: I would also like to go a little bit further on that. [Standing Order] 35(4) says, "No Member shall impute improper motives to another Member." Honourable Member, we are attempting to debate the Privilege Motion. I understand emotions are running high, but this is going to get us nowhere. We know what privilege is all about and I would ask you not to violate the Standing Orders of this Honourable House because I shall have to call you in order for that. The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning has read [Standing Order] 35(3) and I have read 35(4). You have a copy of the Standing Orders, you can read them yourself. I ask you to be very cautious with what you are saying.

There is much merit in this Motion but the method by which we are going about it will not accomplish what we want. Will you please continue?

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. You have quoted the sections of the Standing Orders. I would ask you now, so that I will really understand, can we have a suspension so that I may read that and understand and not tread on dangerous ground again, Sir?

The Speaker: Certainly, if that is your wish. We will suspend for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.26 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.28 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed.

We have reached the hour of 4.30 PM. I will entertain a motion for the adjournment. The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: As Honourable Members saw this morning, the agenda for Finance Committee has been circulated. Members are aware that it contains certain items of expenditure which must be cleared before year end. I would like to request the indulgence of the Chair and Honourable Members that when the House resumes we go into Finance Committee meeting. I will also assume that given the various commitments of the Civil Service for tomorrow, and that various Members will be participating, I assume the House will not resume before Monday. If that is the case, I ask that Members would give consideration for us to go into Finance Committee to get the agenda that was circulated cleared.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. John B. McLean: Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until Monday, 22 December, 1997 at 10 o'clock.

The Speaker: The question is that this House do now adjourn until 10 o'clock Monday morning. Those in favour, please say Aye. . . . Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. This House stands adjourned until 10 o'clock Monday morning and it is my understanding that Finance Committee will convene at 9:00 on Monday morning. I should further add that the House will stand adjourned until deliberations in Finance Committee have been completed and the House will resume after Finance Committee has been completed.

AT 4.30 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL DELIBERATIONS IN FINANCE COMMITTEE ARE COMPLETED.

EDITED
TUESDAY
23RD DECEMBER, 1997
11.25 AM

The Speaker: Prayers by the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

PRAYERS

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived: We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth, that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly, that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy great Name's sake.

Let us say the Lord's Prayer together: Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name. Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us. Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace, now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. The First Elected Member for George Town.

RAISING OF MATTERS OF PRIVILEGE

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Before the presentation of Papers and Reports, I crave your indulgence to make a short statement to you, Sir.

The Speaker: Please continue.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: When we broke on Thursday afternoon during my contribution to Private Member's Motion No. 5/97, I asked for a suspension so that I could understand the Standing Orders you were referring to during my contribution. Following my discussion with you, I just wish to take this short opportunity to let you know, out of the respect that I hold for you, Sir, and for the Chair, that I realise that it is possible that I may have strayed during my contribution. In the strictest of senses, I may have been deemed at some points to have been out of line.

I wish to make it clear to you, Sir, that regardless of what may have transpired on Thursday afternoon, my intentions have always been, my intentions were then, are now, and will be as long as I am here, to be the best representative that I can be to the people of this country.

I also wish to make it clear that the apology that I give to you is totally out of respect for you and the Chair, because what I believe, I believe. Even if what I say sometimes in this House (on the very odd occasion as that was) may not be said in the proper manner, it is what I believe. I apologise again, Sir.

READING BY THE SPEAKER OF
MESSAGES AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

The Speaker: Honourable Members, I crave your indulgence to say a few words this morning. Undoubtedly, all of us are aware that the conduct in this Honourable House has been less than what we would all expect during this meeting and some of the previous meetings. I want to express to each and every one of you that I take my responsibility very highly. I respect the position which you have elevated me to, and, as I said upon accepting the appointment that I would do the very best that I can to uphold the high office, I reaffirm that today. I would like to ask all Honourable Members when in this Chamber and in the precincts of this Legislative Assembly to please act in the way that we all would want to be respected, the way we should and the way we must. We have a responsibility to the people who put us here. We are the servants of the people of the Cayman Islands. We have been entrusted with certain responsibilities, some executive responsibility, some legislative. I have a responsibility as the Speaker.

In order to make my job easier, I ask you all to follow the Standing Orders as near as possible. Above all, I ask that we try to minimise the use of across-the-floor discussions while other Members are speaking. This sometimes adds humour, but I think we can do without that humour. I ask that we watch our language.

It is my intention in due course to circulate to all Honourable Members a list, which will not be inclusive of all, but what I have at my disposal, of all words that through the years have been accepted as unparliamentary.

tary, so each Member will be familiar with them. I shall also attempt to circulate what information I have as to what is expected of each Members.

As we approach the Yuletide season I ask that we express to each other love and respect, realising that we have been entrusted with great responsibilities and are role models for those who will follow us. When we are any less than that we are not fulfilling our responsibilities.

Thank you.

9. COMMITTEE'S FINDINGS AND RECOMMENDATIONS:
 Government's Financial Performance 1996

(1) In keeping with its practice in previous years, the Committee has decided to open its 1996 Report with some general comments. Government's financial position improved markedly during 1996. Year-end cash balances increased by $9.621 million, with a further $3 million transferred to General Reserve.

Overall there was a surplus of $11.902 million after crediting loan financing of $22.381 million. Recurrent revenues increased by 11.8% compared to 1995 and totalled $195.162 million, some $10.6 million above the estimate presented to the Legislative Assembly. The strong revenue performance is consistent with general economic conditions. However it is appropriate for the Committee to recognise the greater efforts made by Controlling Officers and the more effective debt collection procedures introduced by the Financial Secretary in March 1996. Recurrent expenditure increased by 13.2% in 1996 to $156.723 million, approximately $3.3 million less than the initial 1996 budget. Capital expenditure amounted to a record $34.091 million. The major areas of capital expenditure in 1996 were: Medical Facilities ($6.5 million); Road Construction and Resurfacing ($5.2 million); Vehicles and Equipment ($4.8 million); Purchase of Lands ($4.5 million); School Buildings ($2.9 million); and Public Buildings ($2.4 million).

Audit Opinion – Accounting for Overseas Medical Expenditure

(2) The Committee notes that the Auditor General has again qualified his audit opinion on the 1996 accounts of Government due to his disagreement with the accounting treatment for overseas medical advances. Overseas medical expenses for non-entitled persons have continued to be charged against an advance account and were therefore not classified as expenditure in the annual accounts. During 1996 outstanding medical advances increased from $7.7 million to $9.8 million net, after repayments and writes-off. The Committee agrees with the Auditor General that the practical effect of the present accounting policy is to defer recognition of expenditure to future periods. The accounting treatment distorts the financial position of Government in two ways. Firstly, annual expenditure is being understated by between $2 million to $2.5 million each year. Accumulated advances will eventually have to be brought to account. At that stage, the expenditure reported for a particular financial year would be inflated with expenses incurred in prior years. Secondly, assets are overstated in the annual Statement of Assets and Liabilities. At 31 December 1996 total assets of Government amounted to $23.2 million, of which 42% ($9.8 million) are overseas medical advances. In our Report on the Auditor General's 1995 Report, the Committee concluded that part of the advances balance will inevitably have to be written off as irrecoverable. That portion of the overseas advances deemed irrecoverable, as yet unquantified, is clearly deferred expenditure. It is also expected that the remaining advances will be converted to long term loans. Under generally accepted cash accounting conventions long-term loans recoverable are not included in the Statement of Assets and Liabilities.

(3) In our Report on the 1995 accounts, the Committee noted the accounting issue would be addressed during the review of the Public Finance and Audit Law. The Committee made three specific recommendations:

- (i) An annual provision should be included in the budget to cover overseas medical expenses for non entitled persons;
- (ii) Expenditure accumulated in advance accounts should be expensed in the Receipts and Payments account as soon as possible;
- (iii) All necessary steps should be taken by the Health Services Department to recover overseas medical advances from those able to pay.

The Committee makes these same recommendations again and adds a further:

- (iv) The Health Services Department should ensure that overseas medical advances are secured in all cases where it is considered that the advance is repayable.

The Committee is aware that the Honourable Financial Secretary has established a working group to deal with overseas medical advances. However, during the evidence session with the Treasury Debt Collector, the Committee learned that not a single overseas medical advance has been referred for recovery action. This seems very odd, especially as several of these debts are over four years old and the prospect of recovery diminishes with the passage of time. The Committee reiterates that every effort must be made to resolve the accounting issues and to collect outstanding overseas medical advances. The Committee expects to see evidence of positive action during the next 12 months.

Public Debt

(4) The Committee was pleased to note the section dealing with the definition and disclosure of public debt in the Auditor General's Report. The expanded definition and disclosure information was derived from recommendations made by the International Organisation of Supreme Audit Institutions (INTOSAI) and has been provided in order to make public debt more understandable to legislators and other interested stakeholders. The Committee agrees that the information provides a better insight and helps to place government borrowing policy in perspective. The Committee recommends that this information should be updated regularly and presented to the Legislative Assembly through the annual accounts of Government.

(5) On a related issue, the Committee acknowledges that successive governments of the Cayman Islands have adopted a cautious and prudent approach towards borrowing. As a result, the total public debt of central government, its statutory authorities and state owned enterprises has been held at very modest levels, currently 11% of gross domestic product (GDP). The principle of legislative control of public debt is enshrined in the Public Finance and Audit Law, which requires that the government shall not borrow money except in accordance with a law, which, of course, must be passed by the Legislative Assembly. The Committee considers that the current review of the Public Finance and Audit Law offers an opportunity to strengthen legislative control in this important area. The Committee supports the concept of a statutory debt ceiling, which could be based on recurrent revenue or GDP and recommends that this matter should be referred to the Legislative Assembly for discussion and input.

Writes Off, Waivers and Losses

(6) The Committee agrees that legislators need to be made aware of losses and special payments in order to properly discharge their duty to oversee the Executive Branch. Effective public accountability and good governance can also be improved through full disclosure of losses and special payments in the annual accounts. The Committee recommends that Government should give consideration to widening the definition and reporting of losses and special payments along the lines suggested by the Auditor General.

(7) The Committee questioned the Director of Tourism concerning the ex-gratia payment of $15,270 paid to an overseas officer. The payment was made to the former Director of Sales and Marketing for the Department of Tourism in United States, who became ill late 1994. It was initially thought that he would make a full recovery and return to duty. The officer received approximately five months on full pay and a further 12 months on half pay. When it became clear that the officer would be unable to return to work, a decision was taken to terminate his services. Staff in the Department's North American organisation are not employed on contract terms but rather under a letter of appointment. The Committee was informed that legal guidance was obtained both locally and in the United States to determine that the process of termination complied with relevant legislation. The Department was concerned that the officer could have brought a legal action against the Cayman Islands Government had he been terminated after, say, three months on sick leave, as provided for in General Orders. A request was made to Executive Council for some form of ex-gratia payment in recognition of the officer's 20 years of service with the Government and for the contribution he had made to develop sales and marketing for the Islands. The payment represents three months salary. The Committee has no objections to this payment. The Committee agrees that the payment fell within the general ambit of the Department of Tourism's vote and consequently there was no requirement for specific prior legislative approval. The Committee agrees that no further action is needed in this case.

(8) The Committee also took evidence from the Registrar General about the waiver of late filing fees payable under the Companies Law. Companies, other than Exempted Companies, are liable to pay $1 per day late filing fee for each day after the 31st of January each year that the annual return and filing fee remains outstanding. According to the analysis of cash deposits for company fees, in 1996 only 19% of all companies filed and paid by the due date. The Committee recognises that substantial late filing fees are not enforced, but considers that the Auditor General's estimate of $1.8 million is too high. The Registrar General informed the Committee that late filing fees are only imposed when a company is being reinstated. The Registrar has power to waive any penalty prescribed under section 217 of the Companies Law. The Committee recognises that the main problem is all company fees are payable by 31st January of each year. At 31 December 1996 an amount of $2.334 million of company fees was reported as in arrears, that is, 11 months overdue. Subsequently, $2.1 million of this has been abandoned and the companies struck from the Register. One approach considered several years ago was to change to a system of anniversary billing, which would spread the work-flow more evenly over the calendar year. The Committee recommends that the Portfolio of Finance and Economic Development should review the system for processing annual returns and licence fees, with a view to improving work-flow within the Registry and optimising revenue collection. There should be appropriate sanctions for non-payment or late payment of fees, which the Registrar is able to implement effectively.

HM Prison Northward

(9) The operation of Her Majesty's Prison Northward cost the taxpayer about $4 million in 1996, or about $21,250 for each inmate incarcerated. Salaries and wages consumed 72% of the 1996 budget with the balance made up by other operating expenses. The Prison is operating at or near full capacity and currently has an establishment of 100 officers and administrators, plus additional weekly paid personnel. It has been evident to the Public Accounts Committee for some time that the Prison's organisation lacks the administrative and financial skills found in most other government departments. Concerns were first raised with the Auditor General's 1993 Report, which highlighted excessive overtime worked by administrative personnel during 1991 and 1992. The Prison's recurrent budget has also been overspent by small amounts in each of the last three years. Previous explanations provided to the Committee centred on the need for additional accommodation, administrative personnel and the lack of computers to process the large volume of transactions. However the picture now emerging through the Auditor General's current report, and through the Committee's examination of witnesses, points to misuse and waste of public funds, compounded by weak management control and oversight of the finance and administrative functions.

(10) The Committee would like to preface this section of the Report with observations on the conduct of certain witnesses from the Prison. The Committee spent over three frustrating hours in examination of witnesses who evaded questions, exhibited selective memory loss and generally tried to hinder the Committee from determining the true facts. In the Committee's opinion, the conduct of these officers is tantamount to contempt of the Legislative Assembly. The Committee seeks the support of all Elected and Official Members of Government to ensure that their staff are aware of the importance of the role of the Committee in helping to maintain the financial integrity of the Cayman Islands' Parliamentary system of government. All persons appearing before the Public Accounts Committee should understand that they must answer fully and truthfully. The Committee intends to make recommendations to amend the Legislative Assembly Standing Orders to prevent this type of behaviour recurring in the future.

Purchase of Food and Dietary Supplies

(11) Much of the Committee's time was spent examining purchases of certain foodstuffs and household requirements which it considered to be wholly inappropriate for use in a prison. Items purchased include vitamins, hair tonic, foam bubble bath, Easter buns, candies, sodas, expensive cat food, premium turkey breast, fabric softener, deodorants, etc. The Auditor General's staff identified $13,400 of questionable purchases, though we believe that the total will probably be considerably higher. The Committee believes that this practice has been carried out for a number of years with the knowledge of successive management. The purchase orders and supplier invoices processed by the Prison and paid by the Treasury Department contained only a general description of "goods" or "merchandise". The Accountant General agrees that the invoices should have been supported by lists from the supermarkets and that Treasury personnel should have been more vigilant to ensure that proper documentation supporting these payments was in place before authorising such payments.

(12) The Committee questioned the Director and supporting staff extensively about the purchases. While witnesses agreed that the items were inappropriate for use in a correctional institution, no one was able or willing to say who had ordered the goods or who had consumed them. While some of the items may have been used in the prisoners' canteen, the Committee is of the opinion that some items were ordered and consumed by Prison personnel. The amounts in question may not seem large in context of the Prison's budget, but the Committee is greatly concerned that the irregularities uncovered during the audit may be just the tip of the iceberg. The Committee notes that the Director has promised to try to determine who consumed the articles and, if appropriate, make deductions from salaries. However no action appeared to have been taken at the time of the Committee's enquiry and we have no confidence that an internal investigation will ever elicit the truth.

The "Priscraft" Operation

(13) "Priscraft" is the name given to the trading activities, which the Prison engages in as part of the rehabilitation of prisoners. The "Priscraft" operation produces goods and services in the areas of ceramics, tailoring, motor vehicle repair and woodworking. Prison inmates, who benefit from practical experience in these areas, provide labour. In 1989, the incumbent Prison Director opened a bank account for this operation without the knowledge or approval of either the Financial Secretary or the Legislative Assembly. The matter was regularised in 1991 and the Prison was given the privilege of operating its own bank account outside the confines of General Revenue up to a maximum balance of $20,000. The Resolution approved by the Legislative Assembly required proper records to be maintained; that receipts and payments must be easily verifiable; and that quarterly summaries of transactions should be furnished to the authorities.

(14) The Committee has established that virtually none of these conditions has been complied with. Proper records do not appear to have been maintained for the operation and the Director was unable to tell the Committee what the gross sales were for 1996. When the auditors visited in September 1996 no transactions had been entered into the cash book, which had never been reconciled with the bank account. The Director agrees that no proper accounting records have been maintained. The Committee therefore concluded that it would be impossible for accurate accounts to be prepared for periods up to 1996. The issue of financial management is further complicated because public funds (part of the Prisoner Rehabilitation vote on Head 07) have been used to purchase raw materials and other inputs for "Priscraft". The Committee enquired from the Director the amount of public funds used in "Priscraft" operations but was unable to obtain any details. Since a total of $459,223 has been spent on Prisoner Rehabilitation between 1991 and 1996, the potential cost to the taxpayer of the "Priscraft" operation is considerable.

(15) One issue of particular concern to the Committee was that prison officers had been permitted to accumulate large volumes of credit sales. At the date of the audit the exact amount of receivables could not be determined. Management thought that the figure might be in the region of $40,000 to $50,000, including an estimated $15,000 from prison officers. The Committee is pleased to note that all debts owed by prison officers had since been repaid in full.

Welfare Fund

(16) The Committee also took evidence on the use of welfare funds. The major part of voted funds between 1991 and 1996, (that is $98,000 out of total expenditure of $137,481), has been transferred to the Prison Officers Staff Welfare Fund to assist with life insurance for prison employees. The Staff Welfare Fund is a non-public fund so this Committee has no jurisdiction over its operations and management. However the Committee was greatly disturbed to learn of an alleged misappropriation of funds from this entity. Following a request from the Prison Director, the Auditor General reviewed the operation of this fund. The Auditors established that no financial statements or reports had been presented to either the members or the management committee since September 1995 and that no adequate independent audit seemed to have been carried out in recent years. Adequate records of receipts and payments do not appear to have been maintained since September 1995. There was no sub-ledger of amounts owing for staff loans and the auditors were unable to locate most of the documents supporting cheque disbursements in 1995. In short, there was nothing for the Auditor General's staff to audit.

(17) The Auditor General's staff have designed a manual of accounting procedures with exhibits of simple financial statements and vouchers such as deposit and cheque disbursement forms. The auditors have also used commercial accounting software to set up a computer based accounting system. However this is not yet in operation because the Staff Welfare Fund apparently does not have sufficient resources to purchase a computer and the software package. Audit personnel have therefore set up a manual accounting system to record transactions from July 1997 and have provided training to Prison personnel. It remains to be seen whether any financial statements for 1995/96 and 1996/97 will ever be produced. The Committee also noted that welfare funds have been used for a variety of purposes including purchase of furniture and soft furnishings for prison officers' accommodation. It is not clear to the Committee whether or not this is an appropriate use of funds.

Overtime

(18) The Committee concluded that tighter controls are needed to limit the amount of overtime worked at the Prison. The Director has confirmed that the practice of overtime paid during the lunch hour has now ceased.

Recommendations

(19) The Committee concludes that there has been abuse and misuse of public funds at the Prison and has lost confidence in the present management. The fact that funds involved are not large in context of the Prison's total operating cost is immaterial. The Committee makes the following recommendations:

- (a) Personnel responsible for the financial management and administration of the Prison should be changed as a matter of urgency and replaced with capable and reliable officers. Consideration should also be given to separating the operational and administrative functions at the Prison.
- (b) The Treasury Department should review internal controls with respect to payment processing to ensure that all payments are properly supported with adequate documentation which shows clearly the goods or services provided.
- (c) Disciplinary action should be taken against those responsible for misusing public funds through the purchase of foodstuffs and supplies for personal consumption.
- (d) The Controlling Officer must review all financial procedures at the prison to ensure that there are proper controls over the purchase, accounting, disposal and/or consumption of all supplies and consumables.
- (e) The Prison should develop and publish an annual analysis of operating costs, for example the annual cost for feeding each prisoner, annual overtime per capita, etc..

- (f) There seems to be no justification for using large amounts of public money to subsidise the "Priscraft" account, an operation that incurs no staff costs or overheads. With immediate effect all subsidies to "Priscraft" from the prisoner rehabilitation vote should cease and the trading operation placed on a proper self-financing and self-supporting basis. In this way the efficiency of the operation can be assessed realistically.
- (g) The financial management and accountability of the "Priscraft" activity must be reviewed as a matter of urgency and radically improved. Better accounting and audit arrangements are essential. As a minimum, an audited receipts and payments account of "Priscraft" operations should be prepared each year and presented to the Legislative Assembly, perhaps in the form of a separate Fund. In the longer term it would be preferable for "Priscraft" to operate on the accruals basis of accounting.
- (h) An attempt should be made by management to prepare accounts for "Priscraft" for 1997.
- (i) Management should ensure that proper credit controls are instituted to prevent large balances being accumulated by staff and customers.
- (j) The Portfolios of Finance and Economic Development and Internal and External Affairs should review expenditures by the Police and Prison Departments on the staff welfare votes. A review is also needed to examine the funding sources and level of life insurance coverage arranged by each of the uniformed services.
- (k) The Portfolio of Internal and External Affairs should ensure that there are adequate accounting and audit arrangements for all non-public funds operated for the benefit of civil servants and their families.
- (l) The Committee wishes to be informed of the progress made by the Prison Staff Welfare Fund in regularising its financial affairs.
- (m) The Committee expects the Portfolio of Internal and External Affairs and the Auditor General's Office to monitor closely the Prison Department's compliance with these recommendations during 1998.

The Committee hopes that the government will respond to these detailed recommendations in the Government Minute on the Committee's Report.

Department of Environment Recycling Programme

(20) The government's recycling programme commenced in 1993 in an effort to reduce the amount of waste placed in the landfill. The consultant estimated that 28% of the waste stream could be recycled, although only 50% would be recovered, for a total waste reduction of around 14% to 15%. The Audit Office estimated that less than 1% of the total waste stream was diverted from the landfill. By the end of 1996 the recycling programme included automotive batteries, corrugated cardboard, aluminium cans and used motor oil. Additional programmes are being developed for other recyclable materials. Total cost of the programme to 1996 was $888,382. Gross revenues received do not cover shipping costs. The Department of Environmental Health (DEH) was aware that recycling was not cost effective, mainly because of high transportation costs.

(21) The Committee notes from the Auditor General's Report that many of the initial assumptions included in the department's appraisal of recycling projects were based on established recycling programmes in the United States and that some of the forecasts were too optimistic. Appraisals carried out by the Department on each of the recycled items used an inappropriate figure of $116 per ton as the cost of disposing solid waste. This relates to the total cost of collection, disposal and administration. In 1991, the disposal cost calculated by consultants was $26. The relevant cost of disposal is currently assessed to be about $48 per ton. The Department told the Committee that it was not able to determine costs of operations until 1996 and therefore used the total disposal cost of $116 per ton as given in the consultants' 1991 report. The Department recognises the need to maintain good statistical data to provide information when commencing a project and documenting its success. It is the goal of the department to ensure that future projects are economically viable. The Committee recommends careful appraisal of any new recycling activity, which should proceed only if revenues are sufficient to cover additional costs.

