this, on a private basis as well as Government--is that when we want something done, rather than looking to see whether or not it can all be done or obtained locally at a fair price, the first thing we think about is picking up the telephone and making some contact in Miami, or getting on the plane and flying over there to make arrangements, so that all we need by way of building materials and furnishings and that kind of thing, is purchased overseas.

I think Government needs to set an example. By that, I mean they need to lead by example. By that, I mean there is no reason, and to a certain extent there are not a lot of changes needing to be done because once a Government contract is awarded, whoever gets that contract normally farms out the services associated with that contract or that project to smaller contractors, subcontracts for maybe the electrical side of it, the plumbing side of it, and all of the other areas associated with the project.

But when it comes to sourcing in particular building materials, sourcing furnishings and equipment, there is a tendency to not, in my opinion, . . . and the reason why I am bringing this motion is because I have been approached by a number of local persons who are in business supplying those services that I am talking about. In their minds, they don't get a fair chance of bidding on providing the equipment or furnishings because the contractor goes overseas and makes his own arrangements. And I'm not saying that we should give it to the local contractor just because he is local; the local contractor has to be in a position where he can provide the service, the equipment or the furnishings at a competitive price. So, Mr. Speaker, I do not want to hear the argument that if you allow it to be sourced through local establishments that it will cost Government more. That is not my argument, and not the intention of this motion.

In order to be in business we have to be competitive and I believe that the local establishments that are in a position to provide the services must be given preferential priority in regard to bidding on these services, being in a position where they can realistically expect to be awarded these services and go ahead and fulfill that part of the contract.

Now, Mr. Speaker, I am not an economist, but we are all aware that if money is spent and circulates in the local economy we are much better off than if the money goes out of the country. I would just like to give an example of what I am talking about: Government is in the process of completing a major project, that is, the George Town Government Hospital. We boast of spending somewhere in the region of $28 million on that project. I am aware that the contractor (which I think is Hadsphaltic) has done a very good job in bringing the project online, and basically on time. But with a project that size, for example, in expenditure on cabinets in the rooms and offices, and that kind of thing, you are talking maybe $1 million to $1.5 million. If a local establishment--and we have a few here that are capable of providing that service--had been given the opportunity to be awarded that contract, it would be a boost to the local establishment. There is a lot of competition and local establishments need all the help they can get in order to survive financially.

The other contract that I understand went overseas, was the contract for the furnishings. We are talking about beds, chairs and desks--lots of furnishings, probably in the region of $2 million to $3 million in furnishings alone, necessary for that hospital. I understand that once again, even though the local boys tried to negotiate to have an opportunity to get that contract, it went overseas to some source that was available to the contractor.

I, personally, do not think that is fair. Here we have local establishments that pay their company fees every year, their licence fees, rent, or a mortgage for even being in business, and they have a huge overhead in regard to salaries and other administrative costs. Even Government is not in a position to say, 'Gentleman (or ladies, whoever is in business), we recognise your value to our economy and to the revenue of this century. We are going to make sure that at least you benefit by getting some of the money that Government spends here on major projects.' I believe that this would be a step in the right direction because I believe that charity begins at home.

We must do everything within our means to ensure that the local economy and local community benefit from the financial success that we enjoy in this country. I am suggesting that consideration be given to strengthening or amending the respective regulations and the law to ensure that there is a requirement that at least the local establishments interested in bidding on providing the services mentioned, have an opportunity, realistically, to bid and expect to be awarded those contracts.

Mr. Speaker, I trust that Government accepts this motion with the intention with which it is being brought, and I look forward to hearing Government's views on this issue. Thank you, sir.

The Speaker: We have approximately three minutes to go. Would you want to adjourn at this time, or does some other Member wish to speak? (pause) I will entertain a motion for the adjournment.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Boddin: Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until 10.00 AM tomorrow.

The Speaker: The question is that this Honourable House do now adjourn until 10.00 AM tomorrow. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AT 4.27 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM FRIDAY, 18 SEPTEMBER 1998.

FRIDAY
18 SEPTEMBER 1998
10.40 AM

[Prayers by the Third Elected Member for George Town]

The Speaker: Members, please remain standing. Item number 2 on Today's Order Paper, Administration of Oath of Allegiance to Mr. Samuel Bulgin, Solicitor General, to be the Honourable Temporary Acting Second Official Member.

Mr. Bulgin, would you please come forward to the Clerk's table to take the Oath?

ADMINISTRATION OF OATHS
OR AFFIRMATIONS

OATH OF ALLEGIANCE

Mr. Samuel Buglin, Solicitor General

Hon. Samuel Bulgin: I, Samuel Bulgin, do swear that I will be faithful and bear true allegiance to Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II, her heirs and successors according to law. So help me God.

The Speaker: Mr. Bulgin, please take your seat as the Honourable Temporary Acting Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration. On behalf of all Honourable Members, I welcome you for the time of your service here. Please be seated.

Item number 3, Reading by the Speaker of Messages and Announcements.

READING BY THE SPEAKER OF
MESSAGES AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: We have received apologies for absence from the Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration and from the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture who are both off the Island on official business; also, from the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay who is in hospital in Miami, Florida, USA, and from the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town who is sick.

Item number 4 on today's Order Paper, Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. Question 137 is standing in the name of the Elected Member for North Side.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION 137

No. 137: Mrs. Edna Moyle asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation if fees are collected for services rendered at district clinics.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes. Fees for services rendered to non-exempt patients at district Health Centres are charged in accordance with the Health Services Fees Law, 1993. However, a significant number of patients who receive services at the Health Centres are exempt from payment of fees as provided in the exemption provisions of the 1993 Fees Law.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Just so I can understand, can the Honourable Minister tell me how this exemption provision of the 1993 Fees Law reads?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: That is a good supplementary. Civil Servants and their dependants, Government pensioners, veterans, members of the Veterans and Seamen's Society in Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, members of the Cayman Islands Seamen's Association, mental health patients, prisoners and indigents.

The Speaker: The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Would the Honourable Minister say if there have been any concerns as to fees not being collected at these district clinics for persons other than those he has just mentioned?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Some very diligent people in the Community have recently brought this to the Minister's attention and we will be looking at this situation.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries we will go on to question 138, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 138

No. 138: Miss Heather Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works what penalties, if any, have been imposed on owners of animals that run loose on the streets and cause damage to property and are there any systems in place to contain such animals when found.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: The Department of Agriculture catches and impounds large animals (cattle and horses) which are found straying in public areas and on public (sic) [private] property at the requests of property owners. These animals are held at the Department's facilities at Lower Valley for a period of seven days while attempts are made to contact the owner. If claimed, the owner is fined an impound fee of $25, plus a daily maintenance fee of $10 for each of his animals impounded. If no claims are made after seven days, the animals are advertised for sale in the Official Gazette and in the media and are sold by public auction.

Small animals (dogs and cats) that are found straying in public areas are caught by trap and taken to the Dog Pound on Crewe Road where they are held for seven days. If the dog has a licence tag, the owner is identified and attempts are made to contact him. If the animal is claimed, the owner must pay an impound fee of $25, plus a daily maintenance fee of $10. If unclaimed after seven days, the animal is humanely put to death using the normal process.

The Law (Animals Law) (Law 8 of 1978) (1998 Revision) allows for the owners of property damaged by stray animals to sue livestock owners for any damages or injury caused by their animals. Furthermore, owners of such animals are guilty of an offence and may, on summary conviction, be fined $500.

SUPPLEMENTARY

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town

Miss Heather Bodden: I would like to thank the Honourable Minister for that in-depth answer. The reason I am asking this question is because I have received so much representation from residents of Savannah Meadows who are having their yards constantly invaded by cows. Can the Honourable Minister say if he is aware of these complaints?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: I have to agree with the Member because that is one of our trouble areas. We have had a lot of complaints from that area and we have been trying our best. When called, we have. . . as a matter of fact I personally spoke to one of the individuals who has animals in that area and we have picked up a few from there and impounded them. Fees have been charged. We will continue to do as much as we can in that area to make sure that it does not occur again.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, we will move on to question 139, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 139

No. 139: Miss Heather Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation to list the programmes and achievements of the National Drug Council since it became an independent statutory corporation.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Under Standing Order 23(5) I beg to answer this question at a future sitting of the House. Monday.

STANDING ORDER 23(5) Deferral of Question 139

The Speaker: The question is that this question be deferred for a latter sitting. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: QUESTION 139 DEFERRED.

The Speaker: Question 140, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION 140

No. 140: Dr. Frank McField asked the Honourable Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs (a) If a replacement for Mr. Thomas Russell as the Cayman Islands Government Representative in the United Kingdom has been found; (b) was the post advertised; and (c) were there any applications received from Caymanians?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Mr Thomas Russell has agreed to serve as Cayman Islands' Government Representative in the United Kingdom for a further year beyond the expiration of his current contract in November 1998. Consideration of his replacement after November 1999 will take place about six months prior to that date.

In light of my answer to the first part, there is no answer necessary then for the next two parts of the question.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: As with that particular Portfolio we get these very short, bureaucratic answers. I think the Member understands that the question has some relevance otherwise it would not have been put here. Can the Honourable Member say what the policy is regarding the hiring of a Cayman Islands' Representative in the United Kingdom?

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: The post of Cayman Islands' Representative in the United Kingdom has been held for a number of years by the current holder. The post is graded at SS (super scale) 8. Certainly, the practice has been to not advertise posts at that level. I know of no specific policies related to this post that I can share with the Member, sir.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: While I understand exactly what the Honourable Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs has just said, can he say if there is any reasoning, if not a policy, where it is thought that the post should be filled by a foreign individual rather than a Caymanian?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: No, Mr. Speaker. I know of no such reasoning or view or policy.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: I would like to thank the Honourable Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs for actually saying that it is an SS-8 category post and therefore the post does not need to be advertised. So, in saying that he did not need to answer the other part of the question, that explanation is much more helpful to me than the one he originally gave. But I would like to ask whether or not there is a policy to hire ex-Governors for this position.

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: I said earlier that I did not know of any specific policies in relation to the post, and I certainly do not know of a policy to hire ex-Governors.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: I am asking the Honourable Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs what type of considerations do they make? When I talk about policies, I am basically. . . what type of considerations are made when we are looking to employ someone in that particular post? Even if Mr. Russell has decided to extend his contract for another year, you will be looking for someone perhaps in six months. Since we plan forward, what type of considerations have been made in regard to the qualities that you will be looking for in someone to fill this particular position?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Obviously the incumbent has held the post for a number of years. I cannot honestly try to say to the Member what considerations will be taken into account nine months from now when a replacement for him is considered.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: The Government has been aware for quite some time that the contract of the present holder of this position would be expiring in 1998. Can the Honourable Minister say why we have not sought a replacement for him rather than asking him to extend his contract for another year?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: The individual in question has had numerous contracts that have expired, and have been subsequently renewed based on the indication of his willingness to continue and the Governor's satisfaction with his performance. So the current, or the eminent expiration in November of this year is really no different from previous expirations.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Would the Honourable Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs say the age of this individual?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary Acting First Official Member, I think that is outside the scope of this question, but if you wish to answer you may.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Sir, I am unable to say exactly what the gentleman's age is, but I will be happy to provide it for the Member.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, would the Member then say what is the retirement age for Civil Servants, or persons in the Government service?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: There is a normal retirement age, but there is no mandatory retirement age in the Civil Service.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: This is a follow-up to my previous question. Would the Honourable Member say then that there is no guarantee that the present holder of this position will retire in the year 1999? If he is prepared to serve after that time, the Government is prepared to offer him that position again. Is that what I am to understand?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: I said that his renewals have been based on the indication from him as to whether he was willing to continue, and the Governor's satisfaction with his performance. I cannot say that if he indicates that he is willing to continue after November 1999, that based on that alone, his employment will continue.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: The Member mentioned that because the position is at SS-8, it was not required to be advertised. Is that what he is saying?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs. Do you wish to clarify that?

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: I will just clarify for the benefit of the Member. I said it has not been the practice to advertise posts at that level.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: For my own information, what is the procedure for filling a post like that? In other words, where do the applications go to, who reviews them, who makes the decision as to who the replacement will be?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Maybe I should illustrate the situation by saying how I came to my own current post, which is at a similar level. I did not apply for it. The Governor has responsibility for appointments at that level. It is within his discretion, whether he wishes to advertise or whether he is satisfied that there are other means of identifying a suitable candidate.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town. There will be two more supplementaries on this question.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: I am going to be as careful as I can with the question: Can the Honourable Member say if it is at all possible ...

The Speaker: Wait a minute. Would you move the motion to suspend Standing Order 23(7) and (8)?

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 23 (7) & (8)

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Yes, Under the relevant Standing Orders, I beg to move they be suspended in order for Question Time to continue.

The Speaker: Do we have a seconder?

Mrs. Edna Moyle: [seconds Motion]

The Speaker: The Motion has been moved and seconded. Those in favour of suspending Standing Order 23 (7) & (8) to Enable Question Time To Continue Beyond 11 O'clock. Those in favour please say aye. Those against no.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 23 (7) & (8) SUSPENDED.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town, I apologise for the interruption. Please continue.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Not a problem, sir. As I was saying, I am going to be as careful as I can. But needless to say, while the Member who is acting for the Honourable First Official Member is here, he will appreciate that there are some things we wish to know. It has nothing to do with him, personally.

One of the concerns — and it is possible that the concern is raised because of hearsay, but because there is enough time that is why this is happening today. I am being as clear as I can so that everyone will understand.

One of the concerns we have, is recognising the importance of that position in today's world compared to when the person who is now filling that post just started in the job; we consider it a very important post. We are concerned that certain individuals either try to engineer a situation or be part and parcel of a situation where you find any individual sort of being tailor-made for the post.

If that is considered at this point in time to be the norm, some of us wish for it to be different. So I will ask the Member: Is it possible—and this is bearing in mind the fact that he said the Governor is the person who makes the decision—Is it possible for any Governor to be dealing with the situation when it might be he, himself that he is considering for the post?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, before the Member answers, this will go in the Hansards, I withdraw the question.

The Speaker: The question has been withdrawn
The Fourth Elected Member for George Town, this is the final supplementary.

Dr. Frank McField: Since it appears that we have a little bit of discrepancy between the personnel part of Government and the Legislative Assembly that votes the money for these persons, I think that we might be able to pick this up at a later date. But it is important that certain things are recorded in the Hansard so that we can refer to it later. So I will just ask the final supplementary question by saying—if I understand correctly—that no person has been considered for this post at this particular time, and that no consideration has been given as to the type of qualities and experiences a person to fill such a post should have, that at this particular time that the Governor, who is responsible for the appointment, that no consideration has been given at all to these factors that I have mentioned.

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: In trying to follow the question I think I may have missed the first part as to whether no consideration has been given. . . could the Member just repeat that for me?

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town, please repeat the question.

Dr. Frank McField: Since discussions between top level civil servants sometimes tend to be minuted, and since we are dealing with a situation here which is very formal and I am trying to get certain answers minuted, my question is: Is the Member saying that there has been no consideration given to a possible successor to Mr. Thomas Russell? Is my understanding correct that no consideration has been given up until this date? And therefore individuals in London, for instance, who work for the Cayman Islands Government should not be able to say who that person is that has been appointed because from this point no consideration has been made? No consideration has been made as to what type of person you would like to see in that post in six months?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: It is my understanding that no consideration has been given to replacement of Mr. Russell in light of his indication of his willingness to extend for a further year. I cannot say whether any consideration has been given to any alternative or additional characteristics or qualities or capabilities that we would wish to see in a replacement. I expect that as circumstances change and as we eventually look to replace him that menu of qualifications, experiences and all the rest of it will likely be revisited.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

You withdrew your other question, so go ahead.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you.
I want to make sure that I understand you.

The Speaker: I said two, and you withdrew one. So I am being—

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Your memory is good, sir.

So as not to let the intent be misunderstood, I think what we as Members would greatly appreciate is if the Member could give an undertaking to provide for us in writing through whatever channels are necessary, a detailed job description for the post so that we may have it on record and for future reference we will be able to compare when such appointments are being made. Would the Member give that undertaking?

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: I have no problem in giving that undertaking.

The Speaker: We will move on to question 141, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION 141

No. 141: Mr. Linford A. Pierson asked the Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works to state the current cost of a plot at the Prospect Cemetery and other cemeteries within the Islands and whether there has been any increase in this cost within the past twelve months.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: The current price of a vault and plot at the Prospect Cemetery, as with all Government-owned and operated cemeteries in the Cayman Islands is $1,200. This new price took place in June 1998. The former price was $600.

I would also like to add that we have a committee that has been working, not only for this cemetery but throughout the island to see what they can do for the betterment, if anything. But we have to realise that as [prices] go up, it costs Government more to build the vaults.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: The reason for this question is that several representations have been made to me regarding the relatively high increase of 100% in the cost of these plots. Can the Honourable Minister say if any provision will be made to assist poor people within the community with this cost.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Normally anybody who has a problem will be referred to Social Services and there is such a thing in place that we can actually assist those persons. So, yes, definitely we will.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W McKeeva Bush: Can the Honourable Minister say what gave rise to the doubling of the cost and whether or not they are making certain that the quality is of a good standard? In the past I have gone to funerals where vault covers did not fit and were of poor quality. So would he explain what caused the increase in cost, and with the increase in cost, could the standard be improved?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: It is my understanding from the Public Works Department that we try our best to employ persons who would give the best job, especially with vaults. I take note of what the Member from West Bay just said. However, we have to realise that certain times we have persons who will go ahead and purchase a vault for many years that could be exposed. As we all know, sometimes we do have cracking in the lid that is placed on it. But I take note of what he has said and I will do my best through Public Works to have it corrected.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Miss Heather Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say if there are any plans in place to extend the Bodden Town cemetery?

Hon. John B. McLean: We have a committee and they have been looking at cemeteries, not only in Bodden Town, but throughout the Cayman Islands because we realise that there is a shortage of space and we must do one thing or the other. We have to be honest with ourselves. We must find extra land or we have to consider another way of burial.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister say if this committee he has mentioned in some of his answers was recently formed? What was the reasoning behind the formation of this committee? Perhaps that might shed some light on the problems we were encountering in the past.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: The last speaker is correct. The reason we put the committee together was to try to overcome some of the problems that we have seen cropping up over the last few years. As I said, one is availability of space, the other is methods of burial, or whatever you want to call it. But, yes, that is exactly why the committee was put together.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister say exactly who is in charge of cemeteries at present?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: I take responsibility for that.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Miss Heather Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say once someone purchases a vault, is it the decision of the person to paint the vault whatever colour he wishes? The reason I ask is because someone told me that he saw some vaults painted green, yellow, and red in Prospect.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: It is my understanding that if someone purchases a vault, it is entirely up to that person to do whatever else he has to do with it. I understand what the Member is saying, but I don't think there is any policy in place whereby we specify that it should be red, yellow or pink or whatever. I guess if you looked at that, you would have to look at some of the floral arrangements on them and the flags and this thing and the next thing. I don't think there has ever been a policy on that.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Can the Honourable Minister say if there has been any claim against the Government for injury sustained by the collapse of vaults at the Bodden Town cemetery some months ago?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Not to my knowledge.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: I am sure that the Honourable Minister was aware of that collapse. I wonder if any inspection was done by any department of Government to see the reason why those vaults collapsed. I was told it was lack of steel and the holes in the blocks being filled with cement or sand.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: That case was definitely checked out and the necessary precautions were put in place. So we hope that will never happen again.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries we move on to question 142, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION 142

No. 142: Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development what is the present balance of the General Reserves.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The present balance of the General Reserves as at 26th August, 1998 was $9,342,000.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Member state, outside of accrued interest, when was the last conscious deposit made by the Government to that account? And how much was it?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, $1 million was put into the account last year.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister say what time last year? The reason is ... Perhaps he can get both answers at the same time: Was there an amount in the 1998 Estimates that was also supposed to be transferred into that account? And if that is so, what was the amount, and when will that be done?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The sum was put into the account on 24 December.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W McKeeva Bush: I am wondering if the Honourable Member can say how much is likely to be put in this year in the General Reserves. I am asking because we haven't had any work done. So there should be a tremendous amount to put in.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, $1 million has been budgeted to put into the account in 1998.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: The Member stated that the last amount was put into the account in December. I am assuming from his last supplementary answer that that was for the 1997 year. I am also assuming that the next amount for the 1998 year which was also $1 million, it is my understanding that this will be done this December too. I just want to clear that up first, if the Member could answer that.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Yes, the amount will be transferred into the account in December.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Following up the question by the First Elected Member, notwithstanding the assumed position by the end of the year, can that amount vary? Or is it going to be that amount — nothing more, nothing less?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The review of Government's finances is an ongoing activity. If it can be seen where the revenue performance at that time of the year is quite favourable; it is likely that a recommendation will be made to Finance Committee for that amount to be increased.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Member say, bearing in mind discussions back and forth prior to this regarding general reserves, if his department—the Department of Finance—not the Government, has developed any type of policy that it would like to see Government follow regarding the general reserves and the position it believes the country should be in (with the general reserves)?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Reference will have to be made to previous discussions and what has been said supported by the Portfolio of Finance and Economic Development, and also this is in tandem with the Government's position in that the general reserves level should be set at 25% of the annual recurrent revenue.

It was also pointed out in previous discussions—and the last one could have been during the debate in Finance Committee on the Budget—that the revenue stream will have to be examined and a conscious decision taken; this will have to be enshrined in legislation. It is hoped that when this is introduced that it will be achieved for a certain percentage of the annual recurrent revenue to be earmarked, to be put into the general reserves, and for this to be increased in incremental amounts keeping in tandem with the increases that will be reflected in the budget over the year.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Member say—for those of us who don't have calculators with us and so that we can get a pretty good idea— If that policy is to be realised, given what our present budgets are like, can the Honourable Member give us a rough estimate of what the figure should be, say for 1998, if that policy had been realised?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The figure we have been using as a reference over the years has been that of recurrent expenditure. The recurrent expenditure figure for the year 1998 has been targeted at approximately $207 million which means that the figure we should be looking at in this point in time, or for the year ending 1998, should be a balance of approximately $51.5 million in that account.

I also mentioned that on previous occasions it has been said that a certain percentage of recurrent revenue should be earmarked to pre-put into the general reserve balance. The general reserve balance, Mr. Speaker, I think it would be much tidier to have it pegged as a percentage of recurrent expenditure.

The reason why a certain percentage of general revenue is to be used, is to ensure that a uniform sum — just as we sit down and break out the recurrent expenditure we look at statutory expenditure; we look at capital acquisitions and how much will be transferred into the capital development fund — whether 3% or 4%, whatever that figure is, it will mean that a uniform sum goes in.

Once the target of approximately 25% of recurrent expenditure has been achieved, the policy can be revisited in terms of how much will be put in. But the reason why it has been suggested that a percentage should be put in at this point in time is that it is necessary that this amount be fast tracked in order to achieve that balance.

Hopefully, one would imagine over a period of seven to eight years should be used as a target. It will mean that during that period of time that the figures that will be going in will be much bigger than what will be required once the target level has been achieved.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister say how long ago this policy was arrived at by his department? And bearing in mind the time that that answer may be, could he perhaps at the same time say why Government has not made conscious effort up to this point to begin the process he is talking about so that we can arrive at 25% of the recurrent expenditure for general reserves?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I don't think that at this point in time any blame or views can be advanced that would suggest that the Government has not been conscious of this and mindful to take appropriate action. It has always been recognised, and this is a policy of this and previous Governments, that the intake by way of general revenue, or what would be taken from the community as a whole, should be kept to a minimum. I think we have now gotten to a stage where we will have to look in terms of tying in a number of variables, costs of services and so on, and what should be the revenue yield sought in a given year over a period of time.

We have now reached a point in time where just as it is prudent to have funds set aside in a personal savings account or fixed deposit in order to make prudent arrangements for one's existence or for unforeseen occurrences, we are now at a stage where we recognise the cyclical effects that are taking place within the economic cycle, not only of Cayman, but in the world trend and so on. It is necessary for us to achieve that figure, or that target so that in a year, if the out turn is not as favourable as it should be, we would have a buffer to draw on. Hopefully that figure would remain there untouched as what is called a future generation fund.

We are now at a point where we realise that the budget process in terms of what provisions should be made, needs to be examined and everything is being looked at. That will be brought into the arena to be examined. It will mean that going back there are better recommendations from the Portfolio of Finance and Economic Development that could have been made; there are better procedures that could have been put in place; but we have seen along the way where we have made certain improvements, for example when the Public Finance and Audit Law was introduced.

We now are at a stage where we recognise that we will have to try to minimise these risks as much as possible. This is where conscious effort is required in terms of planning. This is what I would say is a part of the key variable that will have to be considered: building up of the general reserve, allocating a certain percentage to put into the capital development fund, look at the other funds necessary and try to provide for these while at the same time minimising the burden on society at large.

The Speaker: Before taking any more supplementary questions, we had agreed that at 11.30 we would suspend proceedings until 2.15 in order for Members to attend this luncheon. So at this time I shall suspend proceedings until 2.15 PM.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.34 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.15 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Question time continues. The First Elected Member for George Town. Supplementary.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: As he has mentioned in parts of his answers to supplementaries about legislation, could the Member say what might be the proposed legislation with regards to the general reserves? If he could just expand on that area so that we can get a clear understanding as to what he may be referring to regarding legislation.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, the financial reform initiatives that are now being pursued will inevitably result in having to introduce legislation to guide Government's financial activities. At this point in time we have got the Public Finance and Audit Law, but we are trusting at the end of the day that there will be legislation coming out of these initiatives that will wrap up all of the financial activities and embraced within that Mr. Speaker, will be the provision. It will be recommended that that provision be made because rather than having several pieces of legislation, I think it would be much better to have a single piece – if it is possible – dealing with all financial activities of Government.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Can the Member then say if the policy at present with general reserves is that however it is kept, whether it is in more than one account, or whatever type of account it is kept in, if it is the policy of Government not to use it as – if I may use my own terms – collateral, or not to use it as security for any type of borrowing or anything like that. Can the Member explain the position on that please?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The policy that has always been pursued with general reserves is for the reserves to be unencumbered.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Perhaps this may seem as if it is dragging on, but I think some Members would like to get the position very clear when it comes to general reserves, and some of us are not quite sure. Can the Member tell us what is the present policy as to when, and if, general reserves might have to be tapped into.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, if the Honourable Member will recall, several years ago there was a motion that was brought to Finance Committee and approved which required the sanction of Parliament in order to shift money out of the General Reserves. That policy is still observed and it is only in extreme circumstances when it becomes necessary to take monies out of the General Reserves.

But, given the fact that there is a policy that is now being articulated and everyone recognises that this is an integral part of the financial reform initiative, I think it is unlikely at this ... Although we can contemplate the possibility of having to move funds out of the General Reserves, at this point in time we would not want to contemplate the circumstances that would bring that about.

We do trust, Mr. Speaker, that (as I mentioned earlier) within a period of seven to eight years . . . from now through that time we will find ourselves with a healthy general reserves balance. It is one that we know we will have to plan for and we are just praying that the Good God will continue to keep the economy of the Cayman Islands strong, and for the budgeting process to continue to improve from year to year so that we do not run in to extenuating circumstances that would cause the General Reserves balance to be depleted.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. One final supplementary Mr. Speaker.

Can the Member say whether it is the intention—whenever the legislation that he referred to is proposed, and in whatever area of that legislation the General Reserves is addressed—that all of these factors that are being talked about will be added to ensure that it's not just policy but that it is firm and that regardless of who comes along afterwards, there will be something direct and strict and not just something that is loosely thought or talked about?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, that is the understanding because the legislation will translate in to an action plan. It is so significant what is being done now. We have seen it is not a question of the Government only. All Members of the Legislative Assembly from the discussions that we have been having are fully committed, Mr. Speaker to this process. I think it would be very much short-sighted for us to get to a point where legislation is introduced and all of these variables are not taken into account.

I really appreciate the question being raised by the Honourable Member. It is one that we will have to keep in our focus so at the end of the day we will have legislation that will guide policy and will mandate the adherence to that policy as to the allocation of revenue and certain expenditure boundaries.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, Question 143 standing in the name of the First Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION 143

No. 143: Mr. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development to give a breakdown on Contingency Warrants issued since January 1998.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, 13 contingency warrants have been issued for the period January to August 1998, totalling $1,079,876. Of the 13, 8 have been cleared by supplementary warrants. The value of the uncleared warrants is $710,579. Of this, the sum of $323,747 is offset by the blocking of funds under other votes. The attached schedule provides a breakdown of the 13 warrants.

I should also mention at this point that the agenda for Finance Committee is being prepared so as soon as that is agreed by Executive Council there will be a meeting of Finance Committee to follow shortly thereafter.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Can the Member say, since his answer is dealing with until August—and I respect the date that has been used—if there are any substantial contingency warrants which are in the works, or whether Finance Committee will ensure that there may not be any need to issue any more contingency warrants between now and the end of the fiscal year.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, it is always envisioned that when a meeting of Finance Committee is held up to that point in time the best judgement would have been brought to bear to determine the expenditure requirements up through the end of the year. But as the Honourable Member can appreciate, with the best insight in the world, it is difficult to anticipate future events. Wherever it can be seen that the amount in question will be significantly material and could have a significant impact upon the finances of Government, every effort will be made to secure the approval of the Legislative Assembly to ensure that there is endorsement for such expenditures right across the board.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: I am not trying to solicit an opinion from the Member, but if he is in a position perhaps he would give some type of answer to what I am going to ask although I am not sure that he will be able to answer it.

Just going back a year: Can the Honourable Member say if there has been noticeably more discipline exercised by all involved when it comes to requests for contingency warrants this year compared to perhaps last year. And if he wishes to go further back then he could.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Yes, Mr. Speaker, there is definitely greater discipline and great awareness.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. My follow up then, since the Member seems to be absolutely sure.

Can he give us what he thinks are the reasons why this is the case this year?

The Speaker: I think you are asking for an opinion on that. Honourable Third Official Member you may answer if you wish.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, the Honourable Member will recall that especially with the 1998 Budget it could be viewed that there was a greater participation by all of the Members concerned—Members of the Legislative Assembly. Areas were gone into where it was necessary to make adjustments against expenditure heads. These actions were carried out and on a whole Mr. Speaker, wherever you have got debate on any issue it brings about a high level of awareness. We are trusting that it will continue to improve from year to year.

It is very good to say that the Government; the Members of the Legislative Assembly; the Portfolio of Finance and Development; Controlling Officers; they are all fully committed and, Mr. Speaker, at the end of the day what is being sought is to optimise the resources that are available.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In a previous answer to a question, the Honourable Member the Financial Secretary, said that they were only preparing to add to the General Reserves $1 million for this year. If that is so, and we have only spent $710,000 on supplementary estimates — and as I said, much work has not been done — Why then is there only $1 million to go in to General Reserves? It would seem to me that there could be a larger provision.

Well, Mr. Speaker, according to the amount that we set aside for capital developments — we know some of it was supposed to be loans, but I know that much work has not been done and to explain, Mr. Speaker, I further thought that there was a large expenditure by contingency warrants. But the total amount spent by the warrants is $710,000 and allocated by warrant $1 million. As I said, it would seem to me that it could be a lot more put aside. If not, why not?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, the Honourable Member is aware that there are certain principles that work here. Firstly, unless the funds are spent—especially loan funds—monies cannot be drawn down. It is understood that one will have to offset the expenditure or the amount that is drawn down will have to match the expenditure up to that point in time.

The Capital Development Fund has now been established and this has been ratified by way of resolution in this Honourable House. This means that the sum that has been agreed to, be transferred from general revenue in to that fund. Whether that money is spent or not in a given year, it will have to be put in to the fund. So this has to be taken out of the General Fund balance as such.

I also indicated, Mr. Speaker, that if at the end of the year it can be seen that the revenue performance has exceeded expectations it is likely that the Government will take a decision to increase the amount that has been allocated. But what Honourable Members can appreciate is that this sum, rather than it being discretionary, it has now been budgeted. Granted, it is only $1 million; but what is happening here is that there is a principle that is being developed in that a specific allocation is being made.

And, Mr. Speaker, when we say that because of the fact that not more contingency warrants have been issued—Contingency warrants are contingent, or subject to the approval of the Legislative Assembly; but the non-use of the warrants does not necessarily mean that more money will be available. It is a question of the general revenue level, whether the revenue is tracking in accordance with expectations. If that proves to be the case, Mr. Speaker, I would like to see that myself in order to recommend to the Government that this sum of $1 million be increased.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, I may be straying a bit from the original question, but if I am allowed, I would ask the Honourable Member a question regarding his answer to the supplementary on revenue and tracking.

Could the Member say without going into details—because I do not expect him to have information on hand — whether at present it is the general view that revenue is on track.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, it can be taken that revenue is on track — following the trend that has emerged up to this point—that it is slightly behind in some of the heads as such. But we know that those are normally compensated for toward the end of the year. Specifically at this point in time it seems as if we are $3 million to $4 million behind expectations which means that as we get closer to the end of the year, Mr. Speaker, we know that some of the areas, for example: Customs import duty — we normally observe significant increases from November through the end of the year.

We have also seen on some of the revenue items where again increases are being reflected. But if it gets to a point where it is likely to result in — because we have to assume that expenditure will remain fixed; what has been approved subject to what has been approved in the Finance Committee meetings ... And if it is a question where an imbalance will occur, this will be discussed with the Government and also Members of Finance Committee will be apprised.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries that concludes Question Time. We will now move on to Item 5, Government Business, Bills, Third Readings.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

BILLS

THIRD READINGS

THE STAMP DUTY (AMENDMENT) (AGREEMENTS AND ASSIGNMENTS) BILL, 1998

The Clerk: The Stamp Duty (Amendment) (Agreements and Assignments) Bill, 1998.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, I know that we have moved on to a different subject, but I would just crave your indulgence to say this: When I mention in terms of the comparison between revenue and expenditure, at this time we have got a healthy cash balance. So these balances are now being invested on fixed deposits on whatever will bring about the highest yield.

Mr. Speaker, I beg to move that a Bill entitled, The Stamp Duty (Amendment) (Agreements and Assignments) Bill, 1998 be given a third reading and passed.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled, The Stamp Duty (Amendment) (Agreements and Assignments) Bill, 1998, be given a third reading and be passed. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED. THE PRISONS (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1998, GIVEN A THIRD READING AND PASSED.

The Speaker: The next item is Other Business. Private Member's Motion No. 20/98. Now open for continuation of debate on The Award of Government Contracts.

The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

OTHER BUSINESS

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 20/98

AWARD OF GOVERNMENT CONTRACTS

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, I am quite happy to advise that the Government supports Motion No. 20/98 which asks the Government to consider amending the Financial and Stores Regulations recording as much as possible to ensure that all materials, equipment and services required to fulfil Government contracts are sources locally and in doing so ensuring quality and that this will be done at a competitive price.

Mr. Speaker, when the Public Financing Audit Law was introduced and the accompanying Financial and Stores Regulations, it was envisioned that this would introduce a high level of discipline to the tendering, or awarding of government contracts.

It was envisioned that under this process that this in effect would initiate the concept, or, be the forerunner to the concept of buy Caymanian, because it is recognised that the Government's expenditure represents a significant part of the expenditure that takes place on an ongoing basis within the Cayman Islands. And it was envisioned that this process would ensure competitive bidding, good discipline and objectivity in the awarding of contracts.

Mr. Speaker, the Government is quite happy to support this initiative. It is recognised though, that not only will this require that an amendment be made to the Financial and Stores Regulations in order to try to encourage that purchases be made at the local level, but Mr. Speaker, it would also require that specific provisions be made in contracts to encourage the adherence to the principle of buy Caymanian.

Mr. Speaker, it is recognised, and it can be appreciated, the way the Motion has been framed. The Member has said as much as possible and this will be done. Whatever can be done in order to reinforce and support this initiative and this concept will be done by the Government. The Government is therefore quite happy to give this undertaking to effect the necessary amendment in order to achieve this goal.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The Motion is open to debate. Does any other Member wish to speak?

The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, I am pleased that Government has accepted the Resolution. I recall that in Executive Council one point we changed the bond – the bond that is required, that is, for performance – to allow the smaller contractor to qualify.

This action today by the Government, coupled with that, will assist the smaller contractors or builders to get jobs in a bracket that they could not qualify for before. As I said, the two actions will work together to enable the smaller local guys to qualify. I thank the Government for the action today.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak to the Motion? If no other Member wishes to speak would the mover of the Motion wish to reply?

The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you Mr. Speaker. I just want to say thanks to Government for accepting the Motion. I would also like to say thanks to my colleague from West Bay, the First Elected Member, for his support and contribution, and also those Members who did not speak, for their tacit support.

Thank you, sir.

The Speaker: I shall now put the question on Private Member's Motion No. 20/98, Award of Government Contracts. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED. PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 20/98 PASSED.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No.17/98. Proposed Ritz-Carlton Hotel – West Bay Road, moved by the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 17/98

PROPOSED RITZ- CARLTON HOTEL
WEST BAY ROAD (Deferred)

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, the situation regarding this particular Private Member's Motion is that the seconder of the motion has informed you that he is ill. Because of this reason I would appreciate if the House would allow this motion to be discussed at a later sitting.

The Speaker: The question is, in view of the seconder being sick, that this motion could be set down for a later sitting. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 17/98 DEFERRED UNTIL A LATER SITTING.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 23/98. The Referendum Law.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, with your permission may I just say something please?

The Speaker: Certainly.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, this Motion that you are going to refer to now [No. 23/98] is in a similar situation with the same Member; [Also, No.21/98]. I think Motion No.4 on the Order Paper – No.18/98 Moratorium on Liquor Licence for West Bay District, is probably the only one this afternoon that is ready to move on. If the House is willing to accept, perhaps as I have already discussed it with the mover and the seconder, perhaps we can move on with that one this afternoon and resume the rest of the Order next week.

The Speaker: With the permission of the House, we will move on to Private Member's Motion No. 18/98, Moratorium on Liquor Licence for West Bay District.

Maybe as a precautionary [measure] I should put the question that we defer these other Motions [Nos. 23/98 & 21/98] that we have just listed. I will put the question. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS NO. 23/98, REFERENDUM LAW AND NO. 21/98, APPOINTMENT OF A COMPLAINTS COMMISSIONER, DEFERRED UNTIL A LATER SITTING.

The Speaker: We will move on then, as I said before, to Motion No.18/98 entitled Moratorium on Liquor Licence for West Bay District. Moved by the First Elected Member for West Bay.

The First Elected Member for West Bay.

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 18/98

MORATORIUM ON LIQUOR LICENCE FOR WEST BAY DISTRICT

Mr. W McKeever Bush: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Whereas Mr. Speaker moved Private Member's Motion No. 18/98 standing in my name and reads as follows:

"Whereas there has been much concern and objections to more liquor licences being granted in West Bay;

Be it therefore resolved that there be a moratorium on licences granted for the District of West Bay;

Be it further resolved that Government review the Liquor Licensing Law (revised) 1966, to rectify, update and strengthen the Law where anomalies and weaknesses exist.”

The Speaker: The seconder, the Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I am pleased to second the Motion.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 18/98 has been duly moved and seconded. Does the Mover wish to speak to it?

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Mr. Speaker I will try to be brief on this matter.

Mr. Speaker, for sometime representatives of West Bay have been bombarded with objections in regards to more liquor licences being granted for that district. You know, Mr. Speaker, that there have been several properties, new applications before the Planning Board that citizens have objected to out of their concern for the grant of a liquor licence.

Mr. Speaker, we feel that there being some 11 (I believe it is) licences in that district—our constituency—that for the time being, we should put a moratorium on it. As I said, there have been citizens raising their concerns to Members here, and further raising their concerns to the Planning Board.

The Motion is also asking that there be a review of the Law. And given the debate – or certain articles in the written media some weeks ago, I think it is obvious to all of us, that things are not all well in regards to the Liquor Licensing Board.

It seems that matters that rightly belong in the parameters of the Immigration Law were being used in the arguments of the Liquor Law. It is quite obvious too, that pressure was being applied because of competition.

I know the Law is due to come before the House soon, therefore, Mr. Speaker, I will not go in to any further details at this time but to say that it is time to rectify, to update and strengthen the Law where anomalies and weaknesses exist.

I am not asking the Government to do anything that would put it in a problem legally. The greatest concern in this Resolution is that a moratorium be applied for the District of West Bay and that we get agreement to rectify, update and strengthen the Law as it stands now.

Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I am also pleased to add my support as the seconder of this Motion.

As the First Elected Member from West Bay said, we have had a lot of representation from concerned citizens in our district in regard to certain establishments which were in the process of applying for liquor licences to enable them to serve liquor on their premises.

Mr. Speaker, as representatives of the people, we have to take into consideration their desires. I recall accompanying a group from West Bay who were objecting to such a licence and also appearing before the Planning Authority, objecting to the approval of the project if it meant that a liquor licence would be issued.

In this particular instance it involved a property – a tourist's property – in the middle of a residential area, very quiet, very private, closely held residential area—a lot of family members. And what they were concerned about, Mr. Speaker, was the fact that there was a motel coming into their area and a liquor licence being issued. Visitors to the establishments and also residents who would decide to visit for a drink would possibly make a nuisance of themselves by making loud noises, fighting and all the things that people do when they consume alcohol.

Mr. Speaker, I did go with representatives—members of our community from that area—and I objected to this particular application on the basis that we did not need a tourist property in that area that was issued a liquor licence.

West Bay, is a (should I say) highly residential community, in that people still enjoy the level of quietness and privacy that they do enjoy, because most people as we know them, are employed in town and they look forward to evenings when they can forget the rat race and the hustle and bustle in town to retire to their private residence where they can enjoy some peace and quiet.

I am aware of the impact that certain liquor licensed premises in our district have had on the surrounding community. I know for a fact, because my in-laws live just down the road from one of these establishments that keeps you up until one o'clock and two o'clock in the morning with loud music and all kinds of commotion.

Mr. Speaker, I recall just after getting married that that particular premise was offered to my wife and me to live in and I totally refused because of the area and the atmosphere that was created by the presence of this establishment.

Mr. Speaker, I believe that we do have sufficient liquor establishments in West Bay; I do not condone it, I do not support it, but for those persons who indulge, there are sufficient places where they can go and buy a drink.

The other thing that we need to keep in mind, Mr. Speaker, which seems to be the trend here in the Cayman Islands, is that the people wait to see what type of business an individual jumps into and then rather than looking at the overall potential of the business, they follow. What happens then is that we end up having establishments that are not operating profitably and because of that you get proprietors who are then tempted to – in order to enhance their sales – take a risk of serving minors at these establishments.

Mr. Speaker, as I said, I do support this Motion. It is the right thing to do, and it is in keeping with the wishes of the majority of the residents in our district. I look forward to hearing Government's position.

The Speaker: I think this might be a convenient time to take the afternoon break. We shall suspend for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.21 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.02 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Debate continues on Private Member's Motion No. 18/98. Does any other Member wish to speak? The Honourable Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Mr. Speaker, I rise to indicate the Government's willingness to accept the Motion.

The amendment to the Liquor Licensing Law which received first reading earlier this week, indicates that the Government is receptive to the spirit of this motion, namely, the call for a moratorium in this case in the district of West Bay and also the call for consideration of further amendments or provisions to that law.

Hopefully once the debate eventually concludes on those proposed amendments, we will have a clearer picture of what else may need to be considered to fulfil the resolve sections of this motion. But the Government is willing to accept the Motion and will give it due consideration and attention as soon as possible. Thank you.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: In regard to this Private Member's Motion to have a moratorium on the granting of liquor licences in the district of West Bay, I understand and fully accept that there is a need in the Cayman Islands as a whole for a little more consideration for the general public with regard to the granting of liquor licences. Of course, we will be discussing the Government's proposed amendments to the Liquor Licensing Law very soon and it appears as if the whole concept of discretion will be involved here. Discretion does not mean that the Liquor Licensing Board just says 'no,' discretion could mean that they are given the power to say, 'yes' to applications in certain areas.

I would just like to echo my concerns with the way in which the Liquor Licensing Law in this country seems to be influenced by political considerations. Of course, as we go into the debate in regard to the Government's proposed amendments next week, I will be able to illustrate a little bit better what I am talking about when I say that the Liquor Licensing Law is being influenced by political consideration.

Of course, when we look at the way in which liquor licences have been granted—I could talk about it in the district of George Town, in particular —. If that situation has been duplicated in West Bay, then I, as a George Town representative, can certainly see why there is a need to begin to give serious consideration to a moratorium on the continual grant of licences.

The area I operate from is considered to be George Town Central — in the Schoolhouse area. We have many, many, many licensed premises in this area. It is interesting to see how people continue to get permission to open their establishments at the end of the day. Because, although the law might be there — and even if the Liquor Licensing Board itself uses its discretion and says that these premises should not be open because there is a school there, or it feels that the community is adequately served — in certain cases it seems that the people still succeed in getting a licence. And the political representatives who have been over the years up and down, as to who should have the power; whether or not the Liquor Licensing Board in fact should have the power to make these decisions; or whether or not there should be a little bit more flexibility giving political leaders the possibility to react to pressure from people who are seeking licences to retail alcohol in the area.

So I am saying that we don't only have a problem with the law; we have a problem with people not wanting to abide by the fact that we should be governed by the law. and that in cases where people feel that it is to the advantage of some members of their [constituency] because it is politically expedient, licences have been granted at the end of the day in areas that should never have been given licence to retail alcohol.

As for me, I have had my days with alcohol and those days were not all pleasant. If there was not one drop of alcohol sold in this country, I would not feel in any way deprived. I am a total teetotaler I don't drink alcohol, and have not drunk any kind of alcohol for the last six years. But I do understand that drinking is something that I got into because I felt it was socially acceptable.

Therefore, when we license premises to retail rather than wholesale alcohol we have to understand that they have a conditioning effect on young people, especially when the areas that are retailing alcohol are near schools. When there are signs that cannot be put up in regard to alcohol in sports areas, or regardless of where, we are saying that we don't want to sell alcohol in our sporting facilities, but at the same time primary school children have to look at signs that are promoting drinking as something that is positive and that enhances one's social skills and social acceptability.

So when we look at the role in which the retail premises play in socialising people towards accepting alcohol and alcoholism we note that there is a need to call for a moratorium. I am happy to say that the First Elected Member and the Third Elected Member for West Bay have brought this to the attention of the Government. I hope that it is not something reserved for the district of West Bay alone, but that the Government considers that it is something that will also affect the other districts, and in particular the district of George Town.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, my contribution will be brief. I do rise to support the Motion. I think it is timely. I believe that given the experiences in recent times as incidents where alcoholic beverages were served to—in some cases—young persons below the normal age which allows a person to participate in sports, I think that we as Members of the Legislative Assembly should make every effort to amend any law to put any moratorium that brings this matter into control that the community would wish us to do.

The Speaker: The floor is open to debate. Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause) If not, would the mover like to exercise his right of reply? The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you.

I am pleased once again that the Government was in such a good frame of mind to accept all the resolutions before the House.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Thus far.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Thus far. This one is, in a sense, partly to do specifically with the West Bay district and partly to do with the national issue. All Members speaking have given their support, and we thank them for it and look forward to hearing the Government by way of specific action on the specific law. Thank you.

The Speaker: The question is on Private Member's Motion No. 18/98, Moratorium on Liquor Licensing for West Bay District. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 18/98 PASSED.

The Speaker: From previous discussions, Private Members' Motions Nos. 21/98 and 23/98 which remain on the Order Paper and which have been moved by the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town who is not present, have been deferred until a later sitting.

The Speaker: Do Honourable Members therefore wish to adjourn at this time, or go on to Government Business?

The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, it is my pleasure to move the adjournment of this Honourable House until Monday at 10.00 AM.

The Speaker: The question is that this Honourable House do now adjourn until 10.00 AM on Monday. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AT 4.18 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM MONDAY, 21 SEPTEMBER 1998.

MONDAY
10.31 AM

[Prayers by the Hon Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation]

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed.

READING BY THE SPEAKER OF
MESSAGES AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: I have apologies for late attendance from the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Women, Sport, Youth and Culture.

Item 2 on today's Order Paper, Presentation of Papers and Reports. The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

PRESENTATION OF PAPERS AND REPORTS

FINANCIAL STATEMENTS OF THE CAYMAN
ISLANDS STOCK EXCHANGE LTD. FOR THE PERIOD
26 SEPTEMBER, 1996 TO 31 DECEMBER, 1997

CAYMAN ISLANDS STOCK EXCHANGE OPERATIONS REPORT FOR THE YEAR ENDED 31 DECEMBER, 1997

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I beg to lay on the Table of this Honourable House, Financial Statements of the Cayman Islands Stock Exchange Ltd. for the period 26th September, 1996 to 31st December, 1997 and the accompanying report for the same period.

The Speaker: So ordered. Do you wish to speak to these?

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Thank you.

Mr. Speaker, the audited financial statements for the Cayman Islands Stock Exchange for the period 26 September 1996 to 31st December 1997, together with a report on the operations of the exchange for the same period, are tabled in accordance with section 14 (8) of the Cayman Islands Stock Exchange Company Law, 1996.

Mr. Speaker, as the financials and the report will indicate, the stock exchange has performed exceedingly well since it began accepting listings in July of 1997. It met its target of 100 listings within a year of that date and currently has 73 mutual funds, 42 debt issues and one international company listed. The total of 116 listed issuers represents a market capitalisation of U.S. $8.6 billion.

In the fund sector, the stock exchange has proven particularly attractive to 'hedge' funds and one of the world's premiere hedge funds—the Maverick fund—has listed on the Cayman Islands Stock Exchange. The exchange has also received strong support from the local offices of international finance houses such as Schroder, Bank of Butterfield, and CIBC, all of whom have listed funds on the stock exchange.

The responsiveness of the Cayman Islands Stock Exchange to the needs of the international capital markets has also produced growth in the listings of specialised debt securities by such international finance houses as: Deutsche Bank, Lehman Brothers and Merrill Lynch.

Cayman is the leading centre for structured finance transactions and the exchange has added value to that business by providing a knowledgeable and efficient listing service. The international capital markets are constantly creating new opportunities and the Cayman Islands Stock Exchange is well-placed to take advantage of these.

Mr. Speaker, the stock exchange is also concentrating its efforts on providing facilities for local companies such as a developing Equities' Market to complement the strong international institutions base developed over the past year. As Honourable members may be aware, the Cayman Islands Stock Exchange has an excellent website in keeping with the quality of its services to an international profile.

This site developed by the stock exchange head of technology, Nigel Havers, and technology executive, Todd Twinn, is due to be re-launched in October 1998 with new, innovative features. It is important that the stock exchange maintains its competitive edge in this increasingly vital area of business activity.

Mr. Speaker, the success of the stock exchange is owed to the strong partnership between Government and the private sector, and the high calibre of the exchange staff. The sterling efforts of the Exchange under the Chairman, Anthony Travers; Vice Chairman, Deborah Drummond; Chief Executive Officer, Ann Nealon, her deputy Diane Palmer and their staff, must be acknowledged and highly commended.

I would also like to acknowledge the valuable support of the members of the stock exchange steering committee who contributed to its development when it was still on the drawing board, namely: Mrs. Michael Austin, Dre Barten, Andre Iton, Harry Chisholm, Nick Freeland, Don Martuik, Michael Alberga, Carlyle McLaughlin, and Henry Smith.

I should also point out that the support of the Government and Members of the Legislative Assembly agreeing in tandem to the introduction of the stock exchange is a commendable effort and it is quite satisfying this morning to be able to table the report on the financials, especially the reports with these achievements.

The progress of the stock exchange is evidence of the fact that when the Government and the private sector work together we are capable of world-class success. Mr. Speaker, we need to harness all of our skills to ensure that our success over the past three decades continues so that we maintain our well-earned position within the international financial arena.

Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: Questions? Without a motion, no debate can arise.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, I know that it is under Presentation of Papers and Reports, but since the Honourable Member has spoken to this would you entertain, under Standing Order 30(2) some short questions on that?

The Speaker: Under the normal procedure he has not made a motion, therefore there should be no debate. If he is prepared to entertain short questions, I am willing.

The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, to the extent that I am able to provide the information, I will be quite willing to respond to the Honourable Member.

SHORT QUESTIONS – STANDING ORDER 30(2)

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. It's just for a little clarification. I notice from the financial statements that have been prepared to the end of December 1997, that the statements reflect a net operating loss for the period of over half a million dollars. I wonder if the Honourable Third Official Member is in a position to give an indication as to when he feels this will be cleared off, and an indication as to when we can expect to see some form of profit from the stock exchange operations.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, that is an excellent question, and one that I welcome.

It was pointed out that the development of the stock exchange would be a timely process. We know that in the initial stages it would require significant investments by the Government in terms of capital cost and also funding the operational aspects of the stock exchange operation. It was agreed, and pointed out to Honourable Members of the Legislative Assembly that the learning curve would be achieved on a timely basis.

We know as a stock exchange that there are quite a number of entities willing to come on to the stock exchange and to list. But we have to ensure that we have the competence in place (and this we do), and the ability to scrutinise very carefully the entities that are coming on.

The idea had been taken that we would not try to drive revenue in the initial stages because we could not afford to take on anything that would create an embarrassment to the Government. When I say the Government, that includes the Members of Parliament—because the stock exchange was intended to continue the synergy between the various operations within the financial industry.

For example, what we see here is the flow of revenue into the stock exchange, but there are other fees that are going to other departments of Government—to the Registrar of Companies, the Monetary Authority, and so on. If these were to be isolated and brought in under the earnings of the stock exchange, it is quite likely that we would have achieved the break-even position already. But taking the direct flows into the stock exchange, this is what the position is.

It is likely that within another two to three years we can be in a break-even position and it is intended that the stock exchange should be a revenue earner. But most importantly, Mr. Speaker, is that it develops properly, it develops credibility, it is recognised within the international sphere of financial community as a stock exchange of good standing and the only way to ensure this, is to have in place the technology, the technical expertise and from what we have seen here with the amount of listing going over the 100 mark within the first year of operation, we can assume that this level of success will continue in future years.

The Speaker: No further questions?

Item 3 on today's Order Paper, Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. Question 144 is standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION 144

No. 144: Miss Heather Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation now that planning approval has been granted on the Rehabilitation Centre in Breakers, when will construction begin?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: There will be no new construction for the residential drug rehabilitation centre in Breakers. Instead, existing buildings will be renovated in two phases. Work will commence with Phase 1 which is to convert the main house to a residential 30-day treatment facility for up to 15 adult males and females. I expect this work to begin no later than January next year.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Miss Heather Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say what the cost will be?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: The overall cost is approximately $1,231,200. Of this, $405,200 has been spent so far. A further $826,000 is required to complete this phase of the project, which is phase 1.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Can the Honourable Minister say when the renovation is scheduled to be completed?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: At this time we are looking to July next year for the first clients to move in.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries the next question is 145, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

WITHDRAWAL OF QUESTION 145

Mr. Roy Bodden: I crave the indulgence of the House to withdraw the question, seeing by a strange coincidence it was almost identical to the previous question.

The Speaker: The question is that question 145 be withdrawn. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: QUESTION NO. 145 WITHDRAWN

The Speaker: Question 146 is standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 146

No. 146: Miss Heather Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport if after the review of the public transport system taxi drivers will be required to wear uniforms and will there be a person/persons assigned to ensure enforcement.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: The Public Transport Board is in the process of considering what should be the policy on the standard of dress for taxi and other public transport operators. It considers that a decision on the standard of dress is more pressing than actual uniform at this time. The standard dress policy is currently under consideration and I undertake to advise Honourable Members of the recommendations of the Public Transport Board when available.

SUPPLEMENTARY

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Miss Heather Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say if the Public Transportation Board will also be ensuring that all taxi vehicles are clean and in decent condition?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I think the quick answer to that is, yes.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? If there are no further supplementaries the next question is 147, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 147

No. 147: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport to state Government's policy on inspections of hotels, condominiums and other such accommodation for tourists.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: All tourist accommodations are required to pass an inspection before the grant of a tourist accommodation licence and at least once annually for the renewal of the licence. This inspection is carried out by the Department of Tourism, the Fire Service Department and the Department of Environment. It is the policy that additional inspections are carried out as and when required by the Hotels Licensing Board.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say what is the procedure when properties fail to meet the standards set by the inspectorate?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Normally when these inspections take place there are a number of deficiencies that may arise particularly on inspection by the Department of Tourism, and the manager or owner of the property is requested to remedy the deficiencies. It depends upon the severity of the deficiencies as to how the Hotel Licensing Board will follow up after that.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister say if these inspections vary depending upon the nature of the property and/or the size of the property?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: The inspection by the Department of Tourism personnel is laid down in an inspection manual and it does not really differ unless, of course, you are dealing with a hotel where you have a restaurant facility and dining room facilities and a pool where in some cases in the guesthouse you may not have all of those particular facilities.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say if there are any circumstances which would lead to an inspection other than the annual inspection? And could he tell the House—if his answer is in the positive—what these circumstances may be?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: It may be that someone makes a complaint about a particular facility to the Department of Tourism, and as a result of that complaint the chairman would authorise an inspection of that particular facility.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, the next question is 148, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for George Town.

No. 148: Mr. Linford A. Pierson asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development to state the annual increase in recurrent and capital expenditures since January 1993 to 31st December, 1997 and show how this compares with the annual increase in the Consumer Price Index for the same period.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The annual increases in Recurrent and Capital Expenditures and the Consumer Price Index over the period January 1993 to December 1997 are given in the attached schedule. The schedule (see attached) shows that over the referenced period, the average annual increase in recurrent expenditure was 11.03 percent; in capital expenditure 50.68 percent; and the consumer price index 2.55 percent.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: In view of this somewhat alarming disparity, that is your consumer price index is up by 2.55% as compared with 11.03% for recurrent expenditure, and some 51% increase for capital expenditure, I wonder if the Honourable Third Official Member could give an indication of the percentage of recurrent revenue utilised for personal emoluments, that is basically civil service salaries, etc?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I do not have the exact figures on hand, but it could be in the region of about 50% to 53%.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Member say, while he doesn't have the exact figure, if the figure he just gave is one which has maintained that average for the past few years, or has it been steadily climbing or declining?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: As I mentioned earlier, without having exact figures at hand, from memory it has been maintaining that average for the past several years.

QUESTION 148

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Can the Honourable Member further state whether the percentage increase may be outpacing, that is the increase in particular in recurrent expenditure, may be outpacing the recurrent revenue of Government?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The answer to that question is definitely, yes, and this has been mentioned on several occasions in the past.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: In view of what appears to be an exponential increase in expenditure, I wonder if the Honourable Member could further state what considerations are now being given by Government to address what could become an alarming problem.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: From discussions that have taken place in Finance Committee and also the fiscal reform initiatives that are presently under way, all of these issues will have to be addressed. It has been known for quite some time that recurrent expenditure has been climbing at a faster rate than the growth taking place on the revenue side. But we must bear in mind that we are a service based economy. And as we continue to expand the services that are provided by the Government as a whole and as new capital projects come on stream, they also carry with them recurrent costs as well. So all of these issues will have to be examined to make sure that a policy position is arrived at by this Government and successive governments in order to contain recurrent expenditure even capital or overall expenditure within a given limit.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I wish to thank the Honourable Member for that comprehensive answer. Can the Honourable Member -- having given an indication that he, too, sees this as a matter for concern—that recurrent expenditure is outpacing recurrent revenue -- give an indication as to what plans are being made especially in the upcoming budget to address this problem? -- (i.e. whether he is considering increasing recurrent revenue). If so, what sort of plans are being made to do this?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I am quite aware that the Government has been very much concerned about this. This is why the budget process has been a very tedious one. For example, when the last budget was prepared—I do not have the figures on hand, but the differential between the resources available and requests that came in from departments, the bulk of it being recurrent expenditure, was quite significant.

The undertaking that has been given by the Government is that for the 1999 Budget the information from departments will be collated. The resources that are available on the recurrent revenue side will also be examined and the overall requests by the departments of Government, together with resources available will be brought to Members of Legislative Assembly to examine the differential and make a determination as to what will have to be done.

At this point in time, definitely, if the requests from departments are going to be entertained without any form of significant cutting back it will mean having to look for additional revenue sources. But if it is a question of drawing a line to see that expenditure should not exceed a given figure, then a decision will have to be made in terms of how that will be funded; this will involve several policy issues that will have to be examined by Members of the Legislative Assembly as a whole.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I think the Hansards will record that I have many times expressed the concern that the budget that has been presented has never really been a realistic budget because of the need—I am going to turn this into a question -- to come back in two to three months to get supplementaries. I understand that the first draft budget which was something like $30 million over the recurrent revenue, had to be cut down so that there could be a surplus.

Can the Honourable Member state how he intends to bring the budget back to something more realistic and if he is going to do this will this entail having to impose a new area of taxation or increasing the taxation now in place? By taxation, I mean revenue enhancement measures.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: It is likely that could be one of the variables to consider. But in terms of bringing the budget into balance, Mr. Speaker, recommendations will definitely be made by the Portfolio of Finance and Economic Development. But at this point in time, until the budget is looked at for 1999, I think it would be a bit quick to mention exactly what measures will be implemented. Mr. Speaker, we can definitely see from the past track records, not only with past governments and this Government, that it has been a sterling job on the part of any government at any given point in time to achieve the balance and also the successes we have been having with the limited revenue base.

This is not information that is hidden. There [will be] occasions when requests from apartments will have to be cut back. We saw in the last meeting of Finance Committee where certain amounts which were initially removed were reinstated. But we have to be watching this very carefully to see what impact it will have.

In response to an earlier parliamentary question, I have always pointed out that governments—and this has been my experience—have always been reluctant to consider the raising of additional revenue. But when necessary to do so, it is something that is normally done.

The approach that will be taken, Mr. Speaker, will be to look at the position that we are now in; to look at what would be the most prudent approach; to take into consideration that we are in a transition phase at this point in time, and that we are going to an output based budget where this will require greater participation on the part of departments controlling officers. Because it is not a question of coming forward and saying that they would like to increase expenditure by a given amount: they will also have to look at the revenue side. As we continue to refine the process, it will mean that a greater abundance of ideas will emerge and most importantly will be the involvement of the Members of the Legislative Assembly in the process.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 23 (7) & (8)

The Speaker: Before continuing with supplementaries, I will entertain a motion for the suspension of Standing Order 23(7) and (8) so that Question Time can go beyond 11 o'clock.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, I so move the suspension of those Standing Orders.

The Speaker: Is there a seconder? The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W McKeeva Bush: I second it.

The Speaker: The question is that Standing Order 23 (7) & (8) be suspended so that Question time can go beyond 11 o'clock. Those in favour please say aye. Those against no.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 23 (7) & (8) SUSPENDED.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Just to clarify my trend of questioning, and the information I am trying to obtain, I am concerned by the increase in the growth of recurrent expenditure of 11% that seems to be the average annual increase. And in capital expenditure on an average annual increase of 51%.

Also with the civil service salaries forming some 50% to 53% of recurrent revenue, I am asking if we are to maintain and indeed improve the infrastructural facilities in the Cayman Islands, thus increasing expenditure, can the Honourable Member say, based on past trends, not what he would suspect would happen for the upcoming budget, if he sees any necessity to increase the revenues, the enhancement measures now in place, or whether he is considering any new measures to deal with this annual increase.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the question being raised by the Honourable Member. I know that he's seeking an answer as to what will be a definite position. But we are looking down line into the future where quite a number of variables will have to be considered. It could be a decision to cut back on recurrent expenditure, to hold capital expenditure at a given level; it could also involve having to increase the existing revenue measures; it could be having to look at new revenue measures, but because of the fact that this will involve all of the Members of the Legislative Assembly sitting down with the Ministers of Executive Council, it would be a bit premature at this point in time to give a definite answer. If I attempt to do so, I could be misleading the Honourable Member.

The Speaker: These are very important questions, but I will have to limit the supplementaries to two additional. The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Just to revisit the chart that was in the answer to the substantive question, and bearing in mind other answers given by the Honourable Third Official Member, my question then is: Is it safe comment that when we compare 1993 to 1997, and the fact that he has said that the percentage of personal emoluments to recurrent expenditure has maintained about the same level throughout those years; if recurrent expenditure has increased (and if we use 1993 as the base year and go to 1997) almost by 25%, can we then say that personal emoluments while retaining the same percentage have then increased from 1993 to 1997 by almost 25%?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, from information provided, since 1994 we have had a declining increase occurring in the area of recurrent expenditure. And when I say declining increase, I will say why. Let's say for example in 1993 it was 25 percent, in 1994 it was 20 percent over 1993... and in 1995... I am just using that as an example to explain what is taking place. It is not something where the increases remain even. But there are certain factors that I should just mention for the benefit of the Honourable Member. We have to look in terms of what has happened since 1993 up until this point in time.

Since 1993 we have rolled up the Financial Services Department into the Monetary Authority. This has incurred a reasonable amount of capital expenditure, and a significant amount of recurrent expenditure. This is a contribution that is being made by the Government to that organisation. But we know that the revenue flows on the other hand have been increasing.

We have also increased the number of staff within the Registrar General's department. We have put in place the Stock Exchange. The Third Elected Member for George Town brought out the question this morning as to why there was a loss of half a million dollars and that had to be funded by recurrent revenue. But while this growth is taking place in expenditure, it is also bringing in the corresponding increase in revenue. We have now positioned our financial industry, and also the tourism industry, where it can be seen, especially on the side of the financial industry we have institutions in place that are providing the necessary regulatory services. This comes at a cost.

When we are looked at from the outside, we are seen as a leading jurisdiction. It is because international investors can come to the Cayman Islands with a certain level of confidence knowing that there is a certain level of scrutiny being provided to the international services that are provided.

As we continue to expand these services, and refine the infrastructure of the Cayman Islands, this comes at a cost. But we do recognise that we will have to look in terms of the revenue areas, and determine whether what is being obtained—in terms of the corresponding flow back into general revenue -- is reasonable. And that is what we are now sitting down to do and will flow from the exercise the fiscal reform initiative that is now under way.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town, the final supplementary.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Through you, Mr. Speaker, I wish to thank the Honourable Third Official Member for taking the time to give all the explanations. I do appreciate that. However, I would still like an answer to the question I asked.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, I thought I gave the answer ... The Honourable Member wanted to find out if the increase in personal emoluments has remained consistent over the period, at 25 percent. Mr. Speaker, may I ask the Member to please restate his question?

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: I will attempt to explain. If you look on the chart that was given with the answer, the chart shows that from 1993 (using that as a base year), to 1997 (inclusive) that recurrent expenditure increased by almost 25 percent. In a previous answer to a supplementary question the Honourable Third Official Member stated that personal emoluments have by way of percentage remained pretty consistent over those years.

So I am saying: If we use 1993 as the base year through to 1997, that recurrent expenditure increased by 25 percent and personal emoluments retained the same pace throughout, is it fair comment to say that the personal emoluments increased from 1993 to 1997 by 25 percent?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: The answer is no. The percentage of recurrent expenditure that is being taken up by way of salaries has been declining since 1994.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: I know—

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town, since you asked the same question twice—

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Not only that, sir, I know that we need to move on. However, I need to get this clear if you don't mind. I understand what the Honourable Member just said, but if that is the case, then perhaps we need to change the answer whereby we are saying that personal emoluments have retained over the last five years basically the same percentage of recurrent expenditure.

If recurrent expenditure has gone up by 25% in five years, and personal emoluments have retained the same percentage of that, then it should follow. I am not saying that what the Member is saying is not so, I am just asking for that area to be clarified.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: If the Honourable Member will recall what I said, firstly, I prefaced my answer by saying that I did not have the exact figures on hand. I said they could be between 50 percent to 53 percent; this would take into account a declining factor.

The Honourable Member should also bear in mind that what would impact upon recurrent expenditure prior to.... It should also be borne in mind that the Hospital which at one point in time was a statutory authority, was brought back in as a department of Government. This would also affect recurrent expenditure. Previously the amount of money that was going out was shown as a grant. Since it has been brought back in... and as we know, the Hospital carries a considerable amount of recurrent expenditure and also a significant component of that would have to do with salaries to staff members.

The Speaker: We will now move on to question 149, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for West Bay.

DEFERRAL OF QUESTIONS NOS. 149 AND 150
Standing Order 23(5)

Mr. W McKeeva Bush: I have an understanding with the Minister for Health that questions 149 and 150 will be answered on Wednesday.

The Speaker: Okay, then, in accordance with Standing Order 23(5)—The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: That's what I was going to do, Mr. Speaker. I beg the suspension of Standing Order 23(5) for these two questions to be deferred until a later date in this meeting, specifically Wednesday.

The Speaker: The question is the suspension of Standing Order 23 (5) for these two questions to be deferred until a later sitting. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: QUESTIONS NOS. 149 AND 150 DEFERRED UNTIL A LATER SITTING.

The Speaker: Moving on to question 151, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for West Bay.

QUESTION 151

No. 151: Mr. W McKeeva Bush asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport to give an indication of what income-bracket tourists are being targeted by the Government's tourism advertising policy.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: The current advertising policy targets the affluent upscale warm weather visitors who earn in excess of US$75,000 per annum per household.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I wonder if the Honourable Minister is in a position to give an indication of the percentage of contribution to our GDP, or to revenue from those tourists who overnight, as compared to the tourists who arrive on cruise ships?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I do not have the statistics in front of me but from memory I can say that the contribution of visitors who arrive by air is in the range of $350 million, and the contribution of visitors who arrive by cruise ship is in the range of $20 million.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I wonder if the Honourable Minister could further say if the revenue received from tourism—since our economy is divided into two parts, financial and tourism—whether that is inter-linked, and whether the downturn in one could affect the other.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I think there are substantial linkages between the financial industry operations and those who come to carry out business whether to attend board of directors' meetings or to visit their operation in the Cayman Islands. Some time ago ... and I don't believe that this is an actual figure, but a figure that has been used rather loosely is that 30% to 40% of the visitors who arrive by air are business-connected. Obviously any downturn in any one of those sectors, or the pillars of our economy, tourism and financial industry, will affect the other.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: In the original answer the Minister mentioned that the current advertising targets the affluent, up-scale, warm weather visitors who earn in excess of US$75,000 per annum per household. I wonder if the Honourable Minister can say whether or not they have been able to monitor the effectiveness of this particular policy in regard to the up-scale visitor?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: The Department of Tourism on an annual basis carries out an airport exit survey in which the person who is conducting the survey asks a variety of questions to departing passengers who arrived by air at Owen Roberts International Airport. Recently they have also been working in Cayman Brac.

As a result of the number of questions answered by visitors, we can certainly say that the statistics bear out that the Cayman Islands has a reception by visitors that is difficult to be equalled by any other country in the Caribbean and perhaps even the world. We have statistics that show that the Cayman Islands is doing well in terms of the visitors it is attracting. But obviously we have both the bitter and the sweet because on a number of occasions the visitors do have unpleasant incidents which happen at a meal or anything of that sort. That too comes out in the survey, so it is not always loaded with the sweet.

In addition, the results of the survey also bear out that a great percentage of persons visiting the Cayman Islands are university graduates, professional people and people in that upper echelon that the Member referred to in his supplementary question.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? If there are no further supplementaries, the next question is 152, standing in the name of the Member for North Side.

QUESTION 152

No. 152: Mrs. Edna Moyle asked the Honourable Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs to state how many hours per day and days per week is the North Side Police Station manned.

DEFERRAL OF QUESTION NO. 152 Standing Order 23(5)

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: In accordance with

The Speaker: The question is the suspension of Standing Order 23(5) to defer question 152 until Wednesday. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: QUESTION NO. 152 DEFERRED UNTIL WEDNESDAY'S SITTING.

The Speaker: Moving on to question 153, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for West Bay.

QUESTION 153

No. 153: Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr. asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport to provide details on the number of staff of the Department of Tourism, (locally and overseas) who have resigned, were terminated or have left through transfer to other Government Departments since January 1993.

DEFERRAL OF QUESTION NO. 153 Standing Order 23(5)

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Regrettably the computer operating in the Department of Tourism is down this morning and unable to produce the data required to answer this question, but I undertake to answer it on Wednesday.

The Speaker: Do you want to defer it?

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I ask that it be deferred until Wednesday.

The Speaker: The question is that under Standing Order 23(5) this question be deferred. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED. QUESTION NO. 153 DEFERRED

The Speaker: Moving on to question 154, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION 154

No. 154: Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport to give an update on the proposed installation of permanent moorings in the George Town harbour.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: The Port Authority, in its deliberations on the damage to the Finger Pier at the George Town dock and its discussions with the cruise-lines, decided to give priority to enhance the ability of the Port Authority to deal effectively with the growth of cargo and passengers over the next 15 to 20 years. It therefore decided to proceed with the extension of the George Town facility as a priority over the installation of permanent moorings.

The installation of permanent moorings continue to be discussed with cruise line officials at the technical level and further discussions will be required prior to finalising plans for their installation.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister say if the decision still remains that these permanent moorings will be installed, or whether there may be some re-thinking on that based on other factors which have come into play?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: The answer to that supplementary is that the installation of permanent moorings may happen or it may not happen given the present discussions with the cruise line. When we've gotten to the technical stage of the discussion, it appears that there are some concerns being raised by cruise lines that will require further discussion before we can finalise it one way or the other.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W McKeeva Bush: Can the Honourable Minister say whether it was intended that the extension of the Finger Pier could accommodate cruise lines?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: The Finger Pier has obviously been damaged. We decided not to use a band-aid approach and to repair it. We do know that it is inadequate to deal with the size of the ships that call at George Town on a weekly basis.

The decision was taken to extend the Finger Pier with a view to providing facilities for the people of this country for the next 15 to 20 years which will also allow the Port Authority to efficiently deal with cargo distribution within this country.

The Finger Pier will have a length of 360 feet and will be 120 feet wide. It will allow us to take alongside on the north side of the Finger Pier the ship, which I think is Morrant Bay, very easily. It will also allow two ships on the south side: The one nearest the land will need to have a low draught (maybe the barge that plies between Grand Cayman and Little Cayman), and the second ship which would be behind that. So, given that kind of configuration the Port Authority would be in the position to discharge three ships simultaneously.

I need to go on to say that the draught at the end of the day alongside the dock will be inadequate to deal with the cruise ships coming alongside unless it is a special little boat that draws little draught.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Can the Honourable Minister say why, if the establishment of permanent moorings was a priority in the National Team's manifesto, it has now come to the background of priorities for the National Team Government?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I think we all, as politicians, should understand that a manifesto is what you expect to do. When you move on to implementation there are many variables that can change your mind about the priority—one of those priorities being if your Finger Pier is damaged it is the heart and soul and entrance to the Cayman Islands of goods and services. It seems to me that that is more important at this particular stage than moving on with permanent moorings. So, if we are going to spend $8 million to deal with the Finger Pier I believe that that is more important than dealing with permanent moorings at the present time and we will try to sort out what in essence happened with the installation of permanent moorings.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: The opinion of the Minister is consoling. I would like to ask if there has been on the other hand any information which deals with the permanent moorings -- if they have taken a second position in regard to priorities, and if in fact the extension of the pier has taken [the] priority, what type of scientific information has been made available to the Minister to suggest that this should happen from the point of view of what is happening to the marine environment?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: We employed, and I think we have gone over this first bit with Members of the Legislative Assembly, consultants to help us to decide on the installation of permanent moorings and where exactly they would be placed. The answer came back that they should be placed almost exactly where they are anchoring today, one, two and three, starting from the north coming south, which the second one would be almost directly across from the Port building, and the third a little bit to the left if you were looking out to sea. The fourth buoy would be somewhere in the area of Eden Rock, a little bit further south.

The recommendation that came back from the consultants recommended single point mooring where you bore down through the ocean floor 30' to 40' and you then put a concrete slab on top of that connected by angle iron and you would attach your mooring buoy to it.

When we talk about cruise lines the officials in the office obviously have a view: the captain is the primary person to decide whether he is going to use the buoy or not. We want to be sure that if we are going to spend $6 million to put down permanent moorings that they are going to be used.

Secondly, on various occasions the cruise ships come into the harbour and deploy both anchors at the bow. That is what the captains would like to have. If four permanent moorings are going to cost in the range of $6 million, what is the price it will cost if we have to do eight?

That is the concern we have, and we have to work this out with the cruise lines. If it is decided that they wish to have eight buoys rather than four, I believe we are going to reach the point where Government will have to take the decision that that is prohibitive in terms of what to do.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W McKeeva Bush: In the substantive answer the Minister said that the priority is to enhance the ability of the Port Authority to deal effectively with the growth of cargo and passengers over the next 15 to 20 years. Is it then the view of Government or the Port Authority to deal effectively with cruise ships coming alongside? Is this what he is talking about? At least in their vision for the next 15 to 20 years?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I think I can follow up my reply to the Fourth Elected Member for George Town by saying to the First Elected Member for West Bay -- and given that we are asking the question, What will be the total cost of deploying eight buoys instead of four, if four cost $6 million? We have a decision to take whether it is going to cost almost the same amount to do a dock which would be used by a cruise ship. I think that is the decision we have to take before we deal with the installation of permanent moorings.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Just this final supplementary. We know that we have an environmental impact fee in regard to the cruise ships. That was definitely one of the revenue enhancement measures done back in 1996. What is being done with this money? Could not some of this money be put into a fund to see that something is done in the area being used by the cruise ships since a substantial amount of this money is coming from cruise ship passengers? Has the Minister considered this an alternative to saying that it is too expensive, or that we need to do something more important since consideration for the environment is what the tourists are paying for and what people thought the tax was for?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: The environmental fund that was created where these payments by cruise line are put into a separate account, it was from that fund that we would help to repay the cost of installation of permanent moorings. If we take the decision—and this is not a Government decision, I am just talking off my own back—to install one or two permanent moorings in Spotts rather than in George Town, then I believe the funds from the environmental fund could be used for that purpose. I am just giving that as a possible answer to the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I believe that the Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport in answering supplementaries stated that the cost to install four of the permanent moorings was something like $6 million. I am not sure whether he stated that this cost could not be easily recouped or whether he said that there were revenue enhancement methods in consideration to try to recoup that cost. I wonder if he could clarify this particular situation.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: The recouping of that cost is the reason why the funds are being taken from the environmental fund. We increased the fee paid by the cruise lines for their passengers which would assist us environmentally with the installation of permanent moorings. Although the Port is authorised to borrow the loan, the Government has given an undertaking that it would service the loan from the environmental fund which is contributed to by the cruise lines by additional tax.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Slightly off that subject, can the Honourable Minister say, considering the area now used by the cruise ship for mooring is considered a sacrificed area, whether the consultants who were employed were given a term of reference to consider any form of alternative docking facilities and whether any revenue enhancement measures were considered for that alternative so as to make it cost effective?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: The honest answer is that we were concentrating on George Town. Therefore there was no reference to other areas. There is always the possibility to add other areas to it.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Just to clear up the supplementary: The information I was trying to solicit from the Minister was whether any consideration had been given to an alternative form of docking facilities, i.e., as to opposed to moorings whether any dockside facilities were being considered in view of the configuration now being given to the docking facilities, and if so, whether this might be considered cost effective.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I guess I could ask the Third Elected Member for George Town if he conducted such a proposal. But that would not be my style. [inaudible interjections]

This subject is not new. The installation of permanent moorings in George Town has been talked about for the last ten to fifteen years. The present Government decided to move forward to understand how it could actually install these permanent moorings in an effort to assist the marine environment, realising of course that the marine environment in George Town, although it is a marine park, is also a port, and all sorts of activities go on within it.

What we hoped to achieve was to cause the marine environment to return to something beautiful in a number of years. In that particular movement, we also received a Master Port Development plan which we were attempting to follow. It also speaks to the installation of permanent moorings. It also speaks to the construction of a cruise ship dock.

But one of the things my father always told me, and he likened it this way, "Never put your hat where you can't reach it." Financially, I think it is wise to do that. It is important that we deal with one matter at a time, taking into consideration that the Port and its borrowing and the enhancement of the dock facility in George Town is the priority at this particular time. As we move down the road, obviously cruise ship docking will become an item which this Government, or some future Government, will have to consider before too long.

The Speaker: One final supplementary. The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: The Honourable Minister, having given that lengthy answer, I wonder if he could basically answer my supplementary by stating whether consideration was given to an alternative method during this study. That was my supplementary.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: As I understand it, the consultants who were looking at the master port development project over the ten-year period did consider a variety of alternatives.

The Speaker: This concludes Question Time for this morning. Proceedings are suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12.27 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Item number 4 on today's Order Paper, Other Business, Private Members' Motions. Private Member's Motion No. 17/98, Proposed Ritz-Carlton Hotel West Bay Road to be moved by the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

OTHER BUSINESS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 17/98

PROPOSED RITZ-CARLTON HOTEL WEST BAY ROAD

Dr. Frank McField: I beg to move Private Member's Motion No. 17/98:

"WHEREAS on 17th July, 1998, the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works laid on the Table of this Honourable House papers proposing to extend the present lease of Block 12C, Parcel 215; Block 12C, Parcel 11; and Block 12C, Parcel 216, in the West Bay Section of Grand Cayman and to allow entities to develop these Crown lands;

"BE IT NOW THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT the report laid on the Table by the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works on 17th July, 1998, concerning Government's proposal to grant permission to these entities to utilise Crown Lands, namely Block 12C, Parcel 215; Block 12C, Parcel 11; and Block 12C, Parcel 216, in the West Bay Section of Grand Cayman, for the development of a Ritz Carlton, be rejected;

"AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED THAT the entities be granted permission to demolish the present Holiday Inn hotel and construct another HOTEL only on Block 12C, Parcel 11, on which it presently stands;

"AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED THAT the Government exercises its power under section 33 of the Development and Planning Law (1995 Revision) to acquire that portion of the properties designated as Public Open Space under the Development Plan 1997 and assign this said property to the National Trust of the Cayman Islands.

"AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED THAT the Government assign to the National Trust all that undeveloped land as identified above, to take effect on the expiry of the present lease, to be held undisturbed on behalf of the people of the Cayman Islands in perpetuity;"

The Speaker: Is there a seconder? The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I respectfully beg to second the motion.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 17/98 having been duly moved and seconded is now open for debate. The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: In speaking to this proposal by Government to divest lands belonging to the people of the Cayman Islands, I would first of all like to bring to the attention of this Honourable House the fact that the report as required by the Governor (Vesting of Lands) Law (1998 Revision) was tabled on 17 November 1998 (sic) by the Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment Communications and Works.

I think it is important also to note that a day before that, this Legislative Assembly had voted a resolution of no confidence in the management and political conduct of the said Minister who laid the following day these papers on the Table of the Legislative Assembly.

The Speaker: May I interrupt you for just one moment please? I think the Hansard of this House clearly indicates the result of that motion and I would ask that you not deal with that motion. That motion was clearly dealt with, the vote was not taken on confidence. You and I have discussed that and I ask that you not bring that into this debate.

The Fourth Elected Member for George Town, please continue.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, in addition to what the Minister laid on the Table of the Legislative Assembly and the memorandum he first laid on the Table on 17 July, it seems that on 29 July 1998 he also laid on the Table of the House some additional information or papers which concern the terms for the lease extension.

The memorandum dated 29 July 1998 reads: "Subject: Ritz-Carlton Report. This letter is to confirm that the accompanying contract documents are supplied with regards to the report tabled in the Legislative Assembly on 17 July 1998 in connection with the proposed Ritz-Carlton project. These contract documents while not required under law to be included in the report are being submitted in an effort to supply full transparency and disclosure in this matter. I trust that you will be in a position to provide Members with copies of these contract documents along with the substantive report."

What is being suggested here is in fact that the additional documents that were supplied ... and there is no list here of the additional documents that were supplied in this memorandum dated 29 July so we really would not be able to know what additional documents are being supplied or what documents were supplied on the 17th.

The reason I am mentioning this is because there seems to be an assumption that the documents are being supplied simply because the Minister is interested in proving the transparency of the deal. Now, I will argue that the documents that the Minister supplied in addition to those which he supplied on the 17th are in fact required by law. I note that one senior Crown Counsel just shook his head to say my interpretation is incorrect. But, it is a point of interpretation here.

Of course, we know it is not a court of Law, but I would assume that somehow when the Government Members get up to argue, that they will in fact be arguing that the concerns of this Legislative Assembly with this disposition of land, should not be with the contractual side of it. Yet I am saying that the contractual side of it has to do with the terms in which we will be giving up this land. So, if we are dealing with the terms of any agreement, definitely the terms of the agreement are going to be important in considering whether or not we go along with the agreement.

I also assume that this debate will not be made very easy because it comes at a time when we find that there is a greater need in this country for Members of the Backbench to distinguish themselves by being opposed to the way in which the National Team Government and the National Team Backbench continue to ignore the wishes of the people.

This mangrove we will be dealing with was part of the land which the Government proposes to dispose of: the land which is directly across from the site where the Holiday Inn was. This land represents some hundred and so acres that will be used to construct condominiums in the area -- 138 acres, that is parcel 215, is the area. I am very concerned about the Government—the National Team Government—and its Backbench desire to destroy this one of the two last areas of undisturbed mangrove in this part of the Cayman Islands. I am very concerned with this.

I have said in my motion that I do not oppose the construction of a hotel on the site in which the Holiday Inn was located. As a matter of fact, my motion says that permission should be granted for the construction of a Ritz-Carlton (or a hotel of that particular calibre) on this particular beach land -- the construction of a hotel only on this particular side. It goes on to say that the destruction of the mangrove on the opposite side of the road should not be encouraged; should not be ratified by the Government, or in this case, by the Legislative Assembly.

My understanding of the Governor (Vesting of Lands) Law, and, of course, not being a lawyer, I would not be able to understand and interpret this particular part of our legislation to the extent that the Government Attorney General and his support staff might be able to interpret it, but I believe that my opinion here is as good as anyone else's, otherwise the exercise of actually having the power to debate this motion in the Legislative Assembly would have no useful purpose, if we cannot at this particular time say no to this Government's proposal to negate the possibility of this mangrove being destroyed.

Therefore, I believe that the Governor (Vesting of Lands) Law speaks and gives the possibility for the democratic process to function properly, that in this particular sense... like with the dredging motion where we brought policy decisions in dredging when we took it away basically from the executive branch of Government and brought it back to the legislative branch of Government.

So, if I am to anticipate some of the arguments that will attempt to say that we are dealing with policy decisions and that policy decisions should rest in the hands of the five Members of the Executive Council, then I am saying that I don't believe it would make any sense to be discussing this particular situation at this time if the final decision was not in the hands of this Legislative Assembly. If the final decision is in the hands of the Members of the Legislative Assembly the people still have hope.

It is important that all of those persons who have been duly elected by the people of the Cayman Islands listen to the desires and to the suggestions of the people; to listen to the people's concern in regard to this proposal, in regard to the most negative aspects of this proposal being the destruction of 138 acres of undisturbed mangrove across the street from where the Holiday Inn once stood.

The Vision 2008 exercise that was tabled in this Honourable House states clearly that the people of the Cayman Islands do not want to have the mangroves destroyed. On the part of the Vision 2008 priorities that deal with development and environment, it is clearly stated that the people would like to slow the pace of development and better integrate environmental concerns into planning; that the people would like consideration of a temporary moratorium on new development on the Seven Mile Beach. On environment, the people speak clearly that they would like to save the mangroves from being cut down, and that they would like to protect the North Sound.

So it will be pretty hard for the Government today, tomorrow, or Wednesday when they make their final decisions. It will be very hard for Members in this Legislative Assembly, Backbenchers of the National Team and others, to say that they do not know what the people want in regard to this particular proposal from the National Team Government.

All Members have had access to this document because it was tabled in this Honourable House by the Leader of Government Business, the Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning. We all know that this survey was recently done. We all know that the voice of the people should be stronger than the voice of a few; that the voice of 15 Elected Members of this Legislative Assembly should in this case not supersede in terms of importance the voices of the great majority of Caymanian people and other people who are saying that the mangroves are important to their environment and to the economy of the Cayman Islands.

If the National Team Government is willing to dispose of this piece of Crown Land -- this piece of land belonging to the people of the Cayman Islands—so that the trees can be cut down, and the mangroves can be cut down in defiance of the will of the people of this country, then how are they going to tell Mr. Bob Dart later on that he cannot destroy the last remaining patch of undisturbed mangrove in this particular area? We should lead by example. Are we then saying that what we are doing will just cut and engineer ways for Mr. Bob Dart to get his project through? And that we in this island of Grand Cayman will be stuck with two big developments of this magnitude happening at the same time?

The people are lost already. They cannot find their way. They are fast becoming strangers in their own homeland. Yet the Government of these islands -- the National Team Government—and its Backbench supporters continue to do things that will alienate the people more and more from what belongs to them—their cultural heritage and the natural environment that created the kind of maritime community that we are so proud of. Those of us who speak of the Caymanian maritime tradition and how proud it made us, are now so anxious to embrace other traditions that we destroy everything that once supported that tradition.

I find it disturbing that a Government that is now in the second year of a second term, a Government that has gotten so much confidence from the people in the 1992 and 1996 elections, a Government that I was very much in sympathy with when I ran, and when I was elected, and when I came in here voted along with them in terms of raising revenue measures in this Legislative Assembly because I believed them. I believed that they were for the best interest of the people and that they were listening to the people. But I have come to the conclusion that they do not listen to the people and that I would be ill-advised if I did not scrutinise everything they brought to this Legislative Assembly that was of major importance in regard to the type of effects it would have on other aspects of our Caymanian society. A project of this magnitude is not the same as voting on a moratorium for liquor licences for West Bay.

Of course it is important that we have this. Of course it is important that the Government cooperates and shows its ability to recognise the need for the moratorium. But it is even more important for the Government to vote in such a way, or to behave in such a way to show its support for maintaining the mangroves because the people want the mangroves to be maintained. If the mangroves are maintained it would not mean economic destruction for the Cayman Islands, it would not mean that things would slow [down]—not in this particular case—because everybody knows that we have a very buoyant economy at present. Everybody wanting to work finds work at the moment. So who are we developing for?

What I have said about Mr. Bob Dart's entry into the scene applying for permission to dredge for Cayman Shores [is that he is] following the exact pattern of the Ryan group in doing stage applications rather than coming out and saying 'This is my master plan, this is what I want, this is what I need.' But, no, they apply for a little piece here and a little piece there, and once they expand and have their foot in the door they know they can go further and further. It is interesting that at this particular time we would get this request to dredge, to excavate, to rip out of the bowels of our country the trees that give us life and godliness. I continue to believe that there is a conspiracy which goes on, which allows these things to happen. They are planned because when you look at one action and look at the other action you know there is a plan of how to get things done.

The will of the people is the Constitution of a country, not the will of the politicians. I am hoping that the people will speak loud now, tomorrow, and in the year 2000 about their disobedient servants: the Members of this Legislative Assembly. The people need to speak loudly because a servant cannot follow the instructions of the master unless the master gives those instructions loud enough, and clear enough so that the servants will know the master's bidding. I think that the people of the Cayman Islands have made their wishes quite clear in Vision 2008 in this particular exercise.

Mr. Speaker, there is a lot to be said.

The Speaker: When you reach a convenient point where we could break for lunch, would you advise me please?

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I can break for lunch now.

The Speaker: I don't want to break your train of thought. So, if this is convenient we shall suspend until 2.15 PM.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.55 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.15 PM

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Before we suspended for lunch, I was trying to outline why I have brought this Private Member's motion to say no to the proposed extension to 99 years for a lease that would allow certain entities to be able to develop the lands mainly across the road from the present site of the Holiday Inn. Because, Mr. Speaker, of the importance of this area of mangroves I am of the opinion that the Government is making a decision that is detrimental to public good and public interest and is contrary to public opinion.

I stated in fact that if Government goes ahead and extends the lease allowing the destruction of the mangroves directly across the street from the Holiday Inn which is some 138 acres of undisturbed mangroves, that this is a clear indication that the Government in its own example is giving some type of [approval] to Mr. Ken Dart to do a similar development in one of the last remaining areas of undisturbed mangroves in this same vicinity of George Town.

Mr. Speaker, if the Government is not sensitive enough to the importance of the mangrove let me in an attempt to gain their support for this motion, read briefly some of the importance, or significance of the mangrove.

"The mangrove are known to play a role in rain-fall, ground water resources, agriculture, long term climate change, tourism, recreation and economically important wildlife. It is an integral part of our North Sound ecosystem which depends on nutrients from the mangrove in order to carry out its function as the breeding ground and nursery for marine life. The North Sound in turn supports recreational and traditional fisheries and economically important ecotourism industry."

Mr. Speaker, in September of 1992, just a few months before the National Team came to power, a Ten-Year Development Plan for 1992-2002 was presented to the Portfolio of Tourism, Aviation and Trade. This report correctly stated: "There is a lack of a method of placing a reasonable value on the environment. Since at the individual level no one really owns the environment, it has not been given true market value. We care more about the environment we own than the environment that is collectively ours."

"There is a lack of understanding of how development is fully linked to the environment. For example, it will be necessary to link tourism growth and development to the caring capacity of dive sites."

"There is a lack of understanding of how the environment is linked and in fact is essential to tourism. These and other reasons often prevent real action in environmental protection and enhancement strategies are needed to address these barriers."

This recommended the continuation of the Seven Mile Beach moratorium until the environmental issues were addressed. The National Team Minister for Tourism did not actually follow these recommendations, in fact, the National Team Government actively encouraged the development of the Westin Hotel while downplaying environmental initiatives.

So, what we have here is the fact that as early as 1992 when the Tourism Development Plan was given to the Ministry for Tourism, we had a document paid for by the people of the Cayman Islands to give them an idea as to how they could best continue their economic development without destroying their cultural heritage and their environment. It says clearly that one of the suggestions was the fact that the moratorium which was in effect at that particular time on the building of hotels along the Seven Mile Beach area be continued.

The Government that came into power not only removed that moratorium by allowing the Westin Hotel to be built, but the Government continued, it appears to not follow the advice of this recommendation in that it did not see the commissioning of an environmental impact study necessary for the creation of sound environmental enhancement policies. So even when we come to the issue of dredging in the North Sound there is still no environmental impact study that is available to legislators and members of the general public in order to make an intelligent and an informed decision as to the pros and cons of certain destruction of ecologically sensitive assets or resources.

It is important that we also note that in this particular tourism study the presentation took account of what it [considers] to be the importance of the Cayman Islands as a distinct destination. It says:

“It is essential, absolutely critical, for it to be recognised that substantial tourism development is a matter of the quality of the experience offered and the position to be secured in the market place. Cayman is not Nassau, it is not Las Vegas, it is not Miami, it must build its product on the basis of quality, on the basis of protecting and enhancing the natural and cultural environment that tourists come to enjoy.

