We are aware of the initiatives that have been underway for quite some time; we have seen the results that have been borne from these initiatives in Cayman Brac. However, when it comes to areas such as the financial industry, I am in full agreement that we would like to see a spreading out of the concentrated activities to the other islands. But this is, as the Fourth Elected Member for George Town said, an aspect that will have to be researched and examined very carefully before in-depth comments are made on this. I will not run the risk today of offering expansive views or comments on that.

I should say that approximately eighteen months ago the members of the Private Sector Consultative Committee together with Members of Executive Council visited Cayman Brac with the view for the private sector to get a glance of the facilities that were available in Cayman Brac. They were quite impressed with what they saw and various comments were made, such as, a need for office facilities, and other initiatives to be further pursued.

We have not lost sight of that, Mr. Speaker, and we are continuing in this regard. In fact, less than a fortnight ago I mentioned to a Member of Executive Council that I would be speaking with the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture in regard to having a greater concentration of economic analysis carried out by the Economic and Statistics Department, attempting to recruit an economist to carry out reviews of initiatives that could be further pursued and implemented within Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

One of the areas we will have to revert to is the development of Cayman Brac as a free trade zone. This is not something that has fallen by the wayside. It is not a question of just saying that this needs to be done. What we need to do is examine very carefully the activities and infrastructure that will be necessary to support that. We also have to be very selective in terms of the type of industries that will be brought into the Brac under that initiative because Cayman Brac has, so far, enjoyed a very clean environment and we want to make sure that everything coming in is non-pollutant.

At the end of the day we would want the benefits flowing from that to accrue first to the citizens of Cayman Brac, while taking into account the social impact at the same time. Whenever we start gearing up with a higher level of economic activities it is going to have certain adverse impacts upon the social environment, the social lifestyle of the community. This will have to be balanced; these are choices that will have to be made by the people of Cayman Brac and the Cayman Islands as a whole.

So this amendment we have in front of us is to refine the administrative arrangements whereby rather than matters being referred to the Financial Secretary to agree on the waiver of fees, for example, for late payment of fees, that these requests be dealt with by the Monetary Authority. But I should say that sight is not lost in terms of the continuing economic development of Cayman Brac. The initiatives necessary to support this bring our minds together and having dialogue with various people within the community, not only Cayman Brac, but also in Grand Cayman, and also within the wider international community as well, because at the end of the day there should be a unified goal whereby we continue to promote the economic development of the Cayman Islands.

At this point I must say that it is very good to be in Cayman Brac, and I would like to join other Members who have expressed that sentiment. Also, it is very good to see the many people who have come out since yesterday to hear the debate, and to see the primary school children here this morning.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled The Mutual Funds (Amendment) (Penalty Fees) Bill, 1998 be given a second reading. I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: THE MUTUAL FUNDS (AMENDMENT) (PENALTY FEES) BILL, 1998 GIVEN A SECOND READING.

READING BY THE SPEAKER OF MESSAGES AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

PRIMARY CHILDREN AND STUDENTS FROM THE CAYMAN BRAC HIGH SCHOOL

The Speaker: Before we go on, I would like to say that we also have students here from Cayman Brac High School. We are grateful to the Ministry of Education, the Department of Education and the schools in Cayman Brac for making it possible for the students to be in the gallery from time to time. Indeed, this is an educational opportunity and I am happy that the Legislative Assembly could meet in Cayman Brac. I am very happy that you are all taking advantage by being in the gallery to watch Parliament in action.

Second Readings continuing.

SECOND READINGS

THE BANKS AND TRUST COMPANIES (AMENDMENT) (WAIVER OF PENALTY FEES) BILL, 1998

Clerk: The Banks and Trust Companies (Amendment) (Waiver of Penalty Fees) Bill, 1998.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I beg to move the second reading of a Bill entitled The Banks and Trust Companies (Amendment) (Waiver of Penalty Fees) Bill, 1998.

As set out in the Memorandum of Objects and Reasons, this Bill seeks to amend the Banks and Trust Companies Law (1995 Revision) by transferring the power to waive the penalty for late payment of annual licence renewal fees from the Financial Secretary to the Monetary Authority.

The Monetary Authority is in the best position to assess those circumstances for which fees should be waived. This amendment will avoid the Authority having to refer such requests to the Financial Secretary to be dealt with.

I commend this Bill to Honourable Members.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled The Banks and Trust Companies (Amendment) (Waiver of Penalty Fees) Bill, 1998, be given a second reading. The question is open to debate.

The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I am in support of this very important amendment Bill. As always, even though I did not mention this earlier, it is always good to be here in Cayman Brac. There is always a very warm welcome for me here. I admire the people of Cayman Brac and I think many of my colleagues know that. When I was in Executive Council, I recall one of my colleagues asking me if I would prefer to be a Member for Cayman Brac since I was always asking for things for Cayman Brac. That would be all right if I were living here. It would be an honour.

I can take the view made by previous Members made on the past motion and I will not go into that, but it would be unfortunate if we came to Cayman Brac and could not think of some ways and means that we could address to assist with the economic situation in this island.

I was at a restaurant yesterday, and it was the best food I have ever had anywhere in the Cayman Islands. But the gentleman said to me when I was leaving (not just to me, to the group) that he was thinking of closing down for lack of business. My comment is not to enter into detailed discussions here, because I could not do that in five or six minutes, but it is to introduce the whole concept. Hopefully it will be looked into seriously. It is not a matter of moving away from the substance of the motion, because it is very relevant to relate what can be done in the same area for Cayman Brac.

The mover of the Bill mentioned that the Cayman Islands is comprised of three islands, not just Grand Cayman. Cayman Brac and Little Cayman are as much a part of the Cayman Islands as is Grand Cayman. When we are looking at the development of Grand Cayman we should also think of a similar way to help Cayman Brac. If we were to look at the contribution made by Grand Cayman to Cayman Brac, even with the Civil Service, we would see that Grand Cayman is paying a huge amount of money to keep the Civil Service going, not to speak of road works and other areas. When we make an investment in Cayman Brac it should be looked at as an investment and not a deletion or reduction of revenue from Grand Cayman.

The more self-sufficient Cayman Brac can become, the better off the Cayman Islands will be, and less money will be taken out of the coffers of Grand Cayman.

A previous Member mentioned that the Cayman Islands is the fifth largest financial centre in the world. I would just like to slightly correct that. It is the fifth largest offshore financial centre, but we are the eighth largest financial centre. But that is great because we are eighth after the United Kingdom, the United States, Japan, Germany, France and Hong Kong, and then Singapore, Cayman Islands, Switzerland, Luxembourg and so on. That is commendable because with a population of 35,000 the Cayman Islands ranks fifth in offshore financial centres of the world when one considers that Hong Kong has a population of some six million people. We have to be commended, but we should not become complacent.

There are many dangers lurking over the horizon for our economy. I will not go into those today because I do not want to be corrected for straying from the subject. I will probably bring that as a substantive motion. There was a recent report by the Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD) published. And this is going to impact heavily on our banks and trust companies, and the whole economy of the Cayman Islands. I ask those who have not seen that, to read this OECD Report.

There have also been overtures by the United Kingdom Foreign and Commonwealth Office to try to include the Cayman Islands in a sort of dual criminality, or all crimes bill. I would suggest that when we talk about amendments to the Banks and Trust Companies Law we also bear in mind that some of the measures being taken by our competitors and countries such as the Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD) (of which the United Kingdom is a founding member) could put our whole banking situation in dire jeopardy if action is not taken, and taken seriously and early.

Thank you. I support this Bill.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: I support this Bill. It improves on our financial centre and will continue to keep us as one of the countries that has legislation which is at the cutting edge of the industry.

It is very important when we initially see reports such as mentioned earlier by the Third Elected Member for George Town, that we look at them and analyse them carefully because sometimes when we totally digest these things and look at the surrounding circumstances they are not quite as frightening as they appear at first glance.

The OECD has power to force or impose its will. That is important. I will say no more on that, but I think it is very important that we all sit and analyse this very carefully, look at the alternatives and carefully weigh the impact that may arise from this.

I am very aware. I make my living in the financial industry. I believe it is in our interest to sit and discuss this where it can be dealt with in a more informal atmosphere, and just look at what is there and then come up with a solution, which will be in the best interest of the country. There is no place for politics when it comes to the livelihood of the people of the Cayman Islands.

I would just ask Members to please not get into extensive debate or form conclusions too early on some of the many reports—and there are many, Mr. Speaker—that go out from time to time on this. I have always believed that there is a solution to every problem, one just has to look hard enough, long enough, and rationally enough. Sometimes with politics rationality seems to get eroded.

Let us work together for the good of the country and deal with these problems as a united Legislative Assembly, because it is in all of our interests and the interest of the Cayman Islands that we do what is best for the country in this area. We have a very capable Financial Secretary who is on top of all of these matters and we have to discuss this and seek guidance from him and from the private sector which we all have a very good rapport with as well.

While I take most of what the Third Elected Member for George Town has said, I believe that we have to be optimistic and believe that, as with the many other problems we have faced in the past, we can overcome this and the Cayman Islands can continue to be one of the leading financial and banking centres in the world.

This legislation is important and it goes to show that the Honourable Financial Secretary is on top of dealing with whatever problems may arise from time to time in these areas.

Thank you.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? If not, does the mover wish to reply?

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I have taken on board the comments made by the two Honourable Members who spoke. I would like to thank other Members for their tacit support. I will just take issue with one of the observations made by the Third Elected Member for George Town, but not in a hostile fashion.

When I am called upon to make presentations, in the Cayman Islands and overseas, I am very careful not to use the word 'offshore.' I refer to the Cayman Islands as an international financial centre. This is because the word offshore was initially thought of as a less than complimentary reference by countries such as the United States of America and some of the other major countries. In fact, when I addressed the ministerial meeting of the Caribbean Financial Action Task Force, I pointed out for the benefit of the United States delegation that as far as the Cayman Islands was concerned, the United States was an "offshore centre." From where we are, everything outside of the Cayman Islands is "offshore." That was not only for the benefit of those persons from the United States, but for the other multi-lateral organisations and countries represented.

I also take on board the reference the Third Elected Member for George Town made to the OECD Report. I read the report and I am concerned about its contents. In fact, I visited the United Kingdom last week and I addressed a seminar hosted by the Commonwealth Secretariat and the British Government for senior finance and law officials. I not only pointed out what was happening in places such as the Cayman Islands, I looked at the Caribbean. The presentation was made from the position of developments within the Caribbean Financial Action Task Force, the Cayman Islands being a founding member of that organisation.

As the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning said, we have to assess our position very carefully. We have to look at these events very carefully. Again, I find agreement between the comments shared by the two Members, that is, the Third Elected Member for George Town and the Hon. Minister for Education, in that we cannot allow ourselves to become complacent. In this regard, the Government has commissioned opinions from two major international law firms on the content of this report and the implication for the Cayman Islands. I will be sharing my observation and the views I gleaned while in the United Kingdom with Executive Council.

When things are happening in this world that seem to be reaching out beyond my immediate comprehension, not able to find an answer, there is one source that I normally go to, a sure source. I get on my knees in humility and I go to God. In Psalms 127 it says that unless the LORD guards the city, they that do so labour in vain. We will also see, when we get into the word of God where protection is assured to nations in submission to God. The Cayman Islands is a Christian community, we have a very rich heritage. When we look and see the benefits we are enjoying today, when we look at the resources we have in comparison to other countries that are more endowed, we often wonder what has made us so fortunate.

When we see what has happened, even when hurricane Gilbert approached the Cayman Islands and how the eye spilt around the Cayman Islands and it reformed itself and moved on, . . . these are not things that have moved from my memory. These are not things that are flukes of nature, as people sometimes say. These were as a result of a divine providential hand guiding and protecting us, playing a role in the position we are in.

We have to continue to work. We know that the international community would like to see places like the Cayman Islands become less competitive. We have very good minds in the Cayman Islands. We have people who are very committed. Members of the Legislative Assembly are very committed. We have people who are altruistic. We have a community that is caring. We will not be able to say that we have the answer to the measures being proposed at this time by the OECD, but we can be sure that if we put our minds together we can attract the attention of the international community in terms of listening to our position. It means having to talk to the members of the financial industry to ask them for their undivided commitment in supporting Government in moving forward in these initiatives.

In fact, I called Grand Cayman yesterday and asked my secretary to get in touch with our public relations agency in the United Kingdom to order an additional twenty copies of this OECD Report. The twenty in Grand Cayman at this time are for the Members of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly. One copy is for the Deputy Financial Secretary and the other is for our Chief Justice Designate. We have to make sure that members of the community are informed, the District Commissioner will be provided with a copy, as will members of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman who should have a say.

We realise that information and knowledge are important. It is necessary for us to sit down and collectively do all of these measures. We have to come up with strategies and we have to commit some of our resources to make sure that we are being guided by the right type of legal advice in any action we take in terms of addressing all of these initiatives.

We have come over rough patches in the past. We know that when you are on top everyone has it in for you. But I have faith, and I have absolute belief in the God above. I am also committed to, and have belief in the peoples of the Cayman Islands and their unwavering support. When we stand together and seek the guidance of God, we can never fail.

Thank you.

[Applause]

SECOND READINGS

THE IMMIGRATION (CAYMAN BRAC AND LITTLE CAYMAN IMMIGRATION BOARD) (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1998

Clerk: The Immigration (Cayman Brac and Little Cayman Immigration Board) (Amendment) Bill, 1998.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I beg to move the second reading of a Bill entitled The Immigration (Cayman Brac and Little Cayman Immigration Board) (Amendment) Bill, 1998.

The Speaker: Do you wish to speak to it?

Hon. James M. Ryan: Before dealing with the Bill, and since this is the first time I am on my feet to speak, I would just like to say what a joy, privilege and pleasure it is for me to be back in Cayman Brac, particularly for the meeting of the Legislative Assembly.

I would like to express thanks to you for arranging for the House to meet here in Cayman Brac, and I am pleased to see such a good turn out, both yesterday and today. I understand that a little earlier we had in excess of 110 persons in the gallery. That is very pleasing. Mr. Speaker, I also would like to reiterate what the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning said regarding the Legislative Assembly meeting here in Cayman Brac on an annual basis. I trust that this will be possible.

The Bill before the House today is both historic and timely in that the Immigration (Cayman Brac and Little Cayman Immigration Board) (Amendment) Bill, 1998 will, when passed, establish an Immigration Board for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. It is something that has been looked forward to for a very long time, and for those present, and for those listening by radio, it is indeed an historic occasion. As a Cayman Bracker, I deem it a privilege to be piloting this Bill through the House and I look forward to its passage.

The origin of this Bill is as a result of Private Member's Motion No. 2/97, which called for the establishment of an Immigration Board for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. This Motion was passed in the Legislative Assembly on 20 March, 1997. As I said earlier, it was felt for a long time that there was a need for such a Board to meet in Cayman Brac to deal with work permits for persons employed in Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

The Memorandum of Objects and Reasons states: "This Bill will amend the Immigration Law (1997 Revision) to provide for an Immigration Board in Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. The Board will be called the Cayman Brac and Little Cayman Immigration Board and its main function will be the grant of work permits to persons who are not of Caymanian status and who wish to have gainful occupation in either Cayman Brac or Little Cayman. The Cayman Brac and Little Cayman Immigration Board will consist of a chairman, a deputy chairman and three other members appointed by the Governor in Executive Council."

Provisions of the Immigration Law (1997 Revision) which relate to the administration of the Immigration Board, the grant of work permits by the Immigration Board, and generally to the operation of the functions and powers of the Immigration Board, will also apply to the Cayman Brac and Little Cayman Immigration Board. Accordingly, I commend this amending Bill to this Honourable House.

The Speaker: The motion is open to debate.
The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I am very pleased with this initiative. I think that it adds to the attractiveness of doing business here in Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. I have had experience in planning plumbing and construction matters both in Grand Cayman and in Cayman Brac. I must say that it has been a real pleasure doing business in Cayman Brac.

In my experience, Grand Cayman Planning permission can take up two or three months, and we still go begging for approval. Here we called the Planning Department and somebody was down immediately. If we need tools from the Fire Department, they are down here immediately. Plumbers, inspections and that type of thing, are there within a day. So it makes it attractive as far as business is concerned.

I think the present system is very unfair to Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. In Grand Cayman we probably have 14,000 or 15,000 work permits, and the Immigration Board in Grand Cayman is dealing with up to 800 or 1,000 renewals and new applications. It could even be higher than that. For applications from Cayman Brac and Little Cayman to be subjected to that pressure is very unfair. I think if we are going to continue to make business attractive here in this island, we need to be in a position where we can deal with these types of requests in a very prompt and objective fashion.

When we came in to do business on Cayman Brac we tried to encourage the employment of people here who are Caymanians or Cayman Brackers as much as possible. On occasion we have had to apply for an amendment to a work permit and it takes four to six weeks. In the meantime what do you do as far as business is concerned?

I think this is a step in the right direction. I have every confidence that we can find the personnel here for membership on the Board. I think they will be fair in carrying out the requests that are put before them, ensuring that all sectors of the economy needing foreign employment at least have a chance to get that type of employment. We were just talking about amendments to the Mutual Funds Law and the Banks and Trust Companies Law, this is another area. People do not mind doing business, but they want to be in a position where it is attractive. In other words, if I need to get something done I can get it done immediately. As I said, I think this adds to the attractiveness of the community here for business purposes.

I commend the Members for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman for their interest and incentive, and the Hon. Chief Secretary for piloting this very important piece of legislation through this House. I give it my wholehearted support.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Miss Heather D. Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I rise to give my full support to the Bill for a Law to establish the Cayman Brac and Little Cayman Immigration Board which, I understand, is the brainchild of the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture. Once established, this Board will deal with the grant of work permits. I believe that this will certainly speed up the time it takes to process an application.

I see another advantage in having an Immigration Board here in Cayman Brac in that the members of the Board will be local persons who would perhaps have a better knowledge of the labour demands in the community. It is proposed that there will be a chairman, a deputy chairman and three other members, as well as a secretary to the Board. Hopefully, this will create another job opportunity here in Cayman Brac.

I have always supported, and will continue to support the needs of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. I strongly feel that if the people of my district of Bodden Town were in a similar economic situation, the people of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman would do no less for us.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Thank you.

It gives me great pleasure to rise this morning to give my full support to this Bill seeking to establish an Immigration Board for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. Before proceeding into the merits of the Bill, permit me to please say how delighted I am to be here participating in my first Legislative Assembly meeting in Cayman Brac. I was so very proud of my people yesterday when I saw the numbers that turned out to see the proceedings of this Honourable House. It was heart-warming to see how intently and quietly they listened, many staying for the entire duration of the sitting, and some are here again today. I would like to publicly thank them for their keen interest.

I would also like to express my appreciation to the school children as well as to the teachers and teacher's aides who brought them along for what I believe is a very important learning exercise for them. I also endorse the comments made by other speakers that this should be made an annual event, as this is money well spent.

Now let me turn to the proposed Bill which is a matter very dear to my heart. From the time I campaigned back in 1996, after having consulted with various people from Cayman Brac as well as from Little Cayman, I came to the conclusion that the way forward was for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman to have their own Immigration Board. I can say that the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman endorsed this concept as well.

Having acted upon the mandate the people gave, I promised, along with you, Mr. Speaker, to do all within my power to bring a motion for the establishment of the Immigration Board for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. In so doing, last March I brought the motion to this Honourable House, which was duly passed, seeking to set up the Immigration Board in Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. By way of procedure, for those who may not be so familiar with it, once the motion was passed it was then left for a Bill to be brought, which we now have here on the floor this morning. I would like to thank the Honourable Chief Secretary who is responsible for Immigration for piloting this Bill through the Honourable House today.

It is generally felt that having the Immigration Board in Cayman Brac and Little Cayman would go a long way in providing a one-stop shop, as it were, for our people as well as for potential investors. Once the Board is established, a person with an application before the Board for a work permit would be processed here in Cayman Brac. He would not have to go through the long wait for applications to come back from Grand Cayman, nor would he be facing additional time and cost because of transportation if the Immigration Board had questions where it was deemed necessary for the applicant to appear before the Board. Often it is only necessary to go over for a few hours, but we find ourselves having to go across, spend the night and incur those extra expenses as well.

In addition to that advantage, I believe it is necessary to have the Board here because persons who would eventually make up the composition of the Board would be members of the local community. They would be more familiar, not only with the merits of the application, but with the applicants, seeing that one of the paramount considerations is taking into account the needs of the community. I believe that we live in a world where speed is no longer a luxury, but, indeed, a necessity. If we are to remain on the cutting edge of technology and progress we must look at more concepts like this, so that not only one island, but also all three of the Cayman Islands, can be on that cutting edge as emphasised this morning.

There are the many fast foods, faxes, computer and laser operations, remote controls, and the list goes on and on in today's modern world where there is a desire for speed. If we are going to conduct the business of Government in a way deemed to be successful then this element of speed must also be incorporated.

The establishment of the Cayman Brac and Little Cayman Immigration Board was also one of the recommendations emanating from the Cayman Brac and Little Cayman Steering Committee, and was also endorsed by the former project manager, Mr. Noorani. It is therefore very good and, as my colleague, the Hon. Chief Secretary said, very timely, that this motion should be coming to the floor at this time. I am also delighted that it has reached the implementation stage, which will soon follow.

This Bill is a short amending Bill, but for us here in Cayman Brac and Little Cayman it is a most important Bill. It creates a deeper sense of ownership of Government by the people here in Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, it decentralises Government to an extent and brings Government closer to the people it most affects. It also allows for what my colleague, the First Elected Member for George Town, has been screaming for—transparency and accountability.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Hear, hear!

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: As we move towards Vision 2008, or as the Backbenchers like to say 'perfect vision,' the creation of the Immigration Board for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, in my opinion, has to be a step in the right direction.

It has been mooted that the Immigration Board should have merely been an advisory board to the Immigration Board in Grand Cayman. I did not support that concept then, nor do I support it now. I strongly believe that the people of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman are capable, willing and ready to make up the membership of the proposed Immigration Board. To do less would be creating yet another bureaucracy.

The proposed Board will, as indicated by the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town, consist of a chairman, a deputy chairman and three other members selected by the Governor in Council. Section 4 of the proposed Bill also sets up the appointment of a secretary to the Immigration Board. This is good as it creates yet another job in the Civil Service. This particular Bill will also enable the Immigration Board to deal with the grant, or refusal, of work permits.

When I brought the motion last year it was also envisaged that the Cayman Brac and Little Cayman Immigration Board would deal with trade and business licenses. That is still an anticipated function of the Board. However, since the motion was passed last year, trade and business licenses are no longer dealt with by the Immigration Board on Grand Cayman, but a new Trade and Business Licence Board has been set up. Therefore, the Hon. Chief Secretary will have to see how best the power can be delegated to this Board if at all legally possible so that trade and business licenses can also be dealt with here.

When the motion was initially brought, the Fourth Elected Member for George Town made a very valid point regarding nationality. The Cayman Brac and Little Cayman Immigration Board will not be dealing with the issue of nationality, that is, status and residency. This will still have to be dealt with by the Board in Grand Cayman. But this issue, as far as it relates to Cayman Brac and Little Cayman is an infrequent occurrence. We have a very capable and dedicated person, namely, Mrs. Sybil Jackson, who presently sits on the Immigration Board in Grand Cayman as the representative of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Permit me to also take this opportunity to thank the previous lady who served on the Immigration Board since 1992 until her resignation last year due to ill health. Mr. Speaker, Miss Sharon Knowlton faithfully served on the Immigration Board and greatly contributed to various decisions made by the Board. I am deeply saddened to have learned of her illness. Indeed, the entire Government is extremely grateful and appreciative for her service. We wish her God's greatest blessings and a speedy recovery.

Work permit appeals, when they arise, will now go directly to Executive Council for due consideration. This will expedite the entire Immigration process. I believe that in the years to come we will be extremely grateful and thankful that we had the vision to establish the Cayman Brac and Little Cayman Immigration Board.

In conclusion, I look forward to seeing the Immigration Board in operation as soon as possible, and I would like to thank all Members for their support.

The Speaker: Honourable Members have requested that we adjourn at this hour because they have other commitments. We will suspend for lunch until 2.15 PM. [The Fourth Elected Member for George Town rose]

The Speaker: Does the Fourth Elected Member for George Town have something to say?

Dr. Frank McField: Yes, Mr. Speaker.

I am leaving on the 3.15 PM flight to go back to Grand Cayman because my wife is leaving there on Monday. I would just like to apologise for the fact that I will not be able to attend the reception you planned in our behalf, and I would like to thank the people of Cayman Brac for their warm hospitality.

I would like to thank the fish of Cayman Brac for the nice pull I got last night when I went fishing!

The Speaker: Proceedings are suspended until 2.15 PM.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.30 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.30 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Debate continues on The Immigration (Cayman Brac and Little Cayman Immigration Board) (Amendment) Bill, 1998. Does any other Member wish to speak? The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I am very happy to support this Bill. It is one that follows earlier laws which made local boards in Cayman Brac, specifically the Education Board, which has authority and deals with education in Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. That has functioned very well, thanks to you, Mr. Speaker, as Chairman. We followed that with the Planning Authority Law, or the Development Control Law, which set up the Development Control Board in Cayman Brac. That has also proved to be very important and has given more control in these two islands. We also have the Liquor Licensing Board. That, too, has done a very good job here. Now we have the Cayman Brac and Little Cayman Immigration Board.

I believe that while we are one country with geographical separation it is good that we continue to place in the hands of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman areas of the island and the economy that are important to these islands. The operation and performance of those Boards must be far better when they operate here in relation to Cayman Brac and Little Cayman than it would be if just one single Board operated in Grand Cayman.

It is important to recognise that the three islands make up one country and that we are one people. To ensure the cohesiveness of that and its continuation we must accept that there are areas of the Law that relate to specific islands where Boards such as this are good and can be sustained while keeping the three islands and the people together. Indeed, it has always been important to me. As I said earlier, I take what vacations I get from Government in Cayman Brac and Little Cayman along with my children. I am a believer in ensuring that the islands remain and continue to be known to school children such as we have here today, and I would like to welcome you here and say how good it is to see you all here. One day you, too, will be leaders within Government and the community. It is so important that we ensure that you get proper education and training.

I think I am correct in saying that the only large organisation with a branch here is Cayman National Bank (of which I am a founding directing shareholder). It also has one in Little Cayman. That policy has been carried on and I believe that more organisations, such as the business of the Third Elected Member for West Bay... it is good to see the diversification into these islands by Caymanians. More than that, I believe that incentives such as those given by Cayman National Bank in relation to interest rates should be looked at by other companies so that we can have further and more productive businesses within the three islands.

This Bill is historic in that it has been moved by the lady Minister for Cayman Brac, and is going through at a time with you, Mr. Speaker, our first elected Speaker to be sitting in this Legislative Assembly session in Cayman Brac. I think that combination could not be better for ensuring the success of this Bill and this Board. I fully support this and I commend the two elected Members for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman in continuing to promote Bills such as this.

READING BY THE SPEAKER OF MESSAGES AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: Before I call on another Member to speak, I have apologies for absence from the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works who had to return to Grand Cayman this afternoon, from the Third Elected Member for George Town and the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

I would also like to welcome the students that are here in the gallery. We recognise each of you and hope that seeing your Parliament, the Legislative Assembly in action will be of benefit. You have chosen an opportune time to visit us, we hope that you will stay on. Very shortly we will be going into Committee and then back into the House. You will have an opportunity to see the parliamentary procedure in action. I would like to thank you and your teachers for being present.

Also at this time I would like to recognise our Justices of the Peace who have been with us from the inception. We are very proud of our Justices of the Peace of the Cayman Islands, in particular those in Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. We recognise you all for the good job you are doing and thank you all for being with us this afternoon.

[Applause]

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause)

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, if I may just make one correction, the Hon. Chief Secretary moved the Bill. The lady Minister moved the motion some time ago. I apologise for that, Sir. It shows how important it is to properly prepare and write things down, which I am sure the students will appreciate.

The Speaker: If no other Member wishes to speak, would the mover like to exercise his right of reply?

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I would like to begin by thanking all Hon. Members for their support, both those who spoke and those who have given their silent support.

A couple of points, Mr. Speaker. Mention was made of an Advisory Board and the fact that it really would not have done the same thing as a properly appointed Board. That is very correct. Back in the 1980s, during the time I was District Commissioner, the Governor acting in his sole discretion appointed an advisory board in Cayman Brac of which I was chairman. It was made up of members of the public, some of whom had served as members of the Immigration Board. It was purely advisory, but in many instances the Immigration Board did not accept the advice given. It was subsequently disbanded because it served very little use. That is why it is so important to have the Bill today. Hopefully it will be passed into Law in the very near future, authorising the appointment of a Board.

The other point that was mentioned was the matter of Trade and Business Licenses. This is something that will have to be considered in the future, perhaps as a second stage.

Just for the benefit of the public I have a few work permit statistics for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. I believe they may have been circulated to Members this morning. For the year 1995 there were 147 work permits (one year permits), and in addition to that there were 137 renewals of work permits. By 1996 the number of work permits approved was 154, with 133 renewals. In 1997 the number was 201 one-year permits with 156 renewals. Thus far this year, there have been 57 work permits and 50 renewals, that is only up to the end of the first quarter of this year. I mention that to show that there will be quite a bit of work for the Cayman Brac and Little Cayman Immigration Board to carry out.

Mr. Speaker, I think it is also appropriate that I mention past members of the Immigration Board and the present member serving on the Board in Grand Cayman for persons resident in Cayman Brac. I believe that the person serving presently is the fifth person from this island to serve on the Immigration Board. This has been a very tough assignment—flying over to Grand Cayman attending meetings of the Board and often coming back late at night or the next day—but a duty carried out over the years very ably by Cayman Brackers. We thank those past and present members.

Finally, I would ask if you would permit a round of applause from the gallery, Mr. Speaker, on the presumption that the Bill will pass its second reading after the vote is taken. I think in recognition of accomplishing a very important matter in Cayman Brac it would be appropriate if the gallery would be allowed to have a round of applause after the vote is taken on it.

With that, Mr. Speaker, I commend the Bill to this House.

The Speaker: Hon. First Official Member, I not only give my permission, but I will join you!

The question is that a Bill entitled The Immigration (Cayman Brac and Little Cayman Immigration Board) (Amendment) Bill, 1998, be given a second reading. I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

Proceeding with Other Business, Private Members' Motions. Private Member's Motion No. 15/98 Litter Control. The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

OTHER BUSINESS

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 15/98

LITTER CONTROL

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Miss Heather D. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I, too, would like to take this opportunity to say how pleased and honoured I am to be here on my first trip to Cayman Brac with the Legislative Assembly. I would also like to thank the people of Cayman Brac for their hospitality, and for making us feel so welcome. I look forward to this continuing annually. I think it is obvious, from the large turnout, that our efforts to hold a meeting of the Legislative Assembly in Cayman Brac are deeply appreciated. I thank the teachers and teacher's aides for allowing the children to come and listen to the debates over the past two days. I know it is an experience they will long remember.

I rise in support of Private Member's Motion No. 15/98, Litter Control, brought by the Third Elected Member for West Bay. As an advocate of litter control, I agree that stronger steps must be taken to not only review but to fully enforce the Litter Law. I applaud the efforts being put forward by the Ministry and the Department of the Environment as well as the many volunteers, who consistently see the need to clean up our physical and marine environment and go the extra mile to clean up areas infected with litter.

I clearly recall the coming together of the people of the Cayman Islands as they embarked on an island-wide clean up in anticipation of the two previous visits of Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II. As a working member of that beautification committee, and as a concerned citizen, I was extremely pleased with the efforts made to ensure that the island was, indeed, fit for a queen. I was also pleased with the enthusiasm and pride displayed while ensuring that the island was beautified. At that time spirits were high with the hopes that these community efforts would continue. Unfortunately, due to the rapid development and perhaps other reasons, the enthusiasm appears to have dwindled.

Fortunately there are still a number of persons who volunteer to clean up various areas throughout the islands. This past Earth Day, 25 April, 1998, was a good example of such voluntary work. People came from all walks of life to clean up the physical and marine environment. Once again, I willingly participated in this Earth Day clean up in my district of Bodden Town. I was able to accomplish much with the assistance of the SavNew Codac beautification group and residents of the community. Our day started at the entrance of the Pedro St. James Castle and ended at the Abanks Dive Lodge, more commonly known as 'The Firm.' We particularly targeted these two areas as our prime project in light of the fact that they are the two main tourist attractions in this general area. Seeing how important tourism has been, and will continue to be to these islands, we put every effort forward to ensure that the area was litter free.

The group collected 67 bags of litter, consisting mainly of beer bottles, fast food wrappers, aluminium cans, plastic bags and many other items. It became quite clear that the existing Litter Law needed to be more seriously enforced. Subsequent to the Earth Day clean up campaign I was quite proud to see the Bodden Town Football Association take an active part in a clean up campaign which started from Midland Acres on to the rest of Bodden Town a few Saturdays ago. Once again, a tremendous amount of garbage was collected from the roadside.

It truly amazes me how many individuals throw garbage from their vehicles without thought of the negative impact to residents, as well as to tourism. Recently an article appeared in the Caymanian Compass regarding Zero Litter. I became optimistic and immediately telephoned the Department of Environment to say how much I supported this effort, and that I was willing to work with them to ensure that the Zero Litter campaign was indeed a success. It is my view that this can be accomplished, and every effort should be made to educate the public.

In addition to educating, it is also necessary for the Police Department and Marine Officers to be constantly on the lookout for persons who break the Litter Law taking steps to ensure that the Law is enforced.

An example of where litter is a constant eyesore is our public parks, public beaches, playfields and along the roadside. Perhaps I can suggest that daily garbage collection would alleviate most, if not all, of this litter problem. It is also my view that more "No Litter" signs, penalty signs and garbage bins be displayed throughout the Islands. That would also alleviate the problem. Constant reminders may have a greater impact as well.

Another area I would like to touch on is construction sites. In my opinion, it is a disgrace to see the large amount of construction debris all around the work area. For example, cement bags, large pieces of plastic and building foam. Under the Litter Law it is an offence to litter property or premises and I would urge that this section of the Litter Law be vigorously enforced.

I firmly believe that education is the key to solving this most urgent matter. From the time I was knee high, my father instilled in me the importance of maintaining a clean and safe environment. This has remained with me throughout my life. Even today it is common to see my father at any hour of the day or night stopping to collect garbage along the roadside. It is for the love of his country that he voluntarily does this. I was taught that charity begins at home, and perhaps if each family took the time to clean their particular area, not only would we have sections of the island clean, but the entire island would be litter free.

In order to further augment this, perhaps the Department of Environment could establish community-based task forces to further assure that their goal of Zero Litter is achieved.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: I rise to give my full support to Private Member's Motion No. 15/98 seeking to address the important issue of litter control.

I concur that it is essential to create, and maintain, a pristine marine environment as well as a clean physical environment. This is imperative for the well being of the citizens of our Cayman Islands as well as its wider cross section. Caymanians have a heritage where cleanliness has always been considered next to godliness. This trait is still most evident in our Caymanian yards, as well as in other yards throughout the islands.

It is no secret that the Cayman Islands is an ever increasingly popular tourist destination. Today's tourists are much more conscience of the environment and to an extent no longer wish to come to experience our sea, sand and sun, but expect to see clean areas as they go throughout the islands. One only has to view the demographics of tourism today and easily conclude that much of the world is competing for the tourist dollar as a means of sustaining economic development. Consequently, the tourist market is becoming more and more complex and competitive. Luckily we have been on the cutting edge and millions of dollars have been spent on advertising worldwide, as well as on creating various tourist attractions in the Cayman Islands. However, these brilliant efforts will only be in vain if we become complacent and allow litter to control us, rather than us controlling the litter.

Usually the most conspicuous evidence that litter controls have to be tightened and more vigorously enforced can be seen by the large amount of litter and/or garbage strewn along our roadsides. I would also venture to say that most of this does not result from a conscious attempt to litter our islands, but because persons who go up and down our streets will throw debris from the window. We observe this on all three islands. I do not only mean adults, but sometimes our children. I agree with the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town when she says that the key is education.

Several thousand cars drive up and down, especially on roads in George Town. It does not take a mathematician or scientist to be aware that even if a small percentage of those persons throw a beer can or a bottle along the roadside, that eventually our roadsides will look like the area along the new Harquail Bypass. The Minister did clarify that that is not a recent occurrence, but because the road was put through that section of the dump.

I said that to say this: Litter control is everybody's business and not just the Government's. Every little bit helps. We can all assist by first being conscious that it is a problem, and by being prepared to recognise this problem. We then will have taken a major step towards achieving and maintaining a clean physical and marine environment.

We can commit ourselves to do whatever is necessary to ensure that the areas over which we have control are properly maintained, and that when we are moving in and around our environment that we actively contribute to a clean, safe, non-polluted environment. I am a firm believer that performance warrants a commitment. If there were sufficient commitment as we move towards Vision 2008, we will continue to see a clean, safe Caymanian environment.

The review, revision and strengthening of the Litter Law, as proposed by this motion, are moves in the right direction. This move will allow us to take inventory of our existing legislation in order to ascertain whether or not it is antiquated and in need of revision. When this exercise is carried out particular attention must be paid to the enforcement provisions therein in order to ensure that the culprits who are found littering our beautiful island will be adequately dealt with by the Law. Unless the sanctions are adequate they will fail the purpose of being a necessary deterrent. Those who contravene the Law will find it a frivolous affair if the sanctions do not meet their actions.

Litter, under the Litter Law, is defined as "anything including dust, dirt, oddments, leavings, waste paper, cigarette ends, bottles (whether empty or not), derelict vehicles and any dead animals." I strongly believe the zero tolerance of litter.

Sections 3 and 4 of the existing Litter Law (Revised) create an offence for littering in public places or premises. If convicted, a person is liable to a fine not exceeding $500 or imprisonment of a term not exceeding six months. I believe that it is worth reconsidering the purpose of the existing Litter Law in that it was to prevent the defacement by littering of public places and any risk of injury to persons or animals.

In section 13 the Law sets up other offences, but I believe this purpose is still very relevant today. It is therefore even more important to ensure that the ancillary provisions, in particular those dealing with sanctions, are always current. I will now move to another dimension relating to litter control, and specifically as it relates to Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Both of these Islands are presently in dire need of garbage trucks. Both vehicles are extremely old and are constantly breaking down. When this happens—as it has been most frequently lately—the Environmental Officer and his dedicated staff are at a huge disadvantage. There are no back-up garbage trucks on either Island and they have to wait until a truck from the Public Works Department is available, and a front-end loader, to collect the garbage. This causes a serious delay in the pickup of garbage along the roadside and is also a health hazard. It is certainly a sore sight, not only for us Brackers, but also for the tourists who visit our islands.

The Department of Environment on the Brac, under the stewardship of Mr. Blades has been doing an excellent job in controlling litter. I appreciate that there are financial and budgetary constraints, but we must provide them with proper equipment. Otherwise, no matter how many laws and provisions we put in place, we will not be able to control the litter. This leads me to another aspect of litter control on Cayman Brac in particular.

For years we have been using a property on the south side as a landfill site. It has been one of the biggest sore sights on this island. As you are aware, Mr. Speaker, the site is located in a prime beach tourist area, and there have been constant complaints about the nuisance this dump causes. Not only are the residents complaining, but also those who come for commercial ventures. All of the garbage—including residential, commercial and medical waste—is presently being dumped on this site. It is my understanding that most of the time the site is uncovered. This is not only unsightly but the number of flies that swarm over this place is horrendous, not to mention unhealthy to nearby residents and persons courageous enough to use the only public beach on the island.

To further compound the garbage problem, the litter is burned because there is no proper machinery in place to dispose of this garbage. I receive constant complaints about this type of burning. Having taken a number of biology classes I can well appreciate the amount of poisonous gas emanating from there, especially carbon monoxide.

As a modern developing country we must take a serious look at relocating this dump and move it to a more suitable location, either to Crown property or to acquired property, if we are to properly control litter on Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. There is much more I could say on this topic, but I will reserve my comments for another forum.

Finally, I confirm my full support for this motion and I thank the Honourable mover and seconder for the vision in bringing the motion at this time and I look forward to its early implementation. Thank you.

The Speaker: Maybe this would be a convenient time to take the afternoon break. We will suspend for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.02 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Debate continues on Private Member's Motion No. 15/98. The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Before I begin my contribution to this motion I would like to say how happy I am to be here. I shouldn't say for a second that this is my first trip here, but it is my first trip here with the Legislative Assembly being in session. So, I, too, am happy to have been able to experience this.

Most heartening to me when we arrived on Wednesday night was when I got into the luggage area and a young man whom I had known for many years said to me "Welcome home." It reminded me of many, many years ago when I used to attend the Creek Primary School. There was a lady we used to call Miss Gerald. I think the Clerk knows well who that lady was. . .

[tape went dead here]

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Yes, Mr. Speaker, I guess sometimes we have to pause for a cause!

As I was saying, I remember going to the Creek Primary School and there was this lady who, whenever my mother used to leave the island on occasion for medical reasons or whatever else, would always have lunch for us. Yesterday morning I took the walk from the Creek Primary School to her house, and it only took three or four minutes, but in those days it seemed like it took an hour to get there. It is just amazing how time changes the entire world! When I look at the Brac today, remembering it then, the changes are not that great, but some of the old faces are not here with us any more. There are some new faces, but the real truth is that it is still the old Brac. Indeed, I am happy to be here once again. I intend to make it a point of duty to get here more often.

We were just chatting around the lunch table today and one of the Clerks said it was funny that we are going to be discussing this motion about litter. But I am very heartened to see that it is obvious as I travel around the Brac that the citizens are concerned and conscious of litter. While there may be inherent problems with the process, it is obvious that the people are very caring in that regard because we don't see that much of it on the roads. I certainly would like to encourage the people of Cayman Brac to retain that consciousness and to spread it around the younger ones.

The other thing I just wish to remind the people of Cayman Brac about is that I am sometimes called a 'No-whereian.' I have lived in the district of Bodden Town for nigh on to 25 years. I have been representing the district of George Town for six years. But Cayman Brac can always count on me, whoever their other two representatives are—they will have three representatives. They can remember that.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.22 PM

[Applause]

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: We didn't ask your permission for that, Mr. Speaker. But thanks very much!

Before I start going through the various areas let me just say, as we discussed during the break, that the mover and I will be seeking to make a small amendment to the motion in order to accommodate the various areas that have been discussed by other speakers. That is to say in the very first part of the motion where it reads: "WHEREAS maintaining a clean marine and physical environment is of paramount importance." The fact that both the marine and physical environments have been mentioned in the motion, the Resolve section should read "BE IT THEREFORE RESOLVED that steps be now taken to review, revise and strengthen the Litter Laws...." That would be common 'l', with an 's' added to the word Law, simply because there are other laws which directly relate to various important areas which we believe need to be addressed but are not all-encompassed in the one Litter Law. There are some areas in the Marine Conservation Law, and I think a few others, which will come up.

The lady Minister alluded to other areas and a couple of exercises which I think are important, but as long as we are going to be dealing with it, once the Government is going to accept the motion, I think we need to widen the scope if we are going to accomplish the intention of the motion. I am just explaining that so that as I proceed with my debate I will not be seen to be straying.

Although the definition of litter has been given on more than one occasion during this debate, I think it is important for us to grasp the width of the definition so that we will understand exactly what we are up against. As the Law says, litter means anything whatsoever including "dust, dirt, oddments, leavings, waste paper, cigarette ends, bottles (whether empty or not), derelict vehicles and any dead animal or carrion." But I think the most important wording here (and I hope that my interpretation is correct as I look across at the legal mind) is that litter means anything whatsoever although they have included several specific items.

If we look at the Litter Law (and I have not heard much talk about this yet) the very first thing dealt with is derelict vehicles. Others have mentioned that one of the important prerequisites to making positive inroads into strengthening these Laws is to deal with the enforcement of the Law even as is. Prior to any strengthening of the Law itself there has to be a determined will for enforcement to actually take place. I wish to specifically refer to derelict vehicles. during the past two years I have noticed (and I dare not say in Cayman Brac and Little Cayman because I have not seen much of that in my travels, if any) derelict cars resting in open lots in many developed areas in Grand Cayman, including subdivisions where people have their biggest assets—their homes.

I need to look someone in the eye so they will know that I am telling the truth. So if the Minister for Education would look, I need to let him—not him, but the world—know. I really mean this. I timed it. For two years and three months, two vehicles remained in one spot on an open lot with a house on either side of that open lot. Two derelict vehicles between decent homes. I know, because I was part and parcel of the process. The people living next to this open lot reported the matter on several occasions. I, too, reported the matter. It took two years and three months before the vehicles were finally removed.

The point is not to castigate or question those who are dealing with such matters. I just raised the point to make sure that we understand that enforcement is a very important part of the process. For those who do not have access to the law itself or do not know what the law says might think that we do not have laws controlling such situations when, in fact, the laws are there and just need to be enforced. That is just one of the points I wish to make. I use the words derelict vehicles because I noticed that was one of the first things. Of course, the same thing applies to many areas.

To be specific, I know that there is a problem in the process in that if ownership cannot be identified the people in authority, because of a charge that is supposed to be levied for the removal of these vehicles, have a problem. They can remove the vehicle but they do not know who to charge the cost to. I don't have the answer to that, but I think we need to recognise that even if the due process cannot be fulfilled as policy indicates, then still, those required to do these jobs simply (as the old people used to say) close their eyes and do it. It is better to have it done like that than to leave the vehicles where they are.

This also applies to garbage. Everybody mentions garbage, and everybody means what he or she says. Once it is not handled properly and neatly placed it leaves a bad taste, and when you talk about it, you can see it. I think the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town does very well at that—when she speaks about them not handling it right, you can see what she is saying about the garbage, and she is quite right. When we talk about a motion of this nature some people might say, 'Why don't they deal with something that is important?' Mr. Speaker, issues such as this don't seem to be important. Because we see problems, and think things are not happening the right way we bring motions of this nature to the forefront so that all together we can try to make an impact and improve the situation, and get confirmation of that improvement.

The First Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman mentioned some specific areas on the Brac, and she also mentioned cost constraints. We know of the everyday battle for all of the needs in the country. I recall an occasion before, when the Hon. Third Official Member, the Financial Secretary, mentioned that it is time that this country—meaning collectively these three islands—look at the specific cost of services provided by the Government. And before I deal with any other issue here, let me address that.

I believe that because of all of the problems we face there are not enough garbage trucks, there are not enough what we call 'skips,' the dumps are overused and aged and there is nowhere else to go at present. If I wanted to really make it sound like a horrible case, I could; but that is not the point. I am just using those examples to show that we do have a problem. If we didn't have problems we could try to deny them, but we can't. To rectify those problems a cost is going to be attached.

In my opinion, even when we genuinely make every attempt possible to identify all of the problems existing in certain areas, and even go as far as to identify solutions to the problems, the very last thing thought about is the cost of those solutions. That is where we are getting into trouble. The majority of us as Legislators (and I make no exception for myself, I am speaking right across the board and not pointing a finger at anyone) have been considering for a very long time that we have these problems. Our constituents come to us and point out specific problems. We agree with what they are saying. So our job is to make sure that these problems are corrected. Our job goes further than that.

I am not the policy maker, and when I am ready I will point at the policy makers and take issue with them as I please, once I feel justified. But each and every one of us as Legislators, because our responsibility is to vote funds to be spent in any of those areas, we must also recognise our responsibility to make sure that the costings are in place when we deal with trying to find the solution. I go about it in a roundabout fashion, but that has to apply to everything we do, and this is no exception.

The Third Official Member mentions, from time to time, that in previous attempts it has been determined that what Government charges for the services (when it comes to garbage and other areas) is no where near enough for what it costs the Government to provide the service. Politically, representatives might wish to immediately say, 'Listen, I am not going back to the people and tell them anything about any increase in garbage fees because they won't vote for me.' That's true too. But the longer we try to hide the entire picture the more serious the problem becomes. If we look at one area—and we are talking about litter now—and we talk about not being able to purchase the correct number of vehicles, and not being able to identify and purchase alternate properties for dumps, . . . it is because we don't have the funds to do it. If we identified problems and solutions, and we had the funds, everything would be fine. The Minister for Education and I would never argue because we would have enough classrooms, and enough teachers. Everybody would be happy. I have my job to do and so does he, so we are going to get at it until we get it done. The point that I wish to make is that we need to understand and accept that if we want to make positive inroads into the problems we are facing today, we need to be open and (as my lady friend referred to a couple of times in this sitting so far) transparent. We need to let everyone know what the problems are, what the solutions are, and what it is going to cost.

Money does not drop out of the sky. That is not to say that I am making a direct suggestion about increased cost, but the responsibility goes a little bit further. I do not have all the facts and figures in front of me, but I hold the view that because of the way we do business the country does not get proper value for money. It is my belief that costs incurred in all areas, including what we are talking about now, could be decreased and we would get more for the money we spend. So we need to be looking at a lot of areas. Having said that, let's get back to litter. But before I get back to litter, let me say this: The reason I took a few minutes to speak about that is because the Minister and his colleagues, who try to create policies to satisfy Members bringing motions that action is being taken, must understand that the Backbench is not the Backbench they may have been used to. We, on the Backbench, fully understand and appreciate what it takes for the country to move forward and we are here to make sure that we do our part to make it happen. But the Government needs to understand that we cannot create the policies and do everything else. If the Government is prepared to utilise what it has in us, we are prepared to give back. Let's see if we can get it done.

I haven't seen, since I have been here, a concerted effort. It doesn't mean that we are not going to argue because everyone knows that two days in the House cannot pass without the Leader of Government Business and the First Elected Member for George Town having some little cross up. It is expected. But it does not mean that we cannot move forward. I really mean this. And I am taking the time in this debate to say it because I know Government is of the opinion that on many occasions the Backbenchers bring a lot of motions and talk for four hours in their debates and hold up all the business of the country. But the truth is that if we could find a way for us to channel our energies in the same direction, we will get there. I wish for the Government and everyone else to know that I am responsible enough to be a part of that process and deal with it positively. I can do that, and I will do that, but I, as well as the rest of the Backbench, have to be given the opportunity to participate in that process. I will say no more on that. Let's see how it works in the future.

Back to litter now. The next topic I have is going to take quite some time, so I would appreciate if you would—

The Speaker: Yes. I think we have reached the hour of 4.30. I will entertain a motion for the adjournment of this Honourable House. But I want to make a statement after you move the adjournment.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until Finance Committee concludes its proceedings which begin on Monday.

The Speaker: The question is that this House do now adjourn until the conclusion of the proceedings in Finance Committee. But prior to putting the question, I would like to say how happy I am to have had the privilege of sitting in this Chair with the Legislative Assembly convening here at the Aston Rutty Civic Centre in Cayman Brac. I want to thank the Members of the Government, Members of Finance Committee and, in particular all Members of the Legislative Assembly who agreed for us to come here.

I feel that it has been a genuine investment in the people of Cayman Brac and the youth of Cayman Brac. I cannot concur for one moment that it was a waste of expense, added expense on Government. I feel the money has been well spent. I would like to say from the Chair that I endorse what Members have said, that this should be done on an annual basis. I would be more than happy to go along. I feel that whatever we can do to unite the three islands we have come to be, the better off it will be for each and every one of us who has the privilege of living in the Cayman Islands.

So, again, I would like to thank all Members who have made this possible. It could not have been done by any one of us alone. Decisions in this House, as we have seen, are taken and the majority rules. I thank you for the majority, which we have had.

I would like to acknowledge my deep appreciation for all who have taken the time to attend here. I am very grateful, as I have said throughout this occasion, for the students who have attended. I am very grateful to the Minister of Education, the Department of Education, the teachers, and all who made it possible for the students to alternate and be present as much as they have. I think it is an example we could set for the schools in Grand Cayman for certainly an education in political science, Parliamentary procedure, can only benefit each and every one of us. The younger we begin to get acquainted with it, the better it is for every individual. I want to thank the students again and congratulate them on their excellent behaviour. They all behaved as adults and that is much to be appreciated.

There are so many that I need to thank, and I want to say before I start naming individuals that in case I miss some (and I am sure I will) I want to thank everyone involved. I will end with that same statement.

I want to say how grateful I am to the Clerk and her entire staff. I realise that this has put a burden on the entire Legislative Department in having to maintain the Legislative Assembly in Grand Cayman and an important part of the Legislative Assembly Department to come to Cayman Brac to carry on. They have done it so excellently, that I want to thank each and every one of them, as well as those who remained in Grand Cayman, but in particular, Mrs. Myrie and her staff here with us in Cayman Brac. I congratulate each of them.

[Applause]

The Speaker: I would also like to express deep appreciation to the District Commissioner, Mrs. Jenny Mander-son, who allowed us to draw on the resources of the various Government departments in Cayman Brac. She supplied every need that we seemed to come up with, some at very short notice.

I would like to thank Mr. Daryl Grant, and his assistant, Mr. Burn Smith, for the kind assistance in preparing the tables, and it goes on and on.

I would particularly like to mention Mr. Eddy Foster, Mr. Irvine Tibbetts, and Mr. Rory Scott who have been with us from the very inception. Mr. Eddy has been very instrumental in providing the microphones. Some have given us a little trouble, but these are some that we had back in the 1980s when we were here. So he has done an excellent job in reviving the equipment which has been dormant for quite some time. Maybe if we had come more frequently it would have been in better working condition.

[Applause]

The Speaker: So congratulations to you Eddy and your entire team. We thank you for how willingly you performed every task to excellency. You solved every problem that we seemed to come up with. Any obstacle that came up, seemed to have been very minor as far as Eddy was concerned. He always said, "I can solve it," and he did!

I would also like to mention Miss Wanda Tatum who has been exceedingly helpful in every respect. If we mentioned something, it was done.

I am sure that none of us will forget the good food that we had. So, we have to thank Mrs. Odett Nixon for the very able way in which she served us during our breaks. The lady is very busy, but she took time out of her busy schedule, or somehow rearranged it, to be here to facilitate us at short notice. Thank you, very much, Odett.

We would like to thank the Brac Reef Hotel, the Caribbean Club. The Brac Reef Hotel supplied the snacks we had. Accommodation and meals were by the Brac Caribbean. Also meals were served at the La Esperanza. The list could go on and on. I am sure that some Members dined at G&M Diner and the many other places throughout the island. We all enjoyed good food.

There are many others, too numerous to mention, so just let me apologise for those that I missed and say thanks to all. Our transportation was divided up between Miss Elo Estaban and Miss Singer. They served us well and we are very grateful for that.

May I end by thanking Members for their tolerance and care for the two days you have been here. I have enjoyed it immensely. I look forward to seeing us here in Cayman Brac again around this time next year.

At this time I will put the question that this House do now adjourn until the completion of Finance Committee, and resume at the Legislative Assembly Building in Grand Cayman. I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AT 4.40 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL CONCLUSION OF THE PROCEEDINGS OF THE STANDING FINANCE COMMITTEE [TO COMMENCE MONDAY, 8TH JUNE 1998].

The Speaker: Prayers by the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

PRAYERS

Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived: We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth, that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly, that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy great name's sake.

Let us say the Lord's Prayer together: Our Father, who art in heaven, hallowed be Thy name. Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us. Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace, now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed.

OF THE CAYMAN ISLANDS

VISION 2008—WORKING TOGETHER TO SHARE OUR FUTURE OUTCOME OF FIRST PLANNING SESSION
3 TO 5 JUNE 1998

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I beg to lay on the Table of this Honourable House the Visioning Statement developed by the Vision 2008 Planning Team, and the results of the public poll conducted by Penn, Schoen & Berland Associates, Inc., and the summary thereof.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Do you wish to speak to it, Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: As you know, the Vision 2008 Project was initiated by His Excellency the Governor, and announced in the Throne Speech on the 20th February, 1998. The Vision 2008 Office was opened at 310 Paddington Place on the 1st of March, 1998, with a full-time staff of one. This project came under the responsibility of my Ministry with the Permanent Secretary of the Ministry as Executive Director. The process used in Vision 2008 is based on the strategic planning process and discipline which have been used to develop plans for Education, Health and Drug Abuse Prevention here in the Cayman Islands. In using this process we chose a non-political approach which would involve the full public participation in the development of strategies and objectives leading to the establishment of national goals and priorities for these islands over the next ten years. The Cayman Islands is not an aid-receiving territory, and thus not mandated to create a national plan. Instead, this project is the result of the progressive thinking of His Excellency the Governor, Mr. John Owen. This is his project, and he has taken an active role in it.

In its initial phase, the project attempted to involve the whole community in identifying key issues relating to quality of life, economic growth and the social and cultural values of the people of the Cayman Islands. Phase one, the awareness and visioning phase, has just been completed. Its inception was the 1st of March of this year and it was completed on the 31st of May. It included: a national poll which involved 1000 completed telephone interviews, spanning all three islands. The participants were randomly selected by computer from a list provided by Cable & Wireless of all numbers on all three islands including unlisted numbers; future search groups (individuals from various categories who met together and shared their perspectives on key issues); district meetings; voice mail; e-mail; letters from interested individuals; a website; and in-depth interviews with individuals outstanding in their fields.

All public input was directed by an impartial public opinion firm, Penn, Schoen & Berland (out of New York) to assure confidentiality and anonymity in the process. This firm undertakes regular polling exercises for the White House in Washington, D.C. and multiple Fortune 500 companies internationally. It is well internationally recognised. The result of this information gathering is the report that I just tabled today. This is a statistical analysis of the issues raised by the people of the Cayman Islands and is 95% accurate.

A thirty member planning team was chosen by a process of profiling to represent a microcosm of this community. The material gleaned from the public input was delivered to the planning team on the 28th of May, at which time they assumed the duties of putting the ideas and visions of the people of the Cayman Islands into the form of a statement of strategic intent (visioning statement), creating broad strategies to deal with the issues raised.

With the assumption of duties by the planning team, phase two of the Vision 2008 initiative, began. In September a number of round table groups will be convened. These groups will identify the specific actions necessary to implement these strategies. The Vision office is urging members of the public who wish to be involved in discussing one or more specific strategies to contact the office and sign up to participate in these groups. The roundtables will be made up of individuals who will be invited because they have specific expertise, or who have an interest in a particular strategy.

I will now read the visioning statement which is the outcome of the first planning session with the thirty member planning team. This represents our hopes and aspirations for the Cayman Islands over the next ten years. As promised, and in order that all aspects of this project stay open to the public, I have tabled the Visioning Statement and results of the national poll.

(See Appendix VII: "Outcome of First Planning Session")

Mr. Speaker, I am therefore very happy to lay these documents on the Table and make them public. I thank everyone involved, Members of this Legislative Assembly, the teams, the Vision staff, the public who took part, especially those who took part in the 1,000 phone calls and the different interviews that went on. I ask for the support of this entire country in seeing this moved forward to its completion, to provide the vision for the next ten years, Vision 2008.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I just wish to ask if you will allow short questions.

The Speaker: Under normal procedures, no.

Item number 4 on today's Order Paper, Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. Question 62 stands in the name of the First Elected Member for West Bay.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION 62

No. 62: Mr. W. McKeeva Bush asked the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning: How many children are presently in the Alternative Education Programme, and how are they referred there?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The number of students enrolled at the Alternative Education Centre follows:

- Tutorial Unit: 14 students
- Suspension Unit: 10 students
- Transition Unit: 8 students

Alternative Education Tutorial Centre Referral Procedure: Any teacher who believes that he/she has a student who is exhibiting emotional and/or behavioural disorders should refer the student to the Principal through the established line management system adopted within his/her school (e.g., Head of Department, Head of Year, Senior Teachers, Deputy Principals, et cetera).

The Principal, in consultation with his/her staff, will then determine the necessary help and support the school is able to offer the teacher in dealing with the student within the classroom situation (e.g., special needs, teachers, counsellors, school based support unit staff, educational psychologist, et cetera).

If, in the opinion of the school, the student appears to need help the school is incapable of providing, the Principal should refer the student to the Advisor for Special Education. If, in the opinion of the Advisor for Special Education, the student requires further help from outside agencies in order to help the child fit within the school system, she may refer the student to suitable outside agencies (Cayman Counselling Centre, Clinical Psychologist, medical agencies, or for consideration to enter the Alternative Education Programme).

The Principal of the Alternative Education Centre will convene a case conference, and the child's placement will be considered by a multidisciplinary team comprised of an education psychologist, the Advisor for Special Education, the Principal and appropriate staff from the referring school, medical personnel and Social Workers, if appropriate, and the child's parents. The conference will determine whether the referred student is an appropriate candidate for the Alternative Education Programme.

The Principal through the Advisor will forward the decision of the case conference in the event of a recommendation for placement on the Alternative Education Programme, for Special Education to the Chief Education Officer for his approval.

If the recommendation of the case conference meets with the approval of the Chief Education Officer, he will inform the Principal of the Alternative Education Centre and notification of an admission date will be given in writing to all members of the case conference. An individual contract will be made with the student, his/her parents and others involved parties and, subject to the signing of this contract, the student will be admitted into the Programme.

Alternative Education—Suspension Unit Referral Procedure: Students may be referred to the Suspension Unit in one of three ways namely:-

- 1) students may be suspended by the High School Principals in accordance with the Education Law 1983, section 23, subsection (5), for a period not exceeding seven days;
- 2) students may be referred to the Suspension Unit by the Chief Education Officer for a period of thirty days in accordance with the Education Law 1983, section 23, subsection (6);
- 3) the Principal of the Alternative Education Centre may be directed by the Chief Education Officer to admit students following a decision by the Education Council.

Alternative Education—Transition Unit Referral Procedure: The Principal of John Gray High School and her staff will identify possible candidates for the Transition Unit by May for each year. They will then initiate the referral procedure outlined in the referral procedure for the Tutorial Centre.

Following the meetings outlined in the referral procedure the Chief Education Officer will inform the parents of students to be admitted to the Transition Unit. The reasons for referral to the Transition Unit will be predominantly poor attitude toward staff and students at school; poor behaviour within the school; failure to benefit or participate in the programme offered by the High School; disruption of classes and courses within the school; a combination of more than one of the above.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say what the timeframe is between the reporting of the student and that student's actual placement in the Alternative Education Centre?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Would the Member please let me know which unit of the Alternative Education Centre?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Either unit, Mr. Speaker, either the suspension unit or the transition unit.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I understand that the tutorial unit placement takes between three days to two weeks, and really depends upon the time necessary to pull the information on the student together, and to get the decision making process of the unit itself. The suspension unit is one that is basically done daily. It can be done within a day. The transition unit is normally done in May of the year for placement in September of the year. So it is done immediately before the end of the last term for placement at the beginning of the new term.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say what happens the student to be placed the tutorial unit in the interim?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Depending upon the severity of the problem, the student can either remain at the school and go there for periods, or the student can be housed there if it is a severe case.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: I noticed that on page 2, reference is made in the first two paragraphs, "if in the opinion of the school," and "if in the opinion of the advisor." Can the Honourable Minister say at what stage an assessment is made to determine as accurately as possible what the problem is?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Normally at this stage there have been assessments made. So there is normally a reasonable amount of information on the student at that time. So the first line, if I may just read that again, says: "If, in the opinion of the school, the student appears to need help which the school is incapable of providing, the Principal should refer the student to the Advisor for Special Education.” Then, if the Advisor for Special Education feels that the student requires further help, she may refer the student to suitable outside agencies. As I said, sometimes they have already been to these, such as, Cayman Counselling Centre, Clinical Psychologist, medical agencies, or for consideration to enter the Alternative Education Programme. Then the process will start for the case conference if the decision is for the alternative education programme.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 23(7) & (8)

The Speaker: Before I take another supplementary, I will entertain a motion for the suspension of Standing Order 23 (7) & (8) in order for questions to be taken after 11 o'clock.

The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: I so move the suspension of the relevant standing order.

The Speaker: The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: I second the motion.

The Speaker: The question is that Standing Order 23 (7) and (8) be suspended to enable Question Time to continue. I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 23(7)&(8) SUSPENDED TO ENABLE QUESTIONS TO CONTINUE BEYOND 11.00 AM.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Can the Honourable Minister say how long a child is out of high school in any of the suspensions?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: In practice most suspensions run for three to five days. There can be a suspension of up to seven days by the Principal, and the Chief Education Officer can suspend for thirty days.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Can the Honourable Minister say if any child has been in the programme for any longer than the longest suspension he mentioned?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Last year there were three students, I think, who were awaiting the outcome of a court decision and they were in there for a longer period.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Can the Honourable Minister tell us what happens to the students after they leave that programme?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: They normally go back to school, but they could be put into the tutorial unit, depending upon the severity of the problem.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Can the Honourable Minister tell the House who actually makes decides that a child should attend the Alternative Education Programme after the case conference has been done?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The case conference unit reports to the Chief Education Officer and he acts on the basis of that report. It is a very comprehensive process I should add, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: I wonder if the Hon. Minister would then explain why on the alternative education suspension unit referral procedure number 3 says, “the Principal of the Alternative Education Centre may be directed by the Chief Education Officer to admit students following a decision by the Education Council.”

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: This, I think, is a power that does reside within the Education Council. By and large, as far as I can remember off the cuff (don't hold me to this) the Chief Education Officer deals with it. It is not the power that we exercise if we do have the residual power. I think that is why it was put in. I think he could report to the Education Council who could then say.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Can the Honourable Minister say how many go on to graduation after this process?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I don't have that information but the intent of the programme is to put them back into school and have them graduate if possible. I guess some do and some don't. I do not have the statistics.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: But the Minister can say that students in the Alternative Education Programme go on to graduation?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Most out of the programme come out of the George Hicks School. Most of them...there is nothing against them graduating. They do. They can go back into the system and they can graduate.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: I asked how many go on graduate. And I asked whether they can. I wonder if the Minister could say if there have been any graduates from the programme.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I would have to get that information because actually this unit finishes at about 14 or 15. Then they are in the John Gray High School for another three years. They go back in there and then have the three years, you see, in the High School. I could get this and give it to the Member, Sir.

The Speaker: I think I will limit this to three more supplementaries. The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister tell the House the rate of recidivism from the referrals to this programme?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I do not have those statistics. I would have to get them and let the Member know. I would not like to guess at it.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: I wonder if the Honourable Minister could say if there is a special curriculum for the Alternative Education Section and if it is not a confidential document could Members of Parliament be able to see it at some point?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The curriculum is actually adapted to the suitability of each child, depending upon the problem. If you wish, we could get examples of the type of curriculum...I would naturally wish not to disclose the student's name. It is a personal curriculum adapted to try to bring that student back into the school generally. So it could vary.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: I wonder if the Honourable Minister would say if this curriculum has any bearing on the curriculum of the institution that referred these children in order to allow them to come back into the main stream?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: That is correct. Really, what is happening most of the time is that the child is actually still in the George Hicks School, coming across to there. So most of the time the child is in the George Hicks School part of the time and across at the unit part of the time. So what is being taught there is the same as what is necessary there to assist that child to get back into the full programme at the George Hicks.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: On page 2 of the substantive answer, in the very last paragraph the Minister says, "An individual contract will be made with the student, his/her parents and others involved parties and, subject to the signing of this contract, the student will be admitted into the Programme."

Can the Honourable Minister expand on what this contract entails?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Maybe the better course is for me to get a standard copy that is sometimes adapted. Basically it is a contract with the parent, the guardian or those involved in which they say, for example, that they will abide by the school rules; they will attend on time, do their homework. It is to get some responsibility on the student and the parent to jointly assist the teachers in assisting that child.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Should the contract not be honoured, what is the next step taken towards the student?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.
(Pause)

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: It is—

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, excuse me. I will withdraw that supplementary question, if the Honourable Minister so wishes.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I thank you very much because I don't think...I thank you for withdrawing it.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, I know you are limiting questions, but if I could just ask another supplementary, please. I also heard recently that there was a move afoot to relocate the busses situated next to the Bank of Nova Scotia now into the parking lot which is, the way I understand it, right next to this Alternative Education Centre. Can the Honourable Minister say if any consideration was given to the possible disruption during class time because of the movement back and forth because of these busses? If consideration has been given to it, exactly what have they come up with to justify the action?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: In the opinion of the educators, the Department and the Ministry, that disruption would just be another serious problem for the unit to deal with. As a result, and subject to finances of this Finance Committee, we have located an alternative site upon which to transfer the unit. This will give us sufficient space for expansion, the building that we are looking at, and we hope will be approved, is one of the buildings where the new hospital site was going. There are two buildings there that are completed. The Dr. Hortor School (sic) site.

Sorry, Sir. I meant the Hospital site—I guess I think education too much!

It is the hospital site. There is a building there with a roof and everything. I will be coming to Finance Committee for supplementary funds because it gives us, for the first time, a location that is nearer to the schools, first of all; and secondly, it gives us expansion space. Thirdly, we will be able to actually do the building purpose built internally to deal with the units. So, I am very happy to report that.

I just wanted to mention one thing. I think we must remember that this Alternative Education Unit had to be rebuilt beginning in 1992/1993 because it had been abolished seven or eight years before. We are finally now getting it to a mature stage again and with the site now, it will get us away from the environment the Member referred to in the old Public Works Compound. I am asking all Members to support that when it does come up.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Not only does the Honourable Minister think Education, but also he thinks every four years when he quotes his figures. But that is okay!

Could the Minister state if the Department and the Ministry are presently satisfied with the results of the programme? If the answer is yes, Can the Honourable Minister say if there are any forward movements to enhance the programme since it is obvious that the programme becomes more needed as time goes by?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Speaking very frankly, the programme itself is working well. What we especially needed was the extra teacher (which the next question deals with). We needed a new site for it. With God's help we are just about at the stage where I think that can come to fruition. However, even though the programme is good, it has to be continually developed and improved upon—all programmes, I think everything, whether it is this House, Education, whatever, there can always be improvements. I am always open. I believe the Department is always open to look at improvements in the programme.

This is a very important programme, Mr. Speaker. This is one of the two things that I especially insisted. Where perhaps I diverged with some of the past decisions on this, I believe this programme is vital. If those children are going to be saved, this programme has to work, so it must continue to develop.

While it is good, there is always room for development. The thing about it is that we have to stay on top of it. The Department stays on top of it. We have one person specifically in the Department who deals with it and all I can say to the Hon. Member is that I will continue to do everything I can to develop that programme and help those children who enter that programme go back to a normal school life.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town, this is the final supplementary.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: The Minister just said that while the programme seems to be working well, there is always room for improvement. And he has also said that there is one person dedicated from the Department to the programme. Can the Honourable Minister be specific in telling us exactly what strategy is being used by the Department at present to continually enhance the programme?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The Chief Education Officer has requested a report from the psychologist, reports from the Special Education Advisor and also reports on how the programme is working. So as problems arise we can deal with them, and fix them. The strategy is a continuous review by the people involved, by the clients (and they call them that), the schools that are receiving this help for the students, and from the specialists in the area, like the psychologist. So there are reviews that continue on, and based upon that it continues to be developed.

We have to remember that developing school programmes is not something that can be done overnight. If I have learned anything about education, it is that it takes time to do it right. This programme has been developed, so to speak, nearly from scratch and it is at quite an advanced stage. A constant review has to go on because it is so important that the persons who go into that programme are given every opportunity to get back to normal school life and go on to be people within the society who are normal and who contribute. I give the undertaking that the Department and the Ministry and the schools will stay on top of this for them.

Mr. Speaker, I know this has been nearly an hour and a half on that one question, but I will say to you, in fairness to the Members asking the supplementaries, this is a very important subject. That is why I gave such a detailed answers. I think questions such as this one—having spent nearly an hour and a half looking at all facets of it—are important. Thank you.

The Speaker: Question 63 is standing in the name of the First Elected Member for West Bay.

QUESTION 63

No. 63: Mr. W. McKeeva Bush asked the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning how many teachers are presently employed in the Alternative Education Programme.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The number of teachers currently employed at the Alternative Education Centre is as follows: 4 teachers; 1 teacher/principal; 1 counsellor; 1 vacant position.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister state if the Department and the Ministry are satisfied that this staff complement is sufficient?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The vacant position has been filled for September. The Chief Education Officer has told me that, with the number of students we now have, this staff is sufficient. On the new site there will be room for further expansion so we will have to add more staff to the unit. It is an expensive unit for the number to the number of pupils.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister say why this vacant position has not been filled to this point?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: What I have been told is that special qualifications were necessary for this post, and the Education Department could not find a specially qualified teacher for that post. In other words, we are not just filling this with a regular teacher we are filling it with a specialist teacher.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister say if the other six members of staff required special qualifications before they were hired, and if so, do those staff members have those qualifications?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The staff there now either had the qualifications when they came in, they received additional training or were upgraded on the specialist side under the Government's training scheme.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: In answer to a supplementary question, the Minister stated that when the programme is moved to another site there will probably be need for more staff. Can the Honourable Minister explain if this is simply because the site will be purpose built, or if the programme itself will be enhanced to achieve a better success rate.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The reason is because we are adding more students. The unit will expand as time goes on.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Does the Minister's answer mean that students who now should be in the programme cannot be accommodated because of lack of space?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The answer is yes. We could add more students, but at present this is all the unit can contain.

The Speaker: Does any other Member have a supplementary or do you have a follow-up to the present question?

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I had a few more supplementaries, but I was looking around and I did not see any action from the Members that is why I was asking. I will give way.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: The Honourable Minister just said that there are a few other students. If I understood correctly these students who could be in the Alternative Education Centre cannot be because of lack of space. What is being done?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: This is in the tutorial unit. At present those students are being dealt with within the schools. We need to remember that the system, when we got involved five years ago, had abolished the special education unit and was dealing with all special education within the schools. We have phased down that aspect of it and moved the children across into these different units. So those who need to go into the unit the least are dealt with within the school process following along the lines as they were dealt with before.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Can the Honourable Minister say whether or not he experiences any resistance from the schools referring these students to the Alternative Education Programme, in accepting them back into the main stream of the schools?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The transition back into the school is done on a phased basis. They move back to maybe two classes, then three or four classes, and the children are phased back in. This seems to work well with the schools. I should emphasise that with the abolition back maybe twelve years ago, the school actually dealt with these children within the school. Now, the schools resisted that because they felt that they did not have the ability keeping those same students in the class, many times disrupting a full class, and this is why we established the unit again. And we have now developed it.

I must say that we have found that it does work well. Maybe the teachers in the classes where they go back have to, obviously, give extra attention. They understand that. There has really been no resistance to this. I personally believe that this unit and the development of it is the way the future of education must go because we cannot deal with some specialised problems within a classroom. Students in there who want to learn may be disrupted or have less of a chance to learn.

It has worked well, but it is a very complex unit. If we look at the referral process and look, for example, at the makeup of the multidisciplinary team that looks at the child, they are looked at and analysed from every aspect in order to try to do what is right to get that child back into the normal school system.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: I am aware that there are some incorrigible students who are referred to this unit. They resist. Can the Honourable Minister confirm whether or not the Alternative Education Unit is also a referral to the Cayman Islands Marine Institute?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: At present, the students to go into the Cayman Islands Marine Institute have to be referred by the court. So the answer is, yes, some students at our Alternative Education Unit could go on, but that referral would have to be a decision of the courts.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say what interfacing, if any, takes place between the teachers at the Alternative Education Centre, and teachers from the schools where clients, as they are aptly called, are referred?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Most of the communication would be in the instructional side of the matter.

The Speaker: I realise this is a very important subject to each and every one of us, but Question Time is going on too long. I will allow two additional supplementaries.

The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister say if there have been any requests from the private schools for their students to be referred to this programme? If not, when a new site has been established and prepared, is the department going to allow such referrals?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: In practice, what normally happens is that the student...some of the students we get here will have been expelled from the private school in which case, because of Government's duty to educate that child, that student comes into our Alternative Education Unit. If the Member is saying that what should be looked at is prior to the expulsion, whether private schools could refer to the unit but the child remain at the school, that could be looked at with the new site where we can do the expansion.

I am saying this being very honest: At the end of the day, Government's duty is to educate all children. If they come out of the private school system, which many times do not have the equivalent of this unit, then obviously it is our duty to take them in. But I take the Member's suggestion. With the new unit, maybe before children reach that stage, because we do try to share specialised units or workshops of training with the private schools.

The Speaker: This is the time that we would normally take our morning break. Would Members wish to take the break or continue with Question Time?

Mr. Roy Boddén: Mr. Speaker, may I respectfully suggest that we finish with the questions and take the morning break. If the Chair so wishes, I would put that in a resolution, Sir.

The Speaker: What is the wish of the House? We have four additional questions. Is that the wish of the House? Okay. Question 64 is standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Boddén Town.

QUESTION 64

No. 64: Mr. Roy Boddén asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture what steps are being taken to clear the backlog of labour complaints.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: New members have been appointed, or re-appointed, to the Labour Relations Board in accordance with the Labour Law. On each of the three Labour Tribunals a lawyer has been appointed, as was recommended.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Boddén Town.

Mr. Roy Boddén: Can the Honourable Minister say whether any attempt has been made to categorise the complaints into cases which will be contested, and those which will be settled amicably in the Labour Office?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: The Tribunals have met after having a retreat with the Ministry and staff of the Human Resources. They are proceeding on the assumption that to date no withdrawals have been made and that all cases will be contested.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Boddén Town.

Mr. Roy Boddén: Can the Honourable Minister tell the House the totality of these cases?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: It is my understanding that there are approximately 235 outstanding cases.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Boddén Town.

Mr. Roy Boddén: Can the Honourable Minister say from what time period the earliest of these cases originated?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: It is my instruction that there are outstanding cases dating back to 1995.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Boddén Town.

Mr. Roy Boddén: I wonder if the Honourable Minister can say what are the major complaints dealt with by the Labour Tribunals?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Unfair dismissal.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: In a previous answer the Minister said there were three Tribunals. Can the Honourable Minister explain whether this is an appellate system or whether the three Tribunals are of the same level and so structured to breakdown the caseload by dividing the number of cases among the three Tribunals.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Some time ago, prior to my taking up the responsibilities in the Ministry, this House amended the Labour Law (1996 Revision) whereby section 72(1), and thereafter section 73 spread the tiers or the stratification of the whole process of labour appeals. Now we have the Labour Appeals Relation Board, the Labour Tribunal and the Labour Appeals. So there is a middle group because of the introduction of the Labour Relations Board.

If the Member looks at section 73, he will see that one of the problems, as I understand it, is that the quorum for the middle board, being the Tribunal, sets out that only three persons can be there—the chairman, two other members. The Governor in Council at his discretion can appoint one of those members as deputy chairman, which has been done. Having a properly constituted board has led to some of this backup. It is not the sole reason, but it is an overriding reason.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: I wonder if the Minister could explain to the House what she means by a properly constituted board?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: By not having a properly constituted board, I merely mean that there is no quorum as set out, or sufficient members to have a proper hearing.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: When the Minister says the board does not have sufficient members, does she mean that they are appointed but are not attending meetings? Could she clarify that?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: That is correct. The boards are properly constituted in accordance with section 73, that is, the Labour Board, but properly constituted as I inferred was that at the time of the meeting there were not sufficient in attendance for it to be a properly constituted hearing.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: In an earlier answer to a supplementary, the Minister explained the three boards to a certain degree. Perhaps the Minister could explain what level of complaint each board deals with, and if the complaints transcend from one board to the other should the person making, or answering, the complaint not be satisfied.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: As I understand it, the Labour Relations Board receives the complaints, reviews them, and provides its recommendations. It then moves on to the next tier which is the Labour Tribunal and they actually hear the merits or demerits of the application. If the party is aggrieved certain circumstances they can then opt to appeal to the Labour Appeals Tribunal, appealing the decision of the Labour Tribunal.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: I wonder if the Minister can give us a brief summary of the procedure the Human Resources Department takes when it receives a complaint in regard to unfair dismissal.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: I am reliably informed that the Department of Human Resources tries to make an amicable settlement between the parties if at all possible. Failing that, it is referred to the Labour Relations Board and the process is as I explained to the First Elected Member for George Town.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: I am aware that some persons have been unfairly terminated, and in most cases they are Caymanians being replaced by a person on a work permit. I am also aware that the Human Resources Department has a member now that sits on the boards. What interest does the Department take in regard to seeing that this is not done, or that the system is not abused in this way?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: The Member is correct in that a member of the Human Resources Department sits on the Immigration Board as an Ex-officio member whereby he does not have the power to vote, but can make recommendations. Once it comes to the attention of the Human Resources Department, then that information is passed on at the Immigration level. It is entirely left to the discretion of the Immigration Board as to the outcome of the final decision.

The Speaker: The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: The question asked what steps are being taken to clear the backlog of labour complaints, and the Honourable Minister has told us that new members have been appointed, or re-appointed, to the Labour Relations Board, and that on each of the three Tribunals a lawyer has been appointed. Can the Honourable Minister say if the Board will meet more often in order to clear this backlog? Or what action has been taken to get rid of the backlog of complaints?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: The response to the question particularly emphasised the Labour Tribunals as that is where we found the major problem resulting in the backlog. It mainly resulted from a quorum problem. After meeting with all three boards (the Labour Relations Board, the Tribunals, and the Appeals) in existence before I came into the Ministry, it became quite evident that one of the concerns they had was that even when they met a lot of their decisions were not in accordance with the rules and regulations. They felt that if they had a legal person on each of the Tribunals perhaps it would not only expedite the time spent in the initial process, but would cut down on the number of appeals which were increasing over the years. That recommendation was taken and it took some time for various attorneys (and all of them are Caymanian) to get clearance from their respective employers.

We had a retreat with all groups to ensure that they knew each other. They have met, reviewed the outstanding cases, and set days of the week, being Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday to meet. There are now 21 hearings scheduled to commence on 14 July. The reason it seems like there is a delay is because once you actually go through the hearings, the law mandates that at least one month's notice be given to the employer and the employee so that they too can go through the natural process. That is the stage we are now at.

The Speaker: The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: I wonder if the Honourable Minister would give any consideration to appointing a member of staff to the Human Resources section of Government who is legally trained to interpret laws, it doesn't have to be a lawyer, maybe a paralegal, so that when these complaints come in and are dealt with you will already have a legal mind following these complaints on to the Tribunals.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: I am answering this question being fully cognisant that the responsibility for personnel does not rest with me. I agree with the lady Member. Indeed, I am instructed that the Department has been asking for extra staff, not only in that area, but also in the secretarial and executive and clerical area to keep up with the backlog. What we are actually trying to do is not only solve the problem of the backlog, but also deal with new complaints that are coming in so that we don't have an additional backlog. So we are trying to do two things at one time. Subject to Personnel bringing it forward and the Members of Finance Committee agreeing, I would be delighted to have the extra staff which we have deemed necessary if the wheels of natural justice are to continue to wind at a fairly reasonable rate.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: I would just like to have a point clarified. I noted that we have had a few civil servants in Parliament this morning, and I was just wondering if they had gotten permission from the Governor to attend.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: As I understand it, reading section 2 of the relevant legislation, consent is not a prerequisite for attendance at Parliament. If and when they are called upon to answer questions we would ask for an adjournment in keeping with the specific provision.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: I am aware that some of these cases do end up before the courts. I wonder if the Minister can confirm if they have a lawyer attached to the Human Resources section, or do they have to rely on the Attorney General to provide a lawyer for that purpose. If that is the case, is that the reason for some of the backlog?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Perhaps the Member can assist me. I am not quite sure if the Member is asking if a legal person is needed, or if the delay is because we have to rely on the Attorney General. Could he clarify?

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: I am aware that the employers in most of these cases have high-powered lawyers representing them. My question is whether or not the Human Resources Department, when it goes to court, has its own lawyer attached to the unit, or does it rely on the Attorney General's office to provide legal representation.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: I thank the Member for clarifying his question. As with all Government Departments, they have to rely on the services of the Legal Department.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, the next question is No. 65, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 65

No. 65: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture what the total work-force of the Cayman Islands is, broken down into the categories of Caymanians and non-Caymanians.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The total work force of the Cayman Islands is 21,490, broken down as follows: Caymanian: 10,880; Non-Caymanian: 10,610.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries? The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The previous Minister who occupied that Ministry crafted an elaborate training initiative. Can the Minister say what the policy and disposition of the Government is regarding continuation of this programme, seeing that the number of non-Caymanians in the work force is almost the same as Caymanians?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Is the Honourable Member asking specifically about the vocational training?

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: That is precisely the question, Sir.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I thank the Member for the clarification. In taking over the Ministry, that particular responsibility has been moved from where it previously existed. It is now under the Minister for Education.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Is the Minister telling the House that her Ministry—which is responsible for Human Resources—does not have any plan, or has not to this point crafted any policy to equip Caymanians to ensure they are not significantly outnumbered?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Mr. Speaker, I am telling the Honourable Member that although I have responsibility for community affairs, I need the ammunition, that being the responsibility to train. Not being given the responsibility from His Excellency the Governor, for me to impede or infringe on that responsibility would be acting ultra vires.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the lady Minister how these statistics were arrived at.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. These statistics were provided to me by the staff of my Ministry and Department, and were taken from the Economics and Statistics Office, Cayman Islands Government.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Does the lady Minister then say that these figures are not up to date? If they are not, what is the margin of error?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: It is my understanding that the figures given in the substantive answer are the figures for 1997.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I am aware that it was mentioned that some effort would be made to tie the issuance of new work permits with some type of training initiative. I wonder if the Minister can confirm whether this initiative has been implemented. I know it does not fall under you any more, but you are a Member of Council. Can you say whether you are aware if there is any link between the issuance of work permits and training initiatives?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Mr. Speaker, as the Member rightly pointed out, I am not in a position to state the exact percentage, but I am aware that there is still a linkage, having dealt with clients up until November when I took Executive Council, at which time I stopped doing such matters. The conditions coming back from Immigration, especially at the professional level, did have attachments saying training had to be done.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town. Do you have a question?

Dr. Frank McField: I had a question, but since it was more or less formulated by the Third Elected Member for West Bay, I shall pass.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. The answer given—and I have a few more supplementaries, but I want to get it clear. The numbers in the answer, are these people who are employed? Or who are employable?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. It is my understanding that these numbers reflect those who are employed.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Could the Minister state, in acquiring these statistics, if there were any accompanying figures indicating the number of unemployed Caymanians at that time?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. That number was not reflected in the statistics, but I asked the staff at Human Resources to provide a list of the Caymanians who were not employed. They were not actually numbered, but this is the list. It is about two and a half pages. If the Member wishes, I could count them and give the answer later.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. That is fine. The Honourable Minister may do that at her convenience.

Also, in one of her answers, the Minister clarified the position of her Ministry regarding training. I think we understand the predicament in which she finds herself. I wonder if she can state if there is any link between her Ministry and the Ministry of Education (which is not responsible for training), and if there are any initiatives following up what has been done so far? Has she heard anything more about it?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The Commonwealth Secretariat has provided us with a Human Resource Co-ordinator who has been preparing recommendations and liaising between my Ministry, the Permanent Secretary, the Human Resources staff, and the Permanent Secretary and her staff in the Ministry. Once that report is available, as far as this Ministry is concerned, I will be happy to share it with Members and see what recommendations would perhaps be the most prudent to follow.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The person from the Commonwealth Secretariat was supposed to have been dealing with the training initiative which this House and Executive Council accepted. I wonder what the position is, and why he is not dealing with that issue. Further, Mr. Speaker, I wonder whether the Minister can say if this has been set aside until Vision 2008 has been reported on.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Mr. Speaker, I cannot respond to the second part, because I honestly do not know the answer. To me, that would be speculation, in that the Minister responsible and his Permanent Secretary would be the best persons to answer that.

If I could respond to the first part of the question, it is my understanding that the Human Resources gentleman from the Commonwealth Secretariat is dealing with the training initiative. Because of the change-around in responsibilities in the two respective Ministries, there is a cross-border relationship, in that there is a liaison between the Minister for Education and my Ministry.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. I am quite certain that the Honourable Minister understands the importance of the training initiative. I am also certain that she quite appreciates that the exercise is not trying to pin on her any responsibility she does not have. However, I would ask the lady Minister to give an undertaking to liaise with the Ministry of Education for some report to be given to this Honourable House as early as possible regarding the progress of that training initiative. The success of all of this is going to hinge on that training initiative and its link with the Department of Human Resources. If the Minister could give that undertaking, we would be very grateful.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: I would be happy to give the undertaking to liaise with the Education Ministry and to convey what the Member asked to be conveyed.

The Speaker: Moving to question 66, standing in the name of the Elected Member for North Side.

QUESTION 66

No. 66: Mrs. Edna M. Moyle asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture if the Department of Human Resources has been involved to any extent in the decision of Cable & Wireless (Cayman Islands) Ltd., to streamline its operations?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The answer: The Department of Human Resources has not been involved with any decision of Cable & Wireless (Cayman Islands) Ltd. to streamline its operations.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries? The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Seeing that there is another Minister of Executive Council responsible for Communications, could the Honourable Minister say, if there has been any discussion between those two Ministers concerning the decision by Cable & Wireless to streamline its operation by making certain employees redundant?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I have spoken to the Minister responsible for Communications and Works, and the substantive part of the discussion was the matter as it related to the Labour Ministry dealing with the actions of Cable & Wireless in April of this year.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Could the Honourable Minister say whether she and the Minister responsible for Communications and Works requested any meeting with the management staff of Cable & Wireless to discuss what was happening with the company?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The staff of my Ministry's department spoke a number of times to employees of Cable & Wireless who were affected either way by the exercise. However, no formal complaints have been filed with the Department, and in the absence of complaints, the Department's role has been mainly to monitor and ensure that the Labour Law has been complied with.

The Speaker: Supplementaries? If there are no further supplementaries, that will conclude Question Time for this morning. This will be a convenient time to take the lunch break. We shall suspend until 2.15 PM.

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 15/98

LITTER CONTROL

AMENDMENT TO PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 15/98

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I beg to move the following amendment to Private Member's Motion No. 15/98 entitled Litter Law:

"I, the Third Elected Member for West Bay, under Standing Order 24(7), move the following amendment to Private Member's Motion 15/98: 'In the Resolved section, that the words 'Litter Law' be replaced with the words 'litter laws'.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I beg to second that.

The Speaker: The motion has been duly moved and seconded. Does the mover wish to speak to it?

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Just a short comment, Mr. Speaker, in that changing it from "Litter Law" to "litter laws" broadens the scope of the motion, and enables us to mention both the Litter Law and the Marine Conservation Law, and any other laws that would deal with this very important subject. Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The amendment to this motion is now open to debate. Does any other Member wish to speak? The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, I rise to support the amendment. In my debate on the substantive motion in Cayman Brac, I mentioned the fact that there was pollution evident in the marine environment by different ways. One of the ways this is happening is by a number of boats that are offloading effluent in the canals, especially, and even in our bays.

I recall in 1993, when I took over the Ministry of Health, that I brought this matter to the attention of the House. I had responsibility at the time for public health. That was one of the matters we raised affecting public health. But before 1993 ended, the responsibility for that side of public health went with marine environment to the new Ministry of the Environment, so I did not see that through. Nevertheless, it is a matter of utmost importance to the country. There are a number of boats in different canals all over the country with no proper dumping facility.

While in Executive Council, one thing that arose quite often, but was never acted upon, was the use of Government property down at SafeHaven, making that a proper facility so boats and the Port Authority and so on could use it. My only concern now, and then, is that if we allowed construction there proper procedures or regulations would be put in place so the small boat operators, the local small boats, or all small boats for that matter, would continue to be able to use that facility. That was a matter that came to Executive Council several times, and I do not think any action was ever taken on it. My concern then, and now, is that proper facilities are found, and that local small boats who cannot afford to go into the big marinas, be able to use the facility. If the Port Authority took it over, for instance, that that is part of the regulatory process, to ensure—and I stress that—that these boats be permitted to use the facility.

I think the amendment is warranted, as it specifically brings in the marine laws, and while the preamble of the motion talked about marine, I am happy this is a specific request to be included in the resolution. Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak to the amendment? If no other Member wishes to speak to the amendment, I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

AGREED: THAT PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 15/98 BE AMENDED.

The Speaker: The motion is amended. We shall now speak to the motion as amended, the First Elected Member for George Town continuing the debate he began in Cayman Brac before we adjourned.

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. It has been a little while since we met in the Brac, so with your permission, I will read the motion once more so that the listening public is aware of where we are. Private Member's Motion No. 15/98, as amended, reads:

"WHEREAS maintaining a clean marine and physical environment is of paramount importance to the Cayman Islands with respect to maintaining its tourism industry and the good health of its citizens;

"BE IT THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT steps be now taken to review, revise and strengthen the litter laws to ensure that the people of the Cayman Islands continue to live in a healthy environment and enjoy the benefits of tourism."

Mr. Speaker, I dealt with certain other areas before. This afternoon I would like to spend a little time, since the motion has been amended, to talk about a few other areas which its amendment allows to be spoken to. By that I mean that although the motion deals with the litter laws, I think it is easily understood and hopefully easily accepted by all that certain sections of the Marine Conservation Law (Law 19 of 1978) certainly have to be addressed.

In this Law, section 18 reads: "Any person who directly or indirectly causes or permits to flow or to be put into Cayman waters any harmful effluents or raw sewage, unless specifically permitted in that behalf under the Public Health Law, 1981, or any other law, is guilty of an offence."

It goes on, in section 25 to read, "Whoever contravenes this Law or any regulations made hereunder is guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to a fine of five hundred thousand dollars and to imprisonment for twelve months and in addition thereto the court so convicting may order the confiscation of any vessel or equipment that it is satisfied has been used for the purpose of committing or facilitating the commission of such offence, or was intended to be used for such purpose." general terms about the litter laws, in its first 'Whereas' section the motion addresses a clean marine and physical environment. It is clear from its intent that it is important to address the marine environment to make sure proper laws and enforcement are in place. The First Elected Member for West Bay, in his short debate on the amendment, mentioned the public open space located on the northeast section of the SafeHaven project, that is, on the water. It is a fairly large parcel of property. With very good intentions it was worthwhile mentioning.

Before I go into that—and I will address that specific location—I think it is important for us to understand and accept that because of the nature of the development of this country, both local and foreign individuals have aspired, and have been able, to acquire their own boats. Many of them not huge, expensive boats, but some are fairly good boats. There is a fair amount of people who reside on the Island in these types of pleasure craft. We have many canal lots. We have a fair amount of people who own these boats and have their boats docked alongside their houses. Also, because of the nature of the development of the country, especially in the tourism industry, we have huge numbers of boats which operate in the North Sound (not only in the North Sound, but specifically speaking, in the North Sound) doing snorkelling trips and all types of tourism-oriented on-water and in-water activities.

If we were to direct our attention to this area and think about it, I would venture to say that the vast majority of these boats do not have any type of facility to offload their effluent, or sewage or for that matter. For those who really do not have a permanent resting place there is a problem with simple ordinary garbage. I think it is important for us to understand and accept that this is one of the facilities that needs to be created. I am not suggesting that it be done at the expense of Government. I am certain that those involved understand it is for their good, and for the good of the environment from which they make their living. They will be happy to participate, once they have a location to offload this stuff even if there is a fee involved, which I am sure would be reasonable.

It is my understanding—and I will now get back to this location at SafeHaven—that that is probably the largest piece of property Government owns with the built in facility, namely a seawall already built. The land is filled and everything is there already, and it will not have to start from scratch to create the type of facility needed.

If one were to check with the Planning Department, another problem one will find along the West Bay peninsula on the North Sound side is private owners of docks complaining about people with boats utilising their docks. The truth of the matter is that the people do not have anywhere else to tie up their boats. One might make the argument that the people who buy these boats should not buy them if they do not have somewhere to keep them. But for many of them, it is their living. The truth is, they will fight the battle of where they are going to keep the boat once they can find a way to make a living otherwise. If such a facility existed, the vast majority of these boat-owners who operate in the North Sound for tourism-related activities would have, so to speak, a home for their boats.

The other thing I wish to mention is that I happen to know (because I have seen the plans) that the Port Authority had developed plans for this area we are discussing which is public open space. Their intention was to create what are known as 'slips' running away from the seawall, and without being totally sure, it could probably accommodate, when construction was completed in the canal, about 50 boats. That would certainly go a long way in alleviating this situation.

It is not just a matter of providing a home for these boats, but we must also understand and accept that these boats are in the North Sound, operating on a daily basis, and there is no where to offload effluent, raw sewage, or garbage. The Port Authority's idea was to create such a facility, which is what I would call a mini-marina for these boats to use. They would have a holding tank for sewage, proper garbage disposal facilities, electricity and water. It was their plan not to do it for free, but to recoup their capital costs over a reasonable period of time, and the people involved would have a decent facility.

This was drawn to my attention. I knew nothing about it originally. But this was drawn to my attention and to the attention of other Members of the Backbench also. The people who wish to use the service were the first ones who said to us, 'We do not expect this service to be provided for free.'

So here we have a situation in which the Port Authority, looking to plan for the future well being of the country, wants to create such a facility. It is not going to be a financial burden on the Government, because they are creating it in such a way that they would recoup their money. At worst, the Government might be asked to guarantee a loan, if necessary. This is something that happens almost every day and they have not reneged thus far, so I do not see that as a big problem. But my understanding is that the Government has decided they will not vest the property with the Port Authority, because (the way I hear the story) the land is too valuable to be used for that purpose. I do not know that to be a fact, but I have heard that. I am not going to make a big issue, or take issue with that, because as I said, I do not know that to be a fact.

If that is the thought process, my question is, Who does the land belong to? Does it belong to the Government, or does it belong to the people? Regardless of whether this was said, I take on board the concern of the First Elected Member for West Bay. The smaller boat-owners should be given first choice in using the facility. And I do not believe that is a difficult situation to overcome, because in most instances the privately owned boats of the people with waterfront lots are kept alongside their own canal lots, or whatever other types of lots they have on the water. Such a facility would definitely alleviate the situation by providing a location for these boats. There would be fewer conflicts between private dock owners and these people. Also—and this is the whole crux of my bringing this argument out in this motion—it certainly would go a great distance in preventing such huge amounts of effluent, raw sewage and garbage simply being dumped into the water because people have nowhere else to dispose of it. They get fed up and get rid of it the quickest way they know how. That can be termed irresponsible on their part, because the truth is they are hurting themselves as much as anyone else. But at the same time, from my understanding of the situation, at present they are faced with no alternative.

If we are talking about the North Sound, that is basically a reef-enclosed area. There are many, many canals in which there is not much water movement. That is why some of the canals are so dark, because the water is basically stagnant, because not all of them have been developed with the right expertise or technology to create movement of water. With these boats plying back and forth in the North Sound and using these canals, it has had and it is at present having a telling effect on the quality of the water.

I would recommend through this motion that Government revisit this situation, understand the importance, regardless of how it may deem the land to be worthwhile. It certainly cannot be put to any better use than what is being suggested now: to encourage our marine environment to be kept as pristine as it is supposed to be.

I hope that point is made, Mr. Speaker. If we extend it a bit further, there are other ocean-going vessels that come into our waters, not necessarily to the North Sound. I remember a specific incident, which I think the Minister for Agriculture mentioned in his debate—probably the only incident that was recorded in which any enforcement was undertaken. It was to do with a cruise ship. I kept the Caymanian Compass of Wednesday, 3 June. On the front page was a headline saying, “Cruise line in plea deal over bilge dumping.” This is in Miami. I will read a few short sentences from it so we can understand what we are talking about here. “A major cruise line agreed Tuesday in Federal Court to pay $9 million in fines for dumping oil-laden bilge water at sea.”

I do not have to go into the details, but just to say how seriously other countries take this situation. It is with no disrespect to those types of ocean-going vessels, or other types of ocean-going vessels, which may come into our waters, either through the dock, or one of the oil company facilities to offload oil or natural gas, or whatever. But we have to somehow ensure that our laws are being enforced properly. The truth is, we do not know at present how much of this is being done. It is only when we see the side effects every now and then, and hear about a so-called oil spill, or something of that nature, that we realise the kinds of disasters that can happen if these people are irresponsible in their actions.

I do not have the specific answers for enforcement, but I think it is important for the powers that be to have a serious look at this. Ensure that enough is being done regarding playing watchdog and enforcing the laws of the land when it comes to the dumping of effluent, raw sewage or garbage in our waters.

To sum up that argument, I have used a specific location for certain types of vessels which are owned locally, some by Caymanians, some by foreigners. They are used and kept locally. I think we need to create that facility and the Port Authority should be able to use that land to make it do the right thing regarding the safety of the marine environment. I think enforcement is vitally necessary for other ocean-going vessels, whether they be cruise ships, cargo vessels, or ocean-going tankers, or whatever. In seconding this motion, I chose this second effort of mine to concentrate on this area because I think it is important that this not be left out. We should not just look at the physical environment, but we should also look at the safety of the marine environment. I am sure the mover, like myself, considers this a very important aspect. I am sure, in his winding up, he will refer to it. Hopefully correct attention will be paid to the intent of the motion.

It is obvious by what has been said prior to this that the Government seems willing to accept the motion. I trust that with the amendment, their nod of acceptance will not only remain as it is, but will also take on board what we are dealing with. I am sure there are other aspects which can be examined for us to have some positive effect, if we are going to not just pay lip service to the motion, but to try to do something concrete about it.

As one of the representatives, I wish to make it very clear that my reference to the property at SafeHaven is in response to constituents, not just from any one district, but from several districts. I appreciate that they are saying that they too are concerned about the marine environment, and would like to have such a facility, to use such a facility properly at a reasonable cost, in order not to pollute the waters around Cayman any more than has already happened. I trust that somewhere along the line the Government will respond to our plea.

I believe it is understood and supported by other Members of the Backbench. I trust that as the motion is accepted, this part of it will be paid attention to, and in the not too distant future, we will hear about something being done, not only regarding the other areas but specifically to this facility which I think is well needed.

To put the Government on notice, should we not hear anything about this within the next few months, we are going to be raising the issue again. We will continue to raise the issue until we get some type of response. If it is Government's belief or policy that nothing should be done to the facility as we are suggesting, then I wish it would say so publicly, and justify its decision. It cannot be said we are not being up front with what we believe is the right thing to do. I certainly support the motion, especially with its amendment allowing broader scope, and I trust that there will be some action on the part of Government, the Backbench having brought the situation to the forefront. Thank you.

The Speaker: Would this be a convenient time for us to take the afternoon break? We shall suspend for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.54 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.20 PM

The Speaker: Proceedings are resumed. Debate on Private Member's Motion No. 15/98 continues. Does any other Member wish to speak? The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I would like to make a few brief comments regarding the Private Member's Motion brought by the Third Elected Member for West Bay. I would like to compliment him for taking this opportunity to get a discussion on the litter and waste situation in the Cayman Islands. I had hoped to be able to speak to the motion in Cayman Brac. I was a little more prepared to do it there, but since then, my mind has wandered beginning to deal with what I consider to be another equally important issue. I will therefore not burden the House with my lengthy deliberations on this.

I shall say that it is important to begin to educate the people as to their responsibility and the role they must play in waste management. In my neighbourhood in particular in central George Town, School Road, I observe Environmental Health picking up garbage in tons, constantly, simply because as soon as they move it, someone feels obligated to replace it.

We do not need to concentrate only on the role of Government and the Environmental Department; we must also concentrate on the public's role, that they are responsible, educated and environmentally conscious. We need, therefore, to use television. I feel a lot of us are not using television as effectively as it could be used to educate people, and to bring the message to them that their responsibility and their involvement in whatever is to be successful in this country is absolutely necessary.

Again, I would stress, as someone who has worked with Environmental Health—because I did my little bit there, and I have a lot of sympathy for the people who work there. I believe they are doing a tremendous job. I hope we can continue to recognise that without our assistance the public will always be swamped with litter. Again, I thank the Member for West Bay for bringing this motion, and I support it.

The Speaker: Before I call on someone else to speak, there has been a request that the select committees on immigration and the Election Law meet on Friday. I need to see what is the wish of the House on that matter. I know the Leader of Government Business is not in the Chamber. We will wait a few minutes for him. (Pause)

I would like to add that under Standing Order 72(8), because the House is meeting, we need the will of the House so a select committee can meet while the House is in session. I would therefore need a motion to be moved. (Pause)

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, it appears, and subject to your wishes, that the view is to adjourn until 10.00 AM tomorrow, and that on Friday the two select committees will go on. I would so move that we adjourn until 10.00 AM tomorrow morning.

The Speaker: And that we will suspend proceedings on Friday to give way to the Immigration and Election Laws?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Yes, Sir, I will move that we will adjourn on Thursday until Monday, so we will have all of Friday for the select committees. However, if they do not finish. . . . [inaudible interjection] We will finish the select committees on Friday? Apparently only one day will be set aside for the select committees, which is Friday.

The Speaker: That is correct.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Okay, Sir, I would adjourn until tomorrow at 10.00 AM.

ADJOURNMENT

The Speaker: I shall put the question that this House do now adjourn until 10.00 AM tomorrow, with the understanding that the House will not meet on Friday, and the select committees on the Immigration Law and the Election Law will meet on Friday. The House do stand adjourned until 10.00 AM Thursday, 18 June 1998.

AT 4.28 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM THURSDAY, 18 JUNE 1998.

EDITED
THURSDAY
18 JUNE 1998
10.20 AM

The Speaker: Prayers by the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

PRAYERS

Hon. James M. Ryan: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived: We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth, that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly, that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy great name's sake.

Let us say the Lord's Prayer together: Our Father, who art in heaven, hallowed be Thy name. Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us. Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace, now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Item 2 on today's Order Paper, Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. Question 67 is standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION 67

No. 67: Miss Heather D. Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning what procedures must building contractors follow regarding control and removal of debris that accumulates on building sites.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Prior to the issuance of a final Certificate of Fitness for Occupancy, the building contractors must ensure all construction debris has been removed from the site.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Miss Heather D. Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say if this is becoming more of a problem?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Yes it is, and I am grateful to the lady Member for bringing it to the attention of this House. We have seen more and more accumulation of debris in recent times on these construction sites. It is a problem we have to look at in some depth.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Will any facilities be provided for the eastern districts where this debris can be dumped and then removed by garbage collection at a later date, or do we have to continue to drive into George Town to the main dump? I think this is some of the problem, particularly in my district.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: While this is not directly my Ministry, I have been told that there is an area where the dumpsters can be put in the eastern districts. However, my personal opinion is that if a landfill site were established somewhere in the eastern districts for this and other debris, it would probably be to the advantage of both the landfill site here, which is overused, and also to the people in those districts. It would also avoid a lot of heavy truckage on the road to George Town.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Although the Honourable Minister said that is not his area, I would like for the listening public to be informed where this dumpster can be put, and this sort of debris put into because we are suffering in the district of North Side. Even when gardens are cut and cleaned the debris has to be transported to the George Town dump. So I would like him to inform the people of North Side if he can.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The best I can do is to move this on to the Minister who deals with that. Maybe at a later stage the lady Member can put a direct question or perhaps speak to the Minister in the common room.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: The normal procedure has been that a request is made to the department. We place large garbage bins in the most convenient areas. We normally try to place them on Government property so that debris, such as the lady Member spoke about, can be collected and taken to the dump. So it has been done in the past and if it is a situation where she has a problem in her district, I would be most happy to address it if she would tell me the area in which she needs the dumpster.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: I would like to thank the Honourable Minister for his reply.

I am now going to ask the Honourable Minister who took the responsibility to reply to this question dealing with construction debris if he could do something to provide the district of North Side with some facility so that the construction workers are not the ones who are held liable and taken to court.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, once again, we have tried to assist as far as we can. It is very unusual for another Minister to answer. The most I can do is pass this on to the Minister for Agriculture, and at a later stage I am sure he would reply to the lady Member.

[Addressing the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works] Oh, you're going to reply now?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Mr. Speaker, the normal procedure on any construction site, or any area that has a problem with debris, is that it is requested. If necessary we put a container there. It is collected at a minimal fee and, as I said, it is not our responsibility to go around to each construction site and say, 'Here's a dumpster,' it is normally requested.

If there is a situation in the lady Member's district—where we have done a lot of cleanup, not only hers but other districts in the island—we will continue to work along with her, and anybody else. So, if she would just tell me, we could deal with this matter.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Miss Heather D. Bodden: Will the Honourable Minister say what can be done to correct this situation as far as Planning is concerned?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The problem is one that we can probably deal with from Planning's point of view. There are two Ministries involved, but from Planning's point of view—and this is a very good question—we feel that we can tighten up in these areas when inspections are being carried out at intervals. I have already spoken to the Director of Planning to put this into the pipeline so that when inspectors go to the sites that is one of the things they will also inspect. This will assist. If it gets really bad, then the Department of Environment, from a nuisance point of view, would also have to come in.

Further to the lady Member's question, I will be asking the Department of Planning add this subject for discussion when we look at the regulations and the law to see where this can be done in other areas. I thank the lady Member from Bodden Town for raising this important area.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, the next question is No. 68, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 68

No. 68: Miss Heather D. Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation to give a report on the functioning and effectiveness of the District Clinics.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: There are currently new health centres in the districts of Bodden Town, East End, North Side and West Bay. These centres are opened to the public from 9 am to 4 pm during the week, and from 9 am to 12 noon on Saturdays. They are well equipped to deal with both acute and chronic illnesses. Services provided from the health centres include:

- Doctors' clinics
- Home visiting services or elderly, high dependency and terminally ill patients
- Ante-natal and post natal care
- Child health and immunisation
- Family planning

- Health screening and promotion, for example, for ischaemic heart disease, hypertension, diabetes and cancer
- Specialist clinics in mental health
- Nutritionist clinics
- Health education: individual counselling, group sessions, talks and materials
- Mental health nursing services, pharmaceutical dispensing services
- Drug and alcohol abuse counselling

I am pleased to be able to say that it has been possible to increase the number of Doctors' Clinics available in the districts. In 1996 these were provided twice per week in West Bay and once per week in Bodden Town, East End and North Side. Now we are providing Doctors' Clinics five days per week in West Bay, four days a week in Bodden Town and two days per week in East End and North Side.

These increased Doctors' Clinics have been well received by the general public as can be seen in the numbers attending them. In 1995 the average monthly attendance at Doctors' Clinics was 554. Between February and April of this year the average monthly attendance was 1,106, a 99% increase over the 1995 figure.

I would like to quickly mention some other improvements:

(i) Laboratory samples are collected in the health centres and transported to the Hospital regularly during the week. Results can be obtained from the medical staff at the health centre, thus avoiding the necessity of the patient having to travel to town.

(ii) The addition of nebulisers to the health centres has allowed patients to receive immediate treatment for asthma, thereby reducing the delay in treatment and the inconvenience of travelling to George Town.

(iii) The West Bay Health Centre and the Eastern District Health Centres have had a full-time dispensing pharmacist since February of this year. This has allowed the Health Services Department to extend the range of medications available at the Health Centres and has meant that nurses are now able to devote more time to nursing duties.

(iv) Since February 1998, two mental health nurses have been attached to West Bay Health Centre and one mental health nurse to the Eastern Districts. Care for the mentally ill is now more quickly and effectively co-ordinated at district levels. In West Bay a day care and educational programme for patients suffering from chronic mental illness is being piloted.

(v) An ambulance is now stationed at North Side and one will soon be stationed in West Bay.

(vi) In Little Cayman, the health clinic has had a full-time resident nurse since November 1997. The clinic is open from 9 am to 1 pm Monday to Friday, and the nurse provides on-call service out of hours. A doctor visits twice per week and general surgical consultations are provided as required. During the month of April, 83 patients were seen, 60 of them during general clinics and 23 out of hours. Four diving accidents were responded to and one patient was air evacuated.

The Ministry and the Health Services Department will continue to monitor the functioning and effectiveness of the district health centres and will make adjustments as necessary.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Miss Heather D. Bodden: I would like to thank the Hon. Minister for that comprehensive answer. Can he say if he is satisfied with the cleanliness and general maintenance at all the district clinics?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, we are, and with the help of God we intend to keep it that way. There is a programme set up with Public Health in George Town that monitors these.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Can the Honourable Minister say if all the clinics in the eastern districts are now manned by registered nurses?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: I appreciate the Member bringing this to my attention. I have learned that this post is not yet [filled]. I have requested it and I will pass the information on later today or tomorrow to let the Member know when the RN will be there. I have requested it and I know that in part of the recruiting this will be one of the people who will go there.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: I would like to thank the Hon. Minister and I know that I will hear shortly that a registered nurse is being placed in the North Side Clinic. I would like to publicly thank the nurse who is there now. Even though not a registered nurse, she has done her very best to keep the clinic in North Side.

My second question to the Hon. Minister is: Is any consideration being given to later opening hours for the clinic in the district of North Side? I ask that because the hours the clinic is now open do not facilitate mothers who work in George Town who may return and find the baby has a cold, or is down with asthma. She still has to drive back into George Town to get medical assistance. Can the Honourable Minister say if any consideration is being given to changing the opening hours?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: This, again, is a good point. In the other clinics we have established evening clinics which proved successful. We will be actively pursuing this for North Side and East End. A lot of travelling would be eliminated if we could provide these clinics within the districts themselves. We will be dealing with this.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister say, notwithstanding the fact that the main hospital is in George Town, if there are any plans to have a district clinic for the Capital separate and apart from the facilities at the hospital?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: In the original plans for the development of a complex, at this stage we were renovating significant portions that would be utilised and further develop the George Town Health Centre. But we are diligently looking at the long-term approach for a clinic in George Town, and pending what Members of Parliament decide, and the availability of funds, this will be looked at. There is a special steering committee looking at this area and we will be dealing with this in due course.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I thank the Minister for his usual candid response. Can the Honourable Minister say if, at completion, there will be any specifically designated area for the district? Or is it that until the long-term plans are put into action the facility in George Town is simply a national facility.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Specifically for the George Town residents this is the medium to long term. But our plan is to convert the existing casualty area and some other areas in the facility to provide outpatient clinics and other health service for George Town.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: I noticed that the Hon. Minister referred to the addition of nebulisers at the health centres in the outer districts. How are these additional services communicated to the general public in the districts? I ask this question because there is a little boy in North Side who has very bad asthma, but his mother was not aware of such a service. So the child had to be brought back into George Town. How do the residents know of the new services being provided?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: This has been one of the problems not only in the Health Services Department, but I think throughout Government, and probably the Legislative Assembly as to passing on information to the public. We recently recruited a public relations officer and hopefully things like this will be addressed.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: In the substantive answer, the Minister said, “two mental health nurses have been attached to the West Bay Health Centre and one mental health nurse to the Eastern Districts. Care for the mentally ill is now more quickly and effectively co-ordinated at district levels. In West Bay a day care and educational programme for patients suffering from chronic mental illness is being piloted.”

Can the Honourable Minister say if plans are being worked on to create a facility which will adequately serve the needs in that area? By area I do not mean location, but mental illness for the island.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, there have been extensive talks in regard to this area. We are working at it very diligently. At the present, for the chronic and really serious mental people, we have been utilising Jamaica. There has to be a facility put in place here because the time has come. But there will be extensive capital involvement in this because the care of these patients is a 24-hour job, especially the high risk ones. But the answer is yes, we will be looking at this.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Miss Heather D. Bodden: In the Minister's answer he said that drug and alcohol abuse counselling is also provided. Can the Honourable Minister say if people with drug and alcohol problems are taking advantage of these facilities?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, but not as much as we would like. The health centres were designed for multi-purpose use in the evenings, where the medical section can be closed off, and there are rooms in all the centres for people to go for counselling. Knowing the culture and the way Caymanians deal with things, it will take a while for them to build up the confidence and want to go. But this is something I think we all can do to try to educate and help our people with letting them know the services are available, without necessarily having to come to Cayman Counselling Centre in George Town.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Getting back to the question of mental health facilities, could the Minister state if the physical facility that might be created once funds become available would be located in the main compound where the new hospital facilities will be, or located in a separate area?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: To be honest, we have not advanced with the actual location yet, but as soon as the information becomes available, I will share it with Members.

The Speaker: I will allow two additional supplementaries. The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. As the Minister mentioned facilities being created in the districts and services being provided in that area, can the Minister state what type of services and/or facilities will be available for mental health patients on completion of the main George Town Hospital facility in that location?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: The outpatient facility was one of the first sections to be occupied in the new buildings. There are also plans for an inpatient facility coming on line later this year or next year. But there are facilities. As I said, that was one of the first units opened in the new building.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, we will move to Question 69, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 69

No. 69: Miss Heather D. Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works who is in charge of the upkeep of the Coe-Wood Public Beach in Bodden Town and to outline the duties of this person.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: The Department of Environmental Health employs the person responsible for the upkeep of the Coe-Wood Public Beach. The duties are to clean the beachfront, trim vegetation and clean the public lavatories.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Miss Heather D. Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Honourable Minister say how often these services are carried out?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: It is my understanding that the individual is employed and on the premises full-time.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Miss Heather D. Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Honourable Minister say who is responsible for the keys to the shower facilities?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: It is my understanding that there is a district committee. While Government has assisted with the project, it is my understanding that a district committee operates it.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Miss Heather D. Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I would like to thank the Honourable Minister for that answer. Can the Honourable Minister give an undertaking that "Thank You For Not Littering" and "Strong Current" signs are placed on the Coe-Wood Public Beach?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. We will most definitely put some signs there. It has been a concern of mine too, from the time we actually made the channel there. There are strong currents there; as a matter of fact I think we have lost a life there before. So I definitely give the undertaking to have it done.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, we move on to question 70, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 70

No. 70: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation whether there have been any problems experienced in fitting the cabinets imported for the George Town Hospital.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: The cabinets imported for the George Town Hospital have had no installation problems to date. All units are well-made, good quality products that have been fitted into place with relative ease by the manufacturer's workmen.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Minister say if all the cabinets for the units have been fitted and installed as of now?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: No, Mr. Speaker, I would say about 50% of them have been.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I wonder if the Minister can confirm whether any local suppliers were able to bid on supplying this equipment to this George Town Hospital?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: The construction contract for the hospital was awarded to McAlpine, and therefore it was McAlpine's responsibility to select the cabinet sub-contractor. That was not our position. I have been made to understand that a number of people did apply, but because of costs were not accepted.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? If there are no further supplementaries, we will move on to Question 71, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 71

No. 71: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation if the morgue facilities at the George Town Hospital are in full use at this time.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: The morgue facilities have been in full use since April of this year.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Minister tell the House if any adjustments have to be made to accommodate some of the equipment, for example, the lifts used in the morgue, to have this facility fully operational?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, Mr. Speaker, there is a problem with the cadaver lift, which is not user-friendly. Currently we are considering how to address it, and at present we are using morgue attendants and porters when necessary to assist the pathologists with moving the cadavers. This is unfortunate, but once we come up with a solution, I will share it with the Member.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, we move to Question 72, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 72

No. 72: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation whether the operating theatre and laboratory in the new George Town Hospital are functional at this time.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: The operating theatre and laboratory are in the process of being commissioned at this time. The commissioning includes work such as:

- installation of medical equipment, furniture and furnishings, telephones, computers, shelving, accessories, etc.;
- testing and fine-tuning of the air-conditioning and medical gas systems, fire sprinklers, alarms, emergency power and communication devices;
- placement of medical devices, carts, surgical supplies and disposables;
- training of staff on newly-installed equipment;
- cleaning and sterilising;
- inspection of completed buildings and life safety systems by Government Inspectors.

Mr. Speaker, the commissioning of a state-of-the-art operating theatre and laboratory is a complicated and time-consuming undertaking. I am sure that Honourable Members will appreciate it must be done right. It is anticipated, however, that the operating theatre will be functional in July or August of this year, and the laboratory in August or September.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Minister tell the House if, in those areas listed where tests have been carried out, there have been any problems, and if any remedial work has been commissioned to rectify these problems?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Nothing major, Mr. Speaker, probably some—as they move in, I understand there are bits and pieces that need to be tidied up as they go along, but this will happen, as I have said earlier.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Minister tell the House, of the six areas listed, at what stage are we now in terms of this list? More specifically, let me ask if checks have been carried out in the areas dealing with the gases and the air conditioning, and if everything is operational and acceptable?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, I have been informed by the project manager that the medical gases are being tested at this time. Testing of the air conditioning in the buildings that have been completed and commissioned or turned over to us is now complete.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Minister say, in cases in which installation and adjustments need to be made or further rectified, who assumes financial responsibility for the rectification?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: The contractor, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Minister tell the House whether the Government is going to receive some kind of warranty on this work, and on the equipment installed; and if so, what is the duration?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, the contractor provides a six-month defect liability, and the actual equipment is traditionally, I think it is a one-year guarantee.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I recall being told that the hospital project would be completed some time in October of this year. Can the Minister confirm whether the project is still on schedule?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, Mr. Speaker, in August or the first part of September, if everything continues to go well—that is the construction phase—but once that is finished, then the commissioning, which is now going on with some of the buildings, and the new equipment and supplies that need to be put in to make it fully functional, will probably be later this year or early next year, by the time everything is put in place and fully commissioned.

The Speaker: Any further supplementaries? No further supplementaries, question number 73 standing in the name of the Elected Member for North Side.

QUESTION 73

No. 73: Mrs. Edna M. Moyle to ask the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture to give a breakdown of the total cost to date of work done on the Old Man Bay playing field.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The total cost of work done to date on the Old Man Bay playing field is as follows:

Actual Expenditure, broken down by year: 1996—$108,485; 1997—$152,839; 1998—$35,866. This takes it up to June of 1998, a total of $297,190.

Actual Expenditure, broken down by work item:

➤ Site clearing, filling, topsoil	$201,746
➤ Toilet block	$ 60,449
➤ Design and management	$ 4,733
➤ Misc.	$ 4,425
➤ Lighting	$ 25,837

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 23 (7) & (8)

The Speaker: Before I take a supplementary, I would entertain a motion for the suspension of Standing Order 23(7) and (8) so we can take Question Time beyond the hour of 11.00.

The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, I beg to move the suspension of the relevant Standing Order so we can continue Question Time.

The Speaker: Is there a seconder? Seconded by the Member for North Side.

The motion has been moved and seconded. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 23(7) & (8) SUSPENDED TO ENABLE QUESTION TIME TO CONTINUE BEYOND 11.00 AM.

The Speaker: Question Time continues. The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Mr. Speaker, I wonder if the Honourable Minister could tell us what the total cost of this project will be, since we have already expended $297,000 on the project to date?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Mr. Speaker, the answer: $414,500.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, can the Honourable Minister say what the extra expenditure will be spent on?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Mr. Speaker, it is my instructions that the estimated outstanding payments are as follows: Seeding, fertilisation, field establishment, temporary irrigation, and the required three months' maintenance: $36,150; Lighting, $39,000; Fencing 8-10', $18,500; Balance on toilet block, $16,398; Contingency, $7,262. Total: $117,310

The Speaker: Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The lady Minister has just referred to lighting of the field, an additional $39,000. We have already spent $25,83. To provide that field with lights I had to vire $35,000 from my senior citizens' centre vote, which I was told was going to be the cost to light the Old Man Bay playing field. I am a little confused over this $25,837 plus an additional $39,000. I would like to know where the funds are going to come from.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Mr. Speaker, I believe there was a sum of $155,000 in the 1998 budget, and the figures I am giving were provided by Public Works, which gave a total lighting and electrical cost of $64,837.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Mr. Speaker, I thank the Honourable Minister for that very clear answer. This is why we have problems in Finance Committee—because the truth is not told. That Minister was told by representatives in this Parliament that it would cost $35,000 to light that field, and I requested that Finance Committee vire that $35,000. I was told that was the total cost to light the Old May Bay playing field, and that is what the Minister was told during Finance Committee. Now she is being told it will be a total cost of $60,000. Are we going to—

The Speaker: Would you please turn it into a question?

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: I will do that in a minute, Sir. But I am really fed up with being misled, particularly when it comes to projects for my District.

I wonder if the Honourable Minister—

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Mr. Speaker, on a point of clarification, Sir.

POINT OF CLARIFICATION

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I appreciate the fact that the lady Member for North Side made it abundantly clear that the information was based on information I received; but the last statement did not make that clear, and I would certainly like to make it known that this Minister has no intention of misleading this House.

The Speaker: The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Mr. Speaker, I am not trying to get into a battle of words. I did not mean that to the lady Minister, because if I did, I would not have made it clear that I knew she had been informed.

I would like to ask the Honourable Minister at this time if she could give the House the square footage of the toilet block at the Old Man Bay playing field, that has cost us over $60,000.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Mr. Speaker, I do not have that answer here. I can undertake to give it to the Honourable Member if she so desires.

The Speaker: The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I would like to thank the Honourable Minister, and I look forward to receiving the reply, which I know she will bring at an early time, or send to me. But I wonder if the Honourable Minister would undertake to investigate why she, as the Minister responsible for Sports, informed Finance Committee that the lighting for the Old Man Bay playing field would only cost $35,000, when now she is being told it is going to cost some $60,000. What is the reason for this misinformation?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I have no problem giving the undertaking as far as the Ministry is concerned, finding that out. But I am also sure that the lady Member can assist me in this task, as she is a Member of the Public Accounts Committee and it may be a matter for the Auditor General as well.

The Speaker: The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I accept that challenge, and I will. I wonder if the Honourable Minister could tell me what has cost $25,837 for lighting at the Old Man Bay playing field so far?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Mr. Speaker, I am informed that is the lighting proposed to put up there. Unfortunately, I am not in a position to say what type of lighting. I requested someone from Public Works to come, but as you can see, I have no one from Public Works.

The Speaker: The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Mr. Speaker, I understand the lady Minister's dilemma, but it says, "Actual Expenditure broken down by work item." We have spent over $25,000 on lighting. Maybe her Permanent Secretary could give us some idea of what was requested of Public Works for that amount of money, relating to lighting of the field.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Mr. Speaker, I am informed by my Permanent Secretary that this is the actual cost of the lighting equipment. In fact, it has not been erected yet. In addition, he says the Member is aware of this situation.

The Speaker: The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you. I wonder if the Honourable Minister could repeat the last part of her reply.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Sorry, Mr. Speaker. The last part of my statement was that I was instructed the Member was aware of the situation, meaning the lights are not yet installed on the field.

The Speaker: The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Mr. Speaker, this gets better and better. I must clear this up, Sir. The last discussion this Member had on the lighting for the playing field was the virement of $35,000, to enable lights to be placed on that field. I asked if they had been ordered and I was told yes. But that is all the information I have relating to those lights.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Honourable Minister confirm that when this project is completed it will be of the official size of a football field?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: That is my understanding, Sir.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? If not, that concludes Question Time for this morning. Item number 3 on today's Order Paper, Statements by Honourable Members/Ministers of the Government, a statement by the Honourable First Official Member.

STATEMENTS BY HONOURABLE MEMBERS/ MINISTERS OF GOVERNMENT

MILLENNIUM BUG

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Speaker, in common with most jurisdictions around the world, this Government believes that the 'Year 2000 Problem' (the so-called 'Millennium Bug') is a serious problem facing the global economy. Unless urgent corrective action is taken, this problem will cause many computer systems to fail some time between now and the start of the new millennium. There is no doubt that it will affect the Cayman Islands. Its impact cannot be underestimated.

Mr. Speaker, it is vital that the public appreciates that there is the potential for problems to occur in any type of equipment that contains date or time measuring devices or software. Examples of these so-called 'embedded systems' include medical equipment, telephone exchanges and communications devices, control valves in power stations and pipelines, and monitoring systems in many types of vehicles and transport. Failures will occur as we approach the year 2000. However, if we take action now, we can avert major problems and enhance our reputation as a safe country in which to invest and do business.

Mr. Speaker, the Government cannot solve this problem alone. It does not even carry the lion's share of the task. We will only succeed through the efforts of businesses and other organisations. But government is about leadership and we can help in three key ways:

- First, by raising awareness of the need for action in the private sector. This responsibility has been given to the Information Technology Strategy Unit, and the Director is already working closely with the Chamber of Commerce and similar organisations to achieve this aim. The Monetary Authority has also taken the initiative in their specialist sector of the economy. I understand some of the banks are also making good progress in this.
- Second, by dealing with the specific problems in the public sector. A high-level committee, chaired by the Director of Computer Services, has been set up to co-ordinate the efforts of individual Government departments. In addition, a Project Officer will shortly be appointed to spearhead our efforts.

- Third, we will take whatever action is necessary to ensure that the national and international infrastructure is as ready as it can be.

We urge the whole community to follow Government's example by taking this problem seriously. They should:

- inventory all their systems;
- assess the vulnerability of each system;
- plan how they are to achieve Year 2000 compliance;
- implement their chosen solutions;
- thoroughly test these solutions to make sure they work; and then
- bring them into use.

Finally, businesses and individuals must accept how dependent they are upon other people's systems. It may be your supplier's inventory control system, your customer's accounting system, your bank's automatic teller machine, or your airline's reservation system. Ask them how their 'Year 2000' preparations are progressing. Develop contingency plans to deal with possible failures, thereby minimising your risk.

This problem will not simply go away, but with a structured commitment to addressing it, we can ensure that our businesses will continue to operate fully after 1 January 2000.

Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: I think this would be a convenient time to take the morning break. We shall suspend for fifteen minutes.

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 15/98

LITTER CONTROL

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I must rise to say a few words. I have to support this motion because I know that litter and littering of the Islands is something that is really serious. I have noticed so many places that have been littered with garbage. It seems that the people want to have some access to a little by-path where they can drive in and dump their garbage or litter.

I agree that the laws should be revised and strengthened. I believe also that if there were a way to educate the people about handling their litter, and to let them know the danger of messing up the place, it would help a lot. With this, Mr. Speaker, I support the motion and commend the Member for bringing it to this Honourable House. Thank you.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak?

The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: I rise to offer my support to the motion before the House. I am pleased to say that Government has accepted and will take the responsibility for providing this service at SafeHaven. Thank you.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? If no other Member wishes to speak, does the Honourable mover wish to exercise his right of reply?

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I want to first thank all Honourable Members who spoke in support of the motion, and those who gave their tacit support. I was very encouraged by the enthusiastic debate this motion generated. I believe that all Members are now conscious that we have to address this very important matter. It is a matter that is not going to go away.

We also have to change the mentality in the country. The private sector has the attitude that this is Government's problem, so the cost has to be borne by Government. I believe it is such a serious problem, and we have seen from the Public Accounts Committee report that it is not a revenue-earning programme. In 1996, Government spent something like $888,000 for sending items off the Island, while not collecting enough revenue to take care of even the transportation costs.

Lots of cans, bottles, oil, batteries, plastics and cartons and other items are brought into this country. They are used, and then it is Government's responsibility to haul it to the Government dump, and take care of disposing of it. I believe the only way we can do it is through legislation—provisions have to be put in place to ensure that the cost of this problem is borne by everyone in this country.

Government does a good job with the collection of garbage, keeping our roadways and, to a certain extent, our districts clean by having crews for this purpose. There is nothing wrong with that. I commend the Government in this area. But a consciousness has to be created among our people, and the people who work among us, that is not okay. When someone uses something and just pitches it out of a car window, or when ready to dispose of a durable item like a refrigerator or stove, finds a vacant piece of property and dumps it, hoping to forget it, . . . this will no longer be tolerated. That mentality has to be curbed in this country, and I believe it has to come through a number of means, that is, we have to first punish or discipline those people who abuse the environment by littering. We also have to educate the population, and especially our kids, about the importance of maintaining a clean environment.

As the Chairman of the Public Accounts Committee I tabled its report for 1996. In that report we mentioned that there was a recently appointed recycling officer attached to the Department of Environment, and that an educational campaign would be mounted. I am not sure how much has been done in this area. I, for one, have not seen a whole lot of publicity as far as creating a consciousness in people with respect to litter.

I believe we, as a Government, have to first establish a proper, well thought-out waste management policy. I believe we have to impose fines on people who litter our environment—the physical as well as the marine environment. The easiest way to do this would be to empower our police officers, our environmental health officers and public health officers, so that when they see abuse in this area they are able to issue a ticket. Persons will then be required to pay a fine at the courts of-fice. At present they have to first catch the person. I have never heard of them having the authority to issue a ticket. A lot of time is wasted in court either prosecuting or attempting to defend a position. To date, it has not worked.

I was told we had one defendant actually brought before the courts in this area. I think the Honourable Minister for Tourism some years ago was able to impose, through the Marine Conservation Law, a fine for a cruise ship dumping effluent in our harbour. But there has to be instilled a fear and a consciousness that this behaviour among us is no longer acceptable. We have to implement a proper recycling programme. I am told that if we do have a proper programme, most items we create here by way of waste can be reused in some fashion, thus eliminating the amount of items that have to be shipped off the Island.

In my opening remarks I recommended that the simplest way for Government to share the cost of a waste management programme with the private sector would be at the point of entry into this country. There could be a specific, I should not say a tax, but a specific fee or charge on every item brought in—that is, on every can, bottle, and automobile—because after it is brought in, we are responsible to make sure these items are properly disposed of. Government cannot afford to bear this cost by itself.

The First Elected Member for West Bay raised the issue of boats dumping in the canals. I recall discussing that issue when it was being dealt with. I am very disappointed to learn that nothing has been done in this area. I would request that the Honourable Minister for Environment advise his staff to make this issue a priority. I do not believe that the operators expect this service to be free. I think it important that we make this service available for boat owners who house their boats here in these Islands.

There are a number of programmes that could be implemented where the cost of litter control can be shared. I am aware that other countries have a 'highway sponsorship' programme, whereby private business and clubs pay for the proper maintenance of an area, maybe a mile or two of the highway, or an area in a district. It does work very well, and it brings to the consciousness of the public that businesses are involved and are being responsible by sponsoring these programmes.

I believe we definitely have to increase the fines for illegal dumping. The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town raised the problem this morning about cleanup of construction sites. I recall seeing litter from these sites blowing all over the place, and then it is up to Government to ensure that this litter is collected and disposed of. I do not think this is right. I think when we issue approvals for construction it should go with certain conditions—one of them being that the contractor or developer is responsible for making sure that litter created on the site is cleaned up, maybe on a daily basis.

I would also suggest that the issue of derelict vehicles be addressed. There are a lot of derelict vehicles that no one seems to have taken any responsibility for, and Government is then forced to go out and collect and dispose of them. I believe the onus has to be placed on homeowners, property owners, and vehicle owners to ensure that the responsibility is theirs for keeping their respective property or vehicles clean. If they allow people to ride in their vehicles and throw out trash, when they are ticketed it is their responsibility to say who the culprit is so it does not fall on them personally if they did not throw it out. The onus has to be placed on someone with respect to responsibility.

I believe it would be a good idea for us to—and this was a suggestion that was passed on to me—establish, in each district, an 'enviro-watch' committee. That committee would act as a watchdog to organise district cleanups and report violations they see occurring to the proper authorities. I would also recommend that we establish an environmental advisory council, chaired by the Director of Environment, staffed by people with some expertise in waste management and recycling and with a genuine concern for the environment as a whole. I would put forward two names to be a part of this advisory council. The first one is in the marine area, because of his concern for our marine environment. That is Mr. Peter Milburn. I have had a lot of discussion with this gentleman. He has been here many years and has the interests of this country at heart. And because he makes his living from the ocean, he has a keen interest in this area. I am aware that he is upset about some of the things he sees occurring with regard to abuse in this area.

The other name I would put forward is Mr. Marty Healy of Envirolube. He is a specialist in recycling. There are other members of the general public who have an interest and expertise in this area, and I believe the more people we have assisting in this area, the better for all of us. I am one of those representatives who does not have an ego, and who also is not very tolerant I see people playing games. A lot of games have been played, especially in this area.

I also believe it is such a specialised area that the Department of Environment has to be careful regarding who they recruit and put in charge of this programme. I get the feeling sometimes, and I have nothing against Government trying to assist in providing employment for some of our ex-prisoners and that type of thing, and I do support that programme, but I am talking about officers. It appears that the Department of Environment—and I am aware of a couple instances in which it became a safe haven for people who lost their jobs in other areas. These are not Caymanians, Mr. Speaker. These are non-Caymanian officers who just want a job and a salary at the end of the month.

We raised this motion while we were in Cayman Brac, and I want to say that it was not geared or intended for Cayman Brac. It was intended for the three Islands, because from what I can see, Cayman Brac has a pretty litter-free environment. They do have a problem with the location of their dump, but I understand that is being dealt with. It is out of concern for the environment of the three Islands. I am quite sure the residents of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman will continue to do what they have been doing with respect to keeping their environment clean. They seem to have a lot of pride in their environment.

I recall an announcement by the Department of Environment just after Christmas. If one wanted to dispose of a Christmas tree, one could drop it off at his district Town Hall. The Department would collect the tree and have it ground or recycled. The public could then go and pick up a bag of chips to fertilise and beautify their yards and homes. I was passed a picture just this week where those Christmas trees also appeared at the public dump. I do not know if they were taken there and dealt with regarding the chipping process, but I believe we have to be honest and have a genuine concern and interest in this area.

We cannot play games with our environment. So much depends upon this issue of maintaining a clean environment. I think one area in which the Department of Environment can help is to make sure more bins and containers are made available for public use. When attending a function like football or basketball games, and you are eating a Snickers or drinking pop and you look around for a place to dispose of it, there is nothing. There are no containers. The tendency, if there is no container, is to drop it on the ground, which means that someone has to pick it up later. That is not good. Like I said, I think if we can make more containers available—and it is not very expensive, with all the diesel drums I see around, it is not very difficult to get them cut, put the Environmental Health logo on it and put them around our districts where people can use them. Once they are filled, make sure they are picked up and the litter collected is disposed of. This has also been a problem, in that the dogs tip the containers over and drag the litter all over the place.

I think I have exhausted all I have to say on this very important issue. Once again I want to say thanks to the Minister for Agriculture and Environment who has accepted the motion on behalf of Government, and also to all Honourable Members who have spoken in support of this very important matter. I look forward to early implementation of some of the recommendations other Members and I have put forward in the debate on this motion. Thank you, Sir.

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Private Member's Motion No. 10/98, the Elected Member for North Side.

POINT OF PROCEDURE

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, on a matter of procedure. I am looking at these motions, and we have several very important and serious motions. The most important motion here is the one dealing with censure or revocation because it deals with a person's character and with a person's ability to perform. That motion has been circulated for a long time, and we need to deal with it and get it over with.

When we have a matter, which affects someone's character and their ability to perform, then I think it should take precedence over any matter in the House.

The Speaker: I understand what you are saying, but the Business Committee refers the business to this House. So that should be dealt with by the Business Committee.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order, on a matter of procedure, I should say, this House can direct which matter it deals with.

The Speaker: I have made my ruling on this. Let us proceed with Private Member's Motion No. 10/98.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, on a matter of procedure. Are you saying that you are not going to allow the motion to come forward now?

The Speaker: Not at this particular time, no.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Okay.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 10/98. The lady Member for North Side.

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 10/98

ASSISTANCE TO LOCAL FARMERS IN THE IMPORTATION OF SHOTGUN SHELLS

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I beg to move Private Member's Motion No. 10/98, Assistance to Local Farmers in the Importation of Shotgun Shells (and I changed the word 'bullets' to 'shells'), which reads:

"BE IT RESOLVED that the Government of the Cayman Islands consider importing shotgun shells for sale to local licensed farmers."

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I beg to second that motion.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 10/98 has been duly moved and seconded. Does the Mover wish to speak to it?

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: I will be very brief in speaking to this motion as I feel that the motion speaks for itself. All that is being requested is that the Government of the Cayman Islands consider importing shotgun shells for sale to local licensed farmers.

For years governments have put more and more money into developing agriculture in these Islands with a view to one day becoming self-sufficient in any crop we are able to grow in large quantities in these Islands. The Government has continuously imported pesticides, insecticides and other things required by farmers to assist in any way; feed for cattle, and various other items. I feel that importing these shotgun shells for resale to local farmers is just another way to help make the farmers' lives a little bit easier.

Those of us who are older (and I guess younger) know that shotguns have been like a part of the family for local farmers for as long as we can remember. There is a pest in these Islands, which we call a rabbit. For those people who tend to not understand Caymanian English, I will call it the Agouti, which is the correct name. This pest constantly destroyed crops such as cassava, sweet potatoes, and various others.

Shotgun shells used to be for sale in these island in the private sector. I do not know the reason why this was discontinued, but I am sure that in replying the Government will inform me. I know that the safety of such shells could possibly be one of the reasons and that is why I am asking that the Cayman Islands Government be the entity to sell these shells because we need people who are going to be responsible to see that they do not get into the hands of the wrong people.

After debating the Miscellaneous Provision (Fees and Duties) [Bill], and asking for consideration to be given to farmers on licensing fees, importation fees, and various other fees, it got lost and farmers were being charged for licences and renewal of licences. I had representation from the farmers in my district of North Side, particularly on the renewal of those licence fees where it had been increased to $100, and because it followed the format of the driver's licence, one had to pay for three years. They found it very hard to come up with $300 at one time. So I made representation to the Hon. Financial Secretary, and to the police.

I would like to thank the Hon. Chief Secretary for the amending regulations, which have now made licensing of farmers nil, and importation of guns for farmers nil. I would like to thank him for doing this in his normal way and for the consideration of the people of these Islands who farm.

I have had representation from the farmers in that for them to obtain a box of shotgun shells they have to buy a ticket. And depending on what time of the year, whether it is the high season or not, that ticket costs quite a bit of money. They have to pay hotel accommodation in Miami just to be able to purchase a box of shotgun shells unless they are lucky enough to find some friend who is travelling to Miami and willing to take the time to search for these and bring them back. I believe the removal of licence fees for farmers and the Government importing these shotgun shells for resale to them it will bring down the cost of produce.

We constantly tell the public to buy local. We constantly hear people saying that local produce is more expensive. In my humble opinion, these are the things that cause the cost of local produce to escalate.

I said I would be brief in my introduction. So I will end my contribution by asking the Government to look favourably at this motion so that we can offer more assistance to our local farmers who are farming under unfavourable conditions in these Islands. I commit this motion and ask the Government to look at it favourably. Thank you.

The Speaker: The motion is open to debate.

The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: While the Government understands the reasoning behind this motion, the Government has quite recently removed the cost to farmers on the importation of shotgun shells (shotgun bullets, I have been corrected) so that the importation is now free of any Government licence on it. The system as I understand it, and the Hon. Minister for Agriculture will deal more with that, is such that it now is working well with the way this is dealt with.

From the point of view of Government actually importing shotgun bullets, it is felt that this is really a matter that should continue as it is being dealt with now. We did take the point on the cost and regulations have been amended to that effect. So, while we understand the import and reasoning behind it, I cannot support this motion.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Ever since I have been Minister for Agriculture I have tried my best to accommodate and support the farming community of this country. Although I am saying so, I am certain that there are various farmers and persons associated with farmers who will agree to that. It is my understanding that a few farmers have been complaining in regard to the importation of shotgun shells. As a matter of fact, I have spoken to a couple and while I agree with them from one side, I have to disagree from the other.

The fact remains that we are aware that we do have a problem with what we call wild rabbits in Cayman; and we need to definitely assist the farmers to protect the farms that are disturbed. At the same time, I am satisfied that the necessary arrangements can be made for the farmers to acquire whatever shotgun shells are necessary. It is my understanding that thus far they have actually been able to achieve that goal and have been able to have the necessary shells they need.

What I will say is this: As we have done in another area—and we can term it as farming, or preserving, because I am speaking of the Whistling Duck where Government came forward and gave some assistance to a certain individual (or individuals) to try to preserve that bird—I will be happy if Government could give some assistance again, as we used to before, to farmers who are in need if they need some subsidy to purchase shells. But what I am not happy with is if we go and open this up to where the shotgun shells can be imported on an ad hoc basis. I think the way it is presently set up is good enough.

Hon. John B. McLean: I would like to explain, if the Member will give me a minute.

My understanding is that it is not something from the Department. It is an application which is a standard application, not only for a farmer, but also for anybody. You fill it out, get it approved and the shells, or shotgun bullets, can be brought in. That is my understanding. I see nothing wrong with that control. I honestly do not think that we should go ahead at this stage and change that. If, as I said before, we can assist the farmer, I think we should go ahead and do it, but I do not think we should change what is presently in place.

I would like to say to the lady Member that bringing her motion is her duty. I can only do what the Government is prepared to support me on. While I support my farmers, I have a duty also to the country. I honestly believe that we have presently in place what is necessary, and I have to support my colleague by saying that I cannot support this motion.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: It is a pity, when the Government deals with motions—especially Private Member's Motions—that not enough thought is given so that when Government brings its argument, whether agreeing or disagreeing with the motion, it would bring more salient points than what we have been hearing.

It was just explained to us that the system is such whereby anyone with a shotgun licence can also acquire an import permit for the importation of ammunition for such shotgun. The Government's position is that that is enough control, and to vary that system for the farmers would be allowing a situation to prevail whereby there would be no control and it would be, as it was termed, an ad hoc system.

For the record, and hopefully for the Government to understand the motion, let me go through the purpose of the motion and what it hopes to achieve once more. The mover quite ably made her point. But the Government was so busy deciding what position it was going to take it may not have been listening carefully.

The motion simply stated, "BE IT RESOLVED THAT the Government of the Cayman Islands consider importing shotgun shells for sale to local licensed farmers." It has been explained that even though the farmers can acquire the permits (and the price of the permits are now only $10), the fact is that many of the farmers have difficulty with the physical process of importation of these shells. No one is questioning Government's will to alleviate the cost to the farmers. The farmers are not seeking a subsidy to purchase shells. The farmers are simply asking for a centralised location, which would automatically have control over the sale of these shells, so they could purchase these shells locally rather than having to beg, plead or cajole someone whenever they are travelling, or when they travel themselves, just to buy these shells.

For instance, the Agriculture Department has an outlet where they sell various products in an effort to encourage farming in the country. There is also the Farmers' Co-op, which sells a lot of the produce from local farmers. If either of these two entities were allowed to import the shells and dispose of them to the farmers with some type of identification, then: (1) it will be established that the sale of these shotgun shells would only be to farmers; and (2) the farmers would have access to these shells more readily.

In the new Firearms Law (1995 Revision) Amendment Regulations 1998, under the second schedule, section 2 reads: "For the purpose of these regulations “farmer” means a person who satisfies the appropriate authority that he farms or manages land that is used for arable purposes or the rearing of stock.” So we know, by way of these regulations, what a farmer is and who a farmer is. It is therefore quite easy to identify those people who have some type of identification whereby they could purchase these shells at one of these outlets.

The point seems to have been made that changing the system that now prevails will cause less control. We contend that there will be more control because outside of licensed shotgun owners who purchase the licences to buy these shells, the farmers would simply have one central location to purchase. So, we cannot take the view that in doing it in this fashion it would mean less control, we contend it would mean more control. And it would make life easier for the farmers in that respect.

The Government has made no case for not accepting this motion. The Minister responsible—who did not answer first—says that he wants to support “his local farmers” but that he has to support “his colleagues,” and his colleagues are not supporting it. Therefore, although he wants to support his local farmers, he has to support his colleagues so he cannot support his local farmers. That is what has been said!

Mr. Speaker, without making a joke of this, and as the legal brains would say, “speaking generally” (that is the Minister's [for Education] byword), I would sincerely urge the Government, notwithstanding the fact that they have taken a position, to revisit the line of argument being brought. If they have another argument to bring, two Members have spoken there are three others on the Government Bench; if they have an argument which makes sense, we are quite willing to listen. What we have heard thus far—and I know the Government knows that what I am saying is the truth—no points have been made as to why the motion should not be accepted. If there is some reason that has not been put forward to us, . . . it is not that we cannot understand. If we understand some other reasoning, we are not saying that we cannot withdraw the motion, but we are going on the premise of the reputation made. We feel justified because we cannot see any reason that would cause any risk to any other type of wildlife or anything else. We do not see any security risks on the part of those who would be controlling the shells. There must be another system by which that could be operated, just like every other item that is sold by the Agricultural Department and/or Farmers' Co-op.

If the Government is not prepared to look at the situation again, this will be just another case of the wrong people bringing the right message at the wrong time, which unfortunately happens quite often these days. Mr. Speaker, I recommend the motion, and if the Government sincerely wishes to support the farming community it would accept the motion. There is no excuse if it is so minded to use anyone else's thoughts not to support the motion.

I know the mover will wind up. I hope the Government is prepared to reconsider and give us sensible arguments as to why not—because we have heard none so far. If not, I trust that those not directly involved will leave the Chamber so that the Backbench can win the vote.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: I rise to offer my support to Private Member's Motion No. 10/98 requesting Government to assist by providing shotgun shells for local farmers.

I know the mover quite well. She would not have brought this unless she had a request put to her by local farmers. I believe it is a reasonable request and a practical solution to an inconvenience the farmers are presently experiencing. If I were a farmer, and I went and got a permit to import shotgun shells.... Let me put it this way: No local farmer could ask me to take a permit and bring down a case of shotgun shells. We all recognise the seriousness of handling firearms or ammunition, and in most cases the farmer himself has to make a trip to Miami, or wherever he purchases these shells, personally pick them up and bring them back. If Government really wants to assist local farmers, the motion put forward by the Elected Member for North Side is a very reasonable, practical one.

With Government being the importer, there would be more control over the number of shotgun shells existing in the country. And in order to purchase those shells one would have to provide (and I think the Agriculture Department would be the provider) some type of identification even though the Agricultural officers do know most of the local farmers. They would fill out a request, pay some money and get their shells. I believe that is a very reasonable request.

I was a little bit disappointed with the Minister replying on behalf of Government. I know personally how keen he is to support local farming. I really am aware of that, he being a farmer himself. He does quite a bit of farming, Mr. Speaker, and for him to have allowed his colleagues to put him in this position—

[inaudible interjection]

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: It had to be colleagues. I know that gentleman well enough on a personal basis to know that he would have adopted the request. I really do know him that well.

I would really beg Government to reconsider the position because I think it is a very reasonable request. I don't farm, but I do understand we have a problem here with rabbits and that sort of thing. We need to be in a position where we can control that as far as farmers are concerned.

So I support this motion. I think it is a reasonable request and I suggest that the Minister for Agriculture maybe twist his colleagues' arms so that they would reconsider their position. Thank you, Sir.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak?

If not, does the mover wish to exercise her right of reply?

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I would like to thank my colleagues on the Backbench for their support.

I cannot believe that the Government is rejecting such a simple motion to assist the little man like the farmer—whom we claim to be so concerned about. This carries me back to the days of the old Unity Team: If you leave me, I am finished with you, even if it is for the betterment of the people of these Islands.

[Some Members' laughter]

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: My motion did not ask for any subsidy for farmers. The farmers in these Islands—and I particularly speak of my farmers in North Side—are too proud to come and ask for a subsidy to purchase shotgun shells, or a handout to assist them. I was not asking for the removal of any control.

In my humble opinion the Third Elected Member for West Bay hit it on the head. To do what this motion is asking would put more control in place because we will then know who are getting these shotgun shells. As the situation exists now, I can be a licensed farmer and get a permit. I can go to Miami and buy four boxes of shells. But only God and I know whom I give those shells to.

But if Government were to provide a place where the local farmers can go (and under this amendment to the Firearms Regulations, we have the definition of a farmer), they could go to this place and purchase a box of shotgun shells and we would know where those shells have gone.

The reply to this motion shocks me, in that the Government has totally refused to accept it. I cannot believe that a Minister in this Parliament responsible for Agriculture can be led by his colleagues and refuse to accept this motion rather than convince his colleagues to accept a motion to help those farmers who are so dear to his heart!

Mr. Roy Boddén: Hear, hear!

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Mr. Speaker, I will sit down and ask you to put this matter to bed, close the files on it by bringing it to the vote.

SPEAKER'S CASTING VOTE

The Speaker: The result of the division is seven Ayes, seven Noes, no abstentions, three absent. According to the rules, I have to allow the status quo to remain, so I have to vote against the motion. The motion therefore fails.

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 10/98 NEGATIVE.

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Private Member's Motion No. 11/98, Appointment of a Select Committee to Take Input from the Public on the Review of the Dependent Territories.

The First Elected Member for West Bay.

¹PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 11/98

APPOINTMENT OF A SELECT COMMITTEE TO TAKE INPUT FROM THE PUBLIC ON THE REVIEW OF DEPENDENT TERRITORIES

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, upon receiving the orders, or the agenda for the meeting, I spoke to you, as Speaker, telling you that I would not be ready to deal with this motion at present. I spoke to the Minister responsible for Social Welfare and said that I could deal with the one for Financial Assistance to the Elderly. It is up to the House what they want to do, Mr. Speaker. That is the position.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, as a result of what the First Elected Member for West Bay has said, I was wondering whether or not we could. . . .

Mr. Speaker, I notice that the Leader of Government Business is bringing back his troops, so I guess there will be a vote that is tested.

I basically wanted to find out if it is possible, since the Business Committee does not include all Members of the House, if Members who are now present can make a decision as to what the next motion to be discussed will be.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I think in the interest of time and expediency, we only have another twenty minutes left, the whole of that time will be taken up talking about what to do next. Since we are going into a Committee tomorrow and are back on Monday, I believe it would be best to adjourn the House and on Monday come back here. Very little debate can go on at this stage.

The Speaker: If that is the wish of the House, I will entertain a motion for the adjournment.

The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: The Honourable Leader of Government Business is trying to prevent a decision being made. The Fourth Elected Member for George Town has made a request. Regardless of what the answer to that request is, it makes no difference to close the House down now and wait until Monday morning because we may as well get a decision on the matter.

What he is talking about regards the way the Business Committee has set the agenda. If we look at the appointment of the Standing Business Committee, there was a Government Motion regarding that appointment which read: "BE IT RESOLVED that in accordance with the provisions of Standing Order 76 this House appoints a standing Business Committee charged with deciding the order of business of the House." And it has (a), (b), (c), (d) and (e). Section (d) reads: "provide a ready means of consultation between Members who are not Members of Executive Council and the Leader of Government Business, the Presiding Officer and Clerk."

The point with that is that while there is a Business Committee it is clear in this Government Motion which was accepted by this Honourable House that the whole purpose of the Business Committee calls for consultation with the other Members of the House. When the agenda was set there was no consultation. That is the grievance being put forward. Regardless of what may be said and what other rules or laws may be pulled by the Leader of Government Business we feel that we have a right to be consulted regarding the agenda.

We ask questions and Ministers have to answer, and they do this round-robin thing to find out which Minister can answer a question, and when, in order for them to put the questions on the Order Paper on a daily basis. Why not consult with us regarding our motions to see who is ready, and when, and what we consider to be the most important motions to be dealt with early.

We crave your indulgence, Mr. Speaker, to see that point and ask that you look at it in that light.

The Speaker: May I just ask Hon. Members one question? This other business appeared on the Order Paper on June 5, and every time the House has met since. Why was this not brought to my attention, or to the attention of the Business Committee prior to this hour?

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker—

The Speaker: This was on the agenda in the opening session in Cayman Brac, and every agenda we have had since.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, I hope that you are not referring to the motion that I raised with you, the next motion to be dealt with. As you know, I came to you and informed you that I could not deal with it, and we agreed that I would speak to the Minister for Health, which I did.

The Speaker: I am not arguing that point at all, but I am asking why we waited until this late hour of the afternoon to bring this discussion. Why not come into my office and discuss it?

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I can certainly state my case. I brought my motion in early because I thought it would influence the consideration of the motion, the position in which the motion would be considered. I felt that the motion was an important motion to clear the air. Although this motion is not a censure motion against the Government, it is a motion against one Minister of the Government. If we read what Erskine May says about a censure motion, it says quite clearly that it is to the Government's advantage to have that dealt with as soon as possible. As long as motions like this are in existence without being clarified it is calling into question the credibility of the Government, or the person involved. It would be better to have us get through that body of work.

The Business Committee is empowered to set the business of the House. Certain Members, like myself, feel that we were not consulted and that there is a slight disadvantage being given to this particular motion. I brought this to your attention so that Members would have the possibility to vote as to whether or not they felt it was important enough to take precedence over other motions or if this motion which arrived here at this House early should be the last motion to be dealt with during this particular sitting.

I am making a motion that Private Member's Motion—

The Speaker: I am not prepared to entertain a motion at this time. Let us get this discussion out of the way.

I would like to say from the Chair that it is my view that every Private Members' Motion is an important motion. Every motion has been brought and seconded by Members, therefore each and every one is important. The priority in which they are brought to this Honourable House is the responsibility of the Business Committee. If there is any grievance, certainly that can be adjusted.

The First Elected Member for West Bay contacted me, but I thought that time had elapsed between when he told me that and today. I apologise if it was too early for him. But, to say that only one motion is important, I cannot accept that. Every motion is important.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order, Sir. I did not say that.

The Speaker: I think we are getting absolutely nowhere. I will entertain a motion for the adjournment of this Honourable House.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker—

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Boddan: Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment—

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker—

Hon. Truman M. Boddan: of this Honourable House until Monday morning at 10 o'clock.

The Speaker: I have agreed that the First Elected Member for West Bay, under Standing Order 11(6) will speak to a matter on the adjournment—

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker—

The Speaker: We are now—

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker—

The Speaker: The question is that this House stand adjourned.

The First Elected Member for West Bay.

STANDING ORDER 11(6) RAISING OF ANY PUBLIC MATTER

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, I want to enquire of the Government what is happening to the rights of the public to use roads with access to the sea that existed for years.

There is a matter in my district that is very glaring at present. In Northwest Point, West Bay, a family—not just a family, but the general public—has been stopped from using this access to the sea in the vicinity of Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland Ebanks' Road, West Bay Northwest, Block 2C Parcel 160.

In this situation a gentleman bought a piece of land and the road existed with access to the beach. He has now blocked the road by dumping several loads of marl on it. Other members of the public in that area are affected and stopped from using the right-of-way that existed for as long as 90 year old people can remember. It may be that the Prescription Law applies in this case and the Minister should now declare that road public.

I know that the Lands Department has informed the Ministry of the situation and I am asking the Minister responsible to deal quickly with the matter I am raising. We all know that nothing can get more heated in this country than a land argument. I would not want to see that develop in this case. In fact, I believe that strong action needs to be taken to inform the public as to the rights of access to the beach or the sea.

That road, from the main road to the sea, was there and was not being used except with limited access right now. Everybody used that access. I used it as a boy to get to the Barcadere to fish and to buy fish from the late Mr. Donald [?] Ebanks who lived also in that area. I am hoping that the Government will move quickly on the Lands and Survey request to regularise the situation. People in this House know that area. My knowledge of it was that it was called Joe Perry's Barcadere, or Mr. Lambert Hydes' Barcadere, or Mr. Donald Ebanks' Barcadere at times because he used to fish there.

This is a glaring case. The man has dumped three loads of marl in the area and Government should move post haste and make him remove it until they can deal with it. I am asking the Minister to move quickly on it to stop any argument. The two couples who live there are up in age, well over 70, and, Mr. Speaker, we don't want any problems. As I said, the one thing that can make for a heated argument is an argument over land. I don't want that to happen.

I stand by these people, and I know other representatives do. I know that people in Northwest Point, Justices of the Peace and other people, people as old as 90 years of age, know of that road being there.

Thank you for your indulgence, Mr. Speaker. I ask the Minister to move on this as quickly as possible.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: I take the Member's point, and would just like to say to him and to the House that my Honourable colleague, Mr. Thomas Jefferson, did bring it to my attention and we are working on it. We will definitely take the necessary steps because I too do not want to see anything go wrong there. We will do whatever we can to make sure that it is corrected.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: I thank the Minister. I don't know who else raised the matter to him, but that matter had been raised since early this year and I do know that the Lands and Survey wrote to him in April. So, to stop anything untoward happening there, they must move as quickly as possible to deal with it.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Just to extend the argument being put forward, there are several other locations, especially on the Seven Mile Beach, where either six foot or twelve foot access exists. I think you, sir, are very much aware from your tenure at the Central Planning Authority. I would just ask the Minister, since there is some focus in that area, to have the necessary agencies identify these locations and ensure that there is proper access for the public. We hear from time to time where there are problems and certain attempts have been made to block them. So if the Minister could also look into this at the same time, and perhaps give a public statement identifying these access areas so that the public will know where they can have safe passage through to Seven Mile Beach with those given areas.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: I rise to add my support to the request for a prompt resolution to this matter. It is a matter which has been lingering for some time and, as the First Elected Member for West Bay said, the residents in that area are quite heated at present. I think in the interest of good order it should be resolved as soon as possible. I support this request.