(22) The Committee was concerned that approximately 20,000 to 30,000 gallons of used motor oil may be unaccounted for each year. It was pleased to learn that two private sector companies already have procedures in place to ship used motor oil off island. The Committee was informed that hazardous chemicals have been left in rusting drums amongst the used oil at the sanitary landfill. The Committee is greatly concerned that this presents a serious environmental risk and urges that immediate attention is given to the proper disposal of these chemicals and the site cleaned up. The Committee also learned that a Public Education Officer has been appointed recently and looks forward to an effective education programme being implemented. The Committee was informed that a public awareness campaign on the proper management of waste oil is planned for the upcoming year. The Committee recommends that the private sector should assume more responsibility for the recycling of used motor oil, if necessary through legislation.

(23) The Committee has been made aware through the Auditor General's Report that the Department's medical waste incinerator has been malfunctioning and is now obsolete. The Committee feels very strongly on this matter and recommends that this problem should be addressed as a matter of urgency and appropriate remedial action implemented immediately. Consideration should be given to employing personnel qualified to operate the replacement equipment. The Department should also review the arrangements for disposal of medical waste on the Sister Islands.

(24) The Committee was informed that the Ministry of Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works is presently reviewing legislation relating to the importation and subsequent safe disposal of hazardous materials and examining the disposal costs of certain materials. The Committee recommends that this review is carried out expeditiously and that draft legislation is brought to the Legislative Assembly for consideration.

(25) The recycling programme has not achieved any significant extension to the life of the sanitary landfill. The Committee enquired whether other areas were being looked at as a future site for another landfill operation. The Committee was informed that a landfill site has been identified for Cayman Brac. On Grand Cayman, there has been some negotiation with landowners about expanding the landfill site, but DEH is not responsible for handling these negotiations. DEH is currently looking at expanding capacity on site.

Public Works Department Road Maintenance & Construction

(26) Between 1992 and 1996 approximately $23.6 million was spent on road maintenance and construction. Many of the capital projects have been carried out directly by Public Works Department, but all hot mix and some chip and spray work has been contracted out. The Committee noted that road construction materials had been purchased from a single source supplier on a non-competitive basis. It was established by the Auditor General that over $2.7 million of materials had been purchased from this supplier between 1992 and 1996. Despite the substantial quantities purchased, the Department did not negotiate either a price discount or a fixed or firm price supply agreement. The Chief Engineer told the Committee that road construction materials had been purchased at market price because, to be able to get a good price, it is important that approximate quantities of materials to be purchased is known. The Committee is not satisfied that enough effort was made to ensure that PWD secured the lowest prices for road construction materials.

(27) The Chief Engineer told the Committee that in the absence of a roads plan PWD is not able to estimate the quantities needed on a long-term basis. This therefore makes it difficult to negotiate a fixed or firm price or discounts with the supplier. The Department undertook that it would ensure that better rates are achieved in the future. The Committee was informed that a roads plan is being considered and that the terms of reference were currently being clarified.

Purchasing Procedures

(28) Purchasing procedures at the Public Works Department for the procurement of goods and services for the maintenance and improvement of government buildings were not carried out in compliance with departmental purchasing procedures and Financial and Stores Regulations. The Committee is concerned that purchases made from a local supplier without competitive bid had been marked-up excessively, in some cases over 100%. The Committee strongly recommends that Government discontinue trade with this company and its overseas suppliers and further recommends that Government conducts an inquiry into all purchases made from this supplier and, if possible, tries to recover any excessive payments made. The Chief Engineer told the Committee that Public Works Department has since ceased to do business with this company. An alternative supplier has been identified and the department has secured better prices.

(29) The Committee was pleased to know that the recommendations of the Auditor General had, where possible, already been implemented by the Public Works Department and weaknesses improved. The Committee stresses the need for better operational and financial controls in PWD, as it is one of the largest spending departments in government. The Committee was satisfied that the Chief Engineer had taken appropriate action to remedy the matters raised by the Auditor General. The Committee congratulates the Chief Engineer on the speedy action taken to implement the recommendations of the Auditor General.

(30) The Committee is concerned that many jobs are contracted out to private sector air-conditioning and refrigeration companies, even though the Department appears to have sufficient numbers of staff in the Electrical and Air-conditioning section. The Committee is also aware that a considerable amount of overtime is worked in this section. The Chief Engineer informed the Committee that he was aware of the problem and would be taking steps to address it.

Testing of Road Building Materials

(31) Public Works Department is unable to carry out materials testing on island. The Chief Engineer told the Committee that he was satisfied that the limited amount of overseas testing carried out was sufficient. Materials used in road construction had been purchased from a single supplier and therefore the quality and specification would not alter significantly. The departmental lab was not functioning as a soil and asphalt testing facility, but was used mainly for the production of traffic signs. PWD explained that most of the equipment needed for road-testing materials was worn out and in poor condition. The Committee was told the Department hoped to reinstate operation of the lab as a materials testing facility. In the light of possible future major road works, the Committee recommends that the lab be made operational as soon as possible through the purchase of necessary equipment.

Item number 8 Cayman Aviation Leasing Ltd - Unaudited Accounts for the period 30th August 1995 to 8th December 1997. The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

CAYMAN AVIATION LEASING LTD UNAUDITED ACCOUNTS FOR THE PERIOD 30TH AUGUST 1995 TO 8TH DECEMBER 1997

Hon. Truman M. Boddan: I beg to lay on the Table of this Honourable House, Cayman Aviation Leasing Ltd - Unaudited Accounts for the period 30th August 1995 to 8th December 1997.

The Speaker: So ordered. Do you wish to speak to it?

Hon. Truman M. Boddan: This company is a fully owned subsidiary of Government. It is owned fully by Government. It holds the jet that Government is purchasing and which it leases to Cayman Airways. This shows that it has made a profit of $2,063,672.

During the period since the aircraft was purchased (and it is being paid for by Cayman Aviation Leasing over a five year period) Cayman Airways Limited has paid to Cayman Aviation Leasing $2,781,000 which, if the jet had remained owned by Cayman Airways would have shown as a profit in the profit and loss account. At present the amount owing down to August (and it would be reduced considerably more by now) was under $3 million. Therefore, in another less than three years the Government will own the jet outright. The jet was purchased for $5.2 million. The repayments have been $2,267,142 together with interest all of which has been paid by Cayman Airways through the rental agreements.

Along with this, Cayman Airways has also paid $754,000 in reserves. At present Cayman Aviation Leasing as a holding company of the Government, fully owned by Government to hold the jet, is showing a profit of $2,063,000. What we propose to do with the second jet that is purchased is to put it into a separate company, similar to this, but owned by the Government, and lease it to Cayman Airways Limited.

This jet, which less than US$3 million is owed at present, is now selling in the market at $7.5 million. So the true profit on that jet is in the area of $4.5 million to the good. As I said, these accounts, while it makes Cayman Aviation Leasing look very good, has a side effect of showing that this large profit in this account (for Cayman Aviation Leasing) shows as a loss in Cayman Airways because the jet is owned by Cayman Aviation Leasing. But for legal reasons and to preserve the asset (the jet) it is important that this be done. It is similar to what was done for the 727-200s when I was involved in the purchasing of them many years ago. I ask Members to read the accounts of Cayman Airways and reflect on the accounts of Cayman Aviation Leasing.

I would like to thank the Board of Cayman Aviation Leasing and the shareholders of it (the Government) for their co-operation throughout.

The Speaker: Item nine, Cayman Airways Limited - Audited Accounts for the year ended 31st December 1996. The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

CAYMAN AIRWAYS LIMITED—AUDITED ACCOUNTS FOR THE YEAR ENDED 31ST DECEMBER 1996

Hon. Truman M. Boddan: I beg to lay on the Honourable Table the Audited financial statements of Cayman Airways Limited as at 31st December 1996.

The Speaker: So ordered.
Do you wish to speak to it?

Hon. Truman M. Boddan: I will be brief but I think it is important for me to comment on these accounts.

The report of the auditors on Cayman Airways Limited is unqualified, in other words, it is a clean audit report. The cash position in Cayman Airways has improved from the position back in 1993 when the bank overdraft and loan stood at $6,418,000. At present it has been reduced to $3,897,000.

On the loan itself, Cayman Airways has paid $1,750,000 up to, maybe July or August this year. It has also paid interest on the account. The area I mentioned earlier, there is accumulated profit of $2 million in Cayman Aviation Leasing. In effect, $4.5 million on the revaluation of the jet. The accounts for this year show a loss of $1.6 million for the year. Out of that were write-offs of the Boeing 737-400 spares of $253,560, as well as another $502,000 depreciation of plant and equipment.

The accounts show that Cayman Airways has stabilised. As I mentioned earlier, the position in Cayman Airways has to be also looked at in the light of Cayman Aviation Leasing which Cayman Airways is paying some very heavy rental payments for the jet which they will own—that is, that Government will own. So when these are looked at together it shows that basically there is very little loss, if any, and definitely no loss if there is a re-valuation of the jet.

In other words, if the jet had remained on the books of Cayman Airways, then we would have been showing all of the lease payments that were made in the last two and on-half years as a profit in Cayman Airways. I know that this is sometimes not easy to get through to the public, but it is very important that the separation between Cayman Airways and Cayman Aviation Leasing remain and that one continues to make a profit (Cayman Aviation Leasing) even though Cayman Airways is suffering a loss as a result of those payments.

The completion of the Strategic Plan CAL-21 is into these accounts and also the amounts for the Civil Aviation Authority while I doubt if Cayman Airways has every paid cash in the past for these, even though I think for one year we paid cash for them. But these are factored into the accounts so that the position of the accounts here is correct.

I would like to further point out that the flight equipment we are holding on the 737-400s has now been written down considerably as the accounts show. Paragraph 9 in the notes states that “during 1994 the company negotiated the early termination of the lease of the 737-200 aircraft and consequently was able to avoid incurring maintenance cost which management estimates would have exceeded $1 million which would have been accrued in the normal course of business at 31st December, 1994.” So there have been areas where we have been able to save by prudently (both the Managing Director, the General Manager, and the Board) dealing with Cayman Airways' business.

At paragraph 13, which is headed “Related Parties”, I would just like to read what the audit says, “The company leases one aircraft under a five year agreement with Cayman Aviation Leasing Limited, a company wholly owned by Government. Monthly payments include a fixed base rent amount and variable maintenance reserve as discussed in note 3. Amounts paid under the lease [this is just for this year] which are typical of arm's length lease agreements aggregated $1,236,00 and $644,928 for maintenance and reserves respectively for the year ended 31st December, 1996.” That shows nearly $2 million paid for rental and maintenance to Cayman Aviation Leasing in one year alone. The payments on the jet would have been assets in Cayman Airways if it had owned the jet.

I think it is also significant that we are buying a spare engine at a cost of $1.2 million. We have paid out a fair sum of money to upgrade the jet that we own (VP CAL). For example, $173,596 was paid for new seats for the Government-owned aircraft and we have put things on such as flight instruments and there were new overhead bins put in earlier on.

The position is that in 1996, Cayman Airways brought 118,273 visitors to the island, together with 12,000 residents, making a total of about 130,000 people

Cayman Airways brought to the island. Cayman Airways carried 25,000 passengers to and from Cayman Brac. That is a significant amount. We do our part, and I think we continue to bring one of the largest amounts of visitors to the islands which helps the islands generally through tourism.

The importance of Cayman Airways, while I know this is subject to debate from time to time, can be perhaps best seen when we look at yesterday's newspaper where Bermuda has . . . as it says here: “Major hotels continue to lose money.” And sizeable sums of money, Mr. Speaker.

The position in Cayman, as we saw when American Airlines went on strike, would be very critical without Cayman Airways. It is undoubtedly an asset to Cayman and the amounts paid to subsidise it are very minimal when compared to amounts spent in other areas, whether it is building roads, buildings, or paying out in other areas.

I remember very clearly that when the strike of American Airlines was coming on, we got a call from Turks and Caicos. They would not have had any flights coming into Turks and Caicos at that time because American was the sole airline and it brought back very clearly the importance of Cayman Airways as the national flag carrier, one that not only employs a large number of Caymanians but keeps a very large amount of money within the Cayman Islands that would be paid out overseas if Cayman Airways was not here. But it gives us the security and continuity that we know Cayman Airways will be there, whether it is to take people out in a hurricane, or a disaster period. We can rely on the stability that comes from owning our own airline.

The accounts therefore will show that there has been some repayment (a lot on interest, I should say) on the loans, and that at 31st December, 1996, the bank overdraft stood at $1.5 million. The loan with Royal Bank stood at $2.3 million which is way down from the $6.418 million of earlier times.

I should say that I would like to commend the Chairman and the Board of Cayman Airways and its Managing Director, its General Manager and staff. We have very dedicated staff. They work hard and are very proud of the airline as I believe all Caymanians are. I would ask Honourable Members of this House to continue to support Cayman Airways and to look at it as an investment in the stability of the country and the future of the Cayman Islands.

The Speaker: Item number 3, Statement by Members/Ministers of Government. The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

STATEMENTS BY MEMBERS/MINISTERS OF THE GOVERNMENT

MEDIUM TERM FINANCIAL STRATEGY

Hon. George A. McCarthy: It is unfortunate that I find it necessary to advise Members of this House that the Medium Term Financial Strategy will not be tabled during this meeting despite the assurances given by myself on behalf of the Government that this would be done.

The primary reason for having to delay the tabling of this document until the first meeting of 1998 is essentially due to the fact that the Government gave an undertaking to prioritise the capital projects as set out in the 1998 Estimates to ensure that the full funding of those projects as prioritised will be met from the approved funding level for 1998.

Also, based on the undertaking given to prioritise the capital projects over the medium term, it has also become necessary to use the intervening time period between the conclusion of this current meeting and the commencement of the first meeting in 1998 to formulate the Public Sector Investment Programme which will specify the capital projects to be undertaken during 1998 and through the year 2000.

The present document in its draft form, if tabled, would have provided an historical picture of the Government's financial position over the past several years as a basis for looking forward to the year 2000. Amounts for capital projects beyond 1998 were given as global sums to be allocated to projects agreed upon annually over this period. It was then stated that the projects for which these sums would be allocated would be set out in the Public Sector Investment Programme which would be tabled in March 1998.

In view of the issues raised during this meeting, the view has been taken by the Government that both the Medium Term Financial Strategy and the Public Sector Investment Programme should be tabled simultaneously as a basis to demonstrating the Government's commitment to the process of prioritisation and to clearly set out as accurately as possible the Government's financial position over the next three years taking into account the impact projects as set out in the Public Sector Investment Programme are likely to have on Government's finances.

The Speaker: At this time we will suspend for the luncheon break and resume at 2.30 PM.

SECOND READINGS

THE NATIONAL PENSIONS (SUSPENSION) BILL, 1997

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, before I continue with my contribution to the debate regarding the National Pensions (Suspension) Bill, 1997, I would like to take this opportunity to wish all my constituents and all the people in this Island a very merry Christmas and a prosperous New Year. I am thankful for the privilege of serving in this House and, as I began, I have tried to understand and have some sympathy for the position of the National Team. I may be right or I may be wrong, but the National Pensions (Suspension) Bill, 1997, is but another attempt by the remaining Members of the National Team to derail the social development of this country.

The remaining parts of the National Team lack a head, therefore a conscience. This is evident to anyone who considers the importance of a national pension scheme for the Cayman Islands. To have the pension scheme and the Health Insurance Law take effect almost simultaneously (one on the first of June, and the other in July) goes to show the lack of sensitivity regarding the way the National Team Government plans for the people of these Islands. There is a lack of foresight, a lack of vision. It is the social and economic consequences of such ways of legislating that I take into account when I ask Government to reconsider its position with regard to suspension at this very late date, and to go ahead and bring into effect as of January first, 1998, the mandatory contributions that must be made by employers and employees to a pension plan for the people of these Islands.

We cannot treat lightly the importance of a retirement plan, especially as I mentioned some time ago in the first part of my contribution, that it is not easy for anyone to stand up and say that a pension plan is a solution in itself to the types of problems that arise in a society where a person's reward is based upon their contributions in the workplace. In other words, what we contribute and what we get back as a reward for our contribution are directly related to work.

If in the workplace it is not considered to the advantage of industry and to the advantage of the individuals who work in these industries to continue to work after a certain age, then it is necessary for us to consider ways of allowing these people to continue to be fruitful and happy individuals by allowing them to have the funds which are necessary to participate in a consumer society where we are all dependant upon one another for what we need. So money is necessary. And if there are no savings during the period when people are productive, then there will be no way those persons will have the ability to participate in the society later on, because their participation has to be based upon their ability to spend.

No one in their right mind would debate that pensions are not important or necessary, even in our country where we have small businesses, and small business people who say that they would prefer the Pensions Law to be suspended to give them additional time because they do not know how they are going to make it, by making these contributions to working people in the first place. But I think it is important for small business people to understand that this is a part of the cost of doing business, and it will be necessary for them to take time to adjust their way of doing business so that it can accommodate the needs we see as necessary for working people in the future.

The Caymanian Compass of Thursday, the 18th of December, said that “everyone should have been prepared for the Law to go into effect on January first, but it appears that hardly anyone was quite ready.” It is my position that nobody will ever be ready for this Law until this Law comes into effect and people then realise the serious nature, that Government is serious. Because Government realises there is no way around a mandatory pension policy for these Islands. There is no way around this. People might say, ‘Well, let me save my own money. I have invested my money in a few apartments, and that will take me over to when I get older. I have my investment.’ But what about those persons who are not planning? What about those people who do not plan for their golden years? And there are many of these people. We see this all over the world. Although the Pensions Plan is not the perfect plan, it is the best plan that any developed society can come up with to see that persons, when they become elderly, can still participate in the joys and blessings of a developed society.

Therefore I support the Plan, I have always supported the Plan, and I supported the National Team’s position with regard to this particular Plan, because it is important, especially in an Island that is beginning to develop, that has the prosperity at the moment, to be able to adjust to begin to save some money for that so-called rainy day. And it is important when we hear people talking about Government spending, how we know our population is interested in seeing that Government puts aside some money for a rainy day, so I think it is not out of order to believe that, as certain persons in the area of pension insurance have said, the country had psychologically adjusted itself to the acceptance of pension as a necessity. Then why disrupt that at this time? Why take a chance with this at this time? Why doesn’t Government be flexible, because Government is only a few, but the people are many. It is much easier for a few people to adjust their positions than for the whole country to be put in a position of having to adjust theirs.

I do not believe we are being kind. I do not believe we are being thoughtful. I do not believe we are being intelligent when we say we will postpone the Pension Plan and bring it into effect the first of June, 1998. And this is the point. I think it is important for people in this country to realise that this is what I said. The Fourth Elected Member for George Town goes on record as saying that there is no way that the National Team Government can bring in the Pensions Law on the first of June, 1998, and then the Health Insurance Law slightly afterwards. There is no way they will be capable of deducting from working people’s wages these two deductions during that particular period of time. The blow to the pockets of the people will be so traumatic, that it will mean the beginning of the end for that particular Government. If that Government insists upon killing its possibility to govern this country, to represent this country, to do what is good for this country, then it should do it in a much more quiet way. It should not use the public. It should not get the public involved with its disjointed character, its lack of leadership, its inability to show social conscience and sensitivity. If that is what the National Team wants, if they want to become defunct, it should not involve the Cayman Islands people in that whole process.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Good choice of word. Good description—“defunct.”

Dr. Frank McField: It is quite obvious that anyone who believes they can bring in a national pension scheme and a health insurance scheme within that close period is very defunct in terms of their ability to think.

It appears we have a new Minister responsible for this Portfolio. The pension plan was a part of the National Team’s manifesto, and I do not recall reading that that Minister was a Member of the National Team, so the problem we might have here is that we have different positions being represented through the auspices of one political party, which does not seem to function that way any more. It is quite possible for us to believe that not all Members of the National Team Government are convinced that these two things can happen at the same time, or should happen at the same time, because they are going to happen to people. It is the people who are going to feel the effects of these two schemes coming into effect.

We can jump up in here and talk about how wrong the Fourth Elected Member for George Town is, how his speeches are exaggerated and not really valid to what we are talking about. But I am the sociologist. I am the one who is supposed to have the greater understanding (when we come to degrees anyway) of human behaviour. I would bet my Ph.D. that if they bring in those two pieces of legislation in 1998 that close together, they will probably not even last as a Government through the year 1998. The people will say, ‘They have no sense of direction, they have no vision, they have no sensitivity. They legislate according to what they feel is right, and not because of how the people will feel as a result of this legislation.’

Pensions—I do not have to say that again—are absolutely necessary. We know it will affect certain businesses in the beginning adversely, but it is necessary. We know it should not be postponed at this time because it will only serve to confuse the general public—not just employers, but employees, some of those employees who do not necessarily even listen to the debates or read newspapers.

It took a long time for the National Team Government to convince the working people and employers in this country that pensions would be of benefit to them. Now why does the National Team Government put this entire exercise at risk by asking that it be suspended and come into effect, rather than on the first of January, 1998, on the first of June, 1998? I say the reason for this is that there is a secret attempt to derail the social policies that were put in place by the past Minister, policies I have gone down as saying on the eve of my election that I would continue to support as long as that Minister supported those programmes.

This is just the beginning of the end of that belief, that a social conscience is a necessity for this country. This is the beginning of the end, because we are seeing the technocrats', bureaucrats', and legalists' minds beginning to take over, and we are going to believe somehow that we run our country not by feeling but by laws. But laws emanate from feelings, feelings do not emanate from laws.

I would like to continue to say that this is an error, and if the National Team Government would pardon the way I have debated this Law—pay no attention to the way I have debated the Law, but pay attention to the logic I have used in debating this Law—then they would say, 'That man speaks with some knowledge. That man speaks from an informative position, therefore it would not be convenient for us at this time to dismiss all he has said as absolute rubbish and nonsense, because he is a sociologist. He is supposed to have some knowledge of what human reactions, human behaviour would be with regard to certain things.'

I think my election campaign is proof that I am a planner. I did say that when I was the one with the television the night before the election. Although we had a lot of organisations, I said I had that position, that advantage, because I thought I could foresee these things. Just like I said about the pre-schools in 1978 that are being supported in 1997; just like I said about the crime problem, I am going to say about this particular problem—it is being dealt with very poorly. It is being dealt with in a way that does not show that we have the best interest of the people at heart. We know that some people will not immediately realise the benefits of a pension savings scheme, but ultimately they will realise the tremendous benefits. I believe that working people have a right to be assisted by employers in saving money for their golden years, because they contribute more to industry than they usually take out by way of wages.

We cannot derail this Pension Plan. Again it is being said that it is being derailed. Although the Minister will get up and say this is absolute nonsense, that it is not true, my question is, why is this Plan being put into effect so close to the Health Insurance Plan? Once the Minister can assure me that this can work, I have no problems. But I doubt this will be possible because this will be total speculation on the part of the Minister, who is obviously not a sociologist.

Since I have had the opportunity to know that there are some negotiations going on, we are asking again that at least at the Committee stage, certain amendments be made that make it unnecessary for Government to try to carry out this exercise at this time. Government came with this Bill. It is Christmas time, knowing it is very late to bring a suspension in any case, not being guaranteed any passage of this Bill, unless they assume, of course, that we have a bunch of broomsticks in here, which we do not. So there is a risk in continuing to debate, because it is not one way or the other. It is a very late date. Things could happen. How do the people become informed that this is going to be or not be the case? That is a very risky position to have taken in the first place.

