EDITED
FRIDAY
20 FEBRUARY 1998
9.41 AM

The Speaker: I will ask the Rev. Winston Rose to say Prayers.

PRAYERS

Rev. Winston Rose: Let us pray.

Our Father, we come to you today through your Son, our Saviour, the Lord Jesus Christ. We thank you for your numerous blessings upon us, the people of these Islands. We love you and we praise you as the source of all true knowledge and power, and every good and perfect gift. We ask that your precious Holy Spirit direct the minds and hearts of our legislators and all others concerned, as they assemble to deal with the governmental affairs of these Islands.

Father, we pray that Your will be done in our lives and in these Islands, even as Your will is being done in heaven.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth, that peace and happiness, truth, justice and righteousness may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, all Members of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly. Father, we ask that you enable each one of them to faithfully perform the responsible duties of their high office. Grant them health and strength, and bless the members of their families. All these mercies we ask in the name of Your Son who taught us when we pray to say:

Our Father, who art in heaven, hallowed be Thy name. Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us; and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

PROCLAMATION NO. 1 OF 1998

The Clerk: Proclamation No. 1 of 1998 by His Excellency John Owen, Member of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire, Governor of the Cayman Islands.

"WHEREAS by subsection (1) of section 46 of Schedule 2 of the Cayman Islands (Constitution) Order, 1972, it is provided that the Sessions of the Legislative Assembly shall be held at such time and place as the Governor may, from time to time, by Proclamation appoint;

"NOW THEREFORE, under and by virtue of the powers vested in me by the aforesaid Order, I, John Owen, Member of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire, Governor of the Cayman Islands, do hereby proclaim and make known that a Session of the Legislative Assembly of the Cayman Islands shall be held in the Legislative Assembly Building in George Town, Island of Grand Cayman, at 10.00 AM, on Friday the 20th day of February, One Thousand Nine Hundred and Ninety-eight.

"Given under my hand and the Public Seal of the Cayman Islands at George Town on the Island of Grand Cayman, this 17th day of February, in the year of our Lord, One Thousand Nine Hundred and Ninety-eight in the Forty-seventh year of the Reign of Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II. God Save the Queen."

The Speaker: Administration of Oaths.

Mr. Joel Walton, please come forward to the Clerk's table.

ADMINISTRATION OF OATHS OR AFFIRMATIONS

OATH OF ALLEGIANCE

Mr. Joel Walton

Hon. Joel Walton: I, Arthur Joel Walton, do swear that I will be faithful and bear true allegiance to Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II, her heirs and successors according to law, so help me God.

The Speaker: On behalf of the Legislative Assembly, I welcome you to your term of service as the Honourable Temporary Third Official Member.

I call upon the Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

MOTION TO ARISE AND AWAIT HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I move that this Honourable House do rise to await His Excellency the Governor and re-assemble on his arrival to receive a gracious message from the Throne.

The Speaker: The question before the House is that the House do now rise to await the arrival of His Excellency the Governor and to receive a gracious message from the Throne.

I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House is accordingly suspended.

AGREED: THAT THIS HOUSE DO RISE TO AWAIT HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR AND RE-ASSEMBLE, ON HIS ARRIVAL, TO RECEIVE A GRACIOUS MESSAGE FROM THE THRONE.

AT 9.47 AM PROCEEDINGS WERE SUSPENDED

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 10 AM

His Excellency the Governor: Please be seated.

The Speaker: Your Excellency, I have pleasure in inviting you to address this Honourable House.

THE THRONE SPEECH DELIVERED BY HIS EXCELLENCY
THE GOVERNOR MR. JOHN OWEN, MBE

Honourable Speaker, Honourable Members of the Legislative Assembly, it is with great honour and humility that I present the Throne Speech.

All over the world, countries are preparing to embrace the new millennium, and Cayman is no exception. It is as if the dawn of a new century affords us time to pause and take stock of where we have been, and where we want to go in the 21st Century. In my 1996 speech from the Throne, I announced the commencement of the reinvention of Government exercise, which is currently being carried out by the public service. All departments of Government have now reviewed their services and are working hard to introduce improved customer service and efficiency. I am particularly grateful to those individuals and organisations in the private sector who continue to work with Government departments on reinvention teams, and in completing customer service reviews to assist the public service in planned improvements.

The concept of partnership is not a new one in Cayman. Cayman has shown the world what can be achieved by the public and private sectors working together. On 4th February, at the opening of the then Dependent Territories Association Conference in London, the Foreign Secretary, Robin Cook, announced the British Government's concept of partnership with its Overseas Territories. This will, I believe, set the tone for a much improved relationship between the United Kingdom and its Territories.

Here at home, Executive Council has agreed to further extend the partnership model in a national planning exercise to address the kind of community we wish to see the Cayman Islands become over the next decade. Today, I am pleased to announce the start of "Vision 2008," a national strategic planning exercise which will establish national goals and priorities for these Islands for the next ten years. It is the Government's intention to involve the entire community in identifying and discussing those key issues which must be addressed if we, as a country, are to maintain the quality of life, economic growth, social and cultural values and environmental protection which has brought the Cayman Islands to prominence on the world stage.

We are no longer the Islands time forgot. We continue to move ahead at a speed that is alarming to many of our people. The pace of development, the encroachment of outside values and customs, and the threat to our environment are continuous challenges to us all. This year we intend to take stock of our position, and to develop those strategies and action plans which the people of these Islands tell us are needed if we are to move confidently into the next century.

I have decided that the responsibility for overseeing Vision 2008—a visioning exercise, which will result in a ten-year National Strategic Plan for the Cayman Islands, will be assigned to the Ministry of Education, Aviation and Planning, under the Honourable Truman Bodden. The exercise will be led by the Permanent Secretary, Mrs. Joy Basdeo, using a participatory approach to planning which has been used successfully in Cayman to create sectoral plans for Education, Health and Drug Abuse Prevention.

The Ministry for Planning will shortly open a Vision 2008 planning office at Paddington Place, which will serve as a focal point for the exercise. The office will have extended opening hours to provide easy access for public responses, and a meeting place for small round-table discussion groups.

An interactive Web site, which will enable Internet users in Cayman and elsewhere to have an input into the consultation process, will be in operation from early next month. I would also like to encourage the many Caymanians living abroad to become involved through the Web site, and by other means, in what will be a very wide public consultation exercise.

In my Christmas Day message I said, "As you sit around with your families today, ask yourselves and your children what sort of Islands you want to be living in, in ten years' time." Vision 2008 is your opportunity to help shape Cayman's future for the next ten years. For it to be a success, we need to hear everyone's voices—our young people and our children in particular, as it is their future we hold in our hands. I encourage everyone who cares about the future of these Islands to contribute to this project. I look forward to receiving your positive contributions.

I shall now turn to the Judiciary, the Portfolios and the Ministries.

THE JUDICIARY

The Chief Justice will relinquish his office in June. On behalf of the people of the Cayman Islands, I thank him for his service to these Islands. In 1998, priorities will include a reduction of the time taken to bring indictments to trial, and the introduction of a new system of court reporting. The introduction of a small claims procedure is also under consideration.

THE PORTFOLIO OF INTERNAL AND EXTERNAL AFFAIRS

The Portfolio will continue to promote the review and reform of public service administration under the Reinvention of Public Services. The continued success of these Islands is dependent on the effectiveness and quality of the services which the public sector provides.

THE ROYAL CAYMAN ISLANDS POLICE

The Commissioner of Police, Mr. Anthony Grey, retires today. His successor, Mr. David Thursfield, commenced duties on the 16th. On behalf of the people of the Cayman Islands, I thank the Commissioner for the major contribution which he has made to the policing of these Islands.

The Royal Cayman Islands Police Service will complete its Strategic Plan for the next three years (1998-2000). The Service will concentrate on: a crime reduction initiative of reducing burglaries; attempting to reduce road accidents; and improving effectiveness in the arrest and prosecution of those persons trafficking in illegal drugs.

PRISON DEPARTMENT

In 1998, the Prison Department will implement the recommendations of the United Kingdom Overseas Territories Prison Advisor. Additional accommodation for inmates will also be constructed.

IMMIGRATION DEPARTMENT

The Immigration Department will continue to give priority to customer service and technological improvements, including the possibility of introducing electronic processing of low risk passengers.

DEPARTMENT OF BROADCASTING

In 1998, the Department of Broadcasting plans to increase its revenue by adding more sales representation and by marketing a number of new products.

PERSONNEL DEPARTMENT

The review of Public Service Commission Regulations and the General Orders will result in some personnel activities being devolved to Government departments. This will allow for the reorganisation of the Personnel Department, to focus on providing specialist services and advice.

THE LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT

The first two days of the Second Meeting in 1998 of the Legislative Assembly, which is scheduled to commence in early June, will be held in Cayman Brac at the Aston Rutty Centre.

COMPUTER SERVICES DEPARTMENT

Computer Services has officially become a Department this year. It was previously a section under the Personnel Department.

GOVERNMENT INFORMATION SERVICES (GIS)

GIS will be relocating to Cricket Square in March.

THE PORTFOLIO OF LEGAL ADMINISTRATION

ATTORNEY GENERAL'S CHAMBERS

Following the enactment of The Misuse of Drugs (International Co-operation) Law, subsidiary legislation is being introduced designating all signatories to the 1988 U.N. Convention Against Illicit Traffic in Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances. This will enable the Cayman Islands to offer co-operation in legal matters in accordance with the Convention.

A draft Charities Law will be produced to enable charities to register and be accountable for their profits.

LEGAL DEPARTMENT

Training will continue to be offered to Caymanians wishing to be articulated, and to school leavers who express an interest in a career in law. Assistance will also be given to other Government agencies by way of lectures on legal topics and recent changes in legislation.

THE PORTFOLIO OF FINANCE AND ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT

The Portfolio's main aims for 1998 are to continue the legislative programme for the financial services sector which began last year, and to complete revision of the Public Finance and Audit Law.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT

The arrears of revenue recovery rate will be increased by the introduction of improved systems in the Centralised Debt Collection Unit. Over the past 21 months, the Unit has recovered CI$1.2 million of debt.

The implementation in 1998 of the first phase of the new Integrated Financial and Human Resources Information System will improve the management of Government's finances.

CUSTOMS DEPARTMENT

In 1998, Customs will continue to look for ways of improving its customer service, in keeping with Government's reinvention effort. In this context, one of the Department's aims will be to clear arriving passengers more quickly.

Training will continue to be a priority. A basic customs course and a Caribbean Intelligence course are planned to take place during the first half of 1998. As a result of recent training initiatives, the Department has increased its detection rate by over 100 percent in drug cases.

GENERAL REGISTRY

A major objective in 1998 is the computerisation of the Birth Register.

BUDGET AND MANAGEMENT UNIT

In 1998, the Unit will continue to lead and support the reinvention initiatives through service-based budgeting, publishing of performance targets and setting up of an award system for enterprise and innovation. It will also look at ways of cutting "red tape" in Government departments.

INTERNAL AUDIT UNIT

In 1998, the Internal Audit Unit will focus on Government's role as a regulatory body with audit objectives focusing on how departments ensure that regulations are complied with by the general public or their customers.

ECONOMICS & STATISTICS OFFICE

The Office intends to produce a Medium-Term Financial Strategy and Public Sector Investment Programme, 1998-2000; prepare quarterly and annual debt reports; and assess the contribution of the Shipping Sector to the Cayman Islands economy.

Preparations have begun for the 1999 Population Census and the contents of the draft questionnaire will be tested by the end of 1998.

SHIPPING REGISTRY

The 1998 aims and objectives for the Shipping Registry are:

- ◆ To review and continue the implementation of strategies for strengthening the administration of the Shipping Register.
- ◆ To complete the review of the shipping regulations and put in place mechanisms for the updating of the law in line with international and United Kingdom requirements.
- ◆ To advance professional expertise of the Shipping Registry.

CAYMAN ISLANDS STOCK EXCHANGE

The Exchange plans to introduce new products in 1998. New rules for derivative warrants, global depository receipts and specialist international companies are planned. The Exchange will be seeking to attract international broker members, and gain selected recognition from overseas regulators to enable it to realise its full potential in the global marketplace.

CAYMAN ISLANDS MONETARY AUTHORITY

With the increase of its staff from 26 to over 40, the Authority is positioned to ensure that the regulatory regime in Cayman continues to meet the standards for supervision which are necessary for a mature international financial centre. One major initiative set for 1998 is the introduction of an on-site supervisory system for the various sectors that will complement the off-site surveillance practised for many years. Also planned for 1998 is the development of formal policy statements that outline the position on new developments or clarify existing practice.

During the latter part of 1998, the Authority will produce its first semi-annual bulletin.

A new currency note issue will be made in 1998.

MINISTRY OF TOURISM, COMMERCE AND TRANSPORT

DEPARTMENT OF TOURISM

The work of the Tourism Department in 1998 will continue to reflect the private sector partnership which has become the hallmark of its marketing activities. The Tourism Development programme will support training and development initiatives within the sector and the wider community. Tourism awareness activities in 1998 will be treated as an ongoing series of activities through the entire year, with certain months assigned to particular districts.

The Ministry of Tourism will establish a Cayman Islands Government Web site on the Internet, in full consultation and co-operation with its private sector partners. The private sector will link into the Government Web site thereby providing increased exposure of tourism-related facilities and activities available in these Islands.

The Ministry has decided to fully implement an Integrated Marketing Communication (IMC) programme in the Department of Tourism, with the objective of marketing the Cayman Islands and Cayman Airways.

The Tourism Management Policy will be reviewed during 1998 to provide policy direction into the next millennium.

FIRE SERVICES

The Cayman Islands Fire Service will continue to give priority to its human resource development. During 1998 some middle managers and supervisors will be attending advanced courses in fire-fighting and rescue at institutions in the United States and United Kingdom.

Two fire-fighting vehicles and one rescue unit have been ordered, and will arrive in the Islands within the next six months. One of the vehicles is for Little Cayman, the remaining two for Grand Cayman.

PORT AUTHORITY

The installation of permanent moorings for cruise ships in George Town will be completed in 1998.

To keep pace with the increasing volumes of cargo imported into the Cayman Islands, the Port Authority has purchased additional land adjacent to the Cargo Distribution Centre. The land will be developed for extra container storage. The layout of the warehouse and the surrounding container storage yard are in the process of being re-designed.

The docks in Grand Cayman and Cayman Brac will be repaired.

TOURISM ATTRACTIONS BOARD

The Tourism Attractions Board was brought into operation during 1997, specifically to manage Pedro St. James Castle, and the Botanic Park was added to its management responsibilities. The Botanic Park is now fully operational.

In May 1998, the Pedro St. James project will be officially opened. It will include the visitor centre and gift shop, a multi-media theatre, café and additional parking.

TRANSPORT

In 1997, responsibility for the Licensing Department was transferred from the Police to the Ministry of Tourism, Commerce and Transport, as a part of the reinvention process.

In 1998 a system of licensing of omnibus operators will be put in place. It will include the designation of specific routes, the creation and implementation of an identification system for buses and operators, as well as fare tables to be displayed in all buses. A bus depot will be located behind the George Town Library.

Improvements will be made to the general licensing section, including the implementation of a new computer system by the end of the year. This will lead to the decentralisation of the vehicle inspection and registration process to the districts. Pilot projects are planned for West Bay and Bodden Town.

The Ministry will introduce amending legislation to remove the requirement to annually inspect all vehicles. Under this amendment, cars and other private vehicles of less than three years or 36,000 miles, would be exempt from annual inspection. Commercial vehicles will continue to require annual inspections, and it is Government's intent to strengthen the inspection procedures for such vehicles.

COMMERCE

The Ministry has formed a Business Consultative Committee establishing another two-way channel of communication between the private sector and Government, with the objective of discussing issues and resolving problems that affect businesses in general and the Islands as a whole.

MINISTRY OF EDUCATION, AVIATION AND PLANNING

EDUCATION

While exam results continue to improve in all areas, continued efforts to ensure student excellence will be emphasised. Included in this initiative will be a strengthened training scheme for teachers and principals.

As pupil enrolment continues to grow, several new capital projects will be undertaken. A classroom block will be completed at Creek Primary School on Cayman Brac, and work will begin on the multipurpose hall at Spot Bay Primary School. On Grand Cayman, a new classroom block will be constructed at East End Primary School and an administration block will be constructed at Red Bay Primary School, as well as an extension to the existing administration block at George Hicks High School. A hall for John A. Cumber Primary School will also be started in 1998.

Construction of the new Lighthouse School will commence this year; the anticipated completion date is September 1999. The new facility will serve the needs of 125 special children from early infancy through early adulthood in a modern, fully equipped school designed specifically to meet their needs.

The Sunrise Centre will move to the existing Lighthouse School, when vacated.

Work will continue on identifying land for the future construction of two primary schools and a new secondary school. The education of our children is of major national importance. The support provided by the Government for their education should enable them to provide the skills, vision and leadership that the country will need in the twenty-first century.

This year, staff of the Community College will review all Associate Degree programmes to ensure that they are in line, both in quality and quantity, with similar programmes in colleges of excellence in the United States.

Special courses tailored for the needs of the private sector have been an important feature of the College's offerings since its inception. The College is now focusing on restructuring all such programmes to give equal emphasis to study on campus and work experience attachments.

AGRICULTURE AND INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT BOARD (AIDB)

During 1998, the AIDB will review their range of services, such as financing for small business projects. These include cottage-type industries such as handcrafts, dressmaking and the making of jams and jellies. In widening its scope of lending to include small business projects, the AIDB will be helping entrepreneurs in the low income bracket to access a source of funds which would otherwise be unavailable to them. The Caribbean Development Bank has been invited to conduct an appraisal of such a small business development programme in early 1998 with a view to providing the AIDB with a line of credit.

AVIATION

The Civil Aviation Authority's primary aim in 1998 is to further enhance the safety and efficiency of facilities and services provided to the travelling community. In 1998, the Authority will develop Strategic Airport Master Plans for Owen Roberts International Airport and Gerard Smith International Airport for the next five to ten years. In addition, they will start the development of an airport in Little Cayman, as well as review and amend the scheme of charges for airport and aircraft operations with implementation planned for the latter half of the year.

PLANNING

In 1998, with the aim of improving customer service, the Planning Department will initiate a number of projects. These will include a plan for the Central Planning Authority to assist it in determining the future directions of planning policies. The exercise will also focus on how the Authority and Department can better work together to improve the service it provides.

The Development Plan will be updated. Plans for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman will be developed.

CAYMAN AIRWAYS

The planned development of Cayman Airways has been held back by the lack of stand-by capacity resulting from disruptions to scheduling caused by either regular or unscheduled maintenance. In order to address the problem, Government approved a guarantee to enable another 737-200 aircraft to be acquired in 1998.

MINISTRY OF AGRICULTURE, ENVIRONMENT, COMMUNICATIONS AND WORKS

AGRICULTURE

In 1998, work will continue on new offices for the Department of Agriculture.

A new Plants Bill will be brought to the Legislative Assembly. Additionally, the Department will focus on efforts to introduce legislation to govern the importation, distribution and regulation of pesticides and other hazardous chemicals.

Other activities will include joint efforts with the Department of Environment to complete an Aquaculture Development Policy for the Cayman Islands; and to facilitate training in the upholding of the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species (CITES).

Having successfully stemmed the threat of introduction of serious exotic pests, including the Pink Mealy Bug, the Department will continue to enforce strict quarantine measures in 1998.

ENVIRONMENT

In 1998, the Department of Environment will implement a British Government-funded project to survey and develop management strategies for the protection of threatened nesting sea turtles on Little Cayman. Based on data derived from its monitoring programmes, the Department will also make recommendations for managing recreational impact on coral reefs.

The Department plans to continue working with the Ministry on finalising the designation of the Little Sound Ramsar site and on developing drafting instructions for comprehensive environmental legislation.

ENVIRONMENTAL HEALTH

In order to accommodate the growing demand for waste collection services, the Department of Environmental Health will take the following measures:

- ◆ upgrade its fleet of waste collection vehicles;
- ◆ evaluate the current routing system and redesign it for improved efficiency;

- ◆ establish a customer complaint service for recording, tracking and promptly resolving all customer complaints; and
- ◆ reorganise the billing system to improve accuracy.

The Department of Environmental Health recently completed a survey of capacity remaining at the George Town Landfill and is developing a plan for maximising capacity at that site.

The Department will continue to seek alternatives for future disposal technologies suitable to the Cayman Islands. In 1998, the Department will begin this process by requesting proposals for a biomedical waste facility. A new public drop-off at the landfill gate will provide 24-hour access to the community.

The Department will expand upon the existing waste oil collection, storage and recycling system. It will also expand the household hazardous waste collection programme, including pesticides. The Department plans to work with the private sector to manage and expand collection of recyclable materials. Target recyclables include aluminium, glass, yard waste, and construction and demolition debris. New markets for scrap metal, tyres and derelict vehicles will be identified.

Regulations will be drafted which will address: food safety, biomedical waste, solid waste, hazardous waste, drinking water standards, air quality standards and occupational health and safety.

COMMUNICATIONS

Public education will be a prime focus of the 911 Emergency Communications Centre in 1998. Presentations to businesses and schools will continue.

The first draft for a Telecommunications Law is currently being prepared.

CAYMAN TURTLE FARM

The Board of Cayman Turtle Farm (1983) Ltd. has given approval for the phased redevelopment of the farm. A master redevelopment plan and design drawings for the first phase of the project have been produced. This phase of the project will go to tender in March 1998.

POSTAL

A site has been acquired for the construction of a new post office at Bodden Town.

In 1998, the East End Post Office is scheduled to be upgraded and expanded, and a new post office is to be constructed at West End, Cayman Brac.

LANDS & SURVEY

Land Survey data has been accepted in a digital format for some time, and during the course of 1998, a private sector link will become available to Land Registry information.

MOSQUITO RESEARCH AND CONTROL UNIT (MRCU)

A new MRCU Operations Centre is being planned. One of the Department's two spray-planes will be upgraded to include sophisticated Global Positioning Satellite guidance equipment. This will allow both aircraft to conduct highly accurate operations, particularly the placement of slow-release granular larvicides.

PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT

Public Works Department will continue to provide project management, architectural, quantity surveying and construction supervision services to the various Government departments and authorities. The Department will continue to emphasise quality, hurricane resistant, low maintenance construction.

The roads capital programme for 1998 will include improving the southern section of the Harquail Bypass, the intersection of Crewe Road and North Sound Way, traffic signals at the junction of Smith Road and Thomas Russell Way, improvement to Smith Road east of the four-way intersection with Hospital Road and the first phase of the Crewe Road Bypass from Tropical Gardens to the schools.

The operation of the Harquail Bypass will continue to be monitored.

VEHICLES & EQUIPMENT SERVICES

The computerised fleet management and information system is scheduled to become operational by June 1998. This system will improve efficiency within all sections of the Department.

THE WATER AUTHORITY

The Water Authority will continue to expand its public water supply system through the eastern districts of Grand Cayman during 1998, in accordance with the Ten-Year Development Plan for Water and Sewerage which was adopted by the Authority in 1996.

The piped water system is expected to be completed through the Cottage area of Frank Sound by December 1998.

The Authority is currently designing an upgrade to the West Bay Beach sewage treatment facility which is expected to be on-line by mid-2000. This upgrade will provide additional treatment capacity for the West Bay Beach area, as well as the potential for incorporating new areas such as George Town into the public sewerage system.

The Water Authority has recently signed a contract with a local construction company for a new Administrative Office Building which will be completed in late October. The new facility will provide much-needed space and improved access to customers through extended cashier hours and ample parking.

MINISTRY OF HEALTH, SOCIAL WELFARE, DRUG ABUSE PREVENTION AND REHABILITATION

The Ministry anticipates the achievement of the following objectives in 1998:

HEALTH PRACTITIONERS' LAW

The draft has been approved by the Governor-in-Council and it will be presented to the Legislative Assembly for approval this year. The new law will address many needs which have developed since the enactment of the existing law in 1974.

MENTAL HEALTH LAW

A revised Mental Health Law will be presented to the Legislative Assembly in 1998.

STRATEGIC PLANNING

The Ministry will oversee the first annual update of the Strategic Plan for Health in June 1998. The Strategic Plan for Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation has been handed over, as envisaged under the Plan, to the National Drug Council which will co-ordinate its implementation.

HEALTH SERVICES

Construction of the new Cayman Islands Health Services Complex will be completed in the fourth quarter of the year. Commissioning of the new facilities will follow.

A Teleradiology Service will be introduced between Faith Hospital, Cayman Brac and the George Town Hospital, Grand Cayman.

The Health Services will establish an affiliation with the world-renowned Joslin Diabetic Center through the auspices of Baptist Hospital.

Mental Health Services will be enhanced with the recruitment of additional staff and the provision of specific in-patient facilities.

The cost of overseas medical referrals will be monitored closely. It is anticipated that there will be a reduction in the use of this service due to improvement in the quantity and quality of services that will be provided by the new Health Services Complex.

Dental Services will continue to be strengthened, with the recruitment of additional staff. Postgraduate professional training will be provided through a formal teaching link with the University of Bristol Dental School and Guy's Hospital, London.

Enhanced nutrition and dietetic services will ensure the provision of suitable diets to in-patients and increased community nutrition programmes, including schools.

An additional ambulance service will be based at the West Bay Nurses Health Centre. This will improve response time to medical emergencies in the district of West Bay and the Seven Mile Beach area.

The appointment of a full-time cardiologist and the establishment of a Cardiovascular Service will significantly improve cardiologic investigation at the George Town Hospital and reduce referrals overseas.

Faith Hospital, Cayman Brac will continue to offer improved health care with enhancements to the diagnostic and physiotherapy services. A resident nurse is being stationed in Little Cayman.

SOCIAL SERVICES

The Department will pursue the acquisition of a home for the care and protection of boys in the Cayman Islands.

Community-based programmes in Grand Cayman and Cayman Brac will be expanded to deal more effectively with the varied social problems.

Parent craft workshops will commence in some districts.

The Children's Law 1995 will be brought into operation in 1998 and greatly enhance the Department's ability to provide for the safety and well-being of children.

The house to be used as a Senior Citizens' Centre in Bodden Town will be renovated this year, and a survey will assess the need for day care services for the elderly throughout the Islands.

Approval will be sought to construct a Secure Unit and Remand Centre.

The Family Survey will be tabled in the Legislative Assembly.

A girls' residential facility at the Cayman Islands Marine Institute will be officially opened early this year.

New foster parents will be recruited and trained.

The Young Parents Programme will focus on teaching Information Technology skills to young unwed mothers.

A public relations programme will be initiated to increase the public's awareness of the services offered by the Department.

DRUG ABUSE PREVENTION AND REHABILITATION

The National Drug Council (NDC) will co-ordinate the implementation of the Strategic Plan for Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation, focusing on improving interaction between all Government and non-governmental agencies dealing with the issue of substance abuse.

The NDC will conduct further research on the nature and extent of the drug abuse problem in Cayman and will regularly inform the public of its findings.

It will also establish an information resource centre and will hold regular community-based educational workshops, services and conferences.

CAYMAN COUNSELLING CENTRE

The Cayman Counselling Centre will implement a programme for those convicted of driving while intoxicated.

The number of substance abuse programmes for adolescents, persons referred from the Courts and those incarcerated at Northward Prison will be increased.

The centre will publish an annual report, detailing the extent of the drug and alcohol problems seen at the various locations in the Cayman Islands and the work being carried out there to assist clients with those problems.

MINISTRY OF COMMUNITY AFFAIRS, SPORTS, WOMEN, YOUTH AND CULTURE

ART DEVELOPMENT

The recipient of the first Art Scholarship has completed the first term at New York University in the pursuit of a Master of Arts in Dance Education. A second Arts Scholarship will be awarded in 1998.

CAYMAN BRAC AND LITTLE CAYMAN

Government initiatives to revive and diversify the economy of Cayman Brac will continue in 1998. A sporting facility will be established and a coach will be put in place for the co-ordination and enhancement of sports on Cayman Brac.

In consultation with the Cayman Brac and Little Cayman Economic Development Steering Committee, Government will continue to examine new ways of improving the infrastructure with the objective of creating sustainable economic growth.

New and improved facilities for Public Works employees in Little Cayman will be provided, including new living accommodation, and commencement of the first phase of up-grading and relocating the workshop and storage facilities.

COMMUNITY AFFAIRS

In 1998, the Ministry will promote the importance of Christian values and a strong family structure by celebrating a week of activities in recognition of the family.

CULTURE

In its continued effort to preserve the cultural heritage of the Cayman Islands, the Ministry will seek an amendment to the Institute of Caymanian Heritage Law, 1991, to include the National Gallery and other cultural bodies, and develop a National Culture/Heritage Plan. Additionally, the Ministry will continue to liaise with the cultural bodies to ensure that the Caymanian heritage is maintained throughout the school system with the help of an Education Co-ordinator.

CAYMAN ISLANDS NATIONAL MUSEUM

The National Museum will embark on a five-year master plan. This will include the planning of a new Museum Support Facility for the Museum's reserve collections, research library and conservation laboratory, which are currently housed in rented space. Plans will also be developed for a purpose-built museum with interactive exhibition galleries focusing on Cayman's maritime heritage and natural history to eventually complete the support facility.

CAYMAN NATIONAL CULTURAL FOUNDATION

This year, the Cultural Foundation will assume responsibility for the National Children's Choir and the Youth Band.

In April, Cayfest will feature an expanded "Seaside" which will re-create many of the old-time Easter Monday regatta events, and a special Cayman Brac weekend, called Bracfest, covering two days of various festival activities.

To celebrate the award of an MBE to Miss Gladwyn "Lassie" Bush an exhibition of her work will be opened in June.

CAYMAN NATIONAL ARCHIVE

Plans have been drawn up for an extension to the Archive. It will include a reading room to accommodate school groups, and a records centre which will securely store all Government and vital records that must be kept outside Government departments.

Research and writing of the new history of the Cayman Islands by Dr. Michael Craton will also continue in 1998.

PUBLIC LIBRARY

Two new branch libraries in East End and North Side are expected to be opened by April 1998. Each library has a meeting room available for public use. It is planned that work will begin on the conversion of the Town Hall in Bodden Town to a District Library. The Public Library in George Town will be upgraded.

NATIONAL GALLERY

The development of the National Gallery is progressing well. A series of programmes begun in 1997 will continue, and in 1998 will include classes on traditional thatch palm weaving.

A number of exhibitions will take place in the National Gallery's newly-opened temporary premises in George Town.

Fund-raising for the main National Gallery building continues, with specific events planned for the coming months.

HUMAN RESOURCE DEVELOPMENT

Project Prepare, a programme intended to facilitate the re-integration of ex-prisoners back into society will continue its operation. Activities of Project Prepare include the enrolment of ex-offenders in educational programmes at the Community College, as well as cost-sharing partnership agreements between private employers and Government, whereby ex-prisoners are placed in jobs, receive training and are closely monitored for periods of up to one year.

NATIONAL PENSION LEGISLATION

The National Pensions Law, 1996, amending Bill and Regulations will be brought to the Legislative Assembly during this Meeting. The Law will come into effect on 1 June, 1998.

The office of the Superintendent of Pensions will be established as a Unit within the Human Resource Department. The Ministry, on behalf of the Cayman Islands Government, has employed a Superintendent of Pensions and an Administrative Officer who will take up duties in the Piccadilly Centre by the end of March 1998. The Pension Board is being appointed this month.

SPORTS

The Ministry will continue to work closely with the national sporting associations to ensure that the recreational needs of the country are met, and will also assist with the provision and funding of sports programmes through coaches and grants. Various associations, especially those hosting events, will be carefully monitored to ensure that Government is getting good value for money invested.

Work will continue on the Cayman Brac, Bodden Town, East End and Old Man Bay playing fields, the National Cricket Oval and the community parks. The Family Sports and Recreation Centre in Spotts is a long-term project which will be phased as money is allocated. It is expected to include a national headquarters for our youth.

In Cayman Brac, plans will be completed for a sports complex which will attempt to establish and centralise sporting and recreational facilities for the Sister Islands.

WOMEN

The Ministry will focus on completing the ground-work needed for the establishment of a Bureau of Women's Affairs. The development of a Ministerial Mission statement regarding gender, women, and development will act as the guiding principles for a subsequent action plan.

Cayman Islands Advisory Committee on Women

The Ministry aims to set up an Advisory Committee on women comprising representatives from various disciplines/agencies of relevance to the movement and the national programme. The role of the Committee will be to make recommendations to the Minister regarding programmes and the improvement of the well-being of women.

Women's Resource Centre

This year the Ministry intends to appoint a Co-ordinator for the Women's Resource Centre, who will be responsible for programming and publication as well as maintaining the Centre.

YOUTH

The Ministry of Youth will place emphasis on the development of a National Youth Policy. It will launch workshops and seminars with a view to assisting our youth in coping with our changing environment, and will address the issue of teenage pregnancy through counselling and re-education programmes.

CONCLUSION

Honourable Members, I should like to record my thanks and congratulations to the Members and officials who provided the material to assist me in the preparation of this speech.

Finally, as you embark on the first meeting of the new Session of the Legislative Assembly, I wish you God's blessing in your deliberations and debates. And I pray that Almighty God in His mercy and wisdom will continue to bless and guide the people of these Islands and all who serve them.

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 10.52 AM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed.

READING BY THE SPEAKER OF MESSAGES AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: I have apologies from the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development, and The First Elected Member for George Town who are overseas on official business. I also have apologies from the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

MOTION FOR THE DEFERRAL OF DEBATE ON THE THRONE SPEECH

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: "BE IT RESOLVED THAT this Honourable Legislative Assembly record its grateful thanks to His Excellency the Governor for the Address delivered at this Meeting;

"BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED THAT debate on the Address delivered by His Excellency the Governor be deferred until Thursday, 26 February 1998."

The Speaker: The question before the House is that the House do record its gratitude to His Excellency the Governor, and that the debate on the Throne Speech be deferred until Thursday, 26 February 1998.

If there is no debate, I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: BE IT RESOLVED THAT THIS HONOURABLE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY RECORD ITS GRATEFUL THANKS TO HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR FOR THE ADDRESS DELIVERED AT THIS MEETING;

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED THAT DEBATE ON THE ADDRESS DELIVERED BY HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR BE DEFERRED UNTIL THURSDAY, 26 FEBRUARY 1998.

The Speaker: I now call for a motion for the adjournment. The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until 10 o'clock Thursday morning, 26 February 1998.

The Speaker: The question is that this Honourable House do now adjourn until 10 o'clock Thursday morning, 26 February 1998.

If there is no debate I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House is accordingly adjourned until Thursday morning, 26 February 1998, at 10 o'clock.

AT 10.59 AM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10 AM, THURSDAY, 26TH FEBRUARY, 1998.

EDITED
THURSDAY
26 FEBRUARY 1998
10.04 AM

[Prayers by the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.]

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed.

READING BY THE SPEAKER OF MESSAGES AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: I have received apologies from the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development who will be arriving later this morning, and from the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport who is in Cayman Brac on official business, and from the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works who will also be absent today.

Item number 2 on the Order Paper today is Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. Question No. 1 is standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION 1

No. 1: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs what provisions are in place for the investigation of complaints against Police Officers.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: There is a Complaints and Discipline Department which is under the direct supervision of the Deputy Commissioner of Police. At present the Department consists of one Inspector and one Sergeant who conduct all investigations into complaints made against Police officers. Every complaint made is recorded and thoroughly investigated in exactly the same manner as the investigation of crime.

If, as the result of the investigation, it is apparent that an offence has been committed (as set out in the Police Law 1976 (1995 Revision), and the Police Regulations (1996 Revision)), the offending officer may be formally charged and disciplined or, for minor offences, reprimanded. In all cases, the person making a complaint will be fully informed of the result of the investigation by the Deputy Commissioner by means of a letter.

A full report on complaints and discipline matters is made within the Royal Cayman Islands Police Annual Report.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Member say what provision exists for appealing these investigative decisions if a complainant is dissatisfied with the investigation done by the officers?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: To my knowledge there has not been a case where the decision of one of these investigations has been appealed. I do not believe there is a provision for such an appeal.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Are we to understand that this facility for complaints is not limited to civilian complaints about the police, but that complaints about Police by Police are also handled this way?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: It is very rare that there is a complaint made by one Police officer against another, but if there were a complaint it would be investigated in the same way as a complaint from a member of the public.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries the next question is No. 2, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 2

No. 2: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs whether or not there are any facilities at the Central Police Station that Police officers may use as a lunchroom or recreational area.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: There are no facilities at the Central Police Station that Police officers may use as a lunchroom or recreational area except for a small office which is being used by officers as such. Most have to take meals in their offices.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Is the Honourable Member saying that there are no facilities at the Central Police Station which will allow Police officers to take a reasonable break between shifts to relax or freshen up?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: I understand that this room I mentioned (the 28' x 8' room) is a lunchroom of sorts. It has a refrigerator and a microwave in it. This apparently accommodates the need, bearing in mind that not all officers on a shift would take their breaks at the same time, and that some of the officers would be on patrol and would not necessarily come back into the office to take their breaks.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Member say if there have been requests from Police officers for the provision of such a facility where they may relax comfortably, or complaints by officers as to the inadequacy of this facility?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: No, there have been no requests or complaints that I am aware of. I should go on to say that there are also no such facilities in the Government Administration Building for civil servants, other than a very small room on one floor. I do not think there is anything in the Legislative Department. While this is no excuse, I just simply state that this situation is not peculiar to the Royal Cayman Islands Police.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: May I ask for an undertaking from the Honourable Member that, in the absence of these facilities for officers of the Royal Cayman Islands Police, some investigation be made as to the feasibility of improving these facilities? I am aware that officers sometimes have to resort to relaxing in their cars between shifts. I think it is entirely inadequate. I ask if the Honourable Member could undertake to see what can be done to improve the present facilities, as my information is that it is far from acceptable.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: I beg to differ with the Member. It is my understanding that the present facilities are sufficient. But if there is representation to the Commissioner of Police, the matter can be examined.

Mr. Craddock Ebanks, OBE, JP

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, before I take the next question, I would like to recognise the presence of Mr. Craddock Ebanks, OBE, JP, in the Chamber. He is a former long-serving Member of this Honourable House. I welcome him on behalf of all Honourable Members.

The next question is No. 3, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE MEMBERS/MINISTERS (Continuing)

QUESTION 3

No. 3: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning what the pupil/teacher ratio is at the Alternative Education Centre.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: There are thirty-three students enrolled at the Alternative Education Centre and five teachers. The average pupil/teacher ratio is therefore six pupils to one teacher.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister state whether or not these teachers carry a full teaching load, and whether or not the Head of the centre also has a full teaching load?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: They all have teaching responsibilities throughout the day and the administration is carried on by the Principal.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Are we then to understand that the Principal does not have a full teaching load?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: If the Honourable Member could define what a full teaching load is I would be prepared to answer.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I cannot believe that the Minister for Education does not understand what a full teaching load is. I am asking if the Principal is required to teach classes from 9.00 to 3.00, or whatever the hours of the school-day may be.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I am amazed that a qualified teacher asked the question as to whether the Principal of a school spends all of his time teaching. Obviously, he has to administer the school. He teaches some and administers the school some; but, obviously, the priority of a Principal has to be administering the school. If he teaches all day every hour from 9.00 until 3.00, he has no time to administer the school. The answer is: No, he does not teach all day, he teaches part of the day and he administers part of the day.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: There are instances where Principals teach and administer. I know, I did that for many years.

My next question is: Can the Honourable Minister state what qualifications these teachers have, and if any of them have the qualifications to deal with students with behavioural problems?

The Speaker: I do not really believe that comes out of the answer to the substantive question. If the Honourable Minister has that information, he may answer it. The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, that is totally outside of the question, as you quite rightly ruled. I do not have the information, Sir.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries the next question is No. 4, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

QUESTION 4

No. 4: Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture to state whether the plans to turn the West Bay Town Hall into a Library are still to be pursued.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: The plans to turn the West Bay Town Hall into a Library are still to be pursued.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks: Can the Honourable Minister say why it is being held up for so long?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: The West Bay Town Hall is the only hurricane shelter in the West Bay area. Additionally, it is used as a public meeting place and an indoor sporting facility. As soon as the new Dalmain Ebanks Civic Centre is completed the Ministry can continue with its plans to convert the Town Hall into a district Library.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: This question is slightly off the substantive question, but is indeed relevant. I wonder if the Honourable Minister can state if there are any plans for the expansion of the George Town Public Library?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: The answer is in the affirmative. There are plans for the improvement and the expansion of the George Town Library facility, and I shall be happy to discuss that in detail if the Member so desires.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I thank the Honourable Minister. Perhaps I can meet with her later to discuss the details.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, that concludes Question Time for this morning. Item number 3, Other Business, Private Members' Motions. I will entertain a motion for the suspension of Standing Order 14(3).

The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

OTHER BUSINESS

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 14 (3)

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I move the suspension of Standing Order 14(3) to enable the debate on the Throne Speech to begin.

The Speaker: The question is the suspension of Standing Order 14(3) to enable the debate on the Throne Speech to begin. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 14 (3) SUSPENDED TO ENABLE GOVERNMENT BUSINESS TO TAKE PRECEDENCE OVER OTHER BUSINESS.

The Speaker: Item number 4, Commencement of the Debate on the Throne Speech delivered by His Excellency the Governor on Friday, 20 February 1998.

The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

COMMENCEMENT OF THE DEBATE ON THE THRONE SPEECH DELIVERED BY HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR ON FRIDAY 20 FEBRUARY 1998

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speech from the Throne as delivered by His Excellency the Governor on the State Opening of the Legislative Assembly on Friday, 20 February 1998, contained one important point which I look forward to following the progress of. I will speak more of this shortly.

In his introduction, the Governor also made mention of the opening of the Dependent Territories Association Conference in London. He mentioned the Foreign Secretary's (Mr. Robin Cook) announced conception of the proposed partnership with the Dependent Territories. Quite interestingly, I have been reading the comments made by political heads of the other Dependent Territories. Conspicuous by its absence is the speech given by our own representative at that opening conference, the Leader of Government Business. I look forward to reading his comments when published, and I hope that he has submitted it for publication in the local news media.

Your Office, Mr. Speaker, has made available to Members of the Legislative Assembly one copy of the proceedings of that conference. I am sure that I express appreciation on behalf of all other Honourable Members to you and also to the Clerk and her staff for making that available to us. As you will recall, Mr. Speaker, I spent some time a short while ago reading it. I would have loved to have perused it at greater length but, because there was only one copy, use was restricted to the precincts of the Parliament.

A new relationship, a new direction in our relations, is bound to come out of this conference. Mr. Robin Cook stressed several things which I think bear significant importance to us here in the Cayman Islands. One of the things he went to great lengths to amplify was this whole business of membership in the international community and the obligation such membership bears. The Honourable Robin Cook places great emphasis on the Universal Declaration of Human Rights. Indeed, in a speech by the Honourable Foreign Secretary given in the Lorcarno Suite of the Foreign and Commonwealth Office, on Thursday, 17 July 1997, he remarked: "If every country is a member of an international community, then it is reasonable to require every government to abide by the rules of membership. They are set out [that is, these rules] in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights. To recite all thirty principles would absorb the time set aside for this speech, but they can be summarised in six core human rights."

He went on to elaborate those six rights. I have chosen to focus on one because this one will have a special significance to something I am going to develop in my contribution. That one is: "Everyone has the right to liberty and freedom from arrest without due process of law."

The Hansards of this House will bear out that ever since my arrival here I have been a staunch advocate of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights. I think it is, perhaps, one of the most important pieces of legislation a country can have. I am reminded that this December the United Nations will be celebrating the fiftieth anniversary of the Declaration of Human Rights. Yet, we in the Cayman Islands have no defined document specific to the Cayman Islands which we can call our Human Rights Document.

Of course, there are those who will argue (as they have argued previously) that we are covered under the European Convention and under the United Kingdom. But if I am to understand the position of Honourable Foreign Secretary, he wants each entity to have a specific written declaration, and he wants to be satisfied that that declaration complies with what is required of the international community.

We have procrastinated in this regard long enough. The Hansards of this House will bear out who the procrastinators are. Suffice it to say that I find it difficult to accept that persons who supported the Motion when we were all Backbenchers together now find it convenient to bury it. Circumstances being what they are, I hope that we in the Cayman Islands will also be able to join, by December of this year, in those celebrations by having a document which we can call our Human Rights Document.

The Governor made perhaps the most telling point in his presentation when he said, and I quote, “Today, I am pleased to announce the start of ‘Vision 2008,’ a national strategic planning exercise which will establish national goals and priorities for these islands for the next ten years. It is the Government’s intention to involve the entire community in identifying and discussing those key issues which must be addressed if we, as a country, are to maintain the quality of life, economic growth, social and cultural values and environmental protection which has brought the Cayman Islands to prominence on the world stage.”

I could not agree with the gentleman more. I have to say that it is a remarkable coincidence that there are those of us who had been advocating exactly such a vision recently. Indeed, Mr. Speaker, I mentioned many times the vision, the new visionaries, and we called it “Vision 2000 and Beyond,” but had modified it to “Vision 2020” because 20/20 is perfect vision, and also the year 2020 is a good time to set as a planning cut-off point. So let me say that there is enthusiasm and excitement among those of us who see ourselves as progressive, because it was exactly such a step that we—particularly in this corner here—were thinking about.

I have been an advocate of this type of planning for years. Indeed, I was an advocate of this type of development planning when it was unfashionable, because people thought that only the socialist countries indulged in this kind of forward planning. When I suggested it many years ago, I was labelled. I am happy to know that in the Cayman Islands we have now reached the maturity and the level of development where we realise that our continued growth and prosperity can only depend upon such planning, reassessment, refinement, and on-going and thorough examination.

It does not mean, once we have crafted a plan, that the plan is written in stone. It will be subject to any adjustment or modification which proves reasonable. I am concerned because the responsibility for the development of this plan has been thrust upon the least visionary of all the Members of this Legislative Assembly. Perhaps if the assignment had been given to Shelburn or Bud-Bud we would get better results, because people who make a practice out of going around putting down people who they call “theorists,” and putting people who can read and articulate ideas down as “defunct” do not have the qualities to lead in a new direction.

Mr. Speaker, if one has no respect for ideas, how can one implicate? How can one spawn? How can one generate? If one lacks the ability to appreciate progressive moves put forward by other people then tell me how, in the creation of crabs, one can be expected to come up with new directions? There is a lot more that I could say, Mr. Speaker, but I will resist the temptation. I only want to state that another difficulty I see is that that Ministry and the persons named to head this new exercise are already sufficiently challenged with the Strategic Plan in Education which needs continuous energy, assessment and plotting. Education is perhaps the single greatest challenge we have in this country to maintaining our current standard in all facets of our lives.

I would have been happier to have seen this responsibility thrust upon someone not long returned from a university—someone who is energetic and oriented in this direction, who could be challenged and expected to set this new section up. These are the kinds of challenges we should thrust upon our returning graduates. This is what we have invested time and money in them for—for them to produce. I know that there are those persons in the Caymanian community now who would do great justice to such a challenge, so I have to record my disappointment that some brilliant and deserving young Caymanian was not given this chance, this responsibility to take off and run with this baton.

Having said that, I (although I have my own ideas which I will continue to develop among my colleagues) will not be the fly in the ointment. As I have remarked before, this country is greater than the entity known as Roy Bodden. I would not be so selfish as to stand in the way of a development such as this. I will only be too willing, if my assistance is needed, to give that assistance most graciously. I look forward to the development of ‘Vision 2008.’

I would suggest as a starting point in the development of this Vision that we examine the Singaporean model. For many years, as a matter of fact from the grant of its independence, Singapore (which is really a City/State, under the Prime Minister Lee Kwan Yu) took off on a unique development path that has since become the envy of all countries, including countries much greater in physical size and population. While I have not visited there myself, I have read extensively and spoken to many Singaporeans who take pride in their country and its development.

I am aware of at least one Member of this Honourable Legislative Assembly who visited Singapore, because that Member spoke to me about his favourable impression of its development. I know that he too touts it as a good model. But these kinds of ideas can only come from theorists, so unless the orientation has changed, we might not get very far. I want to leave that behind, but will footnote it by saying that I am sincere in my wish for ‘Vision 2008’ to be a success. I want to speak now on a very important matter, that is, the second topic the Governor spoke on, the Judiciary.

Democracy in any country is highly dependent upon the effectiveness of the Judiciary. We have had an exemplary Judiciary. Many people in our country hold that Department in high regard and have complete faith in it. I share that high regard and faith, but I am also aware that there is an increasing burden being placed upon the Judiciary. That burden comes from many directions: First, we to have an ever-increasing caseload and the physical facilities are bursting at the seams; and secondly, there seems to be an increasing necessity to have to resort to the appeals process for justice.

About four years ago a very prominent defence lawyer in this country, a gentleman who holds the qualification of Queen's Counsel, told me that he was very concerned that the price of justice in the Cayman Islands was becoming very expensive and may be out of the reach of many people because they cannot afford to appeal certain decisions to a higher court. I, too, am concerned about that because I believe it is more real than perceived. Certainly, if one reads the newspapers frequently, one is led to that conclusion.

There is a celebrated case which I am sure all members of the Caymanian community are now familiar with. This, I might add, is not the fault of the Judiciary, although the burden for the decision fell heavily upon the Judiciary. I am speaking about the case of John Rea. As I stand here this morning, I am angry at what I read. It can only be described as a trespass of one's natural rights, and a serious challenge to democracy and civil society.

I wish that this were the United States, and it was possible to bring a class action suit against these trespassers and perpetrators, so they would have to pay the costs awarded out of their own pockets. Let me say that as a Representative of the people, I will not vote for public funds to be dispensed just to satisfy someone's personal prejudice. I am unhappy that we have such officers employed by the public of this country.

I do not often get like this, but I consider it, Sir, a serious challenge to democracy when the kind of judgment I read about here is handed down by the Law Lords. Is this South Africa under apartheid? Do we have some Bureau of State Security in this country? Or is this Argentina and Uruguay in the days of the Dirty War, when people came in and recklessly ran roughshod, dragging people away, trumping up charges on them and ruining their careers? What I fear is that it seems that the system protects them—they are above the Law, above answering to the Parliament. I do not know who their superiors are, if they have any.

I want to read something from a book entitled Democracy and Civil Society, a short quote, Sir. It reads, “state decisionmakers who act contrary to the trust granted them are deemed to have declared war against their. . . property-owning subjects.” How relevant in this case.

I want to read another short quotation from another book entitled The State. It reads: “sanction[s], to be efficient, must be suited to the nature of the offence and the institution. For the prosperity of an organization it is probably equally bad to over. . . punish” as it is to under punish.

Finally, Max Weber, one of the foremost sociologists, defined the state as “the organization which ‘successfully claims the monopoly of the legitimate use of. . . force.’ ” This author goes on to say that the vulnerable aspect of that monopoly is to maintain that the monopoly is not abused. Mr. Speaker, I cannot say much more than that I am one person, one Legislator, one Representative of the people, who is chagrined that public monies will have to go to pay someone. It is not my business to judge and say who is or is not guilty, but reading as I have read, clearly it was a serious travesty of justice. Of course, I am compulsorily bound to mention that the perpetrator was be-meddled some short while ago. I just wish this was the kind of jurisdiction where he could be stripped because that is what he would deserve. Thank you, Sir.

I want to now turn to the Portfolio of Internal and External Affairs. I am surprised that there were some omissions when it came to the mention of the Royal Cayman Islands Police and the Prison Department. I am surprised because recently the news mentioned what I would call a scandal which exists among some elements of the Police. This is serious.

When the State entrusts—because that is what an arrest is, an entrustment of the social control agencies to take into custody and protect from themselves, from other elements and, most importantly, to protect and preserve from the element entrusted to keep them—and when this trust is betrayed, that is serious. There was no mention of that. I know it is a delicate matter, but we cannot brush these things under the carpet. It is an internal sore and we have to deal with it because people out in the streets are talking about it. They are asking their Representatives what they think about it. They are expecting to hear it raised. It is not going to go away.

I am also concerned because we have to be very careful that we are not giving the impression that we are practising double standards. I vividly recall the Leader of Government Business accusing me and the former Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman of bashing these departments when we were said that there was something wrong. From the time I first came here in 1988 I have been raising questions. I have brought things to this Honourable House. I vividly recall raising certain matters during my tenure as Chairman of the Public Accounts Committee.

I see some serious issues being raised in the 1996 Auditor General's Report. I read in the Caymanian Compass of January 28, 1998, “Nine prison staff implicated.” There is nothing about that in the Throne Speech. I would expect that there should be, however delicately and diplomatically couched, because we are talking about the state of the nation. If the social control agencies entrusted to keep certain people for the State are corrupt. . . if the ‘keepers’ are corrupt, how can we expect the ‘kept’ to be reformed?

[Some Members: Hear, hear!]

Mr. Roy Bodden: It is a situation which will not go away. I do not know how we are going to purge ourselves, but we need a purging.

Let me say this: If something is not done, I am going to scream that we have double standards, because when we had Caymanians up there and something happened, they lost their jobs. Born Caymanians lost their jobs, lost their reputation, some of them lost their standard of living. These people are still suffering. Now you are telling me that we have people, with whom we do not have these kinds of ties, and for whom we should not have these kinds of loyalties, in these positions and they are expected to remain with impunity? It is not the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town bashing them this time—it is the Auditor General speaking the truth, it is the Caymanian Compass reporting it (as is its responsibility) to the public.

The Public Accounts Committee made some very fair recommendations. There is no official comment. The investigation must be concluded. Are we saying that these people are untouchable? Are we saying that there is, indeed, a double standard—one for Caymanians and one for the rest?

There is another element in the existence of Northward Prison that I wish to touch upon now—happily, less contentious. I notice that we are about to expand. It seems to me that we are continuously expanding, and will have to continue to expand unless we decide that we are going to review our philosophy about certain things. I have long been an advocate of an enlightened approach to this kind of problem, and have said so in these hallowed Chambers before.

I am saying the time has come for us to look at simple possession of drugs in a different light. I do not know whether or not we are going to decriminalise it. The semantics of it do not interest me. I am saying that we must treat persons whom we catch with drugs for personal use different from those whom we catch trafficking, possessing, dealing and laundering drug money. By decriminalise, I do not mean to legalise; I am saying that decriminalise means we should treat them as sick people needing help, rather than as common criminals. When we place them in prison the emphasis should be placed on reform and rehabilitation, rather than as hardcore criminals. I do not care what we call it, in some jurisdictions they call it decriminalisation.

I want to emphasise that I am not advocating decriminalising any use of drugs. What I am advocating is treating people who use drugs—personal possession, one little stick of ganja, one little rock—different from the dealers, the big boys, the traffickers and all of that. Otherwise, we are going to have a society where all of our young people are going to have criminal records and we are not going to get enough of our own people to join the Fire Service, the Civil Service, the Police Service, and all these things. We have to put more emphasis on reform and rehabilitation when they are in Northward Prison.

When we continue to build prisons, who are we punishing, the prisoners or ourselves? When we continue to take this approach. . . and I want to say that I am not the author of this approach. People far more learned and far more experienced, people who have reached higher levels of political and administrative powers than I. . . I want to read a quotation from Joseph A. Califano, Jr., who is now the president of the National Center on Addiction and Substance Abuse at Columbia University, and who you, Mr. Speaker, will recognise was the former secretary for Health Education and Welfare in the United States Cabinet from 1977 to 1979. He said: “For two decades we [meaning the United States] have been filling prisons with drug addicts and alcohol abusers, and without treatment or training returning them to society to resume crime spawned by their substance abuse. This [he claims] is an absurd policy.” I agree!

I know we have started to make some efforts, but there is a weakness, Mr. Speaker. The rehabilitation and reform efforts offered at the Prison need to be strengthened. It is through no fault of the Ministries. We need to strengthen it. We need to look at a system where these people, once they are let out of prison, can be a little more formally managed.

One thing that concerns me about the ineffectiveness of this programme in dealing with these people at Northward Prison is that some years ago they had a very good system offering some educational courses. I think they were even doing the GED, which is the equivalent of the American High School Certificate. It is my understanding that these facilities have shrunk; that there is a lack of interest by the administration, and that some of the classroom space has been converted into other things at the Prison. I do not know whether any of them have been converted to dormitories or prisoner space, but they are vanishing, and I understand it to be continuous encroachment. Even with the help provided by the Ministry and the counsellors available from the Ministry there is sometimes difficulty finding space. The interest shown by prisoners in taking certain courses is curtailed by the fact that the administration does not seem to place a high enough emphasis or priority on this reform effort.

Each year our Government spends large sums on the Prison and hires more guards. We seem to think that if all the King's horses and all the King's men couldn't put Humpty Dumpty together again, we must need more prison officers. It is not working!

It is my understanding that Government now has to look at additional land for the expansion of the Prison. I say that the time has also come for us to examine the number of foreign inmates we have in our prison and to decide what we are going to do about them. We spend one million dollars a year keeping these people, which is one million dollars that we could be spending on educating our young Caymanians, on scholarships, or by providing facilities in the communities for them.

I know it involves more than meets the eye because we have to enter into bilateral agreements, and we are not a country that determines its own affairs. But I am saying it is time for us to explore these avenues. If you ask the man on the street what he thinks, he will say, ‘Bundle them up and send them home! Deport them! Make it so they can't come back! Why should I have to pay to keep them in our prison?’ Even if we start with a system in which they serve a part of their sentence, we could investigate the feasibility of that—maybe a third, if it is a long sentence—and then deport them for the rest of the time. That is money we could save and spend on other areas of our country's development, and it is space that could be utilised for our own Caymanian prisoners if needed.

Let us face facts: Prison in Cayman is really not prison when compared to prisons in Jamaica, the United States, Canada and the Central American countries. Anyone would gladly spend ten years here, because it is nothing but a glorified holiday. I have to say that even winter prisoners take advantage of that. One day I saw a young man, plump, not a callous on his hands, skin so clean like he had never been in the sun. I asked the young man, "Where have you been? I haven't seen you for a while." He said, "Roy, didn't you know I was in Miami for six months?" And he fooled me! But when he walked off, someone else said to me, "Roy, he just came from Northward." The way the young man looked he could have come from Miami. And believe you me, he thought he was in Miami, too! That is the interesting thing about it.

I know we have certain limitations, but it is an area we have to constantly and continuously review.

The Speaker: If you are going on to another point, would this be a convenient time to take the morning break?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Yes, Sir.

The Speaker: We shall suspend for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.13 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 11.48 AM

The Speaker: Proceedings are resumed. The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town continuing.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I want to now make some comments regarding the section under the Immigration Department.

In the Speech from the Throne, His Excellency the Governor remarked that "the Immigration Department will continue to give priority to customer service and technological improvements, including the possibility of introducing electronic processing of low-risk passengers."

That is well and good, and I am sure these improvements will be greatly appreciated. However, I would like to suggest that the problem with Immigration is a political problem, and is entwined in this whole Vision we have expressed the ambition to explore and develop. We have to get over this hurdle. We have to be sincere with ourselves, and we have to be truthful. We have, in this country—this country, whose development has been predicated upon immigration from its very inception. . . because it is my understanding that there were no, what the anthropologists call, indigenous peoples here. If persons, like myself and other Honourable

Members of this Parliament, whom I describe as established Caymanians, were to trace our ancestry we would find that all of us to some extent are immigrants in the sense that we came here from someplace else—albeit many of us take pride in saying we have been here for six or seven generations.

I was reminded the other day as I was at a church in Bodden Town, that my grandfather on my father's side was born in the year 1882. I remember him telling me that he could remember his grandfather. That is not to say that those of us who think this way are advocating giving away the country, but we have to be pragmatic! We cannot expect people who spend thirty and forty years of their lives here without any security of tenure to use their economic resources diligently, plowing them into the development of this country. That would be most ill-advised!

I am saying that the success of any plan, whether it be 'Vision 2008' or 'Vision 2020' (as those of us in this corner were talking about), needs to face a certain political truth regarding the people in this country who are not tenured and who have been here for a long time. I am saying to the Government that that should be one of the first priorities of its plan. I am reminded of the Motion where the Government undertook to do something about these persons: Yet, to this day, it has done nothing. I hope we can look forward to Government tackling this problem, because upon this issue hinges the successful development of our country into the twenty-first century.

I am reminded that the greatest country in the world, the country to which all other countries aspire to be like, the United States, is proud to boast that it was developed by immigrants! The Statue of Liberty—what do they talk about? The inscription, "Give me your tired, your poor, Your huddled masses yearning. . ." for freedom and opportunity. We do not have to open our borders. We do not have to be like Jean Raspail writes in his book, The Camp of the Saints, but we have to be serious, we have to be honest, and we have to be reasonable. There are good people, deserving people here. I have them in my constituency—stalwart, conscientious, hardworking—dangling on a thread. I think, quite frankly, the country can absorb them. They are already here, they are already working. I think, economically, we stand to gain. If we make these people secure, they will then free up their assets! They will re-invest, they will buy more property, they will open businesses. And you know what? Our economy will have another kick, another boost. This is the best money—it is internal, it is money already in the Cayman Islands! We just have to give them the security of tenure to develop the confidence to free it up.

Immigration is a very important catalyst in our future development, and how we handle it is going to determine the level of success in our forward planning. I sometimes wonder how the Immigration Department copes. I wonder how those officers are physically able to cope. I am sure they have to be like Solomon in some of the decisions they have to make. They have to exercise the wisdom of Solomon, and their patience cannot be far off that of Job. I know, as a Representative I am inundated! We are bombarded!

Another reason we must define this problem more clearly is that it puts us Honourable Members of the Legislative Assembly and the Representatives of the people—it pits us sometimes if we are not sensible. . . . We have to face-off squarely against the administration, against the Immigration Department, against the Civil Service. There is no room for any greying of the area. It must be black and white. If the political directorate were more fair with itself, we would not be faced with this predicament as we oftentimes are. People cannot understand that I, as a Member of Parliament, cannot call up the Immigration Department and get them Caymanian status. I, as a Member of Parliament, cannot call the Immigration Department and get them permanent residency with the right to work. Yet, some of them say it is a double standard, because some people who are either wealthy, or who are favoured by whatever—some of them suggest it depends upon skin colour—or who know the right people, get it.

I have deserving people in my constituency. There was one gentleman who literally cried. I had to hold his hand and pray with him, because he tried three times, and all three times he was turned down. I said, “Sir, I don’t know what else to do with you.” The man has been here, he has a nice house, goes to work every day, Monday to Friday, conscientious, no problem with the law. The gentleman cried! He said, “Roy!”

We cannot solve that problem, but we want to plan for the year 2008? It will be an exercise out of Alice in Wonderland if we do not. Who are we planning for? Can we afford to leave out these kinds of people?

Here is another reality which has to be faced. If we are saying that we are going to leave these people out, if we are going to cut them off, that impinges on the kind of lifestyle the rest of us have also! The whole economic web is very integral, woven together, very delicate! They are consumers in this society. They pay import duties also.

The challenge is to integrate these people comfortably into our society. We can give them what they want without giving away our birthright. In my corner, we are serious, we are conscientious and honest, and we are prepared to put that forward. We will be watching with interest to see if this is done, and will advocate that it be done! We can reassure our people that we are not giving away the store when we do this. We are not giving away the store! Established Caymanians, as I describe them, will be protected.

I am reminded that I have always advocated a system. . . . I like the Latin phrase for it, primus inter pares, first among equals. I have always suggested that indigenous Caymanians, like ourselves, must be primus inter pares. We must be first among the equals. There is room for us to accept these people and to protect established Caymanians as well.

In the teaching profession—I know this, and I have sympathy for these people—we have people here who have been labouring conscientiously for over twenty years and do not have any security of tenure! Let me tell you something, Mr. Speaker. If I were the Minister of Education, that would be on my conscience! Where else are these people going to go, after they have worked themselves out here? Which country. . . not even the country of their birth is going to want them!

I am reminded of the gentleman who told me he had applied to emigrate to Canada, and the Immigration Officer asked him, “Why should I accept you, Sir, at fifty years of age, when I have applicants from Hong Kong, who are twenty? Do you know how many years of work I am going to get out of them? I can’t give you any priority or preference over them! In ten years’ time, you will be drawing social security, and we will not have realised any investment out of you.” I am saying that these people will face the same situation if they spend all of their lives teaching in a Caymanian classroom. Not even their own country would want them back, particularly as they do not have any claim to a pension by virtue of the fact that they are non-Caymanian and not on the Permanent and Pensionable Establishment.

I wonder if there is any element who wants it to remain that way so they can have some advantage, some stranglehold. We can pay all the lip service we want to equality and fairness, but neither democracy, nor equality, nor fairness is served in this regard by such behaviour. Neither is natural justice! I want to be remembered as an advocate of fair play and natural justice, because at one stage in my life I was an immigrant. I emigrated to another country, so I know what the two sides of the coin are. I know how I would feel if I had to spend the best years of my life working in a country in which I was just hanging by a thread, hoping I did not run afoul of any political gods or any political wind which blew strong enough to break my cord.

I appeal to the better judgment and conscience of those people involved in this plan and say please take this into consideration. It must be dealt with sooner rather than later.

I want to move on. I do not propose to be long-winded. There are a couple of other matters I wish to make mention of, and I want to turn now to the Economics and Statistics Office to say one or two things about the Medium Term Financial Strategy. This is not contemptuous, by any means, but I am reminded as I read, “The office intends to produce a Medium-Term Financial Strategy, [page 6, this is, of the Speech from the Throne] “and Public Sector Investment Programme 1998-2000; prepare quarterly and annual debt reports; and assess the contribution of the shipping sector to the Cayman Islands economy.”

When we mention Medium Term Financial Strategy I am reminded of the old African proverb, ‘So loud the thunder, yet so little the rain.’ We have been promised this Plan. It was supposed to come at the last sitting. It was supposed to come the sitting before last. Is it a political problem? Is it something the political directorate is uncomfortable with? I have a sneaking suspicion it is. But I say this: I hope it is realised that the Plan must now come, because without this Plan there can be no vision.

I look forward to reading the Medium Term Financial Strategy. I look forward to the laying of that Strategy on the Table. It will give us a jump-off point. It will give us a starting point from which to launch out into the new millennium. We must have it. I implore those who are holding it up to remove the obstacles and let us get on with the business.

I am reminded that in my time here I have often been accused of opposing for the sake of opposition, being called 'unconstructive,' 'defunct,' all sorts of things. But I have never been deliberately unreasonable. I have never in my time here been deliberately unreasonable! I am glad I come from a strain that is proud to stand up for things which are unpopular, or to say that I oppose when I think I have grounds for opposition. But I never oppose for the sake of opposition. I am asking now, how can we move forward? I am not stopping this plan now! It is not me! Why is there no plan?

I do not know why, but I believe my colleague, the First Elected Member for George Town knows. I encourage him to say why when it is his turn to speak. If we fail to plan a plan, how can we plan a vision? Which reminds me, Mr. Speaker, that one time they called me a dreamer too. The Leader of Government Business called me a dreamer. It is not a sin to dream! But it is a sin not to have a dream, because if you do not have a dream, you cannot aspire to anything. I was encouraged, and I am proud to be a dreamer. I believe I have acquitted myself well. I have not achieved all my dreams—it took me fifty years to get to this point, and maybe God will bless me with another fifty! I might make it.

I want to talk a little about the Cayman Islands Stock Exchange. I see that the Exchange plans new products in 1998. We must not have a Stock Exchange without some mechanism to regulate insider trading. It is a given. It follows as the day the night. If we continue to operate without that mechanism, we are going to get into trouble, sooner rather than later. I hope that among these new developments I will see brought to this Parliament some legislation which regulates and controls insider trading, particularly as I read, "The Exchange will be seeking to attract international broker members and gain selected recognition from overseas regulators to enable it to realise its full potential in the global marketplace."

I want to footnote my comment by saying that I am not a legal mind. I never studied that kind of stuff, I never had an interest in it. But I pride myself on being wide read, and a peculiar kind of tourist. When I visit, I do not usually go to theme parks, although I have to do that sometimes now as I have young children in my family. I like to learn about what is going on in the country, what makes the country tick. So I find some time to read the newspapers, some time to spend in libraries, and all that. God has given me great common sense. The things I do not know, I try to research to a level where I can intelligently comment. I do not know of many stock exchanges set up without this kind of. . . in the United States, they would not be allowed to exist! We read that every day. Every day! The biggest cases: Insider trading. Who was it? Michael Milliken? Junk bond king. We need it, otherwise we are going to be embarrassed, to say the least.

The Monetary Authority: The Speech from the Throne says it has been increased from a staff of 26 to over 40. "The Authority is positioned to ensure that the regulatory regime in Cayman continues to meet the standards of supervision which are necessary to a mature international financial centre." There is a fundamental improvement which needs to be made. The Monetary Authority needs to be autonomous. The Monetary Authority needs to operate independently of the Executive Council. The Monetary Authority needs to be developed so that its decisions are professional, technical, and not, in any way, seen to be influenced by any political body—particularly as it could be reasonably argued that there may be conflicts of interest.

We need to develop this in that way. Some people need to extricate themselves from situations in which there could justifiably be accusations of conflict of interest. I do not know any other way to put that, without being [part of tape missing] will not be. I am talking about transparency, a very fundamental, important concept. I am reminded of the article appearing in the January 12, 1998 issue of the Caymanian Compass: "Bank Supervision—Can It Prevent Bank Failure?" Then there is a complementary editorial entitled, "Banking Supervision." Recently, the Caymanian Compass has been my primary textbook, because I like its interest in current affairs. This article, and the editorial, are very well written and give us some food for thought, particularly in light of the situation that has just occurred. So the question.

It seems to me that the Monetary Authority should also develop among its staff a team of what is called 'forensic accountants,' people who specialise. . . and I was researching this, and I gather that it is a relatively new field, so much so that I do not even know if there are any special qualifications, although the persons who practise are usually qualified accountants. They develop an interest and build their vitae through experience and practical work—persons who ferret out frauds and misdemeanours. In our jurisdiction, where we set ourselves up to be one of the leading financial centres, we should seek to have a team of persons available in the event it becomes necessary to carry out this kind of investigation and research. If Honourable Members have not read the Editorial or the article from the Caymanian Compass on the date I quoted, I would encourage them to do so.

I believe the Authority has its place, and I have great faith and confidence in it, so I do not want to leave the impression that my comments are indicative of cynicism or disrespect. I have reached a point in my political career, and in my life, where I am not frivolous in my comments about many things because I really do not have anything to prove. I do not set out to prove anything. I would only like to continue my reputation as an uncompromising critic, and at the same time be constructive in my criticism.

I do not pretend to have any expertise. My basis is what Caymanians call 'simple common sense,' bolstered by exposure and wide reading. I have to say that I am happy that I was able to benefit from the educational opportunities to which I was exposed, because I would be far less literate if I had not opted for the track I did. Some people specialise in vocations which are much more financially attractive. I derive my satisfaction from perusing, researching, and reading, because I feel good when I can hold my own on a wide number of subjects, and can speak in an informed manner about many current affairs. I say that because I look forward to the continued development of the Monetary Authority, and the strengthening of this Authority by its eventual autonomy and independence which will enhance its reputation for transparency, and remove any possibility of insinuation about conflicts of interest in the relationship between the Authority and the Executive Council.

I want to comment now on Transport, as was mentioned on page 9 of the Speech from the Throne. I think this business of transportation and vehicles in this country, and by inference, our road system, is one of those challenges that the planners are going to have to spend a considerable amount of time upon. I am encouraged by the fact that the Speech says, and I quote: "In 1998 a system of licensing of omni bus operators will be put in place. It will include the designation of specific routes, the creation and implementation of an identification system for buses and operators as well as fare tables to be displayed in all buses. A bus depot will be located behind the George Town Library."

Significantly too, the comment reads: "Improvements will be made to the general Licensing Section, including the implementation of a new computer system by the end of the year. This will lead to the decentralization of the vehicle inspection and registration process to the Districts. Pilot projects are planned for West Bay and Bodden Town."

First, I wish to comment on the system of licensing of omnibus operators. I regard this proposal as a step in the right direction. This has to be seen as a positive step. I wish to remark that I have been an advocate of such a system now for many years. I suggested some years ago to some persons in the transportation business that they should form a co-op, and then go to the Government and seek a franchise to develop a certain route, or routes. To the best of my knowledge, the late Mr. Murray Mitten was working with a group of transport operators exactly in that direction. The reason I encourage that is because I think it is one alternative to developing a dependable, sensible and financially attractive system of public transportation.

I recognise that Government has a tremendous challenge, and sometimes it is not politically advantageous for the Government to have to regulate and set up authorities to deal with the day-to-day affairs of these organisations. I respect that on many occasions politicians, particularly Ministers of Government, have run afoul of the wrath of certain people, and in an election year people are quick to threaten you with withdrawal of their support. Believe you me, if you think that taxi drivers and bus operators are not influential and powerful, you should. Wait! I left out a very important word—politicised! If you believe they are not, try riding those buses! I did it one time for a simple experience, and you better believe that every one of those drivers is an armchair politician, if not an armchair Minister!

I wish to see a system where Ministers of Government would not have to put themselves in a direct firing line. That is why I advocated that these people form their co-op, regulate themselves, and take their papers to the Government and say, 'Mr. Minister of Transport, we have thirty people in our co-op. We have this number of vehicles. We are applying for a franchise to develop this route.' That would put the Government in a position to say, 'Here are the terms under which we are prepared to entertain your application. We want you to screen, regulate yourselves, set your rates. We do not wish to be concerned with the mundane, everyday happenings of your business. We only want to see you when your Trade and Business Licence is up for renewal, or when your franchise is up for renewal, and we reserve the right to monitor and to withdraw the franchise if it is not operated to our satisfaction, or if you fail to accommodate the riding public, or if your department and conduct are not up to a reasonable standard.'

You could franchise the West Bay route to one group, one co-op; you could franchise the Bodden Town, the East End and North Side routes to another co-op. Then we would have an almost ideal situation where, instead of them applying for individual taxi licenses as is done now—and all kinds of insinuations and aspersions are being cast—they would have to come through the co-op. Once the co-op says they are a member, it would be a mere formality for the Government to grant the licence for the importation of the bus. The co-op would regulate their numbers.

I explained to them that it could be established so that at the end of the month, each man could pocket his earnings. All they would have to do is pay a certain amount, whether that was $200, or $300, a year to be a member of the co-op; and have their sticker or badge. But the day-to-day finances would be their own. So it would not be that they were not seeing the money. I know some of them would be suspicious if they had to pay in, and in return be salaried, when they own their own vehicles. So I explained, and was really surprised at the frankness and the speed at which those people jumped at that. To the best of my knowledge, they had gone to their lawyers and they had their Articles of Association drawn up. That is the ideal situation.

But I must give credit. This, as quoted in the Speech from the Throne, is a beginning. The Government should now encourage it to be taken one step further. I have spoken to many of them. I meet them in the normal course of business at the establishment which I manage. I speak to them, and believe me, they are quick to see the merit in that. Right now they are receptive and willing, and Government only has to find a little time and the mechanism to encourage them to take it that way.

They recognise that right now it is a dog-eat-dog world out there, and from my days of being a school-teacher, the most effective discipline is self-imposed. If you can get someone to agree, if they make their own rules, they are the best rules. Then they cannot come and say, 'Listen, Roy Bodden, I am not doing this because I did not have any part in the decision. You are imposing this on me, handing it down to me.' But if they do so themselves, however Draconian, stringent or unreasonable it may be, they cannot come to the Government and say this is not working. Government will be in a position to say, 'You made the rules yourselves, so why not change or adjust them to suit the situation?' I hope this can be developed. I recognise we may need to let it work, as is proposed here, for a little while prior to taking it to the next step.

I want to say that under Transport the development of roads and road usage must also be taken into consideration when we are talking about a vision of the future. I think every politician in this Honourable House knows that it would be instant death to suggest that people cannot own motor cars. Political suicide! President Tito of Yugoslavia said that is the most fearsome death of all to die! Political suicide! We have to find a way to rise to this challenge of bumper-to-bumper traffic. It is not going to be done overnight. I contend that we need at least five to ten years before we see a difference on our roads. I caution, given our state of economy, that more roads will not mean less traffic! The obverse is likely to be true—more roads, more cars! If we are not careful, we are going to be transferring the problem from one area to the next.

I am reminded every morning, as I drive from Bodden Town into George Town, that in that area we now have a traffic problem. I think our problem is worse than the problem which exists from West Bay into George Town because we do not have a Harquail Bypass. That we do not have more incidents of 'road rage,' as the new phrase is now, is attributed to the fact that we have a standard in which even the base model vehicle has air conditioning and a cassette deck—proven distractions when you are in traffic. If we did not have those two things, there would be more incidents of fisticuffs, aggression, and cursing than we could shake a stick at! But most Caymanians, thank heaven, and most people who use the roads, are quite content to crack the radio a notch higher or maybe push the air conditioning button to the next level when they are stuck bumper-to-bumper, and ride it out. But I do not know how long that is going to last.

One comment I must make on this is that I marvel at the number of people who must be late for work every day as a result of everyone coming onto the main road at the same time. I have to pray sometimes, because when I leave my house in Bodden Town at 7.15 and get down to some areas close to town, and these people are creeping out. . . I have to summon all the charity in me to let them onto the road, when I had to get up at 5.30! I know I am not unique. I get up at 5.30, do all my chores, and prepare myself for work. I get down to Prospect, and someone who probably slept until 6.00 is coming out, and I have to let them in? Trust me, Mr. Speaker, I have prayed many times! Sometimes I turn my head so I do not see them, conveniently.

As I said, this is a first step. We have to be careful and watch it. Certainly the idea of the improvement in licensing by decentralising vehicle inspection, and by allowing certain vehicles to be exempt from inspection for up to three years is a step in the right direction. I have never been dishonest or uncharitable when the Government has made positive steps. I have to say that sometimes I am overly critical, and sometimes I am uncharitable, but even at those times I realise that I have a responsibility as a Representative of the people to do what is best for the country.

Even though I am hit and hurt many times, I have to stand up and say that something is right and good when it is. I have never taken the position in which I will exile myself from anything I can do to help the forward development in this country, irrespective of the fact that I am sometimes quick to declare that I am the Opposition. But I say again, that does not mean I will not support the Government when it does things right! I have! And I will continue to do so! But I reserve the right to speak my mind, and if that means telling the Government that it is not doing something right, then I will do that, and I will not apologise too much.

This is good, and I am prepared to give it my support and encouragement. It is a pity the Honourable Minister tendered his apologies because I wanted him to hear my suggestion about the development of the co-operatives, which would remove some strain from the Government particularly the political directorate being in the firing line.

Transport operators in the Cayman Islands are no different from transport operators anywhere in the world. Sometimes they have the shortest tempers and are the most unforgiving supporters. Believe me, I do not know if I would wish the wrath of them to fall even on my worst political enemy. I think it is necessary for us. . . not to mention, of course, that the using public, people who use the roads and drive their own vehicles can be educated to do so sensibly, and will be encouraged to take advantage of any reliable and dependable system of public transport, especially as parking space in the centre of George Town is becoming premium. This brings me to the corollary point which should also be taken into consideration in any development planning we are using, and particularly in Vision 2008.

The Government should also be investigating the feasibility of developing offices in the outer districts. I do not think there is any reason why Government should not be looking seriously at relocating some departments to the east, whether or not it be Bodden Town. It would be better if they were in a central place where they could be as easily accessed by the people in George Town and West Bay as they could be by the people in East End and North Side. One thing I also noticed is that in the mornings, there are but few occasions after one has passed Red Bay, that there is any significant traffic on the road going east. The lane is pretty much empty once you pass the Red Bay School. That is something we may like to think about in the future.

I was pleasantly surprised to learn that the Government had bought the Racquet Club in anticipation of and preparation for the expanding Government Administration Building. I throw out as food for thought that some investigation be made, particularly into what I would call 'non-essential' kinds of services where it is not necessary to access a bank to conduct business in these offices. There are some we could relocate where banking would not be complementary. I realise it could not be done in all cases, because some of the businesses will have to have access to banks to carry out transactions. That is something we could think about in the future.

I do not have many comments to make on education, but I do have some. I think the strategic planning exercise is one which will need continuous assessment. Although I am not the greatest fan of strategic planning (as I have made known on previous occasions), I am sensible enough that if someone asks me for time, I give them time. I am aware that there are some pitfalls, but I believe there is no need to be overly critical. I would like to say that from the point of view of an educator, I am well aware of the weaknesses in the system. While there I could make many comments which would be political, I do not necessarily, at this stage, want to politicise my debate. There will be more appropriate occasions for that.

I want to say that I was disappointed that the Government saw fit to acquire the old Cayman Foods building for the Lighthouse School. I was of the opinion that it would have been better to begin from scratch. I shall be watching the development of the school building with keen interest.

At the secondary level, at both George Hicks and John Gray High Schools, we have a continuing challenge. As an educator, I say that we should look at establishing another high school, particularly one to serve the eastern districts. The children who come from East End, North Side and Bodden Town are seriously disadvantaged. They have to get up extremely early to catch the bus, and during those times of year, including this time, when, as the expression goes, the mornings are short, it is challenging. I know it is. It is challenging for them to get up that early, rush through breakfast, catch the bus, and then be expected. . . because many of them suffer from sleep deprivation, because if one is not disciplined enough to go to bed early, in the first week it might not take its toll, but by the time the semester and school year wear on, it most certainly does. A high school serving the eastern districts would alleviate that problem, and I think it is high time we thought about that.

I am also concerned about the lack of organised technical and vocational education at the high school level. I think if there is a weakness in the system, it is in that area. I am not saying that courses are not offered in these areas, I am saying it is something we could strengthen. I am pleased with the development of the Community College, although there are improvements we can make. But I am disappointed with...

The Speaker: If you are going to another point, would this be a convenient time for us to take the luncheon break? Or would you rather continue a few minutes more?

Mr. Roy Bodden: No, Mr. Speaker, we can take the luncheon break. I would prefer that.

The Speaker: I shall suspend proceedings until 2.15 PM.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.46 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.22 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Debate continues with the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. When we took the luncheon suspension, I was about to make some statements regarding the position of the International College of the Cayman Islands, the difficulties experienced by the administrators and those entities who run that college in terms of recognition and acceptance by officialdom.

I have to commend the vision of Drs. Hugh and Elsa Cummings, and all the people who have supported them in their efforts from the inception of the college. The college still serves this community well. I understand that even up until this point, graduates of that institution are accepted for employment in the Government service. I am therefore puzzled, or as we used to say in the days I attended the good old Mico, I am mystified that it has been so difficult, if not impossible, for that college to cross the final hurdle. I cannot understand the logic of a product being accepted, but rejecting the manufacturer.

It is not a new phenomenon. It seems political directorates in the past have, through some lack of fortitude or political will, not gone that ultimate step, which is not asking for an impossibility to be done. I would wish that the correct attitude be displayed. Education should be far removed—and I have to say, in the absence of any other reason, it is purely political. We should stop playing political expedience.

It is my understanding that an evaluation audit was done recently. I was privy to the results. I think what I read was most unprofessional, discouraging and disheartening. The crux of the problem, it seems, has to do with a listing. Just because the college is not listed in one of the college directories or catalogues, means it is rejected. The one in which it is listed is not accepted as the recognised or authoritative listing.

I know how these things are done. Educational administration—even if some people think I am defunct—is my area of speciality. I was trained. I know how these assessments are made, and I spent some time at that institution as a regular visitor to the library and as an adjunct member of the faculty. I know the material they get in terms of students; I know the physical facilities, and I know that anywhere other than in the Cayman Islands that institution would be accorded respectability and acceptance.

I do not need to belabour the point that we have in this very hallowed Chamber products of that institution! Products who acquit themselves well! So why give these people (to use one of my popular phrases) a Sisyphean exercise in frustration?

The Honourable Minister responsible for Education. . . and this is quite interesting. In the 1993 Official Hansard Report, Volume II, page 724, the Honourable Minister for Education posed the question: What about ICCI? Then he said: “They run a lot of courses up there as well. Some of them, not a large amount of them, are technical and vocational to that extent. But it is a good college. It runs a lot of courses. I will agree that its aim is more that of Bachelor’s and Master’s degrees, so it is aimed a bit differently in some respects than the typical type of English community college. But they do a lot. Where is the recognition for them? They were the people who ran the hotel and training courses and the building courses in the early stages as well, which the present friends of the Mover and the Seconder of this Motion stopped.”

It seems that the Minister and I, not surprisingly, are on the same plane, asking where the recognition is for this college. I wish this matter could be addressed. It is begging for a serious approach. I would ask the Minister to use his good offices to see if there is anything he can do from his political perch to promote a better understanding of this institution in the community.

We cannot talk about a vision and leave these glaring inconsistencies. We cannot talk about forward planning in the country, and leave an institution which is clearly playing a positive and constructive role dangling on a string. You cannot employ people—products of institutions—on the one hand, and then tell them you do not recognise the institution from which they came on the other hand. I hope this matter will be set down as a high priority.

Winding down, there are a few more things I would like to say, and passing quickly along I want to say that preservation of our environment is one of the most serious challenges facing this country on the eve of the twenty-first century. That the environment is under threat is no understatement. It is unfortunate that economic development and the environment are so tightly bound by an umbilical cord not easily severed. We have to find a way to continue our economic development without destroying and decreasing our bountiful supply of natural resources—animal and plant life.

That is not an easy challenge all over the world. If we have been following the news recently, in Indonesia they have fires as a result of clearing the rain forest. In Brazil, environmentalists have great concern. The Amazon region is disappearing to the tune of hundreds of thousands of hectares a year. What is even more frightening is that scientists now recognise that some of the viruses, namely the ebola virus, have resulted from man’s tampering with the natural environment. It is recognised that for years these types of diseases lay dormant, and are now being aroused by man’s trespass into the environments which for them are natural.

We in the Cayman Islands, while not faced with such a serious threat, are faced with natural mangroves and reefs dying and becoming extinct. We have to balance this delicate state of affairs against the material spin-offs and costs. Once upon a time, it was extremely unfashionable to be a conservationist or environmentalist. Now the obverse is true—it is foolhardy not to be. We have an obligation to leave for our progeny a Cayman Islands no less well naturally endowed than we have found it. Unless we face the facts and juxtapose economic development against this threat to our environment, we are going to leave our children and grandchildren an environmentally dead Cayman Islands. Many of the things we now take for granted, they will have to read about in science books, or see during their visits to museums. I say all that because in our Vision 2008, we must also make provision for the maintenance of our environment, and sustaining our environment must play an important part.

I like the phrase ‘sustainable development’ because it connotes the kind of development which we will continue to encourage over the years. This is especially so in light of the fact that we set ourselves up as a premier dive destination and tourist resort.

I want to move now to the area of communications, and I want to focus on page 13, where mention is made of the first draft of a Telecommunications Law, which is currently being prepared. I have always been suspicious of monopolies. I guess it is the characteristic of the kind of exposures I have had. While I respect the fact that our utilities and essential services in this country have a vital role to play, I am concerned that the lack of a utilities commission is tantamount to a license for them to do anything they want. I have raised this matter before, to the extent that I brought a Motion calling for the establishment of a public utilities commission.

I want to focus on Cable & Wireless, its services, and the role it plays in this country. I want to challenge Cable & Wireless to be more reasonable and realistic in the fees. I note there was an announcement recently about a fee review. It is interesting. . . and the Chair will pardon me, because I intended to have enough copies of this to lay on the Table. I will ask the Serjeant-at-Arms if he would be kind enough to get this done so I can make available a copy to the Chair and one to lay on the Table.

When it comes to the World Wide Web, as it is now called, and the information network, what is happening in the Cayman Islands is tantamount to extortion. We have the highest Internet rates in the world! It is a mere coincidence that I was listening to the news two or three days ago, when I heard that there was going to be a rate review. I have a copy of the report and order of the World Trade Organization's International Meeting of Politicians and Administrators from the Communications Industry, adopted August 7, 1997, and released August 18, 1997. I also have the Green Paper on the regulatory implications, put out by the European Commission in Brussels on December 3, 1997, entitled "Towards an Information Society Approach." Both of these documents stress deregulation and establishment of reasonable rates for users. When the Serjeant returns, I will lay documents on the Table which show that, comparatively speaking, even in the region, the rates Caymanian users pay are exorbitant.

Of course, I respect the capitalist system, and respect that a business must realise returns on its investment. But one does not have to be an Adam Smith or a Milton Friedman to understand that the telecommunications company in this country is operating without any competition—one could almost say with little or no regulation. We must get better rates. Not only are they benefiting and providing a service to business, but the very future of the Cayman Islands, namely the children who are studying, must have affordable access to the World Wide Web. I see no reason why, as a good corporate citizens, every school should not have at least one access to the Internet on a complimentary basis. Soon, Mr. Speaker, I am sure you realise, the information network, the World Wide Web, will make encyclopaedias in bound volumes obsolete, unless one wants to be an antiquarian, for it is easier to update a CD-ROM than to update. . . . Every year you have to come up with different editions—21st, 22nd, 23rd Edition. That means we have to buy a new set of encyclopaedias every year to keep current, when all we need is a CD-ROM. It is so much cheaper, coupled with the fact that it is less bulky, and easily accessed by multiple users at one time.

My colleague is reminding me, as a true environmentalist, that it is also sparing hundreds of trees in Canada and the Amazon.

Cable & Wireless owes it to this country of good customers to give us the best rates possible. I would venture to say that this could be done with no serious erosion of their profit margin. Indeed, the old Chinese adage might be applicable—volume. They may make the same money servicing a greater number of customers, because if it is affordable, more people will hook up to the network. I look forward with pregnant anticipation to reading of this reduction in rates for users of the Net, and, indeed, for services generally from Cable & Wireless.

I do not have to comment on everything, and I want to footnote my contribution by dealing with the National Pensions legislation. I expressed my disappointment before that such legislation did not come into force at the originally scheduled time. I have read from the proposed amendments (I think it is section 16) where certain people, namely, those people whom the Immigration Law...Excuse me, Mr. Speaker, I will now read section 16, where it says: "Section 25 of the principal Law is amended (a) by repealing subsection (2) and substi- tuting the following subsection- '(2) Employers are not required to have pension plans or to contribute to pension plans for the benefit of employees who do not have Caymanian status. . . within the meaning of the Immigration Law (1997 Revision).' "

I am most disappointed at this amendment. Quite frankly, I do not see how it can possibly serve a constructive purpose. It means that employers will bypass Caymanian employees because they can hire non-Caymanians for at least 5% less than Caymanians. In a country where we already hear numerous complaints from our people about the difficulty in getting employment, I do not see how this is going to bode well. I am reminded of the letter I was reading several issues ago in the Caymanian Compass, from the gentleman who said he had been a banker for so many years. Obviously, he is qualified and experienced, but he cannot get a job! Do you think anyone in their right mind is going to hire a gentleman like that, where they have to pay 5% more, in preference to someone for whom they have no such commitment, when profit is the bottom line?

We are discriminating against our own people! We cannot do that. They have it difficult enough already! I hope someone sees the difficulty in this, and that we can amend or change it appropriately.

I believe I have taken enough time. I rest my causes with the knowledge and satisfaction, and offer that I shall carry out my responsibilities as maturely and as reasonably as the Government allows me to. I shall say that I will be as fair and gracious as I have been; but I make no apologies for where I have to offer criticism which is biting and stinging. I will only clarify that by saying that for any comment I made which was interpreted to be of a personal nature, I ask forgiveness. I have decided to put pettiness behind me. But, having said that, I expect that what I have said will not be twisted and turned to make me look like some kind of idiot or evil person. While I offer the glove, I would be stupid to throw away the mailed fist. Thank you, Sir.

The Speaker: The floor is open to debate. Does any other Member wish to speak? The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I rise to give my contribution to the Throne Speech 1998, delivered by His Excellency the Governor of the Cayman Islands. I cannot, at this time, say I am sure of the direction which my reply should take. I have been preoccupied for the last two weeks with an issue that I think should be of interest to this Honourable House. In that my mind has continued to dwell upon this issue, I have not really allowed myself the opportunity to survey the terrain laid out by the Governor to the extent I perhaps should have.

As it is, it is very difficult these days to decide which approach to take regarding the state of the nation. We are still not sure if the Budget Speech should form part of the Throne Speech, or whether the Throne Speech should come first and the Budget Speech after. We are not sure about the order of many things; yet we are sure, as said by His Excellency the Governor, that we need to plan for the twenty-first century. The people as a whole are not sure about their relationship with the Mother country, Great Britain; yet we are sure we need to plan. We are not sure what role immigrants will play in our society as citizens, or as persons participating in democracy; yet we are sure we must develop another strategic plan.

It is quite interesting that as we begin to wonder about the political process in these Islands we begin to see that in countries where people participate in the decision-making process, more and more people are being excluded from the process—not simply because there is any deliberate attempt on the part of the Government or on the part of Members of the Legislative Assembly not to consult, or to exclude, but simply because many of our people today do not have the sufficient background. There is not a bringing together, a gathering together, a pooling together of interests or direction, in that if we are to plan for the twenty-first century, as said by the Governor, we cannot plan without having a political concept.

It is very interesting, because in this world today we hear about plans, and plans for more plans, yet human beings are not more satisfied today in any part of the world than they were yesterday when these plans did not exist. Governments have made plans their ideologies. They will say they have no ideology, when the ideology today is, in fact, planning. Strategic planning is an ideology because it is based on the assumption that we can somehow arrive at what is best for the majority by consulting the majority through a particular process. It is here that when we begin to believe in that religion of planning, it becomes a religion because it motivates people to get involved in so-called finding of solutions, when the solutions are not there to be found. The solutions are not that easily acquired.

I have always said that we need a plan. When I say we need a plan, I do not mean that we need to develop something on paper. I mean a direction to carefully chart out our principles. When we begin to have difficulties deciding on our principles, it is that time we start talking about plans, because planning is sometimes a way of hiding the fact that our principles are weak, not known. We do not know how to tell other people, 'Here, these are the principles I believe in, and we can have a relationship based upon these principles.' So in place of being clear about our principles, in place of assisting our population to come to terms with evolving principles in the later part of this century, we put that duty to planners. We give planners and technocrats the duty of providing the society with the leadership it needs.

We put technocrats and bureaucrats in the position of thinkers, and it will never work that way. Technocrats and bureaucrats are important, but it is not the all and all. Human society and human beings are more complex than rational thinkers would have us believe. It is the attempt, at the end of this century, to institutionalise and impose upon people the concept of rational behaviour that can be planned and managed. That is just a signal of the inability of people in most countries to abide by moral principles, and to use those moral principles as the basis on which to develop their political order, to use those moral principles as the basis for the legitimacy of the state.

In replying to this Speech, I see the weakness of having someone come to us and make brief statements—statements without any kind of depth, statements composed of words put together in sentences and getting meaning because words are put together in sentences. Meaning does not come that way. Meaning is the result of going into something and delving in it and going through a metamorphosis, to the extent that one becomes that something. We can expect no less of the leaders in this country—that they go through a metamorphosis, through the experience and understanding of what the soul of this country is and what the being of this country is, and begin to plant principles in the minds of the young people that will later be responsible for the young person's actions, rather than believing that through rational planning we can begin to direct human behaviour. Human behaviour is more complex.

It is for this reason that the plans in the Soviet Union, and in China, and in all the communist countries fell. But it is very strange today, that in the so-called capitalist countries and so-called democratic countries, people are running to plans. Why are they running to plans? They are running to plans because they are running away from a plan. They are running away from a plan, therefore they are giving a plan to a plan as an alternative to a plan. If New Zealand is experiencing the need for strategic planning today, it is not because New Zealand did not have a plan yesterday. New Zealand had a plan yesterday. What was wrong was not the plan, but the assumption behind the plan, the assumption it made about human beings and their behaviour and expectations. It had to do with the question of division of labour, division of resources of a country, with the role of government. All of these things! It has to do with much deeper questions than we see on the surface.

When we have people talking about the reinvention of Government in this country, I wonder what they are talking about. They are talking about someone else's clothes second-hand. It is a second-hand process, that if it is not understood at the end of the day, if the assumptions are not understood, it will cause your system to fall apart much faster than you can put it back together again. That is the danger. One thing you do know, regardless of how bad your system might be, you know your system. It is for this reason that I said, when I started a programme called "Public Eye" on TV some six or seven months ago, I said I was starting this programme because we needed to develop a local perspective regarding issues we think are important.

We cannot import the styles, fashions and ideas from elsewhere any more. Everything is imported here, including ideas! But we are mature enough to manufacture those ideas domestically, and I am a case in point of that ability. It is for this reason I say to Members, watch "Public Eye." It airs on CITN the second and third Thursday of every month. I have to look for the money to pay for the programme. It is not paid for by the TV station, nor by the Government. It is paid out of my interest in developing a local perspective. This, I believe, is the only way to begin to plan.

It is like everything else, if a woman is to conceive a child, she must get pregnant. You do not start with a pregnancy. You might even start with a courtship in certain cases, and a long period of relationship. We do not just have to jump and say, 'Plan!' We do not have to jump and say, 'This is it, we are convinced that what will help this country is a plan for the twenty-first century!' A plan into the twenty-first century? We have always had a plan. At least, I have had a plan. I have felt I have always been part of a plan, whether that has been good or bad, I have always been part of a plan in these Islands. The whole idea that someone else in the world is planning better than we are, I find very odd indeed; especially when we like to get up and boast about how successful we have been. If we have been successful, we must have been planning something! What is this hurry?

I know on this side we talk about plans, but I am talking about something different. I am talking about foresight. We have to foresee the problems before we get to them, so we can provide the solutions. We have to foresee. We do not have to regiment ourselves into a strategic straitjacket and say it has to be done this way, and this is the road we shall pursue. We do not have to create that kind of dictatorship, that kind of regimentation. This is a small country, and a small country could do very poorly with a big plan, just as a big country would probably do very poorly with a small plan. Big countries might need plans. Much planning is needed in those bigger countries, to the scale I hear people talking of. These great designs that these ex-socialists have in all these countries! These great visions! But do we need them?

I say, we need to have foresight, we need to sit down and every one of us individually think about who we are, what we are, and where we are going, and we need to apply that to the jobs we are doing, and we need to encourage people to do the same thing. It is very easy. We have not become so alienated from one another that we need to sit down and make plans for one another when we see one another every day. We see the people every day. We know the people. We know their needs. We know their concerns. We do not have to plan for them abstractly in some think-tank.

The think-tank was good for Roosevelt in the United States during the New Deal. He used the Harvard people, and these people and the other people, to come up with ideas to bind together a country that was massive, enormous, in terms of its physical, geographical areas. Massive in terms of the ethnic and cultural groups it represented! Massive in terms of its economic power. Definitely. But let us remain realistic here. We are Caymanians. We are blessed in being a small, prosperous country, and we should not jump the gun and plan too much for ourselves to the extent to which we become victims of our own planning. I therefore want to remark upon that to say that the best thing to be is open.

The best thing to do is always leave ourselves open to whatever suggestions may come our way. Because we have to remember that the greatest thing in being a human being is the free choice we have. The choice, the choice, the choice! Regardless if we come from a bad past, or a good past, good family or bad family—we still have, as individuals, responsibility for the choices we make. We have free choice. Whether we are in a Nazi prison camp or in Northward Prison, or wherever, we are still animals of free will. We have the free will, the free choice, and that is very important. Any time we talk about a vision, let the vision grow from the idea that we have free choice, and that is what makes us dynamic, rather than static. That is what has given Cayman the growth possibility it has had.

We were not ideological! We were not saying, 'This is who we are and this cannot change!' We were very flexible, and we allowed ourselves to evolve. Now we have come to a level whereby we need to become reflective! Yes, we need to become reflective. But becoming reflective does not necessarily mean we have to develop a master plan. We must let every generation write their own history. We must create in our movement that possibility. We must not move too swiftly to say we all have the answers, or that we can even find the answers among our people, because sometimes we know we must go beyond our shores to find the answers to different questions.

We see this very obviously in the area of medicine. We do not find how to treat cancer by doing strategic studies. There can be no strategic plan. It has to go through another process, so sometimes we are not, in a sense, totally capable of providing our collective group with all the answers we need to continue to be a group. We must go outside and beyond this.

I throw the challenge, saying things are not the way they are, and to make it seem as if a little more in-depth examination would cause certain premises to evaporate slightly, and therefore it would be possible for us to set something else next to those premises, and perhaps give that which we set next to it the same, equal importance. I say this because I would now like to deal with the remark regarding the Foreign Secretary's speech.

The Speaker: Would this be a convenient time to take the afternoon break?

Dr. Frank McField: Yes, Sir.

The Speaker: We will suspend for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS WERE SUSPENDED AT 3.15 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 3.48 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

The Fourth Elected Member for George Town continuing.

Dr. Frank McField: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Just one more brief remark in regards to the introduction to the Throne Speech where His Excellency stated, “All departments of Government have now reviewed their services and are working hard to introduce improved customer service and efficiency.”

I wanted to once again mention that in our attempt to make our systems more efficient I hope and pray that we will not make our people less efficient in that we just do not see efficiency as the goal, but the efficiency for the people as a goal. The people should come before the efficiency—not that the efficiency should come before the people.

We should not sacrifice our people in the name of efficiency, but use efficiency as the slave of our people and not our people as the slave of efficiency. I think that has to be borne in mind as we go along modernising because not all of us are at the same level of development. We need to be very careful how we apply principles developed in countries that have been developing in a very regimented manner over the last three or four hundred years. We need to seriously remember that our people have had a different experience and will not bend the same way as quickly. We must show some sensitivity in doing these exercises.

In referring to the Foreign Secretary's speech on page 2 of my copy it says, in talking about partnership, that “The British Government has a duty to defend the Dependent Territories, to look after your fundamental interests, to ensure that you are democratic and politically stable, and to promote good government and prosperity.” Again, I say that those are the responsibilities of the British Government to the Dependent Territories, in particular the Cayman Islands.

My concern today is with the promotion of good government. I believe that if a government is to be good, it must be seen to be good.

Some Members: Hear, hear!

Dr. Frank McField: It cannot assume that persons will make decisions in its favour, without it being obligated or feeling a responsibility to convince those persons with valid questions as to its credibility, that the Government's behaviour is moral and reasonable.

I bring up the question of good government in order to emphasise a fact that in this I am not alone. The Foreign Secretary has obviously taken the side that I am taking in that I am to take all things in the Foreign Secretary's speech as being reasonable and dependable. This one must be taken seriously. I prefer to deal with this because there is a decision that was made by the Executive Council some time in 1995 where I believe the purpose of good government would be better served if some explanation was given as to the justification behind that decision.

I question that decision in these honourable Chambers because in September of 1995 in Finance Committee a request for a Crown Grant was made by the Honourable Minister responsible for lands. The request was in respect of Block 9A Parcel 240 in West Bay. It affected the Estate of Aamon Ebanks. Another request was made before the Finance Committee for a piece of land in East End. That request involved another piece of Crown land.

Mr. Speaker, a complaint was brought before me by a member of my constituency saying that he does not believe that the decision of the Executive Council was based upon good reason. The reason for this is that if Executive Council was to make a decision to have the question of land grants in regard to parcels of Crown land in West Bay and a parcel of land in East End brought before Finance Committee in 1995, and if Members of Finance Committee expressed a bewilderment as to why it was brought before Finance Committee, saying that they were not aware of this precedent. . . . Nevertheless, it went through Finance Committee. Finance Committee accepted the challenge to deal with these two land grants saying that it involved something of monetary value and because a request for Crown land was basically a request for something of monetary value to be divested from the Crown, that it (Finance Committee) was the right place to deal with this request.

The logic here, if it was right to deal with these two requests in Finance Committee in September, why was it not right to deal with a similar request made by the Honourable Minister for lands in the name of an Estate back in July or March of that same year? The question of whether or not we have seen good government performed here, whether or not there is a basis for the concern of my constituent. . . and, Mr. Speaker, I do submit that I have to use care in my wording of this because I do not want to impute any improper motives on the part of anyone. At the same time, if we are to have good government, the Government must be transparent. Citizens must have a way, besides the Courts, because it is very expensive when we tell our poor citizens when they have a grievance, especially when that grievance involves a Member of our Government, that they should take the grievance to the Courts.

As the first speaker, the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, mentioned this morning, it becomes more and more expensive for citizens to take cases to court because they have to go through the appeal process and the lawyers' fees, in particular, are very expensive. People ask if we have in this country the rule of law, meaning the law for the Executive Council, or the law for me, as a Member of Parliament, the same as the law for any of my constituents. There is one law.

This grievance I have brought before the House in an attempt to get some clarification because His Excellency spoke about efficiency and customer service. But as I went to the Lands Officer to request documentation that might assist me in my inquiry into this matter that concerns me as a legislator and as a representative of that person who made the complaint to me, I was not assisted. They told me that they could not give me any information, that all the information I could see was the names of persons registered on land titles. What I wanted to see was the process they had followed in making the recommendation to the Executive Council that this Crown Land should be awarded to the Estate of the late Whitmore Syms, of whom the Minister for lands is the Executor and sole beneficiary.

If we look at the logic of what the Foreign Secretary is saying here, and if I am to believe his words, and if I am to somehow believe that good government has to do with government that is transparent, government that is not offended when questioned how it arrived at these decisions. . . . Were they logical decisions? Was the Government presented with the material necessary to make the decision, or was there a short cut? We need to know. The public needs to know how this decision was arrived at earlier in 1995 when the request for Crown Land for Aamon Ebanks and Lester McLean in East End was brought to Finance Committee and justified that that was the right place for those requests to be.

I will read from the Hansard. It says at one point, “The Chairman: ‘Yes, this request is being referred to the Finance Committee by the Governor in Council.’

Mrs. Moyle then said, “I would like a little clarification on Governor under the Standing Order, because my interpretation of Governor under this Standing Order is the Governor, not the Governor in Council.”

The Chairman then said, “I would have to take legal advice on that.”

The Speaker: May I interrupt you for just one moment? Would you state the date of that Hansard, and who is making the statement?

Dr. Frank McField: Yes, Mr. Speaker. This is September 28, 1995, page 64 of the Unedited version [of Finance Committee] and this statement that I will now read is by the Honourable John McLean. “Mr. Chairman.”

And the Chairman said: “The question is whether the claims in respect to these two pieces of property should be allowed.”

So it was decided that those claims should be dealt with in Finance Committee. The question my constituent has asked is if this was decided in Finance Committee, why was another issue not decided in Finance Committee, an issue that one Minister would benefit from if the land was awarded to that Estate. Therefore it seems more logical to have brought that issue to Finance Committee, if any issue was brought to Finance Committee, because that would have shown beyond a reasonable doubt that everything was above board, that everything was transparent. That is the way we need to act and that is the way the Foreign Secretary is saying that we are acting and that he is praising us for acting that way, being above board in what we do.

Now, I have been to the Lands Office. I spent two weeks looking into this matter. I have been to see the relevant bodies or individuals that I feel should be held accountable, or who should be giving an explanation as to my queries. I cannot say that anything is wrong, Mr. Speaker, but certainly, logic tells me that the Government would be better off if they would Table before this Honourable House the methods used to assess the claim made by the Honourable Minister for Lands as the Executor of the late Mr. Whitmore Syms' estate. The method used to assess it, whether or not they took direction from the Lands and Survey Office, and why my constituent's claim with two affidavits signed by two reputable people in 1987 was not considered to be a relevant claim and why, if the Executive Council knew that my constituent's claim was based upon a Will made in 1865 they would go ahead and make a decision within the Council itself and not bring that decision to the Finance Committee that same year that they did it with two other Crown Grants.

Three Grants were granted that year; two were brought to Finance Committee and one was dealt with in Executive Council. What am I supposed to believe here? There is a question and there is no reason why that question cannot be answered. We know that there should be no secrets between the people and their leaders. There should be no secrets between the people and their Government. Democracy cannot seriously exist once the people have the feeling that they can only know what will not allow them to fend for themselves and to protect their interests.

Two hundred acres of land is a lot of land for that poor family that I am talking about. Believe it or not, we know that a lot of people in the Cayman Islands have lost a lot of land. The land question is not an easy question in these islands, but that is the reason it would be good for all of us to know the reasoning as to how this decision was made and why a Minister responsible for land was awarded the land by the Executive Council upon which he sits. Did he declare his interest? Did he help to make the decisions?

I think the people need to know.

POINT OF ORDER

Imputation of improper motives

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I am going to take a point of order on imputation of improper motives. It has been put in a question form, but those last two statements impute improper motives to the Honourable Minister for Agriculture.

The Speaker: I have been listening very carefully to his deliberations and following it here in the 22nd Edition of Erskine May. I have to agree with you.

You cannot impute false motives to a Member. Please desist from that. I ask that if you feel it necessary to bring it under a substantive question. It can also be dealt with in the Committee on Privileges, but this is not the proper forum, we are debating the Throne Speech. I ask you to continue with the debate on the Throne Speech.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, all I can say is that I am thankful to God that the Honourable Minister for Education has given me the opportunity to go as far as I have gone. I do not think I have to impute any improper motives on the part of any Minister, all I have to do is raise a question of doubt, which I have done. I feel that that is right and proper.

If we are going to have a Kangaroo show. . .

The Speaker: May I interrupt you once more? I have made my ruling. Please desist from that subject and continue on another point.

The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Mr. Speaker, I am not going to get into this talk, but as to what is being debated in the Throne Speech. . . in all of my time, and I am sure in yours as a Member, Mr. Speaker, you can range in any subject. It is interesting what the Member has brought, albeit he brought it under the Foreign Secretary's statement. I am wondering if in the ruling we are really stopping the debate.

The Speaker: I really did not ask for a debate on this subject. I made a ruling. Erskine May is very clear. It is out of order to impute improper motives to any Member. There are other forums where this can be discussed further if he so desires, and I ask him to now go on to another subject.

Fourth Elected Member for George Town, please continue.

Dr. Frank McField: I guess in going on to another subject, again I must confess that my brain works slightly different from some brains I have become acquainted with. I believe that if the Throne Speech is like the State of the Nation, I think that we could deal with a whole lot of things. But that is just my opinion.

In moving away from the topic I would like to deal with the fact that education in this country seems to be at a stand still in that we have still not arrived at a policy that would make our people competitive in the twenty-first century; at least, we have not arrived at a policy that would make a large portion of our people competitive in the twenty-first century. In our schools we have all kinds of crises. They are not crises that are created by the school system, but they are supported by the school system in that the school system seems incapable of mustering the energy and motivation to deal with real Caymanian children and the problems they are experiencing at this late date in the twentieth century.

There is no point in continuing to believe that our people are this, or that. We must be realistic about the symptoms that the young people in our school systems are experiencing—the symptoms of disturbance, of being members of dysfunctional families; the symptom of being unable to concentrate, or unable to subject themselves to discipline; unable to study and take in instruction. The entire social decay of our system is magnified within the walls of our public schools. And yet we continue to believe that we have time left to solve the problems that our children are experiencing. We still believe that we have time to come up with strategic plans and strategies for curing these problems, and for getting the attention of the children to give them an education.

I believe the need for technical/vocational training in this country has long been due. The days when I went to school back in the early 1960s we learned how to saw a piece of wood. They are probably still doing woodwork in the schools. What happens to a child when he has to sit for half an hour, or an hour and listen to a teacher that he does not understand; a teacher that he is not even interested in, a teacher he does not even talk like, that he does not even look like? What happens to the mind of the child who has to hide from reality, and go backward within himself to find his own dreams, sometimes negative dreams? What happens when the child's mind begins to wander away from reality and the child begins to come up with all kinds of ideas of how to do this and that which is wrong? The child has all kinds of time to breed asocial ideas.

There is no better place to breed these asocial ideas than in the schools because there they have time—they are not listening, their minds are not challenged; they are not being given something they feel they can really get into and deal with, that they can master and be king of. It is very important for even small children to be able to master something within a particular time because if they cannot master something within a particular time, they give up. They go on to find something else they can master and they begin to believe in that more strongly than they will in the things we think they should be concerned about and mastering.

The real problems in education are not educational problems, but sociological problems in our schools. The fact that the school system has been used in this country as a holding ground for children until they reach the legal age where we can allow them to go on the streets, and then to Northward Prison, is something most of us will not deny. The fact that parents have abdicated their role to the school system and the Social Services system, and the Social Services has abdicated its role to the Police system, and they have abdicated their role to the Prison System, does not strike us as strange anymore. The thing that is really strange about it is that we can be so complacent with this problem when regardless of all the economic prosperity, when these kids that are not educated, when these kids who are dysfunctional and cannot find a place come and say, 'You are going to find a place for me or I am going to find a place for you'. . . that could mean the destruction of this country.

Therefore a failure to find a solution to the education of the grass-roots Caymanian person is the greatest failure in this country because our continual prosperity and harmony rests upon them being able to get some of the resources of this society by way of participating through work.

Why is it that we think the only kind of work one can do in this country is being a lawyer, or a banker, or an accountant? Why is it that being a construction worker or a radio repairman, or a computer repairman, or an auto mechanic is not dignified? A child should be encouraged to get involved from the age of ten or eleven years of age. Today, with the way that children mature, you do not have to wait until that age, by the time they are six or seven they can already change the bolts on their little toys and become socialised into a work culture, rather than being socialised into a criminal culture.

Unfortunately, I did not come from the class in this society where people would automatically respect my views. Therefore, the fact that I have been sitting around in this country for the past twenty years with some pretty good ideas might surprise a lot of people today. But it does not surprise me. I would not have gotten a Ph.D. in 1977 at a German University if I did not have some ideas, and idea of how to develop those ideas.

When we are talking about planning for the year 2008, when we are talking about creating within the very same department that is incapable of solving the educational problems in this country, another planning authority, another planning agency, then we are not talking properly. I am sorry, Mr. Speaker, but this problem uncontrolled is too much of a threat to the national security of this country.

My office is located where I have to watch the violence that young children are exhibiting. I have to watch their role models. I am saying that we have to do better. To do better means to accept the fact that we need to divide our children between those who would be philosophers, lawyers, and doctors, and those who would be proud mechanics, those who would be proud carpenters to build houses for those poor philosophers who could not build for themselves, for those poor lawyers who could not even put a block together.

Mr. Roy Boddén: God bless you, brother.

Dr. Frank McField: The society depends upon the growth and training of both groups.

Thank God Almighty that He had the good wisdom to build two types of intellect, because if He had not, those with the so-called intellect would be in a real problem because they would have no cars, no homes, no clothes. . . they would be like cavemen, still living in the trees.

Let us not, because of the pay-scale system and the type of prejudices we have developed towards lawyers and doctors and accountants, have the child believe that if he is not going to school to study French or English Literature he has no contribution to make. Let us not instill that in the minds of the children. Let us understand exactly how comprehensive education came about in the first place in Great Britain. Let us understand that there was nothing educational about the decision to have comprehensive education; it was purely a political decision. It had to do with the access of the so-called working class to what they considered the finer type of education, the Oxford and Cambridge type where you sat and you read. You did not learn, actually, you read.

We need to get realistic and say, 'Hey, look. The little guy from down my way in Rock Hole is better pounding a nail than the little guy from South Sound.' It is possible, you know. Although the little guy from South Sound might be better spelling, the little guy from down my way in Rock Hole or Windsor Park would probably be pounding that nail more steady and better. So give him the ability to compete as early as you give the little guy from South Sound. Basically, what has happened is that the little guy who would work with Cayman Repairs repairing air-conditioners and sinks and all the things that I, myself, cannot put together, has to wait before his time comes to learn. He has to wait until he becomes sixteen or seventeen, then he has to have enough motivation and ambition to go to Community College.

By that time you say, 'Hey, I provided you with the opportunity. You cannot blame me for the fact that you are not taking that opportunity.' Yes we can, if you are responsible for the system from the time the system is very young and the child is two or three years old. Yes we can. The planners must have spotted by now that some people just do not want to learn some things, they want to learn other things. They should be allowed and encouraged to learn other things. They should not have their value in society depreciated because of their preference in terms of what they want to learn.

I am saying this because I have seen many children who I have been trying to work with graduate from high school here illiterate, dysfunctional—but feel, nevertheless that they should have a job here—resenting people because they cannot get the jobs because at the end of the day they cannot even pass the most basic tests. I would have believed otherwise, until I started a programme. I came to find out that the majority of the kids have to be failures. Why do they have to be failures? Because they cannot read or write. We have to go back to the three R's—reading, 'riting and 'rithmetic. We have to go back to the drill system. We have to get this liberalism out of our education system and push that out and go back to the three R's; go back to the ruler and back to basic education. That is simple.

Until we do that, Mr. Speaker, we are not going to push ourselves forward fast enough to be able to stop the frustration that is setting into our country, because people still believe that it is better to get a job as a messenger than as an auto mechanic. But the cars come from Japan, and we bring them here and accept that that is what we will do. We do not produce cars here. There is no reason why we should bring the Japanese here to fix the cars. There is no reason why we cannot train the Caymanians to fix the car, or the refrigerator that is built in the United States.

There is a whole lot of work in this country for our people. There is a whole lot of decent work in this country for our people. There is a whole lot of rewarding work in this country for our people, but they have to be educated and trained to be able to take advantage of these opportunities. It is for this reason that we can no longer brag about the exams that people have passed because that only tells part of the story; we have to talk about the failures that also tells the other part of the story.

I live in the neighbourhood. I walk the walk, and I talk the talk, and I know that it is rough, it is terrible. It needs to be done. We have to deal with our educational problem. We are a small country. So the vision—my vision—if I am allowed to have a different vision than some of the men in this Honourable House, is a society whereby people can be independent because they provide themselves with what is necessary for life and Godliness, and not a society where the Government has to provide persons with what is necessary for Godliness and life. That is my vision. That must begin.

To develop that vision, we must go into the educational system of this country. We must get rid of some of the misconceptions and the lies, and the conceitedness in this system. We must begin to dissect it and say that the failure is coming from the homes into the educational system. We have to become the correctors, not just of the educational system but of the family system as well.

Too often we forget that the greatest problems we have in this country are caused by persons who do not want to be responsible for their children. I am not saying that Government is responsible, but Government is entrusted with the security of the country, and the security can only be preserved if the people are given the right tools to work for themselves.

We have a whole heap of problems in this country with men who refuse to support their children. I have had a lot of complaints. I could find a nice little place with this to go on to Social Services, but until we as men and women, because a lot of the men are playing politics with their families and not being strong enough to say to other men, 'Look, it is your responsibility, if you fathered those children, to support them.' We know that the problem goes right back to the family. We have identified that. The dysfunctional children in the school system were dysfunctional before they went into the school system. And I am not criticising anyone in the school system for making them dysfunctional, I am saying that we have to realise that these are the lots we have to deal with and we have to become more adaptive. This means we have to develop our own local solutions and not local opinions.

STANDING ORDER 10(2)
INTERRUPTION OF INTERRUPTION—4.30 PM

The Speaker: May I interrupt you at this moment, please?

We have reached the hour of 4.30. I will entertain a motion for the adjournment.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Boddin: Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

The Speaker: The question is that this House do now adjourn until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AT 4.32 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10 AM FRIDAY, 27 FEBRUARY 1998.

EDITED
FRIDAY
27 FEBRUARY 1998
10.07 AM

[Prayers by the Third Elected Member for West Bay.]

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. Question 5/98, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION 5

No. 5: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs to state what programmes of inmate training and reform are operational at H.M. Northward Prison.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: The following programmes of inmate training and reform are operational at Northward Prison: educational programmes, including 'O' level studies in mathematics and English language; correspondence courses for inmates needing skills in a specific area; social skills; computer courses and skills training in electronics, woodwork, general maintenance, gardening, livestock care and craftwork.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries? The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Honourable Member give the House some idea as to the number of prisoners who may be enrolled in all of these programmes, not individual programmes? Also, could the Honourable Member say if participation in these programmes is on a voluntary basis only?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. At the moment, there are approximately 120 inmates involved in these programmes. Some of the programmes are optional, but not all.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Honourable Member give the House an indication of the numbers in the teaching or instructional staff?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: There are two teachers permanently on the staff, and five others who are part-time.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Member say whether these are salaried personnel, and whether any use is made of volunteers?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Two are salaried employees; the other five, the part-time persons, are given a token payment. They are not salaried.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Could the Honourable Member state if the part-time teachers are called on when needed? Or is there a regular schedule for when they perform their duties?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Mr. Speaker, there is a regular schedule in the evenings for the part-time teachers.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Could the Honourable Member state if there is a need for more part-time teachers, or if the programme is working in a satisfactory manner?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: The programme is working satisfactorily within the confines of classroom space. Perhaps if additional classroom space were available, we could possibly look for more volunteers for assistance.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Could the Honourable Member state if at present the inmates who have a desire to go through these classes are all able to be dealt with? Or is there more demand than space allows?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: I am told we are able to cope with the demands or requests at the moment.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? If there are no further supplementaries, we will go to question number 6 standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 6

No. 6: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs: What is the duration of the current training programme for Prison Officer recruits at Northward Prison?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: The current basic training programme for Prison Officer recruits at H.M. Prison Northward is eight weeks.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, a supplementary.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Honourable Member state whether this was the originally scheduled training time, or whether there has been a reduction in the originally scheduled training time?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: The original course was twelve weeks, but the course has now been restructured, and tailored more toward the needs; and it is now eight weeks' duration.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Could the Honourable Member state if the training conducted presently is handled in-house? Or do outsiders come in to conduct the training?

The Speaker: Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: The training is a combination of each. We have senior Prison Officers involved in training; the teacher-counsellor is involved; and we have a number of outside persons who come in. I should go on to say that this course was restructured by the Prison Advisor for the Overseas Territories, Mr. Chris Gibbard, and this is one of his areas of expertise.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Could the Honourable Member state if the senior Prison Officers used to conduct some of the training are trained trainers, or are they chosen based on their seniority?

The Speaker: Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: The prison officer involved in one aspect of the training is trained. In fact, the newspaper carried an article recently. This gentleman went to Belize to assist in training there, and there was some very good publicity given to the matter locally in the press.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Member say if there is any kind of formal examination at the end of this training?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: There is a formal examination during the training, and also at the conclusion.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Member tell the House whether there is any scope for identifying prospective officers who may benefit from further training, with a view to being promoted and trained for leadership positions at the Prison as a result of this training?

The Speaker: Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Yes, I think there is scope for prison officers to be identified for advancement as a result of the training.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? If there are no further supplementaries, we will go to question number 7, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 7

No. 7: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs to state if there has been any reduction in classroom space, programmes or staff for the educational programmes at Northward Prison over the past three years.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Over the past three years, there has been no reduction in classroom space, programmes or staff for the educational programmes at Northward Prison. Instead, there has been an increase in programmes. We have added a tailoring class for males and a dressmaking class for females. A computer programme has been introduced to keep inmates current with ongoing trends in the job market. There is also a ceramics/pottery workshop, where inmates are taught pottery skills.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Member tell the House whether the classroom space utilised for these programmes is used exclusively for purposes of these programmes? Or is there any combination of use?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: It is my understanding that there is a combination of uses among the classrooms.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Member tell the House for what other use these classrooms are utilised?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Some of the space is also used for counselling.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? If there are no further supplementaries, Question No. 8 standing in the name of the First Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION 8

No. 8: Mr. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning whether any new teachers have had to be recruited since September 1997 for the public school system.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: New teachers were either recruited or employed locally to fill vacancies that have occurred since school began in September. Vacancies occurred at George Hicks High School as a result of one resignation effective 17 December, and one teacher on extended sick leave. Teachers were also required in primary schools to fill positions of teachers who were promoted, were on long-term maternity leave, suspended, or were unfilled in September.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Could the Minister state the reasons for these unfilled positions which occurred in September?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Out of approximately 390-odd teaching positions, only one was unfilled in September, one peripatetic music teacher, and the post had, at that stage, been advertised, and interviews had been held. 390 teaching posts had been filled; one was unfilled.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Minister tell the House how many teachers were promoted; also, at what time during the school year were they promoted?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: There have been some promotions. The one I have been told is that the primary teacher at the George Town Primary School, there was an internal promotion, and the post was filled with a Caymanian in January 1998.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: The answer says "teachers who were promoted." The Minister has said that there was one he knows of. My question to the Minister is, how many others were there? At what time during the school year were they promoted?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: In relation to this question, this is the only teacher who was promoted that required the post to be filled. I am saying other teachers were promoted, but the question refers to recruitment since September 1997. Only one teacher had to be recruited to fill a promotion since September 1997.

The Speaker: The Member for North Side. The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Minister tell the House at what time during the school year this teacher was promoted?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I repeat what I said earlier. January 1998.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Minister tell the House why a teacher would be promoted in January 1998 and not at the beginning of the school year?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: That was the length of time it took to go through the Public Service Commission and Personnel Department, even though it was put up earlier. This was when it came through.

The Speaker: Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Would the Honourable Minister tell the House how many teachers were suspended and why?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Beyond saying that one teacher was suspended, I cannot go beyond that. I think it should be a substantive question to the Chief Secretary, if the lady Member wishes the reasons on it, as under the Constitution, that aspect of discipline rests with the Chief Secretary.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Mr. Speaker, maybe you may give the Chief Secretary permission to answer that question, since it comes under him.

The Speaker: If the Honourable Chief Secretary wishes to answer, he may, otherwise you will need to put down a substantive question.

The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Could the Honourable Minister state if there are any outstanding requests from the schools for additional teachers which have not been addressed?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I am not certain how this arises out of this question, but I do not have the answer. It seems to me we are talking about...the question was whether any new teachers have had to be recruited since September 1997 for the public school system. I do not have the answer to what he is asking.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, that Honourable Minister simply had to state he did not have the answer. He did not have to try to say that my supplementary question was not relative to the substantive question. Since he does not have the answer, I will not pursue it, but I am letting him know I understand English, too.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I thought this was question time, not statement time.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: You can make it, so can I.

The Speaker: Please, order.

Are there any further supplementaries? If there are no further supplementaries, that concludes Question Time for this morning.

Item number 3 in the Order Paper, Government Business, continuation of debate on the Throne Speech delivered by His Excellency the Governor on Friday, 20 February 1998 the Fourth Elected Member for George Town continuing.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

DEBATE ON THE THRONE SPEECH DELIVERED BY HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR ON FRIDAY, 20 FEBRUARY 1998

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I was hoping the Minister for Education would have the Chief Education Officer and the Permanent Secretary for Education stay for this delivery on education, as I continue today on education. I want to make sure my analysis of the state of education in this country does not fall on deaf ears, since we are an Assembly, and that means we are collectively responsible for the improvement or management of our institutions, the educational institution of which I spoke yesterday being in disarray. The reason I said this was not to put blame on anyone in this country for the state of education, but to say I think it is time we look at the sociological reasons for problems within the school system.

The solution to the problems within the school system, I believe, must come, not just as a result of educational strategies, but also jointly with social strategies. For this reason, I was very pleased to note that the past Member for Community Development, the First Elected Member for West Bay, had the good sense to start a programme, the after-school programme, which supports the schooling programme. Again, it is pointing in the right direction, in that we cannot solve the problems in the schools in isolation. The problems in the schools must be solved jointly with problems in the community. If the Government accepts responsibility for the schooling of children, simply out of legal obligation, that is the wrong reasons to accept that mandate.

We accept the necessity of training young minds because the entire productive capacity of our society relies upon persons being able to participate in the workforce, either as skilled or unskilled individuals. The role which human capital plays in improving the productivity of a society, strengthening the social fabric of a society, cannot be underestimated. As I speak regarding the Throne Speech, it is quite obvious that the way I go about showing the interconnectedness of things, of realities, is quite different from the way other persons, who were perhaps not educated in an interdisciplinary manner. My approach is the result of the fact that I think all human institutions are interconnected, therefore interdependent upon each other.

It is therefore impossible to treat the symptoms in the educational system without jointly treating the symptoms in the social system, in the family system in particular. If we separate the school institution from the family institution without jointly seeking solutions, we will find we are putting out the fire in one area, only to have it start in another area, and eventually spread to the area where we had put it out. If we have a culture that is not conducive to schooling on all levels—I think part of the assumption is we like to assume good things about ourselves and our country—but there is nothing wrong in having ideals. The ideal family does exist in the Cayman Islands, but not all families subscribe to these ideals. Not all families can be, truthfully, from a sociological point of view, said to be composed of the characteristics we consider embodied in the ideal middle class nuclear family. It has been for so long, that when we talk about Caymanian. . . and this goes to show how I connect the educational system with the culture in that I will go to the Ministry responsible for culture and show that, in a sense, the culture we are talking about—culture from the point of view of the way of life of a people, the traditions of a people, the social values of a people, the ideas of a people, the aspirations of a people—is all interrelated in terms of management of that culture. The understanding, first of all, of that culture. The critique of that culture. The critique of that way of life, to see what must be changed in going forward, what must be left behind, and what must be taken forward with us into the twenty-first century. A critique, a serious critique of our social, psychological composition as a group of people is necessary at this stage, if we are going to have an educational system that will allow a larger group of people to actively, productively participate in the new economic order of the twenty-first century.

Not all cultures are as regimented as the European cultures. When you look at Europe, and you look at the cold, and the seasons you can harvest and plant, at the way in which their entire life was, if not by nature, conditioned, then by wars conditioned, then when you look at the Industrial Revolution as it started in Europe, and how people were conditioned to behave in a particular manner, where the coercive forces in the society, the coercive forces of nature, could produce an individual who complied, to a very large extent, with certain forms of regimented discipline, organised discipline. This does not necessarily mean, though, that we see this as the ideal society, that we see individuals produced by this society as the ideal individual. Why then should we always compare ourselves with other people and say, We're hardworking, we're this, we're that, we're the other. We're hardworking, and I always stress, for ourselves. That's the way we were before. To work for an organisation becomes a bit of a problem, and we have to begin to get 'hip' to that. It is not the same.

There is no coercive, regimenting force, to force the Caymanian, thirty years ago, to comply with the demands of an employer, to comply with the demands of a football team, to comply with the demands of organised business. For this reason, we have examples before us, like what happens to a football team after that team has had a certain amount of success. Organisational difficulties. There is a difficulty sometimes in people co-operating. People are very individualistic in this country, very self-centred in this country, very opinionated in this country, more so than in other regimented, developed places I have been. But when we accept the same economic systems as those countries have produced over a period of five or six hundred years of development, without going through the social transformation those countries have gone through, because of famine, because of the climate, because of war, because of the Industrial Revolution and the post-Industrial Revolution, if we have not gone through that in terms of the psyche of our people, of course we shall come to a point where we will find that our culture, our heritage is not necessarily compatible with the economic and organisational forms of other developed countries.

That does not mean we are inferior. Of course not! It means we are different. And differences are necessary to accept. We have to accept the differences in order to plan our educational system. That is where, I think, the failure comes. The failure comes by the educational planners refusing to accept the fact that the Caymanian child, the Caymanian family, the Caymanian heritage is different, and therefore you need a different kind of schooling. There is a need for us to communicate, for communication to exist between the culture, the people responsible for the culture, and heritage, and the people responsible for educational planning. Only by there being accepted an interconnection between these things, only by there being a recognised collective solution, an interconnective solution, will we find a solution to the problems.

We are talking about sports, we are talking about the development of sports, we are talking about the development of discipline that comes from sports, we are talking about how the sporting programmes can facilitate the problem of lessening the tendency towards delinquent behaviour, which would therefore lessen the possibility of delinquent behaviour disrupting the schooling process, and therefore making the schooling process more successful. All of these things we have to begin to look at in common and see how one thing supports the other. We cannot go in entirely different directions in terms of building programmes in the community and building programmes in the schools. There must be an interconnection.

It is like saying that if you go to a private school, why are the children in the private school considered more successful? Not because the teachers in the private schools are any better than the teachers in the public schools. Sometimes the teachers in the public government schools are more qualified than the teachers in the private schools. Because Government can afford, in a lot of cases, to pay the teachers a better salary. At least that was the case than, say, Truth for Youth or maybe Triple C could afford. So Government attracts, because of salaries, good, qualified teachers, yet, when we look at it, everyone would agree that the level of education, the success of the children en masse, more kids are affected to do well in the private educational system than in the public educational system. And why? It has to do with the parents. It has to do with the family environment. It has to do with the primary environment, the environment that first of all begins to instruct the child in what to think and what to believe and how to pursue that curiosity which nature has given that child.

We need to accept that in all things, we must have assumptions. There can be no plans without assumptions, and sometimes the assumptions of our plans must be reflected upon after while, so we can get rid of some of the prejudices in our assumptions, and we can make our assumptions a little more based on the actual reality rather than the desired, wished realities. Of course, I am saying that if the educational policies in this country would reflect that and would adopt and look at, through the sociological knowledge now available to us through the family studies and through other studies that have been done, through our interest in our heritage and our exploring who we were and what we were, and accept the fact that we were not a regimented people, and therefore, to go into a regimented system, which is either a school system or a work system, takes some effort.

The state has to encourage this, because the state is the one empowered to do this. We get to the child from an early age. The law says a child must be sent to school at a particular age, because the state is saying there that we cannot just leave the education of the child to the parent. The state is actually saying that in making a law compelling all parents to send their children to school until a particular age. When they come to school, we have to make sure we are not just keeping them, we are not just using the school as a social control institution, an institution to control the kids, to contain the children. We have to use the school as an institution to educate the kids, and this means we have to devise a programme of education that will fit the minds and subcultures of the children we are training. We cannot continue to believe that there is one culture, even in this small country. We cannot continue to believe there is one family structure in this country. We cannot continue to believe that, because that is to the detriment of the people we want to assist. That is to the detriment of the society in the long run.

We have to understand that social and economic factors create people differently, mould people differently, and therefore people's aspirations and dreams will be different. There is no reason Government should interfere with that. That is the natural order of things. If a child is best suited to drive a bulldozer, to be a welder, let that child be encouraged to be that, and let that child develop a good sense of self-esteem, based upon what he knows he will contribute to the society. Let us not go through what some of the African countries went through, where everyone was a lawyer, until a country like Ghana or Nigeria has more lawyers than planters or anything else, because that is what everyone wants to be, because they think unless you are that, you are nobody. That sort of thing. Those are the ideas we need people to come out with.

We need to have our Minister of Education, our teachers in the community, assisting people to believe in a new future for education in this country. We need to have those persons who know and have experience lead the way, not asking people who do not know for a plan. We need to come up with that plan ourselves, those of us who have knowledge of how human behaviour works. I have never made any contribution regarding ideas to the educational system. I have never been asked to make a contribution.

That is one reason I was saying it might be good if the Chief Education Officer or the Permanent Secretary responsible for Education had some ideas, or an opportunity to say my ideas are not necessarily relevant at this point, but I say, my ideas are relevant regarding education. We need to be realistic about the kids we are teaching, and stop dreaming, thinking we are teaching someone else's kids. It really hurts me, on graduation day, when I see all these people, especially people from my District in George Town, people with my complexion, let me say, dress up to go to the Lions' Centre to see their kids graduate. Graduate! Graduate from what to what? Someone needs to say to them, Look, your child is just being let out of the school system. Your child is not being let into anything. Your child is not being graduated or elevated to anything. Your child has been let down! Because your child does not have the tools to earn his or her bread in this country in a dignified manner, because the aspirations of your child were false. Because other persons said to the child, If you don't have these aspirations, if you don't have this kind of success, you should hide and be afraid of who you are and what you can do, so you don't ask questions, you don't tell the teacher you don't understand, you don't tell the teacher you can't read. You don't let anyone know you shouldn't be graduating, and people are promoted and promoted.

I hope, and I bet, we will probably solve this situation much sooner, because it is recognisable at this point, after all these years of graduating and promoting people according to some particular educational philosophy, because the idea was that people would become equal because they had equal opportunities in terms of equal education. But the education can't be equal, because we don't start in this world as equals anyway! We all start as members of a primary group, the family, and not all families are equal. Some have this, and some have that, some have this ability and some have that ability.

The educational system is not going to make people equal. It is not going to make people equal, so the state should not take on the role of trying to make people equal who are different. Because people are different does not mean, at the end of the day, that we are unequal. Because I might be a mechanic and you might be a lawyer does not mean we are unequal. We have different contributions to make, and by George, we should be encouraged to make those contributions with as much pride and dignity as the President or the Governor or the Speaker, or a Member of the Legislative Assembly is able to do. I am saying, in all, that I would like to see the Portfolio of Education become more involved in education.

For it to become more involved in understanding the culture, heritage, social structures, values, and the dysfunctional abilities of some of our people. We need to be more sociological about our approach to education. We cannot have a new direction in education if, at the same time, when we need a plan for today, for education, we have to plan for the year 2000 for everything. The Ministry of Education should continue to do its job, continue to take advice from Members of this House and members of the public who know what some of the problems are in the community, who know that the community problems are defeating the problems, who know we can only support the schools by finding ways of supporting and changing parents who do not really feel their children are very much, because they do not have very much self-esteem for themselves, and it is very difficult and hard for them to convey that self-esteem to their children when they do not have it for themselves.

We need to get back to our communities and begin, as good Christians, to solve the problems in our community by caring and sharing. We have to get away from this institutionalised attitude toward everything, where everything has to be solved by the institutions, and some of us have to accept that spontaneity is sometimes the best way to go about solving problems. The schools for the twenty-first century are important, because education will be important. We are not an agricultural society. We are a society that is very much into tourism and banking.

And to talk about tourism and education at the same time, I believe more Caymanians would become involved in tourism if Caymanian children are introduced, not through Tourism Awareness Week, but by deeds, by actions in the school system. I believe, like Booker T. Washington, that old American educator from the South, that it is better, truly better, to train a person to be a good maid or a good butler or waiter, and to have that person be proud of that, than to say that the person should go to read French or to read philosophy, and if the person cannot achieve that standard, because of the means of that person's family, or because of that person's educational ability, that person is nothing. I believe we have to restore in our society pride in manual work, manual labour, because it was dignified enough for my grandfather and my father, and it should be dignified enough for me or anyone else.

I always believe that part of how we need to change the attitudes of the so-called working classes is for us to show good value in what they do, by encouraging them to do what they do well, and by rewarding them financially well. Today, we find that the people coming here to fix the automobiles and washing machines, and being welders, are making more money than our young people who have college educations, who are going out to work as accountants. Because the world truly is held together, not just by people's brains, but by people's actions, and sometimes, in a lot of instances, those actions have to do with skill and technical labouring. I am encouraging us, in looking at the nation, in looking at the future, to begin to see that there is no way we are going to get away from the problems we will face in the twenty-first century by talking about planning. We need to begin to do today what we can do. We need to look at the problems we can solve, and we need to begin to solve those problems.

Which brings me, Mr. Speaker, to the prisons. Because, like I said, it has to do with this whole interconnection of things. The prison is basically an institution that, so far, has serviced us in a way of saying that if we are failures as leaders, it is not us who will be punished, it is those persons who we owe loyalty and responsibility to. So if part of my constituents do not get an education because the so-called academic education or comprehensive education did not fit their desires or their subculture, that they do not have pride in going out and working as block layers, although there is a lot of work in this country, and God knows you can make good money from doing that.

At the end of the day, they idle themselves as young kids, because they are not apprenticed to anyone. Then maybe they find it is easier to traffic in drugs, because it is much more romantic to begin with, and you can keep yourself looking better. You do not have to have cement on you and use lime to take it off. Maybe you get involved in selling a bit of drugs, and maybe you get involved in using a bit of drugs. We see there is a combination between using drugs and selling drugs. They hang out and talk about how the country is being taken over by foreigners, and they as Caymanians do not have any say, and they build little armies, little cells, all the time. Then we pick them and send them to prison, and that is even a much better training ground for them, and then they continue to build little armies. They will build little armies of consciousness because they have the same consciousness.

When you have the consciousness, when you have the institutions assisting the building of this consciousness, then one day, perhaps, if someone agitates that consciousness sufficiently, that could be very detrimental.

tal to a country like ours, that is dependent upon peace and tranquillity. Ten people, a hundred people, two hundred people, five hundred people, how many people have been socialised through the prison system? How many persons have been socialised through the prison system? And not just because of drugs, because of the failure of the educational system in this country, over the years, to build a solid Caymanian working class. And all we talk about is the middle class, the middle class, the Caymanian middle class, and the professionals. But what about the Caymanian working class? Why is it that no one is trying to reproduce or assist the Caymanian working people in reproducing their class, which is of necessity for the society? Why are they not assisted in this way?

Again, Mr. Speaker, we see the interconnection between things. The reason, speaking about prisons, I am seeking prison reform, is that I understand that if we fail, if we have failed educationally for some time, we need to buy ourselves some time. We send people to prison and think that is a solution, by punishing them they will do differently. But those of us who believe that type of punishment will cause people to do differently, fail to understand why people are doing what they are doing in the first place. People are doing what they are doing in the first place because they enjoy doing it, and they think what they are doing is right, regardless of what you think. Your norms and their norms are different. We have to come to realise a little bit about the delinquent, the criminal, we send to prison. We have to believe that, Okay, we're going to send him off there because he made a terrible mistake. Well, he made a mistake because he has been making a lot of mistakes, according to our position, not according to his friends and his position, because to his friends and his position, he is a hero, she is a hero. What do we do with them?

I believe prison should be, in this Island, because of the scarcity of Caymanian working people, a place of rehabilitation for the Caymanians. I believe that rehabilitation is no more or no less than rebirth. I believe that for a person to be reborn a person has to die in character and be reborn in character. That means the same for the criminal. Why does the state advocate a position on rehabilitation that is anything less than the total rebirth of the person? Do you want the person to stop taking drugs, but yet the person should not be reborn? How is the person going to stop taking drugs when taking drugs is only one part of all the things the person doing that is wrong? It is just one manifestation of a distorted character.

So because we are a small country, and we need our people, and we cannot afford for one or two hundred of them to come out and form themselves into this conscious army of resenters, people who have nothing to lose, like people in American ghettos back in the sixties who were burning the very places they lived in—lived in! That is how people can get when they have nothing more to lose. We do not want to create a class of 'nothing-more-to-lose' in this country. We do not want to do that.

I think, all in all, I have to give my cousin, A. Steve McField, credit for bringing this message home to me over and over and over again over the last twenty years, because he worked in the court system, and he has seen this and he has spoken to me about it. What are you going to do regarding this class you are creating? How are you going to reintroduce them, reintegrate them into the society by way of reintroducing them back into the workforce.

Again, we look for examples of this, and what the past Minister for Labour, Human Resources, the First Elected Member for West Bay did, in that he started a programme that would assist ex-offenders. We understand why this is so important. We understand why this is so important. We are not just doing this because we are altruistic or charitable. We are doing this because we believe that the continual survival of this state depends upon us taming the tempers, taming the minds, changing the minds of the offenders. We need to have their characters reborn.

You know, it is interesting that people talk about situations, how they deal with offenders, criminals, in China and totalitarian countries. They actually send them off to camps where they are actually part of what we in the West call indoctrination, which is changing their minds, giving them a new set of values and ideas. I seriously believe—I'm sorry—I seriously believe that being reborn—that is why if you look at the alcoholics programme, the programme for alcoholics, and you look at the Christian programmes, because the programme for alcoholics is a Christian programme—it can't be a secular programme! How are you going to have a secular programme rehabilitate a person! It is impossible! I am a sociologist and I say it is impossible! You can only be rehabilitated by changing your entire value system, and if there is no attempt in the prison to change the value system wholly and solely of the prisoners, then the prisoners will come back out and offend again and again and again. I would like to see reforms in the prison that take this position realistically into consideration.

I have a brother who is a pastor and he spends a lot of time at Northward Prison. As the questions were being asked today about Northward Prison, I did not ask any questions, because if I want to find out something about Northward Prison, I can ask George. One thing he always says to me is that he is excited about certain things that the Christian community is doing at Northward Prison, at least certain members. There is a difference in approach among Christians to these particular problems.

It excites me that we have people who are willing to go into these institutions, and change these institutions, for nothing. They try to change the people for nothing. We do not have to go and employ another social worker or psychologist to do it—we have the value system and the basis to do so. I continued to say that when we were talking about the rehabilitation with regard to Canaan Land. I said I support Canaan Land. Why does the Government want to get involved in rehabilitation? The Government does not want to get involved in this, simply because it gets into a value problem. You never know which value. But the church knows which value. Let them go forward, because only when you are sure about your values can you convince someone that your value is right and their values, if they became like your values, would impart to them the same success. That is how you have to do it.

We are a small country, and it is still possible for us to grasp these problems. What we have to do as a Government, as a legislative body, is not be protective about the problem. Let them be pastured out, give it to the churches, to this group or the other group. Just be there to support them. I do not know how we would do it legally, but I am quite sure we would find a way of doing it legally. But to say that the State can send somebody to prison, but not say that the person has to get an education while in prison, the State could not say that the person should attend classes, the State should not say that the person should attend worship...that is, if they want to. You go to worship in prison, if you want to? What kind of position is that?

These are the things that when we begin to look, we see the solutions all around. We do not have to come up with some big magnificent plans, all we have to do is look. If we send people to prison, we are sending them there because their behaviour is wrong. If their behaviour is wrong, their behaviour is un-Christian. So that should be the first place we should look to put our rehabilitation programme in, in the little Chapel. I hear that the Prison is getting a Chapel and everyone is working hard on it, but I think that everyone in Prison should have to attend church services.

I am not saying that it will be the end-all solution, but I know that many of them think they have the answers anyway. It is hard, sometimes, for big men to break down and say, 'Oh, I was wrong.' I did a lot of things wrong in my life. Do you know how long it really took for me to admit that the things I was doing were wrong? Do you know how hard that really is? Do you know how you would prefer to die and suffer rather than say that what you are is not good? If it were so for me, I believe it is so for the little man as well. To change him, we have to work to encourage him to seek a new life and a new possibility; a new structure of values and a new structure of choices. This is the direction I would like to see this country go in, a direction that sees solutions by seeing people, a direction that is spontaneous rather than regimented. It is the spontaneous rather than the regimented approach to planning and management that is Caymanian. We have to, if we are going to include our Caymanians in the twenty-first century, remain spontaneous.

We have to remain conscious of the fact that we were not a part of a cruel winter, of a terrible Industrial Revolution, of terrible wars that followed, to produce the kind of character of regimentation. The Caymanian will still say to you, 'I am going home. You can keep your job. I'm going home, because I don't need you.' We still feel, somehow, that the elements of our kind nature support us with what is necessary for life and godliness.

So we must bear this in mind. We must bear this in our vision.

I would like to move on to...

The Speaker: This may be a convenient time to take the morning break. We shall suspend for fifteen minutes.

AT 11.15 AM PROCEEDINGS WERE SUSPENDED

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 11.55 AM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Debate continues with the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I shall continue. I guess the great disadvantage in making long speeches is that people get a little bored, but nevertheless I think it is necessary and right that I give an overview of what I consider to be the important aspects of Government and Government responsibility in these Islands. Taking from what His Excellency the Governor has said, I have tried to show the importance of us coming to terms with our educational system, because at the end of the day it will affect how people are able to get a share of commerce in the Islands, how people benefit from the resources that are being distributed in the Cayman Islands. I would like to deal with the issue of commerce, in the way in which I deal with these things, from an interdisciplinary point of view again.

I understand that there has been a lot of growth in our economy, and that whether it is in the area of mutual funds, or of stocks, the growth is really the result, as we always like to say, between the partnership of the Cayman Islands and foreign capital and foreign expertise. The desire of persons to do business in this Island is well appreciated by all. Nevertheless, I feel we need to get our people to the point that they can demand for themselves whatever share they would like by way of their qualifications. So to continue to develop economically, and to continue to have more of the cake available in this country, without it being available to Caymanians, simply because Caymanians do not have the skills or expertise to demand that in a private enterprise system, will obviously affect us later on, in that Government will probably be pushed into a position of having to interfere in the running of the market economy. We do not want to see this. We do not want Government to have to act as a buffer between foreign investment and expertise, and the demands of the Caymanian people. We want it to remain free, and the only way our economy will remain free is if people are qualified to participate as free individuals.

Regarding the investments in these Islands, I think it is important that we begin to chart out a new way of seeing nation-building citizenship. Toward the twenty-first century, there is no reason we should be stagnant with the retrogressive concepts of nationalism and ethnocentrism. These dogmas provided mankind, in his primitive and early stage, with an idea of cohesiveness and collectiveness, and perhaps was very necessary in the evolution of modern man. But as we stand at the dawn of the twenty-first century, as we reflect on the periods of nationalistic wars in Europe and other parts of the world, we see that most of mankind has come to the conclusion that these were all futile acts, and that they served no useful function in the development of human society. So we, as we come to view the world, as we become more participants in the new world of economic interdependencies, we should, more than anyone else, since we were not forced, because of natural factors or military reasons, to develop a nationalism, because of the lack of threats from the outside and inside, we developed as a state that did not need nationalism to create the kind of regimentation that other parts of the world have needed as a basis for their security.

I think the basis for our security today is exactly the lack of nationalism, the lack of ethnocentrism. The economic order today in the world is based upon all nations, regardless of size, recognising the interdependencies of states. Because if countries were to assume independence, if they were to want to supply themselves with everything they consumed, our world as we know it, which is bonded by trade, would fall apart, and civilisation would cease to exist.

I feel I can fairly say today that civilisation is based upon the development of trade, and trade is based upon the interdependencies, not just of people or individuals, but of countries in the world. For this reason, as we take our place in the twenty-first century, in the modern world, we must take it with the knowledge that we must not produce all for all, that we must produce what we can produce best, that we must play the role from which we will benefit most as a country. There is no need for us to be makers of shoes, when shoes can be made by other persons. Because there is no law in any society that compels anyone, except perhaps in some of the communist countries, that legislates that anyone, because he needs shoes, must make shoes, or because he has the capacity to make shoes, should be making shoes. We leave this up to the individual to decide, upon what basis can he get the best return for his efforts.

We should leave this also to the country to decide how best it can get the benefit from its efforts. If we can get the best efforts from being a financial centre, or from being a tourist destination, then that is what we should pursue. We should not be pursuing other things simply because in this sense we think we need to make ourselves self-sufficient. No country can make itself self-sufficient, simply because we are bonded together by the necessity to trade with each other. Not even the great United States can brag of self-sufficiency. Not Iraq, not Iran, not Germany, can brag of self-sufficiency, because at the end of the day we are all interdependent, and all affected by the trade policies and trade activities in each state.

So we, as a small Cayman Islands, must not always rush to say that we must become independent in this area and independent in another area. We must examine our role as a country that is interdependent. So the possibility to develop and expand our dominance in the international financial markets, that possibility, I think, rests very much in conjunction with our relationship to the United Kingdom, to Great Britain. I feel that the development of the Cayman Islands as a financial centre has been greatly assisted by our relationship with the United Kingdom, and for this reason, we have to ensure, we have to guard this relationship because we should not come to the point to think that somehow in this world countries go it alone. We go it together. If we do not have a relationship with someone we know, we will obviously have to make a relationship with someone we do not know, and it is better to have, like they say, the one you know than the one you do not know.

I am saying we must pursue and peruse this relationship in such a way as to understand that there is nothing wrong with interdependencies. The concept of independence is a concept that is gone away with old nationalism and the old idea that people could somehow put up walls and barriers between them and persons in other countries. We are looking at a new era of internationalism, and in looking toward this internationalism, we can see how a small state like the Cayman Islands becomes an essential part of the family of great nations. Because we provide those great nations with an essential service, and that is a service that can remove itself from the bureaucratic limitations which exist in those developed countries, services that can remove themselves from the nationalistic expectations of the populations within some of these states.

We are in an ideal position, in that we are saying that what belongs to an individual, or what belongs to a corporation, should belong to that individual or that corporation unconditionally, that there should be no claim Caesar should have against an individual's wealth. There should be no claim that Caesar has against the corporation's wealth. In other words, the Government of no country should have a claim against what I earn, what I have. That should be mine to disburse as I see fit. We are believers in this concept. It is important that we re-establish and reaffirm our understanding of our role in the economic order of the world today.

We are grown up as a country. So we are not afraid that tomorrow foreign enterprises will leave this country. Foreign enterprises or activities or economic activities, or commerce activities, will not leave this country tomorrow any more than they will leave Japan tomorrow, or any other place in the world! Because of the interconnectedness of things, because of the way in which commerce has come to structure our civilisations today. So we feel pretty assured that we will continue to benefit economically. All we have to be able to do is to effect our domestic situation in such a way that it will not adversely influence the desire of persons to come here and do business in the Cayman Islands, as a neutral flag-ship, as a non-nationalistic flag-ship.

Today, when we sell condominiums for a million and a half dollars, and tomorrow when we sell them for three million and five million dollars, because a person can come here and enjoy the nice, peaceful atmosphere, be free of these forms of taxation, because why should any state be able to take away from people who work for something, what that state feels justified in taking? So we welcome those persons to these shores. We welcome the building of a new nationality that is based upon these concepts of wealth belonging to those persons who produce that wealth, and not to any government that feels they have a right to it to distribute to people who have not worked for that wealth.

I feel that we need to continue to reassure people that we want to stay away from any form of direct taxation, any form of taxation, and because we need to do this, we must be careful how we encourage our population to expect the Government to do this and do that. We need to have less government. The reinvention of government, or whatever we are talking about here, needs to be seen as government going backwards in size, not going forward. We do not need a government to protect us militarily; we do not need a government to collect taxes, impose taxes to see to our defence. We just need a neutral arbitrator, a neutral body to arbitrate. That is all we really need. Then we need our population to provide for themselves.

We have to go toward the whole idea that we are going to not be talking about Government providing more services, because if Government is providing more services, it means that Government has to collect more revenue, and ultimately, Government is going to be put in a position whereby Government has to consider the introduction of direct taxation. And that will be the day when we destroy the economic structure of our country. So we have to stay away from that. So there must be careful planning and careful consideration regarding how our social system affects our economic system. Therefore, we are back again to the question, if we are developing welfare cases, because people do not have the potential to earn for themselves, if people are not satisfied with what they can earn for themselves, they come to Government, they come to the politician, they affect the political order in such a way that the political order holds a big stick over business and says, 'We're the ones in control; we have the monopoly,'—as the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town said, 'We have the monopoly on violence, and we are going to use that to threaten you, to see that you pay us a certain amount'—as the Member called it, "Robin Hood Economics."

I must admit that my ideas are beginning to change in some ways, and alter, and thank God for the fact that I believe in change, and that I do not have to say, because I said that yesterday, I should say it today. I believe we need to consciously, at this time, when we are considering a plan for 2008, we must be conscious of making an assumption. The assumption must be that there must be no moves in this country toward a direct taxation system. We must move away from that, and the only way we will prevent that is to make Government smaller and smaller and smaller.

Mr. Roy Bodden: True, true!

Dr. Frank McField: It is unacceptable that reasonable men could assume that if Government becomes bigger, the tax burden will become smaller. When Government becomes bigger, the tax burden must become bigger. But our whole concept, our whole claim to this economic miracle is based upon our understanding that taxation could not be good in the first place. That is common sense Caymanian economics. That is common sense economics, very Caymanian. Taxation cannot be good, because it means that someone who has not made anything has a right to what someone who has made, has. This is something we need to steer away from.

We need to understand more our developed relationship with the mother country, and the new partnership, and the benefits this new partnership can bring to us in exposing us to the far horizons of the twenty-first century, and the possibilities of the twenty-first century. We have to bear in mind that our society, because we are inviting people with capital, that do not want the capital to be taxed in a particular way, that feel they could be more creative with their capital if they do not have governments leaning on their capital to buy arms, to fight wars, and to do whatever governments in these big countries do with the capital. That if we are going to invite those people to live here, to be residents here, we have to work out a new concept of belonging, a new concept of who belongs and why they belong.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Hear, hear!