Hon. John B. McLean: I have given the undertaking to deal with the matter the Member has just put forward. But I would like to point out that most of the accesses on Seven Mile Beach have signs. I think this is an isolated case. We will deal with this because I would not like to see any problems come there either. I sympathise with the Member who actually raised it. The only point I made is that my colleague had brought it to my attention and we are definitely dealing with it.

The Speaker: I shall put the question that this House adjourn until 10 o'clock on Monday. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. And I call to Members' attention that there will be a Select Committee here tomorrow on the Immigration Law and the Election Law.

AT 4.24 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10 AM, MONDAY, 22 JUNE 1998 (TO ENABLE SELECT COMMITTEES TO MEET ON FRIDAY, 19 JUNE 1998).

MONDAY

The Speaker: Prayers by the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

PRAYERS

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived: We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth, that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly, that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy great name's sake.

Let us say the Lord's Prayer together: Our Father, who art in heaven, hallowed be Thy name. Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us. Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace, now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Item 2 on today's Order Paper, Administration of Oaths or Affirmations. Oath of Allegiance to be taken by Mr. Samuel Bulgin, Solicitor General to be the Temporary Honourable Second Official Member.

Mr. Bulgin would you come to the Clerk's Table please?

ADMINISTRATION OF OATH OR AFFIRMATION

OATH OF ALLEGIANCE

by Mr Samuel Bulgin, Solicitor General

Hon. Samuel Bulgin: I, Samuel Bulgin, do swear that I will be faithful and bear true allegiance to Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II, her heirs and successors according to law. So help me God.

The Speaker: Mr. Bulgin, please take your seat as the Honourable Temporary Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Item 3, reading of apologies.

READING BY THE SPEAKER OF MESSAGES AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: I have received apologies from the Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Affairs who is off the Island on official business.

Item 4 on today's Order Paper, Other Business, Private Members' Motions. Private Member's Motion No. 11/98, Appointment of a Select Committee to take input from the Public on the Review of Dependent Territories.

The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: I thought on Thursday, when we adjourned that I would be taking Private Member's Motion No. 8/98 which is on the Order Paper, Financial assistance to the Handicapped and other Persons in need.

The Speaker: Do you have anything further to say? (Pause) I can only repeat what I said at that time, the House follows the Order Paper as established by the Business Committee.

Did you make the necessary arrangement with the Committee?

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, no. I made arrangements with the Speaker when I said that I could not take the motion at that time. I can only repeat what I said on Thursday, Mr. Speaker, if the House desires that I move the other one, then I will go ahead with it.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning, Chairman of the Business Committee, do you have any thing to say on this?

[Inaudible interjections]

Hon. Truman M. Boddan: Mr. Speaker, the Business Committee has set the motion that is there. We will be sitting again this afternoon, and at that stage we could look at this again. This has been set down. If it is not inconvenient to the Honourable Member, it would be good if we just left the motions in the order they are because I know another Member, the Fourth Elected Member for George Town, had a request to change the order of the business. He is not here either. I think it would be better to just leave it the way it is, sir, if it isn't totally inconvenient to the Member.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

OTHER BUSINESS

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 11/98

APPOINTMENT OF A SELECT COMMITTEE TO TAKE INPUT FROM THE PUBLIC ON THE REVIEW OF DEPENDENT TERRITORIES

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, in the future I would like to see business, especially motions when we don't have a disagreement, placed upon the Order Paper in the order in which they are received.

Mr. Speaker, I beg to move Private Member's Motion No. 11/98, Appointment of a Select Committee to take input from the Public on the Review of Dependent Territories, standing in my name, which reads as follows:

"WHEREAS the United Kingdom Government, through the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs announced a review of its Dependent Territories;

"AND WHEREAS this Review affects citizenship, change of name, international obligations and other possible matters affecting these Islands;

"AND WHEREAS there has been no public discussion on the Review;

"BE IT RESOLVED THAT a Select Committee of all Members of this Honourable House be set up to take input from the public on the Review, make the findings public by a report being tabled in the Legislative Assembly, sent to the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs through His Excellency the Governor, and included in the Vision 2008 exercise.

"AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED THAT the Select Committee elect a Chairman and a Deputy Chairman."

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I beg to second the motion.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 11/98 has been duly moved and seconded. Does the Mover wish to speak to it?

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: I think all of us agree that the matters dealt with in the motion are of paramount importance to these islands. A review of the Dependent Territories by the United Kingdom must be considered important and cannot be considered frivolous. As we go about planning for the new millennium, the twenty-first century, we must focus on the policies that could emanate from the new partnership as announced by the United Kingdom government.

A few areas have been made clear—the change of name. I recall in May of last year attending a meeting of the Caribbean Development Bank Board of Governor's meeting in Canada with the Hon. Financial Secretary, my Permanent Secretary and members of his staff, in connection with the Dependent Territories which had several members of the Dependent Territories. Maybe they were all represented at that meeting, but in attendance at that meeting was the Hon. George Foulkes, from the Department for Overseas Development. One of the discussions we had at that meeting was the change of name and what we would call ourselves in the future. We suggested British Overseas Territories. That is neither here nor there, but it is made clear so far.

There are areas that need to be much more clearly defined. This has not been done as far as the Cayman Islands is concerned. For any partnership to work, there must exist a two-way street, as we say, give and take. One of the strongest parts of the speech by the Secretary of State, Mr. Robin Cook, dealt with international obligations as they relate to the Cayman Islands and our financial sector. We Caymanians might as well face the facts, we are not going to exist as a territory of the United Kingdom unless we are prepared to come in line with their international responsibilities.

However, for this new partnership to be real, to be true, to be also beneficial to the Cayman Islands, then there must exist real dialogue between the officials of the United Kingdom and the representatives of the people here. As representatives of the people we can only talk to the United Kingdom, have a sensible discussion to know what the people are thinking and what they want. If there was ever a time where the people in these islands needed to be awake and alert, it is now. If the review with reforms is to be a partnership, then it cannot be left to one, two, or five people; any discussion with the United Kingdom on our behalf should rightly be discussed with us before the discussions begin and positions are taken.

How else can anyone know what the people desire? While the Executive Council can have some knowledge of what is good for the country, certainly in any discussions about our needs, our hopes, our aspirations as a country and as a people, they should consult us first. When there are discussions such as the conference in London, Cayman should be represented by more of the people's representatives along with His Excellency the Governor. What this will do is take the load off of any one or two persons.

When it comes to decisions such as citizenship and whether or not we want it (that is, citizenship of the United Kingdom), or whether or not we want it without reciprocity are matters that need broad-based discussion. The British Nationality Act 1981 (or 1983) determines who are British Dependent Territories citizens. The matter of citizenship is not just saying whether or not we want reciprocity. The matter of citizenship is not an easy issue because the British Nationality Act and our Immigration Law conflict somewhat. The British Act was imposed on us and it might have taken away certain rights that we had prior to its coming into force. Certainly, in the meeting of the Dependent Territories in London I believe that these are matters that should be raised.

As the British Nationality Act stands, it puts the Cayman Islands at somewhat of a disadvantage because we cannot claim citizenship of the country we were born in. You and I, and all of us, Mr. Speaker, cannot say that we are citizens of the Cayman Islands because Caymanian citizenship does not exist. We can say we are a Dependent Territories citizen of the Cayman Islands with Caymanian status, either by birth or by acquisition. If we are talking about a partnership, then this has to put us at a disadvantage. We see it especially when we travel when we have to get visas for certain countries that UK citizens do not have to. For instance, to travel to France, we would have to get a visa. I know that is so because certain people are going there for the World Cup—not me, but I know it is so.

As a Dependent Territories citizen of the Cayman Islands, we are only being distinguished as not belonging, for instance, to Montserrat, Anguilla, or the British Virgin Islands, or any other Dependent Territory. If this review is going to be a partnership, if it will have some meaning and worth to us as a people, then take out the wording 'Dependent Territory citizen,' and define in our own law who is a Caymanian citizen as it is now defined in the British Nationality Act; as opposed to what is happening now where the United Kingdom has the say in the British Nationality Act that we get citizenship by birth, by registration and by naturalisation and what conditions have to apply to get it by any of the three means.

When we get it by any one of the three means in the present form, we are still a Dependent Territory citizen of the Cayman Islands, rather than being a citizen of the Cayman Islands. As we move forward to the new millennium, I feel strongly about having Caymanian citizenship set down in law. Why should we go into the twenty-first century in this disadvantaged position? If we are going to be partners, then we must be real partners.

Issues such as Constitutional matters or any such questions pertaining to the Constitution, issues such as the Constitutional needs of this territory need to be discussed at the level which includes as many people as possible. I am talking about things like citizenship and all these other matters.

The United Kingdom has also told us that we have laws on our books, which do not conform to theirs. They say, for instance, that we must remove the law against homosexuality. The question I would like answered is, How much say will we have in such a decision? When I say 'we,' that is the majority of people in this country. Who will discuss it? Where will it be discussed? How will the discussion be made? And will the question, Does the Cayman Islands want this change in its law? be put to us? While the United Kingdom government can say that it does not want this law on our books, it is not up to them. The people of this country would want to have a say, and want to take a stand against any such move.

The question we have to ask ourselves is whether or not we want the United Kingdom government to have such a hold on us where it would have the right to demand that of us. That is why, while no one wants to rock the boat on Constitutional matters, realistic and sensible discussions about our Constitutional authority in regard to demands by the United Kingdom need to take place.

The United Kingdom authorities have also said that we are affecting their international obligations. Is it not time, then, that we knew and understood what those international obligations are? How much do we affect them, and how much they affect us? And what exactly is expected of the Cayman Islands? Tell us all these things that we are expected to conform to.

There is much talk by United Kingdom officials in regard to the international obligations and how they relate to the Dependent Territories. Although the United Kingdom says its policy paper (or 'White Paper' as it is called) will not be made public until sometime in the next couple of months, there has already been quite a bit said, and reported in various financial papers, about their international obligations in relation to our tax haven status. In fact, recently, there was a new agreement signed by the OECD countries, which could have some far-reaching consequences for these islands. That is why it is of paramount importance that we have some say in what obligations the United Kingdom commits these islands to.

Specifically, there have been indications that the United Kingdom wishes its Dependent Territories to abolish a long-standing internationally recognised principle: that countries do not enforce the fiscal laws and policies of other countries except by bilateral treaty obligations. For example (and this is just an example), if the Indonesian countries, who unfortunately find themselves in financial crises, were to impose a 20% tax on the world-wide income of American companies doing business in Indonesia, Americans would not be obligated to enforce such a tax against American company assets in the United States. So, such a change in policy would not be in the national interest of these islands in the same manner as the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. Gordon Brown, recently indicated it would not be in the international interest of the United Kingdom to impose a 20% withholding tax proposed by Brussels and originally put forward by the Finance Minister of Germany. That proposal, they say, would have serious effects on the financial industry of the United Kingdom, in particular its Eurobond market.

Similarly, I believe that since I have the article it would be good to read it. It says in the Financial Times: "Mr. Gordon Brown, UK Chancellor of the Exchequer, last night threatened to block proposals for a European Union wide minimum tax on income from savings and investment. Mr. Brown said the European Commission's draft directive which covers the Eurobond market and the financial services sector would damage the city of London. 'We are going to stand up for the national interests,' he said, after a meeting of the European Finance Ministers in Luxembourg."

The report goes on to further say, "British objections to the directive which requires unanimous approval centre on its potential impact on the capital markets especially the Eurobond market, the British Banker's Association and other representatives of the city of London have warned of job losses and migration of financial services away from the European Union."

All I am saying, Mr. Speaker, is that while they say the proposal would have a serious effect on the financial industry of the United Kingdom, similarly, any laws which would allow fiscal enforcement of third party country policies here in the Cayman Islands cannot be in the best interest of peace, order, and good governance in this territory. If any proposals are ever made by the United Kingdom that our laws be changed to allow enforcement of third party fiscal policy, it would seem to me that such proposals must be put in writing by the United Kingdom together with their resultant implications. Put those proposals to our financial industry and this Legislative Assembly; and, those proposals, if any, should be brought to this House in the clearest possible terms so as to allow this House through its committee that I am asking for to obtain the widest possible input from the financial sector and any other concerned persons on the implications to our financial industry prior to any amendment, or new laws being introduced to give effect to any such policy changes.

I believe that I can speak for all on this side, and certainly Members here can say for themselves that the United Kingdom must understand that this House in majority will not endorse any experimental changes which will allow us to become international guinea pigs or pawns in order to assist their entrance into the European community and to meet their European obligations. It is quite obvious that it is those international obligations they are referring to in their proposed review of the Dependent Territories, although nothing has been said about it in these islands.

One paper published in March of this year quoted the Foreign [and Commonwealth] Office. I will read one quote from it. It says, "The overseas territories', the Foreign Office spokesperson said, 'must have a clear understanding of what the United Kingdom's overall international obligations are. It is essential that the territories conform to these obligations.'" It said the timetable set up for the completion of the review is the end of 1999 with an initial review of progress to take place at the end of this year, 1998.

It goes on to say, "We are still formulating principles and the paper will use much the same language as Robin Cook's speech to draw attention to the United Kingdom's international obligation and it will be incumbent upon each Overseas Territory to make themselves similarly compatible." Mr. Speaker, these matters really need to be discussed because they are not saying what these international obligations are—at least it has not been put to this House.

It is most important that this Government be careful in handling this matter. It is most important that it deal with it expeditiously whenever it hears about it so that the United Kingdom will not have an excuse to make any changes unilaterally by order in Council. We will not tolerate this kind of high-handed action. I don't believe that the country is in a mood to accept any such action.

I think that Mr. Peter Corona, Gibraltar's Chief Minister, hit the nail on the head when he said in his response to Mr. Cook's speech that while we are not sovereign independent states, we are not an independent country. The Cayman Islands is not. We must have a right for an appropriate role in international bodies. And it would seem that it would be much more advantageous for these islands to have more say, a meaningful role in the United Kingdom's discussions with the European Union in matters affecting our interests.

You must remember that through Orders in Council the United Kingdom can take away laws from us which they do not want, and I guess that means any law which affects their international obligations no matter how good those laws are for us locally. We have to be concerned about this situation. If we recall, the death penalty was one such law. In one fell swoop through Orders in Council they took it away and we had no say in keeping it.

The world is changing fast. We must ensure as a people that changes affecting us—whether it is citizenship, or any proposed change of laws to the financial sector in regard to international obligations—are dealt with according to what we as a people want, need and can live with.

During my time in Executive Council, and before, there were many good, strong laws put on the books that gave the courts and the authorities the right to make wide [investigations] when they can prove that a company has done something illegal. We have prepared ourselves and done well in regulations. Not that more cannot perhaps be done, but we cannot sacrifice the financial industry that has taken years to build up with a lot of Cupertino between the two countries because of the United Kingdom's entrance, or proposed entrance into the European community.

Because the financial industry is such an integral part of our economy, sufficient funds are being voted for its promotion and protection. That is a new effort, a new initiative to promote and protect the financial industry.

I believe that this motion is very important to us. There was a request that we remove the part where it says to send it to the Vision 2008 Exercise. I have not had time to talk to my colleagues about removing that aspect of it, but I do feel that this needs the widest possible consultation and input from members of the public. I hope that the Government can accept the resolution and move forward from there.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: This motion is a very important motion. It deals with an extremely complex subject, much of which has serious international ramifications. The motion deals with the Dependent Territories review and the three matters set out there in the second recital which says, “AND WHEREAS this Review affects citizenship, change of name, international obligations and other possible matters affecting these Islands.” In relation to the change of name, this has now been dealt with in principle, as Dependent Territories as he set out in this motion.

Secondly, I would like to deal with the question of citizenship. This has to be looked at in its historical light and the fact that within the Dependent Territories citizenship in all of those territories is dealt with through the British Nationality Act of the United Kingdom as the mover quite rightly pointed out.

I do not know of any Dependent Territory that has been allowed to legislate locally for citizenship. What basically happens is that discretion, which normally rests in the Home Secretary of the United Kingdom, is delegated to the Governor. The actual admission of Dependent Territory citizens for the Cayman Islands or any other Dependent Territory would be dealt with locally. In other words, the three areas which deal with naturalisation (which is the granting of citizenship to a person who is not a member of the Commonwealth), and the sections that relate to registration by discretion and registration by entitlement that relate to British citizens of other countries has been delegated to His Excellency the Governor. So, from the point of view that citizenship here is under a United Kingdom statute there has been the delegation of power to the Governor and that moves on to the Hon. Chief Secretary who deals with these matters.

The second aspect of this is what we should consider in the event of an offer of British citizenship by the United Kingdom. I should point out that the United Kingdom has not at this stage made any offer of citizenship, so the committee that will be set up will obviously discuss this. The time for making decisions other than the general view that has been taken will come at a later stage.

The statement I made at the Dependent Territories Conference in London was one that could be summarised in this way: As far as the issue of British citizenship is concerned, we recognise the importance of British citizenship for some of the territories, for example, Montserrat and St. Helena. Already it has been allowed to Gibraltar as it is within Europe. It has also been allowed to people from Montserrat since the volcano.

We are very small, the Cayman Islands, that is, and any offer of British citizenship which carried with it reciprocal rights would not be in the best interest of the Cayman Islands and not acceptable. The acquisition of British citizenship on a reciprocal basis would have to be decided after fully consulting with the Cayman Islands people on the terms. Where we would find it useful is to obtain access to European countries without needing a visa for each one, and entry to the UK through the EU

Immigration points. That, basically, has been summarised by the mover of the motion, and that was the statement we made at the Dependent Territories Conference.

So it says, first, that any reciprocal rights, that is, if people from Europe wanted to come into Cayman without any immigration restrictions for us to be allowed to go to Europe without any immigration restrictions, would be totally out. I have no doubt that that is the view of every Member of this House and of the public.

The other thing we said was that if we could have easier access to European countries, and the mover did mention this, within Europe once you have a visa to one of the European countries that is accepted in the other European Union countries, as I understand it. While there is not a very strict enforcement of visas in every European country, it is a necessity for a Caymanian going to Europe. It can take time to get some of these visas as it has to be done through the country's embassy. So it would be good if we could get some assistance here and if that could be eased. Many come here from Europe without the need for visas so it would really be similar rights as far as entry into the country goes, that permission would be granted easier. Naturally, it would help us if we could go through the European line going into the UK and other countries as this is normally a shorter and quicker line at the airport when entering.

The Foreign Secretary said that whatever decision the UK made in relation to an offer—and I put only an offer, there is no move here by the UK to really impose this on us—would be communicated to us. But I do point out that it is important to some of the countries who are Dependent Territories, the Falklands (in fact the Falklands already have it in a limited way), Gibraltar, Montserrat and perhaps several other of the Dependent Territories have different views on this.

The complex area of this relates to the financial centre aspect. This is extremely complex, as the mover of this motion (the First Elected Member for West Bay) knows. He came with us on one of the most difficult and complex negotiations that we did in London a few years ago on the Proceeds of Criminal Conduct Law.

International negotiations are never easy. Decisions have to sometimes be looked at differently after one hears the submission from the other side. But the consultation with the negotiating team, which is with the negotiations throughout, is the most important. There were times, I must say, that in this instance the private sector and the five Government Ministers may not have seen totally eye to eye on certain issues, but there was common ground for dealing with it.

As you know, in 1996 the Proceeds of Criminal Conduct Law was passed and we were the forerunners of this legislation. There was worry at the time—there always is with new legislation that has international effects—but, thank God, the decisions made in those negotiations have shown that the Proceeds of Criminal Conduct Law has been a stabilising and good thing for the Cayman Islands. All other Dependent Territories, with the exception of maybe two, have full legislation now in place. Some have only passed it quite recently dealing with money laundering and the proceeds of crime.

The Foreign Secretary has said that, and I am quoting here, “With the reputation, size and success of our offshore centres, come obligations to buy the internationally accepted rules and enforce the highest international standards of financial regulation in all of our overseas territories. All must play by the same rules, and those rules must be strict if we are to avoid the risk of territories becoming channels for money laundering or the concealment of the profits of crime. Criminal money will always find the weakest link and we must therefore constantly update our defences.”

I have not doubt that that principle is supported by every Member of this House and by the public. We have to fight the war against drugs, against international crime, against crime locally, and we cannot become a channel or conduit for money laundering or the concealment of the profits of crime. Mr. Speaker, that decision was first taken in 1982 with the agreement on narcotics that was signed between the United States of America, the United Kingdom and ourselves. The Mutual Legal Assistance Treaty with the United States of America followed it in 1985.

The principle to fight against drugs and against crime has always been accepted as Cayman's position. The business of this country is legitimate, it is genuine and we do not need dirty money in this country. We cannot afford to have dirty money in this country, and, therefore, we must continue to upgrade our legislation to deal with that.

The Foreign Secretary of the United Kingdom went on to say (and this is very important), speaking to the Dependent Territories he said: “You have made a lot of progress on this issue. All the Dependent Territories are putting in place better legislation on regulatory crimes. Some, including the Cayman Islands, the British Virgin Islands and others, have put in place up-to-date money laundering legislation and are finding that it does not detract from their success in attracting investment. They do not want to attract dirty money. They know the benefits of being more attractive to clean money. The Governor of Gibraltar, for example, has recently introduced money laundering legislation to UK and European community standards. This has transformed Gibraltar's international reputation, the highest standards of regulation are the best guarantee for financial success and the biggest draw to investors.”

Within this speech there is no talk of the enforcement of tax judgments. Indeed, the law on this has to be looked at on the two categories I will deal with at a later stage. There is the enforcement of tax judgments of other countries and the question of the illegal evasion—not avoidance—of tax in other countries. And the Foreign Secretary did set out a checklist of measures that they would wish to have in place by the end of 1999. I am happy to say that basically the Cayman Islands, and, indeed, most of the Dependent Territories have already complied with the vast amount of what he set out in this.

It basically deals with the Financial Action Task Force. On our Caribbean Financial Task Force we have already submitted to an audit of the country in relation to the proceeds of crime. We were the first to do it. It happened about two years ago. Our present Chief Justice, who is a lawyer, judge, and scholar of the highest standard, has always ably represented us. He was made an observer when the audit of the United States in relation to money laundering was undertaken by the Financial Action Task Force which is basically made up of the G7 countries.

With another year and one half to go there will need to be some minor legislation to deal with some areas that still need to be tidied up. As we develop, for example when we get into cyber money transactions of the future, areas such as computer fraud relating to the transactions that may come through the Internet or its equivalent in the future, there will have to be legislation to deal with this. The one area that is still outstanding is the updating of the company management legislation and this will obviously need to come to the Legislature in due course, but this is being worked on.

So it was good for the Foreign Secretary to specifically mention the Cayman Islands as being one of the leading countries in the Dependent Territories—and, indeed, the world—for staying clean as far as international transactions go.

The Speaker: Would this be a convenient time to take the morning break?

Hon. Truman M. Boddin: Yes, Sir.

The Speaker: Proceedings are suspended for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.35 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12.15 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Debate continues, The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Boddin: On the question of the financial centre I was discussing before the break this morning, the Government's position was stated in the Dependent Territories' Conference as follows:

“The Cayman Islands is an active member of the Financial Action Task Force through its membership of the regional branch, the Caribbean Financial Action Task Force. We are one of the best regulated financial centres in the world, a fact recognised publicly by the Caribbean Financial Action Task Force which will hold its next meeting in the Cayman Islands later in the year. Cayman was the first country in the region to volunteer to have a mutual evaluation of its laws, legal and financial systems carried out by the Caribbean Financial Action Task Force. The report concluded that 'The Cayman Islands have a legislative Common Law and Treaty framework for law enforcement in relation to money laundering, restraints on dealing with the proceeds of crime, confiscation or forfeiture of the proceeds of crime, access to information from banks and other financial centres, and for the exchange of information between the Cayman Islands and other countries.' Indeed, respect for our officials and legal process is such that our leading judge in financial matters, Judge Smellie, participated in the mutual evaluation process of the United States. He is also assisting the European Union with the United Nations Drug Control Programme in the Caribbean." That ends what our position was stated at there.

The position and any changes relating to legislation or policy would first be looked at carefully by the Hon. Financial Secretary and the Hon. Attorney General. It would then go to the Private Sector Consultative Committee which is a Committee set up by the Financial Secretary and has representatives from all branches of the finance industry, and indeed the financial centre industry. Not just banking, but trusts, mutual funds, management companies, lawyers, accountants and all those service providers who are in this area. As I mentioned earlier, five members of that committee went to the United Kingdom a few years ago (about three years ago) to deal with the negotiations in the Proceeds of Criminal Conduct Bill. Also, any amendments to the laws obviously come here and the public has input on them, and this House also debates the issues relating to them. So there is very good communication, both with Members of the House and the Consultative Committee. I should mention that many times the changes are complex and technical.

On the question of the enforcement of taxes in the Dependent Territories, in an article in The Wall Street Journal of May 21, 1998, our Governor said, and I quote because I think this should put our position beyond a doubt: "Cayman Governor John Owen says, 'It is still unclear exactly what is in the works. Certainly, no instruction [this is a quote from him] or anything has come out from the UK saying Cayman must cooperate with tax investigations.'"

The British Foreign and Commonwealth Office stated in it: "We are not in the business of trying to put the Dependent Territories out of business. We want to make sure that they gain the largest possible benefit from the financial services sector because that helps their economics and their sense of reliance."

One other area the mover mentioned is the OECD Report. It is specifically article 15 that the Member referred to. I believe that it is the recommendation which states as follows: "To remove, before the end of 5 years starting from the date on which the Guidelines are approved by the OECD Council, the harmful features of their preferential tax regimes identified in the lists referred to in paragraph 2. However, in respect to taxpayers who are benefiting from such regimes on 31 December 2000, the benefits that they derive will be removed at the latest on the 31 December 2005. This will ensure that such particular tax benefits have been entirely removed after that date." [page 56]

The gist of this is that they are saying that in relation to their members, by the 31 December 2005, which is seven years down the line, the benefits of tax regime should be removed from the member countries. One thing is very clear on this, and there has been some misunderstanding here, the recommendation I read applies only to OECD member states. There can be no doubt about this. The member states dependencies do not fall within that category and included in that are also the Dependent Territories of Gibraltar and Bermuda. So while it has relevance, there are two important aspects of it: We are looking at five years down the line in one category to complete; and we are looking at seven years down the line for the OECD countries to abolish benefits they receive from tax regimes abroad. I think that the UK's position, as the Governor stated, is that there has been no request in relation to the Cayman Islands cooperating on tax investigations.

This matter has been around a long time. It is going to be around for a long time to come. I think the benefit Cayman has at this stage is that several of the other countries that have tax, such as the Channel Islands, the Isle of Man, I think the British Virgin Islands, maybe Turks and Caicos, under the section that deals with dual criminality, have already implemented laws that commit for criminal tax offences—and I draw the difference between tax investigations generally, and tax evasion, so to speak. It only deals with tax evasion. We will see the impact of that as time goes on. In fact, you will very quickly see the impact of that (if there is going to be a serious impact) on the economies of those countries. So we are in a good position where we can watch and see what happens there.

The second aspect of it is that banks and trust companies in private banking and the trust business in this country, before they take on business relating to tax matters from other countries, as a general rule, they require a tax opinion saying that the transaction is a tax avoidance, not a tax evasion. This is the distinction I am trying to draw because tax avoidance is legally reducing the taxes. It is a principle in English Law that every person can so deal with their affairs that they pay the minimum amount of taxes legally required to be paid. Tax evasion, on the other hand, relates to directly breaching the laws of other countries.

So it will be a question of looking at what the impact of that is. If we are ever at a stage that that has to be dealt with, and as I said, it has been around and it is not going away, so we cannot believe that it is not going to be around for a lot of time to come. But we have always taken a position, and what is important is that this is a national issue. I do not believe that when it comes to dealing with international matters such as this that this House can afford to get into very long political debates. Constructive debates such as this will move the country forward, but it is important, because it affects the national interest of this country, that it is dealt with the importance it should be given as a national issue, which I believe Members here will ensure.

We have seen the passage of a fair amount of legislation. The Convention on Narcotics and psychotropic substances was passed about six months to a year ago. That put in place an international convention dealing with narcotics. Our Mutual Legal Assistance Treaty has been operational for a long time, and our Chief Justice is the central authority under that. We have the Mutual Legal Assistance Treaty and, indeed, the Drugs Law for many years has had windows by which information relating to drugs and the proceeds of drugs can be received from abroad.

So, when looked at initially, the OECD Report appears to be more frightening than it really is. It only applies to member countries, of which we are not. It does not apply to the dependencies. Obviously, it does have an indirect impact and I am not saying that we do not need to look at it, I am just saying that the impact is going to come much further down, if it does come.

I believe that with what the mover put forward on this motion, we have to look at the promotion and protection of the financial industry, and I fully support what that Member has said. Funds for the promotion and protection of the financial industry is a constructive way of moving ahead and I know that that policy is clearly there. Obviously, the more funds we could put in it the better it would be.

The question of consulting the public on major issues is one that obviously will happen.

The issue of the European Union, what Prime Minister Corona from Gibraltar said (and he had quite a forcible speech) is one that applies far more to Gibraltar than it does to Cayman and the other Dependent Territories. But it is equally important that we have to keep up with what is a very massive—and I mean a real massive—amount of directives being issued out of the European Union. We are not within the European Union but some of them could have indirect effect on us.

I believe, with what the Foreign Secretary said about our being one of the leading financial centres in the world, we must continue to stay on the cutting edge with our legislation and our policies.

The only other area before I go on to deal with the third point that was mentioned by the mover is the question of homosexuality, the death penalty and, I guess more generally, human rights. The European Convention on Human Rights does apply to us. It is similar in many respects to the International Convention on Human Rights. It is later, and somewhat more detailed. But there is a section in the European Convention that states that, in relation to issues such as homosexuality, concern has to be given to local conditions. As to how far that section can go to assist us, I am not sure. But it is the one section that would assist us.

The United Kingdom did, by a United Kingdom Order in Council, abolish the death penalty. I do not believe that any of the Dependent Territories, in fact, are going to voluntarily change laws relating to homosexuality. But what I can say is that the abolition of the death penalty which was looked at at the time, which a lot of people said would hurt us and that we could not afford to have this done and, as the Member mentioned, that it was affecting the local aspect of human rights, this is something that I do not see anyone being brave enough to bring an amendment to this House. So in the end it may or may not (I don't know), follow the abolition of the death penalty. But we are a very religious and moral community and my personal reading—and I notice the Third Elected Member for West Bay and I once took a position on abortion that we stood alone on which, when looked at by the public, confirmed our views and the legislation, or rather the views of the vast majority of Members changed that. The public just did not want it.

It is very important to get a feel of what the public does or does not want. However, the fact that the UK may bring our laws, or that law, in line with the internationally accepted principles of human rights is something that we will have to watch in the future and see what happens. But, like the death penalty, it is really not a matter of life and death—if I could put it that way!

I think that deals with those two aspects about as far as my notes show.

The third area that was dealt with was the question of Constitutional change. Having run in both the 1992 and 1996 general elections, and about every other candidate in here who ran in 1992 and 1996 took the position of no Constitutional change. As far as I go, that continues in my view to be the wish of the vast majority of people in the Cayman Islands. Obviously, this will be reviewed from time to time and what the Foreign Secretary, the Right Honourable Robin Cook stated in the UK at the Conference was basically this: He said, “Second, for the territories that wish to retain the British connection, the British Government will not shirk its responsibilities. Just as we respect the wishes of the people of the Dependent Territories to decide on whether you wish to remain British, so we also respect your wishes to elect your own governments and be represented by them.” That statement is probably 50 years old at this stage and it has not changed. Basically, if the Cayman Islands wish to remain a British Dependent Territory, a Crown Colony, then the UK will respect that. Indeed, they have a duty to respect that under the United Nations Conventions.

What I said at the Dependent Territories Conference was this, “For the Cayman Islands the Constitution works well and provides us with continuity and stability. This is especially important for the twin pillars of our economy—tourism and finance. Like other territories we have been before the United Nations committee of 24 on Decolonisation, and, like others, we have pointed out the overriding rule should be the resolution fundamental to the United Nations, that is, 'All people have the right of self-determination. By virtue of that right they freely determine their political status and freely pursue their economic, social and political development.' We do not see the need to change our Constitution. In reality it is a country's people and their positive attitudes that will keep it stable and progressive rather than any written document."

I would just like to elaborate on that because what it really comes down to is the duty of Members of the Legislature to keep attitudes in the public positive and to keep those moving progressively forward. The people make up a country and we are their representatives. My position in the elections, in fact, I believe the position of every Member here in some form or another, was that the Constitution would remain, that we would remain a Dependent Territory.

There have been changes from time to time and the UK will keep it under review. But one principle, which is important to understand, is that there will be no change, or there can be no change in our Constitution without the public's full input. This is normally done in a general election when it is made an issue—as it was in 1992. The United Kingdom, before accepting any recommendations from a legislature, will ensure that there is full and absolute input on it, as happened back in 1990 and 1991 when it was made an issue in the 1992 elections.

The UK's position has not changed for this Government. It remains as it always has been, as the Foreign Secretary, the Rt. Hon. Robin Cook stated. For the territories that wish to retain the British connection, the British Government will not shirk its responsibilities.

One other aspect I would like to point out because I recently attended a conference in the Bahamas that had dependent and independent countries there. What was very striking when the statistics were looked at, both as to the gross domestic product (GDP) and the per capita, is that the Dependent Territories are several times better off financially and economically than the independent countries. Indeed, when I heard the problems of many of the other Caribbean independent countries (the large ones and the small ones) who over the years had moved into independence, their economy had deteriorated which means that their people were far worse off than they were a few years before. And some seemed to have lost hope of trying to get back to where they were as a Crown Colony. I had to really thank God that our Constitutional status has remained the way it is. It has given us stability. It has given us a society that is far more crime free than any other country in the Caribbean or, indeed, the world.

It doesn't mean that we do not have to work on these things, but when we look at where countries that were really the gems of the Caribbean have financially deteriorated to it helps us realise that political change without the assurance of economic stability and continuation, and the preservation of basic and fundamental human rights. . . any change that does not carry that can cause the people of any country to suffer. It is so obvious all around us where they have reached. In fact, when you look at the GDP even of ourselves (the British Colonies compared to the French and Dutch, and even the US Dependent Territories), we are way ahead. I believe that we are ahead because of what we said. The continuity and stability of this country and its Constitution is fundamental to the twin pillars of the Cayman Islands economy, which is tourism and finance.

The last thing I wish to mention is (and this was mentioned by the mover) that it would be good if there has to be a political debate in any area to keep it on an even keel and preferably clear of the Vision 2008 exercise, and to keep that to what it really should be, progressive planning over the next ten years.

In summary, we are happy to accept this motion. We feel that the three points in it are very important. In fact, I should say that when the motion was filed aspects of the vision might have overtaken it. I guess we know that was laid on the Table a bit earlier. In relation to the change of name, that was a simple matter. In relation to the citizenship, I would just like to read what we said there, which summarises the position. In London we said, "As far as the issue of citizenship is concerned, we recognise the importance of British citizenship for some of the territories. However, it is not a major issue for Cayman. We are very small and any offer of British citizenship which carried with it reciprocal rights would not be in the best interest for the Cayman Islands, and not acceptable. Nationality should be a decision for each individual person. The acquisition of British citizenship on a non-reciprocal basis would have to be decided after fully consulting with the Cayman Islands people on the terms. Where we would find it useful would be to obtain access to European Union countries without needing a visa for each one, and entry to the United Kingdom through the European Union at immigration points."

At some stage in the future (and by that time this committee will be formed) the United Kingdom will make a statement on nationality. They will either offer it free of conditions, or with conditions, or perhaps not offer it at all. I don't know. But at that stage we can look at it.

The next summary I have is in relation to our position as a financial centre. That can be summarised by saying, "The Cayman Islands is an active member of the Financial Action Task Force through its membership in the regional branch, the Caribbean Financial Action Task Force. We are one of the best regulated financial centres in the world, a fact recognised publicly by the Caribbean Financial Action Task Force which will hold its meeting in the Cayman Islands later in the year. Cayman was the first country in the region to volunteer to have a mutual evaluation of its laws, legal and financial systems carried out by the Caribbean Financial Action Task Force. The report concluded that 'The Cayman Islands have a legislative Common Law and Treaty framework for law enforcement in relation to money laundering, restraints on dealing with the proceeds of crime, confiscation or forfeiture of the proceeds of crime, access to information from banks and other financial centres, and for the exchange of information between the Cayman Islands and other countries.' Indeed, respect for our officials and legal process is such that our leading judge in financial matters, Judge Smellie, participated in the mutual evaluation process of the United States. He is also assisting the European Union with the United Nations Drug Control Programme in the Caribbean."

Also on the question of tax, just recently in The Wall Street Journal, His Excellency said, "Certainly, no instruction or anything has come out from the UK saying Cayman must co-operate with tax investigations." I draw the distinction between avoidance of tax and evasion of tax.

Lastly, on the question of the Constitution, I believe the position to be what we stated, and I quote: "For the Cayman Islands the Constitution works well and provides us with continuity and stability. This is especially important for the twin pillars of our economy—tourism and finance. Like other territories we have been before the United Nations committee of 24 on decolonisation, and, like others, we have pointed out the overriding rule should be the resolution fundamental to the United Nations, that is, 'All people have the right of self-determination by virtue of that right they freely determine their political status and freely pursue their economic, social and political development.' We do not see the need to change our Constitution. In reality it is a country's people, their positive attitudes that will keep it stable and progressive rather than any written document."

The United Kingdom's position on that was clearly summed up when the Rt. Hon. Robin Cook, the Foreign Secretary of the UK said in relation to Constitutional status, "Second, for the territories that wish to retain the British connection, the British Government will not shirk its responsibilities. Just as we respect the wishes of the people of the Dependent Territories to decide on whether you wish to remain British, so we also respect your wishes to elect your own governments and be represented by them." That is the United Kingdom's position.

Lastly, I would like to emphasise that this matter in relation to the financial centre is very complex. It is very technical. It is not one in which all of the pieces that relate to different areas necessarily can be solved at one time. It is important for this House, and indeed, important to the Financial Secretary and his private sector committee to ensure that we keep politics out of discussions on this matter as far as possible because what we say here is looked at very carefully internationally. We no longer are the islands that time forgot. When this legislature speaks, countries abroad listen. So we have to be careful that what is coming out of here comes out positively and, as the mover said, is looked at as what is better for the country. I think we can best promote that, as the mover said, by promoting the Cayman Islands through PR work abroad, which requires money—trips such as visiting Brazil, London, New York, Hong Kong—that have been undertaken by the Financial Secretary and the private sector as a joint enterprise is important. Dialogue with the United Kingdom under the partnership has continued. We have to look carefully at the effects of measures dealt with to ensure that we do not take an impulsive reaction, but look carefully at the ramifications of how it affects us, how it affects our relationship with the world at large, with the United Kingdom especially (because we remain a Dependent Territory and that carries obligations with it). There is no way of getting out of that. We have to understand what they are and work within that.

I am certain that if this country takes a responsible approach to money laundering and the proceeds of crime and does not shirk its international obligations relating to these, what I refer to as, cancers, not only within our society but in the world—that is, drugs, crime—then this country will not only follow its Christian religious beliefs, but internationally we can play a very important part in reducing the international business of narcotics, the international business of crime and the laundering of money. And, as one of the largest banking centres in the world, it is our duty to do our part and to play our part in doing everything we can to reduce the plague of narcotics and the laundering of the proceeds of crime.

I believe we have done that in the past. We have had recognition by the Foreign Secretary of the United Kingdom in an international forum—and believe me, Mr. Speaker, it was an international form in London—and we have to keep building on it. Problems will arise, we have to look carefully at them and understand exactly what the problems are and do what is best in the interest of the Cayman Islands having regard to the interest of the United Kingdom and international interests abroad.

I think that God has been good to this country and I believe the path we are on with our fight against crime and drugs is a correct one, supported within our community. I ask Members to please take a positive approach to this because if they do not it could have very serious consequences. Our duty is to do what is right for the Cayman Islands having regard to our international obligations.

So I am very happy to support the motion and I look forward to the select committee. I believe that what will come out of that will be the positive way forward for the Cayman Islands and its people as a whole.

The Speaker: Proceedings are suspended until 2.30 PM.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 1.00 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.45 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Debate continues. The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I rise to make my contribution on the motion before the House, the Resolution of which asks that a select committee of all Members of this Honourable House be set up to take input on the review of the Dependent Territories, and to make the findings public by a report which should be tabled in the Legislative Assembly and sent to the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs through His Excellency the Governor and also included in this, the Vision 2008 exercise.

This motion is a reasonable one, and it comes from someone who is conscientious about the issues at hand. I think it is accurate to remark that what is proposed is the fairest and best way of dealing with these important issues, and all the matters surrounding them.

I take note that the Minister responding for Government made a request that debate on this be in a constructive spirit, with politics being kept to a minimum. Certainly, Honourable Members in this House are quite capable of debating constructively, as I would say that happens in the House more frequently than not. It seems, however, a little more difficult to accede on the second request, that is, to remove politics from the situation. This is a very political exercise. I can tell that Minister that because politics has to be brought into the matter, it does not necessarily mean that these politics are going to be of an adversarial nature, or that they are going to result in any savagery in the debate. I bristle a little when I hear people in a house of politics request that politics be removed from what is being said. That is well nigh impossible.

I think we have to say that irrespective of the position we hold, we should take care in how we express ourselves on particular occasions. I use that as the jumping-off point to say that there are many similarities between this side of the House and the Government with an issue such as this. But, as I will go on to articulate, there are also some differences (certainly from the point of view of the person speaking), but this need not be a frightening prospect. I will try to deal with the differences in a judicious, sensible and mature manner, and I believe that in so doing, it will promote a broader and fuller understanding. Ideally, it will narrow the gap between the two sides by demonstrating the importance of both the Government and the Backbench coming together on this issue, particularly as it is an objective of the Private Member's Motion to produce a document that can be forwarded to the Foreign and Commonwealth Office for their information.

The first point of similarity is that all of us, irrespective of the cut and thrust of debate and the fact that many of us (myself being the prime example) get personal at times and sometimes say things which should not be said, have as our objective the well-being of the Cayman Islands. In this debate that position is not an exception. We agree that we in the Cayman Islands have crafted a sense of destiny, a sense of well-being, a sense of making our own way into the world, which, while not unique, is under threat now, and is in constant need of review. When you set yourself up as one of the bankers to the world, it goes without saying that you cannot escape certain kinds of scrutiny. We have been scrutinised—we are constantly being scrutinised. But the records will show that every time we have been called upon, we have exercised responsibility, restraint and co-operation.

That does not mean that we will be unaffected by the developments happening in the wider world, or by the geopolitics of certain situations. We in the Cayman Islands have to begin to be fully cognisant of developments, many of which we have absolutely no control over by virtue of the fact that we are a small player. As a small player we do not speak in the wider forum for ourselves, but our position is mouthed through the metropolitan country of which we are a dependent. That puts us in an even more precarious position.

That being the case, there were many who welcomed the announcement by the Foreign Secretary, the Right Honourable Robin Cook, when he made his speech in London on 4 February about this new partnership. I quote from page 1 of his speech to the Dependent Territories Association, he said that “Britain wanted a modernised contract between itself and the Dependent Territories.” It is refreshing to note that he justified such a move by quoting Dr. Johnson, who once said, “A wise man keeps his friendship in constant repair.” Notice, Mr. Speaker, he did not say that if it works, don't fix it. He said, “A wise man keeps his friendship in constant repair.”

He used that as a jumping-off point to say that he was prepared, along with the Government, to explore this new relationship. Three categories were referred to Members of the Legislative Assembly to be addressed. Although when the report came out, the National Team Government put forward a position, and there was no mention of anyone else's position, it is not a matter I take issue with. I mention it only in passing because I believe that on this occasion the position of the National Team was not significantly different from the position of the rest of us who occupy these hallowed Chambers.

Regarding citizenship the Right Honourable Robin Cook said in his speech to the Dependent Territories, at page 6, that he was “exploring with his colleagues the possibility of granting British citizenship to all of those Dependent Territories who do not already have it.” He went on to say that “such a move would give all these citizens the right to live and work in the United Kingdom.” I quote him when he says, “There are complex issues involved in deciding the best approach. We are looking at the matter sympathetically and urgently, but we have not yet reached a decision. We will announce our final view to Parliament, but in the meantime, I would welcome your reaction.”

I take this to mean that he is talking about the reaction from the representatives of the Dependent Territories who were gathered at the Association Conference. In the absence of a referendum, or any empirical polling, I can only say that from representations I have had, and from discussions with my colleagues, our people would like us to take a cautious approach to any acceptance of British citizenship. Historically, we have never sought economic advantage by emigrating in large numbers to the United Kingdom, and even when we went abroad to study, the numbers who went to the United Kingdom were insignificant as compared to the numbers who went elsewhere, particularly to North America. In earlier times, when we were more closely allied to Jamaica, persons, like myself, benefited from college education in Jamaica. Geographically, it was prohibitive to get to the United Kingdom in the absence of any direct communication. And in those days, when we were [not] economically well off, it was financially prohibitive, almost, to reach that far. So there has never developed that kind of relationship. However, politically and culturally, our umbilical cord to the United Kingdom has never been severed. We are still a Dependent Territory, while many of the territories in the Caribbean exercised their option and have gone into political independence.

While it is not for me to say that the offer is graciously accepted, I would suggest, based on the feedback I have just mentioned, that Caymanian people are not interested in British citizenship. They would be interested, as I have heard articulated by the previous two speakers, in the ability to travel relatively hassle-free to the countries of Europe, where we could get some kind of exemption from the stringent visa requirements. I think we would be satisfied with that. The bottom line is. . . and I note that contrary to what many people may think, the positions of the Minister for Education and Leader of Government Business are similar on this, and this is one of the few points there will be such a close similarity. We would have to be a little cautious on accepting any citizenship and certainly would not accept that citizenship if it carried with it reciprocal obligations, because. . . let me be crystal clear in what I am saying. It is not that we conceive any threat per se from the citizens of the United Kingdom. But we also have to bear in mind that it is the people of the European Union, so that while the British themselves may not wish to take advantage of any reciprocal rights, who is to say that we may not have hordes of other people from the other European Union countries. And, that being the case, we would be at a severe disadvantage, because remember, not only are there language barriers, but culturally, economically and historically there would be other differences as well. So in this case, I have to side with the Minister in cautioning any acceptance of British citizenship without understanding the full ramifications.

Quite frankly, Caymanians at this stage would prefer to be left alone, and would be happy if some arrangement could be worked out, as I said, in which we could benefit from the visa exemptions.

Not surprisingly, I differ with the Minister when it comes to the business of human rights. I do not feel content to rely on the European Convention and the International Convention of Human Rights as espoused by the United Nations. I would be happy to have our own instrument. In this regard, the old adage, "Mother may have, and father may have, but God bless the child who has his own" is very apt, and very relevant. If I interpret the section of the Hon. Robin Cook's speech correctly where he says, "I believe that those territories that choose to be British must at least abide by the same basic standards of human rights, openness and good government we expect of ourselves, and being British means their legislation must comply with the same international obligations to which Britain is subject, such as the European Convention on Human Rights, and the United Nations International Conventions." I interpret this to mean that the Honourable Robin Cook would not have any objection to us having our own instrument, once it complied with the standards set in the two instruments quoted. I would be happy, and I know the Minister who spoke for the Government assumed the responsibility for this some time, I would be happy to know that we could get on with this business of developing our own instrument dealing with a bill of rights in this country. Every day as I walk the street people tell me of a necessity to have such an instrument.

The danger in not having our own instrument is simply this: To the unknowing or to those who cannot realise the means, how are they going to access the European Convention or the United Nations to seek their protection? During the luncheon interval I took a walk to the Post Office and met a gentleman who had a problem. He told me he had to write to the Foreign and Commonwealth Office. Fortunately the problem was resolved to his satisfaction, but it had to do with a matter of domicile, and it called into question a basic human right—someone had been here for twenty years and had been denied certain things that many of us take for granted. So I would be happy to develop within this country our own instrument. We could then use that instrument to educate our people, beginning from the primary school.

I have to remark on this again. I am not one of those West Indian people who thinks the United States of America is heaven. What I like about it is that every citizen, however humble, knows what his or her rights are. Contrary to many people, I think there is nothing to fear, because on the one hand, we have to promote the rights, and on the other hand, we promote the responsibilities. One cannot take a one-sided approach and say we have the rights but no responsibilities. I look forward to that development.

As far as constitutional changes go, I make the case—and it is a unique case—that the Cayman Islands has used colonialism to its benefit. One of these days when this country is mature and when I am more certain than I am now that I will not get persecuted, this is the legacy I would like to leave. I have crafted a political history in which I made the case—and when I showed it to the eminent Professor Nettleford he was very interested and indeed enthused with this novel approach. I argued that what the Cayman Islands has done is develop a concept which I call 'voluntary colonialism' and used it to their advantage, so much so that the Cayman Islands is envied, not only by other Caribbean countries who went into independence, but by the developed world.

The thesis is basically this: At a time when Caymanians could have advocated and received political independence, they chose to go the unique route—because we were the ones who developed, initiated, invented, the Crown Colony system—and they turned that system into what has literally become an economic windfall. I am saying, Mr. Speaker, all through the 60s and 70s, when it was popular for countries to proclaim political independence, the Cayman Islands hung on to the metropolitan country and as a result of that crafted a financial and economic system which is now the envy of the world. That is why we have to be so careful about events we are discussing now.

The position is unique. I make the prediction that as time goes by it will become interesting to academics and development theorists, and will indeed perhaps be a model for other countries to study in an effort to determine how we have done so well with so few natural resources.

I say that because constitutionally, I do not think there is anyone in here—in spite of all the differences that exist between us in other areas—who is advocating any other constitutional status but that which we now have. However, it is prudent not to take that status for granted, and to always be in a position where we can review and change and do preventive maintenance whenever necessary. A country has to be much like a valued automobile—it works only for as long as it is serviced properly. If it is not serviced properly, you may think the engine is running well, and you go out one day and it breaks down in the middle of a very important journey.

So up to this point, we are content with our constitutional status. I think we are to be commended for exploiting this situation, for developing what I have called 'voluntary colonialism,' even when many developing countries in the 70s were cursing colonialists and neo-colonialists. We used the system to our advantage. I have to say that is a sign of smart people. I have to give myself some credit, too, because in spite of the fact that some people thought I was radical, I never departed from that system. When you travel, people do not ask you, 'What is the name of your Prime Minister, or Chief Minister,' or 'What colours are in your flag?' They ask you, on the point of entry, 'How much money do you have in your pocket?' Fortunately for Caymanians, we are spared some of the indignities that those people who opted for political independence have suffered.

I do not want to be mistaken for sounding self-righteous. That is not to say we do not have challenges or problems. In the past, we have surmounted these problems by coming together and working, narrowing the differences, and getting on with the business. The motion at hand calls for no less. My disappointment in the approach of the Government is the fact that the Government was not pro-active enough for my personal liking. When you get issues like this, I do not think it is good enough to wait and have to be forced into a position of reacting. I like to be on the ball first. I thought this whole business presented a good opportunity for the Government to get out of the Glass House and into the highways and byways and to hold some town hall meetings, and even to co-opt the support of those of us on the Backbench who might often occupy a different perch, and say, 'Let us go to the people and find out what they want,' and explain to them British citizenship, the option of constitutional change, this whole business. I think the business of what we call ourselves, while important, is the least of the issues confronting us. You know, Mr. Speaker, a rose by any other name is just as sweet. Whether we are the United Kingdom Overseas Territories or British Dependent Territories, it does not matter. We are the Cayman Islands, and we are an economic success, and we are proud to be! The name does not matter.

But I would have been happy—and I would have expected that the Leader of Government Business and his team would have taken the initiative to do this—to say, Let us go, so that we can be prepared when we are called upon, or that we can be pro-active and say, 'Now, Honourable Robin Cook, we know these things are being developed, and we know you will have to make your presentation before the United Kingdom Parliament, but here is what we have done, and here is what our people have told us they would like to see.' It does not mean that the views would be accepted, but we would have been in a position in which we would have been able to say the population of this country was widely consulted.

As a corollary to the position of the Honourable Robin Cook in both his address to the Dependent Territories Association and to the speech he made when he announced his Government would be taking a refreshing, new approach to the Dependent Territories, we have the contingent liabilities in the Dependent Territories, the report by the comptroller and the Auditor General. You have a copy of this report, Mr Speaker, and mention was made of it already in this Assembly on a subsequent occasion. I mention this to say that this report—and I gather it is being sold at one of the bookstores here in town—forms the basis of much that the Honourable Robin Cook has included in his speeches, and in press conference, and indeed, in subsequent positions taken by ministers of the Honourable Tony Blair's government. There is much in this that we can learn from, and much that is relevant now.

One of the things this report talks about is a national policy plan. As I understand it, this is not as important to the United Kingdom in the case of the Cayman Islands as it is in the cases of those countries which are directly granted aid by the United Kingdom. Nevertheless, it is my understanding that the United Kingdom government would be happy to see us develop a national policy plan. This is where I have to mention the Vision 2008 exercise.

It strikes me that this exercise can be, or may be, the national policy plan of the Cayman Islands, to the extent that there was an attempt to gain some widespread consultation, and it came to this House and mention was made of it. I think it should develop into that, and I know there is a desire not to make it political, and at this time I will conclude by this footnote: This plan has the ability to develop into a plan that does well for the country, and has the ability to develop into a plan that will enable the Cayman Islands to face confidently all those intractable problems we are now facing in terms of immigration issues, bill of rights issues, the direction we are going, what kind of education and training policies we develop. So I see this as a good takeoff point, and to me it dovetails quite nicely into that national policy plan that the Honourable Robin Cook, and indeed, the Contingent Liabilities of the Dependent Territories report says we should have.

As I understand it, there has been some concern expressed by some representatives of the developing countries regarding what the United Kingdom expects and demands of us, particularly those of us in the business of international finance. I notice that the Leader of Government Business dealt very gingerly with some of these issues. I will try to be equally gingerly, but I have to say that the Minister skirted some of the issues too widely, and in my opinion did not do justice to some of them. I say that because we have certain international obligations with respect to our position as a leading financial centre. I have said before that we have done much in the past, and are currently in the forefront of doing all we can comfortably to live up to these financial obligations.

I did not go to the Dependent Territories Association conference. This affords me an opportunity to tell the Government that perhaps the next time they are going, they do not have to take me. When I want to travel, I am in a position where I can always find enough to buy a ticket. But it would be good next time—Mr. Speaker, where I went to school, they taught me that it would be good to mix the delegation, so it is not only Government Members, at least some Member, whether independent or opposition, should be invited to go along also. That presents a balanced view. It need not be a negative thing. Certainly the leader of the delegation can sit with that invited party beforehand, if they come from a politically different spectrum, and iron out the difficulties. They would not presumably be going all the way up there to quarrel. But they would be going to take a unified approach.

I think it would strengthen the position if the Government delegation could say, 'We are so correct on this that we even have a Member of the opposition in the delegation, who agrees with our position on this particular point.' I remember well the last time the former Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and I went to the Foreign and Commonwealth Office. They tried to engage us in dialogue of this nature, and we were quick to tell them that we did not go there to discuss this, because in this particular matter our position was identical to the Government's. We were a mirror image of the Government, so they should not believe that because we said we did not like what the Government was doing in some areas, we were going to allow ourselves to be exploited. We realised that this particular path we had chosen was beneficial for the whole country, so we had nothing to say different from the Government's position on this matter.

It is clear that there are elements who, in spite of all the co-operation, in spite of all the responsibility we have exercised, are not pleased with our position. In a publication describing itself as "the professional guide to investment world-wide" under the name "International Portfolio," in the issue of March 1998, there is an interview with the premier of Bermuda, the Honourable Pamela Gordon, and the Leader of the Opposition, the Honourable Jennifer Smith. The title of that article, page 15—I have a copy, if the Serjeant-at-Arms would oblige, to lay on the Table and a copy for the chair—the premier of Bermuda is quoted as saying, "We are not prepared to play watchdogs, nor are we prepared to allow fishing expeditions. What we are saying is if you can prove that a company has done something illegal we are more than prepared to let you go through the books. But we are not prepared to let you go through each company that is British. That's an invasion of privacy—and it's insulting." The article goes on to say—this was at a time when the Dependent Territories Association conference was just being reported upon, as that was in February of 1998, and this article was written in March of 1998.

The preview of the article, 'Offshore Regulation Review,' says, "During the coming months offshore financial centres from Bermuda to the Isle of Man will be forced to account for their regulatory regimes under an international spotlight. A checklist of demands—including 'genuinely' independent law enforcers and a commitment to comply with international investigators —has been sent down from the UK motherland to her Overseas Territories. Reactions to the demands have been as varied as the spectrum of regimes currently in place, . . ."

Quite significantly, and quite interestingly, the position of the Leader of the Opposition in Bermuda is identical to the position of the Premier on this issue, meaning they will not co-operate with any attempt, and will not be party to any fishing expeditions, to any external pressures which will lead them to compromise the positions they have taken.

I was very interested in this whole business of the national audit office report. I surfed the 'Net' and was surprised and perturbed to find, in the House of Commons select committee on public accounts, in minutes of evidence taken Monday, December 15, 1997, some cause for concern to us in the Cayman Islands. Going through the 37th report of the select committee on public accounts, we need to pay some attention to these matters. The summary on page 3—and I have copies for the Chair and to lay on the Table when the Serjeant is back in the Chamber—I shall read from the report. "It is particularly worrying to note the Foreign Office's assessment that the situation on money laundering needs to get a lot better; and we agree with the Foreign Secretary that comprehensive and thorough measures are needed. We note the Foreign Office's evidence that, by early 1998, there would be anti-money laundering legislation in all the Caribbean Dependent Territories, but we are disturbed that there remains a fiscal exemption clause in the Cayman Islands and that the law in Bermuda is defective. We look for these weaknesses to be remedied by March of 1998."

Again, Mr. Speaker, I wish to crave the indulgence of the Serjeant to send you a copy of the actual examination of witnesses. This, to us in the Cayman Islands, must be disturbing. Sir John Born, who is the chairman of the Public Accounts Committee, is interviewing Sir John Kerr as a witness, and Mr. Peter Westmacott, Mr. John Kerby, Mr. Lee Beaumont, and some other people. I crave the Chamber's indulgence to check page 3 of this report where the Chairman asks Sir John Kerr the following: "The Caymans used to have a fiscal exemption clause, did it not? That is removed, is it?" Sir John Kerr went on to reply, but I am going to read what to me is significant. Sir John Kerr closed his reply on this occasion (page 4) by replying to Sir John Born, the Chairman, "The Governor of the Cayman Islands told us today [today, Mr. Speaker, being Monday, 15 December 1997] that he would make sure that the fiscal exemption would disappear from Cayman's all-crimes law by March of next year."

Now, there is something radically wrong, because we were told in this House that there was no knowledge of any such demand or request. I crave your indulgence again, Mr. Speaker, to go on to the examination of witnesses, to questions 100 and 119. The document is not numbered in chronological order so you will have to find it by looking for that section. It is toward the final one-fourth of the document. I want to draw your reference to page 2 where Sir John Kerr was "roughed up" by the Chairman. "Perhaps you could let me have again a slightly fuller note on that. Thank you for the information you have already given, but, you see, if we have an island like the Turks and Caicos, where the Governor does not control things and we find a situation I have described, it is hardly surprising then that Mr. Love has found the situation at the bottom of page 33 where the Cayman Islands and the British Virgin Islands told you to get lost, in rather non-diplomatic language, did they not?"

And Sir John Kerr said, "Well, they may have done in February 1996." The Chairman said: "They failed to respond, I think is the phrase." Sir John Kerr replied, "I am advised that the legislation they now have in draft is legislation that they will be implementing, as I said."

And then, Mr. Speaker, I take it that the Chairman interrupts Sir John Kerr at this point and says, "No, no, that is not what you said." Then Sir John Kerr goes on, "I said to Mr. Love—" And then the Chairman again cut in, "No, no, no. I listened very carefully to what you said to Mr. Love. He pointed out that you withdrew the original proposals because they said they were not having anything to do with them and you then put forward weaker proposals and you said you would welcome the support of this Committee because despite the twelve-month time limit, they said, 'Get lost!' again in effect, but they still had not implemented them and you were appealing to us to support you. Now you are telling us you were wrong in that." To which Sir John Kerr replies, "No, I am sorry. I do not withdraw at all from my request for the support of the Committee. I agree with you, sir, that this is an important area."

The Chairman said: "Why did you tell me that you were quite happy with what they had in hand?" Sir John Kerr: "I must have expressed myself very badly. What I was trying to say was that in the BVI they have guidance in place and the legislation is not yet in place, but the legislation is in draft . . . We would like to see that legislation pushed through their legislatures quickly and put into practice. If this Committee would recommend that, I would be extremely grateful."

Mr. Speaker, the facts speak for themselves. Clearly, someone is not in concert with the other people, because on the one hand we have this report in the examination of witnesses saying they are going to ensure that we comply. On the other hand we have people telling us they have no knowledge, when Sir John Kerr says they were promised this legislation would be in place.

This information, as I mentioned, was obtained from the World Wide Web. It is there for all who are interested or who know how to access it. What is more important in our case is that we prepare ourselves, which brings me to the point that it is necessary to be pro-active in these areas.

I have to give credit to our Financial Secretary, who is always on the alert, and always prepared to do whatever is necessary. But the pressure he faces necessitates that he have the support and absolute ability (by virtue of the fact that he has all the information necessary) to do his job to the best of his ability. With the level the Cayman Islands have reached, in terms of international finance, we certainly are under scrutiny. An article in The Wall Street Journal of Thursday, 21 May 1998, written by Michael Allen, who is described as a staff reporter of The Wall Street Journal, is captioned "Tax Evaders Beware: Rich Countries Prepare for Crackdown on Havens." Several people, including His Excellency the Governor, are quoted in this article in such a way that leads me to believe that they have no knowledge of events recently quoted by me during the select committee on public accounts, minutes of evidence in the House of Commons.

I note too that from the list of countries categorised here, and the amount of money in those countries, the Cayman Islands are at the top. At the same time, there are countries with much more money than we have. Indeed, the United Kingdom as a banking centre has four times as much. Yet, Mr. Speaker, pressure is being put on us and countries of our size. Why? If you are familiar with the Melian Debate, you will understand why. Countries, which are small and seemingly insignificant, are always subject to the demands of those who are big and powerful.

It leads me to say that one of the ways—as a matter of fact the only way—in which we can successfully prepare ourselves for whatever eventuality is coming is to be pro-active. I believe this select committee the mover (the First Elected Member for West Bay) has called for is timely. I believe it will be constructive. I believe it will put not only our Financial Secretary but also the Government—and when I say the Government, I use it in its broadest terms meaning the fifteen elected Members of the Legislative Assembly. It will put us in a position in which we are informed, by virtue of the fact that we will be able to take input. It will put us in a position where we can sit down and seriously bargain with the Foreign and Commonwealth Office. Not that they are going to necessarily change the direction they have arrived at, but certainly if we are able to speak with them from a position of authority (by virtue of the fact that we tell them we have consulted widely and there is consensus on the positions we have taken) it will make a difference.

The weakness, as I have said, is that the Government did not see fit to take this issue and do with it what the mover is requesting be done in this motion. However—

[inaudible comments]

Mr. Roy Bodden: That's right, Mr. Speaker! The Government was not even minded to have wide consultations with the Members of the Legislative Assembly—some of whom are eminently equipped, by virtue of the fact that they are always in touch with a significant portion of the people, to let them know what the sentiments are. Having said that, it is not too late. The Government now has this opportunity to jump on the bandwagon, and I am indeed happy to hear them recording their support. We hope they will sit down, when the select committee comes.

It is not for me to say, but I am sure when the mover gets up to wind up he will very graciously put forward to the Chair who should be the chairman of this select committee. Indeed, without taking tales out of school I think it is the most eminently equipped person, certainly a person whom we all hold in high regard; a very balanced person, and someone whom we all be confident in chairing this select committee. A request was made to keep the politics out of it. I believe such a chairman will keep politics if not completely out, to a minimum, because that gentleman has the respect of all the fifteen elected Members. Indeed, I would even be so presumptuous to say that he has the respect of his colleagues, the official Members, as well.

The task at hand then is for us—notwithstanding that the Government was negligent—to get on with this and prepare ourselves, so we can craft our input and report prior to the Honourable Robin Cook tabling his White Paper and the United Kingdom Parliament taking their position. As I have said, this is one of those rare occasions where on the basic and fundamental points there is no significant distance between the Government and those of us on the Backbench. I hope, in the interests of the continued development of this country, that consultations can be widespread and sincere. And God can help us that our report will be considered, and if not adopted in its fullest, certainly borne in mind as a point of reference when it comes to be discussed and received by the United Kingdom Parliament and Government.

If we can arrive at this, if we can achieve such a broad consensus, then it bodes well for us to move into the 21st century in a positive way. But I want to end on a note of caution: We have many problems we need to sort out, which if not directly impacting this, certainly are significant corollaries to any exercise we derive from our efforts. We have to find a way to come to grips with these problems, being the simmering immigration issue and the issue of the bill of rights.

I do not need to make any comment on this whole business of removing the law against homosexuality, because that has been beaten, thrashed, debated and killed enough. Suffice it to say that as long as we are under the auspices of the metropolitan country, as long as we remain a Dependent Territory, there are some issues we are going to have to come to grips with. I guess what I am saying in the final analysis is let us not adopt the ostrich syndrome and bury our heads in the ground whenever we are confronted with serious significant or even controversial issues. Let us put our shoulders to the wheel, put on our considering caps, and try to narrow the distance between us. There is nothing wrong with that on this occasion.

I am one who is very cognisant of my position in here. Sometimes I do not want the distance to be narrowed, because it might not suit the political position I might adopt. I always say that the Westminster system is certainly not a one-party system. But on this occasion, I am happy to join ranks, to be co-operative; to walk hand in hand and step by step with the Government, to arrive at what is the best for our country. Having said that, Mr. Speaker, it gives me the utmost pleasure to lend my support to this motion. Thank you.

The Speaker: We shall suspend proceedings for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.45 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.20 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Does any other Member wish to speak? The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. As the seconder of this motion, it is obvious that my contribution will lean toward supporting this motion. It is very heartening to see that on an issue as important as this, both the Government and the Backbench (as is obvious from those who have spoken so far) are what the First Elected Member for West Bay terms “on all fours” with the motion.

The mover has eloquently put the case forward. The Government has responded. And the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town has used his flowery language once again to very good order, and added some more information to the motion. He certainly brought out some salient points, which I think are important for us to consider. As a result, there is not a great deal that I can add to the various aspects we need to consider. However, I feel there are some specific areas which need to be addressed. In my deliberation, with your permission, most of these will be addressed with some quotations. It is going to be necessary for me to do that to make certain points. I crave your indulgence to allow me such privilege.

The Leader of Government Business, who responded to the motion on behalf of Government, referred to a speech to the Dependent Territories Association by the Right Honourable Robin Cook on 4 February. This was entitled “A New Partnership.” He referred to certain areas of the speech. As usual, because we do not think alike in everything, there are certain other areas, which I think, are very important for us to take note of.

The first premise we need to discuss when we look at this motion is what was mentioned very early in Sir Robin Cook’s speech. He said, “That is why one of my first acts on becoming Foreign Secretary was to launch a review of our relations with the Dependent Territories. I wanted us to take a fresh look, and to make sure that we had got the relationship in the best possible shape.” And here is where the important part of it comes in, Mr. Speaker. “Since then, we have consulted with governments, with opposition leaders, and with the governors. We have given the maximum possible weight to their views on how we should develop our partnership.”

It is late in the afternoon, and I am going to make a few short comments on that. One of the biggest reasons that drove the mover and me to bring this motion is that while Sir Robin Cook made that statement, up to this point here in the Cayman Islands, this has not been the situation that prevails. We, the Backbenchers, have been privy to a few short discussions with His Excellency the Governor. On one occasion, the entire Legislative Assembly gathered in the Committee Room, and that was when we were discussing the three areas for comment (which I will get into later) regarding this review. But the Leader of Government Business and one of his colleagues went to this conference in February, and the Leader of Government Business delivered a message at this conference on behalf of the country.

We are not going to take great issue with the situation, but we think it is important to make this clear, so that in future we will not have to deal with a situation like this. When this was done, I do not know who else knew anything about what was going to be said or the position that was going to be taken, but I certainly did not. Let us bear in mind that after the fact I am not going to point out what I would term inadequacies in what was said. The point is not whether or not what was said was right. We have a system of government that calls for five elected Executive Council Members and three Official Members—called ‘the Government;’ and the other ten elected Members are called the Backbench (nine now, since one of us is now the Speaker). The point is that in matters holding such national and international importance, consultation should be of a much wider scale before such decisions and statements are made.

It is heartening to hear, after the fact, that the Government is quite happy, not only to involve the other elected Members who also represent the people, but to also involve public input into such important matters. It is possible that the thought that this should have been done did not occur to them, seeing that is the way they are used to operating—with nothing being said about it. I think by now they know that situation has changed. In future, I would hope we do not have to entertain situations like that. The fact is, while we wish to do the right thing for the country, we are not prepared to allow a minority of the representation of the country to make certain decisions that are going to affect all of us. We wish that to go on record, and we hope that in the future the value on the Backbench will be utilised positively instead of having the arguments that sometimes ensue.

Just a note on that, Mr. Speaker: Sometimes we are blamed for (in common language) being ‘pickisome.’ We are asked sometimes, ‘Why don’t we just get on with the business of the House?’ The truth is, we would love to, but sometimes we are not allowed to participate. I think the few minutes spent on that are well spent, so that in future we might not have to have such situations where there will be problems.

Getting back to—

MOMENT OF INTERRUPTION—4.30 PM

The Speaker: We have reached the hour of interruption, if it is a convenient point for you.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Certainly, Mr. Speaker, there is a lot more to be said.

The Speaker: I would entertain a motion for the adjournment. The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until Wednesday, 24 June 1998 at 10.00 AM.

The Speaker: Before I put the motion for the adjournment, the Elected Member for North Side has asked permission, and I have granted it, to make a brief statement.

STANDING ORDER 11(6)
RAISING OF ANY PUBLIC MATTER

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Mr. Speaker, thank you for allowing me to clear up a matter that I believe is very important to me and to the listening public of these Islands. On Thursday, June 18, I moved Private Member's Motion No. 10/98 in this Parliament. The Minister responsible for Agriculture said in a radio interview, or clip, which I have had transcribed, "I would not advocate for us to put shotgun shells on the shelves of the Farmers' Market as was suggested by the mover and other people."

Mr. Speaker, I would like to make it abundantly clear that at no time did I suggest that the Government put these shotgun shells on the Farmers' Market shelves where people could go in and at their whim and fancy buy them. In my introduction to this motion, and I read from the Hansard, I said, "Shotgun shells used to be for sale in these Islands in the private sector. I do not know the reason why this was discontinued, but I am sure that in replying, the Government will inform me. I know that the safety of such shells could possibly be one of the reasons, and that is why I am asking that the Cayman Islands Government be the entity to sell these shells, because we need people who are going to be responsible to see that they do not get into the hands of the wrong people."

In my winding up, I continued to speak of control. "To do what this motion is asking would put more control in place, because we will then know who are getting these shotgun shells. As the situation exists now, I can be a licensed farmer and get a permit. . ." and I went on and continued to speak of control. I do not believe, and I do not want to believe, that this was a deliberate misquote, that the Minister would say that I suggested to put them on the shelves of the Farmers' Market. At no time, in a casual conversation with that Minister, or in a private discussion, or on the floor of this House, did I suggest that these shotgun shells be for sale on the Farmers' Market shelves. Thank you, Mr Speaker.

The Speaker: I shall now put the question. The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, I do not know if this is allowed, but the statement that was just made also affects me, and if you would allow me to clear a certain matter up, I would appreciate it.

The Speaker: Could you be very brief?

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Yes, Mr. Speaker, I will be very brief.

Regarding what the Member for North Side has said, when she quoted the Minister for Agriculture, the fact of the matter is that I was the one who mentioned in my contribution to the debate the location of the Farmers' Market. But at no time—and the Hansards will prove this—at no time during my debate did I mention the method by which these shotgun shells could be sold, or how they would be stored, or what type of security could be used. That would have been the Government's prerogative. Therefore, I wish to make it abundantly clear that at no time was I suggesting that these shells be put on the shelf of the Farmers' Market to be sold. I believe it is only fair and just for the Minister involved, if he misunderstood, to clear that up, and if he did not misunderstand, to clear it up still. Thank you.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Mr. Speaker, thank you. I think when I was speaking I was trying to say that I would not advocate shells being sold on the shelves of the Farmers' Market, because it was something that had been done years ago and had been discontinued. The point I was trying to get across to the Members was that there is something in place now, which is handled by the police, and I thought that was sufficient for farmers to acquire the shells necessary for rabbits. I also pointed out that I knew of no farmer who was having great difficulty with it, and if there was, the Department would assist like we assist with other things. So I am not trying to place a blame—

[inaudible comments]

The Speaker: I shall now put the question that this House do now adjourn until 10.00 AM Wednesday, 24 June 1998. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AT 4.36 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM WEDNESDAY, 24 JUNE 1998.

WEDNESDAY
24 JUNE 1998
10.09 AM

The Speaker: Prayers by the Third Elected Member for Boddan Town.

PRAYERS

Mr. Roy Boddan: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived: We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth, that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly, that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy great name's sake.

Let us say the Lord's Prayer together: Our Father, who art in heaven, hallowed be Thy name. Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us. Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace, now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Item number two on today's Order Paper, Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. Question 74 is standing in the name of the First Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION 74

No. 74: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport to give an update on any plans by the Port Authority to develop the site at Spotts' landing.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: The Authority has plans to develop the Spotts landing site, and will proceed with such plans when funds become available. Plans may be viewed in the Port Director's office.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries? The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. As the Minister's answer is short and presumably very concise, I wonder if the Minister could explain what he means when he says, "when funds become available." I understand the Queen's English, but perhaps he could expand on that.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, considering the present budget approved for the Port Authority in 1998, there are no funds within it to deal with this particular project. We have had presented to the Port Authority, I think, three different versions of a plan. One is being favoured by the Port Authority. There has not been a final decision taken on that plan, and we are looking at it with a view of very likely in 1999 dealing with it.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: If it is in order, could the Minister give us a brief overview as to what the favoured plan entails?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Being aware of how the Government and most recently the Port Authority came to possess this piece of property, the original intention, as I understand it, was for the Government or the Port Authority to develop a park area for that specific area of the Island. It is with this in mind that I refer to the plan favoured by the Port Authority, which deals with it, and splits it more or less—not necessarily that there is a division—but part will continue to be operated as a cruise ship landing, and a portion of it, when we look at it globally, the park will also be a part and parcel of the overall function of the property, with cabanas, landscaping and additional security features, and things of that sort.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Do the plans contain provision for any type of tourist-related outlets, for the sale of tourist-related items?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: My recollection of it is that there is a minimum amount of that in place, because most of the cruise ship passengers coming off at Spotts prefer to come into town. We realise that not everyone wants to do that, and certainly if something is provided there it will attract some of the passengers in that area, so there will be a small area catering to that type of service.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Has any thought been given to having some type of link between this project and the Pedro St. James project and the Botanic Park, with regard to national tourist attractions? The Honourable Minister mentioned earlier that it is going to be a park area. I am sure that is not just for locals, but for everyone. I am asking, if facilities were provided leaning in the right direction, if it might be one of the areas utilised by tourists when they are going on the various tours in that direction as a recreation area. Because the other two venues are not really anything but sight-seeing, this one might physically provide them access to beach, etc.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I think the point made by the First Elected Member for George Town has merit. We have been focusing on, as he says, the Pedro St. James project and the Botanic Park. When we move toward development of this particular area in its final form, I am sure that will be part and parcel of our thinking, and I thank him for bringing that to our attention. However, he did specify that there is no beach at the other particular sites and I was thinking something different until he made that remark.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Could the Minister say if a major part of the way it is envisaged to develop the site by the Port Authority is to ensure it is self-sufficient, self-sustaining, and not creating additional cost; but that whatever revenue is earned through its operation will be able to at least take care of the cost of its operations?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: My recollection of the thinking of the Port Authority is that first we wanted to create a park area where locals as well as visitors could go relax and sit under a tree if they wished; there would be soft drinks and perhaps some other kinds of sandwiches and patties and things of that sort so they could have a snack. We have not thought in terms of developing the project to such an extent that it will be self-financing. I think when we take that view, we also have to look to the point where whatever facilities are made available to enhance that, we need to make sure that the public is part and parcel of that service being given. In other words, if we are going to put structures larger than what we have in the scheme at the moment, if my recollection is correct, they would be leased out with a view to providing the service by people who could make a bid or a tender for the space, and that local person would provide the service to the cruise ship passenger or local person who visits.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Miss Heather D. Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Could the Honourable Minister say if there is anyone in charge of keeping the Spotts landing site clean and litter-free in its present state?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: My understanding is that the Port Director has some arrangements. What the specific arrangement for this is, I am unable to say this morning.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Could the Honourable Minister state if, at present, the property is vested with the Port Authority?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, the answer to the Member's question is yes.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? If not we will move to question 75, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 75

No. 75: Miss Heather D. Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport how many Caymanians are employed at Pedro St. James Castle.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: The full staff complement at Pedro St. James includes fifteen full-time employees, of which twelve are Caymanian.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries? The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Miss Heather D. Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Honourable Minister say if there are any incentives being offered to these employees to ensure quality service?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Yes, Mr. Speaker, in recent times there is an employee of the month programme within Pedro St. James, and some awards have been made already. I would say there is incentive to ensure quality service, and I am aware of one lady in particular, one of the local persons mentioned, who was employee of the month for March.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I want to ask the Honourable Minister if he could say, of the twelve Caymanians employed there, if most of them from the Savannah area.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, my colleague may have stumped me there! I do know there are perhaps a half dozen of them from that area. I would not go larger than that, but if he wants the specifics, I am happy to let him have it in writing.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, we will move to question 76, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 76

No. 76: Miss Heather D. Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport what educational purpose Pedro St. James serves, and how it will be communicated to the public.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Pedro St. James is an important landmark in Caymanian history. This is the site of the meeting in 1831 where Caymanians decided to form the first elected Legislative Assembly. In addition to educating visitors about the birth of democracy in the Cayman Islands, Pedro St. James also serves as a living example of eighteenth century society in Cayman.

The Resource Centre, located in the Visitors' Centre Building, will be a public facility both for research and dissemination of information about Pedro Castle specifically, and will highlight Caymanian history in the 18th and 19th centuries.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries? The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, could the Honourable Minister say what is considered to be the highlights of eighteenth century Cayman Islands society?

The Speaker: Are you asking him to express an opinion or historical events?

Dr. Frank McField: Since I am not allowed to ask him to express an opinion, and since in his answer he says it "serves as a living example of eighteenth century society in Cayman" I wanted to know other examples of eighteenth century Cayman Islands society. It is my understanding that they have some exhibits and films instructing people as to what the society was at that time. The information I am seeking is to get some idea of what they are showing as highlights of society at that time?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: The Member answered part of his own question, and I thank him for that. There will be, in addition, a film that more or less captures persons who worked and lived around Pedro Castle as we know it, and the type of garments and headdress they wore will depict that era.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, we will move to question 77, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 77

No. 77: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport to provide a breakdown, by nationality, of air arrivals for the years 1995, 1996 and 1997.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I am reluctant to read all these numbers, but the answer is that tourist arrivals by air for the years 1995, 1996 and 1997 are given in detail where it shows, in 1995, the total number of visitors arriving by air at 361,445; in 1996, 373,245; and in 1997, 381,188. Looking specifically at one country, which is the major country from which we attract visitors, the United States, we attracted 266,218 visitors in 1995; in 1996, 274,725; and in 1997, 278,665. There are details from Canada, United Kingdom, Europe, Jamaica, Caribbean, Central America, South America, Pacific Rim, and the rest of the world.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries? The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker, and thanks to the Minister for pointing out those details. In examining the statistics provided, it is plain that visitors from the United States are far and above the numbers of visitors from other jurisdictions. Can the Minister tell the House what efforts his Ministry is making to—and could he explain to the House if there are any other areas his Ministry or the Department of Tourism may be looking at with a view to increasing the numbers from this list given here? The United States is way ahead, so can the Minister tell us if there are any policies in place or any plans to increase the numbers from other jurisdictions?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, the buzzword today in tourism is 'integrated marketing communications.' It is a system that pulls together public relations work, advertising we see on television, as well as the glossy magazines from the travel areas (particularly of the United States). We have them in the United States, representatives in Canada, Europe, and we are looking specifically at moving totally into the integrated marketing communications system. There are also strategic plans as to how we also pull in—and we are starting to implement this—the work of the persons who are located in the regional offices and the representatives who are operating in places like Boston, Dallas, Atlanta and Tampa and other places.

In recent times, we are also looking at and following very closely, what is happening in South America. It was probably twenty-four months ago we decided to split out the rest of the world, which was a large number in relation to the total number of visitors that come to the Cayman Islands, to look specifically at which countries were the major percentage in that "rest of the world" number. As a result, we have been tracking our visitors from South America in particular; places like Brazil, Argentina and Chile, and I do not believe there is any secret that the Minister is going to make a move to look at that area very shortly.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: I am aware that ease of communication and ease of access by virtue of the fact of direct flights must play a large role in the numbers of tourists we access from the various destinations. Can the Minister tell the House whether there is any attempt by his Department or Ministry to take advantage of the increasing direct flights from the United Kingdom to woo tourists from both the United Kingdom and the European mainland to our destination?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, the answer to the Member is yes. We have been working with British Airways, and the Member will recall that the Ministry of Tourism actually attracted the Caledonia charter back in December about three years ago. Shortly afterwards, in the space of about four months, BA decided to establish not a once-a-week charter, but twice weekly a scheduled flight, which they are now moving on to three days a week. In 1999 they will also be replacing their equipment—the information we have received from BA—with 777s. We have been working with the European representatives in Germany, France, Spain, Italy as well as the Benelux countries to promote and connect with that flight at Gatwick and come in to the Cayman Islands. So we are definitely working in that area.

Members will recall that we were recently able to gain the approval of Delta Airlines to have a direct flight in from Atlanta, and that flight is running very, very full most days. To get on the flight, you have to make a reservation early, and in talking to some of the senior management of Delta, they came for a long-term. They did not come for just this year or next year. One of the things I should say as well is that it surprised me that Delta Airlines—although I realise it touches globally—there are about 611 flights that arrive in Atlanta on a daily basis, and they connect, not only from different destinations within the United States, but also the Far East and Europe. So that is a pretty open door. When we look at South America, we know that American Airlines is a big player in that market, and into Miami is an easy jaunt, and then across the South America. So we will work that and look at some possibility of a local carrier out of South America tying up with Cayman Airways, so they benefit from the arrangement we are looking at as well.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I realise the Honourable Minister might not have the answer to this question, but I am going to pose it anyway, as he is usually on the ball. Can the Minister say if these figures he provided mean that the seasonal fluctuations, which we used to experience in tourism, are now decreasing? And is he satisfied that we are reaching the point at which throughout the year we have significant numbers of tourists in place to make it a viable and continuing industry for those people who have various investments, like the restaurateurs and hoteliers?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I think the statistics and the graphs that analyse month-by-month, year-by-year would indicate that there is a peak season, and that peak season begins, in some cases in December, and in other years it depends on the winter season in the United States. It may begin mid-November. It sometimes takes us into mid-April. It depends on when Easter comes around, whether it is March or April. But I believe wholeheartedly that when we look at it over a period of time, we will see that there is a better performance during the summer months than there has been previously.

Performance in the summer can be affected by a variety of things. A few years ago, we had the Olympics in Atlanta, which seriously affected us. If we have hurricanes it can seriously affect us whether they are coming into our area or not. But if there are hurricanes in the Atlantic, the knowledge of Caribbean geography in the United States and where Cayman fits in relation to the total Caribbean, . . . I think we need to do a lot of work there for them to appreciate that if the storm is at the British Virgin Islands they do not need to cancel their reservations in the Cayman Islands. I believe there is a lot of work that continues to be done in this area.

A year ago (and it ran that year with some success, and this year I think it is probably going to perform better) "Chillin' in Cayman," which is a programme dealing with the summer, from June until very early December, where we have in excess of eighty participants, meaning hotels and watersports and restaurants, as well as people involved in transportation, so that you provide a greater value for visitors coming to us in that period of time. So yes, I think we are all—not the Ministry—we are all doing a reasonably good job.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Perhaps the Minister will smile if not laugh at this one, but nevertheless I will ask the question. In the answer, the Minister has said, "Tourist arrivals by air for the years 1995, 1996 and 1997 are as follows." Can the Minister give us a definition of what the Department considers to be a tourist?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, I think the Department of Tourism depends on the work of the Immigration Department. The statistics I am quoting are classified by the Immigration Department as being visitors to the Cayman Islands. I am not going to try to technically give an answer by the Department of Tourism. I think the classification is done by the Immigration Department.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. The reason I asked the question is simple. Is it possible that in some of these numbers quoted the same individuals are travelling back and forth from specific countries to the Cayman Islands more than once during the course of the month?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, I am sure that is very likely, whether they are coming from the United States or some other country and having three vacations versus one, it is very likely.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Can the Minister state, if he has the information available, which of the tourists from the countries listed in the answer have the longest stayover period recorded?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, I do not have that information available, but I know from previous experience—I am not going to be able to definitely talk about 1997 because I do not have that with me, but I know 1996 and 1997. The visitors who stay the longest are from Europe, generally seven to fourteen days.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? If not, we will move to question 78, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for West Bay.

QUESTION 78

No. 78: Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr. asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works what educational programmes are in place in respect of recycling within the Cayman Islands.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The following recycling educational programmes are in place within the Cayman Islands:

Fair Display Booths: The purpose of these booths is to advertise and promote recycling at various local fairs, including several sponsored by the Department. The following fairs were attended:

- Savannah Heritage Day - October 1997

- East End Environmental Health Fair - March 6, 1998
- Drug Free Week, Healthy Lifestyles Fair - May 8, 1998

Informational School Visits: Visits are frequently made to schools. There were approximately 22 visits made in the first half of this year. The format may vary from a single class, in which the students are working on a project regarding recycling, to a whole school informational assembly.

The following schools were visited, please note several schools were visited two or more times:

- John Gray Memorial Church (After School Programme)
- East End Primary
- Grace Christian Academy
- John Gray High School

In addition, the Department serves as a resource to teachers and grade school, high school and degree students in their research projects regarding the environment. The Department has sponsored a high school student intern for the past term and has participated in several in-house student career visits.

George Town Landfill Visits: Approximately 10 landfill site visits were conducted. These 30-minute visits are followed by a 20-minute question and answer session.

Informational Lunches: The purpose of these lunches is to educate private sector employees who participate in the recycling programme on how to make their programmes more effective.

Recycling Colouring and Activity Book: This popular book has been distributed to the majority of schools on Grand Cayman and Cayman Brac. The book provides entertainment and also serves as an educational tool.

Island-Wide School Recycling Competition: The competition will be kicked off in September 1998. The aim of the competition is to increase awareness of and participation in recycling within the Cayman Islands.

Earth Day 1998: The Department participated in a workshop held by the National Gallery of the Cayman Islands. The workshop topic, "The Art of Assemblage", addressed several waste issues through the creation of sculptures made from everyday trash.

Furthermore, the Department organised numerous Earth Day events in conjunction with the National Trust including school visits. Activities and educational material incorporated the importance of reducing, reusing and recycling.

And I may say, Mr. Speaker, schools, which actually started these programmes early, were such as the Red Bay Primary School.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries? The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. First of all, let me thank the Minister for such a comprehensive answer. In the Public Accounts Committee's report for 1996, we dealt with the issue of recycling. It says here, "A public awareness campaign on the proper management of waste oil is planned for the upcoming year." I wonder if the Minister can brief us on how this programme works.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Yes, Mr. Speaker, just in recent weeks we had a press release on this. Oils are collected and stored in a container and we are more sure—I can't say 100% sure—than we were in the past that oils are collected on a more regular basis and we no longer have the problem, which I am sure the Member is concerned about, of oil just being thrown ad hoc into the ground.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: The Minister mentioned that there was some notice of the oil-recycling programme. I wonder if the Minister can confirm what the holding capacity is for used oil.

Hon. John B. McLean: The tank is a 3,000 gallon tank.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: I would like to ask if the Minister considers this sufficient to deal with the demand that presently exists for recycling of used oil.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: That is a very good question, and I would say that with the demand we have at this time, we could use another tank.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: I wonder if the Minister can say when we last had a shipment of used oil.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: I don't have that with me now, but I know that we have some that is ready to go right now. I would undertake to supply him with the last time we shipped it.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: If we have a holding capacity of 3,000 gallons, and I can't remember what the estimated importation figure is in regard to oil, but unless we are shipping this every week, . . . I wonder if the Minister can say what is happening to the oil we cannot store at the George Town dump because of a lack of capacity.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: We actually handle some of the oil, and there is a private arrangement for what I would consider bulk oil from CUC at this time.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: The Public Accounts Committee was also told that the oil companies do something in regard to recycling used oil. Can the Honourable Minister confirm what they do? What kind of holding capacity to they have and, once again, what happens to the oil not being shipped off the island if there is such a limited holding capacity?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: It is my understanding that there is a good relationship in regard to the companies that have the excess oil. There is an arrangement in place, as I mentioned earlier, where whatever we do not collect is shipped overseas.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Can the Honourable Minister say if there is any intention to take these recycling educational programmes to the districts? I notice that a lot of visits have been made to the schools, but I cannot see where any district meetings are being held to help the districts to be aware of this recycling.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: It is my understanding that we are in the process of starting district meetings. However, we have been doing publicity on it and thus far have been receiving co-operation from all districts throughout the Cayman Islands.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: I thank the Hon. Minister and look forward to seeing the announcement of a meeting of this type in the district of North Side. How are these booklets such as "Let's Reduce and Recycle," and Earth Day booklets, reaching the community in the outer districts?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: If I could comment on two things, I would like to say to the lady Member that one of the first recycling programmes to be started was started by the Red Bay Primary School. It is my understanding that it was due to a field day on the beach at North Side. From there we have been working with the schools and at every opportunity we get we try to hand out the brochures and books to inform the general public of what is taking place and we ask for their continued support. As I pointed out, we thank God that we have been getting support from all of the districts throughout the Island thus far.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: I am glad that the Red Bay School assisted the district of North Side in cleaning up our beaches because it is badly needed, but I still ask, Can we get these booklets to the communities? Are we inserting them in the Caymanian Compass? How are we getting them to the general public in the outer districts particularly? That is what I would like to know.

Hon. John B. McLean: I think to answer the lady Member correctly, it is my understanding that mostly we have been distributing the information at the district fairs and, of course, when we go to the schools. But it has not been done on a regular basis we have to admit.

The Speaker: Before I put the next question, I will entertain a motion for the suspension of Standing Order 23(7) &(8). The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: I so move.

The Speaker: Do we have a seconder? The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: I second the motion.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 23 (7) & (8)

The Speaker: The question is that Standing Order 23 (7) and (8) be suspended to enable Question Time to continue. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED. STANDING ORDER 23(7) AND (8) SUSPENDED TO ENABLE QUESTION TIME TO CONTINUE.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: I thank the Hon. Minister for his reply. I would ask him to undertake to see that this information on recycling reaches the outer districts. I cannot say it would reach the outer districts through the newspaper, maybe it is time that we took some time on television. I wonder if the Hon. Minister would say if there are any plans for such a thing.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: There are plans, and the Department has been on television a number of times. What I will undertake to do is to try to get the brochures out on a more regular basis. As I said a while ago, we have been distributing them at fairs and when we visit schools. But if it is felt that we need to do it on a more regular basis, we will do so within the financial means we have.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Miss Heather D. Bodden: I am aware that the igloo-looking recycling containers are placed throughout the island and can be seen specifically around school grounds. Can the Honourable Minister give an undertaking that more of these containers be placed at locations such as public parks, playfields, bus stops and public beaches?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: We do have some now at various areas as the Member mentioned. If we have the funds available, we would like to have more of them around because it has been effective.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Can the Honourable Minister say how used motor oil recycling notices reach the district of North Side?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: I am advised that notices are placed in the Caymanian Compass. I would presume that the paper is sold in North Side as it is everywhere else. So, this is a means of trying to communicate it to the public. As a matter of fact, I think we do have one or two stations in North Side working along with the major oil company on the island.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: The Minister just mentioned one or two stations in North Side that assist. I wonder if he can inform me of the names of the stations that assist?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Mr. Speaker, I said that we have one or two stations in North Side that I think would be working along with the major oil company on the island because that is where they would be getting their oil and fuel from.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: It is my understanding that it is very important to properly educate the public as to the proper handling of used oil. It is my understanding that a lot of the used oil we have here is contaminated. Can the Honourable Minister say what efforts have been made in the area of proper education as to proper collection of used oil?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Here again, this is quite technical and I am advised by the lady in charge that they have constantly been working along with the oil companies on the island in an effort to make sure that what the Member is talking about is being done. She has been getting full co-operation.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: I wasn't really thinking from the standpoint of the oil companies. I understand that garages have a drum and they put all of their used oil in there. But if there is a container with brake oil thrown in the same drum it contaminates the whole thing.

I have another question. Another concern that was raised by the Public Accounts Committee in its report was the proper disposal of medical waste. In the report it mentioned that the incinerator was malfunctioning. Can the Honourable Minister say what is being done now as to the proper handling of medical waste?

Hon. John B. McLean: This is something that was raised here some time ago. I appreciate that all Members were in support of having something done, so it has definitely been worked on and the bids will be back in July. We have taken the necessary steps, but until we can get that we have to follow the process.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: I think the Minister mentioned bids. Bids for what? Replacement of an incinerator?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: If the Member recalls, it was Cayman Brac and Grand Cayman. It has to go to bid under the Tenders Committee. That is my understanding.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: One of the recommendations put forward by the Public Accounts Committee was the employment of properly qualified persons to deal with this issue. I wonder if the Minister can confirm what steps have been taken by the department in regard to hiring qualified people to do the job that has to be done.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: As the Member is aware, I am not really responsible for staffing. What I am told is that we do have persons being trained. I think we have at least one who is trained in that area to make sure that it is disposed of. I do not think the problem has been the staff, I think it is that the incinerator has been giving trouble and we had to use other means to dispose of the hazardous waste. Within the range we had, I must say that every precaution was taken.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: I cannot recall what the Minister said as to how they are now handling the medical waste now that we don't have an incinerator. How is this waste being properly disposed of?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: There are special containers that the medical waste is contained in until it goes to the waste dump. There is a special container utilised only for that until we can get the incinerator back on line.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: We were told in the Public Accounts Committee that it was being thrown in an open container and set on fire. I wonder if the container he is referring to is the same one? What effect does this pollution have on the environment here?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: I have to agree with the Member. That is the only container that has been utilised for this. We have to use something to get rid of it until we can get the incinerator back on line because the other one, as pointed out here a long time ago, is obsolete. It is not working.

The Speaker: I am going to allow two more supplements. The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Mr. Speaker, I would really crave your indulgence to explore this matter to its fullest because this is a very important matter. The Minister mentioned that we were going through the tendering process, getting bids on the replacement of the incinerator. Because of the importance of this issue, can the Honourable Minister say how quickly he expects these bids back and the new incinerator put in place?

The Speaker: I might say that we are straying far from the original question. I think that if this information is necessary, a substantive question should be put down. If the Minister wishes to answer, he may, but this is far outside the ambit of the original question.

Hon. John B. McLean: Mr. Speaker, I agree with you. The most I can say to the Member is what I said a while ago. It has been through the Tenders Committee, as I understand, and the results should be back in July. It is the process that has to be taken with projects such as this. He knows, he has been in Public Accounts Committee. If I don't do that, he will probably pull me in there too!

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say if any approach has been made to the oil companies towards having them offer incentives, particularly for garages to bring in used motor oil?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: It is my understanding that we have been working with the garages and with the oil companies. As I pointed out earlier on another question, we have been getting some co-operation. We are not here to say that it is fully what we would like it to be, but we continue to negotiate with them and to work along with them and that is the most I can say on it at this time.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Minister give an undertaking to approach the oil companies with a direct proposal that some form of rebate, discount, or credit be given either per gallon, or per 55 gallon drum for any used motor oil turned in by the garages who buy directly from the oil companies? It seems that this would be one way to ensure the used motor oil is disposed of in a proper and safe way. Many garages just store it in the 55 gallon drum and when it is convenient just drop them off at the dump or let the oil saturate and soak into a piece of unused ground thus polluting the ground water.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: We will take every necessary step to make sure that this does not happen. At present I am not aware of this happening. I know that some people still bring it in by drum, but we try, as soon as it gets to the dump, to make sure that it is properly secured. As a matter of fact, I will mention that there is someone on the island who has been collecting oil and shipping it which we are trying to work along with also.

If the Member is aware of something like that, I would appreciate if he would pass it along to me and we will try to deal with it ASAP because this is something we are trying to do. We too are aware that pouring that into the ground is not good for the country.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: I wonder if the Honourable Minister would say if there is a separate section within the Department of the Environment to deal with the education of recycling since this is such an important matter, and how many members of staff are in this section?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: It is my understanding that we have two full-time individuals in the department.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Can the Honourable Minister say what qualifications these two members of staff have?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: It is my understanding that both of them are educated in Environmental Control.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Can the Honourable Minister state their degree by name?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: I don't have that information, but I will be happy to have the department circulate that to the lady Member.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: The Minister said in an earlier answer that he did not have the information available at present as to when the last shipment of oil was done. However, it seems as though it may have been a while back. Can the Honourable Minister say exactly how the waste oil that is collected is stored, and what measures are taken to ensure that this is done properly before shipment takes place?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: As I pointed out, there is a holding tank of about 3,000 gallons. It is my understanding that it is brought into the dump and pumped into this tank which is referred to as a holding tank until they have a full capacity. Then it is shipped.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Is it the case, then, that shipments are made whenever this holding tank is full? If that is the case, is the tank now full? If it is, are there any other containers being used because the tank can't hold any more?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: As I pointed out earlier also, we do need another storage tank. But the Member is correct, we actually have to use the smaller drums as holding tanks until the full tank is brought back to the island and then we pump again.

The Speaker: I will allow two additional questions, one from the First Elected Member for George Town and one from the Third Elected Member for West Bay and we will have to move on. That will be 28 supplementaries. The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Having understood what the Minister said, and this goes back to what I asked and I don't think I got the answer so I don't want you to count that one as this, please. What I was asking is: If the holding tank that is used is now filled, I understand that whenever it is shipped smaller containers have to be used until it comes back, but is it now full awaiting shipment? And if this is the case, can the Minister explain the process of shipping and if there are any hitches why this process may not be running smoothly in that the tank is full and not shipped immediately?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: I think it actually comes back to the question asked about the different oils. My understanding is that a sample of the oil has to go to Florida and therefore it could be that the tank could be filled this week, and not shipped until that sample comes back from testing. So it may be that we will have the holding tank filled and we will have to have some drums that are also filled. Apparently that is the situation now.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: My question relates to the incinerator. Can the Honourable Minister say if there are any funds in the present budget for the purchase of this incinerator?

Hon. John B. McLean: Yes, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: We are moving on to question 79, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 79

No. 79: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works whether Government has any plans to develop the Bodden Town 'back road' and, if so, when.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Public Works Department and the Long Range Planning Unit are currently in the process of developing a set of road corridors to be reserved for future construction. These include two corridors proposed in the Bodden Town area, a major corridor and a minor corridor to be used as a relief road.

There is currently no schedule for construction of any of the corridors.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say if the Government has any disposition on which of the two corridors it may deal with in the first instance?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: No decision on that has been taken.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: May I request an undertaking by the Minister that this matter be delved into? I believe that I speak for my other two colleagues, the Hon. Anthony Eden, and Miss Heather Bodden, when I say that we have been approached—and continue to be approached—by our constituents on the necessity to develop this back road, particularly the relief road, especially in light of the fact that trucks hauling aggregate and building materials are becoming more numerous on the road, and it is just a matter of time before we have some serious accident (heaven forbid). This is particularly noticeable when we have events at the United Church or the Adventist Church, funerals or weddings, when parking is along the side of the road and it is acute. I request an undertaking that this relief road which would, I presume, take traffic off the main road, be investigated with a view to making that a top priority when the Government is so disposed to deal with this.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: I am in full sympathy with what the Member is saying and I will definitely pass it on to Government. I, too, have observed what he is saying and I know especially during Pirates' Week when they have the street dances up there, it is a complete block-off. It is necessary.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: The Minister said, "PWD and the long range planning unit are currently in the process of developing a set of road corridors to be reserved for future construction." Can the Honourable Minister say if any of these road corridors are in the district of North Side along the line of a shorter route to George Town, as I have discussed with him over the years since being elected as a representative of that district and taken a helicopter to fly over and look at this. Is this one of the road corridors being reserved for future construction?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: The lady Member was in the helicopter with us, and we did look at a route. But as the lady Member is aware, Government did not take a decision at that time to do any roads that were suggested. We looked at it, and, again, while I understand what she is saying, I am sympathetic towards her, but if the decision was not taken, I cannot actually go in there and build a road.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: I think the Hon. Minister misunderstood my question. I would like to know if in the long range planning unit in PWD, in developing a set of road corridors to be reserved for future construction, if one of these corridors is in the district of North Side.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: I understood what the lady Member said. It is my understanding that what we are talking about here is a corridor that goes up to the Frank Sound area. The one she is speaking about, when we actually flew over the area in a helicopter, was a completely different one. That is the one going into North Side and that is what I pointed out. No decision was taken on it.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Would the Hon. Minister then tell me where in Frank Sound is this road corridor being reserved as he just said? I was not asking for the one I referred to in the helicopter ride. I did not ask that question. I asked if there was a corridor being reserved in the district of North Side. He just said something about Frank Sound. Can he explain to me where in Frank Sound that corridor is supposed to be?

Hon. John B. McLean: It is my understanding that it is in the area of the fire station.

The Speaker: Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Can the Honourable Minister say where that road will connect in the district of North Side to come out by the fire station area? If the entrance is in the fire station area where will it exit in the main district of North Side?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: I know the lady Member knows this, the district of North Side starts at Frank Sound. My understanding is that it is going to feed into the North Side Frank Sound Road.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: I would have to be totally ignorant if I did not know the district of North Side started in Frank Sound, since I solicited so many votes in that area. But my question is, if it leaves the main Frank Sound Road into North Side, down along side the fire station, where does it exit? Is there an opening for the traffic coming from the major North Side district to be able to get into that corridor to exit into the Frank Sound Road at the fire station?

Hon. John B. McLean: It is my understanding from the Chief Engineer that it is in the area of the fire station which will take the road right into the prison area which would be the bypass behind Bodden Town. But I don't have an exact location as to where it would be by the fire station.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: I think when Mr. Miller was the representative [for North Side] in this Parliament, there was a suggestion about a corridor coming in through Hut Land around Mr. Willie Ebanks' farm that would come out on the Frank Sound Road thus allowing the main North Side traffic to cut off the Old Man Bay area and cut off the traffic in Frank Sound. What are we going to achieve to help the North Side traffic by entering at Frank Sound and coming out at the prison?

Hon. John B. McLean: What I would say is that if the road started there, it would filter them closer to George Town and they would bypass what we found to be a problem a while ago which is the bottle neck in the Bodden Town area.

I can only tell the lady Member what has been proposed. She and I were in the helicopter and we looked at what she is talking about, and I agreed. But the only way I can say how this road will be connected is how the Chief Engineer just advised me.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: In the substantive answer, the Minister addressed developing a set of road corridors to be reserved for future road construction. Going back ten years, I distinctly remember the question of reserving road corridors as being a very important issue. We have seen today that by playing politics much of what should have been done prior to now has not been done. Can the Honourable Minister give us some type of time-line for these corridors to be reserved? And what kind of assurances do we have that this will actually happen?

Hon. John B. McLean: Again, the Chief Engineer advised me that the Planning Unit and PWD are constantly working on this. It is hoped that we will have something within this year.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: There are those of us who are not quite as in the know as others, so can the Honourable Minister explain exactly what the long range planning unit is? Is it part of PWD? Exactly what is its role?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: It is a unit within the Planning Department which works closely with the PWD, especially when it comes down to doing corridors and roads like this.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister say what the process will be once these corridors are identified? What type of input will be sought, either publicly or in Parliament, in order to ensure that the decisions made, while being done by the professionals, are satisfactory to the people of this country?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: As was normal with the other Development Plan, it is my understanding that the public would have input. It would be a part of the Development Plan, the recommendations would be part of that, and it would go to the public for them to give their input.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Trying to walk this whole situation through, can the Honourable Minister say exactly what process is required for these corridors to be reserved?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: I think the zoning process would be the better one because it would give the general public an opportunity to give their input. We can either zone it, as I just mentioned, or we could gazette the corridors. If we gazette corridors it means that under the Law we would have to look at compensation. So it would be better for us to work with the public and have it zoned under the Law.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister say if these corridors mentioned in his answer include the entire island? Does it include the other two islands, or is this just a portion we are talking about.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: This would no doubt be a project on all three islands. But we have given priority to certain major areas. I guess that is the reason why we have a specific question on the back road in Bodden Town. The other one would be the Harquail Bypass and we are looking at the Crewe Road Bypass. So it will all form part of an overall project.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister state if, during the look/see being done by PWD and the Long Range Planning Unit, the Master Ground Transportation Plan which was shelved is being used as a reference to develop these reserve corridors?

Hon. John B. McLean: Some of the individuals who actually participated in the Master Ground Transportation Plan will be working on this. But it is my understanding that new traffic counts have been made throughout and we will be relying more or less on that. I would not say that some of the corridors will not fall in the same path because I really do not know at this time.

The Speaker: This concludes Question Time for this morning. We shall suspend proceedings for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12.15 PM

The Speaker: Other Business, Private Members' Motions. Continuing the debate on Private Member's Motion No. 11/98. The First Elected Member for George Town.

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 11/98

APPOINTMENT OF A SELECT COMMITTEE TO TAKE INPUT FROM THE PUBLIC ON THE REVIEW OF DEPENDENT TERRITORIES

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Before I get into what I call the meat of my delivery, there are a few items that I would like to address in the contribution to the debate made by the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Early in his contribution, the Minister quoted what he termed the Government's position during the Dependent Territories Conference in February. Then he quickly went on to say, after quoting certain areas, and I quote him: "So there is very good communication, both with Members of the House and the Consultative Committee. I should mention that many times the changes are complex and technical." [Hansard 22 June, 1998 page 449] The reason I quoted that part of his delivery is because I want him to know that to this point I do not agree that there has been "very good communication" with Members of this House. But we are not here to take serious issue this morning. We just wish to make it known that we welcome such a stand, and hope that when matters are being deliberated on in the future, Members of the House—all of us!—will be kept up-to-date with what is happening.

When some of us air our concerns some people wonder if we are trying to be picky. But those of us who do not have access to the day-to-day dealings must be concerned when reports are conflicting. I will use an example. The Minister said: "On the question of the enforcement of taxes in the Dependent Territories, in an article in The Wall Street Journal of May 21, 1998, our Governor said, and I quote because I think this should put beyond a doubt our position [and he quotes]: 'Cayman Governor, John Owen, says, "It is still unclear exactly what is in the works. Certainly, no instruction or anything has come out from the UK saying Cayman must cooperate with tax investigations.'" [Hansard 22 June, 1998 page 449] Yet, during the Select Committee on the Public Accounts (in the United Kingdom), in the Minutes of Evidence under the examination of witnesses on Monday, 15 December, 1997, Sir John Kerr (and I am quoting from [page 4] of the Minutes) said, "I think the majority can see that if a territory acquires a reputation of having been penetrated by criminality, that in the long term it is not in its interests. The Caymans have signed up, as have all of these Dependent Territories, and 26 Caribbean countries in all, to the Caribbean Financial Action Task Force, which is the spin-off from the G7 money laundering task force, and the Caymans were, in fact, the first country to ask to be examined by their peers." Now, we know that to be a fact.

"This system works on peer pressure; they examine each other, and the Caymans were so examined, I understand, in 1995; Bermuda and the TCI [Turks and Caicos Islands] will be examined in the first half of next year. I think it is clear that in the Caymans they do feel that it would be dangerous for the future of the Caymans as a financial centre—it is, of course, a very big centre, as the table you drew to your attention in figure 8 shows—if it was thought to be a haunt of crime." I will pause there to say that we all know that there have been moves afoot—or that is the way it appears to us—from other territories to paint that picture of us. Competition causes that type of thing to happen.

Then he says, and I quote him again: "The Governor of the Caymans told us today"—Today!—"that he would make sure that the fiscal exemption would disappear from Cayman's all-crimes law by March of next year." That is, March of 1998.

Here we have one report stating that the Governor of the Cayman Islands says it is still unclear what is in the works, but we have in the Minutes from the Public Accounts Committee of December [1997] in the UK Parliament where an individual quotes our Governor as saying that our Governor would make sure that the fiscal exemption would disappear from the "Caymans all-crimes law by March of next year." I am not questioning what the Governor did or did not say, all I am saying is that when there are other people involved simply because of our status as a Dependent Territory, we are not always the ones who speak on our own behalf. It is obvious from the illustration just drawn that we have to be on top of the situation at all times because we never know the way situations are portrayed.

The Governor has met with us on more than one occasion and this is certainly not what has been put across to Members of the Legislative Assembly. I am not suggesting for a minute that he told us one thing and told someone else a different thing. All I am saying is that it is by no means a situation we must take lightly.

This motion we are debating today extends further than what has been discussed thus far. The items which are talked about in the Whereas and Resolve sections of the motion also mention that the UK has international obligations. I think this is something that we have to be very conscious of and continually looking very closely at because with all the international obligations that the UK has, and with our being a Dependent Territory, there are matters which will affect us that we have to be very cognisant of at all times.

I will move on with the next point in the Minister's speech. Mr. Speaker, sometimes I know we have to be very careful, and I accept what the Minister sometimes says. But I cannot accept and I do not subscribe to, regardless of what our situation is, regardless of how we find ourselves, . . . I think it is incumbent on us not to paint the people of this country a picture without letting them know exactly what the whole situation is.

The Minister said: "The gist of this. . ." and he is referring to an OECD Report which I will get into a little bit later on. That report is named "HARMFUL TAX COMPETITION—An Emerging Global Issue." In referring to this article he says, "The gist of this is that they are saying that in relation to their members, by the 21 December 2005, which is seven years down the line, the benefits of tax regime should be removed from the member countries." He goes on to say, "We are looking at five years down the line in one category to complete; and we are looking at seven years down the line for the OECD countries to abolish benefits they receive from tax regimes abroad. I think that the UK's position, as the Governor stated, is that there has been no request in relation to the Cayman Islands co-operating on tax investigations." [Hansard 22 June, 1998, page 449]

I want to repeat what he said one more time. He said, "I think that the UK's position, as the Governor stated, is that there has been no request in relation to the Cayman Islands co-operating on tax investigations."

For the benefit of all, when we talk about the international obligations of the United Kingdom, let me just quickly point two things out: The OECD is the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development, and the United Kingdom is one of the original member countries of the OECD. So, whatever is generally agreed on by the OECD, it is naturally expected that it is agreed on by the United Kingdom, seeing that that is part of their international obligation. When the Minister referred to this five year and seven year situation, he was talking about some guidelines that are in this OECD Report for dealing with harmful preferential tax regimes in member countries.

What he was referring to is where they mention, as the guidelines, the following: "To review their existing measures for the purpose of identifying those measures, in the form of legislative provisions or administrative practices related to taxation, that constitute harmful tax practices [that is, what the OECD is terming harmful tax practices] as defined in Section III of Chapter 2 of this Report. These measures will be reported to the Forum on Harmful Tax Practices and will be included in the list within 2 years from the date in which these Guidelines are approved by the OECD Council." [OECD Report page 70] And it goes on quickly to state, "To remove, before the end of 5 years starting from the date on which the Guidelines are approved by the OECD Council, the harmful features of their preferential tax regimes identified in the list referred to in paragraph 2. However, in respect to taxpayers who are benefiting from such regimes on 31 December 2000, the benefits that they derive will be removed at the latest on the 31 December 2005.” This is where there is mention of five years and seven years. It goes on to say, “This will ensure that such particular tax benefits have been entirely removed after that date.” [page 70]

If we stop right there, then what the Minister has said is that in one area we have five years to think about it, and in another area we have seven years to think about it. But if we look in this document right after these guidelines they mention, and I quote: “Recommendation to produce a list of tax havens: that the Forum be mandated to establish, within one year of the first meeting of the Forum, a list of tax havens on the basis of the factors identified in Section II, Chapter 2.” The forum is instructed to prepare within one year from its inception a list of tax havens taking into account the factors set out in section II of Chapter 2. This initial list would be non-exhaustive and would be subject to review by the forum.

What that is saying is that while the situation is given five years in one instance and seven years in another instance for the exercise to be completed, whereby everyone falls in line with the guidelines, in one year there is going to be a list of tax havens published. Now what we have to consider before going any further with the thought is if the Cayman Islands is on that list what type of negative effect will there automatically be. I dare say that instead of talking about five or seven years, we should be looking now to be discussing matters like this with the United Kingdom. The truth is, as advanced as we are with our legislation, including the Proceeds of Criminal Conduct Law and legislation along those lines, that if we are proactive about the situation we may not be on the list—if we can prove that as a nation we are doing everything possible, without negatively affecting our economy, towards the big problem of money laundering, proceeds from criminal conduct and stuff like that.

I don't think that we should be afraid to talk about it. I am not suggesting that we should be making more of a case out of this situation than what it really is. But, on the other hand, it is worse if we try to pretend that this situation does not exist and we need to be discussing it and making decisions as to the course of action to take, given the limited scope we have. What we find ourselves in is a situation where we have to be speaking to the Mother Country, and then the Mother Country will go off after that to discuss all of these matters with her partners that involve all of these international obligations.

To most of us it is a boring topic because we would not even like to have to entertain the thought. But I want to impress upon everyone that it is no good for us to sit and wait for something to happen and then react to try and correct it if it doesn't suit our situation. Nine times out of ten—in fact, probably ten times out of ten—it will be too late. That is what we must understand. So, if I need forgiveness because I take a different stand, then whoever wants to forgive will have to forgive. But I firmly believe that it is not the right thing for us as a country to be trying to simply hedge our bets, hope for the best and not want to discuss these matters.

When statements are made in this Legislative Assembly, I am never going to subscribe to the belief that we should say things the way we want people to hear them. We should say things, if we are going to say anything about it, as it is. If we don't say it as it is, then I contend that we are not levelling with the public. Again, I am not taking issue with anyone about it. I am simply saying that I find myself in a position where, in trying to stay informed and acting responsibly as a representative, I need to look into the situation, deal with it, and talk freely about it. It is not something that we should make people believe that if we even talk about it we should be scared and frightened. That makes no sense. Others may be used to that tactic, but I am not.

The Minister went on to say, and I quote: “So when looked at initially, the OECD Report appears to be more frightening than it really is because it only applies to member countries, of which we are not. It does not apply to the dependencies.” [Hansard 22 June, 1998, page 450]

Mr. Speaker, I have to laugh! For anyone to read this document and make a statement like that...I have to laugh! Either I am the biggest idiot in the world for thinking that that statement makes sense, or the person who said it believes that I am the biggest idiot in the world in expecting me to believe it. Either way I'm an idiot! So he tries to soften it, because he's thinking while he's making this statement, 'Some of these fellows might see through this.' So here is how he just smoothes it out, “Obviously, it does have an indirect impact and I am not saying that we do not need to look at it [No! He's not saying that!], I am just saying that the impact is going to come much further down, if it does come.”

'So don't worry fellows, everything is fine. But I want you to know that it is not that something cannot happen, you know. But don't worry about it right now.'

Mr. Speaker, political debates should be kept on an even keel on matters like this. I totally agree. The Minister said that. I am not in this for me to win or lose. I am a representative of the people. I want the people to understand that while I am not a lawyer, and while I do not have a pile of degrees, I understand what is happening. And while I am not subscribing to the belief that we should throw our hands in the air and be frightened about anything, I cannot truthfully read a statement like that and say that I agree with the statement because the situation is quite different from that.

Our Financial Secretary, in whom I have a world of confidence, is continually making attempts to be kept up to date on what is happening in this area because there is room for concern. But when a Minister of Government makes a statement like this, and it goes public (and it is obvious that if any one of us in here makes a statement we expect the public to believe it), then, when I hear statements as I just read being made, I cannot just bypass the statement because then I would be shirking my responsibility to the people. If I read it and understand what is being said, and say nothing, it means that I am condoning it. I say today that I am not going to do that.

The Minister went on to say (and he goes back to some of what he said during the recently concluded Dependent Territories Conference), and he quotes himself. He says: “For the Cayman Islands the Constitution works well and provides us with continuity and stability. This is especially important for the twin pillars of our economy—tourism and finance. Like other territories we have been before the United Nations Committee of 24 on Decolonisation, and, like others, we have pointed out the overriding rule should be the resolution fundamental to the United Nations, that is, ‘All people have the right of self-determination. By virtue of that right they freely determine their political status and freely pursue their economic, social and political development.’ We do not see the need to change our Constitution. In reality it is a country’s people, their positive attitudes that will keep it stable and progressive rather than any written document. I would just like to elaborate on that because what it comes down to is the duty of Members of the Legislature to keep attitudes in the public positive and to keep those moving progressively forward. The people make up a country and we are their representatives.” [Hansard 22 June, 1998, page 451]

Now, I can totally agree with that wonderful statement. I read what the Minister said, not just to prove that I do not disagree with everything that he says, but if the Minister really means what he says, then when he says what it really comes down to is “the duty of Members of the Legislature to keep attitudes in the public positive and keep those moving progressively forward”, if we expect that to prevail, the only way, in my opinion, that will be achieved is to keep our people informed.

I believe that I am no smarter than John Public; I do not have any greater understanding than John Public has. My only advantage over John Public is that I am one of his representatives and I might have more ready access to information. In the past, I must say, Mr. Speaker, that that has only been sometimes!

I will end that part of the debate. I just wish to sum up by saying that because something is not easy to deal with because all of the answers are not staring us in the face; because there are other forces involved over which we do not have total control; it does not mean that we cannot sit down and talk sensibly about the situation, talk to who else we have to talk to about the situation, and deal with it openly. In fact, it is my belief that many situations which have caused us more grief in the past have arisen because we have not been doing that.

So, Mr. Speaker, let me move on. I am going to begin another topic now.

The Speaker: I think this would be a convenient time to take the luncheon break. Proceedings are suspended until 2.15 PM.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.47 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.45 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Debate continues on Private Member's Motion No. 11/98. The First Elected Member for George Town., continuing.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I referred earlier in my debate to a document, Minutes of Evidence, which depicts what transpired during a select committee on Public Accounts in the United Kingdom Parliament. I would like to read one more section from it. This is simply a case-building exercise. I am quoting a Mr. Davidson, who is questioning Sir John Kerr. [page 3 of 5] “Could I just follow up the point about tax evasion and the sharing of information? My understanding is that the Dependent Territories are generally willing to share information on matters that are a crime in their country, but some of them, unless I am mistaken, do not have income tax and, therefore, do not recognise income tax evasion or avoidance or anything similar as in fact being a crime and, therefore, will not share information and, therefore, will not assist the American authorities in particular in providing any information whatsoever on some of the most outrageous cases of tax evasion. Now, do you have any intention of pursuing that matter at all?”

Sir John Kerr replies: “Absolutely. It is a Cayman Islands problem. The Cayman Islands have passed their all-crimes law, but in a way that contains an exclusion which we are not prepared to agree to. We are insisting that they must change their law. We are also unhappy with the state of Bermudan law. So you are correct that it is a problem, and a problem not yet solved. The legislation that the Caymans have is, in our view, for this reason defective.”

This is referring to the fiscal exemption clause in our legislation. If we go by these Minutes, what is being said is that there is a move afoot for us to remove this fiscal exemption clause to satisfy some of these international obligations which exist with the Mother Country. While some may take the view that matters such as this should not be mentioned, I hold the view that they should be mentioned. We have to look at the situation as it obtains and how it affects our country. The scenario is this, as I understand it: We as a country have certain inherent disadvantages when we compare ourselves to other much larger countries because our economy does not enjoy the type of diversification some of the other territories, and especially the larger countries, enjoy. Some of the nations are industrialised, and most of the countries that look at our situation view our source of revenue as one not suitable to their liking. But once we comply with the legislation to the point where the principle of dual criminality prevails, I believe we are doing our job and accepting our responsibility the best way we can. I think that is one of the problems we will continue to face because of pressure from the larger territories, in that they see the way we operate as inhibiting their way of operating, and their way of wanting to be able to collect certain taxes.

In my view, this is not a frightening situation; and not a situation we should try not to openly discuss. If we were simply candid about it, and were to accept the reasoning from the opposite side of the fence, it would not be difficult for us to understand why these territories think the way they do, and wish for certain things to happen the way they do. Like everything else in life we are not all going to agree on everything, but we have to find a way to coexist. In my view, that is what this whole exercise is going to be all about. I personally do not agree with going behind closed doors hush-hush all the time to try to deal with certain situations. All it does, as far as I am concerned, is arouse suspicion; people get the wrong impression, and the right things do not happen. That is my view. I do not have all the answers, and I do not think anyone here does. But I think we know what the problem is. So we simply have to work together to find the answers.

Let me make it clear so it can be understood. It is easy, if we are open and objective, for the Cayman Islands to understand certain positions the United Kingdom takes, and puts forward to us. It is not difficult for us to understand them. But at the same time, as far as I am concerned our job is to not wait around until decisions are made which will affect us negatively, but to build our own case to Mother Country: to say, 'Mother (so to speak), we understand where you are, but here is our position.' We need to outline our situation. We need to do as much as we can to prove we do not want illegal money flowing through our system. We need to do as much as we can to prove that we are not just giving lip service, but mean what we say; that we do not condone ill-gotten gains and such like. But at the same time, as the Minister for Education said in his speech—and I wish to quote him, because I agree with what he is saying—“This is the distinction I am trying to draw, because tax avoidance is legally reducing the taxes which every country has a principle. It is a principle in English law that every person can so deal with their affairs that they pay the minimum amount of taxes legally required to be paid. Tax evasion, on the other hand, relates to directly breaching the laws of other countries.” [Hansard 22 June, 1998, page 449]

I quote the Minister to make the point that, in my view, because we are such a small territory, as many countries as should do not examine what our regime is all about, how we operate. They simply throw us into one big kit 'n caboodle, and there is no differentiation between avoidance and evasion. It is something we have to be able to prove the difference between, and where we actually fit—not where we want to fit, but where we actually fit. We will only be able to prove that by, as the old time saying goes, 'the proof of the pudding is in the eating.'

I believe that is where we need to lean toward, and to be able to prove that our legislation is as forceful as it can be, with us looking for our own survival at the same time. That is where I think we are.

So contrary to what some others might say about it, I do not think this is something we should be not talking about, or being very careful not to mention certain things.

There are many other areas this motion calls to be openly discussed with the public, but because other people have delved into those areas, I have chosen not to be repetitious. I have gone into another area which I believe is as important, or perhaps in certain instances more important, for us to look at. It certainly has to do with our ties with Mother Country which, I am sure, just like the Minister for Education said, we all wish to retain. We do not have a problem with that. That is nowhere the thought in anyone's mind, wishing for that status to change. But while wishing to retain that situation, there are certain things which have to continue for us as a small country to continue to prosper.

One of the other aspects some people try not to have to think about, but which does exist, is the fact that there are other world nations which are major players in the game. Earlier I stated that Great Britain was a founding member of the OECD. We also have to remember that when we hear about the G7 summits, and those types of things, we must also appreciate the fact that Mother Country is a part of the G7 countries. We cannot only look at it from one avenue, but we must appreciate the fact that Mother Country wears several different hats. In so doing, whether we like it or not, at some points in time we have to wear those hats simply because we are one of Britain's Dependent Territories.

I need to go back to this booklet, 'HARMFUL TAX COMPETITION: An Emerging Global Issue,' which is a publication by the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development, that is, the OECD, to make a few points. With your permission, I wish to quote a few sections from the document so we can get a very clear understanding of the situation we have to deal with.

In the introduction of this booklet, it states that in the ministerial communiqué of May 1996 called upon the organisation [that is, the OECD] “to develop measures to counter the distorting effects of harmful tax competition on investment and financing decisions and the consequences for national tax bases, and report back in 1998.” This document is a result of what that communiqué called on the organisation to do. It is also worthy to note that the request was subsequently endorsed by the G7 countries, which included the following paragraph in the communiqué issued by the heads of state at their 1996 Lions' Summit:

“Finally, globalisation is creating new challenges in the field of tax policy. Tax schemes aimed at attracting financial and other geographically mobile activities can create harmful tax competition between states, carrying risks of distorting trade and investment, and could lead to the erosion of national tax bases. We strongly urge the OECD to vigorously pursue its work in this field aimed at establishing a multilateral approach under which countries could operate individually and collectively to limit the extent of these practices. We will follow closely the progress on work by the OECD, which is due to produce a report by 1998."

So we are getting the picture, where we have the OECD coming from one side, and the G7 countries just a way off, looking on with the full intention of doing what they perceive is necessary for them to do. The basic principle which differs between 'them and us' is that they have a situation in which their economy—not necessarily their economies, but their national revenue, for them to function as countries—is supplied by direct taxation. The Cayman Islands have developed a situation in which we do not have direct taxation, and our sources of revenue for the country are based on other principles, not taxation. So in layman's terms, what is happening is that the larger countries who are involved with direct taxation are saying, 'If you have other territories who do not deal with direct taxation, it is obvious there are some of us who pay tax who will seek to be able to enter those territories, to utilise, within their laws, whatever they can do to avoid paying some of the taxes.'

If I were they, I would not be telling the truth to say I would not take the position they take. But I am not they. So it is only natural that pressure will come to bear from them, saying, 'Look, guys, what you believe you are doing is right, is kinda' hurting us a little bit, so we need you to be like us, so we do not get hurt.' But where the whole picture falls down is that they do not fully understand what we are all about. Not many of them will take the time to try to understand that. For many obvious reasons that we could never be like them: we do not have the type of resources they have, whether natural or otherwise, to diversify our economies to the level they can, for our country to have income.

That is not such a difficult situation for us to talk about. If we want to use the fancy words, whoever wants to do that may. But the way I just said it, I believe is the way it is, and that is what we have to deal with. So we have to find a way, as far as I am concerned, to be able to say to them, 'Listen, we understand what you wish to happen. But we are asking you to understand what we have to live with. So we are going to do as much as we possibly can to ensure that there is no funny business. But please, you must understand that we have to survive.' It is easy for them to make reports and put in documents all kinds of fancy words, but if they come down and look where we are, what we do, and how we do it, then I believe we stand a chance to be able to find a way to coexist.

That word I just used, 'coexist,' is what we have to seek to achieve. That, in my view, is where we are. It is false, almost to the point of being ludicrous, for anyone to say all of the different things I have read (plus more I will read) because we do not hold direct membership with the OECD, and we are simply a Dependent Territory of a member of the OECD, for instance, that what they develop as policies and what they agree on as members will not affect us. It is ludicrous to believe it will not, because if I am in charge of my home, and I say that when we go to the table to eat all the males must have a shirt on, father, son and everyone must have a shirt. Since I am the father and I make the rules, when I put on a shirt there is no way in the world that I am going to let my son come to the table without a shirt! That is a simple example, but I think the point is made.

For us to try to say it is any different would be fooling ourselves. That is exactly what we are doing. And basically, since we are along the line of the shirt business, what we really need to do is get everyone to understand that all the shirts might not be the same colour—but they will be shirts. If we can get to that point, I think we will be okay. So we do not have to be frightened and not want to talk about this thing.

I believe we should be pro-active. I think I need to make the point sink in a little stronger, so I am going to read a few short quotations from this booklet, produced in early 1998. It says, "This Report was also submitted to Ministers when they met at the OECD on 27-28 April 1998," but it had been produced earlier in the year. It is a current document.

I mentioned earlier the list of tax havens they say they are going to develop, and I hope the powers that be who will be dealing with any discussions or negotiations, will be able to see fit to be pro-active about that, so we can try our best to not be listed on that list.

Here is a way in which those people are thinking. I read from page 10. "The Committee notes that many tax havens have chosen to be heavily dependent on their tax industries. To the extent that a tax haven provides a clear signal that it wishes to curtail its harmful tax practises, the Committee would be prepared to engage in a dialogue with such tax havens taking into account the need to encourage the long term development of these economies."

I am not suggesting for a minute that we should not be continually alert, making every attempt possible to diversify our economy. But the truth is that our options are very limited in that regard. Because of what they are used to, any dialogue they will have with us does not mean they will come up with any solutions of alternate ways of earning money for the country. It is just not going to happen that way.

They even recognise, in certain instances, Mr. Speaker, the disadvantages. They say, "In the context of this last effect, countries with specific structural disadvantages, such as poor geographical location, lack of natural resources, etc., frequently consider that special tax incentives or tax regimes are necessary to offset non-tax disadvantages, including any additional cost from locating in such areas. Similarly, within countries, peripheral regions often experience difficulties in promoting their development and may, at certain stages in this development, benefit from more attractive tax regimes or tax incentives for certain activities. This outcome, in itself, recognises that many factors affect the overall competitive position of a country. Although international community may have concerns about potential spill-over effects, these decisions may be justifiable from the point of view of the country in question.” [page 15]

When those few of them who really sit down and consider certain situations, it is obvious from what I just read that they understand what we face. Of course, they have not come to say what we could do otherwise, since they do not want us to operate like that.

After they say they understand some of our problems, they come right back a couple of pages later and say, “Because tax havens offer a way to minimise taxes and to obtain financial confidentiality, tax havens are appealing to corporate and individual investors. Tax havens serve three main purposes: they provide a location for holding passive investments (‘money boxes’); they provide a location where ‘paper’ profits can be booked; and they enable the affairs of taxpayers, particularly their bank accounts, to be effectively shielded from scrutiny by tax authorities of other countries.” [page 22]

That is basically the crux of their argument. They say “All of these functions may potentially cause harm to the tax systems of other countries as they facilitate both corporate and individual income tax avoidance and evasion.” When they take that position, in a nutshell, if they hold fast to that and there is not any or much room at all for dialogue, then they are saying they are ready to put the pillows over our heads. To me, that is what it says.

I believe, because of the many discussions that have gone on prior to this, that Mother Country knows full well at present what our situation is. I believe we have an opportunity for dialogue with Mother Country to do everything possible to retain what we have; to possibly allow scope for enhancing what we have. But we simply have to sit down and search, and search, and find the ways in which we can do it without rocking the boat too strongly.

When we look at the recommendations coming out of this document—I just wish to read two more paragraphs. This is where there are recommendation guidelines for dealing with harmful preferential tax regimes in member countries. The first one I am going to read is to confirm this list of tax havens I mentioned before. “16. Recommendation to produce a list of tax havens: that the Forum be mandated to establish, within one year of the first meeting of the Forum, a list of tax havens on the basis of the factors identified in Section II of chapter 2.” I will not go into that because I am only talking about this list.

The next recommendation is one concerning links with tax havens. In my mind, all that has been said in the document from their point of view qualifies the Cayman Islands as a tax haven, if we leave it just like that. This is where I think we have to start to deal with it, rather than just sitting and waiting to see what happens. That recommendation says, “17. . . .countries that have particular political, economic or other links with tax ha- vens”—that is, just like Great Britain has with the Cayman Islands—“ensure that these links do not contribute to harmful tax competition and, in particular, that countries that have dependencies that are tax havens ensure that the links they have with these tax havens are not used in a way that increase or promote harmful tax competition.”

So they are telling one of their member countries who has a dependency that they are almost convinced at this point that it is a tax haven: ‘Look guys, not because you have a dependency we consider is a tax haven, should you as a member of us allow the link you have with them to be usurped to their advantage.’ Or, perhaps, ‘Don’t think, guys, that because these guys belong to you, that we are going to leave them alone and let them do as they please.’ Kinda’ that sort of thing. That is what we have to work at, in my view.

We have talked about the OECD. While I have not gone into it fully, because I know it is not an exciting one. One would really need to read the entire document to get a full understanding of what is going down with the situation, I think I have quoted enough areas to show that there are some concerns we should have, and that we should be dealing with certain issues pro-actively.

I have a couple of documents here which are all in reference to the Birmingham Summit, that is, the report of the G7 Finance Ministers, the G7 Heads of State of Government for their meeting in Birmingham last month. Just last month. Bear in mind that it has been obvious, while talking about the OECD, that the G7 countries, the group all-tolled are in constant contact, because some of the countries are part of both G7 and OECD. After they met and talked and had all kinds of discussions, they came to certain conclusions.

Under the section, “Financial Crime,” they concluded that “the fight against financial crime is one of the major challenges of our time. “We emphasise that as both financial services and crime become increasingly globalised, this challenge can only be met if all major financial centres work together. Effective co-operation between financial regulators and law enforcement authorities at the international level is an essential element of this. A G7 expert group was set up by the Denver Summit to consider how this co-operation can be improved with our countries.” And they agreed to a list of things. Two of those things are “to take forward a number of practical steps to improve co-operation; disseminate a G7 reference guide to procedures and contact points on information exchange to financial regulators and law enforcement agencies in our countries; and to expand this guide to cover all major financial centre countries.”

When it comes to tax competition, their first statement under that subheading is, “We warmly welcome the OECD agreement on action to tackle harmful tax competition. This provides a strong basis for co-ordinated international action to curb harmful tax competition through preferential tax regimes and tax havens. And we note the complementary development of the European Union Code of Conduct.” I am not going to get into that this afternoon, but we notice it now extends into the European Union.

In reading those few areas from the documents I have, what has been shown is that almost as a general rule of thumb the larger countries, who are tax-based, because of certain illicit and illegal activities which they have discovered certain people engaging in, are not very fond of territories who do not deal with direct taxation. They view those territories as a threat and an avenue for people to engage in certain types of illegal activities—illegal in their minds.

That being the case, Mr. Speaker—and I am certain we all believe—or know—that the Cayman Islands is not a territory which condones this type of activity. The basic difference we have is that we have developed what they term a financial regime which allows people to take advantage of the fact that we have not developed our source of income based on direct taxation. Because we have been able to do it otherwise should not, in my opinion, cause us to be penalised and put into a big can of worms with others who may be involved in tax evasion.

Our situation does not call for evasion, but I think the term they use is ‘avoidance.’ They would like to believe both are one in the same. We know different. We, as a country, have to move forward in reaching those we have to reach, to make sure that is clearly understood; to send the message right, to stack our deck properly, to ensure we are armed properly, to be able to fight the cause. That is what it is going to boil down to.

I believe whoever the individuals or groups are who are directly involved with this type of activity must not be afraid of laying all their cards on the table. I know it is easy for me to stand here and talk about it, because I have never dealt with these people directly. That is what some will say. But it is my belief that once we know where we are, where we need to go, we have to sit down and decide on the best road to take to get there. There is no one person in here who is capable of achieving that. That is something we all have to work together to achieve.

Let me say this before I close: Our system of government—and by now, I understand it fairly well—does not allow for one or two who in their minds are sure they are right, to expect to close all other doors and move on with that premise. It is said, by one and all at times, that consensus is how this country runs. Let us make sure we prove that, and that is how we move forward with this situation to ensure we get the best result possible.

I commend the motion. I am in total agreement with the mover regarding his presentation. I have extended his line of argument a little bit further. I could have gone on much further, but I realise it is not an exciting topic. It is not one you can drag on too long, but it is an important one. I think we should take the time, each and every one of us, to make sure we understand what we face, what we have to do. Do not listen to the anti-Christ. We need, each and every one of us, to get a full understanding of this thing, and we need to put our minds together, to move forward with a course of action so we can get the nearest to right result possible. I hope we are able to do this. I know we are capable of doing it. I just hope the players in the game allow it to happen in that fashion. Thank you.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, if you would entertain my suggestion, this may be a good time for us to take the afternoon break.

The Speaker: I was hoping to go a few minutes more, but if that is the wish of the House, we shall suspend for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.30 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.15 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Debate continues on Private Member's Motion No. 11/98. Does any other Member wish to speak? The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I rise to offer a few short comments on Private Member's Motion No. 11/98, calling for the appointment of a select committee to take input from the public on the review of the Dependent Territories.

At this stage of our development, we are the envy of the entire world. We can boast of being the fifth largest financial centre in the world, we can boast of having one of the highest standards of living and per capita income of any place in the world. I believe that lends itself to a lot of envy, and petty jealousy. And I believe many of our competitors would like to see us fall. But I am not that concerned about our competitors. I am one of those—and I have voiced this far and wide—who is not comfortable, and who does not have complete faith and confidence that the US or the United Kingdom has our best interests at heart.

I am one who firmly believes that sooner than later we are going to have to address some very serious issues that will affect these Islands. When we look at the overall position, I am told that we are now down to five Dependent Territories with a total population of 388,000. Compared to the Commonwealth, or even to Great Britain, it is not significant. Why should they continue to have to be concerned about these small colonies, the majority of which require handouts? Why not assist them in going their own way, politically and otherwise?

If I were the leadership in the United Kingdom, rather than attempting to undermine and jeopardise economies like the Cayman Islands, I would encourage them to continue to survive. I am aware that since early 1960, the Cayman Islands disqualified itself from aid from the United Kingdom. So we are not costing them anything. It means they have more funds available to deal with those territories that do pose a problem, like Montserrat and some of the other Dependent Territories.

I believe the right approach regarding anything seriously affecting these Islands is for all Members of this House to be aware of whatever reports are put together, whatever comments are made, and whatever issues a decision has to be made on.

I did not go to England for the Dependent Territory meetings. It is my understanding that a report is being put together with certain recommendations. We may be jumping the gun a bit in anticipating, but it makes sense for us to have the machinery in place so that when the report arrives we can say, 'Here is the report. Let us take input from members of the public as well as comments from the Honourable Members of this House.'

There is no one who can better represent you or me than the Members of this House. I cannot speak for the First Elected Member for George Town. He knows his District. I certainly would not want him to speak for me regarding West Bay. So I believe it makes sense for us to gather and accept input from all areas, from people of all walks of life, because so much sacrifice and commitment has taken place over the years in building the financial empire we have in the Cayman Islands. It is only right for us to allow members of the general public, and well as representatives in this House, to make their views known on any issue that negatively affects this country.

I believe the more involved the United Kingdom becomes in the European Common Market and its allies, the more pressure will be brought on places like the Cayman Islands. I firmly believe that, Mr. Speaker, to protect and promote their interests—and I would not blame them. If I had to make a decision between the future of this country and some other territory, my natural choice would be to look out for myself first. I am concerned about some of the issues I see coming down the pipeline that affect us in a very negative manner.

I believe if there is going to be a partnership—and apparently the Honourable Foreign Minister, Mr. Cook, emphasised that they were interested in establishing a greater partnership between ourselves and the Mother Country—there must be mutual respect between the parties. I believe more pressure is going to be brought on the United Kingdom regarding territories such as the Cayman Islands—not places like Turks & Caicos and Montserrat, because no one wants those places, and anyone who gets involved is going to have to be prepared to give financial assistance. But the Cayman Islands is a very attractive destination and jurisdiction. I believe the powers that be, many of them, would rejoice at seeing these Islands collapse, financially and otherwise.

I see nothing wrong with the request put forward in this motion. I believe we have to be pro-active, in other words, prepared. Let us put in place the machinery we need to deal with a report of this nature. I believe the fairest way of doing that is by establishing a select committee of the whole House, with the general public having an opportunity to come in, sit before us and express their views on whatever issues we are called upon to address in this country.

So I do offer the mover and seconder of this motion my support. Thank you, Sir.

The Speaker: We have only two minutes until the hour of adjournment. I suggest we take the adjournment at this time. I would entertain a motion for the adjournment.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until 10.00 AM tomorrow morning.

The Speaker: The question is that this House do adjourn until 10.00 AM tomorrow. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House do stand adjourned until 10.00 AM tomorrow.

AT 4.29 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM THURSDAY, 25 JUNE 1998.

EDITED
THURSDAY
25 JUNE 1998
10.06 AM

The Speaker: Prayers by the Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

PRAYERS

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived: We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth, that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly, that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy great name's sake.

Let us say the Lord's Prayer together: Our Father, who art in heaven, hallowed be Thy name. Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us. Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace, now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Item number 2 on today's Order Paper, Presentation of Papers and Reports. The Honourable Minister of Education, Aviation and Planning.

PRESENTATION OF PAPERS AND REPORTS

CENTRAL PLANNING AUTHORITY AND DEVELOPMENT CONTROL BOARD
ANNUAL REPORT 1997

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I beg to lay on the Table of this Honourable House the Cayman Islands Government Central Planning Authority and Development Control Board Annual Report 1997.

The Speaker: So ordered. Do you wish to speak to it? The Honourable Minister of Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Yes, Mr. Speaker. This report is in considerable detail, and shows the extra work done by both the Central Planning Authority in Grand Cayman and the Development Control Board in Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. In 1997, almost three hundred million dollars' worth of development was approved by the Authority and the Board. The Central Planning Authority approved 849 development applications valued at $290.95 million in 40 meetings. The 849 applications represented a 5.7% decline from 1996; however, the value was up 35.3% to $300 million, compared to the 1996 value of $215 million.

The Development Control Board also had a busy year with 163 approvals valued at $8.6 million. This represented an increase of 15.6% in the number of approvals, but a decrease of 17% in value.

There has been little change in the distribution, in terms of the numbers by sector. The four sectors that continually receive the majority of applications are houses, apartments, condominiums, commercial and others. The distribution of applications according to district has also been constant, with George Town, Bodden Town and West Bay having the most development activity. Cayman Brac, for the second consecutive year also had more than one hundred approvals.

The District of George Town has historically had the majority of approvals, and in 1997 this trend continued. The number of approvals in each sector did not change significantly, and this shows stability and continuity of the economy in these areas. The Central Planning Authority also attended a seminar which gave them the opportunity to deal with up to date matters relating to planning.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the Chairman and members of the Central Planning Authority, and the Chairperson and members of the Development Control Board; also the staff in both departments for their untiring work. Applications for approval before the Central Planning Authority have now reached a considerably short period, compared to the normal three-week mandatory notices that have to be given. That is in the area of 40 days with about 28 days being taken out for the notices under the law.

Further, there is now delegation of simple uncontroversial matters such as houses, television dishes, signs, fences, and matters such as that, to the Director of Planning, and, in certain instances, the Director of Planning and the Chairman of the Central Planning Authority. That delegation will reduce the usual period of 30-odd days to perhaps only a few days for minor applications. It will also relieve the burden of work the Central Planning Authority now does. This is, once again, in line with the Governor's reinvention scheme now in place, and is one of the several things at the Planning Department in which they have increased service to the public. It should now be possible, within a matter of a few days, to get simple plans relating to houses and things like signs approved.

I would like to thank all Members of this Honourable House for supporting the Planning Department, Planning Authority and Development Control Board, and also for supporting the development plan which went through last year. I look forward to your support in the upcoming matters coming to this Honourable House from the Central Planning Authority, Development Control Board, the Department of Planning, and the Ministry. Thank you.

The Speaker: Item number 3 on today's Order Paper, Questions to Honourable Official Members/Ministers, deferred Question 60, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE MEMBERS/MINISTERS

DEFERRED QUESTION 60

No. 60: Miss Heather D. Bodden asked the Honourable First Official Member with responsibility for Internal and External Affairs what procedure is followed by the Traffic Department after an accident has occurred, that is, who is responsible for: (1) clearing away debris; and (2) the removal of damaged vehicles.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: The procedure followed by the Traffic Department after an accident has occurred is as follows: (1) the police are responsible for clearing up traffic accident debris in cases where it can be done using a broom. Brooms are carried in all traffic patrol cars. In some cases where there is oil or other fluids on the road, the Fire Department assists by pressure hosing the fluids and debris off the road. There are times when an officer may have to leave an accident scene to attend another accident before he has cleaned the scene properly. In these cases, some debris may be left behind. When complaints of this nature are received, either a traffic constable is despatched to have the debris cleaned; or, in some cases, the Public Works Department is contacted. They will always assist when asked.

(2) Whenever an accident occurs involving one or more vehicles, it is the responsibility of the police to remove the vehicles from the carriageway if they are causing an obstruction. The owners of the vehicles are responsible thereafter for removing the wrecked vehicles from the scene. Usually, insurance companies will arrange for this to be done. Whenever there is a motor vehicle accident which involves fatalities, the vehicles involved are removed by the police to the police station for investigation purposes. After the police have completed their investigation, the respective insurance companies are informed and the vehicles are removed from the police station by private wrecker.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Miss Heather D. Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Could the Honourable First Official Member say if there is a cost related to the removal of such vehicles, and who is responsible for that payment?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Perhaps I could ask the Member to be a little more specific. Is she referring to cost when a fatality has occurred? Because I said in the substantive answer that the police simply have the vehicles moved off the carriageway, and it is the owner's responsibility to have the vehicles removed.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Honourable Member say if, when the vehicles are removed from the carriageway and sometimes placed along the sides of the road, there are any regulations which determine how long the vehicle must remain there before it has to be moved?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. That Member is always very sharp and on the ball. I am afraid I cannot give that answer here. I would have to undertake to give that in writing.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I appreciate the Honourable Member's undertaking to do that and to also use his good offices to see that the relevant authorities are more conscientious. I notice quite frequently at the scenes of accidents that the vehicles stay along the side of the road literally for days. Not only is it unsightly, but it also is an obstruction to the regular traffic flow. So any efforts in this request would be greatly appreciated.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Yes, I will certainly deal with that. I too have observed that, and I thank the Member for that. I will certainly ask the police to be vigilant in this regard.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, we will move to question 80, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Before I ask question number 80, I would just like to point out how scant the Order Paper is with questions, and there are a lot of questions in this meeting that are not getting answered. I would like to draw your attention to that, Mr. Speaker. I know it is the business of the Business Committee and not the Speaker, but maybe you can draw their attention to the answering of questions. Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

QUESTION 80

No. 80: Mr. W. McKeever Bush asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism if the Department of Tourism has any of its reservation systems on the Internet and if so, (a) was it contracted locally, or is it overseas-based; (b) what was the cost of the contract; and (c) what are the conditions of the contract?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The Department of Tourism does not have its reservations system on the Internet.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I wonder if the Minister could say whether they have any systems on the Internet recently?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I am not aware of anything on the Internet by the Department of Tourism. We have a Cayman Islands reservations system in Miami, but that is really not on the Internet.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Minister say if the Department of Tourism has any plans to use the World Wide Web, as it is called, for a reservations system, or any other system that may help it in promoting the Islands?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, obviously, the way to go today is the World Wide Web, and all of us are looking at that possibility.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: The Minister said they are looking at it—how far his Ministry has reached? Is it just preliminary, or have investigations been made into the cost and a base site to which enquiries may be routed, or what is the extent of his description, 'looking at it'?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, looking at it in my terminology means we are examining the possibility of going onto the Internet, but we are not talking about reservations.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, we will move to Question 81, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for West Bay.

QUESTION 81 (Deferred)

No. 81: Mr. W. McKeever Bush asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Transport: Is the Port Authority considering the purchase of any large equipment for use on the dock and at the distribution centre?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, I think it would be appropriate to apologise. I think there was some mix-up this morning. My understanding is that I was responsible for answering three questions. When I got to the House, I determined it was four questions. I do not have a prepared answer for Question 81 yet. I would kindly ask the House to defer this question until either Friday or Monday.

The Speaker: I shall put the question that under Standing Order 23(5), Question 81 be deferred to a later sitting. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. Question 81 has been deferred.

AGREED: QUESTION NUMBER 81 DEFERRED TO A LATER SITTING.

The Speaker: Moving to question 82, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 82

No. 82: Miss Heather D. Bodden asked the Honourable Minister with responsibility for Tourism, Commerce and Transport how many visitors have visited Pedro St. James Castle since the soft opening in January of this year.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Pedro St. James is not yet fully operational, although we allow visitors to view the completed Castle and grounds. This is what is referred to as the 'soft opening.' We have only recently begun to seriously market the project. Shortly we will be discussing tours with the cruise lines. A total of 5,000 visitors visited Pedro St. James between January and May 1998.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Could the Honourable Minister say if the official opening is still set for July or the first part of August?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Only recently, I think it was in the last ten days, we revisited this date as to when the project should open, and we thought that in construction of a project of this magnitude we would defer the opening from July to a date which we are fairly certain the project will be opened and functional, and have some time to, as they say, remove the teething problems. We have preliminarily set the date as 17 October.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. If a total of 5,000 people visited Pedro Castle between January and May, can the Minister say what income was derived from those people?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, about $39,000.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, we will move to Question 83, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 83

No. 83: Miss Heather D. Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport: Will the grounds of the Pedro St. James Castle be available for private and public functions?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Yes, the Pedro St. James grounds and facilities are available for private and public functions. Since January 1998, five private functions were held at the site. Income from the rental of the facilities will be a major revenue factor.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Minister say whether they have estimates of costs for public or private functions?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I say again that the project itself is not fully operational yet, but we are attracting some private functions to be held on the grounds of Pedro St. James. It depends on the number of persons who form the private function. It may be $100 or $1000 per event. We have had so far this year about five significant functions at Pedro St. James, and there are a number of bookings already made, taking us into May 1999.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, we will move to Question 84, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 84

No. 84: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister with responsibility for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation whether any discussions with the Medical and Dental Society were held prior to the circulation of the white paper on the Health Practitioners Law.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. No discussions took place between the Ministry of Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation and the Cayman Islands Medical and Dental Society prior to the circulation of the draft Health Practitioners Bill, 1998. As I stated on 27 March this year when I tabled the draft bill in this Honourable House, it is a draft for discussion purposes. I went on to say that I would publicise the draft Bill and give the professional associations concerned an opportunity to comment and provide feedback on the contents. I have now done this, and I am awaiting feedback from the CIMDS. Incidentally, I have also received written feedback from the Cayman Islands Nurses' Association.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries? The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I would like to thank the Minister for his answer, and I would like to ask him if he contemplates any major changes in the Health Practitioners Bill.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, we had a brief meeting with them within the Ministry and the Health Services Department some time ago, and they asked for an extension until 30 June for their submissions. I do not really anticipate any major changes, but we will be looking at feedback from them. I know they are having a meeting this evening, and I am sure after that we will get together and go forward, because the only way this Bill will be successful is with the support of the Medical Society.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I would like to find out if the Minister has yet recognised the need to change the powers of the Chief Medical Officer as Chairman of the Health Practitioners Board. I am asking whether he can say if there will be any alterations in those powers.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, we have not made a final decision on this. It is my understanding that concerns have been expressed by some of the people, but this will be based on laws existent in other countries, and we will try to stay within the boundaries of similar laws in other places.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, we will move to Question 85, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 85

No. 85: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation whether any medical supplies are being purchased from a company in which one of the principals is a pharmacist who worked in the Cayman Islands.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Yes, the company in question, called "Masters Medical," has been a vendor to the Hospital since 1991. The pharmacist who formally worked at the George Town Hospital commenced employment with the company in 1994.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries? The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Minister tell the House if this is a contractual arrangement, and if so, did this process go through competitive bids? Can he explain to the House the advantages of purchasing from this company as against competition?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The procurement of medical supplies follows guidelines established by Government and Financial and Stores Regulations. Bids are evaluated based on quality, price and reliability of service. Masters Medical scores very highly on all three criteria. There is absolutely no reason that the Health Services Department should not deal with Masters Medical, given they follow the same tendering process as other companies supplying pharmaceuticals.

There are many reasons we use them. Their prices are very competitive; their products are of a very high quality; their service is excellent; they provide drugs in an emergency situation; they extend credit up to 90 days; they find difficult-to-find items quite speedily; they deliver on time, and have stepped in to supply drugs when other suppliers have failed to deliver on time. As a matter of fact, their staff will take drugs to the Miami Airport when our patients urgently require drugs not available on the Island. Delivery time can be as short as twelve hours.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Honourable Minister say whether or not this company is the exclusive provider of drugs, or does the Cayman Islands Hospital and Government service also procure drugs from other companies?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: No, as a matter of fact, Masters Medical supplies approximately 38% of our supplies.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Minister name the principals of this company for the records of the Parliament?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, the only name I have here, was the former pharmacist between 1987 and 1990, Miss Chabnam Alibai. The other ones I would check with the Director and supply to the Member. This is one of the people in the company.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, that concludes Question Time for this morning.

Item number 4 on today's Order Paper, Other Business, Private Member's Motion, continuation of debate on Private Member's Motion 11/98, The Appointment of a Select Committee to take Input from the Public on the Review of the Dependent Territories. PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

THE APPOINTMENT OF A SELECT COMMITTEE TO TAKE INPUT FROM THE PUBLIC ON THE REVIEW OF THE DEPENDENT TERRITORIES

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of Private Member's Motion No. 11/98. I regard this motion as one of the most important ones coming to this Honourable House in recent years.

By the time I have concluded my presentation, I trust I will have shown beyond any doubt the good sense and timeliness of this motion. I am, however, disappointed that thus far the Honourable Official Member responsible for Finance, the Third Official Member (a good friend of mine), has not seen fit to speak on this very important motion, which really applies directly or indirectly to his Portfolio.

To get the proper continuity on the presentations made thus far on this motion, I wish to read its contents:

"WHEREAS the United Kingdom Government, through the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, announced a review of its Dependent Territories;

"AND WHEREAS this review affects citizenship, change of name, international obligations and other possible matters affecting these Islands;

"AND WHEREAS there has been no public discussion on the review;

"BE IT RESOLVED that a select committee of all Members of this Honourable House be set up to take input from the public on the review, make the findings public by a report being tabled in the Legislative Assembly, sent to the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs through His Excellency the Governor, and included in the Vision 2008 exercise.

"AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the select committee elect a chairman and deputy chairman."

I wish to thank the mover, the First Elected Member for West Bay, Mr. W. McKeeva Bush, and the seconder, the First Elected Member for George Town, Mr. Kurt Tibbetts, for this timely motion.

I hope I will be able to demonstrate why I regard this motion as so important and timely. There are several questions that arise under this motion. One such question—and perhaps most important—is, Why is this motion necessary? A previous speaker attempted to downplay the importance of opening this matter up for discussion. In his usual manner he injected his scare tactics into the matter, when a better course of action would be for all Honourable Members to discuss this matter openly, intelligently, dispassionately, and in the interests of all our people, because it deals with our very survival.

Let me say right up front that the motion before this House is not—and I repeat is not—seeking any form of constitutional advancement. If or when the necessity for constitutional change arises, we, as a group of intelligent legislators, will have to address that problem. But the question before us at this time is without doubt too serious for any Member of this House to attempt to understate or minimise its importance. I want to reiterate that this motion does not even contemplate the question of significant constitutional changes, as I heard mentioned in this House yesterday. It is true that it speaks about the review affecting citizenship and change of name, but I will comment on that and explain what would be entailed in that exercise.

Yesterday, the First Elected Member for George Town rightly included in the report from the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD) the group known as the G7 countries. The G7 countries, as we know, include the United States of America, the United Kingdom, France, Germany, Italy, Japan and Canada. These, with the possible exception of perhaps one, were all founding members of the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development, OECD.

The fact that this motion has already been accepted, at least in principle by the Government Bench, would suggest to me the high importance they have placed on the issues contained in this motion. May I therefore remind them of what they have accepted? They have accepted that a select committee of all Members of this Honourable House will be set up to take input from the public on the review being called for; and that these findings will be made public by a report tabled in this Honourable House, and sent to the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs through His Excellency the Governor. Further, that this will be included in the Vision 2008 exercise.

Against the background of this undertaking by the Government Bench, I find it somewhat strange that the Honourable Minister of Education would attempt to play politics with this serious matter. I will explain what I mean by that statement. When I say 'play politics' I am trying not to say this in a very derogatory manner, but I think it is time that Honourable Member realises that the scare tactics are no longer working or having an effect on this side of the House. I believe the people of this country would be better served if they were given the basic facts emanating from this motion, rather than being told it could result in constitutional changes. I wonder whether that sort of an attempt is not with the view of minimising the impact of this important issue. By the gist of the comments made by that Member yesterday, I wonder whether we will ever see a meeting of that select committee called during the tenure of this Government. Or is this motion being accepted to appease the mover and seconder and other Members supporting the motion?

Too often, important issues, important motions, are brought to this Honourable House and end up in 'file thirteen,' so to speak, or some political archive. I would hate, because of the importance of this motion, to see it pushed in some drawer and not attended to.

A previous speaker said, "The question of consulting the public on major issues is one that will obviously happen." My question again to that Honourable Member is, when? When will it happen? I accept that no instructions or anything may yet have been received from the United Kingdom saying the Cayman Islands must cooperate with tax investigations, or indeed the requirements of the OECD, of which the United Kingdom is a founding member. But similarly, we have not received any instructions saying we will not have to comply. Indications suggest, from articles I have seen coming through the Foreign and Commonwealth Office, and indeed the OECD report and a later report from the G7 countries, that in the same way member countries will have to comply with the recommendations and report of OECD, their dependencies will also have to comply. I will highlight this as I continue.

While this motion basically seeks to take input from the public on the review of Dependent Territories, perhaps our most important consideration at this time is our international obligations through our constitutional affiliation as a dependent, or if you care to have it, an Overseas Territory, of the United Kingdom. I will point out some of these international obligations. Before doing so, I want to make it very clear that any attempt to try to divert the importance of this motion into the area of constitutional change would be ill-advised, because it would not be doing justice to this important motion and the underlying principles and precepts it addresses.

So my contribution will focus mainly on the international obligations that will affect these Islands and not, as was mentioned earlier by one Member, possible constitutional change. As I said, constitutional changes that might be affected from the review, affects of citizenship or change of name, would be minimal. Of course, the constitution would have to be changed if you have to change the wording 'Dependent Territories' to 'Overseas Territories,' and things such as that. I want to make it abundantly clear that my understanding is that no major constitutional changes are being asked for under this motion.

The Foreign and Commonwealth Office has been discussing this whole issue, or the issue of fiscal inclusion, which is central to the whole review. They have been discussing this whole issue with Bermuda for quite some time now, and we as a Government should have been aware of that. I believe we are aware that the Foreign and Commonwealth Office has been openly discussing, because the whole question of fiscal inclusion has been reported in the Bermuda Royal Gazette. What is the meaning of fiscal inclusion? Basically it means that these countries will not regard any area of taxes as being excluded from this exercise. Under the MLAT (the Mutual Legal Assistance Treaty), provision was made for taxes to be excluded. But the OECD report, which has been accepted by the United Kingdom on behalf of the United Kingdom and its dependencies, will not exclude fiscal matters. There will be no fiscal exclusion.

What baffles and concerns me is that I have been reliably informed that this information has been made known to our Government and to our Government Ministers, yet it does not seem to be taken seriously. It is being underplayed. It is like an ostrich that covers its head with the sand and hopes the problem will go away. Why are they burying their heads in the sand? Why are they treating the OECD report as if it is so unimportant, when in fact this is one of the most important matters to affect these Islands? Tax havens!