I shall close my debate, because I know that although I might have gained a few friends outside these halls, a lot of people are beginning to ask, 'How did I get here in the first place, since I talk so long about all the things I pretend to know about?' But there are people in here who have been here twenty years, and I ask myself, 'How have they come to be here so long, talking too, while I was not allowed to talk?' So the fact that I begin to talk now is no insult. It is not meant as an insult to anyone, it is just meant to explore a new way of looking at things. I think this country desperately needs a new vision. This country needs a new angle. This country needs a new perspective, a human perspective, and that is the perspective I have brought to the House over the last year. That has been demonstrated time and time again in my debate. I am always asking, 'What will happen to the people? How will the people be affected?' Not the law, but the people. That is what is important. So I am asking again that when we come to Committee we seriously consider the disarray this will cause our country, and the negative effects it will have on the National Team Government which came into power in this country so positively in 1992, and which has done such a good job, at least up until very recently. Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I rise to offer my contribution to the call to suspend the National Pensions Bill. Pensions is a subject that has been talked about in this country for a very long time. I recall that in my first session after being elected in 1988, we had an advisor come down to give us a presentation on the possibility of a pension plan, social security scheme, or whatever else you want to term it. Over a period of eight, nine years, we have been able to get to a stage where at least we had a Pensions Bill passed, and we were looking forward with effect on the first of January to finally see it become a reality, that we have pensions in this country.

From listening to the presentation of the former Minister for Community Development, and also having a look at the proposed amendments to the Law and Regulations, it came to light that what was established was a National Pensions Advisory Committee, which consisted of a wide cross-section of professionals in the community. I am aware that the Law was drafted, circulated, amended, re-drafted, circulated, amended, and I believe we have reached the stage where there is not much more that can be done to this piece of legislation. One of the issues mentioned that makes this delay necessary is the appointment of the Superintendent of Pensions. But I was talking to the Secretary of the National Pensions Advisory Board, Mr. Mario Ebanks, and he mentioned to me that the position was advertised at SS3, I think it was, which is a reasonable salary. He applied for it, and because he applied for it, it was withdrawn and re-advertised at SS1, which meant that this young, qualified Caymanian no longer had any interest in applying for the job.

We just had a team that went all the way to the UK for the purpose of recruiting a person to fill this post, and I would daresay that whenever that Englishman is brought in, he or she is not going to be brought in at any SS1 scale. The same gentleman, in order to accommodate the Law coming into effect the first of January, actually offered to act, because he was one of the key persons responsible for spearheading this effort. He even offered to act as Pensions Superintendent until someone could be found, if they were not comfortable with him on a permanent basis, and this was also refused.

It leaves me to wonder if we have any interest in seeing positions that can be filled by a Caymanian, filled in this country. We can boast of full employment or over-employment. We can boast of economic activity. But I am interested in seeing that those positions that become available that a Caymanian is interested in applying for, actually have an opportunity to serve in that capacity.

The Law also calls for the establishment of the National Pensions Board. This will consist of a Chairman, a Deputy Chairman, not less than five additional members and no more than nine. It would not take long to put this Board in place. We have a lot of professionals. One of the things I am proud about in the Cayman Islands community is that we have people who are prepared, professionals, that is, who are prepared to volunteer their time for such positions on such prestigious boards.

I took time out on a personal basis to review the proposed revisions or amendments to the Law, and as I read the piece of legislation—and I am no lawyer, and I have never touted to be, but I have some experience and I do have a degree in Business Administration—every question I had in my mind as I read through the document was answered. I do not believe you can find a perfect piece of legislation. You can put it in place, as you work through it, certain weaknesses come to mind, and then you bring forth whatever additional amendments are necessary.

In addition to this Law, were three sets of Regulations that were drafted to accompany this Law. As I was told, the first two sets were done locally, and the more technical one, the one dealing with actuarial valuations and that type of thing, professionals were contracted from the outside to put together those regulations. I think everyone involved has done a good job, and I believe we need to at least give the Law a chance to come into effect, and at that stage we will be in a much better position to anticipate whatever difficulties may arise as a result of that.

I for one would prefer if—and I am no lawyer, again I must say—some way the grace period can be extended with regard to having to register a pension, and to start signing up employees to be a part of the Plan. I am aware that the First Elected Member for West Bay, who was your former Minister in charge of pensions, spoke to the Second Official Member, the Attorney General, as to how this could be made possible. I am aware of the amendments being proposed that would do exactly what we are proposing, that is, extend the grace period without bringing into force the penalties that go along with not complying with the Law.

With your permission, Mr. Speaker, I would like to refer to the two amendments being proposed to make this possible. It says here that there will be a new Clause 3, amendment to section 4(1) of the principal Law, “to provide that the effective date of the employers having to provide a pension plan or make contributions to a pension plan be the first of January 1998.” This is the amendment being proposed by the First Elected Member for West Bay. The second amendment would be a new Clause 4, amendment of section 6(2) of the principal Law, “to provide that the 180 days be deleted and 330 days substituted therefor.” The effect of that, as I interpret it, would be for us to extend the grace period for another six months. I think it would be to the first of June, 1998.

The concern I also share is that we have the National Health Insurance Bill that is supposed to come into effect on the first of July, 1998. These are two major pieces of legislation that are going to add some cost to doing business here in the Cayman Islands. It would be better if they can be staged, that is not to come into effect so close together.

I trust that every effort will be made to work with employers, providers and employees to assist with a smooth implementation of this major Plan. It is something that the people of this country have come to accept, that is the idea that when you get to a certain age, you look forward to having something to fall back on by way of savings. This is the whole objective of this Plan, that people over a period of years, when they are productive, be disciplined enough or forced into saving some money so that at a later date, when they do reach retirement age, they have funds from which they can live and maintain a certain lifestyle and a certain degree of independence.

I want to congratulate the former Minister and the Advisory Committee on the Pension Plan, and I would support any amendments that would extend the grace period, rather than calling for the suspension of the Bill. I know what that means from experience. When something is off the books, it is very difficult at some stage, especially a piece of legislation of this nature, to get it back on the rails. So those are my thoughts on this very important matter. Thank you, Sir.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? If no other Member wishes to speak, does the Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture wish to reply?

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I have listened quite attentively to the various Honourable Members, and have closely observed the many silent messages which have sprinkled the deliveries to this Honourable House, as it related to the Bill before us at this time. It is most unfortunate that some Members deemed it necessary to, in my view, use this Bill as a political football, or for political expediency.

The substantive Pensions Law is a very vital and essential piece of legislation in any visionary, democratic, caring society. I commend, Sir, the past Minister and all other Honourable Members who supported the Pensions Bill when he brought it to this House. I also congratulate the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town for changing his position with regard to the Pensions Law. That is, when the past Minister brought the Pensions Law, the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town abstained. So it is refreshing to see that as a visionary representative, he has opted to change his mind.

There have been general queries as to why the Regulations cannot be brought together with amendments. This same point seems to have raised its head at least once before, because—permit me, if you will, to refer to page 545 of the 1996 Hansard, which reads as follows: (this was the past Minister, in his response when the Bill was brought at that time). “I also thank the Member from North Side for her contribution and support.” He went on to say, “I also thank her for the part which she played on the Advisory Committee, and for also bringing the Committee’s perspective to the debate as to why it was not possible to have the Regulations presented at the same time with the Bill.” Mr. Speaker, that position has not changed, and I am thankful that I was able to find that bit of information, to see that this Minister was able to concur with what was put forward at that time, which I trust too has not changed, now that we are dealing with the Suspension Bill.

I could not concur more with that position, and I am sure, for Members who still have a problem with understanding why the Regulations cannot be brought at the time of the Bill, the Honourable Attorney General, the Speaker, or the Deputy Speaker, or anyone in the Honourable Chamber who fully understands it will be more than happy to explain it.

The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town also queried whether the Government had the political will with respect to the Pensions Law. The Government, as far as I am concerned, has the political will; and God willing, the requisite legislation shall be brought at the very next sitting of this Honourable House, which, as I understand it, is late in February of 1998, just another eight weeks or so, Sir. At that time, once that is brought, the Regulations will follow as soon as practicable thereafter, with the actual commencement date of June first, 1998.

Those of us who have taken the time to properly read and comprehend the Pensions Law, cannot but agree that this very complex piece of legislation, with the very grave criminal sanctions for contravention thereof, is not one such Bill for it to be changed into a political football. I am fully cognisant, Sir, that no law is perfect, and from time to time, there will inevitably be amendments. I am not against this general principle. But can we really say that our amendments are fine-tuning the Law, when the Law has not yet become operative, and there are so many amendments already made to it?

I stand to be corrected, but from my looking at it, there are some seventy-eight amendments to thirty-one sections, and there are another fifty-six amendments to the draft amendments. This, in my respectful submission, puts the substantive Law in a position of minority, yet I am asked to accept the position that they are minor amendments.

Had I been in my college logic class, and was presented with this set of circumstances, I could not help but conclude by way of deductive reasoning that there must have been an element of rush and haste, which only can further complicate this situation. Coupled with the fact that the important regulatory regime is not in place at the time, I am still of the persuasion that the only reasonable course is to ask for the suspension, with the amendment which I propose to move at Committee stage.

It was never my intention, nor is it my intention now, to blame anyone. But if the amendments to the Law and to the amendments attached thereto were in place, if the office of the Superintendent, and indeed the Superintendent and his auxiliary staff were in place, and if the numerous draft Regulations were approved by Executive Council, it would certainly have made it more practicable and reasonable to expect that the legislation be dealt with expeditiously during the present sitting.

When I first took over the Ministry a few short weeks ago, I was informed that the only Member of staff who was familiar with the Pensions Law was Mr. Mario Ebanks, who by the way, was on vacation for the first week or week and a half of my tenure in the Ministry. Shortly upon his return, he tendered his resignation, and the end of this month is to be his last time in the office. In addition, Government had other national priorities, as mentioned in my introductory deliberation, including the First Cayman Bank issues, the 1998 Budget, and the change of membership in Executive Council.

The Fourth Elected Member for George Town queried why the civil servants were not relied on more, as they can ensure continuity. I fully agree with that Member. That is exactly what I have been doing, and I would like at this time to thank Mr. Mario Ebanks for preparing the Ministry’s paper to Executive Council for the suspension of the Pensions Law, and for his assistance in preparing my draft presentation to this Honourable House which the Hansards will duly record.

The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town queried why the Minister’s Permanent Secretary went to the UK to interview. I am sure that Honourable Member, having been here a much longer time than myself, is fully cognisant that the Ministers (and particularly this Minister) do not have administrative responsibility. Our Constitution does not allow for it. I did not participate in the decision of who would be short-listed for the interview, nor did I make the decision about who would travel abroad for the interview, nor was I in any way involved with the ultimate decision as to who would get the post. I do not even know who applied for the post when it was advertised. As I said, under our Constitution, all Honourable Members would recognise that these matters are purely administrative, and therefore fall within the ambit of the Personnel Department, and not me as Minister.

As mentioned, Mr. Mario [Ebanks], a Caymanian, will be leaving the Ministry shortly, and I am sure that the Fourth Elected Member for George Town, as well as the past Minister, knows perhaps better than most other Honourable Members in this Parliament why we are losing the Caymanian, Mr. Mario Ebanks. Enough said on that matter, Mr. Speaker.

The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town questioned Government's motive for the delay. First, let me state categorically that Executive Council never brought the Bill to me. I brought the Bill before the House to Executive Council, and there is a vast difference. Let me also hasten to say that no Member of Executive Council, be it elected or official, even approached me about delaying the Pensions Bill, so it is absolute rubbish to say that another Ministry or Minister influenced or otherwise requested this delay.

I put forward this proposal, which was, in my respectful opinion, backed with legitimate and valid reasons, and Executive Council subsequently approved it. I have no apologies to make, because until I am persuaded otherwise, I am still of the humble view that it is in the best interests of our country on the whole to have this short but very necessary delay.

The general debate has dealt mainly with the merits or demerits of the Pensions Law. I am fully aware of the merits of the Pensions Law, and I fully support the concept of pensions, and congratulate the past Minister for his foresight in bringing this legislation. But it would be an injustice to our people to let the provisions of the Pensions Law come into force on January first with no regulatory body in place.

The Superintendent of Pensions, in particular, is of paramount consideration to the modus operandi of this Pensions legislation, and the lateness of the 1997 Budget was given as one of the reasons by the past Minister as to why the delay prior to my taking the office. I can accept that, because the 1998 Budget was even more sensitive, and time-consuming, not to mention unpredictable. Therefore it is my conviction that that reason is a legitimate, justifiable reason as put forward in my opening remarks.

Permit me now to please refer to the editorial of the 18th of this month, and I will provide a synopsis as follows: "The introduction of the National Pensions Law has taken so long that one might be tempted to wonder if it will ever become reality. Under the circumstances, however, Government did the right thing by delaying its coming into force. Everyone should have been prepared for the Law to go into effect on 1st January, but it appears that hardly anyone was quite ready. To allow the Law to come into effect by 1st January would have been pointless, because two weeks before the Law was to become operational, Government itself had not completed a number of necessary steps. One may wonder, How could this happen? But at this late stage, there was no real choice but to delay the coming into operation of the Law. No one should take the suspension as an excuse for putting the matter off again."

Mr. Speaker, section 78 of the Pensions Law establishes the Superintendent of Pensions, who by virtue of section 78(3) is the chief administrative officer to the Pensions Board, none of which are presently in place. In light of the extenuating circumstances as outlined in my contribution, to allow the Pensions Law to commence on the first of January 1998 without a Superintendent in place, or the remaining regulatory regime, would be, in my view, like filling a commercial aircraft with its paying passengers, with no pilot on board to ensure their safety, protection, and most importantly, to endeavour to take them safely to their desired destination.

If the Pensions Law were brought into force on the first of January 1998, with the Superintendent of Pensions not in place, who then will carry out his powers, duties and responsibilities under this Law? Certainly, my Ministry is not prepared, nor are we empowered to carry out the statutory duties, and indeed none of the other Ministries is prepared to do likewise. Who will ensure that the pension plans are up to par and in accordance with the Law? Who will ensure when there is a contravention of the Pensions Law? Who will ensure that the enforcement sections of the Pensions Law are pursued accordingly? Section 6(1) of the Pensions Law prohibits the administration of unregistered pension plans. The pension plan has to be registered by the Superintendent of Pensions. There is a statutory proviso to this section which allows at present 180 days, which grace period expires on the 31st of December this year. The Pensions Law, by virtue of section 85, gives a statutory legal right to extend the time limit under this Law, or the Regulations, except as a time limit which is stipulated under section 91(4). Had there been in place a Superintendent of Pensions, to whom this right is given, perhaps it might have been a better, more positive alternative, than that which we face today as the Government.

Further, the Pensions Law, merely by virtue of section 82, protects the members and employees of the Board, and the Superintendent of Pensions by way of restricting personal liability. But this protection of personal liability does not extend to me, nor does it extend to the members of staff in my Ministry. Without the Superintendent of Pensions in place, the only safe, reasonable and practical course is to suspend the Law as is proposed before this Honourable floor.

The delays with the regulatory regime being put in place were stated purely as a matter of fact, and not as a matter of political back-and-forth. I am not in this Honourable House for those types of games.

The Caymanian civil servant, Mr. Mario Ebanks, who was the civil servant responsible for this issue in the Ministry, formulated the reasons (as I gave him the chore to do) quite adequately, and it surprises me now that a Member or two can come to this Honourable floor and give other reasons emanating from that same civil servant.

Needless to say, let me move on. The Fourth Elected Member for George Town inferred that the terminology in the Bill, that is, the word 'suspension', connotes that the Pensions Law is being done away with. Let it be known to all: My Ministry is committed to seeing the Pensions Law come into operation, and suspension does not connote termination, dismissal or aborting. It means simply that—a mere suspension. And as Members will have seen from the amendment which we propose to move at Committee stage, a date has been specified.

Mention was also made of section 5(1) of the Pensions Law which states that "Nothing in this Law shall be construed to prevent the registration under this Law of any pension plan that provides pension benefits and ancillary benefits which are more advantageous to its members than those specified under this Law." By the same token, Mr. Speaker, what is there to prevent those pension plans, which on the face of it, appear to be advantageous, from reducing these benefits to the minimum as set down in the Pensions Law? It is not surprising that one or two of the providers of pensions are apparently lobbying Honourable Members to allow the Law to come into force by way of contributions or otherwise on the first of January 1998, and I would certainly like to have been able to see this happen myself. But they are not the only considerations. Indeed, Government also has to consider, and has considered, our duty to protect the contributors to the pension plan, and the appointment of a Superintendent of Pensions, in particular, and in addition, the Pension Board, will go a long way in this regard.

We do not believe that extending the period of registration of the pensions is the most appropriate way of dealing with this matter. I am sure there are no Honourable Members in this House who would want the Pensions Law to kick in on January first, and if anyone failed to have a pension plan, they would have to contribute unless they would face criminal sanctions and could face a fine up to $10,000, and indictment, that is in the case of an employer.

This would almost be inhumane, for charging persons come January first, for not contributing to the pension plan, straight after Christmas, when the majority of persons in the Cayman Islands experience money shortages, after having weathered the Christmas spending spree, to be asked or forced to contribute, when Government itself is not prepared by not having the Superintendent of Pensions.

The Speaker: May I interrupt you for a moment?

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Yes, Sir.

The Speaker: We have reached the hour of 4.30. Is it the intention that you will be finishing shortly? Would you care to suspend Standing Orders so that we may continue?

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 10(2)

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I understood yesterday the view of the House was that we would go on today until we finished. I would therefore suspend for the finishing of the business.

The Speaker: Do you have a time limit, or until the business on the Order Paper is finished?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, what was agreed yesterday which you are also aware was that we would go on until we finished. Hopefully that will be sometime within a reasonable time.

The Speaker: The question is that the House continue until the business on the Order Paper is finished. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

The Speaker: The results of the division: eleven Ayes, five Noes. The Ayes have it.

AGREED BY MAJORITY: STANDING ORDER 10(2) SUSPENDED.

The Speaker: Debate continues. The Honourable Minister for Community Affairs.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I love the people of the Cayman Islands too much to put them in any jeopardy. If were to allow the contributions to commence and to be mandatory come first of January 1998, and the registration to be delayed to June first, as was proposed by at least two Members thus far, what will happen? If the pension plan went bust during this time between January first and June first, who will bear this liability? Could anyone really expect the Government to place itself in such a position, to attract any other liability, if it allowed the Pension Plan to be duly administered on an ad hoc basis, without any regulatory body in place?

I have sat here day after day, and have heard many Honourable Members strongly criticise, and at times chastise, the Government for not having the necessary legislation in place to protect the depositors of First Cayman Bank, and what they term lack of independence of the Monetary Authority. But at least with the First Cayman Bank situation, there was a Director of the Monetary Authority in place, and there was a Board in place. Can you then imagine what criticism, and rightly so, perhaps, I and the entire Government would be exposed to if we were to allow the Pensions Law to kick in on first January without any regulatory body in place?

The Superintendent of Pensions and its Board are the checks and balances implemented—Mr. Speaker, if my memory serves me right, I sat here a few days ago and heard the Honourable Fourth Elected Member for George Town reprimand Members of the Government Bench for not having the manners, while he was talking. May I have the same courtesy, Sir?

Mr. Speaker, it is my respectful submission that the Superintendent of Pensions and its auxiliary Board are a very fundamental and necessary infrastructure for the smooth operation of the Pensions Law. As an attorney, which seems to be an attack these days as far as a profession is concerned, it would be remiss of me—it would almost be a criminal offence—if I came to this Honourable House and allowed my people to be put into jeopardy because of politics. I will not do so, Mr. Speaker.

I may be relatively young, but I surely was not born yesterday. I trust, therefore, that all Honourable Members will support this Bill, as I believe it is the only reasonable and practical course that any sensible Government could take at this time, against the background I have tried my best to outline.

Before taking my seat, Mr. Speaker, may I also be permitted to take this opportunity to wish my constituents and the entire Cayman Islands a very merry and blessed Christmas, and may God continue to bless these Cayman Islands. Thank you, Sir.

The Deputy Clerk: The [Development and] Planning (Amendment) (Advertisement Control) Bill, 1997.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I move the Second Reading of a Bill entitled, The [Development and] Planning (Amendment) (Advertisement Control) Bill, 1997.

The Speaker: The Bill has been given a Second Reading. Do you wish to speak to it?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Yes, Mr. Speaker, very briefly. This is a very short Bill, comprising only three paragraphs, and it is one which will deal with the controlling by the Central Planning Authority the display of advertisements or signs. It had been circulated as a white paper to all Members, and one of the sections has been amended to include the request made by some Members, which increased the period to five days for date of service of the notice, and also the fifteen days was added in at the end of that section.

It is important that there be some control in relation to signs and advertisements, and this is something that will be dealt with by the Planning Authority. I would ask all Members to please support this short Bill.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled The [Development and] Planning (Amendment) (Advertising Control) Bill, 1997 be given a Second Reading. It is now open to debate. Does any Member wish to speak? If no Member wishes to speak, would the Mover wish to add a reply?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Just to say thank you very much to all Members, Sir.

HOUSE IN COMMITTEE

COMMITTEE ON BILLS

The Chairman: The House is now in Committee. With the leave of the House, may I assume that as usual we should authorise the Second Official Member to correct minor printing errors and such like in these Bills? Would the Clerk state each Bill and read the Clauses?

THE NATIONAL PENSIONS (SUSPENSION) BILL, 1997

The Deputy Clerk: Clause 1. Short title.

The Chairman: The question is that Clause 1 do stand part of the Bill. If there is no debate I will put the question that Clause 1 do stand part of the Bill. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it. Clause 1 do stand part of the Bill.

AGREED: CLAUSE 1 PASSED.

The Deputy Clerk: Clause 2: Operation of law suspended.

The Chairman: Do you have an amendment, Honourable Minister for Community Affairs?

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: In accordance with the provision of Standing Order 52(1) and (2), I, the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture, give notice to move the following amendment to a Bill for a Law to suspend the operation of the National Pensions Law, 1996; and for incidental and connected purposes:

"That clause 2 be amended by deleting the words 'at such time as the Governor-in-Council by order otherwise determines' and by substituting therefor the words 'first of June 1998.'"

The Chairman: The Amendment has been moved. Does any Member wish to speak to it?

Mr. W. McKeever Bush : Mr. Chairman, just to enquire at what stage you intend to allow me to put forward the amendment which was circulated?

The Chairman: That is when we get to the clause.

The question is that the amendment to Clause 2 do stand part of the Bill. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: AMENDMENT TO CLAUSE 2 PASSED.

The Chairman: The question is that Clause 2 as amended do stand part of the Bill. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it. Clause 2 as amended does stand part of the Bill.

AGREED: CLAUSE 2 AS AMENDED PASSED.

The Chairman: This is a new Clause, Clause 3. The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush : Mr. Chairman, thanks very much. I had put forward a recommendation. I can hear from what the Minister said in her contribution in winding up that the Government is not minded to accept these amendments, although from what I heard her say I do not see where this could hurt. Nevertheless, they are still not minded to accept it. She has not said anything to convince me that what I had offered was not plausible and could not be done. Instead they are just rejecting it. Nevertheless, that is their prerogative.