Dr. Frank McField: Belonging can no longer be based on the primitive nationalistic concept that I belong here because I was born here, or I belong here because someone who had me belonged here at one time. We must belong because we produce! That should be the claim to the new order! What you are willing to put into it, not what you are willing to take out of it. It is not what your country can give you, it is what you can give your country.

So again we come back to trying to understand how that could help us, informing a concept of a new identity that is necessary for all we do. We cannot separate immigration from commerce. We cannot separate the energy of the expatriate community from the different parts of the world and the region, the contributions which they make to the resources which Government itself has access to, and spends in the name of the Caymanian people.

Because of the particular nature of our taxation system, that is not a direct taxation system, but a taxation system based upon consumption, that means the man from Jamaica or from England who is consuming the same amount as I am consuming is basically into Government coffers the same amount I am paying. Does that mean then that the person has no rights? Should the person have a right to something? Should the person just have a right to drive on the roads, but not to have their children visit the schools? How do we decide what rights, how are we going to decide what people have a right to? People should have a right to what they pay for.

So we are moving away from the whole hereditary concept of rights, and moving into a new era, where rights are bestowed upon people, or where people get rights as a result of how they contribute. Therefore someone who has been dynamically a contributor in this country for the last twenty years, who comes from Jamaica, should be given all the rights that someone who was born here has, because we are equal in our contribution to the social and economic order. Therefore we should be viewed politically the same. These are the things we already can make assumptions about and make conclusions about, and we do not have to plan for the year 2002.

So when the Governor is saying that we have a chance to decide what kind of country we are going to live in ten years from now, I know already what kind of country I want to live in. I want to live in a country where people are fair, and where people are productive, and where everyone is benefiting, and where everyone knows that the only way one can benefit is if all benefit. Because we are all interdependent and all interconnected.

If we take out 1,000 workers from this country today, we get rid of those work permits, there would be disaster in this country. Not only would jobs not be performed that would affect our economic order and destroy our economic order, but the Government's tax basis would be drained. So even from the point of view of the ability of the Government to perform certain services to the majority of people, immigration is necessary. We have come to the point, therefore, to understand that there is no longer a need to procrastinate regarding what to do with immigrants in this country, we know what to do, and to put it into some future plan is just to say that those persons do not know what to do and I know what to do. I am not saying that everybody in the country will agree with my perspective, but given a little time I might be able to show some of the people the logic of what we are saying.

Why should we postpone the marriage? The engagement has taken place, the courtship took place a long time ago, why should we postpone the marriage? The marriage must come, and it must come soon. Only by that marriage will we be able to preserve that union, that unity called the Cayman Islands. I see, in all these things the vision, Mr. Speaker. We have to develop a new concept of citizenship, a new concept of belonging. We have to get away from the old hereditary concept that as long as you are born in a country you have a right to a country.

I must say that sometimes when I see hardworking people, not necessarily people who are working in the banks and trust companies, but people who are picking up garbage on the streets in this country and have been for twenty years...for twenty years they have been helping us in doing that job and paying their contributions back to the upkeep. People will look at them and say, 'You old Jamaican. You're not nobody, you're not from here.' Yet, the contribution is here. The body is employed here. So what kind of order is that? As the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town said, we were all immigrants. We all came here from someplace. There is no reason why we cannot say that again: We are all immigrants. We are all here from someplace. As the Christians say, 'We are all in this world for a short time.' We are all immigrants in this world. This is not our home.

While we are here, let us be flexible about the terms and principles we use to connect one another and to create a union and a commitment between us. As long as persons who come here, obey our moral and legal order, as long as the persons have nothing against lawful authority in this country we have to give them their rights. We have to accept them as co-producers of wealth in this country. We cannot feel that somehow what they bring here we can keep and they are going to go away and we will be all right. That is not the way wealth is. I think that we need to come to a point in this country where we can explain to people what wealth actually is.

Wealth is activity. It is not something that you can say you are going to hold on this side. The foreigners are coming and they are taking away, we sometimes hear, Caymanian wealth. What wealth? The swamp became wealthy because—it was not producing anything, but the wealth of the swamp is because of our ability to fill the swamp which has to do with machinery. If we had to fill the swamps today with manual labour, the swamps would never be filled, but the swamps are valuable because of the machinery which has been produced in other countries through the labour of other people which we get here to get our swamps habitable.

This is something we have to continue to realise. Even when we are talking about the environment. Sometimes we have to trade something to get something. That is what it is all about. Sometimes we have to take some marl to fill some swamps to let some of our people have someplace to live. Not all men want to build their homes upon the sand, some will build upon the swamps. I am saying this to say that we have to understand in all this great plan, there is an inter-relationship between all brothers in this world. Somehow, those who decide to dwell here among us for a period of time should be regarded as useful and should not be given the idea that we have no ability to come to a conclusion as to what their legal relationship should be in this country.

Already I am saying that we are accepting very rich people in this country who have their businesses registered in this country, who can use the Internet and other means of communication in the modern world, to be working out of their offices in Hong Kong or New York without being there. Those people are allowed to come here and get Caymanian residency, yet the little guy who has been working on the garbage truck for 20 years cannot get residency. This is causing, as the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town so rightly said, people to find reasons for this that might not necessarily be there.

tion is something that really defines our economics. It defines, therefore, our social relationships as well.

I would like to say that just like in a marriage you sometimes become vexed with persons and call them names. It does not mean that that is the way you truly feel. I think that is the way Caymanians sometimes feel about foreign people here. We say things about the Jamaicans, and we say things about the Brits, we say things about the Canadians that we do not really mean. We say them because it forms part of that vocabulary that is so available to most of us, that comes from the period when mankind was nationalistic and ethnocentric. We find these words and we use these words. But when we really reflect, we know that those people are human beings just like us. We know that we have developed such an incredible relationship, such an intimate, personal relationship with most of them that it would be very difficult for us to ask them to leave—even if it were economically possible.

It is funny sometimes when we hear people say, 'Well, those Jamaicans,' when that is who they are married to; their children's father happened to be a Jamaican. We find this in our vocabulary, so we have to begin to suspect the vocabulary. The vocabulary is not a true sign of how people feel. This is where the political directorate has gone wrong in making assumptions on how they should deal with the question of granting Caymanian status. They really think that they should go by the people who are rowing sometimes, rather than going by their homes and seeing how they behave with the same people they are rowing about.

It is a domestic situation and that is what happens when people get close to one another. We have to try to come to a conclusion in regard to persons who are of age in this country, persons in their twenties who came here with their parents when they were three years old. People who went through our school system cannot get work permits. Young people who came here early and have been allowed to stay here, but because they are not Caymanians people say they cannot get a job. The Immigration Board will say, 'Find a Caymanian for it.' The company says, 'Well, we cannot find a Caymanian.' This person could be a Caymanian. This person we are not giving the work permit to could be a Caymanian.

What is stopping that person from being a Caymanian is the political will. People feel that if they did this that somehow the Caymanian people would be upset and not vote for anybody who would make those considerations. I must make the best considerations for the Caymanian people that my rationality tells me and I say that any country this size with a population that we have. . . we need a core population at this point. A core population could be taken from those we have now and we could build from there. We could begin to treat those people who come after differently, perhaps, but we have all the room in this world, we have developed it by expanding, for all of the people who are here and more.

People will not get anything that they have not worked for. This whole concept of ownership...the country does not own anything. Everything is owned by individuals. So there again we need to go back to see that we live in a society where private ownership and private enterprise is the rule, not national ownership and national enterprise. Therefore, what a Caymanian gets has to be as a result of his labour just as what a foreigner gets has to be as a result of his labour.

All we can do is make sure that people have the rights the opportunities. Not even so much the right to opportunities, but that these opportunities exist. Once we continue to support the opportunities existing in a country, even the Caymanian who might not be qualified today might qualify in a year or two and therefore be able to take that opportunity because we have not pushed it out the door. Even when we do not have our people qualified for those opportunities, or we do not have enough people for those opportunities, we have to be careful that we do not run those opportunities away because the day might come when we do need those opportunities.

We are blessed in that we have so many opportunities in this country that we are able to accommodate other people. Other people can eat at our table without us inconveniencing ourselves, therefore, I believe that we should commune with them and make them a part of our blessed social and economic order.

Mr. Speaker, in dealing with the National Pension Legislation, I would like to register my disappointment in viewing today's headlines that ex-pats will not be included in this. I think that what I just said really goes to prove why that should not be that way. I am saying that we are still courting that relationship and the marriage should occur. What happens if the marriage does occur? What happens two years or three years from now if another political directorate came and made the decision to give those same ex-patriots Caymanian status? They would be behind in their pension savings.

One point that was made to me, because I have been concerned over the whole concept of pensions in terms of what we are trying to do, but if we are trying to do it for one group of people, I think it is possible for us to do it for all groups of people because they are all doing the same things—they are working to contribute to this society and the majority of ex-patriots who are here want to have an extended relationship here.

I was an immigrant. I know what it is like to go to a country. All of the immigrants are saying they will stay three or four years and will go back home. Very few immigrants ever go back home. Very few. The majority of them end up having one other goal to pursue—as long as the opportunities in the host country are there, they will continue to stay there. At the end of the day you end up with all the people who are not from your country.

What are you saying now? That you are not going to give them Caymanian status? That you are not going to even include them in a compulsory pension scheme there to protect workers when they get older? Goodness gracious. This is a Christian mind that conceived this plan? Please, I beg to be reminded why. Why not the generosity across the board if the pension plan is any good? If you say the pension is no good, do not give it to anybody. But if it is good for one group of people, it should be good for the other group. What happens to the other people if they worked here for ten years and go back home? Ten most active years of their lives spent in the Cayman Islands contributing to the development of this society, yet they take no contribution back home from the employer who made money off of their skills.

I think that when the debate on that subject comes, I will have some other things to say. But I am saying that all in all it is inconsistent. It is an inconsistency with my vision. My vision is a vision where we are a partnership. It is the same vision the Governor has, the same vision that I hear everyone else talking about, this partnership. Well, if it is a partnership then there should be duties and obligations on both sides. If the Caymanian employer has the duty to pay something towards the retirement benefits of a Caymanian worker, then he should have the duty and the obligation to also pay that to a foreign worker. You cannot—morally, logically or politically—exclude 50% of the working population of this country that happens to be expatriate from this pension scheme if it is a good thing for people.

I would like to deal with Cayman Airways. We are talking about a free economy as much as possible. We are talking about allowing the flow of capital and labourers freely as possible because it is what keeps the economy going. But when the Government takes up a different position in regard to the national airline, and if you look in countries where nationalism persists, the Government believes that it should own certain things, and justify that by talking about the national good. In other words, they are saying that private business can do everything but it cannot support the national good. As far as I am concerned, that is a contradiction.

In a lot of countries, the government feels like it has to own the utilities, and different things like that.

Mr. Roy Boddén: Communist ideas.

Dr. Frank McField: Well, Socialists, Communists, which is just a development of nationalism basically.

If we are going to have competition, how do we then say that we are going to have competition in the retail business in George Town but not have it in the airline business? How do we do that?

How do we say that Cayman Airways should be given preferential treatment but if I want preferential treatment for my chickens, because I am producing chickens, and I feel that Fosters should not be able to bring in the chickens and have the advantage over me...my chickens are getting no protection. My fish that I produce are not getting any. They are not protecting the shoes of the cobbler down the street. We are saying that is bad. That leads to bankruptcies. That destroys countries. We should leave things like they are to be best decided the way the consumer wants them to be decided.

To say that Cayman Airways is necessary because of national considerations in case of a hurricane...now, I do not run from Cayman if there is a hurricane. I have experienced one or two here. I stay here because when I look at the television and see what happened in Florida and other places, I know that this is one of the most blessed places in the world. All the people talk about how blessed Cayman is—but when a hurricane comes and they want to run...I do not agree. I stay right here because here is the safest place on God's earth. I do not need an airline to be there for me to run because I am going to stay right here like the night watchman and watch over what little I have here and who I have here. I intend to weather God's storm here in Cayman.

Basically, if the tourists want to leave, I believe that the pilot who flies for American Airlines, or Northwest Airlines will fly anybody who buys a ticket. If the airlines decide to fly in here and fly those people out, they will. We do not have to have any nationalistic consideration or mercy here to understand that. That can still be achieved by market principles and market factors. When we fly those people out, we cannot do it for free. We will have to charge them. Otherwise we would not be able to buy the energy to put in the planes to be able to do this. I am failing now to understand the logic behind that type of argumentation for Cayman Airways.

Cayman Airways provides Caymanian people with jobs. That is very important. But Cayman employees over 13,000 people from other countries in different jobs. There would be no possibility that those Caymanians would become unemployed as a result of Cayman Airways not existing. They might not have that choice of profession. Some of them might be affected by that. But can we really afford to spend all of that money for people to have choices of professions? If the pilots and hostesses are good enough to fly for Cayman Airways, they are good enough to work for Northwest and American Airlines, or any airline in the world. So that argument is not a good argument either.

What about the whole idea that American Airlines...

The Speaker: Would this be a convenient time for us to take the luncheon suspension?

Dr. Frank McField: Yes, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: Honourable Members have been advised of a meeting that will be held in the Committee Room at 2.15 PM, so we will suspend for the luncheon break until the conclusion of that meeting.

AT 12.41 PM PROCEEDINGS WERE SUSPENDED
(until the conclusion of an informal meeting in the Committee Room)

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 3.11 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I continue with the Cayman Airways issue to say that overtime we are told that Government will embark upon a venture, the citizens of this country should then ask how much it will cost. They should ask 'How will we pay for it? Where will we find the money? What will have to suffer if we embark upon this new venture?' Therefore, hearing that Cayman Airways will be acquiring an additional 737-200 aircraft in 1998, we know where the money will come from but have not yet identifies what will suffer as a result of that loan being guaranteed.

It is not just a case of being able to guarantee a loan, it is also a case of the institution that is draining the resources of the country in particular ways. It provides employment for many of our people, but as has been said, we feel that those persons could be employed in other areas of the economy since at this particular time we employ over 12,000 people from foreign countries in a variety of industries in the Cayman Islands.

It is also felt that some kind of negotiation could be entered into with regard to national carriers from other countries. The question is: Can we afford to continue to subsidise Cayman Airways? Can we continue to believe in the petty nationalistic explanations as to why we need this airline, like: it is a question of national security and necessary for our well-being because of hurricanes (I went through that before), because it provides work for our people (I have gone through that saying that the persons could be employed elsewhere and that airlines from other countries would perhaps be willing to give our people employment if we entered into such an agreement.)

We have to, as with any business, decide: Will you go on to take a risk? Just as at a poker table, you have to say 'All right, I have lost some money at this particular time. I will get up from this table because what I will lose if I continue to play will be greater than what I have lost already.' So, at some particular time we have to make a decision as to whether or not we can ever get out of the difficulties we find ourselves in with the airline. This has been going on for a long, long period of time. Every Government that comes to power or gets out of power, gets blamed for having done this or that to the airline, but no Government has ever been able to give us a solution as to how we would be able to operate in this modern time a little airline that could be commercially successful.

Of course, this little airline has to compete against international carriers carrying a greater volume and are therefore able to offer cheaper fares and are capable of buying spare parts in bulk and providing maintenance. The whole concept of rationalising services and efforts within the airline industry is one of the things we cannot do because of the size of the airline. We cannot afford the risk of the capital that would really be needed to make Cayman Airways successful.

We have to wonder, then, why is it that we allow electricity to be controlled by foreigners? Why is it that we allow the water production to be controlled by foreigners, if we cannot allow the airlines to be controlled by the foreigners? What is the difference? How do we say that controlling an airline, having a national airline is important to the national economic interests if controlling the electricity or the telephone is not important for national economic interest?

Just as American Airlines could withhold services from us, Caribbean Utilities might be able to do something. The people who are making water, Ocean Conversion is not a Caymanian company, making water for both the Water Authority and Cayman Water. So there we are, we have a typical example of something that is necessary for life—water—being made by a foreign company and that company is not sabotaging the national or economic interests of the Cayman Islands.

If our air service was done by American Airlines, or Northwest, and they were to compete for our business, would they sabotage it? The answer, of course, is no. They would not. It is not reasonable to assume that they would abandon us as long as they had a possibility to make profits from serving us.

As long as tourism continues to grow, and as long as there is the financial industry working at the stage in which it is working today, people would be coming to the Cayman Islands. Therefore, the airlines will find all good reasons to have flights to the Cayman Islands. We cannot cover all the ground with Cayman Airways, so we do leave ourselves open to a certain degree of risk. We cannot cover all of our bases. I am saying that the base we are covering at present is costing us too much. We need to think of ways to save this money and use this money to help us develop in other areas; to help us give Caymanians the type of education they will need in the twenty-first century.

There is a lot of talk in the country about the lack of housing, the fact that working Caymanians are finding it very difficult to own their own homes. We know how important it is for persons to own homes in order to feel that they have common ownership in the country, that they have their little piece of land and their little home. Yet, we cannot, as a government, find any extra revenue to assist people with homes—not buying homes for them, but at least providing them with mortgages that would not have too high an interest rate to allow them to buy into a private home scheme.

The Government has the Government Guaranteed Mortgage Scheme, but we need an additional support. The survival of our system has to do with our ability to redistribute resources and the redistribution of resources should be by way of people working and getting rewarded as a result of their contribution. Therefore, we could spend some of the money that we save from subsidising the airline. We could spend that on developing a housing programme, or a fund of money available for mortgages that people could borrow at low interest rates.

We could do so much with this money. Not to say spend this money anyway on Cayman Airways because it is needed and because we can get money from someplace else to try to solve the housing problem. We do not have an unlimited amount of revenue. Our revenue source is limited, therefore, all the revenue that is committed should always be re-examined. We should always re-examine our commitment. We should constantly review our commitments to spending; our commitments to Cayman Airways or whatever. We should constantly review that and ask whether or not the country can afford it and whether or not it is the best decision we could make in regard to how we spend the money. We should take into account the total needs of our society. We should not always build it up saying that those people critiquing this policy of subsidising Cayman Airways. The people who critique it have no suggestion as to what the alternatives would be.

I am saying that one of the alternatives is that the competitive carriers, like Northwest and American Airlines could be brought in here. We could sign an agreement with them that would stipulate what type of relationship we want to have with them. That is also a possibility. It could be explored. We could be told whether or not it is possible, but it should be investigated.

We are looking at whether or not this will be a good thing for our country at the end of the day. I am not trying to say that people should not have a job. I am not trying to take jobs away from anyone. But I am trying to look at the possibility of readjusting our commitment before we go too far, before we have too many planes and have too much capital and too many people dependant upon the airline for jobs, and before they get too old to have the possibility of getting jobs with other airlines.

I would like, in terms of considering the need for Government to raise additional revenue, look at the National Gallery. In the Throne Speech, the Governor mentioned the desire by the Ministry of Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture to have The Heritage Law (1991) include the National Gallery, and other cultural bodies, and develop a national cultural heritage plan.

The National Gallery is a strange concept. It is something that seems to have germinated back in the days of Mrs. Gore when she was here and expressed her desire to see a National Gallery established in the Cayman Islands. Again, whatever it is we do, when we are saying that we want to make Government smaller, while at the same time creating another institution, we are getting involved in supporting the idea of creating a National Gallery. At the end of the day, the National Gallery will take money, just like the Harquail Theatre took money. The Harquail Theatre was a gift. The Government did not pay money for the Harquail Theatre. But at the moment, the Government is spending over $350,000 a year supporting the Harquail Theatre by way of the Cultural Foundation. So the National Gallery will take money away from other things that we might consider to be priorities.

Encouraging and fostering this idea we must critique it as to whether or not it can be justified at this stage of our development. We have persons in this country. . . and when we talk about a National Gallery we are talking about the fine arts—paintings, sculptures, different things like that, craft work could all go into that concept, depending upon what the persons involved were considering as appropriate to a National Gallery. We have a Museum. We have an Archives. It all costs. It is good to have, but it all costs us. A National Gallery at this particular time should be a private enterprise. Why is Government going into it? Why is some private enterprise not developing this concept? How will it help us to better understand our Caymanian heritage? How will it show our heritage? How will it display our value system? What will the function be? Will it be a non-productive function, or will it be productive? Will it be a money-earning institution in that it would be able to pay for itself?

Judging from my experience with cultural development in these islands, I would say that most likely it will not be able to pay for itself, and even if we get private people involved at this particular time, Government will have to pay for the recurrent expenditures. The question is, Do we want to keep persons in the island qualified to take over the positions in these galleries, or will we end up in the same situation as we did with the Harquail Theatre where we feel that no Caymanians are qualified to have the position and at the end of the day we end up providing jobs only for expatriates.

This is the case at the Harquail even today. What we find is that the Harquail stifled Caymanian artistic creativity rather than helping it to develop. That is my prospective on that. I am not the person responsible for this particular Portfolio, but I have had my share of experiences with it as well. I do believe that what I am saying here is that we need to encourage the Caymanian artists. We need to encourage the painters and the sculptors. We need to encourage them to do basketweaving and so forth and so on. We need to encourage that. But we do not need to build a place to put these things in before we have truly developed the potential for people to produce these things on an artistically competitive level. That is still some way into the future, somewhere in the next 15 or 20 years, with ease, so what is the hurry? Why is there an attempt to push this in place at this particular time? I am saying again that we need to assist the Caymanian artists, like Bental Hydes, who have problems selling their works but who have to live from their ability to sell their works. It is much more important for me to see Bental's works in somebody's home knowing that they have paid for it, than in a museum knowing it was just borrowed. He certainly cannot be sustained economically by that type of patronage.

I am asking that the Government have a more developed approach to the culture and the artists that they get involved and encouraged to paint by providing them with seminars and workshops and encourage people with money to buy the paintings and sculptures and other works; but do not jump the gun by saying we need to build a National Gallery.

This is going to be recorded and I hope that the fate of the Gallery will not become like the fate of the Harquail because I did make the statement (back in the 1980s) that somehow the Harquail Theatre set Caymanian culture back by ten years if not forever. It was because the institution became more important than the individuals that caused a need for the institution in the first place. We have to remember that people are always more important than buildings or plans. We only plan for people, we make buildings for people. That is why they are there. They are not more important than people, so we do not want to lose the perspective.

I am calling for some considerations on these particular issues. Although it all seems very critical, it is not very critical because I am not saying that art is not important. It is. I am saying that buildings are less important when you come to art. What is important in art is the motivation. It is the desire of the artist to create and to reflect and to bring to our attention certain issues and certain matters that give us a feeling that somehow we collectively own the same spirit. That can be the role of the artist. But in the case of Bental Hydes, for instance, who spends most of his time in the United States simply because he finds it very difficult to exist here from a financial point of view, it would be good if we could do something for him and the other artists who might be trying to go and follow his footsteps in a certain way, rather than holding up and putting on a pedestal the art institution. Let us put the artist on the pedestal and not the building. That I beg.

Mr. Speaker, I am going to do what most Members would love for me to do at this particular point—wind down and finish off. I think what I have tried to do is show the strategy, the linkage between the different ideas and principles that have been brought to focus, showing how all things are inter-connected. In planning for one thing, we must plan for many things.

I still have great confidence in the Members of the Legislative Assembly. I have great confidence in our ability, even if it is not a first step, to collectively select the best ideas that we have, the best directions we have, and to go forward to implement programmes that will at the end of the day reflect the best of our capabilities.

I still feel that we live in a blessed country. I am proud to be a part of this country, and privileged and proud to be a part of the Legislative Assembly of the Cayman Islands going into the twenty-first century. I am happy that this is my only job. I, again, thank the people of these islands for giving me a job because I can hold my head up and prove that in my head knowledge resides, and that given the opportunity and the possibility to expound upon these theories, I can give the country the type of leadership it so badly deserves. I do not need to go into any philosophical darkness because I have not been there before, I have been there philosophically, sociologically, physically also in that I have travelled and lived in a lot of these countries that we now borrow ideas from.

These ideas are no strangers to my mind. Perhaps the reason why I had difficulty adjusting myself back in this country in the first place was because in my mind and in my head were, perhaps, too many of these ideas and theories. Now that the chicken has come home to roost and time is longer than rope, we find that others are coming back from talking about vision and about planning. I still say that I said first, 'Time is longer than rope,' because I knew that I would be on this stage. I planned the delivery of these words.

Thank God Almighty, Mr. Speaker, I am here.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause) Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause) Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause)

Honourable Members, I do not want to deprive anybody of their right to speak. This is an important speech, but we cannot wait much longer. (Pause)

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

STANDING ORDER 38 MOTION THAT THE QUESTION BE NOW PUT

Mr. Roy Bodden: According to Standing Orders, I move that the question be now put.

The Speaker: Before putting the question, I would like to give Members another opportunity to speak. Does any Honourable Member wish to speak? (Pause)

If no other Member wishes to speak, I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: BE IT RESOLVED THAT THIS HONOURABLE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY RECORD ITS GRATEFUL THANKS TO HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR FOR THE ADDRESS DELIVERED AT THIS MEETING.

The Speaker: That concludes the business on the Order Paper. I will entertain a motion for the adjournment.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until Monday morning at 10 o'clock.

The Speaker: The question is that this House do now adjourn until 10 o'clock Monday morning. Those in favour, please say Aye.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, you do not usually take a debate on this, but it is a question before the House. I think it is a shame when people are ready to go to debate, because we see them writing and we see them with papers, we know they are ready and then they do not speak. I think it is time that we set up some kind of roster because there are those of us who like to speak but not ready while others we know are ready. I would ask you to write to Members to ask them whether or not they would consider a speaking roster.

The Speaker: Thank you. I certainly will do that. I hesitated to put the question as I felt this was a very important speech and all Members needed an opportunity. I think I gave all Members sitting in the Chamber enough time to make up their minds. I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AT 3.41 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10 AM MONDAY, 2 MARCH 1998.

EDITED

OATH OF ALLEGIANCE

Mr. Donovan W. F. Ebanks, M.B.E., J.P.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: I, Donovan Ebanks, do swear that I will be faithful and bear true allegiance to Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II, her heirs and successors according to law, so help me God.

The Speaker: Mr. Ebanks, we welcome you as the Honourable Acting Member. Please take your seat.

Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. Question No. 9 stands in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION 9

No. 9: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning: How are the behavioural problems of students at the Alternative Education Centre dealt with?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: When a student is first admitted to the Alternative Education Centre, he/she will have been referred by the school and will also have been assessed by the Educational Psychologist. A complete report of the student outlining the problems he/she has been experiencing is therefore available to staff at the Centre.

After a brief period of observation, programmes are designed to implement strategies and behavioural management techniques to remedial and modify the student's problem behaviours such that he/she will be able to fit back into mainstream school.

Baseline Data is compiled from observations made - and the frequency and duration of appropriate and inappropriate behaviours are noted and graphed. After the intervention strategies have been implemented, this process is repeated and any changes either in terms of improvement or deterioration are noted.

At the end of each term the student is the subject of an multidisciplinary case conference where all concerned professionals meet to develop future treatment and educational programmes. If, as a result of this meeting, where teachers' reports and recorded data of observed behaviour are considered, it is deemed that the student is ready to begin the reintegration programme, then a provisional timetable is implemented whereby the student will return to his respective school for one series of lessons per week (e.g., five lessons of English or Mathematics per week, etc.).

The intervention strategies employed within the Centre have an emphasis towards a "positive only" behaviour modification approach and a token economy system is employed whereby students earn varying levels of privileges depending upon their work and behaviour.

It should be noted that the whole approach within the Centre is geared toward helping students realise that they have choices and decisions to make as to what actions they should take and that they are responsible for the consequences of those actions.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: While the students are at the centre, are there any counselling sessions with the students?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Yes, from an on-site counsellor as well as from Cayman Counselling.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say whether these sessions involve individual students, or are they sessions with multiple students? Also, are parents involved with the students in any of these counselling sessions?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Most of these are individual conferences. Parents are invited in to them.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say whether in the event of some of the more disruptive behavioural problems it is mandatory for the parents to attend at least some of the counselling sessions with the students?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: We do everything, the school does everything possible to request that they attend. But there is no mandatory sanction (which is what I think the Member is referring to) by law that forces them to attend.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister state if, after the students have returned to the schools from which they came, there is any follow-up counselling?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The answer is yes. The counsellor goes to the school and follows up.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries the next question is No. 10, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 10

No. 10: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning to state whether Cayman Airways Ltd has now met the Federal Aviation Authority's requirements regarding noise levels on their equipment.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: This question has been asked several times previously. Cayman Airways Ltd has always met and is fully in compliance with the Federal Aviation Authority's requirements in this respect. If it were not so the Airline would not be permitted to operate in the Unites States of America.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister tell the House when this equipment was supplied to Cayman Airways , and at what cost?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The present jets we run are in compliance. I am not certain what equipment the Member is referring to.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister state if in the not-too-distant future there are any other requirements Cayman Airways will have to meet regarding the noise levels?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: At the end of 1998 one aircraft will have to be hush-fitted.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister tell the House what the cost of such a fitting will be?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Depending upon which kit is chosen, and depending upon the amount of time, it will range between US$800,000 to maybe US$1,004,000.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister state if the other air plane being used by Cayman Airways has already met this requirement?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The other aircraft does not have to be hush-fitted until the end of 1999.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say whether or not the (approximately) $800,000 he mentioned included the cost of labour? Or is that $800,000 exclusively for equipment?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: It will include the labour. The cost of the kit will depend upon whether or not it has time on it or not, the same as if you were to buy an engine with half-time on it you would get it at a different price. That is why I have given an estimate of the cost ranging between that.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister state whether this exercise will be completed by the maintenance department of Cayman Airways in Grand Cayman, or is this work that has to be contracted elsewhere?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I am instructed that it can be done here.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries the next question is No. 11, standing in the name of The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 11

No. 11: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning if there are any plans to move the Maintenance Department of Cayman Airways Ltd. from Grand Cayman to Miami.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Presumably this question is meant to ascertain if it is intended to transfer the physical maintenance of the aircraft to Miami, rather than the maintenance staff. There are no plans to move the work to Miami or anywhere else at this time. Cayman Airways Ltd is presently examining the way it meets its obligation to maintain its fleet in order to determine the most cost effective and timely manner of doing so. When this examination is completed, it will be studied carefully by the Board and Management before any decision is made. Maintenance of Cayman Airways Ltd or any other airline is a very large portion of the operating cost of the airline, and the cost and speed with which maintenance can be carried out can decide the profitability of the Airline.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister give the House some idea of when this examination may be completed?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I would estimate within the next two to three months.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister say what spurred Cayman Airways on to do this examination?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: In accordance with our planning, as we plan ahead, we review different departments and areas of the airline and this one is now under review.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister say if the reasoning behind the so-called study is because it has been determined that the cost of maintenance of Cayman Airways is above the acceptable norm?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I have looked at the cost of maintenance of US airlines. While I cannot give the specifics, it ranges from about $475 per hour up to about $700 per hour. I think we are somewhere mid-way in that. We are closer to US$600 per hour.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister say if the physical maintenance of the aircraft is presently being done by existing staff in the maintenance department of Cayman Airways, and if a decision were taken to move this physical maintenance would it then mean that the numbers of staff in the maintenance department might diminish?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: That is a question where I am asked to give an opinion. Since no decision has been taken, I would really rather not have to give an opinion on it.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Let me be as clear as I can be with the question. I am not asking for the Minister's opinion, I am asking the Minister if this is done would the number in staff change. That is not an opinion, Sir. That is simply asking him if a situation were to arise would the numbers diminish.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I am being asked to answer a hypothetical question. At this stage it is not a fact—and I have stated that—that there is going to be any change. I do not want to give the Member wild guesses on this and I really would rather not answer that. If he comes back and specifically puts a question that I can prepare on that point, I think that would be better rather than my attempting to give an opinion on something that I do not really know precisely what I am stating.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister tell the House whether the maintenance staff at Cayman Airways are employed exclusively to Cayman Airways, or are they also taking in outside work?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The Maintenance Department does work for other carriers that are in here. On major jobs staff are brought in from overseas, normally the United States, for example a C-7 Check (which is commonly called a D-Check). That would probably be done overseas, but the C-Checks that are done annually for example, we do bring in some staff to do that.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister state if Cayman Airways has any contracts with any other airlines, whether local or foreign, to do maintenance?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Yes, Mr. Speaker, as I mentioned earlier, we do have contracts with other carriers in here to do maintenance. In fact, we maintain most of the carriers in here.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say if one of the terms of reference of the examination is to explore the economic feasibility of having the maintenance done in the Cayman islands as against being done in another jurisdiction, (i.e., Miami)?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: This study, the first decision that the Board makes is the question of safety. Wherever it is necessary for the safest maintenance to be done, that decision over-rides. I want to make that clear at the beginning. The second and subsidiary point is cost. This is being looked at. But throughout, the over-riding decision will be safety.

As I said, there is no decision to move maintenance from here. We do studies of different departments of the airline on a fairly regular basis and look at each department in depth in an effort to improving the department within Cayman Airways, and improving its overall efficiency.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say why there would be an over-riding concern with safety of the maintenance at this point? Is there some reason to be dissatisfied with the performance or with the level of maintenance procured in the Cayman Islands?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The Board, the Government and I think every Member of this Legislative Assembly, throughout with Cayman Airways, the first and over-riding duty is safety. This is not being done because of any cause of concern and I am very surprised that this would be raised. This Legislature, the Government and the Board of Directors have stated throughout that safety is first. I am repeating now for the fourth or fifth time that this is a routine study being carried out by this department. It has been carried out in other departments and will be carried out in the future in further departments as well. It has nothing to do with any worry of any sort; but it has to be good practice from the point of view of safety and business to review departments in the course of planning which Cayman Airways has at present.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries that concludes Question Time for this morning.

Item number 4, Government Business. I will entertain a motion for the suspension of Standing Order 46 to enable the Bills to be taken at this time.

The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

BILLS

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 46

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: I move the suspension of Standing Order 46 to enable the following Bills to be read a first and second time:

- The Patents and Trade Marks (Amendment) Bill, 1998
- The Public Loans (Repeal) Bill, 1998
- The Miscellaneous Provisions (Fees and Duties) (Temporary) (Amendment) (Environmental Protection Fees) Bill, 1998
- The Companies (Amendment) (Exempted Company) Bill, 1998

The Speaker: I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 46 SUSPENDED TO ENABLE THE BILLS SET OUT ON THE ORDER PAPER TO BE READ A FIRST AND SECOND TIME.

FIRST READING S

THE PATENTS AND TRADE MARKS (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1998

The Clerk: The Patents and Trade Marks (Amendment) Bill, 1998.

The Speaker: The Bill is deemed to have been read a first time and is set down for Second Reading.

THE PUBLIC LOANS (REPEAL) BILL, 1998

The Clerk: The Public Loans (Repeal) Bill, 1998.

The Speaker: The Bill is deemed to have been read a first time and is set down for Second Reading.

THE MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS (FEES AND DUTIES) (TEMPORARY) (AMENDMENT) (ENVIRONMENTAL PROTECTION FEES) BILL, 1998

The Clerk: The Miscellaneous Provisions (Fees and Duties) (Temporary) (Amendment) (Environmental Protection Fees) Bill, 1998.

The Speaker: The Bill is deemed to have been read a first time and is set down for Second Reading.

THE COMPANIES (AMENDMENT) (EXEMPTED COMPANY) BILL, 1998

The Clerk: The Companies (Amendment) (Exempted Company) Bill, 1998.

The Speaker: The Bill is deemed to have been read a first time and set down for Second Reading. Second Readings.

SECOND READINGS

THE PATENTS AND TRADE MARKS (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1998

The Clerk: The Patents and Trade Marks (Amendment) Bill, 1998.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I beg to move the second reading of a Bill entitled the Patents and Trade Marks (Amendment) Bill, 1998.

The Cayman Islands Trade Mark Registry is an extension of the United Kingdom's Registry. In 1996 the United Kingdom Trade Mark system was changed by ratification of the Madrid protocol to reflect the introduction of the European Community Trade Mark System which operates in parallel with national systems. Accordingly, rights under marks registered pursuant to the protocol are protected in the United Kingdom where the United Kingdom has been designated for inclusion by the Trade Mark Proprietum.

In order for such rights to be duly extended to the Cayman Islands Trade Mark Registry, our Patents and Trade Marks Law needs to be amended to specifically allow this. Clauses 3, 4, and 5 of the Bill deal with this aspect. Clause 8 provides that the Cayman Islands Registry be notified of any changes or modifications to the registration of the rights made in the European Community.

Additionally, the amendment Bill in Clauses 6 and 7 also removes the reference to service mark which is obsolete. Clause 9 revises the fee structure to enable the Cayman Islands registry to charge fees based on the number of classes in which protection is sought, as is done in the United Kingdom's Registry. Consequently, the fee for registration in one class remains as it was, but there is now a fee of $50 for each additional class registered upon application, and $25 per additional class annually. The application fee for renewal has been increased from $50 to $100 and the search fee from $10 to $25. These fees were last revised in 1992.

I commend the passage of this Bill to this Honourable House.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled, The Patents and Trade Marks (Amendment) Bill, 1998, be given a second reading. The motion is now open for debate. (Pause)

If there is no debate, I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: THE PATENT AND TRADE MARKS (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1998, GIVEN A SECOND READING.

The Speaker: Second Readings, continuing.

THE PUBLIC LOANS (REPEAL) BILL, 1998

Clerk: The Public Loans (Repeal) Bill, 1998.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I beg to move the second reading of a Bill entitled, The Public Loans (Repeal) Bill, 1998.

The Public Loans Law (1996 Revision), enables the Currency Board to raise money by issuing Government securities such as treasury bills and government bonds. As this House is aware, the Currency Board was abolished with the creation of the Monetary Authority. The Law is therefore inoperative with the absence of the Currency Board Law, and in the absence of any corresponding enabling provision being made in the Monetary Authority Law similar to what existed in the Currency Board legislation. For these reasons it is necessary to repeal the Public Loans Law which is the subject of this Bill.

I commend this Bill to this Honourable House.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled, The Public Loans (Repeal) Bill, 1998, be given a second reading. The motion is now open for debate.

The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I rise to support this Bill, and to raise just one or two questions on it.

I note that the Bill seeks to repeal the Government's power under the Public Loans Law to raise funds through the issuing of treasury bills and government bonds. The rationale used on this is that the Government will continue to be able to raise money through loans from banks, which has been possible since time immemorial.

Notwithstanding the demise of the Currency Board, one would have thought that the Monetary Authority (an advancement on the Currency Board) would have made provision for other means of raising funds for the country, especially in view of the fact that this country is one of the leading financial centres in the world. One would have thought that the somewhat tried and antiquated system of bank loans would have been improved through additional areas. I believe that the Honourable Member moving this Bill will no doubt comment on this, but to restrict Government's ability to raise loans through just the banks is, I think, not a very progressive step.

I would ask that the Honourable Member moving this Bill to reconsider this position. If we have now advanced to the stage where we have a Monetary Authority, one would have thought that under the Monetary Authority Law, or even within its internal operation that consideration should be given for this country to raise loans in the cheapest manner possible that would have the least negative impact on the finances of this country.

I ask that the Honourable Member to take these few remarks into consideration in his winding up.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Boddan: I support this Bill. One of the points the Member has raised, while it obviously has a lot of merit and is one especially that I know is usual when central banks are in place. I think we should exercise caution in relation to all borrowing, but especially in relation to borrowing bonds or debentures. What is lacking in a bond or a debenture is the compellability to repay. If that is strictly put in the Law and carried out, then I fully agree with the Honourable Member.

Some of the other countries that we know have issued bonds or debentures and roll them over at the end of, say, every ten years or whatever, and after a while, one Government can bind another Government over a very long period. While I think there is merit in what the Third Elected Member for George Town has raised, I believe that we have to exercise caution. I am sure that he would want that caution to be put into a Law, and that it be done with strict rules, as he knows because he is a qualified accountant, on a sinking fund to make sure that repayment, retirement at the end of the period does happen. With the loans from Caribbean Development Bank and the other banks, the banks do enforce strict repayment of it.

I guess what I am saying is that while I agree with the Honourable Third Elected Member for George Town, I would say that when the stage comes that we look at issuing bonds, perhaps a separate Law, as was done in the past, like a Loans Bill, or a Bonds Bill, could be brought setting out strict pay-back clauses in it.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? If not, I will ask the Mover if he wishes to reply. The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, first of all, let me thank Honourable Members for their contributions to this Bill. In particular, I have taken note of the comments raised by the Third Elected Member for George Town, and also the comments shared by the Honourable Minister for Education.

What we have in front of us does not challenge the merits or demerits of the Government to borrow money by way of raising bonds. We have an anomalous situation, whereby we have a Law that cannot be operated, and it is of necessity that this should be corrected by way of repeal of this legislation. I do take the point made by the Honourable Member, that it is more desirable in given circumstances to seek to raise funds, especially loan financing, through the issuing of bonds. We do recognise that borrowing from the bank will normally be more expensive, both in the short and long run. For us to get to this stage, we are at a point where we are considering a reform of our financial systems. We are also looking at the revision of the Public Finance and Audit Law.

We are also, of necessity, looking at other pieces of legislation and regulations as well to accompany to review of the Public Finance and Audit Law. Once a policy has been established by the Government as to its public debt position and the way forward in the future, a decision can be taken as to what precise measures should be put in place to govern any decision that should be taken regarding the issuing of bonds and other treasury bills. I support the views advanced by the Honourable Member, as I said earlier. They are of substance, but this is something we will have to look at, rather than just retaining the provision as it now exists, or seeking to amend the Monetary Authority legislation to put in a corresponding provision, as existed in the Currency Board legislation.

The Speaker: I shall put the question. The question is that a Bill entitled The Public Loans (Repeal) Bill, 1998 be given a Second Reading. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The Bill has accordingly been given a Second Reading.

AGREED: THE PUBLIC LOANS (REPEAL) BILL, 1998, GIVEN A SECOND READING.

THE MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS (FEES AND DUTIES) (TEMPORARY) (AMENDMENT) (ENVIRONMENTAL PROTECTION FEES) BILL, 1998

The Clerk: The Miscellaneous Provisions (Fees and Duties) (Temporary) (Amendment) (Environmental Protection Fees) Bill, 1998 .

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, I beg to move the Second Reading of a Bill entitled The Miscellaneous Provisions (Fees and Duties) (Temporary) (Amendment) (Environmental Protection Fees) Bill, 1998.

The Miscellaneous Provisions (Fees and Duties) (Temporary) Law, 1997, currently states that an environmental protection fee of $4 shall be collected from cruise ship tourists, and this shall come into effect by order of the Governor in Council. Honourable Members of this House will recall that when this additional fee was being discussed, the Honourable Minister for Tourism pointed out to this House that the cruise lines normally sell their tickets eighteen months in advance, and as a consequence, it was agreed that the implementation date should be determined by Executive Council.

Subsequent to the legislation being given passage, the Minister of Tourism met with the Cruise Line Association representatives, at which time it was pointed out by the Association that the additional increase of $4 would be quite onerous to absorb or to pass on by the cruise lines to their passengers who had purchased their tickets long in advance. After several meetings with the cruise ship representatives, it was agreed that effective 1 October 1997, every agent shall collect from a cruise ship specified by the Minister as a seasonal cruise ship, a fee of US$2 or CI$1.60 for the first year commencing 1 October 1997.

After the expiration of this period, the fee would increase to US$4 or CI$3.20. For those ships classified as year-round cruise ships, a fee of US$1 or CI$0.80 for the first year commencing 1 October 1997, and after the expiration of this period, the fee would be increased to US$2 or CI$1.60. Further, as a good will gesture, and for the Cruise Lines Association, in showing their support for the Cayman Islands, they agreed to an annual contribution to the Hospital of $100,000 for the next five years, for a total sum of US$500,000. The first instalment of this sum, which is $100,000, was paid during last year. I commend this Bill to this Honourable House.

The Speaker: The question is that The Miscellaneous Provisions (Fees and Duties) (Temporary) (Amendment) (Environmental Protection Fees) Bill, 1998 be given a Second Reading. The Bill is now open to debate.

The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In understanding the intention of this Bill, a couple of questions come to mind, and I wish to raise them so that the Honourable Third Official Member, in his wind-up, may address them. As the Bill reads, it is repealing section 7 of The Miscellaneous Provisions (Fees and Duties) (Temporary) Law, 1997. In the new proposed substituted section, 7(1) reads, "every agent shall collect from every passenger in every outward bound vessel or aircraft, an environmental protection fee of $2 or such other sum as may be prescribed by the Governor in Council in regulations, subject to affirmative resolution.

While I am sure it has already been thought out, or I hope it has been, I would like to get a clear understanding as to the mechanism that will be used to collect these fees, and the method by which the checks and balances will be put in place. It also brings to mind something that has come to my attention, and I do not have the exact details, but I will voice it in my ordinary lay terms so it can be addressed. It is my understanding that, at the airport, any fees collected from outgoing passengers by some regulation or the other, it may not be a local one, but there is some specific regulation, and I use that term loosely, which not only implies but states that these fees that are collected at the airport should only be used to the upgrading of that facility and any other surrounding facilities, which the Civil Aviation Authority is in charge of. I do not know too many details of it, but if my understanding is clear, that is a real concern and it needs to be addressed.

If we go into section 7(6), it makes a statement again, and it reads, "Every person having a full or part proprietary interest in a vessel or aircraft in the Islands shall appoint an agent in respect of that vessel or aircraft for the purposes of collecting an accounting for the environmental protection fees referred to in subsection (2)." That statement, if it were someone else who brought the Bill forward, and I will not call any names here, but if it were someone else, I know that person would answer my first question by saying, This is the answer to it, because some of us are like that, Mr. Speaker. But I am sure the Third Official Member is made of different stuff, and he will go into a proper explanation so we ordinary people can understand.

The other point I wish to raise, and I do thank him for advising the Honourable House that there is this $100,000 per year donation to the Hospital for five years, while this Bill does not directly address the issue of cruise ship moorings, based on knowledge gained in the previous sitting of this House, where we understand that the Government intends to make some payment out of this fund to the loan which the Port Authority procured for the cruise ship moorings, perhaps the issue could be addressed, whereby we will be able to determine if, having installed the cruise ship moorings, there will be any other fees levied for the use of these moorings by the cruise ships, or how this situation is going to be addressed in the long term. Because naturally the loan that has been procured by the Port Authority must be serviced until the debt is retired. I hold the view that if a service, or something in the nature of a service, is provided by a certain entity, and there are others who use the service, especially if it is not the people of the Cayman Islands, there should be some type of remuneration.

If the $2 being addressed in this Bill is that remuneration, then I raise the question, if the Port Authority is dealing with the cruise ship moorings on the one hand, should it not be the Port Authority who deals with the collection of a fee for the use of these moorings. If that is not the case, is the Port Authority simply providing these moorings, not only to protect the seabed, supposedly, on our part, but are they going to get any remuneration? These are issues which may seem trivial, but I think it is all to do with the way the Government operates, and I would like to hear some answers on it. Thank you.

The Speaker: Does any other Honourable Member wish to speak? Does the Honourable Mover wish to reply?

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I should point out that, in response to the several questions raised by the Honourable First Elected Member for George Town, by way of the checks and balances that will be in place to ensure that the monies collected are properly accounted for, first, these monies will be paid into the Treasury Department by the agents appointed or approved to collect the environmental protection fees from these cruise ships. This money will be supported by the details of the passenger manifest. This will provide an accurate indication as to the amount being paid over.

As Honourable Members are aware, at the previous sitting of this Legislative Assembly, or during the Budget meeting, approval was granted for the setting up of an environmental protection fund, into which these fees will be paid.

Secondly, once the mooring arrangements have been put in place, it is understood that the Port Authority will be allowed to levy additional charges, as a part of its fee collection process for the services it will be providing under this arrangement. The monies collected and paid over into the environmental protection fund will not be the only levy made on the cruise ships, but there will be a service charge for the use of these facilities. By way of the assistance being provided by the Government, as mentioned during the setting up of this fund, in the first instance, approval of this Honourable House will have to be granted for all disbursements out of that fund, because it was deemed that the installation of the mooring buoys was necessary to give protection to the environment, and were seen as such. It was therefore deemed that the servicing of this loan would qualify for a draw-down or charge to be made against the environmental protection fund. I also would suggest that whenever a meeting of Finance Committee is held to give further consideration to this and to state specifically what sums of money will be taken out of the fund to service the loan, more details will be provided.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled The Miscellaneous Provisions (Fees and Duties) (Temporary) (Amendment) (Environmental Protection Fees) Bill, 1998 be given a Second Reading. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: THE MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS (FEES AND DUTIES) (TEMPORARY) (AMENDMENT) (ENVIRONMENTAL PROTECTION FEES) BILL, 1998 GIVEN A SECOND READING.

THE COMPANIES (AMENDMENT) (EXEMPTED COMPANY) BILL, 1998

The Clerk: The Companies (Amendment) (Exempted Company) Bill, 1998.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, I beg to move the Second Reading of a Bill entitled The Companies (Amendment) (Exempted Company) Bill, 1998.

The Companies (Amendment) (Exempted Company) Bill seeks to make an amendment to section 194 of the Companies Law (1995 Revision), to provide that if an exempted company is listed on the Cayman Islands Stock Exchange, it does not fall under the prohibition against exempted companies inviting the public in these Islands to subscribe to their securities. With the advent of the Cayman Islands Stock Exchange, it has come to our attention that there are quite a number of exempt companies, specifically mutual funds, which currently are inhibited from listing on the Stock Exchange because of the section 194 prohibition.

In amending this section to remove the prohibition in respect of the listed exempted companies, we will still be preserving the investors protection rationale of section 194, because a listing requires that the company prepare and make publicly available to prospective investors detailed and updated information about its business, investment objectives and financial position. This is normally done by way of the companies being required to issue a prospectus.

First, to take into account the comments by the Honourable Third Elected Member for Bodden Town on insider trading, the rules enacted by the Stock Exchange expressly prohibit behaviour abusive to the markets, such as insider trading. The amendment is fully in keeping with the definition of what activities an exempted company is allowed to undertake, as defined by section 192 of the Companies Law itself, as well as the Local Companies (Control) Law, and the Stock Exchange (Company) Law, and it will remove a commercial disadvantage from the Exchange, such as that companies at this time, because of difficulties experienced with the prohibition of section 194 of the Companies Law, a number of them are going to other jurisdictions to be registered, and then coming back into the Cayman Islands to do business.

We feel that we should not allow this disadvantageous position to continue to operate, because obviously the companies are being formed—we have the Stock Exchange facility; we are also providing the management of the mutual funds operation; we have the competence in this jurisdiction. So of necessity, it would be within our interests for this prohibition to be removed to allow those companies to do business on our stock exchange, rather than going elsewhere.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled The Companies (Amendment) (Exempted Company) Bill, 1998 be given a Second Reading. The Bill is now open to debate.

The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I am pleased to see that the position regarding the Stock Exchange offering the public the opportunity to subscribe to securities, especially in relation to some of the mutual funds that are listed and will be listed on the Stock Exchange, has been put into effect. However, there are a few matters which I believe should be taken into account in the interests of the protection of the Caymanian public. There is a reason for section 194 of the Companies Law (1995 Revision). That is the section the Bill seeks to amend.

Section 194 of the Law says, “An exempted company is prohibited from making any invitation to the public in the Islands to subscribe for any of its shares or debentures.” It goes on in section 195 to say, “If an exempted company carries on any business in the Islands in contravention of this part, then without prejudice to any other proceedings that may be taken in respect of the contravention, the exempted company and every director, provisional director and officer of the exempted company is responsible for the contravention, is guilty of an offence and liable, on summary conviction, to a fine of $100 for every day during which the contravention occurs or continues, and the exempted company shall be liable to be immediately dissolved and removed from the Register.” This was placed in the Law to protect the Caymanian public and to protect anyone doing business with an exempted company, mainly because, as the term implies, an exempted company was exempt from certain requirements necessary in respect of other companies, such as a local company, ordinary local company.

“A proposed exempted company applying for registration as an exempted company shall, at this time, remit to the Registrar a declaration signed by a proposed Director to the effect that the operation of the proposed exempted company will be conducted mainly outside of the Islands.” Other than for that declaration, there is very little else expected from an exempted company, and that is why, if you check the Register today, with the number of companies registered, perhaps 80% of the total number of companies registered, if not more, would be exempted companies because of the very limited amount of information available to the public. The outside investors prefer to go through exempted companies because of this very limited amount of information they are required to provide to Government.

On the other hand, an ordinary registered company, or even an ordinary non-resident company, is obliged to keep a much more detailed account and provide more information to Government when it is being registered. Basically, a register of companies shall be kept in respect of every company, and I am speaking mainly of an ordinary resident company. This information provides a list of requirements that a company will provide to the Government. In addition to the name of the company, it has to provide where it is registered, it has to provide the amount of capital it is registered, and the names and addresses of the subscribers to the memorandum, and the number of shares taken by each subscriber. This is not necessary in respect of an exempt company.

It is against this background that I am concerned that the exempt companies selected by the Stock Exchange will indeed provide the necessary transparency now being given by other companies doing business within the Cayman Islands. The transparency is necessary, so that the local people will know exactly the type of company they are doing business with, notwithstanding the checks that will be put in place by the Stock Exchange.

Before this amendment to the Companies Law came into effect, these checks and balances were put in place so that the Caymanian public was protected. I realise, in listening to the mover of this Bill, that this will relate mainly to mutual funds listed on the Stock Exchange. This does not matter, because mutual funds are being made by a lot of people these days. It does not have to be a major company. They are being put together by anyone who has the slightest idea of what a mutual fund is all about. Unless this is very closely monitored and supervised, the potential is there that some of our people could get hurt. I would ask that the Honourable Third Official Member, in his winding up, would give some assurance of any checks and balances that may be in place or that are being considered by the Stock Exchange, through his Ministry, for ensuring that the proper transparency is in place, and that every effort is being made to protect the Caymanian public. Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I am sorry, but there was a little bit of a mix-up. I am not sure exactly if certain things have been mentioned during some of the debate. Again, it is obvious the good intentions of this Bill, but even if I may be a little bit repetitious here, I wish to bring to the attention of the mover of this Bill a section in the Companies Law, 1995 Revision. The existing section 194 has been read by my colleague, the Third Elected Member for George Town, and the Bill, which seeks to repeal that section, and just to quickly read what will be replacing it, the new section 194 will read: “An exempted company that is not listed on the Cayman Islands Stock Exchange is prohibited from making any invitation to the public in the Islands to subscribe for any of its securities.”

If we go back to section 183 of the Companies Law, 1995 Revision, I will quickly read that section, “A proposed exempted company applying for registration as an exempted company shall submit to the Registrar a declaration signed by a proposed Director to the effect that the operation of the proposed ex- empted company will be conducted mainly outside of the Islands.”

That says to me that if we are calling for an amendment to section 194, this section 183 needs to be amended, too. It is telling me, unless I am not understanding it, that one is contradicting the other.

If we go to section 186 of the Companies Law, 1995 Revision, it states, “In January of each year, after the year of its registration, each exempted company shall furnish to the Registrar a return which shall be in the form of a declaration that (a) since the previous return, or since registration, as the case may be, there has been no alteration in the Memorandum of Association, other than an alteration in the name of the company effected in accordance with section 30, or an alteration already reported in accordance with section 9; (b) the operations of the exempted company, since the last return, or since registration of the exempted company, as the case may be, have been mainly outside the Islands; and (c) sections 192 and 193 have been and are being complied with.”

I raise the point to ask the question, if the new section 194 is basically—and while the wording does not say so, it says to me that it is encouraging certain types of companies who do business outside the Cayman Islands in certain areas because the laws of our land inhibit them from doing business locally, then certainly sections 183 and 186 of the Companies Law will also need to be amended in order for these companies to be able to operate within the confines of this Law.

I may be misunderstanding, but if I am, I certainly would like to get it cleared up before the vote is taken on the proposed Bill. Thank you.

The Speaker: Does any other Honourable Member wish to speak? If no other Honourable Member wishes to speak, does the mover wish to exercise his right of reply? The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, I would like to thank the Honourable Third Elected Member for George Town and the Honourable First Elected Member for George Town for their observations on this Bill. I should point out, Mr. Speaker, that this amending legislation is not intended to put at risk the public of the Cayman Islands in terms of investing in local instruments, or instruments that would be made available through the amendment to section 194 of the Companies Law. This amendment, in itself, lifts the veil of an exempt company. We are talking about full transparency. All relevant details will have to be given. In fact, I know the Honourable Third Elected Member for George Town, being an accountant, knows that when it comes down to the details that will have to be provided in a prospectus, not only does it call for factual information, it also renders that certain relevant opinions be made available. It takes to a higher level than the details that would otherwise be provided, by way of an ordinary resident company.

When we talk about full transparency, this is exactly what will be provided. Like the Honourable Member, the Government is concerned to ensure that full protection is given to every monetary instrument in which the public at large would seek investment opportunities. It is for this reason that this amendment will only affect those companies coming on to the Stock Exchange, because the minimum requirements will remain in place, and the provisions of section 183 and 186 will continue to operate in respect of those companies that will not otherwise be approved for listing on the Cayman Islands Stock Exchange. These are the types of vehicles that drive the setting up of mutual funds.

The minimum filing requirements for an exempt company will not be the information the Stock Exchange will be dealing with. It will be full transparency, and these companies will be required to give full disclosure of their operations and prospective operations to the public at large, so the public can be put on alert as to the risk associated in engaging in the investment vehicles that will be promoted through the setting up of these mutual funds. Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled The Companies (Amendment) (Exempt Companies) Bill, 1998 be given a second reading. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The Bill has accordingly been given a Second Reading.

AGREED: THE COMPANIES (AMENDMENT) (EXEMPT COMPANIES) BILL, 1998 GIVEN A SECOND READING.

The Speaker: We shall suspend proceedings for fifteen minutes prior to going into Committee.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.35 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12.28 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. The House will now go into Committee to consider a Bill for the Patent and Trade Marks (Amendment) Bill, 1998 and other bills. Before we go into it, I would like the views of the House.

It is my understanding that it is wished to adjourn after we have completed the Committee and Reports. Shall we continue until we reach that time? Or do we take the suspension for lunch? I do not believe we will complete the Committee at the usual time, as we only have fifteen minutes before the normal lunch period. Is it the wish of the House that we continue and then adjourn?

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, I think it would be more effective if we just went completely through and took lunch afterwards.

The Speaker: That is my view, yes. Is that the wish of the House?

We will now go into Committee.

HOUSE IN COMMITTEE AT 12.30 PM

COMMITTEE ON BILLS

The Chairman: Please be seated. The House is now in Committee. With the leave of the House, may I assume that as usual we would authorise the Second Official Member to correct minor printing errors and such like in these bills? Would the Clerk read the bills and clauses?

THE PATENTS AND TRADE MARKS (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1998

The Clerk: The Patents and Trade Marks (Amendment) Bill, 1998.

- Clause 1. Short title.
- Clause 2. Interpretation.
- Clause 3. Amendment of section 2, Definitions and Interpretation.
- Clause 4. Amendment of section 7, Mode of Recording Rights.
- Clause 5. Amendment of section 9, Effect of Recording a Trade Mark.
- Clause 6. Repeal of section 11, Application of the Law to Service Marks.
- Clause 7. Amendment of section 12, Annual Fee.
- Clause 8. Amendment of section 13, Changes.
- Clause 9. Substitution of the Schedule, Fees.

The Chairman: The question is that clauses one through nine do stand part of the Bill. It is open to debate. No debate? I will put the question that clauses one through nine do stand part of the Bill. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it. Clauses 1 through 9 do stand part of the Bill.

AGREED: CLAUSES 1 THROUGH 9 PASSED.

The Clerk: A Bill for a Law to amend the Patents and Trade Marks Law, 1995 Revision, to enable the registration in the Islands of European Community trade marks and trade marks registered under the Madrid Protocol, and for incidental and connected purposes.

The Chairman: The question is that the title do stand part of the Bill. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it. The title do stand part of the Bill.

AGREED: TITLE PASSED.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Mr. Speaker, if I may, maybe I missed this. Did we put the question on the Schedule?

The Chairman: Maybe I am not correct, but I would have thought that was covered by Clause 9. Would the Honourable Second Official Member concur that the Schedule is covered under Clause 9?

Hon. Richard H. Coles: It is, Mr. Chairman, that is quite correct.

THE PUBLIC LOANS (REPEAL) BILL, 1998

The Clerk: The Public Loans (Repeal) Bill, 1998.

Clause 1. Short title.
Clause 2. Repeal.

The Chairman: The question is that Clauses 1 and 2 do stand part of the Bill. It is open to debate. No debate? I will put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it. Clauses 1 and 2 do stand part of the Bill.

AGREED: CLAUSES 1 AND 2 PASSED.

The Clerk: A Bill for a Law to repeal the Public Loans Law, 1996 Revision.

The Chairman: The question is that the title do stand part of the Bill. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

The Clerk: The Miscellaneous Provisions (Fees and Duties) (Temporary Amendment) (Environmental Protection Fees) Bill, 1998.

Clause 1. Short title.

The Chairman: The question is that Clause 1 do stand part of the Bill. No debate? I will put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it. Clause 1 do stand part of the Bill.

AGREED: CLAUSE 1 PASSED.

The Clerk: Clause 2. Amendment of section 7, Environmental Protection Fees.

The Chairman: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Chairman, it was brought to my attention a few minutes ago that there is a need to insert the wording, in the second line of subsection 7(1), which reads as follows (the words are to be inserted between “bound vessel” in the second line and “or”): “except vessels referred to in subsection (2)”. Once that insertion is made, it will read: “Every agent shall collect from every passenger in every outward bound vessel, except vessels referred to in subsection (2), or aircraft, an environmental protection fee of $2.”

This amendment is to make it clear that the environmental fees to be paid, as set out in subsection (2), which varies between the amounts payable by seasonal cruise ships and those that visit on a regular basis, will not include the $2 as set out in subsection 7(1).

The Chairman: I waive the notice to two days’ notice for the amendment. The amendment has been moved. Does any Member wish to speak to the amendment? If there is no debate, I will put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

AGREED: AMENDMENT PASSED.

The Chairman: The amendment has been approved. The question is that clause 2 as amended do stand part of the Bill. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it. Clause 2 as amended do stand part of the Bill.

AGREED: CLAUSE 2, AS AMENDED, PASSED.

The Clerk: A Bill for a Law to amend section 7 of the Miscellaneous Provisions (Fees and Duties) (Temporary) Law, 1997, to provide for the collection of environmental protection fees and for incidental and connected purposes.

The Chairman: The question is that the title do stand part of the Bill. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: I would like to apologise to this Honourable House for the late start this morning. I have apologies for the Honourable Second Official Member, who will be arriving later this morning, and for the Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture. She will be arriving later this morning.

Item number 2 on the Order Paper, Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers.

Before we go into that, I would like to ask for a motion for the suspension of Standing Order 23(8) so that we can take Question Time, as the hour is after 11.00 AM.

The First Elected Member for West Bay.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 23 (7) & (8)

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, I beg to move the suspension of the relevant Standing Order so that Question Time can be taken.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I beg to second that, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The motion has been made and seconded. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. Question Time.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 23(7) AND (8) SUSPENDED TO ENABLE QUESTIONS TO BE ASKED AFTER 11 AM.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MEMBERS/MINISTERS

The Speaker: The question to the First Elected Member for West Bay, Question Number 12 standing in his name.

QUESTION 12

No. 12: Mr. W. McKeeva Bush asked the Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning what progress has been made with the building of the new primary school in West Bay, in view that the school now has an enrolment of 476 students?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: A site has now been located, and Executive Council will be requested to approve the purchase, subject to funds.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries? The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. When the Member says, "subject to funds," I presume that we have funds, that we can move forward.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: There are funds there, but as the Honourable Member knows, once this is approved, it goes across to Lands & Survey, and then negotiations begin. So it depends on what the ultimate price of the property would be. That is why I was cautious in saying this, but yes, it is a priority. It will be bought this year.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: So far the Honourable Minister has answered the question with regard to the potential purchase of the property. Can the Honourable Minister say what the plans are as far as the time-line for construction of the new school once the property is acquired?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Once the property is acquired the next move will be to prepare the plans for it. Thereafter, once it is approved and there are funds for it, it goes out to tender, I would assume, and then go on to the building stage. I cannot say how long that will take other than to say that as I understand the plans, I would think a few months. I know the tendering takes about six weeks. I guess that is the best estimate I can give.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks: Can the Honourable Minister tell this House the location of this property?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The property we are looking at is West Bay Northwest Registration Section Block 4B Parcel 181. It is near to the Boatswain Bay Road and Fountain Road.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Although he cannot give a specific timeline, can the Honourable Minister say, if there are funds allocated for the commencement of construction during this financial year, if time allows for it to be started?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I cannot be precise on that, but all I can say is that this is a priority and that if there are no funds (I know there are funds for the purchasing of the land), I will either come back here or we will vire it from somewhere else so that we can continue to give this priority.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: If memory serves me right, during the last Budget Session, under the Capital Section, there was some move about priorities with regard to the amount of money allocated to Capital. Since the Minister is going from left to right in answering the question, I will ask if, within the amount allowed for Capital Expenditure in the 1998 Budget, there is a Primary School for the District of West Bay?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: As this Honourable House knows, the Budget contains several thousand items. If the Member will refer me to the amount and if I can borrow a Budget I will look at it and come back to him. I cannot remember and the Budget is something that all Members of this Honourable House have, and they can really look it up themselves. If he can refer me to what it is, I will look at it and give him my interpretation.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: The thousands of items that the Minister is talking about is not what I am talking about. There is one specific section that is under Capital. The figure was $28.(something) million. When the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport spoke regarding that, he had his priorities lined up and came back here and gave us those priorities. I am asking the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning if within that $28.5 million (I am not exactly sure, but that is close enough for him to understand) a new Primary School is part and parcel. That is not thousands and thousands of items—it is one amount.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Sorry, Mr. Speaker, I did not understand that. I thought the Member was referring me to a specific amount. Yes, this is within the ambit of the $28 million vote. It is a priority within that ambit.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: My question then, if that is the case, is how can the Minister in his answer say, “subject to funds”?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: It is hard to figure out how to answer that. It is within the ambit of the Budget. I do not know if there is a specific vote somewhere in there among the thousands of items. I am being honest about it—I do not know. We all have the Budget, and we all approved the Budget. As far as I can remember, money was put in for it. I just do not know where in the 400 pages of the Budget it is. But it is a priority and whatever funds are needed to start this year’s work will be there. If it is not there, I will come back to the House. That is the most I can say on it, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: The First Elected Member for George Town asked my question, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: The Honourable Minister is saying that the purchase is going to Executive Council, and I know that is the route it would normally go. So he is saying that once Executive Council approves it they will go to Lands & Survey for the normal procedure, but it is the intention to carry on through the funds voted and the assurance given to us in the House. Is that what the Honourable Minister is saying?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: That is correct.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Can the Honourable Minister say (maybe he said it in one of his supplementary answers, but I did not understand it clearly) that if the plans can be drawn up for this school, as it is a priority, they will be in place once the purchase of the property has been completed, and only have to go to Planning?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: What normally happens is that we secure the land and then they do the plans to ensure that the plans apply to that site. What the Lady Member has asked, I could ask them to do on the basis that we would hope...I do not see any reason why it should not go through, so I take the point. I would ask them then to begin the plans before the purchase.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: I thank the Honourable Minister for his answer, but I would ask him to give this Honourable House an undertaking that this will be done because the property only refers to the site plans, not the actual building. The actual building is what I am referring to.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: I will pass the request of the Member on in relation to the building plans, not the plans of the site. But she does appreciate that it is a different department from mine, so I put the request in to them which I will do on the plans for the building.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries the next question is No. 13, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for West Bay.

QUESTION 13

No. 13: Mr. W. McKeeva Bush asked the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport what were the reserves and available cash on hand at the Port Authority as at September 1997.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: The reserves and available cash position of the Port Authority as of September 1997 was C1$1,875,392.86 and C1$203,323.00 respectively.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Can the Honourable Minister say whether those funds are available today?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I did not check this morning whether they are available today, and I do not have a December or January position.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Well then, can the Honourable Minister say whether he had cause to use any of the funds between September and today?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: In relation to some of the cash, the Port Authority did make an additional contribution to the Government of $0.5 million on 31 December 1997.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Boddén Town.

Mr. Roy Boddén: Can the Honourable Minister say how much of these funds were available on the day the answer was prepared (and I am assuming that this was in the recent past, namely about a week or so ago)?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: The amount of funds available on 31 December when this amount was taken from it was in the range of $2 million.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister say what the arrangement is between central Government and the Port Authority in regard to any annual contribution which the Authority is asked to make to central Government's coffers?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: There is an expectation on the Government that the Port Authority will make contributions on an annual basis to the Central Government's general revenue. That amount can vary, as it has in the past. Most recently on an annual basis...let me step back a bit, Mr. Speaker. I believe it was two years ago that we made a contribution of $225,000. In the last two years it has been at $1 million. In 1997 the contribution was $1.5 million.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I wonder if the Honourable Minister can state if, as the Minister of the Ministry under which the Port Authority falls (and thank God I am asking this Minister and not the Leader of Government Business because I am going to ask him for his opinion) in his opinion there should be some firm arrangement on an annual basis depending upon the proposed activity of the Port Authority, rather than as per the answer given, something that is done as and when it is needed, or when it is seen fit.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Perhaps as a former Financial Secretary I can offer an opinion. I believe that it is in the interests of the Central Government as well as the Port Authority or any of the Statutory Authorities operating today to come to a firm agreement as to what is expected on an annual basis. I think, in all fairness, you also have to bear in mind that although you start out with a particular budgeted amount of revenue and expenditure, the economic cycle can cause it to change. But I think some kind of arrangement, whether on a percentage basis or otherwise that the Authorities understand, that is realistic and leaves the Statutory Authority at the end of the day in a strong financial position, I think is the key to the answer.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I certainly wish to thank the Honourable Minister for that answer. Following up on that answer, can the Honourable Minister state if this has ever been done? Is there an intention whatsoever to do this, and, if so, when might this be done?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I believe there is intention to move in that direction. I do not believe that the Government (when I say the Government, I mean formally within Executive Council) has taken that decision. But it has certainly been discussed on many occasions and I believe that in the very near future there will be such an arrangement.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Notwithstanding the collective responsibility which exists in Executive Council, can the Honourable Minister give an undertaking that within a given time frame this situation will become a reality with all of the Statutory bodies?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I am reluctant to give such a bold undertaking, given that I am only one of the Ministers of Executive Council. But I can give an undertaking to bring it to the attention of Executive Council and request that some decision be made.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries the next question is No. 14, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for West Bay.

QUESTION 14

No. 14: Mr. W. McKeeva Bush asked the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport: (a) What is the present budget for the Miami Tourism Office, and what are the accounting procedures used? and (b) Do the accounting procedures used ensure that all expenses paid by the Miami Office and the other overseas offices are for expenses incurred by the respective Offices?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: (a) The present budget of the Miami Tourism Office is CI$3,607,592.18. The accounting procedures used are in accordance with the Financial and Stores Regulations and the Treasury Guidelines on accounts for all payments made by each office. The answer to (b) is, yes.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: With regard to part (b) of the question and the answer which says, "yes," this means then that expenditures paid for things done in Miami, for instance, cannot be done in Cayman and paid by the Miami office?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, I am not sure that I understand the question being raised by the Member, but if I have a glimpse of what it is, expenditures incurred by Members of the DOT Office at Cricket Square or at the Ministry at the Glass House are paid for from their budgets only—not from Miami, New York, Los Angeles, or Houston.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: In turn then, expenses incurred in Houston cannot be paid by the Miami office?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: think we have to divide the cheese here because the Miami office, which used to be called the Headquarters of the United States operation, does pay rental and other matters for other regional offices.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, the next question is No. 15, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION 15

No. 15: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport to give the total projected cost of the Pedro St. James project on completion.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: The total projected cost of the Pedro St James project on completion is estimated at CI$6,933,767.78.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister say what the original estimated cost was for the project?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: The original estimated cost by Commonwealth and the President, John Stewart, was CI$5 million.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister state if there have been any changes to the original plans, or anything of that nature, which has increased the actual cost by $1.933 million?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: There may have been some minor changes to the original estimate. You must also bear in mind that we are talking about $5 million as an estimated figure back in 1993. We are five years down the road from that and if we take into consideration the inflationary factor over that period of time, we are talking about an additional 30% in terms of construction costs—The cost per square foot in 1993 versus the cost per square foot in 1998...you have to add 30% to it.

The other matter is that the estimated cost of a building, be it the Visitor's Centre, was $1.4 million. The contractual cost is $1.7 million. There are a number of items that the original cost estimated by Commonwealth did not include, such as the freight and duty on multimedia equipment, the Watler House renovations, the fitting up and furniture for theatre and cafe, the cabana, the landscaping at the Visitor's Centre, the roof for the reception area, the rock flooring for the theatre and professional fees as well.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Is the Honourable Minister saying that wonderful long list of things he just mentioned was not included in the original estimate?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: The answer to that is yes, and I will add another one—the cost of the land and the stamp duty on the land which was in excess of $825,000 was also not included in the $5 million. That is included in the figure I gave you.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister say what the amount will be, by way of loans which will have to be repaid for this specific project on completion?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Let us start off with what we know. The loan that was for this project was US$5 million. That is my understanding. All right, $5.79m...I am not saying that this number is carved in stone. What I am saying is that at this particular time I am unsure how to answer that question as to how much of the loan will be drawn down. I will undertake to give that answer to Members in writing. I do not want to give an answer that is not accurate.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Is the Member saying that in the original estimate of the project, the land cost was not figured in?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: The Member is understanding correctly.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: So that the Minister will not misunderstand my intention, the question I asked regarding the loan figure was leading up to more questions. I was not trying to tie anything down with that.

The follow-up question is to ask the Minister if, when the project is completed and up and running (I remember hearing about a Board of Governors, the Tourism Attraction Board which will be dealing with the running of the project), it will be dealt with in such a way that the loans borrowed by Government will be paid back by way of monies received by the ongoing activities? If that is the case, does the Minister have any specific projections with regard to what kind of time-frame before the project does not have to be subsidised?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I believe that is another opinion, Mr. Speaker. But I am happy to try to answer.

The Speaker: If you wish to, you may.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: The Tourism Attraction Board is already in operation and has been for some time. Members have been appointed and meetings have been held, and Members should be aware of it because it was carried on the front page of the Caymanian Compass some time ago.

The intention and mission of the Tourism Attraction Board is to run both Pedro St. James and the Botanic Park in a businesslike manner with the view that we will first be able meet the operational costs from the earnings of each project; and, secondly, to repay the loan from Caribbean Development Bank.

I am a little hesitant to say what year that will happen. Perhaps the Member will ask the question again at a future meeting and I will be in a position where I can give him more than what I call a 'wild opinion' on that subject.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Can the Member say if the present estimated cost in the answer to the question, includes funds placed in this year's Budget?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: It does not include the amount in this year's Budget as far as...and I am looking at it from two angles. There is an amount in the Budget that deals with the recurrent operational costs of the project that is not part of the construction of Pedro St. James project. The second part is that the funds in the Budget as a loan for construction forms part of the answer.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister state, since he now knows what the projected cost of the project is, and the fact that there was $1 million in this year's Budget (if memory serves me right)...and we never did get an answer as to what was the difference between what was in the Budget and what was actually going to be paid out by Government. Can the Minister now state what amount out of the capital section of the Budget will have to be used to fill the gap to pay off the total contract of $6.933 million?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: What I can say is that Pedro Castle is one of the priority projects. Out of the $28 million in the Capital Expenditure section of the Budget, what is needed will come forward. It is fair and reasonable to say that some of us, including me, have never been completely comfortable with the way in which the project had been run in the past. We have recently (within the last six months) caused the project manager to be changed so that we are sure ourselves of what the ultimate arrangement will be. In the process of this exercise going on in the last six months, we have uncovered certain things such as I mentioned this morning, that the original estimated project cost did not include certain sums. So, even though we had $1.1 million in the Budget, the amount required to complete the project will be closer to $1.6 million or $1.7 million.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Arising out of the last answer, was the project manager part of the team of the Commonwealth group?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Yes, he is part.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: When the Minister says he "is" part...all right, "was." Let me get this right. Was the project manager who was changed part of the Commonwealth group?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: On this occasion I should not give a short answer. The Commonwealth group out of Toronto was hired back in 1991. They started out by first carrying out the archaeological study to try to understand what exactly did take place at Pedro Castle back in the 1780s or after that date. As a result, this group of advisors, or consultants, or project co-ordinators (whatever we wish to call them) carried on the project from there until last year in a major way.

When the Caribbean Development Bank came into the picture and actually did an estimate which differed significantly from the original estimate, we began to become uncomfortable with the whole scenario. As a result, when we went on to the construction of the Visitor's Centre, we thought it a good time to have Public Works take over the project and carry it through to the final end.

So Commonwealth is still involved. That is why I said he is, and he was. Commonwealth is still involved with the multi-media aspect of the project—but that alone.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, the next question is No. 16, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION 16

No. 16: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport whether any action is being taken to establish a category under the Traffic Law whereby omnibus operators will be licensed.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: The issue of permits to omnibus operators, as the Honourable Member realises, was under the authority of the Royal Cayman Islands Police Service and they operated with a Category 3 licence. The Ministry of Tourism, Commerce and Transport assumed the responsibility for Vehicle Licensing in October 1997. Since then, the Public Transport Board has been establishing the administrative machinery to carry out all of its duties under the Law. The Board is presently organising itself to issue a variety of licenses.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Bearing in mind the substantive answer, can the Honourable Minister say whether one specific category of these licences will be for omnibuses?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: The answer to that question is yes.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Following up, can the Honourable Minister state if, along with this special category of licence, there is any consideration being given to some type of organised public transport system for the Island?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Organised public transport system...at the moment, transportation between the outer districts and the capitol is done by the private sector. We are seeking to encourage that to continue. We are in the throes of...maybe that is not the right word, but we are in the process of dealing with the movement of these buses that line up beside Bank of Nova Scotia, to place them behind the Public Library in George Town; and at the same time have a proper bus depot for them, with a view that as we move forward (and I thank Honourable Members for their support on this) we will deal with it, realising that they are all human beings and need some getting accustomed to the changes before we dump more changes on them.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Perhaps my choice of words was not the best, but to make it clear let me explain the reasoning behind the question. If licences are going to be issued for omnibus operators and they will be operating within certain districts, is any consideration being given to the licence being issued to allow the individual to operate within certain given areas, so that some type of assessment can be made where we will not have all of them going in one direction and not enough in another so that there is some organisation for everyone's benefit?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I think that is what I said when I referred to another change, and another change. Our view is that any person who operates an omnibus from a district to George Town, in addition to having a Category 3 licence, must also be licensed to run that route. Eventually there will be places where they set down and pick up, as well as other matters. But we will take it step by step.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say if the Government is going to confine its role exclusively to a regulatory body, or is the Government in a position to encourage the operators to form themselves into some kind of body with the eventual aim of regulating themselves, so that the Government's role will be reduced primarily to that of awarding the routes?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I think I will step back to part of what I said earlier. We are encouraging this public transport to remain within the private sector. In so doing, the Director of Licensing, among others, has been having meetings with those individuals who provide the service from the other districts to George Town, with a view to encouraging them to not only do it properly, but to think about what happens in the future and what sort of service will be needed and to build in that mechanism, so that we also get preferential treatment, if you wish, of Caymanians operating on those routes as well as bus drivers.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say if the Government prefers to deal with an agglomeration of individuals, or is it the Government's preference and eventual hope that groups may evolve which would make it easier for Government's administration?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I think from a simple point of view (if I could have that), we begin with what we have and try to organise those who have been in the business for several years. Those who have been offering that service should be encouraged to move on into the development of that service. If these members of the private sector are unable to deliver it, then I think the Government will have to look at some other possibility. I am reluctant, personally, to even think about the Government doing it—by that I mean delivering the service.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister state if, in dealing with these licences, there will be any such thing as quotas?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I believe that when we look around the world, we will find there are only a certain number of taxi drivers who are allowed to be taxi drivers, whether it is in London, New York or any other place. So, to ensure that those who are in the business today continue to make a reasonable return on their services, then

I believe that the Government will have to look at that possibility.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: What, if any, support is the Government prepared to offer the persons currently rendering the services in an effort to help them organise themselves to optimum efficiency?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I hesitate to speculate here. I think we first need to understand what is needed before we go off saying what we are prepared to do. At the moment I am unsure what exactly is needed by each operator.

The Speaker: We have had a large number of supplementaries, I think I will limit it to two additional supplementaries on this question.

The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Is the Minister telling the House that it may be necessary for the Government to do some kind of investigation into this matter with a view to determining exactly how best it can be organised?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I think there are sufficient members in place at present to gather that information to take a decision. It is just that when you are dealing with transportation in these Islands, there are so many items to do—it is a matter of where you place your priority list. What are the first five items to deal with? In that sense, it is the reason we have been moving as we have been in the past three or four months.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Just following up on the issue of quotas, can the Honourable Minister say whether a decision has been made to make the quota on an overall basis with sheer numbers, or if it will be quotas as per each route?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: This is an item that is under review. I do not think we have reached any decision as yet. It would be unfair for me to make any statement to cause the Member to believe that we have it all finalised.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 17, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 17

No. 17: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Temporary First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs to state the terms under which the Trade and Business Licensing Law and/or the Local Companies (Control) Law, permit the oil companies to operate in the Cayman Islands.

The Speaker: The Honourable Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: The situation in respect of Local Companies (Control) Licences and Trade and Business Licences held by the two oil companies operating in the Cayman Islands is as follows:

Company	Purpose of LCCL	LCCL Valid until	Purpose of T&BL	T&BL valid until
Esso Standard Oil (S.A.) Ltd.	Bulk fuel installation	31 Dec 1998	Bulk Fuel Installation	31 Dec 1997
Texaco Caribbean Inc.	Bulk Fuel Installation/ Marketing of Petroleum	01 Jan 1999	Bulk Fuel Installation	31 Dec 1997

I should say in the case of both the Trade & Business Licence held expired on 31 December 1997. In fairness, Texaco has submitted an application which is currently with the Board of the Trade & Business Licence.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Member tell the House if these oil companies have any special licences or operate under any Laws? If so, which Laws allow them to retail bulk fuel and its derivatives and other products?

The Speaker: The Honourable Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: The licences the two companies hold are, as I have just stated. Neither company holds any licence in relation to retail activities.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Is the Government aware of any retail activity being carried on by these two companies?

The Speaker: The Honourable Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Preliminary but substantive examination of the activities of the two companies in relation to the licences is now almost complete. That examination will address issues such as what the Member alludes to, but I really cannot state the outcome of that examination at this time.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Seeing from the answer that the companies do not have any licence to retail, what has Government done about these companies that have put Caymanians out of business by taking their stations from them, the retail outlets?

The Speaker: The Honourable Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: I cannot comment on what seems to be a specific example or situation that the Member is referring to, but I can say that the examination I alluded to earlier is fairly broad and looking to address the entire issues of the range of activities of the companies.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: I realise that the Member is here temporarily, but can he give an undertaking that he will look into the situation and cause that to be examined with the sincerity of purpose it needs?

The Speaker: The Honourable Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: If the Member would provide me privately with a bit more information on the problem he is alluding to, I would certainly be happy to look into it.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: I will do that, but I hasten to say that complaints are in the proper places already, and I took the opportunity, seeing it is now published publicly that there is no licence.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: According to the answer provided, the oil companies have contravened section 9 of the Trade & Business Licensing Law (Law 25 of 1971) in my opinion. What is the Government prepared to do about this apparent contravention, and is the review going to include any discussion of sanctions or settlements, as is usual in these cases?

The Speaker: The Honourable Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: I note the Member's opinion as to possible contravention. I can only say that there are no restrictions I am aware of in terms of action which may be taken subject to the conclusion of this review. There is really nothing more that I can say on this question, Sir.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: It is obvious that there is much concern from many of us here regarding the activities of the oil companies. I do not think any of us wants to be a judge, but I would ask the Honourable Member, not just to give an undertaking, but, if possible, to give us some type of time-frame based on his knowledge of where this review is, so that we may have at least some comfort that it will not remain in limbo forever. It has been going on for a long time. Complaints have been made, and there are not only a few individuals involved in some of the complaints. I think the country needs to know how these two companies are going to be allowed to operate in the future.

While I understand that Government's intention is to make sure everything is on line, I think we are really asking for some specific time-line, so that we will be able to tell our constituents and the country at large exactly how quickly Government plans to act on what has to be done when the findings are complete.

The Speaker: The Honourable Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Mr. Speaker, I think I should learn from the experienced Minister on my right who earlier said he could not give an undertaking individually on behalf of the Government. Certainly, I cannot do that either, but I can give the Member an assurance that the Portfolio I represent will be doing all it can to ensure that the findings of this review will be shared with the relevant bodies and whatever actions be taken as expeditiously as possible and the situation brought to a conclusion.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Member say if the Government is aware, through any formal or informal complaints by station owners, of what could be deemed unfair competition as a result of their having to compete against the same persons from whom they purchase fuel oil and its derivatives?

The Speaker: The Honourable Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: I know of no formal complaints in relation to that possible situation. I have heard of it informally, but I have not seen formal complaints made to the Portfolio or to anyone else in Government.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries the next question is No. 18, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION 18

No. 18: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation, What is the projected total cost of construction and equipment for the new George Town Hospital?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: The total projected cost of construction and equipment for the new Hospital is $27,690,000.00.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister state how this new projected cost falls in line with the original estimate? Secondly, if everything is presently on stream and the anticipated completion date is still true?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: When we started in 1994, the projected cost at that time was approximately $22 million. Subsequently, in going through the steering committee and user groups within the hospital we added approximately 25,000 square feet of space because of new services we were adding. I think I shared that with the House in 1996. We increased the contingency sometime last year from 2% to 10%, which brings it up to where it is today.

My understanding is that, God willing, without any undue bad weather with the hurricane season coming up, we should be looking at sometime in September for the conclusion of construction, and the commissioning would take place when we start to put in beds and equipment, later on this year.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I skirt the periphery here and it will be up to the Minister, but does the Minister have any idea what the recurrent operational cost of the hospital will be once it is completed and everything is up and running?

The Speaker: I think this is outside of the ambit of the substantive question. But if the Minister has the information, he may give it.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: That is going to be one of the questions coming up and will be rendered next week sometime.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, the next question is No. 19, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 19

No. 19: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation if any section of the new Hospital building has flooded as a result of the recent rains on Grand Cayman.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: After the recent rains (and I think we can all remember last month, it was almost a deluge) a small puddle of water was found on the floor of the staff room on the second floor of Building 5, which accommodates the new laboratories. The Contractor is investigating the source of this minor leak.

Some water entered the ground floor of Buildings 6, 7 and 9 which are still under construction. The reasons for this are:

- i) the doors in the exterior walls have not yet been installed, which allowed rain to be blown inside the buildings;
- ii) the ground around the door openings in the exterior walls has not yet been lowered to its final level, which allowed water to flow into certain areas.

No major damage occurred in any location as a result of water penetration, nor will there be any delay to the project as a result of this.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister state whether it was necessary to do any work on the surrounding grounds to improve the groundwater absorption, or if the leakage of water is limited to the areas listed in his answer?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: As I mentioned, that was a most unusual downpour. There are certain drain wells already in place, but the entire drainage system will be hooked up and levelled when we put in the pavement. That will certainly get rid of this problem.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Is the Minister in a position to say whether poor drainage on Smith Road is in any way responsible for some of the problems experienced and discussed?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: I would not think so, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Can the Honourable Minister give an undertaking to investigate this, since I live in that vicinity and I am quite aware of the flooding in that area? It might be a good idea to have it investigated.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Would you please repeat the last part?

Dr. Frank McField: I was asking if the Honourable Minister would undertake to investigate what influence the Smith Road drainage has on the water that pours into the hospital. That area is known for flooding, so it must have some effect on the flooding in that particular area.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: That is a good point. We have commissioned, through my colleague the Minister for Communications and Works, a study of this area. We are looking forward to dealing with that situation with the drainage on Smith Road.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, that concludes Question Time for this morning. Item 3 on the Order Paper, Statement by Honourable Ministers/Members of the Government. The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

STATEMENTS BY HONOURABLE MINISTERS/MEMBERS OF GOVERNMENT

THE PUBLIC PASSENGER VEHICLES (AMENDMENT) REGULATIONS 1998

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Honourable Members will be aware that the Taxi/Bus Dispatch Centre became operational on 1 January 1998, and that the police were asked to rigidly enforce the provisions of Regulation 10(4) of the Public Passenger Vehicles Regulations 1995, with effect from the same date.

This Regulation states, and I quote: “Between 6.00 am and 6.00 pm on any day, no driver of a bus or taxi shall pick up passengers or wait for any period for that purpose anywhere in the district of George Town on the road shown coloured in red on the plan in the Schedule to these Regulations.”

The area of road shown coloured in red is from the junction of Boilers Road and South Church Street along Harbour Drive to the junction of Mary Street and North Church Street.

It has been two months since this system has been operational, and as a result of a review of the system, and representations received from some of the taxi and bus operators, it is felt that the area shown coloured in red on the plan in the Schedule to the Public Passenger Vehicles Regulations, 1995, extends too far north, and that it would be more equitable to terminate this area at the northern part of the junction of Fort Street and North Church Street. This will allow taxis and buses to pick up passengers at any point north of the junction of Fort Street and North Church Street.

The Public Passenger Vehicles (Amendment) Regulations, 1998, which I will lay on the Table of this Honourable House on Friday morning reflects this change.

Finally, may I thank all Honourable Members of this Legislative Assembly for their continued support with this national issue.

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 1/98

LONG SERVICE OR MERITORIOUS AWARDS—
CUSTOMS AND IMMIGRATION OFFICERS

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: I beg to move Private Member's Motion No. 1/98 standing in my name, which reads as follows:

"WHEREAS the Cayman Islands Customs and Immigration Departments are uniformed branches, as the Fire, Police and Prisons Departments;

"AND WHEREAS the Customs and Immigration Departments oftentimes carry out duties, to some degree along the lines of a Police Officer;

"BE IT NOW THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT His Excellency the Governor be asked to put in place long service or meritorious awards similar to that of the other uniformed departments mentioned;

"AND BE IT NOW FURTHER RESOLVED THAT the awards, if created, be given by His Excellency the Governor at Her Majesty the Queen's birthday celebrations."

Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks: I beg to second the Motion.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 1/98 has been duly moved and seconded and is now open for debate. The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Over the years I have been a Member of the Legislative Assembly, I have endeavoured to make provision for people to be duly recognised and honoured by this country, where appropriate, for their hard work and commitment. I am proud to have been the one to successfully pilot a Law for National Heroes and to see two worthy Caymanians installed as National Heroes. I am also proud to have asked for a Motion for the establishment of a Sports Man and Woman of the year.

I have always held the belief that when people work hard, when people are loyal and honest, they must be properly acknowledged. So this Motion seeks to have His Excellency the Governor create awards for the staff of two departments of Government, who over the years have given their talent, intelligence, and energy to their country; two departments that heretofore have not sufficiently been recognised by this country; two departments that have played a tremendous role in the development of these Islands.

First, I would like to deal with Immigration. The first law for the regulation of immigration was passed on 30 November 1934. The Department of Immigration originally came into existence as a section of the Police Department. For many years, the Commission of Police held a statutory position as Chief Immigration Officer, and Police Officers exercised functions of Immigration Officers in addition to their normal duties. This arrangement was not uncommon under the Colonial system of administration. In the late 1960s, certain officers were appointed as full-time Immigration Officers, although the Commissioner of Police still remained the titular head of Immigration.

In 1971, a Deputy Immigration Officer, responsible to the Commissioner of Police, was appointed. At the same time, a Deputy Commissioner of Police was also appointed. The Department of Immigration at that time comprised a total of only five persons. That was in 1971. This arrangement continued until 1975, when the final separation of Immigration from Police took place and the Deputy Immigration Officer became the Chief Immigration Officer, reporting directly to the Chief Secretary.

Because our Islands are small, the Department of Immigration of the Cayman Islands has somewhat wider responsibilities than its counterparts in most other countries. Besides the conventional responsibility of regulating the entry of all persons coming into the Islands, the Immigration Department is responsible for administering several laws: the Caymanian Protection Law (which is now the Immigration Law), the Local Companies (Control) Law, the Trade and Business Licensing Law; the issue of visas; its own enforcement work, including powers of arrest without warrant, prosecutions and so on; its own radio communication network.

It is significant that there is only one department of Government concerned with the issue of work permits and the control of foreign off-shore business activity on the Island and local business, to which the public has to go to get all the necessary approvals for their normal and regular operations.

The research on these two departments has been an education to me. It really shows the dramatic growth of these Islands, and how the responsibilities and work have increased from the 'Islands that Time Forgot' to the buzzing metropolis we are today.

The Immigration Department (from a staff of five) currently has 52 serving Immigration Officers ranging in years of service from six months to 30 years. There are various job descriptions which I think are worthy of mention at this time. Their job purpose is to process the movement of visitors and residents to and from the Cayman Islands and to assist with collection of Immigration fees.

It is noteworthy to mention that in 1963 we had 2,453 returning residents, 25 immigrants, 3,440 visitors and tourists, and 170 in-transit passengers, making a total of 6,088 persons—thirty-five years ago, as against today, when the Immigration Department processed some 750,000 passengers per annum at the airport, and processed approximately 700 customers per day at the counter in the Immigration office.

They answer some 30,000 calls per annum, and they have to deal with certain revenue, which in 1986, for instance, was $2.5 million per year, for work permits and so on. Today, they have to assist with the collection of some $19 million of revenue. Just so that we can understand, when we complain, what their accountabilities and responsibilities are, let me give a few of these:

- They process passengers and crew, ensuring that all travel documents are legitimate and accurate in order to maintain control of movement of all arrivals to and departures from the Cayman Islands.

- Input embarkation and disembarkation cards into the Immigration computer system in order to maintain accurate records for statistical and legal purposes.
- Ensure that all passengers travelling to the Islands appear on the manifests received from the various airlines in order to determine the legality of entry into the Islands.
- Process passengers and crew arriving on private aircraft at the Civil Aviation's general office in order to maintain control of movements of arrivals and departures.
- Collect monies, issue receipts ensuring that the correct fee is collected, and maintain proper records of transactions in accordance with the Financial and Stores Regulations.
- Ensure that monies received balance, prepare reports and forward to the Financial Comptroller or Assistant Accounts Officer for verification.
- Deal with the public concerning all immigration matters, that is requests for visitor extensions, re-entry stamps, work permit stamps to ensure visitors, residents and overseas employees possess the required documents and so on.
- Assist with telephone queries regarding general information on Immigration Laws and procedures. That alone amounts to some 30,000 calls per annum.
- Perform other duties.

And then, Immigration has to work in tandem with other departments daily, such as Police Officers, for assistance and requests for extensions to verify and determine date of court cases, stop notice warnings; with Customs Officers to clarify matters regarding salesmen, for instance, who might not have stated their intentions to conduct business in the Islands; the general public; private sector employers to obtain additional information regarding employees.

The Speaker: Could I interrupt the Member one moment? Would this be a convenient time to take the luncheon break?

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Yes.

The Speaker: Proceedings are suspended until 2.15 PM.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.47 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.48 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Debate continues. The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: When we took the break, I was dealing with the accountabilities of the Immigration Department. They have certain decision-making authority, which is required that postholders, that is, Immigration Officers, work within the guidelines of the Immigration Department, the Immigration Law, and Financial and Stores Regulations. Under the Immigration Law, 1992, officers shall have all the rights, powers, privileges and immunities of a constable when discharging their duties under this Law and may, for that purpose, board and search any vessel. The officers also make decisions regarding permission to enter and remain in the Cayman Islands and administer the provisions of the Immigration Law. We can see that they have wide powers and tremendous responsibilities. I certainly feel that they do a good job.

Let me deal with the Customs Department. According to Pedley's thesis, the outline of the history of the Customs Department is somewhat similar to the Treasury, with Customs duty such a vital source of revenue for the dependency. However, this was normally a busier department with more personnel. Pedley's thesis goes on to say that "the difference can be seen as early as 1888, in response to Fife's report, which had detailed the failings of the existing revenue system. The Legislative Assembly passed an Act for the improvement in the administration on 30 May 1888. That Act appointed a Collector General with power to appoint such district collectors as he deemed necessary. These were the proper Customs officers mentioned by Hearst, for whom, presumably, the warehouse he mentions, was built, as well as one or more of the government offices. During Parsons tenure, two ports of entry were designated for Grand Cayman and one for Cayman Brac. In 1897, the Customs Consolidation Law was passed."

It is interesting to look at the law passed by the justices and vestry to regulate Customs in these Islands in the year 1897. I will take the time to read, because it is so interesting, the first section of that Law of 1897. It says, "It shall be lawful for the justices and vestry to appoint proper persons for the management and collection of the Customs, and the performance of all duties connected therewith, to grant to such persons such salaries and allowances and permit them to receive such emoluments for executing the duties of their respective offices as they may deem fit, and to require of such persons such securities for their good conduct as they shall deem necessary, and such persons shall hold their offices during the pleasure of the said justices and vestry, subject, however, to the right of appeal to the Governor of Jamaica."

There has been tremendous change in the administration over the years, as we look at this Law. I did not know that the justices and vestry could actually appoint people, but at least this Law tells us that was the case. To go back to Pedley's thesis, it says that "from the start, the Collector General's work must have been almost full time, although he was paid no salary. His commission for 1889 amounted to £49 18s, rising the following year to £63 18s—not much over the Custos salary at the time. The district collectors may have also collected internal revenue, unless this work was left entirely to a clerk of the peace. In 1898, with the appointment of the Commissioner as Collector General, Customs was absorbed in the Commissioner's department, and by the year 1907, the Customs section of this department had a complement of five. Apart from the Collector General, there were three collectors and an assistant collector. By the 1930s this number had grown to nine, including two collectors, two assistant collectors, three Customs officers, and a tidewater. In 1942, responsibility for Customs was handed over to the combined department of Customs, Post Office and Treasury, in which personnel continued to share different functions as they had done in the Commissioner's department."

In the department known as Treasury, Customs and Post Office, was a total staff of eight persons. Then, in 1955, these three sections were divided into their own separate entities, and the Customs Department, headed by a Collector of Customs and comprising three persons in total, was born. As we know, the Collector today is appointed by the Governor and is responsible to the Financial Secretary for the efficient management, supervision and control of the Department. As we look too at the difference and change in responsibilities over the years, we can see here again the tremendous change and development in these Islands, and the responsibilities of the Customs Department.

The main responsibilities of the Customs Department seem to be the collection of Customs revenue and package tax under the provisions of the Customs Law, which specifies tariff rates and its Regulations; the prevention of smuggling to protect revenue; the provision of goods imported and exported for trade statistics; the implementation and enforcement of prohibitions and restrictions under various laws to protect health, safety, morals, security, agricultural and animal life, including the Misuse of Drugs Law, the Firearms Law and Regulations, the Penal Code, the Plants (Regulation of Importation and Exportation) Law, the Endangered Species (Protection and Propagation) Law, the Animals Law, the Traffic Law; also, its own enforcement work, including wide powers of search, arrest, seizure or detention of goods; prosecution; imposition of penalties and determination of conditions for restoration of seized goods to owners; and its own radio communication network.

In citing the evolution of the Customs Department regarding its financial contribution for the past twenty-five years, I think it is significant to note that in 1972, the yearly collection of revenue was less than one million dollars. In comparison, in 1997, last year, it was well over $80 million. It is also interesting to note that in 1972 the staff complement was nine officers. Today, the staff complement is well over 90 employees between Grand Cayman and Cayman Brac.

With the advent of the unfortunate increase of importation and usage of drugs, as we are aware, the Customs Department has played and continues to play a most important role in the detection, interception and prosecution of individuals who continue to flagrantly ignore the warning and penalties of this jurisdiction. It must be added that these officers perform their functions with a sense of dedication and expertise. In looking at some of the cases that have been detected, when we read the newspaper and listen to the radio and television, one has to marvel at the ingenuity of some of these culprits, and we can then be appreciative of the observation and skill of our Customs officers working their process of detection.

We, as a country, must be ever grateful for the work of these officers in performing such a commendable task. It should be added that this work also entails, not only the detection of these drugs, but the long and sometimes tedious work of the destruction of these drugs. To note, statistics now indicate that in the last ten years, several tons of confiscated hard drugs have been destroyed under the direct supervision of at least two justices at all times. Equally important has been the success of the Customs Department in detection of illegal firearms and ammunition.

When we consider that we have Customs and Immigration officers with such a sense of duty that they fearlessly ignore their own personal safety to assist a citizen under attack by a robber, as in the case where the Customs officer, being off-duty, was driving along in the heart of Town by one of the local banks, and displaying that vigilance, as they always display, spotted a security guard making a deposit at the bank who was being attacked, stopped his car, ran to the guard's rescue, and in the tussle, was able to save some, if not all of the money, and perhaps, the man's life. Can we not say that this type of action and this sense of duty are not deserving of national recognition? The answer is clearly yes.

A similar case exists with an Immigration officer some years ago, when that young officer, in the performance of his duty, was struck in the head with a stone and could have been killed. Can we not say that this type of performance deserves national recognition? I again loudly say, yes.

In every organisation, the example of its leaders bears the focus and quality of that organisation. It can indeed be said that the leader of the Customs Department and the leader of the Immigration Department are sterling examples of leadership and competence. The Collector of Customs, Mr. Powery, is widely known, not only for his administrative abilities, but also for his outstanding qualities of life. That fact is not only recognised in our local context, but also very widely regionally. I will personally, through this medium, say thank you, Mr. Powery.

Equally, the same kind of sentiments can be expressed about the Chief Immigration Officer, Mr. Connor, whom I have known for many years and who too is displaying that strong sense of competence and administrative ability. Heading a department that, in the context of national security, is becoming increasingly difficult, we can be grateful that this young Caymanian is doing a good job. We can say about Mr. Connor that he is a good Caymanian, and through this medium I wish to thank him, too.

In closing, it can be said that this Assembly and the Government can be well proud of the quality and influence of these two departments. We should not forget that the officers of the Customs and Immigration Departments are called upon to leave their homes, sometimes late into the night and into the early hours of the morning, to serve this country, sometimes in the midst of extreme danger. The staff complement of these two departments provides a tremendous service to our country, and it is my sincere wish that these two departments will always continue to perform their duties with the same sense of patriotism and diligence. And although many times in their hours of frustration, they may feel that their work is not appreciated, let me take this opportunity, on behalf of the people of this country and this Honourable House to say that indeed their work and service are appreciated. May the Lord strengthen their determination to serve their country well. This motion asks His Excellency the Governor to create and put in place appropriate long service and meritorious awards for the Customs and Immigration officers. I certainly, in moving this resolution, hope that His Excellency the Governor will make awards retroactive. There are several officers who have served well for many years who are not employed today, who served their country. I can think of Mr. Eston Scott who just retired, Mr. Earl Wood, Mr. Arthur Ebanks, and many others who performed a great task and a good job in the foundations of those two departments, and indeed made their mark in the development of this country. So, Mr. Speaker, I would hope that His Excellency the Governor will make awards retroactive. I thank you, Mr. Speaker, and I do hope that all Members will support the resolution before the House.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. As is stated in Private Member's Motion 1/98, regarding the long service or meritorious awards, it presently includes the Fire Service, Prison Service and the Police Service as being eligible for these awards. I fully agree that these hardworking, dedicated persons in the Fire, Police and Prison Departments are most deserving of these awards and I, too, would like to go on record as thanking our forefathers for having the foresight of establishing a tangible, appreciative award for such persons.

Since I am absolutely satisfied that the Mover is not bringing the Motion for political reasons, and since I am also satisfied that he was too busy when he was in Executive Council to have brought a Government Motion to this effect, I am most delighted to give my full support to these two additional categories of persons, being the Customs and Immigration Departments.

In my respectful view, it goes without saying that it would have been more expeditious had the Mover brought the Motion when he was a Minister in Executive Council because, among other reasons, he would not have required a seconder. Not to say that there is anything wrong with requiring a seconder, especially since the seconder is my good and genuine friend, the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay who himself should have been given a very special award a long time ago for his valuable contribution to sports. Nevertheless, it is better late than never, and I therefore congratulate the Mover for so graciously considering the additional categories of the Customs and Immigration Departments for the Long Service or Meritorious Awards.

Both the Customs and Immigration Departments work long, arduous hours, oftentimes in less than desirable circumstances. These two departments also fall within the rank of many other hardworking civil servants who make many sacrifices to serve our beloved Cayman Islands. I am extremely appreciative to each of them individually, as well as collectively, for all they do to improve the well-being of the people of the Cayman Islands.

Not only do they play a role of intervention, protection and policing, but it is also because of their vigilance and due diligence that their departments make a significant financial contribution to Government's general revenue year after year. However, I would like to see this Motion go one step further, in that it is my humble and respectful view that the medical staff, court bailiffs and other court staff, the Public Works staff, special constables, marine officers, the E-911 staff and teachers should also be included in the list of persons being eligible for the Long Service or Meritorious Award.

Further, subject to the separation of powers under our present Constitution, I would also recommend that judges be considered for special reward because day after day they have to make decisions to preserve the law and order which maintain the international image of the Cayman Islands' judicial system and the social harmony of these Islands.

The word "meritorious," literally speaking, means deserving reward or notice, or worthy of praise. When one closely looks at these categories of persons, I have no doubt in my mind that they too are most deserving of Long Service or Meritorious Awards. I, for one, and I am sure other Honourable Members, will have no problem supporting these additional categories, especially since I would like to believe that a Motion of this sort rises above petty politics and personalities.

I am eternally grateful for all of those persons who fall in these categories who are already eligible, those who the Mover now seeks to include, as well as those categories I am recommending be incorporated into the ambit of this Motion, and all persons who have made a valuable contribution to our beloved Cayman Islands.

With these few words, I thank you and may God continue to richly bless the persons in these Islands as we work in one accord toward the continued stability of good governance here in Cayman.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. All I have to say, since I was the seconder of this Motion, is that I give this Motion my full support. In speaking of merit, there are so many, because any person who serves their country in uniform deserves a medal.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I rise to support the Motion that is before this Honourable House. In so doing, I think we might need to—not necessarily have a re-think, because the Motion itself limits the question as to where these additional long service or meritorious awards should be placed. I think one of the "Resolved" sections deals with uniformed departments of Government. As the Mover mentioned, that was the area he was concentrating on. The Minister has added some other areas within the public service which she thinks are deserving of such awards.

The question that comes to mind, in looking at other departments, is as you keep thinking of persons who have on many occasions spent the greater part of their lives in service to the country in one form or the other, where do you draw the line? I think there are some 39 departments, and if there is any thought beyond what the Motion calls for, it is very difficult to add more and leave some of the rest out.

The point I wish to make is that I give the Motion as it is worded my full support, but I also believe that if there are any thoughts of extending such awards to any other areas, perhaps thought should be given to separating the uniformed departments from the other departments. Perhaps the other departments can fall into another category altogether. It is my view that while each of us may have our own personal experiences with individuals who have given their service to the country, if each of us took issue about it, we could each find an individual in each department who has given long service to the Government and who we might feel deserves some recognition.

With regard to the Motion, based on where it has limited itself, where the Mover has explained his reasoning behind it, I certainly give it my full support. But I would suggest to the Government that if there is any extension to what the Motion calls for, it not add a few tentacles and leave the rest off. In my view, that could be considered by the community to be a situation where some deserving people will be left out.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: I rise in support of the Motion as it was presented to this Honourable House by the Mover and the Secunder. When it comes to rewarding people, all people should be rewarded because we all make our contributions. But I think that what is being said here, and if we understand the history of the award the First Elected Member for West Bay is talking about, it is an award that comes by way of the State because of the position an individual might be in because of his duties to the State. An Immigration Officer involved in protecting the Immigration Laws of the Cayman Islands, or a Customs Officer involved in protecting the Customs Laws of the Cayman Islands could find themselves in danger as a result of having to deal with persons attempting to break the laws. I think that the Mover of this Motion made that quite clear in describing the tactics used by smugglers. I think that must be understood.

It is very important to see their enforcement responsibilities, enforcing the laws of this country. Of course, we would not want to give these awards to everybody because that would just make it meaningless. But I think that these two extensions that he is asking for are quite reasonable because it is dealing with the uniformed branch, meaning that they are putting themselves at risk in upholding the laws of the Cayman Islands.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: This Motion is one that I am happy to support. It is one that deals with the Long Service Awards to civil servants and one that I am sure will be welcomed by the civil servants affected. It is always good when people who have spent very long periods of time giving their all to the Service are rewarded. I know this happens normally twice in each year in relation to civil servants as well as the uniformed branch.

I think it would be good as well to widen this Motion. For example, we have teachers who are very dedicated, who have spent all their lives teaching our children, who really deal with the future generation of this country to mould those who will be the leaders of tomorrow. Also, we have others such as the nurses and doctors who perform a very important role in this society. There would not be the stability, the health that is necessary for Cayman to progress to where it is. I believe that while we are at this, we should widen the Motion to include others, for example, the Special Constables, also uniformed and, say, Marine Officers.

I believe that looking at this, and I would assume that these awards will be coming from the Governor himself, the same as the awards that presently come from the Governor, the Cayman Islands Certificate and Badge of Honour, and that widening it would, in my view, be good—especially in relation to teachers, as I have responsibility for education. I think that they should be included among others in this.

To that effect, what I will be seeking to do (and, unfortunately, I was not able to get this circulated) is to amend the Motion to widen it to include persons beyond what the Motion now seeks to do. I appreciate that the two-day notice has not been given, but I would ask that I be allowed to put the Motion and then circulate a copy of it, subject to leave, which would basically add teachers, nurses, and special constables and those to it.

The Speaker: I will waive the two days' notice.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you.

I would like to then, Mr. Speaker, to Move (and then get this typed and circulated):

“BE IT RESOLVED THAT the first operating part of the motion beginning with ‘BE IT NOW...’ be amended by deleting the semicolon (;) and adding the following words thereto; ‘and to the Medical Staff, Court Bailiffs, and other Court Staff, Public Works Staff, Special Constables, Marine Officers, 911 Staff and Teachers.’”

[Inaudible interjections by some Members]

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Surely teachers...and there is some noise on the other side. I do not understand why teachers, for example, should not be granted Long Term or Meritorious Awards. I would like to see them included in this Motion.

I move the amendment, but I will get it typed and circulated.

The Speaker: Maybe this would be a convenient time to take the afternoon break. Proceedings are suspended for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.33 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.29 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. We have reached the hour of 4.30. I would entertain a motion for the adjournment. The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until 11.00 tomorrow to give sufficient time to get back from the Prayer Breakfast, of which I would like remind Honourable Members, at 7.45 AM tomorrow.

The Speaker: The question is that this Honourable House do now adjourn until 11.00 AM tomorrow. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES AND NOES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

Mr. Roy Bodden: May we have a division, Mr. Speaker?

The Speaker: It is mandatory that the House adjourn at 4.30. That is what my Standing Orders say. The House do stand adjourned until 11.00 AM tomorrow.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Is there not a vote taken on this matter?

The Speaker: You can move to suspend Standing Orders if you so desire.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: I am not moving, Sir, but really, if this is an Assembly, and that is what we are, if there is a motion here and a vote taken and someone is asking for a division, we must be able to take that, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: I am not opposed to the division at all, but I am trying to say that this is mandatory. We will take a division, that is not a problem. Clerk, please call a division.

The Clerk:

DIVISION NO. 1/98

MISS CASSANDRA POWELL
MISS CAYMAN ISLANDS 1997/98

The Speaker: I am honoured this morning to recognise Miss Cassandra Powell, Miss Cayman Islands 1997/98, seated in the VIP gallery. We wish to welcome you here and wish you a very successful reign.

Item number 3, Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. Question No. 20, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for West Bay.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION 20

No. 20: Mr. W. McKeeva Bush asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development to say whether there has been any request or enquiries concerning the formation of a company or companies in these Islands involved in the business of human or animal cloning. If the answer is in the affirmative, can the Honourable Member say what response was given to those enquiries? If the answer is in the negative, would the Government make a statement that will discourage any such enquiry?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The Registrar of Companies is not aware of any enquiries or requests being made to form a company in the Cayman Islands which may be involved with the business of human and/or animal cloning. However, even if a company is seeking registration to conduct such a business, it would be very difficult, if not impossible, for the Registrar's Office to detect this, unless the word "cloning," or such similar words, were used in the name of the company. This is because most companies have their objects unrestricted and are therefore authorised to conduct any type of business, provided it is not prohibited.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Can the Honourable Member make a statement, or has the Government discussed making a statement that will discourage that type of activity?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I am not in a position to make a statement at this time, but I could bring the matter to the attention of Executive Council, setting out the Member's request.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: I wonder if the Honourable Third Official Member would take that one step further, in that since we understand countries like the United States are bringing legislation into play to prohibit such things, if the Cayman Islands, as a financial industry, could not consider moving legislation in this Parliament prohibiting such things?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I am sure the request by the lady Member would pose no difficulty for the Government on this matter.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Notwithstanding the previous supplementary question, I wonder if the Honourable Third Official Member could state categorically whether this type of business is presently prohibited or not in the Cayman Islands?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: This is an area which, although I have heard about it and have my own views on it, is not something I have had reason to make enquiries of as to the legality or illegality of it. While this matter is being brought to Executive Council with a view to considering legislation, this is an area which will also be looked at, that if it is permitted, I am sure it will be addressed in the legislation, making it prohibited.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? No further supplementaries? Question number 21 standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION 21

No. 21: Mr. Linford A. Pierson asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development to state the total number of contingency warrants issued since the last Finance Committee meeting, and the total amount pending approval by Finance Committee.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The answer: The number of contingency warrants issued since the last Finance Committee meeting is three. These total $138,894, of which $118,344 will be blocked from other votes. The net additional expenditure is therefore $20,550.

The agenda for the next Finance Committee meeting will include these three contingency warrants.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I wonder if the Honourable Member is in a position to give an indication to this Honourable House as to when the next Finance Committee meeting will be called.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I will be making a recommendation to Executive Council, which will have to consider the Finance Committee agenda, that the meeting be held on 27 March 1998.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: In this connection, I wonder if the Honourable Member is able to indicate to this House the policy of the Government regarding the issue of contingency warrants.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Section 21(1) of the Public Finance and Audit Law allows for the Financial Secretary to issue contingency warrants, which are written authorisations to meet urgent needs for expenditure, where no provision or insufficient provision is shown in the approved Budget, and which expenditure cannot be deferred without detriment to the public interest. A contingency warrant, however, is an interim measure and ultimately the approval of Finance Committee must be obtained to clear any such warrant. Currently, the procedure is that the Financial Secretary obtains Executive Council's authorisation for all contingency warrants in excess of $10,000, except in critical situations where it is not possible to do so. In these extraordinary cases, the Financial Secretary will subsequently seek Executive Council's approval to include warrants issued on the next available Finance Committee agenda.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Could the Honourable Third Official Member state, notwithstanding the fact that only three contingency warrants have been issued since the last Finance Committee, how many requests have been received for contingency warrants during this period?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I will not be in a position to give details of that, because evidently when requests are put forward by various departments, these are discussed with the Director of Budget and Management Services Unit, and if it can be shown that they will have savings occurring in other areas, and such savings can be used at this time, the recommendation will be made that such funds be used. But up to this point, the only contingency warrants I can account for are the three which have been mentioned in the response to the Parliamentary question.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? No further supplementaries? We will go to question number 22, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 22 (Withdrawn)

No. 22: Mr. Roy Bodden: I would crave the indulgence of the Chair and the Honourable House to have this question withdrawn, seeing that it is almost identical to the previously answered questions.

The Speaker: I shall put the question. The question is that Question No. 22 be withdrawn. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The question is withdrawn.

AGREED: QUESTION 22 WITHDRAWN.

The Speaker: Moving to Question 23, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION 23

No. 23: Dr. Frank McField asked the Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration to state the cost to Government in the case of Brian Gibbs v Rea for the following:

- (a) payment to Mr. John M. Rea;
- (b) loss of interest earnings to date on this payment;
- (c) payment to outside counsel;
- (d) cost to the Legal Department, including segregated cost of your personal trip to Privy Council; and
- (e) the estimation of Mr. Rea's legal costs yet to be paid.

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The Answer: (a) The sum awarded to Mr. John Rea by the Cayman Islands Court of Appeal—CI$616,281; (b) Interest that could have been earned from date payment drawn, 23 August 1996, until 28 February 1998, at a rate of 5.75% per annum, credited at six-monthly intervals, amounts to CI$54,954. (c) Payment of counsel's fees in Cayman—$10,623.46; counsel's fees in London in pounds sterling, £26,700; solicitor's fees in London, again in pounds sterling, £9,363; (d) There was no pecuniary cost to the Cayman Islands Government Legal Department. The expenses of the Attorney General to the Privy Council were $5,386. (e) Mr. Rea's costs are subject to taxation by the Court, and it is not possible to give an estimate.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries? The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Section (d) of the answer states, "There was no pecuniary cost to the Cayman Islands Government Legal Department. The expenses of the Attorney General to the Privy Council were $5,386." Is the Honourable Second Official Member saying that, in matters such as this, the Legal Department of the Cayman Islands Government works for free, and their time is not valued by way of dollars and cents?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: I am certainly not saying that their time is not valuable and is not valued, and of course, they are employed by Government and so their time is paid for by Government. But in a case such as this, the costs are not segregated. There is no quantifiable amount that it has cost the Legal Department. Of course there has been a time element, but there has not been any cost attached to that time.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. While I appreciate the Honourable Second Official Member's answer, can he state if people within the Legal Department spent any man-hours working on this case, and if so, I am asking if the word "pecuniary" is the correct word, because, while I am not a lawyer, some costs have to be attached if time was spent by that Department. How many hours might that have been?

The Speaker: Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: I am not insinuating at all that there was not valuable work done by members of the Legal Department; it is just that the Legal Department do not bill Government in any way for the time spent. Yes, Crown Counsel did spend time on this case, not perhaps as much as on other cases, because, as the Member can see from the other answers I have given, outside counsel were employed at all stages of this case, so Crown Counsels' involvement was perhaps less than might have been otherwise.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Bearing in mind that the cost to Government seems substantial here, when we take into account the interest of $54,954 plus the cost of counsel fees in Cayman of over $10,000, and then the substantial cost in London in pounds sterling of over £26,000 and over £9,000, again, was there any attempt to try to solve this situation outside the courts at this point to perhaps save the Government these expenditures?

The Speaker: Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Yes, Mr. Speaker, this was a civil action brought against Government, not by Government. In fact, the way the question is framed, it was not the Government or Gibbs who brought the action, it was Mr. Rea who brought the action. Of course, there are always hopes that you might be able to resolve it, but that was not the case, and for various reasons, it was not possible to do so, and so the matter had to go through. The matter was originally heard by the Grand Court in Cayman, where the plaintiff was unsuccessful. Then it was appealed by the plaintiff to the Cayman Islands Court of Appeal, where he was successful, and then the Government, on advice, appealed it to the Privy Council, where the plaintiff succeeded.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Honourable Member say if there is any system in place whereby some log or record is kept of the time spent by members of the Legal Department in researching, preparation and presentation of these cases, so that one is able to ascertain man-hours and is able to comparably record the monies spent and put a dollar value on the time involved in all the processes?

The Speaker: Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: We do not have any computerised time record, such as would exist in private sector firms of attorneys, because the Legal Department does not render bills to its clients in that way. A private sector firm of attorneys, which I am very familiar with, of course, would have—or most of them—a computerised time-costing system. But yes, records are kept, and they are of a somewhat more rudimentary nature, as I have outlined. But we do try to keep records. Individual Crown Counsel are encouraged to keep records of the time that they spend, and that is a habit I do encourage.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Honourable Second Official Member say if, as a result of this judgement, there has been any review of the performance of anyone involved on the Government side, and if there has been any assessment as to any changes necessary in tactics and procedures, seeing that this judgement seems so significant against the Government?

The Speaker: Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Yes, thank you, Mr. Speaker. Indeed, I would acknowledge, it certainly is a significant judgement, not just for Cayman, but for many other Commonwealth jurisdictions, which are subject to the decisions of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council. This case arose out of an incident which occurred in 1991, and it arose under a search warrant that was applied for under the Misuse of Drugs Law. That Law sets out a particular procedure for applications for search warrants, a different procedure than is normally used for search warrants in Cayman. Yes, indeed, the procedures have changed since this incident in 1991. They have changed following decisions of the Chief Justice and made in consultation with myself, and the particular circumstances in which this search warrant was applied for would not appertain now. It might be helpful if I explain what those were for the Member, and how they have been altered.

At that time, for whatever reason, it was not the habit, or it certainly was not consistent for all judges who heard these applications to make notes of the applications. Bear in mind that under the Misuse of Drugs Law, an application for a search warrant has to be made to a Grand Court judge, not to a JP or to a Magistrate. In this particular case, there were no notes made. That procedure has been stopped, and now the Chief Justice has decreed that in applications under the Misuse of Drugs Law, and indeed under the Proceeds of Criminal Conduct Law—because the procedure is the same—that the judges will keep notes of the application, and a considerable portion of this case turned on the lack of notes.

The other area that has changed is that on all applications now, Crown Counsel from the Legal Department are consulted before the application is made to the Court for the search warrant, and on some occasions, Crown Counsel is also in Court, or not necessarily in Court, but in front of the judge when the application is made, not necessarily so, but Crown Counsel has certainly given advice beforehand. I should stress that these facts occurred in 1991, some seven years ago, and yes, the procedure has changed since then, and this particular set of circumstances could not arise in the future.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, it is very reassuring to note that this particular set of circumstances could not occur today, but it is also important because someone should have been able to figure out, even in 1992 or 1993, when the case was brought to Court, that the position of the Government was a weak position, and therefore my question is, was there any offer by Mr. John Rea to settle this matter outside Court? Was there any statement by him to the fact that an apology really was what he was looking for? Is the Honourable Member aware of there being any communication regarding his desire to settle outside Court before it went to the stage it did?

The Speaker: Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Not to the best of my recollection. This started before I came to Cayman, or before I was appointed Attorney General, but as I say, of course there was regular contact with the attorneys, but certainly, as far as I am aware, there was never any suggestion that this case could be settled by an apology.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Could the Honourable Second Official Member say whether there was any intention on the part of the Government to offer an official apology to the aggrieved party?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: The case has been dealt with. As far as the Government is concerned, that is now the end of the matter.

The Speaker: I will allow two additional supplementaries on this. I think we have pretty well covered the subject.

The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I wonder if the Second Official Member can say whether the amount of the award included interest that was lost on the funds due to Mr. John Rea. In other words, did the award of $616,281, in addition to that, was interest considered also on this amount?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: There was a figure of interest, which, I have to say I am not sure why I do not have that with me, because I spoke with the Accountant General about that. I will just have a look in my briefcase to see if I have it in here. (Pause) I haven't, I do not know why, but to the best of my recollection, and I think my recollection is right, because I only spoke with the Accountant General very recently, the interest figure that was paid, this was for the period from the date of the award by the Cayman Islands Court of Appeal until the date it was paid, which was 23 August 1996, I believe was $77,000. I am pretty sure my memory is correct, but if the Member would like, I would undertake to provide him with that exact figure, and I apologise that, for whatever reason, I do not have it with me.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: There are two areas with a lot of grey still in my mind, and while I have to accept the Second Official Member's explanation regarding the question, section (d), about the cost to the Legal Department, in his answer to (e), where the question was the estimation of Mr. Rea's legal costs yet to be paid—again, I am no lawyer—but the answer says, “Mr. Rea's costs are subject to taxation by the Court and it is not possible to give an estimate.” Surely, I would assume, and I stand to be corrected, that if the costs are subject to taxation by the Court, the Courts must have some type of formula that they use, and if they do, how is it that it is not possible to give an estimate?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: I suppose one could say that it is likely that the costs of the plaintiff are not going to be materially different from the costs of the defendant, because we are both approaching the same action, and have to do similar work. But bearing in mind that costs do have to be taxed, the other point I would make is that, upon taxation, the costs are a matter of argument between the plaintiff's advisors and the defendant's advisors. In other words, it is something the Government may have to end up having to argue in front of a taxing officer, either in London or here. It would probably be unwise of me to give an opinion as to what I think the costs may be, but it would certainly not be unreasonable for me to say that I would anticipate the costs will not be significantly different than the type of costs that have been incurred by Government.

The Speaker: Question No. 24, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION 24

No. 24: Mr. Linford A. Pierson asked the Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Affairs to advise in the matter of the Privy Council case of Gibbs and others v Rea:

- (a) whether Government received legal advice as to the merits of the appeal to the Privy Council and, if not, why not;
- (b) if the answer to (a) above is in the affirmative, to state from whom was the advice received and what was the advice; and
- (c) what is the total cost to Government in this case?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: The answer: (a) Government received advice as to the merits of an appeal to the Privy Council from three counsel;

(b) advice was sought from Mr. Pierre Lamontagne, Q.C., in Cayman, and Mr. James Turner and Mr. Edwin Glasgow, Q.C., in London. Each counsel gave a favourable opinion.

(c) The cost to Government arising from this civil claim is CI$790,238.36. That of course is the total of the figures I gave in answer to the previous question.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries? The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In the answer to this question, I note in part (c) that the Second Official Member has stated that the cost to Government arising from this civil claim is approximately CI$790,000. In his answer to the previous question, he stated that there was no pecuniary cost to the Cayman Islands Government, meaning there was no way of indicating the total cost to Government in this matter. I wonder if he can state whether the answer to (c), that is the $790,238.36 would include the cost of using the Government employees, including his costs of travelling back and forth in this matter.

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The costs I have given, the figure in (c), is the pecuniary cost to Government, the money Government has expended in connection with this claim, that is to say, the satisfaction of the award, the interest, counsels' fees, my expenses, but it does not include the time element I have referred to earlier, of Crown Counsels' time, because that is not quantifiable as a pecuniary amount. This figure is the pecuniary cost to Government.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I wonder if the Honourable Member could clarify this point. In part (d) of question 23, it asks the cost to the Legal Department, including segregated cost of your personal trip to the Privy Council, and the Honourable Member's answer to that was that there was no pecuniary cost; yet, in the answer to my question, he states that there was a total of $790,000. I cannot see clearly the distinction between these two answers. Perhaps the Honourable Member could clarify the difference here. Question 23 was asking about the cost to the Legal Department. My question is also asking, what is the total cost to Government, which would mainly be the cost to the Legal Department, so they are very much the same, Mr. Speaker. I wonder if he could clarify that point.

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The answer I gave to paragraph (d) of the previous question was the cost to specifically the Legal Department within Government, and as I have tried to explain, the Legal Department itself did not render any bill. There was no pecuniary cost incurred by the Legal Department. The cost which I have given within this total is the total pecuniary cost to Government, as opposed to the Legal Department, of this action, and if there have been any pecuniary payments made out by the Legal Department, although in fact they were all made out through my Chambers as opposed to the Legal Department. They are included. The figure I have given in (c) is the total financial cost to the Cayman Islands Government.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. As a matter of trying to elicit the total cost to Government, I notice that the answer given by the Honourable Member is approximately $790,000 cost to Government, and there was another $616,000 paid to Mr. Rea in addition to interest. Is it correct to say that the overall total is approximately $1.5 million that Government has had to pay for this case?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: No, that would not be correct to say. The total cost to Government, including the award to Mr. Rea, is $790,000.

The Speaker: Is this a follow-up, because the Elected Member from North Side wanted to ask a question. The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I wonder if the Honourable Second Official Member could tell the House, as he is the legal advisor to the Cayman Islands Government, why advice was not sought from him, other than outside Q.C.s on this matter going to the Privy Council?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Yes, Mr. Speaker, of course, I gave my advice to the Government. The question asked if advice had been sought from outside counsel, and that is the answer that was given, but of course, the overriding advice is always from the Attorney General and my advice was given to Government.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: In view of the admission of the Second Official Member that he did, in fact, give his advice, I wonder if he is able to say that this advice was given against the background that the Court of Appeal did, in fact, find against Government, and that he then advised the Government to take this matter to the Privy Council, thus costing the Government this extra amount of money?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: I have already said in my answer that advice was taken from three eminent outside counsel, one in Cayman, who was involved with the case from its—not quite from its inception, but certainly from the time before the Grand Court; and then two counsel in London, and I concurred with their advice. That is all I can say.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker, and I want to thank the Honourable Member for his answer. The finding of the Privy Council, which is the highest Court that the Cayman Islands and other overseas territories can use in a case like this, found malice was the overriding factor in this case. I wonder if the Honourable Member can state whether this might also have been the finding of the Court of Appeal when it decided against Government.

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Yes, Mr. Speaker, it is an integral part of this particular tortious action, that there has to be a finding of malice, and the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council went into some detail on this, and I think they described it as, the malice they found in this particular case was what is commonly called a "fishing expedition." That is how they described it.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I take it that the Honourable Member did in fact state that the Court of Appeal found that there was malice. I wonder if he could confirm that was his answer to me, that the Court of Appeal's finding was the same as the Privy Council's, that there was malice in this case.

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Yes, Mr. Speaker, I thought I had made that clear. One of the essential elements of proving this tort is that there is malice, so the action could not have been successful without the Court finding that. So yes, both the Court of Appeal and, of course, the Judicial Committee, came to that conclusion. Should I say, that was the majority of the Judicial Committee came to that conclusion.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I wanted to get that confirmed because if in fact the Court of Appeal found that there was malice, bearing in mind that the Honourable Second Official Member is in fact a trained lawyer, there would have been very little chance of Government winning this case if malice was the overriding factor, and it would seem that perhaps the advice was ill-advisedly given to Government to pursue this matter to the Privy Council. Would the Honourable Member comment on this statement, please?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Yes, thank you, Mr. Speaker. No, I would not agree with that point of view at all. The Government had been successful before the Chief Justice in the Grand Court, and that decision had been overturned on appeal by the Cayman Islands Court of Appeal. The advice of three outside counsel and myself was that it was the right matter to take to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council. It was a very important issue at stake here, and indeed in the highest court, the decision went against Government by a majority of three to two. In fact, the two members of the Judicial Committee who delivered a dissenting judgement came to a totally opposite conclusion to the majority members, the other three, and delivered a very lengthy dissenting judgement, which was in favour of Government. So of course, I accept, naturally, the decision of the Judicial Committee, and I accept that it went against Government, but it was a close decision.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In light of the answer in (c), the cost to Government arising from the civil claim is $790,238.36. My question is, is this award subject to being increased by the award of legal costs to Mr. John Rea? And as a second part of that question, have any disciplinary measures have been taken regarding those involved in this case?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Any costs that will be taxed by the Court would be in addition to the figure I have given here. I am not able to give that figure because those costs have not been taxed yet. And no, as far as I am aware, no disciplinary measures have been taken. I do not know, if he is referring to police officers, of course that is not within my ambit, it is within others' ambit, and as far as I am aware, none has been taken.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Could the—while I appreciate the fact that the Honourable Second Official Member is not in charge of the police—could the Honourable Member state if, arising from the result of this case, any investigation has been carried out regarding fully understanding why what happened, happened, first of all, to ensure it does not happen again? And secondly, not necessarily—because I hold no brief for anyone, and I am not questioning what should be done—but surely, without trying to talk about discipline, if the costs incurred to Government are of the nature where it could well be, wagering, I guess, here, $850,000, somewhere in that region, surely it cannot just pass like that. Some action has to be taken. I would suspect that while the Second Official Member is not responsible for the police, the whole chain of command within Government must take some action. Surely, your good office has to play a part in it.

The Speaker: Are you asking for an opinion of the Honourable Second Official Member?

Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: No, Mr. Speaker, I am happy to answer it as far as I can. I have already explained that certain changes have been made through the Honourable Chief Justice, in consultation with myself and my office, so that the procedures regarding the application for search warrants, are now substantially different from what they were in 1991. I can certainly tell the Member that I have spoken with both the outgoing Commissioner of Police and the new Commissioner of Police since his arrival, albeit fairly briefly, because he has not long been in Cayman, about the repercussions of this case, and suggestions of a way forward. I am sure those discussions will continue. Had I had more opportunity, I would have discussed it at greater length with him. I intend to do so.

The Speaker: No further supplementaries? That concludes Question Time. Before I do, I would like to call to the attention of the Honourable House that prior to commencing Question Time, I neglected to suspend Standing Orders to take questions after 11.00. So under an abundance of caution, I would ask for a motion to suspend Standing Orders 23(7) and (8).

The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Mr. Speaker, I realise your intention, and it is all good, but as a Parliamentary body, can we do that now? I do not know if we can do it retroactively.

The Speaker: My interpretation is, it will at least show it was with the consent of the House.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Maybe we will have to change the wording then, but I am in agreement with your attempt. I understand.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Perhaps, Mr. Speaker, you will allow one more...

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Perhaps you will allow one more supplementary to the substantive question, and if you will allow that, I will move that Standing Order 23 be suspended to continue question time.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: That seems to be a good way to get around it!

The Speaker: I have no objection to an additional supplementary if this is the wish of the House. Go ahead. The First Elected Member for George Town.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 23 (7) & (8)

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I move for the suspension of that Standing Order, if someone will second it, please.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: I will second it, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The question is that Standing Order 23(7) and (8) be suspended to allow Question Time to be taken after the hour of 11.00 this morning. Is it the wish of the House that we adjourn at this time for the morning break?

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, if I may just ask a supplementary, and then we could take the break.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town. I have to keep my part of the bargain!

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The last supplementary, and I do thank you for allowing that. Is there any anticipated time-frame whereby the legal costs which Government might have to pay concerning Mr. Rea's costs, whereby the whole matter can be cleared up and put to bed?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Yes, I would think probably within the next month to two months. It is difficult for me to be specific, because it is possible to agree the costs with the other side, and that may happen. But if they cannot be agreed, and they have to be taxed, then of course it is a question of getting a hearing date from the Court for the taxation, so that is rather out of my hands. But I would anticipate it would be within that sort of time.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Two final supplementaries. Can the Honourable Member state what is the effect of this ruling concerning the laws under which the action was taken? And could he undertake, whenever that figure that we just mentioned prior to this is agreed upon, whichever way it goes, to give an answer to that figure to this Honourable House in writing?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Yes, whenever that figure has been arrived at, I am very happy to make that known to Honourable Members. As far as any changes to laws in Cayman are concerned, I do not anticipate there will be any change to any law, but is the Member really saying what are the repercussions for this type of case in the future, law enforcement?

There will be repercussions, substantial repercussions, I think, not just within Cayman, but outside. This was a case that involved informant evidence, and there is no doubt that the way informant evidence is used or available to the law enforcement authorities will be substantially affected by this ruling. That is something that those investigating drugs offences will have to think very seriously about, not just in Cayman, but in other jurisdictions, too, and that will certainly be one of the issues I shall be discussing in some depth with the new Commissioner of Police.

The Speaker: I shall now put the question. I did not put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. Standing Order 23(7) and (8) is suspended.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 23(7) AND (8) SUSPENDED TO ENABLE QUESTIONS TO BE TAKEN AFTER 11.00 AM.

The Speaker: Would it be convenient to take the morning break, or should we go until the lunch break? Morning break? We shall suspend for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.20 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12.48 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Debate continues on Private Member's Motion No. 1/98. The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

STANDING ORDER 28
MATTERS OF PRIVILEGE

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I rise under Standing Order 28. I wish to raise a matter which I believe affects the privilege of this Honourable House.

The Speaker: I wrote to you on that, Honourable Member, and told you that I would write you back later today. Please defer that action.

Dr. Frank McField: According to Standing Order 28(2), I am allowed to state briefly the grounds on which I believe the matter affects the privilege of the House.

The Speaker: I have made my ruling on that, please let us continue with the debate.

Does any other Member wish to speak to Private Member's Motion No. 1/98? (Pause) If not, does the Mover wish to exercise his right of reply? The First Elected Member for West Bay.

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 1/98

LONG SERVICE OR MERITORIOUS AWARDS
CUSTOMS AND IMMIGRATION OFFICERS

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: I have listened to the Members who spoke on the Motion, and it seems that the Government wants to add in other persons. The House should bear in mind that I was seeking to deal with two departments which are uniformed branches of the Government. If we go the route being taken by the Government, and add those different sections of the Government—which I really have no problem with, especially teachers and nurses—what about everybody else also in Government? There are deserving people in other branches of Government. I do not think it is right to take up what they are trying to do in this Motion. I certainly support that. Everybody knows my stand on these kinds of issues.

I think what Government should do is more research because they are going to leave out other deserving individuals. As I said, I have no problem with that, but I do not think it is correct to deal with it in this matter. I really feel that the Government's amendment will not add to the substantive Motion, the spirit and intent of the Motion. I really feel...in fact it is plain to see by the way the lady Minister began her speech that the Government's move is not in keeping with the spirit and intent of my Motion.

We never stop learning. I was truly amazed at the manner in which the lady Minister made her contribution. I had to get the Hansard because I was so taken aback that I could not make any notes. I had to read what she said. Let me say something to the Government. On Monday or Tuesday I attended a meeting with the Government. They asked me to attend the National Team Meeting to discuss Motions. Nobody raised this matter. No one said 'We are not supporting your Motion in that context. We are going to add an amendment.' If you are going to be a team, and you want to hold the National Team together, then, for God's sake, be genuine. Let us communicate. I have no problem working with the Government in trying to do things in this country that might come up or to continue the agenda that we started in 1992. But, I am really tired of being slapped at every chance they get. And for what reason? I cannot understand it.

Since she was convinced that I was not doing it for political reasons, why did she take that political stand? Because that is what it was. Was there any reason for her to say what she did about my moving the Motion in Executive Council? She had no reason to. She should have discussed that with me that afternoon. In fact, I was flabbergasted, to say the least, when she got up to answer on behalf of Government because I took all along that this was a matter which affected the Official arm of Government—the Governor, himself. In fact, when she talks about why...

The Speaker: May I just interrupt you? I think you should refer to her as the Honourable Minister for Community Affairs.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: I am referring to the lady Minister. We only have one lady Minister, but if you want me to say the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture...

The Speaker: I would prefer that rather than just, 'she.'

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: All right. I am sorry about that, Mr. Speaker. I do not see how she...unless she certainly had the agenda, to slap me as hard as she wanted and the Government set her up to do it. The truth is, the Executive Council must remember that I did raise this matter in Executive Council at one time. I certainly left it open because it was not my subject to deal with. It was dealing with the civil arm of Government. In fact, I did tell His Excellency the Governor when I moved the Motion and it was seconded, that I would be appealing to him, via the Motion, to create these Long Service Meritorious Awards.

I cannot understand it. But you live and learn.

As regards the matter of my colleague, the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay, the seconder of this Motion, let me say that I did try to get him some other award than what he did get, the badge and certificate of honour. At least I wrote recommending him. And I trust that now that the Minister is in Executive Council she will press for it. All I can do is recommend, and I did that with many persons.

Anybody who has watched my tenure in this House understands my position in recognising people. It was McKeeva Bush who brought the Motion to recognise sports persons. That could have been the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay. It was me who brought the Bill for the National Heroes. I believe that people should be properly acknowledged when they work hard and are committed to a certain cause. So, I am entirely disappointed with how that Minister approached this thing.

I do not need to do this to get political mileage. Just look at my tenure; look at the things I have accomplished—and would still have accomplished if she had done what she was supposed to have done, instead of helping to cut my throat!

Anyway, I am going to say this to the Government: I am here to work in the best interests of the people of these Islands. If the National Team wants me to support them, I will support what I know is good for this country. But do not let any of them think that I am a dead Member in this House. Let no one think that I am dead in this country.

The Speaker: May I just interrupt the Member for one minute?

We are past the hour that we would normally take the luncheon suspension. I know that we had a very late start this morning, so I would crave Members' opinion as to when we should take lunch.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, I can break, but I was just going to be a few more minutes.

The Speaker: Continue, then.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, finalising my remarks on what the Honourable Minister had to say, I consider it very tongue-in-cheek and a round-about way of insulting me with those sarcastic remarks. But I say, you live and learn. If they are talking about a genuine, Christian spirit, then let us work together in a genuine way. Do not destroy the things I have tried to accomplish for the people of this country. Do not do that. The people do not deserve it.

I moved the Motion with the Seconder because we felt that the two Departments had long been overlooked as uniformed branches, ones very much involved in policing, involved in national security. I believe that the two Departments deserved to have this Motion go through without any hindrance. I apologise to the House that what started on a high note had to be taken up in this way.

Again I say, let the Government do some more research and see who else needs to be, rather than piggybacking on to this Motion, then they can bring it. As I said, I agree with those sentiments, and those persons, especially teachers and nurses. But let us do some research and see who else in the Government we can add.

I trust that Members will support the Motion as it is, and hope that the Government will take it in the spirit in which it was moved.

Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: Have you concluded your winding up on it, or will you be speaking after the break?

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: I consider that I have said all I have to say at this point.

The Speaker: We shall now proceed for the luncheon break. Is 2.30 convenient for Members to return? We shall suspend until 2.30.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 1.05 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.51 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. An amendment to Private Member's Motion No. 1/98 has been circulated. I shall now put the question on the amendment. Does any Member wish to speak to the amendment? (Pause) All Members have copies of the amendment. (Pause)

If there is no debate...the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I presume this is the amendment to Private Member's Motion No. 1/98?

The Speaker: That is what I said. I am moving this under Standing Order 25(4).

Mr. Roy Bodden: I wish to make a brief contribution. In beginning, I want to say that I have some difficulties with what is proposed in this amendment. We are talking about Long Service and Meritorious Awards. Certainly, some of these categories in here have people who have served long, but I think, if we are to take this list here as exemplary, we are straying from what could be efficient and meaningful. On that basis, I say that we might as well include the whole 38 departments of the Service because to stop here would be discriminating against the other departments.

I understood what was stated in the original Motion, but I am saying that this falls short of the expectations I would have and leaves the situation open to being too restrictive or too selective. I really cannot support this amendment as it stands.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: The fact that the amendment seeks to include in this scheme the medical staff, the definition there I guess would be persons involved with the medical profession. It would certainly not include the people who work in the kitchen, or who keep the floors clean, or the people who make the beds. So, right there we are selecting a particular group of people on a hierarchical basis according to how we understand their value and contribution to be.

If we continue to broaden the concept of who should qualify for such awards, and if it is true that every spoke in the wheel is equal, we will find that every person who works in the hospital should be included in this amendment, if the Members amending the Motion are to be truthful to the concept that they believe more groups or individuals should be included in this scheme.

We are talking about the court staff, the court bailiff. We are talking about the staff of Public Works. Does that also include the mason who is doing the work on the streets? Does that also include the manual labourers? How would we run this award scheme in terms of deciding whether or not the Chief Engineer would get this award, or whether or not the chief person in charge of mixing the cement would get the award? How would all that be worked out? Have those persons who suggested this amendment thought about the kind of complicated decision-making process this will involve?

We are not just speaking about doing something, we must speak about doing something that is possible, that is manageable, one where we can say at the end of the day it was fairly managed. When it becomes so broad, so open to interpretation, it loses its original meaning. Therefore, this is one reason I see the amendment as mischievous, rather than constructive.

I know what is meant by Long Service Award. If we look at it historically, it comes out of a military context. Merit in that sense was within a military context in terms of the way civil society provided its duty and the way in which the society which was regimented for the upholding or defence of the State, it was conceived that there should exist some differences in terms of their awards.

If we look at the tradition of what we are talking about, basically, the Mover and Seconder of the original Motion meant—because the Seconder, for instance, has a distinguished career in military service. He is a World War II Veteran of the Naval Services of the United Kingdom. My father was also in the Naval Services during the Second World War. That took a particular commitment to be involved in what was called the uniformed branches of the service.

Even if we go to Africa and look at tribes, we see that they use different feathers to show the difference in rank of warriors. We understand that from the very beginning, a uniform is the development of mankind's attempt to distinguish between those who are in the forefront of defending society, and that those who can afford a little bit more leisure in society by working for society in less risky ways.

It is important, since this is before the House, that we understand what we are dealing with. If we do not show our understanding of what we are dealing with, if we go to the Governor, who has an understanding of this Meritorious Award Scheme, and we look at the way our Governor dresses in his uniform, we see that distinguishes him and his role. We are talking about the fact that the uniformed branches are distinguished from us who do not wear uniforms. I guess if we want to say that our dress code is a uniform, then I guess we might be able to say that. But the Fire Department wears a uniform to distinguish them, the Customs Department wears a uniform to distinguish their obligations to the public. I do not wear a uniform because I do not have the same obligation to the public. That is the distinction.

It is important that people not use uniforms just for recognition, because these uniforms were so that persons could be recognised, but also these persons were conscious that demands would be made upon them in the performance of their duties in a specific manner. They could not say, 'Well, I'm just a citizen, I do not have those obligations.' If tomorrow an Immigration Officer is wounded while trying to apprehend an overstayer, or an Immigration Officer puts his life at risk in a stakeout, he has to leave his family at late hours in the night to go on patrol; the Customs Department is the same. We can see that the way in which society uses these two institutions is different than they would use the hospital.

I am not saying that the function of a doctor is less. But they have doctors in England and all these other countries and they are not bestowing these same awards. Why are we trying to get the bailiffs and the Public Works department in the same award scheme here? Let us compare what we are doing to that of others so that it might make some sense.

Are we just trying to do this to be mischievous? Or does this make sense? It makes absolutely no sense for us to confuse the issue. What the First Elected Member for West Bay was trying to say in his entire deliberation on the history, sacrifice and role in which the Customs Department and the Immigration Department had played, and the fact that those uniformed branches were all the same branch at one particular time. In separating, those who continued to serve in the Customs Department and the Immigration Department no longer have a claim to these Long Service Meritorious Awards. Therefore, he is bringing legislation to take this into account, to put it back to where it once belongs, meaning that all persons who serve in this capacity of society had the chance to be awarded in this way.

To tell you the truth, I am not a Justice of the Peace. I applied to be a Notary Public and they have not given that to me yet. But I have a Ph.D., so they do not have to put awards on me. I worked for the one that is really meaningful to me. Nevertheless, I may not be seeking an award. I have been doing theatre in this country, writing plays for a long time too and nobody has come and said, 'You've contributed something, here is an award.' I am not crazy about awards, especially when it is bestowed by people who I think do not even understand my full value.

[Laughter]

Dr. Frank McField: But I still have nothing against other persons being given the opportunity to be honoured in a ceremonial situation. Again, we have to look at the ceremony in terms of the award, the importance of ceremonies in terms of boosting people's egos.

So, I cannot accept that this amendment is being done to improve the concept of what was originally suggested. I think I have demonstrated this by showing the lack of foresight and thought in suggesting, for instance, wholeheartedly, that the medical staff should be included, or that the Public Works staff should be included because of the wide arena they cover from the point of view of qualifications and contributions. As I said, it would be a nightmare to have to select individuals within these departments and would make it too tedious. It would destroy the intention and the value of such an award.

Therefore, I recommend it be put back in the genuine wording in which it was brought to this House. I do not support this amendment.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak?

Does the Mover of the amendment wish to reply? The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: This Motion and the amendment to it is one which was brought in good faith out of the respect, which at least some of us in this Honourable House have, for people like medical staff and teachers, nurses and special constables and others. I really find it very unusual, to use the word that has been used before, mischievous, to take the words that are put in here...

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order.

The Speaker: May I hear your point of order?

Mr. Roy Bodden: The Honourable Minister is imputing falsehoods and improper motives to those of us who spoke on his amendment, and using unparliamentary language such as 'mischievous.'

The Speaker: I thought he said that he was repeating what had been said.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: That is right, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Well, Sir, what about imputing of false and improper motives?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, it is funny when the shoe is on the other foot. Now, that word 'mischievous' was used twice and I was merely repeating what the Fourth Elected Member for George Town levelled against me, while the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town sat in the background and beat the desk.

POINT OF ORDER

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order.

The Speaker: Please tell me your point of order.

Dr. Frank McField: I did not say anything about the Minister for Education.

The Speaker: Let me deal with the first point of order. What I understood the Honourable Minister for Education to say was that he was repeating what had been said. Let us assume that maybe that word should not be used in Parliament. But I clearly understood, and I will look at the Hansard when it is typed....I ask the Honourable Minister to continue and I will look at the Hansard.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.
[The Fourth Elected Member for George Town rose.]

The Speaker: Do you have another point of order? We can only have one point of order at a time, so I could not take your point of order until I had dealt with the other, so please, if you have a point of order, state your point of order.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, the Member is suggesting that I made mention of him when I said 'mischievous.' That is not so. I did not say that the Minister was mischievous. I used the word mischievous in connection with those persons who had done the amendment. I did not know that he, himself, had written the amendment.

The Speaker: That seems six of one, half a dozen of the other to me.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, my name is on it. Surely, the Honourable Member can read. Who else could he refer to when he referred to the Mover? I do not really want to extend this, but only to say that in this House, Honourable Members have to be big enough men that when they hit, they can also deal with the retaliation. If words are used in here, and Honourable Members sit and do not take the point and then when there is an attempt to repeat it, there is an attempt to take the point, that is not right.

I am going to go on to deal with the amendment.

What is very clear is that in objecting to this, the Fourth Elected Member for George Town has taken the approach that medical staff, special constables (who are also in uniform), marine officers, teachers and people of this sort should not come within the category to be given awards. I find that...

[The Fourth Elected Member for George Town rose.]

The Speaker: If you have a point of order, please state what Standing Order you are bringing it under.

POINT OF ORDER

Dr. Frank McField: The Honourable Minister is misleading the House.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I am just saying that he spoke against the Motion, therefore it means that by speaking against it, obviously he does not want these people to have the Long Term Meritorious Award, otherwise the amendment would have been accepted. That is what I am saying.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, the Minister just changed his mind. First he said 'awards,' now he is saying Long Service Meritorious Awards. That is where the point of order was. I did not say that they should not have awards.

The Speaker: Let us please stop the dialogue across the floor and get on with the debate.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Yes, Sir.

So, the hundreds of staff that were not included in this, many of them deal with saving lives. The medical staff, there are those who teach our children who are the leaders of the future of this country. In my view, they deserve as much as the people who presently get these awards.

If you are looking at this from a real strict point of view, it basically relates (at least in the United Kingdom) to staff who fall within the brackets of the fire, the police and the prison services. Those are the traditional areas. However, this is a local award and I see no reason why it cannot be extended to them, many who put in many long hours for many long years and they do jobs that are difficult and which are so important to our society. I am very surprised that Members of this Honourable House would not regard those staff as being staff who should be considered for this award.

To take the point that one does not know what staff means, whether it includes people, for example doctors or people who deal with cleaning the hospital staff is staff—of course it includes all. A doctor who spends 30 years, or a nurse, or a technician, the awards that are given out by the Governor now deal with all levels and all people under the Certificate and Badge of Honour. This, in my respect, is an extension of that which should deal with people in these important and critical areas. Especially in relation to teachers, in my view, many of them have put us where we are today. They very much deserve to be considered under this.

I do not believe that it detracts from what the First Elected Member for West Bay has done. I think it adds to it—extends it and brings within the fold of the Motion itself, people who are very deserving of these awards. In my view, I would like to see some consideration given for them, especially the teachers and other staff who are here.

The points taken by the Fourth Elected Member for George Town in relation to this, and the wording of it...in my view it is sufficiently clear. It relates to a wide cross-section of people who are very deserving and who I feel are deserving. It is from that point of view that I put this forward. Members can have their own views as to whether or not they are deserving, that is up to them. But I am prepared to say publicly that the medical staff, the court bailiffs, court staff, PWD, special constables, marine officers, E-911 staff and especially the teachers are deserving to be considered in this. It is a local award, Sir. It is not a traditional award from the United Kingdom, where this would not happen, neither on the substantive Motion, I do not believe, nor on the amendment to it because it is an extension of the awards which I am sure the Honourable First Elected Member for West Bay will find on second thoughts that adding in people like our teachers and medical staff will be good and they will be considered. All brackets of them, whether specialists or non-specialists will be considered.

I regard these people as very important to the Cayman Islands, and I regard them as persons who, having put in long years of service, should be considered for these awards and we should give them the recognition that is so necessary to them because they mould the future of this country.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, if I may.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Unless I am greatly mistaken, and I stand to be corrected, what I am hearing from you regarding this amendment to the original Motion is that the Leader of Government Business, who has moved this amendment, has finished speaking and now the vote is to be taken. If memory serves me right, what I saw in the Chamber was that Minister get up to speak before you said, "If no one wishes to speak, would the Mover like to reply." I was prepared to speak, Sir, but I recall the Minister getting up before you said that. If that is not so, then I stand to be corrected. But that is what I saw.

The Speaker: Well, if that is the case, go ahead and speak. The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, very much.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Mr. Speaker, I would not object for one minute to my friend, the First Elected Member for George Town, speaking, but I crave your indulgence. I do not understand the process in the manner in which you have gone with the amendment in any event, but to call the question and draw the last speaker, and then open it up again...I am sure it is bringing the House into question. I appreciate what my colleague, the First Elected Member for George Town, would like to say, and you have already called on him, so he has that right.

The Speaker: For the benefit of the First Elected Member for West Bay, Standing Order 25(4) reads: "(4) An amendment to a motion may be moved and seconded at any time"—I repeat, "at any time"—"after the question upon the motion has been proposed by the Presiding Officer and before it has been put by him"—"put by him"—"at the conclusion of the debate thereon." I have not put the question on the Motion, therefore what I am doing is within the Standing Order.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: I understood that, and I am not questioning your ruling. I did not know where...because, formerly in this Parliament, if a Member wanted an amendment, he would move it and it would be debated. Then the Mover, the substantive Mover of the Motion, is the last person speaking. Nevertheless, you have chosen this route. This is the first time I have seen it in my four terms here.

The Speaker: I agree with what you are saying, and it is not my fault if Members do not want to speak. I have given ample opportunity for everybody to speak.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: It is not the matter of wanting to speak, Sir, it is the matter of the way the question was debated.

Hon. Truman M. Boddan: Mr. Speaker, if I may just say this...

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Boddan: It is somewhat unusual after a Mover replies to have someone else presumably reply.

The Speaker: I fully realise this.

Hon. Truman M. Boddan: I accept that you have a discretion, it just does not give me a right to reply after...

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: I did not speak because I thought I had a chance to speak on the amendment.

The Speaker: I would just like to say this to Honourable Members. Everything has been a little unusual because I expected that the Mover would move this Motion when we came in immediately after we resumed after lunch. He did not move it. Therefore, I called and asked if any Member wished to speak. In that essence, I did not consider that the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning was actually replying as a Mover because of the fact that he did not move it.

Yesterday, he indicated that it would be moved, but it was circulated after that time. That is the justification for the procedure I am taking. Would the First Elected Member for George Town speak if he so desires?

Hon. Truman M. Boddan: Mr. Speaker, may I just have one thing clarified? Yesterday when I was on my feet, I did move the amendment to the Motion. Are you saying that the amendment is not before the House, Sir? I am just seeking clarification.