I have been corrected that we are not a tax haven, but that is our own personal, local definition. As far as the major countries are concerned we are grouped as a tax haven with all other tax havens, whether or not we want to call ourselves a financial centre. We are a tax haven! Pure and simple—tax haven, just like Luxembourg, Switzerland, the Channel Islands, Bermuda, Turks and Caicos, British Virgin Islands. We are all tax havens! So let us not get into semantics and talk about how we regard ourselves as a financial centre. It is immaterial to the OECD countries what we want to regard ourselves as. We can call ourselves whatever we want!

It is what they see us as. And even the United Kingdom—our Mother Country—regards us as a tax haven.

Mr. Speaker, as we speak, a committee is in the process of considering legislation that will extend to fiscal matters in the tax havens around the world. They have made it very clear that for their proposed money laundering legislation to be fully effective, it needs to cover all serious offences, including fiscal matters, and be based on the principle of dual criminality. Dual criminality is basically the same as fiscal inclusion. It will mean that what is regarded as a criminal offence in the United States or the United Kingdom regarding fiscal or other matters, will also be considered, as far as they are concerned, a criminal offence in the Cayman Islands.

Her Majesty's Government and the OECD countries consider fiscal offences to include tax evasion, and also tax avoidance. Many say there is a very thin line, but there is a distinct line. Tax evasion has always been considered and defined as a criminal offence. Tax avoidance takes a softer position. We call it in these Islands Tax Planning; but as far as the United States, the United Kingdom, and other members of OECD are concerned, it is a criminal offence. They are committed to destroying tax havens. Let us call it by its right name, and not play around with this issue. Call a spade a spade! They are committed to getting rid of tax havens because they see us as operating a criminal operation, and that our economy is benefiting from ill-gotten gains. They see tax avoidance or evasion as a criminal offence, and group this whole thing as one offence. They are not prepared to take a soft position on what we want to call tax avoidance.

Because of this, they have all committed themselves to destroying tax havens. I will soon make reference to specific instances in which they plan to take action. First, I would like to refer to an article I found in my post box. It seemed to have been. . . and I am prepared to table this, if necessary, but I am just taking excerpts from it, Mr. Speaker. The discussion was on Bermuda, the financial regulation situation, and it emanated from the Foreign and Commonwealth Office. It states—and I am just taking an extract from this—“The discussions covered two broad areas: the extent of all-crimes, money laundering legislation, and in particular, whether it should be extended to cover fiscal offences, and the process for taking forward consultations on the Foreign Secretary's proposal for financial regulation to be incorporated in the forthcoming White Paper on the Overseas Territories.” The writer of this letter, Mr. N. J. Westcott, Economic Relations Department, went on to say, “I confirmed that Her Majesty's Government's overriding objective was to establish legislation on all overseas territories that would effectively prevent the laundering of the proceeds of serious crime.” He went on to say, “We believe that for this money laundering legislation to be fully effective, it needs to cover all serious offences, including fiscal offences.”

So Mr. Speaker, even as far as the United Kingdom government is concerned, tax evasion and tax avoidance is regarded as a serious offence, and they are committed to getting rid of this and doing whatever is necessary to rid themselves of the problem of tax havens.

It went on to say, “And that the fiscal offences should be based on the principle of dual criminality.” I explained that earlier, Mr. Speaker. They are seeing—and I need to make this very clear—they are seeing our tax planning system in the Cayman Islands—tax avoidance, the thing we say is legal for us to do—as an illegal exercise. And they see it as a serious offence.

How, then, Mr. Speaker, can our Government sit back and not even want to discuss this matter? What more important international or national issue has arisen in this country in recent months and years? I am very amazed, Mr. Speaker, that no one has thus far opened up a dialogue on this matter. And when an attempt was made by the Honourable First Elected Member for West Bay to move this motion, and the Honourable First Elected Member for George Town to second it, they were made to look as if they were causing problems. Scare tactics! The constitutional issue was brought out, when in fact that should not have even be mentioned. What is more important is our international obligations regarding these countries.

Mr. Westcott went on to say, “As well as introducing equivalent legislation in all other Overseas Territories with significant sectors, it was our aim to work with other members of the FATF to build an international consensus to introduce legislation on these lines, representing best practice in all jurisdictions,” which includes the Cayman Islands. They feel this would establish a level playing field, not only between Overseas Territories, but internationally.

There is no question that the United Kingdom, like other countries, is aware of efforts made by the Cayman Islands. So we cannot just sit back and say we have done everything necessary. The MLAT? Of course the MLAT was signed. But we are going beyond the MLAT, Mr. Speaker. They are not just satisfied with other crimes. They are focusing now on fiscal matters, fiscal inclusion, tax avoidance, tax evasion. This is where they are focusing, on tax havens. This is where the focus of our discussion should be. It should be central to this very issue, because it is our tax haven status that has built these Islands. We are now the fifth largest financial centre, off-shore—and I want to put that in brackets—off-shore financial centre in the world. But this would not have been, had it not been that we built our economy on tax avoidance, tax planning, on encouraging people to come to the Cayman Islands, because we offered no taxation. This is the main reason they came, because we are a tax-free country. How can we survive by being a tax-free country? Because we are encouraging investors to leave their countries and come to the Cayman Islands in a tax-free environment, and this is what the G7 countries and the OECD countries are up in arms against us about. Not just the Cayman Islands, but all tax havens.

The letter said, "We emphasised that Her Majesty's Government and other governments concerned in setting up the international standards regarded fiscal offences such as tax evasion"—and I also said tax avoidance—"or tax fraud as serious crimes." So let us not fool ourselves. Our Mother Country will demand that the Cayman Islands, like other Dependent Territories, toe the same line as the one they commit to.

The Foreign and Commonwealth Office feels that including fiscal offences (and they are speaking of Bermuda) in the Bermudan legislation is thus essential so first, the legislation will be fully effective and avoid creating a loophole which may inadvertently or deliberately be used to avoid the provisions applying to the proceeds of certain crimes. Secondly, to avoid setting a bad precedent for other jurisdictions which may then demand an exclusion for fiscal or other offences on the grounds that the United Kingdom was willing to allow territories to pick and choose the areas to which the legislation applied.

It is quite clear. The United Kingdom will not be doing any favours for the Cayman Islands by saying, 'We will allow you to continue the way you are going because you have the Mutual Legal Assistance Treaty in place. You have the Proceeds of Criminal Conduct Law in place. You have done all these nice little things. Therefore we will exempt you from the fiscal inclusion.' Anyone thinking that way is misconceived. Certainly, I would not expect any of my Honourable enlightened colleagues in this Honourable House to be thinking in that direction.

I wonder if you wish to take a break at this time, Mr. Speaker, because I am going on to another area.

The Speaker: We shall suspend for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.18 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 11.58 AM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Debate continues on Private Member's Motion No. 11/98. The Third Elected Member for George Town, continuing.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

On the question of tax avoidance, I wish to comment further, to clarify what is meant by the benefits that have been received by the Cayman Islands providing protection for investors wishing to avoid unnecessary taxes—and I make the distinction here between tax evasion as opposed to tax avoidance. As I said earlier, tax evasion is a criminal offence. Tax avoidance takes a different position within our system.

Before continuing I wish to make the point that as far as the economy of the Cayman Islands is concerned, the turning point for us (as far as I am concerned) was back in 1966 when through the foresight of our former Financial Secretary (or it could have been Treasurer at the time), the Bank and Trust Companies Law came into effect. That was the turning point for the development of our economy notwithstanding that the economy is also divided with tourism forming perhaps 50% of our economy. But I have always been of the view that tourism came as a result of the interest in the financial sector, and that the economy was driven by the need for services we provide as a financial centre.

Equally important was the Confidential Relationship Preservation Law of 1976. The basic reason for this Law was to provide certain protection to investors coming into the Cayman Islands. Why did they come to the Cayman Islands? I think it is for one basic reason: To utilise the facilities that we offered through the tax haven. The basic facility that we offered was tax avoidance and tax planning facilities. So let us understand that there is very little distinction between tax avoidance and tax planning and that the Confidential Relationship Preservation Law was to protect investors coming into our banks and trust companies, etc., from the watchful eyes and probing fingers of the inland revenue and other such bodies.

We want to do whatever we can to preserve our present status quo. It won't be easy. Nobody should attempt to minimise the problems we have ahead; neither should this situation be blown out of context. What we are dealing with here is the situation that we know about. We have in our possession a copy of the OECD Report captioned "HARMFUL TAX COMPETITION—An Emerging Global Issue." In addition to this we have seen correspondence to Bermuda from the Foreign Commonwealth Office addressing this same issue. The whole question that this motion speaks to is the question of fiscal inclusion. Regardless of what we want to put to this motion, this is the main issue where the Cayman Islands is concerned.

I don't think that we are as concerned about the UK calling us an Overseas Territory. That is not important to us. And there are very few of us who want to go to the UK to live. So, there again, that is not an important issue. The major issue central to this motion is the whole question of fiscal inclusion and that is why we have brought into our discussion the OECD Report.

As far back as May 1996 the OECD Committee on Fiscal Affairs launched its project to develop measures to counter the effects of harmful tax competition, etc., and to report back to OECD in 1998, this year. The report was submitted to the OECD Council on 9 April 1998. As promised in May 1996 they were true to their word—in the same way that they will be true to their threat to get rid of tax havens!

The Governments of the OECD countries, including the United Kingdom, which is a founding member of OECD, adopted the report and instructed the Committee to pursue its work. But, happily, Mr. Speaker, both Luxembourg and Switzerland abstained in Council on the approval of report and the adoption of its recommendations.

The Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development has chosen to caption their report as a Dependent or Overseas Territory of the United Kingdom it will apply to the Cayman Islands as to those other tax havens the caption of their report is "Harmful Tax Competition." Just for the record I wish to mention the original and other member countries of OECD. This can be checked by anyone. The original member countries of the OECD are: Austria, Belgium, Canada, Denmark, France, Germany, Greece, Iceland, Ireland, Italy, Luxembourg, the United Kingdom, The Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, Turkey and the United States. The following countries became members subsequently through a session at the dates indicated hereafter: Japan, 1964; Finland, 1969; Australia, 1971; New Zealand, 1973; Mexico, 1994; The Czech Republic, 1995; Hungary, 1996; Poland, 1996; Korea, 1996. Included in this is the list of the G7 countries. I mentioned them earlier, namely, the United States, the United Kingdom, Germany, France, Canada, Italy, and Japan.

The reason I read this out was to show that whatever is agreed upon, this issue by the OECD also includes representatives of the G7 countries, so they are all involved in this process. You cannot find a stronger body than the G7 countries. If they are opposed to tax havens, then I feel the sooner we start talking to one of those members—which is our Mother Country, the United Kingdom—the better it will be for our position. Remember, Mr. Speaker, the United Kingdom is a member of both the OECD and the G7 countries. I cannot over-emphasise that point. It is most important.

Should we be concerned about the OECD Report? My answer would be that we should be very concerned about it. I want to support my reason for saying that by reading excerpts from this booklet. If it hasn't been tabled, I will be happy to do it, but I believe that copies were circulated to Honourable Members.

What are the factors, as far as they are concerned, that identify places like the Cayman Islands and put them into a category as a tax haven? On page 22 of this Report, section 52 states: "The necessary starting point to identify a tax haven is to ask: (a) whether a jurisdiction imposes no or only nominal taxes (generally or in special circumstances) and offers itself, or is perceived to offer itself, as a place to be used by non-residents to escape tax in their country of residence." That would seem to define the operation that we have in the Cayman Islands.

"Other key factors which can confirm the existence of a tax haven and which are referred to in Box 1 are: (b) laws or administrative practices which prevent the effective exchange of relevant information with other governments on taxpayers benefiting from the low or no tax jurisdiction; (c) lack of transparency; and (d) the absence of a requirement that the activity be substantial, since it would suggest that a jurisdiction may be attempting to attract investment or transactions that are purely tax driven (transactions may be booked there without the requirement of adding value so that there is little real activity. . .)" And we have a lot of that kind of activity occurring in the Cayman Islands where some of the B

Banks just book transactions without any real activity occurring locally.

What are the key factors, so that when we are talking about the system that the United Kingdom and other OECD member countries are putting in place, we will know exactly that it is intended to focus on the Cayman Islands and other tax haven countries? What are the key factors in identifying tax havens for the purpose of this report? The key factors are basically "no or only nominal taxes." "The lack of effective exchange of information." Our Confidentiality Law prevents that. "Lack of transparency." No country is allowed at this time to get information on tax matters or on clients from their own countries unless they go through a certain process through the courts to the satisfaction of the courts. I think it is without doubt that the Cayman Islands falls under that broad definition of a tax haven.

As I mentioned earlier, these countries are aware of the good things we have done in the Cayman Islands, they are aware that we have entered into the Mutual Legal Assistance Treaty for many years now. They are also aware that we have entered into the Proceeds of Criminal Conduct Law. They are aware of these things. They are not just interested in the good things we have done, their main interest is what still remains to be done, and that is to open ourselves up, to get away from fiscal exclusion and become involved in the fiscal inclusion within the principle of dual criminality.

The report continues [on page 24], "Some progress has been made in the area of access to information, in that certain tax haven jurisdictions have entered into mutual legal assistance treaties in criminal matters [They are referring to the Cayman Islands because this is what we did] with non-tax havens that permit exchange of information on criminal tax matters related to certain other crimes (e.g. narcotics trafficking) or to exchange information on criminal tax fraud is at issue. Nevertheless, these tax jurisdictions do not allow tax administrators access to bank information for the critical purpose of detecting and preventing tax avoidance"

It is quite clear that this whole motion is central to this whole issue of tax inclusion. This is why it is necessary to have this review. Otherwise this motion would be redundant. I did say before that this is a very important motion, and I will temper what I said about it being the most important motion (if that offends any Member). It is, in my opinion, one of the most important motions I have seen come to this Honourable House. It will be interesting to hear any Member who speaks after me prove me wrong or tell me what they see as a more important motion.

To point out the seriousness of this situation and to further emphasise the importance of member countries and their dependencies having to comply with this report, I will point out that two members of the OECD Council felt that this would so negatively impact upon their economies that they abstained from voting on the report. I would like to refer to Annex II of the report, statements that were made by two of the OECD member countries, namely, Luxembourg and Switzerland. The statement from Luxembourg said: “The Council, which met at the Ministerial level in May 1996, gave a mandate ‘to develop measures to counter the distorting effects introduced by harmful tax competition on investment and financing decisions and the consequences for national tax bases.’ Considering that tax competition—beyond its positive effects—can also present certain harmful aspects, Luxembourg approved this mandate and participated in the subsequent work.

“In parallel with the work undertaken at the OECD, Luxembourg has co-operated actively in elaborating a comprehensive approach to this issue within the European Union, where an agreement was reached on 1 December 1997 on a code of conduct with respect to business taxation and on the issues to consider in the context of taxation of savings in order to guarantee a minimum level of taxation.

“The EU agreement is the result of co-ordinated action, reflecting a balanced approach, based on:

“(1) recognition of the existence of inherently legitimate differences between national legal and fiscal frameworks;”

I would like to read that again because it is very important. One of the basis for Luxembourg’s objection was that they felt the European Union, the OECD, should recognise “the existence of inherently legitimate differences between national legal and fiscal frameworks [within member countries].” And further, “that these differences should not be at the origin of harmful tax competition.” I will not read all of the report, but I will just take the salient points.

One of the points they made was that Luxembourg cannot accept that the underlying philosophy of the report be extended to taxation of savings. Luxembourg made that very clear. So why, in the name of good common sense, and in the name of our national interest should we sit with our heads buried in the sand and say nothing about it? Our competition, even Bermuda, is now in active dialogue with the Foreign and Commonwealth Office in this matter. They went on to say “Accordingly, Luxembourg shall not be bound by the Report nor by the Recommendation to counteract harmful tax competition.” They did that in the interest of the economies of their countries. As a dependency of the UK we expect that when we open up active dialogue with the UK that they will mediate on our behalf.

Switzerland took a similar position and said [page 78], “After having seriously considered the possibility of exercising its veto, Switzerland has finally decided to abstain when the Report and its Recommendations are adopted, in order not to prevent their adoption by other OECD Member countries wishing to do so.” The only reason that Switzerland did not veto this report is that it would have destroyed the whole report. But they decided to abstain from voting.

That is how seriously Switzerland took this. It says, “As far as Switzerland is concerned, it shall not be bound in any manner by the Report or its Recommendations.”

Regardless of what any Member may want to say on this he may say so. It is a democracy. The important thing is that whatever is said in this Honourable House is said in the best interests of these Islands.

Further, during this month an article came out in a Bulletin called The Money Laundering Bulletin, published in London. The article was captioned ‘A Quiet but Taxing Revolution.’ I will be happy to table this Mr. Speaker. It states “At the recent meeting of the group of G7 finance ministers in London an initiative aimed at tracking the problem of tax competition was agreed upon. The G7 members are the United States, Japan, Germany, Italy, France, Canada and the United Kingdom. The initiative has ramifications that go far beyond the usually worthy but terminally dull attempts to address tax competition.” Then they went on to outline the three major aspects where they are in support of the OECD Report on Harmful Tax Competition. So there is no doubt that the G7 countries even at the level of their Finance Ministers have fully endorsed the recommendations of the OECD Report. That is why this is so important.

But listen to this, Mr. Speaker, it says, “Following on from the G7 meeting the UK’s Financial Secretary, Dawn Primarolo has been appointed as the first Chairperson of the new European Union Code of Conduct group. The role of the group is to assess the business taxation regimes of EU member states and to examine the extent to which they contain elements which represent harmful tax competition. The objectives are to reduce distortion in a single market to prevent damage to the tax base and excessive losses of tax revenue and to develop more employment friendly tax structures.” That is the Financial Secretary of the United Kingdom that is going to be looking into these matters.

I trust that I have pointed out the importance of this matter. I commend the mover and seconder for recommending to this Honourable House the appointment of a Select Committee that will take input from the public on the view of Dependent Territories. We know that recently an unprecedented move was made when the Secretary of State made a direct statement on the Dependent Territories, or Overseas Territories. This is a serious situation.

The Resolve section calls for a Select Committee of all Members of this Honourable House to be set up and to take input from the public on the review. I personally give this motion my full support and trust that other Members of this House will do similarly. Thank you.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak?
The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: I had not planned to debate this motion for the very simple reason that I felt the motion was an attempt to establish a Select Committee that would deal with the review that was carried out by the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs with regard to the Dependent Territories. But as the discussion has become more to do with the OECD Report which has to do with the harmful tax competition, I felt it was necessary for me to offer what I consider to be a synopsis of this situation.

The question of the naming of the British Territories has not really figured in very much in this debate. I think the reason for this is because this issue was brought before Members of the Legislative Assembly before the review was completed. It was quite obvious that the British Foreign Secretary was not interested in the public's opinion but in the Elected Members' opinions in regard to the review they were doing. They were ascertaining the views of the Elected Members in order to assist them in coming to a more meaningful review but those were not to influence the outcome of the review.

As the review has been carried out I feel it is quite obvious that the basis for the review was that there was a new Government coming into power, namely, the Labour Government under the Hon. Mr. Tony Blair. I think also that understanding the internal politics of Britain, having lived there and studied there, and having been involved in politics there at least on a community level, I think it is quite obvious that British politics are a lot more internally complex than we will see expressed externally. For this particular reason I am saying that the review was a necessary exercise carried out by a new Government with a new mandate that had not been in power for quite some time, and it was to refresh them and to give them an opportunity to see if there were any major issues that might need changing. Especially when we look at that review being made with the situation in Montserrat and St. Helena Islands. There were differences in the ability of these territories to sustain themselves. As a matter of fact, I do not believe there was one conclusion made, but they did decide to treat each territory separately as individual entities.

I have no doubt that this is the position and I like to work with what I can really see, rather than making speculations about other people's motives and intentions. I like to try to believe that somehow I can use my faith to deal with what they say until they are in breach of their defined motives.

My contribution to this debate will be based more on what has been said, rather than what we believe to be the intention of what has been said. It is my position that the review carried out speaks for itself. Input is not necessary at this particular point. If there were to be input, it would have been before, but not after; if there were a need to go to the public (which is what we should have done as politicians) it should have been before not after. The review has been done, and what we have been able to ascertain from the review is that there is really nothing harmful in here towards the status quo.

The question of citizenship can be dramatised to a certain extent, but I do not believe it is the intention of the United Kingdom to give people citizenship if they do not want it. I do not believe that the name change is really important here. But what can be suggested by this particular motion is that there are other areas to become concerned about. Members have taken that up to mean the question of tax legislation or to do with what they consider the Dual Criminality Act, or the Fiscal Inclusion.

Let us look at where this all comes from. The issue of the review and the issue of the report from the OECD are two different issues. Perhaps if we had not gotten this book we would not have gotten the two together. But because somebody was kind enough to let us have this we have now combined the two issues. I think it is absolutely necessary to keep them as separate and distinct issues. The review was not called for by the Foreign Secretary because of the publication of this booklet by the OECD. The review was called for because the new Government needed a clear perspective as to what the organisational apparatus should be like in dealing with diversified nature of its Dependent Territories and to allow the Foreign Secretary to be able to understand and carry out his international obligations more effectively.

Regarding the global situation. It is quite obvious that if we are set up as a tax haven or a financial centre that we will come into competition with other parts of the world. Especially if we understand that, according to this particular report, they need to develop measures to counter the distorting effects of harmful tax competition on investment and financing decisions and the consequences of national tax bases.

If we look at this report, we understand that it is made by a group of nations. The previous speaker outlined quite a bit about the report and the countries involved. What is important is that this report addressed harmful tax competition. Harmful tax competition is not just tax havens. It is talking about preferential tax regimes. It is important for us to understand that all of the countries involved in making these recommendations have, themselves, preferential tax regimes. The United Kingdom is one of the countries that had established preferential tax regimes or areas. London, from the period of the establishment of the Bank of England, has played a very important role in international financial development. I believe that Frankfurt has played a significant role as well.

When talking about globalisation and the need to address how people take advantage of one another's tax regimes, basically we have a group of nations coming together saying, 'If you take advantage of my tax regime it is going to cause me to set up a preferential tax regime to offset the fact that you established one.' If we all keep on doing this, we won't have a tax regime in our individual countries, and it will cause unemployment and other kinds of destructive things to happen. So we can understand the logic and lack of hysteria to a certain extent of the forward planning of these people when they get up and say, 'If you are going to establish a preferential tax regime, I have to establish one as well.' And we will all have one at the end of the day and we will defeat the purpose we are here for which is to solve human problems. We are not going to solve human problems if we are in a situation where the Governments of the world do not have money to solve these problems.

From a political point and also from a practical point we can understand why they take this position. It is not as if they are looking down at the Cayman Islands and everybody in Europe and all over the world is taking up a position to go down to destroy these nice beautiful islands that everyone envies. It is not that way at all. I think it is to our benefit to believe that it is not that way and to be a little bit more optimistic about the situation rather than pessimistic. If you have no control over a situation, you have absolutely no control over a situation, it is better to wish for the best than for the worst.

The point that I am trying to make is that the United Kingdom is, in fact, a member of the OECD. The United Kingdom does have a tax system that is, perhaps, one of the most extreme in the world. It is equal to that of Germany or France or Canada or the United States. And the United States has an interest in seeing that preferential tax regimes in the world are not carried to an extent that the tax system of developed countries are subverted. So the United Kingdom has an obligation to the people of the United Kingdom in looking into this and finding some equitable solution to this particular problem that all the major countries in the world are faced with in the emergence of global economies.

This issue is related to globalisation and related to the way in which financing is done in a global type of environment. It is not a simple issue. It is not an issue that is basically related to us and although I understand that we want to discuss how it affects us, we have to understand that we are an international entity as well, we are also involved in globalisation.

This review, these recommendations, actually recognise the role which tax havens have played in assisting the ability of finances. It has had a useful purpose. So it is not that this place has just been assisting people to avoid and evade taxes, we have been a very important part of the whole globalisation process and we are, as a financial centre, a very important institution. I think it is important for us to make the distinction between us being a tax haven and a financial centre. There is a difference. A financial centre is where neutrality is possible in order to conduct business that is not necessarily subjected to national legislation and boundaries; a place where you can conduct business that is global, not limited by geography, constitutions, political or tax regimes of a particular country.

So in the whole question of whether or not financial centres can be destroyed, and whether or not financial centres have any useful purpose, one needs to know a little bit more about economic development through the ages; to understand what we call financial capitalism is something that evolved at a stage of industrialisation and the British society has been very much the mover of this type of industry, because it is an industry in itself. It is an essential part of the whole capitalist regime and process. Therefore, as long as you have production in the exchange of goods and services, you will need the financial institutions to make this all possible.

Why would rational countries want to destroy that? They would not! Some people in this world think more of their interests than they think of petty jealousies. I believe that the world would never have gotten to the stage it is at today if people had been enslaved to petty jealousies; if they had not been able to come to the level where they could see common good in a kind of commonality. The point I am making is that I do not find that we should be giving anybody inside or outside this country the impression that somehow there is a force coming against this very small place to destroy the basis of our financial community.

If this force is coming, and if this force is the world, and if this force is the G7 countries, in addition to a lot of other countries, how would you stop it anyway? So the pessimism is ill served in that if we are to be that pessimistic then we need to be asking, 'What are we going to do to manage resources we have in the country that we have control of? What are we going to do to better improve our sea, the use of that? What are we going to do to legislate better control of our lands and to see that our lands are not wasted, that our marine environment is not destroyed and wasted?' If this is going to be inevitable, then it is necessary for us to begin to look towards finding internal economic solutions rather than developing political rhetoric.

The Speaker: We shall suspend proceedings until 2.15 PM.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12:48 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.27 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Debate continues with the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Before I go on with my debate, I would like to assure Members of this Honourable House that I am in agreement with the motion as it is laid out. I do not have a problem. I have had to query what I consider some of the interpretation of the relevant information supplied, and I know the mover of this motion, the First Elected Member for West Bay, will probably have a few things to say regarding my position here. In defence of my position, let me say that in cases of motions of this nature coming from the Back Bench, in which the political ramifications can be considered as pretty serious, it is necessary for us to communicate the content of some of the discussions beforehand, and if this is not done, it must be expected, in all fairness, for Members to have to debate and put forward their positions on the possible implications of the motion had started more to say that I felt this debate dealt more with the possible effects of tax legislation, rather than with the Dependent Territory review itself on the expected White Paper. I also tried to suggest that there seems to be an interpretation of the relevant material that runs along the lines that something serious is planned, something serious will happen, and therefore we should prepare ourselves to address this, by way of dialogue with the United Kingdom. I think, if something serious is to happen, and if it is inevitable that legislation will be brought that will erode the principles upon which our financial industry has been based, then I think it is time we form ourselves into a committee to look at what can and should be done to begin the diversification of our economy.

It has been prevalent in the minds of persons before, at least in the period of the 80s in the Cayman Islands, that this was always a very relevant consideration, at least until the point of the 1992 election, when the economy seemed thereafter to have changed. The concept of diversification of the economy was very important.

I am stressing that rather than developing political dialogue, we need to examine the resources which we are truly in control of; and we need to find ways of using those resources in such a way that they create the kind of stability and security for the Cayman Islands, the type that we ourselves can determine. But as long as we continue to play on the international level, we will be influenced by factors that are beyond our control.

I say this because if it is true that the intention of the OECD nations is to limit development of tax havens, to curtail the further spread of preferential tax regimes, if they are to come to some type of co-operation on this, if they can find some way to enforce their recommendations in this case, when they have not found ways of enforcing them in areas that have to do with much more dangerous factors, like the arms race. We just noticed that both Pakistan and India have lit up their atomic bombs. Who knows who will do this next. So what we note is that historically there has been a weakness of international organisations to be able to enforce their recommendations or their conventions on all the members who are signatories to them.

Already in the recommendations on harmful tax competition in the book, we find that Luxembourg and Switzerland rejected the recommendation of the organisation. In rejecting it, it goes to show that there is a possibility to believe that there is no unified philosophy, and therefore although they are recommended approaches to mending what they consider to be their problem with preferential tax regimes, there is still a weakness to be seen. That we can see when we use comparative history.

I like to make it clear that philosophy and an understanding of history are two distinct things. I am not talking philosophically, I am talking from the point of view of my comparative knowledge when it comes to history and historical development of those countries and the political systems. In fact, the inability of these countries to enter into alliances with one another, and to effectively carry out the aims and objectives of these alliances is quite clear when one notes what goes on in the United Nations, and one notes the very difficult problems which a united Europe continue to pose to those persons in Europe who are desirous of a union, and the benefits of a union.

Any position taken internationally, just like any position taken locally, depends upon more than talk. It needs action, and for there to be action, there needs to be a tremendous amount of means to enforce these actions, and a tremendous amount of possibilities for agreement. These possibilities for agreement are limited by the fact that we are dealing with countries with very different economic and political systems. The recommendations made by the OECD do not have to do only with tax havens. They have to do with those very countries making the recommendations, or agreeing to the recommendations, with the preferential tax regimes in those individual countries.

So they would first have to do something to change their situation before I believe they could come out and begin to effect changes that would change situations in other areas of the world.

I would like to point out that Luxembourg said in this context, "It appears essential that countries with dependencies contribute actively so these territories do not in fact remain exempt from the fight against harmful tax competition." In that sense, Luxembourg is convinced that the countries with dependencies have not done all they could do to see that these dependencies comply. Luxembourg rejects the recommendation of the OECD. It is a part of the OECD, and then it turns around and says that the countries with dependencies should actively contribute more to bring these countries in line. We know this is what we are saying. But the mere fact that Luxembourg, which is against the recommendation, is saying that the United Kingdom needs to do more too—because it does not name the United Kingdom, but the United Kingdom is one of those countries with dependencies that "actively contribute" to harmful tax competition—and they are talking about the special ties these dependencies have with the Mother Countries.

So if the United Kingdom has, until now, been lax in its move toward correcting what the people in Luxembourg have identified as necessary, it goes to show a positive motive on the part of the United Kingdom. Because if the United Kingdom's motives were less sincere or less beneficial to us, it would mean that the United Kingdom would have acted to do exactly what Luxembourg, which has rejected these recommendations, is suggesting they do. We have to look at the countries individually, not just as a group of countries, not just as the OECD. We have to look at them individually, as is brought to our attention by the fact that Luxembourg and Switzerland reject the recommendations.

We have to look at these countries and know these countries individually, the history of these countries, and the economics of these countries, to begin to see that what will happen is one would be saying, We have agreed to do this, but you haven't done this, and then the other one will say, Well, I'm not going to do that until you do this, which is a typical organisational difficulty that big, international organisations generally experience. It is for this reason I am suggesting that a degree of optimism is still possible, and I believe it is good to be optimistic.

I think the stress should be a trust in those persons handling the situation. We cannot override the protocol, and we cannot jump to handle the situation ourselves. There is a structured protocol here in dealing with an international issue like this one. What can we do then as Backbenchers, as Members of the Legislative Assembly? What can we do? We can inform the public that the type of business we are operating in this country is one viewed by the international community as an industry detrimental to their tax regimes, as has been described in this report. In that sense, we do not have to believe there are going to be other tax havens established tomorrow to compete with us. It is not going to be all that easy, because if it is difficult for us at this point, with our dependence on this means for our survival, if it is difficult for us with our development of infrastructure and our telecommunications, and the type of stability and confidence our country offers investors; if it is difficult for us, then how much more difficult will it be for countries which have not created the infrastructure and the sense of political consistency? How much more difficult it would be for these countries to now enter into this business and compete with us, especially if the world out there is organised against such behaviour.

So let us look at the positive side. The positive side is, if it is difficult to go into a business, then we who are in the business should begin to benefit a little bit more, and should have a little bit more confidence in our business, and we should say to those persons benefiting so tremendously, that they have to contribute a little bit more, simply because of the uniqueness of the position we now inherit. That is what it tells me. It tells me that what I want to discuss and contemplate is how to approach the financial community in this country with the urgency of preserving the situation, not from external negotiation, but from internal dynamics.

In other words, I want to see how we can get money to lend Caymanians for small businesses, and mortgages, in particular, at very cheap interest rates. I borrowed $125,000 to buy a house, and I paid $18,000 interest in the first thirteen months. That was just interest! And the principle I affected on this was only $1,040, out of close to $20,000. Now if banks are going to make those types of super-profits in this country, it appears that not just the OECD needs to be concerned. We need to be concerned. We need to internally examine the whole morality of this particular financial arrangement we have. We need to begin to say whether it is fair for investors to make super profits and not turn anything back into the native, local economy. Although the tax system here might be of an advantage to people in other countries, we are slowly getting to a point whereby we are paying more than what we are getting out of it.

Ten years ago, this was not so, but the cost of operating a country is becoming more expensive, and those benefiting most from the country are contributing still less and less toward the fuelling of the machinery. Those are the considerations we seriously need to get involved with, and those are the considerations I would definitely want to get involved with. If we are not capable of confronting the financial community here with logic and saying, 'Look, guys, we are all in this together. If we lose, you lose.' You lose, we lose. We understand that. But the time has come now for us to understand that we are in this canoe together, and we have to paddle it together for the best of both sides. The partnership depends upon the success of both individuals.

I believe the considerations being made in Europe are not disruptive to the Cayman Islands. I believe the considerations being contemplated there will take a long time to become truly effective. I believe in the meantime, that preoccupation they have will detract from other people being able to successfully achieve the same type of economic stability we have established and achieved; and I therefore believe that is good grounds for us to begin to evolve a new relationship with the financial community here. My concern again is, in looking and concentrating on things and issues we can solve, and not concentrating on issues that are more difficult to affect. I still say we have a long way to go in terms of making our local situation workable. And this cannot be political. It cannot deal with rhetoric. It has to deal with actions. If we as a tax haven or financial institution are now a threat to the world, then that is a reality that once we know this, we can begin to use it for our own advantage. It does not necessarily follow that it has to be used against us. We have seen that competition usually means someone may be, at the end of the day, at a disadvantage.

So this is new knowledge we have before us, and we can use it to get excited and to try to do things we can maybe not affect too much, or we can take this knowledge and define the unique position in which we find ourselves today, going into the twenty-first century, at a time when we are wondering where we are going to get the tax dollars to do the things we need to do in the country. We can also, in this sense, sympathise to a certain extent with the difficulties these countries have, that want to keep their tax money within their countries to manage unemployment, create pensions and social security and different things for their people. We can understand that position, but we do not necessarily have to affect our country in such a way as to co-operate with them, but a certain amount of understanding of their position, I think, is fair.

We need to preserve the principle of confidentiality of personal data. This should become a pillar of our Constitution. We should now be saying that all the things we have done through common sense should become a new sense, in other words, it should become enshrined in our Constitution. The fact that we will not tax should become enshrined in our Constitution now, because it will make it more difficult for anyone to ideologically attack us, as long as it is in contradiction with our legal system and moral principles.

The financial activities of the world will continue to become mobile. There is nothing any country can do to stop that. Globalisation is a reality. Areas like the Cayman Islands, believe it or not, are very essential. This is one reason when they say, Well, if you ask the banks to contribute a little bit more, they are going to leave and they are going to go. As if they are not benefiting. They are not going to leave and go if people are reasonable, but if you do not tell someone you should review the relationship in a way that it might benefit you a little more, they are obviously not going to do it for you.

You have to be sensible and willing enough and politically brave enough to review that. But we cannot be politically brave in our own country—and this is no criticism of anyone—but we are going to talk on a particular level. I like to talk on a level that I can act at. I can act on a level of saying that the banks in this country are over-charging people with interest, whether it is the credit card interest or what kind of interest. And that they are hiding behind us and they would like us today to go out there and start telling the world that everything is perfect here and everything is great, because they are such nice people. Well, we are nice people! We are nice people! But they are not perfect themselves. This is one reason we have evolved in terms of what we are willing to do to make them more honest and make our country more credible internationally.

I think the Cayman Islands, as the Honourable Financial Secretary has said on many occasions, have led—and when I was first elected, I went to the conference seminar they did regarding money and how the whole concept is put together, how dirty money tends to follow good money, so the more good money you have, the more possibility you are going to have of having bad money. So it follows that international countries will say, Yes, there is a certain amount of laundering that continues to go along, and that the bank secrecy law tends to protect this, and they will continue to knock at our doors, but it does not mean we have to open it up and give them the whole house and everything in it. We are human beings, and they are human beings, and the dialogue will continue. But for us to credit ourselves as having a weakness because of our partner having a weakness is for us to sign our own destruction.

We must continue to say our partner has no weakness, that there is no weakness in this relationship. Publicly we need to say there is no weakness in this relationship, because this relationship has been the strength of the foundation of the industry we have. We must continue to say this relationship has no weaknesses. That does not mean we cannot review, revisit and strengthen it, but the basic principles and premises of the relationship are correct. And if my partner has to have relationships with other people because of my partner's individual interests and commitment to its people, does not necessarily mean the partner cannot still be loyal to me, as I am loyal to that partner.

If I show weakness in my loyalty to the partner, it means that partner will most likely feel no obligation to show loyalty to me. I cannot but accept what the Governor has said so far regarding this particular situation. If I get to the point where I have to become so paranoid about the political environment in which I live, I might as well get out of politics, because if you cannot be guaranteed a few things, then you might as well not bother. You have to build whatever you do upon some assumptions. You have to build whatever you do upon some points of view. And sometimes it is necessary to trust, even if it means you become vulnerable at the end of the day.

I believe we need to find ways of benefiting more from what we have. We need to find ways of benefiting more from what we have, not just from having more. The more we have, the less it seems our people have, and we have to consider the reforms that have to be made in this country for the trickling-down economics to work here. The trickling-down economics will work here, because we are looking at that as being the great danger, how these countries look at us, or what these countries do as being the great danger when I believe the great danger is the social disintegration of the country. It has to do with the social problems and the ability to get the money and expertise to solve these problems.

One of the real considerations I have—and since this is about the considerations of the tax questions and the banking questions, let me say—my contemplation, my preoccupation is with housing in this country. Every time people come to me and tell me about all the high rents they have to pay, and the fact they have no rights, and all of these things, and you know the reason is that there is no money to borrow at a rate that would allow you to lend it to the people to be able to repay it. It is not whether the house costs $125,000 or $150,000 or $100, it is the monthly payment you have to make to the banks, and that monthly payment is a result of the interest. These are some of the real serious considerations we need to form ourselves into committees to deal with. I say, let us deal with securing this part, because this is the part we are in charge of. Let us deal with securing the Cayman Islands internationally.

I will finish by saying that it has not been my attempt to question at all the motives of the First Elected Member for West Bay, my good friend. I believe the motion is well supported by the Government and by the Back Bench, but I do not believe we spoke completely to the motion, so what I have added is nothing to say this committee should not be established. I have added a dimension to the debate that I hope will assist persons in the public, if not in this House, with having a much more rounded concept of what it is we are dealing with. Mr. Speaker, we do not want to jump the gun. We do not want to pre-empt the problem, if it is inevitable. Because if it is inevitable, it will come anyway, and there is no point in starting it, because it will come. So let us work with those things that glare us most in the fact, and let us find the political solutions to them. Thank you.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak?
The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, thank you very much. I should say it is very good when we can have issues of significance raised in this manner, and also when the opportunity presents itself to hear a wide range of views on this very important subject. This motion, from what has been heard so far, is supported by every Member of this Legislative Assembly. I will say this is very good and heartening.

This motion is attempting to force, I would say in summary, national dialogue. When we look at the “whereases” of the motion, it starts,

“WHEREAS the United Kingdom Government, through the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, announced a review of its Dependent Territories; and

“WHEREAS this review affects citizenship, change of name, international obligations and other possible matters affecting these Islands; and

“WHEREAS there has been no public discussion on the review;

“BE IT RESOLVED that a select committee of all Members of this Honourable House be set up to take input from the public on the review;”—and the motion continues. What is known is that from this review will emerge a White Paper, to be produced by the United Kingdom Government. As mentioned in the first “Whereas” the thrust of it will be a review of its Dependent Territories, which takes into account the policies governing the relationship between the United Kingdom and the Dependent Territories.

Although mention has been made that the range of subjects falls under the Portfolio of Finance and Development, this is not one that I will rush to say will be the best description. We see from the range of subjects involved—“citizenship, change of name, international obligations and other matters affecting these Islands”—this is at the very pinnacle of Government. It is not one that can be put against a particular portfolio or ministry.

What has been extrapolated, especially under the section, ‘International obligations and other possible matters affecting these Islands,’ we are aware of the report published by the OECD on “HARMFUL TAX COMPETITION—An Emerging Global Issue,” and also the European Union Tax Harmonisation Code of Conduct.

This report in question, the OECD report, became available on the market toward the end of May. Although from around March of this year it was known this report would be published, the specifics of the report were not known within the international community. Various summaries were offered, but the complete report was not available until the end of May, less than a month ago. During that time, I was in the United Kingdom, as I mentioned previously, while sharing my views in Cayman Brac at the opening of the Legislative Assembly there two Fridays ago, that this was such an important document, that I felt a copy should be made available to every Member of this Legislative Assembly.

The reason that approach was taken was that given the fact that we have a report looking at international global financial activities, and the fact that the report could have certain implications for the Cayman Islands and other financial centres, I thought the best thing would be to share this report with Members of the Legislative Assembly, because it is more important, when decisions are made and dialogue takes place against an informed background, rather than to rely on the various interpretations that can be given.

In connection with the report, we have had the assurance from the United Kingdom—this has been communicated through the Governor’s office—that the United Kingdom government has considered the implications of the report for its Overseas Dependent Territories, and the fundamental interests of the Overseas Territories were not ignored.

I cannot say conclusively what that means, but given the relationship between the United Kingdom and the Cayman Islands, one will have to assume a good faith posture in this regard. It is important at this stage—and I think the Fourth Elected Member for George Town mentioned—is that a goodwill assumption will have to be made in terms of the relationship as it now stands. It is important, at this time—and I do not think the Government could have, up to now, come up with a conclusive position as to what the impact of this report will be on the Cayman Islands. We can read, and we can draw certain conclusions, but in terms of arriving at a definite conclusion, this will require further research. It will mean every Member of the Legislative Assembly, and that includes the Members of Executive Council, forming themselves together into a committee, reading this report very carefully, looking at other related materials, trying to draw certain conclusions, and create a preparation stage, so that whenever the White Paper emerges from the United Kingdom, if it would embrace considerations that should be allowed in relationship to this report, we would be in a state of preparedness.

I would say the way forward would be to take this approach, because it is the most constructive one to take. Importantly, based on the fact that the United Kingdom has taken the initiative of communicating, through the Governor’s office, that they did not ignore the concerns of the Overseas Dependent Territories, this will have to be followed up, to see exactly what it means. As I mentioned earlier, the good faith interpretation of this intent or undertaking that has been given, will require certain dialogue. We recognise that the United Kingdom has certain obligations. First of all, it is a member of the G7 countries; it is a member of the OECD; it is a member of the European Community. But what is important is that, as far as the Cayman Islands is concerned, recognition must be given to the fact that we are a country with a relationship with the United Kingdom, and the role the Cayman Islands plays within the world stage and the international financial community must be given consideration, too. It is not one that can be ignored.

At this time, I am fully aware that the Government is giving consideration to the OECD's report, giving consideration to the wider international issues. But when a problem is introduced or extrapolated from a report, or put forward for consideration, it will be useful to say at that time, what are the likely solutions, or what the position of the Cayman Islands will be, taking this forward.

It was mentioned in Cayman Brac that we have a window in time to address this, and we have just commenced with this address. In fact, this morning there was a meeting between His Excellency the Governor, the Acting Attorney General, the Assistant Financial Secretary, and myself, by way of going back to the United Kingdom to follow up specifically as to the meaning of recommendations 15 and 16 of this report. That will be shared with Executive Council, and at this point, a paper is being produced by the Portfolio of Finance and Development, setting out its views and interpretation up to this point, and this will go through for Executive Council's consideration.

As I said, we are in the formative stages of this. Before any conclusion can be drawn, it is important that we commence a dialogue with the United Kingdom. The United Kingdom will need assistance in arguing the Cayman Islands' position within the OECD. We will have to determine what assistance can be rendered from the Cayman Islands. This is not likely to be done by the five Ministers of Executive Council and the three Official Members. It is likely, given the importance of this, that the views of every Member of the Legislative Assembly will be taken on board. This is what gives relevance and substance to this motion at this time. I am sure, in time, as this matter develops and progresses, information will be shared with the public; necessary consultation will be done within the financial community and among the Members of the Legislative Assembly to derive a position.

On the subject of fiscal inclusion, we are aware of a letter sent to the Bermudan government. In fact, I raised that letter with the Foreign and Commonwealth Office when I was in London. It is unfortunate that it was leaked. That was not intended for our eyes. It is known among this Government and Members of the Legislative Assembly that the Government has been asked to consider an amendment to the Proceeds of Criminal Conduct legislation. This is being dealt with at this time through the Attorney General's office. This will eventually be brought to the Legislative Assembly by way of an amending bill. Clarity is now being sought, and dialogue is taking place as to its effect.

The United Kingdom has said, because of the concept of dual criminality, that provision obtains within the legislation itself, the removal of this section should not affect us adversely. The experts in law are looking into this area, and I am aware that the Government has sought a legal opinion on this, and this legal opinion has been rendered. This has informed the discussion presently taking place. Therefore, when that is brought to the Legislative Assembly, a very clear position can be set out concerning it.

At this time, we are aware that as we move forward and discussion takes place between the Government and the United Kingdom, and the Government and the private sector, and the Government and the Members of the Legislative Assembly, there will be a need for the public to be informed as to what is taking place, what is the understanding emerging from this dialogue. When we look at our financial industry and what it represents, it represents our strategic interests. The financial industry, together with the tourism industry, and all other related industries, are very important for these Islands.

The Government has not lost sight of the fact that we need to look at a policy of diversification. This has been set out in Vision 2008, so we can see a forward thrust taking place. It is important—and I believe this can be attained—that if the position of the OECD commission, as it now views the Cayman Islands, is not properly informed, or based on accurate information, by the time it comes around to a list being developed of countries regarded as "harmful tax regimes," a proper position paper, setting out the Cayman Islands' position, would have been submitted to the commission, and hopefully they will be better informed.

When it comes to the Cayman Islands being described as a tax haven as against an international financial centre, I am not going to go into an extended debate on this, but my preference is for us to regard ourselves as an international financial centre. The reason for this is that when we look at the global community, and the connotations of what can be construed from tax havens, we know what the so-called 'on-shore' countries mean by such a description. I am not going to go within the international community, and if they are ascribing a less than acceptable label to us, that I am going to join them and agree to that; not that I am saying—this again is subjective. It is not an objective description. But I know that the Honourable Third Elected Member for George Town, in making this differentiation, has taken a view on it that I will not differ with, in terms of what it means.

But it is important that we see ourselves at the highest level of the plateau. I believe when it is looked again to say that a lot of business comes to the Cayman Islands because of the fiscal regime we have in place, we know that is so. But what differentiates us as an international financial centre is that the tax regime put in place accommodates international business benefiting from this regime in the Cayman Islands, was not put here specifically to attract international business. We, since the dawn of history, have a zero-base tax regime. International business has benefited from this. Therefore we have a right to maintain that as our fiscal regime until a decision is taken to change it.

The motion, as I mentioned, Mr. Speaker, is very timely. There is no place for complacency in today's world. We are the fifth largest financial centre, and I will bet, when we have addressed the issue of the OECD report, and the implications of the EU harmonisation policies, we are going to find that there are going to be other issues on the horizon again. We have to be on the forefront. We have to be out there, being pre-emptive.

This is why the report has been presented to the Members of the Legislative Assembly, and just as we are looking at the reform initiative for the fiscal activities of the Government at this time, we are looking at this in terms of what needs to be done to protect, and to present a very clear understanding.

This was said to me, interestingly, Mr. Speaker, when the team of legislators visited the Cayman Islands from the United Kingdom, one of them said to me, "You know, I can applaud the Cayman Islands for what it has done, what it has accomplished to this point." The gentleman went on to say, "I find nothing at all wrong with what is being done here, by way of your financial industry and what you have, but you need to make sure the international community is properly informed and has a very good understanding."

It is amazing, Mr. Speaker, what human beings choose to believe. I have seen, when the documentary 'Dirty Money' was done, to make the point, the gentleman who came here and did that documentary, if anyone takes the film they can see planes flying in between mountains to land. Apparently, money laundering was supposed to be taking place through that process in the Cayman Islands. Mr. Speaker, this mountain must be in the New World, but it does not exist at this point in time. I was very perturbed when I saw that, and on one occasion, I was in my office and a senior banker from another jurisdiction came into the office. I outlined what took place to him. He said, "Mr. McCarthy, you have to differentiate between things you should be concerned about," because an approach like that was taken in his country some time ago, and the country in question was Bermuda. He said when they refused to co-operate, actors were flown in from the outside to play the roles of the various individuals.

We have complex issues in front of us. We have issues we should be very cautious about. We have the OECD's report, the EU harmonisation code, and there are other issues on the horizon. When those issues are brought up in the Legislative Assembly, and to be commented upon by the Government, the necessary research should be carried out to make sure the most accurate and informative position is shared and set out with Members of the Legislative Assembly. This is what is being done. The Government is not playing a role of complacency in this. It is right in front of the Government, it is topical, and it is being handled. Every attention is being given to make sure that whatever comes out of this, the interests of the Cayman Islands will always be protected.

Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

[applause]

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? If no other Member wishes to speak, does the mover wish to exercise his right of reply? The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I could just get up and say, 'Thank you,' to the Financial Secretary, because he did an extremely good job in putting things in perspective after it was taken out of place by some Members. I want to thank all those persons who spoke in this debate. I want to thank the Minister of Education for agreeing to it, and for his debate on the motion on Monday. If he recalls, this is one of the motions I asked them to bring early last year, when the review was being aired in high places.

I also wish to thank all those who debated the motion, but especially my colleagues, the First Elected Member for George Town, the seconder, the Third Elected Member for George Town, the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, and the Fourth Elected Member for George Town, for their very informative input into this matter. One thing is evident, Mr. Speaker: Even though this is a complex issue, there are those of us on this side of the House, capable and prepared to deal with the issues when they come.

All of us agree that what we are discussing—all the issues: citizenship, international obligations—as pertains to our financial industry, are most important to the future existence of our country as a tax haven. Anyone—believe me, after I have sat on Executive Council for five years, anyone believes this is a joke, they are not really honest with themselves, and they are not honest to the country. One thing I have always been prepared to be in my life is, To thine own self be true. At least be true to yourself.

The United Kingdom is deemed to enter the European Union next year. We cannot get away from the fact that the larger countries are putting pressure on tax havens and the international business centres, as we are. Other dependent territories consider the changes contemplated in Mr. Cook's speech, and they say, it is much more than is asked of the G7 countries. To read from a speech of the premier of one of the dependent territories—in fact, I think it was Gordon of Bermuda who said, "The onerous responsibility (being requested of the UK's overseas territories) is more than is being asked of any of the G7 countries at the moment. We are not prepared to play watchdogs, nor are we prepared to allow fishing expeditions." She went on to say that, "What we are saying is that if you can prove that a company has done something illegal we are more than prepared to let you go through the books."

From the discussion with the Foreign Office themselves, they say "The overseas territories must have a clear understanding of what the United Kingdom's overall international obligations are. It is essential that the territories conform to these obligations." All I have been saying, Mr. Speaker, time and time again, is that we do not know what these obligations are, and no one has said so. It is these international obligations that we must be concerned about, and it is those obligations which the Minister has not said what it is the United Kingdom wants us to do.

That is what I expected my friend, the Minister of Education, to come to this House and say, 'a, b, c, d, e thus far. We do not know what else, but this is what we know.' That is an obligation they must come to the House with!

The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town spoke and read at length of some meeting of which I am not aware, but it was a document, if I recall correctly, from the House of Commons. From what he said, it bears out what I am saying. It certainly must raise warning bells. There are policies that certainly cannot be said to be on all fours with the thinking behind the cause of this motion. That is, we want to be pro-active and ready when the United Kingdom comes with their recommendations. And my good friend, the Fourth Elected Member for George Town, is way out in left field if he believes this review is over. It is not yet started.

All I would like—I beg the Government, if they are committed to this motion, if they know now what international obligations the United Kingdom is talking about, come to us now and let us know what we are facing, as a Government, as Members of the House, and let us work with them to come to a conclusion which is satisfactory to all, because all of us have to live in this country. All of us are mindful of our set-up here as a tax haven, not just Executive Council. Not just Executive Council, but every one of us has obligations to the people of this country who, at the end of the day, will be the people who suffer.

While the Minister talked at length about Cayman's obligation to adhere to strict rules, to keep out money laundering—we are on all fours with that—I completely support him. All of us do. He did not talk about the obligations which the United Kingdom wants us to amend our laws to conform to. That is what we need to be told.

It would have been good if Government had said very clearly what part of our confidentiality laws they are expecting us to amend, to enforce the fiscal laws and policies of other countries. This is what this Legislative Assembly is about!

In recent times, laws have been put in place to stop money laundering, and we have co-operated with the United Kingdom on all these matters. When we went to London, I think it was some time in mid-1996, when the Minister of Education led the delegation, it was just one of those pieces of legislation he was instrumental in putting in place, that was co-operating with the United Kingdom. And I, in particular, can say they did a good job at it. He did a good job! We know that sometimes you plug loopholes, and you plug them, but they find ways of opening them elsewhere. So yes, we have to be mindful; yes, we have to be vigilant and conservative, as some Members of the Government are; we have to be all that. But it would seem that the Foreign Secretary is expecting us to do more. But by what was said by some Members on this side, it would seem, without any doubt, that what is being talked about is the fiscal laws of other countries, although the Minister of Education did not say that. The Minister of Education outlined the path that any requests would go to the Financial Secretary, the Attorney General, and then to the private sector consultative committee, then, he said, to us, the House, to amend the law.

But this is just what this motion is asking them not to happen. We are saying, the financial industry is of such significant importance that any policy, change, or laws to amend our laws, should be discussed with us before a bill to amend is brought to this House. Bring it to the committee, and deal with it in committee. It might not be something that has to go to the public at that point, but you can bring it to the committee. That is what the motion is seeking, for when and if the Government brings a bill to the House, support is already lined up, discussed at the level the Minister of Education outlined, leaving out the House in those discussions, the guts of the discussions. And I happen to know about them, because I sat on Executive Council. That is where you get a good gleaning of information as to the whole makeup of the financial industry.

Let us inform the Members. We are prepared to do all we can to assist the United Kingdom as far as votes are concerned in this Legislative Assembly, in combating money laundering. And if changes in the company laws can assist, then no doubt, we would. We also would assist in combating computer fraud and look at the cyber-money on the Internet, if wrongs or crimes are being committed.

But we have a duty to send a clear and strong warning to the United Kingdom: Leave our confidentiality laws alone!

[Applause]

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: If we are not prepared to do so, then we are not concerned about continuing to exist as a viable tax haven. Just apply it. For three hundred years, Mr. Speaker—for three hundred years!—and you see, some people are scared to speak about the Mother Country, but I am not, because they are the same as I. They have a little bit more power, but they are humans just like we are. For three hundred years, while Britain colonised the rest of the world, they seemed to have little regard for these unidentified international obligations, until the United Kingdom decided to enter the European Union, to form a big trading bloc to compete with the U.S. Now poor little Cayman must be like a pawn, moved for the sake of one and moved for the sake of the next one, and Mr. Speaker, let me tell you, I have no regard for anyone who stands up here telling me we cannot say something about it! Why? Because we are a colony? Nonsense!

When it comes to money laundering and other criminality, we have not been afraid to agree to credible sanctions, as I have said before. With our $500 billion in deposits, we certainly are not desperate to attract foreign investment that is not of the highest credibility. However, neither should anyone believe that to extend our reporting and information exchange regimes to pure fiscal offences, is not an unacceptable violation of our bank secrecy and will destroy us. If anyone believes otherwise, they are living in a fool's paradise.

I know my friend, the Minister of Education, would pick up on any mention of the Constitution, because he holds that sacred to our makeup here. However, no one talked about constitutional changes per se, except to say where the United Kingdom might override our laws through an order in council. My argument is that when that happens, we should take action to stop it. Why should any Government Minister or any of us on this side of the House be satisfied with unilateral action by the United Kingdom government, especially when it affects our financial industry or, for that matter, when it affects anything else. Anything which we need, or a moral issue such as removing in Council our laws against homosexuality. Surely, on such an issue, we would want to find a means of dealing with the United Kingdom in the strongest possible terms. Why not?

If that means to call for constitutional discussion, then it will have to be so! That is my point of view! That is mine, for if the United Kingdom government is serious about a new partnership, then they should respect laws this country feels are important to our social and moral way of life. I would be prepared to say to our people what the choices are. It is not good hiding our heads in the sand like an ostrich and say, 'Well, they can do it by order in council, so let them go and do it!' We need to tell the people what the choices are. This is what the motion is all about, in setting up the committee, so there can be dialogue with the people we represent. Why should we be afraid of that?

We should not be afraid to tell them. I will give you a good example. Many of us, because of our strong sense of human rights, do not really support capital punishment. The United Kingdom government unilaterally took it away from us, and today this country is a hundred percent worse off because of the threat, at least in my opinion, of being able to use capital punishment. They are shooting up the place, running into gas stations, robbing banks, doing this, doing the next thing, and we are going to sit down in this House and say, 'Give it to us, boy, we are happy. Just give it to us! We can take it!'

The Speaker: Would this be a convenient time to take the afternoon break?

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: We shall suspend proceedings for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.40 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.05 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Debate continues on Private Member's Motion 11/98 with the First Elected Member for West Bay, continuing.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. When we took the break, I was dealing with the matter of letting the United Kingdom know, or having discussions with them as to how we feel about unilateral action that takes away rights existing in the country. As I said, we should not be afraid to invoke discussion with them regarding any matter, when it comes to them taking unilateral action by order in council. As I said, my personal belief is that when they took away the threat of capital punishment, they did this country a grave disservice, in that we have seen, since that, numerous attempted murders. No one seems to be afraid. Anyone now seems like, has a gun, and can—like in my constituency this past week, a man in his place of business gets shot. So it does not seem like anyone is scared. And while we cannot say the blame is there, they certainly, I believe, removed something that frightened people into better behaviour. But that is my view.

We should not be afraid of entering into dialogue, and putting our case to them in the strongest possible terms. If we have to look at something in the Constitution that does not allow them to do this, then why not? Why not? We are not talking about changing the Constitution to change the system of government, or change the country, or carry us into independence. We are not talking about that. We are talking about them having such a hold on us that they change laws here from up there, to put it simply. Who wants to continue this way?

In the same vein, the Minister spoke about citizenship. The aspect I dealt with was the British Nationality Act and our local Law, where we are not Caymanian citizens, but citizens of a Dependent Territory. The Minister of Education said he—I believe these were his words—did not know if any dependent territory that had their own citizenship. Well, the United Kingdom is placing much emphasis on partnership. The Foreign Secretary, Mr. Robin Cook, said in his speech at the Dependent Territories meeting in London, which the Minister of Education and the Minister of Agriculture, I believe, attended, "The Dependent Territories are a source of pride to Britain. We are proud because we have ties of history that stretch back hundreds of years, from 1609 when Bermuda became a British territory, or from the turn of the eighteenth century when Gibraltar became British. We are proud because there is a family bond between the Dependent Territories and Britain that is unique and matters to both sides. And we are proud because Britain's relationship to the Dependent Territories is a clear example of how a modern and effective partnership can be forged on the basis of these historical and family ties."

I would hope that my friend, the Minister of Education, is listening. Then if this is really true, if they really mean to have a modern and effective partnership on the basis of historical and—what do they call it?—family ties, and if it is true that there is all this pride in the UK's halls of power for these little islands, then why would they not want us to be able to say, 'I am a citizen of the Cayman Islands, the country I was born in, the country I was naturalised in, or the country I was registered in.' Why should we have to say or write that we are a Dependent Territory, which only means that is differentiating between being a citizen of Anguilla or Montserrat and a citizen of the Cayman Islands? Why?

If they really mean to have a modern and effective partnership, and if they really mean that we are a family, and if they really have pride in us, then give us that right! It is not independence we are talking about! And no one should be so naive or so evil, put it the other way, to say it is independence we are talking about! It is not independence we are talking about! We are—that's right—this is the Cayman Islands! Is this not the sort of thinking that should be in the new millennium? Then look at it the other way. Is this not the sort of thinking that goes back to the Dark Ages, when Britain started colonising the world? It is of the Dark Ages! And as far as I am concerned, it is derogatory to us as a country. And it should be corrected in this partnership! And my friend, the Minister of Education, when he goes back to talk to them, should tell them that is what we are saying down here. It should be corrected, Mr. Speaker, because the fact is, when the United Kingdom changed the 1948 British Nationality Act in 1981 or 1983, to what it is today, it was about exclusion and protection of themselves! And why not? Because any country with pride in itself and its people will protect itself. That is what the United Kingdom did back then.

It is time that this change be made, and now is the time, when we are entering this new partnership, when we are going into this new millennium. It is time to be set down in law and defined properly this matter of Caymanian citizenship. And no one should try to say that is not possible unless we are independent. No one should say that! I am saying, let us be real partners. Let us be real partners!

No democracy can be healthy unless we have differences of opinion, but I believe that my friend, the Fourth Elected Member for George Town was completely out in left field, because from what I gathered from him, he gave the impression that the review was long gone by, because he said input was not necessary now, but should have been done before the review. The review is just beginning. It is not just speculation—and I believe the Honourable Financial Secretary has put that in proper perspective. We are not here just speculating. Documents exist! The news media continues to have articles on what they are talking about. The only thing that has not been done, is it has not been clearly said or defined what the international obligations are.

It is quite correct, in my opinion, to say, as he did (that is, the Fourth Elected Member for George Town) that the United Kingdom has an obligation to the United Kingdom. That is so. And yes, we here in the Cayman Islands are globalised. But we have to remember that because of this globalisation, and the urge and steps taken to dismantle tax havens by the larger countries—and surely the Member must have heard of this—these are the reasons for us to want to have discussions. We cannot go directly to the OECD organisation of countries. That is why we have to have meaningful discussions with the United Kingdom government. That is why this motion, in my opinion, is so important. Without this kind of avenue opened to us as legislators, even the country, the discussion would be held with a few on Executive Council. And why would we not want to take part and be party to such important matters? That is why the motion is important.

Should we just sit down and say, 'Come and take it from us'? No, Mr. Speaker. I have not lived in England, nor Europe, but I hear, and I study what they say about us. When I say 'about us,' regarding government. That is what I am concerned about. It is no secret that there is tremendous pressure for a softening of confidentiality. That is no secret. All of us must pay attention to this. That is why this motion is important for us.

I think—and I will be generous to say—that anyone thinking today that the review planned will not be harmful to our status as a tax haven is foolhardy. I disagree with my friend, the Fourth Elected Member for George Town, strongly, when he says Europe will not try to put us out of business, when they are saying that is what they will do. My question is, where will it be so easy to replace what we have now? When it is so difficult—because I listened closely to his arguments—where will it be so easy to replace what we have now, when it is so difficult to put our budget of some $200 million together? Where this dollar, that he calls the tax dollar, will come from in the quantity it comes, is the financial industry! In the vast majority of it.

The Member talked about trickling-down economics. You allow them to kill the tax haven, and nothing will trickle down, because nothing can trickle down if nothing exists. I do not believe the Member really believes that when the United Kingdom government talks about international obligations, the Foreign Secretary is talking about interest rates! He is not talking about interest rates! No, no, no! He is not talking about what Cayman can get out of it! Or what Caymanians can get out of it, or what residents in this country can get out of it! He is telling us that as far as they are concerned, and for the United Kingdom's own welfare as connected to the European Community, they must bring us in line with what the European Community desires. Blind Bartimaeus could see that!

And, Mr. Speaker, I can understand the Member's desire to see more out of this sector. However, that is now what the Foreign Secretary is talking about. That is not the role of the Foreign Office. Their role, in relation to us and this review, is, in my opinion, those international obligations, and our status as a tax haven, and bringing us in line with them. That is what they say in every article I have read, whether by putting the Queen's English in a different context, or whatever. But that is what they said.

The Overseas Territories—and I quote it again—the Foreign Office spokesman said, "must have a clear understanding of what the UK's overall international obligations are. It is essential that the Territories conform to those international obligations." Clear! Concise! And we have to understand what they are all about! All the Dependent Territories are having meaningful discussions, and making their thoughts known. Have we not read? Have we not heard the news?

This motion is not a waste of time, by any stretch of the imagination. It is not! I am glad the Financial Secretary spoke in this debate, because he talked about being pre-emptive. I like to say these are the reasons that I have a lot of respect, because I have sat in Council with him, and I know, and I know. I know how he feels about how we can allow our financial sector to grow, and protecting it. I am glad he spoke, because he mentioned an issue that is presently under discussion. All we are saying is that these matters must be brought to the committee. They, in Executive Council, will have some discussions with the committee and among themselves, but allow us to discuss and hear the details, before you come to a bill.

It took thirty years to build up this country as a tax haven. When I use the term 'tax haven,' I use it interchangeably with 'international financial centre.' It took us many years, much hard work by many people, to get us where we are today. We would be doggone fools to sit down and believe there are not steps taken to erode our position as a tax haven. All I am saying to the United Kingdom—and I would hope the whole House says that—is that if this partnership is going to be real, then let it be a true partnership. We all understand what a partner means. Partner means a person sharing with another, or others, in an activity, put together as partners. That is what a partnership is all about. If they want to see us continue to exist, as we need to, then they need to understand what we are all about.

I would like this House to agree to appoint the Honourable Financial Secretary as Chairman of the select committee. It is his Ministry, or Portfolio, that we will be mostly dealing with, and no one can say it is in the hands of a politician. It would be in the hands of a senior civil servant. And he is a very capable person to deal with it.

I would think we would write to all associations—that is, Chamber of Commerce, the Young Caymanian Businessmen Association, Watersports, bankers, fund managers, lawyers, insurance managers, accountants and other professional associations, to invite them to make representations to that committee.

That would be in addition to all those persons on the outside who have an interest in this review. The 'Resolved' section says, "a select committee of all Members of this House be set up to take input from the public on the review, make the findings public by a report being tabled in the Legislative Assembly, sent to the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs through His Excellency the Governor, and included in the Vision 2008 exercise." I believe the Vision 2008 exercise is at the right point for it to happen, because it is now going to the districts in a written form. It is right now, sort of recommendations. Or at least other issues in relation to the partnership would be outlined in it as soon as they come. I would implore the Government that as soon as they know of an issue, call the committee, let us start to deal with it. This is the most important issue right now facing the entire Cayman Islands.

This has been a tedious debate, but it has been an important debate as far as I am concerned. There has been a lot of important input from Members, and let no one feel that anyone has been spoken about derogatorily, or shunned in any way, because we have discussed it among ourselves time and time again. We know what the motion is all about.

I would certainly like to thank the Government for accepting it, and like I said, ask them to bring the issues to us as quickly as possible. Mr. Speaker, I would like to thank all Members, especially the seconder of this motion, the First Elected Member for George Town, and all others who spoke in the debate. Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker. I hope it was not too boring for you.

EDITED
FRIDAY
26 JUNE 1998
10.15 AM

The Speaker: Prayers by the First Elected Member for West Bay.

PRAYERS

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived: We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth, that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly, that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy great name's sake.

Let us say the Lord's Prayer together: Our Father, who art in heaven, hallowed be Thy name. Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us. Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace, now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Item number 2 on today's Order Paper, Questions to Honourable Official Members/Ministers of Government, Deferred Question 81, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for West Bay.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE MEMBERS AND MINISTERS

DEFERRED QUESTION 81

No. 81: Mr. W. McKeeva Bush asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport whether the Port Authority is considering the purchase of any large equipment for use on the dock and at the distribution centre.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The Authority purchased one large Taylor container lift for use at the George Town dock.

The lift was needed as additional support to one of the present lifts which has been operational for 21 years, is unable to handle containers that weigh in excess of 7.5 tons and lacks the capability of stacking containers more than two high. To keep pace with the increase in imported cargo at the Port, and to make the most efficient use of the available space, it is necessary for the containers to be stacked four high. The new lift has this capacity.

In addition to the above, the Authority has approved the purchase of a second crane to work along with its present crane. Since the acquisition of the Port Authority's crane in 1995, the number of containers being handled at the Port has increased by 26%, or approximately 460 more container moves per month.

The efficient daily operation of the Port is critical to the success of the Cayman Islands economy and the continuity of the various business services. The Port Authority has taken many decisions to ensure its ability to provide quality service now and in the future.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Minister say what the cost of each piece of equipment is?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, I do not have an exact figure on the purchase of the Taylor lift at the present time, but it is several hundred thousand dollars.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, that question would have included the second crane.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: There are a number of proposals before the Port Authority for the purchase of a crane. One that is presently being considered is around $500,000.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. When we purchased the present crane, which was in the region of $2 million, that was supposed to have taken us several years ahead. I see that the Minister has said that work has increased by 26%, but the purpose of buying that crane was to handle this kind of increase. What has caused the need, seeing we have a crane just three years old?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, I believe the better way of answering this question is to say that no matter how good the equipment, or how efficiently it is maintained, there will be a day when it will become non-operational for one reason or another. In addition to the increase in number of containers and cargo coming into the Island—and the present crane will probably be around for twenty or more years—there is also a need expressed by the business community that the Port Authority should consider having a backup to its one crane, which the Port Authority considered, and it seems to us it makes sense to have a second crane. We examined, within the country, other owners of cranes, to see whether those cranes would be able to supply the need of the port, and to do it perhaps in a lease basis. It turned out that alternative was just not available. There are cranes operating on the Island, but they are unable to lift a 40-ton container with a boom at an angle of 45 degrees.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, in getting rid of Thompson Shipping, it was my understanding that the crane in use, the one purchased some three years ago, was supposed to have been the best crane available. I do not follow the change, since there is only a 26% increase in business, and in purchasing that crane we would have taken cognisance of increases for several years. Did they approach Thompson Shipping in assisting them in this last effort for a backup since they had two cranes in operation, which had carried us since 1976?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, I think it is fair to say that Thompson Shipping was approached from April of 1996 as to whether they were willing to sell any of their cranes, and we did not get any reply from them at all. When we started thinking about this particular exercise, we were actually unaware of where these Thompson Shipping cranes are. Information came to us that they were going to be relocated to the British Virgin Islands, so I am unable to say what the position is with Thompson Shipping.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Can the Honourable Minister state if, when the new crane was purchased in 1995, the thought was that there would be a need for a backup crane?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, I think I said earlier that any piece of equipment can break down, and obviously we thought of that possibility in the future. We did not explore in great detail what was available locally for leasing purposes to form that backup. In recent times, we did, only to discover that there is really none here in operation at the moment that can provide that service.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Minister tell the House the advantage of purchasing, maintaining and paying someone to drive their own equipment, over contracting the services, as was provided by Thompson Shipping?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, I am sure there are a variety of reasons for the Port Authority, dealing with cargo coming into the country—in which you have contraband material and all sorts of security matters—would lend itself to the Port Authority taking on its own property its own crane, to make its own income, and to distribute some of that income back into the Government in terms of a contribution, so that income can help provide service to people of this country. The crane we bought is providing that service, operating profitably. Although there was some gloom and doom for many months about it, it is operating efficiently, offloading the ships in accordance with any comparison anyone wants to make with the loading in Miami or Port Everglades or anywhere else.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Minister tell the House whether the Port Authority's decision to purchase and operate its own equipment emanated from any dissatisfaction with the service Thompson Shipping provided? Is the Port Authority owning and operating its own equipment more cost effective than the contractual arrangement in place when Thompson Shipping provided the service?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, I thought I would answer the second part of that question. The crane is owned by the Port Authority. Its operational cost is being paid by the Port Authority. It is making an income over and above that expense and it is also moving on to be able to repay a part of the loan, or monthly instalments for the loan. So I believe, yes, if that is what is factual, it was a good decision and I have no regrets in the Port Authority taking it.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. With the understanding that cost effectiveness is a ratio of expenses to revenue, I do not believe the question posed by the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town was answered. I will get to the supplementary, Mr. Speaker, but so the Minister knows what I am driving at, I think the supplementary question asked by the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town was whether the new arrangement with the Port Authority's new equipment is a better arrangement—cheaper, and more cost effective. By cost effective I mean whether or not the expense of purchasing and the revenue and other benefits being derived exceed what was being obtained from the rental arrangement from Thompson Shipping.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, I must say, I spent many days in the classroom dealing with cost benefit analysis and cost effectiveness, so I understand what it is. I am saying that as far as Thompson Shipping is concerned, the Port Authority earned nothing from it, versus what it is now, where the Port Authority is earning income!

The Speaker: First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, in light of the Minister's answer, can he say whether or not there has been an increase in cost to the public?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, every three, four or seven years, there are increases put to the public by the Government, whether it is an increase in the registration fees of cars or otherwise. To keep in place the purchasing power of the dollar earned by the Government there is an inflation factor. If you are earning $50 in 1990, what that could buy in 1990 is far different from what it can buy today. What it is buying today may be equivalent to $40 or $45. So there is a need, from time to time, to upgrade the fees being earned by any organisation—including the Port Authority—to maintain the dollar value in relation to the inflation factor. Increases made in recent times by the Port Authority were 5%, and that is certainly not even equal to the cost of living increases since last it was made.

The Speaker: I shall allow two additional supplementaries. The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. With all due respect, I believe the Honourable Minister is really waffling on the question. We are really not getting the answer. We are not asking the Minister to give us a lesson in economics. It was a straightforward question: Is it costing the public more money as a result of the Port Authority having bought that equipment, as compared with the arrangement formerly put in place with Thompson Shipping? It is a straightforward question, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, every one of us in this House is entitled to our own opinion, and so is the Third Elected Member for George Town. I am trying to answer the question—not to give him what he wants to hear, but what is the truth!

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, I will ask my supplementary but, again, as the Third Elected Member for George Town said, with the greatest of respect, his question has not been answered! If the Minister cannot answer, then let him say so. But the question has not been answered!

That is not my supplementary, Mr. Speaker, I am just asking for you to please direct the Minister to answer the question because he has not answered it!

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, perhaps what the Ministers are trying to determine—

Mr. Roy Bodden: Ministers!

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Well, maybe one day you'll get promoted!

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: That's not our ambition. Let's hear the answer now!

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: You just hold on, I'll give you the answer in a minute.

When you put any money into a project, you have to carry out a feasibility study to ensure that—and let me back up by saying the reason we have statutory authorities, which are taking off from the Government a certain amount of income that previously was coming to the Government, you put it into a statutory authority and give them the mission to operate as a business entity; meaning that whatever you do, you try to ensure that there is a profit orientation in the way you carry out your exercise.

Having spent—

[inaudible interjections]

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Hold on, hold on! Having carried out the exercise of purchasing its own crane, I am sure the Members sitting and asking questions today would love for me to be in the position where that decision would be that the crane is making a loss.

[Some Members: No, no, no, no!]

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I am glad to hear that you are saying no.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order, sir.

POINT OF ORDER

The Speaker: Let me hear your point of order.

Mr. Roy Bodden: We can't allow the Member to get away this!

The Speaker: He is only expressing an opinion.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, he did not say he was expressing an opinion. He said, "I am sure." That is what he said!

Mr. Roy Bodden: True, true!

The Speaker: Could you reword it please?

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Thank you. Mr. Speaker, I am happy to reword what I said. My intentions in what I said are that I am sure the Members sitting across the floor asking questions would love perhaps for me to be in a different position than I am, where the crane is making a profit. I am not casting any aspirations [sic] at them at all. What I am saying is that having taken the decision to purchase a crane with a mission given to the Port Authority by the Government they must operate in a business way, they are then oriented to making profit.

When you spend $2 million on a crane, you have to ensure that there is a feasibility study, and there is revenue to be earned by the crane that exceeds the expenditure on an operational basis. The charge that was made by Thompson Shipping for offloading equipment or containers from the ship, we are still unable to determine how much that was. So I am unable to say whether the arrangement with the Government, which is charging $30 to offload a 40-ton container, is more or less than what Thompson Shipping was charging. We have tried to determine the amount of money Thompson Shipping was charging for that service, and we were not given the information.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town with the last supplementary on this question.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Mr. Speaker, contrary to what the Minister just said—and he told us he was not casting any aspirations, I trust he meant aspersions, because all of us have aspirations. But, anyway, contrary to what the Minister just said, we, asking substantive and supplementary questions, are not asking the questions because we want the answers to be in a situation where the country is in a bad position. So let the Minister not even give that impression to himself, much less to anyone else. That is not the case! We understand our responsibility, sir.

But my supplementary, understanding what he has said, is to ask if in fact the increase to the public in the tariffs by the Port Authority was a direct result of the increased cost to the Port Authority in operating their own crane; or was it simply a natural situation where it was time to levy an increase in the charge? The question is simple. Was it as a result of increased cost to the Port Authority for their own operations, or was it simply a matter that it was time to do so?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, I think the answer is simple: It was both.

The Speaker: Moving to Question 86, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: It would have been good to have gotten another supplementary in—

The Speaker: Next time.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: —since we talked about costs, because as I understand it, a 40-foot container was $250 before, now it is over $384. That does not seem like a 5% increase. But the next question, Mr. Speaker—[inaudible comments] Ah, that is what people are paying now, but anyway.

QUESTION 86

No. 86: Mr. W. McKeeva Bush asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport what the profit and/or loss projections for the first five years of operation of the Pedro St. James Castle are.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: The profit and loss projections for the first five years of operation at the Pedro St. James Castle are conservatively estimated, based on actuals for the first five months of 1998, and does not include revenue from cruise ship passengers.

	1998	1999	2000	2001	2002
Revenue	$ 85,498	$ 360,111	$ 415,197	$ 477,476	$620,718
Operating costs	550,112	561,114	533,058	538,388	549,155
Net	-464,614	201,033	-117,861	-60,912	+71,563

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: We have a revenue estimation, Mr. Speaker, of $85,498 for 1998; $360,111 for 1999; $415,197 for the year 2000; and $477,476 for the year 2001; and 2002, $620,718. The operational costs, reading from 1998 forward: $550,112, $561,114, $533,058; $538,388, and $549,155. It shows the net loss of $464,614 estimated for 1998; $201,033 in 1999; $117,861 for the year 2000; $60,912 for the year 2001; and a small profit estimated for the year 2002 of $71,563.

The Speaker: Supplementaries?

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, may I add, I think a lot more work needs to be done to this exercise in order for me to be one hundred percent comfortable with it.

The Speaker: Are there any supplementaries? The First Elected Member for George Town.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Can the Minister state how these projections were arrived at? What method was used, and by whom, to get to these final figures?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, the figures were put together using the first five months of operation in 1998, charging admission at the Pedro St. James. At the moment the charge is US$6 for adults and $3 for children. As we know, the project did have a 'soft' opening, and is not really catering to many visitors at the present time. Actually, we are not promoting it at this time in a great way, because we are waiting for the project to be fully operational, so the figure in 1998 is going to be small. I think yesterday I answered a question from the First Elected Member for George Town which indicated that for the first five months of operation, the income was about $40,000 for this year.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, just a gentle reminder, sir, the second part of my question was by whom, if the Minister will answer that please.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I am sorry I did not follow through with that answer. This projection was done by the General Manager of the Tourism Attraction Board.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I know this perhaps asks for a little more detail than the Member may have, but I wonder if he is able to give an indication of what percentage of fixed costs will be included in the operating costs? The reasoning is that I note in 1998 the operating cost was $550,000. It has decreased to $549,000 in 2002; yet the income keeps going up. On the basis that the expenses usually move in proportion to the increased revenue, I wonder if he could explain that difference.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, I have to apologise. The General Manager of the Tourism Attraction Board is not on the Island at the moment. I did not have access to some data which I am sure he has, and I would undertake, if the Member wishes, to provide the information to him in writing.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, we will move to Question 87, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION 87

No. 87: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport if there are any plans by the Port Authority to develop the public open space at the Safe-Haven site for use by local boat operators.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: The Port Authority does have plans to develop the Public Open Space at Safe-Haven. Presently, the property is owned by Government, and it will be necessary for the property to be vested in the Port Authority before any development is considered, or significant funds expended.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Can the Minister state if there has been any request to Government by the Port Authority or by the Minister himself for the property to be vested in the Port Authority?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, the answer to that is yes.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Minister state, since he just said the answer to the supplementary is yes, if Government was in agreement with the request; and if not, what was the reason for not agreeing with the request?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, I do not think the Government was in agreement with vesting this in the Port Authority. They thought the property was very valuable. I think they perhaps will reconsider it, but at that time, they did not.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Can the Minister state, since Government's thinking was that the property was very valuable, did Government itself have plans for use of the property?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I am not aware of any plans by the Government to develop it. It may be, but I am not aware of it.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you.

In a previous answer to a supplementary, the Minister said perhaps Government would reconsider it. Can the Minister state if the Port Authority intends, either through him or whatever other channels are necessary, to request again for Government to vest the property with the Port Authority?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, I intend to ask the Port Authority to reconsider doing so.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Can the Honourable Minister state whether he is in possession of an offer or some form of application from the private sector to develop a similar facility in the North Sound, the George Town Barcadere area, that will also provide proper sewage facilities, similar to what would be considered under this question?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: My Ministry has not received an application. Perhaps it went to a different Ministry.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Perhaps I could be a bit more specific, and ask the Honourable Minister if he has received—or maybe the Minister for Agriculture Environment, Communications and Works has received an application from Scott's Industries to develop a similar facility near the Mike Simmons property in the North Sound?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, at the present time, I am unable to give any further information on this one.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Following up on what the Third Elected Member for George Town asked, may I ask the Minister if he is aware of such an application? In fact, I will go a bit further: Is the Minister aware of such an application, and such a paper being brought to Executive Council?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, I do not think I can talk about what is before Executive Council. I am reluctant to do that.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, I am not asking for details, and we have gotten into this argument before. I am asking the Minister if he is aware. I am simply asking him if he knows of the application. I am asking him nothing more about the application. I am simply asking him.

The Speaker: I think he said he—

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: In fact, if he wishes me to forget about Executive Council, let me rephrase it, Sir. Is the Minister aware of any such application?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, I said earlier that I was unaware of an application, and there was no application in my Ministry. Maybe it appeared in some other Ministry. This supplementary question triggered from what I know the plans to be down at the Port Authority. I am conversant with those details. I really do not know what this application is about that the First Elected Member for George Town is referring to.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you.

Is the Minister saying that he has never seen or heard of such application?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, I believe it is fair to say that I am answering questions related to the Port Authority. I really cannot deal with George Town Barcadere questions. It is not my responsibility.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I understand that this supplementary may be straying from the original question, but the reason for this supplementary regarding a situation at the George Town Barcadere is that the facility we are arguing about at the SafeHaven site which is public open space vested with the Government, I think—anyway, it is zoned public open space—the same facility being argued about down there, we understand that in recent times a private facility was being offered if permission was granted.

The relevance to the situation is that if that were to occur, we may not be pressing for Government or the Port Authority to expend funds to deal with a situation like that. So, while it may seem to be straying, we think it is very relevant; and if the Speaker would allow, if the Minister seems ignorant of any of the facts, perhaps the Minister who is directly responsible would be able to answer the question. That is, the Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

The Speaker: I really think you should put down a substantive question if you want this information. But if the Minister for Agriculture wishes to speak on it, he may.

[inaudible interjections]

The Speaker: At this time, I would entertain a motion for the suspension of Standing Order 23(7) and (8) so Question Time can go beyond 11.00.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, I so move, with the hope that I might get an answer.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: I second, Mr. Speaker.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 23(7) AND (8)

The Speaker: The question is that we suspend Standing Order 23 (7) and (8). I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. Question Time will continue.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 23(7) AND (8) SUSPENDED TO ENABLE QUESTION TIME TO CONTINUE.

The Speaker: Does the Honourable Minister for Agriculture wish to answer? (Pause) Are there any further supplementaries?

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: He na' gon' answer or wha'?

The Speaker: He does not wish to answer.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: What a charm he is!

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, we will move to Question 88, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 88

No. 88: Miss Heather D. Bodden asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs to give a progress report emanating from recent district meetings which were held at the Bodden Town Civic Centre and Savannah Primary School, between the new Commissioner of Police, his Officers and the residents.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: The following is the progress report:

Speeding:

There were one hundred and twenty-nine (129) motorists prosecuted in the first quarter of 1998
Forty-seven (47) in Savannah
Eighty-two (82) other prosecutions in the neighbouring community of Bodden Town.

Speed Limit Signs, Savannah Meadows:

The erection of repeater signs was referred to the Public Works Department, which is presently conducting a survey as to where these signs should be positioned.

Juveniles Riding Go-Carts, Newlands/Savannah Acres:

The parents of the juveniles were spoken to concerning this problem.

Spot checks are being made by police patrols. No further complaints have been made to the police.

Overtaking on soft shoulder onto Eden Crescent (in the vicinity Domino's Pizza):

Two "No Left Turn Signs" were erected by Public Works Department on the eastern approach to Eden Crescent. These, along with police checks, have reduced some of this activity.

A police officer has been posted at the junction on some mornings.

Derelict Vehicles, Old Monument Road:

Satellite dishes and derelict vehicles were placed on the roadside for collection by the Department of Environmental Health.

The roadside debris was removed; however, the vehicles have not been removed because of mechanical problems with the vehicle owned by the Department of Environmental Health.

Vandalism, Savannah Playing Field:

Increased police patrol checks are being conducted to prevent further acts of vandalism.

Environmental Hazard, Newlands:

Two persons were formally charged, but the charges were withdrawn by the Court because of a deficiency in the Law.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I wonder if the Honourable Member would say what deficiencies in the Law caused the charges to be withdrawn for environmental hazard in Newlands, and if there is an amendment being prepared to come before the Parliament.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I am not in a position to say what the deficiencies were in the Law. As the Member will appreciate, it is a matter for my colleague the Second Official Member. I am not sure even what law is referred to. This is purely a report, an update that was being given.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Mr. Speaker, I would like to thank the Honourable Member for that reply, but I would assume that these two people were taken before the Court and charged by the police. I wonder if he could converse with the police officer and give us an idea what the deficiencies are.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

For the benefit of that Member, I did converse with the police officer, but we are not in a position to say.

If the Member so wishes, I will get that in writing.

The Speaker: Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I look forward to receiving that information.

My other supplementary is on juveniles riding go-carts. Is the riding of go-carts against any law in these Islands?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: I wonder if the Member would repeat her question.

The Speaker: Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: My question is, is the riding of go-carts against any laws in these Islands?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The riding of go-carts on public roads is against the law.

The Speaker: Second Elected Member for Boddan Town.

Miss Heather D. Boddan: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I would like to take this opportunity to publicly thank the Commissioner of Police and his officers for these most important district meetings. Can the Honourable First Official Member say if these district police community meetings will continue throughout the districts quarterly or every six months?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

It is my understanding that they will be held every six months.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, we will move to Question 89, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Boddan Town.

QUESTION 89

No 89: Miss Heather D. Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation, since the new Community Development Officer has been assigned to Bodden Town, what programmes have been put in place since 1 January 1998.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The Community Development Officer for Bodden Town has been involved in the following programmes since 1 January 1998:

- Continued working with the Bodden Town district Youth Band, which was formed in November 1997 by the officer and Mrs. Penny Thompson. The band now has 38 children ranging in age from 8 to 14 years. The group continues to perform at a variety of functions, including recently concluded Child Month Activities and the Bodden Town Primary School graduation. A fund-raiser was held to raise money for additional equipment. The group raised $1,700. This was organised by the Community Development Officer, along with the parents of the children.
- Re-activation of the Bodden Town CODAC group, which had been dormant for the past two years. The group's first project is to mount a display at the Bodden Town Civic Centre to include photographs and written summaries on the history of Bodden Town.
- An Easter programme for Bodden Town's senior citizens was held on 6 April 1998.
- Assistance in the form of transportation every fourth Monday in the month for the "Fun for the Young at Heart" group organised and run by Reverend Menko of the Webster Memorial United Church and Ms. Josie Solomon.
- Continued to be involved in the Police Community meetings.
- Organised Child Month activity for 100 children at the Bodden Town Civic Centre on 11 May.
- Summer Programme organised for 3 to 14 August 1998 for 90 children, to be held at the James Manoh Civic Centre.
- Two new community groups are in the process of being formed, one in Breakers and one for Cumber Avenue.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. It is obvious from this answer that things are happening in the District. Could the Minister say if there is any communication between the various community development officers? The reason for the question is that perhaps there are ideas which could emanate into other districts, and if communication is going back and forth, there could be an exchange of information which would enhance operations within the districts.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, Mr. Speaker, this is but the start. I am made to understand that the different community development officers meet every two weeks to exchange ideas and go forward.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I wonder if the Honourable Minister could say if there are any programmes along these lines in the District of North Side.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, I am informed that a survey, primarily to establish needs, has been done. They are working closely with the North Side PTA, and also with the youth group of the North Side United Church.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: I wonder if the Honourable Minister would say if the need is now where the District of North Side should have its own community officer. I believe there is one officer for East End and North Side, and I believe this is too much for one officer to handle, if we are to achieve and bring forward programmes like this.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, Mr. Speaker, I support the Member in that. I think for these programmes to be effective, we need the dedicated people in each district, and we will submit this in the next budget.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Miss Heather D. Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Honourable Minister say where the community development officer can be contacted when someone from the District of Bodden Town needs to get in touch with him?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: There is a number at the community development headquarters, which is 949-3885, but we will be endeavouring to find a location in Bodden Town. As a matter of fact, I shared this with my support officers behind me. We have looked at the health centres. There are some openings there. I know specifically in Bodden Town we will be looking at another area, where I think it is a good idea for the public to have access to these officers, to go in, sit down and talk with them, and where they can sit down and do their work.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, we move to Question 90, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 90

No. 90: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport what the limit of taxis allowed to operate in these Islands is.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: The limit imposed by Government in 1992 for Taxi Operator permits is 250. This quota is currently being reviewed by the Public Transport Board.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Minister tell the House when any new licences were last issued; and what the current position is regarding this quota, whether we have 250, or whether we are currently above or below this number?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, we are still at the 250 taxi operator permits. I know there are many people in the Island lining up to obtain taxi operator permits, and we are hopeful that the review being carried out by the Public Transport Board will put us in a position to inform Members of the Legislative Assembly about what that entails.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Minister tell the House the last time any new licences were granted?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I would assume it was back in 1991 or 1992. At that time the police were dealing with taxi licences. It is only since September of last year that we took it over, so if something happened prior to our taking it over, I am not going to be able to answer the question honestly.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I would sincerely request if the Minister, when it is convenient, would undertake to provide that answer in writing to the Honourable Members of the House as we deem it very important.

My next supplementary has to do with the review, and my question is, Is the Minister in a position to provide some information on the extent of this review? I ask this question, particularly after ascertaining that many of my colleagues that have been approached by Caymanian people complaining of their difficulty in being able to obtain taxi licences. Some of them claim they are excluded because the quota is taken up by persons who do not have Caymanian status, who are not Caymanian, or have Caymanian connections.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, first, I am willing to give an undertaking to provide the information in writing as requested to Members.

It is also appropriate to say that in 1992 this quota, moratorium or limit, was put on before we took office. So the exercise being carried out by the Public Transport Board is looking at the marketplace, the services being provided, by whom, and whether or not the marketplace can sustain additional taxis operating, or whether adding new taxis to the present fleet of taxis would cause the majority of taxis to earn less rather than more. I think we have to look at this in great depth, because there is a down side to it as well as realising that in anything, we probably have taxi operators who are not toeing the line or living up to the standards. The Port Authority's exercise is also taking that into account.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Honourable Minister say if, in the review, the Public Transport Board will be giving any attention to providing courses in training, appearance and general deportment among the taxi drivers?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, the answer to that is yes. Maybe to enhance what the Member is saying, there will be training, putting the taxi driver in a position to give accurate historical or current event data. I am certain that part of the exercise is just about in place. It is a matter of deciding when to do it.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, we will move to Question 91, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 91

No. 91: Miss Heather D. Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works, Are there any future plans to erect a traffic light or install a four-way stop sign at the junction of Tall Tree and Newlands Road?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Public Works Department currently has no plans to erect a traffic signal or install a four-way stop system at the intersection of Poinciana Drive and Hirst Road. However, now that there is concern by Members of the Legislative Assembly, we will, through Public Works Department, take the necessary action to do a study on this junction, and will implement the necessary controls to assist safe motoring. However, this will have to be done in conjunction with the police, and we will have their input.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Miss Heather D. Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Would the Honourable Minister give an undertaking to keep me and my two colleagues, the Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation, and the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, fully updated on the progress of the Public Works Department report?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: I have no problem giving that undertaking. As a matter of fact, I am sure we will have to work together on this to make it a reality.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Miss Heather D. Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Could the Honourable Minister perhaps request a complete study of the traffic flow in this area, if it has not already been done?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Some traffic flow [studies] have been done in that area, but for us to have a proper four-way junction, or to install traffic lights, we will have to do a full study of the area, and it would probably include the junction that runs toward Pedro Castle also.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Miss Heather D. Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. We are all aware that this intersection has become a very busy and dangerous one. Would the Honourable Minister also give an undertaking to include in this study the impact on the increase of traffic with regard to tour buses and taxis now with the coming on line of the Pedro St. James Castle?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: I would be most happy to work along with the Department of Traffic which falls under my colleague here, and whatever we do, we will definitely keep the lady Member informed, along with her other two colleagues.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, we will move to Question 92, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 92

No. 92: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works, What has happened to the manual microscopes and other such instruments that were left by Dr. Giglioli at the Mosquito Research and Control Unit?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. It is my understanding that any microscopes, instruments or other items left by Dr. Giglioli at the Mosquito Research Unit were acquired by the Department. These items were utilised or stored by MRCU as part of the Department's equipment and resources.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Is the Minister in a position to say which of these instruments are currently utilised, and which are stored?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Mr. Speaker, I would endeavour to get that information, but I certainly do not have it with me at this time.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, the reason I ask the question—and I am going to ask the Minister to give an undertaking—is to ensure that any of the instruments not being used or not needed at this time, be given to the Museum as one would consider these items to be of historical and other interest to the community.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Mr. Speaker, I do not have a problem with that, and I will definitely make that suggestion. If anything has been under-utilised or cannot be used any more, I am sure all Members here appreciate that Dr. Giglioli has been something special in this [tape inaudible].

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. [Tape inaudible]...question was because there are some rumours that some of these instruments have disappeared. We do not know this to be a fact, but we would simply ask that he undertake to investigate any that are missing, to try to determine [Tape inaudible]. We are not saying that is the case. We just wish to clear up the matter. As the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town just requested of the Minister, should any of these items not be in use presently, to ensure their safety and longevity could they be passed on to the Museum? I think it is important, and we would like the Minister to undertake to give us an answer in writing regarding the whereabouts of the existing instruments, and to ensure that all of them are still there.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Mr. Speaker, that is more or less what I said a while ago. I would give that undertaking. However, my question was answered after having research done by the Department, and it is my understanding that whatever was left is still intact. If it is not, I will make a report back to the House.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, we will move to Question 93, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 93

No. 93: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works whether there have been any reports that the chemicals and insecticides used by the Mosquito Research and Control Unit are posing any health hazard to the people of these Islands.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: The answer is no. I am not aware of any reports that the chemicals and insecticides used by the Mosquito Research and Control Unit are posing any health hazard to the people of the Cayman Islands.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. As I understand it, there have been some four or five Members of staff of Mosquito Research & Control Unit who have died over the years from cancer. I wonder if the Honourable Minister would say if this is any concern of the Department, and whether or not they are doing any research into this matter.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Mr. Speaker, it certainly has been a concern of mine and others, that we have lost several people from cancer. But I can only repeat what I said—and I have to base it on what I have been told from the medical side. There should be no concern for the people of the Cayman Islands regarding the insecticides used there.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Minister say if any research has been done into the effects these chemicals and insecticides have as a result of settling into the water table, or being ingested by persons who may be still be drinking water from catchments in cisterns?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Mr. Speaker, I think I was asked something like that. I do not recall if it came up in a Throne Speech or Budget Address, but we talked about the insecticides used. It is my understanding that the reason we have changed from the type of insecticides we were using is to put it beyond a shadow of a doubt that we have no problem with the insecticides used. The first ones, as I understood it, were. . . as you know, we utilised a lot of the spray with liquids, and we have even cut that down now to where we use pellets in certain areas where the mosquitoes are to try to control them. So it is my understanding—and I can only repeat what I have been told by the technical people—that what we have used has no effect on human beings.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Boddén: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I would request that the Minister give an undertaking to have this investigated further. Recently, in an informal conversation with a medical practitioner off-Island who is very familiar with Caymanian patients, the question was raised to me as to the high incidence of certain cancers among Caymanian patients. The specific question was raised regarding aerial spraying as, in the absence of any empirical information, that party said it would have to be suspect in his opinion.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Mr. Speaker, whatever will be beneficial to the people of the country, I will be happy to do. I am sure my colleague, the Honourable Minister for Health, will work along with me on it. But it is my understanding that what we have been using here for mosquitoes is the same thing used in Florida. As a matter of fact, our last Director had worked many years in Florida. That is as much as I can say on it. But the undertaking is definitely there. We will continue to do whatever we can to make sure that whatever is done there to prevent mosquitoes is something that is safe for the people of the country.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. As the Minister just said that he is concerned over the loss of some four or five members of staff from that department, I wonder if the Honourable Minister would say if there are any procedures put in place to monitor the present staff working with these insecticides, such as annual medical check-ups, or whatever, so we can find out if it is these insecticides, pesticides or whatever?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Mr. Speaker, it is my understanding that all necessary check-ups are in place for members who utilise such insecticides. As a matter of fact, I understand there is something in place whereby those handling it have to use certain equipment when they are actually doing it, so I would think everything is in place. But again, I will make sure we do another check, and whatever is necessary will be done.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I thank the Honourable Minister for that, but as I notice when the fog truck is passing through my District and the wind is blowing strongly the driver uses no protection. Maybe the drivers of these trucks should be included in that procedure also.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Mr. Speaker, it is my understanding that whatever is in place for one is in place for the other. If the lady Member has seen something like that, I appreciate her bringing it to my attention, and I will definitely speak to the Director and see that everyone is treated the same way.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, that concludes Question Time for this morning. At this time, we shall suspend proceedings for fifteen minutes.

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 14/98

STATUTORY AUTHORITY MEETINGS TO BE HELD IN PUBLIC

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I beg to move Private Member's Motion No. 14/98, entitled, "Statutory Authority Meetings to be held in Public," which stands in my name and reads as follows:

"BE IT RESOLVED that the deliberations of the statutory authorities be held in public except in those cases in which the business to be discussed involves matters of national security, or any other such matters which would divulge sensitive information detrimental to the public good;

"AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the necessary laws and regulations governing the conduct of such meetings be amended to reflect such changes."

The Speaker: Do we have a seconder? The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, I beg to second that motion.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 14/98 has been duly moved and seconded. Does the mover wish to speak to it?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. It was necessary for us to waive the rules and indulge in a little boiler-room deal-making. As a result of that, I wish to withdraw this motion, and I crave the indulgence of the Chair and the Honourable House to so do.

WITHDRAWAL OF MOTION [SO 24(14)]

The Speaker: I shall put the question that under Standing Order 24(14) this motion be withdrawn. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. Private Member's Motion 14/98 is hereby withdrawn.

AGREED: PRIVATE MEMBERS MOTION NO. 14/98 WITHDRAWN.

The Speaker: Moving on, Private Member's Motion No. 12/98, entitled "Freedom of Information and Official Information Act," the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 12/98

FREEDOM OF INFORMATION AND OFFICIAL INFORMATION ACT

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I beg to move Private Member's Motion 12/98, entitled, "Freedom of Information and Official Information Act," standing in my name, which reads as follows:

"BE IT RESOLVED that the Cayman Islands Legislative Assembly enact a Freedom of Information Law similar to that proposed in the United Kingdom's Freedom of Information White Paper;

"AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that a select committee of the whole House be convened to determine the parameters of such legislation, after public input."

The Speaker: Do we have a seconder? The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. I beg to second that motion.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 12/98 has been duly moved and seconded. Does the mover wish to speak to it?

AMENDMENT TO PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 12/98

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, before I speak to the motion, I crave the indulgence of the Chair and the House to move the following amendment:

"In accordance with the provisions of Standing Order 25(2) I, the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, seek to move that Private Member's Motion No. 12/98 be amended as follows: by inserting the words 'and such matters relating to Statutory Boards' after the word 'legislation' as it appears in the last line of the last resolve."

The Speaker: Do we have a seconder?
The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I beg to second the amendment.

The Speaker: The amendment has been duly moved and seconded. It is open to debate. Does the mover wish to speak to it?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

There is no need for me to speak on the amendment. I would crave the Chair's indulgence to let us put the amendment to the vote, and I will then speak on both combined.

The Speaker: The question is that Private Member's Motion 12/98 be amended, as per the notice provided to Members.

I will put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The amendment has been accepted.

AGREED: AMENDMENT TO PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 12/98 APPROVED.

The Speaker: I shall put the question on Private Member's Motion No. 12/98 as amended.

Does the mover wish to speak to that?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker, I certainly wish to.

I begin by being gracious and extending my appreciation to all Honourable Members for allowing us to conduct the business of the House in this way at such relatively short notice. It shows there is still hope, and that we can do a lot of things when we approach them with open minds and sincere hearts.

The reason the House has seen fit to support—and I am happy for the indulgence of the Chair, Mr. Speaker. I do not by any means wish to diminish the Chair's role in facilitating all of this. The reason we have decided to go this route, although it took us a little time to get started, is that we will save the House a considerable amount of time, seeing that the two motions (the one withdrawn and the one currently being debated) were so similar.

I am happy on this occasion, because usually when the Government is so co-operative it also means it will be more than likely supporting the motion. I certainly would not expect complete and unadulterated support, and I suppose the nature of politics being what it is, the Government may wish to express some minor concerns and reservations. We on this side have no problem with that, and I am sure the Government's position will serve to spice up our debate and add a little variety. I would hate to know that our Parliament became the chamber where the Government echoed the Opposition, and the Opposition echoed the Government, with no variation or differentiation. It would certainly be very boring.

Having said that, let me begin by saying that this motion calling for a Freedom of Information Act is timely in terms of the world-wide move toward making government more open. We have, on both sides, latched on to the phrases 'transparency' and 'openness.' Certainly, Honourable Members in the Chamber will know that the Government has undertaken a big exercise—reinvention and re-engineering of Government. And now, under the auspices of the Department of Finance, the Honourable Ruth Richardson is advising the Cayman Islands Government on some major reforms which are in keeping with the reinvention and re-engineering of Government.

But equally important, the United Kingdom itself—the metropolitan or Mother Country, as some people term it—is also in the process of making some reforms. Indeed, their Freedom of Information Act entitled "Your Right to Know" is the model I have chosen as one we can use here in embarking upon our own Freedom of Information and Official Information Acts. It would be a good time to lay a copy of this on the Table, as well as to provide a copy for the Chair. I had circulated some copies previously with page six missing.

These copies are now complete, so I will lay one copy on the Table and make one copy available to the Chair.

In his brand new book entitled The Transparent Society, author David Brin convinces the reader that transparency and accountability are the best defences against abuses. In this book, David Brin suggests that openness is essential if we are to progress and to have the type of government that will be most effective in taking countries and societies into the twenty-first century. The United Kingdom Freedom of Information Act, "Your Right to Know," begins by making this observation: "Unnecessary secrecy in government leads to arrogance in governance and defective decision-making."

That indeed is a proven fact. I notice in paragraph 1.3 of the United Kingdom Freedom of Information Act, "This right to know has existed in Sweden since the eighteenth century, in the United States since 1966, in France since 1978, in Canada, Australia and New Zealand since 1982, and in the Netherlands since 1991. The United Kingdom can learn from the experience of these mature fellow democracies."

So we see that freedom of information, or official information acts as some people call them, have been around in some countries for quite some time, in Sweden since the eighteenth century.

Relations between public authorities and the wider society, I am positing, need to rest on two-way openness and trust. Certainly, in the case of the Cayman Islands and the move we are attempting to make, this is no less important and significant. There will, of course, be sensitive information, but we believe that freedom of information is an important element and should be an important cog in our effort to modernise government and government bureaucracy, and that this freedom should have wide application.

But of course there have to be some limits to the parameters. To begin with, let us briefly discuss where some of these limits may come in. For example, sensitive intellectual property, trade secrets, information that could affect share prices, etc. When I discussed this with some people, they asked me what this would do to the secrecy involved in our development as an international financial centre. Well, Mr. Speaker, let me allay any fears people may have regarding this. We have a law entitled "The Confidential Relationships (Preservation) Law." This Law, as I understand it, is a very important Law in our development as an international financial centre. I certainly would not be so foolhardy and irresponsible as to come here and try to introduce any legislation or any Private Member's Motion which would nullify and negate the effects of that Law.

Let me be unequivocally clear to say that what is proposed here has nothing to do with confidentiality, as it relates to our business as an international financial centre. And it has nothing to do with the Confidential Relationships (Preservation) Law. It is not my intention to impinge on that Law. Indeed, as I develop my argument, I will make it crystal clear that I regard certain kinds of information as off limits. For example, information about private parties which, if made public, could seriously affect an individual's standing in the community, such as medical records, sensitive information about the person like the person's financial records.

These kinds of information would be off limits. Commercial confidentiality, another important point, would be off limits. There is no way this kind of information or this kind of access could be given. Anyone seeking this kind of information would have to take it up in other forums, and would have to take their request through a court of law, which would then rule on the admissibility or availability of this kind of notice.

The above notwithstanding, we believe that a certain amount of openness should be the guiding principle, especially in the functioning of statutory boards. It is my belief that making some of the meetings of the boards, like the Immigration Board, the Planning Board, or the Trade and Business Licensing Board, open to members of the public, would certainly expedite the processes, and also serve to educate and inform people who may be interested.

I say 'people who may be interested' because the fact that a meeting is open to the public does not mean it will necessarily be attended by members of the public.

It may well be the case that if I had a matter before a board and I knew the board was meeting to decide upon that matter at a certain time and venue, out of interest I suppose I would go. But I want to make it plain that attending the meetings would be the extent of it. Such persons would not be able to participate, and would not be able to interact in any way, unless they were specifically asked to appear formally as a, let me put it this way, witness or resource person. Their attendance at these meetings would be limited as the attendance of visitors in the gallery of the Parliament.

They would merely be passive spectators, and could be ruled out of order and asked to leave, the same way the Chair can ask visitors in the gallery who are determined to be conducting themselves inappropriately to leave. The extent of public participation at these board meetings would be that they come in, sit down and conduct themselves with the greatest of decorum. And whether they abided by a decision or objected to a decision, they would have to keep their sentiments to themselves.

I want to say something else—the board reserves the right and discretion, if the matters are sensitive, to close the meeting off.

As far as freedom of information is concerned, I would expect that decisions would be relatively easy to acquire after the board has met to decide on a matter. Let me explain. If, for example, an application is in, I would expect that shortly after the meeting one could get a decision as to whether the board approved or disapproved the application. But I do not see it necessary, nor in the best interests, to provide verbatim minutes of the proceedings of the board. I would shy away from advocating that this be available cursorily. As I have said, if there are objections or grouses, or appeals of decisions, and people want this kind of information, they would have to go through the normal channels which, as I understand it, would be the courts.

In all jurisdictions I researched, freedom of information would entail basically information as to whether a decision had been granted or not. It may extend to explain why the decision was not granted, or recommend what needs to be done to meet favourable approval, but it would not carry the verbatim minutes as a normal course.

What would be the scope of such an Act? Well, I consider that this freedom of information would extend to all Government departments dealing with routine matters, their executive agencies, and the various statutory boards. It quite conceivably could extend to private entities with which the Government does business. For example, the Government does business with two utility companies, the telephone company and the electric company. This freedom of information quite conceivably could extend to cover some of the Government's relationships with these entities.

Are there any limitations? Yes, there are limitations. What would not be covered? Any matters emanating from a Government department or ministry dealing with national security, police matters other than routine police matters. For example, it would not cover police matters investigating crimes, whether crimes against an individual or against the State. This kind of information would not be appropriate. When I say 'routine police matters,' it would cover routine police matters like traffic. Much of the information that comes out now in the police report—we could get traffic statistics, fatalities, information on the various types of crimes, and that kind of information.

It would also not cover matters dealing with certain kinds of confidentiality, even in some civil cases that may deal with financial matters, bankruptcies and so on against companies or individuals.

What would the object be of making information such as this motion calls for available? First of all, it would inform people. It would serve to inform people as to what is happening, how a government department or ministry functions.

It would empower them. It would teach them. It would instruct them in how to access certain information. It would also let them understand, after accessing this information, their responsibility to use it in a proper and responsible way, to achieve the purposes they set out to achieve, whether that is purely informational or on the basis of using the information to redress some grievance or some questions they may have.

In the second instance, it would place a certain obligation on the bodies allowed in the Act to give out this information, making it publicly available as a matter of course. It will clearly set out the statutory duties and responsibilities of the various Government departments. It would enhance operations, even in this Parliament, because sometimes it is more convenient for Members of the Legislative Assembly to go directly to civil servants involved to get certain kinds of routine information when we are preparing debates; or it may even be as a foundation to some queries or questions we have informally. We may be requested by our constituents to find out certain things on their behalf, not necessarily political matters, which would wind up in a debate in this Legislative Assembly.

Right now, there is some reluctance on our part to do that, and there is a great reluctance on the part of civil servants to dispense some of this information, even though some of it is quite routine and harmless. This Act will enable us to have better relations, and will clearly set out the parameters within we, as the representatives of the people and Members of the Parliament, can approach the civil service and access this information without going through a long, drawn out and circuitous process.

A good example is that we often ask questions about the functioning of the Tenders Committees. We question the amount of bids, who bid, why was the bid awarded, and all that. It would help us, as Members of the Legislative Assembly, to have more ready access to that information. It would also help the tenders. If this Freedom of Information Act comes into place, I see the unsuccessful bidders being helped because perhaps the Tenders Committee can then inform them as to why they were not successful in their tendering, and how they could improve their tendering next time to be successful.

I want to add a point of caution, by saying that this whole business of commercial confidentiality should not be used to deprive anyone of information. This whole business of commercial confidentiality should not be an excuse to keep people from knowing or accessing certain information. Perhaps that will be the great challenge we face.

Who can apply for such information under this Act? Anyone, Mr. Speaker! Anyone can apply. I stress that the application will have to be formal, because records will have to be kept. I would expect that when the select committee meets and takes depositions and hears witnesses, it would set up a system whereby all requests will be considered equally, based on their contents. But for the sake of smooth operation, records will have to be kept, although I would hasten to say that we should operate under the stipulation that people would have to state and demonstrate their need for the information they are requesting. I do not think we should go that far, because for the Act to be effective, the access right should be capable of a broad and flexible application and interpretation, and should cover both records and information. Records, in terms of any decisions made; and information, meaning, reasons surrounding the decisions made or not made.

The United Kingdom Act (and I like this) in section 2.20, says, "The Freedom of Information Act is not intended as an aspect of public sector employment law. It is not, therefore, intended that the Act should cover access to the personnel records of public authorities by their employees. This will also apply to records held for recruitments and appointments."

I want to emphasise this. People should not be able to get personnel records as a result of this Act. This Act should have nothing to do with the dispensing of that kind of information. No one should be able to apply and access the records of any public servant. They should not be able to access the appointment of any public servant, nor the files on anything having to do with recruitment, termination or contract. That is excluded, unavailable.

So the Act should be open, fair, straightforward to operate. I envisage, if this Act is successful and we are as organised as I think we should be in promoting it, before the Act comes into effect that the Government would embark on an extensive public information campaign. Some people talk about propaganda, and when you say propaganda many people have negative connotations.

But there is good propaganda and bad propaganda. I am going to refrain from using the word 'propaganda,' lest people misunderstand and misinterpret and take the negative connotation, and say that the Government should embark on an extensive public information campaign to educate the people as to the purpose and how to use and access this information, and also to tell them what kinds of information will not be available under this Act.

For myself, the mover, I would strongly suggest that we do a special campaign to inform the people that this Freedom of Information or Official Information Act has no bearing and no relationship to our Confidential Relationships (Preservation) Law.

I stress that, and I would crave the indulgence of the Chief Secretary and the Honourable Financial Secretary to work together to ensure that this comes out first and foremost, that this Act will have no bearing on our ability to maintain our financial integrity and Confidential Relationships (Preservation) Law.

The Speaker: Would this be a convenient time to take the break?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Yes, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: We shall suspend for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.50 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.22 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed.

Debate continues on Private Member's Motion No. 12/98 with the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, continuing.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Prior to the break, I mentioned a point that bears emphasis. Notwithstanding what we were discussing yesterday in that OECD report, "HARMFUL TAX COMPETITION: An Emerging Global Issue." Confidential information regarding our status as an international financial centre will not be had through any Freedom of Information Act, or any Official Information Act. I make that quite clear, both for those who may be listening, and for anyone who is so minded to peruse the Hansards of this Honourable House.

That is one of those things that is non-negotiable, and I dealt already with that. Persons or entities requesting that kind of information, provisions are already made for that, and they can make the applications to the courts or those competent and relevant authorities. But such information will not be able to be gleaned through a Freedom of Information Act.

This brings me to a very interesting point in my presentation, because accessing this information will necessitate an organisation or some entity to whom applications can be made, and to whom, if necessary, appeals can be made. Also, it necessitates another point, because one could not reasonably expect the Government to go back into files and records and research information, provide it formatted, and expect that such a service would be gratis. I would not impose such generosity on the Government, because I know ultimately it would have its costs. For this reason, someone must pay and it seems only reasonable that the applicants must be prepared to pay for information requested.

I see this requirement to pay as serving two purposes. In the first instance, it will eliminate frivolous and ill-thought-out requests. In the second instance, it will enable the Government to carry on a well needed service without being out of pocket significantly. I want to make it unequivocally clear that persons requesting such information should be prepared to pay. It is not for me to decide, as the select committee will take input and arrive at the best position.

Suffice it to say, however, that I would expect it would not necessarily be a profit-making venture, but the charge would be one primarily derived to enable the Government to recoup any monies expended in accessing the information, that is, to be able to pay the civil servant's time and take into consideration any electronic retrieval, etc. So it would be a nominal cost, based ideally on recouping the expense incurred in accessing the material.

The second point, however, is one of a little more technical and complicated concern. It has to do with the organisation of that person or that office, through which such requests would be routed. I note that the United Kingdom White Paper talked about a commissioner. Other jurisdictions call it the ombudsman, and I am aware that in some jurisdictions the parliamentary ombudsman serves the same purpose, plays the same role as the commissioner of information. Well, in our jurisdiction, we have, I think, provision for an ombudsman in our Constitution, but we do not have the office set up yet. We certainly do not have such an officer available in the Parliament who would be able to act as a commissioner.

I think for some time now, Members on both sides of the House have been discussing this whole notion of the development of the office of an ombudsman. It may be well nigh time to enter into more concrete discussions. Perhaps one of the roles and functions of the ombudsman, as it relates in our jurisdiction, could be to serve as the commissioner of information, as such person is called in the United Kingdom, as well as take on certain other responsibilities and broader aspects. I cannot be presumptuous.

Indeed, my role here precludes making any suggestion that is going to impose any financial strain on the Government. I merely bring this out to say that in discussing the business of freedom of information, we must be cognisant of the fact that we have to think about some office or organisation where these applications can be routed, and where appeals can be heard. Preferably, it is someplace where such a business would be the major business.

For example, right now the Clerk of the Legislative Assembly is also the Clerk in charge of the Register of Interests. But it would be a little irksome and very tedious and difficult to impose this further responsibility on such an office. I would see this perhaps emanating out of the Government Information Office, with some special person designated to handle these kinds of requests.

So Mr. Speaker, as far as who pays, I want to emphasise that the public must expect to pay for this information.

It is getting close to the adjournment hour, and I still have some more points to make before I close.

The Speaker: Thank you. I would entertain a motion for the adjournment of this Honourable House.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until Wednesday, 1 July 1998 at 10.00 AM.

The Speaker: The question is that this House do now adjourn until Wednesday, 1 July at 10.00 AM. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House do stand adjourned until Wednesday, 1 July 1998 at 10.00 AM.

AT 4.30 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM WEDNESDAY, 1 JULY 1998.

EDITED
WEDNESDAY
1 JULY 1998
10.23 AM

The Speaker: Prayers by the Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Affairs.

PRAYERS

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived: We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth, that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly, that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy great name's sake.

Let us say the Lord's Prayer together: Our Father, who art in heaven, hallowed be Thy name. Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us. Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace, now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Item 2 on today's Order Paper, Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. Question 94 is standing in the name of the First Elected Member for West Bay.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE MINISTERS/MEMBERS

QUESTION 94

No. 94: Mr. W. McKeever Bush asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation: What provisions are being made by the Government to deal with medical expenses of the elderly, the handicapped and other indigent persons locally, and especially those needing medical treatment overseas?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: The Health Insurance Law and Regulations come into effect on 1st July this year. From that perspective, all persons resident in the Cayman Islands must be covered by a health insurance contract, except those who are uninsurable. It is anticipated that many of those who are uninsurable and even partially uninsurable will be that way due to medical conditions brought about by advancing age or by a particular handicap.

For persons proved uninsurable or partially uninsurable and unable to pay their medical expenses (these are described in the Law as indigent uninsurable and partially uninsurable persons) a segregated fund is being set up in order to meet the medical expenses. Money for this fund is being collected from the insurance companies for every health insurance contract issued under the Health Insurance Law. Five dollars is collected each month for an individual and $10 for an individual with dependants.

The payment of inpatient benefits for medical treatment overseas is included, provided the person is referred for medical treatment by the Chief Medical Officer.

Persons assessed as indigent but insurable will continue to receive free medical treatment at a Government Health Care facility and will be referred overseas by the Chief Medical Officer for treatment when necessary until such time as the Government decides to take out health insurance or some other form of coverage for them.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Can the Honourable Minister say, in relation to medical treatment overseas, what is the total amount of unpaid bills, as at the most recent date available to him, outstanding under an advance account for medical expenses?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, I would not have that with me at this time, but I will undertake to get it to the Member.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: That is okay, if he can provide it to me in writing.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Can the Honourable Minister say if he has any idea of the number of people assessed to be indigent or uninsurable at this time?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Not at this time. The process is ongoing, but once this information is compiled I will share it.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Can the Honourable Minister explain the procedure followed when processing a patient, whether indigent or otherwise, upon arrival at the outpatient department in the hospital?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: If it is deemed they are not in a position to pay, they would be referred to the accounts department. If it is an indigent person, an assessment would be made by the social worker.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: As regards the treatment that would be offered in the case of an emergency, would a doctor be called on the scene to see that patient or would the diagnosis be made by a nurse in the outpatient department?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: It does not matter who the individual is, there is a triage system at the hospital. If that person is deemed in immediate need to be seen by a doctor, the payment is secondary. The primary cause at the hospital is to see that the patient is cared for. Once the person is stabilised we would deal with the monetary side of it.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: May I just perhaps explain to the Hon. Minister more clearly what I am trying to ascertain? If a patient walks into the George Town Hospital saying that he has fallen and believes that his arm or leg may be fractured, would a doctor be called, or would that diagnosis be made by the nurse? The reason I am asking is that it has been brought to my attention that a patient went into the hospital and the nurse told the patient to go back home and put her feet up, when she complained that she had a sprained or broken ankle. That patient then went to another doctor and found that she had a chipped bone in the ankle. That is the reason I am trying to obtain what proper procedure should be followed in such a case.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: I appreciate the Third Elected Member bringing this to my attention. This is not going to be tolerated at the hospital, and I would appreciate getting the details. The process when the person comes in, and especially in this situation, is that an X-ray should have been ordered and the doctor called in to determine what was there. But I appreciate that.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: This issue has been pressing for some time now and this question affords me the opportunity to bring it to the Minister's attention. Is the Minister in a position to say what was the rationale whereby somebody with dependants is charged $10 while an individual is charged a $5 surcharge to go into the fund to assist those who are uninsurable or find it difficult to obtain insurance?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: I think the driving reason behind this is that generally more than one person is referred to as a family, where the premium would be more than for an individual. And to make it more balanced, it would collect that amount from the family.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: The reason I am concerned is that in most jurisdictions these charges would be more lenient on the family, and the individual would be required to pay more by virtue of the fact that the individual would be in a better position. Someone with a family would have perhaps already been burdened with family expenses. So I am asking the Minister for an undertaking that consideration was given in arriving at this ratio. Some people have brought to my attention that this is unfair for persons with families, and individuals with little to no responsibilities are getting off.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: I am willing to take this on board. The only logic I saw was that most families are from three to four people when you do the average. I think that is how they arrived at that. I am willing to undertake and find out.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Is the Minister aware that people who are getting free medical here in the Islands are asked for substantial guarantees or collateral when they have to go overseas?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: The main driving force on this is that Government looks forward to having some security or collateral if a person has it available. In the event of a declared indigent (I think it is under the Poor Persons Law) who has no resources, Government is obligated to take care of that person. But if there is a piece of land or a house or something, once there is some security in place when that person dies, Government will have something to hold on to.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: I understand what the Minister is saying; however, the rationale behind free medical is that the people, whether they are veterans, or elderly, or handicapped, are people who are not able to pay medical here in the Islands. How, then, if they are not able to pay here, can they be expected to have such collateral for overseas? Maybe the Minister needs to look into it a little bit more and give us an undertaking that he will look at that aspect of the free medical. I would appreciate that.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Once again, that is a good observation. In the past, the only difference people are required to pay is the difference between the hospital room here and overseas. I have a feeling that once the new Health Insurance Law comes in this will be addressed. But I will talk with the Members about this.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: I wish to thank the Minister. The problem, if I can inform him, is that I know of several elderly people who upon approaching the officers here to go overseas faced that problem. Then they are running to Members of the Legislative Assembly, or somebody else. But that problem does exist with the elderly.

The Speaker: I think that has pretty well completed that question. We move on to question 95, standing in the name of the Elected Member for North Side.

QUESTION 95

No. 95: Mrs. Edna M. Moyle asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works whether Government has had any discussions with Cable & Wireless (CI) Ltd regarding the reduction of telephone rates subsequent to the concerns being aired by the public in the local newspaper.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Yes, Government and Cable & Wireless (CI) Ltd have been meeting for the past three years to arrive at a fair and reasonable rate re-balancing plan. It is expected that an announcement will be made later this year. However, as these discussions have involved Executive Council they are confidential as such.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say whether the Government utilised the services of a telecommunications expert in these discussions, and, if so, can he tell the House what credentials that person has?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: I have the telecommunications officer behind me. It is my understanding that he is a qualified telecommunication officer with the necessary degree which would facilitate what we need.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say whether these discussions were confined exclusively to rates, or did they carry over into other areas? When I say rates, were they confined to rates relating to telephone and faxes exclusively, or did they carry over into other areas such as the Internet, etc.?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: As is customary, when a company is in discussion we tend to discuss various things. Although we may come in to discuss telephones, it is possible that we might have strayed and discussed the Internet. As I pointed out, these were discussions at Executive Council level and I will make this all available to the House as soon as it is completed.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I am fully aware of the confidentiality that exists in Executive Council. However, in light of Government's undertaking for a more open and transparent Government, I wonder if the Hon. Minister is in a position to state whether or not he is aware of any initiative by Cable & Wireless to bring about a more equitable system, especially for people paying $50 or less for their telephone bills.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: That has been discussed. I will say that it was a concern during the discussions, but I would prefer not to elaborate on this at this time.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say why it has taken three years to arrive at this point? What was so tedious or arduous about the exercise that it had to take three years? Also, in the negotiations, has it been discussed that customers receive retroactive credit since these negotiations took three years?

Hon. John B. McLean: If it takes three years, four years or five years for us to come to something that will assist this country—and especially as the Member for George Town mentioned, the poor people—I think we need to do it that way. What we have to realise is that we are dealing with a company that has a franchise. And it is an agreement we must negotiate, and we have been negotiating. I think that from what we know of Cable & Wireless, they have continued to do well for our people here, especially in the line of training. Over the last year or so we have had greater investment. I think if it has taken us a while to negotiate we should just bear with it.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: The Hon. Minister said that during these discussions other matters were covered. I wonder if he could say if any discussion took place as to why, when someone now requests a line from Cable & Wireless, they have to bear the expense of an electrician to do the wiring, whereas before Cable & Wireless did everything. What is the reason behind this?

The Speaker: That is a bit outside the question. Can you answer, Hon. Minister?

Hon. John B. McLean: Mr. Speaker, I think it is far outside the question that was asked. If the lady Member would like me to supply that information to her, I certainly will.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: I just wanted to thank the Hon. Minister because I did say that I knew it was outside the question. But he did say that he had other discussions. That is why I was asking. But I thank him very much and I look forward to receiving information.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, the next question is No. 96, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 96

No. 96: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs to provide a list of those persons given 'permanent residence' and 'permanent residence with the right to work,' giving nationality and length of residence in these Islands since January 1993.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: A total of 325 (plus 313 dependants) were given permanent residence. A total of 256 persons (plus 187 dependants) were given permanent residence with the right to work, from 1993 to 1998.

Attached is a list of persons showing their length of residence in these Islands who have been given "permanent residence" and "permanent residence with the right to work."

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Member say if these residencies are awarded on any quota system?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: No, Mr. Speaker, there is no quota system for permanent residence.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Member say if the individuals who make up this list is a confidential list?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: The names are not published and the Member will note that I have marked the list of names "Confidential." If you haven't received it, certainly the Serjeant will be handing it out. I did say that it was being circulated for the benefit of Members of this Honourable House because a portion of the question asked for the length of time they were resident in the Islands before getting permanent residence. But I ask that we respect the fact that the names are not published. Thank you.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: I wonder if the Honourable Member can say what criteria is used in determining who qualifies for permanent residency with the right to work?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Normally the Board will look at whether or not the person has family connections, or the length of time the person has been resident in the Cayman Islands.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: I wonder if the Honourable Member can say whether or not the person's assets play any role in the decision. That is, land and a house.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: When dealing with applicants who are applying for permanent residence who are what is referred to of independent means (meaning that they are able to support themselves, they are not seeking to necessarily work here) the Board will look at their assets here in the Cayman Islands, or their ability to support themselves.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: I thank the Honourable Member for his answer, but the question I want to ask is whether or not he is aware of any decision being taken in regard to refusing the grant of becoming a resident with the right to work because the person did not have a house and land here of a certain value.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: I am not aware of the incident which the Honourable Member is asking about, but I will be happy to look into the matter. He, no doubt, can give me the information on another occasion and I will be happy to investigate the matter for him.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Member say if this list with the names of individuals includes both permanent residence and permanent residence with the right to work? If so, how can we differentiate between permanent residence, or permanent residence with the right to work? Is it simply a matter of how long the person has been here, where beyond a certain length of time that is usually with the right to work, and the shorter period would be ones with the just permanent residence?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: The list that has been circulated with the answer, regrettably, only includes permanent residence. There is a second list, and I apologise for that. I hope that would have been circulated. It should be available momentarily (it's just an oversight). That is only a section of the total.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: When we do get this list, as the Honourable First Official Member has advised, can he say up to what period of time in 1998 that list includes?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: I am advised that the information runs down to the day the question was passed over to Immigration. So it would be a couple of days before the start of this meeting.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: I would have to see the other list first. I wanted to ask a question because there seems to be someone who is not on the list—an individual I had heard was given permanent residency but is not on the list. If he is on the other list, I will not have to ask my question.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Member tell the House what criteria is being used to award permanent residency with the right to work?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Normally in considering an application for residence with the right to work, the Board will look at whether the person is already a work permit holder. Quite often a person is here as a work permit holder and then qualifies to apply for permanent residence, or wishes to apply for permanent residence with the right to work. There are times when a person will be granted permanent residence only, and then will come back and ask for permanent residence with the right to work. Those are the primary criteria used in dealing with this category.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: I just wanted to ask the Honourable First Official Member whether any application for the Dart family had been received and whether or not anyone in that family or with that name had been awarded permanent residency?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs said when he submitted the answer that he was not dealing with names. So, if he wishes to answer, he may. He specifically stated that the information was for the years of residence.

Hon. James M. Ryan: I may have to give that information in writing. I don't seem to have that information at my fingertips.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: I noticed that a considerable number of persons on this list have been resident in the islands, in one instance 32 years, some 24 years, some 25, 26, and so on—a significant number of years. My question to the Honourable First Official Member is, What is the procedure? Is it that these people have been here for that length of time and have just applied? Or have they had to apply more than once?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: The Member's question is very difficult to answer. I would hazard a guess to say that some of those who are shown to have been here for a number of years may have applied for Caymanian Status and not been successful and are probably now applying for permanent residence to give them some security of tenure. But I don't have all the information on that.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, I will entertain a motion for the suspension of Standing Order 23 (7) & (8). The Third Elected Member for George Town.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 23 (7) & (8)

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, I so move.

The Speaker: Do we have a seconder?

Mr. Roy Bodden: I second the motion.

The Speaker: The question is that Standing Order 23 (7) and (8) be suspended to enable Question Time to continue. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye...Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

Agreed. Standing Order 23(7) and (8) suspended.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 97, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 97

No. 97: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation whether Government has any intention of supporting the Canaan Land project.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: The Government has already supported the Canaan Land project with a grant of $80,000 over two years and also by waiver of import duty. Any further financial support is now dependent upon Canaan Land Home of Grand Cayman submitting to the Ministry of Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation a written proposal accompanied by their financial plan.

I am prepared to put forward a proposal to the Governor-in-Council for further financial assistance to Canaan Land Home of Grand Cayman, once their written proposal is received and is acceptable to both parties.

And for the information of this Honourable House, I do have a meeting scheduled with them on the 16th of this month.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: In view of the reported difficulties the Honourable Minister is now experiencing in establishing a similar home in Breakers, and in the interest of cost-effectiveness could the Minister explain why a greater attempt is not made in trying to combine the project to avoid the extra expense of pushing for the second rehabilitation facility?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: The Ministry has met with the executive committee of Canaan Land on a number of occasions. As I said, I will be meeting with them on the 16th of this month. Until they change their approach as was brought to my attention in a letter from the chairman, which reads, "We are sure you are acquainted with our one year programme to help young men to become responsible citizens again.” As the Ministry responsible for Drug Prevention and Rehabilitation, we have to look at a comprehensive an overall approach to providing rehabilitation not just for a specific age group. In the future we can dovetail this in to where it can be combined with what we want. But until we have the meeting, I would not be able to make a commitment.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Can the Honourable Minister say if the Government will be giving any consideration to assist the Canaan Land project with their administration? This facility is in my district and there are times I have been confronted by inmates (as they call them) in the public begging. I do not think this is the type of thing that should exist in such a facility.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: I appreciate the Member bringing that to my attention. In my discussions with Canaan Land, I can see a partnership in the future. For us to be successful it has to not only be a Government initiative, it has to be a community initiative. This is what we hope to be able to provide for our people.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: From all accounts it appears that Canaan Land is providing a very admirable service. In view of this I wonder if the Honourable Minister can explain if any practical approach has been made to forge the centralisation of the programme into one at Canaan Land. In other words, has he approached the administration of Canaan Land to try to work out an arrangement whereby the Government could cooperate with the Canaan Land project rather than trying to splinter the efforts now being made in the rehabilitation programme of drug offenders?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: As I said before, in the past we have attempted to form this bond. We asked for certain positions to be put forward. We will now go forward again, as I promised, in this meeting. In our Drug Abuse and Rehabilitation Strategic Plan the collaboration of private and Government sectors is very much advocated and we look forward to forming a partnership with them as this problem is too big for just Government to deal with.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries the next question is No. 98, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 98

No. 98: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation whether the Forensic Laboratory at the George Town Hospital is operational at this time.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: The Forensic Laboratory at the George Town Hospital is not operational at this time. Equipment donated by the United Nations International Drug Control Programme (UNDCP) has now been unpacked and installation is expected to be completed this month. In order to make the Laboratory a fully functioning forensic drug testing facility, the Health Services Department has purchased additional equipment. Once this arrives on the Island it too, will be installed, hopefully as early as this month.

Once the necessary equipment is installed and the Forensic Scientist arrives, possibly in September, there will be a short trial period before the Laboratory becomes fully operational.

SUPPLEMENTARY

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say who will assume the administrative and management responsibility for the lab? Will it be the Ministry of Health, or some other Ministry?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: At the present time, and in the foreseeable future, it is the Ministry of Health.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries the next question is No. 99, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 99

No. 99: Miss Heather D. Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works to give a progress report on the Bodden Town Post Office.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: The building is being redesigned to accommodate the requirements of the Department of Licensing and satisfy the public's need in that direction.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Miss Heather D. Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say why there is a change in the design?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: The new facility will allow for ease of expansion, as I understand, and will facilitate the wishes of Government and the public to allow various other services to be accommodated.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Miss Heather D. Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say what the estimated cost of the facility is?

Hon. John B. McLean: It is estimated that it will be between $450,000 to $460,000.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Can the Honourable Minister say if the Department of Licensing is being moved from George Town, or is this a section of the Department that will be moved to the eastern districts?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: The lady Member is aware that for a long time we were trying to give other services in the various districts. We indicated for some time now that the services would have to be done through the post office. So we are talking about licensing of vehicles, collection of other things through, perhaps, private companies, and that sort of thing. So it is the same thing as we discussed a long time ago.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: I know that these discussions have taken place since 1993. I am aware of that. But because the answer stated it was "being redesigned to accommodate the requirements of the Department of Licensing and to satisfy the public's need in that direction" (I assume in the direction of the Department of Licensing), that is why I asked my question. Is this going to be provided for the entire eastern district or just for the district of Bodden Town?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: We are hoping, once funds are available, that we can give the services to each district. I have said this before. As a matter of fact, it will not only be here, we are hoping that we can extend all of the services to each district so this one is a post office that is being designed now. The reason we are trying to improve it is the same reason we are trying to upgrade the other ones.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: I would like to thank the Honourable Minister for his reply. But I wonder if he could give me some time frame as to when this service will be offered at the North Side Post Office since we have one now built?

Hon. John B. McLean: We are hoping that we will be able to put the services in all districts, as I said, with the funds available to me for the Postal Department. We are hoping that we can bring them on line as soon as we have all of the equipment in place. I cannot give the lady Member a specific time, but definitely we are trying to bring all of the services on line in the various districts.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Miss Heather D. Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say what the expected commencement date is for the new Bodden Town Post Office?

Hon. John B. McLean: It is my understanding that we were hoping to commence the latter part of 1998.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries that concludes Question Time for this morning. I think this will be a convenient time for the morning break.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.15 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED 11.53 AM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Item number 3 on today's Order paper, Other Business, Private Members' Motions, continuation of debate on Private Member's Motion No. 12/98, Freedom of Information Act, the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town continuing.

OTHER BUSINESS

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 12/98

FREEDOM OF INFORMATION/OFFICIAL INFORMATION ACT

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. When we adjourned, I had been making some points dealing with the administration and organisational structure of how requests could be made, drawing some comparisons on what is the situation in other countries. I wish to move on now to briefly discuss the relevance and necessity of this freedom of information as it affects and impinges upon the workings of the bureaucracy and the society.

I want to start by saying that it is my belief that such freedom of information, access to information, bodes well for the proper functioning of a democracy in that citizens can have knowledge about the structure and contents of the public sector's activities. There can be, perhaps, no more relevant observation than the situation that exists here in these hallowed Chambers. The Minister of Education quite frequently complains about the number of questions asked in Parliament. The reason these questions are asked in such numbers, and why it sometimes seems to be a tedious exercise, is that, unfortunately, the information requested can be had from no other source. I would foresee, when we get this Freedom of Information Act, Question Time in this Honourable Parliament taking an entirely different direction.

For one thing, I will be so bold and presumptuous as to suggest that there would be far fewer questions, and they would very well be limited, not to the policies of the Government (which one would assume would be public for all and sundry), but to actions taken by the Government in certain specific regards. That being the case, no self-respecting Member of Parliament would dare waste the Chamber's time seeking information that could best be procured through other sources. I would hate to be at the other end of your stare if I came to ask a question that was purely rhetorical, given those circumstances. I would expect an immediate and obvious improvement in the functioning of Parliament, and then no Minister would be able to justifiably complain about the numbers of questions, or tedious questions.

I want to use this to get into a slightly more complex area. I want to use this to discuss the relationship between those persons who are requested to provide the information, and those persons requesting the information. As the situation now stands, how does the citizen get information about the runnings of Government? How does the citizen get information about the operations of our bureaucracy? In many cases, the questions we ask—certainly, many of the questions I ask—are as a result of approaches made by constituents or the wider community. They are questions for which I as a representative do not necessarily have the answer. And heaven knows, I am really not interested in some of the questions personally, per se; but as a result of requests, and as a result of my role as representative of my people, I have to put forward these questions. It is only through this avenue that the persons I represent and the wider public can gain this knowledge.

The reason that is so is two- or three-fold. First, in many of these instances, the information could be obtained by a simple phone call to the civil servant in the portfolio, department or ministry. Sometimes the relationship is such that this is the route taken. I have certainly always had a good rapport with the First Official Member and his Ministry, and many of these problems and questions are handled through a simple phone call. But that is not the case when the subject or the question takes on a political colour, because the political representatives and the political directorate do not feel as secure as perhaps the Official Members, hence the relationship takes a different tinge. I would not expect that any Permanent Secretary or Assistant Secretary would want to put himself in a position in which his Minister thinks he is giving out information that could be used against the Minister, or that may be inimical to the interests of the Minister. So in those cases, the route usually taken to procure that information is through a question to Parliament.

In such dealings, the Member involved, the bureaucrat involved, has to make three considerations. He has to say, if approached with a request for information under the system as it stands now, 'What is my professional responsibility? Will I be endangering myself? Will I be breaching the General Orders? Will I be breaching the Civil Service Regulations if I give this answer to Roy Bodden?' A hypothetical case. He may not be breaching the Regulations! He may be so secure, knowledgeable or experienced that he is sure he is not breaching the General Orders or any regulations of confidentiality by giving me this answer. So, professionally, he is safe.

Now, politically he has to ask himself another question. 'Politically, is it expedient for me to give this information to the inquirer?' It may not be! He says, 'Well, while I cannot be charged with any breach of civil service confidentiality, if I give this answer it will not be good for my political health, because the Minister or politician under whom I work may feel I have betrayed his interests by giving his rival, or by giving this answer to the Opposition.' So professionally he is correct, but personally and politically, he is in a quandary.

The final question he would have to ask himself is personally. 'What is my disposition?' He may be perfectly secure on the first two. 'Personally, what is my disposition? Do I want to give him this answer? Do I want to provide this information to him? Or am I putting myself in a position in which he can use this information, not only to make my Minister look bad, but also to make me look bad.' So as it stands now, persons from whom certain information is requested are in a real quandary, and would have to ask themselves a triad of questions, and would have to be satisfied that on all three questions they are safe.

However, a Freedom of Information Act or Law removes this triad of questions and there is a simple solution! The information is there for all who care to access it. It has nothing to do with my professional position. It does not impinge upon any breach of the General Orders I may make. I cannot be victimised or punished by any politician who may take a purely political slant to my providing the answer. And personally, I am relieved of any conscience call or any quandary of how it might eventually affect my position as a civil servant. So it immediately clears up and removes any cloud hanging over any individual, and it makes the functioning of the bureaucracy much more efficient.

I also want to stress that it is a much more efficient system in that it allows the average citizen to access and receive more information than probably is presently available. Mr. Speaker, you will very well realise that even in Question Time we are limited by the number of supplementary questions we can ask. We are limited for more reasons than one. There is a time constraint as well as other Members have questions to ask. Freedom of information removes those limitations.

Also, it is efficient. It allows the inquirer to go right to the information he or she wishes. Sometimes when we ask questions in this House we have to take a circuitous approach. We ask a substantive question, but that is sometimes nowhere near the information we are seeking. We have to rely on supplementary questions to bring out. It may take four or five—and Mr. Speaker, you well know, depending on the person asking, that sometimes it takes ten or fifteen. It tries your patience and you remind us every so often that you will allow only two or three. Heaven knows I have been caught in that position, when you tell me, ‘You will ask one more,’ and I still have not obtained my information!

So, having freedom of information, or direct access to information is certainly a much more efficient system. It enables the mass media—and I am sure that the journalists who sit in the Parliament will greatly appreciate it also, because it gives them a more direct access. It makes their work, for want of a better expression, much easier. Then perhaps the journalists can choose the times they wish to come to the Parliament. When information is available from other sources, they may not need to spend all these hours here listening to tedious and boring speakers, like me, and their time could better be spent accessing the information directly from the relevant offices. It bodes well for the functioning of the bureaucracy, and for the enlightenment and informing of the society and citizens all round.

I realise—and I do not know how many people have thought of this—that one of the problems we may have at the beginning is dealing with frivolous, vexatious or trivial requests. That is why I stressed that one of the things the Government will have to do, one of the approaches the Government will need to take, is to embark upon a campaign to educate and inform the people how best to access this information. That, I suppose, is going to be primarily the responsibility of the ombudsman or commissioner of information. One of the things I know we are going to have to confront early is situations in which the information has already been supplied and there is no more information available; also, the situation in which the information requested is of a trivial nature. I have already stressed the point that certain types of information will be precluded.

I also notice—and this is a matter I have to discuss with my colleagues here on the Backbench—in other jurisdictions, the ultimate protection infringement on people’s privacy is made through what is called the ‘Privacy Act’ or a ‘Data Procurement Act.’ I would suggest that we give this some consideration. When the opportunity avails itself (I hope not too long from now) I am going to discuss with my colleagues whether it may not now be necessary to think of bringing such an Act as the balance to this Act in Parliament. Let me emphasise, freedom of information has nothing to do with personal information. No one should, as a result of this Law, be able to get information personal to me, or to you, Mr. Speaker, or to any other Member of the Parliament. That means they should not be able to access my medical records, my bank records, or any other information personal to me. I believe, from where I sit, the ultimate guardian and absolute guarantee that these kinds of attempts are not made is for us to craft a law saying this kind of information is precluded, and that we have a special law ensuring that this information cannot be had.

When the opportunity avails itself, I shall take that to discuss with my colleagues, because I am one of those people who feels safer when I have on the belt and the bracers. Then I am certain the trousers won’t drop off!

It also, as I have stressed cursorily, removes the probability of bureaucrats and civil servants having to worry about inappropriate conduct. It also—because we frequently hear about a rumour sprung on the marl road—removes the effect of all these things, leakage of information. This is particularly so during an election year. Sometimes people do these things out of a sense of spitefulness, mischievousness and wilfulness. A Freedom of Information Act will make all these kinds of behaviours unattractive. Obviously, if one hears a rumour pertaining to a certain action on the part of the Government or Opposition, or on the part of any Ministry or Department, under this Freedom of Information one could access it quite easily. It will make certain types of rumours and certain kinds of mischievous behaviour unattractive—not only unattractive, it might make them downright dangerous for persons who insist on this kind of irresponsibility and mischievousness.

I like to be abreast and aware of what has been happening. I have been following the Caymanian Compass for quite a long time, and I was particularly interested in the position of the Caymanian Compass on freedom of information. I have here five editorials I have selectively saved, going back to 15 December 1997, in which the Caymanian Compass spoke about freedom of information. With your indulgence, Mr. Speaker, I want to briefly refer to these. In the opening, the editorial said, “With the Westminster system of government, Cayman has also inherited officialdom’s pervasive ‘culture of secrecy.’” It went on to say, “As Britain is in the process of demolishing that culture . . .” we in Cayman ought to watch carefully so that we can keep abreast. They suggested we embrace the new concept and put it into effect here.

Then, on 20 January 1998, the Caymanian Compass, in the editorial, went on to speak about information to the public. This was in regard to the Dependent Territories Prison Advisors Report. The editorial ended up by saying, “It is time that government, particularly this one whose members campaigned for more openness before the landslide election of 1992, be bold enough to release reports as soon as they are made.” Again, on 23 March 1998, the Caymanian Compass editorialised freedom of information, and this was in relation to the precarious press freedom in some parts of the Americas and the Caribbean. It went on, in the penultimate paragraph, to say, “A people cannot be free unless there is a free flow of information, a free press and unfettered freedom of expression.”

Mr. Speaker, I presume I have your continued indulgence, as on 3 April 1998, the Caymanian Compass again editorialised. This time they called it, ‘Public Information.’ This was in relation to the announcement in Finance Committee that the Cayman Islands Government had purchased another aircraft. This is particularly thought-provoking. I must admit that I did not view the announcement with the same level of perception with which the Compass viewed it. The Compass said, in the second paragraph, “It was previously known that there were plans to purchase a second aircraft for the national flag carrier, and Finance Committee had approved a government guarantee for funds for the purpose. Yet the fact that this has been accomplished emanated in [the] Legislative Assembly during Question Time when one of the MLAs sought information on the airline’s indebtedness. The MLAs did not immediately hone in onto this matter . . . This is not the only instance where Government has been lagging in its duty to inform the public of significant events.” The editorial ended by saying, “Unless the public is well informed on all aspects of life, all these efforts are bound to fall short.” Mr. Speaker, that is absolutely timely and the truth.

The last editorial to which I wish to refer in this instance is that of Wednesday, 20 May 1998, when the Caymanian Compass chose the editorial, ‘Freedom of Information.’ It began by saying, “When Opposition MLAs will bring a motion for the introduction of a Freedom of Information Law in the next Legislative Assembly meeting, the government members of the House should resist the temptation to automatically reject it just because it comes from the opposition.” That editorial made reference to the British White Paper, but ended by saying, “A modern democratic society can function at its optimum level only with a well informed citizenry. It is only in an atmosphere of open government and with a free flow of information that useful public discussion can be held and that relevant input can be offered by the public.”

Mr. Speaker, those of us in favour of this motion have no less an auspicious ally than the Caymanian Compass in our quest for freedom of information and complete openness.

I want to say now that many years before the existence of the Caymanian Compass, or indeed, any of us proponents of this motion, a now very famous American, James Madison, had this to say about freedom of information: “A popular government without popular information or the means of acquiring it is but a prologue to a farce or a tragedy, or perhaps to both.”

I am not ready to conclude yet, although I am moving in that direction. This call for freedom of information is—and I use this word advisedly—radical, because it will significantly alter the balance between the State and the individual. It will significantly alter the balance between the Government and the public sector; between the Government, the Backbench MLAs and their constituents. It will radically change the way public servants think about the status of official information, about their rights as individuals and public servants, and about their role and responsibility in the performance of their duties.

On the eve of the twenty-first century, I am convinced that this is a good direction in which to move; but I would not be so naive as to think that this attempt may not have its detractors. In the absence of the Government rising to state its disposition, I have to be very cautious. In 1995 when the person speaking got up to move that the Cayman Islands consider the Fiscal Responsibility Act of New Zealand with a view to adopting it, the Minister responding for the Government—the Minister for Education—took the whole debate out of context and came up with all kinds of bunkum about New Zealand being an independent country, and how we were going independent; and that he was not frustrated with the politics of the country, that he wasn’t a loser and he wasn’t defunct.

I have to say that I am proud that I have always taken my responsibilities in this Parliament seriously. One only has to look at my tenure to know that I have always had utmost respect for my colleagues and never, Mr. Speaker, NEVER have I brought anything here which could be described as less than responsible. I am reminded that the first motion calling for an ombudsman was brought by the Member speaking, Private Member’s Motion No. 5/89. We now have provision for an ombudsman in our Constitution!

I was the foremost—and remain the foremost—advocate in our having a written charter and bill of rights. I do not want to be self-righteous, and I really do not want to embark on any quarrel, but as I was thinking this morning about what I would say at this time I want to use this opportunity to say this: When I came here, I did not come here out of any frustration! And I do not care what opinion the Minister of Education holds, he cannot put me down. I am a success! The mere fact that I am here and he could not stop me from coming here means I am successful!

And Mr. Speaker, let me tell you how I grew up. My paternal grandfather, who was the patriarch of my family, taught me that I would be a failure if I passed through a situation, if I spent time in a position, and did not leave that position better than I found it. I am not ready to sing my swansong yet. But I want to say that when I leave this Parliament the record of the legislation I have tried to introduce . . . anyone who is sensible will realise that I had the intention of leaving my country in a much better position than I found it. And Mr. Speaker, I have no apologies, and no one but no one can put me down!

I hope, for many reasons, that the Government will see fit to accept this motion, because I see it as complementary to other streamlining we are trying to do. I see it as complementary to the direction upon which we have embarked in streamlining the way we regulate, administer and manage our financial affairs. I want to stress that while openness does not begin and end with a Freedom of Information Act, there are many things we can learn, particularly from those countries with more experience in this kind of legislation than we have. I think, even if I have to say so myself, this is a good legacy for us to embark upon.

I thank the seconder, and I would only say that I am pleased and proud to be associated with the Backbenchers, in whose company I find myself now. We would have brought this motion some time ago, but we deferred to the First Elected Member for George Town, who requested we wait until he returned from New Zealand. Mr. Speaker, it is a delay which we have greatly benefited from. I commend the motion to the Honourable House, and hope all Honourable Members, my good friend, the Minister of Education included, will see fit to support the motion. My Honourable colleague—I use ‘friend’ but I wanted to say ‘colleague’—not that he is not a friend, but my Honourable colleague, the Minister of Education. I hope he will see fit as well to support the motion. Thank you, Sir.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member.

Hon. James M. Ryan: I rise to offer my contribution to Private Member’s Motion No. 12/98, entitled, Freedom of Information/Official Information Act.

The original motion is calling upon the Cayman Islands’ Legislative Assembly to enact a Freedom of Information Law similar to that proposed in the United Kingdom’s Freedom of Information White Paper. The second resolve section asks, “THAT a Select Committee of the whole House be convened to determine the parameters of such legislation, after public input.” This resolve was amended to include matters relating to statutory boards.

Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to accept this motion on behalf of the Government. I believe that there is a difference between freedom of information and the preservation of confidentiality where disclosure would not be in the public interest. The mover very ably brought out the fact that there would be some issues which would have to remain confidential in the interest of national security and good governance. I believe for too long the veil of secrecy has surrounded certain matters in Government simply because this is the way it has been done for the past thirty or forty years. However, we have seen a move towards more open Government since the beginning of the 1990s when the proceedings of Finance Committee were made public. Ten years before that time it would have been almost unthinkable for those proceedings to be open to the public or broadcast nationally.

It is a well known fact that when secrecy surrounds an issue—particularly an issue that attracts national attention, and no information or little information is forth coming—the rumour mill starts churning out its own version of misinformation. I believe it is high time that we do something about this problem wherever possible.

Let me hasten to say that a balance will have to be struck as to what information needs to remain confidential, and information that can be immediately made available to the public. But I believe that a lot of information that is confidential initially, can perhaps be released to the public after a period of time has elapsed. In recent times we have seen the United States of America de-classify information that was highly classified originally, but it is no longer necessary for the information to remain in that mode.

When I joined the Civil Service almost 33 years ago, the General Orders were a hallowed document that Civil Servants mostly only heard about but rarely saw. Today it is every civil servant's right to see the General Orders and, indeed, be fully acquainted with them. So I think we have made some small steps toward being more open over time. I expect that as we work through this motion in Select Committee, we will find that there are some matters pertaining to the statutory boards that will have to be dealt with behind closed doors. Again, the mover alluded to this fact. However, these issues can be addressed at that time.

The White Paper put out by the United Kingdom entitled "Your Right to Know—the Government's Proposal for a Freedom of Information Act" is a very comprehensive document. I will only touch on one or two subheadings. It looks at issues such as the scope of the Act and who it will cover, it also looks at who the Act will not cover, what the Freedom of Information Act is intended to do, the right to Access what the Freedom of Information Act is not intended to do, the duties, published information, and so forth. This will be a very useful reference document when we get started, and no doubt all Honourable Members will have a chance to read this through in its entirety before we begin.

So, I believe that this is a good motion. I don't think I need to go any further. There will be ample opportunity for each of us to express our views in Select Committee. Accordingly, I offer the motion my full support.

The Speaker: The motion is open for debate. Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause) We have approximately nine minutes until the luncheon break. What is the wish of the House? (Pause)

We shall suspend until 2.15 PM.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.36 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.40 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Debate continues on Private Member's Motion No. 12/98. Does any other Member wish to speak? The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I would like, in voicing my support for this motion calling for an official information law, to say I have certainly advocated the institution of such a law, because if information is power, then access to information must be access to power. In a democracy, the power should be with the people. The power cannot be with the people if the government elected by them continues to monopolise the information it uses to guide the society. This motion calls for openness and trust, which are very necessary in this country, rather than secretive veils. Our strategies should be based on openness and trust. There is too much in this country that has been hidden behind the veil of secrecy for too long, and it is great indeed to know that all Members of this Honourable House have accepted the challenge to come into committee to form a law that will help us give the people a greater ownership of the information that belongs to the people, and the power that belongs to the people. I congratulate the mover and seconder.

I hope it will not be the result here that we pass so many Private Member's Motions that all of them die someplace because of the lack of enthusiasm to see them become an integrated part of the system. As Ms. Ruth Richardson very ably said, there is a need for us to integrate all of the reviews taking place at this moment. We have to come to a systematic understanding of what changes are necessary, what alterations are necessary at this point, and we must have a focus in mind. We must have an overview that enables us to deal, not just with the symptoms of the problems, but with the roots of the problems.

I believe the need for us to be able to provide information freely in this society, at least information not marked as confidential—because this bill is not to affect the very important concept of confidentiality, which is so essential to our economic well-being. No one would ever want to do anything that would adversely affect our financial institutions, but our financial institutions will definitely be threatened later if government is not made more accountable to the people. That is the potential danger in this country, that without information being fed back to the people, without the people being involved in the arrangement of democracy as participants, and to truly be participants they must participate in the decision-making process. To do that, they have to have sensible and reliable information made available to them. It seems almost, at this time, a common-sense principle that an Official Information Act is a necessary ingredient in any democratic society. Too often we tend to think we are neither here nor there. In other words, we are not really a democratic society; that there are other persons and institutions responsible for the decision-making processes, that we as a people are not accountable for our own destiny; that we, as a Legislative Assembly, are not responsible for the job of leading the country; that other persons in other institutions are responsible. For this reason, we tend to pass the buck in such a way that no accountability is possible in this system.

I would like to say it is true that many countries have enacted legislation to make transparency more possible. The United Kingdom is not necessarily the best example of a country where transparency is paramount, because it is a type of system that has not necessarily evolved with the same type of experiments in democracy and freedom as in Switzerland, for instance, and the republics formed in the 1800s, as in the case of the United States where paramount in their Constitution is the concept of freedom of the press, which means, in fact, freedom of information, and the press having access to this type of information.

So it is true that if we are going to really use examples of the directions in which we are now to go, we have to move away from the more, let us say, archaic type of militaristic concept of the State, and the functions of the State. As long as we define the functions of the State as being almost charged with the ruling and control of the people, rather than obeying the will of the people, we will continue to believe the State should have prerogatives that the people themselves have not given the State, or that the people themselves should not have.

Let me conclude by saying it is purposeful, at this point especially, to give the people the idea that decisions of Government can be laid on the Table of this Honourable House; that Government does not have to do anything that should interfere with the basic freedoms of the people; and if individuals and Government conduct themselves in such a manner as not to interfere in the basic freedoms and rights of the people, Government should not have any problem in disclosing records of its decisions to the people, on whose behalf it makes those decisions.

Government should never become so empowered with its own self-importance that it believes it is there without the will of the people, that it should know things that the people themselves are not capable of knowing. That concept, that elitist concept, defeats the very nature of democracy, democracy being a system motivated and propelled by the people, to supply the needs, desires and wishes of the people, and not of any politically established class or groups of people. Bureaucrats should never come to the point to believe that somehow their protection, their security is more important than that of the people. I think we have again done something in this Legislative Assembly that is historical. It is of historic importance, when we come to realise that the people with whom we share power should now be allowed to share the information that is the basis of that power. Thank you very much.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Mr. Speaker, as the seconder of this most important motion, I do not think I have to say I rise to lend my support. In fact, from the beginning, I wish to go a little further, because I rise not only to support the motion before us, but also to challenge the Government. The challenge I wish to issue immediately has just been talked about by the previous speaker, but I think sometimes repetition bears emphasis. I am referring to the fact that while the Government has accepted the motion as amended, the timing of the legislation is going to be very important. My challenge to the Government is to get on with it immediately.

If the truth be known—and we can start to practice freedom of information right now as I speak—there are individuals in the Government system who are quite capable of drafting the necessary legislation. Before I start to deal with the merits of the motion, let me say that my wish—and I believe it is safe comment to say it is the wish of the Backbench—is that as soon as a select committee can meet (that is, a select committee of the entire House) . . . I think it is obvious who the chairman should be. I do not think anyone will have a problem with that—but if the Government is so minded, draft legislation could be discussed by that select committee in a very short period of time.

I say that against the background of the reform strategy being put in place presently. We have Mrs. Ruth Richardson with us once again. I think it has been basically agreed that the reform strategy has three parts to it: One is the public service reform strategy; second is the financial reform strategy; and of course, the third and very vital one is the freedom of information strategy. I take the view that all the good things we have been talking about in the recent past, and all the hopes and aspirations of us legislators and the public sector, will not materialise unless we have the legislation of freedom of information in place. I hope and trust that the Government will see fit to act immediately on this motion.

In the first 'Resolved' section of the motion, where it reads, "Be it resolved that the Cayman Islands Legislative Assembly enact a freedom of information law similar to that proposed in the United Kingdom's Freedom of Information White Paper." In that 'Resolved' section, it becomes necessary for me to refer to the White Paper that has been produced in the United Kingdom on freedom of information. One might also be minded to say that since Government has accepted the motion, Why don't we just get on with it? Why do we have to talk about it? Not just to be seen to be exercising my jowls, but I firmly believe that there are some important aspects which refer to the motion, which need to be aired. If all of us are not with the same mindset regarding the position we take about freedom of information, perhaps we will have problems seeing it become a reality.

The mover, very eloquently as usual, outlined much of the argument proving the need for such legislation. I am sure in his wind-up he will deal with some other aspects. But while I may seem at some points going down the same road as the mover, I believe we need to paint the picture as crystal clear as possible, so there can be no hang-ups in the minds of anyone regarding the importance of this topic.

In the first part of the introduction of the White Paper, it is said—and I think this is a very powerful statement—“Unnecessary secrecy in government leads to arrogance in governance and defective decision-making. The perception of excessive secrecy has become a corrosive influence in the decline of public confidence in government. Moreover, the climate of public opinion has changed. People expect much greater openness and accountability from government than they used to.” If we—and as I trace other documents we will see the correlation—really look at what we are trying to achieve with such legislation, the two key words are used in the statement I just read, and that is ‘openness’ and ‘accountability.’ Let me discuss that for a few minutes.

We are used to—and only God knows how we got used to it—the political power struggle to be engaged on a front whereby, as has been said in this Chamber before, to the victor go the spoils. That has to change. The government of the day should not—and if I have anything to do with it in future, will not—hold a monopoly on information. It has been used in the past, that is information and facts, to seek political advantage. Today, this country is still paying the price for that type of action. Governments have come and governments have gone, and a government still remains which, as far as I am concerned, lives under the principle that if it knows more than the Backbench knows, and it can do without divulging that information to the Backbench, it is two steps ahead in the race. That is the thought process.

It is boiling to the point of being sickening. It must stop. I am glad the Government has accepted the motion. I am not sure if some parts of the Government fully realise what they have done, but thank God for this country that they have taken the course they have. I guess when I am through someone else will be enticed to speak, but that is all right with me. Let me be very clear. At this time, dividing the official arm of Government from the elected arm of Government, I pull no punches. As far as I am concerned, the official arm of Government has the gentlemen in the game. I am only sorry that at this point I cannot single out from the elected arm of Government whom I want to—not because I am afraid to, but because we are out for a peaceful afternoon. But it would take nothing off me to do it, believe you me.