In accordance with Standing Order 52, I, the First Elected Member for West Bay, seek to move that the National Pensions (Suspension) Bill, 1997, be amended by inserting two new clauses as follows: “(1) the new clause 3, which is an amendment of section 4 of the principal Law, to provide that the effective date of the employers having to provide a pension plan or make contribution to a pension plan be the first day of January 1998;” [and should I move the second one as well?]

Section 4(1) of the principal Law says: “Every employer in the Cayman Islands shall provide a pension plan or make a contribution to a pension plan for every person employed by him in the Cayman Islands.” This amendment would allow the first day of January to remain, as I said earlier. I do not think this would breach section 4(3).

I have circulated another amendment to Clause 4. Will you be taking the amendments separately?

The Chairman: In accordance with Standing Order 52(8), new Clause 3 is deemed to have been read a first time. The question is that it be read a second time. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES and NOES.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Chairman, we have not seen a copy of this latest amendment that the First Elected Member is referring to. Was it two amendments that got circulated?

NEW CLAUSE 3 DEFEATED BY MAJORITY.

The Chairman: New Clause 4: Would the Member read the Clause?

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush : Mr. Chairman, in accordance with the same Standing Order mentioned earlier, I seek to move new Clause 4, Amendment of section 6(2) of the principal Law, to provide that 180 days be deleted and 330 days substituted therefor. This will allow the registration to continue, and there would not be any penalties. Again, in the Minister's debate, she alluded to why she would not want people to suffer penalties right after Christmas. If that is so, and they are minded to give some time, then this amendment would not allow what the Minister said she was worried about. . . that is, this would suspend the penalties for 330 days, that is, effective June 1st, 1998.

The Deputy Clerk: New Clause 4, amendment of section 6(2) of the principal Law.

The Chairman: New Clause 4 is deemed to have been read a first time. The question is that the clause be read a second time. Is there any debate? The Minister for Community Affairs.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Thank you. If I could respond quite briefly to the last contribution. I am sure that Members are fully cognisant that there is more than one penalty clause within the Law, and the suspension which we seek for this country does just that. It stays the sanctions until the regulatory body is in place, and that is the whole reason behind it. We are not in the position to support a situation whereby people are allowed to contribute to a pension plan without there being a proper overseer because of the inherent risk that creates. That is the sole reason behind asking for the short Suspension Bill.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush : Mr. Chairman.

The Chairman: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush : I cannot agree with the Minister on that, because they well know that we have a general suspension. If they wanted to do that—they cannot use that as a credible excuse. If that were so they would not be worried about penalties in general, because of the general suspension of the Law. This suspends penalties for 330 days. Not one section, but we are dealing with the whole Law. This allows the Superintendent of Pensions (when he comes in) to register plans, and the new date is June 1st, 1998.

I am sorry, but I just do not agree with the Government Bench that what they are doing is the best way forward. I do believe that what I am offering, from what I know of the Law, works. And while there are legal minds on the other side, I did get legal advice on this also. From my knowledge of it, this can work. It will allow certain things to happen on one side, and allow Government to do what it claims needs to be done—that is, to get certain things in place. This would not put the public at risk while they are getting their work done. This removes any criminal sanction.

The Chairman: Is there any further debate?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Chairman.

The Chairman: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: The proposal put forward by the First Elected Member for West Bay is a reasonable proposal in light of the circumstances which have been outlined. I think that the Government should not only give credence to, but should accept this amendment. It can only enhance the position in which the Government has placed the people by suspending this Bill. I respect the fact that the Mover has gone to great lengths, and indeed is motivated out of a sense of altruism in proposing this amendment. I also spoke to persons when the Mover intimated to me what he was prepared to do concerning the consistency and its effects, and have been assured by knowledgeable people that this amendment can bring no detriment, but indeed will enhance and make easier the untenable position due to the suspension of this Bill.

The final point is that it would seem to me that out of a sense of honour and conscience, this amendment should be accepted. I am really astounded at the lack of flexibility and the lack of (how should I put it?) camaraderie. But such is the nature of the business. I implore the Government to consider the amendment moved by the Member with all good intention. It certainly has my support, as I see it enhancing the position.

The Chairman: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Chairman, the voluntary contributions that have been made to pension plans all along can continue with this suspension. Nothing changes there. Up until this stage, people who have been continuing with their pension plans voluntarily can go on. All this section has done is to allow contributions to be made during the period, if made voluntarily. That can go on. But Government has removed, by suspending the section, not only the penalties, but any liability for funds that may be administered wrongly where people ultimately lose money because the funds are not properly regulated and controlled. Throughout this Law there are multiple places where there are penalties. This is not the only penalty, that is in section 6.

While I understand what the Honourable Member is seeking to achieve with this section, and I am sure he has had legal advice throughout the time because this was drafted obviously by lawyers at some stage. It does not really achieve, however, what I think has been put forward; and it really is saying that voluntary contributions can go in to funds which are not registered. But it does not stop people from continuing to do what is happening with the suspension, because by putting in this number of days this clause is, in effect, suspended for the full length of time that the Law is suspended. So the effect of suspending the whole Law, since it includes section 6, would be the same on section 6, if I am making myself clear. In other words, section 6(2), when you put in the number of days to 330, would move the suspension of this section down to the first of June, which is, in effect, what the suspension of the Law is doing.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush : Mr. Chairman. There are penalties throughout the Law, but we are dealing with penalties for registration. If they had not turned down the first amendment, it would have made it even better.

I want to determine from the Government Bench what they are trying to achieve. They say that the Superintendent is not in place, and the Regulations need to come. If those are the things that are worrisome to the Government Bench, and they are not in place, and the Government needs time to get them in place, that does not stop registration. The penalties—they cannot complain about the penalties, because this is suspending the penalties! Government has to be mindful of the fact that we cannot get away from it, and we might as well address it in this Committee and be open to ourselves and to the people who will be paying pensions.

Government knows that insurance is coming in June. They are saying now that contributions will start in June. One is June and one is July. Maybe I am a little bit mixed up, but I think those are the months. Are they saying they are going to put both together? We have to deal with it! So, as I said, if penalties are the worry about the registration, then this suspends penalties for 330 days! I do not think Government should leave the air muddled. Let us put it another way—they should clear the air on what will happen in June and July. I think that is fair to the public and to the House.

I know full well the heat Government has taken in bringing this, and in trying to appease the public. The lady Minister talked about amendments. They are not amendments that have so much to do with policy, but they are clean-up amendments—change of wording, housekeeping amendments. But again, all those amendments came because of public input—we want this, we don't want that, let's see how we can get this working so it won't do this. These are the kinds of things the public came up with. So they are housekeeping amendments, and I cannot understand why we do not go ahead with the registration, as was supposed to have happened in any event. Why were we not worried before about the liabilities when we suspended the coming into effect date?

I certainly think they need to clear the air on what is going to happen in those two months.

The Chairman: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Chairman, with regard to the amendment being sought by the First Elected Member for West Bay with the new Clause 4, the amendment to section 6(2) of the principal Law, I am not going to pretend that I am versed enough in the technicalities here to be able to call a spade a spade. But the attempt being made here is to see if we can avoid the two laws coming into effect at the same time, the Pensions Law and the Health Insurance Law. The Member is trying to assist the Government Bench in preventing that error from occurring, and although the Minister responsible might have taken offence to some of the things that were said, I continue to believe that this is the big difficulty which might prove to be even more significant than a technical difficulty. For this reason, I would support this amendment. I think as a form of compromise, it would be good. I would also be interested in hearing what the Honourable Second Official Member, the Attorney General, has to say about some of these issues here, since he is our legal mind.

The Chairman: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Mr. Chairman, if I could refer to sections 6(1) and 6(2), which read: 6(1)

“No person shall administer a pension plan for the benefit of employees unless the plan has been registered by the Superintendent, and a certificate has been issued in respect of the plan by the Superintendent.”

The statutory proviso reads: “Notwithstanding subsection (1), a pension plan which has not been registered in accordance with subsection (1) may be administered without the required registration during the first 180 days after the commencement of this Law.”

Mr. Chairman, as I understand it, the Mover of the amendment is seeking to delete “180 days” and substitute “330 days.” The only difference, as I see it, is that both will cause the Law to go into suspension until the first of June; except what the Government is putting forward ensures that the contributors to the pension have the necessary and requisite protection of their contributions, whereas the other one leaves them open for that six-month period. That is my understanding of it, Sir.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush : Mr. Chairman, if . . .

The Chairman: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush : If the Minister is suspending the whole thing, who is going to contribute?

GOVERNMENT MOTIONS

GOVERNMENT MOTION NO. 14/97

THE PUBLIC FINANCE AND AUDIT LAW (1997 REVISION) ~and~ THE MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS (FEES AND DUTIES) (TEMPORARY) LAW, 1997(ENVIRONMENTAL PROTECTION FUND)

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

It has been a few days since we broke from this Motion and, in support of the efforts of the Honourable Third Official Member, I think it is only fitting that I read the Motion to show its full intent. I will make my comments regarding the obvious intent of the Motion and then I will say a few other things. Government Motion No. 14/97—The Public Finance and Audit Law (1997 Revision) and the Miscellaneous Provisions (Fees and Duties) (Temporary) Law, 1997 (Environmental Protection Fund), reads:

“WHEREAS under section 7 of the Miscellaneous Provisions (Fees and Duties) (Temporary) Law, 1997 environmental protection fees are to be collected from passengers on vessels and aircraft;

“AND WHEREAS it is necessary to establish an environmental protection fund to ensure that the fees collected are kept separate from general revenue of the Islands and are expended to protect and preserve the environment of the Islands.

“BE IT NOW RESOLVED-

“(1) that an environmental protection fund be established in accordance with the powers contained in section 30 of the Public Finance and Audit Law (1997 Revision);

“(2) that all environmental protection fees collected under section 7 of the Miscellaneous Provisions (Fees and Duties) (Temporary) Law, 1997 shall be credited to the fund;

“(3) that the Legislative Assembly or the Finance Committee may make additional appropriations to the fund from the general revenues, borrowings or other funds of Government;

“(4) that disbursements from the fund may only be made in accordance with resolutions made by the Finance Committee, and under the authority of the Financial Secretary, for the purpose of defraying expenditure incurred in protecting and preserving the environment of the Islands;

“(5) that if at the close of account for any financial year it is found that expenditure charged to the fund is less than the sum appropriated to the fund, the surplus shall be held in the fund for disbursement in future years; and

“(6) that the Accountant-General shall prepare a statement of accounts for this fund as part of the Government's annual financial statements.”

In my view the Motion is very well thought out. It outlines clearly the purpose of the fund, the terms of reference and how, and by what authority, the fund can be applied. I willingly accept that this is something we should be seeing more of.

Having said that, I wish to move to Table 2A of the 1998 Estimates, which outlines the Government's proposed use in 1998 of the Environmental Protection Fund. Table 2A reads (is it not very long, but I need to go through it) as follows: in the first line is the accumulated balance brought forward from 1997 of $0.35 million. The next line quotes the anticipated receipts into the Environmental Protection Fund in 1998 of $2.25 million, and the next line shows that when you add those two figures together, you have a total inflow of $2.60 million. After that, we see how some of it is intended to be spent.

The first area of use for this fund is for the Port Authority loan repayment on cruise ship moorings of $0.15 million, which is $150,000. To raise the questions I need to at this time regarding this loan repayment on cruise ship moorings, I wish to refer to the Financial Statements of the Port Authority of the Cayman Islands for 31st December, 1996 and 1995. In these financial statements, first of all on page 11, number 7 in the Notes to the Financial Statements—Long-Term Debt, the penultimate paragraph reads, “The Port Authority arranged a loan for CI$6 million with a local bank to apply towards the construction of permanent cruise ship moorings. As at December 31, 1996 no amounts had been drawn on this facility.” Unless I am misunderstanding what these notes are saying, the loan for the cruise ship moorings is a loan taken out by the Port Authority. I am sure there is a logical explanation, but I have to bring this question to bear so that an answer can be made clear.

Under the same notes to the Financial Statements, in number 9—Commitments, it says, “During the year ended December 31, 1996, the following commitments were entered into by the Port Authority: Authorised and contracted [and I will not read all of them, I am just reading the one that relates to the cruise ship moorings] (2) Engineering costs related to the installation of permanent cruise ship moorings of US$251,800 were approved during the year ended 31st December, 1996. As at that same date, US$184,368 had been expended towards this project. An additional cash amount of US$50,013 was restricted as at December 31, 1996, for this project.”

If I am reading these financial statements correctly, and I am looking at the 1998 Estimates, it appears to me that the Port Authority has engaged a loan for the cruise ship moorings. I am assuming that the whole operation is in the works because at this point I know nothing about what the position is with the cruise ship moorings. They have not been installed yet. I make no assumptions in that area because I know it takes time, and I am assuming that we are in the middle of that entire operation. But I need to have explained to me why, if the Port Authority has engaged a loan for these moorings, the money from the Environmental Protection Fund is being used to repay the loan. I am sure the answer is forthcoming.

In the process I would like to know what funds have been drawn down (since according to the statements up to December 1996 there was no draw-down), what funds have been expended and for what purpose, and when repayments start.

The very first line of the Motion reads: “WHEREAS under section 7 of the Miscellaneous Provisions (Fees and Duties) (Temporary) Law, 1997 environmental protection fees are to be collected from passengers on vessels and aircraft.” I think we all realise how the funds are derived. I am not questioning the relationship between cruise ship moorings and how the funds are collected. I want to understand how the Port Authority engaged in a loan and funds that are in a Government account are being used to repay the loan—if that is the case.

Taking $150,000 out of the $2.6 million leaves an accumulated surplus of $2.45 million. That is what is projected for 1998. As part of the balancing act for the 1998 Estimates, it is projected that there will be a transfer to the Capital Development Fund—that wonderful new fund we are talking about—of $2.04 million, leaving an accumulated balance to be carried forward at year end 1998 of $410,000.

The fourth ‘Resolved’ section of the Motion says: “(4) that disbursements from the fund may only be made in accordance with resolutions made by the Finance Committee, and under the authority of the Financial Secretary, for the purpose of defraying expenditure incurred in protecting and preserving the environment of the Islands.” We have had many discussions, in fact many arguments regarding capital expenditure for 1998. I know of no specific project which directly relates to the protection and preservation of the environment of the Cayman Islands. If we are to transfer $2.04 million from the Environmental Protection Fund to the Capital Development Fund then, based on the Motion, it is incumbent upon all concerned that at least $2.04 million out of that Capital Development Fund must be spent on projects which relate to the protection and preservation of the environment.

I will not get back into another debate, but suffice it to say that I have seen no proof of this. If others who speak after me, or the Mover of this Government Motion can prove it to me, I will be happy to accept. From all of my searching I see nothing of it, from all of my listening to the debate from the Government Bench regarding the Estimates and the Loan Bill I heard nothing about any project of this nature.

If I, as a Member not only of this Honourable Legislative Assembly but as a Member of Finance Committee, who has to approve the use of these funds, have not seen any such thing, it leads me to wonder what sense there is in passing this Motion if it is going to be abused. Rather than standing here contending that is what is going to happen, I need someone to answer the questions I have raised.

When this was first brought about, it was March 1997. It was the second reading of the Miscellaneous Provisions (Fees and Duties) (Temporary) Bill, 1997. In his contribution to the debate, the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town had some questions regarding this fund. I will quote a section of his contribution. He said: “Some items in this are really creating precedents. This whole business of an environmental tax of

$2.00—which, according to the Bill, is to be levied on every traveller on every outbound vessel and every tourist in a cruise ship—there is no provision for where this money is going to go. There is no escrow account bearing the title of an ‘Environmental Protection Fund’. There is no designation of what aspect of the environment these fees are going to be used to protect, preserve or keep. You do not have to be too mischievous to wonder if this is not a glorified title for an increase in travel tax.” (Hansard 14th March, 1997, page 50.)

The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town raised those queries in March. The Government Motion coming behind it in the month of December is seeking to allay all of those fears, and the fears of those of us who did not voice it at that time. But from all I can see, unless there is proof forthcoming that the fears are unfounded, then instead of being allayed, the fear has increased.

I am absolutely sure that there are Members facing me today who are asking themselves, ‘Why is this fellow like this? Why is he digging into everything?’ I am going to tell you why. For the past five years I have done everything possible to try and understand how my country runs. I certainly am no authority, but as time has gone on, I have understood a little bit more. As my eyes get opened a little bit wider, I see problems ahead of us.

It is late, we do not want to be here too late, but I have to impress upon the Government of this country—as repetitious as it may seem—that if we do not examine ourselves and stop doing the country’s business in the manner in which we are doing it, we will fall. We are doing projections, balancing budgets, creating funds and we are not doing the business the way it should be done. If there are those among us who simply do not understand because they do not know better, I pray to God that those who do will teach them. If there are those who know better but because they are so used to not doing better, and cling to the way they know, I pray that God will speak to them so they can mend their ways.

It may seem that I suddenly have this fighting spirit. But none of them can say that I have not tried to use all of the normal means. There comes a time when you try and no one listens, that you try another way. I wish to take the last two minutes before I sit down on this contribution to read a short excerpt to prove to each and every one of us here why we should be worried. This is just a very short article relating to the economy of Jersey. We all know that in the world that we live in that name equates to competition for us. We argue about general reserves, we argue about budgets not really balancing, we argue about employment, we hide this, and we hide that. Let me tell you the way our competition operates as a country. I quote: “Jersey has a strong economy, and this provides a solid foundation for the continued development of the island as a successful international financial centre. Jersey balances its budget, compared with a European average budget deficit of 2.5% of GDP.” It does not end there. The very next line says: “Jersey has no public debt and has a strategic reserve broadly equal to one year’s tax revenues.”

And they are supposed to be ordinary. That is our competition, and the world we think we are living in causes us to increase everything we are doing—our debt ratio, our repayment ratio, all of that—and we are everything well. The competition can have people go and examine situations in their country, and write articles saying, 'Listen. I am not from this country. I have gone there and I am telling the truth.' They are not spouting their own message. That is why I am worried, Mr. Speaker.

I will end my contribution regarding this Government Motion by asking at least the Mover. . . and before I say what I am going to say, let me say this: If answers are covered up any more. . . as I grow older I learn more lessons. My memory is pretty good. I can tell you here and now that even when I feel it, I will live within the bounds of the Standing Orders and such like in the future because I respect that I should. But I can promise this House one thing: Anything I hear from now on that does not ring of total truth, if it takes me to ask God for a better vision, I am going to do everything possible to find out. It must be transparent. The system must be inherently transparent. I am tired—the country is tired!—of things not being put in proper perspective and being related to the public.

Mr. Roy Bodden: It must be seen to be so.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: As my good friend just said, the system must not only be transparent, but must be seen to be so by me, all others and the public at large.

I am only asking for the truth. I do not want it doctored. If it means that I look like an idiot, that is fine. Give it to me that way and I am happy. Mr. Speaker, this may seem to be repetitious, but I can promise you that any time you hear me not sounding as I should in this House it is because of the lack of truth.

Thank you.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause) Let us not delay. If another Member wishes to speak, please come forward. (Pause)

If no other Member wishes to speak, would the Mover care to reply?

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Thank you. In the presentation of the resolution to establish the Environmental Fund, it was noted that the purpose of the fund was to manage and control schemes to protect and preserve the environment of these Islands. I further suggested that the fund was being established to be flexible, and would receive appropriations from any source and expend monies to protect and preserve the environment of these Islands in schemes which may involve recurrent, capital acquisitions, capital development or a mixture of any of these three categories of expenditure.

The 1998 Draft Budget includes a provision to transfer $2.04 million from the Environmental Protection Fund to the Capital Development Fund to assist in financing the environmental-related projects in the following areas: landfill development, sewage treatment facilities, enhancement facilities for the Department of the Environment, various coastal enhancement projects, and the further development of public open spaces in the districts. As noted in the presentation, a special resolution of Finance Committee will be required prior to the transfer from the Environmental Protection Fund, and at that time the specific projects will be detailed to support the actual transfer.

This is saying that although this money has been provided in the Budget to be transferred into the Capital Development Fund, a range of projects will have to be determined as qualifying for financing under the terms as set out in the Environmental Protection Fund. Once this range of projects has been identified, this listing of projects will be submitted for consideration to Finance Committee and a decision taken to authorise the necessary transfers based on the justifications that will be provided to the Finance Committee.

The $150,000 put into the Budget to assist the Port Authority, and the First Elected Member for George Town has correctly raised the question as to what would be the basis for the transfer. It is understood that the draw-downs from the loan approved for the installation of permanent moorings will commence during the course of this year. Against those draw-downs, there will be certain interest costs. It was deemed that permanent moorings were required to ensure the protection of the environment in order to minimise the damage being caused by the dragging of cruise ship anchors within the George Town dock area. It was felt, given the burden that would be placed upon the Port Authority having to service that loan, it would be quite appropriate to seek supplementation of the funds available by making a transfer out of the Environmental Protection Fund. I trust that this will be an adequate response to the Member's questions on this.

As I said, a range of projects will be identified. That listing, once identified, to the value of $2.04 million, will be submitted for review and approval at a meeting of Finance Committee. That will then become the basis of the transfer from the Environmental Protection Fund to the Capital Development Fund.

In order to expand his views on the prudence of transparency in government, and to look at what our competition has been doing, the Honourable Member has referred to an article on Jersey, setting out their financial position as it now stands. If we were to examine our financial systems and financial accountability, we all agree that there is a need for improvement. We are committed to this, and at present, as indicated in previous statements to this House, there is a review underway of the Public Finance and Audit Law. We are looking at the Government's accounting system. We are examining the cash accounting system with a view to making a determination whether we should move to a modified accrual system or a full accrual system.

When we take all of these into account, these actions can be translated into progress. When we compare ourselves with countries such as Jersey, it is always good to look and see what is happening elsewhere. It is always good to look and see what the competition is doing. A lot of these countries do not have the type of tax base as we do in Cayman. A lot of them may have a mild form of direct taxation system in place. If we were to examine what we have done over the years, given the structure of the indirect tax system we have in Cayman, and when we look at the level of services being subsidised, granted, there is a need for refinement. But we saw earlier this year what happened when the Government attempted to put in place specific revenue measures to enhance the level of available revenue. I will give you an example. About eight years ago, there was a review carried out in terms of the cost of refuse collection. At that time it was shown that it was costing the country in excess of $250 per household. Today we are charging the same $50 that was being charged then.

When we look at the amount of money being put out for education, over $27 million, granted, that is very important. One cannot measure the benefits back to society, in fact, one should not suggest that is not a fair amount of money to spend. Probably more should be spent. But when we look at what is being charged for book rental fees, it is almost ludicrous in comparison to persons who have the ability to make a greater contribution to the education of their children, for example, what is being paid in private schools. I am not suggesting that this should be a burden strapped on to the society. But I am suggesting that is an area that can be looked at.

A substantial portion of revenue is allocated for the provision of health services, an integral part of the services required because the good health of the society is important. Against over $20 million in the Budget is revenue of a little over $4 million. We have a narrow revenue stream. These are things that will have to be looked at. I have heard Members of this Honourable House say there is a need for the public to be educated on this. We are looking into these areas. Through the political system, this education process will have to take place so that conscious decisions can be made regarding what the country is prepared to subsidise.