The Speaker: I am saying it was, but it had not been circulated at that time.

Hon. Truman M. Boddan: That is correct. But, I did move it orally.

The Speaker: That is correct. You indicated that it would be moved and circulated. But when I came in today, it was not actually moved at that time.

Hon. Truman M. Boddan: So, would you be taking a vote on the amending motion?

The Speaker: Yes, immediately after this is concluded we will take it.

Does the First Elected Member for George Town wish to speak?

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Before I actually make my contribution, and I grant what you said about the situation with this amendment being a bit cockeyed, but what I want to clear up, if you do not mind, Sir, and I think it is simply for the records of this Honourable House, from the Hansard, when the Mover spoke on the original Motion, when he came on to deal with the amendment, I am quoting from the Hansards, what he said was: “To that effect, what I will be seeking to do (and, unfortunately, I was not able to get this circulated) is to amend the Motion to widen it to include persons beyond what the Motion now seeks to do. I appreciate that the two-day notice has not been given, but I would ask that I be allowed to put the Motion and then circulate a copy of it, subject to leave, which would basically add teachers, nurses, and special constables.”

Mr. Speaker, you then said, “I waive the two-day notice.” Then he went on to say: “Thank you. What I would like to do then, Mr. Speaker, is to Move (and then get this typed and circulated)...” I do not know if the Honourable Minister then read the Motion as was circulated afterwards. If he did not, then I do not know if we have an amendment here to deal with. I am not trying to be picky, but as far as I am concerned, we have to be very careful. I am not questioning any rulings that you have made, I am simply trying to clear the air before we go on.

If all the Honourable Minister said was “teachers, nurses and special constables” (which is all that I contend he said at this point in time), that was not what the written amendment that was circulated says. I do not know how to correct it. Trust me, I am not trying to be picky.

[The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning rose]

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Would you like me to give way?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: If you would.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: As I remember it, I read the Motion. I am wondering if you have the full transcript. Did I not read the full Motion?

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, just to reiterate. I am not trying to confuse the issue. I am not looking for a fight, I would just like to get it right. When I am, you will know!

The Speaker: This may be a convenient time for us to adjourn.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Mr. Speaker, I believe the Hansard will clear up the misunderstanding. Maybe the tapes would better clear up the misunderstanding.

The Speaker: We shall suspend proceedings for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.30 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.23 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed.

SPEAKER'S RULING ON PROCEDURE OF AMENDMENT TO PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 1/98

The Speaker: For the benefit of the House, I have scrutinised the Hansard from 4 March 1998, and it does state clearly that the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning did move the amendment in its entirety. On the Hansard for today, it says that the speaker called for any other Member who wished to speak. No one indicated that they wished to speak. The Speaker then said, “Does the mover of the amendment wish to reply?” The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning was recognised. He rose. In view of that, there can be no further debate.

I shall now put the question on the amendment to Private Member's Motion No. 1/98. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES and NOES.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: May I have a division, please?

The Speaker: I shall now entertain a motion for the adjournment of this Honourable House.

ADJOURNMENT

STANDING ORDER 11 (6) AND (7)

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until Friday morning at 10 o'clock.

The Speaker: Before I put the question, I have granted permission under Standing Order 11(6) and (7) to the Third Elected Member for George Town to raise two public matters for which Government has responsibility. The Third Elected Member for George Town.

NON-COMPLIANCE WITH SECTION 12(1) OF THE CAYMAN ISLANDS ROYAL INSTRUCTIONS 1972

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: In accordance with Standing Order 11(6) and (7), I wish to raise the following two matters, which I consider to be of public importance. The first one is the non-compliance with section 12(1) of the Cayman Islands Royal Instructions 1972, later referred to as the Royal Instructions.

In raising this matter, I wish to make it abundantly clear that it is not my intention to question in any way the integrity, or impute any unworthy motive to any Member of this Honourable House who may be directly or indirectly involved with the following matter.

Section 12(1) of the Royal Instructions is quite specific on the question of the disposition of Crown Lands. It states: "Before disposing of any land or buildings belonging to us [meaning the Crown] in the Islands, the Governor shall cause it to be surveyed and such reservations to be made thereof as he may think necessary for any public purpose."

Upon an inspection of the Land Registry carried out by myself on Tuesday, 3 March 1998, it is noted that there is no record of a survey being carried out prior to the disposing of Crown Land described as registration section Colliers, Block 74A, Parcel 89, which is not in compliance with section 12(1) of the Royal Instructions.

The Land Registry revealed, as for entry number one, dated 24 July 1995, instrument number 4,217 of 1995, that there were certain un-demarcated boundaries on this property indicating the need for a proper survey when the Crown Land in question was transferred to Mr. John Bonwell McLean as the Executor of the Estate of Mr. Milton Whitmore Syms, deceased; as further evidenced by the Lands and Survey Department mutation number M2,800.

It is further noted that a precise survey may be required in order for Government to determine the exact area of land transferred to Mr. McLean as Executor of Mr. Whitmore Syms' estate.

An inspection of the parcel file revealed that the aforesaid Mr. John McLean had given an undertaking upon the transfer of the said Crown Land that he would "Pay all fees and bear full responsibility for the sur- vey of said land as may be required whether by general boundaries or precise standards, and the demarcation of the boundaries thereof."

In view of the requirements of section 12(1) of the Royal Instructions, and the above undertaking given by Mr. John McLean when the said land was transferred to his name as Executor of the said estate, I hereby call upon him to cause the necessary survey to be carried out as soon as possible to ensure that the said property is properly demarcated, and not later than 14 days before the commencement of the next Meeting of the Legislative Assembly. Further, in view of the amendments to the Governor Vesting of Lands Law (1997 Revision), it is quite evident that it is the intention of the Government to ensure that all procedures relevant to the disposition of Crown Lands are strictly complied with.

Accordingly, I trust that all necessary steps will be taken to rectify this matter.

UNANSWERED PARLIAMENTARY QUESTIONS

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: The other item has to do with unanswered Parliamentary Questions.

Mr. Speaker, it is the Constitutional right and responsibility of the Elected Members of this Honourable House to seek to obtain information from Honourable Ministers and Members relating to any subject or department for which the respective Minister or Member is responsible, or with which he is officially connected. The procedures relative to Parliamentary Questions are quite clearly stated in the Legislative Assembly Standing Orders.

Further, because of the important role that Parliamentary Questions play within the parliaments operating within the Westminster System of Government, and in view of the important information they provide to the public, it is vital that every effort is made by Ministers and Members to give top priority to the answering of Parliamentary Questions. Written answers to Parliamentary Questions, in a sense, defeat the purpose of the information being disseminated directed through the news media and by radio to the listening public.

Further, written answers are not recorded in the Hansards of the House and there are no other permanent means of reference, notwithstanding the provision of Standing Order 23(8), whereby Ministers and Members are obliged to provide written answers to questions which have not received an oral answer.

On 20 May 1997, I wrote to the Clerk of the Legislative Assembly concerning the problem of unanswered Parliamentary Questions. I again wrote to her on 8 September 1997 about the same problem. On 21 May 1997, the Clerk wrote to me advising that she had, on 8 May 1997, reminded Honourable Ministers and Members of the provisions of Standing Order 23(8), which basically states that Ministers and Members shall answer in writing questions for which an oral answer was not provided. An examination of the Business Papers for this Meeting will show that this trend continues in regard to unanswered Parliamentary Questions.

As it seems that certain Ministers and Members are down-playing the importance of providing oral answers to Parliamentary Questions, it is hereby submitted that you seek to have this matter rectified, failing which, the assistance of His Excellency the Governor shall be sought.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works is ill, and has been ill and not in this Honourable House for several days now. Therefore, obviously he cannot reply under Standing Order 11(6). What I can say is, if anything further is necessary under the Minister's undertaking in relation to the survey, I feel sure that he will deal with that.

I realise that under Standing Order 11(6), I really have no locus standi to reply. But I am just stating what I feel, if he were here, he would state.

In relation to the matter of the questions being answered orally, I believe that all Ministers and Honourable Members endeavour to answer as many questions as they possibly can, orally. However, it is a fact that there are times in each Session when questions are answered in writing. Sometimes (not this time, but just a few Sessions ago) there are well over 100 questions asked of Members and Ministers. A lot of these do take a lot of time to prepare. I think it must also be borne in mind, as the Member making the statement knows (he is a former Minister) that Sittings, such as the last one, where we are in here for seven weeks, while Ministry work has to be carried on, it is somewhat difficult.

However, if I may so, historically in the House of Commons, the Prime Minister's time used to be only a half hour twice a week. So, having questions here every day for one full hour is quite a generous amount of time for it. I would just like to say that the Members and Ministers appreciate the importance of giving oral answers. We will do our best to answer as many as we possibly can within the Session of the House from time to time.

The Speaker: The question is that this House do now adjourn until 10 o'clock Friday morning. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AT 4.40 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM FRIDAY, 6 MARCH, 1998.

EDITED
FRIDAY
6 MARCH 1998
10.32 AM

[Prayers by the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay]

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Item number 2 on the Order Paper, Presentation of Papers and Reports, the Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport, the Public Passenger Vehicles (Amendment) Regulations 1998.

PRESENTATION OF PAPERS AND REPORTS

THE PUBLIC PASSENGERS VEHICLES (AMENDMENT) REGULATIONS 1998

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, in accordance with section 113 of the Traffic Law, I beg to lay on the Table of this Honourable House the Public Passenger Vehicles (Amendment) Regulations 1998.

The Speaker: So ordered. Do you wish to speak to it further?

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. A few days ago, I made a statement in this House that related to the Regulation I am laying on the Table of the House this morning. The Regulation basically is to change the restricted area of passenger pickup along North Church Street, which is North Church Street and Mary Street, Harbour Drive, South Church Street to Boilers Road; changing that northern portion to be restricted to Fort Street and North Church Street, rather than Mary Street and North Church Street. The restricted area, after this regulation comes into force, will be North Church Street to Fort Street, all the way going south to Boilers Road and South Church Street. I hope I have made that clear, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The Status of Families in the Cayman Islands to be laid on the Table by the Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

THE STATUS OF FAMILIES IN THE CAYMAN ISLANDS

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, I beg to lay on the Table of this Honourable House the Study of the Family in the Caymanian Society.

The Speaker: So ordered. Do you wish to speak to it further?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I am pleased today to be able to table this very important document entitled, "The Study of the Family in the Caymanian Society." The report consists of six volumes. Volume one is the executive summary of the report. Volume two presents the findings of the consultancy. Volume three discusses the findings of the consultancy, while volume four contains the organisational review of the Social Services Department. Volume five contains the recommendations of the consultancy; and volume six consists of appendices to the report, including a life history of Mrs. Joyce Hylton, the pioneer social worker and founder of the Social Services Department.

This study produced twenty-one major findings, which can be grouped into the following subject categories: the family, housing, youth, parenting, the elderly, feelings about being Caymanian, the Social Services Department. At the conclusion of the study are listed twenty-five recommendations, four of which pertain specifically to Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

I humbly beg the indulgence of this Honourable House to allow me to touch on some of the details of this study, in light of the importance which these findings will have on the future planning of social policies for the Cayman Islands.

BACKGROUND

The consultancy was commissioned in 1995 by the Cayman Islands Social Services Department, in consultation with the then Ministry for Community Development, Sports, Women's and Youth Affairs and Culture. The family study was undertaken because of various aspects of dysfunction in Caymanian families which had been observed by the Social Services Department over a period of years. The majority of persons in the country recognised that the family had undergone many changes, but thus far there were no hard facts to support these assumptions.

The Social Services Department, as a result, developed terms of reference for what it termed "The Study of the Family in the Caymanian Society." These were forwarded to the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) senior personnel in Kingston, who had agreed to fund the programme jointly with the Cayman Islands Government, and to assist with the recruitment of a consultant to conduct the study.

After careful research, the decision was made to engage the services of Dr. Eleanor Wint, since she had, in several of the smaller territories in the Caribbean, conducted similar studies to the one proposed by this Government. The Department developed, in-house, a project outline for the UNDP, which was passed to the consultant. This outline was used as a basis for a detailed project proposal.

The purpose of this project was as follows: to satisfy the demand for answers which presently emanate from a wide cross-section of the society. These questions relate to specific concerns, such as: the changing cultural patterns, which are expressed in apparent family dysfunction; changing roles and responsibilities within the family; increases in child-associated deviant and criminal behaviour; the ability of the Department of Social Services to satisfactorily address these problems.

During the consultancy, Dr. Wint recognised that in order for the Social Services Department to implement some of the recommendations which she foresaw emanating from the study, it would be necessary for that Department to undergo some restructuring. To this end, a management consultant, Mr. Eric Douglas, recruited from the Office of the Prime Minister of Jamaica, along with Dr. Wint, examined all aspects of the Department's work, current job descriptions, and recommended substantial changes to the structure of the Department.

METHODOLOGY

The study was carried out in a variety of ways. A national survey was administered, with the assistance of the Economics and Statistics Office. This was done by obtaining a random sample of 845 households. Questionnaires were successfully administered by local residents under the supervision of the Economics and Statistics Office. 638 questionnaires were fully completed and returned. To complement the survey, eleven focus groups met to discuss in depth the questions posed by the study.

A second component involved the examination of documents supplied by the Social Services Department and other Government departments, as well as discussions with relevant persons. The report took into consideration the history of the Caymanian people.

FINDINGS

I turn now to an overview of some of the findings arising from this study. Issues taken into consideration during this study were: the impact of commercialism and modernisation; the impact of the inflow of foreign workers; institutionalising of the elderly; the changing role responsibilities between mothers and fathers; increase in adult and juvenile crime; generational differences in lifestyle and life preferences.

Some of the main findings are:

(1) The family is in transition in Cayman. There is a definite move away from the extended family to smaller family sizes. Most households are now two-parent households, with between one and two children living at home.
 (2) The male focus groups revealed that men feel they have not taken up their responsibilities. The survey revealed that the role of the father has changed to where he is now expected to assume more of a role in family life, especially since most mothers now work more in public, in addition to their home responsibilities.

(3) Cayman is still a matrifocal society, that is, the woman being the central figure in family life.

(4) Two-thirds of household members still attend church regularly.

(5) There is a high level of domestic conflict, reported by both children and adults, across all sectors of society.

HOUSING

In the area of housing, Mr. Speaker, the study found that:

(1) Housing is of a fairly high standard in Cayman. The survey showed that most of the members of our society are comfortably housed.

(2) Mean length of time reported living in the same house was 8.6 years.

(3) Most of the housing is of fairly recent construction, 24% having been built between 1980 and 1989.

(4) The oldest housing is located in West Bay, having been built prior to 1970.

The most popular form of tenure arrangement of the population is ownership. In George Town, however, a combination of leased and private rentals is the choice of 53% of the population, while 39% own their dwellings.

In West Bay, however, ownership is the type of tenure for 62.5% of the population, while 32% have a combination of leasehold and private rentals.

YOUTH

The study confirms that:

(1) There is a lot of pressure being experienced by our children, much of which is coming from their unsupervised access to television. The message they get, predominantly from North American programming, many times conflicts with the customs and values of Caymanian society.

(2) 21% of our population are children fourteen years of age or younger.

Unfortunately, the study also confirms that children in our society are showing a trend towards deviant behaviours. Parents in the survey report 253 youths charged with theft, 106 with drugs, 348 with fighting, and 92 with indecent language. The study suggests that youth feel they are left in great measure to identify their own activities, to lean on their peers for support, rather than parents, and in general, are left to fend for themselves.

PARENTING

The subject of parenting provided the study with three findings:

(1) On average, parents are spending thirteen hours per week leisure time with their children, and forty-four hours per week working.

(2) Parents and children are both more materialistic in their outlook.

(3) Most families expressed a wish for their children to show love, but there was no emphasis on respect.

The study has shown clearly that families in Cayman, particularly those in which parents are Caymanian, prefer a more hands-off style of parenting, allowing children, in large measure, to attempt to chart their own independent paths. The study suggests that many parents seem unwilling to touch and express their feelings in any way other than buying goods and services. Children, although expressing the view that the elderly should be respected, give little evidence of respect for the elderly. The study demonstrates that communication lines are generally weak between parents and children, with a marked generation gap being experienced.

Cayman Brac experiences many of the same problems related to parenting as are experienced in Grand Cayman. However, due to the current economic situation, factors such as the lack of jobs for young graduates and the rise in the number of young people who participate in heavy alcohol consumption come into play in the Cayman Brac scenario.

THE ELDERLY

The survey showed a particular lack of respect for the elderly by children and adults. Many are content to leave elderly parents in houses by themselves, in other words, provide them with what they need, but have them live outside their immediate family of husband or wife and children. The study identified a total of 1,787 persons in the population aged 65 and older. Across districts, North Side and East End show a high proportion of the elderly, with North Side having a fair percentage of the males who are separated or widowed. 78% of the elderly persons demonstrated a good mental state, accompanied by full independence in terms of their physical status. Only a small percentage, that is, under 10%, reported having to depend on someone for assistance with their basic personal functions. Some 27% of these persons cited themselves as their main source of financial assistance. This was closely followed by the family as a source of assistance. At the time of the report, those elderly people having to rely on Social Services Department were only 11%. As the focus groups showed, the elderly could be described as a discarded group, being given little or no respect by the young, and in the main being disregarded by their immediate offspring. The comment was often heard that it was all right for them to be in an institution as they, the children, were unable to spend the necessary time with them, caring or protecting them. The predominant diseases in the elderly are arthritis, heart disease, high blood pressure and diabetes.

FEELINGS ABOUT BEING CAYMANIAN

The study found that there is a new resentment toward the expatriates in our community, primarily due to the fact of the significant numbers and because many, as the survey revealed, are at the very top of the income level. It was found that a positive feeling about being Caymanian is expressed by Caymanians, those holding Caymanian status, and even those with other status. It was also interesting to note that whether persons were born in Cayman or not, the general consensus was one of wanting to be thought of as Caymanian. This finding is perhaps not surprising, when one considers that, in most instances, persons would be experiencing an improved lifestyle or living in a comfortable situation. Younger people, that is, those before 45 years of age, expressed more negative feelings about life in Cayman. It is also those who earn below $1,667 Cayman Islands dollars per month who speak negatively of Cayman.

Respondents across the Islands feel that life has changed. For them, rapid inflow of wealth or access to wealth has changed the quality of life. A certain sense of insecurity is creeping into the society, as evidenced by increased incidences of hostile behaviour experienced at the Department of Social Services, as well as in daily encounters on the street or in the stores.

The findings show clearly that there is a strong awareness of Cayman's unique culture. The language of the people, the types of food eaten, and the characteristics of the native Caymanian are issues which were discussed during the research. The study also reflects the general movement of the population away from tradition, in areas such as preparing and eating traditional food, to buying food from the fast food centres.

THE DEPARTMENT OF SOCIAL SERVICES

I am pleased to report that the study found that there was very little negative response from the public regarding the Department of Social Services. The public perceived the Department as helping the needy and elderly. Members of the public are now asking for other services, like help with parenting and marital conflicts.

RECOMMENDATIONS

- (1) The need to restructure the Department of Social Services to better meet the needs of the community.
- (2) There should be a greater focus on community-based initiatives.
- (3) The Department should regard, as a priority, enhancing its public image through the use of as many media methods as possible.
- (4) The implementation of a foster care adoption unit is needed.
- (5) The Social Services Department should work toward formalisation of its supervisory posts.
- (6) Training should be ongoing at all levels.
- (7) A training and personnel officer should be appointed to follow through on training and career pathing.
- (8) The Department should initiate formal and informal contacts with other agencies and organisations to assure good understanding of programme goals and the referral process.
- (9) Small parks and public areas with comfortable seats should be established.
- (10) Greater effort should be made to transfer wards from residential care into foster care or their natural homes.
- (11) Strategies should be developed to reintegrate the elderly with their families, and furthermore, a public education programme should be undertaken to espouse the virtues of family care for the elderly.
- (12) The Community Development unit should use varying strategies to strengthen linkages between community groups, clubs and other social agencies, such as the church.

(13) Human and financial resources should be mobilised in the community to assist groups and clubs to develop and implement skills, training and entrepreneurial initiatives.

(14) Youth centres should be established which will combine both indoor and outdoor sporting, educational and recreational activity under proper supervision.

(15) Family life education, including knowledge of contraception, should be pursued within schools, with sessions timetabled by persons qualified and able to discuss this issue with children.

(16) An Island-wide parenting programme should be put in place, using trainers trained by and materials provided by parenting partners.

(17) Social Services should support a policy decision to institute minimum wages for select jobs, as this should have immediate impact on the number of persons requiring temporary financial assistance.

(18) Caring homes should include special programmes designed to encourage growth and development of the child while in care.

(19) The commitment to housing repairs should be continued under close supervision.

(20) The present spate of buildings on the waterfront should not be maintained, as residents feel the loss of contact with the waterfront, their beaches and the past.

(21) Temporary housing provided by the Department should not extend beyond six months.

Mr. Speaker, the following recommendations pertain to Cayman Brac and Little Cayman:

(22) District Administration should consider the development of a youth centre on a location already identified near the swimming pool. The centre would be designed for, decorated by, and devoted to the well-being of the youth, under close supervision of the Community Development officer.

(23) The Government should investigate ways to expand income-earning opportunities on the Brac.

(24) Government should examine the possibility of further reductions in postal rates, special shipping charges, as well as telephone charges between Grand Cayman, Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

(25) It should also maintain a careful watch on the image portrayed of more than one Cayman, e.g., the advertisement, "Serving Grand Cayman and the Cayman Islands."

I am happy to report that although this study is only being tabled today, the Social Services Department has already implemented some of the recommendations which were geared specifically toward the Department. Additionally, there are other recommendations which are in the process of being implemented.

To digress a moment, when I think back, since the previous Minister, the First Elected Member for West Bay, was there, when you see the recommendations that have been put forward, he has touched on most of these in his approach to developing and helping the youth and the elderly in this country.

Those recommendations which have been completed are:

(1) Regarding staffing, supervisory positions have been formalised in the Department.

(2) A probation and aftercare supervisor has been appointed, and a probation and aftercare unit has been set up to facilitate rehabilitative programmes at Northward Prison, promote alternative sentencing options, and work with probation, parole and community service order cases. The two probation officers seconded to the Courts office some twelve years ago have been brought back under the Social Services Department, and now form a part of this team.

(3) The Community Development unit has been enhanced through the appointment of a fully-qualified co-ordinator, and the appointment of another Community Development officer. During the course of the past twelve months, the Community Development team has pursued a variety of projects in their respective communities, and have built up a close working relationship with various churches, police, environmental health, education and individual schools, community groups, and many other non-governmental organisations. This has strengthened the work they have been able to do throughout the Islands.

(4) A clearly defined career path has been created for social workers, spanning the levels of Social Work Assistant through to Social Work Manager level. Of significant note is the creation of a Senior Practitioner level, which allows for upward movement of all social workers.

Recommendations which are in the process of being implemented at the Department are as follows:

(1) The Department has made a concerted effort to educate and inform the public about the work of the Department generally and its many programmes and activities. This will be ongoing.

(2) Young Parents Programme: The transfer of the Young Parents Programme to the Community Development arm of the Department is in process.

(3) Parenting education is being addressed at the district level through collaborative work with churches and schools via the Community Development Co-ordinator, Community Development officers and other resource persons.

(4) Training continues to be a priority for all levels of staff in the Department.

(5) The merger of adoptions and foster care is in process, with the foster care co-ordinator currently understudying the Adoption Board secretary. A committee has been put in place to review the Adoption Law.

Mr. Speaker, let me say that it is the intention of the Ministry of Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation, along with the Social Services Department, to continue the implementation of the recommendations which were made in the study of the Family in the Caymanian Society. I would like to thank Dr. Eleanor Wint and Mr. Eric Douglas for all the time and effort expended in producing this report. In addition, I must express appreciation to all those people who assisted in such areas as participation in the eleven focus groups and in carrying out interviews. I would also like to thank the Director and staff of the Social Services Department, as well as the former Minister and the staff of the Ministry of Community Development, Sports, Women's Affairs, Youth and Culture, who recognised the need for this report. As I have said before, his vision regarding the plight of our youth, elderly, and the less fortunate have been well-documented.

Mr. Speaker, in conclusion, I would like to thank you and this Honourable House for allowing me the opportunity to table this report, which I know will be beneficial in the development of future social policy for the Cayman Islands. Thank you.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker. I am wondering, under Standing Order (2) whether I could make a query on the statement.

The Speaker: Yes, I will allow a short question.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I would like to thank the Minister for laying these documents, as they were ready in November, and when the National Team relieved me of collective responsibility, I was not able to do it. I am glad he has brought it now. The question is, many of the recommendations, as he said, are already being implemented. What of the others? In particular, the ones that do not fall directly under him, such as the minimum wage, which was being worked on also?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, I will discuss with the Minister responsible for that and get back to him regarding the approach on this.

The Speaker: Item number 3 on today's Order Paper, Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. At this time, I would entertain a motion for the suspension of Standing Order 23(7) and (8) so we may take question time beyond the hour of 11.00.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE MEMBERS/MINISTERS

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 23(7) AND (8)

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, I so move the suspension of that Standing Order so we can have questions.

The Speaker: The question is moved. Do I hear a seconder?

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: I second, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: It is seconded by the First Elected Member for West Bay. I put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 23(7) AND (8) SUSPENDED TO ALLOW QUESTION TIME TO BEGIN AFTER 11.00 AM.

The Speaker: Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. Question number 25, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for West Bay.

QUESTION 25

No. 25: Mr. W. McKeeva Bush asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning, Can the Minister say what progress has been made with the hall for the John Cumber Primary School, and in particular, (a) when it will be started; and (b) what is the completion date?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, the answer: Work is anticipated to begin on the hall for John A. Cumber in the third quarter of 1998. The building should be completed by July 1999.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries? The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, I crave your indulgence to make a point for clarity and then ask the question regarding the point.

I know the Minister has been working on the hall, and I have been in meetings with him. There was an understanding that when the community centre was going to be started, the two would be built simultaneously. I know he has been working, and his work has been hindered by a recommendation to upgrade the hall to a hurricane shelter, that is the school hall. That has hindered the work. However, I am wondering whether the Minister would be prepared somehow to put this on a much faster track, and move the hall forward so that, in the balance of the nine months, this could somehow be completed by the year end. It is asking a lot, I know, but, Mr. Speaker—and I crave your indulgence again—the need is terrible. The children each year have to hold their annual closing exercises out in the open field, sometimes with rain hindering them. The school now has 476 students, and we need to act this year, while—as I say, that has not been his fault, to that extent—we need to somehow put this on a fast track, so it can be completed by year end. That is asking a lot. I am wondering whether it could be done.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I agree with the Honourable Member that it is urgent we get this hall. I know the problems with—well, at present, there is no hall—and the difficulty with a school, especially that size. I will give an undertaking to fast-track it, which means I will request Public Works to fast-track it, and I will stay religiously on them. If it cannot all be completed within that time, or near that time, then obviously it is in the interests of everyone, and I would do that, and to the extent that if we needed to outsource, for example, which now have to be built to hurricane strength, so they have to be redone, then I would ask them to do that as well if they do not have the resources within to get it moving fast.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? If there are no further supplementaries, we will go to Question number 26, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION 26

No. 26: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning whether the new purpose-built vehicle for the students of the Lighthouse School is in use as yet.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, the answer: The new purpose-built vehicle for the students at the Lighthouse School has been in use since 2 February 1998, when a driver and bus warden were employed. The bus accommodates four wheelchair students, one bus driver and the bus warden, for a total of six. The van picks up one student in West Bay and two at the Children's Home on Maple Road on a regular basis.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries? If there are no supplementaries, we will move to Question number 27, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION 27

No. 27: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning for the total amount of landing fees written off by the Civil Aviation Authority since January 1993.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, the answer: The Civil Aviation Authority (CAA) has not written off any landing fees since January 1993. In 1993, Government paid CI$1,420,870.51 to the CAA in respect of Cayman Airways' $2.6 million indebtedness to the CAA for services, including landing fees. In 1995, Government reduced the CAA's property loan indebtedness to Government by CI$1,236,792 in respect of Cayman Airways' indebtedness to the CAA for services, including landing fees. As at 31 December 1997, Cayman Airways' indebtedness to the CAA stands at $2,655,602.21. As of 31 December 1997, Island Air's indebtedness to the CAA stands at $457,803.73.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries? The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: In section two of the answer, in which it says that in 1995, Government reduced the CAA's property loan indebtedness to Government by $1.236 million, in respect of Cayman Airways' indebtedness to the CAA for services, including landing fees, can the Minister state if, during this time, the CAA has continued to pay or to repay Government for this so-called indebtedness, and this amount that was reduced by Government was over and above their usual payment?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: That is correct, Sir.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. By no means am I an accountant, but can the Minister state, if the amount of money was owing by Cayman Airways, under what authority was the debit and credit transaction done by way of the Government?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Finance Committee, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town. [Pause]

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, I have supplementaries. I am giving the Minister a chance to clarify a matter.

The Honourable Minister just stated that this was done through an act in Finance Committee. I wonder if the Minister could explain when this took place, and as usual, I stand to be corrected, but I do not remember that in Finance Committee, and I wonder if the Minister could clarify that before I go any further.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, obviously I do not have the 1995 Finance Committee minutes here, but from what I understand, it did come. The only thing I can do, Sir, is to look back on the minutes because it has been some time ago and I do not remember when.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, I have several supplementary questions which will hinge on the veracity of the answer just given. I would like for you to find some method by which we can prove that before we go any further.

The Speaker: If it is convenient, we could take the morning break at this time. I shall suspend proceedings for fifteen minutes.

AT 11.18 AM PROCEEDINGS WERE SUSPENDED.

AT 12.06 PM PROCEEDINGS WERE RESUMED.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. When we adjourned, it was to check on the Finance Committee in 1995. At present, we do not have an answer on that yet, but I would propose that, subject to the Honourable Member asking the question, the question be put over for continuation of answering on Monday.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Seeing that I would very much like to know the answer, I have no problem with that course of action.

The Speaker: The question is that this Question will be put on the Order Paper Monday. Do you think Monday would be advisable, or later in the week?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The Honourable Financial Secretary says we should have it by Monday, Sir.

The Speaker: I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye.

AYES.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, on a point of clarification, are we putting a supplementary question on the Order Paper?

The Speaker: No, we are suspending the completion of the answer of this question, as the information is not available at this time.

Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The question will be on the Order Paper on Monday.

AGREED: QUESTION 27 DEFERRED FOR FURTHER SUPPLEMENTARY QUESTIONS TO BE ASKED ON MONDAY, 9 MARCH. [Question actually recommitted later in the day on 6 March 1998, see page 113]

The Speaker: Question number 28, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION 28

No. 28: Mr. Linford A. Pierson asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning to (a) provide a list, together with estimated cost of capital and renovation works required at the George Hicks and John Gray High Schools as at 31 December 1997; (b) to state whether there are sufficient funds provided in the 1998 Estimates to complete these works; and (c) the estimated dates of completion of these works?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, the answer: The following is a list, with estimated costs, of capital and renovation works required at the George Hicks and John Gray High Schools as at 31 December 1997:

PROJECT	ESTIMATED COST
George Hicks High School
• Re-roofing and upgrading walkways	$100,000.
• Replace windows on North and South sides of Buildings (phase 4)	$87,000.
• Conversion of hall to include purpose-built kitchen and construct library for hall	$300,000. to $350,000.
• No definite estimate for library
• Extension of Administration Bldg.	$450,000. to $500,000
• Various or refurbishing works	$30,000.
John Gray High School
• Complete installation of fire alarm system	$5,000.
• Re-roof and upgrade covered walkways	$130,000.
• Various refurbishing works	$30,000.

(b) The fund allocated for the various renovation works scheduled this year for both the George Hicks and John Gray High Schools are adequate to complete these works. The $753,000 located for the conversion of the hall to include a purpose-built kitchen and cafeteria and construct the library at the George Hicks High School is more than sufficient to complete the conversion of the hall and to undertake preliminary works, drawings, etc., for the construction of the library. The sum of $380,000, which was budgeted this year for the extension of the Administration Building at George Hicks High School, is sufficient to undertake the work envisioned by the Public Works Department for this project for this year.

(c) The various minor refurbishing works (maintenance) at both schools are being undertaken on an ongoing basis throughout the year. The renovation projects, because of the nature and scope of the works, have been scheduled to commence during the first week of July for completion by the end of August 1998, in time for the reopening of school in September 1998. The conversion of the hall at George Hicks High School, to include a cafeteria with a purpose-built kitchen, is tentatively slated to be completed by the end of August 1998. Work on the extension of the Administration Building also at George Hicks High School is tentatively scheduled to begin late in 1998, with completion likely in April or May, 1999.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries? The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, I wish to thank the Member for this comprehensive answer. I wonder if he could—whilst this is a little off the substantive question, he may have the answer—give an indication of the sort of student- or pupil-to-teacher ratio at the John Gray High School and the George Hicks High School.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, it averages about 20 or 21 per class, with some classes more, some less. Actually, I think there is a question that maybe another Member has asked that may be close to that.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In his answer, the Minister has said there is no definite estimate for the library at the George Hicks High School. Could the Minister tell the House the reason for this, and also, could the Minister say when he will be in a position to arrive at some definite estimate as to the cost of this facility?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, the design on that has not yet been completed, and once that is completed, we would then be able to get a bill of quantities and price on it. It will be later on this year. The money is there to deal with the plans, and get detailed plans out on it, Sir.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Minister tell the House whether any of these works—because I notice he has estimated costs—are ongoing at this time? How much of these works have been completed? How close has the completion cost been to what was estimated?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I will try to answer as many of those supplementaries as I can. The first lot of projects, the George Hicks High School, re-roofing and upgrading of walkways, replacing windows on the north and south sides of the buildings, conversion of the hall to include a purpose-built kitchen, extension of administration building, and refurbishing works, are being scheduled to begin during the summer when the disruption will be much less. I have been told that, to the best of the Chief Education Officer's knowledge, they are within the cost budget. These other items under the John Gray High School, the completion of installation of the fire alarm system, the re-roofing and upgrading of walkways, and various refurbishing works will also be done during the summer when the students are not there.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you. I noticed last year, and I think this was brought to the Minister's attention, at least in the case of one school, re-roofing was extended into the period when school was in session, and the First and Third Elected Members for George Town and I visited the school as a result of complaints we had received. My question to the Minister is, can there be some system set up, or a requirement of the construction companies, that any work undertaken in this regard is completed prior to the commencement of school, where the risk of students and teachers being damaged by falling materials or stepping on nails or other such impediments will be greatly reduced, if not completely eliminated?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, we do our best. It is only seven weeks for a lot of work to be done. Sometimes, despite the fact we have a contract that says—and a lot of this is contracted out, I need to point that out—it will be done within that seven-week period, sometimes they do overrun. All I can say, Sir, is we do our best on it. Not to the best of my knowledge, I mean, have we had anyone hurt from falling wood or whatever the Honourable Member mentioned. I give an undertaking that I will endeavour to get this all completed within that seven-week period, but I must say, Mr. Speaker, even though I personally get involved in details in this area, which is probably one of the few areas that is important enough to me that I will actually go out and look at things, I will check things, I require a report, on average, every week, and we have a full-time person who goes to the schools; on top of that, we have a person whose responsibility as an Education Officer in the Department is specific for that purpose.

As the Honourable Member knows, I visit the schools. I ask the Members for each district when we go there to come across, or if it is the high schools, then all Honourable Members are invited. I really do my best. But sometimes the contractors just do not finish on time, no matter how much we push them. All I can say, Sir, is that I will stay on top of it, I will continue to take a personal interest in it, and I will monitor it on a weekly basis, and try to get everything done within the time. But there are a lot of schools, and a lot of things. When you see the list of that, Mr. Speaker, you are looking at a list that is about half an inch thick. There are probably hundreds, into the thousands of items—little things, but still that have to be done during summertime.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? No further supplementaries? We will move to Question number 29, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 29

No. 29: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable First Official Member with responsibility for Internal and External Affairs for the total number of work permits granted since January 1997 under the following categories: Temporary (that is, six months and less); and full-term (e.g., one year and longer).

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: The total number of work permits granted since January 1997 is 12,343. The breakdown by category is as follows: temporary—6,374; six months and less—1,651; one year and longer—4,318.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries? Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Member say if there has been any recent change in policy regarding the granting of work permits in any of these categories?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: No, Mr. Speaker, there has not been any change in policy.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Member say if there is any system in place which allows the spread of the permits in the various categories, so that no one nationality significantly dominates the grant?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. No, there is no such policy in effect.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I wonder if the First Official Member can update us on the suggestion with respect to the bonding requirements—I remember it was discussed—in order to attract a greater number of applicants from other jurisdictions?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. That matter is currently being worked on and we should be hearing something about it very shortly.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, the total number granted since January 1997 is 12,343. Can the Honourable Minister tell the House what the current total cumulative number is of all work permits up to this point?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Mr. Speaker, I do not have that information, but I would be prepared to provide that in writing, if the Honourable Member so wishes.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? If there are no further supplementaries, I have been informed that the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning now has the answer to the supplementary in question number 27, and with the permission of the House, we will return to question number 27. I will call upon the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

QUESTION 27 (RECOMMITTED)

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker, and thank you for the indulgence to give me the time on this. The sum of $1,236,792 between the CAA, referred to in paragraph 2 was approved by the Finance Committee, and it stands at page 128, item 08 071, under Cayman Airways, Recapitalisation of the 1995 Budget.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Going back a ways, in the first part of the answer, in 1993, Government paid $1.42 million to the Civil Aviation Authority in respect of Cayman Airways; $2.6 million indebtedness to the CAA for services, including landing fees; therefore, if I am reading the play correctly, those two amounts—the 1993 amount and the 1995 amount—would have come up to the $2.6 million owed. Can the Minister state how the 1993 amount, $1.42 million, was handled?

For the Minister's information, before the break, I let the Honourable Third Official Member know he would be asked that question also.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, it has taken this length of time to try to dig back to 1995 to try to find that. I would have hoped that since we did find 1995—because we are looking here at estimates having, I do not know how many items, but 380 pages. Obviously, if I have to request the Financial Secretary to go back to 1993, it is going to take some time. The point I would like to make here is that answering questions takes a lot of time and effort by people at very senior levels. The only thing I can do is to give the undertaking—well, that Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, who was so sure I was not going to find the 1995, then...

[Inaudible comments]

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: It means the Honourable Member looked in the wrong place, Mr. Speaker. Obviously, the Financial Secretary is more capable at finding what passes through Finance Committee than the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town. I am saying that there is no way I could produce 1993's. I have given an undertaking to the Honourable Member that I would re-search it and either the Financial Secretary or I would reply on it.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Could the Minister clarify, when he gave the answer for, as he termed it, paragraph two, how it read in the Budget? He mentioned something about "recapitalisation." I too can get a copy of those Estimates and do it, but if the Minister would be prepared to explain how it appeared in that document, which would make it transparent that what we see in front of us now is what we saw in that document.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, as we know, this document is a public document, and no question of transparency here. This is a public document. It is laid on the Table, and anyone can get a copy and look it up. It is under Head 13, item 08 071. It says, "Cayman Airways Recapitalisation, $1,978,156." In that sum is included the amount written off for Customs of $741,634, so I would like to reiterate that it was properly authorised, and it passed through this Honourable Finance Committee, and otherwise it would not have been written off.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: I will defer to my colleague.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Having heard that explanation, could the Minister state, under paragraph 3, what is the plan for recapitalisation for that amount owed?

The Speaker: I think you are asking for an opinion now.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, certainly with the greatest of respect, the money is owed. We have a track record of two other amounts which were dealt with. I am simply asking how this third amount is going to be dealt with.

The Speaker: If you wish to answer, you may, Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I am going to just deal with the Standing Orders, because this consistently comes up about opinions. Standing Order 22(1), paragraph (g) says, "a question shall not solicit expression of opinion or the solution of an abstract legal question or be hypothetical." So when it comes to question of an opinion, I submit that a question shall not solicit an expression of opinion. If Members wish to answer it from time to time, obviously in breach of the Standing Order, they may. But I am saying, because aspersions have been cast in the past that I do not answer opinions, and I am just pointing out that I am legally within the Standing Orders, because a question should be put to solicit an expression of opinion.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I will change my tactics, so the Minister does not have to give any opinions.

Could the Minister state what is the policy of the Civil Aviation Authority regarding providing ongoing services for any of the carriers, and not being paid?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Like every other debt, the debt is then carried on the books of the CAA.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Has the Board ever raised any questions regarding this continually rising indebtedness? Is there any plan in motion to address the problem? Or is it a situation that is accepted, and the amount will just continue to increase with no thought regarding the nature of it?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The Civil Aviation Authority obviously would like to have all their debts paid, but up to this stage, the debt remains on the books, and in the accounts.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Does this debt impinge on the Civil Aviation Authority's ability to carry out its many and varied functions? That is, to provide training, upgrading of equipment, and generally its ability to carry out its day-to-day obligations.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The Civil Aviation Authority always has a profit. It does not affect it.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Is the Minister then saying that because the Civil Aviation always has a profit, there is no urgency or no importance placed on the necessity to run it as a good business venture, and recoup this indebtedness?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: That is not what I am saying.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, can the Minister tell the House what he means when he answered the question by saying, the Civil Aviation always has a profit? Because I interpret that to mean that there is no urgency or no importance placed in retrieving such debts.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The Honourable Member can place any opinion he wishes on what I have said. I merely stated facts. I can really add no more than that to it. It is on the books, and as it has been, I guess, for the last fifteen years, different amounts, different times.

The Speaker: We have had an exceptional number of supplementaries on this particular question. We have had two bites at it. I will allow three additional supplementaries, and then we will complete question time.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, can the Minister say if there is any plan currently being proposed or discussed by his Board as to how these funds may be recouped by the Civil Aviation Authority, if there is any proposed settlement or payment terms being discussed or negotiated?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I glean from the Honourable Member's question that he wishes now to have the Civil Aviation Authority press for the debts of Island Air Limited and Cayman Airways Limited.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order, Sir.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Let me just finish. Then, if that is the case...

The Speaker: Just one moment. Let me hear your point of order, please.

POINT OF ORDER

Imputing false and improper motives

Mr. Roy Bodden: Yes, Mr. Speaker, the Honourable Minister is imputing false and improper motives, because I did not ask him anything about Island Air or any other entity specifically.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, it seems then that...

The Speaker: Refer to the debts in general, then, please.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Yes, Sir. There are two debts owed in this question. One of them is Island Air's of $457,803.73; the other is Cayman Airways. I am dealing with both of those debts. That is why I was referring to Island Air, Sir, as part of the question. The question is asking, as I understand it, to press for these debts to be repaid in the ordinary course of business. That is all I am replying to, Mr. Speaker. I take note of what the Honourable Member has said, and I will bear it in mind on both of the debts.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. In an answer to a substantive question in 1996, the Minister said, and I quote, "But to answer the question as it is asked, Cayman Airways has an operating profit of US$1,061,762 after subsidy for the three months ending March 31, 1996." My question to that Honourable Minister is, having quoted this figure of $1.061 million, was the outstanding indebtedness to the Civil Aviation Authority—and I understand the words, “operating profit.” I understand that. Was the continued outstanding indebtedness to the Civil Aviation Authority for landing fees taken into consideration when the Minister quoted that figure in 1996?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Yes, the unpaid debts do not affect the profit and loss. They would have been part of that. Unpaid debts merely affect the balance sheet, and they are shown as a liability in there. These are audited accounts, so any expenditure such as this has come out of the profit and loss account and is a part of the loss or the profit. I think the Honourable Member is asking was whether, because these amounts were not paid by Cayman Airways—perhaps you may wish to rephrase it—all I can say is the profit and loss would remain the same. The balance sheet would just differ as far as liabilities go, Sir.

The Speaker: This is the final supplementary. The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I recognise this is the final one. I will give the Minister the opportunity to clarify the point for me by trying to explain it properly. As I said before, I understand that the answer was an operating profit, but surely, landing fees are charged every time the plane lands, so those fees are ongoing. For the period that was stated in that answer, were the continuing costs of landing fees taken into consideration when this figure was quoted as an operating profit?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The landing fees and whatever is owed to the CAA would have come out of the profit and loss (P&L). It would affect, in effect, the cash flow, but not the profit and loss, if you follow what I mean there. The profit and loss of Cayman Airways has what should be paid to the CAA. I would hope Island Air's would be on the same basis. It is fully accounted for in there, so it is the cash flow that may be affected on the balance sheet, but the P&L would take this into account. It would reflect in the profit or the loss, Sir.

The Speaker: That concludes Question Time for this morning. Item number 4 on today's Order Paper, Statements by Members/Ministers of Government. The Honourable First Official Member.

STATEMENTS BY MEMBERS/MINISTERS OF GOVERNMENT

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. During Question Time on Wednesday, 4 March 1998, the temporary First Official Member informed the House that the Immigration Board was in receipt of an application from Texaco Caribbean Incorporated for the renewal of its Trade and Business Licence, which had expired on 31 December 1997. Unfortunately, it has been determined that this information was incorrect. The Immigration Board is in receipt of an application from Esso Standard Oil S.A. Limited for the renewal of its Trade and Business Licence, which expired on 31 December 1997. The Board has not received an application from Texaco Caribbean Inc. for the renewal of its Trade and Business Licence, which also expired on 31 December 1997. The Deputy Chief Secretary, who served as temporary First Official Member, has asked that I convey his apologies to this Honourable House, and through this medium, to Esso Standard Oil S.A. Ltd. Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: At this time we shall suspend for lunch until 2.30 PM.

AT 12.46 PM PROCEEDINGS WERE SUSPENDED.

AT 2.47 PM PROCEEDINGS WERE RESUMED.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Government Business, Bills, First Readings.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDERS 45 AND 46

The Speaker: I would entertain a motion for the suspension of Standing Orders 45 and 46 to enable these to be taken without proper notice. The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Yes, Mr. Speaker. I beg to move the suspension of Standing Orders 45 and 46 to enable The Trusts (Amendment) (Immediate Effect and Reserved Powers) Bill, 1998, and The Companies (Amendment) (Segregated Portfolio Companies) Bill, 1998, to be taken without the required notice.

The Speaker: I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: STANDING ORDERS 45 AND 46 SUSPENDED.

The Speaker: Bills, First Readings.

BILLS

FIRST READINGS

THE TRUST (AMENDMENT) (IMMEDIATE EFFECT AND RESERVED POWERS) BILL, 1998

The Clerk: The Trust (Amendment) (Immediate Effect and Reserved Powers) Bill, 1998.

The Speaker: The Bill has accordingly been given a First Reading and is set down for Second Reading.

THE COMPANIES (AMENDMENT) (SEGREGATED PORTFOLIO COMPANIES) BILL, 1998

The Clerk: The Companies (Amendment) (Segregated Portfolio Companies) Bill, 1998.

The Speaker: The Bill has accordingly been read a first time and is set down for Second Reading.

SECOND READINGS

The Speaker: Bills, Second Readings.

THE TRUSTS (AMENDMENT) (IMMEDIATE EFFECT AND RESERVED POWERS) BILL, 1998

The Clerk: The Trusts (Amendment) (Immediate Effect and Reserved Powers) Bill, 1998.

The Speaker: The Hon Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, I beg to move the Second Reading of a Bill entitled The Trusts (Amendment) (Immediate Effect and Reserved Powers) Bill, 1998. As set out in the Memorandum of Objects and Reasons, this Bill amends the Trusts Law (1996 Revision), which is the principal legislation. Clause 1 of the Bill provides the Short Title and Clause 2 is a short definition section. Clause 3 amends section 6 subsection (c) of the principal Law, which at present prevents a trustee who retires or who is replaced, from receiving a proper discharge, unless the new trustee is a trust corporation or two new individual trustees are being appointed. This section of the principal Law, as amended, would enable a discharge to be given where only one trustee was originally appointed, or where the trust deed had provided otherwise.

Clause 4 introduces a new part to the principal Law to clarify and extend the Law relating to trusts, the amount of control a settler may exercise over the trustees, or the trust assets, without making the trust void, as a trust from the onset has traditionally been very limited. The new section 12(a) makes it clear that, except first in the case of trusts set up by will, secondly in the case of trusts expressed to take effect only on the settler's death, and thirdly in the case where the contrary is provided in the trust instrument. It is to be presumed that the settler intended that the trust should take effect as soon as the trust property had been identified and vested in the trustee.

The new section 12(b) provides that if the settler makes one or more of a number of specific reservations, the trust will not be automatically invalidated as a trust. Those reservations are first of a limited beneficial interest in the trust property to the settler, and secondly of a power for the settler (a) to amend or revoke any of the trusts arising under the trust instrument; (b) to appoint income or capital of the trust property; (c) to act as a director or officer of a company wholly or partly owned by the trust; (d) to instruct the trustee as to the purchase, holding or sales of trust property; (e) to vary the trustees, protectors or beneficiaries; (f) to change the governing law of the trust and the country in which it is to be administered; and (g) to require the trustee to obtain the settler's consent or that of another stated person before exercising any or all of his powers as a trustee.

The new section 12(c) protects a trustee who acts in compliance with the valid exercise of any of the powers set out in section 12(b). Clause 5 introduces a new section into the principal Law to provide that a trust may be charitable, even though it may be in part for the benefit of the public in another jurisdiction.

Clause 6 makes it clear that the principal Law, as amended, applies to trusts existing as at the date of the Law and can be expressly extended to trusts existing before that date by the trustees.

Mr. Speaker, I commend this Bill to Honourable Members.

The Speaker: The question is that the Bill entitled The Trusts (Amendment) (Immediate Effect and Reserved Powers) Bill, 1998 be given a Second Reading. It is now open to debate.

The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I rise in support of this Bill. I feel it is a move in the right direction in the financial development of the Cayman Islands, that we have the instruments and mechanisms that will keep pace with such development. The mover of the amendment Bill has done a good job in the presentation. He has gone through the amending clauses, so I will not go over that same ground, except to emphasise an amendment to section 6, which is clause 3, where it states that, "Clause 3 amends section 6(c) of the principal Law, which at present prevents a trustee who retires or who is replaced from receiving a proper discharge, unless the new trustee is a trust corporation." That was the situation, "or two new individual trustees."

"This section of the principal Law, as amended, would enable a discharge to be given where only one trustee was originally appointed, or where the trust deed had provided otherwise." That is a major improvement in the Trust Law (1996 Revision).

The other important point I wish to comment on is the insertion of part 2(a) of the Law, which refers to the presumption of lifetime effect and reserve powers. Just to say that this important insertion makes provision for "in construing the terms of any instrument stipulat- ing the trust and powers in and over the property, if the instrument is not expressly to be a will, testament, or codicil, and is not expressed to take effect only upon the death of the settler, it shall be presumed that all such trusts, and in particular the duties of the trustees to the beneficiaries to administer the trust in accordance with its terms and powers were intended by the settler to take immediate effect upon the property being identified and vested in the trustee, save as otherwise expressly or by necessary implication provided in the instrument."

Also, another insertion that is of paramount importance is section 12(c), where it indemnifies the trustees. This section states, "A trustee who has acted in compliance with or as a result of an otherwise valid exercise of any of the powers referred to in section 12(b)(i) shall not be acting in breach of trust." These are very important sections, Mr. Speaker, and I believe it is nicely rounded off in section 5, which deals with the charitable purposes. It states here that "the principal Law [which, as I stated earlier, is the Trusts Law (1996 Revision)] is amended by inserting after section 67 the following section, which deals with charitable purposes." 67(a) states, "A trust shall not fail to qualify as a trust for charitable purposes only because those purposes may, in part, benefit the public or a section of the public outside the Islands."

These important amendments can only enhance this particular Law and our financial industry in general, and I give it my full support.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? If no other Members wishes to speak, does the Honourable mover wish to exercise his right of reply?

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, I thank Honourable Members for their support, and in particular, the Honourable Third Elected Member for George Town, for his comments on this Bill.

The Speaker: I shall put the question that The Trusts (Amendment) (Immediate Effect and Reserve Powers) Bill, 1998 be given a Second Reading. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The Bill has been given a Second Reading.

AGREED: THE TRUSTS (AMENDMENT) (IMMEDIATE EFFECT AND RESERVED POWERS) BILL, 1998 GIVEN A SECOND READING.

THE COMPANIES (AMENDMENT) (SEGREGATED PORTFOLIO COMPANIES) BILL, 1998

The Clerk: The Companies (Amendment) (Segregated Portfolio Companies) Bill, 1998.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, I beg to move the Second Reading of a Bill entitled The Companies (Amendment) (Segregated Portfolio Companies) Bill, 1998.

As set out in the Memorandum of Objects and Reasons, this Bill amends the Companies Law (1995 Revision) to allow the formation of companies divided into portfolios that are kept separate, or segregated one from the other, where the company in question holds a license under the Insurance Law (1995 Revision), enabling it to act as a captive insurance company. Clause 1 provides the Short Title to the Bill. Clause 2 incorporates the Schedule into the Companies Law (1995 Revision) as Part 14; and looking now to the Schedule, section 229 is a definition section. Section 230 provides that an application may be made by an exempted company which only undertakes captive insurance business to register as an exempted, segregated portfolio company at any time. Application may be made at the same time that application is made for registration for other purposes. Applications have to be accompanied by the prescribed licensing fee.

Section 231 enables that the segregated portfolio company is identifiable in its name by inclusion of the initials "SPC," which is the acronym for "Segregated Portfolio Companies," or the words, "Segregated Portfolio Company." Section 232 enables a company to form segregated portfolios within itself to keep the assets and liabilities of itself and its segregated portfolios separate and distinct. The company, but not any individual portfolio, is to be a separate legal entity as usual. Segregated portfolios have to be separately identified and named, and each name must include the word "Segregated Portfolio."

Section 233 provides for the issue of shares in individual and segregated portfolios, the proceeds of which are to be included in the portfolio's assets. Proceeds of the issue of shares in the company are to be held in the company's general assets. Dividends are to be payable on the various classes of shares, and are to be paid in respect of the assets of the portfolio or company that issued the shares on which a dividend is to be paid.

Section 234 provides that the company is to act on behalf of all its registered portfolios when executing documents or transactions, and that when so acting, the fact must be made explicit. Failure to do so will result in a personal liability on the part of the directors of the company in the issue, but they have a right of indemnity, except in the case of fraud, negligence or bad faith against the assets of the portfolio or company. That liability may be relieved by the court by court order. This section overrides provisions in the company's Articles of Association to the contrary.

Section 235 deals with assets. It defines the assets which belong to the company and to its segregated portfolios. Procedures have to be in place to keep the assets of the company and its portfolio segregated. Section 236 defines segregation of assets as meaning that they are only available to the creditors of the segregated portfolio that owns the assets. Section 237 defines segregation of liabilities as meaning that such liabilities extend only to the assets of the segregated portfolio that has incurred the liability.

Section 238 makes similar provision as the last two sections for the company's general assets and liabilities. Section 239 ensures that, on the winding up of a segregated portfolio company, the liquidator deals only with the general assets and liabilities of the company and makes necessary modifications to sections 111 and 135. Section 240 provides for receivership of a segregated portfolio that becomes insolvent. A receivership order may be made by the court to close down the portfolio and to ensure the distribution of its assets, provided that the company itself is not being wound up.

Section 241 sets out the procedure for applying for receivership orders. Section 242 makes provision for the administration of receivership orders. Section 243 covers the procedure for discharging receivership orders, and enables the court to make orders in such circumstances. Section 244 provides for the remuneration of a receiver of a segregated portfolio.

Mr. Speaker, I commend this Bill to this Honourable House.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled The Companies (Amendment) (Segregated Portfolio Companies) Bill, 1998 be given a Second Reading. The motion is now open to debate. If no Member wishes to speak, does the Honourable mover wish to reply?

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, not to add anything further, but to thank Honourable Members for their support.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled The Companies (Amendment) (Segregated Portfolio Companies) Bill, 1998 be given a Second Reading. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The Bill has accordingly been given a Second Reading.

AGREED: THE COMPANIES (AMENDMENT) (SEGREGATED PORTFOLIO COMPANIES) BILL, 1998 GIVEN A SECOND READING.

The Speaker: The House will now go into Committee to consider a Bill entitled The Trusts (Amendment) (Immediate Effect and Reserve Powers) Bill, 1998, and The Companies (Amendment) (Segregated Portfolio Companies) Bill, 1998.

HOUSE IN COMMITTEE

COMMITTEE ON BILLS

The Chairman: Please be seated. The House is now in Committee. With the leave of the House, may I assume that, as usual, we should authorise the Second Official Member to correct minor printing errors and such like in these Bills? Would the Clerk state each Bill and read the clauses?

THE TRUSTS (AMENDMENT) (IMMEDIATE EFFECT AND RESERVED POWERS) BILL, 1998

The Clerk: The Trusts (Amendment) (Immediate Effect and Reserved Powers) Bill, 1998.

Clause 1. Short title.

Clause 2. Definition.

Clause 3. Amendment of section 6, Supplemental Provisions as to Appointment of Trustees.

Clause 4. Insertion of part 2(a), Presumption of Immediate Effect and Reserved Powers.

The Chairman: The question is that Clauses 1 through 4 do stand part of the Bill. Is there any debate? If there is no debate, I shall put the question that clauses 1 through 4 do stand part of the Bill. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it. Clauses 1 through 4 do stand part of the Bill.

AGREED: CLAUSES 1 THROUGH 4 PASSED.

The Clerk: Clause 5. Application.
Clause 6. Amendment of principal Law.

The Chairman: The question is that clauses 5 and 6 do stand part of the Bill. Is there any debate? If there is no debate, I shall put the question that clauses 5 and 6 do stand part of the Bill. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it. Clauses 5 and 6 do stand part of the Bill.

AGREED: CLAUSES 5 AND 6 PASSED.

The Clerk: A Bill for a Law to amend the Trusts Law (1996 Revision).

The Chairman: The question is that the title do stand part of the Bill. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it. The title do stand part of the Bill.

AGREED: TITLE PASSED.

THE COMPANIES (AMENDMENT) (SEGREGATED PORTFOLIO COMPANIES) BILL, 1998

The Clerk: The Companies (Amendment) (Segregated Portfolio Companies) Bill, 1998.
Clause 1. Short title.

The Chairman: The question is that Clause 1 do stand part of the Bill. If there is no debate, I shall put the question that clause 1 do stand part of the Bill. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: Clause 1 do stand part of the Bill.

AGREED: CLAUSE 1 PASSED.

The Clerk: Clause 2. Insertion of part 14, Segregated Portfolio Companies.

The Chairman: We have an amendment circulated to Clause 2, and I have agreed to waive the two days' notice. The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Chairman, in accordance with the provisions of Standing Orders 52(1) and (2), I give notice to move the following amendment to The Companies (Amendment) (Segregated Portfolio Companies) Bill, 1998, that in the Schedule, section 230(1) be amended by inserting, after "to hold" the words "either a Restricted or". The reason for this amendment is to allow both categories of class B insurance captives to have access to the segregated portfolio company structure. I would like to point out that Cayman is the leading domicile for captives which are established to float bonds drawn on or in the event of a catastrophe loss, e.g., hurricanes, etc., and which would wish to use the segregated portfolio company structure to attract third party business. These captives hold restrictive class B licences, hence the need to broaden the definition in clause 230(1) to include them.

The Chairman: The amendment has been duly moved. Does any Member wish to speak to it? If there is no debate, I shall put the question, that the amendment stand part of the Clause. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it. The amendment do stand part of the Clause.

AGREED: AMENDMENT TO CLAUSE 2 PASSED.

The Chairman: The question is that Clause 2 as amended do stand part of the Bill. Is there any debate? Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it. Clause 2 do stand part of the Bill.

AGREED: CLAUSE 2 AS AMENDED PASSED.

The Clerk: A Bill for a Law to amend The Companies Law (1995 Revision) to provide for the formation, regulation and winding up of exempted companies holding unrestricted B insurers' licenses with portfolios with liabilities and assets segregated from those of other portfolios of the company, and from the general assets and liabilities of the company, and for incidental and connected purposes.

The Chairman: The question is that the title do stand part of the Bill. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it. The title do stand part of the Bill.

AGREED: TITLE PASSED.

The Chairman: That concludes proceedings in Committee on a Bill entitled The Trusts (Amendment) (Immediate Effect and Reserve Powers) Bill, 1998, and The Companies (Amendment) (Segregated Portfolio Companies) Bill, 1998. The question is that the Committee do report to the House. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it. The House will resume.

AGREED: THAT THE BILLS BE REPORTED TO THE HOUSE.

THE HOUSE RESUMED AT 3:15 PM.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Reports, the Honourable Third Official Member.

REPORTS ON BILLS

THE TRUSTS (AMENDMENT) (IMMEDIATE EFFECT AND RESERVED POWERS) BILL, 1998

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, I am to report that a Bill entitled The Trusts (Amendment) (Immediate Effect and Reserved Powers) Bill, 1998 was considered by a Committee of the whole House and passed without amendment.

The Speaker: The Bill is accordingly set down for Third Reading.

The Honourable Third Official Member.

THE COMPANIES (AMENDMENT) (SEGREGATED PORTFOLIO COMPANIES) BILL, 1998

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, I am to report that a Bill entitled The Companies (Amendment) (Segregated Portfolio Companies) Bill, 1998 was considered by a Committee of the whole House and passed with one amendment.

The Speaker: The Bill is accordingly set down for Third Reading.

Item number 6 on today's Order Paper, Private Member's Motion No. 4/98, Establishment of a Road Fund. The Honourable Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

OTHER BUSINESS

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 4/98

ESTABLISHMENT OF A ROAD FUND

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I rise to move Private Member's Motion No. 4/98, Establishment of a Road Fund:

"WHEREAS traffic data shows that current infrastructure with regard to roads is inadequate to support growth in traffic;

"AND WHEREAS the importation of vehicles into the Islands continues to show an upward trend, which can only lead to more congestion on the roads;

"BE IT NOW THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT Government consider establishing, for the sole purpose of developing roads, a special road fund."

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Mr. Speaker, I beg to second the motion.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 4/98 has been duly moved and seconded. Does the Mover wish to speak to it? The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: I will attempt to justify the need for a special fund for roads, which is segregated from general revenue, and also from capital. On an annual basis, traffic counts are taken at various locations around Grand Cayman during the last week in March. The purpose of these counts is to monitor fluctuations in traffic growth and to provide an aid in traffic forecasting so that future road improvements may be planned.

In 1997, counts were taken in 43 locations. Each counter records the number of vehicles in each direction over 15 minute intervals for a three day period. There have been very few changes in the ranking since 1996 with West Bay Road and Crewe Road continuing to generate large figures. Red Bay Road has shown a steady increase of around 6 to 7% since 1988. This represents a steady increase in development of the districts east of George Town.

The bottleneck at the south section of West Bay Road remains at the top of the list, with an average daily volume of just over 28,848 vehicles. All count stations along West Bay Road have shown an average growth of 4% over the last nine years. Traffic volumes have been rising steadily in Grand Cayman over the past decade, in line with commercial and residential growth.

Peak traffic volume and time are important factors in determining a road's level of service, particularly along heavily travelled roads such as West Bay Road and Red Bay Road. Over the past ten years, there has been an observable shifting of the morning peak. In 1988, the morning peak on West Bay Road started at 7.45. In 1997, it starts at 7.00 [a]m. This means that people are having to get up 45 minutes earlier than they did in 1988 to beat the traffic.

Similar trends can be seen on Red Bay Road, but the change is more dramatic at sixty minutes, a change from 7.45 in 1988 to 6.45 in 1997. A different trend can be seen in the evenings on these roads because most people leave work at a set time. The start of the peak does not tend to shift from its time; however, the general level of congestion is increasing by 3% per year. In 1988 the peak volume on West Bay Road was 250 cars every 15 minutes. By 1997 this rose to 375 cars every 15 minutes, an increase of 38%.

West Bay Road is well-developed commercially. Nevertheless, there is still room for growth. This appears to be taking place, at least as far as traffic volume is concerned, at an approximate rate of 4% each year. West Bay Road, as it currently operates has reached its capacity during peak periods and operates at a low level of service throughout most of the working day. As the peak periods operate at capacity and growth continues, traffic is forced to spread beyond the rush hours, hence congestion is seen throughout the day.

The Island east of George Town is developing residentially. Red Bay Road itself has seen several major residential subdivisions develop over the last two years. This is reflected in the steady increase in traffic of around 7% each year. In 1997 there was a general drop in traffic count, or rate of growth, at all stations. This cannot be interpreted as a new trend because many factors influence these figures such as tourist traffic. These trends are formed over many years and the general trend is one of traffic growth throughout the Islands.

The importation of vehicles onto the Islands continues to show an upward trend. In 1996, 2,965 vehicles were imported. In 1997 the figure rose to 3,357, an increase of 13.2%. This trend can only lead to more congestion on the roads. There are two possible scenarios to solving this problem: First, to restrict the number of vehicles being imported; secondly, to increase import duties. Yet, both could be seen as prohibiting freedom of choice and would almost certainly prove to be very unpopular.

Gas, like the vehicles, continues to show an upward trend. In 1996, 7.7 million gallons of gas were imported. In 1997, this figure rose to 8.04 million gallons—an increase of 4.3%.

What I have outlined here is data which suggest that we need to look at the way in which we handle roads and the way in which we fund the building and maintenance of roads differently from how we have in the past. This is why I am recommending this Motion to the House, to create a special Road Fund.

The special Road Fund would allow us to properly allocate funds for those persons that are users of roads. In fact, what would happen is that the fund would allow us to make decisions in regard to borrowing. We would be able to borrow money to build roads, and as a result would be able to properly allocate costs and benefits between the present users and future users. The fact that we would be able to collect a certain amount of money on an annual basis for roads would be a good case for us to be able to borrow money against that income.

Mr. Speaker, when we collect duty on gas and diesel, when we collect money on import duties on cars, when we collect money on the registration of cars and licensing of individuals to drive cars, this money goes directly into general revenue. There is really no consideration for the users of roads who will pay into general revenue this year some $30 million by way of duties on diesel, petrol, the importation of cars, licensing and the lot that has to do with vehicles. So, the use of vehicles will generate $30 million this year for general revenue. It is being suggested that we need to be able to reward the users of roads who pay into the general revenue by giving them back something for the money they pay into general revenue, by improving the road situation.

I went to the Strand at lunch time. I forgot that the West Bay Road is congested during the non-peak hours. As I said in my review of the situation, the rush hour spreads over the entire day, the congestion spreads over the entire day. It was not as if it took a whole lot of time for me to get back today. It was not like the first time I got caught on that road when I had to spend an hour and a half travelling from the Turtle Farm to this Legislative Assembly. But it was sufficient congestion at 2.15 today for it to take me quite a few minutes to return back here to the Legislative Assembly.

I also drove on the Harquail Bypass and I found that things go smoothly there. It is only the coming back into the main West Bay Road that we have the problem again. So it would appear to me that the road needs to be extended and we need to make money available to extend this road. I am not saying that roads are the solution to the problems of traffic congestion. There are many other options that we will have to exercise as we go on trying to deal with the transportation crises in the country. Obviously, this is something that is very practical, and very easy to do. It could be the first step in evolving a roads strategy. I know that Vision 2002 will probably have a plan for every man and everything. I am quite sure that those involved in spearheading these plans will come up with some plans for roads as well.

In the meantime, I think it would be useful for us to consider a special fund for roads. It is not difficult to see where money could come from to place in this fund. Obviously, if we are going to make $30 million from motor vehicles and the use of motor vehicles this year, then some money from this should go into a segregated fund for the improvement and maintenance of roads.

It is also some $15 million that will be brought into this country by way of petrol and diesel charges. Again, even if they were to give 20 cents of the 40 or 50 cents they are taking now just from the gas alone, it would help to get the fund started and help to build the fund over the years. What is important is to realise that you do not need to have the money in the fund in order to get the money to build the roads. If the fund is going to be for a period of 20 years or 40 years, you can borrow the money. You can go out there and get $50 million because you know it will generate enough money over a period of time to pay for the money that was borrowed. It also allows for future users to contribute.

If we do it another way, it might mean that the people who are using the roads today are the people who are paying for the roads through increased taxes on whatever, and once the roads are built, ten or fifteen years down the line the people will not bear any cost for the nice roads they are riding on.

I recommend this Motion to the House.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

(3:34 PM)

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, normally the Government would reply after a Member moves a Private Member's Motion, but, as usual, the Government is dodging. So I am not standing up to make any presumptions on their behalf. I am just rising to give my support to the Mover of this Motion, and in so doing I can begin at no better point than to say that the Hansards of this House will show that Private Member's Motion No. 2/95, which was moved by me and seconded by the former Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, when we reminded them that they should keep a promise that they made during the campaign to remove the 25 cent tax on diesel fuel and we asked them to use this 25 cents...and I will read the "Resolved" section: “BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED THAT the revenue from motor gasoline, diesel oil, kerosene and other fuel oils and basic petroleum products be held in a special account to be used exclusively for road development and maintenance.” I wholeheartedly support what the Fourth Elected Member for George Town and his seconder are asking the Government to do now.

It is good sense for us to do that. I want to take the line of argument that here we are talking about the reinvention of Government, talking about increased sophistication in fiscal responsibility, and in keeping, as the Honourable Mover mentioned, with vision 2008, spells sense for us to be in a position where we can segregate these funds, which are to be earmarked for road development and road maintenance into an account where we can have access.

I was reminded this morning by the Leader of Government Business that I do not have the expertise of the Honourable Financial Secretary. I have no dispute on that regard at all. I do not pretend to be the Financial Secretary; I could not be that honourable gentleman. But I have a quality which the Leader of Government Business does not have, and that is common sense. I also have the God-given ability where I can listen and am prepared to learn from those who have something to offer. I use that as the jump-off point to say that it would make good accounting sense and it is in keeping with the strides we proclaim we wish to make that we have this business structured in such a way that we can easily have access to the knowledge of what we get off importation of automobiles, and ancillary matters so that we can be in a position with the reinvention of Government, and Vision 2008 to move to increased and improved fiscal responsibility to say, ‘Here is what we derive from automobiles, from gasoline, from petroleum products. We can use this on the development of our roads.’

That might even be in line with the new Government we envision is coming in the year 2000. I believe that the time has come for us to treat this matter with the seriousness and sincerity it deserves. The Mover mentioned the increasing traffic problems.

During the 1995 debate, the Hansards will show that the Leader of Government Business at that time took the former Minister of Roads to task for his vision and foresight into the Master Ground Transportation Plan (MGTP) and the GRIPS Committee. Regrettably, I have to admit that I played a minor role in torpedoing the MGTP, a minor role. But after I launched the torpedo, I never said anything about the gentleman who crafted the plan. So my sin may not be as great as that of some others. I have since repented.

[Some Members' laughter]

Mr. Roy Bodden: I do not set myself up to be infallible. I have made mistakes, and I will continue to make mistakes. I have been big enough to acknowledge each time I have made a mistake, and I believe that may have a little to do with my resilience.

Now, however, we have to bite the bullet because I can say that there was a time when we did not have such an acute traffic problem coming from my end of the Island. Now our problem is as bad—or worse—than that coming from the other end. I want to say that in a free market system, where people have freedom of choice, I would be a very suicidal politician if I said that the solution to the problem lay in imposing restrictions on the importation of automobiles. While I do not plan to spend my life here, I would like to remain here a couple of years longer. So let it be known that I am not advocating that this, or any, Government stop people from importing automobiles. Far be it from my position.

We have to find another way of solving the problem. I believe that automobile owners and users are fair and reasonable. I believe that if we present a reasonable plan to them, they will accept that they have to bear some responsibility for the development and maintenance of roads. Hence, we craft a plan that is reasonable, show it to them and say, ‘Here is what we expect of you, as road users, by way of obligations.’ I believe that can be sold. I see no reason why the problem should not be approached in that way.

I regret the fact all the plans laid for the MGTP and GRIPS did not come to greater maturity, because I believe that in those lay the beginning, at least, of a sensible road system. What I see happening now is that development is fast outpacing our ability to procure corridors and we had better move rapidly if we expect to have the road access that we need without having to pay (as the expression goes) through our teeth for it.

I believe that the time is going to come in our country when we are going to have to change our whole financial system, because the demands on the Government are increasing. I believe the time is going to come when we will have to be able to have at our fingertips the cost of all these things we are expected to put in place, the cost of all roads. We will have to (as the Fourth Elected Member for George Town was saying) use the statistics available to be able to calculate the costs so that we can realistically arrive at our budgets and make projections and plans for the future.

This Motion is certainly a move in the direction where we cannot only have increased financial information which will enable us to be more sophisticated in our plans, but where we can start to craft some kind of system for road development in this country.

I am an advocate of this system. Indeed, in [Private Member's] Motion No. 2/95, I suggested that the Government explore the feasibility of setting up a Roads Authority, which would have encompassed a whole transportation sector. But even if we do not wish to explore the matter as far as that at this point, I say it is high time we set up this roads fund. We see what happens in here at Budget time. Everybody has his or her wish list, and roads...if we were not so civilised, roads would cause wars in here! Everyone wants his area permeated through and through, not only with main roads, but also arterial roads. We have a problem because the monies we are granted invariably are not enough.

If we had a fund, we could arrive at a more reasonable and understandable system of prioritising. We would know that we have "x" amount and we could easily identify the greatest needs. Then we could prioritise from that point.

We pride ourselves in the Cayman Islands as a modern country. All of us, irrespective of our positions in this Honourable House, take pride in touting our position as a modern international financial centre. We know that the prerequisites for our continued development lie in our ability to keep pace with modern communications, meaning not only telephone, fax machines and other kinds of electronic modems, but also road communication—the ability to move from point "A" to point "B" on the land on the three Islands. Right now we have an inadequate, insufficient and ineffective system.

Every time emergency vehicles pass me, I pray for the guidance of the Lord. I do not know what will happen in a two-lane system. Heaven forbid if we have an emergency in East End or North Side or Bodden Town and the road is blocked. It has reached a point where it almost becomes a national security issue, because road access is absolutely essential. We have no heliport, no other way to reach outlying areas. We have seen what happens in a common fenderbender in one lane, how long the traffic is tied up. Heaven forbid if there were a more serious emergency. It is almost true to say that a blind man could see the need to evolve a better road system. There can be no more reasonable or sensible way for us to start than by the establishment of a roads fund.

I could say more, but these days I am not prone to being long-winded. As they say at my church, if you are not converted in the first five minutes of the sermon, you will probably never be converted, no matter how long the sermon is. So, having made my point, I will resume my seat.

The Speaker: Proceedings are suspended for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3:50

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4:13 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Debate continues. Does any other Member wish to speak? The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Mr. Speaker, two Members of the Back Bench have spoken. We still do not know whether Government is prepared to accept it. I recommend that whoever is responsible for replying on behalf of the Government do so, and let us know what they are doing.

The Speaker: Do you want to accept that as your turn to speak?

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: No, Sir. I really want to reserve my right to speak.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause) The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

(4.15 PM)

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

On this side of the floor we believe that the establishment of a roads fund has some merit. I think it is fair to say from the beginning, given some of the commentary of previous speakers, and just for the benefit of the listening public, that there is a Highway Authority similar to what one of the previous speakers mentioned.

In listening to the Mover of this Motion, who did a rather able job in his presentation, I was struck by the statistics he was able to bring forward, which are highly relevant to the entire subject we are speaking about. I also realise that in the last decade there has really not been any new major construction of roads that would fall in line with the amount of traffic that has been increasing by 4%, as the Mover put it.

Just recently we established a Capital Development Fund, we established an Infrastructural Fund, and an Environmental Fund. This Motion resolves that Government consider establishing, for the sole purpose of developing roads, a special Roads Fund. The Mover also went on to give some indication of the amount of revenue collected from duty on gas and diesel, the duty on the importation of cars and the fees raised from the registration process of vehicles. I am sure the Member realises that presently these funds are all allocated to various services which the Government provides.

I do not have a problem with that, except that I wish to make the point that the funds, up to now, have always been allocated to a general fund. So it is either allocated to pay the expenses for the Police Force, or, I have heard people in Government want to relate it, to some extent, to Public Works as well.

I believe it is right for the Motion to be worded in the way it is, "That Government consider establishing for the sole purpose of developing roads, a special Roads Fund." I believe it is important as we think about this fund and the amount of money required to correct the roads, or the need by the general public for a better traffic flow by improving the distribution of that traffic by additional roads, or additional lanes, whatever it may be, that what the Government is presently considering (and I feel certain that they are going to take the decision) is to also employ a firm that gives advice on traffic management in the entire Island. It is easy to build roads. But building roads does not always answer the traffic problem in this country. In my humble opinion, I think there is need for a traffic management study in order to monitor (and I am not talking about a study that is going to take twelve months, or six months, or whatever)...but while we know there is a problem, I do not believe any one of us in this room knows the exact answer for it.

When you do not, it is wise to take additional independent advice on the subject before marching forward and spending the public's money. Perhaps during the course of the winding-up, the Mover could enlighten us a little bit more about where he thinks the additional funds will come from in order to deal effectively with the establishment of a special roads fund.

I sincerely believe that this is a national issue, an issue about which every Member in this House is concerned. I think we should address it. It does not matter where the Motion comes from, we must address the problem and correct it for the benefit of all of us who live and reside—and try to move from one district to another—in this country, particularly Grand Cayman!

I better quit while I am ahead.

[Inaudible interjections]

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I can only speak in accordance with my own humble mind. What I am basically saying is that we are in agreement with the Motion, but we are concerned about where the Back Bench is coming from on this particular Motion, and to also seek their assistance in settling, if we wish, the national issue of roads and traffic flow and traffic management in this country. I believe the public is (to use an expression that everybody understands) fed up with the traffic problem. When a person has to leave his home in Bodden Town at 6.45 in the morning to get to George Town at 8.30, something is definitely wrong.

The only Government in the last ten years who tried to physically do something about it, and did—maybe a little too late and not enough—is this Government. I realise that...[some Members' laughter]. No, no. Just allow me to finish, because I believe I know what I intend to say.

I believe that the former Executive Council Member for Roads did make an attempt to do something, but he did not get approval. So he did not physically do anything, really. That is what I am saying.

[Inaudible interjections]

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Sometimes when we are at this, we have to play fair. That is what I am trying to do.

Perhaps I made a statement that is unfair for the Mover to answer when winding up, but I believe that we have to come to grips with the establishment of the fund and perhaps I should say that the Members of this House, especially the Elected Members, work out the details of how it is going to be filled with money in order to do the road projects we all want to do.

I think it is fair, since the Motion came from the other side of the floor, and since the Government is agreeing to it, that we work out the details. I hope to God I am speaking English.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: You are going to pass it?

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Of course we are going to pass it. I mean many Members...if you go into shock, I will call an ambulance! But many Members in this House rise to their feet to speak to a Motion, sometimes for twenty minutes, sometimes for an hour and a half, and say that the spirit of the Motion is all right, but they have a few concerns, and perhaps the mover would answer that. That is all I am doing. It is the same game. If you have a concern, you should say so. Perhaps what I tried to get the Mover to say in winding up is how we are going to find the money. Maybe that was wrong. Maybe I should have said, let the fifteen Elected Members of this Honourable House work out the details as to how it is going to be funded. If it is a national issue, let us all make it our project, let us all make a contribution to it.

[Some Members' laughter]

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, I am being encouraged to quit.

I believe the country is ripe for making an attempt...we make a lot of attempts, Mr. Speaker. As you know, we do not always win every game we attempt to play. But it is right for us to designate funds to be used for a particular purpose in this country, whether it is funds to deal with environmental matters, or funds to deal with the infrastructural needs, be it additional public water for the people of this country, sewerage, or an additional Glass House that we need to cause the Government to run smoothly...Why should we continue to lease and pay $600,000 per month? It makes more sense if we think about a payback period to construct a building and get on with it.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I read my Bible every morning.

I want to say that in all of this we have the same goal for the people of this country. Sometimes we get side-tracked. I think we have to go back to where we began. We have to stand for principle. We have to stand together to win some of the battles we have to take on and ask for the blessing of Almighty God as we make that step by step journey.

Perhaps it would be good to say that some people believe that they have solutions to the traffic problem. I may believe that I have a view about it myself, but I go back to what I said earlier: I believe it is absolutely essential that the Government employ a firm that can advise it, do its monitoring similar to what the mover is talking about, the traffic counts, the rate of growth of traffic in this country, the rate of importation of vehicles that creates the traffic problem, and deal with this problem once and for all.

The Member is reminding me of road corridors. Naturally. Road corridors will have to be a part of the exercise, Mr. Speaker. Without the road corridors we can only do so much with the present roads. When you realise that on both sides of the street you have sidewalks, and when you get past the sidewalk you have a building, so what are you to do?

Mr. Speaker, I was looking at my watch and wondering if you would call for the adjournment. (Pause)

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Well, Mr. Speaker, I will move the adjournment of this Honourable House until Monday morning at 10 o'clock.

The Speaker: The question is that this House do now adjourn until 10 o'clock Monday morning 9 March. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AT 4.33 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM MONDAY, 9 MARCH, 1998.

MONDAY
9 MARCH 1998
10.34 AM

[Prayers by the Honourable Third Official Member.]

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed.

Item number 2 on today's Order Paper, Reading by the Speaker of Messages and Announcements. A Message for Commonwealth Day, 1998 from Her Majesty the Queen, Head of the Commonwealth.

READING BY THE SPEAKER OF
MESSAGES AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

COMMONWEALTH DAY MESSAGE

"The Commonwealth provides many special links between its members. Apart from more formal contacts between governments, there are any number of professional associations and voluntary organisations with close connections throughout the Commonwealth. Among the most active are those involved in sport and recreation.

"I believe that sport will always play a very important part in the social welfare of all generations. Sport—and team games in particular—teaches young people many valuable social lessons. It demonstrates the value of co-operation, team-work and team spirit; it reaches the need to abide by rules and regulations; it emphasises the importance of self control and how to take victory or defeat with good grace.

"Sport is a great leveller. The same rules apply to all; there are no age, racial or cultural barriers to participation. Indeed, enthusiasm for a sport brings together people from every background. Some sports attract dedicated spectators. Some do not, but that makes no difference to the participants. All are absorbing and enjoyable, offering unique opportunities for self discovery and to develop self confidence. For many young people, participation in sport can offer a lifeline and an essential alternative to delinquency, drug abuse or crime.

"The Commonwealth Games are the organisation's greatest sporting festival and rightly known as the 'Friendly Games'. It is always the athletes from the smallest nations who receive the warmest welcome and it is the sporting gesture that wins universal recognition. The Games take place every four years; this year they will be held in Malaysia, where every effort is being made to ensure that competitors, officials and spectators will thoroughly enjoy the experience of this great gathering. Manchester too has already begun preparations to host the Games in 2002.

"The Commonwealth Games will indeed bring us together. I am much looking forward to joining them. Elizabeth R."

The Speaker: Item number 3, Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. Question 30, is standing in the name of the First Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION 30

No. 30: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development what the actual surplus/deficit position was as at 31 December 1997.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The surplus balance as at 31 December 1997 was $1.7 million. This figure is unaudited.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Member say if, during the month of December, any funds were collected from any of the statutory authorities to ensure that this balance was a surplus?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: During the month of December, additional contributions were collected from the statutory authorities. This would have contributed to an increase in the surplus position.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Can the Honourable Member advise whether the $1.7 million surplus as at 31 December 1997 accounts for the write-off of any outstanding advances, such as the overseas medical advances that totalled some $10 million?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: During the month of December, I indicated to this Honourable House that the Government's position at the end of the year would not have included any write-offs. The reason was that an analysis was being done by the accountant at the Hospital to ascertain what portion of the indebtedness is collectible and what portion should be written off. Also, it was pointed out that some of the amounts of money that would not be paid in the short term were secured by property and other securities. That exercise was underway and should be completed soon.

I should also point out that this matter is before Executive Council at this time. A paper has been put forward on it and the information is being awaited for the necessary adjustment to be reflected in the accounts after the approval for write-off would have been granted by Finance Committee.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Assuming that perhaps 50% of the outstanding overseas medical expenses of some $10 million may be recoverable, would the Honourable Member agree that at the end of December, technically the balance would have been a deficit position of over $4 million?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, based on what the Member has said, if a write-off had taken place to the extent of 50% of the overseas medical advances, it would have created a deficit of $3.3 million. But I should point out that would not have had an effect on the cash position of the Treasury Department, but would, in effect, be shown as a prior period adjustment. It would culminate in a deficit.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I wonder if the Honourable Member could state what sort of positive returns he expects from the $10 million, that is, how much of the $10 million for overseas medical cases does he expect to have to write off?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: That will be a difficult question to answer until the exercise is complete. Even after the exercise is complete, that information will not be able to be given until certain decisions are taken by Finance Committee. The reason for that is because—let us say that a person owes $200,000, but based on the income stream of that individual, only about $50,000 can be paid, leaving a net indebtedness of $150,000. Let us say that the property which that person has given as security is comprised of a house. The question to be decided upon by this Honourable House is whether there should be a lifetime lien placed on that property and whether this should be exercised upon the death of the person. These are issues which will have to be put to Finance Committee. This will affect the amount of indebtedness.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: There is no intention on my part for any of the people who owe these funds to be squeezed. My main concern in asking this question is that the proper accounting principles are applied and that we are getting the accurate accounting information.

The Member did allude to the fact that the outstanding amount on overseas medical cases would not affect cash, and no one is contending that point. The point I want to raise is whether the Honourable Member can state if the outstanding amounts on advances, if properly accounted for, would negatively affect the surplus and deficit account, and thus affect the general reserves position.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Let me assure this Honourable House that the proper accounting principle will be applied in terms of the write-off. If this determination was made, for example if 50% of the overseas medical advances were uncollectable and should be written off, irrespective of whether these amounts were securitised, and if the Government decided to forgive the indebtedness, this would adversely affect the end-of-year position. It would generate a deficit.

Once the information is in hand that accurately reflects what is collectable in the short term and what is collectable in the long term, and what has to be written off, the position will be put to Finance Committee. Based on the decision of Finance Committee, the necessary adjustments will be made in the accounts to accurately reflect what the financial impact of that decision should be.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Can the Honourable Member say whether this $9 million of indebtedness is by the Government or by the persons who received overseas medical attention? In other words, I am asking if the Government has already paid that $9 million to the hospitals in Miami.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: That money has already been paid by the Government and is to be recovered from the persons who have received medical treatment overseas.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: We are looking at two questions, Government's cash position and Government's surplus and deficit account. No one is questioning the cash position. My question to the Honourable Member is: With around $10 million on advance account, when this is adjusted, will it negatively impact (this is the answer I am trying to solicit) upon the surplus and deficit account, and also affect the general reserve position?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: When that issue is addressed, it will be written off during the course of the year and is likely to affect the 1998 end-of-year position. If sufficient revenue is not on hand to cover the budgeted expenditure for the year, plus the adjustments that will have to be made to absorb this write-off, it would adversely affect the end-of-year position. Then a determination will have to be made whether transfers will have to be made out of the general reserves account into revenue to absorb the write-off. That decision will have to be made, and will be made as soon as the information is in hand.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, the next question is 31, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION 31

No. 31: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development to give a breakdown of the total public debt as at 31 December 1997.

No. 35: To state the annual amounts by which the contingency liabilities have increased since 1993.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

DEFERMENT OF QUESTIONS NOS. 31 AND 35 STANDING ORDER 23(5)

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, unfortunately, I will have to ask for a deferment in answering this question under Standing Order 23(5) and also question 35. I should point out, by way of a brief explanation, the reason for this is the information the Accountant General Designate was working on up until last night to derive the answer for this morning has been lost through a fault in the computer system. In connection with question 35, although we have not gotten to that as yet, the financial position between 1995 and 1996 has shown an inordinate increase in contingent liabilities. The reason for that was because of certain decisions taken by this Honourable House to extend pension benefits to weekly paid workers and other matters. When all of these are brought together, as well as the retirement age—certain decisions are being examined at this time as to whether the retirement age should be reduced from 60 to 55. Obviously, these would adversely affect the unfunded pensions liability.

So this will have to be examined carefully, with the correct information put to the House.

The Speaker: Standing Order 23 (5) says "A Member of the Government may, with the leave of the House, defer answering a question." I shall put the question that the answers to questions 31 and 35 be deferred. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: QUESTIONS 31 AND 35 DEFERRED.

The Speaker: Moving to question 32, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION 32

No. 32: Mr. Linford A. Pierson asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development to state the total balances of (a) cash at bank; and (b) general reserves of the Cayman Islands Government as at 31 December 1997, or most recent figures.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The total unaudited balances as at 31 December 1997 are as follows: (a) cash at bank as per Treasury records: CI$1,898,977; (b) general reserves: CI$8,983,000.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Can the Honourable Member say (and I am noting that this is in draft form and not yet audited), if all outstanding bills he is aware of at the end of the year, that is, 31 December 1997, are included in these figures?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The majority of the invoices correctly presented were settled. There were some, however, that were not settled because, first of all, the departments did not certify that these goods were received; and there were some instances where there were insufficient funds within the votes to settle the last-minute bills incurred.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I wonder if the Honourable Member can give the House an estimate of those outstanding bills.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I would have to provide that answer in writing. But I want to believe that it would be less than $1 million.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, the next question is 33, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 33

No. 33: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs what opportunities for prisoners' rehabilitation exist at Northward Prison.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: The opportunities for prisoners' rehabilitation at Northward Prison are as follows:

1. Education programmes;
2. Drug counselling;
3. Woodwork instruction;
4. The rearing of livestock;
5. Automotive and general maintenance training;
6. Vegetable gardening;
7. Craftwork;
8. Spiritual growth and religious instruction;
9. Job placement training.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Member say whether there are any provisions for such opportunities to be continued once the prisoners have been released from Northward?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Apart from assistance in job placement, there is currently no other opportunity or programme operated under the auspices of the Prison.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Member then tell the House how the effectiveness of such a programme is arrived at?

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 23(7) AND (8)

The Speaker: Before I ask for the answer to that supplementary question, I would ask for a Motion to suspend Standing Order 23(7) and (8) to continue Question Time beyond 11.00.

The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I move that the relevant Standing Order be suspended so we can continue with Questions.

The Speaker: Do we have a seconder?

Mr. Roy Bodden: I beg to second that, Sir.

The Speaker: The Motion has been made and seconded that Standing Order 23(7) and (8) be suspended. I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 23(7) AND (8) SUSPENDED TO ALLOW QUESTIONS TO CONTINUE BEYOND 11.00 AM.

SUPPLEMENTARIES (Continuing)

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Unless an inmate is on parole, the Prison has no further contact with the inmate. Therefore, I am unable to comment on the effectiveness of the programme.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Could the Honourable Member give an undertaking that some avenues be explored with agencies providing similar assistance, so that the possibility of a continuation can be exploited at its fullest? It seems a wasted exercise on the part of the Prison to implement and institute these programmes of rehabilitation while persons are in prison, but immediately upon their release there is no continuation or follow-up.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: It is difficult for me to give such an undertaking, since the Prison has no further contact with the inmate. I would expect that it is something which could be done through Social Services which, as everyone knows, is not under my Portfolio.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Is the House to understand that the drug counselling is a one-off deal and, for example, if an prisoner is sentenced for three months, upon completion of that sentence, counselling is terminated, although it may be decided that the prisoner could benefit from continued counselling?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: I am not saying that counselling would be terminated for an inmate, I am saying that the drug counselling at Northward Prison for that inmate would be terminated upon his (or her) release from Prison.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: I wonder if the Honourable Member could say (regarding to prison rehabilitation programmes) whether they have come to any conclusion as to the relationship between inside counselling and outside counselling opportunities.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: The drug counselling at Northward Prison is done by Cayman Counselling Centre, and I dare say that that unit would be able to simply change the venue for inmates after they are released and continue the drug counselling outside. But it would not be continued within the Prison, and therefore I am unable to comment any further on that.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Member tell the House whether these offerings, such as woodwork instruction, the rearing of livestock, and craftwork are purely rehabilitative, in the sense that they are constructive exercises for the prisoners to pass the time while they are in prison, or are they geared toward equipping the prisoner by way of experience or some kind of qualification, that he/she may acquire a marketable skill with an experience or qualification that is recognised and accepted by prospective employers.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: The educational programmes that are being done, for instance 'O' levels and similar types of courses, attempt to equip the inmates for the world of work after they leave prison. There may be some areas I named in the original answer that would not gear people for the world of work, in the sense that it would not give them a qualification. But a number of these do offer qualification for the inmates to assist them in job placement later on.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Although I can see the connection between the attempt to rehabilitate and craftwork, can the Honourable Member say how they have come to a decision on the role woodwork instruction would play in the rehabilitation programme? How is this explained?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: The programmes endeavour to equip inmates to become productive citizens once they leave the Prison. For argument's sake, it is not at all unusual to have inmates come in with little or no skill. If a particular inmate shows an interest and a flair for, say, wood-working, they can gain experience and skills there that would equip them for going into the field of construction or maintenance after leaving the Prison. So in this respect, it is intended to assist them in their rehabilitation and job placement after leaving prison.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Can the Honourable Member say whether spiritual growth and religious instruction are voluntary or compulsory?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: I believe I answered that in a question last week, but the answer is, yes, it is voluntary.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Member say if there are any efforts to encourage inmates, upon their release, and to interest members of religious organisations to establish contact with prisoners after they have been released, in an effort to continue spiritual growth and religious instruction?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Yes, the Prison Chaplain is actively involved in this process. For prisoners who are on parole, one of the conditions is the requirement to attending or be actively involved in regular church services and activities.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Member say if the drug counselling is mandatory or voluntary? Also, as a corollary to the drug counselling, is there any exposure to psychologists who offer courses or workshops in development of self-esteem and self-actualisation?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: In answer to the first part of that question, drug counselling is only mandatory when ordered by the courts. This is something that is currently under consideration and review. I wonder if the Member would repeat the second part of the question?

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Certainly. Can the Honourable Member say if, as a corollary to what drug counselling is being offered, there is any opportunity for prisoners to attend workshops by either a trained counsellor or psychologist in courses of self-esteem and self-actualisation—in other words, courses or programmes that would help the prisoners understand and develop a sense of self-worth and self-importance.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you for repeating that. Yes, a section of the drug counselling course deals with self-esteem and self-worth. The only thing we need to do is get that mandatory for all prisoners. But for those who are currently enrolled in it, yes, that is a part of it.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: I understand rehabilitation as meaning that a person comes to realise something is wrong and they strive to find ways of changing what went wrong. Therefore, I would like to ask the Honourable Member if, in the course of woodworking or automotive and general maintenance training, and in vegetable gardening, there is any awareness or consciousness built into these activities of teaching inmates these skills, to make them aware that the reason they are being taught these skills is so that they can better fit into society.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: The Member will appreciate that the persons doing the automotive maintenance and repair and the woodworking skills, gardening, etc., do not necessarily have the sort of skills he is talking about. But, inbred in those courses is the opportunity to develop self-esteem and self-worth. I think an individual learning to create or produce something—for argument's sake, let us take doing bodywork on a car, and seeing the finished product—I think that in itself engenders self-worth. Even those of us here, when we accomplish something and we are pleased with it, it helps to develop self-esteem and self-worth. I think this comes out as a result of it, but no, there is not specific training within those areas in self-worth and self-esteem.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, the next question is 34, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION 34

No. 34: Dr. Frank McField asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs to say what step, if any, has been taken to provide Northward Prison with a Rehabilitation Co-ordinator.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: The Social Services Department introduced a Probation/Aftercare Unit in late 1997. The unit is currently running three groups at Northward Prison. These groups are focused mainly on the criminogenic needs of group members, but necessarily involve sessions on basic social interactive skills including communications, identity of self, role models, choice and decision-making, roles in society, etc.

The Unit is working toward being actively involved with inmates from the point of arrival at Prison to reintegration into the community.

The Prison Department is currently working closely with this Unit and will keep under consideration the idea of establishing a post of Rehabilitation Co-ordinator.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: The Honourable Member said that the Prison Department is currently working closely with this Unit and will keep under consideration the idea of establishing a post of Rehabilitation Co-ordinator. We had spoken at some length about this before. Can the Honourable Member state whether he is satisfied with this arrangement, and if he is of the opinion that consideration of establishing this post is a sufficient reaction to the problem which we are dealing with at the Prison.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: I believe that question asks specifically for an opinion, which I prefer not to give at this stage. But, as I said in the substantive answer, the matter is under consideration.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Member expand on how this unit functions within the Prison at present?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: The unit is operated by two social workers. The groups average about ten to twelve persons and they meet regularly. I am not sure what else I can say at the moment.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: The Honourable Member went a certain distance with the answer, and I do appreciate it, but I am also trying to understand how regularly these groups meet. Is there a schedule, or is it when it is possible; or are they seconded to the Prison, or is it once a week or whatever?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: The groups meet twice a week. The social workers are not seconded to the Prison, they are responsible for it. They work with the Prison authorities. I think it is Tuesdays and Thursdays that they meet.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Member state if the established schedule is what the assessment determines suffices, or is this the only amount of time that they can be spared to deal with it?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: There are a number of constraints. The space constraint is one difficulty, and the number of staff, and the amount of time they can spend...I understand that they even go beyond the call of duty, working extra hours trying to assist where possible. Obviously, it is something that needs to be expanded, and we hope that in time additional space will become available, and it probably will call for additional staff. I believe it is a good start, but it needs to go further.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Member state if the prisoners who are presently involved in this programme are chosen by way of their records, or are they chosen at random? How is this done? Secondly, can the Honourable Member say if there is a need for additional inmates to be brought into the programme but, because of what he stated earlier, there is no space or staff to accommodate more?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: It is my understanding that the inmates selected for this programme are selected by the teachers/counsellors. At the moment, it is confined to the worst behaviour cases. In answer to the second part, yes, there is a need for the programme to be expanded, as I mentioned earlier, the need for classroom space and instructors.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I think there is some other programme (I cannot remember the name of it). I think it is Project Preparedness, through the Ministry of Community Development, and I am trying to determine—because there seems to be some overlapping and I am not suggesting that is a problem—if there is any interaction between this programme and Project Preparedness, or if they are two totally separate entities. How do both of them function, heading in the same direction?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: On Project Prepare, a member from the Human Resources Department comes along with the social worker and is involved. This is in addition to the rehabilitation programme we were speaking about a while ago. Certainly, it is there to complement it.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: A number of programmes have been mentioned that are ongoing at the Prison. I wonder if the Honourable Member can say if an independent assessment has been done regarding what the needs are at the Prison?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: There has not been a study commissioned, but the Overseas Territories Advisor has been advising on programmes for the Prison.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: I believe it is very important that we have a professional assessment done. I know that as representatives, we have our own special interest in that type of thing, but I think it would be good for the Prison to commission someone to carry out, in a very objective manner, the needs of the Prison. I am wondering if the Honourable Member could say whether such a review would be considered.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Yes, that is very possible. I will certainly take that under consideration.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries that concludes Question Time for this morning, question 35 having been deferred earlier.

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 4/98

ESTABLISHMENT OF A ROAD FUND

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: May I interrupt you for just a minute? I must humbly apologise that I did not recognise his wife at that time, such a lovely lady. We certainly want to extend a welcome to you. We are happy to have you both with us.

The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. It certainly is appropriate that we welcome both.

When we took the break on Friday afternoon, I was making my brief contribution to Private Member's Motion No. 4/98, Establishment of a Road Fund. That Motion resolved that Government consider establishing, for the sole purpose of developing roads, a special Roads Fund.

I also pointed out that the Government recently established a Capital Development Fund, an Infrastructural Fund and an Environmental Fund. Given the concern every Member of this Honourable House has, as well as Members of the public (both resident and visitor), it seems sensible that the Government consider establishing a special road fund.

I also mentioned on Friday afternoon that I believed roads were a national issue; an issue that should be resolved from input by both sides of the House, certainly every Elected Member of this House. I believe for the fund to be established and operated properly, it is important that every Member give their input before the Government finalises any thought on this process.

We know that funds collected, be it duty on gasoline, or diesel, or the importation of cars, or registration of vehicles, have already been allocated to various services provided to the public by this Government. We also know that the Harquail Bypass has not solved the traffic problem along Seven Mile Beach, or from West Bay to George Town. We certainly realise that the traffic problem is not only on Seven Mile Beach road, but is also evident on a daily basis from George Town as far back some mornings, as I understand it, as Bodden Town.

If we are to tackle the issue—and I call it a national issue—certainly every Member (and I stress Elected Member) should give their input on how we should resolve the traffic congestion problem, and what funds we should allocate on an annual basis to slowly cause the flow of traffic and the time required to move from the eastern districts or West Bay to George Town to be substantially reduced. If we take the objective of reducing the time by 50% as a phased mechanism, what, in essence, do we need to do within the next three to twelve months to cause it to happen?

This morning, I departed my home in West Bay at 8 o'clock, deliberately, to get a feel for what the traffic is like at that hour (because I normally leave home at 7.15 or 7.30), it took me 35 minutes to get to my office. When I look back to two years ago, it probably would have taken 15 to 20 minutes, depending upon the day. It so happens that this morning I had to pass by my bank (not one that I own, but one where I keep my account). It also happened that a member of Public Works was at the bank at the same time, a member of Public Works who is knowledgeable of the problem. I took the opportunity to talk to him about it. I do not know if I can recite all the statistics he gave me which flowed from monitoring the traffic, taking traffic counts of the traffic that enters the Galleria and West Shore, or exits therefrom, or slows down to allow cars to exit or enter. After hearing these statistics, my next question is, what should we do about it, given that we have these facts?

Surprisingly, the recommendation happened to be what some of us think, that is, to extend the Harquail Bypass further north and to enter it somewhere in the area of the Galleria Shopping Mall, so that every person who does not have a need to enter the Galleria or West Shore Plaza can go his merry way into Town, and that will relieve some of the traffic congestion between the Hyatt and the stoplight.

Sometimes with the best will in the world, we do things and they do not work. But the important thing is that if we start a project, which this project suggests, you have to do another corridor basically all the way to West Bay. The portion done, which is now called the Harquail Bypass, is only the beginning of it. Given that it is not working to our satisfaction, and that it is taking 15 minutes more than the average to get to Town, and remembering too that no country in the world can build roads to deal with the peak period. If you go to London, you will get stuck in Parliament Square for at least 30 minutes trying to get around to the other side. If you go to New York, you will run into the same problem. If you go to Miami and you want to go up Route 95 or 75 you can certainly run into the same problem we are having here in Grand Cayman, not to say that we have to accept it is something that we are going to have to live with until the Good Lord decides to come.

Speaking for myself, I believe that we should—and let me back up by saying, I asked the gentleman what the cost would be to extend the Harquail Bypass a little bit north of the Galleria. The answer was $1 million. It is not only residents who are complaining about the traffic congestion. Visitors are also complaining. While we are all in this movement now of trying to arrest the situation, it is important that if we do one bit and it does not work to our satisfaction, we move on and finish the job so we can come back to what we would normally accept—15 minutes, if that is the magic number of minutes to leave your house in West Bay and get to George Town. I believe that the Government of this country (and let me include the Members of the Legislative Assembly) should take that action. And I am speaking for myself.

I believe too that, regarding traffic generally in the Cayman Islands, more specifically Grand Cayman, the Government should undertake an independent professional traffic management survey and examination. It is always good, when you are going to spend substantial amounts of the public's money, to get an independent assessment before you jump off. Some of us think we have the answer. We may be right. But suppose you are not right.

I am not talking about a firm that is going to write a report, and I am not trying to cast aspersions against anyone, but many firms come and make recommendations, and then one of the recommendations is to employ them a little bit more. I am not talking about that kind of assessment. I believe there is a way to carry out this exercise and not get too deeply into that kind of arrangement.

We all know that the public (and I used this expression on Friday) is fed up with this traffic problem. The public is expecting the Members of the Legislative Assembly and the Government to do something about it. I think the earliest indication we can suggest to the public that we are going to take action to seek to correct it, is the right step to take. I go on to say, the earlier the better. If we can have a budget in excess of $270 million, I do not accept that we cannot fix that problem.

[Inaudible interjections]

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I am in here. I am for the people of this country, and that is who I am talking about. It does not matter what side I am on.

[Inaudible interjections]

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Well, we did something. We do not want to get negative. We have made a start.

I always believe that if the 18 Members of this House sit down and discuss a problem, there is not one problem in the Cayman Islands that cannot be corrected. Everyone in this House has a role to play, has played it, and has the intelligence to deal with it as well.

My humble opinion is that the Government supports the establishment (more than considering the establishment) of a special roads fund. My annex to it is that at least all the Elected Members of this House should sit down around the table and decide how to get money into it. It is as simple as that. How do we get money into it to do the roads we are talking about? Is it not possible to make corrections on a phased basis, so that we are not looking at an $80 million or $100 million job? I believe it is possible. I think we have to deal with national issues of this sort, exercising financial prudence but certainly taking steps, after careful examination, to have it corrected as soon as possible.

Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

As the Seconder of this very important Motion, I naturally rise in support of the request in this Motion. In my opinion, the issue of roads and traffic congestion in this country is not only a national issue, but is one of the priorities and concerns experienced by most residents and visitors alike. I say "sensitive" in that we have a dilemma, because statistics have shown that on an annual basis, we continue to import more and more vehicles; and at the same time there is a call for relief from the general public regarding the congestion from the increasing number of vehicles.

To give an idea of what I am talking about, I have some statistics regarding the importation of vehicles from the Royal Cayman Islands Police Annual Report. This reflects back to 1992. With your permission, Mr. Speaker, I would like to read how that increase has taken place over the years. Back in 1992, we had a total of 1,773 vehicles imported. In 1993 we had 1,838 vehicles, which is a 3.6% increase. In 1994, we had 2,283 additional vehicles imported, a 24.1% increase over the figure for 1993. In 1995, we had 2,473 vehicles imported, which represents an 8.3% increase over 1994. In 1996, we had 2,898 vehicles imported, which represents an increase of 17.2% over 1995. We do not yet have the statistics for 1997, at least I have not seen them, with regard to imports of vehicles. But we can see from these statistics what has happened. There is a constant increase from year to year in the number of vehicles imported into this country.

Some people have suggested that we should maybe go to a system similar to what has been introduced in Bermuda that restricts the number of vehicles coming in. If a representative here in the Cayman Islands suggested that, he would immediately lose his seat. But it is an issue that has to be addressed.

What I also found very interesting was the comparison of the number of vehicles licensed in this country from one year to the next. In 1995, we had 16,521 vehicles licensed here in Grand Cayman. We had an additional 906 licensed and registered in Cayman Brac. In 1996 we had 18,166 vehicles registered in Grand Cayman, which represents a 10% increase over those registered in 1995. In 1997, that figure jumped to 20,617 vehicles licensed in Grand Cayman.

I also found interesting the number of private vehicles licensed and registered here. In 1995 we had 11,176. In 1996 we had 12,365; and in 1997 we had 13,982 private vehicles registered and licensed in the Cayman Islands. We can see that the number of registered vehicles in this country continues to increase.

In December 1997, we officially opened the Harquail Bypass. I remember attending that official opening. There was a lot of pride and excitement in regard to this major accomplishment, attempting to ease the congestion along Seven Mile Beach. But you know, I remember the first week or so after that Bypass was opened, it took some residents in West Bay three hours to get to George Town. I experienced that on a personal basis. What annoyed me was that in that time, I did not see one police officer assisting the traffic flow. I did not see one officer from the Public Works Department monitoring the situation. After the television became involved and got comments from the general public, I saw some reaction.

I believe we have to be very sensitive to an issue such as traffic in this country. It has become a major concern here. I recall hearing comments by visitors on local television, who said they would never come back to the Cayman Islands because of the traffic congestion.

The move to establish a specific fund for additional proper roads to relieve the congestion is a step in the right direction. But members of the general public must understand that the day has long passed when Government can continue to offer these additional services at no additional cost to the general public. On the other hand, I believe that if we establish a fund specifically to deal with the traffic congestion in this country, the general public would support and contribute to any fund for this purpose.

I do not have the statistics of what vehicle-related taxes are collected in this country by way of import duties, licences at the traffic department and other areas, but I would daresay it is in the area of $25 million or $30 million. That goes into the Government's coffers. There is nothing wrong with taking a portion of these funds collected from vehicle-related services, and initiating this fund, which will specifically address the traffic situation in this country. But I also believe that rather than, as representatives, running the risk of making any suggestion publicly that would spell political suicide for any of us, we sit down as a committee and look at this problem in an objective fashion. I concur with the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport who said that if the 18 of us get together to address any issue, we will find the solution.

I cannot say that I do not support the idea of bringing in someone to advise you on traffic management. But I trust that this is not another one of those exercises where the consultant comes in and all he does is make a report, and because the conditions here are so lucrative, he or she all of a sudden becomes a part of the establishment. That has been our experience in the past, and I trust that we will not tolerate that in the future. If we have a need for someone, bring him in on a specific contract for a specific period of time, with specific terms of reference, and assess the situation as soon as possible; then say 'thank you' and let that person move on.

I do not believe this is an issue in which we can hide our heads in the sand for the next two years and hope it will go away. Not only along Seven Mile Beach (we seem to be focusing on that area, and I would not want to be caught in that area right now), but I believe the situation is worse coming from the east into George Town. After 7.15 AM, one can plan to spend at least 45 minutes to one hour coming into Town. I believe, with regard to the situation along Seven Mile Beach, it is very annoying to be sitting in traffic for an hour or an hour and a half, with the middle lane open and no one using it.

I believe, and I have preached this from day one because I have seen it work in other areas, there is no reason why we cannot have two lanes going into George Town in the morning, and reverse those two lanes coming out of George Town in the afternoon. It is worth a try. Here in the Cayman Islands, people are still very courteous, in that if one needs to make a right turn, people will still give way. I do not think it makes any sense whatsoever to leave one lane open, specifically for the purpose of turning, when we have the situation like we have along Seven Mile Beach.

The other thing I do not agree with is what I call 'fowl-coops' in the middle of the road for the specific purpose of pedestrian crossings. When the traffic is backed up along there, normally emergency vehicles use that middle lane. What do they do when moving down the middle lane and they suddenly come to this thing. What do they do then? They better hope that traffic will move so they can get around these things. I do not think they serve any purpose whatsoever.

We have to be practical in this country. That is the problem we have. These little guys responsible for designing these types of projects have a good education, but we must bring in things that are practical. I believe it is worth a try to convert the middle lane into a lane going into Town in the morning, and reverse it coming out in the afternoon. I do not think you will have any problem with the traffic, once people know what the rules are. It is worth a try to see whether it will work.

The Speaker: Are you going on to another point now? Would this be a convenient time to break for lunch?

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Yes, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: Proceedings are suspended until 2.30 PM.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.47 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.36 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Debate on Private Member's Motion 4/98 continues. The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. When we took the lunch break, I was dealing with the traffic along Seven Mile Beach. I mentioned that I saw no reason that, in an attempt to eliminate the problem we have along Seven Mile Beach in traffic congestion, we do not use the middle lane, that is now sitting there idle, until a vehicle needs to turn.

I believe if we extended that middle lane all the way into West Bay—and I see no reason why we cannot do that, because the further down you go, the less congested and restrictive the area is as far as space—we could do well regarding minimising the amount of additional money we have to spend to address the traffic problem along West Bay Road.

I believe if we did that, we could probably even eliminate the necessity to spend, as the Honourable Minister for Tourism mentioned this morning, the additional million dollars to extend the Harquail below the Galleria Plaza.

Quoting a few more statistics I found, to impress upon not only Members of this House, but the listening public, the seriousness of the growing problem of traffic congestion, I am told, from information that has been made available, that in 1988, the peak volume on West Bay Road was 250 cars per fifteen minutes. If you extrapolate that to a per hour traffic movement, that was 1000 cars per hour in 1988 along Seven Mile Beach.

In 1997, this rose to 375 cars per fifteen minutes, or, according to my calculations, 1500 cars per hour. In my calculations, that is a 50% increase experienced along Seven Mile Beach in nine years. It is impossible for us—and I have travelled far and wide—to completely eliminate traffic congestion, especially during the peak hours, that is, when people are going to work in the morning and returning from work in the afternoon. Regardless of where I have been, at those times—and we have countries with a much more massive highway system than the Cayman Islands—everywhere I have been, that has been the experience. At peak hours, there is traffic. There is no question about that. But the problem we have is that you have an increasing number of vehicles using our road corridors. That means the time it takes for the movement of those vehicles from one point to the other increases, and for that reason we find that traffic hours are extended beyond the normal 7.30-8.30 peak period, and we find traffic generally throughout the day.

Let me also say that any measures we arrive at will only be temporary in nature. By that I mean, you can put in another road corridor between maybe George Town and Bodden Town, or George Town and the eastern districts, but as you continue to get more vehicles imported into the country, it is just a matter of time before that capacity is absorbed and you are returned to the position we are in presently.

I think, as motorists, if we want to continue to have the freedom of choice regarding the purchasing of vehicles, and freedom of choice of every member of a family—and that seems to be the trend—having a vehicle, we must be prepared to tolerate some level of traffic congestion. On the other hand, it does not make sense for us to go out and look at any massive or very expensive alternatives. By that I mean, I recall the experience Florida had regarding finding suitable alternatives. They embarked upon establishing a massive and very expensive rail system, and spent billions of dollars on that project, and the only people who still use that project are probably poor people who cannot afford to own their own vehicles. So I do not think that is the solution. The solution is we must continue to give people the freedom they want regarding the purchase of their own private motor vehicles. At the same time, the message I want to leave is that we must all be prepared to contribute something regarding this solution. Every year we as representatives spend hours upon hours upon hours trying to arrive at an annual budget. We have so many requests for services by way of expenditure, but we have limited revenue resources through which to fund those services. I believe the general supports the view that as long as people are getting the type of service and facilities they want and need, the general public is prepared to contribute something reasonable regarding supporting the availability of these services.

In closing, I want to congratulate the mover of this very important motion, because, like the rest of us here on the Back Bench, I believe he has his finger on the pulse of what the needs are in this country. This is a need that has to be addressed. This is a need that the general public is very concerned about, and the sooner we get on with addressing this very important need, I believe, the better, because this problem is not about to go away. Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? The Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Private Member's Motion 4/98, as stated previously, seeks to establish a road fund here in the Cayman Islands. Prima facie, this concept of establishing a special road fund seems very appealing. One could go so far as to say that if such a fund were established, it would go a long way toward solving the complex and increasingly problematic, cancerous issue of traffic and other ancillary issues emanating therefrom.

For the purposes of this debate, I can safely assume that the horrendous traffic problem, which all and sundry seek to address, currently exists on the Island of Grand Cayman, and thankfully we on the Brac and Little Cayman thus far can still drive for miles with very little or no traffic congestion. I have said that, Sir, to say this: I believe that this motion, subject to the substantive query which I will expound upon in due course, is a timely motion. It is timely because the congested traffic situation in Grand Cayman is at a critical stage. Since the construction of the Harquail Bypass, the congested traffic condition, on the West Bay Road in particular, has been brought to the forefront of our minds. Just last week, when I was in the vicinity of the Westin Hotel at about 2.15 in the afternoon, on my way back to George Town, it took me some fifty minutes to drive from that area to the Legislative Assembly. This is just, as we all know, a few short miles, and by way of comparison, when I have to drive from Tampa International Airport to a city which we often visit, some 90 miles away, it normally takes between 50 and 60 minutes to drive that distance. I realise, Sir, that the speed at which one drives, the weather conditions, the condition and width of the road, and the type of vehicle one drives are all factors which can determine how long it will take a particular vehicle to travel a particular distance.

Being fully aware of this, I also believe the time has come to establish a proper and affordable roads plan for all three of these Islands. I believe, as Little Cayman and Cayman Brac develop in a planned fashion, there is much to be learned from the mistakes of Grand Cayman as they relate to roads. The first lesson, Sir, which I believe we can learn on the Sister Islands, is that road corridors must be established, so that as development comes, the developer is certain where future roads will be constructed and he or she can therefore plan accordingly. These road corridors must also be revisited from time to time in order to ensure that they keep up with the developmental needs of our country.

One of the main infrastructural concerns of a politician is the provision of adequate roads for his or her particular constituency. Roads are extremely costly to construct, especially when there are compensation costs involved. Each year, as my friend the Third Elected Member for West Bay said, at budget time, the funds are indeed extremely limited when it comes to road construction and other matters. It has to be shared as fairly as possible among the six electoral districts, and the amount each district receives is rarely ever sufficient to meet the road demands of the district.

Even with this scenario, Mr. Speaker, not all of the funds can be taken from local revenue. Indeed, Government often finds itself in the position that loans will have to be taken out to finance the construction of roads in the Cayman Islands. Of course, with loans comes interest, and regardless of how little interest is being paid, interest, in my opinion, inevitably eats away at one's future spending power, albeit for a specified period. So I believe the best way to go is by creation of a realistic method of creating and funding a roads fund. If there were an existing road fund in place which was properly funded each year, there would, I believe, be a realistic sum of money available for road construction in all three of these Islands.

One fallacy that appears to exist regarding the construction of roads in these Islands, at least as far as the Brac and Little Cayman, is that Cayman Brac and Little Cayman do not need any more roads. Nothing can be further from the truth, because I believe it is time we should build as many roads as we can each year to ensure that if and when development comes to Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, and the other districts in Grand Cayman as well, our road users will have an option, and the traffic will not be forced into bottleneck positions, or into a position where there is only one road leading to the main commercial centre.

We must therefore plan for our future, and in so doing, I believe we should continue to look at decentralising services to decrease the need to come to central George Town, which is perhaps already overcrowded, and which can also help to improve the traffic problem on both the West Bay and Red Bay roads.

In addition, it is my opinion that money from the road fund can be better utilised by building roads to cater to future development, particularly in the other five districts, because the property at that stage would be much cheaper, there are fewer physical obstacles in the creation of the necessary road corridors, and development can take place around the roads, rather than roads occurring around the development, which can be a very costly exercise.

Having said what I have said thus far, the million dollar question I would like to be answered, if possible, before the winding up of this debate, is whether the movers, or indeed any other Honourable Members of this House can assist the Government in its endeavours to allocate and identify where the money for such fund is going to come from. In my view, there is a rebuttable presumption that the question of introducing a road pay toll is not a realistic one, because the premise on which the pay toll operates is that of choice, and regrettably, there is very little if any choice of what road we use, especially if we want to come into central George Town, the commercial centre of Grand Cayman.

The Harquail Bypass has provided a choice for those going to and from George Town into West Bay, and one could not really be expected to place a pay toll on the Harquail Bypass, as it most certainly would serve as a disincentive for road users. In fact, it is my humble belief that it would defeat the whole purpose of having the Bypass in the first place. It is also my submission that if pay tolls were to be put in place, there are two probably locations: one in the vicinity of the West Shore Plaza and Wendy's, where the road splits into the one leading to George Town and the newly constructed Harquail Bypass; and the other perhaps on the Red Bay Road, before it splits going into Crewe Road and into South Sound.

Some may even argue that a further pay toll should be placed at the entrance of the Harquail Bypass that is coming in from the town entrance. But let us look carefully at this scenario. The persons travelling daily from West Bay, North Side, East End and Bodden Town have no choice on which road they have to take to come to work. There is basically one road leading from West Bay and one serving all the eastern districts, and for the most part, these persons have very little choice but to come into George Town to work or generally conduct their business. Would it then be fair to those persons to have to bear the financial burden of paying a road toll, if this concept were introduced, especially since they had very little choice in deciding that George Town would be the central commercial centre?

Suppose for argument's sake that someone living in the Prospect area wanted to go across to the West Shore shopping plaza. They would have to pay at least two pay tolls and possibly three if this concept were accepted. This, in my opinion, would be inequitable. And what about the good folks residing in central George Town? If they wanted, they do not really have to leave Town for anything, which means that if the tolls were put in place, as in my hypothetical example, the people of George Town would not have to contribute to the road fund, unless they chose to use the West Bay, Harquail or Red Bay road. And God forbid, if you tried to place pay tolls in central George Town, to further add to the congestion that already exists on our roads.

These are but a few of the reasons why I could not, at this time, support the raising of road funds by the installation of pay tolls, if such were to be the case. Luckily, so far, this has not been proposed by either the mover or the seconder. However, I felt I had a duty, albeit an onerous one, to explore the feasibility of the pay toll concept, and to try to show why I believe it is not appropriate, given our current road network situation.

It has also been noted that funds for the road fund can be realised from revenue raised from motor vehicle registration, the importation of motor vehicles, and licensing, as well as retrieving $0.25 from the petrol taxes. Again, at the very first instance, these sources would appear to be the most logical sources to tap into, but permit me, please, to further examine this proposal.

As it stands now, funds currently received from these sources are already stretched to the maximum by existing demands in our 1998 Budget, and one does not have to be a rocket scientist to forecast that this will be the same situation, come the 1999 Budget and so on. Further, the Backbench gave the Government of the day an unambiguous mandate, and rightly so, I might add, back in December 1998, that there was to be a prioritisation of capital projects, and equally important was that such expenditure was not to exceed $27 million. This then, Sir, leads me to the question of whether it is the mover's intention that this road fund not be established until the next financial year, when we have the new budget to work from, and therefore that the proposal, as contained in this motion, is part of a vision for next year and not, indeed, this year.

Moreover, if the funds raised from these proposed sources are utilised for the purposes of a special road fund, then where would the money come from to pay the administrative cost of the Licensing Department and the Customs Department, who now render these services? From a wider perspective, Mr. Speaker, funds from these services, according to the figure given by the mover of this motion, represent a significant portion of our Budget, and therefore provision must be made to provide for budgetary shortfalls in the other areas which are now being funded by these sources, for example, our schools, hospital and Social Services.

I am sure we all realise our tax base is extremely narrow, and as far as I am concerned, the Caymanian public is not a money cow, and there will come a time when we reach our saturation point if we have not already done so. We must therefore exercise much care and due diligence when we introduce new concepts to ensure that they are fully and accurately costed, as far as practicable, otherwise it could very well lead to unnecessary taxation.

In conclusion, Mr. Speaker, I wonder if the movers would inform this Honourable House whether they are suggesting and/or would support a revenue enhancement measure to fund the proposed road fund, because it is one thing for the Government to accept the motion, but unless there is a clear direction where the money is coming from, I for one would surely be setting myself up for failure, having accepted the motion without knowing where the funds were coming from, and then in a few months' time, have to answer to this Honourable House as to why the road fund was not set up.

I would love to be in a position to support this motion, once the movers can safely satisfy me where the money is coming from, and indeed, that it is not sought to come from enhanced revenue measures. I thank you, Sir.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. This motion is one which establishes a road fund and the concept of this is good, and I can support the establishment of a road fund, but there are obviously questions as to the funding of it that other Members have discussed. The Honourable Member who moved this, the Fourth Elected Member for George Town, set out quite clearly the reasoning and justification for doing so. The question of traffic and delays is one that has been around for some time. It gets worse. It is one which has to be dealt with as early as possible, and as effectively as possible, but it is complicated by the fact that we have more and more vehicles coming into the country to use the roads, and it seems that it is not the wish of the majority of the people that anything be done in that respect.

During the course of this motion, the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town stated that I had no common sense. I am dealing only with that phrase that was put up by him, Mr. Speaker. I would say that at least we have had sufficient common sense when we established funds within the Government that we were able to fund them. I am dealing only with the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town in this statement, Mr. Speaker. In all of his speech, and with all the common sense he had, he did not say where the money was coming from to fund this fund. It is like going into a bank, opening an account and saying to the banker, 'I don't have any money.'

This was a motion which, I guess, any astute politician should have realised was going to be looked at sympathetically by Government, and that attack on me was not only unjustified but it was a bad political judgement, because, Mr. Speaker, I believe that with whatever I have, at least I have been successful and I have always taken a business approach in what I do and therefore, Mr. Speaker, it seems to me that these sorts of attacks—and I must say, Mr. Speaker, whenever I get this sort of approach to me from now on, I will be responding within the Standing Orders of this House, because I had neither said nor done anything to provoke the statements made by the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town. In fact, and this is the last thing I will say on this, I believe if I was not in this Honourable House, the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town would have a real problem finding too much to say. But the saying is, when you have something to say, you discuss issues. When you have nothing, you attack people or talk about people.

Mr. Speaker, this motion, I think, what the Minister for Tourism has put forward with it, and I would hope that the Fourth Elected Member for George Town would grasp what he has put forward, which was basically two things: that we need to get a traffic management study done. Let us get whatever help we need to find out how to deal with the traffic. Building roads and more roads may not necessarily be the answer unless they are built the right place, the right way, and at the right time. So that is something I believe would assist us.

The second point is that I believe issues such as this, major issues like pensions or whatever, we must, within the Legislature, be able to sit down, look at the issues, and try to come up with solutions, because the aim of this House has to be to take the approach which is in the best interests of all of the people of all of the Cayman Islands all of the time. That is something that I am always happy to do, to sit on major issues and try to find a joint solution from within the Legislative Assembly.

So I commend the mover of this motion. Like I said, the statements I made earlier did not apply to the Fourth Elected Member for George Town, but only in relation to the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, in reply to what he stated, and I am very happy to try to find a way of funding a vote to deal with this matter, and it is for the benefit, once again, Mr. Speaker, is, as I said, whenever now I am basically hit at in relation to any area and any motion or law, then, Mr. Speaker, I intend to defend myself, which I did today in a very nice and minor way, but I think on this motion, the input of the full House is necessary in relation to dealing with traffic, because it is going to go far beyond a road fund, Mr. Speaker, to deal with it, and it is not an easy one. Government after government has looked at this and not come up with an answer which is that enduring because, as I stated earlier, and as the motion states, the importation of vehicles continues to go upwards. So with the principle of the motion and the establishment of the fund, I can support, and will have to see where money will come from to put in it, and at what time it will come in, and I would make decisions as was reserved also I know by the lady Minister in relation to a decision as to how the funding of this goes. At least this year, Mr. Speaker, I think all funds are basically fairly well committed, so there would not be a lot that would go into the roads fund this year, even though there is money there for roads, and I should point that out. Thank you, Sir.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I believe the motion before this Honourable House, which has been brought by the Fourth Elected Member for George Town, is a very good motion. I have said this to him personally, and I also wish to say it publicly, and I also congratulate the seconder of the motion, the Third Elected Member for West Bay.

I was very impressed by the statistics that the mover was able to provide to this Honourable House, and I had hoped that before speaking on this motion, I would have had the benefit of those statistics. Unfortunately, I have not been able to get them yet, so I hope that, before I am through, these will be made available.

The Fourth Elected Member for George Town has touched on a very important subject, and that is one of establishing a roads fund for the development of our national road system and for the maintenance and improvement of existing roads. The 'Resolved' section of this motion, Mr. Speaker, asks for Government to consider establishing, for the sole purpose of developing roads, a special roads fund. I think this is very important, in view of the fact that over the years, funds that have been generated through the roads and in other areas have been used generally for the upkeep and running of Government. So it is important that a special roads fund is established that will be used primarily and specifically for the development of our roads throughout the Cayman Islands, not only in Grand Cayman, Mr. Speaker, but indeed in Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Before making my contribution to this motion, I would just like to say that I am amazed that in this Honourable House there is still so much bickering. I realise that we are not in church; it is a Parliament; and in any Parliament, you are going to have differences of opinion. This is why you have different sides, different parties in more developed parliaments. But Mr. Speaker, I was a bit disappointed when I heard the Honourable Minister for Education state that he will make it a point to retaliate against anyone that raises an issue against him, and I can understand why he said that, Mr. Speaker.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order.

The Speaker: Could I hear your point of order, please?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I said I would defend myself.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, I am sorry I misquoted the Honourable Minister. I can assure him I am not here to attack him. My point I am making is that it is time that we try to mature beyond this bickering we have had over the years. That is not to say, Mr. Speaker, that we cannot defend ourselves, but we need not make a major issue that we are looking forward to doing this.

I would like to see us practice what we preach. There are many of us in this House, Mr. Speaker, that call ourselves Christians, and that like the public to believe that we are. Mr. Speaker, I would like to see us act as such and show due respect to our fellow legislators. That is one of the things I would like to see developed in this Parliament.

There is no doubt at all that there is a major problem with congestion of our roads. One only has to drive along the road, not only at peak hours, but at any hour of the day, and you will find the worsening problem. It will not get better, Mr. Speaker, because as our population grows, as our country continues to develop economically, you will find there will be more and more cars coming into these Islands, and in particular to Grand Cayman.

With the present road system, the situation will continue to get worse and worse. But I cannot help but mention, and I really do not want to get into the history or go back into the period that I was the Minister responsible—Member at that time—responsible for roads. But I recall that an attempt was made to address this major problem, and it was at that time, the opposition of the day, and I will not spend a lot of time on this, Mr. Speaker, but it was the opposition of day at the time that scuttled that programme. Had it not been that the roads corridors were deliberately taken out of the composite maps, and this was done for political reasons, then today, eight to nine years hence, we might indeed have a proper road system. It was the plan at the time, Mr. Speaker, to spread the expenditure over a number of years.

I am very happy that at least one Member has repented, and I was hoping that when the Honourable Minister for Education spoke, I would have heard some repentance coming from him. But he was given the opportunity, Mr. Speaker, and he did not avail himself of it. So I cannot accept it at this stage, unless he does what a good friend of mine told me once, that I would have to dip myself seven times in the Jordan.

I was somewhat amused to hear one Minister of the Government Bench support this motion, and it seemed to me that he was speaking for the Minister for roads, and then another Minister was not really sure whether that Minister could support the motion or not. Under the principle of collective responsibility, I would have thought that if this motion was being accepted by the Government Bench, all Members would have supported the motion. I still believe that the Minister who did not seem too supportive of the motion will perhaps still vote for the motion.

One Member, in speaking, raised some very interesting and important points. One such point was dealing with the pros and cons of the motion. When one looks at the pros of the motion, there is no question at all that a roads fund is required. But that raises the question of the segregation of existing funds and how we will go about filling the void that will be caused through that segregation. Because as we know, Mr. Speaker, the current funds are heavily, heavily taxed at the present time, or heavily utilised, so that there is no mistake as to what I mean by 'taxed.'

If the funds that are being generated now through the roads, directly or indirectly, such as the import duties, the motor vehicle inspection, etc., were put into a separate fund for the very purpose of roads, then that gap would have to be filled, because as we know, the Government at present is fully utilising all of the revenues available to them. Out of our hundred million dollar budget for 1998, they were able to show a surplus of less than a million dollars, so that indicates the amount of revenue being utilised at present.

So Mr. Speaker, the opposite to the pros, the cons, would indicate that some other means of raising the necessary revenues would have to be considered. This may not be a bad thing, Mr. Speaker, if indeed this is going to be dedicated to this particular problem of supplying proper roads throughout the Islands. It may be necessary to increase revenues in certain areas, and I am not here suggesting that should be done, I am here saying that if we are going to accept this motion, I hope that Government is not going to just put it on the back burner and try to accept it to please or appease the Backbench, and in particular the mover and seconder of the motion, but that they will seriously attempt to do something about this problem.

What has been done recently—I heard one Member say that nothing seriously has been done over the past few years except by this Government, and I do not really want to make a political issue out of this, but I think the people of the country can judge for themselves whether the improvements or lack thereof, that have been done in recent years have really been effective. We see the development of the Harquail Bypass. I am yet to find anyone who will tell you there has been any major improvement in the problem on the West Bay Road since that road has opened. If anything, a lot of complaints have been that the situation has gotten much worse.

That is the result of the lack of proper planning. Had a national road plan been put in place over the past few years, the development of our roads would have been done in an orderly and systematic manner. Whether we call the plan that is necessary a Master Ground Transportation Plan, or the Grand Cayman Roads Improvement Plan Study—by whatever name, there is no question at all that a plan is necessary, a national roads plan is necessary. That is why, with this motion, must now come and be put in place, a proper national roads plan, so that roads plan can be properly costed, so that we will know how much money is required to develop a road infrastructure.

We have heard that at present there are certain funds put in place. A previous speaker mentioned that the Capital Development Fund, the Infrastructure Fund, and the Environment Fund came into being recently, and this is true. What that Honourable Minister did not say was that these funds, though earmarked in a certain way, were utilised by Government within their general revenue structure to take care of their recurrent expenditures. My fear is that unless this roads fund is specifically earmarked and supported by law, the same thing could happen to this fund, that it could be utilised for the recurrent expenditure of Government. If that situation occurred, it would indeed be a waste of effort. I would suggest that, as soon as possible after this motion is passed, and it seems as if it will be passed, the Honourable Minister with responsibility for roads make every effort to put top priority on tabling the national roads plan, and on having that national roads plan properly costed, because then and only then will we have the viable machinery to start to properly, seriously and effectively address the road problem in this country. We would then have on the one hand a plan properly costed, and on the other hand, the machinery for having proper funds set aside for the development of our road system.

Perhaps it is the intention of the Honourable Ministers, in particular the Honourable Elected Ministers, to include this in the ten-year plan, the 2008 Vision. This may be the case, but this would be unfortunate, if they were to leave this over a protracted period of time. This is an urgent, urgent matter. It is a national issue; that is why I would like to see us, on this particular issue—it will not happen on too many—but on this particular issue, I would like to see us put aside partisan political positions, and be joined on a national issue as important as this, the development of our road system.

I realise that the funds required for this could be significant. But unless something is done to improve the development of our roads, it is going to have a very negative effect on the future development of these Islands. I would call on the Honourable Ministers, especially the Minister responsible for roads—I know he is not here, but I would hope this would be conveyed to him, or perhaps he will hear it by listening to the radio—that he will give the development of our roads very serious consideration. As I mentioned earlier, Mr. Speaker, I think it was back in 1989 or 1990 when I was then the Minister. We tried at that point to put in place a proper roads plan. Had that plan been accepted at the time, it would have cost this country perhaps 10% of what it will cost today to put a proper roads plan in place. The longer we leave this important issue, the worse it is going to get. It will not get better.

I have heard people saying, 'Let us try to do car-pooling. Let us try to see if we can put a public transportation system in place, that this will address the problem.' Mr. Speaker, this will not be effective unless we can first educate the people into changing their way of life. This is not going to work. We might as well accept that. I have also heard suggestions that perhaps we should pass legislation to decrease the wheel base of cars, or to reduce a family to only one car. That is not going to be accepted by our people. The only plausible answer I see to this is that a proper roads plan is put in place, and that it is done without delay.

I support this motion. I do not want to go over some of the ground that has already been covered by previous speakers. But I would be remiss if I did not, once again, remind the Honourable Ministers that we would have wasted our time in this Honourable House on this motion if it is pushed into the background, and if urgent attention is not given to it with immediate effect. Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: We will suspend proceedings for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.38 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.05 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Does any other Member wish to speak?

The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: [microphone off] I have listened to Members, and ... this Motion, Mr. Speaker, has been raised ... this debate. I would like to thank the Mover for bringing this Motion, so we can air our feelings about the problem. I will be brief. Every one of us knows about the problem of traffic congestion, and we need to do something about the roads.

I heard the Minister for Tourism say that we need to get a consultant. Is that what we need? As far as the present West Bay Road, or any other road, is concerned, the Government should have the common sense to fix something when they see it is not working. We certainly do not need a consultant to tell us that the Bypass has created problems which need to be rectified. That would be a good beginning—not the Bypass itself, because anyone who has travelled on the road realises that it is a good road. It is the intersection that has caused the problem. Working on that intersection problem is a good beginning, although that is only one part of the traffic problem in these Islands.

I recall the suggestion that the Bypass should come behind the Galleria Plaza. That suggestion fell on deaf ears. Let us look, for a brief moment, at some statistics which show us why we have the problem we do on the West Bay Road.

At the Galleria Plaza, from 10.30 AM to 5.15 PM, at least on a day in January this year, cars going southbound making a left turn into the Galleria Plaza totalled 372. Northbound, making a right turn into the Galleria Plaza totalled 421, for a total of 793 vehicles for the day. At the West Shore Centre, from 10.30 AM to 5.15 PM, at the same time in January, vehicles travelling southbound making a left turn into the West Shore Centre totalled 561. Northbound, making a right turn into the West Shore Centre totalled 642, for a total of 1,003 vehicles on one day. If we look at these statistics, the cause of the major congestion is the right turn into both plazas—some 1,063 vehicles making the right turn from George Town. Coming in and out of those two places, there was a total of 1,796 vehicles.

It shows us that it was folly not to have listened to those of us who held the view that the road should have been extended behind the Galleria Plaza. People talk about the Harquail Bypass. Let us make it clear—it is not the Harquail Bypass itself. That is a good road. It is getting into it and out of it and the fact that it has come where it is. We held the view that the Bypass—and this is not a new view, as I will go on to show—or those bypasses are effective.

There are some 27,000 (or more) vehicles using West Bay Road, I think it is daily. Some 9,000 vehicles per day use the Harquail Bypass. That is at least 30%. The belief is that if we went all the way to the Galleria, probably 50% would use it. So, let us not beat up on the Public Works Department, those of our young people there who have some knowledge, to say that they do not know what they are doing, so we have to get a consultant to tell us. The statistics say otherwise.

The truth is that while the Public Works Department is not always right, if they are listened to and given the chance to carry out their expertise some (and I stress some) of these problems would not exist. I held the view, and some others may have already said this—I believe someone did say this so I will not be long—but I held the view that the two lanes up into Town from Treasure Island Resort were working well, and that extending those two lanes into West Bay could work. Even trying to experiment using the two lanes up in the morning and turning it around in the afternoon would at least be workable. As I said, it would be an experiment. This is not my idea because I have heard this pushed many times before.

The problem we are experiencing with the traffic today is the result of our refusal to accept planning. That is the problem. As far back as 1975, there was the realisation that big motorways appropriate to the North American condition were not what was needed here. The thought was to effect a number of bypasses around the more populated areas. Even at that time, people realised that a big motorway could not go straight through because even at that time, there were developments which prohibited that. So, bypasses were considered much better.

However, there was a suggestion to provide reservations of certain roadways, which, could only (even then) have been preserved in certain parts, at least along the West Bay Road corridor. Then came the developments which paid no mind to roadway reserves. Then the Hyatt was built. If you remember, the canal behind the Hyatt was built in the early or late 1960s. So, when it came to the Master Ground Transportation Plan, and the Member for Communications and Works (the present Third Elected Member for George Town) tried to get the plan going, what that plan outlined was not going to work in terms of straight-through highways, and more importantly in terms of dollars.

The road reserves by then were very costly and what we in the House at the time took cognisance of. Again, today it is a failure to plan, to accept planning. So we failed to accept the 1975 plan, which did have some good ideas, and the Master Ground Transportation Plan also failed by being cost-prohibitive. Not that the ideas and the work of the former Member were not good in trying to get it done. I have no problem with that. It was the fact that it was cost-prohibitive.

I believe, as far as the West Bay Road is concerned, that there are solutions staring Government full in the face. The Government only has to get their act together, stand together, stick together and do the work. They do not need any genius from somewhere in the United States to come and tell you that you need to do something about (let us take one example) the West Bay Road. We do not need a consultant from somewhere else. It is staring Government full in the face and the Minister for Tourism gave a good example of that when he stayed home until 8.00 this morning to do what?—"feel the feel" for himself. So when you feel the feel, you should walk the walk—you should get it done. He, amongst others, realises that.

As I understood it, the Minister said that he stayed home until that time so that he could get the feeling of the traffic backup, which runs right into West Bay at that time. All I am saying is (and I do not think I am talking derogatorily of him) that if he experienced it, then let us do something about it. It is staring us in the face!

[Inaudible interjection]

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Yes, but we do not need a consultant.

The longer-term solutions for the entire Island should now be in the finalising stage. I will repeat that: The longer-term solutions should now be in the finalising stage, since we heard from the Minister responsible for roads some time ago of a plan. If we are working on a plan, as we were told then, why should we now want a consultant? I do not know.

We do not need a whole lot of people to tell us about the problem that we experience from day to day. The public, as one Member said...

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order.

POINT OF ORDER

The Speaker: Please state your point of order.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: If I am understanding the First Elected Member for West Bay correctly, he is saying that I suggested we use a consultant to deal with West Bay Road. I do not believe that he will find that in the Hansard.

The Speaker: I do not have access to the Hansard of your speech, unfortunately.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Mr. Speaker, I will not get into nitpicking with the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport. At least I can say that he left the impression that consultants would deal with some of the West Bay Road problems. But if he says that is not what he said, I am not going to get into nit-picking with him. All I can say is that when they say that the public expects the House and the Government to work together on this issue, as Members of the Legislative Assembly we can do what we are now doing. We are now saying that bringing the issue, since Government did not bring it to do something about it, if the Government sees something staring them in the face, then they need to right the wrong. They do not need to butter anyone up.

The Speaker: If I can interrupt you for just one minute, apparently what the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport is talking about is the general road conditions within the Cayman Islands, that we need some expert advice on the general overall plan for the Cayman Islands. He did not specifically state the West Bay Road alone.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: I did not hear anything about a general overall plan. I heard about a consultant, and he was talking about the West Bay Road. But, as I said, I am not nit-picking with the Minister.

The Speaker: Anyway, please continue.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Thank you.

I listened to the Ministers. One came to butter us up, the next one came to teach us a lesson. I must say that I am intrigued by the debate of the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture, which, as we listened carefully to her, made some valid points. But, by the tenor of her closing, I wonder where collective responsibility lies, since the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport gave the impression that there was support, and the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture was hedging her support.

What we have heard is that we need to get together. I believe that even my friend the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning said that we need to get together to deal with such issues are roads and pensions. We need to get together. They are harping on this getting together. We should not need to get together on pensions because we voted on a Law in 1996 which we all agreed on. And if what happened to the Pensions Law is an indication of working together, then I have to wonder about the sincerity of the call. That is the only point I am making—if they are sincere about this thing, rather than buttering us up, I wait to see what will happen. I believe in working together, but I do not believe in anyone trying to give us a white-wash.

Many persons have talked about many things, whether we could refuse importation of cars. One thing I can say: I do not know if we can continue to build roads and build roads. We have to accept responsibility. Whether it causes us political fallout or not, we have to look at it. We only have so much land space in this country. I do not know whether any Government is going to put a limit on the importation of cars. As we look at the priorities Government laid out, I do not recall that roads was one of them, that the finishing up of the West Bay Road is one of them.

Certainly, if it was not, then the West Bay Road was not a priority. What we do not want is for anyone to come to us saying, 'We don't have the money to do this or that,' because we talked about priorities. I understand from people living in the eastern districts that that area is a mess also. I only know about the West Bay area because I drive on that road every day. But I heard it is in a serious mess as far as traffic is concerned. Somebody is saying that is where we need advice.

The 1975 Development Plan was very pointed. It showed us throughout the Islands—if you look at that Plan and look at the Master Ground Transportation Plan, we had some good ideas and some good food for thought about what we need to do. We really do not need an expensive consultant to come and tell us that we need roads.

Mr. Speaker, I have observed quite often the use of the middle lane, the so-called turning lane. The vast majority of people, probably 99.9%, will not use it. Instead of coming out and getting in the lane, they either stay in, or come right across and block the road, waiting until they can get across. They are not using that turning lane. I do not know where the little cribs came from, however, we must admit that they are not working. All I am saying is that the Government does not need the House to tell them that it is not working.

We do not need to get a consultant and sit down days upon days to see that it is not working. Somebody needs to do something about it right now. That is all. I do not want to hear anyone come behind me and ask me why I did not do something about it when I was in Executive Council. That is a different story.

MOMENT OF INTERRUPTION—4.30 PM

The Speaker: Would this be a convenient time for us to adjourn?

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Yes, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: I will entertain a motion for the adjournment. The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock.

The Speaker: The question is that this House do now adjourn until 10 o'clock Wednesday morning. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AT 4.32 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM WEDNESDAY, 11 MARCH 1998.

EDITED
WEDNESDAY
11 MARCH 1998
10.28 AM

[Prayers by the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town]

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed.

READING BY THE SPEAKER OF
MESSAGES AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: I have received apologies for absence from the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture, the Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning and the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Item number 3 on today's Order Paper, Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. Deferred question No. 31 is standing in the name of the First Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MEMBERS/MINISTERS

DEFERRED QUESTION 31
(deferred Monday, 9 March 1998)

No. 31: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development to give a breakdown of the total public debt as at 31 December, 1997.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

DEFERMENT OF QUESTION 31
Standing Order 23(5)

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, in accordance with Standing Order 23 (5) I seek leave of this Honourable House to defer Question 31 a second time until Thursday, 12 March 1998.

The Speaker: The question is that Question 31 be deferred. I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: QUESTION 31 DEFERRED A SECOND TIME UNTIL THURSDAY, 12 MARCH 1998.

The Speaker: Question 36 is standing in the name of the First Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION 36

No. 36: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development what agreed amounts, if any, are contributed annually to the general revenue of the Cayman Islands by (a) the Water Authority; (b) the Port Authority; and (c) the Civil Aviation Authority.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The agreed amounts which the referenced authorities are expected to contribute annually to general revenue are set out in the Estimates of Revenue and Expenditure on an annual basis. These amounts can vary from year to year, depending upon the Authorities' expected financial performance.

A primary factor which can also influence the level of contributions is that the respective governing laws for these authorities require that any surplus of funds net of allowable operating expenses and reserve provisions be paid into general revenue of the Cayman Islands.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Member state categorically that with each Budget prepared annually, the figures put into the Estimates for the contribution for each of the authorities has been agreed upon prior to the preparation of the Estimates?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The chairperson of each of these authorities is normally a Minister of Government. We have a Budget Review Committee in place which is comprised of all Elected Ministers and Members of Executive Council. An indication is normally given by the Minister with responsibility for the authority in question as to the expected contribution of the authority for that given year. This assumes that the necessary financials of the authorities would have been examined, discussions held with the managing directors of these authorities, and the amounts agreed upon. Consultations normally take place at the informal level.

Following the enactment or approval of the Budget, notification is sent to each of the authorities by the Budget and Management Services Unit advising them of their expected contribution for any given year.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Can the Honourable Member say whether it is a rule that when the authorities have funds set aside for matters such as insurance, or specific projects, that those funds are left for the authorities to use as they specify?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Under normal circumstances those funds will be left in place. The authorities, as part of their financial arrangements, are required to maintain reserves for known eventualities. It is likely that the First Elected Member for West Bay could be referring to when the authorities were asked to make contributions over and above what they indicated should be expected from them during fiscal year 1997. This is the only year in question where they were asked to exceed their budgeted provision. This occurred in the case of two authorities, the Port Authority and the Water Authority, but not in the case of the Civil Aviation Authority.

This is done when it is necessary to assist the Government's cash flow. Members of this Honourable House are aware that a ceiling of approximately $4 million has been put in place that the bank overdraft should not exceed on an annual basis. It means that if the Government finds, irrespective of the payments to be made, that that overdraft limit is going to be exceeded, the approval of this House should be sought. It could get to the point where even the payment of salaries would have to be held up.

When the financial position of the Government was reviewed in December it was determined that extra funds were needed in order to meet payments that had to be settled before 31 December, and to maintain the necessary limit. At the end of the year the situation turned out to be slightly more favourable than what was projected, but the Treasury will have to take a very conservative position. This will have to be advice to myself which in turn will be shared with Executive Council.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: I would like to thank the Honourable Third Official Member for that very clear indication of where the money went but I would like to further ask, when it comes to operating expenses such as insurance, if those funds should not be left with the authorities; and when the authorities have made commitments on projects, if those funds should not also be left with the authorities.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Before I respond to that specific point I should say that this Honourable House has been concerned with Government's fiscal approach. First of all, it is known that the Government has a very narrow tax base from which revenue derived on an annual basis to fund the Budget is taken.

When we compare the Cayman Islands with other islands in the region and places farther afield, we find that we are not an ordinary third world country anymore—we are talking about a first world country. When we look at the infrastructure and the needs of the community as a whole and the level of funding required in order to defray this expenditure on an annual basis, I think that this Government (and previous Governments) has done very well, given the narrow tax base it has at this time in order to meet the budgeted demands on an annual basis.

The Government recognises that it is quite prudent and reasonable for the authorities to make provisions for expected expenditure such as insurance and other budgeted commitments, and that those provisions should be made and be kept in place. The only time funds would have been taken over and above what was agreed was in 1997, and this has been pointed out.

Another point I should mention is that the Honourable First Elected Member [for George Town] and I recently visited another country. We found a number of things that were quite interesting. We found that one of the primary obligations of the Crown entities of that country was to contribute to the government's annual budget and to optimise the contribution on an annual basis. We also went to a country where the maximum tax rate for any given year can go as high as 43% of a person's income.

When we look at the Cayman Islands, we have one of the highest disposable incomes in this region. In fact, the contributions to Government on an annual basis is elective. . . motor car insurance—we can choose not to drive a motor car. When we look in terms of the garbage fee of $50, which is 25% of the cost, we can elect not to have a house. It is not so in other countries. If you earn a salary, the money will be deducted at the source.

I am saying this to point out that when we have a situation where monies that have been reserved by these statutory authorities for specific purposes are drawn upon in order to avert a crisis, it should be looked at and examined under the circumstances as to why this was done.

I should point out that as a part of the reform process or measures that will be implemented by the Government, the statutory authorities will have to be brought into the loop, like what goes on elsewhere. What we also found quite interesting was that the Audit Department confirmed that where the financials of statutory authorities, or Crown entities, were previously in a stand-alone position they are now drawn right into the Government's overall budget process in order to develop the macro plan of the Government for any given year.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I will defer to my colleague.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Member say if any of the funds that had to be taken from the authorities during the latter part of 1997 had to be returned in short order due to short-falls in these authorities meeting their commitments?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: When the extra funds had to be taken from the authorities it was pointed out that if the funds were needed by them in order to defray urgent expenditure that the accumulation of expenditure would not allow them to meet during the course of the year, the Government would provide the necessary assistance. If that is the case, these requests will be brought to Finance Committee for the necessary approval to be obtained.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Member say if such a situation has occurred so far this year?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The Port Authority was specifically asked to make a contribution of $.5 million over and above the $1 million that was budgeted for 1997. We know that the dock sustained some damage. The Honourable Minister responsible for the Port has stated that the Port Authority could be requesting the Government's assistance in order to effect the necessary repairs.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: So that the Honourable Third Official Member will have it very clear, my line of questioning has no bearing on his position as the Third Official Member, but once it is dollars and cents it falls under his umbrella. My follow-up question is: Can the Honourable Member state if the Government recognises that this is a totally unsatisfactory position; and are any specific plans afoot (notwithstanding what the Honourable Minister for Tourism stated recently in the House) to rectify this situation in regard to the authorities?

I suspect that there are times when the Estimates for the country are done and the authorities are committed for certain funds during the course of the year when, in fact, they may not be in a position at that time to truly estimate what they will be able to contribute.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: All of the fiscal measures of Government need to be examined in light of the changes and the thinking at this time. We do recognise that the contributions by the statutory authorities could be dealt with differently. But I should point out. . . and I know it will seem as though I am repeating what I said earlier, but if you will just permit me to say this: Prior to loans being raised from Caribbean Development Bank for the Port Authority and the Civil Aviation Authority, these were departments of Government making significant contributions on an annual basis to the general revenue. It was intended that when the Water Authority was established it would also attempt to optimise its contribution to Government.

These commitments that they are entering into. . . and when we look at the debt load of these authorities, it is evident. . . because of the fact that their budgets, as such, have not been dovetailed with central Government we can see certain anomalies. For example, let us say the Water Authority decides to invest $4 million in waterlines from George Town going east. What normally happens, because there is not this comparing what happens, the Water Authority goes and digs up the road, and puts in the waterline going east to Breakers. No budgeted provision would have been made for the resurfacing of the roads. So, when everything is looked at together, the infrastructural plans of the statutory authorities and central Government, consistency in broad objectives can be achieved. A decision can then be made in this matter.

If the authorities have $3 million or $4 million to expand the waterline. . . but it would not be prudent for the Government to do so on an annual basis, the Government will say, 'If you incur this expenditure, you carry out this project, it will impact in this manner on central Government, and we are not in a position to do so this year. So delay moving ahead.' When we tie all of this together, these are areas that we have to look at. Budgeting does not mean just putting figures together, we are talking about deriving plans. It is a planning process whereby we are harmonising all of the activities to attain a cohesive end result.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: In regard to what the Honourable Member just said, the Water Authority fixed the roads. Sometimes they make a pact with Government to jointly fix the roads. I would just like to clear that matter up. At the time I was there, we had a ten year plan which the Government agreed to.

We are talking about funds set aside for specific purposes, my question is: Once Government has taken the funds, and the Authority needs those funds, who will borrow the money, the Authority or the Government?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: If there is a short-fall with any of the authorities in terms of meeting obligations, the onus for making good falls upon the Government. The Water Authority was asked to contribute an additional $.5 million. If this was taken from reserves set aside to meet certain urgent expenditures and the Water Authority is not able to do so, it will mean that central Government will have to assist.

This is what obtained up until now. When we move forward in the planning process and under the reform initiative, that should change.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I thank the Honourable Member for the comprehensive answer he has given. He mentioned that the transfers from some of these authorities went to central revenue and into the bank, and he mentioned ceiling of $4 million overdraft limit. I wonder if the Honourable Member is in a position to say how the ceiling is determined? Is it based after a proper reconciliation has been carried out on Government's financial statements, or is it based just on the balance at the bank at any particular time?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: This limit is $4.5 million and it is based on the cash book position of the central Government at the Treasury Department, not the bank balance. It is based on the cash book position. This is how the limit is observed.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I wonder if the Honourable Member could say if that cash book position is the same as what we know as the reconciled position, the proper and correct balance; and if that is the case, what would have been the case at the bank at the end of the year, including the transfers made from the authorities?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The cash book position as at 31 December was $1,898,977. This balance is presently being reconciled. The assumption that is to be made when you take into account deposit in transit, outstanding cheques, and adjustments to be made in the Treasury records of transactions that may have been recorded at the bank but not reflected in the Treasury records, we are looking at the Treasury records. . . . When a reconciliation is carried out it is normally done against the balance reflected in the records of the entity in whose name the account stands.

I should also point out that the balance at the bank as at 31 December was $3,906,399.41. This was not overdraft, it was a good balance.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: The Honourable Member referred to a 'new initiative.' Can he say if there is a new initiative to make the statutory authorities less responsible for the financial management of their affairs, and Government more responsible for it?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: No. The emphasis is on transparency in that this Honourable House has responsibility for all Governmental activities. Although the statutory authorities are independent bodies, they fall within the ambit of the Legislature. Just as the budget of central Government is scrutinised, the budget of the statutory authorities should also be made available to this Honourable House to examine, and for the Government to see. A decision will then be made in terms of agreed objectives, rather than the authorities operating in isolation or with their respective boards. Everybody can be brought together and a clearer understanding will emerge in terms of what can be expected. It does not mean that the Government will become more intrusive, but more knowledge will be available in terms of what their actions are for any given year.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: That means then that Government will know where to take the money from at any given point.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: That is a very important point. As I mentioned, when we look in terms of our revenue base, all sources of contributions will have to be agreed upon. If it is a question of determining that the authorities should be making greater levels of contribution, this will also come out in the process. We have seen elsewhere where emphasis is placed on this.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Member say what happens in cases where the demands of Government conflict with the budgetary plans and aspirations of the authorities? Also, how are the authorities assured of proper functioning, i.e., procurement of material and items they need for efficient functioning of the various authorities, and ancillary matters such as staff salaries and insurance and these kinds of incentives in light of what he has just said?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The arrangements as they presently stand can lead to conflicts because of the fact that there is not broad-based knowledge. We have authorities operating with a certain level of autonomy and independence and central Government with certain expectations. When everything is brought into the open and we have what I would call a reconciliation of minds, there can be differences, but they are likely to be resolved at a greater level of understanding and it will be known on both sides in terms of what it expected.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I must once again say that I am very pleased with the frankness and openness of the Honourable Member. I wonder, picking up on the answer he gave earlier, if he could explain whether the approximately $3 million he stated was at the bank at the end of December 1997 would have been the balance shown on the bank statement after adjusting for deposits in transit and outstanding cheques which would have given a correct cash book balance?