“One has only to look at what memories and experiences tourists seek, one only has to look at the mistakes elsewhere to see how Cayman’s attraction to tourists could be lost by not paying attention to the environment. The uniqueness of the Cayman identity cannot be allowed to become ordinary, tourists will go elsewhere.

“In summary, the environmental recommendations that relate to tourism for the Cayman Islands include an environmental protection and enhancement leadership role as it relates to tourism and tourism management including a method of placing a reasonable value on the environment.”

In placing a reasonable value on the environment the question is: Is the Government in this proposal they are making, placing a reasonable value on the environment? It is my opinion that the Government is totally without any kind of idea as to what the real significance of the natural environment, the cultural environment is. In destroying the natural environment, we also destroy the cultural environment.

How can we say that we are interested in protecting Caymanian culture and Caymanian heritage when at the same time we note that the destruction of the natural environment goes to show a lack of us using as a way of making decisions the culture and heritage of the people. In other words, we are not using the value system of Caymanians when we decide to destroy the mangroves that support the North Sound.

That is not using the value system of Caymanians. If we even go to West Bay, we will find that people will tell us the importance of the North Sound and the way the North Sound has supported their social and cultural lives, and has really been the economic basis for their cultural heritage. So to remove the support for their social/cultural heritage would also be an attack against that heritage.

So we cannot have people believing that the destruction of the mangrove is simply a physical destruction. It is a cultural destruction, it is a spiritual destruction, it is a religious instruction, it is a destruction of the total life form of Caymanians... I know that the First Elected Member for West Bay with his interest would laugh at this, but we will get to that as I go along.

The picture I am painting here is that it is no small action for the Government to come and say we are going to destroy one of the last remaining areas of undisturbed mangrove in these Islands. And to do this, not as a result of the fact that the Cayman Islands’ people are desirous of having a project of this nature take place at this particular time, but to do so simply because an investor has come into the islands and approached certain persons in regard to the possibility of this project happening.

So what initiates this decision is not the desire of the Cayman Islands people, nor the consciousness of the Cayman Islands Government to better the standard of living for Caymanians, but the fact that an investor has come into this Island with a whole view of bettering his own life and the lives of his children.

It is important from the beginning, the catalyst, what causes this particular proposal to be debated in this country. What has caused it to come this far? Not the hunger of the Cayman Islands’ people, not the needs of the Cayman Islands’ people, not the wishes of the Cayman Islands’ people, not the opinions of the Cayman Islands’ people.

What type of country are we living in where one man who does not come from among us, can come and say, ‘I would like this to happen’ and all of a sudden he has access to the door, and to this office; to this person; to this board; access to this and that; he can get things done in this country; he can move mountains and create wonders that Caymanians themselves would wish were possible to do, or that some of their elected representatives could do in representing them?

Money? Is that it? Is this about money? Whose wealth is it about? Individual wealth? Private wealth? Public wealth? What is it about? What started the ball rolling eighteen months or so ago? What caused there to be such a great interest in this project when, for instance, Mr. Ken Dart had already sometime ago laid out to certain Members of the Legislative Assembly and Ministers his idea of doing a similar project? Of using the other piece of undisturbed mangrove on this West Bay peninsula to create a 200 acre development—a similar concept.

From the time the people heard about this idea they said, ‘No, we don’t want this in the Cayman Islands, we don’t need it right now, we believe that that physical destruction of the mangrove, that the creation of this physical jungle, that at the moment this would make us really strangers in our own country and would bring in so many different people so many different ways of life, it would bring in so many different values and ideas an interests that at the end of the day we would not be able to manage and hold on to those values that are sacred to the Caymanian people.’

The people spoke about that. The Tourism study done in 1992 gave us an idea that if we continued to not plan tourism with thinking in terms of the tourist’s experience which means the experience the tourists get from the people, get from the environment resembling the people and what the people had traditionally that we might be losing at the end of the day.

The Vision 2008 exercise tells us again that this idea is not a popular idea among the people, yet the government has been seen to be rushing in here one day before the Parliament closed on 17 July, before we adjourned that particular sitting, to be able to table this in order to get this particular legislation through in order to be able to meet the requirement of this particular Governor (Vesting of Lands) Law. I wish that I could get the Government of this country to move as fast to support me in what I am trying to do for the people of this country as the Government of this country has moved to support this particular developer.

We have the SafeHaven project... If we look at the Yacht Club project and read all of the promises – all that they were going to do there at the Cayman Islands Yacht Club, and look at it -- maybe we should suspend and take a look around. Maybe that is what legislators need to do if they are not familiar with the way in which their natural resources have been mutilated, mutilated, mutilated!

Mr. Speaker, we go to SafeHaven, we go to the Yacht Club, we go to Salt Creek, we go up to Rackley's Canal, go up there by the Lions Centre, whatever that is called now that big development there, we would go and see that our soil is bear. It reminds me of what one poet said, "We must build our lands to stay that in departing we will not leave behind soil which has washed away. When our sons assume the mortgage on this land that's had our toil, they will not have to ask the question 'Here's the land but where's the soil?'"

Mr. Speaker, where is the substance? Where's the earth that belongs to the people who have inhabited these islands for a very long time? Where are our spirits supposed to go? Where are they supposed to dwell in this earthly place?

We do not need another mutilation of the Cayman Islands. We can wait. If it must happen we can wait a bit longer. There was no desire on the part of the people. The desire came from elsewhere. They went to the Government, or they went to certain Members and said, 'We'd like to do this, and these are the terms we'd like to have; and if you give us this, we'll give you this.' You know, this is. . . . Who is this person? Who is this person who can come and order our Government to sit? Because the Government has to sit with this person in order to do something that is absolutely necessary for the people of the Cayman Islands? No. The Government had better business to do than that.

We need to look at the fact that if the Government takes our land and extends the lease for 99 years, and the Ryan developers or other entities are able to destroy the mangrove to build a golf course and over 300 condominiums on that particular side near the North Sound, if they are able to do that, if we are allowing that on land that belonged to the people, on land that has not been alienated from the people, what do we say about land that was in private hands? Land that is in private hands—the 200 or so acres that Mr. Ken Dart would like to develop.

We have to look at these two things together. We have to understand that if we set a precedent now by taking the people's land and mutilating it, when somebody else who has invested in this country comes to do it, it is going to be very difficult for the Government to say no. When you vote on this, you are voting for both projects.

Those that are for this proposal are for both proposals. It will be very difficult to convince people in the year 2000 that any difference was meant. It is important to see the interconnection between things. So, I would like for the Government to withdraw their proposal. I would like for the Government to listen to the voices of its people. I would like for the Government to follow the direction of the people and say no to this proposal.

I know that the proposal has come from the Executive Council in regard to the extension of the lease. I understand that Executive Council in terms of collective responsibility has already decided that the five Members elected by this Parliament to be Members of Executive Council have in fact made a decision. I would believe that there is no reason why the Official Members should have any particular interest in this project.

So like everything else, whatever decision is made by the Governor in Council it is a political decision because the majority of the persons making the decisions are Elected Members. So it is the Elected Members who we must hold accountable for this destruction when it happens, if it happens, if they allow it to happen. We must begin to send them a message as to what the price will be for this because the people must charge them a price for not listening to the concerns and opinions of the people in regard to this very important issue.

I believe that we don't live in a dictatorship. I believe, and I have come in here before and felt that I somehow have helped the Government to make the right decision. I believe with my faith that I can help the Government again to make a very important decision by causing them to see the flaw in not listening to the people.

We all know, because we all had access to the Vision 2008 exercise that the priorities of the people have [inaudible --spoke away from microphone]. People were questioning the rate of development and the question was 'Over the past ten years do you think the rate of development in the Cayman Islands has been too fast, too slow, or have the Cayman Islands been developed at the right pace?' Among all respondents, 74% felt that the Cayman Islands had developed too fast.

The exercise is: Who can win an election in the year 2000? Let us look politically at this. Who is going to win an election against 74%? Some people might say, 'Oh, they weren't Caymanians.' Who knows who said it? But I bet you that Caymanians believe that there is no urgent need at this time to destroy those two remaining patches of mangrove on the West Bay peninsula. I believe that older Caymanians also know the importance of those mangroves to sustaining the marine life that we need in order to attract tourists. So, let us not laugh. Seventy-four per cent know that development has been very important to them and their families, yet they are saying that it has been too fast over the last ten years. I think that is a good message.

Now, in regard to the rate of development, the question was "Do you think the rate at which the Cayman Islands is being developed should be controlled and regulated, or should it be allowed to continue as it has in the past?" Among all respondents 90% said controlled and regulated. This is a clear message.

Now we don't have to be stubborn like the Dignity Government between 1988 and 1992 when there was a question about the hospital. They said, 'I will do it! I'm the Government.' We don't have to be that way. The Government doesn't have to have that attitude because we know from example what the people will then do if we do what the people don't want us to do: The people will [say] "Out!"

I could have come and said to myself, like some politicians like to do, 'Oh, let's hide this from the Government. Let's not tell the Government how the people feel because then the Government will make a mistake and get voted out and then we'll get voted in.' But I am not that kind of person. I come here and I share all the information with you, just as I share the information with the people, so that you can know.

Of course we know that you had access to the same information, but in case people did not have the time ... because I know that Ministers are very busy with their jobs.

I am a full-time MLA, I sit in my office from 8.30 in the morning. I have time to read and research these things. So I have had a [chance] to look through and I would just like to bring to the attention of Ministers in particular that the people are against this project.

I have said that the people are against this project because of the ecological reasons. I also think the people are against the project because they realise that development has been just too fast.

Now, another important point: If development is supposed to continue at a growth of 7% per annum, this increased growth, it would mean that by the year 2008 when this exercise is supposed to be terminated, that we will have 80,000 people living on these islands according to some estimates. And then in another ten years it would be 160,000 people.

So we are not just changing the mangroves and destroying the mangroves, we are changing and destroying the Caymanians. Every Caymanian must realise that every time this destruction takes place it is a destruction that is taking place in regard to Caymanians as well.

Now, I have stayed away a bit from the whole idea of the Ritz-Carlton Hotel simply because I don't necessarily want to challenge the idea of establishing a five-star hotel. But I would say too that if we did establish a five-star hotel because our people needed jobs... and when we look at the statistics we find that in this particular employment in the restaurant and hotel sector that we have a total of 1,206 Caymanians in the hotel/condo and restaurant employment.

So between the hotels the condos and the restaurants we have 1,206 Caymanians. Okay? Now the employed work force (and this was done in 1996) was 19,310 and out of that 19,310 we had 1,202 (sic) Caymanians employed between the hotels the condos and the restaurants. Do we really need to create more jobs in the area of hotels and condos and restaurants? Do we really need more jobs? For whom?

What will the Government say? Will it say, 'Well, we have to look down the line'? Whose line? Down the lining in pockets? There is no basis for anyone to argue that this particular project is of economic importance to the Cayman Islands. Of course, the Financial Secretary who likes to collect duties on imported goods might argue. We have a system whereby we survive from cash—we take cash in and we spend cash just like the common labourer. Basically Government runs just like the common labourer runs his household. I make $250 this week, I spend $250. Well, Government being Government it can borrow a little bit more than the common labourer. So Government actually borrows. But not only does Government spend all the cash Government takes in, but Government also becomes more and more indebted as we can see each year.

What do we say then? Government will always need money. Why? Because Government does not want to take the same kind of discipline that we encourage our citizens to take—save a little money, do without debts, live according to your means, don't always go out there and do things that you don't have the money to pay for. That is what we tell our citizens, but when it comes to Government we say, 'Let's go out and build a civic centre here and a sports club there, and pay for this tourism meeting here, and this airline subsidy here, and do this there, and do this here.' At the end of the day when we run out of money, we go to the people and we get it. But just think that the people are taxed to the max. What we do is we say, 'Let's create another development. Let's destroy some more mangrove, let's encourage them to do this and that.' And you know where that leads to. When we become dependent upon the whole idea that in order for us to pay for what we need we have to encourage development -- we have been doing that for over twenty years.

What that has established for us is a principle way that Government does not want to be controlled by the fact that its tax base is limited because Government says, 'Well, we can give permission to this, and let him have permission to do that and the other thing' without any firm policy as to what kind of repercussions the country will have later on—ten years, twenty years from now—when the younger generation is trying to make their lives and establish itself. No consideration! It is so selfish! It is so short-sighted!

It shows such a lack of emotional intelligence when you say, 'Humph, I have to get it now. I have to be satisfied now. I can't wait until tomorrow. I can't leave nothin' for my children or their children. I have to have it all today because I have a system like a fast car—you put gas in it and it burns it up the faster you go.' Rather than slow the car down, or change the engine size you continue to want to consume more gas and buy more gas. That is basically the scenario about the Government.

I think there are a lot of us desirous of having change in regard to the monetary and fiscal structure of Government. The Honourable Financial Secretary has attested to this by his initiatives in bringing the people from New Zealand down here to look at ways in which we might reform. But, the whole concept that we can get $100 million out of stamp duties, transfer duties and import duties out of this Ritz-Carlton deal, is one of the things that I believe is driving the political rationalisation for it. This is only the political public rationalisation for it because, of course there are other rationalisations for it that might perhaps be a little bit more individualistic. But the public rationalisation for it is the need for money.

Governments in the Cayman Islands have always had the need for money, and will always have the need for money especially if we look at how the Financial Secretary answered the question put to him this morning by the Third Elected Member for George Town in regard to Government spending. If we look at what the Third Elected Member was leading to, then we understand the significance of this deal.

Of course, if there is some 50% increase in expenditure on capital projects, such an increase in regard to recurrent expenditure, the Government will need more and more money. After the Ritz-Carlton project is finished, then we'll need the Ken Dart project. When that is finished we will need the other project until we build; until our people are in the sea and out numbered to an extent that it is no longer tolerable; until the desirability of the Cayman Islands begins to decay because of social problems and political unrest and people begin to go and leave this stuff behind as was done in so many other countries.

No, Mr. Speaker, we are too blessed to believe that blessing does not mean that we use our intelligence. Blessing means that we are blessed in the sense that we have the sense to be able to distinguish and make choices for ourselves. Blessed does not mean that somebody else comes and gives us a little whip every time to do.

No, we have to exercise free will, good judgement and we have to exercise the fact that character is important, sincerity is important. It is important to have a philosophy; to have a world view; to understand that material success is not all. The Bible says that we cannot "live by bread alone." We cannot break the laws and break the traditions and expect, because we are getting bread in Pharaoh's land that all is well. All is not well: we must abide by certain principles of nature and logic without which society would fall apart and we would be in anarchy and decay.

There is no need for the Government to be actively involved in creating incentives, or creating good terms for any developer to develop hotels and condominiums in the Seven Mile Beach area at this particular time. If the Government were doing the development in North Side, or East End, or if the developer were doing this or the Government were making the concessions for development in East End or North Side, I might even have a different position -- perhaps a totally different position. But for the development to be taking place where it is, I can only say that this development cannot be good for the people of the Cayman Islands at this particular time and that the Government cannot demonstrate to me that their decision is based upon looking after the interests of the people of the Cayman Islands. So there must be some other interests that they are looking after. Maybe we will hear about that as the debate develops.

I am quite sure that there will be some individuals who would like to get in here to make me seem like not only am I stupid, but that I shouldn't be here. Those persons who think I shouldn't be here tend to change according to what I say because everybody takes this thing so personal. When people speak they think that somehow it is being spoken against them. I would also say that I do that sometimes so I am not without blame.

One thing I would like to say, which is a point I brought to your attention, Mr. Speaker, in regard to the Register of Interests. I would just like to say that shortly after I was elected, some persons came to me and said, 'Look, we voted for you. Now we would like to have a house.' Some people came and said, 'We voted for you, now we would like to have the little swamp that we bought filled.' Some people came and said, 'We voted for you, we would like to borrow some money.' There were all kinds of requests for things because people felt that because they supported me by way of votes that they should get something in particular from me.

There are also those persons who believe that because we get political donations from persons... and I looked for political donations because I have a great cause--and it becomes greater each day when I see that some Members of this Honourable House find it difficult to separate public and private interests—I beg money from the public. I have done so in my campaigns. I begged money from companies, individuals, whether or not I am doing boxing, I am trying to do scholarship programmes, or whether or not I am trying to do my TV programmes, or whatever, I solicit money and I genuinely accept money. But nobody is going to buy Frank McField. Nobody is going to say because they support me or vote for me that I should behave in any particular manner other than the manner that I feel is righteous.

So I want to make that clear to those individuals who have found it necessary to fax around copies of my register of interests to general members of the public and to even threaten those members and try to intimidate them.

What I am saying is that all of us have connections. But we do not have to make our connections influence us to that extent. There is a difference between being objective and being subjective about a decision. We can clearly see when someone is being objective and when they are not. They don't have to tell us, we can tell. I can sit down and listen to a conversation and decide from looking at the person's background whether or not that person is being objective in regard to that particular discussion or not.

So, that was one little point that I needed to bring in here because I know how people like to make it appear as if he too is a Judas. But, Mr. Speaker, the world needs Daniels, not Judases; there are enough of them! The island here needs a few more Daniels.

In regard to the amount of money that the Government feels is sufficient enough compensation for the extension of this lease to 99 years for all this land, which is US$6 million (they didn't say CI dollars because that would have been a little less, and that would seem less, so they said US$6 million), I believe. But we are communicating in our language system and there is no reason why we should not communicate in CI dollars. The developer can pay us in US, but we should communicate to each other in CI dollars. I'm a Caymanian, that's my currency. Speak to me in that language and not in some other language! So there again, I find it unrefined being told that in their contract—or in the Executive Council paper—that they will receive $6 million US dollars. Very misleading!

So, why is this not enough money? Well, the commission and a valuator, Mr. Speaker—or they had three—one was done by a Government valuator. And Mr. Speaker, this valuation was good for only three months according to the valuator. It really should not be something that—when it was laid on the Table of the Legislative Assembly—that was any more current. My opinion was that it had lapsed at that particular time and that it should never have been tabled as a fulfilment of the Governor (Vesting of Lands) Law. Therefore, I would also like that to be borne in mind so that when the legal minds get up to rebuff my suggestions that they certainly provide me with an explanation as to how, when we are to be formal, we can become so informal.

One of the things that always strikes me as strange, is how Government that is a formal institution can become so informal at times; how things can just be there and you are supposed to know that's the way it is, yet it is a formal institution. I insist on the protocol being followed here and I am saying that when that was placed on the Table it should have been a valid valuation and could not have been a valid valuation if the valuator said it was only valid for three months. So there I think we might have to go back. But I am sure that some of my learned colleagues back here are listening to me and they will pick up on the point, research the point and elaborate the point when they make their contributions.

The valuator says a few strange things. One of the things I think he is trying to say is that he doesn't want to get involved in the political aspect of this. He is saying, and I am basically reading this, that if it was a political decision you wouldn't charge US$6 million. Maybe on an economic level, yes. That is the evaluation. But politically, the Government did not have to take the bare evaluation. I can say that my car is worth $15,000. And there might be some person who is willing to come by and pay me $25,000 for my car, but the valuation is $15,000. What should I take? Should I take the $15,000 if I can get the $25,000? I go for what I can get—the best deal!

Now, can the Government prove that it has tried to get the best deal in this particular sense? No, it can't! Do you know why? Because it has only dealt with one person. It has not given us any indication or any history of having dealt with any other developer.

What will it (the Government) say now? That one developer went to the person who owns the lease and therefore Government did not have anything to do with that, therefore the only thing we are being asked to do is extend the lease to 99 years therefore we don't have anything to do with the agreement that the other two people are making when the lease has to do with covenants? And the covenant which is an agreement we have something to do with? So when two people are making decisions we have to approve of the decisions which those two people have. We cannot withhold without good reason our approving of their negotiations. But it is a very important point that we get involved at some particular point.

So, again, it is not enough for Government to come and say this is the best deal. This is not the best deal. We know that there are other deals out there. There are other people interested in this very beautiful piece of property on the Seven Mile Beach, namely, the property on which the Holiday Inn stood. There are other persons who might have given better conditions. Why was this not investigated? Why did they only go as far as to look at it with this one developer, Mr. Ryan and company? Why? We need to have a good explanation as to why that was a closed House discussion, negotiation and conclusion.

We just saw the two Members for West Bay bring a motion in here in regard to awarding of local contracts which means that if a Government contract is going to be awarded for anything over $100,000 they want to give Caymanians the opportunity to compete for the contract award.

Why is it then that we are not giving Caymanians the ability to compete for this particular award? Why is it that we are not giving other developers that have been here on this island contributing to the development of this island since the 1970s the possibility to compete for the award of this particular contract, which is the extension of the lease? Why? Am I supposed to believe that Mr. Humphrey, the owner of the present lease, values one developer so much more than he values other developers that he would only entertain doing business with one person? Am I supposed to believe this? Will it be explained to me that this is the case?

I have to have an explanation; I request an explanation. The people need to know. If it is so, that this developer was the only developer that Humphreys (Cayman) Limited was willing to deal with, then perhaps it would mean that this particular company is holding the Government of the Cayman Islands for ransom by saying we will only deal with one person. Because if the request is to extend the lease, to change the lease in fact, to amend the lease in such a way, then we know that he should have no right to say this is the only person you can bring for me to deal with if he wants to get rid of the lease.

If Mr. Humphrey is no longer interested in the lease, if he is having economic hardships because the hotel is old ... And we understand that there has been no new hotel built in Bermuda in the past 28 years, we also understand that there has been a request to build a Ritz-Carlton in Bermuda and because of environmental or ecological reasons they turned the parties down. But here we are saying that we are nice enough to Mr. Humphrey to say, 'Look, you can now trade your lease. You can cash in your chips and give it to somebody else and make your big profit.'

When Mr. Greenall got the lease back in 1958 or 1959 Mr. Greenall paid virtually nothing for all of the land that he leased from the people of the Cayman Islands. And people have been able to come and buy into the lease and make profits, and we have not made one penny more in that particular period of time than all the other persons have made on this 50' piece of land. And yet we are going back to do the same thing again?

We are going back to do the same thing to exclude ourselves from ever being able to make any profits in 99 years? Gee, I would not want to imagine what this world will look like in 99 years! I would not want to try to imagine what the value of beach land would be like if its kept clean in 99 years. It might be priceless! With the way in which the world is being polluted, and the way in which the world is becoming more and more populated; with the way in which people have so much disregard for themselves and one another and the environment, a piece of beach land on the Cayman Islands Beach, if it is done in the right way and preserved in the right way it could be worth trillions of dollars!

We can't make land. God made that. We can produce cars out of it, timber, wigs, gowns—all of those things, but we cannot produce land! It is the single most valuable commodity in the world. And people try to put a price on it. I am saying that if the Government of the Cayman Islands were conscious of the importance of that particular resource, it would not be trading it for $6 million—that they at this particular time could, of course, spend, but with a little bit of discipline, do not really need.

The Speaker: Excuse me. Would this be a convenient time to take the afternoon break? We shall suspend proceedings for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.30 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 3.55 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Debate continues on Private Member's Motion No. 17/98. The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: The evaluation data presented by the Government Quantity Surveyor said that the valuation should not be valid for any period longer than three months. I mentioned that before. The date of the valuation, which was signed, was in 19 March 1998. And it was tabled on 17 July 1998. In the evaluation he says, "I do not believe it is therefore possible for the applicants to argue that Government only has this one opportunity to obtain a peak value by permitting their development. My figures tend to suggest that if a similar development was undertaken later then Government could expect a similar return." [page 7]

So, the idea that Government is not benefiting from the lease as it is because the original lease was signed (and I correct myself by saying it was in 1950 rather than 1958 or 1959) with Mr. Greenall, the total amount was paid at that time so Government has not received since that date any additional monies from all the land that form part of this original lease. That is my understanding, at least.

So one argument is that we are not making anything with the land as it is now and therefore to encourage the development of this particular Ritz-Carlton project would result in us being able to utilise the full value of this particular property. Now I am suggesting that there is nothing wrong with utilising this particular piece of property, meaning the part that the Holiday Inn was on, providing of course that what we develop here is a hotel only.

I am also saying that there are other developers that would have been interested in using this piece of property in some way, doing something with this piece of property, and that Government should have had discussions with more than one individual.

All of the Finance and Stores Regulations' principles suggest that when Government is dealing with the people's business, that a certain amount of transparency and objectivity is taken into account, namely, that the terms of the agreements, or the conditions are advertised as to give them the best opportunity to receive value for money. Is Government receiving money for value? It is my contention that the Government is not receiving money for value here; that the pieces of lands in question are worth far more than the Government has been told it will be given by the developer; and that to put the Government's value of this on the so-called stamp duties that will result, or the import duties that will result as the result of there being construction again, I believe is to really sell the people of the Cayman Islands short.

The fact that the Government until now has made no attempt to speak to any other developer that we know of, or to look for any other conditions, I believe causes this particular deal—this particular project, to be of suspect. I suspect that it is not being done because of the public interest and because of the possible public benefits.

When the documents related to the disposition of this particular land were tabled we were told in the first memo dated 17 July 1998, and this was the Minister for Agriculture Environment, Communications and Works:

"This is my Report recommending the disposition of land in accordance with section 10 (1) (b) of the above Law and which is accompanied by the documents required pursuant to section 10 (2) of the same Law containing the details of the proposed disposition." Section 10 (1) (b) speaks of the 21 days the document needs to lay on the Table of the Legislative Assembly and, 10 (2) speaks of what should accompany the documents, or what should accompany the proposal, and it says in 10 (2)(e) “a copy of the resolution of Executive Council approving the terms of the proposed disposition”.

That is where I felt before that the subsequent memo written by the Minister suggesting that certain documents were not required by law is in fact not the case, and that one of the documents that he submitted in addition was what they call the “licence.” There is a report on the contract documentation for the proposed disposition in accordance with the Governor (Vesting of Lands) Law which was drawn up by the Crown Counsel and he speaks of the licence, and he says:

“A Licence: this agreement is the document giving consent to the assignment of the existing lease, consenting to the variation and extension of that lease and providing for and consenting to the consequential changes in title envisaged by the proposed development.”

I would say that this document, the licence, which was subsequently laid on the Table of the House on the 26 of July (not 17 July) was a necessary part of the documentation which is required by law. If the terms of the disposition have to do with what the person who is receiving, and the person who is disposing of will each get as benefits, then we can only know what the benefits are as the benefits are spelled out in law. That must be, then, Contract Law. Contract Law would be the law that would govern the rights and obligations of the parties that are involved.

So my understanding is that all the documents would have to be looked at in that light. Even if this were not the case, the Minister did give us access to these documents and once we have scrutinised these documents we are now bringing these documents in as part of the debate, and as you already know, my motion deals with this almost as a separate issue. In addition to speaking against the proposal I am talking about a motion that is here as a Private Member's Motion. So, for this particular reason I think that all the relevant documentation is essential in terms of our consideration as to whether the deal is good or bad for the people of the Cayman Islands.

There is something in one of the documents which talks about a declaration of trust. In addition to a licence you have a declaration of trust. This declaration is a holding document while the mechanics and timetables of the restructuring of the various interests take place and until the legal titles to the consequential leasehold interests are executed in due course. When we have a document of this kind that the Governor of the Cayman Islands must put his signature on, it is important that if we are going to debate it, that we talk about the agreements that would be made, and whether or not the parties that will be signatories to this agreement will be able to carry out their part of the agreement.

Now, it is interesting that no due diligence was done on Mr. Ryan. In the submission from the Crown Counsel, the Government's legal advisor in this case, it says, “In view of the fact that the parties to the various con- tracts were new parties, either in formation or to be formed, a requirement of the contract was that the obligations to be performed by those companies were also to be obligations of Humphreys (Cayman) Limited (HCL), a company that already stands in a current legal relationship with the Governor as a sub-leasee of the existing parcel 11.” Parcel 11 being the parcel of land which the Holiday Inn stood until it was demolished without even waiting to find out whether or not this Legislative Assembly would be willing to extend this lease.

So, if they would go ahead, if Mr. Humphrey—or Humphreys (Cayman) Limited—would go ahead and demolish the Holiday Inn without knowing whether or not we would extend the lease to 99 years, it goes to show that it is not important to him that that lease be extended. He can operate without the lease being extended otherwise he would not have closed the Holiday Inn and broke it down. He knew, they all knew, that this would not be a complete deal until the legislature of this island had had the possibility to scrutinise the deal and make a decision in the positive or the negative.

So, for him as a private entrepreneur to make decisions, those must be his decisions that he is responsible for, and of course we cannot say now that he broke down the Holiday Inn, we made him do that so we have to go along and give the kind of conditions they want. That is not fair.

But one thing is for sure: If the main developer who we know to be Mr. Michael Ryan, if there was no due diligence done on him, if he did not bring his corporation life from Canada or the US, from where he is coming from to here, he came as an individual with a suitcase. And he starts a new life, trading under the cover or protection of a company that has been here that we know has a so-called, according to this, legal relationship with the Government. But, if we notice the due diligence, the other contractual agreements, the licence, the trust declaration, the grant of easement and licence, all these other documents will be signed by Mr. Ryan and not by Humphreys (Cayman) Limited. So from the point of view of liability, the liability will be to Mr. Ryan who is the secretary of all of these companies. So due diligence should have been carried out with regard to this individual. This individual is playing too important of a role in this entire situation for him to not have been thoroughly checked out.

We are saying that we have a Government that is capable, competent, fluent in understanding the people's wishes and we have something like this? A situation where someone, some stranger, comes into a country that praises itself as being one of the main financial centres in the world and this type of scrutiny is what he has to live up against? When he is talking about doing something like $200+ million worth of development in the Cayman Islands, when the Government of the Cayman Islands is considering some estimated $100 million in revenue, and there is no scrutiny?

We don't know where the man came from. What is the history on him? Someone will, perhaps, get in here and talk about that because it is important now. Perhaps behind the closed doors of the Executive Council where other things have happened that we can't check on perhaps it's not important, but it is important in here.

It is important that we know who we are dealing with if we are going to give up so much of our people's land, their heritage, their lifestyle. We have to know who we are dealing with because at the end of the day are we going to have the land directly across from the Holiday Inn that is an undisturbed mangrove area up until now, bulldozed down—mutilated, Mr. Speaker, under the guise that some development will happen there on that side and then we end up with a situation like we have at the Cayman Islands Yacht Club, like Safe Haven, like Salt Creek? I think that the people of the Cayman Islands who listen to this Legislative Assembly broadcast should go and take a look at some of these areas and come back on Wednesday to the Legislative Assembly and tell legislators that we don't need that kind of mutilation of our lands.

Mr. Roy Bodden: True!

Dr. Frank McField: It is not too late because we have in this Legislative Assembly persons that will have to listen to reason. Reason suggests that somehow the entire process in which this deal has gone through has not been done with the best interests of the people in mind. I know that I could be out of order in doubting the sincerity, but somehow we have to look at political motives because that is what we are here to judge.

I am asking that the Government revisit the situation and explain (when it comes to debate this motion) for instance: when we have the strata properties; when we have one—I think—registered strata plan; where we have, for instance, different companies that are going to be created in this situation. As I said, I do not want to get too technical because that is not my field. But what I see here, it appears to me that there may be one, two, three different holding companies. In other words, although Ryan and Company may be getting the lease, then they will empower other companies to be able to do certain things and to accept certain types of rewards.

So down the line, as the Counsel says, we will have the extension of commitments and obligations as we go along. At the end, all of the situation for contract lawyers - of course that is probably a heyday to try to work out exactly who has what rights, this, et cetera -- it is like having a big piece of something and leasing that big piece of something to someone, giving that person all the rights for that something for 99 years. The person chops it up into little pieces, selling it here and selling it there, and at the end of the day he makes an amazing amount of money, personal profit without (and this is it too) having to have money themselves. This, this, this, is one of the most serious aspects of this whole situation!

Had this particular developer come here with a few million dollars that we know he has, and said, 'Here is my bank account, here is what I have. I want to do this.' But, no, he is just a deal maker. He's a middle man, he's an in between, he is pulling this thing from here and pulling that thing from there. And at the end of the day he might not have to have any more money than to just put plans together.

What is the asset this gentleman is going to be using? What is the asset, the land? Who does the land belong to? The people of the Cayman Islands. Why should one individual from someplace else be able to come in here and do, without any capital himself, what any Caymanian with any kind of economic initiative, or entrepreneurial spirit should be able to do? If a Caymanian had gone to the National Team Government with the proposal they would not have been received this way.

Mr. Roy Bodden: They would be caged and run out of town!

Dr. Frank McField: For the same reason that's when the poor Caymanian goes to the Government to say, 'Let's defer the duties on the clothes that we are buying so that we can sell them and make some money,' they said, 'No. You pay at the airport otherwise the Customs is going to keep this.' When a poor Caymanian person goes to try to get a deferral for the house that they might want to live in, there is no consideration, there is no sensitivity on the part of Government, so how can we explain it in this particular case when the person is a total stranger without any money that we know of?

There is a good possibility that the man will be a millionaire. But there is little evidence to prove that the man is a millionaire. And the man will become a millionaire simply because we have fellows in this country who allow this type of business to go on without understanding that the public interest is more important than any private interest.

If we understand this thing right, this gentleman is talking about destroying our mangroves and building condominiums and a golf course on the other side. With public pressure we are getting it presented to us in phases, like the Darts are now doing. It strategically defeats in our mind the master plan and we go to cut it up so that we can only see one piece at a time. In other words, rather than having two eyes, we have one and we know that one eye cannot see as well as two eyes. This is basically the same strategy when you say, 'I'll get this piece approved today and the other piece tomorrow.' It is a one-eye thing. And everybody can understand a one-eye thing. It is deception.

We need to look at the fact that when somebody spends a few hundred thousand dollars on architects to put something together and a few lawyers to draw up the deals, and walks in to a $200 [thousand], $300 [thousand], $400 [thousand], $500 [thousand], Million - dollar type of investment game, not for that one person but to be shared around, that person's friends who invest, . . . that is an amazing type of situation. I wish that I could walk into somebody's country and do that!

Mr. Roy Bodden: The Old Frontier men in California!

Dr. Frank McField: When I went to Germany back in 1973, I tried to work. They said to me, 'Son, you come from what we consider to be a developing country. You can't have a work permit here. You can study here, you can be an apprentice here, but you cannot have a work permit here. You can get married, if you want, here, but you cannot get a work permit here.' Mr. Speaker, people have standards, they have rules, and when you go to those places those are the things that meet you. You have a choice to obey those or leave. I had a choice. Rather than get married back in 1973, I decided to go study. But I had to make a choice. The choice was that I could choose from columns A, B, and C, but it wasn't that I could do what I wanted in somebody else's country.

We have always welcomed developers. I will always welcome developers. I am a little skeptical sometimes when people talk about the environment. Everybody knows that even during my election campaign I was very skeptical and did not say certain things because I did not want to without having the information I needed, to make informed decisions. But at this particular point I see the case that is being made by the National Trust and other persons who are concerned with the environment. I don't see why people would be so concerned with the environmental effects if it weren't justified. I think all over the world, Mr. Speaker, even when we deal with the fact that global warming is causing water levels to rise and that what is predicted to happen, perhaps in the next hundred years, is that the water level will probably achieve a level that could affect us drastically on these low-lying islands.

Why is it that we are not thinking about one hundred years? I happen to have been very fortunate when I went to countries where I saw buildings that had been in existence for hundreds of years. Recently I was in London and I went back into the Parliament and the good Chairman of the Foreign Affairs Committee, Mr. Donald Anderson, gave me a little tour of the Parliament because it was in recess. He showed me where certain people were tried, where certain people were buried and it went back hundreds, and hundreds, and hundreds of years. So what is one hundred years?

Why is it that we can't think beyond one hundred years? Is it because we are such a transient people? Because we don't have written history and monuments and different things? Do we lack historical understanding and perception? Do we lack an understanding that today is only a part of tomorrow? That time is continuous in that sense until God sees fit to end it? Why is it, therefore, that we can only plan for today and not for tomorrow? Why is it that we allow people to come in and exploit that shortsightedness? Why is it that the people of the island tolerate a government who cannot see beyond the dollar note? And, Mr. Speaker, it comes into one pocket and it goes out of the other one. So, we cannot now be motivated just by money. We must also be motivated by what is good for the future generations as well as the present generation.

I will have lots of time to come back and make statements in regard to what other Members will have to say on this Motion. But I appeal to all persons to not let selfishness get in the way, not let political sides and political allegiances get in the way. Let us do something here to show the people of this country that the Government of the country and the people on the Backbench, those in Opposition and those who support the National Team Government, are aware of the people's desires and are willing to execute those desires rather than our own individual desires. We cannot academically, intellectually, intelligently justify disposing of this land in order that it be destroyed. We know the environmental necessity of maintaining the mangroves in this particular area. We know there are lands there that people can build on. We are not against development, we are not against developers, we are against wastefulness. We are against a Government which does not listen to the people.

In closing I will say that it is important that the public notice the difference between Opposition and Backbenchers—

Mr. Roy Bodden: True!

Dr. Frank McField: —because the Government people are the Backbenchers—the Opposition are those people who are considering replacing the Government. I am one of those people who actively wants to see the National Team Government replaced as soon as possible. I pray, and I hope that the people of this island pray with me, that that day comes soon and that this Motion be not the cause why they have to be removed from power.

The Speaker: I would now entertain a motion for the adjournment of this Honourable House.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. John B. McLean: Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until Wednesday at 10.00 AM.

The Speaker: The question is that this Honourable House do now adjourn until 10.00 AM on Wednesday. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AT 4.30 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM WEDNESDAY, 23 SEPTEMBER, 1998.

WEDNESDAY
23 SEPTEMBER 1998
10.13 AM

[Prayers by the First Elected Member for West Bay]

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Item 2 on today's Order paper. Reading by the Speaker of Messages and Announcements.

READING BY THE SPEAKER OF

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: I have apologies from the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay who is in the hospital in Miami. I would like to say to Honourable Members of the House that I spoke with his brother-in-law, Dr. Steve Tomlinson, just before coming into the Chamber. His condition remains unchanged since he went up. He is still undergoing tests. On behalf of all members and the staff of the Legislative Assembly I would like to wish him a speedy recovery.

Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. Deferred question 139 is standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MEMBERS/MINISTERS

Deferred Question 139

No. 139: Miss Heather Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation to list the programmes and achievements of the National Drug Council since it became an independent statutory corporation.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: The National Drug Council was launched as an independent statutory corporation in January 1998 under the National Drug Council Law 1997 to formulate policies and develop programmes intended to prevent or reduce drug abuse and to coordinate anti-drug measures in the Cayman Islands.

The National Drug Council is charged with coordinating the implementation of the Cayman Islands National Strategic Plan for Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation as well as organising the update for the Plan each year. Along with this, the National Drug Council has been tasked to implement a number of the action plans arising out of the national strategic plan.

The National Drug Council, which is comprised of a Board of Directors and an office with five staff, has organised itself into a number of sub-committees for carrying out its functions and programmes. The persons involved are Government employees, members of non-Government organisation, as well as other interested and concerned citizens who have volunteered their services to assist the National Drug Council in furthering its objectives.

Apart from its official launch in January this year, the National Drug Council has done the following:

- Conducted a student drug use survey of the entire Middle and High School population in the Cayman Islands and the results will be released in November this year;
- Coordinated Drug Free Week in May 1998 which involved several schools, service clubs, churches and Government Departments;
- Coordinated Drug Awareness Week activities for all schools which is set to take place from 28th September to 3rd October on Grand Cayman and from 18th to 23rd October on Cayman Brac;
- Produced and distributed a brochure outlining the function and services of the National Drug Council as well as the components of the National Strategic Plan for Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.
- Produced and distributed a Directory of Service Agencies which gives information and contact numbers on local services and agencies dealing with the issue of drug abuse;
- Set up Information Centre at its office in Paddington Place and has distributed some of the printed and video materials to schools;
- Started setting up a database of all drug-related statistics for the Cayman Islands so that these will be accessible from a central location;
- In cooperation with the Education Department, the National Council is formulating a comprehensive school-based drug abuse prevention and education campaign which will be officially launched this September;
- Prepared a media-based drug education campaign, utilising all local media which is set to begin in October;

- Trained staff in policy and programme evaluation, strategic planning and basic concepts in drug addiction treatment and prevention; and
- Participated in regional conferences where decisions are made on strategies to be employed in drug demand and supply reduction.

In addition to those activities and achievements, the National drug Council is working on the setting up of district councils; a programme for the rehabilitation of drug offenders; a proposal for the establishment of Sobriety Homes; the sponsorship of an addiction conference in the Cayman Islands in 1999 in conjunction with the Addiction Research Foundation; and plans to conduct a prison prevalence survey at Her Majesty's Northward Prison to determine the extent of the alcohol and drug abuse problem among prison inmates.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Would the Honourable Minister say what was the role of the National Drug Council before becoming an independent statutory corporation?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, before being formalised it was an advisory body to the Minister/Member at certain times.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Miss Heather Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I'd like to thank the Honourable Minister for such a comprehensive answer. I would also like to congratulate his Ministry as well as the Chairman of the National Drug Council and would just ask the Honourable Minister to keep us fully updated on the activities and achievements that are now being put in place.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Honourable Minister tell the House what were the achievements of the National Drug Council before it became an independent statutory corporation.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, before being formalised it was traditional for them to keep under review all aspects in regard to drug abuse, prevention and rehabilitation. In the past, reports in regard to this were also tabled in the Legislative Assembly. But what I would undertake to the Honourable Member is – since I only took this over about three years ago – I would get the details to him in a more comprehensive manner.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Is the Minister then saying that prior to the National Drug Council becoming an independent statutory corporation, there was no mechanism to achieve these things just listed in his answer?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: No, Mr. Speaker. I would not say that specifically, but this is in a more organised fashion.

When the Ministry which I now represent was named in 1994, the then governor felt that there should be a separate approach – a more concerted approach in regard to drug abuse, prevention and rehabilitation and that formed a part of the Ministry's name. This is just a continued expansion of what existed. And as we all know – especially what has come out in the reports in regard to [the year] 2008 – this is the number one concern of the entire Islands; we look forward to addressing this.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, a supplementary question to the Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse, Prevention and Rehabilitation.

It appears here that the achievements are ideological rather than practical. Would the Minister say why no actual practical achievements (and when I say practical achievements, I mean achievements with regard to statistics perhaps that would suggest that we are beginning to more effectively deal with the problems) . . . can he say why this is missing from his answer?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, that is a good question. The basis of the National Drug Council approach has emanated from the National Drug Strategic Plan which this Honourable House accepted a few years ago. In regard to the statistical data, Mr. Speaker, this is one of our priorities, and as I indicated in regard to schools, that has now been done and I will share with this Honourable House later on this year.

We will also be undertaking a survey of the inmates at Northward Prison. Mr. Speaker this is a new approach that is being used. It takes a while to accumulate this data information and we cannot possibly judge our success or failures until we have on hand to know where we have come from.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member from West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I wonder if the Honourable Minister could briefly update us as to the National Council's success with regard to district services.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, as I mentioned earlier, the National Drug Council actually started operation in January of this year (1998). But in conjunction with my Ministry, the Ministry of Education and the Ministry of Community Development we will be setting up district councils and working from that.

In the meantime through Cayman Counselling Centre we are providing in the district health clinics the ability for people to go there and visit with the counsellors. This we feel, Mr. Speaker, is an approach that the people living within the districts will not have to travel that far and will feel more comfortable in their own surroundings.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, could the Honourable Minister say if to his knowledge the National Drug Council has identified any specific cause of alcohol and drug addiction and whether or not they have developed any specific programmes to deal with the causes of drug and alcohol addiction? If so, what are some of the causes and some of the prescribed remedies?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, we have initiated, (as I said) the Drug Knowledge Survey, the Prison Survey and a survey of the schools. Until we have collated and pulled all of this information, I would not want to comment and say a specific cause for these problems. But once we determine the most concentrated areas we will be providing programmes to address these problems.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town. I shall allow two additional supplementaries.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I am not going to really ask a supplementary, in the sense. I would just like to thank the Honourable Minister for his answer and also say that when someone is doing research or investigating something, the researcher—the investigator—must start with certain basic assumptions. Without those assumptions you would not be able to know where it is you are going.

So, my question really was, whether or not ... what were the basic assumptions that were being made at this particular time in informing the direction in which the Drug Council would go with regards its investigation and with regards to the treatment, but of course if the Minister feels that at this particular time that question is a bit too complicated I ...

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, at this time we are utilising the Addiction Research Foundation formerly of Toronto, Canada. They have decades of experience in this situation of drug abuse and they have put forward areas that we can look at and we hope to address these problems as we identify them in the results of our surveys.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, Can the Minister tell the House whether this relationship with the Addiction Research Foundation of Toronto, will be limited to the sponsorship of this conference, or will there be a wider relationship in which his Ministry will tap into the experience of the Addiction Research Foundation for help and guidance in crafting strategies suitable to the Cayman Islands.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, Mr. Speaker. That is a good follow-up question. We have just gotten the report from this Foundation and I will be tabling it for the knowledge of the entire Legislative Assembly in due course.

The Speaker: The next question is No. 149 standing in the name of the First Elected Member for West Bay. This is a deferred question.

DEFERRED QUESTION 149

No. 149: Mr. W. McKeever Bush asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation if the Government is aware of any Insurance Company now refusing to cover persons requiring Health Insurance under the mandatory Health Insurance Law.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: This question relates to the Health Insurance Law 1997. Under the provisions of that Law, the approved providers of health insurance coverage in the Cayman Islands may refuse coverage of those persons who are defined in the Law as "high risk insurance persons."

The Law defines a "High risk insurance person" as one who, by reason of a medical condition or a history of illness, has been refused cover under a standard health insurance contract at the standard premium by two or more approved providers. In this connection I would refer the Honourable Member to section 4 of the Health Insurance Regulations 1997 under which approved providers are permitted to decline insurance for such high risk insurance persons or indeed accept such persons subject to certain conditions, or even on normal terms.

The Government is aware that some "high risk insurance persons" have been unable to obtain health insurance coverage under the provisions of section 4 of the Regulations, but is not aware of any other cases where persons have been refused coverage.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the Minister responsible for Health how he views the situation whereby the definition of high risk is a person who has been refused coverage by two or more health providers? So when you are bringing an insurance law in to play ...you need the insurance companies to help you create the situation for the definition to actually apply. In other words they need to refuse people coverage before you establish these types of conditions. And if I can formulate it more in terms of a question, Is it a fact that the health-providers themselves are creating the high-risk persons?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, I am informed that this is based on the medical condition of the person and what the doctors say.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I wonder if the Honourable Minister would say if these high risk insurance persons are those now seeking insurance under the Health Insurance Law which is mandatory, or are they people who were covered by insurance companies and because they had medical problems and made claims they have now been refused the renewing of those policies.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, this was based on the new people who would be coming after this law came in to effect.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Minister tell the House how many persons are deemed high risk and what are the Government's plans for dealing with this category of persons?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, at this time, we are still gathering the information and learning about that category of people. In regards to how they are covered, the Health Insurance Regulations make provision in Section 5 for health care for those uninsurable persons, and partially uninsurable persons who are unable to pay for their medical fees.

Under these provisions the Government will continue to provide for them as it did prior to the Health Insurance Law coming into effect. To offset this cost, the Government shall collect from each approved provider of health insurance each month $5 on individual and $10 on groups for every standard health insurance contract that is effected by that health insurance provider.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I am wondering whether the Minister can say whether he, or the Ministry, or the insurance unit is aware of any situations that exist where a company can take an application, take the payment of the application, the person gets sick, stays in the hospital, the money is not returned, but the person is refused to be covered.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, I am informed that under the contract law, if the premium is accepted by the company and there are no other problems that would develop, that they should take care of the person.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for West Bay, do you have a follow up?

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Yes, Mr. Speaker, thank you. I am wondering whether the Minister or the department, or unit, could in their discussions with the insurance companies draw some of these to their attention.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, this will be done.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I have a similar request to bring to the Minister with regard to persons under group coverage plan, where I had an experience with one particular carrier, or provider [who] refused one person in a group of about 20 because he claimed that the person was rather obese for his height.

I am asking the Minister to investigate into that to find out how nineteen persons in the group could be covered and refuse one coverage even though the premiums had been paid and a contract signed for about six months prior to the refusal.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I really appreciate the Honourable Member sharing this with me and if he would give me the details confidentially I will certainly check in to this.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: I would like to ask the Honourable Minister whether there is any fear at the moment that the insurance companies will cream off the healthy people, and that Government will be in fact stuck with the unhealthy people creating a very good situation for the insurance companies.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, No, I am informed that with the Group policy, most of the insurance companies will accept these people in that area; although the Third Elected Member from Bodden Town has indicated that this has happened in one situation that he knows of.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In keeping with the law that requires all persons to be insured, I wonder if the Minister can brief us as to what Government plans are for providing such coverage for the indigent and the senior citizens in this country who cannot afford to pay for such insurance coverage.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, as in the past, Government has always assisted the indigents, but we will be looking in the future to taking out coverage for them.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, the next question is 150 standing in the name of the First Elected Member for West Bay.

DEFERRED QUESTION 150

No. 150: Mr. W. McKeeva Bush asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation would the Government review the Health Insurance Law, especially the aspect of premiums.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Honourable Members may recall that in presenting the draft Health Insurance Law and Regulations and the various revisions to this Honourable House, I said repeatedly that the Law is not written in stone. No matter how meticulous we have been in detailing the Health Insurance legislation, there are some aspects that cannot be known until the Law comes into effect. I have said this all along.

Honourable Members are reminded that the Government accepted Private Member's Motion No. 4/97 concerning an actuarial study to investigate the feasibility of the Government establishing a public owned corporation and to determine what the premium should be for the health insurance coverage specified by the Law for such a corporation.

The Motion further resolved that such reports, as produced by the actuarial firm, be laid on the Table of this Honourable House with the decision of the Government on the matter.

That report, I am pleased to say, has been completed and the bound copies will be available to the Ministry of Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation within days. I will be ready to table that report, along with Government's decision on the matter, at the next meeting of the Legislative Assembly in November.

It seems to me that it would be wise to consider the report and its recommendations before making revisions to the Health Insurance Law and Regulations. Nevertheless, I would welcome suggestions from any Members of this Honourable House.

The Speaker: Supplementaries? If there are no supplementaries we will move to deferred question number 152 standing in the name of the Elected Member for North Side.

DEFERRED QUESTION 152

No. 152: Mrs. Edna Moyle asked the Honourable Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs to state how many hours per day and days per week is the North Side Police Station manned.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Two police officers are assigned to the North Side Police Station to police the district of North Side which comprises 15.27 square miles. A woman constable is resident at the station and she is assisted by a male constable.

Each of these officers is normally on duty for an average of 40 hours per week, working 10 hour shifts. The number of hours per day that an officer is on duty in North Side varies from 10 hours to 20 hours. The number of hours that the station is actually manned is dependent upon whether the officer on duty is actually at the station or out on patrol or attending an incident. When either of the officers is off duty on a rest day, on vacation, sick or attending Court or on a training course, coverage is provided by officers from Bodden Town or East End Police Stations. The total police strength of the outer districts is one Inspector, two Sergeants and 12 Constables.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I wonder if the Honourable Member would tell me then if the officers duty varies from 10 hours to 20 hours, why is it when a call is put through to the North Side Police Station because of some problem, it goes through to Bodden Town Station and the person answering that call is the North Side police woman?

The Speaker: The Honourable Acting First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Mr. Speaker, I am unable to say why the person who is assigned to North Side would be answering the telephone in Bodden Town, if that is what the Member is suggesting. Perhaps if she can give me some information as to when this situation occurred then I can certainly enquire into why it happened and let her know.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I wonder if the Honourable Member could say, Why is it that not once that a telephone call is put through to the Police Station in the little district of North Side is it answered by the two officers from that station? It either goes through to Central in George Town, or to Bodden Town for us to get a response since at some time they cannot be on the street investigating or being called out. At some point in time someone should be in the Police Station in North Side if they are on duty 10-20 hours.

The Speaker: The Hon. Acting First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Mr. Speaker, I could only agree with the Member that it would seem logical at some point a caller should be able to get an answer at that station. I will certainly look into it and enquire as to what may be causing the situation. I do not know whether people are returning to the station from doing rounds and not directing the phone back, or cutting off their transfer to the Bodden Town Station which they perhaps ... effect when they go out.

But there would obviously seem to be some reason why that situation pertains and I will look into it.

The Speaker: Any further supplementaries? The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

While this is not directly relevant to this question, it nonetheless is relevant to the duties of the police and perhaps the Hon. Acting First Official Member may be in a position to comment on it. If he could state whether the police are aware and vigilant to the dangerous practice of cyclists riding at nights without lights, and if so, what is being done to address this dangerous problem.

The Speaker: The Hon. Acting First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Mr. Speaker, I would expect that they are certainly aware of that practice. And I have heard Public Service announcements on behalf of the police from time to time in relation to the proper lighting of bicycles and the proper clothing of pedestrians. I cannot honestly say that I have heard any in relation to bicycles in recent times, so I can enquire as to what is being done and perhaps suggest that some of those be rerun.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

In view of this very dangerous practice, and in view of the vigilance that the police has as regards people speeding perhaps two or three miles over the limit and giving them tickets, I am wondering whether more attention could not be placed on this very dangerous practice of children and other people riding bicycles at night without lights. And whether rather than just putting out a statement by the police, whether they could not be more vigilant and try to stop this very dangerous practice; whether the Hon. Acting First Official Member could seek to get that assurance for the Honourable House.

The Speaker: The Hon. Acting First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Yes, Mr. Speaker, I will certainly seek to have the Commissioner of Police give it appropriate attention.

The Speaker: There are no further supplementaries?
Question number 153 standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for West Bay.

DEFERRED QUESTION 153

No. 153: Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr. asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport to provide details on the number of staff of the Department of Tourism, (locally and overseas) who have resigned, were terminated or have left through transfer to other Government Departments since January 1993.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: During the period January 1993 to August 1998, a total of 54 persons left the Department of Tourism worldwide.

In Grand Cayman, 25 employees left the Department; five were transferred to other Government Departments on promotion; one left at the end of his contract; 15 resigned; three were terminated and one walked off the job.

In the United States of America, 26 employees left the Department; 19 resigned; six were terminated.

In the United Kingdom, three employees resigned from the Department.

Details are provided in the attachment to this answer (see Schedule 1).

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries. The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

In light of the fact that some 54 persons left the Department of Tourism during this period of time (i.e. 1993-98), and with the information provided as to why they left, I wonder if the Honourable Minister can say if he is satisfied that maybe the working conditions, or the benefits, or the promotional opportunities that are available in the department are up to his expectations with regard to especially Caymanians who seemed to have left in droves.

The Speaker: The Hon. Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, the answer to that supplementary is that I am comfortable that the employees working for the Department of Tourism worldwide, for example, the Regional Sales Managers who are the bosses in the offices in Chicago, Los Angeles, Houston, Miami, and in New York – some of them have been with the Cayman Islands since 1979.

The representation in Canada, which is not part of this answer, simply because we do not employ individuals, but employ a firm, have been with us for 20 years. Most specifically in the headquarters here in Grand Cayman, we have had a number of persons who have resigned, who are Caymanians. Basically they start their own businesses and I think perhaps it is a good training ground for that possibility of launching in to other areas of the Tourism industry. Some decided to leave at the end of their contract, some were terminated and we know the process for that within the government service. There is the need for proof; there is the need for natural justice to take place and the promotional opportunities, Mr. Speaker, when you have a department with 36 employees in it and the majority of them being relatively young the promotional possibilities are not as good as everybody would like in that sense.

But in terms of the service to the public, those who are young, who are efficient, who are reliable, who are dedicated to duty...and as a continuity to the future development of the Cayman Island's marketing system within the Department of Tourism and the Ministry.

In the United States there is a total of 50 employees spread around, as I mentioned earlier, to various regional offices over the United States and in the United Kingdom there are 7.

The Speaker: I will entertain a motion for the suspension of Standing Order 23 (7) and (8) in order that Question time can continue beyond 11 o'clock.

The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 23 (7) AND (8)

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Mr. Speaker, I beg to move that the Standing Order 23 (7) & (8) be suspended so that Question time can continue.

The Speaker: Is there a seconder? The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I respectfully beg to second that motion, sir.

The Speaker: The motion has been made and seconded that Standing Order 23 (7) and (8) be suspended. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. Question Time continues.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 23(7) & (8) SUSPENDED.

The Speaker: Supplementary. The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In light of the fact that tourism is one of the pillars of our economy, I wonder if the Honourable Minister can say what efforts are being made—and I am aware, Mr. Speaker, that the Minister is in a very awkward position being held responsible for anything that goes wrong, but having no input with regard to personnel. But, Mr. Speaker, I know that the Minister does have some influence. My question is: What is being done with regard to creating opportunities within the Department of Tourism (i.e. locally, as well as overseas) for Caymanians — especially Caymanians who may be interested and attracted in making a career in this area? Mr. Speaker, I am aware of the importance of Caymanians promoting Cayman.

The Speaker: The Hon. Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I thank the Third Elected Member for West Bay for that question ... and I do not normally dodge behind the civil service procedures. I believe that the system that is in place could be improved, like everything else—and that what is happening within the Cayman Islands, when we look—even going back four years ago—we appointed a local person to be the Director of Tourism. We have assisted that lady to develop to such an extent and I think quite frankly that she is performing at a very high level and is managing our operations worldwide.

I think if we look throughout the Service we will find that there is a lack of strength at middle management level; it's not just today that has been the case. I believe that not only the Department of Tourism, but Government overall, should seek to address that issue as efficiently and promptly as it possibly can.

We have a job to perform, Mr. Speaker. We give every opportunity by advertising locally the various positions within the Department of Tourism. If local persons are not available, or attracted to the particular position that is advertised, we have a responsibility to find the person to carry out that function to ensure that the marketing and promotional activities of the department continue and are done in an efficient manner so that we continue to be the most attractive warm weather destination in this part of the world.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I wonder if the Honourable Minister can say what role the Ministry, or the Department of Tourism has with regard to new recruits – that is, when a position is advertised what process takes place in order to fill that position.

The Speaker: The Hon. Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, it is the normal governmental process, where the position is advertised in consultation with the Personnel Department of Government and Public Service Commission. When the applications are received, they are short-listed by a panel which is established by the Public Service Commission and normally the head of department would be a Member of that panel. They do the interviewing (mainly civil servants doing the interviewing) and make their recommendations to the Public Service Commission – those that are local I should say.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I wonder if the Honourable Minister can confirm whether or not the Director of Tourism, or the Minister of Tourism has any input, or has any say as to whom they recommend for the appointment.

The Speaker: The Hon. Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, it is not normal that the Minister would have any say in appointments within the Cayman Islands which is subject to the Public Service Commission regulations.

The head of department has every right to [have a] say because he will be working directly with the individual who is elected, and normally — to the best of my recollection — the head of department actually heads the panel. The panel relies on the head of department because of his knowledge of what needs to be done, and his ability to assess the individual who is coming before them.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? No further supplementaries? Question number 155 standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

No. 155: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Hon. Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External affairs what was the outcome of the investigation into the most recent prisoner escape at Her Majesty's Northward Prison.

The Speaker: Hon. Temporary Acting First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Mr. Speaker, in accordance with the provisions in Standing Order 23 (5) I would humbly beg leave of the House to defer answering this question until a later sitting.

The Speaker: I will put the question. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: QUESTION NO. 155 DEFERRED UNTIL A LATER SITTING.

The Speaker: Question No. 156 standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 156

No. 156: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Hon. Temporary Acting First Official Member to state the number of United Kingdom police officers currently serving with the Royal Cayman Islands Police Force.

The Speaker: Hon. Temporary Acting First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: There are currently 16 officers from the United Kingdom Police Forces serving with the Royal Cayman Islands Police Service. All of these officers are constables and they were initially recruited on secondment on two-year contracts with an option to renew for a further period if their performance was satisfactory.

There is a correction in the break-down below which I will try to provide as I go through it and hopefully it will not substantially alter the gist of the answer.

One officer was initially recruited in May 1992 and his current contract is due to expire in May 2000.

Two – rather than four – officers were initially recruited in April/May 1994 and their current contracts expire in May 1999 as they only renewed for one year.

I would beg to insert, sir, four officers were initially recruited in April/May 1994 and their current contracts are due to expire in April/May 2000.

Eight officers were initially recruited in May 1996 and their current contracts expire in May 2000.

And one officer who was also initially recruited in May 1996; his current contract expires in May 1999 as he only renewed for one year.

It is not known at this time how many of these officers will wish to apply to renew their current contracts or whether their United Kingdom Forces will grant further extensions of their secondments. This information will normally be requested nearer the date of expiry of the contracts.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries. The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Can the Honourable Member say if there are any plans afoot to recruit any more from the United Kingdom?

The Speaker: The Hon. Temporary Acting First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Mr. Speaker, I know of no current plans. I expect that those would more likely emanate nearer to the time of the expiry of some of these contracts.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Member state if at present the Police Force is of full complement, and if the numbers presently are satisfactory to the powers-that-be?

The Speaker: The Hon. Temporary Acting First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Mr. Speaker, I do not have precise numbers with me, but I think there are a few vacancies – not a great deal. I certainly think it is also the view of the Commissioner that he would prefer to ‘civilianise’ a few more positions and that in turn would release some additional posts to be filled if he were successful in ‘civilianising’.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Member say if this list is exhaustive. That is, if it takes into consideration all categories of recruits, or is it just limited to those at the level of Constable?

The Speaker: Hon. Temporary Acting First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Mr. Speaker, the question was whether it was comprehensive or whether it simply took in officers at Constable levels? To my understanding it is only at that level that we have been recruiting on this secondment type of arrangement.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? No further supplementaries. Question number 157 standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 157

No. 157: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Hon. Temporary Acting First Official Member what are the ranks of those United Kingdom Officers recruited on contracts and promoted while serving with the Royal Cayman Islands Police Force.

The Speaker: The Hon. Temporary Acting First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Mr. Speaker, only one officer currently serving with the Royal Cayman Islands Police Service who was initially recruited on contract/secondment terms from a United Kingdom Police Force has been promoted. The officer was recruited in the rank of Constable on 21st April 1990 and completed two, two-year contracts before resigning from his home force. He rejoined the R.C.I.P.S. as a constable on a local contract which commenced on 21st April 1994. He subsequently renewed his contract on 21st April 1996 and again on 21st June 1998. His current contract expires on 20th June 2000.

The officer passed the Sergeants' promotion examination in September 1997 and was successful in appearing before a promotion board in December 1997. He was promoted to the rank of Detective Sergeant on 10th August 1998.

The Speaker: Supplementaries. The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, is the Honourable Member in a position to say why this officer gained such rapid promotion when there are Caymanian officers who have passed the examination for Sergeant and have not been able to attain promotion because the apparent reason was that there was no more space? — The complement for sergeants had already been completed.

The Speaker: The Hon. Temporary Acting First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Mr. Speaker, I cannot give any information on the particular circumstances of that promotion. I can only presume that it had to do with whatever particular skills that officer had relative to the vacancy that was available. But I can certainly give the [Member] an undertaking to ascertain that information and provide it for him in writing.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Would the Honourable Member give the undertaking to provide for the House the number of those Caymanian Officers who have passed examinations to become sergeants, but have not been able to be promoted because the space and the complement does not allow them?

The Speaker: The Hon. Temporary Acting First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Yes, Mr. Speaker, I can give that undertaking.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. While the Member is at it, could the Member— because I am assuming he cannot give the answer right now. Could the Member provide for us in writing any information regarding any one of these officers seconded from the U.K. being allowed to attend Law School while going about their normal duties?

The Speaker: Hon. Temporary Acting First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Mr. Speaker, I can seek to ascertain whatever information is relevant to that. Particularly if it relates to the Officer having to forego any of his duties in order to comply with the academic requirements.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay. Supplementary.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In the answer provided, it appeared that there is a promotional board that is responsible for approving promotions within the Royal Cayman Islands Police [Service]. If the Member has the information available, I wonder if he could give us an idea who constitutes the membership of that board.

The Speaker: The Hon. Temporary Acting First Official Member.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Mr. Speaker, I am unable to say who the current members of the Board are, but I can certainly undertake to provide it for him.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? If there are no further supplementaries, that concludes Question time for this morning.

At this time we shall suspend proceedings for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.20 AM*PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 11.45 AM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Item 4 on today's Order Paper, Other Business, Private Members' Motions. Continuation of debate on Private Member's Motion No. 17/98—Proposed Ritz-Carlton Hotel, West Bay Road. Does any other Member wish to speak?

The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

OTHER BUSINESS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 17/98

PROPOSED RITZ-CARLTON HOTEL WEST BAY ROAD

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you.

I rise on behalf of Government well knowing that lands fall under my Ministry and to speak briefly on the motion which is presently before the House.

I would like to start by saying that leasing of Government property is not something new. The said lease which was actually done in 1950 (the year I was born), gave permission for some 606 acres of land in this area, to be leased. It was specified for exactly what we are talking about today, the Ritz-Carlton Hotel, and/or the many other hotels we have seen on that beach at that time. Let me say that contrary to what a lot of people may say, the Government has taken a very serious look at this matter. We have to realise that if such a project [contract] goes through, we are looking at not only today, but at many years down the line. I realise that the issue seems to be destroying certain things in that area. We must do things in the right way, but at the same time we have to make sure that progress continues in this country.

As I mentioned, the reason the lease was given in 1950 was due to the fact that the Government of that day had the foresight to see that that area could be identified as a hotel area. I need not elaborate on that because we all know that many parts of that have been extended. However, I would like to say that in regard to what is in front of us today — the Ritz-Carlton Hotel project — the Legal Department has looked at this, documentation has been provided to the general public and I have laid the necessary documents on the Table here, as this is my responsibility.

Of course, I am not like many others; I don't claim to be a lawyer, because I am not. But the fact remains that I have to depend upon the legal advice given to me and in regards to documentation that was produced here, it was all scrutinised through the legal department and it was laid on the Table.

We have to realise that there are many good things that will be the outcome of this hotel. We are looking at twenty years of development, if it is approved. We are looking up front at the monies that will be paid into the coffers of Government and I refer to the original document which when that was actually put together we were looking at £100. Today we are looking at $4 million plus another $2 million and we are also looking at the developer making sure by bringing into this territory such a prestigious hotel that we will be regaining approximately 300 rooms.

As far as the Government is concerned, we continue to do whatever we can to scrutinise properly and we would be the last ones to try to do anything because on this side we have persons who have a lot more to lose than others. We respect the people of our country, and we will continue to do what is correct.

The National Team Government has come under a lot of nasty remarks because of this project. But once again I would like to say that we boast of promoting tourism in this country in the Cayman Islands, and we can be pleased today to know that we have developers who are prepared to bring something like the Ritz-Carlton Hotel here and I am sure that you will hear something more about it later on. The fact remains that I know from the tourism point of view the Minister for Tourism will definitely have to make his stand on it because he knows exactly what I am saying.

It is unfair for persons to try to spread rumours about us doing destruction. As I referred a while ago to the document that was drawn up in 1950, I think it is on page 4 where within the lease it has been laid down clearly as to why this lease was drawn up and to the things that could actually be done on this property.

So, today as far as I am concerned, I think on behalf of Government we would find it hard not to reject such a motion as is before the House and to not try to make sure that progress is in place for this country for the next twenty years.

We give the assurance on this side that every precaution will be taken. We are not going to allow things to destroy this country. If that were so, I would think that would have been proven a long time ago. So, we on this side, the Government, cannot support this motion on the basis I have spoken.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you.

Mr. Speaker, several weeks ago I took the liberty of writing you a letter (as you will recall) even though no debate had taken place on the papers laid upon the Table of the House or on this motion, to inform you in regard to the lease arrangements by Ritz-Carlton and the Government for West Bay South Block 12C Parcel 215 — out of an abundance of caution — that I have an interest in Cambridge Real Estate Corporation, of which I am a majority owner, and hold a sale contract for West Bay South Block 12C Parcel 215, and that Cambridge, among other companies, is also taking reservations for the purchase of condos.

I did that, as I said, out of abundance of caution and in respect to the legislature in regard to Standing Orders of this Honourable House.

The Speaker: I confirm having received that letter.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

It is my understanding that the Ritz-Carlton as part of their efforts to establish a hotel in the Cayman Islands approached a group headed by the developer, Mr. Ryan, through an investment banker who was also assisting the Holiday Inn group in their efforts to sell their property.

After studying the property, they determined that it was necessary to acquire more land to make the project feasible. Across from the Holiday Inn site, the parcel of land is listed (as I have said) by Cambridge Real Estate, and has been for some time. Mr. David Berry, one of our agents, was contacted by the development group to enquire about the purchase of the same land. Mr. Berry negotiated a transaction satisfactory to all parties for the purchase of the property.

At the time, while in Executive Council, I would have been remiss in my duties had I not brought to the attention of the relevant Ministers that a major development group was interested in bringing a Ritz-Carlton to these islands. I have never taken any part in the decision-making process either for the grant of any approvals or concessions asked for, if any. From what I am hearing, it is downright dirty for anyone to insinuate otherwise.

I own a business, a real estate corporation. And if you look in that bracket of business if there are not thirty companies or more, there is not one. And as you know, sir, I am a Caymanian. I have never used my office, or my political influence, for my company or any personal gain whatsoever. But as a Caymanian I do have a right to do legal business, real estate is such. I will continue to do so as long as it is competitive, fair, and of hurt to no one.

As we debate these kinds of matters, people will get personal because they cannot deal with the facts. They will accuse people and talk about people's families as has been happening in the last two days on the radio. But, there is no [reason], if you are going to deal with an issue of this magnitude, for people to criticise people's families.

I hope that the perpetrators hear and understand what I am saying. I am not a rich man by any means. And the whole country sooner or later will hear about that too. As most Caymanians know I have put the interest of the country above that of mine, time and time, and time again. Had I been selfish and done as some are trying to make people believe, I would be better off. But, that is not the case.

For anyone to suggest that my family and I can leave this country without caring for others, then they do not know my family. They don't know us. I, too, do not carry an American Green Card, nor American citizenship or any other citizenship as some of those who are out there criticising me have. I, too, have nowhere to go, but to run to Boltin's Avenue in West Bay. That is my home. That is where I belong. That is where I desire to die—where the bones of my ancestors rest!

This is my home too. Therefore it is incumbent upon me as a representative to be able to look at the present position today and consider all that surrounds these islands, all the issues that are affecting us from the review of the Dependent Territories to the world-wide economic situation—everything that can have an impact on us; but more importantly to take into consideration the future and the clouded horizon that we all know is there.

When we reel against development, we should ask where the funds will come from to do all that is necessary for the people of this country. Not even what people want because wants and people's expectations sometimes go out of proportion. But all that is necessary for these islands.

I hear them saying that I, McKeever Bush, do not care about the country, that I don't care for people. Political detractors will say anything when the opportunity arises. And if they don't have the facts then it is even better—especially when they get an emotive situation as we have before us today.

Mr. Speaker, I have worked for myself from the time I was 13 years old. And I guess a lot of others worked for themselves starting a little bit older. I know what it means to work, and to work hard for my family. And not at the expense of others either! I challenge anybody in this country to say otherwise! I know also what it means to sacrifice. I know what it means to have a young child and have to leave my family at night to work two jobs—one in the day and one starting at 11.00, going straight through till morning—to be able to make ends meet. I know about that. And my wife has worked for over twenty years in one bank.

I thank God for those opportunities because that is what we are supposed to do. We are supposed to work. I thank God for the opportunity to serve this country, the opportunity that the people of West Bay have given me—these four terms. And I also thank Him for the sense of humanity that He has given me.

Mr. Speaker, they ask, 'What did McKeever do for the country?' I can put my record of contribution and accomplishment for the people of these islands with anyone's, especially those who like to criticise me. I would like to take the time, since I am being questioned about what I completed, and I won't go into the aspects of sports development, but I want to point out some of the things I accomplished. It wasn't easy because some of the same people who are criticising us today, criticised us then too.

And if they say that I am a National Team Member, then they don't know me again! Because the National Team as a Government put me out of Executive Council. I went to the people of this country and I said 'I will work with the Government when there is something that I can believe in, and when there is something that I can oppose, I will oppose.' That is where I stand. I am not going to criticise and talk about the Government unnecessarily.

In the year 2000, when that time comes, God willing, the people of this country will have an opportunity to choose the people they want to represent them, but not before. And, if they want to get rid of me at that time, that is their opportunity; that is a democratic right they have. But I am not going to 'cow-tow' to anybody!

They asked what I have done. I want to point out just a few of my accomplishments between the years 1993 and 1997. In the aspect of Social Services, seminars were held for the investigation of maltreatment of children, the effects of child abuse and neglect on child development, and human services. Meetings were open to police officers, crown counsel, medical social workers, psychiatric social workers, truant officers, school liaison officers, in order to improve the skill-level of professionals in the identification and working with the victims of abuse. Child neglect and child abuse seminars. We sent people to the University of the West Indies.

Social Work. The Young Parents Programme which was introduced in July 1994. The main aim of the programme was to prevent child abuse and to promote responsible parenthood and appropriate care of children. That programme is doing it well. Services are provided to children and their mothers who are at risk to further harm in domestic violence situations. We established multi-disciplinary teams comprising the police, the Department of Health Services, the Education Department, Legal Department and Social Services.

We passed the National Pension Law which, again, some of the establishments railed against. For what? For the good of the people of these islands, even if there have to be amendments here and there the general principle, the law, got to the House and was passed and accepted. And today people can plan safely for their future and have something to look forward to.

We passed Labour Legislation, something that I am still berated for, giving more benefits to workers, including more maternity leave, longer vacation time, and compassionate leave in the event of the death of a close family member. We increased the penalties for improper distribution of gratuities, enhanced cultural development by creating Cayfest. The development of the National Children's Choir for national enjoyment and character building for our children. We created the order of National Heroes, and we did at least recognise two Caymanians, the Hon. Jim Bodden, and Hon. Sybil McLaughlin.

Ritz-Carlton had nothing to do with that, Mr. Speaker. And I would remind those persons in the gallery who are talking, that this House has Standing Orders. Mr. Speaker, this is their House and they must remember they should respect it, even if they don't like what I am saying. I am asking you to say that to them. And that's not all of them: there are a few in the back of me who are making quite a bit of racket. But I can deal with them if you will allow me to. However, I would rather that you deal with them.

The Speaker: This is a very serious deliberation and I am asking everybody in the gallery to please obey the Standing Orders so that I do not have to take further action.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order.

The Speaker: May I hear your point of order?

POINT OF ORDER

(Relevancy)

Mr. Roy Bodden: The point of order is relevance. I wonder if the Honourable Member now speaking is going to come to the point where he debates the merits or the demerits of the motion before the House. I notice that he is giving his record of performance. And while I respect—

[applause from the gallery]

The Speaker: [gavelling] Once again let me ask those in the gallery to abide by the rulings of the House, or I will have the Serjeant-at-Arms remove you. Please, let us not come to that. This is not a place where you come to applaud.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, may I continue, sir?

The Speaker: Please.

Mr. Roy Bodden: I want to say that I acknowledge and respect the Honourable Member's record of performance in the Legislative Assembly, both when he was a Member, as he is now, and as a Minister. But we need to come to the point at hand which is Private Member's Motion No. 17/98 dealing with the merits or demerits of the present Ritz-Carlton Development proposal, sir. I crave the Chair's indulgence.

The Speaker: I note carefully what you have said, but he said he was going to be brief. Let's give him the benefit of the doubt.

The First Elected Member for West Bay, please continue.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: I would just like to thank my friend, the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, for that reminder. Mr. Speaker, I will bow to your ruling because I do want to get on to other areas, and I don't really think that I need to continue with all that was accomplished at that time. This was just to remind those persons who say I have done nothing, of what has been done—not for me, but for the people of these islands. The proof of the pudding is in the tasting thereof.

I will continue. I often ask myself the question: By what standard do I measure my actions? In the case of my efforts for the people of these islands, as the Good Book says, a workman that needeth not be ashamed. I certainly leave it to the people of this country to say whether I am worthy of my hire, but a quiet conscience sleeps in thunder.

It is easy, and I am sure comforting, for anyone to say that his activities and [actions] are not anti-investment. However, the reality is that just saying you are pro-investment when your actions are blatantly anti-investment, is something different.

The personal attacks and deliberate attempts to rile up people with conjecture, to play on the minds of certain people by getting on the radio and talking about people and their families, and who we are going to get in in the year 2000, will do nothing for the country. It creates an environment which is hostile to any new development, any new investor considering an investment in these islands. I believe all serious and credible investors welcome a mature democratic environment where the issues at hand can be freely debated, such as what the [Governor] (Vesting of Lands) Law has allowed in this motion and in this debate.

However, those same investors would have no interest in coming to a place where the political process is used for personal attacks and political grandstanding, where people are maligned. So, some people in their own minds might think that their actions are not anti-investment, but the reality is, the environment created would be highly negative to any group considering these islands. God help us all if this kind of attitude is to prevail.

Mr. Speaker, there is much talk about the year 2000, the election year. But with this kind of attitude you would not have to think much beyond the year 2000. Be you sure, Mr. Speaker, that I am not afraid of the year 2000, God willing.

I am not here to tell any Member how to vote on this matter, for, or against. Everyone here is intelligent enough to know what is good and what is not good, what is political conjecture and political grandstanding and what the facts are. People in here are intelligent enough whether they are for, or against. It is their right to vote on any matter accordingly, and in my opinion they have always done that.

Mr. Speaker, I, too, have my concerns for the environment. However, I have always realised that there can be a balance between the environment and development. I have always supported such a policy. We can save enough mangrove swamp to protect rainfall, wildlife and other things that are important to it. We can continue with sensible development that will contribute to the people of this country. I sincerely believe that. That is how I have always tried to do my business when it came to the National Trust or their issues or anybody else who are real—and I point out the word 'real'—environmentalists and real conservationists; not those who say one thing one minute and another thing the next.

The truth is that the Fourth Elected Member for George Town has not said anything as yet that convinces me that development and the environment cannot exist together. He has said nothing in his contribution. And I hope that he will enlighten the House when he rises again. I, too, have listened—

Dr. Frank McField: On a point of order.

The Speaker: You are rising on a point of order?

Dr. Frank McField: On a point of clarification. I said nothing about the fact that the environment and development could not co-exist.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay, just explain yourself.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, I believe I have explained myself well enough. That is why I got an interruption.

I, too, have listened to what some people had to say who are against this particular project. Some of it makes sense, definitely, because there are genuine people involved. If you could take it all without comparing to the reality then you could perhaps think differently about it.

I have been here long enough, and I am old enough at 43, to know that some of those persons who don't want this, and don't want that, Government can't do this and Government can't do that, will come and ask why doesn't Government do something about it. I have seen it! In other words, sometimes some of the people who criticise are the same people who come back and ask why Government doesn't do something about it. I have heard those complaining against development also complain about the lack of it when the economic downturn comes. What will they say then?

There is the question, Who are we developing for? I thank God that I live in a country as blessed as this. Development in the past has today trickled down and given us all a fairly good standard of living. That is a fact. When people have it so good that they can come out and even applaud the opposition in Parliament, then they must be making it good, otherwise they could not afford to take off the time. And I am glad for that. I am very happy to see them here. It means that things are not as bad as some would have you believe. It has trickled down, the development in the country, and has given us all a fairly good standard of living. That is who we are developing for—all of us.

It is easy to speak in derogative terms about development. The fact is that some of those people have no plans for the present. Some of those people have no plans for the future. Getting into the House and talking about the year 2000 is one thing, but being able to make this country viable for everybody is another thing. So what is their plan when they stop development? This country has two main pillars of economy—finance and tourism. Both of them are very fickle indeed. We don't have oil or other such natural resources. We don't have manufacturing. We don't have an agricultural base to be able to replace even the smallest and least effective economic sector in this country, much less something like tourism or finance.

Yes, we have to take the environment into consideration. But the truth and full facts must be taken into consideration. The two can go together. Getting on the radio show and talking foolishness about me or anybody else will not do anything to help this country. It might please some, and maybe it is music to some ears, because they love that, especially if they are going to criticise me that is good enough for some, but it cannot bring any good to the people of this country. It can't!

I made an enquiry of the owners of Holiday Inn as to what their position is on this matter. They took the opportunity to write me a letter outlining their position. It says:

“Dear Mr. Bush:

“As a Member of the Legislative Assembly I feel you should be aware of the facts surrounding the closure of the Holiday Inn.

“The Holiday Inn Grand Cayman, was constructed during the early 1970s in the style of the Holiday Inn of that era reflecting the roadside motel origins of this brand of hotel. Over the years we conducted three major renovations at considerable cost, since renovating an existing property is always an expensive procedure. These renovations were carried out for the purpose of repairing wear and tear to the property, making general improvements to maintain its competitive status and upgrading the property to meet Holiday Inn system requirements.

“In 1996 Holiday Inn International gave notice to members of the Holiday Inn system that all the older hotels would be required to undertake substantial modifications and improvements if they wished to remain members of the Holiday Inn system. Otherwise their franchise agreements would be terminated. The purpose of this was to modernise the system so that it could better compete with the other hotel chains which have had a much more recent growth.

“After assessing both the cost and the practicality of making the type of changes they were insisting on, and evaluating the cost and economic impact these would entail, we concluded that we could not economically justify the cost of the work on the scale that they would require, especially since we were at a peak of both occupancy and achieved rates.

“We were accordingly faced with two choices, namely, to change our name, or to close the hotel down and demolish it. We chose the latter course since it was very clear that a change of name would involve a downgrading of our image in the market place with a negative impact on our rate structure, occupancy and future profitability.

“Having arrived at this decision, we set April 30, 1998 as the date to close the Holiday Inn as this would allow us sufficient lead time to terminate our business activities and make all the necessary arrangements for closure of the hotel.

“We contacted the Ritz Carlton company to ascertain if there was any interest in their part in developing and having a Ritz Carlton hotel on the site of the Holiday Inn. They did express their strong interest in having a Ritz Carlton in Grand Cayman, however, they were not in the business of developing a Ritz Carlton resort themselves fully, and accordingly through [part of tape 16 missing] they contacted the Ryan group which led to the current project underway to develop these facilities.

“I want to tell you that we are most proud of our accomplishments with the Holiday Inn.

“Humphreys (Cayman) Ltd.”
“[signed]Mr. Glen Owen.”

I thought that after some of what I have been hearing, I should put that letter on record.

I want to deal with some of the matters I have heard being discussed, other matters that is. It is most important as the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town said, that this House and the people of this country know the facts rather than conjecture about the project.

Questions I have heard posed [include], ‘Why is the Government giving away the leased land so cheaply?’ As I understand it, the lease negotiated by Government is one of the highest ever in the islands. Correct procedure was followed, as I understand it and the applicant agreed to pay the amount stipulated by the highest value of the three estimates received. The amount Government will receive for the lease extension is $11 million—$4 million this year, $2 million in twelve months. That is my understanding, and, $5 million for the road extension. This total of $11 million is the amount stipulated by the Government Lands and Survey Department’s evaluating officer, not by anyone in Executive Council or anyone in this House.

The applicant is not paying the full amount is something else I have heard. The truth is, the applicant is paying the full amount in cash and in badly needed road costs; the $5 million for the road is the largest amount ever received for any road by this Government. The applicant is not only paying the amount of the highest estimate of the lease, but is also paying the full impact fee at the highest rate allowed under the new Impact Fee Law which is $1.7 million, giving no credit for the reduction in infrastructure requirements created by the closing of the Holiday Inn. This totals $12.7 million. In other words, if the Holiday Inn had stayed, it would not have been charged an impact fee, yet the net difference on the infrastructure is 151 keys, (hotel rooms that is), and the project is paying for the impact. That is good. The country needs the money. Let them pay.

In addition, this project, I believe, sets a new standard for the amount of contribution Government will receive from the development projects. I point out that this project has paid so far all applicable fees and not a single dollar due to Government will be deducted. Does this look like we are not getting anything out of it? Or that something was wrong with it? I doubt it.

Another question I have had from some people is that the applicant has received special concessions from Government. Normally Government at all levels, in various countries provide massive support and incentives to attract the type of investment that this project represents. Not saying that we did not need to do that; the Government has been able to secure the premier hotel chain in the world and an investment in excess of $350 million, and has arranged for the development group to pay for additional infrastructure.

This cannot be bad, Mr. Speaker. And the Travel and Leisure magazine for high-end tourism says that out of the top 100 hotels 12th is Ritz Carlton. Twelfth out of the 100 is the Ritz Carlton. That is not bad. And it says much for the hotel chain for those persons who understand about our tourism product. This cannot be all that bad for the islands.

Using the standard multiplier effect of six times the amount of the direct investment, the resulting impact of the $350 million over the period of time (whatever that is) invested in the Cayman Islands is in excess of $1 billion to the islands economy in the first two years. This includes the construction industry and all that entails, supplies— such as building blocks (I understand that the hotel will be built out of blocks), restaurants, stores, shipping, transportation, professional and financial services, and you go on and on. In addition, another billion dollars in indirect economic impact in the following three to five years. Now, I am not an economist by any stretch of the imagination. I am using the figures that are given within that business.

Now, the question has been asked as to whether Government could have gotten other people to do the development. That was the question I heard here on Monday. How would the Government do that when it is a private company doing it? And who is the other person, Mr. Speaker, that he says could do it? What are the better conditions that the Fourth Elected Member for George Town says should exist, or could exist with another person doing it? Who is this? Who is this other person? The country deserves to know who this is. I would like to know. And if the Member is so against the project, why is he complaining about who Humphrey decides to go into partnership with?

POINT OF ORDER

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town, may I hear what is your point of order?

Dr. Frank McField: The Member is debating my Private Member's Motion. My motion states clearly that I am not against the Ritz Carlton going on the site where the Holiday Inn was.

The Speaker: My understanding is that what he is talking about is an investor, and he is reading from the Hansard.

[Addressing the First Elected Member for West Bay]
Can you quote the page?

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Yes, Mr. Speaker. Page 17. The Member knows very well what he said. His memory is not that short I am sure.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town, do you have a further point?

Dr. Frank McField: I don't mean to be a nuisance to the Member, I respect his right to speak, but my Private Member's Motion states clearly when we go back to the resolves that I am asking Government to approve, to grant permission for the entities to build a Ritz Carlton, or a hotel of this particular standard on Parcel 11.

The Speaker: I fully understand that. But he is quoting from a portion of the Hansard. The First Elected Member for West Bay, would you quote that portion verbatim?

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Mr. Speaker, what I said was that the Member on the one hand says he is for building the hotel, but on the other hand he is complaining about the entire project. He has said that you can get other people to do the project. That is the point I am dealing with.

He says there is no need to do the project. There is no need to do the project, yet he says that if the development were in North Side, East End, or Bodden Town, then it would be different. Either you are an environmentalist in George Town, in West Bay, in North Side, in Bodden Town, in East End, or you are not all. In other words, you cannot have your cake and eat it too!

But to play to the gallery, to grandstand, to talk about 2000 and continuously talk about politics! This is what it is all about!

The Speaker: Can I just interrupt you just one moment?

[addressing the Fourth Elected Member for George Town] On your point of order he is actually debating what you have said, so he has that right. Please continue, the First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Thank you, very much, Mr. Speaker. My good friend, the Fourth Elected Member for George Town, knows that I am right. He knows very well what he has said — what he has done thus far. He knows!

He says, "There is no basis for anyone to argue that this particular project is of economic importance to the Cayman Islands." I hope he can back that up with facts.

It is one thing to oppose, but it is something else to be consistent with what you want. Don't tell me you are against the project, that it has no... what did he say? Let me read it for you Mr. Speaker: That "it has no economic benefit for the Cayman Islands" — yet you want it for Bodden Town, North Side or East End.

There is much talk about destruction of the mangroves that belong to the people of Grand Cayman. I heard one person complaining that I had laughed, and the Member bringing the motion Monday made mention that I had laughed. What I had to laugh about was when the Member said that people believe that the destruction of the mangrove is simply a physical destruction, but he went on to say that it is a cultural destruction. And the part I had to laugh about— I smiled, I never laughed out loudly — was when he said it is a “spiritual destruction, it is a religious destruction.” That was what I had to smile about.

Yes, the mangroves, as I understand, because I don't know all about these things, and I listen to other people who are knowledgeable about these kinds of things, even if we don't get along well, I still listen to them if I know they are knowledgeable about it. He says they are destroying the mangrove and should not the land be kept for the people of Cayman to use? The land does not now belong to Government as much as people would like to believe. The lands are leased and irrevocably owned by a company, and that company has that lease for 52 more years. The point that has to be made to the people of this country so that one and all understand correctly is that at the end of the 52 years, negotiation can be entered into between the company and the Government for more extension.

The Westin, the Villas of the Galleon, Lime Tree Bay and the Falls complex are all on leased land, as I understand it, which will come due after 52 years or more. Does anyone really believe that those properties will stop doing business and give Government the land and buildings on it back without entering into additional negotiations? Let us be genuine with the people. Let us be realistic. The truth is that in the 1950s all of these properties were leased out and the die was cast at that time once those companies that received those leases were allowed to sell those leases. And it has happened.

It is not possible to rewrite history, and the proper action is to work to get the best possible out of the arrangement for the Cayman Islands to meet today's needs and those of the future. I believe that the Ritz-Carlton project does this better than any other option available. Unless, as the Member said, he knows someone who will do the project better.

The Speaker: Is this a convenient time to take the lunch break?

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I was just about getting hungry.

The Speaker: We shall suspend proceedings until 2.15 PM.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.50 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.31 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Debate continues on Private Member's Motion No. 17/98. The First Elected Member for West Bay, continuing.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you.

When we took the luncheon break, I had talked about the inconsistencies of being for the environment on the one hand, and against it on the other hand. I pointed out that the mover of the motion had said that if the development were going in North Side, East End, then he would take a different position. I had said that either you are for the environment as you say you are, in giving a long speech about it, or you are against it; but you cannot be both. In fact, you cannot be against the project coming to Cayman if you want to put it in Bodden Town, North Side or East End. That's a fact.

One question I have heard posed is: Why is the applicant being allowed to build a Ritz Carlton if the people of Grand Cayman have not decided that they want one? The applicant (it seems to me) is building what is allowed in the approved development plan and perhaps is building less than is allowed in the plan. The Government—any Government—has the right to decree what hotel chains will come to the islands. Hopefully, we are pleased that Grand Cayman has been able to attract one of the finest chains world-wide. Government, I do not believe, has the right to dictate to people what commercial ventures they must follow provided they comply with the applicable rules and regulations set down by the Government as this project has done. These are things that must be considered.

Another question, or untruth, is that Ritz Carlton is not part of the project, they are only the managers. The information that I was able to glean is that Ritz Carlton is one of the original sponsors of the project and Ritz-Carlton has a large financial stake in the project—over $25 million of total commitment. This represents a serious stake in this country by a qualified, credible international business company.

The question is posed, Why can the Ritz-Carlton Hotel not be built on the old Holiday Inn site only? The motion says this is what is to be done.

The Cayman Islands currently has only one true resort, the Hyatt Britannia Resort. A resort offers more to attract tourists than a stand-alone hotel can. The Ritz-Carlton is the premier resort company in the world. To offer all the features and services that they require, it is, I believe necessary to have the space to offer the pools, the spas, the restaurants, the convention facilities and golf to attract the type of tourist that comes to a Ritz-Carlton.

Mr. Speaker, right now this could be another aspect of our tourism produce, that is, convention facilities. This plan, from what I have seen of it, is catering to a facility that will accommodate 1,000 people or more. The country does not presently have such facilities. It has small rooms like the Grand Pavilion and some of the other hotels have space. But we don't have that sort of facility. This is another way of upgrading our tourism product.

With all of these features the Island will further secure its position as one of the premier destinations in the Caribbean, as well as accessing other markets that previously have not been able to consider Cayman, due to the lack of these kinds of facilities, in particular the group and incentive tourism sector that require the convention facilities I mentioned and other facilities, and critically the meeting and convention space. I believe that it is physically impossible to build these facilities as well as the required parking on the existing Holiday Inn site.

The villas planned in future stages, from what I can see on the Plan, will all surround separate swimming pools and meeting areas to further enhance the ability of the resort to attract group business, especially in the critical off-season market. Certain incentive travel groups require the ability to separate a specific area of a resort for their people while retaining the access to a full range of resort amenities. Whereas, most of the market for this type of business cannot afford, nor is there likely to be space to reserve an entire hotel complex; these individual areas allow for a broader range of attractive options to the critical incentive and group markets.

Therefore, you cannot imagine that it would be economical to build this sort of five-star resort property on a confined five-acre site. I don't know a lot about planning, but it would seem to me that it is not enough. The motion is saying that they can go ahead and build the hotel. Of course, the Member said they could put the project in another district.

Another question that I have been asked and have heard being asked is if the developer has the necessary funds to develop the project. It would seem to me that the mover of the motion took the investor to task saying he didn't have what it takes. Perhaps he has that information and perhaps he will share it with each individual Member of this House. I don't know that. As it seems to me, from all that I have been told by Humphreys (Cayman) Limited and the relevant people in the development, it was Ritz-Carlton who approached the developer, Mr. Ryan. I am sure that the Ritz-Carlton is not in the habit of approaching development groups who are not able to complete their projects.

One of the reasons the developer, Mr. Ryan, was approached, from the information I have gathered, is because he had already proven himself through his success and expertise in the resort development [field] through his projects in Costa Rica, Canada and the United States, some larger than the entire Ritz-Carlton project here.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order.

POINT OF ORDER

The Speaker: May I hear your point of order?

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, because the Member has stated his special interest in this resolution, he seems to be bringing facts into the debate that no Members of this Chamber could really have access to. It is because of his privileged position as a real estate person that he is able to bring this type of information to influence the debate.

The Speaker: So what is your point of order?

Dr. Frank McField: My point of order in fact is that the Member should not be in the position to influence the debate because of his interests.

The Speaker: I am not following your train of thought. I thought the purpose of debate is to inform the House of the matter.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, we talk about common knowledge and things, we should all have access to the same information, if not, then the debate becomes a little one-sided. The Member has read a letter which was written to him by Humphreys that has not been tabled, that we have no access to. It is this type of position that the Member has as an owner of a real estate company. He has privilege to very private and confidential information that we don't have access to. Therefore I believe that the debate is being one-sided as a result of his position. I question whether he should be debating at this time.

The Speaker: I cannot concur with you that that is a point of order. The purpose of debate is to inform the Honourable House of events at hand. You had a privilege and you gave some very pertinent points during your debate which were all very valid. Maybe Members did not have that knowledge. That is why people debate. So, would the First Elected Member for West Bay please continue?