It is very important to look carefully at this and see what has been squeezed out of the narrow band of revenue made available to the country as a whole. It is important for the sake of stability that the private sector, or the financial industry, knows on an annual basis that the Government will not be arbitrarily raising fees. This is discussed with them. This creates stability in the business being brought into Cayman. We look at the employment spin-off. Granted, we need to look at the revenue stream. An exercise is underway at this time whereby through the reinvention exercise services are being costed, reports will be provided to the Legislative Assembly to demonstrate to Members what the position is at this time, and where appropriate to consider certain revenue enhancements.

Another point, as Financial Secretary I am a God-fearing person. I do not tell lies. When I come into this House to provide Members with information, I try to be as truthful as possible. That is my commitment to the truth. I have dealt in my responses to parliamentary questions to sharing information with Members, to the furthest extent that can be allowed. Members will have to bear in mind that as a Member of Executive Council, I am bound by collective responsibility. I have my private views on issues, but when I come to this House, I have to take the position that has been arrived at as being the consensus of the Government on issues.

Executive Council is the place where I let my views or the differences in my thoughts be known in putting forward those ideas. But I am bound by collective responsibility. I trust that the Honourable Member will be of the view that whenever I provide information to this House I am being as truthful as possible.

Each day we live and we learn. This Budget process and what we have gone through has been a learning experience for all, including me. We have seen certain areas that need to be improved and we have seen some areas that need vast improvement. I am sure that subsequent budget sessions will be totally different. We have seen that figures have been put in the Budget and the sum has been different from the amount set out in the allocated expenditure. It was not a question of errors made. The logic saying that departments should prioritise when they ask for $70,000 and were given $40,000, or asked for $50,000 and were given $25,000, this has been a process over time.

To conclude, Mr. Speaker, we have a narrow band of revenue. It is necessary to look, wherever revenue exists, to see how such revenue can be brought into the general pool to facilitate the financing of Government projects, recurrent expenditure, statutory expenditure. Certain decisions will have to be made. I think the Honourable Minister for Agriculture said today that we are not the Islands that time has forgotten. We have now arrived. We have 'up-front costs' that would normally be borne by any society. We have our road works and so on. We cannot be out there talking about third-world roads or school systems. These terms are totally out the window as far as the Cayman Islands are concerned. We have real costs in front of us and these costs will have to be met. We have to examine our revenue base.

This exercise will be done and I will be submitting the findings to the Government for consideration. As I said, when we look at refuse collection, there is just so much that can be squeezed out of the narrow band of fees that we have at this time. I do not believe that we need to move at this time to a form of direct taxation, but we need to examine the existing revenue measures more carefully, and determine what equitable amounts should come from those sectors.

The Speaker: I will now put the question on Government Motion No. 14/97. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: GOVERNMENT MOTION NO. 14/97 PASSED.

The Speaker: Government Motion No. 15/97—Development and Planning Law (1995 Revision) (An Infrastructural Fund).

The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

GOVERNMENT MOTION NO. 15/97

DEVELOPMENT AND PLANNING LAW (1995 REVISION) (AN INFRASTRUCTURAL FUND)

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Government Motion No. 15/97 seeks to establish an Infrastructure Fund and reads as follows:

“WHEREAS under section 34A of the Development and Planning Law (1995 Revision) an infrastructure fund is established to be administered in accordance with directions issued by the Financial Secretary;

“AND WHEREAS it is necessary to ensure that the contributions collected are kept separate from general reserve of the Islands and are expended on the development of roads and other infrastructure in the Islands;

“BE IT NOW RESOLVED -

“(1) that all contributions collected under section 34A(4) of the Development and Planning Law (1995 Revision) shall be credited to the fund;

“(2) that the Legislative Assembly or the Finance Committee may make additional appropriations to the fund from the general revenues, borrowings or other funds of Government;

“(3) that disbursements from the fund may only be made in accordance with resolutions made by the Finance Committee, and under the authority of the Financial Secretary, for the purpose of defraying expenditure incurred on the development of roads and other infrastructure in the Islands;

“(4) that if at the close of account for any financial year it is found that expenditure charged to the fund is less than the sum appropriated to the fund, the surplus shall be held in the fund for disbursement in future years; and

“(5) that the Accountant-General shall prepare a statement of accounts for this fund as part of the Government’s annual financial statements.”

Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: Government Motion No. 15/97 is now open for debate. The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The various Resolve sections of the Motion set out specifically how this fund will be maintained.

The Speaker: We have to change the tape.

MASTER TAPE CHANGED AT 6.34 PM.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development please continue.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The details as set out in the Motion state the purpose for establishment of the fund. It specifically points out the sources from where money will be injected into the fund, how it will be managed, and that at the end of the financial year separate financial statements will be prepared by the Accountant-General to be audited and subsequently tabled in this Legislative Assembly.

I do not think it is necessary to add any further details.

The Speaker: Does any Member wish to speak? The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: I would like to make a very short observation here. When the Development and Planning Law was amended to include these infrastructure fees, I was of the opinion that areas were developing to the extent that it was causing a repercussion in other parts of the country, regarding people’s ability to afford land. It is still my opinion that an infrastructure fund should be responsive to the needs of the people in this country for homes and land. It is because of the rapid development and the expensive price of land that a lot of our people are incapable of owning land and homes.

I think that when we put this fund together, and I tried to mention that at the very beginning, if we are going to make a law to collect funds, we should have an idea where those funds will go. I believe it is very important to bear in mind that a fund like this should go to help people afford homes and land.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause) If not, would the Honourable Mover wish to reply?

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I would like to thank Honourable Members for their support. I have noted the comments of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town. What must be borne in mind is that whenever certain developments occur within these Islands, they create a demand for the provision of infrastructure—roads, water and so on. This fund will ensure that there will be funds coming in to assist in defraying the cost incurred by the Government, because the Government cannot choose not to put in the infrastructure demanded as a result of these developments. By the mere fact that the Government is collecting a contribution from these developers, this will alleviate the burden that would otherwise be imposed on the community at large to meet these infra-structural costs.

At the end of the day, monies not needed to be collected from the general public to provide certain services will convey a benefit to the society as a whole. As the Member will recall, when the Planning Law was amended, there was a concession granted to allow the abatement of stamp duty to first-time homeowners up to a given value for the acquisition of land or house and property.

The Speaker: I shall now put the question on Government Motion No. 15/97. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

Mr. Roy Bodden: This is a position I like to be in. I like to make people uncomfortable.

MOTION TO WITHDRAW PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 5/97

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I have consulted with my colleagues. It is late in the day, it is late in the season, late in the year. I respectfully move, as important as this Motion is, that the House grant that this Motion be withdrawn to come back in the March sitting. I have made this move in consultation and with the agreement of my colleagues because we believe it is in the best interests of all concerned. Mr. Speaker, I will not miss this point: It allows us to demonstrate to the Government that we are indeed charitable and considerate.

The Speaker: The Chair thanks you. I shall put the question that Private. . .

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I second that.

The Speaker: Thank you. I shall put the question that Private Member's Motion No. 5/97 be withdrawn and be allowed to come back on the Order Paper next year during the February/March meeting. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 5/97 BE WITHDRAWN AND BE ALLOWED TO COME BACK ON THE ORDER PAPER NEXT YEAR DURING THE FEBRUARY/MARCH MEETING.

The Speaker: That concludes the business on the Order Paper for this meeting and for this year. I will now call for a motion for the adjournment and will offer Members' an opportunity to convey Christmas greetings to their constituents and family.

The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until 20 February 1998.

The Speaker: The question is that this House do now adjourn until 20 February 1998. The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush : Mr. Speaker, I wish to take this opportunity to extend to you and your family all the very best for this holy season. I also wish particularly for you, Mr. Speaker, good health in the New Year.

I also want to extend to all of my colleagues in this House and to their families a very joyous Christmas and the very best for the New Year. The same is extended to all the staff, in particular the Clerk and the Serjeant-at-Arms and all the other staff members of this Honourable House who serve us each day. The same goes out to the press and others who serve us.

I thought about what I would say at this time. We did not get to go into our prayer group today, nor will we get for the balance of this year in this House, but for the reading of the 25th, the scripture reads, "Lord, how oft shall my brother sin against me and I forgive him? Until seven times?" Jesus sayeth on to him, 'Until seventy times seven.'" I would like to take a minute to read that portion of reading for the prayer group:

"Remember when? That's a question we hear a lot this time of year. Reminiscing with family and friends we browse through Christmases gone by, enjoying the memories until, inevitably, we stumble upon the memories we would rather forget. Suddenly the pain comes rushing back—the sting of a parent’s criticism, the broken promise of a friend, the rejections, the disappointments, the heartaches. What should we do with memories like that? Do we have to drag them along like so much baggage from year to year? No. We can leave them behind. In fact, we must leave them behind and there is only one way to do it, through forgiveness. Forgiving someone sounds like a simple thing to do, yet few of us actually do it. We treat others as if it were one of life’s additional options—something we can take or leave alone. But it is not. It is a basic requirement for every believer. In fact, as far as God is concerned, unforgiveness is wickedness.”

It closes by saying, “After all, Jesus paid off a mountain of debts for you (that is for you and me). You can afford to be generous about the nickel and dime debts of others. Spend time with the Holy Spirit allowing Him to reveal the unforgiveness in you. Then repent and release it. Make this Christmas more than just a time for remembering. Make it a time to forget.”

Mr. Speaker, there is also a very special Christmas Carol that I love to listen to and often sing, entitled “O Holy Night.” In that song there is a line that talks about a thrill of hope. That is what I have for the new year—hope that we can all live together in peace and harmony in the House. That means putting away all envy, all deceit, avarice, bitterness and hate against each other. If we do this as Members in this House, it will hopefully spread in the country at large. That is my fervent hope for the new year.

I do wish all Members a joyous Christmas and a very happy and prosperous New Year.

I better not sit down before I take this opportunity to wish my constituents, friends and supporters throughout the Islands a joyous Christmas and happy and prosperous New Year, and I hope that you and the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman will take my regards to the people of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

The Speaker: I certainly will. The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I take this opportunity to wish you and your family a very merry Christmas and a happy and prosperous New Year. I also wish to extend these same wishes to the Clerk, Deputy Clerk and their respective families and the other members of staff of the Legislative Assembly, as well as our good Serjeant-at-Arms. I look forward to seeing that stoic, reserved and composed countenance in the new year.

To my colleagues in the House, the Government, both Official and Elected Members, I wish a very merry Christmas and a happy and prosperous New Year. It is my fervent prayer that we may return to these hallowed Halls refreshed, recharged and reinvigorated. While I wish that we may learn to respect and love one another more sincerely, I do not wish to see any lessening in our sincerity of belief in the principles upon which we stand when we rise to debate. If we were all flat and monotonous the Parliament would soon lose its life and the public may lose interest. When saying that, I wish that we could find ways to express our disagreements without being personal and without bearing malice. I often remind myself that in spite of what I may think about the other person’s position, we are all in here for the same purpose—to do the best for the country.

In speaking at this time, I am also speaking on behalf of the First Elected Member for George Town, the third Elected Member for George Town, the fourth Elected Member for George Town, and I think I can safely include the Member for North Side who is not here. We bear no colleague any ill-will or malice.

To our constituents, friends, supporters and the country in its widest spectrum, we wish a very merry Christmas and a joyous and prosperous New Year.

Mr. Speaker, before I sit down I must also extend these cordial greetings and wishes to the members of the press, especially Mr. John Redman and Miss Bina Mani, who occupy the press gallery, and also members of Radio Cayman and hope, as a special wish and prayer from us on this side who are promoters of the vision, that when they return they may help us disseminate this vision we have undertaken.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: I speak on behalf of the National Team Government in wishing you, Mr. Speaker, and all Members of this Honourable House (and that includes the Backbenchers) and their families, the Members of staff at the Legislative Assembly and their families, and all of our friends throughout the Cayman Islands a very merry Christmas and a happy New Year. It is our hope that in the coming year, this House will be more united than it has been in the past few months. We also pray that God will guide us to live up to that when we come back here to represent our people, the people of the Cayman Islands.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Mr. Speaker, I rise to make a few brief comments on behalf of the three Official Members. Let me begin by wishing you and your family a happy and joyous Christmas and a bright and prosperous 1998. In so doing, I would like to extend the same good wishes to the Clerk and her staff of the Legislative Assembly, as well as all Members of this Honourable House. I should also like to include members of the press. I cannot fail to single out Mr. John Redman who is faithfully here—even at this late hour and this late time of the year.

Finally, I would like to wish for all people in the Cayman Islands all that is good for the upcoming season and a wonderful 1998. I would particularly like to mention the people of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, the two Islands that I love so dearly.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak?

If not, I would like to thank all Honourable Members for the courtesy they have extended and the tolerance they have shown to the Chair during this year. There have been some heated moments. There have been some pleasant moments. I thank you all for the fellowship and I look forward, as we come back next year, to working more closely together. I pledge that I shall try to be as impartial as is humanly possible.

I would like to say to all Honourable Members and the people of the Cayman Islands that I wish the very best for them in this Christmas season, and a very happy and prosperous New Year. To the Clerk and her staff, the Deputy and all the Members of the staff, the Hansard staff who do such a wonderful job, the Serjeant-at-Arms, and Miss Anita who keeps us so well fed, I would like to express my deep appreciation to each of them individually and to wish them and their families the very best for the season.

I would also like to take this opportunity to thank the Hon. George A. McCarthy, Financial Secretary, for the spiritual guidance he has offered to us during the year. I think that is as important or possibly more important than anything else we can do in life. I have benefited much from it and I think all Members join me in expressing deep appreciation to you for that and ask that you continue.

As we leave tonight and go to our individual homes, I pray God's richest blessing on each of you. May the year 1998 be a very happy, healthy and prosperous year for all of us. Before I sit down, I think the people of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman know that when I speak of the Cayman Islands my mind is on them first of all, that is where my roots are. I love all the Cayman Islands, but, naturally, there is no place like home. I wish for each and every one of them everything that is good, and pledge to represent them to the very best of my ability.

Again, I thank you all for the courtesies you have bestowed upon me this year. I would now like to put the question that this Honourable House do now adjourn until 10 o'clock in the morning on 20 February 1998. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

STATEMENT BY HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR

His Excellency Mr. John Owen: That marks the end of the administration of Oaths and Affirmations to the newly elected representatives.

Before I leave, I want to refer briefly to the electoral process, the voters and the new Members of the Legislative Assembly.

The election process, from start to finish, ran smoothly and efficiently. This does not happen by chance; this is a direct result of months of hard work by the Supervisor of Elections and his staff. I congratulate him and his team of dedicated volunteers for ensuring that candidates and voters have full confidence in the integrity of Cayman's electoral process.

I want to particularly congratulate the people of the Cayman Islands, the voters of the Cayman Islands, for the high turnout at the polls of over 85%. You are an example to the world of a people who understand the importance of exercising your democratic right to vote.

Finally, to the Elected Representatives, congratulations on your success. The voters have placed a special trust and confidence in each one of you. This puts a heavy responsibility on your shoulders. Not only for those who voted for you, but for all of the people of these islands, serve them well. God bless you all. Thank you.

DEPARTURE OF HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR

*Serjeant-at-Arms
His Excellency the Governor
ADC
Chief Justice*

Clerk: I invite the Reverend Harris Spence to say prayers.

PRAYERS

Rev. Harris Spence: Let us Pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived; we beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, the Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly that they may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of their high office. All this we ask for Thy Great Name's sake.

Together let us pray the Lord's Prayer.

Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done, on earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread; and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us; and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil; For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine to upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace now and always. Amen.

NOMINATION AND ELECTION OF FIVE MINISTERS TO EXECUTIVE COUNCIL

The Speaker: The next item on our Order Paper is the Election of five Ministers to Executive Council. The procedure for this item is laid down under section 5 of the Constitution and under Standing Order 5 of the Orders of this House which govern the proceedings. The Chair proposes, subject to there being no objections, for Members to appoint the First Official Member and the Third Official Member as scrutineers if a ballot is required.

I now put the question that the Honourable First and Third Official Members be appointed scrutineers for the election. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The Honourable First and Third Official Members are appointed scrutineers for the election.

AGREED: THE HONOURABLE FIRST AND THIRD
OFFICIAL MEMBERS APPOINTED SCRUTINEERS
FOR THE BALLOT COUNT.

The Speaker: Before I call for nominations to the Executive Council, I crave the indulgence of members of the public gallery.

I am aware that the general Election, the outcome of which we witnessed on the 20th and 21st of this month, is being eagerly celebrated. The results of this election are also eagerly awaited. But I must ask that everyone refrain from any comments, sounds or other expressions of jubilation or disappointment.

This is a very serious matter, and the process can be more fluid if members of the general public desist from any manner of audible expression. I can assure you that at the appropriate time an opportunity will be given for you to manifest your agreement.

I shall now call for nominations to the Executive Council by voice. Each nomination will require a mover and a seconder. I should say at this time that the names of Honourable Members will be used rather than districts. Members are aware that normally in this Honourable House you are referred to by districts, i.e., the First Elected Member for George Town, or Second or Third; but on this occasion, for clarity, we will refer to Members by name. This will avoid any misunderstanding by the general public.

We are now open for Nominations to the Executive Council.

Mr. Roy Boddin: Mr. Speaker, I respectfully nominate Mr. Linford A. Pierson.

The Speaker: Mr. Linford A. Pierson has been nominated. Is there a seconder for that?

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I beg to second that, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: Mr. McKeeva Bush has been nominated. Is there a seconder? Mr. Dalmain Ebanks.

Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks: I beg to second that nomination.

Miss Heather D. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I beg to nominate Mr. Anthony Eden.

The Speaker: Mr. Anthony Eden has been nominated. Is there a seconder? Mr. Bush.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 10.50 AM

(Preparation of Ballot Papers)

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 11.00 AM

SECRET BALLOT

The Speaker: Please be seated.

I will now ask the Honourable First and Third Official Members to take their place at the Clerk's Table. We will then distribute the ballots to all Members.

I will now say a few words about the procedure. I think I am right in saying that there are nine persons who have been duly nominated. The procedure for this election is that (and this I am saying for the benefit of the public) the Standing Orders decide or declare that we shall have a ballot. Members will vote by secret ballot, and the Clerk is handing out the names of those who have been nominated and seconded.

Under the present Constitution there are five Members to be elected, so you will only vote for five Members. You should not sign your paper. There should be no mark other than the 'X' on your papers. Your papers should not be identifiable. I am suggesting that perhaps you may fold the paper so that it will remain a secret ballot.

The Serjeant will then return the box to the Clerk in front of the two Scrutineers. The Clerk and the two Scrutineers will count the number of votes. They will then pass the list to the Chair for reading out. If there are five of the nominated Members receiving a clear majority of votes over the others, then those five will be declared duly elected.

This is how I plan to carry out the proceedings, and I ask that the gallery remain as quiet as possible.

The Speaker: If all Members have now completed their vote, I would ask the Serjeant to collect them in the box. Please fold your papers small enough so that they fit easily into the Ballot Box.

Will the Scrutineers begin the count?

Hon. James M. Ryan: (The Honourable Member read out the result of each Ballot Paper.)

The Speaker: The scrutineers may take their seats.

I shall now read out the number of votes received by each nominee:

RESULTS OF THE BALLOT

Mr. Roy Bodden	3 votes
Mr. Linford A. Pierson	3 votes
Mr. W. McKeeva Bush	11 votes
Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts	3 votes
Mr. Anthony S. Eden	10 votes
Mr. Thomas C. Jefferson	10 votes
Mr. John B McLean	8 votes
Mr. Truman M Bodden	9 votes
Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly	4 votes

DECLARATION OF ELECTED MEMBERS TO EXECUTIVE COUNCIL

The Speaker: I therefore declare the following Members elected to Executive Council, and ask them to take their seats on the Government Bench. At that time you may show your appreciation by applause:

- Hon. W. McKeeva Bush
- Hon. Anthony S. Eden
- Hon. Thomas C Jefferson
- Hon. John B. McLean
- Hon. Truman M. Bodden

(Applause)

The Speaker: I have called these names as they were listed on the ballot paper, not necessarily by the number of votes received. If the Honourable Members want to seat themselves according to the votes received, that is for their discretion.

Proceedings are suspended for 15 minutes.

THE HOUSE WAS SUSPENDED AT 11.16 AM

NOMINATIONS FOR ELECTION OF MEMBERS TO THE STANDING PUBLIC ACCOUNTS COMMITTEE

The Speaker: Please be seated. The next order of business will be the nomination of Members to the Standing Public Accounts Committee. This is a Standing Committee which exists under Standing Order 74 (2), therefore there is no need for a motion to be created.

First of all, I will ask the Honourable First Official Member to read the terms of reference of the Standing Public Accounts Committee.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Standing Order 74 (1) deals with the terms of reference for the Public Accounts Committee. It reads as follows:

"74 (1) There shall be a standing select committee, to be styled the Public Accounts Committee, to consider reports of the Auditor General -

- (a) on the accounts of the Government;
- (b) on such other accounts required to be laid before the House as the Committee may think fit; and
- (c) on any matter incidental to the performance of his duties or the exercise of his powers as the Committee may think fit.

(2) The Public Accounts Committee shall be nominated by the House at the beginning of a new session following a general election and shall consist of five elected Members. The quorum shall be three Members, including the Chairman.

(3) Upon its receipt by the presiding officer, a report mentioned in paragraph (1) shall be deemed to have been referred by the House to the Public Accounts Committee for consideration and shall forthwith be distributed on a confidential basis to all Members."

Mr. Speaker, that covers the terms of reference. There are other sections pertaining to the operational side, but that effectively covers the terms of reference.

The Speaker: Thank you, Honourable Member.

At this time I will call for nominations to the Public Accounts Committee. There will be five nominations.

Mr. Thomas Jefferson.

NOMINATIONS

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker. I beg to make the following nominations for Members of the Public Accounts Committee:

1. Mr. John Dwight Jefferson, Jr.
2. Mrs. Edna Marie Moyle
3. Mr. Dunstan Dalmain Ebanks
4. Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly
5. Miss Heather Bodden

Hon. Anthony Eden: I beg to second that motion.

The Speaker: Thank you. Are there any other nominations?

DECLARATION

The Speaker: There being no further nominations, I declare those Members duly elected to the Public Accounts Committee. At the first meeting the five Members will select their Chairman.

The next order of business will be the Nomination of Members to the Standing Register of Interests Committee. This is a new Committee being formed for the very first time, the Law being passed in the last meeting of the House.

I will call on the Honourable First Official Member.

NOMINATIONS FOR ELECTION OF MEMBERS TO THE STANDING REGISTER OF INTERESTS COMMITTEE

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The terms of reference for the Standing Register of Interest Committee are as follows. For the sake of clarity it is covered under Standing Order 73(A) (1), (2), (3), (4), and (5).

"73A. (1) There shall be a Standing Select Committee to be styled the Register of Interests Committee for the consideration of matters relating to the Register of Interests referred to it by the Registrar of Interests.

(2) The Committee shall consist of nine Members including the Chairman. The Chairman shall be nominated or elected in accordance with the provision of Standing Order 69(2). [Standing Order 69(2) simply says, "The Presiding Officer may nominate the Chairman of a Select Committee from among its own Members. If he does not make a nomination the Committee shall elect one of the Members to be Chairman."]

(3) The quorum of the Committee shall be five Members including the Chairman.

(4) The Committee shall be appointed at the beginning of a new session following a general election."

NOMINATIONS

The Speaker: I shall now call for nominations to the Register of Interests Committee.