The Speaker: Before I ask for an answer to that, I will entertain the suspension of Standing Order 23(7) and (8).

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 23(7) AND (8)
11.00 AM

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I so move, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Mr. Speaker, I second that.

The Speaker: The question is that Standing Order 23 (7) and (8) be suspended to enable Question Time to continue. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED. STANDING ORDER 23(7) AND (8) SUSPENDED TO ENABLE QUESTION TIME TO CONTINUE.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The balance at the bank of $3,906,399.41 would not take into account the transactions the Member has mentioned. The balance that would have taken that into account is the balance as per the cash book position at the Treasury, which was $1,898,977. That takes into account outstanding cheques, deposit in transit. What it would not take into account would be debits and credits on bank statements not appearing in cash books.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: I was a bit concerned by the information given by the Honourable Third Official Member in regard to Government's need to (should I say?) grab cash from the statutory authorities. What steps are being taken by Government and the statutory authorities to ensure that this type of behaviour or activity is minimised? It does not look like a professional way to run a business.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: What I said earlier should have answered that question. When we look at the central Government and the statutory authorities, we are talking about a single entity with divisions. The statutory authorities are subsidiaries of Government, which is the parent company.

I am not saying that what happened in December should be the norm—and that has certainly not been the norm. We have a situation where it is likely, based on the projections in the Treasury Department, that the overdraft limit of $4.5 million—and this is not the balance at the bank, I am talking about the cash book position at the Treasury Department which means having to defer making payments in respect of expenditures incurred during the year 1997 that were not settled. When this was taken into account, and in order to maintain a surplus position it was necessary to ask for additional contributions from the statutory authorities.

It should be borne in mind, when we think in terms of this singleness of entity, Government as a single entity, when Government incurs an overdraft Government is paying the penalty rate at the bank. If this can be ameliorated by maintaining a good balance. . . because it is not as if Government bears this cost in isolation, all of these costs are transferred back to the community. A new approach will have to be taken (and this is in train) in order to remove that friction.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: I wonder if the decision in regard to the additional amounts asked to be contributed were based on actual cash balances or the financial position reflected by the financial statements at the time? The reason I ask is because I am aware that, for example, with the Civil Aviation Authority, their financial statements look real good. But there are a lot of uncollectables out there.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: This would have to take into account the cash that was available to the various authorities. Although there were outstanding collectibles or receivable, these are short-term assets of the authorities. What should be borne in mind is that we are looking at a stand-still position as at 31 December.

We are moving into a different era. I should mention, as I pointed out to Executive Council in terms of the First Elected Member [for George Town] and I going down to New Zealand and coming back here, it is not a question of just hearing their philosophy. We sat down and recognised that certain reforms and actions need to be taken. We are in communication—and I know I am going outside of the question, but I need to make this point—what has been agreed with the Government is that we are attempting to get the ex-Finance Minister of New Zealand, the Honourable Ruth Richardson, to come to the Cayman Islands. She is presently carrying out a consultancy in Columbia. It is likely that she could be in the islands around the end of April/early May and we will sit down and have discussions with her. It is not to say that we are going to copy what is done over there, but we want to extract certain ideas that can be useful to us because we have been exploring farther afield.

When we take all of this, it will mean moving away from the present system of accounting to, most likely, an accrual system. This will not only impact upon central Government, it will take into account the statutory authorities as well. We cannot have harmonisation and cohesiveness unless all the processes are streamlined and we have an understanding across the board whereby at the end of the day once the budget is made up the authorities will know what the overall objectives are. These will be communicated to the Board of Directors, they will understand what objectives the Government has set for them and if one of them turns out to be optimising revenue contribution, everyone will be in harmony in terms of achieving this objective.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: I thank the Honourable Member for all of the details. Can he confirm whether or not the Civil Aviation Authority (which is the one I am concerned about) was able to make its fourth quarter payment to Caribbean Development Bank after they were requested to make the contribution to general revenue?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: This is a self-financing loan. The Government made the payment on behalf of the statutory authority, but the Civil Aviation Authority indicated that after it made the additional contribution to the Government it was not in a position to reimburse the Government immediately. The reason was that they did not carry out a reconciliation of their cash position to know what was in the bank at that time.

The Speaker: Before we go on, we have had 16 supplementaries on this particular question. I will limit it to two more.

The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Mr. Speaker, I thank you for your indulgence, as this is a very important matter. As you have heard, we are getting more information today than I could have gotten when I was in Executive Council. I am very thankful for that.

My question is: Are there further moves afoot to take more cash from the authorities?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The 1998 Budget sets out what the expected contributions from the statutory authorities are. But the laws of the authorities also say (as I pointed out in the Parliamentary Question) that they are supposed to make the necessary reserves that have been approved by the Board and agreed upon by Government, defray their operating expenses and any excess revenue should be paid into central Government.

It is likely that if the performance exceeds what would be the normal expectation, it could be that the contribution to central Government would exceed what has been budgeted. But by the time we come around to December, where we will be looking at this, they will also have been caught up in the reform process and have an understanding of where we are heading and their expected objectives and goals at the end of the day.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: The Member is saying, then, that the cash taken in December, or January, whenever, from the authorities, that in addition to that cash will be cash which is somewhere in the Budget for central Government?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Yes, and that is to be expected.

The Speaker: We will move on now to question 37, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION 37

No. 37: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development to provide an itemised list of the total present debts of (a) the Water Authority; (b) the Port Authority; and (c) the Civil Aviation Authority.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: An itemised list of the total present debts as at 31 December, 1997, of the Authorities mentioned, is set out in the attached Schedule (See Appendix) and summarised as follows:

a) Water Authority	CI$22,665,848.00
b) Port Authority	CI$ 9,963,083.00
c) Civil Aviation Authority	CI$25,812,830.81

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Under the Civil Aviation Authority's long term debt there is an amount to the Cayman Islands Government of $15,536,652.22. Can the Honourable Member state exactly what this debt is for, and what payments are made to the Government on a regular basis?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: When the decision was taken to establish a Civil Aviation Authority (like all other authorities) we are talking about the setting up of an independent entity with the objective of it operating as if it were being established within the private sector and starting from scratch. Therefore, a valuation was placed on all of the assets that were to be transferred over to the Authority and also the liabilities. The difference was taken between the two and this represented the Government's equity in the Civil Aviation Authority. This has been expressed by way of a long-term loan whereby these funds are supposed to be repaid to the Government. Eventually, as the debt continues to reduce, it will allow for the Authority to acquire a greater portion of these assets, and as a result build up their equity correspondingly.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Member state, since the decision was taken to operate as if this entity was in the private sector, how it was possible for the Civil Aviation Authority to literally be purchasing the Government's assets from the Government in order to build up their equity, but the Government, which then rents the space the Civil Aviation owns, is not paying them?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: We would have liked to have had a perfect solution. We are aware that for some time the Government departments that are renting space from the Civil Aviation Authority should be paying rent. We are getting to a stage where that will have to be budgeted for and paid over to the Authority I do not deny that this constitutes an anomaly and will have to be addressed.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I must say that the Honourable Third Official Member has made our morning by being as candid as he has been. I trust that he will get the support from the Elected Executive with all of the good reforms I know he has in his mind.

My next question is Under the Port Authority. I do not see the figure for the loan which has been engaged in for permanent moorings. Is this because no draw-down has taken place as yet? Or is it that it is elsewhere?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: First, I should clarify that the reform initiatives are those of the Government, and not those of the Financial Secretary. I am just a part of the team. I should also point out the reason why that loan does not show up in the schedule is because no draw-downs would have been made against it. If any draw-downs were made it should be reflected here as a liability.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Member then state (And maybe this is pushing it, if he does not have the information I will understand.) if the Government has knowledge of any loans within the three authorities which will be engaged in and have been committed for during the course of this year?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Only the loan in question for the Port Authority. But I would have to research what is happening within the three authorities to come up with a more accurate response.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Member say, based upon whatever information he has at hand, whether all three of these authorities are operating presently at a profit?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Yes, Mr. Speaker. All three are operating profitably.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, the next question is 38, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 38

No. 38: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development how much money has been transferred into the general revenue from January 1993 until December 1997, by the Port Authority, the Civil Aviation Authority and the Water Authority.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The monies transferred into the general revenue from January 1993 to December 1997 by the Port Authority, the Civil Aviation Authority and the Water Authority, are given in the attached Schedule (See Appendix). The total Cayman Islands' dollar amounts transferred into the general revenue over the five year period are:

a) Port Authority	$3,347,642
b) Civil Aviation Authority	$6,750,000
c) Water Authority	$2,950,000

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Because of the informed and comprehensive answers the Member has given to previous questions I only have one supplementary. In light of the reform the Member has stated Government is determined to undertake, when might the House expect a schedule of the obligations of the authorities to be placed into effect?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I would imagine that (and this is quite an ambitious time frame) the year 2000 should see an amalgamation of the budget of the central Government and statutory authorities combined with all of the relevant schedules setting out their financial obligations, assets, liabilities and expectations.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: I am not sure whether the question has been answered as to the amounts for the authorities up to 1997 for projects, such as the crane and the permanent moorings for the Port Authority.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I do not have specific details on capital projects of the respective authorities for the year 1998 at hand, but I can undertake to forward that information to the Honourable Member.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: So, where it shows $9.9 million for the Port Authority, those two projects are not included. Am I right?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The borrowing for the crane is included, but not for the permanent moorings. Until work has been carried out, expenditure incurred will have to be defrayed. No draw-down can be made against the borrowings.

The Speaker: I think we are answering the opposite question. If there are no further supplementaries, the next question is 39, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 39 - Withdrawn

No. 39: What outstanding loans were being serviced by the Water Authority, Port Authority and the Civil Aviation Authority up to January 1993 and how many new loans have been entered into since this date.

Mr. Roy Bodden: In light of the comprehensive answers given by the Honourable Third Official Member, it would be most ungracious of me to not withdraw this question, seeing that he gave similar answer to a previous question. I therefore crave the indulgence of the House to withdraw this question as it stands in my name in appreciation of the spirit of co-operation and generosity by the Honourable Third Official Member.

The Speaker: I shall put the question that Question 39 be withdrawn. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: QUESTION 39 WITHDRAWN.

The Speaker: Moving on to question 40, standing in the name of The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 40

No. 40: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation if a Urologist is presently on staff at the George Town Hospital.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: There is no full-time Urologist at present stationed at the George Town Hospital. The Medical Officer in charge of Faith Hospital, Cayman Brac, who is a General Surgeon and a Urologist, visits the George Town Hospital twice per month and conducts outpatients clinics and surgery.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say if presently there are any plans being drawn up to have a Urologist permanently stationed at George Town Hospital? It is my understanding that this is a highly demanded and necessary service.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: That is a good question. At the time it is not cost effective to appoint a full-time Urologist. But we keep these things under continual review and if the demand increases to the point where a full-time post is necessary we shall seek to get approval for one. That time is not here as yet.

Just to add some supplementary information, if there is a general urological problem, it can be treated by the surgeon at George Town Hospital. Depending upon how serious, we can bring in the Urologist from Cayman Brac.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say what happens in cases where the services of the Urologist in Cayman Brac are required simultaneously in Cayman Brac and on Grand Cayman?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: If there is a grave emergency, either of the two visiting Urologist specialists present on the island can be seen, and if it comes to such a state we then refer them on to Baptist Hospital.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, that concludes Question Time. Item 3 on today's Order Paper, Other Business, Private Members' Motions. Private Member's Motion No. 4/98, Establishment of a Roads Fund. Debate continues with the First Elected Member for West Bay.

OTHER BUSINESS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION S

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 4/98

ESTABLISHMENT OF A ROAD FUND

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

When we took the adjournment on Monday, I was replying to the call from Government for MLAs to work with Government on the traffic problem because it is a national issue. Make no mistake about it, Mr. Speaker, the traffic problem is a national issue, one on which Government needs to move with sincerity of purpose. As I said, to call for us to work with Government and then have the Government go about its merry way, doing what it wants behind our backs, makes its call a farce.

I am weary of this call for consultants. A consultant scheme is a sure way to kill this initiative which the Fourth Elected Member for George Town brought, and which we are trying to get underway. A consultant would draw out for another five years the work that is needed to be done now. When I heard what the Minister of Tourism had to say about this consultant and a study, I got weary. I wonder if we are going to get action soon, because he talked about a consultant that would advise Government, conduct monitoring similar to what the Mover was talking about—traffic counts, the rate of growth of traffic, rate of importation of vehicles that creates the traffic problem, and road corridors as well. I maintain that we can do something about the problem facing us now. We do not need to do all that the Minister talked about, because the truth is, Public Works Department has been monitoring, and monitoring, and monitoring, for ages, and there are statistics upon statistics.

Government needs to face the problem squarely and deal with it—get its act together, and deal with it. When I say that, I am referring to the fact that one Minister said Government was supporting it, and the next Minister said he was not sure, he wanted us to tell him whether we were going to raise taxes or not! In fact, both Ministers referred to that—when they full well know that the Backbenchers do not put revenue measures in place. So this call to work together must be sincere.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: You don't want to believe it.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Well, the Minister of Tourism says, I don't want to believe it. I wonder why! I wonder why, Mr. Speaker! It is because I have experienced when that call was just that—a call and nothing else!

We have had consultant firms in this country for years and years, and studies upon studies, and Mr. Speaker, problems are still not solved! I am not saying we cannot get people who can tell us things we do not know, but when we do know something, the fact is that we should move on it and do something about it!

There were a lot of red herrings, I think, put across by the Minister for Tourism and the Minister for Community Affairs. In both of their speeches, they drew our attention to the fact that funds coming from transportation go into the general revenue and are used for schools and even public work. This is true! We all know that on the Backbench. However, we could use some of the money, or more of the money, let us say, that is coming from transportation, for roads. We could do this, Mr. Speaker, we could do it very well, if Government was really serious about priority projects. Certainly, Pedro Castle would get less if we really prioritised, because we would have to weigh the need for the Castle—and the crane, let us say— against the need for roads that work. I think that is what the Mover and Seconder are saying, and that is what other Members have said.

I very much agree with the concept of earmarking some Government revenue for specific purposes. When this is done, I believe the public objects less to being taxed, because they can readily appreciate what their money is used for.

Because we are small, we must improve public transportation and seriously educate our people about it. I firmly believe that if the Government went about it the right way, we could have a public transportation system that is accessible, safe, speedy, affordable, and reliable. And I believe that a public transportation system is needed and can work. I believe that a transportation system could be privately owned and operated. I believe that every company that is providing a bus service could obtain a franchise from Government, and that such franchise could be revoked by Government if a particular company's bus service fell below a certain standard.

I could go further, Mr. Speaker, and say that it could even be a partnership between Government and private enterprise, and it could be workable. We have a lot of people who know what they are doing in the transportation business today. If Government is so minded, it could get them together and assist them, rather than throwing in something one minute and having to revoke it the next minute—like the taxi corridors. I believe that in order for a system to operate effectively, there would need to be public parking lots every couple of miles along every route, so that persons wishing to use a bus who are not within walking distance of the bus route could drive to one of the parking lots. I believe that bus companies could be required to produce colour-coded bus routes, similar to those appearing in subway stations in other countries, and they could publish their schedules. I also believe that such routes and schedules should be published in the paper on a regular basis so that the public can become familiar with the bus routes and schedules. This could work if we had a proper transportation system.

I also believe the transportation system could work if we had, let us say, a lane that was only used by buses so that the bus service could flow freely. This would be another incentive for people to use the bus service, if they could use the bus service and get to their destinations much quicker than when using their own vehicle. I believe that Government really needs to explore what I am talking about, and probably other people have talked about it. Coupled with the transportation system, we would need to effectively manage vehicle usage. You would also have to effectively integrate transport facilities with building developments to make it easier for our people to get to key places of work, living, leisure and other social activities.

There is a rising expectation in our community, and our commuters are, right now, chiefly, the people with those rising expectations. We need to meet their varied needs.

Another thing Government could do—and these are long-term, probably, but it needs to do it—is to look at decentralising the middle and high schools, where there is a big traffic movement. Split them, and put them in the more populated areas where most of the children come from. I believe this certainly will assist in decreasing traffic. There are other areas I could touch on, but there are other speakers yet to speak.

The Speaker: Are you going on to another point?

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: I was just about ready to close, Sir.

There are other speakers who want to voice their opinions, so I would hope that Government will move quickly. If it is going to get consultants, be careful about that move. I believe it was one of the Churchills who said that whenever, by an unfortunate occurrence of circumstances, an opposition is compelled to support the government, the support should be given with a kick and not a caress, and should be withdrawn at the first available moment. So I would like to withdraw that kick and ask them to get moving.

I again thank the Mover for his research, and thank him and the Seconder bringing this matter to the forefront. Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: We will suspend proceedings for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.44 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12.16 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Does any other Member wish to speak?

The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks: I rise to give Private Member's Motion No. 4/98 my full support. The Motion is priority. It is something that we have to deal with, and the quicker we can get at it the better.

I commend the Mover and Seconder for bringing this Motion to this Honourable House. I know it will not be an easy task because the problem is not a small one. But let us give it a shot and see what we can come up with.

We are suffering with more and more traffic congestion every day. I do not know what can be done about it. It is hard to bring it under control because we are always bringing in more cars. Something has to be done. The experts will have to come up with an idea. Whatever they can do, I will support it and I hope it will soon be finished.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Miss Heather D. Bodden: I rise to offer my support to Private Member's Motion No. 4/98, Establishment of a Road Fund, moved by the Fourth Elected Member for George Town and seconded by the Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Let me start by saying that I commend these two Honourable Members for bringing this Motion and for the amount of time they have put into researching this Motion. I agree that there is an urgent need for something to be done about the amount of traffic on our roads. The statistics given by the Third Elected Member for West Bay show a rapid increase yearly. But, as the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport has strongly voiced, it is a national issue and must be dealt with by every Member of this Honourable House. I agree with his appeal.

I can also relate to sitting in traffic for over one hour. Just this morning I witnessed traffic backed up in front of my home. I saw people who I know have to be to work between 8.00 and 8.30 still sitting in traffic at 8.40 AM. I recall the words of my colleague, the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, in that he hoped people who sit in traffic for any length of time are listening to good music in their vehicles.

I had to say a prayer this morning, and I hoped that the people making their journey into town were sitting there making a grocery list, planning the weekend, or looking forward to the long Easter weekend. Also in that long line of traffic at 8.40 AM was the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town. I know he is normally a long time in George Town by that time. And, Mr. Speaker, that Honourable Member drives a stick shift.

Other speakers have drawn attention to the United States where the same things happen. Last night I watched CNN news where the bad weather held people up for hours. Yes, we have so much to be thankful for. We do not have snow, sleet, hail, floods, or tornadoes, which cause the delay in the United States. Our delays here in the Cayman Islands stem from people being courteous and letting others out from the side roads. Stopping to gaze at an accident was the case this morning.

This is an issue that must be dealt with now. Let us not wait until someone loses his or her cool and does something that we will all regret. We are all here for one purpose, and that is to work together for the good of our people and our country.

I thank you, Mr. Speaker, and I give this Motion my full support.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak?
The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

It was not my intention to speak on this Motion, as I believe the Honourable Fourth Elected Member for George Town explained and presented to this Honourable House very clearly, and very ably, the reason for such a Motion.

I have listened with interest to the replies by the Government Bench—one section is accepting, one section is rejecting. I, as well as the First Elected Member for West Bay (and I guess all other Honourable Members in this House), am concerned about collective responsibility. Be that as it may, those rejecting—and some in accepting—seem to be concerned as to where the funding for this Roads Fund will come from. I asked the same question about the projects that appeared in the Throne Speech for 1998 that have no funding in the 1998 Budget. Where are those funds coming from?

To me, the debate on the Budget in this Parliament in November and December was all accepted, particularly the Loan Bill, guaranteeing that the Government would deal with priorities. It is my humble belief that if we had dealt with strictly priorities in the 1998 Budget, there should be a tremendous amount of savings. Those savings could be used for the funding of this Road Fund as this is a matter of priority. The provision of proper roads in this country, or something to alleviate the traffic problems can no longer be left untouched. The quicker we deal with it, the better and the less expensive it will be.

Much has been said about the traffic problems on the West Bay Road, and Seven Mile Beach, but little has been said concerning the eastern districts. I stand here to mention the traffic problem in the eastern districts at the expense of being called 'stupid' once again (for talking about the stupidity when I spoke about it in the 1998 Budget Address), seeing that the only Honourable Minister left to come behind me is from the eastern district. I am certain he will stand and support me in a call for the alleviation of the problems for the residents of the eastern districts.

As I said, they pay the same car licence fee as all other residents of this island. The people from the eastern districts were struck hardest with the increase in the tax package on gasoline. They have farther to travel, they are held up in traffic much longer, and they have told me that they do not mind paying car licence fees, they do not mind taking up the burden of the greater part of the duty on gasoline, but they are fed up with the roads, and the time it takes them to travel from their district to get to work.

I am not here to tell the Government how to fund this programme, I am here to support Government if it comes up with the answers, and I believe the answers are correct. But I am here to ask Government to address this problem now. We can no longer wait, because it is only becoming worse.

We talk about the number of cars on the roads. I agree. But if we go back in time (and I think the Hansards of this Honourable House will bear me out) it could have been in 1968 or 1969 when Mr. John Cumber, the Administrator and President of this Parliament, tried to bring a Motion that we control the number of cars imported into the Cayman Islands. I think it also dealt with the size. The Caymanian people made it very clear that if they wanted to own a car, they should be able to own a car; if they wanted to drive an American Cadillac (at that time one of the largest cars manufactured) they should be allowed to have that Cadillac.

I was accused during my debate on the 1998 Budget when I spoke about a reliable public transport service, and I was told then that maybe it is the number of buses on the roads causing the backup. There are a number of buses on the roads. I agree with that wholeheartedly. But there is no reliable public transport system in this country. There are workers who will stand at a bus stop one day at 7.30 and be picked up. The next day they stand there at 7.30 but are not picked up until 9.30. Is that a reliable public transport system? I say no!

I will further say that before a public transport system is introduced to these islands, we must educate our people on the use of it. They are not used to taking public transport, and they will not take it until we can tell them the reason why they should. So, if we are going to deal with a reliable public transport system before we put in place a Roads Fund, we will never, ever start that fund.

I commend the Fourth Elected Member for George Town for bringing this Motion. I can assure him he has my guarantee that I will work with him to do whatever we can. He has my full support.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Just to clarify any doubts as to my position on this Motion, I wish to categorically state that I give it my full support. It is a very timely Motion. The research done by the Mover and the Seconder was very thorough and it gave me, and this entire House, food for thought.

I just have to look back in irony on how things have changed. At one time there was much criticism on the approach of reserving road corridors, as put forward by the present Third Elected Member for George Town. In recent times my colleague, the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, and another Member talked about changing the style of Government and using the New Zealand Approach. Things have certainly changed, but it goes to show the maturity in this House. We are able to look at things in an objective manner and look to improve them.

Without a doubt, the road problem is one of those situations we must now all get together and address. As the previous speaker said in regard to the traffic situation from the eastern districts, when we look at the distance that has to be travelled from North Side/East End, I can imagine what time the children have to get up to get ready for school. As I said the distance is probably one third longer than that travelled on the West Bay Road. We must do something about it.

I also agree with the First Elected Member for West Bay and the Elected Member for North Side, in regard to looking at public transportation. I firmly believe that building more roads is not the solution. You can build all the roads you want into George Town, but unless you are looking at a different part of the island, there is no place to put these cars once you bring them into George Town. We have to educate the public about using public transportation. It has to be done.

Whoever accepts this responsibility must realise that when a cruise ship comes they cannot leave the people stranded and go and pick up tourists. They will have to stick to that position. These are very serious matters. The size of this island physically prohibits any more cars to come in at the pace they have been over the last two years. There is no space for them. You can drive on these roads at any hour of the day or night and the traffic is literally backed up. We must look at this seriously.

I know that there are concerns over doing a study. But I think that if we are going to put significant money into this project, we need to find out where the major problems are. I am not being critical of Public Works.

[Inaudible interjections]

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: No. I have to say it how I see it. We have to look at what is going on. We have tried something and it does not work. We are told now that if we go behind certain areas and extend the Harquail Bypass it would go a long way to alleviate certain problems at the two shopping centres. Whatever needs to be done, has to be done. As legislators we must work together on this.

Once again, I commend the Mover and the Seconder and I look forward to working with this entire House in solving this problem. We cannot continue this into the future. It will ruin this island. The tourists are also being turned off, as indicated by the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport. Whatever needs to be done, we must do it.

One of the things also mentioned by another speaker was in regard to when the schools are out. There is literally no back-up. So this is an area we can look at. We can change the bus system, ask parents to allow their children to go on the bus. I would be the first one to have concerns about that because either I or my wife drop our son off to school. But for the good of this country we need to come together on this issue and address it.

Thank you.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: As most other Members who have spoken on this Motion, I rise to give it my full support. I certainly am very glad to hear the vast majority of the speakers before me supporting the Motion. I, too, wish to commend the Mover and Seconder for a conscientious effort which will hopefully give the impetus towards some type of solution to the problems we face in regard to roads and traffic today.

I remember raising the issue on several occasions since I have been here, and either not getting any response or getting a negative response. I do not want to dampen the spirits here, but it really makes people like me wonder why, after being here going on six years, this sudden change of heart by the Government. While I consider it very sensible, it had to take all this time before the thought process got to where it is at. Nevertheless, I certainly am glad that it at least appears we are moving forward.

It teaches me a lesson (and I hope it teaches some others) that it does not necessarily have to be where ideas come from, or who they are coming from, perhaps in the future we will be able to look at the ideas themselves, and deal with the merits of the ideas. If that is taken as a pointed statement, it is meant to be. I have witnessed too much of that in here at the expense of the future of this country. I am glad to know that there are Members in here now who are also paying close attention, and that type of activity on the Government's side will not be left alone.

It has been widely accepted by the people of these islands (and I sincerely hope by the Government also) that the present system of roads no longer meets the needs of this country. Of course, every time any attempt has been made to even discuss the matter sensibly, the question of money has always come into play.

Before I go any further, I would like to quote a famous historian. He wrote: "A city that out-distances man's walking powers is a trap for man. It threatens to become a prison from which he cannot escape. And unless he has mechanical means of transport, the thoroughfares for carrying these, and the purchasing power for commanding the use of artificial means of communication, he is in trouble." Obviously, we have long since out-distanced our walking powers. It is now for us to gain command of the means of transport which in broad terms is very essential to what people term social and economic cohesion. As the Motion dictates, roads are by far the most common transport thoroughfares.

The Motion calls for the establishment of a special roads fund for the sole purpose of developing roads. In his introduction, the Mover went about the situation and broadened on the Resolved section of the Motion because as he has stated (and I am sure we all agree) the whole situation spans a wider periphery than just roads. So, when we are considering something like this, while we can narrow it down to the immediate traffic problems that we face coming from the east, the west, or the north, we have to broaden the scope so that we can understand that while we are dealing with roads, it is not just roads.

We have to take in to consideration the ever expanding economy that we live in. We have to look back and properly analyse. . . . And I take this very seriously. I think we have to come to grips with where we went wrong. It is obvious from the results that we have gone wrong. Because if we do not understand and accept where we have gone wrong in the whole process, it will happen again. I think that is the first step.

Like most people in the world, I think what has happened to us in this country is that over the past twenty or twenty-five years we have enjoyed the good times. We have not had any major recessions. Life has continued to get materially better for most people in the country. While everything is basically going right, there are a few of us who stop to wonder if everything is really going all right. Are we missing anything? We are facing what we are today because we did not pay attention years before this. We now suddenly find ourselves in a national bottleneck. The answers are not easy.

The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation mentioned the Master Ground Transportation Plan in his contribution, and how, after some time, people can have a change of heart. I have always subscribed to the belief that if the dollars and cents frightened the country, the least that should have been done at that time (and I wish to make this point) was for the corridors to have been gazetted and acquired. There are different thoughts on this, but I think that everyone agrees that, first of all, we have to have some kind of vision with our road network, so that if it takes ten, twenty or thirty years to complete we will know from the beginning how it will end up. There is no other way to do it. If we let development command how roads are built we are eating the corn flakes and drinking the milk afterwards.

That is exactly what has happened in this country. We continue to bow to political pressures, special interest groups, to satisfy immediate situations. I cannot believe that we do not know better, I have to give us more credit than that. But over the years we allowed specific situations to prevail at the expense of the entire country. And today we are paying the price for that.

The purpose of gazetting and identifying the road corridors is to simply determine the future use of land and to protect the country from potential adverse development. If we want to get into individual situations with development, we can make a big case out of not allowing a certain investment into the country and losing this and that. That is the obvious normal way to think when you look at the immediate. But if we look at the way development has taken place thus far in the country, after many years of progressive development I hold the view that the vast majority of that same development, if not all, would have taken place. Had we commanded the situation rather than allowing the situation to command us, it would have happened in a more orderly fashion.

The Speaker: Have you reached a point where it would be convenient to take the luncheon break?

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Yes, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: Proceedings are suspended until 2.15 PM

AT 12.48 PM PROCEEDINGS WERE SUSPENDED

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.29 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Debate on Private Member's Motion No. 4/98 continues with the First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

When we broke for lunch, I was trying to identify what had gone wrong over the years when it came to our lack of planning regarding a proper road system in the country. I do not think I have to belabour that point, because I think it is accepted by all of us that not having identified and gazetted the corridors I spoke about, has caused a major problem, and will continue to cause us problems until the issue is dealt with.

To clarify the point regarding the corridors, I wish to make it clearly known that, while I subscribed to these corridors being identified, I am certainly also mindful that landowners have to be compensated properly when any land is acquired by the Government for these corridors.

In speaking about the corridors, I believe—I do not know this to be a fact, but I firmly believe it today—that Government has been mindful of this problem for some time; but when examining the situation and looking to deal with these corridors it realises the kind of costs it is looking at. I also believe that because it is a difficult situation, it has been left alone. But that has never solved any problem in this world. As the call has been made by many others before me, I say this now before I move on that regardless of the difficulties we face now in dealing with this problem, tomorrow it will be more difficult. It does no good to talk about not having funds, because it cannot be left alone—tomorrow we will have less funds, relatively speaking, to deal with it. So the matter has to be dealt with. I hold the view that it has to do with priorities.

The previous speaker mentioned that, but to expand a little on it. . . and this may seem irrelevant, but I think I can prove the point. I draw on an issue that I and others have complained about on numerous occasions in this House. It has been mentioned and talked about for going on five years now—the Medium-Term Financial Strategy and the Public Sector Investment Programme. I know for a fact that there are Members in the Government who directly or indirectly have continually tried to derail that process, because it takes away some ability with the policymakers to do as they wish on a daily basis. It calls for a certain amount of discipline. It calls for proper priorities to be established, and it calls for a certain way of operating that makes sense and talks about future planning.

In all of this, if there were any leanings from the very beginning toward dealing with the problems with roads, the Medium-Term Financial Strategy would have been adopted, and roads would have been a part of the Public Sector Investment Programme. The two may seem at opposite ends of the pole, but they are not, because that is an integral part of any planning process for a country. The economic and social well-being of the country is certainly going to be dependent on the way your infrastructure copes with the continued development.

I am going to use one little example to show why we must stop dealing with the country's affairs the way we do. I am going back, for a brief moment, to the Harquail Bypass. Let me say this, and say it clearly this afternoon. In the month of December I made a statement in this Honourable House. I said that I would never be intimidated again in this Honourable House. I want all and sundry to remember that statement, because I meant that, and today I still mean it.

If we go back to the Harquail Bypass, it is my understanding that a situation arose with it where the professionals who were dealing with it had the road set out in a certain way, and there were serious attempts by the political arm of Government to change what the professionals had laid out. It is also my understanding that those attempts were based on the land it was going through. Let me tell you something. Anyone who would subject their country to even thinking about that, much less trying to make it happen, should never represent the people of this country. Never! The difference with me, Mr. Speaker, is that anyone can test me out on anything I stand up here and say and I will prove it. I can be tested any time.

That is only one little example, Mr. Speaker, to show that we should not be dealing with the important affairs of this country the way we have been. And the worst part about that is if you do it 99 times right and you go about it one time in the wrong way, no one will trust you any more. As much right as you try to do, there will be that distrust. Let us try to learn that lesson when it comes to being representatives of the people, Mr. Speaker.

When matters like that come to light and you hear of Government's good plans and you want to believe what the Government is putting forward—we hear the Government calling for all of us to work together because this is a very serious situation, and for there to be any success in the efforts, we all need to be working together. When you have situations like that arising, and I sit on the Backbench and hear the Government's plan, my mind (which I do not think is a devious mind) starts to wonder, What is it they are up to next? And I daresay that I am not the only one thinking like that.

The point I make, Mr. Speaker, is that when they come wanting to get into all the fights, they must realise that if they do not give us a reason to think the way we think, it cannot happen. But when they do, do not expect any different from us. We have a responsibility, too. I do not want to sound like I am making wild accusations, because that is not what I am doing. But I know that they know what I am talking about, and I leave it at that.

Having established what some of the problems have been in the past, and why we are in the situation we are with the roads, I come to what we have come to know now as a National Roads Plan which is supposedly in the planning stages. I grant immediately that if we are going to make for any meaningful result with the problems we face with the roads today, we have to identify what we want to achieve. We have to decide how we are going to achieve it, and we have to decide the means by which we are going to find the money with which to achieve it. In other words, we have to develop the vision, decide how we are going to accomplish the vision, and decide the means by which we will achieve that vision.

I have no problem with the concept of a National Roads Plan. What I do not want to see happen is that next year we come into this House again, and there is a question asked, and we hear that the terms of reference are being developed, that these things take time, and such like, as we have continually heard about the so far ill-fated Medium-Term Financial Strategy. If Government accepts (as it seems to) that this is a priority, then I think all of us here on the Backbench, and the country at large, expect Government to treat it as such, and therefore we expect to see movement immediately.

This National Roads Plan, as I understand it, is being developed by the professionals in the Public Works Department. I do not have a problem with that. A little while ago, I used that simple example about the Harquail Bypass to pre-empt the statement I am going to make now about the National Roads Plan.

Mr. Speaker, the policymakers in Government must let the professionals know what they want to achieve. But as far as possible, they must leave the professionals alone to decide on how best to achieve it, because if they knew how to achieve it, they would not need the professionals. That is the whole purpose of the system. So I trust that as we move along with this Roads Plan we will not be hearing what this one says has to happen here, that one says has to happen there because of some special interest that person may have in that area.

Let me tell you something else. It may sound like I am grabbing at straws—I wish I were grabbing at straws, because I would feel a lot more comfortable than I feel standing here talking about it today. The National Roads Plan certainly has to have going along with it some means of collating all the information, identifying and making sure it is clearly known what the existing problems are. That does not take a genius to do, it just takes a little bit of careful consideration and study to make sure you have at your fingertips what the problems are. After identifying the problems. . . and as I said very early in my contribution, it is not just about roads. If you are doing a plan, and you are looking down the line, you are going to decide how long you are planning for in the future. Then you have to take into consideration population projections, the way the country has been growing so far on an annual basis, not just in population, but the economic growth. Bearing all these factors in mind, you will sensibly come up with the type of plan you can work toward over a given period of time.

You see, we have a tendency to wait until tomorrow morning when we get up to find out what we have to do and fix. Then, having fixed that, we wait until the next morning to do the same thing. At a government level, that is commonly called 'crisis management.' We have seen too much of that. We need to move out of that mode, and try to actually plan for the future, so you can almost, up to any unforeseen circumstance, decide your fate. In certain areas, we can do that. When we have to wait until the problem on the West Bay Road gets to the stage it is, then spend nearly $7 million on the Harquail Bypass trying to solve the problem only to find out that it does not solve the problem and you have to do something else—that is crisis management, Mr. Speaker! That is not too uncommon anyhow, so I am not just saying it to point fingers, but I am saying, let us try, in dealing with the whole matter at a national level, to look toward getting out of that, so we can plan the way we want to see the Island at any given point down the line.

I do not keep chiming on that little song because I believe I have all the answers. I don't! I understand that. But I think we need to know where we want to be before we can start to look for the answers, otherwise it does not make any sense. That is what we have not been doing. So I hope that any National Roads Plan that is developed is looked at in that fashion. I daresay, if the professionals are left to their own means, they will do it in the right way. But if we are going to deal with that, Mr. Speaker, and hopefully it will be done speedily, if the Government is convinced that it is a priority, then they will have to talk about money.

Earlier, a Member of the Government Bench—actually, it was the Minister for Community Affairs—said that she might have difficulty supporting the Motion if there were going to be any revenue measures. Mr. Speaker, let me stand here and say this very clearly. I am not a politician, and I am not afraid to say that. I am a simple Representative of the people, and I intend to do the best I know how while I am that. The politics is when you deal with certain issues and your decision-making process is decided totally, immediately, on popularity. There are ways and means to accomplish that, Mr. Speaker, and still do the job properly. If we are going to build roads, and we are going to satisfy the needs of the people of this country in that respect. . . I happen to know that there is trouble every year balancing the budget as it is, with the services provided. I am not going to be stupid today to say that there may not have to be some innovative way of raising revenue to be able to build the roads and get caught with it tomorrow. If we are not going to build the roads and do what we have to do, and we are just going to give it lip service, we can say that all the time! Nothing will happen, so we will not have to defend it! But if the Government and the rest of us on the Backbench are going to be meaningful about the approach, and want to achieve something, then a statement like that should not be made, because you do not know.

One of the things we have never done in this country, by and large, is to actually determine the cost of each individual area of service provided to the people of this country. All we know, basically at this point for the majority of those services, is that when everyone throws everything into the kitty and we know how much money we have to raise, we sit down and try to figure out how we are going to raise it, and then we just try to raise it. Then we just farm the money out. End of story. That is the way we have been doing it. Not only does that have to stop in that respect, but when we talk about roads and about developing the infrastructure with roads, that whole approach has to be different. We have to get value for money. People have to be accountable, those who are responsible. And there is always a question of transparency, something to which everyone is clinging today, and I thank God for that.

When we are dealing with these roads and what we have to do, the country must know, in my opinion—because this is not one of those covert actions that is secret and everything else—whenever this situation is being dealt with, the country must know, step by step, exactly what is going to be done. The country must know what it is going to cost to do what has to be done, so no one gets any shocks. And the country must know exactly how it is going to be paid for.

There is a difference with Government and the people. Because the people do not see the results of what they are supposed to be paying for, by and large, there is this huge aversion to them taking any money out of their pockets. They are not convinced that the money is going to be wisely spent. They have not seen the results of that. It is going to be a testing time, for any government, to get synchronised with the people in that fashion, because of the past track record. But we have to start somewhere. We cannot play fools, and because it is not politically expedient to deal with it, to say Wait. By the time I finish, I will be cocking up my feet—make who come in after me deal with that. That is how some people think! But it doesn't help us! We have to be transparent in the decision-making process, and we have to prove to the people of the country that what we get up and say we are going to do, we do. It is only then that you won't have the placards, the letters, the hollering and screaming when it comes to money people feel they are paying into central government. If they see the results of what they are participating in, the people will participate.

You see, there is nothing better than ownership. The people of this country need to understand that the roads are not the Government's roads, the roads are their roads. But it is not dealt with like that now. I am going to tell you how it is dealt with. Again, the devil of the politics. The people of this country, by and large, have gotten to understand that if you want a road fixed, it depends on who you know and how loud you holler.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Preach, brother, preach!

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Bad business. The other thing that is wrong is that the majority of us who come into the system with all good intentions to be Representatives of the people, find the system so tightly wound up, that if you want to survive, you have to fall in line!

Mr. Speaker, that has to stop! You know, I have gone to constituents and listened to their complaints. And I know them well! I think I can safely say that today. And I had one of them come back to me on a certain occasion and say, Listen, me and you are all right, you know. And I know how this thing go. But I was told by so-and-so that if I want to get this done, I better go and talk to such-and-such another representative, because he can get it done.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Talk the truth, my brother!

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, this same problem we face today at a national level is that kind of stuff that has festered because there is nothing meaningful done. Money is voted in the budget for maintenance for this, that, and the next thing, and it is politically orchestrated to suit the given occasion and by and large most people do not benefit from it. We suffer from that in every area, and it is sickening.

The other thing the people understand—and they will understand because it is not only me who is going to be preaching the message—is that while their specific situation might be satisfied now, they find themselves in another hundred situations that cannot be satisfied. It does not take them long to understand that it is because of the way it is being dealt with that the whole thing is not satisfying them better. That is the message we need to preach to them. It is not that they cannot understand it, but this power struggle that has continually gone on, and who needs to hold on to what, is what has bastardised the system making the problems we face today the dimensions they are now.

They can come back and say it any way they want to, but the truth is the truth, and daily I watch it happening, I see how it occurs. Besides the roads, in every other respect, if we are going to do our duty to the people of this country, we have to deal with the country's affairs differently from the way we are.

If you ask people about roads, by and large the common answer you hear is, Listen, all we want is good roads. That is what you will hear! So, the roads may mean different things to different people, but by and large, that is the common factor here. If you go on the West Bay Road, you will find many of the businesses in the plazas complaining, because they say they have noticed a tremendous downturn in business because the traffic is so congested that, not only do people not get to go there when they want to go there, but people do not bother to go there, because they cannot stand the hassle of the traffic! You will get that from the business sector. You will hear the people who live in West Bay say what time of the morning they have to get up to come to work because of the traffic, the same way as those coming from the east.

But I contend. . . and I am not doing the Government a favour here, I am simply speaking my truth. It is important that we stop trying to make the people of this country believe that anything is free any more! I am not suggesting that additional tremendous amounts of money have to be paid by the people of this country for the services! But I can say (I don't know if the Government is willing to) that the Government can hardly pay for the services it provides for the people of this country at present!

But what you cannot do for political expedience is to hide that fact, juxtapose your priorities, lose the vision of what the country should be like down the line, just to satisfy them right now. You cannot do that! Just like children, time will pass; and just like the children will grow up, ten years from now it is going to come. I said it before, just a few minutes ago, but I want to say it again, Mr. Speaker, because it is important to me: We cannot be thinking that we know this problem is going to get more acute down the line, and know that by the time it gets to unbearable levels that we will not be part of the process but it will be someone else's problem. That is as much a sin in my eyesight as any other sin you could think about—because you know better, but you won't do better.

Mr. Speaker, mention was made by the Minister for Tourism—everything I am talking about is going to revolve around priorities—about the West Bay Road being the hub for the tourism activities, and the traffic problems on the West Bay Road either presently affecting the figures, or there is great fear that the problem will affect the figures, and we might have a downturn. You see, that comes back to the point I was making about the fact that you have to consider the economic growth in the country, and all of those things, when you talk about roads. We can talk about the daily effects on the people who live in this country, but there are other outside effects which still affect those same people who live in this country, but it is not just the wait they have in traffic.

We talk about tourism. If we were to have a major downturn in tourism in this country, and it was due to not addressing the problems we have with roads today, it would not just be the fact that the Minister could not come to boast a 6% increase for the month of December for arrivals, it would have the multiplier effect right down the line. So you see, roads and infrastructure are not just limited to the luxury of not having to wait a half hour to get where you want to go when it should take ten minutes. There are other effects.

When I hear people talk about going to New York, and having to wait for an hour to get to the second block, and that is the norm—that is New York, they can keep it! This is Cayman, and we want it the way we know it should be. I daresay that we have the opportunity now to make it right, and I just hope we have the will to make it right.

If we look at the investments in the country by all and sundry, the Government has huge investments. The private sector has huge investments. The Government has a responsibility to ensure that business can be transacted in a proper fashion. While we have all the Cable & Wireless equipment, and all the communications, and the Internet, and all of that, roads are still as important as anything else. No matter what you do, they are as important.

If we are talking about sustainable development down the line, if we are talking about proper land use and management, if we do not predetermine, by way of knowledge, the path that should take, we could end up with problems ten times the magnitude we have now. It is very possible, for instance, that if we had seen the light ten or fifteen years ago, and had two corridors on the West Bay Road, we would not have had the congestion we have now. It is very possible! In fact, it is not only possible, it is more than likely that would have been the case.

But now, just about every square foot of land on the seaside is developed, and we have ingress and egress points a hundred feet apart. That is getting into the technical aspects of it, but that is what causes the problems. Each one who does it, does not see the problem when they isolate themselves; but when you put them all together, that is when you have the problem, and that is what we need to prevent.

So while I may seem to be straying from a fund for roads, the truth is, I do not think I am because all of what I am talking about is part and parcel of achieving what I know the Fourth Elected Member for George Town and his Secunder are trying to achieve.

While I was in New Zealand, I heard a statement, and I think it is worth mentioning this afternoon. It says, “Change in any environment is about opportunity and risk. While there are risks associated with any change, those risks can be identified and managed to capture the benefits of seizing the opportunities.” In other words, if we can plan our lives, we have the option to be able to correct any small mistakes which might occur as we go along, without affecting our ability to achieve our goals. But if we do not do that, we either don't see the mistakes when they occur, or they multiply so fast that we find ourselves in an untenable situation and cannot deal with it.

This is our opportunity, albeit late in the day, to do something that is right. We have the knowledge and expertise to do something sensible. We do not need twisted priorities, political interference, and continual fights before we move forward. That is what we do not need. Knowing certain people, they will consider my stance this afternoon as picking a fight. That is up to them. I am not picking a fight, I am just sick of seeing it. I just hope we can move forward.

I have to say this: On many occasions, I find myself taking stock of myself, because I realise that if I deal with how I am dealt with all the time, I become like he who is dealing with me. Then I am just as bad. I try hard not to let that happen.

Mr. Speaker, I want to use just one more example to show the kind of things we need to be thinking about now when we talk about establishing a road fund for the special purpose of dealing with roads. The suggestion has been made, on more than one occasion, but I do not believe at present there is any synchronised effort for it to happen. The Honourable Third Official Member, in answer to a question this morning, made mention of this situation. But I will show you by example what I am trying to talk about.

We have the utility companies who from time to time in their programmes of expansion or repairs have to dig up the roads, literally speaking. I am sure they do the best they can, but a lot of them use either their own means or other sources to effect road repairs, and it is never done properly because it is a disjointed effort. Of course, they are counting their pennies, so they will just deal with the minimum of what they think they have to do to bring the road back to as good a condition as it was before they did what they had to do.

A couple of things occur. First of all, I believe. . . and even if it has been said that it is being done, I do not think it is being done. I think it is just said to pass it off, because it might take a little bit of effort. I believe that the agent for Government, which is the Public Works Department, should be involved in a system with these utility companies so that both know what each other is doing at all times, because if Public Works is going to resurface a certain section of road, or if they are going to build a new road, then to me it is obvious that whatever work the utility companies have to do should be planned to be done at the same time.

There are many occasions when this cannot happen, and I understand that. But as far as possible, that is the way it should be done. Whenever it cannot be done, and the utility companies have to disturb the roads, then, again, everyone should know what the other is doing. As far as I am concerned, there should simply be an assessment made to these utility companies which would not charge them any more than it would normally cost, but whatever the fair assessment for the cost of bringing the road back to good repair is, they simply are charged, and it be calculated in a proper manner.

If these funds were all pooled together, and if the Public Works Department had access to these funds, which could be part of the fund that the Fourth Elected Member for George Town is talking about in his Motion, then the Public Works Department would be able to do much more with the money than the piecemeal operation being done today. We would get better value for the money, and we would get a better product.

Some of our main thoroughfares, within the course of a year—not for any unforeseen circumstances, but just because the left hand does not know what the right hand is doing—are dug up three and four times! Dug up and repaired, three and four times! It is kind of obvious that it does not have to happen like that. Not only is it costing the utility companies more because they have to repair the road four times, but by the fourth repair it is a little bit worse than it was the first time because it was never done the way it should have. That is just one little example of things we need to be thinking about. It does not put any stress on anyone. It is all a matter of communication.

I contend it will not cost the utility companies any more to do what they are doing. The country can have better roads in the long run, and the inconvenience to the public would be less. You cannot ask for a better situation than that. So, Mr. Speaker, in our efforts to develop a safe, sustainable road system, I think we have to ensure that this is done at a reasonable cost that is fair to one and all. We also need to make sure that this is an efficient road system.

I think, to sum it up, we need a road system that will deliver the maximum benefit to our economy, at the minimum cost. And while I wish to reiterate about costs, I do not think anyone should fool themselves—if we are going to do this properly it is going to cost. I think we simply have to be innovative in looking at it, so that the public is not taxed in such a way that they feel it is unfair.

There are some other areas that could be dealt with in the Motion, but I think the purpose of the exercise is now served. From what I can hear, the Government is supporting the Motion. Those of us on the Backbench also support the Motion. We simply await to see what role Government expects us to play. We certainly will be the responsible Backbench we are, and we will play our role. But let me say one more time that if we are going to achieve what we should achieve, politics and the poli-tricks must not be the order of the day.

Mr. Speaker, I commend this Motion. I am sure the Mover will make his summary regarding what some of us have spoken about, and he will probably bring some more light to the situation. I do trust that in the very near future we will see some action. Thank you.

The Speaker: I think all Honourable Members have spoken on this. Does the Honourable Mover wish to exercise his right of reply? The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I would like to thank those who contributed to the debate on Private Member's Motion No. 4/98, which seeks to establish a road fund. The unanimity or undivided opinion regarding the setting up of a special road fund demonstrates that there exists a need for us to pledge to the motoring public that we can be, and will be, responsible enough, not only to define road needs, but also to identify sources of revenue to be specifically used to deal with these needs.

However, it is disappointing that Government Members could be so very conscious of the need for a road fund, yet not want to make any serious suggestion as to where money would come from for such a fund, since they are the financial managers of our country. One thing we know is that the money must either come from old revenue sources, or new revenue sources.

The Leader of Government Business has said he has enough common sense that when creating an environmental fund, for example, he knew where the money would come from. Fortunately, the Government's attempts to get new monies by way of new revenue measures came first, and much later, because of the insistence of the general public, Government established these funds that are now in existence—but only after their good common sense had first caused them to use, for the general financing of Government's business, the monies collected for these funds for specific purposes.

This is exactly the problem this Motion sets out to rectify. Government has for too long used monies it collects as a result of specific purposes, indiscriminately for general purposes. The $30 million that will be collected this year from the motoring public will be used, like the $24-25 million collected last year from the motoring public on projects like Pedro Castle, the Botanic Park, civic centres, health centres for all the districts. The fact that I must bring such a motion, and the fact that a road crisis forces unanimous support for this motion, testifies that Government has not done sufficient planning, by identifying road needs and disciplining its spending in such a manner as to have put monies aside for road creation and maintenance—monies, Mr. Speaker, from a portion of that which is collected directly from the motoring public.

The motoring public do not expect to get roads for free. They pay for using roads. But can it be said that they are satisfied customers? That they are getting their money's worth? This is now a good time to employ the re-invention of Government concept, which places importance on the public seeing where their money goes, and what the returns are. This Motion is not concerned about where the money comes from, but with how money is spent. I know it is hard to ask Government to identify where money will come from, especially when we consider that there was just recently an increase in some of the duties and fees Government collects from the people. But it is also possible for the people to be critical of Government's inability to identify funds for road development, since Government did begin to collect additional revenues a year ago, but did not earmark a sufficient amount to temporarily solve the traffic congestion on our roads.

Government had the good opportunity to have raised money at the time in which it brought in new revenue measures, to have segregated some of the money raised in a specific fund. I am not the only Member who recognises the need for new and better roads. It is obvious, by the unanimity of the decision on the motion. If the need is now obvious, was it not obvious a year ago? Maybe the need for more and improved roads was obvious to the Government a year ago, and perhaps they were under the impression that they would be solving the road needs of the country, at least for a time, by building the Harquail Bypass. Then, if so, why did the building of the Harquail Bypass make congestion on the West Bay Road worse rather than better?

The answer is that the political directorate went against the wisdom of the engineers and began the road two years late. When the road was built, it was built too short. The First Elected Member for West Bay has said this. He gave very interesting statistics that strongly suggest the congestion could have been avoided. I would like to read from the Hansard of 9 March 1998, some of the things the First Elected Member for West Bay said: "I recall the suggestion that the Bypass should come behind the Galleria Plaza. That suggestion fell on deaf ears. Let us look, for a brief moment, at some statistics which show us why we have the problem we do on the West Bay Road.

"At the Galleria Plaza, from 10.30 AM to 5.15 PM, at least on a day in January this year, cars going southbound making a left turn into the Galleria Plaza totalled 372. Northbound, making a right turn into the Galleria Plaza totalled 421, for a total of 793 vehicles for the day. At the West Shore Centre, from 10.30 AM to 5.15 PM, at the same time in January, vehicles travelling southbound making a left turn into the West Shore Centre totalled 561. Northbound, making a right turn into the West Shore Centre totalled 642, for a total of 1,003 vehicles on one day. If we look at these statistics, the cause of the major congestion is the right turn into both plazas—some 1,063 vehicles making the right turn from George Town. Coming in and out of those two places, there was a total of 1,796 vehicles.

"It shows us that it was folly not to have listened to those of us who held the view that the road should have been extended behind the Galleria Plaza. People talk about the Harquail Bypass."

The Member went on, but I end my quote there in saying that my suggestion is that congestion could have been easily avoided. Therefore, Government is responsible to find an immediate solution to the congestion on the West Bay Road and this means putting the road where it should have been in the first place. This will cost $1 million or so. Where does Government get the money? With the massive number of civil servants at its disposal, we hope that with the common sense of the Leader of Government Business, it can come up with where the money will come from.

We have all said that we know that there is a serious traffic problem in this country. We know that we must educate the people to use alternative means of transportation; we know that we must educate our people to use automobiles more economically so that the roads will not be congested the way they are. But I think that we all realise that additional roads need to be constructed.

I cannot say that I agree with the Honourable Minister's (for Tourism, Commerce and Transport) approach to the problem, especially when the Minister for Tourism is saying that we need a study today. This means that we needed a study yesterday, or two to three years ago. How is it that we can accept the necessity today, but could not see that yesterday? I believe that the call for a consultant is an attempt to give the public the idea that the Government seriously wants to deal with this problem, but it is a safe way for the Government to buy itself some time because it does not know where to get the funds to build additional roads. I think that Government has more or less admitted to this.

The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture spoke about very hypothetical situations. She mentioned the pay toll system and how that system would not work in the Cayman Islands. I tend to agree that it would just be creating an additional bureaucracy. But it is important for me to stress that Government cannot deliver services to the people free of cost because regardless of what country it is, services are paid for by government taxing the people to pay for these services. There is no free lunch in any country.

As a Member of the Legislative Assembly, I will not duck my duty to suggest that somehow Government will have to discipline itself in such a way as to be able to put aside a portion of the monies collected now from the motoring public. If it cannot see how this can be done, then Government will have to create additional revenue measures in order to be able to provide roads.

If what we are doing is playing politics, we will say that we all want to solve the road problems, but not dare—especially after the revenue measures which were brought in a year ago—to ask the people for more money to give the people what they need. I think there is a need in this country for people to get more specific about their intentions for this country. I think it is important that we speak honestly and intelligently to the people with regard to how a country functions.

A country cannot function without revenue. All the sources of revenue have to come from the people. But the Government should give the people. . .and as the Mover of this Motion I should strongly suggest that the Government had better discipline itself in terms of how it uses the revenue it now collects. We forget that a lot of countries we like to model ourselves after have things because the people pay for them—in some countries they pay 45% of what they earn back to the government so that the government can provide them with those functions and services they consider important. In a country like Germany, they pay 60% of what they earn back to the government to allow the government to provide them with the services they think are important in making them a civilised and developed country.

I do have a few ideas myself as to where the money could come from. I think that if we spend $20 million or $25 million in tourism this year, and the tourists have to come here and be frustrated by traffic congestion on the West Bay Road, it is obvious that the money to promote tourism will result in negative publicity for tourism in the Cayman Islands; therefore, the balancing act is not being effectively done here.

We need to make sure that our subsidy to tourism and tourist-related development, like Pedro Castle, or the Botanic Park, or the Turtle Farm, or Cayman Airways, does not take away from the infrastructural development because, surely, at the end of the day, the proof is in the pudding. If we get people to come to the Cayman Islands by way of advertising and when they come they cannot find roads to move about on to visit the attractions, then we are defeating the entire purpose.

I remember specifically that when I was first caught in the traffic jam on West Bay Road I had taken my brother-in-law to the Turtle Farm. There were a lot of tourists there from the ships and they were all wondering how they were going to get back to their ships on time. Bus drivers started to do illegal manoeuvring on the road simply to try and get those very impatient tourists back on time. There is no use in saying that they have traffic jams in their countries. Of course they do. But that is when they are going to work. This is their vacation! Of course, if you are on vacation and seeking leisure, if you are seeking relaxation you do not want to come into a hustle-and-bustle type of situation.

We have the power to change that environment on the Seven Mile Beach. It is not because I believe that what is happening on the Red Bay Road is not important. We need to deal with that, and I hope that the Red Bay Bypass will help alleviate this type of situation. The designs are there, the plans are there, but what is not there are the funds—Government cannot seriously stand up and say that it knows where the money is coming from to construct the Red Bay Bypass.

So, it is not a study that we need at this particular point. I am not saying that we will not eventually need an overall transportation concept.

Mr. Roy Bodden: True!

Dr. Frank McField: But it is not what we need now. What we need now is money to build additional bypasses. We need to be able to extend the Harquail Bypass immediately, beyond the Galleria Plaza.

Mr. Speaker, I have a copy of a map here that shows the 1996 design. The road was designed to go beyond the Galleria Plaza. So what the First Elected Member for West Bay said is not speculation, it is true—and I have the map. It shows that the road was originally designed to go that far. Why was it not done? The public has to hold the present Government accountable for the congestion, and it cannot attempt to say that the reason why we have the congestion is because we have too many cars. All the statistics that I brought before this Honourable House suggest that for at least the last nine years the Public Works Department has been monitoring the growth of traffic; they have been monitoring the increase in the number of cars that are imported and registered in the country.

If we have statistics that are nine years old, we were not caught by surprise. If we have a map to prove that in 1996 they planned to build the Harquail Bypass beyond the Galleria Plaza, then we were not caught by surprise. It is just that some persons refused to do what they should have done. Therefore, the immediate crisis we are trying to solve, the long-term problem of finding solutions to our traffic situation will demand that we employ consultants or experts, or whatever we want to call them, that we get collectively together to make the decision. But it is the immediate solution also that this Motion seeks to address—the problem on the West Bay Road.

If we do not have that problem solved by the next tourist season, what effect will that have on the economy? Will Cayman Airways be able to get a subsidy? Will tourism be able to get that large subsidy? Will we really be able to collect that amount of money from the different businesses and services? Those are the concerns.

I have always preached about the interconnection between things. You cannot improve this part of your body, while depleting the other part of your body. Nature made them to work together. It is important that the Government not only cause this entire House to work together, but that the Government itself learn to work together. We have seen, by way of the attitude of the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture, that the Government is saying, 'How dare you bring this Motion before us without telling us where we are going to get this money. How dare you do that!' The Government is saying, 'How dare you bring up something that is so obvious, so simple, like creating a special fund for roads in order to discipline the way we save and spend money.' That is what this Motion is trying to do.

I would like to thank all Members who have contributed. I would like to particularly thank the Third Elected Member for West Bay for seconding this Motion and giving the Motion the opportunity to be looked at seriously by the Government, since he is a supporter of this present Government. I might not have been able to have done this as well as he did. I must give thanks, again, to his diplomacy, his sense of getting things done, and saying that he is a central part of that movement to get this recognised.

We know that the Motion will be accepted. But it is to be remembered that I did not bring this Motion as an attempt to embarrass the Government. I brought it because it was so simple, like the penny on the floor that we sometimes fail to pick up. I just picked it up and said, 'Here. We need to do something about the situation as bad as it is.' As bad as it is, it can really get seriously worse.

A lot of us are saying that we do not believe the situation on the West Bay Road can get any worse than it is. We believe that we have seen the worst already, and since we have tolerated the worst already we feel that we still have some time. We should be working to construct that additional part of the Harquail Bypass on the West Bay Road. Jointly, we should be constructing the Red Bay Bypass. The Government has no money. The Government must be big enough, bold enough and convinced enough that if it does not have any money in its coffers it must ask the people for money.

Now, if what they are going to give the people in return for this money the people do not like, then the people will fire the Government. But that is their job! That is their predicament because Standing Order 24(2) says that Members of the Backbench cannot bring revenue measure to this House. It has to be brought by the Government and the Government knows this. So the Government has to stand up and say to the people, 'We have a terrible traffic congestion on the West Bay Road and on the Red Bay Road, and things will get worse and it will destroy our economy. We do not know where to get the money from except if we come back to you and ask the people nicely.' Tell the people and make a commitment that if you take the money from them you are going to put it on what you say you are going to put it on. Do not try to use it so that the districts can compete against one another to see who has a civic centre, and who has a play field, and who has this or that.

Basically, this Motion is an accusation against the form of planning used by the National Team over the last six years. With all of the money they have collected, they have failed to identify priorities as simple as roads. I think that it is time that they did their job, gave the people their roads, introduce revenue measures if they have to, find out if we vote for it or against it. [Some Members' laughter]

Basically, we are telling them to get the money from the $30 million, but if they insist that they cannot give up any of that $30 million, then we know that they have to raise the money—they cannot steal it! They have already borrowed to the max, so they cannot even borrow it without knowing how they are going to pay it back. So they have to ask the motoring public whether or not they are willing—in order to be relieved and get some comfort—to pay another 25 cents on a gallon of gasoline.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Be nice to us on the Backbench.

Dr. Frank McField: People are sensible. They know that money does not grow on trees. I used to hear that when I was a little kid.

If Government is going to have money to improve roads, because we would like to continue to drive cars at least for another 15 or 20 years. . . maybe we will have to slowly introduce means of limiting the number for importation, but that will come as a result of people's choices which should be as a result of their awareness and enlightenment.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Voluntary.

Dr. Frank McField: Voluntary.

So, in the meantime, the person has a choice. But, again, for the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture to say she would support the Motion if I would say where the money is coming from, when she knows that I cannot bring revenue measures into this House—she should also know that Government can only get money by raising revenue, by taxing if you want to call it that nice word.

I again thank the Government for its support and say that it has to be on its toes because I will tip it a little bit once in a while just to make sure it is getting things done. But I can promise Government that if it is willing to solve the problem I am willing to pay the price, if necessary, to support it in solving the problem

The Speaker: I shall now put the question on Private Member's Motion No. 4/98, Establishing of a Road Fund. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 4/98 PASSED.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 5/98, Amendment to the Taxi Pickup Area on the Waterfront in George Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, in light of the fact that we had given His Excellency the Governor a commitment for 4.30 this afternoon, and we wish to beat the rush on the West Bay Road, may I respectfully request that we consider the adjournment at this time?

The Speaker: If that is the wish of the House, I had planned on 4.00. I will entertain a motion for the adjournment. The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until Thursday morning at 10 o'clock.

The Speaker: The question is that this House do now adjourn until 10 o'clock Thursday morning. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AT 3.51 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM THURSDAY, 12 MARCH 1998.

EDITED
THURSDAY
12 MARCH 1998
10.17 AM

The Speaker: Prayers by the Honourable Second Official Member.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived: We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth, that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly, that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy great Name's sake.

Let us say the Lord's Prayer together: Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name. Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us. Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace, now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed.

READING BY THE SPEAKER OF
MESSAGES AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: We have apologies from the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning, and from the Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Item number 3 on today's Order Paper, Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers, Deferred question 31 is standing in the name of the First Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION 31

(deferred from Monday, 9 March 1998)

No. 31: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development to give a breakdown of the total public debt as at 31 December 1997.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The total public debt as at 31 December 1997, was CI$82,870,932. This total is broken down as follows:

Central Government	$66,392,934.
Self-Financing	$16,477,998.
Total Public Debt	$82,870,932.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries? The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. For purposes of clarity, would the Honourable Member give us an explanation regarding the $19 million owed by Cayman Airways, whether Government in any way has any responsibility by way of any guarantees for this indebtedness, or is that amount separate from the figures quoted in the answer?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, the amount is separate from what has been quoted in the answer. I have an opinion as to Government's position in relationship to Cayman Airways and its indebtedness, but I would not want to advance that opinion as a response to the Honourable Member until I have first consulted on it.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Could the Honourable Member state if this indebtedness by Cayman Airways is guaranteed by Cayman Airways itself, or whether Government has been asked at any point in time to issue any guarantee for this indebtedness?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, we know from time to time that various guarantees have been issued against the leasing of aircraft, and also we have guarantees in place for the overdraft facility at the Royal Bank of Canada, but I would crave the indulgence of the Honourable Member not to get into Cayman Airways' indebtedness, because I am not in a position to speak with authority on that. I would not attempt to describe the relationship between Cayman Airways and central Government, and I would not want any statement I make at this time to become binding on the Government without first going through the necessary consultative process.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. I understand what the Honourable Member is saying, and I can accept the position taken at this time. Could the Honourable Member state if, outside of Cayman Airways, and outside of the central Government debt and the self-financing debt, there are any other guarantees given by Government which are not included in this figure? Any contingent liabilities other than that?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Yes, Mr. Speaker, there are guarantees given, and we know there are certain companies that have been assisted with the raising of loans through the European Investment Bank, and the guarantees that have been issued by the Government have made this possible. A Schedule of the contingent liability can be made available to Members of this Honourable House.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I would be grateful if the Honourable Member would be able to provide that. Could the Honourable Member state if, as at 31 December 1997, where the public debt has been stated as $82.87 million, there were any approved loans in 1997 which were not drawn down to their fullest?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The Estimates of Revenue and Expenditure will show that there is an item of $1.1 million for a loan raised through the Caribbean Development Bank to assist with the redevelopment of the Pedro Castle site. That money has been carried over into 1998. That is all, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I wonder if the Honourable Third Official Member could give an indication of the present ratio of debt servicing to the general revenue receipts, bearing in mind the 10% ceiling he has advised is now in place.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: It is about seven percent at this time, but that is a 'best guess' at this time. I can confirm this in writing to the Honourable Member.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: This may be going a little bit outside the substantive question, but if the Honourable Member is able to answer, I would appreciate it. Bearing in mind the approved borrowing for 1998, if all of that is drawn down, would the Honourable Member be able to venture a 'best guess' at what the percentage would be when you add the 1998 borrowing and what will be paid down during 1998 on the present loans?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member. As the Member said, this falls outside the ambit of the substantive question, but if you wish to answer it, you may.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Based on the figures I have just given ($82 million) the new borrowing plus what has been carried over puts the loan funds available in 1998 in the region of about $20 million. When we take into account that the majority of these loans are short-term borrowing, and it is likely that the indebtedness could be reduced between eight to ten million dollars, leaving the likely combined indebtedness at the end of the year at slightly over $90 million, and by extrapolation I would think the percentage of general revenue that will be used up in meeting the annual repayment should be in the region of about eight percent, or slightly over that. But it will definitely be under ten percent. Again, this is an area I can look at, based on the repayment schedules for 1998, and to derive that figure more accurately.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. I wish to thank the Honourable Member for venturing that answer. Could the Member state, in all of what we have talked about regarding this question so far, if the $6 million that is going to be drawn down by the Port Authority for the permanent moorings is added to the picture, or if that is separate? If so, is this loan taken out by the Port Authority guaranteed by Government so that it becomes a self-financing loan?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The Port Authority, as a corporate body, has negotiated that loan of $6 million. I know it has been supported by Executive Council, but the question as to whether it will require a guarantee from the Legislative Assembly will have to be looked at separately. This is not included in the self-financing loans.

The self-financing loans, as Members will recall, are those loans that have been raised by central Government on behalf of a statutory authority. The Government then makes the repayments against those loans, and claims reimbursement from the statutory authority in question. This is why it becomes a self-financing loan, because when we look at the $17 million given for the self-financing loans, Members will recall that yesterday when we looked at the overall indebtedness of the authorities, in terms of monies owing to various lending institutions, the amount was in excess of the $17 million. The $17 million was inclusive in that total.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: In the substantive answer we have a figure of $66.39 million owed by central Government, and approximately $16.5 million in self-financing loans. Are we then saying that guarantees given by Government for loans, say, for statutory authorities—not loans organised by Government and Government collecting back from the statutory authorities, but loans that the statutory authorities may engage in as a corporate entity, but having to be guaranteed by Government—is a separate category? And if it is a separate category, is it considered a liability of Government?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: These statutory authorities are corporate entities, and the governing legislation which establishes them gives them certain borrowing rights. By implication, because they are subsidiaries of central Government, any indebtedness incurred by these statutory authorities becomes a contingent liability, if not a direct liability, of central Government.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I do appreciate the Member's answer. Following up on that, could the Honourable Member state, if possible, the approximate figure at present which these authorities may have engaged in borrowing, and Government has guaranteed?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: We saw yesterday that the indebtedness of the Water Authority was $22.7 million. We saw that the Port Authority's was another $10 million. That becomes $32.7 million. We saw that there was a further $26 million by the Civil Aviation Authority. That takes it up to $53 million. Inclusive in that is the $17 million I have just read out, but we have intercompany indebtedness. Of this money, for example, owing by the Water Authority, if we were to factor out what is owing to central Government, that amounts to approximately $5.6 million. We saw that the Port Authority, when we look at the amount of money owing, we are looking at another $1.4 million. That takes it up to about $7 million in total. From this figure, we see that there is approximately $15.5 million owing by Civil Aviation Authority to central Government, so that becomes $22 million. When we take away that $22 million from the—and I am just running through this, so it is subject to oversight—when we take the $22 million from the $53 million, we come to a net to external institutions of $31 million.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: If I understand what the Honourable Member is saying—and I do appreciate the fact that these are approximate calculations done while standing—central Government has direct borrowing of $66.4 million; there is $16.5 million of self-financing loans; and there is a contingent liability by Government through guarantees of approximately $31 million. Following up on that, can the Honourable Member state if the Government has, at this time in the financial year, any knowledge of any further borrowing any of these authorities will engage in for which they will either have to negotiate or guarantee for those authorities?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Nothing, Mr. Speaker, outside of the $6 million that has been negotiated by the Port Authority.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, the Honourable Financial Secretary has given some breakdown on loans for the Water Authority, and I am going to deal with the Water Authority specifically. Can the Honourable Member say if the Water Authority has always been, and still is, capable of paying its loan?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: That is the assumption, because it would be imprudent for any financial institution to make a loan to an ongoing entity unless its revenue were such that it could defray its obligations. It would also be imprudent for the Government to put itself in a position to become liable for the borrowing of such an institution. Out of that, the assumption to be derived is that the statutory authorities, as ongoing entities, are able to defray their borrowing obligations.

When I said, other than the $6 million, I am not saying that there could not be other loans that are being negotiated, I am saying what I am aware of at this time, not what is being discussed.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you. I am not yet sure whether the Honourable Member has satisfied the question enough. Have they ever been unable to pay? And are they now paying well? Is there any problem with the payment?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I cannot be any more specific than I have been. They have been paying their obligations. I went further to point out that because Government is contingently liable for the borrowing of all statutory authorities, which are subsidiary companies of central Government as such, first it is important for Government to know they have the capacity to service the loans raised by these authorities, and also, because such borrowing constitutes contingent liabilities for the Government, the Government must put itself in a position to know whether that contingent liability will be raised to the position of a direct liability. So up to this point in time, the authorities are servicing their obligations.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Yesterday the Honourable Third Official Member advised us of the amount of money transferred from the authorities to help balance the Government budget. In view of the answer he gave this morning, that the public debt servicing is now 7% of the amount agreed upon, the 10% ceiling, and in view of the precarious financial position of the Government and the fact that there is no more money to borrow from the authorities, I wonder if the Honourable Third Official Member could give the assurance that he will try to keep the public debt under control, so that when the next government takes over it will not find a broke treasury.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: As the Honourable Third Elected Member for George Town can appreciate, there are certain aspects of that question which would not be wise for me to respond to. First, I should point out that when we think in terms of central Government indebtedness, or public debt, it is not unusual. The Cayman Islands is not unique in not including the amounts being paid by Crown entities and statutory authorities as a part of its direct debt obligations. We are showing the self-financing element because Government becomes directly responsible for that. We know it is only in remote instances that we would have any of these statutory authorities finding themselves in a position in which they are not able to service their borrowing. If such becomes the case, it would have serious implications, and it would not be the statutory authority in question. It would be a series of events occurring within the Islands as a whole, or across the economy.

Secondly, when we think of the indebtedness, as pointed out yesterday and alluded to, it is necessary to have a cost recovery system in place. There are quite a range of services now being provided by the Government that are subsidised. We have refuse collection, medical, education, tourism, and all of these. When all of these are taken into account, certain decisions will have to be made whether fees or related charges in these areas are going to be adjusted to bring the potential revenue in line with the cost being incurred. We know education will have to be an exception, because first of all, this is an area in which it is prudent and wise to invest, because we are talking about human capital.

On the tourism sector, in continuing to promote the Cayman Islands, again, it is necessary to provide spin-off economic opportunities where this may not accrue direct revenue. But, again, this will have to be looked at, whether a Tourism Authority should be set up and put on a self-financing basis.

When we take all of these, for example, refuse collection, where it costs over $200 per household and only $50 is being recovered, the more we continue to subsidise these services, the less revenue is available to fund the services Government will be called upon to provide, and the only way to compensate for this is to engage in new borrowing. When we seek to align the cost of providing the services with the revenue that should be generated by such services, this is the best and most prudent and equitable method to keep our indebtedness in check.

The Speaker: I will allow two additional supplementaries to this question. The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you. I wonder if the Member could say, given that Government has taken so much money from the statutory authorities, and if they are in such a precarious position because of their loan position, whether it would be prudent to take all the money Government is taking and put it toward reducing those loans, which Government seems to be concerned about.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, first, I am not sure whether the Honourable Member intended to word the question as he did, because when he said 'so much money,' we can be specific in talking about the $1.5 million additional contribution from the three authorities. When we spread that $1.5 million over the total revenue base of the authorities, bearing in mind that these were significant revenue-generating departments of Government that were set up as statutory authorities—not that setting up those authorities as independent entities was the best thing to do to allow them to fulfil their obligations, but because that was driven by the arrangements entered into to get financing through the Caribbean Development Bank, and as I pointed out yesterday, other countries place a very high premium, and there is a primary obligation on the part of statutory authorities to contribute to central Government. This will have to be reworked as a part of the reform process, to look to see what the level of revenue is. Because if it does not come from the statutory authorities, it must come from other sources. Ultimately, the burden for revenue falls on the people of the Cayman Islands.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? If there are no further supplementaries, we will go to Question 41, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION 41

No. 41: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development whether the Medium-Term Financial Strategy and the Public Sector Investment Programme will be tabled during the State Opening and First Meeting of the 1998 Session of the Legislative Assembly as promised.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Integral to the completion of the Medium-Term Financial Strategy is the Public Sector Investment Programme. The Public Sector Investment Programme is developed from the capital projects agreed upon by the Legislative Assembly, and the starting base of that would be those as set out in the 1998 Estimates. Members will recall that during the Budget Meeting (of the Legislature), an undertaking was given by the Government that the projects as set out in the Estimates would be re-prioritised to ensure that those determined to be the most essential could be fully funded from the capital provision of $27.7 million approved by this Honourable House. The prioritisation exercise which is being assisted by the Public Works Department is near completion.

I should point out that the Public Works Department has indicated it will be coming back to the Government today with the reprioritised list, to be further examined. They are presently working on it, and they should be coming with a report. That will have to be examined by Executive Council.

As soon as the results of this are finalised and brought back to Finance Committee, it will then enable the Public Sector Investment Programme and the Medium-Term Financial Strategy to be updated to reflect the prioritisation exercise. It is expected that this process will be completed in time to table both documents during the Second Meeting of the 1998 Session of the Legislative Assembly (June 1998 meeting).

When I said that, first of all, the reprioritisation list being worked on, Public Works is looking into it to ensure that the provisions against the projects are the required sums to carry out the completion of these projects through the end of the year. That becomes the base for the information that will be set out in the Medium-Term Financial Strategy. But because the Estimates are approved by this House, any variation in the capital projects will have to be approved by Finance Committee before it can be taken as authorised for that to be done. This reprioritised listing will be a part of the Finance Committee agenda on 27 March 1998.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I have a few supplementaries, but the first one is: Can the Honourable Member state at what point in time this list was given to Public Works?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I know Public Works became involved in it during the time I was off to New Zealand. I cannot say the exact day, but I know Executive Council reviewed the information developed up until Tuesday afternoon. I sat in on a meeting on that. It was subsequently given to the Public Works Department for them to examine it and to come back through me to the Members of Executive Council today. But the information set out in that list is based on the information that Public Works has assisted in developing, that has been reviewed by the Honourable Members of Executive Council.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Is it safe comment to say that Executive Council took three months, since they indicated during the budget process that they would prioritise their capital projects, to pass this information to Public Works?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: That is not a safe statement when taken in isolation, as put by the Honourable First Elected Member for George Town. It will have to be borne in mind—and this is not something that is arrived at in a minute—in terms of a range of projects set out in the Estimates, it was recognised that quite a number of those projects did not have sufficient funding to see their completion through for the year. In determining from that list, Mr. Speaker, what should be given priority will take consultation with Honourable Members of the Legislative Assembly on an informal basis, and other discussions with Public Works Department and Ministers having discussions amongst themselves, in that process, it is reasonable to expect that there will be a time element involved.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. I thank the Honourable Member again for his candid answer. Could the Honourable Member state if, under normal circumstances, and following the process properly, what has been done between December and now should have been done before the Budget was brought to this Honourable House?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: No disrespect is intended to the Honourable First Elected Member for George Town, but I think we have gone into the details. We have seen the anomalies, and I think these were very much aired during the Finance Committee meeting on the Budget, and also during the Budget debate itself. We recognise that there was a need for certain amendments to be made, and these were quite significant. Looking back, we can always determine what the ideal position should be, but what is important is that we are in a position to correct where errors have been made.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you very much. Can the Honourable Member state what time period the Medium-Term Financial Strategy and the Public Sector Investment Programme (if it finally gets to the Legislative Assembly in June, as it is said it will) will encompass regarding future planning?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The time period in question will be the years 1998, 1999 and 2000.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Assuming that all goes well and in June both documents are presented, can the Honourable Member state if there will be an annual review, once this gets rolling, or will it only be reviewed every three years?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: It will have to become a rolling plan. It is a rolling medium-term plan. The year in question that is completed is normally dropped, and the current year then becomes the base year. That becomes a rolling base year. Then a further two years are added on. The reason for that is the assumption that most projects have a life cycle of about three years, and it is necessary for the cost to be spread and accurately reflected, and for there to be completeness of information in the Public Sector Investment Programme itself.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you very much. It is a pity that it is only one Elected Minister here hearing how this thing should work. I trust the information will be passed on to the rest.

Can the Honourable Member then state if, after we establish that base year, every year following that a new document will be laid on the Table, which will include the following three years?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Yes, Mr. Speaker, that will have to be the case. This document will have to be expanded to incorporate certain changes being planned, because if, after the review being carried out between now and the end of the year, it is finally agreed that we are going to shift away from the cash-base accounting methodology to an accrual system, that will require certain changes to be made, significant changes, to give greater detail of information and make the document more useful and functional.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you very much. The Honourable Member pre-empted my next question and has already given the answer. Following up on that, could the Member then state, if these changes to be proposed do occur, whether the document will take on a life cycle of more than three years, or if the plan is for it to continue at that level?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: That determination will have to be made as a part of the process. I cannot say it will take on a greater life cycle, but I know it cannot be reduced.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Perhaps this question is going a little bit too far, but I will attempt it, and if the Member is not able to answer, so be it.

Can the Member give us a chronological synopsis of how long this process of the Medium-Term Financial Strategy has been worked on by Government, and how many times it has had to be updated, even though it has not yet been tabled in the Legislative Assembly?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: As the Honourable First Elected Member for George Town will appreciate, one of the things I should not do is to make a statement that could place the Government in an invidious position. I would like to think about an appropriate response to this before I commit myself to giving any comments.

As the Honourable Member will recall, this question has been under debate for quite some time, and we know that although he has expressed certain doubts in moving forward, this document will have to be brought to the House. The Government is committed to the process, and we saw in the December Budget meeting why it is imperative to have this in place. It is necessary that it be done. The Government is committed at this time for it to be brought, and I am optimistic that it will be brought.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. One final supplementary—and I do appreciate that that question was a bit loaded—but could the Honourable Member then say—and I think this is a fair supplementary—when it was raised in the Legislative Assembly for the first time (the Medium-Term Financial Strategy and Public Sector Investment Programme), when was it hoped to be tabled?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I cannot respond to that question accurately offhand. I would have to research the records, the Hansards of the Legislative Assembly, to provide the information.

The Speaker: That concludes that question. Question number 42, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I see that it has now reached the hour of 11.00 or a little past, so I crave the indulgence of the Chair to move the motion so that Question Time may be continued.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: I second, Mr. Speaker.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 23 (7) & (8)

The Speaker: I shall put the question that Standing Order 23(7) and (8) be suspended in order that question time can go beyond 11.00. All those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 23 (7) & (8) SUSPENDED TO ENABLE QUESTION TIME TO CONTINUE.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 42

No. 42: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Member with responsibility for Finance and Economic Development to state what action is taken in cases where departments enter into contracts for purchases greater than CI$10,000 without the approval of the Departmental Tenders Committee.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: In accordance with section 8(4)(l) of the Financial and Stores Regulations, contracts estimated to cost over CI$10,000 and less than CI$100,000 require [approval of] a Departmental Tenders Committee comprising the Controlling Officer as Chairman and two other officers selected by the Chairman.

Any deviation from these procedures can result in disciplinary action being taken. It is the responsibility of the Controlling Officer to bring any tender infractions on the part of an officer in his/her department to the attention of the Financial Secretary. In addition, both the Auditor General's Office and the Internal Audit Section hold a monitoring and reporting brief.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I notice that the Auditor General, in his most recent report, had reason to comment with alarm at this practise. My question to the Honourable Member is, what is being done to ensure that this practise does not become widespread and endemic, and are there any cases now of sanctions against any department where this has been the practise recently?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Within the past three years, there was a case that came to light. This matter was looked into by one of the attorneys from the Legal Department. The conclusion was reached, I would want to believe, that just a letter of reprimand should be given.

We have the Financial and Stores Regulations and the Public Finance and Audit Law. It is incumbent upon controlling officers to familiarise themselves with the provisions of these documents because we are talking about entrusting them with responsibilities for the stewardship of millions of dollars. Where the law or regulations specifically set certain limits, we are talking about high-priced executives who are being paid to administer these functions. We would trust that, as most Controlling Officers are, or all of them, they will be responsible enough to ensure that they comply with the limits set by the Public Finance and Audit Law, which is a piece of legislation determined by the Parliament. Therefore the resulting Regulations flowing from that also carry with them certain obligations. So in these instances, where it is reported that there are infractions and violations, action will have to be taken.

I know the Auditor General has raised certain concerns, and from time to time, Controlling Officers are invited to observe the requirements of the Regulations as such. But we have not had a multiplicity of such infractions being brought to the attention of the Financial Secretary.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The Honourable Member mentioned briefly an issue that I would like to raise, and that is, are there any procedures for ensuring that Controlling Officers are reminded of these requirements in the Financial and Stores Regulations?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Yes, Mr. Speaker, through FSRs [Financial and Stores Regulations] and from time to time through Financial Circulars.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? If not, that concludes Question Time for today. Item number 4 on today's Order Paper, Other Business, Private Member's Motion No. 5/98, Amendment to Taxi Pickup Areas on the Waterfront in George Town. The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

OTHER BUSINESS

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTION

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 5/98 (Withdrawn)

AMENDMENT TO TAXI PICKUP AREAS ON THE WATERFRONT IN GEORGE TOWN

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In accordance with Standing Order 24(14), I beg to move the withdrawal of Private Member's Motion No. 5/98, which reads as follows:

"WHEREAS, in an attempt to address the issue of congestion on the waterfront in George Town, and to instil some discipline in the transportation industry, the Public Passenger Vehicles Registration Law, 1995 was introduced to prohibit the solicitation and pickup of passengers between Boilers Road and Mary Street, which has been proven to be an inconvenience and hardship to taxi operators and visitors alike;

"AND WHEREAS it is recognised that it is difficult for people to earn a living in the transportation industry, and it is becoming more difficult to do so on a daily basis, and whereas much representation has been made to myself and other legislators concerning the hardships caused by the recent rules introduced by the Port Authority;

"BE IT NOW THEREFORE RESOLVED that consideration be given to amending the restricted area to reduce the hardship and inconvenience it has caused our people employed in the transportation industry."

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: I beg to second the motion.

The Speaker: The motion has been duly moved and seconded. Do you wish to speak to it?

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Yes, thank you, Mr. Speaker. Just a few comments: This motion was moved by myself and seconded by the Honourable Lady Member from North Side. It was filed in the Legislative Assembly on the 9 February 1998. The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport, on Wednesday, 4 March, made a statement entitled, "The Public Passenger Vehicles (Amendment) Regulation, 1998," of which I would like to read the second paragraph:

"It has been two months since this system has been operational, and as a result of a review of the system, and representations received from some of the taxi and bus operators, it is felt that the area shown coloured in red on the Plan, in the Schedule to the Public Passenger Vehicles Regulations, 1995, extends too far north, and that it would be more equitable to terminate this area at the northern part of the junction of Fort Street and North Church Street. This would allow taxis and buses to pick up passengers at any point north of the junction of Fort Street and North Church Street. The Public Passenger Vehicles (Amendment) Regulation, 1998, which I lay on the Table of this Honourable House on Friday morning reflects this change."

Mr. Speaker, that statement basically confirms what was being asked for in my motion—that the restricted area going north be terminated. I had suggested at the Port Authority's property, which extends just off of Fort Street, so I did not have a problem with the cut-off being limited to Fort Street. Experience has shown that if a visitor needed a taxi and was at the West Wind Building, for example, he could not call a taxi and have a taxi come there and pick him up because it was within the restricted area. The operator of that taxi was then subject to a fine of up to $500, which is very unfair, and very expensive.

For that reason, we had a lot of representations with respect to that particular issue. It was always my contention that the restricted area should not have related to taxi operators who were doing business in the normal fashion, but to the cruiseship passengers, who move between the beach and the Port Authority area.

In addition to the statement by the Honourable Minister on Friday, 6 March 1998, the Honourable Minister then tabled The Public Passenger Vehicles (Amendment) Regulations, 1998, which was approved in Executive Council on 24 February 1998. I want to say thanks to the Honourable Minister for dealing with this very important issue that affects so many of our people, so promptly. I trust the Honourable Minister will move with the same sense of urgency in addressing the other issues affecting the transportation industry, such as the issuance of taxi and ground transportation licences and permits, and reducing the number of persons competing on the inter-district routes with our people.

Many of our people have lost faith that anything will be done, and are not looking for anything to be done because of the length of time which has passed without these issues being addressed. I have confidence that it will be addressed, and I am asking the Honourable Minister to get on with rectifying that situation, because it affects many of our people. So I thank you, Sir, and I also thank the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport for addressing this request in my motion so promptly.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? I shall put the question.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, the Member moving the motion raised several areas that need to be addressed. One was the issuance of taxi licences and the next was the number of people on the district route. One of the problems with the restricted area is that taxis themselves were not being allowed to pick up, but other people, tour operators for instance, were. Those are the kinds of double standards causing too much friction in the taxi business. When that amount of friction exists, it is bound to affect the tourists coming to the Island. It does not bode well for the Cayman Islands' image.

So I too want to draw to the Minister's attention the matter of the taxi licences, issuance of the licences, and the number of people, and the problems caused on the district route. This has long been a problem—not just today, since that Minister took over—and it certainly needs to be addressed now, because the travelling public is being affected. We have heard about fights on those district bus routes. We need to rectify the matter. I would urge the Minister to move quickly in addressing the issues of taxi problems. Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: I would like to call to the attention of the Honourable House that the question before the House is for the withdrawal of the motion. I agree that the Member moving the withdrawal did touch on a subject outside the motion itself, which the First Elected Member for West Bay also touched on. If other Members wish to speak, they do have that right, but please be as brief as possible because I would like to get on with the withdrawal of this motion.

Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause) If not, I shall put the question, that under Standing Order 24(14), Private Member's Motion No. 5/98 be withdrawn. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 5/98 WITHDRAWN.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay had asked to make a personal explanation. Do you still wish to do that, or have you made it? All right.

Private Member's Motion No. 6/98, Payment of Gratuities, moved by the Third Elected Member for West Bay.

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 6/98

PAYMENT OF GRATUITIES

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I beg to move Private Member's Motion No. 6/98, Payment of Gratuities, which reads as follows:

"WHEREAS the Hospitality Industry is a major employer of our Caymanian people;

"AND WHEREAS the wages paid in the Industry are relatively small compared to other areas of employment;

"AND WHEREAS for this reason those employed in the Hospitality Industry depend heavily upon gratuities to supplement their income;

"AND WHEREAS most establishments, as a practice, pay gratuities once or twice within the month;

"AND WHEREAS the Labour Law allows 21 days after the end of the month to pay gratuities which, when implemented, causes real hardships for our people;

"AND WHEREAS with the advent of computers today it is possible to know at any point in time the revenues of the establishment for the purpose of calculation of gratuities;

"AND WHEREAS there is still widespread concern and suspicion that in many establishments, management still benefit from the payment of gratuities which causes further hardship for our people by reducing the amount of gratuities which are available for those who are entitled to a gratuity;

"BE IT NOW THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT section 37(3) of the Labour Law be amended to require that gratuities be paid on the 15th and 30th of each month;

"AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that this Honourable Legislative Assembly considers authorising the employment, by the Labour Department, of two additional qualified inspectors for the purpose of visiting establishments to determine whether gratuities are accurately calculated and fairly and equitably distributed."

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: I beg to second the motion.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 6/98 has been duly moved and seconded. Does the Mover wish to speak to it?

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Yes, Mr. Speaker.

In an attempt to research this very important issue which affects many of our people, I called the major hotels—the Marriott, the Westin, Treasure Island, Holiday Inn and the Hyatt. I was disappointed in that every one of these establishments, with the exception of the Hyatt, was prepared to sit with me and discuss the issue. Their attitude was that payment of gratuities is a propriety issue. In other words, I did not have any business knowing what they were doing, and if I wanted information I could go to the Labour Department for it. I thought that was a bit cheeky.

I do want to thank the other establishments that I visited for taking the time to hear what my proposals were and also for giving me the opportunity to learn exactly how they were dealing with payment of gratuities. I was very pleased that both the Marriott and the Westin Hotels are already doing what this motion is calling for.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to move one small amendment to my motion calling for the payment of gratuities twice a month on the 15 and 30 of each month. I learned from my research that it would be much more convenient if the payment of gratuities coincided with the pay-day for salaries and wages, and that is twice per month in most cases anyway. At that stage the information is available in regard to what gratuities have been earned and it is a practice already in place in the industry, in particular at the Marriott and Westin Hotels.

I had some specific questions for them, asking if management shared in the gratuities. The Marriott Hotel informed me that the general manager, the front office manager, the food and beverage director, the personnel manager, the sales and catering director, the restaurant manager, and chief engineer, which I consider management, do not share in the gratuities. I also learned that at the Marriott the starting wage for the front desk personnel is $5.00 per hour, and for restaurant and rooms the minimum is $3.50 per hour. They do pay overtime. The last calculation of gratuity worked out to approximately $6.00 per hour. When you add the gratuity of $6.00 per hour to an average wage of $4.50 or $5.00 per hour, it means that the minimum most members of staff are making is between $10.00 or $11.00 per hour. Because they pay the gratuity at the same time as wages and salaries, those employees can see exactly where their money goes because they get it all at one time.

My experience at the Westin was exactly the same. I asked specifically about managers sharing in the gratuities. They said that all salaried employees and food and beverage people do not share in gratuities. The system at the Westin is that the food and beverage people earn gratuities on a daily basis, and at the end of the day in most cases they get whatever they earned, which is in keeping with the practice that existed many years ago. For that reason they do not share in the gratuities earned in other areas. Their per hour gratuity was also in the region of about $6.50 per hour. I thought that was very good. They are also paid twice per month, the same time that they pay wages and salaries.

At the Holiday Inn, they pay twice per month, not necessarily on the same day that they pay wages and salaries, but they do pay twice per month. Everyone is entitled to gratuities except members of the executive committee. So the findings...

The Speaker: May I interrupt you for just one moment?

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Yes.

The Speaker: This may be a convenient time for us to take the break. You spoke of an amendment. Under Standing Order 26, I would like to see the amendment to change the wording. You can move that before you conclude your moving of the motion. Proceedings are suspended for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.29 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12.08 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. The Third Elected Member for West Bay continuing.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I was dealing with my findings as a result of my research on the issue of gratuities.

Of the five major hotels, only the Hyatt and the Treasure Island Hotels pay gratuities once per month. I spoke with the accountant at the Treasure Island Hotel who indicated that, even though it would take some effort to change the system, it was possible to pay gratuities on the same date as salaries and wages because the information is available at that time.

Gratuities are an important part of the earnings of these establishments, as wages paid are not, in most cases, very attractive. I feel that by getting both wages, or salaries, and gratuities paid at the same time twice per month, our people will be better able to support themselves financially.

The last part of this Motion reads: “AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that this Honourable Legislative Assembly consider authorising the employment, by the Labour Department, of two additional qualified inspectors for the purpose of visiting establishments to determine whether gratuities are accurately calculated and fairly and equitably distributed.”

This is something that I mentioned from my political platform as far back as 1988. The Human Resources Department should have in-house qualified personnel capable of going to these establishments to have a look at the books to determine whether or not the gratuities are accurately calculated, and ensure that they are paid only to those persons who are entitled to them. I recognise that some effort was made in this area. I think last year we had some auditors from the private sector commissioned to go out and look at certain properties suspected of dabbling in gratuities as far as management was concerned.

The reason I say we need our own inspectors is because...and I used to work for one of the large accounting firms. In fact, it was my first job. I worked with Price Waterhouse and Company in Grand Cayman. From experience, what happens is that for the first four or five months of the year they are unavailable because they are required to do audits with respect to every licensed bank that operates here, as well as a lot of other companies. So it is impossible for them to make themselves available during the first four or five months of the year.

I believe that these inspectors could also look at the accommodation tax due Government. I recall that when the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town was chairman of the Public Accounts Committee, we dealt with the issue of tourist accommodation tax and the abuse evident in that area. Some improvements have been made in that area, but I believe that the two additional inspectors that I am calling for in this motion would more than pay for themselves (that is, their salaries) by ensuring that the tourist accommodation tax paid to Government is accurate and promptly submitted. We are all aware that Government can use every additional dollar owed to it because of the demands that it must deal with from time to time in respect to services.

I am requesting that consideration also be given to the employment of two qualified inspectors. This really does not have to be an Englishman, as we have a lot of local Caymanians who have been working in the industry a long time. They know exactly how it works and it should not be difficult for us to find people locally who have the qualification and experience to fill these positions.

The requests in this motion are reasonable, they are do-able, and in some establishments they already exist. I see no reason why those establishments that are now only paying once per month cannot fall in line like everyone else and pay gratuities twice per month at the time they are paying wages and salaries.

In my opening comments, I mentioned that I had an amendment that I wanted to bring to the motion. With your permission, Mr. Speaker, I will deal with that amendment at this time.

The Speaker: Under Standing Order 25(2), I waive the two day's notice. You may move the amendment to the motion.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In accordance with the provisions of Standing Order 25, I, the Third Elected Member for West Bay, seek to move to amend Private Member's Motion No. 6/98 by deleting the words "on the 15th and 30th of each month" as they appear in the first "Resolved" and by inserting the words "twice monthly on the day wages or salaries are paid."

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: I second that motion.

The Speaker: The amendment has been duly moved and seconded. Does the Member wish to speak to it?

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Yes, Mr. Speaker.

My research indicated that establishments would be more comfortable with respect to the payment of gratuities at the time they pay salaries and wages because at the time the information is available.

At one of the establishments I visited there was a report on the earnings of the establishment available every day which also contained information on the gratuities earned for that particular period. The establishments are all computerised, and with the push of a button can know at any time what gratuities are earned. It should not pose any difficulty to call for gratuities to be paid twice per month on the date that wages and salaries are paid.

I am pleased to commend this motion, and do request support from Honourable Members of this House.

The Speaker: The amendment has been duly moved and seconded. Does any other Member wish to speak?

The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: I rise to support the motion before the House. When we put the Law in place in 1995, when we were...

The Speaker: May I interrupt you? This is actually the question on the amendment to change the dates.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Sorry, Mr. Speaker. I am getting confused by the confusion.

The Speaker: The question is that the amendment be made. Does any Member wish to speak to that? (Pause) If not, I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: THAT THE AMENDMENT BE MADE.

The Speaker: Does any Member wish to speak to the motion as amended? The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

As I was saying, when we put the Law in place in 1995, we amended the Labour Law, it was suggested that gratuities be paid weekly to those people paid weekly, or biweekly if they were so paid. At that time, the condos, restaurants specifically, and some hotels came to us and said that to pay gratuities at that time would be a problem because the vast majority of guests pay by credit card which takes a long time to come back to the establishment.

The Government (the National Team at the time) said to go with the time the establishments were requiring, which was over twenty days. I think we all remember the upheaval in the country on those amendments. I believe all Members of the National Team can remember who supported me on the amendments. It seemed that where cash was paid there was no problem, areas (sometimes the restaurants, sometimes the bars) where people were paying cash and collecting tips quickly at the same time.

The Mover is asking that the establishments pay those gratuities every two weeks. If something can be done to effect quicker payment of gratuities, then I can agree that is what was intended in 1995. I have always stood on the side of the working person, but we have to be realistic, if bills are paid by credit card it will take some time.

I know of the good intention of the motion. As I said, if something can be done to effect quicker payment, I am all for it.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: I rise to give my brief contribution to Private Member's Motion No. 6/98, moved by the Third Elected Member for West Bay, and seconded by the Elected Member for North Side.

I concur with the Movers that the hospitality industry is a major employer of Caymanian people. I further concur that the wages paid in the industry are relatively small compared to similar areas of employment. I also concur that persons who are duly employed in the hospitality industry depend heavily upon gratuities to supplement their income. Further, I have no objection to gratuities being paid twice per month to the prescribed employees rather than once per month, which, as is my understanding, a common practice in all three of the Islands.

I am also certain that there is still wide-spread suspicion that there are many establishments today where managers (or those who should not be) are still benefiting from the payment of gratuities which causes a further hardship on our people by reducing the amount of gratuities available to those entitled.

With regard to the first "Resolved" section of this motion seeking to effect an amendment to section 37(3) of the Labour Law (1996 Revision), making it mandatory for gratuities to be paid (previously it was on the 15 and 30 and now amended), this meets with our agreement as well. The final "Resolved" asks this House to consider the authorisation of two additional qualified inspectors for the Labour Department to determine whether gratuities are accurately calculated and fairly and equitably distributed. This too we accept and are happy to concur with.

We would also indicate at this time that it is my Ministry's intention to review the Labour Gratuities Distribution Regulations of 1992, made in Executive Council on 17 November 1992, which (for those desirous of being reminded) was the date of the General Elections. The intention to review that is purely because, in my humble and respectful opinion, subsection (d) which serves to distribute 7.5% of the gratuity for incentive awards to the staff, is going against the integral intention of the Law, whereby the managers should not be receiving gratuities. For this to remain would not be in the best interests of persons who have a legitimate expectation to receive gratuities. I am made to understand that certain establishments that adhere to this are reducing, in accordance with this regulation, 7.5% for employees' awards. Normally this is done at the end of the year and nine times out of ten the employees cannot benefit from any interest accruing on this 7.5% reduction.

Secondly, there does not seem (and I stand to be corrected) any provision therein where there is proper accounting for this segregated portfolio of 7.5%. I would like to see this tightened up so that the employees could benefit 100% from the collected gratuities.

With these few words, the Government is happy to accept this motion.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak?
The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

As seconder of this motion, I would like to thank the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture, and the Government, for accepting this motion recognising the need of our people in the hospitality field to be paid these gratuities much earlier than is being done at the moment; and for recognising that we do need qualified inspectors in the Labour Department (or Human Resources Department I think it is called now) to carry out these inspections to make certain that gratuities are correctly calculated and fairly and equitably distributed to those people entitled to such gratuities.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak?
If not, does the Mover wish to reply?

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Let me start by thanking those Members who spoke on this motion. I also thank the Government for accepting the motion. I am pleased that there are plans to amend the Regulations in respect of gratuities because at one establishment I visited, they had implemented that policy of withholding a percentage for the purpose of making available a monthly award, or bonus at the end of the year. I believe, as the Honourable Minister mentioned, there is no proper accounting for this. Not only that, if our people earn the money, let us make sure that those establishments pay it.

I thank Members for their support.

The Speaker: The question is Private Members Motion No. 6/98 as amended. I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 6/98 AS AMENDED PASSED.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 2/98, Change of Dredging Policies. The First Elected Member for George Town.

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 2/98

CHANGE OF DREDGING POLICIES

Mr. Roy Bodden: I rise to move Private Member's Motion No. 2/98 entitled "Change of Dredging Policy," which reads as follows:

"WHEREAS the Throne Speech delivered by His Excellency on 16th February, 1997 stated: 'Executive Council has decided that there shall be no further dredging in the North Sound, except for an approval granted to Caymarl Ltd to excavate the balance of material (784,100 cubic yards) that remained under a licence granted in 1988 for the dredging of two million yards of material from the borrow pit offshore the marl pit, just north of the George Town Barcadere. In addition, to further the final upgrading of the George Town Barcadere the Government will also consider an application from Simmons Enterprises for the excavation of 122,200 cubic yards which will complete the dredging of the basin at this location, to facilitate an increased amount of vessel traffic and usage.';

"AND WHEREAS dredging in the Cayman Islands is an environmentally sensitive issue which is likely to cause much debate;

"BE IT NOW THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT any change in policy regarding dredging be debated and voted upon in the Legislative Assembly;

"AND BE IT NOW FURTHER RESOLVED THAT all proposed dredging /excavation on Crown Land or in the North Sound be brought to the Legislative Assembly for approval."

The Speaker: Is there a seconder?

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I beg to second Private Member's Motion No. 2/98.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 2/98 has been duly moved and seconded. Does the Mover wish to speak to it?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I vividly recall debating one of the Throne Speeches during my first term in this Honourable House where I remarked that we in the Cayman Islands were approaching a Rubicon, a dividing line. To those who may not be history buffs, the Rubicon was a river on which the Romans fought perhaps the most difficult battle, a battle that was to determine the outcome of the mighty Roman Empire. Not only are we in the Cayman Islands approaching this Rubicon, but so is the whole world in terms of being able to master what is now a very popular phrase 'sustainable development.'

I remember studying anthropology in one of the introductory courses of my university years. The professor was a gentleman who had frequented the Amazon jungle in Brazil. Although many of his students did not understand the full implication of what he was telling us at the time, we listened with interest to his tales about primitive tribes living in the Amazon Jungle who were under threat from encroaching modern development—what some people, who did not know better at the time, called 'civilisation' and 'industrialisation.'

We found it interesting when Professor Von Graeve [?] told us how these people did not have immunities to certain things such as the common cold. Diseases such as the common cold wiped them out because they were so isolated and so far out of touch with other species that they were extremely susceptible to colds, measles and things we take as every day common occurrences. Similarly too, he spoke of wholesale destruction of the rainforest. I suppose at that time this whole delicate relationship between our environment and our existence as human beings and as people who manage—or mismanage—this environment was just beginning to dawn on people.

A motion such as this has implications because we know that the earth is perhaps the most commonly shared resource. Economists tell us that land, and by inference in this case water, is the source of all wealth. This is especially so in the sense that those of us entrusted to manage this resource have an obligation to do so in such a way that not only we benefit from it, but that our progeny and future generations can also derive benefits. In other words, we are duty bound to leave these resources so that those we leave behind, our successors, can tap these resources and continue to live up to, at the very least, the standard to which we have become accustomed. It makes good sense, then, for us to try to understand how we can do this.

I would not be so dogmatic as to say that we should call an absolute halt to these kinds of practices because I like to express our position this way: We are on a treadmill from which we cannot easily disembark. The treadmill is progressing at a certain pace. Anyone who has been on a treadmill knows that if you are going along at the rate we are going along at, and you try to get off and do not know what you are doing, you are likely to fall and you might hurt yourself. So, being on this treadmill, what we have to do is adjust ourselves to the pace that the treadmill is progressing at so that we can keep pace and sustain that pace until the end of our exercise period, so to speak.

Quite interestingly, yesterday afternoon Members of this House had their first working session of Vision 2008. I mention this because the document, Small Island Issues, which we received in our mailboxes here at the Legislative Assembly, states, "Small Islands Developing States are Unique." I want to read two sections from the very first page of this which has relevance to my motion and this debate.

The first section says, “SIDS (Small Islands Developing States) are small, isolated and have very fragile ecosystems which makes their environment and human activities particularly independent.” A point I stressed in my introduction.

The second point is: “SIDS have relatively large coastal and marine areas in proportion to their total land area. This fosters intense competition for limited land and coastal resources while bringing out specific challenges for the sustainable development of their marine environment. Biodiversity, an important development resource, is particularly vulnerable to mismanagement.”

I am happy that the relationship between our environment and our existence is brought out in this Vision 2008 exercise so early. I am happier to know that this motion, according to what I have just read, will have a specific bearing on developments which will emanate out of the exercise of the Vision 2008 Strategic Plan. What we are talking about impinges directly and impacts strategically on our successful planning for the future.

I have said many times that the greatest resources of this country (and heaven knows we have others) are the land, and, again by inference, the coastal areas surrounding that land, and its people. If we check it out, those countries that have been most successful have been the ones best able to marry these two resources in such a way that they can gauge for the negative effects of both. When there is a counter balance, one or the other suffers. We need only go back a short few weeks ago to the news items about what was happening in Indonesia to see how fires in the Rain Forest affected the health, and upset the economy of the country.

The Speaker: Have you reached a point where we can take the luncheon break? I think Members have a meeting at one o'clock.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Yes, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: Proceedings are suspended until 2.30 PM.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.49 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.51 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Debate continues with the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. When we took the luncheon suspension, I was making a point in regard to the universal interest in preserving the environment as an important facet in sustainable development.

I now move on to say that at the beginning of the environmentalist and conservationist movement, worldwide, that is, these people were looked upon somewhat suspiciously. There were many people, including intellectuals and academics, who viewed them as nothing but interfering busybodies. Now, however, the position of these people is taken much more seriously, and has grown to become respected and, in many instances, widely accepted. It is no less true that we, in these Islands, have to pay credence and attention to the findings of these persons as we attempt to transpose it upon the future, and also upon the present developments in our country.

That we should be so interested is predicated upon the fact that our country is so small and our resources so limited. I believe that was the reason for the announcement by His Excellency the Governor in the Throne Speech I previously quoted. One can quite rightfully and logically ask, Why was this deemed so important? Why was this policy deemed so important as to have been announced by His Excellency the Governor in the Legislative Assembly? And why is this motion now being moved? The answer is quite simply this: We are the trustees of the people.

Dredging —particularly dredging on Crown lands— is a matter which concerns the people. Since it would be quite literally impossible to poll every single concerned person in the Cayman Islands as to his or her disposition in this regard, it is fitting that any change in policy, or any application, be discussed and debated by the people's trustees, who in this case are also their elected representatives.

Honourable Members should take note that the motion is not asking that dredging be stopped. The motion is not, by any means, dogmatic. The motion is recognising that the issue is an environmentally sensitive one. The motion is recognising that it is an issue of great public concern. The motion is recognising that dredging is also of great public interest, so the motion now before the House is not at all unreasonable in asking that any change in policy, any departure from what His Excellency the Governor told this House, be debated and voted upon by the people's representatives in this Legislative Assembly, and that all proposed dredging or excavation on Crown lands be brought to the Legislative Assembly for approval and, it follows without saying, Mr. Speaker, be debated.

What can be achieved by such a gesture? one might ask. Transparency, for one thing! Very important! By bringing these matters before the Legislative Assembly, all persons interested, involved, and concerned, will be able to listen, will be able to hear, will be able to research how Honourable Members, who are the representatives of the people, debated and how they were disposed.

Now, what does this mean regarding a comparison to the present situation? As I understand it, this is a matter of responsibility and decision-making which rests with a number of bodies. Some of the decision has to come from the Department of the Environment and, by inference, the Ministry of Planning. Part of the decision could be made by the Executive Council; and in times of challenge and controversy, it is easy under this system, for buck-passing, for denial of responsibility.

I am only reminded too well that there was a previous situation in which we had this kind of stuff. I recall when my colleague, the former Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, brought a motion to this Honourable House in February of 1996 asking for debate on dredging in the North Sound. We were calling for a halt at that time. At one point in the debate there was controversy; indeed, the Minister responsible for Education and Planning and the Leader of Government Business challenged my colleague and accused him of misleading the House when my colleague suggested that part of the responsibility for such a decision lay with the Executive Council. It is important to record that by bringing this matter to the Legislative Assembly for the people's representatives to debate and vote upon, that kind of cloud will be eliminated. The responsibility then will rest clearly with the people's representatives, and no one will be able to dodge behind their office and say, No, it is not my responsibility. It is the Department of the Environment, or it is the Department of Planning. Everyone will know.

Also, it is only fitting, seeing to a large extent that this matter is concerned with resources commonly owned by the Crown, and, by inference, the people, that ultimate decisions, debates and approvals be made by the people's representatives. I am not saying that the Executive Council is not comprised of the people's representatives, and therefore, the only reason the decision-making process should be removed from that body. I am saying, however, that when it comes to the Parliament, when it comes to the Legislative Assembly, contrary to the comprising of the Executive Council, the Legislative Assembly is made up of all fifteen representatives of the people, so everyone will have a say. The Executive Council is comprised of only five of the elected representatives of the people; hence, the majority two-thirds is denied input at that decision-making level.

Back to the more important point of transparency: the Hansards of this Honourable House will show that I, the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, have advocated, continue to advocate, and will remain committed as one of the foremost advocates of transparency in Government. I am proud to stand here this afternoon to say that is one issue that this Honourable Member—who has been accused of many things—does not waffle on! From the time I came here I have been a believer in transparency in Government, because when the system is transparent it frees those involved from aspersions, insinuation, allegation and worse. Transparency is one of the fundamentals of democracy and good government.

I recognise, too, Mr. Speaker, that any arrangement or agreement made prior to this motion in regard to dredging will have to be honoured. Of course, we would not be so arrogant, so blinkered, or so ill-advised that we would attempt to come here and bring a motion which would be retroactive. So what this motion seeks to address is any arrangement entered into from here on in.

I believe that the motion before the House is reasonable. I believe that our constituents and the wider community would be appreciative of such a step, if accepted by the House. I believe that we will not necessarily be compromising our position, or in any way encumbering our ability to make a decision. And I hope that the Executive Council, guardians of power and prestige as they are, do not see this as a trespass or encroachment upon their all-powerful and exalted positions; but, rather, view it as a sharing of the responsibility of decision-making, and a broadening of democracy. More importantly, I would hope that they see it as an offer, a gesture to alleviate some of the apprehension and concerns people may have when these kinds of decisions are taken behind closed doors.

I want to say something that I believe is very important, because in any democracy lobbying goes on when decisions of this nature are being made. Indeed, in some jurisdictions, like the great United States, there are people who make their living as paid lobbyists. I understand in the Congress and Senate of the United States, there are people who walk the halls every day trying to buttonhole and pin down congressmen and senators, because they represent the tobacco industry, the motor vehicle industry, the banking industry, all kinds of industries. They seek to get a certain disposition for the industries they represent from the senators and congressmen.

Here in the Cayman Islands we do not have such a sophisticated system, but there are those of us who know that lobbying goes on. There is nothing wrong with that when it is above-board, legitimate and within means. I am saying that bringing it to debate in the Legislative Assembly does not stop people from calling up the Members and saying, We believe this is a good policy; that this decision would be good because x will stand to benefit, or y will stand to benefit, or these will be the spin-offs. Certainly any legitimate approach is welcome.

By this time all and sundry in our community know what a legitimate approach is. The last time I had a good look, Mr. Speaker, there were no legislators in here with horns. I am saying that, because this motion requesting that these matters come to the Legislative Assembly for debate, does not preclude interested parties from saying, We believe that the decision should go this way because it will be in the long-term best interest. We would certainly welcome, as is the case now, letters to the press, issues aired on Radio Cayman, on television—that is only healthy for democracy.

I want to get away from what the Jamaicans call, "all the 'su-suin'" that goes on in one area, and then—how do they say it in law?—the aggrieved parties, or the disgruntled people spread rumour and innuendo, which reflects and impinges upon the good conduct of those persons involved in the decision-making.

Lay it out in the open, so those who are interested can come here if they are so moved, listen, look, and learn firsthand what is taking place. This is what the motion is asking for. No more, no less. The motion is not saying that dredging should be stopped. The motion is not saying that only certain people should be allowed to dredge. The motion is not saying that we are blinkered in our approach. It is only saying that this matter is so important and so sensitive that it should rest with the people's representatives to decide upon.

Having made that point, Mr. Speaker, I can now take my seat, because I believe, even if I have to say so myself, that I have done fair with my introduction. Thank you, Sir.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. This motion, however well-intended, is one Government cannot support, but will offer an alternative that it feels is a sufficient solution to what has been raised.

This motion, in the first operative or "Resolved" part, as it is called here, states, "BE IT NOW THEREFORE RESOLVED that any change in policy regarding dredging be debated and voted upon in the Legislative Assembly." Under the Cayman Islands (Constitution) Order, section 7(1) says, "The Governor shall, subject to the following provisions of this section, consult with the Executive Council in the formulation of policy. . . ."

Also, at section 29(1) of the Constitution, it states, "Subject to the provisions of this Constitution, the Governor, with the advice and consent of the Assembly, may make laws for the peace, order and good government of the Islands."

A democracy, and indeed Commonwealth democracy, such as the United Kingdom and other Commonwealth Caribbean Islands, draws a very clear distinction between policy which is made by the executive, legislation which is made by the legislature, and judicial decisions which are made by the judiciary. That is basically the separation of powers between the three organs of government.

This motion attempts to put policymaking into the Legislative Assembly, and that is not right, as much as it would not be right for the Executive Council to make laws through the passing of skeleton laws by this Assembly and then to leave very wide and extensive regulations to be dealt with through the Executive Council. That is also why it is very important that this Legislature and the Executive Council do not cross over the border with the judiciary, the police or the enforcement of justice. The smooth operation of this Constitution relies very heavily on keeping policy where it should be with Executive Council, laws where they should be with the Legislative Assembly, and the judiciary where it should be as the judiciary.

The power to deal with dredging for Crown lands vests with the Governor under the Constitution. The alternative to this that we put forward is the following: "The Government will, in the future, put into effect the following policy: Applications for dredging in the North Sound, other than minor applications such as seawalls, wharves, jetties, giving access for a canal approved by the Central Planning Authority to deeper water will (1) be published in a newspaper once per week for four weeks, giving notice of the application and stating that written objections and representations may be made to the Permanent Secretary, Ministry of Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works, within at least four weeks from the date of the last notice; (2) such written objections and representations shall be considered by the Executive Council before a decision is taken thereon."

This, Mr. Speaker, will therefore ensure—and this has been done at times in the past—that with applications for dredging the public will have notice, and they will be able to make objections and representations relating to them, as well as the fact that MLAs will be aware and have notice of what is going on.

The other aspect of the motion deals with the dredging and excavation of Crown land, and this is dealt with in the Development and Planning Law. Under that Law, the appropriate body for dealing with this is the Central Planning Authority, which has to give its approval for any type of mining or quarrying in relation to any land, not just Crown land. That power vests with the Central Planning Authority, and from there is an appeal system to a tribunal, and thereafter to the court.

It would be wrong to substitute the Legislative Assembly for the Central Planning Authority, the Planning Appeals Tribunal and the court. I do not believe that the mover of this motion would or could have expected that the traditional way, or the legal way, I should say, that the mining or the quarrying of marl or excavating of land should be brought to this Legislature. That too would erode well-established principles, and under the Development and Planning Law, notices and publications, as appropriate, would be given so the public is quite aware of the position there.

Just a few days ago, this Honourable House debated and approved unanimously a motion relating to roads. Let us look at the practical aspect of life in reality when it comes to roads. The construction industry of the Cayman Islands depends on fill, it depends on rock, otherwise it will ultimately shut down if there is not a supply. To build the roads we have all stated need to happen, there must be marl, there must be fill, and we have to be realists. It has to either come from out of the seabed, out of the North Sound area—and I will talk a bit more on the Wickstead Report, where that said fill could come from—or it has to be taken from the land; or it has to be imported from somewhere else. They are the three options that remain. They all have problems related to them, and I do not know the answer. I doubt if anyone in here knows the absolute answer to which is better, which is more practical; but I would say that for us to continue to build houses and roads, some solution has to be found to producing fill.

Whether it is better to destroy the land and leave the seabed, or to dredge the seabed and leave the land, or to import fill which has its other risks in what may be imported with it, I do not know, and I am being honest. But I would say that one practical approach—and this is my personal view, I am not speaking here with this on behalf of Government—in the building of a large road, for example the Harquail Bypass where about 216,000 cubic yards of fill was used, and I understand the cost of fill is presently in these ranges: the crushed rock, 5/8 inch, well-graded, is about $24.13/cubic yard; crushed rock, 3-inch minus is $20/cu. yd.; shot rock (rock that is blasted) is $15.86; coarse inland marl is $16; and fine dredged marl is $12.50/yd.

I am saying this because if we are going to build large amounts of roads, for example, if we need, say, a half million or million cubic yards of marl—or fill, I should say, I should not say marl—whatever it is, whether it is rock or marl or whatever, then depending on what we use, if it is the crushed rock, we would be looking at between $20-24 million dollars for a million cubic yards, and that is really about four or five times the amount that was used on the Harquail Bypass. If the Government took a more practical approach, and it used from wherever was the most conservative way of getting this, and for example, if it cost $4 to mine the marl or $5 to dredge it, provided this was all done, proper studies were done, things were carefully done, then it would save $15-16 million dollars on a million cubic yards.

Many years ago, Dr. Roy McTaggart had a phrase that said, "A penny saved is a penny made." If we are realistic about building roads, then I think perhaps we should all sit down, all Members here, and look at the alternatives, because if Government itself has fill that it can get at $4-5 a cubic yard, then it must make sense to consider using it at $4-5 dollars a yard, instead of paying $24 or $20 a cubic yard.

I just throw this out, because we were all talking about building more and more roads, and the reality is that fill has to come from somewhere. I believe in conservation. I think everyone here believes in conservation. There are obviously very strict standards that have to be applied to anything that is done, whether it is the mining or dredging of marl inland, dredging of marl from out of the seabed, or in fact any sort of change that is done to the environment. So that principle underlies everything I have said here today. Back many years ago. . . and this is now being updated, as I understand it. The Ministry is in the stage of getting a report on dredging and mining of fill. But the Wickstead Report many years ago, 1976, in fact stated, or recommended, at page IX, that approximate estimated yield from an area—which I understand is the marl pit area near to the airport and in that vicinity—they then estimated and recommended that area be restricted and a yield of 12 million cubic yards of marl fill could be taken from there. I think to date two or three million cubic yards have been taken.

I am not saying that whatever is done should be done in such a way that it hurts the environment as such, but realistically there has to be some trade-off. I am saying that we have just been talking about the roads we are going to build, and fill must come from somewhere for them.

In relation to the question of transparency, Mr. Speaker, with the Central Planning Authority, objections and representations can be made there by the public. That is about as transparent as it can get. It is the same now as it was, I guess, many years ago, since the Law came in in the 1970s.

In relation to dredging other than minor dredging, this will be published, as I stated earlier, in a newspaper once per week for four weeks, and written objections and representations will be taken and considered by Executive Council, so there you have transparency as well.

The area that perhaps worries me most is ensuring that the powers of this Legislative Assembly, the powers of the Executive Council, or the policy side, and the powers that vest in the judiciary and the courts remain as they should be under the Constitution. I read those sections making that very clear. I believe that what we have put forward is what will achieve the results of the Private Member's Motion in relation to transparency, but it will preserve the Constitution of these Islands as it should be, because this Legislature should never be a substitute for the executive and policymaking body, nor for the judiciary, the same as the Executive Council should never be a legislative-making body, because that belongs to this Honourable House, as does the administration of justice to the courts. The day we move over the fine line between us here and the executive, then it will only be a matter of time when we move over the line. . . or there will be a movement over the line, I should say—I would not like to say 'we' in that, because I never would—there will be a movement over the line in relation to the third area of the separation of powers, which is the judiciary.

So I hope, Mr. Speaker, that the position we have taken is one that Honourable Members will find does provide transparency. It provides the right for representation by the public, for objections by the public, and once that happens. . . and I should say in the past, I believe during this Government and other government's times, as far as possible (and I know I have seen in the papers recently, for example) that the mining of marl, newspaper ads stated this was going on.

Just to leave with you, on the Harquail Bypass, I am going to show you where perhaps some answer from Government's point of view should be taken to try to save money for the public. The cost of the 1.8 miles of the Harquail Bypass, cost for fill was nearly $3.9 million; trucking was $720,000, which came over a lot of road, from a long distance away. That in itself is about four and a half million dollars that went there in fill, which comprised some 270,000 tons of fill. Looking at it from an economic point of view, if Government has fill on Government's land that could be purchased at one-fifth of that price, it means that four and a half million would probably only have cost $700,000. Think how much road could have been done with the savings of nearly $4 million. By the way, the hot mix was about $580,000, so that is not a very expensive part of it.

The only point I am making, Sir, is that a penny saved is a penny made. I think we should all sit down and look at this. With an extra four million dollars on a four and a half or five million dollar road, we could take the extra four million dollars and build several more miles of road. But I would like to reiterate that I am all for conservation. I believe that whatever is done, while it is quarrying on land or mining on land, whether it is mining of marl from the sea, or whether it is bringing it in from some other country, we need to look at the pros and cons of this, and to ensure that we conserve as much as we possibly can, while facing the reality that there must be the necessary fill for the construction industry to continue, for people to continue to build houses, for people to build roads or Government to build roads, and if this can be done in some way, after proper studies, obviously, Mr. Speaker, it can save the country about 4/5 or 3/4 of the cost of the fill for those roads. Obviously, we can build three or four times more road, nearly that amount I would say, because out of the total cost of $5.7 million, the fill and the trucking was actually $4.5 million; half a million labour, and about half a million for the cost of the hot mix. So let us look at that realistically, since I think we all feel that upgrading of roads in Cayman is very important.

In summary, I hope it is fairly clear, the position we have taken, in that we are saying first, under the Cayman Islands Constitution policymaking, under section 7 of the Constitution, is with the Executive Council; we are saying that under section 29 of the Constitution, the making of law, the legislative function, is in the Legislature; and under the Constitution, the judiciary remains with the judiciary and the courts, which are independent of both the executive and the Legislative Assembly. Also, that the specific dealing with land under the Constitution vests originally in the Governor.

Also, the Government, as does this House, fully supports strong conservation laws to ensure that future generations will be able to inherit as much as possible of the present natural resources of this country. But we also have to look on the other hand that we need roads to drive on, we need houses built for our children, the construction industry needs to move on, and we are now at a stage where fill is very critical to this country, and a solution has to be found in the near future. That solution should be weighted toward conserving as much of the country's natural resources as possible, and I hope this Legislative Assembly can find a way to both deal with the conservation of the environment while facing the practical approach of providing necessary fill, that in reality has to be found in the future for these Islands by either one of three methods: import it, quarry it out the land, or dredge it out of the sea.

With all three of those, there are pros and cons, there are advantages and disadvantages, but I believe a solution is there that is a good balance to conservation and to finding the necessary fill. Thank you.

The Speaker: Would this be a convenient time to take the afternoon break? I shall suspend proceedings for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.47 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.12 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Debate continues. Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause) The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. As the seconder of this motion, I guess it is obvious that I rise to support it. Before I start with my contribution to the cause, let me, with your permission, quickly read what was said in the Throne Speech (16 February 1996) mentioned in the motion.

“Executive Council has decided that there shall be no further dredging in the North Sound, except for an approval granted to Caymarl Ltd. to excavate the balance of material (784,100 cubic yards) that remained under a licence granted in 1988 for the dredging of 2 million yards of material from the borrow pit offshore the marl pit, just north of the George Town Barcadere. In addition, to further the final upgrading of the George Town Barcadere the Government will also consider an application from Simmons Enterprises for the excavation of 122,200 cubic yards which will complete the dredging of the basin at this location, to facilitate an increased amount of vessel traffic and usage.”

As the mover already mentioned, the purpose of this motion is not, for a minute, seeking to be retroactive. So we are not questioning any approval that has been granted, or any possible approval which might be considered and which was mentioned in that Throne Speech. We also wish to make very clear that any excavation inland or on Crown land, which has already been dealt with, is included in that thought process. We are not seeking to stymie any situation which prevails.

In February of 1996, there was a Private Member's Motion brought by the then Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, and for purposes of explaining the point I wish to make I would like to read that motion, with your permission, Sir. That motion stated:

“BE IT RESOLVED THAT Government consider commissioning an environmental impact study by recognised experts in the field, to be paid for by Government, and if the study finds that some further dredging may be done within acceptable limits, that Government tender the dredging works, secure the marl for use in public infrastructural development such as roads for the Island and sell any surplus marl;

“AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED THAT Government halt all dredging or proposed dredging until the said study has been presented to the people of the Islands and the Legislative Assembly for consideration and debate.”

There were accusations thrown back and forth from the Government Bench to the Backbench, from the Backbench to the Government Bench, during debate on this motion. To build up my argument, I have to again seek your indulgence to quote from a few areas. The first section I wish to quote is the contribution by the then Minister who is still responsible at this time for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works. He said...

The Speaker: Could you just quote the date?

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: 23 February 1996. Page 41 in the Hansard Report: “For this Motion to come here and say that Government is not taking steps to find out what can be done in the North Sound is utter rubbish. My department is presently working on terms of reference for the North Sound, something which was given to them long before this Motion came before the House. So for them to sit over there not knowing what is going on with regard to departmental operations, trying to mislead this country is ridiculous.” I am going to deal with this statement first.

Mr. Speaker, not very long ago, the Government Member who replied on behalf of Government for the motion which is before us, stated—and I wish not to quote verbatim, but my understanding of the gist of what he said was that the Department of the Environment was in the process of completing—and I am assuming he is talking about these same terms of reference referred to on 23 of the February 1996 Hansard. I will stop here if I need to be corrected and I misunderstood him.

He is not listening, Mr. Speaker, so I will go on. Mr. Speaker, that was...

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, may I just take a point of order?

The Speaker: What is your point of order?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The Member first said he was going to give way for me to say something, and then he went on to say I am not listening to him. If he wishes to give way, the way to do that, Sir, is to sit down, and then I can get up. So he cannot take a point of order to say that I am not getting up unless he gives way.

The Speaker: Do you have a point of order other than that? Please continue.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, so that the world will understand, I just looked across, and the look on the Minister's face—I am not an idiot! He was totally perplexed as to what was going on! It was totally fair for me to think he was not listening! He was asking the Minister for Health what I had said!

Mr. Roy Bodden: True, true!

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: And if he wants to make another point of order, I will sit down and make him do what he wants to do!

The Speaker: Please go on with your speech.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Mr. Speaker, the point I was making with what I had just quoted was that the Minister responsible for dredging mentioned, on 23 February 1996, that the Department—he said, “My department is presently working on terms of reference for the North Sound, something which was given to them long before this Motion came before the House.” This is two years hence, Mr. Speaker, and unless someone wishes to correct what I am going to say now, I have not heard anything about these terms of reference being developed since then. The statement was that they had instructions “long before” February of 1996, and this is two years later!

Everyone is talking now about how important it is. Lest I be misunderstood, Mr. Speaker, I cast no aspersions at the Department, because I am totally satisfied that that Department is conscientious. But it is just like the National Roads Plan. I am going to tell you what I believe: When it was said in this Honourable House by that same Minister—God knows I'm sorry he's not here—that a National Roads Plan was being developed, I happen to know that the very next day the people who were supposed to be developing the National Roads Plan had no instructions whatsoever about a National Roads Plan. They have since gotten instructions, but it was a good while after it was said in this Honourable House. Going from that experience, I really do not know when the Department got those terms of reference.

You see, we talk about dredging, and we bring a motion, and the Minister who chooses to reply (and finds himself boxed in so that he has to find a lame-duck excuse not to accept the motion by talking about a separation of powers) is not fully aware of what is going on in the other Department which deals with this. That is not my problem. We are very concerned, because while rumours abound. . . and we know how that goes. There are some people on the Government Bench who know more than I do about rumours too. I wish to draw something to the attention of the House which occurred prior to the motion that was brought in February of 1996.

During the Mover's introduction of that motion, and for the record it is on page 36 of the Hansard of 23 February 1996, the Mover quoted a letter which had been circulating for quite some time regarding an application made for some dredging to be done in the North Sound. I will quote from that Hansard to read the letter:

“Dear Mr. Arch, Re: Intercoastal Waterway Proposal - North Sound. I am directed by His Excellency the Governor to advise that approval in principle has been granted in respect to your North Sound proposal dated 12th of July, 1995, which would serve to link all canal developments between Batabano and Omega Bay as well as the Main Channel. Please be advised however, that approval for the issuance of a coastal works licence to dredge the 6 million cubic yards of material, is reserved at this time, following the outcome of a full technical review of the application including an Environmental Impact Assessment by a firm approved by Government and at the expense of the applicant.”

Mr. Speaker, my purpose in reading the letter is not to go into a similar debate that ensued when the motion was brought in February of 1996. To this day—and I have read over the Hansards, and I remember the articles in the paper—but to this day, there has been no logical and reasonable and satisfactory explanation given to the public as to exactly what process took place for that letter to be written by the Ministry to the applicant.

MOMENT OF INTERRUPTION—4.30 PM

The Speaker: If I could interrupt you for just a minute, we have reached the hour of 4.30, and I am sure you are not going to be finished in the immediate future.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Certainly not, Sir, I am just starting.

The Speaker: I would entertain a motion for the adjournment of this House.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until 10.00 AM tomorrow morning.

The Speaker: The question is that this House do adjourn until 10.00 AM tomorrow. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House do stand adjourned until 10.00 AM tomorrow.

AT 4.30 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM FRIDAY, 13 MARCH 1998.

EDITED
FRIDAY
13 MARCH 1998
10.15 AM

The Speaker: Prayers by the Third Elected Member for George Town.

PRAYERS

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived: We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy Name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth, that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly, that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy great Name's sake.

Let us say the Lord's Prayer together: Our Father, who art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name. Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us. Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the Kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace, now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed.

READING BY THE SPEAKER OF
MESSAGES AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: I have received apologies for absence from the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Item number 3, Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. Question number 43, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION 43

No. 43: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning to state whether there are any classes at the George Hicks and John Gray High Schools with thirty or more students.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Of the 1,440 classes per week at George Hicks High School, the only classes with more than thirty students are those combined classes in Music or Physical Education. The Music and girls' Physical Education classes have two teachers present during those times. At John Gray High School there are 2,240 periods (556 classes) per week with less than thirty students. There is only one class of Mathematics in Year 11 with thirty students.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say what is considered to be the optimum class size for students sitting examinations?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The high standard we have set as the optimum is twenty-five, that is highly unusual anywhere in the world in this day and age. As the Member can see, we are dealing with 1,440 classes in one and 2,240 periods in the other, and only one class out of the 2,240 has thirty students, which I think surely even he will recognise is very good.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: In his answer the Honourable Minister said that his class sizes are highly unusual. Can the Minister present any comparable statistics from other regions so that Members can see that what he has told us is 'highly unusual,' is, indeed, unusual?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Obviously, I do not have statistics with me today, but I can get them. When we travelled to several other countries some years back on behalf of education, it was very clear. . . in fact, there were some schools being built to take 2,500 children in high school. With the help from this Honourable Legislative Assembly by way of funds, the schools are very good. The classes are small in comparison to others. I remember going into a primary school in one of the other countries with sixty children in one of the two classes we visited.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: After all of that, can the Honourable Minister say when the House may have those statistics so that the House can compare and arrive at a conclusion for itself?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: To make sure those statistics are up to date, I will write to the other countries and, subject to the mail, and subject to when they reply, I will get them and send them through the mail, or put them in here for delivery to the Honourable Member.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: I was under the impression, by the way the Honourable Minister answered, that he had the statistics at his fingertips. Is he now telling the House that his answer was based on conjecture and hope?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The only hope I have is that we try to remain with the issues in this Honourable House throughout the rest of this legislature. I travelled to those countries. I saw the classes with my own eyes. What I am saying is that if the Honourable Member wishes to have up-to-date statistics, I will have to write. But we travelled to three developed countries and I saw this with my own eyes. I talked to the people in those countries, and I can say as fact that the classes and the schools in this country are the best you will find anywhere in the world.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: In the answer to the substantive question, the Minister stated that the only classes with more than thirty students at the George Hicks High School are those combined classes in music or PE. He also stated that these classes have two teachers present during those times. Can the Honourable Minister state the reason why these classes have to be combined?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I do not have the answer to that. I will have to get it for the Member. I would not like to get into conjecture on that one.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: While the Minister is seeking that answer, could he also check with the timetable at the school to see if the problem stems from having to overlap with the timetable?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I am happy to do that for the Honourable Member.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Perhaps the Honourable Minister does not have this at his fingertips either, but the answer says that at the John Gray High School there is one class of Mathematics in Year 11 with thirty students. Can the Honourable Minister say why this single class has thirty students?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I understand it is because the classes are grouped by ability, so it is a grouping.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: For purposes of clarity, can the Honourable Minister say if the answer actually means that there are exactly thirty students in that class, or are there more?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: This answer came from the Principal, and it says 'with thirty,' so I would assume it is thirty.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, the next question is No. 44, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 44

No. 44: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation to state whether there are any overseas staff recruited for the new Hospital who have not been employed at this time.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: It is common practice in all areas of Government for overseas staff to be recruited for a post some time before actually taking up paid employment in that post. The Health Services Department is like other departments of Government in that respect. It is practical and makes economic sense, particularly when the interview panel travels overseas to conduct interviews, to include those interviews for posts that will become available or vacant in the foreseeable future.

However, I can state emphatically that no overseas staff for the new Hospital, or the Health Services Department as a whole, are being paid by Government without carrying out their assigned duties.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say how many of the recruited staff fall into this category at this time?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: For the sake of accuracy, I would prefer to provide that answer in writing for the Member. I would not want to give incorrect figures.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say if his Ministry offers any orientation to the newly recruited staff? If so, can he give the House a synopsis of what such an orientation includes?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: The orientation is, first of all, a general overview of the whole Health Services Department, then a briefing on the workings of the Civil Service. The recruits are then taken to the specific unit they will be assigned to in the Health Services Department and then in that area, given an overview and presentation of that unit.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries the next question is No. 45, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 45

No. 45: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning to state the current staff complement of Cayman Airways Ltd.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: There are currently 308 employed by Cayman Airways Ltd.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister tell the House how this complement compares to the complement prior to the most recent down-sizing exercise?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: At the end of 1992 there were 399.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say how many of this 308 are Caymanian? Also, how many work in the Cayman Islands?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, 199 are Caymanian (this is in the local area), and 31 are non-Caymanian. There are 78 staff outside of the Cayman Islands. I do not have the breakdown on how many of those are Caymanian and non-Caymanian, but I have been told that the majority would be non-Caymanian.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: My request is that the Minister give an undertaking to provide this information to the Honourable House, especially with a breakdown of the staff at Miami International Airport.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I am happy to do that. I am sorry that I do not have it here. I have a lot of statistics, but not that specific one.

The Speaker: The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Can the Honourable Minister say if consideration is normally given to Caymanians who are legally resident in the United States when vacancies at the Miami International Airport are advertised?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: By all means. That is the policy of Cayman Airways, as well as that of Government. Hopefully that is being fully carried out.

The Speaker: The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: I thank the Honourable Minister for that answer, but I will meet with him at the break to give him some further information.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say if there are any plans to increase the staff with the proposed purchase of the aircraft, hopefully in the near future?

The Speaker: That is outside the ambit of this question, but if the Minister wishes he may answer. The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The actual commercial plan has not been drawn up yet. I really cannot answer that. I would guess there would be some small increase. But I should say that the Board of Directors has put a moratorium on employing new staff unless it is a decision by the Board. The over-riding view is always safety, so despite the moratorium whatever is necessary is done, including filling of posts. It just adds a second way of attempting to keep staff to the necessary minimum.

The Speaker: The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Can the Honourable Minister say if any of the Caymanians employed at the Miami International Airport were considered for the position of Manager, who was just replaced within the last year?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I understand that this was advertised internally and externally and all who applied—at least all Caymanians who applied—were interviewed. After that the choice was made.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Can the Honourable Minister tell the House the nationality of the new Manager and his past employment?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: He is now a citizen of the United States, from Mexico. He was formally with Northwest Airlines, I have been told, in Miami.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, that concludes Question Time for this morning.

Item number 4, Statement by Honourable Ministers/Members of Government. The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

STATEMENTS BY HONOURABLE MINISTERS/MEMBERS OF GOVERNMENT

PRIVATE SECTOR FINANCIAL SERVICES SEMINAR SÃO PAULO, BRAZIL, 7 APRIL 1998

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I would like to advise this Honourable House that His Excellency the Governor, the Leader of Government Business, and I will be joining with Private Sector Financial Services Professionals in hosting a seminar in Brazil. The purpose of the seminar is to fully acquaint the Brazilian financial community with the operations of the Cayman Islands financial industry. The seminar will take place in São Paulo on 7 April 1998.

Brazil is an important financial services market for us, as evidenced by the number of Brazilian institutions here. It is clear that a jurisdictional presentation to Brazilian financial services providers will not only expand the scope for business opportunities, but more importantly improve the accuracy of information within the marketplace and reinforce the image of the Cayman Islands as a well regulated, quality financial services centre. In this regard, of particular value is the current initiative by the Cayman Islands Monetary Authority and the Central Bank of Brazil to strengthen, across the board, the banking supervision arrangements.

I should like to use this opportunity to thank the Brazilian institutions here for their support in this undertaking, as well as those members of the private sector who will be participating, and the office of the Co-ordinator of Marketing and Promotions.

The Speaker: Statement by the Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

TRAFFIC CONGESTION

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I am pleased to advise this Honourable House that my Ministry has now been given the responsibility for traffic management. I offer the following views to Honourable Members and the listening public:

Grand Cayman has been experiencing steady growth in the vehicle fleet and corresponding traffic flow over the past fifteen to twenty years. There has been no major expansion or upgrading of the main road network during this period, save for a few connector roads on the outskirts of George Town, and the recently constructed Harquail arterial which provides an alternate route to the southern end of the West Bay Road.

Roadways, like power lines, telecommunication lines, water mains or sewerage, have maximum capacities. These are capacities beyond which there are substantial trade-offs for any increase. In power distribution, for example, the main trade-off is voltage reduction followed by loss of electricity due to failure of the conductors. In telecommunication the trade-off is similar—a loss of telephone service as circuits are not available. In the case of roadways, the major trade-off is congestion and resulting delays in travel time.

Actual traffic flow on the road network in Grand Cayman has been monitored by the Public Works Department through an annual traffic count exercise for the past ten to fifteen years. This data provides an excellent resource for projecting future levels of traffic and formulating possible solutions to existing and projected problems.

One of the most unique characteristics of roads and vehicular traffic is that customers are not limited to a dissatisfaction with delays. The vast majority (like myself) see themselves as knowledgeable in prescribing a solution as well. It follows, therefore, that while it is never practical to be able to give comparative evaluations to every proposal, it is invaluable to be able to objectively evaluate a number of key alternatives.

The projection of traffic volume and the analysis of potential improvements to the road network can be done by experienced judgment, extensive calculations, or by a consumer-based traffic modelling. Traffic modelling programmes are the most effective and efficient means of evaluating alternative improvements and they are eminently the most objective. A community as economically vibrant as Grand Cayman should have such a model and should maintain it.

As a first step towards addressing the traffic problems, my Ministry proposes to seek the advice of an individual who is knowledgeable in road traffic and transportation matters. For the sake of objectivity, such an individual should perhaps come from outside the Cayman Islands. In order to further ensure the objectivity, the individual should perhaps be drawn from a public agency rather than from the private sector. Finally, the individual should come from a community that has been experiencing sustained economic growth, which has a level of private vehicle ownership similar to the Cayman Islands.

This individual should be invited to spend a week or two in Grand Cayman during which time he/she would, among other things:

- ◇ tour the existing road network and sample connector and subdivision roads;
- ◇ view the traffic congestion from the air during morning, lunch time and afternoon;
- ◇ review available traffic count data;
- ◇ view available mapping of existing road network and topography;
- ◇ review Planning requirements for access/egress and parking;
- ◇ meet with the representatives of Public Works and the Lands and Survey Departments to determine local resources and capabilities in respect of land information, roadway design, and a right-of-way preservation and acquisition;
- ◇ hold discussions with His Excellency the Governor and all Members of the Legislative Assembly to garner the quality of traffic flow which they would like to aspire to achieve.

The individual would prepare a report touching on:

- ◇ the physical condition of the existing road network;
- ◇ the capacity of the existing network in relation to existing and projected traffic volumes; and
- ◇ a strategic approach to addressing the inadequacies identified.

The individual should return to Grand Cayman within two to four weeks to present the report to His Excellency the Governor and all Members of the Legislative Assembly. The report should be made public immediately.

The Ministers responsible for transport and roads will jointly convene a meeting of all Elected Members of the Legislative Assembly to develop and agree upon an action plan.

SHORT QUESTIONS Standing Order 30(2)

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush : Under Standing Order 30(2), I am wondering if you will allow two short questions.

The Speaker: I will.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush : The Minister has not said how long the study will take. Can he say how long it will take?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I realise that the statement was quite long. It does refer to the individual being invited to spend a week or two in Grand Cayman to carry out a series of activities, and I mentioned some such as, touring the existing roads, and viewing the traffic congestion. He would return to the Cayman Islands in two to four weeks' time to present his report. So, on the outside, we are looking at a period of approximately six weeks.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush : Can the Honourable Minister say who this person works for, which company he is coming from, what his experience is, and what the cost of this exercise will be?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: We have a relationship with Miami/Dade, and with Florida. The Traffic Management and Strategic Planning Section of that State body does work for a variety of other areas of the United States and is apparently eminently known for doing traffic management in particular. We are talking about an estimated cost of less than $10,000 before we go ahead and commit to substantial expenditure to improve some of the roads in Grand Cayman. This traffic management review is dealing with all of the roads. It is not a requirement in dealing with the extension of the Harquail Bypass to the Galleria area.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: I have two short questions, if I may.

The Speaker: Please proceed.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say if an approach was made to the Public Works Department to ascertain if any of their staff could undertake such a study?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: The statement I read this morning was viewed and commented on by the Permanent Secretary of the Minister responsible for Roads, by the Chief Engineer, and by one of their executives who deals with road construction. I understand there is a young man who has a degree in traffic management. But it is like when a doctor diagnosis that you have a problem and you require surgery—sometimes it is important to get an independent second opinion. It does not mean that the individual is over-ruled in any way, it is just that in this exercise, as I view it, he is a principal person who will work with this individual and will be the focal point of his activity.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister explain what he means by the statement "for the sake of objectivity such an individual should perhaps come from outside the Cayman Islands"? Does this mean that it would be impossible to get an objective review inside the Cayman Islands?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: That statement really deals with the optimum way of getting objectivity. It is not saying that you cannot get objectivity from within the country. It is basically saying that if you are going to get independent advice about a particular matter, it is best that you use an approach which may gather that.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Can the Honourable Minister say whether or not he perceives this as the policy—to view objectivity, something that can only be established and believed in if the individuals involved in the studies are not Caymanians?

The Speaker: I think you are asking for his opinion.

Dr. Frank McField: His professional opinion.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I do not believe that this has much to do with whether the person is local or not local. It has to do with getting the answer we are seeking to get in an objective way. I am not trying to say that people who are Caymanian are not objective, but I do know from my own experience that when I am close to a project, and have made decisions and given recommendations, I am committed in that frame of mind. If the Government then uses some other person to evaluate the same project and comes with a different opinion, then I am more able to see that other point of view, than the point of view I have at the moment.

It does not matter whether it is Tom Jefferson giving the advice or Bill Clinton, in the real sense of the word.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: I would like to ask the Minister whether or not he would be prepared to withdraw this particular statement since I believe it is damaging to the reputation of the Caymanian people.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: As I mentioned earlier, this statement was perused by the Permanent Secretary responsible for roads in that Ministry, by the chief engineer, as well as an executive who assists him in road matters. I did not hear them take this view so I see no need to withdraw it.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: One final point here. My understanding of objectivity has to do not with a person's position, but the person's rational ability to separate his personal interest from the situation being assessed. Scientifically we know there is a difference between subjectivity and objectivity, and that objectivity is achievable once we understand the subjective elements which play a role in our research. As a social scientist and a Caymanian, I strongly object to statements like that being made because it disqualifies persons like me from conducting scientific studies in this country.

The Speaker: Can you turn that into a question?

Dr. Frank McField: Would not the Honourable Minister agree with these points?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: This statement was not made with any view to damaging anyone, or to point to anyone's inability or anything of the sort. This statement was made to bring clarity to the whole issue, if we can, and to garnish as much input into the process we are talking about. I hope that those who are in Public Works, other than the two persons I mentioned, do not see this statement in the light that the Fourth Elected Member for George Town does because it is not meant to damage them in any way at all. If that is something they would read, then I apologise for the statement, but at the present time I see no reason to withdraw it.

The Speaker: Item number 5, Government Business, Bills. I will entertain a motion for the suspension of Standing Orders 45 and 46 in order to deal with this Bill. The Honourable Third Official Member.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

BILLS

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDERS 45 AND 46

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I beg to move the suspension of Standing Orders 45 and 46 to enable a Bill entiled, The Monetary Authority (Amendment) (Reserves) Bill, 1998, to be read a first and second time.

The Speaker: I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against No.
AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: STANDING ORDERS 45 AND 46 SUSPENDED TO ENABLE THE BILL SET OUT UPON THE ORDER PAPER TO BE READ AND FIRST AND SECOND TIME.

FIRST READING

THE MONETARY AUTHORITY (AMENDMENT) (RESERVES) BILL, 1998

Clerk: The Monetary Authority (Amendment) (Reserves) Bill, 1998.

The Speaker: The Bill is deemed to have been read a first time and set down for Second Reading.
Second Reading.

SECOND READING

THE MONETARY AUTHORITY (AMENDMENT) (RESERVES) BILL, 1998

Clerk: The Monetary Authority (Amendment) (Reserves) Bill, 1998.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I beg to move the Second Reading of a Bill entitled, The Monetary Authority Amendment) (Reserves) Bill, 1998.

This Bill seeks to amend the Monetary Authority Law by reducing the aggregate reserve requirements of the Cayman Islands Monetary Authority from 130% to 115% of demand liabilities in line with the requirement which existed under the Currency Law (1995 Revision) which was repealed and replaced by the Monetary Authority Law.

As Members are aware, under the existing Monetary Authority Law there is a requirement for a currency reserve of 115% of the Authority's demand liabilities. In addition, there is a further requirement for a separate general reserve of 15% of demand liabilities. This latter requirement did not exist under the Currency Law, but, instead, the requirement was for a currency reserve of 115% of demand liabilities within which there was to be kept a general reserve of 15%.

Therefore, in order to justify the establishment of this general reserve under the Monetary Authority Law it was intended that the currency reserves which had previously been set at 115% of demand liabilities should be reduced to 100%. The currency reserves, when combined with the general reserves would therefore achieve an aggregate position of 115%, thus keeping in line with the arrangement which existed under the previous legislation (The Currency Law) which has now been repealed.

Accordingly, Clause 4 of the Bill seeks to amend section 8 of the Monetary Authority Law by reducing the percentage of the currency reserves from 115% to 100% of demand liabilities. The separate requirement for general reserves to be kept separately at the level of 15% of demand liabilities remains in force. Thus, the aggregate reserve requirements will be 115% of demand liabilities.

It is considered that an aggregate reserve of 115% of demand liabilities will be sufficient to maintain the Authority's viability and to also enable it to continue to make its contribution to the general revenue of the Cayman Islands.

I should point out that this 115% is a very conservative position that has been maintained since the Currency Board was introduced. Unlike most countries in the region and elsewhere, which keep their reserve requirements at a fraction or percentage of the demand liabilities or currency in circulation, the Cayman Islands Government has always thought it prudent to have reserves in excess of the demand liabilities which is the amount of currency in circulation.

I commend this Bill to Honourable Members.

The Speaker: The question is the second reading of a Bill entitled The Monetary Authority (Amendment) (Reserves) Bill, 1998. If there is no debate, I will ask the Mover if he wishes to exercise his right to reply.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I would like to thank Honourable Members for their tacit support.

The Speaker: I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED. THE MONETARY AUTHORITY (AMENDMENT) (RESERVES) BILL, 1998, GIVEN A SECOND READING.

The Speaker: The House will now go into Committee to consider The Monetary Authority (Amendment) (Reserves) Bill, 1998.

HOUSE IN COMMITTEE AT 11.04 AM

COMMITTEE ON BILL

The Chairman: Please be seated. The House is now in Committee. May I assume that as usual we authorise the Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Affairs to correct minor printing errors and such the like in these Bills?

Would the Clerk state the Bill and read the Clauses?

The Monetary Authority (Amendment) (Reserves) Bill, 1998

Clerk: Clause 1. Short title.
Clause 2. Interpretation.
Clause 3. Validation of failure to allocate profits.
Clause 4. Amendment of section 8 - Allocation of profits.
Clause 5. Amendment of section 28 - Currency Reserve.

The Chairman: The question is that Clauses 1 through 5 do stand part of the Bill. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: CLAUSES 1 THROUGH 5 PASSED.

Clerk: A Bill for a Law to Amend the Monetary Authority Law, 1996; to reduce the reserve requirements of the Cayman Islands Monetary Authority; and for incidental and connected purposes.

The Chairman: The question is that the Title do stand part of the Bill. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: TITLE PASSED.

The Chairman: That concludes proceedings in Committee. I shall put the question that the Bill be reported to the House. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: THAT THE BILL BE REPORTED TO THE HOUSE.

HOUSE RESUMED AT 11.07 AM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

REPORT ON BILL

The Monetary Authority (Amendment) (Reserves) Bill, 1998

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I beg to report that a Bill entitled The Monetary Authority (Amendment) (Reserves) Bill, 1998 was considered by a Committee of the whole House and passed without amendment.

The Speaker: The Bill is set down for Third Reading.

At this time proceedings are suspended for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.08 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 11.46 AM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Other Business, Private Member's Motion No. 2/98, Change of Dredging Policy. The First Elected Member for George Town continuing.

OTHER BUSINESS

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 2/98

CHANGE OF DREDGING POLICY

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Before continuing the debate, I would like to crave the Chair's indulgence, in accordance with the provision of Standing Order 25, to move an amendment to Private Member's Motion No. 2/98 which is being debated at present.

The Speaker: Under Standing Order 25 I waive the two day notice. You may move the amendment.

AMENDMENT TO PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 2/98 Standing Order 25

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I would like to amend Private Member's Motion No. 2/98 as follows:

By deleting the word "policy" as it appears in the first line of the first Resolve, and substituting therefor the words, "the Government's decision as read in the 1996 Throne Speech by his Excellency the Governor"; and by inserting the words "in the North Sound" after the word "dredging" as it appears in the first line of the first Resolve.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: I beg to second the motion.

The Speaker: The amendment has been moved and seconded. Do you wish to speak to it?

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Just to briefly state to all Members that the purpose of this amendment is simply to clarify in our minds the position taken by the Government in regard to the separation of powers. We on the Back-bench do understand the separation of powers, and from the contribution by the Leader of Government Business on behalf of the Government our understanding is that the main problem with the motion and its wording is where the word "policy" has been used.

The intention of the motion was not to dabble into the general policy of the Executive Branch of Government, but to simply deal specifically with an announcement that was made by His Excellency the Governor in his Throne Speech in 1996. As a result, what we have done to make sure that the intent is very clear, is to move this amendment as I have just read. It simply is meant to specifically deal with the announcement made by His Excellency regarding dredging in the North Sound. That is the purpose of the amendment.

The Speaker: The amendment is open for debate. The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The amendment that is put forward is in reality and de facto the same as the motion as regards policy, because that decision of Government quite clearly, once again, is put in here, "Government's decision." Government's decision is policy, Sir. There is no way around it. A rose by any other name is just as sweet a rose. This does not take it any further.

The aspect of adding "in the North Sound" to that, seems to be going in so it would Resolve that any change in policy regarding dredging "in the North Sound". . . with the other amendment going in before to just say "dredging in the North Sound be debated and voted upon." No matter how this amendment tries to deal with this it is, in effect, the same. This is policy, Government's decisions are policy decisions under section 7 of the Constitution.

Under section 29 of the Constitution the Legislature is empowered to legislate and make laws. Under section 7 of the Constitution the Executive Council makes policy. So I am certain that it does not take this any further. It dresses it up a little bit, but, in effect, it is still policy and we are back to the same principle of the Legislature itself attempting to make policy which is clearly not what the Constitution says.

I cannot support this amendment in the form it is in, Sir.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak?
The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: I listened to what the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning said, that the words we used to amend this motion were just 'dressing it up.' One would have thought, had this been a change in policy, in the Governor's Throne Speech it should have been stressed that Executive Council has amended or changed its policy, and very clearly stated that there would be no further dredging in the North Sound.

As the mover of the amendment stated, we, as the Backbench of Parliament, do respect the separation of powers, thus the reason for amending the motion. In the debate offered by that Honourable Minister on the original motion, I got the feeling that deep down he would somehow like to accept this motion, but he has a problem with the wording. I would ask the Government, if in the interest of these islands it would like to accept this motion, that it put forward an amendment whereby all Members of Parliament can be happy.

Should I have been a Member of Executive Council, I would have accepted this motion with open arms in that the public will know exactly what goes on in the granting of a licence for dredging, particularly in the North Sound. It would leave me free of any assumption or rumour, because it would be open and the entire Cayman Islands would understand where the Government is coming from, and whether or not they want to approve a licence. As representatives of the people we have an obligation because the general public does not run to Executive Council over matters dealing with dredging, they run to their representatives in this Parliament—but our hands are tied.