We have a new lady Minister. And I will tell her, you and the world, that I feel sorry for her. I hope she survives. Perhaps with the new legislation she will survive. But not to get personal, let me get on with the meat of my debate.

For too long the government of the day has lived with the thought that having information and being able to hold it for ransom from the rest of us gave them an edge. It is purely the politics that have evolved. Like most people, a lot of them are not prepared to think for themselves and to be innovative, so they just fall in line whenever they get there. There are some of us here who, given the opportunity, will not allow that to happen to us.

If we go back to this White Paper to try to establish and understand the real purpose of calling for this legislation, we see that it says, “The purpose of the legislation will be to encourage more open and accountable government by establishing a general statutory right of access to official records and information.” I like to get back to what I live in. The difference with me nowadays is that while it may be easy to sidestep certain issues, I have found in this Legislative Assembly that the more we sidestep issues to keep the peace, the more they hide it from us. No more of that! If we have to confront it on a daily basis head on, so be it! Something is going to give.

Half of the time spent doing the country’s business—and the Backbench is continually blamed for it—is trying to get information, trying to arrive at the truth, trying to be responsible to the people who elected us so that they may be informed. The mover mentioned that. I wish to reiterate it. So let the Government not even think—much less dare say ever again—that the Backbench with all these questions and all these motions is bogging them down and they cannot get on with the country’s business. Let not that utterance be heard! The real truth is, with this type of legislation having safe passage through this House, much of the business of this country will speed up; many of the people’s requests will be dealt with much quicker. You know why, Mr. Speaker? I will tell you. Because those who deal with the people of this country personally, and who use their positions to hold things up, will not be able to hold them up any more. I do not care what the decision is! And this very day someone stopped me on the road asking me about an application in a certain situation, saying how many months it was and they had not heard a word about it.

I contend, until it is proven different, that much of that is done under a shroud of secrecy because they know they can do it. If I am wrong, anyone can prove me wrong, and I will accept it. But I believe what I am saying—I have seen too much of it not to believe it. You get up on the floor of this House and ask specific questions, and because there is no need to fulfill the request, sometimes they just look you straight in the eye and will not say a word! They look like mummies! Representation of the people must not be in that form. It must not be. The way the system must run—let me stop one second before I get to how the system must run.

You know what else really has to stop? This bunch of people and their extensions outside this House getting together deciding who they do not like, and who they are not going to deal with, and who they will not be able to help in certain situations because they are not on their side. Sickening! And they go further with their extensions, and say, ‘You know what? That one and you having a little trouble? That’s all right, we are going to fix him good!’ Sure they say it! And they do it! Of course they do it!

You know, there is an old saying, ‘Nothing before its time.’ God willing, I will be able, wherever I stay, whether here or on the outside, . . . I am so proud that my country is going to be able to see that those perverted minds (because I know they will not fall in line) will fall away. Naturally they will fall away and wither. No longer will this country have to put up with knowing what is happening and not being able to do anything about it.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Then maybe it will be their turn to be defunct!

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: The way the system should work, as I was about to say a few minutes ago, is that the marriage between the chain of command in the public sector and the movers and shakers and employers and employees in the private sector, the combination of all of that should be what we call 'joint ownership.' Everyone should be happy and willing and wanting to buy into ownership in the country. It cannot happen the way it is working now.

Many people in the private sector refuse to even want to co-operate as community-minded individuals, because they feel oppression through the government system. I live with it daily! I will go to an individual who is a well-meaning individual and say, 'Listen, we want to do such and such in a little area. We know you are able to provide certain things.' Sometimes it is just time and expertise. 'We would like to get it done. Would you assist us, so we can get this little place fixed up for the children?'—or something like that.

You know what they tell me? I am going to tell you what they tell me. 'My son, I would love to do it, but when I think of such and such an application I had, and such another application I had, and how I see them holding me down, I don't wan' do nuttin' for nobody!' That is what they tell me! I am not saying they are right, Mr. Speaker, but the fact of the matter is, we should not give them an excuse to think like that. No government in the world should operate like that—much less us! And we pride ourselves on being so affluent and forward-thinking—the wonderboys of the Caribbean! Yeah? That is what we go about telling people! And then we are so antiquated, biased, vindictive—

Mr. Roy Bodden: Preach, brother!

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: That is how we use the government system, to operate and skin up our teeth, and know we are able to do it.

If I go on further into the White Paper of the United Kingdom that deals with freedom of information, I read, "The objective of the Act is to help open up public authorities and other organisations which carry out public functions. First, it will empower people, giving everyone a right of access to information that they want to see. Secondly, it will place statutory duties on the bodies covered by the Act to make certain information publicly available as a matter of course." That means when John Brown falls out of favour with the government by whatever means (I will not even bother to get into how that can happen, because sometimes they just wake up in the morning and don't like you!), once we have this legislation properly in place, when applications are made through the various boards, and their extensions and cronies who are part and parcel of the boards cannot get a message saying, 'Listen, this is coming. Don't help it.' . . . because everyone will have access to the information, what the result of the application is, and why the decision was made.

Mr. Speaker, you are looking at me intently because you are on the Central Planning Authority. But I will not say anything more about that. We have been there.

If it seems like I am a bit rough this afternoon, let me explain why. I am 44 years old. I have been in this Honourable House nearly six years. But for a good ten years before that, I was exposed to the way the system works. And while I might be taking shots at the existing Government today, let them understand clearly that it is only because it is they who are here now. There have been others before—some who are here today were part of those others before too and never change. But there were some others who are not here. I do not have any excuse for them either.

But you see, sometimes when you live with things for so long and you really get an opportunity, because you see the possibility of it changing for the better, it is hard to just clap hands and not say anything more about it. It is difficult.

The government we want to see is one that does not make decisions based on personalities, but a government that makes decisions based on the merits of the given circumstances. And while no government will be perfect, and no law will be perfect, it is at least commendable if we can strive to make the least amount of innocents suffer for the guilty. That is another thing that is happening too much now. Not to be misunderstood—and I know we are now going through a review of the Immigration Law, but, Mr. Speaker, I want the First Official Member to understand clearly so there is no misunderstanding that what I am talking about has nothing to do with that good individual or his office.

But there are instances where, with what goes on when it comes to immigration matters, you would throw up if you knew the truth. You would! When people come and. . . . Let me tell you now, I do not know about anyone else, but nine times out of ten I know when someone is telling me the truth. That is a warning to the Government too—don't try it, because most times I know it. When you hear how people have to live with decisions, either because others do not care, or because there is a specific bias, or a certain directive by word of mouth, it is appalling. I am not going to get into that.

But you see, Mr. Speaker, freedom of information to me is freedom for the country. This country has been shackled by a few paltry individuals for so many years. Thank God we see the light at the end of the tunnel.

If we move into another chapter of the importance of freedom of information, we see that everyone basically has the same principle applied when it comes to freedom of information legislation. Some people just use different words to explain. For instance, in the Lords' Hansard text for 11 December, in the United Kingdom Parliament's discussion about the Freedom of Information White Paper, it says, "The government would gain more respect and trust if they were seen to be scrupulous about releasing information openly and in due form and time to Parliament, and not selectively to journalists in their own interests before Parliament has been informed." So it extends itself, as the mover said, to the media.

Again, talking about the way our system works and the media, we get so much marl road talk that I would venture to say almost a majority of the country gets their minds poisoned by untruths, half truths, and everything else but the entire truth. Everyone gets so used to the marl road talk and gossip, that by the time the story reaches anyone, if it is the tenth time there are ten more lies added. By the time it gets to fifteen, there are probably twenty more lies added. And we are talking about the people in this country now, you know—and while it may sound like very simple and almost uneventful thing to talk about, you and I know the way some people are when it comes to the way they talk in this country. They can ruin your life! But I am telling you, that stems from the political directorate and the way it deals with the business of the country.

You know what else the political directorate has, Mr. Speaker? They have their own network. You are not even in a position to challenge them. They decide, when you stand face to face and look them in the eye, and they cannot do anything with you because you are dealing with the truth—they say, ‘Well, there is always a different way to skin the cat.’ So they sit down and get their think-tank to think up something. They say, ‘If we can’t get him one way, get him another way!’ And when they start to put the word out on the street, Mr. Speaker, by the time it is over, your mother has a problem not believing it. You hear me?

I really do not enjoy having to talk about this kind of thing. It kind of makes me sick. But someone has to say it. Someone has to make them know that others know, so maybe they will stop! Because if they do not stop, one of these fine days, someone is going to stop them. I hope the way we are beginning to think, they can go and wash themselves and get rid of all the poison. Maybe we can start over fresh. Maybe we will have this freedom of information legislation in place, and maybe—just maybe—we can spend our time dealing with the people’s business, and the country’s business, rather than each other’s business!

[Some Members: Hear, hear!]

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, I want to spend a few minutes dealing with the second ‘Resolved’ section of the motion, which reads, as amended “And be it further resolved that a select committee of the whole House be convened to determine the parameters of such legislation and such matters relating to statutory boards after public input.”

As we all know there were originally two motions, and after consultation with the Leader of Government Business, the Backbench agreed to combine the two motions into one, because we all agreed we could achieve the same purpose with the one motion, once it was amended accordingly.

When it comes to matters relating to statutory boards, some people with a certain amount of reasoning will take the view that we have to be careful about how widely we expect the information to flow from such statutory boards. As is pretty obvious on certain occasions, there are times when in the best interest—not only for good governance, but also to protect individual rights—it really would not be fair to have certain information disclosed publicly.

So as the mover has already said, we are not disputing that there are occasions when information should not be divulged readily, but we believe, and are convinced, that much more often than not the information should be able to be made available. So rather than—because there are times it should not be—simply saying let us not have any of it disclosed publicly, let us create the avenues through which what should be disclosed publicly is disclosed quite readily, and what should not be can be protected. There are ways and means of doing it.

The purpose of that section of the motion is seen by us to encourage more open and accountable government, by establishing a continued right of access to official and statutory records and information. The objective here is to help statutory authorities, which carry out public functions, to be opened up to public scrutiny. That is the whole purpose of the exercise. Being open to public scrutiny can only serve to increase the checks and balances of the boards in operating in the proper fashion. It can only do that.

In that way it will empower the people, giving everyone a right to access the information they want to see and hear. It will also place statutory duties on these authorities, to make certain information publicly available as a matter of course. In other words, no big thing! By the time the minutes are typed out and approved, a copy is left out front by the desk. Anyone who wants to come and read them. . . they are here. My life is an open book. That is what we are saying.

If and when the occasion arises when certain information should not be part and parcel of such documents, we have the legislation in place to justify such action. As the mover mentioned, an ombudsman can determine any questions or arguments that may arise on the part of both sides, either the persons who have to produce the information or the persons who require the information to be produced.

Of course, there will be cases in which, for obvious reasons, certain types of sittings will not be accessible to the public. I believe in his wind-up, the mover will be explicit in this area and make it very clear. He has alluded to it, but I believe he has other, more dynamic information that will make it much clearer to the listening audience. A quick example is the case in which, for instance, this may undermine the investigation or prosecution or prevention of any crime. Or the bringing of civil or criminal proceedings by public bodies. When matters like that occur, we know what we have to do. No one is saying we must do it in such a way that it is going to affect matters such as that.

The investigation and prosecution of crime involves a number of essential requirements. These requirements include the need to avoid prejudicing effective law enforcement, the need to protect any witnesses or informers, the need to maintain the independence of the judicial and prosecution process, and the need to preserve the role of the court system as the only forum in which a citizen is determined to be guilty of a crime. I was quoting some of that, but the point is, we know the scenarios and cases in which we have to be careful. It is not difficult for legislation to encompass that. I cannot subscribe to the belief that because there are certain instances in which we have to be careful, the only safe way is not to have public access to any of the information. I cannot believe that is the best answer. Again, I think it is easier for us to work on making sure legislation is in place to cover such situations, but by and large, the public should have access to the information I am talking about.

When we talk about freedom of information and look at all the reform strategies we are yearning for and making every attempt possible to put in place, I think it is fair comment for us to say, as we delve into each and every one of those individual strategies, that if any government is not open and accountable and does not have freedom of information legislation in place, first of all, the public is not going to support any regime of that nature any more, by and large. The public today is becoming more and more informed; they are becoming more and more involved. Because of that shroud of secrecy I mentioned before, they are becoming more and more paranoid.

Without going into certain specific examples, let me tell you the mood the country is in from the legislators right down. That is why it is always necessary to ensure that you have the facts in front of you. Just this morning, because of a slight slip-up with certain types of documentation being provided, it appeared that certain information was purposely being withheld from some of us. Thank God, we were able to discuss it openly. It was actually almost a joke at the end of the day, because both parties realised what had happened. But what also stared us straight in the face was that if we had not taken the time out to get the facts straight, we could have had a problem that would have gone on, and on, and on into next week. Simple little matter! So you see, Mr. Speaker, we have to change the mindset of the people of this country if we are going to move forward. This is one of the very important ways. The more people know they have access to the truth, the more they will cling to the truth, because if they do not tell the truth, someone else who wants to find out the truth will have access to the truth. Sooner or later it is going to stop, because people are going to feel ashamed when they realise you know they are lying!

Again, that sounds simple. But that is what this type of legislation is going to achieve in this country. No longer will an individual have to be chasing after their representative morning, noon and night, and no longer will the representative be holding them off, saying 'I soon get the information for you,' because in the vast majority of instances they will be able to get the information themselves!

I do not know about anyone else, but I like to talk to the people. I like to engage in conversation with them. But, certainly, we would be able to achieve more, be able to spend our time more wisely if we did not have to spend three or four hours a day dealing with situations like that. But it comes back—and they are going to get plastered with it before I am finished today—it comes back to the old-time principle, To the victor go the spoils. Once we hold the power, once we are wielding that, we are going to do what the First Elected Member for West Bay called 'cornsobble everything' and put it to the use we want, give the benefits to whom we want, and the rest will just have to suffer.

The Speaker: We shall suspend proceedings for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.40 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.10 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Debate continues on Private Member's Motion No. 12/98. The First Elected Member for George Town, continuing.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

This motion regarding Freedom of Information, not only can be linked to the White Paper that the UK recently produced, but also in New Zealand there is something called "The Official Information Act of 1982." I am suggesting that we can also draw from this document because I am convinced (while not having read it very carefully) that the principles applied in this Act are much like the ones we need to apply.

When it was reprinted in 1996, the preamble to the Act read as follows (and I will just read this quickly to prove my point). It reads: "An Act to make official information more freely available; to provide for proper access by each person to official information relating to that per- son; to protect official information to the extent consistent with the public interest and the preservation of personal privacy; and to establish procedures for the achievement of those purposes..." and it goes on further. So that, too, emphasises the point that while we wish for information to be made available to the public, we do understand and accept that there will be times when such information needs to be withheld for the protection of individuals and their rights, and also for certain principles and statutes.

The other (and I think final) aspect I will deal with this evening is the link I see with freedom of information and the way the public service operates. Before I get into that, let me just explain my role here: The mover is fondly termed the 'chef of flowery language.' He has the finesse to explain to all and sundry exactly what we are trying to achieve. My role is to take it down to the common man's language so that the world understands what we are dealing with and what we want to make happen.

When we look at the Civil Service, and we look at the Executive Branch of Government, the way that I understand how our system works is simply put as follows: The Elected Executive Branch of Government is elected to establish the policies. The Civil Service is then given the task of implementing these policies. But there is also a check and balance within the system because it is their duty to implement those policies within the framework of the laws and statutes of the land. So, all things being equal, the system should work the way it was envisaged to work, that is, the policy-makers develop the policies, the goals and objectives, and the Civil Service then puts those policies into action using the right tools and the right ways and means to achieve their objectives.

Where we have fallen down on occasion—and so that I am not misunderstood, I am not suggesting that the things that go wrong. . . and I am not taking anything back, I am just making it clear. I am not suggesting that we live in a world where this is the order of the day. Thank God it has not reached to that level. But, as far as I am concerned, it should not happen at all. So any time it happens is once too often. Where I see the present system falling down, and where I believe freedom of information would assist in the process is.... And first let me give a personal example and then I will get back into it.

Very recently, I went to a certain Ministry—not a Portfolio, a Ministry. I went to enquire about a certain situation which involved one of my constituents. I was simply going to ask someone if they could assist me by informing me as to what the position was with this circumstance. Lo and behold, with the fear of God in his eyes, a young man employed in that Ministry said to me, "Mr. Kurt, I have to inform you, sir, regrettably, that I and all of the staff have been instructed that any information being sought by a Member of the Legislative Assembly has to be directed to the Minister before an answer can be given." Mr. Speaker, it didn't end there. Two days later I had occasion to go to a Department under that same Ministry, a simple Department. I won't even expand on the circumstances because we would probably have to stop for the rest of the afternoon just to get a good laugh! Upon going into the Department in my usual manner, and I was simply asking for some information, I was immediately told the same thing.

I mean this sincerely, I could detect in the young lady's tone of voice and in her mannerisms that she was afraid to be near me! What that means to me is that I, as a representative of the people, do not have the right to basic information unless it is at the whim and fancy of the Minister. That is ludicrous! That is madness! That is unheard of! How paranoid can you get?

Let's turn the situation around—and let me tell you what else I believe. By and large, if whatever is going on is being done in the right fashion, why on God's earth would anyone want to hide it?

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Hear, hear!

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: If the logic is, 'I do it as I see fit, and I don't have to let anyone else know why I do it,' and if that logic is correct, why can't the rest of the world know what I am doing?

The wrong in that, to me, is where the principle is applied. It is only human nature. Because there is this shroud of secrecy, people must become suspicious. They start to wonder what is going on. That is where the gossip starts, Mr. Speaker. That is where people form their opinions—because they don't have the facts to deal with. The people involved in situations like that go away forming the opinion they wish to form because it is human nature. And nine times out of ten—not nine times out of ten, but ten times out of ten—they are dealing with a lack of information and chances are that the opinion they formed is incorrect. Now, if that is the way we are running our country, how do we expect the country to run?

I have heard it said in here about the Civil Service and politicians. I have heard it on the television and on the radio where some of us, including myself, have been literally accused of interfering with the Civil Service. I want to say here and now that as far as I am concerned, if there is any pressure being put on the Civil Service, or if there is any fear of God being put in their hearts, it is from the Elected Government. I say that, and I will say it fifty times and they can come back and tell me what they want to tell me. The civil servants know! But, of course, the way the system works now, mum is the word.

If information is readily accessible, the system must work better. Those kinds of fool-fool instructions, as I call them, cannot happen and make any sense. The civil servants do not have to fear that they can do their job the way they know how to do it.

Want me to tell you something else, Mr. Speaker? I have seen members of the Civil Service come and either evade the truth, or not tell the truth because of pressure from above. And it should not happen! Humph! I will tell you something else about that, Mr. Speaker. I, too, have a good memory and they can dare me any time. If they think it won't be forthcoming, they can try me. It's up to them. I'm easy.

Mr. Speaker, the point in all of that, while it may sound like I am pointing at the Government, is this: It is wrong, morally, it is wrong for the good of my country, it is wrong for every reason you can think of for any government to operate in such a fashion. It takes away the incentive from the people involved in the Service to perform to the best of their abilities. I have had them come to me, 'I get up in the mornings and I do not wish to go to the office because the situation is almost untenable and I don't know what is coming through the pipeline next that I am expected to do that I know should not be done like that.' I can tell you, Mr. Speaker, that I am not making these things up.

I really thought that I was going to finish this evening, but there is a second wind blowing and I don't think I will. I want to give everyone time to stew; I want them to think about it, and I want them to have time to write what they want to write and to make all the notes they wish to make. I am going to give them time tonight to deal with what I have said today, and tomorrow they can bring their pen and paper again.

Mr. Speaker, there are other things I need to speak about and I believe it is getting to be that time. Before I go on—

The Speaker: We have reached the time.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you sir.

The Speaker: I will entertain a motion for the adjournment of this Honourable House.

READING BY THE SPEAKER OF MESSAGES AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: Item number 3 on today's Order Paper, Reading by the Speaker of Messages and Announcements. I have received apologies for absence from the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs, who will also be absent 3rd July, 1998.

Item number 4 is Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. Question No. 100 is standing in the name of the First Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION 100

No. 100: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning how many classrooms are at Red Bay Primary School and Savannah Primary School.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: There are 16 classrooms at the Red Bay Primary School and 11 at the Savannah Primary School.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister say Exactly how the 16 classrooms at the Red Bay Primary School are divided for each year, meaning the six years of primary school? Can the Minister state how many classrooms for year, 1, year 2, year 3, etc.? How many for each year?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: In the Savannah Primary year 1 there are two; years 2, 3 and 4 there are two; year 5 there is one, for year 6 there are two. In the Red Bay Primary School, for years 1, 2, and 3 there are three; years 4, 5, and 6 there are two.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: It is obvious the Minister answered very quickly hoping it would fly by us! I asked the question about the Red Bay Primary School. I did not ask about the Savannah Primary School. Yet, he chose to answer both of them. Can he now answer the question about the Savannah Primary School so that we can get the information down?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker; year 1, two; year 2, two; year 3, two; year 4, two; year 5, one; year 6 two.

[Members' laughter]

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you very much. The Minister has proven that at some points in time he can follow instructions! (Members' laughter).

Mr. Speaker, getting back to the Red Bay Primary School. As has been stated by the Minister, the first three years have three classrooms each, and the last three years (years 4, 5, and 6) have two classrooms each. As has been back and forth between us on many occasions, it is obvious that when two year 6 classes move out and each of the years there move up, three year 3 classrooms that will be moving into year 4 in September will require three classrooms. At present there is only two classrooms for year 4. Can the Honourable Minister say what is going to be done to give space in the Red Bay Primary School for the third year 4 classroom that will be needed in September?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: There is a reading room that will be used as the extra classroom.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: The First Elected Member for George Town has a follow-up. I will give way.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I thank the lady Member. Is the Minister then saying that the reading room that will be used as a third classroom for year 4 will cause the Red Bay Primary School to not have a reading room? If that is the case, when is it anticipated that a reading room will be provided for the students at the Red Bay Primary School?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: There will have to be some time tabling to accommodate the reading, but the administration block should be ready January/February of next year which will then be able to take this. Hopefully, Members will support the funds needed to do all of the extra work at that school. Members will hopefully support the supplementaries or the extra funds for next year for this.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister say if any of the classrooms he mentioned which total 16. . . although when I add them up now I get 15. Can the Honourable Minister state if any of those classrooms were built and used previously for purposes other than classrooms? If that is the case, what were they used for prior to being used as classrooms?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: When the Red Bay Primary School was built there were multi-purpose rooms (activity rooms, really) in between each two classrooms. These have now been utilised. It is hoped that once the new primary school is built the population at Red Bay Primary, as well as at George Town, will go back down to smaller numbers.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister say if there is now a staff room at the Red Bay Primary School?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: At present there is none. But this is the administration block that will be starting shortly.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, just so you will understand, I am dealing with the Red Bay Primary School and the questions the other Members have are with the Savannah, so I am just finishing off one and they will get to the other one. I am not trying to take over.

The Speaker: Okay.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. The Minister said there were 16 classrooms at Red Bay Primary, and when he itemised how many classrooms there are for each year, if memory serves me right, he said that the first three years have three classrooms each, and the last three years have two classrooms each. That is 15. Can we get that cleared up please?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The sixteenth room is the one being used for the reading class.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: So, in actual fact there are not 16 classrooms at the Red Bay Primary School, but in September there will be?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: There are 16 classrooms, and 15 are being used.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, that cannot be the case. If 15 are being used now and one is a reading room, and it is intended to turn it into a classroom in September, then he certainly cannot say there are 16 classrooms now. Is the reading room being used as a classroom now?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: At the stage of trying to split hairs, let me just explain, not that this is very relevant: There are 15 classrooms that have students in them. There is another classroom that presently has no students in it, and is used as a reading room on a temporary basis where children go in and come back out. In September, the 16 rooms will have children in them with a timetabling in relation to the reading room until the administration block is built. I don't see the relevance of it, but that is the explanation, sir.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Is the Minister stating that the room being used as a reading room at present was constructed from the very beginning in anticipation of being used as a classroom?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I was not around at the beginning when that was constructed. I do not know what the former Minister expected of it.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister say if in its use as a reading room since he has been around, it was anticipated to only be used for a reading room temporarily until a classroom was needed?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I have to go on the basis of necessity. While we can predict, I cannot tell exactly how many students may be coming into the system. But as we saw about four years ago we had quite a sizeable influx of students. If there are rooms available there, then my duty is first to have them used as classrooms. But I am saying that at present there are 15 rooms used as classrooms and in September, until the administration block can be completed and the reading room shifted there, the reading room will be used as a main classroom.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister state the known number of students coming into the Red Bay Primary School in September?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I think that is a later question.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: If the Minister so desires for the fire to be fed twice, that is fine with me.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Can the Honourable Minister say if there is sufficient classroom space at the Savannah School for all reception students living in that area coming into the system in September?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: What I understand from the Chief Education Officer is that at this stage we don't know. We are planning on two classes in year 1.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Can the Honourable Minister say if at present there is sufficient classroom space to divide year 1 at the Savannah School into two different classes?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: There are presently two year 1 classes there, so we do have the space for two year 1 classes.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say if it will be necessary to use what is now the computer room at the Savannah Primary School for a regular classroom to accommodate the number of students?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: We are not planning on that at present. We are hoping that will not happen.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Can the Honourable Minister say how registration is determined at the Savannah Primary School? It appears that every time a Primary School gets a good reputation students come from all over. Are students in that area given preference in regard to enrollment?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: By and large we have to rely that parents who come in are from that catchment area. But from time to time there have been attempts—sometimes very shrewd attempts, I would say—to show that a child can come within a catchment area where that child wishes to go into the school. Sometimes the principal has to rely on what is said to her (or him) by the parents or guardians. One thing this brings out very clearly is the need for that third primary school. I hope all Members will give priority to that and support the request for funds to build that as early as possible to avoid having them worry about classroom space and matters such as that.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: I can assure the Honourable Minister that if this additional primary school had been a priority in the last list it would have had approval!

Mr. Roy Bodden: True!

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: But I would like to ask the Honourable Minister, because in a reply to one of the supplementaries he said the Savannah School has two year 1 classrooms, two year 2, two year 3, two year 4, but only one year 5. If we have a year 4 with two classrooms moving to year 5 with one, how are we going to accommodate that class?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: From what I understand there were 29 children in year 6 and they were split, which means they were very small classes. Therefore, it should be okay. Year 5 moves up, that's one class going into year 6. There are two classes in year 6. It was split into two classes. However, if there is a large intake there, it could be a problem. We will have to look at that when we get the numbers.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: I am certain that the Hon. Minister should have the numbers that are now in year 4 at the Savannah Primary School, [and know] whether the additional classroom for year 6 will be able to accommodate those. How many students are in year 5?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: In year 4 there are 45 students that will go into year 5. In year 5 there are 30 that will go into year 6. Year 6 has two classrooms. What may have to happen is that there will be two in year 5, and one in year 6.

Mr. Speaker, it is no good for me to try to appear to be a magician. I can only deal with situations when they occur. What I will undertake to do for the lady Member is everything in my power—until the Legislature votes the money for the new primary school—to accommodate the children in there.

The Speaker: I will allow two additional supplementaries. The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, the answer given to the substantive question clearly shows that, prior to now, it was obvious that there would be a need for more space. Can the Honourable Minister say if these situations were taken into consideration in his education plan, and if any timeline has been set to meet the needs of these anticipated space problems, rather than what he is saying now where he can only do something when the occasion arises? He is telling us that when it stares us straight in the face he is prepared to act. Was there no contingency during the whole process of the review and the development of the education plan whereby this would have been taken care of before, rather than during and after?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I do not wait until problems stare me in the eye to deal with them. We have a five year education plan that was put in place by 353 people—

[inaudible interjections]

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: —of which more than half are professional, practising teachers and educators.

We built four classrooms two years ago at Savannah. That was expected to have taken the children. There is planning. The balance of the planning is very clear—there is another primary school to be built. But we did expand that school a couple of years ago. It is now filled, and as the Third Elected Member for West Bay asked earlier, it is a school where the catchment area seems to attract more and more people because they are attracted to the school.

It is a fact. People actually move district to district to put their children into whichever school they wish. It is not easy to predict that. I can give other examples: Children are brought across and placed with grandparents so that they will fall within the catchment area. This is what the Third Elected Member for West Bay was pointing out.

I am saying that planning is in place, but it is not that easy having regard to the Immigration Laws, and the fact that people from overseas are also coming into the system. So, while we plan for every district, there have been movements from some schools to other schools which means that some schools may have excess space and very small classes, while others have larger classes.

I have done everything I can, within reason—and so has the department, and the planners in the strategic plan—to deal with these problems on a planned basis. We plan every year, and the strategic plan is reviewed every year. I can't really do any more than that. If problems arise, then we will try to deal with them, but if we start putting students out of Savannah School and start sending them to another school, the first people to be running to me would be the politicians, 'Why are you doing this?' or 'Why can't this child go into the school?'

I am saying that the problem is not as simple as they appear.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: I wonder if the Minister can say if in the strategic planning they took into account the inability to perhaps correctly predict the number of increases in students because of the fact that we have an immigration policy whereby large numbers of people are living here and working here who are not from the Cayman Islands? I am asking whether or not this particular social economic situation is borne in mind when plans are being made for additional building, or employment of additional teachers.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: This is taken into account. Once again, Immigration deals with predictions. They may tell us that there is going to be an increase of 'X' percent, but they may not necessarily know the number of dependants coming with them. There are several areas that are not easy to predict. To be frank, what needs to be done, and I have stated this here before, every school should have two extra classrooms sitting there so that when this arises children can go in. I will be applying for that later on in this session, asking for these increases to come in. That is the only way that can be done. That would allow the flexibility to use those rooms for other activities during the days, and it would be a buffer against a large intake of students.

For example, you would have to predict what developments are going down in Savannah/Bodden Town area. It is not that easy to predict. To be very frank, if it is that easy to predict, maybe I should ask them how many developments are going to be going into Savannah in the next four or five years? Their guess is as good as mine—it is a rapidly developing area of the island. But you have to remember that one set of condos or apartments or forty or fifty people could mean another forty or fifty children within that catchment area.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 101, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: it is good to see that the lawyer is not giving advice any more, but he is taking advice!

[Members' laughter]

QUESTION 101

No. 101: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning what capital projects or physical improvements are planned to be completed at the George Hicks High School before 31st December 1998.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Improvements for the George Hicks High School are as follows: (a) re-roofing of walkways (under Capital Works); and (b) re-painting programme (under Recurrent).

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister say if there were any other capital projects approved for 1998 besides the one mentioned?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Two, Mr. Speaker—the kitchen, which will be started but not completed; and the library.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister say if the kitchen (which is planned) has enough funds available to be completed, and if not, can the Honourable Minister say why the kitchen could not be completed in 1998, given the fact that when it was approved there were probably seven or eight months left in the year?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I differ with the Member there. The prioritisation of capital projects was brought back to this House and this House did not finish with the last one until a few weeks ago. The other ones were dealt with in May. That money has still not been released, Mr. Speaker. The prioritisation was brought back here and was approved by this full House. There were three variations to it, and if they want I can say what they are. One of them did not relate to the kitchen, if that is the question being asked. But the prioritisation was brought back here and my understanding, and that of other Ministers, is that the funds could not be spent. That is very clearly the position with the Financial Secretary and those funds have still not yet been released. They are now churning through the bureaucratic process since finishing with it sometime in June when the last of it was approved.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: When he gets that tone of voice, we know he is on the defensive. But, anyway, the Minister has not answered my question. While he has pointed out that my timeline of seven or eight months was not exactly correct, he still has not stated whether or not there are sufficient funds to complete the kitchen, and how long it will take to complete the kitchen once the funds are approved. What I really want to understand is the exact reason—not his formulated reasons—the correct reason why the kitchen cannot be completed before the year end.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, $250,000 has been approved. We believe it is estimated to be double that amount. As I understood it—and let me ask this clearly again—where there has been an approval of the reprioritisation, and there is not sufficient funding in the Budget for this year and next year, as I understand it a contract can be signed, notwithstanding what was said here. I will have to clear this again with the Financial Secretary. It was a question I asked because I didn't want to enter into contracts for this school, or the West Bay Hall or anywhere else, and then have Opposition Members coming in here asking, 'Why have you committed $500,000 when we only approved $250,000 for this year, and next year there has been no approval?'

If the position is as I understand it—and I am waiting for this in writing before. . . and I would assume that Public Works is waiting for it in writing if they haven't already gotten it—that contracts, as they were done in the past, can be entered into when funds have been approved in one year but spread over two years, then the contract can be signed. So if that is the case there will be a contract signed on this and I will have to find out exactly when someone from PWD is here I can ask. If that is the case, it will begin this year and be finished early next year, sir.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: My question is not on the question before Parliament, but the Honourable Minister. . . . I guess I have the right to ask on what he just spoke about—the contract. It is not the responsibility of the Backbench to provide projections to complete a project. I wondered if the projections for 1999 along with the money provided this year has been put in the Budget by the people responsible to complete this project.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: As I understand it, if you want to comply with the Public Finance and Audit Law, what has to go in is a very clear statement that contracts will be entered into that will not be completed in one year, but will commit the general revenue of this country for the following year. Now, if Members are saying that that has to be rigidly done—which has never been done in the past—then there will be further delays.

If, as I understand it, and I have looked at this (I don't have it with me now), that Law is to be strictly complied with then there has to be not just an estimate, because an amount has to be known. The time of the contract has to be known, and a memorandum to that effect will have to be entered against each project. If that is the case, no, we have not complied with that Law.

But, Mr. Speaker, we are back to exactly the same thing. In the past contracts were signed and projects could move on, and the schools could get its cafeteria. I just want to remind this House that it is not just this project. I have other projects that in the prioritisation the full amount was not put in.

[Voice from across the floor]: But that's another—

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: [addressing voice across the floor] You are not by the Speaker. Don't shout across the room like that. It's not good manners.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Stay out of my life, man!

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: [addressing the First Elected Member for George Town] I never was in your life.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank God!

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: If the full amount of funds have to be voted in one year for the following year, and they lapse at the end of the year and have to be revoted, then it really makes nonsense of the Budget. In other words, if you are spending $1 million this year, and $1 million next year, then you have to appropriate $2 million this year. I think that somewhere the Hon. Financial Secretary and this House have to come to grips with this. The one thing I am not going to do is anything, while it may follow what went on in the past, that is going to cause the rash of inquisitions and questions that came from the Opposition on this last Budget. But the public must understand that while this rigidity is going on the children are going to be suffering as a result of it.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Uh-uh! Mr. Speaker—

[inaudible interjections]

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: As a Member of the Backbench, I would like to make it entirely clear to the listening public that it has never been the intention of me or my colleagues on this side not to provide classrooms for all schools in these islands to allow our children to go to school. Be that as it may, Mr. Speaker, I think both the Minister and I are straying from the question on the Order Paper. I do appreciate your allowing me to ask a supplementary.

I think when an estimate is prepared, the normal procedure is that PWD gives an estimate of the amount to be spent on that project for the year with a projection for the next year (and the next year if it was going to take longer than one year to complete that project). I would like to ask whose decision it was to remove that? Was it the Backbench, or was it the Executive Council as I think we were told during Finance Committee?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, if you remember, that was a question that was being cleared up when civil servants were brought before this Honourable House and a judicial procedure was carried out in which they were administered oaths—

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Ugh!

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: —which had never happened in this country before—

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Mr. Speaker—

The Speaker: Let me have a few words now, please.

Listen, we are engaged in Question Time. I am going to move on to the next question. Question No. 102, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks: Mr. Speaker, I would like to have a word myself.

The Speaker: This is not a time for speeches, please.

Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks: I won't take—

The Speaker: Let's go on to Question Time. Question No. 102.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: (off microphone) Give the man his break, uncle. What's happening to you this morning, uncle?

The Speaker: If you will be very brief. The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: That's right.

STATEMENT BY THE FOURTH ELECTED MEMBER FOR WEST BAY

Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks: What I have to say is that I, as an old Member of this House, am facing something that I have never faced in all my time. I would like to ask the Members here to carry themselves in a better fashion. I think it is straying too far now.

[Addressing the Honourable Speaker] And I wish that you would put some power behind your seat and quiet it down also. Thank you.

The Speaker: I thank you for that. Question No. 102, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for George Town.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister say as of what date these figures were compiled?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: If the Member looks at the question he will see that was 11 June 1998.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say if 11 June was the cut-off date, or can enrollment still be made? Can the Honourable Minister tell the House what is the cut-off date for enrollment?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The cut-off date is May 31.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: For purposes of clarity, can the Honourable Minister say that as of June 11, the new year 1 class at the Bodden Town Primary School which will start in September will only have ten students?

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Ten new students. If the Member will look at what he asked, he asked for "registered new students." I gave the answer "registered new students."

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I am quite willing to have it be explained different. My understanding of new students for year 1 means anyone being registered for year 1, because if it is year 1 it has to be a new student! So what I am asking the Minister (and I will ask him again) is if from this information as at June 11, 1998, he is saying that if that figure has not increased since June 11, it means that the year 1 class for September at Bodden Town Primary School will have ten students. That is what I am asking him.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The Member knows the answer—yes.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister say, and I will give him time to consult with his entourage, if since June 11 to now there have been any other registrations. I am specifically pointing out the Bodden Town Primary School because unless life is suddenly different, I understood there was more to be registered than they had space for, and they had to cut off applications. So can the Minister state if there was any increase since June 11?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Actually, we have to continue taking students for some time to come. There will be other students coming in. I don't know how far this needs to be broadcast, but the answer is yes.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Based on existing trends and history, is it fair comment then that, while this information has been provided based on what has transpired in the past with registration, this is really nowhere near a clear indication of how it will end up for the September term for all of these schools?

The Speaker: Before I ask the Minister for an answer, I would appreciate a motion for the suspension of Standing Order 23(7) & (8).

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 23 (7) & (8)

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, I so move under the relevant Standing Order.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: I second that.

The Speaker: The question is that Standing Order 23 (7) and (8) be suspended to enable Question Time to continue. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED. STANDING ORDER 23(7) AND (8) SUSPENDED TO ENABLE QUESTION TIME TO CONTINUE.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Is the Member asking me to make an expression of opinion on this matter?

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, I asked the Minister "based on trends." What I am asking him is based on statistical trends that have occurred in the past, if it is fair comment. . . . The truth of the matter is that I don't really pay much credence to his opinion, so I don't want one now!

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, after that statement, I therefore refer that Hon. Member to Standing Order 22(1)(g) which makes it very clear, "The right to ask a question shall be subject to the following general rules, as to the interpretation of which the Presiding Officer shall be sole judge (g) a question shall not solicit expression of opinion. . . ." So, quite frankly, if he does not value that opinion, he won't get it!

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say if he is able through the use of enrollment trends in the past to calculate any projections as to what enrollment may be expected during any given school year, particularly when it comes to new students?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: That is the same question, Mr. Speaker, and the expression of opinion. I am going to ask the Member if he is going to value my opinion if I tender it, since he is not entitled to ask it.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Is the Minister telling the House that his Ministry, or the Department of Education, does not keep enrollments for schools during years past? And that they do not use these enrollments as projections in any given school year as far as their educational planning and planning for classroom space is concerned?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I think we are back to the same thing. I have been asked to express an opinion on what I think the class size is going to be. If that opinion is going to be respected in some way then I will go outside the Standing Orders, with your leave, and give it. But if, as the First Elected Member for George Town said, he does not value my opinion, then there is no good in my giving it.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, may I remind the chair that I am the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I am not going to prolong this. I realise that I confused the Members, one was first and one was last in the elections. Sorry, third in the elections.

The class this year is 27 so one can expect that the amount will probably be near to there. We have to keep the enrollment rules fairly flexible because in my opinion it is not fair because we run over a cut-off date that we should not let in a child that should be in there. I will do everything I can to do this. However, I hope it doesn't spark a lot of people taking the delay because it affects how we project. This is a good example. We have ten who reached the deadline (31 May) and there will probably be double that over the next few months.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Mr. Speaker, I thought you had forgotten about this end of the House. I would like to ask the Minister whether the schools will be ready for these new students in terms of space.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I give the Member the undertaking that we will be ready in September. It is never an easy task, as the Member knows. But we have always been able to cope. Like I said, I would dearly love to have two extra classrooms in each school so that when we need them we could just draw on them. I hope that later on this year when I put in that list of what I need for the schools, that those asking most of these questions will support me so that they don't have to spend all this time asking me these questions next year.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, I am wondering if the Honourable Minister remembers that he made up the priority budget earlier this year.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I also remember that the Opposition did their variations to the priorities in it. I use the word 'Opposition,' Mr. First Elected Member for West Bay. And really, the only variation done to the Budget was to put money for MLA offices, some money for Parliament here, and that Honourable Member, the First Elected Member for West Bay, and the other Members added some for the hall in West Bay. I will do everything I can to get the hall moving for West Bay.

The Speaker: Okay, we are not getting anywhere. Two additional supplementaries. The First Elected Member for West Bay, your last one.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: My last question?

The Speaker: Do you have a supplementary?

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Yes, I have a supplementary, but I am kind of confused now that you said it is my last one. But anyway, I can understand the Minister not wanting to take the blame for the Ministry on the Budget. The question I am asking is whether there is going to be enough space (and maybe he made it clear, but he drifted into other matters that confused me) for those new students. That is what I did not get clear.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I have been told by the Chief Education Officer that it will work. We will get them within it. But that extra primary school in West Bay is becoming more and more vital because schools are. . . the John A. Cumber school is really too large. We need that. So I am moving as quickly as possible. I know it has the support of all Members.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: (off microphone) I was wondering why he wasn't answering the question we were asking first.

The Speaker: The final supplementary, the Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: In his reply, the Hon. Minister stated that the year 1 for Savannah Primary would have 56 new students coming in. And in a reply to the First Elected Member for West Bay he just said there would be space for all of these new students. Well, if there is going to be space (and the Minister is probably not even aware of this) why is it that parents—and I speak specifically of Savannah—who have registered their children within the deadline of May 31 cannot get a reply as to whether or not that child will be accepted until mid July?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I understand it is because on some of the applications all of the medical documents need to come in. And with some, also payment of fees. I am just relaying what I understand is the position at the Department.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Mr. Speaker, I would just like to tell the Hon. Minister that I accept his reply but I will tell him the reason being given to parents in the Committee Room when we take the break.

The Speaker: Moving on to question 103, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 103

No. 103: Miss Heather D. Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning what are the Planning requirements regarding roads before construction begins on buildings in sub-divisions.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Under the Development and Planning Regulations (Revised), section 22 states: “planning applications involving the provision of new public roads or the extension of existing private roads on frontage development or an existing road shall comply with the following conditions: (h) roads shall be constructed to the standard specified by the Authority.”

Currently the standard specified by the Authority is asphalt concrete or equivalent. The Central Planning Authority may allow construction on buildings within a sub-division prior to registration of individual lots, but will not allow final registration of these lots until satisfactory completion of the subdivision roadway.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Miss Heather D. Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say if these requirements are being carried out?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I understand that it is being carried out by and large, but on occasion for small family-types of subdivisions there is an easing of it.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: In the answer given by the Hon. Minister, it states, “Currently the standard specified by the Authority is asphaltic concrete or equivalent.” I wonder if he can expand on what he means by “equivalent”?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I understand it is in excess of a double chip and spray. I guess if someone put down concrete, or an alternative. . . . But I take the point with family subdivisions, especially. We will have to look at bringing that back here. There needs to be an easing of it, rather than where you have large commercial subdivisions.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: I thank the Minister for that answer. The reason I asked was because I was concerned with the cost. It was my understanding that the minimum requirement was two layers of chip and spray which is much less expensive than paving asphalt.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I know that used to be generally the standard, actually it was PWD’s standard on roads some time back. But now, if it is less than six subdivisions they can do that. If it is larger, the Central Planning Authority tries to get the concrete asphalt for several reasons. It means Government does not have to go back and repave them. But it is very expensive. It is more than double the cost of a double chip and spray. It is considerably more.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks: I just want to ask the Minister who is responsible for bringing the roads up to that standard?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: It normally is the developer. I will just comment on this because it is a very good question. What I think this House should look at is some type of an extension of the Strata Titles Law in which the developer would for a period of time not only build it but maintain it to a certain standard (which they normally do). After that the road would become owned by the people who own the subdivision lots, the same as you have the common property in a condominium, like the yard, and they all contribute to keep it up. If that could be done, and it would have to be looked at carefully to see that it was fair, it would relieve Government (and I am straying into the area of the Minister for Works) but it would relieve Government of a lot of money in the future in maintenance of those roads.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries the next question is 104, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 104

No. 104: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works what procedures does the Government currently employ to test the 'hot mix' which is used for road paving.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: The Public Works Department re-established the Soils and Materials Testing Laboratory in the latter part of 1997 and now employs one full-time Laboratory Technician and one part-time Assistant. All hotmix manufactured for Government projects is tested in accordance with American Society for Testing and Materials (ASTM) Standards.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say the length of time between the re-establishment and the time there was no testing?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: I am informed by the Chief Engineer that there was limited testing during the previous three years, but we did have some testing.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Is he saying that the hiatus was three years? Can he also state if this testing is limited to Government roads, or is it also extended to private roads in subdivisions?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: It is generally done on PWD projects. We don't actually go out and check subdivision projects.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries the next question is 105, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 105

No. 105: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning what procedure is involved in acquiring an electrician's licence in the Cayman Islands.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Persons wishing to acquire and Electrician License to carry out electrical work of any nature are required to make an application to the Board of Examiners. The applicants must provide the Board with their name, age and address, where they acquired their experience and the length of their experience, together with two character references.

Applicants are allowed to sit the Electrician's Trade test based upon their experience within the profession or they furnish documentary evidence that they possess a license from outside the Cayman Islands which, in the opinion of the Board, is based upon standards equivalent to those required in the Cayman Islands.

Upon obtaining a passing grade, an Electrician License is issued to the applicant.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say which board or authority sets the examination and is responsible for the issuing of the licence?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: That, obviously, is the Examiners Board.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say if this board is comprised of any persons who are from the electrical contracting companies, and how many such persons make up the Examiners Board?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I really did not come prepared for that, but I would think that some of them would be from the electrical profession.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Would the Minister consider the following request for information? State the makeup of this board, indicating whether any of the examiners are electrical contracting companies and also provide the House with some idea of the curriculum. Also, Can the Honourable Minister say if he is aware of any complaints, particularly from Caymanian applicants as to inconsistencies within the passing grade of this examination?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I can get that information, but as far as I can recall the board is made up of all electricians. There have been complaints in relation to the board. I have tried to deal with amendments to the Electrical Regulations and to look at the Law. But to be very frank, we have been in this Honourable House since 20 February—this is into the fifth month—and I find it very difficult to complete work when one has to sit and concentrate on the drafting of regulations. I am trying to deal with it, sir.

I have held meetings in the Committee Room while proceedings were going on (which is the only thing I can do now). There are problems there that need to be dealt with, and all I can tell the Member is that I am doing what I can and I have been assigned a legal Crown Counsel from the Legal Department who is going to assist us. I have made the first run through the regulations. I know the areas of the problems, and a lot of them do not necessarily relate to what the Member has asked, but I can get this information. I will supply it to him.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister give an undertaking to consider moving this out of the realm where it currently sits, and having the whole procedure administered through the Community College which in my indication is a neutral body? I don't know if the Minister is aware of this, but I have received numerous complaints from young Caymanians, charging and alleging bias. I think it is a responsible suggestion to state that people who are aggrieved would feel better if the procedure is administered through the Community College which they deem a neutral party, and would seem to have no vested interest if someone passes or fails the examination. So would the Minister give the House an undertaking to examine this alternative?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I am happy to give that undertaking. Presently under the regulations it does vest in the Electrical Board of Examiners. But I am happy to raise this with them and the Department of Planning and the Minister of Works. It could be done maybe in two ways: one is that they have a right to accept a certificate of a certain standard for certain categories, which could be done through the Community College, or ICCI, whichever college may want to do it.

By all means, I will raise that because the colleges are not just geared to administer tests, but to actually run the courses that would lead up to this. The other thing we have been trying to do is to ensure that younger Caymanians get a period of on-the-job training or apprenticeship, looking in the wider scale in the electrical business. Whatever we can do to upgrade Caymanians, we will do. But I give the undertaking that it is something that we are looking at, and as soon as I can get out of this Honourable House a lot of time can be spent by the eight Ministers trying to get on with the business of running the country. After nearly five months, it has become a real serious struggle to deal with the business within the Ministries.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, the next question is 106, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for West Bay.

QUESTION 106

No. 106: Mr. W. McKeeva Bush asked the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport whether Government found it necessary to put in place an increase in Port dues in 1998, which was passed in Executive Council in April 1997, after the new crane was put in use.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: The 5 percent increase which was implemented in May 1998 by the Port Authority is not a result of putting the crane in use, but rather is due to the increase in the cost of doing business in the Cayman Islands.

The Port Authority's previous rate increase dates back to 1992. The Authority's expenses have increased by 27 percent from 1992 to 1996.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Is the Minister saying that there was no cost as a result of putting the new crane into use?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: What I am saying is that based on the question—and the question is very specific, it asked “whether Government found it necessary to put in place an increase in Port dues in 1998, which was passed in Executive Council in April 1997,” that specific decision was the increase of 5 percent.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say whether this 5 percent rate increase was the result of labour? Consumer price index? What is it specifically attributed to? The rise in labour, the consumer price index, food, or what?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: It is attributable to the consumer price index.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister say if, since the new crane has gone into operation, there have been any significant increases in overtime having to be paid by the Port Authority?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I believe in the initial stages of putting the crane into operation there was some amount of overtime being paid, but I don't think that was a chronic situation that continues to run.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Can the Honourable Minister say what caused the Authority's expenses to increase by 27 percent?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Quite frankly, when we look at the consumer price index from 1992 to March of 1998 the cost of living increase is 15.8 percent versus the Port Authority just increasing it by 5 percent.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Just getting back to the overtime situation, can the Honourable Minister give some indication as to what that significant increase in overtime was when the new crane began operation and what it has levelled off to at this point in time?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I am not in a position to say whether the amount of overtime was significant, or not. I don't have that information available to me at the moment. I will undertake to provide it in writing if the Member so wishes.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Can the Honourable Minister say if the mandatory Pensions Law has anything to do with the 27 percent increase of the Authority's expenses? If so, what percentage does the Authority contribute for its employees?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: The mandatory Pensions Law did not come into effect until 1 June 1998. What I was referring to was expenses between the period 1992 to 1996. Maybe I got it wrong.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I am confident that the Honourable Minister will be aware of what I am trying to say, so I am going to ask him to help me because I may not ask it exactly the way it is required. However, the fact that the Port Authority has engaged in increased capital costs by way of having to purchase a new crane, the way the Minister has answered the question it appears there are no direct links between the 5 percent increase and the purchase of the new crane. Can the Honourable Minister say whether or not the Port bears in mind the fact that the Port has engaged in this new capital expenditure when it comes to the charges that it has to levy on the public?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I quite understand what the Member is asking. My answer was specific to (as I mentioned earlier) the amount passed in Executive Council in April 1997. I have not, nor have I ever given any impression that the purchase of the crane by the Port Authority did not amount to the Port Authority effecting fees for the use of that crane. It would be going against the mission of the Port Authority. There are fees that are collected by the Port Authority for use of the crane.

Actually, the information is public knowledge. It is included in the Port (Grand Cayman) Crane Service Regulation, 1997, where the Port is allowed "to charge for off-loading or loading on to a vessel or otherwise handled by the crane or the Authority of a container". . . let me stop reading the legal language. The Port has the authority to charge for lifting a container off a ship and putting a container back on a ship with the use of the crane. If it is a 20' container, the charge is $15. If it is a 40' container, the charge is $30.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister then tie in that relationship with the 5 percent increase, if there is a tie? If that is not the case, can he state if these charges he is talking about are separate charges from the 5 percent rate increase he gave in his answer?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: The answer is that they are two separate and distinct charges. The 5 percent charge deals with the Regulations and the many items in the Regulations that the Port Authority charges on, whether it is tailgating or other wise, and there are a whole slew of items under the Regulations from regulation 106 to regulation 122.

For example under regulation 116 (1)(e) the Port, prior to this regulation, was charging $26 for a service (I am unable to specify what that service is because it does not say so), to $27.30, or $2.60 to $2.73. So it is a variety of items that relate to the 5 percent increase which is based on, as I said before, the cost of living.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: So the Minister has said that the costs directly related to the crane use are separate from the 5 percent increase mentioned in the answer. Can the Honourable Minister say if those costs reflected in the regulations he just read were increased in 1997 because of the additional cost to operate their own crane as compared to what it cost to pay for the use of a private owner's crane? What I am seeking is a relationship between the cost incurred now directly to the consumer by the use of the crane, compared to the cost previously incurred by the consumer when private owned cranes were being used.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, I believe the Member said 1997. It is actually 1998.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: For purposes of clarity, the Member can correct me any time with that, but he knows what I am talking about.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I was trying to make sure we are talking about the same thing.

The 5 percent increase is based on the Consumer Price Index. I answered a similar question—and it may have been put by the First Elected Member for George Town—about the relationship, or is there a connection, or how do we answer the cost to the public versus what the Port Authority is charging versus what Thompson Shipping was charging. I had to say, quite honestly, I do not know! Because we tried to establish what Thompson Shipping was charging the public for the use of the crane, and we could not obtain the information from that company, so the comparison by the Port Authority to what they were doing is not there.

But if that is not available to us, I cannot honestly give the comparison. I would assume, given Thompson Shipping is not doing that service any more, there would not be a charge to the public for that service. If that is the case, perhaps there is an offset between one item charged by Thompson Shipping versus the other item charged by the Port Authority.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Again, for purposes of clarity, is the Minister saying that when (and since he is calling names) Thompson Shipping's cranes were being used, Thompson Shipping was billing the public directly for the use of their cranes? That is not my understanding. The reason I ask the question like that is, surely, if Thompson Shipping was charging the Port Authority for their work on the dock, the Port Authority should not need to ask Thompson Shipping what these charges were, because the Port Authority had been paying them all along.

If the Port Authority had not been paying them, I understand. Then it means Thompson Shipping was charging the public directly. But if Thompson Shipping was not charging the public directly, then certainly I believe it is not unfair to expect the Minister either to be able to answer it now, or perhaps to get the answer and give it in writing.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, when we were dealing with the company on this subject, they told us it was part of the charge within the bill of lading. The bill of lading goes directly to the person importing the item. So we were not in a position to determine what—

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. I understand what the Minister has said. Can the Minister say to us then—and this is sincerely for purposes of clarity—if Thompson Shipping was levying any charges to the Port Authority while they were operating the cranes on the dock? Or vice versa?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, we are not in business for charity. Although I cannot determine exactly how much was charged, . . . I am not a betting man but I would bet some money that there was a charge. In some cases, suppliers came to us suggesting it was $350 which showed up on their bill of lading. I do not know if that is correct, either. I have not verified that it is correct.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, perhaps I was not very clear. My question relates to the relationship between the Port Authority and Thompson Shipping, not suppliers who got bills of lading. I am asking if there were any charges levied by Thompson Shipping to the Port Authority for the use of the cranes, off-loading the containers, or vice versa, Thompson Shipping being able to use the premises.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, not to the best of my knowledge. I can verify it and if I find that what I am saying is incorrect, I would undertake to supply that information to the Member in writing, but not to the best of my knowledge.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Is the Minister saying that Thompson Shipping did not pay the Port Authority any fees for off-loading?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, to the best of my knowledge, they did not pay us anything.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? If there are no further supplementaries, we will move to Question 107, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, the Third Member for Bodden Town is just outside. He should be in momentarily.

QUESTION 107

No. 107: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works what Government's disposition is to opening the 'scenic route' which is proposed to extend from Manse Road in Bodden Town and linking with Pedro Castle Road?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. There is a 50-foot corridor shown on the Land Registry map that extends from the vicinity of Pedro Castle to the western end of Manse Road. Public Works Department currently has no schedule for construction of a road along that corridor. It should be noted that at no time has it been considered to open this road as a scenic route. This type of project would be given secondary priority to projects that are required to improve safety and relieve traffic congestion.

In the exercise which the Public Works Department is currently undertaking to identify future road corridors, it is proposed to realign the corridor at the Manse Road end to intersect with Shamrock Drive near Bodden Town Primary School. The corridor would continue north and east to create what is being termed the 'Bodden Town Relief Corridor.' A connecting road would extend from the realigned corridor to the existing Manse Road. The proposed realignment of the corridor is in keeping with the 1997 Development Plan, which shows the existing Manse Road being preserved as an area of historical interest.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, the reason I described it as 'scenic route' was that during the cursory discussions to which I was privy, there was some suggestion of leaving a 200- or 400-foot stretch width of the ironshore free of construction, so the oceanfront would be visible at all times during the driving. That is, however, as far as I am concerned, not of great interest now. Can the Minister say if there has been any discussion regarding this project being a participatory project, since I am aware that there was some talk of Government entering a joint venture with some of the property owners in the construction of this road?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. That is quite correct. The Member is correct. There were discussions, but like many other developers, when the time came for the money to come forward, we heard nothing more about it.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Minister inform the House of the status of these plans or discussions, whether they are in abeyance at this time, or whether there are still ongoing discussions and proposals regarding the development of this road?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Mr. Speaker, there are no active discussions. This happened some time ago, and I have heard nothing recently.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, can the Minister tell the House whether the 50-foot corridor, as mentioned in his answer, is just a plan, or is that actual width corridor reserved?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Mr. Speaker, this is, I am told by the Chief Engineer, shown on the Registry map, and that is what I said in my answer. It is my understanding it is under section 3, but it has never been gazetted under section 5.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, is the Minister in a position to give the House an estimate of what such a route may cost?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: I believe this is probably some of the roughest terrain we will find on the Island, and I think it would be hard for me to even ask my Chief Engineer to give me an ad hoc estimate on it, because I am sure it is going to cost a lot. At the time we had the discussions with the developers in that area, we felt it could have been much easier on Government if everyone would come together and try to do it. But as I mentioned a while ago, there were discussions a long time ago, and it just fell away. The developers did not follow up on it.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, this will conclude Question Time for this morning. At this time we shall suspend proceedings for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.55 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12.38 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Item number 5 on today's Order Paper, Other Business, Private Members' Motions, Private Member's Motion 12/98, Freedom of Information/Official Information Act, debate continuing with the First Elected Member for George Town.

OTHER BUSINESS

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 12/98

FREEDOM OF INFORMATION/OFFICIAL INFORMATION ACT

(Continuation of debate thereon.)

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. When we closed yesterday afternoon I had been discussing the benefits of a Freedom of Information Act in the operations of the government machinery, including the civil service.

When we look at the business of running the country and we think of decisions that have to be made, procedures that have to take place, and everything that goes along with that, if we simply examine the situation and the people directly involved in the process, the question that comes to mind immediately is whose business is the business of government anyway? My answer is: The business of government is the people's business. And if it is the people's business then, certainly, the people have a right to know how their business is being conducted. If that is correct, access to information must prevail.

As I mentioned earlier, I believe it is wrong for any one of us involved in the process, at whatever level, to believe that generally speaking the business of government is not the business of the people, and that the people should not have access to the way in which this business is conducted.

Someone I spoke to earlier drew a very good analogy. We have been talking recently about the importance of having and using seat belts in all vehicles. I must admit that I was one of those people who it took a little while to train. I am doing the best I can to remember every time I get into a vehicle, whether I am driving or not, to put a seat belt on. A driver who over the years never has an accident or anything like that may tend to think, 'I really don't need to have a seat belt on because nothing will happen. I don't need to think of putting myself in that kind of position of discomfort, where I can't move as I please while I am in the vehicle because I have a seat belt on.'

The comparison is that I do not know the day when I will not be driving. I do not know the day when the people I am driving now, my children for instance, will be driving. If we look at freedom of information in the government vehicle, those of us now participating directly in the process, who feel what we are doing is well done and therefore there is no need to have this freedom of information legislation, . . . what happens when we are not the drivers? What happens down the line in the future, when we really do not know who the drivers are going to be? Is it not better to have the seat belts in place, so that when new drivers come into the government vehicle you then have the seat belts on and working, and you have your safety precautions already in place?

If that seems a bit tedious to understand, the real parallel is simply this: We do not know what the future will bring. We do not know the kinds of accidents we will meet. Therefore, whether it is a seat belt in a car, or freedom of information in the government system, let us take all precautions to prevent any damage when the accidents occur. That is basically the principle we need to apply.

Another statement I have heard used on more than one occasion in this Honourable House (and the person who has used it most is the Minister of Education) and in many forums is, 'Power corrupts, and absolute power corrupts absolutely.' I contend that if this statement is true, surely the people of the country having access to information must be one of the very important checks and balances ensuring that power does not corrupt, and absolute power cannot corrupt absolutely.

In fact, having freedom of information legislation in place will prevent the occurrence of any absolute power, because the people of the country will have the right to know. It goes a little further, Mr. Speaker. When we look at the main aspect of why freedom of information legislation should be put in place in this country, we think of the people of the country. It is surely a much better situation and circumstance if all participate in the process. While we look at the civil service, and at the chain of command in government and the separation of powers, the truth of the matter is that freedom of information legislation will give the most important check and balance in the government machinery. It gives the people the authority to inspect what is being done and how it is being done by the people they are paying to do the job. Let's not forget that!

The other aspect which is almost entirely entwined in the whole process—and I have mentioned it before, but I am trying to get to some type of summary here—is transparency and accountability. Openness. There is no better system in the world than a system that calls for transparency, openness and accountability of one's actions. This transcends not only the political level, but the entire public sector. This is what we want. The civil service receives criticism all the time from the general public because the end results are not satisfactory to the public on many occasions. This freedom of information legislation will allow the people to understand how the service operates, why it makes the decisions it does. And in a very short order it is going to—not curtail the ability of the service to function—but streamline the chain of command, so the functions can be carried out properly. I contend today that this is not the case!

Too many times civil servants are not able to perform their tasks because of directives from elsewhere. I want to say something directly to the Minister of Education because he has made the accusation about the Backbench interfering with civil servants and what they have to do. I am going to tell him today that the Backbench would never, ever have to engage in that type of activity to try to get the truth if information were forthcoming from him and his Ministers when the questions were being asked! There is a direct relationship to the freedom of information, because right now they believe they do not have to. But once this legislation is in place they will automatically, as I said before, fall in line or they will fall away.

Even when I, as a Member of this Legislative Assembly, take issue with Members on the Government Bench who want to deem it personal, it is up to them. I have a job to do. They have a job to do. I do mine, they do theirs. But even when I take issue, a lot of that could easily be prevented if information were, by natural course of events, forthcoming. Suspicion would fall away. When we have access to information like that, it certainly has to lift the quality of the decision-making process. It has to save much time in this whole process in which we engage regularly, because we will stand here and argue with each other for days on end, and still not come to any satisfactory conclusion. When it is all over, information that should be available to us and to the public, is held on to like a sacred document to which only the chosen few have access. That has to stop.

If that information were available there would be no question as to how the decision-making process took place. There would no longer be any suspicion in people's minds about how something was done. So, if freedom of information legislation is put in place it has to call for an entirely better system of government.

If we contend that our system is such that it is very conducive to good government, then this can only enhance the entire operation. While on the one hand one might ask why, since the Government has accepted the motion, we talk about it. In two days (well, not quite even forty-eight hours, but from Tuesday night until today) there have been at least a dozen individuals who have said to me, 'Boy, we really like what you guys are doing, but are you sure it's going to happen?' My question to each of them has been, 'Why don't you think it's going to happen?' You know what the answer has consistently been throughout? 'Well, the way Government operates, any time it's anything like this that's good for us, you know it gon' take forever to get it done, or it won't happen at all.'

And I say again, 'Why do you really think that?' The answer has been, 'Because that's the way Government has operated for so long.' Times are changing. People's minds are changing, and they are becoming a lot more involved in the affairs of the country. It is incumbent that we as representatives, whether on the Backbench or Elected Government Executive Council Members, ensure that the people's business is done in the right way.

The Speaker: We shall suspend proceedings for lunch until 2.30 PM.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.55 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.40 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Debate continues, the First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you.

As the seconder of this motion, I think I have made my case. In closing I again challenge the Government to get on with the process of a select committee. We have access to much relevant information on situations in other countries where such legislation exists to be able to extrapolate and create legislation peculiar to our situation. There is no reason why this cannot happen within a period of a few months, notwithstanding everything else that has to be done in the business of the country. I think it is most urgent that we create this legislation in order that the other reform initiatives that are either in progress or in the wings be put in place properly. Freedom of information is one of the cornerstones that most of these initiatives, if not all, will be able to function properly.

The Government has accepted the motion, and we are now urging it to get on with the process. I think the mover already mentioned through the media that we would be quite happy and content to have the Honourable Chief Secretary chair the committee. I am sure that he will also utilise the expertise of his deputy and other civil servants who are knowledgeable in the process. I believe that Members of the Legislative Assembly, especially those on the Backbench, are quite eager to get on and quite willing to participate whenever called upon. I trust it won't be very long before we see action on this matter and I commend the motion to this Honourable House.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? If not, does the mover wish to exercise his right to reply? The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: I am happy on this occasion to stand and thank my Honourable colleagues on this side for their unstinting support and encouragement on this motion through all of its stages. I particularly thank those who offered their contribution to this debate. I also wish to thank the Government, particularly the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs who replied for the Government, for its support.

I want to make one or two points. It is clear—and these points must particularly go to the Leader of Government Business, the Minister for Education—where enlightened leadership in this Parliament is coming from. It is coming from the Backbench! It was the Backbench that proposed the motions which set in place the fiscal reforms being undertaken now by the Honourable Financial Secretary. It was the Backbench that proposed the debate on Dependent Territories; the Backbench proposed this motion calling for Freedom of Information; the Backbench is proposing a motion which is going to deal with some matters that will be before the House shortly. And it is the Backbench that is most capable of leading the country into the 21st Century!

There is one point I wish to make which has to do with freedom of information, particularly as it relates to questions and information sought in this Honourable House. I am reminded that during one of the visits we made to the United Kingdom, Mr. Bob Harris and Mr. Bob Sinclair, officers in the Foreign and Commonwealth Office, told us that they have to provide answers to questions raised in Parliament to their Minister within 48 hours of those questions being asked. I say that because it is a common tactic of the Leader of Government Business, the Minister of Education, who tries to make the public believe that the Backbench is stymieing the progress and work of Government when we bring questions. That could not be farther from the truth.

We are tired of hearing excuses about Government Ministers unable to do their work because of the long time spent in Parliament. The Business of the Government emanates from this Parliament—under our system without this Parliament the Government would not have any work to do! Parliament is supreme, and that is why we want this Freedom of Information Act or Law to come back to the select committee as quickly and expediently as possible. This is an integral part of the reforms now set in place by the Honourable Financial Secretary.

We have said a lot. I can only promise the Honourable House that the Backbench will continue to work conscientiously and diligently to provide enlightened legislation, and, since the country is being led from the Backbench, to provide enlightened leadership to the country.

The Speaker: The question is Private Member's Motion No. 12/98 as amended. I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 12/98 AS AMENDED PASSED.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 16/98, Amendment to the Marine Conservation Law of 1978. The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 16/98

AMENDMENT TO THE MARINE CONSERVATION LAW 1978

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: I beg to move Private Member's Motion No. 16/98, standing in my name which reads as follows:

“WHEREAS the Replenishment Zones, Marine Parks' Zones and Environmental Zones were established under the Marine Conservation Law, 1978;

“AND WHEREAS the Law has served well towards the protection and replenishment of certain endangered marine species and marine life;

“AND WHEREAS with the establishment of the Zones local fishermen have been restricted from using hand-lines in these good fishing areas;

“BE IT NOW THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT the Marine Conservation Law, 1978, be amended to allow hand-line fishing in the Marine Park Zone established between Northwest Point and the West Bay cemetery (Block 2 Parcel 61 - Block 5C Parcel 124).”

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks: I beg to second the motion.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 12/98 has been duly moved and seconded. It is my understanding that you have two amendments to this motion.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Yes, Mr. Speaker. I suggest that we take the amendments, then we can speak on them as well.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport will move his amendment to Private Member's Motion No. 16/98.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Thank you. I move the following amendment to Private Member's Motion No. 16/98.

NOTICE OF AMENDMENT (NO 1)
PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 16/98

AMENDMENT TO
THE MARINE CONSERVATION LAW 1978

"WHEREAS Stingray City and the Sand Bar are important natural marine environments;

"AND WHEREAS stingrays are a major attraction in the Cayman Islands;

"AND WHEREAS the full protection of stingrays, crabs, conch and various other sea life are vital to the ecology;

"I, the Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport seek to move, in accordance with the provisions of Standing Order 25(2), that Private Member's Motion No. 16/98 be amended:

'By the addition of the words: "and to protect Stingray City and the Sand Bar areas; to protect stingrays and to review the protection of lobsters, conch, crabs and other sea life", after the words and figures: "(Block 2 Parcel 61 - Block 5C Parcel 124)" as they appear in the last line of the last resolve.'

The Speaker: The amendment has been duly moved. The question is that Private Member's Motion No. 16/98 be amended. Does the proposer wish to speak to it?

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I do not intend to make a long contribution, but to merely say that for some time the Minister for the environment, as well as myself and other Members of Executive Council, have discussed the protection of Stingray City and the Sandbar area and dealing specifically with the need to review the law in regard to conch, lobsters, crabs and other marine life. But equally important is our need to protect the stingrays. I am not going to be the person who decides what the law should say, but I believe that it is very important that we look closely at what is happening at the Sandbar and Stingray City—in relation to the stingrays in particular, because they are such an attraction to the Cayman Islands.

Many of us who travel around the world see the advertisement for the Cayman Islands marine life focusing on the Sandbar and Stingray City. It is deemed to be one of the best shallow water dives in the world. One cannot quantify in millions of dollars the attraction that stingrays are to the Cayman Islands.

Perhaps I also need to say that I think it is high time that the amount of conch allowed under the Law or the taking of lobster or other marine life be reviewed in its entirety. Hopefully the Government and Members of the Legislative Assembly will reach a decision in the best interest of the people of the Cayman Islands now and in the future.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak to the amendment? If not, does the mover wish to say anything else? The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: No, Mr. Speaker, just to thank the Members of the Legislative Assembly for their silent support.

The Speaker: I shall put the question. Those in favour, of this amendment please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The amendment passes and the motion is amended accordingly.

AGREED: AMENDMENT (NO. 1) TO PRIVATE MEMBERS MOTION NO. 16/98 PASSED.

The Speaker: It is also my understanding that there is an amendment standing in the name of the First Elected Member for West Bay.

NOTICE OF AMENDMENT (NO. 2)
PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 16/98

AMENDMENT TO
THE MARINE CONSERVATION LAW 1978

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: I, the First Elected Member for West Bay seek to move, in accordance with the provisions of Standing Order 25(2), that Private Member's Motion No. 16/98 be amended: By the addition of the following 'Whereas' after the third 'Whereas' of the Motion:

"WHEREAS the Marine Conservation Law was came into effect in 1978 and whereas there have been several ad hoc changes over the years;"

and by the addition of the following three resolves:

“AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that a comprehensive review be taken of the Marine Conservation Law and Regulations in connection with marine parks, environmental zones, replenishment zones, fish pots, the Sand Bar, the taking of conch and lobster and other matters affecting the marine environment;

“AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the review be in early consultation with the Department of Environment, the Water Sports’ Operators, Honourable Members of this House and any other persons or bodies affected at meetings held in each district;

“AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the Report of the review be brought back to this Honourable House and any changes agreed on be put into Law.”

The Speaker: Is there a seconder? The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I beg to second the amendment.

The Speaker: The amendment has been duly moved and seconded. Does the mover wish to speak to it?

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: First of all, I would like to thank the two Members for West Bay who brought the substantive motion. All of us agree that our marine environment is most important, not only to the inhabitants of the country who utilise it as a means of getting a meal or enjoying it as a watersport, but important to the tourism industry. When the marine parks were being put in place, I did not agree with all that was being done, that is, some of the boundaries of the different zones. But to say that the zones have been successful would be to say the least.

The Law was passed in 1978 and I believe that the marine parks and the different zones came into existence in 1986. Over the years there have been different amendments, and much debate back and forth about the different zones, that is, marine parks, environmental zones, replenishment zones. As the Minister for Tourism said, the sandbar has been talked about also. But in more recent times, the issue of fishpots has come to the forefront.

The marine parks have been very successful. There is much talk, as the mover will discuss, about the movement of the boundaries where people can line fish. I think if you go back to between 1992 and 1996 there was a resolution moved by the Third Elected Member for West Bay and myself dealing with that issue. I believe in 1994 there was a request to look at the boundaries for line fishing inside the drop-off, or inside of 80 feet of water. There was much talk about that.

There is much heated debate today about fishpots. Times have changed in the country where people used to do a little bit of fishing. Today, there are virtually hundreds of boats, there are a lot of people using fish traps, or fishpots as we call them. People are using fishpots that catch a tremendous amount of small fish, marine life. They don't seem to care what size they are, what kind or the amount. I don't know the scientific name for some of this but there are some we call 'doctors,' which we never ate. They catch them in the fishpots.

I saw some time ago in the supermarket four or five small fish no longer than probably six inches. They were for sale! There is a high level of activity in regard to the amount of fishing going on. These fish traps are being used without. . . and it is not by the old time Caymanians, like Mr. Carl Ebanks. Those people know what they are doing. It is not they who are committing this atrocity, but people are doing it. The Environment Department has a big job to deal with it.

These traps are not set like the old time Caymanians used to set them. They knew which spots to set them in. What is happening now is that the people using these fishpots are setting them right along side of the reef, or in the reef itself! And they are not the traditional type of fishpot that we know about. Some of them are called S-pots. It is something that is worrying because we don't have, as you know being a maritime person yourself, Mr. Speaker, the shallow bars around this country, for instance like the Bahamas where they have hundreds of square miles for that sort of marine life to grow. It is something that is worrying me, these fishpots. I would say that probably some leeway needs to be given between the types of fishpots that are used.

I don't know scientifically what amount of sand is coming into the sandbar. I know from my recollection that that bar was much bigger than what it is today. I don't know what amount of sand is coming into the bar, but it must hold true that with the amount of activity, the number of boats—large boats—that come up on that sandbar and the kind of power they have, has got to be eating the sandbar away. As the Minister for Tourism said, it is a national asset.

I made a recommendation a long time ago—what the Minister for Tourism said is true, we had been discussing it in ExCo for a long time—to rake it around a certain distance so that people could only go to there, rather than going up. And I have seen boats do that—go right up on the bar. So they need to take some steps to safeguard the sandbar.

I don't get to go fishing often, but I love to fish. The taking of conch and lobster is a matter talked about often in the districts. I have heard different fishermen saying, 'Perhaps in the North Sound they need to look at the amount of conch and lobster taken, and the timeframe when lobster season is open. They probably need to look at that.' They are coming back since these things were put in place. There is evidence that there is more coming back. But does one boat need to take 20 conch at one time? These are questions that can be discussed in this comprehensive review I am talking about.

There are other matters affecting the marine environment that need to be taken into consideration, and these are matters that can be considered in a proper review. I feel that the people to have the review are the people with the scientific knowledge, the Department of the Environment. They are the people to head it up. They are the people to take it to the districts to get the watersports operators to get us as Members, because people in the districts come to us as their representatives, so it would be good for us to be involved. Other persons are bodies affected. At meetings in the districts the same way that was done when they explained the Marine Conservation Law, or the Marine Park System. They went throughout the country and talked about these things. All these matters I have raised are affecting people today. We are limited with the amount of shallow bar. . . I call it that because I can't use the scientific language. We are limited. The North Sound is a precious asset and there are many of us who still enjoy going there to take ten conch, to do some bottom fishing. We still love doing that.

It is sustaining the tourism industry. If these things are not done, then we will be devoid of one, probably the greatest, national asset that this country has. So I hope the Government will see fit to have this comprehensive review. As I said, people are talking about it throughout the country. Without any real discussion, I had no discussion with the Minister for Tourism about his amendment, yet there was his amendment. It shows that people are thinking. We bring these things because we are cognisant of it and people come to us. I am sure people have approached the mover of the substantive motion. I am sure people have talked to him because they talk to me. It is good to have this comprehensive review where the Ministry, the Department of the Environment can head this up and really get into the districts and talk to people who know about our waters.

The truth is, a lot of people who are talking about it, don't understand it. I am not here to lambaste any one situation, but just a few days ago we were trolling until we got to the spot we were going to fish. A dive boat (in the North Sound) came right behind us—we called out to them, motioned to them, but they didn't pay us no more heed than the man in the moon—and we had to take up our lines. There is need for dialogue. I know this has been a bone of contention for many years because if you check the Hansards, you will find that I brought many motions, seconded by the Third Elected Member for West Bay, about these matters.

They are still contentious to the old time fishermen, not a lot of them, but we have people who are respectful and they still do it as a means of an income and as a means of a sport they have known since they were young. We need to protect it. We need to look at these environmental zones or replenishment zones. I don't know if we can move the boundaries. I suggested that before, and it was not done. I don't know whether we can.

The Department of Environment does not favour moving the boundaries where you can line fish inside of 80 feet of the drop-off. I am talking about the south side of the islands. But when they sit down with us maybe something can be worked out to see whether or not, after these 12 years they have been in force, that one spot may be able to be moved. It might work out, I don't know. They are the scientific people. Rotate it every ten years, whatever.

I don't want to get into the substantive motion. I will take my seat. I hope that the Government will see fit to have this comprehensive review, that a report will be brought back to the House and any changes agreed on will be put into Law so that we will not have these many changes to the Law. Over the years there have been many changes.

Thank you for your indulgence, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak to amendment number 2? If not, does the mover wish to reply?

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: No, Mr. Speaker, just to thank everyone for their silent consent.

The Speaker: I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: AMENDMENT (NO. 2) TO PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 16/98 PASSED.

The Speaker: The motion stands amended accordingly. I now call upon the Third Elected Member for West Bay to move the substantive motion.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

As was mentioned in the motion, the Marine Conservation Law was established in 1978. For the benefit of Members and the listening public, I would just like to highlight some of the main areas of the Law.

Under definitions (1996 Revision), “drop-off” means the first part of the sea floor to attain not less than eighty feet in depth on a line proceeding from and at right angles to the shore;”

There shall be three categories of marine parks, namely, the replenishment zones, marine park zones and environmental zones. And in the replenishment zones, the following are prohibited: “4 (a) the taking of conch and lobster; (b) the use of spear guns, pole spears, fish traps and fish nets of all kinds, except that fry and sprat may be taken with fry or cast nets.”

“5(1) Subject to subregulations (2) and (3), the following are prohibited in marine park zones: (a) the taking of any form of marine life by any means; and (b) the anchoring of boats. (2) Notwithstanding subregulation (1), the taking of fish is permitted in the following circumstances: [this is within the marine parks] (a) by line, at or beyond the drop-off [which is a minimum of 80 feet of depth]; (b) by line from the shore, without the use of a boat; and (c) by use of fry or cast nets, where the fish taken are fry or sprat.”

Under section 6, it says, “The following are prohibited in environmental zones: (a) the taking of any form of marine life by any means; (b) the use of any anchor; (c) entry by any person into the water; and (d) exceeding a speed of five knots.”

The law also goes on to say: “ 8(2) Any person who permits or causes to be caught from or loaded on to any one vessel in any one day: (a) more than five lobsters of the kind referred to in subsection (1) for each person on board such vessel; or (b) fifteen such lobsters.” It limits the amount of lobster to any one boat to 15 per day. It says also, “ 9(1) Any person who takes from the Cayman waters in one day more than fifteen conch is guilty of an offence. (2) Any person who causes or permits to be loaded onto any vessel in Cayman waters more than twenty conch in any one day is guilty of an offence.” Mr. Speaker, you can take 15 lobster/20 conch per boat per day.

It says, “10 (1) The Governor may designate areas of Cayman waters to be restricted marine areas under the management of the Board for the purpose of marine research and development, and such areas shall be clearly demarcated and shall be closed to members of the public, save licensees of the Board.”

It goes on to say, “11(1) The Governor may designate certain areas of Cayman waters to be marine parks and such areas shall be clearly demarcated and subject to such restrictions of use by the public as the Governor may prescribe in each case.”

It says, “12. Any person who uses any noxious substance for the purpose of taking marine life in Cayman waters is guilty of an offence.”

“15. Any person who uses or attempts to use any seine or gill net for the purpose of taking marine life in Cayman waters is guilty of an offence.”

The penalties under the law are pretty severe. Under section 21 it says “When a person is convicted of an offence under this Law or any regulation relating to the taking of marine life, the court, on conviction, may order the forfeiture of any trap, net, diving equipment or other paraphernalia used or intended to be used in the commission of the offence and may order the forfeiture of any vessel or vehicle so used: Provided that in the case of forfeiture of a vessel or vehicles the owners thereof may be permitted to recover the same on payment of six thousand dollars or such lesser sum and upon such other terms as the court may order.”

I am aware of a number of people who were caught violating the marine park zones and in the process lost their boats and were also fined for the violation.

Under section 25, that is the Revision to the Marine Conservation Law 1995, it says, “Whoever contravenes this law or any regulation made hereunder is guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to a fine of five hundred thousand dollars and to imprisonment of twelve months and in addition thereto the court so convicting may order the confiscation of any vessel and equipment it is satisfied has been used for the purpose of committing or facilitating the commission of such offence, or was intended to be used for such purpose.”

What this means (and I am thinking of the cruise ships) is that a cruise ship, and I guess any other vessel, can be fined up to $500,000 and in the process they could also seize the vessel. So I suggest to the Minister for Tourism that the next time there is a violation, maybe he should hold the vessel for ransom as well! And he was the architect in getting the fine increased to $500,000.

There is no question in my mind that the marine parks, the replenishment zones and the environmental zones have been successful in saving the endangered marine species and also enabling the flourishing of marine life on a whole. The one thing I note is that we do have a few violators, but as a general rule people do respect the existence of the marine parks.

I totally support the idea of the Marine Conservation Law, and I also recognise the success with regard to protecting our waters and our marine life. But I personally believe that there has to be a balance obtained. When we go back through the history of our Caymanian people, we got our reputation from the sea. We were known as some of the best sailors in the world. There are a few of us in this House who had the experience of sailing the seas and making a living going back and forth as seamen. Back in those days the academic opportunities available to Caymanians were very limited, indeed. What was amazing was that once given an opportunity the heights to which many Caymanian men reached—some as high as captains of multi-million dollar oil tankers, master mariners. I am aware that you, Mr. Speaker, were involved in that trade for many years. I believe that is where you got your title of “Captain.” You were also very successful as a master mariner.

When I look at the law and the attitude of the people involved in the dive industry, it reminds me of the native Indians in North America when the Europeans came across to settle North America. They drove the Indians off the best land, they corralled them onto reservations and learned the history and the experience of the Indians. It was very sad indeed. They put them on reservations, took the best of the land and said, ‘You stay there now, and survive.’ Subsequently, they discovered oil, I understand, on some of the reservations. Then they said, ‘Uh-uh, you can’t stay on this one. Go somewhere else because we will take this as well.’ That seems to be the attitude that the majority of the people involved in the dive industry have.

I must also mention without fear of being corrected that probably 90% of the people involved in the dive industry are non-Caymanian. On a number of occasions I was invited out fishing with a friend of mine who does some bottom fishing. We went out on a Saturday morning and dropped anchor. To tell you the truth, I was depending upon him to know where it was legal to fish. We dropped anchor and started to fish. All of a sudden, here comes this dive boat, and they were not very kind at all. They said, "Get out of here. This is a marine park. You have no business being here." I understand, from this personal experience how our local Caymanian fishermen must feel when they go out on a daily basis, trying to earn a decent, legal living from fishing, and have to contend with some of these dive boat operators. Fishermen have told me that they have been trolling along in a legal fishing area and the dive boats run across the lines and cut them off. There is no apology, nothing. In other words, their attitude is 'You have no right to be here. These waters are owned by us, not by you local Caymanians who fought and worked so hard to establish the Cayman Islands as we know them, which provided an opportunity for us to be here on a work permit.'

The other issue that really annoys me is some of the articles I have read in the local paper in regard to the abuse of fishpots owned by our local Caymanians by divers who have no business in molesting those fishpots. I am quite sure I am not telling you anything, Mr. Speaker, because you are familiar with our way of life. But our local Caymanians who engage in setting fishpots (and I am aware that even the Minister for Communications has one) know the size wire to use, what size holes, to make sure that small fish can get in and out of the fishpot. So we don't have the abuse the First Elected Member for West Bay mentioned, of catching small fish in hordes. The majority of those people who set those types of fishpots, first of all, are not Caymanians. They have no real concern about the size of the fish, how many to take and how often to go there and check their fishpots. I have heard stories where a fishpot was set and was there for weeks and when it was checked it was filled with small, dead fish.

Now, I have no problem with controlling that type of activity in regard to fishpots. But our local Caymanians, and I am thinking in particular of one of our Caymanians from West Bay, Mr. Carlee Ebanks, who seems to have had a lot of bad experience with people abusing his fishpot, they know what they are doing. This gentleman spent something like 39 years as a seaman. Now in his golden years he comes home with the idea of being able to go back to his old way of life, doing a little bit of fishing, he and his grandsons, setting his fishpot to have something decent. This is not right.

It is different if he were guilty of the abuse I mentioned regarding wiping out schools of small fish. But this is not the case. The other thing we must keep in mind is that these fishpots are not cheap. They probably cost $200 to $300 for wire, and then you have to get somebody to make it up if you can't do it yourself. It takes time. It also takes time to set it properly and set a little buoy on it so you know where it is, so you can go back and check it. After doing all of that, and then find that someone has cut your wire and let out the fish, and destroyed the pot in the process, is enough to cause someone to hurt someone. All this kind of irresponsible behaviour does is further aggravate the resentment I hear mentioned on almost a daily basis now by our people against people who live and work among us.

Mr. Speaker, you are aware as I am that one of the keys to our success has been the ability of persons of all races and nationalities to live together here in the Cayman Islands in harmony. It is important for us to continue to maintain that type of environment here in the Cayman Islands. Mr. Carlee Ebanks' grandson, Capt. Vince Christian, mentioned something in his article in the newspaper of Wednesday, 10 June, 1998, and he says, "Now let's outline two of the main problems we have been faced with which in my opinion no one has the guts to address which started most of this issue of fishpots: (1) divers destroying fishpots. At present divers are cutting open people's fishpots which are not in marine parks, which in turn makes the fishermen lose weeks of catching fish and many times the cost of the pot which averages about $250 to $300 per pot. (2) No dive zones. It came clear to me during this meeting [he is referring to a meeting he had in the district on this issue] that no one wants to take it upon themselves to say we have to give back to the locals and not give everything to the divers (foreigners) as they have done. I am asking Government to zone part of West Bay, Northwest Point, as a no diving zone."

He goes on to say, "I do agree that only local fishermen should be allowed to use fish traps. I do agree we should have a limit on the amount of traps per person of two 'S' and three square shaped pots per person which was decided upon [in the meeting apparently]."

I believe the local Caymanian knows what the requirements are as far as the size of the wire and that type of thing and that only local Caymanians should be allowed to engage in this activity here in Grand Cayman. I do agree that we don't necessarily need to have a registration of fishpots. But some type of identification should be visible, and Government could issue that, perhaps some type of tag, so that when a diver sees it he will know that that pot is there with the permission of the Government. I don't think it should cost the local fishermen anything. Government provides a lot of other services that don't make sense, and a lot of times cost a lot of money. It would not be very difficult or expensive to get some of these made up and make them available to local fishermen who register with them their number of pots.

I believe that there has to be a balance maintained between protecting our marine environment for divers while at the same time allowing our local fishermen to be able to use their fishpots to catch fish. The thing to keep in mind, especially in my district of West Bay, is that a lot of these men depend upon these fishpots to earn a living. It is not a hobby, it is not a luxury, it is an essential source of income for them.

The Speaker: Would this be a convenient time to take the afternoon break?

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Yes sir.

The Speaker: Proceedings are suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.42 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.06 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Debate continues. The Third Elected Member for West Bay, continuing.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Reading the legislation, certain thoughts came to my mind. One was that it is obvious that some of the persons responsible for this legislation were not fishermen and were protecting certain interest groups. I have no objection to restricting the use of a spear gun, because if the fish are down there and do not want to bite, you can shoot them! But to say that we restrict fishing with a handline—and I never understood the logic—in marine parks. . . . There are two areas you can fish with a handline: off the rocks, and, if you are in a boat, in water 80 feet deep or beyond. Mr. Speaker, you and I both know that you can go out there and see all the beautiful fish in the sea, and if you use a handline and don't have the talent and experience of knowing how to fish, you would starve to death! At the same time, allowing the use a seine or a cast net in marine parks does not make sense. It is obvious they were trying to protect certain people with that. I can't say that I have any objection to that because I know some of those people too who also make a living from selling sprats and that type of thing. But the point I want to make is that it doesn't make a whole lot of sense to me to restrict people from using a handline for fishing. I have done a lot of fishing in my days, fishing with a speargun, trolling, and just using a handline while drifting. Having a line does not mean you will catch fish.

The other obvious thing, and I understand it gives the fishermen problems, is that the authorities responsible for policing the marine parks have established a few buoys at the drop off, which is 80 feet or beyond. If you are inclined to go that far to fish, at least you have something you can tie on to. But many times what happens is that even though that is the only area where one is legally allowed to fish, one has to compete with dive boats to tie up to one of these buoys. They own the whole marine area within the 80 foot depth and even that portion they try to control. They want the whole ocean!

To tell you the truth, it is a good thing that I am kept so busy that I don't have the time I used to have to fish. I can tell you that I would not tolerate the kind of nonsense that I hear some of our fishermen have to tolerate from some of those dive boat operators.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: You would fix them!

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: I would fix them!

[Laughter]

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: In regard to the amendments brought to the motion, I would just like to mention a few thoughts on protecting Stingray City. I am one representative (and I am sure there are others) who takes time out to talk to the average Caymanian about what is going on. I have learned what his experiences are, so I am in a position to speak, should I say, intelligently about the issue. I sat down with some of those operators and asked what were some of the difficulties they saw out there in regard to Stingray City or the Sandbar. They told me, "John, one of the first things we have to do is limit the number of people allowed to visit Stingray City at any one time."

I have only been there two or three times, and I can contest to what they are saying. Huge boats come in there, and the majority of them are not owned by Caymanians. They have 100 or 150 persons on board and they come there and just dump people in the water. It is not too long before another one comes. So you could have 300 or 400 people in there at any one time enjoying the stingrays and the environment at Stingray City. The average Caymanian operator in that area feels that we need to restrict or limit the number of people allowed to visit Stingray City at any one time.

The other thing they mentioned is that it would be good if they had a few additional buoys to tie up to when they do arrive at the sandbar. Doing that would protect the coral in that area from dropping anchors. The other issue was handling of the stingrays themselves. I remember the last time I went there. I am not a very timid person, but when I saw the stingrays (which are probably close to six feet wide) coming toward me, and basically the reason they was coming toward me was to get fed, it was not a pleasant experience at all. If you don't have anything, Mr. Speaker, they will just come up and suck onto your arm or your leg. I remember that there were others who were a little braver than I, with whom I defended myself!

I am told that a lot of the operators pick the stingray up, and actually hold the animal out of the water in order for the visitor to view the stingray and take photos. I think this was the point the Minister for Tourism and the First Elected Member for West Bay wanted to bring out: Stingray City and the stingrays are so important for tourism in this country that we cannot take any chances with something going wrong there.

It is interesting to learn why we have stingrays in that area. Some of the old fishermen—Capt. Marvin Ebanks, and Capt. Crosby and a few of the others—told me that they used to go in this area and feed the stingrays. Over a period of time they attracted others, and that is why we have the attraction we do today. But if those stingrays decide they don't like the environment anymore, that there are too many people around, they will move on. All of a sudden we will have a tragedy on our hands, tourism-wise, because it is a major attraction.

So I think that any legislation put forward in regard to the protection of the stingray has to take into consideration the actual handling of the stingrays. There is nothing wrong with taking a piece of squid and holding it in your hand to allow the stingray to come up and eat out of your hand, but we have to be very careful with how those animals are handled.

On the issue of conch, I read that you are allowed 20 per boat per day. I was not aware until just recently that we don't have a closed season for conch. Many other destinations, like Jamaica where there is a lot of conch, have closed seasons. Now if each person, or each boat that operates in the North Sound is allowed to take 20 conch per day. . . it doesn't take a mathematician to figure out that pretty soon we will not have anything in that areas. I think that is the experience most people are having there now.

I recall probably 15 or 20 years ago when I went snorkelling in that area. We swam for yards and I don't recall seeing even one conch or one lobster. The North Sound was a place where, when I was a boy, you could go out and pick up as many conch as you wanted. Back in those days you saw people coming to shore with 400 to 500 lobster at a time. We need to put some restrictions in place in regard to conch. And I believe that we do need a closed season for conch, as we have for lobster. I am aware that in Jamaica they have a closed season that probably runs three or four months. They also have a quota of what you can take, even over a season. Any amendment to this legislation in regard to conch must take into consideration imposing a closed season.

We do have a closed season in regard to lobster, and that has worked very well from what I am told, in regard to bringing the population back. But somebody mentioned to me recently that maybe we should look at the months that we have in place for a closed season, as opposed to the months we have in regard to the open season because they are saying that maybe we should reverse it. What happens now when the season is open is that the lobsters are spawning, or they have young ones. We all know that if we don't allow the lobsters to breed, pretty soon we will not have the population we are looking for. It is something that was brought to my attention, and I would just like to pass that on for whatever it is worth. Maybe we should do some research to see if the season we have now, as far as restriction, is the right time.

My motion was with a specific request. It was brought as a result of some of my local fishermen in West Bay approaching me saying, "John, here is something that we need for the Legislative Assembly to consider. That is, amending the marine park area known as 2B Northwest Point through the West Bay cemetery." The First Elected Member for West Bay mentioned that between 1988 and 1992 we (that is he and I) brought a motion asking Government to consider a window in the marine park. That window is between the cemetery and Victoria House. What the local fishermen are saying—and they are prepared to give, Mr. Speaker—is what Government should consider doing is closing the window between the cemetery and Victoria House. They say that it falls within the tourist area, that it is shallow and consists of a lot of marine life, a lot of coral which marine life feed on, the small fish, etc., and it does pose a problem when they go in this area to fish with a handline in that there are divers, snorklers, and swimmers which they must be careful to avoid. What they are saying is that they are prepared to give up that window, if Government would consider opening up the marine park between the cemetery and the Cook's Pier in Northwest Point. That would start the window across from Four Winds Esso in West Bay.

According to them, we will exclude the major dive sites in that area, most of the coral reef in that area because most of them are further up, and also, the water between Four Winds Esso and the pier in Northwest Point, is very deep which is not as attractive for the breeding of marine life as it would be further up, that is from the cemetery going south where it is very shallow, and there are a number of dive sites as well as coral reefs in that area.

One of the difficulties they are having is when going north around Northwest Point going. According to my research, you can fish in that area with handline and towing. But the problem in that area is that the weather is not very good a lot of times, and the fishermen refer to it as "the point of no return" in that a number of fishermen as well as vessels have disappeared in this area. I believe this is a very reasonable request. Because we authorise them to use a handline in this area does not mean they are going to endanger the amount of marine life in the area. Anyone who knows anything about fishing can attest to the fact that just because you see them down there does not mean you will catch them.

I believe that this is an area that, because of the depth of the water, would allow the fishermen to fish in a more attractive area than having to go out to the drop off. I always had the impression, until I looked at the Law, that the drop off meant out in the black, meaning that you would not even see the bottom in that area. For us as representatives to say to our local fishermen 'This is the only area we are going to allow you to fish,' I think is very cruel indeed, and inconsiderate.

A number of the persons who approached me make their living by fishing and are very responsible. What most of our local fishermen do is release fish that are too small. So I, for one, do not have any real concern in regard to any kind of abuse by our local fishermen in this area. One of the difficulties is that we have fishermen, at least in West Bay, who fish in boats without engines. So to say to that fisherman, 'You have to paddle that boat out to the drop off, and hope that when you get there, no divers are tied up to the buoy,' . . . we would rather be in a position to say, 'If you don't have an engine, here is an area that is a little shallower, just as attractive for fishing purposes, that you can also fish in.'

I believe that that makes sense. I think it is very reasonable and I believe that the majority of our local fishermen will appreciate a gesture of that nature.

Mr. Speaker, I notice it is 4.30.

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: I have apologies from the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs. The Honourable Third Official Member will be arriving later this morning; the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture will be arriving later this morning; the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport will be arriving later this morning. I have apologies from the First Elected Member for George Town who will be arriving later this morning, and the First Elected Member for West Bay is off the island.

Questions to Honourable Ministers/Members. Question 108 is standing in the name of the First Elected Member for West Bay. Has someone been asked to take that question?

Hon. John B. McLean: Mr. Speaker, I don't have a problem with having it delayed. We can answer it when he comes back.

The Speaker: Would you repeat that please?

Hon. John B. McLean: The First Elected Member for West Bay is not here, and I am saying that we could delay it and answer it when he is here.

The Speaker: We will just put that off then, and go on to question 109, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for George Town—he's not here either. We will go on to question 110, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION 110

No. 110: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation to provide a breakdown of the number of persons currently using the Cayman Counselling Centre's substance abuse programmes since January 1998, using criterion of new clients and continuing clients.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: From January 1998, 406 persons have received counselling services at Cayman Counselling Centre, of these, 114 are new clients, and the balance of 292 are continuing clients which includes attending the Counselling Centre on Cayman Brac. Broken down by districts, these are:

District	Total	New	Continuing
Bodden Town	43	11	32
East End	8	2	6
George Town	153	32	121
North Side	10	4	6
West Bay	163	43	120
Cayman Brac	23	16	7
Unknown	5	5
Overseas residents	1	1

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister give the average length of time these clients may take counselling? I know it is on a voluntary basis, but what is the average length of time persons continue in the programme before dropping out or reaching the stage where they think they have the problem manageable?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: I am informed between four to six months.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: I recall when we were doing the district health clinics that one of the uses of the clinics was the holding of counselling meetings by the drug counselling unit. Can the Honourable Minister say what services are made available at the district level at present?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: On Grand Cayman these services are provided in the district. We have five days per week in George Town at Cayman Counselling Centre, also five days per week in Cayman Brac at the Sister Island Counselling Centre. Just for information, in the Bodden Town there are approximately six people attending these counselling sessions; West Bay, there are twelve, in East End there are five, there are three in North Side, and twenty-three in Cayman Brac.

As you know, this is a new thing with the Health Centres. As we continue to make the public aware of the facilities, we look forward to being able to help the clients in the districts instead of having to come into George Town. We feel this is a better approach, as you know many people do not want to come into George Town.

The Speaker: The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: I think the Hon. Minister said there were three persons in the district of North Side using the services of the North Side Clinic. Can the Honourable Minister say what time of the day these services are offered in that district?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: At present it is from 2.00 to 5.00 PM. But we will look to increase this as the demand increases.

The Speaker: The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Can the Honourable Minister say if the community worker in North Side works with these young people who have this problem? We know they do not come forward on their own, even though we say they must accept the fact that they have a problem and not be in denial. But does this community worker try to get them into this drug counselling programme offered at the clinic?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: At present I am informed that this will be the approach. As we talked about in our meeting earlier on, we will use someone who is in North Side, as we all know when you are comfortable you do not want to come out of your shell. As you know, next year, God willing, we will have a community worker directly in North Side.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: I am aware that there are some groups meeting on a voluntary basis, especially in West Bay. Is an officer from the Counselling Centre present at these meetings? And if so, at what time are these sessions held?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: In West Bay they are held from 8.00 to 9.00 PM. If the counsellors are invited to the self-help groups (which is not necessarily organised by Cayman Counselling Centre) we would certainly attend.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Before I ask my question, I would like to commend the Minister on what seems to be a good beginning. I wish him continued success. For purposes of clarification, can the Minister explain to the House whether the overseas resident (as listed here) means a Caymanian overseas in a programme, or a person from overseas taking advantage of the programme offered here?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: This could be a person visiting, a tourist, or someone who does not have Cayman status.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you. That is what I thought it was. Can the Honourable Minister say if his—how should I put it?—aggressive, popular and widespread programme (as seen from these statistics) means that we have lessened the necessity to refer Caymanians overseas for counselling, or if we have any Caymanians currently overseas attending counselling centres?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Sadly, it does not lessen the problem. I think until we get a residential facility in place...and to answer the second question, we have no one overseas at present, but we are looking to send two people.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: For purposes of clarification, can the Honourable Minister say if these persons are those who fail to make any progress in our local counselling centre, or are they persons who completed a period of counselling and perhaps went overseas for further reinforcement which may not be available here.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: These two individuals have attempted to deal repeatedly with the situation in our outpatient programme. They have not succeeded. This is more like intensive in-patient care for them.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Are there any facilities for even a temporary transfer of these clients from their original environment where maybe it would be more difficult for them to make contact with old friends and colleagues?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: We do not have such a facility at this time for the adults. With the juveniles, we try to accommodate them at Cayman Islands Marine Institute (CIMI) and the boy's home. We take them out of an existing environment where it would be conducive for them to relapse.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks: Can the Honourable Minister say how many times per week the counselling is held at West Bay?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: On Wednesdays, from 1.00 to 5.00 PM.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Can the Honourable Minister say if there is any relationship between the Cayman Counselling Centre programme and Canaan Land in regard to residential services?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: At this time we do have dialogue with Canaan Land. We have made a couple of referrals. But as I said when I answered a question earlier this week, the approach used and the clientele they cater to is not as broad as we need for overall success in the Cayman Islands. But we will be meeting with them I think on the 16th to go into more detail. I can let the House know that we have had research done by a firm out of Canada. They have supported the Christian aspect as being put forward by Canaan Land as a successful way for drug rehabilitation. So we will be working as a partnership covering the different areas where a client may prefer to go through that system. But it has to be organised and in a system which complies with what we want for Cayman to go forward.

The Speaker: The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: In his answer, the Hon. Minister said there was a total of 406 persons receiving counselling services from Cayman Counselling Centre. Once these 406 people have completed this counselling, how are they monitored? What programmes are in place once they leave the counselling services?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Once they come into the system there is a procedure in place where the counsellors follow-up with them. They also attempt to get job placements for them and they will always come back and touch base with the counsellor. There are some who will fall away, but we try to stay on top. We have a record of where they are and how to get in touch with them.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: I want to commend those people who take advantage of this service. I know there is a certain philosophy, but what are the thoughts of Cayman Counselling Centre about addicts who do not voluntarily come forward? Do they think in that area at all? Every district is infected with people of that nature.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: At present it is very difficult to deal with this situation. That is why we have to address demand reduction at a very early level within our schools. It is the only way for us to be successful. Parents and family support must help the children. It has been proven that until the addict admits he has a problem, sometimes going literally to the bottom, once this realisation sets in and wants help, we can bring him in. But if his heart is not in it, I am afraid there is not much success. It is incumbent that the person wants help. Once he reaches that stage he is on his way to victory.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: I have a different philosophy. I believe that if we are going to save this country we cannot completely depend upon people with a problem in that area to voluntarily come forward. Can the Honourable Minister say how soon he expects to have a residential facility available for drug counselling?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: As noted in the recent issue of the Caymanian Compass we resubmitted the rehab centre in Breakers [to Planning]. This area has been zoned institutional. Most of the infrastructure is there. We took that building and made sure that it did not continue to deteriorate. It would be by next year, if approval is given. I always give the residents their democratic right to make objections, but once this can be dealt with, I hope we can go forward.

It is a matter of educating the public, letting them realise that we will not be sending criminals there. Before I took on board the possibility of locating this facility there, I visited Hanley Hazelden in West Palm Beach. Right across from that facility, less than a couple of hundred feet, away is a sub-division.

As I lived in that area myself for several years, I would not look to endanger the people of Breakers. This facility is where we would try to help people, as we would if they had diabetes or cancer or some other disease. We all know that drug addiction is a medical problem. This would be providing reinforcement and a stable area where people can recover. We will not put criminals there. If a person is criminally charged he will continue to go to Northward.

This is what I need, and I look forward to sharing with all Cayman. No matter where we go with this facility, none of us want these things in our back yards. But every time a person is convicted with a drug problem, they talk about rehab. That is the only way to go. Many of our young, good, Caymanians sat down and cried, saying that if they only had a facility like that in place they would not have sunken to the depths they had. We need to educate our Caymanians.

We have to provide help for them, or God help us. This is the whole mission of the National Drug Council, to co-ordinate all the efforts being put forward, not just fragmented. Canaan Land, Cayman Counselling Centre, CASA, the schools, all have to co-ordinate efforts for the entire community, and above all, families, parents, must get involved in this effort. We cannot do it by ourselves. No matter how many counsellors or police we have, or how many prisons we build, if we don't start at home it is a failure.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries the next question is No. 111, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 111

No. 111: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation if the cells at the West Bay Police Station are still being used as a Remand Facility for youth.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Regretfully, the cells at the West Bay Police Station are still being used as a Remand Facility for youth.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say how many youth are housed at this facility at this time, and also the gender?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: I don't have the numbers at present, but through the end of May, 46 youths were detained. I will get the figures and gender and share that with the Member.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Some time ago it was mooted that the old Dr. Hortor Memorial site was being considered as a possible location for the remand facility. Can the Honourable Minister tell the House if this is still topical, or were these official discussions?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, Mr. Speaker. As a matter of fact the initial drawings have been done and the Public Service Investment Committee document has been developed and is slated to be reviewed in a meeting to be held on the 16th of this month.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, we will return to question 109, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION 109

No. 109: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works to give an update on the national street lighting programme.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: The street lighting programme for Grand Cayman was completed in December 1996. No new programme has been brought to our attention for completion. Requests for streetlights continue to be made through the Ministry, and I would add that we have been trying our best to honour whatever requests have been brought in.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister say if there are any specific funds in place for requests made from time to time on an individual basis?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: While we have some funds in place for streetlights, we definitely do not have sufficient to match what we need to accommodate the actual requests.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister say if there has been any concerted effort to look into the many subdivisions throughout the island with a view to possibly engaging in another programme down the line, seeing that the original programme was for main thoroughfares, as I understand?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: The Member is correct. We have definitely looked at all avenues. As a matter of fact, there have been certain areas requested where we are aware there have been drug operations going on. We have moved in and tried to clear those up. It is an ongoing study and we will do whatever possible to accommodate those areas especially. I know he is aware of several accidents here in George Town in dark areas. We moved in immediately to clear them up. It is our intention to continue doing that.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: With a clearer understanding of what the situation is now, and also with the experience of some individuals making requests and having those requests granted, what has been happening is that certain areas are what I would call lit pockets. Those pockets glaringly show the lack of lighting in other areas in the vicinity. Would the Minister give an undertaking to try to move forward with the investigations he has alluded to in order that within months from now possibly, some programme can be engaged in so that people know it is a continuing programme—not by individual request, but once the funding is in place. Would he give that undertaking to deal with that by the next budget session so that it can perhaps be dealt with in that fashion?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: I support that 100 percent because I think that whatever we can do, especially in the areas I mentioned to curtail the problems we have with drug abuse, I would be most happy to do so. So I will give the undertaking to the House that we will look at another programme. I would just ask that the House give me full assistance when I bring the budget back in the budget session.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Miss Heather D. Bodden: I would like to thank the Hon. Minister for his undertaking to see that these are being carried out. I would like to say to the Hon. Minister that he received a lengthy list from me. Would he kindly give the undertaking that these requests in the District of Bodden Town be carried out as soon as possible?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister Responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: As I pointed out, we have been working within the funds we have. I have no problem with any requests from anyone. Whatever comes in to me is immediately sent on and we try to get it put in place as quickly as possible. We have been on the requests put in by the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Can the Honourable Minister say if a new programme would be started when requests are received? I know that some months ago a request was made to light the Botanic Park Road because a lot of residents in the Frank Sound area use this to exercise, by walking.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: I think I answered that in the original answer. The First Elected Member for George Town requested a new programme be started in the Budget session before us. I gave that undertaking. Until that time we will continue to try to honour whatever requests come in from any MLA or anybody else, to try to light as much as we can. We will be working within the funds that are available to us.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Miss Heather D. Bodden: Thank you. The Hon. Minister is aware that the cost is up by 20 percent. Is there any possibility of him negotiating a reduction?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: The reason we have a very good figure today with the lighting system in Grand Cayman is because of ongoing negotiations. We will continue to negotiate with CUC to make sure that we provide this very necessary service to the public at the most reasonable cost.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, the mover of question 108 is absent and has not deputised anyone to answer that question. So I ask that it be postponed to a later sitting. That concludes Question Time for this morning. We will move on now to item 4 on today's Order Paper, Other Business—

Hon. John B. McLean: Mr. Speaker, before we go on to that, if you would so care I can circulate the answer to the Member. If not, I can answer it whenever he comes back.

The Speaker: I would prefer to postpone it. Maybe he will be back on Wednesday and he can ask it.

Hon. John B. McLean: That is fine.

The Speaker: Private Members' Motions. Private Member's Motion No. 16/98, Amendment of Marine Conservation Law, 1978. The Third Elected Member for West Bay continuing.

OTHER BUSINESS

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 16/98

AMENDMENT TO THE MARINE CONSERVATION LAW 1978

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: When we adjourned yesterday, I was dealing with requests by local fishermen in West Bay in regard to opening up the present marine park which is located from Northwest Point to the West Bay cemetery. I mentioned that it was recommended that this window be opposite the Four Winds Esso gas station in West Bay down to the Cooks Pier. The reason for this is because there are no major dive sites beyond that point, the water is much deeper than it is along Seven Mile Beach, and also the coral reef in that area is also limited.

I was also dealing with the present conflict that exists between our local fishermen and the dive operators in regard to where they can and cannot fish, and some of the experiences the local fishermen have been having. I believe that word has to get out if this abuse where the dive boat operators carelessly run over lines where people are trolling, or maliciously damaging fishpots on the ocean floor doesn't stop on a voluntary basis, we as representatives are prepared to deal with it through legislation.

The other area I think we need to look at is beefing up the monitoring and patrolling of our marine parks and our environmental zones to make sure that there is no abuse in those designated areas. It is very important to our tourism industry that we continue to have an abundance of healthy marine life. I am told that behind the West Bay Cemetery is one of the most attractive areas for snorkelling because of the abundance of marine life in that area. That is rightfully protected by the Marine Laws of this country. But I am also aware that abuse takes place because I get calls from people who actually see people who visit these marine parks and take conch, or lobster very early in the morning. Then they go around peddling these products for sale. I think it is important enough to warrant that we ensure our marine parks and safe haven areas are monitored and patrolled on a 24-hour basis.

The other thing I have been told by persons engaged in monitoring and patrolling the parks is that in order to get a job in that area you have to, first of all, have your own boat. This limits the number of good people who might make themselves available. I might be a good person and have an interest in that area, but not able to go out and invest $10,000 in a new boat and engine just to work for the marine patrol guarding the marine parks. I believe that it is important enough—

[Inaudible comment]

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: The Hon. Minister is saying that this is not true—

Hon. John B. McLean: If the Member would give way, Mr. Speaker, on a point of clarification, we do have our own boats. I am glad that he touched on this as we need more boats. We do have complaints sometimes from North Side or East End, but the fact remains that if we have two boats operating on Seven Mile Beach or in the North Sound, by the time they take them out of the water and get them up to East End or North Side it is impossible for us to catch the culprit. So I totally support the idea of getting more equipment. I cannot give the number of officers we have. The fact remains that we have the bodies but need the equipment.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay continuing.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. And I also want to thank the Hon. Minister for his clarification. But I have spoken to some of those persons employed in that area. I was told by them that they had to own their own boat in order to get the job. But I assure him that whatever requests come to this House for additional funds in order to beef up that area, he will definitely have my support. I think it is very important for us to guard and protect what we have.

The motion, as amended, also calls for a comprehensive review of the Marine Conservation Law and Regulations in connection with marine parks, environmental zones and replenishment zones. I support that call. Our present Laws have been in existence for 12 years. Because they do relate to such an important area it makes sense for us to review the Laws with a view to making improvements, and maybe strengthening the penalties for abuse of marine parks. I think that is very positive. I also believe that maybe the best way for us to eliminate or reduce the tension that presently exists between our local fishermen and dive boat operators is maybe through district meetings or even a select committee where we can call in representatives from the dive boat operations, and our local fishermen, and others who might have an interest. Hopefully we would be in a position where we could arrive at some sensible conclusions and agreements in this area.

At this time I will take my seat and allow other Hon. Members to offer their comments. But I believe that this is a very reasonable request, and I crave the support of all Hon. Members of this House.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Miss Heather D. Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I rise to offer my contribution to Private Member's Motion No. 16/98, Amendment to the Marine Conservation Law, 1978. First let me say that this amendment has been met with much enthusiasm and support by residents as well as Caymanian watersports operators. I am also made to understand by concerned Caymanian fishermen that the area between Northwest Point and the West Bay cemetery should be opened to hand-line fishing. One important reason for this is that local fishermen who depend upon this for their livelihood could still go fishing even in the event of bad weather.

In addition, I fully support the comprehensive review being proposed in connection with marine parks, environmental zones, and replenishment zones, fishpots and the sandbar. With respect to the protection of conch and lobster, I have received representation from watersports operators that conch should be reduced from twenty per boat to ten per boat or eight per person. It has also been suggested that the open season for lobster should be reduced from six months to two months. Limits on the number of lobster taken should be reduced from five per person to two per person. In addition, tropical reef fish should have a minimum size limit, depending upon the species of fish.

I thoroughly agree with the Third Elected Member for West Bay, that fishpots should be licensed in order to assist fishermen who are suffering loss of property while this activity goes unregulated. Watersports operators have also welcomed this initiative which would enable the relevant authorities to police the use of fishpots and better regulate the use of our marine resources.

I applaud the efforts of the Third Elected Member for West Bay in bringing this matter to the forefront. Our precious marine environment is a source of income for many Caymanians. At the same time it is our national heritage and we must all recognise that protection and conservation are the only ways to ensure that the limited resources we have available are not depleted for future generations.

Finally, I look forward to the report of the review. There is a substantial population of Caymanians who are depending upon us as legislators to bring this back to the Honourable House and for the changes to be put into Law. Colleagues, let us not disappoint them.

Thank you.

The Speaker: We shall suspend for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.10 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.50 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Debate continues on Private Member's Motion No. 16/98. Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause) Does any other Member wish to speak?

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Mr. Speaker, it would be good if we heard whether or not Government accepts the motion.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you.

On behalf of Government, I am pleased to say that we accept the motion before the House. The concerns that have been aired by all Members who spoke, are concerns of Government and we are willing to do whatever possible to try to put this right. We share the same concern, that is, for the future of the Cayman Islands.

I would also say that the department for which I am responsible has been very concerned for a long time. As a matter of fact, I would say that it was probably a year ago when we started being very harsh with persons utilising fishpots which are not the type that our Caymanians utilised in prior years.

I fully support what my colleague, the Hon. Minister for Tourism, said when he stated that we needed to include a revision in regard to conch, lobster and crab. I would like to say that we need to take this a bit further because we also need to look at the land crab. This is something we have all enjoyed over the years. Because of certain persons coming into this country we find that even during the times when they are actually spawning, they are still being taken.

To go back to the fishpots, I can stand here today and confidently say that we don't have any Caymanian fishermen who would ever take a pot, actually set it on the reef and collect the little, what we call, decorator fish and not release it back into the water. But, of course, we have to be cognisant of the fact that there are those here who are actually doing that. We must put a stop to it.

I also support the idea, as does Government, of protecting the sandbar, and along with that we must also be very careful especially with the stingrays. I can only repeat what has been said in this regard because the fact remains that our dive industry depends heavily, especially on Stingray City. If we do not take the necessary steps to ensure that that is protected, then we will be destroying a very important asset of the Cayman Islands.

I give the House and Members the assurance that whatever possible through my Ministry and Department we are prepared to do to make sure that we maintain what we have. If anything, we will try to make it better for future generations.

The other thing that was mentioned...I realise that we have a dive industry, and I realise that local fishermen have suffered as a result of certain individuals who have taken it upon themselves to destroy what a fisherman may be utilising to collect fish as a livelihood. I think that in order for this to work we need to work together, that is, the fishermen, Government and the dive industry. The fact remains that we have to realise that while we support the dive industry 100 percent, we still have to support our local individuals. I cannot say anything else other than I do not support any dive group that would go out there and find a fishpot and take it on their own and destroy it. What I would strongly suggest is that if something annoys them in regard to fishpots, they should bring it to the attention of the relevant department. We would certainly appreciate that. I think that is what I mean when I say we are working together for the betterment of the Cayman Islands.

I also believe that the time has come when we can review replenishment zones, marine parks and environmental zones. I think that what we have actually had in the law over the years has worked well, and we can be pleased with what has happened. If that decision were not taken back in 1978 when the law came in force, we would not have what we have today. So I totally agree that we must continue to maintain and try to make better what was actually put in force at that time.

I believe that this review would help us to look at all aspects of marine life. As I said earlier, we cannot lose sight of what is on land. Although it does not fall under the Marine Law, we need to look and make sure that the things which people generations before actually enjoyed can continue and be passed on to generations to come. I am pleased to know that the Government is willing to accept the motion and the amendments to the motion, and that we are prepared to sit down and try to work out what is best for the future of this country.

I think with the individuals who will be involved in it, we will be able to come together and talk about it and actually put in force what will be best for the future of the Cayman Islands.

Again, I would like to say that on behalf of Government I am pleased to accept this motion.

READING BY THE SPEAKER OF MESSAGES AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

APOLOGY

The Speaker: Before calling on the next Member, I would like to say that I have received apologies from the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development who will be absent this afternoon as he has important meetings to attend.

Does any other Member wish to speak? The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: I rise to make my contribution to Private Member's Motion No. 16/98, Amendment to the Marine Conservation Law, 1978.

We, in the Cayman Islands, have in many respects developed a late consciousness in regard to conservation and preservation of certain things. Nevertheless, I think that our efforts, although late in many areas, and in some instances still lagging, have to be commended. Certainly, that is relevant and applicable in this sense.

I was not around in these hallowed chambers in 1978 when the original Marine Conservation Law was hammered out, but I well recall the debate and the sentiments expressed at that time by those pro and con. It is safe to say that, barring election campaign time, one of the most controversial issues one can introduce is anything having to do with conserving and preserving our environment. If you really want to find out how strong you are, just go and open up an argument that has to do with tightening, conserving or preserving, these kinds of things. Believe you me, if your feet are not firmly planted, you better pray that they are light because you will have to be fleet of foot.

I think this is a good motion and I am happy that the Government has seen fit to accept it. But I suppose that I do not have to caution those involved that now the work really begins. Be you sure that the Government is going to be buffeted by all sorts of experts and people with opinions that are going to be scientific, modern, practical, but no one will admit that some of them are going to be self-serving. So it is incumbent upon Government to keep a balance.

We have to tread that delicate balance because as the Minister and several other speakers alluded to, what we have to do is not easy for we have to satisfy the dive industry and those people who cater to that element of tourism who find this their main attraction to the Cayman Islands as well as Caymanian residents and other people who live here and have relished over the years their ability to fish in certain form or fashion. So it is indeed a challenging task we have set for ourselves.

One can arrive at some sense of this if one were following the letters to the Editor in the very recent editions of the newspaper. The fishpot issue is still a topical issue and I want to take a few minutes to air my thoughts on this for what it is worth.

Let me preface what I have to say by saying this: Over the generations Caymanians have looked to the sea as a primary source of food. Once upon a time, long before we were as modern and affluent as we are now, we lived mainly off fish, turtle, as well as conch and lobster. We supplemented that with what we called ground provisions which Caymanians cultivated on their plantations.

We have evolved, population-wise many thousands more, and our patterns have changed to the point where it is now accurate to remark that fish is a rarity to most traditional Caymanian families. Fish as a dietary supplement is perhaps more sought after by visitors and residents here than to persons like myself who are established here. This is not to say that we still do not relish a good meal of fish, or that we do not appreciate it. But somehow, it has seemed more attractive to newcomers, although you could get the old Caymanian to walk a mile and more for a good pot of fish rundown!

As a result, the marine life has had certain pressures brought upon it. I think one Member, and it may have been the Minister replying on behalf of Government, brought out the fact that many persons who use fishpots now do not use fishpots in the old traditional Caymanian way of using the fishpot. The Caymanian had a strict category. When certain types of fish were caught in the pot of a Caymanian, they were released. They were released according to types and size. Nowadays it is safe to say that many persons—not Caymanian—who use fishpots are less discriminating and tend to take smaller fish and fish other than those traditionally eaten or caught by Caymanians. So, this is an increasing pressure and this custom impinges to a detrimental level our marine life.

There is also the clash between the traditional fishpot users and the dive industry, which believes that the marine life should be exclusively for their entertainment, and that those persons who rely on their pots to catch fish should not be accommodated. Certainly, that has been the gist of many of the letters I have read recently in the Caymanian Compass, this rivalry between those people who believe that they should have a right to practice what was done in years gone by, make and settle their fishpots, and those people who see the setting of fishpots as an infringement and an indiscriminate way of trimming marine life.

It has not been easy. I received a complaint from a young man in my constituency about a year ago about a resident who continuously cut holes in his fishpot, letting the fish escape. That confrontation got to the point where I had to offer my services to mediate because I was afraid it was not going to end well. What is unfortunate about this situations is that cursorily it seems that both parties are right; it seems that a person should have a right to set a fishpot to catch fish, but it also seems that persons who want to dive have a right to see and interact with marine life. In this particular case we managed to strike a happy medium and apportion the area being disputed into zones where no fishpots would be set and it would be reserved exclusively for diving.

I look forward to wide and varied input. I am prepared to play my part. I have persons in my constituency who are concerned about this and from my perspective, I will certainly do all I can to assist Government to come to an amicable and wide understanding of this issue so that we can craft a Marine Conservation Law which is not only modern, effective, but also comprehensive and acceptable.

I noticed that the notion of a window is a very important request. I ask Government to give serious consideration to this. The reason I bring this up is that I noticed that the Government did not mention this. So I hope that in its accepting the motion it is prepared to take cognisance of this request and will act upon it. I will not hold up Government's work in regard to this motion by speaking any longer. I will only say that I wish Government well, and anything that I can do to help in achieving the objective of this motion I will certainly do.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? If not, does the mover wish to exercise his right to reply?

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Let me say thanks to the Government for accepting the motion and its amendments. I also thank the Honourable Members of this House who spoke on the motion, that is, the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town, the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, my two colleagues from West Bay, and the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

I think the issues raised in this motion are issues that affect many of our people who live in these islands. I believe that when we do have an issue that the best way to handle it is to raise it, discuss it and come to an amicable solution to the problem.

In regard to fishpots, much has been said about the Jamaican type. I cannot say that I have seen one, but the only concern we have is that the size of the wire on these pots is much smaller than traditionally used here in the Cayman Islands by our local fishermen. They do not allow the small fish free passage in and out of the pot, and it causes small fish to be caught, many of which die in the process. It also catches a large quantity of these small fish. I am quite sure that when the First Elected Member for West Bay mentioned fishpots, his concern was also the size of the wire being used in these pots.

I believe that the request for a window in West Bay for our fishermen is reasonable. I believe approval of this would be greatly appreciated by the local fishermen. I have no concern that this area will be abused because every Caymanian who earns a living from the sea recognises the value of maintaining a healthy marine environment and marine life. Because of our care over the years the Cayman Islands have become one of the best dive destinations in the entire world. We have a lot to be thankful for here. We have natural beauty, pristine, clear waters, and an abundance of marine life.

When I was growing up, Mr. Speaker, I personally did not recognise the value of this. When I would snorkel and come across all the reefs, I thought they were a total nuisance. But they do play a very vital part in sustaining our marine life in our waters.

I want to also thank those Members of the House who offered their silent approval. We have had a long week. I thank each and every one and wish them all an enjoyable weekend. Thank you.

The Speaker: The question is Private Member's Motion No. 16/98 as twice amended. I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION 16/98, AS TWICE AMENDED, PASSED.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I understand that it is the wish of the House that we now adjourn as we are at the end of this specific piece of business. I therefore move the adjournment of this Honourable House until Wednesday morning, July 8, at 10 o'clock.

The Speaker: The question is that this House do now adjourn until 10 o'clock Wednesday morning. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AT 3.22 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM WEDNESDAY, 8 JULY 1998.

The Speaker: Prayers by the First Elected Member for George Town.

PRAYERS

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived: We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth, that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly, that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy great name's sake.

Let us say the Lord's Prayer together: Our Father, who art in heaven, hallowed be Thy name. Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us. Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace, now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Item number 2 on today's Order Paper is reading of messages and announcements.

READING BY THE SPEAKER OF MESSAGES AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: I have apologies from the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport who will be arriving later this morning. I also have apologies from the Third Elected Member for George Town who will be absent today, as well as July 9 and 10.

Item 3, questions to Honourable Members and Ministers. Question 112 is standing in the name of the First Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION 112

No. 112: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning to explain how lunches are served at the Red Bay Primary School.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: School lunch is cooked off the premises and brought to the school. The lunches are served in Styrofoam containers with plastic, disposable cutlery and transported by canteen staff and students to the children in their classrooms. The children eat at their seats and after putting all garbage in the classroom bin, go out to play. Classroom bins are emptied each day by the groundsman and/or cleaners.

The adjoining property has now been purchased. It will provide a large hall with canteen to be completed in 1999.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister say, where, after the lunches are brought to the premises, they are served from on the premises?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I am not certain. In other words, they are brought there and then taken to the classrooms.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: In the substantive answer, the Minister stated that the children have their lunch in the classrooms. Is it or is it not a fact that some of the children have their lunch in the open area directly in front of the school? If they do, has this been the case for some time?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The information I have is very clear, it says children do not eat in the enclosed area.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Is this a policy developed by the school? Because I have seen the children eating in the area the Minister is talking about with my own eyes.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: This is what has come from the Education Department. Presumably it is. Maybe there has been an exception, I cannot say. But these are the instructions I have from the Education Officer, Mr. Beckles. If the Member has seen it, it must have been an exception to the rule.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: It is my understanding that in order to provide some make-shift canteen area a storeroom was converted. It was condemned and officially closed by the Department of Environmental Health. But that condemned storeroom is where these lunches are being served. Can the Honourable Minister say if this is a fact or is this not the case?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I cannot respond to that. I can give it in writing because I am not certain of that. The supplementary backup paper I have does not include that.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: If there is any semblance of truth to what I just said, I am certain that the Minister will appreciate the seriousness of that situation. The commitment I would seek from the Minister is to give an undertaking to look into the matter, as it seems that the situation has prevailed for quite some time, and find some satisfactory result, even in the short term, notwithstanding the answer given about the adjoining property being purchased.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Yes, I am happy to give that undertaking to look at this in the short term. The ultimate answer is a hall with a proper canteen attached. With the support of this Honourable House in Finance Committee they will get this canteen which they much deserve.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, and I noted the Minister's choice of words. Can the Honourable Minister then give an undertaking, since he is talking about the support of Finance Committee, that he will bring such matters to Finance Committee?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I give that very clear undertaking because I am going to produce a list of what the schools in this country need. Health has gotten its fair share, second must be schools. I am asking Members of this House that when I bring that list—which will be a lot more than this—they give me their support to get what is necessary at Red Bay and the other schools.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: As is seemingly obvious from the Minister's answer, this is something that he has been thinking about for quite some time, can the Honourable Minister tell us why if this was such an important issue this situation did not come in the reprioritisation list which was brought back to us in April of this year?

The Speaker: I think we are steering away from the substantive question. Let us try to keep in line this morning. If there are no further supplementaries emanating out of the substantive answer, the next question is No. 113, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION 113

No. 113: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works whether there are any plans/proposals for an environmental impact study of the North Sound and, if so, to provide an update of such plans/proposals.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: The study proposed by the Department of Environment was a multidisciplinary study to address the environmental impacts and issues associated with the supply of aggregate for infrastructural and commercial development. Therefore, although an assessment of North Sound forms an integral part of the larger study, it is wider in scope than just an environmental study of the North Sound. The objectives of the study proposed by the Department of Environment are to:

- (i) assess the present environmental status of North Sound with particular reference to the cumulative impacts of approximately 30 years of dredging and predict the extent of physical and ecological changes likely to occur as a result of continued dredging;
- (ii) assess the environmental impacts of terrestrial quarrying and mining and predict the effects of continuing and/or expanding these activities;
- (iii) quantify the demand for fill over the next 10 to 20 years and determine the costs and benefits of continuing to meet that demand locally; and
- (iv) assess the feasibility and determine the costs and benefits of alternative means of supply.

The Department developed preliminary Terms of Reference for the study, which were forwarded to the Ministry of Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works. Executive Council gave the go-ahead for the study in May based upon those Terms of Reference. Final Terms of References now need to be developed in consultation with other relevant government agencies such as the Public Works Department and funding needs to be identified for the project.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister state if included in the broad objectives listed in the substantive answer is a specific and detailed study of the impact to the marine environment within the North Sound?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Most definitely. It certainly will.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I know that on many occasions questions seem to be pointed and seeking too much of an answer that can be given at any one time, but I will make another attempt. Can the Honourable Minister state, given where this situation is, and in the substantive answer he said that Executive Council had given approval, what the desired timeframe is for the Department to achieve completion of this study? I am asking the Minister hoping not to hear, "When funds are available." I am asking what the Department would like to see as regards the time.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: To do a total study of the North Sound will probably take, as I understand, at least twelve months.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: While the answer certainly addresses wider ramifications, can the Honourable Minister say if this study will be in parts, so to speak, so that while certain areas may take longer to get answers, that whatever can be achieved in the shorter period of time can be dealt with and separated, rather than waiting for the whole situation to be dealt with?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Most definitely. Wherever there is an area we can deal with earlier, we will. We also realise the importance of this study, and, of course, the importance of the North Sound.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister tell the House why it is necessary to have preliminary terms of reference drawn up and then a more substantial terms of reference? And can the Honourable Minister say what stage we are at in developing these more substantial terms of reference?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: I think I answered a question here some time ago in regard to the North Sound. What we have tried is actually to do it in two parts. We have different departments that are actually part of this survey, and we must get together to make sure that we do what is right for it. We had to do one stage at a time. That is the reason the question is worded the way it is.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Notwithstanding the Private Member's Motion which was approved in Parliament not too long ago regarding dredging in the North Sound, can the Honourable Minister say if, while awaiting the results of this study, Government has any policy specific to dredging in the North Sound?

Hon. John B. McLean: There has been no change. It has only been exactly as it was said as far back as the Throne Speech. If I recall, it was said it would be no more except those approved in principle. I think we have more or less stayed within the ambits of that.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister say if the dredging His Excellency referred to in his Throne Speech included any inland dredging on the mangrove fringe of the North Sound? Or is he simply talking about what is generally called the Queen's bottom?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: If I recall correctly, in the Throne Speech the Governor actually identified the ones in question at the time. But dredging would have been as he referred to, the Queen's bottom. Whatever is done inland is actually handled by Planning.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, the next question is No. 114, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 114

No. 114: Miss Heather D. Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning whether the maintenance of Government school buildings has improved since the appointment of the Facilities' Officer by the Education Officer.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Yes. There has been marked improvement in the maintenance of Government school buildings since the appointment of the Facilities Officer.

He has direct links with all school Principals and daily contacts with the Public Works Department. The Facilities Officer also visits schools on an average of once a week or as needed. He checks for safety, structural, mechanical and other related items and issues work orders as needed. He follows up on work requested until the job is completed. A tracking system has been established for work orders between schools, the Education Department and the Public Works Department.

The Facilities Officer initiates the work order requests as needed and follows through to completion. He has established a constant maintenance routine. Over 500 work orders have been completed since 6th October 1997 when he assumed the duties. This has greatly reduced the summer workload for this year.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Can the Honourable Minister say what the duties are of the maintenance people employed at the Primary Schools now that we have a Facilities Officer doing all this work?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Those who are employed are basically groundsmen who do a very minimal amount of maintenance. They change light bulbs, or do a minimum amount of painting. The Facilitator actually deals with more major things, for example walkways that need a roof or something of that sort. So there is a difference between more serious and minor maintenance.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: I would like to thank the Minister for his reply, but in the district of North Side we have a young man employed at our school, and then we also have a maintenance person from PWD. Are we now doubling up employment, or is the work co-ordinated between these three people now employed by Government?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Trying to maintain eighteen schools is a mammoth task. There is no two ways about it. While there may be some overlapping, by and large, what happens is that work orders are set out, schedules are set up and the principals actually sign off on completion, something fairly new we have introduced, that they are satisfied with the work. I am not saying that there will not be some overlapping, but, by and large, there is so much maintenance at the schools I believe it keeps everyone fairly busy.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, the next question is No. 115, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 115

No. 115: Miss Heather D. Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works how the Zero Litter Campaign is being promoted and what are the goals and objectives of the programme.

The Speaker: Before I call on the Hon. Minister, I would appreciate a motion for the suspension of Standing Order 23 (7) & (8) in order for Question Time to continue.

The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 23 (7) & (8)

Hon. John B. McLean: I so move that the relevant Standing Order be suspended so that we can take the remainder of questions on the Order Paper.

The Speaker: The question is that Standing Order 23 (7) and (8) be suspended to enable Question Time to continue. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

Agreed. Standing Order 23(7) and (8) suspended to enable Question Time to continue.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: The goal and objective of the anti-litter programme is to reach a zero tolerance level of litter among all residents of the Cayman Islands, thereby reducing the volumes of roadside litter and marine debris and the incidences of illegal dumping, by educating residents and generating awareness of the following:

- Litter undermines the beauty of our Islands.
- Litter results in the loss of Government funds every year.
- Litter is a health and safety hazard.
- Litter has a negative effect on tourism.
- Littering is against the law and includes a fine of up to $1,000 and imprisonment of six months.

Furthermore, the Department intends to administer an environmental recognition programme, promote the enforcement of litter and illegal dumping laws, recruit litter patrol groups, distribute "Get a Grip on Litter" education kits to all schools and help to organise and promote Island-wide cleanups with the assistance of other Government departments and the private sector.

The following activities, educational and promotional tools have been utilised or will be used to promote the Anti-Litter programme:

- Adopt-A-Spot
- "Get a Grip on Litter" Merit Awards
- Island-wide Clean-up
- "Spread the Word...Not the Waste. Get a Grip on Litter" Educational School Kits
- "Get a Grip on Litter" Litter-bags
- Adopt-A-Spot Road Signs
- Boater's Pledge

- Anti-Litter Colouring Book
- Anti-Litter Poster
- Anti-Litter Educational Public Messages (which we hope to do on all the media on the Island)
- Fast Food Restaurant Endorsements
- Highlight Litter Laws
- Public Litter Receptacles
- Sponsored Litter Collection Gloves
- Name the Crab Competition
- Introduction of "Grabbit," the new anti-litter mascot
- Roadside and Beach Litter Collection Safety Tips
- Anti-Litter/Ant-Dumping Feature Articles
- Anti-Litter/Ant-Dumping Road Signs

The Speaker: Are there any supplementaries? [Pause] If there are no supplementaries, the next question is No. 116, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 116

No. 116: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning what stage has the 'National Curriculum' reached.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The National Curriculum is at Key Stage 1 and 2 of its development. Key Stage 1 Science Curriculum was completed in January and circulated to all school while Key Stage 2 is currently being worked on.

In Social Studies, Learning Packets for Key Stage 1 have been completed and will be printed as soon as they are vetted. Learning Packets for Key Stage 2 in Social Studies should be completed by this summer. The writing of Learning Outcomes for Social Studies is in keeping with the development of Learning Packets.

The Language Arts Curriculum is at Key Stage 1 while the Mathematics Key Stage 1 Curriculum is to be completed this summer and work on Key Stage 2 will be continued.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister tell the House how many teachers are working on this curriculum and state whether this work is on a full time basis, or carried on only during holidays?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: It is being dealt with during the summer vacations.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister tell the House when we might expect the National Curriculum in the core subjects to be completed?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The timeline originally set, and that I think will be fairly well met, was that mathematics should be completed in late 1999 or the year 2000. In fact the time given here was 2000. That is for Key stage 4 to be completed. The same with science and language arts. But in between these stages, three, for example, would fall in 1999 in those two subjects, but in 2000 language arts. The original time line I am reading from is just what I have given you.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister tell the House whether the curriculum in the subject areas as it is developed is being tested on any target populations or will the curriculum, when completed, come into immediate effect without sampling on any selected group?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Key stage 1 would be done on a piloting basis during this year. So the answer to that is yes.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say whether these pilot schools have as yet been selected? If so, can he inform the House which schools these may be?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The answer is they have not yet been selected.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries the next question is No. 117, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 117

No. 117: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works whether the Ministry of Agriculture Environment Communications and Works continues to operate a household hazardous waste disposal programme.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Household Hazardous Waste (HHW) is the hazardous waste generated by the public at large through the disposal of items which are normally used in day-to-day activities around the home. It does not, by definition, include waste from businesses or farms.

The Department of Environmental Health (DOEH) organised the first HHW collection day on 2nd August 1997. Five temporary drop-off sites were established on Grand Cayman and one on Cayman Brac. The programme is well advertised and a total of 20 persons took advantage of the event to dispose of various materials, predominantly paints and batteries.

Currently, in the absence of a waste disposal technology on Island for this type of waste, the DOEH is storing the collected HHW. More events will be planned in the future and the DOEH is investigating the possibility of consigning a firm from the United States of America to handle the packaging, transportation and disposal of the collected waste. Waste oil and lead acid batteries from households are currently recycled.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say why this campaign did not extend to include empty containers of insecticides and other possibly poisonous and contaminating materials? And can the Honourable Minister say what the normal course is for disposing of such containers?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: I think it was some time early last year when we had a seminar, headed through the Department of Agriculture and in conjunction with the Department of Environmental Health. We do collect the containers the Member is speaking of. They come into the Department quite regularly and we try to do the best we can under the circumstances to make sure that they are properly taken care of.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Would the Honourable Minister give the House an undertaking that reminders will be given periodically so that the public will realise there is special arrangement for the disposal of such hazardous and dangerous containers?

Hon. John B. McLean: This will not only be done by the Department of Environment, but we will also continue to work through the Department of Agriculture as we have been recently. As I said, we had a seminar to stress how important it is for farmers not to discard containers of insecticide or pesticides on an ad hoc basis. This was headed by somebody from the University of the West Indies so it was not something taken lightly. We must give the farmers credit because thus far the farmers and other persons concerned have been giving us full co-operation on this and we will continue to work along with them to ensure it is done in the best way.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: I noted that in his answer he said a total of twenty persons took advantage after the programme was well advertised. Can the Honourable Minister say if any analysis was done to improve the effectiveness of the campaign so that we can have a greater number of persons participating in future campaigns?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Yes, it is an ongoing campaign. We have been in contact with all those concerned and we will continue to do that. As a matter of fact, we will do so before we have another island-wide campaign. We hope to do another major collection island-wide in September.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, the next question is No. 118, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION 118

No. 118: Dr. Frank McField asked the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning whether the Cayman Islands Government still encourages, and financially supports, students to attend Howard University in Washington D.C.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The Education Council requires students to attend universities that are rated at least "competitive" by a reputable guide, such as Barron's Guide, in order to receive a scholarship.

According to the 1998 Barron's Guide, Howard University is currently rated as "less competitive." The Education Council cannot therefore issue funds to students to attend this school until its rating improves to "competitive" or higher. Students already at Howard University continue to get their scholarship funds, but new students are asked to look to other colleges whose ratings are at least competitive. This ruling applies to all colleges in the United States of America.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Can the Honourable Minister say what the substantive difference is between "competitive," "less competitive," and "not competitive"?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: These are ratings done in the United States and a competitive school is much better than a less competitive school.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I understand that a competitive school is better than a less competitive school—it says so in the language. What is the real difference when we say "less competitive"? That could mean there is not that much of a difference between a less competitive and a competitive. Now if it is a non-competitive institution we can understand what that means when compared to competitive. But less competitive, less active, does not necessarily mean that the college is not competitive because it still has competitive in the positive.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I will do my best to answer this because I am really not an expert on ratings in the United States, even though I could get some detailed information on this for the Member. But as I understand it mainly arises from the entrance requirements. For instance, a person with a lower SAT could get into that university. It also deals with the curriculum and output at the end. So a student with a lower scholastic aptitude would be able to get in there, whereas that student could not get into a highly competitive, or competitive university or college. It is United States rating. The only thing I can say to the Member is that I can probably get the basis on which this is done. But I think it may vary with the rating institution.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: I know I am supposed to form a question here, but I would like to ask the Minister if the information available to him suggests that the mere fact that a person enters college with a particular aptitude test does not guarantee their success? Would he agree, from the information available to him and from his long term as Minister for Education, that this does not suggest the competitiveness of the college in the final analysis since it is based upon the actual performance of the student in the four year degree programme rather than when they entered that programme?

I am trying to assist the Minister here as well. I have one niece who graduated from that particular university and another one there now. I visited that university last May and I am kind of amazed that a university with the calibre I witnessed on graduation day would be considered a college not fit for our students to attend or be financed for.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The Howard University used to be competitive. But it has now. . . the standards have obviously fallen on these criteria used in the United States, and it is less competitive. But what I have said is that the students who are there who got in when it was a competitive university, those scholarships must continue. It would be unfair to move them. I cannot, as I said earlier, say that I can really express an opinion on the American rating system because it is a system that is not used in the United Kingdom to the extent it is in the United States. I don't know what happened with the university to become less competitive. I don't know if I can go much beyond that. It is a rating system I cannot say that I fully understand.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Notwithstanding the position of the Education Council as expressed by the Honourable Minister, can the Honourable Minister say if any tracking has been done on the graduates from competitive universities as against those of less than competitive universities to find out if their performance in the world of work is significantly different between those graduating from competitive universities and less competitive universities?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: We don't have that tracking system, obviously. It has never been in place. All I can really say is that a person's ability to get along, or to get on in business and what they achieve comes from their perseverance, their ambition. . . . I will just pass on a statement a teacher made to me many years ago. It was this: "I can teach you everything in the world. But if you lack ambition you will never get anywhere in life." That is a hard fact of life.

If a university student comes out highly qualified and doesn't have ambition, he will get no place. On the other hand, people who do not have university degrees and have ambition have risen to the top in life. So I am not sure whether the criteria of tracking a university student and finding out what they have achieved, having made the statement I have, is one that would really tell whether it is a fault of the university in its educating the student, or just simply a lack of ambition, or the person may be a drop-out in society.

I believe that some universities have tracking systems, but we do not here. By and large, most people who have the ambition to get through university have the ambition to move on in life. That is the general rule. If they can push on through university, they generally become productive members of society.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, that concludes Question Time for this morning.

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 9/98

MINIMUM WAGE

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: I beg to move Private Member's Motion No. 9/98, standing in my name, which reads as follows:

"WHEREAS a Committee was established to look into the need of a minimum wage/starting salary in the hospitality industry;

"AND WHEREAS the Committee made a report to the Ministry of Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture on its findings;

"BE IT RESOLVED THAT the Honourable Minister study the report and report back to this Honourable House the intentions of the Government:-

"(a) as to the implementation of the findings of the Committee as they relate to minimum wage in the hospitality industry; and

"(b) its views on other industries/sectors."

The Speaker: Is there a seconder? The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: I beg to second the motion.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 9/98 has been duly moved and seconded. Does the Mover wish to speak to it? I would like to inform the House that I have received notice of an amendment to this motion which has been circulated to all Members. Would you wish to move the amendment prior to your speaking to the motion?

In view of that, I call upon the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture to move her amendment.

AMENDMENT TO PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 9/98

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Thank you. In accordance with the provisions of Standing Order 25(2), I the Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women and Culture wish to make the following amendments:-

"WHEREAS this matter is of such importance that it should be dealt with by a Committee of the whole House.

"BE IT RESOLVED that Private Member's Motion No. 9/98 be amended in the first two lines of the resolution section as follows:-

- "1) By the deletion of the words 'The Honourable Minister' and replacing them with the words 'Select Committee of this whole House';
- "2) Between the word 'reports' and the word 'and' by the addition of the words 'and any other relevant matters and to hear representation from the public on this matter;'
- "3) By the deletion of the words 'the intentions of the Government'."

The Speaker: The amendment to Private Member's Motion No. 9/98 has been duly moved. Does the Mover wish to speak to it? The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: I rise in support of the motion which was put forward on behalf of the Government. It is the view of this Government that the proposed amendment to the motion has far-reaching consequences to most, if not all, sectors of our community. Further, it is the Government's view that this important and critical economic and social issue deserves no less than the full participation of all Members of this Honourable House. Hence, the logic for the proposal of all Honourable Members being given the privilege of being a formidable member of a select committee to deal with the issue of minimum wage.

This issue should, in the Government's view, cut across all political barriers as it will have a profound effect on all six districts here in the Cayman Islands. Therefore, each representative should be given an opportunity to work through this issue together, to hear views of their constituents be they employer or employee.

Once the select committee of the whole House meets, then in accordance with the respective Standing Orders the report can then be brought back to Parliament. It is the Government's view that this is the most practical and expedient manner in which to deal with this very important issue. Further, I believe the method of a select committee is not only practical and efficient, but has been utilised by Hon. Members of this Parliament even during this present sitting, as seen in Motion 11/98, 8/98, 12/98 originally Motion 14/98, which all ask for select committees to be established in order to consider the respective issues.

With these few words on behalf of the Government I would respectfully encourage all Hon. Members to give their full support to this amendment.

The Speaker: The motion is open for debate. The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: I listened to what the Minister had to say on this particular matter. Our motion deals with a committee that was established to look at wages in the hospitality industry, that is, the hotel and condominium sector. And the motion also says in the very last line that Government is to report back to the House on their views of other industries or sectors.

As I said, I listened to what the Minister had to say. I cannot agree that we should set up a select committee to look at what has already been gone into for many years now by a committee of both employers and employees. Perhaps, if it is the Government's and Members' view, and they are so minded to get together to look at what might need to be done in other industries or sectors, that might make some sense. But to set up another select committee—and as you know, we have a lot of them already, which are not getting anywhere, some of them—would only serve to draw this matter out over a long period of time. Seeing how the other select committees have moved on so slowly this one would never get anywhere.

We have in select committee Immigration, of paramount importance to this country; we have the Election Select Committee, we have the Dependent Territories Review, another very important Committee, one which will take some time when they get going with the review from the United Kingdom; we have the Privileges Committee; we have one on Standing Orders; we have one on Freedom of Information. Mr. Speaker, we have at least six very important select committees that are now before us. As I said, I really do not feel that sending this particular matter, when there is already a report, . . . I don't know how much further it will take us in the matter.

We know that the people who come to select committees are the business people. I have never seen the working man show up here for a select committee. I do know that there are people objecting to this. That is why I could not get it tabled before. There are people who do not want that report to leave the Glass House. This would be a good way to tie it up—start it all over again, take forever and get nowhere.

As I said, the majority of this motion deals with the hotel industry for which a committee was agreed on by all Members of the National Team, including the Minister. Other avenues to get public feedback were opened to us, which I took the time to do, which I will talk about in the debate on the substantive motion.

I cannot support the motion where it deals with the hotel industry. As I said, if the Minister wants to get together without setting up a select committee for us to give her our views on other industries or sectors, I would not object. I don't know what other Members will have to say. But on the matter dealing with the hotel industry, I cannot agree to put that matter into a select committee.

Thank you.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak on the amendment? The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: I rise to express the position I hold in regard to this amendment. In my estimation putting this matter before a select committee at this time would seem counter productive to the objectives we are seeking to achieve.

My colleague, the First Elected Member for West Bay, has outlined and enumerated the various select committees we have. These are in addition to the standing select committee, of course, which is Finance Committee. I cannot see how, at this time, we can afford to add another select committee to that list of already outstanding committees. Added to that is the fact that were this motion calling for the establishment of a minimum wage by category across the board, I would not be averse to putting the matter before a select committee. But as it indicates at this time to start with the hospitality industry, and, Mr. Speaker, those of us who are attuned to what is happening in that industry know that from time immemorial there have been complaints and dissatisfaction which need to be addressed, and I think that any delay at this time would be inimical to the interest which the mover of this motion and I, and I think other Members who are minded to support this motion, desire.

This motion really calls for the exercise of political will. That is all. It can very simply be handled by us buckling down. Finally, when we have select committees, we know that those committees are not represented by the people most affected by the request. Therefore, I cannot support the call at this time.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak to the amendment? The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: This amendment to the motion is important because it does what Members of this Honourable House—especially Members of the Backbench—have referred to many times, that is, participation in making major decisions. The question of a minimum wage is of such importance that I feel decisions on it should be made by a select committee of the whole House. This gives the input of all eighteen Members here and it therefore follows that that decision coming from a select committee of this House will obviously carry much more weight.

We have had select committees set up by the Members, and one was moved by the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town. Select committees are set up all the time. Several will be set up in this House. What has been the problem is that this legislature has been sitting continuously since 20 February. I am not saying every day, but basically one session has run into the other which is something I have never seen. We have been in this Honourable House for almost five months. If I had a choice between prioritising the importance of what is going on, then there are other happenings in this House that could perhaps be reduced, like Question Time, to give us time to deal with committees such as this.

I believe to get this minimum wage through, because this has been hanging and pending for quite a while, is through a select committee of the House where all Members will have come up with what is in the best interest of the public and be obligated to support it publicly.

So I strongly support the amendment to this motion. I believe that if the Members wish to be quick on the select committee they can be quick. The question is not a difficult one, it is substantially a single decision on how much. Input will have to be taken, but I think the committee that was set up that looked at one area of this has a report and would have information that could be looked at in relation to the hospitality industry.

There is always a question of whether a minimum wage should be established as in a general minimum wage, or whether there should be minimum wages for each sector of the industry. This is also something the committee could look at. But I think it is very important that we get on with getting a decision made on minimum wages and get input and look at the input that has been given to the committee that was established to look into the minimum wage in the hospitality industry.

In summary, this is an extremely important issue. I think the input of all Members of this House is very important. It is not an easy issue. It is a political issue as well. But that is the reason why I believe the input of eighteen Members of this House has to be a lot better than having this done by fewer people. Secondly, there is machinery here within the House. If this session is going to go on for much longer, then we ask, sir, that we take a break and get on with some of these select committees. If the House sits continuously, then obviously we cannot get to the select committees. I would favour, if it reaches that stage, that one day a week, with your permission sir, be taken to do select committees. That may well mean that the five months we have been in the House could stretch into six or seven.

The year only has twelve months in it, and this will have to come to a halt at some stage. I must say that it has been a strain on the eight Ministers in Government to try to carry on the business of the country while sitting for nearly five months in a continuous session—not saying every day, but in a continuous session. It is very hard to plan.

That does not mean that if we want to get on with the select committee we can't take a break. You could designate one day out of each week and we could do these select committees. So I support the amendment to the motion.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: I rise to offer my comments on the amendment to the motion calling for the minimum wage issue to go to a select committee.

The mover of the original motion, the First Elected Member for West Bay, mentioned that an advisory committee was established for the purpose of looking at establishing a minimum wage starting in the hospitality industry. I have been given a copy of that report and the committee members were from a wide cross-section of the community. It also involved persons from the industry.

I am tired of listening to the gripes and complaints of my people employed who have been working in this industry for five or ten years and earning $3.75. I believe that we do have a report on the issue and I believe that as representatives we can debate that report and come up with the conclusions which are fair to all parties concerned.

So I support the idea of us getting on with the issue of implementing a minimum wage, and I believe that the approach is also good in that we do not start with a blanket approach where all areas of the economy are affected, but we start with the hospitality industry. Once we get it right in that area maybe it will be time to look at another area with the same objectives.

Over the years the cost of living continued to rise and wages have not kept pace. So our people are much worse off than they were five years ago, even though the economy is booming. They are in a position where they get much less for the dollar they earn. I support the idea of moving on with the issue of implementing a minimum wage and I believe to put this in a select committee would only delay the implementation of a very important policy.

The Speaker: The floor is open for debate, does any other Member wish to speak? [Pause] if not, does the mover wish to exercise her right of reply? The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Just to thank Honourable Members for their support. I reserve any other comments for the substantive motion.

The Speaker: I will now call upon the First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you.

I want to thank the seconder of the substantive motion who has always displayed an interest in labour matters and in matters pertaining to the working man.

I would like to say that when I was responsible for Human Resources I set up a committee to look into the matter of minimum wages in the hotel sector. The House will recall that there was much debate on a motion brought by the [former] Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, and the [former] First Elected Member for Bodden Town (now Third Elected Member for Bodden Town). In the majority this House rejected the motion because I, as the Minister acting under collective responsibility, said we were doing something. That something was that we set up a committee to deal with this matter of minimum wage in the hotel industry.

This matter was dealt with by the National Team first, and I should say that the Minister was in that meeting with us. Also at this same meeting of the National Team, which the Honourable Minister attended, they agreed to set up the committee to make it absolutely clear. Also at the same time we agreed to get public feedback via Open Line on Radio Cayman, through which much feedback came back to Government. The Committee at the meeting also decided that I should meet with the Chamber of Commerce. I had a meeting with the Chamber, not that they supported minimum wage, but I did as I was asked to do—and as I thought I should do to give everybody a chance to make their case.

We will wait now and see what is going to happen to this matter, because since I got the report from the committee, the political will was not there from Executive Council to table the report as I had promised, nor to take the matter forward. I recall the last time I addressed the Chamber of Commerce as Minister for Human Resource Development on the matter of pensions. I was told by the President after I sat down (and not having a chance to speak again) that one thing I must not bring was the minimum wage. As I said, because the President spoke after I sat down I had no chance to reply. But the political will was not there. I can't say all of Executive Council, because there were some who felt the pinch of their constituent's, who saw the need of their own constituents and agreed with me. But we couldn't get anywhere, we couldn't get the report tabled.

If we recall, there was much debate on that motion by the former [Second Elected] Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, and the present Third Elected Member for Bodden Town. So the committee reported back in April of 1997. It was not something that was rushed, it took a long time to get to the point where the committee sat down over a period of time and went through the different stages and wage scales in the hotel sector. I should say that it was a committee of employers and employees. The reason I did not support that motion. . . and I am really surprised and disappointed that the Government got this motion through the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town supporting them, because she too knows about this. It is that Member's democratic right to do as she feels, but she cannot say that she does not know the situation.

This motion is asking Government to study the committee's report, and report the intentions of the Government back to this House. This was not even asking them to do any more than that. What were they going to do about the implementation? So, Mr. Speaker, the Government found an easy way out, not doing anything as they have done with me in the past. I am sorry that the Minister responsible fell into the trap of a select committee, but I will wait now and see how easy it is to get done what I could not get done. Let us wait and see.

I recall that that report spoke of the difficulties in the industry and the different category of wages. They spoke of places paying below $4.00 and we know that to be a fact! We don't need anybody to tell us about that! The Minister now responsible knows as much as I knew, and I still know because her situation in Cayman Brac is worse than here in the Cayman Islands. She should want to do something about this post-haste rather than putting it into a select committee where she knows those persons who were against it—

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Mr. Speaker, on a point of clarification, Sir.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Am I understanding the First Elected Member for West Bay to be saying it is worse in Cayman Brac than it is in the Cayman Islands? Are we not three islands?

The Speaker: Certainly that was a slip of the tongue. He meant Grand Cayman.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, that Minister being a lawyer, full well knew what I was referring to.

Never mind my knowing if there are three islands. Even if I were the biggest fool in the world, I would know that we are three islands! What I am saying is that she, as the Minister responsible for labour matters, knows full well the situation existing in her district—the district of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, if you want to add that on to it. She knows, because she complained to me quite often about it. She knows full well. Other representatives have complained to me about the situation up there.

I don't believe that they have the will, that is why they have found a way to put this in a select committee, and the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town fell into the trap of seeing that this motion gets put where the rest of them are. They can't get anywhere—can't even get a report! They have to do interim reports, and they are talking about more committees?

Mr. Speaker, let me say that I recall the difficulties of persons in that hotel sector, not getting raises for years. I had to practically force the Villas of Galleon to give an increase after years and years of paying little salaries. Treasure Island Resort and I were constantly battling, and I know that I am not a favourite of some of these sectors. In fact, they were glad to see me go out of Executive Council. They were! I got some very nasty calls. Yes, Mr. Speaker, time is longer than rope!

Some of those hotels are paying less than $4.00 per hour. Treasure Island Resort just gave a recent increase of 20 cents in one particular area after eleven years of no increase. And you are going to shove this into another committee? Is it right, in an economy where everything is as expensive as it is? And all of us in this House know because we see it ourselves from day to day. We have to live from pay cheque to pay cheque, so we know what it is. Is it right? Is it fair, or humane, for a business establishment to pay less than $4.00 per hour in some instances to workers?

Some of the hotels have said to me, 'There is a big gratuity.' They say, 'We pay $3.00 per hour and there is an average of $3.00 per hour gratuity.' Time and time again, I have said that a gratuity is not a salary, it is a tip left by the client. It is not part of the salary. I have even been asked why they should pay more in gratuities than what an assistant clerk in the front office gets. Why should a maid get more than them? So you can see the kind of feeling that exists. No employer should consider gratuities anything other than a gratuity, a tip.

I could have easily set up a minimum wage committee here in the House. I could have done that in 1993. But Government, in the majority (with the exception of the lady Minister), said 'No, don't go that way. We set up a committee in the Department of Human Resources.' I heard the Minister for Education say that this would give Members a chance to participate. I don't know if we can sit down ourselves and set up a minimum wage. I thought it was a good way to get the employers and employees to sit down together with the staff of the Human Resources Department to go through the guts of the mechanisms which exist in the hotel industry. Anyway, we shall wait and see.

As I understand it, the Government is accepting the motion, putting it in one of their select committees to get feedback from the public. I will wait and see. In the meantime, while this back and forth business is going on, and duplication of time and effort, the people out there at the very lowest end in the country will have to wait again. It is not something that I agree with. Thank you.

The Speaker: I think this will be a convenient time to take the luncheon break. We will suspend until 2.15 PM.

ADMINISTRATION OF OATHS OR AFFIRMATIONS

OATH OF ALLEGIANCE

by Mr Samuel Bulgin

Hon. Samuel Bulgin: I, Samuel Bulgin, do swear that I will be faithful and bear true allegiance to Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II, her heirs and successors according to law. So help me God.

The Speaker: Please take your seat. I welcome you for the time of your service here.

Please be seated. Debate continues on Private Member's Motion No. 9/98. The floor is open for debate.

Does any other Member wish to speak? [Pause] The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I will try to be brief beyond my usual, but I would like to make a few what I think are necessary comments to dispel some notions which exist.

First of all, the call for a minimum wage by category is not entirely new to this Parliament, since in 1993 the former Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman and I moved a motion, and moved a motion again in 1995. I think it is safe to say that on both occasions, while the motions were not carried, there was a certain amount of sentiment on the part of the Government—an expression of interest is a nice way to describe it. Indeed, the very last time the former Minister under whose responsibility this fell (the present First Elected Member for West Bay) said that the Government did not see fit at that time to support the motion because the Government had already set in place certain mechanisms concerned with what the motion was seeking to achieve.

We are ideally situated to effect something like this, if we have the political will, because as was pointed out in previous debates the Public Works Department already has its workers who are, what I would call, categorised weekly workers. Indeed, when we debated the motion we used the estimates as an example because at the back of the estimates Public Works categorises the workers and sets out a schedule of fees, wages and the per hour rate based upon a number of factors which are also relevant were we to adopt what this motion is asking for.