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I have some information that is basic, if you go to the Planning Department, if you talk to the developer. The Fourth Elected Member for George Town brought the lawyer and the developer to Members of this Honourable House and each one of us sat down for about an hour or longer, asking them questions, seeking clarification. And we did that. My train of thought was to seek some information from the Humphreys because they were closing the hotel and I didn't know why. They hadn't said why and I wanted to find out. I was not privy to anything.

What I am talking about here is that I do have some knowledge because everyone knows that Cambridge Real Estate Corporation sold a lot of condos at the Britannia. These things that I am talking about are facts. It takes common sense, not just other things, common sense will tell you that if you are going to improve your tourism product that you need the things I am talking about. And if you go to Planning, you will see.

Mr. Speaker, I believe that he has had as much time to gather facts as anybody else—being a full-time Member of this Assembly. In fact, the Member says that he knows of another developer who is willing and capable, and to use his language, he says that we could get other deals who could give better conditions. If he has this information, I don't . . . he mentioned this in his debate, but he has not produced it. And as a Member of this House, even if my company is doing something, I am entitled to speak as long as I have declared my interest. That is the Standing Orders, and, as I said, out of an abundance of caution and with due respect to the House to give sufficient time, I sent you the letter.

I believe this is as it should be, Mr. Speaker, because while I will not be able to vote on this matter, a lot of things have been said and if I was not able to speak, then a lot of people could get away with a lot of things accusing me, and making insinuations. And that is the purpose of the Standing Orders, to allow Members, even if they have an interest but they cannot vote, and that is the situation. My friend, the Fourth Elected Member for George Town will learn this in due course.

As I understand it, as I was saying before I was interrupted, the developer has put forth all of the necessary and appropriate funds to Government and other entities required to move the project forward and has retained some of the finest professionals in the world, including local Caymanians to work with him at his own expense. This is stuff that was told to us in that meeting, as I recall it, organised by the Fourth Elected Member for George Town when he was supporting the project.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Mr. Speaker, the Member should not really get into this questioning about when he was supporting the project ... and I am being kind here.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: And I would expect him to be kind to me as well.

POINT OF ORDER
(Misleading)

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, the point of order is that the Member is misleading the House. There is no record of my supporting this project and the Member needs to prove that point if he is going to continue to make it.

The Speaker: Can you explain why you made that statement please? The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Mr. Speaker, the Member well knows if he was supporting the project. At one point or another he was against the project. He came out on the television against the project. So, as I understand it he met with them and then he brought the developer and the developer's lawyer from Hunter and Hunter to talk to us, to convince us of the situation.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: It is an important point of order. The Member, the First Elected Member for West Bay, is, I believe, incorrect and I am saying that he is misleading the House because, in fact, I made certain statements in the press that led the lawyer for Humphreys to believe that I did not understand the full extent of the agreement with the Government. When it was explained to me that the deferment was not for infrastructural fees and impact fees, I was told that by the lawyer and I decided to make that information available to other Members of the Legislative Assembly by inviting the lawyer and Mr. Ryan to give them that information so that they would have had the benefit of the doubt on the same information as I had.

But there was no indication: no such thing as my supporting the project! Therefore, the First Elected Member for West Bay is misleading the House as he has so often done.

The Speaker: Can I ask you, First Elected Member for West Bay, to move on to another point? You have both made your explanations.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Mr. Speaker, when I am wrong, I am wrong. But I am not misleading the House and there are other Members who will, hopefully, clarify this.

The Speaker: I am not at all saying you are misleading. I have given you both an opportunity to explain yourselves.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Good!

The Speaker: I have not ruled it was a point of order, but I have asked you to please go on to another subject.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I will leave the Member alone with his assumption that I am misleading the House, because he knows he's on a limb. But that was not the only time he was supporting it. And other people will bring that point, if it is true. And the Member knows that. To say that I often mislead the House is not correct. It is not correct!

Where was the Member on Mother's Day? What was he doing at the West Bay Cemetery when I was fixing up my grandmother's grave but bringing one of his constituents who has a company. . .

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker on a point of order.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: And Mr. Speaker I can tell you—

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order.

POINT OF ORDER

The Speaker: Please, let us maintain order in the House. One person speaks at a time. If you will give way. . . The Fourth Elected Member for George Town, let me hear your point of order this time.

Dr. Frank McField: The Member seems to take a particular pleasure in throwing mud.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: It's not mud, it's the truth!

Dr. Frank McField: All I would like to say is that the Member has no proof and in no way can he prove this. He is misleading the House. As a matter of fact he is telling a lie, a bloody lie.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker—

The Speaker: Just give me one moment, please. I have asked you both. . . both of you have made your explanations, it is left to the listening public to [form their opinions] from what has been said. Let us not go further into this matter as it is not going to help the debate. Please, First Elected Member for West Bay, move on to another subject.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, I have my right under the Standing Orders.

The Speaker: I am not trying to do that—

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, please, can I address you on the matter?

The Speaker: Certainly. Go ahead.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you.

I have my Standing Orders and I know that if I am called a liar in this House I must prove otherwise. I ask you to set down that right. I will not call the constituent's name because I am above that, but I will certainly bring his business card and the name of the company tomorrow morning.

Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I will move on.

A lot of politics is being played, and they have a subject that they know will whip up some emotion. But, by God, if you do those things, at least say that you've done it and you have changed your mind because you can change your mind—

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order.

POINT OF ORDER

The Speaker: [addressing the First Elected Member for West Bay] Will you give way?

The Fourth Elected Member for George Town, what is your point of order?

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, the Member is back to the point again that you have asked him to leave.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay, please, I ask you to go on to another subject, and deal with this later.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, as I said, I reserve my right for tomorrow morning.

The question was posed, Why do we need a Ritz-Carlton? Although the financial sector will always be a pillar of the economy, the world is changing. One of the recognised areas for growth in the short, medium, and long term is the tourism sector. To compete in this sector Cayman needs to upgrade its inventory to satisfy the demands of our potential clients in a highly competitive market. I believe that the Ritz-Carlton will do this for us.

If we look around at our competition... and I heard the Member say that we are not the Bahamas, we are not anywhere else, we are Cayman. But we do have to pay attention to our competition. Our [competitors] are busily upgrading and improving their tourism product. We need to pay serious attention and continuously upgrade our tourist product to ensure that Cayman will be able to compete today and in the future. If tourism is to continue to be an important part of the economy of these islands, I believe to develop the Holiday Inn site as a Ritz-Carlton is the best possible option, and one that should be encouraged.

From what I read and understand, the more of the big investors we have come to Cayman, the better off we will be. It builds up the Cayman Islands asset base. As we look around the world today, we see that as far as the global economies are concerned the picture is not a rosy one; that is a fact. The big investors, from my point of view, if located here, and if we work with them, will do more to assist us in the event of any pressure we might face from external sources as they would be protecting their investments also. Somebody who is putting down the kind of resort development which in stages will be some $350 million would have something to protect.

We are hearing some concern about why we need to continue developing. Why do we need to continue developing? Check the Hansards. My position has always been that we are developing for the people of these islands. No country can stop developing. We can only make sure that we get good development and ensure that a balance is struck with such things as the environment. That is my opinion. We must do that if we are not only concerned about the present, but also of the future. Then we have to make sure that we develop and that the development is quality development.

The Member made reference to Vision 2008. He asked, "Are we listening to Vision 2008?" There are some 300 children graduating from school each year. In five years' time we will have 1500 children coming out of school. Not all of them are going to go into the tourism sector. We know that. And I know they can compare the Immigration statistics. You know what you do with some of these people saying 'We don't want this and we don't want that?' Try to take away one of their maids and cut down your statistics. Try cutting down one of their workers to cut down the statistics. You'll hear a different story. You will hear the same thing as you hear when they say, 'I don't want this, and I don't want that. No Government don't do that. Don't do that. That not good for us.' But 'Give me a road, give me this, build up this.' And then you say, 'But where's the money going to come from?' 'Well, listen here I don't want no taxes on my car.'

Mr. Speaker, all I am saying is that the way we have developed, yes development pays for this. Once it is balanced it will continue to do so. Once it is done right, it will continue to do that. All we have to do is ensure that good opportunities exist for those 1500 children in five years, at 300 per year on average, and train them. We must ensure that good training initiatives exist so that there can be upward mobility in the future for our people — these children graduating year by year.

Much is asked about what this will do for Caymanians. I know we are not going to please everybody—I know that, Mr. Speaker. I have never been able to do that. And it is a hard thing to try to balance. Everybody has responsibilities in this House—every one of us. But when we ask what this will do for Caymanians, it just can't stop there. And when we say, especially, that the developers are not pro-Caymanian, I know that that is not so. I spoke to them to get the information.

For instance, in addition to all those benefits that will come, the developers agreed to give 100 scholarships for Caymanians to attend the Community College and do training in the hotel and condo sector. And when I talked to them. . . in fact this is one of the things that they agreed to when the majority of us on the Backbench questioned them. There were only two Members who were not there, the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town, and the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay, but everybody else was there. This was one of the things that everybody was concerned about: training.

I said to them I think you need to go further to expand these scholarships to the International College of the Cayman Islands, and to give the same amount, at least that it would take for a person to do the training here, give that to a course overseas as a scholarship. If any person wanted to go overseas, there would be this assistance. Is this not trying to do something for Caymanians? And let us ask ourselves the question, as much as the developer has been maligned, Which other developer has done it? And he recognised from his development that he will be getting something from Cayman and he wants to put something back into it, that among other things. Which other developer has done that?

Also, when we heard about the Holiday Inn closing, I did speak to the Humphreys at the time and we got together with the developer. I brought to their attention that there were people over age 55 who would be displaced at the Holiday Inn. The developers agreed to give them $250,000 to be paid out over the time the hotel is being built. I think that this is something good. Caymanians are benefiting, and will continue to benefit from the development.

Now, as I said, you can't please everybody. Some people make it better than others in this world and so some people are not going to like these sort of things. They are not going to like it!

In addition, and a further example of the developer being pro-Caymanian and especially pro-small Caymanian, he (the developer) has agreed in advance to make every effort possible to enable the sensitive watersports concessions to be opened to the smaller Caymanian providers. While maintaining the necessary high standards required in Ritz-Carlton, the developer will be providing ample time and support to enable the smaller operators to compete on an even footing. In other words, he is going to do whatever he can to see that they get the business. What a difference as compared to the situation that exists presently where small operators get little or no business. Is this not helping Caymanians? This is helping Caymanians!

From the calculations, which are easy to make yourself, on an average over the first five years of operation the room taxes alone will bring in between $5 million and $8 million per year directly to the Treasury of these islands. Who is that going to benefit, but Caymanians? From the information I have, I understand that the only contract given out on the Ritz-Carlton project is to a Caymanian. Another Caymanian benefiting! Not everybody will get all that he wants from everything that exists in this country. Some will get more than others, but that is how it is made up in this island.

Mr. Speaker, everyone with common sense would agree that removing all the swamp in the country would definitely have a negative impact and moving some of it will probably have [some too]. But I believe that the negative impact is small, and nobody has brought any scientific evidence that proves otherwise.

We started development on the West Bay Beach, as the Minister responsible for Lands pointed out, way back in the 1950s when incentives were given. We started development on the West Bay Beach area on the sea side and the North Sound side a very long time ago. Swamp has been removed and it hasn't killed the place. The area is still the area that any quality development will want to be placed. Now, a lot of people might not like that, but that is a fact as far as investment is concerned. This swamp, . . . and this needs to be said: I am not being anti-National Trust. I never have and I never will be. Not that I agree with them on everything. But the swamp has not over the years remained some virgin rain forest in an isolated area somewhere. It is in the prime area for the country. And it is swamp that must be sprayed constantly in order to control the mass breeding of mosquitoes and other such insects.

The mangrove is dyked and drained too which means it is no longer the pristine ecosystem that we all talk about. And isn't it better that we contain development when we are talking about mangrove, for instance, and preserve other areas as some people have been doing with certain land banks? These are things that can be taken into consideration. But in order to keep down the mass breeding of mosquitoes, has anyone stopped to question whether this amount of spraying is causing any kind of sickness in these islands?

I remember — and a Member was talking about it the other day — when I was the Minister for Health I posed that question to one of the doctors. One answer was that there was a possibility that the spraying was causing the high cancer rate in the country. And I just heard a Member questioning that same thing. I do know that several people have passed away — in blessed memory — from that department. And I am not saying that there is scientific evidence, but many people believe that the spraying has something to do with the high cancer rate in the country.

One question I have been asking (because I was told so) is whether it is true that the first 20-50 feet of swamp is the most important, or very important for sea life to breed. As I understand it the project is preserving the 300 feet of mangrove buffer as is set down by regulation.

On questioning whether or not the developer has the interest of Cayman at heart, it would seem to me that it is to the investor's extreme economic interest to not only just at the beginning of the development, but at each and every step, focus on the careful and sustainable quality of the environment and to keep it in as pristine a state as possible. Not just during the development stage, but each day, each month, each year, each decade because that's how important it is, or will be, to their development. What they would sell to the tourists is a sustainable environment. I would hope that the authorities would see to it that they have the expertise necessary to carry this out because it must be a must! Let me put it that way.

The Speaker: Maybe this would be a convenient time to take the afternoon break. I would like to invite all Honourable Members to meet with the Temporary Acting Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs in the Committee Room immediately after our suspension in order that he can brief us on the movements of Hurricane Georges as it approaches Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

We shall suspend for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.19 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 3.53 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Debate continues. The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you.

Mr. Speaker, when we took the break I was dealing with some of the questions being posed. I was talking about the effect of aerial spraying in the country to stop the mass breeding of mosquitoes. I had a chance to talk to the mover of the motion who is saying that he got some information that the high cancer rate was not so; this is all speculation and it is not true.

I did say that in my contribution that I had no scientific knowledge and I didn't think anybody had any scientific knowledge that it was so or not so. But, as I said, a lot of people questioned why so many people have passed away in the Department of Environment with the same said situation. I am not saying it is, but people do question it. It is something worrying. If the Department of Environment has scientific information that says it is not, then perhaps they should allow us that information.

One of the questions that keeps coming up and statement made is that we should have no more over development because it causes stress. In regard to tourism development or this particular project, after the loss of the Holiday Inn and the Grand Pavilion, the island's inventory is reduced.

So we can do a couple of things to compensate. We can either build thousands of rooms for lower level tourism, which means more people—and we all know that can increase stress—or we can build fewer rooms for a higher level of tourist: those who are able to spend more (which is the Cayman Islands' policy, from the question I asked in the House the other day and was answered by the Minister for Tourism) which is what the Ritz-Carlton will do. Greater benefit for lower impact. Quality over quantity. This is what I think we should be striving for in our tourism product in the Cayman Islands.

The Member referred quite often to the Vision 2008 exercise saying that we must listen to the people, that this is what the people are saying. I pay attention to the Vision 2008 exercise. I have had public meetings on it and stated my support for it, and the need for such an exercise. But, all that is contained in this document is the opinion of people, it is not a definitive document. For instance, while he is exhorting us that we must listen to Vision 2008, we must pay attention to this Vision 2008 or the people are going to kick us out, they are going to throw us out, as I have already said, when the people of West Bay get ready to do that, that is their democratic right. It won't be the first time they tried to kick me out and the people acted differently. All manner of things were said too. But I guess that can be done again.

Mr. Speaker, you've been through it. You've been through the electoral process or the political process. So you know what things they can come up with. In the state of mind that I know is existing, it doesn't surprise me what will be said. I don't know how much more, though, they will be able to say.

The Member exhorted us time and time again that we should pay attention to Vision 2008. Vision 2008 also says that "the Caymanian's first policy" (let me go slowly with this) "the Caymanian's first policy should be modified so that high school graduates are required to take a test before they are eligible for office jobs." According to this document 58% believe that to be so. They strongly agree according to this document. Does the Member believe that too?

This is not the 'document' or the 'Bible' of this country. The Vision 2008 Document says that "the tourist industry should try to attract more middle and higher income tourists." Let us focus on those two things, "to attract more middle and higher income tourists to ensure that the Cayman Islands does not become an elite and over-priced vacation destination." Does he believe this? Sixty-nine percent agree, according to this document. It says that "tourism in general is too important to the economy and the tourist industry should work on attracting more tourists to the islands over the next ten years rather than attracting fewer, yet wealthier tourists in an effort to protect the environment." If I am understanding this correctly, it says that we should be supporting mass tourism.

Do we know what mass tourism is? The kind of tourists that come here and put the ice in the bureau drawer in the room to keep their beer. That's what we want to promote? I think the Government is saying something different from the answer given to my question about the type of tourists.

So, I agree with some of Vision 2008, but you can believe this: I certainly don't agree with all of it in particular, I don't agree with this because it makes no sense. I don't care if 69% or 100% said it, because if your argument is that you don't want infrastructure that is stressful, then you can't say bring in more tourists. You can't say that we should spend money attracting more tourists because that is what the tourist will do, more will mean more stress. I don't know, in his asking us to take into consideration Vision 2008 whether he paid attention to these things, and if he did, whether he supports them.

In the question about the new vacation destinations around us, they came up with this one: "Suppose Cuba became a major vacation destination in the next five years. Are you worried that this might significantly hurt the economy of the Cayman Islands?" And, 45% said they are very worried; 27% said somewhat worried; 17% said not very worried. And you can believe that when you add all of them together you get worried people! And rightly so.

What do we do to preserve our market share? This is the question. And we cannot get away from it as much as some people who do things and say things to stop people from building Ritz-Carlton or building any other development for that matter. Tourism is one of the main pillars of the economy and it is going to continue to be the main pillar of the economy if we don't watch out. I will say no more.

Mr. Speaker, I don't think I need to refer any more to Vision 2008 because this is not a definitive document, and it is a matter of people's opinion. But if you take all those things that I said, somebody should be worried about the situation.

I believe that we must strive for development that will assist us in being a sophisticated, dynamic young country that can face the new millennium with the tools in hand that enable us to deal effectively with the predicament of nation-building with all that it entails under the challenging process of globalisation. These are matters that we are paying attention to right now. Right now in this country groups are talking about it. When the question is posed, Can, or will, the Cayman Islands hold its own within the context of the so-called mega-block economic formation? the answer would be yes.

Yes, Mr. Speaker, if [we] have the type of international businesses coming in that can sustain us, not only today, but in the future—five years, ten years, thirty years down the road. I believe that such a development, as the Ritz-Carlton, will assist in building our credibility and sustain development initiatives far into the new millennium.

We said, let's not pay attention to what the Bahamas are doing, and some other names were given. But we have to pay attention to what they are doing. We have to. This is where we started back in 1967, or around there, between 1967 and 1973. If you pay attention, as I know the vast majority of Members in this House will, you will see that they are making a serious comeback. They are doing the right things. We have to pay attention to our competitors they are upgrading their tourism product seriously. It is not quite the same as ours, not all of it, because they have other things. But they are gearing up again and moving along. And I applaud them for it. That's what you do—you take care of your people, even though everybody will not be pleased.

I would hope that all I have had to say, helped to provide some facts and a clearer understanding and would only leave in the minds of the people of this country that quality development would not only help to enhance our present needs in the tourist sector, but a greater dimension of development for the whole future of this country.

As I said, I am not here to tell people how to vote. That is their prerogative and everyone here is intelligent, they know what is good and what is not good and they can make their own judgement calls on the facts that are given accordingly. I believe they should judge it on that basis. Insulting people and saying all manner of evil about them is not going to help; that does nothing for the situation.

Personally, I believe that the project will continue to be good in the future for these islands and it will not destroy us, as is being said. There are two important matters that I am concerned about. That is, the storm buffer—and in any development they are leaving the 300 ft. storm buffer that Government requires by regulation: they are doing this. The other concern I have is about dredging. They are not doing any dredging in the North Sound. That is a fact. Planning is there. The Planning commission (I guess you would call it) is there for people to check.

Given the economic conditions of the world, given the situation of global economies, and all that these islands face, and Mr. Speaker, whether I can sell condominiums or not, or whether someone else is allowed to, that is the prerogative of the developer. I believe the project to be sound, to be sensible, and good for the future of these islands. And to get to the future, we have to start preparing in the present.

The mover has not said anything to convince me that he has scientific knowledge for the basis of his actions, and he has not given any information that will convince me that he actually knows that this project is bad for Cayman. He has said a number of things, but he has not given any factual basis for it. He says that the developer should not be here, but I would imagine that the Government did some check on him. I would hope so. He says that there is another developer Government could give this to, and there are better conditions. He hasn't said who the other developer is, or the conditions this other developer will give. So, I hope he can deal with those things.

I certainly cannot vote for the project, but you can believe that I believe it is a good thing for the future of these islands, given all that we face. Thank you.

The Speaker: The floor is open for debate. Does any other Member wish to speak? The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: As the Member who seconded this motion, quite naturally I have some things to say to the motion. I have listened keenly to all that has been said and I have noted that there were times when Honourable Members' tempers were frayed and the patience of the Chair was called upon. Indeed, I, myself, drew the attention of the Chair to what I considered was an important point of order.

Let me begin by saying why I, the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, support this motion and have seconded the motion. In my behaviour here I have never put myself in the position where I stood up to speak out on something that I did not believe with all my heart to be so. And you know that I have been called many things, and have been accused of many things many times by the National Team Government and its supporters, including one who has opposed for the sake of opposition. However, I have to say that I have had the good fortune and the support of my constituents who have believed in the righteousness of my causes and the sincerity of my position to have returned me three times. The last time in spite of the National Team, and many people who are not so 'National Team' now.

Having said that, I want to say that I shall keep my debate to the high standard the Honourable House has come to expect of this Member, and I shall say what I have to say without fear or favour.

I am reminded that the 'National Team' finds itself and the National Team Members find themselves in the same said position that the National Team Members have so often reminded the Parliament and the country about, namely, that which Mr. Ezzard Miller was in in 1992.

I want to see what the National Team is going to do now that they are in that position. I want to see how flexible the National Team is. I want to see what kinds of systems they have. I want to see what kind of regard the National Team who claimed itself so all-seeing, so sensitive, so attuned to the wishes of the people. I want to see what they are going to do now, if they are going to make the same mistake that they claim Mr. Ezzard Miller made and get voted out of office like he did.

This motion is not about money. And I will quite candidly admit up front that there is scope for lots of money to be made from this development, if the development comes to fruition. But one has to quite sensibly ask one's self, Is money the be all and end all? What about the future? What about my children, what about our children and our grandchildren? Are we not mortgaging the future? Are we not handcuffing them so that they will not have certain means at their disposal, so that they will not have certain options that they may be able to sensibly exercise?

Let me just say something about the lease. Let me correct something that I heard the Honourable Minister for Lands say while making an analogy. A lease of 99 years does not necessarily mean that the party leasing has to extend that lease any further. They may exercise their option to close the lease at the end of that time. Case in point: Did not the British lease Hong Kong from the Chinese for 99 years? And were they not interested in extending beyond that point? What did the Chinese tell them? We are sorry, the lease is up. We are not extending. We want our territory back. And, we know what happened.

So, Mr. Speaker, let us not be lulled into the notion that the lease of 99 years is bound to be extended in perpetuity for we don't know. . . we hope at that time our progeny will be occupying the halls of Government and these hallowed halls. We don't know what their decision is going to be, we don't know what their disposition will be. So we can't take it for granted that they are going to allow this lease to continue. And I am sure that the people leasing know there is a certain risk they have to take, namely, that after the 99 years they may have built all of these buildings and developed the property and the owner will say, 'We want to take this back. So all these things come to us.'

As for us, we shouldn't anticipate, because we won't be around. I am not the youngest Member in here, but I am not the oldest. And I am sure it will have to take a long stretch of the imagination to stretch to the point where I will be around 52 years from now! So I would hope that within this lease there is no automatic extension or rollover hidden because that would really be imprisoning our progeny.

Few issues in recent times have been more explosive and more emotional than this particular one. In the Cayman Islands this issue supersedes the interest in Clinton and his behaviour and the scandal in the United States because over the last week I have not heard ten Caymanians talk about Clinton—everybody is talking about the Ritz-Carlton and the implications of this motion.

We know that land is very important in the history and culture of our country. And it is from land that all wealth is generated. Hence, the reason why this issue is so emotive, so all consuming, so engaging, because the people have every right. . . and I am happy that there is one issue that can fire up the Caymanian people who have so often [been] accused of being passive, laid back and nonchalant. I am happy and I hope that their emotion—the arousal of their interest—in this proposal is symptomatic of their interest in what is happening in their country from here on in. On the eve of the 21st Century we can no longer afford to be nonchalant, to be unconcerned. No longer can we say, 'Well, it's not pinching my toe, so I won't scream.' I am happy, Mr. Speaker.

What I am not happy about are some of the symptoms of behaviour that I have witnessed in here and I have heard elsewhere. Mr. Speaker, you know that I am one who always likes to tout the merits of democracy. This House, this Chamber, was designed so that Honourable Members on all sides of the spectrum with all different opinions and debate and discourse reasonably emotional, Mr. Speaker, like I get sometimes. But stop short of chopping one another up. All of us were elected and all of us are pledged to do the same thing: responsibly represent our constituents and country.

So, my spirits are dampened when I hear cheap shots taken; when people interpret positions as purely personal. I will endeavour to get my points across however difficult they may be without being personal, without maligning anyone, and without imputing any untoward motive. But, I make no apology for this: I am going to speak my mind as I see it, and I full well expect to be castigated as I have been before. But all Honourable Members know that I am not the longest serving Member here, but I have weathered many a storm. So, I hold no fear of anyone who comes behind me. I just want to say that it is my duty and my responsibility to call matters as I see them with full respect of the office of all Honourable Members inside here.

Mr. Speaker, the motion is straightforward. I would like to say now as I will observe again later, that worded as it is I will crave the indulgence of the Chair when that time comes to allow Honourable Members to vote according to the resolutions as put, and there are three or four, sir.

The Speaker: Are you saying each resolution separately?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Yes, sir.

The Speaker: Understood.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Most Caymanians yearn for simple solutions; solutions that will make problems go away. There is nothing wrong with that. There is a certain practicality of that that is characteristic of the Caymanian psyche. It would be an ideal situation if we could solve these problems so easily; if we could just will simple solutions to complex issues such as this one. But that is not to be, so we have to rise to the challenge irrespective of what position we hold.

I was disappointed with the way Government handled this matter. I was disappointed because on 17 July late in the afternoon, bordering toward evening when this matter was tabled, there was no attempt by the Government to sell this matter to the Honourable Members of the Legislative Assembly. There was no attempt by the Minister laying this bundle on the Table to explain the significance of these documents. Indeed, it would almost seem as if the documents were just thrown there.

And the National Team Government followed its usual style of not saying anything and hoping that the problem would just go away; that there would be those of us who wouldn't raise a query; those of us who would just take the bundle for granted, take it home and not even read it! I have to call into question the professionalism, the responsibility in the way this important matter was handled. Common courtesy would have suggested that some explanation be forthcoming. Certainly, precedence and procedures in the past have dictated that that is the way matters of this magnitude were handled. Indeed, I have seen less significant matters handled with more professionalism and openness.

MOMENT OF INTERRUPTION—4.30 PM

The Speaker: Is this a convenient time to break?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Yes sir.

The Speaker: I will entertain a motion for the adjournment of this Honourable House.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until 10.00 AM Friday. The reason for that, as we understand it, is that the National Hurricane Committee is going to publish a tropical storm warning for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman this afternoon and we feel it is in our interests not to be here but with our constituents.

The Speaker: The question is that this Honourable House do now adjourn until 10.00 AM on Friday. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AT 4.30 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM FRIDAY, 25 SEPTEMBER, 1998.

FRIDAY
25 SEPTEMBER 1998
10.28 AM

[Prayers by the Honourable Temporary Acting First Official Member.]

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Item 2 on today's Order Paper: Announcements and Messages from the Presiding Officer.

READING BY THE SPEAKER OF MESSAGES AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

The Speaker: We were absent from the sitting yesterday and give thanks to Almighty God that the Islands were spared from Hurricane Georges. We are glad to be back this morning.

Item 3 on today's Order Paper: Presentation of Papers and Reports. We will have to move on as the Hon. Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works is not in the Chamber.

Questions to Honourable Members and Ministers. Question No. 158 standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION 158

No. 158: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Hon. Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs what is Government's policy regarding the number of children born to non-Caymanian mothers with Caymanian fathers who claim paternity.

The Speaker: The Hon. Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Mr. Speaker, Section 15(3)(a), (b) and (c) of the Immigration Law (Law 13 of 1992) (1997 Revision) specifically addresses the issue of illegitimate children of Caymanian father and non-Caymanian mothers.

Section 15(3) (c) of the Immigration Law 1992, gives the Immigration Board the discretion to make a declaration that, for the purpose of the application of the Law, any person claiming to be the father of the child and who is able to prove to the satisfaction of the Board that he is the father and undertakes responsibility for the maintenance of the child, may be regarded as the father and the father's status may be taken into account in determining whether or not the child has acquired or may acquire Caymanian status.

Government has no control over the number of persons who may make such claim.

The Speaker: Supplementaries. The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I clearly understand the Law with regards to this particular question – the relevant section of the Immigration Law. What I would like to ask as a supplementary is for the Hon. Third Elected Member to say how has the Immigration Board in the past regarded applications by fathers that are Caymanians with regards to their children that are born of mothers that are not Caymanians. What has practice—not law but practice—procedures indicated that the policy is?

The Speaker: The Hon. Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Mr. Speaker, there have been over the past six years or so, fifty children who have been granted Cayman status by virtue of this section. I cannot say to the Member what was the total number of applications and as such give a perspective as to whether the majority of such approaches are successful, but obviously the Board does utilise the provision of the Law and is amenable to exercising the provisions contained therein.

The Speaker: Supplementary, the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Could the Member say what types of practical considerations are made with regards to granting of status to these children, whether or not in this case—if the domicile of the father is what is considered to be important, or that of the mother in this particular case? Are there questions as to whether or not the father is married or single? What are some of the considerations that are taken into account with regards to deliberation on granting of status to these children?

The Speaker: The Hon. Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Mr. Speaker, I think first and foremost, the Board has to be satisfied with the father's claim, and in some cases may wish that to be substantiated with medical tests, or DNA tests in particular.

In terms of the broader considerations, I expect that the Board considers both the father's indication and ability to care for the child in the event that the mother may choose to leave. Beyond that I cannot really give the Member what other specific considerations there may be.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I realise that this was not my question, but I am very interested in this issue because I have so much representation to my office and I have to provide the general public with a lot of information, so I appreciate the fact that the Honourable Member has been very helpful in helping me to get some answers to this.

Mr. Speaker, would the Honourable Member say when considering status, or citizenship—in this sense let's say citizenship, nationality, belonging—if what is taken into consideration is the question of domicile rather than the question of nationality? Is the question of nationality—the child's right to status—being determined by where the Immigration Department believes the child will reside, or is the status being given to the child as a right that the father has to claim the child by way of the Immigration Law?

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Mr. Speaker, I think it is very much the case of the latter. There is a substantial geographical spread in the nationalities of the children who have been granted status, and I do not think that, or the fact that the child may eventually by virtue of the maternal connection reside in some particular country, I do think that is the overriding factor.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: I do not think that the Member understood the question. The question is: In considering granting of status to the progeny of Caymanian fathers who have non-Caymanian mothers whether or not in giving or granting the right – the hereditary right to citizenship, whether or not the primary consideration is where the child will reside?

In other words, if the child is going to reside in the Cayman Islands, the child might have a right to status if the father can prove that he can support the child and the child will have a home, whereas if the child is going to reside outside the Cayman Islands the Immigration Board would not necessarily grant the status.

In other words, is nationality more than the right to reside? Is the determining factor here having to do with the request to reside, or with a request to pass on one's nationality? Some fathers feel that they would like to pass on their nationality whether or not the child resides here or not – that's what I am saying. And then those types of applications, what type of considerations are made to accommodate those requests?

The Speaker: The Hon. Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Mr. Speaker, I thank the Member for the clarification and I take the view, yes, that certainly the majority of grants relate to cases where there would have been indications of a desire and intention for the child to remain here. I cannot give him an answer to the other category he is eluding to, in terms of a father simply wishing to pass on his nationality to a child who is not, and does not intend to remain in the territory. But I can undertake to provide him an answer on that.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Honourable Member say whether there has been a recent review of this policy, and also is the Member in a position to tell the House whether the Government has received any representation from persons who are aggrieved because they are frustrated with attempts to acquire status for children whom they readily acknowledge to be theirs and whom they also pledge to support?

The Speaker: The Hon. Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Mr. Speaker, I am not aware of any policy review in relation to this particular category of applicants under the Law. I can acknowledge, yes, that from time to time obviously representations are received in respect of decisions taken by the Board under this section of the Law as on other sections. Normally those are dealt with in the form of appeals to Executive Council which is the appellant body under the Law in respect to the Board's decisions.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I have a supplementary for the Hon. Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs

The question is: What is the position with regard to persons who live here who are not subject to Immigration controls, that have children here?

The Speaker: The Hon. Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Mr. Speaker, I understood the question to be, What is the position in regard to persons who live here and not subject to Immigration control and who have children? Sir, obviously those persons who are not subject to Immigration control would be those who possess Caymanian status or permanent residence.

In the case of people who have been granted Caymanian status, my understanding is that the children normally inherit that right until an age described in the Law at which time they have to then seek themselves for the continuation of the respective privilege – whether it is status, or permanent residence.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Maybe I should have just provided a little more detail. The extra detail is, they are not subject to Immigration control, they do not have Cayman status and they do not have residency. I am thinking in particular, specifically with regard to certain Cuban nationals here who have been given the privilege of living here. They get involved, they have children here and I am aware that Immigration is now trying to tell them the child is not welcome to live here. I wonder if the Hon. Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs can say what is the position on that type of child born here.

The Speaker: The Hon. Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Mr. Speaker, first of all I am not aware and I would solicit from the Member any information that he has in relation to the sort of circumstance that he has alluded to. The category of individuals that he is referring to obviously is the category who have gained their right to remain here not through the normal deliberations of the Immigration Board. It is certainly my understanding that that right to remain would extend to their offspring and if he will share with me the case he is referring to, then I would certainly be happy to look in to it.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I am wondering if the Member could say in regards to the matter of Caymanian descendants coming from Cuba what is the situation ... or would he prefer to leave it alone so that the review that we are carrying out can take place and probably give us better guidance.

The Speaker: The Hon. Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Mr. Speaker, I am not clear whether the Member is seeking to extrapolate the gist of this question to a particular category of individuals namely Caymanians with a Cuban connection, or is he looking to ask a more general question about ... certainly all of these provisions are to be considered by the Select Committee of the House.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, I did say persons coming from Cuba of Caymanian descent. I was specifically dealing with connections in that particular question, but I heard what the Member said.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I am going to give the Honourable Member a specific case. I am not going to call any names, but it would be good if he could give me his opinion and see if his opinion coincides with mine on the issue.

The Speaker: You cannot ask for an opinion.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Well I can give him mine, sir.

I have a situation where you have a Cuban national who is male, and I have a Honduran national who is female. And they have a child here. Immigration is saying that the child is not legally allowed to live here.

Now, Mr. Speaker, I am aware, and you are aware that back in 1992 (I think it was) when we reviewed the Immigration Law, we took out all discrimination with regard to sex or gender. I think at that stage the child automatically took the nationality of the mother, and that caused a lot of very severe situations. So that is the situation and I wonder if the Honourable Member would be so kind as to tell me what his opinion – what the position is on that.

The Speaker: The Hon. Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Mr. Speaker, unfortunately the Immigration Law does not give him nor me any authority – makes no reference to either one of us – but I would like to get more information. You didn't mention the marital status of the relationship and perhaps you can provide me with that privately and I can certainly undertake to look into it for you.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. There is a substantive question on the Business Paper in connection with Cuban nationals wishing to obtain a visa to reside in the Cayman Islands and since this question is dealing with this particular subject at this present time I wonder if the Honourable Temporary Acting First Official Member might be in a position to deal with this at this point rather than having to come back to the same thing again since we are basically dealing with the question of Cuban nationals at this point.

If he is, I would like to ask him if he could state what the current policy is in respect to Cuban nationals with Caymanian connections wishing to obtain a visa to reside in the Cayman Islands and also to state the procedures and requirements for obtaining such a visa.

The Speaker: The Hon. Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs. (Pause) Am I understanding from the Third Elected Member for George Town that he would withdraw the other substantive ... because we do have an answer for that question and it depends on what the Acting First Official Member prefers to do. The Hon. Temporary Acting First Official Member? (Pause)

Well let's go back to ...

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Yes, Mr. Speaker. Thank you. Since we are dealing with the question and we are getting a lot of answers in regards to Cuban nationals with Caymanian connections I just thought that it would really be in order if we could get the answer for this. Then I would withdraw the substantive question.

The Speaker: Would you read that question then in its entirety and you will withdraw it when we come to it.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Yes, Mr. Speaker, thank you. The question is to the Hon. Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs and it reads (a) To state the current policy in respect to Cuban nationals with Caymanian connections wishing to obtain a visa to reside in the Cayman Islands and (b) to state the procedure and requirements for obtaining such a visa.

The Speaker: The Hon. Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Yes, Mr. Speaker, I am quite happy. It sounds like there is a 'special' on—'you buy one and you get one free'. So, the answer is available and I am quite happy to provide it, sir.

There is currently a moratorium, Mr. Speaker, on the granting of permission to reside in the Cayman Islands for Cuban nationals with Caymanian connections. The moratorium has been in effect since August 1996.

The procedure in respect of Cubans with Caymanian connections wishing to obtain a visa to reside in the Cayman Islands, is for the local sponsor to submit details in writing to the Portfolio of Internal and External Affairs. These details include information such as their family connection to the Cuban nationals and their financial wellbeing, et cetera. The requests are then batched with others and reviewed by the Governor-in-Council. A decision is then made for approval, or non approval of the requests.

The Speaker: Supplementary. The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Am I to understand from this answer that where the sponsoring party is in a position to provide the necessary financial backings to the satisfaction of the Portfolio, together with other requirements that a visa would normally be granted.

The Speaker: The Hon. Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Yes, Mr. Speaker, albeit within the limitations of ... that I said that... there is currently a moratorium. But certainly in the absence of that moratorium the financial resources and obviously a formal commitment by the sponsor to be so responsible are necessary.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. A further supplementary.

I wonder if the Honourable Member could state if there is any plan to lift this moratorium within the foreseeable future.

The Speaker: The Hon. Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: No, Mr. Speaker, I know of no current such plan.

The Speaker: There are no further supplementaries? We'll move on to question No. 159 standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 159

No. 159: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Hon. Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs what is Government's policy regarding the placement of returning graduates in the Civil Service.

The Speaker: The Hon. Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: The Government's policy regarding the placement of returning graduates in the Civil Service continues to be to attempt to place each graduate in the post which best matches the individual's field study and the needs of the Public Service.

The Speaker: Supplementaries. The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Member say if there is any formal liaison between the Personnel Department and the Education Department so that there can be direct and accurate information as to when graduates are returning and also regarding their discipline specialities?

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 23 (7) & (8)

The Speaker: Before taking the answer to that question, I would like to ask for a motion to suspend Standing Orders 23 (7) & (8) in order that Question Time can go beyond the hour of 11 o'clock.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, I so move.

The Speaker: Is there a seconder? The question is that Standing Orders 23 (7) & (8) be suspended in order that Question time continue beyond the hour of 11 o'clock.

Those in favour please say Aye. Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: STANDING ORDERS 23 (7) & (8) SUSPENDED.

The Speaker: The Hon. Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs .

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Mr. Speaker, I think the answer to that question as I understand the situation, is that there is liaison between the agencies referred to. It is (I would say) arguable that that liaison is not as currently as extensive and as timely in terms of the period of study as it could and perhaps should be.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Honourable Member say whether it is the intention of the Government to improve this liaison so that the skills and knowledge brought by returning graduates may more effectively be utilised.

The Speaker: The Hon. Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Mr. Speaker, there are certain considerations ongoing in relation to the general subject of assisting further education and utilisation of those people in the public service. The issue of liaison and the fact of identifying and establishing any employment relationships is part of that. Unfortunately, I cannot say exactly when that consideration will come to a head and circumstances will be changed. But I can give an undertaking to try to enhance that particular aspect of the overall programme.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, would the Hon. Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs say if the considerations that he is referring to are considerations with regards graduates in the Personnel Department.

The Speaker: The Hon. Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: No, Mr. Speaker, I was not alluding to graduates who had studied Personnel Management or graduates who were assigned to Personnel in particular. I was referring to the broader issue of students in tertiary education.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Would the Honourable Member say if any concerns have been expressed by returning graduates concerning the grade that they are placed in the civil service on their return.

The Speaker: The Hon. Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Yes, Mr. Speaker, those concerns have been expressed and I expect that they will continue to be expressed to some extent, not to say that it is because Government is not mindful of the concerns expressed, but the whole nature of the relationship where the individual is working for you, or is taking up the employment by virtue by an obligation that was entered into long before the had the current evaluation of their own abilities and values. So, yes, there have been concerns expressed.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Thank you, M. Speaker. I wonder if the Honourable Member could say if the civil service is losing a great amount of these returning Caymanian graduates to the private sector because of the grade placement that they are being put into the civil service – that of an executive grade, rather than a professional.

The Speaker: The Hon. Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Mr. Speaker, that may be a factor. I think the rate of mobility may also be a factor and that is certainly something that is currently being considered – the rate of upward mobility within the organisation.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, can the Honourable Member state whether these returning graduates receive any kind of orientation into the civil service upon their return, or whether they are just accepted cold turkey from the university setting and brought in to the civil service.

The reason I ask the question, Mr. Speaker: The Civil Service is a specialised service. It is a service where much emphasis is placed on experience and actually working in the civil service. And from feedback I have received, young graduates do not benefit from sufficient orientation and many of them are misled to believe that because they have a university degree that should allow them to progress rapidly up the civil service ladder – not realising that the civil service is based on precedence, procedures and certain protocols that may not have been available in their academic training at the university.

The Speaker: The Hon. Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Mr. Speaker, it is true that there has not been a well-structured orientation programme. That is being worked on, and I think a programme is to be run very shortly which will involve some key senior individuals, expounding on some of the key areas of public service life and trying to get across a clear picture of what public service life is all about so that these young entrants will have a realistic basis of their expectations and their actions.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I do not want to put the Honourable Member on a spot, because I have always admired the way in which this Honourable Member has answered questions put forward to him. But I have this one to impose upon him and I would just preface it by saying it is not intended in any way a personal reflection upon him. But can the Honourable Member explain to the House why it has always been the touted objective of Government to Caymanianise the Civil Service and yet such an important aspect as this in the Caymanianisation of the Civil Service has not effectively been dealt with, or an effective programme has not been crafted over all these years that this so-called Caymanianisation has been touted.

The Speaker: The Hon. Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Mr. Speaker, I do not know whether he will continue to say that he admires the way I answer the questions or not. I wish I had the answer for that one for him, but I do not. Unfortunately, I cannot say why it is taking this long to...I know there was an attempt last year that got to present a similar programme that got aborted for whatever reasons and there is a renewed attempt this year to present it to those who have joined and those from last year.

One of the difficulties in organising has been that obviously when the 'infants' come on board, which is usually in the summertime, a lot of the key people--due to vacations and whatnot--are off, and then L.A. starts. But the intention (as I understand it) is to run it very shortly, perhaps between these two meetings, because I, myself am to take part in it.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, the next question is No. 160 standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 160

No. 160: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development how has the coming into effect of the National Pension and the Health Insurance Laws affected the inflation rate.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, The Economics and Statistics Office conducts quarterly price surveys – the last one being in June of this year. The September survey is currently underway and the results will not be available until early October of this year.

It is therefore not possible to say at this time what effects the National Pension and Health Insurance Laws will have on the Consumer Price Index.

The Speaker: Supplementary? The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I do not have a supplementary as such on this, as I understand the answer. But, I would only like the Honourable Member and the House to know that this is a matter which the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town will be keeping a close and keen eye upon as I am interested as I believe other Members are in monitoring any effect that these may have.

The Speaker: Moving on to question No. 161 standing in the name of the Elected Member for North Side.

QUESTION 161

Mrs. Edna Moyle : Question No. 161 standing in my name is directed to the Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture (Speaker interrupts) –

The Speaker: May I interrupt you? I understand that that will be answered by the Honourable [Temporary] Acting First Official Member.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Mr. Speaker, I still have to read the question and the Minister it was directed to needs to reply and say that it has been passed to the First Official Minister.

The Speaker: The Hon. Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Mr. Speaker, I would beg leave of the House under Standing Order 23 (5) to defer answering this question at a later sitting.

The Speaker: I will put the question. Those in favour of deferring this to a later sitting please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED. QUESTION 161 DEFERRED UNTIL A LATER SITTING.

The Speaker: Moving on to Question No. 162 standing in the name of the First Elected Member for West Bay—he's not in the Chamber? (brief pause) The First Elected Member for West Bay.

QUESTION 162

No.162: Mr. W. McKeeva Bush asked the Hon. Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works what precautions are being taken to prevent the importation of the pink mealy bug.

The Speaker: The Hon. Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: This Ministry, my Ministry, through the Department of Agriculture, has embarked on a series of precautionary measures to prevent the introduction of the Pink Mealybug (PMB) into the Cayman Islands.

The precautionary measures undertaken are as follows:

Plant Quarantine: These measures are designed to reduce the risk of possible introduction of PMB associated with the importation of plants.

- Restricting the importation of plants from infested countries and countries with unconfirmed reports of infestation;
- Strengthening the procedures used for issuing plant import permits;
- Increased vigilance at ports of entry. (And I may add here that we are talking about the Airport and the Main Port).

Public Awareness Campaign: These measures are designed to alert and educate residents and visitors about the dangers associated with the introduction of this pest.

- Public service announcements in the electronic and print media;
- Government Information Services' press releases;
- Production and distribution of colour posters and flyers in all three Islands;
- Lectures/discussions with plant importers, nurseries, landscape and maintenance companies and hotel and condominium representatives;
- PMB awareness sessions with farmers;
- Poster displays at Agricultural Shows.

To date, the Cayman Islands is one of the few countries in the Caribbean region that remains free from this destructive pest. The Department of Agriculture recognises the need for vigilance to reduce the risk of introduction of the pest and therefore the country remains on a Pest Alert for PMB. In addition to the precautions mentioned above, the Department has implemented the following measures to properly prepare itself to manage the PMB if an infestation occurs.

On-going training for members of staff designed to upgrade the technical capabilities and skills within the Department of Agriculture. These included:

- One-week work attachments with United States' Department of Agriculture's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Services (USDA/AHIS) and Florida Department of Agriculture's Division of Plant Inspection (1997);
- Laboratory training in the identification and classification of mealybugs (1997);
- Training in the biological control of PMB (1997 and 1998)

Surveys: Initially a rapid detection survey of mealybugs was carried out with samples being collected and sent overseas for identification. Included in these samples were suspected PMB infestations reported by the public.

Presently, we are conducting a National Mealybug Survey to characterise the types of mealybugs present in the Cayman Islands and to reassure ourselves that PMB is not present. Due to budgetary constraints, the survey has been limited to:

(a) high-risk areas, that is, locations that have a high frequency of visitors. Examples include the ports of entry, hotels, condominiums and guest-houses, Botanic Park and Pedro Castle; and

(b) host-areas, that is, locations with a population of the preferred host plants of the mealybug. Examples include farms, nurseries and garden centres.

However, this strategy is designed to include a random survey of households in all three Islands.

Monitoring: The Department of Agriculture has set up a system whereby preferred host plants of PMB (eg Hibiscus) present in strategic locations Island-wide are being monitored to provide information that would allow for the early detection of the pest if introduced.

Linkages with external agencies: The Department of Agriculture has developed linkages with Caribbean and international institutions to combat the threat posed by PMB. Specifically, they have been working closely with CARDI (the lead agency with responsibility for coordinating the regional responses to the threat of PMB), Florida Department of Agriculture and the United States' Department of Agriculture.

Legislation: The new Plant Law, when passed, would provide the necessary legal framework to more effectively protect the horticultural, agricultural and native flora of the Cayman Islands from imported quarantine pests like PMB.

Contingency Plans: Despite our best precautionary measures to prevent the importation of PMB, we cannot guarantee the non-entry of this very aggressive pest. Consequently, contingency plans are in place to manage and control this pest if it is introduced. [We must continue to protect ourselves.]

The Speaker: Supplementaries. The First Elected Member for West Bay.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

Mr. W McKeever Bush: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I would like to thank the Honourable Minister for this information and wonder whether he could say whether plants from other Caribbean territories are allowed in – if they are allowed in what precautions are taken. I know that he mentioned his external linkages, agencies, such as the United States Department of Agriculture, and I am wondering whether he could say what, if any other precautions are taken with things imported from United States.

The Speaker: The Hon. Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. We have tried to do as much as possible as I mentioned in the earlier answer. We try to meet with the persons we know who are presently importing plants into the Island and especially those who are actually bringing in plants for sale. We have tried our best to discuss it with them and to explain [to] them that in order to bring in plants the Department of Agriculture here should be acquainted first and the necessary measures can be explained to them such as having them properly checked in the United States prior to coming here and by a source over there that would be somebody that this Department would agree to.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. In the answer given to the substantive question, the Minister states that presently we are conducting a national Mealybug survey to characterise the types of Mealybugs present in the Cayman Islands and to reassure ourselves that Pink Mealybug disease is not present.

Then he goes on to say, that due to budgetary constraints the survey has been limited and he outlines what the survey has been limited to. Can the Minister state, seeing as how important this situation is, what other surveys would be ideal to make sure that the entire area is covered and if he could give us some type of idea as to amount of money – what funds are necessary in order to get this done properly.

The Speaker: The Hon. Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The last part of the question -- I would be unable to say (to the Member that mentioned this just a while ago) exactly the figure, but what we would like to do is to be able to go and do a survey of all the Islands because it is my understanding that it is a possibility that things happen in Cayman Brac. And we need to know... what we know about Grand Cayman, we need to check on all of those. I do not have the figure with me with regard to how much it will cost, but I would be happy to supply it.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. I am sure the Minister is on all fours with me on the importance of this matter and since budgetary constraints have been pointed out, perhaps the Minister could give an undertaking to determine what it would cost to properly conduct the survey including what needs to be done, in order that it might be considered. If the figure is not something that is totally out of reach I hold the view, sir, that it is very important that this be done because the fact is, if it gets out of hand then it is going to take a lot more than those budgetary constraints to do anything sensible about it.

Hon. John B. McLean: Mr. Speaker, I take note of what the Member has said and the fact remains, Yes, within the budget that the Department has, we have been doing as much as possible; we will continue to do it there and, Yes, I will give the undertaking that definitely if we are to do the three Islands, and it is agreed by the Legislative Assembly we will get a figure and we will have it done.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Craving your indulgence and not asking for any misunderstanding on the part of the Minister – but I just wish for him to bear in mind that the Legislative Assembly cannot agree to it unless it comes to the Legislative Assembly. So, I am asking for the undertaking that it will come to the Legislative Assembly.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I would like to say that perhaps if the figures that were put in to the annual budget, if we had had all of those approved, then we would not have any reason to come back. But, I am thankful for his advice and I will definitely make sure that we bring it back again because it seems as if we have the support now.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker, and I thank the Minister. And again craving your indulgence, sir... but this proves a point.

Lots of times figures come to us and we do not know exactly what all of those figures are for and perhaps that is why some stuff is not done. So, maybe in future if it is done in that manner the right things will be dealt with.

The Speaker: No further supplementaries? That concludes Question time for this morning. We will now return to item 3 on today's Order Paper : Presentation of Papers and Reports. The Hon. Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works. Report on the Cayman Turtle Farm (1983) Limited Financial Statements – 31st December, 1997.

PRESENTATION OF PAPERS AND REPORTS

REPORT ON THE CAYMAN TURTLE FARM (1983) LIMITED FINANCIAL STATEMENTS 31ST DECEMBER, 1997

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I beg to lay on the Table of this Honourable House a very good report, Financial Statement of the Cayman Islands Turtle Farm for 31st March, 1997.

The Speaker: So ordered. Do you wish to speak to it?

Hon. John B. McLean: Just briefly, Mr. Speaker, to say how happy I am with the Report and to know of the progress that is happening at the Turtle Farm. I would like to especially pay tribute to the manager and the staff for the very good job that is happening down there today.

Mr. Speaker, sometime ago, especially (I think) in the Sister Islands, we had problems with regard to even trying to supply them with products from the Turtle Farm. Thank God, today we can look back and say that all three Islands are being fully supplied with products from the Turtle Farm. So, I am proud to know that I can present this statement here today and to say that the staff has been doing a very good job.

The Speaker: At this time we shall suspend proceedings for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.30 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12.06 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Item 4 on today's Order Paper, Private Members' Motions. Continuation of debate on Private Member's Motion No. 17/98—Proposed Ritz-Carlton Hotel-West Bay Road. The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, continuing.

OTHER BUSINESS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 17/98

PROPOSED RITZ-CARLTON HOTEL WEST BAY ROAD

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you.

When we took the adjournment on Wednesday afternoon, I was expressing my disappointment at the way this whole matter was handled by the Government when the papers were laid on the Table on the evening of July 17. I was puzzled that of the three who I would consider senior Ministers in the elected National Team Government, there was no attempt either by the Minister under whom lands fall, and the Minister with responsibility for laying the papers on the Table, or the Leader of Government Business and his colleague, the Minister for Tourism, there was no attempt by either of these three Ministers to explain to the Honourable House the significance and impact that such a proposal would have on the country; nor was there an attempt, perhaps I should say more significantly, seeing that the Executive Council had already approved the project; nor was there an attempt by either of these Ministers to sell the project to those others of us who certainly as representatives of the people are interested in learning of its merits.

From my position I have to question why. Is it because they were contemptuous of us and decided that we were not worthy to have that information? Or is it because they thought the less said about this project the better it would be given that they realised the propensity of the project to stir controversy and concern among the populace? I am not here to speculate, but I would have to say that given their record for lack of transparency in other matters of this magnitude, that there was perhaps a bit of both. So, I am led to remark that concern for the project had been generated among several of us on the Backbench who call ourselves Opposition. And as we began to read and peruse the documents we realised that this could not be a matter that was just accepted without debate. Then we realised too that action had to be taken within the 21 days as was required by the precedents, procedures and regulations, and Standing Orders governing our Legislative Assembly.

I, the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, had been entertaining the idea of bringing a motion not so much to oppose the project, but to evoke some debate so that the merits and demerits and the serious consequences that would be called into effect had this proposal been approved by the Parliament be made known to the people. When I was approached by the Fourth Elected Member for George Town asking me if I would support him in seconding a motion which he planned to bring. The Member showed me the motion he had crafted and I read it over and we both agreed that perhaps it would be worth putting in and in the meantime we would keep our options open to see whether it could be refined to have a more, should I say, beneficial effect.

I communicated the position to others in the group who did not express surprise that such a turn of events had been taken. The Fourth Elected Member for George Town and I set upon the task, because the more we read the original motion, the more we became satisfied that it did not convey effectively enough what we wanted it to convey. Hence we settled upon a total refinement and redevelopment of the motion. When we did that, we showed it to a mutual supporter, someone whose advice, consultation and support we hold in high esteem. The advice was that the motion as we had crafted it was effective. Indeed, the person said they considered it excellent, and so we proceeded to withdraw the original motion and bring this one in.

I say all this to say that I noticed there were some attempts to discredit the efficacy of the mover, and I cannot, as the seconder, see these attempts made and be so stupid as to think that it does not bear reflection upon me, the seconder. There have been quotations of some circumstances to which I have no knowledge, some incidents to which I have not been privy. Suffice it to say, however, that in his discussion with me the Fourth Elected Member for George Town did not leave any reason for doubt that he was bringing the motion because he was fired up with righteous indignation against what he considered would be a serious trespass upon the environment to the extent he felt that the people needed to be made aware of the consequences of what was about to happen. I, too, was moved by that same righteous indignation. So I thought it would be prudent for any conscientious representative of the people to register such a motion.

In his brief introduction, I note that the Minister who spoke on behalf of the Government to announce the Government's rejection of this motion said that, and I quote, "I would like to start by saying that leasing of Government property is not something new. The said lease which was actually done in 1950 (the year I was born), gave permission for some 606 acres of land in this area, to be leased." [Hansard—23 September, 1998, page 837] That is an absolute fact which cannot be refuted. In 1960 that was the beginning. That agreement set the precedent.

But, the Cayman Islands of 1950 were far different from the Cayman Islands of 1998. In 1950 the Cayman Islands, our country, could accurately be described as a mosquito-infested backwater. Indeed, one reporter writing for the New York Post described the Cayman Islands at that time as the Islands that time forgot. I don't feel good standing here, speaking about my country in what could be interpreted as such unflattering fashion, but I have to admit that these descriptions are irrefutable facts. So, in 1950 one could quite logically argue that it was all right to enter into such a lease agreement for 606 acres to be, as we would now think, given away. At that time something was needed to kick-start the Cayman Islands economy to move it away, to move the islands away from the islands that time forgot, from the position of being a mosquito-infested backwater to a modern developing country.

So to attempt to justify the present proposal by saying that this was done in 1950 is not new, it is an attempt that would not hold water even, Mr. Speaker, in the creation of crabs. The Cayman Islands today are on the cutting edge of the world economy. The Cayman Islands today are on the verge of becoming a major player in regional tourism, a major player for its size and its population in tourism. And we all know because we like to tout this, that we hold our own in international finance.

This is a good time to interject that the present Speaker is not against development. But I say, as I have said before, that we have to balance this development against any negative effect such development would have on our environment, on our infrastructure and, most significantly, on our people. And when I say 'on our people', I don't just mean economically, I mean socially, I mean culturally, and I mean in other areas as well. This is a point which cannot be easily over emphasised. And this motion, this said Private Member's Motion No. 17/98, is going (if it does nothing else) to separate the sincere from the insincere to separate those who like to come up with all kinds of pristine statements that they are for the environment, but they are also for development, from those who genuinely see the need to balance the two. Because I contend that you cannot have your cake and eat it.

I am going to pose some questions and offer some answers. The contradiction for the Government begins from 1992 in their Manifesto when the National Team, and I shall read from page 12, proclaimed: "We believe that we can no longer ignore our environment and that reasonable steps must be taken to protect it having regard to the protection of the human race as the most important factor."

I want to ask the Members of the National Team now if they have had a change of heart, if on the threshold of the 21st Century they are going to sacrifice this pristine asservation for political expediency? If they have so mis-managed the finances of the country that they have to hock the environment and put the people of the Cayman Islands where they are hostages to this kind of development. You cannot come out taking a position in 1992, and then in 1998 make a step 360 degrees in complete disregard. I don't have to remind the National Team of how they tried to do me in instances where I changed my position—quite logically, not unreasonably as they are doing now. And, Mr. Speaker, I am not going to call them the unflattering things they called me. I am going to say that their position is rife with inconsistencies. But that doesn't surprise me because like the red Indians used to say, some of them speak with "forked tongues."

A question was posed, Who are we developing for? It is a question, the answer to which we cannot escape easily. Here is why: A Parliamentary question was asked by the present speaker to the Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture, in an earlier session of this Honourable Parliament. Here is the question: “What is the total work force of the Cayman Islands, broken down into categories of Caymanian and non-Caymanian.” The answer, “The total work force of the Cayman Islands is 21,490 broken down as follows: Caymanian 10,880, non-Caymanian 10,610.” The question, quite logically, is, For whom are we developing?

I know that every year we have about 300 students coming out, graduating from the High School at minimum. But let me suggest that that is not a frightening number of students for us to absorb into our economy for if we go by these statistics (which are readily available) our unemployment rate, if any exists, is insignificant. So, to impose such a development, such a monstrosity, upon the people of the Cayman Islands without proper investigation, without the necessary and proper studies, is to court disaster. It is tantamount to playing Russian Roulette.

There is a buzz word now, very popular—‘sustainable development.’ I think that our future is hinged upon arriving at that point where we can say we have sustainable development. I grant you that the Ritz-Carlton is a prestigious organisation. It is one of those names that when you say it, people say, ‘Wow!’ because it evokes class, it evokes economic privilege, it evokes the good life. But that doesn’t necessarily mean that we have to give away the shop to get it.

I am reminded that recently the church I attend held a convention. The keynote speaker was a pastor from one of the sister churches in Bermuda. There was a point in one of his sermons where he said that the Bermudans had organised to protest against the Ritz-Carlton development in Bermuda. I want to make the point crystal clear that that was not. . . it had nothing to do with the developers of the Ritz-Carlton in the Cayman Islands. Okay? What it had to do with was that Bermuda, the people of Bermuda were not prepared to sacrifice elements of their environment, their social life, their economic aspirations for what the Ritz-Carlton developers demanded. It would be interesting, and we compare ourselves to Bermuda, to learn the reason in greater detail as to why the people of Bermuda (whose population is greater than ours) did not deem fit to make such a sacrifice.

If we are conscientious, we must ask ourselves, Is this worth the sacrifices in the long run, as the proposal is now? Is this worth the sacrifices that we are going to have visited upon our progeny? Not so much upon us. Are we not removing viable options from our progeny? Are we not destroying too great a swathe of the mangrove? Are we not taking too great a toll on our environment?

I want to say this, because all of us inside here proclaim that we are environmentalists. I wonder how many of us realise that even in the small and sometimes seemingly inconsequential Cayman Islands that what we do in the destruction of our environment contributes to the fragile position of the world position as far as global warming, as far as the melting of the icecap, as far as destruction of the species of plants, insects and animals are concerned. We may think that because we are just approximately 200 square kilometres that when we destroy the mangroves that we are not contributing to the effect of the world-wide environmental degradation, but we are. You bet we are!

We, in the Cayman Islands, have to arrive at the point where we come to grips with the fact that chasing the almighty dollar is not the ultimate race. We have a responsibility, we have a moral obligation to leave this country no worse than we found it for our progeny.

Members of the National Team are good when they preach at reminding—especially me and my colleague, the then Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman—reminding us about these obligations, chiding us. Well, I wonder if the sermon does not also apply to them. They like to remind us about obstinacy and its consequences. And I see my colleague, the Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning far and away. I hope he is listening, Mr. Speaker, because he should learn this lesson. If he doesn’t learn from history he is doomed to repeat the mistakes and the punishment. And he will have to do his time in purgatory like he likes to remind us Mr. Ezzard Miller will have to do.

This business of the environment and sustainable development is so important to us in the development of our tourism and the development of our economy that various important documents have stressed it. What we call the Coopers & Lybrand Report, officially the Ten-Year Tourism Development Plan, 1992-2000 which was issued in September of 1992 and tabled in this Honourable House, spoke about an environmental assessment being done. And in the interest of time I won’t read what it says, but I want to highlight this. It says, “Typically, an assessment should include the project description, social, cultural and environmental inventory; identification and prediction of social, cultural and environmental effects; mitigating actions, evaluation, study process, and final recommendation. This is a method of assessment and it, or a similar framework, should be adopted by the Cayman Islands.”

In May of this year, Dr. Winston Mellows, of the University of the West Indies, gave a lecture on sustainable development and the environment and he what he says bears a direct relation on this motion and this proposed project. According to the Caymanian Compass of Friday, 1 May, 1998, Dr. Mellows said: “Challenges to sustainable development in the Caribbean include poor population, social differences, lack of infrastructure and servicing external debts. He amplified the need for environmental impact assessments (EIA) for proposed industries and environmental audits (EA) for existing ones. Dr. Mellows also stressed that the Caribbean region is ecologically fragile and highly vulnerable to developmental pressures. A reduced capacity to absorb and recover from harmful effects of careless development.”

And turning to tourism, Dr. Mellows said that it has the capacity to displace, with competing demands for space between local population and the hotels, for example, with beach access. He cautioned against assuming that ecotourism and ecotourists are sympathetic to environmental issues and will sacrifice short-term objectives for long-term sustainability.

Why am I taking time to emphasise this need for environmental impact assessments, and for an environmental impact study? Because I vividly recall being on the Issues 27 show put on by CITN on 27 August where among the panellists was Mr. Michael Ryan, the proposed developer of this project. I specifically recall Mr. Ryan telling the moderator (and by inference the audience) that he had done an environmental impact study which was handed in to the Planning Department. The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town is telling the Honourable House that the Planning Department has received no such environmental impact study.

I interpret that as negligence, carelessness, a blatant abandoning of responsibility on the part of the elected Government. They should have seen that such a study was done. Indeed, it should have been part of the package which we Members of the Legislative Assembly were given.

They are trying to convince me that I am a sinner by objecting to this? They are trying to convince me, a representative of the people that I should be ashamed to second this motion? They are trying to convince me the seconder of the motion that I should abandon the mover, for him to be sliced and pinched by them? Never, Mr. Speaker, never in a thousand years. We are right in taking this position. We are fighting for the people. We are the good guys. I don't know what they are perhaps when they get up to speak they can tell us, but we are the good guys. We are the guys who are echoing the sentiments of the Caymanian people in a vast majority.

You need not take my word that there is no environmental impact study, today's paper reads, "Ritz-Carlton Environmental impact study awaited." Mr. Rick Catlin says what I have just said.

Responsible people have to be held accountable for these kinds of inconsistencies. You will understand, sir, that we would be remiss in our duties as conscientious representatives if we let these kinds of things go by without serious questioning; without bringing these things to the attention of the Parliament and the wider constituency. Where is the leadership? Who is responsible? When the papers were laid on the Table, no one came forward, no one explained, no one took the time to articulate what was in the bundle. No one told us what was missing. Where, Mr. Speaker? Is it leadership by default? Is it leadership by dodging? Or is it the ostrich syndrome where they bury their heads in the ground and pretend that all is well.

On the eve of the 21st Century it is time for a different kind of leadership in the Cayman Islands and there are Members presently in this Honourable House, as well as many outside, who can provide the kind of leadership this country deserves to take it into the next century.

I know what they are going to say, because they have said it before. They are going to say that I am not rich, that I am defunct, that I am a follower, that I have nothing to lose. They are going to say all of those things. They have said them before! And they spent lots of money, but I am still here speaking for the people. And as long as God and my constituents return me, that will be my position because they can say many things about me, but they cannot say that I operate out of any conflicts of interest. And I am going to talk about that later. Do you know why? Because the chickens have come home to roost!

The Speaker: Are you about to go on to another point?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Well, Mr. Speaker, if you are—

The Speaker: Or would you prefer a few more minutes? I am flexible.

Mr. Roy Bodden: I would greatly appreciate a few more moments.

The Speaker: Go ahead.

Mr. Roy Bodden: I want to flush out this business of where is the leadership.

In the Caymanian Compass of 11 September 1998, there was a letter to the Editor written by a Mr. Alden M. McLaughlin, Jr. It is an excellent letter. I would hate to be on the wrong side of this author's pen. I want to finish what I have to say about the leadership with the last paragraph because this is the question that I posed except that I could not do it so succinctly.

"If we are not exceedingly careful, Cayman risks losing the good things which still make it the best place in the world in which to live. We must not allow that to happen. Now more than ever, Cayman needs strong, sensitive and intelligent leadership." Where is it? Where is it, Mr. Speaker?

The Speaker: This is a convenient time now?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Yes.

The Speaker: Proceedings are suspended until 2.15 PM.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.45 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.36 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Debate continues on Private Member's Motion No. 17/98. The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, continuing.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you.

When we took the luncheon suspension I was at the point where I had been discussing some letters written to the Caymanian Compass newspaper, and I had discussed one of these communications. There are two more that I would like to briefly mention. The second one comes from the issue of Wednesday 23 September 1998 and it is written by a Mr. Mitchell Exctain. In the first section of this letter is a paragraph which caught my attention. I was captivated by this, and I would like to read it. It says:

“As we approach the 21st century it is with ever more urgency that we do not ignore these symptoms, . . .” He was talking about the negative effects of our social and economic policies and the necessity to reprioritise. So these are the symptoms he was referring to. Continuing “ . . . that we do not stick our heads in the sand and hope for the best. Our leaders must be willing to sacrifice personal gratification and re-embrace the true qualities of good leadership, those of humility, honesty and integrity.”

The final reference that I want to draw is a letter to the same publication from Mr. Osbourn Bodden, a young man whom I know very well. In his letter dated September 23, 1998, “Everyone who is sensible and knowledgeable seems to be against this sort of development.” And he is talking about the Ritz-Carlton proposal. “Yet it is going ahead. This is certainly a dangerous precedent for any Government to set when the wishes of the majority are ignored.”

Mr. Speaker, why are these letters important? Because it is from these writers that I see the next generation of Caymanian leaders coming. It is from the ranks of these authors that I see the next generation of parliamentarians coming. So these people are saying, ‘Listen, if you go ahead against our wishes and do this, then we are prepared to correct the matter at our earliest opportunity.’ Why should this be striking?

This should be striking because this is the same stance that was taken by the Leader of Government Business and those people—including myself at that time—who were against the behaviour of Mr. Ezzard Miller and the hospital that he was building at that time. What are we saying now? Are we to interpret that the Leader of Government Business and the National Team whose vision was so good at that time and who made the right decision, certainly according to the results of the following election, . . . are we saying that those people have now lost that vision? That they are prepared to operate out of a total disregard for what the majority wishes are? That they have thrown out the environmental concerns, the social concerns, the economic concerns? Or was it pure political expediency and the true colours are showing now?

A final communication is a letter which was circulated to all Members of the Legislative Assembly from Mr. Alson Ebanks who is the Chairman of the National Trust. It was written on behalf of the National Trust. Mr. Ebanks put out the concerns and objections of the National Trust. This society, this country and this Parliament is fraught with contradictions. Contradictions that even I, at my level of intellect, cannot understand, for the National Trust is a government-created entity to preserve the environment.

So now what we have is the Government fighting against its own entity, like a father fighting against his children; like a father fighting against his son, like a mother fighting against her daughter and the principles they taught them and which they thought were imbued in them. It is a contradiction, Mr. Speaker, that I will perhaps never understand.

But I see other contradictions in the behaviour of certain people, and it is to these contradictions that I am leading. Believe you me, I have been trained to exposed and explain them and that I am going to do!

We acknowledge that one of the things we want to do in this country is to develop a viable tourist industry, a viable tourism product. I am convinced that the groundwork has been laid and that we are doing well, which is not to say that we still don't have some hurdles to cross and some challenges to meet. But I want to make the point that in issues such as this, we have to be careful that we are not defeating the very objectives we set out to achieve. Because, if our development takes place at great risk to the environment over objections of the populace then we are going to have to deal with a community who will likely be resentful of the destruction of their environment to facilitate what is a necessary pillar of the economy.

You don't have to be a genius to realise that the risk we are running is a serious risk of this happening if we accept this proposal as it currently stands. This proposal is fraught with certain contradictions that we must deal with if we are to continue touting that we want sustainable development and that we have respect for our environment.

I want to draw reference to a publication Invest in the Bahamas. On page 50 is an article entitled, “Looking to a Bright Future.” I crave the Chair's indulgence because I think that this is a very important point from which we in the Cayman Islands can derive great benefit. Mr. Vanderpool Wallace, who is the Director General of Tourism and who himself is a respected Harvard Graduate, has this to say about what they in the Bahamas did. And we all know that the Bahamas is doing very well now. It is a jurisdiction which is flourishing in more ways than one.

Vanderpool Wallace inherited an industry that had seen brighter days. His immediate task was to assess its state of health. For a long time much effort had been spent on advertising and promotion. He writes, “We decided to cut back in these areas and to focus on the product. We went to a great deal of effort to communicate to the local population about what we needed to do to get the industry back in order. [The industry being the tourism industry.] I believe that our message was well received because the attitude of most Bahamians to visitors has improved tremendously.”

The message that Vanderpool Wallace successfully conveyed was that every citizen was in the tourism industry, as every encounter that a visitor had with a Bahamian would have a direct impact on their view of the country and determine whether or not they came back. The Ministry produced a mission statement which was to create, sell and deliver satisfying vacations, satisfying for the people who live and work in the Bahamas, satisfying for the investors in the country and satisfying for the island's visitors.

Now, what is critical about that is this: If we develop a product which is not satisfying to the people who live and work in the Cayman Islands by virtue of the fact that in the development of that product we destroy an important element in the country—namely, the environment—and the principles involved in that destruction, if the people who live and work here are dissatisfied with that, do you know what is going to happen? Dissatisfaction is bound to manifest itself in ways which will negatively affect the way they greet and accommodate the visitors, and in turn it will have the effect that we will not be able to realise our objectives because our development process was counter-productive to what we were trying to promote.

I believe that we can learn from the situation which many. . . and in the absence of any scientific polls to the contrary, I would have to say the majority of our people are against this destruction for this resort. I would have to say that the granting of this proposal to go ahead as it currently is is counter productive to our objectives to develop tourism where we have the people of the Cayman Islands pleased and happy to work in the industry and to welcome the visitors and to say that we have sustainable development to the point where visitors will want to continue to come to the Cayman Islands because of the attitudes of the people, because of the pristine surroundings they are in and, not, insignificantly, because of our realisation of the fact that the environment is a most important part of our product.

There is something to be said for the Amerindians (or the Red Indians, as we sometimes call them), because they spoke about 'mother earth.' Conservationists and environmentalists are now beginning to realise the significance of the respect that these people had for their environment and mother earth. I am not a lawyer, and I don't claim to have all these degrees. I don't claim to be wealthy. But I have good common sense and I know that if we jettison certain principles, if we swim against the tide, if we go against the course of nature, we are bound to get into trouble. And all that we try to build and develop will soon be apparent that it is unproductive and that we have been labouring in vain. But the worst result will be that our progeny when they come to take over will realise that we have mortgaged their future and have left them with no ability to maintain the standard we had, and left them enough that they can build upon.

There is no convincing evidence that the decision to grant this proposal in the form in which it is now, is a decision in the best interest of this country; nor is there convincing evidence that the monies realised from this transaction are enough to reverse the negative effects which future generations of Caymanians will have to deal with. There is, however, ample indications of the people's objection to this deal as it is currently proposed. I pose the question at this point because it is strategically important to come in at this point when we have given this permission for the Ritz-Carlton to be developed as it is proposed, what are we going to say to Mr. Dart and to Mr. Oldie, when we will have already set a dangerous precedent? We are flirting with disaster. And I don't care how educated the leader claims he is, it is a wrong decision!

The problems, the infrastructural nightmare, that this development as proposed is going to create will not be easily dealt with. We all know that the West Bay Road will for the time being continue to be the only arterial road by which commuters may travel to and from this section of the island. It is important that we realise the tremendous impact that this project is going to have on these commuters for the next little while, if not longer.

A survey was done by Public Works along the West Bay Road from the Sleep Inn to the cemetery. That survey showed that from 6.00 AM and 9.00 AM on a work-day, 7,000 cars turned off of or on to the West Bay Road. They call it 'vehicular turning movements.' That is right now. Can you imagine what that number is going to be when this project gets on line? We are going to be faced with traffic problems worse than we could ever imagine. This is not to say that $1 million was voted for an improvement or an extension to the Harquail Bypass, and that has not even been touched yet.

There are other questions too that emanate from this and beg to be answered. If this proposal goes ahead as is currently submitted, who is going to occupy all of these condominiums? And at what time? Here is a list of subdivisions, and this is exemplary, rather than exhaustive. In West Bay, for example, we have the Shores with approximately 200 lots. Maybe 15 or 20 houses are built, the rest of the land remains unoccupied. We have Salt Creek, a development with no houses. We have the Cayman Islands Yacht Club, which some people call the Japanese development, which has now been developed for over 13 years. Maybe we have ten houses on that. We have Vista del Mar with maybe six houses. The rest of the land is vacant. Crystal Harbour, 180 acres. We have one house under construction. Governor's Harbour still has a lot of lots available. SafeHaven, two dwelling houses. The Landings, maybe 15 homes, the rest vacant. This is only on what some people call the West Bay peninsula. We are not even talking about further south. So, unless the Government knows something that we on this side do not know about where the population is coming from, and assuming that as we often hear the complaint this is beyond the economic reach of Caymanians, where are the people coming from? Is the National Team Government planning on jumbo jetting them in? If so, from where? These are questions that will have to be answered.

In the documents which were tabled, there was an absence of any due diligence report. Is Government telling us that none was done? That they are prepared to accept on faith what these developers say of themselves and their ability to develop this project?

I contend that a due diligence report should have been done. Persons familiar with Offshore Alert and the issue. . . and I am a subscriber. I would be stupid not to be. In the issue of March 31, 1998, on page six, called into question is the ability of these developers to deliver. What contingencies does the Government have in place should there be default by the developers? Is it good enough for them to lose the monies deposited? What about the damage that was done to the ecology and the environment? Is there a price for that? Who is going to pay that? What about the unfinished and abandoned buildings that may be left? Who is going to complete those? What about the damage to the Caymanian psyche? Are we forgetting Treasure Island, formerly called Paradise Manor? Are we forgetting the hotel and those problems?

Quite frankly, I am surprised that people who claim to be so learned, so prepared, and so willing to put down others have accepted this without the benefit of a due diligence report, never mind the fact that there is no environmental impact assessment study.

Do you know what, Mr. Speaker? I knew it a long time ago but they have exposed their heel and their heel is made of clay. They have exposed their Achilles tendon. I could be less charitable, but I am not going to be because I told myself that I was not going to follow the behaviour patterns of those people in their heyday and make innuendoes and insinuations and malign their motives and their conduct. I am not going to do that. I will stop short of that.

But I am going to say that the time has come in this country for some people—for the leaders—to extricate themselves from positions of conflict of interests. And I, the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, have been watching this behaviour play out over many years. I think it is time that it be brought to a head because you cannot go around putting people down whose objectives and their motives may not be the amassing of fortunes and the making of money, and (what was it we used to call it in development studies?) the conspicuous consumption lifestyles if you acquire your privileged position by conflicts of interests.

Do you know what they do in Britain? Ministers have to put their businesses in blind trusts. That is what they do in the United States and Canada. That is what they do in other places. And... I am giving it time, because you know Mr. Speaker, if these kinds of things are not done voluntarily I am going to bring legislation. I have already mentioned it to the First Elected Member for George Town, telling him that in the quest for transparency that is the next step we have to take.

When the SafeHaven lease was granted, those Members on the National Team now had much to say about the former Member, the Third Elected Member for George Town, and that lease. I remember that. I was Chairman of the Public Accounts Committee. All kinds of aspersions and insinuations and things were being said. Now I notice that they want to curry-favour that Member, and they want to forget. Mr. Speaker, you can't blow hot and blow cold too. You can't be fish and fowl at the same time. There cannot be double standards. You cannot speak out of the two sides of your mouth. You can't speak, as my good friend and colleague is reminding me, with a forked tongue. Stop has got to be put to that. The people's interests must be first and foremost. That is the commitment we give when we are campaigning. That commitment must remain with us throughout the tenure of our lives in Parliament.

If this country is in such a good position, do you want to tell me that we have to accept this deal as proposed? If this country is in such a good position, do you want to tell me that we have to give away the store? I don't believe that. I don't believe that at all.

And while I am on this, I want to mention something that really disturbs me. I saw this on the television myself. Several people, including my constituents brought it to my attention. I have seen where the proposed developer comes on the television immediately before the Caymanian flag. Trust me, I know those kinds of tactics very well because I studied them in school. It's called subliminal seduction. But to me, that is sacrilege because unconsciously that is designed to convey the impression, 'Look at me. I have the interests of Cayman at heart, so much so that I am strategically positioned before the flag.' Subliminal seduction!

That is like taking communion when you are a sinner, when you have something against your neighbour. My priest doesn't let me do that. Before you take the sacrament he asks, "Are you sure you are ready for this? Have you forgiven your neighbour?" This is serious, Mr. Speaker.

Let me tell you what I think about this business of scholarships. I believe, as an inducement, that is fine. That is all well and good. And there is nothing wrong with that, in the sense that that is common with some developers. But, I will get excited--and I have told the proposed developer this--when that money is placed in an escrow account and a board of trustees is set up and when arrangements have been made with the relevant educational institutions for the disbursement of these scholarships. Not when you have to apply to someplace where the developer and his surrogates have a direct input into who should get from those who apply. It must be completely above board. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman who proposes to develop knows that, because he comes from a country where that is the common practice. Similarly, with the proposal to offer some financial assistance to those people who worked at the Holiday Inn over the age of 55. Put that money in an escrow account and set the criterion.

I wear specs, but only for reading purposes. My long-range vision is good. So I know that the reason why that is done is not a good reason. And I don't want to be like the Leader for Government Business, the Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning, and use my privileged position here to malign people who are not here to use the same forum to defend themselves. So I am going to stop short of saying anything untoward. But I am saying that this is what needs to be done in those cases to make it look completely above board. And they should be encouraging that!

I see the Minister looking in his Parliamentary Standing Orders. I wonder if he wants to raise a point of order? I want him to do that. I am ready for him, Mr. Speaker. So, if he wants to raise a point of order, I will give way.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Just to say that I wish the Member would practice what he preaches because he has been into a lot of personal issues today.

The Speaker: Please continue, Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, that is not a point of order, and he knows that. But that is the kind of way in which he exposes his lack of leadership.

I want to address this business of conflict of interest. And I am going to take a sip of water because I want to be very sober when I do it.

This proposal comes from the Government, a Government whose leader is the brother-in-law of the attorney for the developers, who wears the same hat as Deputy Chairman of the Trade and Business Licensing Board and, by inference, sits on the board in a senior capacity which has to grant all of the licences for these entities, Condoco, Hotelco, Devco, and also the Local Companies (Control) Licence. If that is not a conflict of interests, I'm not from my Mama! This has got to stop! Where is it going to end?

Do you know something, Mr. Speaker, when I raised the issue of us extricating ourselves from certain situations, because these things only exist in equatorial Guinea, Nigeria, and Ghana and those places, and I say again that we must be like Caesar's wife—above suspicion!

Do you want to tell me that it takes me, this little black boy from Bodden Town, to tell the Government that that is a conflict of interests? I don't believe that. I would never, in my wildest imagination believe that. They must know that it doesn't look good. When you do these kinds of things, when you act this kind of way, you leave yourself open to suspicion, innuendo, or worse. And we talk about we want transparency?

Mr. Speaker, let me say something, sir. Looks don't scare me. My job here is to speak the truth, call it as I see it. I have always prided myself on the fact that I am a 'righteous Gentile.' The Jews have a category that they place non-Jews in. When the Jewish people say that you are a righteous Gentile that means that you are a non-Jew who abides by a strict code, particularly in the helping of Jews. Raoul Wallenberg, and Oscar Schindler were righteous Gentiles. They weren't Jews, but they were people who helped. Figuratively speaking, I always try to be a righteous Gentile because I think it is necessary to be like that. Not saying that I am advantaged, and then at the same time not admitting that. Hey, how did you get your advantage?

I could be less charitable. I am just saying that we need to clean this up. We need to put this to an end. This is not only my observation, Mr. Speaker. I speak this without fear or favour with all good intention because I think as a player in the system that we need to clear it up. I think that the Honourable Leader should begin.

POINT OF ORDER

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I am taking a point of order. Is the Member referring to my having a conflict of interest? Because he has fudged over this area.

The Speaker: [addressing The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town] Would you explain that please?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I made the relationship crystal clear. Should it be repeated?

The Speaker: You said, "brother-in-law." Is that what you are—

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker!

The Speaker: Please be cautious with your words. Continue.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, could you repeat because I did not hear what you—

The Speaker: I asked you to be cautious with your words, but to continue.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I certainly am cautious because if I weren't cautious, I could have said it was political incestuousness, but I knew you would rule me out of order, so I didn't say that.

The Speaker: Yes I would. Please do not repeat it.

Mr. Roy Bodden: I didn't say that.

The Speaker: Please don't.

Mr. Roy Bodden: So, I am very cautious, Mr. Speaker.

"...to thine own self be true,
And it must follow, as the night the day,
Thou cans't not then be false to any man."

I like how Lucian of Samosata put it in The Way to Write History: "There stands my model, fearless, incorruptible, independent, a believer in frankness and voracity; one that will call a spade a spade, make no concessions to likes and dislikes, nor spare any man for pity or respect or propriety, an impartial judge kind to all, but too kind to none; a literary cosmopolite with neither suzerain nor king; never heeding what this or that man may think, but setting down the thing that befell." That too is the model of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Martin Luther King said, "The ultimate measure of man is not where he finds himself in moments of comfort and convenience, but where he stands in times of challenge and controversy.” I want to use that this Friday afternoon as the measure of all honourable Members in this Assembly. And lest I be accused, as has been so often tried in the past, of opposing for the sake of opposition, let me make clear that when he speaks, the First Elected Member for George Town, will propose a counter to what the Government is planning to accept. He will make amendments to the motion we are debating.

The Speaker: Could you speak a little louder? I am not hearing you.

Mr. Roy Boddén: Because I know my detractor's strategy well. It is the only one they have. And so we will be offering something that will not destroy the inheritance of the Caymanian people and at the same time allow the developer to realise returns on his investment that will allow him to continue to develop.

Mr. Speaker, it is a position that the Government should have taken. I rest my case full well knowing that there are those who are going to come behind to try to destroy me. Trust me, I have no fear. I would only say to bear this in mind: The mover has to wind up and my close friend and political ally, the First Elected Member for George Town, will still have to speak. So I won't have to worry about my position which is the position of the people of the Cayman Islands. I have been elected to serve them and that means listening and abiding by their wishes. Would, to heaven that the Government could say as much!

The Speaker: This is a convenient time to take a break. Proceedings are suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 3.59 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Debate continues on Private Member's Motion No. 17/98. Does any other Member wish to speak? The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I rise to offer my contribution on the Private Member's Motion dealing with the Ritz-Carlton Resort project. Mr. Speaker, I also want to deal with this issue in as dispassionate a manner as possible—just lay the facts out, let the people hear what they are and see if they come to the same conclusions as I have, on this project.

Mr. Speaker, let me start by saying that I do not think that the Government of the day—that is, the National Team Government who now occupies the hallowed halls of Executive Council—did a sufficient job with regard to selling this project—that is the pros and cons of this project not only to the elected representatives of the people, but also the general public at large.

Mr. Speaker, two Ministers previously were responsible for some aspect of this project and neither of them, I feel, did a very good job as to selling the project to ourselves, or the general public. Because of that, I, personally, initially had my reservations with regard to my position that I would take on this project.

The Minister of Tourism mentioned something in November of last year in the debate and basically what he said, Mr. Speaker, was that any country should jump at the idea of having a Ritz-Carlton Hotel—a five-star hotel.

Now, Mr. Speaker, not knowing, and probably not being as close to tourism as he is, and probably not being as knowledgeable as he is, with regard to different establishments, I think it was incumbent on him to say, Here are the benefits of a five-star hotel like the Ritz-Carlton to the Cayman Islands.

Mr. Speaker, on July 17 (I think it was), the Honourable Minister for Works and Lands, who is responsible for laying the documents on the Table with respect to the Ritz-Carlton Hotel, didn't mention a word concerning that project. It was not until after the Fourth Member for George Town had arranged for the Back Bench to meet with the developer—that is, Mr. Ryan—and his lawyers, was I convinced with regard to the benefits of the project. And Mr. Speaker I will deal with that issue a little later. But I want to start my contribution by first looking at the lease that presently exists on the property in question.

Mr. Speaker, you know it is misleading—not only to the elected representatives here in the House, but the general public—into attempting to let people believe at this stage that we have any option with regard to that property down there, because at present it is under lease. And in the documentation that the Honourable Minister for Lands laid on the Table of this Honourable House in July, a lot of those details were made available.

Mr. Speaker, I would just like to highlight some of those details with regard to this lease. The lease was for 606 acres of Crown property along Seven Mile Beach between George Town and West Bay. The lease was signed in April 1950 (99 years) which means that regardless of what Government does at this stage, that lease as it now stands, still has some 52 years to run, at £100 per annum, paid quarterly in advance. Mr. Speaker, not only was it for £100, it had certain conditions that the lessee was supposed to comply with in order to ensure that they continued to enjoy the benefits of the lease.

It says here, Mr. Speaker—and with your permission I would like to read some excerpts from the lease. It says that “ the lessee paying the rent hereby reserved and performing and observing the several covenants, conditions, agreements and stipulations herein contained, and on his part to be performed and observed shall, and may peaceably and quietly hold and enjoy the demised lands during the term hereby created without any interruption or disturbance from, or by the lessor, or any person lawfully claiming by under or in trust for him.”

Mr. Speaker, basically what that said was, the Government of the day said, You have it as long as you comply with the terms of the lease you are not going to have any problem from us or anybody that we may designate to speak on our behalf.

It also goes on to say, Mr. Speaker, “...shall not be deemed to have failed, or neglected to perform the covenant to maintain, operate and keep open a hotel suitable for the accommodation of visitors to the Island of Grand Cayman on his part herein before contained, as long as he maintains, operates and keeps open the said hotel and provides suitable accommodation therein for 50 guests for at least three months in one year out of every two consecutive years.”

Mr. Speaker, I thought those were very lenient conditions because back in those days, the government of the day was looking for something to jump-start the economy. Back in those days, Mr. Speaker—like my good friend from George Town when he calls me he normally says, “the only source of defence we had at that stage was mosquitoes.” So Government did not see any value of that property. And the lease was specifically for tourist-related activity.

It goes on to say, “The lessee [i.e. the person, or the party who leases the property] shall have the right, but shall not be obliged to build and maintain upon the demised lands in addition to the said hotel houses, shops, cafes, cabanas, offices, banking and commercial houses, shipping and airline agencies, theatres, night clubs, country clubs, bath establishments, golf courses, polo ground ...courses, sports grounds, air fields and all other directions as may be necessary or desirable in connection to the said hotel or with the development of the demised land as a tourist resort. Provided, however, that the consent of the lessor [which is the Government] in writing to such other erections shall be first had and obtained. But such consent shall not be unreasonably withheld.”

Mr. Speaker, it is being said here that a hotel has to be built and 50 rooms have to be made available for at least three months out of a two-year span. Three months! And in addition to that, you are able also to use the property for the other things that are listed here.

What I found interesting was that in yesterday's paper there was a letter signed by one of my West Bay constituents, Mrs. Andrea Bothwell, on the Ritz-Carlton land lease. Mr. Speaker, with your permission I would just like to read a few excerpts of what she had to say and offer a few comments. She says, “Caymanians of 1998 have the benefit of hindsight and scientific evidence. We should know the value of our land not just monetarily, but culturally and ecologically. Yet it seems some of us can only see money.” She also goes on to say, Mr. Speaker, “Tourism is an expensive industry for any country to maintain roads, garbage, water, sewerage, impact on the land and people advertising.” She goes on to say, “It appears to me that in Cayman at this time tourism and development are our masters not our servants and I think it is time to take back the reins and yell ‘Whoa!’ as loud as we can.”

Everybody has the right to express whatever comments and views they have. And I have nothing against Mrs. Bothwell; I think she is a fine young lady and a good West Bayer. But, Mr. Speaker, the question I have first of all...it was not too long ago when the present Government did not occupy the hallowed halls of Executive Council. Mr. Speaker, this young lady's uncle for many years served on Executive Council and it was during one of his terms in office that the SafeHaven project was approved.

Now, Mr. Speaker, in this case—the Ritz-Carlton Hotel—we are only talking about 143 acres, I think. The SafeHaven project is much greater than that. And not only that, right now the young lady has just recently moved back to West Bay and where is she living? She is living in The Shores which is a reclaimed area—a beautiful reclaimed area that was created by knocking down a lot of mangroves and doing a lot of fill. Mr. Speaker, that area was known as Uncle Bob's Barcadere which I understand was a very cultural area as far as our people were concerned, especially in West Bay. So, Mr. Speaker, if she felt so strongly about not tearing down mangroves then why would she choose to live in an area where this was done? That is known, Mr. Speaker, as inconsistency.

As I mentioned when I first started, I was not convinced with regard to the benefits of this project until after the Fourth Elected Member for George Town arranged a meeting with most of the ...Backbenchers with the developer and his lawyer. And contrary to what that Member says, the conclusion I came to at that meeting was, first of all—and I have facts to that extent, Mr. Speaker—what had happened was that the Fourth Member from George Town had sat down with the developer and his lawyer. The developer and the lawyer convinced the Fourth Elected Member for George Town of the benefits of the project.

The reason why the meeting was arranged for the other Members of the Backbench was for the developer to be in the position to appraise us of the benefits and to convince us also to support it. As a matter of fact, Mr. Speaker, we spent almost an hour-and-a-half or two hours with that gentleman and his lawyer and we asked all sorts of questions. We expressed all of our concerns and Mr. Speaker, in my opinion he was able to answer and address those concerns that we had.

Concerns questions were raised with regard to the impact on the environment across the street—i.e. the mangroves. Mr. Speaker, it was confirmed to us that there will be a 300 ft. buffer I think, left along the shores there (of mangroves) in order to provide a storm belt, I guess, and to leave some vegetation in that area in regard to marine life.

Mr. Speaker, I did not get in to those technical things; I had one of my other colleagues who is an expert in that area, pose those questions and was able to elicit the type of information and answers we were looking for. After that meeting, the conclusion I came to was that the five, or six Backbenchers (including the Fourth Elected Member from George Town) we were convinced of the benefits of the project And one of the things that was discussed, Mr. Speaker... Because at that stage this Motion that we are debating today was already submitted and the discussions went along the lines—well you have a motion in place, we are now convinced—

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order.

POINT OF ORDER

The Speaker: Let me hear your point of order Fourth Elected Member from George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, the Third Elected Member for West Bay is misleading the House in saying that my motion had already been registered with you at the time in which this meeting took place. This is an untruth and I am asking the Member to withdraw that information because the purpose is to cast doubt on my character with regard my involvement in this situation.

The Speaker: Can you document the dates?

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Mr. Speaker, maybe I was technically incorrect—that's the term that Clinton uses—(laughter) but, Mr. Speaker, at that stage the motion was drafted—

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker on a point of order.

The Speaker: Would you give way?

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Sure.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, this is no laughing matter. This is not the United States and I am asking that the Member withdraw his statement.

The Speaker: I want to first ascertain whether his statement is incorrect. Can you document the dates?

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Let's put it this way. It was shortly after the House closed on July 17, and Mr. Speaker, at that stage I can guarantee you that the motion was drafted and seconded by the Fourth Member from George Town and the Third Member from Bodden Town as far as I recall, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: But you cannot give the date that this took place?

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: No, I cannot recall the date of the meeting, but Mr. Speaker, you know I am not telling any lies—you know that I do not lie, Mr. Speaker. I do not lie!

The Speaker: Madam Clerk, do you know the date that the motion was—

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Mr. Speaker, with your permission let me just put in perspective the Fourth Member's position—that is, the Member from George Town—his initial position on this project. I asked, or requested—

The Speaker: No, I want to deal with this point of order before we go on. He has moved a point of order and I want to deal with it.