I ask the Government to reconsider and maybe come up with some amendment that can be accepted by it and the Backbench. As stated in the original motion, this is an environmental issue, and the Honourable Minister stated that he supports the environment. It is very important. I ask the Government to reconsider and see if it can come up with an amendment that can be accepted by both sides of this Parliament. Maybe that Honourable Minister would give us a reply to this suggestion.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak to the amendment?

The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: I would like to try to assist in getting a compromise, since I am aware of the reasons why the movers of this amendment have suggested a change, and that it is being said that there is a division of power. But we all understand the reason why there exists a division of power in the first place is so that people can allow governments to function democratically. For Government to function democratically, it has to consult the people and get a consensus so that the majority have a way of expressing their opinions and establishing their will.

The will of the people is the will that we are here to look after. If an issue comes up that causes so much public concern, and if the way in which it is traditionally handled no longer seems to be to the satisfaction of the general public because transparency is no longer obvious, it is important that we find a resolution to the situation we find ourselves in. All the amendment is saying is that the movers of the original motion are willing to compromise in order for this particular motion to become acceptable to the entire House.

It is important that we do not look at the question of the division of power from a totally rigid and legalistic point of view, but that we also look at it from a practical point of view and look at the intention that people had in mind when forming those divisions. As I say, democracy is to protect the people, not the different branches abstractly and absolutely.

Because of the apparent conspiracies involved today because of the importance of this scarce material, we need to have a little bit more transparency in the decision-making process. There is no reason why the Parliament—which is, the ultimate body, not the Executive Council—there is no reason for anybody could say that it is not legally possible, or permissible, for Parliament to reserve certain decisions to be made in this Parliament rather than in Executive Council. The Parliament can, if it thinks the issues it is dealing with are important enough, ask that those decisions be made on the floor of the Parliament. It allows the general public to have access to the decision-making process, and transparency is possible; whereas in Executive Council you have a certain amount of secrecy. We in the Legislative Assembly never have access to the records or minutes of the Executive Council, and can never know upon what basis these decisions are made.

I think it is important that the Government Bench, in particular, understands the nature of the situation, understands the suspicions that surround the whole question of dredging, and come clean and give this motion the possibility of being fairly debated by making a compromise, at least, with regard to the whole definition of decision versus policy. We know what Government's executive branch is there, all we are saying is that we are all here to do the same thing—preserve the interests and rights of the people of the Cayman Islands. We feel that in regard to dredging, that interest and that right could be best preserved in the entire Parliament rather than segregated on a level in the Executive Council that would not give us access to any type of scrutiny.

I support this amendment.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: I have a couple of questions and a few comments. This amendment calls for any decision in respect to dredging in the North Sound ... in the 1996 Throne Speech, the Governor made an announcement that there would be no more dredging in the North Sound. So, I do not see where Government would have a problem, in that if there is a change in policy in regard to dredging in the North Sound, then it should welcome it being discussed and debated by the Backbench or the whole House.

This particular amendment seems to beg the question in respect to applications for dredging in the North Sound as opposed to applications for dredging anywhere else on the island. I do not know, Mr. Speaker. I think there should be one policy—either Executive Council retains the decision on applications for dredging, irrespective of where that dredging takes place; or we say, 'Let's give it to the Legislative Assembly to deal with.' But I have no problem supporting this amendment because we have told our people in West Bay—and I thought it really hurt us in the last election as it was a very sensitive issue—that we would not support any application in regard to dredging in the North Sound.

I think those are the questions that need to be answered: Whether or not we are going to have one set of rules for applications to dredge in the North Sound, and then another one for dredging in other parts of the country. I believe that we should have one. This issue of dredging is such a national issue, such a sensitive national issue that I believe that we as legislators have to be very careful in how we deal with the issue.

On the other hand, I respect . . . and I can only go by how I am advised, but if Constitutionally the issue of dredging is a policy made by Executive Council, and if you are saying that we do not dabble in the responsibilities of Executive Council like we do not dabble in the responsibilities of the Courts, then I can appreciate that position.

I do support the amendment, but I reserve my right to speak on the general motion.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: I am happy there are persons on the Backbench the calibre of which I have listened to this morning. It gives me great pleasure to witness the eloquent and convincing arguments offered by every person on the Backbench thus far commenting on this amendment. It also shows that there are persons on the Backbench willing to compromise, and willing to co-operate and exercise ultimate responsibility in the business of looking after the will of our constituents and the country.

Based on the position, as laid out by the Leader of Government Business, the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning, I cannot see how the Government is now trying to avoid its responsibility in supporting this amendment, and trying to abnegate its responsibility when this amendment complies and addresses the concerns that the Government laid out as per the debate of the Honourable Leader of Government Business. I hope that the interested public—because this is, indeed, a sensitive issue—realises that the responsibility lay not with the Government but with the Backbench, because this amendment has met the criterion the Government said it would be willing to consider and accommodate.

I will not attempt to rehash all of the eloquent arguments put forward by my colleagues. I have but one final point to make. Being a good school teacher, I like to do a lot of research. I would like to remind the Honourable Leader of Government Business of a statement he made as recorded in our Hansards of 17 April, 1997. I hope that after I read this, his old iceberg heart will be melted. On page 202, that Honourable Minister said, commenting on The Governor Vesting of Lands (Amendment) (Dispositions) Bill, 1997: “The Bill, while short, is a milestone. For the first time the Executive Council has said that they are prepared to take power from Executive Council and put it into the Legislative Assembly.”

Mr. Speaker, I crave your indulgence to read that again. The Minister said, “The Bill, while short, is a milestone. For the first time the Executive Council has said that they are prepared to take power from Executive Council and put it into the Legislative Assembly.” He goes on, Mr. Speaker, “That shows the public clearly that this Executive Council is by no means power hungry; they are stable (as is the full Legislative Assembly) and prepared in instances which are extremely important, such as this....” He goes on and says, “It shows that this is an open Government.”

I rest my case, and I want to see how that Minister instructs his colleagues to vote, seeing that he said this is an ‘open Government.’

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak on the amendment? Does the mover wish to reply?

The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: There is not much left to be said. In summary, the intent of this amendment is based on the sensitivity of the issue; it is an attempt to assure the public of this country, because of the sensitivity of the issue, that all matters dealing with the specific issue of dredging in the North Sound are dealt with openly, that the public can be totally satisfied as to the decision-making process.

It is by no means any attempt to cross-tread any of the Government’s authority or the accepted separation of powers. Without looking to fuss or fight I would, again, ask the Government, in the interest of the people of this country and in the interest of ‘transparency’—the word to which the Leader of Government Business has started to cling. . . he used the word six times in his substantive debate. So in an attempt to see transparency occur in the process of Government, I humbly ask the Government to accept this amendment in the good faith in which it was brought so that we can move on.

The last thing I have to say is that if the Government is so minded to not accept the amendment in the spirit in which it is made, I can promise—and I am not threatening like others do—that the Backbench can deal with the issue properly so that the public of this country will be forever knowledgeable of the issue we are dealing with now.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I was wondering if we could have a short adjournment to discuss this matter. I think that would be better because the amendment actually came—at least I saw it just before we came in here.

The Speaker: Certainly. Proceedings are suspended for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.15 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 3.19 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed.

The First Elected Member for George Town.

MOTION TO WITHDRAW AMENDMENT
TO PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 2/98
Standing Order 25(6)

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, after a few marathon sessions, under Standing Order 35(6) I beg to withdraw the amendment that was moved earlier this morning.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: I beg to second that motion.

The Speaker: The motion has been made and seconded. The question is that the amendment be withdrawn. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED. AMENDMENT TO PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 2/98 WITHDRAWN.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

AMENDMENT (NO. 2)
TO PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 2/98
Standing Order 25(1)

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: I thank you for waiving the notice in relation to this amendment which I will now read. It is notice of Amendment (No. 2) to Private Member's Motion No. 2/98, Change of Dredging Policy.

"In accordance with the provisions of Standing Order 25, I, the Hon. Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning, seek to move to amend Private Member's Motion No. 2/98 by the deletion of the two Resolve sections and to substitute therefor the following:

"BE IT NOW THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT all applications for dredging in the North Sound, other than minor applications such as seawalls, wharves and jetties:

"(1) shall be published in a newspaper once per week for four weeks, giving notice of the application and stating that written objections and representations may be made to the Permanent Secretary, Ministry of Environment, within at least four weeks from the date of the last notice and copies of which shall be made available to Members of the Legislative Assembly; and "(2) shall be moved, debated and finally voted upon in the Legislative Assembly."

The Speaker: The amendment has been duly moved. Do you wish to speak to it?

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: After meetings and consultation with all Members of this Honourable House, this is the final version of what we believe will achieve two objectives: First, the notice in relation to dredging, other than minor applications, will be published in the newspaper once per week for four weeks. That will give sufficient time for the public to send within the next four weeks representations and objections in relation to it. Copies of these objections and representations will be made available to Members of the Legislative Assembly. Then there will be a motion which will be debated and finally voted upon in the Legislative Assembly. In effect, the public will now have full input and also the Legislature will have the benefit of that, and there will then be a voting on it by Members of this Honourable House. That, I think, is what the full Legislature feels will be in the best interest of the country.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: I would like to thank the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning for moving this amendment. I read the amendment and the process seems clear except that it does not say what will happen as regards to Executive Council. The application will be made with objections to the Permanent Secretary, the Ministry of the Environment, and then made available to Members of the Legislative Assembly which shall then be moved, debated and voted upon in the House. Where does Executive Council come in? It does not say.

The Speaker: Unfortunately, this is not Question Time.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: I was hoping that the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning would clarify it. It is not clear to me what the process is.

The Speaker: [Addressing the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.] Would you care to rise on a point of clarification?

(Pause)

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Well, if nobody wants to clarify it, I am left to say that Executive Council will not have any input into the matter because it goes to the Ministry, then to the Legislative Assembly to be voted upon. Will the Legislative Assembly get the benefit of Executive Council's input?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning can you elucidate?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: All I can say is that we will have to try to work out the finer parts of the process after. You will appreciate that this was dealt with in the last hour, hour and a half. I cannot answer all of your questions.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: I appreciate the Minister rising to clarify that, but the truth is that the House is being asked to vote upon a process which, as is now said, will be clarified afterwards. The amendment does not say what input Executive Council has. That is what I am trying to determine.

Thank you.

The Speaker: You have completed your debate?

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Yes.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: I would like to thank the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning for moving this amendment and for accepting in principle (by way of this amendment) that Parliament is indeed the supreme body in this country, and that it is the intent of the sitting Government to make Government as transparent as possible, especially when we are dealing with issues that are of a sensitive, and let us say emotional, nature. The environment is an emotional issue to many people.

The question of dredging and dredging permits has been widely questioned and debated in this country outside this Parliament. People are listening and taking notes. People are expecting that they should be involved as much as possible in the decision-making process, especially when it deals with issues such as dredging.

I support this amendment because I believe that in the interest of good Government and securing a country that is bound together by way of its Legislative Assembly, the best means to do that is by the direct representatives of the people rather than the persons the representatives themselves elect. In this House, the people do not elect the Government. The Legislative Assembly is elected by the people, but the Legislative Assembly then turns around and elects the Government. Therefore, from that point of view, I continue to stress that the final decision should be made here when of national importance. Since we elected that Government in the first place, we are asking it to collectively make those types of decisions with us. It is not an attempt to invade the separation of powers, to take away from Executive Council the role, or infringe upon the role it plays. There is no intent to infringe upon the role the Governor plays in this country. But it is certainly to boost the role of the Parliament in this country in terms of making decisions that are of national importance.

I would like to compliment the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning again on the spirit of compromise in which he has, with his team, formulated and accepted this amendment to this very important piece of legislation.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: As the mover of the substantive motion I crave the indulgence of the House to make a few observations on this amendment.

The first and most important observation I would like to make is that what has transpired with the moving and accepting of this amendment is that the Government will be the benefactor and will earn the trust of the general public, in that the Government has showed itself so considerate and flexible to have adopted a position which I am sure the public will be pleased over. I want to say, however, that that position did not come easy—it came as a result of a painful and excruciating negotiation process.

While I would like to commend the Honourable Leader of Government Business for shepherding his Government to that position, I will not give him all of the credit. I would like to single out my colleague and good friend, the Third Elected Member for George Town; my colleague and good friend, the Fourth Elected Member for George Town; and, of course, that old stalwart, my colleague and good friend, the First Elected Member for George Town. I would like to say that those Honourable gentlemen are much better off than I am. Of course, they could not have done that without the moral support and guidance of the lady Member for North Side.

I have to commend all of those I have listed because they exhibited qualities that I do not have. I have to be the first to admit that in these situations I am likely to be hard-line. I had to tell my colleague, the Third Elected Member for George Town, that he is as good as Kofi Annan in negotiations.

I believe in transparency, and I do not see this as a trespass on powers of the Executive Council. I do not see this as any erosion or any greying of the area involved in the separation of powers. This is an issue close to the heart of every one of our constituents. I am sure that we will begin to see public expression next week on the relief and satisfaction that the matter has been handled in this way.

I want to say something about negotiations, because I know that the Leader of Government Business takes his responsibility seriously and jealously guards his position. But in these kinds of negotiations I like to believe in what the Japanese talk about. I like to give people a face-saving way out. A face-saving way has been arrived at, and that is a credit to many people.

I think that I stand up this afternoon to commend all Honourable Members of this Legislative Assembly and the Hansards will serve to record that the people's Representatives and the Official Members are not only responsible but sensible.

After being beat up so many times, after having lost so many times, I feel proud this evening to have played a minor part in delivering to the people what I believe to be a wise, sound, and sensible decision. It is a testimony to transparency and sunshine in the relationship in our country as far as dredging and dredging applications are concerned.

We have still left Executive Council with some responsibility (as a Member queried), because this amendment says that it will not be concerned with minor applications such as seawalls, wharves and jetties. It also says that representations and objections could be made to the Permanent Secretary. That does not preclude Executive Council as a collective body from making their representation, recommendations or objections to the Permanent Secretary—indeed, they could be brought down here as the position of the Executive Council and considered in debate.

This is an exercise in democracy at its finest. Believe you me, Pericles in his days in Athens had not crafted a better decision. Thank you.

The Speaker: It is good to hear that spoken. Does any other Member wish to speak?

The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The mover of this substantive motion who just spoke (the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town) has certainly expressed the majority of the views of the Backbench. I, too, wish to commend the Government on its ability to be flexible and understanding enough to read the intent of the motion, actually being able to get the matter resolved to the satisfaction of us all. There was only one question raised during the debate on this amendment, and I wish to take a minute to walk through these procedures, to ensure there is nothing we have missed in agreeing to the amendments.

The new amendment moved by the Government states, “BE IT NOW THEREFORE RESOLVED that (1) all applications for dredging in the North Sound, other than minor applications such as sea walls, wharves and jetties, shall be published in the newspaper once per week for four weeks, giving notice of the application and stating that written objections and representations may be made to the Permanent Secretary, Ministry of Environment, within at least four weeks from the date of the last notice, and copies of which shall be made available to Members of the Legislative Assembly; and (2) shall be moved, debated, and finally voted upon in the Legislative Assembly.”

While the Minister for Education stated in his reply to the question that the minor details will have to be worked out, my understanding of the amendment is that after the process of the application and the newspaper publications go through the time period, and the objections and representations are received, if there are any, the Government (from the Ministry). . . the application will have to go to Executive Council, and Executive Council will then bring a motion to this Honourable Legislative Assembly for it to be debated and finally voted upon.

There are other Members on the Government Bench, and I would wish for someone to reply to that so that the Backbench can be sure that that is the process which is going to take place.

There is another point I wish to make. In the original motion there was mention of Crown lands, and from the legal resources we have in this Honourable House we will notice that there is no mention of Crown lands in the two amendments being brought by the Government. The reason is that to include Crown lands in the way these amendments were crafted would possibly disenfranchise the public from any appeal process, if there is anything being done with Crown lands. I do not think any Member here wishes to prevent any member of the public from being able to lodge any appeal because of any dissatisfaction. That is just to clear that issue of why Crown lands are not mentioned in these amendments.

Perhaps, before the vote is taken on the two amendments the Leader of Government Business has brought forward, we could hear from the Government Bench if the process taking place with these dredging applications will be as I have stated it. Thank you.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak on the amendment? If no other Member wishes to speak, does the proposer wish to reply?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I would like to thank Members for supporting the amendment, and I really can add nothing further to it. I think the amendment is very clear, and it states that there has to be a motion, debate, and a vote in the Legislative Assembly—a final vote. I can add no more to it, Sir.

The Speaker: For the clarity of the listening public and for the House, the question is that Private Member's Motion No. 2/98 be amended as per the notice provided to Members. I shall now put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The amendment has carried.

AGREED: THAT THE AMENDMENT BE MADE.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 2/98, as amended, is now open to debate. Does any other Member wish to speak? The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I think we are back to where we should have been, and I will continue my debate on the motion as amended.

The Speaker: That is correct.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: For the love of me, I fail to understand why, even when we come to an agreement, the Government is not prepared to clarify certain situations. Perhaps an explanation will be forthcoming outside this forum, and I will give it that opportunity, but I think it is important that we understand that the Backbench, having agreed to the two amendments Government has brought, has agreed to those amendments on the understanding that the process, as I tried to explain it, will be the process that will take place.

I say this to make it very clear that if it is discovered that the process is going to be different, we will bring another motion to deal with it. We are trying to be straightforward. I do not want to think for a second this evening that there is something hidden that we do not understand. But I promise the Government that if there is, it will not end here. That is all I have to say about that matter.

Going on with my contribution to the debate, when we closed off yesterday I was referring to a letter which was dealt with in February of 1996, but before I actually go on dealing with the letter I wish to clear up two small matters. I think I may have made a mistake when I spoke of the Governor's Throne Speech, and I may have said '1997.' If that is the case, because I have not seen the transcripts from yesterday's debate, I wish to make it clear that I was referring to when His Excellency the Governor announced no more dredging in the North Sound in his Throne Speech of 1996.

I also wish to explain that the letter I had referred to before (and will be referring to again), was a letter which was written to Mr. Heber Arch, c/o Arch & Godfrey (Cayman) Ltd. regarding an application which had been made.

Mr. Speaker, when I referred to that letter, one of the problems which prompted the mover and I to seek passage of the motion we brought was that with the issue of that letter we were convinced that neither we nor the public were totally satisfied with the process being used. I will go on further to state that I remember when this letter was circulated, and it came to light in the public. There was a report in the Caymanian Compass that two Members of Executive Council had stated they did not know about the said application. If two Members of Executive Council did not know about the application, and such a letter was written from the Ministry outlining approval in principle to the application, it is obvious that the public at large will wonder what process took place with that specific application, and how else other applications were being dealt with.

I will now to refer to a few areas in the contribution to the motion made by the Leader of Government Business yesterday. Let me make it clear that I understand, Mr. Speaker, that the motion has been amended, and what the Leader of Government Business spoke on yesterday was the original motion. So any points I draw will not be trying to deal with the situation that has changed. I do understand that certain things have changed because of the amendments, but I think there are a few items which need to be addressed.

One might wish to say that since the amendments have been brought forward by Government, and seemingly unanimously passed, it makes no sense to go any further with the motion. I am not going to subscribe to that, because I think there are certain issues which need to be aired publicly, even after passage of the motion, so everyone will be clear in their minds as to where we need to go in the future, and what should be done to bring about the best results.

First of all, in the contribution of the Minister for Education, he mentioned (and I am quoting from the unedited Hansard) that the cost of the 1.8 miles of the Harquail "for fill was $3.8 million, nearly $3.9 million; trucking was $720,000, which came over a lot of road, from a long distance away." He went on to say: "Looking at it from an economic point of view, if Government has fill on Government's land that could be purchased at one-fifth of that price, it means that four and a half million would probably only have cost $700,000. Think of how much road could have been done with the savings of nearly $4 million."

Mr. Speaker, I refer to what the Minister said to make the point that the terrain over which the Harquail Bypass was constructed was wetlands. The type of fill used in the road construction was not marl—and it would have been ludicrous to make any attempt to use marl on that road as the base. So, while the Minister was making that comparison specifically about the Harquail Bypass, I need to make it very clear that the principle he was trying to apply may work in other areas, but it would not have worked with the Harquail Bypass. Let us be very clear that when we talk about marl, marl is not the type of fill that can be used for road construction at all times. It has a lot to do with the type of terrain over which the road is being constructed.

If I understand what the Minister was referring to in savings, then I think the Minister was trying to suggest that Government may well need to be looking into using its own resources to mine marl, to be able to make use of marl for road construction more cost-effective. While I do not see where in his delivery he spelled that out, I think it is certainly fair to draw the conclusion from the comparisons he was trying to make. I mention that because I wonder if the Government is mindful of dealing with the mining of marl in that fashion, whether it be from Crown land or from the seabed. It is not something I am passing an opinion on. I have not really thought about it before. But I think, if any other Member of the Government Bench is going to speak on the motion, we should be able to get the matter clear, whether there is an intention to pursue that or not.

As I was speaking yesterday about the terms of reference for some type of study, and the two-year span that has gone on—and we have not heard anything about these terms of reference or a study—I think it is important for the people of the country to understand our position regarding this situation. First of all, we on the Backbench are not taking the position that there should be no dredging whatsoever. We are not equipped to make a statement like that, as my colleague just mentioned, nor are we disposed to make a statement like that.

The Minister referred, on a few occasions during his discourse, to the fact that we need to be able to provide fill to keep construction going, that we need to try to be as cost-effective as possible to keep the cost of construction down, and we are in total agreement with that. We do not have a problem with that. Our position is simply this: While this motion does not address any type of study (and I think I am safe in saying that I can speak for the rest of us on the Backbench), we contend that if dredging of any magnitude is to be allowed in the North Sound, the Government must be in a position with facts, to be able to allow what can reasonably be done with the minimal effect.

The fact is that during the debate of 1995, when the then Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman moved the motion regarding an environmental impact study being made, the Minister responsible at that time stated that terms of reference were being drawn up. I mentioned all of that before. But he also stated that the Government's position on any study to be done was that any applicant making an application to dredge marl from the North Sound should be the person, persons, or group of people, to pay for any study that had to be done.

Let me explain why we do not subscribe to that belief. Any applicant who has to provide an environmental impact study on the effects of any proposed dredging they might wish to do will certainly, at best, limit that study to the dredging proposed. We wish, so Government finds itself in the right position, for Government to have an environmental impact study done on the entire North Sound, with a view to coming up with answers as to how much dredging can sensibly be done, where it can be done, and over what time period it should be done. The Minister for Education mentioned the Wickstead Report. The Wickstead Report is nearly twenty-four years old, and while there is still a lot of merit to what was stated in that report, there have been many changes since that time. There have been several dredging licences issued at various locations since that time. There have been numerous canals dredged on the mangrove fringe of the North Sound since that time, and certainly there must be a lot of different effects that have taken place since then which the Wickstead Report could not address because these things had not occurred at that time.

So while the Wickstead Report will have its merits, we subscribe to the belief that Government, out of necessity to deal with any future dredging applications sensibly, acquire this environmental impact study so it will know. If the terms of reference are really being drawn up, that process should be completed as speedily as possible, and let the Government get on with commissioning the study to be done.

One might come back and say, 'Why spend the type of money you will spend on it?' I know that all Members here will join me in concert in saying that the North Sound is as important to all of us here as any other natural resource, the few there are, in this country. It is a livelihood for many people. It needs to be dealt with in a way that it can be sustained and used—but not abused. I believe the Government needs to be equipped to know how this can be done, if there is any tampering attempted with this.

The Speaker: May I interrupt for a moment? Is it agreeable to the House that we continue sitting, and anyone needing a break can just go out? Is that the wish of the House?

Can we make it short then? We shall suspend for five minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 4.04 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.22 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Debate continues with the First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. When we took the break, I was dealing with the position that we take regarding the Government dealing with commissioning an environmental impact study. I would like to mention a few areas of the Wickstead Report which the Honourable Minister for Education referred to in his delivery yesterday.

In the Report, Dr. Wickstead said, "The prime consideration has been that which, in my opinion, forms the main concept of conservation. This is not to say that nothing should ever be touched or removed, but to identify natural resources and, if exploitable, then to recommend how to exploit these resources fully without destroying the environmental and ecological framework of the whole." That statement simply reinforces our position. We are not subscribing to the belief that dredging cannot be done; we are simply saying that if it is to be done it should be with knowledge, not by way of who makes an application and who should be given permission.

In reference to that, one of the concerns we have with the whole idea of dredging is the fact that marl is a very precious commodity in this country, and that the demand almost always exceeds the supply of marl. It is only fair to believe that there will be people who will seek commercially to make money from acquiring and selling marl. There have been a few established companies in the country, some which have dealt with inland mining of marl, and a few which have dealt with dredging the seabed to get marl. We are not suggesting for a minute that this type of activity should not be allowed within reason. We understand that realistically we are going to need a certain amount of it, and that there will be some price to pay for development in this country to continue.

But you will continually hear rumours that a certain individual wishes to acquire a dredging licence to be able to barter with other individuals or conglomerates who wish to do huge reclamation projects. The point is that while commercially we understand a certain amount of it has to be done, we fear a serious rape case of the North Sound if certain situations are allowed to prevail. I do not want to go into details, because I do not know for a fact anything I could be specific about. But it is sensible for us, even if it is only rumour at present, to ensure that we are able to do the right thing before the wrong thing happens. That is really all we are saying. That is all we wish to achieve. I believe that every one of us here thinks that is the way it should be done. So I do not think we have any problems philosophically with the thought process of conservation issues, and the fact that we should not allow certain things to occur which will permanently damage the environment.

I mention the fears we have and, without trying to be too repetitious, come back to a letter mentioned earlier. I wish to say that while that issue is now a seemingly dead issue, it is my firm belief that had not enough storm been raised by the people of this country, that could well have become a reality. And I do not believe that any one of us can fathom the damage that might have occurred if that had been allowed to happen. The mere fact that an approval in principle was given—more so with two Members of Executive Council stating through the media that they did not know of the approval in principle—is frightening! It is very frightening! And we must have fears and trepidation about the issue. We also understand that the constituents are fearful, and the North Sound is very precious to one and all here.

MOMENT OF INTERRUPTION—4.30 PM

The Speaker: We have reached the hour of 4.30. I would entertain a motion for the adjournment. The Honourable Minister responsible for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until 10.00 AM Monday.

The Speaker: The question is that this House do now adjourn until 10.00 AM Monday, 16 March 1998. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House do stand adjourned until Monday, 16 March 1998 at 10.00 AM.

AT 4.30 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM MONDAY, 16 MARCH 1998.

EDITED
MONDAY
16 MARCH 1998
10.09 AM

The Speaker: Prayers by the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

PRAYERS

Miss Heather D. Bodden: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived: We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth, that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly, that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy great name's sake.

Let us say the Lord's Prayer together: Our Father, who art in heaven, hallowed be Thy name. Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us. Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace, now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Government Business, Bills, Third Readings.

(as amended)

CHANGE OF DREDGING POLICY

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. When we broke on Friday, I had been dealing with the position I think most of us on the Back Bench have taken regarding Government doing an environmental impact study on the effects of dredging in the North Sound. I would like to quickly cap that off. I have a couple areas to quote to reinforce the point. As has been said before, we take this position simply because, while the Wickstead Report, mentioned prior to this, was very useful when it was done, a lot of activity has taken place in the North Sound since then regarding dredging and development taking place on the coastline of the North Sound, with many canals. So we believe that what prevailed at that time might well be different now because of all this activity.

Outside of the Wickstead Report in 1975, there was also a document floating around in Executive Council at that time, referring to a natural resources study. Just to prove the point, with your permission, Mr. Speaker, I would like to quote a few areas of that document so we may well understand why some of us are taking this position. The document starts off, "Although these studies are planned to cover all basic marine parameters, emphasis should be placed on those primarily concerned with or affected by the practical needs of development in the Cayman Islands, for example, fill and sand by dredging or other means. Therefore it is expedient at this early date for the Executive Council to consider and enumerate the future development needs affecting the sea bottom, coastline, and littoral swamps in order that the marine study can solve or minimise the detrimental side effects of such development activity, or advise where an area can only be protected by leaving it in its virgin state." The document goes on to quote some major examples:

"A. Sand

There is an urgent need for building purposes. This can be obtained from the beach ridges or from the sounds. Investigations should be made with the object of answering the following questions:

- (1) which is the most expedient ecologically?
- (2) If the Sounds are, and in particular North Sound, the study should predict, on the basis of current turbidity, wave slope and depth of sediment, which area could be exploited with the least environmental damage.

B. Marl Fill by Hydraulic Dredging

Fill is essential to development in the Cayman Islands. It can be obtained by dredging and/or drag-lining in the open sea, or by encapsulation, thus

- (1) which method is the most expedient for the least environmental damage?
- (2) Which localities in the sounds could be worked to create the least damage through turbidity and/or sedimentation?

C. Coral Reefs

Skin-diving, glass-bottom boating, etc., are an important attraction for tourism. It is believed that the Cayman Islands are fortunate enough to have flourishing reef ecosystems and these should be protected. Therefore-

- (1) Which areas are the worthiest of total protection by the creation of underwater parks?
 - (2) Are there other areas where licensed removal of the flora and fauna could be allowed?
- And-
- (3) What would be the quantitative index needed to control this?

D. Removal of Mangrove and Reclamation

Mangrove can be divided into littoral mangrove and deep swamps removed from the sea.

- (1) How much of this could be safely removed?
- (2) Would large reclamation's of the deep swamps be more desirable than fringe filling along the North Sound?

It is recommended that the natural resources study team be requested to give special attention, during their studies, to the subjects mentioned in paragraph (3) of this submission, and where possible, to provide this Government with answers to the questions posed therein.

Mr. Speaker, that document is approaching twenty-three years old, so it is obvious to all concerned that our concern in bringing this Motion is not something new. The point of reading that document is to reinforce that we are convinced at this time that the study we are mentioning should be done. While the Motion addresses dredging only, we think it is important for Government to look along these lines so any future decisions needing to be made regarding dredging can be made from an informed position.

There is one more area which I wish to mention. It refers to one of the statements made by the Minister for Education in his contribution to this debate. He said, "Some solution has to be found to producing fill. Whether it is better to destroy the land and leave the seabed, or to dredge the seabed and leave the land, or to import fill which has its other risks in what may be imported with it, I do not know the answer, and I am being honest."

The part of this I wish to address is where he says, "or to import fill which has its other risks in what may be imported with it." Before I go on, let me make it very clear that what I am about to discuss is not a position that I, or any other of us on the Back Bench—if I may take that chance to speak for some of us—this is not a position any one of us is taking, but we feel it is important that this situation be aired openly so it can be clearly understood that Government should seriously be looking at other options which people are making attempts to provide, regarding acquisition of fill and aggregate.

When we talk about dredging in the North Sound, just about the only type of fill you will get from that exercise is marl. While marl is commonly used for many purposes, the truth is there are other types of fill which, in some instances, actually serve the purpose better. The other types of fill I am talking about can be had from various sources. To go on, in June of 1997, there was an application from Caribbean Stone Products for permission to import quarry materials. The application—and I will not bore the House by reading it—entailed the purpose for which it was intended; it outlined the method by which this aggregate would be imported; and the application addressed two things: Caribbean Stone Products wished to ship quarry materials into the country, but they would need permission from Government to put down a basic facility on the base of the Pedro Bluff, so that the ship bringing in this fill would be able to tie up properly. I am sure you are well aware of ships, Mr. Speaker, and this system would be by conveyor belt, enclosed, and all the safety concerns were taken into consideration.

The second question addressed with it was the duty concessions they might ask for because, I think the way the Law reads presently, any type of material of that nature imported into the country warrants a 20% duty on the importation costs.

These people have gone to great lengths to satisfy the concerns Government quite rightly should have when they are hearing about an application of this nature, but what has gone on with it thus far is where we see a problem. It is not for me to stand here and say that their application should be given favourable consideration, or that it should not. While I keep hearing from the Government in other instances that these things take time to make proper decisions, I do not think an impression should be given by Government that it is trying to avoid dealing with the application because the communication between both parties is always at a level of stress, where the applicant continually tries to contact individuals in the Government and they cannot get to see them or talk to them, and they have to seek means through other avenues to get to people, and that should not be the case. If it is a situation where transparency exists, then regardless of wherever Government is within the decision-making process, it should be an easy flow of information so people will know where they are. If it is going to take some time, fine! But at least the people should know where they stand, and Government should be able to walk them through the situation so they know.

I am not suggesting that Government should stop what they are doing and only concentrate on the one application. Not for a minute! I am not saying that! But I do believe that communication could be a lot better.

After this application was made in June, presentations were made to Executive Council, and questions raised were addressed and answers given. Finally, in October of 1997, a letter was received by the applicants from the Ministry responsible, and it reads,

“Dear Sir:

“I am directed by the Honourable Minister to advise you that your application for permission to import quarry materials into Grand Cayman is currently with Executive Council. Before putting the matter to Council, this Ministry sought the input of a number of Government Departments and the last comment we received was dated 7th October, 1997.

“Please be assured that as soon as we have something further to communicate that I will contact your office. Thank you very much for your patience.”

So we have an application in June, and we have a response in writing on 28 October, one the beginning of June and one the end of October, so nearly five months have transpired. We are in the latter part of March at present, and in October the application was in front of Executive Council. Another five months have passed, and the application has been deferred and is still pending.

The people making this application are business people. They recognise the problems the country faces with aggregate and fill; and they are also very cognisant of how sensitive the situation with dredging for fill is, so they have sought an alternative to either inland excavation or seabed dredging, to provide some type of aggregate.

Now none of this aggregate, which these people have applied for permission to import, is marl. None of it is marl. It various types of other aggregate, basically made from rock, and the process is one in which you cut it into different sizes for different purposes. One of the major uses for this type of material would be road building. There are also certain areas in the construction industry which use that type of material rather than marl because of compaction and other reasons.

The whole point of this scenario is—and I mean, let's just be frank and open with the whole situation. The country now sits with basically two suppliers of this type of material, but in actual fact, it is only one, because there is only one supplier who has a licence to blast and operate a quarry. The people making this application are, as far as I am concerned, as honest as the day is long. These people are as good citizens of this country as we will ever know. I do not want to call names, and I am not here to defend them. They do not vote for me, so let's get that one out of the bag!

In their efforts to provide an alternative—and the other key point here is, even if Government does not allow them a concession in the rate of duty, which they would only pass on to their customers, they can still import this material and sell it, do it safely and sell it to the people of this country for less than it is being done here. If we want to look at the broad spectrum, the immediate reaction would be, Why allow someone to import a product to compete with one being created locally? As far as I am concerned, this is the exception to the rule. While the norm is that will prevail—and I would subscribe to the belief that one should not be allowed to import a product to compete with a local enterprise—the difference is that very soon we will not be able to meet the demand, if the growth rate in the country continues. That is not an opinion, that is a fact!

We are not a country with mountains and high levels of land. Basically there is a very limited area in which quarrying can be done. Besides that, if it is a matter of competition with another enterprise, that other enterprise, I am sure, can do the same thing by importing the products if there is a disadvantage. You will want also to mention the local people hired by the person doing the quarrying here, but on the other hand, the local people this other entity will employ, once they have the product to sell. There is trucking, and making it into different levels.

From those types of arguments, as far as I am concerned, there is a balance struck from both sides. So I do not think there is any disadvantage being sought by anyone. Besides that, I am also convinced that these people making the application for importation of aggregate are straightforward enough, and these are old-time Caymanians who still believe a shake of the hand, my word is my bond. I do not think for a minute they would have a problem dealing with any other party concerned regarding allowing them access to information they might have, or whatever. So I do not think that is the problem.

One of the major concerns aired regarding the application is organisms being imported with the product, organisms being larvae of insects and various types of pests, and even snake eggs, I keep hearing. So the world will know, the applicants are intending to import this material from a place in Mexico. And presently, and for many, many years, this aggregate that is hoped to be imported from Mexico, has been exported to Galveston, Houston, New Orleans, Tampa, and the aggregate has continually, by spot-checks, met United States Department of Agriculture specifications. If you do not have any understanding, when you hear about the fear of these insects and larvae and snakes, you would immediately start to get frightened. But there is a simple explanation for it. This material is mined from sixty or seventy feet below the ground. That is not my imagination, that is a fact! That is simply how it is. Which insect or snake is going to lay eggs down in that hard rock? It is ludicrous! It does not make any sense!

Besides that, when the rock is mined, it goes through a myriad of processes to get it down to the various sizes, and there is literally nothing that would survive, if you even stretched your imagination to allow the thought to go there. Nothing would survive like that! On top of that, you have the USDA approval because it is being exported to four or five different ports on a regular basis, and being checked regularly.

In bringing that argument, I will even allow the possibility that the fear might still exist. But I happen to know also that the Department of Agriculture here has checked the situation, and while I cannot call them to witness, I also happen to know they are satisfied. We will leave it at that.

The point in all this is, if we recognise that there is a problem, and we recognise that we have to find a solution, and there are interested parties, whether it be for commercial purposes or not, who are prepared to work along with the Government to satisfy their questions and their trepidation about any situation, but they wish to provide a solution to the problem without any ill effects to the country, then a year later, nearly, not far off—not quite a year, but nearly a year later, you should be able to do something about them, to tell them whether they should go ahead wasting their money pursuing these avenues, or whether they cannot do it! You should be able to do that! I am not here to make the decision. I can promise you, if I was part and parcel of the decision-making process, it would be made!

But that all comes back to transparency, which the Minister or Education kept quoting in his contribution. (part of tape missing) transparent, then let everyone know where you stand! If you cannot do that, whether it is so or not, people begin to wonder if there is some reason underneath that certain questions are not answered, certain applications kept pending.

The last thing I have to say on that matter is that the applicants—and I only found this out by chance yesterday—have just gone to two other countries to seek the possibility of the importation of this type of aggregate. As they had done before, they contacted the Department of Agriculture and the person in charge said, Listen, in order for you to have a full understanding of what we would like to do, we are inviting you to accompany us to the loca- tion, so that you can see for yourself how this is done, what the end product is. There will be no cost to you, no cost to Government. We just want you to see so you can have a firsthand look at what prevails, when we make an application. You will be able to know what questions you need to ask to satisfy your mind, or what answers we have to provide to satisfy you. So here is an open invitation at no cost to you or Government. It will only take you two days, maybe three at most.

Of course, the Department has to check with the Ministry, and the answer from the Ministry is, because the application is deferred and still pending, you cannot go to look at this thing. Now I want someone to tell me the logic in that! You would swear it was something sinister, covert, or something like that! Mr. Speaker, that is not the way any government must operate. And I am not standing here today to be jumping at Government, to be telling them that they are doing all kinds of evil things. That is not the exercise. I am simply saying that if we are going to look the way we should as a Government, in the eyes of the country...

Hon. John B. McLean: Mr. Speaker, if the Member would give me a chance...

The Speaker: Do you have a point of order, or do you want to make an explanation?

POINT OF ORDER (Misleading)

Hon. John B. McLean: Yes, because I think what he is saying is misleading the House. The fact remains, the Ministry can only act on the decision of Executive Council, and in this case, it was not the Ministry that did not want to go on the trip. The case was that it was put on hold by Executive Council and we had no authority to do anything else. That is the point I would like to make.

The Speaker: Okay, I accept that.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, I understand what the Honourable Minister has just said, but he is saying exactly what I said, and I only wish to take one minute—because I understand what he is saying, and I am not here to look an argument.

The Speaker: Do you accept that what he is saying is...

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: The point is, and it is not a point of order, Mr. Speaker, because I am saying—and I am not questioning whether the Ministry has the authority or not to allow the person from the Department to accompany these people on a trip. If they do not, they do not! All I am saying is, that is the wrong way to do business! That is what I am saying! That is the point I am making. Because there is nothing sinister about it, but if that is the way the system is, or if that is the way the cookie crumbles, then it needs to change! Because these people are open with what they are doing, and all they are simply doing is trying to seek a solution. So I am not suggesting that the Ministry did something that was wrong. I am saying, the way it works, in my opinion, is not the way it should work. That is all I am saying. I hear what the Minister is saying, but...

Hon. John B. McLean: Mr. Speaker, if that is it, I understand it. The point I was trying to make to him is that we did not take a decision from the Ministry. It was at the level of Executive Council, which I am not privy to discuss in here. It was not my Ministry. I can only put up a paper to Executive Council, and try to deal with it from that point of view.

The Speaker: I would ask the Honourable Member to accept that, I mean he is making a statement that it is an Executive Council decision.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, I have no problem with that, Sir, but once we get it clear that there was no point of order, I do not have a problem with the explanation.

The Speaker: Really, it is a point of explanation. He is explaining the fact that...

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: That is fine, Sir, I do not have a problem with that.

The Speaker: Please continue.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you very much. To continue, and to sum up the situation, I bring this situation to the Honourable Legislative Assembly with only one point in mind: If we are genuinely seeking solutions to a problem we know existed, then I think we should be looking more strenuously to find these solutions, and not be seen by the public to be couched in our decision-making process, and almost hidden with the process. It may not be intended, but that is the way it appears. That is the point regarding this situation.

I am going to sum up now, Mr. Speaker, with my contribution to this debate, and in doing so, I wish to remind us, as I just did, about the way things seem to be handled as of now. I mentioned earlier a letter, which I quoted from the Hansards. I mentioned that I distinctly remembered seeing in the newspaper that two Ministers of Government publicly stated that they had no knowledge of the approval in principle which the letter I am talking about gave; and that is the type of situation which drives rumour, it causes concern, the community gets stirred up, everyone gets fearful of the worst happening, and when that happens, perception becomes reality, and you have no good result, no matter which way you go. I am saying, we need to take all of that into consideration, and we need to deal with this and other matters in a different way, so we can get better results, so we can prove transparency, so we can look to be accountable for our decision-making process, and so the public can feel more at ease with the process, rather than to concentrate on the bad end-result that must happen because they disapprove of the process. That is basically what I am saying.

In a book entitled, Your Right to Know, dealing with freedom of information, and it is from the UK, in a short sentence, one of the people who contributed to this publication says, "Openness is fundamental to the political health of any modern state." In the introduction to the book, the very first paragraph reads—it is not long, Mr. Speaker, and with your permission, I would like to read it: "Unnecessary secrecy in government leads to arrogance in governance and defective decision-making. The perception of excessive secrecy has become a corrosive influence in the decline of public confidence in government. Moreover, the climate of public opinion has changed: people expect much greater openness and accountability from government than they used to."

Mr. Speaker, that is my point regarding the examples I just used. Again, let me say that it is good that we have reached a compromise in this Motion the Back Bench has brought to Government. I still have questions in my mind regarding the Motion being accepted as amended, and Government fully explaining the process by which any applications for dredging will be handled, but if no one again wishes to deal with that, so be it, we will watch and see.

While the Motion is not as it has been brought, and it has been amended, it has been amended to our satisfaction, and I would just, one more time, like to commend the Motion to this Honourable House, and I do trust that all Members will support it. Thank you.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion 2/98 as amended has been moved. Does any other Member wish to speak to it? The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I rise to give my support to this amendment to Private Member's Motion 2/98, and I want to say that I am very happy to see that Government and Back Bench could get together and thrash this thing out to a fair understanding, because it was needed. This is something that should be done more often. It would save a lot of time and fighting across the floor with both parties. Thank you.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I rise to offer a few comments on the Private Member's Motion concerning dredging, to say that dredging is a very sensitive issue in this country, and it makes me more comfortable with the situation at which we have arrived, whereby any major future application for dredging will at least come to this House for consideration, debate and a vote, because I know in my own district of West Bay, our people are very sensitive and very concerned about dredging, in particular, dredging of the North Sound. A lot of our West Bay people depend on the North Sound for their livelihood, that is, fishing, snorkel trips, Stingray City trips, and they are very concerned that we do not do anything to disturb the ecology in that area that would affect their way of life.

I am also pleased to see that Government and the Back Bench, or the whole House, was able to get together and reach a reasonable and acceptable compromise on this very important issue, because it is an issue with which our people are greatly concerned. As representatives, I see no reason why, with such a sensitive issue, we should not have some input and say in any decision made on an application for dredging in this country.

So I do support the Motion, and I thank you, Sir.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I am pleased by the considerations being made regarding the very important issue of dredging. I believe the process of decision-making is best executed on the floor of the Legislative Assembly, since the issue of dredging is a sensitive and emotional issue of national importance. Nevertheless, it is important that Members do not assume they are experts regarding these very important issues, in that a certain amount of scientific knowledge or background is necessary if we are to have sensible, sustainable development.

I must comment, both from the side of Government by way of the Leader of Government Business' attempt to connect dredging with the need for road improvement, and that he mentioned it might be possible to get fill, if Government got involved in dredging itself, at some $4 or $4+ per cubic yard. When listened to by the general public, that might be considered a realistic figure, when in fact, if viewed by experts in this area, we might find there might be some disagreement.

On the side of the Back Bench, from the point of view of the First Elected Member for George Town, I would like also to comment that I felt there was a whole attempt here to bring in additional information regarding this particular issue that might not necessarily, when we look at it, be reasonable from a scientific point of view. So it is very important that if we are to make the applications for dredging licences to come before the Legislative Assembly, we try to be as scientific and specific as possible about the types of information we allow to enter into the debate process.

The question of marl, the question of aggregate, does not really have a political nature; it has a physical nature, and it is important that, when we are discussing these issues, we stay as much as possible with the objective, physical nature of these discussions, in the sense that they will involve us having to rely very heavily, not on our belief, not on our opinions, but on the expert opinions of people who are qualified in these areas. We know that common sense allows us to make certain types of conclusions when we say there is a difference between structural aggregate or materials and mass fill. Dredging usually has to do with the collection of decomposed material, in the form of limestone marl.

We know we have to have a sensible position regarding creating a balance between the physical environment and, let's say, the social environment, in that the social environment needs the physical environment to continue to prosper and remain stable. If we came to a position whereby we could not mould our physical environment in such a way as to enrich the quality of life of the Caymanian, if we could not drain the swamps, fill the swamps, and reclaim the swamps, and make them liveable, inhabitable for the Caymanian people at a reasonable price, then we would of course be getting into very, very difficult areas. The world is here for mankind. He must be reasonable in terms of what he takes, and what he replaces with what he takes, but life itself is based upon taking and giving. We find that in our birth, and we find that in our death, and as it is said, "from the earth we come, to the earth we return."

There is a giving and taking in-built in nature, and we do not have to become so ideological, in terms of our premises about sustainable development, and the vision of preserving the planet, that we forget it was not ideology that created the universe, but the will of God, and that He was very much aware of the fact that He put man here to have dominion over all other forms of life. Therefore, human life must be considered first and foremost.

I am saying that my position regarding dredging is not that we should not dredge, but that we should dredge when it is necessary to sustain a liveable and acceptable life form for the Caymanian people.

Sometimes it is quite shocking when you go by some of these developments, and you see that a certain amount of inland dredging and a certain amount of off-shore dredging have occurred, and that the lots of land cost like $300,000 and $100,000, and $200,000. And all of this dredging is happening. All this land is being filled. But the land could never be used by the people of these Islands, because the people of these Islands could never afford to buy those lots, and to live on those lands.

One reason I would like to see the question of dredging debated in the House of the Legislative Assembly is that it is a question of what we consider to be necessary. What we consider to be necessary has a lot to do with our political opinions, with the people's political opinions, with what the people believe is necessary to sustain and improve their standard of living. Sometimes, when we look at the number of swamps being reclaimed, they are not being reclaimed for the people of the Cayman Islands, because the people of the Cayman Islands cannot afford the $150,000 or the $60,000 or the $300,000 for a lot in these areas.

We know that type of dredging is not going to satisfy the demand we have as a people in this country. The little man will need his areas to be filled, and that fill, that mass fill, must come from someplace. He cannot clock into one of these areas and do inland dredging. The dredging, the marl that is going to fill the yards in Windsor Park, that flood, the areas in the Swamp in George Town that flood, are not going to come from any canal system. It is going to have to come from the North Sound, someplace in the North Sound.

We want to make sure that when dredging occurs, when it seems to be necessary, when permission is given, it is not a group of rich people coming in here and gaining a monopoly to develop land that will be beyond what the Cayman Islands people can afford. We want to make sure this is balanced in such a way that it will also be used to fill the areas like the Swamp in George Town, and perhaps areas in Bodden Town that are lowlands. The Planning Department requires that the person build their land up a certain number of feet above sea level. This always means that there has to be additional fill for people to be able to construct homes.

We know, on one hand, there is a need for marl. But the marl, like I said, is not necessarily totally necessary, because we consider the fact that we need to build roads. The marl is said to be necessary because people need it to continue to fill their homes.

I feel that when we come to the question of importing aggregate, from the information I heard from the First Elected Member for George Town, I am not in a position to totally make a decision regarding whether Executive Council was correct in their position regarding this. I would be very careful in how I stick this type of information into the debate at the moment, because we do not want to give the impression or opinion that when we come to making decisions on policies for dredging or importation, it is somehow decided as a result of the political opinions, or so-called common sense opinions of legislators, but in fact, decided from a scientific and engineering point of view.

I have therefore tried to confine my arguments to the question of the separation of power and the power of Parliament, saying that a decision like this is logical, expedient, and in favour of the people and the people's democracy, and the people will welcome such a decision. In fact what Parliament is doing is not eroding the separation of power, but making that separation more workable, by giving the Executive Council the possibility, in carrying out its role as implementers of policy, to give the kind of transparency we need to have at the moment.

We should not believe that at the end of the day transparency simply means debate. We have to realise that regardless of how objective we all pretend to be, we all have friends out there, we all have interests out there, that we come here to represent, to act for interests. We know we are not supposed to act for this person more than we act for the other person, but we are human beings, so we have to be very careful that we are not just moving a decision-making process from one position to the other position, and when moving it from one branch of Government to the other branch of Government, basically what we are doing is including more people in the decision-making process and saying that because more people are involved in the decision-making process, it is better. It could be worse. We have to make sure that we make decisions based upon scientific information available. Until we have the basis for making those types of sensible decisions, we be careful what we say. We be careful what positions we advocate, because the general public is listening, and the general public is making conclusions, and sometimes when we say things like fill being able to be acquired for $4 or something like that, we might give them the impression that the problem we are trying to solve is a little bit more solvable than it really is. It is a very difficult problem we are attempting to solve. It is a balancing act, and hopefully we will rely on our objective instincts rather than our subjective opinions.

I support this amendment to this Motion, and support this Motion, and recommend it to the House, and say lastly that I compliment the Leader of Government Business and the Government in making this compromise possible.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Mover and Seconder of this Motion have given a very detailed presentation to this Honourable House. My contribution will be relatively brief. However, I believe this is such an important Motion, that each Member of this Honourable House should give this their support, directly or indirectly. By directly, I mean they should speak publicly on it, or at least support it so that it passes unanimously.

In the first Preamble, the Motion refers to the Throne Speech delivered by His Excellency the Governor on 16 February 1997, wherein the Governor specifically stated that there would be no further dredging in the North Sound except an approval granted to Caymarl to excavate the balance of material under a licence granted in 1988. I mention here that I was the Minister responsible for granting that licence in 1988. It was against the background of the report prepared by Mr. J. H. Wickstead, and other recommendations received from the Environmental Department.

Previous speakers have stated it is necessary that a certain level of dredging be carried out if we are to continue with our development in the Cayman Islands. I believe it would be somewhat foolhardy if we dismiss the detailed report prepared by Mr. Wickstead. There is no other such detailed report prepared by the Government since that was carried out some twenty years ago. This is primarily why various candidates, even in the last election, mentioned the need for a detailed environmental impact study on the North Sound and throughout the Cayman Islands. The Wickstead Report specifically stated that approximately 12 million cubic yards of fill could be taken out of the North Sound. But to carry on that level of dredging would be, in my opinion, contrary to the wishes of the people of the Cayman Islands, and would no doubt destroy many areas of our marine life in the North Sound.

If we are to continue the development in the Cayman Islands such as road building, public buildings, private buildings, etc., considering that this country is flat and that marl is needed for much of this development, we will have to be sensible and understand that a certain amount of dredging is necessary. We will have to ensure that a happy medium is drawn, where the least possible negative impact occurs on our marine life. But if we are to continue with development, we cannot bury our heads in the sand and pretend that no problems surround us: we must face the problem of obtaining the necessary aggregate for future development of these Islands.

The group I was (and am still) associated with in the last election felt so strongly about the need to protect the environment...I would hate for anybody to get the impression that I am not very concerned about the sensitivity of the marine environment. I am very concerned and I have demonstrated this in my public as well as my private life. We stated specifically in our Manifesto, “We undertake to commission an independent environmental assessment of the North Sound with terms of reference to include the impact of dredging with the Cayman Islands.” That is how important we feel this whole question of dredging is.

I am pleased that the Motion was amended, because had it not been amended, we would have lost a golden opportunity to deal with this most important issue. I am amazed that so few of our Honourable Members realise that the whole question of politics is compromise. If you compare the objectives of any Member of this House, regardless of political leaning, you will find that we have one central objective in mind: offering our people the very best representation possible. We have no distinct and separate ideologies in the Cayman Islands; we have no distinct and separate political leanings. When one is elected for a particular constituency, it is mostly a matter of likes and dislikes.

So, against that background, there is no reason why we cannot meet as reasonable men and solve our problems within this House without there having to be lines drawn, or anyone feeling that their position is not properly recognised.

I was happy when the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning decided to bring a Government Motion which basically covered the wishes of the Backbench. That Motion states:

“BE IT NOW THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT all applications for dredging in the North Sound, other than minor applications such as seawalls, wharves and jetties:

“(1) shall be published in a newspaper once per week for four weeks, giving notice of the application and stating that written objections and representations may be made to the Permanent Secretary, Ministry of Environment, within at least four weeks from the date of the last notice and copies of which shall be made available to Members of the Legislative Assembly; and

“(2) shall be moved, debated and finally voted upon in the Legislative Assembly.”

The word “finally” gives no doubt at all that the final decision on any application for any form of major dredging will be brought and decided upon by this House. That is the way it should be within the Cayman Islands.

The Speaker: May I interrupt for a moment? You said that Government brought a Government Motion. That was actually an amendment to Private Member’s Motion No. 2/98.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The amendment was brought by the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning to amend the substantive Motion which was brought by the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town and seconded by the First Elected Member for George Town. I hope I have cleared up that particular point satisfactorily.

The Speaker: Thank you.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: This Motion will ensure that the Legislative Assembly, which is the supreme body within the Cayman Islands, will make the final decision on any matter of this magnitude. This is a matter of national importance. We have heard much talk about the separation of powers.

I will not go into those details because I think that most of us understand that there are three basic areas within the separation of powers, namely, the executive, the legislative and the judicial. I believe, strictly speaking, that no Member of this House intended to interfere with those functions. In my opinion, reference to this was somewhat unnecessary. Nevertheless, it has shown that the Legislative Assembly of this country is supreme and does not take second position to any other body of powers within our democracy.

This Motion guarantees that there will be complete transparency on the issue of dredging. We have known that the whole question of dredging, whether it be inland or offshore, or mining, has created major controversy in the past years. I recall when the development was being conducted at the SafeHaven area, there was much controversy about that development—it was going to destroy the Cayman Islands. I believe, perhaps, that it was the best thing to happen on that West Bay Road areas. It has produced the only proper golf course within the Cayman Islands; it has reduced the mosquito problem we had in that area. Some of the questions raised regarding the fishing areas around where the dredging was being done, we found to be a lot of nonsense. If one examines those areas at this point, one will find that the fish life is much better than it was before the dredging was carried out.

I am just drawing a line where we are being fair to ourselves, to developers, and to the people of this country. No one loves the Cayman Islands better than I, but we must be realistic. I am not here to play politics with this issue. There are some people listening to me who feel that I am not as conservative on the issue as I should be. I am trying to be as realistic on this issue as I feel is necessary.

This Motion does not say—and I want to make this point abundantly clear—that there be no more dredging in the Cayman Islands. If it had said that, I could not support the Motion because I would be doing something that would not be in the best interest of these Islands. We have heard that most of the material used in the building of the Harquail Bypass was material from the quarry, and not marl. Be that as it may, we know from experience that 90% of the roads built in the Cayman Islands are built from the extraction of marl.

If we are unable to obtain marl locally, if we are unable to obtain the building materials locally, where are we going to obtain this material? I am totally opposed to land mining of marl. To me, that is one of the most destructive means of obtaining marl. One only has to look around and see the devastation that has been caused by inland mining of marl. That is the area that we must be very careful in putting controls on. But there are certain other controls that must be put in place where we must use our best judgement and common sense. The Cayman Islands will not continue to develop as it has over the past five to ten years if we do not put the proper controls in place.

With all that has been said, all the planning we do for roads and physical development must now fit within the Ten-Year Development Plan announced by His Excellency the Governor for the year 2008. I take this opportunity to congratulate the Governor on his foresight in bringing such a development plan. Whether the Backbench, or anyone else, may have given thought to this is beside the point. The important issue here is that we have commissioned—His Excellency the Governor, the head of our country, has commissioned such a plan. I trust that we will give it our full support.

Another good thing he has done is the re-engineering of Government. Hopefully this will dovetail and integrate with the Ten-Year Development Plan for the year 2008. I am happy to also learn that this will be a revolving plan that will go on from year to year after that. I mention that because any initiatives that we bring to this Honourable House for development, dredging or anything else should fit within that Ten-Year Development Plan.

We cannot continue to move from year to year like we have in the past—one day at a time is not good enough. We cannot manage by crisis, we must have a plan so that when the year 1999, the year 2000, and so on comes around, we know precisely where we are going. We will know what our revenue position is and we will know what we can spend within the ambit of that revenue. That is the sort of vision we have been asking for on this Backbench. It is good to see that His Excellency the Governor has now put this in place. I, for one, will be giving it my full support.

One Member said that several initiatives had been made, letters had been written to Government seeking permission to import aggregate. I share Government's concern in not wishing to see any poisonous insects or snakes or reptiles come into these Islands. That is one of the beauties of living in the Cayman Islands—you can walk around without fear of that situation.

I think we need to be realistic about this. I have no doubt in my mind that what was previously mentioned regarding the possibility of importing aggregate from places like Mexico can be attained. I also understand that there are individuals on this Island who have written to Government about this matter who have shown they have the wherewithal to carry out their project, and that the aggregate would indeed be cheaper than what we are now paying in the Cayman Islands. I trust that the Honourable Minister with responsibility for this subject will clear up this point. If, indeed, this matter has been pushed into a drawer, or on the shelf for many years, this is a most unsatisfactory situation.

We must do what is in the best interests of these Islands. I take the point that we must be very careful with what we do, but if the United States of America has been importing from Mexico and the same source for a number of years (as we heard), then I think we can safely assume that there is very little problem we would experience if we carried out a similar exercise.

That is not to say that there are not problems with inspections carried out in the United States. I happen to know, as the former Minister for Agriculture, that we have found insects in flowers and other agricultural products that were supposed to have been inspected by the United States Agricultural Department, and which had received proper certification. Yet, they came here with infestation. So, the only point I wish to make here is that we cannot totally rely on the certification of the United States, but will have to ensure that if this matter is seriously considered, there will also be satisfactory inspections carried out on the local scene.

As I mentioned when I started, my contribution would be brief. I would like to stress that a sensible balance is necessary between the negative impact of development and the benefits that will accrue for the people of these Islands. I also want to make the point that we cannot say 'no more dredging in the North Sound' on the one hand, and say that we want to maintain a certain level of economic and physical development in these Islands on the other hand; one will not work without the other. We cannot ask the country to provide the necessary roads in these Islands, and then not allow the materials required to develop these roads.

This Motion is not saying that. All this Motion is calling for is that in the future, because of the sensitive nature of the dredging of the North Sound, any applications for major dredging in the North Sound should first come to the Legislative Assembly, and that those applications should be made public knowledge so that there is absolute transparency in all that we do.

I want to commend the Mover and Seconder of the Motion. I think they have done this country a major service in bringing this Motion. I also wish to commend the Government Bench which, in bringing the amendment to this Motion, has indicated its support of this Motion. I trust it will receive the full support of all Members of this Honourable House.

The Speaker: Proceedings are suspended for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.37 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12.15 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Debate continues on Private Member's Motion No. 2/98. Does any other Member wish to speak?

The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

There has been quite a bit said on the Motion, and I do not propose to be long, but there is at least one point I wish to raise.

There is nothing more emotive in West Bay than the subject of dredging when it pertains to the North Sound. I have listened to the debate from both sides of the House, and some very solid points have been raised, environmental and developmental, in relation to dredging the seabed and the need for fill material.

Whenever the question of dredging is put to Government in the form of an application, a very reasoned and informed decision needs to be given, based on proper factual environmental studies. In saying that, whenever the question of dredging comes up, there is always a lot of discussion on it, sometimes very emotional. One thing we do know is that we have to maintain a balance in the ecological system, and in planning the future, we have to make sure that development can take place with proper consideration to the balance of natural forces, to continue to enhance the quality of everyday life. Certainly, this means that properly controlled development can continue in this country. That is where I stand as Member of this House. Good development with the right environmental balance can only enhance our quality of life, not only today, but in the future.

As I said, it is an emotional subject, and we must bear in mind that there are people who do not support Government, be it this Government or any other; whenever it comes to dredging there are people who jump into the fray and, more particularly, people who do not support Government, who are usually stumbling blocks when it comes to dredging. They would do anything to put stumbling blocks in the way, in the form of environmental concern, not based on proper scientific research.

Development means too much to this country, and the ecological balance means too much to the country for misinformation, which only serves to rile people up unnecessarily by letters and other misinformed actions. I certainly would like, whenever I have to make a decision, to be given factual information based on scientific study. I heard that the breeding ground for marine life is actually in what is now known as the central wetlands. This poses a big question to the country: Can that area be preserved? Can Government pay for it? Because the land (most of it, I guess) is privately owned. These are the questions the country is faced with.

The matter of whether it comes to this House or goes to Executive Council is still not clear. I am one of those Members who maintains that the Motion is not clear enough for me to say what role Executive Council has in the matter. But I certainly believe it would be good to have the House deliberate upon the subject.

Bearing in mind the situation I got into as a Member of Executive Council in the matter raised by the First Elected Member for George Town, and bearing in mind the feeling of the vast majority of my constituents, I can see no harm in bringing the matter to the House. I took the position while in Executive Council, that the fee paid as royalties to Government for dredging was much too low compared to the cost of production and subsequent sale price.

When you consider that once an area is dredged, Government would not receive anything further from it—the seabed is an asset that belongs to Government. The fee for royalties in 1992 when I entered Executive Council was something like 25 cents per cubic yard. We managed to get it raised to $1.00 per cubic yard. I believe that still stands today. I remember my arguments for that. When you now consider that the Government only gets $1.00 per cubic yard as royalties for dredged material, compared to $12.50 to $18.00 per cubic yard (depending upon where you live in the country and how you are going to get it) for the sale of dredged material, the question must be raised: Is $1.00 per cubic yard of fill all the Cayman Islands can get for that asset?

Now, I posed that question in Executive Council and, as I said, we did get it raised. But I believe this is still too little. If a licence is given for five million yards of material, then at $12.50 per yard, that comes to $62.5 million in sales. At $1.00, Government would receive something like 8% of that, or $5 million. If the same five million cubic yards are sold for $18.00 per cubic yards, that amounts to $90 million. Government would get less than 5.6%, or still only $5 million.

Can anyone tell me if that makes good economic sense when Government owns the asset? The asset belongs to the people of this country! When you give it out, there is the monopoly situation, so who is thinking about Government? What has been going on in this country as far as the fee for royalties does not make good economic sense.

Whether the House has the say in the granting of a licence, or whether it is Executive Council that has the say, as I said, I am still not sure who has the say, at least I am not sure as to what role Executive Council will play, but regardless of who has the say, I do hope that the $1.00 fee goes out the door for something more realistic. Once a cubic yard of fill is removed from the seabed, Government loses its asset, never again to get anything from it. The businessmen get the big bucks, and the country is left without that asset.

Many people have gone into the whys, wherefores and why nots of dredging. They mentioned the need for fill material and whether it must be dredged here, inland mining, or brought from abroad. I have to disagree with those persons who said that it is no different to import it. I am one who has always (and this is my personal opinion) been worried about the importation of things foreign, of organisms foreign to our country. Certainly, when it comes to snakes and other insects, I would be very much concerned about it.

I think in December, the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works made some points about the importation of these things, and I had to agree with him. We have to wonder then what the cost of importation will be, and what will be the cost passed on to the public. Then we have to weigh that against any possible damage to the environment.

Every one of us is conscious of and concerned about the impact on the environment, but we have to be (as someone has already said) realistic because where else are we going to get the material to carry on the developments? Amongst other issues, this is one of the main issues Government has to deal with or this country is going to grind to a halt. That is a fact. From the figures given in Planning, there are over one million cubic yards needed. That is just ordinary fill. Then we have other fill to consider, whether it be roads, or a commercial building. These are factors we have to face.

While the Government made a U-turn in two days—and I am glad they did—I have to wonder where they are headed (I must say that) in their leadership, because one day they gave a major policy, and the next day they made a U-turn. I have to be concerned about that. I repeat for emphasis: I want to know what role Executive Council will play now in the granting of a licence as per the amendment moved by the Government.

Some people argue that we have enough development. That is why I am saying we need the right kind of studies put before us when it comes to the environment. While they say on the one hand, 'Oh, we have enough development, so we can stop.' They are the same ones who run into you and say, 'We want a new school. We need to continue the Hospital. We want more roads.' Where in the world is this country going to get, not just the fill, but the money to do the development, if we do not continue development? Where will we get the funds to do the needed infrastructure if we do not continue development? I am saying that this issue hinges seriously on development. If we do not do something about it we are going to grind to a halt, and the Government will be in a bad position, because it will not have the funds to continue with the needs of the people.

We can preach, and draw all kinds of conclusions from things that Members have said, but let no one misconstrue what the House is trying to say. As I said, I have to be concerned about the North Sound, but I do not want every man who thinks he knows something about it to be the one making the decision—it has to be a reasoned, environmental, scientific study. We are told now, from people in environmental study, that certain things can go on in certain areas. Well, if this is true, let Government bring that and put it on the Table and say, 'This is where we are going, this is what we can do.'

I have to be concerned about the reefs. I have to be concerned about the beach, the sand bar. We have to be concerned whether mass dredging will affect that. From the time I was growing up, I always heard it would affect it. Now, there is some new train of thought that we can do certain things in certain areas and it will not affect that. The people in West Bay, my constituents, are very concerned, because I have been getting calls since the Motion was brought as to what exactly is planned. Do you know what is not being said? Planning is passing projects, but no one is saying, This is what we need in fill. We have to come to grips with it.

I will not prolong debate on the matter except to say that I, too, am happy about the consensus we have arrived at, but I am concerned over the wording of the amendment to the Motion. I am concerned about where Government is headed.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? If not, would the Mover wish to exercise his right of reply? The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I was prepared to offer some technical arguments to substantiate the position laid out in this Private Member's Motion. But, in light of what my colleagues on the Back-bench have said, and in the interest of saving the time of the House, I will defer.

Much of what I would have been offering is really material used in 1996 in the Private Member's Motion moved by the former Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman and seconded by me. I think it is clear from the tenor of Honourable Members' debates that what is needed at this point—and I like how the First Elected Member for West Bay and the Fourth Elected Member for George Town expressed it—is a proper environmental impact study, a proper, scientific study. As the Fourth Elected Member for George Town said, we all hold positions, and we can argue and articulate from a political perspective, but we cannot make an educated and informed decision on this matter until we have hard, cold scientific data to use as a base and to extrapolate information from.

This is a very emotional subject for all Honourable Members in this House. We know that emotion may win arguments, but emotion may not necessarily provide the best solution, particularly when every man on the street and every Honourable Member in this Parliament has a position when it comes to dredging .

My disappointment has to lie with the Government, because on 23 February 1996, according to the Hansards of this Honourable House, when Private Member's Motion No. 2/96 was being debated, I want to quote what the Minister with responsibility for the Environment said (on page 41): "My department is presently working on terms of reference for the North Sound, something which was given to them long before this Motion came before the House." What we are looking at here is a case of intransigence on the part of the Government. The Government failed to deliver.

I do not know what the state of the terms of reference is. There has certainly been no public announcement in the news media; there has been no reference to the development of such terms of reference in this Honourable House. What is the state of the terms of reference which, up to 23 February 1996, as quoted, had been given long before to develop? Had we been in possession of the terms of reference, we would have been able to take a much more informed decision now.

I want to say something else about the terms of reference in that study. Let me tell you what I am a firm believer in. There is an old adage that says, "He who pays the piper calls the tune." If we have a proposition and my recommendation is, in order to carry out the decision as to whether we go ahead with this proposition, I tell you that you must bear the expense of certain investigations, well, I am laying myself open. I am not saying that anything untoward may happen, but if you have to pay to get something done, how can I be assured that it is not skewed in your interest? I would rather see this study undertaken and done by someone other than the applicant.

Now, this material, and the base from which this material is going to be extracted belongs to the Government and, by inference, the people. So the Government must be able to say, 'Well, we cannot stop you, Mr. Applicant, from doing a study. But, you understand, this is my study. What I am prepared to do is compare notes, or studies. We may strike a happy medium, but I am certainly not subjecting myself to the position where I, the owner, have to go by what is in your study exclusively. Oh no.' So I want to say here and now that I, for one, would be happy to see any such study. We cannot prevent applicants from doing studies, but I am saying that the Government must be in a position to have their own study.

That is what smart people do. That is how negotiations are made, because if I do not have any study except yours upon which to go, how can I be negotiating from a point of strength? And what is there to negotiate? It is only the matter of what is contained in your study.

I would have been happy, at this point, to have been able to say how much such a study would cost. That would determine when, and if, the Government will be in a position to afford it. It is common in jurisdictions such as this that the Government have at its disposal, not only a valuation of its natural resources, but some kind of quantification, particularly when it is a matter from which we derive royalties.

If we take the jurisdiction where bauxite is mined, who do you think does the survey? The bauxite company does the survey, but I bet you the Government does a survey also. They want to know what is removed and how much is left. They need to be in a position to levy something reasonable because, as the First Elected Member for West Bay remarked, when that material is gone, it is not going to be replaced—it is gone, like Frenchie used to talk about, Mr. Speaker, 'Fe-yeva.'

The Honourable Minister mentioned that as far as he was concerned, it is not going to be a cheap exercise. Well, that was two years ago. I am sure the cost of doing business has risen since that. Let us look about getting this done—the sooner, the better.

The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning, the Leader of Government Business, drew some reference to road-building, and said it was necessary to have this material because we are building roads and doing all kinds of development. Let it not be misconstrued that marl is the only fill used in road-building, or, for that matter, that marl is the best for all roads. It is my understanding that on the Harquail Bypass, marl could not be used. So I want to make it clear that marl is not the only type of material that can be used. I recognise that people should have alternatives and it spells good business sense, but marl, according to scientific studies and the experts...there is a certain way of measuring and laboratory techniques derived. The most common is called the California Bearing Ratio. If you compare marl to aggregate from mined quarry, you use twice as much marl in many instances as you do quarry rock, crusher run, because if the base contains too much moisture and is swampy, well, you cannot put marl there at all. You have to use a different sub-base. So, if anyone is trying to frighten people by making them believe that they must have access to marl for every occasion, whether it be construction or building roads, that is not accurate, and not an exact in many cases.

There is also the economic argument. The same Minister said that marl can be produced at $5.00 per cubic yard...

The Speaker: May I just interrupt you for a moment? I do not suppose that you will be finishing in the near future, can we suspend at this time for lunch?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Yes, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: Proceedings are suspended until 2.30 PM.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.46 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.50 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed, the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town continuing.

Mr. Roy Bodden: When we took the luncheon suspension, I was answering the matters raised by the Leader of Government Business, where he brought in the adage of a penny saved is a penny earned; and saying that it was necessary and relevant to lay the understanding that Government does not necessarily accrue a lot of financial advantage under the existing system. I am reminded again of Private Member's Motion No. 2/96 when it was brought and debated, we referred at length to what the Auditor General had to say in his pertinent report of that time. The Auditor General basically made three recommendations, the first being that there should be a thorough independent review of all aspects of marl dredging

; that there is need for comprehensive legislation to regulate dredging activities; and that the Marine Conservation Laws should be extended to encompass dredging.

Significantly too, he found reason to lament the existing arrangement—or lack thereof—regarding the Government and the royalties situation, since the Auditor General drew readers' attention to the fact that the Government had no organised means of attaining for itself the amount of marl taken. The system, as it exists, did not include the Government measuring what was taken up. In other words, the Government abided wholly and solely on what information the dredger gave it. So while it is true that there is merit to the old adage that a penny saved is a penny earned, unless the Government gets more control of the system, it is bound to lose some pennies.

I do not have much more to say except that when we were debating the Motion in 1996, not surprisingly, when it came to the vote, all three Members stood out, being the Mover, the then Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, the present First Elected Member for George Town and I. What concerns me with the amendment which was accepted, as moved, by the Leader of Government Business, is that I read in the paper something to the effect that the Government reserves the right, or it is left to the Government to work out the intricacies of the amendment. I heard Honourable Members raise the issue as to what is going to happen. The First Elected Member for West Bay was one such Member, and there were others. I also pose the question.

I do so because this whole business of dredging, if the past is an example, is very lucrative to licence-holders. What the decision this Motion brings will do is that mentioned by others—bring sunshine and transparency. I would hate to see ownership of a dredging licence be like ownership of a liquor licence was some years ago when the mere possession of a licence in one's pocket could be parlayed into literally hundreds of thousands of dollars.

What we are dealing with here are the resources of the state and by inference, the country. Private ownership should never extend, or invade, or preclude the state's responsibility to preserve the state's resources and assets in the best interest of the general populace. So I would think that having the matter discussed, debated and finally resolved in Parliament is the appropriate place to resolve such issues. It would certainly take them away from the power politics and what goes on behind the closed doors of the west conference room on the fourth floor of the Glass House.

I reiterate that time is of the essence, and we need that environmental impact study for our own sensible decision-making. I think it is accurate and fair to remark that the country is interested in this very sensitive issue, and would be happy to listen to the elected representatives of the people discuss this issue, especially if they were doing so with the advantage of some kind of environmental impact study. While it is true that there should be some access to marl, and that marl should be available, there is no empirical data to suggest that in all cases marl is exclusively the best material.

Mr. Speaker, other Honourable Members mentioned the amendment, and circumstances surrounding the amendment, and were very liberal in the expressions of graciousness toward the Government and the compromise worked out. I will not be a spoilsport and be ungracious. However, I will not be as liberal as other Honourable Members, because I am reminded that the amendment did not come easily—it was wrung from the Government after much excruciating and painful debate. Nevertheless, I am happy to remind the Government that we have all arrived at a position of compromise. What comes into question now is what the old families talk about, honour. It is now entirely up to the Government as to the extent of how honourable they will be in embracing the arrangements that were made. I can say no more.

I thank all Honourable Members for their responsible and serious positions in the debate, and would like to conclude by saying that it is good we can recognise there are some issues where bargaining, compromise and consensus play an important role. We, on the Backbench, have done our duty and have carried out our responsibilities seriously. We now await the intentions of the Government, and might I say that there are those of us who will be very disappointed if there is any attempt to play any games, semantic or otherwise, with the procedure we think should ensue.

The Speaker: I shall now put the question on Private Member's Motion No. 2/98 as amended. I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 2/98, AS AMENDED, PASSED UNANIMOUSLY.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 3/98, Establishment of a Standing Select Committee of Privileges. The First Elected Member for George Town.

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 3/98

ESTABLISHMENT OF A STANDING SELECT COMMITTEE OF PRIVILEGES

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I beg to move Private Member's Motion No. 3/98, Establishment of a Standing Select Committee of Privileges, which reads:

"WHEREAS Standing Order 79 provides that the House may appoint other standing select committees as required from among its Members;

"BE IT NOW THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT this Honourable Legislative Assembly appoint a Standing

Select Committee of Privileges to consider and report on any matter affecting the privileges of this Honourable House;

“AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED THAT the Committee shall be comprised of eight Members and a Chairman elected from among the Committee Members;

“AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED THAT:

“(a) The Committee shall elect a Deputy Chairman from among the Committee Members who shall act as Chairman of the Committee during the absence of the Chairman;

“(b) The Committee shall have powers to appoint sub-committees consisting of three or more of its Members and to refer to the sub-committee any matters which the Committee is empowered to examine;

“(c) The Committee shall appoint the Chairman of each sub-committee who shall have a casting vote only;

“(d) The Committee or sub-committee shall have the power to consider and make use of records and evidence available to it and to make recommendations to the Legislative Assembly;

“AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED THAT the Legislative Assembly enact legislation regarding Parliamentary Privileges at the earliest convenience.”

The Speaker: Is there a seconder? The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: I respectfully beg to second the Motion.

STANDING ORDERS 36 and 39

The Speaker: Private Member’s Motion No. 3/98 has been duly moved and seconded. Before calling on the First Elected Member for George Town to make his presentation to the Motion, I refer all Honourable Members to Standing Order 36(1), which states that “debate shall be relevant to the matter of question before the House.” I ask all Honourable Members to observe this rule and to keep debate on Private Member’s Motion No. 3/98 relevant.

I also ask Honourable Members to observe Standing Order 39(c) by maintaining silence while other Members are speaking and not interrupting except in accordance with Standing Orders.

The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you.

I am sure that all Honourable Members will take note of what you have just said.

In bringing this Motion to Parliament, I will simply outline to Members the intent of the Motion. I will leave it up to Members to add their contributions after that. But being the Mover of the Motion, I will not deal with too much detail at the beginning, so I may conclude the debate with the benefit of hearing what other Members have to say.

In the initial stages of my contribution, to explain and give examples of what the Motion wishes to accomplish, I will have to quote from certain documents. But so you will know, I will interact with the Clerk afterward and ensure that copies are available and laid on the Table.

The Speaker: I thank you.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: The first document from which I am going to quote—and I start with a quotation because I think it relevant—is The House of Representatives Practice, the second edition, from the Australian Parliament. The first section from which I wish to is the section under Parliamentary Privilege. There is a definition: “The word privilege has in modern times acquired a meaning wholly different from its traditional Parliamentary connotation. In consequence, its use could convey to the generally the false impression that Members are and desire to be a privileged class. It is out of keeping with modern ideas of Parliament as a place of work and of the status of its Members as citizens who have been elected to do within the place of work their duty as representatives of those who elected them.”

Erskine May defines Parliamentary privilege as “The sum of the peculiar rights enjoyed by each House collectively as a constituent part of the High Court of Parliament, and by Members of each House individually, without which they could not discharge their functions, and which exceed those possessed by other bodies or individuals.”

Those two quotations are simply used to bring to light the fact that the concept of Parliamentary privilege has evolved over the years. Initially, as Erskine May defines Parliamentary privilege, what I call the flip side of the coin was not very important, but as time goes on we have come to understand that Parliamentary privilege carries with it as much a responsibility on the part of Members of Parliament as is expected from members of the public. In other words, while Parliamentary privilege is considered a necessary part of good government, it is also incumbent upon those who enjoy those privileges to not abuse them.

If we go on to page 725 of the Australian document, where it addresses a Committee of Privileges, it says: “In order to assist the House in its examination of issues of privilege, the House appoints at the commencement of each Parliament a Committee of Privileges. The Committee’s purpose is to enquire into and report on complaints of alleged breaches of privilege or contempt, or occasionally on other matters referred to it by the House.” So that basically is a synopsis of the purpose of the Committee of Privileges.

To show that it is the norm in most other countries to have a Committee of Privileges, I will quote two lines from the New Zealand Standing Orders of the House of Representatives. In chapter 8 of the Standing Orders, page 83, under Parliamentary Privilege it states: "The House appoints a Privileges Committee at the commencement of each Parliament. The Committee considers and reports on any matters referred to it by the House relating to or concerning Parliamentary Privilege." In essence, we are probably one of the few countries in the position we are in today that does not have such a committee.

I will quickly move on to a few other areas to reinforce what I consider the need for such a committee. In the same Australian document, page 685, there is a section that says: "Further comment on the nature of privilege." Its sub-head says, "Its meaning and necessity." I quote: "Parliamentary Privileges relate to the special rights and immunities which belong to the Parliament, the Members and others which are considered essential for the operation of the Parliament. These rights and immunities allow the Parliament to meet and carry out its proper constitutional role, for Members to discharge their responsibilities to their constituents, and for others properly involved in the Parliamentary process to carry out their duties and responsibilities without obstruction or fear of prosecution."

"Privileges are not the prerogative of Members in their personal capacities. It has been stated insofar as the House claims and Members enjoy those rights and immunities which are grouped under the general description of privileges, they are claimed and enjoyed by the House in its corporate capacity and by its Members on behalf of the citizens whom they represent."

"When any of these rights and immunities, both of the Members individually and of the Assembly in its collective capacity are disregarded or attacked by any individual or authority, the offence is called a breach of privilege, and is punishable under the law of Parliament."

Going on with the last section I wish to read, Mr. Speaker, it says: "Despite the immunity from prosecution which Members have in respect of what they say in the Parliament in carrying out their duties [and this is very important] they are still accountable to the House itself in respect of their statements and actions. It is within the power of the House to take action to punish or penalise Members, for example, for some form of extreme obstruction of the business of the House." We can see that while Parliamentary privilege is deemed a necessary function of Parliament, it carries along with it a certain degree of responsibility on the part of Members.

To reinforce that point, on page 688 of that document, under "Freedom of speech," one paragraph states: "Members are absolutely privileged from suit or prosecution only in respect of anything they might say in the course of proceedings in Parliament. Members may state whatever they think fit in debate in the Parliament, however offensive or injurious to the character of individuals and provided it is in accord with the ordinary rules and practices of the House. It is, however, incumbent upon Members not to abuse the privilege. The House itself, by its rules of debate and disciplinary powers, has the duty to prevent abuse."

As Erskine May puts it, "It becomes the duty of each Member to refrain from any course of action prejudicial to the privilege which he enjoys." So, that is an outline of the way I perceive the privilege of Parliament to work. It has its own connotation regarding what it allows Members of Parliament to do in their functions, but it also carries with it the very serious responsibility of each Member, while enjoying that privilege, not to go beyond what is considered the norm within the ambits of the privilege and not to abuse it.

Another reference I wish to quickly make is to a few documents which are concerned with the Nolan Committee. That committee was put into place in the United Kingdom to bring a report, and its purpose was to stamp out what the English called 'sleaze.' In a newspaper clipping reporting on that Committee, it quotes the Committee's report and I wish to read a small section: "The erosion of public confidence in the holders of public office is a serious matter. Insofar as a culture of moral vagueness, a culture of sleaze has developed, we seek to put an end to it. Experience warns elsewhere that unless the strictest standards are maintained and, where necessary, restored, corruption and malpractice can become part of the way of life. The threat at the moment is not great, but action needs to be taken before it becomes so."

Another paragraph from the newspaper regarding the Committee's report reads: "Financial misbehaviour, in particular, matters to us all because it strikes at the very heart of that confidence which people must have in Ministers, and the motive behind their decisions." So you see, Mr. Speaker, in other countries there are great concerns regarding the actions of people who are in Parliament, and the way the public perceives their actions.

These last two quotations may seem to be slightly off the track, but I contend that a Committee of Privileges, once the Motion before the House is accepted, will certainly be able to deal with its own in many areas, including the areas I quoted where people in other countries have concerns about the actions of Parliament.

To go on, there is a document from the first report of the Committee on Standards in Public Life (which is the same Nolan Committee). Section 91 of that first report refers specifically to Parliamentary privilege. It says: "Parliamentary privilege is designed to ensure the proper working of Parliament and is an essential Constitutional safeguard. In the recent report on the Cash for Questions case, the Committee of Privileges helpfully defined both its role and the concept of privilege." While I quoted a few definitions before, I think this area being addressed by the Nolan Committee is worth hearing.

The definition reads as follows: "It may be helpful to the wider public to describe briefly the role of this Committee [that is the Committee of Privileges]. Having been directed to examine a matter by the House, our essential function is to take evidence on its behalf in order to advise Members generally on whether and to what extent there appears to have been a breach of the privileges of the House, any action amounting to a contempt, and to make recommendations to the House. It is for the House in all cases to take the final decision. Partly through precedent and partly by statute, the House has over the years obtained certain rights known as privileges. Their purpose is not to protect individual Members of Parliament, but to provide the necessary framework in which the House in its corporate capacity and its Members as individuals can fulfil their responsibilities to the citizens whom they represent. Parliament defends its privileges by the Law of Contempt. One of the consequences of privilege is, therefore, that the House regulates the activities of its Members itself. Where Parliamentary business is concerned, they are answerable to the House and not to the Courts. Because Parliamentary privilege is important for reasons entirely unconnected with the standards of conduct of individual Members of Parliament, we believe it would be highly desirable for self-regulation to continue."

While the Nolan Committee takes that position, and I think it will probably hold in our Parliament, there are matters we will have to consider as to where we exercise limitations. What I consider the most important part of this Report, and the last thing I wish to read at present from this Report is a section that refers to the seven principles of public life. I think when we hear them, and if we applied ourselves to them, there would probably not need to be a Committee such as we are talking about.

The first principle is "Selflessness. Holders of public office should take decisions solely in terms of the public interest. They should not do so in order to gain financial or other material benefits for themselves, their families, or their friends."

Second: "Integrity. Holders of public office should not place themselves under any financial or other obligation to outside individuals or organisations that might influence them in the performance of their official duties."

"Objectivity. In carrying out public business, including making public appointments, awarding contracts or recommending individuals for rewards and benefits, holders of public office should make choices purely on merit."

"Accountability. Holders of public office are accountable for their decisions and actions to the public and must submit themselves to whatever scrutiny is appropriate to their office."

The fifth one is "Openness. Holders of public office should be as open as possible about all the decisions and actions they take. They should give reasons for their decisions and restrict information only when the wider public interest clearly demands."

Next is "Honesty. Holders of public office have a duty to declare any private interests relating to their public duties and to take steps to resolve any conflicts arising in a way that protects the public interest."

The last one is "Leadership. Holders of public office should promote and support these principles by leadership and by example."

Those quotations were used in an attempt to shore up the argument that this House does need a Committee of Privileges. There are other arguments which I have to bring forth, but as Mover of this Motion, I took the opportunity, in opening debate, to explain to the House, my concept of such a Committee and its functions. I hope that the entire Legislative Assembly will support the Motion.

I will now hear from others before I conclude. Depending upon what is said, and how it is said, we will see how long the debate lasts.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, there is an amendment to this Motion and I am wondering whether it might not be easier to speak on it and on the amendment, or whether we are going to speak on this Motion and then on the amendment.

The Speaker: I had hoped that the Mover of the amendment would have moved the amendment.

The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: I do not know why we are constantly changing the rules, because I was prepared to move the amendment when I rose to debate. Now, if we are going to keep changing the rules in this House, somebody needs to sit us down, as Members, and say this is what we are doing. We cannot play hop-scotch in here with the rules. In other words, they cannot apply to me, one thing, and...

The Speaker: Would you let me have a word please? Please sit down.

I am following the Standing Orders of this House. It says the question can be put at any time. In my opinion, the proper procedure is not to duplicate matters. If you are going to have to debate the Motion as it has been presented, consider one and come back again, it deprives the Members who have spoken of speaking on the amendment. To me this is the most democratic way.

Read your Standing Orders.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: From what I see in the Standing Orders, any time an amendment is moved, anyone can speak on it, even if that person spoke on the substantive Motion. This is the way we have been going for the four terms that I have been in here, and I am sure for the time you have been in here.

Now, I do not want to get into any friction with the Speaker, but all I am saying is you cannot change this to suit Government every time we need any 'fum-fum.' What I am saying is that is what is now happening.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak?

The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: The Motion that is before the House, without the amendment, seeks to appoint a Committee of eight Members and a Chairman, and then to give the Committee the power to appoint sub-committees consisting of three of more of its Members.

To be frank, I would be prepared to support the amendment which has gone in, when read with this. But to actually relegate the rights of this House down to three or more Members, I do not think is correct.

So I am speaking on the Motion as it will be amended which...

The Speaker: That is what I am saying—it makes conflict in the debate. But if that is the way you want it, it is all right with me.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Can I make an enquiry, Mr. Speaker?

The Speaker: First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: If I move this amendment now, what happens to the substantive Motion regarding my debate?

The Speaker: The Motion will be amended and then, if this amendment carries, you will debate the Motion as amended.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, while I have disagreed with Speakers, I have abided by their rulings. What is your ruling? What do you want me to do, Sir?

The Speaker: I will go either way. It does not matter to me. I only thought that was the proper procedure. If you are going to amend the Motion, if the amendment is defeated at this time, then the substantive Motion will be debated and that is what we will finally put the vote on. If the amendment is going to be passed, then the vote we will put will be on the Motion as amended.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Really, what happened on the Motion (and I am speaking about procedure here, now), when we debated the Motion to create awards for Customs and Immigration, an amendment came. What happened to that amendment? It was moved just before the Mover wound up the debate. That was the change I complained about then. Now we are moving it back another way.

All I am saying, Mr. Speaker, is that we have to be careful that we are seen to be doing the right thing. If you want me to move the amendment now, I will, if that is what you want, Sir.

The Speaker: If you wish to speak, I will recognise you. I will put it that way. The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Now, I just want to make sure that I am not losing my right to debate the substantive Motion.

The Speaker: No, you are not. Move your amendment.

AMENDMENT TO PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 3/98

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: In accordance with the provisions of Standing Order 25, I, the First Elected Member for West Bay, seek to move to amend Private Member's Motion No. 3/98 by deleting: "AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED THAT the Committee shall be comprised of eight Members and a Chairman elected from among the Committee Members;" and substituting therefor: "AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED THAT the Committee comprise all Honourable Members of this Legislative Assembly; the Chairman being elected from among the Committee Members;".

The Speaker: The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: I wish to second the amendment.

The Speaker: An amendment to Private Member's Motion No. 3/98 has been duly moved and seconded. Does the Mover wish to speak to it?

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Briefly. I believe that the House, being a small House, we can go into the setting up of this Privileges Committee, and I do not think it would be cumbersome if all of us as Members are on that Committee. I did speak to the Mover and Seconder of the substantive Motion and they found they could offer some support to it.

I could have said in the resolution that the Chairman be the Speaker, but in this instance I do not believe that the Honourable Speaker should be Chairman, because the Speaker, being Chairman of the Committee, if a matter is referred from the Committee to the Speaker, he, then, would not only have to preside in the Committee, but then have to come back to the House and preside as Speaker also. Therefore, I saw some duplication and thought, out of an abundance of caution for the Speaker's sake, to leave the Speaker as an ordinary Member.

I believe this is the way we should go. As I said, I did talk to the Mover and Seconder and they saw some merit in it. Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: Does any Member wish to speak to the amendment? The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. As the Seconder of the substantive Motion on this occasion, and as the Mover of the Motion as it came to the Parliament the first time, I give my wholehearted support to the amendment as moved by the Honourable First Elected Member for West Bay, and seconded by the Honourable lady Member for North Side.

I accept the amendment because I have an overwhelming responsibility to the Parliament, to the constituency which I represent, and on the broader spectrum, to the country. I believe in the Committee of Privileges. I hope we can eventually extend it into some kind of Standards Bureau or Council, because I think this is necessary. And like the Mover of the amendment, I believe the position of chairmanship of the Committee should not be occupied by the Honourable Speaker, the reason being simple: I think the Speaker should be removed from the cut and thrust of debates which ensue in these kinds of matters. Matters that come before the Privilege Committee are indeed serious, and it will unquestionably be the case that whatever decision is arrived at will have to come to the Parliament, and by inference, the Honourable Speaker in the Chair, to rule upon.

Consequently, I think the Speaker should be protected, sheltered and sequestered from the fray and from the discussions that ensue in the Privileges Committee.
 They will be controversial, involved, and I do not want to see any encroachment on the dignity and impartiality of the Chair. I believe the Chair's role in these matters can best be served by the Honourable Speaker being a kind of 'court of last resort.' In supporting the amendment, I did not find, in many modern jurisdictions, that the Speaker is put in such a position. I would like to reiterate that I am fully supportive of the amendment and, quite frankly, I do not see that it, in any way, detracts from the substantive Motion, although I like the system which the substantive Motion entailed.

But in the art of compromise and well-meaning, the amendment has my wholehearted support.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak to the amendment? The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I was really rising to ask—we are getting near to an adjournment stage. I believe it may save the time of this Honourable House if we took an adjournment now to perhaps discuss some of the details of the Motion.

The Speaker: We will take the afternoon break now. Is that what you are saying?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I am sorry, Sir. Could we maybe take the afternoon break now?

The Speaker: We shall suspend for fifteen minutes.

AT 3.45 PM PROCEEDINGS WERE SUSPENDED

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.32 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. We have reached the hour of 4.30. I would entertain a Motion for the adjournment.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock.

The Speaker: The question is that this House do now adjourn until 10 o'clock Wednesday morning. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AT 4.30 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM WEDNESDAY, 18 MARCH 1998.

EDITED
WEDNESDAY
18 MARCH 1998
10.35 AM

The Speaker: Prayers by the Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

PRAYERS

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived: We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth, that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly, that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy great name's sake.

Let us say the Lord's Prayer together: Our Father, who art in heaven, hallowed be Thy name. Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us. Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace, now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed.

Item number 4, Presentation of Papers and Reports. The Royal Cayman Islands Annual Police Report 1997, The Honourable Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

PRESENTATION OF PAPERS AND REPORTS

THE ROYAL CAYMAN ISLANDS POLICE ANNUAL REPORT 1997

Hon. Kearney Gomez: Mr. Speaker, I beg to lay on the Table of this Honourable House the Royal Cayman Islands Police Annual Report 1997.

The Speaker: So ordered. Do you wish to speak to it?

Hon. Kearney Gomez: No, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: Item number 5, Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. Deferred Question 35, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE MEMBERS/MINISTERS

DEFERRED QUESTION 35 (deferred Monday, 9 March 1998)

No. 35: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development to state the annual amounts by which the contingency liabilities have increased since 1993.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

DEFERMENT OF QUESTION 35 Standing Order 23(5)

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, a short while ago I discovered that there is a discrepancy in the answer prepared to be given to Honourable Members. Therefore, in accordance with Standing Order 23(5) I seek the indulgence of this Honourable House to defer the answer to Question No. 35 until Thursday, 19 March.

The Speaker: In accordance with Standing Order 23(5) I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: QUESTION 35 DEFERRED (A SECOND TIME) UNTIL 19 MARCH 1998.

The Speaker: Question 46 is standing in the name of the First Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION 46

No. 46: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation for the projected annual operational cost of the new George Town Hospital upon completion.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: The projected annual operational cost of the George Town Hospital upon final completion is CI$29,188,216. It should be noted that this figure covers the operation of the whole Hospital, not just the newly constructed part. It should also be noted that the figure given does not represent the total operational cost of the Health Services Department, which would have to include costs for the school clinics, prison clinic and district health centres, and those for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. A sum of CI$3,383,057 would have to be added to the answer given, which would result in the total projected operational cost for the Health Services Department being CI$32,571,273.

The Ministry and Health Services Department will, in the near future, be hiring the services of short-term consultants specialising in strategic financial planning in health systems. Part of the consultancy process will involve a review and refinement of these projections.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: What is the present cost of running the existing hospital, and will the sum of $3,383,000 be consistent this year with the operation of the other aspects of the Health Services Department?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: The budget for 1998 was $26,959,271. That included Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, and the district health centres.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Taking into consideration that we are not only dealing with expenditure, but there should be some projection for revenue, I wonder if the Minister can tell us what the projected revenue of the new hospital is, and if Government will have to continue to subsidise the Health Services?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: In 1996 the Economics and Statistics Office estimated that the revenue collected in the year 2000 would amount to almost $25 million. I have a feeling that with the introduction of health insurance later this year, we will see a significant increase in revenue. In the past, we were only collecting a quarter or a third of actual costs, which is something we must address. We cannot continue going forward giving away services.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister state if it is correct to say (given the answers received so far) that the total projected cost of operation for the Health Services Department would be $32.5 million, and the figure in the budget for 1998 was some $26 million, I think? Is the additional cost to operate the Health Services Department when the hospital will be completed some $7 million, or, although the budgeted figure is $26 million, it will actually be more at the end of the day, if that is known and this figure is not as much as $7 million for the new hospital when it is completed?

I am not so sure you understand what I am saying. Let me go over it again.

What I am trying to determine is the actual operational cost of the hospital as it is on an annual basis, compared to the projected $32.5 million when the new hospital is completed. While I know what was in the budget ($26 million), I am asking for actual operational cost because we know by now, with no disrespect to those who prepare the budget, that the figures in the budget are not necessarily the figures that prevail. So is the difference $7 million? Or is it more, or less?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: I do not think we will need any more than that. As you know, we are continuously adding staff and we try to pro-rate that as we need them. New services will be provided later on this year, when the cardiologist comes on line.

We are hoping that everything will be there. It depends upon a lot of things, but I do not anticipate a problem that will go beyond that $7 million.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say if, in arriving at this annual operational cost, any formula was involved in the construction? If so, can he say what that formula might be?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: It was looked at from the aspect of a cost analysis where the staff and the services to be provided were brought together to arrive at this figure.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Can the Honourable Minister confirm that one of the objectives of the reinvention of Government as it relates to the Health Services is to more objectively assess the cost of providing services, rather than Government continuing to do what it now does, which is subsidise the service substantially?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, that is a good point. As we remember, in the introduction of the reinvention of Government, two of the departments within the Health Services had already taken this initiative and one of the significant improvements, specifically in regard to the dental clinic, was that we moved from approximately 700 clients per month to over 1500; and we also noticed that the record-keeping and revenue has improved significantly. We intend to continue to do this with Government's assistance through the reinvention process.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister say if the figures quoted in the substantive answer include the cost to Government for referred cases to overseas facilities?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: No. This comes under a separate vote in which $2 million per year is provided. That does not come under this heading.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Is it anticipated that the figure in the Budget this year to cover overseas referrals will suffice?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Because of the variability and depending on what type of case we have to refer overseas, be it cancer, brain tumour, or serious accident, it goes up and down until we get closer to September. But we always put in a provisional figure. I feel, because of the way the hospital is coming on line, a lot of the diagnostic services we now have to do overseas will bring this figure down significantly.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: To clarify that point, is it safe to say that once that new hospital is fully in service, the cost to Government for overseas referrals will decrease dramatically?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: I would not go out on a limb and say 'dramatically.' I have asked the consultants to specifically address how we can reduce the figure on overseas referrals.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: In a supplementary, the Honourable Minister stated that through the Statistics Department there was a projected income for the Health Services Department in the year 2000 of some $25 million. Perhaps this may be going a little bit further, but I seek the Minister's answer to it. Can the Honourable Minister enlighten the House as to what method was used to arrive at these projected figures? In so doing, can he also state if there was an accompanying projected figure for the operational cost of the Health Services Department in the year 2000?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: There were a number of assumptions made in arriving at this approximately $25 million in revenue for the year 2001, for example, paying patients would increase by 4% per annum, based on the rate of population increase in the Cayman Islands; increase in patient use of about 67% with the introduction of new services and increase in bed capacity; increased collection of fees to 90% brought about by implementation of the National Health Insurance; and a 50% increase in fees charged in the year 2001.

I should have corrected earlier that this was projected for the year 2001.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: For purposes of clarity, in an earlier answer the Honourable Minister stated that the $25 million projected should substantially increase because of the introduction of Health Insurance. But if I am correct in what I heard him say earlier, he also just said that a part of the process by which this figure was derived included health insurance being introduced. The two statements do not sound the same. I just want to be clear which method was used. Does it include health insurance or not?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: I think the overall cost to Government is what I should have said, of Government having to subsidise the hospital. I do not know if that is what the Member is indicating. This could be more on the conservative side because of certain further services we are now providing.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I am not trying to get everything muddled here, but I think if I recall correctly, the Honourable Minister stated that part of the process through which this projected figure was arrived at was based on the assumption that the increased collection of fees would rise to 90% and this was due to the introduction of health insurance. Is that correct?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: This was one of the assumptions provided by the Economic and Statistics Office.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: That is cleared up. But just to get another point clear, can the Honourable Minister state if there are any projections of the operational cost of the Health Services Department in the year 2001 compared to the projected income of $25 million?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: I do not have the exact figure here, but it was fairly close to what I have indicated here in the substantive answer.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: So that means that three years from now the projected operational cost of the Health Services Department should not dramatically exceed this $32.5 million. Perhaps a safe assumption could be somewhere in the region of $35 million, roughly. I know we are guessing here.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, with all things being equal, I am certain with the help of God that it will work out that way.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: So, assuming all works well with the answers given, it can be a fair assumption that the subsidy expected from central Government for the Health Services Department by the year 2001 would be less than what it is now and be down to about $10 million?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: I would not quote a figure, but I am looking forward to a significant decrease.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Before you tell me I must sit, I wish you all the best, Sir. Thank you.

The Speaker: At this time I will entertain a motion for the suspension of Standing Order 23(7) and (8) to enable Question Time to go beyond 11 o'clock.

The Third Elected Member for George Town.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 23(7)&(8)

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, I so move.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I beg to second that.

The Speaker: The question is that Standing Order 23 (7) and (8) be suspended to enable Question Time to continue. I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 23(7) AND (8) SUSPENDED.

The Speaker: The next question is 47, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 47

No. 47: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation what the annual recurrent staff cost to the Government will be upon the completion of the new George Town Hospital.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: The annual recurrent staff cost to the Government upon the completion of the new George Town Hospital is projected to be CI$20,431,751.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say what the annual recurrent staff cost was prior to the new George Town Hospital coming on line?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: The figure for this year was projected at $16,880,583.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister provide a breakdown of the $32.5 million which he gave as the operational cost in answer to the previous question?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: For the sake of accuracy, I would prefer to give this in writing. I would not want to mix up the figures.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Just for purposes of clarity, I wanted to ascertain and ensure that the annual recurrent staff costs were indeed included in the $32.5 million he gave in answer to the previous question.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: I would venture a yes on that. Because if we have to add staff to that, we are in big trouble!

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: I would like to ask the Honourable Minister if there are projections for any increase in the annual recurrent staff costs during the first five years of the operation of the new George Town Hospital beyond what he has given?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: No, we do not anticipate adding any more staff through that five-year period of time, unless it is something most unusual and the country demands it.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: I have one final supplementary, and this is based on my objective to completely clarify this matter.

This figure of $20.4 million is exclusively for the new George Town Hospital and does not include, as the Minister mentioned previously, the health services, that is, the clinics, and the services offered to the Prison. Is the $3 million he mentioned earlier included in the staff cost which was also mentioned?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: For the benefit of the House, for the other clinics, the staffing cost is approximately $997,019. For Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, which would be Faith Hospital and the services provided on Little Cayman, the staffing there is approximately $1,744,864.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say if what he just detailed is included in the $3 million which he mentioned earlier?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries that concludes Question Time for this morning.

Item 6 on today's Order Paper, Other Business, Private Member's Motion No. 3/98, Establishment of a Standing Select Committee on Privileges. Debate continues. Does any other Member wish to speak?

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 3/98

ESTABLISHMENT OF A STANDING SELECT COMMITTEE OF PRIVILEGES

(Continuation of debate on amendment to Private Member's Motion No. 3/98)

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, if I may.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I think all of us just wish to ensure that we all understand where we have reached with the motion. From the Hansards, just to make it clear, I think we are still in the middle of the debate on the amendment brought by the First Elected Member for West Bay. We have to complete the debate on that first amendment and then we will have to deal with another amendment and then we can move on to the debate on the substantive motion. I think that is in accordance with your wishes, Sir.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I really do not want to have to speak three times. I would rather speak once. I think it would save the time of this Honourable House. I would just like to speak on the motion as amended because all operative parts, the "Resolved" parts, have now been amended.

I believe it would be better if all the amendments could be dealt with and then if I could just speak on the amended motion it would save a lot of time, unless Members are opposed to that, in which case there will have to be a vote taken on one amendment, and then on the second amendment, and then we move on with the motion as amended and that is really what I would like to speak on, if I could.

The Speaker: I am completely in the hands of the House. If it would be convenient, we could take a suspension in order to get this matter cleared up and then we could come back in, if that is the wish of the House.

The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I do not think the Backbench has any problem with that. But I wish to say, and perhaps we will be guided by your ruling, we do not have a problem dealing with both amendments and getting them out of the way. What I think we are not quite sure of is whether the amendments have to be voted on separately, or whether they can be dealt with together. Once we get that cleared up, I think we can move on. At that point, once the two amendments are taken care of one way or the other, all other Members can speak on the motion.

The Speaker: My ruling would be that the amendments would take place as they appear in the substantive motion. If one amendment is an amendment to an amendment, then we should establish that. But I would like to get on with this thing. I would rather clear one [amendment] at a time.

Would any other Member like to speak to the amendment to Private Member's Motion No. 3/98 before the House?

If not, I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: AMENDMENT MADE.

AMENDMENT (NO. 2) TO PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 3/98

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: In accordance with the provision of Standing Order 25(1), I, the First Elected Member for George Town, seek to move to amend Private Member's Motion No. 3/98 as follows:

By deleting the third "Resolved" and substituting therefor the following: "AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED THAT the Committee shall elect a Deputy Chairman from among the Committee Members who shall act as Chairman of the Committee during the absence of the Chairman."

And further by deleting the last "Resolved" and substituting therefor the following: "AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED THAT the Legislative Assembly amend Standing Orders and the Legislative Assembly (Immunities, Powers and Privileges) Law (24 of 1965) (1996 Revision) where necessary, in compliance with section 45 of the Cayman Islands (Constitution) Order, to address all matters regarding parliamentary privileges at the earliest convenience."

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: I respectfully beg to second the motion.

The Speaker: Amendment No. 2 to Private Member's Motion No. 3/98 has been duly moved and seconded. Would the Mover care to speak to it?

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: We took the afternoon break on Monday to discuss certain matters regarding the original motion. It appears that the Government is not satisfied, first of all, that the "Resolved" section in the original motion which allowed for sub-committees to be appointed by the main committee. Their view was that this could be done in an informal fashion rather than having it formally declared.

We on the Backbench will accept that position because it does not change the intent of the substantive motion. Thus, we have the amendment deleting sections which apply to the sub-committee.

The other amendment which was in the last "Resolved" section is simply brought to ensure that Standing Orders and the Legislative Assembly (Immunities, Powers and Privileges) Law are amended in compliance with section 45 of the Cayman Islands (Constitution) at the earliest possible convenience so that all matters related to privilege which will comply with our Constitution are put in place in those two statutes as soon as possible so that the Committee can function properly.

Just for clarity, the Legislative Assembly derives its privileges powers from section 45 of the Cayman Islands (Constitution) Order. So that everyone will be clear on it, I will just read what that states:

"A Law enacted under this Constitution may determine and regulate the privileges, immunities and powers of the Assembly and its Members" The important part is here, Sir: "But no such privileges, immunities or powers shall exceed those of the Commons' House of Parliament of the United Kingdom or of the members thereof." Hence, the inclusion in the amendment where we say "in compliance with section 45 of the Cayman Islands (Constitution) Order."

I think if we include that, once the motion is passed in this form, then whatever else has to be done to bring everything else in line can easily be done without having to dabble with any more amendments to any Laws. That is the purpose of the amendments as we have brought them, Sir.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? If no other Member wishes to speak, does the proposer wish to say anything further?

The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: On the occasion that we brought this motion previously, certain Members on the Government Bench had some objections. We have had occasion to rework the motion and have done so. Arising out of some of the discussions on that, we have subsequently tailored the motion, taking into consideration concerns expressed by the Government Bench as laid out by their representative, the Leader of Government Business, the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

This business of establishing a Committee of Privileges...

The Speaker: Are you speaking to the amendment?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Yes Sir. This is certainly an issue which all Honourable Members take seriously. I hope that this amendment as it has now been moved is acceptable to all Honourable Members as time is of the essence, as is also the notion of the establishment of a Committee of Privileges.

Having said that, I commend the amendment to Honourable Members and hope that they can find it within their expectations.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? If not, would the mover like to reply? If not, I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: AMENDMENT (NO. 2) BE MADE.

The Speaker: Would this be a convenient time to take the morning break? We shall suspend for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.19 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 11.54 AM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Private Member's Motion 3/98 as twice amended, Establishment of Standing Select Committee of Privileges, has been duly moved and seconded, and is open for debate. For clarity, I shall read the contents of the amended motion as twice amended:

“WHEREAS Standing Order 79 provides that the House may appoint other Standing Select Committees as required from amongst its Members;

“BE IT NOW THEREFORE RESOLVED that this Honourable Legislative Assembly appoint a Standing Select Committee of Privilege to consider and report on any matter affecting the privilege of this Honourable House;

“AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the Committee comprise all Honourable Members of this Legislative Assembly, the Chairman being elected from among the Committee Members;

“AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the Committee shall elect a Deputy Chairman from among the Committee Members, who shall act as Chairman of the Committee during the absence of the Chairman;

“AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the Legislative Assembly amend Standing Orders of the Legislative Assembly and the Legislative Assembly (Immunities, Powers and Privileges) Law, Law 24 of 1965 (1996 Revision) where necessary, in compliance with section 45 of the Cayman Islands Constitution Order, to address all matters regarding Parliamentary privilege at the earliest convenience.”

The Speaker: The motion as amended is now open to debate. The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Boddin: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I support the motion as twice amended and as you have read it. This motion is probably one of the most important motions that has been before this Honourable House for a long time, because it deals with the privileges of this Honourable House which, in effect, deal with rights and duties of persons from outside this House. I would like, before I begin my debate, to welcome the First Official Member and the Second Official Member, the Honourable Acting Chief Secretary and the Honourable Acting Attorney General, who have been recently sworn in.

This motion is one that goes back to the historical background of democracy and the early Parliaments of the United Kingdom. If I may read from the 21st edition of May's at page 70, the last paragraph states: “At the commencement of every Parliament it has been the custom for the Speaker, in the name, and on behalf of the Commons, to lay claim by humble petition to their ancient and undoubted rights and privileges; particularly to freedom of speech in debate, freedom from arrest, freedom of access to Her Majesty whenever occasion shall require; and that the most favourable construction should be placed upon all their proceedings.” There is further reference to this at page 82, the last paragraph, going to page 83: “Throughout the long history of parliamentary privilege, the need to balance two potentially conflicting principles—both first enunciated in the seventeenth century—has become clear. On the one hand, the privileges of Parliament are rights ‘absolutely necessary for the due execution of its powers’; and on the other, the privilege of Parliament granted in regard of public service ‘must not be used for the danger of the commonwealth.’”

Further down on page 83 it states: “In general, the House exercises such jurisdiction in any event as sparingly as possible and only when satisfied that to do so is essential in order to provide reasonable protection of the House, its Members or its officers from such improper obstruction or attempt at or threat of obstruction causing or likely to cause, substantial interference with the performance of their respective functions.”

This touches not only the rights and privileges of this House, but those privileges also affect the public at large. The last area I would like to read is at page 135 of the 21st edition once again, in which it states in line five: “[The] Committee made their recommendations following their examination of the Report of the Select Committee on Parliamentary Privilege 1966-67, in which it was suggested that in general the House should exercise its penal jurisdiction (i) in any event as sparingly as possible, and (ii) only when satisfied that to do so was essential in order to provide reasonable protection for the House” as I read a bit earlier.

It goes on to say, “The Speaker has discretion to decide whether or not the matter should have the precedence accorded to matters of privilege...If he decides that it should not, he informs the Member by letter. If he decides to allow precedence, he informs the Member when he proposes to announce his decision to the House. When the announcement has been made, the Member is entitled to table a motion for the following day formally calling attention to the matter, and either proposing that it be referred to the Committee of Privileges or making some other appropriate proposition.”

The footnote to that states: “It is not the practice for such letters to be made public...Members should not challenge the Speaker's decision in the House...The Speaker does not communicate an unfavourable outcome to the House or to other Members.”

I read that to attempt to put privilege in its proper perspective, and the Mover of the motion, or the Mover of the amendment, because there were different movers, the First Elected Member for George Town, did read section 45 of the Constitution. Before doing that though,

I would first like to follow on from what is the practice in the Commons to what follows quite similarly from the Standing Orders of this Honourable House. Under privileges, Standing Order 28(1) states: “A Member who wishes to raise a matter which he believes affects the privileges of the House shall do so at the first available sitting of the House. He shall inform the Presiding Officer of his intention,”—and in this instance, it means the Speaker, for the public’s information—“stating the matter which he proposes to raise. (2) When called by the Presiding Officer, the Member shall briefly state the grounds on which he believes that the matter he is raising affects the privileges of the House. (3) The Presiding Officer shall then state whether, in his opinion, the matter may or may not affect the privileges of the House.”

So the first rule, Mr. Speaker, is very clear, that the decision of what is or is not privileges of this Honourable House rests with you. We know your decisions are not questionable in any Court. So this Committee is first subject to that rule.

The second rule the First Elected Member raised, quite rightly, is section 45 of the Constitution, which states that “no...privileges, immunities or powers shall exceed those of the Commons’ House of Parliament of the United Kingdom or of the members thereof.”

That, Mr. Speaker, is the second ambit of this. That statement is further reinforced in the Royal Instructions and we have also to look at section 39 of the Law, which states the seriousness of this motion. Section 39(2) states: “When a Bill is presented to the Governor for his assent, he shall, subject to the provisions of this Constitution and of any Instructions addressed to him under Her Majesty’s Sign Manual and Signet or through a Secretary of State, declare that he assents, or refuses to assent, to it, or that he reserves the Bill for the signification of Her Majesty’s pleasure:

“Provided that the Governor shall reserve for the signification of Her Majesty’s pleasure—

“(a) any Bill which is in any way repugnant to, or inconsistent with, the provisions of this Constitution; and

“(b) any Bill which determines or regulates the privileges, immunities or powers of the Assembly or of its members;

“unless he has been authorized by a Secretary of State to assent to it.”

The seriousness of this is, I think, borne out in the fact that the Constitution entrenches the passing, the ambit and even the assent of matters of privilege. Some matters of privilege are borne out in the Standing Orders, and that too has certain implications, because section 31 of the 1972 Constitution of the Cayman Islands states: “(1) Subject to the provisions of this Constitution and of any Instructions under Her Majesty’s Sign Manual and Signet, the Assembly may from time to time make, amend and revoke Standing Or- ders for the regulation and orderly conduct of its own proceedings and the despatch of business, and for the passing, intituling and numbering of Bills and for the presentation thereof to the Governor for assent; but no such Standing Orders or amendment or revocation thereof shall have effect unless they have been approved by the Governor.” That is, the Governor acting in his discretion.

So I think the public first needs to be assured that the making of privileges for the Legislative Assembly is a serious matter looked at not only by this Honourable House, by you, Mr. Speaker, but also by the Governor and by the United Kingdom.

At present, there is the Legislative Assembly (Immunities, Powers and Privileges) Law, and this basically confirms, to a large extent, what I read earlier, and makes it very clear that what is being done is one that is of the utmost importance, and section 12 of that Law sets out certain rights in relation to committees and the power to hear witnesses, but it goes on to confirm, in the last part of it, that “The question shall, subject to the foregoing provisions of this Law, and excepting so far as the express provision made in these provisions for determination that the question be determined in accordance with uses and practice of the Commons House of Parliament of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland.”

As I see it, whatever is done to this Law or the Standing Orders has to fall first within the Constitution, and second, within the Immunities Powers and Privileges of the House of Commons.

There are at present provided in the Immunities Powers and Privileges Law of the Legislative Assembly most of the rights and privileges. There is immunity from legal proceedings such as arrest for debt when going to attending at or returning from a meeting of the Assembly or of any Committee; power to procure witnesses in several sections on that; privileges of witnesses (because they, too, have rights). It also controls the right to enter the Legislative Assembly of strangers under 13; and the power of you, Mr. Speaker, in section 15 at any time to order any stranger to withdraw from the precincts of the Assembly.

Then it goes on to deal with other types of offences as set out in section 18, and these are subject to the court if committed, these are criminal offences, in fact, most of what this Law deals with are offences that a court would deal with under its criminal jurisdiction. I am reading from section 18(2):

“Whoever-

“(a) publishes any statement, whether in writing or otherwise, which falsely or scandalously defames the Assembly or any committee, or which reflects on the character of the President or chairman of a committee in the discharge of his duty as such;

“(b) publishes any writing containing a gross, wilful or scandalous misrepresentation of the proceedings of the Assembly or a committee or of the speech of any member in the proceedings of the Assembly or Committee;

"(c) publishes any writing containing any false or scandalous libel on any member touching his conduct as a Member;

"(d) publishes any report or statement purporting to be a report of the proceedings of the Assembly in any case where such proceedings have been conducted after exclusion of the public by order of the Assembly,

"is guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding eight hundred dollars or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding twelve months, or both."

There are further sections that deal with disobeying orders under 18(1)(a) to produce papers and books, etc. Under (b) refusing to answer questions which are lawful and relevant. Under (c) relating to bribery. Under (d) assaults, obstructs or insults any Member coming to or going from the precincts of the Legislative Assembly who endeavours to compel any Member by force or insult or menace to declare himself in favour of or against, any proposition or matter pending or expecting to be brought before the Legislative Assembly. Under (e) use of assault and interference with the Clerk; "(f) creates or joins any disturbance which is likely to interrupt the proceedings of the Assembly while the Assembly is sitting." It goes on and on.

The effect of this is to ensure that freedom of speech within this Honourable House, while staying within the ambits of what is necessary to protect the House, goes no further than that which is necessary for that purpose and does not, as such, take away the rights of the public. So, the Constitution of the Cayman Islands, or this Legislative Assembly, is not sovereign, it is not unlimited as in the United Kingdom, and because we have a written Constitution, the supremacy of this Legislative Assembly, unlike that of the United Kingdom, falls squarely within the written Constitution of the Cayman Islands.

The cases that establish supremacy in independent countries, the United Kingdom, the famous New South Wales case and the Ellen Street Case [?]. . . the New South Wales case dealt with the Parliament of New South Wales in Australia, which provided that it was not possible to entrench within the Constitution rights which prohibited another Parliament from changing those rights, also prescribed that while the Constitution stood with entrenched rights, it had to be followed—if it was not followed, then even though future Parliaments may have had the power to change the Australian Constitution, the Legislation and Acts of it, in contravention of the Constitution would have been ultra vires and not have the force of law.

This was set out quite clearly in a short statement where it states, and this comes from page 61 of Wade and Bradley on Constitutional Law: "Where the legislature is governed by written Constitution it is the Constitution which must be regarded as fundamen- tal." The derogation to this would be matters such as bills of rights or specific provisions in the Constitution, which give power to the courts to state whether matters are or are not constitutional.

This motion, and the two amendments to it, came about as a result of discussions with all Members of this Honourable House. It is one of the ways (the second time, in fact) where I believe that in matters as important as this, it is in the interest of Members to get together to sort out differences on it, and to come back to this Honourable House with Motions or Bills, whatever, which can pass through this House on major issues with the full agreement and consent of this Legislative Assembly. This is important because matters such as this motion, I think have to rise a long way above politics since it affects the rights of the public. But it is also an instance where we are looking at dealing with rights in this Legislative Assembly that do not exist with the normal person.

Therefore, as I read earlier, it has to be guarded very carefully. Whatever terms of reference—of which there are none at this stage—are drawn up to go into the Standing Orders in relation to privileges, or whatever amendments relating to immunities, powers and privileges that are coming to the 1965 Law, have to be such that are necessary for freedom of speech and the other freedoms within this Honourable House but have to be weighed very carefully against the fact that those powers may encroach upon the rights of the public at large.

I see this motion, and the motion now is, I think, the way it should be because this Committee, like the Standing Orders Committee which is comprised of the whole House, when you are dealing with privileges in the Legislative Assembly, it has to be done by all Members of the House.

I merely want to comment on the reasoning—and I think the First Elected Member may have commented on this—the reason we discussed not allowing sub-committees...because I think, firstly, the matter is too important to go to sub-committees, but it was made very clear in Standing Order 72(2), and I quote: "(2) A select committee shall not have power to delegate any of its functions to its chairman." By implication, under the established rule of delegatus non potest delegare, you cannot delegate powers which have been delegated, as in this case, the full Assembly has delegated powers to a Select Committee. That basically was the reasoning, which we all accepted.

So, this motion establishes, in effect, a Select Committee that comprises all the Members of the House. It provides that the Standing Select Committee of Privilege is to consider and report on matters affecting the privileges of the House, and that is the extent of that Committee. The Committee itself does not have power or cannot have power to deal with discipline itself—that rests with you, Mr. Speaker, in this Honourable House. It establishes that consideration, and, if necessary, amendments, to the Legislative Assembly (Immunities Powers and Privileges) Law, and also the Standing Orders can be recommended, but at that stage, the normal procedure of the House kicks in, and the Law has to follow the Constitution, pass through this House, get the assent for the disallowance (but directly this time of a Secretary of State of the United Kingdom), and if the Standing Orders are to be amended then the provisions for the Standing Orders have to be followed and those are set out at the end of the present Standing Order 87, which states in subsection (3), “When the motion is reached, the mover shall move the motion, and after it has been seconded, the question shall be put forthwith that the motion be referred to the Standing Orders Committee, and if that question is agreed upon no further proceedings shall be taken on that motion until the Committee has reported thereon.”

As I understand it, once the Standing Select Committee of Privileges looks at a matter, or considers these matters in the motion, then there would have to be whatever amendments are necessary to the Law or the Standing Orders to deal with it.

I would just like to mention one other thing while we are dealing with this: The references to Honourable Members in this House are clearly set out in Standing Orders. Under Standing Order 35, references to Members: “(5) Members shall be referred to by the names of the electoral districts for which they have been elected.” In subsection (2) and throughout, there is reference to “Member of the Government” means “Member of Executive Council,” and the address is “Minister for” in my instance, Education, Aviation and Planning. So, on strict construction that is the reference that should be used, and not “Leader of Government Business,” which is not in the Standing Orders of this House.

While we are on the question of the Standing Orders, we have to abide by them. I believe it would be better for the public, when we are looking at amending Standing Orders (because there is a Select Committee) to perhaps refer to Members by name, which may make it easier. But this is a matter for the full House. While it remains there, the reference has to be in accordance with the Standing Orders.

The motion as amended, in fact all of the clauses with the exception of one, have been amended, and the motion before the House is now one which I am happy to accept. I went into some detail on this because I think the public needs to know that while the powers of this House are very extensive, they have to be balanced against the rights and privileges of the public at large, being only what is necessary to ensure that the freedoms in this House are only those needed for the carrying on of the proper business of the House.

I am happy to support this, and I believe it is a motion that should be kept under high debate as it has so far, kept away from politics, and so should the Select Committee when it operates.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, after listening the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning I am reminded of the first two lines of a very famous poem, “Why is the forum crowded? What means this stir in Rome?”

I do not see how any debate in this Honourable House can be kept free of politics if this is the House of politics. I would like to say that what debates need to be kept free of is the rhetoric by those Members who, when they get up to speak, equate success with the accumulation of material possessions, and cast frowns upon people who are learned and educated, and claim to be intellectuals. Having established that, I would like to begin with this whole question of how the business of the Committee of Privileges evolved and why.

Those who have studied history will know that many years ago there was a confrontation and a way, some people call it the ‘Glorious Revolution,’ and it was Cromwell, that famous general who fought the King to establish the supremacy of Parliament. And Parliament is supreme unto itself. It has powers just like the courts because Parliament is a court. That there should be a privilege committee has to do with the fact that every fraternity has within it the means of bringing its members in line, disciplining them and sanctioning them.

Contrary to any notion that might be portrayed, I want to clearly state that one of the principal objectives in this Committee of Privileges Motion being brought before Parliament is as much to ensure that the players, the Honourable Members, have mechanism to discipline and, if necessary, sanction themselves as much as to protect themselves from any outside or external forces. That is of crucial importance.

All Members in here claim a certain responsibility. I crave the indulgence of the Chair, to quote from the first Committee on the Standards of Public Life chaired by Lord Nolan, under the section dealing with public perception. I want to quote the first two paragraphs because this is important in establishing the parameters of the debate I expect to lay down.

“The House of Commons is at the heart of our democracy, the standards of conduct observed by its Members is crucially important to the political well being of the nation. Those standards have always been self-imposed and self-regulated because Parliament is our supreme institution.

“It is vital for the quality of government, for the effective scrutiny of government and for its democratic process that Members of Parliament should maintain the highest standards of propriety in discharging their obligations to the public which elected them. It is also essential for public confidence that they should be seen to do so.”

I am saying that this motion is as much protecting ourselves from ourselves, as it is protecting us from outsiders. It would be foolhardy and undemocratic and unfair of me to come here and set up a bulwark to protect myself from outside forces if I were not also prepared to make myself accountable and transparent to those very forces and elements which elected me. I have to be accountable.

I want to clearly say that this is not only an internal matter, and I am sure that other Honourable Members, certainly those I have spoken to, understand the implications and understand the parameters and the seriousness and significance of what we are asking. Might I remind Honourable Members that the mere fact that two amendments have been accepted unopposed must be clear and convincing reason of the efficacy and necessity of such a motion. Now, if Honourable Ministers or Members have a problem which they want to insulate themselves from...I do not know how they are going to escape once they have accepted what is put down here today.

I was glad that the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning raised certain issues, because in the previous debate on this matter which I Moved and had to be aborted because of a number of pressing issues, including the fact that we had spent a long and significant time in the Parliament, there was an attempt to try to restrict and constrict this debate by interjecting certain notions into it.

I crave the Chair's indulgence to quote from a book entitled, Parliament, Functions, Practice and Procedures, by J. A. G. Griffith and Michael Ryle, from page 97, "Application of Privilege Today."

"The Committee of Privileges is appointed for a Parliament under Standing Order No. 121 [that would be Standing Order 121 for the House of Commons], but, exceptionally, it has no specified orders of reference." So, contrary to what the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning was trying to intimate and insinuate, the Committee of Privileges has no specified terms of references.

The Committee of Privileges can investigate any matter brought before it deemed worthy of investigating. Otherwise, the Committee would have no use, no value and certainly no influence or power. That Minister who spoke certainly must have had a change of heart. He must also have taken leave of his senses. To suggest that the tried, practised and established procedure of referring to Honourable Members by their constituency and electoral district be substituted for their names, must be out of Alice in Wonderland.

I respectfully submit that players change, but constituencies and electoral districts for the most part remain the same. I would think that it borders on the personal to address someone by their name. It is more circumspect and respectful to address them by constituency, office or ministry. That is my personal and common-sense position. And that it must have some value is borne out by the traditions and practices of the House of Commons. I certainly anticipate that when it comes before the Select Committee on Standing Orders, no Honourable Member departs from what has been traditional and accepted.

That this motion is before the House at this time stems from the public's collapsing confidence in some of its elected officials. This collapse has reached a crisis point. It has done so at a time when things do not seem to be going well for elected public officials. I made this comment when I introduced the previous motion, and what is happening is that as a fraternity it is incumbent upon all of us to rally together to show the public that we do not consider ourselves above the Law—the very Laws we are elected here to make.

I believe that in a democracy, as we hail to come from, we are sending the right message. I would like to see the rules crystal clear and public so that every citizen in the Cayman Islands knows what their elected representative must operate under. I would like that to be as well known as anything we have in this country. I had to look hard to see that the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning did not choke when he mentioned the Bill of Rights, because he is the killer of the Bill of Rights!

We can pretend, or we can debate seriously, but I believe that with this motion we have an opportunity to clearly establish ourselves as a group of Honourable men and women, ladies and gentlemen, who are prepared to set a standard which needs to be set at this time. I am reminded of that famous line by Julius Caesar, that Caesar's wife must not only be above suspicion, but must be seen to be above suspicion.

I am tired of the grouping, all the unflattering remarks about 'them old politicians' and the adjectives that follow. In every serious fraternity, the legal fraternity has rules by which their members abide, the medical fraternity, the society of accountants, all of these. So what is wrong?

It goes a bit further: I would ideally like to see public standards of conduct for Members such as arose out of the Nolan Commission in England. In this country, politics is taking on increasing importance for many reasons. I think it behoves the players to know and to feel so committed and so proud of the vocation that they are prepared to set that up. It is unfortunate—and I have to comment on this because I noticed that ever since I have been here certain Honourable Members persist in using the faulty yardstick to arrive at the mistaken notion that success is only equated in material possessions. That is as far from the truth as east is from west.

It is exactly that same mistaken notion that is leading so many people to get into problems. I have to marvel at people who are in charge of moulding minds, of developing individuals, of developing (how should I put this?) the human capital in this country—if their sole criterion is that success comes from material wealth, they are misguiding the nation. I am happy to say that within this House there are Honourable Members who do not use such a faulty measuring stick as the only measuring stick for success.

I hope, by the time this debate is over, we do not have any Honourable Member misleading, talking about past persons, accusing them, when they occupied certain positions, of making drugs disappear from the Hospital. These are the kinds of things we are talking about; these are contempt; and these are abuses of privileges, too!

I see that we are approaching the lunch hour, Sir. I am just starting up.

The Speaker: If this is a convenient time, then we will take the luncheon break. Proceedings are suspended until 2.15 PM.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.46 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.30 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Debate on Private Member's Motion 3/98 continues with the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. When we took the luncheon suspension, I was at the point of lamenting the dangers in misconstruing the elements of debate, and misconstruing the construction of reality to the point where we are so narrow and insular that we equate success purely on the basis of what can be measured in terms of material wealth. I want to make the point, too, because I believe it is of critical importance that this point be made. The last person speaking made mention of the fact that debate was at a high level. Well, I certainly have no objection to high-level debates, but such platitudes and pristine asseverations come purely out of the convenience of the moment. I have been here long enough to know that is not the situation where those Members have occasion to wind up, or to come behind some people. As I lean here, I am leaning on statements in debates, and I am going to quote, where some of those Members who talk about high standard debates have accused other people, besmirched the character of other people, to the point where there were insinuations of such people, who were at one time Members of this Honourable House, as being thieves!

I want to lay clearly the impression that the person speaking is no angel, but I can say, and the Hansards of this Honourable House can bear me out, that I stop short of accusing anyone, be they Honourable Members inside this House or persons outside, of things that are damaging and defamatory to their reputations, characters and integrity. So it is all well for some people to get up, when they are in a position of vulnerability, to say we should have a high standard of debate. Mr. Speaker, the Parliament is certainly not a Sunday School.

Members also should not be referred to by name. I want to quote Erskine May's Parliamentary Practise, 22nd edition, page 386, under the heading, "Personal allusions and unparliamentary expressions": "In order to guard against all appearance of personality in debate, no Member should refer to another by name. Each Member must be distinguished by the office he holds, by the place he represents or by other designations." That puts to rest any suggestion of a change in the practise and procedure established in our Parliament.

I want to move on to make what I consider a very prescient and important observation. The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town has been here long enough to see the drift, to see the direction of trends in this Parliament. I have been a witness to a number of things. One of the things commonly experienced, not only among Honourable Members of this Parliament, but among members in many different vocations and professions, is that membership, and being successful, in terms of business or holding elected office, bring with it certain experiences which, if not interpreted carefully, can lead the membership into precarious positions.

That is not only unique to the business of parliament and economic enterprises, but what is more frightening about this, is when we adopt the belief and fail to understand the circumstances under which we labour. I am reminded of the position as discussed by the Austrian Jew, Victor Frankl, in his book, Man's Search for Meaning. Victor Frankl was an Austrian Jew who suffered under the Holocaust. He was imprisoned in one of the most notorious of the German concentration camps. Later, when he had occasion to reflect on his imprisonment, he wrote, "In the concentration camp, every circumstance conspires to make the prisoner lose his hold."

So too, Mr. Speaker, in many vocations in life, under less trying circumstances, but perhaps the most profound point Frankl made is that man should not seek success, should not let the search for success be his primary motivation to do good, but success must ensue from other actions taken to bring good. That leads me to the question, What is the essence of public service? What is the essence of people putting themselves up for election to public office? If we believe in the ancient Greeks, who were the founders of democracy as we know it, that essence comes from man's desire and ability to do good, not limited to self-aggrandisement, but for the general will.

So I have to say, I am not a lawyer, but I have to take any argument which supposes that economic pretensions are the ultimate, and I would dismiss that by saying, these kinds of arguments demonstrate the poverty of such studies, be they legal or otherwise, which are uninformed by historical understanding and social consciousness. While I admit that I am a defunct school-teacher, I am happy to report that I am not such a blinded legal mind that I do not take into consideration historical understanding and social consciousness.

The motion before the House is a motion dealing with the business of privilege and, by inference, accountability. We have been talking about transparency and accountability. I hasten to add that no one proposes to take away or water down the privileges of the House. No one purports any greying of the area. I believe all Honourable Members in here are capable of understanding the strict separation. But what we purport and propose to do, by establishing such a Committee of Privileges, is to show that we are prepared to set rules and to abide by those rules.

This is a good point to say that while I agree with the amendment moved and accepted, that is not to say there are not going to be some problems with that amendment. I want to say that if that Privileges Committee is comprised of all the Members of the House, I pose the question, What is the procedure in the event of an aggrieved party or parties making an appeal? Here is the danger: Eighteen Members comprise the Committee of Privileges. In the event of a recommendation that certain matters be referred to the Parliament for debate and decision, where is the clear-cut appellate body? Those same Members who are aggrieved have no clear-cut body to hear or overturn their grievance.

The only difference will be that Mr. Speaker will be occupying the Chair when the matter comes before the Parliament. That might not necessarily be the case with the Privileges Committee. So there is a fundamental weakness in the system as we have it. I just want to bring that to the attention of Honourable Members.

Or, let us suppose the matter concerns a Minister of Government who, by virtue of the fact that he is a Minister of Government, is put in a position of a built-in majority. When the matter comes to the full Parliament, tell me how, under those circumstances, a decision can be reversed or changed? Sometimes it is better to be more practical and less wise. Enough said on that matter.

I do not know how to express this as delicately as it needs to be expressed, because it is a delicate matter. I have to say that recent matters have led many of my constituents to come to me and express concern that we are not labouring under a system with double standards, or ambiguities. We used to call that, in my political sociology classes, "situational ethics." Most recently, people who study these kinds of things and write, call them "appearance ethics," for we now have situations which are begging for consistency. Perhaps if there is any essence to the establishment of a Committee of Privileges, it will be that it will give us that ability to avoid double standards and ambiguities. I do not often get irreverent, but I want to say now, at the risk of being accused of irreverence, that it does not matter to the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, when there has been a breach of privilege—and Mr. Speaker, let me pause for a moment to dwell on this matter of a breach of privilege, and to say what I consider a breach of privilege.

It is one of the most awesome responsibilities to live up to, when citizens place their trust in you. It is frightening, second only to the call to be a "fisher of men." When that trust is betrayed, for whatever reason, I am saying that access must be had to the most ultimate of sanctions.

You know, Mr. Speaker, even in certain illegal organisations, they have these sanctions when members break the rules—even in the criminal subculture, when members break certain rules, they are sanctioned. So Mr. Speaker, if there is honour among the dishonourable, how much more so should there be honour among the honourable? I believe that we have to be prepared, because with the responsibility, with the opportunity to represent, must come the responsibility to be accountable, fair and just.

I remember very vividly one of the charges we received before passing out as qualified and trained teachers at the Mico, was from the Vice Principal, who charged us that if we led one of the youngsters in our charge astray, it would have been better for us that a millstone be hung about our necks, and we be cast into the depths of the sea. Every graduate of the Mico was administered such a charge. It was not a threat! It was instilled in us that we were members of a privileged fraternity, and that we were duty-bound and honour-bound—because when we were delinquent and transgressed, it was not only a reflection upon the individual, it was a reflection upon the Institution.

The same thing obtains with the Honourable Membership here. The point is this: No Honourable Member of this House should seek to use their position for anything other than the benefit of their constituency and country. Again, in the 22nd edition of Erskine May, under the heading Ministerial Accountability to Parliament, page 63: "Ministers have a duty to Parliament to account and be held to account for the policies, decisions and actions of their department and next steps agencies. It is of paramount importance that Ministers give accurate and truthful information to Parliament, correcting any inadvertent error at the earliest opportunity. Ministers who knowingly mislead Parliament will be expected to offer their resignation to the Prime Minister." Mr. Speaker, we have no Prime Minister.

I want to read something else which I think is a corollary to that. It deals with suspension and expulsion. I have said that the Parliament is a court unto itself. Erskine May, pages 140-141, under the heading, Suspension: "Although suspension from the service of the House of Commons is now prescribed under Standing Order No 44 for Members who have disregarded the authority of the Chair or abused the rules of the House..., such a disciplinary power existed under ancient usage long before the making of the Standing Order in 1880."

It goes on to say, though "most suspensions have been carried out in pursuance of that provision" a number have not. Under the heading, Expulsion: "The expulsion by the House of Commons of one of its Members may be regarded as an example of the House's power to regulate its own constitution, though it is, for convenience, treated here as one of the methods of punishment at the disposal of the House. Members have been expelled" for a wide variety of causes.

I guess I am saying this: Any Committee of Privileges which seeks to secure for itself or its Members freedom and exclusion from certain sanctions will soon run afoul of convincing the public of its rectitude, efficiency and sincerity. Any fraternity views certain abuses as serious, and I would not like to know that I am party to any committee which says, Oh yes, this is appropriate for outsiders, but we won't set this down as a sanction for the members of the fraternity. I am saying that I hope there is not an attempt, when it comes to arriving at the finer points, to try to secure any advantage, because everyone knows I am for justice. I am for fair play and impartiality.

Henry Fielding, who is perhaps most famous for his novel Tom Jones, wrote something else, which is appropriate at this time. I do not know how many people have read Tom Jones or anything else written by Fielding, but in an essay, "On the knowledge of the characters of men," Henry Fielding had occasion to criticise situational ethics for nourishing both the corruption he saw in government and the crime he saw in the streets. He said it was "no wonder that deceit should grow to that monstrous height to which we sometimes see it arrive, since the ethics of the day taught rather to conceal vices than to cultivate virtues. The lesson," he continued, "is the very reverse of that doctrine of the Stoics, by which men were taught to consider themselves as fellow citizens of the world, and to labour jointly for the common good, without any private distinction of their own."

Mr. Speaker, Henry Fielding must have been looking at us today. In a world of constantly changing values, in a world of constant flux in all areas, it becomes more and more important to know who one is and what one stands for. Shakespeare said nothing less when he said, "To thine own self be true. And it shall follow as the night the day, thou canst not then be false to any man."

When I debated this motion last, the Leader of Government Business, the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning said that he would rather live a sermon than to hear one any day. Living begins with hearing. If you cannot hear it, you cannot live it. I want to say that the challenge is before us. I know the game well. Standing up here proclaiming that the motion is accepted, does not mean it will be carried out as it should be. There is still room for semantics and games. I want to say something else. If I understood correctly, the Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning, when he was speaking, laid the impression that the motion had been willingly accepted by all Honourable Members. Not so, Mr. Speaker. Far be that! There had to be amendments, and another amendment. So now, that too involved some situational ethics, because had the motion not been amended, there were elements here who were prepared to vote it down! And I am not sure that the person proclaiming consensus was not one of those persons prepared to vote it down. It would be remiss of me if I would not say that I am happy, because I am a Member of the fraternity, that all Honourable Members see fit to accept the motion. I am this kind of person: I am prepared—because I have always been serious, and considered it a privilege and an honour to hold elected office—I am prepared to put in realistic sanctions because we need deterrents. And I do not want to be party to any double-standard system. That is why I am awaiting an outcome of a certain situation which all of us know about now.

I am no great authority on anything, but I pride myself on the fact that I know a little about many things, and perhaps it is appropriate to leave on this sobering note: Micah 6:8. I think it has more than a little relevance and appropriateness to this situation. "He has showed you,

O Man, what is good, to act justly, to love mercy, and to walk humbly with your God." We must be true to ourselves. We must show our constituents and the country that we are prepared to be accountable, because the offices we hold are offices of significance. I commend this motion to Honourable Members, and I make no apologies for any political debate because I am a political animal, and as long as I remain in here, I will be a political animal! Thank you.

The Speaker: Does any other Honourable Member wish to speak? The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: I rise to support the motion to Establish a Standing Select Committee of Privileges as provided for within the context of the motion. I believe that each and every one of us who has the distinct privilege of being a Member of this Legislative Assembly is not beyond the glare of the white light of scrutiny. We occupy this high office at the behest and the will of the Caymanian people, and we exist and function, not as powerful private legislators, but as public servants and representatives of the people.

Against this background, let us be reminded of the fact that our individual welfare is irreversibly intertwined with the welfare of all whom we serve; and that it behoves us, in light of our knowledge and, let us say some Members (because I think we can admit that there are Members in here who are more knowledgeable than others), in light of our considerable knowledge, talent and skills, at all times we endeavour to properly conduct the affairs of state and so strengthen the fabric of our common purpose as a people.

As leaders appointed by the people, elected by the people, we have an obligation to work to achieve their dreams, their ambitions, their goals, and their wishes. However, in order to do our job effectively, the time has come for us to institute proper privileges to allow for the unimpeded progress of our work on behalf of the people we represent. Some could say that this is a sad time for the country, but I believe it is a time that is needed.

History is a useful teacher and guide for us all, a useful guide for the path we embark upon for the present and the future. Some of our neighbours have Privileges Committees in their Parliaments. For instance, Jamaica in December 1945 passed (the Senate and the House of Representatives) the Powers and Privileges Act. I believe it was later amended in 1961.

Among major provisions from what I have seen in other Parliaments is to "provide immunity from legal proceedings under which no civil or criminal proceedings may be instituted against any Member for words spoken before or written in a report to the House of which he is a Member, or Committee thereof, or any joint committee, or by any reason of any matter or thing brought by him therein by petition, bill, resolution, motion or otherwise." This, in my opinion, has to be a fundamental privilege of any Member of this House, and this privilege will not only protect the Member from people outside the House, but from Members within the House.

Another fundamental privilege enjoyed by Commonwealth Houses of Representatives or Legislatures is freedom of speech. This is enshrined in the 9th Article of the United Kingdom Bill of Rights of 1688, which declares that the freedom of speech in debate or proceedings in the House ought not to be impeached or questioned in any court or any place out of the House. That privilege has been described as “a privilege essential to every free Council or Legislature and one which has always been regarded as most valuable and most essential, as the only privilege of substance enjoyed by members of legislatures probably would degenerate into polite, but ineffectual debating societies.”

Unquestionably, then, freedom of speech is by far the most important privilege of Members. I am happy that this tradition is upheld in this House. What we must ensure is that we fiercely protect this chief of all privileges.

Let me crave the indulgence of the House to enumerate the principal powers, privileges and immunities drawn from the Laws and Customs of the House of Commons as at 1901, and I believe still outlined in the latest issue of Erskine May.

“The power to order the attendance at the bar of the House of persons whose conduct has been brought before the House on a matter of privilege.

“The power to order the arrest and imprisonment of persons guilty of contempt or breach of privilege.

“The power to arrest for breach of privilege by warrant of the Speaker.

“The power to issue such a warrant for arrest and imprisonment for contempt or breach of privilege without showing any particular grounds or causes thereof.

“The power to regulate its proceedings by standing rules and orders, having the force of Law.

“The power to suspend disorderly Members.

“The power to expel Members guilty of disgraceful and infamous conduct.

“The right of free speech in Parliament without liability to action or impeachment for anything spoken therein established by Article 9 of the Bill of Rights, 1688.

“The right of each House as a body to freedom of access to the Sovereign for the purpose of presenting and defending its views.

“Immunity of Members from legal proceedings for anything said by them in the course of Parliamentary debates.

“Immunity of Members from arrest and imprisonment for civil causes whilst attending Parliament and for 40 days after every prorogation, and for 40 days before the next appointed meeting.

“Immunity of Members from the obligation to serve on juries.

“Immunity of witnesses summoned to attend either House of Parliament from arrest for civil causes.

“Immunity of Parliamentary witnesses from being questioned or impeached, for evidence given before either House or its Committees.

“Immunity of officers of either House in immediate attendance in service of the House from arrest for civil causes.”

Quite a few, Mr. Speaker, matters that will have to be considered in the formation of the rules of the Committee or for any amendment to the Immunities and Privileges Law.

Let us not form a Committee of Privileges for the sake of forming a committee. Importantly, let us be careful that we are not forming a witch hunt committee, for that is not, and cannot be, the spirit or the intention of the Committee, or the terms of legislation to form a Privileges Committee. What we should consider should be aimed at upholding the dignity and decorum of this House—it should not be concerned with impugning or bringing into question the reputation of its Members without evidence. It should, rather, seek to clarify and exonerate.

Why do I say this? Let me say it again: It is important that we are not forming a witch hunt committee, for that is not, and cannot be, the spirit or the intention of forming a Privileges Committee. We should consider uppermost in our minds aiming at upholding the dignity and decorum of this House. It should not be concerned with impugning or bringing into question the reputation of its Members without evidence, but should rather seek to clarify and exonerate.

Again, I repeat myself: Why do I say this? I am a standing example of that. My own experience is good reason for me to say that. I will give you an example. Let us say a Minister of Executive Council went around with a censure motion in his pocket, making Members of the House, and others, believe that I had done wrong; and then frighten them to move against me to unseat me. What would actually happen is this: That Minister of Executive Council would have to come to this House to the Committee of Privileges, state his case with his trumped-up charge, put the evidence before everyone on the Committee so that I could answer the charges and be judged by the Committee. That is what would happen in that case.

Another good example of how the Committee could assist Members is the recent accusation on the Minister of Tourism regarding the crane. If a Member of the House felt so aggrieved to bring to the attention of the Committee the matter of the accusation on the Minister and the crane, then that Member would have to bring his evidence to the Committee so that it could be deliberated on, and the Minister would then be called upon to defend himself. He would either be found to have constituted a breach against the privilege of the House by using his office to obtain some personal gain, or he would be exonerated.

Those are examples, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: May I interrupt you for just a minute? I would ask you not to get into personal matters in this. Hypothetical situations could be accepted, but try not to get into personal situations.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: I thought that was what I was giving, Mr. Speaker—hypothetical cases.

The Speaker: Do not call the Ministers into question.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Well, I was drawing the attention of the House to certain matters that exist. All I am saying is that this is one reason why we should have the Committee.

The Speaker: I have to watch this closely. Address it more in a broad sense.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: That is a very broad sense, Mr. Speaker, and I will leave it at that.

We are a small community. We must be careful how we deal with Members inside and outside of this House. While you are a Member, you do not have to be inside the House to be affected, or impugned for the Committee to deal with it, that is how far it goes. We must be careful of the signals we send to our community—not only our community, but the regional and international community. Above all, we must remember the people we lead.

For, as I said in opening, we are here to lead our people, and not to stage for their amusement and concern television-style soap operas of intrigue and cloak-and-dagger politics. We are not here to grab power by devious and insidious means of impugning a Member's reputation.

I will say no more. I see you looking, Mr. Speaker. I am glad that you are so alert this afternoon. At least you can smile, Mr. Speaker.

For this Assembly has a mandate from the people, a mandate to represent and to provide leadership. If we are called to question at any time, we can stand before the bar of judgement with our heads held high. We must ensure that we form a fit and proper Privileges Committee which will be a tribute to the honour and high esteem of this House. The terms of reference for this Committee must be clearly defined and subjected to objective and reasoned debate.

It is not a light Committee, and I do not think anybody is making it out to be. It is a very, very heavy-weight Committee. But it is needed because too often people's characters are smeared by slang and everyone takes a go at it at times, but we should know how far to go, and how far to carry a matter. But I fear for the future generation who, looking on, would say to themselves, 'I am going to take no part in trying for the legislature,' while that person could be a good person, could be the kind of leader needed, but because of what obtains, they shy away. We must be able to stand before the bar of judgement at all times.

The people of the Cayman Islands expect and demand no less of its leadership. I believe that history will hold us in contempt if we fail to get it right.

I said that, in the amendment, I did not believe that the Speaker should be Chairman of the Committee. There is no disrespect to the Chair, but my thought was, what happens if one, two or three Members of the Committee of Privileges bring the House into disrepute? And let us say it is a Committee of five. Who would deliberate and ensure that their rights and privileges as Members were protected? It would leave five Members to deliberate on a matter affecting their three colleagues. I believe it is good that we accepted the amendment and that it stands as it is.

I also believe it is fit and proper to open the Committee to embrace every Member, including Official Members. I believe this is a very important matter before the House. It is not light. I hope the Committee we get will be one formed not to witch hunt, but to clarify and exonerate.

Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: I think this will be a convenient time to take the afternoon break. Proceedings are suspended for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.27 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.12 PM

The Speaker: Proceedings are resumed. Debate continues. Does any other Member wish to speak?

The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: I rise in support of Private Member's Motion No. 3/98 to Establish a Standing Select Committee of Privileges. So that Members, as well as the listening public, do not misunderstand my intentions in debating this issue, in fact, debating this issue from a passionate position, I would like to say that in a dictionary I have before me it says, a politician is a "person actively engaged in politics, especially a full time, professional member of a deliberative assembly."

I always say to people that I am a full-time Member of the Legislative Assembly, I am a politician, I speak political language. My language is a language of politics which is a language of passion, a language of principle, a language of belief in morality and ethics. My language of politics, in fact, is the language of my soul. So that tradition I hope to bring to this House does not seem as if it is too early—because I think the people of this country have long desired to have the Members of the Legislative Assembly answerable to the people and not just accept the fact that the politicians have privileges, but the people have privileges too.

In fact, the privileges of the politicians, the privileges of Parliament, came about in order to preserve the privileges of the people and not the privileges of the Members of Parliament. We have to understand which came first—people came before Parliament. Parliament, as we understand the modern sense of the word, came about as a result of a tremendous quarrel between the absolute monarchs of Europe and the bourgeoisie, the enlightened people who knew that God had not put any man or any woman in this world to rule totally over subjugated people without those people being protected by certain inalienable rights.

Rights and privileges can be intertwined. When we are talking about a privilege, we are really talking about a right, although from a sociological point of view we understand privileges sometimes as meaning that it is not deserved. A 'privileged' group, normally means a group that is better off than another group—He is a member of a privileged group.

We are talking about Parliament having privileges, or Members of Parliament being members of a privileged fraternity. We are not talking about it in a sociological way, we are talking about it in a political sense, in that all the rights Parliament has are rights considered to be essential for Parliament to exercise its collective responsibilities to the people—not to itself, but to the people. The difference between the non-reformed, absolute monarchy in Europe and the new Parliament, the people's Parliament, was that the Kings were absolute to themselves. Their privileges were absolute for themselves. It was for their self-indulgence and their selfishness, their egoism that their privileges were established and preserved, unlike the privileges of Parliament that are established and preserved to protect the rights of the people, not the Parliament.

Those of us who are scholars, in the evolution of the ideological debates, and ideological debate is no less than the attempt of people to come together and agree on social contracts, on codes of conduct that will govern their behaviour, and therefore make civilised society more feasible and more productive. We cannot look at the evolution of Parliament and the evolution of the rights which Parliament claims as its sovereign right abstractly, legalistically. We must look at these privileges within the context of an evolving society, where power and coercion were in the hands of an absolute monarch who could abolish Parliament, abolish the rule of law when he or she so felt it was proper.

We live today by the rule of law. That law is made in Parliament that law is absolute. It is by accepting this that we also accept that today we can better assist legislators in the Cayman Islands to fulfil their obligations to this House and to their constituents and the general public as a whole, by creating certain standards and codes by which the Members will be forced to live. It is time that we realise we are grown enough to understand that any contract must have two partners. When God made a contract with Abraham, God lived up to His part of the bargain, and Abraham had to live up to his part. But Almighty God, as powerful as He is, must live up to His part of that deal. Parliament, regardless of how powerful it is, must live up—or be seen to live up—to their part of the deal.

It is not just a question of us having privileges under the Immunities and Privileges Act, saying that we cannot be arrested, or we cannot be molested, we have to look at what this meant historically. No one is saying that we are going to change this, but we understand that is no longer as important. If we were in Nicaragua back in 1986, after the Sandinistas had come to power and had more or less suspended Parliament, or had made Parliament into what they figured it should be, which is an institution of the people that did not necessarily listen to the wishes and consensus of the people.

I visited Nicaragua in 1986 because I had some family there, I was curious, I was unemployed and I had some time to visit the place. I met a cousin who was very dissatisfied with the situation regarding a group of people who had come into power and claimed absolute power without scrutiny. They had claimed absolute power without a stated responsibility, without a code of responsibility, without a moral and political reference system, in fact, that was democratic. My cousin proceeded to tell me a story about the Minister responsible for Fisheries and that the Minister had been involved in a situation where some of the citizens felt that he had come to acquire 200 turtle eggs in a manner in which my cousin (there in Nicaragua in 1986) felt the Minister had misused his office.

If that had happened in our country, we would be able to go and see that this would not only be an abuse of privilege, Mr. Speaker, it would also be an offence under our Common Law. For in the abuse of office, in the Penal Code (Law 12 of 1975) (1995 Revision) it says:

"Abuse of office. 93(1) Whoever, being employed in the public service, does or directs to be done, in abuse of the authority of his office, any arbitrary act prejudicial to the rights of another, is guilty of an offence and liable to imprisonment for two years.

"(2) If the act is done or directed to be done for purpose of gain such person is guilty of an offence and liable to imprisonment for three years.

"(3) A prosecution for an offence under this section, section 91 or 92 shall not be instituted except by or with the sanction of the Attorney-General."

Now, we are in a much better situation than my cousin was in Nicaragua in 1986 when the Minister responsible for Fisheries took 200 turtle eggs that he claimed belonged to him, although these eggs were being claimed by another party in that society—in that we can find in our Penal Code a way of addressing that. That should tell us that we do not have to worry, therefore, about Parliament dealing with such accusations in our country.

If you go to the Police Department today, or if we look at the Annual Police Report 1997, it says on page 41, "Complaints and discipline. Policy and Organisation. K. McCann, QPM, CPM, Deputy Commissioner." This is the person responsible for complaints—complaints against who? Complaints against the police. The police in this country have a code, and they have a body set up within the police to take complaints from the public to look into those complaints without relying on the courts to do this.

Of course, if the disciplinary committee of the Royal Cayman Islands Police Force was to find that some police officer had violated the rights of a citizen which that police officer had sworn to protect, then it is quite possible that as a result of that going before the committee, it would then further go before the court, because it is also an offence under Common Law. It is also an offence under the codes, or as a result of the Code of Conduct of the Police Department.

That is what we are looking at here. We are looking at helping ourselves to stay honest. We are assisting one another to remain accountable, we are assisting each other to continue to have integrity.

As a new Member of this House, I must confess that this profession which I love so dearly, that I was so willing to sacrifice so much for, is worthwhile. It is a worthwhile profession. Without politics, society would not have the flexibility it needs to continue to be dynamic and to evolve; it would go backwards, break and be inflexible. So politicians serve an essential role in a society.