What the minimum wage by category does is specify the very minimum below which a person can be paid to perform certain jobs. It does not mean that he will not be worth more than that, or that he will be unable to get more than the prescribed minimum wage, but it ensures. . . and what it entails is that he cannot, if it goes into law, get less than that.

To show that we are not far afield, President Clinton has just undertaken to review, and indeed has taken steps toward upgrading the minimum wage in the United States, particularly for certain categories of people, for example, those who work in the fast-food industry. I read where in the United Kingdom one of the undertakings which Tony Blair has given is to review and reassess this whole business of minimum wage as it affects certain skilled and unskilled workers in the United Kingdom.

The point has been made that the way to address this shortcoming most effectively would be to ensure that these people got better value for wages earned. There is a certain amount of truth to that, but it is not easily achieved if we are going to try to implement or institute any price controls, which I would never advocate being a free marketer myself.

The best guarantee in our situation would be to arrive at a minimum wage structured by category. What is attractive about this proposal is that it begins with one category, a popular category, a category in which many Caymanian people toil; a category we hear incessant complaints about people not being paid a fair wage, not receiving gratuities, having no formula, no basis on which to calculate a fair day's wage for a fair day's work. So we have before us, should we desire to exercise the political will, the beginnings, the foundation upon which to launch a full minimum wage by category. It's easy.

The First Elected Member for West Bay intimated that the report was already prepared. What I see as a shortcoming in putting this matter before a select committee is that the very people the motion is designed to help are the very people who are not going to come to a select committee to make their voices heard. Why? Because in the first instance they will find it inconvenient, and in the second instance it may not be easy for them to absent themselves from their work. Remember, Mr. Speaker, these are people who are normally paid by the hour. Are we going to expect these people to appear before the select committee? Even when we have witnesses scheduled for a certain period, it does not ideally work according to the schedule and they may have to be sitting in the foyer, waiting because we may have witnesses in who have gone on beyond their scheduled time, or something may have happened. We may have to postpone a meeting and reschedule witnesses. There may be all kinds of inconveniences. And, as is not unusual or uncommon according to my experience, is that the persons who will come in droves and be well represented, articulate and well prepared, will be the employers. So what is likely to happen is that the select committee is not going to be able to achieve the balance it should in order to structure the proper recommendation.

In the absence of that, the best course is for this Honourable House to read the report and, as is not unusual, exercise its judiciousness based on experience, on the feedback and the representation that will still come, and try to craft something which is acceptable.

Remember, we are not saying that we are going to work on something written in blood and etched in stone. We are going to be flexible. Hence, the attractiveness of starting with one category, a popular category, a category in which a significant number of Caymanians are already employed. We will get a good feel of what the national minimum wage should be. Indeed, I would go so far as to suggest that this particular category could be a pilot project for the broader national minimum wage.

At the dawning of the 21st Century, and as sophisticated as we are, not to embark upon this route would be a serious mistake and a retrograde step. I have to say that politicians, notwithstanding for the most part we are well intended and well meaning, have to take it a step beyond that. We have to remove ourselves from the smugness we sometimes grow accustomed to and put ourselves in the position of those persons who are less articulate than we, who are less educated, less well-endowed, but who contribute no less significantly to the well-being, the economic make-up and success of this country. It is time that we stopped pretending and genuinely put our shoulders to the wheel to redress some of these imbalances.

When we examine the fact that we have a jurisdiction which has never had trade unions, the least we can do is try to craft some kind of mechanism, some kind of legislation which will ensure that the persons who do the necessary and sometimes backbreaking work to keep this country the success that it is get the financial reward they deserve for their labour.

In saying that, I well recognise that it is not going to be an easy task. Perhaps it was not designed to be an easy task. There are going to be pro's and con's to every proposal. But we have always acted with wisdom, and we have always been able for the most part to make the necessary assessments and come up with what we think is a good balance. This exercise calls for no less.

If we have the political will we are eminently equipped to take this task on. The longer we postpone it, the more it is going to fester and the worse off these people are going to be. Already, they have to play catch up. Remember, persons in this category have to contribute to the Health Insurance and Pensions Scheme. It stands to reason that they should be able to make these contributions and still be in a position where their contribution does not leave them in a position of near pennilessness.

I believe it will be an appreciated move. I believe that it will be a politically responsible move. And, who knows? It may even be a politically popular move. I mention that one last because as far as I am concerned, that one is the least important. I believe it will be a responsible move. But I would be naive to say that it would not be a move that persons could use to gain some political popularity.

Contrary to some, I acknowledge that I am a politician. I think it is one of the greatest vocations anyone can have. I would be less than sensible if, when an opportunity came along where I could get some political mileage, I would not take that mileage. Certainly, I am gracious and honest, but the animal that I am would be stupid not to accept a little political mileage. God knows, sometimes I need all the help I can get in that direction!

Having said that, I commend the move to my Honourable colleagues, with this admonition: Buckle up, let us put our shoulders to the wheel and see how we can use this Private Member's Motion as a starting point to address the concerns and give better material recognition to those hard-working persons in our society who continue to labour sometimes under unattractive and demeaning conditions. Thank you.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak?
The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr: I rise to offer my contribution to Private Member's Motion No. 9/98. The original motion called for the Minister to study the report of the committee established to look into the issue of minimum wage, as it affects the hospitality industry.

I recall attending a Chamber of Commerce Business Expo at the Hyatt Hotel some years ago. As I was looking at some of the exhibitions and the ads for employment, one caught my eye. It basically read: "Wanted: Maids, $2.50 per hour." And it was an ad for one of the establishments in Cayman Brac. Now, it is difficult for me to understand how anyone could live off of $2.50 per hour. In most cases a person either has a mortgage or pays rent. They have to provide money for telephone, lights, food, school fees and other incidental expenses. But to aggravate the situation further, there is a serious combination of minimum, that is to pay as little as possible, but then they give you the minimum number of hours as they possibly can.

I have heard of situations, even here in Grand Cayman, where people working for less than $4 per hour in the hospitality industry, work three days per week. Now, as you and I both know, Mr. Speaker, most workdays consist of eight hours. So that's $32.00 per day. That is less than $100 per week. That is one reason why we have so many people here on work permits. A lot of Caymanians are saying, 'I can't work for those wages, so if you want that kind of work done, you are going to have to bring somebody else in to do that.'

There is an argument that gratuities must be taken into consideration as part of the compensation package. But we know of the rumours and allegations of widespread abuse in this area. When I was looking at the issue of gratuities in respect to seeing that they were paid at the same time normal wages were paid (every two weeks), I was surprised at the wide disparity in the hourly gratuity rate. One of the main reasons was not that some establishments were busier than others, but the main reason for the wide disparity was because in some establishments management shared in those gratuities, and at others that was not the case. So when you talk about gratuities being part of the compensation package, it lends itself to a lot of uncertainty as far as an employee's earnings because he doesn't know from one month to the next what his gratuities will be.

If we had a minimum wage in the hospitality, . . . and I agree with that approach, in that we should attack one industry at a time in order to try to rectify the wage situation in the country. One of the questions I hear constantly by visitors who come here to enjoy our sun, sea and sand, is, 'Where are the Caymanians? I came from the United States for a vacation in the tropics and when I checked in at the hotel, the receptionist was an American, [or Irish or some other nationality]. I proceeded to my room, and there was another nationality there. When I go to the restaurant, there is somebody different. When am I going to meet the Caymanians we hear so much about?'

I believe that if we did something about the wages that are paid in this industry, we would find more Caymanians prepared to consider the hospitality industry as a career. I am not only talking about maids, who seem to come to mind whenever we talk about the hospitality industry, but I am aware of a young Caymanian who had spent a number of years in the hospitality industry and had risen to a high level. With the odd hours involved in this industry, the gentleman was still in a position where he was making less than $2,000 per month. He subsequently left that industry and went into some other area where he can make more money, and the hours are better.

Unfortunately, the cost of living in this country continues to rise. There is very little that has been done in regard to wages keeping pace. There are two reasons for that. I believe that we are too lenient in the issuance of work permits. There are tons of people out there who would come to work in this country for, maybe, $1.50 per hour if they were allowed to do so. Where they come from there is no opportunity for employment. The other reason is because most employers are not sensitive to the needs of their employees. They look at them in terms of what they can produce for them, and that is their attitude.

I am involved in a number of businesses and we make it a point to create a working environment where people are happy and comfortable, where we take care of them. In turn they take care of the business. That is the way it should work. During my research on the motion I brought in March in regard to gratuities, I was pleased to learn that at least some establishments were doing what they are supposed to do in regard to gratuities. For example, at two establishments, the hourly gratuity was in excess of $5.50 per hour. At another major establishment it was $2.00 or less. They are all competing for the same clientele. Why the difference in the hourly gratuity? The conclusion I came to was because of abuse in this area.

I want to congratulate establishments that are trying to do what is right, establishments that have a genuine interest in doing what is right by way of their employees. I have heard about minimum wages for a long time, ever since I became a Member of this House, which was in 1988. It is time for us to get on with the job. Let's err, for once, on the side of attempting to do something rather than hiding behind excuses such as select committees in order to get things done. I, for one, have brought many motions calling for very genuine and legitimate services and issues on matters that affect our people. It goes into a select committee and that is the last anyone hears of it. I am afraid that if we do send this issue to a select committee that is exactly what is going to happen with this issue as well.

The other argument I would put forward is that if you have a committee already established for the purpose of looking at the minimum wage which involved a good cross-section of people involved in the industry, some credence must be paid to what they had to say on this issue.

So I believe that the right approach would be for us to get on with this issue, put in place some measures for improving wages in the hospitality industry where, on average, I think the starting wage is less than $4.00 per hour. I am aware that at some establishments the employees have been there for ten or fifteen years and are still making less than $4.00 per hour. Now, with the cost of living in this country they simply cannot survive on those wages.

I urge the Minister to treat this issue with the utmost urgency because it affects many of our Caymanians and even people from her constituency, that is, Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

Thank you.

The Speaker: Would this be a convenient time for the afternoon break? We shall suspend for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.17 PM

PROCEEDING RESUMED AT 3.57 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Debate on Private Member's Motion No. 9/98 continues. Does any other Member wish to speak? (pause) Does any other Member wish to speak? (pause) If not, does the mover wish to exercise his right to reply?

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: Yes, right now.

I would like to thank the seconder of this motion for his contribution. As I said in opening, the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town is always willing to assist in matters affecting the people, especially the workers in this country. He made some very valid points when he said that this group of people has no one working for them. They have no voice, as such, except for Members of this House. They have no unionised situation as in other countries. These are the reasons why we put the Labour Law in place, so that people could be protected from both sides. But we know that in these instances the people who have the voice are the employers.

I would like to thank my colleague, the Third Elected Member for West Bay, who also usually speaks on these kinds of matters. I would like to thank all Member who supported the motion otherwise. I am not really satisfied that this motion is going to a select committee because I don't believe that the political will or the strength is there in the Government—which is very weak at this point in its term. It does not have the will to go through with it. Coupled with that is the fact that Government has organisations like the Chamber of Commerce pressuring it not to do anything about it. These are the reasons we don't have the report today.

The report came from a committee made up of several people from the condo and hotel management area, and I thought that the Minister would have been well advised to put the matter to rest by discussing it with her people.

I can understand the predicament she found herself in, in that she had people on Executive Council who did not support minimum wages. She found herself in a predicament and a good way for her to get out of taking action is by sending it to a select committee, so that they can come back and say everybody is involved. As I said, it is sad because I know that they are not really going to try to do anything about the situation. As the old West Indian saying goes, "It's nothin' but a sham." That select committee is a sham!

Although the Backbench voted against the amendment (that is we in the majority) we support the original motion. That is why we are supporting the motion as amended. We don't feel that the select committee is going to meet now, and if it does, we do not have the confidence in the Government—those leading the Government—to get anything done. It is not that something does not need to be done because back in 1995 I pointed out, from the Government's statistics, the gross inequity that existed in that sector. At that point I was using 1994 statistics to show that an average household in the Cayman Islands needed $1176 per month in order to cover their basic needs. In 1994 the average monthly household expenditure on a basket of basic goods, that is, staple foods, clothing, mortgage, utilities, mortgage/rent, school expenses, toiletries, and so on, was $1076. Approximately $700 per individual. These were Government's statistics, not McKeeva's, Mr. Speaker. This is not the so-called, Backbench Opposition, this is what the people needed to live on in this country.

Also, according to a survey that Government did at the time, there were over 1,000 Caymanians earning less than $833 per month. If you look in the latest Compendium of Statistics you will see that in the hotel industry there were just over 1,000 Caymanians employed. We do know that there are hotels paying less than $4.00 per hour, using gratuities to bring it up to sometimes less than $5.00 per hour, and some areas less than $4.00 per hour in other areas. in than $5.00 per hour , and it wouldn't be so bad if the gratuities were coming as they should.

The least that should be done is to make increases so the people's wages meet the Government's statistics. They should at least be raised to that extent. These are needs—not wants—that we are talking about. I do believe that salaries should be upgraded in this industry to the amount Government says it takes them to live.

To make matters worse, the same statistics showed that there were (at that time) 2266 non-Caymanians making less than $833 per month. Now, we know that we have a large domestic worker population. But also in the hotel industry there were some 600-odd (according to the latest statistics I had at that time because I didn't have the very latest ones). What will this do to our social life in this country? We had 317 Caymanians in the wholesale/resale industry making less than $833 per month. In the hotel and condominium group, there were 155 persons making less than $833 per month. There are some other services where 104 persons make less (according to the same statistics) than $833 per month.

In public advertising there were 23 employees making less than $833 per month. In the construction industry there were at that time 76 Caymanians making less than $833 per month. It is good for people who don't understand what poverty is. . . and we carry on in this country believing that none exists, that there are no people worse off than what we are in this House! Some people believe that! They don't understand what it takes to live! they don't understand that when a man has four children and he goes home with this kind of salary what it takes for him to face those children. Or if they do understand, they don't care about that type of person in this country! They don't understand, or they don't care! They shove their heads in the sand like that ostrich saying all is well with them. This House should take cognisance of the fact that all of us here have a good standard of living but that there are persons in this country much worse off than us. Among them are the elderly.

My good friend just said that they have to share the same costs as we must. They have to pay the same price for food. And we are going to allow people who only care what their bank account looks like, and what their checking account looks like? I am not saying that businesses must not prosper. I have a business myself. One goes into business to make a profit. But I have always believed that other people must be able to live.

We brag about how good our economy is. And we trot out the numbers every year, fantastic looking numbers, patting ourselves on the shoulder believing that there are no persons out there suffering. The greatest laugh of all, and I say laugh, but the greatest joke of all is this so-called level of per capita income. We sit down satisfied ourselves saying, 'Oh, we have one of the highest per capita incomes of the western world.' Oh yeah? We all know that income is relative.

When you read the statistics that Government puts out. . . and you know how old they are, because I was unable to get new ones. They are over four years old. When you have business establishments not giving people a raise for over eleven years, and when they do it's twenty cents, this is a joke! And it is indictment on how we run this country.

I know that you will see a letter in the press that McKeeva is back to his old habits again, like the one I read from a certain individual to His Excellency the Governor. I took it to mean they were trying to chastise me for bringing this motion. I also read one letter in the Caymanian Compass from the same individual. . . . You know, it is really funny, because while those people criticise how we run labour, do you know how many times we had to go and defend that same person? That same person moving from one job to the next, moving from one job to—yet he criticises me? I wouldn't sit down and talk to him? I sat down and had a discussion with the Chamber of Commerce. What more was I to do? Was I going to do what this Minister is allowing her Executive Council to push her into?

[Addressing the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture] Well, Madam, if you count it a joke, no wonder the ship is floundering.

[Inaudible interjection]

Hon. W. McKeeva Bush: [Addressing the voice across the floor] You should say that on the microphone.

I really support the lady Minister, but this business of her sitting down and talking without getting up and explaining herself while somebody else is speaking should really stop. I take political bantering as it comes because I can deal with it, but if she has a case to make she should have made it when you called so often for them to speak. Anyway, she's my friend and I will handle the matter (to use a phrase I coined) gingerly. [laughter]

I believe that we are doing a disservice by putting this into select committee. But I am not going to prolong the debate. I think we have made our case, and I don't think that we can do any more. But to restate the situation, unless someone jumps up and asks why I did not do it when I was there, there were at least two motions on the floor of this House. We, as the Government, rejected them because we were putting mechanisms in place. We were attempting to work at the situation to do something about it. Everybody agreed—including the Minister. That issue was put to the appointed committee. They made a report. That report could not get out of Executive Council. It could not get tabled, it could not be made public because there were people in Executive Council. . . . I simply did not have the majority to bring it to Executive Council. Those are the reasons why it was not done.

While the Minister says she is under no pressure, I believe she is speaking with tongue-in-cheek because she is under great pressure, she was under great pressure to do exactly what she did. It is a good way of getting out of it. It is nothing but a sham. We have done our job. Let's wait and see what Government is going to come with.

I am disappointed that my good friend, the lady Member, the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town, once again assisted the Government in doing something wrong. I hope their consciences prick em'!

The Speaker: I shall put the question that Private Member's Motion No. 9/98, as amended, be passed. I shall put the question. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 9/98 AS AMENDED PASSED.

The Speaker: I have approximately nine minutes until the normal time for the adjournment. Shall we adjourn?

[Inaudible interjections]

The Speaker: Okay, if that is what you wish. We will move on to Private Member's Motion No. 13/98, Problems with Public Education in the Cayman Islands. The First Elected Member for George Town.

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 13/98

PROBLEMS OF PUBLIC EDUCATION IN THE CAYMAN ISLANDS

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. I beg to move Private Member's Motion No. 13/98, entitled Problems with Public Education in the Cayman Islands.

[BE IT RESOLVED that this Honourable Legislative Assembly debate the problems of public education in the Cayman Islands;*

BE IT ALSO RESOLVED that the Honourable Legislative Assembly arrive at the necessary, relevant and practical solutions to these problems;

BE IT ALSO RESOLVED that the Government give a commitment to act immediately to bring about these solutions;

AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that these matters be treated as top priority and that whatever funds are needed be redirected, if necessary, from elsewhere in order to effect the necessary corrective measures.]

[*The Hon. Member did not actually read the motion at this time.]

The Speaker: Do we have a seconder? The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: I beg to second the motion.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 13/98 has been duly moved and seconded. Does the mover wish to speak to it? But we have an amendment, do you wish to move the amendment first?

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, I am quite happy to hear the amendment, to follow in the procedure you have encouraged us to, to sort the amendments out and debate the entire motion together with any amendments at one time.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning, do you object to moving your amendment?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I would rather the mover open, and when he has finished I will put the amendment. If you wish to combine the debate after that, I could discuss with him how we move forward from there. But I am not ready to move it now.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, we have tried to comply with what you have proven to us makes good sense with these motions. I find it strange at this point in time that the Leader of Government Business, who fully understands the reasoning behind it, has tried to shift the whole way of procedure. It is not for him at this point in time, in my view, to be asking for it to be done in a different fashion to satisfy his request now. The way the motion will be debated, both in my opening and in the debate of others, will certainly depend on whether these amendments are added to the substantive motion or not.

The Speaker: The Standing Orders say that the amendment can be moved at any time before the question is put on the motion. But I would suggest that we take the adjournment at this time in order that there will be time for everybody.

The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, if you don't mind, sir. I will hear what you wish for this afternoon, and I want the Leader of Government Business to think about this because it matters not to me, I can deal with it however he pleases. But he has been around here a lot longer than I, and if he tries this now he is going to regret it down the line. I want him to think about it tonight because if he tries this simidimi business now, then forever and ever I will be a thorn in his flesh as long as I am here with whatever he wishes to do in the future.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, with respect, this is supposed to be an Honourable House. I don't have to stay here and take threats when I am within these Standing Orders, and you need to do something, with respect, Mr. Speaker, about this.

The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay raised this with you. This is an Honourable House, I am within the Standing Orders and I should not have to put up with that type of language, with all due respect, sir.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order.

The Speaker: Let me hear your point of order.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, I think that you are doing your job. We have debated several motions during this meeting, one after the next, and you have asked us when an amendment comes to take that amendment immediately and get it over with so that we can debate the substantive motion altogether, which made some sense. So, Mr. Speaker, I find it strange that Government is calling upon you to use some order, and I don't know which one you would use after you have asked us to take certain steps—which we agreed with you on, Mr. Speaker. We have followed that in every motion since we've been here these last few days.

I think it is just political manoeuvring on the part of my friend, the Minister for Education, and I don't think that you should allow anybody to be pushing these things at you because I don't think you are wrong right now. There is no general disorder here.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The last Member who spoke knows the Standing Orders. He knows the amendment can be put at any time. What I am saying is that I am within the Standing Orders and I don't have to take the treatment I was getting from the First Elected Member for George Town.

Now, if they wish to have something worked out further down. . . but at this stage I am going to stand on my rights. I would like to hear the opening by the mover, and I will decide at that stage what I do with my amendment.

[Inaudible interjections]

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, I would suggest we take the adjournment.

SPEAKER'S REMARKS

The Speaker: I have heard Members on both sides talking about the time being elapsed here. I would like to say a little something about that.

I might be getting the blame for the time lost, but most of the time it is being lost because of lack of decision, and prolonged breaks. [applause]

I now ask for the adjournment of this Honourable House.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until Thursday morning at 10 o'clock.

The Speaker: The question is that this House do now adjourn until 10 o'clock Thursday morning. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AT 4.28 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM THURSDAY, 9 JULY 1998.

EDITED
THURSDAY
9 JULY 1998

PRAYERS

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived: We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth, that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly, that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy great name's sake.

Let us say the Lord's Prayer together: Our Father, who art in heaven, hallowed be Thy name. Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us. Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace, now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Item 2 on today's Order Paper, Reading by the Speaker of Messages and Announcements.

READING BY THE SPEAKER OF MESSAGES AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: In positions which could be described as professional positions, that is, positions in which the applicant holds university or college qualification, can the Honourable Minister say whether or not these persons are being understudied by Caymanians?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: I believe that in at least some instances this is happening. I would not say that in all cases. I am not sure. I can find that information for the Member if he so wishes.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: That would be my request, sir. I also have a follow-up question: Is the Honourable Member in a position to say whether or not those persons in the category I described as professional (for lack of a more apt description) are contracted or temporarily employed, as we know it exists sometimes.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: These positions are contracted. They are contracted officers.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, we will return to deferred question 108, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for West Bay.

DEFERRED QUESTION 108

No. 108: Mr. W. McKeever Bush asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works if Government has been advised of any intentions by Cable & Wireless (CI) Ltd to re-route its directory enquiries through another jurisdiction, thus eliminating the need for its local operator staff.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Mr. Speaker, I apologise. When the question was called a while ago I was in the Common Room talking to the family of one of my PWD staff members trying to make arrangements for funeral services on Saturday. As somebody who has served this country for almost thirty years, I think it only fair to say to the family of the late Bosworth Rankine on behalf of Government that we extend our sympathies.

The answer to the question is, no.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Can the Honourable Minister say whether or not he has had any indication from Cable & Wireless on the matter of directory inquiries? If not re-routing it, changes in the local operator staff?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: If there is anything that actually happens in this respect, I will be happy to make a report to the House. Thus far, as with any other company that I am responsible for, we continue to have talks. But, as I mentioned in my answer, I just have to say no, we have had no talks on this.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister say whether, if in fact this were to be a situation that did occur, this be something the company involved would be discussing with Government prior to taking any action?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: As I mentioned a while ago, we have ongoing negotiations and talks with companies such as Cable & Wireless, CUC, etc. I am certain that if there were such a thing it would be brought to Government's attention and we would have discussions on it.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister give an undertaking that if and when such discussions take place that this Honourable House will be made aware of them?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: I mentioned that if anything should come up I would be happy to pass it on to the House.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, that concludes Question Time for this morning. Moving on to item 4 on today's Order Paper, Other Business, Private Members' Motions. Private Member's Motion No. 13/98, Problems of Public Education in the Cayman Islands, continuation of debate thereon. The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 13/98

PROBLEMS OF PUBLIC EDUCATION IN THE CAYMAN ISLANDS

AMENDMENT TO MOTION

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I move an amendment to Private Member's Motion No. 13/98, Problems of Public Education in the Cayman Islands. In accordance with the provisions of Standing Order 25(2), I, the Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning, seek to move the following amendment to Private Member's Motion No 13/98 as follows:

"WHEREAS this Honourable House having approved the 1998 Budget's prioritisation on the 4th of May, 1998;

"BE IT RESOLVED THAT Private Member's Motion No. 13/98 be amended as follows and that each amendment be put to the vote separately:

- (i) In the second resolution after the word “problems” the addition of the following words:-

“in accordance with the National Educational Strategic Plan 1995 - 1999 which represents the wishes of the public after extensive public consultation and having been prepared and recommended by 353 members of the public (of which over one half were professional teachers and educators) in accordance with the public’s view and accepted by the Legislative Assembly on the 30th day of March, 1995”;

- (ii) In the last resolution the deletion of the words ‘be redirected if necessary from elsewhere’;

- (iii) In the last resolution after the word ‘needed’ add the following words [and the little “a” in brackets is not relevant and should come out]:-

“in accordance with the capital expenditure to be laid on the Table of this Honourable House and will support approval for the 1998 expenditure and that the 1999 and 2000 expenditure be raised by such measures recommended by the Honourable House as priority in the years 1999 and 2000.”

The Speaker: The amendment has been duly moved. The question is that Private Member’s Motion No. 13/98 be amended as in the notice provided to Members. Does the proposer wish to speak to it? The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker—

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, would the Minister would just give way for a point of clarification? Thank you.

It is obvious that we will be debating these amendments before they are put to the vote. I just wish to have it clear: The third amendment the Minister has moved is one I have not been able to fully understand. I just wish to explain what it is I don’t understand and perhaps we can get the matter cleared up.

What the Minister has moved will cause the third resolve section to read as follows: “AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that these matters be treated as top priority and that whatever funds are needed in accordance with the capital expenditure to be laid on the Table of this Honourable House and will support approval for the 1998 expenditure...” I won’t go any further than that. That is where I have the problem. What I do not understand with the way it is worded is where it says “the capital expenditure to be laid on the Table of this Honourable House and will support...” I do not understand this. It doesn’t make sense to me. Perhaps the Minister could explain that.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Yes, Mr. Speaker. This part of the motion is asking, when expenditure which I will lay on the Table comes up for approval at Finance Committee, . . . I am asking for the support of the House at that time for the approval of it. I am asking the House—I will be laying a list on the Table and when that comes up I am asking the House to please support the expenditure that will be needed to deal with some of these things. That is the intent of it.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I appreciate what the Minister has said. I do understand the intent. Where I have the problem is that the wording does not read correctly to me. I may be wrong, and it may be something I cannot see through. Perhaps if one of the Clerks can get involved, I think it is necessary to clear up the way it is worded, otherwise I think it is going to be difficult for us to vote on it the way it is worded. I am not trying to cause any problems, but maybe the Clerk could better explain what I am trying to say.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Is it the word ‘approval’ that you. . . or is it the word ‘support’?

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: No, it is where the phrase “and will support” starts off into the continuation of the sentence. It just doesn’t flow to me.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Would it clarify it if it said “and this Honourable House will support”? That is what the Clerk has suggested. I have no problem moving what the Clerk has said, “that this Honourable House will support.”

Maybe I should speak on it, then the intent will come out clearly. The First Elected Member for George Town has stated to me the reasons in relation to his motion. What he was referring to in relation to the problems of public education. This is what gave me some difficulty in the beginning, not understanding what this motion was in some detail. And I still do not have details but I have an indication of what those problems are. Therefore, I am able to move this at this stage.

That Honourable Member has said that the problems he is referring to mainly come from the speed with which the Strategic Plan is being implemented. Therefore, I am able to deal with those areas in generalities now, and once I get specifics I can deal with those specifically on the full motion. So I am happy, therefore, to move on with this amendment at this time. I guess the Member has the same difficulty with my amendment that I had with his motion in really not seeing or understanding the full intent of what he was trying to achieve.

The amendment to this motion seeks to ensure, first of all, that the National Education Strategic Plan—which is a five year plan updated every year (and would actually be 1997 because the update is not here yet) to 2001—it is a rolling plan. Every year there is an updating by the team, many of whom were on the original planning team that dealt with this. I think it is important for the stability of education and the continuity of education that the motion itself in dealing with whatever problems exist does remain within the National Education Strategic Plan.

Indeed, the First Elected Member for George Town has indicated that his concern is with the implementation of the National Education Strategic Plan (and I will get details of that when he opens). His concern is when he refers to the several sections relating to problems and also practical solutions to the problems in the first three recitals of his motion.

So what I would like to do is to first have a look at the Strategic Plan and reserve a fair amount of what I have to say until I speak on the original motion. What would assist me somewhat, and I would have to move quickly, is for me to move through the main areas of the Strategic Plan itself. I am not certain that implementation referred to by the First Elected Member for George Town relates to system, or system and capital works, or both. It relates to both, in which case I believe I should move through areas relating to this Strategic Plan, then, in some depth.

Mr. Speaker, there can be no doubt that we have a very solid educational system. While people in the Cayman Islands quite rightly expect more out of it, people are satisfied with the system itself. There is no move from the public side to change the system, as such. What I understand from this motion is really the implementation or the speeding up I should say, of certain areas of the Strategic Plan. Actually, one main plan deals with the area that has been a matter of concern. Perhaps I should deal with that strategy first, but it would mean that this would be somewhat out of sequence because some of this arises out of strategy 9. But I think I will move quickly down the plan itself so that the public can see what has been implemented and what has not, and what needs attention.

The first strategy is 1, which says, “We will establish a national curriculum with standards at every level which will fulfill the needs of students of every ability.” “[The objective] 1. To establish national guidelines to govern educational policies.”

I will be reading the implementation updates. “National guidelines were developed by the curriculum team and accepted by the Ministry for Education.”

Objective 2: “To establish a committee which includes a cross-section of society, to advise on curriculum content.” Update: “A national curriculum advisory committee has been established. This committee consists of 16 members. The Chairman is the senior education officer for curriculum and test development and this committee has met on two occasions.”

Objective 4: “To provide a wide range of subjects, knowledge and experiences for students of all skills and aptitudes at every grade level.” Update: “Work is continuing on the National Curriculum in four areas: language arts, mathematics, science, social studies. As assistant education officer for language arts has recently been appointed. Learning outcomes for years 1 to 3 have been developed in the areas of mathematics and science. Learning packets have been developed for each year and level in social studies.”

I answered a question yesterday in depth on this so I need not go any further into it. But progress there is satisfactory and this is well on the way with the core subjects.

Objective 6 is: “To provide programmes of work which promote mastery of basic language and mathematical skills at each grade level.” These programmes are in operation and ongoing. So that has been dealt with.

[Objective] 7: “To incorporate in the curriculum strategies to provide cognitive, affective and psycho-motor behaviour, self-motivation, self-confidence, independent cooperative working and thinking, curiosity and other skills.” These strategies are in operation and efforts to continue to upgrade them are ongoing. I should add that this is a very specialised area of the plan.

[Objective] 9 (sic) [10]: “To infuse key elements of Caymanian culture in all subjects of the curriculum.” Much effort is being made to infuse key elements of our culture across the curriculum, there is more integration of subjects. Older members of the community have been invited to talk to students about life in these islands long ago and students have been on numerous field trips in order to learn more about our culture.

[Objective] 11: “To promote a sense of responsibility towards local and global environmental issues.” Schools have been placing much emphasis on environmental issues. Most schools are participating on various projects or have formed recycling clubs. Students participated in a Caribbean sea project and won prizes. Field trips, beach cleanup, etc, are ongoing activities, much assistance is given by the Department of the Environment. That deals with strategy 1.

Strategy 2, and I should mention that these plans that I have spoken on are plans that were put together by the 353 of the different action teams of which over one-half were teachers or educational specialists. So this has had a very high input from professional teachers and professional educators.

Strategy 2 says: “We will develop and implement a personal education plan for each student that assures his/her success.”

“Objective 1: Centralize professional services so that all children will have equal access to services provided by the Multidisciplinary team.” The implementation: There is a special services committee and also a multidisciplinary evaluation team in operation. There operate according to specific guidelines which outline their roles and functions. It is anticipated that we will have a computerised records management system soon. It is proposed that the new Lighthouse building will contain a diagnostic and treatment centre.

Objective 2: “Develop a comprehensive, non-discriminatory evaluation policy for all students.” All schools have school-based teams that make referrals, and assessments are done regularly. Individualised education plans and treatment programmes have been developed and are reviewed termly or annually. A policy for testing students was created and approved and is used for criterion referenced tests. Monthly staff development training sessions were held and referral assessment procedures were formalised. This plan is for the advanced stage.

Objective 3: “Provide a continuum of alternative placement and related services to meet the varied needs of exceptional students, from the least to the most restrictive environment.” All schools with over 200 students have full time resource teachers. Other schools have part-time help. The old Teachers' Centre in Cayman Brac has been converted into a unit for special needs students. The early intervention programme, as well as home-based programme for school-age children continues.

This is an area where there has been progress, but as I will refer to later on, it is very important that the Lighthouse School and the Sunrise Centre be given proper facilities in which to develop this action plan.

The next action plan is [6], “To ensure that all personnel within educational institutions are suitably qualified and receive opportunities for further professional training.” Periodic surveys are conducted to determine the topics that teachers would like to have addressed. As a result of this identification, workshops are being held to address these needs. Only trained personnel assess students and implement specialised programmes. There has been a constant move to upgrade Caymanians in the teaching profession. Scholarships are given to any student who qualifies...well, in many of the subject areas, but especially in teaching and nursing. Also, as was done with the training from the University of Miami, and also with the United Kingdom University, there has been a steady upgrading of teachers in the teaching profession with specific emphasis on the masters programme that upgraded teachers who at that stage had a teaching certificate.

[Objective 7] “Establish early detection screening procedures to identify developmental delays which may result in learning difficulties.”

Students who appear to be at risk are referred for comprehensive assessment. Entry behaviour tests are also administered to beginning students. As I said earlier, the early intervention programme and the home-based programme for school age children is one that continues.

The next action plan under Strategy 2 is [10] “To establish a national policy on the education of the gifted and talented.” Guidelines have been created to identify the gifted students. However there is a need for additional staff to implement these programmes. Too many times we focus only on students who may be under average, and sufficient effort is not put on gifted and talented students. But like students who may be under average students, students who are over average will burn out in a system the same way as their counterparts. It is important, I think, that this strategy, which I must say (if I remember) exists in the West Bay and Savannah schools, there is in fact a programme for gifted and talented students. So we are behind in that area.

Strategy 3: “We will establish throughout the system individual and school accountability while preserving the unique character and effectiveness of each school.” The objective on Plan 1 is “To establish a localised system which will preserve the unique character and effectiveness of each school.”

The Speaker: Would this be a convenient time to take the morning break?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Yes, Sir.

The Speaker: We shall suspend for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.47 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12.15 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Debate continues on Private Member's Motion No. 13/98, the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning, continuing.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I was on strategy 2 of the Five-year Strategic Plan, which stated, “We will develop and implement a personal education plan for each student that assures his/her success.” I had gone on to deal with the third action plan, which says, “[The objective was to] provide a continuum of alternative placement and related services to meet the varied needs of exceptional students, from the least to the most restrictive.” I had gone down to where I was talking about gifted students.

The third strategy, which says, “We will establish throughout the system individual and school accountability while preserving the unique character and effectiveness of each school.” Plan 1 is “To establish a localised system that will preserve the unique character and effectiveness of each school.” On the implementation side, at the end of each school year principals do an inventory and submit it to the Education Department. Any furniture or equipment not fit for future use is referred to a Board of Condemnation. Annual reports from schools outline projects for the following year. This information is also attached to the budget that is submitted each year.

When I visit schools once each quarter along with the Permanent Secretary and the Chief Education Officer, I always sit with all staff in the school—not just teachers, but all staff—and say that I would like to discuss any areas of concern and hear anything they may wish to say that could improve the system. Other than areas that relate to personnel (which under the Constitution I cannot discuss) I sit with them, and I believe I can safely say that I am the first Minister of Education (or Member of Education as it used to be) who actually goes to all schools. And I invite MLAs—as Honourable MLAs know, for that district—to come to the school. I always sit with staff and try to discuss, as far as I can along with the Ministry and the Department, areas of problems. I look at these lists which are sent in, which come on for the budget. But I think, as they will tell you in areas of supplies for schools, this is one area that I know was a concern five or six years ago, but they now have, by and large, sufficient supplies within the schools.

I am reading from the strategies and updates that came from the planning team in the '97 update. “To create an independent school inspectorate to ensure that standards are maintained.” An independent school inspectorate has been established and the inspections began in November 1997. This has been a success. The inspectorate is there to assist schools and to look at the problems, to find them and isolate them, and then discuss solutions to them.

“To establish a community-based school board for each school to promote more effective schools.” The second phase, which has just about been reached, is first, we had PTAs, home school associations, and now we are on the verge of forming the first national school-based association, one for each Island, which I understand will have the principal from each school and each president of each PTA. This body will be able to look at schools and the system as a whole, and they will have direct access to me in the Ministry, along with the Permanent Secretary and the Chief Education Officer for meetings. It is important, and this was clearly understood, that areas relating to staff, conditions of service, . . . obviously I cannot deal with, and that has to be dealt with directly with the Chief Education Officer. I have very good hopes and aspirations for the national home associations, and I believe that they will be a tremendous asset in promoting education in each Island. After all, it is the partnership between the parents, the teachers, and the children, but especially the parents and teachers, that will provide the effective school system we need, and bring out the full potential of each and every child.

Action plan 4 is “To establish and promote a system of consistent accountability for principals in order to maintain efficient and effective management of schools.” Summer sessions have been conducted by the schools inspectorate and the Education Department which helped to focus principals' attention on self-assessment and improve administrative procedures.

This has been one area that teachers welcomed, and has really been good to develop teachers in any areas they may need development.

[Objective] 5: “To establish and promote a system of consistent accountability for teachers to ensure that maximum educational standards are maintained.” The planning team, on implementation, stated, “Teachers do maintain up-to-date information in the school record books. Lesson plans are seen and reviewed weekly.” This did not happen some time back in the past. “Principals hold conferences with individual teachers to discuss the appraisal system established by the Government and to set objectives for each year.”

Six: “To establish and promote a system of parental accountability in schools to engender parental responsibility and develop a working partnership with schools.” One school has developed a parents' charter. “Parents are kept up to date on student progress, either through parent conferences or PTAs or HSAs and other forums. There are many parents who assist their children with research work, and other parents have been instrumental in holding fun fairs to raise funds to buy things like playground equipment or organising events such as banquets.” This is one area, I must say as Cayman has developed more and more, that has become more and more of a problem because parents many times are working long hours and they do not have the time these days as they did twenty, thirty or forty years ago. But it is so important that parents spend the time with their children on homework and they take interest in their child's progress. I would really ask parents to please support the PTAs and HSAs, because this is one way that they can show joint support for the school system.

Action plan 7: “To establish and promote a system of consistent accountability for students in order that they may be made aware of their role and responsibility within the school.” Student accountability is addressed on an individual basis. All schools have discipline plans, and one school has a students' charter, as I mentioned earlier. One had a parents' charter. “The charter is subject to review and update when necessary. No central committee has been formed to standardise student accountability.” This is something I would be asking the Chief Education Officer to look into.

Eight: “To establish a High School Council in order that the students may be aware of their role and responsibility within the school.” School councils have been established in some schools. These councils include both the staff and the students, and they identify areas of responsibility and accountability. Students also have input on behaviour standards and the monitoring of these standards.

Strategy 4: “We will [identify] and counteract the social problems affecting our students education.” The first plan, the objective is “To provide the students and parents, skills to cope with the trauma of family breakdown.” These objectives I am reading were approved by the Legislative Assembly in 1995. “This area is being addressed through the life skills programme, and with the assistance of the counsellors in the school.”

Plan 2: “Teach parenting skills within the Life Skills curriculum.” “Topics on parenting are taught through the life skills curriculum, and parenting sessions have been held for parents in each district.” In fact, these are quite popular, the parenting programmes that have been held. It has assisted many parents.

Plan 3: “a) Develop an ongoing programme designed to establish greater communication between parents/guardians, students and educators.” “At present, we have schools producing monthly or termly newsletters, conducting parents’ assemblies and home visits. There are also parents’, teachers’, principals’ conferences, and good news progress reports are sent home regularly. Workshops for parents have been conducted by psychologists, school counsellors, overseas personnel, and also CASA, Cayman Against Substance Abuse. Some schools have termly forums, while parents and teachers freely share their concerns, thoughts and ideas.” I have asked—and I know this happens—that the teachers in each school meet with their principal, preferably once a week, and principals meet once per month. In relation to Cayman Brac, one principal comes down for each meeting here, but also the Chief Education Officer goes to the Brac, normally each month, and meets with the principals there. There was considerable lack of communication between the Brac system of education (I should say, the teachers) and Grand Cayman. But this has finally, I think, been worked out, and these last few times we have been to Cayman Brac—and it was quite recently, within the last month or month and a half or so, I believe—I did not get any reports that teachers or principals felt left out, and that Cayman is doing one thing and the Brac the other. I think the Chief Education Officer has done a good job in that area. It is so important to have the communication going.

Another objective of strategy 4 is “b) Provide opportunities for parents to acquire the necessary parenting skills in order for the parent to positively influence their children.” This was initiated in February 1998 with workshops in all districts, and this will be continued.

Objective 2.1: “To use all types of media, electronic and printed, to bombard the students and their families with positive messages.” The Ministry hopes to develop a media policy. Some schools have produced their own newspapers and also supplied the media with much information on school activities.

The next objective is “To provide parents and students with ideas on how they can effectively make use of the media.” This plan has not yet been implemented.

The next one is “To motivate students to obey the rules of the school.” Students are encouraged to share their problems with their teachers and counsellors.

I think this is very important. The counsellor and teacher have to have the child’s confidence that they would come to them and discuss their problems. “Role models are invited to address students during devotions. Personnel such as the police and social workers also assist in addressing students. School rules are prominently displayed in classrooms, assembly halls and lunchrooms.”

Another objective is “To develop incentives intended to reward and reinforce good character traits and behaviour.” I am happy to say that “incentives for good behaviour, given on a daily, weekly and termly, as well as an annual basis”—and some schools operate a student of the month scheme. “House points are awarded for good behaviour, punctuality, neatness and deportment.”

Another objective of this strategy is “To develop a support system for students, parents and teachers to increase their awareness of abuse and their ability to counteract its effects.” I am happy to report that “there is a liaison group that meets monthly with representatives of the Social Services Department to address these issues. This group has made presentations to the schools and hopes to now make presentations to the PTAs and HSAs.”

Objective 5: “To reduce incidence of delinquency among the student population.” “Students are constantly reminded to accept responsibility for their own behaviour. The schools have discipline codes that outline a system of rewards and punishments. Students also receive counselling on a regular basis. Some schools have after-school programmes and summer school is now held each year at three centres.”

Objective 6 is “To establish support for the Young Parents’ Programme.” We continue to support it in various ways the young parents’ programme.

“Provide students with knowledge of sexually transmitted diseases.” “Representatives from the Public Health Department have been invited to discuss sexually transmitted diseases and AIDS, and this is done dependent on the maturity level of the students.” That is important. I stress that: “This is done dependent on the maturity level of the students.”

Objective 8: “To educate teachers, parents and students on the issues relating to suicidal tendencies.” “These are addressed through the Quest life skills social education programmes at schools, as well as through counsellors.”

Nine is “To collaborate with the Ministry of Health and Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation to ensure that all services and facilities currently available, and those proposed, will include the needs of the student population.” “The needs of students in relation to drug abuse are constantly being addressed by the Ministry of Health and by the Ministry of Education. Both Ministries share resources and support each other’s programmes.”

This joint Ministry partnership to fight drugs is very important.

9(2) is "Initiate a drug awareness programme involving all schools." I am happy to say that "a health and drug curriculum is being implemented in schools. Several Quest workshops have been held for teachers. We now have two trained trainers for the Quest drugs programme. Schools participated in the Drug Free Week, Police Week and No Tobacco Day activities. Police beat officers from Community Relations sections of the Royal Cayman Islands Police visited schools and spoke to students about the misuse of drugs." I think it cannot be over-stressed, the importance of these programmes. It is one of the things that has come out very clearly in the polling of a thousand people in Cayman that I will refer to later.

Objective 10: "To establish and encourage participation in an attractive comprehensive vocational programme for school children." Careers officers assist students with their interests and needs. A work experience programme as well as a yearly job fair has been expanded. This, I think, can be looked at and perhaps we could look at attempting to expand that further, which I understand is now being worked on.

Objective 12: "Provide counselling facilities on Cayman Brac for school and community." A community counsellor has been employed and therefore is addressing the needs on the Brac.

Thirteen is "Create a Big Brother/Big Sister organisation in Cayman Brac." As I understand it, at present this is not operating. It is one area that needs attention.

The last one is "Expose 100% of the students to instruction which is intended to instil a strong national identity and foster cultural pride and an appreciation for Caymanian Heritage." As we know, "some schools have instituted the Caymanian Heritage Day. Volunteers have shared their knowledge, experience and skills, particularly in the areas such as thatch and rope-making, quadrille dancing and storytelling. Posters depicting national symbols and heroes are displayed in most classrooms." We see this especially in the Festival of the Arts when we see the children performing.

Strategy 5: "We will strengthen the relationship between parents, students and educators." Plan one: the objective is "To ensure effective communication between parents and teachers." "We now have five completed site-based plans, and one in progress, which includes their missions, objective and tactics." As I said earlier, one school has established a parents' charter. "Schools continue to hold welcome sessions for new parents in each term."

Plan two, the objective is "To ensure better communication between teachers and students." "Pupil-teacher ratios ensure optimum communication with individual groups. Comfortable classrooms have been provided." I will be dealing with the structure at a later stage. A functional student monitor system is in place in some schools and this has resulted in more responsible and respectful students. Some teachers are using daily and weekly diaries and journals to communicate student progress. Notice boards are also placed at strategic points, and they display current projects and future events.

Strategy 5, still Objective 3, is "To involve parents, teachers and students in a partnership in education." "They have been encouraged to use more positive reinforcement in dealing with students. Parenting workshops were held, for example, a workshop on attention deficit disorders. Community persons have been assisting in the teaching of dance, pottery, and holding discussions on substance abuse and social skills." This implementation is taking place.

Plan 4, Objective 5: "To ensure that all parties will be responsible and accountable." On the implementation side, "Schools have various discipline plans. Some schools have devised and are implementing contracts with students." This was discussed in a question earlier in this session, or maybe last session.

Plan 5, the objective: "All sections of the community will be involved in schools." What we have done here is that "positive reports relating to school activities, parents, teachers and students, are frequently sent to the news media. Community agencies are sometimes invited to assist with some school events."

Number 7: The objective is "Highlight and enhance the value of the Parent Body in the life of the school through involvement in Home School Association." I have discussed that a bit earlier when I mentioned PTAs, home-school associations, and now a national home-school association is being formed.

Objective 8 [Strategy VI]: "To establish a programme which will alert parents and the community to the need for effective disciplinary standards and practices in the home, the school and the community." "We have asked parents, constantly made them aware of the need for students to be exposed to consistent, loving discipline." I stress that: "consistent, loving discipline." "The forums used to provide awareness are parent conferences, reporting sessions, PTAs, home-school associations, and cooperation and partnership are encouraged." This is most important because if the child is being disciplined in the school but that same discipline and love are not in the home, then the child will suffer as a result of it. It has to be an effort and partnership between the parents and the teachers.

Objective 9: "To establish a programme of activities for parents which will guide them in their interaction with their children." "Some of the schools have conducted parenting workshops," as I mentioned earlier. "Videos have been used in some of these sessions to assist."

Plan 10 is “To create a supportive programme for students who lack parental guidance, control and/or support.” “Some students are assisted through a peer group system. Churches and some organisations have been asked to assist in encouraging students to attend youth groups and after-school programmes.” In fact, churches run some of these after-school programmes. “Enrolment in many of these programmes has increased, and the services of the homebound teachers are fully utilised.”

Number 11 is “To provide students with information on how to relate to one another.” Poster competitions, essay contests, and role play are ongoing activities in the schools. Audiovisuals are available and are fully utilised in life skills and social education classes.

Number 12 is “To develop a programme that will counteract the negative effects of peer pressure among students.” “These topics are being addressed on an ongoing basis, and peer counselling is encouraged and promoted.” This is important because peer pressure is perhaps one of the most difficult pressures a student faces. Dealing with this is very important, that it be effectively addressed. Effective role models go a long way toward counteracting this.

Plan number 14 is “To help students be aware of the National Symbols, e.g., Flag, Coat of Arms, Flower.” As Members here know, we go to schools. The national symbols are normally displayed there. “Flags are flown at each school. Students are trained to raise and lower them. Kits on the national symbols are used in the schools.”

Plan number 15: “To create an awareness of National Days and National Heroes.” I mentioned that earlier—I am sorry, I thought someone said something.

Number 16 is “To develop respect for National Song and National Anthem.” This, once again, is also done and students are trained in this area.

I have two more left, sir, if I may just finish those two, I will finish this strategy.

Still on strategy 6, “To recruit teachers with Christian principles and commitment whenever possible.” “Applicants are not required to sign any statements relating to moral and ethical principles. At the orientation session for new teachers, they are briefed on the standards, and a code of ethics is now being dealt with.” But I think it is very important, sir. We have a very Christian community, and this has to remain a very important part of our school system. Prayer in the schools is something that, God forbid, regardless of whatever bill of rights or fundamental rights ever to come in this country, is ever touched, because in my view it has been the reason for the serious decay in the American school system. This is a God-fearing country, and our children must be taught this. It must be kept in our schools. I will do everything I can to ensure that.

Lastly, number 18 is “To identify and communicate a Code of Ethics for teachers.” This has been drafted and submitted to the Legal Department to review, and some comments have come back. I think it will be going back in some areas, so this is being dealt with. So that part of the written code is not in; however, there is a very clear code of conduct and ethics within the schools for teachers themselves, same as every other professional body disciplines itself, be it lawyers or accountants or doctors, whatever.

Sir, that ends strategy 6 and I could break now if that is your wish.

The Speaker: We shall suspend proceedings until 2.15 PM.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.47 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.30 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Debate continues on Private Member's Motion No. 13/98, the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning, continuing.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: I will be skipping over the next two strategies and will come back to these at a later stage. I would like to go on to strategy 9. It says: “We will provide and maintain all necessary facilities required to achieve and support our stated mission and objectives.”

Plan 1. The objective is “To establish ‘Health, Safety and Building Standards’ for schools.” Mr. Speaker, health, safety and building standards are maintained through liaison with the Public Health, the Public Works Department and the Department of the Environment. At present these are separate documents.

Number 2 is “To establish procedures needed to maintain and upgrade schools to minimum standards.” The implementation of the monitoring and maintenance is by the Assistant Education Officer for monitoring maintenance and planning. Recently a Facilities Officer has been appointed, now new procedures have been devised. I dealt with this in depth in a question recently, but the principals now have to sign off. This has been very important. During the summer I get a list which sometimes runs into the hundreds. Normally it is 600, 700 or 800 items, close to 1,000. Every Friday I go through this with someone from the Education Department and I personally monitor this because we only have a short period of time when there are no children in school to do a vast amount of maintenance. It is a mammoth job.

No. 3: The objective “To determine future building needs and develop a building Time-Line.” Future building needs have been determined by the Chief Education Officer with his team, in liaison with members of PWD. At this stage I would like, as is mentioned in the motion, to lay on the Table of this House the following list of capital works for priorities.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you.

This list of capital works priorities is comprehensive and it is a very expensive list. But it is something that has to be looked at by this Honourable House. While I appreciate that everything cannot be done at one time, these are the things that need to be done. The amendment to the motion, the second one, is asking for a commitment or the support for the approval of expenditure on these. I would like to go through and read these out because if we are truly expecting to move education forward and help implement these areas of education, then we are looking at quite a sizeable sum of money. Over the last three years we have put a tremendous amount of money into health, and I accept that a person's health is extremely important. I think the time has come to put some money into education, and that is what my amendment to this motion is now calling for.

First on the list is:

- New Lighthouse School, with $6 million in 1999, and $1.9 million in the year 2000.
- Lighthouse school plans and upgrade of Cayman Foods Building for the hall: We have $550,000 approval for this year and that will move on.
- Classroom block at East End Primary School and the Hall: We have $160,000 approved this year, in 1999 we are looking at $1.3 million.
- The Cafeteria/Hall at George Hicks High School: $250,000 now and $275,000 for 1999.
- The Library for the George Hicks High School: There is $5,000 in for plans and $500,000 for 1999, and $500,000 for the year 2000.

Some of these, as Members will see, I do not have specific estimates on. But I think it is important that the Chief Education Officer and the Ministry settle this list.

- Multi-purpose Hall at the John A. Cumber Primary School: $600,000 for 1998, with another $600,000 in 1999.
- Admin. Block at Red Bay Primary: $850,000 for 1998, and $135,000 will be needed in 1999.
- Hall at Red Bay Primary School: We figure it will be another $600,000 or there about to complete that in 1999.
- Community College multi-purpose Hall and Hurricane Shelter: $1.3 million for 1999.
- Purpose built Law School Building at Community College: $1.2 million for the year 2000.

- One extra classroom at each primary school: $1.26 million in 1999.

This was dealt with in depth in a question. If we are to have extra capacity to deal with students coming in, then one extra classroom that can be used for some other purpose until it is needed as a classroom will have to go in at the ten primary schools.

- Air conditioning: $70,000 for 1998. We need an extra $500,000 this year which will come through supplementaries if that is the case. With a further $800,000 in 1999.

The schools of the country have to be air-conditioned. We have a fair amount of classrooms air-conditioned. What I would now like to do this coming year, or the beginning of this year, is for the Legislative Assembly to give us the money to move ahead and air-condition the schools.

- New Primary School at West Bay is $10,000 for this year, $4 million for 1999, $1 million for the year 2000. That school is now our largest school. And some new school has to be built to split it.
- New Primary School George Town/Bodden Town: $10,000 in this year for plans, $4 million in 1999, and $1 million in the year 2000.
- New High School: $10,000 for this year for plans, we need $7 million in 1999, and $8 million in the year 2000.
- Administration block extension George Hicks: $50,000 more is needed this year, $800,000 next year with $200,000 in the year 2000.
- New Science block, John Gray High School: $3 million for 1999, $500,000 for the year 2000.
- Construct Hall at Spot Bay: There is $10,000 for 1998, we need $600,000 in 1999.
- Additional classroom at Creek: money in this year is $120,000.
- Completion of Alternative Education Centre at Dr. Hortor site: We would like to get on with that and we will be requesting $600,000 to start this.
- Flashing lights at all remaining schools: I have had pressure from questions on this. We need $111,500 and we can complete all of these.

- We don't have a costing on the land acquisition for the Creek Primary School at this stage, but that will be to come.
- Land acquisition at West End: We will need $35,000 this year for that.
- Various refurbishing and minor works: $850,000.

This shows the $3.49 [million] in 1998 that has been approved, with a further $1.2 million needed for 1998. In 1999 the total is $34 million. As I said, we may not be able to get all of that, but I would like to see a firm commitment from this House. I don't think talking about priorities is good enough. I think the House has now to forget about the past and look forward and start building for the future of our children in this country. And in the year 2000 it is $16 million.

That is what I believe is needed for plan 3 of strategy 9. The amendment to the motion I am seeking will do two things: It seeks to deal with the problems of the country in accordance with the National Education Strategic Plan; and what it will do in the third Resolution is commit this House to support the approval of the expenditure for 1998/1999 and the year 2000. I believe commitment is necessary in this. It is no good to talk about this anymore. I believe that we have to get on in dealing with education.

There are several strategies that I have not dealt with so far, I will just do an overview of the funding that has gone on over the past five years to show how this part of the amending motion fits in.

In 1993 Recurrent Expenditure was $14.9 million, and Capital Expenditure was $828,000. In 1994 that increased to $15.8 million, Capital Expenditure moved up to $2.8 million. In 1995, Recurrent Expenditure was $16.8 million, and Capital Expenditure increased to $2.9 million, making a total of $19.8 million. In 1996 Recurrent Expenditure was $18.9 million, and Capital Expenditure increased to $3.4 million, a total of $22 million. In 1997 (and these are unaudited figures) Recurrent Expenditure was $21.1 million, and Capital Expenditure has increased to $3.4 million, and at present $24.5 million of the budget is spent on education—possibly one of the largest expenditures, perhaps only subject to health.

We have seen the student enrolment increase over the past five years. In the primary and secondary schools we have seen this move from 2,976 to 3,092, to 3,424, and in 1996/97 3,699, and this year 3,832 students. So there is a rapid increase over the past five years. If they are to be accommodated, and if education is to remain free, then it is important that the capital commitment for the schools be given by this House.

I would just like to deal with some of the building programmes, major works that we have done since 1993. The John Gray High School has had a major re-roofing project on the sixth form. The English Block has had a major upgrade of all electric facilities, installation of fire alarm system, air-conditioning of computer rooms, the hall and the Islay Connolly Hall, and upgrading and extension of walkways.

George Hicks High School: Upgrading of the technical studies building, we built a new art complex and PE changing rooms, installation of air-conditioning in the hall, upgrading of walkways and roofs over walkways, replacing of the fence around the field, installation of fire alarm system, construction of new hardcourt, reinforcement and reroofing of all buildings in phase 1. As far as I can recall, eleven buildings had to be re-roofed.

George Town Primary: A new four-classroom block was constructed that included a fully equipped computer room. By the way, we built four classrooms here and four in Savannah, and they are now full. And that was just two years ago. That is the speed at which this education system is moving. The toilet block was upgraded, the infant department was re-roofed, and the library was extended and air-conditioned. Additional sidewalks have been constructed; a new drop-off area was created. Electrical system in the hall was upgraded and the hall was air-conditioned. There was various refurbishing and painting.

East End Primary: Corridors were tiled, fire exit doors were constructed, new fencing installed.

John A. Cumber Primary: New classroom block constructed for the infant school. Notwithstanding that, that school has now reached its capacity and it is the largest school we have. That is why it is important that we get the school in West Bay. A new administration block including resource room and office has been constructed. A new library and computer room constructed.

Savannah Primary School: New four-classroom block constructed including fully equipped computer room. New car park, playfield upgraded. Air-conditioning and carpet in library. Air-conditioning in hall. All walkways tiled, as well as two classrooms.

Red Bay Primary: Four new rooms have been constructed. The hardcourt has been constructed. Playfield developed.

Bodden Town Primary: Reroofing of main building, storage facilities constructed, walkways tiled, electrical system in hall upgraded, air-conditioning installed, kitchen facilities upgraded, hardcourt resurfaced and painted, walkways constructed.

North Side Primary: Toilet facilities upgraded, storage facilities constructed, walkways tiled, new outer fence and parking area developed.

Lighthouse School: The kitchen has been air-conditioned, walkways tiled, toilet facilities expanded, car park resurfaced. As Members know, the priority now is the building of the Lighthouse School.

Cayman Brac High School: Hall air-conditioned, upgrading of the field, reroofing of parts of the school block.

Cayman Brac Teacher's Centre: A new Teacher's Centre has been constructed, the old one has been refurbished to serve as a centre for special children.

Creek Primary: New two-classroom block constructed, playfield enhanced.

West End Primary: New administration block and classroom block added, air-conditioning of library and administration block.

Spot Bay Primary: Lot acquired and cleared for playing area, reception class air-conditioned, new administration block and classroom constructed.

I spoke about air-conditioning earlier, and that remains a priority. At present, 76 classrooms are air-conditioned, nine libraries are air-conditioned, eight school halls and 30 offices that include counsellors offices and staff rooms. This year another 11 classrooms are scheduled to be air-conditioned. But that still leaves the bulk of classrooms to be air-conditioned and that is in the area close to 200 more. I would like to get on with that. This has been a hot summer. I do not really want to go through another summer the way this has been. The children have undoubtedly felt the heat in there. And I should say that after the reprioritisation was finished about a month ago funds, as I understand it, were released to try to get on with the air-conditioning during the summer in places such as Savannah, the two classrooms and the other eight classrooms that are being done.

Also, I would just like to point out why it is important in my amendment that any problems of the school system be dealt with in the National Education Strategic Plan. That plan has stood the test of time. It is not my plan, it is the people's plan. It came from 350-odd people from the public. Half of them were professional teachers. It came to me; I accepted it as it was. There was no major change to anything, I was not a part of the planning team, it came to this House and this House accepted it. It is the people's plan for education and we must work within the framework of that plan.

The question of vocational/technical subjects. At John Gray High School, the vocational studies that are taught are:

- . Motor Vehicle Studies
- . Information Technology
- . Work Skills
- . Technical Drawing
- . Child Development
- . Food Nutrition
- . Woodwork
- . Electricity
- . Electronics
- . Typewriting
- . Textiles
- . Building Technology
- . Commercial Studies
- . Art

At the Community College, the vocational studies there are:

- . Auto mechanics
- . Construction
- . Electricity
- . Hotel Operations
- . Professional Cookery

- . Computing
- . Accounting Secretarial

In relation to the extension services, these include:

- . Computing
- . Air-conditioning
- . Architectural Drawing
- . Telecommunications
- . Wiring
- . Plumbing
- . Electrical Licensing
- . Caribbean Cooking
- . Bread and Pastry making
- . Developmental classes such as numeracy and others, Biology, Maths, History, I won't go into those.

There is a very wide range of technical/vocational subjects. Members of this House went through the college some time ago and saw the extent to which that college has been developed. We know it is now into the Associate Degree.

If we look at the advance in the results that have been achieved at the school, I think we can see very clearly some things that I must say I am personally very proud of. For example, some of the primary schools that in the past were unable to get into the upper ten when we did the California Achievement Tests, several of those are now coming at the top. Some years ago they would have been at the bottom of the ladder. This is a 'hats-off' to the teachers and principals, but also to the parents. Many parents do take the time with their children.

There is another thing I would like to mention. Many times there may be one or two children who do something wrong. For example, in the John Gray or George Hicks High School there are 850 children who are good children. We have to be careful not to pull the good children down because of a few who may have fallen by the wayside. We have a duty to correct that and to try to get them back on the right path.

I am not going to go into Alternative Education because that question was asked just recently in this meeting and I answered that in some considerable depth. But I would just like to point out that many times the press will headline behavioural problems by four or five children, but it would be good to acknowledge that we have good children in the system. The vast majority—99.9% of them—do well. They progress well; they have different levels, as in every society, of learning ability. But we should not hurt the many children who do well in the schools with the fact that there are some occasional discipline problems.

What speaks best is if we look at this year's graduation, and I thank Honourable Members who came to this at the John Gray High School. For the first time over 30 students achieved over seven higher grade passes. One student sat an additional subject and obtained eight higher grade passes, while 31 students earned seven high grade passes. I am very happy to state, as announced by the principal that night, that there were 32 honour students in 1997 compared to 16 in 1996. The number of good passes doubled. This speaks for itself.

In fact, if we look at the results, and I don't want to go much further into this, in the CXC and IGCSE, we find that the CXC results are the best in the Caribbean [for] many years. So the results are there. But I accept that parents demand more and more of the system, and I believe that the time has come when we must do what is necessary to deal with a further upgrading of the system.

Where does the system of education fit in? What are the views of the public generally? Some time ago the international firm of Penn, Schoen & Berland did a polling of 1,000 completed phone calls in relation to this. That polling was clearly summed up in a paper that I laid on the Table of this House. Mr. Bernard Whitman of that firm (which, incidentally, does work for the White House, in Germany and in the United Kingdom, they are international and it is an independent polling which they felt was within about 4% accuracy) said this [on page 7]:

“The Cayman Islands’ education system is fundamentally sound and residents have placed a great deal of confidence in the teachers.

“At the same time nearly three in four respondents believe the islands need to:

- ⇒ Work on maintaining strong educational standards
- ⇒ Toughen up discipline in the school
- ⇒ Prepare Caymanians for the jobs that exist in the 21st Century.”

That, in my view, sums up where we are. It also sums up the challenge. While I will not go into these results in detail now, what I will say is that when it came to a question of whether the percentage that was worried about the educational system, that was maybe tenth or twelfth down the line. It was only 7% from what I can remember, but I do have the report here that dealt with that.

What is clear is that Caymanians are demanding more and more from the education system. Therefore, in my view, as representatives we have to rise to the challenge. It will be expensive, it will take a lot of time, but if we do it we are investing in the future of our country, the future generation.

So the three amendments to the motion that I am now seeking to put, the first one would actually read as follows: “BE IT ALSO RESOLVED that the Honourable Legislative Assembly arrive at the necessary, relevant and practical solutions to these problems...” That is the original motion. What we are asking to add is: “in accordance with the National Educational Strategic Plan 1995 - 1999 [and we know that is now 1998 to 2003] which represents the wishes of the public after extensive public consultation and having been prepared and recommended by 353 members of the public (of which over one half were professional teachers and educators) in accordance with the public’s view and accepted by the Legislative Assembly on the 30th day of March, 1995;...” That is a very simple amendment. It says that whatever practical solutions to the problem we arrive at should be done in accordance with the National Educational Strategic Plan.

As I said, that is not my plan. That plan was prepared by the people. It was the first time that a politician had a full plan prepared by the public, given to me and I moved it into the legislature. And we accepted it. So we must go in accordance with the National Education Strategic Plan. I see no way out of it. It is the plan of this House. That seems to be a simple [amendment] asking Members to support it.

The third one deals with extending the present section of the original motion. What that original motion says is: “AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that these matters be treated as top priority and that whatever funds are needed be redirected, if necessary, from elsewhere in order to effect the necessary corrective measures.”

Mr. Speaker, let us not kid ourselves. If we are going to deal with education it is going to mean a lot more than redirecting money. It is going to mean, in this coming year especially, committing to the public education system of this country. We did it for health—and I agree health is critical because without one's health one really has very little on this earth. I am not talking of one's spiritual feelings because, obviously, one's religion comes first. But next to that is health. I believe that next to that, surely, must come education.

What my amendment to the motion is seeking to do is go beyond making it a priority. I do not think that is good enough. I believe that this Legislative Assembly is prepared to commit itself to solving the problems of the educational capital programme and the spending needs necessary for the future. Now, I am not saying—and I would never say—that we have to go overboard. The list I gave is a very extensive list. It is very large sums of money. I know that. I am not saying that everything has to be done now. We can't do everything now. But what I am asking is that we amend that motion and move beyond talking about top priorities, and state that “in accordance with the capital expenditure to be laid on the Table of this Honourable House [which I have] and will support approval for the 1998 expenditure and that the 1999 and 2000 expenditure be raised by such measures recommended by the Honourable House as priority in the years 1999 and 2000 in order to effect the necessary corrective measures.”

So I have gone one step further. We have gone beyond saying it is a priority. It's the difference between our talking about it being a priority, I my asking for a commitment. Let us commit next year and the year after to putting the bulk of capital expenditure in this country into the future of this country, which is our education system. Mr. Speaker, the system is in place. There can be no doubt. I have read extensively and I hope that Members of this House, and the public, realise how detailed and important the Strategic Plan on Education is. It deals with every aspect of education.

Now, not everything can be implemented at one time, the same as this long list here cannot be implemented at one time. But I believe that we must go beyond talking about it and give a firm commitment. That is all I am trying to do with the amendments to this motion.

In summary, I think what was said independently, that the Cayman Islands' Education system is fundamentally sound and that the public wants to work on maintaining strong educational standards and toughen up discipline in the schools and prepare Caymanians for jobs of the 21st Century, is the view of the public. Therefore I believe that my amendment which moves from talking about education to committing to education is where we must go. I ask Members of this Honourable House to please support the amendment.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak to the amendment? The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Had I not known better, half way through the delivery by the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning I would have thought that this was his motion! Really, I guess it is not vitally important whose motion it is. Be that as it may, the amendments called for here are, in my view, not necessary to achieve what is being sought by the motion. I will take each one of these amendments individually and give my view as opposed to the views just expressed by the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

First of all, in the second Resolve, the original motion says, "BE IT ALSO RESOLVED that the Honourable Legislative Assembly arrive at the necessary, relevant and practical solutions to these problems;..." Let me make it abundantly clear that the motion and its Resolve sections were crafted by the Backbench with total acceptance of the existence of the National Education Strategic Plan 1995-1999. There is no question in our minds to deal with solutions not in line with that plan. I stand and say that, because I mean it—there is nothing in our minds to do with any changes to the plan at present. So if the motion is not addressing any change to the plan, why then should we have to add these six lines of amendment to this section?

The amendment is talking about these 353 members of the public, yadda, yadda, yadda. We understand that those 353 members of the public spent a lot of time and effort in contributing to the development of this plan. But their job is done. The plan is made. What we are focusing on presently is the implementation of the plan. Now, while the play on words is going on here, and since everybody is talking about sincerity and commitment, when this is all over I would like everyone to judge who is playing politics.

As I said before, the first amendment being requested is totally unnecessary because all of this is included in the premise under which the motion is being brought.

The second amendment is the deletion of the words "be redirected, if necessary, from elsewhere. . ." Let me just read the way it is in the original substantive motion: "AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that these matters be treated as top priority and that whatever funds are needed be redirected, if necessary, from elsewhere in order to effect the necessary corrective measures;..." That is precisely why the motion was crafted the way it was. It simply reads "whatever funds are needed be redirected if necessary." It is not presuming, assuming, or expecting that any funds have to be redirected, it is simply saying if it is necessary, to do so. That's all it is saying. That will tie in with the third amendment begging sought.

Let me just say clearly that the if the Minister for Education was multiplied ten times as a person, he would not have one reason in the world to try to convince me—ME!—about any commitment on my part in regard to what has to be done in the line of the development of education in this country. And I know that the Minister knows that!

What the Minister seeks with his third amendment is to have carte blanche commitment, so that whatever is brought to this Honourable Legislative Assembly through Finance Committee or otherwise in the years 1999 and 2000 in regard to this list (and perhaps there are others) we will approve them. I think it is unfair for the Minister to expect, for one second, to hog-tie us to that type of commitment now—because we do not know what is going to happen in the country between now and 2000! Besides that, it shows a total distrust for the integrity of the people in this House.

In bringing this motion asking for corrective measures to be taken in regard to educational problems in this country, we are not talking about today and tomorrow. That is the reason we are bringing the motion. There are other matters that need to be discussed along these lines, but I am not going to get into those right now. I am not going to fall into that trap. That is part and parcel of the substantive motion.

I hold the view that all of the amendments that are written and expected from the Minister for Education could easily be debated and discussed in totality with the motion as it is worded now. I do not, and I sincerely pray that it does not happen, want to get into any argument with anyone over this motion.

Respect has to be given where respect is due. This motion is not the motion of the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning. In fact, if all of these figures. . . . I am going to tell you something else, Mr. Speaker. All of these figures and all the items quoted thus far, . . . if we did not have a pile of letters and a pile of other activity going on recently and if this motion were not coming, next year we would never have heard zing about them. I contend that.

Mr. Roy Bodden: True!

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I have personally been questioning, begging, cajoling, pleading and rowing for as long as I have been in here. And I have heard nothing since!

Mr. Roy Bodden: True!

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: But I really do not want to get into that. The point I am making is that what we are asking the Minister for Education to do is to deal with the motion as it is. We, the Backbench, are giving him a window of opportunity—since he would not bring it himself—to get total support in this Legislative Assembly in regard to whatever has to be done with education.

He is going to come back, when he winds up on his amendments, saying that is exactly what he is doing. What I am saying to him—and I am not asking—is to not let us get into this pitched battle over this issue. Everything he has talked about so far in regard to his amendments and whatever else he may wish to talk about after that in the substantive motion can be dealt with and taken care of with the motion as it is. I contend that, and I repeat again, I do not believe it is fair to expect a commitment that goes beyond any other discussion for 1999 and 2000 in regard to whatever capital expenditure is needed.

He has a projected capital expenditure list for education that encompasses some $55.6 million—which is not news to me. He turns around and says, while he is discussing the amendments, that he knows that not everything can be done at one time. As far as I am concerned, the Minister should allow for the fact that the other Members of Finance Committee and/or the Legislative Assembly are responsible enough, once given proper information, to make sound decisions. In my view, what he is saying to us, whether he intends to or not when he asks for the third amendment, is, ‘Listen, you guys might wake up tomorrow morning and have a different thought about this thing. We want to corner you now so that once you say yes, if something happens afterward I can come back and say you said “yes.”’ That is not necessary, Mr. Speaker.

I am saying pointedly, and I am giving total assurance to the Minister for Education, to every other Member in this House and, in fact, the entire country, that the Backbench—and I do not speak for myself today, because we have discussed this issue—the Backbench of the Government, meaning the elected representatives of this country—I do not mean the elected Government—the Backbench is totally committed to seeing education put right in this country. We understand that there is a lot of capital that has to be spent, and we understand that we have to sit down and work it out and see how best we can do it in a prudent fashion.

It is not for the Minister to now grab hold of this motion and try to put it the way he wants to put it. I assure you, Mr. Speaker, his commitment is no greater than mine or the rest of ours. I take nothing away from his commitment; I only want him to know that our commitment is equal to the task.

I know it is difficult to deal with it like this now, but I am going to make one final plea: I do not—DO NOT—want to get into a pitched-tent battle over this motion. If given the opportunity to deal with it, the Minister would fully understand it is totally with good intentions, the right intentions will give him the latitude, authority and impetus to move on with what he knows he has to do. If he continues what he started now it is going to end up with a whole, long, nasty battle with the possibility of the motion being withdrawn because politics has come into the middle of it.

I am going to say right now that we do not support the amendments. We are asking that the amendments be withdrawn so that we can do justice to what we are seeking here. He can come back and say to me, ‘Well, if you want it to happen so bad, why don’t you leave the amendments?’ My answer, before he asks, is ‘If you wanted it so bad why didn’t you come and do it?’ I don’t want him coming to do it after we did it! That is the politics of the matter, to be very blunt. If he doesn’t want to handle it like that, then let him go and do his own show.

Again I repeat: we are giving the window of opportunity for everything to work smoothly. We are not supporting the amendments for the reasons I have given. We would like to see justice done to the motion so that we get on and all feel good about what we are doing for this country. I trust that what I just said is understood, Mr. Speaker. Thank you.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: I rise to coin a phrase in regard to this amendment brought by the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning. The phrase is: Political witchcraft!

[Laughter]

Dr. Frank McField: As I—

POINT OF ORDER

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order. I submit that to refer to my speech as witchcraft is unparliamentary and should be withdrawn. That is a criminal offence.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town, I would ask that you withdraw that, please.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, what should I withdraw?

The Speaker: The term “witchcraft.”

Dr. Frank McField: Did I say his speech was witchcraft?

The Speaker: Political witchcraft. That is unparliamentary. I ask that you withdraw that.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I think we all know what witchcraft is. I do not necessarily see how using that particular phrase is unparliamentary. I did not say that the Minister's speech was witchcraft. I said that I was rising to coin a phrase.

The Speaker: I did not question how you moved it. I said the word is unparliamentary and I am asking you to withdraw it.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I withdraw it—

The Speaker: Thank you.

Dr. Frank McField: —with all respect, because I think I have come to the conclusion as to what I am supposed to expect in regard to rulings in this House.

I would just like to say that in all honesty the problem of education in this country is something that is debated not just by parliamentarians, but by parents and other concerned individuals. We obviously see that our society is becoming less functional, that our young people are becoming more dysfunctional in portions. No one is saying that our young people, as a group, are negative because the majority of our young people continue to be positive and the majority of our people continue to benefit from education and from the educational system.

Now, this does not necessarily mean that this is a plus for the educational system. It could mean it is a plus for the family system. There are a lot of things involved here, and what I was hoping was that the debate on education would not be made into a debate that had to do with physical properties, with school buildings and school halls, the number of seats and chisels. It is not just a question of economics here, it is a question of ethics, of character; it is a question of the type of character that is being built and instilled in the minds of our children.

Therefore, to get the whole interest of a Member of the Backbench in education confused by a Minister of Government using this opportunity to out-craft, to use political strategy, to circle in and zoom in on, to manipulate the good intention of the First Elected Member for George Town, . . . I feel that whatever we call it, it needs to be called something that is not correct. It is not correct at this particular point for us to not listen to one another.

Obviously, if the Backbench has concerns about the educational strategies and the ability of the Government to fulfil those promises; if it brings a motion in order to have a sensible debate about what can be done to improve or redress the crises in education today in this country, its politics should be kept out of it. Politics is not being kept out of it when we recall what happened in these chambers yesterday, when an attempt was made by the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning to say that the procedures being followed were not correct in that he should have been allowed to make his amendment long after the First Elected Member for George Town—

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Mr. Speaker, I would like to take a point of order.

The Speaker: Let me hear your point of order.

POINT OF ORDER

(Relevancy)

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: First, I don't see how this is relevant to the debate, but, secondly, it is very clear what the Standing Orders say 24(4) or 26(4) and it may be better not to go back into this area.

The Speaker: I have been listening to him very carefully. I cannot see where it can benefit us. Please go on to another subject. [Pause]

[addressing the Fourth Elected Member for George Town] Do you have nothing further to say?

Does any other Member wish to speak? The Third Elected Member for Boddén Town.

Mr. Roy Boddén: Mr. Speaker, you know, I marvel at the tolerance level of some people. The lesson is that all of us need to be careful or we get drawn in to defend the indefensible. When they were winning, the rampage of calling people 'defunct,' and telling them they are out of date by 15 or 20 years never ceased. But when they are losing they are quick to cry foul.

Anyway, this amendment does not surprise me. Patchwork! Culling of ideas from someone else put together in a potpourri to try to steal somebody's thunder. This amendment—and I dare anyone to say this is unparliamentary—is nothing but a political ad hoc racy. According to the Oxford Dictionary of New Words, this is what an ad hoc racy is, "A system designed to be responsive to the needs of the moment." Now, let them get up and say that is unparliamentary!

Mr. Speaker, I have sat in these hallowed halls for years and listened while attempts made by myself and others were shot down, buffeted; we were lambasted, we were run out of town, we were told we were defunct. And I marvel at those people who get up now in self-righteousness and ask for support when. . . . I am going to read, Mr. Speaker, what they said. This is from the Hansards of this Honourable House on 7 June, 1995: "I reject the views put forward by the two Opposition Members when it comes to giving advice on education and the school system. They have been defunct as teachers for a very long time." Yet now, they call and say they need my help.

I have always had the interest of education and the children of this country at heart. It is, in spite of what the Minister might believe, my chosen vocation. And he should know why I am not there now, because the Hansards of 11 April, 1979 on page 25 will tell him that he was the author—the craftsman—of my not being there now. And he has the gal to come here now, in an apparent self-serving manner, trying to put the shoe on the other foot; trying to get a commitment from this Honourable House which is not only unreasonable but ties the House down to sums when who knows what will be unexpendable and unrealisable; trying to manipulate a motion which was well-meaning in such a way that it makes little or no sense at all?

Mr. Speaker, all I have to say on these amendments is that they were crafted right out of Alice in Wonderland, and the Hansards of this House will show that I have always been interested in education. I have nothing against the Strategic Plan which, the Minister claims, was crafted by 353 persons. But if the Minister had been doing his job it would not have come down to this, because this motion should not have emanated from the Backbench, it should have come as a bill from him! He must stop playing Chief Minister and do his work!

I am not going to be long on this because I guarantee that I will have much to say on the substantive motion. It proves that I have outfoxed the Minister. Let him get up now and call the First Elected Member for George Town defunct. Thank you.

The Speaker: I think this would be a convenient time to take the afternoon break. We shall suspend for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.36 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.03 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Debate continues on Private Member's Motion No. 13/98. Does any other Member wish to speak to the amendment? The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: It is really surprising to see the amount of Government amendments to Private Members' Motions. I really thought that the motion before us, the substantive motion, was short and to the point, and that it made a tremendous amount of sense in light of the debate going on in the country. I really have to commend the two movers of the motion, and the people who support it.

I have studied both matters, and I am confused by the amendment put forward by the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning. There has to be something wrong when you see such a short motion being amended with an amendment three times as long!

I must congratulate the First Elected Member for George Town and the seconder. They have both really paid attention to the matters raised today. In fact, since 1993, when he entered this House, he has been calling for these things, asking questions trying to get these matters straightened out. I am convinced that the two of them have nothing but good intentions in dealing with this matter because that is what they have been doing since they came into this House. Nobody can question that. Whether you are against them or with them, the facts are the facts.

The reason for Private Members' Motions is so that private Members can get matters addressed that Government is not addressing. That is the reason for them. But here of late, every time we put a motion the Government comes back with something that is much bigger, something more controversial that does nothing but stir up a lot of problems. This cannot be right, and Members of the House have to understand that Private Members' Motions are meant for private Members to get their business across. The Government has complete leeway to bring a bill or a motion on its own accord and volition.

I don't really see why an amendment is needed to the substantive motion. Not to say that the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning doesn't mean well. I think he is manoeuvring a lot in these stormy waters. But I don't think he has done anything with the substantive motion in bringing this amendment.

The paper he tabled amounts to $55,631,510 starting with $3.5 million this year, and for another $1.2 million later on in the year some time. I have always said to him that whatever he needs for education we would support. I think that is the position of every Member here. The questions I must ask, having seen this paper, are: Have these matters gone through Executive Council? Have they been voted on in Council? Has the Financial Secretary's department gone through it and okayed it, and do they now have PSIC commitment? We need to know all these things about these matters. It is no joke because these are projects that the schools need—not just today, as the Minister said, but for several years. And he now wants to get on with the job—after, of course the Backbench drew it to his attention with this Private Member's Motion, tabled by the First Elected Member for George Town and the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town!

There seem to be, even in these what he called capital works, priorities. And this is the problem I have with the Government. Here we are talking about priorities. The classroom block for East End Primary School is very badly needed—not just today, but for two or three years—and the hall, as I understand, since the reintroduction of the babies class (I call it) the reception class, these things are needed.

Now this is $1.3 million, in total $1.4 million. When you are going to spend and prioritise, for instance, we are just spending $1 million on the hall in Gun Bay. Well, which one was more important to the country—or to East End—the hall in Gun Bay, or the reception classes for the school? These are questions that Government has to deal with. This is not a matter of being against anyone, or for anyone, it is a glaring fact. The reception classes have been put back and East End School has swollen in numbers. That is a fact.

In looking at this list, when I was asking the Minister for Education whether or not these matters had been to Council and all those other questions, I should have asked whether or not this is a final list, or are there other things needed?

[inaudible interjections]

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: No, it is not. The Minister is saying that he thinks this is all. But, Mr. Speaker, missing from this list is the Sunrise Centre. If it is on this list, I don't see it. It is not on this list. Perhaps he meant to put it on this list.

During debate in the country, which we will call an Education Needs debate, one of the things I saw in the press at the beginning of this debate was the needs as pointed out by the parents of Sunrise students. I know that the Minister is aware of the needs of that school, as we have discussed it several times. It is not on his list for $55 million. Sorry, I am saying that this list contains $55 million and the school is not on that list.

Let us not think that this is political bantering, because this list is a serious matter. The needs are there. When you go and look at the new high school, $7 million in 1999 and $8 million in the year 2000, . . . I might be missing George Hicks, 4, 5, and 6 in the High School, hall, library, cafeteria. What we know as the middle school. That has swollen to the size beyond what it was meant to be, as I understand it. So where is the additional room for that school? Maybe he will talk about that in the winding up. But this cannot be final. As I pointed out, the Sunrise Centre, which I know can be done for less than $1 million if they move quickly and take some ideas that were given to them before, is not on this list so you are going above $55 million.

I will wait to hear the explanation in regard to the size now of the Middle School and the plan to deal with it.

I cannot knock the Education Plan. What I have to be disgruntled about is that there are things that have not been done that should have been done for a long time. One of them is our school in West Bay, the John A. Cumber Primary School. From the time the last Minister of Education was there, that plan for a hall was there. That is one thing needed. I know the Minister has moved ahead and identified land. But this is July and I asked about this school some time ago and was told that it would be started by May. Where are we with the school hall?

I don't care who the Minister blames, as long as he gets it done. Let there not be any more wasting of time on that issue—I don't care whether it is Public Works or the Department—the fact remains that that is needed.

I am also not satisfied with the amendment. With all the good intentions of the Minister, it only confuses the situation. I think he should withdraw the whole thing, allow the motion to go through and, for once, take the Backbench in a genuine manner. We are trying to address the problems that have been going on in debate, the needs of the country in education genuinely together.

I have more to say, but I think I have taken it as far as I want to on this amendment. I think to keep the peace the Minister should withdraw the amendment, leave the motion as is and let us get on with the good intentions of the Backbench.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak to the amendment? [Pause] If not, would the mover like to wind up? The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning. [Pause]

He does not wish to reply, so I shall put the question. The question is the amendment to Private Member's Motion No. 13/98. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES and NOES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: May I have a division?

The Speaker: Madam Clerk, please call a division.

The Speaker: The results of the Division are eight Ayes, and eight Noes. The amendment fails.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Mr. Speaker, out of an abundance of caution, I think you better say that the Speaker casts his vote to keep the status quo.

SPEAKER'S CASTING VOTE

The Speaker: I intended to do that. The rule of procedure states that I should not change anything. So the status quo remains, and I cast my vote with the Noes. The amendment fails.

AMENDMENT TO PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 13/98 DEFEATED BY MAJORITY.

The Speaker: Does the First Elected Member for George Town wish to begin speaking on the substantive motion?

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. It is so close to that hour, and we have had a difficult day. If the Government would be so kind as to call for the adjournment, we would be happy. If they refuse to do that, I will have to continue.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, the Government is always kind. I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until Friday morning at 10 o'clock—sharp.

The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport will be arriving later this morning, and the Third Elected Member for George Town is off the Island.

Item 4, Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. Question No. 121, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION 121

No. 121: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning how the acquisition of the third aircraft will improve the revenue-earning ability of Cayman Airways Limited.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The primary purpose of the third aircraft is to eliminate the need for Cayman Airways Limited (CAL) to lease foreign jets when covering periods of down time on its own aircraft, particularly during the scheduled maintenance checks.

The policy of purchasing rather than leasing aircraft has proven to be an excellent decision and received wholehearted support from the Members of the House during the recent Finance Committee meeting which approved the purchase of the third aircraft.

The third jet will ensure an extremely high level of reliability of CAL's operation and by doing so will protect and enhance the national airline's earning ability. It will mean that passengers of CAL will be flown by CAL's pilots and will receive CAL's high level of service from its own cabin attendants.

The airline will also have the opportunity of earning further revenue from charter flights. A key element of the decision to purchase the third aircraft was Government's determination to support the economy of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman through the Development Plan. As air service is an integral part of the national infrastructure, CAL will be able to enhance its support for Cayman Brac by using the third jet to provide a market-driven schedule between Grand Cayman and Cayman Brac.

CAL will be paying a rental of approximately $1.8 million per annum to a leasing company wholly owned by the Cayman Islands' Government which will own the jet. CAL will also pay the usual reserves for scheduled checks of the jet and the engines that will be approximately $750,000 per annum.

CAL's accounts will show losses for rental costs of $1.8 million per annum or $10.5 million over the seven years. But the Government's leasing company will show profits on average of approximately $1.5 million per annum over a seven-year period, giving a total profit of $10.5 million over seven years; and will own the jet after seven years.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say how the prospective charters of this third aircraft will be handled?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I am not sure what the Member means, but CAL would do the charters for third parties.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: I mean whether the charters will be routed through existing companies or whether CAL will set up a special company to deal specifically and exclusively with such charters as has been mentioned.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: It will be done through CAL.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say whether the acquisition of a third aircraft means that CAL will be looking to expand into other destinations not currently flown at this time, or will it be moving to increase flights on popular destinations flown to at this time?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: By and large, I think we will remain with the routes we have. But, obviously, we are always doing feasibility studies and checking on alternative or extra routes. But the intent of this third aircraft is not to have rapid expansion into new routes. Definitely not. If there is something more lucrative that we can run with the extra jet, obviously, we will look at it.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say whether any investigations have been entered into to ascertain if the current subsidy will need to be increased or whether the current subsidy will be sufficient to service the three aircraft that CAL now has?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I think it is very obvious that the present subsidy is not going to buy three aircraft. Remember, we are buying three aircraft now. For example, the third aircraft that we will look at purchasing will mean a loss to CAL of $10.5 million over seven years. But one of Government's companies, fully owned by Government, will show a profit of $10.5 million.

On the present two we are purchasing, VP-CAL, the first one we purchased, we are paying $1,236,000 and another $540,000 in reserves. That is a loss to CAL and that works out to $1.68 million per annum. That is a total loss to CAL. We are paying rent, but we are paying it to the Government. I am sorry, that is the second one, that is CKX.

The first one that we purchased, we are paying $1,236,000 per annum and another $540,000 in reserves. On the second one we are paying $1.68 million per annum and $732,000 reserve.

At present, for example, the loan on the first aircraft (which is valued at about $7.5 million) has been paid down to about $2.3 million. What has to happen is that somehow Government, which is building up assets with these three jets (or the third one when it goes in there), has to offset and pay some of this back to CAL because what is happening, . . . and I think it is clear here and I see Members smiling. If I put three jets into CAL it will destroy the legal structure we have. That is why I think it is very important that Members try to bear with me on this because what is happening is that CAL will continue to take a larger loss which will be offset into Government's companies on every jet we purchase. And I will discuss with the Financial Secretary how we can have this offset.

If we just look at this, we are now paying (if we add these three together, to give you some idea of the cost of purchasing the jets) $4.7 million per annum to Government that CAL could show as a profit in its accounts. I know that this may be hard for the public to understand, but for legal reasons each jet is isolated into a different company owned by Government. And each one of those companies is building up assets. So where we were paying that $4.5 million per year to a company in the United States, or England, instead we are paying it to Government. Legally it makes good sense, but it does show CAL accounts in a very bad state because instead of the money going into equity every year and going into buying the planes, we are leasing them and Government is buying the planes, so to speak.

But there is a legal reason for separating the three jets into three separate legal entities away from CAL.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In the Minister's answer to the last supplementary question, he discussed leasing as opposed to buying. I have a few supplementaries to ask him, but before I deal with that aspect—in the substantive answer, the first sentence is, “The primary purpose of the third aircraft is to eliminate the need for CAL to lease foreign jets covering periods of down time on its own aircraft, particularly during the scheduled maintenance checks.” My understanding is that it would be less costly for Government to purchase the aircraft and for CAL to lease it from Government, basically having access to it on a continuous basis, compared to what it costs Cayman Airways at present to lease foreign aircraft sporadically, whenever there is down time on the other two aircraft. So when the Minister is answering and saying that the third aircraft must mean it is costing the airline more, when he quoted all those figures, what good business sense does it make (if it is going to cost the airline more) to lease an aircraft permanently or continuously rather than sporadic leases? The answer states that the primary reason is to avoid having these sporadic leases by Cayman Airways whenever necessary. I want to understand from the Minister—and perhaps he could explain why it is costing Cayman Airways more if it makes good business sense to engage in this lease, rather than to lease when necessary?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: That is a good question. It costs Cayman Airways more, but Cayman Airways is paying that amount of money to Government, and Government is making that profit. For example, if last year it cost a million and three-quarters or two million dollars, that would have been paid away to whomever we lease from—Arrow Air, or Miami Air or someone. The Member is right. Cayman Airways is worse off, or no better off, but the Cayman Islands Government is better off by $2 million, because the money that Cayman Airways would have paid to lease a jet in Miami, or wherever they get it from (I just say Miami because we normally get them there) would have been gone. Okay? So it makes no difference to Cayman Airways, and the Member is quite right. That is why it is difficult to understand the legal structure of this.

The people of the country are benefiting in that Government now owns two jets, basically, through a subsidiary company. When we go into accrual accounting those two companies will be shown as assets. We will take the value less the depreciation and will take off what has been paid. So like on the first one we are purchasing, that one would show a company with $4.5 or $5 million of profit. That is why I keep stressing that has been a hard decision for me to take politically, but I know it is legally right and in the interests of the country for those jets to sit in Government, and not in Cayman Airways. Legally it does make good sense. This is a policy used also with ships, and it avoids liability by creating a separate legal entity away from the company that is leasing.

So the Honourable Member is quite right. It hurts Cayman Airways, but it helps the country. It helps the Government in so doing.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, I think I understand what the Minister has just said. I wish for him to explain a little further—if Cayman Airways has to pay the money in any case, whether it is to a foreign entity or to a company owned by Government who has engaged in a loan to purchase the aircraft and then lease it to Cayman Airways, if it does not matter to Cayman Airways then how can it hurt Cayman Airways? He just said, “It hurts Cayman Airways.” If the money is going out either way, how, then, can Cayman Airways leasing from a Government-owned enterprise hurt them more than if they rent it as they need it?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: I take the point the Member has made. If we were paying out, say, $2 million a year (and we are still paying out $2 million a year—now that is for the third jet, not on the other ones) then Cayman Airways, on that specific jet, is still paying out the same amount. So depending how that fluctuates, Cayman Airways would not have improved, or would be a bit worse off or a bit better off depending on the amount. I guess the real benefit here—and the Member is right on this—the real benefit is accruing to the Government, but Cayman Airways is still paying out what it would have paid to lease it. The only difference is, if this transaction had been structured differently and Cayman Airways had owned the jet, Cayman Airways would have saved the cost of the lease. So really, it is—I think what the Member is saying, in effect, is right on that third aircraft. It should not hurt Cayman Airways much further, but it will hurt it from the point of view that we do not own the jet. That is really what I was hoping to get through.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. The other question I wish to raise is when the Minister discussed in his answer the leasing arrangements, he mentioned that he was going to speak to the Honourable Financial Secretary regarding the possibility of Cayman Airways acquiring—basically, my understanding was—some of the equity Government is acquiring.

I understand quite clearly why the Minister uses the term 'legal reasons,' and why he is couching his words. I will not get into that because I appreciate what he is saying. I do not have a problem with that, and I am not trying to dig that up because I think we both understand each other in that respect. But the fact that it is a Government-owned separate entity owned by Government, which borrows the money to purchase the aircraft, and that entity in turn leases the aircraft to Cayman Airways, . . . how can that relationship—not because the umbrella is Government—how can that relationship be one which will sustain Cayman Airways acquiring equity? I do not really grip that at all.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, maybe I should have explained what I meant on this. It would not be possible, and it is not possible, for Cayman Airways to acquire any equity in those companies, otherwise it would destroy the reason for setting them up. So the Member is quite right. That is why I referred to the Financial Secretary, since Government, for example, would receive, I don't know, say they are receiving $4.5 million a year, then I would be asking Government to give back even a part of that to Cayman Airways. What is happening now is that Cayman Airways is giving $4 million, it being—receiving, I'm sorry. Government is giving a $4 million subsidy to Cayman Airways. That has been fixed for five or six years now or more. It was there before. Since Government is receiving—and I could work out exactly how much—okay, say, $4.5 million a year—then I feel it is only fair that since Government is building up these assets to the detriment of Cayman Airways, Government itself should give some, if not all, of that money back to Cayman Airways to assist it. Cayman Airways would be showing quite a good profit in fact with the subsidy, and maybe a profit even without the subsidy nearly, if it owned the jets.

When you multiply that out over five years, you are looking at about $22.5 million over five years that will be going into Government from Cayman Airways. I do not know if you follow what I mean. So the Member is right. I am not saying that Cayman Airways can own a direct equity in the three companies, but since they are building up equity, the Government should offset that against those assets, if you like to put it, by recycling some of that money from Government, not from the companies—into Cayman Airways. Because the way the transaction is structured, Cayman Airways is losing $4.6 million a year that it would not lose if it owned the three jets.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. The Minister is obviously not—and I promise him, we are not fighting, I am smiling—but the Minister is obviously not putting into his formula the fact that if Government had not purchased these aircraft through their own companies, companies owned by Government, Cayman Airways, if it were still existing, would still have to pay out that money somewhere else. If Cayman Airways were leasing aircraft, whether it be two, three, one or two dozen, Cayman Airways would still be making lease payments to companies that owned these aircraft. So if I may use an example and ask the Minister if this is what he is saying, to make sure I understand: If I own a house and the Minister is renting the house from me, the Minister is then saying that when I collect the rent from the Minister I should give the Minister back some of the rent. Is that what he is saying?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, if the Member who is renting is also the Member who owns the property, it matters not what happens. The difference is this: Government owns Cayman Airways. Government owns the leasing companies. I do not want to go too far into this, but let me just tell you why it is costing considerably more. We can go on the market. . . and we were leasing that jet we bought at a considerable amount under what we are paying to purchase it! And the difference in the transaction, Mr. Speaker—I don't want to go too deep into this—is that, for example, we may be paying $150,000 per annum or $158,000 per annum on this jet. We could probably lease it for $85,000. There is a difference between buying and leasing, and the structure of the leasing costs, because the lessor is owned by Government. Cayman Airways is owned by Government. The leasing companies, which are the lessors, are owned by Government. Cayman Airways is owned by Government; therefore in effect we are paying a very high cost. These jets are being bought—one over five years, and the other two over seven! Well, we don't have the other two yet, we just have one, but it is a very sizeable amount of money to buy! And the First Elected Member for George Town knows it is much cheaper to lease than to buy. Surely that does not have to be explained. That is obvious. All I am saying here, sir, is that the buying and the leasing are basically by Government.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town. We will have two more supplementaries on this question.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I just need a quick answer to one question which will lead perhaps to another question, but this question is very simple. I would like the Minister to define what he understands 'profit' to be.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Profit is recurrent revenue, less recurrent expenditure under the accrual system.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, we will move to Question 122, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 122

No. 122: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning how much of the annual subsidy provided in the 1998 Budget for Cayman Airways Limited has been spent up to 30th April 1998.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Cayman Airways Limited has to date received C$1.950 million, which represents the first two quarters of the annual subsidy.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries? The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Is the Honourable Minister saying that this money has been spent?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Yes, the larger part of it has been paid back to Government through its leasing companies.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, if Cayman Airways is receiving an annual subsidy, if Cayman Airways is leasing and Government has to provide the capital for the purchase by the leasing companies, how is it possible to redress the profits, or how is it possible to directly explain the profits to the Cayman Islands Government, when in fact it is not only subsidising the airline but providing a loan or guarantee to the leasing company to purchase the airline? The same entity is doing this—the Cayman Islands Government—regardless of how legally we try to operate it. That is what I think the Minister was saying. So if the Government of the Cayman Islands is not only subsidising but paying the interest as well on the airline, how is it really possible to formulate or to see the real profit? How are you able to distinguish what the real operating expenditures are, and the income really is, when you have so many different entities, and so many different accounting systems?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning. I really do not see where this came out of the substantive answer, but you may answer it if you wish.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, since it has been nearly an hour, hopefully these will soon come to an end. But the Fourth Elected Member for George Town has posed a question. The structure of Cayman Airways and the three leasing companies is complex. There is no doubt about it. In effect, the only way you can see this is to produce, what in accrual accounting is called, a consolidated balance sheet which is normally only done between a holding company and its subsidiaries. These are totally separate entities, so what would have to happen is, I guess informally there would have to be two things done: There would have to be accounts in each of the three companies, once we get the third plane, but on the two we have now; and accounts on Cayman Airways. Then there would have to be a marrying, or a consolidating, and, for example, if Cayman Airways showed a loss and the company showed a profit, between the two you could work out what it is overall.

But let me say this, Mr. Speaker. The subsidy of $4 million to Cayman Airways is something that has been that amount for about six or seven years, and you have to remember that there are areas that (politically) Cayman Airways flies at losses which we have to fly, or we would have to subsidise anyway, which is basically the routes in between, but. . . it is complex, Mr. Speaker. That is why I find it difficult to continue answering some of these questions, but I do my best on it. I can assure the public that, say, in another two years, for example, Government will own the jet outright. In August of the year 2000, we will own that jet outright. We will not owe anything on it, and—

[inaudible comments]

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Well, that was just when we bought it. But Government would then own it outright, and that is a good asset. It would have—well, the market goes up and down, but it is now valued at about $7.5 million. That is quite a sizeable asset.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, let me assure you that these questions are in no way intended to be frivolous.

We just want the Minister and the House to know we are serious about responsibility and accountability.

The next supplementary to the Minister is this: Is this subsidy being earmarked to specifically address certain needs or obligations? Or is the subsidy handled in a way that it just sits in escrow and is used or utilised according to the overdraft position, or the pressing needs that the airline may have?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The treatment now is the way it has been over the last fifteen or twenty years. It is paid; it goes into the general revenue but is shown separately in the balance sheet as a subsidy. In the early days it was shown as revenue, but some years ago, I don't know whether during the last six years or before, it changed from that point of view.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, if that is the case, has there been any attempt to wean, so to speak, the company from the subsidy? Or has there been any analysis to see that the airline may be able to operate with perhaps a lesser subsidy?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, the Board of Directors of Cayman Airways has continuously tried to increase revenue and cut the expenditures. And, as that Honourable Member knows, we went through a very hard and harassing period when we cut staff to the bare bone.

The fact is, the airline business is not a business to be in to make profit, especially if you are small, because the scales of what large airlines could do. . . for example, our administration could probably run five jets or seven jets. But I would like to remind Honourable Members that when that expansion programme was on—in one year, Cayman Airways lost nearly $15 million. So you can look at the amount, . . . and an airline can lose money so quickly. It has to be watched the whole time. In a month, half a million is nothing if the market or marketing goes wrong, or we have a jet down for, say, an ingestion or something. Like a bird, when I say an ingestion. It is basically a very, very hard business. I will be very frank. Normally, it is not viewed as a good investment, but it does provide for this country the stability of guaranteed communication which continues to make us the most prosperous island in the Caribbean—both from the point of view of tourism and also from the point of view of investments.

Believe me, if the day comes and there are no jets running in here, people who have money invested or who are trying to come on vacation would be very unhappy. So I believe it is money well spent. All I am saying is that at least for six years I have been able to contain the subsidy of the $4 million. As the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town remembers, we used to run into Finance Committee every two or three months in the early days, just trying to scramble to put more money from Government in. At least it has stabilised to that effect, and the subsidy has remained at $4 million instead of perhaps a 10% increase each year. Costs have gone up.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: Before you ask your question—

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I am going to do that, sir. I would like to move that the relevant Standing Order be suspended so we may continue Question Time.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 23 (7) & (8)

The Speaker: The question is that Standing Order 23 (7) and (8) be suspended to enable Question Time to continue. A seconder please?

Mr. Roy Bodden: I respectfully beg to second that, Sir.

The Speaker: The motion has been made and seconded. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. Question Time continues. The First Elected Member for George Town.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 23(7) AND (8) SUSPENDED TO ENABLE QUESTION TIME TO CONTINUE.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Regarding subsidy, the question was how much of the annual subsidy provided in the 1998 budget for CAL has been spent up to April 30, 1998. The answer the Minister gave was, "Cayman Airways Limited has to date received C$1.950 million, which represents the first two quarters of the annual subsidy." The question did not specify the amount. Would the Minister outline to us any other amounts with which Government in effect subsidises the airline, outside of the $4 million which is given to the airline on an annual basis? To explain what I am asking of the Minister, not only actually in dollars and cents, but in any services provided which are not charged for.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: All the services are charged for, but I think what the Member is referring to is landing fees and the like.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: And the like, yes.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Well, it would be landing fees, Immigration overtime, and—

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Legal fees?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Well, the legal fees are $50,000 that would be paid to the Attorney General's office for work done.

[Inaudible question]

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Sorry?

[Inaudible question]

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, just to clear up the question, so the Minister might be able to give a reasonable answer: We know there are some other costs that Government pays either directly or indirectly, for which Cayman Airways actually receives the benefits. The question is not trying to paint any picture of gloom for Cayman Airways. We are just trying to get a clear understanding. The truth is, we are trying to have a fairly good and reasonable idea of what it actually costs this country on an annual basis for Cayman Airways to operate. We know we have a fixed subsidy, but we also know there are other costs that are picked up by the Government, for which Cayman Airways receives the benefit. I am asking the Minister if he can give us some idea of what these costs are, and which areas they come from.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: It is basically what I mentioned earlier. It would be the landing fees, overtime to Immigration or Customs, and the legal fees.

[Inaudible comments]

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I'm sorry?

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: What about advertising?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: We pay for our advertising. You mean the benefits Cayman Airways gets from tourism advertising? Mr. Speaker, this is getting into—I know—I just do not follow. Those are the three things that—

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. The Minister mentioned three things. Can the Minister state if in the recurrent expenditure for 1998 and/or 1997, in his Ministry, there were any amounts included for advertising which the Estimates did not show was for Cayman Airways, but in actual fact was for Cayman Airways?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The Estimates showed that clearly, and I guess why—I understand what he is getting at. It is either six or seven hundred thousand in there for advertising, and that, as I understand it, has not been paid yet. We are well down into the year and it has not been paid yet. But it is shown in the Estimates, as far as I know, as CAL advertising, or words to that effect.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Minister give us any idea—he mentioned a figure for advertising—of what the costs are on an annual basis for the other three items he mentioned?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: There is no way of me giving that offhand. I really do not know.

The Speaker: Two additional questions. The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Minister state if, outside all we have just talked about, there are any other figures in the Estimates which will go directly to pay any debt Cayman Airways has? Meaning, if Government is using Government revenue to either pay interest or to actual monies borrowed, in the name of Cayman Airways.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I now understand what the Member is referring to. There is $1 million that will go toward paying a pre-1992 debt of what was originally close to $40 million which this Government in the last term inherited. The Government put in US$20 million, which had been approved by the previous Government in the middle of 1992. They could not raise the money. We raised it in the middle of 1993 and it went to pay $20 million. It left $17 million or $18 million that has remained there. And yes, sir, there is a million dollars—the Member is quite right—in there to pay toward that.

At present, the interest on those debts has always been serviced by Cayman Airways. It is a sizeable amount of money. So that is another area which, I guess, if Cayman Airways had come to me clean with no debt, Cayman Airways would not have had to deal with this, but the—

[inaudible comments]

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Well, Mr. Speaker, yes, there is $17 million owing! But it is not debt that was created by an amount by Cayman Airways. And I said to this House quite honestly, sir, at some stage the Government needs to look at paying it because it is hurting Cayman Airways to pay the interest. Now they have given a million to pay toward it, and like the $20 million—the $20 million went straight to pay those old debts, Mr. Speaker.

I know a question was asked before, so I may as well answer this because it will probably be a supplementary: The amount of money in debt may not necessarily be exactly the same debt as existed six years ago. For example, we may have owed Texaco x amount [of money] then, and we owe Texaco x amount now. So what is on a current account basis. . . but the accumulation of the debt is still there. What we were hoping to do is, at the end, when the Cayman Airways $20 million was paid off (which was an eight-year. . . it was a very short-term loan, or between short- and medium-term loan—and I think it is up in another two or three years) then if there could be a draw-down on it—

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: There goes your education package!

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: —to. . . I am going to get the Schools before three years, Mr. Speaker, I think I've got the House with me on that!

But it is still there, and I really cannot pay it off. We have been paying some money, we have been paying $50,000 a month, which is $600,000 a year on principle. But then that is also. . . I have to pay interest on it, you see?

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Just a final supplementary. Could the Minister give an undertaking, so that the Members of this Honourable House will have a very clear picture, because, as is obvious, I think the Minister realises now, no one is out to crucify anyone. We simply want to know what we are up against. That is all we are seeking. Could the Minister give an undertaking to gather all these figures—and I am not asking for a balance sheet—leaving no stone unturned, so we can get an actual costing of what it costs this country on an annual basis for Cayman Airways to operate, so that we may be able to seriously look at it in the long term?

I am not trying to take away the Minister's job, or anything like that. But I think what happens with the whole affair is that whenever requests come to Finance Committee the Members are not fully aware of what is happening; suspicions arise, people wonder what is going down and we do not really get the interaction we should to get the best results.

So I am asking if the Minister would provide us with those figures, just with a view to the Members of the House having a fairly good idea of the state of affairs and what it takes to make it happen.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I give that undertaking, and we can do that. I would just like to say on that comment about taking away my job, one of the most difficult jobs in my life has been Cayman Airways. Every company I run makes a profit, and trying to run a company that makes a loss is not easy. But I would point out, safety is always first, and it is always up front. Everyone is told safety is first, regardless of cost. But we can get those figures, by all means.

The Speaker: Moving on to Question 123, standing in the name of the Elected Member for North Side.

QUESTION 123

No. 123: Mrs. Edna M. Moyle asked the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning to provide the number and nationality of persons employed by Cayman Airways Limited at Miami International Airport. (The Minister may want to take a drink of water first.)

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I have finished my water. Before answering this question, I would like to remind Members of this Honourable House that in the United States of America (USA), recruiting and hiring practices are defined by a complex set of legislation and monitored by numerous government agencies. Cayman Airways Limited in the USA is required to comply with all US laws. The current nationality of persons in the USA at the Miami International Airport is as follows:

American	6
Mexican	1
Cuban	7
Caymanian (1 Lead agent- Cust. Serv; 1 Cust. Serv)	2
Jamaican	5
Indian	1
Panamanian	1
St Vincentian	1
Haitian	2
Trinidadian	2
Total:	28

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries? The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Mr. Speaker, I thank the Honourable Minister for his clear reply. I too am aware of the recruiting and hiring practices in the United States. I am sure we have recruiting and hiring practices in the Cayman Islands also. If we can allow these American airlines coming in here to employ someone to run that airline, have we ever requested the same in return from the United States Government?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, whenever possible, the policy of Cayman Airways is that they shall employ Caymanians. We have done a very good job of this within Grand Cayman and Cayman Brac, within the Cayman Islands, I should say. But I understand what the Member is saying, and I too would like to see a lot more Caymanians at the Miami Airport. It is good seeing familiar faces.

However, I have questioned the recruiting staff on this, and this seems to be as good as they have been able to do. I do agree, with only two Caymanians there it is not very good. But all I can do is give an undertaking to try to get more and more Caymanians at the airport. I would say, and this is more where the treaty operates, in relation to crew staff, cabin staff, we are not caught by these laws, but we are caught by them when they actually go into the office. In other words, internationally, our pilots can fly in, our cabin crew, whatever is needed for international flights are exempted.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The Honourable Minister just said we are not caught by cabin crew in going into the US, but we do not have too many Caymanians in the cabin any more, other than pilots, but be that as it may, I would like to ask the Honourable Minister if he could tell us exactly how Cayman Airways advertises in Miami, so we can get Caymanians who are legally resident in the United States applying for these jobs, and if they are qualified, being employed?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I understand that we advertise it internally and also in the Miami Herald.

[Inaudible comments]

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Well, we have to advertise internally in Cayman Airways first. There may be staff, say, in Grand Cayman, who may wish to go to Miami, or Miami to Cayman. But the policy is, whether there are or are not, it is first put out as courtesy within the airline. It is advertised within the whole airline, so if there is a vacancy in Miami, it would be posted down here as well as Miami, because there may be staff here who may wish to go to Miami, and who may have the US citizenship or whatever. Then it is advertised in the Miami Herald.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Let me make a comment before I ask a question. The figures show you have a total staff of 28, two of which are Caymanian. My comment, first of all, is that this, as far as I am concerned, is totally unacceptable under any circumstances. It is a Caymanian entity, and we should be in a position in which we can ensure that Caymanians who are legally resident in the United States, living in that area, have an opportunity to be employed by one of our entities. If that cannot happen, I think we should ensure that when those foreign entities come here to operate, we treat them the same way.

My question is: Has any Caymanian left the employment of CAL recently at the Miami International Airport? If so, why?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, to the second part of that question, there was one who resigned.

[Inaudible comments]

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: One resigned, Mr. Speaker. I understand, and I guess it is up to the Member how far he wants to go on this, but I understand her family was living in Alabama and she wanted to move there.

[Inaudible comments]

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I am answering on the instructions I have. I do not know any more than that.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I wonder if the Honourable Minister can confirm whether or not the manager at Miami International Airport is a Caymanian.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I understand he is of Mexican origin, and is a US citizen or resident.

The Speaker: Do you have a follow-up?

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Yes, Sir.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Was the manager's position advertised? If it was, did any qualified Caymanian apply? If they did, why were they not employed?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Let me first point out that I do not get into the staffing aspect of this, so I do not have any firsthand knowledge. I am not a director of Cayman Airways, but this would be handled by personnel. I understand that the lady the Member is referring to did not apply for that position.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Did any other Caymanian employed at the airport in Miami, who is considered qualified, apply for that position?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The general manager has said to me he is not sure. We would have to get answers to this and get it to the Honourable Member.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: I wonder if the Honourable Minister can give us a brief summary of how the recruitment process takes place. If the Minister is not responsible and the general manager is not responsible, then who is responsible for advertising and recruiting staff at the Miami International Airport?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The senior manager of Human Resources would be the person who deals with it. Obviously, the general manager does know what is going on. I am just saying that I do not have that detailed information the Member has asked for, and the most I can do is try to get it and get it to him. I answered to the best of my ability, but I just do not have that information.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I wonder if the Honourable Minister can confirm whether the personnel manager he referred to is a Caymanian or non-Caymanian.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: She is a US citizen, sir.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I wonder if the Honourable Minister could say how many of these 28 employees are full-time and how many are part-time, and if any of them are college students attending universities in the United States.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: It appears that just about all of these are full-time, but I could get a breakdown to the Honourable Member.

The Speaker: Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: I would ask the Honourable Member to provide me with that information, because I have spoken to employees at Cayman Airways at Miami International Airport, and their nationality is not even on this list, but they are students attending university in the United States, and I know of Caymanians attending university who are legal residents of the US and who have requested employment at Cayman Airways in Miami but have been refused.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I can only undertake to provide the list. I would just like to remind the Member, sir, I have now run out of water!

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for West Bay. Two more supplementaries, please, and let us conclude.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The employment of Caymanians is of paramount concern to me. I wonder if the Minister could give us an undertaking that as much effort as possible will be exercised to ensure that when positions become available at not only Miami, but other destinations to which we fly, that Caymanians at least have an opportunity for employment.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Yes, I give that undertaking. I would just like to point out that the United States laws make it very clear that equal opportunity is the overriding factor, not necessarily nationality. But I understand what the Honourable Member is saying. My aim would be to have Cayman Airways staffed fully by Caymanians, and I am sure everyone would like that. But I must tell you the truth. United States laws—and we have had to deal with other personnel matters there—are very complex. Their Bill of Rights, equal opportunity, the open skies policies in job employment, as well as the protection of minorities. . . . It is not—you cannot even get a company in some states that is fully American-employed. You must hire a certain number of minorities in some of those states. But it would be good, and I will pursue this, and I will also pass on the concerns of the Third Elected Member for West Bay and the Elected Member for North Side to the Board because I think this would be good for them to perhaps review.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, that concludes Question Time for this morning. At this time, we shall suspend for fifteen minutes.

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 13/98

PROBLEMS OF PUBLIC EDUCATION IN THE CAYMAN ISLANDS

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Although this motion, or rather some amendments attempting to be brought to this motion, caused a fair amount of debate yesterday, I think it is only fair to read the motion as it stands before we get on with the debate. Private Member's Motion No. 13/98 reads as follows:

“BE IT RESOLVED that this Honourable Legislative Assembly debate the problems of public education in the Cayman Islands;

“BE IT ALSO RESOLVED that the Honourable Legislative Assembly arrive at the necessary, relevant and practical solutions to these problems;

“BE IT ALSO RESOLVED that the Government give a commitment to act immediately to bring about these solutions;

“AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that these matters be treated as top priority and that whatever funds are needed be redirected, if necessary, from elsewhere in order to effect the necessary corrective measures.”

This motion has its genesis out of genuine concern. Although I am the mover, and the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town is the seconder, this motion was discussed by the Members of the Backbench. It is going to be putting forward the position of the majority, if not all, of the Backbench on the problems we face today in the public education system.

As others mentioned previously, the public, the parents, those people involved directly in the system and others, have been vociferous in the past in regard to several issues which are obviously very pressing issues. In order to give a reasonable and, what I would consider, proper perspective in my initial contribution, I am going to go back a few years and walk us through a few problems which have been obvious over that period of time, so that we can really understand what we face today.

In 1990, there was a review done and a document was produced entitled “The Education Review of the Cayman Islands.” A report was given and a Mr. James Porter who at that time was the Director General of the Commonwealth Institute carried out this review. That review was very similar to what was done in 1994. It took into consideration a wide range of aspects, it also involved talking to a cross section of the Caymanian community, professionals and lay persons alike. I will prove that many of the problems we still have facing us today were obvious even eight years ago.

When the review was completed and the report given, in the ‘Setting’ (as they called it) the people who completed the report observed that the Education Review assumed at that time that the main objective of the future growth oriented adjustment was to bring a supply of trained indigenous manpower more closely in line with the demand. They thought at that time that the emphasis should be upon the twin objectives of realising full human potential and improving the quality of educational provision—much the same view the Minister for Education has put forward as the basis for the 1995-1999 Educational Strategic Plan.

As we pave our way through this review, they have a section called “Resource Implication and Timetable.” And let us bear in mind that that this was 1990. One of the statements made was this (and this was in 1990): “Early action will be needed regarding a building programme which would incorporate the adaptation of the Grand Cayman High School and Middle School, the building of a new High School, two primary schools, the construction of an education centre, and the establishment of nursery education and daycare centres in local communities. The projection of population for the next decade would also suggest the necessity for additional classrooms and the requirement to provide additional accommodation for the larger student numbers who will be using the Community College.”

Then it said, “It is to be hoped that the major building work will have been completed by 1994.” This was in 1990. It goes on to say, “Essential elements of the timetable would be to set up a National Curriculum Council, preferably by the end of 1991, and to appoint the key staff required to carry out the recommendations. Also, the programme of advice and technical support should be established as soon as possible and extend over a period over 1991 until 1993.

“The timetable for carrying out the changes proposed in the system will need to relate closely to both supply of teachers and the physical accommodation.” That is very important: the supply of teachers and the physical accommodation. “However, students should be encouraged from the beginning to stay on beyond 16.”

This was when they were changing the length of time that students were going to be staying both at primary and at secondary levels. In saying that, we have now discussed two main issues, that is, buildings that would be required based on population growth, and the need to establish a firm and acceptable curriculum. This was in 1990.

As the report goes on, it recognises all of the changes that have been taking place which have not stopped now eight years later. And it addresses the influx of foreign nationals to fill the gaps in the job market. It also points out where the accelerated economic growth drew more women of working age into the work force which in turn induced lower birth rate and an increased growth in the demand for immigrant domestic workers. So that statement I just read is giving an idea on the wide range of collating information to come up with reasonable solutions in the short, medium and long-term, for the problems that would arise by the increase in population.

Mr. Speaker, my reason for going back to 1990 is simply an attempt to prove that many of the problems we face today in 1998 were recognised eight years ago. That is one of the reasons why the motion is crafted the way it is. We believe that if we continue the way we have been that eight years from 1998 we will be saying the same things, the same problems will still be there only they will have multiplied another ten fold.

It also goes on in its recommendations that, “the Portfolio [the Portfolio of Education which is now the Ministry of Education] establish a governing body for each school.” That was 1990. In the last two weeks we will see where the Minister for Education in correspondence to some of the parents made mention of the same thing. I will quote from his letter of 19 June. “In the five year National Strategic Plan for the development of Education in these islands approved by the Legislative Assembly in March 1994, under Strategy V action plan 6 you will see that it is Government’s intention to establish school boards for each public school.”

So we see where in 1990 recommendations were being made about these school boards. I won’t go into all the details of the functioning of these boards, but suffice it to say that it is an acceptable thought that the establishment of these school boards will enhance the operations of the schools. So in 1990 we had talk of recommending school boards, and in 1998 we have the Minister writing to the parents saying that a subsequent plan intends to address the same issue.

What is key here is that eight years later these school boards have still not been established! Without getting into any acrimonious debate here, the point I am making is that I believe if the parents had not aired their grouses, perhaps next year and the year afterwards, and the year afterwards, we would still not be hearing any more about these school boards, simply because it appears that we involve ourselves in being reactive.

Mr. Roy Bodden: “Ad-hocracy!”

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: As the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town quite aptly put it yesterday afternoon, we engage in “ad-hocracy.” Of course, I will leave that to him to define.

But to retain the seriousness of the situation, . . . and I will move on shortly, I just want to say again, using that small example (and others will be quoted) that what has been happening to us and the reason why the Backbench has brought this motion is because regardless of all the good intentions, it seems that we have to spur things on at times—even getting into heated debate—in order to get action. At this point in time I am not pointing fingers, but what is obviously obvious (if I can say it like that!) is that someone has to be in charge, and leadership must offer direction. Not only offer direction, but also offer timely direction.

Repainting the picture: We had a review done in 1990, and as a result of that review had a Five Year Education Plan from 1991 to 1996. Then we had an election in 1992 the 1991 to 1996 plan was scrapped. Then we had a new strategy, which was called Strategic Planning which went into operation. By March 1995 another plan was approved and we are in the middle of that plan now. That is going to beg the question, when another election happens in 2000 and this roll-over plan being done now, with a year being added as each year goes by. . . : Will that also be scrapped and a new one put in place? We are certainly not suggesting that.

As the report goes into a little bit more detail, it refers, under the Physical Recommendations to, “The office of the Portfolio pays particular attention to the building programme, the maintenance of plant and the provision of equipment. The standard of maintenance is high and there is a wide range of equipment available within the schools. Detailed discussion must be conducted with the Portfolio with regard to the provision of new school buildings, the provision of hurricane relief and site landscaping and beautification.”

It goes on: “Future planning will also require special attention for the proposals regarding the size of schools.” And then right after that it says: “The Portfolio should establish a five year capital development programme for education to include the provision of new schools, the adaptation of existing buildings and the establishment of an Education Centre. Plans should be informed by detailed demo- graphic projections and linked to the wider development plans of the Cayman Islands Government.”

That was in 1990, Mr. Speaker!

Yesterday, the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning produced a list of capital works priorities for 1998, 1999 and the year 2000 in the field of education which totalled $55 million. It makes me wonder, Mr. Speaker, what has actually gone on between 1990 and 1998 in regard to any type of capital development programme.

What I am doing now is simply outlining certain situations. So, we are not going to be hearing about proposed solutions in my opening delivery. I am going to be providing certain scenarios to bring everyone in line in regard to the specific problems that we see existing. Then I am going to trust the Government Bench to reply by saying what the Government plans to evolve as solutions.

As the report continues, and as the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning spoke about yesterday, it noted under the recommendations for the curriculum that “employers, after being interviewed, stressed the need for better prepared, skilled and motivated young people for the world of work, and there was an overall emphasis on the quality of education as opposed to merely quantity.” It pointedly states that, “there must be an agreed National Curriculum covering the complete period of school life and ensuring the closest linkage between the primary and secondary stage.”

If memory serves me right, the Minister, in his delivery yesterday, mentioned certain levels which the new curriculum has reached. But what I would like to hear from him in his reply to the motion in regard to curriculum is a fairly concise update as to how far the process is as of now and what is envisaged in regard to a timeline as regards the completion of the national curriculum. Unlike what may be thought, our intentions are not to show up any inadequacies in the system or in any one individual. What we want to see is where we are at and we want to find out what all of us together can do to make it happen faster to get to where we want to get. I think it is important that everyone realise that that is basically what we are trying to achieve in this motion.

When it gets down to specifics in this report regarding a building programme, it mentions, “Both the present Cayman Islands High School and the Cayman Brac High School, as well as the Middle School have viable buildings and resources to become the base for three high schools.” We are not going to debate whether the Middle School should have become a full high school or not. I want to make that clear from the outset so that the Minister does not get his defence shoes on and deal with it in that fashion. That is not the intention. That is for another time and another place.

But it goes on to say, “A fourth new high school [and the fourth new high school being referred to is over and above the John Gray, the George Hicks and the Cayman Brac High Schools] will need to be built at a distance from George Town. But such a school was already envisaged in the Education Plan.” That is, prior to 1990. It also says, “It is likely that two new primary schools will need to be built in the near future, and these will also accommodate the additional numbers arising out of the extra year at the primary level.”

You see, Mr. Speaker, sometimes—I have said it before, but repetition bears emphasis. In 1990 we were talking about the two new primary schools which would have to be built. And that was included in what they were recommending as a five-year capital works building programme for the needs of education in the Cayman Islands, which would have been from 1990, or let us say 1991, into 1996, regardless of which Government. Here we are in 1998, and as of now, where have we reached with that? We are now trying to identify land to purchase, talking about these two schools, and we are eight years later. It is obvious that we are in problems. And the problems we are in, if it is one thing I agreed with the Minister yesterday, . . . although he did not stick to his word, because today he started talking about the past. . . the Minister said yesterday, “Let us forget about the past.” I do not have a problem! I only want to learn from what happened in the past. I do not have to dwell! I just want to learn, and use that to do better today and in the future.

So I am not going to waste all the time in my contribution to say whose fault it was, and why this was not done, and who did not do what. I am sure we all agree that whatever has not been done, some other stuff should have been done by now regardless. And no amount of excuses can justify the lack of action. No excuses!

I also noticed during certain parts of the Minister's (of Education) debate that he mentioned a lot of money has been spent on health, that is, the building of the hospital over the past three years. I do not have a problem with that. I think we all understand and accept that. But the difference is how we should be thinking. If we are forward-thinking, we will not say we are going to buy a car today because we need transportation, then only concentrate on buying that car, and then, because of the way we have structured our lives, not be able to buy gas for the car. What is the sense in paying for the car for four or five years if we can't use it because we can't buy gas?

So we cannot isolate any one of the areas and say we have to deal with this one, then we go deal with the next one. That is not the way a home runs, and that is not the way Government can run.

Mr. Speaker, at this point in time, I really cannot resist this. I have been begging and pleading for years, when I first got to understand the Medium-term Financial Strategy, and the Public Sector Investment Programme. What we have not been doing is engaging in the productivity of such an exercise. This is perfect proof of why we have been doing it wrong. The capital projects, which the Minister produced as a list of priorities for 1998, 1999 and 2000, the Minister will quite readily admit it is not a list that has been known about today. It is not a list that has been known about last year or the year before, or the year before, or the year before. I have drawn certain references from the 1990 review, which show that it was in the minds of the people from then. To be starting to engage in it in 1998 is certainly not acceptable.

You see, Mr. Speaker, as time has gone on some of us who try to be conscientious get a pretty good understanding of what happens. And sometimes, even when we seem to be sailing a little close to the wind, it really gets frustrating. But I won't get frustrated today, sir, you have my word on that. You can relax. Not a problem. But it gets frustrating because—let me just take the time to show what is happening here. I am saying this without acrimony. And if the Minister for Education or anyone else wants to take me on to tell me, or to prove to me that what I am saying is not true, I do not have a problem with that. I am willing to risk that because the intention is not how good I look—I just want what is right.

I am sure the Department of Education has been producing all the necessary statistics on an annual basis, giving any forward-thinking chain of command the ability to understand and appreciate the growth trends in population. New births every year give us a pretty good idea of how many individuals you will need to provide space for in your school system five years hence. You won't have an exact figure because you also have an immigration variant, but there are also enough statistics from that point of view. While you cannot be exact—I know that!—but I have involved myself in the exercise purposely to try to understand it, and it is easy to get enough information to make sensible projections.

We also know that every year, when we talk about our budget and we discuss projected recurrent revenue—and let me show you where it is good. The Department of Finance has been able (and I have taken the statistics from the Estimates over the past five years) to project the recurrent revenue of the country to within less than 5% error, which is their job. They have done that based on information available to them using the Economics and Statistics Office and whatever other Government agencies they need. If we can project what the country is going to earn, and do that pretty well and within a very small margin of error, why are we not engaging in looking down the line at what our needs are going to be in the other areas? I am going to tell you why, Mr. Speaker. I have said it in different ways before, and I will say it today the quickest way it comes to mind. I don't need any fancy words. We have the Ministries, which make up the Government. We have each Ministry and its Minister and its Permanent Secretary and all the other members of the civil service in those ministries, developing their own plan for what their ministries need now, and what they are going to need down line. That is their job! But it does not end there, Mr. Speaker.

We have failed to look at all those individual situations, put them together, and say, 'This is what we are saying all of us need, put together, but this is what money we have to work with.' Then, if we know how much our earning power is going to be this year based on our track record, next year and the following year we simply have to accept the fact that in order of priority this is what we engage in when it comes to our capital projects. And we have failed miserably at that. And I contend today that is exactly why this list of capital works priorities in Education is the size it is, and much more has not been done before.

Now, on everything I count holy, I am not trying to blame the Minister. I see the signal, sir. After the lunch break he can come back and sit down and relax, because I will not be firing anything at him. In fact, when I am through, he is going to get up and agree with me. But we can take the break now, sir.

The Speaker: We shall suspend proceedings until 2.15 PM.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.45 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.33 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed, Private Member's Motion No. 13/98. The First Elected Member for George Town, continuing.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. When we took the luncheon break, I was just painting a picture regarding the way the Government has been operating. I was alluding to the Medium-Term Financial Strategy and Public Sector Investment programme. I was getting around to explaining that in each of the Ministries, there are, should I call them, individual plans for whatever subjects those ministries are responsible for. The time comes when the budget is to be prepared. The country, by way of historical data, has a pretty good idea of what the recurrent revenue will be for the coming year, and possibly the next year and maybe another one after that. But what is happening, as I was saying, is that the Government is not listing priorities, having put all the wish-lists together, so that what needs to be done first is done first, what is to be done second is done second, and so on.

What is very glaring and obvious in this list of capital priorities in the Ministry of Education handed out to us yesterday, totalling $55.6 million, is that many of the items on this list were a priority before now. That means the Government has engaged in capital expenditure in other areas which were not as much a priority as the capital projects needed in education.

I said I was going to try to paint the picture of how it works. I will come to that right now. I have never been personally involved in the process, but the way I figure it is as follows: I figure that when the time comes to decide what projects are done for the year and what comes into the Estimates, there are those who scream the loudest that 'I must get this done.' We also have the Minister of Education, who is the Leader of Government Business, trying to balance the act trying to keep everyone happy; and at the same time no one but no one is really addressing the global picture—gobal picture in this instance meaning the national priorities.

It is not for me to waste time now casting blame. As I mentioned earlier, I only wish to learn from past experiences not to dwell there. But this is exactly what has happened. We must be willing to admit that this is what has been happening, and now engage in running the country the way we should, the way we know how. We are here advocating all types of reforms—fiscal reforms, public sector reforms, we just got through dealing with a Private Member's Motion about freedom of information. If we do not actually start to do the basics right, we are going to be in for some serious shocks when these reforms are put in place, and we all have to live with the disciplines that they will, by nature, create.

Earlier the Minister of Education mentioned how much money was spent on health in the past three years. I was saying earlier that we cannot take care of one situation, not address another situation, and as soon as we figure one is out of the way we will be able to go to that. The reason that cannot work in Government is that we continually need to address all of these situations, because none of them remains stagnant. Because we have just engaged in spending a fair amount of capital in the construction of a new hospital does not mean that when that construction is over, the Ministry of Health is not going to have other things in the pipeline that need to be addressed. It is not going to stop! We simply have to have the whole picture painted in front of us, and be willing to deal with it in order of priority.

There are other areas of education that have problems. Let us go a bit further with the picture we are painting here. We just picked up on some areas in a review done in 1990. As a result of that review we had a Five-year Education Plan approved in 1991. If we extract a few paragraphs from this plan (the result of the 1990 report), there will be a bit of repetition. But it will solidify the argument I am making about too many hands spoiling the pot; too many things getting scrapped and begin started all over again instead of engaging in the true meaning of nation-building. I will explain that as I go along.

On page 2 of the 1991 Five-year Education Development Plan, under the section "Background," the plan reads, ". . . it is imperative that the following initiatives be taken;"—and I will not read all of them, I will just pull two out—one of them is "Develop a national curriculum that will be more applicable to the needs of society, attractive to a wider range of interests, aptitude and intellectual capabilities, and which will improve articulation between levels of schooling, as well as relationships among subject areas and the community at large."

The Queen's English will prove me out, that if we look in the existing plan which started in 1995, while different words are used, what is said about developing a national curriculum is exactly what the sister is stating. But here is what happened: We had a plan that was supposedly from 1991 to 1996 and, as I mentioned earlier, we had an election. Instead of looking at a plan that had started and simply building on that and enhancing it, we get a gap from 1992 to 1995 before anything is talked about developing a curriculum. Again, my statement is not to say that the 1995 to 1999 Strategic Education Plan is one without merit, that is not the point. The point I am making is that we, as the leaders of this country, must recognise that the only way we can take the country forward is to build on what was there before—not to engage in our own agendas just for it to seem like it is ours.

I am not here this afternoon to debate whether the 1991 to 1996 plan was better than the 1995 to 1999 plan, or vice versa; or whether one plan was the plan developed during a certain Minister's tenure or another Minister's tenure. It does not matter to me who the persons are! I am saying that this is where we have continually failed. I believe, to be fair to the situation, that if we go back before the 1991 review we will find there were other things in place prior to that which were probably shoved aside when something else started. So it is a revolving situation, and the country suffers. In this instance, while the country at large suffers, in truth and in fact, the people who suffer initially are the children we all preach about and talk about who are so near and dear to our hearts. We all say how they are the future of the country, and without them, the country will not move forward. We know all that! But let us prove it! Let us do what is right! Let us stop paying lip service.

Another one of the programme components of the 1991 plan is the establishment of school boards. I mentioned it before, but here we are. This is the plan now, not the proposal. This is the plan itself, and one of the programme components in the plan is the establishment of school boards—1991! The year 1998 comes by, and because there are arguments going on between parents and teachers and the Education Department and the Ministry of Education, we are hearing about school boards again now—1998! Seven years later! I mean, if that does not prove the point, what does?

If we were building on what existed, rather than fighting over matters, we would have had school boards already! The curriculum would have been much further advanced! We would have been engaging in building projects as per the needs that statistics call for, long before now. Let me tell you what would have happened. We would be further ahead. It would have cost the country a lot less, and we in here would not have had to spend all the time we spend now fighting about who is right and who is wrong, and who did not do what. I am quite prepared to go beyond that and forget about that. But this ain' no one-sided street now! So if the Minister of Education wants us to forget about the past, I want to see him acting about the future.

And in making the point, it is not that I am trying to say for a minute that the Education Department, the Ministry of Education or, for that matter, the Minister, are not interested in their jobs and do not want to do their jobs right, but I firmly believe—and if there is a stronger word than 'firm,' then someone tell me—but I seriously believe that if we do not change the mindset we have, . .

. instead of being the representatives we should be for the country, they should get rid of all of us!

Mr. Roy Boddén: True, true! True enough! Well spoken!

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: The country cannot take that way of thinking any more. Too many things are happening, they are happening too fast. If we even do it right, it is going to be a task to keep up with it, much less if we continue to fight over it. So I am saying that we are here with this motion saying, Listen, the time has come for us to act. Forget about the politics of it!

There is another thing I want to bring up, but I would not say it until I saw the Minister come inside of the Chamber. I want him to understand exactly what I am saying.

I am totally convinced today that the Minister would have brought these capital projects for education before now. But in his deepest mind he could not figure out how to do it without it causing him problems, because the Backbench was going to be arguing and going on, trying to show him up. That is the way it has gone on up to this point. I speak for myself, because I am part of the process! I know sometimes we are going to wrangle, and I know sometimes we are going to deal with one another and all of that, but I want one and all to understand that if we are going to show any semblance of success at being the representatives we should be for the people, we have to deal with it differently.

Mr. Roy Boddén: Rise above that, yes?

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: We must! As a result of all that has happened, . . . and I am going to lay it as it is. If this motion had not come, the Minister would not have provided that list. He would be fearful of how to deal with it without someone getting the upper hand over him politically! I am telling him, and I am telling everyone, that is not going to help us any more!

Mr. Roy Boddén: True, true!

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Let us choose the moments to fight! Let us not have to fight all the time. Let us forget about the way we are used to doing the business. Mr. Speaker, we understand as well as the Minister understands that the country needs all of these things. But the Minister needs to understand—the entire Government needs to understand—that we on the Backbench can only sit down and ponder, we can only wonder what these things are unless we get the facts. We do not have access to an entire department putting information together and providing us with lists like that. That is no excuse that we should not be doing our jobs, but we try to do that.

The point I make in all of this is that, . . . a perfect example is that list with the capital projects. If the mindset was different, if the political atmosphere was at a more mature level, we would not be at a stand-off when we know what is right and what should be done, and know the timelines we should be following. Instead, we have to wonder. And let me tell you something! Let me do justice to the situation here!

The way it has been going, if the Leader of Government Business, the Minister of Education, was a different person, the same thing would probably happen! So I do not want him to feel like I am coming at him, because I am not! I am simply saying in total honesty, that we have to shed that way of doing business for the country. We must!

If we really want to get down to brass tacks, I ain' gon' hide it! I am a representative for the District of George Town and, just for example, the Minister is a representative. If I want to continue to be a representative, I am going to show my colours too, just like him! And I know there is a natural competitive edge there! But, you see, the nation is growing. The minds of the people are different. The competitive edge they want now is performance, not who sounds the best, or who looks the best, or who can act the best. The country wants performance. And I recognise my role as a representative who sits on the Backbench. I respect the situation that there is a Government Bench. I understand all of that! We on the Backbench understand that!

So I am not going to go on and on in my initial delivery, because I have a lot more information, but it is very possible that time may be saved in this House if certain things are able to transpire. Let me state a few things. I have not come to the 1995-1999 Strategic Education Plan yet. Perhaps I may not have to deal with that right now. But let me state a few facts.

In the 1995-1999 Strategic Education Plan, the Minister has touted on more than one occasion the 105 action plans that were there. I do not expect the Minister to stand up and expect the country to listen to him list them one by one. But I do expect the Minister to be able—since we are all being open and the motion is calling for us to debate the difficulties we face and to come up with solutions—to point out to us where those action plans are falling down; where the timelines are not meeting what was hoped for, and if the Minister faces insurmountable odds in his eyes, and he faces specific problems for which he cannot find the answers to date, then let us talk about it! Let us get them aired openly, so we do not have 50 letters running back and forth every week, and this one talking bad about the other one, and this one saying the other one na' no good! Let us get it all out in the open, and let's knock heads, and let's move forward! That is what this motion is all about.

Better be careful here, Mr. Speaker, because someone might get up and talk about threatening again. I am not threatening anyone. But let me make it clear here. Because I have not listed more specific areas than I have—I just want to let everyone know they are here. I do not want to get into all of that, because the Minister will understand that in this one he does not have the last say, I do. But again, that is not a threat. That is just a fact. I do not want to have to get into all that. I would like us to be able to hear, Listen fellas, this is where we want it to be, this is where we actually are, this is where we have not been able to achieve what we hoped to achieve within the given time. These are the problems, and these are the reasons we have not been able to do it. Let us see how we can catch up and move forward.

Let me tell you something else. This list of $55.6 million is a serious contender! That is not an easy pill to swallow here, but there is nothing else we can do if we want to see education continue to develop properly in the country. And we are going to have to sit down and figure out how to do it! So let the Minister not think, please, that we are looking for him to be shown up for lack of performance. That is not the idea, Mr. Speaker. Neither he nor his staff at any level. Let us show the country by example the leaders we are. There is already, on the outside, a bunch sitting this way, another bunch sitting that way, and so on and so forth. Little pockets who have taken their positions. They have their own agendas, and they want a piece of someone. That is how it is, because that is the way it runs. That is the nature of the beast. Let us get beyond that, so those people's involvement will be positive.

As the new reform initiatives would say, let us get everyone wanting to buy into improving education in the country. If the Minister is going to get full co-operation, we must get the whole picture. I do not make any suggestions about him hiding anything, because this goes to his staff, too, because I know he relies on them. I don't want anything hidden, because if we don't hear it now, and we hear it later—because it must come!—and if they want to really get down to the brass tacks—because I am not afraid of it!—this is the one time they can do it right. Because if they don't do it right now, it becomes a real political issue. If they want it like that, that is fine with me. I do not want it like that! I would much rather spend my time being productive! Even though at times, even you, sir, I believe, might think different. And I can understand that.

So for now, I will not bother to get into any more specific details. I hope the Minister understands the intention. I would hope also that we will get information free flowing. We do not really need four or five hours of a long list. We want the problems that exist to be identified, and to understand why the problems are like that; and for all of us together to provide whatever necessary energies, thoughts and substance, as the saying goes, necessary to bring about these solutions. Because the truth is, I have children also. The Minister has children. Just about all of us in here have kids. What about our constituents who have children? It is pretty obvious that we should be doing what we need to do within the constraints we have, to get it right. I will back off for a bit now, and give the Minister full opportunity to advise us on the circumstances prevailing.

[Inaudible comments]

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Yes, Mr. Speaker, as I was saying, however it has to pan out, all we are asking the Minister to do is inform us of what his situation is regarding education. Let us not try to hide any of the problems. Let us get them out in the open. Let us seek to arrive at solutions, and let us find the ways and means to get the solutions to happen as quickly as possible. I will rest my case for now, and I hope that by the time the exercise is over, we will all feel better and have positive thoughts about it, and reasons to throw our energies in the same direction.

The Speaker: The floor is open to debate. Does any other Member wish to speak? [Pause] The floor is open to debate. Does any other Member wish to speak? I cannot wait too much longer, so please make up your minds. [Pause] Does any other Member wish to speak? The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, this motion before the House is a very important one, not one to joke around with and play wait and see. I would have preferred, after the number of things enumerated by the first speaker, to have heard from Government on this all-important matter.

This matter of education is something we all are concerned about. The debate throughout the country involving the schools, the parents, and on every street corner, people are talking about the situation. I feel there is some crisis in education, and this crisis is for more reasons than one. If you go back several years, when the report which was done by the previous Minister (before the present Minister held the post), there were many things lacking, many things neglected, and the problems had existed for many years. The present Minister has not been able, for whatever reason, to do much about those things. I do not have to enumerate everything already said, but I recently received a letter from the heads of the PTAs. I think most Members did. They were inviting the Minister, . . . and there seems to have been some confusion as to whether he was going with them. Whether or not he met with them, I do not know. But I feel the exercise of him sitting down with them and discussing the grievances of these parents, or heads of PTAs would have been a good one.

They rightly pointed out that on many visits to the schools—and I have been among the Members of this House who have visited the respective schools in our districts, and the High School. Before I go too far, I better say who 'they' are: Dervyn McLean, John H. Ebanks, Danita Myles, Mary Trumbach, Jackie Scott, Pat McField, Joey Ebanks, Chastine Rankin, Shirleyann Tibbetts, Elaine Rivers. It would seem to me, from the letter, that there is serious concern about inaction. They point out that the numerous visits to the public school, as well as meetings with the HSA and PTA groups with the MLAs and Executive Council Members over the past years have regrettably not yielded the desired results.

I can say there have been some things done, yes. In the school in my District, certain things have been done, but a lot is left to be desired. I know that in other schools, whether it is plant or personnel, there are serious gripes about the existing situation.

I know the Minister does not employ people. That is left to the department of Government responsible for hiring. But recently there has been some furore about moving teachers from one school to the next. I recently had one letter from the school in my District, concerning . . . and parents signed it. I don't have the letter in my hand, but I don't think teachers signed it. It was regarding the movement of one of the teachers from West Bay to Bodden Town. They rightly pointed out the needs of the person, the kind of person they were moving, how that person is conversant with the problems in that particular school, and how moving him and putting him somewhere else will not serve any great purpose as far as those problems are concerned. I have to be in some support. As I said, I know the Minister himself cannot hire or fire, but the Department is responsible for the movement of these teachers.

I do not want to have to get back into when these presidents of PTAs point out that the visitations have not amounted to a lot, because not a lot got done because of the visits. But I must bring to the attention of the House the situation in our school, with the hall. I hope there can be some early relief for the situation, because in a question asked to and answered by the Minister some time ago, I was promised that by May (I think it was) we would have started on the construction. This is July, and nothing has been started! I do not know at what stage they are, whether or not they can start before school begins, but I remember well in Finance Committee when we talked about this matter, and Public Works put in their information regarding when we could and could not start. But whoever is at fault, there is no good pointing fingers at this time, the fact is that come Christmas, again they will have to be on the field with their Christmas programme. If it rains, they cannot have it. We had to be at the Harquail Theatre for school closing and graduation.

These are matters that did not just crop up, they have existed for some time! I am tired of asking and getting nowhere. That is just one situation. I am sure other Members of this House can talk about situations existing in their schools. I just pointed out those two situations, one with the teacher, and one with the school hall. One dealing with personnel, one dealing with plant.

There are other issues affecting education. Yes, the Minister has to take some blame, but as I said, it is a line going back several years to past administrations that refused to do anything about it. We are still here talking about these situations. Social needs of our children have to be considered when we are talking about education. The Education Department, the Ministry of Education and the Ministry of Social Welfare have to take serious note of the social problems they face at home and in school, because one is the cause of the other sometimes.

Believe you me, from the reports I am hearing from George Hicks and John Gray High School, there are serious social problems. No one will call to say we are talking to hear ourselves talk, or talking to keep this House in session, as may have been alluded to by the newspaper. The kind of gangism, I call it, existing in those two schools, needs serious attention. Some time ago, Mr. Speaker, I asked about making a concerted effort by putting together a task force of a few Members of this House, parents, teachers and social workers, and even police, because that problem is not going away!

When you hear young children say, 'I am afraid to go to school because so and so can do this, or so and so can do that,' then it is time we take note of the situation. When you hear of children going to school, and they have knives and weapons, then someone is not doing their job properly, and not being cognisant of the fact that the social issues and the stress on the children are going to tear them apart. We cannot get away, and we cannot hide the fact that the drugs and non-discipline that exist are prevalent in the two main schools!

The two departments, that is, the Department of Social Services and the Department of Education—need to work together. And I take this opportunity to say that there is not enough of that between the two departments. It is causing problems! Right now it is a problem with the referral system from John Gray High School into the Marine Institute. And why that should cause a problem, for heaven's sake, I cannot understand! While we had some problems in the past with referrals, we went along and got it done. Now we are back to where we were some time ago with the same situation.

If Triple C School can refer students to the Marine Institute, there is no reason why John Gray High School cannot refer them—and refer them fast enough to get them into the programme. The two departments need to communicate, to work together. They need to be more pro-active than they are. Not to say they are not doing anything. I would never say that, because they are. They have their hands full! They are working, but they need to be working jointly. They need to put serious parenting programmes in place, for instance. They need to go out into the districts to get into the homes, because the homes affect school, and school is affecting home.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Talk the truth, brother, talk the truth!

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Education needs to be more pro-active with the Social Services Department in approaching programmes, going into homes in the districts, looking at the problems, and dealing with them.

I could talk all afternoon on the negative social impact prevalent in those two schools. I want to say publicly that many times we, and parents, blame the teachers. That is not to say that there are not those who, like everyone else, have their failings, but I want to say that we have some very good, hard-working teachers. When anyone has a particular case, they should go directly to the Department, and if they cannot get any redress there, approach the Minister and try to get some satisfaction. But to group all teachers together and say they are not doing their jobs, is not correct. Not correct!

But there is a problem. I am tremendously happy that the present head of George Hicks High School is back in her job, deciding not to move, because she is a very capable person, a very capable woman.

In this matter of the gangs at the schools, I call again for that task force to sit down together. As I said, we have Members of the House who are quite capable, willing and able to assist the police, social workers, parents, teachers, ministries, departments. Make an all-out effort, and we can do it, because we must remember that our Island is still small. We still have small problems, and while the problems seem big, they are small in comparison to other areas, so we are capable of dealing with them. But we have to have the will! We have to accept, first of all, that the problems exist! And then do something about it!

And I make that call again! Let's do something. Let's set up that task force. When you have children saying, 'I am not going to school because of too much fighting, and I do not want to get caught up in it,' and when you hear young people saying, 'I am not going to such and such a place because there is a fight that was planned from school,' we have to be cognisant of the situation.

The Speaker: Would this be a convenient time to take the afternoon break?

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Yes, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: We shall suspend for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.30 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.00 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. The First Elected Member for West Bay, continuing.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

When we took the break, I was talking about gangs in high school and middle school. This has to be a situation that is deeper than just children quarrelling. We find it not only in those schools, but also in some of the primary schools. We had several situations that we had to deal with. I thought I would also point that out.

Thank God that we have some very conscientious parents and very good teachers. I want to mention the calibre of teachers we have at John A. Cumber Primary School in West Bay. They are not just teachers. Some students who have problems go to their teachers, and the teacher has to deal with problems existing outside of school. So I consider West Bay very fortunate to have the calibre of teachers we have. The Head Mistress there is doing an excellent job and I like to say these things publicly and have them recorded in the Hansard because we have to encourage good teachers when we see them doing a good job.

The problem of personnel is a grievous one, this moving around. Perhaps one of the things that needs to be done if we can't get all the teachers we need now, is get more teacher's aides so that the ratio of adults to students would be higher. I don't know how feasible it is, but it is an idea I ask them to look at. It is no secret that because of our booming economy many jobs created in our industries cannot, for many years, all be filled by Caymanians. But there has to be a more serious thrust to train more Caymanian manpower for the career of teacher. This is something that the Government, the Department, needs to put an all out effort on.

There has to be something wrong with the system when we find teachers—Caymanian teachers at that—moving from the classroom they were trained for into other jobs. I have taken note of that for many years. It is something that hurts me deeply because I feel that there has to be something wrong with the system when we see so many teachers moving into other careers, other jobs. There must be! I don't know whether it is the salary, or what, but I do know that there is frustration in some cases too. Some of them have come to me, and I have told them, "Hold on. Things will have to improve." Salary is one, but that is not all of it. I know that. Perhaps it is one of the main reasons, but we have to find the way, the wherewithal to put a more serious effort into getting Caymanians trained to be teachers.

To train up a child from kindergarten and see that child graduate must be one of the most gratifying things on earth. To see a child come into school and finally graduate and make something of themselves...that has got to be a very gratifying and self-fulfilling thing. I hope that the Minister will look at this idea of finding a way to train more Caymanian manpower as teachers.

In dealing with that, I knew sometime ago that the Minister had a plan to move the Head of John Gray High School to the Department as a CEO. I hope that that idea is very fertile in his mind. I knew early on that that was in the near future. Not that I have anything personal against the present CEO, let me point that out. He is a very nice man and I know that he is only doing the job as he is told to do it.

There seems to be a growing situation. I don't know why parents come to me (and I know they approach other Members of the House). But there is a problem of students moving from, let's say from Middle School, George Hicks School, to High School and not allowing them to graduate. I am not sociologist, but it has to be a very self-destructing situation for a child, when he reaches that far, to not be able to graduate because of a fight—especially if that fight has not resulted in any wounding or any serious damage. When we talk about gangs, we are not just talking about fights. That is a separate thing. Watching a fight, for instance. If two boys are fighting and another one runs to see the fight. The student should not be told that because he went to see the fight he cannot graduate. I don't know all the situations, because sometimes we only hear one side. But this can't be right. I urge the Minister to look into that situation because that has to be shattering to the child, and to the parents, those parents who are studious and concerned as parents.

It is growing too. As far as I have heard, it is several at a time. That cannot be the solution, even if the child is misbehaving. The truth is, the Education Department and the Social Services Department working together must be able to find out these problems. Of course, that might take more trained personnel than I may think. But it is something that has to be done. If they are working together and they have the right kind of personnel they can deal with these problems earlier.

Many of the things that I am talking about need other personnel to deal with it. That brings me to the list that the Minister gave. It is a matter of priority for the Government to get these things that are needed for education. The Government has to get its priorities right. I know, because I served in Executive Council, the problem there are so many things to do and little money to do them with. However, when you have agreement from your entire Parliament to go and prioritise, when you have that agreement, when your full House says to you, 'Go and prioritise what you need most,' you are in a fortunate position as a Government indeed. And then when Government gets up and says it will do that, but then returns with a Budget full of items that were not in the original Budget, that cannot be right. It does not make sense!

And it cannot be right for the Minister of Education to have this list, . . . I am not doubting him, and as I said yesterday I know he needs much more. It cannot be right for him to have that kind of need and then spend $10 million (US, I guess) on projects like Pedro Castle. You can't! And I know there are other needs—sports, roads, hospital, other infrastructure, we have to pay personnel which takes a large chunk of the money. But when it comes to your projects, you simply have to prioritise. You cannot say that East End needs two classrooms and a hall for their school, and they do need it. . . you cannot say that you need it, have a need for three years and build a second civic centre in the district. You can't!

There is the matter of juggling for (them boys call him the Chief Minister) his support. I know how the hell they do that! But he must also stand up and say no. He must say no to them. Prioritise! And this is not a matter of knocking anyone or beating up on anyone because I don't like them, it is a matter of what is right, what is wrong and what is practical and reasonable for the people of the country.

I would like to thank the mover of this motion who has shown great interest in these matters. As I said yesterday, whether you are with him or against him, whatever the political bent, give the Devil his due. They have always shown that they are interested in these matters of education. I would like to thank them for bringing this because there is what seems to be a crisis in education in the country, and it is good to deal with it. Let's deal with it up front.

Before I sit down, I would like to ask the Minister to move more quickly on the things in my District which are urgently needed. The Sunrise Training Centre needs a new home. There is a situation that can rectify that problem quickly. That cannot be brushed aside any longer and put on hold, let's get the thing done. Let's get what is needed. You can't say you are going to spend $55 million, . . . but we are all reasonable legislators. We can sit down and work out with the Financial Secretary and his team, the Department and Ministry concerned, what is needed and they will get our support. I am sure that all the Backbench will give whatever support is needed. But let's address some of these issues—not just build the buildings, not just fix the roofs, but deal with the social problems in the schools as well. That takes a lot of time, putting programmes together, getting the personnel together, but when you see the problem you have to deal with it. You cannot brush it aside.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The floor is open for debate. Does any other Member wish to speak? [Pause] Does any other Member wish to speak? We have twelve minutes before the adjournment. [Pause] Does any other Member wish to speak? [Pause] I cannot wait much longer.

[Inaudible interjections]

The Speaker: I don't want to deprive anyone of their right to speak, but I am going to have to ask the mover if he wishes to exercise his right to reply. No other Member wishes to speak? [Pause] If no other Member wishes to speak, would the mover like to reply? The First Elected Member for George Town.

[Inaudible interjections]

The Speaker: I have done all I am supposed to do.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, it amazes me, sir, that with ten minutes left to go the Government could not find some song to sing in order to reply to the motion. It certainly changes the whole tone and it certainly causes me, personally, great disappointment. This was a totally genuine attempt to do justice to a situation that was very near and dear to us and that needed some attention. What I am going to do until it is time to close is sing songs. But I have to go home this evening and I really have to deal with my God. I do not know what Monday morning is going to bring.

I cannot believe, even though I witnessed it, that the mood and tone that was set today has been thrown and cast aside once again to ensure that we cannot move this country forward together in harmony. I am not prepared to accept anything that is said regarding the Government not being able to reply. If the Minister for Education was not in a position to reply beginning the last ten minutes left this afternoon, then certainly one of his other four Ministers could have played the tune until it was time for us to go home for the weekend.

Do you know what it makes me believe? It makes me believe that when you try everything to do what is right in this Honourable House, that there are people here who, for their own selfish reasons, refuse to see the light to make it work.

Now, Mr. Speaker, I want you to pray with me this weekend because I have the utmost respect for you. At no point in my life do I ever want you to think less of me, sir. But, really, pray with me this weekend because I do not know what is going to happen Monday morning. I cannot believe that the Government finds itself in a position with a matter like this that is so important that it does not even have the capacity to reply to the altar call, to let the people of this country know that they too are concerned, that they too want to see the right things happen. I cannot believe that.

[Inaudible interjections]

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I want to say before we close this evening...and the truth of the matter is, through you, sir, if he wants to consider it a threat, he can do so. If he thinks it is bad enough to file a lawsuit, he can do that too, because if he wants me to go outside this Chamber to say what I am going to say now, I will!

The Speaker: Just be cautious with your words, please.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Yes, I will be very careful. I am just giving him all the leeway in the world. Don't worry, Mr. Speaker, I still have it together this evening. It's Monday I am worried about. I am not worried about right now.

But if the Minister—because of the fact that he is a Minister—comes back into this Parliament with prepared statements regarding what this motion was calling for, I want him to know that I am going to do everything in my power to make this country chastise him. I mean it! Because for him to shake his head across the floor to tell me that he cannot speak this evening on this motion when there was ten minutes left—when I have seen him talk for one hour and say nothing—to me is totally unacceptable.

What is going to happen on Monday morning, and if it takes me all weekend to call everyone I know to do it, I am going to—

Mr. Roy Boddén: Fill the gallery?

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: No. I am going to help to provide a list of the things that are wrong with education. The Backbench is going to assist me with that because right now I only speak on their behalf because they are as concerned as I am. It really shocks me to know that a situation like this could have arisen this evening, when the day had gone so well—there was peace in the camp. We were willing to get it on together.

Mr. Speaker, it is that time and I am certainly not the best of speakers. I just sang a little song to kill the time. I am only sorry that the Minister for Education did not decide to do what I just did. I will see you on Monday.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until Monday morning at 10 o'clock.

The Speaker: The question is that this House do now adjourn until 10 o'clock Monday morning. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AT 4.30 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM, MONDAY 13 JULY 1998.

ADJOURNMENT

EDITED
MONDAY

The Speaker: Prayers by the Honourable Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

PRAYERS

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived: We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth, that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly, that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy great name's sake.

Let us say the Lord's Prayer together: Our Father, who art in heaven, hallowed be Thy name. Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us. Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace, now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Item 2 on today's Order Paper, Reading by the Speaker of Messages and Announcements.

Item number 3 on today's Order Paper, Other Business, Private Members' Motions, Private Member's Motion No. 13/98, Problems of Public Education in the Cayman Islands. The First Elected Member for George Town, continuing his reply.

OTHER BUSINESS

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 13/98 PROBLEMS OF PUBLIC EDUCATION IN THE CAYMAN ISLANDS

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. When we broke on Friday, we were still reeling from the shock that the Government had chosen not to reply to this motion. While I will wind up and do the best I can, I am still asking whether the Government is prepared to accept the motion, although in the first 'Resolved' section it reads, "BE IT RESOLVED that this Honourable Legislative Assembly debate the problems of public education in the Cayman Islands."

Since Government has refused to debate these problems, I wonder how it will be minded—whether to accept or reject the motion. If it rejects the motion, that means to us on the Backbench that Government does not consider education a very important part of the success story of this country. If Government accepts the motion, it appears to us that we may as well not exist, because they see themselves as the individuals with all the answers, so our input does not matter. So as I move into the wind-up, Mr. Speaker, I am left wondering whether the Government is functioning at all, much less in the way it should be. What happened Friday evening—I do not know if we will ever know the truth of it, but for whatever reason the Minister of Education was not prepared to reply to the motion. It is obvious to us that he should have.

Whether or not we find out what happened is not really of utmost importance, although it begs many questions. What is important to us is that the motion put before this House be taken in the light in which it was brought, and the necessary action required be done.

When I moved the motion I went back in time to the year 1990. Initially my idea was to bring to the minds of all the fact that while we continue to talk a lot about things, in this specific instance it is obvious that enough action has not taken place. The fact that the Government did not even reply to the motion adds to that, and it leaves us wondering whether or not any action will be forthcoming.

Moving on, I will go through certain instances to prove the necessity of this motion. All we can do at the end of the day is live with the hope that the Government will now get up off its you-know-what and start to do what is right in this area.

By the way, Mr. Speaker, I am sure you prayed on the weekend. So did I. So have no fear today, sir.

The Speaker: Thank you.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I want to first revisit the capital works priorities list handed out by the Minister regarding education and what was needed as priorities. As we look down the list, the second item, . . . And before I go further, let me explain the purpose of this exercise. The purpose of this exercise is to show that politics can be the worst thing one can engage in if one really wants to do justice to the job.