Madam Clerk, can you say what date the motion was filed with the House? (Pause) This says July 4.

Mr. W McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, this...

The Speaker: Just one moment, please. It is so near time for suspension, we would have to suspend to check the records to see what date the motion was actually filed before I could rule, but I will rule on this point of order on Monday. Please continue in a different vein.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Mr. Speaker, in order to save any effort on your part about ruling on anything, if it was not registered with the Legislative Assembly, then I withdraw it, but at that stage the motion existed.

Mr. Speaker, I received a letter dated September 8, 1998 from the developer, Mr. Michael Ryan, because I requested details with regards to the Fourth Member from George Town's position on this matter of the Ritz-Carlton project. Mr. Speaker, with your permission—we do not have much time left, so it is probably a good way for us to end the evening, let me just read the contents of this letter.

The Speaker: Go ahead.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: It says:

"Mr. John Jefferson, Jr., MLA; George Town, Grand Cayman, BWI

"Dear Mr. Jefferson:

"I am writing in response to your request to provide you with the background relating to how the meeting with myself and Members of the Backbench came about. [That is the meeting I just referred to, Mr. Speaker.] I would like to begin by thanking you and the other Members on the Backbench for taking time from their busy schedules to allow me the opportunity to meet with them to explain and answer questions about the Ritz-Carlton, Grand Cayman, Resort.

"As you may recall, the meeting was called after an earlier meeting I had had with Frank McField and Attorney Bruce Putteril, following Mr. McField's initial publication in the Cayman Compass.

"At that meeting with Mr. Putteril, the project was discussed in detail and Mr. McField expressed that he then felt in a position to reaffirm his earlier support for the project; specifically as it related to the use of funds for the roads. Mr. McField restated that his prime concern was not with the development, but that the benefits received from it, particularly the ..."

The Speaker: Third Elected from West Bay, may I interrupt you for a minute? Going back to the previous point of order, the records of the House show that that motion was filed on August 4. What date was your meeting taking place—does that say? I did not hear him say that he had withdrawn.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: I did, I did.

The Speaker: Did you withdraw it?

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Yes.

The Speaker: Okay, go ahead.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: What is the Member for West Bay withdrawing?

The Speaker: You raised a point of order that he was implying that you had filed the motion before, and I was ascertaining the date that it was actually filed in the House. But he said he withdrew that statement that you objected to.

Dr. Frank McField: In other words he said that it is not true that I filed the motion before the meeting.

The Speaker: He said he withdrew his statement. That is correct. Please continue, Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you. Mr. Speaker, I just want the Fourth Member for George Town to know that I asked my uncle – that is, the Minister for Tourism – for also an hour, so I have five hours in which to put forward my case. One, yes.

Mr. Speaker, continuing with the letter:

“At the initial meeting with Mr. McField and Mr. Putteril, I had an opportunity to discuss all aspects of the project with Mr. McField, including environmental protection measures we were taking, preservation of the mangrove buffer, our non-dredging stance, training, revenue generation, our commitment to build the road and bridge at our expense, and many other aspects of the development.

“Mr. McField, at the end of the meeting with myself and Mr. Putteril extended an invitation to come as a guest on his television show, Public Eye, to discuss the project and explain it to the public so that they could better understand and support the project in the same way as he then understood, and supported it.

“Due to scheduling problems it was not possible to take up his kind offer and appear on the show. Mr. McField then offered to arrange a meeting with the rest of the Backbenchers to discuss the above mentioned matters.

“I want to thank you and the rest of the Backbenchers for the open and productive nature of the meeting, the many valuable and thoughtful questions and suggestions relating to all aspects of the development, which advice will continue to be valuable in the planning and execution of the Ritz-Carlton Grand Cayman Resort.

“Once again, thank you for taking time to meet with me and please let me know if there is anything I can do to answer any additional questions that may arise relating to this project.

“Yours very truly, [signed] Michael Ryan”

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: So, Mr. Speaker, September 8 is the date of that letter. That proves without a shadow of a doubt the Fourth Member's position on this project. He supported it, Mr. Speaker, plus it is also my information that...because Mr. Speaker, in that letter it referred to money to the roads. Prior to this, the Fourth Member for George Town moved a motion calling for Government to establish a road fund. That was seconded by myself, Mr. Speaker, because I felt that the motion had merit.

Mr. Speaker, that motion carried and the Member was so excited about the possibility of his accomplishments that I understand that he volunteered to bring a motion on the lease extension because we could use the money that we were going to get from that—which was the $5 million or $6 million to establish, or fund his road programme.

So, Mr. Speaker, it shows that there is some inconsistency. Mr. Speaker...

MOMENT OF INTERRUPTION—4.30 PM

The Speaker: We have reached the hour of 4.30. I will now entertain a motion for the adjournment of this Honourable House. The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse, Prevention and Rehabilitation.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until Monday morning.

The Speaker: The question is that this Honourable House do adjourn until 10 AM on Monday. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House do stand adjourned until 10 AM on Monday.

AT 4.30 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM MONDAY, 28 SEPTEMBER, 1998.

EDITED
10.28 AM

[Prayers read by the Fourth Elected Member for George Town in the absence of the Third Elected Member for George Town.]

The Speaker: May I ask all Members to remain standing? Proceedings are resumed. At this time we will have item 2 on today's Order Paper, Administration of Oath. Oath of Allegiance to Mr. Arthur Joel Walton to be the Temporary Acting Third Official Member.

Mr. Walton will you come forward to the Clerk's table?

ADMINISTRATION OF OATHS
OR AFFIRMATIONS

OATH OF ALLEGIANCE

by Mr. Arthur Joel Walton, JP

Hon. A. Joel Walton: I, Arthur Joel Walton, do swear that I will be faithful and bear true allegiance to her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II her heirs and successors according to law, so help me God.

The Speaker: Mr. Walton, please take your seat as the Temporary Acting Third Official Member. We welcome you on behalf of all Honourable Members for the time of your stay here. Please be seated.

Item 3 on today's Order Paper: Announcement and Messages from the Presiding Officer.

READING BY THE SPEAKER OF

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: We have apologies from the Honourable Third Official Member who is off the Island on official business. The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay is still sick. And the Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works will be arriving somewhat later this morning.

Item 4 on today's Order Paper: Questions to Honourable Members and Ministers. Question No. 163 is standing in the name of the Elected Member for North Side.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION 163

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Thank you Mr. Speaker. As this question is directed to the Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works, I would assume it will be put off until . . . or is the Leader of Government business going to answer?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, could I ask for that question just to be left to the end? The [Minister] obviously is a little bit late, sir.

The Speaker: He may arrive before Question Time is over . . . or, do you want to defer it for a later sitting?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Just . . . If he is not here by the end of Question Time we will defer it, sir. Thank you.

The Speaker: We have two on the Paper for him. Fine. Question 164 is standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 164

No. 164: Miss Heather Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture: Since the opening of the Resource Centre earlier this year, what are the benefits of having this Centre and are people taking advantage of what is being provided by volunteers?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: The benefit of the Centre is to provide information and education to women of the community regarding services available by the Centre and other agencies. Since the opening of the Women's Resource Centre it has hosted, in conjunction with the Ministry, an Open House to commemorate International Women's Day.

The Centre has also facilitated three open discussion forums on various topics including weight preoccupation and eating disorders, exploring the Maintenance and Affiliation Laws and examining the Cycle of Domestic Abuse in Our Community.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Miss Heather Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Honourable Minister say, regarding the domestic abuse side, if she is finding that more women are coming forward?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Community Development, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I am not in a position to say whether or not more women are coming forward in that the Centre has recently been opened. But we can confirm that women are indeed coming forward and discussing this topic much more openly.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: The Minister answered that persons at the Centre have been exploring the Maintenance and Affiliation Laws. Can the Honourable Minister say if in exploring the Maintenance Law if persons responsible have observed that there is a contradiction between the length of time a father is required by law to support a child and the length of time in which the mother is required by law to send a child to school?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Perhaps the Member can clarify further as to the exact contradiction.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: The punitive father is required to support the child until the child is, I think, fifteen or sixteen, and the child is required by law to go to school until he is seventeen, I think. In other words, the mother is responsible for the support of the child an additional year longer than the father is required.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: That is a correct assumption. The entire Affiliation Law and Maintenance Law have been looked at. We had a seminar which was conducted with one of the leading matrimonial attorneys in town. It was well attended and it is the intention of the Ministry to actively pursue various amendments that we feel are necessary with these pieces of legislation, including that one.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W McKeever Bush: Can the Honourable Minister say what hours the Centre is open?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: On Monday from 11.00 AM to 2.00 PM; Tuesday, 12.00 to 2.00 PM; and the same day 5.30 to 7.30 PM; Wednesday 12.30 to 1.30 PM; Thursday, 5.30 to 7.30 PM; Friday 12.00 to 1.00 PM; Saturday 10.00 to 11.00 AM.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: I recall when the motion was brought to establish the Women's Office that one of the concerns expressed was providing a shelter for abused women to at least get away on a temporary basis. I wonder if the Minister can say whether or not they have been able to achieve that goal?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Due to financial and fiscal constraints we have not been able to date to achieve that. I would, however, hasten to add that the Ministry has met on several occasions with a private party who has offered property. The current status of that proposal is that the private party is making a proposal to Government and we are not yet in receipt of that. In addition, in order to augment it the Ministry intends to put forward in the Estimates for the year 1999 sufficient funds to do the actual building provided we can get the property from the private individual. Failing that, then subject to adequate financing.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? If there are no further supplementaries the next question is 165 standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 165

No. 165: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning to state the Education Department's strategy to deal with the enrolment problems experienced at the Savannah school during the registration for the current school year.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The Education Department has monitored very carefully the enrolment at Savannah School to ensure that children were in the appropriate catchment area for that school. Additionally, the Department was in close communication with the Principal over the summer to make sure that there was appropriate space for the incoming students and the location of the Year 1 students has been moved from their old location into a new facility to accommodate that influx of students.

A limit was placed on students transferring into the Savannah School classes outside of Year 1 because the classes in that area were already close to being full, or full. Any students who could not be placed in Savannah were placed either at Bodden Town Primary or at George Town Primary, depending upon which one was more convenient to the parents. To date all students who have registered to be enrolled in our schools have been placed.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say what new facility the Year 1 students have been placed in?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: It was the former library. It was redone – carpeted, tiled, whatever.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say, since that library has been utilised as a new facility for Year 1 students, what is being done now to provide the school with library facilities?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The library has been moved to the former Year 4 classroom.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Does this now mean that the Year 4 class has less space than they had formerly?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: What was done was to move the classes around. The larger classes got the larger spaces, the smaller classes got the smaller spaces. But they all fit into it.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Miss Heather Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say, seeing that the Savannah community is becoming one of the fastest growing areas, if we can expect new classrooms to be built next year?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The long-term answer to these problems is a new primary school. Hopefully we can get clearance this year on it, and begin to put things together so it can be ready in August. If things are drawn out, however, the time is extremely short and that is really the ideal situation.

Also, we could build additional space in Savannah—and if we do not get the school we will have to build additional space in Savannah and also we should have the extra facilities at Red Bay. So, I think between the three we should be able to cover the catchment areas, but the answer is a new school.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Can the Minister state how long it has been since his Ministry and/or the Education Department have come to the conclusion that a new school for that area needs to be built?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, it has been about a year or so. As the Honourable Member I'm sure remembers, we did produce a rough costing of that and obviously it will be in the Budget. What I would be asking for, sir, is that provided the House is happy with the costing and the building of that school, if I can get an indication this year to move ahead, we could then deal with the plans, because that will take a while. I am sure we can find funds to move on with the plans—which I think instructions have been given on them, but it takes a while to get through the process to where we actually start to build.

So I would hope that if the House is happy with that in November and can give an indication, we could then go out to tender, subject to the Financial Secretary accepting that procedure. And I believe, sir, if we put the time limit tight on it, we can get the extra school built this year.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. The Minister certainly hasn't lost his touch. Can the Minister state if a location has been identified for this new primary school?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, we are now investigating land that the Crown owns. And one of those pieces is land that was bought up in the Spotts, or Prospect area (sometime back) which is quite a large piece of land and would be sort of in the fast growing area. If that is the case and that is accepted by the House, sir, that would simplify the speed at which we could move, because we would not have to acquire any further land, sir.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Minister state if using projections that should be available, if there are any indications as to what the needs will be numbers-wise in that area, say five years from now?

The reason why I am asking the question is so that it can be clear: In planning a new primary school can the Minister state how far down-line is being looked at when it comes to the construction of a new facility?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: We are expecting an extra amount of about 100 per annum in that area and what is normally done is—I am just saying what I think will probably be done—it will be subject to the professionals; but by and large we would probably build a school that would take two classes and on a basis that it could be expanded, and then look at the smaller schools for further expansion when that is needed. Obviously one school with the present number of classes in the three schools would not take us to the five years, but normally they are built on the basis that we can expand say up to three classes, or if we are really pushed, I guess a four-class stream.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. The Minister has just opened the door for what I really wanted to get at and I trust that he will take what I am saying as it is intended.

Obviously since the Red Bay Primary was constructed, we are six years hence. For the last three to four years we have constantly battled with trying to fit incoming students into the existing schools. The Minister has stated that in looking to construct a new facility for that area there will also be a look at which other of the smaller schools can be expanded.

Having said that, I am asking the minister for an undertaking to look at the entire situation — and I am not only talking about the district of George Town, but elsewhere. Simply because if we continue to do what we are doing now, we will always be playing catch-up. We will never have facilities that are built the way we want them, because we keep having to add on arms and legs to different places.

So, perhaps with an overview of more than five years, and using the projections that they have at hand whenever they are going to do whatever construction they are going to do, please do it in such a way ... and I am certain at the end of the day it is not going to cost any more money. But I am asking the Minister to make sure that when that is being done, it is being done in the proper way, rather than in a 'band-aid' fashion. And that is not being personal, but it has existed like that forever, from the time I remember. Let's try to get it done differently is really all I am asking to happen.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I understand what the Honourable Member is saying. To be frank, if the funds can be released what should be done, is a school should be built to take three classes and the hall and everything put in place now and that really is what I would be asking for to begin with. However, I should say, sir, it is possible if it has to be phased, that I would have to phase it, but we really are better off to build the school totally.

Now whether a school that size could be completed by August, I am not sure—and we do have a critical time for August. But I should say, if a school is built to take expansion, and it is planned right with a master plan, it should be far less of a problem than—as you said—when we do a band-aid situation.

Let me say this as well, Mr. Speaker: it is very hard to project number of births and number of people on immigration and this has been the problem. It was good for a while and all of a sudden the numbers went up. But, I will give the undertaking, sir, that whatever is done will have a master plan and by all means I would ask for the full funds on it this time. Thank you.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. The Minister will know that it could not end so nicely. I will have to ask the Minister now—bearing in mind what he just said—Can he give the reasons why the master plan for the Red Bay Primary School were not followed, since that school was constructed from 1992?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, with the Hall and the Admin. Block (which the Honourable Member knows funds have been approved for), those two will complete the Red Bay Primary School. And with the new school coming on line it should ease numbers there as well.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. With the greatest of respect my question was not answered. I am asking why it was not followed up to this time? Why is it only now that that is being done?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Is the answer because the money was not voted for it? The funds were not there? I am not certain what the Member is asking. I am trying to answer, but ...

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: I will be very clear, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: I think the Minister understands what I asked, but I am not looking for the answer 'because the money wasn't there' because I have never seen the money asked for and turned down. So, what I am saying is: If we are going to use that as an example—

Mr. Speaker, basically what I am saying is that the bodies that are in here do not matter. I am only pressing home the point that if we look at previous experiences please let us learn so that even if we have to phase things, that we have continuity-- we do not have things forgotten and other schemes come on line and twist and turn everything up as has been a perfect example – the Red Bay Primary. I am just wanting to make sure that the point is made.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I understand what the Honourable Member is saying. I inherited the school part-finished as the Honourable Member knows, and I would have liked to finish the Admin. [building] and the Hall, but... This coming Budget all Members will look at these priorities and I will put them forward, sir, definitely. I have always strived to get everything that is needed for the schools and I will continue to do that. I take the Member's point.

The Speaker: No further supplementaries? We will move on to Question No. 166 standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 166

No. 166: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment Communications and Works what is Government's policy regarding the importation of grass sod into the Cayman Islands.

The Speaker: The Hon. Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Effective June 1996, Government placed restrictions on the importation of sod into the Cayman Islands. However, importation of grass in the form of grass-seed, sprigs or grass cuttings and grass plugs, free of growing media, is still allowed entry.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, could the Minister say what led to this restriction?

The Speaker: The Hon. Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. We were trying to prevent the importation of insects such... I would not want to go into that Mr. Speaker—but we were trying to prevent the importation of anything that would not be good for this country.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, with all due respect, there are a lot of things that are not good for the country that would not be brought in by sod. So I would like the Minister to answer the question, please.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. If we are talking about sod, then I guess we know exactly what I am talking about. And that is all I am trying to say. In other words, if he wants me to name it out, I would not want to see any poisonous snakes, I would not want to see any poisonous insects, period. And that is the sort of thing that I did not want to say because I do not want to alert the public as to any ... that something has happened or...

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Can the Minister say whether this is a policy that is likely to continue and whether there have been any applications to have the policy changed to allow sod grass to be imported?

The Speaker: The Hon. Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: It is my understanding that we have had some applications for the importation of sod. We have been trying to work closely with the local persons who are actually engaged in this sort of thing and we are trying to keep it on the Island, rather than going ahead with the importation of it.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Can the Minister state if there is any intention in the foreseeable future to vary this policy from how it has existed since June 1996?

The Speaker: The Hon. Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I am confident that Government will look at the policy and of course if seeing fit, we will definitely do whatever we need to do.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Can the Minister state what might make Government see it fit to change the policy?

The Speaker: The Hon. Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Mr. Speaker, I did not say that Government would change it. I said that the policy could be looked at.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, I did not say that Government was going to change it. I asked 'what might make Government... change the policy?' sir.

The Speaker: The Hon. Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: The only thing I can say, Mr. Speaker, is if something comes before Government, being the good Government that we are, we would definitely look at it. And if it is seen fit for us to change it, I am sure we will take that decision.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. The Minister must understand that I am not trying to persuade the Government one way or the other.

So, my next question is: If the Government saw fit in 1966 to prohibit the importation of sod – and given the reasons in answers to the supplementaries, and understanding that the answer actually goes a bit broader – What [then] could possibly change the Government's view from this position? Is there some method of importation which could guarantee the non-existence of these bugs and insects and other things? Or, is there any other reason?

I am not trying to tie the Minister down, but the question was raised out of concern. And really what we are seeking is some reassurance that no pressure will be put to bear for that policy to change unless there are guarantees that the problems which caused the policy would not occur. So, we are trying to determine exactly what Government's position is -- and when the question was asked what might cause them to change their position, it was simply trying to determine if there was something new that no one else knew about.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 23 (7) & (8)

The Speaker: Before asking for an answer to that, I would appreciate a motion for the suspension of Standing Orders 23 (7) & (8) in order that Question time can go beyond the hour of 11 o'clock. Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works? The Elected Member for North Side?

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Mr. Speaker, I so move, sir.

The Speaker: Do we have a seconder? The Third Elected Member for George Town.

The motion has been moved and seconded that Standing Orders 23(7) & (8) be suspended. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED. STANDING ORDER 23 (7) & (8) BE SUSPENDED TO ENABLE QUESTION TIME TO CONTINUE BEYOND 11 AM.

The Speaker: Question time, continuing. The Hon. Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The question asked by the Member from George Town is a very good one and I will give him the assurance that the Department and my Ministry will be doing everything possible to make sure that we keep whatever we have in place now until we can be assured that we have no threat to the Cayman Islands. That is exactly what we have been doing and the threat as everybody in here knows is because we are fearful of things that could come in here that thank God, we have never had before. And we do not want them to come in here.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, in light of the fact that this type of grass is in high demand—and according to my understanding, a very lucrative source of income, can the Minister give an undertaking—as the person responsible for agriculture—that his department, or Ministry would try to encourage, or ascertain if any Caymanian entrepreneurs may be interested in producing this type of grass so that it can be supplied locally if the conditions allow it, thus meeting a demand and at the same time eliminating a great risk?

Hon. John B. McLean: Mr. Speaker, I give that undertaking. As I said earlier, we have been working along with local persons and, Yes, I would be supportive 100% of them doing it locally so that we would not have the threat which is the problem today.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In the answer the Honourable Minister mentioned that a restriction had been placed on the importation of sod in the Cayman Islands. I was advised recently that approval was given by Government for the importation of – should I say—fill? which I think carries the same risk. I wonder if the Minister can confirm whether or not this is a fact? If it is, why is it we can bring in fill, but not sod?

The Speaker: The Hon. Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

(Inaudible comments)

Hon. John B. McLean: Mr. Speaker, I have to say that the question asked by the Member, while I appreciate his concern, is far out of the range of what I was originally asked.

The Speaker: I have to agree with that. That does not come out of the substantive answer. Could you rephrase it?

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: Do you have a follow up? The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, there is a question that will come dealing with this in any case.

The Speaker: Thank you. There are no further supplementaries? If there are no further supplementaries we will return to Question No. 163 standing in the name of the Elected Member for North Side.

QUESTION 163

No. 163: Mrs. Edna Moyle asked the Hon. Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works on what basis was the Water Authority's decision made to continue piped water to East End rather than to the district of North Side.

The Speaker: The Hon. Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: On 17th June, 1997, the Water Authority Board of Directors, consisting of the following: Chairman: Hon W McKeeva Bush, OBE, JP; Members: Mr C Ebanks, Mr R Flowers, Mr T Hubell, Mr B Watler, Mr R Williams, Jr.; Secretary: Mr RMcTaggart Apologies: Mr Philip Hydes, Mr H Chisholm, Mr Watler, Mr J Wood.

[A decision was made] to continue the public water system from Frank Sound Road through the district of East end. This decision was taken on the following basis:

- The former Chairman confirmed to the Board that Government wanted public water supply throughout East End as soon as possible;
- The Authority had already prepared an engineering design for a large part of the project from 1991;
- East End has a very low annual rainfall and most ground water along the coastal areas is not suitable for potable purposes. The Board felt strongly that East Enders have suffered for the want of good water for many years.

The Authority had previously designed a stand-alone public water system for East End in 1991. However, the project was never built. Very early in the existence of the Authority, as far back as 1983, consideration had been given to construct piped water system in East end. Therefore, a considerable amount of engineering time had already been invested in the project.

An engineering design for North Side has not yet been done. Rainfall amounts and ground water conditions in North side are very similar to those in East End and it is therefore important that the Authority continue extending the public water supply into this district. The Authority's Ten Year Development Plan calls for the completion of a public water distribution system throughout the country by 2006 and includes the extension of the public water supply from Frank Sound through North Side after the East End extension is completed in mid-2000.

Mr. Speaker, today I want to say to the past president that I am so pleased to know that this project has actually begun; I give the [Elected Member for North Side] my assurance that North Side will also, under my guidance be done.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I would like to thank the Honourable Minister for his in-depth answer even though I really was not interested as to who was chairman or members of the Water Authority at the time. But in his answer he says that rainfall amounts and ground water conditions in North Side are very similar to those in East End – and I want it to be clearly understood that I do not object to water going to the district of East End. But my question is: Can the Honourable Minister say if a survey was done of the two districts – seeing that this project has only started in 1998 – to see what the return on the investment by the Water Authority would be in going to the district of East End rather than North Side, or North Side rather than East End?

The Speaker: The Hon. Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Mr. Speaker, knowing the Water Authority and the professional way that it is actually handled, I am certain that before entering into anything, a survey is [always] carried out.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I wonder if the Honourable Minister would undertake to provide in writing the results from the Water Authority survey. My other supplementary is: Could the Honourable Minister give an estimated cost of this project and the estimated return? Certainly we should have that at hand.

The Speaker: The Hon. Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The information the Member for North Side has asked for, will be provided to her, and I will give it to her in writing.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I would like to thank the Honourable Minister for agreeing to provide me with that information.

My last supplementary is: Would the Honourable Minister say if this project will continue through the district of East End and around the Queen's Highway coming into the district of North Side, rather than coming to our district from the Frank Sound area?

The Speaker: The Hon. Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Mr. Speaker, thank you. It is my understanding from the Authority that we are going to put piped water through North Side, through East End. And as far as the technical part is concerned, as to how they are going to do it, I would not be in a position to say if we are going to continue that way.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I would thank the Honourable Minister if he could provide me with that information also, because I think it would be much more feasible if they came through Frank Sound, rather than coming around at the Queen's Highway where there are not too many houses to connect.

The Speaker: The Hon. Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Mr. Speaker, I will definitely provide her with that information. The only thing I would like to say is that while her district is definitely one that has developed somewhat, we have to realise that the Queen's Highway is some place that is being developed and I think that it will have to be left to the professionals to know exactly how we should put the water through.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Mr. Speaker, I wonder if the Honourable Minister when he says that the district of North Side is somewhat developed, but we have to look forward to future development on the Queen's Highway... I agree 100%. But when I was told by the Water Authority that they wanted to go into the district of North Side because of customers like the Botanic Park and because of the Cayman Kai area--that is a very developed area--I do not think it is a matter of the district of North Side not being suitably ready for water. And I really find it hard when we say the district of North Side is not really developed.

The Speaker: The Hon. Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Mr. Speaker, I give the Member for North Side the undertaking that whatever is possible to have water through that district will be done.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Mr. Speaker, getting back to the substantive answer, and the Minister having said that the decision to move forward was made in June 17, 1997, can the Minister state at the time what was the Authority's decision with regards to how to finance this section of the extension programme?

The Speaker: The Hon. Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Mr. Speaker, at that time as I pointed out, I was not the chairman of the board. I do not have that information, but if the Member so wishes, I would try my best to find out exactly how they did it.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Can the Minister say then if monies that were held by the Authority that were handed over to Government in December of 1997 were put aside in anticipation of being able to use some of these funds either for the extension programme, or for any other facilities which the Water Authority needed in order to continue to serve the public efficiently?

The Speaker: The Hon. Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. That is quite possible. As I said, the fact remains I am sure that any other Authority when they have funds they have it set aside for various projects. The matter that the Member is speaking about with regard to the money being transferred to Government is a different issue.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Different issue, or not, I think it is very important why I ask the question – and I will explain and then turn it into a question to the Minister.

If it is going to be the practice of Government at the eleventh hour at any given time of the year to make demands on any authority – but specifically in this instance the Water Authority – how then can they prudently plan their extension programme and any other facilities that they need, when they are not in a position at that point in time to know exactly how they are going to finance what they have to do?

My question surrounds the problem with not being able to plan for the future. It is my understanding that there are no clear cut policies regarding how funds are requested from these Authorities by Government and there are no exact terms by which the Authorities operate in this area.

So, I am saying, perhaps the Authority maybe looking forward again this year to [being] able to continue and end up with their kitty being dried again. Is this going to be the case? Perhaps I can wait until the legal advice has been given, and then I will continue the question. (Pause) I guess it's over.

I think the Minister understands what I am asking. What I am really trying to seek is some assurance that the Minister could give – now that he is the Chairman and the Minister responsible for the Water Authority – that this Authority be allowed to continue to plan prudently for its future development.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: From the minutes I saw of the last meeting that I attended, I would say that everything is planned properly. The only thing I can say is that it seems as if this is not really a question for me; it seems to be a finance question. The fact remains that each Authority has something laid down in their guidelines to say what should be contributed to Government. As far as I know, this has been followed by our good Financial Secretary.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: I am not wanting to get into a confrontation this morning over that issue. But I want the Minister to know that I take issue with him in regard to all Authorities having something specific laid down. It is my understanding that this is not the case.

Now, if this is the case, perhaps the Minister could give that to me in writing, if I misunderstand what prevails. Or, let me put it better: Perhaps it is possible that is the case now. But it is my understanding that it wasn't the case when this happened at the end of the year in 1997 with all the Authorities. But, again, that is not an issue for us to argue about. And I understand that it is not the Minister's direct responsibility.

All I am really trying to ensure is that the Water Authority is allowed to do what it has to do, and not be ostracised from itself by Government determining what should be done with whatever funds they are able to put aside for their future development. That is all I am really saying. Simply because if the Authority within its own confines is allowed to plan its future, it must be able to perform better than if it has to continue on a borrowing situation which Government will in turn have to guarantee on most occasions. If Government is taking the money they want to use for that, then really and truly all Government is doing is side-stepping its own borrowing and guaranteeing it for somebody else.

Having made my point, I am asking the Minister if he will give an undertaking that the Authority which he is in charge of, is not caught in that trap from here on in.

Hon. John B. McLean: I would have to say that that would have to be decided by the Financial Secretary not me. I am prepared to do whatever I can with my Authority, and any Authority that falls under my Ministry, but when it comes down to that, I don't have any authority on that.

The Speaker: I think we are way outside the ambit of this question. I will not entertain any further questions on this. If you have any other supplementaries -- The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: I just want to ask the Minister if it is a practice that prior to expansion, feasibility surveys are conducted so that the Water Authority may get a first hand view of the numbers of customers who will be needing the services and also what types of demands these customers will be making?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: In order for any business person to [apply] for financing, I am sure all of the projections would have to be in place. As I pointed out, this matter was started a long time ago and I am sure that the Board of Directors at that time took every precaution to make sure that it was going to be feasible.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: I will relieve the Minister by moving on.

My question now is, having explained the situation with East End and North Side, Can the Honourable Minister brief us as to what plans there are for Cayman Brac, if any?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works. I think we are going outside of this question, but if the Minister cares to answer that, he may.

Hon. John B. McLean: Mr. Speaker, you are quite right. It is completely outside of this. But the only thing I can say is that we are definitely looking at Cayman Brac the same as we are looking at Grand Cayman.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: I respect what you are saying, and I am not trying to go too far. It is just that for the question about the other two districts, the frame . I was simply asking, knowing the Authority and how conscientious it is, if perhaps in its master plan it might have some timeframe for Cayman Brac. If that is considered unreasonable, then it doesn't have to be answered. But that was all I was asking.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: In no way do I consider the question unreasonable. As I said awhile ago, we will be doing everything possible to make sure that we have the same system we have throughout Grand Cayman in Cayman Brac.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I am just wondering whether the Minister can say if the Authority is working in its provision of water and sewerage according to the Ten-Year Development Plan for Water and Sewerage Infrastructure which addresses the anticipated water and sanitation needs of Grand Cayman and Cayman Brac and Little Cayman through to the year 2005?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: As the Member knows, when he was there certain things were put in place. I give him and the House the assurance that we have never tried to do anything to upset what has been put in place. I fully support what he is saying and that is exactly how it is.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries that concludes Question Time for this morning. I think this is a convenient time to take the morning break. We shall suspend for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.30 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12.05 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Item No.5 on today's Order Paper: Other Business, Private Members' Motions. Private Member's Motion No. 17/98, Proposed Ritz-Carlton, West Bay Road. Continuation of debate thereon. The Third Elected Member for West Bay, continuing.

OTHER BUSINESS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 17/98

PROPOSED RITZ-CARLTON HOTEL WEST BAY ROAD

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you. When we adjourned on Friday, I had basically given an introduction to my contribution. For the benefit of Members and the listening public, I would like to summarise what I had to say.

I read a letter from the developer, Mr. Michael Ryan, dated 8 September, which basically confirmed a meeting that he and his lawyer had with the Fourth Elected Member for George Town. That letter also confirmed that Member's support for the Ritz-Carlton resort project. As a matter of fact, the fourth Elected Member for George Town was so convinced that he invited Mr. Ryan to attend or accompany him on his TV show to enable him to convince the listening public—

Dr. Frank McField: On a point of order.

The Speaker: Let me hear your point of order.

POINT OF ORDER (Misleading)

Dr. Frank McField: The Member is misleading the House. The Member cannot say that I was going to allow Mr. Ryan to attend my TV show in order to convince the listening public.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for West Bay. You have heard the Member's point of order. He is saying that you cannot prove that he was trying to convince him. Can you further elaborate on that?

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: In order to confirm that position, all I have to do, Mr. Speaker, with your permission is to read a paragraph in the letter I referred to from Mr. Michael Ryan (8 September). Basically what it says here is, "Mr. McField, at the end of the meeting [that is, the meeting he had with Mr. Michael Ryan and Mr. Putterill with myself and Mr. Putterill extended an invitation to come as a guest on his television show, Public Eye, to discuss the project and to explain it to the public so that they could better understand and support the project in the same way as he then understood and supported it.]"

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town, I think that is very clear. That was at least Mr. Ryan's assumption. That is what he is quoting.

Dr. Frank McField: If that is Mr. Ryan's assumption, I don't believe that his assumption is any proof of anything. I am saying that that was not my position and that this cannot be seen as proof of any position and I would like the Member to withdraw that. Now, if he is saying that this is what Mr. Ryan has said, it is a different matter than if he is saying what he said when I asked that it be withdrawn which is, in fact, that my position was to invite Mr. Ryan to the TV show so that he could convince the general public that this project was good for the people of the Cayman Islands. Because it is implying somehow that I am using my TV show in order to convince people rather than using it as a forum for those persons who also want to express different opinions.

The Speaker: I think the Chair has been convinced that he has evidence for what he is saying. I think you will have an opportunity in your reply to set the record straight.

Please continue, Third Elected Member for West Bay.

[The Third Elected Member for George Town rose]

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: In view of the fact that the Third Elected Member for West Bay is quoting extensively from this letter, and the importance of this letter to the debate, perhaps you could rule that he table this letter, or maybe he would volunteer to lay the letter on the Table of this House.

The Speaker: I would ask the Third Elected Member for West Bay, would you agree to table the letter?

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: I intended to Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: Thank you, very much. Please continue with your debate.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: I just have a little advice for the Fourth Elected Member for George Town: He had his say, he will have a chance to wind up to rebut anything that is said. At that stage he can correct whatever is necessary. But it is very plain from this letter that he was convinced of the benefits of the project and at that stage it had his entire support.

Subsequent to the meeting that the Fourth Elected Member for George Town had with the developer, he arranged for Mr. Michael Ryan and his lawyer to meet with the Members of the Backbench in order to give them an opportunity to raise questions and solicit from the developer any additional information they needed in order to also be convinced to support the project.

In that meeting, and I think there were six of us there including the Fourth Elected Member for George Town, we spent an hour, maybe two hours, with the developer and his lawyer. We asked [questions], expressed our concerns in regard to the project, and the conclusion that I reached, as well as those Members who were there, was that at that stage we felt comfortable in supporting the project.

As a matter of fact, at that stage I think the motion was drafted, moved and seconded. I am not sure if it was yet registered with the Legislative Assembly, but we also discussed the relevance of the motion in light of the fact that all parties there were convinced of the benefits of the project.

In the letter that I just read from, and the letter I quoted from on Friday, that is the letter of 8th September from Mr. Michael Ryan, it also mentioned that the Fourth Elected Member for George Town was so convinced about supporting the project, that he offered to bring a motion calling for Government to consider the lease extension we are now discussing here in the Legislative Assembly.

The reason for that is because the Fourth Elected Member for George Town had previously brought a motion for Government to look at the possibility of establishing a road fund from which we could address the issue of road repairs and construction in this country. I seconded that motion because I thought it was a good one and the Fourth Elected Member for George Town was eager to get on with the funding of this road funding.

He volunteered that he would bring a motion for Government to consider approving the lease extension—

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order.

The Speaker: Let me hear your point of order please.

POINT OF ORDER

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I am not so sure. I mean I know I will get a chance to state my position, but the Member well knows that what he is doing is--although I will have the possibility to speak what I consider to be the truth-- what he is doing is misleading the House. The Member is speaking about my actions as if he believes that somehow he is capable of proving in fact these particular assumptions which he is making. There is a particular reason, Mr. Speaker—

The Speaker: Please come to your point of order. This is not—

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I am trying to explain to you my point of order, please. The point of order is that he is building a case that I am bringing this motion with improper motives, that I am deceiving; that I am being deceptive. It is quite clear that that is his case. Although I will get a chance to speak about this, I believe that this is a point of order.

The Speaker: You are expressing an opinion. That is not a point of order. I caution you, please have a point of order when you interrupt the speaker. As I said earlier, you will have ample opportunity. You will not be curtailed in saying what is within Standing Orders to say when you reply.

Third Elected Member for West Bay, please continue.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

As I was saying, the Fourth Elected Member for George Town even volunteered if necessary that he would bring a motion, that is a Private Member's Motion—

(Misleading)

The Fourth Elected Member for George Town rose.

The Speaker: Do you genuinely have a point of order? I cannot allow you.... Let me caution all Honourable Members. It is against Standing Orders and against the rules of Parliament to just move points of order continuously to interrupt the train of thought of the speaker. So please do not do it with that motive. If you have a definite point of order, please let me hear it.

Dr. Frank McField: My point of order, Mr. Speaker, is that the Member is misleading the House. The Member is saying things that I did, that I did not do and the Member must prove this. Otherwise that is my point of order. He has to prove that this is what I did.

The Speaker: That is what he is attempting to do, as I understand. As he elucidates he is attempting to prove it, if you will give him an opportunity.

Please continue, but I would ask you to get off of this as soon as you can. Let's get on with the debate on the substantive motion.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Mr. Speaker, what I am saying is important to this debate, because I, for one, have taken a position based on facts and information that I have obtained on a personal basis. I am trying to show that even though the Fourth Elected Member for George Town brought the motion calling for rejection of the project, basically, the fact is, that deep down he is really convinced and supports the benefits of the project for these islands-- or else, he would not have said what has been confirmed in this letter from Mr. Ryan.

Anyway, I think the general public is convinced, as well as the elected representatives in this House that the position of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town is not what he said it is.

This project is designated as a five-star resort. I am not sure the Fourth Elected Member for George Town knows what that consists of, and with your permission, Mr. Speaker, I would like to elaborate on what that consists of so that elected representatives here can be convinced that what is being proposed is totally unacceptable.

I did request information, and I got it. I am prepared once I have read from the document to also lay it on the Table so that other Members can have access to that information. It says: "This is a brief synopsis of the requirement for a five-star resort. A five-star resort in this market requires access to an excellent beach and preferably accesses to other water elements enhancing water sports opportunities.

"Multiple food and beverage facilities at a variety of levels. These should be located in different areas on the resort to provide guests with the maximum number of dining experiences to satisfy the demand for variety in a customer who traditionally has a longer average stay than other tourism groups.

"Multiple pool experiences with the same requirement for multiple locations as required by the food and beverage outlets described above. A large spa facility, preferably separated from the other aspects of the hotel.

"A golf element of a signature level within the resort accessible to guests on foot when desired. This element is also critical to attract the important group segment. Signature level for a five-star is a course designed and endorsed personally by one of the major names in golf course design, such as Greg Norman. Extensive manicured grounds and a general spaciousness.

"A large ballroom and breakout space as well as various other external function areas. Larger rooms, balconies, hallways, circulation areas, exercise areas, lounges, lobbies, club areas, etc. etc."

When you take into consideration the requirements for a five-star resort, it is ridiculous to believe, as this motion calls for, that you can locate all of those facilities on five acres of property that was previously occupied by the old Holiday Inn Hotel. Mr. Speaker, with your permission, let me mention a few other things that are critical for a resort of this calibre.

It says here: "Although the island of Grand Cayman has for many years possessed the necessary tourism potential and client demographics to justify a five-star resort facility, the nature of the landscape has made this more challenging than in other locations.

“To understand the nature of this challenge, it is necessary to examine what a five-star resort is and what goes into making a successful one. A five-star resort (as the name implies) is more than a hotel. It is a resort with the additional services, features and amenities that are expected in a resort.

“To attract five-star resort clients, the entire ambience of the resort has to feel spacious, relaxed, uncluttered, and flowing. Every element—from the oversized balconies to the edging of the cart paths [that is the golf carts]—has to be seamless, coordinated and open. This requirement for space is also evident in the various amenity elements, such as the pool terraces, restaurants, spas, meeting rooms, lounges, club areas, parking, signature golf and other elements of the resort.

“Another critical element in the creation of a successful five-star resort is the inclusiveness of all the features. This inclusiveness relates to the coordination of the various features in such a fashion that a guest, once he arrives at the resort, feels that everything he may wish or require during his stay is contained in the resort.

“This does not mean that guests of these five-star resorts do not leave the grounds to visit other tourism attractions, they do as much, or more, than any other group of tourists and tend to spend more money when visiting these attractions. What is important is that the staying or leaving of the resort is a choice that the guest makes, not one that is forced onto them.”

Mr. Speaker, what that means basically is that when you are talking about a five-star resort anything that the guest wants is there. We can't say leave out the golf course because he can play at Britannia or SafeHaven. No. It must be included as part of the resort package.

Another requirement for the group business which a resort of this calibre is in a position to attract, is the ability to separate a visiting group from the general hotel guest population, as well as provide activities that can be created exclusively for the group. The location of the golf course, clubhouse and the course are essential elements in satisfying this requirement. So, this resort will attract huge groups of businesses here along the lines of conventions.

It is saying that when the resort is in a position to accommodate those groups they must have the ability to separate them from the general hotel guests. There are so many other destinations competing for that type of business here. It is a type of business that I, personally, think we should go after and do everything we can to attract to these islands.

The thought of just giving the group permission to build on the old Holiday Inn site is totally unrealistic, or unacceptable. The project does not consist of a Ritz-Carlton Hotel. It consists of a resort which includes a hotel and many more facilities and services than those normally offered by a hotel.

Mr. Speaker, with the great care that this developer has taken, and as demanded by Planning (and I will talk a bit about the Planning process) such great care has been extended in this project, as far as this development, that even with the 143 acres, in order to include all of these facilities, it is going to be tight. But they are so committed to protecting the environment across the street and taking into consideration requirements in regard to Planning approval that they were prepared to make those sacrifices in order to make this project a reality.

The project must be accepted as a whole to be considered a five-star resort. The question is not whether or not we are going to give them approval for a Ritz-Carlton Hotel. The question is: Are we, the Government of the Cayman Islands, convinced enough of the project to support the project? Or do we feel so strongly about it that we say no, we don't want this project so go elsewhere with it because we are not prepared to give you that commission?

Mr. Speaker, I don't hear that being echoed in these hallowed halls. Basically what I see is a lot of political, should I say, gesturing by certain Members because they see a few people sitting in the gallery who they want to cater to and impress.

As I said, the proposal is not for a hotel. It is for a resort that includes a hotel. So either we support and approve the idea of a resort, or we don't. I am not sure how many of us have done business, or put together a project, but it is like me going to Planning for approval to build my home, and Planning says, ‘Well, John, we like your outline, we like your plans. But, you can't put in the plumbing. Put a house out back.’ It's the same idea, Mr. Speaker. You can't pull certain facilities from the resort package and make it work. Either you do it, or you don't!

A question was raised in regard to the Planning process. An attempt (that's the way I interpret it) was made to give people the impression that this resort had not gone through the proper channels as far as Planning approval was concerned. An attempt was also made to give people the impression that certain exemptions or concessions were granted to this resort in regard to the approval process. Nothing could be further from the truth.

But the Planning process was done in stages. Mr. Speaker, with your permission I would like to read the approvals from Planning with the attached conditions. First of all, there is a letter dated 19 January, 1998 and it is to Humphreys Limited, PO Box 30687 SMB Grand Cayman. It says:

“Dear Sirs: Subject: Proposed Hotel, Apartments, Spa, Golf Course, Golf Clubhouse, Thirteen (13) Lot sub-division, Pools (2), Excavation, Overpass, Tennis Courts (4), Bypass Road on Block 12C Parcels 11 & 215.

“At a meeting held on December 17, 1997, the above application was considered and it was resolved to grant Planning Permission for those structures situated west of the proposed bypass road, that is the beachfront hotel/condo complex, spa, overpass, cabana, two swimming pools subject to the following conditions: . . . ”

Permission was granted subject to certain conditions as follows:

“1. The applicant shall submit a revised site plan illustrating the following information at a minimum:

- Those structures situated west of the proposed bypass road only;
  - public rights-of-way to the sea (18 feet);
  - additional parking (15 spaces) in the vicinity of the spa building;
  - six (6) foot wide sidewalks along West Bay Road and one side of access road;
  - solid waste facilities in an area accessible to the DoEH;
  - storm drains in all parking areas;
  - size of parking spaces;
  - parking lot surface material;
  - proper location of SafeHaven Road;
  - directional arrows for driveways;
  - dual exit lanes at all major driveways;
  - proper 15 foot radii at all intersections;
  - road reserves linking lands to the north and south parcels.
2. The applicant shall submit a landscape plan which shall be subject to review an approval by the Director of Planning.
  3. You shall liaise with the Director, Water Authority and the Chief Fire Officer with respect to the Fire Brigades Law and Water Authority Act.
  4. Construction drawings for the proposed swimming pool shall be submitted to the Chief Building Control Officer, and to the Department of Environmental Health for approval, and an approved copy shall be submitted to the Planning Department prior to issuance of a letter of confirmation. The applicant shall submit a revised site plan illustrating the following information at a minimum.
  5. The applicant is required to obtain a Building Permit from the Chief Building Control Officer. Construction shall not commence prior to the issuance of a building permit.
  6. Unless specifically authorised otherwise in writing by the Central Planning Authority the Development shall be carried out strictly in accordance with the approved plans which you will receive when all of the above conditions are complied with. Additionally, once construction has started, conditions 8-15 shall be complied with before a Final Certificate of Occupancy can be issued.
  7. A 6-ft wide concrete sidewalk along the front property line, and a 4-ft minimum in width landscape strip along the inside edge of the sidewalk.

8. Construction of the driveway and drainage shall be in accordance with the Public Works Department standards.

9. The parking lot and driveway aisles surfaced with asphaltic concrete or equivalent and tire stops provided for each parking space which must be striped.”

Does this sound like any entity that was given a concession or exemptions? It was on January 19, 1998, that the letter of approval was given. Then on March 27, 1998, there is another letter from Planning to the same party in regard to planning approval. It says:

“Proposed canal excavation, Golf Clubhouse, Golf course, roads and sub-division on block 12C parcels 11 & 215. At a meeting held on March 18, 1998, your application was considered and it was resolved to grant Planning Permission for Golf Clubhouse, four (4) tennis courts, nine-hole golf course, eleven (11) lot sub-division, excavation for canals and bypass road subject to the following conditions.” It says here (and I will only read one):

“1. The submission of a final comprehensive environmental assessment report as outlined in the February 1998 document titled Environmental Criteria on Design Guidelines prepared by ATM Incorporated, the contents of the same shall be to the satisfaction of the Department of Environment and the Planning Department.” As part of the Planning process, this group has to submit a very detailed and intense environmental impact study.

Mr. Speaker, it would be like my coming to you saying I want permission to do so and so, and your saying, ‘Well, before you get it, what you need to do is an environmental impact study.’ These impact studies are very expensive, indeed. As business people, they are saying, ‘Okay, well, give us the approval in principle subject to submitting the impact study’ which is the way to do it. They are in the process now, once they move on to this stage where before they can do anything in that area they have to submit the environmental impact study. And they will pay for it.

The developers are not new at this business. As a matter of fact, they have done a similar development that consists of 600 acres in Costa Rica. Now, I am not sure... and, Mr. Speaker, you have travelled quite extensively, but it is my understanding that the environmental laws and conditions in Costa Rica are much more rigid than they are here in the Cayman Islands. I am reminded that Costa Rica is one of the leading ecotourism destinations in the world. This group was able to convince the authorities in that country to allow them to build a resort similar to the one they are proposing here for the Cayman Islands, but on a much larger scale.

Part of the Planning process or condition was that there would be no dredging in the North Sound. Not only that, in addition to no dredging they first had to leave 300 feet of mangrove between the coastline and their development as a buffer. In addition to that they are leaving another 200 feet of mangrove in the residential area. So that makes 500 feet. In addition to that, the development will be so designed that pockets of mangrove will be left intact throughout the resort. Why? In order to leave the natural environment intact as much as possible.

I am quite sure that you remember, Mr. Speaker (I sure do), the problem we had in this country with mosquitoes. Since I was a boy, I have never had the courage to venture into the mangrove along Seven Mile Beach to look for crabs. Do you know why? Because of the experiences I had as a boy. When I took a stick and put on a crab, by the time I had my hand on him I was totally covered with mosquitoes. Now, much credit has been given to MRCU in regard to eradicating the mosquito problem in this country. But development has also assisted with this. As a part of the process they will remove the mosquito-infested area of the swamp or the mangrove in this area.

What happens? Every year the MRCU sprays pesticides in there to control the mosquito population in these areas. Do you know where that pesticide ends up once it rains? Right in the North Sound. And we talk about being concerned about the marine environment. What would happen is that they would remove that section and ensure that drainage into the North Sound of these pesticides becomes a thing of the past.

The Speaker: Are you reaching a point where it would be convenient to break?

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Yes sir.

The Speaker: Proceedings are suspended until 2.15 PM.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.50 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.30 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. The Third Elected Member for West Bay continuing the debate on Private Member's Motion No. 17/98.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

For the benefit of the elected representatives of the House, and with your permission, I would like to table copies of the letters and other memos I have been quoting from.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: When we took the lunch break I was dealing with the planning process for the development and I read extensively from two letters from the Planning Department granting approval of the project with certain conditions. One of those conditions was the submission of a detailed environmental impact study. This study will be done by a company by the name of Applied Technology and Management Incorporated (ATM). This company has extensive experience in providing services for some of the better resorts, not only in the United States and Canada, but also in the Caribbean.

The list among their clients, Hilton Head, South Carolina (and if you haven't been there, it is an exclusive resort of a very high standard, one that the state of South Carolina is very proud of); Savannah, Georgia; Jacksonville, Florida; Gainesville, Florida; West Palm Beach and Ft. Myers, Florida. They have also provided services for the countries of Anguilla, Barbados, Montserrat, St. Lucia, and also the United Nations Development Programme in the area of tourism development policies and studies. So the environmental impact study will be done by a firm that has a very high and good reputation in this area.

I also mentioned that the group, (i.e. the Ryan group) had been granted permission by the Costa Rican authorities to build a 600-acre resort in that country. My information is that that project is well underway, as far as its being approved. I also mentioned that the environmental laws in Costa Rica are much stricter than our laws here in the Cayman Islands. The group was able to comply with those laws because the authorities in that country were convinced that they knew what they were doing; they have a sensitivity for the environment and at the end of the day they will have a resort they can be proud of.

It is my information that so far, approximately $24 million have been invested in the project, 6 miles of water pipeline have been put in place, 5 pumping stations, roads— in other words, the infrastructure has been put in place. Some 100 lots have been sold and some 24 houses are now under contract. People are in the process of moving into-- some 24 houses that are being completed.

They also boast of a Greg Norman 18 hole golf course that is under construction. The project consists of two separate hotels. They have all been approved. So we are dealing with a group that has the experience, the sensitivity and the know-how to put these projects, like the one they are proposing in Cayman, in place. The benefits from this project are enormous for the Cayman Islands.

In the meeting we had with the developer and his lawyer we expressed our concerns, we raised our questions, and as I mentioned before, all the concerns I had (and I would daresay the majority of the group) were dealt with to our satisfaction.

Let me now just elaborate on some of the benefits of this project. The project will include an estimated cost of $225 million. That is exclusive of the fees and other revenue that will come to Government from stamp duty, et cetera. This will be a tremendous benefit to the construction industry.

I recall back in 1992 before the National Team won by a majority and took office that we had contractors in this country who were sitting on their hands. I recall even in my district of West Bay, and not only me, but other elected representatives, on a number of occasions had to assist on a personal basis so that at the end of the week these same contractors had some money to put food on their tables.

That is not the case today, but that was only six years ago. When we took over, there were over 1,000

Caymanians out of work. Do you know what the cry was back then? Let's get the economy moving; let's jumpstart the economy; let's get construction re-vitalised; let's find something by which we can provide employment for our people.

The construction contract for this project will be handled by local contractors. I daresay that even the subcontracts will all be handled locally—that is, subcontracts for the electrical, plumbing, et cetera. I brought a motion during this sitting requesting that all equipment, materials and services on Government contracts are guaranteed to be resourced locally as long as there is competitive quality and standard. We will see to it. . . and I don't think we need to see to it, because the developers we are talking about are so inclined; they will ensure that (as much as possible) services such as furnishings, cabinets, and that type of thing—many of which will be needed for this project—will be provided by local entities which are in a position to provide this service and will have a realistic opportunity of bidding for this service.

In our meeting with the developer, we expressed our concerns in regard to employment opportunities for Caymanians and as a result of our discussions it was agreed by the developer to make available for young Caymanians interested in going into the hospitality industry, 100 scholarships to attend the Cayman Islands Community College for training in the areas associated with the hospitality industry. In addition to this, further training, overseas, will be made available for Caymanians employed by this resort, who show interest and have the ability to go on.

I am aware that some years ago the Minister for Tourism with the support of Government launched a scholarship programme to encourage young Caymanians to go in the hospitality industry. I thought that was a good gesture. You are talking about $25,000 per annum in scholarship fees to take care of all aspects of attending a university. According to my information, the programme is going very well, and every year a young Caymanian is awarded that scholarship to pursue a degree in the hospitality industry. But you tell me—and there are quite a few resort hotels along the Seven Mile Beach who have been in business for quite a while—you tell me how many of them have a scholarship programme in place for Caymanians.

The other thing I found very interesting, and this is an excuse that is always used in order to deprive our people in Cayman of an opportunity—lack of experience. As a matter of fact, the Ritz-Carlton group prefers that you don't have a whole lot of experience in the hospitality industry so that they can train you the way they want you to be trained.

I know what that is all about because I also run two businesses here in the Cayman Islands. If staff is coming from one of the other fast-food entities, the chances are that we won't employ that person. Do you know why? Because they get set in their ways by the experiences they have had with those establishments. It is very difficult to train them in the way you want them to go.

This group prefers that you come in, have a willingness to learn, and they train you the way they want you trained within their organisation.

The other thing we pushed for was—and I must give the First Elected Member for West Bay a lot of credit in this area... The hotel/resort [developer] has basically agreed that their minimum wage will be higher than it rates presently in the hospitality industry here in Grand Cayman and the Cayman Islands as a whole. If you do a survey out there now, the minimum wage they start you at in those existing hotel and condominium complexes is about $3.50 an hour plus gratuities. We are hoping, (and basically we have approval in principle on this), that at this resort the minimum starting wage will be in the region of $6.00 or $7.00 per hour plus gratuities.

There is no wonder that some of those resorts and hotels are fighting against the Ritz-Carlton group coming in because when they come in and offer their staff the opportunities I am talking about and are able and willing to start those staff at a higher wage, the other hotels will have to follow suit or they will lose their best staff. They are not going to allow that to happen, so what happens? Persons employed in the hospitality industry as a whole, [will] benefit tremendously.

We have heard a lot recently about roads along Seven Mile Beach, alternate roads, bypass roads and this and that. One of the concessions that Government got from this group (because the bypass road will pass through their resort) was that the group will completely fund this corridor that passes through their development up to an extent of some $5 million. In order to make sure it is of the highest quality, and it blends in well with their environment and ambience in that area, they have also volunteered and would prefer to do the construction themselves.

When the Holiday Inn decided that it made no economical sense whatsoever to keep its doors open (because of the amount of money they were spending on maintenance of the property), much negotiation took place once again by Government and the First Elected Member for West Bay, and supported by us; a liberal severance package for those employees was arrived at. I think the Law calls for one week for every year that you worked in severance. They were paid something like four weeks for each year. In addition to that, the group was convinced to set aside a fund in the amount of $250,000 for 'X' employees of Holiday Inn over 55 years of age. They will receive a cheque on a monthly basis over a period of time while the new resort is being built.

We hear horror stories about Caymanian employees who have been working for 20 or 25 years at some establishments and for some reason or the other they are forced to leave the employment and those establishments don't even have the respect to say, 'Okay, for your 20 years of service, here is a gold pen that you can keep in remembrance and in recognition of the time you spent with us in our employment.' This was totally unnecessary as far as this group was concerned, but it shows a genuine concern for humanity.

One of the other concessions we were able to arrive at with the group, is the concession for watersports and other services that will be needed by visitors of the hotel--that is for small Caymanian operators. This is an issue that I have fought for and feel very strongly about. Today, along Seven Mile Beach, every one of those major hotels has one player in place. What they do is gobble up all the business from these establishments.

To go even further than that, if your small operator walks through and tries to put some of his brochures on some of the stands provided for that purpose, they are taken and thrown into the garbage. There is no interest whatsoever; there is no concern to ensure that all Caymanians involved in that industry have a fair chance of making an honest, decent living. We have a lot of small operators in my district of West Bay. What will happen is that these people will be in a position where they and others can benefit personally from tourism in this country.

A lot of us are very selfish and take the position that as long as 'me and mine' have, forget about the rest! I have never taken that position. I realise-- and this has been one of the keys to our success here in the Cayman Islands-- that regardless of what level of society you find yourself on, you are able to make an honest, decent living in this country. Some of the little guys employed in the construction industry have better homes than you and I, Mr. Speaker. And that makes me feel good--that people have an opportunity to enjoy those benefits here in the Cayman Islands. But if we are short-sighted enough to think that only a few and only special interest groups have a right to make a living in this country, pretty soon we will go the same route as many of the other territories we call neighbours here in the Caribbean. So, it is only healthy and positive when our people benefit in these ways.

The thing that really annoys me is that we have a few Caymanians who are associated with these properties and they have no more care for their small Caymanian than I would have for I don't know what. They are so selfish. Everyone has a right to earn a decent living in this country.

As I understand it, we will earn something like $6 million from the lease extension and it is important to understand that in this whole exercise there is only one piece of property that I understand is a new lease being drawn on, and that is something like a half acre of property. All the others are already under lease agreements and still have some 52 years to run. So we will get another $6 million from the lease extension necessary for the Ritz-Carlton Grand Cayman Resort.

What is important is that every year, not only the MLAs, but our constituents come with shopping lists of what they want Government to provide for them. No Government can provide the services they need for their people without money. Some Members here say that they are not responsible for the money side, you take care of finding the money and make sure that it is done. But from this project the Government of the Cayman Islands and its people stand to earn in excess of $108 million.

The thing to keep in mind... And I requested the information, but was unable to get it because it is all over the place... All of the major hotels we have along Seven Mile Beach were granted certain concessions when they decided to come into this country. Mr. Speaker, if I am not wrong, it is something like 2.5% or 4.5%--some ridiculous figure they are charged in regard to imports on their materials to construct. This resort was not given one concession of that nature. Government said, 'No. We welcome you, but you must pay your way.' The group is prepared to pay its way on this project.

According to the Minister for Tourism (and I believe what he says) other territories when they have a group like this coming in, the shoe is on the other foot. Not what they can provide by way of services and revenue, et cetera, for Government, but as a condition of their coming in, Government is committed to providing certain infrastructure and services to accommodate the development. We are in the enviable position here in this country where we can dictate to developers what we want as a condition for them coming in. It speaks well for the Cayman Islands. All of this political meandering and jostling is just that--political!

Until recently-- and we are still concerned with that aspect-- the Cayman Islands, like other offshore financial centres are under a tremendous amount of pressure right now from the United Kingdom and its colleagues, the OECD and the European Union. Their objective is to discourage our activity as much as possible in our financial industry. We have been told in no uncertain terms to go ahead and encourage expansion in our tourism industry to offset any possible decline we may experience in our financial industry. So this project goes a long way in that direction.

The other advantage of this project is that it attracts to the Cayman Islands a different tourism clientele. As a part of this resort we will have some 20,000 square feet (I understand) of ballroom and convention space, convention centres and facilities. So rather than companies like Ford Motor Companies and others who hold on an annual basis conventions and seminars in places like Orlando and some of the other resort areas that have the facilities, they would be attracted to the Cayman Islands because we will be able to host that kind of activity here once this resort has been established.

I also understand that there is a certain clientele associated with Ritz-Carlton resorts who don't travel to any particular destination if there is no Ritz-Carlton Resort in that area. What they also do, as I understand, is to decide where they want to go. Let's say for example that you want to travel to the Caribbean. The next question would be, What Caribbean island has this type of resort? It doesn't matter to them if it is in Jamaica, Barbados, the Cayman Islands or wherever it is, they will go to the location or resort that has such a facility.

I know in places like Orlando this is big business. Conventions, business meetings, et cetera is big business. There is no reason why we here in the Cayman Islands should not be enjoying some of that business. When the late Hon. Jim Bodden was drawing up plans to construct a new airport terminal for these islands, I remember the criticism he got. Some people said, 'What are we doing? We're losing our island flavour. We love the little thatch hut and its ambience.' It's easy for them to say that when they live somewhere else. But here in the Cayman Islands we have to provide those facilities that are necessary for our expansion. Can you imagine today operating with the level that tourism is at in this country with that old airport terminal? Back in those days I think we had BWIA and LASCA flying in here, and I'm not sure about Air Jamaica. When we had one or two flights, we were trampling all over one another in that little space. We must have foresight.

What some representatives do not understand is that when you are in leadership you have to take some decisions which may sometimes prove to be very unpopular. But if you are convinced that it is in the best interests of the majority of the people in this country, then you go ahead and you stand by your guns. I am one of those representatives. I am convinced that this is a good project for this country; I am convinced that our people will benefit tremendously from it being established here, and I have no apologies for anyone.

It is necessary for us to maintain sustainable development in this country. Our people are used to a very high standard of living. Today—and I am glad that I am not in the market to do so—but today Caymanians are spending—and it blows my mind! Caymanians are building $200,000 and $300,000 homes! When I built mine back in 1975 it cost me $30,000 and then I was scraping. But Caymanians have that ability. They earn the money. They want the very best. And who am I to say to my Caymanian who can afford it, 'Man, that is too much of an elaborate home for you.' No, Mr. Speaker, if he can afford it, let him build it!

I am also convinced that that is one reason why when we hear of hurricanes coming in our direction like we experienced Gilbert in 1988, we didn't suffer the same type of tragedies and losses and damage like some of our Caribbean neighbours. Why? Because of the quality and standard of construction here in these islands. One thing I am proud of is that Caymanians want the very best.

The other thing Caymanians are doing, and they have the ability to do so, is they are driving expensive cars. Even with us the other day hiking the revenue in this area in order to slow down the importation of cars in this country, they are still coming in. And we are not talking about used cars, we are talking about brand new, expensive cars!

Caymanians today (in most cases) have the ability to go out there and find a decent paying job. One of the things that concerns me is that every year I try to attend the Cayman Islands High School graduation. And I see on average 250-300 young Caymanians coming out who have graduated. That is only the Cayman Islands High School. We have Triple C and the other private schools that are also graduating young Caymanians. When it comes to providing sufficient jobs for all of our people, the area easiest to do that in is the hospitality industry. We boast of the financial industry, and we are glad to have it; but it employs limited numbers of Caymanians. Hotels? We are talking about 200 to 300 people minimum that they need.

One of the things we need to do in this country, and I do discipline Government for not doing so yet, is insist that we set up a proper school, to train young Caymanians in the hospitality industry. Make it attractive. I understand that such a programme was embarked upon in Bermuda and the results have been tremendous. Why can't we do that here in the Cayman Islands? Is it because it is too easy to obtain a work permit?

We need to have vision. We need to be in a position where we can envisage what the job requirements are for our young Caymanians. The hospitality industry is one of the best ways that we have available to us to ensure that jobs are available. We can't force anybody to take jobs, all we can do is provide the opportunities. If some Caymanians do not want to work, that is a different problem altogether. But the opportunities must be available for them to take advantage of by way of employment.

I would like to make a few comments in regard to the National Trust. I encouraged, I supported the establishment of such an entity in this country. I think they have a very vital role to play with regard to preservation. But I have to say this: I am one Member who is not prepared to let the National Trust, or any other entity that may be established here, stand in the way of progress. There must be a balance. They have gotten the support. Government provides money for them on an annual basis by way of staffing and the whole bit. We have vested quite a bit of our Crown property with the National Trust. And this is good. But they can't have it all.

It is, should I say, unrealistic, or misleading for anybody to make the National Trust or any other entity believe that there is any property we are discussing right now that Government is in a position to say, 'Well, okay, here, National Trust, you take it.' All of the property we are talking about is already under lease agreements with the exception of maybe a half acre, something like that. So it is unrealistic for the National Trust or any elected representative of this House to make the National Trust or anyone else believe that there is an option on this property that we can vest it to the National Trust.

It is also my understanding that certain members of the National Trust have approached the developer and said that they are prepared to work with them on this project. The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town keeps talking about speaking out of both sides of your mouth, or with a forked tongue. You can't oppose a project and then on the other hand run behind the door or the corner and say, 'Don't worry about it. We know you're gonna get it and we still are prepared to work with you.'

Mr. Speaker, before I close I would like to address a few of the comments that were made by the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town during his contribution. One of the issues he raised was a comparison of the Ritz-Carlton Resort Project with the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital. He went on to say that the National Team had objected to this hospital and he wonders now how they can balance opposing that and at the same time support the Ritz-Carlton Resort. They are two different kettles of fish totally.

I was one of the Members who opposed the Dr. Hor- tor Memorial Hospital, and I recall the reason for it. It wasn't that we did not want to support a hospital for our people. That was not the issue: at the time we did support the idea. We told the Member who was in charge then, to [build] on the existing site—where we now have a brand new first class hospital in the process of being completed. The objection was that it was going to be on two sites—a split-site hospital which duplicated cost, duplicated services, and provided an inconvenience to our people. We didn't oppose for the sake of opposing: at the time it made sense!

I want to remind that Member (i.e. the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town), that he was one of those who supported our position because back then he was part of the National Team. And there is nothing wrong with that. I think he was sensible. He recognised the impossibilities of the project, and it couldn't work.

It is my understanding that this same Member asked the developer if he couldn't maybe put the project in Bodden Town or East End or some of the eastern districts. It appeared that if that were the case he would be in a position to support it. I recall, back in the 1996 or 1992 election campaign that one of the issues was Mr. Norberg Thompson attempting to get approval for a development in Bodden Town. I don't know all of the details, but I vividly recall that Member objecting to that project. Now, if he objected to that project which was much smaller than this one, do you mean he would support this one for Bodden Town?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order.

POINT OF ORDER

The Speaker: Let me hear your point of order please.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Did the Member say that I asked the developer to put the project in Bodden Town because I was going to support it? Because I asked him if he considered any of the other three districts. I didn't tell him what my disposition was. But I indicated that it was my belief that since there was no environmental threat of destruction of mangroves that that offered a viable alternative to look at these three districts. I still have yet to disclose my position if he said he was going to site it in either of the three districts mentioned.

The Speaker: Maybe he has a valid point.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Mr. Speaker, I didn't say that he said he would support it. I didn't say that. I said that the developer was asked by the Member, and it appeared that if it were put in one of those areas—

The Speaker: One of the three districts. Okay. Please continue.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Let me ask a very pointed question: Tell me— in what other district in this island could we locate such a project that wouldn't pose some destruction of mangrove? That is one of the difficulties we have had with projects of this magnitude. You cannot find a large enough plot of land to include all of the facilities necessary for a resort of this nature. So regardless what district this project was put into, it would incur some sacrifice to our mangrove.

I am concerned with the environment. But I am a very practical man. There must be a balance between the environment and development. I recall leaving these islands many times flying east. We have plenty, plenty more mangrove. As a matter of fact, it is an issue that we are going to have to address in this country. We cannot afford to attempt to mislead people. If development is to continue in this country we must take a position in regard to how much of our natural environment here which consists in large part of mangrove.

The Speaker: Would this be a convenient time to take the afternoon break? We shall suspend for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.30 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.09 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Debate continues on Private Member's Motion No. 17/98. The Third Elected Member for West Bay continuing.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I think I have said enough on this motion. I have made an attempt to not only inform the Members of the House but the listening public of the benefits of the Ritz-Carlton Grand Cayman Resort project. The conclusion I have come to is that it is not the project, but who benefits.

In this country there is a certain mentality that is maintained by certain establishments that only they must benefit. I heard the issue of the possibility of conflict of interest raised in regard to one of my young Caymanian lawyers. I recall back in 1988, when I was in the process of putting my business together, I needed legal services to draw up a lease agreement and other required legal services in connection with that business. I approached Mr. Orren Merren. First of all, he was a former schoolmate of mine at Triple C; a young Caymanian I have learned to respect over the years, and if I must say so myself, a very capable young lawyer. When it comes to lease agreements, contracts or any documentation of that nature, from my experience he is one of the best around. It is unfortunate that he happens to be the brother-in-law of the Minister for Education, but how can we hold that against him? I mean, as long as the Minister is in office he must be deprived of making a decent living in this country? He is a very capable young man.

I am wondering if the issue of this conflict of interest is not pushed by some of the other establishments providing such services in this country, who believe—

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order.

POINT OF ORDER
(Imputing improper motive)

The Speaker: Let me hear your point of order please.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Since I, the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, raised the matter of a conflict of interest, the Member now speaking is saying that he wonders if it is not pushed by some of the other establishments, imputing that I am a lobbyist or a spokesperson for some other establishment and that my motive in raising the point of order is not pure. Mr. Speaker, the Member speaking should be cautioned.

The Speaker: That is not a point of order in a sense. But I would ask you to be careful how you talk because this is a very small country and—

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, the Member is imputing improper motives because I raised the conflict of interest. He is saying that he wonders if the whole question of the conflict of interest is not pushed by some other establishment, meaning that I am the mouthpiece and lobbyist for some other establishment.

The Speaker: But he did not call your name, and I cannot assume that he is referring to you. So I will just ask him to be very cautious and do not insinuate anything to anyone, please. Continue.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Let me reword what I was going to say: There are certain establishments in this country--also in the legal profession--who believe that all big business passing through this country, must first go through them.

The issue of the establishment is a very real one in this country. When I was in the process of establishing my own business, I can also recall thanking God for people like Mr. Lawrence Thompson, Sr., who took both Mr. Orren Merren and me and said, "I respect you young Caymanians, I am going to do everything I can within my power to see that you have an opportunity to make a success." That kind of mentality in this country is very scarce indeed.

The Ritz-Carlton Resort will be very good for Cayman. It will bring new business to Cayman that at present we are not in a position to attract here, because of the facilities that will be made available for these persons. We are talking about a totally different clientele being attracted to these islands. As I understand it, the Ritz-Carlton Resort visitor normally stays longer, spends more money and that is the type of visitor we want to continue to attract in this country.

I heard a joke the other day. Some of the persons we attract here, and I don't think it is the fault of the Minister for Tourism, or the Department, but I remember that we had a very cheap outfit that used to come in here on a weekly basis. I think they used their cabinets for storing ice because they were not aware that they had to put that in the little refrigerator provided by the condo. This visitor is normally your business person. They have money to spend, they don't mind spending it. It is a visitor that our Caribbean neighbours are doing all that is within their means to attract.

Sometimes we believe that we are the only destination that is involved in the tourism industry. But let me tell you that, from experience, places like our neighbour Jamaica are doing quite well in regard to tourism. We must always keep that in mind. The Ritz-Carlton Resort will offer excellent employment opportunities for our Caymanians. As I understand it, many of the employees of the Holiday Inn, those who are still capable of working, will be given first preference for employment at the new resort.

Mr. Speaker, I oppose this motion. I am convinced that neither the mover, nor the seconder, have deep, strong, feelings about this issue as far as opposing it—

Mr. Roy Bodden: You better quit while you're ahead!

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: I believe that the right thing to do is to support such a project for these islands. So, thank you, Mr. Speaker, for your patience and indulgence. I look forward to the vote being taken on this issue and also to making the public know where we really stand.

The Speaker: The floor is open to debate. The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

These islands were once referred to as 'the Islands that time forgot.' None of us would wish to return to those days when we made our living by going to sea and remitting the funds to these islands; a time when mosquitoes were so plentiful that even travelling to school in the morning we had our little smoke pan, and we used the Shamrock branches (which we know are soft) to beat the mosquitoes off of us; a time when cattle were laid out in the pasture land dead from suffocation by mosquitoes. We have to give much credit to the late Dr. Marco Giglioli for his work in controlling those mosquitoes.

We have spent much time and effort to develop our tourism industry to a point where it contributes so significantly to the business and people of our country that without it we could easily be almost back to that time we talked about, the islands that time forgot. When we hear about the contribution of tourism, when we count these dollars and make these boastful remarks that in 1991 the contribution of the tourism industry to the Cayman Islands was CI $182 million; that by 1994 that figure had risen to CI $275 million; and that according to the compendium of statistics produced by the Economic and Statistics Office in 1996 the contribution was CI $331 million. Now when we mention these numbers, sometimes it is easy not to understand the magnitude of what those figures really mean. But if you can think about any particular business in the Cayman Islands that does not benefit from tourism, I would like to hear. If you think about the size of the supermarkets in this country, you tell me if they would survive without tourism, you tell me if they could survive on the basis of 35,000. And you tell me if the duty free stores could survive in this country without tourism, and the number of employees that are providing service in the supermarkets, the duty free stores, you tell me if the 200 plus restaurants would survive if tourism was not part of the pillar of our economy.

When we think of the contribution of tourism and what it brings to our country, ask the bankers what the contribution is to their respective businesses; ask the construction industry what the benefit is to their livelihood and the number of people who work in those industries; ask the number of retail stores throughout the Cayman Islands what is the benefit of tourism to their respective businesses, or any other business in this country. There are these linkages, Mr. Speaker, between the financial industry, the construction industry, the wholesale and retail operators. Ask CUC if they would be making the amount of money they are earning if the tourism industry were not present in this country; ask Cable & Wireless if their bottom line would be what it is, and whether they could employ the number of persons they are employing.

MOMENT OF INTERRUPTION—4.30 PM

The Speaker: May I interrupt you for one minute? We have reached the hour of 4.30. Would you move the suspension [of Standing Order 10(2)]?

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 10(2)

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I am pleased to move the suspension [of Standing Orders] to allow this House to continue to deal with this particular Private Member's Motion.

The Speaker: The question is that this House will continue until 8.00 PM. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 10(2) SUSPENDED TO ENABLE THE HOUSE TO CONTINUE UNTIL 8.00 PM.

The Speaker: Please continue, Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport. I apologise for the interruption.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: That is perfectly all right, Mr. Speaker. We have to abide by what Standing Orders are, and I appreciate your interruption.

Let us ask the taxi drivers how important the tourism industry is to this country, or the tour operators, or the omni bus drivers, or the gas stations throughout this island, or even the people providing landscaping service. Ask them whether the benefits of tourism are significant, whether these $331 million that I talk about are reaching them, and the trickle-down effect of all this investment and services.

Mr. Speaker, let me say that the services delivered in the Cayman Islands are indeed high. And everyone working in the tourism industry who provides service to those who visit—we do an exit survey at the airport and ask questions of visitors. I can tell you, Mr. Speaker, Honourable Members, and members of the public, that the results of those surveys are something that most countries in the world would like to see. Those visitors' responses are (generally the largest percentage of the response overall) that the service provided in the Cayman Islands (whether we are talking about accommodation or water sports or taxi drivers or duty free stores, whatever it may be) is excellent to good.

The stability in this country is based on all of us working together to ensure that future generations have the same opportunity, or better, than we have today. This country is what it is by working closely with the international developers and persons who are from other countries-- [persons] who provide specialist skills which are not yet available in the Cayman Islands. Not just so for tourism; it is also like that in every sector you look in—construction industry, financial industry, even in the agricultural side of things. Mr. Speaker, we will talk a bit more about the economics, but someone once said that (with greatest respect to everyone in the room) politicians tell the people what they want to hear, and leaders tell the people what they need to know.

I will, to the best of my ability try to cut through the confusing web that has been woven, and speak as clearly as I can so that the public will hopefully have a better understanding of the benefits of the Ritz-Carlton project and the cost to society as well. Sometimes when we pose questions it tends to focus all of our minds, and so I will use that methodology in some cases with what I am about to say.

What type of hotel does the Government's tourism policy recommend that the Government seek to attract? Mr. Speaker, and Honourable Members, on page 30 of that document which was approved by this Honourable House states, and I quote: "All new accommodation development must be appropriate to upscale visitor expectations. Only four- or five-star or better new hotel resort development will be permitted."

So, the National Team -- which some Member referred to -- Government, is following the recommendation of that policy accepted by this Honourable House. These recommendations in my view, and in the Government's, are in the best interests of the Caymanian people. We are a small country and tourism should, as it is, be targeted to allow this country to reap the maximum benefits from it as we possibly can.

A former Member of Executive Council responsible for Tourism once said, while talking about who we should be trying to attract as visitors to the Cayman Islands, said "Cayman is not for everybody." What I think he was indirectly saying is that the Cayman Islands should not use the mass tourism approach where everybody comes, creates a great strain on the society and the infrastructure with minimum benefits to our people. Another former Member of Executive Council responsible for Tourism called them 'peanut-butter and jelly visitors,' still talking about this mass-tourism approach.

Let me come to the next question that I think may bring some clarity. What is a five-star hotel? The Triple A in the United States provides such ratings of hotels that qualify for two-star straight up to five-star. They call it five-diamond. 'A rose by any other name is still a rose.' What this document says, is that five-diamond, or five-star property facilities and operations, exemplify an impeccable standard of excellence while exceeding guest expectations in hospitality and service. These renown properties are both striking and luxurious, offering many extra amenities.

This document also says that when we are talking about a hotel resort of a five-star category and providing full service it reads, "Geared to vacation travellers, it is a destination offering varied food and beverage outlets, speciality shops, meeting or conference facilities, entertainment and extensive recreational facilities plus special interests such as golf, tennis, skiing, fishing, and water sports. Assorted social and recreational programmes are typically offered in season and a variety of package plans are usually available including the meal plans incorporated into the rates. Larger resorts may offer a variety of guest accommodations."

It goes on to talk about the exterior and the grounds of a five-star hotel, the roadside. What is the comment? "It must appear outstanding." The parking: ample lighted, paved, parking areas. The appeal: stunning and impressive architecture in harmony with the surroundings preserving the historical nature of the property. The furnishings and décor in the general public areas: outstanding quality furnishings and décor, extremely well-coordinated and elegant in harmony with the theme of the project, spacious, fresh and inviting; provides a luxurious feeling in appearance.

I could go in detail and read every item on the list, but I don't believe I should do that. The general lobby and registration area: comfortable, spacious in size, or consistent with the historical nature. Registration area: superb quality front desk, such as solid wood or marble, located away from main traffic areas. A variety of fine art, abundance of live plants and fresh floral arrangements. Identifiable concierge desk. Separate cocktails and bar. Live or recorded background music in the restaurant.

And the recreational facilities? Ability to transfer lounge staff to restaurants and charge food and beverages to room, weather-appropriate pool with attendant on duty, extra towels available on site, ample superior quality pool furniture, whirlpool and sauna. Professionally staffed health club with wide variety of state-of-the-art equipment.

In the meeting areas, a wide variety of meeting rooms and function space with professional staff. State-of-the-art audio equipment, outstanding soundproofing, upscale gift shops with wide selection, a variety of upscale shops such as beauty salons, clothing, et cetera.

In the guest rooms: décor and ambience, luxurious furnishing and décor reflect current industry trend, extremely well coordinated and elegant in harmony with the theme of the project. Outstanding floor space, quiet units with easily accessible controls. Variety of bed sizes available with a variety of king or queen size beds. Comfortable conversational and TV viewing arrangements. Superior quality and decorative lamps and lighting enhancing the overall room décor. Superior quality mattresses and box springs. And it goes on.

Voice mail, multiple phones, Chanel-directory and television programme guide in an enhanced folder. Data ports for computer connections (laptop). Selection of glassware. Robes in the room. One-hour pressing. In the bathrooms for the guests superior quality ceramic tile, granite or marble flooring--I am just selecting a few to read from-- large marble or high grade vanity, either skirted or enclosed.

Telephone: Accepted 24 hours either at property or through a central reservation system. Answerphone: (guest service) answer phone promptly with friendly greeting.

I think just a selection of a few items would indicate to the public the quality of the Ritz-Carlton being proposed, and the Ritz-Carlton is a resort hotel. I have read that section that deals with a full service at a resort hotel that it is a destination offering varied food and beverage outlets, speciality shops, meeting or conference facilities, entertainment and extensive recreational facilities for special interests such as golf, tennis, skiing, fishing and watersports. So that is the type of project we are talking about as a five-star hotel.

What benefits does the Ritz-Carlton bring to the Cayman Islands? The investment in the Cayman Islands by the Ritz-Carlton owners for the lease extension, land transfer, and construction costs of the first phase of this project is estimated to be more than C$200 million. I ask this question: Can we risk losing this investment? And may I add that the second phase of this project will cause the total investment in the Cayman Islands to be C$350 million.

Another benefit: The Ritz-Carlton chain has the best record of training staff and has offered to my Ministry and the Ministry of Education their assistance in training our people in the many jobs available in the tourism industry. This was one of the early discussions with Mr. Ryan—not the present Mr. Ryan we know, but the father.

"This letter is in relation to the training and scholarship initiatives that have been started by the Ritz-Carlton Grand Cayman resort. I would like to begin by thanking you for your support and guidance during the critical early planning stages." (This letter is addressed to the Minister for Tourism.) "With your help, I believe we have been able to create a better development than there has ever been in the Cayman Islands. During the conversations we have had, you have stressed the desire of your Ministry and the Government as a whole to ensure that Cayman Islanders receive the maximum benefit from any development that was planned for the island and that you felt that training was an essential ingredient to make sure this happened. It is our policy to develop and promote to the greatest extent possible the opportunities for the local population to benefit from the new project that we develop.

"Primary among these benefits is the opportunity for local people to have the best chance possible at the new jobs that are created by a development such as the Ritz-Carlton Grand Cayman Resort. In order for this to work, the local people regardless of their economic circumstances, must be given the time and training necessary so that they are prepared to compete on an even footing for any job they might have the desire to apply for.

"As a result of this policy, we have initiated a scholarship programme to allow interested Caymanians to attend the tourism programme at the Community College. We have pledged up to 100 scholarships and will be happy to expand this number if the demand requires it.

"To further improve the level of qualification for local Caymanians, we are working with Ritz-Carlton's head office [which is in Atlanta, Georgia] to provide a number of spaces for the top graduates to move on to the United States for additional training at Ritz-Carlton's Headquarters. It may also be possible that qualified Cayman Islanders will receive the opportunity of additional postings and training at other Ritz-Carlton facilities around the globe enabling them to bring those skills back home to Grand Cayman and, by example, to raise the level of service provided to guests across the board.

"We hope that this is just the first step of many in helping to encourage the excellence of the Caymanian people and to foster a jointly beneficial relationship which will grow and extend over the years." Those were the words of Mr. Michael Ryan.

Another benefit: the Cayman Islands' image as a quality tourism destination will be much improved by the addition of a Ritz-Carlton. Our advertising and marketing of the Cayman Islands will be moved to a higher level by the thousands of Ritz-Carlton customers who would be recommended by their promotion and reservation system to visit our islands. These customers are exactly the wealthy visitors we wish to come to the Cayman Islands and who are future investors in this country. The other benefit of this type of visitor is that their travel continues even when there is a recession in the United States or whatever country they call home.

I served for two years of my life as Chairman of the Caribbean Tourism Organisation. At a recent board meeting, and executive committee meeting in New York,

I had a number of chief ministers, and ministers of tourism who came to talk to me about this Ritz-Carlton project. Their words to me were encouraging. They brought to my attention that in the Caribbean there is no island at the moment (that we are aware of) that has a Ritz-Carlton, a Hyatt, a Westin and a Marriott. And I believe, as I have gone out front to say back in November of last year, that the Cayman Islands would be better off having a project like the Ritz-Carlton.

Another benefit: The Ritz-Carlton will add approximately 366 rooms (they call them keys) to our tourism plant. That is significant because at the moment they will be replacing 300 rooms lost by the closing of the Holiday Inn and the Grand Pavilion.

I believe that the future of tourism is at stake here, as well as a reduction of our ability to earn money in the Cayman Islands now and in the future. Where will we obtain the money from to build roads, to provide the public services that our departments do, to provide money for rehabilitation centres, to provide money for education, to provide money for health services? Where will we get it from? We need to correct this reduction in rooms.

The tourism accommodation tax which will be paid annually by the Ritz-Carlton, depending on whether it is 80% occupied or 100% occupied is estimated to be between $5.8 and $7.3 million. Can we afford not to collect this money? Will our children and theirs in the future really see this decision to not accept this money as sensible?

Another specific item, the Ritz-Carlton, will give up the land for the Harquail extension. It will build and pay for the road and will also build and pay for the bridge. I believe it is correct to say that during my time in Government the benefits negotiated by this Government with the Ritz-Carlton owners for the people of these islands is the best I have seen.

This Private Member's Motion attempts to reduce the size of the land available to the Ritz-Carlton project. In Government's view it will cause the investment to become neither feasible nor viable and the owners may take the decision to cancel the project. What do we have from this investor?

We have an investor who has obtained other investors including the Ritz-Carlton Corporation to come together and propose a project, namely, the Ritz-Carlton Resort Hotel as a package to the Government. The investor has negotiated with the Cayman Islands Government in good faith. And I repeat, the Government has secured the best benefit for our people that I have ever seen in my years in Government.

Now, in the middle of that process to move this project forward, this Honourable House is asked to step in and reject certain land usage of the 134 acres and to put the project into a public forum. This is an approach that creates uncertainty in the minds of developers now and in the future. Let me say that a developer such as this one, who is seeking to develop a Ritz-Carlton has already spent significant sums of money preparing the project and assisting the former employees of the Holiday Inn as an earlier speaker referred to almost in detail.

What signal are we sending to the foreign investor in this country? I don't recall us ever doing this before. What confidence will a developer have when he comes to the Cayman Islands to talk to the Government about any particular project? What confidence will he have that when he sits down with the Government and the Government negotiates with him and they sign off more or less on the process that this is not the end of it, that there is still uncertainty because--remember what happened with the Ritz-Carlton project. I have never been an alarmist, but I believe that this message we are sending is a dangerous message.

We have developed this country in such a way that international developers and investors have confidence when they talk about political stability in the country, when they talk about the Government—not just us, all the others who have gone before—they had confidence that when the Government signed off on a particular project (I didn't say it was final, I said the negotiation was signed off) that we don't go in the middle of the stream and interrupt that process and create uncertainty. Is that approach in the best interest of our people now or in the future? Personally, I don't think it is.

I believe that the stability we talk about in the Cayman Islands, a great part of that confidence about the stability, is the way in which the Government has operated all these years. The economy of this country, where does this money come from to develop the Cayman Islands? How many people in the Cayman Islands, who are Caymanian (whether born or status holders) have the money to develop this country going forward? How many people? Very few. Very, very few.

When you start sending these kinds of signals, I get concerned about the approach they are using here with the Private Member's Motion.

When we talk about this lease, this lease was signed. . . . Let me step back a little bit and make these additional comments on that point. Will the decision not to accept this investment leave a lasting scar on the reputation of the Cayman Islands towards foreign investors?

In my view, if we lose this investment caused by this approach it will to the best of my understanding. . . . And I have been around Government for a little while; I have done negotiations before. I have spent 21 years of my life working in the Civil Service. I spent ten years of my life as the Financial Secretary of this country. I have negotiated narcotics agreements with others, Mutual Legal Assistance Treaty among others of recent times.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, on a point of clarification.

The Speaker: [Addressing the Hon. Minister] Would you give way? Let me hear your point.

Dr. Frank McField: I would like to find out if the Minister is saying that this discussion is taking place as a result of the Private Member's Motion or as a result of the Governor (Vesting of Lands) Law?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: What I am saying is that this process where you move a Private Member's Motion—and that Private Member's Motion in essence reduces the size of the property available to Ritz-Carlton to develop a five-star hotel—is going to damage that particular project. That is what I am saying. It may damage it to such an extent that the developer decides that he is not going to do the project after he has sat down and negotiated with the Government and the Government in my view has reached the best negotiated position beneficial to the people of the Cayman Islands, that is what I am saying. I am saying that it will send the wrong signal, and I am saying that it is going to leave a scar on the reputation of Government—not just this Government, any future Government.

It may even go as far as to be interpreted. . . . because perception is a funny thing. How people perceive what you are doing is sometimes different from what you think you are doing. It may even be that the international investors will think they are no longer welcome here. Please remember that the four- and five-star hotels maintain the high occupancies in this country. High occupancy means money being spent in this country, people of this country benefiting individually and business-wise.

Let me now look closely at the lease which was signed on April 1950 for 99 years by the late Benson Greenall and the late Sir John Huggins, then Governor of Jamaica. I think an important point to note--because I heard a comment about one man coming into the Cayman Islands and getting this kind of arrangement--is that this lease we are talking about, that one man started the private sector development along Seven Mile Beach in partnership with the Government. That one man, as most of us will know, was the late Benson Greenall.

This lease that is running for 99 years from 1950 will be in effect until 2049. The entire lease deals with 606 acres. It does provide in paragraph 2(e) of the lease that it can be assigned with the consent of the Government. And it goes on to say, "which shall not be unreasonably withheld." That consent shall not be unreasonably withheld. These assignments have taken place, that is why we are dealing with the project today where the lease is in someone else's hand.

From today until April 2049 the holder of the lease under paragraph (c) which states: "The Lessee shall have the right, but shall not be obligated to build and maintain upon this land. In addition to the said hotel houses, shops, cafes, cabanas, offices, banking and commercial houses, shipping and airline agencies, theatres, night clubs, country clubs, bathing establishments, golf courses, polo grounds, race courses, sports grounds, [and even] airfields..." would you believe? "and all other erections as may be necessary or desirable in connection with the said hotel or with the development of the land as a tourist resort. . .” So they have the right to do all this stuff they are asking to do at the moment.

They have the legal right under the lease to use the land right now to build a golf course, hotel houses, shops and cafés, to name some of the items. We are knowledgeable enough to know that they need Planning approval too.

I spoke about the benefits and initially I said there is the cost to society. I am going to pose a few questions here. What are we, as a country, saying about the mangrove? What are we saying about the 134 acres on which the Ritz-Carlton project will be built? Bearing in mind (and I found this in a document from the Department of Environment) that Grand Cayman is 76.4 square miles and has approximately 42 square miles of mangrove swamp, (in other words, more than half of Grand Cayman is mangrove swamp). What mangrove in Grand Cayman is virgin and fully functional in all of its ecosystem? I am not a scientist. I will not try to provide all of the answers, but I think that is a relevant question to ask.

When the mangrove is dyked off by MRCU to allow salt water to run through it, is it still functional in all its environmental characteristics? And what type of mangrove performs the major protection to Grand Cayman? I understand it is the red mangrove, the black mangrove, and the white mangrove. It is the red mangrove that forms the storm buffer to the island.

And before I get off the rails here, because I am not a scientist, I have a copy of a document done by the Ministry of Overseas Development in the United Kingdom. The title is “The Cayman Islands Natural Resources Study—Part 4A, Results of investigation into the marine biology.” Three persons carried out this study. These are their initials, JEJ, JEG Raimont, APM Lockwood, NE Hull, and G Swain. Please allow me to read what I think are the relevant parts of this report.

“Topographically, Cayman is very low and flat with few elevations exceeding 12 metres—the average elevation being of the order of 3.5 metres above mean sea level. This potentially makes the island liable to flooding and inundation by the sea. However, this is avoided except in extreme storm conditions due to the fringing reef, beach ridges, and mangrove. The tangled root system of the red mangrove serves to absorb and disburse wave energy both in calm and storm conditions. Although this natural breakwater would not be totally effective against a storm or hurricane surge, it serves very well to prevent high seas causing flooding and erosion. Consequently, should this strip of mangrove be removed, it would become necessary to construct an artificial seawall in its place.” And they go on to talk about the seawall.

“The biological importance is that this was derived from coastal mangrove contributes to the flow of energy within the fish ecosystem. The major importance of mangrove in such provision of nutritive material to inshore waters is illustrated by the fact that it has been estimated that two-thirds of the world’s fish population depend on mangroves either directly or indirectly for survival.

It has already been demonstrated that the North Sound seems to support a lower floral and fauna population than similar areas elsewhere in the Caribbean. This is almost certainly due at least in part to lower nutrient value in North Sound itself.

Any substantial further reduction in nutrient level occasioned by removing of a single most important nutrient source could further reduce productivity and just possibly influence the standing stock both in the North Sound and its associated reef. The complex root system of the mangrove fringe provides shelter for a considerable number of species, both resident and transitory. Many species, particularly fish, rely on this zone for at least part of their life cycle and the roots offer a site for the settlement of lobsters and oysters. During the natural resource survey various reef fish including snapper, grouper, barracuda and grunt were seen as both juvenile and adult among the red mangrove root system.”

And it goes on, Mr. Speaker in this report. It makes a recommendation: “Proposal to Retain the Red Mangrove Fringe.” “It is strongly recommended that the majority of the red mangrove fringe bordering North Sound be maintained.”

As I understand it, when you are moving from the North Sound into the mangrove, the first three that you come in contact with are the red mangrove, followed by the black mangrove, followed by the white mangrove, and after that you get terrestrial vegetation. If this report is recommending that we retain the red mangrove and the developer is retaining the buffer, which is this 300 number, it would seem to me that it at least matches what this report recommends, done by specialists, I would say. I don’t know any different so I would call them specialists.

But I believe that it is in the best interest of the Cayman Islands and its people to ensure that wetlands in this country—that we don’t fight over every little strip of land, but rather that we come together and find a solution to preserve the quantity of mangrove that needs to be preserved in order for us to say to our children, and they to theirs, that ‘this portion of land in the Cayman Islands we have preserved for our children and theirs – and the fish population and the lobsters and the birds, the oysters and everything else.'

I saw a map this morning of Grand Cayman. The legend on this map indicates to me that the area we are talking about, the buffer area— which the developer is maintaining— because a five-star hotel, one of the key areas also is the landscaping and the preservation of that landscaping in order to cause the project to fit appropriately in the entire scheme... When we look at the mangrove and related swamp, and the colour scheme of it, we see that it is mainly red mangrove and black mangrove and that the report by the specialists says that we should retain the buffer and the developer is doing just that.

Government has to take decisions sometimes that are always going to have some amount of division within the community. The fact that you are a leader chosen by this House and the people of this country, you cannot agree in every situation that this project should go forward; that this work permit should be denied by the Immigration Board...It comes to you on an appeal and because the board did not rule in favour of it that we should take a decision to stick with the board or not stick with the board.

All of those decisions have a way of being unpopular. I believe one Member said concerning the labour force, 'We are concerned by the number of people on work permits, but, for God's sake, don't touch mine. I need my domestic helper, and I need all the people who work for me.' And if you listen out there in the community, that is exactly what a lot of people are saying, 'Look, I can't get Caymanians, you have to leave this work permit with me.'