But, when you hear people saying, 'Oh, them dirty politicians. Oh yeah, now you're an MLA, look at the car you're driving! You got a house. You got this—unna all corrupt. Unna dare to do things for the people, and all unna doin' is tings for unnaself.' I want to protect my fraternity, Mr. Speaker, because it is important, if I sacrificed so much to be here, that people understand that I am here to abide by a code of conduct that talks about accountability, honesty and integrity. It is important.

The Speaker: We have reached the hour of 4.30. I will entertain a motion for the adjournment.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until Thursday morning at 10 o'clock.

RAISING OF PUBLIC MATTER FOR WHICH THE GOVERNMENT HAS RESPONSIBILITY Standing Order 11(6)

The Speaker: Before I put the question, I have given permission to the Third Elected Member for George Town and the First Elected Member for West Bay to make brief statements under Standing Order 11(5), (6), and (7) which is to "raise any public matter for which the Government has responsibility, in order to elicit a reply from a Member of the Government responsible for the matter."

The Third Elected Member for George Town.

CAYMAN ISLANDS LAW SCHOOL

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, in accordance with Standing Order 11(6) and (7), I wish to raise the following matter which I consider to be of public importance.

It will be recognised that the Cayman Islands Law School is providing a very useful service to the people of the Cayman Islands. Furthermore, the Law School has expanded its student base to include students from other countries. Indeed, the student body has grown from 7 in 1982 when it was established, to 70 in 1998, of which 40 are foreign students.

However, whilst the Law Degree awarded to Law School students by the University of Liverpool is recognised internationally, the Certificate in Cayman Law awarded by Queens University of Belfast to graduates of the postgraduate Professional Practice Course is only recognised locally.

In view of the consistent growth of the Law School (achieved without overseas advertising) Government is now considering the construction of a purpose-built facility for the School. As an indication of Government's commitment to this expansion, provision has been made in the 1998 Budget at page 283 [Account Centre 36-250-1], in the amount of CI$100,000.00, to cover the costs of the plan and design of the proposed facility, to be built near to the Community College compound.

The existing accommodation, which was adequate for the Law School's needs in its formative years when the student population was approximately half its current size, is unable to satisfactorily support the numbers of students now enrolling at the School. The inadequate size of existing classrooms and the library, and the absence of a student computer room are the areas of greatest concern. Due to constraints of space, the School is each year forced to reject qualified overseas students whose fee income would otherwise be available to assist the Law School toward its achievable goal of economic self-sufficiency.

According to the estimates based on figures provided by the Public Works Department a purpose-built Law School of 6500 square feet would be likely to require a total outlay of no more than $1.3m. A building of this size would be able to meet the existing demand for places at the Law School, but would allow no room for expansion beyond a population of 90-100 students. It would also support the existing staff complement, consisting of the Director of Legal Studies, five lecturers and an Executive Officer. Any further expansion in terms of student numbers and/or courses would be predicated upon an increase in staff numbers with a consequent effect on square footage needs.

Tuition fees are structured as follows: (these are taken from the Fourth Schedule to The Miscellaneous Provisions (Fees and Duties) (Temporary) Law, 1997, as amended)- Postgraduate: (Professional Practice Course): All students (generally Caymanians): $2000 P.A.

Degree: Caymanian/spouse of Caymanian or legal resident of 10 years+: $3000 P.A.; Non-Caymanian: $7500.

Diploma in Legal Studies (part-time): Caymanian/spouse of Caymanian or legal resident of 10 years+" $1500; Non-Caymanian: $4500.

Accordingly, by way of illustration, 90 undergraduate and 10 postgraduate students may be expected to generate tuition fee income as follows:

Assuming: Ten postgraduate students; and 75 Degree students (50 overseas; 25 local); and 15 Diploma (part-time) students (local); fee income would be:

10 x $2000	$ 20,000.
50 x $7500 +25 x $3000	450,000.
15 x $1500	22,500.
	$ 492,500.

The Law School's fee earning capability will, of course, increase exponentially as does its capacity in terms of total student numbers.

Moreover, the relocation of the Law School would free up over 3000 square feet of valuable office space in the Tower Building, providing much needed accommodation for other government departments.

Mr. Speaker, I therefore call upon the Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration:

- a) to open dialogue with UK Universities which would issue a Professional Practice Certificate similar to the Bar qualification offered in the UK, that would be recognised in the UK, the Caribbean and other Commonwealth countries;
- b) to take steps to ensure that the proposed new facilities of the Law School be configured, designed and equipped to comply with any recognition as aforesaid.

I trust that this will be given very urgent attention.
Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The Honourable Acting Second Official Member responsible for Legal Affairs.

Hon. Samuel Bulgin: I wish to respond by reading a reply that was drafted by the Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Affairs, the Attorney General.

"In accordance with Standing Order 11(6), I welcome the support of the Third Elected Member for George Town for the Cayman Islands Law School.

"The school has accomplished much since its inception in 1982, and is now a victim of its own success. The present premises in the Tower Building are not only too small for the present student body, but have other drawbacks as well.

"An office building in the centre of George Town housing busy government departments is not the right environment for a school of learning. Security in the Tower Building dictates that it is only open during normal office hours, which prevents students from gaining access to the Law Library during the evening when they often wish to study.

"A move to the Community College campus is most welcome and anticipated as is shown in the Community College budget for 1998. Public Works has already been instructed to commence design work on the new building and I can assure all Honourable Members that this new building will be purpose-built for the Law School students and of sufficient size to accommodate the present student body with enough capacity for some growth. In addition, the building will be designed so that it is capable of being extended in the future, should the number of applicants for the Law School continue to rise.

"Only last year I made contact with the Law Society in London over the issue of recognition of Caymanian Law qualifications in England. I am pleased to say that the Law Society was extremely positive for the Cayman Islands to be an eligible jurisdiction for the Qualified Lawyers Training Regulations. The application for the Cayman Islands to be added to that list of countries is being processed, and I acknowledge the assistance of the Cayman Islands Law Society which has also been pursuing this matter.

"The professional vocational course is now being offered in the United Kingdom by many universities. I have spoken at some length with the Third Elected Member for George Town concerning the possibility of offering one of these vocational courses through the Cayman Islands Law School. I will be pursuing this matter.

"Once again, I thank the Honourable Member for his support of the Law School."

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

STATUS OF ROADS AND OTHER CAPITAL WORKS IN THE DISTRICTS

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I count it urgent enough to enquire of the Government at this particular time on the status of roads and other capital works in the districts.

Since 1995, that is, 1996 and 1997, we did not get any roadwork in West Bay. There is not a lot left to be done with respect to roads in West Bay; however, there are a few roads which need to be built and others needing repair. From early 1995 we talked about a link roadway existing between Powell-Smith Drive and Church Street which would open up that area. This is a 'long-time' roadway which we agreed to widen and build into a proper road since 1995, and it has not been done yet.

I have letters from constituents, as I believe other Members for West Bay have, asking that this road be built. So I would urge the Government to move quickly on that particular road. If the prioritising of projects is taking such a long time, I would ask that the exercise be brought to all of us here so that we can assist with it. I understand this delay in capital works, other than road works, is affecting employment in Cayman Brac. I believe it is also happening here. If Government is paying a truck driver, or heavy equipment operator to do common labour, that has to be unproductive and certainly not cost-effective.

Can the Government say how soon funds will be available to Public Works so they can get going with roads and other badly needed capital works, such as the West Bay Primary School Hall?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: The capital road projects are being prioritised presently by Executive Council. On April 2, each Member of this Honourable House will have an opportunity to vote for or against those projects, because they will be presented here.

The Speaker: The question is that this House do now adjourn until 10 o'clock Thursday morning. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AT 4.44 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM THURSDAY, 19 MARCH 1998.

EDITED
THURSDAY
19 MARCH 1998
10.14 AM

The Speaker: Prayers by the First Elected Member for West Bay.

PRAYERS

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived: We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth, that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly, that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy great name's sake.

Let us say the Lord's Prayer together: Our Father, who art in heaven, hallowed be Thy name. Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us. Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace, now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Item number 2 on today's Order Paper, Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers, Deferred Question Number 35, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION 35
(deferred 9 March 1998)

No. 35: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development to state the annual amounts by which the contingency liabilities have increased since 1993.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

DEFERMENT OF QUESTION NO. 35
Standing Order 23(5)

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, once again, in accordance with Standing Order 23(5), I will ask the indulgence of this Honourable House for this question to be deferred to a later sitting. I should point out briefly that the reason for this is it has been found, in looking at the figures, that there has been an understatement in contingent liabilities, going back to the figures as of 31 December 1993. This understatement runs through the period 1993 through 31 December 1995. So it is important that a proper statement be developed to give a clear position on this understatement. The answer is presently being worked on by the Accountant General-Designate, the Director of Internal Audit, both in consultation with the Auditor General. Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I wish the Hansards to show my disappointment with the inability to provide the answer before this time, Sir. This is the third time the question has been deferred, and I note the Honourable Member's intention to provide the answer at a later sitting. My request is that the answer be deferred to a subsequent sitting, rather than given in writing.

The Speaker: I shall put the question, that Question Number 35 be deferred to a later sitting. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. Question No. 35 has been deferred to a later sitting.

AGREED: QUESTION 35 DEFERRED.

The Speaker: That concludes Question Time for this morning.

Item number 3 on the Order Paper, Other Business, Private Members' Motions, continuation of debate on Private Member's Motion 3/98 as twice amended: Establishment of a Standing Select Committee of Privileges, the Fourth Elected Member for George Town continuing.

OTHER BUSINESS

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 3/98

ESTABLISHMENT OF A STANDING SELECT COMMITTEE OF PRIVILEGES

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Dr. Frank McField: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I began my debate yesterday in an attempt to show that this exercise in establishing a Committee of Privileges within this Honourable House is a worthwhile exercise, and that debate on this issue is also relevant, not only to Members in this Honourable House, but to the public at large, a public that becomes more and more concerned with the functioning of the democratic institutions in this country.

I said that the issue of representative government, the issue of democracy, is a passionate issue to me. It is a "soul" issue. It is an issue of principle and ethics. It is my life, to come from a class within the society that has felt not always represented, and that those persons who have acted for them seem not to know them. To represent means to act, and to act means to study the character sufficiently to be able to project that character realistically. My position is that I am very fortunate to be in this position, and I take it seriously, because it is at this stage that assuring the public that the democratic institutions are worthwhile and functional, and fair, and are here for everyone—perhaps at this juncture in our development, it is even more important than it was yesterday.

It is important that we show that all our decisions are above-board, and it is for this reason that this Private Member's Motion was brought to this House. What I find odd is that somehow we get the feeling we are not supposed to discuss the concrete reasons for a motion of this kind being brought to this House, which should be accepted by this House, and will be accepted by this House. What makes it necessary now? Why was it not necessary four years ago, or eight years ago, or twelve years ago, or fourteen years ago? Why is it necessary to bring a motion dealing with establishment of a Committee of Privileges at this time in the development of democracy in the Cayman Islands? Why is it necessary?

The general public seems to have many concerns, but we are not discussing it from that viewpoint, because somehow I get the feeling that to mention concrete cases in point as to why this Committee is necessary, would be a violation of the very privileges within this House. So we must somehow convince the people that we are not just creating this Committee for the sake of creating another Committee. That is very difficult. It is very difficult for us to show why this Committee is necessary, because if we really look at the law dealing with immunities and privileges of Members of the House, we see that the privileges of the House are very well protected by Standing Orders, by the Constitution, and by this particular Law. I think the Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning was suggesting that we have, in our Standing Orders, in this Law, in the Constitution, sufficient protection for the privileges of this Honourable House.

That Minister also made it clear that this House is not sovereign. In fact, he is saying that whatever we decide here still has to be agreed upon, assented to, by the Governor and by the Parliament in Britain or so forth. We are aware of that. Most Honourable Members are aware of that, and we know that if we make sensible decisions, the Governor assents to those decisions, and the Foreign Office, or the Parliament in Britain, would not interfere with our sovereignty.

It is also true, at this point, when we look at the evolving relationship between Great Britain and its Overseas Territories, what is evolving is that they are suggesting we take more of an active role in self-governing our country, in making the rules, regulations and codes that internally bind us together. We do not say that we do not need to exert more authority, we do not say that we do not need to create a Standing Committee because at the end of the day, it does not have the total power itself. We know that tradition has already indicated that as long as what we do is reasonable, it will be accepted by the Governor and by the colonial office.

So in going along with the whole idea that we should plan more for ourselves and be more dependent upon ourselves, I think it is only fair to say that those types of arguments are getting away from the real intention of this motion. The intention of the motion is not necessarily to erode the traditional concept of privileges. It is not to deal with the traditional concept, because as I have said, in legislation already, we have sufficient legislation to preserve and protect what the Parliament has traditionally claimed as being essential for that Parliament and its Members to carry out its duties as representatives of the people.

We are talking about, I think, in this motion—and this is one reason, Mr. Speaker, that when the Committee is formed, it should not become an inactive Committee, because there is a lot of work that Committee could be doing. This is one reason that we should be able to use some examples, to show exactly that that Committee would not be dysfunctional! That Committee would be very functional and very necessary! The Committee would not just be a Committee that would make sure that our freedom of expression is preserved, our freedom from arrest or molestation, while we are involved with the business of the House. The Committee will be dealing with exactly what the disciplinary committee at the Police Department will be dealing with. It will deal with complaints, genuine complaints and allegations made against Members. That is what this Committee would be dealing with.

If we do not think we should subject ourselves to this type of scrutiny, if we think this would be molesting us, if we think this would be an inconvenience to many of us, who claim these days to be so busy running our Ministries, if we feel that, then we should tell the people that. We should say, We don't want this Committee, and let the people interpret those positions the way I think they would.

To make it abundantly clear why I think this Committee is necessary, why I think the Committee will have a lot of work to do, I would like to return to the hypothetical situation I used yesterday regarding the Minister responsible for turtles in Nicaragua in 1986, where in doing so, I am showing, since I am not allowed to use local examples and situations, if I am allowed, I will rely upon my talent as a playwright to create a description that will paint a picture to allow us to see that in fact a Committee of Privilege could be very valuable.

I said that I visited Nicaragua in 1986. I said my cousin had explained to me that the Minister responsible for Fisheries had come into possession of 200 turtle eggs which another citizen of that country also jointly claimed. The strange thing about this was the fact that it was said by my cousin in Nicaragua that that Minister had come by those turtle eggs simply because he was in the position, as the Minister responsible for Fisheries, to have access to those eggs in the first place.

The interesting thing is that the other person claiming those 200 turtle eggs said that they had been laid by turtles which he could identify as belonging to his grandfather. This person was able to present documentation to prove that those turtles actually belonged to his grandfather. But when the decision was made as to who to award those 200 turtle eggs to, they were awarded to the Minister responsible for turtles and not to the citizen. Of course, the citizen felt his rights had been violated. It would have been a good thing if they had had a Select Committee of Privileges in Nicaragua in 1986, because that person would have been able to complain to that Select Committee regarding the behaviour of that Minister, saying that Minister had abused his office, and that Committee would have been able to look at the evidence, and would have been able to have at least reassured this person, without causing that person to go to court and spend the unnecessary money that the person did not have. That Committee might have been able to reassure the individual that in fact his rights had or had not been violated.

That is a case in point. It is far-fetched, and of course, a lot of people will say, Well, why is the Fourth Elected Member for George Town talking about Nicaragua? What does that have to do with the Cayman Islands? It only goes to show that democracy can become so eroded that Members of Government can use their privileged positions to gain unfair advantage over their citizens, and that is not tolerable. It should not be tolerable in Nicaragua, and it certainly should not be tolerable here in these Islands.

I believe that a Committee of Privileges would help us to reassure the people that all Members of this Honourable House are concerned that confidence in Government and the democratic institution of Government, as ancient as it is, that confidence must be preserved, because only then can social order and justice be preserved. The Rule of Law, the law must apply to all of us. This is the reason this motion has been brought, to show that Members of this Honourable House have no fear of anyone questioning them, because as public figures, that is what we must expect, that all our actions are public actions. All the actions done in the name of our office are public actions, and therefore the public should have a right to know how we conduct our business.

Accountability is therefore important. It is important that Members are not only accountable to the public, but also to the Parliament as a collective body. I do not have very much more to say. I think the 200 turtle eggs have made the point for me. Again, it goes to show that the years I spent as a playwright in this country were not wasted, because I am quite sure that the general public knows we would not want this country to become like Nicaragua, where the Minister of Turtles can take away 200 turtle eggs, as precious as they are, from people without giving the people an answer as to what legitimate claim he had to them. Thank you very much.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I will make my contribution rather brief. Personally, I have never had any problem with a motion of privilege. I believe, if you live your life by principle, by honesty, by integrity, and by ensuring that you do unto others as you would have them do unto you, a Committee of Privilege can find nothing wrong with the way in which you have conducted either your personal life or your business life. I think what is important, though, in all we do, as we move forward, whether it is a Committee of Privilege or some other committee of this House, or anywhere else, it is essential that the rule of innocence is carried out. A person is innocent until proven guilty. I have heard this from the very early days of my life in this country, and I hope now that none of us is seeking to depart from that old procedure, which has served us so well.

There can be all sorts of complaints, Mr. Speaker, and all sorts of allegations, but the fact is, is the person willing to put it in writing? Or are you just going to listen to verbal comments? I think if any committee in this country follows verbal comments—I mean, if you have not heard a rumour since you woke up this morning, you are probably going to hear one before you go to sleep tonight. I think it is important that the procedure to be followed by the Committee, and which will trigger the Committee coming into operation on any particular item, should be nailed down from the very beginning. I believe if you are going to make an allegation against anyone, be he or she a Member of this House, or anywhere else, let us put it in writing. Let us make sure it stands up to the scrutiny of this House of Privilege, or it stands up to the judicial process in this country. Then, I think, we have something to deal with, and to hopefully deal with it in the proper way.

With those few remarks, I am in full support of this motion.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In offering my contribution to the debate in support of this motion, I would like to remind all Members—and I should not use the word “remind” because I am certain we are all well aware—the Oxford English Dictionary gives the meaning of the word “privilege” as “a special right granted to a person or a group,” and in my humble opinion, the privileges that have been given to the Members of this Parliament are special rights and should not be abused.

I support the motion in setting up a Standing Select Committee of Privileges for this Parliament, in that in the past, not even being a Member of this Legislative Assembly, I personally have listened to reports on the radio of the proceedings of this Parliament, where privileges have been abused by Members, by stating certain things against private citizens outside this Parliament, who have no recourse to protect their names, because no action can be taken.

As a Member of this Parliament, Mr. Speaker, I personally do not feel that type of behaviour should be a privilege. I feel that we as elected Members not only represent those people who gave us an “x” on election day, but we represent those who voted against us, and we should not be given the privilege to stand in this Parliament to degrade those opposition people who have no recourse. These are the types of privileges I have a problem with. I understand what the Honourable Minister for Tourism just said, that there must be proof, and I agree, and I will read from the Australian Standing Orders, which were just handed to us a little while ago, hoping that the Standing Select Committee on Standing Orders will meet shortly to offer certain amendments to the Standing Orders of this Parliament. It says, “During a period when the House is not sitting and is not expected to meet for a further period of at least two weeks, a Member may bring to the attention of the Speaker a matter of privilege which has arisen since the House last met, and which he proposes should be referred to the Committee of Privileges. If the Speaker is satisfied that a prima facie case of breach of privilege has been made out, and the matter is one upon which urgent action should be taken, he shall refer it forthwith to the Committee of Privileges.”

There is no such Standing Order in our Standing Orders at the time, Mr. Speaker. I have heard arguments put forward that privileges are within our Standing Orders, but I cannot find it. I find where a motion can be brought if the Speaker accepts it, but there are no terms as to what an abuse of a privilege is. These are the things I would like to see corrected. I feel that these things would be corrected by having a Select Committee to deal with privileges. We are all parents in this Parliament, I think, except two Honourable Members, and in raising our children, we have given them privileges. If those privileges were abused, they were taken away, or the children were punished. I feel, as the representatives of the people of these Islands, and that is all people, we should be dealt with in a similar way, and in forming this Select Committee on Privileges we can achieve these sorts of things.

I believe, with a Select Committee to deal with privileges, there are tremendous amounts of rumours on the street, or allegations. If this Committee were in place, and the documentation is there to prove an abuse of privilege, and it is brought to you as the Honourable Speaker of this House, and you believe it is a case, this matter would go before a Select Committee, which would either find the Member guilty or not guilty, thereby removing all allegations from the public, and rumours against Members of this Parliament. With those few words, I give this motion my full support.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: My contribution on this will be short, but I would not let this opportunity pass without giving this very important motion my full support.

It was not an easy process to have this motion in a form that was satisfactory to both sides of the House. The process of doing that is unimportant at this point, and irrelevant, as the most important objective was to have the motion in a form that was acceptable to those concerned.

I notice that too many times Members of this Honourable House tend to go back into history. History is good, in that it helps us to learn from our mistakes, but when we dwell too much on history, we take a retrograde step. In my opinion, this motion will only develop after the deliberations have been given a chance within the Select Committee being set up to deal with this matter. I do not see us at this stage making any meaningful contributions to the final results of those deliberations, as time will tell what Members’ input will be and what the final position will be on the motion.

To believe that the question of privileges is a novel idea would also be a mistake. Our Legislative Assembly (Immunities, Powers and Privileges) Law (1996 Revision), sections 3 and 4 speak loudly to the question of the privileges in the House. I believe the intention of the people who made the Law was that the privileges were to be enjoyed by Members of the House.

We know that Members of the House, as in other restricted areas, have what is known as absolute privilege. That absolute privilege is extended to the Honourable Members of the House. The other area of privileges is known under law as ‘qualified privileges.’ Section 3 of the Legislative Assembly (Immunities, Powers and Privileges) Law (1996 Revision) states: “No civil or criminal proceedings may be instituted against any member for words spoken before, or written in a report to, the Assembly of which he is a member or to a committee thereof or by reason of any matter or thing brought by him therein by petition, bill, resolution, motion or otherwise, nor shall any such proceedings be instituted against any person in respect of such words broadcast or re-broadcast by any broadcasting station licensed under the Broadcasting Law, 1977, or wholly owned by the Government of the Islands."

Basically, this also says that while Members of the Legislative Assembly enjoy absolute privilege, the news media also enjoys a certain degree of privilege, albeit that privilege may be known as qualified privilege.

Section 4 of the same Law states, "No member shall be liable for arrest for any civil debt except a debt the contraction of which constitutes a criminal offence..." and so on.

The point in raising reference to this section of the Immunities and Privileges Law is to show that there is already a certain degree of privilege in the Law. Where we have a problem, is that so many times, even though this privilege is necessary for Honourable Members of this House to be able to transact business without the fear of prosecutions or legal proceedings being taken, too many times these privileges are abused. This is the basic problem we are having in this Honourable House.

This has gone on for a very long time. I am not going to go into the Hansards to try to prove who said what, because I think many of us have been guilty of the abuse of privilege. That is why I said we should try not to delve too much into the past because many of us have been guilty of this.

When I look at the Hansards of this House between 1992 and 1996, I cannot believe that a House that is supposed to be an Honourable House with Honourable Members could have said some of the things I saw in the Hansards during my absence from this Honourable House. If those things had been said on the outside, the Member saying it would have been sued for defamation, and would not have had a defence. But, because of their absolute privilege in the House, they say these things about people who cannot defend themselves.

What is also bad about this is that a Member can get up in this Honourable House under absolute privilege and defame someone on the outside. If that individual tried to answer it in the press, then that person can be sued for defamation. That is not right, Mr. Speaker. While I am the first to say that this absolute privilege is a good thing to protect Ministers and Members of this House, I feel that attention needs to be focused on the problem of abuse—not that the privilege should be curtailed, but that the abuse of this privilege should be curtailed.

Until we all get together and start respecting each other...that is what is lacking—respect for our fellow parliamentarian, respect for people we believe oppose us on the outside. I have heard Members attempt to destroy the character not only of male political opponents but of female political opponents, making certain remarks to suggest that those individuals are loose individuals. That is unparliamentary and should not be permitted in this Honourable House. That is where I would like to see this Committee put on some brakes, where Members are not allowed to destroy the character of other people.

I have read in the 1992 to 1996 Hansards that Honourable Members (if I may call them honourable) have gotten up in this House and abused people on the outside, accusing people like the First Elected Member for George Town and myself of illegally enriching ourselves with water. People, like Mr. Miller, had been accused of taking drugs. . .

The Speaker: Please do not bring names into the debate.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, the point is this: I believe that under Parliamentary Procedure, Members of the House should not be called by name, but I do not believe that there is anything in the Standing Orders to state that it is unparliamentary to refer to someone on the outside by name. But I bow to your ruling.

The Speaker: If you would give way to me for one moment please.

I am not talking about the name. I am talking about the procedure. We are debating the formation of a Committee of Privilege, not the function of a Privilege Committee. We will deal with that once the Committee is formed.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I am surprised that these restrictions were not brought on other speakers, but, as I have done in the past I will do now, and that is to humbly bow to your ruling. I will move on.

The Speaker: May I interrupt you once more?

I would like you to show me from the Hansard where I have not dealt with other speakers as I am dealing with you. Please continue.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The point I am making here, and I think you recognise, is that this motion is a very wide-ranging motion. It covers a wide range of debate. It is pretty difficult to restrict someone on a particular point, but I will continue to say that the major issue we have with this motion is not the curtailment of the privileges presently in the Law. The problem we have is allowing Members of this Honourable House to get up and defame each other and defame people on the outside. This is the issue before us. And whoever is involved—and I hope that the Chairman will insist on this—that the focus of attention will be on the question of the abuse of power.

The conduct of people on the outside of this House is no business of parliamentarians. Whether someone goes to church on Sunday, or how that person lives his life should not be brought up, and that person should not be ridiculed in this Honourable House.

I made reference a while ago (and this is in the Hansards) where Honourable Members accused...and we are talking about privileges here, Mr. Speaker. That is what this motion is about. This was an abuse of privilege! Honourable Members of this House accused others of dishonesty. If that had been said—and this is the point I want to make—outside this Honourable House, it would have constituted defamation. I believe e would be doing an injustice, not only to the Mover and Seconder of this motion, but to everyone who supports it if these matters are not seriously addressed.

There are other areas where the Hansards will show that people have been wrongfully abused, mainly because they are unable to protect themselves. They are unable to speak up for themselves. I have seen the press attacked. I have seen citizens attacked because the Members have been able to shelter under the cloak of secrecy or immunities and privileges.

I had not intended to speak this long on this motion, but as I spoke, things came to mind. My main intention, and I do not want to get away from that, is to give this motion my full support, and in so doing to again remind this Honourable House that we would, indeed, be wasting time if the purpose of the Committee is not to try to correct the anomalies and the abuses of privilege that now exist within this Parliament.

Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause) Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause)

I know it is a bit early, but this may be a convenient time to take the morning suspension. Proceedings are suspended for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.03 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 11.37 AM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Does any other Member wish to speak? If no other Member wishes to speak, would the mover wish to exercise his right of reply? The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Several Members have discussed the motion and so far, it seems that even with varying opinions about certain specific matters, it is fairly obvious that a Committee of Privileges is sought by the membership here. First of all, while this has already been done, I think it is important, before we take the vote, to make sure everyone understands what the amended motion is. With your permission, I would like to quickly go through it, because it is not very long.

The Speaker: Please do.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: The motion now reads: “WHEREAS Standing Order 79 provides that the House may appoint other Standing Select Committees as required from among its Members;

“BE IT NOW THEREFORE RESOLVED that this Honourable Legislative Assembly appoint a Standing

Select Committee of Privileges to consider and report on any matter affecting the privileges of this Honourable House;

“AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the Committee comprise all Honourable Members of this Legislative Assembly, the Chairman being elected from among the Committee Members;

“AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the Committee shall elect a Deputy Chairman from among the Committee Members, who shall act as Chairman of the Committee during the absence of the Chairman; “AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the Legislative Assembly amend Standing Orders of the Legislative Assembly and the Legislative Assembly (Immunities, Powers and Privileges) Law, Law 24 of 1965 (1996 Revision) where necessary, in compliance with section 45 of the Cayman Islands Constitution Order, to address all matters regarding Parliamentary privilege at the earliest convenience.”

So, as has been said before, we have finally found the wording to the motion which from all appearances, seems to be acceptable to this entire House. There are a few areas which I think we need to ensure are very clear to all of us, and I need to reiterate that the main purpose of bringing this motion to this Honourable House was not to ensure protection of Members, but the purpose, more so than any other, is to ensure that privileges enjoyed by Members are not abused.

The seconder and I, and other Members of this Backbench, hold the view that in the public interest, transparency is important. How we go about the business of the country in this Legislative Assembly shall be seen to be transparent, and we believe firmly that this Committee of Privileges will assist in this regard.

We also believe that it is incumbent on all of us to be willing to be scrutinised as elected representatives. We believe it is incumbent on us to have no fear of being put to the test at any point in time. We also feel very strongly that if such a Committee exists, it will be one of the safeguards in preventing what might come to mind from time to time becoming a reality. Because in the business we are in, I am sure situations will arise from time to time where people on the outside seek some type of advantage, and sometimes the methods by which they would like to achieve that advantage are untoward. So it is not questioning our own characters, it is simply that we wish to be open with our dealings, and we wish to prevent or head off, as one might say, such actions that might lead toward the public's opinion of us being a little bit less than it should.

Some Members have used certain examples, and I have listened carefully to the way you have conducted the proceedings in the House, and I respect what I believe is the fact that safe passage of this motion is the most important thing to achieve, not so much what goes on around the debate. But having said that, I also believe it is important for us to come to grips with certain realities which might exist, to get a full understanding of how important a Committee of Privileges will be for the smooth running of this Legislative Assembly.

One Member from the Government Bench mentioned rumours earlier. I, like everyone else here probably, have been on the receiving end of some of those rumours. If I were not in a peaceful frame of mind right now, I might put some of us to the test regarding rumours. I might even find myself, to satisfy certain rumours, asking certain Members facing me if they wish to call the police to do certain tests now before I get into the meat of my contribution. But that will not happen this morning.

The Speaker: I thank you for that.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Without going into much detail about that, Mr. Speaker, I wish for those Members here who were party to that rumour, to know that I know one and all who they were and who they are.

The other statement I wish to make regarding that, and I will move on after I say that—God does not like ugly, because He did not make it. In the month of December, when a similar motion was brought here, one of the things I said was that that motion was spawned from a desire for truth. I wish to repeat that statement today, that this motion, like that one, is spawned from a fervent desire for truth to prevail in all dealings in this Honourable Legislative Assembly. There are people in this Legislative Assembly who, for one reason or another, or for one ability or the other, find themselves bending and twisting and twining the truth, when it comes to the very important business of this country.

Again, because we wish to see safe passage of this motion, I will not cite specific examples of this right now, but suffice it to say that those occasions when that has occurred in this Honourable House are known to myself and others, and there will be other opportune times when, not the twisted truth, but the real truth will be made known to the public of this country. That is not a challenge, that is a statement of fact. And it will happen, and there will be the right times.

I believe, as representatives of the people of this country, our first duty to the people is to tell the truth. I believe it is morally wrong to ask people, sometimes to beg people, to allow us to represent them in this Honourable House, and turn around and expect them to believe what is not the truth. Like the lawyers say, speaking generally, I have witnessed that in here, I have known the truth when I have heard what is not the truth in here, and with such a Committee existing, I believe there will be less of it, because I believe that Committee will function properly, and I believe Members will think twice before they go on their reckless escapades they have gone on in the past. If I sail too close, Mr. Speaker, please let me know. It is not my intention.

In his contribution earlier, one of the Members painted a little picture, the playwright that he is—and he is very good at it. If I remember correctly, the picture was about 200 turtle eggs. That, in my view, was a situation that, while not close to home, certainly proved the point that matters like that can happen, and if situations like that occurred here at home, close to home, right here in this, our home, then a Committee of Privileges would certainly be able to deal with the matter, so that rumours would not abound, and the unwritten law of innocence accepted before guilt is proven, prevails.

I wish to make it very clear that I am not one who likes to jump up and down, making wild accusations and getting excited because it is good to talk about and it makes one's day. I am not one of those people. What I will say about any matter such as this is that while I do not subscribe to participating in rumour-mongering, I also do not wish to be tarnished with any brush that I did not buy the paint for, or the brush. So when instances like this arise, we need to clear the air. We need to clear the air with the truth. We need to be open, transparent, accountable, and if we apply those principles, the truth will prevail and the world will be at ease.

You know, Mr. Speaker, sometimes we have dreams. Sometimes we have aspirations. And sometimes we wake in the middle of the night, very frightened, because of what we dreamed. I have had those experiences. I would just like to tell a little story about one of those experiences, so people will understand how important the truth is. Again, because it is a very peaceful morning, I will try to forget dates and even times, but I cannot forget the dream, because it really frightened me.

I was dreaming about something else, and I was interrupted in my dream by this scenario: Elections were coming on, and being one of those who sought to be elected a few times, it is not strange I would be dreaming about an election. In my own little way, without even knowing it, I was frightening some people who had a stranglehold in a certain district, because for some reason or the other, it came to them that they might be losing the power base they had. I really could not understand the dream for quite some time, Mr. Speaker. It took me quite a while to really understand it.

But you see, those same people were not willing to accept the fact that the ultimate choice rests in the hands of the people, not them. They did not really understand that power does not lie with individuals. Real power lies with the people en masse. And when that stared them straight in the face, they did not know how to deal with it. They were running out of time because the election was very near, and they started to scramble, trying to figure how they could find a way to change the people's minds. They had meetings upon meetings. And it is funny how when you dream, you are not attending the meetings but you can see all that is happening in those meetings. It is good to dream sometimes.

And in those meetings, the think-tank finally came up and said, There is only one way we can handle this situation. We have to remember that the only way we are going to change the people's minds is the old-time way we know so well to do: We have to attack his character. And I was praying to God, Mr. Speaker, that I would awaken from this dream when I heard that, but I could not. I just had to sit and watch it all.

So they remembered a certain incident which had occurred about three years prior to that. They knew the facts. They knew that, for some ungodly reason, it could have appeared that I might have been a dishonest person. But you see, right there and then, the dream kind of stopped. I did not wake up, but that part of the dream went on hold; then I remembered what had transpired about that incident. While I was dreaming about that incident, I remembered a sequence of events. The sequence of events follow in chronological order like this: An individual, who was on a certain committee—in fact who chaired that committee—came to me and asked me if I was a partner or shareholder in a certain company. And I was—I still am—and of course, I said, Yes, why do you ask? What is the problem? So it was related to me that it could appear that certain benefits were received by my company which, if one were to look at it objectively, could appear to be not so right.

Unfortunately, he caught me flat-footed, because I knew nothing about it. But because I am a person who worries a lot, and because I fear greatly every day of my life any human being questioning my honesty, or testing my integrity, I decided to walk a trail to try to find out what the real circumstances were. I went to a certain Minister and asked about it. I asked an opinion. I got the opinion. I went to the Director of the Authority from which these benefits were supposedly received, and I wanted to find out what had happened. I really did not get too much information, but because the Auditor General himself was involved in the whole process, although inadvertently, I went to him also. Every reply I got said, Listen, while it could appear this way, all documentation we have does not say anything whereby you could be responsible for any wrongdoing.

But you see, Mr. Speaker, because I live and learn, I was not satisfied with that. So, after two sleepless nights I took it on my own and went and made sure that even if I was not responsible legally for any amount of money which might have been owing, I went and paid that money. I paid that money because I knew there were people who, at a future time, would be only too happy to hold that over my head in a political arena—like the Sword of Damocles. I realised that immediately.

I wrote a letter explaining why I was doing it. It was also very important to me that I bring a draft and not write a cheque, because even if they did not want to accept the money the draft would have been paid for. If they wanted to tear it up that was up to them, but I had paid for the draft.

You know, Mr. Speaker, when my wallets get a bit worn, usually my wife or someone has sympathy for me and buys me another. I still have an old wallet home with a copy of that draft in it. It is in the top drawer where I keep my socks.

So after all was said and done, Mr. Speaker, I said to myself, God knows, I wish something like that had not happened. Had I known about any such matter I would have dealt with it before it could have happened, because I know how life is in this beautiful, wonderful world we call politics.

My dream then switched right back to the election part of it. As I witnessed another meeting. . . and at that time I really was frightened. I did everything I possibly could to wake myself, but it just did not happen. It was like I was being told, You have to witness this. You have to understand how these people think. You have to understand their MO [modus operandi], and you have to understand what they do. You will never understand why they do it, but you have to understand what they do.

So I had to grin and bear it, and I witnessed another meeting. There was a certain document that was to be laid on the Table of this Honourable Legislative Assembly. The document was the report of a committee which had to meet to discuss another report and, legally speaking, that document and its contents are only supposed to refer to the document on which it is reporting, and whatever meetings and interviews that went on from that committee while dealing with the other document.

So that committee had met, and the report was given to the person who had to type it. The conscientious person that person is stayed and worked late that night to complete the document, because she was told it was going to be laid on the Table of the House the following morning. But, because God don' like ugly, I need to tell you what happened in the dream.

The document was conscientiously prepared, but during the night these serious power players figured out that they could stick some little thing in that document about that incident three years ago, and word it in such a way as to not mention anything about the payment that was made; not mention anything about the sequence of events, but they simply needed to stick that little thing in to, as my colleague, the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town in his famous words puts it, "besmirch" my character. They thought certain people would believe what they were trying to do, and would think that I was unworthy of being a representative of those people.

But by the time they got to do that, the document was completed, and two things happened quickly that morning: Although the document was already finished, the conscientious person who had prepared it was told, Listen, we forgot to put this paragraph in. And she, being the conscientious person she was, said, But the committee signed off on the report. And she was told, No, no, no, we had another meeting consequent to that—which never took place. The dream painted that whole thing out to me. That meeting did not take place! But she, being the conscientious person she is, had to take someone's word, so she put it in.

So they were very happy that day. They had scored a big deal—my friend just reminded me, something like a touchdown in football. They had scored a touchdown. Seven-nil the score was then.

Mr. Speaker, then something really funny happened. You see, that document, once tabled in this Honourable House, became a public document. When it was originally prepared by the very conscientious person, she passed it out to the outer office so by the time people would start clamouring for copies of this document, the people who work in the outer office would have been able to prepare the documents and have it ready.

Now in this whole process—and that's why God don' like ugly, Mr. Speaker—in all of this whole process we ended up with two documents. By some wistful twist of fate we ended up with two documents—not one, but two documents! That is what the dream said. The public was getting one document, which did not have that paragraph that was stuck in illegally, but the document that was tabled in this House had the illegal paragraph in it. Still, no one realised anything about it, Mr. Speaker.

And I thought I was going to wake up then. I said, Okay, I got it all now, I understand all of this. But the dream went on. And Mr. Speaker, it is funny how little things can happen. I, bemoaning myself, had the document that was tabled, because I am a Member. I sat amongst colleagues and I said, 'You know'—and I am still dreaming here now—I said, 'I really can't believe these people would stoop that low. Does it really mean that much to them, that that is the way they wish to play the game? Why can't they just be what we all should be? Whoever is elected is elected. Everyone remains friends, and we move on. Everyone gets on with their life.'

Some of my colleagues had come to the front office to get copies of this document, and while I am talking about this thing, one of them is looking through to see where it is, and the person says, 'But I don't know what you are talking about! I don't see anything like this in the document.' I said, 'Hold on a minute now.' And in the dream, Mr. Speaker, I found myself being able to look at one document which did not have that paragraph, and another document, which I had possession of from the time it was laid on the Table of the House, which did! And I could not understand it! And I wondered. I really couldn't understand it—that is why I couldn't wake up. The dream had to go on, because I had to understand what happened.

Mr. Roy Borden: You musta' sleep all night, man!

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Took a long time for the dream to complete itself, Mr. Speaker. But after all that, and pondering and wondering how this could have happened, I trailed it back to its source. Because I am truthful, and because I am known to be truthful, I simply went to the ladies and said, 'Listen. I have this and I have this. And this is different from this. What could have happened?' Then after everyone else pondered for a while, we finally understood what happened.

And me saying now, Mr. Speaker, that God don' like ugly, that is not original. That was what someone else said when they finally discovered what had happened.

What I ended up with in that dream was people directly involved in the process who were prepared to go to any lengths they believed they could get away with to seek advantage, without actually deserving it. And, Mr. Speaker, the Committee we are seeking to establish will let them think twice about such activities. But the dream just couldn't quite end like that. It is getting near to the end now. But it just couldn't end like that.

So election day comes about, and they think they have it all sewed up. They figure they have probably put another six feet of cement around the power base, and everything is fine and they will be able to go on to continue with what they want to do—such as, keeping people at bay, keeping people intimidated, keeping people frightened, keeping people fearful of their livelihoods if they don't bow to their whims and fancies...

The Speaker: Please do not impute intentions.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: That was a dream, Mr. Speaker, I am sorry, I will take that part out of the dream. I was just getting lost relating the dream as it happened. I am sorry.

But anyway, election day comes around, and while everyone is going to their various locations to vote, every time you see one of these people all you see is smiles. Happy, happy, happy. There is poor little old me, nervous as ever, resigning myself to the fact, Lord, if it is Your will that I be a representative of the people, then I ask you to guide me in the right way, that if I do become a representative, I will do the right things for them. But if it is Your will that I don't become one, I'll go home to my family, I'll walk the back yard, I'll go fishin' next day, clear my head, get on with it.

Took a while for the results to come in. They were all laughing, Mr. Speaker, but it didn't take long to understand that in that dream the smiles were slowly disappearing. And when it was all over the lesson in the learning is: If you do right, right will follow; if you don't do right, don't look for it to follow you. And Mr. Speaker, I happily woke up then. The dream was ended.

You know, I really didn't mean to bore the Members here with that dream, but I thought to relate the dream so that we will understand that as we seek to represent the people of this country we must never, ever go to lengths that we would not like anyone to do to us, to seek an advantage. That old-time saying about "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you," if we all lived by that code life would be so much better. Many of us would be so much happier, and the country would be better off. Because you know what happens to us, Mr. Speaker? We find ourselves in the decision-making process of what the business of this House is, we find ourselves dealing with it in such a fashion that the best interests of the people get lost. And it becomes, How do I make the other guy look bad? How do I work it around so that I can look the better person? because, politically, that is expedient.

That too will stop one day, Mr. Speaker. And more and more, I see individuals coming out of the woodwork, taking part in the process, who I am satisfied will not partake in the process in that fashion, neither given the chance, will they allow it to prevail. So, just before I go on, that dream became a reality. While I was dreaming that dream, it was only a dream, but everything that I said about that dream became a reality, so I can stand here today, having experienced it, Mr. Speaker, and say that the dream was true. Every bit of it, even the parts I haven't said. And I won't say them, don't worry, Mr. Speaker.

Just to get back to the motion—this motion is as important a motion as any other motion that has been brought to this House. It will determine in future the way the business of the country is handled. It will determine how well we perform as representatives. It will help to prevent rumours being spread that are only rumours. And as far as I am concerned, I think (and I cannot speak for all, but I can speak for those of us here on the Back Bench) that is the way we want it to be. We want to be good representatives of the people. We want to be satisfied that we are doing the job the way we should be; we want to be satisfied that we are transparent in our activities, that we are prepared to be accountable for our actions, and we, above all, would like the people we represent to be proud of us. The only way that can be achieved is by operating in such a way that we are totally open to scrutiny from all corners.

I commend the motion. Before I close, let me say it like this: If my dream changes the minds of Government, that is their problem. As far as we are concerned, they have accepted the intent of the motion. If they so choose, when we go to the vote, not to support the motion, they still lose, because what the motion wants to achieve is what the public of this country wants to achieve. So they now will have to decide whether they will do the wishes of the public, or whether they will go back to some of those old ways some of them have. Not all of them have it! I just hope it has not rubbed off too much. Mr. Speaker, I commend the motion, and I trust it will see safe passage. Thank you.

The Speaker: I shall now put the question on Private Member's Motion 3/98, the Establishment of a Standing Select Committee of Privileges, as twice amended. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The motion is passed.

AGREED: PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 3/98 AS TWICE AMENDED PASSED.

The Speaker: That concludes the business on the Order Paper for today. I would entertain a motion for the adjournment.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until Friday, March 27 at 10.00 AM. The reason for this, Mr. Speaker, there are several pieces of business left, but one of the main ones is the Pensions Law, which I understand a green paper would be circulated by that time, we would be able to complete everything then. We are still taking input from the public at this stage.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I just crave your indulgence to raise a matter on a point of clarity, Sir. There is still some outstanding business left, according to the Leader of Government Business, but I do not recall that ever being—certainly it is not on today's Order Paper, and it has not been formally given to Honourable Members on the Back Bench.

The Speaker: There are some reports and other things pending. I shall put the question that this House do now adjourn until Friday, 27 March at 10.00 AM. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House do stand adjourned until Friday, 27 March at 10.00 AM.

AT 12.26 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM FRIDAY, 27 MARCH 1998.

EDITED
FRIDAY
27 MARCH 1998
11. 07 AM

The Speaker: Prayers by the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Queen Elizabeth II, her heirs and successors according to law, so help me God.

PRAYERS

Hon. John B. McLean: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived: We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth, that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly, that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy great name's sake.

Let us say the Lord's Prayer together: Our Father, who art in heaven, hallowed be Thy name. Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us. Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace, now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed.

Item number 2 on today's Order Paper, Administration of Oaths or Affirmations. The Oath of Allegiance to be taken by Mr. Samuel Bulgin to be the Honourable Acting Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Mr. Bulgin, would you come forward to the Clerk's table?

ADMINISTRATION OF OATHS OR AFFIRMATIONS

OATH OF ALLEGIANCE

Mr. Samuel Bulgin

Hon. Samuel Bulgin: I, Samuel Bulgin, do swear that I will be faithful and bear true allegiance to Her Majesty

The Speaker: Please take your seat as the Acting Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration. You are welcomed to this Chamber for your period of service.

READING BY THE SPEAKER OF MESSAGES AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: We have apologies for absence from the Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration who is overseas on official business.

Item number 4, Presentation of Papers and Reports. The Agricultural and Industrial Development Board Report for the year ending 31 December 1996. The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

PRESENTATION OF PAPERS AND REPORTS

THE AGRICULTURAL AND INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT BOARD REPORT FOR THE YEAR ENDING 31 DECEMBER 1996

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I beg to lay on the Table of this Honourable House the Agricultural and Development Board Report for the year ending 31 December 1996.

The Speaker: So ordered. Do you wish to speak to it?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Just to say that the 1996 Report has set out in considerable detail the transactions and business of the Agricultural and Industrial Development Board (AIDB), and shows that it had a fairly active year, dealing with matters relating to loans that can properly be made under that Board. I would like to thank the staff who dealt with that, and all the members of the Board for their work during 1996, and continuing.

The Speaker: The draft Bill—The Health Practitioners Bill, 1998. The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

DRAFT BILL

THE HEALTH PRACTITIONERS BILL, 1998

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: I beg to lay on the Table of this Honourable House the Draft Bill for a Law to provide for the establishment of a Council for doctors and dentists, nurses and midwives and professions allied with medicine; to provide for the registration of members of those professions and for regulating their professional education and conduct; to repeal the Health Practitioners Law (1995 Revision) also the Pharmacy Law, 1991, and for connected purposes.

The Speaker: So ordered. Do you wish to speak to it?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

For ease of reference, I shall refer throughout this statement to the Draft Health Practitioners Bill, 1998, rather than using the lengthy title of the Bill itself. I also request Members of this Honourable House to note that what is tabled in this House today is a draft for discussion purposes, and that I intend, after today, to publish the Draft Bill to give the professional associations concerned an opportunity to comment and provide feedback on the contents. I also intend to present, at the next meeting of this Honourable House in June 1998, regulations to accompany the relevant aspects of this Bill.

Honourable Members are asked to give consideration to the Draft Health Practitioners Bill, 1998. This proposed Bill will replace the twenty-four year old Health Practitioners Law, revised in 1995, which is no longer effective to regulate the modern provision of healthcare services by health practitioners in the Cayman Islands. The Bill will ensure that the health of the public is protected and promoted through more detailed and sophisticated regulation of health professionals.

In place of the Health Practitioners Board regulating all health professionals, as is done under the existing Law, there will be three Councils. Doctors and dentists will be registered by the Medical and Dental Council; nurses and midwives by the Nurses and Midwifery Council; and all other health professionals, such as opticians, physiotherapists, and counsellors will be registered by the Council for Professions Allied With Medicine.

Each of the three Councils will be responsible for ensuring that only properly qualified and experienced health professionals are permitted to provide healthcare services in the Cayman Islands. The members of each of the Councils will be appointed from among the health professions for which each Council will be responsible. As well as regulating who can provide healthcare services, the Councils will be responsible for promoting professional education, giving advice on ethics, and ensuring that good professional conduct is maintained. Professional misconduct could result in suspension or removal from registration if that was required to protect the public. Rights of appeal will ensure that only decisions in the public interest are taken by the Councils.

After the new Councils have been established, there will be a period of six months for health practitioners registered under the old Law to apply for registration in accordance with the requirements provided in section 5 of the draft Bill. Existing registered health practitioners will need to satisfy their new Council that they have had sufficient training and practical experience in their profession to enable them to continue to practice their profession competently and safely.

In addition, each Council will keep one register for each of the different healthcare professions for which the Council is responsible, and every register will contain four lists. For example, the principal list of the doctors' register will contain the names of the doctors who are judged by the Council to be properly qualified, and who are Caymanian or otherwise lawfully able to practise as doctors in the Islands. The visiting practitioners' list of each register will contain the names of the healthcare professionals who visit the islands for short periods to supplement the normally available range of health services.

The two other lists in each register will be the overseas list and the professional list. The overseas list will contain the names of the expatriate doctors, nurses, and so on, who are judged as being properly qualified and experienced to work in their profession, and who want to do so but cannot work in the Islands as they have not obtained a work permit. The provisional list for each health profession will allow the Councils to identify future Caymanian doctors, nurses and others and indicate what further training and qualifications they need.

The Draft Health Practitioners Bill also provides for the certification of private healthcare facilities by the Councils. The Chief Medical officer will also have the right to enter and inspect the healthcare facility to ensure that it is being maintained in a condition suitable to the purposes for which a certificate has been granted.

At present there is no provision for the inspection, nor clinical validation, of healthcare facilities in the private sector. As an example, there is no provision under the present Law for inspection of dangerous drugs records in private pharmacies throughout the Islands. Additionally, the Minister for Health regularly receives inquiries and in some cases formal requests to authorise the setting up of private healthcare facilities in the Cayman Islands. With the increasingly modern healthcare facilities in these Islands, and our peaceful way of life, we will be attracting more and more interest in setting up specialist facilities in the private sector. It is therefore wise to make the necessary legislative provision at this time.

Clause 30 of the draft Bill contains provisions to protect the public from people who falsely or fraudulently claim to be registered health practitioners. It will be an offence to practise as a health practitioner unless properly registered by the appropriate Council. It will also be an offence to obstruct the Council by refusing to give it documents or other information required by the Council to carry out its functions under the Law. The relationship between the Council and Government is specified in section 3(5) and allows for the Governor-in-Council at the request of any of the Councils to make, if he so chooses, provisions with respect to the matters dealt with in relation to that Council by Schedule 2, which deals with the Constitution, the general proceedings and so forth of the Council.

In Schedule 2, Part II, under "Proceedings of the Councils Generally," section 5(7) provides for a copy of the minutes of each Council as confirmed by the Chairman to be sent to the Minister responsible for Health for his general information. This practice is already in effect, though not a requirement of the present Health Practitioners Law. The role of the Minister responsible for Health is limited as set forth in Part II of Schedule 1 under section 5(4) to direct any Council to call a meeting of that Council and that direction must include a statement of agenda proposed for the meeting.

These are sensible provisions. Whereas the Minister for the time responsible for Health may not interfere in the work of the Council, he will be kept informed of its decisions. Equally sensible is the provision made in section 32 for the Governor-in-Council to have default powers if, at any time, it appears that a Council has failed to perform any duty, exercise any power, or do any act or thing imposed on, vested in, or authorised to be done by the Council.

It is expected that in this way the Governor-in-Council will be able to intervene in an effective manner if it appears that the Councils are in some way departing from the spirit of the Law so that the rights of the public as well as the health practitioner will be preserved as much as possible. The Draft Health Practitioners Bill has the support of the present Health Practitioners Board which is charged to perform similar functions, although they are much more limited under the 1974 Law (1995 Revision).

Representatives of the other health professions have participated in the drafting of the Bill. Following the tabling today, the Draft Bill will be circulated to the Cayman Islands Medical and Dental Society, also the Cayman Islands Nurses Association and they, and representatives of the other health professions will be invited, yet again, to comment on the draft. The wider public will also be invited to comment on the proposed provisions.

The Draft Bill, as proposed, is part of the framework for the better provision of healthcare into the next century, and is intended to ensure the best possible healthcare within the Cayman Islands. There are several improvements to the present Health Practitioners Law, two of which are set out as follows: 1) The deliberations of the present Health Practitioners Board are completely confidential and the Board is totally autonomous with little or no input from the Governor-in-Council; and 2) Government healthcare professionals are specifically excluded from disciplinary proceedings by the Health Practitioners Board.

It is expected that they will be dealt with under the Public Service Commission Regulations. Unfortunately, those regulations say very little about good clinical practice or medical ethics. This will change with the passage of the Law as proposed in the draft Bill.

Members of this Honourable House are requested to give consideration to The Draft Health Practitioners Bill, 1998, which is tabled today, and to advise my Ministry of any concerns they may have. I look forward to giving the Draft Bill full publicity and receiving feedback from all interested and concerned individuals and organisations. In our customary way, I will make whatever amendments to the Draft that are necessary and reasonable.

Mr. Speaker, and Members of this Honourable House, I thank you for the opportunity you have afforded me today to share with you the more significant aspects of this most important piece of legislation.

The Speaker: Item number 5 on today's Order Paper, Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. Before I move the first question, I will entertain a motion to suspend Standing Order 23 (7) & (8) to enable Question Time to continue after 11 o'clock.

The First Elected Member for George Town.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 23 (7) & (8)

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I so move, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: I beg to second that.

The Speaker: The question is that Standing Order 23 (7) and (8) be suspended to enable Question Time to continue. I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 23(7) AND (8) SUSPENDED.

The Speaker: Question 48 is standing in the name of the First Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION 48

No. 48: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation, What is the anticipated staff complement of the new George Town Hospital upon completion?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: The anticipated staff complement of the new George Town Hospital is 544.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister give us a breakdown of that staff complement in the various departments?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: I do not have that on hand, but I promise the Members of this Honourable House a copy of it.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Based on the anticipated staff complement of 544, can the Honourable Minister say what the recurrent personal emolument cost of that staff complement will be once it is completed?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: I think that was in the question the last time. I do not have those figures with me, but I can get it for him. Again, it was in a question I answered last week.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Can the Honourable Minister say how the recruitment process was carried out? Was it advertised, or did a group visit different countries to recruit employees?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Personnel recruitment for the hospital services is done through the Public Service Commission. It is done locally, regionally, and overseas if necessary.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Boddén: Can the Honourable Minister say what number out of this 544 is currently in place?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Currently in place there are 459.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: I wonder if the Honourable Minister could say whether or not he has been advised the Hospital is presently over staffed?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: This one floors me, Mr. Speaker! In our recruitment through last year, we were trying to bring the staff up to a standard that had been so way behind for a long time. This has been looked into by senior managers. We have looked at this with an eagle's eye and if we are going to provide new services going into the new hospital—moving from 69 beds to almost 130 beds—we have to prepare for this eventuality. We cannot wait until we move in there to do this recruitment.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: The Honourable Minister really did not answer the question. I would like to continue by saying that since a large amount of the work seems to be done by private practitioners as well, can the Minister say, if he knows, how many persons are involved in the medical field on the Island at the moment?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: I would have to get a breakdown. I do not have that right now.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Boddén: Can the Honourable Minister say when we might expect the remaining 94 staff members to be coming on line, and what categories they fall into?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: This encompasses all areas of the services provided in the Hospital. The exact figures are in the breakdown, but it will encompass this year and next year to bring it to the figure stated.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Taking into consideration that we have a new Hospital coming on line which we boast to be one of the finest in the Caribbean, which means we need to attract the right calibre of qualified personnel, I wonder if the Minister can say if he is comfortable with the level of, should I say, salaries and benefits being made available? Will this attract persons of the right calibre, or do we need some adjustments in this area?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: I am going to be truthful. With the slave hours that some of the doctors and nurses have to put in, they could never be adequately paid, but under the system we try to do our best, and we recruit to the best of our ability. That is why we have to go, not only regionally, but to far away places, like Europe and other places.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, we realise the importance of the medical profession, but we also realise that the Minister has surprised us with a very large demand for recurrent expenditure, and a lot of this has to do with staff costs. I was wondering if the Minister could say if in any section of the Hospital there is a feeling at this time that it could be overstaffed? I am looking at surgery, emergency, any area we might be getting the feeling that people are sitting by and not having sufficient activities with which to occupy themselves, and whether or not this could be related to the fact that we do not have the full operation in flow?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: No. As I have said, this has been looked at. I do not think it should surprise anyone in this Honourable House. Over the last two years, these posts have been requested and approved by this Legislative Assembly, and in the Finance Committee we have put forward the justification. I do not know what else I can say, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, just one more point to make it clear for future reference: Is the Minister saying that he has no knowledge at this time that there is a possibility that the Hospital is overstaffed?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: No. But as I have said, the Hospital will be fully occupied later on this year. We cannot wait until we occupy it to bring in the staff. Maybe at this time, this specific time to the lead-up, but we are not bringing these people in until we need them.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Minister tell the House how the anticipated staff complement compares with the staff complement under the old system which is now being replaced?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation. After this, I will allow two additional supplementaries on this question.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: If the Honourable Member could clarify what the old system was, I could give him the year 1997. In 1997, the staffing was 442.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. To shift the line of questioning a bit, can the Honourable Minister state, bearing in mind the new demands for qualified staffing at the new Hospital, if there is any initiative being put forward by whichever agency is so required, to try to attract Caymanians, either locally or overseas, for training to fill the gaps coming up? If I may quickly explain what I mean by this: We recognise that initially there will not be trained Caymanians for these posts, but we would like to see some type of initiative that would point out the needs the Hospital will have in various departments so that people coming out of school, who are so inclined and need career guidance, may know what these needs are, and can then be headed in that direction.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: That is an excellent question. We are working very closely with the high school, the Education Council, the Community College, and the Senior Nursing Officer goes in and has talks, and other people from the Health Services, encouraging our Caymanians to take part in the development of our health services. I feel confident that once the Hospital comes into full operation, many young Caymanians will be proud to take up the flag and fly it in the Hospital.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Honourable Minister say if there is any plan to set up a Health Services Authority? A complement of 544 staff falling directly under the financial responsibility of the Government is bound to be a direct and significant increase to the recurrent expenditure. Are any plans in place to set up a Health Services Authority, so central Government will not have a direct responsibility for these recurrent expenditures?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Absolutely. Those who have had the opportunity to read the National Strategic Plan for Health will see that it is advocated there. At this time, we are not in a position to deal with the Health Services Authority, but in the future we will deal with it as it comes on line. Because of the amount of recruiting we do, one of the suggestions put forward under the reinvention of Government, to expedite the process of recruiting in such a crucial area, was that the Health Services have its own personnel department.

The Speaker: Moving to Question 49, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 49

No. 49: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation to provide a breakdown, by post and nationality, of each staff member specifically hired to staff the new Hospital to date.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: A list of the posts and nationality of each staff member hired up to 28 February 1998 to staff the new Hospital is provided in the attachment (see Appendix).

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Would the Honourable Minister say if a decision has been taken by the Health Services Department to discontinue the employment of West Indian staff at the new Hospital?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: There has been absolutely no decision made in that respect. We advertise and recruit regionally. The only policy I advocate is that we get the best trained personnel to fill the various vacant posts, and because of our significant investment in health services, and for the good of these Islands, I maintain that stand.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Since it is obvious from the information the Honourable Member gave us that British persons are the largest nationality group here, is the Minister saying that qualified persons can only be found in that jurisdiction at this time?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: No, Mr. Speaker. Briefly looking at the nationalities, ten are British, nine are Caymanian or Caymanian connections, and five are from the region.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I wish to ascertain that the list provided by the Honourable Minister is exhaustive and inclusive of all the staff hired for the new Hospital to date. Is the Minister saying that this list is exhaustive—meaning 544 minus this number represents the staff in the old facility?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: These posts were specifically put in for the new Hospital. There are many more [microphone off].

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Regarding the professional side of the staff, that is, the doctors, nurses, etc., can you say if there is now in place a system for the continuing professional education? I realise that this is being considered under the new Health Practitioners Law, but I wonder if there is any in place at this time?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes. The Honourable Member is right, it is in place at this time, and we will be expanding as we go forward.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Is the Minister saying that once applicants are professionally qualified, never mind where they come from and the post is open, they will be hired?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: There are certain restrictions as set out by the Health Practitioners Board. Wherever possible Caymanians will be recruited, but as I have stated earlier in this House, there are certain regions that have to be accepted and qualified, mainly, and I will state, the United Kingdom, Canada, the United States and Jamaica.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: I am trying to find out from the Minister—because when we look at how few people there are, with the exception of Caymanians, from the region involved in this first list, if this list is a reflection of the nationality of the additional hundred-odd people to be hired to complete the staff complement at the Hospital—is this indicative of the nationality of persons who will be hired?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: No, this is not the complete list.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Perhaps the Minister could expound on the methods used to recruit staff.

The Speaker: Could you turn it around into a question, please?

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I asked if the Minister could expound, I thought that was a question. Would the Honourable Minister please say what method is used in employing or recruiting staff from overseas, and how is it decided where the recruiting is done?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Once again, this is done through the Public Service Commission. It is done regionally and then overseas as necessary. Mainly the experience and qualifications of the person applying for the position are looked at.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Is it safe to assume that when recruitment is done regionally, if no suitable persons are found within that area the recruitment process is extended further?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: That is absolutely correct.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: I wonder if the Minister could say whether, according to statistics or information available to him, the recruitment of staff from the United Kingdom causes the recurrent expenditure at the Hospital to be higher than if the recruitment was concentrated in the region.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: The only significant increase would be the airfare. The other benefits and emoluments would be the same.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Is the Minister saying that there are no additional incentives offered to medical personnel coming in from the United Kingdom?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: He is correct.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, we move on to Question 50, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION 50

No. 50: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs when the current employment contract for the Chief Education Officer will expire?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: The Chief Education Officer is currently on a three-year contract which expires on 7 July 2000.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable First Official Member state when the Chief Education Officer was originally employed?

To clarify the question, I am trying to determine if this contract is a renewal of a previous contract, or an initial contract.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: This is not the first contract, it is certainly at least the second contract.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Could the Honourable First Official Member state if, at present, there are any moves to have a Caymanian understudy for the Chief Education Officer placed in a position so that when this contract expires there will be a Caymanian ready and prepared to take over the job?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I know it is Government's intention to look at localising this post after the contract of the present Chief Education Officer expires, but I am not in a position to comment on an understudy at the moment.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. As the Honourable First Official Member knows, my questions are not directed at him but at the principle of what I am trying to get at. The next question I wish to ask is, How is it physically possible for the Government to find itself in this position of blatant lack of succession planning with this three-year renewal, when there was not even a post of Deputy put in place for either of the first two contracts so that we may now find ourselves with a Caymanian to fill the post? A school-leaver could have been trained from the start of the original contract to be equipped to take over the job!

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: It is my understanding that the organisation of the Education Department will be reviewed this year, and, subject to that review, the post of Deputy may or may not be re-established. On the matter of a Caymanian understudy for the post of Chief Education Officer, I would be willing to give an undertaking to provide an answer to that in writing, if he so wishes.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: If I understood the Honourable Member correctly, he said this is a second contract for the Chief Education Officer. Did I understand that correctly? My question to the Honourable Member is, Was any attempt made to fill this position with a Caymanian prior to the renewal of this contract? And what procedure took place in advertising this position to encourage Caymanians to apply?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: I do not have that information here with me. I simply do not recall what was done at the last recruitment. Again, I could undertake to get that answer in writing.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, Question Number 51 is standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 51

No. 51: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs what steps have been taken to ensure that all purchases made by Prison staff with public funds fall into the category of legitimate Prison needs?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: The following steps have been taken to ensure that all purchases made by Prison staff with public funds fall into the category of legitimate Prison needs:

1. All purchases must be requisitioned by staff through their Head of Section.
2. The Head of Section will recommend the purchase if he is satisfied with the request.
3. The requisition is then given to the storekeeper who will have the purchase authorised if he does not have the requested items in store.
4. Items purchased are delivered to the storekeeper.
5. Persons using items keep a record of where or how they are used.

This procedure is in compliance with the Auditor General's recommendations.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries? The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Honourable Member say if the practice of using the bland descriptions on invoices, namely "goods" and "merchandise," has been discontinued and replaced by a practice which specifically names and itemises the goods and items purchased?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Yes, I can assure the Member that the generic description has now been changed, and specifics are recorded instead.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Apart from what the Honourable Member has outlined in the substantive answer, can he say how this system is, for lack of a better word, policed, to ensure that the recommendations put in place are continued, and that there is no breakdown, or a resorting to the old practices? Is there a specific officer responsible for examining this system? What procedure is in place?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Yes, both the Internal Audit unit, which will look at specific areas from time to time, and of course the Auditor General's office, will be looking at this procedure, among other things, to see that it has been followed.

The Speaker: Any further supplementaries? The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Is the Honourable Member in a position to tell the House whether any restitution was made, or has been ordered, in cases where the Auditor General commented that the practices were not in keeping with legitimate Prison needs?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The matter of restitution is under consideration, and I am unable to comment further on it at this time.

The Speaker: Any further supplementaries? If not, we will move to Question 52, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION 52

No. 52: Mr. Linford A. Pierson asked the Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works to state the average monthly revenue received by Government from Cable and Wireless (Cayman) Ltd under the franchise agreement.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The 1997 average monthly revenue received by Government from Cable and Wireless (Cayman) Ltd under the franchise agreement is approximately CI$573,434.46.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries? The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: A quick calculation suggests that it is something like $6.9 million a year. Can the Honourable Minister state if this is specifically earmarked, or is it just going into general revenue at this point?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. It is not earmarked, but goes directly into revenue. It is collected through my Ministry and handed over to the Financial Secretary, who deposits it with the Treasury.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: This is slightly off the substantive question, but maybe the Honourable Member is in a position to answer. I wonder if he could say if anything is being done to address the problems which seem to exist regarding the very high cost of services now being provided under the franchise agreement.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. As the Member is aware, the franchise is in place, and Government has continually been in negotiations with Cable & Wireless. I must say we have had co-operation from them regarding trying to work out the problem with high rates, especially in the Sister Islands where it is more costly than it is here in Grand Cayman. So yes, it is an ongoing thing, and it is my intention to continue.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Could the Honourable Minister tell the House when this franchise agreement expires?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: I do not have the exact date here. I can say that it was a franchise for twenty-five years. I just do not recall the exact date, and I would rather not mislead the House.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, that concludes Question Time for today. Item number 6 on today's Order Paper, a Statement by the Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

STATEMENTS BY HONOURABLE MEMBERS/MINISTERS

INTERIM BUS DEPOT TO BE SITUATED ADJACENT TO THE GEORGE TOWN LIBRARY

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The title of the statement is "Interim Bus Depot to be situated adjacent to the George Town Library."

Honourable Members of the Legislative Assembly will be aware that a directive was issued to the Public Transport Board in November of last year. In line with that directive, the Public Transport Board is currently compiling a long-term plan for public transportation. Ultimately, this will include the construction and implementation of a fully-operational bus depot located next to the Public Library in George Town. The vision is that this depot will have the necessary amenities such as restrooms, snack machines, concession stands, and a properly covered waiting area with seating. It will provide a facility whereby public transport can be viewed as a viable alternative form of transportation. However, in view of the current pressing need for a facility in which bus operators can provide safe and efficient transport service to the public, a plan for an interim bus depot has been developed.

This depot is to be located adjacent to the intended site of the fully operational depot, and will be put into operation by early May 1998. The interim bus depot will provide a temporary solution to the problem while the permanent facility is being designed and developed. It will provide, for the first time, the means by which our public transportation system can be organised to offer a credible service to the public. It is intended that buses travelling to Bodden Town, East End and North Side will have separate loading areas from those travelling to West Bay. The facility will promote fairness among bus operators, while providing a clear system for buses to load and depart, based on their order of arrival.

The estimated cost of this interim measure is $13,000. Since the proposed site has a temporary surface, the majority of this cost will be the result of properly paving the site. This improvement is necessary to ensure that reasonable standards are maintained for the public, particularly during the rainy periods.

In making plans to develop the fully operational depot, every effort will be made to maximise the benefits from the expenditure on the interim facility. The public can also look forward, in the not-too-distant future, to the implementation of bus routes, with buses being licensed to operate specified routes, with specified departure and arrival times. Bus stops will also be introduced as part of this plan.

Finally, I wish to thank Honourable Members of the Legislative Assembly for their continued support with this national issue.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker?

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Under Standing Order 30(2), I wonder if you would permit some Short Questions?

The Speaker: I will allow some brief questions.

SHORT QUESTIONS Standing Order 30(2)

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I wonder if the Minister could tell the House where the interim and permanent depots will be located?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Both facilities will be in the area known as the old Public Works Compound, just behind the Library. The interim measure will be more to the south of the Public Library, I would say next door to the CIBC building.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Honourable Minister say how much space these depots will take up in that area?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: The area to be used at present was previously one huge slab of concrete north of the CIBC building, within the Compound. That slab of concrete has been removed, it has been chip-and-sprayed, and that is the area we will be using at the present time. We do not have a final plan for the entire facility, but there are a number of concepts. The layout of the whole parking area has been looked at in terms of trying to minimise any loss of space to private persons who park there on a daily basis. We are looking at something of a half-moon shape, where you come in on one end, nearest to the Town Hall, and you come out on the other end, nearest to CIBC, in that sort of shape.

Basically the concept—there are more than one, but this is one concept—would minimise any significant use of space that would take away from private parking. But I believe it is in the best interests of the Government and the travelling public, as well as pedestrians, to move the omnibuses presently lined up alongside the Bank of Nova Scotia building on Edward Street, which in some cases have caused very near accidents. That is the reason for pressing on with this interim measure.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I wonder if the Honourable Minister can say what steps are being taken to licence those operators between the districts? To be able to accommodate the number of buses there, you are going to have to restrict it somehow. I wonder if he can say what is being done to legally authorise those persons who provide that service?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I might be mistaken, but one paragraph of my statement reads, “The public can also look forward, in the not-too-distant future, to the implementation of bus routes, with buses being licensed to operate specified routes, with specified departure and arrival times.” I believe that this is in the works. We have not finalised any matters on this yet. We do not have a recommendation yet from the Public Transport Board, and to cause some awareness in this area, we are basically making this point at this time.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I wonder if the Minister could say if there has been any discussion with the Ministry of Culture on this proposed depot, seeing that there were plans for Library expansion, and one of the ideas for that expansion was to develop on some of the property?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, the concept I mentioned does not really interfere with any possible extension to the east of the Library. It is some distance away from the Library.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Minister say who will assume responsibility for the maintenance and upkeep of the proposed facility?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: If the Honourable Member is talking about the full bus depot, we have not worked out those details yet. We are talking about the interim area now, which really is hot-mixed, to avoid the public having to step in water during the rainy season. That does not need further care at this time. But I understand where he is leading.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker, I have one final supplementary. Can the Minister say if, by awarding of licenses, that also means a franchise, so that when the licensee has a route that person will be responsible for operating a schedule, etc., and if in the awarding of these licenses, any consideration is going to be given to groups of people who form themselves into co-ops? Or is there a preference for individual operators?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I understand the Honourable Member's question. I believe that when we have a technical committee trying to make a decision on the matter, we should not ourselves handcuff them by the Minister giving some response that kind of stops them from thinking about it in the global sense and coming back with a recommendation. I do undertake to call a meeting of the Members of this Honourable House informally, to brief them as to the direction the Public Transport Board is recommending, prior to coming to the House for any implementation.

The Speaker: It is my understanding that we will adjourn at this time. I would entertain a motion for the adjournment.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until next Monday at 10.00 AM. I understand that Members would like more time to look at the National Pensions (Amendment) Bill, 1998.

The Speaker: The question is that this House do now adjourn until 10.00 AM on Monday, 30 March 1998. I will put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House do stand adjourned until 10.00 AM Monday.

AT 12.21 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM MONDAY, 30 MARCH 1998.

EDITED
MONDAY
30 MARCH 1998
12.30 PM

The Speaker: Prayers by the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

PRAYERS

Hon. James M. Ryan: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived: We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth, that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly, that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy great name's sake.

Let us say the Lord's Prayer together: Our Father, who art in heaven, hallowed be Thy name. Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us. Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace, now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed.

READING BY THE SPEAKER OF MESSAGES AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: We have apologies from the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Development, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture, the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport, the Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works, and the Honourable Minister for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation who will all be arriving later this morning.

I apologise for the late start this morning, but I have been advised that it is the wish of the House that proceedings be suspended until 2.45 PM.

The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I am alarmed at this turn of events. I have said before that the business of democracy in this country is being misconstrued. The business of the country must emanate from the Parliament to the Glass House, and not from the Glass House to the Parliament. I think it behoves anyone who is responsible to speak out at this turn of events this morning. Official Members of this Parliament can speak for themselves.

I saw a resource person who came, I assume, to render some technical expertise and advice to the Minister of Education and Aviation. Earlier I saw the Minister of Agriculture here. There were other elected Members of the Backbench. There was no official word from either the Leader of Government Business or the elected Executive Council, who are responsible for the day-to-day affairs of this country in the Parliament. Clearly, that is not good enough. I hope that the people who elect us make clearly known their displeasure. I would also hope that the media live up to its role by castigating this kind of behaviour, because it is a subversion of democracy, and contempt in the highest order.

Cognisant of the fact that we were involved in some technical and delicate discussions regarding some amendments and changes that we on the Backbench want to see included in the Bill at hand, I have to caution against this extensive boiler-room deal-making. This House was constructed at great expense for Members to air their positions on the open floor and also at the Committee stages. I note that someone (who I will not identify at this point) is encouraging boiler-room deal making. It is a danger to parliamentary democracy. We on the Backbench were burned recently when a statement was put out by the Government Information Service of which we had no knowledge, and certainly did not give our approval to.

These things have to cease! This is the House of politics, and the people's business must be discussed here at this point before it is taken to the Glass House. Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I would like to state my displeasure with the delay in the start of the House this morning. I was not aware that I would come here and have to wait for two and a half hours before getting down to the business that I am paid to do here.

I also am getting to the point where I think we need to not refer to 'Government' and 'Backbench.' I think we need to refer to people on the Backbench by their individual titles, because I do not want anyone to believe they have the right to negotiate with the Government for me. I was sent here as an independent, and if anyone is going to make a decision to speak with Members of the Government regarding a position being debated in this House I feel it is necessary that I at least be given the opportunity to decide whether or not I accept that representation.

Too often I come to this Parliament with the idea that I need to be here at 9.00 AM. I was here at 9.00, and it is a long time to wait around without anyone actually giving any kind of explanation as to what is taking place. I believe there must be more respect for Members' time—at least for this Member's (the Fourth Elected Member for George Town) time!

I am going to begin to talk more about my position rather than the Backbench position, because I am not in the frame of mind to see things that should be debated upon the floor of this House taken to the Glass House by some Member of the so-called Backbench who has decided he represents my views. I would like to make it abundantly clear again that my views are best expressed by me; and when the time comes I will express my views on the floor of this House regarding this particular Pension amendment. I want nothing to do with what might have transpired this morning at the Glass House between the Third Elected Member for George Town and the Leader of Government Business.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Mr. Speaker, on a point of procedure, I thought you adjourned until 2.30?

The Speaker: Until 2.45.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Until 2.45?

The Speaker: We will suspend proceedings until 2.45.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Mr. Speaker, we have waited two and a half hours. And it is with no disrespect to the Chair, because I know you were concerned as well, but I too want to link myself with the sentiments that have been raised here regarding the handling of Parliament. This is not the way to run business. I will have more to say when I find out exactly what is going on, because now I do not know what is going on.

My position is well known on these amendments. If we come back at 2.45, it is likely to be another fifteen or twenty minutes before we get back into Parliament again. It just can't be right! We have our affairs to conduct as well. It is a tremendous waste of time. Thank you very much.

As I said, Mr. Speaker, I want to assure you that it is with no disrespect to you that we rise on these matters this afternoon.

The Speaker: I would like to add further that I was advised that the House would be in a position to resume at 2.30 after the suspension. Taking cognisance of what you have just said, I chose 2.45 to be on the safe side. At this time we will suspend until 2.45.

AT 12.30 PM, PROCEEDINGS WERE SUSPENDED UNTIL 2.45 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 3.30 PM

The Speaker: Proceedings are resumed. Item number 2 on today's Order Paper, Presentation of Papers and Reports, The Traffic Ticket (Amendment) Regulations, 1998. The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

PRESENTATION OF PAPERS AND REPORTS

THE TRAFFIC TICKET (AMENDMENT) REGULATIONS, 1998

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I beg to lay on the Table of this Honourable House the Traffic Ticket (Amendment) Regulations, 1998.

The Speaker: So ordered. Do you wish to speak to it?

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The sole reason for the amendment to the Traffic Ticket Regulations is that the current Regulations, which speak of fines for various speeding infractions, prescribe that the fine for exceeding the speed limit by up to ten miles per hour is $100. The problem with the amendment is in the second line where it says, "for every ten miles per hour, another $100." The question has been asked, What is the correct fine where the offender was exceeding the speed limit by, say, a further five miles per hour?

The proposed amendment will clear up this ambiguity and set out in clear form a prescribed fine with reference to the speed at which an offender is found to be travelling. In clause 2 of the Regulations, under the heading, "TR.21 TRAFFIC LAW 1991" the words "Fine: (a) up to 10 m.p.h. $100; and (b) for every further 10 m.p.h. $100; and (c) maximum fine $500;" are repealed, substituting the following words: "Fine: (a) 1-10 m.p.h. in excess of the speed limit, $100; (b) 11-20 m.p.h. in excess of the speed limit, $200;" and so on. So it clarifies more specifically the fine if you are caught speeding.

The Speaker: Item number 3 on today's Order Paper, Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. Before going to Question Time, I would entertain a motion for the suspension of Standing Order 23(7) and (8) so we can take questions after 11.00 AM.

The Third Elected Member for George Town.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 23 (7) & (8)

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, I move that the relevant Standing Order be suspended so we may take questions.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, at this late hour, I guess we will have to agree. I second the motion.

The Speaker: The motion has been moved and seconded. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED. STANDING ORDER 23(7) AND (8) SUSPENDED.

The Speaker: Question Number 53, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for West Bay.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION 53

No. 53: Mr. W. McKeeva Bush asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works what plans the Government has for improving the traffic flow on the West Bay Road.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: This is constantly under study, and the Public Works Department has identified right-turning traffic on to and off of West Bay Road as the major cause of the delay to through-moving traffic. The recently completed right turn lane is intended to reduce these delays. Other improvements are possible but depend on the detailed survey of existing sidewalks, driveways, buildings and other features along the road.

The Public Works Department (PWD) and Lands & Survey Department are currently gathering information for the entire West Bay Road from Eastern Avenue to Willie Farrington Drive. PWD will formulate a schedule of further proposed improvements and provide estimated costs. Thus far, the route has been identified from Lawrence Blvd. westward, with various exits and entrances on the way. The extension could take the road to Indies Suites.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I wonder if the Honourable Minister can say how far he is with the investigation regarding the information provided in the second paragraph.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: As I mentioned earlier, the study is ongoing and we are progressing well. As soon as we have something in place, I will no doubt come back to the House and acquaint Members with what is taking place. We do see what we are doing as a solution to the problem we are having.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Could the Honourable Minister state if, in the direction he has mentioned in the substantive answer, any road corridors have been identified so far, or gazetted?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The last paragraph states, "The extension could take the road to Indies Suites." The corridor runs from the present Lawrence Blvd. right behind Indies Suites.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: For purposes of clarity, has this corridor been gazetted?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: The corridor has not yet been gazetted, but it has been identified.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister state at what time this identification was made?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: As I mentioned, it is an ongoing study by Public Works Department. It has been a recommendation by that Department, and as soon as Government takes a decision, it will be gazetted. Hopefully we will find the funds to build it.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Just to make sure the Honourable Minister does not misunderstand the line of questioning, I am just trying to ascertain some facts. Can the Minister state how long ago the recommendation was made regarding this road corridor?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: The matter is before Executive Council. I am not privy to bring that information.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, can the Minister say whether the plans for improving traffic flow are exclusive to the West Bay Road, or is there a wider consideration? If so, can he tell the House what considerations are being given?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. As the Member is aware, on another occasion I answered in this House that there were plans for the Crewe Road Bypass going eastward. There has been no change. The only thing is, I have not been given the money yet (in the Public Works Department) to go ahead with the road. But I stated here, in answer to an earlier question, that we would be looking at the road going east, which would entail the Crewe Road Bypass and a third lane on the Spotts Straight, as it is referred to, which would assist the traffic coming into Town to filter into the different directions.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Honourable Minister say what relationship the announced study by the Minister for Tourism has with the information he has given the House today in the substantive answer?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: If the Member could perhaps elaborate on that, I do not know what he is talking about. As far as I am concerned, I know what I have stated. I do not know what he is talking about with the Minister for Tourism. I presume it is something to do with transportation.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, I am referring to the study dealing with traffic flow, among other things, that was announced by the Minister for Tourism, and the proposed extension to the Harquail Bypass, as announced by the Minister for Tourism.

The Speaker: I do not know to whom I should address this question, because the substantive question is to the Honourable Minister for Agriculture, and he has answered what he could.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: No, Mr. Speaker, I am asking the Honourable Minister responsible for Communications and Works—and, I presume, traffic studies, among other things—what relationship his substantive answer, in particular the second paragraph, has to the traffic study announced by the Minister for Tourism.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: The substantive question has been answered to the best of my ability with the information given to me by the Public Works Department. I am not certain what the Minister for Tourism may have said regarding. . . and I guess this is what we always get into when you have two Ministers responsible for similar things. As far as I am concerned, I have answered my question. The Minister must have dealt with something to do with the part of transportation he is responsible for. I can only give the answer to what I was asked.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, I understand the Government's predicament. The Minister for Tourism told the House that there was a detailed study going on in regard to traffic flow. In fact, consultants were supposed to have done this study, and the Minister for Communications and Works—the Minister responsible for roads—has given us some good information as to what they are doing. I am also asking the relationship, because I have asked about a time frame, and the Minister for Tourism mentioned an extension to the Harquail Bypass.

The Speaker: I am in a dilemma, but I can only go back to the Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works, and he said he had nothing further to say, so I do not know where to go. Can you add anything further, Honourable Minister for Agriculture?

Hon. John B. McLean: Mr. Speaker, I have said what I could say on it. If there is a question that wants to be directed to the Minister for Tourism, it should be directed there. I have answered the question put before me.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, it seems to me that since the announcement was made by the Minister for Tourism, he is eminently fit to tell the House. I believe the House should be informed as to what is happening. Could we prevail upon the courtesies of that Honourable Minister to tell the House?

The Speaker: He may if he would so desire, but I must remind the House that supplementaries are supposed to come out of the answer to the substantive question and be directed to the Minister to whom the substantive question was posed. I see nothing in the Standing Orders which says I should go to the Minister for Tourism, but if he so wishes to answer, he may.

Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport, do you wish to answer?

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Some time ago I read a statement in the House indicating that a traffic management survey would be undertaken. That statement is correct.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: As a supplementary question, would the Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works say, given the substantive answer, whether or not he was aware that the Minister of Transport had announced to this Honourable House that he was prepared to do a survey of the traffic situation?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I am as aware as that Member who spoke. Further, I would like to say that as far as I am concerned, I have made it clear. I am responsible for building roads. The Minister who spoke a while ago is responsible for what he has actually told the House. That is not my responsibility.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I do not suppose there is anything really obnoxious about us wanting to know how both Ministers are able, especially at this time, to co-ordinate the tasks. That is the reason I asked whether or not he was aware of this, and how much it, in fact, influenced the answer he gave. Did the substantive answer take into account what the Minister for Transport announced to this Honourable House? Mr. Speaker, I feel that we deserve to have an answer to this.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works, can you add further to it?

Hon. John B. McLean: If I could, I would.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, if, as the Minister for Communications and Works says, the statement by the Minister for Tourism was correct, then this House ought to know what the two Ministers are doing. If one announces an extension for a mile to the Harquail Bypass, and a study of some sort with consultants of some kind from somewhere, and another Minister comes and tells us good information. . . I want to know what the time frame is. What is going to happen with the Harquail Bypass? Simply put, Mr. Speaker, who is responsible for what? Are the two correlating in their works, or is it just on the floor of this House that the information is being passed from one Minister to the next?

The Speaker: What is your question, First Elected Member for West Bay?

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The question is, What is the relationship between the statement given by the Honourable Minister for Tourism about the Harquail Bypass and the traffic flow, and the information given to us by the Honourable Minister for Communications and Works regarding the work of the Public Works Department?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Mr. Speaker, I do not know what else I can say on this. I have given the information given to me by Public Works Department, and, as I pointed out in the answer, it is constantly under study by the PWD. The recommendation to go further west is to appease the situation for which we are constantly ridiculed. The Member asking the question knows—he was in Executive Council! We tried our best to do what we could to appease the situation on the West Bay Road, which we are still working on. The second phase of it is. . . the suggestion has been to take it further west, and when the money becomes available, I am prepared, through the Public Works Department, to have it built. I can say no more. As far as I am concerned with what the Minister for Tourism has said. . . I am not getting into that! I have answered the substantive question that was on the paper, and that's it!

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, the Minister for Tourism gave a time frame to this House—albeit a rough time frame—for their study to be carried out. I am asking what relationship that has to what the Minister is saying he is doing.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works has said he can say no more. I do not know what I can do by asking him to repeat that.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, I do not believe God Himself could do any better than you have done this afternoon. Thank you very much.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, it says here that “other improvements are possible, depending on a detailed survey of existing sidewalks, driveways, buildings and other features along the road. PWD and the Lands & Survey Department are currently gathering information for the entire West Bay Road from Eastern Avenue to Willie Farrington Drive. PWD will then formulate a schedule of further proposed improvements and provide estimated costs.” Now, when they give us the estimated costs, Mr. Speaker, if I may comment, we have to vote money. They are depending upon us to go along with them in finding the money to do these roads. We would like to know what is being done, whether there is communication between the two Ministers—the Minister responsible for Transport and the Minister responsible for roads. And the Minister responsible for roads, Mr. Speaker, can easily answer this question, and he should answer the question!

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works. I will allow two additional supplementaries after this one is completed.

Hon. John B. McLean: I cannot answer this. I have no more to say on it.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay was up first.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I wonder if the Honourable Minister could confirm if one of the possibilities they are looking at to reduce congestion along Seven Mile Beach road is to extend the Harquail beyond the Galleria Plaza?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: I thought I made that clear, but anyway. . . that is the reason the study was carried out. We are hoping that extending the road further west will alleviate some of the problem. I am not like some people who talk about God in here. I am not God, so I cannot say. We can only try.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. In a recent statement by the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport on traffic congestion, after going through in detail regarding the traffic study that has been mentioned already, the terms of reference and what was hoped to be achieved by it, in the last paragraph of his statement he said, “The Ministers responsible for Transport and roads will jointly convene a meeting of all Elected Members of the Legislative Assembly to develop and agree an action plan.” Can the Minister for roads state if there is any working together between the two Ministers toward coming to this Legislative Assembly with a view to meeting with us and agreeing on an action plan? If so, could we have a timeline as to when this might happen?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I do not think the substantive question deserves the supplementary that has been asked. If they would like to put down such a question, they should put it down. As far as I am concerned, the Minister for Tourism and I sit on Executive Council, and we have to take joint decisions in there, and as far as I am concerned, we continue to work together.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, with your continued patience, and this really won't take long but I have to address this to you, Sir. I was not asking for anything in my last supplementary question other than to try and ascertain what the situation is between the two Ministries. The substantive question deals with the traffic flow on the West Bay Road. The statement made by the Minister for Transport deals with this. The end of the statement ties the two Ministers together. Although this question was directed at one of the Ministers, because both subjects are interrelated, we are simply trying to determine exactly how it is working.

I crave your indulgence, Sir, to make a ruling as to whether or not the line of questioning is out of whack, and do deserve answers regardless of what that Minister says.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works, can you address that? This is the last supplementary.

Hon. John B. McLean: No, Mr. Speaker, I have said as much as I can.

The Speaker: Moving to Question Number 54, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for George Town.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I was going to ask that those two questions be deferred, Sir, under Standing Order 23(5) and I would undertake to answer them on Wednesday morning. I am afraid I did not get all the information down here today. As you will see, on Wednesday they will be fairly long questions.

The Speaker: The question is that under Standing Order 23(5) these questions be deferred. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. Questions 54 and 55 are deferred.

AGREED: QUESTIONS 54 AND 55 DEFERRED.

The Speaker: That concludes Question Time for today.

Item number 4 on today's Order Paper, Statements by Honourable Members/Ministers of the Government. A Statement by the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

STATEMENTS BY HONOURABLE MEMBERS/MINISTERS

INCIDENT AT THE GEORGE HICKS HIGH SCHOOL ON THURSDAY, 26 MARCH 1998

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, this is a statement on the incident at the George Hicks High School on Thursday, 26 March 1998.

"The Education Department, staff and Home School Association of the George Hicks High School have become increasingly concerned about the behaviour of a small group of teenage boys attending this school. Over the past month, various meetings have taken place to begin formulating a plan of action to deal with such recalcitrant behaviour.

Since the names of the students considered at risk were sent to the Educational Psychologist on 6 February, the Chief Education Officer and Senior Assistant Secretary in the Ministry met with the Principal and senior members of staff on 2 March, and short- and medium-term plans of action were devised. The Chief Education Officer further met with the Director of Social Services on 10 March to discuss an interdisciplinary approach to the at-risk students.

The results of this meeting were discussed at a further meeting between myself, as the Minister responsible for Education, my Permanent Secretary, the Senior Assistant Secretary, the Principal and senior staff, and the Home School Association on 16 March. The Chief Education Officer and the Principal and staff of the school proposed ten short-term strategies and six longer-term strategies. The ten short-term strategies are already well under way.

"I understand from the Principal of the George Hicks High School that Thursday's incident was a continuation of an incident which occurred on Saturday, 21 March at the Cinema. In a separate but related incident, two boys were involved in a fight and taken to the Administrative Block, to be dealt with by the Principal and the Senior Tutor. The boys continued the fracas in the office, and were joined by two groups of their supporters. The Principal, being of the opinion that it was in the School's best interest to remove all the boys from the School compound for them to cool off, and for the Juvenile Bureau to get the full picture of this continuing disturbance, called the Police. All fifteen boys were arrested and taken to the Central Police Station for disorderly conduct, and put on a 7 PM to 7 AM curfew.

"All fifteen boys were asked to remain at home on 27 March, and to return with their parents today, 30 March, for a meeting with the Principal and senior staff of the School, as well as the Attendance Officer. As a consequence of further investigations, four boys have been suspended for six days. The remaining boys have returned to classes. The Principal, Mrs. Adora Bodden-Groome, said she has appealed to the parents of the boys involved, to ensure closer supervision of their children. The School intends to take a tough stance on this type of behaviour, and is supported in this by the Department and Ministry of Education, and the Juvenile Bureau."

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

SHORT QUESTIONS Standing Order 30(2)

Mr. Roy Bodden: Under Standing Order 30(2), I would like to raise a series of short questions on the Minister's statement.

The Speaker: I will permit that, but let them be short, please.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say what led to the outbreak of this incident, seeing that on 18 June 1997 he told this Honourable House that he had in place certain strategies to deal with these kinds of occurrences, and, to use his words, "nip them in the bud"?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: A fair amount of strategies were, and are, in place, and this is a matter that unfortunately is a single incident of a series of boys together.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Minister tell the House why, if these strategies were effective, as he assured the House they would be, this incident was not detected prior to the outbreak of this fracas? Also, can the Minister tell the House why the parents were not alerted, or summoned to the School, as I understand some children were taken to the Police Station before their parents were notified?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: That decision, who should be removed, was taken by the Principal and the Juvenile Bureau of the Police. All I can do, and I think what I should do, is outline what these strategies are, to give some idea of what is in place. At the end of the day, nothing is absolute, and the most we can do is continue to improve on them. The short-range strategies are:

- (1) The George Hicks High School staff continue to work with the Ministry of Health and the Cayman Counselling Centre to bring counselling to George Hicks High School, rather than transport the student to the Centre. It was also stated that the students were to be counselled individually and not as part of a group, as the negative effects seemed to be greater than the positive ones. The need for parent involvement and counselling was also raised. The parents must be required to participate in the counselling, although not at every session. This will be pursued, but all agreed that if the parent refused to co-operate, the success would be weakened.
- (2) The Education Department, working with senior staff, would develop a policy regarding weapons on school compounds and present it to the Education Council for immediate implementation.
- (3) The Education Department would initiate a meeting between the Police Service, especially inviting the new Commissioner and the Youth Bureau, Drugs Task Force, and school Principal, to discuss ways to improve communication, as well as understanding each other's point of view.
- (4) The Education Department will initiate a meeting with Social Services to discuss mutually agreeable ways to address the problems that affect both.
- (5) The Education Department will undertake to complete the rewrite of the Health and Drug Policy as quickly as possible, and would provide to the schools an update as to their progress.
- (6) The senior staff at George Hicks High School will examine the timetable to see whether there can be some reorganisation of staff to better meet the needs of the dysfunctional students. This includes the staffing of the withdrawal room, as well as creating a self-contained emotionally behaviourally disordered classroom.
- (7) The Education Department will develop a plan to operate this classroom and will make arrangements to test all students that exhibit dysfunctional behaviour to determine placement and appropriate IEPs.

- (8) The Chief Education Officer will continue to support the Principal by imposing long-term suspensions of those students whose behaviour warrants ejection.
- (9) The Education Department will identify appropriate training techniques for staff to assist them in dealing with unruly students.
- (10) The Education Department will work with the school to identify and implement appropriate parenting programmes for the parents of problem students.

Mr. Speaker, I must say that the Home School Association of George Hicks has done a tremendous job in getting parents involved. Quite an effort over the last three years has gone into this. But at the end of the day, it must be remembered that the boys are only in school for part of the day, and many times the effects outside of the school are where many of these problems originate.

The Speaker: Do you have a follow-up? The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The strategies enumerated by the Honourable Minister are the same strategies he gave in answer to my question on 18 June 1997. These strategies have failed previously. My supplementary question now is, What new efforts, or what refreshing approach is going to be made now; and can the Minister assure the House that all the strategies outlined on 18 June 1997 were, in effect, tried and implemented?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I find it difficult to see how that Honourable Member can make the statement that the strategies have failed. There has been an incident. As I said earlier, no matter what is done within the schools it is the duty of MLAs, of parents, of the public, to try to ensure that these boys are given every opportunity to improve themselves. At the end of the day—and this is perhaps one of the fallacies—it seems that basically (as this Honourable Member is doing), there is a pointing of the finger at Government only to find the solutions. The solutions have to come from within the society as well; they have to come from Members in this Honourable House, and from the churches and service clubs. There has to be a full, cohesive effort when dealing with incidents such as this.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Under the same Standing Order cited by the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, I would like to briefly ask the Minister whether it is seen at this moment that this is a temporary exhibition of bad behaviour, or if that situation which occurred recently is a symptom of a much deeper-rooted problem within the students. Would he not agree that perhaps part of the problem is still occurring because the kids are bored in school, and that if they were doing some vocational training, they might be better off?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: This is a very small number of children, considering there are over 800 in the school. It is under twenty children we are looking at. We are continuing to deal with them. Their problems are different and divergent, and the specialists in this area are involved, the psychologists, teachers, and generally the support staff within the school, as well as the Social Services Department and, where necessary, the Health Department.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: I am saddened that the Minister has said this is a small number. The significance is what you have to look at, not the numbers. The significance of something like that happening in the school is that it suggests that there are other boys prepared to do the same, similar or even minor acts. That is significant, especially when we look at that in the context of what happened at the Lions Centre this weekend. It is not the numbers. What is significant is the fact that those children, in a tradition where discipline was so important, have gone to that extent to challenge the authorities in the school.

I am saying that I think we have to look at the type of education these children are receiving. We know the parents and churches have to become more involved. As I said in my debate on the Throne Speech, all these things must be taken in to account, but we must not ignore that perhaps the educational programme at the school is just not functional enough.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: There were only four children suspended, and that is not a significant number in my view. I take the point the Member has made. However, out of the fifteen who were there, the school suspended four.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: The reason we are asking these questions is that we want to impress upon the Minister the seriousness of this outburst. It is a warning. Before I get to my supplementary, I crave your indulgence to remind the Minister that the reason the question was asked on 18 June 1997 was that there were complaints then, and the question was asked at that time to attempt to get to the bottom of this. I said the strategies elicited by the Minister at that time have obviously failed, because they failed to prevent this outbreak and outburst. My question now is, Have the authorities identified the potential number of problem students, and what is being done to challenge—note the word, Mr. Speaker, challenge—these students, so that this kind of behaviour does not become pathological and spread among the general school population? Is it confined only to boys? Because if it is, it should be obvious what needs to be done.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: It is confined to boys. There were four who were suspended as a result of the fracas at the school. Also, several of these children had been previously identified and were undergoing specific types of counselling within the schools.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, the word should be "fræka," Sir. It is a French word.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. My question to the Honourable Minister is, Does this type of incident, which involved some fifteen students according to the radio report, have the potential to develop into gangs and gang wars? Could the Minister say what strategy is in place to stop the development of these gangs, if this incident was not a gang problem?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I have read the ten strategies. That is what we have in place to deal with them. At a school where you have groups of boys, when you have a fight or anything else, what happens? They all gather around. Let's face it, since our time this has arisen. I believe that it has to be a joint effort. I come back to this: You cannot expect the Government alone to deal with this problem. It has to be a joint effort within the districts and within the society. Unless there is a joint effort by Members of this House, the district committees, whether that be the churches or service clubs, unless there is a joint effort we will not be able to effectively and fully deal with the problem.

I will do everything I can from our side, but I point out again that the larger part of the children's time is spent outside the school. Sometimes the good done within the school during the day is reversed when they get out into society as a whole. Maybe liquor laws need to be tightened up. We may need to ask the youth clubs to help us do more. But I think it is wrong to let parents believe that the sole solution to the children's problems is going to come in the schools, because it will not. This is a problem within the society, and the whole society has to deal with it.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: I understand very clearly every word the Honourable Minister said, but as the ultimate responsibility lies with the Education Department, can he tell me what programmes are being put in place to involve the entire community, the churches, the service clubs, and the district committees to solve these types of problems?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: To begin with, Members, perhaps, have their own programmes which they run for the children in their district. Perhaps that is one area. Perhaps Members, when they are asking these questions, may like to elaborate on what they run within the districts. [Inaudible interjections]

The other area is that we have to. . . . I'm just trying to get sufficient quiet so I can carry on, Sir.

The Speaker: Order!

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Not only should the districts deal with it, but also on a national basis. This is why I specifically said that the Education Department is liaising with Social Services, with Health and overall within the Government. We are doing as much as we can do, but the problem is one that cannot be looked at as purely a 'Government problem'; it is a problem within society. Unless there is an effort within the districts, as well as nationally, when the children are out of school this is not going to necessarily go away.

We have the ten strategies in place within the school, and I have read them out. They will be developed and worked on. But, obviously, four children have been suspended. The problem goes beyond the Government.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Could the Honourable Minister tell the House what kind of involvement he has at the community level that might provide some idea and food for thought and guidance for the rest of us who may not now be similarly involved?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, first, I put in just about full time of my life on education in my Ministry here. Secondly, I support my church, its youth programmes, and we have specific youth programmes there. I support the programmes within the community relating to after school, and these children are obviously older than that. I am against seeing situations where you have children, who are obviously not under the full care and control of their parents, out at night; and when I see them, I speak to them. Perhaps the Honourable Member will now tell me what he does in Bodden Town.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town. We are going to soon have to bring this question time to an end.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Yes, Mr. Speaker, I will gladly tell him. Since 1970 I have been involved with the organisation of soccer in Bodden Town. Indeed, I was recently awarded a plaque by the Cayman Islands Football Association, of which the First Elected Member for West Bay was a witness, because he was awarded the same plaque that afternoon. I am flattered, because it is indeed an expensive plaque. I am still involved. Every Saturday my son goes to karate—my wife has to take him, because I am at the soccer pitch with the soccer club.

These are youngsters that he is talking about. I have to disagree with the Minister, because I know some of those parents involved, and they are conscientious good parents. It is not their fault completely, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I forgot that each year I also sponsor a children's school athletic run, which I have just done recently. But my question is very simple: Does the Honourable Member believe that playing soccer in Bodden Town has solved the problems in Bodden Town?

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, for some twenty years this debate has been going on, and it appears that the same attitude still prevails. The Minister seems not to accept that Members such as myself have genuine concerns; and the criticisms are not directed to him personally, not from me! I am a qualified sociologist. I have lived in this society for the last twenty years at least. I have observed patterns of behaviour. On several occasions I have called that to the attention of what I consider the 'establishment.' I am simply saying that perhaps we need to make schooling more challenging!

What is being done to see that this happens? Could this also play a role in creating the critical breakdown which is happening at this time? There is no reason our experiences and qualifications should not be respected enough for the Minister to say, 'Well, good suggestion. I'll speak with my educational strategists about this.' Another thing, perhaps we would be further ahead with education in this country if we had a Caymanian as head of education, because that person might at least understand the culture of the people he is dealing with.

The Speaker: With respect, under Standing Order 30(2), we did not give permission for a debate. We had permission for short questions. I think we have pretty well—although this is a very touchy issue, one that concerns us all—I think we should move on.

The next item on today's Order Paper is a statement by the Honourable Minister responsible for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

IMMINENT ENACTMENT OF THE CHILDREN LAW

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I regret to say that my statement is along the same lines as the preceding statement, from a different perspective. It is the imminent enactment of the Children Law.

"The Ministry of Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation, and the Department of Social Services have been very concerned over the general deterioration in behaviour among some children, both in schools and in the community. Recognising this, work has commenced on the development of Regulations for the Children Law so the Law may be enacted within the next few months."

I would like to pause at this time to thank the First Elected Member for West Bay, who, when he was in the Ministry, was effective in getting this put on the books.

"The main focus of this Law is on parental responsibility and the duty of the Social Services Department to ensure that parents do not abdicate this responsibility. The Department will assist parents as the need arises. Already a multi-disciplinary team, involving representatives from the Legal Department, Health, Education, the Police, and the community, as well as the Social Services Department, has been formed and has met on two occasions to commence work on the Regulations."

Also to be involved in this will be the Ministry for Youth, and we look forward to working on these ideas to be put forward.

"Discussions have been held between senior personnel of the Education and Social Services Departments in regard to the increase in the anti-social behaviours which have been observed both in school and in the community. Both departments have agreed to develop strategies to address these concerns.

"The departments have recognised that to effectively address these problems, the community, parents, churches, and the children themselves must work together to find solutions. The Social Services Department has already been involved in working with various schools in addressing certain anti-social behaviours that have been identified by school officials.

"Due to recent volatile incidents which have occurred, my Ministry and the Department of Social Services are appealing to the churches, service clubs and community in general, and parents in particular, to co-operate with them in their efforts to address these very serious behavioural problems being exhibited by a few of our youth."

Thank you.

The Speaker: Item number five on today's Order Paper, Government Business, Bills, First Readings. Before I do that, I should call for the suspension of Standing Orders 45 and 46 so we can take this before the allotted number of days.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER S 45 & 46

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I move the suspension of Standing Orders 45 and 46 to enable the Bill entitled, The National Pensions (Amendment) Bill, 1998, to be read a first and second time.

The Speaker: I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: STANDING ORDERS 45 AND 46 SUSPENDED.

The Speaker: Bills, First Reading.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

(carried over from Friday, 27 March 1998)

BILLS FIRST READING

The National Pensions (Amendment) Bill, 1998

The Clerk: The National Pensions (Amendment) Bill, 1998.

The Speaker: The Bill has been read a first time and is set down for Second Reading.

We have reached the hour of 4.30. I think this would be a convenient time to take the suspension. Before I put the question, under Standing Order 11(5), (6) and (7), I have given permission on the motion for the adjournment to the First Elected Member for West Bay to move a matter of public importance.

The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

RAISING OF PUBLIC MATTER Standing Order 11(6)

YOUTH GANGS

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: What I am going to speak about has been aired in different ways in this House this afternoon, but I rise out of deep concern about a trend which is fast developing in these islands—youth gangs. These are affecting church, school, and the general community.

For some time we have been hearing about the actions and the disruptive behaviour in school, at church at youth meetings, night clubs, and other public gatherings. We saw on television, as we heard from the Minister this afternoon, where there were altercations at the Middle school involving some sixteen children. If at the Middle school, it must be involving children ranging in age from twelve to fourteen years. It seems that there is a clear pattern of gangism developing, for instance where these gangs are harbouring grudges to the extent that it ends up in a violent confrontation using knives and other such weapons.

These confrontations are becoming so deep-seated that the fuss which started in a theatre ends up in a fight at school, or vice versa, involving not one or two people, but sixteen—gangs! It just seems that rational behaviour no longer exists among these young people where a problem was talked out; now a baseball bat or a club of some kind is in the hand of the young person.

Another aspect of this violent behaviour is associated with some imported shows where the music is about shoot and kill, hatred and elimination. It just seems that our young people are gulping this stuff up to where the dress code is influenced and has, in my opinion, deteriorated. We see young people with their pants as big as mine (And I wear size 48, big enough!), when they should be wearing size 25. Their pants are around their ankles, or three-quarters of the way down their legs! We see them with rings in their eye-brows, in their nostrils, on their tongues and other areas. This is not doing the country any good, it is gangism! It breeds a culture of gangism.

There have been a number of fatalities and serious wounding, as has happened over the past weekend where one young man is dead, and the other's future is severely jeopardised. The families of both these young men are left devastated. As a father, I say but for the grace of God it could have been one of mine. I have two young adults and I sympathise deeply with the parents today.

What I am going to say next may bring some objection from the House and/or the public. However, I have stood alone before and I may do it again. I believe that it is time Government took some steps, which may be unpopular but which need to happen, to ban these kinds of shows which are inciting and festering a culture of violence. I do not know how anyone can call it music—hip-hip and manyap; tack-tack and oomph, oomph!

[Members' laughter]

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, while it is laughable, this is doing our country no good and we are losing our young people—not just to the jails, but to death!

I am further asking Government. . . and I am not getting into who did what, or where it needs to be done, I am asking Government to set up a special task force to deal with this emerging trend of gangism. This task force should consist of parents, members of the PTA, Education Department, service clubs, schools and church representatives, the Police Community Relations Department, and some kind of psychologist, either from Government or the private sector. I believe that Members of this House could assist this task force, at least we have two whom I believe are eminently qualified to assist, that is, the Fourth Elected Member for George Town and the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town. I certainly will do all within my power to assist, but we need to act because it is past talking.

Our culture, such as we have and know, just cannot continue to accommodate this kind of negative social influence. It is fast destroying us. I have to deal with it as a representative as do others—not just at the theatre or at night-clubs, but it is to the extent now where the primary schools are affected, the church youth groups cannot meet because some of this is happening.

Mind you, Mr. Speaker, these groups are in the minority, but the end result is sometimes death. We are losing our young people to a culture that is foreign to us, and we can do something about it. I do not care if he is Beanieman or Spaghetteman, we do not need it here! If the Government puts something on the books, the country will have to abide by it.

Mr. Roy Bodden: True!

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: We are losing our young people. I am happy to say that we have many good young people who, themselves, are scared to go out. These gangs are growing and we must take steps to nip it in the bud.

Mr. Speaker, this is such an important matter, and I thank you for your indulgence. Perhaps we could allow other Members to speak their minds on this matter. I think it is worth it, I think that we need to do something about it with Government.

Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: May I remind Honourable Members that the Annual General Meeting of the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association will be held this evening at 6.30 PM, followed by the annual dinner. We invite all Members to attend.

The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: I rise to echo the sentiments expressed by the First Elected Member for West Bay. Indeed, the matter which he has spoken about takes on added significance if we transpose that against the matter previously discussed regarding the outbreak at the George Hicks High School. I think we have to be careful that we are not cultivating an image that this type of behaviour in our society is the kind of behaviour which makes its participants role models and heroes.

I think that if it is the political will of the Government it is eminently equipped to nip this in the bud, albeit life has already been lost. I join in sympathising with both families because the loss of a loved one is a dreadful loss, but to know that one has progeny alleged to have caused someone to lose their life is also very dreadful and demands sympathy and understanding.

This time in our country now reminds me of the time in early Greece that spawned the outbreak of democracy. If you read Pericles of Athens, you will understand that these are the same kinds of problems that confronted Pericles and the founding fathers of democracy.

Legislation is not always pleasing to people, but the Government is elected to put steps in place which will safeguard the interests of the majority. No Government should be ashamed, embarrassed, or have to explain when it has to make laws and legislation, which seemingly impinge or deny certain things from certain people, in the interest of the general will.

I think that something needs to be done. This is a subculture foreign to the Caymanian psyche, foreign to our way of life, and there are many more positive things we can import beside this. A sensible curb in this kind of activity and behaviour has my unstinting support.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Because of the emotional impact that such an incident would have on a society and individuals, including myself, I think that I will reserve my position in regard to suggestions for a later date. But I think it is important to not jump to conclusions, blaming any particular culture for the violence in this society.

I am on record, as far back as 1977/78, speaking about the dysfunctional transition our society was making, and the way in which people were coping with the rapid development and the pressure and value confusion resulting. I advocated that programmes be put in place to make people more aware of the traumatic effect that rapid industrialisation would have on any society, especially a society that had the type of communal base our society had.

We are in a situation now where the electronic media plays a very important role in what people think and do. We have to compete for the attention and loyalty of our young people as they socialise themselves in terms of forming a new consciousness and new values. It is not an easy task, therefore there is a need in this society for all of us to become more dynamic in terms of what we expect from young people. But it is not always possible, every time we have a problem, to easily identify that something can be done. If it were, most societies would have no problems.

Problems of this nature have a multiplicity of causes. Of course, if we are dealing with the electronic media we are dealing with television in this country where we give people licences to import programmes in here. Worldwide people have access to satellite. No longer can Government regulate people's access to information. We are beyond that particular point. So the child can get influenced by way of television, or by way of radio programmes being blasted from Detroit, or Chicago, or any other place.

I would hate, at the end of the day, to see one particular culture, or one particular type of entertainment, put into a category saying, 'This is the one we can deal with. This is the one we can ban and punish for all of the things that are happening in this society.' I go on record as saying that there is no easy solution to this problem. People in this society, especially the adults, are going to have to work tirelessly to see that the young people decide that the role models we provide them with are much more enjoyable and educational than those being provided by the competitors.

From the point of view of a particular culture of music, there is a lot of negativity. Culture is supposed to be positive, it is supposed to give us the idea of a positive utopia, a collective utopia that we can all enjoy. The subcultures which are breeding these types of music, hairstyles and clothing styles, are subcultures of violence because they have existed in the bowels of very violent societies and systems. The fact that they have been able to make it to our shores is all part and parcel of the fact that we are no longer a fishing village; we are connected with the world as a whole through the Internet and other electronic media. Therefore, we do not only benefit from the positive parts of this world and the world's value system, we also suffer as a result of the negative part.

Before we jump, it is important to examine what the repercussions will be to the people's rights to make decisions for themselves in regard to entertainment and so forth.

Thank you.

The Speaker: In accordance with Standing Orders, I will now ask if the Government wishes to reply. Twenty minutes have passed. (Pause) If Government has no wish to reply, then I shall put the question on the adjournment.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: I just wish to thank those Members, since Government is not going to reply.

The Speaker: I shall now put the question. . .

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Mr. Speaker, I wonder if you would entertain me for a minute?

The Speaker: In accordance with Standing Orders, I am to call upon the Government after twenty minutes. I have been as lenient as I can be. If you will be very brief. . .

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Well, Mr. Speaker, the Government did not respond, so I was going to say a few words.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay. Please be brief.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I also share the sentiments expressed by the First Elected Member for West Bay. I think the time has come where we have to recognise that in this country we have some very negative influences, and we have some trends being established that are not in the best interest of our welfare. We must address these issues.

Many times, because of political or other reasons, we do not want to recognise that we have a problem, but we do—it has permeated our society down to our primary schools. We cannot dictate what parents do at home as far as their disciplinary measures, or the training of their children, but we can determine what happens in our schools by way of discipline or other measures.

I, for one, have become very concerned with the idea of gangs being established. Someone told me over the weekend that they had two little boys with them from West Bay and they offered to take them to a specific area in George Town. They were told by the little boys that they could not go in that area because they were from West Bay. We had gotten away from that in this country through the idea of centralised education where members of the public from different districts have been brought together and have learned to socialise and live with one another. But this trend in regard to gangs is being established.

We had a problem in 1992 with what are known as 'Sessions.' After the night-clubs closed people would get together at 3.00 or 4.00 in the morning and sell beer and other items. We addressed that by bringing in a task force. I believe that we have to recognise that we have a problem, that we need to address it, and address it now.

I believe that we need to support any measure with respect to controlling this type of behaviour, including—and I have long advocated this—restricting the type of artists we allow in this country. We have gotten to the stage where we are attempting to please everybody. Whenever we attempt to do that we run into problems. I do not think we should continue with that type of policy in our society, but should do whatever is in the best interests of our society.

I do support those measures mentioned by the First Elected Member for West Bay, and echoed by other Members. I thank you for your time, Sir.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The three statements made range over a variety of Ministries. I will merely attempt to summarise what the position appears to be.

The position in relation to schools was dealt with in some depth, and I do not intend to repeat that now. Coming into operation, and actually passed back in 1995, is the Children Law. That was passed on 13 September 1995, but has never been brought into operation. As the First Elected Member for West Bay knows, this was piloted by him. It has a lot of detail and we have now decided to bring this Law into effect. It has very up-to-date provisions to deal with juveniles. In the first part it deals with orders in respect to children in family proceedings and sets out different types of orders that can be made.

It has sections in it dealing with financial relief. Section 16 specifically deals with family assistance orders. Part III of the Law deals with Social Services support of children and families and provides on average two to three sections that deal with provision of services for children and their families, provision of accommodation for children, duties of social services in relation to children. They look after advice and assistance for certain children, secure accommodation and there is a supplemental.

Part IV deals with care and supervision. Care orders, supervision orders and the powers of the court in relation to parents and guardians as well as a section on guardians ad litem. Part V deals with the protection of children and this ranges over emergency protection of children through the duty of Social Services and deals with by and large some eight sections ranging from abduction of children through to emergency protection orders.

Part VI deals with children's homes and voluntary organisations. Part VII, Child minding and day-care for young children. Part VIII is Miscellaneous, which basically deals with the provision of orders and procedures set out in section 70 to 74. Then there are Schedules in this which deal with financial provision for children, Social Services support for children and families, supervision orders, registered children's homes, and child minding and day-care for young children, amendments, transitional provisions, saving repeals.

The Minister for Social Services (who really only got this Ministry in the last few months) has now taken the steps to bring into effect the Children Law, 1995. I believe that it is very crucial that this comes in. It is very detailed. It deals with orders that go far beyond our present Juveniles Law and our present Maintenance Law, and Laws relating to Matrimonial that deal with children and their rights. I believe that will be a very major step once it comes into effect, and regulations are now being worked on. We have decided that this will be given priority to bring this in as early as possible.

In relation to bans on music coming into the country, there was a policy in place that before bands came in to perform a video would be looked at by Immigration, and on that basis it would be decided whether or not to grant work permits for that band and the support staff. Hopefully that was done in this case. I am not sure. But it did provide the first line of defence, so to speak, to ensure that the music and the bands coming into the country were in the interest of the islands as a whole.

It is very clear that some of the bands that have been performing over the last few years, especially, have the tendency to hype-up the youth. There are times when this is part of what leads on to problems which have been occurring over the past few years. So the first line of defence here would be Immigration.

The second is that the enforcement of the Liquor Law in relation to juveniles must be strictly carried out. Whenever this comes to our attention, this has been moved on to the appropriate authorities within Government who deal with this. I think this must be tightened up and licensees must clearly understand that if they give liquor out to juveniles that they must face the consequences under the Law. We cannot perpetuate clear breaches of the Law.

Some system must be brought in by the persons licensed to sell liquor in this country to ensure that juveniles who by Law should not be receiving drinks, hard liquor, beer, whatever, at these functions do not get it. There is obviously a problem there and I think, not just the Government but the full legislature recognises that problems exist. But I believe that it has to be an overall effort on the part of the churches, the youth groups together with Government to deal with children, not only when they are in the schools, but when they are at large in the evenings after school, or in the night. I can assure this Honourable House that we will do everything that we possibly can. The five areas raised here will be developed and pursued. I believe that at the end of the day, with our collective effort, we should be able to deal with the problems that exist.

We must solicit the guidance of the Good Lord himself to ensure that the youth of this country stay within the acceptable and narrow way that He has instructed us to tread.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Mr. Speaker, before you put the question, I wonder if you will allow me a minute—and I will only take a minute.

When the Children Law was brought to this House a time frame was given as to when the Law would be put into effect. There had to be certain work done, certain seminars, Social Service training and other departmental actions and procedures that needed to be put in place to deal with the Law. The way the Minister spoke, it could be left to understand that I would not put the Law into effect.

The Speaker: The question is that this House do now adjourn until 10 o'clock Wednesday morning. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AT 5.06 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM WEDNESDAY, 1 APRIL 1998.

EDITED
WEDNESDAY

[Prayers by the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.]

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Item number two on today's Order Paper, Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. Deferred Question No. 35 is standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION 35

(deferred 9, 18 and 19 March 1998)

No. 35: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development to state the annual amounts by which the contingency liabilities have increased since 1993.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The annual amounts by which the contingent liabilities have increased since 1993 are detailed in the Schedule attached to the answer [See Appendix]. In summary, the Schedule will show that the cumulative increase in contingent liabilities for the period 31 December 1993 through 31 December 1997 amounts to $43,279,979.

Honourable Members should note that this increase factors in the revised actuarial valuations of the Civil Service Pension Fund liability, which in turn reflects such factors as the enhancement in benefits to weekly paid workers and the beneficiaries of female officers effected through an amendment to the Civil Service Pensions Law in 1996.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Honourable Member say whether there is an optimum amount to which these liabilities should level off?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: While it would be somewhat difficult to give a precise figure at this time, it would be desirable to keep contingent or direct liabilities in check. These are areas we have to look at very carefully, especially where guarantees are issued, or anything that could allow those liabilities to be converted from contingent to direct.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Honourable Member tell the House if any mechanism is in place at this time for such an examination? Do any guidelines exist to ensure that these contingent liabilities are an absolute necessity? What safeguards are in place to see that they are not easily turned into direct liabilities?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: At this time, the guidelines followed are, first, that any request for guarantees, or anything that would allow the Government to provide an endorsement is required in the Public Finance and Audit Law to be approved by this Honourable House. These are examined very carefully.

Secondly, as we progress with the reform initiatives, looking at the review of the Public Finance and Audit Law, and the type of accounting methodology to adopt, this, of necessity, will require that the public debt position of Government, including the contingent liability element, be looked at very, very carefully.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In light of the fact that governments have been making a practise of taking excess funds from the statutory corporations, how does this impinge upon a corporations' ability or inability to service their liabilities? For example, is this not a deterrent to allowing the statutory authorities to pay back loans quicker than the authorised length of the loan by not putting them in the position to make increased payments?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: It is not the practise of Government to put the authorities in a precarious position. The financial procedures of the authorities will need to be examined in tandem with the review of the financial procedures of the Government as a whole. We had an exhaustive discussion on this quite recently, when response was provided to a parliamentary question. We looked at the excess funds taken as at 31 December 1997. But surely, if this one-off incident would put the authorities at risk, and make it somewhat difficult for them to service their liabilities, this would call into question the whole notion of their overall viability.

What needs to be looked at (and this Honourable House and the Government, as well, have directed questions at this) is, first of all, that the statutory authorities have been operating as fragmented organisations, somewhat removed from central Government. We recognise that while the autonomy of the authorities should be protected, it is very important that a cohesive whole be structured, whereby the activities of central Government, and, more importantly, the finances of Government and the expectations of the authorities, should be examined very closely to make sure that risks do not exist on either side.

It was also pointed out during that time, that the entire revenue streams and methodologies of raising revenue will have to be looked at. We have accomplished a lot over the years, and when we look at the type of infrastructure we have, the lifestyle that can be assured to the citizenry of the Cayman Islands community, and when we see that to this point in time direct taxation has not been achieved, nor do we have any onerous indirect measures in place for raising revenue, I think we are to be applauded.

Finally, we must bear in mind that the statutory authorities (two of them especially at a given time) were significant contributors to the Government's coffers by way of their revenues. It was because of entering into loan arrangements with the Caribbean Development Bank, and putting into place the type of financial planning they wanted to see, that the authorities were "hived off" as independent entities. It was never intended that the flow of revenue should be lost to the Government. While necessary operating expenses would have to be allowed, it was always intended that the excess revenue, over and above what was required for meeting operating expenses and necessary reserves, would flow back into central Government.

When we look at the contributions that have been coming back from the authorities, if we were to take a graph from the time of those changes until now, we would see a significant diminution in the contributions from the authorities. We recognise that the authorities are important, their financial viability is also very important, but we are at a stage at which financial planning is necessary, not only for central Government, but also for the authorities, and we are moving forward on that footing.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Can the Honourable Member state if, since 31 December 1997, there have been any other actions which caused the amount stated, $169.5 million, to increase?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: No, but I should mention that we will be examining the agenda of Finance Committee very soon, and there is an item on it that will cause an increase in it. That will be in the acquisition of an asset.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. To be more direct, the recent guarantee given by the Finance Committee to Cayman Aviation Leasing for the purchase of another aircraft, and the pending draw-down on the loan for the permanent moorings, the first being $7.5 million and the other being $6 million, is it safe to assume that these amounts will be drawn down this year, and that even though payments are being made on other loans (and possibly on those loans when they are drawn down) that this amount will increase proportionately with those additions during the course of the year?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Yes, the Honourable Member is correct. Whenever draw-downs are made against those guarantees, we will find the contingent liability figure as given reflecting corresponding increases. But at this time, it is difficult to assume, for example, that all the funds for the guarantee given for the Port Authority will be drawn down during the course of the year.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Now that we have established what I was trying to say, can the Honourable Member state if there are any other items of that nature which may be drawn down during the course of this year (outside of the two just mentioned) which will reflect a corresponding increase in the contingent liabilities?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I made reference to another item. This has not been discussed, but there could be a possibility. At this time I cannot immediately call to mind any other potential contingent liability element.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: One final supplementary: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town asked the question earlier, and I will try to ask it in another way to solicit a more direct answer. While it is difficult—and we do appreciate that—to say at this time what the comfortable magical figure is regarding contingent liabilities, can the Honourable Member state, based on the GDP [Gross Domestic Product], the recurrent revenue, the direct public debt, and all the other information one would have to take into consideration—and I am not asking for an opinion, I am asking if the figure there is professionally acceptable? Or does there need to be a serious look, based on all the surrounding circumstances, to ensure that this figure continues to decrease rather than increase, as seems to be the trend?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: On the part of prudence, and, of necessity, the best that can be rendered is an opinion. Ideally, no one would like to see that figure on the increase, but we must look at what that figure represents. For example, when a guarantee is given on behalf of Cayman Airways, there is a corresponding asset acquired. If the asset is disposed of, or realised, we find that the contingent liability falls away.

What we will have to look at—and this is where the checks and balances have been put in place—is ensuring that whatever is acquired by way of a guarantee will, first of all, work to the advantage or benefit of the society; and secondly, but importantly, that where possible (the acquisition of an asset) a corresponding benefit is being acquired. . . these are elements that will have to be acquired.

For example, if it becomes necessary for one of the authorities to enter into an area of expansion that would benefit the community as a whole, trade-offs will have to be looked at in terms of whether it would be prudent on the part of central Government, or the Legislative Assembly, to give the guarantee being sought. All these variables will have to be looked at. It is through these checks and balances that the contingent liability or direct liability will be contained.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, we will go to deferred Question Number 54, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION 54

(deferred 30 March 1998)

No. 54: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning to provide an itemised list of the total debts presently owed by Cayman Airways Ltd.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

FINANCIAL INFORMATION - CAL

(US$)	31 December 1997	31 December 1992
--------	---------------------	------------------

LIABILITIES:

Current liabilities:
Bank overdraft	1,256,559	10,143,264
Accounts payable and accrued expenses	10,970,880	16,801,925
Unearned transportation liability (UTL)	3,985,469	4,851,513
Unearned C.I. Government subsidy (UCIGS)	638,286
Current portion of long-term liability	820,000	4,257,720
Total current	17,671,194	36,054,422
Long-term liabilities		1,926,395
Long term liability - RBC term loan (note)	2,422,930
Funded aircraft maintenance reserves	1,598,876
Total other	4,021,806
Total recorded liabilities	21,693,000	37,980,817
NON-CAPITALIZED OPERATING LEASE PAYMENTS:
Aircraft VP CAL - owed to Cayman Aviation Leasing Ltd. (Totally owned by CI Government)	3,193,000	4,266,600
		2,608,800 (leased aircraft from foreign owners)
Aircraft VP CKX - owed to Cayman Aviation Leasing Ltd. (Totally owned by CI Government)	2,162,000	759,400 (leased aircraft from foreign owners)
Total unrecorded liabilities	5,355,000	7,634,800
Total liabilities	27,048,000	45,615,617

In December 1992 the total liabilities were $45,615,617 compared to $27,048,000 in 1997.

Contingent liabilities have reached a low of approximately $5.5 million (US$5,500,000) to the Government's companies in 1997. From a high of approximately one hundred and five million ($105,000,000) to foreign companies for leases in 1991. These have reduced by $100 million. (See Appendix).

The Speaker: Supplementaries? The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Can the Honourable Minister state if the amounts owed to the Civil Aviation Authority for landing fees are included in this answer? If so, in which section?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Yes, it would be in accounts payable.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. In his answer, the Honourable Minister read an analysis comparing December 1992 to December 1997—and we all understand the reason behind that, although we only asked for an up-to-date list of the debts. Can he state if the total liabilities for 1996 were less, or more, than the figure stated for 1997?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I do not have those accounts here. I could get them. I think you would find very little difference overall, if any, between 1996 and 1997.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: In the Non-capitalised Operating Lease Payments section, there are two amounts owed to Cayman Aviation Leasing. Can the Minister state if these are amounts which should have been paid before now? Or are these projected amounts, based on a lease agreement?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: These are amounts based on the lease agreements, and they are actually contingent liabilities. They are the amount of rent for the two aircraft owned by Government, paid to Government's two companies that it fully owns. But we are fully paid up, and are paying much heavier lease amounts for both aircraft. In fact, I can give you one example. For one of them, we were paying $94,000 per month; I now understand we have to pay $124,000 per month, plus the reserves to Government.

What I was trying to distinguish here in buying these jets, rather than just leasing them from a foreign company is that that money would be lost—now the money is being paid to Government, Sir. In fact, the loan on one of the jets is reduced to maybe US$2.8 million. The jet is worth $7.5 million. If we brought that back onto Cayman Airways' balance sheet we would show a profit, on a revaluation, of $4.5 million. [Inaudible interjections]

No, no, legally, it is better to keep them off the balance sheet of Cayman Airways, in two separate companies. [Inaudible interjections]

No, no, no—Mr. Speaker, Cayman Airways is paying the full amount of the loans on these companies. In other words, if this had been vested in Cayman Airways, the money showing in the profit and loss each year as being lease payments, would be toward capital. So the balance sheet of Cayman Airways would be about $4.5 million profit better off. But legally, the Honourable Member is quite right. Legally, isolating the separate assets in separate companies owned by Government is the better legal position. But it shows Cayman Airways in a much worse position.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. I will ask a question, but the answer the Honourable Minister just gave is the same as if I own a house and he was renting it from me. The reason he rents from me is because he couldn't afford to buy it! That is the position Cayman Airways finds itself in when it compares why Government had to buy the planes, just to make sure it is understood that I understand that.

The question I have to ask is under "Total Current," Is the amount, funded aircraft maintenance reserves of $1.59 million, a debt being paid on a regular basis, or is it a debt which should have been taken care of by reserves being built up? What is that figure?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Before I answer that, I would like to comment on the Honourable Member's first comment. I could very simply have taken the guarantee of Government, guaranteed Royal Bank of Canada for Cayman Airways instead of Cayman Aviation Leasing.

[Inaudible comments]

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: No, we did come to Finance Committee, Mr. Speaker. So it does not matter what entity it is in. In fact, Cayman Aviation Leasing is really a shell company. Before this aircraft went in it had no assets, at least Cayman Airways is a bit better off than that.

The funded aircraft maintenance reserves, which the Honourable Member has pointed out, of $1,598,876, is money put aside to take care of aircraft checks when they come up, be they the C checks or the D checks. That is money. You will notice it is not in 1992, because in 1992 Cayman Airways, as you can see, had a bank overdraft of $10.1 million compared to $1.2 million now. It was not possible to build up reserves, so they paid for this each year from money they got from the Legislative Assembly. But this amount is what the auditors would have looked at, what is required to do the checks, and that money goes across to pay for them. If not, it would have to come out, as it did in the past, of the company's working capital.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. From the Honourable Minister's answer, I notice that we totally own two aircrafts now. I wonder if the Honourable Minister could tell the House when we purchased the second aircraft, and if either of those aircrafts are due for a major check at this time?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The first jet, 737-200, was purchased in 1995, and it will need a C7 check by September this year, which is like a D check. It is a major overhaul. Funds are in there. That is being dealt with by the owner, which is the company.

The second aircraft, the CKX which we now fly, has until 2002 before there is a D check. But we had built up substantial reserves toward that D check (or C7 check, which is the same thing). It is probably between $1 million and $1.4 million to do the major check. $1.3 million to be exact.

The second aircraft was purchased about three or four weeks ago, and we took it in a separate company again, a shell company, that was formed a few days before, which is CKX Leasing. So the money we are paying on both jets now is coming to Government.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I think the last guarantee passed, if I remember correctly, was to purchase a third aircraft. Are we in the process of negotiating the purchase of a third aircraft?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I know there was talk about a third—we are now searching for a third aircraft, and this is something the House would have to decide whether we take this on a lease and pay the money to a foreign company, or whether we guarantee a third company owned by Government, or perhaps this time, whatever. . . but we are looking for a third. The question will be whether we lease or purchase, because the motion said we should own a second aircraft, and we got this aircraft at what was felt to be a very good price. We put a lot into this aircraft—I would say $800,000 to $1 million went into it. We had reserves of $1.2 million, and another $190,000 in a deposit, so it was very much in our interest to purchase this aircraft at this time, and we are now searching for a third aircraft. It will be up to the Legislative Assembly whether to guarantee it, to lease it, or whatever.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I wonder if the Honourable Minister could tell us if Cayman Airways has any plans to sell VP CAL, as I understand this is the one that has cost us a lot of money to maintain?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: On the last comment, it really does not cost us any more than we would probably pay for a similar type of aircraft. Maybe the lady Member is right from this point of view—we have put a lot of money into this aircraft. We have put in new seats, for example, and we put in the new overhead bins, we put in a GPF, a T-Cass instrument, we removed some long-term tanks. A lot of money has gone into that, but it has increased the value of the aircraft.

On that point, what would be best, and what the Board thinks would be best, is if we could have three aircraft as similar as possible. There is a difference between CAL, which is a '79 aircraft with the analogue instruments (in other words, there are little "hands" on them), compared to the CKX, which is a 1984 aircraft, quite a new aircraft. It is one year before they stopped making them. That actually has what is commonly referred to as a glass cockpit. It is all digital. So there is a difference. And to keep the spare parts similar would mean probably $200,000-$300,000 less in parts we would have to keep for them. So there is a five-year difference in age. If there was an opportunity to get the third one, we would have to match one or the other of them as best we could. Then further down, subject to the Board, if there were a third aircraft, and we could do some sort of swap—because we will soon own CAL, we are down to US$2.8 million or US$2.7 million on that—then it would be better.

The lady Member is right—to have the three aircraft as near as possible. But we would not do that unless the price was right and it could be done without disrupting service, and that sort of thing.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: For purposes of clarity, continuing the line of questioning by the Member for North Side, can the Minister state if the guarantee given in recent months in Finance Committee for $7.5 million was for the aircraft purchased three or four weeks ago? If so, how much of that guarantee was used to purchase the aircraft? If there is any remaining balance, what is the intention of Cayman Airways—to let it fall away, or to use those funds for something else?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The aircraft—and I am just giving round figures here—when deducting the reserves we paid on it, and deducting the deposit, we got it in the area of $6.8 million. It is an eight point something million dollar aircraft. So we do have, as you can see, a substantial amount on the guarantee, which remains for two things: We did not immediately fund the reserves on that which came to us, and we have to still do the hush-kitting for the noise on the engines. So while the guarantee was probably given to Royal Bank for, say, $7.5 million (or whatever it was), we still have some of that to be drawn down, and we have to do the hush-kitting on that soon, within the next six months or so, I would think.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Getting back to the Funded Aircraft Maintenance Reserves of $1.59 million, can the Honourable Minister state if this represents cash put in the bank to be used when necessary, or is this a figure needed to be placed in reserves, but the actual cash is not there?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: This amount should sit in a deposit in the bank. It is drawn down as we do the checks. So it could be more or less, depending on where we are with the reserves. But I have specifically required that, unlike the past where we had book entries, one of two things has to happen: There has to be either a deposit in place (which I think is the position, because I have seen deposits there), or it has to be within the capacity of the overdraft limit which, as you can see at the end of December we only had $1.2 million drawn down on the overdraft, and I think that overdraft limit is maybe $2.4 million. I am reasonably certain that all, or substantially all, would be in reserves. It does go up and down, it can be drawn down heavily after a heavier check.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. In a previous statement made by the Minister to this Honourable House there was some $19 million owed by Cayman Airways, which Cayman Airways will not be able to pay. Can the Minister state if that $19 million he was referring to is a part of these total liabilities? If that is the case, can he outline what comprises the $19 million out of the detail given in the answer?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The $19 million, or whatever amount it was at that time, would have comprised the first—I guess it would have been the $17,671,194 and the $2.4 [million], or whatever amount it was at that time, because the maintenance reserve should be sitting in cash. So if you looked at a balance sheet there should be money on the other side to substantially balance that out. If the Honourable Member will look, he will see that. . . well, with that included, the total recorded liabilities are $21.6 million, and in 1992 they were $37.9 million. But I am sure that. . . and in 1992 there would not have been reserves, that is why it would have been a straight figure without that.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Can the Honourable Minister state what level of subsidy is given by the Government on an annual basis to Cayman Airways? Before he answers, I want to clarify what I am asking. I am of the understanding that outside of the amount given as a subsidy to Cayman Airways annually in the Estimates, there are other amounts which include advertising and the fees which are supposed to be paid by Cayman Airways to other government agencies, which are either waived or forgiven after periods of time. I am trying to solicit from the Minister (in his own terms, "in round figures") what it actually costs the Government to subsidise Cayman Airways for it to continue to operate, on an annual basis, that is—not leaving out anything.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The subsidy given by Finance Committee, and this all comes through Finance Committee, is $4 million a year. To that, this year there is $600,000 for advertising, and $1 million to begin paying off the pre-1992 long-term debts. [Inaudible interjections] No, that's right! It is the $4 million, the $1 million, the $600,000. . . and out of the $10 million in this is what is also owed to the Civil Aviation Authority and I guess maybe Immigration and Customs for overtime.

The other side of the coin is that each year, Cayman Airways pays back to Government through its subsidiary. . . it is now paying for one of the jets, close to $1.3 million comes back; and on the new CKX jet that we are purchasing, it is about $1.7 million, so there is a total of US$3 million that comes back to the Government, which will ultimately own the two aircraft. I hope I have made myself clear on that.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, and I do appreciate the very detailed answer which the Honourable Minister went to pains to give. Having given the answer, can the Minister state if the money he talks about coming back to Government really makes much difference? Because if it were not paid to Government for Cayman Airways to operate, it would have to be paid to someone else.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The Honourable Member is quite right. But with the business approach taken to Cayman Airways, instead of paying $3 million to an American or English company, which would own it abroad, the $3 million is paid back to Government. Like I said earlier, Government now owns one jet that is worth $7.5 million to $8 million. We only owe US$2.7 on it. So we have close to $5 million accrued in one plane

I endorse what the Honourable Member has said, and I endorse the support of this Honourable House. We should never lease from a foreign company when we can purchase ourselves, and pay the money to ourselves, and I really appreciate the support that Honourable Member and others have given in turning around—because at one stage in 1990-1991 we were paying out in the area of $13 million a year to Guinness-Peat Aviation, mainly, and also to California Leasing Company on the 737 400s, the new planes.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Can the Honourable Minister state if, outside of the answers he has given regarding Government subsidy, there are any other agencies of Government used on a regular basis by Cayman Airways, to which there is no bill attached for services provided?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I guess the only other thing I can think of is legal services. I am just trying to think. If the Honourable Member could jog my memory, I am really trying to be helpful and constructive. It is about maybe $50,000 a year in legal advice that we should be paying for.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Yes, that was one of the areas I was thinking of, but since the Minister has set the stage, I will not pursue that area any more right now.

It is my understanding that every area in Government has to make travel arrangements through Cayman Airways on an annual basis. It is also my understanding that considerable savings could be acquired by Government if they used other agencies to make these travel arrangements. Can the Minister state if any equation has been used to determine what increased costs are incurred by Government by this arrangement, and what savings could be determined if the policy was not as such, and Government and all its agencies were in a position to deal with the travel arrangements as they saw fit?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: While Cayman Airways endeavours not to compete with private travel agents. . . . Well, the system in place in Government is that we now have one lady (and I think another one is coming in) who deals with Government's tickets and bookings. That lady is well experienced, and should be getting, especially with our new reservations system. . . and the Honourable Member is quite right. Before the new reservations system was in, there could have been times when they actually had to call overseas to find out what was the better fare. But that system is in place, and Government books through Cayman Airways, which I think is fair. Government owns Cayman Airways, but I would like to say again, the aim of Cayman Airways is not to compete with the travel agencies on other business, and hopefully that will remain that way.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 23 (7) & (8)

The Speaker: Before I call for another supplementary, I would entertain a motion for the suspension of Standing Order 23(7) and (8), so Question Time may continue beyond 11.00.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, I so move.

The Speaker: Do we have a seconder? The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I second the motion.

The Speaker: The motion has been moved and seconded. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. Standing Order 23(7) and (8) is suspended.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 23(7) AND (8) SUSPENDED.

The Speaker: Question Time continues.
The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: One final supplementary: First of all, regarding the answer the Honourable Minister just gave, the line of questioning was not directed at any competition, but having heard the answer, I ask the Minister if he would give an undertaking to investigate the pros and cons of this arrangement, so a sensible assessment can be made. If it is costing the Government—and I am not trying to exaggerate—hundreds of thousands of dollars more on an annual basis, simply to support the airline—and I am not questioning whether they should or should not support the airline, but I think we need to determine whether it makes sense for Government to stick to that arrangement, if the costs incurred are greater than the benefits received—I am asking if the Minister would, as he has dealt with it so far, deal with it in the same fashion, to determine which is the best arrangement? And upon that determination, to please inform the House what decision is taken regarding that arrangement.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I am very happy to give that undertaking because it should be that the person dealing with Government's tickets should be getting the same competitive prices that we get with the travel agents. Obviously, it will have to be checked out, but I have asked the Managing Director to do so.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, I had finished, but the last sentence the Honourable Minister gave—and I say this with the greatest of respect—I do not believe the Managing Director is the person to be given that task, because he is the Managing Director of Cayman Airways. If Cayman Airways is to be included in the review, then certainly someone from Government must be placed in the same position. I would not like to know that it is a one-sided affair.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Boddan: Mr. Speaker, the Managing Director is delighted to have someone else do it. He has enough work as it is! I must say, this has to have been the longest question in the history of this House, because we have over one hour of supplementaries, and I have really tried to co-operate throughout on this, Sir.

The Speaker: I think we have exhausted the supplementaries on that one, yes.

Question number 55, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION 55

(deferred 30 March 1998)

No. 55: Mr. Linford A. Pierson asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning, to state the balance of the surplus/deficit account and outstanding bills of Cayman Airways Ltd as at 31 December 1997, or the most recent figures.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Boddan: Mr. Speaker, the balance of the unaudited surplus/deficit account of Cayman Airways Ltd., as at 31 December 1997 for the year then ended, is a deficit sum of US$2,569,932. Out of this, rentals of US$1,128,000 for the B737-200 jet aircraft being purchased by the Cayman Islands Government's wholly-owned Cayman Aviation Leasing Ltd., and US$1,236,000 for CKX Ltd.

If Cayman Airways Ltd. owned this jet and not Government's company, there would have been a surplus of US$2,884,000 for the 28 months Cayman Airways Ltd. made these payments to Government's company.

Similarly, Cayman Airways Ltd will be paying US$1,488,000 per annum on the B737-200 aircraft registration VP-CKX, which is the second jet purchased by Government's wholly-owned company, CKX Aviation Leasing Ltd.

These rents are substantially higher than the present lease payments, therefore Cayman Airways Ltd will show an increased loss while Government's company will show an increased profit.

Government's company, Cayman Aviation Leasing Ltd now owns a Boeing 737-200 jet aircraft whose market value is about US$7.5m, but only owes at 31 December 1997 the sum of US$2.9m, showing a profit of US$4.6m. The outstanding bills of Cayman Airways Ltd as at 31 December 1997 are as per attached list. [See Appendix] This is the list I gave earlier. I put these two questions together because they overlapped in relation to the debts owed.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Could the Honourable Minister give an indication of how and when it is expected that the deficit sum of US$2.5m will be adjusted?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Boddan: The way I hope to try to restructure this is, further down, for Cayman Airways to pay the market value rental and Government itself, which owns the jet, to pay part of the loan for the ownership. For example, we could probably rent this aircraft (for which we are paying $1.5m) on the market for half the price, if we were paying it to a foreign company.

That Honourable Member is a professional accountant, and he knows that while what I am doing is making Cayman Airways balance sheet profit and loss look worse—because this $3m a year going to Government is coming out as a loss, rather than going in as the purchase of an asset—that Honourable Member knows the reasons for separating it out legally. At some stage I will have to try to do some adjustment between Government's leasing account companies, which are building up some nice profits, and maybe Cayman Airways.

I also ask, because I was left with about $18m or $19m of debt some years ago, for the Legislature to help me retire it over a period, if possible, because while I am paying on it every month—we are paying $600,000 a year on principal, along with the interest, which is probably $1m on the past debts—help me try to wipe that out and see if we can at least reduce it, which would ease the interest burden on Cayman Airways.

The only way I see it adjusted would be either from funds coming directly from Finance Committee for Cayman Airways, or going, better still, to the two leasing companies that own the two jets and have them pick up part of the payment to purchase the jets. In other words, what we are paying here, this US$1.8 million, is actually what is going to pay for one jet over five years, and the other over seven years.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, that concludes Question Time for this morning. Item 3 on today's Order Paper, Government Business, Bills, Second Reading.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

BILLS

SECOND READINGS

THE NATIONAL PENSIONS (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1998

The Clerk: The National Pensions (Amendment) Bill, 1998.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: I move the second reading of a Bill for a Law to amend the National Pensions Law, 1996, to promulgate the regulations made under that Law and for incidental and connected purposes.

The Speaker: Do you wish to speak to it?

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: As the Mover of the National Pensions (Amendment) Bill, 1998, and the Regulations made under the National Pensions Law, 1996, I do so against the background of Zechariah 4:6, which states, "Not by might, nor by power, but by my spirit," saith the LORD of Hosts."

By way of introduction, in December of last year when dealing with the suspension of the said National Pensions Law in this Honourable House, I gave an undertaking that in this sitting I would bring the Bill which is before this Honourable House this morning, and that the National Pensions Law and its Regulations would be implemented on June 1 of this year. I am therefore happy to report this morning that God has helped me to keep my word, despite the many obstacles, hurdles and/or controversy. Further, I am happy to report that I am duly informed that a very capable Caymanian has been hired in the post of Administrative Officer for the Pensions Office, and also, that a qualified Superintendent of Pensions has been recruited and is presently in the Cayman Islands.

In addition, the Pensions Board has been duly appointed. With all things being equal, I am satisfied that the regulatory body as required under the National Pensions Law is ready, willing and capable of ensuring that the provisions of the Law are carried out.

For the record, I would also like to say that regardless of one being an attorney, this Law is a highly complex one. Although I have spent many long and arduous hours since December of last year on this legislation, the amending Bill and three sets of regulations, I do not purport even at this stage that it is perfect; nor do I purport to have all the answers. But I can say that I did take the time to read (and often re-read), research, consult, listen and, most importantly, make changes in accordance with what I understood to be the majority view, taking into consideration the feedback my Ministry received. I would perhaps go a bit further and say that as with most Laws, further amendments may be necessary as the Law is put to the test of time, practicality, fairness, natural justice, judicial review, legal interpretation and changes in our Caymanian society.

Even as this Bill and three sets of regulations are debated in this Honourable House today, there will, I am sure, be differences of opinion as well as recommendations worthy of transformation to Committee stage amendments. I would be eternally grateful for any assistance my Honourable colleagues may wish to offer in this regard. I realise that sixteen minds are much better when working together for a common purpose than my one mind—especially if the common purpose is what is best for our beloved people of these Islands. Therefore, I expect and look forward to very constructive and productive debate on this very important Bill and Regulations. I will now turn to the Bill and the Regulations.

Clauses 1 and 2 are formal clauses and therefore need no special introduction. Clause 3 amends a number of definitions in the principal Law as follows -

"additional voluntary contribution" is re-defined so as not to include contributions made by employers.

"conjugal period" is defined to mean the period of a marriage.

"earnings" is re-defined by removing, health insurance premiums and perquisites from the definition, thereby removing them from the employee's income on which his contributions or pension is calculated, and by including in such income only bonus in excess of 20% of basic earnings. This results in a lower liability for employers, but enables those wages or salary profiles as such that the employee's income is substantially composed of performance-related income.

"former member" is redefined to make the meaning clearer, but the meaning itself has not been altered.

"multi-employer pension plan" is redefined to include a plan for self-employed persons, and to delete some redundant wording.

"pension benefit" is re-defined to include benefits of former members when appropriate.

"pension plan" is redefined by amending the descriptions of some of the schemes which are not caught by the definition. Accordingly, the expression does not include schemes to provide cash withdrawals or lump sum repayments, rather than retirement allowances, nor does it include supplementary arrangements for the owners or employees of employer companies. It is important to exclude the possibility of cash withdrawals or lump-sum repayments, as these might be spent or disposed of by the employee, thus defeating the objective of financial provisions for retirement.

“pensionable earnings” is re-defined by providing a maximum income that is to count for pension calculations, such maximum to be prescribed in regulations.

“reciprocal transfer arrangement” is re-defined to make it explicit that arrangements to cover the circumstances of employees who wish to transfer from one plan to another may only cover transfers between plans maintained and administered in the Islands.

“termination” is re-defined to mean the cessation of the accrual of benefits, rather than of pensionable service.

Clause 4 amends section 4 of the principal Law to make it clear that the choice of whether a pension plan is to be a defined benefit pension plan or a defined contribution pension plan is to be that of the employer. This is necessary as the financial effect on the employer of these two different schemes is very different, whereas the employees' contribution will be approximately the same.

Clause 5 amends section 5 of the principal Law by enabling regulations to be made to govern the administration of existing pension plans.

Clause 6 amends section 6 of the principal Law by prescribing circumstances in which existing schemes may continue without being required to register. Accordingly, existing schemes may continue without being registered if they are supplementary to a registered plan, and the existing plans of international employers can continue, subject to a number of safeguards, provided the participant employees fall within the well-designated range intended to protect the rights of long-serving employees who would lose considerably if forced to join a new plan in the closing years of their employment.

Clause 7 amends section 8 of the principal Law by including, in the categories of persons permitted to administer pension plans, trust corporations licensed under the Banks and Trust Companies Law (1995 Revision), and companies whose objects include the administration of pension plans and funds. Pension committees may only act as administrators if they comply with certain conditions as to membership. The clause also amends the conditions under which boards of trustees may be administrators. It also imposes a new duty on administrators to ensure that the people who undertake the administration, custodianship and investment of pension plans and funds are properly experienced.

This is important, Sir. It requires administrators to be based in the jurisdiction of the Cayman Islands. Finally, it removes the requirement to prescribe classes of persons who may be trustees of funds.

Clause 8 amends section 10 of the principal Law by ensuring that a trust agreement which establishes a pension plan shall set out the trustees' duties, whether or not they are formed into a Board of Trustees.

Clause 9 amends section 7 (sic) [11] of the principal Law to provide that provision for additional voluntary contributions will not invalidate a plan, which otherwise must provide for a uniform accrual rate.

Clause 10 amends section 12 of the principal Law to enable permitted amendments to a plan to be approved by the members by written ballot as well as at a meeting, and to require the agreement of the employer to an amendment.

Clause 11 amends section 13 of the principal Law by better defining certain amendments to pension plans which are not permitted.

Clause 12 amends section 16 of the principal Law by better defining costs which may be paid out of a pension fund on dismissal of the administrator.

Clause 13 amends section 17 of the principal Law by allowing for the administrator of a plan who is also a member to receive ancillary benefits. It also makes it discretionary that the costs of administration of the plan should be borne by the fund.

Clause 14 amends section 21 of the principal Law by making the provisions of the section, which regulates the manner in which notice of proposed amendments has to be given by the administrator, apply to all amendments in respect of both defined benefit and defined contribution pension plans.

Clause 15 amends section 22 of the principal Law by better defining the ancillary benefits to be described in the annual statement provided to plan members.

Clause 16 amends section 25 of the principal Law by better defining the circumstances in which employers do not need to provide, or contribute to, pension plans. In particular, there will be no obligation on an employer after the normal retirement age, with agreements, to provide a plan. Although there is a motion which is coming up, I am cognisant of Standing Order 37 which deals with anticipation. As a result I will not propose to go into those amendments as put out except to say that the Government is prepared (when the time comes) to agree to those amendments.

Clause 24 amends section 34 of the principal Law by permitting the transfer of an amount equal to the value of the deferred benefit to which a member is entitled, notwithstanding that he may be entitled to immediate payment of the pension benefit.

Clause 25 amends section 36 (which is also subject to the proposed motion) by providing that, in the case of joint and survivor pensions, on the death of the member when his pension is in payment the surviving spouse will receive 60% of the member's pension providing that the surviving spouse shall be the trustee of one-half of her pension for the maintenance, education, and benefit of the children. Provision is also made for the court to appoint a trustee for that purpose if necessary; that is, if there is need and if the children are being neglected and it is in the best interest of the children. It is only then that section 36(6) will become operative.

Clause 26 clarifies section 38 of the principal Law by using words which are consistent with the rest of the Law.

Clause 27 amends section 39 of the principal Law by clarifying the right of a spouse of a member who dies before retirement. It also removes the availability of an election to designate a beneficiary solely on the grounds that the member and his spouse are not living together at the date of death.

Clause 28 inserts a new section into the principal Law so that, in the case of an employee whose membership of a pension plan has resulted in a pension benefit the actuarial present value of which is $5,000 or less, the administrator may distribute the benefit, on retirement or death of the employee, as a single lump sum cash payment.

Clause 29 amends section 42 of the principal Law by clarifying that no court order may provide for the payment to the spouse of a member more than one half of the pension benefit to which the member is entitled.

Clause 30 amends section 46 of the principal Law to clarify that a member's maximum contribution is 5% of his pensionable earnings, and that the employer's contribution is of at least an identical amount except where there is found to be a shortfall in a defined benefit pension plan after an actuarial assessment, where the employer has to make up the shortfall. It also provides for reduced contributions to be made during the early years after the commencement of the Law, for the making of additional voluntary contributions, and for the possibility of membership in a plan continuing after the normal retirement age with the agreement of employer and employee.

Clause 31 (which is also subject to the motion if brought to the House) amends section 52 of the principal Law by clarifying the entitlement of members to refunds, by allowing non-residents to withdraw their accrued pension funds six months after termination of their employment, and by replacing a technical defective reference to cost.

Clause 32 amends section 54 of the principal Law by permitting transfers arising from all forms of matrimonial court orders affecting the member's marriage.

Clause 33 amends section 55 of the principal Law by providing an exception to the rule of exemption of money payable under a pension plan from execution, seizure or attachment for court orders to make payments to spouses on divorce or separation.

Clause 34 amends section 56 of the principal Law by providing that the prohibition on commuting or surrendering pensions or benefits is subject to provisions to the contrary elsewhere in the Law.

This is an important safeguard as it offers a degree of protection to children and spouses upon divorce or separation whereby maintenance or other related payments can be made against the member's pension plan.

Clause 35 amends section 37 (sic) [57] of the principal Law by requiring the administrator to notify participating employers of proposals to wind up pension plans.

Clause 36 amends section 61 of the principal Law by clarifying that the administrator has to act in accordance with the plan member's former spouse's election.

Clause 37 amends section 62 of the principal Law by clarifying entitlements on winding up of a pension plan.

Clause 38 amends section 63 of the principal Law by providing that all members of a plan are treated equally if the plan is partially or wholly wound up.

Clause 39 amends section 64 of the principal Law by emphasising that, on termination of a plan, employers' obligations extend to all participating employers and by providing that contributions deducted but not yet credited to pension plans shall be preferential debts in the enforcement of judgments against employers.

Clause 40 amends section 66 of the principal Law, which prohibits surpluses being distributed to employers, by providing that such prohibition does not extend to plans which had a surplus prior to the date of commencement of the principal Law.

Clause 41 amends section 48 (sic) [68] of the principal Law by clarifying the effect of using a plan as a successor to an existing plan.

Clause 42 amends section 78 of the principal Law by removing the requirement of having the Superintendent of Pensions being appointed by the Governor-in-Council and the requirement inserted to have the appointment of the Superintendent gazetted. Now the Superintendent of Pensions will be a natural civil servant as opposed to being appointed by Executive Council, which I was not in favour of.

Clause 43 amends section 82 of the principal Law by identifying Members of Executive Council as well as the members of employees of the Board and the Superintendent.

Clause 44 amends section 87 of the principal Law by clarifying a reference to inspection orders.

Clause 45 amends section 94 of the principal Law by providing a general regulation-making power and by enabling regulations to be made specifically to prescribe the manner in which pension benefits may be divided on break-up of marriage.

In relation to the substantive Bill, Clause 46 provides for the regulations to be brought into effect on the same date as the commencement of the principal Law, being 1 June, 1998.