The Honourable Anthony Eden.

Hon. Anthony Eden: Mr. Speaker, I beg to nominate the following people:

1. Mr. Kurt Tibbetts
2. Mr. Thomas Jefferson

3. Mr. McKeeva Bush
4. Mr. John McLean
5. Mr. Truman Bodden
6. Mrs. Edna Moyle
7. Mr. John Jefferson, Jr.
8. Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly
9. Dr. Frank McField.

Miss Heather D. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I rise to second that motion.

The Speaker: Thank you. Are there any other nominations?

DECLARATION

The Speaker: There being no other nominations, I shall declare the Members duly elected to the Register of Interests Committee, and I shall appoint Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly as Chairman.

The next order of business will be the nomination of Members to the Standing Business Committee. I ask the Honourable First Official Member to move this Motion.

The next order of Business is Government Motion No. 3, Advance Expenditure prior to the Appropriation Bill, 1997.

The Honourable Third Official Member.

GOVERNMENT MOTION NO. 3

ADVANCE EXPENDITURE PRIOR TO THE APPROPRIATION BILL, 1997

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, I beg to move Government Motion No. 3 dealing with Advance Expenditure prior to the Appropriation Bill, 1997.

I would like to preface the terms of the Motion with the following remarks.

As this is an election year, the Budget for 1997 will not be presented to this House until March of next year. As a result, this Motion seeks to obtain the necessary authority in order to incur the expenditure by various Government Departments for the period the 1st of January until the Budget is presented, which should be before the 31st of March.

The sum total being requested here represents approximately one-quarter of the 1996 Recurrent Budget, however a sum of $3.5 million is also being sought under Capital. This is to cover, in part, expenditures relating to continuing projects which will be carried over from 1996, and will be kept into 1997. These projects will be kept active until the Budget is presented.

The terms of the Motion are:

"BE IT RESOLVED that this House, acting in accordance with the provisions of section 7(1) of the Public Finance and Audit Law, 1985, in advance of an Appropriation Law, authorises the expenditure of CI$48,227,917 for the services of the Government in respect of the 1997 financial year, the sum to be charged on revenue in accordance with the Public Finance and Audit Law, 1985, and to be used for the purposes detailed in the Schedule –

------------------------	------------

PORTFOLIO OF FINANCE AND DEVELOPMENT

Head 13. Portfolio of Finance and Development	$ 6,211,972
Head 14. Financial Services Supervision	NIL

The reason for this 'Nil' provision is because the Financial Services Supervision together with the Currency Board are being rolled up into the Monetary Authority which will become operational as at first of January, 1997. Accordingly, this $6.2 million includes approximately $1.3 million which will be going towards the Authority, also the Stock Exchange.

Specifically, inclusive in the sum for Finance and Development is approximately $941,000, as I mentioned earlier. Of this, approximately $689,000 will be to meet the expenditure relating to ongoing operational costs, while $252,350 will be to cover the cost of furnishings; $390,733 is being provided in order to fund the operational cost of the setting up of the Stock Exchange. These two amounts total $1.3 million, which is included in that sum.

To be allocated under various items appearing under Capital Acquisition is a total of $1 million, and under Capital Development, $2,500,000. The sum that is being sought is $3.5 million under Capital. The total recurrent from Capital Expenditure requirements, for which approval is being sought at this time, amounts to $48,227,917.

A Member asked earlier if an update on Government's financial position would be given at this time. It is not normal for this to be done at the seeking of approval for allowing an advanced warrant in relation to expenditure in the subsequent year. However, there will be a meeting of Finance Committee which will be held, hopefully within the next fortnight. At that time, all of the information being sought by the Members of this Honourable House will be provided.

Thank you.

The Speaker: Government Motion No. 3, has been duly moved and is now open for debate.

Mr. Roy Boddén.

Mr. Roy Boddén: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Notwithstanding that this is an election year, and it is customary for these kinds of advanced accounts to be requested, I have to remark that in my tenure, sir, this has been the largest such request.

I also wish to say that it is unfortunate that, having such short notice, we have been requested to vote these funds, when we do not know what the current financial position is. I want to say that, responsibly, I have to vote this request; but I want to make my position known: My support in no way means that this is the kind of behaviour that I am prepared to tolerate in the future.

I will recognise that the Government must be in a position to continue, and that March is still some months away and we have commitments. I, again, take this opportunity to say that we in the Cayman Islands Government must seek to change our system from a cash system to an accrual system if we are to get better and sounder financial management.

That is my position. I have echoed that before. Indeed, in the previous Parliament I brought a Motion to the House. I lay out this as a challenge to the National Team Government to seriously consider in the upcoming Budget Session.

Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I will briefly comment on this Motion, and in so doing I would like to say that I support the Motion. I am quite aware of the procedure that has to be followed, having been a Member of Executive Council myself, and also a Deputy Financial Secretary.

I am comforted by the fact that the Honourable Third Official Member has given the assurance that the official financial position of this Government will be given in a fortnight's time in Finance Committee, since there have, indeed, been so many versions of what the correct financial position is.

In providing that information I would hope to see the adjusted Surplus and Deficit Account, which would include the amendments recommended by the Auditor General in his Report on the 1995 Accounts, as well as the true position of the General Reserves and the public debt figure.

There are just one or two items which concern me. Under the Portfolio of Finance and Development, item 18: I am somewhat concerned as to what the $3.2 million represent, and whether that is, in fact, to cover the overdraft position of Government. Item 38, under the Ministry of Education and Aviation, of almost $5 million also creates some concern.

I am surprised that we are asking for additional funds of $44 million when Government has been telling the public that they have some $60.3 million in recurrent surplus. I thought it would have been very easy to have taken $44 million from that.

Nonetheless, I am pleased to support this Motion.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I shall be short. I will deal first with the points that have been raised. First, this House has just been convened for a matter of an hour and a half. Therefore, to the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, there could be no more notice given because there was no House to give notice to. There were no Members of the Legislative Assembly. Taking the point on notice, this is now an impossibility. I mention that to the Member.

This is not, as the Third Elected Member for George Town said, 'extra money'. All this is, is an appropriation into next year, because there will be no Legislative Assembly and no budget coming until February. If this is not voted, then there is no money to pay civil servants or to do anything else. It is not 'extra money'. This is a part of next year's budget, and it will be for the first quarter, because during that period we will be able to bring the budget, in February, possibly.

It is not unusual, Mr. Speaker. This is done every four years at this time, and it is a common sense approach. You have no money for the first quarter of the year. What are you going to pay civil servants with?

Beyond that, what is normally done, and this was a matter for the Honourable Financial Secretary, is that a quarter's amount of money is appropriated from January to 31st March. It is not extra money.

The Speaker: Thank you.

Is there any further debate? The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I rise in support of this Motion also. I would merely like to make a brief comment. I would anticipate a larger vote for the Sister Islands Administration for the last three-quarters of the year. I trust that the indication for the first quarter is by no means a fraction of the annual allocation.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Elected Member of Executive Council.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

First of all, let me publicly welcome you to the Chair. I look forward to working with you for the next four years.

Mr. Speaker, the Motion before us to deal with the finances of this country is nothing new. Unless certain Members believe that the Government should shut down right now and not continue.... It is unfortunate that this sort of attitude is displayed in our very first meeting. I think it shows us the trend they will go on. The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town has been in here a long time, and should realise by now that when there is a change in Government we have a gap that has to be dealt with.

I would like to commend the Honourable Financial Secretary for coming forward with this Motion allowing the services of this country to continue. At this point in time we cannot afford to do anything which will rock the boat. I trust and hope that from now on what we are trying to do here will be understood, and that we will not have a repeat of this, especially on the first day.

The Speaker: If there is no debate, I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED. GOVERNMENT MOTION NO. 3 PASSED.

The Speaker: Before I call for a motion for the adjournment, I would like to express my appreciation on behalf of the House to those in the public gallery for their kind attention, and for the good behaviour we have seen here today.

I ask the Honourable First Official Member if he would move the adjournment.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I beg to move that this Honourable House do now adjourn Sine Die.

The Speaker: The question is that the House do now adjourn. But before I put the question, I am sure that Honourable Members would like to take this opportunity, some in making their first speech in this Legislative Assembly, to express their appreciation. At this time I would like to give that opportunity to any Member who wishes to speak.

The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I would like to welcome you to your new and exalted position, and to pledge my support and cooperation. You will recall that in an earlier Parliament, I supported you for the position of Deputy Speaker. I hold you in the highest regard, and you can expect my conduct to be of such a nature.

I would like to begin by thanking God for giving me the grace, the strength and the will to once again put myself in the position to come forward to represent my people. Secondly, I would like to thank the people of Bodden Town who displayed wisdom, good sense and confidence in my service. I would like to say that I will continue, with God's help, to serve them to the best of my ability. I look forward to working to bring them the best representation I can.

My position in this Legislative Assembly at this time is a little different from four years ago, but I have to proclaim at the outset that I see myself as an Opposition Member. In the Westminster System, the position of Opposition Member (Her Majesty's Loyal Opposition is how it is referred to) is a very important position because it is the Opposition that holds the Government to account.

I am but an ordinary Member of the Legislative Assembly, and I can only convey to the Government the requests, wishes and desires of my constituents. I shall continue to do that, as I have in the past. It is up to the Government whether these requests will be granted.

I have, in the past, carried out my duties responsibly with dignity and decorum. I intend to continue that. I intend to argue when it is necessary, and to conduct myself within the confines and parameters of civil debate. But I do not for one moment promise anyone that I am going to cave in and be run rough-shod over, irrespective of the numbers the Government has. I have never been afraid of putting forward my point of argument, even when it was unpopular. I shall always continue to stand for what I believe is right and proper.

We have just finished a taxing election campaign in which we had the full gamut of all things, such as mudslinging and personal castigation. At one stage we even had the masquerading of a rat! I do not know what significance that bore in the ability or inability of a person or persons to be selected to represent constituents in Parliament. I suppose to some it was intended to be humorous. I have to say that I do not have such a puerile sense of humour. I take the dimmest view of such tomfoolery.

I reserve my most serious comment, however, for that kind of action which leads one to destroy paraphernalia and aids of others. In a system which touts responsibility, I have to wonder if we are going to tolerate such behaviour, irrespective of not wanting our opponents to win. I want to be clear and unequivocal that I view this kind of malicious behaviour as but the beginning of political violence, and I want to say that I cannot stand to condone that kind of behaviour.

I believe that as educated, responsible, upright people who set ourselves up for leadership, we have to find more sensible and acceptable ways of expressing our dislike or opposition to people who stand and vie for the same office.

The Caribbean is scattered rife with examples of political behaviour which we should not emulate. I say that there is no office in the land worth our making those kinds of sacrifices. I hope that it is the beginning and the end.

We all tout that we are a democracy. I believe that we are, irrespective of the differences of opinion among us. But I have to express my concern that the issues which I believe affect this country going into the 21st Century were only aired by a few. Certainly, this election campaign should have been fought on a far broader number of issues than it was. Maybe the National Team knew something that the rest of us did not know when they fought the campaign solely on their record of the past four years; while, at the same time, left issues which beg answers for the future unspoken of.

I am talking about issues that we often hear about, like corruption in society, dredging, the reckless spending and fiscal responsibility of the Government, short notice on Bills, intimidation, and the politicisation of the Civil Service. In my opinion, far too little attention was paid to these issues in the last election.

We can see that the composition of Standing Committees, as far as the Parliament is concerned, shows no change - because the Public Accounts Committee which, according to Erskine May, should be headed by an Opposition Member, has no opposition Member in it.

We, as Elected Members, have to find a way to work with the Government; but the responsibility goes beyond the precincts of this Parliament and, indeed, great responsibility lies with the media. Somebody called it the 'fourth estate'. I am disillusioned at the coverage and the obvious bias of the media during the last campaign. I would hasten to say, particularly the printed media. We cannot have a thriving democracy if bias and disregard is exhibited toward some element. Whether some people think they are fringe elements or not, as long as they operate within the confines of the law, they deserve to be mentioned and not taken for granted.

Like many other Members in this Chamber this morning, I was somewhat surprised by what I call the banishing of the previous Speaker. We were under the impression that a situation existed where things would have been different. I can only say that I hope it was not as a result of high-handedness on the part of the National Team or any other entity. Mr. Speaker, I look forward with interest to a sensible and acceptable explanation. I think the country is owed such.

In the final analysis let me conclude with a Biblical reference: The prophet Habakkuk lived in a time much like our own. Public corruption, social injustice and chaotic violence were the order of the day. In frustration he pleaded to God for some clarity and direction. He climbed up a tower to wait and to listen until he finally heard a clear word. The prophet wrote, and I am quoting from Habakkuk 2:2-3 (The Revised Standard Version), "And the LORD answered me, and said, 'Write the Vision, and make it plain upon tablets, that he [or she] may run who reads it. For still, the vision awaits its time. It hastens to the end. It will not lie. If it seems slow, wait for it; it will surely come. It will not delay.'"

"The vision awaits its time..." Today the visions we most need have not yet appeared, or have appeared but have been snuffed out. The next four years will prove that the National Team Government is not what this country deserves.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member of Executive Council.

Hon. W. McKeever Bush: Mr. Speaker, perhaps I can declare myself too. I am a Minister of the Government.

Once again, the people of these islands have spoken - and very loudly, indeed! They have given all of us the opportunity to serve them for four long years. The voice of the people is the voice of God. This is a great privilege given to us, but an awesome responsibility. It means and demands nothing less than the giving of the whole self.

Regardless of what is said, we live in a wonderful country. The great Creator has richly blessed our Cayman Islands. In a time of strained nerves, we forgot about our democratic process and, significantly, no guns were shot, no tanks rolled in the streets, no demonstrations, except for symbolic sweeping of streets - meaning a clean sweep for that particular district.

Yes, in these times our people are a blessed people. While some tension was in the air at times, we must now all move forward to forget the campaign and build the bridges to the 21st Century and prepare our people, this country, for the 21st Century.

Fifteen of us, chosen as we are, must now do the things we promised. We must do it without interference of selfish agendas.

I want to thank those Members who elected me once again to serve as one of the Ministers. I promise this House and these islands to work as hard in the next four years as I did in the past. But we must join hands and work together. This is what it will take to cure those problems spoken of.

From where I stand, there are several major issues which must and will be addressed as a priority in my Ministry. Training - We must complete our plans and begin a joint Ministerial strategy to train our people to meet the needs of the future. This strategy will continue in partnership with the private sector, but one and all must understand that we must do what is necessary to train those Caymanians who are handicapped in their upward mobility.

Housing - We must come to grips with several schemes to afford our people in the lower income bracket the chance of owning a home. Mr. Speaker, I know what it is to need good shelter; I know what it is to be under a leaky roof. God willing, and with the help of the National Team and the independents in the House, regardless of political flair, we will continue to build schemes to assist our people.

In Culture, we will make the necessary changes so that our culture is not overshadowed by any other so that our people are more aware of it. This includes the completion of the writing of a new history of these islands for which preparation was recently started.

There is the expectation of better wages in the hotel industry. No longer should anyone expect to pay $2.90, or $3.90 per hour for ten years without a raise. This will be rectified. The Minimum Wage Advisory Committee, which was set up some time ago, will continue its work on this matter soon. Coupled with that will be an initiative to stop the blatant stealing of gratuities which belong to our people. This has been a rough road for my Ministry and the Government, but we will do what is necessary to come to grips with it. I invite, not only our Backbenchers, but all Members to join hands in this matter.

We will address the needs and changes that will be highlighted in the study on the Caymanian family and the crime study which has been completed. The Sports Office will be restructured into a Sports and Recreation Department. More emphasis will be placed on the maintaining of sporting facilities and enhancement of programmes. We will seek to secure the financial assistance now given to our elderly by putting in place a Law to guarantee its continuance.

These are the major priorities of my Ministry over the next four years. These are the bread-and-butter issues of this country; ones that we must not neglect.

In the broader scheme of things, and for those issues which do not fall within my Ministry, is an Immigration Policy that seeks to satisfy our people both in the protection of their business and safeguarding these islands for the future; a policy which also contains common sense and is humane to those who must live here amongst us. I hope that a Committee of this House will be put in place early next year to take on this task.

I also will do what I can to support the Governor and the Civil Service in the public sector reform, or the 'Re-invention' (as it is better called) that is taking place at this time.

I believe that we have good civil servants. Whether I can get along with anyone in particular is not the important matter. But what counts is that performance is given to these islands for the job before the Civil Service. They always have my support and they will continue to have it. Where changes need to be made, they will have to be made.

I believe that we do have to thank God that we do have such a high calibre of people in our Civil Service in middle management, mainly, and in the top bracket. Of course, they could not do their job without those at the lower level.

The specter of dredging has not only caused in this House... and I am not going to refer to anything anybody said anymore than this particular matter. When it came down to the closing days of the campaign in West Bay, there were some dirty tactics, as usual. Not only in West Bay, it was seen all over. The perpetrators know who they are, but they did not hurt us because the people of this country know truth from fiction. As the old people used to say, they know who is who - who they can trust from who they cannot. People spoke in loud terms in my constituency.

As for dredging, I do not know where they are going to get fill from, or how they will carry on development. Those of us, and I include myself now, who are against it will have to come to grips with it. But it will not be the North Sound that will be dredged. The Governor has said that from a long time ago. The National Team made it a campaign promise, and we will retain that. My constituency would be the hardest hit in any catastrophe emanating from damage in that North Sound. So let one and all understand where McKeever Bush sits on this issue. I have never been afraid to say what I believe and to stand up for what I believe in. They will have to come to grips with what they want done in development.

I also have a dream to see these islands become what I term the Hong Kong of the Caribbean in terms of business. We will continue putting in place the structures which we already started, such as the Stock Exchange and the Monetary Authority; beefing up our regulatory systems to assure the International Business Community that we are serious about quality business.

Certainly, in building for the 21st Century we must follow some kind of plan, that is, short-term, medium-term or long-term, that we can realistically work toward. Last, but certainly not least, we must put our heads together to come up with ways and means of finding revenue to supply all of the needs of the people. This is, perhaps, one of our greatest challenges, for who can deny the people of these islands roads? Who can deny schools? Who can deny medical and recreational facilities? All of these things call for money. Prioritise, they say. We will wait and see who comes with the longest shopping list.

These are the challenges that lie ahead, as far as I am concerned. It is our job to enlist the will of the people so that they understand what it is that we are doing for them, and so that we can take them along with us. Yes, there will be challenging times ahead.

I wish to express my deepest gratitude for the confidence that the people of West Bay put in me. To get 77.5% of the votes cast says something about a record. I do not want to do any less in the next four years than I have in the past 12. I will not let the people of West Bay down, nor will I shy away from the responsibility to assist in the governance of these islands through this Executive Council. My door will always be open. I will always be the same McKeever Bush. There is a tremendous amount of work to be done. We must now get on with it.

I pray to God, too, Mr. Speaker and Honourable Members, that "swords will be turned into pruning hooks." As for me, "The woods are lonely," sometimes, "dark and deep. But I have promises to keep, and miles to go before I sleep. Miles to go before I sleep."

Thank you for your indulgence, and I thank all Members for supporting me for this Executive Council.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

First of all, let me offer my congratulations to you, Mr. Speaker, on your election as Speaker of this Honourable House. I believe that with your knowledge and experience, and your sense of fair play, you will do an outstanding job as Speaker. I look forward to working along with you over the next four years in this Parliament.

I also want to say thanks to our former Speaker, Mrs. Sybil McLaughlin, for her six years as Speaker; and also to say what an outstanding job she did while serving in that exalted position. I want to say to Mrs. McLaughlin, that I wish her all the best in her future endeavours, and may God continue to bless her richly.

I also want to say a big 'thank you' to the people of West Bay for electing me for a third term as one of their representatives and for re-electing our team as a whole. I want to say that I am proud of the people of West Bay for their loyalty and the confidence they have shown in our National Team Members for West Bay. I promise my people of West Bay that I will continue to work together with the National Team and our Team from West Bay, to look out for their interests and to provide the services that we need as a district and a country as a whole.

I also want to say thanks to the Caymanian people who have spoken so loudly in this election in re-electing a majority of the National Team members. This enabled us to once again put together a Government to lead this country in the right direction. I also want to acknowledge my three National Team colleagues, Mrs. Berna Thompson-Murphy, Dr. Steve Tomlinson and Mr. Tony Powell who were not successful at the polls. We still regard them as members of the National Team. I trust that they will continue to be part of the team and they are welcome to do that over the next four years.

I want to also say a special thank you to Mrs. Murphy and Dr. Tomlinson for their valuable contribution to our National Team as elected members for the constituency of George Town and the country as a whole over the past four years.

I want to give a very special welcome to our two new Members of this House, namely, Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly and Dr. Frank McField. I look forward to working with you over the next four years as we continue to lead this country in the right direction.

I also want to give special congratulations to my colleagues of the National Team who have been elected as Ministers of Executive Council. I look forward to working along with them and the rest of the team to meet the many challenges this country has before it, to ensure that the interests of our people are promoted and protected.

In closing, let me wish for all Honourable Members and their families, and for the good people of Cayman, a very blessed and safe holiday season; may God continue to bless these Cayman Islands.

Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I would also like to extend a very warm welcome to you and to pledge to you my full support throughout this four year term.

I am, indeed, delighted and honoured to rise in this Honourable House as the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. I sincerely thank the people of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman for affording me this honour and wonderful privilege to serve them.

Being the first woman elected from my district, makes today not only an exciting day for me, but we are experiencing an historical day. I am eternally grateful to my Heavenly Father who made this day possible, and for the many prayers that strengthened me during a most difficult campaign.

To my son, Kamal, and my daughter, Kimberly, I am forever grateful and indebted for their love and patience demonstrated, particularly during the last five weeks. I pray that today's events will serve as a catalyst and a reminder for them to see that dreams do come true, and that in general all Caymanians, if not before, will now start to believe in themselves to set goals and not to ever let anyone steal their dreams. Remember, it matters not from whence you came, but where you are going. It matters not how rough the road is, just keep your dreams alive. Work hard, and with dedication, dreams do come true.

Mr. Speaker, I also would like to extend my heartfelt thanks to my determined and dedicated Chairman, Mr. Temple Tatum Jr., and to my hardworking committee members. Special thanks to the many persons who graciously nominated me on nomination day for their unquestionable commitment and stamina. My presence here today in this Honourable House is absolute proof that if God is for you, no one can be against you. No matter how minute or how gigantic, it is not ours to fight, but the Lord's.

I also wish to congratulate all Honourable Members here today. I challenge each one to place his trust in God and to daily seek His divine guidance, wisdom, knowledge and understanding as we move towards a bright and positive 21st Century. Let us all humble ourselves before the King of Kings and Lord of Lords; and let us make our requests and petitions known to Him so that together, as an Honourable Parliament, we can formulate the best possible vision as we move into the 21st Century.

As a freshman in this Honourable House, it is my desire that we all work together in love, harmony and unity for the good of our beloved Cayman Islands. Let us stand in the gap, unite, be friendly, firm, and in so doing let us preserve our integrity and thereby present ourselves as shining examples, unblemished for our people and, in particular, our children - the future leaders of tomorrow. Let us all adhere to the conviction of the late John F. Kennedy, and first and foremost ask what we can do for this, our beloved, Cayman Islands, and not ever become submerged in what the country can do for us.