And when we talk about training, do you think that is going to be an easy task? It's easy to talk about it. But if anybody believes that the Minister for Tourism, or the Minister of Education, or any other Minister can do this by themselves, they are only fooling themselves. If you don't work with the industry; if you don't have a proper training programme; if you are not comprehensive in your design with the education department, the tourism side of Government and the private sector who know what the need is, they will participate in that need and they will provide the hands-on attachments that are needed in the industry. The academics that you learned in school as we know are theory; generally we learn more theory than we often apply in a business sense, a social sense, or any other sense.

So I believe that the Government. . . I didn't hear anybody clapping when the Government took the decision to cause Booby Pond and Little Cayman to be a Ramsar site. I didn't hear anybody clapping then. I didn't hear anybody clapping when the Government decided to vest in the National Trust the lands in the East End area, North side/Frank Sound area.

Mr. Speaker, if we are going to fight and use this approach like the Private Member's Motion I am speaking to, I believe that we are in for worse days than we are today. I believe sincerely that those persons who think totally environmental, and some of us who think there needs to be a balance, we have to weigh the damage to society by the project, we have to weigh the benefits of the project to society and we have to take a decision about the future direction of this country.

I support the National Trust. I don't have a problem with them at all. Sometimes we get angry with each other debating a subject and then we walk out of this House and carry it with us, and I hate you for the rest of my life because you did this to me, and you said this about me. Basically all it is is a subject on which I have my views and you have yours.

Mr. McKeeva Bush: Hear, hear!

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: And once the decision is taken in here on the subject I have done my duty to the people of this country, and that is where I leave it. I don't walk around carrying malice for people.

But I would say that rather than fighting over 34 acres and coming back to the point that more than half of Grand Cayman. . . or even if it's half, is swamp, are you telling me that you can't develop any portion of it for the future development of this country? Are you telling me that every time we talk about projects infringing on the swamp that we are going to get in a great big row over it and talk-shows and everything else over it? What are we accomplishing?

Are we saying 'Save all the swamp and let our people go to the devil?' Is that what we are saying? Are we saying that 134 acres of swamp which the scientists say, 'Leave the buffer, that is the important ingredient, leave the buffer!' and the developer is saying, 'I agree, I will leave it!'—Are we then saying that we are going to fight over the rest of it because my opinion is more scientific than yours?

This is not about a scientific opinion, this is about what is in the best interests of the people of this country. And there is a need to tell the people what they should know, not just to tell them everything they want to hear. And you can split hairs over any issue. And popularity will drive people to do all sorts of things.

The way I look at the project is what is important. I weigh the benefits, I weigh the damage to the environment, I try to minimise the damage to the environment, and I take the decision that it is in the best interest of this country going forward. We are talking about 2008? Is this going to end then? What about when you get to the year 3000?

We need to start thinking longer term. If you send this kind of signal, where a developer put a package together you got the major hotel chain in this country throwing their $25 million on the table saying, 'I'm in' and you come to this process? Over 134 acres?

My comment, Mr. Speaker, is: Why is it that we don't reach an agreement to deal with the wetlands in the Little Sound/Duck Pond area. Do you know how many acres are up there? Over 8,800 acres. And most of it is virgin mangrove.

I wonder if it is really a mangrove issue, or whether it is a political issue. And I hear people talking about the project. This is a democratic society. Everybody has his opinion. Everybody must be allowed to have his opinion. That doesn't mean that their opinion is correct. It doesn't also mean that my opinion is correct, but I have my opinion, and I have the right to put it forward. I believe that I am qualified to speak when it comes to development in this country.

We will have our time, Mr. Speaker, to deal with these wetlands. I want to see. . . I spoke to this several years back, because the movement in those days was that the Government must take this land and create a buffer in addition to the additional hundreds of acres. If you research the Hansards, I spoke to it then, and I still speak to it today. I am committed to preserving all of it if we want to. But we are going to have to pay for it. You can't take people's land and not compensate them for it. And I will never be a person who casts a vote to take anybody's land without proper compensation. Wetlands or drylands it doesn't matter.

Every Honourable Member, I believe, means this country well. We just have to be careful how we approach it, and what we say when we speak to it. I am not castigating anyone. That is not my intention. But the economic survival of this country is, to my mind, at stake in both areas. It is not just the tourism area, it is also the financial industry.

When we think about what is in the wind—when we hear about the United Kingdom; when we hear about the initiatives of the OECD; when we hear about the European Union and what they are proposing; when we hear about the G7 countries and their initiatives; let us not ruin ourselves from within. There are too many people out there trying to cramp our style because we are too prosperous. They envy the fact that the Cayman Islands has a per capita income of over $27,000!

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: So go listen to those kinds of characters and see where it leads!

I think even the Bible says (and I might be paraphrasing it) that 'you really cannot be a prophet in your own country.' You always get somebody from the outside to be the 'prophet.' And everything he knows, he comes here and asks you the question, and you tell him what the answer is! So now, he's the prophet! He has all this expertise! I never believed in it before, and I don't believe in it now!

I am talking about the expertise within your own country. Let's make sure that we use it. Let's make sure not to go out there and get this consultant who in most cases knows nothing about us, but you want to listen to his advice. I am talking about the crossroad. I am not an alarmist. I am talking about the crossroad that I see for the financial industry and the signal we are sending in tourism on this particular motion. That's what I am talking about!

Mr. Speaker, I will make this comment again. I believe that I know as much, if not more, than many of the people in this country about the Government and the development of this country: where we come from and where I believe we are headed. And we have done all of this together. We haven't isolated anybody in the past, we haven't caused any loss of confidence, we haven't disrupted any process of negotiations with the Government, we haven't caused anyone to [wonder] 'What are they trying to do to me?' They milk all this money out of the cow and have agreed to it, and here we come now with another proposal where we are going to limit the land that is available to a five-star operation.

Some Member remarked earlier "It's not just a hotel; it's a resort." It is a five-star resort and it must have, in order to qualify for the five-star, all of these ingredients otherwise you don't get that designation by Triple A or anyone else who does it. Let me say that my belief is that the Ritz-Carlton is but another step towards sustainable economic development which generally speaking is one of the key items in our survival.

I realise that not everybody in this House will agree with what I say. And far [be it] from me to use any scare tactic. I was making my comment on the basis that I was here when this development started. I was here when Lynden Pindling made the remarks in the early 1970s in the Bahamas. I was here when the samsonite suitcases came down with all the files. I was here when the cash came along too. I was here when we only had three banks in the Cayman Islands. Where did we come from? How did we get there? By sending the right signals. By creating the environment in this country that attracted investment.

Honourable Members, let us not depart from it. I know we have seen a lot of activity. We look around the Caribbean and at one time Barbados was the Great Britain of the Caribbean with all of its hoo-ha, money and image. Jamaica was one of the well-respected countries in this hemisphere. Trinidad was one of the countries with perhaps the most money in this Caribbean as a country. Many of us who have been there have seen the pitch lake—we have seen the oil fields. Today are they in a prosperous position and providing for generations in the future to have opportunities to find jobs? Maybe we have overdone it.

But you know, you have to provide, like the old people say 'for the rainy day.' The rainy day gonna come. And you have to ensure that there is enough employment to take care of your people. It is like a motor car: When you stop and you leave it too long, when you go to crank it up it doesn't start any more. When you stop development, when you give signals that you are going to slow down development... I saw that happen! I have seen it happen! I know that the recessions in the United States, Europe and elsewhere, they say that when they have a cold we get pneumonia. I believe it's true.

When you haven't prepared your country to deal with that recession, when you have taken steps to bring it upon yourself, that can happen too. All these initiatives that I have been talking about, part of it. . . do you ever notice how they single out the Cayman Islands? Every time they open their mouths-- Cayman Islands! Cayman Islands because we are the fifth largest banking centre in the world! We are the top of the heap! And some people would say, 'This little dot on the map? How could be?' It is because we have created the environment of doing business in this country because we have delivered the service professionally to the persons who have come to the Cayman Islands to do business—in the financial industry, the tourism industry.

When you think about what is going on around us... and for those of us who have been paying close attention we see the competitor oiling his engine. We see the Bahamas that attracted the Atlantis Hotel . . . Do you know how much money they spent just to make sure that they provided what the developer wanted to spend? Somewhere in the order of $20 million.

We see, as we watch from time to time this little bit happen, the next little bit happen, and the next little bit happen. The relations between Cuba and the United States is slowly being eroded. Tell me when did you see Cuba on the television until now? Tell me when did you hear about US reporters going to Cuba until now? Tell me when you have seen or heard about the amount of money that is moving into Cuba -- Varadero Beach in particular? And the superclubs and the others—the Europeans and the Canadians and the four, and five-star hotels being developed there. Tell me whether they are going to be competitors or not.

Let us not go to sleep. Let us not become complacent. Let us not bury our heads in the sand. One day— just like the day we woke up and turned on the television or listened to the radio— you remember how the Berlin Wall came down? You didn't expect it, did you? It happened though, it happened! That day we are going to be in hot water—I say HOT water!—to attract investment from the United States and other countries—because the rate of return in Cuba (and I have some knowledge of cost benefit analysis on a project)... will be more attractive than it is here in the Cayman Islands.

If we do not secure and prepare for that day, especially when a five-star hotel comes along which is in line with everything we are doing, all the people we are trying to attract to the Cayman Islands, and the introduction of that customer is the customer that has money to buy condominiums, and to invest in this country.

So it seems to me that we should not take any action that causes us not to have this project. Particularly since the scientist said—let me call him a scientist rather than a specialist -- you should preserve the storm buffer of red mangrove and the three hundred whatever it is, and the developer is saying that he is in agreement to do that. What are we fighting over? The terrestrial vegetation?

I see a lot of coconut trees and other trees growing all around the place. Are we going to fight over that? Are we going to really fight over 134 acres? When the wetlands, which I think most scientists say are key to the rainfall in Cayman... Why do we not take the decision that Government (not just this side, that side too) will protect from now until eternity [8,800] acres of wetlands—most of it virgin -- realising that when we take that decision we have to compensate the landowner. But we fight over these little things rather than looking at the big picture and saying 'Well, we can be defensive' Why not be proactive and say the concerns of the community--if we are listening carefully--are that the wetlands in this country must be preserved. Let us take the decision to preserve the 8,800 acres. Then when we look at a map of the Cayman Islands we know that this area is untouchable.

As I said before, provided we are in agreement to compensate the owners, they will have my vote. I believe that is a more sensible approach than fighting over 134 acres along Seven Mile Beach where the buffer which the scientists say should be protected, is agreed to by the developer and has been left.

Mr. Speaker, I believe it is time for me to close. I will do so by saying to all Honourable Members and the listening public that Government does have a commitment to protect—for generations to come—the wetlands, because they are certainly a significant part of Grand Cayman. I will sit on that note.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause) Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause) I am not going to wait much longer, so if any other Member wishes to speak please make an attempt.

The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: I know that you had set a time for taking the break, but given the fact that the Minister has just spoken and there is some information that a few of us would like to elicit from him, perhaps, if you don't mind, we could take a short break now and get that information; then we can proceed.

The Speaker: If that is the wish of the House that is fine with me. We shall suspend for 15 minutes. But let us try to keep it within the 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 6.00 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 6.43 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Debate continues on Private Member's Motion No. 17/98. Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause) The First Elected Member for George Town.

AMENDMENT TO PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 17/98

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I rise to propose some amendments. In accordance with the provisions of Standing Order 25(1) and (2), I, the First Elected Member for George Town, seek to move an amendment to Private Member's Motion No. 17/98 entitled Proposed Ritz Carlton Hotel – West Bay Road.

As you are quite aware, the normal time has not passed. I crave your indulgence to allow us to suspend the necessary Standing Orders so that I may move ahead.

The Speaker: You may proceed.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: The amendments read as follows:

“By deleting the second, third and fourth resolve sections of the Motion and by substituting therefor the following:

“BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the entities be granted permission to construct a hotel on Block 12C, Parcel 11, as well as that portion of Block 12C, Parcel 215, which is required to allow completion of the approved plans for the Ritz Carlton Hotel, (i.e., the portion of Block 12C, Parcel 215, which lies between the proposed by-pass road and the existing West Bay Road);

“AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED THAT that portion of Block 12C, Parcel 215, be combined with Parcel 216 and Parcel 11 to allow for the entire hotel to be sited on one parcel;

“AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED THAT Government re-negotiate with the entities the terms of the extended lease for the new combined parcel;

“AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED THAT Government also negotiate with the entities the possibility of the existing lease on the remaining portion of Block 12C, Parcel 215, reverting to the Crown;

“AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED THAT the terms of reference for all of these negotiations be established and agreed upon by a majority of the Members of the Legislative Assembly.”

The Speaker: Seconder?

Mr. Roy Boddén: I beg to second the motion.

The Speaker: The amendment has been duly moved and seconded. The question is that Private Member's Motion No. 17/98 be amended. Does the proposer wish to speak to it? The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you.

First of all, let me explain the reasoning behind these proposed amendments. And let me make it very clear that the proposed amendments are in no way intended to either take away or pervert the intention of the original motion and/or the mover or seconder.

What has really happened is that the original motion as it has come, was raised and brought to this House out of certain concerns. This having happened, Mr. Speaker, there are some of us who are not as quick to gather information and get around to talk to people and hear concerns raised, and this is actually after the fact. Now, I will go down the various proposed amendments and I will do the best that I can to explain the reasoning behind these proposed amendments.

If we look at the proposed project for the entire facilities which are being proposed for the Ritz-Carlton Hotel to be allowed to be built, we realise that there is some difficulty with all of these facilities being accommodated on the approximately five acres which encompass parcel 11, the site of the former Holiday Inn. So if we take it step by step and we intend to try to make some reasonable compromise that would allow the project to go ahead, then I think that issue needs to be addressed. Thus the reason for the first resolve section which is asking for the portion of the parcel 215 which is needed to complete all of the facilities to be taken off and allowed to be combined with parcel 11. The reason we have added parcel 216 is simply because that little strip of land would encompass part and parcel of what is required to complete the facilities.

If we wanted to take the hard-line and say that we should allow just the hotel and its facilities, and we were even to go to the point where we said, let us not allow the combination of condominiums to be built on the two wings that are proposed to be built on the beach side, it is obvious from the plans that the five acres could nowhere near accommodate all of the other facilities, the central facilities and the conference centre. So, basically, what we are saying is that if we are going to give the project a reasonable chance we, first of all, need to address that issue and that is the reasoning behind the first resolve section.

Mr. Speaker, there are many ways to look at the project and as one former speaker said, everyone will have his opinion. I guess it is for us all to air those opinions and if it is possible come up with something reasonable which will make sense economically and might also serve the best interest of the country down the line.

The next resolve section which allows for the combination is being proposed simply because the view is that if all three parcels, that is parcel 11 and the portion required from parcel 215 and the .68 acre parcel 216 are all combined then you will have one parcel and your entire hotel project and we could separate the other proposal from this.

The third resolve section as it reads: “AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED THAT Government re-negotiate with the entities the terms of the extended lease for the new combined parcel; If you try to put forward a balanced argument and if we take the proposed condominiums, I guess it is realistic to say that the condominiums might not attract the buyers they might attract if the lease that remains is all that is left there. I think that is a big part of the developer's reasoning for the request for the extension which is where all of this emanated from in the Legislative Assembly. I think that if we want to allow these condominiums to be bought and sold then if we go that far with it we might need to be looking at the extension of the lease. Having said that, there are some very serious arguments and thoughts which need to be put forward which I really haven't heard aired by either side.

Mention was made of the original lease, which if memory serves me right, for the entire 606 acres was £100 per year. That was done in 1950. At that time I really wasn't around yet. [Inaudible remarks] (Yes, I'm that young!) I believe that at that time, based on how the land was looked at, £100 per year probably seemed to be a reasonable arrangement to go into.

I need to make this point here, Mr. Speaker. In 1950 whoever knew about it was quite content for that 606 acres to be leased for 99 years at £100 per year. Just shy of 50 years later, about half of the lease being gone, we look at the value today. I am sure that as usual, hindsight is 20/20 vision, but I am sure many of us are saying 'If we knew then what we know now, perhaps we would have tried to make a different arrangement.' That is why I can't really agree with what is being proposed for the extension of the lease. And that is why we are asking for those terms to be renegotiated.

Now two things have to happen here. Let me address the first one. The Minister for Tourism has said that Government has done what it thought was the best deal possible, given the circumstances in the negotiations. What we are looking at is $6 million to Government in two instalments and a commitment of $5 million or whatever the cost is to construct the bypass road which will go through the property on parcel 215. Just looking at it, that might seem to be a reasonable negotiation. But I hold the view that if we are going to extend that lease to 99 years again, we are going to be looking 50 years from now--just like the first 50 years have passed, with other people (than ourselves) being involved and looking at it.

Let us use the two positions: In 1950, £100 per year was fine. In 1998 for a smaller portion, but for a tremendously huge value compared to that value in 1950, we are talking $6 million and the cost of a section of a road. I contend that 50 years from now our children and more likely our grandchildren (possibly great grandchildren) will be looking at it in the same light that we are looking at the original lease and wondering if someone could not have seen into the future and made a better arrangement.

The reason we want to renegotiate is because we would like to see something where the benefits are on a continual basis, meaning no lump sums involved. But without being specific, some type of arrangement where when future generations are in our position they see something that is continuous (more in the line of the original lease arrangement but certainly much more realistic), meaning probably looking at an annual fee based on certain prerequisites.

I am not going to be too specific about this because I don't profess to know all about the project, certainly I did not have access to a lot of information that the Government had access to. But it is my belief that looking along those lines would be much more meaningful if it is deecided that the sacrifice should be made. Hence the request to renegotiate.

It has been mentioned on a couple of occasions, and perhaps now is as good as any time for me to mention it. I understand how our Government works. I understand what responsibilities Executive Council has, what responsibilities we regular Members have. And notwithstanding the fact that there has been a certain way of doing business that the Government is known for, notwithstanding the fact that in previous times that is the way business was done, I really have to look the Government squarely in the eye and say that perhaps we would not be where we are today with this project, had the Government taken the time out to apprise people of exactly what was going on.

When the documents were tabled, they were simply tabled-- and I won't even bother to get the Hansards because what was said may as well not have been said. What that has caused is, as information keeps dribbling out, you get various sectors in the community raising their own alarm. Everybody goes trying to get some information, people do the best they can to get information, and what you find is people like us feeling like we didn't get a fair shot at being representatives of the people. It certainly cannot be the view today that Government was elected to govern and what the Government decides is well done. Whether that was the intention or not, that is the way it has come across to us.

If the motion were not moved, everything would have gone the way the Government has proposed, the time would have expired, the proposed lease arrangements would have gone ahead and that would have been the end of it. You would have had a bitter public, as many of them are now, but it would all have been over and when people came to the rest of us what would we tell them except the truth. Then we appear to be impotent. We appear not to matter. But, of course, we hear, 'But I voted for you. What are you telling me? You're talking foolishness.' Regardless of what the Government says I believe that from that point of view the situation was totally mishandled. In another forum I would describe it more aptly, but I am not allowed to use those words in here so I have to say it was mishandled.

Having said that, I believe that regardless of how they expound from here on in about the benefits of the project that it is incumbent upon Government to recognise the way this was done, and if nothing more, to allow the representatives of the people to participate in certain areas so that we, as representatives, who are held responsible by the people can act out that responsibility. This did not take place this time.

If it were a few years ago, and I am not just bringing politics into play here, I am saying it the way I know it, what you would have had is of the 15 elected representatives, 12 of them would have been meeting regularly about this project, totally informed about the project, coming to a decision about the project and that would have been that. You might have had three of us out on the wing trying to grab, but three don't really matter. That did not happen this time because there were no 12 to get together.

The first I heard any word about this project was when this bunch of documents was tabled on the last day of the last sitting in June, whatever date that was. I think it is a crying shame that Government would decide to treat the situation like this, regardless of how hard it seemed, as they are saying now, that they worked to get the best deal possible for the country.

I wonder, sometimes, how it feels to continually make the same mistake. Supposedly of a certain calibre of intelligence being told about it over and over in different ways, sometimes nicely, sometimes with a bit of acrimony, sometimes actually with tempers flaring, but it never fails—tomorrow the same thing is going to happen.

And then after the hue and the cry they wonder why people are like this. And you know what? I will tell you. Regardless of how well intended it was, when the Minister for Tourism gets up, and I take his word for it, totally genuine, and talks about how worrisome it is about the message that is being sent internationally by the original motion, I want to ask him and his colleagues what does he expect when there is an uninformed legislature who knows nothing about what you all know. You cannot assume that because we look diligent and smart that we know what you know. You don't take the time out to say, 'Hey, listen fellows, this is how this is. This is why we believe this should fly.' And it's a game of cat and mouse. Might not be the intention, but it certainly appears to be that way-- it comes across that way. So to say that the wrong message is being sent (and I am serious here), I want to know who is to blame. Is it the person bringing the motion?

Now, if you all had come and said, 'This is it. We are spreading it out on the table. This is the way it is. This is what they want, this is what we feel is best, these are the compromises we have to make. We know the people are going to say this, but we are thinking of doing it like this' and ya, ya, ya, and you got a motion like this and you got everyone getting cantankerous then I can understand somebody saying that. But the missing link is that that was not done. So now, after the fact, they come to sell the project.

Let me tell you what has gone wrong with that. With the best of reasoning, with the greatest mind, with the best orator (because we could lend you the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town if it were just to do that) already because of perception the minds of the people have been poisoned. To come now to make redress and to say all the things that are being said, when, in fact, the reasonable people in this country might well have listened with keen ears, a lot of them are unfortunately not going to want to hear it now. And that is just the way the human being is. Enough said about that for now.

As we go down the resolve sections of the motion, the second to the last resolve section reads: "AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED THAT Government also negotiate with the entities the possibility of the existing lease on the remaining portion of Block 12C, Parcel 215, reverting to the Crown". I know that when Government read that one they said, 'He is not only big, but he's mad.' I will explain that to the best of my ability too.

It has been touted that this is not a hotel this is a resort, and there are certain prerequisites to be met if it is going to be a five-star resort. Cool! Understood! It has also been said that because there is the retention of the 300 foot buffer zone on the North Sound end of the project, that that satisfies the environmental concerns because the Minister for Tourism also read from a document from the Department of the Environment about the red mangroves. My understanding from what he read is that he was proving a point about the red mangroves. While he addressed the issue of the 300 foot buffer zone being retained, and that being environmentally conscious, there are a few issues which no one has spoken about which I am going to talk about, hence this resolve section.

First of all, if the document he read from was taken and used to argue against what the project is calling for, you could read from a section (and it is not very long) which says (and I hope I pronounce some of these things correctly): "To ensure appropriate hydraulic conditions for resofora [that's the red mangroves] it is recommended that at least part of the mixed community of red, black, and white mangroves behind the red mangrove fringe be retained also since this zone is very variable in width around the sound [the 'sound' meaning the North Sound] it is recommended that a minimum belt of mangrove 300 metres deep be retained. [That is 1,000 feet.]"

So while I know legally they can only be called upon to retain the 300 foot buffer zone, if you are going to look at these recommendations and pay credence to them, then we also have to say if that is what you have to retain, and by roughly trying to measure it there seems to be between eight hundred and nine hundred feet (800-900 ft) of that type of area there, then, first of all, all of that needs to be retained. I am just following this document.

Now the second one is the one that is ticklish. But when we look at the second part of the project between the proposed bypass and the North Sound, there are waterways, there are individual family lots, there is a nine hole golf course, and there are several areas for the villas, as they are termed. I think it was somewhere in the Planning approval that it was discussed about fill for the project.

I believe a combination of sources was outlined whereby the project was going to get some 550,000 cubic yards of fill. Three hundred thousand cubic yards of that, if I am correct (It certainly was no less), were to be obtained from Caymarl.

Now, Caymarl's only source of fill is dredging. If I remember correctly, the last renewal and permission granted for Caymarl (which was not a new permission, but just a renewal of an existing permission) was for some 274,000 cubic yards of fill to be dredged. And they are dredging that now. I am not 100% sure of the process, but I assume they are also selling that now. I am pretty confident that they are not stockpiling that to almost meet that need.

Caymarl is not important to the argument here, it just so happens this is what transpired. There were some other sources too. But I have never seen a project of that nature where when asked what is needed in the line of fill (outside of what they were going to create from within the project), give an accurate answer. I have never seen it yet. And I don't, at this point in time, wish to even begin to believe that we will get an accurate answer from this one. That is not meaning that people are ill-intended, it just means that's the way life is. How much is this car going to cost? Well, around $6,000. By the time you add this and that you pay $8,500. That kind of thing.

This project, to me, although it is a slight assumption at this time-- but I don't think I am far off-- this project means dredging.

Mr. Roy Bodden: True! True! True!

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Anybody who wants to counter this with fact can do so. But from where I stand, that is what the whole picture is telling me—that this part of the project, from between the bypass road to the North Sound is going to require dredging.

Do you see how these things work? When you get to a certain point you find that certain things are required. But you have crossed the line and you can't say no then. We really don't know that. Just like the Minister for Tourism would say, 'I'm not an alarmist either.' But I believe there is merit to what I am saying now. I honestly believe that.

We have had several debates about dredging in the North Sound. Several of us on this side (including myself), have taken the position that we are not going to participate in any decision-making process to allow any more dredging in the North Sound until there is a proper impact study done-- one which is objective, professional, and which gives us something to work from rather than what our gut tells us-- because many times our gut will tell us what we want to hear at that given time.

So there is a problem with the project in that light. That is why we are asking:

Mr. Speaker, I mentioned a few reasons why we are investigating that possibility. I know that the counter to that is going to be what has been said before-- that the resort will not be a five-star resort until they have the golf course. When I look at the brief synopsis of the requirements for a five-star resort, I believe that they can adequately be met with what we are proposing for them to be allowed to do, except a golf element.

So, admittedly, there is a problem. Right now at this time I must admit that I don't have the answer to that problem. But what I do know is that to solve that problem, is creating some other problems. I think we need to talk about that to decide which problem is the lesser problem, and which one we need to satisfy. If the Government notices, the resolve section says, that they negotiate the possibility.

I also understand that negotiating the possibility of the existing lease means that you have to create a value for that lease on the remaining portion of parcel 215. And most certainly you will have to take all the figures and shift them around because they are going to be placed differently from what is proposed to us now. We don't have a problem with that.

But the contention here is that while it may look good at this time to be talking about $6 million and a built road, if we really look for the future (as the Minister for Tourism has said) of our children, the price that we are paying – is it the right price? I must admit that he brought some sound economic arguments to the table. And I am not actually out of focus with many of them, but his job at that time was to sell the project. I won't address all of those areas right now because that will come later.

Look at what is going to happen when we make certain decisions. We must be aware of those things and not get caught when it has to happen and smile and say, 'Well, can't do anything about it now.' We want to think about it before we get to that point.

The last resolve section reads: “AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED THAT the terms of reference for all of these negotiations be established and agreed upon by a majority of the Members of the Legislative Assembly.” That is to allow all of us to throw our cards on the table to be in the same vein as the Minister for Tourism talked about, to work together to try to bring about the best result. I want the Government to understand that (and I am serious now) I don't have any deals to cut with anyone. I don't have to deal with that kind of stuff. I have a responsibility as one of the 15 representatives of the people of this country. I have a responsibility to hear what people's views are; I also have a responsibility to listen to whatever the Government is saying that makes sense. I don't have a problem with that. But my ultimate responsibility is to do, given any circumstance, what I believe with the soundest judgment, to be in the best interests of the people of this country.

You will hear lots about this one, that one, and the next one! Yeah, you have to listen to all that! But when it comes down to the wire (just as I said), all of us had to do the same thing. While it is not a requirement, legally I believe that if the representations of the people are to be listened to, then each and every Member of this Legislative Assembly should have the right to give input into the end result of this project.

I am concentrating on the Minister for Tourism (because he just spoke, so I remember what he said better). He said, quite rightly, that in instances like this we need to work together. I don't have a problem doing that. But Government must understand that it has to give us that opportunity. And they have not given us that opportunity thus far. They haven't!

I will tell the Government something else. I understand some of the tremendous economic benefits that can be derived by this project becoming a reality. I understand that. But we have to temper all of those things with the understanding and the wishes of the people of the country. I am not suggesting that while the Government takes a position—with all the good will in the world for the country—that it means that if ‘Mr. Righteous me’ says they are talking foolishness they must listen to me and not do what they have to do.

I am not saying that, but I firmly believe that there are enough vibes out there asking for a re-think. Some people have problems with any extension of the lease, some have problems with anything being done. Some people have problems with ‘touching’ any of the mangroves, some don’t have any problem at all. It is our responsibility to take all of those concerns in to look at the reality of the entire situation, respecting the fact that there are benefits. And the Minister has actually pointed out some real benefits; I quite readily agree to that.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Not too much!

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: No, not too much. I know that! But at the same time, even while trying to balance his argument, the Minister and I both know that he has his job to do and I respect that.

But I think the Government needs to understand that the other representatives have their jobs to do also. And no one, meaning no one, needs to get to the point where in a situation like this we have to be tearing at each other’s throats. That is not going to get us anywhere. The Minister has said quite rightly that he believes that each and every one of us means well for the country. But tempered along with that, and what must accompany that, is the ability to balance all the pros and cons and not just take a position because you feel obligated to take a position. That is another serious one.

I will close my opening arguments by saying to the Government that the entire intention of these amendments is a simple attempt to arrive at a reasonable solution which will allow the project as far as possible, but at the same time will allow the vast majority of the people of this country to see themselves in a situation where what is being done is also with their interests, and the interests of future generations, at heart.

Mr. Speaker, that is not all, but I think that is sufficient at this point in time to hear what the Government has to say about the proposals and I am sure other Members who are not on the Government Bench will also bring arguments forward.

Again: We believe that as far as possible this is to our ability the best possible compromise where we can satisfy all ends. Both sides of the coin have arguments. There are very few times anymore where it is just black and white—there’s a lot of grey. Maybe all of us are partially responsible for muddying those waters, but regardless, that’s what exists.

So we will wait to hear what other arguments are thrown forward, and while we respect the fact that perhaps the amendments are not worded perfectly, and perhaps others may have other ideas, we are certainly not averse to mending these amendments if we can come to some arrangement where we can move forward and deal with the project in a sensible fashion, Thank you.

The Speaker: The floor is open to debate on the amendments to Private Member’s Motion No. 17/98. Does any other Member wish to speak to the amendments to the motion? (pause) Does any other Member wish to speak? (pause) Does any other Member wish to speak to the amendments to the motion? (pause)

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Under Standing Order 38 I respectfully beg to move that the question be now put.

The Speaker: The question is that the amendment to Private Member’s Motion No. 17/98 be accepted. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES and NOES.

The Speaker: I would say the Noes have it.

AMENDMENT TO PRIVATE MEMBER’S MOTION NO. 17/98 FAILED.

The Speaker: We go back to the debate on Private Member’s Motion No. 17/98. Does any other Member wish to speak to that? (pause) The floor is open to the substantive motion. The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Mr. Speaker, this Government never, ever . . . I really thought that we had a little thing going there. But they never cease to amaze me. The Minister responsible for the subject is not here. So, from the lawyer’s point of view that is the first excuse—the Government had nobody to reply. But I have known on occasions when to them it mattered – when the Leader of Government Business, himself, if he had to reply for all of them, he would certainly do so. But I know what happened—

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I would just like to take a point of order here. The reason that motion was put to the vote was because the seconder moved a closure motion and it went to the vote. And therefore, it is misleading to try to blame either the Minister for Agriculture, or myself that the motion failed. When you move a closure motion, you should know you have the votes to carry it.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order. He doesn’t have a point of order. You gave ample time, sir, you called on Honourable Members, once, twice, three times. It was after that, that I got up to move the closure motion. The Government had ample time to reply and my colleague, the First Elected Member for George Town, is right.

The Speaker: The question is that the closure motion was put, the amendment failed. Let’s please get on with the debate.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, sir, with the greatest of respect . . . and we are not losing it. Don't worry about it. The Minister for Education just got up on what he called a point of order. Would you please rule? He either has one, or he does not.

The Speaker: That was a point of elucidation. It was not a point of order. I followed the standing rules of procedure. That's it. Go ahead.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Regardless of what the Minister says, I have known on many occasions when he would have been quite prepared, if he could have, to reply five times for himself and the other four. The Government had ample time to reply to this motion. All they are doing now is hoping and praying that it will hurry up and finish so they can get on to do what they want to do.

The motion for the amendments is over, but they are relevant to the debate which is now going to follow. And the few minutes left this evening to deal with the motion itself, I promise you, sir, and them, that I am not going to waste my time to deal with it in anything that is sensible because right now I run a serious risk. So, I am going to try to get light for a few minutes. But tomorrow is another day, and so is Wednesday!

We are now in a position where we have to compare the fact that we brought these amendments to try to be reasonable and the fact that they have failed. And we go back to the original motion.

Now, to compare what we did with the amendments and the original motion is not what I think the whole thing is all about. But in regard to specific dealings, and specific ways of handling the affairs of the country with this project up to the point where we are now, leaves a lot of questions to be asked. Of course, I am not going to give them the privilege this evening of having tomorrow to try to get the answers by asking those questions, because never can you try to be reasonable... And I am not asking for everything to go my way all the time... but never can you try to be reasonable with these people and you even get half an ounce of 'give.'

I am going to tell the Government something: Because they knew that they had the numbers with this one, they once again have totally disregarded the concerns of the people who elect them and others. Time will tell. Frankly speaking, I am almost tempted to say that it doesn't matter to me, but it does, because I am not here for the joyride.

Mr. Speaker, when you really look at it, sometimes you want to say some choice things, but you resist the temptation. But this Government is a tempting Government, I will tell you that. To believe that something as important as this—and let's go through exactly what has happened publicly in regard to this project with the Government trying to justify their decision.

The documents were tabled on the last day of the June meeting. I am told--to be exact, July 17--a few minutes after 6.00 PM, they were presented by the Minister for Agriculture. As I said before, I didn't even check the Hansards to see what was said because it was really not worth it—nothing was said! So, they gave us a whole pile of documents-- the first time we are hearing about the project officially from the Government. Time passes. The Fourth Elected Member for George Town brings the motion, which was seconded by the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, and regardless of the content of the motion, and/or the amendments we tried to put forward, what has happened thus far is again the Minister for Agriculture in his supposed reply for the Government to the motion . . . I guess as the Minister for Education so aptly put it, he did his best. [Members' laughter]

Nevertheless, having done his best to reply for Government, the Minister for Tourism comes along and tries to give us a good balanced argument. He does his best to sell the project, but, of course, in my view it was too little too late.

Now, the only thing I can promise them is that on Wednesday morning when I come here, sir, I am going to ask some questions that are funny little questions. I will not be out of order, sir, don't worry about that. But I am issuing fair warning to the Minister for Education, especially, to take home his Standing Orders as well as he thinks he knows them, put them in one of those big old bags he has. Carry them home and read them carefully because for the sake of my country the truth is going to be known. And I think the Minister knows by now that I don't often get up to say anything that I can't back up. Perhaps I will start with some questions to him rather than some statements. Maybe he will get a chance to refute them.

As is obvious, Mr. Speaker, I am just killing time. And I think it is probably appropriate right now to close—because I am not going to lose my chance—but I am not going to waste the time tonight on it. So, if the good Minister and his Government are willing, perhaps we can take the adjournment until Wednesday morning. If not, I will continue as long as they wish.

The Speaker: I will entertain a motion for the adjournment.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Boddin: Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until Wednesday at 10.00 AM.

The Speaker: The question is that this Honourable House do now adjourn until 10.00 AM on Wednesday. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AT 7.50 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM WEDNESDAY, 30 SEPTEMBER, 1998.

WEDNESDAY
10.20 AM

[Prayers read by the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture]

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Item 2 on today's Order Paper, Reading by the Speaker of Messages and Announcements.

READING BY THE SPEAKER OF
MESSAGES AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

The Speaker: I have received apologies for late attendance from the Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport. He will be arriving later in this sitting.

Item 3, Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. Question 167 standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION 167

No. 167: Miss Heather Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works to provide: (a) a list of roads that were identified for repairs during the recent road works tour throughout the district of Bodden Town; and (b) to say what roads have been repaired to date.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: (a) Roads that were identified for repair are as follows:

- Cowpen Lane - realignment
- Elizabeth Street
- Belford Estates
- Old Yard Lane
- Road off Northward Road (Stuart Connolly)
- Beach Bay Road
- Orchid Avenue
- Butterfly Circle – drainage
- Eden Crescent
- Birch Tree Crescent
- Road to Kent Rankine/Marshall Levy subdivisions.

Roads repaired to date in 1998 are as follows:

- Elizabeth Street – baseworks completed in one section of subdivision
- Road to Kent Rankine/Marshall Levy subdivision—complete
- Road off main road (Cleveland Carter)—complete.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Miss Heather Bodden: I would like to thank the Honourable Minister for providing these answers. I would just ask him to add Lemon Road to that list of roads that are identified.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Can the Honourable Minister say what other roadwork tours have taken place?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: We have circulated from the Ministry memos inviting road visits but unfortunately the timeframe was pretty bad because I think a lot of people were off the island but the fact remains that we have just circulated another letter and we are trying to do it before we go into budget for next year.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say if any roads which were repaired were not on the list of those identified for repairs?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: That could be possible because we have been doing a lot of repairs, especially on the shoulders of the roads, especially in the area of Bodden Town.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say if it is still Government's policy to repair only those roads which have been gazetted as public roads?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: As the Member well knows, when a Member from a constituency calls and requests that we do some work, we have always tried to accommodate those persons living on the road. So I say that that policy should remain in place.

The Speaker: The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Can the Honourable Minister say if on this visit the Bodden Town representatives identified the main road from Pease Bay through Breakers onto the intersection of Frank Sound as a road that required urgent repair?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: I would say yes to that because definitely we have looked at that road many times, and as a matter of fact we have done as much as we could through maintenance to try to keep especially the shoulders of it going. And as soon as funds are available, definitely.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: I thank the Honourable Minister for that reply, but I think that the Government needs to make a decision to deal with that road as a priority. With the heavy equipment and heavy trucks travelling that road it is now in a deplorable condition and whatever it needs to take, whether it means bringing supplementary funds to this Parliament I believe it is now a priority.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries we will move on to question 168, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION 168

No. 168: Mr. Linford A. Pierson asked the Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works. to state Government's policy regarding the importation and/or breeding of dangerous attack dogs such as the Pit Bulls and Rotweillers.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Breeds of dogs, which are considered to be dangerous, are prohibited from entry into the Cayman Islands. There are no measures currently in place to prevent the breeding of those dogs that already exist in the Islands.

Background

1. Several breeds of dogs have been identified as dangerous and have been prohibited from entry. These breeds are: Mallanois, Japanese Tosa, Fila Brasileiro, Rotweiller, Chinese Shar-Pei, [and let me say, Mr. Speaker, that if some of these names are not pronounced the way they should be, I am sorry about that, but I have to read what's here] Dogo Argentino, Pit Bull Terrier, Staffordshire Terrier, Japanese Akita and all members of the Mastiff breed, including the Neapolitan Mastiff, the Bull Mastiff and the English Mastiff.

2. Many of these have been bred over the years as fighting dogs and, as such, have an innate aggressiveness that can make them unpredictable. These dogs can inflict serious injury.

3. Two breeds, the Japanese Akita and the Chinese Shar-Pei have recently been added to the list.

4. All applications for the importation of these breeds are immediately refused.

5. The Ministry, through the Department of Agriculture, is considering mandatory spaying and neutering of those dangerous breeds of dogs that are already in the Islands in order to prevent further breeding.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Thank you. I have two or three supplementaries on this question. The first one is in regard to the question that no measures are currently in place to prevent the breeding of those dogs that already exist in the Islands. Can the Honourable Minister say whether any appropriate measures are being considered?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Definitely we have looked at several things and, yes, we will be bringing amendments to deal with it.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

My second supplementary has to do with protection of the public, and I wonder if the Honourable Minister can say what action, if any, is being taken by the police to patrol public beaches and/or other public areas to ensure that the public is protected from these animals.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Definitely the Department of Agriculture has been working closely with the police and especially when we have reports of dogs that are roaming in various areas. We have tried our best, we have put traps and we have been out there and tried our best to control it.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: On that particular answer, Mr. Speaker, I wonder if the Honourable Minister is in a position to say (other than sort of the curative side of it) if any preventative measures are being taken on sort of a regular patrol of these areas rather than the police going there after an injury has occurred?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: I think it was last year's budget where we appropriated funds for a truck which we use to pick up dogs such as this. And, yes, the Department has been doing as much as it can to patrol areas, and when we see dogs, we collect them.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Can the Honourable Minister say what action is being taken by Government to attempt to eliminate these dangerous animals from the Cayman Islands?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: As I pointed out in the original [answer], we are taking all measures to try to prevent the breeding. We have been collecting dogs when we find them in the wild and we are trying to work along with the Humane Society to ensure that we have this problem eradicated.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Can the Honourable Minister say what the Government's policy is towards those dogs and their owners to which complaints have been laid of the dogs biting persons and particularly minors?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Whenever there's a case like that it is referred to the police and it's a police matter.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, we will move on to question 169, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 169

No. 169: Miss Heather Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation how effective was the first ever Social Services Department's summer programme, under the guidance of the Community Development Unit, which was held from 3rd - 14th August in the district of Bodden Town.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

For the information of the Honourable House, this Social Services summer programme was undertaken previous to the one starting in Bodden Town -- this is actually the first one in Bodden Town.

The summer programme in Bodden Town was very effective. It catered to approximately 86 young people between the ages of five to fourteen years in a safe, structured and caring environment.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Miss Heather Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I think this was an excellent programme put in place over the summer for the children of Bodden Town. Can the Honourable Minister say if this programme will be repeated next year?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: God willing, yes, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W McKeeva Bush: In connection with the last question as to whether a programme will be done in Bodden Town next year, Can the Honourable Minister say whether the ones that were held in West Bay and other districts will also have the benefit of this continuing programme?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, it will be extended to all of the districts.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister share with the House the objectives of this programme? And also, can the Honourable Minister say whether this programme is such that follow-ups need to be designed or is it strictly a programme designed and implemented in the summer?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Just to give an idea of some of the things that occurred at the camps: Each day began with devotions and the national song. There were arts and crafts, music, drama, indoor and outdoor games, field trips to the beach, Pedro Castle, the caves, Turtle Farm, the Museum. [Representatives from] the Department of Tourism spoke on tourism and its importance to Cayman. Luncheon snacks were provided daily. Emphasis was placed on activities where children and parents could see the benefits of the children's efforts in areas such as social skills and interpersonal behaviour.

Traditionally, the churches and other community groups arrange their Vacation Bible School in the month of July. Social Services decided to extend this into August. And from this we are seeing the need to provide classes and other information on parenting. Thank you.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Can the Honourable Minister say if an invitation was extended to the two smaller eastern districts to participate in this summer programme? Or were there individual programmes for each district?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Efforts were made by the Community Development Officer in East End and North Side to engage some community members into helping to run a camp, but this did not prove to be successful. However, there were six children from North Side that did attend the camp at East End and as we have promised, God willing, next year we will have a specific Community Development Officer for North Side who will deal with this and make sure that North Side has what all the other districts have.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, we will move to question number 170, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 170

No. 170: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation which entity will bear the cost of the extension of the construction contract on the new George Town Hospital.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: The cost of the extension of the construction contract will be borne by the contingency fund that was set up in the contract at the start of the construction to cover such eventualities. If it is determined that any or all of the extension was as a result of the contractor's actions, the cost will be borne by the contractor.

SUPPLEMENTARY

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Can the Honourable Minister say how much money is in this contingency fund?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: A decision was taken earlier on to increase that contingency from 2.5[%] to 10% which means that that contingency for this would be approximately $2.88 million.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries that concludes Question Time for this morning. Item 4 on today's Order Paper is: Other Business, Private Members' Motions. Private Member's Motion No. 17/98 Proposed Ritz-Carlton Project on West Bay Road. Debate continuing thereon. The First Elected Member for George Town, continuing.

OTHER BUSINESS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 17/98

PROPOSED RITZ-CARLTON PROJECT ON WEST BAY ROAD

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you.

Before I start this morning with my contribution, with your permission I would just like to read a letter to the Editor of the Caymanian Compass in today's newspaper which I think is very relevant to the debate.

The Speaker: Go ahead.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: The letter is entitled: "The Importance of Wetlands." And the reader writes:

"Please allow me space in your newspaper to remind His Excellency the Governor, and the people of the Cayman Islands, of a few remarks Mr. Owen made in his Earth Day Message published in your paper on Friday, 24 April, 1998.

"The Wetlands are the ecological heart of Grand Cayman. The nutrients the mangroves produce form the base of a complex food chain. The entire living system of the North Sound in Grand Cayman is inextricably linked to the mangroves and would collapse if they were destroyed. The North Sound itself plays a vital role in our tourism industry. It is a key tourism attraction, offering Stingray City, the coral reefs and a wide variety of marine life. It is important that the Central Mangrove is at the heart of our environmental policy." Just to repeat that sentence, "It is important that the Central Mangrove is at the heart of our environmental policy." The Governor goes on.

“The long-term protection of the mangroves is a fundamental requirement for the well being of future generations in the Cayman Islands. We can not expect the conservation of this resource to be the sole responsibility of any one person, body or institution. The National Trust and the Department of the Environment have led the way, however, it is up to each one of us individually and collectively as a nation, to ensure the protection of this most valuable resource.

“We must endeavour to create an awareness of the importance of the wetlands and play our part in ensuring that the laws and regulations enacted to protect them are upheld.

“This week and for the years to come, I urge all residents to become involved with their District National Trust or other groups whose concern is the protection of our islands. By doing so we will become more aware of how we should look after our environment.”

The writer then poses some questions.

“I ask Mr. Owen these questions: Five months after Earth Day 1998 are the mangroves still worth protecting? Are the mangroves still a vital resource? Is it still important for each of us to become more aware of how we should look after our environment? Is the long-term protection of the mangroves still fundamental for the well-being of future generations in the Cayman Islands?” The writer goes on to say—

“All I and many others want is for an independent Environmental Impact Study to be carried out before developments which will destroy large areas of mangrove such as the Ritz-Carlton project, be allowed to go ahead. If we don't know what the consequences of these developments will be, how can informed decisions be made? Why should future generations pay for our stupidity?”

Mr. Speaker, I chose to ask your permission to read that letter because I think that those sentiments are widespread throughout the Cayman Islands. I firmly believe that as we continue allowing development to take place in certain parts of the Cayman Islands, the concerns heighten because the damage increases.

If we look at some of the contents of that letter and compare them to the Government's position with this development we are talking about now (the Ritz-Carlton development), to be fair to all concerned, it is quite easy to understand the quandary. What we are basically faced with is the enticing situation of allowing certain large scale development to take place and the huge question mark as to whether the economic benefits in the long term outweigh the environmental price we pay.

One of the problems we really face if we take ourselves back and try to be objective is, when certain things happen with our environment and parts are destroyed ( I am no real expert, but I think by reading and hearing I have a good enough grasp to talk generally about it), there is nothing that man can do to replace what is lost. Planting trees back in certain areas does not restore what has been taken away; hence, the genuine concern by many of the people in this country. And what has happened is, because it appears that there is almost a blatant disregard sometimes for the safety of the environment, then people believe that in order for them to have any impact they too have to go overboard in the opposite direction to draw anyone's attention.

In this specific instance it is obvious to me that the Government--and simply because I have not had any communication in depth with them regarding the project--it seems to me that Government has not weighed the balance the way it should have. If it had, then, certainly its duty was to explain to the people of the country that it understood what prices were being paid, but that it summed up after doing its due diligence, that the benefits outweighed the price.

As I mentioned earlier, the Minister for Tourism in his contribution to the debate sold the Government's argument that it was more beneficial to allow the project to take place than not to. Again, as I said on Monday evening when I was talking about this, in my opinion it is too little too late when it comes to explaining the Government's position to the people.

Now, when we look at the way arrangements have been made with this project, one has to wonder seriously whether the Government was as objective as it should have been in its negotiations. I believe that what the country supposedly is going to get from a dollar point of view-- having allowed the project--is no where near what it should be getting if the powers that be have decided that the price is worth it.

I just want to draw a few references in regard to what the project will entail, the income from the project, and what Government is getting. For the extension of the lease on the three properties mentioned to carry the lease to 99 years again, starting from scratch, the Government is getting $6 million and the cost of the construction of the bypass road through parcel 215. The figure quoted for that is roughly $5 million depending upon what they find once construction of that road begins.

The other argument is that there are a lot of other indirect benefits, namely: stamp duty, land transfer tax, customs import duties, et cetera. But to me, in any line of negotiation those indirect benefits need not come into play to be counted as benefits for the country. The fact is, we don't have any direct taxation and our regime, as it is called, and our recurrent revenue are based on import duties, land transfer tax and such the like. So, to me, that doesn't come into play.

If we take the actual hotel which will be built and used out of the picture, we have for the developers three direct sources of income which are as follows: There are 72 condominiums, which are to be sold. The anticipated revenue from those condominiums is $201 million. There are a number of villas which when completed are to be sold; the anticipated revenue to the developers of those villas is approximately $510 million. There are 11 individual (I call them) house lots which are anticipated to give the developers $22 million-- that is, these lots are to be sold at $2 million a piece. So the revenue from these three sources is $733 million. That does not include the hotel which will be operational all the time. And these figures are from a spreadsheet that was passed out with the big bundle so I am not making anything up.

The comparison I wish to draw when we talk about re-negotiating a new lease and extending it to 99 years is, we are taking 148 acres of Crown land which the vast majority of is still under a head lease and has close to 50 years left on the lease (I am just rounding off). Basically, the country is being asked to increase that lease to another 50 years. So, notwithstanding that a lease exists, the reason this whole thing is in the Legislative Assembly is to seek approval for another 50 years for that property. I cannot begin to imagine the revenue from the hotel and its operations. I don't know all of the details on that. I could wager a guess which I might come to eventually, depending on if I think I should stick my neck out that far. But I do know of this $733 million.

Again, the argument is going to be spouted out about the indirect benefits to the country by way of stamp duty, customs import duty, and such the like. But, again, I contend that these indirect revenues to the country are not and should not be any part of the negotiations. Everyone who does business in this country—including our own people—pay those same prices. So there is nothing different in that development from anything else.

If I import a car, I pay my duty. If I purchase a piece of property I pay my land transfer tax. [Inaudible interjection] Mr. Speaker, the point being made to me, is that if the project does not happen we won't have those indirect benefits. My answer to that is simple: If we were to say that if I didn't build my house the country wouldn't get stamp duty on that, . . . that's fine too. But you see, Cayman is not what it used to be and while there is competition elsewhere and we have to be very careful, I cannot whenever any development comes in, say, 'Okay, we better allow that development because if we don't allow that development the indirect revenue won't happen.' Can't do it like that. Others have come and gone and the same land that was to be used for something was used for something else. And the country got those benefits from that.

I am not suggesting, realistically, that there are not benefits to be derived from the project. But I am building a case here where I believe that the Government, if the sacrifices have to be made, should find itself in a position to derive more benefits than what is being put forward to us.

Moving on, and just going back to that extension of the lease, we have three players as far as I am concerned in this whole affair. We have the Governor acting on behalf of the country, who is basically the caretaker of the property, because that is Crown Land. We have the developers who are coming in with a plan to do business to create real estate and to create a development which, I give them the benefit of the doubt, they want to be a nice development. They want to be proud of it, but they want to make money. There is nothing wrong with that. That is what it is all about.

They are saying that they want to be as sensitive and as conscious of the concerns as possible. The other (third) players in the game are the operators of the proposed hotel. Basically, what they have done is to surround the entire development and point it back to the requirements of the hotel. So what has happened is . . . And they are smart! I am not saying there is anything wrong. But this is what has happened. They have staged and created a type of development to utilise to its maximum the property involved to derive the best financial benefits that can be derived reasonably; and they have centred it around a hotel.

What they are saying is, 'Gentlemen, for this project to fly, this hotel needs a golf course. It is concentrating on having a convention centre. It is an all-inclusive situation in order for it to be a five-star hotel. So outside of the hotel rooms we need access to a certain number of other rooms (the apartments and villas) so that when we have large conventions, in order to attract these people we have to be able to accommodate them.' I am not blaming them for putting forward that proposal.

But the position it puts Government in (from where I stand right now, and what has been said to me, this is the only way I can see it) the Government is saying, 'Listen, we are in a spot here. We hear what the people are saying. We respect the way they are thinking but we really need this project. So we are going to have to disregard what they are saying because if we try to deal with these people in any way to satisfy the concerns of the people they are going to say the whole project is dead. And we need the project so badly. And the benefits we see in the project are so tremendous that we are going to have to go with it.' They would not say it like that, but I believe that the way I just said it is fair comment.

So, if we come to the case--and believe me I am trying to be as realistic and fair as I possibly can--where the position I just described is what the Government thinks is its position, then my contention is that they are selling us short.

The Minister for Tourism mentioned in his debate about the central wetlands and the fact that he is all supportive of Government making sure that those wetlands are not developed because they are so important to the environment and the ecosystem and all of that. But for as long as we have been talking about it and while everybody says they support doing it, there has been no meaningful attempt on the part of Government to show that they wish to see something done about it and it is going to take the Government to spearhead the action. You know that. I hope none of them say 'nothing' before its time, because time has long passed.

So, trying to look at the whole situation: I believe coming back to this lease and its extension, that allowing this development--and they are also going to bring the case that the development is not viable without the lease extension because what has to be sold cannot be sold because people are not going to buy something that they can only keep for 49 years, or whatever. I also understand that. But, Mr. Speaker, if we look at the three players in the game that I just talked about, the developers are going to be looking at, when the project is completed, gross sales of $733 million. They are also going to have a five-star hotel fully operational, certainly anticipated to operate at a decent profit throughout the years to come.

What we are saying to them is that for all of this, they have 50 years of the lease left. But this is our turf you are going to be developing. For the extra 50 years that you want from us, with all that you are doing (and I will round it off) $11 million into the kitty is worth it. I don't buy that! This argument that 'your hand is in the lion's mouth, and you have to be careful' and all of that-- not me! I am not saying that we must not try to be rational and reasonable, but I am saying that we are not getting what we should be getting if we have to go this route.

I want to say on the one hand that we simply say to them, if we are that concerned about the mangroves and our environment, 'Look, we don't propose to extend this lease. Do what you can do with it for the first 50 years. If it don't work, tough.' But then, if I stand and be realistic, looking at the entire situation, I draw myself back and say, 'Okay, if we extend that lease, what prices are going to be paid, and what benefit is it going to be to the country now and in the future?'

The argument continues whereby we have the spin-offs into the country by the operation of the hotel, the people buying these condos, people coming to the island, the taxi drivers, the restaurants--all of those things. I am not denying that for one minute. But I take the view that you cannot build a case like that and camouflage the situation by saying it is for those reasons why we must be very happy to deal with the lease in this fashion.

I also do not buy the argument that if the project is not allowed to take place these benefits will suddenly not be there. That in my view is not the way we should look at it simply because if it was only a matter of the economic matters to be considered, then why don't we just call investors in and every bit of Crown land we have, seek whomever we want or can find, and say, 'Listen, we want you to develop this thing so that we can get everything going so that we can heat up the economy and everybody can feel happy for a while.' Can't do it like that!

I am not saying that Government is saying that. But I am saying that that is why I don't buy the argument with this individual situation. Mr. Speaker, if we have to do what the Government is saying, and the Government is satisfied that it is in the best interest of the country, all factors being considered, then I am saying that the lease must benefit the people of this country. Not a matter of getting more money now. I am not suggesting that. I am suggesting that the lease must benefit the people of this country on a continual basis in the same way that the developers, the hotel operators and [all others] are supposing to benefit. That is what I contend.

It will easily be said too, and I think I can see some of the minds churning there, 'Yeah, you can say that now.' I think that is what they are saying. 'You can say that now. You weren't there having to do it.' I know that. But there you go again, Mr. Speaker. Not taking anything away from them, but many of us did not even have the benefit of discussing it. So that one doesn't mean anything to me either. That wasn't my fault.

Mr. Speaker, moving on to the benefits: There have been arguments to and fro about deferral of payments. On the spreadsheets we were provided, there is a total deferred fee of just over $10 million. In a nutshell, what that means is that fees that would have been paid straight away at the time they should have been paid, will be deferred for, I think, three years. The total anticipated amount of those fees is just over $10 million. The one time that I had occasion to speak with the developer, I was told that was the norm in negotiations such as these. That is a pile of crap! It doesn't go like that! But I can't blame the developer because like other developers he is going to come in and put his case forward and see the best deal he can strike to get what he wants to get. So they are out of the picture.

Mr. Speaker, what I really have to laugh about-- and it is not a joke... What I want Government to answer me is: We are in such a ticklish position that we have to offer these deferrals to try to get the project going--along with all the problems we are talking about. But we are happy to do this. But the garbage trucks are working until midnight trying to collect garbage because they do not have enough trucks and no money to buy them with. Of course, there is another argument that will come. That is, that we are going to defer these things to get this project going because all of the indirect benefits will put the country into such a state of being that they will be able to buy the garbage trucks and whatever else.

[Sighs]. Mr. Speaker, it doesn't end there. We are talking precedent now. It is my understanding that in order to cover their trail there are two other projects that are going to be treated in the same fashion with deferred payments. Where does it end? When the bigger one comes along, what do we say to them? Do you know what we say to them? 'How many years do you want, three or five?' That is what we are going to say to them. We won't be able to say anything else.

Mr. Speaker, that cannot be in the best interest of this country! And they cannot tell me either that whether that project goes or not, hinges on these deferrals. Uh-uh! If you are looking at--without the hotel--nearly $753 million worth of project income, and you are talking about $10 million which is not one time either, that is over a period of time, and you are going to have to defer that, otherwise they will say they are going somewhere else? Uh-uh. Tell somebody else--not me!

And as I said before, Mr. Speaker, the other worrisome part of that is that you have one deferral being talked about now... there are two that are being talked about as I understand it. I can't swear to that because I don't have anything in writing, but I am sure that it won't be long before we know whether or not that is the case.

It is nothing against the people doing this thing, it is just the way we are doing business; we are setting ourselves up. Every time we have budget, because of the increase in our recurrent expenditure, and because the source of our recurrent revenue is almost saturated--and we can't do much more with it otherwise we are going to seem to be I-don't-know-what. Every year we can't just up the rates. Every year we can't tell people they are paying this much more for their licence. You can't do it like that-- although we are doing just as bad by waiting five years and upping it 100%. But that's another story!

I do not believe that the Government has to find itself in that position. I see many other compromising situations that will occur by way of precedent that we are going to regret by doing this. That is what I see. Of course I know the position is 'We've already struck this deal. So don't come telling us now we must change it.' I hear that. But I am telling them that, God sparing my life, that I will live to remind them about this. And I know it is not too late for them to do better.

Mr. Speaker, the Government expects reasonable thinking. It does not wish to have to contend with arguments that it believes will scare away investors. I stand here today saying to Government that I understand and accept that way of thinking. But the Government must understand its responsibility if it doesn't want to contend with that. It must stop inviting that to happen. It will be said that because I have taken an opposing position that is a fine line for me to say. But I know that deep down when Government thinks about it, it understands exactly what I am talking about—although I don't expect this to be admitted.

What the Government has done, intentionally or not, is by mishandling the way the situation has been dealt with, they have caused the people of the country in large numbers to have a sour taste about this project that need not have happened. That is my view. And it makes me wonder why it was handled like this. It makes me wonder why they didn't want to talk about it before hand. This was no court case that was sub judice. This is the country's business which each and every one has a right to know about—not after the fact. What sense does it make for me to tell you, sir, that I am taking you for a ride, if you don't know where you are going, and when I land you in the place I'll say 'see you later'? That makes no sense. And that is what they did. That is exactly what they did.

But, getting back to this business about why no one wanted to talk about it—and I have to take that position that they didn't want to talk about it because they didn't. It makes me wonder if there are reasons.

You know, Mr. Speaker, I have said this over and often: Perception becomes reality all too often. And I also say this: If I know that you know something, and there is good reason why I believe that I should know it also, and you find yourself in a position where you don't think you should tell me, the way God made us is that I am going to suspect that there is something wrong, why you don't want me to know—even if there is nothing wrong. And then, when you start to be suspicious it is said that you have a wicked mind. If that is the case, then the majority of people in this world have wicked minds. And I hope that that is not so.

And if the situation were vice versa, they would feel the same way. It is cat and mouse in here all the time; I know that. But throw that aside. That is frivolity. This is serious business because this is the country's business. Inasmuch as they hope to say years from now all the fighting and arguing that these people were giving them about this project, the project has been wonderful. It has shown a brand new light to the country. That is not the point.

Again, to draw a funny comparison. You and I, Mr. Speaker, are in the same business. And because I have certain advantages I am unscrupulous and I stand all over you to get above you and to be more than you are and to have more than you have. It is ludicrous for me to think that I am going to make you believe that I am doing that so that when I get to the top I can hand you out something that you can be all right too. That does not make any sense whatsoever!

But, Mr. Speaker, having said all of that , . . . if you feel it is convenient, sir. That is fine.

The Speaker: We shall now suspend for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.30 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12.10 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Debate continues on Private Member's Motion No. 17/98, the First Elected Member for George Town, continuing.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

When we took the break I was skirting the politics involved with this project. And to just talk about this for a little bit, I want to draw everyone's attention to a situation in regard to some amendments to some regulations.

From the Hansard of 5 November, 1997, when the 1997 Development Plan was tabled, accompanying that was Government Motion No. 12/97, Draft Development and Planning (Amendment) (No. 3) Regulations, 1997. The Minister for Planning tabled these regulations and after reading his 'Whereas' and 'Resolve' sections he had a very short contribution. With your permission, sir, I will quote. He said (and he is now referring to these draft amendment regulations) "Mr. Speaker, this is complementary, as it says, to the Development Plan. It is an integral part of it. What I have said in relation to that, sir, applies to this, and what other Members as well have said on the other motion obviously does apply to this. I chose to put it in two motions; it really could have been put in one. Thank you, sir." [Official Hansard Report, 1997 Vol. II, p. 522] End of story.

I am straying a bit, Mr. Speaker, but if you will bear with me you will see the relevance of what I am saying. Recently there was a Private Member's Motion brought seeking to amend some of these amended regulations regarding density for people who owned lots prior to these regulations coming into force, and the Government accepted those amendments because I think the case had been proven that it was the right thing to do.

Just so we understand clearly, the way the regulations were brought and tabled and passed through; politically it was well timed. And, obviously, as happens from time to time (And I bear responsibility for that too. I am not shirking that) Members go along with proposed legislation trusting that the Government bringing the legislation has done due diligence and everything to make sure that it is right.

But there is a little section in those regulations which, after doing a little bit of checking and research, I find that this amendment is tailor made. And it makes me wonder. It really makes me wonder. Even when something may be right, if it is not done right, how can one accept it to be right? I will show you an example.

The Leader of Government Business, for whatever reason, basically told this Legislative Assembly that just like the Development Plan 1997, everything was cool with these amendments. So, in the Development and Planning (Amendment) (No.3) Regulations, 1997, section 3, subsection (2) reads as follows: “Regulation 7 of the principal Regulations is further amended by the addition immediately following sub-regulation (2) with the following new sub-regulation: 2(a) Sub-regulation (2) does not apply to any building registered as, or as part of, a strata title under the Strata Titles Registration Law (1996 Revision), or which has been leased or subleased for a period exceeding thirty-one years, which is an integral part of an hotel development of not less than one hundred rooms in an Hotel/Tourism zone, and which is to be used on a continuous and ongoing basis as part of the hotel development and the occupants of which have access to the facilities of the hotel development. A building to which this sub-regulation applies shall have a maximum permitted height of sixty-five feet to the soffits of the eaves or five storeys whichever is less.” When I first read it, it was Greek, so I do not expect people just hearing it for the first time to understand exactly what it means. But others have quickly explained it much better than I could.

This application for Planning permission for the Ritz-Carlton project, as it is called, had an objection. And there were legal arguments put forward which were related to what I just read. I won't bother to go into all of those details because they are not the point. But after those legal arguments were submitted to the Central Planning Authority, there are two pieces of correspondence from which, with your permission, I would like to quote small sections to explain the point.

There is a letter on 7th September, or rather the first one was 2nd September and was addressed to the Chairman of the Central Planning Authority, “RE: Condominium at Ritz-Carlton, part of West Bar Beach south, block 12C Parcel 11.” The section I wish to read says, “The objector seems to be unaware that under The Development and Planning (Amendment) (No. 3), Regulations 1997 [which is what I just quoted from] approved by the Legislative Assembly on 5th November, 1997 [where I quoted the Hansard] sub-regulation 7 (2)(a) [now sub-regulation 7 (3) of the Development and Planning Regulations (1998 Revision)] was inserted to provide that the prohibition under sub-regulation 7 (2) against apartments exceeding three storeys did not apply in certain circumstances. Sub-regulation 7(3) provides that sub-regulation 7(2), that is the prohibition on apartments exceeding three storeys does not apply to any building registered or as part of a strata title which is an integral part of a hotel development of not less than 100 rooms in a hotel/tourism zone and which is to be used on a continuous and ongoing basis as part of the hotel development and the occupants of which have access to all hotel facilities.”

The picture is getting a little bit clearer. In a letter of September 7th to the Chairman of the Central Planning Authority, re: the same condominiums at Ritz-Carlton, the third paragraph of the letter reads: “However, on the 5th day of November, 1997 the Legislative Assembly approved The Development and Planning (Amendment) (No. 3), Regulations, 1997, which removed the sub-regulation 7(2) prohibition against apartments exceeding three storeys in certain circumstances. In particular, under new sub-regulation 7(3) of The Development and Planning Regulations (1998 Revision) the prohibition under sub-regulation 7(2) against apartments exceeding three storeys does not apply to any building registered as or part of a strata title which is an integral part of a hotel development of not less than 100 rooms in a hotel/tourism zone and which is to be used on a continuous and ongoing basis as part of the hotel development and the occupants of which have access to all hotel facilities.”

Now, let me put that in my language. What has happened is that when this development was originally put forward, what the developers wanted to be able to do, the Planning Regulations did not allow to be done. So, when they were making these amendments, bearing in mind this specific project, here comes sub-regulation 7 being [an] amendment with a new insert.

In plain terms, there are two sets of condominiums to be built on the seaside, which is parcel 11. The plans call for two five-storey towers which will house those condominiums which are to be sold. The way the regulations were prior to that, you could only build and sell condominiums in that zoning up to three storeys. Now this regulation allows condominiums to be built and sold in five storey buildings which is what is needed.

What that means is that if they built these two five-storey towers with the regulations as they were, they would be able to have 48 condominiums being able to be sold, and the other 24 units would have to be held part of the hotel development. That is what that means. This new amendment allows for the entire 72 units to be called condominiums and to be sold once they are an integral part of the hotel operation, meaning they will be rented within the operation of the hotel.

You see, Mr. Speaker, the point of that is . . . I am not going to stand up here and argue that it is wrong to allow that to happen. But all the other hotel developments that have taken place prior to this were not able to do that and since then I have heard of other hotels wanting to be able to do this same thing.

My point is this: This is legislation for this country. It is obvious that this amendment was made specifically because of that project. When the amendments were tabled that was not mentioned. My opinion is that it was not mentioned because if it could go through, and everything go on with nobody noticing it, easy time, no explanations. That is what I consider to be wrong. If I were to be nasty and cynical I would wonder what other legislation specifically tailored for other situations has passed through. Of course, they are going to say it is our responsibility to read it. I know.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Devious!

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: But take that out of the equation and I think my point is made.

That is a supposedly small instance. But the significance of that is the way the Government operates. I know you, Mr. Speaker, and I know any well-thinking person with no thought in his mind but to do what is right, even if it were considered that the project is good for the country and if we have to make some amendments to our legislation or our regulations to accommodate the wants and desires of the project, let's do it. But tell us about it! Come and explain it to us. Say, 'Gentlemen, this is what this is for.'

The reason, I contend, why it wasn't explained is because they didn't explain anything so they couldn't explain this. To explain this, they would have had to tell us the whole thing. And, Mr. Speaker, it would take the Good Lord to tell me that that is the right way to do it. I don't want to dwell on this one too long. But I believe that the point has been made.

And do you know what I like? One of these letters which was sent—and which I have read before—says that this thing was “inserted”. That simply means that it was put there to suit the project whether they meant to say that or not. Do you see why, no matter how good it is, it looks bad? At this time I am going to resist the temptation to follow up on that specific point. But it is, again, obvious to me that some parts of the Government at least, seem to believe that we ‘lesser’ beings are not capable of grasping such situations so it is best to shove it all through

Mr. Roy Bodden: True! And it is that underestimation that is going to ruin them!

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: —and when it is all over everything will be kosher.

You know, Mr. Speaker, we are talking about the politics of the situation. That is what I resist the temptation to do right now.

Mr. Roy Bodden: You should do that 'cause that's important.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Talking about the politics of the situation, and I am as serious as I can be, I did not come into this place to cut deals, or to swing this, or to swing that with nobody!

Mr. Roy Bodden: Hear, hear!

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: But I am capable of reasoning anything out if given the opportunity. What I despise, detest, abhor (and any other word that is similar to that), is anyone taking my existence and saying that it doesn't matter because I am here with a responsibility.

And I am coming back to one other little argument again, Mr. Speaker. I am going to show you (this is my humble opinion) what I consider devious. We did not pick this up and turn the tables around; we could not have picked it up because we didn't know about the project; we didn't know the details of the project; we could not have known out of innocence that this was what it was for. It doesn't mean that if somebody had come and explained this to us, that we were going to say no, no, no, you know. It doesn't mean anything like that. But what it gives rise to is the suspicion that I was talking about earlier on, even if it's unwarranted. And then you hear that all we do is live, connive and contrive to get into arguments with the Government. But we must! Or we go home like dogs, wagging our tails behind us—and I ain't doin' that!

The argument in this Honourable House surrounds the question of the extension of the lease. There are some people who do not believe that we should extend that lease because the damage caused by the development to take place is going to be a price too high to pay. There are others who do not see it that way and who believe that the supposed financial rewards of the project to the country outweigh all of those factors and we should move ahead with it. I am a reasonable person. But when we find little things along the way that are clear indications that everything is being helped along and skewed in a certain direction, how can we reasonably sit down and look at the pros and cons and say it is handled properly?

If I decide that I am going at you, I will do so with whatever means I have available to me. If somebody has enough sense to stop me and says, 'Listen, hold on. I know how you feel. But can we stop and think about this and reason it out first?' That usually is the best way. But the Government is either incapable of doing that, it doesn't want to do that, or it has reasons why it cannot do that. Therein lies the suspicion.

I remember several months back—and this is as true as I stand here approximately 12.40 PM, today, 30th September—I was in a certain place and a young man I have known for many years, but whom I hadn't seen a long time, said to me, “Kurt, come here. I want to tell you something.” So I asked, “How are you doing? Good to see you.” We talked a little bit, and he said, “There is something I don't understand and it has been nagging me, nagging me, nagging me.” After we talked a bit and (and I cannot quote him verbatim, but I can promise you I am not going to add anything to what was said), he said to me, “Why is it that some piece of land out by Safe-Haven that belongs to the Government is so important?” He first of all asked me if Government had any land out there. I said I thought so, but I wasn't 100% sure, but that I would find out. And he proceeded to tell me about a conversation that he had heard.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: In the location where he works, which was the Holiday Inn, he said that he didn't hear the entire conversation because it wasn't like he was listening, he was doing his job. He's a bartender. He was busy serving. But there were some important people around the bar, some Government officials. And he couldn't help but hear them saying that this piece of land they couldn't do anything with it because it was a very valuable piece of land.

I came to find out, after I had checked it out, that this piece of land is a piece of land owned by the Crown and it butts and binds parcel 215, which is the large piece of property in question in this development. I am not very good at directions, but this is a ten-acre parcel that was part and parcel of the Planning approval conditions for the SafeHaven project whereby they reclaimed the property and they handed it over to Government. In fact, a lot of the local operators in the North Sound now dock up alongside of that piece of property. He said to me . . . and I had to leave him like that. In fact, I have never gone back to him to say anything about it, because the truth is I have never seen him since. But he was talking about these politicians who were at the table talking about this thing.

Now, Mr. Speaker, I am going to tell you the reason why I am bringing that up. Heaven forbid that I try to bend anything to suit me in the line of argument!

In their efforts to try to somehow massage the minds of the conservationists, and with all the putting together of the project, what they have said for the North Sound, as the Minister for Tourism has said, is they are leaving the 300 foot buffer zone adjacent to the North Sound because those mangroves are very important. The project does not call for any avenue into the North Sound.

And I am going to tell you what else I know. Initially when they were talking to the Planning Department, they had plans to go through the North Sound, but when they found out about the possibility of the arguments and when they found out that, by law, actually 300 feet of the mangroves was to be retained . . . you, too, sir, were on the Planning Authority, and I am sure you know that quite well. They actually said, 'Okay, scrap that idea. Not try to look an avenue out.'

The way the project is right now, you know, is that section where the golf courses and the waterways are is totally landlocked. But I want anyone to tell me that somebody is going to buy a house lot for $2 million. Just a lot now for $2 million--have that kind of money--can smell the North Sound right alongside and not have access to be able to jump in a boat and go for a ride-- or go sightseeing or whatever when they please. Nobody can convince me of that.

So you see, while there is a certain amount of assumption on my part, it is not an unreasonable assumption. I want it recorded in the Hansards today. Why I am bringing that point up is that if this thing flies, when this thing is all over we will know how valuable that Government piece of property is. Logically, they cannot go through SafeHaven and cut a canal through the SafeHaven property into the canal by SafeHaven unless they are going to buy a certain portion of the SafeHaven project which is not for $1 either. We will see how valuable that is. But they must—and they are going to—seek access to the North Sound.

That is not devious either, you know. I am not saying anything bad about that, because the developer wants what he can get the best way he knows how. And when he is selling these villas and these house lots, believe me, he is going to have a way to get access to the North Sound otherwise he is in trouble with sales. I can guarantee that. But the point I am making about the whole thing is by chance to hear this conversation and now I understand why this piece of land is so valuable.

This is my question: How can you broker on behalf of a people if you're a lawyer and you don't have instructions? If you are a real estate agent and you don't have anything like instructions from anybody, they don't tell you what they want, or if they are selling they don't tell you how much they want for it? How can the Government, elected as they might be, put a package like this together and not inform anyone about it until the deal is done? Trust one must have. But, blind trust? No more!

The line of argument that I am bringing here today is not even to try and simply say that the whole thing is bad, that there is no merit to sitting down and looking at it; but to simply say that while the Government is an elected Government, if we even look at it morally, they do not have the right to deal with the situation like they have without some type of consultation.

I remember a while back adding some numbers up. And I am not being disrespectful to anyone, but I can promise them that if they look at the numbers that they represent, they are less than the numbers that we represent. And whoever else from the Backbench who may have been privy to those dealings, for whatever reason, is not who I am talking about. But I am saying that the people did not have fair opportunity to give input. And not everybody is going to agree, but the people didn't have a fair opportunity to give input for Government to come back and say, 'All right. I hear your case, but now here is ours. Please sit down and listen to us, just like you expect us to listen to you.'

It has to be wrong! But the politics of the situation with those two examples does not end there.

The Speaker: Would this be a convenient time to suspend for lunch? We shall suspend until 2.15 PM.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.50 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.39 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Debate on Private Member's Motion No. 17/98 continues. The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

When we took the luncheon break I was talking a little bit about the politics of the situation with this proposed project. I had mentioned a couple of examples to show in my mind where things were not being handled properly.

There is another little instance I am hearing about which I believe to be true and I think warrants mentioning. I remember not too long ago hearing of a situation where the lawyers for some investors in the country had asked that the requirements be waived whereby the investors had to advertise in the local newspaper to allow the possibility of Caymanian participation in a certain project. My understanding is that when the Trade and Business Licensing Board was made aware of this request every one of them, barring none, thought that it was unbecoming to even think that this requirement should be waived not to allow the possibility for Caymanian participation.

As we all know, sir, there is that principle which is applied which says, If foreign investors come to the country to invest in order for them to get a Local (Companies) Control licence they have to advertise to allow Caymanians the chance to participate in the specific venture in case any Caymanian is able to participate financially and should that Caymanian see the wisdom of the investment. I think that principle is an ongoing one, which has been there for quite some time because it is viewed as an inherent right of a Caymanian to do so.

So, I heard about an instance not too long ago when the situation was raised, and this board which issues those licences, all of the members were taken aback. But then, Mr. Speaker, having heard that, I get to understand that the local lawyers representing the developers of the Ritz-Carlton project wrote to the Government asking the Government to waive this same prerequisite. In other words, asking that the developers not have to advertise to see if any local person(s), or group(s) wished to participate in the project. I need not say who the local lawyers are, and who the members of the Trade and Business Licensing Board are. So, you start to wonder how genuine the situation is.

Believe me, Mr. Speaker, I am going to try to do my best, sir. But when I think about situations like that, I really, really have to wonder why it is that whatever we are doing, we have to deal with it in this manner. It is no wonder people work on the presumption that anything being done that involves Government dealing with other entities means somebody is getting something. It is no wonder that people think that. And believe me, sir, I am not here with any wish to cast aspersions. I am not. And I am not saying that to try to be a goody-goody guy. I can be as I please, I know you know that. But I am trying to be straight down the line to try to see if somewhere, somehow, we can do things right.

Working on the assumption that this is true, and as I have talked about other instances, I want to pose the question: How can we, as a fast-developing little nation expect to weather the storm when we consciously or unconsciously, purposely or inadvertently, are our own worst enemies? How can we expect to stand up and make the statements that to move us forward into the 21st Century we have to work together? Together for whom? For whom it suits? It cannot work like that. It cannot!

One might say that to deal with the situation along these lines is straying from what we are talking about. But it is not! The truth is, this is what it is all about. If everyone was satisfied and happy that everyone was acting in the best interest of all concerned, we wouldn't have half the problems. But, do you know what? While I went to the bank today to do some business I heard two people laughing, and I heard one say to the other "The only good change is the change in your pocket." I'm still not quite sure what they meant, but it rings a funny little bell in my head when I think about it.

Mr. Speaker, the ground rules are now being laid. The people in this country, whether rightly or wrongly so, no longer have loyalty to someone just because of who that person is. People are looking for performance. The people of the country want to know that the people they put here not only act in their best interest, but are seen to be communicating with them in order to bring about the best decisions possible.

Now lest it be misunderstood that I am complaining because I am not in the middle of the fray, it's nothing like that. I have always learned to stay in my little corner. The marbles that are mine, are mine. I am even very careful if a good friend comes to offer me a special marble. Before it was all right, but not so any more. Many times, nowadays you get offered a marble, and you think it is in good faith, and by the time you are finished you hear fifty reasons why you took the marble.

The moral to that story is simply this: Even when everything is totally correct, it must also appear to be correct. Don't take any chances. They could tell me a million stories, a lot of chances have been taken with this project.

I would like now to quickly put an overview into the situation of the original motion and the amendments that were brought forward. This, too, bears relevance in my mind because it will paint the picture of what we are dealing with.

The amendments that were brought, first of all were solely intended to get the Government thinking along the lines of 'listen, perhaps we need to re-think our position. Perhaps we need to re-enter the negotiations. Perhaps we might be able to get a situation where the people of the country are more satisfied' bearing in mind you still want the end result of allowing this hotel to be done.

There are some arguments about the original motion, these amendments. The politics of that situation would expect that perhaps the mover of the original motion could well find reason to be mad because of the amendments, but that was never the intention. To me it was obvious the Government had numbers to ensure that the motion was not going to pass and I simply tried to do what I thought was right at the time to see if we could hold the brakes and allow for some type of situation that is more palatable.

There is also the situation-- something in Erskine May, I can't explain it and I am not about to, because that is not what is important--which causes a problem because the seconder of the original motion also seconded the amendments. Regardless of what that problem is, if there is a problem, regardless of whatever the technicality is with that, the people of this country are not worried about that. They are worried about getting a result of this situation that is satisfactory.

So, any line of argument that is brought along that level really doesn't matter to me because that will not detract from the situation. Both this original motion that is being debated now, and the amendments, had similar intentions. One came after the other simply because other things came to light. You hear people talking, you hear views being aired and you try to see if you can find a situation that is palatable to all concerned. That is the gist of that.

If, at the end of the day, any faction within Government wishes to make a case for that, they can feel free to do so. I know what my intentions were, I know what the seconder intended. That will not change. Any forum that is used to try to make that different from what it is, another forum will occur to straighten that out. I have mentioned before that I like to deliver things in little dribbles. I am not telling it all at one time, believe you me.

Getting back to where the whole focus is on the original motion which is the extension of the lease and the destruction of the mangroves. A banker told me very recently, he said, "You know, you have to listen to every corner, but you have to be realistic." And he went on to explain. I understood what he was saying and I am not far away from those sentiments.

But let us look at what is to come. And this is where a lot of people are not putting the picture together properly. Right now we are having a tooth-and-nail battle over a specific project. But I will bet you that it won't be long before we are faced with a project of a much larger magnitude, which, while the project when completed won't constitute the same ingredients--namely hotels and this type of stuff--there will be a lot of development and the landmass that will have to be dealt with to be able to physically complete the project is a lot more than what we are dealing with now. What do we say to those people when they come?

Do we get the same situation over and over again? Let no one fool any one of us; that one isn't the end of all of it either. There will be more, as I am sure there are more in the pipeline right now. The point is, I am not going to jump into another line of argument right now about who we are developing for: not that there isn't merit to that, but that is not what I am talking about. What I am concerned about is that for the next several years, once everything is going smoothly, we will be having to deal with similar situations or with wider ramifications than this one, on a continual basis. While this is not the first one, this type of thing is just as the lawyers talk about English Law, and how the judges decide on sentences--by precedent.

So, whatever we do now is going to definitely play an important part in how we have to deal with the next one. That is not to say that we shouldn't learn as we go along, but I am only saying that if we handle one situation in a certain way it gives us less strength to deal with the next situation in a different fashion. And who is going to draw the line?

When some people say that the so-called extreme conservationists are a pain in the you-know-where, I understand them. But what a lot of people do not understand about those people is that the same way a lot of people view them they have to view the majority of the people who don't care about anything else but the fuel that certain types of development inject into the engine called the economy.

As I said before, I am a realist. I know that one doesn't work without the other. I understand that. I live it. I have children too that I have to support. I know how it is. But the merit in the way those people think and act is, they are the--should I say, people who cause the other side of the coin to, hopefully, stop and think.

So, one cannot say that the people who talk about the environment and saving the mangrove, and the problems that certain types of development cause with the ecosystems, the damage to the reef and all that-- one cannot say that those people do not serve a valuable purpose. They do. I venture to say that without them many others with the best intentions would never think of it until way too late as is almost the case now.

Of course, it is difficult for the person who doesn't look into it very deeply to look at real value for money on the one hand that you can see and know what is going to happen, and see something else that has existed forever, has been taken for granted forever, and understand why you mustn't make anything happen to it. I know that is a bit difficult. And that is what we are faced with today.

Lest there be anyone who thinks that I am simply making a case to look good, I went into the North Sound last night. I had a little battle on my hands, but I got home with seven snappers, by about 10 o'clock and had them cleaned; but it is becoming a harder and harder battle every time I go. And if anybody wants to tell me that being able to do that doesn't matter--if all of that falls away it doesn't matter, we have a serious, serious problem.

As simple as that is, no amount of money can equate to that to me. Do you know what they will tell me? Why don't you go out on the waterfront when you want a piece of fish? You're too cheap. Why don't you go and spend $15 if you want a meal of fish? That is not the point. I go there because I enjoy it. That is one of the few perks that I enjoy in my homeland that is natural. It gives me peace of mind. It gives me the will to come back tomorrow and fight the battle again, plus the little competition between me and those fellows under the water to see how many get away and how many I get.

That is inbred in the people of this country. And who doesn't think that that type of stuff is important any more either didn't get on the boat, or got off too soon, but they are certainly not on the boat any more. That is only me. But that has much wider reaching ramifications.

There are many tourist-related activities in the North Sound and the argument that spews out now is, if you take from the North Sound Estates right down to Barkers, most of it is gone anyhow, so you have to just say that that's dead. But there is something else I want people to remember: The quicker the rest of that goes the way it has gone before, is the quicker we will see the demise of what we knew as the North Sound. Not only that, the quicker they start getting up into the other sacred area that as of now people are considering untouchable? -- Even in your lifetime, sir (no disrespect to the age difference), it is possible to have some wonderful project up in there.

The developer, and quite rightly so, doesn't have to be conscious of water clarity. He doesn't have to be conscious of what is in the water. When he is developing he just wants to have water. When he sells his development he doesn't promise 40 lobsters underneath the dock, or the ability to go and catch fish. He promises that you will have a nice dock, a nice seawall where you can tie up your boat and you will have access to go and use your boat to your enjoyment. That is what he promises. But it doesn't end there. And that is what we have to be conscious of.

Because I cannot be scientific, I am trying to put it in ordinary terms. But that is what we have to be conscious of. We have to find a way to allow that developer to do what he wants to do within reason. But for us to ensure that we can guarantee the natural beauty of the environment to remain. That is our job.

Now, I am not telling you that it is an easy job. But the way a lot of us look at it is, because in the recent past we haven't had these things happening to us overnight, we figure that this little one won't hurt. Let's let this one go, because we need this one now. And then we worry about the next one when it comes. And when the next one comes along, you say the same thing not thinking for a minute that sooner or later no more will come along because you won't have anything else to offer anybody.

You say, 'Well, I won't have to worry about that because that won't be in my lifetime.' Possibly so. So where is the preaching about the children? Not because it might not happen in our lifetime does not mean that we do not have the same responsibility. That is no excuse.

Mr. Speaker, getting back to the dollars and cents: let me set the record straight where I stand. I understand about the twin pillars of the economy. I understand that we have children coming out of school every year and we have to keep the economy sustained to the point where it can absorb those children into the work force to have meaningful lives in society. I also understand that we have to create a certain ambience, a certain laissez faire situation that attracts investors to the country. I understand all of that

But interested developers who want to invest in this country cannot be held responsible for what I am talking about here because it is our responsibility; we are the green light not them. So the argument being talked about now really has nothing to do with the developer because the definition of him is universal. Everywhere you go, you know what you are dealing with. It doesn't mean that it is bad, it just means that the way he has to think to make his money work for him is a certain way and that's what you must expect—no more, no less. That's a given.

I guess like all politicians you could call the developers a necessary evil too. But this is our country. And we must be able to balance what the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town referred to as sustainable development ensuring that what we have as natural attractions in this country must remain. They are tied in. We can say how much tourism we need, and how many hotels we need to make sure to keep the economy going. But while it just goes bit by bit, the day we don't have those natural attractions is the day we will not have the choices about which hotels we are going to allow to come here. That is the day we have to worry about Cuba and the other places.

So, Mr. Speaker, to sum up, in my view there are two situations at hand. We have to decide, and it seems like the Government has already decided, that whatever land that has to be altered is going to be done. It gives rise to worry about what is going to happen down line with other projects and how we are going to handle them.

If the North Sound could talk, I am sure it would be crying now, asking for help. But, if the Government has already decided that that is the way it is going to be and they have the numbers to play it out, and they have the courage not to listen to the people, however few some of them seem to believe that number is, then I take another step further and say to them that if you, the Government, have decided to go that route and you have decided that that is in the best interest of the country to the best of your thinking, then the Government has still failed to negotiate a sensible lease arrangement with the developers that is to the real benefit of this country.

And so that that can be abundantly clear, I am not talking about the $6 million plus a road, I am not suggesting it should be $12 million plus two roads. I am suggesting that because this land belongs to the people of this country the benefits that are to be derived from allowing others to use this land for any given period of time, those benefits must be spread out so that all the people in this country during the time others are using that property must benefit from it.

To take $6 million and a road, and call it George, is, as far as I am concerned, giving it away. And there are different ways and means of looking at it. Left to me, they could keep the $6 million, my arrangement, if it has to be that, is going to be on an ongoing basis. And who's to tell that it might not suit these people? Perhaps, and I don't know, the Government might say they tried that, if they did they didn't try hard enough because regardless of what is said, the moment we seem to not be negotiating from a point of strength, we are lost. I believe that is what happened because certain individuals saw certain benefits within the confines of that specific situation and immediately, as it appeared that way, then the other side knew they had the advantage.

The Government can decide what it wants to do, or how it wants to do it. This much I have to say: this little bit of stuff in this yellow pad is a lot of stuff. But, not having to remind you, sir, but I only drop things in dribbles so it is timely done. If the Government refuses to even make an attempt to put this situation into a more palatable one for the people of this country, then I not only contend, but I condemn them for their failure.

I can afford to talk like that because, I don't know about anything till it comes here. So they can tell me I don't know what they went through. I don't care right now, because they didn't want me to know. So whatever they went through, and however great a deal they think they came up with, it does not meet my benchmark.

As is obvious from the way the situation has gone on from the outset, there is no sense in me trying to reason with them anymore. I just hope and pray that enough of their constituents get to them. Because you see, Mr. Speaker, even now, I promise you and them, even now I can be reasonable. But at this point in time I have nothing to be reasonable about. I do not know how anything was done except hearing some little blah-blah business talking and saying, 'Boy, y'know how hard that was?' I don't know how hard it was. I don't care! To me, I can't see how hard it could have been when you have your own country and your own people, and because of a circumstance that is external, although you want to add up the benefits of allowing that external circumstance into your country you have to decide which is more important. And don't give me this pious-Joe business about the people don't understand it, but I have to do this to make sure they live. Don't cut that with me, I have sense! It doesn't work like that, and it is not like that. That is just the easiest way for them who believe they don't understand and don't have the ability to understand to say 'Yeah, you do what you gotta do.' Na! Our people are not like that anymore. They understand.

As I said before, people are no longer judged on who they are but they are judged on their performance. And with this project, regardless of what they might think of me and who wants to come back afterwards--because they can come now but there will be other times, I promise them--I don't care what they want to do. I speak the truth as I see it. But if I had to judge one out of ten, they have three that have been lucky with this one.

Regardless of what good [Government] says that will do for this country, it has gone about it in the wrong fashion; the people have not been allowed knowledge of it beforehand; this has caused the people to form their own opinions for which they cannot be blamed. I will not be the one held responsible for trying to change the people's minds, because it is they who put it like that. I didn't have anything to do with it.

After the end result of the motion is done I will wait to see, God spares life, what is done and how it is done. And my memory is good. And there are even a few things that I didn't say here today that I also know about but I will know if it happens that way and I can promise them, whether they think there is relief on the horizon now there won't be any for them once I know that those things happen like that.

Those are not threatening words, Mr. Speaker, those are simply stating my position. I do not believe that we can run a country handling important situations like that. And it has continually happened and it always appears there is something to hide. And if there is nothing to hide they must change their style. I don't want to bring up the budget and all that now, but they know what I am talking about. It took almost a world war to get them to even try to do that right because the hand that holds the power feels it must not be touched. The difference in all of that is that the hand that holds the power today is only fed blood by the people. When the people cut that flow off, the hand withers.

Thank you.

The Speaker: Before I call on another Member to speak, would you like to take the afternoon break? Proceedings are suspended for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.29 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.05 PM

The Speaker: Proceedings are resumed. Third Elected Member for George.

Mr. Linford A Pierson: Thank you Mr. Speaker.

Private Member's Motion No. 17/89 – Proposed Ritz Carlton Hotel is a very sensitive issue. There are two sides to every coin and I will try as best as I can to present a balanced argument to my debate. I have always been one who respects the rights of others and that is why when other Members are speaking I do not jump up and interrupt them or interfere with their trend of thought but out of respect, unless I can prove that they are seriously out of order, I allow them to exercise their democratic right.

In the words of British Prime Minister Mr. Tony Blair, I certainly would rather be popular than unpopular. But, I would rather be unpopular than be wrong.

Before dealing with Private Member's Motion No. 17/98, I wish to comment on a number of statements that were made by one or two of the previous speakers. It is not my intention to get personal and to start naming individuals as I respect them for their various points of view. So, Mr. Speaker, you will not hear me getting personal with any individuals but I will try to confine my comments to the merits and demerits of this motion. However, there were a number of implied statements made about members of the Backbench who may not find it possible to support this motion.

Suggestions were made that if they did not support the motion then they were supportive of the National Team Government. Mr. Speaker, I will not comment on that very much because I will treat that statement with the simplicity that it deserves. I am reminded of the sage commentary made by Harold Macmillan, the former British Prime Minister, who said, "I have never found in a long experience of politics that criticism is ever inhibited by ignorance." I have heard much said here on this motion and I understand that it is a very emotional issue. I trust, as was mentioned earlier, that I will be able to bring to bear a balanced position on this.

Mr. Speaker, I have been involved in politics since 1980 and in that time I have won three elections and lost two. So, I know what it is to lose an election. Any threats that I am jeopardising my position for the year 2000 or whatever, are not going to have an intimidating effect on me. I think people that know me know that I speak my conscience and I do not need anybody to influence me. I think I am intelligent enough to make up my own mind and to decide what position I should take that I feel is in the best interest of my people. It does not always mean that that position is going to be acceptable by all and sundry but it does mean that before I reach a position I think very seriously of the pros and the cons, not only of winning the next election, but on the beneficial effects it will have on my people.

Mr. Speaker, there are very few people in these islands, if any, that are not aware of the tribulations and trials that I suffered in the last election. There is no doubt at all that I ran as a member of the Democratic Alliance. So there is no doubt where I stood but I am not sure that all of my honourable colleagues can say that they did not receive help from the National Team Government.

Mr. Speaker, I have never in my years in this House attempted to be all things to all men because it is only an individual without any direction that can ever attempt to be all things to all men. You sometimes have to take a position, regardless of whether that position is popular or not.

If at the end of my debate my position is different from any of my colleagues, I would trust that they would be gracious enough and indeed intelligent enough to understand that we all have a right to our various opinions. Neither am I the type of representative that shifts with every wind that blows. I am reminded of a remark made by the First Elected member for West Bay when he said you either have to be fish or fowl, you can't be both.

Mr. Speaker, I have tried to be a person in my personal life, as well as in my political life, of integrity my word is my bond. My history in politics will show that I have not been afraid of standing alone on any issue if I feel that I am doing right. This motion, Mr. Speaker, like a lot of sensitive motions that I have had to deal with on both sides of this House, as a backbencher as well as a Member of ExCo, is a motion for one's conscience. This is not a matter where Members of this Backbench have sat and decided to take a particular party line on it. I will not go into those details because most members of the Backbench know that we did not take a party line on this. Mr. Speaker, if I have to stand alone on this, I stand alone.