The second item is the Lighthouse School plans and the upgrading of the Cayman Foods building for a hall. We all know what the intention was regarding future use of the Cayman Foods building. When pointed questions were continually asked, I remember saying that I was not prepared to vote monies for the purchase of this property unless we knew, or had a fairly good idea, what it was going to cost to make the building user-friendly for the purpose it was intended for. The answers we got back, Mr. Speaker—and this was months ago, not years ago, months ago, sir. The costs to put the building to where it could be used for the purpose intended varied—and not to be exact but I know I am not far off—between $350,000 and $500-and some-odd thousand dollars. That is what we were told. That included what was given to us from the Public Works Department, and I believe they had consulted a private enterprise.

Now, Mr. Speaker, what comes to us—and even though it includes plans for the Lighthouse School, I do not see plans costing as much as that. The figure given to us now is $1,050,000. That tells me that the proper costing was shaved just to keep the strength of the argument to purchase the property. That is what it tells me! But you see, when the right thing comes out of the wrong mouth, the thought process by some on the Government Bench is, We can't make that sound right. But the building seems to have been bought, and it is going to move on.

The difference in us is that while we recognise mistakes we are not going to kill anything, given the opportunity. So I guess at some point in time we will have to accept what has been done, and at the end of the day make the best of a bad situation. I do not say this hoping that the purchase of this building will cause more problems than necessary. But I say that the problems it is going to cause from a dollar point of view seem to have been known beforehand but no heed was paid to it. I guess it's not our money—it's the country's money—so it doesn't matter.

If we go down that list we see item number 9, Hall, Red Bay Primary School, 1999, $600,000*. The asterisk after that figure, if we look at the legend says, "Money not available until May after Finance Committee approval. Funds to be spent June to November 1998." That is a bit ambiguous to me, because that figure is in the 1999 schedule of expenditure. Perhaps the Minister, if he is listening to me, would be willing to clear up this matter. The point of that was that I do not know who is listening, but I have to ask whether it is 1998 or 1999. This is one warning: When this is aired tonight, I hope the parents are all listening. Perhaps they can deal with it and get better results than we can.

I have just been handed the information regarding the Cayman Foods building. To prove the point better, after it outlines all of the information, it says "the estimated cost of the upgrades [referring to the Cayman Foods building] range from C$250,000 to $350,000." That is one estimate. Another consultant estimated it at $350,000 to $550,000. So even if we meet those two figures halfway, let's say $400,000, and give everyone the benefit of the doubt, what has come to us a few months later is more than twice the amount.

The point in that is that what we are doing in this country today—and I do not really care who likes it or not—is taking the trust given to us by the people, using and abusing it among ourselves to see who looks best. And there is no real concern for what the results will be at the end of the day. I will say no more on that.

The last item I want to mention on this list of capital works priorities is number 21, "Completion of alternative education centre [Dr. Hortor Hospital site]." I am not one to waste too much time because I was not in the middle of the big argument about that site, but I wish to say that it amazes me how this specific site was the topic of all topics in an election campaign. It was used to bulldoze people afterwards, to prove all kinds of theories about how the site was not able to be used, not able to be built up, or was such a bad thing! I wonder how that can be used to house an alternative education centre. All of a sudden, did the good Lord wave his magic wand and make the land useable?

To go on and point out some of the specific problems which exist in the area of education, in recent discussions, and in Private Members' Motions coming to the House, it came to my attention that we are sadly lacking the numbers of school counsellors available for the children. If my understanding is correct, there are calls for eight school counsellors, and at this point in time there are only two for the entire public education system. I cannot swear or attest to this information, but that is the way it was given to me, and it was told in sincerity, so I am going by that unless I am told different.

The other area I want to mention—and I think it is something we need to look at carefully—is that we are continually trying to find answers as to how to get more Caymanians into the field of education. It is only natural that we would want our own to be teaching our children. That is the best case scenario, because who better to take care of our children than our own? One of the avenues by which we can get people interested in becoming qualified teachers is by employing more teachers' aides. There is always the question of money. I know that. But I hold the view that if you were to encourage individuals more and have more openings for teachers' aides, we would give people who after finishing their secondary education have not fully decided what their vocation in life will be, an opportunity to get firsthand experience of what teaching is all about. And I am sure, when it is all said and done, we would be able to have more Caymanians interested. At that time, whatever it takes, training could be offered for them to become qualified. It must serve us better in the long run, not only as a matter of national pride, but from the point of view of cost, because it has to cost more to go overseas to recruit; it has to cost more to bring teachers here, regardless of whether the salary scale is the same for locals and foreigners. The other costs incurred have to be, by it being a recurrent situation, more than if we spend money to train our own people to fill these gaps. I accept that we will probably always need to recruit some teachers, but I think we must try to narrow the gap existing now.

I do not have any specific numbers of teachers' aides, but I believe if more thought and more leading were put in this direction we would get better results. I sincerely believe that.

In my initial debate on this motion I mentioned the building programme, I mentioned certain areas and reports. I believe there is really a serious lack of initiative in this area. I brought a couple instances out there from that list that had been provided, but I have to spend a few minutes talking about this again. What fails to get me to understand the thought process of the leadership in this direction is this: How can we sit down and talk about 353 qualified people making this wonderful plan? How can we talk for hours about action plans? How can we talk about timelines? How can we talk about implementation schedules? How can we talk about bringing more people into the scheme of things so we can synchronise efforts better and get everything going? How can we do all that, and we do not even have one mention of what type of buildings are going to exist to allow all these things to happen? People cannot work out in the open! Years ago, it was good fun to have class under the guinep tree, but that is not the way it works any more. So to say this plan is wonderful, and to completely ignore the physical parts of the plan, . . . I guess I had best not say any more on that for now.

I am going to show you why I believe there has been almost—because it is a difficult situation—a concerted effort not to address it, because it is not easy to solve. In 1995, March 30, when the Minister of Education presented this plan—and with your permission, Sir, I am going to quote a little of what he said, so we can understand. “In all, 353 individuals participated in the preparation of the Strategic Plan. Public support often exceeded our expectations and interest was high. I would like to take this opportunity”—oh, he's good at that!—“to reiterate the Ministry's thanks to all those people who served on the Education Planning team as Action Team leaders, and on the Action Planning Committees. I would particularly like to thank the trained facilitators who took us through this process and whose belief that we will be successful never wavered. These facilitators were Mrs. Joy Basdeo, Miss Andrea Bryan, Mrs. Hyacinth Conolly, Mr. Colin Ross, Mrs. Mary Miller, Mr. Leonard Bodden and Mr. Michael Hunt.” Even if I say so, Mr. Speaker, that is a powerful team. “A special thanks must go to Mrs. Conolly, the lead facilitator, who as internal coordinator was responsible for organisation of all meetings and all training. A 35-member education planning team, representative of the whole community, developed nine strategies. This education planning team was made up of 50% teachers and other education personnel, and 50% drawn from parents, students, representatives of commerce and industry, private schools, service clubs, a minister of religion and a Member of the Legislative Assembly. Cayman Brac was well represented on the team.”

Then he goes on to say, “Action Teams in both Grand Cayman and Cayman Brac developed the strategies into action plans which would get specific results. The major policy areas emanating from these action plans are: the establishment of a national curriculum; the development of four locally accredited Cayman Islands achievement tests; the creation of a school inspectorate; the establishment of a board for each school; the establishment of health, safety and building standards for all schools. However, the 105 Action Plans which were commended cover all aspects of the education system. These have been scheduled for implementation during the academic years 1995-2000, and the first year has been costed.”

“The first year has been costed.” [Emphasis the speaker's] “The specific objectives, together with the beliefs, mission and strategies will shape the public education system over the next five years.” Here is another important thing he said: “Every 12 to 18 months the Strategic Plan will be evaluated by the Education Planning Team to ensure that we are still on target and that our objectives are being met.”

This Plan was tabled 30 March 1995. The Minister said that every 12 to 18 months this Strategic Plan would be “evaluated by the Education Planning Team to ensure that we are still on target and that our objectives are being met.” I want to talk about that a little more. The Minister—and as I go on, all of us are going to understand why the Minister would not answer that altar call.

The 1995 to 1999 Strategic Education Plan, three years after (because this is 1998). . . it is three years since the plan was put into action. The Minister said that every 12 to 18 months it would be reviewed. Today, I challenge the Minister or anyone else to prove differently when I say that three years later from the plan being put into place in 1995—three years later, in 1998 the plan is close to two years behind!

Mr. Roy Bodden: What? What you say?

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I am saying it on the floor of this House. Anyone can shake their heads. They can do what they want to do. My definition of timing might not be exact with the day and month, but the plan is close to two years behind. That is what it is. When we bring the motion because of certain concerns of ours, . . . Mr. Speaker, the motion was not brought to get into any fights. We know there are problems. We know that no one man can solve all the problems. We are not lookin' an argument. But because the problem exists, you are going to try to evade the whole issue by not being able to address it? This is what has happened. The implementation is close to two years behind, and the review was supposed to be taken between every 12 to 18 months afterwards, which means at a minimum, by now there were supposed to have been two reviews taking place of exactly what was happening.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Shocking!

The Speaker: It took place.

POINT OF ORDER

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I am taking a point of order.

The Speaker: Please state your point of order.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, there have been two reviews of the plan. The first one was in April of 1996, the second was in September 1997, and it will be up for review in September of this year. So there have been two reviews. I would ask the Member to therefore withdraw his statement and please apologise.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, that man is going senile. I said nothing, sir, about the reviews not taking place. I said his plan is two years behind. If he wants me to apologise for that, he is sick in the head!

The Speaker: Let us understand that the Strategic Plan called for reviews on an annual basis. And they have taken place. I served on that particular committee.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, I will take my time, but if you want to break and get the Hansards, I did not say that the reviews did not take place. I said they were supposed to take place, but I did not say they did not!

[inaudible interjections]

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, I will pause, and the Minister can get the Hansards! I know what I said!

I am saying that the implementation of the 1995 to 1999 Education Strategic Plan is close to two years behind. I went on to say that these reviews were supposed to be taking place between 12 and 18 months apart, which means by now that at least two reviews were supposed to have taken place. The Minister did not allow me to continue what I was saying; he stood up on a point of order. What I was going to say was if these two reviews have taken place, why has it not been identified, or why has nothing been done thus far about the implementation lagging behind. But he did not give me a chance to say that, sir.

The Speaker: Let me have a little something to say now.

Let us understand that the reviews have taken place. Do you acknowledge that?

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Yes, sir. I am not questioning that.

The Speaker: Will you withdraw that they have not been made?

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, I cannot withdraw what I did not say. I did not say that it had not been made. You can get the Hansard!

The Speaker: You have now stated that they have been made?

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I don't have a problem with that, but I am not going to withdraw what I did not say.

The Speaker: Go on and speak. I will ask you to say that, and if you say they have not been implemented to your satisfaction, that is a different story.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, I hear what you are saying. We are not going to get into an argument. I will willingly talk about these reviews. What I want clearly understood is that I did not say that the reviews did not take place. I know what I am saying. I am talking about the implementation. That is the Minister's perfect style—to divert the focus of attention from the truth!

He knows that that—

The Speaker: Please, please. Let us not go back into this. That is not really what I am asking. I am saying that the records prove that the reviews have taken place. That is all that I am asking you to acknowledge. If you want to say that the implementation is not satisfactory, continue in that vein.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I have no apologies to make to the Minister, because I did not say anything that was not so. The reviews that have taken place—my question is: It must be obvious, if these reviews took place that—

The Speaker: Let us not say "if they did." They did! the fact has been established in this Chamber that they did take place.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, I just said that and you too— Okay.

The Speaker: I am talking one type English and you are talking another, apparently—

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order, please.

POINT OF ORDER

The Speaker: Let me hear your point of order.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Mr. Speaker, a Member's right in the House to speak under the Standing Orders, if he has information that a certain thing has happened, then he can say so. Until he gets the information that it has happened, then he will not know what is in it.

The Speaker: I understand what you are saying. Do you have anymore to say?

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: No, Mr. Speaker, but I think you have to give the Member his right under Standing Orders. Thank you.

The Speaker: And I think you must understand that the Speaker has an authority within the House to clarify a matter. A point of order was raised and I want to settle one point of order before I move on to a second.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, so everyone will understand—and I am all right, but let me explain. When I said 'if these reviews took place,' I was not insinuating that they hadn't. Again, if I had been allowed to finish what I was saying, it would have been clearly understood that I was not trying to suggest that the reviews did not take place.

The Speaker: I can only go by what I hear. That is what I interpret.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Yes, sir. Do you understand what I am saying, sir? That is all I was trying to say, and I have no problem with just moving on.

The Speaker: Go ahead.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: The information that I am taking about was not tabled in this House. I don't know all of it. We keep getting into that. But we are not going to argue over that. The whole point I wish to make is that there are problems with the implementation of this plan. That is the reason the motion was brought to the floor of the House. It appears that not enough action is being taken to bring this implementation process in line with the timing it initially had, and we are simply asking for it to be open, explained and discussed so we can try to get it in line with what was supposed to have been achieved. That is the purpose. Okay?

Now I want to bring another point, which is ancillary to the point I just made. On 30 March 1995, when the Minister was presenting the plan, one of the things he said—and he gave emphasis to this area—he said:

"The job appraisal scheme presently being implemented in central government allowed us to set up a system of accountability for all officers and to detail which objectives are to be met in a space of time. This is a key element in the Strategic Planning process—that one individual is responsible for the successful implementation of a particular action."

My understanding of this is that the Education Department was being restructured, or had been restructured, to accommodate this plan so accountability could prevail, and people would know their job descriptions properly. I am contending this morning—and saying it as emotionless as I can—that this has had a miserable failure at best. There is no direction in that Department; the leadership is scarce if it exists at all; the individuals involved in the implementation process are having to act like chickens with their heads cut off, and chaos reigns because everyone passes the buck to the other one when something is not done, and no one has done anything about it. That is what I am saying.

Mr. Speaker, let me make what I am saying very clear. I don't have one single problem with the individuals involved in the process. But if the problems that exist are clearly understood, for God's sake, please do something about them. I am saying this is what has not been done. We cannot expect the individuals who hold the posts in the Education Department—who are dealing with this process if it has turned upside down and not working properly—to find the solutions. That is not for us to expect.

We cannot hide what has happened. I say it again: I do not want to stand here this morning, or as I did on Friday, to try to say that it is the fault of the Minister of Education, or the Chief Education Officer's fault. The truth of the matter is it is everyone's fault! But leadership is the only avenue through which we get the solutions. I am calling on the leadership to do something. My voice is speaking on behalf of the majority of the Backbench. It could have been any one of us, it just so happens that this morning it is me. That is our concern. And the concern is genuine. But if there is a problem and it looks as if someone is not going to look so good, you either hide it or bend it, or divert it elsewhere so that it gets watered down. We need to do something about what is going on.

If the Minister had answered the altar call—and he had brought his implementation schedule and it said, . . . This is where, if you want to get results, you need to do the right thing. If instead of trying to bring these bent, twisted and out of whack amendments to substantive motions, getting up and singing songs, writing epistles about all the little things that were done, the painting of this room and of that building. . . . Yeah, yeah, yeah, like that is the most important thing we are talking about. Instead of doing all that—

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I take a point of order.

POINT OF ORDER

The Speaker: May I hear your point of order?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: What I read out over a period of about one hour was the last review with the comments on the implementation. And if you remember, sir, I spent about an hour or thereabouts on it, going through, reading the strategy, and dealing with what has been implemented and what has not. That is clearly on record, sir. I did do that.

The Speaker: [addressing the First Elected Member for George Town] Is that your understanding?

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, I very clearly understood what the Minister said. But again, sir, the Minister took a point of order and did not allow me to finish what I was saying! How can he—Mr. Speaker, I am saying, you know—

The Speaker: Please continue, go ahead.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: You know, I am going to tell you something.

[Inaudible comments]

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I was trying to say—and I will be as docile as I can, and will try to make a point if I am allowed. I was trying to say that if the Minister had brought his implementation schedule and, instead of wasting an hour and a half talking about what had been done, point out exactly—with detail—what had not been done, which is what the motion calls for. . . . The motion did not call for the Minister to come here and spout off his mouth about the things that had been done. The motion calls to debate the problems in the public education system! I am saying that the Minister, when he debated the amendments, instead of replying to the substantive motion with the mood set by us all [should have said], 'Gentlemen, listen: I know there are some problems. Here is the list of problems. This is what we need to do. There are problems finding money about this and that. Can we sit down and see exactly how we can get this plan implemented faster?'

Mr. Roy Bodden: True!

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: That is what the motion called for, sir. And I do not have any apology to make! I do not have any point of order to answer, because if I were given a chance to explain that is what I was saying! Do you understand what I am saying, sir?

The Speaker: Yes.

Mr. Roy Bodden: True, true.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister of Education.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I have been very tolerant, listening to the Member saying I should have spoken, and—

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, is there a point of order?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Yes, I am taking a point of order.

The Speaker: [addressing the First Elected Member for George Town] Would you give way for a minute please?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, if you will turn to May's Parliamentary Practice, 22nd edition, at page 376, it says in about the 15th line, "A Member who moves an amendment cannot speak again upon the main question after the amendment has been withdrawn or otherwise disposed of, since he has already spoken while the main question was before the House and before the amendment had been proposed from the Chair." I have been very tolerant and have listened to this for some time—

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, with due respect, this is not a point of order! And I am surprised it is being entertained as a point of order!

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I am still on my feet. The point of order is that the Member is misleading the House, in my view, when he says that I should have stood up to speak. There are two points to this, sir: One, I have a right whether I wish to speak or not. That is a right every Member of this House has. But secondly, from what I can see here, because of the procedure that was followed there, it appears to me that once a Member moves a motion, and another Member moves an amendment, and it is disposed of when the motion is in the House, there is no right to speak a second time because you have spoken once on the full—

Mr. Roy Bodden: That is not so!

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: What is the point of order?

Mr. Roy Bodden: What is the point of order?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The point of order is that the Member keeps saying that the Minister should have stood up and spoken, he should have replied. I have a right, like anyone else, whether I wish to reply or not. But I do point out, Mr. Speaker, and I will read this again, "A Member who moves an amendment cannot speak again upon the main question after the amendment has been withdrawn or otherwise disposed of, since he has already spoken while the main question was before the House and before the amendment had been proposed from the Chair."

The Speaker: I think this may be a convenient time to take the morning break. I would like to look at this further. We shall suspend for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.18 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12.13 PMRULING BY THE SPEAKER

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed.

During the break, I looked very carefully at the point of order raised by the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning. I have noted very carefully the contents of Erskine May, 22nd edition, page 376. Before going into that, I would like to call your attention to Standing Order 25(4) which reads as follows: “An amendment to the motion may be moved and seconded at any time after the question upon a motion has been proposed by the presiding officer, and before it has been put by him at the conclusion of the debate thereon. When every such amendment has been disposed of, the presiding officer shall either again propose the question upon the motion or shall propose the question upon the motion as amended, as the case may require, and, after any further debate which may arise thereon, shall put the question to the House or Committee for its decision.” I would also like to refer to Standing Order 88, ‘Practice of Parliament,’ and it says, “In any matter not herein provided for, resort shall be had to the usage and practice of the Commons House of Parliament of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, which shall be followed as far as the same may be applicable to this House, and not inconsistent with these Standing Orders nor with the practice of this House.” Having researched the Hansards of this House, the practice of this House over the years has been that a Member moving an amendment has had the opportunity to speak to the amendment, and also closing debate on the amendment, and had the right to speak in the substantive debate on the substantive motion. So in view of Standing Order 88, that would be consistent with the practice of this House. Therefore, I cannot refer to Erskine May in this particular question.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town, please continue.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. If I understand you correctly, regardless of what attempt has been made to justify the Government’s not replying to this motion, Erskine May has not assisted them this time!

The Speaker: I did not address that issue. I addressed the parliamentary procedure.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Yes, Mr. Speaker. I am quite aware of that, sir. I will continue.

When we took the suspension, I was addressing the Minister’s speech on March 30, 1995, when he presented the Strategic Education Plan 1995-1999. I was specifically dealing with the point of accountability. As I was saying, the intention is not, has not, and still will not be for the rest of my contribution as I wind up the motion, to try to finger any one person for what has happened. What is very important to us is not to try to cloud the issue, not to try to change the focus from the truth. When we talk about accountability, it is basically someone being responsible for their actions—or for their lack of action. I think it is fair to say that the entire system in place now is not conducive to this. The reform measures we have been touting in the recent past, and continue to be excited over, we hope will assist in this regard.

But I want to get back to the Department. Without trying to cross paths too much, I want to get it out in the open, where the problem lies with implementation. It is important for it to be understood that the civil servants involved in the process are not who I am trying to finger. If the Leader of Government Business, the Minister of Education, gave the whole thing a chance, he would understand that the reasoning is simply to bring about solutions.

The Backbench is not irresponsible. The Backbench is concerned about many things. When we bring these Private Members’ Motions to the floor of this House, it is not dealing with individuals. The truth of the matter is, they are not worth it to us! We want to get about running this country the way it should be, and to the best of our abilities. We are not the Government. We understand our role. But the Government certainly should be chastised for trying to derail the process. That is not for us to focus on at this point.

What is happening with the system is, . . . and I mentioned earlier about the plan and its implementation process being close to two years behind. No one at this time is able to say whose fault it is. We are not worried about trying to find out, in this motion, whose fault it is. We are seeking for the Government to accept the reality of the situation—that there is something not going right, and either they put forward solutions, since they refuse to debate it openly, or they listen to some of the solutions we wish to put forward.

The Department and its restructuring that the Minister of Education mentioned from 1995, has not occurred properly, because the accountability he mentioned is not taking place.

Mr. Roy Boddén: True, true.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Let me make mention of something else to show why our concern is genuine. I need you to bear with me, Mr. Speaker, because if I am allowed to say what I have to say—and to finish saying what I am saying— people will understand what I am saying. I have confidence in that.

When we look at the Department and the Ministry, we look at the Vision 2008 process taking place now, we see the Permanent Secretary in the Ministry of Education being seconded to Vision 2008. Then, we see on top of that, the person, if my understanding is correct, whose job description is Education Planner—the person directly involved in the strategic plan, the person who was part of the training of individuals to implement this plan, and the person who is supposed to be one of the watchdogs, if not the main watchdog and the main resource person for the implementation of this plan—being seconded to Vision 2008. It tells me that someone either does not care, or someone is fooled into believing that everything is all right, or someone is looking for accolades from somewhere else to cover up something.

If my line of argument holds any water, and this implementation is behind, in three years, it says basically only one year's work has been accomplished out of three. How can these individuals be expected to be dealing with the Vision 2008 process, and to be overseeing the implementation of this plan? It is physically impossible.

And without any emotion, Mr. Speaker, I am going to say why the Minister did not reply to the motion. I am going to tell you why. The reason is that he was not equipped to reply! That is why! In my opinion, he either did not have the opportunity—or create the opportunity—to get the facts he needed put together, to be able to deliver. The use of Erskine May, with his legal arguments. . . . He will always beat me with legal arguments, because I am not a lawyer—but that does not change the question of the reality of the situation. It becomes obvious to me that he is not on top of what is going on with his chain of command in his Ministry. I am certain that the decision to allow these two key individuals to be seconded elsewhere will be realised to have been a very serious judgment error.

I know that it is not for us to make the decisions for the Ministry, but maybe one of these days he will have the opportunity to justify that decision to Parliament. Maybe he will. So what we are faced with now is a plan, which is a good plan, a plan that has been accepted by all, and we have its implementation lagging seriously behind.

Another thing that hits me is, when he delivered the plan to the Legislative Assembly on 30 March 1995, he mentioned all kinds of key aspects of the plan. He mentioned all the good things that needed to happen, and everything was in place to make it go forward. But he did not mention, at any time, anything about a building programme. He has been asked on countless occasions about problems with timelines for additional space in the schools, additional classrooms, new buildings that have to be built, new schools that have to be built. And all we keep hearing is arguments, and arguments, and arguments. When we finally decide there is no other recourse but to bring a motion of this nature, then he lands on us a $55 million capital improvement project for education. Nothing new to us, because even during the 1996 campaign there were those of us who said that education needed between $30 and $40 million worth of capital to be on line with the times and what was needed. Now it is $55 million, and it becomes very obvious that it has not been addressed before.

But you see, it only proves to me that we really have to seriously look at the way we do business in this country, for this country. 'We' meaning the Parliament.

None of us are excused, and none of us are excluded. The process fails miserably. It really does.

There is one more suggestion I wish to make regarding the Minister himself, and there have been times when others have brought it to the forefront. It is regarding the Education Council. The way the system works now, as I understand it, and the legislation, having read a bit of it, calls for this, that the Minister of Education is the chairman of the Education Council. It has long been thought by many of us that, especially from the point of view of any questions regarding the decisions of that Council, the Minister should—regardless of who the Minister is, it just so happens that it is the individual involved now—the Minister of Education should not be the Chairman of the Education Council.

Mr. Roy Bodden: True.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: If there are any questions or need for any type of arbitration, the fact that the Minister is chairman, and part and parcel of the decision-making process, there is no one else to appeal to. There is no one else to question regarding the decision. So perhaps while everything is being done, we may wish to revisit that situation, to think about it very seriously. Forget about holding any power base! Let's look at doing it right. We understand it means amendments to the relevant legislation, but so be it. That is not difficult to do. We have changed laws here in hours; certainly we can take a little bit more time and change that one.

The motion calls for Government and all of us as legislators to try to arrive at solutions to these problems that exist. It is a shame that we have to be arguing among ourselves, and not debating the problems. It seems to me sometimes that we lose track of what our job is. Too many times we find ourselves trying to find excuses to look good, or not to look bad. When the Minister was debating the amendments—and I am going from an unedited excerpt of the Hansard of 9 July, the Minister said, "In fact, if we look at the results"—and there he is, he is talking about exam results. You see, if the exam results are good, it means that everything else is all right. That is the logic used here. But of course we know better than that. He said, "If we look at the results, and I do not want to go much further into this, in the CXC and IGCSE we find that the CXC results are the best in the Caribbean for many years, so the results are there." [Hansard 9 July, 1998, page 616]

Thank God, Mr. Speaker, at least some of us can have a change of heart, because that same Minister, in 1979, on 11 April—

Mr. Roy Bodden: Boasted!

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: —said, ". . . all of the worried area of opposition to the education policies came as a result of my terminating the Caribbean Examinations Council examination. You see, Mr. Speaker, there is a pattern to everything." [Hansard 11 April, 1979, page 25]

Mr. Roy Bodden: Wow!

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: So in 1979, during his first tenure here, the Minister thought that the CXC exam was too radical, and all the like, and he said those voices crying in the wilderness were arguing with him because he did what was right and just, and he terminated this exam in our school system.

But here we are, almost (but not quite) twenty years later, in his own way, he says, "For many years, our CXC results have been the best in the Caribbean." Perhaps they would have been that much better if he had not terminated them in 1979 and made them have to come back again with someone else allowing it to happen.

The point of that is, . . . And I am serious about this, because for too long we have had it. We cannot deal with this personal business. And none of us is equipped to impose our will on any system, unless we allow full participation throughout the chain of command. This business about calling you on one side and telling you about, 'Trust me, I know,' is done. Finished! Finito! It is obvious by now, to one and all concerned, that no one individual in here, or outside for that matter, has it all together and the rest of us must just sit and wait for the decision, and just take up space. Mr. Speaker, that is a message to all of us, not to any one of us. Every one of us in here has a contribution to make. Let us make it. Let us make the contribution we are supposed to make.

Talking about the Caribbean Council of Examinations, the CXC, on 11 November 1994, that same Minister, clinging to what looks good again, said, "I know it must have hurt when they saw the results of the Caribbean Examination Council"—that is the CXC. He said, "It had to hurt, they were so good." That is what the Minister said! "It had to hurt they [the results] were so good." Again, thank God, even if it had to take someone else to do it, he did not try to terminate those CXC examinations again. Perhaps there is some slight hope he might be learning. In that same debate, though, he made an admission, and it is a pity that he did not take heed from his own statements until now. Again, talking about the wonderful results, he said, "When the results are good, then it is obvious that the system, and myself—I have to say that I have put a lot of effort into education. Of course, I put more into Cayman Airways, but my heart has been with education for many years because I have quite a few degrees myself."

Before I make a summary of the Minister's comments, I want to read a couple more statements he made on 10 November 1994. This is when the Strategic Plan, the eleven months of planning, were over. He says, "With all the criticism that has been levelled at education, I would have thought that once again the tests are really in the results. Look at the Caribbean Examination Council's results. I hope that the First Elected Member for Bodden Town will get up and say how good they are, because they are really fan- tastic." He was then referring to the now Third Elected Member for Bodden Town. In his usual style, he says, "What I want to point out here"—he is famous for saying that, "What I want to point out here," because his fingers are fairly long—"What I want to point out here is perhaps (and I say 'perhaps,' not just singling out Jamaica) In other countries, the reason why failures are so high is because they have a lot of theorists like the First Elected Member for Bodden Town. . . . To be frank," and he was not referring to the Fourth Elected Member for George Town now when he says, "To be frank." "To be frank, (with a bit of comment from the other end)"—that is in brackets because he was getting some bantering—"those two (the First Elected Member for Bodden Town and the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman) have been out of teaching, the one for about 12 years, and the other for about 20, and they are defunct in that area! So one has to think very carefully before one ends up accepting theories which they put forward."

He said, "Anyone who is good at their profession, stays in it. I have been a lawyer. In reply to whatever comments the Member has made, I have been a lawyer for 25 years, and I practise as a lawyer, and I am still a professional lawyer. I challenge the First Elected Member for Bodden Town and the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman to tell the public in due course how long they have been out of the education system, and when they last worked inside a classroom, because they are now trying to tell me how to run the education system, where I am getting extremely good results. I am not a defunct lawyer, I will say that."

So the Minister takes the good results and spends his time castigating other individuals, and once those results are good, that is his song to the country. When he suddenly comes upon the realisation that it will not be hidden any longer, but as good as the results are, so too are as many problems we face. Then, when he suddenly comes to realise that these problems are there, and we on the Backbench, . . . Instead of taking his style and looking to get into a head-to-head confrontation, what do we do? We bring a motion. We give the altar call. We say, 'Listen, no fights. Let's just get it all out in the open. Let's talk about it. Let's try to solve the problems.' What do we get? We get no answer.

The Speaker: Will you be finishing in a matter of minutes, or would you rather adjourn, as we have the Select Committee this afternoon?

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: To be very honest, Mr. Speaker, I do not think it makes sense for me to continue now, because it will take me a bit to finish, sir. So the luncheon adjournment is fine with me.

The Speaker: I would then entertain a motion for the adjournment of this House, as it is my understanding that it is the wish of the House that we go into Select Committee on Immigration and Election Law this afternoon.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: [microphone not turned on] Mr. Speaker, no. If we can go into Select Committee [inaudible], from my understanding, if we come back this afternoon—[inaudible]

The Speaker: That is fine with me, but it is my understanding that we will probably need longer with particularly the Election Law. But we can suspend and come back and—

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker—

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I can understand the importance of these select committees, but the matter before the House now is a very important motion. I would have thought the select committees could take secondary position to these motions, and be delayed for a while longer, and that it should not cut into the proceedings of these motions before the House.

The Speaker: I understand what you are saying, but this was agreed. The House agreed to this, not me. The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, this is an unusual procedure, sir. The business of the country and the business before Parliament take priority or precedence, and I do not encourage—of course, I stand to be guided by the majority. I do not see why the precedent should be set. I certainly will not be part of any such setting of precedent where this business of select committees takes precedence over debates in the Parliament. I think we would be doing a great disservice if we set the precedent where we adjourn matters currently before the House for select committee work. I can only say that it does not bode well for proper parliamentary practice, and I would have to be voted down.

The Speaker: I would like to say to all Honourable Members that I think it is about time that we stick to what we decide. The House voted on this, not me. It was put to the House. The majority, or all Members of the House, said the Immigration Select Committee was of paramount importance, and therefore we would suspend in order that the press release could be sent out. But I am entirely at the wish of the House. We can adjourn for lunch and we will see what happens.

Let us suspend proceedings until 2.15 PM.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.46 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.36 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Debate continues on Private Member's Motion No. 13/98. The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you.

When we took the lunch break, I was referring to an altar call. I was saying that because we on the Backbench consider this so important that we brought the motion before us now with the hope that the Government would see this as the perfect and golden opportunity to embrace the Backbench along with its efforts to resolve the problems that exist with education in the country. But it seems that to make a statement like that causes some of us to not function properly, and, as is usual for some of us, to get personal. I hold the view, as I have always done, and do right now, that any attempt so far—and they have all come from the Minister for Education—but any attempt by the Government so far on this motion was to simply divert attention from the real problem we face so that the focus would be elsewhere and the public would not realise exactly what we are up against.

Let me make it very clear so that it is understood: Our view is that leadership has not performed the way it should have so far in this area, and that the people involved below that leadership have no responsibility in regard to the situation at hand. It is not to say that those individuals should not now be thinking of what they can do to assist; all of us need to be thinking along those lines. But I know how certain people operate, and I know that if this is left alone, we are going to have another tirade of trying to finger where the blame lies, again not addressing the issue. We don't want to be part of any of that, Mr. Speaker. We are simply asking for the Government to open up the situation, bring the problems to light and let us deal with them.

Before I go on, let me just mention a few other areas that need to be addressed. It seems like it will be coming from one side throughout this motion, as the Government has not replied. If we look at the implementation schedule, and I just want to reinforce the arguments the Backbench has put forward thus far. In strategy 9 of the implementation schedule, plan 14, where it says, "To provide an appropriate canteen at each school." That supposedly was to have been accomplished by 1997. Now I am not 100 percent sure if this part of the plan is limited to Cayman Brac, or whether it also applies to Grand Cayman, but if we are to examine the situation that exists (and here I have to single out the district that I represent) at both the Red Bay Primary School and the George Hicks High School, the parents, the teachers and the students, and some of the representatives have been crying for help with this problem throughout, from the time I was elected to this Honourable Legislative Assembly.

And, Mr. Speaker, pointing to the Red Bay Primary School, when that school commenced operation in September of 1992, it commenced after phase 1 of the project was completed. There was at least one more phase, if not more. What happened when the new Government took over in 1992? Because the mindset was different, and because it was not a school that they had built, to this date the rest of the phases have not been directly addressed. The only meaningful thing that was done up there was the building of additional classrooms, and that was done because it got so bad that people raised eternal Hell about it. Then it was done. The only reason those classrooms were built was because it was a reaction to the problem!

If we go on to the George Hicks High School, we understand all the problems they face with their canteen facilities; they talk, and talk, and talk about it. Now we have it in the capitalisation priority list where their canteen facilities will be completed by 1999—hopefully. In my view that only reinforces the argument that the implementation process of the plan is lagging behind.

I don't want to spend a huge amount of time being picky and taking up specific examples to prove the point because that is not really the exercise. What we want to do is get on with it and bring about the solutions that are necessary. But we have to challenge the Government at this point in time to act. We don't want Government to stay in a corner and mope trying to find what it can say to come back at us because it seems like we are making a few strides. That is not the exercise. If that were the exercise I would spend all day with a list of things that are all over my desk trying to show-up whom I want to show-up. That is not what we want to do.

In fact, as sorely tempted as I have been, my own colleagues on the Backbench have said to me, 'We are all very concerned. Let's keep it that way and not get into the one-on-one situations we know can occur.' And I respect that because it shows that they are concerned. I only wish that we could see some genuine indication from the Minister for Education whereby we can believe the concern is there and it is not a matter of dealing with it the way we know he can.

The only other person on the Backbench who spoke to the motion was the First Elected Member for West Bay. That is not to say that others were not prepared to speak, but we were very hopeful that the Government would have replied and then we could all have aired our views. I am sad to say that that did not happen.

But that Member brought out a point about the existence of gangs in some of the schools and activities of that nature. He made a very good suggestion, and I hope that Government is prepared to pick up on that suggestion and address that area quickly. He suggested that a task force be set up to look into the situation. I will add to that by asking that this be done and that that task force be asked to formulate some type of report within a given time restriction. If left alone, this situation will only fester. The teachers will only have more problems and chaos will reign.

The task force I am talking about is not one that may be confused with something to do with police matters. It is nothing like that. The reason we are suggesting that it be called that is that individuals, some from the Legislative Assembly, certainly some from the teaching profession and those near to the happenings, along with members of the community who may have their own concerns, parents perhaps, would like to get concerned individuals as a group to knock heads together to investigate the situation to try to get some assistance. I know for a fact that the teachers are having serious problems dealing with such matters. The fact is that some of the children attending the schools are having serious problems by the existence of these so-called gangs. So, the effect is detrimental and we would like to see something done about that.

Needless to say, in summary, this is what we are asking for. We recognise by now that there are some problems. Because we are in the position we are, it is physically impossible for the Backbench to know the in's and out's, and the depth of those problems, because of the way the system works. The truth of the matter is, if I—especially me—were to go to any individual who works in any department asking them to explain certain things to me, that would be considered something wrong. That is the way it has worked for many years. I would be seen as intruder when, in fact, I would only be acting out of genuine concern. That too has to change.

That is the main reason why we have so many acrimonious debates in this House. The collection of information seems to be a huge prize, and he who has it, has it, and he who doesn't must retain that huge disadvantage. It makes me wonder who we are really concerned about—whether it is the people and the children, or if it is just about ourselves and how we look in the eyes of those who listen.

That is really amazing, Mr. Speaker. Here we are, a bunch of grown adults. Every four years we go to the public, we kiss them all over; we go to visit them, we laugh with them we cry with them when it is needed, and we ask them to vote for us. 'We want to be your representatives because we believe we know what is right for the country and we want an opportunity to serve you, the people.' But we come inside of this Legislative Assembly after that has happened, and we forget all about the people and what the job is, and we sit (or stand) and all we do is think about ourselves and how we look, and how we are going to end up. It is a shame. It is a downright shame that we allow ourselves to stoop that low. And on top of that, we get paid for it! Perhaps that will change one of these days, Mr. Speaker.

As I was saying in summary, the Backbench is asking the Government to be open about the problems that exist. The other thing the Government must bear in mind, . . . and I want to say this because this concerns me greatly. If there are people involved in the implementation process of this Strategic Education Plan who, through no fault of their own, are not properly equipped to perform the tasks they have been given, if we don't recognise those situations and make sure that assistance is given in this regard either by further training the individuals, or by getting professional assistance to bring about the changes, then those individuals are going to be led like lambs to the slaughter. Those are the individuals in the Service who, when the problems are brought to light, are going to be the lambs to the slaughter. Then you are going to hear that it is this one's fault, and that one's fault. That is what is going to happen if it is left alone. And that is a good trend to talk about because I have seen that happen before. We are asking for that not to happen because we are convinced that all the people involved in the process wish to do what is right.

What we are concerned about is the possibility that they are either not equipped or they don't have the right tools to do what they are supposed to do. That is why we are asking for the Government to revisit the entire situation, to properly identify job descriptions, to put the department in such a vein that there is proper accountability—and everybody has to live up to their responsibility. Perhaps then we might get the results we are looking for.

We have always found ourselves in situations, especially in the Civil Service, whenever we hear of individuals falling by the wayside, the way the system is now is that if something really goes wrong and too many people know about it and we hear too much talk about it, immediately the next step is to find somebody to blame for it and put it on that person good and proper. The public calls for the sacrificial lamb, so let's find one and make sure it happens. I don't want to hear any foolishness about Constitutionally this or that, and there is only one arm of the Service that deals with the Service. They can say what they want to, but I know better. We must not allow that to continue. We have to be able to not only be sensitive to the problems we face, but we have to find a way that everybody wants to buy in on the goals that are set. Everyone has to feel their worth in their participation, and everyone has to be able to identify with the situations that arise.

This plan we are discussing today, while as time goes on may well have changes to it because, naturally, as time goes on we find situations altering and we will want to change to suit those situations, while all of that is the case, and regardless of whether the plan is as a result of another one that was scrapped, or whatever, the fact is that this is the plan we are working now. We on the Backbench believe that while there are fewer claims to perfection, the plan can be made to work and it can be a good base to continue to work from because it is a process that never stops. We accept that. But if we are so far behind and the five-year period has not passed, if we are never going to catch up, what sense is it to continue to talk about having a revolving situation every year with changes? We have to really get down to it and deal with it.

As tempted as I am, I am not going to pick out any more specific situations to prove the point. I am only going to say to the Government that this motion was brought with the best of intentions to this Honourable Legislative Assembly. It was brought after hearing a lot of concerns from parents, after reading a lot of correspondence, and after finding out from other sources some of the problems which existed. We face an unfortunate situation because of information not being readily available to us. Sometimes we really have to guess at it, that is, we who sit on the Backbench who are not the chosen few who have access. Nevertheless, because we find ourselves opposing on the majority of occasions, that is a part of the system, but it does not mean that we don't have the ability or the will to make things right.

I say what I am saying to make it very clear that we take our jobs seriously. We are not looking to see who sounds better than the next one, or who can look better in the eyes of the public. We recognise that there are certain issues that should go way beyond the realm of politics as we sometimes play it. This is one of them! We recognise that, and that is why we brought the motion.

In closing, I am going to not resist the temptation this time, but I will do it as mildly as I can. I have to cry shame on the leadership for not being prepared to deal with it the way we asked. We simply called for a bit of maturity and a bit of responsibility, and we have been—we are, and will continue to be—prepared to deal with these matters in this manner. In fact, I think today was a good example. Believe you me, Mr. Speaker, this big fellow could really be tempted today to really, really deal with it differently. But, thank God, with the help of my colleagues, I was able to resist the temptation because I knew that was the plan—to divert the focus of attention from the real thing, to get me nettled. I knew that. I guess in other motions to come this plan will continue, but I trust the fact that I was able to resist it, that between us (my other colleagues on the Backbench) we will be able to continue to resist that temptation.

In short order we are going to prove that if the leadership won't change its ways, then the leadership will have to change. That is what we are going to prove.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Oy, oy, oy! [applause]

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: We hope that Government will act...By the way, Mr. Speaker, I pray that the Government will not try to close all doors for any information regarding this motion that has been brought, because we are going to monitor the situation the best way we know how without breaking any of the rules. We hope that very shortly the Government will at least come back, using whatever medium it has, to say, 'These are the problems we have. This is what we are going to attempt to do to solve the problems.' Should the Government wish at any time to sit with the Backbench and explain these problems and ask for any ideas, we are quite prepared to offer whatever assistance we can.

Mr. Roy Bodden: No boiler room, an open forum.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: There is no reason why it cannot happen.

We all live in the world of politics, because that is the nature of the beast we are dealing with. But there are times when we must all be prepared to step beyond that. This was one of them! It is a real pity that we all could not act in concert. I do not believe that the action taken by the Minister for Education was agreed upon by the rest of the Ministers. In fact, not only do I not believe that, but looking across at them I really believe, regardless of what may be said, that they have their own concerns.

So, we are not begging and pleading with anybody, we are simply making a case. And we believe that, given the opportunity, we can do something sensible about it. Let us see how situations like this are dealt with in the future. I really hope that this has been a lesson for some of us, even if we were shocked because some of us believed that this motion was brought purely as a political gesture. Its genesis did not take that into consideration.

Mr. Roy Boddén: The Emperor has no clothes!

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: That is not to say that a certain amount of politics will not prevail. Again, that is the nature of the beast we are dealing with. There is the Government side, there are those who are independent, there are those on the Backbench who support the Government, there are those on the Backbench who oppose the Government. That is not a problem. We are still all representatives of the people. Even when you talk to the people on the outside who have their own preference for those of us in here, their main concern is what is best for the country. Let us, by example, show them that at least we are of the same nature and want what is best for the country.

What has transpired with this motion tells me right now that that is not the case throughout this Assembly. I hope that we will be able to deal with it differently in the future.

I am curious now as I finish to see how the Government is going to vote on the motion, and if it is in a spot with that vote, the Government brought that on itself. If Government rejects this motion, I don't know what to say. If it does accept the motion then, in accepting it, the position of the Backbench is that we want to see action.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The question is Private Member's Motion No. 13/98. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The motion has passed.

AGREED: PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 13/98 PASSED.

The Speaker: Would this be a convenient time to take the break? Proceedings are suspended for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.15 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 3.50 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 7/98

SPEAKER'S RULING

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 7/98. Before I call on the mover of this motion, I would like to lay down some ground rules. As all Honourable Members are fully aware, this is a very serious motion. Therefore, I am asking Honourable Members to be very conscious of our Standing Orders and be as orderly as is physically possible.

There are some procedural points that I feel are imperative and I will discuss them with Members. We have received notice of an amendment which will be dealt with later, but I want to call to the attention of all Honourable Members the last 'Resolve' section: "BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that such revocation be determined by secret ballot in the manner in which a Member of the Legislative Assembly is elected to Executive Council."

This particular issue has caused me great concern and I have done extensive research both in the legal and in the political arena. I call to the attention of Honourable Members that under Standing Order 42, 'Voting':

"42. (1) Save as otherwise provided in the Constitution or in these Standing Orders, all questions proposed for decision in the House or in any Committee shall be decided by a majority of the votes of those present and voting.

"(2) The Presiding Officer shall not vote unless, on any question, the votes are equally divided, in which case he shall have and exercise a casting vote."

At this stage I should say that this motion is being moved under our Constitution, section 6(1)(f) which, as all Honourable Members are fully aware, calls for an affirmative vote of at least nine Elected Members for the revocation of a Member.

I would also like to call to the attention of Members debating this motion that only a Member of the Executive Council can impute anything from the lack of collective responsibility. Backbench Members, non-Government Members, cannot impute anything from a lack of collective responsibility. So I ask that this not be brought into question.

The voting procedures are set out in section 5(b) of the Cayman Islands Constitution and by Standing Orders 5, 42 and 43. There is no specific statement that a secret ballot is allowed. Standing Order 43 appears to assume a voice vote only. Standing Order 5 accords with what is proposed in the motion, but Standing Order 5 is not available for a revocation. Only the election of Members of Executive Council is covered by Standing Order 5. Therefore, I contend that the last 'Resolve' section of this motion cannot stand, and the vote will have to be taken by a voice vote.

Again, I want to ask all Honourable Members to realise the seriousness of this motion and let us attempt to go through this as orderly and as properly as is possible.

ble. I now call upon the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker—

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

POINT OF PROCEDURE

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: On a point of procedure, you said there is an amendment and that amendment is for revocation.

The Speaker: That is correct.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: And you don't agree that the revocation of a seat of a Member of the Executive Council is the same in principle as putting the Member in Executive Council?

The Speaker: It is not what I contend, it is the position I have arrived at after legal and political advice. That is the advice that I have received.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: But our Standing Orders obtain.

The Speaker: Your Standing Order does not allow it. I read Standing Order 42. And if you care, I will read 43 as well.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Well, Mr. Speaker, it is a serious matter and you have taken points before and adjourned to discuss those points when Members did not understand. I certainly do not understand. This is one point on which I would certainly like some discussion with you.

The Speaker: Well, give me the opportunity to read Standing Order 43, and then we will go from there.

“43. (1) At the conclusion of a debate upon any question, the Presiding Officer shall put the question for the decision of the House, and shall collect the votes of the ayes and the noes after which no further debate may take place thereupon.

“(2) The result shall be declared by the Presiding Officer stating ‘I think the ayes have it’ or ‘I think the noes have it’ as the case may be, but any Member may challenge the opinion of the Chair by claiming a division.

“(3) A division shall be taken by the Clerk calling each Member's name and recording the vote given. The Clerk shall then announce the number of those who have voted for and against the proposal and the Presiding Officer shall declare the result of the division.

“(4) Every Member present shall express his vote either for the ayes or the noes or state his wish to abstain. The Clerk shall enter in the minutes of proceedings the record of each Member's vote, and shall add a statement of the names of the Members who abstained.

“(5) If a Member states that he voted in error or that his vote has been counted wrongly, he may claim to have his vote altered, provided that such claim is made as soon as the Clerk has announced the numbers and before the Chair has declared the results of the division. Upon such claim being made the Presiding Officer, at his sole discretion, shall either direct the Clerk to alter that Member's vote or direct that a fresh division be held.”

I think the Standing Orders are very clear, and as I said before, this is something to which I have given much time. Since the day the motion was first filed and I had notice of it, I attempted to get sound legal and political advice from very renowned members of the political arena to guide me on this decision.

The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, it seems that the Standing Order you are using has nothing to do with the revocation or election of a Member of this House to Executive Council. It would certainly seem that the procedure, the process used for election to Executive Council has to be the same procedure used for revocation.

The Speaker: I shall not have the Chair get into an argument with you. I am only giving you the information I have derived from learned associates.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, in the past you have discussed with us round-table matters pertaining to changes as you make them.

The Speaker: I have not ruled that out. Let us—

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: That is what I am asking you to do now, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: Other Members wish to speak.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Okay.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak on this subject? [Pause] There were other Members catching my eye earlier. The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Boddin: Mr. Speaker, I think it is clear if one looks at section 6(2)(f) which you referred to, sir, it seems very clear that “The seat of an elected member of the Executive Council shall become vacant—(f) if his election to Executive Council is revoked by a resolution of the Assembly in favour of which there are cast the votes of not less than nine of the elected members of the Assembly.” It must be the resolution of the Assembly.

Further on this, a further section that is helpful is to point out the difference between section 5(b) that states: “five elected members, who shall be elected....”

There is a very material difference there between an election and a motion. In my view it would be disastrous to turn this Chamber into a secret session, something that has never been done in the United Kingdom except during emergency sessions during the war. The importance of this motion and the transparency and everything else that is always talked about...this House has never gone into a secret session in my knowledge or a secret vote on a resolution. There is a material difference between electing five Ministers and putting a motion for the removal. They are two materially different things, I submit.

The Speaker: I would like to further say that the Parliamentary counsel that I have sought advice from on Parliamentary procedural matters were very adamant that it could not be done. These are noted Parliamentarians and advocates of Parliamentary Law. But I am willing to sit down and listen to you people. That is democracy in action.

The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, I am not concerned here about what happens when Members get to debate, nor what happens as a result, but that the proper procedures go, that we are not abridging or breaching the rules of the House. Our situation in these Islands and in our Legislative Assembly is completely different from other Parliaments where members or ministers are appointed by prime ministers or chief ministers or premiers. We are completely different.

In regard to the point about 5(b) of the Constitution and the point made by the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning, we get elected to Executive Council by a motion—a motion of nomination. That is how we get elected to Executive Council. I hold that we are going outside to get an answer to what obtains by reason and by natural order. I would ask, Mr. Speaker, that you sit with us, round-table, to discuss it.

The Speaker: I have no objection to that, but I would like to make it abundantly clear that in talking to these Parliamentary attorneys or advocates on Parliamentary Procedure, full cognisance of the political system in the Cayman Islands was given to them step by step. They were fully aware of our being a British Dependent Territory without a chief minister; the full complete political system was outlined in detail to them. It is not that we have tried to bypass any information. And without any hesitation this is the advice I got and this is the only ruling that I can really make.

The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: I am willing to—[microphone not working properly]

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town, please go ahead.

[Microphone noise only]

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, the Member has indicated that he abides by your ruling and would like to proceed with the motion.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town, I have already moved the motion but I will do it again.

Private Member's Motion No. 7/98, Censure Motion, to be moved by the Fourth Elected Member for George Town. And I said earlier that I have received notice of an amendment to this. Would you care to move the amendment first?

Dr. Frank McField: I would like to move the amendment first.

The Speaker: I would ask that you read the motion first.

Dr. Frank McField: Okay.

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 7/98

CENSURE MOTION

Dr. Frank McField: "BE IT RESOLVED THAT this Honourable Legislative Assembly has no confidence in the political conduct, actions and management of the Hon. John B. McLean, OBE, Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works; and in accordance with Section 6(1)(f) of the Cayman Islands Constitution Order 1972, as amended, his election to the Executive Council be revoked; and

"BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that such revocation be determined by secret ballot in the manner in which a Member of the Legislative Assembly is elected to Executive Council."

The Speaker: Seconder?

Mr. Roy Bodden: I beg to second the motion, Sir.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 7/98 has been duly moved and seconded. Do you now wish to move the amendment?

NOTICE OF AMENDMENT TO PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 7/98

CENSURE MOTION

Dr. Frank McField: In accordance with the provisions of Standing Order 25(2), I, the Fourth Elected Member for George Town, seek to move that Private Member's Motion No. 7/98 be amended by deleting the title "Censure Motion" and substituting therefor the title "Revocation Motion."

The Speaker: Do we have a Seconder?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I beg to second the motion.

The Speaker: The amendment to Private Member's Motion No. 7/98 has been duly moved and seconded. Does the mover wish to speak to it? You are now speaking to the amendment.

Dr. Frank McField: I have amended this motion, the title of the motion only, in that I felt this is not a censure motion, it is a revocation motion. It does not question the honesty or the integrity of Executive Council in regard to the 1995 Crown Grant to the Minister responsible for Lands, the Honourable John McLean. However, it does call upon the Honourable John McLean to demonstrate that the body of evidence presented to Executive Council was factual. That is the basis for the amendment.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak to the amendment? The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, this amendment changes a title, which is a bit unusual. The operative parts of it, the two that follow, that you already moved on the last one, the mover has really not stated what the intent clearly seems to be. But, regardless of what this is called, this aspect of it, whether it is a censure motion or a revocation motion, the actual content of the motion remains the same. The results, regardless of what this is called, could be the same except that the resolution in paragraph (i) seems to have some difference from that in paragraph (ii). Basically, the censure motion is aimed at bringing down, if possible, a Government, and the usual economic and other chaos that follows as a result of that approach.

In the circumstances, the Government will be voting, at least the Elected Members, against that amendment.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak on the amendment?

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Mr. Speaker, as I said earlier, my position is with procedure. However, I cannot see the Minister's (for Education) argument, that this has to do with bringing down a Government. This amendment is simply changing from "Censure" to "Revocation" and it only has to deal with one Member of Government. Therefore, I just don't see how that could bring down the Government.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak to the amendment? Does the proposer wish to exercise his right of reply?

Dr. Frank McField: Just that in listening to the Minister for Education talk about a censure motion and a revocation motion and trying to imply that the motion to revoke the election of an elected Member to Executive Council would create economic havoc, in fact, it's more the censure motion, if brought, saying that this House had no confidence in the Government, but clearly, it is the intention of this motion to demonstrate that the Government collectively has no blame in the situation that will be discussed. So, I have deliberately gone out to preserve the integrity of the Government and if it is the position of the Leader of Government Business to not allow this to happen and to mingle the integrity of the entire Government with one specific situation, then he can go ahead and do so.

Obviously, in regard to this amendment, I believe that the nominated Members of Executive Council should not be allowed to vote on this. If it is to show who is in control here, let me just say that the body of evidence I will produce in any case will make it an obligation on the part of those listening and reasoning to vote in favour of this motion and therefore in favour of this amendment.

So it is not to put any Member on the spot, or to make any Member make a political decision about the character of some person or persons. This is not a personal motion. It has nothing to do with personalities or character; it has to do with a specific incident and specific conduct by the Minister in regard to that specific incident. Only when that is discussed can Members of this Legislative Assembly be truly in the position to make any decision. The decision, because it involves political ethics, cannot be the result of political party allegiance. That is not the way I have approached this.

So, in summing up the amendment, I am simply saying that the amendment was made to make it clear to the country that I am responsible in bringing this motion. I have thought about the political repercussions of including the Government in a censure motion and that I have not brought a censure motion, I have very specifically brought a revocation motion. I am expecting that the Government will support this motion at the end of the day.

The Speaker: Before I put the question on the amendment, let me say something that perhaps I should have said earlier, on the question of who is entitled to vote.

Under section 6 (2) (f) of the Cayman Islands (Constitution) Order 1972, as amended, it states: "if his election to Executive Council is revoked by a resolution of the Assembly in favour of which there are cast the votes of not less than nine of the elected members of the Assembly." Therefore, in the actual vote for the expulsion, it will only be elected members counted.

"Assembly" is defined in section 17 of the Cayman Islands Constitution as comprising "(b) the Chief Secretary, the Attorney-General and the Financial Secretary, ex officio; and (c) fifteen elected members..." therefore on this particular amendment to the motion, all Members of the Legislative Assembly are entitled to vote. There is no question about it, that is the ruling.

POINT OF PROCEDURE

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Mr. Speaker, on a point of procedure, are you telling me, Mr. Speaker, that the Constitution in 6 [2] (f) says that in the case of a person appointed...Sorry, if his election (meaning the Member of Executive Council) “to the Executive Council is revoked by a resolution of the Assembly in favour of which there are cast the votes of not less than [two-thirds] of the elected members of the Assembly . . .” Are you saying that you are changing elected Members because in 17 of the Constitution it says how the Assembly is made up?

The Speaker: What I have said, and what is absolutely correct is that the motion, the substantive motion before the House, the revocation of an elected Member of Executive Council is under the Constitution, section 6 [2] (f). Therefore that 1993 amendment says, “nine elected Members.” There is absolutely no question about who votes in that election.

The other part of this is a procedure in the House. Voting on motions is procedural. The actual expulsion is a Constitutional matter. That is what the professional in parliamentary procedure advised me.

The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I have had this motion submitted for quite some time. If you will allow me to explain myself.

The Speaker: Please, go ahead.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I have not had the feeling...I gave you quite some time, and you gave me quite some time...I find it very strange indeed that at this particular time we are dealing with these no-can-do's. Had I been told this would be your ruling, since we had been pretty well across the table talking about this...Because, sir, it would be the point of the Leader of Government Business to say that because it is a censure motion, the Elected Government is bound by collective responsibility and that the Official Members would have to vote because it is a motion against the Government.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Just for purposes of clarity, because I understand the first part you said regarding nine elected Members when it comes to the revocation of an elected Member from Executive Council. The second part, and pardon me if I did not get it all because there was a lot of back-and-forth, can you just go over it one more time so we can understand exactly what you were saying?

The Speaker: In lay terms, this House, as you all know, is made up of eighteen Members. Under our present arrangement, there are seventeen Members voting. I do not have a vote. There are seventeen Members making up the Legislative Assembly. Therefore, on normal procedural matters that are non-constitutional, all Members of the Legislative Assembly have the right to vote if they are in attendance.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I thought that was what you were saying.

My question to you, so we can be clear on what we understand, is the fact that this amendment is actually to be made part and parcel of the substantive motion, which is where your ruling calls for the nine elected Members. This amendment is not a separate and totally different position. The amendment itself, sir, with great respect, has to do and is very pertinent to, the substantive motion. Therefore, perhaps the view can be entertained that if the substantive motion has total bearing on the elected Membership of the Legislative Assembly, should it not also be the case that the amendment being proposed—which is totally to do with the substantive motion—be involved only with the elected Membership?

The Speaker: That is not the information I received. Let's put it that way.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: It would seem that the First Elected Member for George Town is totally correct. As far as I am concerned, your ruling, Mr. Speaker, is paramount. But the amendment to this motion is central to the core of the motion. The motion we are dealing with calls for no less than nine of the elected Members, which is section 6(2)(f) of the Constitution. It would therefore follow that any vote on this amendment would have to go to the substantive motion and would therefore result in the section 6(2)(f) of the Constitution applying also to the amendment.

Of course, as I mentioned, this is totally left to you, but perhaps you would take some time to have a look at this again, if you so wish. But I believe it is a matter that should be looked into a little further.

The Speaker: It is just about the time for the adjournment. I did ask this question, and I read the report on it. But I will certainly go back and get additional information. If it pleases the House, I would entertain a motion for the adjournment.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Before the adjournment, I would like to thank you for actually having another look at the situation because it is critical, it is a test here and it is critical to the people in this country that some fairness be demonstrated. I congratulate you for taking another look at the situation. It is extremely delicate.

The Speaker: I don't know if it is a choice of fairness. What I have given you is the information I have received from learned people. It is not my decision. But I will certainly do that.

The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you.

In revisiting your advice, maybe you can try to separate how the Constitution says that Official Members are Members of the House. Notwithstanding that they are Members of the House it says in the election or revocation of Members of this House only elected Members vote.

The amendment is part of the motion. It is a motion to amend the motion. So it can't be that it is otherwise.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The voting, as I understand it, if we look further at section 35, says, "(1) Save as otherwise provided in this Constitution, all questions proposed for decision in the Assembly shall be determined by a majority of the votes of the members present and voting." And you, sir, have pointed out (in section 5) that the Legislative Assembly is comprised of the all eighteen Members. For the purposes of the removal, the votes that are counted for a removal have to be nine elected Members. I think what you are saying, sir, differs from that in that here we are dealing with a procedural motion to amend a heading which is not a material part of the motion. The operative part of the motion is the resolution area of it. What position, the result between the two, or what is intended by this is something else. But I think it is clear that there is a difference between a full vote and where we are dealing with the election of officers of the House.

I don't think I can take it any further. I will put the motion to adjourn whenever you call on me.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, in regard to the Constitution, the fact that this motion, this resolution, is based upon the Constitution and specifically relates to section 6(2)(f) of the Constitution where it says, "if his election to Executive Council is revoked by a resolution of the Assembly in favour of which there are cast the votes of not less than nine of the elected members of the Assembly." If the word "revoked" is used here, and if the amendment is dealing with changing the title of the motion from a censure motion to a revocation motion, it is clear that the wording fits into this particular section of the Constitution. It is also clear that if we were bringing a motion that dealt with collective responsibility, the Backbench would not be able to do that. That could only be brought by a Member of the Government.

What I am saying, if the non-elected Members of the Assembly cannot participate in the main resolution, they should not be able to participate in the minor decision to amend the resolution.

The Speaker: If I might take it one step further, what they have basically said is that the title is not a part of the resolution. Therefore, the changing of "Censure" to "Revocation" doesn't really make any difference. That is exactly what they have said.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, it is a part of the resolution. You see in there that the word "censure" is not used in the resolution, the word "revoke" is.

The Speaker: But it all means the same thing in the final analysis. Anyway, let us take the adjournment and we'll take this under advisement and report back to you on Wednesday.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, I beg you to bear in mind 6, where it is talking about elected Members of the Assembly. That has to be the operative part because it is dealing not with membership, but with election. It says, "elected members." To contravene the Constitution is a serious matter, sir.

The Speaker: That is really why I am concerned. That is not what I want to do.

The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock.

The Speaker: The question is that this House do now adjourn until 10 o'clock Wednesday morning. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AT 4.35 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM WEDNESDAY, 15 JULY 1998.

EDITED
WEDNESDAY
15 JULY 1998
10.43 AM

The Speaker: Prayers by the Elected Member for North Side.

No. 125 standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

PRAYERS

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived: We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth, that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly, that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy great name's sake.

Let us say the Lord's Prayer together: Our Father, who art in heaven, hallowed be Thy name. Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us. Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace, now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Item number 2 on the Order Paper, reading by the Speaker of Messages and Announcements.

READING BY THE SPEAKER OF MESSAGES AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

APOLOGY

The Speaker: I have an apology from the Honourable First Official Member who is presently acting as Governor of the Cayman Islands. Item No. 3 standing on today's Order Paper, Questions to Honourable Members and Ministers.

It has been mutually agreed between the Minister of Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works and the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, the Member moving the question that Question 124 be deferred until a later sitting. We will move on to Question

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION 125

No. 125: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture Environment Communications and Works what strategy the Government has adopted to contain the seepage of pollutants and contaminants at the North Sound land-fill site.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture Environment Communications and Works.

Hon John B McLean: The Government is at this time not controlling the seepage of pollutants from the George Town Landfill. Waste of all types, including hazardous wastes, have been discharged into the George Town Landfill. This is not unusual for landfills of this type and age and knowing what we do today about the potential for environmental impacts, disposal of wastes into an unlined, non-engineered site is not the best available technology. It will be one of the challenges of the Government to facilitate the establishment of an environmentally sound waste management facility in the near future. In the meantime, the existing landfill is the only option for waste disposal and we need to continue to use it until another alternative is constructed.

Fortunately, in the case of the George Town Landfill, it appears that the natural setting of the site has precluded any serious environmental impacts. Natural attenuation and the flushing action of tidal influence probably play a significant role in reducing the level of off-site contamination. Based on ground and surface water samples taken in 1991, a second set in 1996-97, and a recent set of results taken this spring, no serious levels of contamination resulting from the off-site migration of contaminants have been detected.

The existing sparse database of analyses is insufficient to determine if any trends in contaminant flow have been established. In order to better understand the migration of contaminants from the Landfill, the Department of Environmental Health has upgraded the landfill sampling programme to provide quarterly samples of ground and surface water. The resulting information can then be employed to determine if the current monitoring programme is sufficient or if any projected levels of contamination will require containment.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Honourable Minister tell the House how long his Ministry is prepared to continue with the existing state of affairs?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon John McLean: Mr. Speaker, it is not that my Ministry is prepared to continue the way it is. A Committee was formed several months ago with regard to identifying other safe areas, not only here in Grand Cayman but also in Cayman Brac whereby we can establish what is considered a proper disposal area. This Committee has been working diligently. The Committee not only comprises members of the Ministry but also from Planning Department, Public Works and other concerned persons. We have been working on it and it is definitely a concern and not something that any of us would like to see continue the way it has been operating.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In the answer I noticed that the Honourable Minister said that they have taken ground and surface water samples. Can the Minister tell the House whether any tests have been done for gases such as radon and methane which are natural by-products of this kind of degradation and commonly found at landfill sites.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon John McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. It is my understanding that all necessary tests such as the Member has just mentioned have been taken and I think he is correct that in any landfill you will find exactly what he has just mentioned.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Can the Minister state if, over and above any of the tests mentioned in his answer, any tests have been taken to see if there has been any excess pollution into the North Sound seeing that the landfill site is near to the water?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon John McLean: My understanding, in reply to what the Member has asked, is that there has been seepage over the years. As far as having a direct test in the North Sound, I cannot really say to him that there is a written report on any test.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. It is obvious from the answers that have been given to the supplementaries that this is a very serious matter. I think we understand exactly what the Minister has said with regards to working feverishly, but can the Minister give the House some type of commitment as to a time-line when a full report may be made so that we can know which direction we may be headed. It is obvious that something has to be done and soon.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon John McLean: I have no problem in giving a commitment to the House, and of course having a report brought back to the House, because, like I mentioned earlier, this is of great concern to me personally and my Ministry and of course to the Department. We have been doing whatever possible to try to operate in the safest way possible so I give the Member that undertaking.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Can the Minister state how long the Department and the Ministry have been aware of the situation being as acute as it is?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon John McLean: Mr. Speaker, the garbage facility has never been in place the way it should have been. It has been done, as we all know, and I would have to use the term, in an ad hoc way. We have been trying our best to contain it. I really would not commit myself to say how many years the garbage dump has been there because I really do not have those figures with me.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Can the Minister state, outside of the seepage of pollutants and contaminants that have been mentioned in the question, if the people who operate the landfill site actually engage in huge fire burns at some points in time and, if this is the case, are there any negative effects to be expected because of having to do this?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon John McLean: Mr. Speaker, it is quite possible that there have been some huge fire burns there. I am not certain and I cannot answer as to what would have been burnt. As I pointed out in the answer to another question some time ago, I know that we had to do that with regard to some hazardous waste because we did not have the proper equipment which the House gave the undertaking that we could go ahead and put in place. So, perhaps he is correct, but I really cannot say that. I have not really seen something like that.

The Speaker: I caught the eye of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town first.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I give way to my colleague, sir.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you sir. Can the Minister tell the House who does this monitoring and what kind of tests are used to determine that pollutants and contaminants at this time are not detrimentally affecting the environs? And, also, what is the long term solution for this obvious problem?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon John McLean: Mr. Speaker, to answer the last part of the question first, as I pointed out in a question a few days ago, it is my understanding that we are trying to dispose of all hazardous materials, all bulky material in a completely different way that we handled it years ago and up to this time. As I pointed out earlier, there is a Committee in place and we have been looking at other areas of course. I have to point out that there are not too many people who want us to move a garbage dump into their various districts. I guess that is why we have been stuck so long in this area and we have been trying to make the best of it. While the situation may not be what we would like it to be, we have been trying to work with it as much as possible.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Mr. Speaker, perhaps this supplementary is straying but if I am allowed to ask the question I think the relevance will be obvious.

In a previous substantive question the Minister talked about terms of reference being developed for an Environmental Impact Study for the North Sound. Could the Minister also undertake, while those term of reference are being finalised, to have included in those references what negative effects may be taking place into the North Sound because of the existence of the Garbage dump?

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 23 (7) & (8)

The Speaker: Before I call on the Honourable Minister to answer the question, I will entertain a motion for the suspension of Standing Order 23(7) and (8) so that Question Time can go beyond 11 o'clock.

Mr. Linford Pierson: Mr. Speaker, I so move.

The Speaker: Is there a seconder? The Third Elected member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I second the Motion.

The Speaker: The Motion has been moved and seconded. Those in favour please say aye. Those against no.

AYES and NOES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 23 (7) & (8) SUSPENDED.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon John McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. To answer the question posed by the First Elected Member for George Town, most definitely. As a matter of fact, in the answer to the question that was posed on the North Sound, one thing that I said was that it had more far reaching effects that just looking at the quarrying of marl. Yes, it will be included in that.

The Speaker: There are no further supplementaries, that concludes Question Time for this morning.

Item No 4 on today's Order Paper, Other Business. Private Members' Motions. Private Member's Motion No. 7 of 1998, Censure Motion, continuing.

OTHER BUSINESS

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 7/98

CENSURE MOTION

SPEAKER'S RULING

The Speaker: When we adjourned on Monday afternoon, I gave an undertaking that I would study the issue of who would vote on the amendment to the substantive motion on the floor, and make a report this morning. First of all, I shall read Private Member's Motion No. 7/98, which caption reads "Censure Motion"

"BE IT RESOLVED THAT:

- (i) this Honourable Legislative Assembly has no confidence in the political conduct, actions and management of the Hon John B

McLean, OBE., Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works; and

"(ii) in accordance with section 6(1)(f) of the Cayman Islands (Constitution) Order 1972 as amended his election to the Executive Council be revoked; . . ."

I would further say that in a ruling I made on Monday I asked that the second resolve section be excised from this motion, therefore I shall not read that. It has been deleted.

I have taken it, as I promised, under review. I have gotten professional opinion, which reads as follows:

"CAN OFFICIAL MEMBERS OF THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY VOTE ON A CENSURE MOTION?"

"1) Unless there is some prohibition or restriction in the Constitution or Standing Orders with respect to voting on a motion of censure or no-confidence, any Member, including any Official Member, may vote on any motion. Its caption is irrelevant and is not part of the motion.

"2) Voting provisions contained in Standing Orders 5, 42 and 43 are subject to sections 5(b) and 35 of the Constitution.

"3) A motion of censure and/or no-confidence differs from a motion for the revocation of a Member's election to Executive Council in that a vote for revocation is a constitutional provision: Constitution, section 6. A censure or no-confidence motion by itself has no constitutional effect, whatever moral obligations it may suggest. This present motion uses the no-confidence aspect cosmetically as a recital and is in order.

"The votes of Official Members of the Legislative Assembly are not counted in a resolution to revoke the election of an Executive Councillor."

This was clearly explained on Monday afternoon. So, I hope that clears the matter.

Debate on Private Member's Motion No. 7/98 continues. The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, this motion is certainly not a censure motion, it is a revocation motion. There is no question of honesty or integrity of the Executive Council in regard to the 1995 Crown Grant to the Minister responsible for Lands, the Hon. John McLean. However, it does call upon the Hon. John McLean to demonstrate that the body of evidence presented to Executive Council was factual.

This House is entitled to ask that this be done since it is charged by the people for ensuring that its Members' judgment is not influenced by any private, personal interest that may be in conflict with their public duties. Furthermore, regardless of whether or not there is a conflict, there is, in my view, the appearance of one and this House cannot tolerate this.

On 27 September—

The Speaker: May I just interrupt you for one minute? Are you speaking on the amendment or the substantive motion at this time? I would like to finish the amendment if possible.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, the amendment was finished.

The Speaker: We didn't take the vote on the amendment. We have to take the vote. That is why I am asking if you are finished. You have the right of reply. So we can now take the vote.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Just for it to be clear to all of us: Based on your ruling this morning regarding the title of the motion, it appears that the amendment requesting the change of a word in the title really doesn't matter. So we were almost of the assumption that it had fallen away. But we just want to make sure which way you want to handle it, sir.

The Speaker: That is the wish of the mover. He has moved the motion and I have the responsibility to put the question. What I am saying is that we are amending a motion entitled "Censure Motion," and the opening preamble says, "The Honourable Assembly has no confidence..."

So, if you wish to withdraw your amendment, that is fine.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my amendment and move on with the motion.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Please continue, Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: As I was saying, on 27 September 1996, the Legislative Assembly printed and tabled some guidelines for a Code of Conduct for Members of this House. I would like to read two of the guidelines so members of the public, in particular, understand the ethical framework with which I am scrutinising the Minister's actions and decisions.

In regard to accountability, the Code states—

WITHDRAWAL OF AMENDMENT TO PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 7/98

The Speaker: May I interrupt you again? I need to put the question on the withdrawal.

The question is the withdrawal of the amendment to the substantive motion. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: AMENDMENT TO SUBSTANTIVE MOTION WITHDRAWN.

The Speaker: I apologise for the interruption. Please continue.

Dr. Frank McField: Not at all, Mr. Speaker. I understand the tenseness of the situation. It is not an easy thing we are dealing with, Sir.

The Guidelines for a Code of Conduct published by this Legislative Assembly on 27 September, 1996 states, “Holders of public office are accountable for their decisions and actions to the public and must submit themselves to whatever scrutiny is appropriate to their office.” This motion is therefore not personal. I am only doing my job because the public is interested in ensuring the proper administration of justice. The fact that the Minister publicly termed the concerns of this Parliament, and I quote, as “vicious lies,” in his press release of Thursday, 28 May, might suggest to the Honourable House that the gentleman does not take seriously the importance of these guidelines.

Speaking of openness, the Guidelines mention, “Holders of public office should be as open as possible about all the decisions and actions that they make. They should give reasons for their decisions and restrict information only when the wider public interest clearly demands.” It is with these guidelines in mind, Mr. Speaker, that I now say that the Minister needs to prove that his actions on behalf of the estate of Mr. Whitmore Syms, deceased, has not unjustly placed our political institution in a moral disorder.

No one is on trial for any crime. This debate is concerned with political ethics. We are debating our political ethics—or lack thereof—in spite of the fact that some Members may be great critics of moral philosophy. These Members still may not know that behind every just law is a moral truth. So to the judicious, true, and honest people of the Cayman Islands I say that their Parliament must restrain the trustees of power by that oath which they have taken to govern for the people's good.

Mr. Speaker, realising the seriousness of this motion, and realising that we would like to have retained the second provision in the motion, I would now like to move a motion to suspend Standing Order 43 in accordance with Standing Order 86, which reads:

MOTION TO SUSPEND STANDING ORDER 43

“WHEREAS section 6(2)(f) of the Cayman Islands (Constitution) Order, 1972, states that a Minister's election to Executive Council is revoked by a resolution of the Assembly in favour of which there are cast the votes of not less than nine of the elected members of the Assembly;

“AND WHEREAS Standing Order 5(4) states that the election of a Minister to Executive Council shall be by ballot paper;

“AND WHEREAS Standing Order 43(2) requires that at the conclusion of a debate upon any question, the Presiding Officer shall put the question for the decision of the House and shall collect the votes of the Ayes and the Noes;

“AND WHEREAS in the absence of a specific provision to revoke by means of secret ballot, it is desirable that the same procedure used in the election of a Minister should also be used to revoke a Minister's election to Executive Council;

“AND WHEREAS Standing Order 86 states that any of these Standing Orders may be suspended at any time for a specific purpose with the consent of a majority of Members present;

“BE IT RESOLVED THAT in accordance with Standing Order 86, Standing Order 43 be suspended to allow that at the conclusion of debate on Private Member's Motion No. 7/98, that the vote be taken by ballot.”

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: I rise to second the motion moved by the Honourable Member.

The Speaker: The motion to suspend Standing Order 43 has been duly moved and seconded. I rather think that this motion is somewhat late in its presentation. It is in order without a doubt. The Member of the House has a privilege to suspend Standing Order 43. But on Monday of this week I said, “Therefore I contend that the last resolve section of this motion cannot stand and the vote will have to be taken by a voice vote.”

I do not feel that today I can now see that changed. That was the decision made at that time and I think the Speaker's [ruling] should stand.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: On a point of procedure.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: With due respect to the Chair, Mr. Speaker, and the Backbench really wants to remain respectful to the Chair, I must contend on behalf of my colleague that this is not a matter for mere discretion at this point because the Standing Orders speak specifically to this situation. The suspension of Standing Orders is governed by Standing Order 86. I do not believe that it is a question of it being late because the way this Standing Order reads is that any of these Standing Orders may be suspended at any time for a specific purpose by the consent of a majority of the Members present.

So, Mr. Speaker, I cannot see how you can state that it is late, when, in fact, the Standing Orders by which this House is governed state that a suspension of the Standing Orders can be brought under Standing Order 86 at any time. Would you please clarify that position, Mr. Speaker?

The Speaker: I am referring to Standing Order 24(8), “No motion may be proposed which is the same in substance as any motion which during the previous six months has been resolved.”

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Which Standing Order? Can you repeat that Standing Order, please?

The Speaker: Standing Order 24(8).

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: But, Mr. Speaker, on a point of procedure, Standing Order 86...and I guess I am only repeating what the Third Elected Member for George Town has already pointed out, this Standing Order is very specific. “Any of these Standing Orders may be suspended at any time for a specific purpose by the consent of a majority of Members present.” The motion that is before the House is doing that. That is all the motion is saying, “BE IT RESOLVED that under Standing Order 86, Standing Order 43 be suspended to allow at the conclusion of debate on Private Member’s Motion No. 7/98 that the vote be taken by ballot.”

I cannot see how you are going to now tell us that what has happened here ever since I knew we had a Legislative Assembly cannot take place today—that is, suspension of Standing Orders at any time.

The Speaker: I am not trying to contradict Standing Order 86.

The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: This motion is a very serious attempt to take this Legislature into a secret vote, a secret session. Now I would like to deal at some stage with the merits, . . . if you wish I will deal purely with the law now and when the Member opens on it I will deal with the merits. But on the point of order the Constitution is very clear, and your ruling is correct.

Mr. Roy Boddén: No, it’s not.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Section 6(2) of the Constitution says, “The seat of an elected member of the Ex- ecutive Council shall become vacant—(f) if his election to Executive Council is revoked by a resolution of the Assembly in favour of which there are cast the votes of not less than nine of the elected members of the Assembly.”

The motion that has been filed seeks to use a totally different process; it seeks to use the equivalent of section 5(b) of the Constitution, which is an election. There is a very material difference between an election, . . . and here there are multiple, five Members, and at that very important stage the Legislative Assembly is doing an election of first officers. Now, there can be no doubt that this attempt to bring secrecy into a Chamber when those Members are talking about transparency [Members’ laughter] is something that has never happened in this House and I will show you that the only time it has happened in the Parliament of the United Kingdom was during World War II and partly during World War I.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: It just happened in (inaudible).

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: In states of emergency—transparency, Mr. Speaker, must prevail. Those who preach it must practice it. And if this Legislative Assembly goes into a secret vote on a major issue such as this it is going to send shock waves through this country—

Mr. Roy Boddén: Rubbish!

[General uproar]

The Speaker: Order!

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: —that will be felt internationally and throughout the world.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Oh God!

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order! Is the Minister debating the substantive motion to waive the standing order, or is he using a matter of procedure? He is debating the motion. He would not have gone into all that stuff if he were not trying to make his points on the motion. He knows that! He’s trained in it!

The Speaker: You were given an opportunity when you were standing, let the Minister...

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: On a Point of Order Mr. Speaker, please! You need to have some patience on this side. I do not want to be disrespectful to you sir, but that Member is not debating a matter of procedure.

The Speaker: Please continue Honourable Minister.

Hon. Truman Boddén: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. There is no way that the Standing Orders of this House can vary a section of the Constitution. And I would like to refer to the fact, I will need a minute to look this up, I will read the section under which the Standing Orders of the Assembly are made. Because they are subsidiary to the constitution and they therefore cannot change the Constitution.

Mr. Linford Pierson: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order, is the Honourable Minister saying that he really does not know what he is saying and that he needs more time to research? If that is the case, there are others over here who understand the problem and who would like to speak while he is doing his research.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I am not giving way again. If, instead of taking points of order, Members are standing up and making statements. . . . Section 31 gives the power to make Standing Orders, and I would just like to read this, Mr. Speaker. Section 31(1) says, "Subject to the provisions of this Constitution," see how it begins? "Subject to the provisions of this Constitution. . ." nothing can be done which tampers with the Constitution of this country—

Mr. Roy Bodden: We're not tampering with the Constitution!

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: "Subject to the provisions of this Constitution and of any Instructions under Her Majesty's Sign Manual and Signet, the Assembly may from time to time make, amend and revoke Standing Orders for the regulation and orderly conduct of its own proceedings—

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you!

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Hear, hear!

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: . . . and the dispatch of business, and for the passing, intituling and numbering of Bills and for the presentation thereof to the Governor for assent; but no such Standing Orders or amendment or revocation thereof shall have effect unless they have been approved by the Governor."

It goes on. "(2) The first Standing Orders of the Assembly shall, subject to the provisions of this Constitution, be the Standing Orders of the Legislative Assembly constituted by the Order of 1965 as in force immediately before the appointed day, with such adaptations and modifications as may be necessary, and those Standing Orders may be amended or revoked by Standing Orders made under the last foregoing subsection."

It is clear that you cannot, by the use of Standing Orders, waive sections of the Constitution. If that vote is taken, it will be ultra vires this Constitution by an attempt to use section 5(b) instead of using the substantive provision. So my submission is that this cannot be done through a secret ballot as provided in the Standing Orders, it must be done in this open House like this House has always sat—

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order.

The Speaker: What is your point of order?

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: The Minister is standing there debating not the resolution, or, he should not be debating the resolution but that is what he is talking about because he just mentioned it. He is saying that to amend the Standing Orders, or to clear the Standing Orders. . . . Please, Mr. Speaker, please.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning, please continue.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I am winding up now.

Section 5(b), . . . Well, I know that Members don't like what I am saying, but I am dealing with the procedure. Section 5(b) says, "5. There shall be an Executive Council in and for the Islands which, subject to section 10 of the Constitution shall consist of—" it deals first with the Ex Officio Members, and "(b) five elected members, who shall be elected by the elected Members of the Assembly from among the elected Members of the Assembly, who shall be entitled 'Ministers.'" That is an election to Council.

The following section, section 6(2)(f) reads, "6 (2) The seat of an elected member of the Executive Council shall become vacant—(f) if his election to Executive Council is revoked by a resolution of the Assembly in favour of which there are cast the votes of not less than nine of the elected members of the Assembly. . . ."

It must be as this House has always done, it must be a vote where the public can hear what is happening to their representatives through a motion that is a resolution of this full House, held in the open like every other resolution of this House.

Mr. Roy Bodden: No!

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: There is no way there can be the use of the section 5 provisions which deal with an election of Members. It must be a resolution of this assembly. As you quite rightly said, Mr. Speaker, while the votes do not count, all Members of this Legislative Assembly have a right to vote if they wish. Thank you.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Thank you.

Mr. Speaker, can you explain to this House whether we are voting on the Constitution, or whether we are voting on Standing Order 86 as it applies to Standing Order 43, the waiver or suspension of Standing Orders? Which one are we voting on sir? The Constitution or the Standing Order? What is the motion before us?

The Speaker: The motion is to suspend. But what I have said is that I made a ruling on Monday of this week. If this motion preceded that ruling there would have been no question.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: No.

Mr. Roy Bodden: No.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, your ruling had nothing to do with a motion. The section, respectfully, that you referred to, Standing Order 24(8) states, "No motion may be proposed which is the same in substance as any motion which during the previous six months has been resolved." I am stating that on Monday you did not deal with the motion. Your ruling is the question we are dealing with. You made a ruling, and this morning we voted on your ruling on the withdrawal. That was your ruling. It was not a motion in this House that had been passed in the past six months. So I have to contend that this section 24(8) of the Standing Order does not apply to your ruling. What you are dealing with is the ruling you made on Monday which was voted on this morning—the withdrawal of that section. But it was not a motion in the true sense of a motion being contemplated under Standing Order 24 (8).

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: I would just like to speak briefly in regard to what the Minister for Education seems to be attempting to do to this motion (like he did to the Education motion).

In the minutes of the meeting of the Select Committee of Elected Members to Review the Cayman Islands (Constitution) Order 1972, a question on a vote of no confidence was raised. The Minister for Education had the opportunity to have this particular section of the Constitution stricken from the Constitution because it was the view of those advisors that this particular section conflicted with the concept of collective responsibility. So the whole idea that we could remove one individual Minister by way of section 6(2)(f) of the Constitution, calling for the nine votes by elected members, was perceived at that particular time as something that, if used, could create a bit of a Constitutional problem.

Now, it is a fact that the Minister himself said that he wanted this section to remain in the Constitution. I will read. "Mr. Truman Bodden recommended that with the Chief Minister having equivalent powers as those under the Westminster system there must be a simple majority vote otherwise there exists a dictatorship, a government that cannot be removed."

The only provision we have to remove a Government is not by a no-confidence motion because there is no such thing in that sense in our system. Our system of Government does not depend upon a group of people achieving power as a result of their political pledges to the people as a political party and therefore being invited to form a government. The elected Government of the Cayman Islands is not elected by the people, but by Members of the Legislative Assembly. That is why, in regard to the Constitution, that particular provision had to stay in there. Without any provision to hold Ministers accountable, without any provision to discipline Ministers, the democratic power of the people would be completely useless.

The Minister, with all of his talk about subversion and economic chaos is subversive in that he is suggesting that we are the ones who are causing the basic problem here. He is trying to include Official Members in an act that should only concern the people's elected representatives. If he did not believe that this particular section of the Constitution was useful, then he had an opportunity back at that particular time, with all his legal expertise, to suggest that this particular part be removed. There is nothing in these minutes that suggests he was of that opinion.

So what we have to deal with now, Mr. Speaker, is the fact that this particular section of the Constitution allows elected Members of this Legislative Assembly only, to participate in this particular vote. If Official Members are allowed to influence the debate or the outcome of the debate, it contravenes the provisions of the Constitution. If that is done, I think that will be a lot more serious than what the Minister is suggesting.

The Speaker: This would be a convenient time to take the morning break.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I was just wondering if I may reply to the statement made before. If not, I can wait until after the break.

The Speaker: It can wait. We shall suspend for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.38 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12.08 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Mr. Speaker, are you about to make a decision or read a ruling?

The Speaker: I am. Would you care to say something first?

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Mr. Speaker, I have listened with interest this morning, but I was a little bit confused when Standing Order 24(8) was used. Standing Order 24(8) reads, "No motion may be proposed which is the same in substance as any motion which during the previous six months has been resolved.” I am not aware of any motion being moved here this morning that is the same in substance as any other motion moved during the previous six months.

I do know that you, as Speaker, made a ruling. But, in my humble opinion, there is no way we can take that argument to not allow the suspension of Standing Orders, which is allowed by the Standing Orders. It was a ruling, not a motion.

And, Mr. Speaker, I would like to further say that it was totally impossible for any Member of the Backbench to have moved a motion to suspend Standing Orders prior to your ruling. I may be wrong, but when I read the Hansard from the proceedings of Monday, 13 July, before this Private Member's Motion was taken you said, “I contend that the last resolve section of this motion cannot stand, and the vote will have to be taken by a voice vote.” I assumed that is the ruling you are referring to this morning. For the Backbench to have moved the suspension of Standing Orders prior to that would have been entirely impossible.

I also contend that in the Hansard, the First Elected Member for West Bay did ask for a round-table discussion on this motion. And you said you had no objection to that. Then you went on to say, “I have no objection to that, but I would like to make it abundantly clear that in talking to these Parliamentary attorneys or advocates on Parliamentary Procedure. . .” so, so, so, and without any hesitation, “this is the advice I got and this is the only ruling that I can really make.”

Filling the position of Deputy Speaker, and not wanting to get into a war with the Speaker of Parliament, or to embarrass the Speaker—which is not my intention—I wish to say that I also sought advice from overseas Parliamentary attorneys or advocates on Parliamentary Procedure who are fully cognisant of the Standing Orders and the Constitution of the Cayman Islands. My advice also was that Standing Orders would have to be suspended in order for us to have a vote by secret ballot. And this is the advice that the Backbench is following this morning in moving the suspension of Standing Orders. So I would ask, Mr. Speaker, if you would humbly reconsider the statement this morning that this motion because it was not moved prior to your ruling cannot be accepted, and allow the Members of this House to vote on the suspension motion as they see fit—whether it is for, or against.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you.

From the 60's or maybe the 50's right through to today, practice and procedure through the Standing Orders has been to elect a Member of the House to Executive Council by a ballot, meaning a secret vote. That practice has been reinforced every four years. It is impossible, in my opinion, to determine by voice vote how many persons voted for or against a motion since the Constitution stipulates a certain number of votes—namely, nine votes.

[Addressing the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning] You had your say just now. You just behave your little self over there! You are not doing me the way you done me. I would never do you what you did me. Believe you me!

To attempt to remove a Member by voice vote is as far as I am concerned, regardless of how Members want to vote, an insult to Members. And, Mr. Speaker, it raises a contempt of the House because it totally ignores the established practice and procedure over decades which has, in fact, become a convention of the Cayman Islands Legislature.

To force Members into voting for a revocation of a Minister's election to Executive Council forces them into the most intimidating act they could be called upon to do in this Legislature. It will result in animosity among Members that will hang into perpetuity irrespective of the outcome of the vote. That is the purpose for taking a secret ballot.

The Universal Declaration of Human Rights speaks about politics and democracy. It says, “The will of the people shall be the basis of the authority of Government. This will shall be expressed in periodic and genuine elections which shall be by universal and equal suffrage and shall be held by secret vote of a equivalent free voting procedure.”

The only method or procedure that could properly be used in this case is the one established by convention in the Cayman Islands Assembly in this instance which protects its Members and preserves the Constitutional provision that Elected Members may revoke the election of a Member that they had previously elected to Executive Council by secret ballot. Mr. Speaker, blind Bartimaeus could see that!

On a further point, further to what was said by the Deputy Speaker, I, too, sought advice. And my advice was the same, although not written. If you say that you, as Speaker, have constitutional advice, or advice from some parliamentary advocate, and political advice I think you said, which affords or causes you to make a specific ruling which will cause Members to vote for or agree to a certain procedure, then Members should have the benefit of a copy of that advice, because it sets a fundamental precedent for this Legislative Assembly.

Now, further to what the Deputy Speaker had to say, when I asked for the round-table discussion I could not move—nobody could move, because you went into that round-table discussion. You will recall Mr. Speaker that a number of us met with you yesterday and you will also recall that the result of that discussion was this specific motion to suspend Standing Orders.

The Speaker: Are you saying that that was my advice?

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, we had a discussion with you, You told us the procedure to take. We had a discussion with you, you told us the procedure to take and we followed that advice. How can anybody come here today and tell me that I cannot do what they told me I could do yesterday?

The Speaker: May I interrupt you for a moment? Let us put the record straight. The Deputy Speaker made that information. Would you confirm that, Elected Member for North Side?

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Made which information, Mr. Speaker?

The Speaker: The information you received from the noted politician from the Eastern Caribbean.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: I said that when I spoke, that I received. . .

The Speaker: At the round-table.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: With all due respect to you, sir, I really do not know where the round-table discussion is coming into what I said in Parliament this morning.

The Speaker: I don't either.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: If you can explain to me, I will be more than happy to state it sir.

The Speaker: The Member is alleging that I told him to file this motion, and I did not tell him that. They asked me if that was the procedure and I told them that I could not comment on what procedure they should take. And Members will remember that. I was not in a position to advise, I had to be impartial in every respect.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: If you did not tell us that, Mr. Speaker, then, in so many words, we are all blind, deaf and dumb. Well, it certainly looks like a set-up. . . . But to further continue on my matter of procedure, I cannot agree with the Minister of Education that what we are attempting to do here will cause any economic fall-out because—

The Speaker: Can I just interrupt you once again?

We are really not debating the motion now. Let us get back down and let us vote on it.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Ah! Thank you, Mr. Speaker. That is the point! I did not intend to go any further. I just wanted to see whether or not you were going to stop me when I raised the same points he was debating. Thank you, very much! I have made my point!

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? The Honourable Minister for Education.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I would first like to reply to what the Fourth Elected Member for George Town read in relation to the Constitution. He read a section of the Minutes, which I now have, which dealt with a vote of no confidence. Let me put this in the proper context. What was happening here is that the majority of Members had—

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: You had your turn. Please sit down and let him go ahead.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: No, no, no, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, this is a point of order.

The Speaker: If we are going to continue to interrupt—

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, I call your attention to the Standing Order on relevance. Now, that is my point of order. May I take it?

The Speaker: Go ahead, let me hear it.

POINT OF ORDER

(Relevance)

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. You just stopped me from referring to what he said. How are you going to allow him to refer to what the Fourth Elected Member for George Town had to say? Is this a democratic Assembly, or is this a Kangaroo Court with a blind judge and a dumb ruler?

The Speaker: Let us try to keep some decorum in this House.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Let me voice my usual calmness. What we are heading for is something that this Parliament does not wish. We are prepared to abide by your ruling; but may I remind you, Mr. Speaker, that one of your responsibilities is to protect the rights of the minority. The Backbench is the minority. We expect that you are going to be right down the centre and we look forward to your usual consistency, Mr. Speaker. Otherwise, I will have to return to my constituents and tell them that my being here does not spell good sense.

SPEAKER'S RULING

ON MOTION TO SUSPEND STANDING ORDER 43

The Speaker: I would like to add that I came in here with the intention of making a ruling. But it has been side-tracked. I stand prepared to make my ruling whenever I am allowed to do so.

If we can get back to the business at hand, I gave this some very serious consideration during the break. I have also taken advice. I realise that what I said earlier was absolutely correct inasmuch as the resolve section of the motion had to be removed. The mover agreed to remove that. It could not be a part of the substantive motion. That has been deleted as I read earlier this morning. I also am cognisant of the fact that we live in a democratic society and want to do everything that is absolutely right. It is my responsibility to uphold the Constitution of the Cayman Islands and to go in line with the Standing Orders of this Legislative Assembly. Standing Order 86 says, "Any of these Standing Orders may be suspended at any time for a specific purpose by the consent of a majority of Members present." It is my intention at this time to put this to the vote to Members of this Honourable House and if it has a majority we will then proceed.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, with respect, there would need to be debate on this motion before there is any voting.

The Speaker: It is now open to debate. Does any Member wish to speak? This Standing Order is very specific it says "at any time." I am going to take the opportunity to do what I feel is in line with the Standing Orders of this House and in accordance with the Constitution of the Cayman Islands. But I have not changed my mind that the Constitution is very specific under 6(2)(f) that it must be the nine elected Members voting in the affirmative for the revocation of any Member. But under this procedural motion a simple majority will carry.

It is now open to debate. (Pause)

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Just to make sure that I understand clearly, sir. The motion moved by the Fourth Elected Member for George Town, seconded by the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, regarding the suspension of Standing Order 43, that is what we are talking about now?

The Speaker: That is open for debate.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: That is open for debate. I just wanted to make sure, sir. Thank you.

The Speaker: That is correct.

For the clarity of the listening public, and those in the gallery, and Members, the motion to suspend Standing Order 43 in accordance with Standing Order 86,

"WHEREAS section 6(2)(f) of the Cayman Islands (Constitution) Order, 1972, states that a Minister's election to Executive Council is revoked by a resolution of the Assembly in favour of which there are cast the votes of not less than nine of the elected members of the Assembly;

"AND WHEREAS Standing Order 5(4) states that the election of a Minister to Executive Council shall be by ballot paper;

"AND WHEREAS Standing Order 43(2) requires that at the conclusion of a debate upon any question, the Presiding Officer shall put the question for the decision of the House and shall collect the votes of the Ayes and the Noes;

"AND WHEREAS in the absence of a specific provision to revoke by means of secret ballot, it is desirable that the same procedure used in the election of a Minister should also be used to revoke a Minister's election to Executive Council;

"AND WHEREAS Standing Order 86 states that any of these Standing Orders may be suspended at any time for a specific purpose with the consent of a majority of Members present;

"BE IT RESOLVED THAT in accordance with Standing Order 86, Standing Order 43 be suspended to allow that at the conclusion of debate on Private Member's Motion No. 7/98, that the vote be taken by ballot."

It is now open for debate. The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I would first like to find out whether (because I have just received this motion) the five days' notice has been given in relation to this motion.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, I will abide by your ruling, but the Minister for Education knows that the suspension of Standing Orders is made at any time during the course of a sitting.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I never cease to be amazed by that Honourable Minister. Many times he gets up in here and states that he is all-knowing and I am surprised that he doesn't know that Standing Order 86 really does not require the five days' notice.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, why I raised that point is that what is dealt with in the suspension of Standing Orders is not a formal motion like this. But if that is the case, it is really not that material. If the mover of the motion doesn't wish to open, then I would like to speak on the merits of the motion.

The Speaker: Did the mover wish to move the motion? No?

Does any Member wish to speak to the suspension of Standing Orders? The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: This move to suspend the Standing Orders of this House, and to go against the practice that has always existed in this House on motions, is one which, in my view, is going to be very damaging to this country. It is going to be damaging because never in the history of this House has there been any attempt to move into a secret ballot on a motion.

If it is done on this, then it is very clearly going to set a precedent and send a message to the world and the Cayman Islands that Members of this House can, when they so wish, move into secret votes and you will never know the question of who voted how.

Transparency, which is preached by the Backbench. . . and, by the way, let me just point out that the Backbench is the majority in this House. There are ten Members on the Backbench and eight in the Government Bench. So when it comes to the question of protection, which was raised earlier by one of the Members, then it is a question that minorities should be protected, and it is obvious where the majority is.

Now, this move is one that does two things: it destroys transparency that is preached by the Backbench. . . Mr. Speaker, I have listened for several years to the Member moving this motion and the Member seconding this motion (the Fourth Elected Member for George Town, and the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town) preach about transparency and accountability. The opposite of transparency is secrecy. We are talking about Freedom of Information. We are talking about being open. Yet, on one of the most important motions this Honourable House has ever seen (and hopefully it will be the last one) there is a move to move into secrecy.

The Members of the Opposition must practise what they preach. It is not good enough to come here day after day and talk about transparency and accountability and then, on one of the most important motions in the country go totally against what has been preached. This may have been different if the Constitution had provided for a ballot system but it does not. That is why there are two different sections in the constitution. We have heard the calls for freedom of information, yet just a week after that motion was passed we now find that on one of the major decisions of this House, . . . the public will not have freedom of information in relation to this. It will be secret according to this motion.

Section 35 of the Cayman Islands Constitution provides as follows: “(1) Save as otherwise provided in this Constitution, all questions proposed for decision in the Assembly shall be determined by a majority of votes of the members present and voting.” What could be clearer, Mr. Speaker? It is important to note that the Standing Orders of the Legislative Assembly shall not take...

Mr. Linford Pierson: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order.

The Speaker: Let me hear your point of order.

POINT OF ORDER

(Misleading)

Mr. Linford Pierson: Mr. Speaker, the Honourable Minister has just read from section 35 (1) of the Constitution which does not speak to the type of voting. It does not say whether it is a voice vote or whether it is a ballot. So, for the Honourable Minister to stand there and give the impression that this is speaking about a voice vote is misleading the House.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon Truman M Bodden: That is the Third Elected Member's (for George Town) opinion. I have a right to my opinion in this House, Mr. Speaker. I submit that what that means is what this House has always done since the Constitution came in 1972. Votes are counted, a division is made and Members—

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order, sir. If a Member gets up and asks for a point of order, is it usual procedure that the other Member is allowed to debate that before you make a ruling sir?

The Speaker: The point of order is that it is subject to interpretation, the majority of votes can be either way so both Members are right. So there is really no way that I can rule one or the other out of order. It is a matter of interpretation. I was present when this Constitution was amended but I was not the draftsman for the Constitution. It actually says “a majority of votes.” It could be secret or voice.

Mr. Linford Pierson: But Mr. Speaker, would it not be respectful, when a Member raises a point of order, for you to at least make your comments on that rather than totally ignoring that Member and telling the Minister to continue? It is disrespectful to that Member.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon Truman M Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The section very clearly states, . . . and I think we have to look here at the practice and procedure of this House, what it has been for the past thirty, forty, fifty years. I have only been around here since 1976, but during those 22 years (and prior to that probably for four years after I came out of Law School) I do not know of any time in the History of this Parliament when a vote has been taken in secret. The procedure for balloting is a procedure that is provided when there are multiple choices for the five seats in this Honourable House and it is very clear that there is a very distinct difference between an election which, under the Elections Law or the Constitution, is one which has in the Standing Orders been provided for by secret ballot. There is nothing unusual about that.

The unusual thing now is that what has been done in the past in this Parliament and, Mr. Speaker, I will show as I go on in the Parliament of the United Kingdom, is that votes are taken in the open House of the Legislative Assembly. And those votes are always by voice. And afterwards if there is a division, then the votes of each specific Member can then be dealt with in the division and the names of Members are then called.

I would just like to read what I understand to be the position, I would like to read Standing Order 43 which this motion is seeking to suspend because this is what has always happened in this Honourable House and this is a procedural matter. If it is done to suit the Backbench on a vote relating to the removal of a Member, then the suspension, once the precedent is set, would be done in relation to other matters and therein lies the danger of this precedent.

The voting is set out in Standing Orders 42 and 43 which read: “Save as otherwise provided in the Constitution” this is very important because the Constitution overrides these Standing Orders. “(1) Save as otherwise provided in the Constitution or in these Standing Orders all questions proposed for decision in the House or in any Committee shall be decided by a majority of votes of those present and voting. (2) The Presiding Officer shall not vote unless, on any question, the votes are equally divided, in which case he shall have and exercise a casting vote.”

There are methods of voting which is now what is going to be destroyed and abolished and waived for the purposes of this motion. Standing Order 43 (1) states: “At the conclusion of a debate upon any question, the Presiding Officer shall put the question for the decision of the House, and shall collect the voices of the ayes and the noes after which no further debate may take place thereon. (2) the result shall be declared by the Presiding Officer stating ‘I think the ayes have it’ or ‘I think the noes have it’ as the case may be, but any Member may challenge the opinion of the Chair by claiming a division. (3) A division shall be taken by the Clerk calling each Member’s name and recording the votes given. The Clerk shall then announce the number of those who have voted for and against the proposal and the Presiding Officer shall declare the result of the division.” A fully democratic process, Mr. Speaker. This is a democratic society and that sets out a democratic process which is followed in all democracies of the world.

To shut down the vote, one only sees in areas which unfortunately or fortunately has now come out of the communist era. This right for transparency and accountability is a democratic right. Sub-section (4) goes on to state “Every member present shall express his vote either for the ayes or the noes or state his wish to abstain. The Clerk shall enter in the minutes of proceedings the record of each Member’s vote and shall add a statement of the names of the Members who abstained.” So a record is kept of how each Member votes on a specific matter. That is what we call a ‘Division’. That is a purely democratic process. Sub-section (5) states: “If a Member states that he voted in error or that his vote has been counted wrongly, he may claim to have his vote altered, provided that such claim is made as soon as the Clerk has announced the numbers and before the Chair has declared the results of the division. Upon such claim being made the Presiding officer, at his sole discretion, shall either direct the Clerk to alter that Member’s vote or direct that a fresh division be held.”

The Speaker: Would this be a convenient time to take the luncheon break?

Hon Truman Boddén: Yes, sir.

The Speaker: We shall suspend until 2:15 PM.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.50 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.43 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning, continuing.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Mr. Speaker, the Fourth Elected Member for George Town referred to a quote that he took from the Select Committee of Elected Members to review the Cayman Islands (Constitution) Order 1972, which dealt with a vote of no confidence and pointed out a statement that I made. The vote of no confidence here was being discussed in the committee because a majority of Members felt that there should be a Chief Minister system, and under the Chief Minister’s system—

Mr. Roy Boddén: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order, sir.

POINT OF ORDER (Relevance)

The Speaker: Let me hear your point of order, and what Standing Order are you rising on?

Mr. Roy Boddén: Mr. Speaker, relevance, sir. The Honourable Minister is carrying the debate into irrelevancies which are entirely unnecessary and which will only serve to confuse. And it is not connected with this motion, because this motion calls for nothing about Chief Ministership nor Constitution, sir.

The Speaker: I understand what you are saying, but the issue was raised by the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order.

POINT OF ORDER
(Relevance)

The Speaker: What section of the Standing Orders are you rising on?

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Relevance.

The Speaker: Please go ahead.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, the Fourth Elected Member for George Town did not raise that in his debate and when the Minister of Education tried to raise it earlier when he was speaking on the matter of procedure, replying to what the Fourth Elected Member had said on a matter of procedure you ruled him out of order as you ruled me out of order. Now to allow him to come back to bring it into a completely different debate has to be irrelevant. Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: I am listening to what everyone is saying. Honourable Minister, would you go on to another subject, because we are really getting nowhere fast.

Hon. Truman Boddin: Sure. As you rule, Mr. Speaker.

This procedural motion is going to do something that is very clearly not done, I do not believe, in other parliaments within the Commonwealth, and definitely not in the United Kingdom. Mr. Speaker, in May's, at page 262, it says: "During the War of 1939-1945, following the precedents of the years 1916-1918, whenever it seemed that matters of value to the enemy might be revealed in debate in either House, motions were made for the House concerned to go into secret session, either to discuss a particular named subject, or for the remainder of the sitting, without any reason being specified. It was also a frequent practice to devote part of a sitting only to secret matters, and then resume to public sitting."

Mr. Speaker, this is going to mean a secret vote and therefore, it goes on to say, "On 19 December 1945, it was resolved that no proceedings during the last Parliament held in secret session would be any longer secret." So, Mr. Speaker, what I am saying—and this is the only precedent I could find—obviously the debate and the voting was done in secret, and there is no reason from what I can see, in peacetime in a democratic country in which we have always followed the principle of democracy. The Standing Orders of the House support that democracy by saying that votes shall be taken in the open House.

This move now, in my view—and by all means no one has challenged this—is going to be the first time in this House that where a decision relating to a matter which the Constitution states shall be by a motion, will be taken through a secret ballot. The whole concept of the suspending of Standing Order 43 that has been the practice and precedent of the Legislature here over the last 30 or 40 or whatever number of years we have had a Legislature, must come to the people of this country as a shock. When the members moving this motion are the members who are preaching transparency, openness, to do things in public, give the public information, and yet before the ink has even dried on the motion that will provide the select committee to deal with the giving of information—freedom of information—that freedom is now being deprived from the public.

Motions as important as this motion—because it obviously is a most important motion—to be removed from the ambit of the public cannot speak well for this country. And the ramifications of a secret vote in this public Chamber for the first time must surely send the wrong message to the international community and the business community—

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order.

The Speaker: Let me hear your point of order.

POINT OF ORDER
(Repetition)

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, repetition. Since the Minister began speaking—I paid careful attention to what he has said—he has not said one thing newer than what he said before lunch. Everything he has said—from the 1945 and the 1914 wars, the UK situation—is the same. It has to be repetition!

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, would you please move on and let us get through with this.

Hon. Truman Boddin: Yes, Mr. Speaker, I am getting just about to the end, in fact.

The Speaker: We will be taking a voice vote prior to a secret vote. A voice vote will be taken by the same Honourable Members that will be taken in the secret vote.

Hon. Truman Boddin: Mr. Speaker, perhaps you could clarify that. This is calling for a ballot to be taken. So what would the vote be taken on?

The Speaker: This vote on the suspension will be a voice vote.

Hon. Truman Boddin: Oh, yes, yes. I thought you were referring to the substantive motion about which this deals. I understand—I mean this is a procedural matter. Oh yes.

The Speaker: This is a procedural matter. The same Members who will vote on the revocation under the Constitution, will take part in this vote as well, but it will be by voice.

Hon. Truman Bodden: Oh, sure! Yes, this is a procedural matter, and I realise that to get to the secret part there has to be an open vote before the secrecy can envelop us and the darkness comes to this Chamber.

In conclusion—and by the way, I did not read from May's about the UK Parliament not having secret sessions since World War II before. I only read that once for the record, sir. The motion also takes away the freedom, or fundamental right, that has existed in this House to have the voting on motions taken in public. That, up until this time, has been a fundamental right and one which has been cherished to such an extent that within another procedural area it became public: Finance Committee no longer had its debates or proceedings in secret.

So I look at this as a backward step in democracy. I look at the vote that this is trying to achieve—the secret vote—as one which, in my view, is going to damage this country and I will have nothing at all to do with it. My view clearly is that this House has been public throughout the full time. Votes and divisions taken on votes have always been in public and I believe that to preserve democracy and to preserve the proceedings in the Chamber at the high level they should be preserved, I would prefer to see this vote taken as every other important vote, in public and democratically. Thank you, Sir.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, I would like to thank you for giving us the right to speak on this motion. This motion does not go against practice, as the Minister of Education said. It does not go against practice on other motions. This motion is completely different from regular motions. I certainly cannot agree that this has anything to do with transparency. It is completely different from a government document or telling the press something: It is completely different from that. It is, Mr. Speaker, the Constitution—and I will be brief—the Constitution allows for the removal of a member of Executive Council.

The Standing Orders provide for an election. The Constitution also tells us what we must do to revoke that election. As I said, this motion he is referring to is a different from a bill or a motion as we normally know it in the House.

The point I want to make, when he is referring to democracies, . . . Our situation in electing or revoking the election of a member of Executive Council is completely different from what obtains in other countries in the region, the Commonwealth, or the rest of the world. US presidents, presidents all over, prime ministers all over, premiers, chief ministers, dictators all appoint their cabinet ministers. In this Island, we elect our ministers by a ballot. And as I said earlier, if we elect by a ballot, all common sense should say that we revoke that election by ballot. Especially when the Orders do not refer any other way.

I do not think the Minister of Education has a case. I understand that when a lawyer has a bad case, his job is to confuse the jury with irrelevancies; that is what the Minister for Education did all morning. Thank you.

The Speaker: Does any other member wish to speak? Does the Mover wish to exercise his right to reply? The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: I wouldn't want to make the debate unfair by adding any more to the voice we have on this side by way of the First Elected Member for West Bay. I would like to say that we are not asking for a secret session. We are basically asking to suspend the Standing Order in order to protect the votes of those persons who care to vote against or for. I think that we are only asking Members for that. We are not asking Members to vote anything else, but clearly to give people that particular choice. I thank you for your attention.

The Speaker: I shall now put the question to the following Resolve Section on a motion to suspend Standing Order 43.

“BE IT RESOLVED THAT in accordance with Standing Order 86, Standing Order 43 be suspended to allow that at the conclusion of debate on Private Member's Motion No. 7/98, that the vote be taken by ballot.” Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES and NOES.

The Speaker: I think the Ayes have it.
May I have a division?

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: If you know the Ayes have it, why are you calling a division, Mr. Speaker?

The Speaker: I think. I want to make sure. This is a very important motion.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, the Honourable Chair, notwithstanding, if the Speaker announced that he thinks the Ayes have it, and no Honourable Member from the floor asked for a division, might I suggest that it is for the Speaker to go by his original announcement, that the Ayes have it, without invoking a division since the request for a division did not come from the floor?

The Speaker: It is my responsibility to see that what I do is accurate. And I want to make sure.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Mr. Speaker, if I may read from the Hansard of 13 July, 1998, as spoken by you, “The result shall be declared by the Presiding Officer stating ‘I think the ayes have it’ or ‘I think the noes have it’ as the case may be, but any Member [not the Speaker] may challenge the opinion of the Chair by claiming a division.” I beg to differ with that ruling, sir, and I humbly do that, not with frustration or anger.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, if that is the case, I will ask for the division if that is what the Member is asking for.

The Speaker: Madam Clerk, will you call the division at the request of the Hon. Minister for Education?

Clerk:

MOTION TO SUSPEND STANDING ORDER 43 PASSED BY MAJORITY.

The Speaker: It seems early, but if that is the wish of the House, proceedings are suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.07 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 3.26 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Debate continues on Private Member's Motion No. 7/98. Fourth Elected Member for George Town, you had commenced your opening remarks on the motion. Do you wish to continue?

CONTINUATION OF DEBATE ON PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 7/98

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, there has been a lot of criticism about wasting the time of the House. I am happy at this particular point to proceed with what are important dates and events in regard to the issue at hand. I have given to the Serjeant-at-Arms, and each Member of this Legislative Assembly a copy, a summary of the important dates and events of the case I will be dealing with.

I would like to start with the date 1907. On that date and during that year Gilbourne Watson, Wellring Watson, Elis Johnson, purchased a piece of property in Colliers, East End from Lisby Johnson.

In 1935 Wellring Watson gave his portion of the undivided share in the land to his daughter Genevieve Watson.

In 1968 Genevieve Watson gave her portion of the undivided share in the land to Whitmore Syms by way of a Deed of Gift.

In 1977 the Adjudicator registered Whitmore Syms as seven-ninths owner, and Henry Watson (son of Gilbourne Watson) as two-ninths owner, owners in common of the land now called Block 74A Parcel 48.

So the evolution of this title from 1907 to 1977, when the island finally gets an official Land Registry is there. When the land was officially registered in 1977, the land was registered as being owned by two proprietors. Therefore the law in regard to common proprietorship is relevant. I have also added that part of the Registered Land Law, section 101(1) to the summary of dates and events.

The Speaker: May I just interrupt you? Did you mean to table the documents, or just to circulate them to all Members?

Dr. Frank McField: I think I can ask the Serjeant to table it.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Please continue. I apologise for the interruption.

Dr. Frank McField: The next important date after 1977, when the Land Register registered Whitmore Syms and Capt. Henry Watson as joint proprietors of Parcel 48 Block 74A in Colliers, East End, is 1980 when Mr. John McLean was elected to the Executive Council and given responsibility for the Lands Office.

In 1981 Leroy Johnson made a claim to Block 74A Parcel 26. Parcel 26 was the first way in which the land looked back in 1981. In other words, Parcel 26 was composed (at that time) of Parcel 88 and Parcel 89 (which will be a part of the debate, Parcel 89). So when Mr. Johnson first claimed the land, he claimed it as Parcel 26. This was in 1981.

In 1994, Block 74A Parcel 26 was divided into Parcel 89 and Parcel 88, and a separate file was made for Block 74A Parcel 89. The title was vested in the Crown for 89, and Parcel 88 was claimed and awarded to Levi, Deavy and Birchie Connolly.

In 1987 (another important date) Mr. Keith Collins, an attorney at law in the Cayman Islands, wrote to the Permanent Secretary, Mr. Gomez, and submitted two affidavits attesting to the fact that Block 74A Parcel 89 was a part of Lisby Johnson's estate. They were signed by Dalton Watler of East End and Earlie Whittaker of East End, both having knowledge of the land for upward of 45 years. The claim was rejected.

On April 14, 1992, Whitmore Syms made an application for Block 74A Parcel 89. He claimed that the adjudicator awarded only a portion of the original land given him in 1968 by Miss Genevieve Watson. This land was given to her, as was said, in 1935 by her father Wellring Watson who bought the land in 1907 along with his brother Gilbourne Watson, and Ellis Johnson, from the Johnson's estate.

Whitmore Syms suggested that the remainder of this land was contained in Parcel 89.

In August 1992, John McLean was made Executor and sole beneficiary of the Estate of Milton Whitmore Syms.

In November 1992 John McLean was elected to Executive Council and given responsibility for the Lands and Survey Department.

In December 1992, Milton Whitmore Syms died. A death certificate was made out and the informant was John McLean who gave evidence to the officer taking the information in regard to the marital status of Mr. Whitmore Syms, and it is listed as his being divorced. This has also been tabled, the death certificate.

On March 30, 1992, Lands and Survey wrote Permanent Secretary, Mr. Gomez, stating that Syms' claim could not be substantiated by way of the three conveyance documents submitted.

September 1993: An inventory of the Estate of Milton Whitmore Syms, deceased, is sworn to by Mr. John McLean and registered in the Grand Court; and Colliers Block 74A Parcel 48 is listed as part of the Estate, but there is no mention of Parcel 89, there is no mention of any claim to 89.

February 1994: John McLean replaces Mr. Syms' name with his own name on the certificate for Block 74A Parcel 48, using PO Box 866 George Town as his address.

May 2, 1994: Four affidavits were sworn to attesting that Whitmore Syms was given land by Mrs. Genevieve Watson and that this land was contained in Block 74A Parcel 89 in Colliers of East End. The affidavits were sworn to by Dalton Watler, Birchie Connolly, Maverick Scott and Levi Connolly. All four affidavits were witnessed by the Permanent Secretary, Mr. Gomez, and all on the same day, the second day of May 1994.

February 1995: The Minister makes submission to Executive Council recommending the grant of all of Block 74A Parcel 89 to himself.

March 1995: The Government awards John McLean absolute title to all of Parcel 89, in spite of the fact that his claim to Parcel 89 was based upon Mr. Whitmore Syms' title to a 7/9th undivided share in Block 74A Parcel 48 with Henry Watson.

John McLean signs to indemnify the Crown against damages cost, claims, and demands as a result of this grant in the presence of Thomas Jefferson, JP. John McLean signs certificate of Identification in the presence of Thomas Jefferson, JP.

On 19 July, 1995, the transfer of Block 74A Parcel 89 to John McLean takes place in the presence of Thomas Jefferson, JP.

On 28 September, 1995 two months later, two requests for grants of land vested in the Crown are brought by the Minister for Lands to Finance Committee and are awarded.

The Registered Land Law (1995 Revision) section 101 (1) reads: "Where any land, lease or charge is owned in common, each proprietor shall be entitled to an undivided share in the whole, and on the death of a proprietor his share shall be administered as part of his estate."

This gives us a summary.

Those of us here in the Legislative Assembly who will have to decide upon the objectivity of the decision that was made, will find the map which is also attached, the Land Registry Certificates, which are also attached, useful in following the debate.

Why are we Backbenchers dealing with this issue? Did not the Caymanian Compass in its May 28, 1998 issue carry an article with the headline "AG's Probe Clears Land Grant by ExCo to Minister"? Justice was not served by the printing of this article. The public should not be led to believe that the concerns of the Members of this Honourable House in regard to the questionable ethics used by the Minister of Agriculture Environment Communication and Works to obtain all shares—all shares—in Block 74A Parcel 89 by way of a Crown Grant as being satisfactorily addressed by the unsatisfactory investigation carried out by the Attorney General who was a party to the decision to grant the land in March of 1995.

I have never questioned the correctness of Executive Council's procedures in regard to the grant of 74A Parcel 89, but I do reserve a right to view with suspicion the statement by the Attorney General that claims, and I quote from the press, "Having established that Lands and Survey Department were satisfied as to the adequacy of the evidence supplied, Executive Council then approved the application for a Crown Grant. A transfer of the land to you [Mr. McLean] was then subsequently executed by His Excellency Mr. M. E. Gore on 19 July, 1995."

First of all, please note that the word "adequacy" does not mean factual, but, rather, sufficient for the Government's particular purpose. No one has said yet that the evidence presented was factual. Is this Parliament listening? Is the Government awake? The people are!

What was the evidence that was presented to prove ownership of Block 74A Parcel 89 by Mr. Whitmore Syms? In a memo dated March 25, 1993 addressed to the Permanent Secretary, the Lands Office said: "The evidence produced to substantiate this claim falls far short of what would be necessary to make a recommendation for a Crown Grant. The extent of the land which is the subject of conveyance is completely vague, being cliff on all boundaries except the western one. This letter makes mention that three conveyances had been supplied. As I mentioned before the 1909 Indenture listing Gilbourne Watson, Wellring Watson and Ellis Johnson as the owners of this Parcel of land. The three documents are consistent in defining the boundary on the west of that Parcel of land as lands of Sparks Tatum."

The position of the Lands and Survey Department up until this point seems in keeping with the earlier decision-making conditions. What took place to cause the Lands Office to change its position in regard to recommending this grant to Executive Council? In an effort to establish the truth, let me say that it is my understanding that four affidavits were sworn to later in 1994: one by Dalton Watler and one by Birchie, as mentioned before in my summary. And these affidavits, as I mentioned, were all dated 2 May 1994. I understand from the Permanent Secretary who did the honours while on a district visit to East End, . . . This is what he told me.

I question the wisdom of a Minister who has a beneficial interest in an application being made to Executive Council by way of his public office would allow his Permanent Secretary to become involved in the matter as a witness to the truth of statements or to verify the signature, or signatures of the persons that he should later perhaps scrutinise.

The fact that the Permanent Secretary for Lands witnessed these affidavits while on, what he has said, was an official government district visit to East End makes his involvement seem partial and places the desired objectivity demanded of holders of public office in an unethical light.

I have no control over the Civil Service, but the Minister is answerable to this Parliament. It is my belief that he has breached a code that we use as a light in our quest to seek justice, especially in view of the fact that Mr. Johnson, when he submitted his affidavits attesting to the fact that he had good claim to Parcel 89, did not have the services of a Permanent Secretary.

Mr. Johnson's affidavits were not accepted as sufficient proof of ownership, thereby leaving the question in our minds as to the influence which the appearance of the Permanent Secretary's signature may have had on the final decision of the Executive Council to accept these affidavits collected by the Minister while on a district tour as conclusive evidence of the ownership of Block 74A Parcel 89 by Mr. Syms, deceased.

Evidence given by Mr. Dalton Watler and witnessed by the Permanent Secretary on that fateful tour on May 2, 1994, does not conflict, however, with evidence given on behalf of Mr. Leroy Johnson's claim of the same Parcel on 8 April, 1987. It is my contention that there is nothing in any of these affidavits that may be regarded as proof that Mr. Syms owned Parcel 89, but much to suggest that he owned Parcel 48.

In a letter to the Permanent Secretary dated November 3, 1987, Keith Collins wrote on behalf of Mr. Johnson mentioning Mr. Dalton Watler as having signed an affidavit on behalf of Mr. Johnson's claim. To dispel any doubt, let me read the letter and affidavits into the minutes.

"November 3, 1987; The Principal Secretary; Office of the Principal Secretary; Department of Agriculture & Natural Resources; Grand Cayman

"Dear Sir:

"RE: Mr. Leroy Johnson - Application for Rectification of the Register Colliers 74A 26
Your letter of July 28, 1981

"This is to inform you with regard to the above-mentioned matter, that the first concrete map of the area became available only after the cadastral survey which began in 1971. Previous conveyances were not reflected on any chart and land was conveyed on the basis of what people knew.

"At the time of the cadastral survey Mr. Johnson having recently come to the Cayman Islands from Belize was in the process of tracing out the boundaries of the property and erring claimed 25 acres only. This was at the time of the cadastral survey. On completion of the tracing of the boundaries it was discovered that the land encompassed what is now listed as Parcel 89 of Colliers Block 74A.

"Enclosed are Affidavits from Mr. Johnson and the proprietors of the adjoining property at 74A51 on the west and from Earlie Whittaker a purchaser from the Johnson's estate on the east Parcel 86.

"I trust you will find these in order complete and instructive.

"Yours faithfully, [signed] Keith Collins."

The affidavit by Mr. Dalton Watler, being duly sworn, having made oath reads as follows:

"My name is Dalton Watler, I was born in East End, Grand Cayman, Cayman Islands, BWI, on the 8th day of April, 1921. My father's name is William James Watler, that I am now the registered proprietor of lands situated in East End registered 74A, 51; that I have known this Parcel of land for upwards [of] 50 years; that when I first knew the land it was in the possession of William James Watler, my father, that for upwards [of] 50 years aforementioned I have known the boundaries of the said land. I know that this land is bounded on the east by lands known as Jonathan Hole which have belonged to the estate of Lisby Johnson, deceased; that I have perused the Registry index map attached hereto of the Registration Section Colliers Block 74A and I can confirm that Parcel 89 has at all times belonged to the estate of Lisby Johnson deceased; that I have seen a certified copy of the Register in connection with Registration Section Colliers Block 74A Parcel 89 and the land registered in the name of the Crown is the land in question which to my knowledge was part of Jonathan Hole and belonged to the estate of Lisby Johnson deceased, and butts and abounds by property on the east; that the land of the aforementioned was originally several hundred acres but that certain lots were sold to various people over the years from the estate of Lisby Johnson deceased including Calbert, Levi and Devy (sic) Conolly, all of East End. That my land 74A 51 East End Registration Section Colliers, Block 74A 51 is bounded on the east by land in the possession of Lisby Johnson's estate and on the south by lands of Beltram Connor and on the west by land in the possession of [and there is nothing there]. In witness whereof I have hereto set my hand this 8th day of July, in the year of our Lord, One Thousand Nine Hundred and Eighty-seven."

That was what went to the Permanent Secretary who later witnessed on 2 May, 1994, an affidavit sworn to by the same gentleman. This affidavit was witnessed by Percival Jackson, JP. Thus the Permanent Secretary had prior knowledge that Mr. Dalton Watler had signed for Johnson's claim to the Parcel and could in no way state that Mr. Syms owned Parcel 89.

It is therefore reasonable to assume unless the opposite is proven that Mr. Dalton's statement supports a claim by Mr. Syms to a portion of land in this area, but certainly not that portion defined as Parcel 89. If the portfolio had scrutinised the affidavits collected by the Minister and witnessed by his permanent secretary on their official district visit it would have been discovered that these affidavits could in no way be construed as adequate evidence to be presented to Executive Council. The Permanent Secretary said to me that he only witnessed the signatures but not the truthfulness of the sworn statements, thus leading us to think that these affidavits went to Executive Council without ever being seen or verified by the Lands and Survey Department.

Therefore for the Attorney General to have provided an opinion to the public stating that Executive Council had been satisfied as to the adequacy of the evidence supplied and for the Minister to have used that conclusion to sell the public the idea that his name was cleared begs serious questions. Why did these unverified affidavits make their way to Executive Council? Who recommended these unsubstantiated pieces of evidence to Executive Council? My opinion is that this evidence was never recommended to Executive Council by the Lands and Survey Department, but by the Minister himself.

Section 9(2) of our Constitution states: "It shall be the duty of a Member so charged [meaning charged with business of government] with responsibility to act in the exercise thereof in accordance with the policies of the Government as decided in the Council and in accordance with the principles of collective responsibility and to support in the Legisla- tive Assembly any measure decided upon in the Council, unless he has received the prior permission of the Governor to act otherwise or not to support such a measure."

Based on what I have just said, I must ask myself, What thoughts are we supposed to entertain in regard to this press release by the Minister? Not a press release by the Governor, nor by the Attorney General, nor the Elected Members of Executive Council, but by the Minister whose political and management ethics are not that of Executive Council, not that of Government, not that of the Governor, is being challenged.

The Honourable Attorney General says that in the case of Block 74A Parcel 89 the cadastral failed to delineate the boundaries which indicates that no survey was completed. The Attorney General therefore recommends that a survey should now be carried out in respect of the land in compliance with Royal Instructions 12(1). Why did the Attorney General, who is Government's legal advisor, not the private advisor to the Minister in regard to his personal affairs, not advise the Governor in Council on March 22, 1995 of the need for such a survey, inasmuch as it is so apparent to him now that it was a necessary pre-condition for the grant?

The legal competence of the Attorney General is of course placed at a disadvantage by this attempt to place Executive Council action within that legal and constitutional framework that is reserved for the Governor acting in his sole discretion as Her Majesty's Representative. This call might have been motivated by an attempt to equal a call by the Third Elected Member for George Town to have the land surveyed.

Most telling of the position of the Attorney General and the Governor who ordered the unsatisfactory investigation is contained in a letter dated 27 February, 1998 addressed to Mr. Leroy Johnson who had claimed the land for over 18 years. The Attorney General states: "Dear Mr. Johnson: His Excellency the Governor has passed to me a copy of your letter dated 5 February and asked to respond on his behalf. The various allegations made in your letter have been investigated by the RCIP as you are aware. I also understand that over the years you have made various representations to the Registrar of Lands claiming title, but that these claims have not been accepted. You have already instructed attorneys to represent you in this matter, and the correct forum for settling this dispute over title to the land would be through the Cayman Islands Courts by way of a civil claim."

It is true that this dispute would be relevant only in court if the Executor and sole beneficiary of the estate claiming Block 74A Parcel 89 was not the Minister responsible for Lands; if the Estate which he represents had made the only claim for this Parcel of land. But the history of Mr. Johnson's claim is important to this Parliament, even if it is not important to the Attorney General for the reason that the Minister was also responsible for Lands and Survey when Mr. Johnson first filed his claim to Parcel 89 in 1981.

It is important that the Minister demonstrate that he did all in his power to be objective, since at the time when Mr. Johnson's claim was first registered the Minister may have had personal knowledge of Mr. Syms' desire to claim the said Parcel of land. In the application signed by Mr. Syms on April 14 1992 he mentions that he had made a claim for Block 74A Parcel 89 in earlier years.

The question as to the Minister's objectivity in dealing with these claims concerns me because the first and only proof of a claim being made by Mr. Whitmore Syms is dated April 14, 1992: Yet the first claim by Mr. Johnson is dated 28 January, 1981. Let me now deal briefly with the history of this claim as it is recorded, and some of the replies from the Portfolio responsible for lands.

The reply of 28 July, 1981 requested by Mr. Johnson is in the name of the Permanent Secretary at the time, who was also the PS at the time the grant was made to the Minister as Executor of Syms' estate in March 1995. The reply states:

"I am directed to inform you of Government's decision to refuse your application for rectification of the register for the above Parcel. [Colliers 74A26]

"The reason for refusal is that conclusive documentary evidence of title was not produced to warrant rectification. In my opinion, I should think that the interpretation of 'conclusive documentary evidence' would be that documentation showing direct ownership of the approximately 330 acres would have to be produced. This documentation would assumably be in the form of a conveyance."

Parliament demands that the Minister now show that his personal interest did not conflict with his public duties; that he did not, in a document to Executive Council on 14 February, 1995 (Valentines Day), recommend that the Governor be advised by Ministers and Members of Executive Council to make a Crown Grant for some 200 acres of land located in Colliers, East End, known as Block 74A Parcel 89 to his name.

What will probably be important is that at some particular point the Minister for Education will say that Leroy Johnson's claim had been dealt with by the Lands Office by three consecutive governments and also the Attorney General had given his legal opinion in regard to that particular claim, and, therefore, Parcel 89 could not belong to the Johnsons. It is not my attempt to prove that the Johnsons own this land. It is my attempt to prove that if Mr. Whitmore Syms had claims to Parcel 89 he could only have had claims to 7/9ths of Parcel 89. I have included in my documentary submission the letter with the deed of gift from Miss Genevieve Watson, which I will read in a minute.

It is important, when we ask the question, Did the Johnsons have a claim? And if they did not, does it mean that we should not be discussing this issue? It is not true that we should not be discussing this issue even if the Johnsons did not have a claim. But let me say that I have already found out that there was a mistake made by the Lands and Survey Office in awarding title to the Connolly brothers, Levi and Calbert, in that they claimed that their land (that they had bought in 1958) only around 1984. As a result of the fact that Leroy Johnson had already started to enquire as to where the land was that his Grandfather owned, he was given 25 acres by the Lands Office. This 25 acres was in the area that should have been given to the Connollys. So the Connollys should never have been located in Jonathan Hole, the Connolly's land should have been on Sandy Bluff.

Because Mellis Johnson did not know well enough, he said that the land was next to Helen McCoy's in Sandy Bluff, known as Jonathan Hole, when anyone questioned knows that Jonathan Hole and Sandy Bluff are in two different areas. A mistake was made and there was no attempt to correct this mistake. As a result of that when the Connollys were given their particular piece of land which looks more like about 20-something acres in that area when you look at the map and you look at Parcel 88, they don't claim any more because they knew that if they had bought all of that land known as Jonathan Hole they would have had 89 as well.

So, 89 was left there. And the Lands Office, the Ministry in dealing with these claims over the years rejected Leroy Johnson's claim because part of the claim was that they had sold all of the land. This, he gets from the indenture between Calbert and Deavy and the other Connolly which is done in 1958. So we go back to the 1958 Indenture we will see that there is a mistake in saying that Sandy Bluff is Jonathan Hole, because they are different.

I am not here to argue as if this is a court of law, but just to show that there perhaps needs to be a little bit more investigation into the claim made by the Johnsons. The important thing is to realise that the 1907 purchase of land came from the Johnsons thereby testifying to the fact that even if the Watsons were to have this land the root title had to relate back to the Johnsons.

The Lands Office argued on several occasions that the Johnsons could not prove root title to any land in that area, yet in order for Mr. McLean to claim this land as Executor of Mr. Whitmore Syms' estate, he would have to go back and claim that the Johnsons had root title in 1907. So proof of any kind of ownership has to go back to the Johnson's title in 1907.

I am not making the argument that they owned the land, I am just setting up a situation to show that even if the Lands Office, in partitioning the land in that area, partitioned too small a portion of land when they designed 48; if the claim is based upon 48, that meant that not only Mr. Whitmore Syms got too small a portion of land, but also that Capt. Henry Watson got too small of a portion of land.

The Minister is being requested to prove that the application made by Mr. Whitmore Syms on April 14, 1992 did not say that. The adjudicators only awarded title to a portion of the Parcel, namely 74A 48. The basis for the claim is the claim by Mr. Whitmore Syms, not the claim by the Minister. So we have to go back to the original claim letter by Mr. Whitmore Syms. Mr. Syms clearly states that he was only awarded a portion—a part of what he should have had—and mainly that this portion was titled 74A 48.

This claim was rooted in a 7/9th entitlement to a portion of land as a result of a 1968 deed of gift from Genevieve Watson dated November 12, 1968. I will now read from the letter mentioning the 1968 deed of gift. [Letter dated 24 February, 1968]

“Capt. Henry Watson
“113/4 Albert Street, Franklin Town “Kingston, 16, Jamaica

“Dear Br. Watson:

“Your cousin, Genevieve Watson has shown me an original Deed of Gift from Wellring Watson giving to her, among other things, the 7/9 of a piece of land in the interior of Colliers butting and binding as follows:

“North: South, East by cliff and on the West by Sparks Tatum.

“Miss Genevieve who is well known to me wants to convey her 7/9 portion of this land to Mr. Whitmore Syms. She tells me that the remaining portion of the land—2/9th is yours, given to you by your father.

“Before I can make the conveyance document, however, I would like to know whether you have any objections. I understand that the portion of land has not been surveyed. Please let me hear from you. [Signed] E. O. Panton.”

This letter can be found in the Parcel for 74A 48. It was the basis upon which provisional title was given to Mr. Whitmore Syms in 1977. It was the basis for him getting the title. Therefore I believe it is the relevant document.

The Minister responsible to Parliament for Lands must answer if he wrote to Council on 14 February 1995 saying that Parcel 48 to the north was claimed and awarded to Capt. Henry Watson as a share of the same Parcel. The remainder of the land, he said—or did he say—was contained in Parcel 89. He did not then advise that Ministers and Members of Executive Council should advise His Excellency to make the grant to himself as applicant. Did the Hon. Minister on the third of the second 1994 replace Mr. Whitmore Syms' name with his name as owner of 7/9 of the shares of Parcel 48, giving, as I stated before, PO Box 866 George Town, Grand Cayman as his address? Did the Minister and his Permanent Secretary not know that Mr. Whitmore Syms' claim as outlined in the claim letter 14 April, 1992 was based upon his 7/9 share?

The Registered Lands Law (1995 Revision) page 46 section 99(1) speaks of the registration of more than one proprietor. Section 101(1) deals with the characteristics of proprietorship in common. The law states, and I said this before, but I would like to repeat: “Where any land, lease or charge is owned in common, each proprietor shall be entitled to an undivided share in the whole, and on the death of a proprietor his share shall be administered as part of his estate. (2) No proprietor in common shall deal with his undivided share in favour of any person other than another proprietor in common of the same land except with the consent in writing of the remaining proprietor or proprietors of the land, but such consent shall not be unreasonably withheld.”

Now we see why Miss Genevieve Watson wrote Capt. Henry Watson to inform him of her desire to deal with another proprietor in regard to her 7/9 share.

On March 25, 1993, a letter from the Lands and Survey Department, as I said before, dealt with the lack of conclusive evidence on the part of Mr. Syms to claim Parcel 89.

So, if we, and this is a very important point, if we look at the fact that in the application for the Crown Grant—the one made by Mr. Syms on 14 April 1992—Mr. Syms says that the adjudicators only awarded title to a portion of the Parcel, namely 74A, and if the Minister did say in his recommendation that Capt. Henry Watson had claimed Parcel 48 as his share of the portion of land and that the remainder was contained in Parcel 89 it would mean he was suggesting that Mr. Whitmore Syms did not get a share of Parcel 48. Therefore, if he did not get a part of Parcel 48, if Parcel 48 went as part of Capt. Henry Watson's share, then Parcel 89 should now go as Mr. Whitmore Syms' share, if he was leading Council to believe that. It is a question of whether or not that is the case and of course we will deal with these assumptions I am making, which are basically assumptions because I am trying to establish the logic of why Council would have awarded this land.

The application that Mr. Whitmore Syms made would be understood as an application to change the whole. How can there be a change in the whole if all the parts are not affected? If there was a change to the whole the parts would be affected. The two parts are the two proprietors— Capt. Henry Watson, Mr. Whitmore Syms—bound by law.

I do not attempt to suggest that Mr. McLean as Executor of Mr. Whitmore Syms' estate was not granted title to Block 74A Parcel 89 by Executive Council; nor do I say that Mr. McLean as Executor of Mr. Syms' estate did not gain legal possession to Block 74A Parcel 89. However, the country needs to know why, after such flimsy evidence was accepted and a grant made, it did not affect both proprietors of 74A Parcel 89 upon which the claim was based.

If the claim was based upon Parcel 48 and two persons owned Parcel 48, then the claim can only be awarded based upon the claim. It is important that we understand that all of a sudden the Governor did not just get up in his discretion as Governor and give a piece of the Queen's land to somebody.

An application for this land had to be made. That application was made because it was being suggested that when the adjudicators adjudicated the land they did not adjudicate the correct amount of land. But because two persons owned the land it would be impossible for one party to be awarded and the other not.

If Mr. Syms had been short-changed in 1977, then Mr. Henry Watson was also short-changed. If the Government was desirous of rectifying the situation for one proprietor, it would have been ethical to act in a manner to affect both proprietors. Mr. Syms' and Mr. Watson's interests have never been petitioned and are therefore bound together by law and ethics.

I will try to use an example. If I own a dollar with the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay, and we go to shop with the dollar, he has a share and I have a share in that dollar, but we have never divided the dollar. We take it as a whole to the shopkeeper. The shopkeeper gives us the wrong change. Both of us have been short-changed. So if I go back to the shopkeeper and ask that he now give us the correct change, . . . it's not 'give me.' I can do that, but I have to realise that legally and ethically I am obligated to deal with the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay by making sure that he is included in this correction. That is a good example to show that in this particular situation—because the claim was based upon a common proprietorship—that it should in fact have been awarded in this way.

Now, on page 64 of the Hansard report of the Finance Committee meeting held 28 September 1995—two months after Mr. McLean was granted Block 74A Parcel 89—the Honourable Financial Secretary, Chairman of the Committee stated, “Based upon the findings of the Lands and Survey Department the matter, not this matter, another matter, was referred to Executive Council. ExCo advised that the matter should be referred to Finance Committee for a decision as to whether the claim by Ritch and Connolly on behalf of the beneficiary of the Estate of Aamon Ebanks should be allowed. Mr. McLean, would you add anything before the question is put?”

The Honourable John McLean said, “I can hardly say anything more than that the matter has been researched, as you pointed out, it is my understanding that other landowners in the vicinity who placed their claims earlier received their property. Apparently it was just a matter of fact that there were some problems with the individuals not submitting their claims earlier. As a matter of fact, on the other agenda we have another one which we could perhaps take at the same time, another request by somebody else from the same law firm.”

The Chairman said, “Yes, I was going to suggest that.”

Then, Mr. Tibbetts asked a question. He asked, “Would you explain why this is coming to Finance Committee meeting?” The Chairman asked Mr. McLean to explain.

Mr. McLean said, “As far as I know this is not the first time this has happened. I think we referred one here at the last Committee meeting.”

Why then was this case not presented to Finance Committee, Mr. Speaker? The case in regard to Mr. Syms' grant that involved the Minister. Why were the affidavits submitted to Council as proof of Syms' ownership to Parcels 48 and 49 witnessed by Mr. McLean's Permanent Secretary? Why were two more important legal documents signed in the presence of the Hon. Minister for Tourism who dealt with the matter in Executive Council? Why, given a choice, did the Executive Council not send the claim of the beneficiary of the estate of Whitmore Syms to Finance Committee as they did with the others?

Wouldn't transparency—which the Leader of Government Business has now taken up the call to support—have been more possible in Finance Committee than behind the closed and secretive doors of Executive Council? The Minister's actions fall far short of the actions the House is entitled to expect from its Ministers. The Minister has had more than sufficient time to have corrected this mistake, but has not done so, claiming instead that the concerns of certain Members of this House, with his objectivity, are incorrectly motivated.

This is a very serious situation, especially when it is noted that section 93(1) and (2) of the Penal Code Law, Law 12 of 1975 (1995 Revision) reads: “(1) Whoever, being employed in the public service does or directs to be done, in abuse of the authority of his office, any arbitrary act prejudicial to the rights of another is guilty of an offence and liable to imprisonment for two years.

“(2) If the act is done or directed to be done for the purpose of gain such person is guilty of an offence and liable to imprisonment for three years.”

The people want to know that the rule of law, and not the rule of an individual is what is safeguarded. The people of the Cayman Islands must be shown that there exists one standard of judgment for all regardless of wealth, privilege or office. Justice must not [only] be done; it must be seen by the people to be done.

This motion is not a motion to censure the government, but to ask for the removal from the Executive Council of this Minister who is the sole beneficiary of the grant of Block 74A Parcel 89 on March 22, 1995 by the Government. Although all Members of Executive Council were collectively responsible for this act, they were not all conscious of being misled by the Minister responsible for bringing this matter before them. I therefore ask that they take this opportunity to call on the Honourable—

POINT OF ORDER

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I am taking a point of order.

The Speaker: May I hear your point of order?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The Member is alleging that the Minister misled and he is supplying no proof. He is just making a wide allegation that the Minister misled. Surely it cannot be right for Members to stay in the House and make allegations not supported by anything.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town, can you support your allegations?

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, based upon the information, I am saying that he misguided, or, in my opinion, he misguided the Executive Council. We will get to the tabling of that information later on.

The Speaker: That is a point of order, then, if you do not have the allegations.

The Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Mr. Speaker, I have been very tolerant. But let me say that I have never tried to mislead Executive Council. When the matter came up here I declared my interest. I had nothing to do with it. And for this Member—

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, does the Minister speaking have a point of order, sir?

The Speaker: Are you elucidating an issue, or what is it—

Hon. John B. McLean: That is correct, sir.

The Speaker: Please go ahead.

Hon. John B. McLean: And I would appreciate if that Member would withdraw his statement because I have never, ever tried to mislead Executive Council.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, the Honourable Minister is in a position to prove that my opinion is not correct by laying on the Table of this Honourable House that document which he used to make a recommendation to Executive Council.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: But Mr. Speaker—

The Speaker: You are getting very deep into this. Let us. . . I can't rule on the point of order if you are continuously going. The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: It is not for the Minister to prove anything. The Fourth Elected Member for George Town has made a statement casting aspersions on this Minister's character. It is up to him to withdraw it and apologise if he has no proof. You cannot make allegations that damage a person, a Member of this House, just like that.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you.

The motion before the House is a Censure or Revocation Motion and the Member is giving his views on that. I think it is well advised that all of us in this House who have to make the decision hear the views. He is making his views. It would seem that the person being accused would have his chance to reply to those accusations based on the facts.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I took this point of order and it is very clear in May's 21st Edition at page 381. It says, "Reference in debate to either House of Parliament must be courteous, and abusive language, and imputations of falsehood, uttered by Members of the House of Commons against Members of the House of Lords have usually been met with the immediate intervention of the Chair."

Then it goes on to state unparliamentary expressions calling for prompt interference which include "the imputation of false or unavowed motives. The misrepresentation of the language of another and the accusation of misrepresentation. Charges of uttering a deliberate falsehood. Abusive and insulting language of a nature likely to create disorder. . ." and it goes on.

There can be no doubt that allegations cannot be made against Members unless they are substantiated.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: I understand what the Minister is saying. That would be correct in a general debate. But this is not a general debate. This is a debate on the conduct and the actions of the Minister.

He would have to disprove that by saying, 'Here is the evidence that I did not do such and such a thing.' That is why there is this debate, because he will have his chance. I am not saying what the position is either for or against, but the fact is that this is not a general debate. This is a debate against the actions of his conduct and political actions. That is what I read in the motion.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: If I have to come to the point where I have to withdraw that, I certainly have no problem with that. But I would just like to bring Erskine May's, 22nd Edition, and it reads, Ministerial Responsibility in Parliament, page 63.

“Following a recommendation of the Public Service Committee of the Commons, both Houses came to resolutions to the following effect—That, in the opinion of this House, the following principles should govern the conduct of ministers of the Crown in relation to the Parliament: ministers have a duty to Parliament to account, and be held to account, for the policies, decisions and actions of their departments and Next Step Agencies; it is of paramount importance that Ministers give accurate and truthful information to Parliament, correcting any inadvertent error at the earliest opportunity. Ministers who knowingly mislead Parliament will be expected to offer their resignation to the Prime Minister; ministers should be as open as possible with Parliament, refusing to provide information only when disclosure would not be in the public interest, . . .”

The Guidelines for a Code of Conduct for Members of the Legislative Assembly I read earlier says that “holders of public office should be as open as possible about all the decisions and actions that they take. They should give reasons for their decisions and restrict information only when the wider public interest clearly demands so.”

If I have said anything that the Minister feels at this time is offensive, and I must say that he has been very patient in allowing me to continue to carry on my debate, I am quite willing if it is your ruling that I need to have more than an opinion. As I said, I have laid some papers on the Table already and I expect to lay some later on again, I will Table some more information.

The Speaker: I think if you will withdraw that accusation and let's go on, please. Just withdraw you accusations and we will continue tomorrow.

Dr. Frank McField: I would like to bow to your ruling and withdraw the statement that was made which the Minister objected to. I think I said that he misled Executive Council, so that is what I am withdrawing at this particular time.

The Speaker: Thank you for your co-operation.

I will entertain a motion for the adjournment of this Honourable House.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker—

The Speaker: Let us take the adjournment now, please.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: I am asking that we continue business until 5.30 or 6.00.

The Speaker: We did not make any arrangements with staff—We would have to talk to Honourable Members and the Legislative staff.

Mr. W McKeeva Bush: Well, the staff has to continue when the House is sitting, but it is up to the House.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I would like to bring to the Chair's attention that next week, probably on the week-end, some Honourable Members will be leaving for official business, arrangements of which have already been made.

It seems to me that in the essence of concluding the business of the House by this Friday, we should consider taking the sittings past our normal 4:30, sir.

I bring that to the attention of the Chair so that the Chair may avail itself of the opportunity to discuss it with Honourable Members now so that we may decide whether we are disposed to any sittings beyond the normal adjournment.

The Speaker: I personally would like the opportunity to discuss it with the staff as well as Honourable Members maybe this could be considered for Thursday and Friday. I had other arrangements myself for this afternoon but I could make myself available.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon Truman Bodden: Mr. Speaker, this is a very important matter and it should not be dealt with when Members of this House are tired. On many occasions, we have given way for Members and on adjournments. I would like now to move the adjournment of this Honourable House until tomorrow morning at 10 AM.

The Speaker: I shall now.....

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, please.....

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Before the Honourable Minister got up to move the adjournment, the question was raised about possibly working late tomorrow and Friday. I do not think we have resolved that situation.

That is the only reason why I have interrupted you, sir. Perhaps we can resolve it and adjourn this afternoon.

The Speaker: Honestly, I am not going to make a statement from the Chair again, you all will tell me exactly what you want and I will then announce it.

Repeatedly, I have made announcements only to be shot down.

So, after that is made, once you tell me, I will make it. I will now entertain a motion for the adjournment.

All those in favour, please say aye, those against No.

Ayes and Noes:

The Speaker: I think the Ayes have it.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, can we have a division, please?

The Speaker: Madam Clerk, please call a division.

EDITED
THURSDAY
16 JULY 1998
10.20 AM

The Speaker: Prayers by the Honourable Third Official Member.

PRAYERS

Hon. George McCarthy: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived: We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth, that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly, that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy great name's sake.

Let us say the Lord's Prayer together: Our Father, who art in heaven, hallowed be Thy name. Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us. Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace, now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Item number 2 on today's Order Paper, Other Business—

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, before we get started, on a point of procedure, yesterday afternoon I mooted that it was my intention (and that of some other people) to request of Honourable Members that we sit late into the evening so that we can close off the business of the House tomorrow if at all possible. I would like to hear if that proposal or recommendation sits well with Honourable Members and the Chair.

The Speaker: I would be prepared to put a motion and see whether it carries. The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I think this is something we need to discuss. And if a motion has to come, it would have to come on the adjournment motion because under the Standing Orders, unless they are going to waive Standing Orders again, it would come at that time.

The Speaker: Right. Could we arrange to meet then at the break? Thank you.

Item number 2 on today's Order Paper, Private Members' Motions. Private Member's Motion No. 7/98, "Censure Motion," continuation of debate thereon, the Fourth Elected Member for George Town, continuing.

OTHER BUSINESS

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 7/98

CENSURE MOTION

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Dr. Frank McField: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. When we adjourned yesterday, I had made a statement which I was asked to withdraw. But since certain Members have had an opportunity to get a copy of the unedited Hansard, to look over my delivery, and I have also been given a copy, and in looking at it, I see that I said yesterday, "The Minister is being requested to prove that the application"—this is page 6 of the unedited version—"The Minister is being requested to prove that the application made by Mr. Whitmore Syms on April 14, 1992 did not say that the adjudicators only awarded title to a portion of the parcel, namely 74A 48. The basis for the claim is the claim by Mr. Whitmore Syms, not the claim by the Minister, so we have to go back to the original claim letter by Mr. Whitmore Syms. Mr. Syms clearly states that he was only awarded a portion, a part of what he should have had, and mainly that this portion was titled 74A 48."

Mr. Speaker, if, in making the claim, Mr. Syms was claiming land that he only owned—he was claiming on the basis of the fact that he owned a 7/9 undivided share of parcel 48. That was the basis for the claim. So did Executive Council know that Mr. Syms was a joint proprietor with Capt. Henry Watson? Did Executive Council, in spite of this knowledge, award this parcel 89 to the Honourable Minister, in spite of the fact that the award was based upon the claim made by Mr. Syms on the 14th of April, 1992, and that that claim was a 7/9 claim? Where did Executive Council get the information to award this full portion of parcel 89 to the Minister? Where did this information come from?

What do we understand about the basis of the decision-making process? I understand that the Minister for Lands would be responsible for making the recommendation to the Executive Council. Therefore, if the Executive Council is saying they knew full well that Whitmore Syms was only claiming 7/9 of whatever land, then the Executive Council is admitting that they made a wrong decision. And if Executive Council made a wrong decision, it would be impossible for the Attorney General to have stated that everything was adequate, and everything had been done according to protocol. This, again, is the basis of my submission.

If the affidavits presented by the Minister to Executive Council to convince Executive Council to make the grant, in that the affidavits then become the secondary proof, not the first proof, the first proof should be the proof of title. The Lands office said that the title, the conveyance documents, fell short of what would normally be necessary to prove ownership, to prove that Mr. Syms had claim to parcel 89.

If we know that Leroy Johnson had submitted affidavits before (in 1987) and had not been awarded parcel 89 as a result of this; and that the Permanent Secretary (who had witnessed the affidavits now being presented by Mr. McLean) had knowledge that Mr. Johnson had made his claim, and had been making his claim since 1981, and had presented a similar type of evidence by way of affidavit; if that was not sufficient, then why is it adequate at this particular time when the Minister—with a declared interest in parcel 89, a declared interest by the way of the application by Mr. Whitmore Syms on 14 April 1992, a declared interest by way of the probate of the will of Mr. Whitmore Syms in September of 1993, a declared interest by way of his changing Mr. Syms' name on parcel 48 and substituting his name as the sole beneficiary to this. . . . A declared interest, Mr. Speaker. There is no doubt that the Minister's interest was very declared. So there is no question in my mind that the Minister's interest was declared.

In the document from the Lands Office to the Permanent Secretary on 23 March 1993, the Lands office says that the Minister made enquiries as to how the claim—Mr. Whitmore Syms' claim—was progressing. We are dealing with the fact that Mr. Syms made a claim, and it was based upon the claim that the Executive Council should have awarded, or not awarded, parcel 89. If that claim was to 7/9 of a portion of land, then only 7/9 of that portion of land could have been awarded, if an award was proven possible by way of the sworn affidavit.

I think the listening public understands the simplicity of this situation. If you, Mr. Speaker, and I were awarded two acres of land, and we found out that we should have had four acres of land, and if those other two acres of land were given up by the person who possessed them, they cannot just be given to me, you must get something too. Only if the shares had been divided before would there, in principle or in law, have been no requirement on the part of the applicant to have shared the reward with his proprietor in common.

I believe, therefore, for the Minister of Education to have objected to the fact that I said the Minister had misled Executive Council means that the Minister of Education did not understand—

Hon. Truman Boddén: Mr. Speaker, Mr. Speaker, on a point of order.

POINT OF ORDER

The Speaker: May I hear your point of order?

Hon. Truman Boddén: The point of order is simple, Mr. Speaker. You have ruled on this before, and the Member has had to withdraw it. You have absolute right in this place to rule, and he cannot at this stage question your ruling on that point, sir.

The Speaker: I would ask the Fourth Elected Member for George Town to please go on to something else. I ruled on that yesterday afternoon, and that was clearly understood, you accepted it. So let us go on, and let's get on with the debate.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order.

The Speaker: I have asked the Fourth Elected Member to please go on.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Mr. Speaker, I am rising on a point of order. You have to recognise me, Mr. Speaker.

POINT OF ORDER

The Speaker: Under what Standing Order are you rising?

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Standing Order 35(7). I think you need to ask me, 'What is the point of order?', and then rule me out of order.

The Speaker: You said 35(7)?

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Standing Order 35, Mr. Speaker, 'Content of speeches,' in particular, 35(7), "The conduct of Her Majesty, members of the Royal Family, the Governor, the Presiding Officer [meaning you, Mr. Speaker], Members [meaning Member of this House], Judges and other persons engaged in the administration of justice or of Officers of the Crown may not be raised or impugned except upon a substantive motion; . . ."

Mr. Speaker, this motion before us is a substantive motion. We are all members of the House, and Ministers of Executive Council, or any Member, if their conduct is challenged, they then have the right to reply on a substantive motion. But this is a substantive motion saying that we are looking at the conduct of the Minister! Not to say right or wrong, but the motion is there. You accepted the motion as presiding officer. We are debating the motion. It must hold that we have free debate. That is why you accepted the motion!

The Speaker: Let me rule on his point of order. I ruled on the point of order for the Fourth Elected Member for George Town yesterday. I made a ruling and that ruling stands today.

The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford Pierson: Mr. Speaker, with your indulgence, sir. I have noticed, as have other Members of this Honourable House, that when the Minister for Education rises on a point of order, you accept the point of order without questioning him what point of order he is speaking under—

The Speaker: I do not! I do not require a lecture this morning.

Mr. Linford Pierson: The point I want to make, Mr. Speaker, is that there is a lot of confusion in the House, and we all need to be guided by the same Standing Orders.

Standing Order 34(a) states, “by rising to a point of order, when the Member speaking shall resume his seat and the Member interrupting shall direct attention to the point which he wishes to submit to the Presiding Officer for decision; . . .”

Unless, Mr. Speaker, with respect, the Member is given the opportunity to direct the attention to the point he is making, there is no point in just saying, ‘I am rising under section 35(2), section 35(3).’ He has to point out to you what the point of order is, and if you determine that it is not a valid point of order, you can rule him out of order. That is the way I understand the Standing Orders, and I believe it should be a common understanding by all of us.

And, Mr. Speaker, it is the belief of some of us over here that the Minister is just trying to distract attention from what the speaker is saying, and cause confusion.

The Speaker: You did not consider that a point of order. That was a statement.

Mr. Linford Pierson: Mr. Speaker, I am saying that we need to be consistent in the House, and if the Minister, when he rises, is not asked to state what Standing Order, what point of order he is speaking under, then that should apply to any Member of the Backbench. That is the main point I am trying to make.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town, please continue with your debate.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, in a statement by the Attorney General which is quoted in the Caymanian Compass, he said that the Executive Council had granted the land, after having established that Lands & Survey Department were satisfied as to the adequacy of the evidence supplied. Executive Council then approved the application for a Crown Grant, and transfer of the land to you, Mr. McLean, was then subsequently executed by His Excellency, Mr. M.E. Gore, on the 19 July 1995. I want to find out if, in the reply, the Minister for Lands can say what evidence was submitted to the Executive Council by way of the evidence offered to Executive Council for the Crown Grant.

It is absolutely necessary for there to be some type of level playing field here. We need to have access to the information that the Minister presented to the Executive Council in order for the public and this Legislative Assembly to be sure that the Minister did act objectively. And if the Minister for Education continues to support us regarding transparency, then we know we will have no difficulties in getting his agreement to table, in this Honourable House, these documents. We do not have to argue with facts because facts speak for themselves. Let the facts speak for themselves! Put the document on the Table! Let us examine the document! Give us access to the document! Do not hide the documents behind the secrets of the Executive Council! There is no need for that!

The Minister for Education has supported our call for transparency, and we need to begin with it now!

Mr. Roy Bodden: Oy, oy, oy!

Dr. Frank McField: The Minister for Education is a lawyer, and not a magician. He cannot cause facts to disappear. He might be able to maneuver them, but he cannot make them disappear. The facts are that the Minister responsible for Land would have used evidence to convince Executive Council to grant this portion of land to the estate of Mr. Whitmore Syms, and we would like to have access to those documents.

When I tabled the few pieces of paper I have in this Legislative Assembly, one piece included a Land Registry certificate with the Minister, Mr. McLean, on the title as 7/9 owner of parcel 48, and the address of the law office of the Minister for Education is on that certificate. My question is: Did he act as his attorney regarding this particular piece, of this particular estate? Did he act as the attorney regarding this particular estate? And when did he act, and when did he stop acting? Since 1994, February 3, his law firm box was placed on the title of this document. I have tabled this, and I have submitted this to all Members.

Was he an advisor when this application went to Council? Did he declare his interests to Council? Certainly, the Honourable Minister for Education will have good explanations for why his law firm’s post office box 866—not 366—is on this land title, changing and attesting to the fact that Mr. McLean inherited 7/9 shares in parcel 48; meaning that all persons—at least Mr.

McLean—knew that if Mr. Syms' claim was based upon his claim to parcel 48, he could only be entitled to 7/9 of parcel 89, if he was entitled by way of Mr. Syms' entitlement.

I do not have a law degree, Mr. Speaker, but my mother talked about common sense. This is the reason my political manifesto was called, "Towards a Common Sense Democracy," a democracy where the rights of every citizen are important.

It is important that we use our common sense—not our law degrees, our common sense, the five senses God gave us—to make up our minds regarding this particular grant by Executive Council. If all Members of Executive Council are willing to stand up in these Chambers and say that they had access to the documents, that they knew what they were doing, and that what they were doing in granting all of the portion of parcel 89 to the Honourable Minister for Agriculture and Lands, based upon the 14 April 1992 application by Mr. Syms, . . . because the application could only come by way of Mr. Syms, deceased. It could not have originated as an application by the Minister, and therefore it is that application letter dated 14 April 1992 that we must continue to scrutinise as the basis for the claim, and as the basis for the award being granted.