It has been my experience that blame is a destructive vehicle, which, if developed, will take you further than you wish to go. Blame divides and never unites; blame destroys and never builds; blame defames and never edifies. Let us all dare to be brave and free, and may God bless each one in this Honourable House.

The Speaker: The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I would also like to add my congratulations to you on your appointment as Speaker of this Honourable House. Having been appointed as your deputy, I promise that I will work together with you for this Legislative Assembly in these islands. While I congratulate you, I would also like to thank the past Speaker, Mrs. Sybil McLaughlin, for her dedication and commitment to this Parliament over the years.

Mrs. McLaughlin has been a role model to me, and I thank her for her guidance over the past four years. I look forward to working with her on the outside.

I, too, would like to congratulate the Ministers who have been elected this morning and to say to each one, carry out your duties for the entire Cayman Islands, as you have done over the past four years.

I would like to thank my supporters in the district of North Side who stood beside me through one of the nastiest campaigns that has ever been fought in my district. It was nasty because it did not deal with my track record, it did not deal with issues; it was a personal attack on my character. I say, as did the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, if God is with you who can be against you.

Today we have in this Parliament people who have already declared themselves Her Majesty's Loyal Opposition. I say that for any Parliament to operate properly there must be Opposition. But I say to them, remember, we are all representing the same people - the people of the Cayman Islands. So we do not need Opposition for the sake of Opposition. I ask and impress upon you, let us have constructive Opposition to move this country forward.

I say to the people of North Side, to those who supported me, I am here for you; to those who did not support me, that was your democratic right, but I am still here to represent you. Your needs will be dealt with by me as a priority as I did over the past four years.

Thank you, Mr. Speaker, and may God bless every Member of this Legislative Assembly.

The Speaker: Thank you.

The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I also want to congratulate you on your new position. I wish you all the success I can, and I feel that this Honourable House will give you all the support and help that you will need.

The election is over now. I want to thank the people of West Bay for having the confidence in me to return me to serve them in this House. I do not think a person can enjoy a higher honour than to be appointed by the people to serve them. I feel honoured today.

We are going into the 21st Century. I hope that we will be able to carry on in the way that we did over the past four years, or even better. I hope that we will not be lambasted all of the time, but that help will come from the Opposition. I beg them to join hands with us as we push forward for a better and happier Cayman Islands.

I do not see why it cannot be done. Although we each have our own opinion, we all seek the same goal, that is, a better Cayman Islands. To attain that we will all have to unite and fight for the betterment of these islands. I will give an illustration of what unity means: During World War II the United States and Great Britain fought a hard battle against the tyrant Hitler. It looked as if victory was up for grabs on either side. Do you know what happened? There was another nation standing by watching, and it did not want Hitler to win. That was Russia, which was a Communist country. Russia joined hands with the United States and Great Britain and the war was won.

So, I am asking each and everyone here to join hands today as we move forward into the 21st Century with our beloved Cayman Islands.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Miss Heather D. Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I also offer my congratulations to you. I am sure that the people of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman must be very proud of you today. May God guide the Members and Ministers of Executive Council for the next four years.

It has almost been exactly one year since I stood before this Honourable House to be sworn in following the 1995 by-election in Bodden Town. I am honoured to once again stand here knowing that the people of my district put their trust in me for a further four years. As the second woman from Bodden Town to be elected to the Legislative Assembly, I would like to say that no mission could be of greater importance to me than that of serving my constituents. It is a mission which I pledge to fulfill with honesty, integrity and complete dedication.

I said one year ago, and I will say it again today, not just to those people who voted for me, that you can count on me. I would also like to say that I have not reached this milestone solely on my own efforts. Had it not been for the encouragement and support of my family and friends I could not stand before you today. To my mother and father, my sisters, nieces, nephews, aunt and uncles, and to a lady who has been like my second mother, Mrs. Kadie Ebanks, let me say 'thank you' from the bottom of my heart. Because you stood by me, encouraged me and believed in me, I had the strength I needed to keep on going.

I am also extremely grateful to the members of my campaign committee. All the members showed so much enthusiasm and dedication throughout the entire campaign. I often wondered where they got their energy. Fortunately, it was contagious.

A special thanks goes to Mrs. Cecile Panton and Mr. Olsen Levy for nominating me.

My deep gratitude to the National Team Members is very much in order. Since first taking office a year ago, I have found their support to be invaluable. It has been truly gratifying for me to go through this campaign with such a unified group of people. Together we have pursued the same goal, that of making these islands better through vision, dedication and, most of all, team work.

I am truly grateful for the opportunity to continue what we have started. Our country has made significant strides in the past several years on both the economic and social fronts. This election was in many ways a show of confidence in the progress that has been achieved and the desire to see this forward movement continue.

Throughout the election campaign it was particularly heartening to see the younger generation taking such great interest in the future of these islands. For me, it was a very rewarding experience to have so many young people at my side, and to understand the depth of their commitment to this country. They are the future. I hope that in many ways I can serve as a role model for them.

I want to give them every encouragement to stay involved and to work in their communities for the betterment of these islands. You do not have to be in the public eye to make a difference. No matter how busy, everyone can contribute something. I am reminded of the song which says "If everyone lit just one candle what a bright, bright world this would be."

Also at my side throughout this campaign were a number of very remarkable senior citizens whose energy is a tremendous inspiration to our young people. Young and old came together during this election. It is a testimony to the strength of Caymanian society that they all stood on common ground.

I believe that this election also showed very clearly that Caymanians do not just judge candidates by the strength of their political track record, but by the strength of their character. This election also showed that the people of these islands uphold and respect the qualities of honesty, fairness, caring and concern for others.

Mr. Speaker, there is much work to be done, but I feel confident that the women and men of these Islands have chosen wisely with their votes. We, as members of the National Team, will be working on a strong action plan as shown in our Manifesto, which the citizens of these islands have endorsed with their votes.

We must also work with the other Elected Members in a spirit of cooperation and harmony.

I would like to close by saying that I am honoured by the privilege afforded before me. I look forward to serving the people of these islands and my district for the next four years.

Thank you, and may God bless this Honourable House.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, Honourable Members, Members of the Executive Council, Members of the Legislative Assembly, the Clerks, ladies and gentlemen in the gallery, my mother, my wife, I would like to begin by saying that I, too, thank the Almighty God for having given me this opportunity. I shall be very conservative in the way I boast the name of the Almighty God because in these days people all seem to be giving credit to God, but their behaviour does not reflect that they truly believe this.

I would also like to congratulate you, Mr. Speaker, on your appointment in this Honourable House. I would also like to congratulate and thank Mrs. Sybil McLaughlin for having served these islands in that position. She certainly was an inspiration to me, who, for most of the time, listened to the debates from the public gallery.

I am not one who can explain all that happens in these islands. I do not understand why she is not in the Chair today, but other people have made that decision and I am here to work with what is here.

I would like to thank my mother very much, and I am happy that I have been able to make her proud. I would like to thank my wife for her support. I would like to thank my brothers and my sisters who were really my committee. Many people thought that I would not make this journey, but I have truly made it because of the blessings of the Almighty God. I think if there is anyone who has won who can attribute it to some type of miraculous effort, it is so in my particular case.

I would like to say to my colleagues who have declared themselves as Her Majesty's Loyal Opposition: Remember that I am here as an independent candidate, and that I cannot support any behaviour that I consider to be arrogant, untoward, and directly attributed to the fact that they are seeking power rather than seeking to serve the people. (Some Hon. Members: Hear, hear!) I think that we must clearly distinguish between those who are willing to serve and those who are seeking power, because there is a total difference in conduct.

I am also an Elected Member of George Town. There are three others. This means that I will have to, and hope that I can, work along with the three other Elected Members of George Town, although I did not share their political Manifestos. If I am supposed to work with them, then I am also supposed to work along with the Elected Government, although I did not share their Manifestos.

I think that rather than declaring war we should vote for peace; we should be inspired by the decisions that the people have made and not arrogantly throw back in their faces the fact that we are not pleased with the decisions of the people. The people have spoken. Until we find a Government of this country abusing the power that the people have given them, I think that we should be very reluctant to begin war.

The guns have not stopped smoking and there are already people who appear to be having public meetings. I know that there are people who are also saying that my position as an independent candidate is not an independent position. There are countries in the world that are independent countries, but they are not independent because they are dependent on other people to get things done. There is no such thing as a truly independent position. There is no such thing as a truly independent person.

In regard to politics I will stand in this House and defend Members of the Government when I consider them to be right, and I will defend Members of the Opposition when I consider them to be right. But I will not defend arrogance. I will not defend a blind search for power.

It is obvious in this country that we do have political parties. I saw today in the public gallery members who have not put down their fight. It will continue for the next four years. Although the people rejected them at the polls, they are prepared to go out there and confront this Legislative Assembly and its opinions which means that they are acting as a political party.

I must refer particularly to Team Cayman. I must caution them, as I did previously, because my position was accepted as a result of my believing that the people would choose the National Team. I did not see how Team Cayman's political Manifesto made any sense to people. They must be aware that they are elected (whether or not they were elected with a small margin) to serve all of the people. It also means the people who voted for the National Team. I say that they should be very cautious.

I have never been a traitor. I have come to this House the hard way - through the streets of this Island, through the support of my mother, my wife, and my brothers and my sisters. I have come to this House as a result of suffering and tears, and I am not here to sell anyone out. I am not here to stand by and see petty politics destroy these islands. (applause) My message is not about being the Queen's loyal Opposition; it is that of being the loyal servant of the Queen. I took my oath very seriously, and I made an oath to Queen Elizabeth II to uphold the position of the Governor of this Country and to uphold the position of the Members of Executive Council. Only when I can be convinced by evidence, not hearsay, that they are abusing these positions will I come out and say that I oppose them.

I would like to thank the Speaker for having accepted his position as Speaker, and to compliment the National Team at this particular point for the way in which they have conducted their campaign and for the way in which they seem to treat one another with warmth and respect. I think that maybe those people who are training themselves to take over this country should learn what loyalty and affection really are.

Thank you very much.

(Applause)

The Speaker: Thank you.

Does any other Member wish to speak? Hon. Anthony Eden.

Hon. Anthony Eden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I would first of all like to thank God for giving me the strength to be here in this Honourable House. I would like to thank my family, my very devoted committee members and my people of Bodden Town who chose to send me back to represent them for four more years.

I would like to take this opportunity to congratulate you, Mr. Speaker, on the position you are now in. I know that the people of Cayman Brac will be very proud of you. You have ascended to one of the highest positions in these islands and have once more demonstrated the type of integrity you have.

I would also like to thank your predecessor, the Hon. Mrs. Sybil McLaughlin, for her diligence, and for the professional manner in which she served this Legislative Assembly and the Cayman Islands wherever she went. We must always look up to the leadership she demonstrated in these islands.

I would like to thank my colleagues in this Legislative Assembly for giving me another chance to sit on Executive Council. I think that the islands on a whole have seen what the National Team has done over the past four years. I would like to remind those who talk about Opposition that in a democracy, the majority of the people rule; and the people have once again spoken in no uncertain terms. We were successful in obtaining nine of the 12 seats we ran for. For those of you who are familiar with baseball, that works out to a batting average of a whopping 750. Compare that to the 110 batting average of Team Cayman. Someone like that would be sent right down to the minor leagues for improvement! (laughter)

As the previous speaker mentioned, I was a bit taken back by the tone set by the first speaker when he declared himself Her Majesty's Official Opposition. I would like to remind those who talk about Opposition that I remember four short years ago when one of their colleagues stood up in the Legislative Assembly and declared himself the Official Opposition. That Member now sits on the outside looking in. I say that we are here to represent the Cayman Islands, not only our districts, but everybody. We come here to go forward.

Everyone talks about building for the 21st Century. We do not build something by criticising and tearing down. Let us unite and go back to what made Cayman one of the most outstanding countries in the world. We must unite with our families, go back to our God-fearing traditions. This can only be done by working together.

Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Let me first thank Almighty God for His guidance throughout the election campaign and for taking us this far. I trust and hope that all of the commitments we have heard here today from various professing Christians will be lived out in their daily lives. Also, I give a big thanks to my dear wife and family, and, indeed, to my loyal supporters and friends. It would be remiss of me to not mention my very hard-working committee for all of their efforts making this all possible for Mr. Kurt Tibbetts and me.

I trust and hope that I will prove to be worthy of the confidence and trust which has been placed in me by my people who have once again elected me as their representative. This is the third time that my people have bestowed this honour and privilege upon me and I can assure them that as in the past, I will serve them to the best of my ability.

I wish to congratulate you, Mr. Speaker, on your appointment as Speaker of this Honourable House. I look forward to working with you, as well as with my fellow Members of the Legislative Assembly, including the Elected Members of Government.

I must say, however, that it was very disappointing to learn from the evening news yesterday that Mrs. Sybil McLaughlin, MBE, would not be seeking re-election, as she is so well respected nationally and internationally. We would have been most fortunate to have had the use of her experience and knowledge for another four years. Nonetheless, I want you to know, Mr. Speaker, that you will have my full support in matters dealing with the House and, as in the past, you will have my respect. I will do whatever is within my power to make your job as easy as possible.

My three colleagues and I of the Democratic Alliance, are very pleased that we were able to stage a well planned and clean campaign. I am very sorry that we were not able to capture all four of the seats in George Town; but, to my two unsuccessful colleagues, I say that you made a very good showing and you have nothing to be embarrassed about. God willing, the Democratic Alliance will be a viable opposition in the future, as it is our intention to field candidates in all districts in the year 2000. It is a tradition in the Cayman Islands, as well as in the Caribbean and the rest of the world, that Governments change every eight years. We would very much like to be part of the next Government.

Both Mr. Kurt Tibbetts' and my election in the George Town district was a clear message that the majority of registered voters supported the Democratic Alliance. We got a 50% success rate. I am not too sure about batting averages, but I know something about arithmetic. We are, therefore, proud to fulfill our role as the official Backbench supporters.

For those who may not be familiar with Parliamentary Procedure, I would like to mention that there is nothing wrong in having a good Opposition. A good Government depends upon a good Opposition. For anybody to paint a picture that an Opposition means that one is going to stand here and oppose everything that is brought to this House is painting a false picture and reflects a lack of knowledge.

We, that is Mr. Kurt Tibbetts and I, are proud to be a part of the Backbench Opposition considering that there are two types of Backbenchers: one is a Government Backbencher who supports the Government of the day, the other is an Opposition Backbencher. There is nothing wrong with such a system. We are also pleased that Mr. Roy Bodden has indicated his intention to be a Member of the Official Opposition.

I have heard a lot of things leveled at Mr. Bodden, the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, but knowing the gentleman as I do, I feel that his intentions are pure.

I believe that I speak for the other Opposition Members when I say that our Opposition will be done with class and will be constructive. I can speak for myself when I say that I will not oppose for the sake of opposition. My record in this Honourable House is well known. This is not the first time I have sat here. Some of my colleagues from the past (1984-1988) can vouch that my opposition has always been constructive. There is no reason why I should change such an admirable track record. I will support issues which I feel are good for these islands, and I will oppose those which I feel are not good for our people.

While I realise that the new Government will set its own agenda, I nonetheless feel that there are certain issues which should be given top priority. I said earlier that I trust that the Honourable Financial Secretary will advise this House as soon as possible of the true financial position of Government in view of the many different versions floating around.

I also expect to see tangible proof from the Elected Government that a genuine and well thought out effort is being made by Government to reduce the cost of living in these islands. This is an issue that I will not allow to be pushed under the rug. There are other important issues which I feel must be given urgent attention including, but not limited to, the following: A complete revision and review of the Immigration Laws, Regulations and Directives. I am happy that the First Elected Minister of Executive Council has already given the assurance that he will be doing all in his power on the question of affordable, low-cost housing for this country. This is a matter that I am happy will be given attention because of the number of homeless people and those living in sub-standard conditions in these islands.

A greater emphasis must also be given to developing our education system and in particular the technical and vocational skills in our schools so that all of our young people can have an equal chance to fill their rightful place in society.

Also, in view of the importance of tourism to these islands, I feel that a greater effort and emphasis is needed in marketing this sector more effectively. The protection of our Marine Environment is of paramount importance to the economic well being of these islands. Accordingly, an environmental assessment of the North Sound with terms of reference to include the impact of dredging within the Cayman Islands should be commissioned as a matter of urgency.

Urgent attention must also be given to preparing a suitable roads plan in order to address the increasing traffic problems in these islands. The moratorium lifted by the National Team Government in regard to further hotel development on the Seven Mile Beach should be put back in place as soon as possible.

Openness in Government is a big problem. There is a general feeling that the public is not being properly informed on a number of important issues. There is also a strong sentiment against Ministers of Government sitting on important boards both in the public and private sector.

On the question of Parliamentary privilege and immunity, I recommend that a committee be appointed to examine the many complaints coming from the public regarding the abuse of Parliamentary privilege. Members of the Legislative Assembly should not be allowed to maliciously defame the character of innocent members of the public who do not have the equal right of rebuttal; and who are not even able to take legal action against these perpetrators. The only criminal offence, of which I am aware, which marred an otherwise smooth election campaign (as alluded to by the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town), was the malicious destruction of the Democratic Alliance signs on Halloween night. What is really sad about this whole incident was that the children involved were allegedly instructed by an adult...

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order.

POINT OF ORDER

The Speaker: May I hear your point of order?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The point of order is that the Honourable Member has just said that people should not be maligned in here and named when they cannot defend themselves. He is getting up and dealing with a matter which I understand may be sub judice.

The Speaker: The purpose of this was to be tributes. I would deeply appreciate it if you would not go into matters that could be sub judice. I cannot say that it is, but I would appreciate if you would desist.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I am sorry that your time was wasted by a previous speaker, as I do not intend to - I have never done so, and never will - sit in this House to defame somebody's character as has been done by that Member in the past.

I just wanted to say on that particular point that I trust that this whole particular matter will not be swept under the carpet, but that the Legal Department will see that it is diligently pursued. While it is not wished for any Member to cause embarrassment to children involved, I feel that it is only fair to this country that the matter be pursued.

In closing, I wish to again thank all of my loyal supporters for once more electing me to this Honourable House. I certainly look forward to serving them and working along with my colleagues in this House, as well as with you, Mr. Speaker, for the next four years.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak?
The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

As have others, I wish to congratulate you on your appointment as the new Speaker of the House.

Let me say that I am deeply honoured to have been allowed the privilege to come back to this Honourable Legislative Assembly for a second term. I have listened to all of the previous speakers, and I paid very close attention to what the First Elected Member of Executive Council said about the many issues which he sees as important, needing to be dealt with immediately. It made me realise that regardless of where we sit in this Honourable House - as an opposing faction, an independent faction, or as part of the Government, that there are not really many philosophical differences. For that reason, I see much hope.

The issues he spoke about in his delivery were all, bar none, issues which I spoke about during the campaign. So there is hope, as I said before.

The people of this country have spoken and they have elected 15 of us. We sit here today. District by district, the National Team Government has been returned. Everyone of us has to respect the people's decision. The people also spoke in George Town, and there are four of us here who have been elected.

Let me quickly say that words fail me in properly expressing my appreciation for the confidence placed in me by the people of the district of George Town. I pray to God that I will be able to live up to their trust.

During the entire process there were times when I was a bit uncomfortable. I am not known to be one who thrives on confrontation and dealing with personalities. That is all over, Mr. Speaker. While I stand here, with all knowing my position, I say to all Honourable Members that even though we will have differences (and have had differences), for the moment it is a time of healing. I wish for us to get on with the business of this country; I wish for us to do what is incumbent on us, which is to lead this country forward.

The Government will easily understand that I am a part of the check and balance. That is my responsibility. In 1992 when I was elected as an independent representative, my whole purpose was to be in the category of a watchdog. That has not changed. There will be times when I will strongly oppose things. That is just natural, and simply because we do not all look through the same looking glass. I wish for all to know that my sole purpose for being here is to simply play my part in ensuring that this country moves forward and that the people move with it.

I am most deeply saddened to know... and let me pause here, Mr. Speaker, to take you completely out of the picture because this has not reflection on you, sir... but I am deeply saddened to know that the former Speaker has not been re-appointed. I understand that the good little lady (I have not heard it, but I understand) did not seek re-appointment. That saddens me because I remember saying to her on the very last day of the September sitting before the House was prorogued, that she really had no idea how much effect she had on the lives of many of us. I wish to let her know today that I am truly sorry that the opportunity was not there for her to continue to have that great positive effect that she has had on my life in these Chambers.

Having said that, I can assure you that your life will be easy with the likes of me. You have no fear, sir.

To the people of the district of George Town, let me say that of the four representatives you now have, you have two that are with one group, one that is independent, and another who is a part of the Government which has been returned. My challenge today to all four of us, regardless of where we sit, is to ensure that when there are matters concerning our district, that we communicate and work hand-in-hand to ensure that the representation which we promised the people of the district continues in the right vein.

What I wish to challenge the Government with - and it will be for them to do so, not me - is to deal with the issues concerning our district in a fashion which is not covert. I do not wish to have to wonder about who gets credit for what, because that is not important. What is important is that it gets done. I want all of us to think about that, because while we each have to pave our own way, it is the greater good that will prevail when each of us goes away.

I said once before, and I am going to say it again: Let us deal with the affairs of this country in a forthright manner. We will never always all agree. The democratic process continues to make strides in this country, and I think it will continue to do so in the future. I have no fear of speaking my mind, and I have no worry about whether I should say something I do not want to say rather than saying what I think is right. I think we should all do that and the consensus of the majority will prevail.

To the people of the district of George Town, I again say thanks, thanks and more thanks. While speaking I have been trying to put the right words together, because I was indeed overwhelmed at the end of the day. I thought I had been a good enough representative to be returned, but I truly had no idea that the end results would have been the way they were. That is not for me to gloat over, that only adds more responsibility to the task.

I cannot forget my family who has suffered the torture of my not being there for many hours. I can only promise them that I will do the best I can to spend my time as wisely as I can while being the best representative that I can.

To the other Elected Members I can truthfully say that I congratulate them all. It was a good fight. Everybody had his personal choices. The people have spoken and I have always respected their wishes. May God continue to bless us; may He stay in our midst. As we all 'fight the good fight' may we remember that it is not what we become at the end of the day, but what the country becomes and what role we play to head it in the right direction.

(Applause)

The Speaker: The Honourable John McLean.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Let me first thank Almighty God for returning me here once again. Secondly, I take this opportunity to thank the people of East End who have once again shown that their confidence remains in John Bonwell McLean, Sr., OBE, JP.

I was indeed touched this morning when I could sit in the seat and look back at my colleagues well knowing that I was going to call upon them to vote for and elect somebody of your calibre to sit in the seat as Speaker of this Legislative Assembly. Let me say, as did my committee, you have served your country well. You have completed 16 years and, in my opinion, you are good for life. Mine was slightly different. They said I had served for 20 years and was good for life.

I would like to say to you, sir, that you have my support. If you would like to tap in on my experience at any time, I am most happy to work along with the Chair. My record here shows that, which brings me to the point where I would like to say that I would like to pay every good tribute to the past Speaker.

Mrs. McLaughlin and I go back a long way. When I came into this Legislative Assembly at the tender age of 26 years, she was the person here to tutor me. I look upon her today as a wonderful woman, somebody who has served this country well. I said no different when I spoke on her behalf quite recently when she was made a national hero. That was something which she deserved, and something of which the Cayman Islands can be justly proud.