Turning now to the General Regulations: These regulations are made to fulfil the many requirements for prescribed details under the Law. They are based on the recommendations of the consultants, but also reflect the views of the private sector and, indeed, the views of Government.

Regulation 1 provides for the citation.

Regulation 2 is an interpretation provision.

Regulation 3 empowers the Superintendent to publish an application form for registration of a pension plan and prescribes the fee as $5.00 per member with a minimum of $250.

Regulation 4 sets out the details to be sent by an administrator to the Superintendent prior to amending a plan.

Regulation 5 sets out procedural requirements that apply to a meeting of the plan members called by the administrator to approve proposed amendments to said plan.

Regulation 6 empowers the Superintendent to publish an application form for registration of amendments to a pension plan and prescribes a fee for the registration of the proposed amendment as $25.00; and for the registration of the substantive amendment as $500.00.

Regulation 7 specifies the manner and time in which contributions have to be paid to the plan.

Regulation 8 sets out the graduated scale of contributions that may be paid during the opening years of the scheme.

Regulation 9 specifies the manner in which any surplus in any defined benefit plan may be disposed of. Defined benefit plans are required to be actuarially assessed periodically and surpluses are sometimes detected on such occasions.

Regulation 10 enables the Superintendent to prescribe the form of the annual information return and specifies the period by which it may be made and the fees payable.

Regulation 11 deals with the transfer of pension benefits from one plan to another under section 34 of a member who changes his employment. It specifies time limits, imposes conditions on transfers and prescribes that the transfer provision in the Law do not apply to guaranteed benefits accrued before six months after the Law comes into force.

Regulation 12 specifies the type and contents of retirement savings arrangements to which transferring members may have their funds transferred.

Regulation 13 specifies the contents of the insurance contract for a life annuity which may be purchased with the funds of a transferring member.

Regulation 14 limits the exceptional circumstances in which members may receive funds from pension plans to those plans which make provisions for such refunds to cases where after the proposed refund the plan will remain fully funded and by implication to define benefit schemes.

Regulation 15 prescribes the contents of a notice of proposal to wind up a pension plan.

Regulation 16 prescribes the contents of the notice to be given to members where a pension plan is wound up.

Regulation 17 sets out the details of who is to write a winding up report when a pension plan is wound up, what it is to contain and what other steps have to be taken when the report is filed.

Regulation 18 sets out the steps that have to be taken in order to equalise the losses if there is a short-fall in the fund of a plan that has to be wound up.

Regulation 19 sets out the documents that have to be filed after a plan is wound up.

Regulation 20 sets out the information to be provided to a person who is to become a member of a pension plan.

Regulation 21 provides a time limit of 60 days from registration within which an administrator has to explain to the members of a plan the effect of an amendment that has been made to said plan.

Regulation 22 provides that if the Superintendent authorises an administrator not to serve a notice under Regulation 21, it may be sent to the members at the next annual statement.

Regulation 23 prescribes the contents of the annual statement that is to be provided to the members of a pension plan.

Regulation 24 prescribes the contents of the statements to be provided by the administrator on the death of a member or former member.

Regulation 25 prescribes the contents of the statements to be given by the administrator to a member who intends to retire.

Regulation 26 sets out the documents and information that must be provided free of charge to the persons specified in the Law upon request.

Regulation 27 provides that where an administrator who has been served with a copy of a court order made upon divorce or separation for maintenance, etc., receives a notice from the member terminating his membership he must inform the person named in the order, usually the spouse or child of the member, provide the person with a copy of the statement under Regulation 26 and also advise the person of their rights under the said Law.

Regulation 28 sets up conditions under which rights are transferred by a transferring member to another plan.

Regulation 29 sets out the terms and conditions which will apply when a pension plan is set up to be a successor to an existing plan.

Regulation 30 sets out the procedure to be followed when an employer proposes to provide a plan under the Law.

Regulation 31 provides that the plan's financial year end shall, in absence of expressed provision to the contrary, end on the 30 June.

Regulation 32 makes provision to enable the benefits accrued during a marriage to be determined on the date specified as the valuation, etc., of the said marriage.

Regulation 33 requires the administrator of a pension plan to file with the Superintendent details of any reciprocal transfer agreements made with other plans.

Regulation 34 prescribes benefits transferred from one plan to another under a reciprocal transfer agreement as being able to be excluded in determining the actuarial value of a benefit which is subject to the rule in the Law limiting the total actuarial benefit that is attributable to the member's contribution. The Law provides that not more than 50% of the pension benefit must be attributable to the member's contribution.

Regulation 35 sets out the procedure that governs the formation of the advisory committee for the plan.

Regulation 36 limits pensionable earnings to $60,000 per annum.

Regulation 37 limits the amount that can be transferred from a defined benefit plan where the fund is not fully funded so as to avoid depletion of the fund to the detriment of the remaining members.

Regulation 38 sets up the terms and conditions that are to apply if the benefits under a defined benefit plan are to be converted to a defined contribution account.

Regulation 39 requires the interest and earnings of defined contribution accounts and AVCs to a defined benefit scheme to be credited at least annually. It also sets out technical conditions to which interest payments are subject.

Regulation 40 sets the administrative provisions subject to which the pension benefit is payable on the breakdown of a marriage.

Investment Regulations: These regulations govern the manner in which the pension funds may be invested. They are very much the work of the consultants and I would respectfully recommend that no amendment be accepted without first consulting them as they can have a domino effect on the other regulations.

Regulation 3 sets out the proportions in which the assets of a pension fund may be invested in particular types of securities to ensure that not all eggs are placed in one basket, that the degree of risk is not too high and that there is sufficient liquidity in the funds.

Regulation 4 lists the types of securities in which pension funds may not be invested. They are in accordance with the recommendations of the consultants as well.

Regulation 5 requires the formal review of investments every month by the administrator to ensure that they comply with the said regulations.

Regulation 6 limits the ability of the fund to be loaned.

Regulation 7 limits a fund owing not more than 10% of any class of shares of a company, mutual fund or unit trust.

Regulation 8 imposes a further prohibitive class of investment.

Regulation 9 limits the ability of funds to be invested in mortgages of land.

Regulation 10 requires financial statements to be filed and prescribes their training and content.

Regulation 11 requires the keeping and submission of a register of members and prescribes its content.

Regulation 12 prohibits borrowing on behalf of a fund.

Regulation 13 requires all investments and loans to be held in the name of the fund.

Regulation 14 restricts the ability of the administrator to pledge or to mortgage the assets of the fund.

Regulation 15 makes special provision where the arrangements for liquidation, merger, etc., of a company in which the funds hold shares results in the prescribed limits being exceeded.

Lastly, moving to the third set of regulations, being the Actuarial and Fund Management Regulations. These Regulations govern the relationship between contributions to the fund and benefits payable. They are, if anything, even less susceptible to political intervention and, as apart from technical amendments, any such proposals must again not be accepted before first submitting them to the consultants as these are very technical provisions. The terms used throughout these Regulations are technical terms of art that are familiar to the world of actuaries, insurance, fund management and sometimes bear obscure and unexpected meanings. The Regulations deal mainly with the defined benefit plans.

Regulation 3 governs the funding of a defined benefit plan. In dealing with such plans it is important to ensure that the fund has enough in it to support the pensions that would have to be paid in a worse case scenario, and the various provisions. This Regulation is designed to ensure just that.

Regulation 4 ensures that various reports that have to be filed during the life of a defined benefit contain the information that is needed to enable the Superintendent to check that it can support its liabilities.

Regulation 5 ensures that any amendment to a defined benefit plan is able to be checked to ensure the continued validity of any such plan.

Regulation 6 provides that the actuary of a plan and the Superintendent use the appropriate professional judgments.

Regulation 7 prescribes actuarial information to be provided on the registration of a defined contribution plan.

Regulation 8 makes limited provision for inflation protection by providing the benefits provided under a plan must increase by 2% annually.

Regulation 9 makes technical provisions to govern the calculation of benefits transferred from a defined benefit plan.

In closing, I thank you, Sir, and all other Members of this Honourable House, for your kind indulgence. I am extremely grateful and appreciative for the productive meetings which we have had, not only with the private sector, but with my Honourable colleagues in this House, and for all of the views put forward.

I would also like to thank the Chamber of Commerce, the media, the many members of the public for the important role they have played in the evolution of this Bill and its accompanying Regulations.

My sincere appreciation is also extended to the consultants and other professional persons who offered their expertise. And thanks one million times over to my dedicated and hard working staff, especially to Mr. Clive Grenyer who has been most accommodating at the most awkward of hours.

I also wish to thank the former Minister for his foresight and vision in bringing such an important piece of legislation to this Honourable House which I believe that all and sundry will agree that, once passed, can only be of paramount importance and of great benefit to all of our beloved people in these Islands.

I would also like to thank my colleagues on Executive Council for the many hours they spent in trying to bring this Bill and accompanying Regulations to the House this morning. Last, but not least, I would like to thank the staff, and in particular the Clerk of the Legislative Assembly for her assistance whenever called upon, and for the humility she displayed in responding thereto.

And, as normal, I would like to thank Almighty God for His patience and strength, for wisdom, knowledge and understanding in bringing this most controversial piece of legislation and accompanying amendments to this Bill. I ask that we do, as Honourable Members this day and the days to come, what we honestly believe is in the best interests of all of the people of the Cayman Islands. In so doing, I believe it will take sacrifice in many areas. But I thank Members for exercising discretion in this regard and may God continue to bless us all.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled The National Pensions (Amendment) Bill, 1998 be given a second reading. Before I open it to debate, I think this would be a convenient time for the morning break. We shall suspend for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.51 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12.27 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Debate continues on the second reading of the National Pensions (Amendment) Bill, 1998. The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: This is indeed a momentous occasion in the life of our country and in the history of this Parliament. This occasion will mark the second time that major debate has been evoked on this matter of pensions.

Many Honourable Members will recall that when the original effort was brought to this House by the now First Elected Member for West Bay, there was great emotion and debate by Members, as well as emotion from the general public. The amendments and the Law which they seek to clarify are perhaps the most far-reaching pieces of legislation in the modern evolution of this country. I noticed that the Honourable Minister in her opening presentation to the National Pensions (Amendment) Bill, 1998, was rather gracious in her acknowledgements regarding the efforts of the former Minister (now the First Elected Member for West Bay), and the Backbench and other Honourable Members of this Parliament, even the group of us who have found what I would call a common cause in recent times and have been (for want of a better expression) hanging out together.

Let me hasten to add that it was not an easy task, and the Government did not go kindly, because up until a few days ago it had to be dragged kicking, screaming, and objecting to certain amendments which those of us who have found a common cause proposed. So, while I take note of the graciousness, I also want to mention that the Government was not always open and conducive to suggestions—at least from those of us who hang out together.

Regrettably, as a result of the intransigence of the Government we got into a little acrimony, and one of our members was inadvertently cast into a bad light because that Honourable Member was entrusted with an exercise to take some amendments to be discussed with certain people. Some elements tried—I would hope inadvertently—to portray that the Member had been negotiating. That, Mr. Speaker, was not the case. I apologised privately to the Member because certain comments I made were not related to that Member's efforts because I knew...and that Honourable Member being the Third Elected Member for George Town, went with my tacit approval as he did for other Members. But I want to say that I have told my colleagues that that exercise must put an end to our doing business in that kind of way. I have made a clarion call that the business of the country must stop being discussed in the boiler room. This is the House of politics and the House of the people's business, so no longer will anyone be going. I cannot stop them from going—whether my respected colleague (as is the Third Elected Member for George Town), or someone with a little more distant relationship. But no longer will I be giving anyone my proxy because it is too easy for smart elements to take advantage, to twist and turn things, and misconstrue making the public believe that it has our support.

I recall vividly an afternoon down at the Clarion. I went there with the present First Elected Member for George Town. What we witnessed that afternoon was nothing short of spectacular. Even though the relationship is different now, I could not but admire the pluck and the strength of the former Minister (the present First Elected Member for West Bay) who was discussing with an audience full of people—99% of which were hostile. . . I believe the only two there with an open mind were the present First Elected Member for George Town and I. Things got so bad and so hot for the Minister that he had to tell one of his former colleagues (who is no longer here) that she had to decide whether she was fish or fowl! So I am not exaggerating when I say that probably the only two persons with an open mind were the First Elected Member for George Town and I. We at least listened and observed and did not try to put any logs in the way.

From that, we have come to this. I have said that that Member (the First Elected Member for West Bay) really laid the foundation. As difficult as this task may seem now, he made it easy. He bore the brunt of the objections. While there are still some areas of controversy and concern, I believe that we have passed the worst.

I am not going into the clause-by-clause description of the Bill as was done by the Minister presenting it, I would like to limit myself to some general comments and observations and then express the concerns I hold mostly on behalf of my constituents. My colleagues will articulate on behalf of their constituents.

I think the most significant point to raise is that we have to arrive at this point of national pensions because in the report by the National Audit Office entitled "Contingent Liabilities in the Dependent Territories" significant comments were made on the moral obligation of the United Kingdom Government concerning this whole business of pensions. Indeed, on page 36 of the report a case is described in Gibraltar where the United Kingdom Government had to assume responsibility to Spanish pensioners who were working in Gibraltar. It says in paragraph 4.27 "The value of the estimated payments until the year 2026 is about £140 million or some eighty million in present value terms." So we see that this whole business of pensions is one which, if we had not come to some significant and practical arrangement, the United Kingdom would have had to add to its moral obligation. Quite frankly, they were very concerned about that, so by us taking this step we are relieving them of a great burden, and well we should.

What I find disconcerting is that there are sections in these amendments which are clearly discriminatory to our people: Yet, in the Law as brought forward by the former Minister these sections were not there. When originally discussed, they were not there. I am talking about this whole business of the exclusion of expatriates. Common logic and common sense should tell us that excluding persons who work in these Islands, or as we commonly call them 'expatriates,' would make the situation not only discriminatory for Caymanians, but difficult for them to gain employment in circumstances where there are already complaints about Caymanians getting certain employment. It goes this far: A business person called me up to tell me that if that remained as proposed, they would find a way to get rid of all of their Caymanian employees because it would make good economic sense to hire expatriates where they would not have to make pension contributions.

I find that clause excluding expatriates surprising, especially since the National Team made one of their platform planks that they were going to look out for the interests of Caymanians. I also find that there are certain sections in these amendments that are blatantly discriminatory against women. Again, I am surprised. I am surprised for two reasons: 1) That the Minister responsible for this is, herself, a lady; and 2) that most Honourable Members in here have to be cognisant of the roles women play in this society. I cannot, therefore, understand how it could be proposed that hardworking women could be deprived of their ability to use resources they inherited, or that were bequeathed to them, and that such resources could be tied up partially in a trust, which, to my mind, evokes images of complications—trustees, administrators, people to manage the trust. I heard one comment made on Issues 27 making the point that such an arrangement could not be beneficial to those to whom the arrangement was intended to benefit.

That amendment not only speaks of a kind of chauvinism but is coloured by apparent personal prejudice. I cannot stand here as a rational person and support that. I do not see why my personal prejudice, or any other Member's personal prejudice, should be brought into Laws and Regulations which are intended to benefit the general population. I cannot support that.

The Chamber of Commerce did extensive work, as I recall, from the very inception of this exercise. The Chamber has continued to be actively involved in the work of bringing national pensions to this country. Recently, the Chamber did a survey (March 1998), the results of which have been widely circulated. While I will not go into the intricate details of these surveys, let me say that while it is not a purely scientific survey, for our purposes it can be taken as authoritative. In the absence of anything more scientific and authoritative, I have to say that this questionnaire is an authentic document and a good point from which we can make a fair analysis of the national attitude towards pensions in the Cayman Islands.

A total of 3,769 employees were surveyed. To the question on the proposed amendment which would include all non-Caymanian status holders, 118 persons said they disagreed with this amendment as against 41 who agreed. I think that is indicative of the attitude people have towards exclusionary amendments.

What I find difficult to understand is the atmosphere in which negotiations and discussions have taken place, particularly as it concerns Honourable Members of this House. I have to marvel at the nature of such discussions. I have been here long enough to know that quite often, in spite of the pronouncements we make, there is a level of intolerance and insincerity—particularly on the part of the Government—in accepting any amendments or suggestions put forward by Members other than the Government. It is always a struggle; perhaps it is not meant to be easy. I understand the cut and thrust of debate, and I also understand the power play indicative of these types of negotiations. But I am saying that there is a complete lack of sincerity when it comes to articulating positions. There is an absolute lack of sincerity when it comes down to certain people accepting these, particularly if they think it does not suit them.

I have to ask at the very outset, Whose idea was it, that expatriates be included? Every country where this kind of social legislation is in place, all persons who are legally in the country and working make some payments, under whatever plan it is. I cannot see why we should have been so foolhardy. I want to make the point that I am concerned about the conflicts of interest I see arising from these kinds of amendments and discussions and the work that goes into them. What I am going to say next is not easy...

The Speaker: If you are going on to another subject, would this be a convenient time to take the luncheon suspension?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Yes, Sir.

The Speaker: Proceedings are suspended until 2.30 PM.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.48 PM
PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.36 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, continuing.

Mr. Roy Bodden: When we took the suspension, I was about to comment on the nature of the discussions and some areas of problems and, indeed, what I consider a predicament. From the outset there has been widespread consultation on this matter of pensions and one and all can agree that the matter continues to be very emotional.

I am particularly perturbed, and I am trying to express this in a way where I bring out the full effect of what I am going to say. I believe that it is necessary for us to be completely transparent when it comes to matters of great public importance and matters of national importance. I have always been an advocate of a clear definition of our roles. The Hansards of this House will record my lamenting the possibility of removing ourselves from conflicts. And I am fond of saying that we should be like Caesar demanded of his wife—not only pure, but seen to be pure.

I do not know whether it was by sheer force of circumstances or neglect. I do not want to speculate. But I was surprised and somewhat chagrined to know that the Leader of Government Business sat down and discussed the pensions, and discussed the ramifications, while sitting as a director of an institution which is, itself, participating in a pension plan, selling it to the public. Mr. Speaker, where I come from that is certainly not acceptable! I want to record my displeasure with that type of activity, and I am saying these kinds of activities need to come to an end. When we do that we are putting ourselves in a position of being accused of a conflict of interests, or worse.

That Minister will have his turn to explain his position, but not before I say that anything that Minister has said or done in this regard has to be coloured by his position. While I would not go so far as to say that the speaker cannot speak—I would not deprive him of his democratic rights. I am saying that he should not vote because he is in a position to be accused of a conflict of interests or worse. I take this matter seriously, and I say it is time for these kinds of things to be put to an end in the business of this country.

I had other things to say, but I believe that I have said enough on this matter. Thank you.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak?

The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: I rise to offer my contribution on the proposed amendments to the National Pensions Law, the proposed regulations in investment policies of the Pension Law.

Let me first of all congratulate the two Ministers who have had the responsibility of piloting this very important piece of legislation through this Honourable House. After much consultation with members of the business community, and citizens of the country as a whole, and the elected representatives of the people, I personally feel that we would have arrived at a position which is affordable and acceptable to all parties concerned. On a personal basis, I have read the Law and the Regulations, and I will offer my thoughts and comments on the new proposals.

When the new Minister took over, she circulated what is known as a 'White Paper' for comments from the general public. It had some very significant amendments to the original plan, that is, the main question of whether or not expatriates here on work permits should be included in the plan. Subsequent to that being circulated we met as a group, that is, all Members, to discuss the proposed amendments and the feedback from the public. I must say that I appreciate the attitude that the new Minister took with regard to the suggestions. I took what she said to be genuine and correct, and I understood that she was only interested in arriving at a position that was supported by a majority of the representatives and the people.

What I did, in addition to the number of persons calling me and discussing the proposals, was take time to speak to a few, should I say, influential members of the business community and I got their thoughts on who should be included in the proposed National Pensions plan. One of the persons I spoke to was a would-be provider of the programme. He said that because he was already a part of the community, regardless of what position Government took, he would support and make available a pension programme. But it would make it much more attractive if the expatriates were included, in particular those persons here on work permits other than temporary work permits.

This person also mentioned something I never thought of: Because expats could be a part of a pension plan in a tax free environment, it would be very attractive from the standpoint of attracting money into the country. As I understand it, there is no limit on the contribution a member can make on his own in excess of the required amount, which is 5%. The comments he got back were that many of those persons do have money in other jurisdictions, maybe where they came from, and what they would do is make arrangements to have those funds, or a portion of those funds, transferred here to be a part of this pension plan here in the Cayman Islands.

If that were the case, the concerns expressed by Government when it circulated the White Paper (in respect to funds leaving the country if there were a slow-down or otherwise in the country), seem to have been unfounded. In other words, there is not a great possibility of that happening. I asked the provider for his thoughts in regard to who should be included and when. He said, "John, I believe that no one less than someone on a work permit for at least a year should be included because of the administrative costs associated with the ins and outs of people here on a temporary basis."

I then took the time to speak to someone in the hospitality industry and solicited their comments. What the person basically said was, "Mr. Jefferson, you guys went through the motions of proposing a Pension Law that included everyone and you took your political licks. People seem to have reached the conclusion that it was going to be done and had accepted the possibility. You should get on with the plan."

Those are some of the comments that I received back from the community. I would like to deal more closely with some of the proposed amendments. The first section that I would like to deal with is section 25 of the Law and the proposed amendment to that Law. It is proposed that expats be included as part of the pension plan, but not to have them contribute until June 1, 1999. From the time these amendments were circulated I had my concerns, and I expressed them, not only to the Minister but to other members of my team and others who were prepared to listen. I was concerned about the effect it would have on the employment of Caymanians.

In this community where dollars and cents are so important it would be a natural thing for businesses to make a decision to apply for a work permit bringing in persons they can control (because they are on a work permit), and not have to bother contributing towards a pension plan. They would be eliminating the 5% increase in cost associated with the need to provide a pension plan. I was assured, because other representatives and other members of the community, including the members of the Chamber of Commerce, expressed the same concerns over the negative impact it could have on the employment of Caymanians.

It is late in the day in that this is 1 April, and we are saying that the Law is to be put into effect from 1 June, 1998 for Caymanians and people with permanent residency with the right to work. Because of that, maybe we should consider extending the time in respect to the other persons who are to be covered under the plan, that is, expats who are here on a work permit for one year or longer.

I am a reasonable man, and between 1 June and 1 January 1998 is something like six months. These amendments have not been proposed, but they will be. I guess at this stage I, in the give and take of politics and negotiation, am prepared to live with that by saying if Government is minded to include expats under the pension plan, then maybe it is reasonable for us to say that they be covered by 1 January 1999. But on a personal note, I would have preferred that all parties who are to be covered would start contributing at the same time.

The other section of the Law I would like to comment on is section 36 of the proposed amendments, in particular (c) (5) and (6) dealing with the rights of the surviving spouse under the pension plan. With your permission, Mr. Speaker, I would like to read subsection (5) and offer my comments. It says: "(5) Where a former member dies leaving a surviving spouse and dependent children, the spouse shall receive and hold one-half of the spouse's pension on trust for such children for their maintenance, benefit and education until such time as the children attain the age of 23 or cease their full-time education, whichever shall be the earlier." Subsection (6) deals with the ability of Social Services to come in under certain circumstances.

I do not like the wording of this particular section in that I think it is very discriminatory as far as women are concerned. My experience has been that women might neglect a husband or a friend, but in most cases they are going to look after their children. If they have $1.00, they will go hungry in order to make sure that that child has what it needs. I believe that we have to have enough confidence in the women in this country to say that if they are left as widows with dependent children they will do the best they can to provide for that family.

I believe if I have a problem with my wife, and I am not comfortable leaving her with money, regardless of the source, there are means of ensuring that those funds that I worked so hard to earn can be spent the way I feel they should be, particularly as it relates to my children. I do not have a problem with my wife. If I leave any funds, I am quite sure that she will make sure that my household is well taken care of. So I am concerned with the apparent discrimination and lack of confidence in women doing what is right under the Law in taking care of their families.

The next section that I would like to look at is section 52 where it is being proposed that the two years as stated in the Law be reduced to six months. Why that concerns me is that if somebody is here on a work permit and is contributing towards a pension plan and either they lose their job or they decide to return home, then after six months they can apply for their funds to be released and they may take it elsewhere. I believe that the two-year period, the grace period or moratorium under which these funds have to remain as part of the plan is, should I say, very conservative. It makes sense. We do not know what the future holds, we do not know what kind of circumstances may exist. I believe that the programme needs that kind of built-in grace period in order to ensure that we do not run into a crisis situation. A situation could arise where we have an exodus of persons on work permits from this country, demanding that their funds be repatriated with them. Because of the nature and number of the investments, it could lend itself to some difficulty for the plan.

Mr. Speaker, I know that it is not a social security system, and I thank you for basically defining the difference between the two the other day. I think there is a lot of confusion between a social security system and a pension plan. But it is a known fact that if one of us were to leave here and go to the United States to work, regardless of being there one year or two years, we would be obliged to contribute to their plan. Now, if you do not put in the number of years necessary, you walk away and say, 'Thanks for the opportunity to work in your jurisdiction,' and you will leave something behind that they will share with those who remain. Members of this House have had that experience.

I believe that it is very important for us not to be too accommodating. It reminds me of a story I heard when I was a boy (some time ago!) about a man, his son and a donkey. The story goes that the man was going along leading a donkey with the little boy on the donkey. He came across someone who scolded him and said, 'You should be ashamed of yourself. You are walking, your son is riding the donkey. The reverse should be true.' So in order to please the person, he made his son get down and lead the donkey, and he got on the donkey. He had not gone very far when he came across another person who said, 'Man, you should be ashamed of yourself. You are riding that poor donkey, your son in leading him. . . do you know what you should do? The two of you should be carrying that donkey, rather than the donkey carrying you.' The story ends with both of them trying to accommodate the wishes of everybody. They took a pole and put it between the two of them, put the donkey on the pole and tried to cross the river—all three fell in the river!

We cannot accommodate, or try to please everyone. My first responsibility is to concern myself with what is in the best interests of this country and its people. Mr. Speaker, let me assure you (and I am sure you are aware of it because you have travelled far and wide) that most people who come here to work consider it a real privilege to work here in the Cayman Islands. Many of them do not have the possibility of employment where they come from. So for us to be so concerned about what they want to do and how they want their funds handled. . . I am saying that if it is a privilege for them to work here, it is necessary for them, while here, to contribute to the community. If that means being a part of a plan, then so be it. If it were left to me, this period of time would not be six months or even two years, it would be much longer.

I think the experience we would have anyway is that most people who are working here on a work permit, rather than saying when leaving, 'Write me a cheque so I can take it elsewhere,' would allow those funds to remain here, accumulate interest in a tax-free environment, and whenever they reach retirement age transfer their funds to wherever they are, or they would have access to their funds regardless of where they are in the world. I think we have to be careful not to try to bend over backwards, especially when it is not reasonable, in order to accommodate everyone.

Section 52(c), deals with the associated costs of dealing with a request from a member who has left the country. I believe that any request from a member should be at that member's expense. That is only reasonable. If I went to a bank and asked for a bank draft, they are not going to charge everybody else. They will say, 'John, you owe me $12.50,' or whatever it is. That is part of the cost, and I would pay it. I believe that is the way the plan should work also.

I do not share some of the concerns I heard others raise. I believe that much thought has gone into preparing this Law to make it as practical and affordable as possible; by that I mean the maximum amount to be contributed is 5%. But initially, it depends upon your age. If you are under 40 or 41, you can contribute as little as 1% of your income towards the plan. The second year, 2%, 3% up to five years; after five years it becomes the maximum 5%. I believe that most entities will exercise those options, rather than saying, 'I have twenty employees, it will cost me $20,000 per month in salaries so I am going to take 5% and contribute toward the plan initially.' I do not think that is the way it will be done. I believe that people will take advantage of the options made available to them. Doing it that way it should not have the kind of impact on the cost of living that everyone is anticipating.

I know that certain merchants have already gone ahead in anticipation of this increase and bumped their prices up by 10%, 15%, or 20%. I believe that if we are honest merchants and businessmen, we should only pass on what we have incurred at the time. So, rather than me having to immediately raise my prices at my businesses by 10%, I can say, 'It is 1% the first year, 2% the next year, 3%. . .' I think that is reasonable. It continues to make services affordable in this country.

In regard to the Regulations, I have a note on section 40, page 53, that I would like to comment on. It does seem that it could cause some difficulty in regard to the spouse who has been awarded a portion of a pensioner's pension in that section 40 says, "40. (1) Where a part of a pension benefit under a pension plan of a member is required to be transferred or paid to the member's spouse under a court order under section 42 of the Law, a certified copy of the court order shall be delivered to the administrator before the administrator may effect a transfer or payment."

Section 40 (2) says, "40. (2) An administrator shall not, without the consent of all of the parties to the proceedings giving rise to the order, transfer a part of a pension benefit in accordance with a court order until all appeals have been finally determined, or the time for appealing has expired."

Mr. Speaker, you and I both have had some experience in regard to the courts and know how it works. An appeal could take one year, it could take two years, it could take three or four years. The concern I have is that if in the meantime the only source of income this spouse has—and in most cases it will be a woman—is that little pension that has been awarded by the court, having to wait until all the appeals are exhausted before she has access to those funds could pose some difficulty.

It has been explained to me that this is because we never know what direction an appeal is going to go, and if you have already gone ahead and transferred the funds and the money has been spent and it is later determined that she (or he) was not rightfully entitled to those funds there is little possibility of recovering those funds. I hear that, but I still have that concern. It seems to be unreasonable.

The other section of the regulations I would like to look at is section 4 on pages 61 and 62. I am pleased to see that there are some guidelines and conditions in regard to the investment of pension funds in companies or affiliates of administrators. I believe that we have to be very careful in regard to who is allowed to administer these plans. We have to be very careful in regard to the type of investments they are allowed to invest in. I am concerned that there could be some abuse in this area. So the Superintendent and his staff will have to be very careful and very vigilant to see that this privilege is not abused because under these Regulations, even the Class A banks will be authorised to be providers and administrators of pension funds or plans. I believe we have to be careful that there is not a lot of incestuous relationships between them and the pension plans they administer.

There are guidelines regarding the limits, and I was comforted to see that. Most of my concerns have been addressed in the proposed amendments.

The Chamber of Commerce—and I am not one who lends too much attention to what they have to say, because I realise they are a group of businesspeople who are basically concerned with promoting and protecting their own interests—but their survey confirmed the position we have taken as Members, in that the majority surveyed believed that expats on work permits for a year or more should be included as part of the plan. They did have some rather arrogant statements recorded. To give you an example, on page 2 of their survey, it says, “Largely the reasons stated in your covering sheet [I guess they must be referring to a copy of the White Paper from the Minister] further the reason given by Government [flight of capital] is so crass it is insulting.” Basically they are saying they did not share the same concerns Government did in regard to the possible flight of capital. It also mentioned the same concerns we have. It says here “. . . will hurt Caymanians and will cause tension in the workplace,” that is, if we excluded the expat community from the plan. Again it says, “It is a national scheme and should cover all persons residing, or who are employed within the Islands, regardless of status or nationality.”

Even the Chamber of Commerce agrees with the majority view of the representatives here. So I believe we are on the right track. As I said, those who have been involved in this process have to be complimented and congratulated, because just by reading the Law and the proposed amendments I have come to the conclusion that it involved a lot of time, a lot of effort, and a good job has been done regarding covering all the major concerns we have as representatives.

I would like to encourage our people—and this is something our people have looked forward to for some time, that is, even though we do not have a pension programme in place, I am hearing among my older constituents, those reaching 60-65 years of age, ‘You know, John, I am getting up there. I guess I am now eligible for the little Government pension,’ because they refer to the little award from Social Services as a pension. So our people want it, they need it, and I believe the decision taken in establishing a national pension programme is a very wise one.

If we leave society to its own whims and fancies (and we have some persons who believe we are not supposed to tell them anything) we are not supposed to do anything that imposes on their personal rights. But as representatives we have to be wise enough to say, if we do not address this issue now, in twenty or twenty-five years from now, we are going to have an aged population, and because we have not made provisions for them, Government will have to dip into its own pocket and say, ‘Here is $200 or $300 to help you live.’ And a lot of times it is greatly appreciated, but it does not allow our senior citizens to live with the kind of dignity which they are entitled to.

I believe this is a step in the right direction. It is a very wise decision, and I would encourage employers and employees to get together and, as soon as possible, start implementing the contributions to this very important plan. They will find that everything comes with some price. But the little discipline it takes to set aside 5% of one’s salary or income. . . after a while you learn to get by with 95%, and at the end of the day, once you have worked twenty, twenty-five (some are fortunate enough to work forty) years, you would have put aside a little nest egg that will allow you to enjoy your retirement years with some dignity.

Once again, I congratulate the present Minister, and the former Minister who was responsible for this Law and its amendments, and I look forward to seeing the programme implemented. Thank you, Sir.

The Speaker: I think this would be a convenient time to take the afternoon break. We shall suspend for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.28 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 3.53 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Debate continues. Does any other Member wish to speak? The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, in my brief contribution on the Government’s proposed amendment to the Pensions Law, 1998, let me say that I am still trying to understand the entire purpose of the exercise which started in November 1997 with the National Pensions (Suspension) Bill.

It is often said that in the spirit of co-operation we should pay compliments rather than be critical. It is sometimes as important to be critical, if that criticism is constructive, as it is to be complimentary, if that compliment is based upon a wish to impress rather than to instruct or support. Although I may not be complimenting anyone here, I believe it is better for the country to know that the process in these Chambers is political, that it is quite difficult for Members to say what they do has nothing to do with politics, and that it has to do with what they consider to be good for the country. They are politicians! It all has to do with politics!

I think some Members really mean to say that what they are doing is altruistic, not egoistic, not selfish; it is about the general good rather than the specific individual good. I am putting all of this in place to try to say that 'National Team' is a phrase I do not hear in the Legislative Assembly very much any more. When I was elected in 1996, I heard that phrase just about every time I turned around—a Member would mention the accomplishments of the National Team, what the National Team was all about, how the National Team had brought the country forward. I also made the remark that the National Team seemed to be like a chicken with its head cut off—not really knowing in which direction to go, but fluttering around, gasping for air!

I say this because if the people have to pay for the work of Government, and they do pay for the time individuals spend preparing documents, this exercise has been, from a monetary point of view, a costly exercise. It has cost the taxpayers of this country good money that could have been spent to do other things. The exercise would have been justified if, at the end of the day, the Government had the political will to stick with the fundamental change it brought here, and that change was to exclude the expatriates. Of course, I am not an advocate of the exclusion of expatriates. I am trying to ascertain how the Government came to the conclusion that it might be reasonable to exclude expatriates, that this would be an acceptable political, humanistic position. How did the Government come to that position, which was a 'back-back' position from what the National Team had adopted in 1996 when they brought the pension legislation in? What type of process are we observing in the political behaviour of Members of the Executive Council? What type of political confusion? And what is this really costing the people of this country in the form of time that must go in to restudying these amendments in detail, these very complicated laws and regulations? The amount of paper and the poor trees that must be cut down for Government to go through its schizophrenic policies of change—up and down like the crabs, going in this direction, going in that direction, but not really knowing what direction to go—because the full purpose of their actions is to retain power and position. Therefore, we are listening to people and are willing to make amendments and adjustments, because that is the true democratic way. It is not that! It is that Government is governing by reaction, and not by being pro-active! A Government with vision would have sat down and done what the National Team did in 1996: It would insist that its pension concept—a compulsory pension for all working people in this country—was a sound idea, because it was an idea that would protect the Caymanian worker first of all.

In all of these discussions, in all the different institutions which have been invited to contribute toward the process of decision-making, it would be much simpler if the Members who were elected by the people in 1996 had the capability to arrive at the decisions themselves without always farming out their responsibilities, making excuses by saying this is what democracy is all about. Democracy is about consultation, but it does not have to be unnecessary consultation because there are certain deductions that can be made. The deduction to exclude expatriates from a compulsory pension plan. . . the deduction could have been made that that was not a wise and feasible idea and that it discriminates against Caymanians, in particular, for whom the pension plan was being devised to support.

Everybody knows that this country is going through extreme changes. We find ourselves having to pay for more and more services. We find ourselves using more and more services as we develop. Sometimes people ask themselves how they are going to pay. But, thank God, most people are managing to somehow at least provide themselves with the daily necessities of life. But we do know that any legislation that would cause the Caymanian people to put money aside, compulsory savings, would cause some type of hardship at least to certain classes of people in this society. We know that some persons not used to the benefits of this type of savings might complain and might not necessarily be too supportive of Government in the first instance when it says it is going to bring in this type of pension plan.

With education which is not confusing but informative, people will come to accept this pension programme after a while and come to agree that it is the best thing for the country. It is very easy for us to show the people why pensions are necessary today because we must make sure that in the Cayman of tomorrow we do not need a taxation system to support a social service system, to support people who can no longer support themselves because they are no longer accepted by industry as being competitive and productive enough to participate in the work force. Therefore, their retirement is almost like a compulsory retirement, a forced retirement, and therefore the need for them to begin to think of the end result of their working activities and to save enough money to enable them to take care of themselves so they will not become wards of the State. The State will have to find more and more money to care for the elderly, but the elderly living for today have had vision and encouragement from the leaders of this country to provide assistance for the golden years so they can support themselves in the golden years.

We cannot escape that this is a desirable system to maintain the stability in this country, and that it will weigh more heavily on some people than on others. Like everything else in society, it is not really across the board because of our different resources and capabilities.

The National Team accepted this in 1996. My question is, Why the dilly-dally? Why the move around? Why the delay? Was that a genuine thought-out decision to stop the plan? When I look at the Hansards from November 1997, and when I hear the reasons why it was being done, and then, all of a sudden, someone comes to me and says, 'I heard they are going to exclude expats,' . . . this is a big move away from the fundamental position the Government had before. We were being told before that the reason the additional time was necessary was to put the Superintendent in place and the necessary regulatory bodies in place to regulate this programme, and, if anything, to give workers and employers time to adjust; but not to give Government a chance to come in with a time bomb to disrupt everybody's psyche by saying to them, 'Look, we want to do this programme completely different than we said we were. Now we are going to exclude 60% of the labour force—the expats.'

It is nevertheless good to know that Government has gotten itself back on track because of the hard work of the Backbenchers. When we believe in something (and I hope I can speak for all Members of the Backbench), we stand up for it, we speak up for it, and we do not chit-chat and dilly-dally about it. As a result, the Government was. . . and I like to use the word 'forced'. . . the Government was forced to 'back-back' on its desire to exclude expats. We, the Backbenchers, saved the day! We, the Backbenchers, allowed the expatriates because of our serious belief that they, too, can benefit from operating with a pension plan legislated by the Government of these Islands.

In regard to boiler room politics, I would just like to also apologise to the Third Elected Member for George Town in that I felt, by the way in which the situation was described to me, that what was in fact going on was not in keeping with my way of doing business. But after having an opportunity to see the genuineness of the Third Elected Member for George Town in his attempt to use persuasive powers to get things cleared up, I offer my apology if I have offended his feelings in his desire to assist Members of the Backbench in clarifying these particular points.

Nevertheless, I did not want the Government to feel that it could 'back-back' without me saying to them, You are 'backing-back' and you should never have to 'back-back' because you should never have gone in that direction in the first place. You have caused the country uneasiness, and cost unnecessary money. You should be doing other business. Mr. Speaker, we should be doing other business, and here we are doing this business that should have been put to rest some time ago. Those charges have to be made because it has to do with competency, it has to do with whether or not we on the Backbench (at least me on the Backbench) feel that Government is being as efficient as possible. I know that before this particular sitting is over I will probably have to deal with a few other instances of this.

I know that nobody is going to talk about the fact that the domestics are being left out of this particular scheme. I think that somehow it weakens the moral position that we have in regard to legislation of good, and saying that once the Government is convinced that something is good for the citizens, the Government is justified in legislating because it assumes that all human beings are (if they know it or not) about doing what is good for them and not what is painful for them. But if we say that saving money for our golden years is good for us, then, conversely, we are saying that not to do so is not good. Therefore, to sit down and eat when others are hungry. . . I feel it needs to be addressed somehow. It needs to be explained—even if all we can say is, 'Sorry, I cannot invite you to this meal because I only have enough for myself.'

Mr. Speaker, there is nothing wrong with us protecting our people first. Perhaps by the way we have devised the pension scheme, we have made it with the intention of first of all protecting the Caymanian people and the Cayman Islands. But there are other moral contradictions. There are other sociological problems that we shall encounter as we go along. Hopefully we will find the time to review the possibility in the future of including domestic workers. If they want to be included, we will find some way of bringing them in.

As I said, if we say that the gardener in our yard should have a pension, but the woman who is cleaning inside our house should not. . . that needs to be explained. We need to be able to rationalise it. There are enough domestics in this country today working in private homes with a tremendous influence on our daily lives. They are in a central position, especially when you understand the culture of the Caribbean and the paternalism of the Caribbean, and the extended family structure and the communalism of the Caribbean. Once we understand those root cultural dynamics, we understand that a helper in our house breeds for us, in other words. That person instructs our children, that person instructs us; that person sometime decides what we should eat, where we should sleep, what we should wear, what is good for us. That person ends up making decisions in our lives that are very, very important—yet, this is the person we exclude! How do we face that person and say, 'Oh, well, everybody else should have a pension. But you shouldn't'?

Why not? The argument has been advanced that the reason is because it will cost too much to administer. It has been said that the reason why domestics cannot be included is because they are making too little money. I have also heard—and I might tend to agree—that domestics are necessary for some people even if they cannot afford them. In other words, because of the fact that domestic workers are so lowly paid in our country we cannot include them in our pension system. We have not only excluded this class of people from a decent wage, we are now going to exclude this class of people from a decent future.

It might be pragmatic to do so, but the moral implications of doing so must be understood. Fifty dollars per week? And at the end of serving, those persons get nothing? I think that we need to do as much as possible because we are admitting that the wages and the working conditions of this class of people needs to be improved. We need to improve. I think that even on the Immigration form it is stated what you should be paying people. People give one figure on the Immigration form and then turn around and pay these people a completely different figure and no one says anything to them. They get away with it!

These people do not have any Chamber of Commerce coming in here representing them because they are not Jane Doe, or Dive Joe, or Restaurant Jay, or this, that and the other type of person coming from the so-called better-off societies. The majority of domestics come from Jamaica. But we know that those persons stay in our society for a very long period of time. They become part and parcel, not just of our society, but of our homes. They form emotional bonds with our children, with us; they form emotional and religious bonds with each other in the churches. You only have to go around George Town on Sunday or Saturday to see them dressed up, walking with their Bibles, going to church, singing, praising God, thanking Him for being blessed to be here among us. I think we need to look at this. It is true, these people do exist.

It is not John Doe or Jane Doe who is working with Dive Joe, and spending his time in the Lone Star drinking beer and getting drunk. In a lot of cases, these are women who have two, three, and four children to maintain. We talk about women's rights and respect for women, and we fail to see the way in which Caribbean women, black women, Jamaican women have played a role, being both male and female; and then when they are excluded from a programme we consider to be morally and economically correct, we do not offer any explanation. We pretend that they do not exist. But they do!

I think the only way I can really get away with this is by saying that I know it is happening. It grieves me that it is happening, but maybe it has to happen. I am not going to criticise the Government for not being able to include them, but I say it is necessary to understand that they do exist and that we face a moral contradiction. There is a political contradiction that we face that could work back on us in the sense that it might create additional dissatisfaction. What if the people who work in our homes become dissatisfied while they are in charge of our children? When they cook our food? When they make our beds? It is important that they be satisfied as far as possible.

Although some people in this society can only afford to pay a helper so much money, and although that individual helper might agree to work for that amount of money because it is better than being in Jamaica and not having any work, it does not mean that they should be exploited in the particular manner some are, simply because they would be unemployed in other countries. They should not be exploited to the degree in which they are. It is important that we begin to see these people as real people, perhaps more real than the construction worker.

When we say that the domestics are not going to have pensions, what happens to the domestic that stays with me for fifteen years and who wants to apply for permanent residency or Caymanian status? What are we going to say? 'Oh, you're in the category of a domestic. You don't have pension to support you in your golden years. Where is your money?' Basically, what we are doing is setting up a category of persons that we are going to treat as untouchables in our society. At the end of the day the domestics will not have the same legal possibilities for advancement within the order as would, say, the construction worker, or the gardener who is paying into a pension for whom we therefore create a certain amount of stability.

Perhaps the reason I say this about domestics is because in 1964 my mother left this country and went to New Jersey. She took three children with her. She worked as a domestic. Right now she is in the United States being looked after because the nerves in her foot are gone. And I know it is because of walking on the cold ice in Staten Islands waiting for buses to get to work. She was a domestic. Most who left here went to be domestics because it was easier to get into the United States as a domestic. Women went first and the men came after. Women were the great providers, they created the opportunities for the men.

For this reason, I feel that even if I do not have a sensible way of how to include them, I feel an obligation to say that they do exist as real, feeling persons, and that Government has got to make more effort to see that their conditions can be improved somewhat in this country.

It was not too long ago that I was working as a reporter for The New Caymanian. One of the things we were looking at were all the charges that were being made at that particular time in regard to the exploitation of domestics; their inability to make complaints in the right places, and the fact that they were being super-exploited by persons who felt they had a right to use them, and abuse them in a lot of cases.

MOMENT OF INTERRUPTION—4.30 PM

The Speaker: Can I interrupt you? I am sure that you will not be finishing within a reasonable time. We have reached the hour of 4.30. I would entertain a motion for the adjournment. But before doing so, I would like to remind Members that this House will adjourn this afternoon and Finance Committee will commence at 9.00 AM tomorrow. We will resume the Legislative Assembly at the conclusion of the deliberations of Finance Committee.

The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until the conclusion of Finance Committee, as said.

The Speaker: I shall put the question that this House do now adjourn until the deliberations of Finance Committee are completed. Those in favour, please say Aye.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: There are those of us, Sir, who are of the opinion that it is more logical and practical to continue with the debate on the Pensions while we have the momentum, and while Honourable Members are in the spirit and prepared, to get this piece of legislation out of the way. It is an important piece of legislation, and so doing would allow those of us who have just received papers on Finance Committee today to better equip ourselves with what is contained in this document. I suggest that we continue with the debate on the National Pensions (Amendment) Bill tomorrow, and come back Monday for Finance Committee.

The Speaker: We can do what the House wishes. I do not want to get into a debate on this, but I do want to inform Members that the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development, the Hon. Financial Secretary, will be leaving the country on 4 April. The reason for Finance Committee tomorrow was that if deliberations were not finished tomorrow there would be adequate time to complete this prior to his departure.

The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: We do appreciate the reason you have given. As you said, there is not necessarily any need for a long debate, however I am certain that I speak for the rest of us on the Backbench, and we are confident that if the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development has to be off the Island that his Deputy can convene the meeting, and we feel sure that the business at hand can be dealt with properly. So I do not think that that is an impediment.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Just to support the views expressed by the First Elected Member for George Town and the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town. I believe this is a very important piece of legislation we are now debating, and I think it would be in the best interest of this House and the general public if we were to conclude this. That would give us some time to also study the Finance Committee agenda. It is quite a long agenda and we only received it this morning. If we had time to study this over the weekend, we would better understand it and be better able to make a contribution on Monday.

The Speaker: Would the Serjeant see if the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development is in the building?

While we wait, does any other Member wish to speak? The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: I support the views of the other Members in saying that this is an important piece of legislation and it would not serve anybody's interests at this point if it were pushed back. I think it can be dealt with and I do not think that the Deputy Financial Secretary would have any problem representing the Honourable Financial Secretary—that is why he is the Deputy.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause) We will wait a few moments for the arrival of the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development. (Pause)

The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, thank you.

If it is the wish of the majority of Members of this Honourable House to continue with debate on the National Pensions amendments and to get that out of the way before holding Finance Committee, I would not have a particular difficulty with that. I should mention, however, that I will be off the Island as of Saturday until next Thursday, but the acting Financial Secretary will be able to chair Finance Committee if the debate on the National Pensions amendment is completed before I return to the Island. If this is the wish of majority of Members, that will be in order.

The Speaker: Thank you. I will entertain a motion for the adjournment until 10.00 AM tomorrow. Do you wish to speak, Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I was just going to vote on it.

The Speaker: Please move the motion, because we moved to adjourn until after Finance Committee.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until 10.00 AM tomorrow morning.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: You have two motions on the floor—

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: If I may, Sir, I think—

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I am sorry—

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: You have two motions on the floor, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: I realise that. Under parliamentary procedure, we will have to withdraw the first motion. Honourable Minister for Health, will you please withdraw your first motion?

WITHDRAWAL OF MOTION TO ADJOURN THE HOUSE UNTIL CONCLUSION OF THE PROCEEDINGS OF THE STANDING FINANCE COMMITTEE MEETING

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Anything that pleases the House, Mr. Speaker!

The Speaker: The motion has been withdrawn. I will now entertain a motion for the adjournment of this House until 10.00 AM tomorrow.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Mr. Speaker, I think to get this properly we will have to vote on it to withdraw it.

The Speaker: I put the question that the motion by the Honourable Minister for Health be withdrawn. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The motion is withdrawn.

AGREED. MOTION TO ADJOURN UNTIL CONCLUSION OF THE PROCEEDINGS OF THE STANDING FINANCE COMMITTEE MEETING WITHDRAWN.

The Speaker: Will the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning move the adjournment of this House until 10.00 tomorrow?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until 10.00 AM tomorrow morning.

The Speaker: I shall put the question that this House do now adjourn until 10.00 AM tomorrow. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House do stand adjourned until 10.00 AM tomorrow.

AT 4.37 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM THURSDAY, 2 APRIL 1998.

SECOND READINGS

THE NATIONAL PENSIONS (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1998

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, when I closed my contribution to the debate on the National Pensions (Amendment) Bill, 1998 yesterday, I was attempting to say that the exercise here is similar to a person going to the hospital for a check-up. The doctor decides the person needs major surgery, cutting off the person's arm. Then the doctor decides there was no need for the surgery, and tries to put the arm back on the person. Basically what the remains of the National Team Government has attempted to do is derail a seriously important scheme for protecting the people of these Islands. Many of them were misled into believing that there were sufficient numbers of persons in this country who were so concerned about the effect pension legislation would have on the cost of living, that people would be so concerned about immediate gratification they would lose all sense of the necessity to plan for the future, and would see compulsory pension legislation as negative and as legislation against the people.

I must still give those Members of the National Team Government who supported pensions in 1996, and made it an important pledge in their 1996 campaigns. . . . Again, without being repetitious, I am trying to find out what led to the major surgery. It is fortunate that with good assistance, the Government will now be able to put that arm back on the patient and perhaps the patient, with a little bit of therapy, will recover from the shock of that unnecessary operation, and be capable of being a functional part of our society again. In this case, the patient is really our society.

The other point I tried to elaborate upon yesterday was the fact that I was not here in 1996 when the Pension Bill was brought before this House and domestics were not included in pension legislation. They were excluded. When the Bill was brought again to this Legislative Assembly, it was brought by the present Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture, the Honourable Julianna O'Connor-Connolly. That was brought in November 1997, and the attempt was to suspend the Pension Law. It was a Bill to suspend the Law. I spoke about the fact that I believe a pension is good, people have come to accept it, and we should not postpone because it would just cause unnecessary delays and confusion.

I did not take up the question of the domestics at that time, because what was happening was a suspension of the Bill, and we were being told by the Honourable Minister that she would get back to us as to the changes she thought were necessary. Obviously, one of the changes that Minister suggested in her White Paper was that expatriates should all be excluded, or excluded in the majority, except for (as was being said later) permanent residents with the right to work. But in the attempt of the Backbench to see reasonable Government and fair legislation, the Government 'back-backed' from that position (as I like to say—back-backed from that position), but in backing back and accepting that the legislation should not exclude expatriates, the Government in a sense said that, with the exception of persons working in private homes. So the Government has had time to rethink this legislation, and has still come out, more or less, with the opinion that pensions should not really be for all the people working in this country; that it is bad economically for this country to include all persons working in this country between the ages of 18 and 60 in a pension plan.

I tried to suggest that that creates a certain dichotomy, a contradiction, in that we are saying legislation to be positive for one group of people or one class of workers should not be extended to the other class of workers. In other words, the good that the Government is responsible for legislating should be good even if it is not extended to all persons affected by the realm of that governance. That is basically wrong. What is good for one person in this situation would perhaps be good for all persons.

We are also making the assumption that domestics would feel deprived if they had to pay something toward pensions each month; that they are so badly paid, we admit, that it would not be reasonable to assume they would be willing, or able, to make any contribution toward their golden age. I think to admit this is also to indict our society; for if our society feels comfortable with the super-exploitation of a particular class of people in this country, to the extent that we know it will not lead to the person being able to do anything more than provide for their day-to-day existence, our society knowingly endorses what I would call institutionalised discrimination—legalised discrimination. We are endorsing that at the end of the working life of a domestic in the Cayman Islands, that person will have absolutely nothing for her retirement if she has not been successful in being able to save money herself.

We accept that even persons making $60,000 a year should pay into a pension plan. We accept that someone who is a gardener should pay into a pension plan. We accept that someone coming into the country on a work permit to be a waiter or waitress, or assistant on a dive boat, should pay into a pension plan. But we do not accept that the domestics working in this country, helping to make the country's function possible, should be included in a pension plan. We are saying this because it would not be good for them. I am not sure what research the Government has done, and maybe when the Honourable Minister makes her reply she will be able to assist me by saying what steps Government has made to enquire as to the desirability of including domestics—in other words, are they for it or against it? Would they feel excluded? Would they feel discriminated against as a result of this legislation excluding them? Or would they be happy that they do not have to put anything aside for retirement?

It is the lot of immigrants to go to a country with the idea that they will only remain in that country for a short time, maybe for a year to get enough money to build a house, or finish a house, or some particular immediate goal they identify as the cause that motivates them, that pushes them. The 'pull' factors we talk about being the conditions in the Cayman Islands, the possibility of making some money here and saving some money, that factor pulls them. The poverty factor pushes them. Between the push factor and the pull factor, we have people migrating.

Now people stay for a year and then they say, 'Well, maybe I'll work two more years.' And after two years they say, 'Well, we'll continue to work because we have not really achieved those objectives we came here in the first place to achieve.' Sometimes the more difficult it is for a group of people to get the kind of salaries and save the money, the longer they will stay. So we can assume that, if rents are high for domestics and salaries are low, and the cost of living is high for the domestics and wages are low, their stay in the Cayman Islands will be longer, because it means it will take a much longer time to achieve the objectives they might have come here to achieve in the first place.

What happens, then, if the domestic is a loyal, law-abiding person, a Christian person, a likeable person? The employer has no desire to get rid of that person, to terminate that person to bring in another person. So the domestic ends up staying longer than the banker, the accountant, perhaps even longer than the lawyer, the construction worker, the waiter, the waitress, the dive assistant. At the end of the day, we might find that even if 25% of those people remain in our society over a period of say fifteen years or so, and then feel so attached to this society that they might have a desire to apply for permanent residency or Caymanian status, the question is, Would they be entitled to the residency conditions? Would one of the Immigration Board's conditions be that you should be involved in a pension plan when persons come to apply for status? I am quite sure that will be taken into account. Therefore, to exclude this particular group of people is to institutionalise discrimination against them, and conditions that will act to their disadvantage in becoming permanent members of the society.

I am not saying that it is my job to find a reasonable moral and practical solution to this problem, but I am challenging the Government and the society so they will not fall asleep while trying to come up with a workable solution to this situation.

Yesterday I tried to emphasise the important role domestics play in private homes. I tried to show how they influence all of us who interact with them, and how they influence our children, because there are persons saying that without domestics they would not be able to work themselves. And they are being paid so little as women, for instance, who go out and work in the banks and trust companies, making perhaps $1500 or less, and they have to pay the domestic to look after the one, two or three children they have, it seems that the family economic unit now is the Caymanian mother, the Jamaican domestic—rather than the father—and the children,.

I am saying that because of the contribution, rather than the pay, rather than the reward, because of this that class of people should not be put into a position where they can be permanently discriminated against. They play too much of a role in this society for Government not to have taken into consideration—extreme consideration—their unique and peculiar situation. Their situation, if we affected any change in this area, means that some Caymanians who would want to hire the domestics would be at a disadvantage. In other words, they would not be able to afford them because of the additional pension. But in a lot of cases we would find that it would not be that much more, because just like people learn to live with what they make, and do what other things they have to do to make it even if at the end of the day the Jamaican domestic has not as much money saved as a result of the pension plan as their Caymanian counterpart, at least that person has some little thing saved—even if it is a few hundred dollars. I know of cases in this country where Caymanians who spent time abroad in the United States are now getting Social Security cheques. Those cheques are not for any significant amount of money, but when those cheques come in, they help, even if it is $100 or $200. I know through personal experience how grateful they are that they have that source of income, and that they were able to participate in a civilised system that took into account all persons, and not just people who could not politically fend for themselves.

So, when we talk about the Chamber of Commerce, and when we talk about persons only making arguments about the goodness of pensions because of the economic virtue of pensions, and not because of the social and moral nature of pensions, we are being one dimensional. A one-dimensional approach to this problem, the one-dimensional approach of the Chamber of Commerce that continues to look at everything in purely economic terms.

But man is more than bread. The Bible tells us that we do not live by bread alone. We have to have faith, beliefs, values. I believe that our Christian values of sharing and caring are being questioned by this type of approach because it is too selfish. Even those persons talking about the economics are making certain value judgments themselves, because there is no proof that the economic arguments they are using regarding the impact the inclusion of this class of people would have on the whole system, would cause people to be not able to afford.

We have to have a standard. We have to say that in working, people have to be treated in a particular way. Otherwise we would not have our labour laws. To say there should be a particular standard, and hopefully as a result of those standards there would be a particular wage reward paid to the working person. The fact that these working people are not Caymanians but are female, are black, the fact that they come from Jamaica should not make a difference! We have to see that we compel ourselves to live up to some godly responsibility regarding exploitation of this class of people. We have to legislate for our own behaviour regarding this group of people. If we do not, we create a subhuman culture within our very humanistic and Christian culture. And that creates violence, that feeds crime, that feeds dysfunctional families, creates a situation of immorality around us. It is important that we insist upon a standard for all.

We see it when we say that these persons can live in substandard housing, where rents are put at a price the landlords wish; there is no running water, and the sanitary conditions in these places. . . when you go into them, you wonder how the Cayman Islands can tolerate this! And it is no good saying, 'Well, that's the way they lived where they are coming from.' They came here to be better off, otherwise the pull factors which pulled them here are not real. They came here to find an improved standard of living. We cannot allow, simply because of the exploitation, for our standards of decency to be lowered to the extent that we create these ghetto subcultures in our very midst.

A lot of the things we complain about today we are doing to ourselves. We like to talk about how TV is doing this, and how these foreign ideas are doing that. But people are foreign, therefore the ideas those foreign people have must be foreign ideas. If we go to Russia, and all over the world to bring people here to work for us on all levels, because we feel that gives us a superior position, then we will have a lot of foreign ideas in our country, without watching TV, because those foreign ideas emanate from foreign people in our country. Some of these foreign people are domestics.

That is a situation in this country which, I think as long as we see from the point of view of convenience, is convenient for us not to do anything about. It is convenient for us to do nothing about the rents they pay. It is convenient for us to do nothing about the salaries they receive. It is convenient for us not to do anything about the types of exploitation which go on in the workplace, and as I remember from my little time working with The New Caymanian, a lot of that happens to be sexual harassment and so forth. It is convenient for us to turn a blind eye. Yet, when divorce rates in our society begin to increase, when the moral behaviour of our people begins to become affected, we begin to blame that on someone else, not realising that we made the choice to create the circumstances which now come back to affect us.

So I think it is important that Government have a good reply to some of the things I have started to discuss. I am talking about the sociological, moral consequences of maintaining or institutionalising the super-exploitation of a group of women in this country for the convenience of those persons who feel their well-being can only be preserved by the maintenance of that archaic type of social and economic relationship.

It is important that the Government realises, in excluding these groups of people, that the economics of this country has very much to do with domestics, because they spend money: They go to Foster's, they go to Kirkconnell's and they shop. They go to the small native stores, Caymanian stores, and they circulate their cash. So they are like the bees that carry pollen from one flower to the next; they are the circulators of currency in our society. They play a very important role. If they were not here, the money would not circulate, at least to the extent it does.

There are persons among us in the so-called 'grass-roots' community who realise the economic importance of this class of people. There are persons from the grass-roots community who realise other contributions that this group of persons makes to the society, and it is not easy for us to explain why they are being excluded. We want the Government to reply and say why, give good reasons why. As I said, I do not have the bureaucracy the Government has to work out the solutions. I am just a Member of the Legislative Assembly. I cannot be put into a position where I have these answers, but I can ask for the Government to search for these answers. I can ask why it has not, until now, searched for these answers, because it has the arm of the Civil Service—close to 3,000 of them—to be able to do all these things. So it must do its work.

With all the time it has had to play around with little amendments, and change the commas or the T's and the dots of the i's—all the legalistic semantics it has taken us through, and it has given no consideration to the social, political and moral implications of its actions. This is one reason we say that this side of Parliament is a new breed, because we think about the whole picture. We don't think about the i's and the commas, the legal jargon, and the fancy phrases. We think about human relationships and human behaviour.

Mr. Roy Bodden: True! Tell it to them!

Dr. Frank McField: And until we get those types of planners in this country, we will have Government coming in talking about Vision 2008. . . . What vision?

We are making a pension plan, and we should be able to plan for today because those who cannot plan for today can certainly not plan for tomorrow. We want Government to understand that institutionalised discrimination is very difficult to get rid of. Anyone who studies society knows what a problem that is.

I bet we can become so complacent—look at how the hierarchy is formed. The lady who gets $1500 from Bank of Butterfield, or Barclays Bank, who says she has to pay the domestic the price she is paying because they are only paying her so much in the bank, what she should really do is say to the domestic, 'I am going to pay you more, because I am going to make sure tomorrow, that the Government, if not my employer, sees that I am paid a little more decent wage.' Part of it (and this comes into the relevance of this discussion) is how we use people. A lot of those banks should perhaps be providing pre-school money for some of our Caymanian women, or providing pre-schools for these kids to be in, rather than these women having to take part of their salaries to bring in domestics that we must treat as subhuman in this country. Maybe that is what needs to happen. Maybe we need to make a much more conscious effort to solve our problems on one level, rather than creating other problems to solve the problems we are posed with. The problem of how a woman supports two or three children as a single mother is not going to be solved by bringing in domestics and paying them substandard wages, encouraging the development of substandard housing, and having to turn a blind eye to slums developing in our society.

Do we need to have these people? My mother raised six children, and from the day I knew my mother, she was working! She worked in Grand Cayman, in Cuba, in the United States. She was always working, but we never hired any domestics. If anything, we invited another member of our family to come and help. That member of the family was given a particular reward. That is the extended family concept which is being eroded in this country simply because we are making it more convenient for people to pay to solve the problem. As a result, to say that if we brought domestics into the pension plan, it is only going to cause wages to go up, and make it more expensive, therefore adversely affecting our people, is not an argument that I would buy.

Someone called me up and said, 'Look, I need your help to get something from Social Services.' And at the end of the day, I said, 'Well, how long did Social Services help?' And she said, 'A year.' I said, 'Well, that's a pretty long time. Why don't you get your family to help you?' And she said, 'Well, my family—they're not interested in helping me.' I said, 'But you could talk to them.' Because you know what happens? Necessity is the mother of invention. When you need the grandmother or the aunt or the cousin to really look after your child, or to help you with something, you will be more careful about your relationship with them. When you depend upon people, you are more careful about how you act toward them. Therefore, if some of us were forced to rely more on ourselves and members of our own community, we might be better off. We might be able to recreate that more useful and harmonious extended family system.

The point I am making, insisting upon a standard for domestics in this country, is not going to adversely hurt people. We still have our traditional support system that needs to be given encouragement in this country. The Family Study points it out when it talks about the number of old people being pushed out of the economic and social process. We need to be able to find functions for our old people again, and the pension makes it quite clear that when people get to a particular age, they are going to be pushed out of the labour market. When they are pushed out of the labour market, what do they do for the next fifteen or twenty years? What do they do with their time? We are crying about the need for us to police our young people. We are crying about the breakdown in the social control systems, and we do not understand the significance which the extended family played in our social control systems. This is the reason, especially at this point, that it is necessary to do something by way of pension legislation to reinforce the extended family system which is the backbone of our social control system.

All things are interconnected. I have preached that from the time I came here. We must look at the overview. We must see how everything is affected. Therefore every legislation affects everything. If we include domestics, if we make it mandatory that we must pay more, (a) we might get a different quality of persons—more reliable; and (b) we open back up a necessity for there to be a new consideration regarding the relationship between families. We give back to the grandmother, the aunt, the great-aunt, the possibility to become involved and to feed a little bit off that household rather than having all the money of that household going to another group of people. We can maintain a particular dignity. We can maintain a particular standard in our society by not going along with this naive economic argument that if you include people in a safety web that should be good for all, you are going to mess it up for all. I think if we ended up with a fewer number of domestics in this country, we would not be at a tremendous advantage, because it is just like a car. I cannot put a car on the road unless it is tested for roadworthiness, simply because I am driving on the road, not by myself, but with other people. I should not be able to put anyone in employment unless I can live up to a particular standard, because the existence of that person I put into employment has an effect on the entire society. Therefore it cannot be left to selfish decisions about needs. The question of employment, the question of the importation of persons to be employed, is a social and political question, and Government must continue to reserve the right to pass judgment on what those relationships should be. This is not the time to give up that responsibility. I think enough is said on that, but I think it should become clear that the thrust of my argument is the challenge to Government, if it will not include domestics in the mandatory pension legislation, to not just look at the possible repercussions from an economic point of view, but look at the possible negative moral and social implications of excluding these people.

There is one thing I would like to speak on regarding the involvement of the Social Services Department, or as it is said here, the question of the spouse. I take a position regarding amendment of section 36(6), which reads, “In a case where there is need, in the interests of the children, the Director of Social Services shall have power to apply to the Court for an order appointing a trustee to receive up to one-half of the pension payable to the surviving spouse, and to apply it, for the benefit of the children, in accordance with subsection (5).” Now I differ from some of my colleagues regarding this amendment. As a matter of fact, I basically support this position, because it says, “in accordance with subsection (5).” I should have read subsection (5), but I will now read it. “Where a former member dies, leaving a surviving spouse and dependent children, the spouse shall receive and hold one-half of the spouse’s pension on trust for such children for their maintenance, benefit and education until such time as the children attain the age of 23 or cease their full-time education, whichever shall be earlier.”

I tried to look up the word ‘spouse,’ because some men think ‘spouse’ automatically means woman. I guess when we come from a chauvinistic culture we will make those types of mistakes. But spouse basically means, husband or wife. I do not know where the idea that men are going to die first comes from. It could happen, but I have seen a lot of situations, especially when we live in a little more peaceful society where you don’t have all those wars and everything, it is a possibility that some men can live longer. There is always the possibility of car accidents, women can get in them and could die, and the spouse that is left is the husband, and he can be a bad person, too. I do not think this is coloured by any type of prejudice toward women, and I would like to defend it by saying that we never know.

That is one reason for laws. We have laws because we assume that at times not everyone will conform. This is one reason for a Pension Bill. There is no reason people should not save, but we make it mandatory just in case, because it would protect everyone.

I think it is in this case that I see the Law empowering the Social Service Department to get involved here as needed. It is very needed. We do not know what the future will bring. We are not just talking about Cayman today, we are making a Law that will be tested as time goes on. Therefore, I think it is a very important part of this legislation and should not be taken out in that it gives Social Services the power to apply to the Court to enforce a stipulation which is in the Pension Law itself, and not left to the will, choice or fancy of our citizens.

I do not think we have to get into any more moral condemnation about this than we would about mandatory pension. This is mandatory, what they must give to the children. It says, “their maintenance, benefit.” What is a benefit? Someone is doing something for my benefit, they are doing something that is good for me—“and education”—because an education should really be for my benefit as well. It is possible that someone may argue that you do not need to pay for higher education for a person to be looking after their benefit. Just to make sure we close that possibility, we put in “and education”—“maintenance, benefit and education until such time as the children attain the age of 23 or cease their full-time education.” So if you cease your full-time education before you are 23, that parent with charge for you is no longer obligated by law to support you. If you are 23 and not going to school, you are working, so you can support yourself. The basic idea of pension, in any case, is to support those persons who are not working, who cannot work because of age, in cases of persons over 60, or in cases of children, because they are going to school until the age of 16 or 18, and in this case, it is giving the child an additional choice. The stress here is on children, very much so on children, because it gives those children the additional protection of being able to still get some support up until the age of 23 if they are going to school. If they are going to go to school later than 23, the Law does not really protect them. I feel this is a good idea.

From the point of view of the fact that the spouse, on the death of the other spouse, gets 60% of the pension paid to them. I do not know exactly how that came in there. I believe if someone has paid money into a pension, that person’s family should get all of what is paid into the pension. Maybe I am wrong about how this is being interpreted, but I am quite sure the Minister will deal with this in her reply. I would like to make the Minister aware of the fact that I at least understand this clause from that point of view, and I have no criticism to hurl at her regarding this. Whatever criticism I do hurl is because I feel justified in doing so. If I do not feel it is reasonable, I am not going to do it. I would like to say that regarding this.

From the point of section 52, where the principal Law is being amended by repealing “two years” where it appears and substituting “six months” allowing a contributor to the pension to be able to withdraw his or her money after six months, I do not think we have to play into the hands of the advocates of, ‘Why you taking the money from me for? Make sure you give it back to me. How do I know I’m going to get my money back?’ I do not think we have to play into those advocates by legislating a possible disadvantage here. I think, as was said by the Third Elected Member for West Bay, two years is an okay figure to insist on. I believe, since the money is for pension, unless the person has reached the age of 60 the person should not be that anxious to put their hands on the money.

From the point of view of the stability of our society, I think they should give us the benefit of the doubt. If they come here and they work and make the money here, they should believe enough in our society to believe that, at the end of that period, we would be quite willing to transfer that money to the jurisdiction of their choice. I do not really think we are being unreasonable in saying that from an administrative point of view, it would be much better to deal with this over that period of time, and from a financial point of view, we would like to have the advantage of keeping that money for a slightly longer period of time. At the end, the pension plan has to work, first of all, for the Caymanian persons who are covered by it, and the administration of the plan should be such that it does bind that 60% of foreign workers to co-operate with us in securing our pension retirement benefits. We are saying to them at the same time that they will also get theirs. We need them because they are the complementary part of our workforce, and to make any reasonable and sensible programmes, they must be included. They are that element of partnership that these wonderful ladies and gentlemen here like to so often speak about. It would be good to bear that in mind, that we as Caymanian people realise it is our society being exploited—not in a negative sense—I use that word to say taking. . . well, it is our society where the work is happening. At the end of the day, we are going to be left here, because we have no choice. Even if legally we have a choice to go someplace, I think morally we have less of a choice to leave than the expats. So we have to make sure that in doing business here, we continue to create and preserve an environment that will enhance our lifestyle, not just for today but for tomorrow as well, and all those who participate, who partake in this process, should give us the benefit of the doubt in that case. Unless we are doing something that would be totally a disadvantage to the expats, we hope and we say they should co-operate.

I am just going to close down now. Again, I am saying that I think Government is wise in this, but the Government has failed to show good reason why domestics, who form such a large group in this society, who have so much of an influence on the social and moral fabric of this society, should not and cannot be included in a compulsory pension plan.

I compliment the Government in making the 360-degree turn back to sense and reason, and hope that my message will show that lawyers are not the wisest people in this world. Thank you.

The Speaker: We shall suspend proceedings for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.24 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12.03 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Miss Heather D. Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I rise to give my contribution to the debate on a Bill for a Law to Amend the National Pensions Law, 1996, and the three sets of accompanying Regulations. I strongly believe that in this day in which we live and conduct business, a practical and affordable mandatory pensions plan is extremely important and, indeed, a necessity for any modern and progressive community. I further believe that these amendments are timely and, generally speaking, reasonable.

I am sure that for the most part all will agree that the National Pensions Law, the proposed Bill and Regulations are comprehensive and complicated. I commend both the new Minister and her colleagues on Executive Council for their dedication and commitment in creating and endeavouring to implement the pension legislation. I would also like to recognise the former Minister who was instrumental in bringing the Pensions Law forward in 1996. Like me, the First Elected Member for West Bay always has his people at heart. Their contentment and daily needs are always his first and foremost concern. I believe this can surely attest to the reason behind his introducing this most important piece of legislation.

This amending Bill and Regulations as experienced in the past, have been very controversial. I believe that with all parties working together we will achieve the goal of providing for our people acceptable provisions for pensions. This will ensure that Caymanian employees, in particular, can now look forward to receiving a pension benefit in their golden years when they most need it. Presently, many of our elderly receive a supplement of $200 per month from the Social Services Department.

As we are all aware, most of our Caymanian people are proud and at times hesitant to apply for and receive assistance from Social Services. With a pension plan in place, this will tremendously reduce the financial obligation which is presently placed on the Social Services Department. This will mean that during retirement they will be placed in a more secure financial position and will not have to purely rely on Government, their families and other charitable organisations for support.

I was truly pleased to learn that a Caymanian has been employed in the Pensions Office in the post of Administrative Officer. I have every confidence that this individual will play a most important role in the day-to-day affairs of this office. I look forward to her one day perhaps filling the position of Superintendent of Pensions.

In my opinion, we should proceed with putting this legislation in place so that by 1 June the pension scheme will be up and running. Should it be necessary to make further amendments, when such an occasion arises it can be dealt with accordingly. Through this method of planned savings our Caymanians and permanent residents will have started towards a brighter financial future and shortly thereafter non-Caymanian work permit holders will also be included.

I, too, would like to encourage all employers and employees to unite in order to obtain and implement a feasible and affordable pension plan. Uniting creates a partnership between workers and employers as they invest together for the future.

It has always been Government's priority to ensure that the people of these islands are well looked after. I am pleased that the pension plan is well on its way to becoming a reality.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The National Pensions Law which was passed by this Honourable House in July 1996 and scheduled to come into effect on 1 July this year, has not been free of controversy. The public is well aware of the controversy from the time it was first introduced by the former Minister back in 1996, up to now with the present Minister.

On 23 December 1997, a Law to suspend the operation and the coming into effect of the principal Law was passed by this House. Since then, much time and effort has been dedicated to introducing a vast number of amendments to the Law as evidenced by the 46 amendments to the Law during the suspension period. These 46 amendments represent some 48% of the 95 sections of the Law. This is a major revamping of the Law and cannot be considered as minor.

I will not be speaking on the amendments which have been circulated in any detail, as when they are moved I will have the right under Standing Orders to speak on them in some detail. I am also cognisant of the Standing Order anticipating an amendment or a Bill, so I will just make brief references in passing to those sections without necessarily debating that amendment.

Many of the amendments made can be regarded as minor but not necessarily a cleaning up exercise. In view of the splendid job—and I give credit where it is due—done by the Minister moving this Bill in her presentation on the second reading debate, I feel that it would be somewhat a waste of the time of the House to reiterate or repeat the same information she has already provided. There are, however, at least three of those 46 amendments that I consider to be highly paramount to this Bill, and that I consider go to the core of the whole Law. These are clauses 16, 25, and 31 which amend sections 25, 36 and 52 of the Bill. I will be commenting on these later on.

However, before continuing, I wish to briefly touch on an article which took the front page in the Tuesday, 31 March, 1998, issue of the Caymanian Compass. It was captioned, "Idle Morning in the House—MLAs Complain over 'deal-making.'" The editorial caption "Back room talks" also caused me some concerns.

In this connection, I wish to thank the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town and the Fourth Elected Member for George Town for clearing up this matter. By so doing, they demonstrated beyond any doubt that they are clearly men of integrity and class, while at the same time reaffirming that I was, indeed, acting with the blessing of the vast majority of the Backbench when I met with the Minister responsible for the Bill and her invited colleagues. The truth is, the Minister said to me herself that she would wish to have her colleagues present when she and I were discussing this Bill. In view of the reasoning behind that, I had no objection. It saved her having to repeat what I discussed with her.

All in all, the talks went well. I feel that the Backbenchers were able to accomplish what I was mandated to do on their behalf. I would like to pause here to say that I have been in this House since 1984 with one break (1992-1996). My record will show that I tried to make as major a contribution to this country as my ability allows, and I have never before been accused by the press or anybody of wasting the time of this Honourable House. I regard that as irresponsible journalism, that the press did not attempt to get a more rounded report on what happened by consulting with me because I was available in this House and the journalist responsible for this saw me and made no attempt to speak to me about it. So, it has to leave a lot of questions in my mind.

What was the motive? Was it to show me in the worst light possible? Or was it to get the truth of the matter? I am fully aware of the nature of the misunderstanding and nothing tried in that connection is going to break the link that we have over on this side of the House, but had the press just taken the opportunity to speak to me, to find out why it was that I met with the Ministers at the Glass House, it could have avoided a lot of misunderstanding and embarrassment to not only me, but also the Elected Ministers who met with me.

With one major newspaper circulating in this country, it behoves them to try to get their reporting as factual and accurate as possible. This has not only happened to me, it has happened to other Members of this House. I am not afraid to speak. Some Members are afraid to speak when the press is involved for fear of victimisation. They have the forum of their columns in the paper, I have the forum of this House. If they want to fight with me, they can start it. I am not afraid of them. They can attack me through the papers, I can reply on the floor of this Honourable House and I can handle myself.

Some people have wondered why Linford Pierson is not as boisterous and active as he used to be. Mr. Speaker, the reason is that I have controlled myself and am acting the way I feel I want to act. But I am like a fire on the stove—if you turn that fire up, it will give you all the heat you need; but then you can turn it down to control it the way you want it!

If anyone feels that I am not still capable of being the same old Linford Pierson that I used to be, they are mistaken. I can handle myself. So, if it is fire they want to see, they can get it! But I will not be intimidated by the press. I want that journalist and the press to know that whenever I see any reporting that I think is not factual on things I have said or done—in or out of this Honourable House—I will be correcting it. I will not be intimidated. I refuse to be!

If they want to work with me honestly, I have always been open. There is no time that any area of the news media has approached me when I have not been very open and willing to work with them. But I noticed a situation from the time I was sitting as a Member of ExCo on that side. And I believe I spoke about it once before. It seems that that situation is raising its ugly head again. The press is very powerful. It can make you look good, or it can make you look bad, and they know it. I want the public to know that they should listen to Radio Cayman if they want to get an accurate accounting of what happens in this House.

My advice, though unsolicited, is that the paper could enhance its reputation by endeavouring at all times to produce a well-rounded report of the proceedings in this Honourable House. I have seen many times where they have said in their reporting that they have tried to reach others to get a full and rounded report, but were unable to make contact with the Minister, or Member, or whoever. They cannot truly say that in this instance because the journalist who wrote this was sitting in the box when I came back in here and made no attempt to approach me on it.

What we need is factual information. When I read that story on the front page on Tuesday, I was shocked! With the embellishments. . . The reason I was shocked was because I also got a transcript of what was said. The story was certainly embellished. I also read the editorial. I could not believe my eyes! It put me in a bad light, as if I had deliberately wasted the time of this House by being in a boiler room discussion with the Ministers. Nothing could be further from the truth! If there was ever any productive time spent on this Bill, it was during the time we met in that meeting!

[Members' applause]

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I am not going to sit and tolerate that sort of behaviour.

Mr. Speaker, you are aware that last Friday after discussion with the Backbenchers I was asked to approach you to see if you would adjourn early so that the Backbench could have the opportunity to sit down and look at the amendments and decide on what amendment would be brought to the Bill. You adjourned the House early on Friday for that purpose. Is that also wasted time?

What about the week we gave so that the public could further study this Bill? Was that wasted time? It is strange that the front page spelled out my name. Why was that done? Was that to embarrass me or put me in a bad light?

When I went to meet with the Minister and her colleagues it was with the mandate of the Members I met with on Friday. It was with their mandate. I was asked specifically to meet with the acting attorney general on Monday morning at 9.00, but he called me and said he was unable to meet with me. I then called my colleague, the First Elected Member for George Town, and told him that I was meeting with the Minister responsible and would appreciate if he would let the other Backbenchers know that. He told me he would do that.

While I was in the meeting, I called down on two different occasions to see how the Members felt about the extended amount of time we were taking to try to get the amendments in order. Had the journalist responsible for this article approached me, I would have told him this. But that was not his motive. It appears the motive was sensationalism! They did not want the facts, they wanted to make me look bad.

With one paper circulating in these islands, it is important that the journalist be as responsible as they can be. They have qualified privilege to sit in the box up there and to report on the proceedings in this Honourable House, but with that qualified privilege comes the responsibility to ensure that the reporting is a factual and accurate as possible. Now it could be said, 'Linford Pierson, you are a seasoned politician, you don't take issue with the papers.' I do this time! I can tell you that I will be watching very carefully to see what sort of repercussion I get from this.

If there was good faith, after the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town and the Fourth Elected Member for George Town, in the same way a report was made on the contribution made by the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, it could have been said that in his contribution he had made reference to the mandate given to me, but no mention was made of it. Look where it went! Nothing was said on the front page, but yet, the criticism made about me was put as a headline article—plus the subject of the editorial! I call that irresponsible journalism.

That is the headline that should go in tomorrow's paper—'Third Elected Member for George Town Accuses Compass of Irresponsible Journalism!'

Mr. Speaker, it has been a long time since I have spoken like this in this House. But I just want them to know that I am still capable of doing it. From here on they might very well see a different Linford Pierson.

I do not want to say any more on that subject. I think I have dealt with it fairly well. I will just wait to see what type of reporting I will get for anything I say in this House from here on because I will not sit and let it go idly by. I brought it to the attention of that particular journalist, through my colleagues, my feelings on other matters that have been reported on in this House. I saw no improvement and from here on, I will take it into my own hands. If he has a problem with me, then let him come and talk with me.

I wish to now turn my attention to the three amendments I referred to earlier which are contained in clause 16 of the National Pensions (Amendment) Bill, 1998. I would like the press to clearly understand that this is one of the amendments we discussed. The major three amendments we discussed in our meeting had to do with clause 16 which amends section 25; clause 25 which amends certain areas of section 36; and clause 31 which amends section 52. These were regarded as three of the most important amendments needing to be done.

This is what we spent time doing in the Glass House on Monday morning—not wasting time—but using the time of the House very productively! Maybe it was wasting time for that journalist. We are not here for him—he is here to report what goes on in the House.

I have to congratulate the Minister for meeting with us on her own accord about a week ago and trying to amend what I thought was not a good Bill at the time. It has completely left out expatriates. That was very unsatisfactory and unacceptable to this side of the House. When she came back with her amending Bill, it contained a clause where. . . I will read that, "by repealing subsection (2) and substituting the following subsection". . . and in order for the listening public to understand what is meant by that, I will need to refer to the old Law.

What it stated here was that "subject to 2 and 2 (a) as included in the Law, all employees between the ages of 18 and 60 shall be members of a pension plan.” But it did say that until the 1 June 1999 employers are not required to have pension plans or to contribute to pension plans “for employees who do not have Caymanian status or who are not permanent residents.” That was the amendment that came forward in the amending Bill.

They added another section, section 2(a) that after 1 June, 1999, “Employers are not required to have pension plans or to contribute to pension plans for the benefit of employees who do not have Caymanian status.” It went on to say in either case “(a) have been working in the islands for a continuous period of 12 months or less, or are employed to do business in private residences.” It deleted the old sections of the Law which called for all expatriates working in the Cayman Islands to be included after three months of service. That was the main area of contention in section 25.

What the Backbench sought to do was to bring this more in line so that expatriates would be brought in at a much earlier period. In this respect, rather than having to wait until 1 June 1999, the Government was willing to reach a compromise with the Backbench. This period has now been adjusted to 1 January. That was what was agreed on.

We do not know how this amendment will go. Hopefully it will be approved, as the Minister said yesterday in her introduction on the second reading debate, the Government intends to accept the amendment put forward by us. That amendment is being moved by the First Elected Member for West Bay, who was the gentleman who piloted this Bill in 1996, and will be seconded by myself.

In the same way I saw reference in today's paper, even in the editorial, on the motion circulated since then on a different subject (to do with dredging), in the same way the paper could get access to that it could have gotten access to this amendment that they circulated with these two major amendments. Perhaps they did not, but they should have been given access to it. Normally, they would not have been able to report on it until it was moved and seconded.

This is a major amendment, and I think it was time well spent. Rather than having expatriates now wait until June, we propose that that time be brought up closer. In addition to that, we have moved that the Bill be further amended by deleting where it says “12 months,” and substituting “9 months.” The reason behind that is to ensure that we catch the expatriates who intend to be permanent in the islands as quickly as possible. We have tried to avoid the transients, the people on temporary work permits, because under the present system, as I understand it, you can get a renewal of a 30 day work permit and then, on top of that which would give you 60 days, you can get a six month permit. So you are effectively looking at eight months. If we use nine months, we are including all of those temporary and transient people that could create an administrative nightmare in this whole Law.

So, if anybody listening to the sound of my voice can truthfully say that that was not time well spent, then I do not know, something is wrong.

Another important area we discussed in our meeting had to do with clause 25 which amends section 36 of this amending Bill. The Bill had included in it. . . and I would just like to read from that so that I get it accurate. It states, inter alia, “Section 36 of the principal Law is amended-

(b) in subsection (1) by inserting at the end the words ‘and the pension payable to the spouse on the death of the member shall be of an amount equivalent to at least 60% of the pension paid to the member.’” Many of us found this unacceptable.

The effect of the amendment we reached with the Ministers was that that 60% would be replaced by 100%. Is that not time well spent, Mr. Speaker? This was one of the major complaints that the general public had about this amending Bill. The Ministers very graciously agreed to work with the Backbench on that amendment also. I am not here to speak for the Ministers, but right is right!

In clause 25 which amends section 36, there was another area that caused a lot of concern to the general public. I am not going to suggest that we were able to address every single issue out there that has been talked about. That would be impossible. I see us coming back here within a year to make further amendments. It is not a perfect situation. The Minister moving this Bill suggested that yesterday. But I believe that we have addressed three of the major areas of concern by the general public.

One area of concern in section 36 had to do with the question of the spouse's pension being put into a trust. The public was asking who was going to administer this trust, and what sort of trust it would be. It was creating a lot of confusion in the minds of the public. The effect of the amendments reached with the Ministers and the Backbench is to have the words “on trust for such children” deleted and replaced with the words “to be used for the maintenance, benefit and education of the children.” So there is no further confusion regarding trusts. This, again, was what we spent time doing in the interest not only of this House, but of the general public.

There was a third clause we spent quite a bit of time on. That was clause 31 which amends section 52. The offending (if I may call it that) section of this was contained in subsection (2)(a)(i). This was in the National Pension (Amendment) Bill under discussion now. This section had the affect of repealing the two years whenever it appeared and substituting six months. Many of us feel that it would be in the best interest of this country.

We are also cognisant of the interest of the expatriate who may wish to have his pension plan or funds transferred to another jurisdiction or to another plan, the portability section of this thing. But we are also cognisant of the interest of the people of these islands and the instability that could be created by moving funds too fast from a pension plan. The effect of the amendments being moved by the First Elected Member for West Bay, and seconded by myself will revert that amendment back to the two year period.

Here again, we were listening to the voice of the general public and no reasonable individual can say that this was not time well spent. It seems to me that sometimes the press in the editorial and otherwise tries to set the policies for this Government.

Also, in clause 31(1), 31(2)(b), we have inserted after "deduction" where it first appears, the words "from that payment or transfer." This is contained in (2)(c), rather than in (2)(b). Before the amendment we wish to move was agreed on, it stated, and I quote, inter alia, that it would "make such a deduction in respect of actual and ascertainable administrative expenses." The purpose of this was that provision was made in the old Law that if a transfer was made in accordance with section 34 or 52 that the expenses in transferring that plan or that member's amount to another plan or jurisdiction would have been borne by that individual. But the Pensions (Amendment) Bill, 1998 had the effect, or I should say it was understood that the expenses would be taken from the general plan. We wanted to make it abundantly clear by the amendment brought by us that it would be taken from that individual's plan so that it would not be spread over the full plan because a number of people had a problem with that. So the effect of the amendment that the Backbench will be bringing will be that any transfer under the portability system of the plan, the expenses involved will be taken directly from that plan and not spread over or taken from other member's contributions.

There was also a further amendment made which we feel was most important to the plan. That was by deleting where it stated "as may be" (and this is in clause 31) and substituting therefore "as is." The effect of this will show that beyond any reasonable doubt this clause is specific. What it stated before, and I am looking at section 52(2)(c), and this was the new section that was included by Government which we are seeking to have further amended. "An administrator shall on making a payment or transfer under section 34 or this section [referring to section 52] make such a deduction in respect of actual and ascertainable administrative expenses incurred in making the transfer or payment [and the old section stated] as may be (1) provided for in the plan to be made in respect of all such transfers and withdrawals; and (2) approved by the Superintendent." Where we have asked that this be tightened up is where it stated "the transfer of payment as may be provided for in the plan," we have stated that we wish to have that read, "as is provided for in the plan." So there can be no doubt as to the protection of the members involved.

Mr. Speaker, I will have the opportunity to speak again on the amendments that will be moved on this amending Bill, and I will have more to say on the details of that at that time. For now, I wish to thank you most kindly for your patience and I look forward to debating the amendments which will be moved the First Elected Member for West Bay and seconded by myself.

The Speaker: This is probably a convenient time to take the luncheon suspension. We shall suspend proceedings until 2.30 PM.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.47 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 3.06 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Debate continues on the National Pensions (Amendment) Bill, 1998. The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I was really hoping that I would have heard from someone in Government, but if you give me a minute, I will have my papers arranged. (Pause)

As I said in December last year, at that time in the Ministry we prepared some amendments that were minor, more or less clean-up amendments to the National Pensions Law. No one needs to question where I stand on what has been mooted around the place as the major concerns for the Pensions Bill. I debated it in December 1997, I took my position, I voted against it and I went public saying that the Government was on the wrong track. I do not step aside from that path I was on. They were doing the wrong thing.

From the beginning, the concept in drafting the pension legislation was to protect, improve, and establish pensions for all workers in the Cayman Islands. Following representation to our Ministry by employers and employees, that in some specific cases because of the condition of existing pension plans the Law would have put them at a disadvantage, and consistent then with our objectives to ensure that workers in the islands had a retirement income and to reduce the risk of Government having to increase social services payments to retired workers, we made amendments to the Law to give employees approaching retirement age the power to select the option best suited to their condition.

For example, our amendment to section 6 of the 1996 Law (and when I say "our amendment" I am talking about the amendments circulated in the House in late September and October of last year) was proposed to be amended to allow existing pension plans which were as good, or better, to continue to operate; and where the employee would be better off without having to register all aspects of their plans but having to meet the scrutiny of the superintendent. For example, some of the pension plans in place at some of the multi-national corporations, such as the bigger banks, were not able to meet all of the registration requirements such as the investment guidelines of the pension fund or the location of the administrator. However, the plan may have been far more advantageous to the employee. There are some banks whose existing pension plans are non-contributory, or the employer pays the lion's share of the contribution, or the retirement benefit is in excess of the mandatory 60% of minimum salary. It was felt that in these kinds of circumstances the superintendent could be given the discretion to allow these plans to continue. This is what the amendment to section 6 does. I am speaking now about amendments that were there before the Government revamped.

There were other amendments made to clarify the operation of the Law. For example, the definition of "earnings" in the Law was amended in part to ensure that employers were not penalised under the Law for paying bonuses. Also, the definition of "pension plan" was clarified following representation from employees and employers, and revisions were made consistent with the objectives of the Law. The amendment to the definition of pension plan ensures that those employers who have savings plans, provident funds, or profit sharing plans are not penalised by the Law. So they will not be registered under the Law, and in all cases the employee is empowered under the revised section 6 I mentioned earlier, where the employee elects to choose the option best suited to his needs.

I wish to reiterate that the vast majority of the amendments to the Law were of a tidying-up nature. However, I have been dealing with some of the more important amendments affecting policy. The amendment to section 4(b) ensures that non-Caymanians who are working on board Caymanian registered vessels are not required to contribute to a pension plan unless they are normally resident in the islands.

The amendments to section 8 (1)(b), 8 (2)(a), and 8(3)(a), are based on public consultation and strengthens the Law in regard to the qualification of individuals who can administer Cayman Islands pension plans, or who can invest the funds of these pension plans by ensuring that only qualified and experienced persons or bodies are involved.

After the Government produced its amendment leaving our expatriates—and took a sound lashing from the public—it has come again with another idea which is an attempt to compromise. Again, we could not agree with this compromise because it is not consistent with the objectives of the National Pensions Law which is to protect, improve, and establish pensions for workers in the Cayman Islands; to ensure that all workers have a retirement income and to reduce the ever increasing risk of Government having to make Social Services payments far beyond what it could afford to retired workers. Government took a position (as was outlined by the Third Elected Member for George Town) hoping that it would have gotten agreement which, from what has been said, Government saw fit to compromise.

Now, I can say that in the group that discussed these amendments mentioned by the Third Elected Member for George Town, I did not agree with the one concerning the time. I believe that we should have started on the date stated in the Law, and I will show the reasons why. But to accommodate everybody and to try to work with a compromise, we will move the amendments in Committee Stage, that is the Third Elected Member for George Town and I.

I would now like to deal with this matter of why we should include all workers as it was in the 1996 Law. It has always been my position. . . and let me make this clear, again: We cannot, and must not, discriminate against the working man regardless if he is Caymanian or foreigner; regardless if he is working in an office, a construction site or in a store or on a dive boat, they are human beings. That is the position I have taken since 1985.

I am not against anyone—I am for what is right, sensible and practical, and against what is wrong. I have always said that we should learn to live and let live.

I do not believe that the 1996 Law we passed would cause loads of money to be taken out and bankrupt the schemes. I cannot believe that because we had too much input from the business people and we worked such a long time on it. The way the Law is put together, where there are several plans and not one big scheme, is a safeguard against bankruptcy. It was made so that people could move their plans with them without problems. I have always said that I do not believe anyone will take their savings back to the United States or the United Kingdom to pay a large sum out of that dollar in taxes. Each worker has his own account.

Section 52 (2)(c) of the Law reads: "(c) An administrator may, before paying a member pursuant to this subsection, deduct a sum to compensate the pension fund for actual or anticipated expenses and losses incurred in effecting such withdrawal." We included this section in the 1996 National Pensions Law to specifically ensure that persons remaining in a pension plan did not suffer any loss resulting from a member, or a group of members, electing to transfer their funds out of a pension plan either in the Cayman Islands or somewhere else. The Law is made to protect everybody.

The Government says that it needs to protect small businesses. It is a fact that in these islands we have a lot of small businesses. In 1996 the Hansards record that when we were putting the Law into place in this House I said that the phasing in of payments were for certain age groups. For instance, for people below age 40 (which is the largest group of workers in these islands) there would only be a payment of 1% by the worker and 1% by his employer in the first year. Therefore, this would not cause any great impact on the economy. So the cost to everybody, employer and employee, would be spread out. A person making $2,000 per month would pay $20 per month. Consider someone making $300 per week. All they would have to pay is $3 per week for the first year and the five year period, all they would have to pay (if their salary remained at the same level) is $15 per week. That is money for their old age, with dividends.

If a business is so small that it cannot afford that, it is time that they asked themselves whether or not they should be in business. If it has ten employees each getting $500 per week, then all that business would pay is $50 per week for their ten employees in the first year. In five years' time all they would pay is $250 per week for the same ten employees. At age 45 and over, the maximum payment for the business would be $250 per week in the first year if all of the employees were age 45 and over. If that can destroy a small business, then they need to look at whether or not they should be in business.

On top of that, the Chamber of Commerce has said that employers and businesses made preparation to add on the anticipated increase. Now, this is coming from the businesses. That is what the Chamber of Commerce is. So, they have already put their anticipated increase in cost on while the public of the country—expatriates and all—are not being covered.

Let me tell you what this will do if we left out the expatriates: The vast majority of dive businesses in this country are foreign and they employ foreigners, expatriates. They employ them cheaper because not many Caymanians get into that field. If we leave them out, the Caymanian owned dive business, if he has Caymanians employed (and some do) would be at a disadvantage compared to the foreign owned dive operation. These are the kinds of disadvantages that would arise out of the Government's actions, and they will arise for the six month period too. As the Chamber of Commerce has said (and I believe other Members have also said), if we had taken the expatriates out there would be more cost to the Caymanian. The cost for operation would increase and be spread out to the Caymanians in the plans. It would reduce the retirement benefits.

So this attempt to leave out all expatriate workers until 1999 (and now until January 1, 1999) will do exactly what the Government said it did not want to happen. First, it is going to create a lot more paperwork for the employers, the providers, and the pension Superintendent, as well as the Immigration Department and the Immigration Board. Under the Government's proposal for June 1999 (and now for the proposal that is agreed on the consensus for January 1), employers will have to keep much more detailed and sophisticated employee record systems in order to track the continuous length of service in order to show when the expatriate on work permit has to join the pension plan. The provider will also have less of a smooth transition than what obtained under the Law where the return of information to the provider was simpler.

Under section 18 of the Law, the administrator is required to ensure that all eligible employees are covered. If we were to have accepted what was proposed by Government (and, as I said, if it passes that we do the January 1 deadline), there are two separate classes of employees established—Caymanians and permanent residents, and then expatriates on work permits for one year or less (now to six months) will come into play. It makes it much more cumbersome to track and schedule the participation of eligible employees in the plan.

The small office staff of the Superintendent of Pensions will now have the added responsibility of policing and verifying the length of service and eligibility requirements for all expatriate workers if they are to satisfy clause 16 of the Bill which amends section 25 of the Law, and if we agree to the January 1 deadline. This extra work load—and it will be an extra work load!—will result in what was intended to be a small efficient staff expanding with additional staff and expenses which Government can ill afford. They will have to do this or they will not be able to keep track and police it as would be their duty.

The Immigration Department—which is already overburdened with paperwork—will now have to supply a steady stream of information to the Pension Superintendent so that he can verify information supplied by employers and pension plan administrators. Depending on how hard it is going to be to police this aspect of the National Pension Law to avoid abuse by employers, there will be a need for additional resources.

The next drawback of this provision is that a loophole is bound to be created by use of the phrase "continuous period of 12 months or less," opening up the way for employers to manoeuvre and manipulate the period of service for work permit holders. Employers, and employees for that manner, can get around paying for employees on work permits who have been employed for a continuous period of 12 months or less.

The third major shortcoming of Government's proposal is the possible discrimination against employing Caymanian workers to avoid paying pensions. For example, with a contract for less than 12 months an employer will most likely opt for a work permit holder because it will be 5% cheaper to hire them when compared to the local person. There will still be ill-will and bad feeling created against those expatriate workers employed in the islands for a continuous period of 12 months or less and doing a job well.

I will not go into the Chamber's survey because other Members have spoken about it, but the Chamber of Commerce survey puts the Government's position in a bad light. It shows that the Government was dead wrong about its position of leaving out expatriate workers. Government encouraged the Chamber of Commerce to do that survey.

As I said, we have made some amendments and we are going to propose them in Committee stage. There are a lot of amendments to the Law, some by Government now and some when I was the Minister. Some of these amendments are sure to affect other sections in the Law. I believe that we need some time to see how these new clauses in the Government's Bill correlate to the section in the Law, and, very importantly, how they correlate to the Regulations.

When I say time, it is because it is such a complex matter. When the new Minister was bringing the amending Bill so that she could have time, I agreed that she needed some time because she was new. What I did not agree with at the time was for the putting off date. I could not see through it and they could not convince me about it. As I said, looking through the Law we can see (and I am no lawyer) where there are certain sections of the Law being affected by certain clauses being put forward now. I believe that we should take some time to do so.

We say that we are a God fearing country. We say that we do not like discrimination and we all follow the Bible closely (as much as we can). We remember that the Bible says to be kind to one another and "do unto others as ye would have them do unto you." That is my position in life. If I hurt somebody it is not because McKeeva Bush set out deliberately to hurt them. My philosophy in life has always been that if I cannot do good for you, I will not try to do bad to you. What the Government was attempting was not doing good for anybody—Caymanian or expatriate.

One Member raised the matter of domestics. It was my position that we should not cover domestics now. We could have looked at it in many different ways. We could have looked at domestics in the light of people with certain income levels. The social situation in the country is that there are people who are not on high salary levels but who do have a helper because of their children. There again, we have a lot of elderly people who are being assisted by Government and the only income they have is that $200 per month, but because they are old and feeble and handicapped in some way or another, they have to get a helper, as they are usually called. That group of people in the country would be affected.

I looked around the country and spoke to various people about that because there were those who wanted domestics to be covered immediately. I took the position that we could not cover them immediately, but once the Law was up and running and we saw how it worked, we could see how we could fit this in. I still stand by that position today. It is not that I do not want to cover domestics.

The Speaker: Would this be a convenient time to take the afternoon break?

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Yes, Sir.

The Speaker: Proceedings are suspended for fifteen minutes, and please, let us try to be back in fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.46 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.09 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. The First Elected Member for West Bay continuing.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: I am going to leave this aspect of the percentage of a pension for spouses to the lady Member for North Side. It is noted that, real or perceived, there are people who do not care for their children. I do not know what statistics there are to show how much this is affecting children, or whether it is the mother or the father. I think it may harbour this attitude to put this clause that leaves the woman bereft of the entire pension of her husband. So there is an amendment to bring that back to 100% of the spouse's pension. The Member for North Side is very adamant that the 100% be put back in place.

Much has been said about the need for pensions, and the need for the pension to begin this year. Everyone has a right to speak their mind. There are those who feel that we do not need to put anything in place that costs too much on business. Those of us who have a sense of history and a knowledge of right and wrong; who have had to listen to the needs of the elderly thus far in this country, who have seen firsthand how they must live hand-to-mouth, know it would be completely irresponsible for us not to put in place the wherewithal for people to help themselves today for the future.

One only has to look at the number of elderly applying for financial assistance offered by Government, the paltry $200 per month to supplement their small income—in some cases it is the only income they have to live on. We live in a country which boasts of much prosperity. One of the reasons I so strongly support pensions is because I have firsthand knowledge of the needs of the elderly because of the lack of retirement planning in the past, the blatant refusal to put the mechanism and provisions in place for pensions. That is why I am so adamant, and that is why I was so adamant during my term in Executive Council to see that we got a Law on the books.

I am aware that approaching the new millennium we have not put anything in place yet. One of the reasons for the Labour Amendments in 1995—which nobody wanted—was an attempt to deal with the issue of so many workers who had reached the age to either be pushed out of their jobs, as was happening, or were nearing the age and there was no form of retirement benefit for them. The only solution I had in the face of so much opposition. . . and we might say don't live in the past, but if we do not at least look at it, we will repeat the mistakes. . . the only solution I had in the face of so much opposition to the 1995 amendments, what I knew about the situation, was to propose and fight for an increase in the financial assistance and change the way it was handled by the Government in the past.

There is no use saying that we see a problem, if we then sit down and do nothing about it; there is no use saying we are sorry for the elderly but then refuse to assist them. There is no use seeing their need, carrying a little old fruit basket for them once a year, or giving them a lift home from church, dropping them off by their gate, saying, 'Poor old Miss Boddin, she is such a nice old lady.' These nice old people have to live on a day-to-day basis.

I have taken much heat, accusation, and ridicule for putting that provision in place for the old people, the sick and handicapped. That is all right. They are our people. There has been much talk about people getting who should not get. Let me hasten to say that applications came in from every Member of this House. Those who did not bring in or send in an application, certainly knew about them and received the support from it.

I have always said that the one big drawback in this country is that there is so much jealousy, so much 'Tink hard,' in good old Caymanian language; so much unwillingness to see somebody get something and say 'Let's live and let live.' That is one of the problems. When you consider their needs, for instance, some have to buy medicine out of that $200 per month. The cost of living is increasing.

Does anybody inside or outside of this House believe that we should be giving the $200 per month? In fact, the National Team should pray about that one too, and make preparation to start giving the increase we promised in the elections so that by the new millennium we are all planning for in Vision 2008, these old people who built what we are enjoying today—who beat the hurricanes, the mosquitoes and other hardships in this country devoid of any natural resources, except for the will, the brawn, and the goodness of its people—will by the new millennium be able to have the $400 per month we promised them. Do you know what, Mr. Speaker? If McKeeva Bush was still in Executive Council, he would see to it that they get it!

Perhaps. . . well, I better not get too carried away here.

I would like to see the person who is to say that there are people getting it who do not deserve it. I would like to see them say why. Can you look at a person and say he or she does not need? Any one of us who has elderly parents knows what it is all about. Anyone who has family members up in age, who worked back then and has nothing, knows what it is all about—especially those old Caymanians who worked, who scrubbed the floors, washed the clothes, cleaned the hotel rooms, cooked the meals in the hotels and condominiums, washed the dishes in the hotels and condominiums, who swept the yards, some who got messed up with chemicals and got nothing for it, those who went to sea and kept us going. I want to see anybody in this Legislative Assembly or in this country say that these old people should not get!

[Members' applause]

Mr. Roy Bodden: You're on the right track now.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: These are the people who kept us going. And what a pity, at the end of the day they were left with nothing! The Cayman Islands boasts of millions of dollars from tourism, millions of dollars from finance, hotels, banks and per capita income that is some $21,000 or $18,000—yet, we cannot give our people $400!

They did not just come and sign up for this and get it. Every one of them had to go through questions and answers—more than the Financial Secretary gets in this Legislative Assembly! They had to go through a means test down to the very gas they use. Those are the kinds of things I put in place because deep within my heart I felt the need to do something about that situation. But if you do not have a heart then you cannot feel the need. If you have not worn the shoe tightly, you will not feel the pinch.

These people worked for us, and I am challenging the Government today to find a way to bring that pension for these old people up, and put the Law I promised in place, or else! If I do not hear about it in June, they will debate it because I am going to move a motion.

The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture, says she is okay with it.

Well, I am getting some new information that there is an audit. That's okay. Good! I love investigations! Do you know why? Because when it is done they will find out they're clean. That is what it is all about. I love it! In my time I have been accused, and accused, and I have taken more licks than many in this House could stand to know. If it had been left to some, McKeeva Bush would not be existing here today in this Legislative Assembly. You tell them I said that they can go ahead and do an audit of the old peoples' benefits. Tell them to go and do it! And tell the old people they do not deserve it. Tell them that!

They can go and audit. I put it in place. There were changes upon changes, and there was not one Minister in Government with me who did not bring in applications, and there was not one Member of the House who did not bring in applications, so let them go and do an audit. I am glad that they are doing so. Let them see whose name. . . unless they wrote somebody else's name on the application. . . .

I know this much, Mr. Speaker: I am not ashamed that I put in applications because the people I put in applications for deserve it. But they believe that that will embarrass McKeeva too and send him into the wilderness. Learn this about a Bush: You chop it down, it will grow up again!

[Members' applause]

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: I am glad that my friend, the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture, mentioned that there was some audit. That will not stop the Government from increasing the benefit to $400—if they have the conscience to do it! I do not know, Mr. Speaker. I am not there, so I do not know what is going on. I am not in the loop of information. But they can go. I do hope that all the applications for the people who are getting it are there.

The old people I talked about who did the work in this country, who built the country, these are the people who are getting—the ones we never had the guts to put up a minimum wage for, and to write letters to the hotel industry so that they could get a proper salary. Those are the people who have to get assistance. Am I ashamed of it? I am not ashamed of it. Why should I be? They did a test.

All I would like to say to the Minister who gave me the information is that after they do the audit, let me know the results. I do not know who asked for it. I do not think it is your subject now anyway. But thanks for the information. Somebody let me know what it is all about.

People with handicaps need it, people who are permanently sick and do not have an income and cannot work are those who are getting it. The one great fault in this country is the eagerness of some people to be quick to judge and jump to conclusions with a willingness to embarrass, put down, speak down and kill when they want to do it. The end result is to hurt our brothers and sisters.

How about being a kinder, gentler nation, with a willingness to assist and allow for one another with sincerity and trust. Don't walk with daggers, don't stab me in the back when I am not looking. How about, "to do justly, and to love mercy," with a willingness to help your brother rather than trying to kill him?

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Hear, hear!

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Even when they find out that you have done nothing wrong they still have an unwillingness to say, 'You know, I was wrong. Ladies and gentlemen, I was wrong.' How about things that make us good, kinder and gentler?

The Minister piloting the Bill. . .

The Speaker: Would you like to adjourn and finish tomorrow? It sounds like you have a lot more to say.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: No, Mr. Speaker, I am winding up. The Minister piloting the legislation began with a passage of scripture. I cannot remember, but it was very pertinent. One that I would like us to remember is ". . .to do justly, to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God."

Mr. Roy Boddén: Good statement.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, I would like to thank all those persons who were involved with this exercise. As I said, I am glad that the Government has come to its senses, albeit screaming and kicking. But it had no need to get into all the fuss. Government should have done what it needed to do to give the Minister time, but it did not need to bring in the fuss about expatriates and cause the big fuss it did.

I do not want to get into the boiler room politics. What I do recall is that the message was given to Members that the Leader of Government Business had called down to say that he and the Third Elected Member for George Town were holding discussions and negotiations. I believe that might have given rise to certain things being said. I did not take part in it, but I can tell you that that was a long wait down here on Monday.

Mr. Roy Boddén: True!

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: I suggested that Government take some time, or allow us (if they want to put it that way) to go through this Law. It is so important that the changes we make do not affect other sections of this Law. People from both sides have worked hard on this and we do not want to destroy a good thing. I hope they will go along with that request.

I am sorry if I upset the House today with this thing about the financial assistance, but that leads to the fundamental principle in the Law. The Law is made so that people will have a retirement income. We failed to do that, so we had to bring in financial assistance. If we do not do it now, later on there will be more and more financial assistance.

Thank you.

The Speaker: I will entertain a motion for the adjournment. The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

The Speaker: The question is that this House do now adjourn until 10 o'clock Friday morning. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AT 4.34 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM FRIDAY, 3 APRIL 1998.

EDITED
FRIDAY
3 APRIL 1998
10.18 AM

The Speaker: Prayers by the Third Elected Member for West Bay.

PRAYERS

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived: We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth, that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly, that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy great name's sake.

Let us say the Lord's Prayer together: Our Father, who art in heaven, hallowed be Thy name. Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us. Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace, now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed.

READING BY THE SPEAKER OF
MESSAGES AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: I have received apologies for late attendance from the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development, and apologies for absence from the Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport who is off the Island on official business.

Item 3 on today's Order Paper, Government Business, Bills, Second Reading debate continuing on the National Pensions (Amendment) Bill, 1998. Does any other Member wish to speak? The Elected Member for North Side.

SECOND READING

THE NATIONAL PENSIONS (AMENDMENT) BILL,
1998

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Mr. Speaker, as you know, I am one Member of this Legislative Assembly who deals wholly and solely with the item before us when I get up to speak. But in order to clear up a matter that was aired on the radio in these Islands, and insinuated to the First Elected Member for West Bay, that it was I who requested an audit of the financial assistance to the people of this country, I intend to call upon the Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation to tell the people of this country whether Edna Moyle requested him to call for an audit of the financial assistance of the elderly in these Islands.

It is no wonder that the National Team Members are slowly drifting away from a team they have been loyal to for some five years. It was insinuated to that same Honourable Member, the First Elected Member for West Bay when he was asked to resign from Executive Council, that it was Edna Moyle who insisted upon his resignation. Edna Moyle was in Washington at a conference on domestic violence and she received a call at 11.00 PM to return to these Islands as quickly as possible and to bring the elected lady Member from Bodden Town. We did as we were asked, but I can assure this entire country, and the First Elected Member for West Bay, I did, and the entire National Team did, I did not insist. If I had the power over the National Team for them to do everything that I insist upon, maybe I should have been the Leader of the National Team and not on the Backbench.

I will speak very briefly on the National Pensions (Amendment) Bill, 1998. I am certain that before I move on, the Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation, being the gentleman he is, and the Member of Executive Council who hides nothing that his portfolio is carrying on from the Backbenchers because he gives in-depth and honest answers, will clear up this matter when he gets up to speak.

I would first like to deal with section 25 of this new Bill, the one that has caused a tremendous amount of concern for the Backbench and also for members of the general public. I would like to have been told when the decision was taken to remove those persons in these Islands with three months or more employment on work permits, that the Immigration Department could have given us a percentage of those people who left these Islands at the end of those three-month contracts; and a percentage of those who stayed on for a year or more. I am certain that the majority have remained in these Islands, maybe not in the same job, but with other employers.

I personally, and with the representation I have received from people in the community, feel that we are bringing the "us and them" situation back more forcibly between the Caymanian and the expat. The expatriates who have spoken to me have said they would love to be able to contribute to these pension schemes on a mandatory basis, as is for Caymanians.

The next item I will deal with, because I think this entire Island knows my position when it comes to women's rights—and if you will just give me a minute to find the clause that deals with that section, Sir—section 36 of the Law. Having been on the committee for pensions, and receiving this amendment where 100% of the spouse's pension would have been paid to the surviving spouse, and at this point my Honourable colleague, the Fourth Elected Member for George Town, gave us a definition of the word 'spouse' from the dictionary. Be that as it may, I also know that the word 'spouse' means male or female. But when I asked for a clarification on this section—and I am not here to embarrass any Member of the Government by calling names—but I will say it was not the Minister bringing this Bill, what was said to me was, "This is to stop the woman from running off with her boyfriend and spending all the money with none left for the maintenance of the children."

I think in a day and age when this country is developing, and we are pushing more and more for the equality of women, this is a slap in the face of the voting population of women in these Islands. We must remember that they are the majority of the voters in these Islands. Let no one misconstrue that I am defending the women in my District, because it is the only district that does not have a majority of women voters. So what I say here this morning is for the women of these entire Islands.

I would like to read something that was sent to me by the Chamber of Commerce and I think other Members received the same thing. It is from the Chairman of the Theresa and H. John Hinds, III Foundation. It says: "Women are far more likely than men to live out the ends of their lives in poverty. Six years ago the Theresa and H. John Hinds, III Foundation started examining why poverty in old age has a distinctly feminine face. What we discovered is a retirement system that is not well suited to the work patterns of women who continue to bear the overwhelming share of responsibility for caregiving in our society."

In my humble opinion, for far too long the job of the housewife in these Islands has been overlooked—the women who have chosen not to join the work force to bring in a salary, but have chosen to stay at home and keep the family together. These are my reasons for objecting to the 60% of the pension being paid. In my humble opinion, even though my colleagues on this side may disagree with me that this does not only mean women, I dearly believe that it refers to women.

Not only have surveys been done in the United States that tell us that women live four to five years longer than men, but the family survey laid on the Table of this Honourable House just a few days ago by the Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation, has also shown us that our elderly consist of more women. In my District, looking through that family study just last night, the majority of our elderly are widowed women. To say to any of them that they should only receive 60% of their husband's pension is an insult. I thank God that the Backbenchers were in a position to sit down and put their heads together (the majority of the Backbenchers, that is) and after discussions by the Third Elected Member for George Town and the Honourable Minister and other Members of Executive Council, have had the 100% put back into the Law. I am indeed grateful for this.

Mr. Speaker, the other section that gives me some concern is in the Regulations dealing with the conjugal date. I looked up 'conjugal date' in the dictionary and that refers to marriage. The definition of that word in this Law is so in-depth. But it even goes beyond what a marriage is defined to be in the Matrimonial Causes Law. In this country, we all recognise a marriage to be between a man and a woman. Our Penal Code does not allow marriage between two people of the same sex. So we know that the matters dealing with this section—which I had marked, but somehow forgot that copy—anyway, the section that I am dealing with is under the General Regulations, in which the spouse will only be entitled to a percentage of the member's pension after the marriage. I interpret this to mean that if the person she marries has been contributing to a pension for ten or fifteen years prior to her marrying him, and there is a divorce, she is not entitled to any contribution he (or she) might have made to this pension scheme prior to the date of the marriage.

I think this was explained on national TV on Issues 27 the other night. It was to protect whichever spouse would be paying the pension, should there be a divorce. Because of the first divorce a man or woman may have had, a contribution would have had to have been paid to that former spouse. I would like to see in this Law, or explained to me by that Honourable Minister, how we can handle a situation where one or the other of the spouses were previously married and had been paying a former spouse a part of their pension, but the person now has another spouse because that former spouse died. The person is no longer contributing to another spouse. Why is the present spouse, in the case of a divorce, not entitled to a part of the contribution made prior to the marriage?

Normally in a divorce, the rights of the former spouse are specified in the divorce proceedings or settlement. So I would like to see included, somehow, where a member does not have a former spouse alive, that some consideration could be given to a portion of a pension contributed to before he married that spouse if the former spouse is no longer alive.

It has been found that once there is a divorce and upon retirement, a woman will need 60% to 80%, if there is a divorce, of the pre-retirement income when she retires. That is all persons. The woman will need 100% of their pre-retirement income because the woman's income and therefore her savings are often lower. They live longer, inflation erodes buying power of those additional years.

There is no consideration being given, now that we are bringing in a National Health Insurance policy which everyone in this country must pay. She will have to pay health insurance for herself as well as for her children from this small pension benefit. I would ask the Honourable Minister if, rather than taking me to task because I have dared to question, she will explain to me if anything can be done to assist in this area.

Maybe it is time for Members of this Parliament to fight for equality of salaries and wages for the women. Maybe then there will be no need, because when we retire, we can retire on the same size pension as our male counterparts.

With that, I thank you, Mr. Speaker, for your indulgence. At Committee stage I will have other questions of concern, but I do not see the need to stand here and go through this Law section by section and then in Committee stage do the same.

Thank you.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: I rise to give support to this piece of legislation before the House. It is of paramount importance to the development of this country, and as we go forward, I think it will continue to improve the status of our people in these Islands. Much has already been said, and I will not go over these territories. I just wish to touch on a few points. As usual, I will be as brief as possible.

I, like the Fourth Elected Member for George Town, feel that we must give due consideration to domestics, whether our Caymanian people, or expatriates. It is not fair for some of them to be in place for as long as fifteen years, some of them, and when they reach retirement age, we have not provided for them.

Personally, once I knew of the coming in place of this Law last year January, I looked to take out protection for my own helper who is a wonderful Caymanian lady. She has meant a lot to my youngest son, especially, who spent a lot of time with her in the evenings. Much of his discipline and good behaviour I attribute to spending several hours with her each day. I think we, as responsible Caymanians, need to look at this. It is not fair, and as this House knows, when I brought the Health Insurance I also included those people.

We have to look at this as a point of security and as my good friend, the Fourth Elected Member for George Town talks about, the social area. When we have happy people here, it means Cayman will continue to be a good place. This happiness can only come about by providing these people with some security so they know, after working for a number of years, when retirement time comes, they will have a little 'kitty' in the bank.

The other area I have personally had representation on, and whatever the House rules on this will stand, is in regard to some of the small businesses. They have represented to me that the time of taking effect, when the contribution could be delayed for X number of months, or even a year, but that has to be what the majority of this House says. I, as a representative have been asked to make this representation even though I am on Executive Council and am bound by collective responsibility.

The last area I want to touch on is in regard to the situation before the House adjourned yesterday afternoon in regard to financial assistance. I was the person that asked for a review, an audit, of this new responsibility I was taking on. As all colleagues on Executive Council and in this House knew, when I took over the full responsibility of Health back in March 1994, one of the first things I did was ask for a review and an audit of the Health Services. As a matter of fact, I think my Permanent Secretary and possibly the First Official Member who took part in this.

As a person responsible for taking over something of this magnitude, and any business person accepting new responsibility, I think it is only fair to know at what point and at what position we are taking over. We can then make a mark and go forward. It was at no time my feeling of any undue concern, but as a business person I wanted to make sure where I was, at what point I took over. That financial assistance, Mr. Speaker, is now up to $1.8 million per year. When I am dealing with and responsible for funds of that magnitude, I want to know what is going on. I need to get the feel, Mr. Speaker. I do not like going into things unless I know what I am getting into, and more for my understanding of how the system works, the qualifications and so on.

Mr. Speaker, I have no problem increasing the amount of assistance to those who need it, but I feel it must be demonstrated that there is a sincere need. Once this Honourable House approves that increase, I would love to implement it. I have no problem in implementation.

With those few words, I give my support to this Bill before the House. Thank you.

The Speaker: Debate continues. Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause) I will wait a few more minutes and then I will have to call upon the Honourable Minister to reply.

The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: If I may, Sir, the proposed amendments by the First Elected Member for West Bay, to be seconded by the Third Elected Member for George Town, were meant to be debated. That Member had to leave for a few minutes and he should be back soon. I was (not just me, but all of us) hoping that we would be able to debate those amendments—not necessarily vote on them, but debate them because if they wait until Committee stage I do not think there can be any debate on it. So I am wondering if it is possible to take a short break to allow him to come back, so we may debate those before the winding up.

The Speaker: I think I should clear up the situation. That is a Committee stage amendment. But I have given scope to the Third Elected Member for George Town and the First Elected Member for West Bay, and I will continue to do that, to make reference to it. You are at liberty if you want to go ahead.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Yes, Sir. It is just that if I were not going to speak now and the winding up occurs, neither one of those Members will be able to speak on the amendments. I thought that was the proposed situation even though the vote on those amendments will be taken at the Committee stage. That is all I am trying to explain.

The Speaker: I understand. It is a bit early to take the morning break, but if it is the wish of the House we can suspend for fifteen minutes if you think that would help.

Is that the wish of the House? We shall suspend for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 10.47 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 11.55 AM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, this amending Bill to the National Pensions Law, 1996, has been dealt with in a lot of detail so far by those Members who have contributed. Certainly, the mover of the Bill has gone into a lot of detail. I will not be dealing with many of the specific sections and I will be brief, but I think, generally speaking, we need to give the country a synopsis of what we are dealing with.

I think one of the biggest problems we face with this Bill is the fact that however you tear it apart and go through each section, society will find it is totally, physically impossible to have a national pensions law which is satisfactory to everyone. So we will continue to hear, as we are now hearing, some persons or sectors being dissatisfied with the way they see an immediate effect which might be negative on the way life has been for them. For instance, as mentioned before, there are some sectors, specifically what has been termed in the debate 'small businessmen' within the country, who feel that the way the Law is to be structured with the proposed amendments will certainly diminish their profitability, their viability, and other areas in business.

I am sure in the short term what they are thinking about is something real, but I think what we need to understand and accept at this time is that if we do not engage in a national pension plan, the end result for the entire country and all of the people in the country is going to be one in which there will be many more individuals as time goes by who will reach the age where they are not contributing to the labour force and cannot contribute to the labour force, and they will not be in a position to be self-sustaining. The only thing that will happen is, the way this country is, we will find ourselves, at a national level, having to take care of more and more people. I think that is the general principle that surrounds the whole thing.

So, while there may be some individuals or groups who feel it is a noose around their necks, the truth is that in the long run they too are going to have to be taxed to help pay to take care of the increasing number of individuals who will not be able to take care of themselves because they will not be in a position to. One might ask, using that argument, Why include expatriates in a scheme? It has been proposed that expatriates should be included, not on a compulsory basis, but on a voluntary basis. But there are other ramifications to that which have been explained.

It is obvious that as it is happening now, there will be some people who feel dissatisfied. Mention was also made of the domestics, and there is a fairly large number of them. As the amendments proposed are passed, at present this category of worker will not be included. But while I accept, at this point, that it might be difficult to include them immediately, I wish to see a commitment from the Government that the situation will be looked into. I think it has to be examined carefully. But I think Government has to take the view that some situation has to be created whereby this category of worker can be included. The details of the pros and cons, and the way in which this can happen can be worked out, but I would like to see Government give a commitment to some kind of timeframe, whereby the situation will be examined closely so that once it is possible, it can be dealt with.

There has been an argument put forward that because of the wage scale of such a category, the amount of contribution made by these individuals and their employers would not be much more than the cost of administering these contributions, so there might not be much sense in it. I do not subscribe to that view at present because having looked at the rates the providers are charging, it seems it is possible. But because I do not know all about it, I will take the view that leeway can be given if they are not to be included presently. But, again, as I said, I seek that commitment.

While we will haggle and argue over individual points about this Pensions Law, I think by and large, as legislators, because we all realise the impact such a Law will have on the community and the society at large down the line, we feel it is necessary to sell the whole idea to the public.

One of the problems which has not really been addressed yet is that we have all been trying to hear everyone's gripe, trying to defend our constituents' positions as they come to us, but perhaps we should be stepping back and taking a different view. This is the view I propose at this point. As with most legislation as complex as this, and also as is common with legislation of this nature which has an immediate and direct impact on the pockets of certain sectors of the community, I think Government and all of us as legislators should take the position that, 'Listen, to the best of our ability, having listened to all concerned, these are the amendments being proposed and we believe, with the knowledge we have at present, this is the best we can come up with.' But we must be able to tell the public, and I think we should tell them today, that we understand it is not only possible, but quite likely that as the Law is put into effect and acted out, and the public has to begin to participate, that as we discover changes which are obviously necessary, we will make these changes. I think that is the only way we will get the best results possible.

There is no sense in our digging in deep, taking our positions and holding fast to those positions, and not being pliable enough to say, 'Listen, if we find out and prove, by the Law coming into force, that certain areas must be changed...' or if we have to run the slight risk of certain negative effects actually occurring for us to see what we have to do, if there is no alternative to get a better result, we should be quite willing to do this. I would hope that the Government would take this position because this is the position that I am taking. I have not really spoken at length to all of my colleagues on the Backbench. I have spoken with some of them, and I do believe it is a reasonable position to take and I am sure they will support this.

People see a law, if in their minds it is going to affect them negatively, as one they have to fight before it comes into force. I do not think anyone can blame them for that because they have that right. But I think it would be comforting for the public to know that the Government is going to closely monitor the circumstances under which the Law comes into force and be proactive in being willing to make any changes necessary. I think I can give a commitment from the Backbench that we will be looking at it as carefully as we can and we will not be afraid to put forward any changes we think should take place, or to talk to the Government about it.

Some unfortunate incidents have occurred during the course of events here, and I will not bother to go into them, but suffice it to say that regardless of all of the little problems that will come up daily, let us ensure that we look at the broader picture to make sure that we are doing our jobs as we should be—which is to bring about betterment for as many of our people as possible.

I think if we can live with the comfort, and we can hear it from the Government Bench, that that is the position they are going to take with the Law, as we go into Committee later on and deal with any amendments that might be coming forward, once we get those out of the way, perhaps for the next three or four sittings of this House we can make sure it is not just something that is left alone to work. If there are problems festering, that we come back here and deal with any other problems as they arise as it is put in force so that we can, within a year, perhaps, have it to the point where it is the best working situation the people of the country can live with.

I am not suggesting that lip service is common with all of us. I am only saying that I trust the position I am putting forward is one that might be listened to and might allay some fears in the eyes of the public. There may be those who will say that it is, again, only saying something. Let us prove to them that it is not that we have tunnel vision, or not about to satisfy any specific sector of the society, leaving others out. Let us ensure that what we have is across the board as best as it can be for all concerned.

The specific situations mentioned earlier about the amendments proposed have been dealt with and I will not go into it in any more detail except to make one point. With regard to expatriates, as a principle I think it is necessary that pensions on a national level should include our expatriates. What we need to be looking at that has not been addressed by Government (and I am almost willing to say successive governments) is our Immigration policies. Many of the problems that are obvious, because it shows up with the plan being proposed at a national level, are caused by the lack of Immigration policies in our country. We need to address that area, otherwise we will be forever having problems with any national pension law that exists in this country. That may seem to be a totally separate situation, but the truth is that if we examine it closely we have to accept that one affects the other.

The other situation we have to look at is that there are many individuals who feel that certain categories of workers should not be included because of the salary they earn, and because of the circumstances that surround those categories. It is not a farfetched thought that we may be having to look at a minimum wage law, especially in certain areas. Let us not be frightened by that, because I liken the whole situation to several rows of blocks that are side by side. If we start off with all of them at the same height and if we add the same amount to each of them, each row will end up being the same height. What we cannot do is add to a few of them and leave the rest out. That is when the huge disparity occurs.

I think it is important, when looking at this type of legislation, to accept the other areas that affect it, and we have to deal with all. If we deal with pieces of it and not the other areas, it will not bring about the right results. Perhaps, at another time, we can get into more detail but I think we want to act now rather than talk. So, we need to get some things going, but I can assure this Honourable House that we will not be leaving all of those other areas alone, and I trust that the Government will be conscientiously looking into those areas to see that we are doing what should be done.

I will wait to hear the wind-up to see if we are all on the same track, and the Backbench will be watching closely as we go through implementing this Pensions Law to ensure it brings about the best results for as many as possible in the country.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause) If not, does the Mover wish to exercise her right to reply? The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I would like to thank all Members for their contribution to the National Pensions Law and the accompanying three sets of Regulations, and to say that I look forward to this most important Bill and Regulations moving into Committee stage in the very near future, so that we can progress with the passing and subsequent implementation of this most important piece of legislation.

In the interest of time, I will desist the temptation to respond to some of the comments passed during the course of this debate, in particular this morning. Suffice it to say, I will take consolation in the statement coined by the Fourth Elected Member for George Town, that time is longer than rope.

I would also like to publicly congratulate the Honourable Third Elected Member for George Town for setting the record the straight regarding the negotiations which transpired last Monday at the Glass House. I can attest without fear of favour or contradiction that the Third Elected Member for George Town conducted the negotiations in a very professional, firm yet friendly manner. I take my hat off to him. I was extremely impressed by the level to which he took the negotiations and at all times completely satisfied that he was carrying out the mandate given him, and purely in the interest of our country. I would like to publicly thank that Honourable Member.

With those brief words, I thank all Members for their indulgence, patience, and their assistance. I look forward to Committee stage when further debate can ensue.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled The National Pensions (Amendment) Bill, 1998, be given a second reading. I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: THE NATIONAL PENSIONS (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1998, GIVEN A SECOND READING.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

STANDING ORDER 14(4) - ORDER OF BUSINESS

Hon. Truman M. Boddien: I understand that it is the wish of the House that the Committee stage be debated next week Thursday. I am wondering if I may thus waive Standing Orders to move on with the amending motion relating to dredging which has been circulated to Honourable Members, if that is the wish of the House, which I think it is.

The Speaker: Under Standing Order 14(4) you have that authority, but I will put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: THAT COMMITTEE STAGE ON THE NATIONAL PENSIONS (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1998, BE TAKEN ON THURSDAY, 9 APRIL 1998, AND GOVERNMENT MOTION NO. 1/98 TAKE PRECEDENCE OVER THE REMAINING STAGES OF THE BILL SET OUT ON THE ORDER PAPER.

The Speaker: We will move on to item 2, Government Business, Motions. I would entertain a motion for the suspension of Standing Order 24(5).

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 24(5)

Hon. Truman M. Boddien: I move the suspension of Standing Order 24(5). Mr. Speaker, the Honourable Member is not here now. Either I will have to put the motion and move on, or we—it seems to be the wish of the House that I do that, Sir.

The Speaker: That seems to be the wish of the House.

The question is that Standing Order 24(5) be suspended. I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 24(5) SUSPENDED TO ENABLE GOVERNMENT MOTION NO. 1/98 TO BE MOVED.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning will move Government Motion No. 1/98, North Sound Dredging.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

MOTIONS

GOVERNMENT MOTION NO. 1/98

NORTH SOUND DREDGING

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: This motion is a very short one, carrying out the intent put forward in [Private Member's] Motion No. 2/98, which dealt with dredging generally. The original motion stated, among other things:

“WHEREAS Private Member’s Motion No. 2/98 was passed by this Honourable House;

“AND WHEREAS such Motion provided, inter alia, in the first recital:-

‘WHEREAS the Throne Speech delivered by His Excellency on 16th February, 1997 (sic) [1996], stated that, “Executive Council has decided that there shall be no further dredging in the North Sound, except for an approval granted to Caymarl Ltd to excavate the balance of material (784,100 cubic yards) that remained under a licence granted in 1988 for the dredging of 2 million yards of material from the borrow pit offshore the marl pit, just north of the George Town Barcadere.”;

“NOW BE IT THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT extension of time be granted for Caymarl Ltd to dredge the balance of material remaining (being 289,000 cubic yards) under the approval previously granted within six months of the date of such extension.”

This basically allows Caymarl Ltd. to continue its operations for a further six months until there is a completion of the amount of material in the licence granted in 1988. I believe it was the view of the House that this should have been excluded and, indeed, in the recitals there was a referral to the exclusion.

I am not going to get into anything beyond that or into dredging generally. I so move that motion, Sir.

The Speaker: Government Motion No. 1/98 has been moved and is now open for debate. The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, there is that side of me suggesting that I exhibit some sympathy towards the National Team because they are now reduced to one Minister. [Members’ laughter] One Elected Minister!

While that Honourable Minister and I are always at loggerheads, my heart really goes out to him because he is not even supposed to be the Minister moving this. But I suppose that is the price of leadership and loyalty. I tell you what, if I were his friend, I would not leave him at an hour like this—and I want him to know that. I would not leave him in this lurch. I suggest that he begin re-thinking his position. Maybe he should come over here!

I say that to inject a bit of humour, but this situation is indeed serious, because as the mover of the motion, I certainly did not intend to have to come, after establishing a position, and set this kind of precedent a few weeks later. What happens now, one has to realise that once the door is open on this occasion, the precedent is set for the door to be opened on a subsequent occasion. Hence, the effect of the motion approved by the House falls away.

Now, I believe this situation which the Honourable Minister has brought to the attention of the House is an administrative matter. If the Minister who had responsibility for dredging was doing his Ministry’s work, instead of doing other things he perhaps should not have been doing, this would not have had to come to this. I am not pleased at all!

This borders on making a mockery of the legislative process and taking for fools those of us who laboured to bring a motion, which obviously has the support of the public, to the House and to ask me to come here now to support this—my position can best be conveyed in this little anecdote which I crave your indulgence to relate.

The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs will be very familiar with this situation. At the Mico, we had an elderly Mistress, a very softspoken lady. I will never forget her. She was responsible for instruction in Geography and Religious Education. Her name was Miss Duncan. She was the epitome of a lady. But she was one of the stingiest persons in the world in spite of her profession of Christianity and religious charity. If you were even one mark short of the passing grade in any course she offered, she would call you in, counsel you, pray with you, but be you sure, you were never getting that mark to achieve that passing grade. So, today, I am going to be Miss Duncan. I will pray, I will counsel, but I ain’t voting in support!

I set myself up as an intelligent person, and I know when the motion was brought what the motion was meant to do. I also know what this is meant to do. Hence I ask the question. Certainly the Government must have known ere this, that the time was soon to be expired. Why was it not mentioned, even at the late hour that I brought the motion, that there were some extenuating circumstances worthy to be considered? That was the time to bring something like this. That was the time to have introduced this, because that was the time at which the motion could have been further amended, even as we amended it to accommodate certain wishes. But to bring this now, I cannot accept that, and I certainly will not.

I really do not want to belabour this point, but I have to remark, as a historian, how the National Team has fallen. They came in with such a sweeping mandate and have now lost so many limbs that they are lame to the point of having two Ministers. The Honourable Member who piloted this motion used to accuse my colleague, the former Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman and me of being a leader with one follower. Well, Mr. Speaker, that is what he is now! I do not know if he is going to blow a conch shell, ring a bell or whistle, but he better do something because he is going to need more than that.

The people of this country are serious about this. While I, too am going to stay far from the fundamentals of dredging generally, I am going to say that the National Team at this point has to do a lot of convincing to change my heart and change my mind. I have taken my position.

But I want to say this before I conclude: I consider that the National Team—particularly the Minister who holds responsibility for this—have abnegated their responsibility to the nth degree. He cannot escape culpability and blame for this situation, and he cannot now come to the Parliament and expect the Legislative Assembly to bail him out. For whatever reason, he failed to do his job. This is clear to me. And I am not a lawyer, as I am often reminded, but it is clear to me that this is an administrative problem that could have been handled at the desk of the Minister or whomsoever he designated to handle it.

To bring this here now and ask me—Mr. Speaker, it flatters me. I have to remind the Government that when we brought the motion they told us we were trying to take policy from them. Well, is this not giving us too much policy? Is this not giving us too much control over policy? This is what I was talking about. This is an Executive Council-level decision. This is what I am talking about with the greying of the area and the confusion of the process. This should have been handled at the Glass House not at the Legislative Assembly!

It should have been brought, at the very latest, when we were discussing that motion. Is the Government saying they are so confused and so shell-shocked, and so overwhelmed by the solidarity of this block over here that it did not realise that if it were not handled before this should have been introduced when we were debating the substantive motion on dredging earlier?

I refuse to touch this situation, and I have no guilt on my conscience. But this is clearly not within the parameters of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town. I am suspicious. I wonder who is being the samfie-man because I suspect that this is a move to samfie someone. Do you know what a samfie-man is? According to the Dictionary of Jamaican English, a samfie man is “a person who tries to take advantage by playing upon the gullibility of someone else.” When the country boys come to town, the samfie-man tries to sell them the stadium, and tries to sell them the racecourse, and trams. Mr. Speaker, I will not fall prey to the samfie-man!

Thank you.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: There was a motion passed here the other day and we had our ideas on it. But to my friends on the National Team, I will simply say that I have to pray about it, and I might even cry about it. Thank you.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I will just make a few brief comments on this motion and will endeavour to deal with the principles of the motion before us.

The application made in 1988, the original licence granted in that year was granted during the period when I was the Member responsible for that Portfolio. As a matter of principle, I feel that the application before us today, however brought, is worthy of some merit.

We did not sit as a group on this side of the House to decide how we would vote on this matter, so I am assuming that it is one that will be dealt with as a matter of conscience. I am not here to criticise the Minister responsible for this. I am not sure why he is not here, and I think it would be somewhat unfair for me to make remarks in his absence. That is not what this motion is about. The fact that the Minister for Education took it upon himself to move this motion, I am going to assume—rightly or wrongly—that he had the authority to do so. I am only concerned with the merits or demerits of this motion and I will not read any motives otherwise into the motion.

During this meeting of the House, a motion was passed regarding a policy on dredging. I think it is important to note that the effect of that motion provided a policy position where any new application for dredging regarded to be of significance must come to this Honourable House for approval. The fact that this old licence has expired would suggest to me that the application now before us is technically a new application and should rightly come before this House for approval. I do not think it would have been proper or right for this to have been approved administratively by Executive Council. So I believe the right procedure is being followed, bringing this motion to this Honourable House.

This motion is seeking to allow the person granted the licence in 1988, or the company, Caymarl Ltd., to be granted permission to extract the balance of the remaining material under that old licence. But because that old licence expired, it is now important that a new application be granted. The original licence for 784,100 cubic yards expired on 23 March this year. It is therefore important that a new licence be obtained. The balance remaining under this licence is 289,000 cubic yards.

We know from experience that contingencies do arise, even in the best organised situations. That is why even in building contracts we add a certain amount for contingencies. Contingencies are unexpected things that happen. I believe it would be unreasonable for us not to look at this situation in the same sort of favourable light. We also know that the person behind Caymarl Ltd. is a very outstanding citizen in our Island, a person who has given much to this Island. I am not saying this because he is a supporter of mine. He does not vote in George Town. So I hope no one thinks that. But I do know this gentleman, and I hold him in the very highest regard. I do not think he would try to abuse any privileges in this matter.

Accordingly, I give this motion my support, not only at this time, but as a matter of consistency, because when the approval was given back in 1988, I supported this licence. Again, because the 289,000 cubic yards that remain under that old licence is within that same approval, I think it would be inconsistent of me to get up here and say that I could not support this. I say that regardless of any problems at the Glass House at an administrative level. As I said, that is not part of my business in looking at this motion.

As far as I am concerned, I should be more concerned with the principles, merits, or demerits of this particular motion. Accordingly, I wish to give this motion my support.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: I was hoping that since it is 12.30...

The Speaker: Is that the wish of the House?

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I am quite willing to take up this position now, but since we normally break at 12.30, I was hoping that...

The Speaker: 12.45.

Dr. Frank McField: All right. I will go on.

First of all, I would like to address some of the statements made by my colleague, the Third Elected Member for George Town. It is important, since we have had questions about whether the Backbench is together to the extent that one Member can speak for other Members. It seems to be a question of convenience, when people feel it is okay. In this particular case, we had all the time in the world to consult one another regarding this amendment, because it has been known to us for some time, yet no consultation was done. As I have said, perhaps it is best for me to wear my hat as an independent Member of this House so as not to cause any confusion.

I believe that some of the statements in regard to the administrative difficulties here are relevant. If an application comes before us to consider the granting of a new licence—and this is legally a new licence—and if this is brought before the House at this time because of the motion passed very recently making it necessary for all applications to be brought before this Honourable House, then it is important that we not have just the motion, but that we have the substantive information that makes it necessary for us as Members of the Legislative Assembly to make judgement regarding granting of that licence.

Some of us know this particular marl pit has a history that extends, as the Third Elected Member for George Town said, back to his time when the licence was granted in 1988 for a period of two years to 1990. The licence was extended and extended and he is talking about continuity, or giving companies the possibility to continue. But this is eight years that this company has had that possibility.

It is important that we can refer to people as good, outstanding citizens—so are my parents! But when my mother brings things in we have to go through the same regimentation in this country that the normal grass-root, so-called 'little man' has to go through. It is one law for all, scrutiny of all. I believe that if the Government would like to seek an amendment to this particular motion, or an exception; if they would like to grant a new licence, they should bring all the information so that we can look at the case history of this particular dredging exercise, so that we can know that everything is okay.

I would like to briefly refer to some comments made by the Auditor General in his 1994 report to show that there was, from an administrative point, some question as to whether this particular enterprise had taken the full amount of marl by 1994 that they were given licence to in the first place. I am not suggesting that anyone is dishonest, but we have to scrutinise the situation.

What would be the point of the Legislative Assembly taking policy decisions from Executive Council if when the thing comes here it will not be scrutinised? That is one of the concerns I had in the beginning in saying that if we were going to treat this on this basis, we would be jeopardising the whole decision-making process in this country, simply because people could see how easily we make decisions for certain people, and how difficult it is for others. You have to have more than a name, you must demonstrate that the enterprise you are involved with, since you are taking from Crown property, whatever it is you are taking, you are compensating the citizens of this country fairly, you are not damaging the environment. You have to demonstrate that. If I am to be involved in this decision, I have to be sure, beyond a reasonable doubt, that this is not the case.

Now, I would like to know why this has come before the Legislative Assembly. Why, with all the information, was this not dealt with before, since I know that applications were made, that it was asking for an extension. Why now the change? Why? If the Ministry had already been approached since last year to have dredging royalties waived, and if the Government's position was to continue to collect those royalties regardless, if Caymarl is now saying they have pre-paid this, why did the Government continue to collect these funds, and not talk about the time extension Caymarl was asking them for before the time expired? It is reasonable to assume that a company does not wait until their licence expires before they apply for the licence to be extended, or to apply for a new licence.

If I am caught tomorrow with a driving licence or passport which has expired, it would be seen as negligence on my part to have not obtained a new licence or passport before it expired. I believe the people who manage this company made every effort to see that the licence was extended, because they realised the difficulties at hand. My question is, why was it not dealt with on an administrative level when it could have been? Why, at this particular time—Mr. Speaker, the situation here is critical.

It is critical because, as the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town said, if the decision is being brought in order to create a precedent, and we go ahead and make this decision now without scrutinising it as if it were a new application, if we do not call for an environmental impact study, then when another person comes for permission to dredge, in principle, what are we going to do then? Are we going to say, 'Well, the Government granted it in principle so there was a licence granted in principle before and all we are really bringing it here for is to get the rubber stamp approval.' It does not work that way.

The Minister responsible for dredging and for this specific aspect should have been here when we were discussing the substantive motion regarding dredging. If there were no evidence that this company had already applied to that portfolio for an extension of a licence and to have the fees waived, then we could understand why that Minister was bringing this motion at this particular time. Without imputing any improper motives, it has to be explained to me why the change. Why did he change his position? It would have been good if he had been here to present this particular motion.

I would just like to read some things from the Auditor General's Report to show that it would not be right for us to just accept the granting of this licence just so.

The Speaker: May I just interrupt you for a moment? Will you be going on for a considerable period of time?

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, this is so important, I just might be going on for the rest of the day.

The Speaker: I think this would be a convenient time to take the luncheon break. We shall suspend until 2.15 PM.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.52 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.27 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Continuation of debate on Government Motion 1/98, the Fourth Elected Member for George Town continuing.

Dr. Frank McField: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I have the advantage of being a full-time Member of the Legislative Assembly, which means that I have considerable time to think about motions or bills being brought to this Legislative Assembly, and I have time to do research, ask questions, which are part of my discipline anyway—to ask questions and form conclusions as a result of the information available to me.

Regarding this particular motion, I have done exactly that, and I am trying to find out whether the National Team, which was responsible, until last month, for policy decisions regarding dredging, were in a position to have made the decision about this situation. Why was it necessary for it to be brought to the House? And since this has been brought to this House as more or less an application for a licence to dredge. There is a history behind it, but that history is supposed to be assumed. It is assumed that good Members of this House are supposed to know the history. It is assumed that good Members of this House are supposed to know the correctness of the individuals involved in this particular enterprise. But developed society does not work by assumptions. It works by proof. It is incumbent upon the Government and the Minister responsible for dredging to bring the proper paperwork to this Legislative Assembly to get something of this magnitude done.

I am not sure how it is constructed regarding dredging. Why, for instance, is there a time limit? Is the time limit supposed to be significant? Or is the quantity dredged significant? Or are they both significant? Which means, if I am allowed in the original contract, to take some 1-point-something million cubic yard, and I take ten years, which means I am taking about 170,000 cubic yards per year, the question is, that is what it would add up to.

I would like to see from the Government what methods they have used to assess the situation, to know this is the amount taken over this very long period of time, and not more. Also, if an amount for which a licence given is left, but the time is expired, the person cannot claim the amount or a right to the amount, since part of the licence has to do with the time. We could say that morally it would be nice to say there should be no penalties, but it is just like signing a contract with someone, and that person is to complete a contract within a specified period of time, let us say a year, and that person does not complete that contract within that specified period time. There are particular penalties, because the time factor is an important factor in the consideration of the contract; otherwise, it would not be put into the contract. It is the same here. The time factor is important. I do not know if the time factor is important because of environmental considerations. I do not know if that is the reason the time factor is important, but this is the type of information that needs to be brought before the House.

When we talk about transparency in Government, when we bring certain decisions to the Legislative Assembly so we can have greater transparency, it is important to realise that transparency must exist here. We must not forget that people are listening to us, and that the press is present with us, and that what we say here can be reported and scrutinised by the general public. One of the first things the general public will want to know is whether the Members of the Legislative Assembly, in bringing the dredging motion last month, the major motion, were serious about the principles motivating them to bring the motion, or if it was just a political exercise. Because if we were serious about the dredging motion, we cannot treat the first application—and this is the first application to dredge—in such a casual manner, as if all facts are known about the situation, as if it is a fait accompli. We have to start with this application in exactly the manner in which we will start the next application for dredging.

We must request that some type of environmental assessment is made. We have no obligations to the parties whose licence has expired. If we decide to show some consideration because of the administrative misadministration, then it will depend solely upon the Government that is trying to correct its wrong by bringing it here. They must now show us the sense of allowing a continuation of the extraction of this amount of marl.

I would like to read a bit from the Auditor General's report of 1994. It is relevant. This is page 34 of the report of 1994, 162: "I could find no relevant and reliable evidence of the total amounts dredged for any of the five projects examined, all of which have or should have terminated. As a result, I am unable to calculate the total amount of royalties payable by each of the licensees. Closer study revealed a disturbing history of inertia by those involved. For example, the licence of Project C terminated on 31 March 1995; however, no action had been taken as of the end of June 1995 to establish the total quantities dredged. A much worse situation was evident in respect of Project B, which licence to dredge two million cubic yards was issued in October 1988. No volume reports submitted by the licensee could be located by my officers. The project was originally scheduled to end in October 1990 but was extended up to early 1992. However, as of the end of June 1995, the licensee had failed to submit an acceptable report of the total quantities dredged, despite repeated reminders by the Ministry. The limited evidence on file indicates an element of confusion in the quantities dredged. Correspondence dated December 1993 refers to the licensee's own calculations (not on file) of the 884,000 cubic yards removed, but no supporting documentation was available."

It is important, since I am involved in the decision, that I be satisfied in regard to the quantity that has been taken. It is important that I be informed of the price this Crown property will be sold for, because it is being sold back to us, the people. It belongs to us, the people. If we permit someone to remove those resources, and then we have to buy them back, at least the people should get fair royalties for what commonly belonged to them. If the licence was granted in 1988, what has been the change in terms of the selling price for this fill material since then? Has there been a substantial change in the price? What will it sell for when this 280,000 cubic yards is removed? What will be the selling price? Will it be fair when compared to the royalty the people will get? I think this is a consideration that should be taken into account, because if you apply for a licence, and the original licence is to be two years, and the licence goes on for ten years—ten years!—it is necessary for us to make some serious considerations as to perhaps a readjustment of price, since the seller, the dredger, can go on the open market and get the price on the open market.

It is unfair to put the people in a position where their royalty is tied up with the original contractual agreement, when the selling price of the persons who excavate it is not tied to that at all. When we start talking about that, and do not give the people the benefit, we cannot talk about transparency. We have an opportunity now, in debating this, to do exactly what the people have hired us to do—look into the loopholes; ask the questions objectively, and come up with objective answers without favour to any particular person. I would like for us to take this application as a first application, for there to be the proper type of scientific research to allow this to happen. I do not want to be accused by anyone of trying to make other people's lives difficult, but I have had a very difficult life myself. I have in my heart the ability to be merciful, but I still believe that I am here to see that there is one justice for all, one law for all, one criterion for all. If tomorrow I were to come here, or some member of my family or of my community were to come here with an application, I would have to scrutinise that objectively and show the people that I was objective in making my decision.

I feel that the Government, the National Team Government, has demonstrated to the people of this country their inability to be objective when it comes to making decisions, because if they had been objective in the very beginning they would have solved this problem outside the Legislative Assembly. They would have solved this problem on an administrative level, and they would not give me the impression that somehow, someone was being held for ransom. That is my suspicion of the motive behind bringing this to the Legislative Assembly. I just hope that all those who get up and speak, who vote, realise that this decision will have more repercussions than they might have thought. This decision will be spoken about again in June. Thank you.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Unlike some others who have spoken before, I consider the motion before us today to have some very wide-reaching effects. First of all, before I say the little bit I have to say about it, let me make it very clear that in principle, the fact that what the motion is asking for does not exceed the original amount approved to be dredged by Caymarl Ltd., allows me to think that it is not necessarily something which cannot be allowed. As the motion asks, according to the records, there are 289,000 cubic yards of fill remaining of the original grant of 784,100 cubic yards to be taken from the seabed. The motion also has a time limit applied to it. Within those confines, it is not necessarily something that should cause great consternation or argument.

But there are a few areas which I think need to be addressed, and I will do the best I can to paint a picture of a sequence of events, to show why there should be concern, and to prove that there was good reason for the Private Member's Motion passed on March 13 this year, to have been brought to this Honourable House.

First of all—and I will table these documents, Mr. Speaker—let me go through a sequence of events. The first thing I wish to deal with is a letter from Roland Bodden and Company addressed to Mr. Jay Bodden of Caymarl Ltd., on 13 November 1997.

“Dear Jay,

“To date, 494,600 cubic yards have been removed from the approved dredging area. The approval was for 784,100 cubic yards. Therefore, 289,500 cubic yards can be further removed from the approved dredged area without any penalties.”

There is another section to the letter which has no bearing on the point I wish to make, but it is in the letter and I will table it.

We have established from Roland Bodden and Company Ltd., that there are “289,500 cubic yards of marl which can be further removed from the approved dredged area without any penalties.” Then we have a letter dated November 21, 1997, addressed to the Honourable John McLean, Ministry of Agriculture, from Caymarl Ltd.

“Dear Mr. McLean,

“Because of the erosion of the silt screen used in dredging, we had to stop dredging until suitable replacement can be found. Actual dredging was stopped on October 10, 1997. In view of the aforementioned, we hereby request that Government waive our royalty payment until dredging resumes. Also, we are requesting that an extension to the time period to dredge under our current licence is extended to cover the period of inactivity. Your favourable response to this request will be greatly appreciated.”

This letter is dated November 21, 1997. Therefore, from that letter, we have established that five months ago the principals of Caymarl Ltd. advised the Government of their dilemma and asked for consideration of an extension.

The next letter is from the Ministry of Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works, referring to Caymarl's letter of 21 November.

“Dear Mr. Bodden,

“Reference is made to the General Manager's letter dated 21 November 1997 advising that dredging had ceased as of 10 October 1997, and further requesting that Government waive royalty payments until dredging resumes. Please be advised that your request to waive the royalty payments would require that an amendment be drafted to your licence, and that same be approved by the Governor in Council. In light of the concerns expressed a few years ago by the Auditor General, and indeed the Public Accounts Committee re the status of outstanding dredging royalties and the subsequent improvements we have made in this regard, I am not prepared to make a recommendation to Council at this time for a waiver of royalty payments. I would implore you to try and get the operation mobilised again with the new pipes and silt screen which we have spoken about for many months, so that dredging can be completed within the eighteen months stipulated in the licence. From our register of dredging royalties, we note that you have been keeping your payments current, and that the last payment was due on 28 November 1997. Please be reminded that fourteen days following a late payment a reminder will be issued as per Government policy. I trust that you will understand our position in this matter.

“Yours sincerely,

“Honourable John B. McLean, O.B.E.”

So we have a letter of 21 November from Caymarl Ltd., and we have a reply to that letter. Before I go any further, let me say what I noted in those two pieces of correspondence. I noted that one of the requests made by Caymarl Ltd. was for an extension to the licence for the time the dredge was down, so they could be allowed to complete the dredging of the quantity the licence allowed. In the reply, I do not see that that request has been addressed. The reply that came from Government dealt with the request for waiver of royalties.

We move on to February 12. November, December and January are gone, and we are into February. This is another letter from Caymarl Ltd.

“Dear Mr. McLean,

“This letter serves to formally request an extension of six months to the time period for dredging under our current licence agreement with Government. This extension became necessary due to stoppage from weather conditions and problems with the silt screen, which we had to replace. We are now in a position to start dredging once again, but would be restricted if an extension to the time period for dredging is not waived. Also, we have endeavoured to keep our royalty payments up to date, and as such, our outstanding payments for royalties would be completed in its entirety within the next month.”

That means the dredging was ceased in October, but the royalty payments continued to be made until February. We have a reply to that letter, dated 17 March from the Ministry—no, Mr. Speaker, I am sorry, this is not a reply. The February 12 letter from Caymarl Ltd. has had no reply yet, and we are up to March 17. So March 17 comes, and Caymarl writes to the Ministry again.

“Dear Mr. McLean,

“Further to our letter dated February 12, 1998, I am writing in respect to the same. To date we have not received a reply from Government as to its position in granting an extension to the time period to dredge. As was outlined, we have not dredged since October 10, 1997. Our inability to dredge was due to the following:

“(1) Poor weather conditions that would negatively affect the dredging process;

“(2) Replacement of the silt screen and piping system.