Members of this House, past Members, some of them are present, and indeed the whole country can remember back in the period 1988 – 1992 when I stood alone on the Hospital issue – the Hospital in the swamp. On that issue, perhaps the only reason that I did not walk the floor on that issue was because of respect for Mr. Benson Ebanks and Mr. Norman Bodden and that I did not want to see my government pulled down. That is the type of man I am Mr. Speaker, when I believe in an issue, I believe in it. Some Members of this Backbench I remember speaking to me and saying, "Linford, you should cross the floor on the issue" but I said no and I was told if I did so I would have probably topped the polls in 1992. Instead I lost the election in 1992.

But, I can live with myself because I feel that I am a man of my word; I am a man of integrity and win or lose, if I believe in an issue... and I believed in my colleagues, and I stood by them. And that is why I can freely say to [either] side of this House today—they know deep in their hearts that if I am with them, I am with them. Nobody needs to question which way I am going and I resent when that is done.

Similarly, I also spoke and stood, not alone, but with just a few people, on the issue for capital punishment. I felt that capital punishment was wrong and I still feel that it is wrong and if it means the election because I feel that it is wrong, then I feel that it is wrong. I see no proper deterrent in it.

Just like recently I voted against corporal punishment because I do not feel it is right. I do not know how many of us would want to see our child, our sister, our brother or mother strapped with a cane in the public. How many of us would want to see it? Yet we keep wanting to bury our consciences.

The SafeHaven project: I got a lot a criticisms on that but strangely enough, some of my biggest critics were the first ones to go to the opening of the project and I am happy that they did. I got a lot of criticisms, but before the Links was built at SafeHaven, Mr. Speaker, it was a back water filled with mosquitoes. Look at it today. Where are all the critics today?

Mr. Speaker, we have also heard about what the people say. We have heard remarks about 2008. Some of the people remarking about 2008 perhaps have not gone to one of the meetings. What do the people want in the year 2008? Let me tell you, from the vision statement-- and there were sixteen such statements that were documented, from what the people said, not just one. And I will say that one of the important ones was that the country which manages growth and maintains prosperity must also protect our social and natural environment. That is one!

But also importantly it says they wanted a country with a vibrant diversified economy which provides full employment. Mr. Speaker, what I am trying to point out here is that there is not one Caymanian that wants to destroy the environment. I do not think there are any Caymanians out there that want to do that. For anybody to give the impression in, or outside of this House, that any of us want to destroy the environment is downright mischievous. They are not telling the people what is correct. I also wonder if a lot of people going around opposing this project if they had not been employed with the National Trust if they would be quite as interested as they are proving to be.

Mr. Speaker, whether people like what I say or not, they are going to hear it because I have a right to speak in this House as any one else.

We are looking at sustainable and sensible development. That is what we are looking at and I will speak to this later on, on the two main pillars of the economy, our financial and tourism sectors and how they interrelate.

I remember back in 1988–1992 when there was a cry that there was too much development. Halt development! And then by 1992, because of the recession that also hit the Cayman Islands, we had almost a thousand people out of work. Then, everybody was concerned about it and anybody that has been keeping their ears to the ground would have been noticing the melt-down in the global economy and the threatening situation that threatens the United States and the western world including the Cayman Islands.

The Honourable Minister for Tourism made reference to the possible situation that could hit these Islands. Yet, we hear everybody saying, no, we do not want development and if we do want, I hear most people say, yes we want the Ritz Carlton but you must do it the way we want you to do it. And I will also touch on that. The point I would like to make very early is that a five-star hotel comes with certain requirements and commitments. There is a demand check list of certain things that must go with a five-star hotel.

Mr. Speaker, on the question of 2008, as it was mentioned in the debate, I would like to take this opportunity to thank the person who was the author of the whole idea of the whole script on the 2008: His Excellency the Governor. Even though I have heard certain derogatory remarks made of that gentlemen. I think he is doing a fantastic job in putting this country on the right track with the 2008 and the many other initiatives within that strategic sort of grouping such as the reinvention and other areas. Already we are seeing positive signs of that.

Mr. Speaker, when I was elected for my third term in this House in 1996, I made it quite clear, not only to this Honourable House but to my constituents, that I would do whatever I could to provide the best possible representation to my people. The only reason why I went through some of the instances when I stood alone, was to make it quite clear that it does not matter to me who votes for this motion or who votes against the motion. I am going to take the position that I think it is right in my heart on the whole issue. I am not going to be following anybody's example like I see a lot of Members doing. They change from one minute to the other; they do not seem to have any backbone. I will certainly be doing what I think is right. So, whether or not the Government bench decides to support this motion, is immaterial to me. I am still going to do what I think is in the best interest of the people of these Islands.

In this connection, I have received also a number of telephone calls on the issue. I have received some saying that it is a bad idea to let the Ritz Carlton go through with this project but I have also received others saying that it is a good idea. So I have to take both sides and try to balance the situation. I am not going to try to play politics with this, Mr. Speaker. It would have been very easy for me to say, "Let me go with the flow", but I would have been going against my conscience because I see a longer term benefit to these people in having a five-star hotel in this country.

While we are here during our four-year term, it is not enough for us to, as soon as we warm these seats, be looking at the next election and moving with every wind of change so we can hope to win the election. We need to provide the best possible representation for our people. Some will be popular and some will be unpopular.

The Speaker: May I interrupt you for a moment, we have reached the hour of 4:30. Would you move the suspension of Standing Order 10(2) so that we can continue? The Honourable Minister for Education.

Hon Truman Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I move the suspension of Standing Order 10(2) to continue until 5:00 PM, sir.

The Speaker: The question is that Standing Order 10(2) be suspended so that the House can continue beyond the hour of 4:30. Those in favour please say aye, those against no.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. We will continue. Third Elected Member for George Town, I apologise for the interruption.

Mr. Linford Pierson: Thank you Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Speaker, it is against this background and with this philosophy in mind that I have said time and time again, and as I said earlier, that I will not object to matters brought to this House just for the sake of objection. If I feel a matter is good for my people, I will support it. If I feel that it is not good, regardless of whether it comes from the Government Bench or the Backbench, I will not support it. That is the type of representative I am.

You know Mr. Speaker, some of the Members of this Honourable House have very short memories. Very, very short memories indeed. It has only been two years ago when we had an election. Some of those Members, had it not been for the help that they got from the very people they are trying to tear apart today, they would not be sitting in these hallowed halls.

Mr. Speaker, let me repeat for clarity, that I am here to provide the best possible representation and if that means that I agree with the Government Bench, so be it. And anybody who wants to go and try to give the impression on television or on radio (or whichever way) that because I support an issue that the Government brings that I am a supporter of the National Team, he can do so, but the public [will] know that [it is a lie] because the public knows the type of man I am.

I would like to make reference to the specific motion before us but before doing so, I think it is only right that I clarify a comment on an issue that was brought before this honourable House.

Mr. Speaker, a letter was tabled in this House by the Third Elected member for West Bay, written by Mr. Michael Ryan. It stated, inter alia (among other things) and I read: “Mr. McField [meaning Dr. Frank McField] at the end of the meeting with myself [meaning Mr. Michael Ryan] and Mr. Putterill, extended an invitation to come as a guest at his television show, Public Eye, to discuss the project and explain it to the public so that they could better understand and support the project as he then understood and supported it. Due to scheduling problems it was not possible to take up his kind offer to appear on the show. Mr. McField then offered to arrange a meeting with the rest of the Backbenchers to discuss the above mentioned matters.” When I heard that Mr. Speaker, I had planned to ignore that matter because as far as I was concerned, it was a letter from the developer who was not being supported by the person he was writing about so I sort of wrote that off.

But Mr. Speaker, today I am in receipt of a letter from a gentleman that I have known for many years and whom I have the highest respect for that has indeed supported everything that was in Mr. Ryan's letter and I will table that letter. It is from Mr. Bruce S C Putterill who is a senior partner with Hunter & Hunter. The letter reads: “Dear Mike, [this was written to Michael Ryan] Re: Ritz Carlton Project:

“I refer to a letter you wrote to John Jefferson, Jr. summarising the meeting held in my office attended by yourself, Dr. Frank McField and myself. I confirm that your letter accurately reflects my recollection and understanding of that meeting.

“I arranged that meeting with Dr. McField as a result of various statements made by him published in the Caymanian Compass as well as various other articles in the Caymanian Compass which were based on incorrect information as to the proposals by the Cayman Islands Government for the extension of the Head Lease for the property on which the Ritz Carlton is to be built. It was certainly my impression that, having corrected this misinformation during the course of the meeting with Dr. McField, he was supportive of the project generally. He offered his assistance in arranging and did in fact arrange a meeting with the Backbench MLAs on the Monday after our meeting with Dr. McField the previous Saturday morning.

“There was some discussion about your appearing on Dr. McField's television program so that the misinformation could be dealt with on that program. There was also discussion as to how the payments being made by the project to Government should properly be allocated and expended by the Government. The only reservation expressed by Dr. McField at our meeting was that he was critical of the Government and the way in which the Report had been laid before the Legislative Assembly and which had led to misinformation being published in the local press in the first place.

“I will be pleased to deal with any queries.

“Yours sincerely , [signed] Bruce S C Putterill”

I would like to hand this to the Serjeant to lay on the Table so that it now becomes a public document.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Mr. Linford Pierson: Mr. Speaker, I do not propose to comment on that letter because I think it speaks for itself.

Mr. Speaker, I wish to now move to the Private Member's Motion, the text of it, but first to deal with the amendment that was brought against that motion.

The Speaker: You do not anticipate debating the amendment because the amendment failed. You do not intend to debate that?

Mr. Linford Pierson: No, Mr. Speaker, just to make reference to it. The point that I want to make here is not to debate the amendment because it has failed, but to highlight the effect that the failure of this amendment has on the substantive motion. I voted for the amendment because I felt it was a compromise situation that the Backbench was trying to reach. But the only reason I voted for that amendment is because I felt it was a more reasoned position than the substantive motion.

The amendment had the effect of changing three of the four resolve sections of the motion. If that is not a substantial and material amendment to the motion I do not know what is. So in effect, Mr. Speaker, the amendment emasculated the major motion. It took away the substance of the major motion and basically what the amendment was saying is that because of the substantial amendment made, we are not happy with the first motion before us, therefore this is what we would like to replace it with.

Mr. Speaker, if the position is that I am not happy with the original motion and that I have decided to support something that I think is a more reasonable motion, how can I, or any Member on this Backbench who supported the amendment, now go back and say that because the amendment failed we are going to support the original motion which we felt was not an appropriate motion?

That would be a contradiction and it would show confusion. I cannot see any Member, and I will repeat that, that supported the amendment to that original motion because of the substantial and material nature of that amendment, it practically destroyed the original motion. Now, how can we go back because that amendment failed and say that we are going back to support something that we felt was not adequate in the first place?

There is nothing procedurally wrong in going back to the original motion but it would be a farce for us to do that. We have actually said on this side of the House that it was not appropriate. If it had been one or two amendments I could understand. But there were three of the four Resolve sections that were changed. So it changed the whole motion and in actual fact it replaced that motion as far as we were concerned on this side, those of us that voted for it.

No matter how we try to get around that, we cannot change that fact. It deleted the second, third and fourth Resolve sections of the motion. There were only four Resolve sections and it deleted three of those four. In practical terms, Mr. Speaker, the motion should really fade away and more so I do not see any of us on this Backbench, I want to drive that point home, that supported the amendment now turning around and saying that we made a mistake we did not need to do that, so we go back to the original motion. It would show confusion Mr. Speaker.

I now come to the question of the merits and demerits of a five-star hotel. I am not concerned in my debate whether that five-star hotel is called a Ritz-Carlton or a Waldorf Astoria or any other five-star hotel. I am dealing with merits and demerits of a five-star hotel. Before we can start talking about the amount of land we are willing to allow the Ritz-Carlton as a five-star hotel to use, we should have first looked at the requirement and the checklist for a five-star hotel. 'Yes, we need a five-star hotel,' but on the other hand say 'We are not going to give sufficient property for them to build a five-star hotel.' That doesn't make sense.

What are the requirements for a five-star hotel? I think this was alluded to by the Third Elected Member for West Bay, and also the Honourable Minister for Tourism. But for the purpose of clarity and to continue the trend I am all, I would like to, for emphasis . . . I remember one of my colleagues whom I served with on Executive Council reminding me when I told him that he was repeating things, he said, "Repetition, my son, bears emphasis." So I would like to repeat this because it is important to the whole idea as to how much property a five star resort may require. But before I touch on that, I want to draw to the attention of this Honourable House and the listening public what is expected of a hotel resort similar to the one we are trying to encourage on the one hand, but discourage on the other.

In a hotel what is normally expected is that it is usually a high-rise establishment offering a full range of food and beverage service, cocktail lounge, entertainment, conference facilities, business services, shops and recreational activities. A wide range of services provided by uniformed staff on duty 24 hours per day, parking arrangements vary. This is a basic hotel. What we had down there in the shape of the Holiday Inn, would barely fit into that category because it was something like a two-star, or two-diamond as rated by triple A. We are looking at a five-star hotel.

I was looking through a booklet that was loaned to me called "The Florida Tour Book." In all of Florida the number of five-star hotels you can count on one hand. There are not that many. As far as the Caribbean is concerned, I am not sure that there are any I can think of right now within the western Caribbean that have such a facility. This is a five-star resort. Either we want it, or we don't. But we cannot talk out of both sides of our mouths. If we want it we have to try and accommodate it. It is not what Michael Ryan wants; it is what the Ritz-Carlton will allow if their name is going to be used.

A resort is a step up from a hotel. It is geared to vacation travellers, but in addition it is a destination offering varied food and beverage outlets, speciality shops, meeting or conference facilities, something we need very badly here.

We have been losing a lot of business because of the lack of proper conference facilities in these islands. It also offers entertainment and extensive recreational activities for special interests such as golf, and I would like us to see a golf course on the little piece of land the Holiday Inn was on. Tennis, we couldn't even get a tennis court on there properly, skiing, fishing and other water sports. All of this. Associated social and recreational programmes are typically offered in season and a variety of package plans are usually available including meal plans incorporated into the rates. Larger resorts may offer a variety of guest accommodations. That is basically what we are looking at in a resort such as the Ritz-Carlton five-star resort.

I have here also a magazine that is used by the triple A group to rate hotels, and they rate them from one-diamond to five-diamonds, or as we call it, one-star to five-stars. The difference is like chalk and cheese. We have no five-star on this island. The closest to a four-star would probably be the Hyatt or the Westin. We are aware of the amount of property that covers. But a five-star or five-diamond hotel is in the rank of outstanding. You have a one-diamond or one-star that is termed adequate as the Holiday Inn or other small ones, or maybe average I would put the Holiday Inn.

Then you have the three-diamond that is considered very good, probably the Marriott would fall into that. And then you have the four-diamond, like maybe the Hyatt. But no outstanding. No five-star. And then I have a list before me too long to read of the requirements that the triple A would want to find in a five-star hotel. So it is not what we want to suggest to them to use when we talk about compromise. Are we going to change those checklists and say to them, 'Look, we politicians know better and this is what you must use as a five-star hotel?' I think that is presumptuous. Either we say no, we are not going to allow you to come in here, or if we say yes we will allow you to come to the Cayman Islands then we have to try to be as accommodating as possible. But, on the other side of that, with any development that is done in the Cayman Islands, it is important that a happy balance be found. There is no way we are going to sit back and allow any developer to come in here and destroy our natural environment.

I am going to deal with that because I am as sensitive to this as any Member of the public, indeed any Member of the National Trust. So much so that I am a life Member of the National Trust, I was one of the first Members to join the National Trust. But I am also a realist. There is no way I can get up here and preach sustainable and sensible development, yet say you can't touch this or the other.

The Minister for Tourism mentioned that Grand Cayman is 76 square miles and has approximately 42 square miles of swamp. If you are going to develop you are going to have to touch on something. And with more than half of the land area being swamp, then we are going to have to decide on what is the minimum negative impact that will have to be created in order for us to continue this sustained development.

I was speaking earlier about the requirements of a five-star hotel. I just want to say that one of the requirements for a five-star resort—not just a hotel because you can find five-star hotels in a lot of cities. You can go to Houston, you can go to other areas and find five-star hotels in those cities. This is a travel resort that we are talking about.

So in addition to the plush rooms and the amenities that you find within the hotel itself, a resort must offer more. And one of those things that must be offered by a resort is a golf course. It says here, “A golf element of a signature level within the resort accessible to guests on foot when desired. This element is also critical to attract the important group segment. Signature level for a five-star is a course designed and endorsed personally by one of the major names in golf course design, such as Greg Norman.”

When we try to reach a compromise, even though I voted for that, that we would try to combine in one lot the property to the west of the proposed bypass road into the site that the Holiday Inn was on, which is 12C parcel 11, then we are suggesting to them an impossible situation. But one of the things I heard mentioned that we could do is probably suggest to Ritz-Carlton that they should get a car and drive the tourists down to the Links. Well, we are not sure that the Links would agree to that.

But the question that we need to ask is whether this is suitable to the Ritz-Carlton. I am not here to push the Ritz-Carlton or not to push it. I have nothing to get out of it. As a businessman I wish that a company in which I have shares, Century 21 had gotten the real estate. But I am very proud that the company owned by the First Elected Member for West Bay got it. And if we were right-thinking Caymanians we would be proud of him too, that one of our own would benefit from something like that. The problem with many of us is that we are much too jealous of our fellow man and do not want to see him get anything. This is the wrong attitude for any of us to take.

Further, because I wanted to make sure that there was no conflict of interest when I spoke on this motion, I had originally spoken to the lawyer connected with this company about getting some space for one of my businesses on the premises and since then I have withdrawn that and told them that I am no longer interested; mainly because I wanted to make sure that nobody could get up in this Honourable House and say that I had any conflict of interest. So, as far as I am concerned, I can speak on this motion freely without and fear or favour, nobody can say that Linford Pierson has any interest in this project.

The Speaker: We have reached the hour of 5 o'clock, the agreed time for the adjournment. I will entertain a motion for the adjournment.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until 10.00 AM tomorrow, sir.

The Speaker: The question is, that this Honourable House do now adjourn until 10.00 AM tomorrow. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House stands adjourned until 10.00 AM tomorrow.

AT 5.00 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM, 1 OCTOBER 1998.

ADJOURNMENT

THURSDAY
1 OCTOBER 1998
10.20 AM

[Prayers read by the Elected Member for North Side.]

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Item 2 on today's Order Paper: Reading by the Speaker of Messages and Announcements.

READING BY THE SPEAKER OF
MESSAGES AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: I have apologies from the Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport. He will be arriving later this morning.

Item 3, Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. Question No. 171 is standing in the name of the Elected Member for North Side.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION 171

No. 171: Mrs. Edna Moyle asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture to state what sports programmes, if any, are in place for the district of North Side.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Sports' programmes for the district of North Side include basketball, football, volleyball, netball, cricket, swimming and track and field (athletics). These are conducted by the coaches attached to the Ministry.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Can the Honourable Minister say what evenings of the week these coaching periods take place in the district of North Side?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: I am informed that the schedule of activities is as follows: School football, Thursdays 11.00 to 12.00, Coach Ken Fogarty; Basketball and Cricket, dates to be finalised with the Principal;

Track and Field with Coach Williams (I do not at this time have the date; I will undertake to get that for you).

- The Community Netball: Arrangements are being made for a joint netball team for North Side and East End with Coach Jean Pierre.
- The Basketball season is commencing 3rd October.
- Football: Monday through Thursday, North Side Football Club playing at Bodden Town School Field from 7.00 to 9.00 PM with Coach Ernie Seymour.
- Volleyball is being conducted. I do not have the dates from the Volleyball Association.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: I would like to thank the Honourable Minister for that reply, but I gather that it is more or less dealing with the North Side Primary School. My concern is for the young people who take part, like in the football season which has just started. The swimming, I have a little doubt about that, because there is no transportation as far as I understand to take young North Siders into George Town. So my concern to the Minister is the coaching of the young people of North Side in these sports.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: It is my understanding—as is stated in the answer that I gave]: The first part dealt with the school, that is the football, the basketball, the track and field, whereas the second part of the answer was dealing with the community arrangements.

As I said, I did not have all the times for all the sports the Member asked for but the ones I had I provided. I should add, with the swimming, when I questioned about that because I remembered that that came up at an earlier sitting, I was informed that an invitation had been extended to the North Side persons interested in learning to swim, but that nothing had been forthcoming. I just learned from the Member that maybe there is a transportation problem which I was not previously aware of.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Can the Honourable Minister elaborate, on the "community sporting events"?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: I am advised that as far as the community is concerned--and I repeat, that arrangements are being made for a joint netball team from the districts of North Side and East End with coach Jean Pierre. The Basketball season is commencing on Saturdays, 3 October; Football, Monday through Thursday, North Side Football Team is now playing at Bodden Town School Field, and there is a substantive answer as to the field which will explain the reason why. And under the guidance of Coach Ernie Seymour (Gillie) I am instructed that the Volleyball in the district is conducted by the Volleyball Association. The times and the venues I do not have at this stage.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries we will move on to question No. 172, standing in the name of the Elected Member for North Side.

QUESTION 172

No. 172: Mrs. Edna Moyle asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture for the completion date of the upgrade of the Old Man Bay playing field.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: The Old Man Bay playing field is very close to completion. The main outstanding area of work is the completion of the grassing of the field. The lighting was completed on 18th September 1998. The field, itself, has grass growing over the majority of the playing area, but there are still a number of bare patches. These are being given close attention and it is hoped that they will be filled in to allow play by the end of October. However, these will have to be carefully monitored, as it would not make sense to allow the field to be used prior to having good grass cover over the entire surface. As soon as there is good grass cover over the entire field, it will be opened for play.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: I wonder if the Honourable Minister would say to complete this entire project if there will be provisions for bleachers for the Old Man Bay Playing field in the upcoming budget?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: The Ministry has submitted a request for this sum in the Estimates.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W McKeeva Bush: I wonder if the Minister could say if the Ministry in the development of these facilities is following plans that have been ongoing over a period of years.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: The answer is in the affirmative, but out of abundance of caution, if and when it is necessary to make a change, the change will be made in the best interest of the sport. As of now, I am informed that we are following the plans.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: I wonder if the Honourable Minister could say, for safety, if there will be a fence put on the right-hand side of the Old Man Bay playing field prior to completion to protect the players from colliding with the CUC light pole?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: I am duly informed that as soon as the precise area of the field is marked then Public Works together with the Sports Department and the Ministry will assess the circumstances to see whether or not it is deemed necessary.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries we will move on to question No. 173, standing in the name of the Elected Member for North Side.

QUESTION 173

No. 173: Mrs. Edna Moyle asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture when will the lights be installed at the Craddock Ebanks Civic Centre hardcourt?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: The installation of lights to the hard court is currently underway with completion expected by the first week of October.

The Speaker: Supplementaries? (Pause) If there are no further supplementaries we will move on to question No. 174, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 174

No. 174: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture to state the Ministry's policy on Youth.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: The Ministry has decided to spearhead the development process of a National Youth Policy. The development of our National Youth Policy will be a highly consultative and nationally agreed upon document outlining the aspirations, concerns and responsibilities of all the key stakeholders, including young men and women of the Cayman Islands. We have chosen to utilise the Commonwealth Secretariat to provide technical assistance in an advisory capacity.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say when this programme will be launched? And can the Minister tell the House in the interim what the Ministry's position is on youth?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Mr. W McKeeva Bush: Would the Honourable Minister state whether they are following plans started in conjunction, or to work in conjunction with the Commonwealth Youth Policy-makers?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: The contact with the Commonwealth Secretariat was not just made when I assumed the responsibilities of the Ministry. Indeed, they were made when the past Minister was there. All we are merely doing is following through with that because we believe they were perhaps the best source for advice and we have had much contact with them. They have given us much information. The Liaison Officer for Youth in the Ministry at the time has done a lot of work in this regard and there have been a number of seminars and tons and tons of information that we are weeding through.

One of the difficulties we had, was that it seemed as if different arms in Government were doing different areas in respect of youth. So what we are trying to do is bring them altogether to ensure that there is not undue repetition or waste of energies so that the money can be best spent in regard to youth.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say if, in these surveys and programmes she mentioned, there is going to be any attempt to ascertain and deal with those numbers of youth who may be at risk because of low self-esteem? And, if so, how will these be identified?

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: To date, as a first step in developing our National Youth Policy the Ministry is planning to co-host along with the Ministry of Education the Ministry of Health, and CIMI, a symposium on Youth at Risk to be held October 16-17 this year. We have also requested information from the relevant Ministries and Departments and existing youth programmes and services in an effort to catalogue what is presently available.

The National Youth Policy is not an effort to reinvent the wheel, as it were. Instead it is hoped that it will incorporate any previous findings we have in regard to youth as well as an attempt to research the gaps that may exist regarding the existence of delivering of such services.

The development and adoption of the National Youth Policy, as I said, will be a collaborative and cooperative effort. It is our intention to take the concept of the policy to Council before the end of this year and giving ourselves until January 2000 to actually bring the policy to Council and hopefully with their approval to the floor of this Honourable House.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: The symposium I mentioned in one of my earlier answers is dealing with that issue, the at-risk youth. The Ministry is still at the stage of collecting information for a number of reasons, but one of the reasons being so that we can identify the main areas of concern affecting youth, and then to come up with reasonable and cost-effective solutions. That is why we are going to make it a highly consultative process.

I would extend at this time an invitation to my honourable colleagues who may have recommendations, or who may be able to assist us in identifying the youth within their community, or the three islands as a whole because the Ministry is open for recommendations and assistance in this regard which is a very important issue to us.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W McKeeva Bush: I am wondering whether the Ministry, or the Government, is following the mission statement on youth among others, that is, "To promote a sustainable high quality of community life, and to ensure that each individual has the maximum opportunity to achieve the highest level of self-fulfillment and personal development in terms of the physical, social, moral and spiritual aspects of life"?

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: I am duly informed that the Ministry, to an extent, is following through with the mission statement, but there has been a shortage of staff and there have been some areas where we have not been able to proceed as quickly as possible, and we felt that it was necessary to continue the contact with the Commonwealth Secretariat to get a properly placed and endorsed National Youth Policy.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, we will move on to question No. 175, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 175

No. 175: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture to provide a breakdown of the money spent to date on the new Bodden Town playing field and when will this field be completed.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: The total expenditure to date on the Bodden Town playing field project is $824,029.28. The breakdown of expenditure to date, by year, is detailed below:

| 1993  | 1994     | 1995    | 1996      | 1997      | 1998                      |
|-------|----------|---------|-----------|-----------|---------------------------|
| $553 | $47,901 | $3,690 | $128,770 | $428,718 | $214,397(to 23/9/98) |

The breakdown of expenditure by work item is:

|                                 |            |
|---------------------------------|------------|
| Site clearing/filling           | $ 427,336 |
| Topsoil/grassing/irrigation     | 138,288    |
| Car park                        | 121,855    |
| Fencing                         | 12,413     |
| Electrical/lighting             | 48,307     |
| Bleachers                       | 13,334     |
| Design/management/miscellaneous | 62,496     |

It is anticipated that the field will be playable at the end of this year. At the end of the year, the field, irrigation system, bleachers, lighting and car parking will be complete. Outstanding works at the end of 1998 will be:

- upgrade to the changing facilities at the Bodden Town Civic Centre;
- completion of landscaping and sidewalks to the new car parking area;
- cover to the bleachers;
- hard-standings under bleachers.

The funding provided in the 1998 re-prioritised budget is insufficient to carry out these items this year. They will be carried out in the first quarter of 1999, subject to approval of the necessary funding in the 1999 budget.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W McKeever Bush: Would the Minister say whether they purchased any more of the surrounding swamp, other than that which was recommended by the Bodden Town representatives in 1993/1994? Does this figure pertain to that particular site?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: To the best of my knowledge and instruction received, there have been no additional purchases.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Miss Heather Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say whether the seeding process has taken place yet?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: It is my understanding that the seeding process has taken place. There was a bit of delay, and there was a period where very little work had taken place mainly because some of the problem we experienced was with the irrigation system when the field had to be corrected.

Heavy rains then delayed the final placement of the two inches of topsoil to the field following the completion of the irrigation system. No equipment could therefore be allowed on the field until it was dried out as the heavy equipment moving onto the soft topsoil would have caused irreparable damage to the irrigation pipes. However, the fields have now dried sufficiently for the topsoiling which was recommenced, I understand, on 21 of this month. And subject to weather conditions, on the 23rd the field is to be re-seeded and completed on 28th September.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Is the Minister in a position to tell the House what was the cost of correcting the damage to the irrigation system due to the fact that heavy equipment ran over the system as it was in the process of being laid?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: I am not in a position to give that answer, but I will give an undertaking to provide it in writing to the Member.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Boddén: Can the Honourable Minister tell the House the seating capacity of the bleachers?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: It is my understanding that we have asked Public Works to provide bleachers to accommodate 1,000 persons.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, that concludes Question Time for this morning. Item 4 on today's Order Paper: Other Business. Private Members' Motions Private Member's Motion No. 17/98 Proposed Ritz Carlton Hotel West Bay Road. Debate continuing thereon. The Third Elected Member for George Town, continuing.

OTHER BUSINESS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 17/98

PROPOSED RITZ CARLTON HOTEL WEST BAY ROAD

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Yesterday on the adjournment, I was attempting to point out what I saw as a credibility gap between the substantive motion, that is Private Member's Motion No. 17/98, and the substantive and material amendments made in the amending motion to that original motion. As I expected, I did in fact receive a few calls on this and I was asked to explain precisely where I saw the credibility gap, as some of my constituents in listening to previous debates did not pick up on this point. For the benefit of the listening public, and this House, I would like to make those necessary and relevant comparisons.

The original motion reads:

"WHEREAS on 17th July, 1998, the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works laid on the Table of this Honourable House papers proposing to extend the present lease of Block 12C, Parcel 215; Block 12C, Parcel 11; and Block 12C, Parcel 216, in the West Bay Section of Grand Cayman and to allow entities to develop these Crown lands;

"BE IT NOW THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT the report laid on the Table by the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works on 17th July, 1998, concerning Government's proposal to grant permission to these entities to utilise Crown Lands, namely Block 12C, Parcel 215; Block 12C, Parcel 11; and Block 12C, Par- cel 216, in the West Bay Section of Grand Cayman, for the development of a Ritz Carlton, be rejected."

The three main resolutions that follow are the resolutions that I am contending that have been materially amended. The first one reads: "AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED THAT the entities be granted permission to demolish the present Holiday Inn hotel and construct another HOTEL only [and this is the point, Mr. Speaker] on Block 12C, Parcel 11, on which it presently stands;"

I will deal with that one first. This is the original motion and it is calling for Government to consider allowing the Ritz-Carlton to only develop on the parcel of land that the old Holiday Inn occupied before it was demolished. That is the piece of property on the sea side. Where I consider a material and substantive amendment has been made to that, is in the amendment where it states—

The Speaker: I have to correct you. An amendment was 'proposed' it was not 'made'.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker—"the amendment being 'proposed'.

And where the material and substantial difference is, is that the amendment that was proposed and voted on in this House, where that material difference arises is that in addition to parcel 12C/11 the amendment is calling for a portion of parcel 12C/215 which is on the opposite side of the road and goes back east towards the North Sound as far as the bypass road, or peninsula road, as it is known. So that is a material and substantial amendment to that resolution. It completely changes it.

The next one, and this is the original motion: "AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED THAT the Government exercises its power under section 33 of the Development and Planning Law (1995 Revision) to acquire that portion of the properties designated as Public Open Space under the Development Plan 1997 and assign this said property to the National Trust of the Cayman Islands."

This resolution in the original motion has been completely left out of the amendment. And the important point to state here, is that the amendment to this motion called for the complete deletion of the second, third and fourth resolve sections of the motion. That has been completely left out, even though the amending motion has completely deleted the second, third and fourth resolve sections. No mention was made of anything to do with the National Trust in the amendment. So this is what I talk about whenever I make a statement in this House, I try my best to be able to back it up.

The next thing, and this is from the original motion, it states: "AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED THAT the Government assign to the National Trust all that undeveloped land as identified above, to take effect on the expiry of the present lease, to be held undisturbed on behalf of the people of the Cayman Islands in perpetuity."

Again, that resolution was not included in the amending motion. So the amending motion has very little semblance to that original motion, yet the amending motion called for the deletion of three of the four resolutions in the motion. It has, by doing that, completely emasculated (as I said yesterday) the original motion and it has completely destroyed the original motion. Procedurally, as I stated, there is nothing to stop the mover of the motion from continuing with his motion because the Standing Orders provide that latitude. But when we look at the amendments which were made, then, Mr. Speaker—

The Speaker: I must say again, they were 'proposed', but the amendment failed.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, the amendments that were 'proposed' and voted on, and the amendments were lost by the democratic process in this House.

Mr. Speaker, I always bow to the Chair because I think my record in here shows that I have a lot of deference and respect for the Chair, unlike certain Members, and I will continue that. If you correct me, I will bow to your ruling. These amendments were 'proposed'.

I am saying that the amendments that were moved and seconded by the First Elected Member for George Town and the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, completely change the original motion.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order.

POINT OF ORDER

The Speaker: Let me hear your point of order please.

Mr. Roy Bodden: I contend that the Member speaking is misconstruing the position, sir, because Erskine May, [22nd Ed.] page 345, Rejection both of amendment and of original question. "The rejection of an amendment (even an amendment to substitute a complete alternative proposal) does not constitute a final decision upon the original motion, but a further question has to be put upon this expressly for the purpose of securing such a decision. A Member who is adverse both to the main question and to the proposed amendment is not expressing an opinion favourable to the question by voting against the question . . ."

While I see the point my honourable colleague is trying to make, he is indeed misconstruing and dragging the debate into uncharted waters which at this time, sir, are completely irrelevant.

The Speaker: I hear your point of order, but in yesterday's Hansard he clearly stated, "There is nothing procedurally wrong in going back to the original motion but it would be a farce for us to do that." And again this morning he has stated that there is absolutely nothing procedurally wrong. So I think he is not trying to mislead the House, he has made it clear that it is not procedurally wrong. So would the Member please continue?

Mr. Roy Bodden: But, Mr. Speaker, now he is saying that the amendments completely emasculated the original motion. What does that mean, sir?

The Speaker: What he is saying is not procedurally wrong. So that is where. . . please continue, Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Thank you. I am surprised that the Honourable Member for Bodden Town does not seem to understand the Standing Order better than he does. Because if he had been listening he would have heard that I said there was nothing procedurally wrong with the motion, but because of the substantive and material changes that it was now emasculated, and that it should be withdrawn.

Mr. Speaker, there were other areas that I want to mention before I move from this because I realise that there have been threats that I will be replied to. And that is the democratic right of any Member of this House. But then I have my democratic right to speak again, sometime.

The other point that I want to make is that in the amendment it brought in two new resolutions that were not contained in the original resolution—two new resolutions. And the two new resolutions read: "AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED THAT Government renegotiate, with the entities, the terms of the extended lease for the new combined parcel" that's the first new one.

And the second new one states-- there were three of them: "AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED THAT Government also negotiate, with the entities, the possibility of the existing lease on the remaining portion of Block 12C, Parcel 215, reverting to the Crown."

And the third new resolution was: "AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED THAT the terms of reference for all of these negotiations be established and agreed upon by a majority of the Members of the Legislative Assembly."

Regardless of what the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town or anybody else says, that is a material and substantial change to the original motion. Nobody can successfully dispute that.

The Speaker: Honourable Member, can I ask you to please move on because I think the amendment was defeated and I think we have covered that fully.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, thank you, but because there were questions as to what was meant when I said that the original motion had been substantially amended, I thought it was important to explain that during my debate this morning.

Whenever any person is speaking in this House, I have the manners and respect not to interrupt those people. And I would ask that my honourable colleagues show the same deference when I am speaking.

Mr. Speaker, we have heard a lot of complaints levelled at the Executive Council, and I am not here to protect them because they can do that themselves. As a matter of fact, I am speaking from the position that I always speak from—the Opposition Bench.

I have the added advantage, however, over some of my Backbenchers in that I have also sat in Executive Council and I know how it works. I recall on many occasions that Members of the Backbench approached me in my position then as a Member of ExCo wanting to have things done for their constituencies and other areas of the island. And I respected that.

But that was a two-way street. On this side of the House where I stand, whenever I need something done, I do the same thing. I ask the Ministers to assist me. That is the only way it can work. There is no use people talking about a lack of communication if they are not prepared for that communication to work both ways. I fault the Executive Council, as did my good comrade—colleague, rather. (Can't use the word comrade in this House because I will soon be accused of something else). My goodly colleague, the Third Elected Member for West Bay.

I fault the Executive Council also for their lack of communication when that matter was first dealt with. But similarly, I am not aware of the Backbench meeting with anybody on the Executive Council to discuss the amendments to the motion. And it works both ways. We cannot blame one side and not take blame for our failures and our weaknesses also.

My four years in this House, I trust, will be as fruitfully and as well spent in the interests of my people as possible. If that means that I have to on occasion meet with the Executive Council and ask them to compromise certain areas in the interest of my people, I will do so. But it does not make sense for me to sit here, refusing to cooperate on every subject that is raised in this House just to be able to say that we did not support something brought by Executive Council. That does not make sense.

A case in point was, I think two meetings ago, when I met with the Executive Council at the Glasshouse to negotiate the Pensions Law. I did that with the blessings of some of my colleagues because I wanted the very best for my people and the only way we could get what we wanted was to sit down at the same table and negotiate it—you give a little, you get a little. What did I get for it? I was kicked in the teeth. While I was out doing that, some of my colleagues got up in here and accused me of boiler-room politics. I will to God that some of us would practice the same, rather than opposing everything and getting nothing for our people. That is the kind of loyalty we have.

On dealing with the necessary prerequisites to recommending any changes to the stated land use and the resort configuration for a five-star hotel, I made the point yesterday that it was immaterial to me whether the five-star hotel carried the name of the Ritz-Carlton, the Waldorf Astoria, or any other five-star hotel. I was only happy that we in the Cayman Islands with 40,000 people, or less, could attract that type of investment when a lot of our neighbours would give their eye teeth to have that type of facility located in their territory.

I also said that reference was made to Vision 2008. There is one little section from the recent publication of Vision 2008 called “Working Together to Shape our Future—Planning Phase and Update” which I would like to share with this Honourable House and the listening public. It states, inter alia: “With these achievements have come new challenges, speaking of our strong economy, low crime rate, good education etc. The Cayman Islands are part of the global economy and the information age. If the islands are to progress and maintain sustainable development a high standard of living for future generations and a viable position in the competitive and changing global economy little can be left to chance.”

I think it was the Third Elected Member for West Bay who alluded to the grave situation that existed during the last recession that these islands experienced in the late 80s to early 90s. This is a situation I would not want to go through again because I was then a Member of Executive Council when we had to try everything we could to keep the economy going. I remember just before that happened that there were a lot of letters in the papers and other sorts of communications on the television, etc., stating that the economy was overheating, that we should slow the economy down. But when the recession hit America—and one Member mentioned that when America gets a cold we have symptoms of pneumonia—we started feeling the pinch here. One of the reasons for the major shift in the '92 election was that we were unable to generate sufficient jobs for our people because of that recession.

I say that to say that anybody who has been cognisant of the global financial situation will know that there are now a number of predictions regarding an impending recession. Even though the United States still shows good economic fundamentals as they are called—good employment, low interest rates, etc., that comprise the economic fundamentals—there is no question that the signs are there. You look at the stock exchanges, the Dow Jones Industrial Average, the NASDAQ and Standard and Poors, and others, and you will see the trend, not to look at the meltdown in Asia; and a similar meltdown in the Latin American countries the global situation is not looking good.

As if that is not bad enough, what is happening to Cayman directly right now? Even though I was referred to as one of the four 'geniuses' who went to England, I wish to thank the Members who selected me to go on that trip, and I believe that they did that because they felt that I was capable of representing this island at that level in that forum. I would like to sit with those Members who were shouting across the floor when the Honourable Minister for Tourism spoke about this same matter, shouting that they were just scare tactics, that they need to take their heads out of the sand. They are not scare tactics, they are realities.

I am not going into a lot of details on this, but the situation that is now occurring through the OECD (the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development), the G7 initiatives on harmful tax competition, the EU Code of Conduct on business taxation, the EC Draft Directives on taxation of interest and savings income, are very serious. And why they are serious for the Cayman Islands is because the UK through Mr. Tony Blair, the Prime Minister, and Chancellor of Exchequer, Gordon Brown, Financial Secretary Dawn Primarolo, and all of the high officials in the UK have stated that they are fully committed to these initiatives.

What will be our position financially? The position financially is hopefully we will be able to meet certain criteria that are being discussed at this point. As I said, I am not able to go into all the details of some of the matters that we are doing to try to cope with these. But the point I want to make is that the G7 countries which comprise the most powerful countries in the world, and when you add G8, which is Russia, you are looking at the most powerful countries in the world. The situation is that they are fully supportive of all the recommendations comprised in the OECD Report, and that the UK from the very top, the Prime Minister and the Chancellor of Exchequer, has stated that they are fully committed to these initiatives.

Further, the Under Secretary for State, who is the Minister for Overseas Territories, Baroness Simons, has stated very clearly that the UK Government is fully committed. And, further, we must understand that of the G7 countries at least four of them are within the European Union—Germany, France, England, Italy, and then the others are Canada, the United States and Japan, G8 is Russia. They too, the European Union, have fully endorsed this report. Despite the way we might jeer and say that these are only frightening tactics, the position is that we might see a change in our whole financial structure.

What does that have to do with the Ritz-Carlton? It has a lot to do with it, Mr. Speaker. Because of the twin pillars of our economy, which are our financial industry and our tourism industry and then you have subsidiaries, like construction and so on. But the two main pillars are the financial industry and the tourism industry. And the importance of that statement is that they work hand-in-glove, they are inter-related. If you see a major change in the financial industry, it is going to have a similar change in our tourism industry. Any negative impact on our financial industry is going to similarly impact negatively our tourism industry.

Now, with the standard of living that we maintain and that we want to continue, and with the understanding that within our financial structure or revenue structure that 50% to 53% represent civil servants' salaries, if some of this revenue is cut back, how will we then be able to maintain the standard of living that has been stated by our people that they want to maintain in the Vision 2008 statement?

Further, whether we approve the Ritz-Carlton or whether this House decides not to do so, the major point here is that we need to be looking at ways and means of diversifying our economy and of attempting to attract the medium to higher level net worth individuals to this island.

As the fifth largest financial centre in the world—the fifth largest banking centre in the world, and that is fifth to London, New York, Tokyo and Hong Kong, if we are to maintain our position we must not only offer a five-star service within our financial industry, we must offer the infrastructure and service within our tourism industry. We cannot have our cake and eat it too. There is no use in saying that, yes, we are fortunate to have the opportunity of getting a Ritz-Carlton in the Cayman Islands, but in the same breath suggest such ridiculous conditions that we make it impossible.

I would have thought that the mover and seconder of this motion would have told us in their opening remarks (hopefully the mover will do so in his closing) that he had examined the checklist of requirements for a five-star hotel/resort. And if this had been done, whether that checklist suggested that the Ritz-Carlton chain would have been satisfied with putting a hotel on block 12 C/11. Perhaps he has done that. I will wait to hear whether he has when he is winding up. Whether I have made up my mind or not—and this is directed to the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town—is a personal decision, but it is important to the country that we know what sort of consideration was given to this motion before it was brought to this House.

Mr. Speaker, let me say again: Any Member who interrupts me, I will deal with while I am speaking.

Yesterday I dealt with the requirements for a five-star hotel and I made the point very clearly that from the triple A requirements that are issued on an annual quarterly basis, one of the requirements of a five-star hotel/resort is a golf course on the premises, not one borrowed from an adjoining property.

Before moving from the financial situation of these islands, I would like to say that Honourable Members should bear in mind that our financial industry, like our tourism industry, is very important to the future of these islands. In the report that was issued by the National Audit Office in May last year on contingent liabilities in the Dependent Territories, it was clearly stated there that the UK (and I am summarising this in my own words) would not smile very kindly at any of its overseas territories that created a liability or a contingent liability for the UK, our Mother country.

From the financial services in the Dependent Territories an analysis was done and it shows that our financial services formed at least 16% of our total gross domestic product. Some people will tell you that it is as high as 30%. When we start eroding that and knowing how much of our current revenue is used up in recurrent expenditure, we can see the problem we would be in if we do not attempt to improve and increase our tourism sector.

One would have thought that in presenting a motion like this that all of the pros and cons, the advantages, the disadvantages, the merits and demerits of this motion would have been dealt with, not only the political rhetoric attached to the motion.

This is too serious a motion for us to play politics with and to try to get votes from. 'To thine own self be true'. We should be true also to the people. How can we on the one hand say yes, I will support your motion, I will even take you on my show and help explain it to the public, but get up in here and try to tell the people that you are totally opposed to it. Talk about misleading the public, that is a classic example of it!

I was very pleased to hear the research that the Honourable Minister made into the subject. He made reference to the results of investigation into the marine biology carried out by a group of scientists. This appeared to have been obtained through the Ministry of Overseas Development. But what was very important to me, and I am sure to the listening public, was that he was able to show the importance of not only the red mangrove, but the black and the white. But, particularly, the importance of the red mangrove to our marine environment and to the ecological balance within that environment.

He pointed out that the red mangrove is the most important group of the mangroves for the protection of these islands as a buffer to hurricanes and other natural disasters, and that it was recommended that a strip of mangrove varying from ten to three hundred metres should constitute such a barrier in the North Sound.

Our laws require that three hundred feet be preserved for that purpose. On this particular point it is interesting to note that not only have the developers agreed to retain the legal limit of the three hundred feet, but in addition, the subdivision that runs next to the three hundred feet is two hundred feet in depth, effectively giving five hundred feet of protection.

I just wonder how many of my honourable colleagues took the time to read that. I have also taken the time to note that certain requirements/conditions will be attached to any approvals that will be given—and I say 'will be given'—by the Planning Department. I will get to that as I move on.

Before dealing with that particular point, I would like to deal with the question of the vacuum that has been caused by the loss of the Holiday Inn Hotel, the Grand Pavilion Hotel, and probably to a smaller extent, the Cayman Islander Hotel. If, and I make this point very clear, this application had been for an additional hotel, my position would probably be much different. But, this hotel, the Ritz-Carlton is proposing to replace the loss of over three hundred rooms in the West Bay beach area.

Let me make it very clear: One of the previous speakers suggested that any support for this motion suggested that I would, or anybody supporting it, support any other project on the West Bay beach. As far as I am concerned, any project on any part of this island will be dealt with on its merit, be it the Dart project, or any other project. And just for the information of this House let me say very clearly that the developers of Mr. Dart's project are quite aware of my sentiments; thus far, I am not sure that the way in which they are going about it is the way that I can support. Hopefully they will show the same courtesy if they have a change of mind and come back with a different procedure. We will come to that when we get there. But, for any Member to suggest that the support of one carries support for another, is misleading this Honourable House and imputing certain improper motives to individuals.

On the question of the vacuum caused, be it the Ritz-Carlton, a Hilton Hotel, whatever, how do we now fill that vacuum that has been caused by the loss of the Holiday Inn Hotel, the Grand Pavilion Hotel and the Cayman Islander? And if it is the case that we want a five-star hotel, then don't on the one hand say, 'Yes, we are glad to have that five-star hotel, but we are not prepared to give you the property you need.' Say to them right out, 'No. You cannot get it because we are not going to touch anything on this side of the road.' But do not, in a simplistic manner suggest to them that they get a few hundred feet there, and that is okay for your five-star hotel.

We need to first understand and appreciate what is required through such a chain as the Ritz-Carlton. What do they require? If we can't work with that, if we can't live with it, say no, we don't want the project. But don't say, 'Yes, we want the project and you do it the way we want to do it.' It doesn't work that way.

Ritz-Carlton replaces those facilities, it is not an addition to those facilities. But you know what is interesting? How many of the critics in and out of this House have taken the time to obtain any scientific proof to support their objections, that it will cause major destruction to the country when, in fact, it is well known, anybody reading the documentation will see that the developers have agreed to comply with the requirements under the law in regard to the protection of our red mangroves and in other areas. Too much politics is being played with this issue.

Reference was also made to the threat to tourism. The Cayman Islands today is one of the premier destinations. How will that fare tomorrow? We all say that we are pricing ourselves out of the market. We have limited resources, sightseeing and otherwise, for tourists. If you are not a diving enthusiast, there is very little else to do.

But, guess what, Mr. Speaker, we are getting a lot of competition. I am reading that already Cuba is attracting over one million people on an annual basis since a few years ago when they seriously started the tourism business. It is only a matter of time when the United States will fully open their arms to Cuba because it is a contradiction right now that the United States is giving most favoured citizenship to China, yet there continuing with the embargo on Cuba. It is only a matter of time.

So we need to develop our tourism sector and we need to move away from the knap-sack tourists and concentrate on the middle-to-upper income net worth individuals. But for you to get the high net worth individuals in this island you can't stick them into some little two-by-four place and tell them to accept it because this is all the Cayman Islands is prepared to give them. If you are going to be competitive then you have to provide competitive facilities.

The Speaker: Are you going on to another—

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Yes, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: Maybe this would be a convenient time to take morning break. We shall suspend for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.36 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12.24 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Debate continues on Private Member's Motion No. 17/98. The Third Elected Member for George Town, continuing.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

When we took the break I was dealing with the vacuum caused by the loss of the rooms at the Holiday Inn, the Grand Pavilion and the Cayman Islander Hotel—over 300 rooms. I stated that a hotel, be it the Ritz Carlton or some other hotel is needed to provide and fill that vacuum. We have heard questions asked, not only in this Honourable House, but also, indeed, outside as to whom will benefit from this development; and whom we are developing for. I would have thought that a rather a simplistic question. I think the answer basically is that we are developing for our people. Now the question can be asked, How many of our people will be employed at the Ritz Carlton? I cannot answer that question.

I do know that within the process of the Immigration Law that any employment that cannot be filled by Caymanians, where they are not available, or willing, to fill the job opportunities that there is a process whereby employers and business people within the country can advertise to have those positions filled.

I am also cognisant of the fact that they took a number of employees to look after the over 300 rooms at the Holiday Inn, the Grand Pavilion and the Cayman Islander Hotel. While it is true that some of those employees are perhaps retired, it is equally true that some of them might be out of a job. That is one area for consideration.

The other area for consideration is that some 300 to 400 children graduate from our schools on an annual basis and only a small percentage go off for tertiary education. A number of them try to get employment locally and not just within the financial industry. Where will these children, the leaders of tomorrow, our citizens, find jobs? It is the duty of every government to ensure that as far as possible it provides job opportunities for its citizens.

I saw a letter that came from the National Trust, and I also had a paper put on my desk a while ago that states, "Our central mangrove wetland needs protection." I cannot agree more. I want to say here now that the individual on this is someone for whom I have the very highest respect because he is a man of honour and integrity.

Also, I received a letter from the chairman of the National Trust, another gentleman for whom I have the very highest respect. He knows that. And, indeed, the executive director is a lady for whom I have the very highest respect, and also the other members.

As I said yesterday, I am a member of the National Trust. I used to be. I hope I have not been struck off. And they are doing a fantastic job. I don't fault them for wanting to protect as much property as possible. They are doing a fantastic job. But we also have a job to do in this Honourable House. And in doing that we have to not only take into account the minimum negative impact on our environment but also ensure that we encourage and maintain sustainable development. I have heard the word used sustainable development without destroying our natural resources. That is a contradiction in term. It is impossible for you to do any type of physical development, such as buildings and roads without destroying some of your natural resources. Of course, I appreciate that we are talking about the mangroves. But I also appreciate that we are talking about 138 acres of mangrove as compared with over 8,000 acres in the Duck Pond area.

I am also cognisant of the fact that the developers are complying with our laws and regulations, and that they have complied thus far with the requirements of the Planning Department. Nobody should be of the impression that certain approvals have not already been granted. I am in receipt of a letter dated 19 January, 1998, from the Central Planning Authority to Humphreys Limited. The subject of that letter is: "Subject: Proposed Hotel, Apartments, Spa, Golf Course, Golf Clubhouse, Thirteen (13) Lot sub-division, Pools (2), Excavation, Overpass, Tennis Courts (4), Bypass Road on Block 12C Parcels 11 & 215."

Of interest, and pertinent to this debate, is what they say here in the first paragraph. It states: "At a meeting held on December 17, 1997, the above application was considered and it was resolved to grant Planning Permission for those structures situated west of the proposed bypass road, that is the beachfront hotel/condo complex, spa, overpass, cabana, two swimming pools subject to the following conditions: . . ." And the conditions are: "That in addition to building permit requirements, that is condition 1 through 7 listed below shall be met before a building permit can be issued." Mr. Speaker, they went on to state these very stringent conditions.

But of interest to me, and even more so than the letter of the 19th was the letter of 27th March, written also to Humphreys Limited from the Central Planning Authority, which stated among other things that in addition to building permit requirements "the following shall be met before any building permit can be issued and any site works commenced. . ." And this is very important that major condition was that "submission of a final com- prehensive environmental assessment report as outlined in the February 1998 document must be complied with. The contents of same shall be to the satisfaction of the Department of Environment and Planning.”

So, Mr. Speaker, before any development can take place on block 12C/215, the developers will have to submit a final comprehensive environmental assessment report. Not only to the satisfaction of the Planning Department, but also to the satisfaction of the Department of Environment.

The impression was given that the developers will be free to go and destroy our natural environment. This is not the case. It will be very closely monitored and the final comprehensive environmental assessment report will not only be to the satisfaction of the developers, but it must also be to the satisfaction of the Planning Department and the Department of Environment. That is a crucial point. And that has not been properly dealt with so far.

We heard mention also made of the amount of money that was received, or is proposed to be received, on the lease agreements. As one individual who has held the Portfolio for Lands during the 1988 to 1992 Government, I do have some experience with valuation. And one of the things I found out, is that valuation of property does not follow any scientific process. There is no specific, scientific method of valuing property. If that were so, then you would not have professionals having such wide disparity in their valuations.

For argument's sake, Lands and Survey valued a freehold of the property in question of $35 million, but Cardiff & Co. valued the freehold for $25 million (that's a $10 million difference), whereas J.E.C. Building valued it for $49 million. So you can see that it has not followed any scientific process.

Further, the lease extension for 47 years had a valuation placed on it by Lands and Survey of $11,900,000; Cardiff & Co. (who was also the head of that an employee of the Lands and Survey Department, Mr. Paul Key) valued it at $8,700,000; whereas J.E.C. (who is one of the leading valuers on the island) valued it for $6.8 million. So how can any of us stand here—non-technical people—and say that this is not a right valuation, what was decided on by Government?

From what I have seen here, the $6 million plus the $5 million towards the bypass road, gives us $11 million which is pretty near the valuation placed by the Lands & Survey Department. We had a valuation from approximately $12 million to as low as $6.8 million. That is a wide disparity.

And this is why I say that there is no scientific method known for land valuation. They use very crude criteria for valuing property. It depends upon the value of property that has been sold. It depends on the value of the property next door to you. There are so many things to take into account. Any comment on how much Government is receiving—the $6 million—I don't think is very valid.

The question that begs to be answered—and it has already been posed: As the fifth largest banking centre in the world, do we need a five-star hotel? Do we have five-star hotels in the countries of our competitors-- one to four? And if we are to maintain our position as number five, do we need to improve our services? Why is it that we are losing a lot of business to places like the Bahamas for group meetings and conferences? The reason being that we do not have suitable conference facilities in these islands to accommodate very large groups. Many of those individuals bring very big revenue support to the economies they visit.

What else is there for us to get out of this project? I am now looking at the merits and demerits of the project. I am trying to present a balanced position because I have already admitted that there is going to be some negative impact on the environment. But against that negative impact we have to meet a very happy balance suitable for our country. Right now we probably have less than six months of revenue in our General Reserves if things went bad in this country tomorrow. What are we doing to try and develop that situation? How can we say that we want to promise our people full employment, but knowing the situation that now exists in world economies, the global situation, we are not willing to do what we have to do to provide a safe and prosperous future for our people.

I think I have also answered the question as to who we are developing for. Mention was made of the $10 million in deferred fees. Yet, I did not hear any mention of the concessions given to the Westin Hotel and other hotels that have been built on this island—concessions we will not receive any money for, because it was given at a reduced rate. What we have here in the deferral of fees is not the same. It will have to be repaid within three years. So it is no true concession. And it is not something that is unheard of. This is done in a lot of countries where major developments take place.

Mr. Speaker, over the period of this development we plan to obtain for our schools, our roads, our infrastructure and for whatever purpose the Government deems fit, an amount of over $100 million in revenue. Then we have Members asking what we are getting out of the project. That is the direct revenue, Mr. Speaker, but what about the economic trickle-down effect of the amount of goods that will have to be purchased and then those goods re-ordered, and the import duty obtained on that? The employment? The salaries paid to employees? And that is being spent within the community and the economy? Much of this was glossed over. I am not going to go into a lot of details on this, I am just touching the high points because I know most Members of this Honourable House, if not all, and the listening public understand what I am saying.

Reference was also made to the 606 acres of land leased out to Benson Greenall in 1950. Some of us refer to the 50s, the 60s and even the early 70s as 'the good old days'. But most of those people you hear referring to those periods as the 'good old days' are people who weren't even around—either they are too young, or they weren't on the island during that period. I am not the oldest, but I am old enough to remember that during the 60s at least (don't know much about the 50s) a lot of the conditions I found on this island were not that good. It is because of that the Government of the day decided to lease the property for £100 a year.

I went through the same problem--that we weren't getting enough money when we approved the SafeHaven project. Yet today, though that project has not developed as much as I would have wished to have seen, it is nonetheless providing needed employment for many Caymanians. And more so, Mr. Speaker, all the prophets of doom who said that we would kill the parrots, and kill out this and that, have been proven wrong. The only decent golf course today is on that property where a lot of our tourists and visitors and local people utilise.

More importantly, it reduced a swampy backwater area, mosquito-infested area, in to one of a prize tourist destination, something the Cayman Islands can be proud of. One only has to drive down to the Links and one can see the beauty of that place. Of course, the golf course is still in a developmental stage but we have much to be proud of. The point I am making is that sometimes a decision has to be made regardless of the amount of opposition received. I received opposition on this motion, but then I have also received mixed signals. I have gotten calls saying, 'provided the property is properly manages, proper environmental impact studies in place' then they feel it is good for the country.

As I said yesterday, it is immaterial to me how the Executive Council wants to vote. From the time this matter came up, I said to my colleagues on the Backbench that I regarded this as a conscience matter, that one had to vote his conscience. Of course, some of my colleagues will not support the project, and will support the motion. I respect their views. That is their democratic right. I am only asking that they respect my views and the way I feel, and the way that I vote.

I alluded to the situation with the OECD Report and so on. And I can only say that the Vision 2008 will mean nothing without sustainable growth in our financial and tourism sectors. While I am committed to protecting our wetlands--because sometimes I have been called a pretty tough conservationist, but I am a realist--I realise that some amount of damage—controlled, minimal negative damage—has to be done when you develop.

I also appreciate that we are talking about an island of 76 square miles of which 42 square miles is all swamp. So some of that swamp will have to be impacted negatively, but what we must try to obtain is the right balance when we do that. In order for us to maintain any semblance of sustainable growth, it is very important that we be as realistic in our approach to developing these islands as possible.

Mr. Speaker, I am going on to another area. I don't know if you want to—

The Speaker: I think this would be a convenient time to take the luncheon break. Proceedings are suspended until 2.30 PM.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.54 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.39 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Proceedings are resumed. Debate continues on Private Member's Motion No. 17/98. The Third Elected Member for George Town, continuing.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Thank you.

When we took the break I had reached the point where I was going to deal with the terms of the lease and the matters contained thereunder. However, before touching on that I wish to clarify any misunderstanding that might have occurred relating to my feeling relating to the OECD Report, the G7, EU and EC Initiatives and not to give the impression that it is something that we do not have the ability to cope with. I feel that we have made some very valuable and beneficial inroads already, and that in time, and with the help of God, we will come out on the winning side. The message I was trying to get across this morning was that it is not a matter that we can be complacent with; it is a matter that deserves serious attention. But I feel that we have the ability to cope with it.

Some of my constituents have said to me, that they haven't been hearing enough of me speaking in the Legislative Assembly. Well, I will try hard not to go on too much longer before I am accused of talking too much. But I try hard not to jump up and talk about every little matter that arises unless I feel that I can make a contribution to the particular issue at hand. I am not one of those who particularly likes the sound of my voice.

To give a more rounded and accurate description of the process of the vesting of lands, that is by the Governor, I wish to refer to the notice of the proposed disposition that was published in the gazette of 14 July, 1998. This is specifically in respect to parcel 11, parcel 215, and parcel 216 of block 12C in the West Bay, South, registration section. The proposal is that a grant of a new lease be made to Humphreys (Cayman) Limited respecting parcel 216 on the same terms as the Head Lease respecting parcels 11 and 215 with the understanding that these three parcels would then be combined into one new parcel which would hereafter be known as the project parcel.

Mr. Speaker, it is interesting and important to note that the developers, if they had cared to, did not have to come to Government to get permission to build on the property because they had 51 years left on the lease and they could have built on the property without coming to Government. But because they wanted an extension of 47 years to take it back to the 99 years, then it was necessary for this matter to come to the House.

So let nobody try to mislead and make the public believe that they could not have gone ahead and utilised the lease property as they saw fit.

Just for the records, parcel 11 comprises approximately 5.5 acres and it is the piece of property on which the Holiday Inn was located which closed for business on 1 May, 1998. The freehold title to this parcel is vested in the Crown, but the leasehold is vested in Wilda M. Humphreys, who then subleased her leasehold interest to HCL for a term of 33 years with effect from 1971. I am giving these details as I feel they should be recorded in the Hansards. This was given with option to renew for a further periods ending 5 April 2049.

Parcel 215 is causing the most concern. This comprises approximately 138 acres and is undeveloped raw land. Again, the leasehold title on this is vested in HH Limited. And they have not subleased or encumbered any part of this and they are now transferring it to HCL.

Parcel 216 is comprised of .68 acre. “The freehold . . . is vested in the Crown and there are no leasehold interests or other encumbrances whatsoever respecting this Parcel.”

It is very important that I should make note of the terms of the proposed disposition in the extension of the proposed lessor.

“‘Developer’ means Michael Ryan together with HCL and other investors. The New Lease and the Lease Term Extension are proposed to be granted in favour of the Developer, subject to the following terms and conditions:

1. At the same time as execution of document respecting the New Lease, the entire leasehold interest respecting a proposed eighty foot wide reserve for the segment of Peninsula Road that is to traverse Parcel 215 is either (i) to be declared (with the Developer’s consent) and gazetted to be a public road reserve or (ii) to be surrendered by the Developer in favour of His Excellency the Governor of the Cayman Islands. The Segment is to include a suitable vehicular bridge to connect the Road where it is to pass over the waterways and access road related to the said project.”

And now, this is very important:

“ 2. As part of the consideration for the Lease Term Extension and for the New Lease, the Developer at its expense shall construct the Segment (including the Bridge) in accordance with such specifications and within such timeframe as may reasonably required in writing by Government; PROVIDED Government shall be entitled to give notice in writing to the Developer requiring that it commence to construct and complete the Segment (including the Bridge) within a reasonable period of time so as to coincide with completion of other adjoining segments of the road.”

“ 3. Also as part of the consideration for the Lease Term Extension, upon the earlier of (i) 31 October 1998 or (ii) execution of variation of lease documentation to give effect to the Lease Term Extension, the Developer shall make a non-refundable payment of US$4,000,000.00 to Government and (on or before 31 October 1999) the Developer shall make a further non-refundable payment of US$2,000,000.00 to Government.”

Perhaps the most important part of this is what I am going to read now:

“ 4. The term of the Head Lease respecting the Project Parcel shall revert to what it would have been but for the Lease Term Extension in any of the following events: . . . ”

That means that if the developer does not comply with the terms of the agreement that the property will revert back as it was originally. And these are the events if they are not honoured that will cause that: (a) If they do not pay the said US$2 million in a timely manner when due, and I have already read that that would be on or before the 31st day of October, 1999; “(b) The Segment (including the Bridge) has not been completed by the expiry of a reasonable period of time required by a notice given to the Developer in accordance with the proviso to paragraph 2 above within which to commence and complete the Segment (including the Bridge); or (c) The Hotel (or an equivalent luxury resort hotel) has not been completed by 1 September 2005 (or such later date as may be deemed necessary by the Developer for reasonable cause shown).”

And finally, “Formal approval for the New Lease and the Lease Term Extension shall be in the form of a Licence approved by the Executive Council of the Cayman Islands Government for signature by the Governor.” Mr. Speaker, nothing could be clearer. The Government has secured that our people will be well protected under this licence. There is no question that if the developer does not comply that he has a lot to lose.

I want to also refer to correspondence, one sent to Members of the Legislative Assembly, by the Senior Vice President of the Company. It was referred to earlier, so I will not read through it. But basically it was written to the First Elected Member for West Bay and it states that up to 100 educational scholarships over a period of time will be arranged at the Cayman Islands Community College for Caymanians in the bar, restaurant, and hotel industry.

But in addition to this, what I found that showed good faith and a certain degree of social conscience was that a number of individuals who were employed with the Holiday Inn were written to by the company and I would like to read that letter.

“Dear Sirs/Madams:

“When we began the planning for the Ritz Carlton Grand Cayman Resort, Mr. W McKeever Bush requested that we examine the possibility of creating a benefit for the employees of the Holiday Inn who were over the age of 55, and placed in the position of having to retire as a result of the closure of the hotel.

“We are pleased to advise you that we have committed a maximum of $250,000 to support those of you affected in this manner by this closure. The money will be paid out to 27 employees on an equal basis, with monthly payments for a period of 24 months. This benefit is in addition to any other pen- sion or benefit you have already received, or will receive as a result of this closure. This benefit will only be paid when the Ritz Carlton Grand Cayman proceeds, therefore the payments will begin at the onset of the construction of the Ritz Carlton Grand Cayman Resort.”

And this was copied to Members of the Legislative Assembly. I read that to show that there is a social conscience and that the developers appear to be acting in good faith.

I have attempted to examine the pros and the cons of this project, the advantages and the disadvantages, the merits and the demerits. From the information available to me I have found no good cause why the lease extension on this project should not be approved, subject, of course, to the conditions which I mentioned earlier regarding approvals from the Central Planning Authority and the Department of Environment. Thank you.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

What I will do is to set out what I believe is important to the people of the Cayman Islands about this project. I will also deal with the allegations that have been levelled at me as usual, and I will look at the project from the point of view of its importance to the Cayman Islands and my experience over the past twenty years having served my country, the Cayman Islands, and having worked hard, not just for the country, but in the country, and how one has to balance the advantages and the disadvantages of each project.

The history of the Cayman Islands economy, goes back to the pre-1950 period when the islands were obviously islands that time forgot in which the people were honest and hardworking, a trait that not everyone has in this day and age. Hardworking people who struggled to make a living, who worked hard and raised their families in a country that at that stage was totally undeveloped.

In 1950 our forefathers I guess then persons in Government felt that if they leased for 99 years 606 acres of land to Mr. Benson Greenall for the nominal sum of £100 that that sacrifice of the lease of that large parcel of land would assist the development of the islands.

And you have to remember, going back to the 1700s tracts of one thousand acres of land were actually granted to people in these islands, one being Mary Bodden, who was granted one of three large tracts then.

So this is not unusual that our forefathers took a decision to lease this land. And that decision proved to be the decision that produced the mainstay of the Cayman Islands economy, tourism. If that decision had not been made we may well have not only missed the boat, but we might have developed at a far slower pace.

I merely state this to show that in this life one cannot get everything one wants for nothing, even though there are people within our society who believe in sticking out their hand from time to time and getting something for nothing.

We have moved from that stage in the 1950s to see the Mosquito Research Control Unit come into effect. We have seen the mosquito problem controlled which was critical. In fact, it was probably the second most critical thing for the development of tourism by, once again, a trade-off—the dyking and flooding with salt water of the fresh water swamp and/or the draining of the swamp. This obviously seriously affects the mangroves, the swamp, but it was necessary for the survival of the economy of this country.

And in later years, the mid 1960s, people like Sir Vassel Johnson, once again, produced legislation and we had the birth of the offshore industry which once again had to be a trade-off in certain areas. Together tourism and the off-shore industry are what have put us where we are today, together with hard work. I stress that, Mr. Speaker—hard work!

The hotel industry is extremely important. It is critical that this continue at a high standard, not only to support tourism, but to support the financial industry in the country. We have seen the Cayman Islands go from a country with a lot of land, a lot of swamp that was never used, a lot of beach that was never used, to a developed island.

And the tradeoffs are never easy, but one has to apply the weighing of what one loses by what one gains, and to look at it not only from the point of view of preserving as much of the country that can be preserved while allowing the country to develop and employment and progress in the country to continue.

Sometimes to understand that, one needs to have had experience in business. It is impossible for someone who has never really been in business to understand how the business of the country works and to look at it from a point of view of not only what is good for Cayman, but also from how business operates.

We have seen the closing of the Holiday Inn, and the Clarion Grand Pavilion with some 300 rooms which has left a void in the tourism industry. And the Ritz will bring in 360 rooms adding only 60 rooms, but at a very high quality. This is what will assist the economy, a high quality five-star hotel that is replacing a hotel of a very low, or medium low I would say, quality. This was put forward very ably and capably by the Third Elected Member for George Town, who bore out clearly the many benefits that that type of hotel will bring. The Minister for Tourism also dealt with this and pointed out its importance.

When we see moves to put stumbling blocks, or blockades in the way of progress in the tourism industry, it is putting blockades in the way of progress for the people of this country. We have to bear in mind that we are not the only country with beaches. Cuba is next door. We know what that country potentially has and we know that it will be our competitor in the not-too-distant future.

We also know that the Bahamas has rejuvenated its tourism and its finance industry, and that we are facing problems in many areas as well as severe competition.

Against this background we who have been in business understand the effects the economic recession in the Far East may bring. We have seen what were once the jewel economies of the world—Singapore, Australia, New Zealand—stagger under what were regarded as sustainable economies and find themselves now facing serious economic problems.

At the same time, we have on the horizon problems that are basically distant and were dealt with in depth by the Third Elected Member for George Town who travelled to the UK and ably represented the Cayman Islands there with the OECD.

Against this background, it is not a time for this country, provided the safeguards are put in—and I stress that throughout whatever I say, provided the safeguards are put in—to look at an investor who is going to bring in a Ritz Carlton that is undoubtedly the top, at least one of the top hotels in the world and say, 'Go away, we don't want you.'

If that approach had been taken back in 1950 when Mr. Benson Greenall approached the Government, then we may all have been unemployed when we came in to the Legislative Assembly this time because that industry may not have been there to give those with ambition the right to jobs.

The Ritz Carlton is a five-star, or a five-diamond hotel, and if we expect to have that type of resort—I should say resort rather than hotel—(and without going into the real detailed areas of this), then we have to allow what is necessary for it to be a five-diamond resort. This has been ably dealt with by the Minister of Tourism and the Third Elected Member for George Town. But I would just like to stress that of the many things that are required for this, is the extensive list of amenities that require to be built and operated by such a hotel, by a five-star hotel. This includes (and I will only refer here to areas of it—the summary part, which states: “. . . property facilities and operations exemplify an impeccable standard of excellence while exceeding guest expectations in hospitality and service. These renown properties are both striking and luxurious, offering many extra amenities.” These include among other things extensive ballroom, banquet and conference rooms which could never be built on the seaside with a hotel of that sort, as well as a golf course that is within the property and that can be walked to by guests.

So what we have is, in my view, a package of one of the best hotel chains, or resort chains in the world, and it is one in which we cannot say to them, 'Come, and do not build the amenities that you need to bring it up to the type of five-star hotel the Ritz Carlton is.' Just about every Caribbean island . . . I was at a conference in the Bahamas in February and I can tell you that any one of the islands here, not just in the Caribbean but anywhere would welcome having the prestige and the investment that a Ritz Carlton can bring to the country.

A lot was said about a sustainable economy. As I said before, we have seen the ideal sustainable economies such as Singapore, Australia, New Zealand, reel under an economic recession. But the most sustainable investment has to be bricks and mortar so to speak. When $60 million or $100 million of concrete is put in a building with as many furnishings and facilities, that brings stability to a country because it shows faith in the country's stability. Stability and continuity is then guaranteed to the country. But in return the Government and this Legislative Assembly must deal in a reasonable way with the application that is before this House today.

That application deals only with an extension of the lease of about 52 years up to 99 years. It really does not deal with the use of the property, the planning, even though this has obviously been dealt with within the arguments that have been put forward here.

The lease that was granted to Mr. Greenall for the 606 acres had a section in it, which I would like to read because I think it is necessary. It says: “The Lessee [in this instance when it is assigned it would mean the Ritz owners] shall have the right but shall not be obliged to build and maintain upon the demised land in addition to the said hotel: houses, shops, cafes, cabanas, offices, banking and commercial houses, shipping and airline agencies, theatres, night clubs, country clubs, bathing establishments, golf courses, polo grounds, race courses, [I would assume that wasn't race horse courses, I would hope] sports grounds, air-fields and all other erections as may be necessary or desirable in connection with the said hotel, or with the development of the demised lands as a tourist resort. PROVIDED, however, that the consent of the lessor in writing to such other erection shall be first had and obtained but such consent shall not be unreasonably withheld.” That is very clear.

The people who now hold the leases on the 606 acres of land, not just the 134 acres before this House, have the right under this lease granted by Government to do these things. And whether this lease is extended or not, it does not make a difference with this clause. Therefore what is being done today has to be looked at in the light that the Ritz and the other owners of the 606 acres of land have the right to do anything that is allowed by Planning, obviously, within this property. But the right goes further than is normally seen in freehold properties because the Government itself has granted these rights. Government, obviously, would not breach any contract or lease, or derogate from the rights that are set out in it.

What is happening here today does not affect the actual use of the property. I need to make that very clear. The right to use that property, even it is only for 52 years is clearly spelled out in the lease to Mr. Greenall of the 606 acres for £100 that was signed back in 1950.

The Minister for Tourism very ably pointed out the benefits to the country and in effect it is that this investment in the vicinity of $200 million (normally a multiplier of two to four times is taken on what the country gets from it) which was estimated somewhere between $400 million and $800 million is an investment we cannot afford to lose.

This only relates to the first phase of the project. It is a substantial amount in that area, perhaps more in relation to the following phase. But it will fill the void of the 300 rooms we have lost because this is important to the tourism industry, that we do not see a shrinking to this extent and this rapidly because both hotels went out of business at about the same time, well, one was converted to commercial property, offices and that sort of thing.

We have to protect not only the mangrove but all natural resources in this country. And we have to weigh very carefully anything that we do. But the same way as our forefathers in 1950 had to weigh basically the giving away of 606 acres of property to begin the country moving, we have to weigh the investment that is at hand against what is being lost.

More than one-half of the island is swamp. Forty-two square miles out of 76 square miles of Grand Cayman is mangrove and swamp. I am a member of the National Trust, so is my family, and I have always been. Where I differ in relation to how one goes about protecting that 42 acres (sic) [square miles] is that I believe that the aim has to be first to try to protect the vast majority of it; the central mangrove wetlands. The effort being put into very small amounts of swamp, that effort [should be] turned to dealing with the 8,800 acres, a very large amount of land in the central mangrove wetlands, and preserve that first. That is, to a large extent, not dyked, not flooded by the Mosquito Research Unit, it is very deep swamp and once the progress is to preserve the most important areas, I don't think either the National Trust or anybody in this House would differ that that central mangrove wetland is the most important part of the swamp land -- an extremely large part of the swamp land.

That should, in my view, be where a lot of effort is put towards and what we really have at times is the move to get everything with no compromise. That is not the way life is. Life is a compromise. And it is better, and I have personally said this to the Trust, it is better to preserve and get 80% or 90% of what you are going for and then work on the balance of what remains than to have happen what has happened over the years, that in all of the effort that has gone into opposing small areas of swamp that is already cut up . . . in fact, when the Harquail Bypass extends through it, it is going to be cut up even worse. And to first try to come to reason and get and protect and spend time towards raising money or lobbying for money from Government to buy, because we cannot take, people's land. And that is very clear in our law. We have to pay for land that is either zoned out, that it can't be used, or in which the use is reduced.

Surely, when the important area is preserved, turn one's effort towards the smaller areas because I do not believe that the most important swamp is the 134 acres in this project. The fringe is very important and that is being preserved. It is very clear that the most important area is the red mangrove fringe.

I guess what I am saying is that if the National Trust has to fight on all fronts—which it has been doing for a very long time—I am giving this advice: I have in the past stated to them that I believe it is better to try and preserve and get the most important parts now and preserve it, rather than what has happened for the last fifteen years.

There have been constant fights on areas of mangrove and in the end, with all due respect, very little has been achieved.

Perhaps I am not making myself as clear as I should, but what I am saying is that if the central mangrove wetlands which is the vast majority of land in this country is so important, the Trust should spend its time going towards it to get that land. Either the Trust must raise the money, or Government must pay it. And if Government has to pay money—and it is going to be a vast sum of money for the amount of mangrove the Trust is looking at—then we must get money from somewhere. It does not make sense to then oppose small projects of mangrove which would bring in large sums of money to the country which could be used to help the Trust to buy the really important extensive mangrove swamp in the country.

I guess sometimes if we do not compromise a little and get a lot, sometimes what happens in the end is that we get nothing at all. When I say that, it seems to me that the effort of the country—not just the Government and the Trust—should be looking at the vast majority of virgin mangrove swamp which is in the central mangrove wetlands.

The Harquail Bypass was put in over swamp. We all drive on it. Has it damaged swamp to the extent where we are so serious about it that one doesn't use it? It is, once again, a trade off. I am sure that everyone alike, whether it is those who are very pro-conservation or not, drive the road. The road drives over swamp. It is a trade off to get a good road. The rest of this road going down to SafeHaven, which is another good project that adjoins this, will go through swamp. And everyone will use it. It is a trade off in life.

My advice now, and very much in the interest of the National Trust, is that if I were going to try to look at preserving in perpetuity for posterity the swamplands of the country, the amount of effort that was spent on this piece of swamp in an area where it is basically surrounded by dredged up land anyhow, would be to put it in the central mangrove area and try to get that first.

Once the Trust has that, they have preserved a very important area. I will, as I told the Trust before, assist in any way that I can to preserve as much of the central mangrove wetlands and anywhere else as I can, as this country can. But, at the end of the day, we cannot stop development totally which is basically, with all due respect, what the National Trust is in effect saying, 'Do not touch any swamp.' There are areas of minor swamp that may have to be sacrificed for the country to move forward and for the funds to be raised to be able to pay for the important areas.

And those Members who have really never had a business, and who I hear chuckling, would really never understand what a business approach to things is. Because it is all well and good to say that you are going to take people's land, like in the central mangrove wetlands, but you must pay them. This country must pay, and the Trust must pay for whatever land they wish to take to preserve. And after 15 or 20 years or whatever it seems clear to me that if the Trust is going to get the central mangrove wetlands then money must be raised by the Trust or appropriated by this House, or both, because it has to be a two-way street to assist with preserving these mangrove wetlands.

The Vision 2008 which I know has been criticised by a few vision-less Members states, and I would like to read the three important areas of this: “We will develop and implement a growth management plan to achieve and maintain a balance between the natural and built environment.” Very good strategies. “We will protect our natural environment, particularly the central mangrove and other wetlands, the North Sound coral reef from further degradation.” Very good. But these have to be read together because it points clearly to the fact that if the country is to move forward then there has to be a balance. And finding that balance is never easy.

It has probably been one of the most difficult things that I have had to deal with in my 20 years in politics and serving this country. Development is never something that is totally within the ambit of any country. There are external forces and sometimes things move too fast; sometimes things move too slow. But at the end of the day there has to be a balance.

“Strategy 13 says: “We will ensure that Government, in partnership with the Tourism and Finance industries strengthens plans for the continuing success of these two critical sectors and we will identify opportunities for diversification.” Very important.

I guess what we have to bear in mind is that at the end of the day when you have the input of people who say no more development and people who say too much development that the balance in between is found. That goes for give and take and compromise in life.

The sensible balance that I believe needs to be reached is to take the most important areas of the mangrove, like the central wetlands, acquire it, preserve it, and we have to understand that the trade-off sometimes for that has to be continued development in other areas.

The visitors to these islands, especially in Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, many of them do come for the environment and to see as much of those islands in their natural state. That too is an important aspect because tourism to the Cayman Islands is something that we have to ensure that it not only continues but that the quality which means the input, the economic input into the islands is raised to a higher level. That, I believe will provide the funds to preserve in the natural state much of what remains.

The motion that came before the House back in July of this year, the present motion, had four operative or resolve sections. I think perhaps the date of filing may be wrong on this, it says 4 July—

The Speaker: It was August 4th.

Hon. Truman M. Boddin: While it refers to 17 July—

The Speaker: It should be August 4th.

Hon. Truman M. Boddin: Sorry?

The Speaker: It should be August 4th.

Hon. Truman M. Boddin: Yes, sir.

This motion sought to basically destroy and to block a Ritz Carlton being built in the Cayman Islands because what it sought to do was impossible, as we have seen, for a five-star hotel to carry out.

The motion itself is one that was subject to a proposed amendment, one which proposed to totally remove the last three resolve sections. In other words, the proposed motion (sic) [amendment] would have actually, if carried, changed the motion before the House into a totally different motion. It goes to show the roundabout turn that was made when the reality of what the present motion will do to this project . . . because income over the next few years of $100 million is not something to be sneezed at or turned away.

The motion before the House is a very negative one. It basically says do not allow the project as a five-star Ritz Carlton project to go on. And it has no alternative. The alternative of going back and negotiating on the lease and giving it to the Trust is the sort of proposal that comes from someone who does not understand business.

There is a 52-year lease there where the owners can do literally anything they wish with the land. Why in the world would they give it back to Government? There is no alternative. Any one can produce the negative side of a matter. Very few come up with better alternatives. That is where they sort out the businessman from the philosopher; the difference between action and talk.

This motion as it stands is one which has put up unpractical solutions with no alternative at all. It would lose this country (if it is passed in the form it is) an investment of $100 million; $400 million or $500 million at the end of the day; $100 million of direct income to Government and in return there would be nothing on the site and the country would be 300 rooms short on the tourism side.

The proposed amendment at least provided an attempt at a practical solution, even though I believe that if the mover and seconder had known the details of the requirements for a five-star hotel, then they would have extended this much further when the requirement for a golf course was realised. But the proposed amendment basically nullifies the motion before the House. The seconder of the original motion, the seconder of the proposed amendment is the same person. This is a very clear example, as mentioned earlier, . . .

Mr. Speaker, if the proposed amendment nullifies the motion then while it is possible it is totally impractical and unheard of to support two opposing motions—one on the proposed amendment and the other one a motion before the House.

So I am not too sure how that dilemma is going to be overcome. And also the mover of the proposed amendment also supports the proposed amendment. How at this stage, having put up something that was a lot better than the original motion, but which actually removed, if it had been passed, from the original motion the whole substance (there would be nothing left) will now be able to come back having put up a better alternative in the proposed amendment and vote for the original motion that is before the House. It just doesn't seem practical. It is obviously legally possible, but I guess there we get into the difference between practicality and possibility.

So, I see the proposed amendment to the motion as really a deadly strike against the motion itself. If it had been passed it would have destroyed the present motion before the House. Definitely, the mover and the seconder of the proposed amendment obviously had to feel that the original motion was so defective that they would move and second—that is the First Elected Member for George Town, and the seconder was the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town—the proposed amendment which would have negated to a large extent the motion before the House.

To be frank, if the Standing Orders had dealt with what the practicality of the situation was, there would probably have been no original motion before the House. That conflict goes to show how little thought-out this original motion that is before the House is. And I am going on to deal with the motives behind that because while the seconder of the original motion may not have known certain things when he seconded it, the revelations after that are extremely revealing and lack transparency. And I will deal with that in detail.

From the point of view of the proposed amendment and the present motion, the three Opposition Members have in effect, in my view, destroyed to a large extent the motion before the House, and if it were looked at from a practical point of view should also feel obliged to vote against their own motion.

[Members' laughter]

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: But practicality sometimes never comes into effect when politics dominate. While I am on this area, or just coming off the area relating to the mangrove—

The Speaker: If you are going to a new area, perhaps we could take the break.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Yes, sir, that would be good.

The Speaker: We shall suspend for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.53 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.45 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed.

I will entertain a motion for the suspension of Standing Order 10(2).

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 10(2)

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I move the suspension of Standing Order 10(2) to allow the House to proceed until 6.30 PM as agreed.

The Speaker: I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED. STANDING ORDER 10(2) SUSPENDED TO ENABLE THE HOUSE TO CONTINUE BUSINESS UNTIL 6.30 PM.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I would like to turn to the question of notice to the public that was raised by Opposition Members. The documents relating to this motion were laid in this House on 17 July of this year which gives two and one-half months, approximately, to date. A very large amount of documents were laid. In fact, it may be more documents than strictly required by the law. And that goes toward showing the transparency, but also giving the public and the Members of the Legislative Assembly very ample time.

Those documents could have been laid, and the motion taken in the same session which means that the public would only have had two or three weeks, or a month. In fact, two and one-half months have been given. There have been discussions on this on CITN, the Fourth Elected Member for George Town had a lot of expensive air time on it. It has been in the Caymanian Compass. It has been on the radio.

From the Planning point of view... for this motion there has been a gazettal and also on the Caymanian Compass on 13 July, notification of the laying of the documents. Under Planning there have also been notices in the Caymanian Compass. So there has been ample time given to the public and to everyone. No one can really criticise either by saying that there is not enough time, or saying that the documents that have been laid in this House are not sufficient. In fact, the list of documents is probably about an inch thick and basically gives everything relating to the project very extensively.

There has been, or attempted to be, some criticism of a section in the regulations that were passed in this Honourable House, approved on the basis that the regulations seemed to only apply to this project. Regulation 7(3) of the Development and Planning Regulations is one of a general set of regulations and they will benefit, as will all the other regulations in it any person local, non-local, who falls within the ambit of the section. The section of the regulations basically allows the combination of hotel and a strata.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order.

POINT OF ORDER

The Speaker: Let me hear your point of order, please.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: The Minister is saying, and I am assuming, I think fairly, that he is referring to my contribution where he says that it was implied that it was said that these regulations or these amendments seem to apply only to this project. If it is what I said that he is referring to, sir, I said that it was tailor-made for the project. I did not say for a minute that it would not benefit future projects. So I did not say that it was only for this project, and that is what the Minister is saying now.

The Speaker: If it is a regulation it is understood that it will be good for posterity so until it is amended –

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I did not call that Honourable Member's name. How touchy we get late in the afternoon!

The Speaker: But the explanation has been made. Please continue.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The regulation is very clear. It is a general regulation and anybody in the future who wishes to benefit under it can do so. The whole Development Plan and Regulations and the whole package that came to this House was approved by this House. Many of the changes to the Development Plan, changes to the Regulations obviously came out of representations made. And there were hundreds, sometimes thousands, if you looked at it in the plan, of representations made in different areas. This is in the area of planning.

We have to remain at the cutting edge of the profession and I am very happy to say that regulations such as this and the Development Plan that went with it will benefit this country, and have already started to show the benefits. There is no one in this House who can say that the Planning Department has not been transformed in the last two years to a stage where some applications are being dealt with in a day or two that were taking 42 days.

A press release is about to come out saying that where inspections are set up the inspectors must get to the site within 15 minutes, otherwise call through to the Director of Planning. I am getting, I believe, a very good job done there. But with it has to go the innovation to amend the plans and the regulations to keep up with the times.

This regulation-- there is one just above it that was also amended not that long ago that deals with a similar thing. There are a lot of amendments in this that are for the benefit of the islands. It is very easy to read something sinister or mischievous into anything. That is a very simple thing to do. But when a person alleges something it should be well thought through before allegations that are wide and broad such as this, are made.

The Legislative Assembly here passed these regulations. No Member here can say that they can't read and they don't understand what is before the House. There was some attempt this time, and other times, to talk about using or bending, or whatever, regulations. But one good day when I think the time is right I will show this House how regulations were bent to suit one person, and the damage that it did and continues to do.

But I learned one thing from some of my contemporaries in this House: There are some things that you just leave until the right time and it leaves one to think about them, as I am always reminded when the threats are made to me about matters such as this amending regulation. Tactics is something that one can always learn, so that they remain until the right time.

Another area that was raised . . . and there seems to be some obsession, nearly, with leadership. One of the things that is constantly thrown is that there is no leadership, or not good enough leadership, or we need a chief minister to lead, or whatever. Mr. Speaker, look where this country has come without that type of leader.

I was looking at today's paper--independent countries with all of this 'leadership', and I am sorry for a lot of these, but on page two was a call by Jamaica for aid. Okay? And we are looking at the pearl of the Caribbean and where this obsession with leadership in the independent countries has taken them.

Communication: The First Elected Member for George Town had a lot to say on communication, basically that Government should have communicated and things would have been all well and good. But communication is a two-way street. And when I get into dealing in detail with that type of transparency we will see.

A motion was filed, the motion we have now, and nobody came to the Government and said we are filing a motion. Nobody sat down and explained anything to Government. No communication.

An amendment was put to the motion, a proposed amendment . Nobody came to Government, sat down and said 'We are putting an amendment to the motion. You all get together and see what we can do.' We also had (and I am going to deal with that in detail) the meetings by the Fourth Elected Member [for George Town] with Mr. Ryan and his lawyer, Mr. Putterill. Nobody invited Government to that. No communication. Further than that, there was a big Backbench meeting with Mr. Ryan, I understand two Members, the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay, and the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town may not have been there. No communication with Government. In fact a lot of this, like these letters, had to be unearthed and even then there was the attempt to try to keep it all secret.

What I am saying is that the Backbench, the Opposition, if they wish to have communication, it's two ways. There is no good in saying 'Government doesn't communicate.' We laid everything we had on the Table of this House. It is a one inch thick document, and a series of things including public meetings on this went on. There was no communication with Government.

What I am really saying is that you cannot have the Opposition criticising Government for not communicating, when they are not communicating at all either. So, what is good for one, must be good for the other.

There was quite a bit of hullabaloo by the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town about Mr. Orren Merren, imputing conflict. But what is very clear is that the rules of the Trade and Business Licensing Board make it very clear that “if a member of the board has any personal or pecuniary interests direct or indirect in any matter, which is to be determined by the Board, he/she shall, if present at the meeting of the Board at which such matter is to be determined, as soon as practicable after the commencement disclose the fact and shall not take part in the consideration or discussion of such matter or vote on any question with respect thereto.”

Once again, wild imputations that smear. And that unfortunately came after a statement that two minutes before said that (referring to me) using privileged position here to malign people who are not here to use the same forum to defend themselves. Six lines later, the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town launches into someone who is not before the forum, has no way of representing himself.

Mr. Speaker, speaking generally, when you say not to do something, and you do it, it ranges on hypocrisy. So there can be no doubt. . . well, I'm not going on to say what else I was going to say there. But there can be no doubt that the Board and Mr. Orren Merren are reputable people and they abide by the rules, the same as we have rules in this House. Everyone at times has conflicts of interests. When they arise, one discloses it and one doesn't vote.

But, you know, it comes back to what was said by a Member earlier: When a Caymanian is seen getting something out of business, then other Caymanians take and attack and try to keep them from getting anywhere. The First Elected Member for West Bay and Mr. Orren Merren are in that bracket. And look at what has been done there. There are other lawyers involved. Have we heard anything about Hunter & Hunter, or W. S. Walker & Co.? No. Have we heard anything about other real estate agents or brokers? No. But a couple of Caymanians are involved and then we find this, whatever one calls it, jealousy, or attempt to pull them down. Instead of trying to help our countrymen, unfortunately this is what happens at times. As one Member put it: No man is a hero in his own country.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: After that laugh, let me say this: I wonder if one would have laughed if the air-conditioning contract that was trying to be negotiated down in the cemetery that day had gone to one of the Members in here. Would we have had a laugh at that too? Or to one of the companies with one of the Members. . . maybe it was that if it had been spread out to more people it would have been different! That jealousy is—

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order.

POINT OF ORDER

The Speaker: Let me hear your point of order, please.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, I don't know about anybody else, but what that Minister just said in his own sly, shy way is imputing that I may be easily 'on the take'—I do not know what the word is for that. [Inaudible remarks] No, no, no. Hold on! That is my interpretation. And he, nor any man born, don't do that to Kurt Tibbetts! That is what I understand him to be saying.

Mr. Roy Bodden: That is what he's saying!

The Speaker: I can't see the point of order there. He said that it may be spread out. How can you. . . Under what Standing Order are you—

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: I don't know. And you are usually very helpful, sir, because you are supposed to know them.

I understand what that man just said.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, let me just clear this up very simply. I referred to nobody in here on being 'on the take.' I would never do something like that. What I was saying was that if other Members had legally, legitimately, had a piece of the action, the same as one Member has, or a piece of the business, and Mr. Orren Merren has, it may have been different. But I would never allege that Members are 'on the take.'

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order.

[Inaudible interjections]

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I said that I would never allege that Members here are 'on the take'.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order. What was that, sir, if that was not imputing false and improper motives indicating that Members of this Honourable Legislative Assembly, had they been given a little piece of the action, would have agreed with it?

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Exactly!

The Speaker: Are you calling this under Standing Order 35? Offensive and insulting language? What are you—

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker—

The Speaker: Let me deal with one. I can't deal with three at one time.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, imputing false and unavowed motives, sir.

The Speaker: I think the Minister said he was not doing that.

Mr. Roy Boddén: Mr. Speaker, what the Minister has said, sir, in his explanation, and what he has said in his original text, clearly is that, sir.

Would you like us to get the transcript, sir? The Hansard?

The Speaker: I don't know what more the Minister can do. He said he did not impute it, and now you are saying that he did. It is a matter of your opinion against his.

Mr. Roy Boddén: Mr. Speaker, I can only say, sir, that I hope it doesn't evolve into the law of the jungle.

The Speaker: Just, out of an abundance of caution, just—

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Mr. Speaker, I imputed nothing, and I am going to move on.

The Speaker: Please.
The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

POINT OF ORDER

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order, the point of order being that the Minister did impute improper motives on the part of Members. And it is just as if he imputed improper motives on a part of a political party, it would be the same as imputing improper motives on the part of an individual. And we need to look at the transcript to see that he referred to this generally, not specifically to any Member, but general enough that the imputation of improper motives was clear. I would like him to withdraw it.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, would you just withdraw that so that we can get on with this because it is neither here nor there.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Mr. Speaker, I know what I said, so I am happy to withdraw anything that they understood to the contrary. I withdraw it, and I am going to move on.