So, while she is not here today, and she has been replaced, I can only recall the death of John F. Kennedy, how in a couple of minutes he was replaced. In all of our sorrow, we can only look at this from a positive point of view, and let us take this country into the 21st Century.

As the longest serving Member in this Legislative Assembly, I have been very disappointed in the way this Parliament has started off. I am not blaming all the Members who have spoken. But I am going to be to the point and say that I am very disappointed in the remnants of the National Team Government. The people of this country have spoken... I am sorry, I mean Team Cayman. I apologise to this country for that, because I should not have made that mistake!

I am here to say that while we need Opposition in this House, we need fair Opposition. We do not need Opposition to sit in that corner and believe that everything this Government brings is wrong. The return of this Government was not because of the three Opposition Members sitting in that corner. If we had only gone along with their policies and their ideas, this country would have been worse than Jamaica today.

You know how most Americans say "God Bless America"? I say God Bless the Cayman Islands, because we did not have a team like Team Cayman take our people over. I heard my beloved friend in the corner, Mr. Roy Bodden, quoting scripture. Let me tell you something: I know scripture. Let me refer him and his team to Psalm 33:8 - "Let the earth fear the Lord. For he spake and it was done. He has commanded and it stood fast. The Lord bringeth the counsel of the heathen to naught. The counsel of the Lord standeth forever.". I trust that he can interpret that.

Thank God for the background of the people of this country, that they had enough foresight not to elect people like his colleagues.

This election was based on nothing but ridiculous attacks by that team I am talking about. Let me tell you that I can speak with authority on that because there was nobody as viciously attacked as John McLean. When they stooped to trying to defame me by showing a cheque which was not even connected with me, the people of this country have done this country justice in not electing them. (Applause)

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order.

POINT OF ORDER

The Speaker: May I hear your point of order?

Mr. Roy Bodden: The Honourable Minister speaking is misleading the House and causing malicious information to be spread. Is he saying that the cheque which allegedly bore his name was circulated by any Member of Team Cayman? My information was that the police have been unable to find the culprit.

I am asking you, sir, to ask that Honourable Minister to retract his allegation.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, did you say a Member of Team Cayman? I did not understand it in that way.

Hon. John B. McLean: You, know, there was a Member who sat on that side sometime ago who bore the same surname as the Speaker today, that was the Honourable Charles Kirkconnell. He told me something that I will never forget. There is a Jamaican saying that when you throw a stone in a pen of swine, the one that hollers hardest is the one who got hit.

Let me say, with the greatest of respect to the Chair, my information tells me that every member of Team Cayman knew about that cheque. So the Member who just jumped to his feet is quite aware that when he heard it he also tried to use it. He was in my district running his mouth... and along with that, he was one of the Members who thought that he had out done me to run to the Governor. But his legs are not that long.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I still stand by my point of order. Let me say that I had nothing to do with either the manufacture or the circulation of that document. I speak also on behalf of my colleagues. I challenge the Honourable Minister, if he has information to the contrary, to go to the Special Branch and let the law take its due process. Otherwise, please make him desist from his dangerous allegations.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, could we move on to another point?

Hon. John B. McLean: Yes, Mr. Speaker. I give you the assurance that I have made my point. All I have to say is that I invite him and I invite Team Cayman to let us refer to the words of that great president, Mr. John F. Kennedy: "Ask not what your country can do for you; but what you can do for your country." I want them to compare their record with J.B. McLean's. They will see what I have done in my 20 years. I would like, instead of coming in here and starting off the way he has today, to instead speak to the people of Bodden Town in a decent way and show them that he is ready to work with the Government. (Applause)

I want my colleagues to see what we are in for over the next four years. A leopard never changes its spots. It is quite clear by his attitude today, that he intends to carry on in the same way. Let me say that our Government was not returned because we did not do a good job - we did a good job; and we will continue to do a good job. Each one of us on this side has projects which we need to continue.

At this point I would like to say that we are delighted with the way that Dr. Frank McField, who has just come into this place, has been able to scold people like the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town. (Applause)

I would like to thank all of my constituents. I would like to thank the people of this country, and all of my colleagues for what has happened here today. I would again like to say that I thank Almighty God, not for returning John McLean, but for saving this country from the dangers it was exposed to. We must continue to keep the old ship Cayman on an even keel.

I know that I will be ridiculed, but, Mr. Speaker, no one is going to walk the floor and punch me the way they punched poor old Truman Bodden. So that must be understood. I will stand here on behalf of the people of the Cayman Islands, most especially, my beloved people of East End. That is exactly how it is going to be for the next four years.

As I said, you are new in the Chair. We are glad that you are there. We are saddened that Mrs. McLaughlin left, but the most we can say to you now is that we are going to support you in any way we can. I just ask all Members that when we return to these hallowed Chambers we put everything behind us and get on with what we were elected to do here. I do not know about the Opposition in this House, but I know that when I leave here today I have a pile of things on my desk to do which represents all areas of this country. I beg each one to let us bury the hatchet and put politics aside. The people have spoken. God be praised.

Thank you, Mr. Speaker.
(Applause)

The Speaker: Thank you.

May I remind members of the public gallery that we are in the Legislative Assembly which is in session. I ask that they desist from applauding as it is not Parliamentary.

The Honourable Truman Bodden.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I would first like to thank God for His wisdom and guidance in these elections. It is with pride and humility that I take this seat in this Honourable House.

I welcome you as Speaker of this Honourable House. You are the first person from Cayman Brac and Little Cayman to hold this position, and also the first Elected Member of this Honourable House to hold this high position. I believe that the people of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman can be justly proud, as can all the people of these islands.

You have had a long and distinguished career as a Member of the Legislative Assembly, one who has championed the rights of your people in Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. You have an impeccable character, you are honest and capable, and I have no doubt that you will fulfill the duties of one of the highest official positions in this country as Speaker of this Honourable House in a good and proper way. I pledge to you my support for the smooth running of this Legislative Assembly and I shall assist in any way possible.

I would like to thank all of my supporters and my constituents in George Town who supported me in this election - all constituents generally, whether they supported me or not. Also all Members of this House for appointing me to the Executive Council. I assure them that I shall do my best and will not let them down.

I am saddened that Mrs. Berna Murphy and Dr. Steve Tomlinson and Mr. Tony Powell were not successful in the elections, but they have pride for having run a clean campaign. I shall miss my two colleagues from George Town, but they remain with the National Team and we will continue to have the benefit of their advice and help throughout the years.

I know my duty here, and that was clearly set out in our Manifesto when we stated that "...we accept that we are representatives of you the people." Therefore we will consult and follow the wishes of the majority of our constituents, including where necessary by referendum.

I intend to represent all of my people, Mr. Chairman, not just those... Mr. President, rather... I mean, Mr. Speaker. I am sorry, it has been a long day, and when you are my size and do not get any lunch.... I am sorry, Mr. Speaker, my duty is to represent all of my people, and I will do that. I intend to work with people of this Legislative Assembly, especially the independent, the Fourth Elected Member for George Town, whom I believe has well earned his seat.

I would also like to welcome the new Members to the House. I intend to continue to be fair and equitable to everyone, and to treat all Members of this House alike.

The past few months have been difficult. I have probably had more leveled at me than I even knew existed. I learned a lot of new things about myself in the rumours that went around. However, it is somewhat unfortunate that the House did begin with what I consider a misconception of what Opposition should be. Opposition in this House... and by the way, it could never be 'Her Majesty's Loyal Opposition,' because they sit in the Parliament of the United Kingdom. But the Opposition in this House, the two Members have started out in a way that has cost them and other Members who were with them seats in this House.

I do not intend to attempt to go into very much in relation to whatever Ministry I may be given, but what I would like to say is that I will do my duty with whatever Ministry I am assigned. It would have been better if at this beginning ceremony today that references to the bitterness by the two Opposition Members in talking about things like political violence and that sort of thing... this does not exist. It is like being in a fairy tale world sometimes when I listen to this. It does not help the country. This is what can destroy the country. That bitterness is what perhaps cost eight of the nine members of Team Cayman seats in this House. I say it has to be put aside.

I believe that I have taken, next to Mr. McLean, probably more abuse than anyone in this House, including physical violence (since we have referred to that). But life has to go on. While not commenting specifically on the matter raised by the Third Elected Member, but speaking generally, I would just like to point out that the political signs were erected in breach of the Planning Law. So they began on the wrong footing and were left up during election day in breach of the Elections Law. In Savannah, East End, Cayman Brac, signs were torn down. Graffiti was written on signs. Just to point out that this happens in every election; why it has been made a specific case, obviously goes back to the bitterness.

I would like to thank my colleagues once again, especially the members of my committee, and the members and staff of my law firm for their loyalty, advice and support to me and to other members of the "A Team" during the campaign. I note that many of my committee members have been with me for over 20 years.

I thank Mr. Kearney Gomez and his efficient elections staff, especially Mr. Philip Barnes and his staff in George Town electoral stations, and to the Royal Cayman Islands Police for a well organised, peaceful election. I thank all branches of the news media, television, radio, press, who worked very hard and who kept the public fully informed on important matters.

Last, but most important, I would like to thank my two little daughters and my mother and family and friends for all their support and patience during the election campaign.

At this time I would like to thank and pay tribute to Mrs. Sybil McLaughlin, our first Speaker. She has been an outstanding Speaker, very knowledgeable in Parliamentary procedures. Her wisdom and guidance has been sought by MLAs throughout the past several decades. I believe that the Legislative Assembly and the Cayman Islands owe her a great debt of gratitude. I believe that as our only living National Hero, Mrs. Sybil will continue to be dear to Caymanians, especially MLAs who will continue to seek her advice on future Parliamentary problems.

The Honourable Sybil McLaughlin has given her reasons for not seeking this high office, and I think it is the duty of people in this country to accept and support them. She is our National Hero and over the next four years, if what we have seen today is an example, I believe that as National Hero she may have well been put in compromising positions. She has many other commitments and I accept her explanation on this and I wish her and her family all the best.

Our mandate from the people of the Cayman Islands to this House is clear. We have clearly set out in our Manifesto details of what policies we will bring in the next four years. The Committees have been appointed and I would also like to add that I look forward to working once again with the Clerk, the Deputy and all staff of the Legislative Assembly. I would also like to congratulate the Official Members for being back, and I once again pledge support to them as we go into Executive Council.

The new Executive Council has to operate for the good of the Cayman Islands, and must function as a team in a spirit of cooperation and trust. Its Members and the Members of this House must bear that trust. The present problems of the Cayman Islands are too large and critical to be dealt with with personal or petty bickering between Members of the Legislative Assembly or between Members of Council. I think we must all now get on with the job ahead of us, as speedily and reasonably as possible.

This hallowed Chamber often, unfortunately, takes the role of Members saying that they are not going to hit on other Members - then immediately after, getting up and doing just that. I think we should not be hypocritical, when making statements about our fellow Members, but should be honest. It is now our duty to pray for God's guidance in the coming years and for His determination of the future of our beloved Cayman Islands. God Bless the Cayman Islands and all of the people.

The Speaker: Thank you. The Honourable Thomas Jefferson.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

We, who today have taken the oath to serve the people of the Cayman Islands, have a tremendous task placed upon our shoulders, to lead the Cayman Islands into the 21st Century. We are known for political stability. We are one of the leading financial industries in the world, we are one of the premier warm weather tourism destinations, our economy is strong, the quality of life in this country is equal to almost any in the world. We have a responsibility to maintain that. I want to thank Almighty God for all of our being here today to take up that task.

I wish to thank the people of West Bay in particular for returning me to the Legislative Assembly. It is a special privilege to serve the people of one's district, and one that I hold very dearly to my heart.

The National Team has served this country well for four years. All of us, whether we wish to say it or not, realise that it is the only reason why the majority of this House are National Team members. We commit ourselves to continuing that good form of Government, caring for our people, consulting with our people, keeping our people briefed and ensuring that issues, such as dredging of the North Sound, do not become a monster around our necks. We have all said that we have no support for major dredging of the North Sound. I believe that I am old enough, big enough and loud enough to say that when the time comes.

I would like to remind all that this country did not come this far by division, or by the grabbing of power; but by people's willingness to serve this country, improving the quality of life, responding in a caring and neighbourly way. It is the cornerstone of this country. I believe that we need to reflect on these few words.

There is hardly a person who comes to the Cayman Islands who wishes to leave. The reason for that is the social harmony and quality of life which exists here. We need to hold on to what we have. Division does not get us anywhere.

There are many issues. Perhaps today is not the day to get into all of them - when we come to the Throne Speech, next year (God willing), that will be the proper time. But there are many issues about which we, as Members of the Legislative Assembly will have to put our heads together, put aside the differences and say this is a national issue and, in the best interest of all the people of the Cayman Islands, we will get it done.

I wish to again thank the constituents of West Bay, our supporters, our committee which was there for us always - every time we needed them, they were there. I do not want single out any particular individual, but they do know how I appreciate them.

I wish to also thank my family, my wife, my children, my mother, my brother and sisters and other relatives and friends for their encouragement and support. It is times like these when you find out who really are your true friends.

I wish to thank the Members who elected me to serve on Executive Council. I appreciate it very much. I give you my word that I am here to serve all of the people of the Cayman Islands as a Minister.

The Speaker: Thank you.

Honourable Members, I, too, would like to say a few words.

I am the first Elected Speaker who comes from the Elected Members of this House. I would like to thank Almighty God for the blessings He has bestowed upon me and this country. I ask for His continued blessing.

I would like to thank my family, my committee and all who supported me throughout the 16 years that I have served. I will be forever grateful to the people of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman for the support they have given me. I want to assure them that even though I am now the Speaker, I am still a representative of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, and, with my colleague, Mrs. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly, will give you the representation you justly deserve.

Throughout the years Cayman Brac and Little Cayman have benefited in many ways. We hope that with a united front, with the two representatives working closely together that we will be able to perform well.

I want to congratulate the Members of Executive Council on their election, and my predecessor, Mrs. Sybil McLaughlin. She has been a life-long friend of mine. We go way back. She was my mentor. I thank her today for whatever knowledge and ability I have to hold this high office. When I came into this Legislative Assembly she was the Clerk. She graciously took me under her wing and taught me a lot about Standing Orders, and taught me where to locate additional information.

Mrs. McLaughlin has achieved just about everything that a lady can achieve in her life. Not only has she been an inspiration to me as a Member of the Legislative Assembly, as a very able Speaker, she has also been a great spiritual leader within this Chamber. I shall be forever grateful for that. I wish everything that is good for her. Earlier today I had the privilege of hugging her and saying thanks to her for all that she has done, not only for me, but for the Cayman Islands as a whole.

Mrs. McLaughlin, we wish you everything that is good, including a long life.

As we come to the conclusion of this, I want to thank the people in the gallery for their kind attention and for staying with us. This is an historic occasion and before I close I wish all Honourable Members and their families, the Clerk, Mr. Cline, the staff in the Kitchen, all the people of the Cayman Islands, the very best for the Christmas season. We will not have the opportunity to meet with you prior to that, so I hope that it will be a very joyous, pleasant and peaceful Christmas for all.

A final announcement I would like to make before the adjournment, is that immediately following this there will be a group photograph taken on the steps. I ask that Members do not leave before that photograph is taken.

If there is no other business, I would like to...

The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I would like to take this opportunity to congratulate you as Speaker, and to pay tribute to Mrs. Sybil McLaughlin, MBE, JP, National Hero, for the excellent leadership she provided during her tenure as Speaker in this Honourable House.

I would also like to congratulate every Elected Member of this Legislative Assembly, those nominated to Executive Council and those on the Backbench, equally.

In my estimation, today should be regarded as a day of national reconciliation and healing as alluded to by most of the Elected Members who have spoken. This is a time when all differences and bias are set aside in order for us to unite to move forward, in order to secure what is best for the Cayman Islands. It is not new to Members when I say (as it says in the Bible) "A house divided against itself will not stand." That has been extended further to say, "United we stand, divided we fall."

The finances of the Government are very important. The job of Financial Secretary of these islands is not one that I take lightly. It must be recognised that when each and every Member can get up on a platform and express his views in terms of the state of the country's financial affairs, that I have to maintain an unbiased and objective position. I indicated much earlier that when the advanced warrant was being submitted for approval that detailed information will be provided as to the Government's projected financial position up to the end of 1996. The figures that we have on hand at this time, as prepared by the Treasury, sets out what obtains as at 31st October. I am sure that all Members of this House will be interested in that information.

It was mentioned that this is the biggest warrant for which approval has been sought. Naturally, it would have to be. If we look at trends, in 1992 the advance warrant for which approval was given was in excess of $30 million. I think it was in the region of $34 million. What has been proposed here today, in order to take a prudent approach, is that it be kept at one quarter of the provisions approved in the 1996 Estimates. That is to ensure that the budget is thoroughly examined by the Government and every Member of this House before final consent or approval is given.

It does not pre-empt that all of the requests that are made by controlling officers for 1997 will be allowed. It is also to be recognised that the warrant being sought today will be rolled up in the 1997 Budget. This is a major consideration; it is not a question of the Government being given the authority to go off... and irrespective of the size of the bank balance at this time, not one dollar can be spent unless the appropriate approval is given. So, I think a distinction should be made regarding the question of Government's liquidity position, and the authority to spend money.

I mentioned also that provision was being sought to ensure that a grant be provided to the Monetary Authority. I can assure Members at this time that the Budget for 1997 will be much bigger than what it was previously. The reasons for that are: First, the Currency Board and the Financial Services Supervision Department are being rolled into a single unit, and secondly, the strength of the staff complement will be increased significantly.

Interestingly, I am now hooked up to the Internet. I am not a proficient user of that technology as yet, but what was interesting yesterday, when it was being demonstrated to me, was that practically every country in the region is now professing to be an international financial centre. Our laws have been copied, our practices emulated, and there are individuals out on fact-finding missions coming to the Cayman Islands, coming into my office and gleaning information. This is being compounded by the fact that we have representatives of major international corporations coming into my office, visiting the Inspector of Financial Services Supervision Department in order to glean information on the Cayman Islands; because all indications are that we are a very secure financial centre.

This we will have to continue to nurture. We will have to be very careful as to our approaches, and how we shape ourselves for the 21st Century. It is not a matter that we can take for granted any more.

Speaking of the Internet, when we talk about this world being a "global village," in the literal sense of the word it is. You can sit at a desk and see what is happening in Hong Kong, in Singapore, in Bermuda, the British Virgin Islands - all of the countries within this region, in Europe, Asia, wherever. All of these countries are putting out information about themselves.

As I mentioned earlier, we did not achieve this position by accident. As a result of that, we will have to take a proactive approach. This is what we have been doing. We introduced Mutual Fund Legislation back in 1993. To date, we have over 1200 funds registered as Cayman Islands Funds. We have funds being traded on major international stock exchanges. We felt that having done all of this, it naturally follows that rather than having all of these funds going off to register elsewhere, that they should be on a Cayman Islands Stock Exchange. I am thankful to Honourable Members for having given their support to the necessary funds. I trust that the approval processes required to ensure that the funding will be put in place for this activity to become operational will be allowed.

We are also rolling up our Monetary Authority. This is to ensure that the Cayman Islands not only says that it is a leading international financial centre, we want to be able to tell everyone of questionable intent who would attempt to abuse the Cayman Islands to take their business elsewhere. We want business that is credible and genuine, reflecting economic substance.

All of these are factors which we have to take into consideration. To achieve this we must have the necessary competence by way of a regulatory regime to sift out dubious business and to also welcome what is credible to the Cayman Islands. This will not only help our position, but will ease our conscience knowing that we have done everything to ensure that we operate as a credible and well-established financial centre.

A final point I should make is that introducing the stock exchange will mean more work permits. This is a sore subject, but I take the view that every job created in Cayman is a job held in trust for Caymanians who are presently off at University at this time training. It will be necessary to employ the necessary expertise on a temporary basis; but whenever our people develop the competence to move into those positions so that we can continue to operate our financial industry with the degree of excellence desired, which every member of the Cayman Islands community would endorse, we have to make sure that those job opportunities are available.

We also know (and it is not a light subject) that this carries with it financial and social costs; financial from the point of view that we will have to expand the capacity of our infrastructure. Every additional person or family which comes into Cayman will translate into more teachers, more medical services capacity, the roads, everything. On the social side it impacts on the indigenous way of life. But I think that we will have to cultivate and streamline our policies to ensure that a balance is maintained. We cannot really throw up our hands and say that nothing should be done. We have the minds of 15 Elected Members in this Honourable House (which includes you, as Speaker), the three Official Members of Executive Council, the senior administration of Government, His Excellency the Governor, and all of the persons within the community who will critique the policies of the Government. This brings together what I would call a harmonised approach. No one person knows it all. I would not put myself forward to say that I am an expert on everything. I think that wise counsel is important because the Bible alludes to it and we should all take it.

We have to look very carefully at how we want the Cayman Islands to go into the 21st Century. At the end of the day what is important is that the good life, which I have enjoyed as a Caymanian, should continue for my children, and their children, and every child in the Cayman Islands - all future generations, regardless of how far into the future. I would not want for it to be put on record that "Once upon a time...". Therefore, we will have to put our minds together, pool our ideas and our resources to ensure that we secure the future of these islands.

Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: May I add my congratulations to you, sir, as Speaker of this Honourable House, and also give my best wishes to your predecessor, Mrs. Sybil McLaughlin. I would like to welcome back to the House those Elected Members who served here in the Legislative Assembly previously, and to give a special welcome to the three new Members.

I would like to congratulate those Elected Members who have been elected to Executive Council. I look forward to working with them and to participating in debate in this House which is fair, honest and stimulating.

Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I rise to congratulate you warmly, and to welcome you following your election to the high office of Speaker of the Legislative Assembly of the Cayman Islands.

In so doing, let me also offer my congratulations to the Member of North Side for being re-elected as Deputy Speaker. She has served in the Chair on past occasions in the absence of the Speaker, and she did an excellent job. I am certain that she will complement your role ably.

I would also like to congratulate the five Honourable Members who have been returned as Ministers of Executive Council. I pledge to them my continued support and I look forward to working with them in the times ahead.

I also congratulate all Members who have been returned to the Legislative Assembly. I welcome the new Members, especially the First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Speaker, as a fellow Cayman Bracker, I am delighted at your appointment to the high office of Speaker. I am sure that I speak for all the people of the Sister Islands when I say that we are immensely proud to see you in this lofty position. Your wife and family here in the gallery and those listening by radio will be very proud of you, and rightly so. You have served with distinction as a master mariner, and I have no doubt that your years on the bridge of a ship will put you in good stead as Speaker of this House. I pledge my full support and cooperation to you.

Your Christian stand is strong, and for this I am very happy. I wish to thank the former Speaker of the Legislative Assembly for her distinguished service to this country in many capacities, but especially as Speaker. I wish for her continued good health and long life.

Finally, I would like to refer to the words of our Lord when he said, "Whoever shall be greatest among you must first be your servant." In other words, show humility. Your life has always reflected humility and today it is gratifying to know that you have been exhaled to this high office.

Again, my warmest congratulations and all the best as you serve in your new role. I thank you.

The Speaker: I would like to say to all Members how much I appreciate your having supported my appointment as Speaker of this House. I shall do everything in my power to uphold your trust, and I ask each and every one for his support.

I now move the adjournment of this House sine die.

AT 3.14 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED SINE DIE.