And since it was only a 7/9 share that Mr. Syms claimed, and he claimed this by implication because he mentions the fact that the adjudicators had only awarded a portion of the land, namely Block 74A Parcel 48; and since the land title says he was 7/9 owner, it follows that if he was a proprietor in common, his claim would express the claim of the other proprietor, and that any award to his estate must express an award to the other proprietor.

Now lawyers can probably do anything. I said they are not magicians, but they can do a lot of things, Mr. Speaker. We saw this in the O.J. Simpson case—the gloves that never fit! But in the public's mind, it is necessary for there to be no question as to the objectivity of the Minister and of the Executive Council. It is the burden of the Government at this particular time, if they are going to vote collectively, to prove to the people of this country beyond a reasonable doubt that everything was done correctly. They can do this by laying on the Table of this Honourable House all the documents having to do with this specific claim. There is no reason why secrecy should become more important than clarity, honesty, and a person's integrity. All we are asking them to do is to assist us in re-establishing the integrity of the Government of this country. And this they can do by going along with what they intended to do when they voted for the Freedom of Official Information committee to be formed in order that an Official Information Act could be created. This is not too far away from what we did, and the good Minister for Education did argue very convincingly when he evoked our concerns with information in order to say that we should not be allowed to have established the principle that we could vote by secret ballot. Now I am calling on him to use the same argument to support me in my call for those documents to be laid on the Table of the House of this Assembly. Why not, Mr. Speaker? It is only the documents related specifically to a land claim. It has nothing to do with any national secrets. It has nothing to do with anyone's character or personality. We are talking about a specific event. I am not talking about anyone's character. No one's character is being questioned here. What is being questioned is a specific event, specific actions, specific results, not anyone's character.

Therefore, I still need to understand. I still have to have explained how Executive Council could award all of a piece of land when the application was only for a part of the land. Did the Executive Council scrutinise the affidavits? Did they ask questions? Who was responsible to answer their questions? The Minister responsible for Lands, Agriculture, and Communications and Works? His Permanent Secretary? Who was responsible for clarifying the situation if, in Executive Council, there were questions asked in order for Executive Council to make just and fair decisions?

You have to remember that Mr. Johnson used that same method of proof to prove that Block 74A, Parcel 89 belonged to him, and it was not accepted. It was not accepted! Why, then, is the same method of proof being accepted when it comes from a Minister, even if he declares his interest? Why is it being accepted? And if it is accepted, can Executive Council now be required to explain to this House the basis upon which that decision was made, and the evidence upon which the basis of this decision was made? Can we require the Government to give us this information if we are living in a democratic society? Is this to destabilise our country and ruin the economics in our country, to ask for truth, justice, and transparency?

They know that communism is bad, but fascism is even worse. The fascist Hitler put the communists to death, put the Jews to death, and put a lot of people to death, and it was totalitarianism that was wrong. Just like in communism, it is the totalitarian nature that is wrong. We do not want to create the totalitarian nature from the fascist side or the communist side. We want a democratic society where transparency is possible because we do not have to hide our business.

I have brought this to the Legislative Assembly, Mr. Speaker, not out of any personal malice. It has grieved me that I have had to do this, and it has not been easy, Mr. Speaker. But I said I got involved in this situation because I was elected to this job, and I get paid for this job, and although sometimes I am a bit of a coward, I have to go back and tell myself, 'Do your job, Frank, and if one of your constituents comes to you and says, "Look, why was I not given a chance for this piece of land, when the Minister responsible for Lands made an application, and used affidavits to claim the land, and got it? But when I supported my title claims with affidavits at that particular time, they told him two was okay, but that wasn't good enough!"' Now we need an explanation as to why one citizen is treated one way and another citizen is treated another way.

Do I accuse the Government of anything by painting the picture? I think I do. I think there is a charge that they need to answer. I think they need to explain to the people of this country how such a thing could have happened. So I am going to finish here, Mr. Speaker, and give the Honourable Minister for Education the opportunity to answer, to show that he has no fear of transparency, to show he will bring those documents and prove to the mover of this motion, the seconder of this motion, and the Members of this Legislative Assembly that they have nothing to hide, and that never, ever, was there a claim by the Minister that Capt. Henry Watson had claimed parcel 48 to the north as his share of the portion of land, and that the remainder was contained in parcel 89, suggesting that the remainder should go to the estate of the late Whitmore Syms. Let them bring those documents and prove that this claim by me is not substantiated. If they do not bring the document, let Members of Executive Council get up in this Chamber and say that is not true. Let them tell the people of this country that is not true. Let them tell the people of this country that they are bound by collective responsibility also when something is not true. This is not true, that they are bound by collective responsibility when something is not true.

Mr. Speaker, I go as far as to say that it must be proven that the Minister responsible for Agriculture and Lands did not, in his memo to Executive Council on 14 February 1995 say that Capt. Henry Watson had claim, and had been awarded Block 74A, Parcel 48 as his share of the land, and that the remainder was contained in Parcel 89, meaning that should not have to be shared with anyone. Thank you.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? [pause] The floor is open to debate. Does any other Member wish to speak? [pause] The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John McLean: Mr. Speaker, for some time now I have been bamboozled (as we say locally) in this House. But I would like to say that I have faithfully and continuously served the people of the Cayman Islands for the past 22 years as a Member of the Legislative Assembly [as the representative] for East End. I have conscientiously worked to make sure that the needs of my District of East End are provided for, and I still feel confident that I do have support in my District.

I would like to point out at this point that during the time I was here working for this country, many of those who are today trying to pull me down were not in a position or able to contribute anything to this country. And with what they are doing today they are still not contributing to this country, because what they are trying to do to me is not a contribution to what they call their beloved Cayman Islands.

When Craddock Ebanks, John McLean and you, Mr. Speaker, along with other old soldiers including Dalmain Ebanks, were trying to build and keep this country together, there were those who were walking the streets looking at the stars. Thank God, I am still here today. Mr. Speaker, I have a record in this country, as far as I am concerned. Regardless of what they want to accuse me of, they can accuse me, because I have done no wrong.

About three months ago there were rumours and lies as to whether I did anything wrong in relation to the land at East End, Block 78, 48. Immediately I requested His Excellency the Governor to carry out an enquiry into the matter, and, in his letter to me dated 19 May 1998, His Excellency fully cleared me of any wrongdoing, and proved me innocent. I will table this letter once again, Mr. Speaker. I am certain that if in his capacity, after having all the investigations carried out, he felt that I had done anything wrong, he would not have signed his hand to this letter, nor would he have allowed me to publish a letter which he had written. And, Mr. Speaker, I will table this letter once again.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Hon. John McLean: Mr. Speaker, the letter reads as follows:

“Hon. John McLean, OBE, MLA, JP Minister of Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works

“Dear Mr. McLean,

“Crown Grant Block 74A Parcel 89

“Following your request for a review of the procedure followed by Executive Council in arriving at its decision to approve a Crown Grant of the above land to you, I instructed the Attorney General to carry out the review. I have now received the Attorney General’s report.

“In his report, the Attorney General states that he is satisfied that the procedure followed by Executive Council in approving the Crown Grant of this land was correct. The background and issues to be decided by Council were clearly set out and the necessary copy supporting documents were submitted as appendices. Having established that the Lands and Survey Department were satisfied as to the adequacy of the evidence supplied, Executive Council then approved the application for a Crown Grant. A transfer of the land to you as executor of the estate of Milton Whitmire Syms (deceased) was then subsequently executed by His Excellency the Governor Mr M E Gore on 19 July 1995.

“The Attorney General’s report states that in the case of Block 74A Parcel 89 the cadastral failed to delineate the boundaries which indicates that no survey was completed. The Attorney General therefore recommends that a survey should now be carried out in respect of the land in compliance with Royal Instructions 12(1). The cost of such survey should be borne by you in accordance with clause 2 of the undertaking entered into by you on 22 March 1995. If you have not done so already, I should be grateful if you would give instructions for a survey to be carried out as soon as possible."

Mr. Speaker, once this was received I tried as quickly as possible to consult with a surveyor. I have made arrangements for the survey to be carried out. This was done on 28 May 1998.

The Fourth Elected Member for George Town referred to the Attorney General's letter of 27 February 1998 showing that the Royal Cayman Islands Police Force had investigated this matter and cleared me totally. I find it rude for the Fourth Elected Member of George Town to refer to criminal offences under the Penal Code when he knows I have been cleared fully by the police. I have a letter in my hand which was written by the Attorney General to the person who apparently has been aggravating the Fourth Elected Member for George Town, asking him to come at myself. This letter was written on 27 February 1998—

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order, please.

The Speaker: State your point of order, please.

POINT OF ORDER
(Imputing improper motive)

Dr. Frank McField: Under 35(4), Imputation of Improper Motive. My constituents, Mr. Speaker, have never really bothered me. My job is to listen to my constituents.

The Speaker: Would you withdraw that, please?

Hon. John McLean: Mr. Speaker, sir, you very well know that I will bow to whatever ruling you make, but if someone does not come forward to you, you cannot act on a matter. So I fully agree with the Chair, sir.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order, sir. Is the Minister saying that he is withdrawing the statement or bowing to your ruling?

The Speaker: Please give him a chance to finish. Honourable Minister for Agriculture, just withdraw it, please and go on.

Hon. John McLean: Mr. Speaker, as I pointed out, I bow to your ruling and I withdraw it.

The Speaker: Thank you. Please continue.

Hon. John McLean: The letter is as follows. It is written to Mr. Leroy Johnson, P.O. Box 11208 APO, Grand Cayman.

"Dear Mr. Johnson:

"His Excellency the Governor has passed to me a copy of your letter dated 5 February and asked to respond on his behalf. The various allegations made in your letter have been investigated by the RCIP as you are aware. I also understand that over the years, you have made various representations to the Registrar of Lands claiming title, but that these claims have not been accepted. You have already instructed attorneys to represent you in this matter, and the correct forum for settling this dispute over title to the land would be through the Cayman Islands Courts by way of a civil claim."

This was signed by the Attorney General of this country. I would like to point out that nothing has changed with this. As far as I am concerned, if anyone has claim to this, the Government of this country and speaking on behalf of Executive Council and the Governor, . . . if someone has any claim to it, they have a right to put it forward and make the claim.

As I pointed out, Mr. Speaker, the Governor, after the enquiry by the Attorney General as well as the Royal Cayman Islands Police, fully cleared me. I repeat, the Royal Cayman Islands Police investigated and fully cleared me. What more in the world does the Opposition, or anyone else—especially the Fourth Elected Member for George Town—want? This is a continuation of the harassment I have received over the past few months.

This Parliament is not a court, and once I have been cleared by the Governor of the Cayman Islands and the Royal Cayman Islands Police, it is not for the Parliament to say otherwise. They cannot question the Royal Cayman Islands Police, the Governor, or me on this matter, as I declared my interest, and did not vote on this matter, which was proper and the way that things operate in this country.

During the land adjudication process in the 1970s, land which was not claimed by anyone was put in the name of the Crown until persons who had proper title to it could make the claim. Many parcels, and many large parcels of land in Grand Cayman, Cayman Brac and Little Cayman have over the years been claimed and transferred back to owners in all three Islands. Claims for Crown land or unclaimed land are still coming in. Hundreds of people in the past received Crown Grants. And I can honestly say here now that we have past Members, at least one, who had to deal with this, who know exactly what I am saying is correct.

There are Members sitting in this Legislative Assembly—including the Fourth Elected Member for George Town—who have done far worse than what is alleged against me: Yet they want the public to believe that they are angels. Mr. Speaker, this country knows John McLean, and I have done well for my country. My history shows that. The land in East End I referred to was unclaimed land. And was not land the Crown owned in its own right, as it does for example. . . and I use the Legislative Assembly: This is Crown land, not unclaimed land. The Crown, in essence, held unclaimed land until proper claims could be made for it under the Land Adjudication Law.

However, it was not claimed by me. It was passed on to me through an inheritance. And it is ridiculous, when I hear the Fourth Elected Member for George Town trying to stand here and talk about John McLean misleading Executive Council, when I declared my interest and had nothing to say in there. But the difference is, this country knows who Frank McField is, and they know who John McLean is, too.

The Speaker: Have you reached a point where it would be convenient to take the morning break, or would you rather go on?

Hon. John McLean: We can stop now, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: We shall suspend proceedings for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.15 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 11.50 AM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Debate continues on Private Member's Motion No. 7/98, the Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works continuing.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you Mr. Speaker.

When we actually stopped a while ago, I started to explain certain things about this piece of property that I have been accused about, the way I have been ridiculed and my character attacked.

As is said in this House on many occasions, for the Members and the listening public, I would like to remind those, who were not aware of what was going on at the time I came here, of exactly how the Cayman Islands grew from strength to strength. In 1976, when I came to this Honourable House, it was with, as we call it, a lot of old veterans like the Hon. Craddock Ebanks, Mr. Dalmain Ebanks, Garston Smith, Jim Bodden, you, Mr. Speaker, Charles Kirkconnell, the late Haig Bodden, Truman Bodden. For those who will remember, this country was down in the dumps. But we worked together, and thank God, we brought it to where it is today. I will take credit for some of that.

A lot of people who can get in here because they can fly their mouth and have never contributed to this country are prepared—

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order please, sir.

POINT OF ORDER

The Speaker: Let me hear your point of order please.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: I do not think the area the Minister is now going into is relevant to this motion. Every one of us who came in here fought an election, and the people of these Islands voted to put us in here, sir. I think he should change the direction in which he is going.

The Speaker: Normally we allow a certain amount of latitude in debate, and I will watch the relevance. Please continue Honourable Minister.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, I hear what you are saying, sir. I am one of the fifteen elected Members in here. If the Minister for Agriculture is making any accusations, let him be specific. If he makes any wild accusations that include me that I know are not true, it is not going to end there.

The Speaker: Hon. Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works, please continue.

Hon. John B McLean: Thank you Mr. Speaker.

The First Elected Member for George Town should know that I was not in any way indicating anything against him, because thus far he has said nothing about this motion. I am sure he realises who has been attacking me, and I think I should have that right on this side to come back and say what I have to say.

Mr. Speaker, I will try as much as possible to ignore interruptions, because I do not interrupt people.

Coming back to this motion we are talking about, my stepfather, Mr. Whitmore Syms, prior to his death personally claimed this land from Government. On the 19th of July, 1995, a decision was taken by Executive Council—not by John McLean, and I want to make that point clear, because it seems as if the Fourth Elected Member for George Town is trying to lead the public and this House to believe that I went into Executive Council and I took a decision, which is incorrect. It is pointed out in the Governor's letter, it is pointed out in everything I have read. It was not a decision by John McLean. However, I did declare my interest and this must be clear to the listening public.

Mr. Speaker, this claim was not done on the basis of anything that was illegal. It is my understanding that the information passed on in documents was as good as has ever been received by the Lands and Survey Department. However, the land has to be first surveyed in order for the boundaries to be properly identified. This is normal. As a matter of fact, I believe it was one of the Opposition Members who in his deliberation some time ago suggested that is what should have been done. So, it gives anybody who wants to put a claim to this piece of old property to go ahead and do it.

The Fourth Elected Member for George Town has stated that the death certificate of Mr. Whitmore Syms showed him as divorced and implied that this would in some way affect how his property went on the will. I have been informed that under a will, land or any other property can be given to anyone, whether they are married or divorced. God knows that if I thought we had people in this House like I have been attacked by, such as Mr. Frank McField, I would have never—

The Speaker: Please use his title.

Hon. John McLean: Dr. Frank Mcfield.

The Speaker: No, no, use—

Hon. John McLean: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town, the same person, sir, . . . and with due respect to the Chair, he has been calling me “Mr. McLean.” If I thought that, sir, I would have never, ever thought of accepting it. The right to transfer property by a will is an absolute right given by the testator, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Leroy Johnson, in 1981, claimed 330 acres of land, Block 74A Parcel 26, at Jonathan Hole, Sandy Bluff, East End, through his father, Mellis J. Johnson, who in turn claims he inherited it from his father. This large tract of land included Parcels 88 and 89, into which it was divided.

Mr. Leroy Johnson applied to three Governments for this 330 acres of land, and his request for title was decided on by several different Attorneys General and Registrars of Lands, and refused—I repeat, refused—by three Executive Councils in 1981, 1988 and 1990. So, this gentleman had an attorney, Mr. Keith Collins, who represented him and, it is my understanding, advised him that he had no claim to the property.

The simple fact is that by conveyance dated 24 February, 1958, and recorded at the Public Records Offices on 29 June, 1974, a copy of which I will lay on the Table of this Honourable House, Mr. Mellis Johnson, Leroy’s father, conveyed to Messrs. Calbert Conolly, Levi Conolly and Deavy Conolly, and I will read these conveyances. It, in total, will be laid on the Table. “ALL THAT piece or parcel of land at Sand Bluff in the district of East End, and known as Jonathan Hole” and the documentation here shows that it was fully transferred to someone else. “THIS INDENTURE is made the 24th day of February, one thousand nine hundred and fifty eight BETWEEN Melis J. Johnson, retired seaman, formerly of East End in the Island of Grand Cayman, but now of Belize, British Honduras (hereinafter called the Vendor) party of the First Part and Calbert Conolly, Levi Conolly, and Deavy Conolly, all seamen of East End, Island of Grand Cayman (hereinafter called the Purchasers) parties of the second Part: WHEREAS the Vendor is seized of an estate in fee simple, and unincumbered (sic) of that part of lands conveyed, or now to be conveyed as herein described.

“NOW THIS INDENTURE WITNESSETH that IN CONSIDERATION of the sum of one hundred and fifty pounds paid by the Purchasers to the Vendors (the receipt of which sum the Vendor hereby acknowledges) The Vendor as beneficial owner hereby conveys unto the Purchasers and their heirs ALL THAT piece or parcel of land situated at Sandy Bluff in the district of East End, and known as Jonathan Hole and butted and bounded on the North by wall and wire fence separating it from the lands of Helen McCoy: South, and East and, and West by a natural boundary of cliff;

“Together with all rights or easements belonging thereto, or now held therewith especially the road passing from the Public Road across lands of Walbridge Dacus, and Helen McCoy;

“TO HOLD the same UNTO and to the Use of the Purchasers in fee simple.

“IN WITNESS whereof the Vendor, the said Melis J Johnson has hereunto set his hand and affixed his seal the day and year herein before written.

“SIGNED, SEALED, and DELIVERED by the Vendor, the said Melis J. Johnson. . . ” and it was witnessed by Justice of the Peace, Willie Farrington.

Mr. Speaker, I would like these documents to be laid on the Table.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Hon. John McLean: Mr. Speaker, simply put, Mr. Leroy Johnson’s father, who was Mr. Melis Johnson, sold all—and I report all, not a portion of—land to the Conollys, and therefore has no land left at Jonathan Hole. It is important to realise that Mr. Johnson also claimed Block 74A Parcel 88 which is the Conolly’s land that his father sold to them and the conveyance is what I have just read out to this House and had laid upon the Table. However, let me point out, this property is still owned by the Conollys.

I was not in Executive Council in 1988 and 1990, I was a Backbencher at that time. I therefore had nothing to do with the rejection of Mr. Johnson’s claims. In fact, in 1990 the Third Elected Member for George Town was the Member for Lands when Executive Council saw fit to reject his claim because he did not have sufficient documentation on it, or no valid documentation.

It is important also to note that we have documentation during that time that was written back to his lawyer, and I will read it and ask to lay it on the Table. It was written to Mr. Keith Collins, Barrister, P.O. Box 1259, George Town, Grand Cayman.

“Dear Sir:

“Mr. Leroy Johnson—Application for the rectification of the Land Register 74A 26

“Your letter of November 3rd, 1998 (sic) [1987] on the above refers. I advise that our position is that Mr. Johnson’s claim cannot be entertained since, according to the documentary evidence in our possession, the property involved was by indenture dated 29th of June 1974 conveyed to Melis Johnson to three other parties.”

The point I am making, Mr. Speaker, is that this letter confirms that the person the Fourth Elected Member [for George Town] is trying to defend in this House, the property involved has been conveyed. . .

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order.

The Speaker: Will you give way?

The Fourth Elected Member for George Town, let me hear your point of order.

POINT OF ORDER

Dr. Frank McField: I have not tried to defend anyone. I have made a case that the Honourable Minister was not entitled to all of that land which was granted to him. Not that I am defending anyone. This is not a Court, so I am not here as an advocate for any side.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Agriculture, I think the Member is correct. That is what I understood he was doing. Please clarify that, Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John McLean: Mr. Speaker, as I said, I have been very tolerant. I have sat here and taken, as they call it in this House, a lot of licks. I have listened to everything that has been said, and I am rebutting what has been said. I would like to apologise for the date on the letter, because I said 1998, but it was 1987, and I apologise.

The Speaker: I am really saying that you are saying he is defending a certain individual, and in his deliberation he is making a direct presentation. So I would ask you to withdraw that portion of what you have said, please.

Hon. John McLean: The word 'defend' I will withdraw, Mr. Speaker, and I bow to your ruling, but I am saying that the case was put by that Member.

The Speaker: That is parliamentary. You have done what I asked. Thank you very much. Please continue, Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John McLean: As I pointed out, Mr. Speaker, I would like to lay this document on the Table.

The Speaker: So ordered. The Serjeant is coming.

Hon. John McLean: Mr. Speaker, as I started to say a while ago, Mr. Leroy Johnson had a lawyer (since 1988), at least one that I know about, Mr. Collins. If he believed he had better title to this land, it was always open for him to apply to the Grand Court to prove his case to get the land—or anyone else, for that matter, whoever may feel they had better title to it. This is a Parliament, not a court of law, and claims which can only be dealt with through a court should not be brought to this Parliament, Mr. Speaker.

The complexity of a land claim was brought out in the debate by the Fourth Elected Member for George Town, showing the confusion of a complex land case, which only a court is competent, and only the Grand Court has the authority to hear.

The Fourth Elected Member for George Town, the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, and Mr. Leroy Johnson should clearly understand that I, the Honourable John McLean, am not a criminal! I have never been convicted of a criminal offence, nor has there been a criminal Grand Court judgment relating to dishonesty made by me! I have a clean record, and I have served the people of the Cayman Islands, and the District of East End for the past 22 years, of which I have spent ten years in Government. I have a good, honest character.

The Fourth Elected Member for George Town has read two supporting affidavits, which related to Mr. Johnson's claim. It is very interesting to note that these affidavits were prepared and blank lines left on them which were subsequently filled in, and therefore the affidavits do not appear to be in the words or handwriting of the person swearing the affidavits. When were the blanks filled in? Before or after the swearing of the affidavits? The blanks have not been initialled by the person swearing, or the Justice of the Peace. No matter how good these affidavits are, the fact is that the conveyance from Leroy Johnson's father on the 24th of February, 1958—

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order.

The Speaker: May I hear your point of order?

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Perhaps the Member can elucidate on it. Is he challenging the veracity of the judgment of Mr. Will Jackson, the Justice of the Peace who signed those affidavits?

Hon. Truman M Boddan: Mr. Speaker, with respect, that is not a point of order.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: I am asking for elucidation.

[inaudible]

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works, do you wish to reply to that or do you wish to continue?

Hon. John B McLean: Mr. Speaker, the only point I was making is, if you will recall during the debate by the Fourth Elected Member for George Town, it was he who challenged the signature of witnesses on the affidavits that were produced on behalf of Mr. Whitmore Syms' property. I am rebutting it. Now, I have been very tolerant. I have sat here, I have listened, and I do not have anything—

[inaudible comments]

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order.

The Speaker: Let me hear your point of order.

POINT OF ORDER

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, the Minister is misleading the House. I did not challenge the affidavits. I said they were witnessed by the Principal Secretary, and that they were all witnessed on the 2nd of May, 1994.

[pause]

Hon. John McLean: Mr. Speaker, may I continue?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works, he is stating that he said they were signed by your Permanent Secretary, which is correct.

Hon. John McLean: The only thing I am saying is, . . . I am referring to these, . . . I was coming to that point. Perhaps if they would only take what they gave, and just sit back and allow me to say what I have to say, that is what I did with them!

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order.

The Speaker: Let me hear your point of order.

POINT OF ORDER

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I am not trying to interrupt the Minister, but I am certainly entitled to have the Minister state the truth regarding the comments I made. I did not make those comments. Therefore, for the Minister to say that I did make those comments is to mislead the House, and he needs to withdraw the statement.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works, the Hansard is clear that he stated that your Principal Secretary signed the affidavits.

The Hon. Minister for Education.

Hon. Truman Boddén: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order, the Fourth Elected Member said—

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, what is the point of order? One point is already on the floor of the House.

The Speaker: Can you call out exactly what page on the transcript, Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works?

Hon. John McLean: Mr. Speaker, it is on page 3. As I pointed out, I was about to draw the attention of the House to the fact that there was no difference—and where he, or someone, alluded that I was doubting the Justice of the Peace who signed it—that is most ridiculous, because everyone who is a Justice of the Peace in this country well knows that we witness signatures. That was what I was coming to, if I had been allowed to continue what I was saying. I will tell you right now that I would never, ever think anything bad of Mr. Will Jackson, so I would not want anyone to indicate that.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, I raised—

The Speaker: Let me hear your point of order, please.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Yes, sir, it is Standing Order 34. I raised for the point of elucidation. I asked for the point of elucidation. The Minister has explained it. He did not do that, he did say that the signatures were questionable. That is why I asked if he was—

Hon. John McLean: Mr. Speaker, Mr. Speaker—

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John McLean: What was said, if I was not, in other words, trusting the Justice of the Peace. The name was mentioned. And let me say—I am not giving way on this because like I said, I have sat down here and I have been very tolerant. If it is that I cannot have my say, then I would like the Chair to say to me that I do not have my democratic right! I have sat here, I have been very tolerant. I have listened to all the things that were thrown at me, and I have said nothing. I think one time I got up and made one point, and that was it. So I would like to continue with my speech.

The Speaker: Just one moment. [Addressing the First Elected Member for West Bay] On your elucidation, what point do you want elucidated? Could you be more specific on that?

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: That is right, Mr. Speaker—

Hon. Truman Boddén: Mr. Speaker, with respect, if the Member does not give way on elucidation, then the First Elected Member for West Bay cannot rise. You only give way on points of order; points of elucidation are up to the Member.

The Speaker: I know that procedure, yes. [Addressing the Honourable Minister for Agriculture] Will you give way so I can hear what the elucidation is?

Hon. John McLean: Mr. Speaker, I think we have heard enough about it. I would prefer to go on with my—let me do my presentation. There are many to come behind me, and they can say what they want to say, but I think I have a right to say my part, too.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works, please continue.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, are you—

Hon. Truman Boddén: Is it a point of order? Sit down if—

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: [Addressing the Hon. Minister for Education] Truman, are you the Speaker here, or are you going to leave the Speaker to run the House?

Mr. Speaker, I am referring now to the Standing Order that deals with questions—

Hon. John McLean: Mr. Speaker, is it a point of order?

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Yes, it is!

The Speaker: I—Let me—

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: And it deals—I am going on to state my point of order, Mr. Speaker. The Standing Order I quoted earlier, in dealing with the matters of questions or imputations to officers of—I think it is in 35, Mr. Speaker, 35—I will tell you in a minute. Yes, “Judges and other persons engaged in the administration of justice, or other officers of the Crown.” Standing Order 35(7). Now if you do not allow me to raise the elucidation, I will get the Hansard. I will have to believe that he was questioning the veracity of the signature of the Justice of the Peace. The man who signed in front of the Justice of the Peace. That is what I am trying to determine from the Minister.

The Speaker: I cannot tie your point of order in with what you are saying, because as a Justice of the Peace, you certify that the signature on it is the man's. That is all you really do.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: That's correct!

The Speaker: It has nothing to do with the content of the document.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Of course, but he did say that the signatures on the document were questionable. He said that! That is what I am asking him to elucidate on!

Well, you know what, Mr. Speaker? Can you get the Hansard and it will clear it up? because That was my understanding. We will get the copy of the Hansard at that point.

The Speaker: We have a problem. The Hansard is not up to date at this particular time, so we cannot adjourn for the Hansard. If you are talking about what the Honourable Minister for Agriculture has just said, that is not available at this time.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker—

Hon. John McLean: Mr. Speaker, I do not accept that as a point of order.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, he might not accept it, but I am on my feet on Standing Order 38 dealing with what, in my mind, is now the question—sorry, 35(7)—of questioning the conduct of the Justice of the Peace. Now I would like to get it clear, because my understanding from what the Honourable Minister said was that the signatures on the affidavit were questionable, and I am asking him to elucidate that.

Hon. John McLean: Mr. Speaker, I was in no way questioning the signature of the Justice of the Peace.

The Speaker: I think the Minister has clarified that point. Now we are going to go on. Please continue, Honourable Minister for Agriculture—

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker—

The Speaker: Please continue with your statement. [Addressing the First Elected Member for West Bay] I have made my ruling, now please sit down!

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, on Standing Order 35—

The Speaker: I said, please sit down, I want the Honourable Minister for Agriculture to continue with his speech. If I am—

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Can I just say one thing, Mr. Speaker? I was rising on Standing Orders, okay?

The Speaker: I have asked the Honourable Minister for Agriculture to please continue.

Hon. John McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker, and sorry for that interruption. Once again I would like to make it clear for the Hansards and the people of this country: I, too, happen to be a Justice of the Peace (JP). I know the duties of a JP, and in no way would I ever question if a JP goes ahead and witnesses a signature like that, because I too have to witness signatures, and there are many others in here who do the same thing.

If I could come back now to the actual debate I was trying to carry out before being rudely interrupted. I would like to come back to the—

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order, Sir.

POINT OF ORDER

(Imputation of false and unavowed motives)

The Speaker: What is your point of order?

Mr. Roy Bodden: 'Imputation of false and unavowed motives.' Mr. Speaker, please, the Honourable Member rose on a point of order; you made your ruling, and you did not say that the Honourable Member who rose on the point of order was rude. It is downright absurd and out of order, and that Honourable Minister knows better than to now impute that the Member rising on the point of order was rude!

Mr. Speaker, he claims he is the Father of the House, sir, he cannot bring the Honourable Parliament into this kind of disrepute! It is any Member's right to rise on a point of order! Please, I am craving the indulgence of the Chair to set this matter right!

The Speaker: I do not have the benefit of the Hansard, but what did you say, really? Please repeat that?

Hon. John McLean: Mr. Speaker, I said I would continue from where I left off because I was rudely interrupted. It was not only me! The Chair was! It was not I who was actually—you did not order me to sit down and I did not sit down!

The Speaker: Just withdraw the 'rudely' and just say you were interrupted, and let us go on with it, please.

Hon. John McLean: Mr. Speaker, don't worry, sir. Anything—as far as I am concerned, with your Chair, I am always respectful to that Chair, and I bow to your ruling.

The Speaker: Thank you. Just withdraw 'rudely' and please continue.

Hon. John McLean: I certainly will, sir.

The Speaker: Please continue with your debate.

Hon. John McLean: Mr. Speaker, what I would like to do, and like I mentioned earlier, I wanted to lay on the Table a copy of the affidavits to show the comparison of those that have been discussed and talked about, versus the genuine ones that have been sent. I was trying to show that although they were witnessed, I did not in any way, and I repeat—I did not in any way doubt any JP. I was just trying to lay on the Table copies of both for comparison.

Mr. Speaker, no matter how good the affidavits in question are, the conveyance from Mr. Johnson's father on 24 February 1958 overrides, and had already legally transferred, and I make that point again—legally transferred all, not a portion of Johnson's land, to the Connollys. It is also interesting to note that some of the blanks have not been filled in, and that was another reason I wanted to lay on the Table copies of the affidavits mentioned in the debate by the Fourth Elected Member for George Town. These are those that were put forward by Johnson.

The handwriting, as I pointed out, and was told so much about, seems to me—and it is on the Table for anyone to look at—it seems to me that it differs.

Mr. Speaker, on the other hand, the four affidavits given on behalf of Mr. Syms' estate are in different words and are obviously the words of the makers of the affidavit, and are true. There are no blanks. They are transparent. Here again, I have copies that can be laid on the Table.

The Speaker: As soon as the Serjeant returns, he will lay them on the Table.

Hon. John McLean: The fact that affidavits were sworn by Mr. Kearney Gomez has no bearing in law. As I mentioned earlier, if you look at section 107 of the Registered Land Law (1995 Revision), it provides that "subject to subsection (3), persons signing an instrument by way of execution shall appear before the Registrar or such public officer or other person as is prescribed." This makes it abundantly clear that the transfer of land, or the verification of documents, can even be done by the Registrar or a public officer, such as Mr. Gomez, and the Registrar then registers the document, which is verified by him.

As all Caymanians know, it is not unusual in Cayman for one Justice of the Peace, or Notary Public, to verify or to swear any affidavit or transfer of land. The Fourth Elected Member for George Town stated clearly that a claim can only be awarded based upon a claim. That is right! That is what we say. Capt. Henry Watson's estate has not put in a claim for Parcel 89. If his estate feels they have a claim—and as I mentioned a while ago, or anyone else—then they should put it in to the Registrar.

In 1996, vindictive persons tried to frame me by circulating a banker's draft from Barclays Bank, purchased by Hampstead Ltd. (whose manager was Mr. Steve Scott, who was Team Cayman's chairman), for a figure of US$60,000, which had been forged by putting my name in place of a US supply company. Thank God the police cleared me of this framing. Unfortunately—and I will say this, Mr. Speaker, unfortunately, they did not catch the culprit. However, God is good, and one thing I believe in. As is said here in this country many times, 'Time is longer than rope.' Today for you, tomorrow for me. And I believe in this little book, the New Testament, the Bible, and especially the Psalms, and I know some people in here do not like to hear me read it, but I am going to tell you, Sir, I read Psalm 35: "Plead my case, O Lord, with them that strive with me. Fight against them that fight against me."

Mr. Speaker, the Fourth Elected Member for George Town in his public meeting on or about 12 May 1998, which was aired on television and based on the

'no confidence' motion solely on the claims of Mr. Leroy Johnson, did not at any time state that the land should be owned by the estate of Whitmore Syms, Henry Watson, and has therefore shifted his position by saying now about 2/9 claim for Henry Watson, after he has found out, probably told by lawyers, that Leroy Johnson has no claim to this property because his father sold it to the three Connollys.

The claim of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town that Henry Watson is part owner of 74A 48, as is pointed out on the Registry map, this is a different parcel. Henry Watson has never claimed any interest in 89. The only claim made was Leroy Johnson's. If the estate of Mr. Henry Watson feels it has a claim to parcel 89, or if anyone else feels they have a claim to any land, they can obviously apply to the Registrar of Lands, who will then have a hearing with the parties concerned and make a ruling. Capt. Watson's estate could also put in a claim for other property in the area, or to shift or define the boundaries, as all boundaries of parcel 89 are undefined, during the survey process which allows people to dispute the boundaries and shown on the Land Registry map by dotted lines.

It is clear, Mr. Speaker—and as far as I know, under any law in this country, I do not know how people can steal land, because it is not something you can move.

However, Mr. Speaker, the fact remains, if it is that someone is not satisfied with what happens at the Lands Office, the recourse is always the court. And I see no reason why this could not be done. But I refer to the Good Book again, the Bible, which tells those who are among us without sin, let him cast the first stone. I have done no wrong. As I mentioned earlier, the Governor and the Royal Cayman Islands Police have cleared me of any wrongdoing.

I have retained a land surveyor to survey the property, and as far as I am concerned, this will be done. If it is found that anything is out of order, I am only one person. As far as I am concerned, if something is wrong, that will be the time to rectify it. I have no jurisdiction over that. I believe that the Third Elected Member for George Town, who made a statement in the Legislative Assembly requesting a survey of the land, which I mentioned earlier, will serve to allow anyone with a boundary dispute to file such a claim. I think it is a very good suggestion. The Third Elected Member for George Town gave the solution to this problem. The surveyor has been employed, and until the surveyor is finished, the other claimants, such as mentioned, Capt. Watson's estate, can make their claim.

In my view, the motion which is before the House should never have been brought here for this purpose. One of the reasons my colleague, the Minister for Education, and I have been attacked time and again in an effort to destroy us, is because it is a known fact since 1980, as I pointed out, that we have been the two main persons standing in the way of power-hungry politicians, advancing the Constitution of the Cayman Islands to achieve Chief Minister's status, and putting us nearer to what this country does not need and does not want— independence! Both of us have put up—

Mr. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order.

The Speaker: What is your point of order?

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, the Minister is going way beyond the bounds of the debate. The matters he is discussing now are totally irrelevant to the debate, and all he is doing, Sir, is inciting riot amongst those of us in here. But it is irrelevant, what he is saying.

The Speaker: I do not really think that is a point of order.

Mr. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, I am saying that what the man is saying is irrelevant to the debate. Are you saying that. . . .

Okay, let me start over, Sir. I am sorry. I am making a point of order on relevance. I am saying that what the Minister is straying into now is totally irrelevant to the debate at hand. And I am asking you for a ruling, Sir.

The Speaker: As you know, normally, in any debate, Members have a lot of latitude. I feel that this Honourable Member has a certain amount of latitude as well. I would ask him not to dwell particularly on this subject, as it is a sensitive matter, but I cannot say that he is exceeding his authority in being irrelevant.

So would you please continue, Honourable Minister, but please do not dwell on that particular subject any more.

Hon. John McLean: Mr. Speaker, again, as I have said before, with the greatest of respect to your Chair, the fact remains, from all the arguments I have heard put forward in this House, it seems as if the accused person is me! And do not tell me that I am accused and cannot answer back! And this is not in any way disrespectful to your Chair, but like I mentioned earlier, I sat back and listened to everything I was accused of. I just sat back here and took it, and now I think I should have a chance to rebut it.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order.

Hon. John McLean: I would like to move on, Sir.

POINT OF ORDER

The Speaker: Let us hear your point of order.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, on a point of clarification, could the Minister say what I accused him of?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John McLean: Mr. Speaker, I would like to continue.

The Speaker: I think your debate was quite—you articulated it very clearly. I think everyone understood exactly what you said, so I do not think we need to repeat that again. Let us continue with this debate.

Honourable Minister for Agriculture, please continue. I do not consider that a point of order.

Hon. John McLean: Mr. Speaker, in the Good Book, the Bible, there was mention of someone who had patience. I think that was the patience of Job. I am not going to call myself Job, but I want to say that I have a lot of patience.

But at this time, I would like to further show the document which was given to Whitmore Syms and transferred to him by the lady, Miss Genevieve Watson, and it was done on 12 November 1968. It reads: “KNOW ALL MEN BY THESE PRESENTS that I, GENEVIEVE WATSON of George Town, Grand Cayman, Cayman Islands, British West Indies, for and in consideration of the love and esteem which I have for my true friend WHITMORE SYMS, of George Town, Grand Cayman, Cayman Islands British West Indies, and especially for his kindness in permitting me to live in his house at George Town for so many years, by this Deed, signed, sealed and delivered in the presence of two credible witnesses, do freely and voluntarily grant and convey unto my said friend WHITMORE SYMS, his heirs and assigns, a piece of land given to me by my late father, WELLRING WATSON, situated in the district of Colliers, Grand Cayman, Cayman Islands, and butting and binding as follows: On the NORTH by cliff lands; on the SOUTH by cliff lands; on the EAST by cliff lands and on the WEST by lands of the late Edward Bodden, or whosoever otherwise the said piece or parcel of land may be butted, bounded distinguished or known: TO HAVE AND TO HOLD the hereditaments and premises granted unto and to the use of the said WHITMORE SYMS his heirs and assigns for ever. IN WITNESS WHEREOF the said Genevieve Watson hath hereunto signed her name and affirmed her seal, this 12th day of November in the year of Our Lord 1968.”

This document was put together and duly recorded. The affidavits given showed that the same property is butted and bounded by this piece of property, so I do not know what more a decision could be taken on but proper documents.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Was that parcel 48?

The Speaker: So ordered.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: [Was that] 74A 48? I wonder if the Minister could say that.

Hon. John McLean: Mr. Speaker, as I asked earlier—

The Speaker: What—

Hon. John McLean: documents are going to the Table. Nothing is being hidden, plus the mover of the motion has actually laid his documents on the Table, so any Member can go and look at them.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: Would this be a convenient time to break for lunch?

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Mr. Speaker, before you take the suspension, if the Honourable Minister would allow me, I think at some point he had some papers, affidavits, he said he was tabling. But the Serjeant-at Arms was not in the Chamber at the time. I would just like to know if they have been laid on the Table.

The Speaker: They have been laid. They were ordered to be laid on the Table.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: There were two batches, Sir, the second one, the Serjeant-at-Arms was not in the Chamber at that time, so—

The Speaker: He came—

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Could I have a copy of it please, Sir?

The Speaker: Would this be convenient for lunch, or would you rather continue? This is the normal time we take the luncheon break.

Hon. John McLean: Yes, Sir, that is fine with me.

The Speaker: We shall suspend until 2.15 PM.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 1.00 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.33 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Debate continues on Private Member's Motion 7/98, the Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works continuing.

Hon. John McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. When we took the lunch break I had submitted some copies of affidavits that had been supplied regarding this piece of property being questioned. As I said at that time, and I will repeat: The Governor cleared me of any wrongdoing, and therefore this motion should never have been brought to the floor of this House. Once again, although this has been publicised, I will read the letter which was handed to me from His Excellency the Governor, dated 19 May 1998—

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order, was this letter not tabled before?

Hon. John McLean: Mr. Speaker, I have a right to read this letter.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order.

Hon. John McLean: Mr. Speaker, I made a point this morning. I have been accused, I accepted all that has been said about me, and I am not giving way for any more points of order! I want to complete—I would like to complete what I have to say.

The Speaker: Are you just reading the letter?

Hon. John McLean: I was only referring to a letter, Sir, and I was going to read it into the Minutes. That is all I was doing, Sir.

Mr. Linford Pierson: Mr. Speaker, I wonder if the Honourable Member could clarify a point he just made. He said he is not giving way to any more points of order. I think he probably meant elucidation.

Hon. John McLean: The Member is correct, Sir, he knows that.

The Speaker: Please continue.

Hon. John McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Let me refer to this little Book again. I go back to Psalm 27, “The Lord is my light and my salvation, who shall I fear?”

Mr. Speaker, the letter was written to Hon. John McLean, OBE, MLA, JP Minister of Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works, and reads:

“Dear Mr. McLean,

“Crown Grant Block 74A Parcel 89

“Following your request for a review of the procedure followed by Executive Council in arriving at its decision to approve a Crown Grant of the above land to you, I instructed the Attorney General to carry out the review. I have now received the Attorney General’s report.

“In his report, the Attorney General states that he is satisfied that the procedure followed by Executive Council in approving the Crown Grant of this land was correct. The background and issues to be decided by Council were clearly set out and the necessary copy supporting documents were submitted as appendices.”

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order, I am asking whether this document was first read and it is already in the Hansard and is now being read and laid again.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Agriculture.

Hon. John McLean: Mr. Speaker, if I could continue reading this letter.

The Speaker: How many times have we not heard emphasis on any particular point in a debate? I do not have access to the Hansard.

[Addressing the Hon. Minister for Agriculture] You have laid this particular letter on the Table, right?

Hon. John McLean: Mr. Speaker, regardless if this was laid or not, I am defending myself against what allegations have been brought against me in here.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: I am not arguing that, Mr. Speaker, I am asking the question.

Hon. John McLean: Mr. Speaker, I have just asked if I could read the letter.

The Speaker: But you have laid it, and you are not going to lay it again. That is correct. I think that answers—

Hon. John McLean: I do not see it as being necessary to lay it, Sir.

The Speaker: Right. Please continue.

Hon. John McLean: Mr. Speaker, since I was interrupted in the middle of it, may I start the letter over, please?

The Speaker: Yes, you may, go ahead. Start from the first.

Hon. John McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. As I started to point out, this is a letter from the Governor to me dated 19 May 1998. It is addressed to the Hon. John McLean, OBE, MLegislative Assembly, JP, Minister of Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works, and reads:

“Dear Mr. McLean,

“Crown Grant Block 74A Parcel 89

“Following your request for a review of the procedure followed by Executive Council in arriving at its decision to approve a Crown Grant of the above land to you, I instructed the Attorney General to carry out the review. I have now received the Attorney General’s report.

“In his report, the Attorney General states that he is satisfied that the procedure followed by Execu-

Executive Council in approving the Crown Grant of this land was correct. The background and issues to be decided by Council were clearly set out, and the necessary copy supporting documents were submitted as appendices. Having established that the Lands and Survey Department were satisfied as to the adequacy of the evidence supplied, Executive Council then approved the application for a Crown Grant. A transfer of the land to you as executor of the estate of Milton Whitmore Syms (deceased) was then subsequently executed by HE the Governor Mr M E Gore on 19 July 1995.

“The Attorney General’s report states that in the case of Block 74A Parcel 89 the cadastral failed to delineate the boundaries, which indicates that no survey was completed. The Attorney General therefore recommends that a survey should now be carried out in respect of the land, in compliance with Royal Instructions 12(1). The cost of such survey should be borne by you in accordance with clause 2 of the undertaking entered into by you on 22 March 1995. If you have not done so already, I should be grateful if you would give instructions for a survey to be carried out as soon as possible.”

Let me say that, in accordance with His Excellency’s letter, I have already spoken to one of the surveyors on the Island, Mr. Roland Bodden, and we will definitely have the survey. Once again I repeat, if this survey should show that any boundaries are not correct, it is still for someone, if they want to come forward with another claim, to do so. That is not for me to do, sir.

As I pointed out earlier, I am not a criminal. I have never been convicted of a criminal offence, nor do I have any criminal judgment in the Grand Court or any other court, relating to dishonesty, theft or fraudulent matters. I came into this House an honest person and, by God, that is how I hope to leave. The decision to transfer this land to Mr. Whitmore Syms’ estate was a decision of Executive Council, and not mine.

I wish to say again that my interest was declared, because I was aware that I had a will in my hand from the said Mr. Whitmore Syms, but I personally had no reason to go beyond what I did. I did what was right under the laws of this country. Mr. Speaker, I have served my country for 22 years, and I will continue to do so for as long as I can.

Again, I would like to refer to a letter I read earlier. This came from the Attorney General which was written to Mr. Leroy Johnson: “His Excellency the Governor has passed to me a copy of this letter dated 5 February and asked to respond on his behalf. The various allegations made in your letter have been investigated by the RCIP as you are aware. I also understand that over the years you have made various representations to the Registrar of Lands claiming title, but that these claims have not been accepted. You have already instructed attorneys to represent you in this matter and the correct forum for settling this dispute over title to the land would be through the Cayman Islands Courts by way of a civil claim.”

Of course, as I mentioned, this is signed by our Attorney General. I have no problem with that, Mr. Speaker. I would like the Serjeant to lay this on the Table for me.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, may I ask you, on a point of order, whether that document was not laid on the table of this House?

The Speaker: I cannot answer that because I do not know.

Hon. John McLean: Mr. Speaker, I would like to say again to the Members of the Legislative Assembly: Let he who is without sin cast the first stone. I have been accused, I have been ridiculed, but I am happy to know that after so many years in this Legislative Assembly I have done no wrong. I am certain—and I will repeat this—if we check the records of certain people in here, it cannot be compared to John B. McLean. Thank you, sir.

The Speaker: The floor is open for debate. Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause) Does any other Member wish to speak? The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I rise to make my contribution to this motion before the House. Before I make my contribution, Mr. Speaker, I want to preface it with what I consider to be some relevant observations.

I want to comment on the fact that this motion which calls into question the conduct and management of a holder of public office, namely, a Minister of Government, speaks for the sophistication, tolerance, understanding and maturity of our society and our Parliament. Were it other jurisdictions, where people who had reason to believe that their honour was trespassed upon, and were aggrieved in such a way, . . . history and the news media are rife with these kinds of incidents. The matters would not be settled in a debate. So we should give ourselves credit for the mere fact that we are here, willing to debate and argue.

I remind Honourable Members that this motion is not accusing anyone. In this case the Parliament is not a court, it is merely asking that the Member against whom the motion is brought explain to the Parliament his conduct, in what we consider mismanagement, and this irregularity.

And Mr. Speaker, I want to say something else that I have not said before, and I say it because I do not want to cause any problems. I am aware that there are persons in the precincts of this Parliament who are sharing sentiments which are unflattering to Honourable Members in this Assembly. I have heard them, Mr. Speaker, and I have not said anything. I would just like those Members to understand that this Parliament is the Members’ Parliament, and they have a right to their sentiments whatever colour they are! But, Mr. Speaker, it is unheard of if they expect to come here and insult any Honourable Member, irrespective of what their emotions and sentiments may be.

Mr. Speaker, I would just like those persons to know that I have no quarrel with them holding their sentiments. That is their democratic right. But they cannot come into the forum and insult any Member. Our Standing Orders protect and speak strictly against that, Mr. Speaker. I am sure you will make the necessary reminder when you find it reasonable to do so, sir.

Mr. Speaker, I want to say something else before I begin my debate. I heard people in the Common Room talking about 'laying degrees.' Let me say, Mr. Speaker, it is not necessary for us to get down to that because. . . I say this: They better be careful how they lay degrees around me, lest what happened to Conti happens to some people. I boast that I am an academic, and I have good sources of tracing. So let me say this: I do not think it is necessary. This debate does not call for that. We are responsible people.

Mr. Speaker, here is what I see happening. The Parliament is a fraternity, and like all fraternities, we are questioning the conduct of a brother. There is no animosity and no hatred intended, and when the debate is over, the Honourable Members are going to decide on the basis of who presented the most convincing case! And at the end of the day, Mr. Speaker, I hope that we can get on with the business of running the country, and forget about who was on what side. That is the reason some of us insisted that the ballot be held in secret!

And I hear people talking about being here for 22 years, and how everyone knows who they are, but they do not know who Frank McField is. I want to say who the Fourth Elected Member for George Town is. The Fourth Elected Member for George Town, Mr. Speaker, should be held up in this country as a model for persons who are willing and able to turn themselves around. He is the essence, Mr. Speaker, of what we are talking about when we talk about rehabilitating people!

[Some Members: Hear, hear!]

Mr. Roy Boddén: And, Mr. Speaker, you know something else about that Honourable Member? He boasts that he is the only full-time politician! And sometimes he rubs me the wrong way when he comes out with it too, you know, because I believe we are all full-time politicians, but I understand what he is saying. Because he has such a commitment in what he is doing he dared to open an office, and he sits there all day until the late hours of the evening, because I have seen him waiting until his constituents come to him. He pays his own rent, and I have seen him, when the roads are too narrow for him to drive his car, he rides his bicycle. His commitment and service are to be admired, not to be poked fun at!

[Some Members: Hear, hear!]

Mr. Roy Boddén: And Mr. Speaker, let us not forget that whether we like him or not, whether we like his presence here or not, he was put here by 1100 people of George Town, wise and sensible people who, if you talk to them now, will return him in even greater numbers. So I do not want to hear anyone talk about who they are, as against who any of us are, because you know what James Madison said? "If men were angels, there would be no need for government." I do not see any haloes in here, the person speaking not excluded. There are no haloes inside here. And we are using this forum as sensible, decent and civilised people, to come to grips with a member of our fraternity, who we deem may have done something which goes against the fraternal order and the fraternal rules. Mr. Speaker, you may check it out. Every fraternity, every fraternal order, reserves those rights.

Do you know how this would be settled in the old days? You get your seconds and I get my seconds, and there would be a duel! A shoot-out! We have evolved from that—

Hon. Truman Boddén: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order.

POINT OF ORDER

The Speaker: Let me hear your point of order, please.

Hon. Truman Boddén: The Member is not debating this motion. He is off in the area of duelling, and I think he should get back to what is relevant to the motion.

The Speaker: I understand what you are saying, but I have given latitude to other Members, and I would ask that you soon get back to your debate. Please continue.

Mr. Roy Boddén: Certainly, Mr. Speaker. But I am showing and demonstrating that by coming here with this matter, we are responsible, civil and decent. Mr. Speaker, thank you for your indulgence.

Now let me get on with my debate. Would that the Minister of Education, who so tenaciously advised and supported his colleague, the Minister for Lands, was so interested and tenacious in replying to the debate brought here some days ago on the state of education in this country! May I remind that Minister that on that day he swallowed his tongue. Why is it he is so emotional and involved now?

Hon. Truman Boddén: Mr. Speaker, I take a point of order, here, Sir.

POINT OF ORDER

(Misleading)

The Speaker: Let me hear your point of order.

Hon. Truman Boddén: I spoke on education for two solid hours. The fact that I did not speak again is my right! And it—

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, what is the Member's point of order, sir?

Hon. Truman Bodden: Misleading the House! I spoke for two hours—the people of this country know it—saying what was good in the country.

The Speaker: That is not a point of order. Please continue.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I always have faith in the wisdom of the Chair.

This motion—and Mr. Speaker, trust me. I will not be upset by the Minister of Education. I can assure him, I will not let him live down his silence in that debate.

Mr. Speaker, this motion is a reasonable motion, because it calls for an examination and a revocation if, in the discretion of Honourable Members, they deem that the mismanagement and political conduct was of such a level as to demand that. That is within the parameters and bounds of this Parliament. But let me say why we have to view these things as serious, and why we have to be concerned about these kinds of alleged breaches.

I have often remarked in this House that the call to serve and the ultimate election to public service, to public office, is second only to the call to be a fisher of men. I believe that! It is a fundamental principle of public administration and public office, that persons elected to public office must be transparent, accountable, and prepared to rationalise and explain away their actions. Anyone who studied ethics, public administration, would know that public office means you hold in trust for the people who elect you, certain duties and responsibilities, and that these duties and responsibilities should never be breached. And if they are, they will be breached under threat of the severest of sanctions. Presidents have been impeached. Prime Ministers have been kicked out of office. Ministers have been prosecuted. We are saying that we recognise the right of the Parliament to question Members on these occasions.

Mr. Speaker, do you know why this exercise is so important? I will tell you why, without making any allegations or accusations. As my colleague on the other side, the Minister of Education, likes to say when he is poking directly at people, 'Speaking generally,' I will tell you why this exercise here today is so very important. In the Latin American edition of Time Magazine of 22 June 1998, "Corruption: The World Community Arms Itself to Conquer a Pernicious Global Disease. Can it Succeed?" I have prepared a copy for you and a copy of the article to lay on the Table, if it pleases the Serjeant to come and accept them.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I want to draw a reference in this article. I am going to draw several references. I want to draw the first reference—and unfortunately, one cannot clearly see the page numbers, but it will be on page 18 of the document you have, Sir. You should find it opposite the page that has the caption, "Ousted," with a picture of Benazir Bhutto. Do you have it, sir?

The Speaker: Page 17 is the last page here.

Mr. Roy Bodden: I will lay it on the Table when I am through, sir. The abuse of public office for private gain is how corruption is defined by an organisation called "Transparency International." I want to say a little bit about this organisation, because it is now established in some 60 countries, and was set up by a German man by the name of Mr. Peter Eigen, who was a former senior executive of the World Bank.

Why do we have to be concerned? Because, according to this organisation, 'Transparency International,' this business of using public office for private gain is becoming endemic, and organisations such as the United Nations, the World Bank, and Transparency International have committed themselves to rooting out these kinds of odious practices, and they are extracting from countries and governments a world-wide commitment to be vigilant.

I also want to draw reference from the final report of the first Inter-American Conference on the problems of fraud and corruption in government, held in Miami, Florida, 4-6 December 1989. I want to crave the indulgence of the House to quote briefly—and I am prepared to have the relevant copies of this made to lay on the Table, but I am going to quote briefly from this document, to draw and set the tone for what I am going to say later, which concerns all of us, Mr. Speaker. I am not making any accusations. I am just making some general references as to why we have to be concerned, and why this Parliament, as a fraternity, has to be vigilant in the conduct, behaviour and management of its Members and Ministers.

"Effective control of corruption has to start with leadership positions. When a leader does not understand the concept of honesty, or the difference between his own benefit and the benefit of society, there is little hope for success in the rest of the government structure. In these circumstances, corruption will continue to pervert the entire system, from the highest levels to the lowest. Public officials will create a superfluous need for the sole purpose of self-benefit without considering the common good. In addition to demanding honest leadership, control of corruption requires high standards of ethical and moral conduct on the part of all public servants, so as to demonstrate the political will of the government. All public servants should be required to publicly accept their responsibility to effectively and efficiently manage the resources at their charge, and to be fully accountable for them. They should be able to provide an explanation for their actions that may be verified at any time."

Mr. Speaker, with that underpinning, I know that bringing this motion to this House at this time was the right approach. I heard the Honourable Minister who spoke for himself, question why this motion was here. The Minister, who prides himself on the fact that he has been here for some 22 years (far longer than I will be, because it is not my ambition to serve that long), who prides himself on the title 'Father of the House,' should know that this motion was accepted by the Chair. The Chair deemed it appropriate, so he should not be questioning the efficacy and the reason why this motion is here. The Chair, in its wisdom, saw no harm in having this matter aired, and I remind Honourable Members that this is not a trial or an inquisition. This is merely an airing of differences of opinion between those of us on this side who believe there is reason to allege some misconduct and some mismanagement.

I want also to take this opportunity to articulate this point: Misconduct and mismanagement are not exclusive to the dealings with this piece of land, because let us not forget the whole business of the longest Finance Committee in the history of this country—let us not forget that, and all the circumstances surrounding that whole acrimonious and lengthy debate! So while the transactions surrounding this piece of land are a focus, they are not the only focus!

Mr. Speaker, if election to public office means that we set ourselves up in a position where we are not prepared to be held accountable, where we are not prepared to be held to a high level of performance, where our conduct is not measured by the strictest of yardsticks, where we are not prepared to be transparent, then we need to tell our countrymen. If that is the desire, the Honourable Legislative Assembly of the Cayman Islands ceases to be a democratic institution, but falls under some other rubric. The essence of any democracy, and particularly a democracy in the Westminster system, lies in the fact that all Honourable Members can be brought to account, and that is what we are doing here!

This motion talks about political conduct, the actions and management of a Member; and it calls for the revocation of the position entrusted by other Honourable Members to that Member! So if it is deemed that there is a breach of trust, we are calling for the revocation. We are exercising our democratic right in disciplining that Member, who is also a member of the fraternity of politicians who are Members of the Legislative Assembly. There is nothing wrong with this motion. It is calling for just that. And it is taking place in a forum of civilised debate.

I do not know about anyone else, but I certainly did not expect to come here and debate this matter like a bunch of zombies or half-dead people because land—LAND—is the essence of all wealth, and in the Cayman Islands, we know the sentiments that attach to land!

The query was also raised by the Minister as to why this matter was not taken in the court. I do not have to remind that Minister that to pursue a case like this, you are looking at, at least, $80,000 to $100,000, because this would undoubtedly eventually wind up in the hands of the most eminent of QCs, advised by a barrister, with all the research. What about those persons who do not have access to that kind of money? This is not like the United States, where lawyers take cases on commission. If you do not pay here, you cannot play. It is as simple as that, because no one works here off promissory notes. No one works here on the basis of, 'If I win, we win.' No, no, sir!

And it goes beyond that! The mere fact that it comes here should serve to reinforce all and sundry in the community that the Parliament is serving its purpose, because a serious public grievance is being aired. So what is the Minister saying? Is he above reproach? Is he resentful of the fact that he has been asked to account for his actions? Is he insulted by the fact that his fraternal brothers dare question his actions and conduct on a certain occasion?

I was tempted at the beginning to say that I have never heard of, read about or witnessed so much emotion since Prometheus stole fire from the gods and gave it to man. There has not been so much Cain raised on earth since then. And if you listened to some people from that side, you would believe that we are committing some great crime by questioning them. So I want to know, are they Zeus? Or Hercules? Or Atlas? since they are resentful of people who are asking them to explain their actions? Documents have been laid and read, and I am going to say some more about that as I get into that section of the debate, because there are those of us on this side who are blessed with God-given common sense and discretion. And we know the meaning and nuances of words, the difference between being procedurally correct and documents being examined scrupulously and found to be in order. Therein, Mr. Speaker, lies the crux of the debate. I am going to come to that.

Mr. Speaker, we do not have any lawyers advising us on this side. But I want people to know that we are cognisant of everything that happens around us, and we are together, and that is what makes us such a powerful and potent democratic and transparent group!

I have to marvel at the Minister of Education, who has suddenly seen the efficacy and the sense, and has suddenly cultivated instinct, to jump on the transparency bandwagon! Were it left to me, I would push him off! But you know what? There is something inside me that says, 'No, don't do that.' For the best thing that can happen is that he, one of these days, will come to his senses and admit he was wrong. And while I am on this point, I want to say something else. The only people I know who have sentimental attachments to communism are over on that side, because the rest of the world read the obituary for communism long ago!

POINT OF ORDER

(Imputing improper motives)

Hon. Truman Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I object to that, on a point of order, sir. He is saying that Members on this side have sentiments of communism, when we have stood firmly against communism. No one on this side has any sentiments of communism. It is impugning an improper motive under Standing Order 35(4), which says, “No Member shall impute improper motives to another Member.”

The Speaker: Honourable Member, I would ask you to withdraw the communism association, please.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, the Member did not give me a chance to explain what I was going to say. I hope—

The Speaker: That has been happening all morning, but please withdraw it, because that is really where trouble is coming throughout this meeting.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, if it pleases the Chair, I have listened to the Member, and the Member rose before I finished my sentence, sir!

The Speaker: You are absolutely correct, but that is what has been going on for the last several days.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, you know what? I withdraw that statement.

Let me put it this way—

The Speaker: Thank you. Please continue.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, from my studies, and from my observation of persons' speech and behaviour in here, there are no persons on this side so preoccupied and so interested in communism that they will not let it rest. The world knows that the obituary for communism was read long ago, and that it has been buried, and the Cayman Islands should note that for years every time a certain politician in this country does not like someone he accuses them of being a communist! And every time that Minister opens a closet, he sees the bogeyman! But when he looks in the mirror one day, he is going to see that the bogeyman is himself!

Mr. Speaker, I want to say clearly and unequivocally: I believe that the intentions of all Honourable Members in here are pure, and while I am not the longest-serving Member, I would stick up for my colleagues and say that to the best of my knowledge there are no communists on the Backbench. I am not a Government Minister, and I am not on Executive Council, and I would like to give them the benefit of the doubt, too! So let us get away from this old immaturity of laying those kinds of accusations at one another, because that serves no one any good, and it goes against the best interests of the fraternity. We might say—

The Speaker: I thank you very much for that.

Mr. Roy Bodden: We might say of each other, we are less than we should be as a representative of the people, or we are not as efficient as we should be, or we are not as educated as we should be; but I do not believe any Honourable Member in this House is now, or ever was, of the colour red (or the colour pink, as it is euphe-mistically put), communist or socialist. I do not believe that, Mr. Speaker!

And as one who suffered for that for years, I detest that kind of behaviour! You know why? Because I have my differences with Members and Ministers. I have it right now! But I would never, ever be so unfair or unjust or uncharitable to them that I give them that kind of label. I would put on them labels that they deserve. They are not efficient. I do not even tell them, like the Minister for Education tells me that I am defunct, I do not even tell them they are defunct!

I am not even worried about all the threats I heard about people who say they are going to lay their degrees when they get up to speak, because if the person really goes through with that, he has enough degrees for all of us, so by the time he is finished laying his degrees, I hope those of us inside here who don't have any now take one off the Table that he lays them on at that point, and then every one of us will have a degree!

[laughter]

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, that bit of humour aside—because sometimes, Mr. Speaker, that is nice. I want the Honourable House to know that is well-intentioned, but that does not detract from the seriousness of my debate, because I am talking about the fact that public interest, public action, appears to be in conflict with private interest and private action. That is the essence, Mr. Speaker! That is the essence, and a fundamental argument. I pose the question, why did the Minister, in handling this land grant, not treat it the same way he treated the land grant made to Mr. Aamon Ebanks? And Mr. Lester McLean, some years ago when he brought those two claims, Crown Grants, to the Finance Committee. Why did he not bring his the same way? Let me tell you something. Mr. Speaker, I crave your indulgence to tell the House about Julius Caesar. Julius Caesar said—and I am going to give the little surrounding anecdote. “I wish my wife to be, not so much as suspected”—I want to repeat that. Julius Caesar said he wished his wife to be not so much as suspected. You know what he did to her, Mr. Speaker? When someone told him his wife was having lunch with Claudius, Julius Caesar divorced her! He did not accuse her of doing anything wrong, but he said it was the principle of the exercise. He insisted—and that phrase among public administrators and among academics who stress ethics and the ethical side of responsibility—anyone who attends a course in public administration and public ethics will be familiar with that statement of Julius Caesar. Indeed, Mr. Speaker, that little anecdote has formed the basis of many an introductory lecture in public ethics and public administration, and it should serve us all today.

I want to go a little further, Mr. Speaker. I do not know how many people have read Henry Fielding's novel Tom Jones. If you read the novel Tom Jones, many people say it is a very explicit novel, but purists and people who have a sense of morality and a deep appreciation for literature also find it instructive and entertaining in other areas. And I want to read a brief passage where he is talking about prudence. One of the characters in the novel, called Petty Blyfill, is justifying the advice of Squire Allworthy, and he says, "Prudence is indeed the duty which we owe to ourselves. And if we will be so much our own enemies as to neglect it, we are not to wonder if the world is deficient in discharging their duty to us. For when a man lays the foundation of his own ruin, others will, I am afraid, be too apt to build upon it."

So Mr. Speaker, I revert now to my original question: Why? Can the Minister explain his action or lack thereof, for not bringing this land grant, involving his own self to the same forum in which he brought the land grants to Mr. Aamon Ebanks, and Mr. Lester McLean which, Mr. Speaker, happened just two months apart? Just a few months later! Why did he not bring that?

He gave a lot of reasons, he gave a lot of excuses, he laid a lot of stuff on the Table, but he did not lay anything on the Table, nor he did not give any reason or excuse as to that difference in behaviour. So it is well within Honourable Members' rights to question the disparity. Why? He could have declared his interest to the Honourable House, the same way he declared it to the Executive Council! Indeed, the two bodies have some common members!

There are those of us who say that we understand what Caesar said when he says that he wants his wife not to be so much as suspected! And the Minister's not doing that leaves much to be justified. And he cannot claim that he does not leave himself open to insinuation, conjecture, suspicion—or worse!

I remind those detractors who would have a beef with those of us who brought and support this motion, that we are being charitable. We are asking only for an explanation. We are not levelling any allegations. This whole question of transparency—I have to say that leadership styles differ. Leadership styles—I recognise that leadership styles differ among certain people. I do not know how long I am going to be around in these hallowed Chambers. It is not for me to say, because I do not, in spite of how I might sound sometimes, hold my own fate in my hands. I am ever grateful to the people of Bodden Town, who allowed me to represent them for so long.

And I want to say this, because this is an important time to interject: Do you see this kind of behaviour? I worry when I hear the Minister of Education get up, as he has so often done, and say that certain people have to stay in the Parliament because they do not have anything else to go to; that they are not successful, that they are losers, and that they are not millionaires. Mr. Speaker, if those comments—and he makes them as he talks about 'speaking generally'—if those comments are intended for me, I want to say this to that Minister: Politics is but my mistress. Teaching is my wife. And when I tire of my mistress, I shall return (as many people do in real life) to my wife!

[laughter]

Mr. Roy Bodden: So, Mr. Speaker, if it is intended for me, let the Honourable Minister ponder what I have said. And when I return to my 'wife,' I will be sure he will not have any say in the matter as to whether she accepts me or not, because the qualifications I hold are not limited to jurisdictions, domains and organisations he controls, thank heaven!

But you know what, Mr. Speaker? It goes deeper than that, because if people are not mature, and they hear those kinds of comments and believe them, they will interpret them to mean that they should make the best of the situation that is here. I worry about those kinds of things because when they are misinterpreted, it could convey the message that you are to use your position of public trust. Mr. Speaker, honey will catch flies; fools will easily fall into traps.

Some people better be careful. Would that they were so quick to get up to the charges laid by the First Elected Member for George Town when he was talking about the sad state of education.

Let me return to my point. Honourable Members will have to question the disparity in the action taken by the Minister in dealing with other cases as against dealing with his own. And you know something? I find it regrettable, and, in a sense, ill-advised, that in such an emotive issue officialdom was dragged in. All that the letter from His Excellency the Governor is saying is that the procedure—emphasis on 'procedure'—followed by the Executive Council was correct. There has never been any question as to the rightness or wrongness of the procedure followed by the Executive Council. We know the procedure was right! We know that! But I pose the question: Was the information correct? Were the supporting documents scrutinised and examined? Were the affidavits checked to determine the authenticity of the information? No! The letter does not say anything about that! It says "the procedure followed." We have no quarrel with that!

I want to make this point, too, sir, regarding these documents. They smack of political incestuousness, because—signed by his Permanent Secretary, witnessed by his colleague, a Minister, . . . political incestuousness, Mr. Speaker! Why was that done?

Hon. Truman Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I take a point of order, sir.

The Speaker: May I hear your point of order?

POINT OF ORDER
(Improper imputations)

Hon. Truman Bodden: The point of order under which I am rising is 'improper imputations' under the same 35(4). Incest is a criminal offence, and he is imputing that in this House. There is very clearly a letter from the police saying there has been no criminal offence, and he must withdraw this 'incestuousness' statement he has made.

The Speaker: Honourable Member—

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, let me pose a question to the Honourable Minister through the Chair. If I said it was political craziness, would that be interpreted to mean that the people were crazy? Or that the political action was crazy?

The Speaker: The Minister of Education.

Hon. Truman Bodden: Mr. Speaker, if he is saying that the act is incestuous, that is a criminal offence, carrying a very heavy penalty. He must withdraw it!

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I know the Minister is a lawyer, and he did not study literature and language. It is a metaphor! Political incestuousness! It is a metaphor! It is a metaphoric expression, Mr. Speaker!

The Speaker: May I ask the Honourable Member, since it is legally a criminal offence, would you withdraw it?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker—

The Speaker: Withdraw it and use your own other word, but—

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, you know that you and I have always had the greatest of relationships. I have a particular manner of speech that all Honourable Members in this House know—so much so that my good friend, the First Elected Member for West Bay, calls me the 'chef of flowery language!' If you take away my ability to express myself as I have been accustomed to, I am being emasculated and made impotent. I might as well pick up my attache case and go back to my constituents and tell them I cannot represent them, because I am speaking as reflects my level of education, my commitment; the sentiments, and the fever and emotion I feel. I do not have to tell you that there is more than a little of the Latin in me. If you tell me this now, Mr. Speaker, I might as well pack it up!

The Speaker: Just let me say this, Honourable Member. You are speaking to the Members of this Honourable House, and to the listening public. I admire your ability to use these phrases, but not all of us have the ability to interpret them as you mean them, therefore I ask that you withdraw it.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, with the greatest of respect, sir—and I would only do this for the Honourable Speaker—I will withdraw it. Let me—

The Speaker: I thank you sincerely.

Mr. Roy Bodden: I have withdrawn it with a heavy heart, sir.

The Speaker: I appreciate your doing it.

Mr. Roy Bodden: But I am going to explain it, Mr. Speaker, in a different way.

The Speaker: Go right ahead.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Perhaps this will be more potent and more incriminating on the person speaking.

For a Minister to think so little of his Permanent Secretary and his colleagues that he would involve them to that extent in this matter—which he must have known would have been controversial—smacks of total disrespect and disregard for anyone, and seems to me to be nothing but self-serving.

The Speaker: Anyway, I thank you for withdrawing it. Please continue.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I have to remark again that the commitment of the Minister of Education in this motion goes far beyond any fraternal commitment. And I wonder if he is not faced with a certain grim foreboding that his own political future may be at stake.

I have to emphasise that there must be a point at which public duty and private interest are clearly defined and demarcated. I have to emphasise that the call to represent a constituency, an electorate, is a serious call. The trust our constituents and representatives place in us is tantamount to the trust a congregation places in its shepherd, its pastor or priest. To betray that trust is to invoke the greatest of sanctions. Let me say this, because I am going to come back to this again and again: In my opinion, the Minister was ill-advised, and showed an absolute lack of discretion; because were I faced with the situation in which there was a claim by a certain sector of my constituents, similar to this, I would have to extricate myself from the position. I would have to relinquish my claim to the point where I would insist that the matter be settled in a neutral court and a neutral jurisdiction. I would not be caught in the position where it appeared that I used my office to defend and protect my interest. That would be too great a conflict and, at best, the charge of conflict of interest could be laid.

I do not have to preach that it is a breach of trust! Breach of the fundamental trust placed in us by our constituents! When people come and mark their ballots, they do so with the understanding that we are going to take care of their interests, that we are going to place their interests above ours; that we are going to make the sacrifices for them. That is our understanding, too. That is why we put ourselves up.

Mr. Speaker, I say to my colleagues, the First Elected Member for George Town and the Third Elected Member for George Town—because I went with them on some of their rounds: I admire your commitment! I saw firsthand some of the sacrifices they make, and it must pain them personally! I see the deprivations! I am not talking about handouts. I see the time they put in, because their constituency is so broad—references, dealing with problems, mediating—I too have some knowledge of that, although my constituency is much smaller. Althou I do not want to refer to everyone, I admire my colleague, the First Elected Member for West Bay. From the time he and I came in, I have admired him. Going with the flow, Mr. Speaker. And I know sometimes—I saw a guy some years ago in Canada with a T-shirt, ‘Give ‘til it hurts!’ I know it must hurt sometimes. It has to!

That is par for the course, though. We understand that when we set ourselves up. And all of us are prepared to do a certain amount of that but, Mr. Speaker, what is obnoxious, what is detestable, what is wrong, is when we take the behaviour to the other extreme and say, ‘Ah, because I am here, and this is available, I will make use, I will avail myself.’ I hold the view that the trust and faith the people put in us when they elevated us to these lofty positions should never be breached. That is why I like the motto of the Marines: “Death before dishonor,” because that is dishonour to the highest degree.

If we are prudent we will extricate ourselves from any position which can be claimed to be a conflict of interest. But I see that is not the commitment, unfortunately, of many people who profess to be representatives. I want to lay this misrepresentation to rest. The length of tenure of a person in this Honourable Parliament, Mr. Speaker, certainly is not indicative, in every way, of their success in being a representative. There are people here who have not been back to their constituency since they were elected two years ago. So let us not get on this holier-than-thou trip, and flog out the years we have been here, saying ‘This is a testimony to my success.’

On the other hand, there are newcomers here who make themselves available anytime, every time. I say that to say that this motion is not a time to be self-righteous. As I have said before, I do not see anyone wearing a halo inside here, Mr. Speaker.

The business of trust is a serious business. I am sure you share these same sentiments, because on occasion we have spoken, if not directly to this, in similar veins. You know what I would love to see, Mr. Speaker? What I think is absolutely necessary? I would love to see, at the beginning of every election, seminars held—for new Members especially, but for all Members who deem they could benefit from it—and have resource people come to us. We could use some of the more experienced Members, because we have a lot of Members here, Mr. Speaker who by virtue of their experience and tenure can offer us leadership. Yourself, Mr. Speaker. Things like responsibility, ethical behaviour, trust. That is my particular interest. I would welcome the opportunity to develop something like that. Perhaps we should begin by mentoring some of the young aspirants, because it is only by practising this kind of behaviour, that we are going to have complete transparency, and that our democracy is going to be healthy.

There have been occasions in this Parliament when I have said, ‘If we are not careful, we are going the way of Nigeria and Ghana and all that.’ And I worry about that, because I would not like to read or hear anyone say that the Cayman Islands is a kleptocracy! A kleptocracy is a place where every Tom, Dick and Harry elected to public office believes they have to steal their way to wealth and millions.

I want this to be a Parliament of which I can be proud, of which all of us can be proud! I want this to be a fraternity which we can boast we are members of! And the people can be proud of us, the people who elect us can hold their heads up! I would not be so naïve—and I want to dispel this notion now—as to think that we are going to agree on everything, every time. So perhaps there is a lesson for those people who have their fingers in every pie—and I know them! Persons such as those who say they are a director of 800 companies; who like to boast that they are so successful, while the rest of us are losers and defunct! There is one thing, one objective I have set for myself when I leave here, and that is that I leave with the good name with which I came. That is all. Simple. And, if I have to say that myself, I believe that is the objective all Honourable Members should try to seek to set.

I want to revert to the conflict of interest and the discrepancy, and I said I found it regrettable and ill-advised. I have to draw a reference to this—and that it was inconsiderate and indiscrete, and a lack of sound common sense to involve persons close, because what kind of reference would I give, if I present a reference for my brother? I mean, give me a break! What would one expect? And my brother is the best guy in the world, but I would have to question anyone who brought me a reference from their brother. That is why on some applications it stipulates that if the reference is from a family member, a business partner or anyone of any close connection, the reference will be discounted.

I like to think that the Government, officialdom, should be above certain fray. I am sad to see that the office of the Honourable Attorney General was drawn into this fray. This whole notion of collective responsibility—I think sometimes it is over-interpreted. I believe, in matters such as this, it is best to take as neutral and as outside a course as we can. You must not impose favours on people because they will give a favour. We are not saying that anything untoward was done, because we do not believe, in this case, it was done.

The Speaker: Would this be a convenient time to take the afternoon break?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Yes, sir.

The Speaker: We shall suspend for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.43 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.07 PM

The Speaker: Proceedings are resumed. Debate continues on Private Member's Motion No. 7/98, the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town continuing.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, prior to the suspension I was making the point that it would have been good to have the matter independently reviewed and investigated by external sources. That would put to rest any question of neutrality and partiality and sentiments or sympathy and closeness.

I do not believe that this quandary is unique to this Parliament, and to us at this time. That is not excuse enough for us to just accept what has transpired or to accept without questioning the Minister's account of what happened.

We must be satisfied—and the Minister must demonstrate—that in holding public office, and in dealing with this matter, he has done all in his power to be objective. He must do so to the point where the public is satisfied. If he cannot do so by himself, he should enlist the advice, the power and attention of his good friend—and now obvious advisor in this matter—the Minister for Education, who will no doubt add his years of expertise to the task.

Not quite 100 years ago, Lord Acton, who was one of the founders of the modern scientific school of history, remarked to his students—in fact, he urged them, “To suffer no man and no cause to escape the undying penalty which history has the power to inflict upon wrongdoing.” I am a believer in Acton, and while he is most popularly quoted regarding corruption, the quotation I just gave is no less significant, for we do not wish this kind of action to become an immutable part of our political culture. That is why there are those of us who dare to question the efficacy of this action at this time. We are not convinced that all is above board. We remain to be convinced that the Minister has removed himself far enough from these happenings, and we are saying that it casts a shadow on the fraternity of politicians and people's representatives.

In soccer—in football—and we have just witnessed the World Cup, there is an expression. It carries a serious penalty, and you don't have to be performing on the field to receive this sanction. It is a penalty described as 'bringing the game into ill repute.' FIFA, the world governing body, reserves the strictest of sanctions for those guilty of such charge.

I am saying that the actions of the Minister, the conduct of the Minister on this particular occasion, raises the concern of Honourable Members who have a vested interest in the maintenance of the fraternity's continuing good image. We reserve the right to use this forum to question his actions. And not only his actions, because by inference, we have to include and involve his good friend and advisor, the Minister for Education.

[inaudible comments]

Mr. Roy Bodden: I raise the question—I am not worried about the communist. That Minister has called me a communist from the time I was born, almost! And I am still around. So I am not worried about that. My credibility at this point is as good as his.

One has to question the relationship, because on a document that has been circulated, there is a post office box—866—which, when traced, has a direct bearing upon the Minister for Education. I wish to know what the relationship is. Was that office contracted from the beginning for advice? I would expect that when the Minister gets up, he will explain to the Honourable House his relationship. Or is his relationship, as Sir Patrick Hastings, the distinguished Edwardian barrister, said years ago, “Never defend a man unless you know he is guilty.”

It is not unusual for some people to be unresponsive when they cannot deal with the barrage of the moment. Holders of public office are accountable for their decisions and actions, and must be prepared to submit themselves to whatever scrutiny is appropriate for their office. It is coincidental that this morning these guidelines of conduct for Members of the Legislative Assembly were circulated. I would like to crave the Chair's indulgence to reflect upon some of these, because I find it very relevant, and extremely appropriate at this time. “Selflessness: Holders of public office should take decisions solely in terms of the public interest. They should not do so in order to gain financial or other material benefits for themselves, their family, or their friends.”

“Accountability: Holders of public office are accountable for their decisions and actions to the public and must submit themselves to whatever scrutiny is appropriate to their office.” How relevant! How timely! How appropriate, on this occasion! I am happy that the Minister of Education is following along as I am reading.

“Openness: Holders of public office should be as open as possible about all the decisions and actions that they take. They should give reasons for their decisions and restrict information only when the wider public interest clearly demands.”

“Honesty: Holders of public office have a duty to declare any private interests relating to their public duties and to take steps to resolve any conflicts arising in a way that protects the public interest.”

I shall conclude this reference by reading the second paragraph under leadership: “The primary duty of Members is to their country and their constituents. They should undertake no actions in the Legislative Assembly or Government which conflict with that duty.”

In the debate in this Honourable House—and I am a true schoolteacher, because I have a penchant for research and for keeping records. On Thursday, 14 September 1995, this is what the Honourable Minister of Education had to say in a debate: “So Madam Speaker, in real life, what we come back to is really the integrity of the people who run the finances of the country. This Government has responsible Members and Ministers in Executive Council and it has men of fiscal integrity.” I do not think anyone can safely and truly question that the Government is made up of men of integrity, made up of decent men, both Members and Ministers. But as I understand it—and I am clearly excluding officialdom—you cannot claim situational ethics. You cannot claim appearance ethics. Integrity should be a lasting quality. It should be a quality which applies on every occasion, or never.

Integrity is an umbrella harbouring many facets of behaviour, of sentiments. Included in that is conflict of interest. If the Minister of Agriculture had been properly advised by his friend, the Minister of Education, he would have brought this matter to the Finance Committee of this Honourable Legislative Assembly to be debated and examined. That was an abnegation of responsibility on their part, for which they cannot—

Hon. Truman Boddén: Mr. Speaker, I am taking a point of order. Here, once again, the same section of the Standing Orders, 35(4).

The Speaker: Let me hear your point of order, please.

POINT OF ORDER

(Misleading)

Hon. Truman Boddén: Misleading. Mr. Speaker, there was no duty, until the Governor's Vesting of Lands (Dispositions) Law, 1997, that came in about over two years later, to bring any dispositions to this House. The first one has just been published in the newspaper. So it is wrong to impute that there was any obligation to bring dispositions to this House before then.

Mr. Roy Boddén: Mr. Speaker, I will allow you to make your ruling, sir, and then I will have to say what I have to say on the Minister's—

The Speaker: What the Minister has said is correct. It was not mandatory. It could have been brought voluntarily, but it was not mandatory that it be brought until that time. So I would like you to—

Mr. Roy Boddén: Mr. Speaker, I said that it was an abnegation of responsibility. I did not imply, nor did I say that it was mandatory that they bring it here. I am now saying, would the Honourable Minister, when he gets up to speak—because I am not giving way on punitive explanations again, sir, with due respect. I will always be respectful of the Chair.

Would the Honourable Minister, if he has to rise again, rise on a genuine point of order?

Let me say this. I am most civil in my debate. If what the Honourable Minister has just said is correct, then can the Honourable Minister explain the disparity in behaviour between the bringing of the claims of Mr. Aamon Ebanks and Mr. Lester McLean to the Finance Committee, and the omission or failure to bring Mr. John McLean's claim to the same Finance Committee?

[Some members: Hear, hear!]

Mr. Roy Boddén: I want to repeat that—because, as a former Member used to say, repetition bears emphasis. If what the Minister for Education has just said [is correct], then when it is the Minister's turn to speak, can he explain to the House their failure to bring the claim of the Minister of Agriculture, which can be perceived as a conflict of interest?

Why did they not bring that claim to this Honourable House in the same way they did the claims for Mr. Aamon Ebanks and Mr. Lester McLean for the Honourable Members to peruse and decide upon? That can be classed as nothing but a serious abnegation of responsibility. And whoever was responsible gave bad advice, and I hope they were offered no financial reward for that bad advice.

The Speaker: Before we go on, let me say once again, what the Honourable Minister for Education has said, the law has changed since the time this one came to the House. You are saying you felt they had a moral obligation, not a legal obligation. Is that correct?

Mr. Roy Boddén: Yes, Mr. Speaker. A moral obligation.

The Speaker: Thank you. Please continue.

Mr. Roy Boddén: I am saying it was bad political management, to handle it that way. I remind Honourable Members that justice must not only be done, but it must be seen to be done. That is one of the points we are arguing: That justice must manifestly be seen to be done. They have failed to deliver a moral obligation, and it is a dismal failure, for which there can be no excuse for those two Ministers who boast on numerous occasions of their seniority in this House! Who chide and castigate us children of a lesser god!

I am tempted to tell the story of Tarbaby, but lest it be misinterpreted, I am not going to do that on this occasion. [Members' Laughter] And my colleagues are encouraging me not to do it, Mr. Speaker, and I won't do it. I will leave that for some other time.

I repeat: We are not prepared to make sacrifices on points of principle. We contend that this is a serious point of principle, and that it speaks eloquently about the root cause of the problem, which we deem to be the reluctance on the part of some people to subject themselves to that accountability and transparency which must follow the public office they hold in trust for the people.

I hope that the Minister of Education is cataloguing these points and preparing himself to reply to them. I am happy that the House is past the stage where when certain people unleash certain threats we cave in. We are not prepared to cater to, nor will we accommodate any longer those who are facilitators of the symptoms, rather than solutions to the problems. At a time when the buzzwords in this Parliament and outside these environs are 'reform' and 'transparency,' we wish to shed these old ways of behaving. We wish to set ourselves clearly above certain insinuations. Once we have departed from those ways, it is a parting to which we shall never return. It will be plain to all and sundry, before this debate is over, which Honourable Members have the will and vitality to stick to this declared task.

MOMENT OF INTERRUPTION—4.30 PM

The Speaker: May I interrupt you, please? We have reached the moment of interruption. The time is now 4.30 PM. I would entertain a motion for the adjournment of this House.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, it had been agreed by some Honourable Members, . . . it was mooted yesterday afternoon by me that we would try to carry on late to dispose of some of the business of the House. We are approaching the weekend, and some Honourable Members have commitments. So we would appreciate if you put it to the vote as to whether or not we should carry on until 6.00 PM, as was discussed among some of us.

The Speaker: What is the agreed time? Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman Bodden: Mr. Speaker, we are happy to go on until 6.00 PM.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 10(2)

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, that being the case, I would have to move the suspension of Standing Order 10(2) for the Honourable House to go on beyond the normal hour of 4.30, and I so move.

The Speaker: Do we have a seconder? The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I second that.

The Speaker: The motion has been moved and seconded. Those in favour of the House continuing until 6.00 PM, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 10(2) SUSPENDED.

The Speaker: Debate will continue with the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I was saying that Honourable Members will have a chance to prove and show the extent of their will and their desire to see right prevail.

I want to wind my presentation toward a conclusion. As usual, I will take my time and be as deliberate as I can. It is not necessary for me to repeat. I will move on into fresh areas, and lay new challenges.

I refer now to the Caymanian Compass, the issue of Thursday, 28 May 1998, in which, on page 2—and I am sorry I do not have a copy to make available to you, but it was public knowledge, and it appeared in the Caymanian Compass. All Honourable Members will no doubt have read it. It is entitled, "Attorney General's probe clears land grant by Executive Council to Minister." I wish to draw Honourable Members' reference to that section of the report where the Minister was made aware of the recommendation by the Honourable Attorney General that a survey be carried out in respect of the land, in compliance with Royal Instructions. In his statement, the Minister said when these rumours began, "I requested His Excellency the Governor to carry out a review. His letter fully clears my name. I have requested the Lands & Survey Department to survey the property." I notice a disparity. The Minister, before he concluded his contribution, said he has entered into some agreement with a private land surveyor (Roland Bodden) to survey the land. My question is, Why, since he was instructed from 28 May 1998 to have the land surveyed, and since one Honourable Member in this House brought a motion requesting the survey be done within fourteen days, why is the Minister now telling us that the survey will be done in due course?

Hon. Truman Bodden: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order, this is misleading the House.

POINT OF ORDER

The Speaker: Your point of order, please.

Hon. Truman Bodden: The Minister for Agriculture specifically said that the letter retaining the private surveyor was 28 May 1998, and while he did not lay a copy on the Table, it is here. So it is not correct to say that he is just now asking for the survey to be carried out. When he comes back, I will show him this letter, and if he wants to give a copy to the Member, he can.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, if the Minister of Education is using that letter to defend, he ought to lay that letter [on the Table].

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, the Minister would oblige the Honourable House by laying that letter on the Table, since we, the Honourable Members, have no recourse, and had no knowledge of the existence of that letter in the Chamber at this time.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, are you in a position to lay it, or do you have to wait for the Minister for Agriculture?

Hon. Truman Bodden: Mr. Speaker, it is here, but I would have to wait until the Minister comes. He can decide if he wants to lay it. It is really not—

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, any time a Minister of Government uses a document—this is in the Orders, if you care to look—he must lay that on the Table when he reads it out.

Hon. Truman Bodden: Mr. Speaker, the Minister did say, did give the date that he employed Roland Bodden & Co., and that is what the Member was stating—

The Speaker: That is clearly in the Hansard.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: That is clearly in the Hansard, and the Minister used it. The Minister of Agriculture used it; the Minister of Education used it; now they must lay it on the Table, when a Member asks for it.

The Speaker: If that had been asked while the Minister was in the Chamber, I am sure he would have laid it. Can we not wait until he returns?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, with respect to the Chair, I am not above retracting my statement and asking excuse if what I said was misinterpreted, but bear in mind that I did not have the benefit of that letter, and I was just going by—

The Speaker: I fully understand, yes.

Mr. Roy Bodden: So I did not intend any detriment or any mischief.

Perhaps, now that the Minister is back, he would consider laying it on the Table, or instructing his good friend and advisor to lay it on the Table, sir.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works. Thank you.

Do you wish to continue, or do you want to wait until it arrives?

Mr. Roy Bodden: No, Mr. Speaker, I will continue, because I want to make an important point.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, please continue.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, it has always been my position in this Honourable House to be straightforward and forthright, and sometimes I am tempted, and I get carried away, like most other Honourable Members in the cut and thrust of debate. But let me state for the record that I am not malicious. I am not mischievous, and I am not vindictive, and I do not need to be in this particular issue because there is enough overwhelming evidence here for the case the Minister should answer to. So I resent the intrusion of his friend and advisor to cast me in a bad light, and I remind that Honourable Minister that he has been doing that almost from the inception of his political life—certainly extending back to 1979.

Every time he looks, Mr. Speaker, I am behind him. He sees my shadow over him like a condor. I do not have to resort to mischievousness to get advantage. I have 'advantaged' him now!

I am going to hasten my conclusion, because I want to touch on some profound matters. On 27 November 1996, at the swearing-in ceremony of Honourable Members to this present Parliament, the Minister of Agriculture got up and took off on a tirade and barrage against the Member speaking and Team Cayman, and he read Psalm 33:8, and he made a statement—yeah! Psalm 35. And he made a reference—when I got up on a point of order—and he made a statement which I want to remind him of now. He said someone told him that when you throw a stone in the pigpen, he who squeals is he who got hit! Inferring—he said 'swine,'—that I was swine! Well, Mr. Speaker, I did not hit him then!

I took it. I did not get up on any point of order, Mr. Speaker, he can check! I hear him in the background! No man! He can check the Hansards, because Honourable Members can tell you, I walk with that document! Because you know what? I may live to be the age of Methuselah and I will not forget that, because I am telling that Member that Roy Bodden, the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, is not swine! He can go check it!

The Speaker: Pardon me a moment. We have to change the tape. Could we just hold off for a few moments?

MASTER TAPE CHANGED

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, you may continue.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I was drawing a reference and saying how, on 27 November 1996, the Minister for Agriculture made that bold and sweeping statement. I have thought about that many times, and perhaps I am destined to think about it many more times. I want to say this—because I consider I have been fortunate in many ways. I have thought about my career as a public official. I have thought how fortunate it is for someone like me. And that is perhaps why I have so much in common with many people on the Backbench who are motivated by altruism and the desire to serve.

Do you know why that statement does not bother me to the point where it upsets me to do something stupid? Because I discount ambitious satraps who are made rich by the spoils of office and seditious by the temptations of politics. I hope the author, before he again calls someone a swine, ponders what I have just said.

I want to say something else, Mr. Speaker. I would NEVER put myself in a position where my conduct had to be called into question because of the way I dealt with 200 acres of land! Or 300! Because I have sense and decency enough to extricate myself from certain situations, and I will not, in my good senses, be put in a position where I can be accused of conflict of interest or worse!

I do not have any lawyer friends advising me, but I have intelligent, honest, frank people who tell me when I am wrong, who insist that I straighten up and correct myself. That is why that behaviour is reciprocated. That is why I feel good in present company. I feel proud of the company I am in, in this Honourable Chamber, and I will never stoop to so low a point where I call one of my colleagues 'swine,' irrespective of the fact that I may not like them.

And as for the Bible reading, I want to say something about that, because I know a little about the Bible too. Second Samuel, chapter 12 tells the story of the prophet Nathan whom the Lord sent to David. He said, 'David, there is a certain rich man who has lands untold and animals, and a harem.' And Nathan told David, 'Do you know what that man did? There is a poor man also who has but one little ewe lamb, and his family, and he took that little ewe lamb with his family and raised it as he raised his little children. It slept in his arms. He fed it and pampered it. One day the rich man had a visitor. But he did not go to any of his herd and cull an animal; he took the ewe lamb from the poor man.' And David was repulsed, Mr. Speaker, and he said, 'Who did such a vile act? Certainly he should be punished!' And the prophet Nathan said, 'David, you are that man. You are that man!' Enough said on that. The conclusion is obvious.

The trust that our constituents place in us is a trust that demands us to bare our souls. So I want to ask, Why did the Minister not table the letter he received from the Lands Office dated 13 March 1993, in which to my knowledge it was stated that there was no available substantiation to the claim of the estate which he claims to represent to this piece of land? Why did the Honourable Minister not table the Executive Council documents, which he used to base the decision of his claim upon? Such an absence does not escape our perusal. It does not escape our eyes, and without those two documents being tabled, the Minister's position falls far short of being solid. I remind Honourable Members that we make no accusation, but we are saying that justice must manifestly be seen to be done.

I reminded all Honourable Members that they will have a chance to vote their conscience. Francisco Pizarro, one of the Conquistadors, took his men from Panama up to the Andes in search of the riches of the Inca empire in Peru. When the going got toughest, Pizarro was moved to admonish and remind his band thus, 'On this side lies Panama, with its mosquito-infested swamps and its misery, decay and degradation; and on this side lies Peru, with all of the riches of the Inca empire.' This was his exhortation: "Choose, each man, what best becomes a brave Castilian."

Shakespeare, Mr. Speaker, had one of his characters say, ". . . to thine own self be true, And it must follow, as the day the night, Thou canst not then be false to any man."

We have an award which was allegedly made to the deprivation of another claimant. We are not a court.

We cannot reverse any award. But we call into question the surrounding factors, including that the award was made to someone in a position of privilege, obviously advantageous, which the other claimants did not have. It bears emphasis that the reviews conducted were based on the procedures which were followed, not on the absolute right to title. We have never questioned those procedures. I want to appeal to the good conscience of my colleagues not to be misled, not to curry favour, although the conduct of our colleague and fraternal brother comes into question. Let us rise above certain things and be neutral and impartial as our office demands we should be when it comes to the business of our constituents and our constituency.

This kind of action, when it involves the powerful people who have certain status, must not become representative of the routine. It must never be allowed to be common practise. We must set ourselves up to be true practitioners of what is right. We must set ourselves to be prepared to be completely open and accountable, to be transparent. We must not only make that claim, we must practise the action. And above all—I want to say this because this is important—we must refrain from being so uncharitable to our colleagues, irrespective of what we may think they have done, as to address them as swine. I am wounded by that to my heart. I will resist any urge to exact revenge. That is not in my nature. But I want to throw it out, because I want those involved to remember that I have been hurt.

I want to end on this note, because I think it is a striking note for my colleagues. I am going to reiterate something. The prophet Micah, chapter 6, verse 8: "He has showed you, O man, what is good, and what does the LORD require of you but to do justly, to love mercy, and to walk humbly with your God." We believe there is an injustice. We believe there is a conflict of interest. I leave it to the discretion of my Honourable colleagues, bearing in mind that all the explanations we have heard were related only to the procedures used in Executive Council, and not to the authenticity or right to title of the land.

I ask again, Why were these important documents used in Executive Council to give the grant not tabled? Why was this case handled differently from the cases of Mr. Aamon Ebanks and Mr. Lester McLean? Justice must manifestly be seen to be done.

Mr. Speaker, that is all I have to say in my contribution, sir.

The Speaker: The floor is open for debate. Does any other Member wish to speak? (pause) Does any other Honourable Member wish to speak? (pause) The final time: Does any other Honourable Member wish to speak? If no other Honourable Member wishes to speak, does the Honourable mover wish to exercise his right to reply? The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I am indeed surprised by the types of tactics sometimes used in this hall. I believe if you have something important to say, and if it must be said, you can say it at any time, and the relevance of what you say will remain. The truth, the correctness of any statement will not necessarily be lost by the position in which that truth is said. Therefore, whether a person speaks first, second or last is immaterial in the final analysis, because those listening are intelligent enough, concerned enough, sensitive enough to take into consideration all that is being said.

This is, of course, one of the darkest hours in the political history of our country. It is dark because the light of justice has not been lit up in here by a rebuttal, in particular from the Leader of Government Business. I wonder why he has not become involved in this debate. I wonder if it is not an attempt again to say, 'I will go so far, but I will go no further with my friend, because when it comes to my political career, I will sacrifice my friend to protect my career!'

Justice is what propels me to stand up in here and ask that Honourable Members who have been here longer than I have answer to the codes of conduct which I am entitled to and the people of this country expect of them. Regardless of how much people talk about my past, the people had enough confidence in me to put me in this position to do exactly what I am doing here today. Praise God for that! I would never come in here and read Psalms. I have come here, Mr. Speaker, because in church, I read the Psalms. In bed I read the Psalms. At home I read the Psalms. Here, I have a political obligation.

I have only asked that Members, in making their consideration, take seriously into account the Guidelines for a Code of Conduct which was distributed again in this Honourable House this evening. I found the guidelines for those codes of conduct very useful, indeed. Why were they tabled on 27 September 1996 if they have no relevance to the political process in this country? Why were these guidelines for a code tabled if they have no relevance and if I have no right to get up in this Honourable House and question the political conduct, the managerial conduct, of a Minister responsible to this Parliament?

I have said, and I would like to go back to say, that my involvement here is not personal. It is truly not personal. It has truly been difficult for me since February of this year, when Mr. Leroy Johnson came to me to make the complaint. It has been difficult because the first thing I did while Mr. Johnson was in my office the first time I realised who this person was, because I had heard of this case before. I had heard of this situation before, and I tried, with all my heart and with all my mind and with all my soul to avoid that injustice, because I did not want to become a part of trying to correct these types of injustice in this country, because I felt that all the tribulations and problems I had prior to my being here had a lot to do with my preoccupation with justice and honesty and integrity.

There are Ministers today who will stand by and laugh at me, and talk about the man who went around wandering about the Island looking at the stars. But in gazing at the stars, I saw something that other Members did not seem to see when they were gazing at the ground. I saw the glory of God and the goodness of righteousness and truth and justice, and all those things we seem to bring into our political institutions without realising that they all come from God. They all come from our biblical interpretations and relationships. It is not that the political institutions are created by us down here, in our warring state. Because if we had to rely seriously on our relationships to create our political institutions, we would fall far short of where we should be going. Sometimes we need to gaze toward the sky, to gaze toward the stars, to truly see how far we can go in this world, as honest, God-fearing people.

Mr. Roy Boddén: Preach, brother, preach!

Dr. Frank McField: And without land, and without all of the amenities that rich and powerful people need to feel like true people. Philosophically, I have never been impoverished. Philosophically, spiritually, I have always felt wealth, like I do this minute. The fact that I have come here, sincerely asking that the Minister answer a question, that it is seen that a conflict of interest did exist, does exist, does not mean that I am a terrible person. I know I was not a good person! I know I am not Jesus Christ! I know that I as a human being fell from grace and had to discover a new knowledge, and that that knowledge has a lot to do with my faith today! And that is why, when someone else came to me and gave me the task of bringing justice, delivering justice to them, I said, 'I shall walk until the day I find justice for that person.'

I got on the telephone on 10 February about it. I called the Governor, and he was very nice, as he always is to me, and he invited me to come and see him the next week. It was one of the earliest appointments. It was like that. And I went to see the Governor in February. I made the complaint to the Governor in February, so it is not as if, as the Minister seems to be implying, that he went to the Governor. Why would he go to the Governor if someone had not already said something?

Mr. Leroy Johnson had his lawyer, Mr. Keith Collins, write him a letter in 1996, saying he (Mr. Johnson) had claim to this land, and he was wondering why Mr. McLean had been awarded this land. Mr. McLean did not answer him. He had nothing to do with this person. So the fact that I went to the Governor and sincerely got the ear of the Governor, and presented certain evidence to the Governor, was the reason the Governor got involved in this situation in the first place, and why Mr. McLean asked the Governor to do the perusal of the procedures. Mr. McLean cannot honestly come here and say that he initiated this, nor can the Governor say he initiated this.

Hon. Truman Boddén: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order.

POINT OF ORDER
(Misleading)

The Speaker: Let me hear your point of order.

Hon. Truman Boddén: The Governor's letter is clear, and it states—and it is misleading the House—it specifically states, if I may have a minute to. . . . It has been laid on the Table and the Governor has written to the Honourable John McLean, saying, "Following your request for a review of the procedure followed by Executive Council in arriving at its decision to approve a Crown Grant of the above land to you, I instructed the Attorney General to carry out the review." There is no doubt that the Governor says that the Minister for Agriculture was the person who requested the review.

The Speaker: Honourable Fourth Elected Member for George Town. I think the letter is quite clear. I do not know the chronological order of your request, but the Governor did say he had responded to the request from the Honourable Minister, so I wish you would make that clear.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, it is quite possible that I could have made a request and that the Honourable Minister could have made a request; and that he could have responded to the request of the Honourable Minister? This letter does not disprove the fact that I went there first.

The Speaker: But we have no proof of that, so I—

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, we have proof of that. What would have stimulated Mr. McLean to go to the Governor to request this then? Maybe someone can explain that to me. It could have been the result of pressure, and now—I mean, there is a diary kept regarding the visits to the Governor—

The Speaker: The Minister of Education was rising. Would you give way, please?

Hon. Truman Boddén: Mr. Speaker, from what I can remember from what the Minister said, it was because of all the lies and rumours going around the place about the land that he requested the Governor to do the enquiry. And it cleared him! It has cleared the Minister!

The Speaker: To me, it is very clear that the reply in the letter from the Governor was at the request of the Honourable Minister for Agriculture. Whether you have a letter of reply, if he replied to your request, or not—but the letter in question is a reply to the Honourable Minister, and I wish you would withdraw what you have just said.

Dr. Frank McField: What am I being asked to withdraw?

The Speaker: I just want to clarify that the Governor's letter was in reply to a request by the Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works. And it has been clearly tabled in this House.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I have not said that the Governor's letter is not a reply to the request. I said I went to the Governor's office around the 10th of February of this year—before Mr. McLean made his request. If I cannot prove that, I am quite willing to forget that. It is not important.

The Speaker: Let me explain what I am saying. I am going by the content of the letter tabled in this Honourable House. The letter says it is in reply to a request by the Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I also had the Governor make an appointment with me to see the Attorney General. The Honourable Attorney General is in this Chamber, and we can ask him whether or not I came to see him in February of this year.

The Speaker: I am not doubting you at all, Fourth Elected Member for George Town. I am not doubting you at all. I am simply saying that the Governor's letter is in reply to a request from the Minister. I would just ask you to acknowledge that.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I acknowledge that, but I also need to make it quite clear that I went to see the Governor in February of this year, and that I had a meeting with the Honourable Attorney General in February of this year.

The Speaker: That is fine. Continue. I am not arguing what you did, I am just saying that the reply was a request of the Honourable Minister for Agriculture.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, it is an important point, because I said I got involved in this situation because of a complaint by one of my constituents (that the Minister for Lands at one time said was more or less bothering me, which I replied that was not so, this is my constituent, this is my job, and this is what I do).

The only reason I am saying this is because I am trying to put this within a framework of how this whole thing got kicked off. The fact that we are talking here about procedure, the fact that the Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works is using this letter from the Governor as proof that he did nothing wrong—he is using this as proof! But the first thing we have to bear in mind is that the Honourable Attorney General did a review of the procedures of the Executive Council—he carried out a review. "I have instructed the Attorney General to carry out the review." I have now received the Attorney General's report. He said, "The Attorney General states that he is satisfied that the procedure followed by Executive Council in approving the Crown Grant of this land was correct." No one has ever questioned that. I have been questioning, all along, the body of evidence submitted to Council, and the way in which it was submitted to Council by the Minister responsible for Lands.

The Minister responsible for Lands has two positions—and this is one reason I may have referred to him as Mr. McLean. Because on one hand you have the applicant, who is, in fact, Mr. McLean, and on the other hand, you have the Minister of Lands, who again is Mr. McLean. So it is important that the Mr. McLean, who is the private citizen, with the private interest, does not conflict with the Mr. McLean who is the Honourable John McLean, the Minister responsible for Lands!

I think it is important for us to realise that if our Government departments are allowed to make errors and not correct those errors themselves, and that every citizen must take to court errors committed by Government departments, without Government departments being willing to correct those errors themselves, then our courts will be continuously filled with cases to be tried by judges, and the citizens' pocketbooks will be exhausted because every time they have to go to court to get justice. Justice should be administrative justice as well. The people, administrations, should administer justice, and we should not always have to go to court for the remedy.

The Permanent Secretary of the Minister responsible for Lands, and the Minister himself, were responsible to see that the case presented to Executive Council was presented in such a way that it was understandable to them that Mr. Whitmore Syms was a proprietor in common with Capt. Henry Watson. That was their duty! And don't say now that because Capt. Watson might have been someplace and might not even have been aware of certain things, . . . that because I am not aware of my rights, I should not get my rights from the administrators of justice if they know! Ignorance of the law to us is no excuse for breaking the law, so how is it an excuse for a Government officer to be in breach of certain procedures because they did not know?

How would they not have known that Capt. Henry Watson was a proprietor in common? How would they not have known of the very Registered Land Law that governs what the Lands Office has done? Why is it that the Minister did not table—did not table—Mr. Syms' claim? Why is it that the Minister responsible for Lands did not table the answer from the Lands Office, dated 13 March 1993? Why did he not table these documents? Why did he not table his recommendation to Executive Council, when he has tabled the affidavits he took to Executive Council. It would have cleared up the whole thing, Mr Speaker. It could have been easily cleared up.

This debate, this discussion, was the last thing I wanted. Since 10 February I have worked on this case, this situation. I have gone to the Governor. I have gone to the Attorney General. I have spoken to Members of Council. I have had public meetings. I have tried to get us not to come to this position. It is interesting that we have come this far together, but now it is necessary for every one of us to use our consciences to choose the direction we might go, because the world is the way the world is, and sometimes we must decide that road we must walk, even if we must walk that road alone.

In other words, I think it is quite obvious that the Minister has been unable to prove that his management style, his choice to deal with this particular grant in Executive Council rather than Finance Committee, leaves much to be desired by this Honourable House. We have a duty and a right as the representatives of the people, to say to him, 'Sir, we believe there is a charge of conflict of interest here to be answered, and that it can easily be answered by your putting on the Table of this Honourable House, just like you were so anxious to put all the other documents on the Table of this Honourable House, to put the position of the Lands Office regarding this claim, on the Table. To put the Executive Council recommendation dated 14 February 1995 on the Table of this Honourable House.'

There were also other documents that went to Executive Council—the one for 1907 that I mentioned in my beginning, and also the letter from Miss Genevieve Watson, which I laid on the Table. That is important because that document differs from the deed of gift dated 12 November 1968. It differs in that the real deed of gift talks about lands on the west belonging to Edward Bodden, where the letter from Miss Genevieve Watson says that the lands on the west are lands of Sparks Tatum. But the letter from Miss Genevieve Watson is consistent with the 1907 indenture that says the lands on the west are lands of Sparks Tatum.

It is for this reason that the Lands Office, in 1977, took the letter and awarded title to Mr. Whitmore Syms and Capt. Henry Watson. They awarded title to Parcel 48 as a result of the letter. We heard from one of the affidavits here that Mr. Whitmore Syms did not like to give papers to certain adjudicators. For this reason he kept some documents. But why did the letter then end up in the pouch at the Lands Office as the basis for him to be awarded provisional title to Parcel 48? He gave up some document. Or did he not have this? Who gave that document? Maybe he thought he would give that document and keep the other one. But the important thing to realise is that the deed of gift presented there, the letter which preceded that dated earlier in that year, is the document that was used by the Lands Office to award title to Parcel 48.

Once Parcel 48 was awarded—and if we look at the affidavits signed by the persons here—it is important, when we see that the Minister has tabled this information. And why not table all the information? Why not clear this thing up? He is a public officer. These are public documents! table all of them! It is interesting that one affidavit says, "I was aware that Mr. Whitmore Syms' property was considerably larger than Edward Bodden's land, which is approximately 89 acres and adjacent to it." Now I do not know where Mr. Edward Bodden's land is, because we did a lot of searching. One of the things we found out is that the name Edward Bodden was a very popular name at that time, so it was not very easy. But he says, in number three, "It was always my understanding that Mr. Whitmore [Syms] owned the entire parcel, having acquired it from Miss Genevieve Watson in the mid-to-late 1960s. I also have no knowl- edge of the title to this land ever being in dispute, or that anyone other than Mr. Whitmore Syms maintaining the fences or raising cattle on it."

Well, the land was in dispute. If he is talking about 89, it was in dispute. If he is talking about 48, 48 was never in dispute! But 89 certainly was in dispute, and we know from my introducing the Leroy Johnson case, we introduced a history of disputes. So for the affidavits to have said, and for the Lands Office to have perused this affidavit and not seen that that would be incorrect information, because there was a dispute, . . . Unless, of course, he is saying that there was no dispute regarding Parcel 48. This is my contention, in fact, that all of these affidavits are referring to Parcel 48.

The affidavit by Leavey Conolly says, in number three, "The late Lisby Johnson shared 2/3 of his land at Colliers and conveyed same to Ellis Johnson, Gilburne Watson and Wellring Watson. It is my understanding that Wellring Watson conveyed most of his share of land to Genevieve Watson in or around the late 30s." That is what I said again. If we go back to my summary of important dates and events, he says this is the share acquired by Mr. Whitmore Syms in 1968. So it goes to show again that in no way could Mr. Whitmore Syms claim any land that he was not a proprietor in common of.

And the case being made—and I am using the word 'case'—I know it is not a court. . . . I am not a lawyer, Mr. Speaker, but I think I have a little bit of common sense. I am saying again that if I went to the shop with a dollar that belonged to me and the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay and we had never divided that dollar, although we were conscious that he owned 2/9 of the dollar and I owned 7/9 of the dollar, if we bought something and the shopkeeper gave us wrong change, then he has given both the Fourth Elected Member for George Town and the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay wrong change. If I go back representing the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay as well as myself, and when I get change corrected from the shopkeeper I am obligated morally, if not legally, to come and give the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay his share as well, his part of the change.

We are saying here—and I think the case has been made—that Mr. Whitmore Syms had no claim to any sole property in Colliers at East End. At no time was Mr. Whitmore Syms in possession of any document, of any title, for any sole piece of land. He was only in possession of documents that entitled him to a part of a piece of land. And that because it was the obligation of the Lands Office, the Portfolio, the Permanent Secretary, the Minister, to see that the lands under their care are adjudicated properly, it follows that it was the responsibility of the Minister of Lands, finally, for the fact that this land was not awarded to the persons to whom it should have been awarded, based upon the claims he presented. Based upon the claims he presented, the land should have gone to two persons— Capt. Henry Watson's estate and Mr. Whitmore Syms' estate, one having 2/9 share and one having 7/9 share.

It is okay for us to say people make mistakes, but this is what I have been trying to get since 10 February. Since 10 February, I have been trying to get persons to accept the fact that a mistake could have been made! I was trying to elicit a desire to correct the mistake. But instead of the Lands Office cooperating with me and answering questions, they have the attitude that unless we get a letter from the Minister we are not supposed to go and ask any questions. I was prohibited from obtaining information that may have placed me, the people's representative, in a position to clarify this situation. I was prohibited!

There may be persons here who question my qualifications. I had to do what we call 'empirical research,' which means I did not just have to look in books and read and make conclusions; I had to get out there in the field, and through participant observation, make sociological conclusions. I was creating empirical evidence; I did not just wait for it to be given to me, for me to have sociological understanding, if some Members get where I am coming from.

Mr. Roy Boddén: Tell them how it goes!

Dr. Frank McField: Of course, I have tried to forget the fact that I have a sociological background, because to a lot of people that meant I was a socialist!

Mr. Roy Boddén: But it wasn't by correspondence course!

Dr. Frank McField: Anyway, Mr. Speaker, it is important for people to understand the methods by which I went about this. It was difficult for me to prove my case. But it should not be this way, because all I was asking for was a review of the situation, a review of the evidence to see if I could spare a poor citizen hundreds of thousands of dollars that would go to lawyers at the end of the day. Whether the Minister of Education is a lawyer or not, it goes to show that when you have friends who are lawyers, it is not too bad.

I have a cousin, A. Steve McField, who is a lawyer, and I have often gotten free information that would have cost me thousands of dollars. I know the advantage of having a friend who is a lawyer to advise you! But what about our citizens, whom we are supposed to represent? What about those who we are supposed to care about? What about that oath we took to put selfishness down and altruism up? to put the people on top, and we on the bottom as their servants? to serve them first and serve ourselves last? What about that?

As the Third Elected Member for Boddén Town said with such eloquence and conviction: We cannot allow our political tradition to be tarnished by the lack of objectivity. Anyone who is charged with public office must prove beyond a reasonable doubt that they are objective in carrying out their responsibilities. The Minister still has the opportunity to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that his objectivity was not tarnished by his private interest! And he can do that, Mr. Speaker, by putting those papers on the Table of this House; by tabling those papers just like he tabled all the other documents—the one from the Chief of Police, the one from the Governor, the affidavits, a few other documents, the one saying that the Johnsons sold their land, all the other documents. What happened to the relevant document? What happened to the conveyance document of 1907, which establishes ownership in the hands of the Watsons, of Wellring Watson, who then later turned around and gave this land to his daughter, Miss Genevieve Watson?

I believe that the people of this country deserve justice. I believe that the people of this country can expect justice, and that is why I am proud—regardless of what people may think my contributions have been to this country—to be a part of it. I am proud to be accepted by it. I do not boast about what I did for it, I am just happy that it has done something for me, that it has given me a chance and an opportunity to be here today, and to talk about service to the people, rather than service to oneself.

[Some Members: Hear, hear!]

Dr. Frank McField: Service to the people, rather than service to oneself! I have to protect our fraternity by reminding us about what people say—‘Oh, those crooked politicians; you can’t trust politicians; they only know you at election time!’ So, Mr. Speaker, let us send a strong statement to the people that politics in the Cayman Islands is alive and well! That it is changing for the better! And not make people believe that just because Frank McField has come in here asking a few questions, that he is trying to destroy the Cayman Islands!

When I came back to this country in 1977, and I started talking about the youth problems, they said I was going to drive the foreigners away by talking about the social problems in the country. The Minister of Education was one of the people who got rid of me (because he was a Minister at the time) because he said I was going to cause problems! ‘We don’t want to talk about these problems!’

But as a reformed trouble-maker, I shall tell you that until you admit you have a problem, you will never have a solution.

[Some Members: Hear, hear!]

Dr. Frank McField: I confess that I had to admit that I had a serious alcohol problem before I got a solution to it. I am not proud of my past, but I am hopeful of my future!

[Some Members: Hear, hear!]

Dr. Frank McField: And given the opportunity in this country, I will serve the people well. And I expect no less from my colleagues in this Honourable House today, than that they will verify my faith in them and in this country by voting their conscience on this issue. There is a case to be answered, and we have the right to demand that the position of the Minister is revoked, because he has fallen short of what this Parliament has accepted as a standard for a Minister. Thank you.

The Speaker: I shall now put Private Member’s Motion No. 7/98 to the vote. In accordance with the suspension of Standing Order 43, the ‘Resolved’ section, which reads that “in accordance with Standing Order 86, Standing Order 43 be suspended to allow that at the conclusion of debate on Private Member’s Motion No. 7/98, that the vote be taken by ballot.”

I would ask the Acting Honourable First Official Member and the Honourable Second Official Member if they would act as scrutineers for this ballot.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Third or Second?

The Speaker: Do we normally use First and Third?

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: First and Third.

The Speaker: Let us use the First and Third, then. Would you come to the Clerk’s table, please? Has the ballot been prepared? Would you like to take a brief suspension while the ballot is being prepared?

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Have they not made the ballot yet?

The Speaker: In the meantime, we would ask the Serjeant if he would show the empty ballot box to the Members.

While we are waiting for the ballot, I would like to say a few things about this vote. The vote is actually for the revocation of one Member, so it will be ‘Yes’ or ‘No’; and voting in this will be solely the Elected Members. The results will require nine affirmative votes from the Elected Members for the expulsion of the Honourable Minister. If there are nine or more the motion will pass; less than nine, the motion will fail.

I would also like to say that the Chair would appreciate, at the conclusion of the vote, that order prevail, regardless of the results.

[pause]

VOTE BY BALLOT

The Speaker: The Serjeant will now present a ballot paper to each Elected Member of this Honourable House.

[pause]

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I just observed that the ballot paper says you must mark it with an 'x'. For the benefit of Members, this is not a tick, but an 'x'.

The Speaker: If all Members have marked their ballots, I will now ask the Serjeant if he will take the ballot box around and collect one ballot from each Elected Member of this Honourable House.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, before the Serjeant takes up the ballot from the two Ministers, the Minister of Education, and the Minister of Communications and Works, I would like to draw your attention and have your ruling on Standing Order 83, Pecuniary Interests: “(1) A Member shall not move any motion or amendment relating to a matter in which he has a direct pecuniary interest or speak on any such matter, whether in the House or in any committee, without disclosing the nature of that interest, and shall in no circumstances vote on any such matter.”

The Speaker: I would like to say to all Honourable Members that I expected this question to come up. I took the question up with the advocates from whom I got legal advice, and they said the Member involved was eligible to vote. It is a Censure Motion; it is a Private Member's Motion. The content was clearly embodied in the motion, and it would necessarily state that he would have some kind of involvement in it.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, as I asked you some days ago, you were going to give us the written advice you had, right?

The Speaker: It is my ruling that all Elected Members can vote.

Hon. Truman Boddén: Mr. Speaker, if this is going to prejudice anything, I will leave my two ballots on top—the two ballots on top of the table. Is that what the Member wants?

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, I asked for your ruling. You have given your ruling.

The Speaker: I have made it very clear that the Serjeant is to collect one ballot from each Elected Member of this Honourable House.

Hon. Truman Boddén: Mr. Speaker, what should we do? Put it in or not put it in?

The Speaker: Put it in! I have had proper professional advice and I have ruled on that.

[pause]

The Temporary Acting Hon. First Official Member: (counting votes) No...no...no...aye...aye...aye...aye...aye...no...no...aye...aye...aye...no.

The Speaker: The results of the secret ballot: eight Ayes; six Noes; the motion fails. As I said before, for clarification, under our Constitution it requires nine affirmative votes for the motion to pass and there are only eight, so the motion has failed.

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 7/98 FAILED.

The Speaker: At this time, I will entertain a motion for the adjournment of this Honourable House.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman Boddén: Mr. Speaker, this is the happiest adjournment I have proposed in a long time. I adjourn this Honourable House until tomorrow morning at 10.00 AM.

The Speaker: The question is that this House do now adjourn until 10.00 AM tomorrow. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House do stand adjourned until 10.00 AM tomorrow.

AT 6.00 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM FRIDAY, 17 JULY 1998.

EDITED
THURSDAY
17 JULY 1998

The Speaker: Prayers by the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

PRAYERS

Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks: Let us pray.

Almighty God, from whom all wisdom and power are derived: We beseech Thee so to direct and prosper the deliberations of the Legislative Assembly now assembled, that all things may be ordered upon the best and surest foundations for the glory of Thy name and for the safety, honour and welfare of the people of these Islands.

Bless our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Philip Duke of Edinburgh, Charles Prince of Wales, and all the Royal family. Give grace to all who exercise authority in our Commonwealth, that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us. Especially we pray for the Governor of our Islands, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Official Members and Ministers of Executive Council and Members of the Legislative Assembly, that we may be enabled faithfully to perform the responsible duties of our high office.

All this we ask for Thy great name's sake.

Let us say the Lord's Prayer together: Our Father, who art in heaven, hallowed be Thy name. Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us. Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For Thine is the kingdom, the power and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The Lord bless us and keep us. The Lord make His face shine upon us and be gracious unto us. The Lord lift up the light of His countenance upon us and give us peace, now and always. Amen.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Item 2 on today's Order Paper, Reading by the Speaker of Messages and Announcements.

READING BY THE SPEAKER OF MESSAGES AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

The Speaker: All Honourable Members are aware that we have a number of Select Committees formed and are awaiting deliberations before this Honourable House as far as we are convinced they are individual Committees and I would like to read a statement pertaining to that.

“STATEMENT ON THE APPEARANCE OF WITNESSES BEFORE COMMITTEES OF THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY

“I am concerned that in recent times the Legislative Assembly has not been following the procedure to be adopted by Standing or Select Committees as set out in our Standing Orders and where they are silent by Parliamentary Practice of the House of Commons (UK) (Erskine May 22nd Edition), and The Legislative Assembly (Immunities Powers and Privileges) Law (1996 Revision).

“You will recall that on 8 May, 1998, I circulated to all Members of the Legislative Assembly a memorandum (ref: P/14/0178) which reads as follows:

‘I have thought it desirable that the procedure to be adopted by Standing or Select Committees in respect of powers granted to them to send for persons and papers, should be more clearly set out.

1. Standing Order 72(1) gives every select committee the power to send for persons, papers and records.
2. Standing Order 73 (1), (2), (3) and (4), sets out the procedure for requesting the attendance of persons before a Committee:
 - (a) the Chairman will indicate (normally after discussions with members of the Committee) which persons should be asked to attend;
 - (b) the Clerk to the committee shall then, subject to the directions of the Presiding Officer, summon the witnesses on behalf of the House;
 - (c) normally a period of seven days' notice is given to witnesses.
3. The Legislative Assembly (Immunities, Powers and Privileges) Law (1996 Revision) also sets out various provisions for procuring attendance of witnesses. Section 9 sets out the privileges of witnesses.
4. It will be observed that the word “summon” is used, but it has been general practice of select committees, etc, in the House of Commons, UK, to request witnesses to appear and give evidence by means of an informal invitation. Committees now seldom use their formal powers to summons individuals, preferring to keep them in reserve. Nevertheless, when a committee has the power to send for persons, that power is unqualified, except to the extent that it conflicts with the privileges of the Crown and of Members of the House of Lords, or with the rights of Members of the House of Commons, (May's 22nd Edition - pages 646-653).

'Further, May provides that there is no restriction on the power of committees to require the production of papers by private bodies or individuals, provided that such papers are relevant to the committee's work as defined by its order of reference. As when sending for persons, select committees generally hold in reserve their power formally to send for papers and records and proceed by informal invitation.

5. I should also like to emphasise the provisions of Standing Order 81(2) which states that "THE STANDING ORDERS RELATING TO SELECT COMMITTEES SHALL APPLY TO STANDING SELECT COMMITTEES UNLESS OTHERWISE SPECIFIED."

'The Legislative Assembly must comply with the Standing Orders and Law and where there is any lacuna, then with the Parliamentary Practice of the House of Commons (UK). Accordingly, the procedure for witnesses appearing before Committees of this Legislative Assembly in the future will be as follows:

1. In accordance with Erskine May Parliamentary Practice, 22nd Edition, pages 646-647, witnesses will be requested to give evidence before Committees by means of an informal invitation issued through the Clerk. A summons will only be used should the witness fail to accept the invitation. In accordance with Order 73(1) of the Legislative Assembly Standing Orders (1997 Revision) at least seven day's notice shall be given to the witness.
2. Where the witness is a public officer he/she is obliged under section 9 of the Legislative Assembly (Immunities Powers and Privileges) Law (1996 Revision) to obtain the consent of His Excellency the Governor (acting in his discretion) before giving any evidence or producing any documents to the Committee. Accordingly, every invitation or summons shall identify the papers and documents to be produced and give details of the questions or subject matter upon which evidence is requested. There must be sufficient detail for the Governor to give specific authority to the public officer concerned.
3. Evidence will normally be unsworn, but may be sworn if the inquiries are "of a judicial or other special character." (Erskine May 22nd Edition, page 654). Then in accordance with section 9(1) of the Legislative Assembly (Immunities Powers and Privileges) Law (1996 Revision) the witness will be given the same right or privilege as before the Grand Court. This may well mean that the Committee will need legal advice.

4. The procedures which I have outlined above are not in any way to inhibit the ability of Members of this Honourable House and of its Committees to perform their duties and responsibilities; they are to ensure that the law and practice of the House are fully complied with.' "

Item No. 3 on today's Order Paper. The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: It is highly unusual, sir, for Honourable Members to raise with queries on Statements from the Chair, but, Mr. Speaker, I would like to raise a concern. If what you read is to be the case, is the Chair cognisant that this is about to change the tenure of Standing Committees since it does not leave much to the discretion of the Chairmen of the Standing Committees in certain regards? I am particularly concerned with the point you raised that the Committees may now need legal advisors.

The Speaker: I have no objection to meeting informally and discussing this at length if that is the wish of the House. Let us proceed with today's—
The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you.

Mr. Speaker, I am craving your indulgence, sir. The reason why queries are being put forward is because we understand that what you are reading out is a ruling of procedure for the future. If that is the case, how does it then give us latitude to discuss it?

The Speaker: This has only outlined what is said in the Legislative Assembly Standing Orders and the Legislative Assembly (Immunities Powers and Privileges) Law (1996 Revision) and I am quite willing to have an informal meeting and discuss it at length.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: So, if I understand you correctly, sir, you are simply outlining a situation, and you are quite prepared for us to meet informally before you actually rule on the procedure which will follow?

The Speaker: That is correct.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Because, if I may say, sir, one of the things that we have to be very careful of is that both sides and situations are balanced. Lots of time Committees are held and we on the Backbench do not have knowledge of the Committees being held within seven day's time. So it would be physically impossible for us to even call any witnesses. Especially, for instance, in Finance Committee, we sometimes only know of it in two or three days, if you take the point. I would ask that we be able to discuss it.

The Speaker: I am fully cognisant of that fact. I have sat on that side as well. So we will meet informally and have a long discussion on this.

The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W McKeeva Bush: Thank you very much. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased that you are saying you are prepared to sit down with us. Would to God that that had happened before you read that this morning. I hope that this is not an attempt to stop Members from getting their work done and the exposure that is going on in the Legislative Assembly.

The Speaker: For the benefit of the Member, in case he was not listening to the last paragraph: “The procedures which I have outlined above are not in any way to inhibit the ability of Members of this Honourable House and of its Committees to perform their duties and responsibilities; they are to ensure that the law and practice of the House are fully complied with.” That is all that I am attempting to do.

Mr. W McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, I am not going to hold any more argument with you—although I am tempted, I must tell you. The truth is that what you are saying, if carried out, will severely inhibit the way we can do, and have done, business in this House.

The Speaker: Let us move on to Item No. 3 on today's Order Paper. Government Business, Bills.

Before we move into Government Business, Bills, I would entertain a motion for the suspension of Standing Orders 46 and 47 to allow us to take the third reading on the same day. The Honourable Temporary Acting First Official Member.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

BILLS

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDERS 46 AND 47

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: I beg to move the suspension of Standing Orders 46 and 47 to enable the Prisons (Amendment) Bill to be taken.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker—

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W McKeeva Bush: I rise to object to the suspension on this Bill. It is a very small Bill, one page, but it is a most controversial one. We should be doing things to deter crime, not to assist it! That is what this will do—encourage it! This Member is certainly not going to support the Bill. I am certainly not going to support the suspension. We only got this yesterday, and the Government has been here for how many days complaining?

They had full time to do this. I cannot and will not support the suspension and I will not support the Law when it comes. This needs to go to the public, talking about stopping people from being flogged when it has not been done—but it should be done!

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak?
The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you.

Mr. Speaker, I think that Bills are normally given 21 days. That gives us 21 days' notice in order to look at the Bill and review it. I believe that it would be very wise for us to adhere to that practice with regard to this Bill. As the First Elected Member for West Bay said, this is a very controversial issue and I am one Member who is not prepared to support this.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Over and above what has been said by other Members of the Backbench regarding this Bill, the truth of the matter is that the practice to suspend Standing Orders when Government Bills are before us with less than 21 days' notice, is one which has been talked about. My understanding is that the old time Government would make an attempt to do this when it was something it could not avoid and there was basically an emergency situation.

What has come before us now, less than 24 hours of our receiving the draft Bill, is a situation that has caught us off guard regardless of what has caused this to happen. Perhaps if the Government had brought it to our attention and explained it to us...but it cannot come to the floor of this House now and expect us to be dealing with it and going through the procedure of voting on it.

Mr. Speaker, it is like this: Perhaps this is a coincidence, but if this is a sign of the times, we are all in for some warm times.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak?
The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, just to briefly say that I support the position of the other Backbench Members. This was a very controversial provision of a Prison Law. And for the Government to have brought it here only yesterday and request the suspension of Standing Orders in order to push it through without giving us the time to consult our constituents goes to show that they really do not have it altogether. So, if we the people do count, they should give us an opportunity to go to the people with these proposals. I am not going to support the suspension of Standing Orders.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks: Thank you.

Mr. Speaker, I have to support what my colleagues on the Backbench have said. I cannot support that. We should be really looking to deter crime, not help them along, whether or not the UK wants it! I cannot go along with this.

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary Acting First Official Member.

WITHDRAWAL OF MOTION

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Perhaps, in light of the sentiments expressed, an appropriate compromise might be for me to withdraw the motion to suspend Standing Orders and, instead, ask your permission to simply table the Bill at this time, if you will permit.

The Speaker: The question is that the motion be withdrawn. I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The motion is withdrawn.

AGREED: MOTION TO SUSPEND STANDING ORDERS 46 AND 47 TO ENABLE THE PRISONS (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1998, TO BE TAKEN, WITHDRAWN.

The Speaker: [Addressing the Honourable Temporary Acting First Official Member] Is it your desire to table the Bill? So ordered.

Moving on to item 4 on today's Order Paper. Other Business, Private Members' Motions. Private Member's Motion No. 8/98, Increase of Financial Assistance to the Elderly, Handicapped and Other Persons in Need.

The First Elected Member for West Bay.

OTHER BUSINESS

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 8/98

INCREASE OF FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE TO THE ELDERLY, HANDICAPPED AND OTHER PERSONS IN NEED

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Before we do that, are we going to suspend Standing Orders to deal with the motion, being that today is not Private Members' Motion day?

The Speaker: There is no other business on the Order Paper. This is the only business remaining.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: All right. Thank you.

I beg to move Private Member's Motion No. 8/98, standing in my name, which reads as follows:

"WHEREAS the Government promised in the 1996 Election Campaign to increase the financial assistance to the elderly, the handicapped and others in need;

"AND WHEREAS the financial assistance of $200 per month, per person, is the only income that most recipients receive;

"AND WHEREAS the cost of living is not on the decrease;

"BE IT NOW THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT the Government consider putting in place the necessary funds so that at the year 2000 the financial assistance would be at a figure of $400 per month, per person."

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: I beg to second the motion.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 8/98, having been duly moved and seconded, is now open for debate. Does the mover wish to speak to it?

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I think all Members of this House are aware of the history of our country. I think they know what it took to get us where we are today where, in spite of some problems, we are living a pretty good lifestyle. Many people don't know what it took to get to this point. The elderly Caymans built this country. They worked hard at a time when salaries were really nothing in this country. It would be remembered that there were other persons in addition to our elderly, such as the handicapped, mentally and physically, who are in need in these Islands.

During my time at the helm of responsibility for these persons, I was successful in getting a policy through Executive Council and this House. And thanks to its universal character each one who indicates need (and it is checked to be so) has some measure of support that assists in preserving their pride and self-respect. It is the only source of income they have.

Mr. Speaker, if I may say so myself, that policy was a benchmark in the social history of this country. It is no surprise to any of us in this Honourable Legislature that the cost of living is expensive in these islands, nor is it any surprise that it is not decreasing. When we take the cost of everything it takes to live, especially the basics—clothing, food, electricity, cooking gas, medical, water—Mr. Speaker, we don't have to guess what the cost is, we feel it and live it day by day. Persons with good incomes know quite well that it is not easy, much less those who have no income at all.

When we look at what it costs an elderly person to live, . . . and I should say to the House that the cost of a domestic helper must be added because some people must have a helper due to some infirmity or another. These are costs that some must bear, especially what the Social Security Department does not pay for. I know that the increase I spearheaded was a Godsend for the elderly and others in need, but we have to be realistic, at this time in our country it is simply not enough. I recognised that in Executive Council, and others recognised that also as being correct. We went into the general elections promising to increase the present amount to $400 by the year 2000 or before.

I know we must be realistic, but the amount now is not enough. After all, what counts is not the actual amount of the assistance but its purchasing power. If it cannot provide for food, shelter and clothing, the basic needs, and sometimes medical, to the extent of at least minimum comfort, then it must be too low. If we want to be fair to these people, if we don't want to see them struggling along in conditions of poverty—and far too many of them do—then we must guarantee them assistance that will permit them to live in dignity with a basic degree of comfort, both physical and psychological. To do that they certainly need an increase now, and continued increases in direct proportion to any projected rate of inflation.

This is a matter of equity and justice as far as I am concerned. In my opinion this is not charity, nor should anyone think it is any outstanding example of State generosity; that the country is giving this so they should be satisfied. These people worked. I am not talking about years and years ago. Some of them did, yes, back in the 1940s. But you check it out now, some of our elderly worked in the hotel industry, a good example, and received such a small wage that at the end of the week they had to go trust (what we call credit) for groceries depending upon the next month's income. That cannot be right in this country. That is why I called for a look, and an increase in wages in the hotel industry was recommended. So, let no one think this is charity. Those people built this country, and some of them are still building it!

If a country as wealthy as ours purports to be cannot give its seniors and others in need sufficient financial support to keep them out of poverty then something is drastically wrong. Our economic principles need attending to if we cannot do that. If we will not, then it is our basic moral and philosophical principles that need revamping. Perhaps this is a good time to say that maybe this request comes at a time when Government is not flourishing financially. But the truth is, the country is doing well. What is necessary is for Government to prioritise properly.

Ever since we went and increased this amount there has been much talk about who gets, who does not get, who needs and who doesn't need. I said a long time ago that one of the problems in our country is that some people think that they know everybody's position and that everybody's position is better than their own, and their own is worse than everybody's—'You don't need but I need.' We don't know how people have to live most of the time. We don't know by just looking at the situation what a person has to live with. And to say that these old people are getting this money without any problems, that Government just up and gave it to them is a lot of nonsense. They have to go through a means test. If this is not a means test, what you see me holding in my hand, then I don't know what it is because, Mr. Speaker, this is really mean! [Laughter]

First of all, in this application, you have to be referred. Then you have the particulars of the applicant: Date of birth; Surname, First name, Middle name; Age; Marital status (single, married, divorced, separated, widowed); Resident status (Caymanian, non-Caymanian); Living in Cayman for how many years; Names of children, if any; surname if different. Do you have dependants? Yes or No? What relationship are they to you? Next of kin. Then it goes again repeating the same information. Then in number 10 it asks "Name of person with whom you live, and what is the relationship."

Question 11: "If you have a social worker please state the name of that social worker." Then it goes on to disabled or handicapped in 12. "What is the nature of the disability?" Financial information: "State whether amounts are monthly, weekly or hourly." Then it goes on to question 13: "When was the last time you worked? What was the salary, monthly, weekly, hourly? Number of hours worked per week if hourly. Income, if any. Earnings of applicant, monthly, weekly, hourly. Number of hours per week if it is hourly. Earnings of spouse," and the same information. Question 17: Pension. Question 18: Social Security. Question 19: Veterans Pension. Question 20: Alimony. Question 21: Insurance. Question 22: Social Services Department. Question 23: Other source. And you must give the total, that is, if you have any.

Then there is the expenditure side of it: Rent, or mortgage. That was 24. Question 25: Food. Question 26: Loans. Question 27: Credit charge or trusts. Question 28: Electricity. Let us stop counting. Telephone, water, stove fuel, transportation, light, health insurance, medical expenses including medications, other expenses. Then it goes on with more general questions: "If the application is approved in whose name do you want the assistance to be made out?" Where to send it, that sort of thing. Something like nearly 40 questions. So let no one think they can come up and say, 'I want it, give it to me.' They go through a lot.

In my opinion, let me tell you that it is too many. Any Minister, any Department worth its salt knows their people and knows what the situation is. But, because they want assistance, they do it. I guess that at the end of the day it gives you some protection if you are accused. But when it comes to doing it for the elderly, my position has been that we give it to them.

And, Mr. Speaker, if you will recall this came about when I was trying to get severance pay increased. As Minister responsible for Human Resources, labour, that is, what I found happening was that older people were being pushed out of their jobs with no income. What good is it to give somebody a watch, a pen, a basket of groceries even, or a nice tap on the shoulder saying, 'You are up high in my books. You did a good job?' What good is that after twenty years? And they leave without any kind of pension to help them. If they had managed to save $5,000, . . . the truth is the older people did not want it because they are so independent. They did not want to touch it. They would tell you, 'I don't want Government to bury me. I have a few dollars saved.' But by the time they buy the vault, the casket and everything else, that money is gone. Remember that our elderly are very independent people. Even if they managed to save something, the little amount would not be any good. All we have to do is go sit down and talk to them. They will tell you—if they trust you, that is.

When that was happening and there was no support for pensions, I made the proposition that if they could not do pensions in this country and they wanted to get rid of people, they would pay them properly. And, boy, did the forces rise up against me! Even here in this House people did not support it. There were various reasons. I had no support in Executive Council. Behind my back, not to my face, they were peddling away at me. Nevertheless, I accepted their position. We didn't get it, but I said to the people who opposed it at that time that if they were not going to do this they would have to support pensions. Even at that time the recommendation was made that we pay the older ones a little bit more. I don't know if that is happening. I don't believe so.

Now, Mr. Speaker, what did these older people do to deserve anything from Government? Let me give you a broad heading. They built this country so that all of us in this House can live well. And they kept it so that all of them coming in could live well. What those who worked as domestics in people's homes back then did was scrub the floors, wash the clothes, sweep the yard, pull the bush, sometimes cook the meals, wash the dishes. Some people today forget that kind of thing. They do remember the people who washed their clothes, cleaned out their toilet. Let me be very open. They don't forget that.

They cleaned the hotel rooms; they cooked the meals in the hotels and the condominiums. They washed the dishes there too, scrubbed the floors, made the beds, and went into bathrooms that you and I would turn our face up at. We, in this House must forget that and listen to people who can only think, 'I'm not getting' it, and 'This one is getting' it so why should I not get it? Me? I know when to stand up and when to sit down.

Never mind about those who got damaged on the job and got nothing for it. Today it costs their families heaps of money because they are just now, at this age, feeling the effects of it. And when you have to go to the Baptist Hospital, or any hospital in the United States, it's not one penny. And some have to pay it back! What about those who went to sea? And let us now include the veterans because that includes veterans, as we know them—they who went and faced battle, and then veteran seamen who travelled in wartime.

Where did we have an income from to keep up the country? The Meskito Banks. Swannie Shipping Company. Your family, Mr. Speaker, had a big shipping company and hired a lot of people. But they never had any pension. They travelled during that time. You are a master mariner. I think you are old enough to know something about it. We have at least one other in this House, the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay, who knows about it. These people built this country! Yes, the banks came, and the trust companies and the investors came with their money. It was good for us. Then tourism came and it was good for us. But they set the foundation. Let's put it this way: They did the dirty work so that all of us today could be better off.

Who went to sea starting out at the Meskito Key Banks? Swan Island? These are things that have to do with our history. In wartime there were those willing to go off and up front so that this world could be free today. They fought the Axis Powers at the time, the Germans and others that were united. There is not much question about those who went to Trinidad because everybody recognised that group. But there is some grumbling that they should not get it. I wonder if they know what it was like? I wonder if they ever faced 40-foot seas between here and the Meskito Key Banks, when they had to chop out the vessel's mast to save lives? When lives were taken in the Majestic and the Hustler do we forget that? There are people still living from that era who have nothing, or they call them old drunks. They say, 'They are drunks. You don't need to give them anything.' But when this country and the world needed saving they were the iron men in wooden ships; men who went down in the sea. Don't forget.

I wish to God that we never had come to the stage where people are so eager to put down, criticise, and ridicule without knowing what we they talking about. But when you have a right to do it, . . . Well, it is your right to do such things. But in this instance I say no one has any cause to criticise because some who are criticising today don't know anything about it. So these are the ones who should be getting, and we are not doing enough. I would like to see who will stand up and say they should not get it, when we boast of a per capita income of some $21,000 or $18,000; yet we cannot give this kind of money.

There are veterans who not only went to Trinidad, but they were in Bermuda, they were in England. The truth is that England should be giving us something to give to them.

Mr. Roy Boddan: True!

Mr. W McKeever Bush: All they do now is take away laws that are good for us!

[Members' laughter]

Mr. W McKeever Bush: There were veterans who faced battles, widows today of husbands in foreign prison camps. I had a grand uncle who spent many years in a prison camp in Germany.

There are other families who are affected by it. Can we as a Legislative Assembly put politics in the way of these kinds of things? No! We should join hands and do anything we can to see that that is increased to a level that makes our people comfortable. The truth is, some people never had to do it. They never had to scrub the hotel floors, they never had to clean the toilets, but they did other things. They helped build the country. But today they don't have anything. And we have people who were in the hotel industry and are out of the industry now but really have nothing. I said sometime ago that it is time that we be a kinder, gentler nation with a willingness to assist and allow for one another with sincerity and trust; not to walk with daggers, but to do justly and to love mercy with a willingness to help our brother rather than putting him down.

In my life I only know about one thing, and that is to do all the good I can to all the people I can. And during my term in Executive Council that was what I was doing. I did it and I have no apologies to make. Perhaps in this investigation, or this audit (let's not call it an investigation) there will be a few people who fell through the cracks. That can be tightened up. But I would hope that there is no all out effort to try to make anybody look bad by saying they did wrong. If anyone fell through the cracks and got something, there are ways to rectify that. But people on the street, standing, sitting or living in their homes or wherever they are, should not be ready to judge who got and who gets and who does not need, because we don't know what a person has to live with. We can see people with a nice pair of shoes. We might think that that person is wealthy. Don't think that way. We don't know.

I have been rambling this morning, but I think that what we are trying to accomplish needs to be done. Between the veterans and the elderly, financial assistance was less than $3 million, when we are spending here, there and everywhere, putting up buildings. We want to spend all sorts of money on roads, and we say we don't care, we have to drive well, so we are going to spend it on roads. Never mind spending less than $3 million on the people who built the country, and who need it. But we can spend how much on the prison? I didn't look at that estimate. But how much are we spending on the prison in this country?

We are doing so badly that we have to spend millions and millions of dollars on protection by building up the police force. We spend millions and millions of dollars on a national airline. We spend millions of dollars on castles and two civic centres in a district. We can afford that, but we cannot afford to pay our people who built this country $400? I say, 'Shame on us!' if we cannot do it when we are supposed to do it.

The good thing about this type of expenditure is that the cost is not an increasing one year after year, but one that will decrease year by year with the advent of pensions and, of course, the death ratio. This is not something that will be increasing forever; it is something that is decreasing. I can recall numerous persons who have passed on to glory, who started getting this back in 1995. Some died before they could even get their first cheque. The cheque was written and everything. Passed on to glory.

Mr. Speaker, I had better sit down. I hope that I have touched enough hearts to go with it. I would like to thank the seconder of this motion and all those on this side who agree.

The Speaker: The motion is open for debate. Does any Member wish to speak? The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I rise to lend my support to this motion as I recognise that individuals who are determined by an assessment process to be needy will require the financial assistance given by Government to be adjusted accordingly to compensate for such increases in the consumer price index. We all know, when we go to the supermarket and have to purchase other goods, the incredible cost of living in the Cayman Islands.

Government also recognises that $200 which it gives on a monthly basis, although much appreciated, does not go very far in providing the necessities for these individuals.

As the mover mentioned, when leading up to the 1996 election, included in the Manifesto of the National Team was that an increase to the needy would be discussed. I must stress, however, that although I am in full support of this motion I am making the point that this assistance should only be given to individuals who are determined by assessment to be in need. I know this was also enforced by the Honourable Member moving the motion.

I would like to advise this House that since my Ministry has taken over responsibility for financial assistance the financial assistance criteria have been revised by the Social Services Department in conjunction with the Ministry and are being used to determine if a person is needy. For the benefit of this Honourable House, I would like to table a draft of these criteria, and will also pass on copies to Members.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: In agreement with the First Elected Member for West Bay, adhering to the means test will enable us to concentrate on giving more to those who genuinely need it. I envisage increasing the figure in the future to realistic figures. As the mover said, when we look at the amount of money that passes through these islands, and the supposed affluence here, our elderly in need, especially those who may be handicapped, should not be put in the position of being looked down on. We must assist them. I agree with the mover 100 per cent.

These criteria should be taken into consideration, such as the responsibility of adult children to maintain their elderly or disabled parents, and grandparents. This was also taken into consideration in section 5 of the Maintenance Law (1996 Revision). The other Law which affects these guidelines was the financial assessment by the Social Services Department, and that is the Poor Persons (Relief) Law (1997 Revision). Section 4 provides that any person receiving government financial aid who has or comes into any property, that property shall be vested in the Crown.

Government cannot continue supporting individuals who do not have genuine needs and the Laws mentioned earlier will need to be taken into consideration when assessment is made. But this point was borne out earlier by the mover in the means test. I think that when this is done it will eliminate much of this and give that concentrated help to those who really need it.

In closing, I am pleased to lend my support to this very important Private Member's Motion which has been brought to this Honourable House by the First Elected Member for West Bay, and I would like to commend him for his continuing commitment to those of our citizens in need.

Just to touch briefly on the systems audit report, which I will share with those concerned. As he said, and as was also advocated, this will do a periodic revision of those getting it to ensure that it is going to the right bank and many other things. That is what this audit will address.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? The Third Elected Member for West Bay. But before you begin your debate, would this be a convenient time to take the morning break?

Proceedings will be suspended for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.35 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12.02 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Debate continues on Private Member's Motion No. 8/98.

The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I rise to offer my support to Private Member's Motion No. 8/98, entitled, Increase of Financial Assistance to the Elderly, Handicapped and other persons in need.

We have elderly who enjoy this privilege in West Bay. That $200 they get from the Government on a monthly basis is, in many cases, the only income many of them have. The only reason it is $200 today is because the former Minister of Community Development (the present First Elected Member for West Bay) pushed to get it increased to $200 per month, and that was about two years ago. But the fact is that even with that, a number of our elderly are still having a difficult time making ends meet. The cost of living goes up in this country on an annual basis. It costs more for food, and electricity is also very high. There is also a water bill to contend with in most cases.

I believe that the increase from $200 to $400 per month is reasonable. As the mover mentioned, they did a survey to determine what would be a reasonable figure and this is what was agreed upon. The concern I have is that there are more and more of our elderly in a position where they need financial assistance from Government. Many of them find themselves in this position because former Governments did not have the foresight to put in place some type of pension plan for their golden years. There comes a time when they can no longer physically work.

Mr. Speaker, I have heard it bandied around a lot recently that one's children, if one has children, are supposed to take care of one. The reality of life here in the Cayman Islands is this: Everyone is strapped up to their necks financially because of the high cost of living. They all have a difficult time making ends meet. So I don't think we can assume that because someone has children that they are in a position to assist financially.

I am aware that a means test has to be filled out and reviewed before one qualifies for consideration. But I am one Member who feels very strongly that our elderly in their golden years deserve to enjoy some amount of dignity in their lives. If Government can assist with that by giving them a little monthly amount, then I think that is in order. I am aware that the district officer conducts this means test, or financial review. The reason for this, and it makes sense, is that the officers know most of the people in their respective districts. So they are in a much better position to find these people and sit down with them. They know the family connections and I believe it makes more sense to approach it from that standpoint.

Our elderly worked very hard during their lifetimes to build this country. I recall as a boy that the only way of life many of our men knew was going to sea. That meant going to the coast of Nicaragua to do turtle fishing, or going to what was known as Southwell and being employed on the tankers that sailed the Seven Seas. Also, many of them went to Swan Island, my little paradise, in order to support their families. The fact of life here in the Cayman Islands is that they have no steady means of income. We did not have the foresight many years ago to put in place a pension plan. I am glad that we have the political guts to do it now, even though we had some ripples and resistance. By taking that decision we should see an easing of the demand for assistance from Government in maybe 15 or 20 years.

I go to my MLA office in West Bay on Mondays and Wednesdays. This past Wednesday some people came to see me concerning the new policy on free medical. Basically, they told me that the person concerned is a gentleman who is 80 years old, a former cancer patient with an elderly wife who is totally dependent on others for care. They went up for free medical and were told that the new policy is that they have to offer some asset, like a house or a piece of property. Government is now saying that in order to enjoy that benefit of free medical, or the little monthly allowance, they have to get a lien over a piece of property.

There are situations and circumstances where children are capable of taking care of their parents. Maybe that parent has land and a house that the children would inherit upon the death of their parent. If Government has to step in and say, 'Okay, if you won't take care of your mother or father and we have to, then we are going to see to it that somehow when you come to inherit this property that you have to contribute something back in return.' I have a problem with that. I don't think it should be a general policy because many of our older people have a little house they are sitting in. Our people are very independent, very private and confidential and they would be concerned thinking, 'Oh, my goodness. I am getting $200 per month and now I have a lien over my house.'

Many of them have not had a mortgage for years. I am concerned that our people who deserve and need this assistance will refuse to give Government a lien over their property in return for the $200 a month dole or free medical, in which case that person is then deprived of what they need in order to maintain a certain dignity in life.

I have seen before where this nonsense was insisted upon. I recall a lady from West Bay who was being given a hard time about putting her land up for collateral. Because she resisted it, she was deprived of the medical assistance that she needed until it was too late. That is not right under any circumstance. So, as a representative I support what is fair, but I will not support that type of draconian policy.

I believe that this is a reasonable request and I support the idea that only those who deserve it should get it. I keep hearing are rumours about people on that list who are driving around in rented cars and getting that $200 per month dole. I don't support that kind of nonsense. It should be, and it is, intended for those who need it. So I support this request and I must also mention that it was a part of our 1996 National Team Manifesto. In order to get the vote, we promised that. And I am a man of my word. If I promised it, then I am prepared to deliver it. I just hope that the Government will now get on with putting this new policy in place.

Be very stringent as to who qualifies, and if one qualifies, then I don't think there should be a whole lot of conditions attached to this little dole, because, Mr. Speaker, $200 or $400 per month...let's put ourselves in that position and see how we would react.

I support the motion and I commend the mover and seconder.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: The remnants of political promises, the failure of what remains of the National Team and the Government to deliver what they promised the people is becoming more and more obvious. I remember specifically that this was a primary consideration among at least certain genuine members of that political team at the time of the 1996 elections, and after. I understood this consideration was not based upon the fact that the Government of the Cayman Islands had an abundance of money to pay out to persons in need. But, it was a consideration based upon the concept of what I call Caymanian humanity, that special humanity that does not allow us to sit down and eat our 'din-din' without including the poor or disabled that might also be hungry.

I remember the word 'din-din' because when we used to have our stew-food, our boil-down or run-down, back in the 1950s when food was not necessarily all that abundant like certain people like to pretend it was—at least not in our poor family in George Town—we had to share. I used to be amazed at how my grandmother Sara McField used to take a pot and share amongst so many people. Before she started sharing, there was no point in going into her kitchen and see what you were not going to get. You were only going to get a result of how it had to share, not a result of 'this belongs to me, and I live here in this house with you, and they live across there.' No. When we were all present we were all invited to partake in that communion.

It is important that the remaining members of the National Team in Government remember the seriousness of political promises. They must remember the number of absentee ballots in particular, in the district of George Town, that went to members of the National Team. These absentee ballots were from disabled people, poor people, elderly people, and indigent people. And I remember specifically when those absentee ballots were being counted on that fateful night that I was behind, I was so terribly behind because I had not hustled that group of particular people. And some people had like 100 votes just from absentee ballots because they had people who went out there to visit these elderly people and persuade them to vote for specific members of the National Team. It would be a betrayal, indeed, a betrayal beyond repentance, if at this particular stage—midway in the term given to them by some of these persons—the National Team were to say, 'We support this. But all we are going to do is make it more stringent, make it more difficult for elderly and disabled people to qualify.'

If you look at the number of cases in the courts of this country for maintenance of children, when you look at the whole Maintenance Law, and when you look at the way the court has to become involved in forcing fathers to support their children, the difficulties single mothers have in this country collecting money from fathers, then we know how difficult it will be for grandmothers to collect money from grandchildren, and for mothers to collect money from their children. We can make laws, but the laws will not replace the tradition before time. Laws, somehow, must be moulded and formed in such a way so as to support the tradition and make an easy transition from one stage of social development to another stage of social development.

I spoke about communalism—not communism, now Mr. Speaker, because those of us who are old enough and wise enough know the difference between the two systems. The communalism in the Cayman Islands is a result of our self-sufficient society, a society based around planting breadkind and going and catching fish and turtle, living in a self-sufficient economy. The competitiveness was not there. Therefore, people were not doing things just for self interest and self praise and self recommendation, they were doing it so that somebody would say, 'You're a good person, God bless you.' Because the blessing of God put upon you by somebody else is better than you demanding that God give you that blessing yourself. If I pray, I pray for myself, but it is more holy to pray for someone else.

I will never forget that during my presentation of the Censure Motion that transpired and finished yesterday, I went to see the widow of the late Whitmore Syms. That lady is 82 years old. She is deaf in one ear, blind in one eye, has high blood pressure and heart problems. She gets $200 per month and her telephone was cut off and she cannot pay her electricity bill. She said, "Sonny, the water bill is so high." She has no telephone, no contact, because Cayman is not the way it used to be 30 or 36 years ago when Granny Sarah was sharing stew-food on Mary Street.

Cayman is no longer that way. People live next to you and you don't even know if they are living or dead, if they eat or don't eat. That is the type of society that this little small island has developed into. Therefore, old persons in this society, as the First Elected Member for West Bay has said, contributed to the society that we all profit from and we should have some sensitivity to the care and maintenance of the roots of our very existence—being the elderly in this society, the roots of our very existence. We know that our society has developed so rapidly that people have forgotten about the very values that compelled them to create the social security system for the elderly. It was we, as responsible children and grandchildren, who were the social security system for the elderly at that particular time.

That was done because our conscience was involved with them. The social fabric of the society allowed that to happen. When it came to being valued and recognised and praised, the praise of an old person saying 'God bless you, son' was more important than getting a Mercedes. It truly was. So, we looked for the blessing of the old person rather than looking to deny them something so that we could go around with pretty clothes and pretty cars and pretty women.

It is important to note that the choices people are making today are no longer fair choices, no longer necessarily ethical and moral choices. People are choosing very egotistically, very selfishly, not very altruistically. They are not looking toward their past saying, 'Let us protect our elderly with dignity and pride.' That would be the true judge of how our society cares for the disabled, the weak, how we defend the poor, not how we care for and defend the rich.

The rich can go any place in the world and be treated with dignity and respect, and get what they want. I think we had a lesson in that yesterday. I know that we will continue to have lessons in this type of behaviour in the future of this island because it is the way of the world. It is the way it is. But let us not forget that in these Chambers there are men of conscience and that this conscience compels us to remember promises made by politicians. This particular increase should have been done some time ago.

The law is not sufficient, because if the value is not there in the child to support the parent or grandparent, the law will not be successful. It can drag people into court, but what happens to the old person in the meantime? What happens to the old person at that time? What happens? So while the elderly must come to court to beg irresponsible children for support, what happens then? The Government must understand that it is our responsibility to see that the standards of society are maintained, at least to a level, by not allowing certain persons to sink below a particular standard. Because the standard of the society, at the end of the day, will be the standard of the lowest in the society, not the standard of the highest. So it is the low-line we have to look at.

It is important that the older people—and I know I have one special person in George Town with whom I meet on Sunday mornings, God bless his soul. We talk, and he tells me about the wars he was in. He remembers, and all he has now as wealth, Mr. Speaker, is his past, not his future. His future does not exist! He is at that age where all he has is the memory of his past, and the memory of his past is filled with accomplishments, a wealth of accomplishment. Yet, with all that brag about Caymanian culture and tradition, and the pride of the Caymanian people, and we want to build an art gallery, and we want a museum, we want this and we want that, . . . but we cannot support the elderly?

What kind of priorities does that suggest? What type of leaders do we have in this country who believe that a cocktail party is more important to pay for than medical attention for the elderly and disabled in this country? What kind of leadership do we have in this country? It is time that the people of this country wake up and understand the hypocrisy of the politics that has existed in this country for the last twenty years, where people can come and promise handouts at election time, but not stick to election promises, to campaign promises, and we must only go back to those nicely printed manifestos of the National Team for the 1996 elections to know exactly what Frank McField is talking about.

Those manifestos were so glossy and so pretty and so nicely printed, and the pictures of the people on them were so pretty, and they were so expensive. How could anyone forget them? Especially the people with their pictures on it?

Of course, I am not talking about the First Elected Member for West Bay, because he is the one from this side who has to remind the National Team of the political promises and obligations they have to the people. As a person who always said—

[Inaudible comments, laughter]

Dr. Frank McField: —who always said—

[Laughter]

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, the good humour is caused by seeing the Minister of Education rolling up his pantlegs again to walk through the puddle of water to save the people from the floods! But we would like to see the Minister of Education rolling up his shirtsleeves to fight for the people, to help the people from starvation and poverty.

But how can people starve in the Cayman Islands? we ask ourselves. Well, if you give someone $200 for a month, Mr. Speaker, and everything you get these days has to be bought from the supermarkets—nothing is planted, nothing is given. What about the days when we used to go to people and give them some breadkind, and give them a little piece of fish? Do you think any old people are being given fish today? No, because I can get $4.50 for a pound of fish! The fish have commercial value. The breadfruit has commercial value. The coconut has a commercial value, so people do not give things any more.

So it is the duty of Government to protect the disabled, to protect those who cannot protect themselves—not because of laziness, because I do not support that—but because of need. We have created such a one-sided, competitive, harsh society, that unless you can jump in and have all kinds of credentials, you could very well be pushed out of the pecking order. So when you peck, there is nothing left. There is nothing left to peck!