“This was done in an effort to comply with the requirements of our licence agreement in respect to siltation. Since our stoppage date, we have spent approximately C$400,000 in improving our dredging facility. We sincerely hope that a favourable response can be anticipated, and that the reasons given will be considered. Thanks once more for your continued support.”

This is March 17. We come to March 24, the day after the licence expired. We have another letter from Caymarl Ltd. to the Ministry of Agriculture. A letter in November was answered, but the request for an extension was not addressed. Another letter was sent on February 12 requesting the extension, and there was no answer. We have another letter dated March 17 regarding the same request—still no answer. So on March 24, another letter goes out to the Ministry.

“With reference to my letter dated March 17, I am writing to provide additional information of the same. I have enclosed a copy of the last survey done by Roland Bodden and Co. Ltd., Licensed Surveyors. As you will notice from his report, the total amount of marl dredged to date is 494,600 cubic yards, which means we still have 289,500 cubic yards left to be dredged under our current licence. Also, it is important to note that due to the current demand for marl, we were obliged to sell approximately 200,000 cubic yards. This included significant amounts for road works and other Government projects. From the 289,500 cubic yards that remain to be dredged, we are hoping to use 189,000 cubic yards for land reclamation, while the remaining balance will be sold. I trust that the foregoing provides the necessary information as to the present state of our dredging activity, together with my letter of March 17, 1998, outlining our request for an extension to the time period for dredging under our current licence. I am also pleased to state that all royalty payments have been met except for the final payment of $43,560, which will be made no later than the end of the current month. This means we would have paid the $289,500 in royalty fees. Sincere thanks for your continued efforts in assisting us in this matter.”

It seems from this letter that there may have been some communication, and I am not questioning that, I just do not have copies of any written communication. It is possible that communication was made via telephone or some other method. So as of March 24, we have a series of requests over an almost five-month period, regarding an extension, because Caymarl Ltd. had found themselves in a position in which it was physically impossible to excavate the total amount they were allowed under their licence within a given time from the seabed. While all this was going on, they were still told to continue paying royalties, even for marl which had not been dredged. An explanation was given for the Ministry not being prepared to change that stance, and I do not have a big problem with that, but we just wanted to make sure we have the picture painted.

The motion brought by the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town and seconded by me was passed on 13 March. Before I go any further, let me state clearly—and I hope no one has it in mind to muddy the waters here—that any statement I may make regarding this in my debate has nothing to do with the Civil Service, because I have every confidence that the Civil Service will do whatever it is directed to do in a timely fashion. In fact, the vibes I am getting are that the political directorate has such a great fear of God in the Civil Service that if it don' mind sharp, they gon' do things before they're asked to do it! Anyway, that is not the point at hand.

I need Government to answer and explain why this sequence of events took place. If they were not minded—bear in mind, until the 13th of March, or whenever the motion came, there was no reason for them to think about this motion, so they would be dealing with whatever the affairs of whichever Ministry it was in their normal fashion. They would have known when the licence would have expired. It brings to mind the question, were they prepared for the licence to expire and to simply deal with it as they saw fit, whenever they saw fit? Were they minded to give the extension? Was there something else behind not dealing with the request? I do not know. I want them to tell me.

The difference with my line of argument here is, as far as I am concerned, with the knowledge I have, I simply want some answers. In previous debate, the Fourth Elected Member for George Town referred to transparency, and to this Member, that is of utmost importance. It must not only be transparent in the deliberations, but it must appear to be transparent. Whenever it is not clear to me, I am going to ask. This is one time I am asking.

I will go a little further—and again, I am happy to table what I read from today. I will just pass the bundle when I am through. I am going to show why questions stick in my mind about the method in which certain things are dealt with. Whenever the answers are forthcoming, however they are forthcoming, I trust the answers will be in good order, but the point will have been made, that the manner in which things are dealt with must not only be transparent but they must appear to be transparent.

In an earlier debate, I referred to a letter dated September 1995, addressed to Mr. Heber Arch, c/o Arch & Godfrey (Cayman) Ltd.

“Dear Mr. Arch,

“Re: Intercoastal Waterway Proposal, North Sound
“I am directed by His Excellency the Governor to advise that approval in principle has been granted in respect of your North Sound proposal dated 12 July 1995 which would serve to link all canal developments between Batabano and Omega Bay, as well as the main channel. Please be advised, however, that approval for the issuance of a coastal works licence to dredge the six million cubic yards of material is reserved at this time following the outcome of a full technical review of the application, including an environmental impact assessment by a firm approved by Government and at the expense of the applicant.”

This letter caused much furor. But in recent months, after certain happenings, another one has appeared. The one I just read is approval in principle dated, I think, September 11. We have another letter dated 18 October, 1995.

I am trying to be a little careful here so that—I do not necessarily want to call names, because the names involved in the letters are not involved in the point I am going to make.

“Re: Marl Mining Proposal

“I am directed by His Excellency the Governor to advise that approval in principle has been given to Equipment Ltd., to excavate 1.9 million cubic yards of material from the North Sound at the location indicated on the proposal as Section AA1. The issuance of a dredging licence, however, is subject to the completion of an environmental impact study, and the conditions and royalty recommendations from the Department of Environment. This letter should not in any way be construed as permission to commence works.”

But bear in mind, the way the letter reads, once an environmental impact study is completed, and the “conditions and royalty recommendations from the Department of Environment” met, it is literally saying you can go ahead. I think we want to finish this evening, so I am not going to spread too many wings here, but believe me, I could. I happen to know by what I have seen that the first approval in principle done in September, this second one, done in October, both of them in principle. . . . Yeah, go ahead and call. Hurry!

Mr. Speaker, I am a funny person. I have the greatest desire for the truth, and once it is forthcoming, there is nothing else that matters to me. But when I want to know it, I want to know it. And as far as I am concerned, all of us here have the right to know it, and all I want to do is hear it.

The position is this: The first letter was dealing with—and I will just read a section again, “which would serve to link all canal developments between Batabano and Omega Bay.” This second letter—I do not have the map here, but I can get it—the section which reads AA1 in the second letter is just a minor portion of the canal waterways between Batabano and Omega Bay. Basically speaking, location-wise, one is part of the other. However, I believe the second one was a totally different and unconnected application.

My first question is, If you give approval in principle for an entire project and someone else comes along (because there are two different entities here) asking for approval in principle for a small portion, which is a part of the original portion, and you give that person approval in principle too, then it must mean both of them get approval, and you are going to dredge the same place twice. That is what it means to me. That is not a bad thing if you could! You might have less trouble! You could stay in one place and keep dredging all the time. But we know that is not how it works.

The thing that really, seriously disturbs me—and listen now, the difference in all that is happening here this evening—everyone behind me and alongside of me can disappear. This is me. I did not say anyone is going, I am just saying, everyone feel free, because this is me. Both approvals—and if anyone wants to test me, I will finger who I need to finger—at least two Ministers of Executive Council have said to me, on both occasions now, these approvals in principle that I just read—two Ministers have said, for the first approval, they knew nothing about it. For the second one I just read, two Ministers have told me they knew nothing about it. Now unless it is the greatest coincidence that when each of them was dealt with, the specific two Ministers were off Island or absent from the meeting, then something is strange. I just want someone to show me what is what. That is all I want. I am accusing no one of anything. But if there is mud in the water and we want to swim, and we like the water to be clear, let us clear it so we can swim. That is all I want to happen.

If it was not such a great coincidence, then, how were these approvals in principle dealt with? If it was a coincidence, unless I have no idea how the system runs. . . if Ministers are absent from certain meetings I am sure they get minutes, and I would assume that they read those minutes. So the minutes should tell what went on. We are not going to start digging up any more. Let us talk about what is really happening now.

I do not know if there are any more approvals in principle. I only knew about this first letter of 1995, because it was passed all over the place, and tabled in the House. But then, if this recent dredging motion had not been dealt with, this other one might not have popped up. I do not have a problem with any one of them, Mr. Speaker, as a matter of principle. I am talking about due process. When you hear us call for an environmental impact study, it is because of these fears that we ask for it. Both letters giving approval in principle referred to an environmental impact study. Fine! I do not have any problem with that. But again, I am talking about the process, and I am not trying to bend or twist anything. God forbid! I just want to know the truth. I want to know how things happen so we can understand. I want to know what the due process is, and how it takes place.

Getting back to the original motion: It is my belief that if Government understood the problems of Caymarl Ltd., and was sympathetic to the situation, it would have dealt with the situation before the licence expired. In fact, what really made my head start to turn and twist was when the situation was brought to light, the manner in which it was attempted to be dealt with originally. Two separate attempts were made—what’s that word? Cornswobbled? Yeah, that’s the word. Either one—cornswobbled or samfied. Two separate attempts were made, because it was a Backbench motion, to try to get us to deal with it, one by way of—and I do not know how this is going to happen—amending the motion that was approved, and another one by us putting our John Hancock to some lines on a piece of paper.

One of these good days, perhaps God will see fit for all of us to learn that if you are open with all you do, no one will instinctively start to have feelings of distrust. Even when everything is done right, if it appears to people that something is being hidden, the automatic human reaction is, Something is wrong. I do not know how else I can say it in this Honourable House. It causes personal feelings of one against the other. They blow up and fester, and you do not know what else will happen. This one wants to do this to the other one, and back and forth and back and forth, and it is all caused through distrust. If there is no reason for the distrust to take place. Open it like the Bible so everyone will know! That is my contention. If it takes ill feelings, and not talking to one another to make it stop, so be it! So be it! I don’t care! That is all we are looking for.

I am not going to bother to go into other matters, because I think the purpose of saying what I said here today is served. I will simply sum up. I have no problem personally with dealing with the motion and what it calls for, simply because if I understand the problems Caymarl Ltd. got into—and the fact remains that the request is not for any more marl to be dredged than what the approval given calls for—they are simply asking for a little more time to complete the original contract. In summary, that is what it is, and I understand that. That is not why I am arguing.

Before I finish I just remembered something, Mr. Speaker. When the Governor gave his Throne Speech in 1996, and mentioned the ongoing licence for Caymarl Ltd., he also mentioned an approval in principle for Simmons Enterprises. As the motion reads now it does not involve Simmons Enterprises, but if we pull the Hansards and go over the Throne Speech, the Governor was talking about an approval in principle re Simmons Enterprises. This Throne Speech, if I remember correctly, was either late February or early March 1996.

The Speaker: This says, 16 February 1997.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: No, Sir, that is a typo. It is 1996. I understand what you are saying, but there was a typo. It is 1996 if I remember correctly.

But if it is 1997, it is worse. Let's give it the benefit of the doubt and leave it at 1996, because if it is 1997, it is worse. Anyway, we are saying it is 1996 now, but whether it is 1996 or 1997, it was dealing with an approval in principle for Simmons Enterprises. These two approvals in principle were dated September and October 1995. Now doesn't it seem like Simmons Enterprises is being curry-favoured? If that one is going to be included and these two are going to be excluded? Who is who? That is the kind of stuff we need to understand. That is all we need. Once we understand exactly what has gone down, how the process is handled, we do not have any problem. But until such time. . . . You know, Mr. Speaker, and I am going to say this because however I am interpreted today does not really matter to me. I know what I have said goes no further than what I have said, and in my mind, I am clear on what I am looking for. If someone wants to bend or twist it, that does not matter to me. The point I make, when things like this pop up—and they pop up in the funniest ways, Mr. Speaker, unexpected, you don't know, you don't think about it when it happens. If you don't have any answers, or you cannot get any answers, the very nature of the surroundings we are in, once people start talking to each other everyone is going to try to figure out what is behind it. If there is nothing behind it, then the simplest way is to clear it up quickly, and then you will have to find something else to talk about. But you cannot talk about that any more. I hope the point is made.

The truth is, and I say this with all sincerity, whatever goes down from here on in matters not to me. I can swim, I can walk, I can stand with anyone inside here. If they deal with it in a way I understand and accept, I am happy, and that is the way I will deal with it. If they come with it any other way, I will be the same way I have been now. Simple as that. It is not a question of me giving quarters and asking quarters. When that time comes, everyone knows how it goes. I can live with that, too. All I want now is to understand this situation clearly so I do not have to think about it at a later date, or wonder anything about it. Once I understand that, it is fine.

As for Caymarl, I am sure the Government must support the motion by bringing it. I do not believe there is a will to make an attempt to defeat the motion, but I do believe that there are many of us in here who have questions in our minds. I think the questions have been raised, and I would hope that the Government—not accept a challenge, because it is not a challenge—but will accept its responsibility to clear up those questions, so we will understand what is what, and we can move on with the business of the country. Thank you.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? If no other Member wishes to speak, does the Mover wish to exercise his right of reply? Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. We have heard a lot of politics being played today, and I believe that the public is tired of listening to politics and listening to philosophy, and listening to a lot of talk that really leads nowhere. The Government's position on dredging was clearly set out in the Throne Speech by His Excellency the Governor on 16 February 1997 (sic) [1996], and stated there would be no further dredging except for the approval to Caymarl and Simmons Enterprises. Maybe at some stage, Simmons Enterprises should ask why they have been left out of this motion.

Two exemptions were made because this licence today is an ongoing licence from 1988, and despite all the philosophy and rhetoric, it would be unfair for a company, a Caymanian who has had a licence since 1988, and because of mechanical breakdowns, not to be allowed to continue.

Several statements were made about this being handled administratively. The difficulty the three Members of the Opposition, the Fourth and First Elected Members for George Town, and the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town have, is that they cannot have their cake and eat it. We discussed dealing with this administratively, and we were told, in the course of that, to deal with it through a resolution. You then bring a resolution, and they say, Deal with it administratively.

My teacher always told me that talk is cheap, and that actions speak louder than words. Unfortunately, this House is getting to a stage where talk—in fact, we cannot get out of one session until we are into the next one! Talk, talk talk!

The Third Elected Member for George Town, in the course of negotiations on the pensions, and to a lesser extent, this was discussed, dealt very ably, very professionally and very forcibly, and more than that, Mr. Speaker, in a very gentlemanly way, with the talks that went on with Government. Between the press and the Opposition, we have them in what I guess is a frustrated state. One minute the Opposition is saying the Government has the votes, they are putting everything through, and they should talk to us. When we go to talk to the Opposition, they do not want to take decisions and stand by them. The difference between being a responsible Opposition and a destructive Opposition is that a constructive Opposition will sit down and discuss with the Government and bear the responsibility. This is what is lacking in those three Members of the Opposition. It is a lack of responsibility! Any child can get up and talk and talk and talk, but it takes a man or a woman to get on and deal with solutions to problems. That is what this Chamber is all about. Solutions! Criticism without a constructive solution is a waste of time!

What is clear is that the company involved, Caymarl Ltd., has paid up its fees. Why the criticism in this area? Nothing to hide there. And I would like to mention one other thing. A lot has been said about transparency. But transparency does not only apply to Government. It applies to the Opposition as well, and they should remember the biblical saying that he who is without sin should cast the first stone. Why get up, as the Fourth Elected Member for George Town has done, and imply that something has gone wrong with Caymarl Ltd.? Why get up and cast aspersions anyhow?

This motion is one that I had hoped and believed—because the talks we had with the Third Elected Member for George Town, as I said, were forcible from his side, but very cordial, and it is really unfortunate that that Honourable Member seemed to have been hit from all sides—the press, his other Members around him, and if this country is going to move forward, those three Members of the Opposition I mentioned, must become responsible and deal with the responsibilities that go with their positions in this Legislative Assembly. Communication, Mr. Speaker. We communicate. We have tried this time and again. We are prepared to continue trying it. When you communicate, we hear that you are doing things in boiler rooms or some nonsense. On the other hand, when you do not communicate, you hear, because you are the Government, you have the votes, you put things through! It has to be one or the other, Mr. Speaker! Either we are going to sit down and discuss matters, as the Third Elected Member for George Town has very ably done, and we made a lot of progress. It saved this House a lot of time, despite those short delays. Because the country can only run when people sit down and sensibly discuss where we are going. This is a good example where good people, people who own Caymarl, have now been dragged into some attempt to muddy the waters around them, so to speak.

The motion here today is fair, equitable and just, that that company be allowed to carry on with the balance of what remains of the original 1988 licence. More important than transparency is for Members in this Honourable House to get their facts right, to stop casting aspersions, and to constantly be putting hypothetical situations and calling for explanations to everything their minds can think up.

I would like to thank the Honourable Members who spoke on this motion, and to thank and say that I appreciate at least that one Member, the Third Elected Member for George Town does, and with all due respect, he has the experience of Government. That is very important. Because several of the others, quite frankly, have no experience of running Government. I have taken more in this House, I believe, than any other Member who has been here. There have been constant attacks. But what I have decided is that I will continue to pray for those three Members I originally mentioned, that they will be reformed and try to deal with the business of this House in the best interests of the country. With that, I wish them well until the House sits again. Thank you.

The Speaker: I shall now put the question on Government Motion 1/98. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES and NOES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

Mr. Roy Bodden: May we have a division, please?

The Speaker: Certainly. Madam Clerk, please call a division.

The Deputy Clerk:

DIVISION NO 4/98

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House do stand adjourned until 9 April at 10.00 AM.

EDITED
THURSDAY
9 APRIL 1998
10.23 AM

The Speaker: Prayers by the Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

PRAYERS

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived: We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth, that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly, that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy great name's sake.

Let us say the Lord's Prayer together: Our Father, who art in heaven, hallowed be Thy name. Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us. Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace, now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Item number two on today's Order Paper, Administration of Oaths or Affirmations to be taken by the Honourable Donovan W.F. Ebanks to be temporary Honourable Acting First Official Member. Mr. Ebanks, would you come forward to the Clerk's table please?

ADMINISTRATION OF OATHS OR AFFIRMATIONS

OATH OF ALLEGIANCE

Mr. Donovan Ebanks

Mr. Donovan Ebanks: I, Donovan Ebanks, do swear that I will be faithful and bear true allegiance to Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II, her heirs and successors, according to law, so help me God.

The Speaker: Mr. Ebanks, please take your seat as the temporary Acting Honourable First Official Member. We welcome you to the Assembly for the time of your service here.

At this time, I would ask Mr. A. Joel Walton, J.P., to come forward to the Clerk's table and take the oath as Acting Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

OATH OF ALLEGIANCE

Mr. Joel Walton

Mr. A. Joel Walton: I, Arthur Joel Walton, do swear that I will be faithful and bear true allegiance to Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II, her heirs and successors, according to law, so help me God.

The Speaker: Mr. Walton, would you take your seat as the Acting Third Official Member. We welcome you to this Chamber and hope the time of your service here will be enjoyable. Please take your seat.

READING BY THE SPEAKER OF MESSAGES AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

The Speaker: Item number three, Reading by Honourable Speaker of Messages and Announcements. I have received apologies for the absence of the Honourable First Official Member, who is acting as Governor; the Honourable Third Official Member, who is overseas on official business; the Fourth Elected Member for George Town, who is off the Island; and from the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, who has a serious illness in his family. They will all be absent today.

STATEMENTS BY HONOURABLE MEMBERS/MINISTERS OF GOVERNMENT

The Speaker: Item number four, Statement by Honourable Members/Ministers of Government, the Honourable Minister responsible for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

PROPOSED DRUG REHABILITATION CENTRE ON THE HAWLEY ESTATE IN BREAKERS

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Before I begin my statement, I am sorry to know of the illness in the family of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

I beg your permission to make a statement to Members of this Honourable House concerning a news story carried by Cayman 27 on yesterday's evening news, and again on this morning's Daybreak show. The reason I wish to bring this matter to the attention of this Honourable House is that one of our Members was interviewed by the Cayman 27 reporter on the subject of so-called construction work being carried on at the site of the proposed drug rehabilitation centre on the Hawley Estate in Breakers. Had I been contacted by the reporter for my comments, the truth would have been told.

I have a copy of a news item which appeared in the 1 May 1997 issue of the Caymanian Compass, captioned "Hawley Estate Under Repair." This article was in response to a press release issued to the media by Government Information Services on behalf of my Ministry. What was reported is this: "The Public Works Department is scheduled to begin repair work today on the government-owned Hawley Estate, including complete replacement of the roof for the main building, at a cost of $165,000.

"The work is being carried out to prevent further deterioration of the property in Breakers, and to secure it from further vandalism, . . ." I went on to say in that article, "whatever the outcome of the appeal, the property is government-owned and it is incumbent upon the ministry in whose charge it is currently placed to ensure that the buildings are preserved and maintained."

At that time, the matter was before the Appeals Tribunal. A Caymanian Compass headline on 10 July 1997 declared, "Rehab Centre Gets Green Light," and the story stated: "The Ministry of Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation was officially informed on Wednesday, 2 July, that the tribunal has upheld the Central Planning Authority's (CPA) approval of the project. The objectors, however, have a further 14 business days to appeal the decision to the Grand Court."

Further study of the main building revealed that in order for the new roof to be secure and safe, some strengthening to the structure of the building was necessary. With the necessary review of costing, putting the work out to tender, and other tasks associated with getting the works underway finally completed, the contract was awarded to a local contractor. The contractor took possession of the site on 7 November 1997, with an estimated completion date of 20 May 1998.

That completion date has now been revised to 24 April this year. The MLA, while being interviewed by the Cayman 27 reporter, implied that this Government is going ahead with construction of the residential drug rehabilitation centre, despite the ruling of the Court on 6 April in favour of the objector. Mr. Speaker, I believe that statement to be mischievous and misleading. I made my intention to preserve the Hawley Estate from further deterioration and to protect it from ongoing vandalism known to the public well in advance of commencing the works at the Hawley Estate. I have never set out to deceive the residents of Breakers, nor indeed this country, as to my intentions. What is being done at the Hawley Estate is precisely what I said would be done. When the work is completed later this month, the property will remain closed until a decision is made for its future use by Government.

However, I am compelled to say that I will continue to seek the necessary approval to open a drug rehabilitation centre at the Hawley Estate in Breakers. You have my word, Honourable Members of this House, that I will go about doing it in the right way, as I always have. Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Under Standing Order 30(2), I wonder if you would allow a short question on the matter.

The Speaker: Yes, I will allow a short question, but let us not prolong it.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I wonder if the Honourable Minister could say in absolute, clear terms, whether in fact in pursuing the drug rehabilitation centre, he is looking at the Hawley Estate.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, Mr. Speaker. The way I look at this situation, the Ministry won rounds one and two; the objectors had their democratic right on round three; but we reserve the right to appeal, which is my intention. With the help of God, this will go forward.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker, and I also thank the Minister for the very frank answer.

I wonder whether, in light of new regulations under the Planning Law, that in fact, as I believe was mooted in the paper, is the intention of the Minister.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. That is a good point; however, I am awaiting the official word from Crown Counsel on the actual decision, and I would like to see that before I elaborate further on it.

The Speaker: Item number five on today's Order Paper, Government Business, Bills, Committee on Bills. The House will now go into Committee to consider a bill entitled The National Pensions (Amendment) Bill, 1998.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

BILLSCOMMITTEE ON BILL*HOUSE IN COMMITTEE*THE NATIONAL PENSIONS (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1998

The Chairman: Please be seated. The House is now in Committee. With the leave of the House, may I assume that, as usual, we should authorise the Second Official Member to correct minor printing errors and such like in these Bills?

Would the Clerk state the Bill and read each clause?

The Deputy Clerk: The National Pensions (Amendment) Bill, 1998.

Clause 1. Short title.

Clause 2. Interpretation.

Clause 3. Amendment of section 3, Definitions.

Clause 4. Amendment of section 4, Establishment of a pension plan.

Clause 5. Amendment of section 5, Greater pension benefits and previous pensions.

Clause 6. Amendment of section 6, Prohibitions of administration of an unregistered pension plan.

The Chairman: The question is that clauses 1 through 6 do stand part of the Bill. It is now open to debate. If there is no debate, I will put the question that clauses 1 through 6 do stand part of the Bill. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it. Clauses 1 through 6 do stand part of the Bill.

AGREED: CLAUSES 1 THROUGH 6 PASSED.

The Deputy Clerk: Clause 7. Amendment of section 8, Administrator.

Clause 8. Amendment of section 10, Contents of pension plan.

Clause 9. Amendment of section 11, Accrual of pension benefits.

Clause 10. Amendment of section 12, Registration of amendment.

Clause 11. Amendment of section 13, Reduction of benefits.

Clause 12. Amendment of section 16, Duties of administrator.

The Chairman: The question is that clauses 7 through 12 do stand part of the Bill. It is now open to debate. If there is no debate, I will put the question that clauses 7 through 12 do stand part of the Bill. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it. Clauses 7 through 12 do stand part of the Bill.

AGREED: CLAUSES 7 THROUGH 12 PASSED.

The Deputy Clerk: Clause 13. Amendment of section 17, Diligence, care and skill.

Clause 14. Amendment of section 21, Duties of administrator.

Clause 15. Amendment of section 22, Annual statement of pension benefits.

The Chairman: The question is that clauses 13 through 15 do stand part of the Bill. It is open to debate. The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Chairman, in section 16(4)...I am sorry, Mr. Chairman, I am at 16 and we are only through section 15.

The Chairman: The question is that clauses 13 through 15 do stand part of the Bill. It is open to debate. If there is no debate, I will put the question that clauses 13 through 15 do stand part of the Bill. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it. Clauses 13 through 15 do stand part of the Bill.

AGREED: CLAUSES 13 THROUGH 15 PASSED.

The Deputy Clerk: Clause 16. Amendment of section 25, Eligibility for membership.

The Chairman: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Mr. Chairman. We have circulated an amendment to clause 16, that "clause 16 be amended by (a) deleting "June" whenever it appears and substituting therefor "January" and deleting "twelve months" and substituting "nine months".

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Chairman.

The Chairman: The amendment has been moved. Do we have a seconder? The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I second the amendment.

The Chairman: Does the Member wish to speak?

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Chairman, I wondered if it would help, in the smooth running of the Committee deliberations, if the Committee Stage Amendment that concerns three clauses could be moved at the same time, since they were accepted by the Government; and other than the normal discussion on it, it would seem there are really no objections to these Committee Stage Amendments, rather than taking them at each point. It is completely up to the Chair, but since there do not seem to be any objections to them, perhaps we could move the Committee Stage Amendments at one time.

The Chairman: I am in the hands of the House, but I think that the amendment to each clause is going to have to be put as amended, and then pass each clause individually; I think we should take them separately, but I am in the hands of the House.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Chairman, as you wish on that. That is just a suggestion.

The Chairman: Is there any other debate?

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Chairman.

The Chairman: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: We do not want to cover old ground, but I would like to point out that my personal wish is to have everyone start contributing at the same time, as I said in my debate. It will cause some problems—fewer problems than would have on the Government's original amendment; however, I must say that when we looked at it as a group, it was the consensus to go this route, and therefore I am sticking with the consensus of the group. My personal opinion is that we should have started everyone together.

The Chairman: Does any other Member wish to speak? I shall put the question that the amendment stand part of the clause. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

AGREED: THE AMENDMENT PASSED.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it. The question is that the clause as amended do stand part of the Bill. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it. Clause 16 do stand part of the Bill.

AGREED: CLAUSE 16 AS AMENDED PASSED.

The Deputy Clerk: Clause 17. Amendment of section 26, Normal retirement date.

Clause 18. Amendment of section 27, Deferred pension for past service.

Clause 19. Amendment of section 28, Deferred pension.

Clause 20. Amendment of section 29, Termination by member.

The Chairman: The question is that clauses 17 through 20 do stand part of the Bill. It is now open to debate. If there is no debate, I will put the question that clauses 17 through 20 do stand part of the Bill. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it. Clauses 17 through 20 do stand part of the Bill.

AGREED: CLAUSES 17 THROUGH 20 PASSED.

The Deputy Clerk: Clause 21. Amendment of section 30, Minimum benefit.

Clause 22. Amendment of section 31, Value of deferred pension.

Clause 23. Amendment of section 32, Ancillary benefits.

Clause 24. Amendment of section 34, Transfer.

The Chairman: The question is that clauses 21 through 24 do stand part of the Bill. It is now open to debate. If there is no debate, I will put the question that clauses 21 through 24 do stand part of the Bill. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it. Clauses 21 through 24 do stand part of the Bill.

AGREED: CLAUSES 21 THROUGH 24 PASSED.

The Deputy Clerk: Clause 25. Amendment of section 36, Joint and survivor pension benefits.

The Chairman: The question is that Clause 25 do stand part of the Bill. It is now open to debate.

The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Mr. Chairman. I move that clause 25 be amended by (a) deleting "at least 60%" and substituting "100%" and (b) deleting "on trust for such children" and substituting "to be used".

The Chairman: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Chairman, I second that motion.

The Chairman: The amendment has been moved and seconded. Do you wish to speak to it? The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Chairman, I think enough has been said on the matter. I do not have anything new to say. A trust is a very sophisticated instrument, and I do not think we would be helping anyone by using that wording, therefore, as to that aspect of it; and I think everyone is in agreement that the 60% should be 100% for the spouse.

The Chairman: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Thank you, Mr. Chairman. Like the First Elected Member for West Bay, I too had covered this pretty comprehensively on the Second Reading debate, but I would like to highlight that this is a most important amendment to this Bill, in that the amount of pension now available to the surviving spouse is increased from 60% to 100%, or the full amount the pensioner would have received. This is felt to be an equitable way of treating this particular section. I am very pleased, Mr. Chairman, that this amendment is being approved.

The Chairman: Does any other Member wish to speak? If there is no further debate, I will put the question that the amendment do stand part of the clause. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it. The amendment do stand part of the clause.

AGREED: THE AMENDMENT PASSED.

The Chairman: I shall put the question that the clause as amended do stand part of the Bill. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it. The clause as amended do stand part of the Bill.

AGREED: CLAUSE 25 AS AMENDED PASSED.

The Deputy Clerk: Clause 26. Amendment of section 38, Remarriage of spouse.

Clause 27. Amendment of section 39, Pre-retirement death benefit.

Clause 28. Insertion of new section, Cash-out of small benefits.

Clause 29. Amendment of section 42, Payment on breakdown of marriage.

Clause 30. Amendment of section 46, Contribution rate.

The Chairman: The question is that clauses 26 through 30 do stand part of the Bill. It is now open to debate.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: We did not circulate an amendment, but as I indicated during the Second Reading debate, there would be amendments to look at. If we look at clause 30, which amends section 46...

The Chairman: If you do not mind, let me back up, if you are going to deal with clause 30, let me take clauses 26 through 29. I shall put the question that clauses 26 through 29 do stand part of the Bill. It is now open to debate. If there is no debate, I will put the question that clauses...

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Chairman, I think we would have to look at clause 22. I know we passed that—and we might have to take some advice from the Legal Draftsman—but I believe that is also affected. Once you take these clauses, I will ask you to go back to that.

The Chairman: Would your amendment be a consequential amendment or a substantive change? The Second Official Member can make consequential amendments.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: There is wording—after you take these clauses, I will ask you to look at it.

The Chairman: I will again put the question that clauses 26 through 29 do stand part of the Bill. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it. Clauses 26 through 29 do stand part of the Bill.

AGREED: CLAUSES 26 THROUGH 29 PASSED.

The Deputy Clerk: Clause 30. Amendment of section 46, Contribution rate.

The Chairman: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Yes, Mr. Chairman. I should turn this into a query so that those with the legal knowledge can advise on it. In clause 30 amending section 46, 30(d) “for a defined benefit”, am I not right that the words “pension plan” are left out and should be added? Should it not read “for a defined benefit pension plan”?

The Chairman: Would the Honourable Minister wish to reply?

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Mr. Chairman, could I have a moment please?

The Chairman: Certainly.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Mr. Chairman, perhaps if my colleague, the First Elected Member for West Bay, could provide, for purposes of clarification and edification, the reasoning for choosing—we would be in a better position to accommodate his request.

The Chairman: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Chairman, my little bit of knowledge is that we are talking about defined benefit, and I am asking whether the words “pension plan” should be added. I thought that is what it is meant to be.

The Chairman: Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Against that background, the Government has no objection to the inclusion of the two additional words.

The Chairman: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: I would then ask that we move to amend clause 30(d) and the wording be “defined benefit pension plan”.

The Chairman: Are you saying (b) or (d)?

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: (d).

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Mr. Chairman, I think the Member is actually referring to clause (c) of the amending Bill; within that clause (c) he is referring to 3(d). The clause 3(d) is of the original Bill. It is confusing, I know, but I think that is what he means.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Sorry, yes. It is page 22 on the Bill I have.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: The amendment would be to subclause (c) of clause 30.

The Chairman: Could the Honourable Second Official Member—where do you want the words inserted?

Hon. Richard H. Coles: It is not I who want them inserted, but I think the Member wants them inserted into subclause (c) of clause 30, at the end of that subclause, the final paragraph, which is also entitled (d). At the beginning of that paragraph, after the words “for a defined benefit” it would read “for a defined benefit pension plan”.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Yes.

The Chairman: I need a seconder for this amendment, once the wording is formulated.

The Deputy Clerk: That clause 30(c) be amended by inserting the words “pension plan” after the word “benefit” as it appears in the first line of that proposed new subparagraph 3(d).

The Chairman: Do we have a seconder? The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: I beg to second it.

The Chairman: The amendment has been moved and seconded. Does anyone wish to speak to it? If no one wishes to speak to it—the First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: I do not know if you want to revert to clause 22, or wait until the end to do it, but this is a query I have of the Government, which deals with clause 22, amending section 31(1).

The Chairman: You would have to move that clause 22 be recommitted to the Committee, and then we would...

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Chairman, I so move, if that is the way I can get the query in, I move that we recommit clause 22.

The Chairman: You need a seconder for that. Before we do, let us finish clause 30. The question is that the amendment to clause 30 do stand part of the Bill. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it. The amendment to clause 30 do stand part of the Bill.

AGREED: THE AMENDMENT TO CLAUSE 30 PASSED.

The Chairman: The question is that clause 30 as amended do stand part of the Bill. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it. Clause 30 do stand part of the Bill.

AGREED: CLAUSE 30 AS AMENDED PASSED.

CLAUSE 22 RECOMMITTED TO THE HOUSE

The Chairman: Do we have a seconder for clause 22 being recommitted to the House?

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I second that motion.

The Chairman: Seconded by the First Elected Member for George Town. The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Mr. Chairman. I am asking the Government whether in clause 22 amending section 31(1), (a)(ii) should read “contributions and the earnings thereon”, deleting the word “interest” and changing the word “interest” to “earnings” throughout this clause.

The Chairman: The amendment to clause 22 has been duly moved and seconded. Does anyone wish to speak to that amendment?

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: I do not think we should put it to the question until the Government—I am asking—my understanding is that the word “interest” should be changed to “earnings” throughout this particular clause, because the investments of pension funds are credited with earnings and not interest. That is the reason we feel the word “interest” should be deleted and “earnings” substituted.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Chairman, it appears to me that if something has to be substituted for interest, it would have to be “income” thereon, because earnings is defined and means “in the case of an employee, any wages, salary, leave pay, fee, commission, bonus, (to the extent that the bonus is equivalent to more than 20% of the employee’s basic salary or wage for the period in question), or gratuity, expressed in monetary terms, paid or payable by an employer (directly or indirectly) to that employee in consideration of employment, but does not include severance payments, retirement, long service recognition payments or health insurance premiums;”.

I do not think it is ‘earnings’ that the Honourable Member is looking for. It is probably the word ‘income.’

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Income from what?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Income from the fund that is invested.

The Chairman: The Second Official Member.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: I was just going to say, Mr. Chairman, that is absolutely right. I think the definition of earnings is, in fact, they are the earnings of the person who is contributing to the pension scheme. They are not the earnings of the scheme itself, so if what the Member is trying to incorporate is income derived from the scheme, then earnings is not the appropriate word, because it is defined as something totally different.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: ‘Credited with income,’ so you are saying is that investment of pension funds are credited with income and not earnings. I am saying it should be credited with earnings and not interest, but if you are agreeing with me that ‘interest’ should be taken out, then we will go with the word ‘income.’ Do you agree that the word ‘interest’ should come out throughout the clause? And the word ‘income’ substituted? That would be the motion, then, Mr. Chairman.

The Chairman: The Clerk will read the proposed amendment.

The Deputy Clerk: That clause 22(a)(ii) be amended by deleting the word ‘interest’ and substituting therefor the word ‘income.’

The Chairman: The amendment has been duly moved and seconded. Does any Member wish to speak to it?

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Not to in any way speak against this, I need a bit more information as to the reasoning for the change. Maybe the Minister could explain why you are changing ‘interest’ to ‘income.’ What is the principle of this, the significance of this change? I am not quite clear as to why this change is necessary, in that the interest is really the income derived from the investment, and it seems to me that the meaning would be one and the same. I would appreciate it if the Minister could explain this.

The Chairman: Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O’Connor-Connolly: Thank you, Mr. Chairman. I would like to thank the Honourable Member for his last comments. In fact, I have to agree that he is correct. In other words, it is like a synonym, but if, in the interests of peace and tranquillity, it is the wish of the House, on that basis, the Government has no objection. But basically the concept is the same. We would have problems, as stated by the Honourable Attorney General, with the word ‘earnings,’ as that is described on page 11 in the definition section. With the substitution of the word ‘income’ it is a matter of semantics. The word ‘interest,’ as far as the Government Bench is concerned, covers it adequately. If it is the wish of the House to use another word because of literary preference, we have no objection there. We would say, however, that if the word ‘income’ is used, the word ‘thereof’ should be included as well, to make it more appropriate.

The Chairman: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Chairman, the understanding I had from members of the Advisory Committee was that, universally, the investment of pension funds are credited with earnings, they said. If the House chooses ‘income’ and it means the same thing, well, so be it, but that was the Advisory Committee’s advice on that aspect of it.

The Chairman: I will get the Clerk to read the proposed amendment one more time and then we will put it to the question.

The Deputy Clerk: That section 22(a)(ii) be amended by deleting the words 'interest thereon' and substituting therefor the words 'income thereof.'

The Chairman: I will put the question that the amendment do stand part of clause 22. Does anyone wish to speak to that? I will put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

AGREED: AMENDMENT TO CLAUSE 22 APPROVED.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it. Clause 22 is amended. I shall now put the question that clause 22 as amended do stand part of the Bill. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

AGREED: CLAUSE 22 AS AMENDED STANDS PART OF THE BILL.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it. Clause 22 as amended do stand part of the Bill.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Mr. Chairman, perhaps before we go on, I should draw to your attention that if we are going to make that amendment, the substantive Law already contains the same words, 'interest thereon', in section 31, so in the cleaning-up exercise, that should also be rectified.

The Chairman: The Second Official Member.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: I would have thought that is a consequential amendment that would be necessary, otherwise the same section of the Law will contain two different wordings, and that cannot be right. If we are going to amend it here in Committee, there will have to be a consequential amendment.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Chairman, I join the Honourable Attorney General on that. The word 'interest' is used throughout the whole Law. I would suggest we state in the front, 'interest shall include income' and leave 'interest' throughout, otherwise we will have to go back and change multiple sections of the Law. It is not as simple as changing one word.

The Chairman: Honourable Second Official Member, what would be your recommendation? How should we handle it?

Hon. Richard H. Coles: We are just considering that, Mr. Chairman.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Chairman, rather than having to recommit all the sections that have 'interest', if we could follow and use it as a consequential with the Attorney General, would maybe be the best. I think that is the simplest way of doing it.

The Chairman: If that is the wish of the Committee, that is fine with me. The Second Official Member.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: I am sorry, I did not hear those last remarks.

The Chairman: I am saying if we want to decide that will be a consequential amendment, should we make a statement in the Bill, or will you just deal with it with the preamble I read out at the commencement of the Committee?

Hon. Richard H. Coles: I would propose that I deal with it under the authority you have already given me, because there will be some consequential amendments. I think it would be unwise for us to try and deliberate what those will be at this stage. As the amendment is then made to the text of the Bill, those consequential amendments will become apparent, and under the authority I already have, we will make them.

The Chairman: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Chairman, for what it is worth, I wonder if we should change the word 'interest' and make it 'income' and then have to go through all the Law and make these changes, or whether we should leave it alone, given that we understand what it means.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Chairman, that is why I was making a query of the Government. I should say that in the Advisory Committee's draft of September and October, they also use the word 'earnings', and in my last discussion with them, that is what they said. However, in the Government's new amendments, they changed the wording to what it is in the Law. Perhaps the Advisory Committee was moving in that direction in any event when they were putting forward their amendments. We have to remember that we have the Advisory Committee's amendments, and we have the Government's amendments, and we have amendments from this side of the House.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: It seems to me it would be a lot easier if we all agree to leave in the word 'interest', given that we all understand what it means. It is interest from the investment.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Chairman.

The Chairman: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Chairman, I think a suggestion was made by the Minister for Education which I believe is a good suggestion. I believe this problem could be satisfied by putting a definition in the Bill for the word 'interest' which would include 'income.' By doing that, it would not be necessary to go through the whole substantive Law and make the consequential changes to 'income.' If you include a definition for 'interest' which would include 'income', then there should be no need for that. This is certainly a matter for the Second Official Member and the Legal Draftsman.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Chairman, I should say, if we do that, someone has to go through this and make sure that where 'interest' is used, it is not changed as a result of the definition. It is not as simple—when you change one word in a law, there is a domino effect throughout. Not just this, also the hundreds of pages of Regulations. If I could just qualify what I said by that, that is why I bent toward—since I do not know how often it is used, I have seen about two or three places in just flipping through, but I believe it was used quite a few places. There are other places where 'interest' may be used which means only interest. That is what worries me about what I have said, so the Attorney General would have to be left with the power to apply the definition only to the sections to which it should be applied.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Chairman, my only comment on this was that in the broad sense, you are talking about a synonymous meaning, because interest is income. Income is not necessary interest, but interest is always income. There is no way of changing that meaning. If the Attorney General wants to use some other definition, that is completely up to him. But if we use the word 'interest' it is all-encompassing, and it could cover the same meaning as income, because interest from your contribution is an income.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Chairman, as I said, in the draft of the Advisory Committee, you will find the word 'earnings', and perhaps in the direction they were moving—as I said, I drew it to the attention of the House, and I am left in their hands as to what they want to do with it. I am not moving an amendment, but I drew it to their attention.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: That being the case, I would respectfully recommend that we leave the word 'interest' and if we find it necessitates amendments, we can do that at a later stage when everyone has the opportunity to look at the ramifications of it.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Chairman, I think that is the better course, because we do not know what the knock-on effect of this is going to be. It is also in the Regulations as well, and they would have to be amended.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Mr. Chairman, I would concur with that. At first blush, it seems an attractive idea to change the definition itself in the definition section, but that has inherent dangers, because the word is not always used in exactly the same circumstances throughout the Bill and Regulations. Before we went down that route, we would have to very seriously look through the entire Bill. That really is not possible in Committee Stage, so I think the safest course is to leave this word the way it is, and if that is the proposal, I would certainly support it.

The Chairman: I would call to the Members' attention that we have already amended clause 22 and that has been passed. To change, we would have to recommit it, because we are now dealing with clause 31.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: To complicate it more, the word 'profit' is also used in the Regulations to mean the same thing as 'income' so it is not as simple—it may be better to just leave that one, leave the balance of it, and we take the Member's question, and let the draftsman take his time to look through. In due course, there could be amendments to this before a year from its coming into operation, and we can take it then.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Chairman, I suggest that we put it to the vote and agree to leave it the way it is for the present time, until we have had sufficient time to consider the full ramifications.

The Chairman: Let me clearly understand what we want. We are now dealing with clause 31, and I will leave that as it is, that is no problem.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Chairman, we are dealing with clause 22, amending section 31.

The Chairman: I beg your pardon. We passed clause 22. You then said it was also affected in 31. We would be going on to 31.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Chairman, I was of the view that the First Elected Member for West Bay had recommitted 22 to discuss it. That is what I was referring to.

The Chairman: But the question was put and passed, so that is history, as far as this Committee is concerned, unless we recommit and reverse it.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: The recommittal was passed, Mr. Chairman? I do not know. I do not think so.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Chairman, my understanding is that because of the difficulties raised on clause 22 amending section 31, the wish of the House was that it be recommitted so the word 'interest' would remain, rather than changing that, because to change it would have a domino effect on the whole Law. I think that is where we are now—a recommittal of that section that had been changed to 'income' so it would revert to 'interest.'

The Chairman: To clarify this, could I get a motion for the recommittal of clause 22 a second time, so we can reverse it to what it was originally?

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I so move.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: To assist the Committee, I will withdraw the recommittal.

The Chairman: Let us do it this way. We have our records here. It has been recommitted. Do I have a seconder? The question is that clause 22 be recommitted. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

AGREED: CLAUSE 22 IS RECOMMITTED.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it. The question is that clause 22 do stand part of the Bill. Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I am a little unclear. Are we voting to leave 22 as it is?

The Chairman: You will have to move an amendment to the affect of reversing that wording to 'interest'.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I am happy to move that the word 'interest' remain as part of clause 22.

The Chairman: The question is that the words 'income thereof' be removed and the words 'interest thereon' be reinserted. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES and ABSTAIN.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: I would like a division, please.

The Chairman: Madame Clerk.

The Deputy Clerk:

Mr. Roy Bodden

The Chairman: The results of the division: 8 Ayes, 1 Abstention, 0 Noes. The Ayes have it. Clause 22 stands as amended. I shall now put the question that clause 22 do stand part of the Bill. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it. Clause 22 as amended do stand part of the Bill.

AGREED: CLAUSE 22 AS AMENDED PASSED.

The Deputy Clerk: Clause 31. Amendment of section 52, Refunds.

The Chairman: The question is that clause 31 do stand part of the Bill.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Chairman.

The Chairman: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: The amendment as circulated asks that we, and I so move, amend clause 31 by (a) deleting subsection (2)(a); and (b) inserting after 'deduction' where it first appears, the words 'from that payment or transfer'; and (c) by deleting 'as may be' and substituting 'as is'.

The Chairman: Do we have a seconder?

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I second that motion.

The Chairman: Does any Member wish to speak to it? The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: I do not think I have anything further to add.

The Chairman: Does any other Member wish to speak to it? The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: As in the other sections amended, this was pretty well debated in the second reading, but it is just to mention that the effect on this clause is that the period of six months has been reverted to the two years previously repealed; also, in section (c) of this amendment, it is made abundantly clear by inserting after 'deduction' where it first appears 'from that payment or transfer'. The significance of this is that there should be no doubt at all that any expenses in relation to the transfer or payment would come directly from the individual pensioner, and not spread over the whole scheme. Also, by deleting 'may be' where that appears, it makes it abundantly clear that it is referring to the particular amount, and is then substituted 'as is'. I think these make significant changes to section 52.

The Chairman: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: As I said, I said what I had to say about it in the second reading debate.

The Chairman: Does any other Member wish to speak to the amendment? The question is that the amendment to clause 31 be passed. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it. The amendment is passed.

AGREED: CLAUSE 31 AMENDED.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Chairman, I do not want to take up your time, but if you look at clause 31, you will see that clause repeals 'interest' and substitutes 'earnings' throughout that clause; as I said, that was the way the Advisory Committee was going. However, the House has already decided on that.

The Chairman: Let us not go back. The question is that clause 31 as amended do stand part of the Bill. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it. Clause 31 do stand part of the Bill.

AGREED: CLAUSE 31 AS AMENDED PASSED.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Before you move on to other amendments, we put forward these three amendments, and there are several amendments that the Chamber of Commerce have recommended. I certainly did not have time to look at them, but I believe they deserve to be investigated. They have offered seven substantial amendments, it would seem to me, amending section 36(1), 36(5), 36(6), 40(1)(a), 46(3)(b), 46(3)(d), and 46(9)(e). I do not know where the Government wants to go on it, but I would think they deserve to be looked at, seeing that there was such a short time period given by the Government. Also, providers need to see how the final legislation will come out, with the amendments made. This affects employers, employees, providers, everyone. I feel obligated to ask that these amendments be looked at somehow.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Chairman.

The Chairman: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Having had a look at the Chamber of Commerce proposals, and as the First Elected Member for West Bay quite rightly said, these did come in somewhat late. They were sent to the Minister responsible on 1 April. I would like to say that I agree these are important—or at least some of them—are very significant amendments. I would also like to mention that at least three of them, the three we have just passed in the Committee stage amendments submitted by the First Elected Member for West Bay and myself, have already been dealt with. The others would seem to be less important, but nonetheless, I would have no objection if we were able to deal with these. I think we could have a little bit more time and perhaps consider bringing these back as Committee stage amendments or substantive amendments in the next meeting of the House, rather than trying to deal with them at this point, since no notice on these has been circulated for these to be amended at this time.

The Chairman: The Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: If I may assist here, if we take these amendments, the first one deals with 25(1) and (2). That has been done. The second one deals with section 31(4) and was a question of earnings and interest, which we have dealt with. Clause 3 is a consequential amendment. It is saying because (c) has been deleted, it should not be (d), it should be (c). That would be changed. That has been dealt with. 36(1) was a substantive amendment put by the First Elected Member for West Bay, so that has been dealt with. 36(5) was the one that has been dealt with through—that was about children and maintenance, so that has already been looked at and an amendment has been put to 36 where it says—let me get my bearings on this again—that has also been dealt with. This is about the children, where they wanted the word 'use' instead of 'trust'. 36(6) was dealt with. That was amended by the Member. Their paragraph number 7 is 41(a)—that is not right, I am just trying to find that one. "Put the word 'shall' instead of 'may'"—I do not follow that one. They have no reason on that—I do not know what that even relates to.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Chairman, if I may, if the Minister does not mind, I think we have already dealt with the problem raised in 36(6) because we already deleted the word 'trust' and replaced that with something else because of the difficulty in defining trust, and the difficulties Members had determining how it would be administered. So this would be somewhat redundant at this stage, because we have already passed an amendment in the House deleting the word 'trust' so there would be no need now to try to seek a definition for the word 'trust'.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: That is correct. From what I can see, the only one is number 8, 46(3)(b), and perhaps the Member would like to put that one. If I may read that, it says, "delete this section"—I think we could save a bit of time if I could...

The Chairman: Would it be convenient to take a suspension for a few moments?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I do not think it is necessary, because...

The Chairman: We really need to get back to clause 32.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Yes, Sir, there are only three clauses on this that remain, from what I can see, and perhaps if the Member would like to raise 46(3)(b), that one has not been dealt with. We dealt with section 46(3)(d), but there is also 46(3)(b), if we look at paragraph 8 of Mr. Adam's letter from the Chamber.

The Chairman: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: While the Minister is trying to deal with all of these at one time, I think your suggestion, if we are going to try to deal with them, perhaps the small suspension of the Committee could allow us to take fifteen or twenty minutes to go through them. I think the way we are dealing with them now is going to be very confusing. That is my thought on the matter.

The Chairman: Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Perhaps it would be prudent to take a ten-minute break and come back after that, seeing the Easter season is upon us and this is important legislation which we would like to conclude today.

The Chairman: The Committee will suspend for fifteen minutes, and I beg, let us try to be back here in fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.41 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12.38 PM

The Chairman: Please be seated. Proceedings in Committee are resumed.

The Deputy Clerk: Clause 32. Amendment of section 54, Void transactions.

Clause 33. Amendment of section 55, Exemption from execution, seizure or attachment.

Clause 34. Amendment of section 56, Commutation or surrender.

Clause 35. Amendment of section 57, Winding up.

Clause 36. Amendment of section 61, Notice of entitlements.

The Chairman: The question is that Clauses 32 through 36 do stand part of the Bill. If there is no debate I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: CLAUSES 32 THROUGH 36 PASSED.

The Deputy Clerk: Clause 37. Amendment of section 62, Determination of entitlement.

Clause 38. Amendment of section 63, Combination of age and years of employment.

Clause 39. Amendment of section 64, Liability of employer on termination.

Clause 40. Amendment of section 66, Continuing pension plan.

The Chairman: The question is that Clauses 37 through 40 do stand part of the Bill. If there is no debate I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: CLAUSES 37 THROUGH 40 PASSED.

Deputy Clerk: Clause 41. Amendment of section 68, Adoption of a new pension plan.

Clause 42. Amendment of section 78, Superintendent.

Clause 43. Repeal and substitution of section 82, Liability of members and employees of the Board and Superintendent.

Clause 44. Amendment of section 87, Obstruction.

Clause 45. Amendment of section 94, Regulations.

Clause 46. Regulations.

The Chairman: The question is that Clauses 41 through 46 do stand part of the Bill.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Mr. Chairman, maybe the Honourable Minister moving the Bill can explain to me why a Member of Executive Council has been included in section 43 of this Bill, as I have never seen this included in any other legislation brought before Parliament.

The Chairman: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: As I recall, that was included when the Superintendent of Pensions would be subject to Executive Council. I have amended this section dealing with the hiring of the Superintendent so it becomes a regular civil servant. So the Government would not have a problem, if the Member so moved, to have that deleted.

The Chairman: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: I would so move that "Executive Council" be deleted if it plays no important part by being included.

The Chairman: For clarity, I will put the question that Clauses 41 and 42 do stand part of the Bill. I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: CLAUSES 41 AND 42 PASSED.

The Chairman: The Elected Member for North Side, we will take your amendment now on Clause 43.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: I do not have a legal mind, but this is what I would like to see. Perhaps it should read, "Neither the Superintendent nor a member of the Board or of the staff of the Board shall be personally liable for anything done in good faith in the execution or intended execution of a duty or authority under this Law or the regulations or for alleged neglect or default in execution in good faith of such a duty or authority." In other words, we would delete the words "a Member of Executive Council, nor".

The Chairman: We need a seconder for that amendment.

The Second Elected Member for Boddan Town.

Miss Heather D. Boddan: I second that amendment.

The Chairman: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: I am happy to concur with the deletion of those six words, commencing with the word "a" and ending with the word "nor" in the first line.

The Chairman: Would you please repeat that?

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: I am happy to concur with the amendment as put forward by the Elected Member for North Side.

The Chairman: I will ask the Deputy Clerk to read the amendment as she understands it.

The Deputy Clerk: That Clause 43 be amended by deletion of the words "of the Executive Council" as they appear in the new section 82 of Clause 43.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Incorrect. Mr. Chairman, we would have to delete "a Member of the Executive Council, nor". It would read, "Neither the Superintendent nor a member of the Board..."

The Chairman: The amendment has been duly moved and seconded. If there is no debate I shall put the question that Clause 43 be amended. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: AMENDMENT TO CLAUSE 43 PASSED.

The Chairman: The question is that Clause 43 as amended do stand part of the Bill. I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: CLAUSE 43 AS AMENDED PASSED.

The Chairman: The question now is that Clauses 44 through 46 do stand part of the Bill. I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Chairman, are you including Clause 46 in that?

The Chairman: Yes. Did you want to speak to Clause 46?

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Well, Mr. Chairman, we were discussing...

The Chairman: Well, let me go back and take Clause 44 and 45. The question is that Clauses 44 and 45 do stand part of the Bill. I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: CLAUSES 44 AND 45 PASSED.

The Chairman: Clause 46.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Chairman, we were discussing some amendments and when we took the break we looked at what the Chamber of Commerce had offered. I am just wondering what conclusion the Government came to on the matter.

The Chairman: We are discussing Clause 46. The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: As I understand it, what was meant to happen was that during the stage when the employee pays less than 1% during the phasing-in period, the employer would pay an amount equal to what the employee is paying. The draftsman has put in an addition on page 22. It is a little (c) at the top that deals with 46(3), (d), and—I am sorry. It is on page 23, the little (e) is 46(9)(e). It says, “An employer may, subject to the obligation to compensate for underfunding contained in subsection (3), during the period that any employee is contributing at a rate less than the rate prescribed by the plan, contribute to a pension fund on behalf of that employee an amount equal to that contributed by the employee.”

As I understand it, during the stage where younger employees are paying, say, 1%, the employer would pay 1%. The amendment to 46(3)(b) is actually covered in 46(9)(e).

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Chairman, when I moved the Law on 10 July 1996, this is what I said. Let me quote from the Hansard so the intention of that section can be clear. I quote from the Hansard of 10 July 1996 [page 488]: “In order to minimise the impact of the contribution on the employee's take-home pay, and on the employer's bottom line, the law and regulations will prescribe a phasing-in mechanism for contributions for the first 5 years of the legislation coming into force. Employees up to age 45 may choose to phase-in their contribution rate for the first 5 years. That is from the acceptance age of 18 to age 45 can phase in their 5%. They can chose to put in 1%, 2% or 5%. Employees who are 45 years or older will be required to begin contributing at the prescribed rate of 5% at the minimum. While this phase-in provision may seem to be convenient, it is obviously better for contributors to begin at the required minimum (now proposed at 5% each), because the lower contributions in the early years will translate into lower retirement or disability benefits when needed. All workers will be encouraged to make ‘additional voluntary contributions,’ however, these would be voluntary on the part of the employee and employer.”

It is clear what the intention of the Law was. Suffice it to say that some people thought it was not clear and needed clarification, but the employers understood and the employees understood that it would be equal in the first years (up to five years) and the minimum for those over age 45 would be 3% to 4 or 5%. I do not think we should get it confused. If they look at the discussion draft as submitted by the advisory committee, they will find that is what they were attempting to do.

The Chairman: Does anyone else wish to speak? The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Having spoken to the senior Legal Draftsman I am reliably advised that that intention has been duly drafted and incorporated there with the amending Bill.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Chairman, I am concerned about the wording of it and the drafting of it because I clearly remember that there was some, let us say, disagreement between the council and the Committee—his wording and what they preferred to see. So, if the Government continues as it is, I will abstain from that section.

The Chairman: Does any other Member wish to speak? If not, I shall put the question that Clause 46 do stand part of the Bill. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Chairman, may I have a division?

The Chairman: Certainly.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Chairman, I wonder if there were any Noes, because we can only have a division if there were Noes, as I understand it.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Well, Mr. Chairman, having given you my intention to abstain, I trust that this Committee would be generous enough to allow that.

The Chairman: Call the division.

EDITED
WEDNESDAY
20 MAY 1998
11.19 AM

The Speaker: Prayers by the First Elected Member for George Town.

PRAYERS

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived: We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth, that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly, that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy great name's sake.

Let us say the Lord's Prayer together: Our Father, who art in heaven, hallowed be Thy name. Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us. Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace, now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed.

READING BY THE SPEAKER OF MESSAGES AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: We have received apologies from the Third Elected Member for George Town, and from the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Item 3 on today's Order Paper, the Presentation of Papers and Reports, Report of the Standing Finance Committee, the Honourable Third Official Member.

PRESENTATION OF PAPERS AND REPORTS

REPORT OF THE STANDING FINANCE COMMITTEE (Meetings held, 20, 22, 23, 24, 30 April; and 1, 4, 15 May, 1998)

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, I beg to lay on the Table of this Honourable House the Report of the Standing Finance Committee, covering meetings held on 20, 22, 23, 24 and 30 April, and 1, 4 and 15 May, 1998 respectively.

The Speaker: So ordered.

In accordance with the provisions of the Report, it will be necessary for the suspension of Standing Order 74(5). The Honourable Third Official Member.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 74(5)

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, before I move the suspension, I would like to mention the practice which has emerged in dealing with the meetings of Finance Committee for Members' benefit. Because details embodied within the Report have been given extensive coverage, the practice has been not to repeat those details once more. I am therefore seeking the indulgence of Honourable Members and the Chair to avoid having to repeat those details once more.

At this time, I would like to mention that it is the recommendation of the Standing Finance Committee that Standing Order 74(5) be suspended in accordance with the provisions of Standing Order 81 to allow the Report of the Finance Committee to be Tabled in the absence of the Minutes being available.

The Speaker: The question before the Honourable House now is that in accordance with the provisions of Standing Order 81(1), Standing Order 74(5) be suspended so that the Report may be laid on the Table without the Minutes. I shall now put the question.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Before you put the question, Mr. Speaker, looking at the Report, there are inaccuracies in it, and I do not know how you propose to deal with them.

The Speaker: Could you state the inaccuracies? Are they lengthy?

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Well, for one, Mr. Speaker, on page 3 there is a note on the motion to decrease item 10 by $200,000, which says that we voted against the $200,000 being moved for the multi-purpose hall, and that is not correct.

The Speaker: Honourable Third Official Member, would you care to speak to that?

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, I can appreciate the concern raised by the Honourable Member, but that is not an inaccuracy because when we look under item 6.1, we see that the sum against item 10 was for a value of $400,000, and there was a motion for this $400,000 to be decreased by $200,000, leaving a balance of $200,000 against this item.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: No, I must disagree with the Third Official Member because there were actually two items dealing with this matter, and you would have to refer to the minutes to see what I am talking about.

The Speaker: Would it not be proper to continue with this, and you and the Third Official Member can discuss this issue at a later time?

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: That is fine with me, Mr. Speaker, once we get the agreement to make the necessary corrections, if I am correct.

The Speaker: Do you agree with that, Honourable Third Official Member?

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, please allow me a minute to review the record.

[Pause]

The Speaker: Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, I would like to consult with the First Elected Member for West Bay on this item for a moment. The records are showing that the item was voted upon, eight in favour, four against this specific item.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: That is the matter, and if you could allow us to discuss it, I would be thankful.

The Speaker: Is it the wish of the House that we suspend for five or ten minutes? We will remain in our seats while you discuss this.

[Pause]

The Speaker: Further to the apologies I gave earlier, I would like to state that the Honourable Third Elected Member for George Town is off the Island. I also have apologies from the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay, who is ill.

[Pause]

The Speaker: If we cannot conclude this, we should suspend for ten minutes.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, I think we should do that, Sir.

The Speaker: We shall suspend for ten minutes.

AT 11.32 AM PROCEEDINGS WERE SUSPENDED

AT 11.50 AM PROCEEDINGS RESUMED

The Speaker: Proceedings are resumed. The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, we have now sorted out this item. On page three it shows that for Item 10 there was an amount of $400,000 being sought to allow for the male cell block extension. There was a motion put to decrease this item by $200,000, and the motion reads: "That the sum for the male cell block extension at Northward Prison be decreased by $200,000; and that Item 108 which is West Bay Multi-purpose Hall under Head 38 be increased by $200,000." With the reduction of $200,000 from the $400,000 it meant that the value of the sum remaining against this item was then $200,000. A question was then put for the $200,000 to be voted upon to allow for the male cell block extension, and the majority of Members were in favour, or the "Ayes" had it. At that time, Mr. Bush asked for a division and when the division was taken, it showed that there were eight Members in support of allowing the $200,000 to remain, while there were four against allowing the $200,000. Mr. Bush was one of the Members who did not support the motion to allow the $200,000.

The Speaker: I shall now put the question that Standing Order 74(5) be suspended to enable the Report to be laid on the Table without the Minutes of the proceedings. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. Standing Order 74(5) has been duly suspended and The Report of the Standing Finance Committee is therefore laid on the Table without Minutes.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 74(5) SUSPENDED TO ALLOW THE REPORT OF THE STANDING FINANCE COMMITTEE TO BE LAID ON THE TABLE OF THE HOUSE WITHOUT MINUTES.

The Speaker: That completes the business on the Order Paper for today. I will now entertain a motion to adjourn this Honourable House.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I move that this Honourable House do adjourn until 10.00 AM Thursday, 4 June 1998, at the Aston Ruddy Civic Centre in Cayman Brac.

The Speaker: Before I put the question, I will ask Honourable Members to take a few minutes to meet informally in the Committee Room so that we can discuss the proceedings that will take place in Cayman Brac.

The question is that this Honourable House do adjourn until 10.00 AM Thursday, 4 June 1998 at the Aston Ruddy Civic Centre in Cayman Brac. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House is adjourned.

AT 11.53 AM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM THURSDAY, 4 JUNE 1998, AT THE ASTON RUTTY CIVIC CENTRE IN CAYMAN BRAC.

EDITED
THURSDAY
4 JUNE 1998
10.10 AM
MEETING IN CAYMAN BRAC

The Speaker: I will ask the Reverend Eddie Tatum to say prayers.

PRAYERS

Reverend Tatum: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived: We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth, that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly, that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy great name's sake.

Let us say the Lord's Prayer together: Our Father, who art in heaven, hallowed be Thy name. Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us. Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace, now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. The Legislative Assembly is in session. Item 2 on the Order Paper, Reading by the Speaker of Messages and Announcements.

READING BY THE SPEAKER OF MESSAGES AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: I have apologies for absence from the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport, who is unwell; the Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation, who is overseas due to an illness in his family; the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay, who is unwell; the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, who is overseas with his mother, who is ill; and the Elected Member for North Side, the Deputy Speaker, who is overseas attending her son's graduation.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE MEMBERS/MINISTERS

The Speaker: Item 3 on today's Order Paper, Questions to Honourable Official Members and Ministers, Question number 56, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for West Bay.

QUESTION 56

No. 56: Mr. W. McKeeva Bush asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning: What is the number of students presently enrolled at the John A. Cumber Primary School, giving a breakdown of the number in each class from years 1 through 6?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman Boddén: The number of students enrolled for the 1997-1998 academic year in years 1 through 6 at John A. Cumber Primary School is as follows:

Year	Boys	Girls	Total	Number of classes
1	51	31	82	4
2	33	57	90	4
3	42	43	85	4
4	38	34	72	3
5	34	38	72	3
6	40	35	75	3
TOTAL	238	238	476	21

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I wonder if the Minister can give the total number of students per class.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman Boddén: Mr. Speaker, could I have a moment to do the calculations, please?

The Speaker: May I take this opportunity to say to the students in the back that there are many empty seats in the front, if you would care to come to the front of the assembly, so you hear better. That is your choice, of course.

Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman Boddien: Mr. Speaker, the average number in year 1 classes is 20; in year 2, 23; in year 3, 21; in year 4, 24; in year 5, 24; and in year 6, 25.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Could the Minister state if there are any classes at the John A. Cumber Primary School with over 25 students, and if so, how many classes, with how many students?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman Boddien: Mr. Speaker, I do not have the answer to that. I have been able to give the average, but I do not have a total breakdown of every class here. I am sorry.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The intent of the question was to determine how many students were in each class. It was not to establish an average. Perhaps the Minister could give an undertaking, even if it has to be done in writing, to give the number of students in each class, not just per year. His answer simply gives the way to determine an average, but the intention was to determine how many students were in each class.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman Boddien: Mr. Speaker, I am happy to give that undertaking. I can get a breakdown of all the classes. I just do not have access to it here, Sir.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, I crave your indulgence. I wonder if this side of the House could be provided with similar microphones as over there. This one is very uncomfortable to use, and unhandy even, and maybe at the break, we could look at that. Thank you.

The Speaker: I think that is what we have, but we will do our best.

The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford Pierson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The answer gives an average number of children per classroom. Is the Minister in a position to give the size of the classrooms so that we can get an indication of whether or not there is any crowding in the classrooms?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman Boddien: Mr. Speaker, I could not give the size of the classrooms. When we visit there, we always invite the four MLAs—and we do go there together every quarter—and they know the size of the classes. But I believe, since plans for the older buildings do not exist, we would probably have to measure these. Some of the older classrooms, as the Member is pointing out, are small, and as students get older, they obviously need more space than the younger children do. The new block that deals mainly with the younger children would be quite spacious. Some of the older classrooms are smaller in size, and we could only take a certain number of the older children in them.

There was discussion with Members for West Bay at one stage about extending the old block, which could have been extended to the back. But, in the end, I think the decision was to do another school. Once that comes on stream, it will be very easy to accommodate everyone with the split that would come in, Sir.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. It does not go without saying that the Honourable Minister is moving post-haste to have the new building come on line as quickly as possible, since we have an overcrowded school at West Bay.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman Boddien: Mr. Speaker, that is correct. The Government has given that undertaking. The property has been located. The purchasing process has started. Honourable Members raised with us that there was another section of land within the overall that would have made it a lot better. Without a piece indented, the shape of the land would not have been as good. We have moved that on for purchasing as well, and it will be a very nice site for that school, very adequate, from what I have been told.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, I thank the Minister very much. I did not intend to raise the question, but since he raised it, can he say whether that makes the property a total of ten to thirteen acres?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I believe the Member knows the property better than I do, so I am prepared to bow to his better judgment in this case and answer 'yes', out of an abundance of caution!

[Members' laughter]

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, I did not tell him to say yes, you know!

[laughter]

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John Jefferson Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. From the information provided by the Honourable Minister, we see that the present enrolment is 476. What is the anticipated enrolment at the West Bay Primary School for September 1998? That is, new students. And do we presently have sufficient classrooms to accommodate the new enrolment?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman Bodden: The process of enrolment is now going on, and we do not have figures. This is one of the problems we face in education. It is not until fairly soon before the new academic year that we get exact figures. But we expect it will probably increase somewhat. Occasionally we have very significant increases, and I hope we will not have that here, because it would create a very serious problem. Forecasts can be done, but until actual registrations are in, it is really hard to tell, as we found a couple of years ago when some of the schools went up more in one year than they had in the previous five years.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John Jefferson Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I know forecasting or anticipation of additional enrolment is very difficult, but when does registration start for the September semester? If it has started, how many new students to date have registered for the September semester at the West Bay Primary School?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman Bodden: Mr. Speaker, the process starts in April, and should close off in May. Unfortunately, it continues going on because the children should be admitted and they do not abide by the registration date. We cannot just say no to them. We anticipate, based on the numbers seen, another fifteen students, and it will probably settle somewhere within that area, give or take a few.

But may I say, Mr. Speaker, it does bring out the fact that we should move very quickly with the new school, which I am sure Members here support and will release funds for in due course, once we have an amount for the building.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, I would defer to the Third Elected Member if it is a follow-up question.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John Jefferson Jr.: Mr. Speaker, I thank the First Elected Member for West Bay. Taking into consideration—and this is something about which I feel very strongly—that we have limited classroom space and all this demand for new enrolment, does the Education Department or the Ministry have a policy regarding who gets preference for enrolment?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman Bodden: Mr. Speaker, the policy is very clear that Caymanians have to be enrolled. There has been a combined policy between the Education Department and Immigration that unless the student who is non-Caymanian has the proper temporary residence for Immigration, they are not admitted to the process at all. If they are here legally as the dependent of someone who is working here, then, obviously, under the Law as it now stands, they have to be looked at, and most of the time accommodated. So it is not quite as simple as saying, 'Only Caymanians, and what space we have left over moves to non-Caymanians,' even though we try to do that. If there are people here, the Law basically says we have to educate everyone within school age.

But there has been far better control in the last year or so. Instead of students going to one place, getting acceptance, say, from Immigration or Education and being sent to the other, there is now liaison. We actually have an officer who deals with this, along with an officer in Immigration, in an effort to try to give far more certainty as to who can be admitted and who cannot. But there is no doubt about it, if we try to admit every non-Caymanian student who is here, the schools cannot take it. That is the hard fact of life. The policy, I should say, is an attempt to get the non-Caymanian students to go into the private school system, which now has one-third of the total number of students.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Honourable Minister say what the Education Department standard is for number of classes per school, and students per classroom?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman Boddin: We basically try to keep schools, at the best level with two entries. Several of the schools run three entry classes. Naturally, the smaller the class down to a certain number—if it gets too small, it has a problem as well—but on average a class of 20, preferably not going above 25. If it does have to go higher—which we have, in some classes, gone to 30—then a teacher's aide is put in, so there is basically one fully qualified teacher and an aide within it.

The problem we have is that while there is some predictability in the number of students coming in, it is normally too late by the time final registration finishes to do major construction work for extra classes. This is why, with the good graces of this Honourable House with the budget, the quicker we can move on the new school, the happier I, and I believe everyone in the three Islands, would be, to get the extra schools in place early so we have the capacity.

We are very tight, especially in West Bay. We have to get that school there early, and it is important that we have more capacity than we have. It would be good to have possibly two extra classrooms within each school that could be used, for example, for extra computer work or some other extracurricular activities within the school, so we would have a buffer in each school if the registration goes up.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I wonder if the Minister could say if I am correct in assuming, from the figures given by him, that we had 82 new students enrolling in John A. Cumber Primary School last year. I wonder why we only have fifteen students anticipated for the new school year, as we were just informed.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman Boddin: Seventy-five from year 6 will be going out, Sir.

The Speaker: Before I call for another supplementary, I think we have pretty well beat this question around. There have been four Members asking questions, so I am going to allow four additional supplementaries.

The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford Pierson: Mr. Speaker, thank you for your kindness. This is a very important subject, and I want to thank the Honourable Minister for the answers he has given thus far. As a follow-up to the supplementary question I asked earlier, I wonder if the Honourable Minister can say, now that he has given this acceptable average of 20 to 25 students per classroom, what ratio, and size of the average classroom is acceptable. If you have 20 students. . . . The point is, if there are 20 students in a 400 square foot classroom, that is not too bad; but if that classroom is 200 square feet, then you are going to have crowding. This is the real reason for asking about the average classroom, the standard accepted by the Education Department.

Additionally, could the Minister say what the teacher/pupil ratio is in the classrooms?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman Boddin: Mr. Speaker, it seems that Member brought in the four supplementaries you allowed! [laughter]

I am purely giving an estimate. I point out that I am not an architect, but the class sizes for the older students, years 4, 5, or 6, are obviously no bigger than the smaller classes. The classrooms, by and large, are between 750 and 950—the new ones are now 840. They are built to that size so if we have to go up with the number of students, they can take them. So if you see 20 students in them, they may look quite large, but if you see 25 or 27. . . . But we have to build with a view to expansion with those upper levels.

In the primary levels, they are the same size, except part of the classroom is a carpeted area where they can rest. They have storage within that area as well, and for the younger ones you need a lot more storage. Also, they have sinks in primary 1 and 2, and in the pre-school, which we still have in Cayman Brac.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Kurt Tibbetts: While we respect the fact that you wish the business to move on, we have one or two more supplementary questions on this subject. We are asking you to bear with us because the subject is very important, and we would like to get a few matters cleared up. I will go on with my supplementary.

If the Minister will look at his answer, he will see that in year 1 there are four classrooms—well, not classrooms, but classes, which means classrooms, because they have to be held in a classroom. So years 1, 2 and 3 have four; and years 4, 5 and 6 now have three. The Minister has said that the three classes in year 6 are going away, because they will graduate in June. From the way he answered the question, it means that as of the end of May it is anticipated that 90 students are coming into year 1—75 plus 15. Seventy-five are leaving, and he said 15 more are coming. That is what you said!

That being the case (that 90 students are coming in), it is obvious that there will be four classes in year 1 in September, as there are now. Please follow me. Everyone is moving up a year—in September, year 1 will have four classes; year 2 will have four classes; year 3 will have four classes; and year 4 will have four classes; because the four classes now in year 3 will go up to year 4 in September.

The question is, where is the extra classroom going to come from? Because you are going to need it!

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman Boddén: Mr. Speaker, the Honourable Member is substantially correct, but there are some students who will go into other classes. As new ones come in and some go out they change schools, for example. The Chief Education Officer has assured me that we will have to accommodate them within the school. As you have pointed out, the West Bay School is fast becoming a four-class school. That is why the splitting becomes more urgent.

You are right: An extra room is needed as it progresses each year. That is why we are now dealing with a brief with Public Works and the architects to try to get the primary school moving, because it is urgent that the splitting comes early. We would have two schools running basically two classes, then the pressures ease up again.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. I wish to clarify the point. Perhaps I can tie everything together so the Minister will not suggest I am asking four in one!

The way the Minister has explained it, the end of May was supposedly when the Department stopped accepting registration applications for new students. He has said it never fails that after the deadline we still have to deal with applications because that is just the way it is. I would like to know from the Minister, while he knows that he cannot give a final figure because others come late, and we understand that, he must know by now what he has. If it is 90—and he is suggesting it might be 90—it is obvious he is going to end up with 100 by the time it is all over.

[inaudible comments]

Mr. Kurt Tibbetts: Tell him to wait until I finish.

The question is, and I am serious about this—because whether or not they assure you, and you assure us—come September, the trouble is going to be real. If you have 100 students and only three classrooms for them, that means every classrooms will have in excess of 30 students. I am saying that while he can use words to say he has been assured this will be okay, by September, and we are talking about John A. Cumber, I know, and you know that we are talking about—

The Speaker: May I remind the Member to limit it to a question?

Mr. Kurt Tibbetts: Yes, Sir, I am sorry.

Therefore, is the Minister prepared to give an undertaking that whatever happens, if we have to deal with this thing together, we cannot allow the situation to get any more acute? We have been dealing with this for years, and the same thing has happened again and again. So could the Minister say how many students are really anticipated, and try to explain what is going to happen with them?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman Boddén: Mr. Speaker, the Chief Education Officer has stated to me that they anticipate 90. It is not 90 yet. But—

[inaudible comments]

Hon. Truman Boddén: He does not have the figure with him. I could get that and send it in—he anticipates 90.

But the only answer—and I come back to this—to being certain in the schools, is to please give me at least two classrooms in each school so I will have the flexibility to go ahead and deal with the problem when it comes. There is no way you can anticipate with any certainty the number of students. We found a couple of years ago that we had more in one year than we had in aggregate the past two, three or four years.

So the answer has to be, as we upgrade the schools, to add to each school at least two extra—or better still, if it is a two-stream school, two classrooms; if it is a three-stream school, three classrooms; so we will have the capacity. The problem now is that there is no capacity in the schools; and while the policy remains that Government has to educate all children in the Island, while that Law remains the numbers are not within the Education Department's decision on what to do. External factors—Immigration, for example—the number of Caymanians who repatriate to Grand Cayman. There is no way of determining this with certainty, so I would ask that each school be given one extra class for each stream.

The splitting in West Bay will give that capacity. But it brings out the urgency of getting the school in West Bay completed. The process, we know, takes a while. That is why the upcoming motion is an opportunity to fix some of these problems. I can merely say to you what we need, and it is really up to this Honourable House to decide where the extra schools are needed. George Town is getting to the stage where an extra school in the primary is needed. The splitting helped, but we need that. We need another school in the high school stage. That problem is not going to go away. At some stage, we have to get our priorities right—

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Right! I agree with that!

Hon. Truman Bodden: —and we have to build the necessary schools to take the children. The best investment any country can make is in its youth. They are the leaders of tomorrow. They will be standing in this House, carrying on this country when we are gone.

Members: Hear, hear!

Hon. Truman Bodden: And it is short-sighted not to do what is necessary for the education system to give them every chance to excel to the maximum capacity they have.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John Jefferson Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. This is my last supplementary, but I think it is a very important area.

In light of the recent findings through research in education, with respect to the importance of the one- to three-year old age bracket of children, what is the Minister of Education, and the Department of Education, doing in addressing or taking advantage of the new findings?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman Bodden: The Member is quite right. The early years of a child are the most important. If the proper grounding is not there in the early years, it is far more difficult to correct what is lacking at a later stage. As a result, a lot of emphasis has been put on upgrading the pre-school curriculum. I think Members know my view very clearly. That should never have been abolished. The pre-schools should have remained throughout the schools.

The same problem we have in each school is that once the classes were used—and abolishing the pre-schools instead of building more classrooms and putting extra children in them was short-sighted. Having said that, we have to work with what we have. It was not possible to just bring that system back, so we told the private sector we would subsidise them.

But for the first time they are now registered, and the upgrading of the curriculum is in place. Not only there, but also in years 1, 2 and 3, work continues, and must continue to be done, putting emphasis on the very early years. More training is given to teachers in these areas. We have also employed more specialty staff that can look at specific problems within these areas. As Members know, I have always believed that unless you get the primary school system right, you can never get the higher school system totally right, because one depends on the other. For the first time now we are seeing specialists taking a comprehensive look at the younger children.

The Speaker: This is the final supplementary.

The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John Jefferson Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In light of what the Minister said regarding subsidising private pre-schools, I think subsistence starts at three years and goes through three years, nine months, or four years (I cannot remember exactly). In other words, the age at which they go into the public schools. In light of the recent findings, is Government prepared to subsidise the private schools, but start at an earlier age, maybe two? Research has proven that the pre-school experience of children is very, very important. To ensure that that happens, is the Ministry and the Department of Education prepared to consider subsidies for children at a younger age than is now recognised?

The Speaker: I think this supplementary is well outside the substantive question, but if the Honourable Member wishes to answer, he may.

The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman Bodden: At present, the subsidy is for three years nine months, to four years nine months. What has been done before, and I ask the Department to do again, is to look into this matter. We have the early intervention programme which identifies at-risk children from the time they are a year old, or maybe before, but that is only a part of this. Where you have children who have been through a pre-school going into year 1 in the primary with children who have not been in pre-school, you have a very mixed ability class in year 1. While it substantially levels out by year 2, it is very difficult for the teachers taking in a mixed ability group of children in year 1—some well advanced, some not too well advanced. It is something I would be happy to ask the specialists at the Education Department to look into. If it is felt it is justified, I will bring it back to Members to vote on.

READING BY THE SPEAKER OF MESSAGES AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

STUDENTS FROM PRIMARY SCHOOLS IN CAYMAN BRAC, AND CAYMAN BRAC HIGH SCHOOL

The Speaker: Before I take the next question, I would like to recognise that we have students from the primary schools in Cayman Brac, and from Cayman Brac High School in the gallery. We welcome you and appreciate you being here. We hope it will be an educational experience for you, and thank you very much for coming.

Question number 57 is standing in the name of the First Elected Member for West Bay.

QUESTION 57

No. 57: Mr. W. McKeeva Bush asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture: What is the Superintendent of Pensions doing to ensure that people who had a pension plan before the National Pensions Law came into effect are not worse off?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: The Law applies to the Pension Plan from 1 June 1998. The Superintendent will, in fact, monitor pension plans, and the terms and conditions that apply to the benefits which arise from the contributions paid after 1 June 1998. The Superintendent can only do this if the plan is registered, or the Law requires the plan to be registered.

If a plan that is to be registered was already in existence prior to 1 June 1998, then as part of the registration process, it will be necessary to ensure that benefits earned before the commencement of the Law are indeed protected. The Law specifically protects such benefits for persons who have been there for a continuous period of ten years, have reached the age of 45, and leave their employment, as well as those who retire at the specified retirement age. Such benefits must be paid from retirement date.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries? The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Perhaps the Honourable Minister will agree that the Pensions Law makes it possible that any person, specifically in the Law, who had benefits of a pension of whatever kind, was protected, meaning they could not get something worse off. When I say 'worse off,' I mean worse off in new provisions.

The Speaker: The Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: As I understand it, all the new Law can do is ensure that all future plans reach the standard of the provisions as set out therein. It is always open for employers and employees to agree to a plan that provides benefits better than the prescribed minimum.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: I do not want to be seen at cross-purposes with the Minister, but I do not know if she answered my question, that is, that the Law provides that no one can be worse off if they had a pension plan.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Perhaps the Member could clarify what he means by 'worse off'? Perhaps he can assist by saying the particular section dealing with it, if he is aware of it.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Yes, basically what I mean is just that. If a person had a pension plan, they cannot be told to throw away that pension plan and take up a new one, if the new one does not give him better benefits than what he had before.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Again, as I understand it, it is that the original Law, not any of the amendments, specifies that the plan must come up to the minimum requirements in the Law, and it is always subject to the terms of the original plan. In such cases, employees may well have accrued rights which may not be taken away from them, but the Law as I understand it cannot affect events which occurred before its commencement.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Is the Minister saying she agrees that the Law, now with amendments, and the substantive Law before, protects the person who had the pension plan before? The Law specifically says that a person cannot be worse off under new provisions.

The Speaker: Before calling on the Honourable Minister, I would invite a motion for the suspension of Standing Order 23(7) and (8) so that Question Time can go beyond the hour of 11.00.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 23(7) and (8)

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, I move that Standing Order 23(7) and (8) be suspended so we can have questions taken after the hour.

The Speaker: The motion has been moved. Do I hear a seconder?

Miss Heather Bodden: I second the motion.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town seconded the motion. The question is that Standing Order 23(7) and (8) be suspended so that Question Time can go beyond 11.00. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. Question Time continues.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 23(7) & (8) SUSPENDED.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: All I can say to that is that the pension plan has to comply with the existing Pensions Law.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: I think we are at cross-purposes, and I had better leave it at that. Thank you.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. For clarity, would the Honourable Minister state if it is possible, once having had access to certain pension benefits prior to the coming-in of this Law, to have the employer change that plan simply to comply with what the Law requires now. It is possible that the benefits derived after the Law came in are less to the employee than the benefits derived prior to the Law coming into existence.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. As I understand it, under the old Law that was possible. I am aware of situations in which there were existing pension plans, and persons have chosen to freeze those benefits and come up to the minimum of the Pensions Law. But that is not across the board. And, as I said, the Law is not retroactive, as I understand it.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: On a point of clarification, when the Minister says 'persons,' does she mean corporations or individuals?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: 'Persons,' as described under The Interpretation Law, incorporates not only the single and the plural, but also a corporate entity.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: I would just like to find out if the Honourable Minister is saying that in fact certain companies are using the Law as it now exists to avoid giving maximum pension benefits to employees.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. All I can say is that as far as the Government is concerned, they have to comply with the minimum standards as set out in the Law as passed by this Honourable House. It would be remiss of me to speculate as to their motive, as I am not cognisant of those factors.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I am not trying to say any more than that I believe the Ministry is responsible to know what the situation is, and whether citizens will be at a disadvantage as a result of the Law. If a law is not perfect when it is instituted, we would like to know, in terms of monitoring possible effects of the Law, whether at this point—and I will rephrase it into a question: Is it perceived by the institution set up to regulate pensions, that certain companies and particular banks are using the Law at this point to find a situation whereby their pension payments, to their Caymanian employees in particular, can be lessened; and what is the Government going to do to see that this situation is not exploited?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The Superintendent of Pensions is now in place, as well as the full Pension Board, which I am happy to report has met this week. The office of the Superintendent has been keeping a daily log as to any possible loopholes or problems, and is taking suggestions and recommendations, not only in-house, but also from the public in general. I anticipate that there are going to be a number of necessary amendments, and that during the course of the year we will have to come back to amend it. This Law is like most things nowadays—an evolving process.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Kurt Tibbetts: Since the office of Superintendent of Pensions has recently opened, can the Honourable Minister state if she has heard of any complaints from individuals saying their employers have changed the plans they had prior to the Law coming into effect, and the benefits are now less? If that is the case, can the Minister give us some idea of what action will be taken to allow for some type of arbitration? We do not want to get into a situation where people are discovering it, and everyone jumps to do what they can before the Law is sorted out.

The Speaker: Are you asking the Honourable Minister for an opinion?

Mr. Kurt Tibbetts: I understand what you have to do, Sir, but I am sure the Minister understood what I was saying because she nodded her head, and I am sure she is happy to answer it.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. To date, I am not aware of any such problems in the specific area the Member is asking about. But I can say that as far as I understand, there may be an employer, for example, who had a generous pension plan before the commencement of this Law, and he or she may have started to make it less generous before the Law came into effect. Based on my instructions, and I stand to be corrected, so long as the amended existing pension plan meets the minimum requirements of the pension legislation—and again, always subject to that original plan—they may have accrued rights, which are taken into consideration, as well as they may not have been, because that area seems to be a discretionary area.

The Law, as I said, cannot affect things prior to the Law because, as we understand it, it is not retroactive. That is not attributing fault to any particular individual, it is just a fact of life, and if we have to amend it, or try to get around it, that is what we are here to do.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries?

If there are no further supplementaries, Question number 58 is standing in the name of the First Elected Member for West Bay.

QUESTION 58

No. 58: Mr. W. McKeever Bush asked the Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture: If a company closed down its pension plan, which was in existence before the National Pensions Law, what procedure does the Superintendent of Pensions use to review pension plans to ensure that the correct accrued benefits due to the employee are being transferred to any new pension plan?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: A registered pension plan will have powers to accept a transfer from another pension plan. An administrator of a pension plan must not transfer assets from an original pension plan without the prior consent of the Superintendent of Pensions or contrary to the prescribed terms and conditions of the Law.

The registration process and the renewal each year of the registration process will involve the administrator answering questions each year relating to transfers even if separate application for the approval of a transfer has been made.

The Superintendent will not approve a transfer of assets or register a plan involving a transfer of assets that does not protect the pension benefits and any other benefits and rights of the members.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries? The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. For purposes of clarity, can the Minister state, in the first paragraph of the substantive answer where she talks about the 'prescribed terms and conditions,' which prescribed terms and conditions are referred to?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: They are set out in the actual Law, which I do not have here with me, unfortunately. But I can undertake to meet with the Member to discuss it if that is his desire.

Mr. Kurt Tibbetts: But it is not the terms and conditions of the pension people, it is our Law? That is what I was trying to determine.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? If not, we will move to Question 59, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 59

No. 59: Miss Heather Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture to give a progress report on the Bodden Town playfield.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Top-soiling of the field is now complete, as is the car park, all underground services, and the irrigation system, with the exception of the porous rubber pipe on one half of the field. Installation of this is scheduled to commence this week, with seeding to be carried out in approximately two weeks.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Miss Heather Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Honourable Minister confirm whether a decision has been taken to name the Bodden Town playfield after the late Honourable Haig Bodden?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: I can so confirm. I believe I would be correct to say that when the former Minister broke ground, it was announced at that time it would be named after the Honourable Haig Bodden. This Ministry has no reason to deter from that, because I believe he was a man who was greatly respected within the Islands, and it is an honour which we find great delight in supporting.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Miss Heather Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I would like to take this opportunity to thank the Minister and her staff for ensuring that the field will soon be completed. It is a long-awaited project, and my people of Bodden Town are anxiously awaiting and looking forward to having this field very soon.

Can the Honourable Minister say when the playfield is expected to be useable?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: It is expected, according to my instructions, that the field will be useable on or before August of this year, subject to the germination process and the rains, which we badly need.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: I would like to ask the Minister how her Ministry arrived at the conclusion to name the playfield after the late Mr. Haig Bodden. I am not disputing the fact that he made tremendous contributions to the Cayman Islands, but I would like to know how the process took place. We have one sports centre in George Town named after another politician. I was just curious.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Mr. Speaker, on a point of clarification, I should re-emphasise that the Ministry endorsed the naming of the Centre, but I cannot take credit for naming it after the late Honourable Haig Bodden.

My friend and colleague, the past Minister did this, and I am sure his reasons were justified.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Could the Minister state if there is any more property owned by Government adjacent to that playfield? If there is, can the Minister state who decided what size that playfield would be? After that is finished, can the Minister state if that playfield is the correct size for standard soccer games to be played?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Because the combination of those questions is significant, coupled with the fact that I do not have my support staff, and I was not in on the initial decision-making process but came in midstream, I would be extremely grateful if my colleague would agree to an answer in writing.

The Speaker: Any further supplementaries? The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford Pierson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Could the Honourable Minister indicate the cost of the playfield at its completion?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: The estimated project cost is $965,000. Expenditure to date is $822,907.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Could the Honourable Minister give us a breakdown on how they arrived at this cost?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: After having so nicely defended the Honourable Member, I was hoping he would give me a break, in that I do not have my support staff. But I am happy to provide it, because Mr. Max Jones, who is the person to provide it, is on vacation and was unable to come across with me today.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: That is all she needed to say. That tells me why it is $965,000!

[laughter]

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Kurt Tibbetts: Recognising the limitations of the Honourable Minister because of not having her support staff, I ask this question, and if there is a problem, I will take the answer in writing. I certainly appreciate her position.

We have been dealing with sports fields in the various districts, and other district amenities over the years. Could the Minister state if there is a set policy (whenever it is decided to move ahead with any one of these specific projects) which, first of all, predetermines the costing and projects the length of time it is going to take to complete the project, so that it is not a question of having to keep coming back and voting money until it is finally over? The reason I ask the question is that it is rare, if ever, that we on the Backbench know what the projected total costs of such projects are, and it is merely because we wish the various communities to have access to these things that we move on emotion rather than facts.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Mr. Speaker, as far as I am aware, ideally that would be the perfect situation. I know since I have been there that is not always what happens because of other pressures. I can say that often estimates are given for a project, and you find that when we come down to actuality, those estimates, for whatever reason, seem to be escalated. As a recent example, we were trying to put in the steeplechase at the Truman Bodden Sports Centre for the upcoming games in July and were given an estimate for some $30,000. This week I was informed that it is going to be $90-something thousand dollars. That is the kind of intrinsic factor that we have to play with.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker, and I appreciate the Minister's position. Perhaps the Minister could give us a bit of a comfort zone by giving a commitment that at least whatever she has to deal with, she will ensure that what we ask at this point is done, and done properly, so neither your good self, Mr. Speaker, or us on the Backbench get these kinds of surprises.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I believe that I can go as far as to give an undertaking that I will take all reasonable steps during my tenure to ensure this is done. I do not think I can extend it to ensure that you will not get surprises, because surprises vary according to the individual, but I am sure the Member knows where I am coming from.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the Minister where the next big sports centre or park is going to be? Where are we going to spend the next million dollars?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. To answer this question fully, and perhaps there is a bit of humour in my response, if the million dollars could be identified I could quickly find a spot to spend it. Unfortunately, we did not have that luxury this year and most of our projects have been cut tremendously, especially where parks are concerned. I did, with the money available after the cutting exercise, try to ensure that all the six districts got work done to their fields. We tried to complete those in progress, for example, the Bodden Town field and the North Side field. Money was put in as well for completion of the irrigation at the Ed Bush field. There is improvement at the Truman Bodden Sports Complex, and for the first time, I am proud to say we have some money here, to the tune of a quarter million dollars, for the Cayman Brac football field.

[applause]

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: If you all had spent less on Pedro Castle, you would have had a couple million there too!

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, there was a bit of humour in my question, simply because when we note the concern about education and the need for educational facilities, by my humour I was just hoping that we would not be pursuing the same type of competition between the districts, duplicating the same amenities. I think it is important we begin to deal with what I—

The Speaker: Would you please turn this into a question?

Dr. Frank McField: I was not asking a question, but was restating the previous question, trying to say that I was concerned. I was expressing my concern in that vein about the policy. I would like to know what the Government policy is toward the continuing development of sporting facilities, not in terms of repairing them, but creating them.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Thank you. The policy, even before I came on, and which I fully endorse, is that we should have sports for all, regardless of the location or physical capabilities. I believe if we look at education from a much rounder perspective, one can surely agree that education is not only to the mental faculties, but also to the physical faculties, which would make a much better and wider formed citizen, be it Caymanian or otherwise.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Hear, hear.

The Speaker: That concludes Question Time for this morning. At this time, we shall suspend proceedings for fifteen minutes. Prior to suspending, I would like to remind Members that a group photograph will be taken immediately after we suspend. I imagine it will be in front of the building.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.26 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12.10 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. The next item on the Order Paper, number 4, Statements by Honourable Members/Ministers of Government, a statement by the Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

STATEMENTS BY HONOURABLE MEMBERS/MINISTERS

RESPONSE TO THE NEWSPAPER ARTICLE CONCERNING A REPORT BY THE FORMER PROJECT OFFICER FOR CAYMAN BRAC

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In response to recent articles in the Caymanian Compass concerning a report by the former project manager, Mr. Aftab Noorani, I want to assure the public of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman in particular that the situation in Cayman Brac is not as dismal as Mr. Noorani describes.

The report from the Cayman Brac and Little Cayman economic steering committee is not gathering dust as the former project manager would have you believe.

It is not reasonable to expect that all the committee's recommendations would be immediately accepted, or that all the projects could be implemented at one time. The report is still under active consideration, and funding for a list of priority projects will be sought on a phased basis.

Cayman Brac has not been forgotten; it was only a few months ago that Government reaffirmed its commitment to the economic revival of Cayman Brac by extending the economic incentives that had been introduced in 1996 to stimulate our economy. As a direct result of these incentives, the real estate and construction industries in Cayman Brac have experienced unprecedented growth.

A good measure of the continuing success of the incentives is the number and value of new buildings. I am happy to report that in the first five months of this year, the Planning Office in Cayman Brac has collected some $33,000, compared with a total collection in 1997 of $32,000, and the value of approved plans shows an 86% increase over the 1997 approvals.

The increase in the local work force during the past two years has been remarkable, including new jobs within the Civil Service to support the growth we see in the economy. New Civil Service jobs include:

- Tourism services officer
- Labour inspector
- Hotel inspector
- Sports instructor
- Senior Draughtsman (PWD)
- PC Support and Network Administrator
- Clerical officers (2)
- Customs Officer
- Immigration Officer
- Planning Assistant II
- 22 jobs at Faith Hospital

The steering committee's report, put together in the final analysis by Mr. Noorani, recommended improved air services and a reduction in telephone costs. These two measures, I agree, will give a boost to inter-Island communications and encourage domestic as well as international tourism and business opportunities. Members will therefore be pleased to learn that Cayman Airways will enhance its service to Cayman Brac by adding a Friday afternoon flight to Cayman Brac, and that a rate balancing proposal by Cable and Wireless is currently under review.

Mr. Speaker, last March I brought a motion to this Honourable House with a view to establishing an Immigration Board for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. I am happy to say today that, God willing, tomorrow morning the Government will be bringing the Immigration (Cayman Brac and Little Cayman Immigration Board)(Amendment) Bill, 1998 which, if passed by this Honourable House, will set up an Immigration Board for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Mr. Speaker, the Government has also agreed to accept from the European Economic Community approximately US$100,000, and it has been agreed that it be used specifically for Cayman Brac. One of the economic steering committee's recommendations was for the enhancement of natural sites on the Brac to cater to the ever-increasing ecotourism interest. It is proposed that scenic paths, sidewalks and signage to name a few, be created in this effort to attract the ecotourist.

Mr. Speaker, His Excellency the Governor has also initiated Vision 2008 and both Cayman Brac and Little Cayman have been included. As I understand it, the Vision 2008 team has also reviewed the economic steering committee's report. The Vision Director was pleased to see that the Cayman Brac economic steering committee had a headstart with their vision for the Brac, and that in fact much progress had been made with the preparation thereof.

The former project manager was reported in Tuesday 26 May 1998 Caymanian Compass as saying, "There are clear indicators that the Brac economy has made a positive turn-around." I fully concur, and I can assure you, Mr. Speaker, that I have done, and will continue to do, my very best to ensure that the Brac and Little Cayman receive their fair share of the economic pie.

I would also like to take this opportunity to thank my colleagues on Executive Council, as well as my colleagues across the floor on the Backbench and the Members of the Cayman Brac Economic Steering Committee, for all their unwavering support when it came to issues relating to Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. I would like to convey our deep appreciation and I am sure I can safely say that we can look forward to their continued support.

In conclusion, Mr. Speaker, I want to again reassure the Members of the Cayman Brac and Little Cayman Economic Steering Committee and the public as a whole that I and the other Members of this Honourable House are fully committed to continuing the economic development of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. I am a strong advocate that performance rides on commitment, and we have performed. Thank you, Sir.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: I was wondering, under the relevant Standing Order, if you would allow a few questions on this matter.

The Speaker: Short questions, please.

STANDING ORDER 30(2)—SHORT QUESTIONS

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I wonder if the Minister can say specifically what other measures Government has taken or will take to improve the situation in Cayman Brac. What measures will Government take to do some of the things asked for by the economic steering committee? Specifically, outside of the new Civil Service jobs, what other jobs are available to young people in Cayman Brac?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. As any good politician, there is always a desire for more. The same is with this politician. In fairness, taking it in perspective of the various needs and demands of the other five districts in Cayman, I believe the political will can clearly be seen, especially during the past few years, that there is a distinct commitment, not only on this side, but I can safely say that when I bring matters before Finance Committee or the House, I can look toward the Backbench and nine times out of ten there is 100% support. They are extremely sympathetic to the needs of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

As far as the report is concerned, it was first presented to His Excellency the Governor by a number of persons involved in the formulation of the report. Then His Excellency the Governor asked that it be put into a form in which the items were prioritised and brought by paper to Executive Council. That was done with the kind assistance of the District Commissioner. One of the items in it was the West End channel, for which we had the sum of $200,000 in the budget. As was correctly pointed out, that was an insufficient amount to do it, and a percentage of those funds was transferred. But I believe that when and if the project comes back before the House, my colleagues will be prepared to support the sum, which was double what was actually budgeted for during the last prioritisation process.

The committee also wanted us to address the ever-increasing ecotourist coming to Cayman Brac for its peace, safety and tranquillity. Mr. Russell was able to convince the European Economic Community that although the Cayman Islands, looking at them as a whole, were economically advanced compared to other Third World countries, the same was not so for Cayman Brac. On that basis, Mr. Russell was able to convince the EEC that Cayman Brac should be eligible.

A few weeks ago, I had the privilege of coming to the Brac with the EEC representative from Jamaica to show him the various sites. He was extremely excited, and hence the decision was made for approximately US$100,000 to be used. Some of the things we plan to do are: Improve the pond on the South Side since this has been a sore sight for a long time; and, subject to getting the various licences, make a nice walkway and bird look-out; other trails and signage on the Bluff and sidewalks. These are things that will not actually take a lot of money, but we feel they will go along way toward improving the whole ambience for the new breed of ecotourists.

There was also a request for the extension of the water to Cayman Brac, as an undertaking had been previously given to provide water. As Members are aware, there has since been a shift in the responsibilities, and the decision has been taken, as far as I am aware, to move to the District of East End. But I was assured that Cayman Brac is still under active consideration. We have very good water on the Island, and I am really desirous to see the water come, because especially in the half from Stake Bay to West End, the water is of poorer quality. It would be an added amenity to see such a facility here on the Brac.

There is also a desire in the report that the pond adjacent to the airport be turned into a marina. That has not yet received full endorsement from Executive Council because it is a major undertaking, and a full costing was asked to be done. I would also like to see an ecological study done, seeing that it harbours a lot of our local birds, and the proximity to the airport as well. So it needs careful study and is not something we can jump into.

The oil-to-oil transfer shipment, which is another deep desire emanating from the report of the economic steering committee, and indeed Mr. Aftab. As I understand it there was a particular application submitted for this, and Executive Council sought to make a decision to send it out to tender, giving all persons an equitable chance at such a viable project. So that too is under active consideration.

There was a cartoon in the Caymanian Compass, Mr. Speaker—and I will wind up shortly, but I get a bit excited talking about the Brac—which seemed to depict that the report was being used for a number of things, including a doorstep. If it is for a doorstep, I daresay that would be to the Compass in not reporting accurately things relating to the Brac, but it is certainly not used as a doorstep, and Executive Council or other Honourable Members in this House. Thank you, Sir.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: I thank the Honourable Minister for those items. She did not address one item, and that was: Outside the new Civil Service jobs what other jobs are being pressed for or made available for the young people in Cayman Brac. That is one, Mr. Speaker.

Water is a very important subject, and I know a little bit about the matter, as when I left the Ministry there were plans for both Cayman Brac and East End. My concern is definitely for the Brac, because if the Brac is going to take off, as we and Government are saying, then they must get the water that is needed throughout the Brac.

The question I have is, Why is it not possible for the two to go up at the same time, meaning East End and Cayman Brac? Both are relatively small areas. I do not know whether the Honourable Minister can answer, but maybe if Government sees fit, the Minister responsible for water services now could do so.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. As the Member so accurately observed, I am in a position to answer the first part relating to jobs. In addition to seeing an increase of jobs in the Civil Service, per se, we are also seeing a remarkable increase in the real estate market, as well as construction. Those are two other areas we have actually reached a stage at which it is deemed necessary to take work permits, for example for masons and other similar occupations. We would still, however, like to see more white-collar jobs created in the Brac. That was the reason we requested funds for construction of additional offices for District Administration in Stake Bay, but during the budget prioritisation we had to go through a cut, and that is why that has not taken off any further as far as the back office work is concerned.

Subject to the ruling of the Chair, I would now give way to my colleague to respond to the Water Authority matter.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture.

Hon. John McLean: Regarding water to my District, East End, as the Member knows we discussed that at length. While he was in Executive Council, it was decided that definitely, the next stage of the water extension was going in to East End. I have taken under my Ministry responsibility for the Water Authority. Nothing more has been done than to continue to agree that the Water Authority will definitely extend water into my District. If that answers his question, or if he has a further question, I would be happy to answer him.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, I crave your indulgence, as the Minister is stating that while I was in Council a decision was made to do East End first. The country knows that the water project was continuing into East End, but separate and apart from that was the decision to do Cayman Brac. It had nothing to do with the East End project, because that was continuing, and had gone, I think, as far as Frank Sound, and we would continue. But there were separate plans in the Water Authority to do Cayman Brac.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Communications and Works.

Hon. John McLean: Mr. Chairman, as I pointed out a while ago, nothing has changed from what was in place prior to the Minister leaving. Last week Thursday we held a meeting, and the decision was the same. I have changed nothing and the Board has changed nothing. So whatever was in place at that time will still be done.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Okay. Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker. I think the Minister and I are on all fours; it is not that the decision was made not to do Cayman Brac, it was only continuing what was going on in Cayman. Cayman Brac was a different project. I know that is what he is saying, and I am only saying we are on all fours with it. I asked why the two cannot go on together, continue as was planned. That is all the question is.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John McLean: Mr. Chairman, at no time did I indicate that the work in Cayman Brac was not going on. I said, nothing has changed regarding what was in place when the Minister was there. In other words, he dealt with Cayman Brac and East End, and I thank him for it. I have no intention of changing anything there, and I do not think the Board has any intention of trying to change anything there.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay. I think we will soon have to bring these questions to an end.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: I agree with you, Mr. Speaker, but I crave your indulgence because this is a very important matter. One Minister has said nothing is happening, and the next Minister is saying that as far as he is concerned it is continuing the way the plan was. So what is happening? Will the Water Authority continue the project? And when will it actually start in Cayman Brac? Are there funds in the Water Authority to do as the plan was?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John McLean: Mr. Speaker, whatever funds were in the Water Authority when I took it over are still there. I reiterate what I said: We have never taken a decision different from that taken by the Member.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: I crave your indulgence, Mr. Speaker, because I am trying to find out from the Minister when the project will start in Cayman Brac.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John McLean: Mr. Speaker, I was not asked that question before, but I would say to the Member that the Board met last week. There was no decision taken on a time to start the project in Cayman Brac or East End. He knows that I think East End was. . . we had to put it off.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford Pierson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. A short question to the Honourable Minister who read the statement. I know it is early yet for Mr. Noorani's report and recommendations to come into effect, but I wonder if the Honourable Minister can say what efforts are being made by the economic steering committee, or other groups, to develop the potential source of revenue regarding developing Cayman Brac as an investment centre, as recommended by Mr. Noorani.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: May I have a moment, Mr. Speaker? (pause)

Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I am reliably informed that the main objective of the recommendations contained in the economic steering committee's report was for Government to make the first move, thereby creating an economic environment which would act as an incentive for investors, for instance with the recommendation for improved air services and additional District Administration office space. It was felt, having surveyed a number of the businesses in Grand Cayman, that there could be some back office work, even with Government. One of those was with the Legislative Department, maybe the Hansard typing or a similar type of work could be done on the Brac, and would not necessarily have to be site-based operations.

However, as far as doing a direct thing, where members went out and made an extra investment, because of the economic climate they were only able to do incremental development. Some of the persons have been able to increase their particular businesses, thereby hiring more people. For a short time, there was talk about some of them getting together to build the offices themselves, if Government could maybe act as a guarantor, but that has not as yet been taken any further.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I would like to ask two short questions. The first one is addressed to the Honourable Minister. In her explanation, she mentioned that one of the projects being considered is the proposed marina next to the airport and the pond. If memory serves me right, she said Executive Council is now deliberating on that issue and no decision has been made yet. Can the Minister let us know if included in that proposed project is a situation in which the place I know as 'The Beach' will be breached? Is that part of the proposal? We have heard a lot of things about it, but none of us knows what exactly is proposed. Perhaps the people in the Brac already know, but we would like to know that part of it, even though no decision has yet been made, regardless of what her legal advisor is telling her presently.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I will take that last piece as a bit of ironic humour, because my good friend knows I am quite capable when he asks me a question! And that I will tell him the truth, because I am transparent. Couldn't miss that piece!

Besides that part, Mr. Speaker, the proposal is in the embryonic stage, whereby it is a conceptual approval. There have been no detailed proposals that have come forward formally to Executive Council. It came by way of downsizing or looking at the whole range of recommendations. His Excellency the Governor asked us to take maybe the first ten priorities to get a costing. That fell within one of the ten, as I recall.

I obviously do not have the papers here before me, and we are looking at it conceptually. We are trying to address things within the cost reach, as it were, that could immediately give some remedy to the economic situation on the Brac. That would be more medium-term because obviously it involves a lot of detailed analysis, studies, and of course, a lot of cost.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker. Just so the Minister knows why I am asking the question, I happened to drive across there this morning and I saw what appeared to be an attempt to build a road or something to it. I wondered what was happening to it when she mentioned it, although I had heard some time ago about it. That was why I asked the question. Maybe the Minister could tell us what that little piece of thing is.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Before asking, on a point of clarification, to be sure we are talking about the same structure, there is a 'little piece of thing,' to use your terminology, close to where we are staying. If it is that one, that is much further east than where the conceptual proposal was. That was much further west, almost adjacent to the airport, and terminates in the vicinity of Steve Bodden's car rental facility.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, and I appreciate what the Minister is saying. I did know what she has just said. I was only wondering if there is any connection. If there is no connection, that is fine, but perhaps she could let me know if there is any connection.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: That unfinished road, or attempt at a road, was something that transpired before I came on the scene, and my understanding is—and I stand to be corrected, because it is not first-hand—that the previous District Commissioner, Mr. Rankine, had started the road in that section. Apparently it did not have the proper approval, and when the Governor was visiting he noticed it is in a bird site, and that was the end of the project. It has not come on line since I have been on.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The second question is one the Government can decide if they want to answer, and if so, whichever one of them wishes to answer it may. Going back to the question of water for Cayman Brac, where we were wondering which was which between the districts of East End and Cayman Brac in order of priority. The Minister stated, in answer to a question from the First Elected Member for West Bay, that whatever funds were in the Water Authority when he took the Ministry over, still remained there.

Perhaps the Government could clear up the issue of the in excess of a million dollars that was asked for from the Water Authority in December of last year, and if it means that the Minister was not in charge of the Water Authority at that time, does it mean that between the former Minister leaving office and him taking over, there was a time when the Water Authority was not responsible to any Ministry?

The Speaker: To whom are you directing your question?

Mr. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, because I only want to know the answer, it does not matter which one answers it. That is why I was leaving it like that. Both had spoken on it, and the Honourable Minister for Community Affairs deferred to the Minister of Agriculture, under whose Ministry the Water Authority falls. Perhaps he is best equipped to answer the question, but I am leaving it open, because it does not matter to me who says what, once we understand what goes on.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Agriculture, could I ask you to elaborate on that?

Hon. John McLean: Yes, Mr. Speaker, as much as I can. It is my understanding that all authorities under the law are subject to transfer funds to general revenue, and whatever he is talking about that was transferred, was done in that respect.

The Speaker: I think after this question, I am going to have to go on, because we have gone on a substantial time after continuing for short questions.

The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I quite appreciate your position, but you know how we get sometimes!

While I appreciate the answer the Minister has given, he stated previously that whatever funds were with the Water Authority when he took over as the Minister responsible remain today. If these funds I am referring to were taken out, regardless of what procedure they were taken out under, then, certainly, the funds that were there then cannot be the same as they are today. That is all I wish to get cleared up. Was I dreaming that Government asked for funds from the Authority, or does the Minister really mean that outside of those funds, whatever is left is still there?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John McLean: What I have said is exactly as the situation is. I am sure the Member understands what I am saying, because the fact remains that, under law, the Port Authority, Civil Aviation Authority and the Water Authority are subject to certain funds going into general revenue. I did not point that out when he mentioned that, but the fact remains, that is what I am referring to. What he wants me to say is that the funds are taken from there, and what was there when Mr. McKeever Bush left the place were subject to that change under the law. Yes, that is what I am speaking of. Thank you, Sir.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, one final question. I appreciate what the Minister is saying, and the Minister knows my continued line of questioning is only for purposes of clarity.

I would like to determine (and I think it is important, regardless of where funds go) is that regardless of how generic the statement is made that funds, by law, are required to be taken from the authorities, the Government must understand and appreciate the fact that the autonomy given to those authorities is based on the premise that they can plan their lives, meaning the future plans they have, that they are responsible for to the entire country.

The point I make is that the East End project was to go on, and the Cayman Brac project was to go on. Those funds, I am certain, have been put aside based on the projected knowledge that they would be able to start these projects soon, and because the funds were taken from them, that is why the projects have not started yet. That is the point I wish to make, Sir, and I will stop right now. If what I am saying is not true, they should tell me, but if it is, please say so, too.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Agriculture, do you have any comments?

Hon. John McLean: Mr. Speaker, I can tell you no more than. Under the law, the funds have been transferred. It went into general revenue. It was done to all authorities, and that is the situation. Civil Aviation, as a matter of fact, actually contributed more to general revenue than anyone else did.

The Speaker: At this time, we will suspend proceedings for lunch until 2.15 PM.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.45 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.40 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Item number five on today's Order Paper, Other Business, Private Members' Motions. Private Member's Motion No. 15/98, Litter Control, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for West Bay.

OTHER BUSINESS

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 15/98

LITTER CONTROL

Mr. John Jefferson Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Before I move Private Member's Motion No. 15/98, let me say that I count it as a real privilege to be attending my first sitting of the Legislative Assembly here in the Sister Island of Cayman Brac, and I want to say Thanks to the people here for the warm reception, and the hospitality extended to us as Members so far. I have always enjoyed my visits to the Brac, and I look forward to a long and mutually beneficial relationship with the people here.

Mr. Speaker, I beg to move Private Member's Motion No. 15/98 entitled 'Litter Control,' which reads as follows:

"WHEREAS maintaining a clean marine and physical environment is of paramount importance to the Cayman Islands with respect to maintaining its tourism industry and the good health of its citizens;

"BE IT THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT steps be now taken to review, revise and strengthen the Litter Law to ensure that the people of the Cayman Islands continue to live in a healthy environment and enjoy the benefits of tourism."

The Speaker: I have received a letter from the Elected Member for North Side who originally was down to second this motion, deputing the First Elected Member for George Town to second the motion. The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I so beg to second the motion.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 15/98 has been duly moved and seconded. Does the mover wish to speak to it? The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John Jefferson Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Under the Litter Law (1997 Revision), the definition of litter is “anything whatsoever, including dust, dirt, oddments, leavings, waste paper, cigarette ends, bottles (whether empty or not), derelict vehicles and any dead animal or carrion.” I believe we could even expand that to include other things. We all recognise the importance of maintaining healthy marine and physical environments, to allow us as a people to continue enjoying a very healthy lifestyle, and to be able to continue to enjoy the benefits of tourism.

This is not only a problem here in the Cayman Islands, it is a world-wide problem. We have done well as far as recognising the importance of maintaining such an environment here in the Cayman Islands, but we have to continue to be vigilant, and do everything we can to create a civic consciousness among our people regarding this very important issue of litter.

There seems to be a lack of social consciousness and pride among our people and the people who work among us, with respect to the proper disposal of litter. It is not unusual to see a gentleman throw a bottle of beer, once it is finished, into the nearest grass-piece. If he is smoking, when the cigarette is finished, he just flips it and there it stays. The country, I daresay, would be in a much worse position if Government had not taken the position it had, ensuring that sufficient people are employed to keep our roadsides and communities clean. But it makes the job much easier when we have a population or community with the consciousness that it is important that each and every one of us do our part to fight this continuous problem in our country.

We do not have to reinvent the wheel. We can look at what practices exist in other countries and adapt those that are practical for us in the Cayman Islands. Those that are not practical we will not use. With my wife's assistance, I was able to look at this very important issue on the Internet. I was able to get some very good information that I would like to share with my colleagues and the listening public on this issue.

I am always impressed when I travel to big countries like Canada. I have been to a few European countries as well, and I was impressed with the environment in those areas. I recall visiting Ottawa, Quebec, Toronto and Montreal, and their streets were so clean you could practically eat off those streets. I tried to gather as much information as possible as to why that is. It all goes back to education. I think we have to start at a very early age introducing the importance of the environment to our children in our schools, so at least that generation will start to make a difference in keeping and protecting our environment.

It was very discouraging when I was using a snorkel and a mask on a number of swims, when and all of a sudden I saw cans and other litter actually polluting our beautiful, pristine waters. It goes back to carelessness and a lack of pride among some of the people who live among us.

Some of the information I came across included the three R's of waste management. The first one is 'Reduce.' It says here, “Actions that prevent waste from being generated are best.” I have always heard that it is better to prevent something than to try to find a cure for it. It is less expensive. Some of the things we could do here is to provide departmental newspapers that can be shared, rather than every officer in the department having their own newspaper. There is nothing wrong with John reading it first and then passing it on to me. Doing that creates less demand for paper products in our country.

Another suggestion was to avoid purchasing over-packaged products. Another one: Avoid purchasing or using vending machines that dispense disposable cups. Institute a programme with suppliers to reduce or return packaging such as drums, skids and boxes. These are some of the things we can do to reduce the occurrence of waste.

Information produced by the United States Environmental Protection Agency says, “In 1995, approximately 208 million tons of municipal solid waste was generated in the United States. This means each person generated an average of 4.3 pounds of solid waste per day.”

I do not think it is unreasonable to say that these figures could apply here in the Cayman Islands. And if we make that assumption, taking into consideration that we probably have 35,000 residents and people working among us, and multiply that times 4.3 pounds per day, that is 150,500 pounds of litter produced daily in this country. If we extend that to the at least 20,000 visitors among us, at 4.3 pounds per day, that is another 86,000 pounds of litter produced daily. If you add those two figures together, then multiply that by 365 days, we are talking about 86,322,500 pounds. To convert that into tons, divide by 2,000, and we are talking about over 43,000 tons a year. If that is correct, that is a lot of litter for us to accommodate on an annual basis.

I have travelled a bit here in Cayman Brac as well, and I am aware that there is a problem here as well regarding proper disposal of solid waste, that is, dumps. If you visit Grand Cayman, you will soon discover that our dump area is the highest point on the Island, and it continues to grow daily.

I think the time has long past when Government can be expected to bear the cost and provide all the services we need in this country. It is estimated, for example, that we import about 500,000 gallons of oil annually. Once these oil companies bring this oil to the Cayman Islands, what happens? What is their responsibility in connection with what happens to the oil once it is used? I think Government has been taking too much of the burden in making sure the oil is collected and recycled or sent off the Island, so we can reduce the problem we have on the local scene.

I believe the time has come when we as legislators, through legislation. . . and that is part of the way we are going to have to do it, otherwise we cannot force anyone to do anything. We must be able to say to importers in this country, You want to bring it in?—and I am not just talking about oil, I am talking about any product. Let us say soft drinks, bottled water, whatever—You need to contribute something to the cost of the proper disposal of that item.

One of the things I thought of is that Government, on the importation of these products, could say that for every can of pop or soda brought into this country, it will assess a five cents per can environmental impact fee, or whatever you want to call it. Those funds would then go into the environmental fund for assisting with the proper disposal of these items after they are used.

In addition, there are giants like CUC that utilise a lot of oil. We were discussing this the other day, that there seem to be no controls in place to ensure the emissions from their engines are controlled. They just go out into the atmosphere, and hope it blows over the ocean and disappears. It does not just disappear! In my mind, they have to be held accountable for something regarding the cost.

As you are aware, Mr. Speaker, the Public Accounts Committee dealt with the DOE recycling programme and the management of waste in general. In our last report, on page 20 we stated: “The government’s recycling programme commenced in 1993 in an effort to reduce the amount of waste placed in the landfill. The consultant estimated that 28% of the waste stream could be recycled, although only 50% would be recovered, for a total waste reduction of around 14% to 15%. The Audit Office estimated that less than 1% of the total waste stream was diverted from the landfill. By the end of 1996 the recycling programme included automotive batteries, corrugated cardboard, aluminum cans and used motor oil. Additional programmes are being developed for other recyclable materials. Total cost of the programme to 1996 was $888,382. Gross revenues received do not cover shipping costs. The Department of Environmental Health (DEH) was aware that recycling was not cost effective, mainly because of high transportation costs.”

But get this: The total cost of the programme for 1996 was $888,382. Gross revenues received did not even cover shipping costs.

Mr. Speaker, we cannot continue as a Government to hold ourselves responsible for this problem. It is going to cost us millions of dollars a year, and we cannot recover it because the revenue from it does not make sense because of shipping costs. We have to balance in a much better way who bears and who shares the cost of the proper disposal of litter and waste in this country.

The other way countries have attempted to deal with this problem is Re-use. Under re-use it says, “Use reclaimed building products when renovating or constructing new facilities, that is, doors and windows, that type of thing. Consult a waste exchange to ensure or dispose of materials. Donate unwanted and extra food to food banks and other shelters. Donate old equipment to charities whenever possible. Make dis- carded materials available to employees for re-use, for example, firewood.” That does not apply to us, we do not have a need for fire in this country because of the climate we have, but the idea is that there a lot of things that end up in our landfill that we could re-use in the Cayman Islands.

I was told that if we had a proper recycling programme here we could produce enough oil from what is disposed of here to supply CUC with everything it needs in that area, without having to constantly bring it in from the outside. That would reduce the number of gallons of oil we would have to be concerned about shipping out of the country.

The last area is Recycle. We have a fair idea of what that entails. The message I want to get across is that business as usual in this country cannot continue. We look at an annual budget, and that is such an exercise because when we start the process there is probably $150 million difference between what is wanted and what we can afford. So we go through this process of cutting back and determining what our priorities are, and that is the only way we can operate. But the message I want to get across is that the private sector has to contribute more to the cost of the proper disposal of items brought here for use and for sale in this country.

If it means Government has to assess some type of impact fee at the time of importation, then that is the way to do it. But we cannot continue along the lines we have been going. I understand the oil companies now have a programme for dealing with the products they sell. I am not sure how much they do, or what facilities they have available, but if my estimate is right, that we import 500,000 gallons of oil a year into this country. . . and I am aware that Government has a holding facility. It is very limited. I think the Minister can tell us the capacity probably 20,000 gallons. What happens to the other 480,000 gallons brought into the country?

We have to have the facilities in place to deal with these special items. I am aware, and I mentioned before that the Department of Environment has made strides regarding the proper separation of items and that type of thing, but I believe more of a conscious effort and emphasis have to be placed on this issue of litter in this country. I recall that my colleagues and I had a public meeting in West Bay, and my District is one that is really affected by this. At that meeting I called for anyone who had an interest in doing a District cleanup to meet me on Saturday morning at 7.00 AM at the West Bay Town Hall, and we would proceed. One other resident beside me showed up. The excuse was that the others could not stay around.

It was a good thing that the Department of Environment, which I think at that stage was under the stewardship of Mr. Whittaker, was there to support me. They had about ten or twelve officers, lots of trucks and garbage bags. I picked up litter that day until I could not stand. Two weeks later I went back, and the litter was back. Why? Because there has not been that consciousness. Not only consciousness, if people do not have a conscience, you have to deal with them by other means.

If you look at the Litter Law, it has a maximum fine of $500 for whatever offence committed, and up to six months imprisonment. To some of these companies, that is petty cash. If you went up to CUC and said, You have to clean up your act, and they say, No, we are not going to do it. You implement the provisions of this Law, and it is $500—$100 for each day the offence continues. They can afford to continue that out of their revenue base.

We have to strengthen and increase the penalties under this Law, and the sister laws. I think the Marine Conservation Law is also affected, and other laws that have an impact on this problem. The other change I will recommend is that we take the practical approach to dealing with this problem. It is no good having a law that cannot be administered. I cannot recall, in my ten years as a Member of this House, that we ever prosecuted anyone for littering; and no one can tell me they have not personally seen people violating this Law. But it is not practical. If you saw a car speeding along, and you saw a bottle come out, and if the police stopped that car, first of all, they would have to determine how many people were in the car, who threw it out, why they threw it out, and then they would have to take them to court to try and enforce the fine. Very unworkable!

I am recommending that some consideration be given to authorising our district environmental officers, who monitor what is going on in each district, with the ability to write a ticket. I was instrumental in having the Traffic Law amended so that the police can now, when they catch someone speeding, write a ticket. It has all worked out. It is a very simple formula. Rather than going to court and wasting two days' worth of valuable court time to pay a fine for a speeding ticket, you carry your ticket to the courts office, you go to the cashier and pay your fee. That is the way it should be.

I am suggesting the same approach to this problem. I believe the environmental and public health officers should be authorised to write tickets for violations, and be able to enforce the Law with respect to these violations. If someone is aggrieved and wants to challenge the violation, they have a right to go to court to defend themselves and let the court decide what course of action will be followed. But I believe this issue is important enough that we need to give it special emphasis, because so much depends on how we treat our environment here in the Cayman Islands.

In 1968, my family and I travelled to Baltimore for vacation, and the friends we stayed with decided to go to Atlantic City, New Jersey, for an outing. We were all excited. We packed a lunch basket and headed to New Jersey. When we got there, our friends were jumping up and down with joy. My question was, 'Where are we going to swim?' They said, 'Right there!' I said, 'There? No, I will not be swimming there!' The beach was, I should not say charcoal, but very close to it in colour; and the water was very muddy and unattractive.

That is not the environment we have in this country. I am not one who dives, I used to snorkel a lot but I have never taken up diving it is a totally different environment, a different world under our ocean in the Cayman Islands. Very pristine waters, very clean, very clear. Our beaches are some of the best in the world. We have to guard that environment, regardless of the cost. But we are a community, and I believe we have to work together as a community to protect these important assets, our natural resources, and the cost of doing that must be borne equally between Government and the private sector in this country.

The excuse I hear is that if we approach the private sector about sharing some of these or other costs, they are going to run and go somewhere else. That approach cannot work any longer, because the cost of doing business, the demand for services from Government, continues to expand and increase on a daily basis.

I recall in 1974, when I was Government's Budget Officer, the budget was $14 million. If I recall correctly, the budget for 1998 was in the region of $273 million, and it could have been bigger if we had taken into consideration all the demands for new services in this country. I believe we have to institute in our school curricula some aspects of dealing with the importance of protecting our environment. The problem today is not with the younger generation. The children are much more conscious and careful about this problem than many adults in our community are.

I will give other Members a chance to voice their opinions on this very important subject, but I recommend to Government that consideration be given to reviewing, strengthening, and revising our Litter Law to make it more practical, maybe even a little stiffer, so that people recognise we are serious about protecting our environment. I crave the support of all Honourable Members of this House. Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: If it is the wish of the House, this may be a convenient time to take the afternoon break. We shall suspend for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.00 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 3.50 PM

The Speaker: Proceedings are resumed. Debate continues on Private Member's Motion 15/98 with the First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Mr. Speaker, the motion before the House has a lot of merit to it, I believe. Although the 'Resolved' section talks about strengthening the Litter Law, the Member moving the resolution talked about a lot of matters. The present and future quality of life of all the people of these Islands depends on several things, but we can say that a clean and aesthetically pleasing environment is among the most important, that is, marine and physical environment. Not only is it important to us, the Caymanian people and other residents, to preserve a high quality of environment, but also we must recognise that the country's future depends, to a large extent, on tourism. Speaking with tourism in mind, tourism will not survive if loads of refuse is strewn across the country's landscape.

I believe the Department of Environment, as far as garbage collection, is one of the best in the Caribbean. We do not pay a lot for it, but it is a good service that is provided. But we do have the problem of litter, and other matters attached to that, which are affecting the environment.

The Cayman Islands is a high-cost destination. A family comes in and pays $400-$500 per night in a condo or hotel room, only to go out along Seven Mile Beach Road or anywhere else in these Islands—to see garbage all over the place? Cayman is a dive destination, and that too is an important part of the whole tourism sector. A protected marine environment is absolutely necessary.

We know that there have been some measures taken to curtail dumping at sea. Other countries are beginning to treat this as most serious and damaging to their marine environments. This is not something to play with. If a cruise ship dumps in our waters, especially coastal waters—by that I mean close to the shore rather than way out to sea, but in our waters—then that action should be severely dealt with, no matter what kind of donation that cruise ship may make here. They should pay for it because while we only have one Cayman Islands and small natural resources, they can go all over the world, and they are international conglomerates.

This matter of dumping at sea is a serious matter. I talked about cruise ships. We know that we had some problem and there was some fee given. The Minister across the way would know exact amounts, but as I said, a few hundred thousand dollars cannot be very much in comparison to our marine environment that is worth millions of dollars to us, one of the main natural resources we have to depend on. I would like the Government to be more vigilant in that aspect. I know there will be a question as to whether they would be running somewhere else if you charged them too much. And we do not know how long they were doing it. We caught them one time. If they continue, we will not have anything left. I am asking the Government to be more vigilant there.

The problem of dumping at sea goes beyond cruise ships. It also has to do with other ocean-going vessels, especially those that carry oil as cargo. That has much potential danger, and, again, we see in the newspapers several times that the Department of the Environment is somewhat vigilant about that. Again, that is a problem that needs to be looked at more closely.

One serious problem we have is the many boats—and while it may not pertain much to the Sister Islands, it is very pertinent in Grand Cayman—in canals and at anchor which do not use any dumping facility. In other words, everything is going into the marine environment. This is serious pollution of the marine environment. I recall when I had the Ministry of Health for one year, a plan was initiated by Public Health to make these boats comply with regulations which were to be made to stop this kind of pollution. I believe we are at a point in time in our development when facilities can and must be put in place for boats to use.

Also of concern, when we talk about littering and the pollution of the environment, is that proper solid waste disposal throughout these Islands should be in place. This is also vital to the environment in both Grand Cayman and Cayman Brac. I believe (and I think the mover mentioned this) that the garbage dump in Cayman is one of the highest points. It must be one of the highest points in Grand Cayman. Surely, we cannot go much longer with the present conditions. I am not an expert, and I do not know all the environmental and scientific data, but I do know that there is a problem when we see the dump that high. Common sense tells us that. When we get to that point, there must be some sort of seepage from the dump into the ground, so we have to be careful that we are not destroying the groundwater, or having seepage to the sea, in particular the North Sound.

Back in 1975, it was determined that the present site for the dump in Cayman would be adequate for five years after 1975. That would take us to 1980. We are still there! Although a lot of work was done over the years to make improvements, it is still the same type of disposal treatment. Therefore, the same dangers are still there, and much more so today—I think I am safe in saying that it must be much more these many years after.

I have always had a good relationship with the people of Cayman Brac. Their concerns are my concerns, and I too am pleased to be here today. I have heard some complaints over the years about the garbage dump here. The present dump, as I understand it, is affecting the natural environment. As I understand it, it is either set ablaze, or by some strange happening, there is smoke every night from that dump. This certainly cannot help this small Island, so I would think a new site needs to be made available to Cayman Brac.

Immediately when you think of moving a dump, whether in Cayman Brac, Grand Cayman or wherever, people begin to say, 'Don't put it next to my land!' And who wants a dump by them? However, we have to have a facility where garbage must be dealt with, and it must go somewhere. It cannot go in space! We are not in that business! But I think that public discussion and public education as to the need will assist the Government in getting a new facility, not only in Cayman Brac, but in Grand Cayman as well. Everyone is much more sophisticated today, and they understand there is a need and a health risk, so the Government should not be afraid to start talking about it. I am not saying they are not, I do not know, but I know they understand there is a problem.

The Cayman Brac Members would know more about the Cayman Brac situation than I, because I have only heard complaints, and I can only see, I do not live here, the Cayman Brac Members live here and understand the plight of that situation. So I would hope that some sort of remedy could soon be found. I believe there were funds available, or funds have been mentioned. It might have been in the Estimates, but we did not get anywhere with it. Maybe that went to Pedro Castle too! I do not know.

I want to thank those individuals who over the years have been organising the collection of garbage in the different areas of our Islands. When I say that, I am talking about the Boy Scouts and various persons. We heard the mover talking about an effort he made. Generally, those citizens and organisations have been picking up garbage over the years. As the mover mentioned, the more it is picked up, the more it seems that people throw it around.

The motion calls for a strengthening of the Litter Law. If an amendment to the Law is made, or new fees are to be put in place, there must be sufficient willingness to prosecute anyone caught severely enough to discourage others. I really believe that is the problem now. It seems it is easy to catch a speeder and put a $200 fine on him for doing 41 mph, but you cannot find the drunkard or the same person in a car who is throwing beer bottles and other bottles and garbage all over the place. It seems to me there has to be some effort in policy to deal with it, a willingness to prosecute. Mind you, a willingness to prosecute—and this has nothing to do with politics—could mean less votes!

Someone said 'enforcement.' Well, just let me say, a willingness to prosecute. But I believe that is one of the main problems. No one yet has felt the force of the Law for littering. Five hundred dollars is a substantial fine, with the possibility of a jail sentence. I believe there has to be an effort on the part of Government to move ahead in the policy level.

[Inaudible comments]

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Willingness, then.

I talked about beer bottles or other such kind of litter, but if you go to certain areas in Grand Cayman, you can witness the indiscriminate dumping of household and commercial refuse. You will see old settees, stoves, refrigerators, sometimes the kitchen sink is there too! I can mention, because I have talked about it long enough, along the Barkers area. It is kept much better today because people are a little more vigilant, and there are organisations. But you cannot expect people to constantly come out and pick up someone else's garbage. That is the general view of the public, to feel there has to be more policing of it. By that, I mean enforcement, if that is what the Minister wants to hear.

That area, which has great potential for tourism development, and could be a prime area of tourism development, is a disgrace at times. People can do better. It is very unhealthy.

We just completed phase I of the Harquail Bypass. I say Phase I, hopefully we do not have to spend any more money on Pedro Castle—and we can see how much garbage is there in just a few months. I did not remember until my good friend reminded me about it, but I travel the road a lot, and there is nothing wrong with the road. But that is supposed to be a prime avenue for tourists going from the airport to the Seven Mile Beach area, and what is happening? Measures must be taken. I believe this is a good effort on the part of the Members of the Backbench, and some of the matters raised by the mover should be looked at post-haste. I therefore offer my support to this resolution. Thank you very much, and may I again say how pleased I am to be here with you in Cayman Brac, a good place to be at times.

The Speaker: You could have left that last little phrase off!

Does any other Member wish to speak? The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I thank the last speaker for his remarks, and I would also like to thank the mover because all of us here in the Cayman Islands have a common goal: to keep our country clean, because it is a tourist destination. The Government has pleasure in accepting the motion presently before it. There are just a few things I would like to comment on.

First of all, I would like to say that I have to concur with other speakers regarding having fines in place that have not actually been imposed. This is why I was speaking across the floor to my friend, Mr. Bush, regarding 'enforcement.' That is correct, because as long as I can recall, I think there has only been one occasion when we actually had enforcement of the Litter Law. Of course, that was $500, and I believe that if that Law was exercised more, we could actually keep our country even cleaner.

Also, regarding enforcement in our natural resources, this has been a great concern, not only to me, but also to the Natural Resources Department. We have been doing as much as we can to try to make sure that this does not recur. However, again it comes back to enforcement, and how many persons we can have in place to make sure it is done.

I think one of the largest fines imposed in this country was imposed directly by an enforcement officer on one of the tourist ships which came into our harbour in Grand Cayman and pumped litter and sewerage into the harbour. We were looking at a fee under that Law of something like $500,000. So I know of those two occasions when it was imposed. Yes, the Government is quite aware that we should be more involved with enforcing this. The last speaker is correct. I also recall the area he is speaking about, the Barkers area. As a matter of fact, I have accompanied some of my enforcement officers there. We have seen it for ourselves—you clean an area, and within a matter of two or three weeks, it is as dirty as it was before.

I take the point because the fact remains that we can continue to spend on litter in this country. We can continue to talk about it, but the fact remains that until we enforce the laws of this country and make sure that persons who are littering this country are brought to justice, it will not be any better.

As far as I am concerned, I am pleased to say today that the Government has done, and continues to do, a lot. As a matter of fact, I am pleased to say that inmates at Northward Prison have played a very good part. We have had them, not as much here in Cayman Brac, but for sure in Grand Cayman, on the roads, and we are grateful because they have done a good job. But it is the actual public of this country, and we need to try to reach them. I do not know how else we can do it unless through enforcement of what is in the laws.

Regarding the Harquail Bypass, I too share the concern of the Member, and I would like to say that we have had the Department of Environment go there, and they have done what I would consider to be a good job thus far. But one must remember that that road began in the beginning of the dump, and it is going to take us a while to clear that area. I again support my Department of Environment because we are working along with the landowners there. It is our hope, with God's help, to have that area cleaned up. As a matter of fact, the Member on my side here, Mr. Truman Bodden, has made a request to me—

[inaudible comment]

Hon. John B. McLean: No, and God knows how I am going to go through it—he wants me to put up some trees there, but I do not know if I can do it. So I am on your side still!

I take the point that has been made, and, yes, we are definitely looking at it. We need the support of the general public. I would like to elaborate on what was said a while ago regarding the oil and other waste material at the dump. The fact remains that what took place at the dump some time ago is no longer happening. We have a container there in which oil is collected, and once they are collected, it is no longer pumped into the ground. We now have collection for cardboard, plastic, and are presently in negotiations with a company in trying to ship bulk material such as old cars and old heavy equipment from Grand Cayman.

It is the same with old batteries. Years ago batteries were just buried in the ground. No longer do we do that. No longer do we do that with the aluminium cans. We collect them and crush them, and while we are still only breaking even, I believe I am correct in taking such a decision, and it is being shipped out of the country. All of this is no longer being pushed into the ground. I think that was a positive step, and we will continue to do whatever we can to make it even more a reality.

I would further like to point out that the mover of this Bill and I, along with someone presently in Grand Cayman met a few days ago. He brought a machine to the Island that contains oil, and he is interested in trying to assist the Government and the people of this country in removing certain products from the garbage dump, and the collection of oil. We have given the assurance that we will work along with him. I have said that to my Department. We are going to work with people, and whatever we can do, we will do. This is not the only company we have worked with. As a matter of fact, there is another company we are working with as well.

As far as I am concerned, this side, meaning the Government, is in full support of this motion, and we fully accept it. We will continue to do whatever we can to work for the betterment of this country, knowing we have a very good tourist trade that we want to make better.

Regarding Cayman Brac, I visited here along with the person now in charge of Environment. We have looked at certain sites. As a matter of fact, Mr. Speaker, I would like to say that you were present with us one time. We are also working on that. So it is not that we are not looking at it. We are trying to put down something here, and we are going to do it in such a way that we have learned from the mistakes in Grand Cayman, because the mistakes there, we all agree, have been mistakes as far as how garbage was disposed of. There is nothing I can do about that now, except to try to work with persons like I mentioned, that the mover is aware of.

I believe that seepage in the North Sound was detected several years ago. I come back to what I said a while ago. We tried our best—and I believe we have certain stopgaps in place now, especially with disposal of oil, because that is no longer pumped directly into the ground. We have a collective device in place and we have co-operation from the major importers when it comes to things like that.

It is my intention and my Ministry's intention to continue to work with importers. We too have checked out areas like Canada, as was mentioned. We have spoken to schools, and are trying to instil it in the children's minds, because I believe that the key to this is educating the younger ones who will no doubt pass it on to the parents. As far as I am concerned, we will continue to work diligently on this matter.

I thank the Member who moved the motion, and those who have spoken thus far. I am pleased to say that my Government is happy to support the motion. I would also like to thank the seconder of the motion. I give you the assurance that my Ministry will continue to do whatever possible to make the environment of this country even better than it is. Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

MOMENT OF INTERRUPTION—4.30 PM

The Speaker: We have almost reached the hour of 4.30. I would now entertain a motion for the adjournment of this House.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until 10.00 AM tomorrow.

EDITED
FRIDAY
5 JUNE 1998
10.10 AM
MEETING IN CAYMAN BRAC

The Speaker: Prayers by the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

PRAYERS

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived: We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth, that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly, that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy great name's sake.

Let us say the Lord's Prayer together: Our Father, who art in heaven, hallowed be Thy name. Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us. Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace, now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Item 2 on today's Order Paper, Reading by the Speaker of Messages and Announcements.

READING BY THE SPEAKER OF MESSAGES AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: I have apologies for absence from the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport who is not well; the Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation, who is with his brother who has undergone surgery in Miami; the First Elected Member for West Bay who is with his mother in Miami who is undergoing medical treatment; the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay who is not well; and the Elected Member for North Side, the Deputy Speaker, who is attending her son's graduation in the United States.

I would like to welcome all of you here this morning, in particular the students from Cayman Brac Primary School. We are happy you are here and hope that your visit will be beneficial as you see your Parliament in action.

Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. Question 60 is standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION 60
(Deferred)

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I ask that this question stand over to another day this coming week. I apologise for its being on the Order Paper this morning. I ask that it be removed. I know, Mr. Speaker, that we also had some further questions that were ready for the First Elected Member for West Bay who had to go off to his mother, so we had to take those off the agenda as well.

The Speaker: The question is that question 60 be deferred. I ask for the suspension of Standing Order 23(5) in order to defer these questions. I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: QUESTION 60 DEFERRED UNTIL A LATER SITTING.

The Speaker: Question 61 is standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 61

No. 61: Miss Heather D. Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture: Where is the proposed new site for the Bodden Town District Library?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: The proposed new site for the Bodden Town District Library is the Bodden Town Town Hall.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Miss Heather D. Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say if the District of Bodden Town has any access to a library at any time?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: The residents of Bodden Town presently do not have direct access in that there is no established library in that jurisdiction. However, there is a school library and we have the general library in the district of George Town. But the Ministry is cognisant of the dire need for a district library and funds were put into the last Budget to take us towards that end.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Miss Heather D. Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say how much money is needed to complete this project?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: The Ministry initially requested a sum of $110,000 as this was what we were instructed was necessary to complete the project.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Miss Heather D. Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say when the necessary renovations will occur?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: The Ministry is now in the process of meeting with the Public Works Department to complete the work scheduled for this year having taken into consideration the reprioritisation exercise which is now completed. As soon as I am in possession of the completed projection I will be happy to convey that to the Members from that district.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Miss Heather D. Bodden: I would like to thank the Honourable Minister for that information. Can the Honourable Minister say if a name has been chosen for the Bodden Town District Library?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: To the best of my knowledge a name has not yet been chosen for the Bodden Town District Library. But, because I strongly believe in the consultative process, I will be happy to meet with the three Members from Bodden Town to receive names for the project.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister say if there has been any representation from any of the constituents regarding dissension over using the Town Hall for a public library? I ask this because I have heard on more than one occasion (and it might be a minority, I am not suggesting otherwise) that some people are not too happy with changing the use of the Town Hall into a library, whereas there may well be some benefits. I am just wondering if the Minister has heard anything about that.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: If memory serves me right, I believe that this matter was mooted the last time we met in Finance Committee. Looking at the minutes from Finance Committee, where all three Members (the Hon. Anthony Eden, as well as the former Minister, Mr. McKeever Bush, the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town and the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town) had a go at discussing the issue, there was a consensus that this is where the library would be going. Based on the fact that they were the representatives, and since I have not received any direct input, the decision was made to use that location.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, that concludes Question Time for this morning. Item 4 on today's Order Paper is Government Business, Bills, First Reading. Before we take the first reading, I will call on the Hon. Third Official Member to suspend Standing Order 46.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 46

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I beg to move the suspension of Standing Order 46 to allow the Bills appearing on the Order Paper to be taken.

The Speaker: The question is the suspension of Standing Order 46 to allow the three Bills appearing on the Order Paper, The Mutual Funds (Amendment) (Penalty Fees) Bill, 1998; The Banks and Trust Companies (Amendment) (Waiver of Penalty Fees) Bill, 1998, and The Immigration (Cayman Brac and Little Cayman Immigration Board) (amendment) Bill, 1998, to be taken. I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 46 SUSPENDED TO ALLOW THE BILLS TO BE TAKEN.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

BILLS

FIRST READINGS

THE MUTUAL FUNDS (AMENDMENT) (PENALTY FEES) BILL, 1998

Clerk: The Mutual Funds (Amendment) (Penalty Fees) Bill, 1998.

The Speaker: The Bill is deemed to have been read a first time and is set down for second reading.

THE BANKS AND TRUST COMPANIES (AMENDMENT) (WAIVER OF PENALTY FEES) BILL, 1998

Clerk: The Banks and Trust Companies (Amendment) (Waiver of Penalty Fees) Bill, 1998.

The Speaker: The Bill is deemed to have been read a first time and is set down for second reading.

THE IMMIGRATION (CAYMAN BRAC AND LITTLE CAYMAN IMMIGRATION BOARD) (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1998

Clerk: The Immigration (Cayman Brac and Little Cayman Immigration Board) (Amendment) Bill, 1998.

The Speaker: The Bill is deemed to have been read a first time and is set down for second reading.
Bills, Second Reading.

SECOND READINGS

THE MUTUAL FUNDS (AMENDMENT) (PENALTY FEES) BILL, 1998

Clerk: The Mutual Funds (Amendment) (Penalty Fees) Bill, 1998.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I beg to move the second reading of a Bill entitled, The Mutual Funds (Amendment) (Penalty Fees) Bill, 1998.

The Speaker: Do you wish to speak to it?

Hon. George A. McCarthy: As set out in the Memorandum of Objects and Reasons, this Bill seeks to amend The Mutual Funds Law (1996 Revision) by reducing the penalties payable on late payment of the annual fees for a registered mutual fund and the mutual fund administrators to one-twelfth of the annual fee payable in respect of each month or part of a month that the payment is late. The Bill also transfers the power to waive penalties for late payment of annual licence renewal fees from the Financial Secretary to the Monetary Authority.

A further need for this amending Bill arose as a result of inconsistencies currently existing between the various pieces of financial services legislation with respect to penalties charged for late payment and surcharges of annual fees, specifically. The penalty for late payment of annual fees under The Mutual Funds Law is 100% of the annual fee for each month, or part of the month the fee remains unpaid. However, under the Banks and Trust Companies Law this penalty is one-twelfth of the annual fee for each month or part of a month the fee remains unpaid. It was felt, therefore, that the penalty fee under the Mutual Funds Law should be reduced to one-twelfth of the annual fee to bring it in line with that of the Banks and Trust Companies Law.

I commend this Bill to Honourable Members.

The Speaker: The question is the Second Reading of a Bill for a Law to amend the Mutual Funds Law (1996 Revision) to amend the penalty fees for late registrations; and for incidental and connected purposes.

The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

My comments will be fairly short, but I did not want to miss this opportunity to make a few comments on this most important amendment. As the mover of the Bill has rightly stated, the amendment seeks to reduce the penalties for the late payment of the annual fees for a registered mutual fund, and on late payment of the annual fees payable by mutual fund administrators. Indeed, this brings it in line with The Banks and Trust Companies Law. I thought this would be a good opportunity, in view of the financial initiatives being made in Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, to extend this a little further than just this amendment, while at the same time keeping it within the relevance of this amendment.

Yesterday we heard the Hon. Minister speaking on comments made by the Budget Manager here in Cayman Brac saying that certain positive signs are already being seen within the economy of Cayman Brac as a result of certain initiatives being taken. Indeed, I have seen a lot of development going on. But the relevance of this is that one of the initiatives mentioned by the project manager was the introduction of certain incentives in the Brac to stimulate the economy. I want to promote the idea of the Government seriously considering using Cayman Brac as a centre for some of our mutual fund business.

In order to make it attractive to Cayman Brac, it would be necessary for the Government—and this would be a bipartisan situation, where both sides of the House would encourage this move—to provide certain meaningful and significant incentives. Perhaps we could consider making it possible for mutual fund administrators and operators to come into Cayman Brac at a fraction of what the cost would be to operate such a business in Grand Cayman.

There are other incentives I can think of right off the bat, but which are not directly related to this Bill. I am sure that the steering committee set up will consider these. Making mutual funds a very attractive situation for Cayman Brac would not only bring new business to Cayman Brac, but would employ a number of Brackers already qualified in this field who are now working in Grand Cayman, and who would be happy to return home if these opportunities existed.

I can see people here who already have a lot of experience in banking and accounting and the mutual fund business. This is something, if we really want to help the Brac, that we need to do. I will be making further comments on areas that I feel can be introduced in Cayman Brac when I comment on the next Bill. I also have certain concerns about our whole economy as it relates to the Bank and Trust Company business.

If we seriously consider the introduction of meaningful incentives where people could come here to work, the same thing could apply to company registration. This would have to be for new companies, but where companies could come here and register for perhaps 10%. It has to be meaningful. The infrastructure is already in place for Cayman Brac, more will be necessary but we have to start.

I trust that the mover of this Bill will take these comments into consideration in summing up. Thank you.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak?

The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I support this Bill. It seeks to correct problems in an area that will enhance the mutual fund industry. The Cayman Islands has remained a financial offshore centre at the cutting edge with new incentives and new legislation. It has provided the climate to bring the Cayman Islands to where it is—the fifth largest financial and banking centre in the world, coming after London, New York, Tokyo and Switzerland.

This aspect of the Bill when it was passed a few years ago was not seen as a problem, but now the Hon. Financial Secretary has taken the incentive to move ahead and correct this area of it. The mutual fund industry is a new industry, it is one that is undergoing rapid change with our Stock Exchange and our Monetary Authority. We have succeeded in building up the funds fairly rapidly in this area. I also appreciate that we should endeavour to spread more of this industry into Cayman Brac, however it is a complex area and sometimes it is not quite as simple as directing where the business would be. But I am sure that this is uppermost in the minds of the Finance Committee members.

I would just like to finish by saying that it is really a pleasure to be in Cayman Brac. We were here last in 1982. I personally feel that each year we should endeavour to come here at this time. Our Budget process is now in the beginning stages and it is important that Members of this Honourable House come here and see the projects they are voting millions of dollars for. Secondly, it keeps the communication open between us in this House and both islands because we are all one country. God forbid that should ever change.

Last, but most importantly, I would like to welcome the students here today because they are this country's future. One day they will sit in these seats and run this country. It is important that we ensure that they reach their full potential. I have always enjoyed being in the Brac. I take my vacations as often as I can with my two children in Little Cayman, and at times we come here rather than going on to the United States or somewhere else. That I will continue to do because I must teach my children that these three islands are all one people.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak?

The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: I rise to add my support to the amendment of this very important Mutual Funds Law. I am proud of the fact that before anything is brought to this House the financial community, in connection with the Financial Secretary and Government related departments (that is the bank and trust companies area, the insurance area, the mutual funds area, companies area) go through a negotiation process. Members of the financial community offer their input which is taken into consideration. At the end of the day the Financial Secretary, who presents these bills, is confident that he has the support of not only the Government, but of the financial community as well.

The mutual funds area is a new area, and a new source of revenue for the Cayman Islands. Because of being on the cutting edge—in other words, we stop, we listen to what the needs are of that particular industry, and we put it into place—we continue to make this area attractive for people who are involved in this very special area, to accommodate them and encourage the business in this area. This is a huge area as far as new funds are concerned because those individuals who are saving for their retirement are normally involved in a mutual fund.

I also look at it as a cosmetic thing from the point of view that the Monetary Authority was established to pull together the Currency Board, the Insurance Department and the Banks and Trust Companies Department. It is natural that they be given the responsibility for collecting and waiving fees when necessary.

I also support the recommendation put forward by the Third Elected Member for George Town in regard to encouraging this type of activity here in Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. There is a lot going on here, but it is only restricted to certain areas, in other words, not everyone here has the interest or the ambition to get involved in construction which is one of the areas where the economy seems to be moving, but we need to create more white collar jobs in the Brac. I think the more we can do to encourage this type of activity here in the Brac with proper incentives, and the more we can do in regard to encouraging the independence and the self-sufficiency of the Brac, the less the Government has to provide in subsidies. I know that the people of Cayman Brac are very proud, independent, and responsible people. I think they would welcome any initiatives that would encourage this type of activity here in Cayman Brac.

I, for one, have always enjoyed my visits to the Brac. As a matter of fact, I am one of those Members who puts his money where his mouth is, in that I have a business here in the Brac at this time. I travel back and forth and always enjoy visiting Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. Anything I as a representative can do to encourage or assist with what is needed here in the Brac, I am prepared to do.

I also want to welcome the students here this morning. I believe that if we saw more of the public sitting in the gallery taking an interest in what goes on in the Legislative Assembly in Grand Cayman, it would keep us on our toes and encourage us to believe that we are making a worthwhile and necessary contribution to our country.

I congratulate the mover and encourage him and the Government to stay on top of things; to stay competitive and never get to the stage where they are comfortable and sit on their laurels and expect just because we are who we are that things will happen. We have a lot of competition today, and in order to ensure that we continue to have our fair share we have to work together as a financial community and Government as a whole.

I support this very important initiative. Thank you.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak?

The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: I, too, rise to give my wholehearted support to the mover and the Government for the vision and foresight in these very timely and necessary amendments. I would also like to say that I fully endorse the comments and support of the Third Elected Member for George Town. The Member has supported initiatives for the Brac for as long as I can remember, and I would like to publicly say on behalf of the people of Cayman Brac that we do appreciate all of the support we get from all Honourable Members in this House. I believe that the time has come when the financial aspect of the country can be revisited to see about the practicability and feasibility of extending incentives in this specific area.

We do realise that it is a highly specialised area. Having said that, we are cognisant that many of the positions held in Grand Cayman in this respective fiscal area are held by very capable Cayman Brackers who, if they are like me, would take every opportunity to come back home and work in the local community. So I look forward to Government taking this opportunity to fully review these measures to see whether or not it is feasible to introduce incentives in this regard. If and when it does come to the floor of this Honourable House, I look forward to the full support that has been given in the past.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: I had not really intended to make any comments on this rather technical amendment. The debate process seems to have become involved in what I consider to be mystical compliments, in that we are again talking about things without really questioning whether or not these things are possible. I don't believe the demagoguery is really a compliment to the democratic process. I think that when we have so many young minds here today it is important that they realise that things do not happen simply because people say they should, but because people make them happen. People cannot make them happen if those things are not possible, if they are not researched before one says this is what can and should be done.

I assume also that people of Cayman Brac have been promised this, that and the other thing for a very long time, and a lot of things have not come their way. Perhaps it has happened not because of any desire on Members' part to withhold from Cayman Brac what Cayman Brac so duly deserves, but because of the question of physical and economic development in any part of the world is a very complicated process.

It is important that the children also understand that Government does not get revenue by taxing its people directly. In other words, there is no income tax, there is no profit gains tax. There is land transfer tax, but at the end of the day, once you have bought your property, you don't pay any additional tax. So Government's ability to do things is very limited by the resources made available to Government. Every time we talk about concessions, we are talking about giving up money. And every time we give up money, it means that we are less capable of paying for those resources and facilities that we continue to believe are important for the physical and social growth of our community.

I just wanted to put a word of caution in here. It is good that we are here, and I know that the character of our debate in being here. . . and I am also grateful to be here, but I am going to maintain my rationality and I am going to say that every time we say that something should be possible, we should always remember the cost it is going to be to the people of these islands who have to pay for it.

I support this Bill. But I am concerned that we got into a debate about what kinds of concessions can be made. Obviously, the amendment here is of a very technical nature. When discussing concessions that could be made to Cayman Brac, we must do our research and be prepared to say what that would cost the Treasury of our islands, and whether or not we can continue to pay for education, for sporting developments and assisting the poor people once we have given up that amount of income.

Thank you.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? If not, would the mover like to exercise his right to reply?

The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, I would like to commend Members for the divergence of their comments on this amendment. I should point out that the Government is committed to the unified development of the Cayman Islands. When reference is made to the Cayman Islands this is having regard to Grand Cayman, Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.