The Speaker: Thank you.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: But, Mr. Speaker, I want to go on to deal with the question of transparency. A lot has been said in here about transparency, a lot of allegations have been cast in relation to this.

We have two letters, one from Mr. Bruce Putterill, Hunter & Hunter, which is laid on the Table of the House, relating to a meeting with the Fourth Elected Member for George Town that sets out in it. Not only was the Fourth Elected Member [for George Town] supportive of the project, generally, but was supportive to such a stage that that Member was prepared to invite Mr. Ryan onto the television show he has. Was that letter disclosed, or that meeting, rather, that the letter sets out?

Transparency, Mr. Speaker, where has it all gone? It has gone beyond communication now. Not only was there no communication of that, but that meeting was held. And the two hour public meeting that the Fourth Elected Member for George Town had, did he tell the public about that? I don't know. I can't remember seeing it. In fact, there was a lot of surprise when these disclosures came out.

Another one that I knew nothing about, nor [did] the public, was the meeting where the Fourth Elected Member [for George Town] got Mr. Michael Ryan, the person involved in the Ritz project, and brought him along for a Backbench meeting.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order.

POINT OF ORDER

The Speaker: Let me hear your point of order, please.

Dr. Frank McField: If the Minister is meaning this literally, that I got him and brought him along for a Backbench meeting, then he is misleading the House.

The Speaker: That is not a point of order. He is quoting from letters that have been tabled in this House which—

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: Please continue.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: I am sure with that PhD—which I am going to come to a little bit later—the Member knows what I mean.

He had a meeting put together which, obviously, Mr. Ryan attended. All, apparently, in support of this project. And, you know, the most important thing about this, in all of this transparency that we hear about, did this come out publicly? Telling the people 'I supported the project, but I changed my mind and filed a motion against it'? That's very important, Mr. Speaker. Transparency is like communication—it works both ways.

And, you know, talk is cheap. We hear a lot of talk about transparency. Now, when the facts are coming out, we are really seeing who is transparent and who is not; who is consistent and continuous and who is not. Mr. Speaker, this country can only survive with stability and continuity when decisions are taken to move in a specific direction there has to be continuity on it.

On transparency, Mr. Speaker, has any disclosure been made of who pays for the television programs, or perhaps any other television programmes that the Fourth Elected Member [for George Town] has on television? Has there been any disclosure or transparency in that area? It's very important, Mr. Speaker, very important. Who supports and pays to support television programmes or—to go a little further, Mr. Speaker, has there been disclosure as to the benefit from any form of sponsorship or financial or material support as a Member of the Legislative Assembly is given to the Fourth Elected Member? I have not heard of any in the House, or on the television, but it is fairly very important to the public if transparency is to be what it is.

And what we do know, Mr. Speaker, at one stage, back sometime (looks like February) of this year, yes '98, sponsors were disclosed by the Fourth Elected Member for George Town. Sponsorship, or financial support, or material support as a Member of the Legislative Assembly. That disclosure was on Quarry Products, Island Companies. And the three names given were Dick Christiansen, Renard Moxam and John Ray. Have these disclosures been made publicly? Well, they are important for the public to know.

There was criticism that (not this time, sometime back) by one of the Members about some people, some poor people—and I give at times to people who come to the Assembly as well—of their asking for money at times, and those who I believe need assistance I will help. But you know, Mr. Speaker, that is one thing. The question of transparency requires that important things that the public should know. . . and, by all means, Mr. Speaker, the Fourth Elected Member of George Town has called the word 'transparency' far more (I believe) than anybody in this Honourable House. It requires that material information such as the meetings that were held and the change that came about. And, Mr. Speaker, why did that change come about? What I am going to say is what I believe the scenario was.

From the meetings and the allegations made in the letters it is clear that the Fourth Elected Member for George Town did support, in some way, the Ritz-Carlton project, at least at the times those letters allege. I know, and when the First Elected Member for West Bay was called a liar by the Fourth Elected Member [for George Town] in relation to this, the Fourth Elected Member [for George Town] came to me, when he was supporting it, and asked me to try to get the project in here, the documents in, and try to deal with it. And that is the truth, and it supports what the First Elected Member for West Bay said, and what these two letters said. And it wasn't only me, as a Minister that the Fourth Elected Member [for George Town] came to, he spoke to at least one or two other Ministers about this, at least one that I know about.

My view is that the Fourth Elected Member [for George Town] did a roundabout turn and changed and opposed this motion at a time after the motion against the Minister for Agriculture failed to go through. Because, I would suggest, the Fourth Elected Member [for George Town], as he has imputed from what I can see in some statements here, was upset that the Minister for Agriculture was laying the documents for this project on the Table and he felt (that Member) that one of the reasons was that he would not support this Ritz-Carlton project, but would object to it, one of the reasons was the failure of that motion.

Obviously, the Fourth Elected Member for George Town had his eye on an Executive Council seat probably. And it didn't work out. So, the National Trust, on the other hand, believes that all of the reasons perhaps were the mangrove. I don't, in my view, believe that.

And I want to read the reason why I don't believe that because in an advertisement in the Caymanian Compass in July 21 of this year, the Fourth Elected Member for George Town, after setting out a lot about the motion, went on to try to say that there had been a no confidence motion against the Minister for Agriculture, then he went on to say this: “However, this Minister, in accordance with the Governor (Vesting of Lands) (Amendment) (Disposition) Law, 1997, tabled on the evening of Friday, July 16, the matter recommending the extension of the lease terms to 99 years for the Ritz-Carlton project. Our Parliament is a collective institution. All Members are obligated to abide by this resolution. It is now important that all Members of the Legislative Assembly demonstrate their lack of confidence in the Minister. For this and other reasons I, the Fourth Elected Member for George Town, will seek to bring a motion to spawn debate on the contents of the so-called Ritz-Carlton. I pray that I will get the support of you, the voters.”

Mr. Speaker, what could be more clear?

This is when, I submit, that the turning point appears to have come about. Not because of the mangroves and the National Trust fully, but because the attempt to get the Executive Council seat had failed and therefore the move was made after supporting the motion as good for the country as stated in the two letters—and as told to me personally, and the Member cannot deny that. After telling me and other Ministers the motion was good and supporting it, the upper cart got a bit upset and the motion was filed.

So, I wonder if the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town had known, when he seconded that motion, what he knows now what thoughts may have gone through that Honourable Member's head before he put his signature to second it. This document seems to set out clearly that the reason—and no other reason was given—was an upset because the power of sitting in that Executive Council seat had not come to fruition.

Mr. Speaker, there has been a lot of criticism levelled at not just the Government, but also the Backbench Members who, in their independent way, support what they feel is good for the country, and object to what is not good. I have full faith that the two West Bay Members who support this motion (sic), and the Third Elected Member for George Town, do so independently and in the interests of the country.

Mr. Kurt Tibbetts: Project!

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Project, thank you.

'Who support the project, and oppose the motion'.

Well, it's late in the day, Mr. Speaker. And I believe that even if my friend, the First Elected Member for George Town, who reminded me of that slip, and the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, had known then what they know now, their thoughts may well have been very deep, as they usually are, but deep in another direction. What has been brought out, and the total lack of transparency of the Fourth Elected Member of George Town, really has left nothing of this motion which is really worthwhile, nearly, even dealing with.

A lot has been said about my qualifications. Criticism of the Third Elected Member for George Town, Minister for Tourism, Honourable Financial Secretary, myself, about the geniuses and trying to play down our qualifications and our abilities. Well, Mr. Speaker, I am a qualified lawyer. I have a degree in law. I have other qualifications. And I am prepared to prove that to Members of this House to let them see that I am indeed qualified, and I will bring along my certificates, my original certificates, tomorrow morning. Also, for verification, the address of the English Bar, if it is needed for verification, of my Barrister at Law Certificate. I challenge the Fourth Elected Member of George Town to lay his PhD on the Table as well, along with the address where it can be checked on.

Transparency, Mr. Speaker? Since it has been made out from time to time that I am not qualified, I have had attacks on lawyers—

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order.

POINT OF ORDER

The Speaker: Let me hear your point of order, please.

Dr. Frank McField: Is that Minister implying that I am a fraud?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: No, Mr. Speaker. I would never do that to an Honourable Member of this House. What I am saying is very simple: I am going to bring my qualifications down, and my certificates—

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order.

POINT OF ORDER

The Speaker: Let me hear your point of order, please.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Our Standing Order 36.

I would like for the Honourable Minister speaking to explain to the House what qualifications have to do with the merits or demerits of Private Member's Motion No. 17/98, the Proposed Ritz-Carlton Project? Whether being a lawyer, or having a PhD. I would like the Honourable Minister to explain to the House to show the relevance of qualifications with the merits or demerits of such a project.

The Speaker: I do not think that is a point of order, but if you care to explain, please go ahead.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, that is the type of reason why, once again, a statement has been made I am jealous of the Fourth Elected Member of George Town's PhD. I have never seen a PhD certificate. I am asking the Honourable Member to bring it and let us see it.

Insinuations have been made for the last year, and in this session as well, about lawyers, about qualifications, about who has professional qualifications and who doesn't. So the test is now on. And, Mr. Speaker, I am not going to go any further on it. But I am a qualified lawyer and I am going to show my certificates in the morning. And the Fourth Elected Member of George Town may laugh as much as he wishes, but we will see who may have the last laugh.

Now, Mr. Speaker, one of the things one of my teachers many years ago told me was "I can teach you all the knowledge in the world, but if you don't have ambition you will never succeed." Ambition, Mr. Speaker, goes along with the qualifications if one is to succeed. And despite what has been said, I work hard as an Executive Council Member for this country and as a Member of this House, and I have for twenty years. It does get to me at times when there are insinuations that I am either not doing my job for the country. . . but you know, Mr. Speaker, there is one thing, and I am talking generally now, that no one can say about Truman Bodden, and that is that they can buy him. Anything that I do, I work very hard to get where I am. I work night and day many times and what I have done for my country; I have done not for what I can get, but for what my country can get.

Something has to be left for the young generation, not just the preservation of the environment, but the preservation also of the economy. There has to continue to be, obviously, social harmony in the country and I believe that people who give me advice. . . I look at what they have done. I don't just listen to the advice.

If somebody comes to me and says that this project, the Ritz project, is no good, and that person has no experience in business, probably has been unemployed for long periods of time, I would put far less weight on that than a man who came to me and said, 'Look, I am a professional accountant and I have my certificate, and I have looked at this carefully and the project has these faults in it.' We have to look not at what people just say, but what they do. Look at their record when advice is given to the public.

And the public must do the same thing with politicians. When advice goes out from Members of this House, they must look at who gives it and their qualifications or their experience, because experience is probably more important many times than qualifications, to see whether it is just a lot of bad advice coming in a philosophical way, or whether it makes practical sense.

So, talk is cheap (that is the other thing my teacher taught me) but actions speak louder than words. And you look at the person's track record. If they are going to tell you how the country can move forward, how people can be employed, you ask the question, Were they employed when they gave the advice? How long before that have they not been employed? Because people who can't help themselves, speaking generally, can't help someone else. If someone's life has been a shambles, one has achieved nothing in it, then how can you help a country, or help other people? That, Mr. Speaker, is what differentiates the doers from the talkers. Like I said, talk is cheap. This country has come to where it is because there have been people who have been prepared to work hard.

Just speaking generally, Mr. Speaker, when in this day and age somebody gives someone else something, whether it's money or whatever, they don't give it for nothing. There are times, Mr. Speaker, when obligations go with the giving of money, or services or whatever. It is very important that where there is a track record of persons, who have always been asking others for money rather than working for it, one has to really ask one's self, Is that really the example to set in this society for our youth?

That is why I know and I believe that the National Trust, one day, will get the necessary funds to purchase the central mangrove. All I can say is that there are obviously some people, who have quite a knack at getting others to give them money. Perhaps they should turn it in the direction of helping the National Trust raise some money to purchase the central mangrove wetlands.

Just one other quick area I wanted to mention is that... I don't know if this was read-- it may or may not have been. But a section in a report from the English Minister of Overseas Development called "The Cayman Islands Natural Resources Study of 1976" on page 86 it stated, "Proposals for Retaining the Red Mangrove Fringe:

"It is strongly recommended that the majority of red mangrove fringe bordering North Sound be maintained. If further development of the deep swamp is planned then the pattern adopted at Governor's Harbour should be employed. One or several channels should be cut from the sea into the development zone to allow for boat access and the essential water exchange between these enclosed areas and the open sea. To ensure appropriate hydraulic conditions for Rhizophora it is recommended that at least part of the mixed community of red, black and white mangrove behind the red mangrove fringe be retained also. Since this zone is very variable in width around the Sound, it is recommended that a minimum belt of mangrove 300 meters deep be maintained."

I would like to point out that this project does maintain the mangrove buffer. I think this is very important because that mangrove buffer is probably more important to the National Trust than the balance of the mangroves which are in a fresh water area and basically do not contribute to a very large extent, if at all, depending upon how far back they are, to the sea life that borders them. That, I understand, is being maintained.

Also, in the last Development Plan I was very happy to say that we were able in many areas to considerably increase this mangrove buffer along the edge. And 300 feet or more are maintained, I understand as a buffer (I am not sure what it is, but it averages 300 to 400 feet) on the Ritz-Carlton project.

This project is, in my view, important to the economy of the Cayman Islands. I believe, sir, that it is also important to the National Trust because of the large sums of money coming in, or that will come in. It will provide further funds that can be used by the Government to assist the National Trust in purchasing the central mangrove. And they have purchased I have been told, or I have read (I read the Trust Letter) several hundred acres. But they are looking at 8,800 acres so there is a lot of work left to be done in that area.

I believe that the $6 million that will be paid, that's non-refundable, and that will be lost if the project does not go on, up to US$5 million that will be put into a road which we are badly in need of which must go through the mangrove, Mr. Speaker, is also important to the islands. The vast sums of money that will come in from customs, from stamp duty, from all of the other areas, the continuous revenue that will come in every month—not just every year—from the room tax that will be paid at the Ritz Hotel is also going to be very important to the economy of the Cayman Islands. It is important also that we fill the void of 300 rooms that have been left by the Holiday Inn and the Clarion closing down.

It is also important that as Cuba and the Bahamas unroll in the tourism and ultimately in the offshore finance industry, that the Cayman Islands is poised to deal with that increased competition.

The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport has done a sterling job of continuing to increase tourism, and keeping its quality high. But he can only do it if he has the necessary tools, which means an upgrading of hotel rooms as we now have.

Also on this, the motion that we have before us today and the proposed amending motion actually would have to a large extent destroyed this motion if it had passed. And therefore, is a very clear indication that this motion before the House now is not acceptable and should not be acceptable even to the mover and second order of that proposed amendment.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I thought I was doing fairly good so far!

We have also seen that the old lease of 52 years (still to run) has very wide clauses in it relating to the use, such as hotels, air strips, just about everything, golf courses. And that Government has, in fact, in 1950 on 606 acres of land actually already stated what the use of that property can be. That lease stands whether this motion goes through or not, Mr. Speaker, those owners have the right to the 52 years of the lease which is an extremely long time that remains.

I dealt with the position that here we are only extending the lease to 99 years. We are not actually in a position to be usurping the authority, of the Central Planning Authority that deals with what can be built on it.

We have also seen that this motion and the facts leading up to it was the clearest indication of the lack of transparency around this from the mover's point of view. The startling disclosure of one secret meeting and one quasi-public meeting (I guess) and all of the other inconsistencies that the Fourth Elected Member for George Town had in relation to his views, to that Member's views, rather, on the project—at one stage, for it, then a round-about turn and then against the project, and the bringing of this motion.

The fact also that one of the lessons we hopefully learn from this is that communication is a two-way street, but so is transparency. And, should I add, at times, speaking generally, honesty. We have also been able to consider, I think, the importance of preserving as much as possible of the natural vegetation, but also (at least I have asked) that some prioritisation of what is to be preserved should, perhaps, be carried out as, indeed, there was a call within this House for prioritisation on projects. I think a similar approach could be taken to the preservation of the central mangrove and the other mangrove.

To wind up, I would just like to go back to the Vision 2008, which I compliment His Excellency, as did the Third Elected Member for George Town, in his vision in putting this forward and the wisdom of the strategies which were set out in that document which, very briefly, state: “We will develop and implement a growth management plan to achieve and maintain a balance between the natural and built environment.” That balance is important. “We will protect our natural environment, particularly the central mangrove and other wetlands, the North Sound coral reef from further degradation. We will ensure optimal infrastructure which supports the needs of the current population projected growth.”

It is very interesting, sir, that that one I read is strategy 9, and next to that is the strategy relating to a balance between the two and then the strategy on the preservation. The other strategy, 13: “We will ensure that Government, in partnership with the Tourism and Finance industries strengthens plans for the continuing success of these two critical sectors and we will identify opportunities for diversification.”

I would ask Honourable Members of this House to think of these four strategies and to weigh them. A balance has to be found and I am certain that this project, when implemented, will be a project where the strategy relating to a balance between the natural and the built environment will fall and that it will be good for the Cayman Islands.

I stress, in ending, that I support the National Trust; not only do I read the Trust Times, I give it to my two young children who have a lot to inherit here. I have never taken a decision this important for this country unless I have weighed all factors very clearly. My decisions are always in the best interest of this country because, Mr. Speaker, Truman Bodden gets... What I get as payment here is not very large compared to what I could get if I were in private practice out of here. I give very long hours, and I give it in the interest of my country.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I am employed!

And it is very important, Mr. Speaker, once again, that we not only look at the words, we look at the actions of people. I believe that in the past twenty years I have contributed to my country and as long as I can I will go on contributing...

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Bring the certificate!

Any decisions I take, I can take independently because I am an independent person. Nobody can look me in the eye and either say they own me, or they bought me or anything else. [Inaudible interjections] No. I can! I am sure others can. And it does bother me at times when there are implications of taking decisions like this lightly. I believe decisions of this size should come above politics and we have to take it in the interest of the country. That is what I always strive to do. I always will, and I hope that with God's blessing this country will continue to prosper and to preserve as much of the natural environment as it can and that it will go forward for the betterment of future generations.

Thank you.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause) If no other Member wishes to speak, would the mover like to exercise his right of reply?

The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Thank you, Mr. Speaker, for your patience. I am just a little bit exhausted at this particular time, and fearful that the listening public by this time would have gone to sleep because of the monologue presented here by the Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning, the Second Elected Member for George Town who has no respect for education or understanding of what education is.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order.

POINT OF ORDER

The Speaker: Let me hear your point of order, please.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: He is imputing improper motives to me. I have respect for education and for the country. I would like him to withdraw it.

The Speaker: Please, that was unnecessary. Please withdraw that.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, that point was done because of the way in which the Minister spoke about my degrees. The fact that the Minister has not shown (although he was the Minister at the time in which I was employed in 1977 with the Government) that he must not even have gone through to see what qualifications I had and had presented. So, Mr. Speaker, if he has had the opportunity to have done this and he does not know that I have a degree and where the degree comes from, it goes to show a lack of respect for education. That is why I made the statement.

Now, I am not going to harbour it if. . . . I withdraw it, and I will go on. But it goes to show that the Minister's skin is as thin as mine.

The Speaker: But he did not call you individually, you see. You have to be careful. Thank you for withdrawing it, and please continue.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I believe that given the opportunity to explain why I brought this motion, why I believe that the Leader of Government Business, the Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning, has taken the whole thing out of context in order to ridicule me, in order to remind me of the suffering I had to go through in this country because he made sure of that, being the Minister responsible for Social Services back in 1979 when I was dismissed for writing a letter about pre-school education that he so well supports today.

Mr. Speaker, productivity is more than material; productivity is also intellectual. In fact, everything starts from ideas. Without the production of ideas, we would not have the production of things. The businessman needs to remember that without ideas business would not function. So he should not try really to discredit philosophy and discredit intellectuals and discredit PhDs to the extent where he even insinuates that I, a 50 year old man (which I will be on 17 October this year)... and I have been in this country since 1977 with a PhD, and that Minister is so uninterested that he doesn't even know if my PhD is valid or not. Now, that, I think, is an indictment of that Minister, rather than an indictment of myself.

But there was one time when I actually did a one-man demonstration in this country and I walked the street with a PhD. The Minister probably remembers this and I am sure that he still giggles in his seat about my suffering. But, Mr. Speaker, a lot of people in this country take it seriously; a lot of them are also suffering because of the policies of that Minister. This is the reason why we are debating this motion. We are attempting to prevent the Government from doing certain things that might be harmful to these islands--things that might jeopardise the political and economic stability for which we have been known.

I do not believe that it is a crime to change your mind. The Honourable Jim Bodden once said that the only persons who do not change their minds are dead people and fools. Now, I don't know which the Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning is, but he looks pretty alive to me.

Mr. Speaker, I brought this motion because I was entitled to bring it by law. The Governor (Vesting of Lands) Law entitled me to file a motion in this House to have this Government's disposition of land debated if I so felt there was a need to do so.

Why would the Government be averse to debating an issue that is so important? And has proven to be even more important than they might have realised, or that I might have realised, in that we have come to see that the entire population—local and foreign—in these islands is interested in the question which we are debating. They are interested in environmental factors and issues to a degree in which I was, in the beginning, not interested.

Why did I, that little black boy from Mary Street, have to be the one who brought the motion to give the Government an opportunity to discuss these issues? Why did the Government not take the initiative upon themselves to go out with their Tourism Minister and talk about the positive aspects of the Ritz-Carlton project? Why did it depend upon my bringing a motion in order to spawn debate? Why did I have to put the full page ad in the paper to get to the point that the motion was even considered for debate? Now I'm being faulted?

The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning is getting up here and ridiculing me because I have not been a business success in this country, that I couldn't even get a job, that I wasn't even allowed to remain counting tin cans because I wrote a letter talking about the need for a Bill of Rights in this country.

Mr. Roy Bodden: We're gonna get that Bill of Rights though!

Dr. Frank McField: : Mr. Speaker, the Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning would make fun. But I have a lot of family in George Town. My father (God bless his soul) is one of the real Caymanian people. There is no way that the Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning will make me feel that I am less of a Caymanian, and less worthy than he is because he is coming from North Church Street, and I am coming from Mary Street! I am no less of a person than he is! No way, Mr. Speaker, can he convince me of this, and no way will I stand by and allow him to convince other Caymanian people that this is a reality in regard to him and them that he is up there and we are down there, and that we are confused and that we can't understand issues that affect our daily lives.

There is a lot of talk about changing one's opinion. But the Third Elected Member for West Bay made a comment saying that he had changed his mind about the programme, about the Ritz-Carlton project. The Third Elected Member for George Town said that he has withdrawn his application for a spa showing that he had changed his mind in his regard to his desire to do that. I think it is a reality, in fact, that people do change their minds.

I have a PhD. One of the ways we went about doing a thesis is, we had working assumptions or hypothesis. It would not be the conclusion, but we had to have working assumptions in order to begin to arrive at a sensible, reasonable conclusion. I work the same way when I am taking a position in the Legislative Assembly. I try to develop a position as a result of getting information, informing myself.

Now, if the Government had done what it was supposed to do, and even the Third Elected Member for West Bay, who is supporting the Government in terms of this project, seems to have suggested that the Government did a poor job in presenting the whole issue to the Legislative Assembly and to the public. So, if I then went to try to get information from persons, . . . and I didn't initiate this myself because I have here the Wednesday, 22 July, 1998, "MLA Opposes Ritz-Carlton deal." My meeting with Mr. Bruce Putterill was on the 25th of July, after he had read this in the papers.

Now, the Leader of Government Business is, of course, trying to kill me politically in George Town. But he kept me pretty well dead in George Town for over 15 years. I believe so. I believe that he would like to return me to that position again. But the people are not going to allow him to do it. I am not going to allow him to do it. The Minister knows well that I came out in opposition to the Ritz-Carlton deal before I had the meeting with Mr. Bruce Putterill and Mr. Michael Ryan. The Minister well knows this; other Members should know it as well.

Now, Mr. Bruce Putterill called me at my office after having read this newspaper saying that I had misunderstood the situation; in fact that what I understood about the concessions that Government was making was not correct. And he would like the opportunity to set the record straight, and would I mind meeting Mr. Ryan.

Now, Mr. Bruce Putterill is not Mr. Ryan's lawyer. Mr. Orren Merren and company is Mr. Ryan's lawyer. Why was Mr. Bruce Putterill organising the meeting for me to meet Mr. Ryan, and not Mr. Orren Merren and company? That is what the Leader of Government Business should have been talking about. That would have been a very interesting situation! Well, I see him move and say that he doesn't know. He seems to know it all, but when it comes to the truth maybe he has a little bit more of a reservation in terms of knowing that.

I, Mr. Speaker, am really saying that I went to meet Mr. Putterill and Mr. Ryan in good faith because what had been tabled in the paper and what had been written in the press had given the indication that Government was making all sorts of concessions in regard to impact fees and planning permission fees. So, Mr. Bruce Putterill allowed me to sit with Mr. Ryan, and Mr. Ryan explained that in fact this was not the case; in fact, that Government was benefiting more so than we had been aware of.

So I was moved by the possibility of knowing that maybe there was a good chance of us doing something in regard to this particular development and that we could make some money.

And I expressed to Mr. Bruce Putterill at that time that my main concern was with affordable housing. I had expressed my desire to see the Caymanian people who cannot afford to get mortgages from the banks that are not really being helped by this so-called Government guarantee mortgage scheme because most low-income people know they can't even get into the scheme.

So my desire-- the truthful desire at that time, was to see if there was a possibility for me to get money or for Government to get money. This is the job, basically, that the Executive Council should be out there doing—finding revenue, finding sources of money to solve the problems in the country. And there I was playing that role.

Of course, the Minister for Education would like to say that I am power hungry, that I would like to be in one of those ExCo positions. Well, Mr. Speaker, that is the honest to God truth! I would love to be in one of those positions! That ambition I don't think I could hide.

Now, what I would do to get there is probably the question that is important. I wouldn't lie and cheat and stab somebody in the back to get there. I wouldn't pretend that I agree if I disagree. I think that is what the Minister for Education needs to understand—that education has to do with character, the building of character! That is what it really has to do with! And sometimes you cannot get character by way of correspondence courses, you need to spend time on campus, you need to integrate and socialise and debate and assimilate somehow.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you!

Dr. Frank McField: I wanted to be able to get money to provide low-income mortgages for people. I have been talking about the fact that the mortgage interest rates in this country are too high. That was my intention.

So, Mr. Speaker, what I did right away is to say to Mr. Ryan, "Your idea sounds good. Let me introduce you to the other Members of the Legislative Assembly so that you can explain it to them because obviously they believe the same thing I believe—that the Government had given all these concessions and we can only see what you are getting and we can't see what we are getting."

So I organised a meeting on the following Monday, which would have been the 27th of July. At that meeting Mr. Ryan came with Mr. Bruce Putterill—not with Orren Merren and company, who was his lawyer, but with Mr. Bruce Putterill who is the lawyer for Humphreys (Cayman) Limited. Now let me tell you about the relationship with Mr. Bruce Putterill.

My relationship with Bruce Putterill goes all the way back to the Cayman National Theatre days, when he was the lawyer for the Cayman National Theatre Company. Mr. Bruce Putterill was the man who gave me enough money to buy an airline ticket in January 1992 to leave this country in a very bad state, Mr. Speaker, a very deplorable state, in fact, because of the 'sufferism' as our people call it back in the ghettos--the 'sufferism' that I had to go through. Mr. Bruce Putterill did what other members of this society did not do, he helped me, he trusted me, he felt that if I could get myself on an aeroplane and leave the country that I might be able to somehow reform myself, be re-born. And I went with $100. But it was Mr. Bruce Putterill who paid for the ticket.

So, of course, when I came back I went with my wife, Christiana to see Mr. Bruce Putterill and thanked him very much for what he had done for me and the fact that he had allowed me to meet Christiana and marry her.

Mr. Bruce Putterill therefore received my National Identity Award because I set up an award for my father, the late Charles Vernon McField, called the Charles Vernon McField National Identity Award. And it says on the award "This is an appreciation of our principle concept that a Caymanian is determined not by genes, but by deeds." And I phrased that. I created that. That is why I have a PhD. It is not just the piece of paper; it is the fact that the piece of paper only verifies what's there, what people can see when they see me on TV speaking for two hours about different subjects-- the depth of the intellect, Mr. Speaker!

I haven't been around these Chambers for as long as the Honourable Gentleman responsible for Education, but I think I can hold my position very well, thank you. And I just want to say that I had no intention of meeting Mr. Ryan for the 'sake' that he was the developer, and therefore had something to offer me or not offer me. I met Mr. Ryan because of my respect for Mr. Bruce Putterill and it is quite easy to see my affection for that gentleman.

Now, I went to see him today because I wanted to say to him that the letter he had written had been used in such a way by the Third Elected Member for George Town to somehow suggest what I knew was not his intention to suggest. But letters can suggest a lot. Words can suggest a lot once you take them out of a particular context and put them into another context. But Mr. Bruce Putterill told me today that he did not intend in any way to suggest that there was anything foul about my being at the meeting.

The Minister for Education tries to show how this meeting was a secretive meeting. What kind of secretive meeting? Mr. Speaker, Mr. Ryan made a remark in front of me when I said to him that: I have a problem with your project too. I believe that there is a conflict of interest here because the same lawyer, Mr. Norman Klein, who represents you or who wrote the letter to the Hon. John McLean, Minister responsible for Lands, giving your proposal to Government for the disposition of this land, is the same Mr. Norman Klein that has written a letter four days ago, the date in which he wrote this letter to a Mr. David Merchant from Offshore Alert threatening to sue Mr. Merchant because of certain allegations in regard to Mr. John McLean and 200 acres of land.

My question to Mr. Bruce Putterill and Mr. Ryan was Why would they allow such a thing to happen? Mr. Speaker, I would like to show you that this report which I took to the Foreign and Commonwealth Office which I did give to the Chairman of the Foreign Affairs Committee has copies of these letters, and before I finish, when we continue tomorrow, I shall have these letters tabled here so that it is understood from the very beginning that I had genuine, legitimate reasons to at that particular time question the performance of the Minister responsible for Lands since Mr. Klein from Orren Merren and Company wrote Mr. David Merchant on 20 February, 1998, and on 24 February, he writes to Mr. John McLean. He writes on 20 February on behalf of Mr. McLean to Mr. David Merchant with a very serious allegation. So he is representing the same Minister. He is acting as an advocate for the Minister and at the same time he is giving instructions from another client to the same Minister that he is representing.

It is a clear conflict of interests. So, when the Minister for Education gets up and casts doubts on my integrity and the sincerity in bringing this motion, he needs to remember that they could have taken this proposal to the people themselves. They could have tried, like the Third Elected Member for West Bay said, to sell the deal to the people a little bit better than they did. But they had no time for that. We were caught up in a censure motion, the censure motion failed on 16 July, and the material was laid here on 17 July, and the Minister for Education has drawn and tried to more or less suggest that the reason why I decided to debate this motion was because I had seen the possibility of getting the position that the Minister for Agriculture had, Mr. John McLean's position.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to explain that. The people elect us. The people do not elect the Government, they elect Members of the Legislative Assembly. Members of the Legislative Assembly are then responsible for electing the Government. So, if we remove one Minister, it is our responsibility to replace that Minister, to fill that position. If we don't fill it, we can't run back to the people and say there is an empty position we can't fill it, because the people will hold us responsible because the Constitution only gives the people the right to elect us to the Legislative Assembly, it does not give them the right to elect us to those positions. So the fact that I might be interested in that position, the fact that I came in here as an independent candidate—not a member of the National Team, not a member of the Democratic Alliance, not a member of Team Cayman, I came here as an independent candidate.

If there was a possibility that a vacancy would become available, . . . and in all good conscience I felt that it would because I felt that Members would vote their conscience, is there anything weird about a person who looks like me, Mr. Speaker, wanting to be in a position to assist the people of this country?

Why does the Minister of Education ridicule me? He talks about power hungry people in his Manifesto for 1988 (which I have here) he talks about power hungry politicians. In his pledge he says, "I will continue to promote the basic human rights and freedoms and our heritage including the National Trust." This is 1998 (sic) [1988] what he was saying, and he says a lot of other things here about power hungry situations. And he is always talking about the fact that we are power hungry. I am power hungry that I want to be a member of Government. I am a bad person, Mr. Speaker, when I would desire to sit in that position, to sit in at least one of those chairs. I want to destroy the country because I talk about leadership. Somehow it gives him, in his process of association-- when he looks at me, when he looks at how I look it reminds him of places like Jamaica and Haiti and different things like that.

Mr. Roy Bodden: True!

Dr. Frank McField: That is basically all he is saying.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Prejudice!

Dr. Frank McField: I didn't say prejudice, Mr. Speaker, but we know. The people talk. They have always been talking. They will continue to talk, and they talk about what they know, what they feel. But what I am saying is why is it an abomination for me to aspire to lead this country, or to participate in the leadership of this country? Why is it wrong? Why is it seen, Mr. Speaker. . . do you want to?

The Speaker: You can go on for another minute or two.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I would prefer to stop right now.

The Speaker: I will entertain a motion for the adjournment of this Honourable House.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until 10.00 AM tomorrow.

The Speaker: The question is that this Honourable House do now adjourn until 10.00 AM tomorrow. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AT 6.28 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM FRIDAY, 2nd OCTOBER 1998.

FRIDAY
2 OCTOBER 1998
10.17 AM

[Prayers by the Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture]

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Item 2 on today's Order Paper, Reading by the Speaker of Messages and Announcements.

READING BY THE SPEAKER OF
MESSAGES AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: I have received apologies for late attendance from the Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works. He will be arriving later in this sitting.

Item 3, Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. Deferred question 161 is standing in the name of the Elected Member for North Side.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MEMBERS/MINISTERS

Deferred Question 161

No. 161: Mrs. Edna Moyle asked the Honourable Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs to say if a Programme Coordinator has been employed at the Women's Resource Centre.

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: The Programme Coordinator has not been employed at the Women's Resource Centre.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: I think sometime ago I saw an ad in the newspaper for this position. I wonder if the Honourable Member could bring the House up to date as to when someone will be employed at this centre?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: The post was advertised sometime ago. Three individuals have been short-listed to be interviewed; those interviews are scheduled to take place on Monday and Tuesday of next week. Therefore, I expect that it should be possible to predict the outcome of those interviews and the receptiveness of the applicants to an offer which would make it possible for the post to be filled within four to eight weeks, depending upon what type of notice they will have to give their current employers.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: I wonder if the Honourable Member can say, because I think this ad appeared in the newspaper some time back in July, why it has taken so long for these applicants to be dealt with and the position filled.

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: The deadline for the applications was back in July. The short listing process took longer than usual because of some people in the Ministry, the Permanent Secretary and others being on leave at various times. And so the short list was only concluded at the end of August and submitted to Personnel on 3 September, I gather.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: I wonder if the Honourable Member could give me a job description for this position?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Mr. Speaker, I do not have a copy of the job description with me but I would be happy to provide one to the Member later in the day.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries the next question is No.176, standing in the name of the Elected Member for North Side.

QUESTION 176

No. 176: Mrs. Edna Moyle asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture to state the Ministry's policy on women.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: In the past few months since the responsibility of Women has been taken by the present Minister, the Ministry has been reviewing and re-assessing its policy on the issue of women and gender. The Ministry's policy on women is not just on women, but rather on gender as it focuses on the needs of men as well. The Ministry intends to put forward these objectives in a more detailed form of a policy statement to Executive Council for formal acceptance within the next few weeks.

As the Ministry is continually monitoring its approach to women and the issue of gender, I would therefore invite all Honourable Members of the House or members of the public to forward any suggestions for focus areas to the Ministry's Assistant Secretary for Women's Affairs.

The policy directions that the Ministry is currently focusing its efforts on include:

- 1) To further promote the spiritual, economic, social, political and educational development of Women of the Cayman Islands.
- 2) To strengthen the foundations of family life by offering educational and other assistance and alternatives with the co-operation of public and private sector agencies, including the Church.
- 3) To encourage the prospect of women acquiring the skills needed to contribute equally in the decision-making process in the various levels of our social stratification.
- 4) To encourage women to participate equally in the country's development.
- 5) To encourage the community to strive towards zero tolerance of domestic violence.
- 6) To encourage respect, loyalty and vision among women and to emphasise the significance of unity among women.
- 7) To recognise and respect the necessary partnership of men and women in our society.
- 8) To encourage equality in the workplace for women.
- 9) To work in co-operation and collaboration with the community to see that the previous objectives are realised.
- 10) To address any other issues or situations that may come on line as a result of continued study and work in the area of advancement of women in the Cayman Islands.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: I would like to thank the Honourable Minister for this in-depth reply. I wonder if she could tell the House how the policy directions stated in her answer were arrived at?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: In various ways. Firstly, I have had my own personal input into the formulation of the policy as stated herein; the staff gave their kind assistance as well as research which the Ministry has undertaken in beginning to look at various policies throughout the Caribbean and other jurisdictions in the world to compare and extract where possible those we felt were applicable and in fact a prerequisite for the formulation of our policy here in the Cayman Islands, as well as looking at the report which was asked for by the previous Minister and we also had meetings and recommendations from local and voluntary clubs in the Cayman Islands. But as stated, the policy is in no way cast in cement, hence the cry for further recommendations as we intend to take it to Council very shortly for formalisation.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: I wonder if the Honourable Minister would say if any of the policies that were put in place or suggested at the Peking Conference some time back are being considered by her ministry.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: That document was taken to Council, as I understand, before my coming into the Ministry. There has not been a final decision on it as I understand because it was not directly extended to Cayman. The Ministry has, however, reviewed that document from the time of the past Permanent Secretary as well as with the present Women's Liaison Officer; that is one of the many documents that we have looked at.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Seeing that the United Kingdom, as far as I recall, was a part of this Peking Conference, has any effort been made prior to the present Minister arriving in the Portfolio, to have that extended to the Cayman Islands?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: It is my understanding that work is being done by the Governor in Council to have those details sorted out, but the Ministry has not received confirmation of a final resolution to it, sir.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W McKeever Bush: I have had a look at the policy directions that the Minister is currently following, and it seems to me, from what I recall, that many of these, if not all, were started in the work with the Business and Professional Women's Club. When we talk about encouraging the community to strive towards zero tolerance of domestic violence, can the Minister say whether in fact some of these have come down from that time?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: I attempted to make that clear when I first answered, but I have no problem in restating that the policy is not the policy of the Minister, per se, but is one which we have taken from various areas not just groups but individuals and research in the Ministry as well. And I should hasten to say, for an abundance of clarification, that it is not a policy that I have created, per se, I would dare say it has been augmented upon, but there was a policy in existence when I arrived in the Ministry.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries we will move on to question 177, standing in the name of the Elected Member for North Side.

QUESTION 177

No. 177: Mrs. Edna Moyle asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning what is the Government's policy on pre-school assistance for children living in districts where there are no reception classes in the Government Primary Schools?

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Mr. Speaker, perhaps that question could be laid down for a few minutes until the Minister is able to come in the Chamber and we could perhaps move on to another question.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The criteria for pre-school assistance granted to needy parents is as follows:

- (a) At least one parent must be Caymanian.
- (b) The child must fall between the ages of 3.9 years and 4.9 years of age for the year the assistance is requested;
- (c) A criterion based upon the combined salary of the parents and the number of dependants in the household has been established in the form of a sliding-scale. Applicants are required to submit verification of income;
- (d) The applicant, if approved, is assisted up to a maximum of $300 per month for ten months;

(e) All applications are reviewed a second time in January of each school year to ascertain whether any changes have occurred in the parent's financial status;

(f) The initial application is evaluated by the pre-school supervisor who forwards the relevant documents to the Chief Education Officer for approval.

| Ceiling Rate for Granting Assistance |                             |                    |                    |                    |                    |
|--------------------------------------|-----------------------------|--------------------|--------------------|--------------------|--------------------|
| No. of dependants                    | Less than $1,500 per month | $1,501 to $2,000 | $2,001 to $2,500 | $2,501 to $3,000 | $3,001 to $3,500 |
| 1                                    | Full                        | Partial            | None               | None               | None               |
| 2                                    | Full                        | Full               | Partial            | None               | None               |
| 3                                    | Full                        | Full               | Full               | Partial            | None               |
| 4                                    | Full                        | Full               | Full               | Full               | Partial            |
| 5                                    | Full                        | Full               | Full               | Full               | Partial            |

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: I noticed in the answer by the Honourable Minister that we consider the income of the parents. Is any consideration given to their expenditure in order to help them get assistance? Why I ask is because a family making $3,000 per month, there is no assistance. Yet their expenditure for a mortgage and a motor car—which is not a luxury in this country, but a necessity—could be some $2,000 per month. I am wondering why there is no consideration of the expenditure these young couples have.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I have been told by the Chief Education Officer that in accordance with the Public Accounts Committee's report that this be tightened down. The only exemption made for expenses is if it is on medical grounds. Otherwise once this income is there, they just deal basically on the income.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: I wonder if the Honourable Minister would undertake to give me that Public Accounts Report that stated such a thing?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I guess I can get it to the Member.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In keeping with the recent research or findings I should say on the importance of starting the child at a very early age as far as the educational process is concerned, Can the Honourable Minister say what is being done by the Ministry in regard to encouraging parents to be in a position to take advantage in particular of the pre-school experience? Because at present Government does not start assisting until the child is three years nine months, and research has proven that the earlier you can start them in that experience, the better off they are.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I fully agree with what the Member has said; the earlier you can get the child into pre-school the better equipped he is when he goes into the primary school. It can be a real problem for the first year primary school teachers when they have children with different ranges of ability. The present policy begins with three years nine months, but if it is the feeling of this House that that should be reduced, then subject to the funds, I fully agree that it should be done.

Originally, when we had a pre-school system which was during my earlier eight years up until 1982, I don't know when after that it was abandoned, but that allowed Government on a more economical basis, I think, to deal with them. However, there are now probably 27 pre-schools and they, too have a right to exist. So it is not quite as simple as going back to a Government pre-school system because it would hurt them, which is something no one wants to do. But we could fund children earlier because they do take in children at an early age, even a year earlier or six months would help.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Keeping in mind that there is no better investment we can make as a country than in the education of our children, I wonder if the Minister would maybe consider starting Government's assistance to those who need it for children at an earlier age than three years nine months. I thought I saw in some policy where it was supposed to start. I don't know why we start at three years nine months, rather than three years. But I am aware that parents, even those who really cannot afford it, are very keen on ensuring that their youngsters have a pre-school experience. And for the first years it is a struggle, financially, for them. So I wonder if the Honourable Minister would maybe consider revising the policy?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I am very happy to do that. I know that the budget has gone in, but by all means, it can be amended. I fully support what the Member has said and would ask that the House support it as well. What the actual money and numbers—

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: What I mean is that the Department has sent in to the Budget Unit whatever figures they have, but that can be changed, as we know, right down until it is passed. So I will see that the extra amount. . . I will have to get a policy decision and I will see that it is put in if it is approved.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries we will move on to question 178, seeing that the Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works is not present, arriving later today . . . The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

DEFERMENT OF QUESTION 178 Standing Order 23(5)

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: As there is only one question left after that, I would just ask that it be deferred and put on the list of questions for Monday.

The Speaker: The question is that question 178 be deferred until a later sitting. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED. IN THE ABSENCE OF THE HONOURABLE MINISTER, QUESTION 178 DEFERRED UNTIL MONDAY, 5TH OCTOBER, 1998.

The Speaker: Question 179 is standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 179

No. 179: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs to provide the total number of civil servants in the Cayman Islands according to categories of Caymanian and non-Caymanian.

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: The total number of Civil Servants in the Cayman Islands as of 1st September, 1998, according to the categories of Caymanian and non-Caymanian were 1,380 Caymanians and 916 non-Caymanians. The answer provides a breakdown by current salary scales. (See: Appendix VIII)

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you. Can the Honourable Member say what the Government's policy is towards the Caymanianisation of the Service?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: The Government's policy is to continue to make efforts to ensure that Caymanians have the opportunity to fill positions that become available. The current ratio is about 60:40 (60% Caymanian and 40% non-Caymanian) which is 10% above the national norm. I expect that as part of the current slew of initiatives that are underway, including the review of General Orders and PSC Regulations, that the matter of Caymanianisation and how it can be facilitated will also be visited and perhaps the subject of some more specific policies.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Member say if there is any particular category the Government targets to increase the number of Caymanians, or the percentage of Caymanian vis-a-vis non-Caymanian? For example, I noticed that in the category of teachers there are 239 non-Caymanians as against 101 Caymanians. Is there any particular category that the Government places any emphasis on attracting more Caymanians?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: No, Mr. Speaker, there is currently no particular category that gets preferential consideration.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: In view of the fact that over the years it seems that we have not had any major successes in increasing the number of Caymanians as against non-Caymanians, can I ask the Honourable Member whether Government would consider setting up a couple of target areas? Instead of targeting the overall civil service, if they would identify a couple of target areas, for example, Teaching, and specifically set about seeing if they could attract more Caymanians to these areas rather than taking the civil service as a general body.

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Yes, I personally welcome the suggestion and will give the Member an undertaking to attempt to pursue what he suggested.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Member say if in the re-engineering of Government process and/or the thinking towards public sector reform, if there is any serious leaning towards more definitive job descriptions and also salaries for the various categories being based on performance?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: It is certainly expected that as part of the current initiatives and in particular the conversion from input to output oriented appropriations, that there will be the need and the opportunity to likewise refine job descriptions to not merely reflect processes, but to actually reflect the output and performance expected from people. Certainly, it has been the desire for some time to look to better relate pay on that individual's performance. So I see the current initiatives as an opportunity to migrate to where that becomes much more the norm.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Member say if with all of this in mind there is going to be specific initiatives towards re-skilling or bringing individuals in the Service to the level that is required when it is found that those individuals within certain posts are actually not trained to the level that the post requires?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Yes, there is a recognised component of the whole reform initiative that has to address the human resource element and particularly to afford the opportunities for those in need of acquiring new skills.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: This may be asking a bit much, but I am going to risk it. It is not putting the Member in an untenable situation. I am just going to make an attempt here.

Can the Member state, while I am assuming that this process has not gone very far to date, if there are any specific desires whereby the training anticipated can be done locally and if so, is it going to be a specific institution, or will it be done by way of seminars? Exactly what is the thought at present in regard to that?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: I think it is fair to say that the design of the new system overall in terms of fiscal and strategic management in terms of how we appropriate and who we hold accountable and what units we trade in, that overall design is coming to a head, but it hasn't been finalised.

In turn, how we will identify the skills that are necessary and how they will be provided certainly has not yet been defined either. But I would expect that merely from the perspective of scale in terms of number of people we are going to be dealing with and the convenience of doing that, that it will almost invariably be mandatory that we mount efforts on island preferably utilising some existing institution which in turn could hopefully lead to an ongoing facility that new people coming in could also, in the future be directed to and benefit from.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: I think the Honourable Member read my mind quite well, because I know that I did not say it all in the question. But with that in mind, and allowing for the given situation that is anticipated because of the numbers, as has been said, Can the Member state if in anticipation of this programme that will have to occur, and after the first stage as he said being an ongoing programme, is it anticipated that perhaps at least one of the existing Government institutions might need to prepare itself (for lack of a better word) a little better in order to be able to accommodate this? I ask the question simply because it is the hope that after all the plans are in place we won't have to wait on that to happen in order for it to be executed. I hope the Member is understanding what I am asking.

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: I would think that any institution that is going to be part of this overall programme would make some preparation for it. I understand the Member is concerned that those preparations be made in as timely a manner as possible so as not to further extend the overall programme schedule. I think that we have to realise that until we have a handle on what we expect of that institution there is very little we can do to twist the arm and say, Go ahead and get ready for something that we are not ready to tell you what we want. But we certainly will be looking at this area very closely within the next few months.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Not intending to drag it on, but I am certain that all Members recognise the importance of this because it will have to do with how efficient the Civil Service performs in the future.

The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town asked about the disparity in the number of Caymanians to non-Caymanians in certain areas. While the Member replying gave the answer that there was no specific initiative, perhaps my question would then be, Could the Member give an undertaking that while it may not be able to happen immediately, at least this is borne in mind?

While other things are happening, perhaps this could be helped along the way by giving individuals (local people), some kind of specific training in certain areas locally; if that could be arranged. I think part of the problem is because it is necessary for certain training to be done overseas. I am not suggesting that we can have doctors trained locally, immediately. I am not speaking of that level. But certainly at some other levels where there are obvious disparities with the numbers. I am asking if the Member could give an undertaking that this be borne in mind because there are several sections which make it obvious in the answer when you look at the table that was attached to it.

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: I gave the undertaking earlier to the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town to look to advance his suggestion of targeting some particular area. I would expect that in looking at an area, if it is then identified that part of what is distracting people from coming into that, or the high turnover in that area, has to do with the training opportunities and the convenience of training. If something can be offered here then that would be part of the 'medicine' that would we would try to prescribe.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries that concludes Question Time for this morning. Moving on to item 4 on today's Order Paper: Other Business, Private Members' Motions. Private Member's Motion No. 17/98, Proposed Ritz-Carlton Hotel, West Bay Road. Debate continuing thereon with the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

OTHER BUSINESS

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 17/98

PROPOSED RITZ-CARLTON HOTEL WEST BAY ROAD

Dr. Frank McField: It is, to me, a special privilege to be in the Legislative Assembly and capable of defending the rights of the people of the Cayman Islands. Before we concluded yesterday there was an attempt to take away my concerns in regard to the destruction of the mangroves and to make my concern based upon naive political considerations.

There were also attempts when this motion was answered by the Third Elected Member for George Town and the Third Elected Member for West Bay to bring my meeting with the developer and Mr. Bruce Putterill of Hunter & Hunter into play as to suggest that somehow my motives were less than objectively political.

Before I begin this morning to actually deal with some of these personal interruptions in the debate, because I believe that the standard of the debate was taken in a particular direction, in particular by the Leader of Government Business when he started to insinuate that my promotion as a PhD was perhaps not even genuine. He was alluding to that, and to the fact that his promotion as a lawyer—his horizontal promotion—was more important than my vertical promotion. But we always know that they will be called Jack of all trades and master of none. He cannot show that he is a master of any of these trades that he professes he is so competent in. And some of us wonder why he has really spent so much time in politics and not in his law office if he is such a brilliant lawyer.

Perhaps what the Minister has problems with, is the fact that I somehow am showing that there is a connection between political decisions and business interests in this country, and that this has existed for a very long time.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Hear, hear!

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I am here not because of any peculiar business interest but because of the interest by the general public in basic human rights. This is what a lot of people have felt for a long time is lacking in this country. The fact that they are members of a society that continues to assume that they are better than certain members of the society. And that regardless of what certain members of the society accomplish, they look down upon it and mock it and ridicule it to the extent that they ostracise us and excommunicate us and do not give us the possibility to use that expertise to develop the people as a whole.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Preach, preach, preach!

Dr. Frank McField: This is a condemnation of those individuals who somehow because of the fact of the size of their legs, and the size of the lies that the legs represent continue, those individuals continue to be able to occupy certain positions in this country.

Now, I am supposed to be the bad guy because I come here as a servant of the people and as a good servant I listen to my master. Can I be chastised for listening to the voice of my master? Should I be ridiculed by the Minister of Education for listening to my master? No more so than we should ridicule children for listening to their parents and for honouring their parents because the Bible says by honouring your parents "your days may be long upon the land which the Lord God has given us." I believe that by honouring and listening to the people that my days in these halls will be long. And there is nothing wrong with my desiring to serve the people for as long as I can serve the people because he, the Minister for Education, has said that he has served the people for over twenty years already. So what is wrong with me saying that I would like to be returned here in the year 2000?

I was the one who had TV for the last night before the election, not the Minister for Education and his National Team. Why? Because I had planned in advance. I am a planner, I can foresee things. I have vision, Mr. Speaker. Because the Lord God has blessed me with the vision to be able to see into the future. There is nothing wrong with that. If I am telling the Government of this country to beware of not going against the wishes of the people because if you do, the people will punish you. The people will take you out of office and if that is what you desire, if your desire is so great to serve the people then serve the people in such a way that will convince the people in the year 2000 to keep your service.

So I am ridiculed by the Third Elected Member for George Town for having mentioned the election of the year 2000. I am ridiculed by his colleague and good friend, the Honourable Minister responsible for Education for having done so. But I am a politician. And I would be a hypocrite if I said that my desire, since I have only spent two years in the Legislative Assembly, is not to spend more time here.

I would also be a hypocrite if I said that my desire was to not take the job [held by] the Minister for Education because perhaps as a PhD with vertical promotion, rather than horizontal, perpendicular promotion, I deserve to have the job more than he does because I am more qualified.

Mr. Speaker, I am more qualified, more competent to do his job. I would not tell teachers that they should be business people because if you are not a business person it means that you are a failure and that you have no way of showing your competence and desire to see prosperity and stability in your country; that you have nothing to lose because you do not have a business.

How are we to understand if the very Minister of Education suggests that because we are intellectuals, philosophers with PhDs and Masters that we have failed our country, that we have failed our families? How can he suggest this? In his reasoning he is suggesting this.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, with due respect, on a point of order.

I have never suggested that people who are educated are useless to society, as mentioned there. But you. . . what I said was 'for a substantial amount of your past you were not employed', and I dealt with the question—

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, what is the point of order, sir?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The point of order is that he is misleading in that respect and that ambition went along with having a degree. That was the thrust of my argument. But I am happy also to look at the Masters or the Bachelors, the PhD.

The Speaker: Please continue, Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, he didn't have a point of order.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Is it a point of order, sir? What is your ruling.

The Speaker: It is not a point of order, he explained his point.

Dr. Frank McField: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

This morning I had so much on my mind I could not sleep; I got up at a quarter after five. I wanted to come here and answer the good Minister for Education.

It hurts when you know that he was in office at the time in which I was dismissed from the National Council of Social Services, from Government in 1979. He was the Minister for Social Services. So the fact that I was unemployed, the fact that he came here yesterday and challenged me in regard to my PhD goes to show that perhaps he never, ever took me seriously. He never took my degree seriously. He never really tried to understand me.

And I can show you the front page of the Caymanian Compass back in 1980 when I went out on my political campaign for that particular year in regard to that particular gentleman. I can also tell you that I had written in to the Government programme a job for Cultural Coordinator that I made a deal with them. I met in his office and made a deal with him and Mr. Jim Bodden in regard to the fact that I would get that job as Cultural Officer. This is where, when he got rid of that position a lot of the money went toward the sporting programme because at that particular time he did not support sports.

The Speaker: May I interrupt you for just one moment? Please sit. I have been very tolerant throughout this entire debate. I have given a lot of latitude. But I would like to call to Honourable Members' attention that we are debating the proposed Ritz Carlton Hotel, West Bay Road Development. I think it is about time you get back to the motion.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, the only reason why I have to answer some of these charges is because the Leader of Government Business was allowed yesterday a latitude in his debate which called into question my competence and capability, and my degrees.

The Speaker: I have watched the time allotted to him, and allotted to you. I am trying to be as fair as is humanly possible. But we are debating a motion. The House still has a lot of business before it, and this is really not what we are here for today.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, I wish you to know, sir, that I am not going to make an attempt to be disrespectful. But I implore you, sir, that while I respect that you want to be fair, and I have heard you say that, if allegations are made and if imputations are made by any Member, including the Leader of Government business then, certainly, the person who is replying must be given the opportunity to clear it up. I do not believe that specific time limits can be laid because an accusation can be laid that takes one minute, and it might take ten minutes to clear it up, sir. I am only asking you to consider that, Mr. Speaker, because I know that you wish to be fair.

The Speaker: I certainly do.

How much more time do you feel you need to clear these allegations?

Dr. Frank McField: Fifteen minutes. I have four hours to discuss, so . . .

The Speaker: Be very careful with what you are saying. And try to be as brief as possible. But we must get back to the motion. Please continue.

Dr. Frank McField: I was just making the point that sometimes when people say things about you, it hurts. It hurts him just like it hurt me yesterday to have to sit here and listen to it. I know that I am here to be objective, and I try to be objective. That is what I was doing when I brought this motion—I was being objective.

Now let me refer you to 17 April, 1997 when the Government Motion, which was the Governor (Vesting of Lands)(Amendment)(Disposition) Bill, 1997 was brought before this Honourable House. Now, the Hon. John McLean is quoted in the Hansard as saying, “I beg to move the second reading of a Bill entitled, The Governor (Vesting of Lands) (Amendment) (Dispositions) Bill, 1997.

“This is a short Bill which restricts the ability to dispose of government owned lands. Any disposition of freehold land, or of a leasehold interest with more than 20 years to run will need to be advertised in a newspaper circulating in the Cayman Islands, and in the Gazette, and to be the subject of a report containing all relevant details to be laid on the Table of the Legislative Assembly together with three valuations. The Legislative Assembly will be able to veto the disposition. Failure to observe the required procedure will render any such disposition void.

“For a long time there has been concern whenever Government sees fit to dispose of any property. It is my belief that with this small amending Bill we will be able to take care of that, and I ask all Members for their support.” [Official Hansard Report, 1997 Vol. 1, p. 202]

The Hon. Truman Bodden said, “This Bill, while short, is an extremely important one, and I commend the Honourable Minister for bringing this. What the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town said is that this will now put the sale of Government property beyond any suspicion. I do not believe that Government should ever sell property except in rare instances. I believe this has been the policy of not just this Government, but of past Governments.

“Facts regarding any sale or long lease will have to come before this Honourable House and be laid on the Table. Along with that will have to come the report from the Ministry containing all of the details, a copy of the survey report, a valuation by the Government’s valuer of the land it is proposing to dispose of; valuations by 2 independent licensed valuers of the land of which it is proposed to dispose; a copy of the resolution of the Executive Council of the Islands approving the terms of the proposed disposition; and a copy of the advertisement of the proposed disposition published in accordance with this Bill.

“The public will therefore know exactly what the Government is doing because an advertisement with full details has to be put in the newspaper as well as in the Official Gazette.

“The Bill, while short, is a milestone. For the first time the Executive Council has said that they are prepared to take power from Executive Council and put it into the Legislative Assembly. That shows the public clearly that this Executive Council is by no means power hungry; they are stable (as is the full Legislative Assembly) and prepared in instances which are extremely important, such as this.... And this is an executive act, I should point out, under the previous Law and that Law has remained there as long as I can remember because when I was Acting Attorney General in the late 1960s, early 1970s, it was called ‘The Administrator Vesting of Lands Law.’ So, it goes back unchanged with power in Executive Council for probably 40 years, at least.

“I think this is important. It shows that this is an open Government. If property is being sold, because property is dear to everyone in this country, then the public will know that it is being sold and this Honourable House will have a right to object. Frankly, I am happy to follow the wishes of this House on whatever decision would be made in that area.

“I fully support the Honourable Member. It is quite a milestone. It safeguards Government’s property for the people. Nothing can be done now without a full disclosure to the people and this House.” [Official Hansard Report, 1997 Vol. 1, p. 202]

Mr. Speaker, at that time the question was put, the “Ayes” had it. The bill passed. It was because of this bill that I exercised my right to bring a motion to have this very important disposition of the people’s land debated in the Legislative Assembly.

I have been ridiculed, Mr. Speaker, I have been made to have to answer personal charges, thereby coming down to the same level of debate. But sometimes one has to somehow disassociate one’s self from a higher sense of being to a lower sense of being in order sometimes to get the truth about.

So I just want to say that it is quite clear now why this is important to be debated and why all Members agree ... Now this is the first time that the Governor (Vesting of Lands) Law has been used to bring a motion to the Legislative Assembly to have a debate in regard to the disposition of Government property. We are not selling the land outright, but the Governor (Vesting of Lands) Law deals with the leasing of land if it is going to cover a period, say, of ten years or more.

Why, as a member of the Legislative Assembly, is it criminal to do this? I am asking. If this was not the type of debate that they wanted, why did that Member not suggest that when we were making the law? Why make the law, and then when we try to live by the law, then criticise our living by the law? If you criticise our living by the law, observing the law, then you are criticising the law!

Mr. Roy Bodden: True! True!

Dr. Frank McField: So, my behaviour is completely in keeping with that law—The Governor (Vesting of Lands) Law. Mr. Speaker, the interesting point is that this is such an important issue that the Government should really be thankful that someone brought the debate to the floor of the Legislative Assembly. The Government is not pleased with the debate, nor with my bringing the motion. The Government is upset because the people do not want the lease extended to allow the destruction of the mangrove.

It was quite clear from the very beginning that I agreed in principle. I brought it to the Legislative Assembly—in terms of the motion—and I said that they should be allowed to build a hotel. So to say that I am against the Ritz-Carlton project outright, is not true. I say that I am for the building of a hotel on the land where the Holiday Inn once stood.

The amendment brought by the First Elected Member for George Town, and the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town was to suggest perhaps, Let us compromise. And there's nothing wrong with seeking a good compromise. I still believe that what I was looking for is what we should be looking for, but I would be a fool, Mr. Speaker, I would be ill-fated, if I believe that it is better to get nothing than to get something. The compromise would have meant, in fact, that we would have been able to at least preserve more of the mangrove than we would have preserved if my motion had failed.

So I cannot fault the First Elected Member for George Town, and I feel that the attempt to discredit them for being altruistic enough and concerned enough to bring this amendment as a last try to show Government that the Opposition is not hard lined, but willing to compromise. But in all situations, Mr. Speaker: in war, when you have gone to your enemies, let us use a hypothetical situation, and you say, 'Look! The battle is going this way. Let us compromise. Here, let us meet one another part way.' And the enemy says, 'No !' Then you go back to your original position. So to say now that they should not even be morally allowed to vote on the original motion is again sophistry.

Mr. Roy Bodden: True! True!

Dr. Frank McField: And we thought the sophists were dead!

[Members' laughter]

The Speaker: May I just remind members of the gallery that those railings are provided for your safety and are not for people to lean on. Please sit back in the seats that have been provided for your safety and your welfare. Thank you. Please continue Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, with all due respect, the people are concerned about their country—

The Speaker: I did not ask for a comment. Please do not comment on what I have said.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I would now like to read the letter that I received from Mr. Bruce Putterill this morning. As you know, a letter was tabled in this Legislative Assembly by my good friend, the Third Elected Member for George Town who seems to be doing more today to support the Minister for Education, the Second Elected Member for George Town, than he is doing to support the First Elected Member for George Town, and the Fourth Elected Member for George Town on this very important motion, at this very important time—this very historical time.

He [The Third Elected Member for George Town] tabled a letter from Mr. Bruce Putterill and we know its contents. Basically, Mr. Putterill said nothing in the letter that was not true. Of course we know it is what context he put it in that he was speaking of at the time. I do believe that letter was brought in here to show somehow that I might have had some personal ulterior motives for having the meeting with Mr. Bruce Putterill and the developer.

Mr. Speaker, if I may be allowed to read a letter from Mr. Bruce Putterill that I have in my possession—

The Speaker: Be prepared to table it when you are finished.

Dr. Frank McField: I am prepared to table it, I have a copy. The letter reads:

"Dear Frank,

Re: Ritz-Carlton Project

Further to my letter to Michael Ryan dated 30 September, 1998 (which I believe you have seen), I write to confirm that the meeting held in my office with Mr. Ryan on Saturday 25th July, 1998 was attended by you at my request. The purpose of that meeting was to correct the errors and misconceptions that were the subject of press reports during the previous week, including in reports of statements made by you. At the meeting you did not raise any issue of personal interest in the project or any other motivation other than to ensure that the facts concerning the projects were properly established and made available. There was also discussion about how the government revenue generated by the project could best be utilised and I do recall your mentioning in this regard your concern about affordable housing in the Cayman Islands.

Sincerely yours,

[signed] Bruce S. D. Putterill."

Mr. Speaker, I would now like to table that if the Serjeant would do so.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I believe that because the Government knows that this project has economic benefits just like I know it has, how can I get up here and say that there are no economic benefits? I would be a lunatic if I said there were no economic benefits. What we have tried to do is to weigh the pros and cons of the project now. We have to look at the social and environmental factors as well as the economic factors.

When I went to London, Mr. Thomas Russell said, "Frank, I am glad that you are in the Legislative Assembly because you create some kind of balance because you are a sociologist. Other Members have more of the business background. We can at least have a more two-sided debate rather than this very one-sided business-interests kind of debate." Which is true. Now Mr. Russell, who was Governor here for a very long time, recognised that, just as other governors have recognised my ability.

Before I close today, I would like to read a letter that I got from Mr. Scott back in 1989 or 1990. I would like to show the relevance of that, that we need to approach our situation in the island not just from the point of view of money, but also from another point.

This morning I got up early and was listening to my brother who is usually on the radio on Friday mornings, and he was doing his spiritual teaching. It helped me to get rid of some of the anger that I had built up in me yesterday. And I do confess that for me to say that I do not get angry would be dishonest. I do get angry, and sometimes it is because my mind takes me back to my suffering, and because I do not believe that I was solely responsible for that.

Now, when I heard him [my brother] talking this morning, I decided to drive all the way through South Sound, just so that I could listen to him. I realise that in this country we need to seriously consider other perspectives besides money. That is what Jesus brought to us. Jesus brought to the Jews the whole concept that we should not just consider the money perspective; we should not just consider bread; but we should consider beliefs, principles and character. And if we destroy our ability to sit and make decisions based upon character and integrity, and base it upon our greed and our hurrying to make deals for people possible so that we will make something for ourselves, what we will find is that that will filter down into the society. Of course, at the end of the day you will see people dealing in drugs too, simply because it is profitable to do so, not taking any consideration of the moral implication of doing such.

We cannot tell one group of people that money is all we must consider and then tell the other group that they should consider something more than money. So I believe that what I have tried to do by showing the environmental aspects of this project; by looking at the employment statistics; by looking at the Immigration figures; by looking at the types of difficulties such a resort would create; by showing at the end of the day the social, the traumatic, social and political impact that this project might have on the Cayman Islands; is not a bad thing to bring into the debate. And that the Government should not try to ridicule me, and sit over there and laugh at me, and make fun of the fact that I was unemployed in this country for so long simply because I have finally been given the opportunity to bring a new dimension to political debate in this country.

For too long political debate in this country has been too one-sided; it has been based upon that old Colonial, clerical outlook, because somebody had learned how to read and write and could dot an 'i' and cross a 't' that somehow that meant higher learning. Higher learning is about more than reading, writing and arithmetic. Anybody who has gone to a university knows that.

So it is good to have a person who is willing to come in here and represent the other side of the coin. There are those who like to think they can represent both sides of the coin at the same time, because somehow it is six of one and half-dozen of the other. I believe that sometimes you have to come in and take unpopular positions: if those unpopular positions are right positions there is nothing wrong with that.

And I must say, from the point of view of the stress which it creates, it creates a lot of stress, and I do not necessarily love to have it, but I have to do it. I am trying to show, in regard to the Ritz-Carlton project why I stood to bring this motion because as was read by the Leader of Government Business it says I was trying to spurn debate. I have shown by the letter from Mr. Bruce Putterill that although I am not a so-called successful businessman, I do also take money into consideration. I did consider the economic benefits to the island and the fact that it would generate revenue and we would be able to perhaps get money for affordable homes in the country.

So I have a right, as a human being, not being a fool nor a dead man, to develop my position and change my position according to what I believe makes sense. For anyone to get up and try to tell this Legislative Assembly and the general public that that shows some kind of weakness in political or personal character is nonsense.

I have dealt with the part of Mr. Bruce Putterill's letter that I felt was the intention there. Now I would like to deal with the fact that the Minister for Education publicly on the floor of this Legislative Assembly was allowed yesterday evening to challenge me to bring my degrees and he would bring his. Of course, I regard that as very childish. I know a lot of other people will see it as very childish—very childish, indeed! You show me yours, and I'll show you mine! Which one has the higher one?

The person who works for the Education Department is referred to as Doctor Tudor. They don't say Dr. Truman, though. They say, Dr. McField. And I believe that that has been hard for a lot of people to say in this country for a very long time because when they look at me they say, 'You can't be no doctor of nuthin.' People still come and ask, 'Are you a dentist, or what? You pull teeth? How come you're a doctor and you don't have a job? You should be at the hospital.'

Well, the country has a programme that doesn't allow people to get doctorates because the Education Department does not support PhDs. I had to get my doctorate as a result of a German Scholarship... I would like the Leader of Government Business to know that my wife is genuine Arian, just like my degree is genuine...

And so, Mr. Speaker, I would ask the Serjeant-at-Arms to give a copy to the Minister for Education so that he can look at it, and I would like to ask the Minister for Education to read it to us. I give way for him to read my degree.

(Pause)

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town, please continue. If you want a copy that's fine. But please continue.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I am not going to give the Minister a copy of it. Not now. I am going to read it to him first, because he couldn't read it to me. He is trying to be smart again. It says:

"PROMOTIONSURKUNDE. Die Universität bremen verleiht Herrn Frank Swarres McField geboren am 17 Oktober 1948 in George Town, Grand Cayman; den Grad eines; DOKTORS DER PHILOSOPHIE (Dr. phil.); aufgrund des Colloquiums am 22, Juni 1977 und seiner Dissertation mit dem title: Race and Social Control Being an Essay in the Social History of the Afro-West Indians and a Qualitative Analysis of Community Control Measures in a British Urban Centre The Case of Notting Hill; Die Promotion wurde mit,, cum laude bewertet; Bermen, den 18 Juli 1977."

And it is signed by the director of the University.

This was 1977; a long time ago. I have had very little opportunity to use this degree. But ten years ago when I was in a very bad state, I did get the courage to take a little bit of money that I had gotten from a contract for a play, and I went to have Miss Trickett frame it; I have it on the wall in my office. Mr. Speaker, I would also like to give The Minister for Education the addresses of the University, Dr. Marlies Krueger's, and Wolf Leschmann, Lawyer and Notary Public, (who is my friend—a lawyer whom I met at the same time as I did my wife, when I went back to Germany). I will table them so that he can do his investigation. I think all it proves is his distrust of me. And if he, at this point, after I have been chosen by the people...it has nothing to do with degrees...if that Minister distrusts me so much that he would come down to this particular level, it goes to show why I had such a hard time in this country.

Because I decided to listen to the people who elected me, the people who gave me the job that that Minister would not give me in this country, I must be ridiculed to this extent? Because the Minister does not have the qualities that I have? My qualities must be looked at as poor qualities? As qualities not worthy to be admired and held up in society?

It is important again to realise that all things come from ideas. Philosophy is not that useless discipline that some people pretend it is. Even the laws we come to know as part of the civility that we enjoy, part of the civilisation we have inherited have been put to strenuous, philosophical criticism and analyses. And it is the strength of those persons with good ideas that help to create long lasting constitutions and laws, not of those persons who study them in order to be able to say to somebody, This is what the law says. A stronger mind. A stronger constitution is, of course, necessary.

But I will share one thing with the Minister, because he mentioned the fact of my register of interests. And he mentioned Island Companies. He read out my register of interests, like I have his now. I will probably deal with the fact that he has not included certain things and some of his colleagues have not included certain things in theirs. He did that yesterday.

Now, I want to say, in regard to Island Companies, that Renard Moxam and I come from Mary Street. I know when [Miss Aldene] and Mr. Rupert, [Renard's parents] baked the breads and we used to have to go there to trust the breads. There is a relationship and I will not try to deny it.

The fact that I have not publicised certain things is not true. I did. I started a programme called College Discovery which was trying to assist students from the grassroots community in being able to forward their athletic scholarships, and those scholarships came from Island Companies. We did a TV thing. We publicised it in the papers. I publicised that fact, and I also listed Island Companies as one of the sponsors for my office—my office, meaning what I do for my constituents.

The reason I am so interested in children who are not successful in school at an early age is because I was unsuccessful in school at an early age. As a matter of fact, by the time I was 15 I was out of school. I couldn't read, I couldn't write. I am dyslexic. That is a condition that a lot of kids have in this island and there is nothing that the Minister for Education seems to be doing about that because he probably has not even recognised that himself. That means that the kids can have a very good awareness but they have difficulties because when we open a book, we start from the back of the book, not from the front of the book. When we are reading a word, we start from the back of the word, we don't start from the front of the word. Everything gets kind of jumbled up. But so was Einstein!

Mr. Roy Bodden: True.

Dr. Frank McField: When I was in England I was reading about a kid that was suing the authorities over there to get money to go to Cambridge, I think, and he needed to get these different types of tutors and assistants. But he was very, very smart. Okay?

I graduated from high school in New York. I went back to high school when I went to New York in 1964, and I graduated from high school with a 69.90 average. But I passed all my courses. What did I have to do to pass all my courses? I had to go to summer school every summer! But I did it, Mr. Speaker, I did it! I did it! Just the way I got back up on my feet again, and I got in here! And there is nothing wrong. . . I hope that I [can] become a real role model for some people in this country.

I went on to college. At that time there was a programme called College Discovery—which was to discover the fact that in America certain Negro children were not as fortunate as some of the white children, and they wanted to redress this social imbalance that was showing up in the educational performance of those children. So I got a College Discovery scholarship that meant my books were paid for and I went to the Borough of Manhattan Community College, a community college, a two-year college. I went through that, and in my first semester I was failing. [But] I had counsellors and I got there. I went on, on and on.

Now, the fact that was mentioned about my getting support from Island Companies; the fact that I could not convince that Member (because I had a meeting with that [Minister] and the First Elected Member for West Bay after the election about supporting this particular sports programme, and that Minister refused to do it)... So I had to go elsewhere and look for the funds and Island Companies supported me. I wish I had more companies listed on my Register of Interests—not that I own, Mr. Speaker, but companies that are assisting me in the good work I am trying to do in my community.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Tell it, tell it!

The Speaker: As soon as you reach a point that would be convenient to break, we will take the morning break. If you have not reached a point that is convenient. . . We shall suspend for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11:47 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12.26 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Debate continues on Private Member's Motion No. 17/98 The Fourth Elected Member for George Town continuing.

Dr. Frank McField: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Since I have given the Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning a copy of my Promotionsurkunde, I would like to now officially table it, and also the address of Bremen University. I am giving it now to the Serjeant-at-Arms to have it tabled.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Dr. Frank McField: In an article in the Caymanian Compass, dated Monday, 5 May, 1997, entitled "June Tabling for Family Study," I would like to quote something that was highlighted by someone who is concerned with the particular issue of the Ritz-Carlton development and the destruction of the mangrove and the impact it will have on the social fabric of the Cayman Islands. It reads: "Cayman is at a point. . ." [Dr. Wint said, a recurring theme was Cayman's development, which means that's what a lot of people were concerned about] 'Cayman is at a point where it has to make a decision about whether it wants to sacrifice every- thing to maintain the current pace of economic development, or stop and assess its future society,' she said. 'Many people feel the pace is so stressful and so rapid that it is having a detrimental impact on the quality of family life.'"

The Government of the Cayman Islands spent a lot of money to have that study done. And it was tabled here, and Members should have had access to it. It is amazing that nobody has mentioned this particular report in their discussions so when they try to dismiss the social concerns and reservations that members of the public have, or that I have articulated in here, it is amazing that they do not take the medicine which is being given to them with a very high price for the prescription as well, because these studies do cost a substantial amount of money.

I would like to read something that was handed to me by someone who is in the gallery and who spent some time observing these proceedings because of concern. We have heard from certain Members of the National Team Backbench, we have heard them mention, especially the Third Elected Member for West Bay, the kind of distaste they have for people who dare speak the fact that they might not agree with the Government. It is entitled "The Love of Money is the Root of Evil." And it is a nice little cartoon with a man holding a lot of money and it says, "Please, please, try to understand. You must listen to and hear the voices of the Caymanian people who elected each one of you." For clarification that definitely includes each of the five Executive Council Members who form the Government as well as each one of the Backbench MLAs, be they ExCo supporters or not. "Now is the time to show how much you really love Cayman and how much you care about the little man to whom so many campaign promises were made which resulted in your re-election in 1996. Do not renege on those promises. If commitments to large developers need modification, now is the time to be courageous and show your true colours. Be brave, be strong and prove your present constituents and future generations in Cayman that you see the light and therefore refuse to sell our birthright for a mess of porridge. While much of the past development has been very good for the little people and others who genuinely love Cayman and some of the present and future development if carefully screened can also be of long term benefit to Caymanians. You must not kill the goose that laid the golden egg. Remember the old saying, "Greedy choke puppy.""

I would now like to lay on the Table of this Honourable House a set of petitions that I have collected from members of the public that do agree that a hotel be built on the site on which the Holiday Inn stood, but that permission, that the extension of the lease and the destruction of the mangrove be prohibited.

The Speaker: You are just laying the petition, is that correct?

Dr. Frank McField: Yes, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Dr. Frank McField: There was a letter in the paper yesterday by a Dr. Curtis Barnett. I would like to mention that he is the brother-in-law of the Third Elected Member for West Bay. The letter was clearly against this development—or the full development of the project—because let us be careful we are not against the Ritz-Carlton development: we are against the development of a full Ritz-Carlton Hotel Resort with all the amenities. We are saying develop the Hotel but leave out some of the amenities. Share some perhaps with the other resorts, hotels or amenities in the area, for instance the SafeHaven golf course, but for God's sake, don't destroy the mangrove there.

He, and most people support the position. We are not against development. But we are for sensible use of our resources and not wasteful destruction of our resources. And it is interesting too that the mother of the Third Elected Member for West Bay, also signed my petition. It goes beyond Frank McField, the Fourth Elected Member for George Town. Clearly, the public has shown that I am voicing their concerns. I might get some political mileage (as some Members like to say) but I am doing my job. That is what a representative is. To represent means to act for; not to act for myself, but to act for my people. If I am acting out my personal and business interests, I am certainly not acting for the people. We must make sure that we separate our personal and business interests from other interests.

Now we had Members come here—and particularly the Third Elected Member for West Bay—saying, and he tabled an inter office memorandum from Mr. Michael Ryan, and therein it said, “the type of upper-middle and upper-end tourist that is attracted to a Ritz-Carlton Resort wants to know that all amenities and features are available to them within the grounds of the resort. If major features are off-site then a resort is simply not a five-star. . .” Mr. Speaker, this is simply not true.

So why would Mr. Ryan try to convince us of this when, in fact, only two out of the nine Ritz-Carlton Resorts have their own golf course? Why was it then laughed at when the First Elected Member for George Town brought an amendment that would basically allow most of the development but would not permit the development of the golf course which would mean the destruction of the mangrove? Why is that looked at as funny when they say, ‘Oh well, you want to have a Ritz-Carlton Resort, you want to have a five-star’ and then they have this checklist. Where did they get this checklist?

We got our information from the Internet. And in this information age, for those of us who are full-time and take the time to research some of these projects, we find that we come up with information that can, in fact, dispute the Government's learned position. Now even this book that deals with resorts and great hotels, what we find true is that there is a difference between a resort and a hotel. So you can have a five-star hotel and not have a resort. But, clearly...and I think I would at some point like to table this information...you have the Ritz-Carlton in Cancun Mexico that is AAA Five-diamonds. The closest golf course is ten minutes from the resort, and it says here, “Arrangements can be made through the Ritz-Carlton Cancun guest service.”

So why is it that Members would mislead the people to believe that you cannot have a five-star, a AAA Five-diamond resort without a golf course? These are perhaps the developers' requirements. And there are no reasons why the developers' requirements should not be negotiated. If the Government has started with a proactive position, a position that was taking into account the wishes and concerns of the people, the Government would have started negotiations with the developer right away and said, ‘Stop here, sir. I see what you want to do. We welcome developers, but you have to understand that these are the social conditions in the country the economic concerns and so forth, the ecological concerns, let us strike a bargain.’

This is exactly what the First Elected Member for George Town did in his amendment. The Government should have done this before. The Government gave the public the opinion that my meeting with Mr. Ryan was secretive, that the amendments were secretive, that the motion was secretive and that communication should be a two-way street. But it was the responsibility of the Government when it laid these papers on the Table of the Legislative Assembly to discuss the project with us, to give us the information. Had I been given the information, I would not have made certain statements to the press on 22 July that had to later be corrected by the Minister responsible for Agriculture and Lands.

The information that was in the press was taken from the Table of this Honourable House, even the acreage we were thinking that the Government was disposing of, over 300 acres of land, rather than 140-something acres of land. This is a professional place. The information that comes to the Table of this House should be correct, it should have been scrutinised first of all. So you can't blame the Opposition for not running to the Government to share the fact that they were filing a motion to debate this.

The National Team Government should have gone to the people with this particular request and asked the people. They would have been in a much better position to make a decision. They can't just sit there and make decisions based on so-called 'economics' without taking into consideration relationships that they have with the people—the relationship of trust, the fact that the people have trusted them with the decision-making authority in the country, and that they should follow the people's wishes, that they cannot take that authority and assume that they should run the country according to their conscience. If we can only depend upon people's consciences, Mr. Speaker, then God help us.

Laws were made to ensure that the general population had more on their side than the conscience of members of the society.

Mr. Roy Boddén: True!

Dr. Frank McField: There was no reason why they could not have taken the concerns of the people, the concerns that have been filtering in to the newspaper, the concerns that have been registered in the Vision 2008 exercise.

One Member said that there are certain Members here who have not even been to a meeting. I know that I have not been to a meeting because when the Governor came to this Legislative Assembly and started talking about Vision 2008, when I found out that it would be working through the office of the Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning, . . . Because of my professional and personal experience with that Minister, Mr. Speaker, I told the Governor right away that the exercise would be politicised. And that it would not amount to anything because there would be a certain amount of disrespect for it and unless there was political will in this country to create the difference, it would never happen.

People have gone through the process of suggesting to Government over a period of time and nothing was done. But can't you see, from the letters in the paper, from the petitions, from all of this that people are suggesting to you that the Government should have a particular course of action regarding the Ritz-Carlton project? And nobody is hearing them. Well, what makes us believe that they will listen to the views of the people in regard to Vision 2008?

We know that with every report and with every study you can pull out what you want to pull out of it and you can get the result you perhaps want, or create the impression you want. And I think that is what the Minister for Education was trying to suggest when he was reading a different part of Vision 2008 exercise. He was trying to suggest that somehow what Vision 2008 is all about is getting a common ground where we know that we have to give up certain things in order to get certain types of benefits. But who are these benefits going to once we give up these things? Are they going to the pockets of individual politicians by way of their relationship with this development? Let's look at that at some particular point.

Let's look at the so-called hundred-and-so million dollars the people are going to make off of this project. What happens if this project ends up like a SafeHaven because obviously the SafeHaven developers did not develop that property for that property to be remaining there. They developed that property to sell, just like the Ryan developers are developing this particular piece of land to sell it. So, what happens if all this projected income that all of them are trying to get people to dance the fancy dance to doesn't come through?

There are a lot of factors that might cause it not to come through. And I will deal with the OECD Report and some mention that was made in regard to how our financial institution might be adversely affected and how somehow there is a connection between tourism and the financial industry. So the financial industry is affected, the tourism industry is going to be affected in that sense too. I think Members were making that argument. What I am saying is, therefore, if that is so, then who can buy these very, very expensive homes and condominiums? The argument that one is making that we need to do this because of the other situation I think weakens the whole argument of destroying these mangroves without any kind of concern or consideration.

Can we afford to be so thoughtless in regard to the wishes and concerns of the Caymanian people? Can we treat our relationship with nature so carelessly in a day and age when we no longer have to plead lack of knowledge of environmental factors? Albert Einstein, who I mentioned this morning, observed "The significant problems we face cannot be solved at the level of thinking we were at when we created them."

People have taken us back to Benson Greenall; and I wrote "Time Longer dan Rope." The developer was supposed to be that Benson Greenall from my fictitious imagination of the gentleman. And I made some very pertinent statements in that play that I wrote in 1979 ("Time Longer dan Rope") in regard to the developer because do you know what the developer said? When his wife says, "This is a beautiful place, why destroy it? I can come here and feel free and it's so peaceful." He says, "If I don't develop it, somebody else will." That is the kind of attitude we have here today. If I don't make the money somebody else will; it's gonna happen anyway, so I'd just as well benefit from it. Who cares?

There are people in this society who do not worship money as their god. There are people who believe that God is not a $100 bill. Thank God for those people!

We talk about heritage. We talk about cultural heritage and natural heritage. We talk about the natural environment and the cultural environment. I hear people talking sometimes about Cayman culture and our heritage as though it has only to do with thatch rope. And now they are talking about our natural heritage as if it only has to do with mosquito swamps. And there is a certain thing of, Uh, mosquitoes! Uh, thatch roof! Uh, barefoot! Let's get away from the past. Let's get so far away from the past that nobody knows who we were, and yet we are talking about preserving culture and heritage in museums.

We need to preserve some things in life. We need to preserve some living things and not just dead artefacts. That is what we need to do. The National Trust is entrusted with that job, and that is all that those poor people are trying to do. Yet, they are considered to be interfering with the politicians' right to make decisions without question. No, Mr. Speaker, they are doing their job. They have more information about these things than most of us do.

And I would not come here and call myself an environmentalist by any means. I am a person who has always said let's concentrate on the social environment.

Let's prove that we could do something about that first. And I have always had a certain amount of mistrust for the so-called environmentalists. I agree. But, I must listen to people. I must give them the benefit of the doubt. I must give them the possibility to put their case to me and for me to put that case to this Honourable House and it does not make me dishonest because I am doing that.

If the other people who are opposing this amendment had spent a little bit more time paying attention to the concerns and the fact that the concerns were based upon scientific information, they would not have found themselves in this position. And I don't think that I am an opportunist simply because I listen to people and listen to the views of sensible people in particular. We want to see a balance worked out.

There has been talk about how this poor piece of mangrove is all cut up by mosquito research any way. And it wouldn't be any good to anybody anyway because all the mosquito research thing that is causing all the cancer (according to these people getting up here saying it is causing cancer)... Mr. Speaker, if we know it has been causing cancer, is this the kind of attitude we should have towards it? Shouldn't something have been done? There should be an emergency committee set up right now if that is the feeling of Members of the Government and others who support them. You can't say that these things are causing cancer, causing death in your society at a rate and then casually say, 'Well, this is the reason why. But we are not going to do anything about that, but I can tell you that is what is happening.'

That is not what Government is all about, Government is about action, prevention, not saying well we're dying from mosquito research and this will help get rid of the mosquitoes so we won't have to die from what they are killing us with. I found that incredible for anyone to say.

That piece of land, and I have a photograph, is not in the condition that they say it is in. I would like to table this photograph so that future generations can come back and view what happened here today. A lot of people believe they can come here and destroy, destroy, destroy individuals, destroy people's properties, people's heritage and get away with it forever and somehow the sins of the fathers will not fall upon the children. Beware, beware. Not only did they misinform us in regard to the requirements, because truly here we have, and I will ask the Serjeant to make a copy of this so that we can lay this on the Table of the House. It came off the Internet.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Dr. Frank McField: They have allowed this Mr. Ryan, and I will have to deal with what I consider to be the relevant contacts starting eight months ago. I will go through the scenario, in terms of how this young gentleman has come to a position of being able to activate the Cayman Islands Government and get the Cayman Islands Government to respond in particular ways to his requests.

Even though mangroves may be declining faster than rain forests, experts estimate that less than half of the mangrove forest that once covered the world's tropical coastlines are now left. Mangroves are one of the world's most species-rich ecosystems and help to protect coasts from storms and floods. They also serve as a valuable source of proteins for coral reef helping to filter out sediments run-off from construction and deforestation that can otherwise smother and kill the reef.

Do we want to smother and kill the reefs? Why do we have an environmental Marine Conservation Law? People have come to me and said, 'Frank, look at this. They tell us when we can go get lobster. They tell us where we can get conch from, how many conchs we can get. They tell us if we can use spearguns, they tell us if we can use nets, they tell us if we can use fishpots, and we have to obey what they tell us. Now they are telling us that they are going to destroy the very thing that produces all of these things.'

Mr. Roy Boddén: A contradiction!

Dr. Frank McField: What a contradiction Mr. Speaker!

How can you talk about destroying these things for economic purposes when you tell the little man that he cannot go out and get enough conchs to sell because the tourists need to be able to see them in their natural habitat?

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: And then you kill them so no one can get any!

Dr. Frank McField: And then you kill them so that there is nothing available for anybody!

Some people don't like mangroves, regarding them as muddy mosquito-infested swamps. In the past their removal was seen as a sign of progress. So what is the point of preserving them? That is basically the attitude that we have experienced here. Oh them mosquito swamps. Yeah.

For a start, an estimated 75% of the fish caught commercially spend some time in the mangroves or are dependent upon food chains that can be traced back to these coastal forests and wetlands.

Mangroves also protect the coast by absorbing the energy of storm-driven waves and winds. Well, we just missed a hurricane. We see what Louisiana and other places look like. We are blessed, Mr. Speaker, but if we use our blessing foolishly, God will remove that blessing. We have good examples of that already in the Bible, that when you waste your inheritance foolishly it is removed from you.

So we know that when the National Trust attempts to somehow give us the impression that there is urgency in preserving these two last undisturbed patches of mangrove on the West Bay peninsula, it is important. It is important for the rain in that area, and for creating clarity in that area.

The wetland is important to protect, but what the good Minister for Education has tried to suggest is that we should have our environmental concerns in that area and let them fall in this area. Those are necessary. It is necessary to preserve the main wetlands, and it is also necessary to preserve those two last remaining patches of mangrove.

Another thing that is important . . . I have made the case already that if we allow Mr. Ryan to develop our land and destroy our mangroves, how are we going to prevent Mr. Ken Dart from destroying our mangroves on his own land that he came here and bought: West Indian Club and a few other places? He spent millions of dollars. What has Mr. Ryan invested in these islands? He probably invested a little bit of money in a few plans. Maybe the plans were not even drawn up here.

So what I am saying is that to allow this land to be taken out of the possession of the people for 100 years, to extend that alienation for 100 years will be detrimental to the people's existence in that it would adversely affect the marine life and even life on land, the vegetation in this country, in such a way that the people would lose not only socially but also economically. But to say that we have no right to the land because 52 years is left on it, that is just how they try to do this.

I have a report here from the Auditor General regarding SafeHaven. SafeHaven developed their land before they got an extension on the lease. In other words, they took the sub-lease that they bought from Mr. Benson Greenall or whoever might have had it, they developed the land, then they realised that they were going to have problems selling the condominiums and so they went back to get an extension of the lease for 100 years.

But the Auditor General says that if they didn't do that, once the land was developed it would mean in the year 2049 that the land would revert to the Crown, but not just the land, everything on the land. So if Mr. Ryan did not get an extension for the lease to 99, he would find that in the year 2049 all that he has developed would revert back to the people. That is what they are trying to protect.

In no way are people going to buy condominiums from him if they feel that they would revert to the people in the year 2049. That is why we are here discussing this issue. It is an issue being discussed because of the lease extension and because of the power we have as a Legislative Assembly under the Governor (Vesting of Land) Law to discuss the feasibility or the desirability or non-desirability of a lease extension. And the lease extension only becomes necessary because if there were no lease extension the developer would not be able to make his own pile of private profit.

We could have a hotel. And the Government valuator has already said that a hotel could be rebuilt on the site that the Holiday Inn is now, and they could recover their profits in the 52 years which they have remaining. So we know from the very beginning the reason why the Government has tabled this lease extension. It is not so much how we will benefit by way of import duties, because if we take SafeHaven and the Yacht Club as examples, there is no proof that all of this development will be completed. This development will not be completed if the developer does not get the finances, and he will not get the finances if he cannot prove and demonstrate that he can sell this place. So what are we talking about here?

First of all he has to make contacts and there has to be more interest in this than what the people will get; there has to be some personal interest. If we want, Mr. Speaker, we can take a break because I will deal with the personal interest part of it later on.

The Speaker: At this time we shall suspend, but prior to suspending, it is my understanding that there will be an informal meeting at 2.15, so at approximately 3.30 we will reconvene.

Mr. Roy Boddén: Mr. Speaker, am I to understand that we will be going on until about 8.00 this evening?

The Speaker: That is correct. So we will suspend until 3.30 PM.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 1.00 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 3:47 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Debate continues, on Private Member's Motion No. 17/98. The Fourth Elected Member for George Town, continuing.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, this Private Member's Motion was brought out of concern and with the knowledge that people do interact with nature and there is a fundamental need to preserve the balance between the two. Thus we speak of our heritage as both cultural and natural. In fact, heritage is our legacy from the past, what we live with today and what we pass on to future generations. Our cultural and natural heritage are both irreplaceable sources of life and inspiration. More Members than the four Members of the Opposition should be concerned with the preservation not just of our cultural heritage, but of our natural heritage, i.e., the mangrove.

The Leader of Government Business, the Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning is a lawyer. I have not disputed his qualifications. In being a lawyer, he knows very well that in a case that is being argued you can go in the debate from different angles. You can go in the debate from the angle of the credibility of the witness, not the information necessarily, or the evidence per se, but the credibility of the person delivering the evidence.

It is for this reason that I have had to pay so much attention in clarifying various insinuations that have been made to swing the debate away from my motion. In defending my motion, I have all the democratic rights to fight for what I believe and to see that my motion is treated seriously and is given the possibility for fair consideration by Members of this Legislative Assembly, therefore the necessity to remove the so-called stigmas that have been so-said attached to my professional and personal past.

It was mentioned that I was unemployed for some 15 years. That was again done to me in this Legislative Assembly. But I have proof that I was not unemployed for 15 years, but I have been referred to in this country as Cayman's premier playwright. Mr. Speaker, intellectual productivity and intellectual activity is essential to any civilised society. We have seen the recognition of this as recently as the Government agreeing to buy the artwork of Miss Lassie Bush. The Government has paid a substantial amount of money for paintings and inspirations that were once regarded as being the result of people being a bit strange.

What I want to say is that there was also a contract that was awarded to write a history of the Cayman Islands. I think $3,000 was paid for that, maybe more by the time it is all finished. It goes to show that one particular profession, one particular view of reality is not sufficient to establish a society with many dimensions and with the diversity necessary for productive and creative existence.