A lady I have known for a very long time, from George Town, has worked hard in kitchens. The last place she worked was 'Cookrum', and that is now closed. She came to me and told me she could not find a job washing dishes! And anyone who tells me that that woman is lying does not know what they are talking about, because she is the hardest, darkest person you know! She is the epitome of that hardworking black woman. She is not lying. All her daughters are the same way. They work hard. But now she has come to that age when no one wants her services any more. She is not fast enough. The mule does not run half as fast as it used to run when it was young, so we should put it to rest by shooting it down, burying it and getting rid of it, getting away from it totally—our responsibility for its humanity.

So we have allowed our system to drift, and we have postponed pensions and social security benefits and all those things for so long in this country, and now we have people who are well into their late 50s who are no longer competitive workers, and people want to push them out. How is the system going to deal with all of this? It is important for us to make these kinds of considerations, to have these thoughts of what we are going to do with those persons who are no longer competitive. Are we just going to say, 'Well, the day you cannot work for yourself any more, you have nothing?' That person does not have a home. That person has children, but that person's children have children, too! So would we take those children to court because they are making $200 a week, and they have to support their three, four and five children?

We have to be very careful. We have to be very careful about not figuring out a way to deal with the waste in the lack of human competitiveness—and I say 'waste' not from my regard of it, but from the industry's saying, 'We have used you for twenty years at Holiday Inn; we used you for this time at this place; you are now 58. We cannot use you any more. You don't stand on your foot good enough. Let us throw you out to the waste dumps.' To the labour waste dumps we see being created in this country. Mr. Speaker, it exists. My pocketbook can prove it exists. My overdraft, my continuous overdraft can prove it exists. I like to say no sometimes, but the cases I witness are so compelling that I have to do something!

What can we do, Mr. Speaker? Should we say we do not want to create a welfare state? I do not want to create a welfare state. But I see a welfare state as a state that supports those who can work! But a state that supports those who cannot work, that is not a welfare state, Mr. Speaker. That is a good state. That is the state that should exist.

If we had brought in the pensions earlier, we would not have the obligation. But because we brought in the pensions at this particular point, and we are compelling people to save for their golden age, it automatically speaks to the fact that we have an obligation for those who were not brought into the system earlier. I think that is what the First Elected Member for West Bay has been saying. This is what I understand him to have been saying to me before the election of '96, and after the election of '96, when I identified with the National Team policies regarding certain social issues and certain health issues. Because I thought they had found a point that seemed to be in harmony with Caymanian humanity, the concept of Caymanian humanity.

It is not going to be helped and assisted if all the Government of the Leader of Government's Business is going to do is try to use legal terminology and technical jargon to outsmart us again, and say, 'Yes, we do support you, and this is how we support you,' and so forth and so on, so that somehow it dies. The Backbench cannot really compel Government to become involved in anything that would tax the treasury, so it is up to Government itself to do something about this. How genuine are they in wanting to do something about this?

I am not going to take anyone saying they are going to do something any more in this House and believe they are going to do it, not after yesterday, Mr. Speaker! Not after yesterday! No word is good enough after yesterday, Mr. Speaker! I've got to see ACTION! I'll believe it when I see it, Mr. Speaker. Politics is a strange institution. I have to see it. So I am going to put the pressure on them now that if they back down, and if they are not vigilant and industrious in causing this to come to be, then I am going to go out there with my little TV programme, and my little way of campaigning and getting things done, and whip 'em! Because, Mr. Speaker, let me tell you, there are a lot of old, poor people in this country. There are a lot of them! All you have to do is go look at some of the statistics!

These are the same kind of old people who keep governments like the National Team in power! These are the same people that the Leader of Government Business can talk about destroying the country too! And being this and being that! But it is important that the people who have supported the National Team Government be given the opportunity to be supported as well, because they certainly have not only given political support to this country, they have given other support to this country. They have given this country the best of their years, and once it is no more, then you disregard them? No! You tell their children they have to support them, when you know their children are probably involved too much in supporting their children? How many of us really have extra money that we can give our parents?

I tell you the truth. Even with my salary, even with the fact that I have no children to support, it is hard! And if my mother had not worked in a system like the United States where she was able to accumulate some type of social security benefits or medical benefits and some kind of savings at that time when she could work for a better wage there than she could at Galleon Beach and other hotels here, because the people who were working here back in the 60s were not making very much to save! In their golden years—when they were working at the hotels, they were not paying them anything for them to save. So what would they have saved from? You see?

So I really must be sympathetic toward those persons the law would now assume should pay for their parents because, Mr. Speaker—and I will finish in a minute—it is not good enough to use the law. We need to come up with a concept that will allow us to pay for our responsibilities. Just like children have responsibilities to parents, governments have responsibilities to people. We have to find a formula, in this very, very rich society where most of us don't really benefit in proportion to those who do; in a society where the interest rates are so high, where the lawyers make so much money, where the accountants make so much money, where the banks are tripping over with the kind of interest they are making and funds they are making, and there is nothing being put back into maintenance of good law and order and good humanity, good civilisation. The society will not remain civil and humane if it is not reinvested, if we have asset stripping. Asset stripping is when you do nothing to maintain a particular level of human decency. We need this money to maintain a particular level of human decency. Therefore, the Government needs to realise this is not the obligation of the Backbench, but their obligation, to find where that money is going to come from.

The Speaker: This will be a convenient time to take the luncheon break. We shall suspend until 2.15 PM.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.47 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 3.59 PM

The Speaker: Proceedings are resumed. Debate continues on Private Member's Motion No. 8/98 with the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Miss Heather D. Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I rise with great anticipation to offer my contribution to Private Member's Motion 8/98, 'Increase of Financial Assistance to the Elderly, Handicapped and Other Persons in Need,' which is being moved by the First Elected Member for West Bay, and seconded by the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

First, let me take this opportunity to applaud the efforts of this Honourable Member. His passion for the elderly can only be admired. His people are his first and foremost concern. Yes, I remember that promise made to these people in the 1996 general election and I too am here today to fully support this motion.

Mr. Speaker, it is my opinion that the elderly, the handicapped, and other persons in need are very special and important people in our Caymanian community, who, in their own way, have either contributed or are still contributing to our Caymanian way of life in a very big way. I feel that we, as a country, owe them a moral obligation to assistance as much as possible. Further, these special people look to us as their representatives to ensure that we provide for their general well being.

I know these people are very grateful for the assistance they now receive, which is but a small $200 per month; but realistically this cannot provide them with a decent standard of living. With the cost of living constantly on the increase, $200 can barely buy enough food for them to survive, and for some of the persons receiving this financial assistance, the $200 is all they have to depend on.

These are very special people who are very near and dear to my heart. Anything good I can do to help them, I am more than anxious and happy to do. Further, I truly believe that the needs of these people are specific needs, and we must make every effort to be specific when we try to address their financial hardships.

I believe that with the ever-rising cost and inflation generally we should do whatever possible, and should consider increasing the financial assistance to these people. I thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I thought it would not have been necessary for me to say anything on this motion when the First Elected Member asked me to second it, because I knew I could rely on his passion to carry the motion. I looked forward to just rising to second the motion and then retaining my seat. But certain circumstances, including some comments I heard one day on a radio programme, 'Talk Today,' have impressed upon me the necessity to offer a contribution; and, indeed, Mr. Speaker, to dispel some misinformation.

Great countries were not suddenly manufactured, but came about as the result of long years of sacrifice and unselfish toil by generations. One of the things I admire about the United States—although I have always said it does not attract me as an immigrant, . . . I have studied its history and genesis, and one need not go any further than the inscription on the Statue of Liberty, which was a gift by the French people to the new nation of the United States, upon their proclaiming their independence, and setting themselves up. Part of that inscription reads, "Give me your tired, . . . huddled masses."

In spite of what many people may think, our country did not reach this level overnight. The foundation was laid by people, many of whom have now passed on, unable to reap any of the benefits that have accrued, and are accruing, to their progeny and successors at this stage. Some are still left, but they are fast being left out and left behind. It seems that in our busy and selfish schedules we seldom take time to appreciate and pay respect to those people who laboured long, who risked their lives, who worked literally for pennies, who now are in their twilight years, neglected many of them, forgotten and unappreciated.

I believe one of the characteristics of any people has to be the cultivation of a social conscience. I am happy that the world has reached the stage where speaking of a social conscience does not mean one is a socialist, but rather, a sensible human being.

History would not be kind to us, heaven would not forgive us, if we pretend that those people who laboured long and hard deserve nothing at this stage. To those who are begrudging the efforts as proposed in this motion, it is too bad for them. We owe it to our elderly; we owe it to the handicapped; and we owe it to those people who volunteered their services during the war years, those people who went into the armed forces as well as those who served in the Merchant Marine; and those people who plied the trade in, as Caymanians call it, Meskito Quay, in the days when turtle was the staple food and a viable marketing product taken to Key West, Florida, for sale by Caymanian fishermen.

I would not be the representative I claim to be if I stood up here and offered no support to these people. I am glad it was highlighted that this was a promise in the manifesto of the National Team in 1996. The National Team, or its remnants, owes it now to the people to fulfil this obligation. In so doing, they have the support of those other Members of this House, like myself, who have a social conscience. Any self-respecting politician who has walked his or her constituency knows we have cases in the Cayman Islands who are deserving of the assistance we seek. Any knowledgeable representative knows that $200 per month is but a paltry sum. It was intended to be a token, and now it is necessary to increase that. That is exactly what this motion is calling for.

I cannot respect those who say this is undeserving. I will tell those who issued the claim to the First Elected Member for West Bay and I to say where this money is coming from. It should come from all self-respecting citizens of these Islands who feel a moral obligation to contribute to those who have laid the foundation for those of us who are reaping the benefits now. Is this too much to ask? We, who are so quick to profess that we have such a charitable spirit, we who are so quick to flaunt the Bible and say we have a Christian heritage—is it now too much to say that we should give the needy, the indigent, the handicapped, a little $400 per month?

Other Honourable Members before me have highlighted the fact that this is not a sector of people whose numbers will be increasing yearly. The obverse is true. Unfortunately, their age and state of health will preclude many of them from the longevity and length of time they would need to enjoy the fruits of the sacrifices they put in. I do not now see what the big deal is. We spend millions on other things that have a less auspicious history. Why should we be so stingy and so Scrooge-like that we will begrudge giving to these deserving persons at this time?

I understand that there is talk of reform in the air, and that we need to evolve a more sophisticated system. I am all for that. I understand some people say there may be cases of abuse. Well, we have regulations and guidelines designed to catch these cases. I am satisfied that regular and constant review will do just that. I have always been an advocate of helping those less fortunate, for it is only in so doing that we will develop a society free from threat of destruction from any sector. I am happy that the Government, at least according to the Honourable Minister for Health, is accepting this motion. I am certain other Ministers do not need any reminder that it is their obligation—those who were part of the National Team in 1996—as stated in their manifesto.

So Mr. Speaker, the sooner we craft a system and get this in place, the better it will be for all and sundry, because it makes no sense to boast that we enjoy one of the highest per capita incomes in the world if we also have the largest percentage of people who are suffering for want of the basic necessities. Before I sit down, I want to say that as far as I am concerned the time has come in the Cayman Islands to do a survey to find out what is considered the poverty line, nationally, in this country. I think any country—certainly, in the developed world, every country knows what constitutes the poverty line, below what level of earning, what level of income people are considered officially poor. I think we need to embark upon that in the Cayman Islands, and I am throwing it out as a challenge for the Minister in charge of that particular area, that is a project his Social Services Department should undertake, in conjunction with the Statistics Department, because that will help officialdom, help the Members of the Legislative Assembly, and help the Government arrive at some system, as well as give them an idea of the numbers we need to prepare to cater for.

I am happy to lend my support to this motion.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I am happy this afternoon to give my full support to Private Member's Motion No. 8/98, calling for Government to consider putting in place the necessary funds so that by the year 2000, the financial assistance to the various persons as stated therein would be at an aggregate sum of CI$400 per month per person. The Good Book tells us that the poor will always be with us, meaning that the Government—in this, I am using it in the wider sense—all Honourable Elected Members therefore have the unchanging fact of life, which is identifiable. Therefore it is my humble submission that a positive, practical and humanistic solution has to be applied to this most important social issue.

One never really knows the pinch of the shoe until one walks in it, and if anyone knows what it is to be poor, and to commence this life at what most would categorise as the low level of the social stratification, indeed, I know. Coupled together with this compassion to help others, especially those in dire need, is my Christian heritage, which has been instilled, the neighbourly principle and the principle of loving one another, regardless of colour, creed or race.

Out of an abundance of caution, let me hasten to say that I have not prefaced my contribution with these personal sentiments merely to attempt in any way to blow my own trumpet, but to show that when one talks about assisting the elderly or handicapped, or those who may be less fortunate than ourselves, they are already speaking to the converted. Therefore, I do not have to spend any more time considering whether these persons' financial assistance should be increased, because I, like most if not all other Members, feel that it is our duty, as the last speaker specifically emphasised, our moral obligation to assist these persons, and an increase to $400 per month, in my view, should be done as quickly as possible.

Indeed, I am grateful that persons categorised in the proposed motion are now receiving the sum of $200 per month. For some persons this is all they receive, and therefore the key for their physical and financial survival is based on this stipend. When this financial assistance arrives two or three days late, I am sure your good self, Mr. Speaker, as well as all other Members have had the experience of many of these persons calling up, wanting to find out when the cheque would arrive. When this does not occur, it causes a financial and emotional crisis, and in my view, unnecessary stress on those persons.

The rate of inflation continues to rise in this country, as in most countries. Unfortunately, the financial assistance has not kept abreast of the cost of living. Each year it becomes increasingly more difficult for persons in need to maintain a basic standard of life with the funds we are able to offer. Many of my people from the constituency I represent, but in particular on the Brac, depend heavily on financial assistance. Many of these elderly persons' husbands or wives, in the respective cases, are now deceased, and they have no other means of support. It will indeed be a happy, happy day for me when the financial assistance is increased for these persons in need.

Perhaps, too, the time has come for regular reviews of the financial assistance to the elderly, the handicapped and other persons in need, so that they can maintain reasonable bargaining power throughout their life. Anything we can therefore do to assist persons in need we should do post-haste.

I would like to thank the mover and the seconder for bringing this motion, because I feel that as a Government, we have a moral obligation to assist these persons in need, and we should make every effort to ensure that the means test we have in place, or if it is deemed to have any amendments thereto, should be done in as amicable a fashion as possible. I am sure we will agree that our Caymanian people are a very proud set of people, and justifiably so. Oftentimes they will do without requesting the requisite financial assistance because of pride or perhaps ego in various cases.

Therefore, sir, I believe we should take this moral obligation to a higher level, in that we should take the initiative to identify persons falling within this category, and do everything possible to ensure those needs are met. I am happy to give my full support to this motion. As many of our elderly today, in particular, those who were here during the time, as the older folks like to say, 'when mos- quitoes were our only source of defence,' should be recognised, and any increase to the financial assistance is but a small token of our appreciation. With those few words, Mr. Speaker, I take great pride and delight in supporting this motion. Thank you, sir.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I rise to give Private Member's Motion No. 8/98 my full support because I feel our people—our old people, our handicapped people—need the support that can be given to them. What they are now receiving is just a pittance in a box. They have to pay the same price for any material or food as those who have the money, who can afford it. Therefore, supporting them is a great help. We support them because we feel within ourselves that this is the right thing to do, to help the poor and aged to enjoy their twilight hours and their last days.

I want to congratulate the Member for bringing this motion to this House, and also the seconder. The Member who brought it and I have talked about this many times, and I am giving this my full support, sir. Thank you.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I fully support this motion. I think it is very important that we ensure that the elderly, those who are less fortunate, those who have suffered the perils of war, are given a sufficient income to ensure that they can preserve the dignity they have in their later years especially. A society has to put back into it. There cannot be a constant taking out without putting something back. I feel there are many people whose dignity, at times, would perhaps not let them feel that they should be given handouts, but if this is done in the correct way, it benefits a lot. To double it to $400 per month, I think, is very good. It is still obviously small.

But I would like to go on to dwell on just one other area, because I think, while this can be done, it is important that people within that family unit assist the elderly. The Cayman Islands community has been built on the basis of a strong family unit; it has been built on the basis of sharing. That is what got this country to where it is today. That foundation is something that is very important, and I know in recent years, with the rapid development, people have less time, perhaps, for family, but it is important that we preserve as much of that as possible.

We are also a Christian community, and we must, therefore, be kind. As the Lord tells us, to give is better than to receive. I fully support this, Mr. Speaker, and I commend the Member for bringing this. I believe the people of this country who get it do deserve it, but I would also say, sir, that those within a family unit who help and assist, . . . it keeps the family unit strong.

The Government has never, ever, in my many years in here, done anything other than assist those who are in need. I think that basic principle is one that must continue, and I think there must, from time to time, be the necessary increases. The Cayman Islands, compared to many of the other Caribbean islands, are well off, and it is important that those who are less fortunate receive what is necessary to live well and to preserve their dignity. It is something I will always support, and have always supported. As far as I could, I have always assisted directly. It is something that my father, especially, taught me. I remember vividly in the early days going at Christmas, or at times when people were ill or whatever, my father sent me there with things from the store for those people. It is important that we give, because there may be times, Mr. Speaker, when we are also in need ourselves. Many times, those people give, either in the form of advice or friendship or whatever, and it feels good to give. I fully support the motion and will continue to do so and ensure that from time to time there are the necessary increases.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak?

The Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I have seen many motions before this House, and let me say that this is a motion that I feel each Member of this House has an obligation to support. It is my belief that when a Government supports education, health, the elderly and the handicapped, funds are spent well. I am pleased to offer my full support to Private Member's Motion No. 8/98.

It is a fact that during the 1996 election most Members, if not all, gave the commitment that we would look at whatever way possible to offer our full assistance to the handicapped, the elderly and other needy persons. I believe today that every one of us can leave this Chamber feeling that we have done what is correct, once this motion has passed.

In these islands today it is no longer like it used to be. We have to face that fact. One of the proudest moments in my life was when I was able to establish a little home in East End for the elderly. It has proven to be an asset to that district because the persons who have been able to go there are living their last days in peace. Because of the commitment of the Cayman Islands' Government and the support of that district, they have been able to live in comfort. It is the duty of this Legislative Assembly and the people of this country, regardless of how the elderly have contributed to this country. We must look back with pride because they have made a contribution to this country and what we can offer to them, call it what we may, is all deserving. They have made a contribution to a country we can all be proud of today.

I have no problem in trying to give more than what has been given. We are all aware that the cost of living in these islands is constantly going up. If we can do something, I would rather know that we cut corners in another area, so that the handicapped and especially the elderly are looked after properly.

As I said, it is with pride that I stand here this evening to give my full support to the motion. I also would like to congratulate the mover of this motion for bringing it before this House.

MOMENT OF INTERRUPTION—4.30 PM

The Speaker: We have reached the hour of interruption. I think it is the intention to go beyond this hour. The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 10(2)

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I move the suspension of Standing Order 10(2) to enable the House to conclude the business on the Order Paper.

The Speaker: The question is the suspension of Standing Order 10(2) to enable the House to conclude the business on the Order Paper. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED. STANDING ORDER 10(2) SUSPENDED.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I would be remiss in my duties as a representative if I let this golden opportunity pass without making my contribution to this most important motion. Before doing so, I wish to also congratulate the First Elected Member for West Bay, Mr. McKeeva Bush, and the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, Mr. Roy Bodden, for moving and seconding this very important motion.

I am happy that there have been no attempts to play politics with this very important motion. It is above politics! This is an issue that many of us do not wish to talk about, and many of the people who are suffering and perhaps living below the poverty level are also ashamed to talk about. But as other speakers have mentioned, it is our responsibility to ensure that we do all that is possible to take care of those in need. Let no one get the impression that because the Cayman Islands are frequently referred to as some of the most affluent in the world we do not have our share of poverty. One only has to look around at many of the neighbourhoods and that dire situation is quite evident.

Many times we hear comments made about the country's per capita income. What is not realised is that that per capita income is divided in the proportion of 80% of the wealth of the country being divided among 10% of its inhabitants. That is the basic capitalistic system. While I am not knocking that system, I draw attention to this so that the whole situation of the affluence of these islands can be brought into the proper perspective.

It is not today that the First Elected Member for West Bay has shown his concern in this respect. I happen to know that he was the guiding force behind the much criticised $200 per month that was issued some years ago. That Honourable Member should be congratulated for getting that ball moving. The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town made a very good point when he said that perhaps through the Statistics Department, or otherwise, we should try to determine the accurate amount needed. I congratulate him also for moving this motion. But I believe that even though $400 per month may not be adequate to cover all the needs of these poor individuals, it will go a long way in satisfying this particular problem.

I, too, experienced what it was to grow up under a certain level of poverty. But I am very proud that despite that poverty we lived in dignity. We lived a dignified life and the people around me, though poor, also lived dignified lives. Those individuals we seek to help with this increase from $200 to $400 per month must also have their dignity left intact. While I congratulate the Hon. Minister for tabling the procedure on financial assistance, I request him to ensure that when individuals are seeking financial assistance they are treated with dignity.

I have heard many complaints where individuals sought assistance and were unnecessarily embarrassed. I trust that if this situation exists it will be corrected as soon as possible. I note that the time to process applications is some six weeks. I imagine that after that six weeks it takes a period of time before an individual receives help. I also ask the Honourable Minister to see that those people in dire need get urgent attention as soon as possible.

The Honourable Minister for Agriculture mentioned his assistance with the old people's home in East End. I am happy to associate myself with that project also, for it was during my year as president of my Rotary club that I also assisted in the development of that project. I also recall that during that period I was instrumental in helping a very poor family in George Town build their own home. I only mention this to say that being able to assist others brings such joy. A previous speaker said that the joy in giving is that satisfaction you feel when you have helped somebody else.

I said when I got up that I would not speak for very long. But I would like to remind my honourable colleagues that this is an emotive subject, a subject one could get carried away with and politics could be played. But I believe, like other Members, that I have not heard any Member in this House say that he would not support this motion. I believe, like other Members, that we must take action, and take it now. There is no use standing here this evening supporting this motion if there is no intention to carry it through.

Although the Resolve section of this motion is calling for the Government to consider putting in place the necessary funds so that by the year 2000 financial assistance can be given at the $400 level, I would like to suggest that the Honourable Members of Executive Council consider increasing this to $300 next year so that by the year 2000 it will have gone to $400.

I, too, as a former Member of the Government in the Finance Department, realise that these things cost money, and that this will have to be costed. But I also appreciate that this money could not be spent in any better way. Our people come first. I know we need roads, we need a lot of other infrastructure facilities, but there could be nothing more important than the welfare of our people.

I give this motion my full support.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I have pleasure in rising to support the motion moved by the First Elected Member for West Bay, and seconded by the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Much of what we find today in the Cayman Islands began many, many decades ago. I would attribute the carving of the society to the elderly of this country, based on pride, sharing, and on caring for his fellow man. Equally important is the social harmony that we enjoy in the Cayman Islands. Their contribution to this country is perhaps difficult for all of us to detail. But if we go back to the decade of the 40's and 50's when many of them were turtle fishing (which I think one Member spoke about that earlier), moving some of that turtle on to Key West, Florida where they had turtle canning. When we moved to the 50's and early 60's the main economic means of this country, and the investment pool that the banks had at their disposal were the remittances of seamen sailing on ships all around the world.

These were men and women who were role models for the younger generation, and still are. I believe today that their example as role models is something that all of us, including every Member of this Honourable House, should emulate. If we have so much concern about the youth, and the development of youth, it is appropriate that we establish in this country respect for everyone, including the elderly.

There was a time when the only utterance of a youth to an elderly person was either "Mr." or "Mrs." Times have changed. I believe that the family is an integral part of that harmony we always boast about. It is an integral part of the Cayman Islands and the Caymanian way of life. All of us have a responsibility to ensure that whatever prosperity comes to this country, no matter how big the Government becomes, or how much money it has, we must ensure that the elderly and the handicapped who are in need have sufficient funds to meet the essentials of life to enable them to retain the pride they have always had.

They did not have the sort of things we have today. In the 1940s, there was an elderly man in West Bay who used to ride a bicycle to George Town through much of the Boggy Sand Road—and got bogged many times—to collect the mail to bring it back to West Bay. They are some of the people who have passed on but who have left a mark in the minds of the people of this country, particularly those in West Bay, the role model of hard work, integrity and honesty that all of us appreciate so much. We need to ensure that we honour them by voting sufficient funds, whether it be $400 or some other number, given the cost of living and their respective needs.

I agree with the Minister for Health and Social Service who tabled a document as to the procedures. I think it is essential that there be procedures. I think it is also essential that each case should be examined on its own merits and decisions taken in accordance with the needs of that individual elderly handicapped person in this country.

We are aware that we have many people who fall into that category, although the Cayman Islands is a very prosperous country. If we are aware of it, we must continue to do what is right by them. I have every support for a motion of this type.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Having found myself in the position of being one of the last persons to speak on this motion, and having listened to what others have had to say, there is not much more to add in support of the motion.

One of the things I consider to be very important to this entire process of increasing this amount in order to assist those persons who qualify for this assistance, is that we ensure that the means test mentioned is carried out in a very consistent manner. While no one may have addressed this, I have personally heard many rumours of individuals who do not qualify for this assistance continually bringing up examples of individuals who get this assistance, and there is always the comparison of 'Why can this person get it, and I can't?'

I believe that it should be explained in detail to the public exactly what qualifies an individual for this assistance. One of the problems we have as representatives is that there are some people who believe that if they do not channel their requests through their representatives they will be unsuccessful in their application. I think we need to dispel the myth that one can only be successful in this area if one utilises their representative.

I am one who, if I may say so myself, tries the best I can for everyone—whoever comes, and whatever the area the need is. But I sometimes have difficulty because I find myself in the position where the expectations of some individuals are not in line with what can be done. So, I ask the Minister, as it appears Government is going to accept the motion, to pursue the situation where it is an equitable one. I am not suggesting that this is not happening now, I am saying that I believe it is important that one and all see this working for all of those people who qualify.

From time to time we will find the list of individuals who qualify changing. Some will pass on, and we will find additional people qualifying for this assistance. But I think it is important for us to extend the thought process a bit further by saying that as a country we should be able to utilise the resources available to us outside of Government to the best of our ability. Families must be willing, once they are in a position to do so, to accept a certain amount of responsibility for these people, and not just put the onus on Government saying, 'I don't have any responsibility. I can take care of myself and I can leave it alone because Government will take care of it.'

I am not casting any aspersions, but I think the community at large needs to understand that the Government cannot provide whatever is needed perennially. The country at large and the people who make up the various communities must accept a certain amount of responsibility. Some of us do not even wish to talk about that because we figure it takes away a bit of the popularity. But with any popularity as representatives goes a responsibility, and we must live up to that responsibility by ensuring that we send this message to the people.

I support the motion and I support whatever we can do to assist those persons who qualify for this assistance. But I think we all need to send a message to the people of the country: That those who have parents or grandparents, or someone in the family in need, or with some disability and they cannot fend for themselves, that they too need to pick up whatever part of the burden they can. I think the Minister will certainly do the best he can utilising his resources within the agencies he is responsible for to ensure that this is done. For all intents and purposes let us clearly understand today that having made this conscious decision it will cost this country probably another $2 million to $3 million per year. That is not going to diminish right away.

I am not suggesting for a minute that we should not do it. I support it fully. But I am simply saying that we must understand that the message must be put across to the people of the country that the Government is not there to fill every gap. The people who are in a position must accept some responsibility. I trust that that message is received with the same tone that is intended.

I am sure the mover, who will wind up shortly, will feel a certain amount of satisfaction. I know that this is one of those subjects near and dear to his heart. It is heartening to see that there is unanimous support for the motion. I trust that what will transpire from the motion will be done speedily and that everything will work the way we envisage.

I certainly commend the mover and the seconder, and I won't get into the politics this evening by asking why it had to come as a Private Member's Motion. Nevertheless, since we are that far into the day I think it is probably the best thing for us to leave in peace. I am sure the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay is happy to hear that! I commend the motion, and I trust that we will see the right results.

The Speaker: I think all Honourable Members have spoken, am I correct? I will now call on the mover to exercise his right of reply.

Mr. W McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I would like to thank the seconder of this motion who gave his unqualified support to this resolution. He made a very pertinent and important observation when he asked Government to get a survey of what the poverty line is. That is something that this study of the Caymanian family might shed some light on. Government needs to follow through with recommendations on that and take up the Member's challenge to do that audit. I would also like to thank all other Members for voicing their feelings and opinions, and the Minister for accepting, as he is most times gracious enough to do. I did feel that some of the support was qualified.

What I have to say now will not include the Minister for Social Welfare. I am amazed at some of the criteria contained in the papers laid on the Table of this House by the Minister, specifically the aspect of it when it says, "Adult children are responsible for maintaining their elderly or disabled parents and grand parents." And they point out the Maintenance Law (1996 Revision) section 5. It goes on to say, "As such, contact will be made with all adult children and grandchildren to ascertain what assistance they can provide to their parents or grandparents."

"In accordance with the Poor Persons (Relief) Law (1997 Revision) section 4, any person receiving Government financial aid, who has or comes into any property, that property shall be vested in the Crown." Specifically this means, as they point out in their paper, "taken by the Government."

This gives me great concern. Not that I don't believe that children must do for their parents, or grandparents, or must take up responsibility, because that is something that I preach in church. That is something I preach from the public platform and privately to individuals. Yes, we must all try to look after our families. We must look after our ageing parents who were there for us. It is true that there are those who are irresponsible enough not to somehow care what affects their parents, whether it is physically or mentally. They don't seem to understand that words affect them.

Having said all that, I cannot agree with this new criteria, and I would like to say that when this criteria points to the 1996 Law Revised section 5, and the Poor Persons (Relief) Law (1997 Revision), these were not laws that were passed or revised by me, nor were they amended by me in any way, shape or form while I was responsible for Social Services in this country.

These criteria were mooted to me while I was the Minister. But I refused them. I would have no part in it, and I will tell you why: I did not then, nor do I now, believe that if a child doesn't feel that they can support the parents or grandparents. . . . I was not going to force them by a law. I will not force anyone by law through the courts to do something which is their moral obligation to do, if they can. At the same time, I did not then, and do not now, when I see any of our elderly in need not give to them, whether by fixing their house, or giving through Social Services. Let us understand that God Almighty alone must be the judge of whether a child is right or wrong in giving or not giving to their parents, if they have something to give. God alone! Not the Government! The Government's job is to take care of the person if nobody else is.

I wonder how Government believes those old people will feel when it says to them, 'We will give you the little $200 per month, but you must sign over your house to Government. You must sign over your land to Government?' I say No! One thousand times No! Technocrats, financial advisors, and even legislators know about systems, about guidelines. But most times they are bereft of the kind of soul it takes to do social work. They don't mix with them, they don't go into their homes, they don't go into the areas and the districts where real poverty exists.

I can remember the criticism I took in building the Truman Bodden Sports Centre. But it is paying off to this country today, and it will continue to pay off in the future. I will tell you something else: If the Government continues to maintain it, it will grow in value. It is not a diminishing return to Government. I can think of many things that I did for which I was, and am probably still am, criticised. But I went into Government with a mandate—one of the biggest in the history of this country—to do something about these things. And we started to do it. I am out of Executive Council now, but it is my responsibility to see that what I campaigned on, and what the people asked me to do, gets done. I am going to attempt that whether or not some people think we are giving away all that Government has.

This motion is not asking Government to do anything, but give to the elderly, the handicapped and disabled. We are not asking Government to do everything.

Mr. Speaker, people, quick to criticise and warn, make recommendations and judgments about Government giving or doing something. The truth is, what must be done now is that Government must look at the things it is doing that they do not need to do! Then it will have more money! This is calling for money, yes! That is a fact. It says for Government to consider—that is the only way I would get it through, but it is something we promised to do.

This cannot impoverish Government. If it is studious enough, it can take this from some of the savings of the things it does not need to do. So let those who are quick to warn, judge and make recommendations about where the money is coming from, and about Government doing everything—I understand that the former senior assistant secretary in the Ministry over which I had charge was questioning on the radio where we were going to get the money. You see, it is easy for people who came here when the country was already doing well, and they in turn could do well. I am not talking about expatriates now, lest anyone gets the feeling that is what I am doing. I am talking about a Caymanian who criticises. It is easy for that person, the senior assistant secretary, who came here when things were beginning to go, to talk about where we are going to get it, and we should make the recommendation. If he were not so interested in politics, and trying to make a gain over one of us to get here, he would have recommended, himself, where the money could come from, since he knows it all.

Let me stop here lest anyone say I should not be doing what I am doing. The truth is, sometimes it does not even pay to answer some of these people. They want to take me on? You tell them that I said, 'Come into West Bay and I will shed some light on them, when that time comes!' But as of now, the people gave me a responsibility, and I am going to attempt to do it, and I hope my colleagues, . . . and I ask my colleagues, and I know they will help and assist in doing so. If they want to complain about McKeeva Bush's action, that is their prerogative, their democratic right. But I am not going to sit down and take it, because I have never been one to always turn my cheek. If I get a blow, it is more than likely the person giving it will get one back. So I hope I do not see any editorials about what I am doing.

What we gave the elderly has boosted their pride and dignity, even restored faith in their country. They felt they had contributed to these Islands and, at long last, they were being remembered without having to go and sit at the feet of Social Services and continually beg and stand in line with their hands out and wait weeks upon weeks, months upon months, and even years before they got something. I am not criticising Social Services, because they do a lot of work. But, simply, my philosophy—the one I expounded to Executive Council and this House—is that Social Services should be about curing the social ills. Let some other entity deal with the giving out of money. I firmly believe that what should happen is what we had planned, that is, that the Social Services Department not give out these funds, but that—and they would have less to do with it—it go to the entity where it was supposed to go, to the department or a unit made up of the pension people.

You cannot really change as a Government in mid-stream. Not because I am not on Executive Council, but when you set out on a road, plan, rent buildings, do all that, why change from it? Why? I believe Social Services' time will be much better spent in doing more counselling and that sort of thing.

The elderly feel that, at long last, they have been remembered. To them, this financial assistance is not a handout! They say it is a pension! That is how they feel about it. They feel it is a pension from Government for what they have done for the country. And if they can feel that way, then I am here to make them feel that way, because these are their last days. This is how they feel about it. They feel it is a pension from Government.

I will tell you this: Maybe it is a good thing they took me out of Executive Council. You would have seen a law, to put it as such, because I feel deep within my heart that is what should happen to protect it, so certain people cannot use their whims and fancies, giving to whom they want to give. In fact, that is what I said I would have done, in West Bay at least, when we campaigned.

There have been probes. The press complained, of course. They take their opportunities to lambaste me. But now that I am out of Council, Mr. Speaker, they are doing a little better. I am not making policy now so they put up with me a bit more. But when I look at this financial assistance criterion that was tabled this morning, it is not a lot different from the one we had, of which I will read the guidelines in a minute. This is much taken up with that aspect I read. For instance, they say, "medical certificate in cases where the person is seeking help due to ill health or disability." They had to do this before. "Place of employment and length of time at this job." They had to say that before as well. "Bank account and bank statements." Of course, they want copies of utility bills. Sometimes that was asked under the old procedure, but this is much taken up with. . . . They want to get land titles, certified copies. They are asking much deeper questions in the income section. They are asking for rental properties, churches—whether someone gets an income from rental properties, churches or service clubs.

Mr. Speaker, it is not much different from—and I would like the Serjeant-at-Arms to table these guidelines.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Let me read them.

"1. Assistance is given to persons 60 years and over who have little to no income (expenses exceed income); disabled and handicapped persons.

"2. All questions must be answered and be as factual as possible. Failure to do so may result in additional information being required and/or the disqualification of the application.

"3. The applicant can be referred by anyone but preferably by someone who is well known and well-respected in the community. The referee should sign the application and can be called upon at any time to substantiate information given.

"4. When an applicant is referred by the Social Services Department, the referral should be in written form.

"5. Where the applicant is Caymanian by status, the original Certificate of Status must be provided and a copy will be retained for our records.

"6. Where the person is disabled and/or handicapped, an up-to-date medical certificate must be provided.

"7. All income and assets must be declared.

"8. The name of the bank and account number to which funds should be sent directly must be given on application.

"9. All applications must be signed and dated by the applicant where possible. In the instance where a person is signing on the applicant's behalf, this must be clearly stated as well as the authority on which they are signing, and this must be countersigned by a Justice of the Peace or a Notary Public.

"10. All applications except in the cases of emergencies should be submitted within the first week of every month.

"11. All applications will be reviewed by the financial committee once monthly; except for emergencies.

"12. Once approved, applications will take approximately one week to process."

So you see, Mr. Speaker, when you couple that with this application I read this morning in my introduction, . . . as I said, they want a means test. Well, you can bet it was mean! Anyone could recommend the person. We moved on. We did not have—I do not believe we had the District Social Worker at the time, or Community Development Officer at the time, and they now can go and check. The procedure (we started out in 1995) has been revamped several times to improve it, and I just read the last one we did.

I believe Government was stringent with who qualified. It is just that some people like to spread rumours. And, of course, you had people in the Administration who listened to that and did what they could to help the rumours along. I had a complaint when I was the Minister about a certain elderly man and wife who were claimed to have loads of property (I was told) but would not sell it. They did not need anything, according to some of the neighbours around there. I investigated, and my Perma-ment Secretary investigated, and lo and behold, all the couple had was the little house, an old-time Caymanian house with a leaky roof. And you know what that investigation produced? We had to fix the roof. They did not have any land, except what they had. They did not have any pile of money in the bank, except for—I think it was $5,500 between the two of them, for their burial. And was I, who grew up knowing what it is to be poor, going to take that from them? Say, 'You go ahead and spend that and I will give you from Government?' Well, make them who are there now do it, not me. I 'na' into that!

I am made up different. And don't talk about the heart where the head should be, or the head where the heart should be. I want to see good, but I know when we have to be practical and realistic, and we have to put certain guidelines in place. I know all that.

If you believe I am going to be party to taking away a child's inheritance, some little piece of land, or a home—not McKeeva Bush! We talk about what we are doing in this country, and we must not press on Government to get everything. I want us to take up the Estimates for this year and see what we are spending on police for 1998: $11.399 million! And what are we spending on prison? $4.977, nearly $5 million. That is nearly $16 million. That is not talking about the capital we have to spend! That is not talking about that. And I am not saying we are not to the stage—because it is a sad thing when we, this little Island, are to that stage that we have to spend that kind of money. That is why I have said, and I will continue to say, I am not going to vote any money for adding on to prison or building more prison rooms! Get out there and do more social work, educate and rehabilitate! That is what is going to stop this! You are not going stop all of it, but that is what is going to cut it down.

Do you believe, Mr. Speaker, if we had not taken the initiative, and I had not taken my licks, we would have been where we are today? Well, we do not have as many problems and crimes, juvenile crimes. We have the programmes; we just need to keep more emphasis on it. We have problems, mind you, too many now, because from what I believe there is no emphasis now on what I was doing.

Government must take a better look at what it is doing, so it can have more money. We do not need two civic centres in the district of East End! We did not need to spend $10 million on Pedro Castle! People must have the will of their conviction to do what is right, and spend money where it can do the most good; and spending it on our elderly is doing the right thing.

So the critics can criticise, but we have to do what is right. If the audit the Minister says he is doing turns up some people who went through the cracks, well, then, it is a good thing to do that audit and clean it up every now and then. But to give anyone the impression that there was wholesale abuse is a bunch of rot. It is a bunch of rot! One Member mentioned the elections. Sure, there were more in the National Team at the time—there doesn't seem to be any National Team now—who were glad to recommend. But do you know what, Mr. Speaker? They made recommendations because, I believe, from the depth of their hearts and souls they knew that the person they were recommending needed. That is why they made the recommendations! And I believe everyone in this House—elected, that is—made recommendations, including the Speaker, for someone, somewhere, to get; and as I said, because that was their duty. They knew the person needed.

They made recommendations for someone, somewhere, to get. And since everyone did, I guess, if some happened to slip through the cracks, it will not be only McKeeva Bush who gets the blame. I am proud that I stand with people—and the country does not know how well off they are when they have representatives who are willing to do that kind of social work, because that is what it is. Most times, the representative is a glorified social worker. People do not understand when people come and knock on your door at one o'clock, or five o'clock in the morning. They do not know about that. They do not know about the time when the parent has to sit down in front of you, and you have to shed tears with him because of the situation, the environment a child is in, or the parent is in. So while people are quick to criticise, they are fortunate that they have elected representatives who pay attention to their needs.

A lot of us, Mr. Speaker, give and give and give, and continue to give until it hurts our own families. But we do not spread that abroad, because we believe we are doing the right thing, in helping a person in need.

I guess everyone knows in this House that I could go on debating this until tomorrow morning. But I ask the Government, in closing, was there ever anyone prosecuted for not providing for their children? How many cases are backlogged, and the courts can't force anyone to pay maintenance for their child? How many times have we as representatives—and if they want something to do, and in fact, I challenge them, I call upon the people now who have the power, who have the authority, to see to it that those with children pay their maintenance when the court so orders. If the courts cannot force these wayward fathers to pay maintenance for their children, how then will they force children to do for their parents and grandparents? I ain' gon' be no part of this, regardless of what team I am on! I am not going to be party to it, and I will oppose it with every strength I have, from here to East End, to West Bay, because I believe that what Government is doing with the new criteria is wrong.

As I said, I have no qualms with the Minister, under whose responsibility this falls. I think he is a gentleman. However, he is being misled by the technocrats. And if the Minister of Education believes this is what should happen. . . . I do not want to get into his debate, because I thought he was supporting, but he gave qualification when he talked about children supporting. I guess that was the part he was talking about. I am not sure. I was busy writing. But I am not going to support it. As I said, when I was the Minister, the technocrats wanted me to do it and I said, 'No way!' Little did I know, Mr. Speaker, that not too long afterward, they would throw me out and get it anyway. As for me and my house, I am going to do what is right.

I want to again thank everyone who spoke and supported this, and I ask Government to see to it that when these elderly come they are treated with great respect, and handled with much dignity. They built this country so people could sit in the Glass House, sit in the Tower Building in nice air conditioned offices, while they were out cutting buttonwood, fixing the roads with no graders, building the roads, burning the cliff rock to make roads, going to Meskito Quay, going to Southwell, working for little or nothing, helping to build up this country, helping some of us in this House to get an education! Those that got it by scholarship, we should be proud we can do something, and we should put it down in law so that no one can meddle with it. Thank you very much.

The Speaker: I shall now put the question on Private Member's Motion No. 8/98. All those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

The Speaker: 12C. Thank you.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until Wednesday, 9 September 1998 at 10.00 AM.

The Speaker: Before I put the question, I would like to thank all members for the courtesies and tolerance they have had for the Chair. There have been some rough days during this session, but I realise we are all human beings, and I assure you that I have attempted to do the very best I could.

I would like to thank the Clerk, the Deputy Clerk and the office staff. I would like to thank the Hansard Officers, the Serjeant-at-Arms, and Anita for preparing the refreshments and the lunches she has prepared for us. I would like to wish those Members going to the Parliamentary Conference, a very successful conference, and to other Members, a happy and enjoyable vacation.

At this time, I will now put the question that this House do adjourn until 9 September 1998 at 10.00 AM. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

Hon. John B. McLean: Mr. Speaker, I would also to thank the Chair for the tolerance, because while we have had a very heated session, I must say that the Speaker has actually acted very professionally. While I know sometimes you may have been a bit heated with all of us, you have been very tolerant and acted within our Standing Orders. For this I am very grateful.

The Speaker: Thank you.
We shall now adjourn.

AT 5.48 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM WEDNESDAY, 9 SEPTEMBER 1998.

READING BY THE SPEAKER OF MESSAGES AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: I have apologies from the Honourable First Official Member who is presently acting as Governor of the Cayman Islands, and I have apologies from the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay who is presently in the hospital and quite ill. We wish him a speedy recovery.

I ask that all Members stand as we take item number 3, the Administration of the Oath of Allegiance by Mr. W. F. Ebanks to be the Temporary Acting First Official Member.

ADMINISTRATION OF OATHS OR AFFIRMATIONS

OATH OF ALLEGIANCE

Mr. Donovan W. F. Ebanks, M.B.E., J.P.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: I, Donovan Ebanks, do swear that I will be faithful and bear true allegiance to Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II, her heirs and successors according to law, so help me God.

The Speaker: Mr. Ebanks, we welcome you as the Honourable Temporary Acting First Official Member. Please take your seat.

Please be seated.

As there is no other business on the Order Paper, I will ask for the adjournment—

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Before we take the motion for the adjournment, I crave the Chair's indulgence to rise and register my comments on, once again, a false start to the beginning of Parliament.

If this is indicative of this country's leadership, then, indeed, we are in serious times. We have had all of this time, the Business Committee, to put the business of the country on an Order Paper and bring it to Parliament. That this is all we have on today's Order Paper is a downright shame, a sinister evil and, Mr. Speaker, it is a damning indictment on the Government that seems to be so inept and so incapable that it cannot run the country's affairs as they should be run.

It is time we put a stop to this and run our country the way our people expect it to be run—professional, forthright and with good managerial sense. No sentiment can be too easy on this kind of ineffective Government. It seems to be that this is part of a consistent pattern of deceit and obfuscation on the part of some people who would like to keep the Parliament and the country in darkness while they cavort and hold the business of the country in secrecy. I would like to register my gravest concern and say enough is enough! Thank you.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, I am taking a different line, with your permission, while I wholeheartedly agree with the sentiments expressed by the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town. Can we at least have an explanation as to why we were called here for Parliament to start if there was no business to conduct? If it was known that there was no business to be conducted why did we come here?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you. I would like to move the adjournment of this Honourable House until Wednesday 16 September—

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, the . . . If the Member had given me an opportunity when you called the motion, . . . normally the speaking is on the motion, I could have explained the reason for this request for the two days.

We have to get back, by the 15th, which is Tuesday, a considerable amount of information on the financial structure of the Cayman Islands to the OECD in London. We have to get it back through to them by the 15th which is Tuesday. Time is needed, sir, because this is very important that the information goes in and that it goes in properly. There will have to be a continuation of considerable meetings to try to get this together in the best form that we can. That is the reason why we are asking for these extra two days to get in the information.

The Speaker: Could I make a suggestion before I call on the First Elected Member for George Town? Could we not defer this further discussion to an informal meeting, which I understand we will be having shortly?

The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Mr. Speaker, I am not simply prolonging to make use of the day's time. I don't want to get into a long argument either, but the Minister made a statement and, with your permission, I would just like to clarify something. The Minister said "if the Member" (and I was the last one who spoke, so I am assuming that he is talking about me) "had given me a chance I would have explained." Whoever he is thinking about, it doesn't really matter. I am assuming it was me but it doesn't matter who it was. The point I wish to make is that, I don't know about anybody else, but I am not a great reader of minds—especially his! I would not have known, and I am sure the rest of us would not have known that he was going to proffer any explanation upon moving the adjournment. That is why the question was raised.

Regardless of what has to go on, perhaps if we were all made aware in a sensible fashion as to exactly what was going to take place, instances like these may not occur. Also, perhaps if it was thought of a little longer, Parliament would not have opened today. Whatever had to be done, supposedly in an informal fashion, could have been done. That is all that I am really saying, and I am sure that the rest of the Members who are in the dark, like myself, agree with what I am saying.

The Speaker: The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: I would just like to clear a point with the Leader of Government Business, the Honourable Truman Bodden. I think he said we are adjourning until the 16th. Did I understand that correctly? Can I ask a question? Will there be an Order Paper for the Wednesday meeting, seeing that Honourable Julianna O'Connor-Connolly, a member of the Business Committee, is in Malaysia, and Mr. Dalmain Ebanks is in the hospital? There is no quorum without those two members. Is the Leader of Government Business, Chairman of the Business Committee, prepared to move a motion this morning to appoint additional members to the Business Committee so that an Order Paper can be prepared for Wednesday?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: This problem arose, . . . as the Member knows, she resigned. Otherwise we would have had a quorum at this stage. However, we will get a quorum and I will have the Order Paper ready for Wednesday. I have no way of knowing, . . . and I will go to see Mr. Dalmain today. . . the extent of his illness, but I don't think it should be held against him at this stage. There will have to be an appointment for her resignation, the lady Member's resignation, and that is something that we can look to bring on Wednesday.

The Speaker: I don't want to prolong this debate any longer. The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Thank you very much, sir. Although you may not wish to prolong the discussion, and with all due respect to the Chair, I think it is very important that the matter of the Business Committee be settled this morning so that this Parliament is not in the same position on Wednesday morning that it is in this morning.

I resigned from the Business Committee, but that notice was given to the Committee quite some time ago. An appointment could have been made to replace me. I resigned because the business was being carried out sometimes without a quorum and I do not agree with that sort of procedure. I still insist, Mr. Speaker, . . . you have just said that Mr. Ebanks is quite seriously ill. There is no guarantee that he will be out of hospital between now and Wednesday. I really think that a replacement to fill the position I had on that Committee should be done this morning.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: I will try to be brief. Are we to understand that the reason we have to adjourn at this particular time is because the Government has urgent business to attend to and that this business really consists of them having to fill out a questionnaire in regard to the financial matters or institutions in this country which has to go to the OECD? Whether or not this information is of a political nature or a technical nature is the question. Certainly, if it is of a technical nature it is something that could be handled by the relevant departments responsible for fiscal matters. It would not have to be handled by the Elected Members of Executive Council who have no real responsibility for the financial affairs of this country.

So, to hold Parliament up, and to use it as an excuse and to continue to say that he will not, at this particular point, deal with the appointment of new members to the Business Committee is a case in point of the Honourable Mr. Truman Bodden's attempt to run the country and the Parliament single-handedly. There is no reason. . . he said this morning also on TV that I am a confused person because the issue of the OECD is too complicated for me to understand, basically, or other people to understand. But if the people of this country cannot understand Mr. Truman Bodden I guess it is because he really doesn't present himself as a kind of person who can be understood. He talks in parables. But we know that the parable means that he should always be in control.

This is the situation here. We have to adjourn because he has not positioned himself again in a controlling position. So we have to wait until he can manoeuvre to do everything by himself, like he likes to do everything, and come back here to be able to put a business plan together for the committee so that we have an agenda. Of course, he doesn't want any Member of the Backbench that is not agreeing with him to be on this Business Committee. That is basically why he won't do this at the moment.

POINT OF ORDER

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Mr. Speaker, I object on a point of order. He is imputing improper motives to me, saying that I don't want anybody on the Committee who doesn't agree with me. I ask him to withdraw that. That is an improper motive that he has imputed.

Mr. W McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, I would like to draw to the attention of the House—

The Speaker: Let me deal with this subject first, please.

I was listening very carefully to what the Fourth Elected Member for George Town was saying. You did not put it as a hypothetical situation. You directed it directly to the Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning. That is contrary to our Standing Orders and I ask that you withdraw it.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I said that it is my opinion that that is why he is doing it. If that is how I need to phrase it, I will say, "it is my opinion." I have a right to my opinion and it does not necessarily impute improper motive, it imputes political manoeuvring. There is a difference between political manoeuvring and improper motives—

Hon. John B. McLean: Mr. Speaker.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. John McLean, would you please allow me to continue?

Hon. John B. McLean: Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

POINT OF ORDER

Hon. John B. McLean: Mr. Speaker, with due respect, and on a point of order. He is now challenging the Chair. He did impute improper motives, and I think he should withdraw it.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town—

Mr. Roy Boddén: Mr. Speaker, if you are getting into that kind of position, those who are innocent should cast the first stone.

The Speaker: Let me deal with one thing at a time.

[Addressing the Fourth Elected Member for George Town] I said that in your initial presentation you did not present a hypothetical situation, you went directly to the Minister. I ask you to withdraw that. Your second explanation was a different presentation completely. Your first presentation is what I am asking you to withdraw. Please do so.

(long pause)

The Speaker: I will defer my decision on this matter until I get the Hansard, and I will deal with this on Wednesday. I now move the adjournment of this House—

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, if I may, sir. I am not for any more trouble. I just want to bring—

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: I would just like to bring to your attention and to the attention of the House that there are four Select Committees for which chairmen need to be named. I also note that you have made attempts to get this done, as we have asked you to. It seems, for various reasons, on several occasions it has not been possible to satisfy everyone and to get it done. I am asking you, although this is not on the agenda, while we have what we have here, if perhaps you would consider having that done at least so that other part of the country's business can proceed.

The Speaker: I will say that that has been referred to the Father of the House. I have recently done that and it is being taken care of. You will be hearing very shortly.

Mr. W McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W McKeeva Bush: I rose earlier to speak in regard to the two committees that need members, that is, the Public Accounts Committee which is void one member and, as the Elected Member for North Side has already referred to, the Business Committee. So when plans are being made for the Business Committee they need to take into consideration that the Public Accounts Committee is also void one member.

The Speaker: At this time I will suspend proceedings while I think on the previous matter. We shall suspend for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 10.55 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 11.50 AM

SPEAKER'S RULING

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed.

When we took the break I said I would make further enquiries into the Point of Order taken by Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning on a remark by the Fourth Elected Member for George Town. I rule that the statement made by the Fourth Elected Member for George Town was out of order and definitely a point of order under Standing Order 35 [(4)] “No Member shall impute improper motives to another Member.”

At this time I would like to give the Fourth Elected Member for George Town an opportunity to withdraw it, for a final time.

The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I have the greatest of respect for the Chair and I do not intend to create any difficulty for that position, nor for you as an individual. Before I bow to your ruling, could you enlighten me as to the understanding of the House of the concept of “improper motives”?

The Speaker: I feel that that is something that every one of us should be very familiar with. If you look at the Hansard and at what you said, in particular you said that the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning—and you called him by name—had to reposition himself to have political control, is what in essence it meant. You went on with many other statements. Have you been privileged to the Hansard?

Dr. Frank McField: I have had neither the privilege of seeing a copy of the Hansard, nor of going into your Chambers to discuss the matter further with you as was the privilege extended to a Member of the Government bench.

The Speaker: My office is always open for any Member. You're always welcome at any time. It is a very open thing. I welcome any Member to come at any time. Please don't feel that you have been avoided. But I ask for your final decision. If you will withdraw it at this time, we will proceed.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, just one last statement because I am trying to show that I do have respect for the Chair. I have a bit of difficulty as a Member of the Opposition. I am speaking in regard to what I consider the Government's monopolising of the available positions on the Business Committee and other Committees and, in fact, dictating, somehow, the procedure the Honourable House takes in regard to the functioning of the Committees.

If I make a statement in regard to what I consider to be my political analysis and my political understanding of the situation, and if this has offended the Honourable Minister for Education, I am deeply sorry. But, it is the truth and I do not believe that anyone should fail to speak anything but the truth.

I fail to be convinced that I would be acting in the wisest possible manner by withdrawing a statement that I consider to be a political statement that has political relevance and truth.

The Speaker: I want to make my position very clear as the Presiding Officer of this Honourable House. I am not saying what has been said, or anything else. I made a ruling and you are now in contempt of my ruling. Either you withdraw your remarks, or I will have to proceed with the other process which is afforded me.

I give you a final opportunity. If you will withdraw it, or you will not, please say yes or no.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I cannot withdraw that statement.

The Speaker: I will deal with this on Wednesday. At this time I shall suspend the House until Wednesday, 16th September at 10 am.

THE SPEAKER SUSPENDED THE HOUSE AT 11.54 AM

EDITED
WEDNESDAY
16 SEPTEMBER 1998
12.05 PM

(CONTINUATION OF 11 SEPTEMBER 1998 SITTING)

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12.05 PM

RULING BY THE SPEAKER

The Speaker: When we took the suspension on Friday, I said that the House would suspend until 10.00 a.m. Wednesday, 16th [September], in order that I could further consider the question before us concerning my request that the Fourth Elected Member for George Town withdraw a statement he had made.

On Friday, 11th September, on a motion for the adjournment, the Fourth Elected Member for George Town, in his contribution, made comments which the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning raised a Point of Order, under Standing [35(4)] which reads: “No Member shall impute improper motives to another Member.”

After careful consideration, I ruled that it was a valid Point of Order and asked the Member to withdraw his comments. The Member refused to withdraw it, and again I asked him to withdraw his remarks. His answer was, “I cannot withdraw that statement.” I then said that I would deal with the matter on Wednesday, 16th September.

At the time of this discussion I realised that tempers were somewhat inflamed and I did not want to act without giving due consideration to the matter. I fully realised that if I were to have acted under Standing Order 41(2) or (4), it would have to be done within the sitting, therefore the reason for suspending the procedure until today. However, I never act without due consideration being given.

I wish to state that I consider disrespect to the Chair and the rules of the Legislative Assembly by any Member of this House a most serious breach of order. I call to Honourable Members' attention our Standing Order guides and procedures of the Legislative Assembly and particularly to Standing Order 88(1) and (2) which tells us:

“88. (1) In any matter not herein provided” meaning our standing Orders “for, resort shall be had to the usage and practice of the Commons House of Parliament of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, which shall be followed as far as the same may be applicable to this House, and not inconsistent with these Standing Orders nor with the practice of this House.

“88. (2) In cases of doubt the Standing Orders of this House shall be interpreted in the light of the relevant usage and practice of the House of Commons, but no restrictions which the House of Commons has introduced by Standing Order after the making of those Orders shall be deemed to extend to this House or its Members until the House has by Standing Order provided for such restriction.”

In view of the fact that this act of disobedience took place during the sitting of the 11th September, and this is a part of that same sitting, I wish to state very clearly to all Honourable Members that should a similar situation arise again, I shall immediately exercise all authority vested in the Chair.

Disrespect to the Chair in not complying with an order issued by the Presiding Officer is a very serious reflection on the Member and further shows disrespect to the country and its Parliament. It should be realised that disrespect to the Chair is disrespect to the office and not the person holding that position.

I should also say that extreme care should be exercised when making media presentations concerning events of this nature.

Having said all of this, I now wish to call to the attention of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town that I ruled that his [statement] was out of order. He did not, and said he would not, withdraw it. In view of that, under Standing Order 41(2), which is very clear and says: “(2) The Presiding Officer shall order any Member whose conduct is grossly disorderly to withdraw immediately from the House during the remainder of the day's sitting and may direct such steps to be taken as are necessary to enforce that order.” I now ask that the Fourth Elected Member for George Town remove himself from this Chamber and the precincts of this Parliament.

[Pause while the Fourth Elected Member for George Town withdrew from the Chamber.]

The Speaker: The suspension shall be for one day's Sitting.

I now call upon the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning for the adjournment of this Honourable House.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until 12.30 pm, today [Wednesday, 16th September, 1998].

The Speaker: The question is that this House do now adjourn for approximately fifteen minutes. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House do stand adjourned.

AT 12.10 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 12.30 PM WEDNESDAY 16 SEPTEMBER 1998.

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12.48 PM

[Prayers by the Honourable Third Official Member]

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Item number 2 on today's Order Paper, Reading by the Speaker of Messages and Announcements.

READING BY THE SPEAKER OF MESSAGES AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: I have received apologies from the Honourable First Official Member, who is Acting Governor; from the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture, who is off the Island on official business and the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay who is still sick in the hospital.

Item number 3 on today's Order Papers, Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE MEMBERS/MINISTERS

The Speaker: Question 126 is standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 126

No. 126: Miss Heather D. Bodden asked the Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration to provide an update on the extension of the HAGUE Convention to the Cayman Islands in relation to child abduction.

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: There are two international conventions governing child abduction and custody. The United Nations Convention on the Civil Aspects of International Child Abduction, which was extended to the Cayman Islands on 1st August 1998, and the European Convention on Recognition and Enforcement of Decisions Concerning Custody of Children and on Restoration of Custody of Children, which was extended to the Cayman Islands on 1st September, 1998.

The implementing legislation for both of these Conventions is contained in the United Kingdom's Child Abduction and Custody Act of 1985, which was itself extended to the Cayman Islands by the Privy Council in London in the Child Abduction and Custody (Cayman Islands) Order 1997, which came into force on 2nd December, 1997.

The Speaker: Before I call for supplementaries, I neglected to ask for the suspension of Standing Order 23 (7) & (8) so that questions can be taken after the hour of 11 o'clock.

The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 23 (7) & (8)

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I beg to move the suspension of Standing Order 23 (7) & (8) to enable Question Time to continue after 11 o'clock.

The Speaker: The Motion has been moved. Those in favour please say aye. Those against no.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 23 (7) & (8) SUSPENDED.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries. The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Miss Heather Bodden: Can the Honourable Second Official Member say at what stage the enabling and supporting legislation is at?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: The answer is really contained in the first answer that I gave which is the implementing legislation is the Privy Council, the Order in Council which came into force in December of last year. That came into force in advance of the two conventions being extended to Cayman.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Miss Heather Bodden: Can the Honourable Second Official Member say if it is retroactive?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Like all legislation, it takes effect from the date it comes into force. It is not retrospective.

The Speaker: The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Am I to understand the Honourable Second Official Member to say that we do not need to enact legislation locally to govern these conventions?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: We have local legislation which was the Order in Council. When we requested the British Government to extend both of these conventions to the Cayman Islands and at the same time we requested the British Government to extend to the Cayman Islands the implementing legislation that was already in force in the United Kingdom, and they did that by the Order in Council which was then gazetted here in December of last year.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: What recourse would a Caymanian parent have under these conventions were there grounds to . . . in the case where that Caymanian parent had a complaint of a child being removed from this jurisdiction illegally?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: It is difficult to answer a hypothetical situation but it may be that an application would be made to the Grand Court here in Cayman, or possibly under the convention an approach should be made to the central authority in the country in which the child had been removed to. Each country that is a party to this convention has a central authority. In Cayman, the central authority is the Attorney General. So, one of those two courses would take place.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Second Official Member state if it was the opinion of the Government at the time that the legislation which the Government asked to be extended to us was quite satisfactory and there were no other situations which might prevail locally which this legislation might not take care of?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: The legislation that has been extended to us by Order in Council will be perfectly adequate for implementing these two conventions. Perhaps I can say that the Order in Council, the implementing legislation, is predicated on the Children Law which was passed by this Legislative Assembly, but is not yet in force in Cayman. So, the provisions of the Children Law will need to be implemented, will need to be in force to allow all of the provisions of the implementing Order in Council to take effect.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: In regard to the supplementary asked by the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, can the Honourable Second Official Member say if there is any recourse for people who may have had situations which they would need the law to satisfy that situation if those situations occurred prior to this law coming into effect? Is there any other recourse?

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Having said that neither the law or the conventions are retrospective, I certainly cannot say that if an incident took place prior to them coming into force that they could necessarily have the benefit of these conventions or the law.

Having said that, there is always the fact that these conventions now apply to Cayman, and Cayman is a Member, a signatory, to these conventions like all the other countries are. So that very fact may be of benefit to individuals seeking redress—the mere fact that Cayman is now a party and a signatory to this international convention.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, the next question is number 127, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 127

No. 127: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning to state the total number of students in the Government school system who are (i) visually impaired and (ii) hearing impaired.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The number of students who have been identified to date in the two categories at the various levels of the Government school system are as follows:

VISUALLY IMPAIRED

| School         | No. of Students | Degree of handicap |
|----------------|-----------------|--------------------|
| Primary        | 3               | Mild               |
| Secondary      | 0               |                    |
| Special School | 5               | Mild to severe     |

It should be noted that one student, who was legally blind, graduated from John Gray High School in July 1998. There are eight visually impaired students presently in our schools.

HEARING IMPAIRED

| School         | No. of Students | Degree of handicap |
|----------------|-----------------|--------------------|
| Primary        | 4               | Mild to severe     |
| Secondary      | 2               | Mild to severe     |
| Special School | 2               | Mild to severe     |

It should be noted that three students graduated from John Gray High School in July of 1998 whose impairment was mild to severe. There are currently eight hearing impaired students in our schools.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say if these impairments are of such a nature that allows the students to be integrated into regular classroom setting, or do they have to have special provisions made for their instructions?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: In the Primary and Secondary Schools they are integrated. In the Special Schools there are normally multiple handicaps there. But as is shown, there have been graduations as we have showed there of impaired—three at the John Gray High School. So there is integration whenever that is possible.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister say, as he has noted in his answer, where he said “It should be noted that one student, who was legally blind, graduated from John Gray High School in July 1998” if that student having been allowed to graduate was also in a position and, in fact, did take any of the external examinations that are afforded those students at that year?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I don't have the answer to that question, but the Chief Education Officer says he doesn't think that she took any of the external exams. I am not certain.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Assuming that, and I think it is fair assumption, that the individual was not in a position to actually sit any of these exams, has the Department, or the Ministry, looked at the situation (and obviously that will be a situation that sticks out like a sore thumb) in regard to what happens to that individual after having been allowed to graduate but knowing full well that there are no qualifications, or no situation where any other type of either secondary education or tertiary education is obviously affordable to that individual. Can the Honourable Minister say exactly what the Government's position is on that?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I understand that she was placed at the hospital in the X-ray area. She was given vocational training rather than academic. That is basically all I can say at this stage. If there are further questions on that specific student, then I will attempt to find out and answer.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Perhaps the Minister will simply give an undertaking to follow the situation up on whatever needs to be done. While I am standing, Mr. Speaker, I have another supplementary, if I may be allowed.

The Speaker: Please continue.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Going on to the section (ii) of the answer where the answer states, “It should be noted that three students graduated from John Gray High School in July of 1998 whose impairment was mild to severe”, does the Minister have any information on those three students? It is possible that they might well have been in a similar situation. To make life easier for the Minister so that there is no long question and answer, if enough information is not known about it, can it be pursued in the same light as the original one we were talking about, that the Minister would give an undertaking for that also?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I give that undertaking. I will get the information to the Honourable Member.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say how many specialist teachers who are trained to deal with the visually and hearing impaired are at the primary and secondary level?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: We have one trained teacher for hearing impaired, and one trained for the visually impaired . . . for hearing impaired, rather. They are peripatetic teachers so they would deal with both.

The Speaker: The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: If we only have one teacher for both, can the Honourable Minister explain if, particularly the primary, the seven students, the four hearing impaired and the three visually impaired, are they all from the same primary school? If not, how does this one teacher handle the situation?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I understand, or I know rather, that most of them are at the primary side or at the George Town Primary. Otherwise, the teacher goes to where the children are. But they are in classes as well. I mean they are still in classes when they are not being given the specialist's help.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Just to follow-up on the answer just given by the Minister, can the Honourable Minister say if the department is satisfied that the individual who is the specialist teacher is able to circulate within the various locations in a satisfactory manner, or have there been any reports by said teacher or teachers complaining that there are insufficient bodies to deal with the situations that obtain?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The Chief Education Officer says that he has not had any complaints, and that the system seems to be working. If it isn't, let me just say this, sir, I will do whatever it is within my power, and I believe this House will, to correct anything relating to these children.

The Speaker: The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: I think the Honourable Minister has just said that he will do whatever he can to correct, and to make certain that some benefit is given to these children. Can I ask if there is a progress report done by this one teacher on each student monthly, or quarterly and handed to the Department of Education, or to the Ministry?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I am not certain of when the report comes in but, obviously, reports would be going in. I can find out precisely when for the two different categories and let the Member know.

[inaudible interjection]

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: No. It goes to the Department.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Perhaps just before I ask the supplementary the Honourable Minister might take on board that any report being done on these students might also be passed on to the Ministry so that the Ministry can have first-hand, and hands-on grip on the situation.

Mr. Speaker, with your indulgence, sir, just so that the Minister will understand the line of questioning: There have been complaints passed on to some of us representatives in this area and our aim is not to prove who is at fault for something not being done properly. We would simply like to ensure that the situation is made known to both the Ministry and the Department and that all efforts are made to ensure that the best results that can be achieved are achieved for children who find themselves in these situations.

One of the things that is very blatant to some of us is the fact that some students who are impaired in some form or fashion are allowed to graduate, and after graduation no one knows what happens to them. No one is casting any blame, we are simply saying that we would like to see that situation not be the case. And may I ask the Minister to give an undertaking to ensure that the explanation that was just given is looked into with a view to getting those results being asked for?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I am happy to give that undertaking and I am happy to look at these reports from the Department. Normally they would not come to me because they are on specific children. I am also happy to take up with the Department who could then take up with the other Department responsible to follow-up on these students after they leave school. I agree it is very important after they leave school that we do follow-up and see that they live as productive a life as they can, to their full potential.

The Speaker: I think we will move on to question 128, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 128

No. 128: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation to state whether or not Caymanian contractors were invited to bid on the provision of the cabinets for the new George Town Hospital.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: It is standard practice in the construction industry to have the construction contractor responsible for the supply and installation of cabinets. As a result, no separate tender documents were issued for the supply of cabinetry for the new Hospital. Instead, cabinet requirements and specifications were included in the tender documents issued by the main consultants for the overall construction of the new Hospital. These documents included a statement that bidders were encouraged to buy their materials locally. Tenders were received and opened by the Central Tenders' Committee and the construction contract was awarded in 1996 to McAlpine Ltd, who was the lowest bidder.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Is the Minister in a position to tell the House whether any materials were procured locally, or whether any local sub-contractor benefited from the tendering of these bids?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Not necessarily on the cabinets, but I know that on air-conditioning and other things local Caymanians did benefit from this contract.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say what the total sum expended on the cabinets was?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: As I indicated, this was part of the overall contract issued by McAlpine. I do not know what the official amount put out for the tender was.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: As the Minister is aware, the situation that arose in regard to the cabinets is one that caused a certain amount of furore in certain areas of the industry. Can the Honourable Minister, if he is in a position to do so, give us a synopsis of what seemed to be the problem and why it was not one that was able to be resolved in which a local contractor was able to supply the cabinets?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: My understanding, and I would not want to be quoted on this, was the significant increase of cost on the project submitted by Caymanian cabinet people was in the area of a quarter of a million dollars difference from what they were able to secure somewhere else. I think this was probably the driving force why the main contractor did not use local.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister state if rates of import duty had any bearing on this great difference, and, if so, what was it?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: No, Mr. Speaker, as all of the stuff brought in for the hospital is listed as duty free. Therefore, if Caymanians included this in their figure, it would not have affected their price.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Just for purposes of clarity and I am going to try to say it, to make sure that I understand. Is the Minister saying that if a local contractor in bidding on these cabinets had a list of materials it would have been a fact that this list of materials would have been imported duty free?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: The Member is correct.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: One final one, Mr. Speaker. Can the Honourable Minister verify that those sub-contractors who may have been interested in providing a bid were made aware of this situation?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: I could not positively verify that, but I would assume that the main contractor, McAlpine, would have notified them to this effect.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, the next question is 129, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION 129

No. 129 Mr. Linford A. Pierson asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation to state the estimated cost of the new George Town Hospital on completion and how this compares with the original estimate.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: The estimated cost of the new George Town Hospital on completion is between approximately $28.8 to $28.9 million. This compares with the original estimate of $26.2 [million].

In early 1997 we considered it prudent to increase the contingency fund from 2% to the more typical construction rate of 10%. This was actually done on a statement that I made in the Legislative Assembly last year. The resulting revised estimate of $28.8 million compares favourably with the latest figures for the final cost of completion. The exact cost, however, will not be available until the work is totally complete and the quantity surveyors have wrapped up their final accounting early in the New Year.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Can the Honourable Minister state the expected date of the official opening of the new hospital, and whether or not the general public will be invited to that opening?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: That is a good question. The overall completion, the construction part of it, will be finished in November, probably middle of December. Some of us were able to go there last week to see what is there. It is actually just a lot of finishing work being done.

In regard to the official opening, in discussions with His Excellency we are actually looking at an official opening in March. But, as we all know, many of the departments, once completely finished and handed over, commissioned and everything in order, we are utilising those new departments. There are two or three that will be put on line by September, mid-October. Once the departments are ready we are not waiting for an official opening to utilise them. They are going straight into them.

The public will certainly be invited, I am sure.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say if there has been any extension on any of the construction work to the hospital? And if so, what is the additional cost incurred, and who bears this additional cost?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, there is another Parliamentary question coming up. I will be able to give the information at that time, if the Member is willing. I will have more detail to give him. There are a number of things, whether the ground surface that we found which required significant excavation, but I will be able to provide the House with more information at that time.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: I think it is fair assumption that outside of the cost mentioned in the answer there will have been some other type of ancillary cost concerned with the new hospital outside of the main contract. Can the Honourable Minister give us a breakdown as to what kind of costs are involved and an approximate total of what these costs are?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: I am not aware of anything specific outside of this figure I stated here. Maybe the Member could give me more details. To the best of my knowledge, I am informed that this is the total here.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: So that the Minister will see that I am my usual self, as I am with him, I am talking about equipment and that sort of thing, and if this figure includes the equipment. I notice the Minister for Education smiling because he knows I am not afforded the leverage to deal with him in the same manner, you see.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: The equipment and all the ancillary stuff is provided in the overall contract that is listed here.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: The Honourable Minister stated that the original estimate for the Hospital was $26.2 million and that the estimated cost on completion is between $28.8 to $28.9 million which shows a difference of about $2.7 million on the highest estimate which is in excess of the contingency fund of 10%. I wonder if the Honourable Minister can state if this contingency fund which is now in excess of the 10% should be revised?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: I would say that these figures are not actually cast in iron. It may be a little bit more, it may be a little bit less. But I think it is within the ballpark that we see here.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries the next question is 130, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION 130

No. 130: Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning to provide a list of all new enrolments for the September term for all public schools giving a breakdown of the numbers in each year, at each school.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The new enrolments for the September term for all public schools are as follows:

PRIMARY SCHOOLS

In the George Hicks that amount was 244. And the new students in year 7 were 28.

**Two hundred and seventy-two (272) were transferred from George Hicks.

A grand total of 475 were transferred into George Hicks and into John Gray at 516.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: My first supplementary is, for year 1 in the Primary Schools individually, and year 7 for George Hicks and year 10 for John Gray, can the Honourable Minister give us a comparison with last year's figures? I am sure the Minister and his entourage anticipated this supplementary. I am quite sure of that.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I don't have last year's. The most I can do is get it and send it to the Honourable Member.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: I am so sorry that I assumed wrongly there. I will be interested in getting that answer in writing, if possible. The reason I asked for the comparison was to do with space, so I will try to get the answer by asking a different supplementary. But I still want the undertaking that was given.

In the primary schools, then, in year 1 the numbers that have come in to each of the schools for the September term, can the Honourable Minister say if any problems exist with space for these students?

And for the ones that we have already talked about that we knew there might be some problems, can he tell us exactly what has been done to accommodate these students in a way that is satisfactory so that they can exist until proper space is provided for the schools which we know is badly needed?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I understand that some of the excess went to the George Town Primary School, which had the capacity. The other students have been accommodated in year 1 within what accommodation there is. As we know, two primary schools are on line that have to be built as early as possible.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Specifically for the John A Cumber Primary School in West Bay, seeing as that is one of the locations where it is difficult to place some of the students elsewhere, can the Honourable Minister say what has been done to accommodate 76 students? I think it would be fair to assume we have three year 1 classes. If my memory serves me right, prior to this there were two year 1 classes at West Bay, or if there were three, then perhaps as each year has gone up. . . . What I am trying to ask the Minister is, I believe it is correct to say that with this number of students coming into the John A Cumber Primary School, and the years that have moved up one year now, there would have been a need for an extra classroom. If there was not a need for an extra classroom then we must have a situation existing where one class is in excess of 30 students. Can the Honourable Minister say what has happened?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: There is another question coming up that has quite a bit of this in it. There are four Primary 1 classes in West Bay. Less children came in than were anticipated. So with only 76 there, as the Honourable Member can see there are four classes averaging maybe twenty.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister say if there were four Year 1 classes last year?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: There were four last year.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: If there were four last year, it means this year there will be four Year 2 classes. My question is: Were there four Year 2 classes last year? The Minister understands what I am trying to get at. If he has to make me go right through to year 6, I will. Otherwise he might want to find the answer and give it to me without my having to ask any more.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: I think it will help if I outline the position at the John A Cumber. In Year 1 there are four classes; in Year 2 there are four classes, in Year 3 there are four classes, Year 4 there are four classes, in Year 5 there are three, and in Year 6 there are three.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister say if, as he has now given the number of classes in each year, this was the same situation that existed last year— meaning from Years 1 to 4, did they have four classes, and did Years 5 and 6 have three classes?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I don't have those statistics. But from what I understand an extra teacher was put in West Bay so, presumably that was for an extra class that would have resulted in one of these four classes.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Assuming that extra teacher the Minister is talking about was for this September, my question is, What was done to provide this extra classroom which did not seem to exist before.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Space has not been a problem at the John A Cumber School. The problem there is that the school is simply getting too large. So the problem does not come around the question of having space, but from the fact that the number of students there are above what should be in one primary school. That is why we are splitting it.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Just to try to cap this off, because I am sure that other Members have supplementaries. While I can understand what the Minister is saying when he makes the rather general and sweeping statement that space is not the problem, what I specifically want to find out is while space may not be the problem, are there dedicated classrooms in each of the . . . are there twenty-two separate classrooms at the John A Cumber? That is what I am trying to find out. And, if so, has this been the case all the time?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: There are twenty-two dedicated classrooms there for the students.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say, based on his projections, if the enrolments for the next school year are likely to be similar to what it was for this school year? If so, what provisions are going to be put in place to ensure that we have just as smooth a transition?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I can only give an opinion on this, which I am happy to do. I believe that there will be an increase in students for the next year. That is one of the reasons why it is important that this Honourable House support funds for the two primary schools that are needed. They will have to be built fast enough to really get them on stream if at all possible. So an early release of funds and a plea to Treasury to release funds as they are approved so that we can move on with those at an early stage to try to get those in place by August of this coming year.

The Speaker: The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: My question is moving a little bit closer to the district I represent. For some time now I have been concerned about the lack of growth of the North Side School. I wonder if the Minister or the Education Department is as concerned as I am, and if any study is being carried out to see why the school is not growing as the other primary schools are. I know the children are being born in the district. Is there any reason why they are not attending the North Side Primary School? If not, will the Minister give an undertaking to carry out such a study of that primary school?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: We share the Member's concern. But some progress has been made. About two or three years ago I think there were about 37 students, whereas now we have moved up to 57 students. The reception class has helped considerably because the young students have been able to go to the reception class and that has been the feed into the primary. We would naturally like to see those schools grow. In fact, East End has grown a fair amount. We do everything that we can to see them grow. However, North Side is a very nice size from the point of view that the classes are small and the children get far better. . . you know, . . . it's easier to teach a small class than a full size class.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs Edna Moyle: Mr. Speaker, I really did not intend to come back with another supplementary because he has said that they have the same concern. But he just said that with the size classes at that school, we should be in a position to get very good teaching.

I agree. But I wonder why it is that that school is always the last in most competitions or academics in these islands. I have never seen the newspaper saying that one of those students has come first in the National Achievement Test, or first in any other placement test. I agree with that size school. It is more or less a one-on-one for teaching, and that is also a concern of mine. But I will add to the study for the Minister to carry out as to why these children are not achieving better results than they are with a school that size.

It is not that our students are dumb. I agree. It is not that the teachers are not teaching, but I know particularly in year 2 (or is it year 4?) that there is one teacher teaching a combined class which is not good. It is impossible for one teacher to teach two classes a different curriculum (if I am correct is using that word). So that is one concern of mine also. I think it should be a priority of the Department of Education to straighten out these problems with that small primary school and let us get it on line to be competitive with the other primary schools.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I am happy to take on board and go into this in some depth. It is a concern to the Member and, therefore, it has to be a concern to me as well. I take the point she has made of the combined class.

What I would ask is for the Chief Education Officer to look into this and I will be able to discuss at a later stage with the Member other possible ways of improving the school.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, that concludes Question Time for this morning. Maybe this would be a convenient time to take the break. We shall suspend until 3.15 PM.

SECOND READINGS

THE STAMP DUTY (AMENDMENT) (AGREEMENTS AND ASSIGNMENTS) BILL, 1998

The Clerk: The Stamp Duty (Amendment) (Agreements and Assignments) Bill, 1998.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I beg to move the second reading of a bill entitled The Stamp Duty (Amendment) (Agreements and Assignments) Bill, 1998.

The purpose of this Bill is to correct anomalies resulting from the introduction in 1997 under the Miscellaneous Fees Provision (Bill at that time, now Law) of a 9% rate of stamp duty on transfers of property falling within the designated areas in the West Bay and George Town registrations. When the amendment was made to the conveyance of transfer section of the schedule of the Stamp Duty Law (1998 Revision) to provide for the 9% rate, consequential amendments carrying through the new rate to the sections on agreement or memorandum of agreement and assignments failed to be made. This created the undesirable potential for the otherwise applicable 9% rate to be avoided.

This Bill, therefore seeks to reconcile the payment of duty on (a) agreements or memoranda of agreement for the sale of land; and (b) assignments of land with payment of duty on the conveyance or transfer of land.

Clause 3 of the Bill amends the Schedule to the Stamp Duty Law (1998 Revision) by repealing the rates of duty under the heads "Agreement or Memorandum of Agreement" and "Assignment" and substituting rates of duty which are in keeping with the rates under the head "Conveyance and Transfer" taking into account the location of the property under the latter head.

This amendment is necessary to ensure the consistency of the 9% stamp duty rate and to protect the revenue intended to be derived therefrom. I commend this Bill to Honourable Members.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled the Stamp Duty (Amendment) (Agreements and Assignments) Bill, 1998, be given a second reading. The motion is now open to debate.

If there is no debate, does the Honourable mover wish to [say anything further]?

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Just to thank Honourable Members for their tacit support.
Thank you.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled the Stamp Duty (Amendment) (Agreements and Assignments) Bill, 1998, be given a second reading. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

THE LIQUOR LICENSING (AMENDMENT) (PROTECTION OF MINORS AND NEED FOR LICENSED PREMISES) BILL, 1998 (Deferred)

The Clerk: The Liquor Licensing (Amendment) (Protection of Minors and Need for Licensed Premises) Bill, 1998.

The Speaker: The Temporary Acting First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: While this Bill has appeared on today's Order Paper, it was only gazetted less than one week ago. In light of the substantial scope of the Bill, I would ask that the second reading be deferred for at least a further week, and I have indicated accordingly to the Standing Business Committee.

The Speaker: The question is that this Bill be deferred to a later sitting. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: THE LIQUOR LICENSING (AMENDMENT) (PROTECTION OF MINORS AND NEED FOR LICENSED PREMISES) BILL, 1998 DEFERRED TO A LATER SITTING.

The Speaker: Bills, second reading.

THE PRISONS (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1998

The Clerk: The Prisons (Amendment) Bill, 1998.

The Speaker: The Temporary Acting First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: I beg to move the second reading of a Bill for a Law to amend the Prisons Law and for incidental and connected purposes.

This amendment seeks to remove two provisions which have been in the Law since its original enactment in 1975 in respect to the administering of corporal punishment when prescribed by the courts as part of a sentence. Of course, the sentences available to the judiciary are those prescribed from time to time by the legislature as it enacts laws including, where appropriate, penal provisions in respect of their contravention.

The fact is that there is no longer any penal provisions within our legislation which include corporal punishment. And it seems logical therefore that if the society through successive legislatures has decided that the judiciary should not have corporal punishment at its disposal, that there is no longer the need to maintain these provisions in respect of administering that punishment.

I expect that some Members may feel that the abolition of these provisions would infer a more tolerant attitude by this House towards those who commit crimes. But I would respectfully suggest that that view could only meaningfully be taken if the legislature was considering the removal of corporal punishment from the penal provision in respect of some particular offence or offences. That is not the case. As I stated earlier, there are no offences that currently carry corporal punishment as a penalty.

I would therefore urge Members to acknowledge that the provisions are now redundant and to support their repeal.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled The Prisons (Amendment) Bill, 1998, be given a second reading. The motion is open to debate. The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W McKeever Bush: Mr. Speaker, in June when this Bill was brought to the House, I objected at that time. I have not heard anything to convince me now that I should vote for this matter.

The truth is that whether it is scientifically true, or a belief in the community, many people, including this Member, believe that we need instruments that deter crime. While it might be said that corporal punishment does not now happen in the Cayman Islands, the fact is that I believe that we should not take it off the books. I see this as one more effort on the part of the United Kingdom Government to liberalise this country.

Not everything that is good in the United Kingdom is good in the Cayman Islands. There are many things that we would not want to have happen here, that happen there. It can rightly be said by this legislature that if we do not do as the United Kingdom asks, they can institute this by Order in Council. That is a fact. That does not look good in some ways, but we must stand our ground on our convictions if we believe that there are certain things we should retain here.

We are not an independent legislature. We do not have the benefit of certain instruments like some other Dependent Territories or British Overseas Territories, as they are now called, that do not allow for these Orders in Council. But, we can make representation to the Foreign and Commonwealth Office in regard to any matter that we feel is not good for us.

I remember the issue of capital punishment. I know a lot of people do not support it. I do. But, we said, 'Look, let us talk to them.'

As I said, there are cases that will come up in time where we need to say to them, 'Look, the Cayman Islands is a unique country and there are certain things that are special to us, culturally, even.' While they could probably not attach this particular effort to any cultural background, I am just speaking in broad terms. But I think there comes a time when we must say that there are things that the United Kingdom does that we do not want to do here.

If we constantly give way to a little bit here, and a little bit there, every now and then, soon, everything that we hold sacred in this country will vanish. I am not for that. This might not be a big thing to some Members, but this Member is not going to support it. I say again that certain aspects of the Law send a psychological trigger through the community. I am one who believes that we must find other ways. There are things we can do to deter crime.

We must educate. That is one of the biggest factors. True! But beyond that there are other measures. I don't feel that we should be taking off our books any matter that can deter it. Perhaps the Government should use it as a big stick and say, 'You know, we can use this. We can put it in place.'

This Member cannot support removing the corporal aspect from the books.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: I rise in opposition to this amendment to the Prisons Law. I recall during my first term in office that I got a call from the late Capt. Keith Tibbetts.

He said, "John, one of the things I want you to push for is a reinstatement of corporal punishment." He said, "As a legislator I have noticed that since the issue was abandoned," he noticed the deterioration in society as far as discipline was concerned.

I agree with the First Elected Member for West Bay. There are certain issues, certain convictions, certain customs that we hold dear in this country. I understand that the United Kingdom is promoting the idea of fostering a partnership according to them. A partnership is exactly that—it is having mutual respect for one another and for each other's feelings and convictions. I think it doesn't speak well for the Mother Country to say that to us that if we as legislators do not feel this is an issue that we want to take off of our books. Maybe not this Government, but what about the next Government? They might want to reinstate public flogging. I would support that. I am not a member of Amnesty International. I believe that if we had a little more of that in our society we would get the attention of these bad boys who run around thinking that they own the world.

I remember that I was an advocate, and I got the nickname from the First Elected Member for George Town of the Hangman. But there are certain things that we feel strongly about in this country and I daresay that when we were moving forward implementing that policy of hanging by installing the gallows, I guarantee that those boys who were on death row were looking at that every day, and every time they saw a new piece in place they became more scared. I don't see how we can constantly allow those blocks and exercises that we have in place to discipline society, if we continually erode those safeguards and measures in our society — then we will have total chaos.

The present feeling among the general public, I am speaking of those who engage in criminal activity, is that there is no fear whatsoever. I have heard more than one say, 'I don't really hesitate to blow you away because I can sit down at Northward knowing I am entitled to three meals a day and that's all that can happen.' I think that, yes, the United Kingdom can say to us that this is something they took off their books, but we as a local Legislative Assembly should have the discretion to be able to say, 'Yes, we agree with it, we will take it off our books,' or, 'No, this is something we feel strongly about and we would appreciate if you would allow us to keep this legislation in place.'

I am personally concerned that if we don't have measures in place by which to administer some type of punishment other than sending someone to Northward

Prison, that crime in this country is going to escalate. You know the situation that could exist, Mr. Speaker. We boast of the two pillars of our economy—tourism and banking. But a lot hinges on the fact that we are a very safe environment. A lot of people feel confident to come here.

They don't have to worry about somebody walking up behind them and hitting them over the head and running off with their bag or something. That is very important. We would not necessarily use the measure if we don't have to, but the mere fact that it is there has a psychological advantage in that nobody wants to be the first to test whether or not that particular measure will be exercised.

So, I do not support this. I know that according to the Government it is a very incidental amendment in that there is no use having it on our books if we are not using it. I do not subscribe to that feeling. I believe that we should leave it on the books and even take measures to maybe strengthen our Prisons Law to make it much tougher for the criminal elements in this country. Thank you.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: My contribution will be fairly short, but I would like to know from the Government Bench if the reason for bringing this Bill at this time is because it is thought by the Government that this is in the best interests of the country when looking at it just for what it is, or whether there are soundings which are telling us that Mother Country would like to see it off of our books since it is not on hers.

If there is reasoning which we should be listening to, I don't mind hearing it. But, as it stands right now, the Bill coming to us as simply a tidying up exercise, it proves to me, first of all, that many of us are not well versed in the amendments that are being made to our laws, because by the way the motion was explained it was that other areas have already been amended which don't allow for this type of punishment in our laws.

Therefore it is for that reason why this amendment needs to be made. I don't believe that many of us consciously have realised this, and I am not sure at what time these amendments were made. But, from where I sit, I agree with what has been said from the Backbench thus far, and unless there is a reasonable explanation which is provided before the vote is taken, I daresay that I will have great difficulty supporting the Bill that is before us now. But I will wait to hear if there is something else that I know nothing about.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? (pause)

The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Thank you.

As in the case of my colleague, my contribution on this amendment will be reasonably short. However, as you will perhaps note from my contribution, we have as an Opposition group taken the view that this is a matter for one's conscience and that we will not necessarily take the same position on it.

I can recall when the question of capital punishment was raised in this House several years ago that I took the position that while it might have been a good idea for it to remain on the books of these islands, I was yet to be convinced that it formed a deterrent to crime in the countries that used capital punishment.

At that time I used as an example our neighbouring island of Jamaica where at the time it was very much in vogue, yet crime seemed to be increasing by degrees. Similarly, the Bill before us presents me with the same dilemma. Even though it can be said that it has been on our books for a number of years, I believe that in the wisdom of the legislators and the courts of this country over the years that it was not used because there was no proven deterrent in that method of punishment.

The fact that this is no longer a part of our penal provision would suggest to me that maybe it is time that we have a more serious look at retaining this provision.

If I believe tomorrow, or even now, that the retention of corporal punishment as we are now discussing would prove an effective deterrent to crime in these islands, I would be the first to say, yes, leave it there.

I believe that a more positive approach to the question of crime in these islands is a more serious approach at rehabilitation in working with the minds of individuals who have committed crimes, and that are filling our jails; trying to turn them to God, and helping them to live a more moral life, rather than trying to show them through the physical abuse of their bodies that they are being shamed into doing the right thing.

Several weeks ago I saw on Issues 27 this matter discussed. I believe that it was one of the Ministers, for whom I have a lot of respect, who suggested that it could do more harm than good, especially when the person meting out the punishment was also the person that was expected to carry out the rehabilitation of that individual.

As I said, this is a matter for one's conscience and though I have to take a different position from my colleagues on the Backbench, it does not necessarily mean that we do not agree on most things. I believe that to remove this provision from the Prisons Law will enhance the whole process, not only of our image internationally, but the process of rehabilitating our prisoners. Because of that philosophy and belief that I have on this particular issue, I have no choice but to support this amendment.

Thank you.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause)

If not, does the Honourable Mover wish to exercise his right of reply?

The Honourable Temporary Actin First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: I wish to thank Members who spoke and shared their views. It is obviously a subject on which people can have rather strong and definite views. I certainly do not propose to say anything to prolong that exchange. I would feel it my responsibility to respond to one query that was made by the First Elected Member for George Town, and to simply acknowledge that there have been soundings, as he alluded to.

Those were soundings that, obviously, the Government felt there was no substantial basis to object to in light of our record of not using corporal punishment.

We certainly think there are much bigger battles to fight. I will simply ask all Members to try to be objective in light of the history of this issue and, if possible, lend the Bill their support.

Thank you.

Mr. W McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker—

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W McKeeva Bush: Thank you.

I wonder if the Honourable Temporary Acting First Official Member would say if this has ever been used in the islands.

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs, do you care to answer that?

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: I have no definitive answer, other than that many of us have heard stories of it having been done, but I certainly have no recollection if that was in the 1960s, 50s, 40s or when.

[Prayers by the Third Elected Member for West Bay]

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Item number 2 on today's Order Paper, Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. Question 131 is standing in the name of the Elected Member for North Side.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION 131

No. 131: Mrs. Edna Moyle asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning if there are qualified physical education teachers appointed in Government Primary schools.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: There are four qualified peripatetic physical education teachers appointed in Government Schools. One physical education teacher is assigned to the schools in Cayman Brac while three serve the seven Primary Schools in Grand Cayman.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Can the Honourable Minister say how many times per week these three teachers who serve the seven Primary Schools in Grand Cayman offer physical education at each Primary School?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: One spends three days at the John A. Cumber Primary School and two days at the Bodden Town School; one spends three days at the George Town Primary School, one at East End, one at North Side; and another spends two days at Red Bay, two days at Savannah.

The Speaker: The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Can the Honourable Minister say if this is one hour per week, particularly at the North Side Primary School?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I understand that what I have given is a full day at each of those schools.

The Speaker: The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Can the Honourable Minister say when there are competitions having to do with sports, who trains the North Side Primary School students and who accompanies them to these events?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I understand that the national coach for football gives assistance to teachers and students at the North Side Primary and other schools?

The Speaker: The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Can the Honourable Minister say who replaces the full-time classroom teacher in the North Side Primary School when she accompanies these primary school children to an event? Who covers her class in her absence?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: That is basically done internally. The Principal makes the arrangements when she is out.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Can the Honourable Minister say whether or not there are organised programmes of physical education in the primary schools and if there are, what do they consist of? In other words, as primary school physical education teachers what are they promoting?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: There are specific sports, and it ranges, really, through physical fitness for actual sports, like football, cricket, that sort of thing. They obviously differ somewhat because there may be preferences on some of the fringe type of sports, if I can call it that.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: The reason I asked that is because I understand that at the John Gray and maybe also the George Hicks High Schools the physical education teacher throws the kids a ball and says, 'Go ahead and kick it.' That is why I was wondering whether or not there were any organised programmes in regard to physical education in the primary schools.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The schools follow a curriculum on Physical Education. I should mention that the National Curriculum on Physical Education is now in the process of being developed. But there is a programme in there on PE.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries the next question is No. 132, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for West Bay.

QUESTION 132

No. 132: Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr. asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development when will the Government Minute in response to the Public Accounts Committee's 1996 Report be tabled.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, the Government Minute will be tabled during this Meeting of the Legislative Assembly.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: If I am correct, I think it is a requirement that that report be tabled within 90 days of the Report of the Public Accounts Committee. I wonder if the Honourable Third Official Member can give us a general idea why it has been delayed for so long.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The 90-day deadline would have been met. It was approved by Executive Council during the time of the previous meeting. But there were about three or four sections in the report that the response as set out in the Minutes, the Government was of the view that they needed to reflect a more accurate position and one of the sections in particular was that of public debt. This morning the Deputy Financial Secretary and I will be meeting to do into that section.

I should point out that during the time of the last meeting up until now I was always aware of the fact that the Government Minute had to be tabled. But in light of issues which have arisen since that time up until now and absorbing my attention and the attention of other Members of the Government, Mr. Speaker, I did not put this, although it is very very important I had to take it to another level in terms of priority. But it will be tabled during this meeting.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries we will move on to question 133, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for West Bay.

QUESTION 133

No. 133: Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr. asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport to provide details on any in-house training programmes which are available for the members of staff of the Department of Tourism, and if such a programme exists, who is responsible for heading up the programme.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: All Department of Tourism Managers world-wide, on an on-going basis, seek to provide in-house or external opportunities for their staff to attend relevant training programmes. Additionally, the Department has introduced a Human Resources Development Programme, developed and managed by the Tourism Development Services Manager, which provides monthly staff development sessions for all support staff in Grand Cayman and quarterly staff development sessions for all senior managers. This programme is adjusted and amended as needs change and additional training opportunities present themselves.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: I am glad to hear that there is a programme in place. My question to the Honourable Minister is, Does the Tourism Development Manager provide career paths for people within the department in regard to where they can get to, and how, and what they need to do in order to get there?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: [microphone not turned on—voice almost inaudible.]

I believe the answer to that particular question is difficult for any manager to provide...given that the Government staff does not create a career path for civil servants. The manager...does provide training which causes the skill of each person to increase thus putting the person in the position to be promoted...level.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Recognising that tourism is one of the pillars of our economy, I wonder if the Honourable Minister can say what is being done to encourage or attract qualified Caymanians to choose tourism as a career?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: There are a variety of matters that are in place, namely the Tourism Development Services Manager together with other senior members of the Department of Tourism, has put together brochures and booklets which are provided to primary schools, which are also provided to some of the middle school level, as well as they go into the schools and speak to young people about opportunities within the tourism industry.

A few years ago we established for the first time a fully funded tourism scholarship which allows individuals to go to the tertiary level of education. I am pleased with the results of it. Not just the scholarship itself, but all of these various approaches have stimulated interest in careers in the tourism industry in that when we examine the young people coming to the Educational Council for scholarships we find that a substantial number of them are seeking to be in the marketing area, in restaurant management, or in managerial training which would apply to managing of hotels and otherwise.

I believe that—and I am not about to blow my horn—within the last five years we have seen substantial movement in terms of educating not only the population at large, but also the young people within the system of education and seeking to provide more and more opportunities to young people. I would not sit down without saying there is a lot more to be done and we look forward, and commit ourselves to that.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: I am aware that there is a tourism scholarship that is quite substantial, but I am also aware that there is a programme at the Community College for training in the hospitality industry. I wonder if the Minister can say whether or not the Ministry or the Department has any scholarships in place for local persons who would maybe like to upgrade their skills in this area but who are not prepared to leave the islands?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: The answer to that supplementary is that the Ministries of Tourism and Education are working together with the industry because I firmly believe that in cases mentioned by the questioner there is a need to have a programme not just educational in nature but where the individuals can gain firsthand practical opportunities so that whatever we learn in an academic setting we can also apply our hands to the job in the various areas within the tourism industry, and we are putting that programme together. i

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: In regard to the last supplementary, can the Honourable Minister say what happened to the plan that was under the Ministry for Community Development for training at the Community College for hotel and the tourism sector?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I believe that is a difficult question to answer, given that the Member knows the details of what he was proposing in that particular training exercise. I was not particularly au fait all the details. I do know the training goes hand in hand with the educating of our populace, and the training is now with the Ministry of Education. As I mentioned in an earlier supplementary, the Ministry of Education and the Ministry of Tourism are working together with the industry as well to cause the programme, perhaps as part of what the former Minister is mentioning, to have that programme come into operation and hopefully be successful in educating our young people.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: I recall back shortly after the 1992 election (I think it was) there was a lot of talk about training. I remember one of the plans, especially in the hospitality industry, was to establish within the industry some type of co-operative effort to ensure that students who were attending the Community College in this area had some practical experience. Can the Honourable Minister say whether or not that programme has been initiated? If it has been, what establishments are co-operating in regard to making their facilities and expertise available for such a training programme?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I think it is fair to say that there has been a lot of talk about training in the hospitality industry for the last decade, to put it specifically. I believe that some work has been accomplished. I believe there are attachments and working arrangements made with young people from the George Hicks and John Gray High Schools who get certain attachments to the hotels and gain some experience.

I cannot say that I am satisfied that all of what I think should happen has happened. I think it is one of the reasons why I mentioned in answer to an earlier supplementary that I believe the industry, the Ministry of Education, and the Ministry of Tourism, have to work more closely together in order to ensure that we gain much more success in the training exercises. No one person, or one Ministry will ever accomplish this without. . . not without... I think the answer to it I think is a comprehensive approach, people who are involved in the Tourism industry in the private sector; people who are involved in the Government, be it in the Tourism industry or in the Ministry of Education have to work very closely together to ensure that the programme they are putting forward at the Community College is tied to some experience where those same individuals get exposure to hands-on training whether it is at the front desk of the hotel or in the kitchen trying to learn the culinary arts, or whether it is in the managerial side of it, or whether it is the personnel side of it. The exposure, giving a person some experience to hold on to in their minds while they are moving on in the academic, I think is essential for that person to be successful.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say when we may expect to see the results of the plans between the Ministry for Education and his Ministry regarding the development of this training initiative?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: The results can be on two fronts. One is the results of the children in the programme, and how well they are getting on. I don't believe the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town is asking for that. The results as to how this programme will be implemented should happen within the next couple of months.

The Speaker: I will have to limit this to two additional supplementaries. The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: I listened to the Minister's reply in regard to the supplementary I posed. It seems like nobody knows what happened to the initiative, that was a Government initiative, that passed through the Community Development Ministry, that passed through Executive Council, as an initiative between the Ministry of Community Development and the Ministry of Education being responsible for education and the Ministry of Community Development being responsible for training. What happened to that initiative?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I took it that the former Minister was talking about the training programme which he attempted to put together for which, as he says, has been through Executive Council, and discussed with the Ministry of Education. That training responsibility passed to the Education Ministry. My reply tried to indicate that I am not now in a position to know all the details of how they propose to carry that out, but I am sure that it is in the process of being done.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Part and parcel of the training initiative developed by the Ministry of Community Development, and by the committee, that was put together by Government and tabled in the House and accepted by the Government, that which was tabled in the House, part and parcel of that was an aspect of training for the tourism and hotel industry. That moved on, that programme went public. I am trying to solicit an answer as to what is happening with it.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport, can you comment further?

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I don't want to sound like I am evading any question in this Honourable House; I am basically saying that the training initiative the Member is referring to, the responsibility under the Constitution for training is with the Minister for Education. I am not seeking to put the Minister for Education on the spot. I do not know at this time all the details as to when that will be implemented. That is all I am saying, and I am trying to be as honest and as fair as I possibly can.

The Speaker: At this time we will move on to question 134 standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 134

No. 134: Miss Heather Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning if all schools (public and private) participate in morning prayers and the singing of Cayman's National Song.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: All Government and private schools participate in morning prayers or daily devotion, either collectively or in individual classes or tutor groups. The singing of Cayman's national song is usually done at schools' general assemblies once or twice per week in Government schools. In the private schools, the frequency with which the song is sung varies from school to school. In some schools it is sung daily, while at others it is done weekly or on special occasions.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Miss Heather Bodden: I would like to thank the Honourable Minister for that answer, but I was just asking this question because I have heard that there are teachers who have said that it is not necessary to have prayers and the singing of Cayman's national song in the schools. Can the Honourable Minister say if he is aware of this?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: As the law now stands, and long may it stand because one of the erosions could be in a Bill of Rights which excluded prayer from public schools which stands at present in the European Convention. The Chief Education Officer has told me that he does not know of this. But if any teachers, in public schools, are not complying with the law, then he will ensure that it is enforced. They should be having prayers in schools because, legally, that law still stands.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: I am talking specifically about the High School or the Middle School and John Gray, can the Honourable Minister say whether or not anybody in particular is responsible for leading the devotional period in the schools?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: It is normally done on a rotating basis through the Heads, and at times they bring in ministers or people from the outside to participate in it.

Let me just add this. I think this is very important. In the United States when they withdrew prayers from schools it was the biggest disaster that country ever saw in the education system. The children need that devotion. They need the religious aspect, and I would oppose anything to the bitter end that tries to remove it.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: It is my understanding that the devotions are done in tutorial groups, and I understand that they basically get together and brief the students as to what is coming up in regard to the school, events and that kind of thing. Maybe at the end of the session they will say the Lord's Prayer.

I feel strongly that the religious base in our schools has to be maintained. I wonder if the Honourable Minister, and I have mentioned this to him before, would consider, and I am quite sure the Legislative Assembly would fund it, establishing Chaplains for those two schools. Because they are public schools, we have children from all religious walks of life. I have also been told that there are some teachers there who are not really interested because they do not believe themselves in promoting respect for worship and prayer in the schools.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I am happy to look at anything, and I give that undertaking to the Honourable Member, that will improve the promotion of prayer within schools. It is nondenominational. But other than that there should be full participation by the teachers. I would think that the Chief Education Officer, as he has just said to me, would take it fairly seriously if teachers are not doing what they should do in relation to devotion and prayer in churches. . . I mean schools.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries we will move on to question 135, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 135

No. 135: Miss Heather Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning to provide a list of major projects and maintenance repairs that were accomplished at the Bodden Town and Savannah Primary Schools during the summer holidays.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The installation of air-conditioning in the infant blocks at Savannah and Bodden Town Primary Schools and the painting of the exterior and interior of all buildings were the major projects accomplished at these schools during the summer holidays. Preliminary work was started during the summer holidays to extend installation of air-conditioning to the remainder of the classrooms at these schools. When this comes on stream, it will in fact complete the air-conditioning projects in these two schools.

In addition to the various maintenance tasks which were undertaken on an ongoing basis throughout the year, the following works were scheduled and completed during the summer holidays:

Bodden Town Primary

- Installed new door in the Year 1 classroom
- Painted chalkboard in Year 1 classroom
- Replaced the bookshelves in Year 2 and treated the entire area for termites
- Painted chalkboard in Year 3
- Removed carpet in Year 4 and treated classroom for termites
- Replaced shelving along east and west side of Year 4
- Installed additional electrical outlets in Year 4
- Repaired chalkboard in Year 4
- Repaired chalkboard in Year 5

Savannah Primary

- Installed screen doors on canteen
- Repaired seams in ceiling and hall
- Replaced plywood casing to air-conditioner in staff room
- Relocated fan switch from sink area in kitchen Installed cabinet doors in rooms 3P and 3PT
- Replaced carpet and installed tiles in former Year 6 classroom, now Year 1 classroom

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 23 (7) & (8)

The Speaker: Before calling for supplementaries, I will entertain a motion for the suspension of Standing Order 23(7) and (8) so that Question Time can go beyond 11 o'clock.

The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Miss Heather Bodden: I rise to move the suspension of the relevant Standing Order.

\[seconded by the Member for North Side]*

The Speaker: The question is the suspension of Standing Order 23(7) and (8) so that Question Time can go beyond 11 o'clock. Those in favour please say aye. Those against no.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 23 (7) & (8) SUSPENDED.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Can the Honourable Minister say if the air-conditioning at the Savannah and Bodden Town Primary Schools are going to be individual window units, or are we doing a study to see if it would be more [economical] to do central air-conditioning rather than individual units in windows?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I understand that the Education Department has just received a study back from Public Works and it has been done on an energy-efficient basis and it includes some split systems as well as some duct-central systems.

*The Speaker: Elected Member for North Side, may I take for granted that you seconded that previous motion?

Thank you.

The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Although this question does not relate to the Primary School in the district of North Side, I wonder if the Honourable Minister could say if the infant blocks at all primary schools, but particularly the District of North Side, are now air-conditioned like Savannah and Bodden Town?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I cannot honestly answer that: I can find out, but all should be done. So, if the North Side have not yet been done, it is in line to be done. I mean, it is not a detail. . .

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: I am glad to hear that so much has been accomplished over the summer at the Savannah and Bodden Town Primary Schools. I wonder if the Honourable Minister is in a position to provide us with a status update on the assembly hall for the West Bay Primary School?

The Speaker: That is outside of the substantive question, but if you wish to answer it you may, Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: On the air-conditioning we had $70,000 released. We used it all as I understand during the summer. As Members know, the $500,000 was only approved at the end of the last sitting, not very long ago. The studies have been done to deal with that. The plans for that.... Mr. Speaker, on the hall, as the Member knows there was a request by Honourable Members from West Bay to extend the size of it. So we went back. The plans have now been redrawn. I haven't seen them yet, but I understand they are back with the Education Department. So, hopefully, I mean we will push with this as fast as we can.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: I wonder if the Honourable Minister could say why the Bodden Town and Savannah schools were the first two primary schools to have air-conditioned infant blocks, not that I object to those schools receiving air-conditioning, but I would like to know on what grounds those two schools were chosen to have air-conditioning first.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: We did the blocks that the Education Department and Public Works felt needed it most. At Savannah, if the Member were to go there, I mean anybody going there. . . that block that is near the road, sir, was subject to very heavy traffic. The children could not hear what the teacher was saying. Dust came in from those heavy trucks moving by. I can tell you that in my view that was the reason. I did ask that they try to do it early. It wasn't just the Members pushing, I went several times.

George Town, really, also got some priority, but those classrooms are blocked by the hall and the other building and no breeze goes into that area. It is all the way down to the end on the west. But we will give North Side as much priority as we can. The only trouble is that I can't be everywhere all the time. I give the Member the undertaking. I know she presses very hard for the school. We will catch up.

The Speaker: The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: I would like to thank the Honourable Minister for that commitment to get to the North Side Primary School as soon as possible. But I want no political favours, as such. I want to see each school handled and each school given these air-conditioners for the infant blocks if we cannot afford to air-condition the entire primary school. He did give me that commitment, I think it was at the last meeting, that these schools would not be done on a political priority list, but rather on need. So I would like to thank him for giving the undertaking and commitment to the North Side Primary School.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: If you would allow me one more supplementary on the Assembly Hall for West Bay—

The Speaker: Please go ahead.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: I recall, I think it was the June sitting, or Finance Committee (I can't remember which it was), but there was a lot of discussion and concern raised in regard to the need for a hall for the John A Cumber Primary School. We did get an undertaking that it would be fast-tracked as much as possible. It is now September and I am quite sure that the students and the teachers at the John A Cumber Primary School are not looking forward to having to hold their Christmas Programme on the outside.

I know the Minister is a good man, I wonder if he can assure us—the representatives from West Bay that he will do whatever is within his power to ensure that this thing is put on the fast track and not kicked around the hall in Public Works, or wherever it is being held up, and we get on with that job? It is definitely, seriously needed.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I requested about . . . firstly, we know the time constraints. It was the middle of August when the money was released, and with all due respect, Public Works did not move until the money was released which is fair enough in light of the checks and balances we put in place.

Since that time we have had the plans completed and I have asked them to move as quickly as possible to give it priority and to get on with it. But to be very honest, we all know the bureaucracy of letting out these tenders does take time. There is a motion here again on tenders. It is very important that it is done right. But within the Law and within doing it right, I give all the Members from West Bay an undertaking that if there is one thing I would like to do it is get that finished and cut down on the questions that I get from separate Members each time the Legislative Assembly sits.

It is very much needed, so I will do everything I can. I am happy to keep Members up-to-date, either individually or as a group, as to where we have reached, and also to look at the plans, if you wish, and I will get those. I haven't seen them yet.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: I want to thank the Minister for that commitment.

He mentioned that the plans had to be redesigned based on requests or input from the Members for West Bay in regard to the capacity. Can the Honourable Minister give us an idea as to what the new plans call for as far as seating capacity?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: It has been increased to a capacity of 650.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: I am very happy that the Minister has answered that question because I put a question on the floor of the House at the last meeting, and I haven't gotten an answer yet. However, I made it my business to find out what had happened and I understand that the project is now out to tenders.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: If I may just say, it was not intentionally not answered. It must have been that we just ran out of time in here— even though we were in for five months!

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries the next question is No. 136, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 136

No. 136: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning to state whether the students at the Alternative Education Centre are screened for Attention Deficit Disorder (ADD) or Attention Deficit Hyperactive Disorder (ADHD).

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The School Counsellor at the Alternative Education Centre screens all students when they are placed in that facility for attention deficit hyperactivity disorder [ADHD]. The initial identification phase involves observation of the student and includes parental interviews. Once the School Counsellor has identified the student as potentially having ADHD or ADD, a referral is made through the Assistant Education Officer, Special Needs, to the Educational Psychologist assigned to the Alternative Education Centre.

The Educational Psychologist conducts standardised assessments and then suggests behavioural strategies for change. If further assessment is needed then the student may be referred to either the Government Hospital's Paediatrician or Psychiatrist. If medication is prescribed for the student, the School Counsellor provides feedback on its effectiveness to the Doctor. This allows the doctor to monitor the student and make adjustments for the proper dosage.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say whether any students at this centre are currently being treated for either of these two problems as indicated in the question?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: There are three who have been identified and are on medication. There is one who has been identified. The parents will not allow a doctor to see him.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say, of those who are on medication, what steps are being taken to ensure that the side effects of the medication are manageable?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: They are under the care of a medical doctor who is qualified in this area so, presumably, whatever dosage and side effects there are, that doctor, I am sure, is very capable of dealing with it.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Is the Minister in a position to tell the House whether the medication prescribed is a medication which goes under the name of Ritalin?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: This is not an area that I can go into, sir. I don't know it. If the doctor feels like he wishes to release it, I can ask for it, but I don't know what medication the children are on.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, can the Minister give the House an undertaking that he will investigate to ascertain whether this medication is Ritalin because I am aware that there are concerns in medical and educational circles that this medication indeed may have more negative effects than beneficial effects. In some jurisdictions in the United States it has been condemned as a medication for certain types of behaviour.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: What can be released between a medical doctor and a patient is for the medical doctor to release. I will say to the Honourable Member, and I can give that undertaking, if the medical doctor is prepared to release what medication the children are on, then, by all means, I will request it and give the information to the Honourable Member. I am not competent, as a lawyer, to comment on the medical position and what the side effects are. But, obviously, we have competent doctors in there who are dealing with these children. I believe they are getting the best medical treatment that they can have. I am sure they are followed up and carefully taken care of.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: I was out of the Chamber for a bit, so if he has answered this question, I am sorry to repeat it, but I wonder if he can say if there are any classes that are held at the Alternative Education Centre. If there are, what classes are they?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, at the Alternative Education Centre they teach all of the core subjects— English, Math, Religious Education.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Are these classes compulsory for all students who attend that centre? I have been told by some students that all they do all day long is play Station 64.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The students in the tutorial centre go through that. Those who are in the transition unit are basically there for placement and are not included in the tutorial side. Maybe it is one of those children you are referring to. I don't know.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: The Minister mentioned something about those involved in the tutorial classes. Then there was another group. Are they in transit? For job placement? There are some students there who are 12 or 13 years old. You cannot be intending to find job placement for those students. Those are the students I am talking about who are saying they are sitting there all day long paying Nintendo.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The younger students would be the 12, 13 year olds in the tutorial. The 15 or 16-17, the older ones would be there in an effort for job placement. But I think maybe what would be good, as we did with the Lighthouse School, would be for all Members to come there and have a look at it because I have made a request for some sizeable funds to try to get a proper unit built across from where we utilise the building that is there now.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. I will end what I am going to say with a question. I want the Minister to understand that this is not my morning for me and him. I am as serious as I could ever be. But before I finish the question I need to explain what I am coming to. So with your permission, sir....

This place called the Alternative Education Centre, I have never heard one good thing said about it. I do not believe it is simply because of the nature of the facility why I have not heard. Everything you can think of is wrong with it. I am not talking about you, Mr. Minister. But I want to say this: I do not even believe that the people who are running the facility know what they are doing. I do not believe that where they are placed is what they were trained for. There have been no good results from that facility when it comes to trying to get the children (whether it is for behavioural problems or whatever else is wrong), back into the main stream. It is a continuous problem.

I am not suggesting that it is something easily solved. I am saying to the Minister that while I know he has made positive steps, first of all by trying to get funding to move on to a proper facility—I am not knocking all of that—I am simply saying to the Minister the problems are rife in that place. I am asking the Minister, through whatever channels he has to use, to take a serious look at that place because the students who leave from there are the students who turn into all the bad things we have to spend money for-- jails et cetera. and all of that for.

The point I am making is that if you don't try to solve it from then, it costs the country more, it costs families more heartaches, and all I am saying and asking the Minister to recognise and make sure that his departments and whatever else recognise is the fact that while this is one of the most difficult areas to deal with, we all recognise that, it cannot be shoved aside.

Do you know what else? Mr. Speaker, I am sorry, sir, but I think this is very, very important. I believe that teachers are put there when they cannot find anything else for them to do. I don't care who tells anybody different. I am asking the Minister, please. . . and I am not accusing anyone of anything. I am just trying, because I have heard, and if half of what I hear is true, it is bad. Of course, what is going to happen, sir, is that whenever they know that somebody is coming to check, they will tidy up their act.

So, my question to the Minister, while I recognise he may have 2,000 other things to do, I think although the difficulty is there it is an area that needs to be looked at seriously from top to bottom. Thank you.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I take on board the seriousness of the Honourable Member's statement. I have now asked the Chief Education Officer for a report on the facility and I give the undertaking that I will go into it in depth. It is a very important unit, but it is a very difficult unit. It has to be looked at in depth, and I have now asked him and I will confirm that in writing to him which will carry through on the seriousness of what the Honourable Member has said.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries that concludes Question Time for this morning. It is my understanding that there is a luncheon planned by the Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport—tomorrow? Okay.

At this time we will suspend proceedings for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.27 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12.29 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Other Business, Private Members' Motions. Private Member's Motion No. 22/98, Amendment to the Development and Planning Regulations to be moved by the First Elected Member for George Town.

OTHER BUSINESS

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 22/98

AMENDMENT TO THE DEVELOPMENT AND PLANNING REGULATIONS

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: I beg to move Private Member's Motion No. 22/98 which reads:

“WHEREAS in the Development and Planning (Amendment) (No. 3) Regulations 1997, in Regulation 4, sub-regulation (3)(b)(i) reads- “by the addition immediately following paragraph (e) of the following paragraph- “(ea) the minimum lot size for guest houses and apartments is 12,500 square feet and 20,000 square feet respectively;” and sub-regulation 3(c)(i) reads-

“by the addition immediately following paragraph (e) of the following new paragraph “(ea) the minimum lot size for guest houses and apartments is 25,000 square feet;”

“BE IT RESOLVED THAT the Governor in Council consider the undue hardship this is causing to property owners, and make the necessary amendments so that these two sub-regulations will only apply to lots purchased after December 8th, 1997.”

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: I beg to second the motion.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 22/98 having been duly moved and seconded is now open for debate. The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Although anticipating a long debate on this motion, it seems that the Government is sympathetic to the intention of the motion. Maybe the debate will not have to consume a lot of time.

In introducing the motion, I will just outline the problems as we on the Backbench have seen and heard from our constituents. There is a situation, simply put, where a lot of people who had purchased individual lots prior to this amendment coming into force in December 1997, found themselves in a situation where because of the size of their individual lots what others had been able to do prior to that, and what they had anticipated that they could do, was not possible because of the amendments.

People with plans in the works to build, for instance, three apartments, to live in one and to either sell or rent the other two to help offset their mortgages, found themselves where this was not possible. So they could not utilize the land in its optimum fashion as they had anticipated. I am sure that there a lot of individual situations that will vary, but the very short explanation that I just gave sums up the kind of problems that many individuals are facing, that is, young families who were trying (in our own language) to move ahead who had aspirations to acquire certain-- not wealth-- but certain property for their investment in the future. A lot of people have now found themselves where they have to go back to the drawing board and start all over again.

As I said, many situations can be pointed out to prove the point. But, because we on the Backbench understand that the Government seems to be willing to accept the motion, what I will readily do (since I have the chance to wind up), is to allow the Government to speak on the motion and, depending on the views aired by the Government, we will see how we progress.

Before I cap off the introduction of the motion, let me say this: As we have discussed it on the Backbench, we fully recognise that there may other areas besides the two that have been mentioned in the motion which might well need to be addressed. I am certain that the Minister responsible will have input from the Department simply because they are the ones who will be experiencing the situations through applications coming to the Central Planning Authority. I am certain by now that the Government is well aware of what we are talking about.

Perhaps if the Government wishes to address other areas, what might well be the end result of this motion, is that I guess we could simply look at it as a key to open the door, and once the door is open we can all enter the room and know what needs to be done and clean the room of. Perhaps if we look at it in this light this is one of those motions which might be called a win-win situation.

I will conclude my opening remarks and simply await hearing the position that the Government is taking, and I am sure that other Members may wish to point out specific examples. I am sure that all of us have had representations from our constituents and I dare say that there have been many local contractors and architects in the field who have either directly or indirectly experienced the pinch and understand what is happening.

Mr. Speaker, I commend this motion to the Members of Legislative Assembly, and I trust that the motion will see safe passage and receive full support. Thank you.

The Speaker: The motion is open for debate. The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, I want to associate myself with remarks of the mover, the First Elected Member of George Town in his presentation of this motion, who was assisted by the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town. I have had representations from people also who had purchased property to build on. Since the introduction of the law, or the regulations, they are prohibited. It would be unfair not to do something to alleviate the problems--the plight in which those people find themselves. So I am glad that the motion is before us and I am hopeful that the Government will assist by accepting it and making the necessary changes.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak?

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I also wish to say thanks to the First Elected Member for George town, and the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, for bringing this motion to address is very important issue.

I remember the process that the Development Plan went through. There was a lot of input and consultation, and that type of thing; the whole idea behind that was that we got the feelings of those people who were affected with regard to their difficulties--with regard to certain proposals. I believe that when these new regulations were proposed it was not envisaged that it would cause these types of difficulties. I am quite sure that it was never Government's intention to create that type of hardship on any individual, especially young Caymanians who have the ambition to maybe build a little home or a couple of apartments to rent or sell in order to supplement their income.

But I must say in all fairness that I have been approached by a number of constituents who have experienced difficulty in this area. The Planning Department and the Central Planning Authority have been most tolerant in regard to these difficulties. In most instances I am aware that the applicants were accommodated. But I believe that it is a good gesture for us to bring a motion along these lines. If we are creating difficulty for young Caymanians who want to build or build to rent, then as elected representatives we must address those concerns and issues.

I look forward to hearing Government's acceptance of this motion. I think it is a very sensible, reasonable request, and I look forward to us being in a position where we can make the planning process for these people a much smoother exercise. Thank you.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Government is very pleased to accept this motion. There have been concerns raised with the Central Planning Authority, and obviously, with Members here. The intent of this to basically not affect property that existed prior to December 8, 1997, is one that I think is justified. What will happen now is that we will have to prepare an amendment to the regulations and it will come back to the House, I would think it should be at the next session

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I also rise to support the motion which has been put to this Honourable House. As earlier speakers said, there are times when regulations are amended and we cannot envisage every possible ramification of those pieces of legislation. When we receive input from the public which demonstrates that there is some amount hardship, the responsible step to take is to amend the situation to relieve any burden on any member of the society who is suffering perhaps hardship.

I believe this amendment, the motion which is requesting the amendment, does go in that direction. I believe, too, that whether an individual who has purchased property prior to this date with a view to carrying out the construction of apartments or guest houses, Government, a good faith, should ensure that person the opportunity to proceed with his investment. I believe the amendment to that which was put on December 8, 1997, is the fair and correct thing for this Government and the House to do. So, Mr. Speaker, I support the motion.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? (pause) The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I am happy that the Government has seen fit to accept the motion. It certainly makes the work much easier. But I have to, in this instance as in many others, be a kind of conscience and say that it would not have been necessary for this motion to come had the powers-that-be expressed a little more concern in dealing with these kinds of situations.

It is my observation that the Government seems more distant from the people in these times than perhaps past Governments have been. I recall that when this matter first came to our attention, I wrote a letter to the newspapers saying that there had been a problem with this piece of legislation and we needed to address the problem. The Minister for Education, who was also the Minister for Planning, replied saying that it had been a matter that was unanimously passed. Of course, Mr. Speaker, that is his usual style, indicating that whatever fault there was, was not his; that, indeed, it was as much my responsibility as his that the legislation was in place.

Of course, there can be no question that it was unanimously approved. However, that did not exonerate us from the fact that it needed addressing. I wrote a letter to say that if the Minister were forthcoming, perhaps he was in a good position to make the necessary amends. Well, a reasonable period of time elapsed and those amendments were not forthcoming from the quarters that I expected they should have been forthcoming from. Hence, we on the Backbench took the initiative.

I want to take this opportunity to say that in the future, as far as I'm concerned, anytime certain Members come here with amendments proclaiming that there is nothing wrong with them, I shall peruse them most meticulously and carefully. I have been stung twice now in the past when those pronouncements were made only to find out that they were matters which were of some detriment to the wider community and constituency.

It is incumbent upon the Government to ensure that these kinds of issues, when they are brought, are thoroughly investigated. But it is also incumbent upon us as Members of the Legislature to also ensure that we are prepared.

I am happy that a situation over which we have received so many complaints will at last be able to be addressed in such a way as to relieve the hardship from Caymanians. There has been much acrimony and debate, and many people have expressed disappointment. It seems that an avenue of investment which many--particularly young persons--have come to expect and come to depend on, had been denied and there were accusations that the Government had lost its sensitivity to those Caymanians who were ambitious and who were intent on being economically independent.

Of course, there is some merit to the argument that Government in many instances seems only sensitive to the issues of the large and significant investors, leaving out the majority of the middle classes who are struggling and who are determined to be financially independent. I would hope that this experience serves us well for the future and that we may alleviate this kind of exercise so that the next time we are faced with an issue of this sort, we can get it right in the first instance.

I am happy to be associated with this effort, and can only say that I will continue to be vigilant to ensure that Caymanians in all sections of the spectrum get their fair share of the economic pie.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: In regard to this particular Private Member's Motion to amend the Development and Planning Regulations that would allow the building of apartments and guesthouses on certain amounts of land in residential areas, I would like to say that many young people, were upset with this regulation having been approved by the Legislative Assembly. In the first week or two of this happening there was representation made to me at home, representation made to me in my office, representation made to me on the streets in regard to the apparent unfairness of this regulation.

The reason I was given for it being unfair has already been greatly outlined by the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, and the First Elected Member for George Town. In his summing up of this particular motion he will perhaps give more detail as to why this regulation was causing hardship to persons that had exhibited a very positive type of entrepreneurship in these islands, young people in particular.

The fact that this amendment has been brought to amend a regulation; the fact that we had pushed under our noses, so to speak, the regulations in the first place—I would be the first to admit that I did not read the regulations clearly; I did not understand some of the more technical planning architectural concepts in it. And when it was brought to my attention by architects and by planners, and by persons who had some idea of what they wanted to do with the land they had, and now that it would become impossible to build because of this new regulation requiring this particular size, it became clearer to me that this would be an unnecessary burden to persons who had shown a great degree of ambition in the society already.

My position is slightly different from the position of the Minister responsible for Planning who brought these regulations to the Legislative Assembly in that that Minister has all the expertise available to him in terms of considering these regulations. Therefore the fact that the public has been inconvenienced to this degree until now goes to show that the Government continues to govern by reaction rather than by positive, proactive deliberations.

In summing up, I would just like the Government and the general public to bear in mind the fact that Opposition is constructive and that without constructive opposition we would not be able to remedy the shortsightedness of governments as they sit and deliberate and make decisions over a period of four years. Therefore, the fact that we all have different perspectives of what is necessary and what is a good thing for democracy... And this is the case in point: if there were not different perspectives of what is good for the general public, the general public would not have had a remedy in this particular case.

My getting up to support this, Mr. Speaker, is because I would like to emphasise again the role which the Opposition must play in a democracy, and the necessity of there being differences in perception and differences of opinion and differences in regard to what we think is good.

I would like to again congratulate the First Elected Member for George Town, and the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town for having risen to the point of getting an agreement from Government to support this legislation without debate. Thank you.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? If not, does the mover wish to exercise his right of reply? The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you.

This is one of those rare occasions, but thank God they still do occur. I would first of all like to thank all Members who spoke. Noticeably, all Members have spoken in support of the motion. And I am certain that even the Official Members and others here who may not have spoken are in total support of the motion. Of course, I am reminded that I should mention my other colleagues on the Backbench who, not because they have not spoken on this occasion, certainly were a big part and parcel of putting the motion together, talking about it, and deciding upon the course of action. I think that, in itself, bodes well for the future this country.

Mr. Speaker, just to look at the motion itself and try to spread it a little bit more, let me say this: In discussions with both the Minister and the Director of Planning, it has come to my attention that there are some other areas which are propelled by the effect in these two areas. It has been observed that there are some other problems which exist with some of the regulations as they now stand with the amendments.

I would simply like to voice the opinion of the Backbench here by saying to the Government that what we would now like to see is: Rather than limit any amendments to the regulations by only dealing with what the motion calls for, as they have so voiced, I would ask for them to use the expertise which the Fourth Elected Member for George Town referred to in his contribution. And to look at all the various areas that may need amendments to bring them in line with the reality of certain circumstances which prevail now. Perhaps in very short order (and I do trust that we will get that commitment), the Government will be bringing back amending legislation to these regulations with a view to correcting not only anomalies but situations which need to be corrected in order for the continuing progress for the ordinary people in this country.

It is important whenever creating legislation to ensure that the legislation we are putting forward is legislation which will benefit as many as possible in the society and in the various communities. Perhaps this time, without getting into any acrimonious debate as others have said before, let us all take this as a lesson for the learning and whenever legislation is being proposed perhaps more communication in the future before legislation is actually passed with everybody getting a chance to give their opinion might bode well for the results. Maybe we will not have to go through as many corrections. Having said that, I still think it is good that we have recognised that and are all moving in the same direction to correct that situation.

Mr. Speaker, once again I commend the motion, and I am justly proud of my colleagues on the Backbench who are in total support of the motion and recognise the need for these amendments. While it is a very rare occasion for me, I actually have to say thank you to the Government that we did not have to fight over it. I notice the Minister's eyes are opening wide, but I do surprise him every now and again.

Rather than prolong the debate any further I would just like to close off by saying once more that we look forward to speedy action and the necessary amendments being brought back to the Legislative Assembly via the Governor in Council, and as soon as that is possible we would like to see the matter cleared up. Thank you.

The Speaker: I will now put the question on Private Member's Motion No. 22/98 Amendment to the Development and Planning Regulations. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 22/98 PASSED.

The Speaker: I think this would be a convenient time to take the luncheon break. Proceedings are suspended until 2.30 PM.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 1.05 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.55 PM

The Speaker: Proceedings are resumed. Please be seated. Private Member's Motion No. 19/98. Loud Music on Public Beaches. The First Elected Member for West Bay.

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 19/98

LOUD MUSIC ON PUBLIC BEACHES

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Mr. Speaker, I beg to move Private Member's Motion No.19/98. Loud Music on Public Beaches, standing in my name which reads:

"WHEREAS Public Beaches are provided for the enjoyment of the general public, and community oriented functions;

"AND WHEREAS it is public knowledge that the use of these facilities is being abused, particularly on weekends, but more so on Sundays, with extremely loud music;

"BE IT RESOLVED THAT Government take immediate steps to stop this sort of abuse by putting in place the necessary regulations."

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: I beg to second the motion.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No.19/98, having been duly moved and seconded is now open for debate. The Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The motion before the House asks that Government do something about the outrageous activity of very loud music that is now taking place on public beaches. It could never be said that I don't want people to enjoy themselves. But that should be done with some civility and with due consideration for other people around.

For some time now I have been receiving complaints from all around the Island. But I am more familiar with the two public beaches in the West Bay area, that is, the public beach on Seven Mile Beach Road, and the public beach which exists in West Bay, itself. Time and time again I have observed, especially on Sunday, what I think is outrageously loud music. I have received complaints from neighbors of the beaches in the case of the public beach on West Bay Road; complaints from people way up in Governors Sound, complaints from people using the beach. Mr. Speaker, it has become a complete nuisance to the longtime residents of Harbour House Condominiums, some of which are elderly folks.

Mr. Speaker, I have personally gone and asked these people to turn down the music. This music is coming from speakers so big that it takes a truck to bring them to the beach! Beaches have been provided by Government sometimes in conjunction with the public for the enjoyment of the general public. But it certainly cannot mean that any one group, or person, can play music so loud that it is a nuisance to everybody else.

Certainly, a person with a little radio or tape player, cassette, playing on his beach towel or his little corner somewhere on the beach is not something that we are complaining about. However, when people use a truck to bring speakers . . .this is not a casual enjoyment. This is set up for fête, a big party. I am not saying that is bad, but I am saying that we cannot allow everybody to be disturbed.

This loud music is not only disturbing on beaches, but it is ridiculous when we see vehicles shaking because of the bass in the music. It is a real nuisance, and I believe it is dangerous. Sometimes when you see the car coming you can hear the music but you can't see the person because the person is so laid-back, sometimes with one foot out the window. I have to wonder what that person is thinking about! He does not realise that he is dealing with a motor vehicle. He has no regard for the general public.

I have been in cemeteries, at funerals, and have heard 'booming' coming across with no regard for anybody. I think it is time that the Government—and they have heard enough complaints because we have complained about this in this legislature before—make strong regulations to deal with this matter. A $5000 fine would make them stop and think and have some respect for other people.

For instance, I understand that in California there is a regulation where offenders have their radio or tape cassette taken away if the music is heard ten feet away. The Motion deals specifically with public beaches, but there has to be something done about the music on the roads and music where it is not licensed. This is not a licensed place when we talk about public beaches.

Mr. Speaker, the Government needs to act on this, and I would hope that we could be on all fours with this matter and that they will quickly do something about this extremely loud and obnoxious music. And, Mr. Speaker, if you could call it music sometimes! It sounds more like grunting, and sometimes it goes still. It is just something—Oo-Oo—I never heard anything like that in my life called music!

I love a good time as much as anybody, and I am not one to tell people not have a good time. But it has to be done with some civility and with due consideration of others around. I would hope that the Government can accept this, Mr. Speaker. Thank you.

The Speaker: The floor is open to debate, does any other Member wish to speak? The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

As seconder of this motion, Loud Music on Public Beaches, I rise to give my support. There is very little more that I can say, that the mover of this motion has not covered very ably in his introduction.

I, too, have had similar complaints in the district of North Side from my constituents concerning the nuisance of loud music at public beaches, particularly the Kaibo Beach in the Rum Point area. I know that Beach was developed to be used by the people of the district of North Side. Not saying that we were not allowing members of other districts to come and enjoy the facility. It was developed to promote family functions where families could go enjoy themselves on a Sunday afternoon or Saturday. But now it is totally out of control.

The mover of the motion referred to what I call 'boom boxes' that are being transported to these public beaches, and the excessive loud noise that is being emitted from them. The people of these islands were raised to respect Sunday afternoon. I was raised that way and I consider that a part of my culture. We were raised that on Sunday afternoon it was rest or visit with family. I think that we as parliamentarians should do as much as we can to keep this culture in these islands for our grandchildren and their children.

We have on the Law books of these Islands a Law called the Towns and Communities Law. Section 12 of that Law reads:

"Any person who makes any noise in any town or district which is likely to cause annoyance or discomfort to any inhabitant of that town or district, after having been required by a constable to desist from making such noise, is guilty of an offence and liable upon summary conviction to a fine of five hundred dollars for a first conviction, a fine of one thousand dollars for a second conviction and a fine of five thousand dollars and imprisonment for six months for a third or subsequent conviction."

My question is, If we have the legislation that reads so clearly--and I am certain that the police have had constant reports and complaints-- why are we not enforcing the legislation already on the books in these islands?

I read from Section 13 of these regulations, and I will start with subsection (2):

"For the purposes of this section the Governor in Council may by regulations prescribe- (a) levels of noise for the purposes of subsection (1), measured in decibels; (b) methods of measurement of noise; and (c) without prejudice to paragraph (b), machines for measuring the level of noise."

My question is, If we have been having constant complaints about the noise levels coming from our public beaches particularly, why have regulations not been put in place to govern subsection (2) whereby the police can measure the levels of noise, the methods of measurement of noise, and so forth?

Under that same Section 13, subsection (3), it reads: "Any person who fails to comply with the request of a constable or an environmental health officer made under subsection (1) is guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to a fine of five hundred dollars for a first conviction, a fine of one thousand dollars for a second conviction and a fine of five thousand dollars and imprisonment for six months for a third or any subsequent conviction."

Section 14 says, "Upon conviction of an offence under section 12 or 13, in addition to any other penalty provided, the Court may order forfeiture of any equipment or device used in the commission of the offence."

I feel the Law covers this subject very well. But, as the mover said, we now need to have in place regulations that will put a stop to the abuse in public places. These regulations, in my humble opinion, have now become a priority and should be brought into effect as soon as possible.

The mover of the motion also spoke about loud music in motor cars. This, too, has come to my attention in my district, particularly by the elderly people. They are awakened from their sleep at night with this loud music in motor cars. Some of the speakers in these motor cars are sometimes even bigger than the car itself! I say there is no need for such equipment to be installed in motor vehicles in these islands.

I remember when I was going to the North Side Town Hall School we had a headmaster, a Mr. Fray from Jamaica. One evening we were passing a church where a service was being held, and, being schoolchildren we were singing the song which I am sure is well-known to all Members of the Parliament, "Good Night Irene". The next morning Mr. Fray became aware of this, and each one of us who was involved was asked to come to his desk. In those days the strap was in the school and you put your hand out and took a strapping. Until this day if I am passing a church and I am in a motor car with the radio on, whether I am driving or one of my children is driving, my first instinct is to turn the volume down on the music.

Maybe it is time to give these young people some counselling. I had to speak very strongly to one of my children about the same thing. And at the end he understood because his doctor told him that he was losing the hearing in his left ear, which was the ear nearest the speaker in his motor car.

I think that someone needs to start counselling these young people on the use of loud music, particularly in their vehicles. If we continue as we are now the next generation will probably be deaf and will cost this Government a lot of money to assist them in making a livelihood.

So I have great pleasure in supporting this Motion and even though I am the seconder I would ask the Government to support this motion and let us start doing something about this problem before it gets any bigger.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak?

The Honourable Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: The Government is quite happy to accept the motion as it shares the concerns which have been expressed. Certainly the facilities that are provided for the public are not provided with the intention that they should be monopolised by any individual. Attention will be given to the areas of existing legislation, or additional legislation which may need to be introduced. It certainly seems like an area in which deterrent penalties may need to be prescribed because it is a matter that we really need to have police officers or any other enforcement officers chasing people around and warning them.

So, I give the House my assurance that the Government will look at the matter and that Members can expect to have some substantial response and action taken in the not-too-distant future. Thank you.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I rise to give my support to Private Member's Motion No. 19/98, on the subject of Loud Music on Public Beaches. In so doing I wish to congratulate the mover and the seconder for this very good motion. For many years I too have been concerned with this developing problem within our community, mainly because we are a peace-loving and law-abiding society; a disciplined society where this type of behavior is neither accepted nor appreciated.

I have to say that I am also concerned that even though the Law makes provision for dealing with this type of nuisance that this has thus far not been given the level of attention it should have been given. I am pleased to hear the Temporary Acting First Official Member say that he will look into ways and means of providing any form of amendment necessary to deal with this problem.

Freedom of action is guaranteed within our community and within our Islands. This is one of the democratic processes that we enjoy. But with that freedom of action comes responsibility and accountability for that action. These 'boom boxes' (or whatever they're called) are an unwanted introduction into our society. I do not have a problem with the young people or any group of individuals playing music, provided it is kept under control and is not played so loudly that it becomes a nuisance not only to other people enjoying our beaches and public places, but indeed, to people within their own residential quarters. I, too, have been on the West Bay Beach Road and heard loud noises coming from some of these 'boom boxes'.

Also of concern to me is the loud music coming from some of the cars being driven on our roads. In this connection, though perhaps not directly relevant, I would nonetheless like to raise this so that the Honourable Temporary Acting First Official Member may take note, and no doubt bring it to the attention of the Commissioner of Police.

There is another very bad habit developing on our roads in addition to the loud music, and that is the stopping of cars in the center of the road to pass the time of day with their friends when they see them. This must also stop. It is something that we cannot condone. It shows a lack of discipline from the drivers, and is certainly a new situation for these islands. I trust that the police will be more vigilant and will stop this habit in addition to the subject matter of this motion.

I trust that regulations to stop this abuse will be made within the not-too-distant future, and that Government will certainly move on this motion in what it hopes to obtain as quickly as possible. Thank you.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Like many other speakers who have gone before, I too have listened to a number of complaints from members of the public about loud noises, not only on public beaches, but within cars, as well as at parties in other parts the island. I remember as a teenager I certainly enjoyed having parties, and I enjoyed having music. But I had respect for neighbors. And I believe that as representatives of the people we must ensure that that respect remains prominent in our minds—'our' meaning the Cayman Islands.

Quite frankly, I believe 'boom boxes' are foreign to the Caymanian way of life. I certainly believe that if the regulations are inadequate today (and I say "if inadequate" because I did not have sufficient time to check it properly) then they should be enhanced to allow the police to deal with this situation in a very effective way.

The member for North Side mentioned fines. Perhaps there is always the need to give verbal warnings before you begin to effect some charge, meaning the police charging someone with the first offence. It is my personal opinion that the fines are inadequate; they are not a deterrent to some who use music to these levels. I certainly believe, as I have said more than once in this House, that there is no problem in the Cayman Islands so large, so complex, so much of a nuisance, that if we all work together we cannot solve. I believe that it is time to solve this one.

People have been complaining for years and we have been reporting those complaints to the relevant authority in this land. Granted, the regulations and the law are not sufficient to deal with it effectively. I am in full support of amending the law, if necessary, and amending the regulations to deal with this particular maker.

We know what happens. These 'boom boxes' are turned on at the public beach, and I have received many complaints from residents of Harbour Heights Condominiums. We call the police, and the police appear. They talk to the individual, they then turn down the volume, and the minute the police are outside of hearing distance the volume goes back to where it was before. I believe that we should arm the police with sufficient authority to deal with that maker on the spot to confiscate the equipment necessary.

Mr. Speaker, the harmony in this community is something all of us must be sure is not taken for granted, must be sure that we will stand up and fight for verbally or otherwise. I believe when it comes to the Sabbath no 'boom boxes' should be allowed in this country—private party or what ever it may be. No 'boom boxes' in this country!

We have enough history about the residents of the Cayman Islands and the effect of religion and discipline to say "I am my brother's keeper," to say that I have a responsibility to be a good neighbor, to be a good citizen. I say today let us commit ourselves to that process and whatever regulation needs to be done let us do it. Whatever amendment to the Law needs to be done let us commit ourselves to supporting it, and let us ensure that we support the police when they carry out the effects of the Law. Thank you very much.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: In rising to speak to this motion to limit the noise which results from playing loud music on public beaches, I would like to say that I have the greatest sympathy for the people at Harbour Heights and those adjoining areas of the public beach.

I also have a great sympathy for my Aunt Verta who lives on Mary Street and who calls me very often complaining about the music that comes from the bar across the street because they do not close their door and people hang out there during the evening on Mary Street next to A. Steve McField's office and make noise. I have been to the police myself to complain. I have been to the Liquor Licensing Board to complain, and she has made complaints and had Mr. Green come over and listen. There doesn't seem to be very much that can be done. I was very frustrated by the fact that I could do absolutely nothing to alleviate the suffering that this old lady has to bear.

There is a lot of talk about our culture, tolerance and different things like that. I would just like to remind some persons that I am in sympathy with this motion. But we also have to see that when we have Pirate's Week and Botabano, and people marching behind floats and dancing and jumping up to loud music; when we have district functions in North Side, East End and West Bay, where loud music becomes a very central part of the happening— to see young people come out and participate and jump up with loud music that we have been having in this country for all these years, then there is no strange reason why young people also want to have loud music.

So it is important for us to also understand that things we allow to happen in this country, things that we promote in this country also assist young people in believing that loud music is okay.

One knows that if you have a Department of Tourism function in North Side and you have it at the public beach, where I went to one when I was first elected, and there was a band playing loud music (loud, as far as I was concerned), functions like that. . . when you go to the Lions Centre and you have loud music there, . . . somehow it seems like it is not loud music we are talking about. We are not talking about the 'boom boxes' not being a part of Caymanian culture because neither is the telephone or the automobile. What we are talking about is how people use these things without a certain amount of responsibility and how we can get people to be more responsible in the use of these things.

I was just thinking that when the First Elected Member for West Bay gets up to [wind up] that he might be able to say something in regard to what happen in the case when some people want to have a party at a beach. Would that be allowed? Just like the Department for Tourism having a party in North Side, or just like Pirate's Week happening in central George Town or in the Heritage Village in West Bay where loud music is being played in a public place.

What we need to bear in mind when making laws and regulations is that we should show an objectivity. I am not saying that no one here has done that, I am just trying to make that abundantly clear, that, as necessary, because I am making the point that we have on the Law with regard to the Towns and Communities Law, as the Elected Member for North Side stated, regulations and prescriptions already in the Law to deal with noises emanating from different premises. I have not really seen that carried through to an effective level, as I gave the case of my Aunt Verta being disturbed on Mary Street.

Somehow, whether or not it be Harbour Heights, London House, Mary Street, Shedden Road, Vernice Avenue in Windsor Park, or Sunday or Monday; wherever it is we have to be willing to give the police the type of encouragement and the type of support in enforcing these Laws. That is where the breakdown comes. Not in the Law itself, but in the enforcement.

When the police go into a lot of these areas, the people gang up on them and they are not able to carry out their responsibilities. So we are making the policing of noise a policing problem by legislation rather than seeing the other sociological factors, or the other community dynamics at play here. The police will find themselves in situations like when they were going around and stopping these sessions and confiscating material. In some cases the police were actually stoned because when people are listening to music they are usually consuming alcohol. Many persons are intoxicated and there is a group type of dynamics at work there. If it is not handled well by the police, it could cause certain types of grave disorder.

I am basically saying that I perceive part of the problem being in the lack of expertise as to how best to police the problem and therefore to limit the nuisance which noise causes. It is a nice feeling, especially on Sunday when one doesn't have to listen to this noise. In my neighbourhood when people turn on music, especially on Sunday, I go to them and say, 'Look, this is the Cayman Islands. Today is Sunday. I recognise that it is Sunday because of the quiet peacefulness.' And in preserving it not just for ourselves, but for visitors, we have to maintain this particular environment. But we cannot lose sight of the fact that there are many young people in our society that would become almost riotous if they were approached in a particular manner while they were enjoying their particular right to come together collectively in some public location.

If they are not all going to be able to fit into one place at their home, they might not all even come together at the homes, we don't have a community centre in George Town. We don't have any place where young people can have any type of dances or functions in George Town. We don't have a community centre in George Town. There is no place where they can play music in George Town that is enclosed. What happens if you would go to Central Park off Shedden Road where we recently had a function, and music was being played? What if someone called and complained?

So, a certain amount of understanding for the fact that people will play loud music at times is necessary.

And the question is then, Where should they be able to play this loud music, and under what type of conditions should that exist? We certainly do not want to appear as if we are trying to be unfair to one segment of the community that has a slightly different social/cultural pattern.

I support the attempt by the First Elected Member for West Bay to see that something is done to limit the amount of noise on public beaches, but I also bring to the attention of the House that if young people, in particular, in this country are prevented from coming together and listening to music in such a way as they enjoy it, while at the same time we allow Pirate's Week to continue, where loud music is played, and Batabano, to parade up and down where loud music is played, we are operating double standards. Maybe when we ban loud music we should be banning Pirate's Week and Batabano at the same time.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I rise to support the Private Member's Motion calling for some control in regard to the loud playing of music on public beaches. One of the first pieces of legislation that I recall dealing with after being elected in 1988, was the amendment to the Towns and Communities Law that attempted to control the issue of loud music in this country. We discussed this on and off with the police and we still continue to get the same excuse—that they need a machine that is capable of measuring the decibels and determining what level of decibel is considered loud music, or a nuisance.

They have had ten years to try to determine what the decibel level should be, and ten years to find a piece of equipment that is necessary for the police to determine the level of the music. I have gotten calls one o'clock and two o'clock in the morning, I have gotten calls on Sunday afternoons from constituents in regard to this problem, that is, loud music. What I have observed on a personal basis is that the majority of the people who are the cause of this nuisance are not Caymanians, on the weekend, and particularly a Sunday evening.

I have had to call the police (on behalf of constituents) and ask them to go to certain areas of the District, or to the public beach, to ask persons playing the loud music to turn it down. By the time the police leave all they do is turn it back up. So I call again. I believe it is time for us in this country to say that we have laws on our books, and those people who totally disregard the Law should be penalised.

The Law calls for certain fines for noncompliance, and I believe it is time for us to start implementing it by issuing some tickets. I guarantee that if one of these abusers is given a ticket for $5000, as is the maximum called for under this Law (that is the Towns and Communities Law) chances of having a problem with that person next time are very slim.

I propose to mention to the Minister of Tourism in regard to our district public beach in West Bay that we post certain rules on the premises regarding what is acceptable and what is not. The authorities should be able to deal with persons failing to comply with the rules by removing them or confiscating whatever equipment they have.

The mover, the First Elected Member for West Bay, also mentioned the nuisance of 'boom boxes' in cars. That is a problem. In my district I have experienced one of my constituents calling me at two o'clock in the morning saying, "John, I want you to just open your window and listen." The abuser was some 300 or 400 yards away and I could hear it as plain as if it were next door to me.

Mr. Speaker, there is nothing wrong with playing music, but not everybody has to hear the music you are playing. I believe that is the message that we need to get across to the general public; that is the message that we need to get across to people who have decided to live among us, and it is a message that we also need to get out to our young people. They can play music without it being a nuisance to everybody else.

I trust that since Government has agreed to address this issue that we can look forward to it being addressed in a very prompt manner. Thank you.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I support this motion and I endorse a lot of what has been said here today. The loud music, not just on public beaches, but generally, is a real nuisance. It is something that law-abiding citizens really do not want to have. It has been mainly on public beaches a real disruption. But, as the mover mentioned, for example, sometimes one is at a funeral, or at a church on Sunday and there is very loud music from cars going by.

I have had a bit of time to look at this since the Member for North Side read the Towns and Communities Law, and the penalty in section 12 (and I agree with the Minister for Tourism on this) needs to be increased. Section 12 which the Member for North Side read, provides one substantive offence where if there is noise which causes annoyance or discomfort to an inhabitant, once the police constable requires them to desist from making the noise and they continue they are guilty of an offence.

Also, under section 14 there is power to forfeit equipment or device used in the commission of the offence. That in itself I think once people know this, people will be very careful. Many times that equipment is very expensive. I have seen it being taken down to the public beach in trucks, very large speakers.

The part relating to the regulations... we will be happy, as the Minister for Tourism and the Temporary Acting First Official Member have said, to do whatever may be necessary for that further section. But I think at present, while we can tighten a Law, the substantive offence under Section 12, while brought into Section 14, a lot more could be done in relation to it.

To be frank, the loudness of some of those speakers, I don't think there is any instrument that can go high enough to measure it. You actually feel it shaking—

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Your body?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Yeah, right!

So, while I think we can do more, and are happy to do more, and I, for one, anything I can do to have this noise reduced all over, in fact, I will be very happy to do. I commend the mover and the seconder on this.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I will be quite brief, but I would like to say that I too believe the time has come when we must do something to deal with the problem which all of us are very well aware of. As the last speaker said, it is a fact. Sometimes I wonder about the emergency vehicles. Sometimes they are in the same area as the, what we term, 'boom boxes' are and it is ridiculous to know that persons have no respect for even emergency vehicles. It worries me that if I am in my vehicle and I can hear what's going on, . . . it means that the person in the other vehicle is definitely out of whack.

In regard to the public beaches, I think the mover of this motion is very well in order because we need to deal with this. It is completely out of hand. I know that Government has tried to correct one part of it, but we must continue to do whatever is necessary to curtail this. I give it my full support.

The Speaker: I think that every Member has spoken. Would the mover like to exercise his right of reply?

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you.

I would like to thank my seconder for her support, in fact for her having researched the Law and making the contribution she did, and all other Members for their support. I am glad that Government is on all fours with us on this matter.

It is really ridiculous to see sometimes young persons purchase cars and take their backseat out and install big speakers. I have seen that here in this island. It is not a matter of stopping the young people from doing something they want to do; it's because a lot of times they are doing things that hurt themselves. The best thing that any legislator could do is to tell them that, rather than agree with them.

The one dissenting voice, I guess, was the Fourth Elected Member for George Town who said there is no strange reason why young people want to do it if we promote Batabano, and Lions Centre functions. I think we have taken it way out of context, and I think he knows that but he is doing that to be unreasonable.

We do have Batabano, we do have Pirate's Week and the Lions Centre does have functions at times. This is done in a different manner. Sometimes the West Bay

Cultural Centre has music, and some people will complain. But it is not as offensive as what we are complaining about. One thing it is not—it is never done on a Sunday. You don't see Batabano on a Sunday. You don't see the Lions Centre having a function on a Sunday unless it is a gospel concert or wedding. You don't see the Pirate's Week held on a Sunday. Those days are all different days. If the Fourth Elected Member for George Town wants to talk about objectivity, then he should take that into consideration. There is no objectivity—

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, on a point of clarification.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Is the Member implying that I said that these functions take place on Sundays?

The Speaker: I did not understand that. But maybe he can clarify that.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Of course, I did not say he said that, because he didn't say that. What he complained about was that we were allowing those things to happen while we were complaining about the young people having loud music on a Sunday. I am only telling him that those functions—Pirate's Week, Batabano, Lions Centre, in fact, even the West Bay Cultural Centre, there is no function like that on a Sunday. That is all I am saying to him.

The Member mentioned being objective. There is no objectivity for young people or old people with big boxes, as big as a room on a Sunday afternoon just to hang around. There is no objectivity in that. If they want to hang around on the public beach with some music, I am not saying that they cannot do that. But they can play volleyball. The truth is that these big boxes breed a lot of other things. This music has a certain culture. I talked about this before too. I don't agree with it because it is not something that is breeding anything constructive in this country.

They can go to the beach and play volleyball and hang around and listen to their music, but without the music being so loud. It affects others. And the Fourth Elected Member for George Town knows that. The truth is, that Member cannot talk as if. . . . Look, Mr. Speaker, if the Member continues insulting me I will deal with him accordingly. If he has a problem, then he had better keep that problem to himself.

I am not going to let him break my train of thought. There is really no good cause for any Member to get up in this House and carry on as if there are no constructive things for young people to do in this country. I maintain that there are a lot of constructive things to do without just hanging around, whether it is on the beach or street corner to listen to loud music. I certainly do not appreciate it, and I am not going to encourage it on a Sunday afternoon, or any time, but especially on a Sunday afternoon.

How best to police it... and he is much afraid that these things could cause riotous problems. Ha! I would hope not. That is all I can say, and I hope that nobody would encourage it. There is no cause for young people on a Sunday afternoon to play this kind of offensively loud music.

Nobody else, and I challenge anybody in this House, supports the young people more than I do. But we must not just support them and agree with all that they do. We must teach them that things can be wrong and we must make them understand that it is not just because a group wants to play their music or do something that that must be acceptable to the entire population. If anyone wants to be objective, let them say to the young people when there is a law for the benefit of the entire community, and if you can't live within the law, whether you like it or not, then you will have to stand the consequences. That is what responsible legislators do for young people.

I have been in Executive Council, and not just in Executive Council, but from the time I could work, I have done things in the community with the young people and for the young people. But I have never made them believe that all they want to do is right. It is just like my own child—I have to say 'No' at times. 'That is not what I support. That is not what I want you to do. That is not something that is good for you.' You don't allow them to do it just because they want to do it.

Mr. Speaker, the Fourth Elected Member for George Town also asked if I could explain if the young people would be allowed to have a party if they want to. Certainly! But within reason. I am not here asking Government to put a draconian piece of legislation in place that stops everybody from having a good time. I explained that in the beginning. I should ask, the Fourth Elected Member for George Town to ask himself if he would want loud music constantly by a party, or otherwise, by his house.

I believe that we are being objective in trying to curtail extremely loud music that pervades. I think it is building into a kind of culture that is foreign to this country. It is not something that breeds anything constructive. As I said, when you listen to the music you have to wonder if it is music! You would have to put it on slow motion to understand it! [Inaudible comments] I don't think that we can say that all of it is constructive. Listen to the words. They are very offensive at times. It breeds a kind of culture that we don't want. I said that a long time ago. I know there are people who don't agree, but I believe that it is breeding something. That is why we are having certain problems at school, because we allow it to go on. We should stop it because it is not something that we are used to!

I don't think I need to take this any further. But I will say to make it absolutely clear, in case anybody got misled in the House or listening, that we are not saying or asking for legislation to be put in place that stops any young person, or anybody else, from enjoying themselves. I am saying that public beaches are set up for the enjoyment of everybody. You must be civil about it. If you go there you must realise that other people go there and they want to enjoy themselves. Sometimes it is just for peace and relaxation. I don't always go to the beach to bathe, I go to sit and relax. It is good for you.

So, Mr. Speaker, I am glad that Government has accepted the motion. The Honourable Temporary Acting First Official Member said that there would be something done quickly about it.

The Speaker: I will now put the question on Private Member's Motion No. 19/98, Loud Music on Public Beaches. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 19/98 PASSED.

The Speaker: Is it the wish of the House to continue until 4.30, or do you want to take the break? Continue? Okay. Private Member's Motion No. 20/98, Award of Government Contracts to be moved by the Third Elected Member of West Bay.

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 20/98

AWARD OF GOVERNMENT CONTRACTS

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: I am pleased to move Private Member's Motion No. 20/98, Award of Government Contracts which reads:

"WHEREAS the Financial and Stores Regulations requires that all Government Contracts in excess of CIS100,000.00 are handled by the Central Tenders Committee to ensure competitive bidding and the best value for money;

"AND WHEREAS the Financial and Stores Regulations do not require that all materials, equipment and services to fulfil Government contracts are sourced locally, which put local establishments at a tremendous financial disadvantage as these services are sourced overseas;

"BE IT NOW THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT Government consider amending the Financial and Stores Regulations requiring, as much as possible, that all materials, equipment and services required to fulfil Government contracts are sourced locally ensuring quality and at a competitive price."

The Speaker: Is there a seconder? The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: I am pleased to second the motion.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 20/98 having been duly moved and seconded is now open for debate. The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

In the Bible there is a story that was told by Jesus himself. It basically goes this way, Mr. Speaker: There was a rich man dressed in purple, who fared sumptuously, financially and otherwise, everyday. And there was a poor beggar who was dressed in rags covered from head to foot with sores, and was content to be fed from the crumbs that fell from the rich man's table on a daily basis.

I mention that little story to make a point. The point is, Mr. Speaker, that in this country today things are going very well financially and otherwise. But there are still some of our people out there who are just getting the crumbs—the economic crumbs that are left by those who control commerce in this country. It is our responsibility as elected representatives to ensure that people at all levels of our society, regardless of their calling in life, or their occupation, that they all benefit from the economic success that we have in this country.

Since 1992, that is, since the National Team Government was elected, certain things have been done that have improved the competitive chances of many of our local small contractors in assisting them to be able to compete in regard to being awarded Government contracts. For example, I am aware that Executive Council, after it was discussed by the elected representatives, did make a decision to waive the performance bond on many of the Government contracts which were awarded. That allowed the average local Caymanian contractor to bid on a Government contract of a sizable financial sum, and be in a position where he at least had the possibility of being awarded that contract.

What happened before this was that major contractors (and we all know who they are, there are about two or three of them today) who are able to bid on the contracts, who are able to say Government, 'If you give me the contract, I not only have the ability to get it done, but I can finance it.' In other words, they have the resources to finance it themselves. A lot of our local contractors were not in that position. So by waiving the performance bond requirement, it greatly assisted the local contractors. I do thank Government for making that decision.

The other thing that I have noted since 1992, is that since we had a Government of which some other strong Backbenchers and I were a part of, that the award and the distribution of smaller Government contracts, housing repair, housing construction and that type of thing, are a little bit more fairly distributed among our local contractors. This speaks well of any government. I am one of those representatives who feels very strongly that all persons in this country, especially the local persons, have a right to earn an honest living.

As the motion mentions, the Public and Finance Audit Law and its Regulations do require that all Government contracts in excess of CI $100,000 (Cayman Islands dollars) are subject to the Central Tenders process. There are a number of reasons for this. First of all, it allows members of the public who are capable of fulfilling these contracts to be able to bid on the contracts, and it also ensures that Government gets value for money spent, by being able to look at different bids and making an objective decision as to which one it will accept.

Mr. Speaker, I think the Central Tenders Committee process has worked very well in the country. But what this motion seeks to address--and we are all guilty of