When I left here I went to England. In 1982 I had a commission to write a play which was entitled "No Place to be Nice." In 1992 I left here, and in 1993 produced a play in Germany, in Bremen, entitled, "Downside Up." Now a lot of people remember that particular play, "Downside Up." Mr. Speaker, I would just like to table a copy of the review that was written on Friday, 23 April, 1993, in Bremen, West Germany, and it will give the Leader of Government Business additional information as to the credibility of my PhD. because here in the city where I got the PhD (Bremen), it mentions that I was awarded a Doctor of Philosophy. I am highlighted here, and I would like to present this because I think it is absolutely important to dispel that notion that I was unproductive for all of these years.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Dr. Frank McField: We spend over $350,000 per year in grants to the Cultural Foundation. I was one of the original people who started the Inn Theatre movement in 1978. I started it when I was working under the Minister for Education when he was the Member responsible for Social Development and I was a Social Development Officer. I went through the whole phase of the Cayman National Theatre Company, we saw the grant from Mrs. Helen Harquail, we saw the establishment of a theatre, the Cultural Foundation was established, money was granted, foreigners were brought in to do the job, still do the job, and I was not able to get paid for my abilities.

But because I was not paid for my abilities in this country does not mean that I was not productive and those of you who remember the last play I did at the theatre here was called "Flesh and Blood" and it was even televised. When did we have a Caymanian play televised? And it cost a lot of money to produce it and to televisé it. I have had my plays produced in New York, London, Jamaica, Barbados, Bremen, Germany, and I have had offers to publish my material as well.

I am a writer. I always said that I was a writer. I have written extensively and I don't think that is doubted. But to say that because a person has chosen a more intellectual kind of life is to say that that life is wasted, useless or unproductive, or a sign of some type of weakness, is not fair.

So I am only saying that to show that I am as credible and as responsible—perhaps even more so because I have taken the difficult road to walk, I am not taking the easy road, and therefore I think that people can be sure that if I take up a cause that I can do so without financial reward; that I can be satisfied that the spiritual and moral rewards are sufficient for me to stand up for something. I don't have to have a special interest in order to take this up.

Now, there has been some mention of the fact that I changed my mind, or Members of this Legislative Assembly changed their minds. I have here two articles from during the 1980 election. I would like to table these also because I am looking at some of this being kept also later on for the younger generation or when we pass this place on that they can see that there was thoroughness in regard to the consideration to what we were doing.

If we are going to sell them down the drain, that future generation, I want them to know later on that I did my best to impress upon Members of the Legislative Assembly that the motion had merits, and the messenger should not be confused with the message. If the attempt is to discredit the messenger, at least let the message be heard. Let the message have some impact on what they consider to be their conscience.

I was concerned about development and the impact it was having on the society because I came from the social sciences and I understand the way in which values and ideas and so forth influence people. The article here brings back the money. "Dr. Frank McField, former Social Development Officer with the National Council of Social Services made his second political appearance last night on Shedden Road where he spoke to a gathering of about 300 men, women and children who sat atop their cars listening attentively to the speaker. His main theme was uneven distribution of the benefits from the present booming economy which he said was falling into the hands of a small group of people. 'I am not against this,' he said, 'but the money should come back and develop the community as a whole. Come back,' he repeated."

I have always been one who they have said was against foreigners and against developers. But, Mr. Speaker, there is a price, yes, that we must pay for everything which was made clear by the Minister for Education and the Minister for Tourism. But should the price that we pay be the price that the little man pays only, and not the big man? Because the big man has enough money to send his kids to private schools and to send them overseas to finishing schools and to have them protected by the classism that they will develop to protect those kids from having contact with our kids.

Should the price not be paid by all? How is it being demonstrated by the Government that the price that will be paid for this rapid, uncontrolled development at this particular time will be detrimental to all and beneficial to all the same? There is no way they can guarantee that, no more than they were able to guarantee that between 1980 and the present time.

And those who remember the reading of Dr. Wint's report that was made to the Portfolio responsible for Social Services [will] remember what she said. The reason the family study was done was because of our concern that the fabric of our society had been contaminated, so to speak, by unregulated development.

Who can dispute that the social scars in this community are so pronounced that we only have to reflect and note the number of Caymanians sitting in Northward today? We only have to note the number of Caymanians suffering from chronic drug addiction in Cayman today. We only have to note the number of Caymanians who are single parents in this society. We only have to note the fact that a lot of them are having problems finding places to live because of the extreme prices of rent and because there is no money that they can borrow at a rate which will allow them to integrate themselves into a similar situation as was enjoyed by their forefathers: in other words, to make them landowners and homeowners.

This is the social aspect. This is the aspect that when we come and we talk about the fancy cars and we talk about the five-star hotels and we talk about the grandeur, that we don't look down in Rock Hole and we don't look down in Watler's Road and in Goat Yard and other places to see the uneven development they are trying to create in this country. And then they talk about third world countries and they talk about people who talk about leadership as though we are going to destabilise the country simply because we recognise the difference between leadership and management, saying that leadership is about doing the right things where management is about doing things right.

We are about doing the right things. It is our job to show the right things to be done. And so these little management qualifications that certain people have do not necessarily qualify them to be able to know what the right things to be done are.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Hear, hear!

Dr. Frank McField: That is what I am saying. Not to try to say that somehow stability is connected with certain people and it is when they talk about stability that it is important to take note. And if they say something is okay then it is supposed to be okay and it doesn't threaten the stability of the country. But we know that the stability of this country is being threatened by the social divisions in this society, social divisions that are being caused by economic hardship for the people's of these islands.

These economic hardships are really the result of high rents, low wages.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Tell them.

Dr. Frank McField: Lack of training and encouragement. We have already dealt with the frightening aspect that very few Caymanians in 1996 worked in the tourist industry—1,206 to be exact with the Holiday Inn being closed thereafter, it means that fewer Caymanians than the figure I mentioned now work in hotel related industries, meaning condominiums, hotels, and restaurants.

Oh, we need to create this development because we need to create jobs for the Caymanian people. Nonsense! Nothing could be further removed from the intention of the National Team Government than to create jobs for the Caymanian people—especially not so in the tourist industry where they are seen as basically second class; where they are not wanted, where standards have been created and maintained that basically disqualify them from even being attendants at bars.

When I first came back to this country there was talk of some of us being away from the country in the 1960s. I was away from the country from 1964 to 1977. If I hadn't gone away, I wouldn't be here today in this particular capacity because I would not have had an education. So travel from one's homeland is not necessarily negative if when one comes back one is at least trying to make a contribution that will mean something at the end of the day.

But those days when I came back to Cayman and went to the old Galleon Beach where my mother used to work, and Pageant Beach, and I remember the Bernutes who used to have a private house here, because my mother worked there... My mother was one of the first women who worked in tourism here. She was born in Isle of Pines, Cuba and came here when she was about 15 years old. She's a Dixon from East End. My mother worked and she worked. She left and she went away. She worked as a domestic. But what happened to that generation of women? They are now in their 60s, like Miss June Walton and my mother and other women who worked. There was no such thing that they wouldn't want to work with foreigners, and work in these jobs. They did work in these jobs. What has happened in between?

What has happened is that the people who employ here have alternatives. In those days they had no alternatives, so they settled with the Caymanians and tried to improve them if they needed to be improved. So when my mother finished there, she had learned how to cook this, that and the other thing, and do this thing that way and the other way.

And in my play "Time Longer dan Rope" I reflect upon the positive role of the woman, the matriarchal type of issue. What we see there is that the new ideas, the ideas that will cause us to survive are coming from those women who have first contact with these developers. The woman says "If you don't get an education you will be in a bad position and have to work for people all the days of your life." That is what is said in "Time Longer dan Rope." She said, "If you don't get an education you will have to live on a reservation." And the woman there is saying that she hopes that the Caymanians don't become like the Indians who are all drunks and have to be put on reservations. That is being said in 1979 in that play, "Time Longer dan Rope" that was published as a book. A copy was given to the Minister for Education in 1988 after the election. I don't know what he did with his copy of "Time Longer dan Rope" I hope he has saved it.

I am saying all of this to say that benefits to Caymanians can only be distributed by way of improving the Caymanians' ability to take advantage of the opportunities. If we feel at this time Caymanians are not taking advantage of the opportunities, then we need to investigate and find out exactly why the Caymanian people are not taking advantage of these opportunities that are created in the tourism sector. Now there is all talk about the tourism sector being the most important sector and there is all this fear being created that if we do this and do that we are going to destroy this and destroy that. But when the people feel they have no benefits to gain, the possibility of destruction is more possible. But if the people are integrated into the industry and benefit directly and learn to appreciate why the industry is good for the country then the possibilities of stability are really there.

So for people to shout 'Not stable! Oh, they're gonna do this, they're gonna do that,' those are the alarmists who have used those cheap tactics for years in this country to frighten people away from following people like Frank McField, and Steve McField, and Roy Bodden, and other people that I know of. I believe that a sociological approach to the development of the society is absolutely necessary. We have to look at the system. We have to analyse the system, we have to dissect the system to understand exactly what is wrong in the system, why the people are not performing at the level, why the people are not taking certain types of opportunities. Once we have done that, then we know what the cure should be.

This is what makes me a doctor of science, Mr. Speaker—not a doctor of the medical science, but a doctor of the social science in that I have the capacity to analyse and give a diagnosis of a situation and suggest a remedy that should be applied. In this particular case you really need to have the political apparatus with the will to apply these solutions for them to really happen.

As a matter of fact, Dr. Wint made suggestions, but if the Government did not have the political will to listen to what she had to say about social disorganisation and the possibility for disharmony in this society, and political upheaval, . . . Well, what can we do? She was only a foreigner they brought her here to do the study. They paid her for it, but if they don't want to take her advice, there is nothing Dr. Wint can do.

I have tried to give them some advice over the years, even free advice. I certainly would have been very charmed if I had gotten the [opportunity] to write the history of the Cayman Islands, and got all that nice money and everything. But, of course, Mr. Speaker, I am on the committee. But I certainly couldn't get the job. I am a Caymanian, and yet you hear the Leader of Government Business talking about how jealous we are of Caymanians.

Well, what about this Caymanian who has a qualification? What about me? Not just the First Elected Member for West Bay. Because we are jealous? I'm jealous because he is going to make some $30 million perhaps. No, Mr. Speaker, the Minister for Education should think about other persons too who would like to have the right to practise not just their religion, but their profession in their homeland.

Debate is about interests. Debate is about the way the decision-making process is done. It is about the decision. Why is the decision being made to extend the lease? Is it because of the public interest? Or is it because of the private interest? This is an essential part of what I am debating. We can only know what the real influences are when we dissect the situation, separate it and look at it.

I would like to say again that the lease extension is only necessary to make private profit possible; that private profit could be possible without the lease extension. But that profit would have to be made by way of the hotel. Because if you build condominiums, and your way of making profit is in selling real estate, then it wouldn't make any sense to sell real estate if the real estate would go back to the people of the Cayman Islands within 49 years or 52 years.

I mean, which American is going to come and spend $7 million, $1 million, $2 million or $3 million for a condominium knowing that in 49 years, which is not a long time in that sense because, hey, if you buy it [when] you are 40 you might live until you're 80 or 90, or your children—that is not a long time to pay all that money. So the developer knows that he needs to have the lease extension. But we know that we could have a hotel there and that we could comply and accommodate development without the lease extension.

The Government knows this, Mr. Speaker. The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport knows this. We cannot be all things to all people. It is a small island and we have to decide some things based upon the size of our land and the size of our population and the ability of our population to adjust themselves to change. If there is no consideration of the ability of society to adjust itself for change... It is the same thing when you run a car at a speed that will cause the engine to burn up, or it's the same as running the car but not putting any water in it—you have the oil in the engine and everything, but the car has no water. It overheats it self-destructs.

If I were not a PhD of the Social Sciences, I think that my message could be dismissed easier. If I were not a person who has shown that somehow principles other than money are important, I think it would be possible that my message could be dismissed. But there have been attempts to suggest that I have tried to have an economic interest in this project and the reason why I am debating against it is because that somehow did not come to fruition.

The First Elected Member for West Bay mentioned my being in the cemetery in West Bay on Mother's Day. I go out to the waterfront in George Town every Sunday morning, God willing I can get up. If I'm not going my wife asks, "Aren't you going to the waterfront?" because she knows that I go there and I talk to people who I know will not come to my office to talk with me because it is part of their culture. I have organised an office, but there are still people I have to meet on the streets. So I go there every [Sunday] morning and sit down and listen to them. Sometimes I talk, but mostly I listen. So there was one friend who came, parked his car and said that he had called the First Elected Member for West Bay and he had told him to meet him there. Mr. Speaker, I didn't know he was there. So the deal, whatever it was, was between the two of them. I went there and I only observed them talking and certain things like that. But the First Elected Member for West Bay can by no means say that I personally had any interest in any business with these people or that I expressed any interest. And I think the letter that I brought from Mr. Bruce Putterill shows my good intentions. So I need to have that clear.

I need to say that this particular dealing got started because some 18 months or so ago there was a piece of land, as the [First Elected] Member for West Bay said that was for sale. It was listed with Cambridge Realty, and is now part of the lands that are being disposed of. In other words, where a lease is being extended.

What was happening I think, is that they were selling their lease rights. So these people have traded this lease, although the person who originally came into the lease was Benson Greenall the lease has been traded on the open market for whatever they can get for it. So, of course, there it is. Someone sees it and they come in contact with a person who is a Member of the Executive Council.

I have some newspapers, Monday, 4 August, 1997, headlined, "Argyle Outlines Cayman Water Plans." Thursday, 21 August 1997, it talks about "Bugs to Meet CWC Board." Thursday, 31 July 1997, "Water Company shares sale OK." And then, Mr. Speaker, what I am trying to say here is that I was one of the persons who objected to Government's allowing the sale of the Water Company. The reason this is valid to the debate is the same reason why... because I am talking about believability regarding interest, whether the personal or the public interest has come into focus as being important. I have not tried to stop anybody from practising their profession. I am not jealous of anyone who benefits from practising their profession. But as representatives of the people it is noted that we must pay particular interest to see that our private and business interests do not conflict with our public duties.

Why, I asked, was the Government giving permission to sell the water company? We were told that all along, that the Executive Council had approved the sale of the Cayman Water Company; a water company that is different from the Water Authority, but in this particular sense they needed the approval. I went on Issues 27 and debated that. But the person who seemed to have been most involved in this was the First Elected Member for West Bay, who was an Executive Council Member at that particular time.

Very shortly after that, we had the First Cayman Bank. And here I have a paper, Thursday, 23 October 1997, and it says, "Liquidators Take Control of First Cayman." And then it says, "National Team requests Bush to resign." That's National Team, meaning the Leader of Government Business, Minister for Education, those persons who ran on that particular Manifesto, and we know well who they were and who they are. So, this is a third incident now, right? This particular deal, the Ritz-Carlton deal is said to have started some 18 months ago and it started as a result of one contact that one Mr. Ryan had with one man from Cambridge Realty called Mr. McKeeva Bush, the First Elected Member for West Bay.

I am not casting any aspersions, but it is my duty to scrutinise this situation; to try to explain why something of this nature has been able to come so far that it comes into our Parliament and creates a real division where we seem to have so many different persons expressing that they are withdrawing their interest in doing anything with this, or they have an interest for something. We need to actually, seriously, when we look at our Code of Ethics to pay some attention to this.

The Cambridge Real Estate Company has an enormous pecuniary interest in the Ritz-Carlton sweetheart deal. Cambridge Real Estate stands to make millions of dollars when the deal is signed, sealed and delivered by the Government for which the First Elected Member for West Bay is a part. The Government says it will get $11 million for 99 years. Cambridge Real Estate can make up to $30 million from real estate commissions. Now, if we were going to do the projection for what Government could make up to $100+ million, then we have to do the projection for Cambridge Realty. I am not saying that this is realistic, because I still have reminded the House of what happened to the SafeHaven deal. They did not, in fact, sell the property so nothing has really been made. And it could be that we destroy this mangrove and nothing will be sold here either.

But, you said there was a rule of law that said no man should be a judge in his own cause. The First Elected Member for West Bay is technically not a judge in this House on whether Ryan gets this sweetheart deal or not because he says he will not vote on the sweetheart deal. But he has supported it and he has supported it so heavily, what is the difference between supporting something and voting for something? If I support it, hey, I might not have the vote but the fact is that I am allowed to persuade others that it is good.

Principles and ethics demand that a Member should not act in a case where he has any direct pecuniary interests however small in the matter before the House. Cambridge Real Estate has a direct interest in the outcome of this motion—a money interest that far supersedes any compensation the Caymanian people will receive for the destruction of their land, their environment and their future. The right and honourable thing for the First Elected Member for West Bay to have done would be to abstain totally from this motion he so emotionally supported. The interest of Cambridge Real Estate is the interest of the First Elected Member for West Bay, and those interests are not the interests of most Caymanians as he stated.

Mr. Speaker, there is a conflict of interests. And we are not speculating when we say that perhaps what the Member should have done was to state the fact that he had an interest and withdrawn from the debate, but, no, the Member found it necessary to speak words and to mobilise, I believe, other Members to behave in such a matter in the debate that has caused me to take up this position.

This [Hallowed] Hall is not a place to pass through things for special interests. There has been mention of my interests, and one supporter of the Leader of Government Business took it upon himself to fax around my interests to some people and to call certain people in regard to the fact that I had listed them as supporting me. I have here a document that proves that a two-hour television broadcast from West Bay (which the First Elected Member for West Bay did when he was returning from this particular scenario with the National Team) was paid for by one of the persons I have listed here on my register of interests. If I registered mine, why did he not register his?

MOMENT OF INTERRUPTION—4.30 PM

The Speaker: May I interrupt you for just one minute? I will entertain a motion for the suspension of Standing Order 10(2).

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I move the suspension of Standing Order 10(2) for the House to continue until 6.00 PM.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 10(2)

The Speaker: The question is the suspension of Standing Order 10(2) for the House to continue until 6.00 PM. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 10(2) TO ENABLE THE HOUSE TO CONTINUE UNTIL 6.00 PM.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town, please continue. I apologise for the interruption.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, no problem. I was just trying to make it clear that when the Leader of Government Business has my register of interests and he flags it around, I had to do the same thing. I got his register of interests to flag around, and I also got the register of interests of the First Elected Member for West Bay to see whether or not this particular support had been registered, or this person had been named as someone who had contributed in this year.

Now, my register of interests, the Leader of Government Business said was sometime in February, but his is in March, his last one that he filed. It is marked 31 March, 1998. I filed mine in February, before he did, and I listed what I considered to be relevant support. I was not told by the Law that I had to disclose any particulars, it just said to register if you were getting any donations in any way.

The way politics is, I believe that persons do a better job when they try to treat all politicians equally, not having favourites, and not allowing themselves to be put in that position where they should just support one group or a few individuals, but they have an interest in political fair play.

Politics has developed in this country to an extent where we cannot finance it out of our pockets. If we do, we find ourselves being put in the position where we really have to go out there to do some things to get the extra money. I have said that over and over again. I am open to donations and contributions, I welcome them. I welcome anybody who wants to support my projects and my political movement, but I will not grant anybody any special favours as a result.

There is nothing wrong with that. It is ethically correct that everybody benefits from the credibility of the political institution. There is nothing wrong with members of society participating in the work that the politician is doing anymore than it is wrong for the congregation to support the minister in seeing that the church and the work of the church goes forward. But, when we take it out of context it is a completely different thing.

There has been more of this nature that Members of the National Team need to think about. But I am not going to say anymore at this particular time. Like my Mamma says, 'Get off my back.'

The Third Elected Member for West Bay had much to say. He spoke about a lady who wrote a letter to the paper who he says, was the niece of Mr. Benson Ebanks. Again, the idea is to destroy the messenger because the message is so powerful. That letter was one of the most moving letters that I have seen written in the Caymanian Compass. As a matter of fact, this issue has caused many good letters to be written to the Caymanian Compass and the message is quite clear. The people are saying, 'Do not put us in a position that will cause us to lose what we consider to be part of our heritage—those last two remaining patches of mangrove on the Seven Mile Peninsula.' I have brought that message by way of petitions, I know that some people will look at those petitions nevertheless and disregard them. I could have gotten many more petitions, but I really did not go out there that much to try to collect any signatures myself.

The Third Elected Member for West Bay seemed to have the idea to take the debate from this angle because another person would take it from another angle meaning, at the time in which the total forces, the "Ayes", would come back together. Because you have to understand that the National Team has just divided their two "Ayes" as a result of some internal conflicts, but the two "Ayes" have come together in regard to the Ritz-Carlton deal.

The National Team has come together as a result of the Ritz-Carlton deal so the role each has played in the debate in trying to strike down the messenger, in trying to discredit the messenger, has to be understood. Not by saying that each has a personal interest, but maybe people are already talking (although they talked about my mentioning the year 2000) about getting their team together for the year 2000, and maybe this somehow influences the way in which they have related to this entire issue.

The Third Elected Member for West Bay said that he was against the Ritz-Carlton until, of course, he found out that I had arranged this meeting with Mr. Ryan, and after the meeting with Mr. Ryan he was convinced. How convenient, Mr. Speaker!

Maybe the Third Elected Member for West Bay should pay as much attention to his constituents' points of view as he has paid to Mr. Ryan's point of view, and maybe is being convinced at that time, would have changed too. Perhaps he would have changed and he would have reverted to the way in which he felt originally. There is no reason why that honourable gentleman should not be allowed to alter his opinion and vote with us on this motion. Mr. Speaker, I would take my hat off, if I had one, to that honourable gentleman if he were to vote with us.

I am fearful that what the honourable gentleman and his colleague from West Bay imagine is that I was going to be left out here by myself, poor old barefooted person, without a soul to support me. Well, thank God for answering prayers, Mr. Speaker, because I have support from three other able Members of the Opposition. And it is important that we make that difference and say "Opposition" because when something as important as this, when the country feels as important as it does, that what the Government is doing is not in the best interest of the people, you need an Opposition to at least articulate the true desires of the people.

There are people in this country who believe that politics has come to a level at which it is beginning to decline. I know there are some people who feel this also because there is a difference in the debate. But politics only reflects what already exists in the society. The divisions are there, they are apparent. We know they are there and therefore on the political level it will be reflected.

So you cannot have the same kind of politics today, in 1998, that you had in 1978. There is a change in the mood of the country. There is more conflict of interests, there is more competition in the general society, and therefore there will be more competition in the political arena. Companies are competing to see who sells the most; politicians are competing to see who gets the most votes. It is all normal and okay, as long as we come in here and do what we have to do and when we finish we go back outside and somehow pray and find a way of coming back together again. And sometimes, of course, it is not all that easy but at least we should.

Now, this doesn't mean that we have to be such friends, that, 'Boy, I can't vote against him because this is his motion and this and that.' We have to get beyond the friend-friend thing!

Mr. Roy Bodden: True!

Dr. Frank McField: We are here to represent the people of the Cayman Islands. It is important that in representing the people of the Cayman Islands we understand that an issue like this should be passionately debated. If it were not passionately debated, it would only signal the fact that there is a failure.

There is talk about the fact that the Ritz-Carlton is not going to benefit the First Elected Member for West Bay any more than it would benefit the people of the Cayman Islands. But we know, first of all, that the Member will gain immensely. I have nothing against him gaining, because there was some talk by the Third Elected Member for George Town about the fact that some Members here got support from the National Team, otherwise they might not be here, and then they get up in here and start talking about this and that, but where would they have been without the support of the National Team?

I already documented the fact that I did not get the commission to write the history of the Cayman Islands, but I got a commission to write two plays. That commission kindly came from the Minister who was responsible for Culture at that time, the Honourable McKeeva Bush, now the First Elected Member for West Bay. I can tell you that I was grateful that that happened. I felt with all those years from 1978 that I got involved in theatre spending time in England, New York and Germany doing theatre, that for me to get a commission was not necessarily meaning that somehow I should owe anybody any favour or that anybody should owe me any favour. That was part of my profession at the time. I deserved it and I got it.

So, if anybody is referring to me when making reference to National Team support, then I am saying that if I got any support from the National Team that was monetary, it was by way of that. And that I worked for, that I sacrificed for earlier, and I am a Caymanian. If they can pay people at the cultural foundation level all the money they do pay them, they could pay me a little $24,000 for the year to write the two plays. Mr. Speaker, they are paying over $200 thousand for the history. I have read chapters of it. I could have done the same work, Mr. Speaker, but I am a Caymanian. And yet, at the same time, the same Minister, the same First Elected Member for West Bay, was the Minister for Culture at the time in which this grant was given to write the history, and I'm a PhD.

And now they want to say that we begrudge Caymanians? We begrudge him for making his money from Cambridge Realty? Nonsense! I wouldn't begrudge him. He would be the last person I would begrudge—

Mr. W McKeeva Bush: Thank you!

Dr. Frank McField: I like to see him get something! Mr. Speaker, I practically love the man! But I have a job to do.

[Members' laughter]

Dr. Frank McField: I have great respect for the man. He came in here, Mr. Speaker, the First Elected Member for West Bay, and his debate was emotional about what he had done for the people of the Cayman Islands. But that should not mean that because he has done his job well, that now somehow his reward should be in this particular matter. I would like the Member to continue to do his job so that one day we can put him out there with Mr. Jim Bodden as a national hero. That is the reward I think the gentleman should have.

[Members' laughter]

Dr. Frank McField: Not that the gentleman should necessarily be seen at this particular time in a situation where there is obviously a conflict of interest.

Mr. W McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order.

POINT OF ORDER

The Speaker: Let me hear your point of order, please.

Mr. W McKeeva Bush: The Member has been referring to this matter of interests and explaining it for quite a while. I am wondering how much longer he is going to repeat this. You will recall, Mr. Speaker, that our Standing Orders permit me to speak in the debate and not to vote. I did not put that Standing Order there, it has been there since we had Standing Orders. In fact, May's Parliamentary Practice allows that. I am just waiting to see how much longer the Member is going to continue.

The Speaker: That is really not a point of order, but you certainly did give notice, and you wrote me a letter as well prior to the debate on this motion, when this motion was filed.

Please continue, Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, in any case, I am about finished there.

There is a point that I keep trying to make in regard to the Ritz-Carlton concept. I have some information—scientific information—and all of it has been gotten off the Internet. It is being made available by the Australian Government, the United Nations Green Peace and organisations like that. So there has not been any compromise that any Government Department, or any related department has made in regard to Government information. I would just like to make that clear.

Here is something else that we took off the Internet about the Ritz-Carlton Company. It says, "The Ritz-Carlton Hotel Company is service driven and therefore employee driven. They create a workforce of multiple skilled individuals performing broad duties, rather than unskilled, easily replaceable people in narrowly defined jobs." Multiple skills. What do we mean by multiple skills? Have any idea?

What they are saying, Mr. Speaker, is that the person has to be pretty qualified. Their entire concept of excellence and their desire to reach and maintain a five-star standard will create a kind of regimentation, whether or not that is self-motivated or imposed. In this case it would not be imposed, it would have to be self-motivated, so if you are not self-motivated you would be out.

First of all, you have to look for those types of multiple skills. You have to be able to do more than one thing. So you wouldn't be creating jobs necessarily for your unskilled people. This is an upscale hotel and they are going to have upscale staff. And if we look at the Hyatt, the Westin, the Marriott, they are not going out of their way. . . . I have had a few telephone calls with people at the Westin, and I can tell you that those persons were rude to me. They don't care. They push us around. They have no respect for politicians, or anybody. And you think that the Ritz-Carlton company is going to come in here and just do everything that we want them to do, and cooperate with us?

No, Mr. Speaker. We know that that is an old salesman's trick. That is like trying to sell us this thing to drink to get rid of rheumatism that we see in the movies. This salesman job that the Minister for Tourism has tried to come in here and do, Mr. Speaker, ha! Mr. Speaker, if he hadn't had the assistance of the First Elected Member for West Bay, . . . Gee, I don't think anybody would be supporting the project at this time. But we know the people have affection for the First Elected Member for West Bay and anything he is associated with. It is difficult to get some people sometimes to see anything else. I know.

But the truth is, the Ritz-Carlton concept, when they come in they are going to insist upon a standard. Do we have people who want to go through that at this moment? We know that we have some people who are well-off in this society, and their children are going to study law. Their children are studying accountancy, medicine, and business management and other things like that. But those people's children have all kinds of positions and opportunities open to them today. They are not necessarily going to go to the Ritz-Carlton. At the end of the day we will hear them say, 'Well, we couldn't find any Caymanians to fill the slot, so we gave them a work permit because the Caymanian is not interested.'

There is not one of us in here responsible for any Portfolio who doesn't hear 'But the Caymanians don't want it.' Well, if you know the Caymanians don't want to bend to the standards at this particular time, why are you creating the opportunities? If you have knowledge that the people are having a degree of weakness in adjusting themselves to these institutions, why are you creating the opportunities? Then you know that you are not seriously creating those opportunities for Caymanians because consciously, if not subconsciously, you know Caymanians are not going to try to take advantage of those opportunities anyway. And you know consciously or unconsciously that management like the Ritz-Carlton is not going to spend time trying to educate the Caymanian people.

Why do we have the scholarships offered? Hundred scholarships! It's the cheapest thing to offer now, because you don't have to pay any money. My point is that Mr. Ryan has no money. He is a promoter, he is not a developer. He is promoting a project. He has made contacts, he is putting a deal together. If he had money, the first thing he would have said is, 'Let me put this money in an escrow account.' So that whatever happens I come to deal with you and we don't deal with, 'Boy, if you give me this, then I will give you this; but if you don't give me this then you are not getting nuthin' from me.'

That is not good negotiations, you know. Show your good faith. Show your trust in the whole situation. You would come in and say, 'Look, here is a certain amount of money for scholarships for your people. Here is the money for the people who are too old and are being displaced by the closing of the Holiday Inn, here's the money.' You wouldn't keep the money and say, 'Boy, when the Government signs the lease, when the Governor puts his John Henry on this then you get the money.' Mr. Speaker, that is almost like holding them hostage—holding us, in this Legislative Assembly hostage.

Holding the Government of the Cayman Islands hostage? Humph! I don't know why I can see that and other Members cannot. If we don't sign our John Henry, do you know what is going to be said? 'Well, you were the ones who made it all bad for them poor old West Bay people who were working down the hotel all dem years and now dey can't get nuthin' just because of un-nah.'

No, Mr. Speaker, Mr. Ryan should come a little better than that. If they are going to take the people out of their jobs, if they are going to break down the hotel, if they are going to do all of those things before the lease is even signed. . . they have done all of this without the lease even being signed. If they are going to do all of these things, the question is: Why not give these people their money? Why hold it up until the deal is signed? Do you know why? Because there is no money until the deal is signed.

I have been told by very reliable sources that Mr. Ryan's father has been bankrupt in Canada twice. And my source told me, not because he is not a good builder, they say he is a fantastic builder but he extended himself too far. I bring this up to say that the urgency of this matter in putting these things together has not to do with the urgency of getting the best deal ever, and we can't wait too long because if we wait too long they are going to go someplace else. Who is going to go someplace else? The land is not going anyplace. If Mr. Ryan goes someplace else, another person will come back because he doesn't have any money; he is a promoter. He's not like Mr. Dart who has billions of dollars, who came in here and bought up. Mr. Dart has money, he doesn't have to go around trying to get people to finance his projects. Okay? So it is important.

It is not that I am promoting Ken Dart because certainly that is not what I am intending to do, but I am intending to show the difference between a developer who has money and a promoter who doesn't have money who is basically a speculator, who is trying to get, because of his political contacts, because of his contacts with certain law firms, access to a lease extension that will then allow him to bring in this money to be able to build these condominiums.

Now, the hotel on the beach, look at how that would work. They want deferment of duties in order to improve their cash flow. Well, if they had money they wouldn't have to be worried about cash flow. One of the things that Mr. Ryan told us in the meeting that certain Members of the Backbench had with him was that the reason for this was to improve the cash flow. That's the deferment. But if you have money, why do you need to defer? You come up front and pay. Hey, we need the money. 'Here it is, good people. You're doing me a good job, you know, I'm gonna be nice. No, you gotta wait for it until we can turn over some money.'

The condominiums have already started to be reserved. And that means that people have to put up money. The lease hasn't even been signed yet. There is no guarantee. How can these people be working on the assumption that this is going to happen? Is that legal, Mr. Speaker?

Wait a minute! They are selling what they don't have. They are selling plans. They are selling air. They are selling words. They don't have the lease. What if this Legislative Assembly uses its power and goes along with this motion? Or is that not possible? Are we just debating it to show the people that we debate it?

Mr. Speaker, It could be possible that we vote, and I hope at the end of the day that it will not be just four of us voting for it, but that we have a change of mind.

One of the things the First Elected Member for George Town dealt with, was the lack of information in the way the Government dealt with this entire situation and the way in which the people have come to conceive of this situation as one of the good examples of the fact that Government means that people are there to do things for their own benefit and will do things the way they want to do things regardless of what people say.

They are selling the condominiums. Is it because they need money? They can't wait until we get through with this process? Have they been guaranteed that this process will conclude in the affirmative for them? How do they know? How can they read our minds? Have we been telling them that this is so? How do they know, Mr. Speaker, that this Legislative Assembly will vote to extend that lease to 99 years thereby making it possible for them to develop real estate properties that can be sold for millions of dollars? They do not know.

If our country has become so predictable because of the waving of dollars, then it's a sad time. But I am saying that the Humphreys who owned the lease extensions, . . . I have sympathy for the fact that they did a study and they found out that it would cost more to renovate the hotel than to destroy the hotel and perhaps reconstruct something different.

But like someone said in a letter today, I think, they made their money off the hotel. They have helped tourism to develop. But like some persons say to me too, it wasn't the backwater like they try to paint it sometimes. There were a lot of men who went to sea and sent back money too to help develop this island; Mr. Greenall and the tourists were not the only ones who developed the island, we have to think about the Caymanian seamen and their contribution as well. So the picture that was painted in here about what tourism has done by itself is not entirely correct because we have to also look at the contribution which the Caymanians have made.

We do thank Mr. Greenall for kick-starting tourism, we do thank the Humphreys for getting involved in the Holiday Inn, but they were private investors. They have made their money. The Government and the people of the Cayman Islands have no responsibility to them. So we should not be considering the extension of the lease because of their predicament. They had their time. They made their money. They have served themselves well. If the hotel must come down, they can certainly find other persons to invest in the creation of a hotel that can be located on that property for the next 52 years.

Now, this whole thing about all the countries in the Caribbean would jump to have a hotel like this, they tried to do a hotel like this in Bermuda—a Ritz-Carlton—and it didn't go through because of ecological reasons. So, for the Minister for Tourism to say this is the best deal, and that any country in the Caribbean would jump for it, is to forget that there are people in the world who have other things in mind besides the dollar. In Bermuda, where a new hotel has not been built in some 28 years, this has been the case. They have said that they cannot entertain the Ritz-Carlton.

I also have some information that goes to show that the Ritz-Carlton hotel is just a management company. The Ritz-Carlton company is a management concept. It is not an ownership concept. So we have to distinguish between the ownership concept and the management concept. This is very important because the managers can pull out anytime if they have a problem with the owners. And I have information here that I got off the Internet which shows that the Ritz-Carlton is being sued in the United States for many millions of dollars because the owners accused them of not managing or whatever. It says:

“At 12:01 AM on Saturday the Ritz-Carlton stripped the hotels of most items bearing its logo and removed records saying the owners had refused to pay $4 million in management fees and made hotel improvements. The company left a transition team in place at the hotel which no longer has identity.”

There are several cases of where the Ritz-Carlton management companies have pulled out. Where did this whole idea that the Cayman Islands is getting a Ritz-Carlton resort come from? Who said that? Where's the contract? What are the contractual agreements? If they can pull out of agreements in these particular cases, couldn't they pull out of an agreement then? Would we have a Ritz-Carlton if they pulled out?

“The original suit filed by the owners in 1995 claimed that the management group had demonstrated fiscal irresponsibility and was not adequately operating the hotels. The suit asks for $200 million in damages and is currently in the pre-trial stage in New York.”

This goes on to talk about the fact that the Ritz-Carlton and Marriott International came together in 1995, March 6. The reason why Marriott and Ritz came together was because, it is being alleged, that Ritz-Carlton wants to put some of its assets into Marriott so that when it answers these suits against Ritz by these owners that Ritz will not have to pay up all this money. So Ritz is looking for places to do things.

But it is not true that the Ritz-Carlton Management Company is, at this particular moment, a company that people are rushing out to get into their countries. It is not true. It is the farthest thing from what is correct. And there are reasons people are not doing so.

There are also reasons why the Ritz-Carlton group, of course W. S. Walker and Company is the lawyer for the Ritz-Carlton, Orren Merren is the lawyer for Ryan and Hunter and Hunter are the lawyers for the Humphreys. Okay? I know all of that. And somebody mentioned the fact that nobody mentioned W. S. Walker and Company so I just wanted to bring that in...

Now, the Ritz-Carlton Company has made other attempts in this island to find properties and to get people to invest in properties so that they could manage. So there is a point at which the management company becomes an investment company as well, where the management company decides because of the amount of money which it makes from managing properties it can them become an investor because it has made profits, and now it can put some of the profits into encouraging companies to develop so it can manage them.

As a result, they have offered $25 million to the Ryan Developers to construct a Ritz-Carlton or properties that would suit their specifications, let us say. Now, if somebody is going to lend me $25 million to develop properties that fit my specification; if I have just gone to a man who has a hotel that has been around for a while and it is going to cost a lot to be renovated, I can say, 'Look, you can come in and be a part of this development too. So I don't need to pay you for the lease you have.' And they are going to come in with $25 million. 'I have some contacts who are going to get the Government to extend the lease that is going to make it possible for us to build condominiums and by way of building the condominiums we can make a profit that we can then do other things with. So we are not going to wait until the hotel is operating in order to make profits because we wouldn't be able to do that. But we can make the profits from selling the condominiums because of the concept of pre-selling.' And then they get the deferral of duties and it puts them in business, and any little person can do that.

I could do it, Mr. Speaker. I am explaining how it works, but I don't have the contacts. I don't have the influence. I am a Caymanian! You see? So this is what we have to look at when they are trying to sell us this Ritz-Carlton. This five-star concept. But that appeals to people because what people see is this magnificent resort. That resort on the other side, there is no way that that is going to be built.

What I would like for the Government to do is say to the developer, 'Look, put some money into a fund just in case you don't succeed in attracting the kind of investment at the end of the day to build what you say you are going to build on that side so, at least, if you destroy the mangroves we can be compensated for that destruction.' Now, for them to say that what we get out of it is safeguards that we get the $6 million if it doesn't go through, and we still don't get back the land because the lease is still in the hands of the original lessee, I think that is the case.

In any case, what we have to guard against is the destruction of the mangrove that would not be commercially viable if they could not get the 100 year lease extension so by giving them the 100 year lease extension we are giving them permission to destroy the mangrove because it would not be commercially viable for them to exploit that property without the lease extension. So the culprits are those who extend the lease.

It is quite clear that no attempt by that motion is being made to invade these people's right to the lease for the next 52 years: that they are quite at liberty to exercise their rights and to build within reason whatever it is they want on those properties. But that mangrove on the other side has been there for over 40 years and nothing has been developed on that. Why do we think that anything will be developed on it now, if the lease is not extended?

We had a case in point at SafeHaven where they did a development, and once they did the development they realised that people, Americans in particular, would not purchase the condominiums so they came back for a lease extension to 99 years. These people are not waiting until they do the development, these people are coming for the lease extension from the very beginning and they are doing that because, again, they are not like the Matalons.

The Matalons are developers, they have money. They are like Ken Dart. They are not like Mr. Ryan who is a promoter. Matalons could come and develop before even talking about lease extensions because the sole purpose of their being here was not to speculate and make money, but to develop. That is what they first did, and then they tried to get terms and conditions that would allow them to do this.

I have said that I am not promoting the Matalons, or the Darts, but I would like for there to at least be competition based upon cooperation. The SafeHaven property is there. Government has already extended the lease on that particular property. Why is Government going to extend the lease on the property butting and binding the SafeHaven property to do the same thing when it has not been proven feasible to develop condominiums and sell condominiums on that particular side, especially if they are going to go along with what they say and that is, not to destroy the mangrove storm buffer? How are they going to come into the North Sound? How are they going to have access to the North Sound? How are these very wealthy people for whom these lots are being developed going to access the North Sound without the destruction of the mangroves on that 300 foot buffer zone? How are they going to do that? Maybe they are going to make some kind of arrangement with the SafeHaven developers. I don't know.

I am saying that the golf course there is a fine one. We have other amenities that we can attract people with, like our sea, the clarity of our water and the fish in the water that will now be threatened by this situation. We have that, so it is not just golf that people come to look for, it is also the marine activities. Why, then can't this developer, this promoter, this person, look to use those facilities since I have already indicated that nine of the Ritz-Carlton Resorts that exist, only two have their own golf course. Nobody has tried to refute this information, and I will give way on a point of order for anybody to get up in here on a point of clarification point out to me that these are not the facts.

If nine, or seven out of the nine resorts can do without having their own golf course, then why can't this one here? In other words, what they are saying is that they need to have these amenities close to them, but they do not necessarily have to own them because again we say the Ritz-Carlton is a management company not an ownership company.

Members of Government, Members of the National Team Backbench have tried to portray the Ritz-Carlton as a development company and not as a management company. That is to misconstrue the entire situation. Mr. Ryan and other individuals are the developers. He will probably find someone who will decide to own the hotel, but the Ritz-Carlton doesn't own any properties, they manage properties. The people of the Cayman Islands will not be getting into a deal with the Ritz-Carlton. In fact, they are getting into a deal with Mr. Ryan and his colleagues. And we see this in terms of DevelopCo, HotelCo, and CondoCo, the different companies he is forming.

He has a problem in regard to strata titles. And there is already an objection that has been made by Mr. Charles Adams (I think) to the Planning Board in regard to this. They are asking... because what happens is that if you buy a condominium on a piece of land, you have a title to the land because of the condominium. So if the hotel and the condominiums are on the same piece of land and I buy the condominium, I have, by way of buying the condominium, title to the hotel because the land has title to the hotel.

So that is a legal thing that they still have to sort out. What is happening here is that we have several different things: We have Mr. Ryan going to the Planning Department to get his plans passed. Some people believe that because the Planning Department has passed the plans that Government has given approval. In this situation Government is wearing three hats, at least: (1) Planning Department, regulators (2) Owners of the land and (3) they are also those persons entering into the agreement.

The fact that we are putting ourselves into this type of situation, the First Elected Member for George Town mentioned this in regard to the amendments to the Planning Regulations in that he saw that somehow perhaps these regulations were being tailor made. That was a concern.

Now we are going to find where certain things need to be changed in order to accommodate this. But this is not the way you go about doing business. How does the little man feel when he wants to build a house, and they are not willing to do any reassessment of the situation in order to accommodate his conditions and his requests, but they are willing to do that for someone like Mr. Ryan?

Of course, I know I am being criticised by some of them saying, 'Well, you see him? He never had a job in his life so he doesn't know nuthin' about money' and blah, blah, blah, blah. But the people know better. They know that they are not treated by their Government the same way persons coming into this country are treated. And that is one of the big considerations that we have to be making at the moment.

So what are we going to do about the fact that this development company, Ryan and Company, needs to sell these condominiums in order to be able to continue the development? How are we going to work that out? Are we going to be looking at another amendment that is going to be brought before the Legislative Assembly to make this possible? How are we going to do this? I would like to prophesy and forewarn. When is the legislation coming to be able to allow this to happen?

Mr. Speaker, how much time do I have, please?

The Speaker: Madam Clerk? (Pause) Fourth Elected Member for George Town, we will get that for you in a minute.

Dr. Frank McField: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

This says that the Strata Title Registration Law (1996 Revision) strictly forbids the mix of condominium units, strata lots and a hotel on the same parcel. This is clear from the definition of strata in section 2 of the law that permits the creation of strata lots on a parcel on which there are buildings other than hotels. Subparagraph (a) says "it is thus clear from the above reasons the developer in this case could never register a strata plan and thus there could never exist condominium units that could be transferred to the purchaser."

If they are selling the condominiums already, are they not in breach of the law? When I went to England . . . and I know there has been some criticism of the fact that I did that. But I spent my money and I went over there and I was able to also register this concern that I have in regard to this particular development at this particular time. I was told by the Members of the Foreign and Commonwealth Office that this was a local matter and that it would have to be dealt with locally. But, if you are not prepared to deal with certain things from a point of view of the law, to begin to accommodate them without the law being amended is to defeat the whole principle of the rule of law which is the basic most important principle in our democracy.

When the law becomes something that you can flex and bend at the wish of everybody, or special groups, then we are in for trouble. If a developer or a speculator or a promoter can come in here and get this type of treatment, I think other people will want it. The law does not permit what the Planning Department has been told will happen. Therefore, by way of the law, for them to be collecting money to sell condominiums without having first gone through all of this, is, as far as I am concerned, totally illegal, if not immoral.

The Government of the Cayman Islands is associated with this. One can understand my wanting to debate this particular motion was not looked at in the best light. Why it was made out that I was just debating this motion because I failed to remove the Minister responsible for Lands and to get his position on Executive Council so that I could be close to my good friend the Minister for Education and prop him up for the next few years. Mr. Speaker, come on. Gee!

I am debating this motion because it is important that history views the actions of all those Members of the Legislative Assembly regarding this issue. In the debate we have found more reasons to believe that private interests, rather than public good, is the cause for the Government being willing to entertain the extension of this lease in order to make it possible for condominium developments to occur.

What would Cambridge Realty be selling if condominiums were not built? They would not be selling anything because the hotel would be built and if only the hotel is built, you can't have condominium sales and so forth.

An interesting thing too that we have heard about why Cambridge Realty was chosen to sell these condominiums was because of the experience they had in selling Britannia. Why wasn't Century 21 chosen? They have experience. That is an international company.

The Speaker: You have been speaking for three hours and twenty-seven minutes.

Dr. Frank McField: So, Mr. Speaker, again I think that I am suggesting that there is a political aspect of this particular arrangement that needs to be looked at. The public needs to know that the National Team went through a very difficult period when the First Elected Member for West Bay was removed from Executive Council. He came over on the Backbench—and like the good Backbencher he is, things started to change in this Legislative Assembly. And before you know, the Backbenchers seemed to have been in control. Of course, this must have frightened greatly the Leader of Government Business—only five of them having to deal with the brunt of us on this side. Especially having had the good talk of the First Elected Member for West Bay helped us greatly.

Now, we went through the Censure Motion. The House seemed to have been divided, again, according to this. Now we come back to this and now, from the point of view of the National Team buddies, everybody seems to be chummy-chummy again. So it looks like chickens have gone home to roost. Looks like I'm not the only one thinking about the year 2000. Looks like other people might be thinking about how they might be able to get back by the year 2000 by supporting this. So there is a lot of politics in this particular situation but politics and economics are always very closely connected. So I would not do what some others have done in that they have said that I am the only one who expressed any kind of political rhetoric in these halls.

The investors are looking for a stable environment rather than special deals. If we look at that we find that most investors who have come to the Cayman Islands over the last 30 years have been looking for a stable environment and not for any special deals. At least that is what I believe. I may be wrong, not having the business sense that some other Members have, but that is my belief.

The situation is whether or not the incentives which we are about to give will erode revenue base, whether or not the deferrals will erode the revenue base, and can Government really afford, in gambling and saying that they are going to have this $100+ million revenue to give the deferral for that particular period of time because we might see that we need the money now and I believe that the environment we are offering the developer is a stable environment. It is a good competitive tourist environment and we should not have to offer at this particular stage in our development any incentives to developers.

We should consider offering some incentives to the people of the Cayman Islands. We could think about the incentives the developer seems to be offering to the people of the Cayman Islands by way of the 100 scholarships, but where he is asking us to do the deferrals for three years for import duties, and that must be about 20% or so of his building cost, where we are actually giving up something, he is not really giving up anything at the moment because he knows that he is not going to have 100 people even if he gives the scholarships. We know that. If that was the case, the Minister for Tourism would have had a lot more people applying to him. So even if people do use these scholarships, we are talking about some time in the future, we are not talking about in the next five years or so. So he has good time to make his profits, if he does make any, and to put the money in there for the scholarship fund.

When we spoke of the OECD, the Third Elected Member for George Town mentioned it in his debate. He mentioned it in order to show why we need to do the Ritz-Carlton project. I went to a meeting that the Government had after its return from London. And once I understood that there would be a gag order on me, I said to them that if I were to hear anything in that meeting that I could not tell the good people of the Cayman Islands, then I refused to be a part of the meeting, and I walked out of the meeting so that I couldn't hear anything that I couldn't say. My thing is, don't let me hear it, because I am going to say it. Don't let Frank McField hear it, because he is going to say it!

So I respected the fact that they would like to play that role knowing that they believe that some things should be told to some people but other people shouldn't know anything, I decided to move myself away from that particular situation. Mr. Speaker, I think I am capable of analysing the exact position of the OECD and of the British Government. And those of us who have been following information that has been provided to members of the public in Britain would be able to come and have the same information at the same time the Leader of Government Business has access to.

To try to pretend that they know some little thing that we common people should not know is to try to mystify their position. But they don't know anything that I don't know because good logic helps us sometimes to understand exactly what is taking place. I said before—and this is relevant to the debate because we are saying that the financial industry and tourism are the pillars of our economy and if one is going to be affected, we need to be building up the other one. In other words, if the financial system is going to be affected, then we need to be building up the tourism one.

But the Financial Secretary, who went on this same expedition, this so-called, fact-finding mission that the Third Elected Member for George Town went on, said in a headline in the Caymanian Compass, "OECD initiatives will not affect the financial system here." So if the Financial Secretary is saying to us that the initiatives are not going to affect the financial industry, whom do we believe?

I mean this is now when you get a disparity in positions. You get the Third Elected Member for George Town who went on the same mission as the Financial Secretary coming here at this particular time in the debate making a statement which I believe contradicts what the Financial Secretary has said, which means that we don't need to worry about anything. If we don't need to worry about anything why have they now tried to turn this debate into a situation that is saying the OECD... we are going to get our this, and this is going to happen, and now we really need to develop tourism and get a five-star resort right now because if we don't get it right now what is going to happen is going to be sad for us. Mr. Speaker, scary, scary, scary.

I believe what happened when they went over to England is that because the position of the OECD was based not upon scientific research and evaluation but upon advertisement and speculation about areas like the Cayman Islands and so forth and so on, that they were told they would have to arrive at a much more scientific definition of what harmful tax initiatives or measures or areas were.

So we are going through the stage of actually compiling for them so that they can more accurately look at our situation and it goes on, and on, and on. The process is not only that we have to get information, they also have to have information. They have to gather information because obviously the OECD committee that has examined harmful tax competition in the world didn't look at too much of the reality because if they had, they would not have come up with some of the sweeping generalisations they did make.

Once we look at Vision 2008 and we see how the Government right now is still ready to throw some of the things out of the door in order to do the Ritz-Carlton project, then we understand that the OECD is only a group of people who have gotten together from specific countries. They might make recommendations, but that does not mean that their Parliament will go along with those recommendations. In other words, those Parliaments might throw those recommendations out the door for expediency as fast as our Government has already thrown out some of the recommendations from the Vision 2008 exercise.

Again, I am saying that we have to look at historical precedents to understand the difficulties that even these so-called powerful G7 and G8 countries will have in institutionalising world-wide a tax regime that in fact would be uniform. To have uniform behaviour without regard to tax practices is as ludicrous as I have ever heard—please, sir, never believe that that is ever possible.

The American Revolution was fought because of taxation. And right now the Americans have created a surplus and they don't even know what to do with the surplus because now they have a new political problem because they have a surplus. In other words, the world is producing at a rate. So I don't believe that even rich people in America, that politically powerful people in America who make speeches about taxes believe that we should have one uniform tax system for people even in our own country that there should be a different approach; that, in fact, we cannot politicise the tax issue to the point where we see taxation as a means of redistributing wealth and creating equality within countries and equality between countries. I believe that politically that is flawed, I believe that that will turn up in some of the debates in the United Kingdom Parliament, and Parliaments in other countries.

Now, right now we have a change in the Government in Germany. This might also prove to be important, probably more important than a lot of people here think. But I have watched the development of the SPD in Germany over the years and I do believe that it is going to mean something and we have to follow these things also internationally.

My suggestion to the House, rather than give away the people's land because we are afraid of what these initiatives are going to do for us, that we pay more academic concern to the initiatives to realise whether or not the initiatives are practical or not... and that has nothing to do with Baroness Simpson. Because she says that she is for them does not mean that they are possible. She is expressing the position of her government and the commitment of her government and she would be wrong if she didn't express those commitments, at least to other people, but it does not mean that she might not have the same kind of reservations about whether or not it is applicable and practical as Mr. Blair himself might have.

Mr. Speaker, what is going to happen to the Parliaments in Scotland? What is going to happen to the Parliament in Wales?

The Speaker: Could I interrupt you for just one minute? Can we get back to the motion for the final moments.

Dr. Frank McField: How many final moments?

The Speaker: Would you get back to the motion please?

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, the motion we are talking about has to do with the arguments in favour or against. I am saying that it has been presented by the Third Elected Member for George Town that one of the reasons why we need... and I have heard people in my constituency saying that the reason why we need the Ritz-Carlton is because of this OECD thing.

The Speaker: Really, with all respect, I can't tie Germany and Scotland into this debate.

Dr. Frank McField: All right, Mr. Speaker. It is very far away from us, but the truth is that we have made the assumption that it affects what we do here. And that was the only purpose because the OECD concept is important because the financial institutions and the tourism industry have developed hand-in-hand from the early period of the 1970s when, as some people talk about the fact that the Samson (sic) suitcases were coming from the Bahamas, meaning in fact that they were taking it out of one of these so-called third-world unstable countries to bring it to this first-world stable country. That the development of the two . . . so if we are predicting a decline in one, we are predicting a decline in the other.

I am saying be of good faith. Look at the situation. Use our historical knowledge and our contemporary possibility to have access to information by way of the Internet to assess the situation in such a way so that we make a decision that does not put the country into greater turmoil because we have gone again and created development that has been so traumatic and so fast. As I have used the example, that this project if it is also done on the heel of the Ken Dart project is like hooking up a rocket to a car. In other words, that we might be able to recognise where it has gone, but we won't recognise it after it has gone because the car will be totally shattered by the rocket.

Are we going to be able to recognise the Cayman Islands? Are we going to be able to recognise our heritage? Are we going to be able to recognise our land? Are we going to recognise our accents? Are we going to be able to recognise our faces and our faith again after all of this has happened to us again? The question is: Do we really need this project at this particular time, or is this project just for the convenience of those persons who are sure to benefit from it?

Mr. Speaker, as we observe the House moving to get the numbers to do the vote, we would like to thank the Minister responsible for Lands for gracing the House with his presence at this late stage of the debate. We hope that that is an indication that he will vote his conscience and that his conscience will mean that he will vote with the people of these islands, meaning that he will vote for this motion; that he will vote to say that there should be no destruction of the mangroves on the Seven Mile, West Bay peninsula; that there should be no extension of the lease, and that this would not mean driving away development because development can reasonably occur on that five point something acres of land where the Holiday Inn once stood.

Again, in summing up I would like to refer back to the very important role the seamen played in this society. We all have great praises for all the people who have come into the island from abroad and helped Cayman develop. We need to have a little bit more praise for those seamen who went abroad and risked their lives on the high seas and brought money back to the island.

Mr. Speaker, I can't deny that the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town is coaching me and telling me to say that you would appreciate that, Mr. Speaker, because you were a master mariner.

[Members' laughter]

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I must tell you that what these ears hear the mouth is going to say! But it just goes to show that such a beautiful compliment could only be formed by the Chef of Flowery Language!

In summing up I would like to ask Members of this Honourable House to forgive me if there have been incidents when I appeared to be more than polite, or less than polite, more so. Also, I would like to explain again that when I started with this Private Member's Motion . . . when I started conceiving the fact that it was necessary to have a debate on the subject, I began by myself. I spoke to the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town and he was willing to second the motion; we were not sure at that particular time whether we would get support. But I would like to pay a special compliment to the First Elected Member for George Town, and the Elected Member for North Side, for joining us in this. At times I did not want to sit down in a reasonable matter and discuss these issues because I was afraid that somehow I might not have been as convinced as I should have been. And I expressed that without any reservations. I also need to make it clear that I did not go out deliberately to try to put a wrench in anybody's spokes. It was not easy for me to even conceive of debate in a certain way that I might somehow upset my friend, the First Elected Member for West Bay.

So, Mr. Speaker, doing this type of position and this type of opposition is not easy. Nobody should think it is easy. But it is necessary because all sides have had a chance to air their views, whether or not we agree with one another, in the final analysis it is all part of the democratic process. And, again, in summing up I would just like the Honourable Minister responsible for Education to know that I do expect my ExCo seat, and I do not expect that he will be giving me one, and so I feel it will be my task to remove him completely when the time comes so that we can have some enlightenment and some advancement.

Like the Bible says, Light is what we seek. We are in search of light, the journey for light in development and enlightenment. Certainly there will not be any development and enlightenment in a country if the person who is responsible for education continues to say that if you do not have a business that somehow you are of less worth than someone who has a business. I pray that the good people of this island will understand that there are more sides to this situation than that good Member tries to tell us.

Mr. Speaker, I have used the word 'advancement' and I have been told that I must be careful in using these words because some people will twist and turn them, but I don't think that I have a fear of that. I have a different relationship with that because my whole process and my whole being has been twisted and distorted by certain people for so long, it won't be nuthin' new!

[Members' laughter]

Dr. Frank McField: If ever they did see the Devil, they saw me because it was always . . . and I have tabled already the [Member turned away from microphone] paper with that honourable gentleman and me on the same front page, 1980. See, one looks like this, and one looks like this! Our fate, Mr. Speaker, is more bound together than one would imagine.

The Speaker: You have four minutes to go.

Dr. Frank McField: Okay.

[Members' laughter and applause]

Dr. Frank McField: And Mr. Speaker, I shall use those four minutes.

There is one thing I would like to say about the Minister for Education, he has a sense of humour.

Mr. Roy Bodden: True!

Dr. Frank McField: And sometimes it is good that he has a sense of humour. I have not always agreed with the Minister for Education, we more or less, with the National Team support I must admit that I believe that the Minister for Education did assist me a little bit. But the Third Elected Member for George Town must remember that his team was full, so I didn't have any space to get assisted there.

[Members' laughter]

Dr. Frank McField: So, Mr. Speaker, if I took a little bit of support from the good Minister for Education and the National Team, it was because at least I knew that they had a little bit of space for a little bit of support from somebody who was not on their team. It's part of the style of that Minister to do what is politically expedient because he once said when he was elected that he had politics down to a fine art. I can tell anybody that he is one of the best politicians that I have come across because when he pulled that thing off with that Censure Motion, I had to take my hat off to him; I had never seen that kind of struggle before. And I can afford to compliment him. Why shouldn't I? I would just like for him, one day, to give me my compliments too because somehow, Mr. Speaker, I deserve a few.

[Applause]

Dr. Frank McField: And I would still like to find out if he ever read that play "Time Longer dan Rope" and what he did with his copies [Members' laughter] because I made sure that he and Mr. George Smith got their copies.

And maybe, if I didn't have my own briefcase to bring to this Legislative Assembly the Minister and I might get on very well because I might be able to carry his. But my problem is that I have my hands full, and I have no space for his briefcase; therefore our relationship has to be different than it was— or than he would think sometimes the traditional relationship should be like.

I would like to ask him to now support the motion. I would like to remind him: Don't make my job easy in terms of removing him in that year 2000 because he has a contribution to play in this Parliament. I would never deny that. Although he might deny that I have one to play. And you don't want to forget the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital. You don't want to forget that time longer 'dan' rope. Remember the money will be spent, the deal is struck, but the Caymanian people will remember, will remember, will remember!

The Speaker: I shall now put the question on Private Member's Motion No. 17/98. All those in favour please say Aye—

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker. Remember, sir, if it pleases the Chair, in my debate I requested of the Chair to put the various sections, sir, so that we could vote on them individually, and the Chair gave that undertaking.

The Speaker: If that is the wish, we shall so do.

I will put the question on the first resolve section: "BE IT NOW THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT the report laid on the Table by the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works on 17th July, 1998, concerning Government's proposal to grant permission to these entities to utilise Crown Lands, namely Block 12C, Parcel 215; Block 12C, Parcel 11; and Block 12C, Parcel 216, in the West Bay Section of Grand Cayman, for the development of a Ritz Carlton, be rejected;"

Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

Ayes & Noes.

The Speaker: The motion fails.

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 17/98 FAILED.

The Speaker: Under Standing Order 31 I have given permission to the First Elected Member for West Bay to make a personal explanation.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION
Standing Order 31

Mr. W McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, The Fourth Elected Member for George Town during my debate on 23 September said that I was telling a lie. In fact, he said that I was telling a bloody lie when I said in the debate that he had brought a constituent to see me on Mother's Day when I was in the West Bay Cemetery attending to my grandmother's grave. Mr. Speaker, I have a letter from a constituent of mine who was with me attending to her grandmother's grave and I pass it to all Members and I will read it:

"This is to tell you that on Mother's Day of this year Dr. Frank McField came to the West Bay cemetery between 8:45 am and 9:30 am to see Mr. McKeeva Bush. I saw Dr. Frank McField give Mr. McKeeva Bush some papers and heard Dr. Frank McField talking about the Ritz-Carlton. Mr. Bush took the papers and said that he would tell the people when he had a chance. Mr. Bush was at the West Bay cemetery taking care of his grandmother's grave and he had taken me to put flowers on my mother's grave on Mother's Day.

"Dr. Frank McField" and, Mr. Speaker, I am not calling the constituent's name out of respect for that constituent, "was there. Mr. (sic) Frank McField did talk to Mr. Bush about those things, and he should not say different. Yours truly, [signed] Iva Powery." I will pass this to all Members, Mr. Speaker.

I also have copies of the brochure of the company and the Fourth Elected Member's constituent's business card which I will pass also to each Member of the House, but I will not lay it on the Table as I have said for the sake of respect of his constituent. I have also a letter from the developer to his constituent regarding the inquiry which I will read. Again, I will leave out the constituent's name.

"Following your meeting in early May with Dr. Frank McField and Mr. McKeeva Bush, the information on your company was forwarded to me at the request of Dr. McField through Mr. Bush. This information has been reviewed with interest by our project team. Upon reviewing the file I noticed that you had not been contacted to acknowledge receipt of your material. Please be advised that we have the information you provided on file and they will be included on the list of local suppliers when bid documents are distributed. As the development and construction of the Ritz-Carlton Grand Cayman Resort advances, we will soon be in a position to distribute documentation for initial bidding on the project. Should we require additional information in advance of the document distribution our project team will contact you. If you have any questions, please feel free to contact our project manager at our offices. Thank you for your interest in our project."

Mr. Speaker, the interest that I have has been disclosed to the people of this country and to this Honourable House as is required by the Standing Orders of this Honourable Legislature. There is no wrong committed by me or my company, Cambridge Real Estate Corporation. We are Caymanians doing business honestly and legally.

My interest was disclosed. I hope that those complaining who have an interest in this matter by whatever means will be as honest and disclose as soon as possible. Thank you.

The Speaker: I shall now entertain a motion for the adjournment of this Honourable House.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I am very happy to move the adjournment of this Honourable House until 10.00 AM on Monday.

The Speaker: The question is that this Honourable House do now adjourn until 10.00 AM on Monday. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AT 6.10 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM MONDAY, 5 OCTOBER, 1998.

PRESENTATION OF PAPERS AND REPORTS

COMMUNITY COLLEGE OF THE CAYMAN ISLANDS
ANNUAL REPORT 1997/98; and
FINANCIAL STATEMENTS OF COMMUNITY COLLEGE OF THE CAYMAN ISLANDS
31ST DECEMBER, 1997 AND 1996

Hon. Truman M Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I beg to lay on the Table of this Honourable House, the Community College Of The Cayman Islands Annual Report 1997/98 and the Financial Statements of the Community College of the Cayman Islands 31st December 1996/97.

The Speaker: So ordered. Do you wish to speak to it? Please continue.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Yes sir, just briefly.

Mr. Speaker, the 1997/98 academic year was very demanding and also rewarding for the Board of Governors, the Faculty and staff of the Community College. The College had numerous achievements in this academic year but the most significant was the wide recognition and acceptance of the Associate Degree Programme. This programme is less than two years old and has matched and even surpassed other West Indian institutions whose courses have been in existence for much longer periods.

The first of this acceptance was the World Evaluation Services recommendation to upgrade every grade except an "A" that was awarded by the Community College to approve and upgrade every Grade A. In addition, the organisation recommended all credits for transfer. The World Evaluation Services is an established agency used by American Universities to assess transcripts of foreign institutions.

Continuing on from this success, is the acceptance of the Associate Degree Alumnae as transfer students. It should be noted that three institutions offered scholarships to the graduates. In addition, British Institutions have accepted students and their achievements from the Community College. These institutions include Nottingham Trent University, University of Brighton, University of South Hampton and the University of Surrey.

The College's Extension Community Service offerings have enjoyed an increase in enrolment in this academic year. These offerings are divided into two categories—College Scheduled and Contract Courses. The scheduled offerings include academic courses such as "O" Levels as well as vocational and developmental courses. The contract courses are customised vocationally or professionally orientated offerings. The Community College's clients for these courses include the Cayman Islands Government, educational institutions such as Truth for Youth, and private sector establishments such as Caribbean Utilities Company.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to state the present programmes that are at the College because from time to time we are asked. In the certificate programmes there is Construction, Electrical, Hospitality, Accounting and Computing. In professional development, Government and Nursing. The number of Caymanians in the certificate programmes that I mentioned earlier such as Construction and Electrical were 59, and non-Caymanians 27. So there were 68% Caymanian attendance.

In the Associate Degree Programme, the following are offered: Accounting, Business Administration, Computer Science, Hospitality Management, Physical Science, Office Administration, Mathematics, Natural Science, Social Studies, Literary Studies, History, non-degree programmes, Economics and Condominium Management.

Mr. Speaker, evening classes consist of a total of three evening courses, with course enrolment of 396, giving an average class size of over 15 students in each class. These courses are: Bookkeeping and Accounts – two classes; Key-boarding, Work Processing, English for Business Communication 1, Commercial Numeracy, Introduction to Excel, Introduction to Computers – three courses in that; Keyboarding and Typing, Introduction to Windows 95, Introduction to Word Processing, Architectural Drawing, Basic Electrical Installations, Basic English Skills, Bookkeeping and Accounts Level II, Company Law for Secretaries, Electrical Licensing preparation, English as a second Language, Human Resource Management, International Cooking, Contract Law for Secretaries, SAT Preparation, Conversation Spanish – two of those, Wood Working and Cabinet Making, Child Development, English Language, Mathematics, Principles of Accounts, Customer Service Skills and Telecommunications Wiring. There are 22 short Computer Courses that are offered, two courses in Windows 95; there are six courses in Excel 97 beginning from Introduction and going through Intermediate. There are six courses running in Words 97 from Introduction to Intermediate, there is Web Page development, Project Management, Peachtree Computerising Accounting, Internet and E-Mail Concepts, three courses running in that, Access 97 and assessing computer needs.

On the professional courses, there are nine. Course enrolment is 131, average class size 14.5 persons in each class. There are Accounting Revisions, Accounting and Investments, there are two classes, Business Communications, two classes, Business of banking, two classes, Understanding Accounts and Business Law.

Now, the other area from the Report that I would like to touch on, Mr. Speaker, is found on page 17 and it is a list of the American Colleges and Universities that recognise the Community College's associate degrees and allow transfer of credits in accordance with the articulation agreement. They are: Oakwood College rated competitive, St. Leo College, rated competitive, Stetson University, competitive, University of Illinois – competitive, University of Miami which is rated very competitive, and Webber College, competitive. It is very important, Mr. Speaker, because in a very short period of time the Board, together with what will be our new President under the Law--the Principal of the College--has brought the Community College through great strides and when there is recognition by very competitive universities, it is really quite a feather in the Community College's cap.

As was mentioned earlier, out of the British institutions, there are eight that recognise and they are at page 18. I read some of these before and also the University of the West Indies (UWI). The articulation there which was quite long has now been completed. At UWI, the articulation related to three campuses in their faculties of Science and Technology, Pure and Applied Science and Natural Science in Agriculture and recently process has begun an Accounting Business Administration and Hospitality Management which is hoped to begin the articulation process this coming year. It is quite a long process, especially with some of the universities, to get the acceptance.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to also point out that other accomplishments enjoyed in the academic year included the Phase II expansion of the campus, the air-conditioning of two classrooms and an agreement with Cable & Wireless to provide one free Internet terminal beginning in September. I would like to especially thank Cable & Wireless, not only for the Community College but also for each of the Government and private schools that they have provided one free internet terminal for.

Along with these successes there were also a few disappointments including a reduced enrolment in the certificate and professional programmes and in both cases, the Community College has developed a plan to address these problems.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to thank the Principal of the Community College, the Chairman and the Board of Governors, the lecturers, the staff and everyone who has contributed towards making the Community College the success it is today. I would also like to mention that local scholarships to the Community College, ICCI and the Law School, those guidelines are well in preparation at this stage. I believe that this will also be a boost to our local institutions here. I wish the College continued success and I will do everything I can to assist it and promote it for the betterment of the Islands.

The Speaker: Did you wish to speak on the Financial Statements or have you concluded?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, that is fairly self-explanatory. The only thing I would say on that is that I would hope that we could have the hall completed—at least the money appropriated for that to begin this coming year, sir.

The Speaker: Item No. 4 on today's Order Paper. Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. Deferred question No. 178 standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for West Bay.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION 178

No. 178: Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr. asked the Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works to say what district road maintenance has taken place in 1998 and to provide a breakdown of expenditure in each district.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Road maintenance activities carried out in 1998 include vegetation control (bush cutting), road sweeping, hot-mix patching, shoulder repairs, road re-construction and fencing repairs.

The breakdown of costs to date, by district is as follows:

| Activity         | East End | North Side | Bodden Town | George Town | West Bay |
|------------------|----------|------------|-------------|-------------|----------|
| Bush cutting     | 24,595   | 11,939     | 60,241      | 72,529      | 58,592   |
| Road sweeping    | 0        | 658        | 1,595       | 1,925       | 48       |
| Hot-mix patching | 6,351    | 803        | 54,507      | 51,736      | 13,383   |

|                      |         |        |         |         |        |
|----------------------|---------|--------|---------|---------|--------|
| Shoulder Maintenance | 12,111  | 1,958  | 50,770  | 127,286 | 13,141 |
| Road Re construction | 63,047  | 104    | 110,223 | 56,245  | 8,612  |
| Fencing              | 0       | 0      | 0       | 0       | 328    |
| Misc.                | 110     | 0      | 120     | 110     | 209    |
| Totals:              | 106,214 | 15,462 | 277,456 | 309,831 | 94,313 |

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries, the First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Minister state what funds were available to the Public Works Department for the year in the road maintenance vote?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Mr. Speaker, the Chief Engineer has the right when roads are in dangerous situation to go ahead in conjunction with the Finance Department to have the maintenance work carried out and in order to keep the staff and the roads in order, he actually has operated in that way. I really do not have a breakdown of the figures. I will be glad to give them to the Member at a later date.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I wonder if the Honourable Minister can say the reason for the difference in the sums of monies spent in road maintenance between all the other districts, almost in the hundreds of thousand dollars but in the district of North Side a mere $15,452?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Mr. Speaker, it is my understanding that funds which have been identified here were spent with regard to the need at the time for the various districts.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I wonder if the Minister could explain road reconstruction in the district of North Side costing only $104?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Mr. Speaker, it must have been a very small piece of road, I presume, and it was probably just a sand seal patch.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Mr. Speaker, seeing that it has been a while since we did a district road visit, I wonder if the Honourable Minister can confirm whether or not we do have some visits scheduled before the Budget Meeting for 1999?

The Speaker: Hon Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you Mr. Speaker, yes sir, we do have and I think a memorandum has already been circulated to Members. The reason why we really have not done it before now, we tried our best but most times it was the time of year when we did have some funds that everybody was taking a vacation at different times and it was just impossible to put everything together.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I am wondering whether the Minister could say when this work took place, particularly in the district of West Bay. He might have said so, but I was not here. If he could tell me when this took place. I see a particular mention of bush cutting, is that the on-going work on the roadsides? It does not mean that you were cutting McKeeva Bush, right?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: No, Mr. Speaker, he is correct. The annual thing that we do is to keep the roadsides clean.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries we will move to question No. 180 standing in the name of the Elected Member for North Side.

QUESTION 180

No. 180: Mrs. Edna Moyle asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning to state how often and the length of time the Reading and Behavioural Disorder specialist visits the North Side Primary School.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Boddan: The specialist staff is assigned to schools based on the number and category of needs identified at those schools. Currently, North Side Primary has the smallest percentage of special needs' students with 12 students identified as being in need of services from the Learning Behaviour Disorder Specialist.

Accordingly, the specialist visits the school one day a week for at least five hours. Among the duties performed at this time are conducting initial assessments of specific needs, designing individualised education programmes, referring students to the multidisciplinary evaluation team for more in-depth assessment, teaching individuals or small groups of students, liaising and consulting with teachers and parents on programmes to be followed up in the classroom and at home when the specialist is not available and monitoring and evaluating students' progress.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries. The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you Mr. Speaker. I wonder if the Honourable Minister could tell us how many members are there on the specialist staff?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Seven for all schools.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I notice the Honourable Minister answered that in a very low tone of voice. I could agree with him too if out of sixty students in the district of North Side Primary School, twelve of those children have been identified. I can just wonder about the other schools. I wonder if the Honourable Minister would say if he feels that the department is achieving sufficiently with just spending one day a week for five hours in the district of North Side to deal with twelve students?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I have consulted with the Chief Education Officer and he feels that that is sufficient for the twelve students at North Side.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? There are no further supplementaries. We will move on to question No.181, standing in the name of the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

DEFERRMENT OF QUESTION 181 Standing Order 23(5)

No. 181: Miss Heather Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning, what is the status of the pending application to subdivide land around the Betty Bay Pond in Breakers.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I am wondering if I could delay that question [181] for a later date, please. I am sorry; I should have asked that at the beginning.

The Speaker: Certainly, the question is that under Standing Order 23(5) that [question 181] be deferred for a later sitting. Those in favour please say Aye, those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED. QUESTION 181 DEFERRED UNTIL A LATER SITTING.

The Speaker:

The next question is No. 182, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 182

No. 182: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible For Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture to state what has been done to enhance the status of women in the Cayman Islands since she assumed the Ministry.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Since assuming the Ministry in November 1997, various actions have been taken to enhance the status of women in the Cayman Islands. These actions include public education and awareness programmes, activities to ensure an informed and aware public, and policy development to ensure a structure through which the needs of men and women can be met to eventually enhance the status of our family.

The public education projects and programmes are coordinated through the auspices of the Women's Resource Centre. The Women's Resource Centre with its primary focus being to assist women to empower themselves through information and education was officially launched on 25th November, 1997, during my tenure as Minister of Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Through the Women's Resource Centre, the programmes which have contributed to enhancing the status of women have been extended to the community. These programmes include a forum on Domestic Violence, a forum on the Maintenance Law and a seminar on weight preoccupation and eating disorders. Through participation in these programmes, women in the community have been able to extend their knowledge of these subjects and make informed decisions to their advantage betterment.

In order to ensure that the Women's Resource Centre provides the type of services needed to improve the status of women in our society, the Ministry conducted a preliminary needs assessment to ascertain what services women who use the Centre would like to see in place. This questionnaire was taken from a small sample of persons who had attended programmes offered by the Centre. The main issues arising out of this were the issues of domestic abuse, parenting the family, and child maintenance. As a result of this small sample, many of the activities of the Women's Resource Centre have been as a direct reflection of the needs expressed.

The Ministry has joined forces with the Employee Assistance Programme (EAP) in addressing the need for parent skills development. The EAP offers a parent skills workshop through the Women's Resource Centre. There are several women's support groups that are held at the Women's Resource Centre facilitated by various community organisations, including Alcoholics Anonymous and the Legal and Befrienders Clinic. All these programmes, by providing public education and awareness, enhance the status of women in the Cayman Islands.

At policy level, the Ministry is setting up a structure through which policies to enhance the status of both men and women in our society can be implemented. The first step in this process has been setting out a Policy Direction. Within the next few weeks, the Ministry will be formalising these directions into a policy statement for submission to Executive Council.

Having done this, the Ministry will also formalise a project document on an office for women's affairs as dictated by Motion No. 1/95 through the ongoing research process in the Ministry. The Ministry, subject to budget funds being approved, also intends to carry out a survey on the status of women and provide gender training across Government to encourage a gender-aware approach to all Government policy. These activities, both at the programme level and at the policy level, all serve and will continue to serve to enhance the status of women in the Cayman Islands.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The Minister has said that there was a questionnaire which was taken from a small sample of persons who attended programmes offered by the Centre. Can the Minister say if there are any plans to have a wider survey done possibly on a national scale which will attempt to ascertain some of the common problems experienced by women and by inference, the family? Also, can the Minister explain to the House whether any attempt will be made to incorporate some of the findings of the family study into the Ministry's policy on women?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Mr. Speaker, the Ministry is working with UNDP with a view of doing a national survey with a view to ascertain and identify the problems which are common for women in our Caymanian society as it relates to the Report. It is my understanding that that report was at some stage taken to Executive Council. I have directed the person responsible in the Ministry that when I take within the next few weeks a policy statement and the policy per se, that we will also try to get the confirmation and or acceptance of the report from Executive Council at that time.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I am wondering whether the Honourable Minister can say if when she says that she is going to formalise the project document on an office for women's affairs, is she meaning a unit within the Ministry or otherwise? As I understand it, there is an officer in the Ministry in charge of Women's Affairs.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. It is our view to set up a unit because we are finding that one person cannot deal with the policy as well as the programme because in addition to that, there are other responsibilities in the Ministry which that person has to deal with, sir.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In an earlier question the Minister gave as one of the policy directions: To encourage the prospect of women acquiring the skills needed to contribute equally in the decision-making process in the various levels of our social stratifications.

Seeing that we already have women who have these skills, is the Ministry doing anything to assist so that [during] these decision-making processes in the Government-- particularly on the future of these Islands-- women are involved and taking a part in representing the Cayman Islands overseas?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. That concern by the Elected Member for North Side, is also a concern of the Ministry especially in recent times. I am sure the Member will appreciate that in the most recent of cases there was very little per se, that could be done before the fact. I will at the earliest opportunity express my concern to the parties related in making that decision, because like her, I too believe that women have not only formed a very integral part in the development of the Cayman Islands, but women indeed can continue to do so given an equal opportunity.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? If there are no further supplementaries moving on to question No 183 standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

I will entertain a motion for the suspension of Standing Order [23 (7)&(8)] that we can continue Question Time beyond 11 AM.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 23(7) AND (8)

Mr. W McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, I so move for the extension of time.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I beg to second that, sir.

The Speaker: The motion has been moved and seconded. Those in favour please say Aye, those against No.

Ayes.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. Question Time continues.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 23 (7) & (8) SUSPENDED.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 183

No. 183: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning under what circumstances does the Government allow a developer to fill and develop land higher than the level of the adjacent road.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, as part of a subdivision, if the land is low lying, the developer is required to bring the property up to a level of four feet above the Vidal Bench Mark. For all new development, surface water is required to be contained on site.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries. The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Minister say then if it is the responsibility of the developer in these cases to ensure that surface water does not impede or does not become a nuisance to road users and the developing and the adjacent land owners by ensuring that such a flow is either trenched or culverted so that it drains to a place where it is not a nuisance?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, the answer to that is yes, and I would actually like to see private drains near roads, being kept free so that the water will go into them and be contained. If the drains on the private property near to the road are not maintained properly, then water goes into the road itself. I think maybe the time has come when there needs to be a 'tightening up.'

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Looking at the opposite side of the coin: First of all, is road construction--that is public roads--considered development?

The Speaker: The Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I have to look that up in the Law to make sure. (Pause) Section 2 of the Development and Planning Law states: "Development has the meaning assigned to it by section 10(2) and "develop" has a corresponding meaning;..."

Section 10(2) states: "development" means the carrying out of building, engineering or other operations in, over or under any land, the making of material change in the use of any building or other land, or the subdivision of any land, except that the following operations or uses of the land shall not be deemed for the purposes of this Law to involve development of the land,..." And, there are some exceptions.

This Law binds the Crown, so development of a public road that is not caught under the Roads Law, as such, would be caught under this Law, I would think under one law or the other. Mr. Speaker this is getting into an area where perhaps a bit of research would need to be done if you want a specific answer on it.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The reason for that question is to ask if when the Government, through whatever agency it uses, is constructing or rebuilding a road, does the Government find the onus on itself to ensure that the run-off of water from that road does not go into people's properties?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon Truman M Bodden: Mr. Speaker, the Government has a duty to ensure that water running from its land does not run onto other people's property. I would think that that is law. Now what I am not sure about--and maybe the Legal Department would have to look this up--but there are two laws that deal with this area, one is a statutory type of civil or criminal liability and it would be civil trespass that we are looking at and the other one would be the normal common law trespass. Under the normal common law trespass that binds people, generally, if you cause anything to go from your land to another person's land, which is not just obnoxious but which could cause damage, or which is a nuisance, could create a civil liability.

[Inaudible comments]

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, if the Minister does not mind, I will turn it into a question, but I want to explain something. Why I asked that question is because we are all cognisant of the fact that on the one hand we have the public screaming for better roads, and such the like; on the other hand sometimes when these road improvements are done you have the individual home or business owners being directly affected--Smith Road being one of the most recent examples.

I am not suggesting that Government is not doing what it has to do to take care of the problem. I am only asking the Minister for an undertaking that while we understand that that is the situation, perhaps whenever any of that type of road construction or redevelopment is being done, we can ensure that everything is taken into consideration so that those land owners [suffer] no negative effects.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, as the Honourable Member appreciates, I do not have direct responsibility for roads but I will pass that on. I think that what the Member said is reasonable. If Government is going to do something that is going to cause a lot of water to go into somebody else's property, it is necessary to put a well or do something to retain it. I know it does create a problem because I have been into developments where at one time we were trying to put a road and raise it, but the raising of the road was going to basically cause flooding into houses. I think the Honourable Member probably... (Members inaudible comments)... Well there is choice: either the road remains flooded or we raise the road and water goes into people's yards because the wells in those areas could not take the amount of run-off water that was there.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? If there are no further supplementaries, that concludes Question Time for this morning.

Moving on to Item 5 on today's Order Paper, Other Business. Private Members' Motions.

The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

OTHER BUSINESS

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I have been requested by the mover that we put Motion No. 21/98 for the Complaints Commissioner before the Referendum Law which is No. 23/98. Unfortunately, I did not raise this with the Business Committee, so it did not get put on. I would ask, sir, that it be changed to take the Complaints Commissioner first, and the motion on the Referendum Law, second.

The Speaker: I shall put the question to the House. The question is that Private Member's Motion No. 21/98 precedes Private Member's Motion No. 23/98. Those in favour please say Aye, those against No.

Ayes.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED. PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 21/98 TO TAKE PRECEDENCE OVER PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 23/98.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 21/98, Appointment of a Complaints Commissioner to be moved by the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 21/98

APPOINTMENT OF A COMPLAINTS COMMISSIONER

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I beg to move Private Member's Motion No. 21/98 entitled Appointment of a Complaints Commissioner standing in my name and which reads as follows:

"BE IT RESOLVED THAT the Governor consider the appointment of a Complaints Commissioner as called for under Section 49N subsection (1) and (2) of the Cayman Islands (Constitution) (Amendment) Order, 1993."

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, thank you. I so move to second that motion.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 21/98 has been duly moved and seconded. Does the Mover wish to speak to it? The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, this move to effect an office of complaints commissioner (as it is called in the United Kingdom and as it is articulated in our constitution) is indeed not a new move since Private Member's Motion No. 5 of 1989 in our Legislative Assembly which was moved by this Member was passed at that time. Before coming to that part in the debate which is specific to our jurisdiction, I want to lay some general principles which I have found informative and I think they will certainly serve to enlighten, if not to remind, other honourable Members who were here during the initial debate when this motion was brought to the Legislative Assembly.

I want to take this opportunity also, Mr. Speaker, to say that in discussing the matter informally with some of my colleagues, I was a little surprised to find that there is some misunderstanding on the part of the role of this complaints commissioner, or ombudsman as I prefer to describe it, vis-à-vis the role and responsibility of Members of the Legislative Assembly.

The notion of a complaints commissioner or ombudsman, is certainly not a new notion. The system has been around for a very long time and I think the literature bears out that this position was made popular in the Scandinavian countries, Denmark, Sweden, Iceland and Norway which have a long and rich tradition in the development of the office of ombudsman.

The office has also been popularised in the Commonwealth—Australia, New Zealand, Canada and the United Kingdom's Westminster have complaints commissioners. I have also found out that the office of ombudsman, as it is called, is popular and a widely established office in the Caribbean particularly among the countries of the Commonwealth Caribbean—Barbados, Jamaica, Guyana, St. Lucia and Trinidad, just to name a few. All have established offices of ombudsmen which are very effective and which have become very popular over the years.

I am reminded of that quintessential conservative and himself a Member of Parliament, Edmond Burke, when he was giving a speech at one time to the sheriffs of Nottingham: when he remarked on the role and responsibility of a representative of a Parliament, a Member of the Legislative Assembly. Edmond Burke said that such a person has three major responsibilities:

(a) In the first instance he has to be a leader. He has to be able to lead his constituents and to lead his people from point A to point B, particularly in terms of modernisation, development, a sophisticated political establishment and the construction of a modern state.

(b) That person also has to be an educator. He has to be able to ascertain and to be able to teach and enlighten his constituents on the pros and cons of situations which confronted them in their daily lives.

(c) The third responsibility, Mr. Speaker, is one which I would like to function on because I think that, of the three listed by Edmond Burke, it is the most important. He said that the representative has to be: a buffer against the Government; the representative of the people; an ordinary Member of Parliament, an ordinary Member of the Legislative Assembly had to be a buffer between his/her constituents and the Government.

It is largely as a development of this last responsibility listed by Edmond Burke, that I see the role of a complaints commissioner or ombudsman; assuming because the way the Westminster system has developed, and certainly in our jurisdiction and other parts of the Commonwealth, it is well nigh impossible now for a Member of the Legislative (or of Parliament) to be an effective buffer between his people and the Government for in performing such a role, we have some limitations. And, I will get to these limitations a little later as I develop my presentation.

Suffice it to say at this point that there are certain things we cannot do because as a Member of the Legislative Assembly, I have no legal or constitutional means of questioning certain things. I am limited to the approaches I can make in the bureaucracy in the Civil Service, Mr. Speaker, because I have little or no authority, except of course in the Parliament, to question certain administrative behaviours. I cannot easily go outside of the Parliament in making certain enquiries and certain queries.

So that one reason why it is necessary and why this office of complaints commissioner, or ombudsman, has evolved is exactly to meet this need because under the Westminster system (and indeed any other systems where the ombudsman or complaints commissioner is utilised as a public office) there can be no greying of the area.

And this is important and interesting, Mr. Speaker, because it will serve to clear the misconceptions and doubts held among my colleagues who do not see the office of ombudsman or complaints commissioner in competition to their role as a Member of the Legislative Assembly or as a representative of the people; or who see it as an obstruction to what they themselves can achieve as a Member of the Legislative Assembly or a representative of the people.

My argument, Mr. Speaker, is that indeed it is not that the roles are not in competition; that the offices are not in competition; that they are not in contradistinction; but rather that they are complimentary to each other—one enhances the effectiveness of the other if understood and if set out properly.

It is interesting to find the definition of an ombudsman as set out by the International Bar Association. In a Conference held in Berlin, August 21 – 23 (way back in 1980), the ombudsman or complaints commissioner as an official to whom any person aggrieved by an administrator's omission can complain. The definition was set out as follows: that the ombudsman or complaints commissioner was an officer established by the constitution or statute headed by an independent high level public official who is responsible to the Legislature or Parliament who receives complaints against Government agencies, officials and employees and who acts on his own motion and on his own volition.

In setting out that definition, it is important to note at the outset that the ombudsman or complaints commissioner has no authority and indeed is precluded by law to investigate or to delve into any Government policy or policy matters. So at the beginning I want to draw the distinction between the role of the Ombudsman and the role of the Member of Parliament, or in our case, the Member of the Legislative Assembly.

As a Member of the Legislative Assembly, that is our primary responsibility, particularly if you find yourself in the position in which I find mine: namely that of being an Opposition Member. I can query the policy of the Government, I can put the Government on the spot with regards to policy matters, I can ask the Government why did you take step A and not step B, explain to the Parliament the reason for this decision.

Mr. Speaker, with the ombudsman, that is outside his parameters. The ombudsman is precluded by statute and law from doing that. What the ombudsman can do that I cannot do is, he can go to a Minister and say, 'Mr. Minister, I have a complaint that someone working in your office has been denied certain information or has been wronged in this way. I would like to examine the files, I would like to set up an appointment with you to discuss this case and to investigate and find out whether it can be substantiated or not.' As a Member of the Legislative Assembly we cannot do that. The ombudsman can then decide whether there is justification to take the matter further or whether the person has a complaint which cannot be substantiated. We cannot do that. That would be a serious trespass and a greying of the area.

So, right away, one fundamental difference expressed is that the ombudsman or the complaints commissioner simply cannot question and investigate any policy of Government; rather, they can investigate into what is mal-administration, what is perceived as an injustice or wrong doing on the part of someone – someone justifiably not receiving a promotion; someone who believes they have been aggrieved by not receiving an increment or whatever, which are things that we as Members of the Legislative Assembly cannot delve into.

We, on the other hand, can ask the Government to explain their policies. We can ask them to explain to us why such a policy was adopted against another policy, or why such a policy is pursued when indeed we believe it is counter-productive. So, Mr. Speaker, the two are completely different and contrary to what some people may believe, there is no duplication or the Ombudsman does not take away the importance of the role and responsibilities of the Member of Parliament.

Mr. Speaker, not too long ago, we accepted that we would like to set up a committee to investigate into the possibilities of developing a Freedom of Information Act. Well, I see the office of a complaints commissioner or ombudsman as uniquely and peculiarly alike; indeed, I would say that it follows as a natural corollary to this, because I would see this office as being one from which these requests emanate. So the setting up of the office of ombudsman is a natural corollary to the setting of a Freedom of Information Act.

One of the advantages of such an office is that it is a relatively inexpensive procedure that is provided for investigation into complaints made by those who feel that they have suffered an injustice. Mr. Speaker, one of the primary responsibilities of such an office is that of initiating investigations.

Now it is important to note - and this is the reason why the motion was worded the way it was – that our Constitution was quoted in the Motion. Section 49N subsections (1) and (2), and I shall read what it says, (1)“Subject to the provisions of this Constitution, a law may make provision for an office, functions, jurisdiction and powers of a Complaints Commissioner.” (2)“The Complaints Commissioner shall be appointed by the Governor acting in his discretion after consultation with the Executive Council, by instrument under the public seal.”

Mr. Speaker, I want to make this point at the outset that the reason we worded the motion like this, is because we recognise that it is necessary for a law to be made to bring this into effect and since the Constitution already makes provision for that, it would be redundant for the motion to ask for a law to be made. So, in setting out the Private Member's Motion the way it is, it is to be assumed that if the motion is accepted, Government will then set the mechanisms in place for the law to be made so that the office can be established.

I have, on a few occasions that I can remember in debates in this Legislative Assembly, made mention of the office of ombudsman, certainly in the debate on the Private Member's Motion No. 5/89, I elaborated to a great extent on the experience I had while studying and living in Canada and also from what I have read about the office of ombudsman.

Before I go much further, I want to speak more on this business of the principal responsibility of the Ombudsman--that of initiating investigations.. Mr. Speaker, there are three recognised methods which the Ombudsman initiates an investigation:

(a) Firstly, a complaint is made by an individual or a body corporate alleging that the complainant has sustained an injustice as a result of a fault in the administration.

(b) In the second instance an investigation can be initiated when a Member of Parliament--and here Mr. Speaker is where there is a further demarcation of the two distinct and different roles between the complaints commissioner or the ombudsman and a Member of the Parliament. An investigation can be initiated when a Member of Parliament (or a Member of the Legislative Assembly) requests the ombudsman to investigate a matter on the ground that a person or group of persons may have sustained an injustice.

This is similar to the procedure in the United Kingdom where it is a long-standing tradition that it is for a parliamentary representative to champion the rights of his constituent. It goes back to the point I was making that if one of my constituents comes to me and says, 'I have a problem in the department in which I work, and I have suffered an injustice; I believe I have been passed over for a promotion'; I, Mr. Speaker, as a Member of the Legislative Assembly cannot do anything about that because we have a strict separation of powers.

The only thing I can do about that, Mr. Speaker, is hold my constituent's hand and pray. I have no authority to pick up the telephone and call any head of department, any supervisor and indeed, if I do that, there are some Ministers of Government who would only be too happy and willing to come down here and say that I do not know what I am doing, I don't deserve to be in the Parliament, I am stepping out of my bounds or worse! But, I could request the ombudsman to carry out such an investigation. I could go, or write, to the complaints commissioner bringing to his attention the fact that my constituent, or a group of my constituents have made this complaint and request him to investigate it.

(c) In the third instance, the ombudsman may conduct an investigation of his own volition or on his own motion in circumstances which he considers that a matter ought to be investigated on the grounds that some person or persons may have suffered an injustice. So the ombudsman can do so without anyone asking him to do so. He may on his general knowledge or on a specific case, it may be something he has heard on the radio, seen on the television, read in the newspaper, or is simply made aware of by other circumstances. He may decide of his own volition to investigate into the matter.

In any of these three instances, the complaints commissioner or the ombudsman has a free discretion as to whether or not he will initiate, continue or discontinue an investigation. Only the ombudsman can decide that. Such discretion is practically absolute because no one attempts to interfere with him. His discretion and his authority are almost sacrosanct and absolute to the point where anyone trying to interfere or to subvert can be cited for contempt and can suffer serious sanctions if proven guilty. If the ombudsman or complaints commissioner believes that the threat of subversion is serious enough, he can take the matter to Court and usually, the Courts will allow him to continue upon the investigation.

Mr. Speaker, this is important because we as the Members of the Legislative Assembly have no such guarantees. We have no such recourse because we have to remember our behaviour can easily in many circumstances, be construed as having a certain bias. Certainly, against certain complaints with regards to the administration and the bureaucracy of the Civil Service itself.

So, Mr. Speaker, it is necessary in a modern and developing democracy to establish such an office for the protection and the rights of citizens beyond which the Constitution does not allow to be provided for by the representatives or Members of Parliament.

Now, Mr. Speaker, I have always been interested in the concept of a Citizens Advisory Bureau. And I remember on one or two occasions speaking with His Excellency the Governor and mentioning the effectiveness of such a bureau, particularly in a democracy like the Cayman Islands. I know that in some jurisdictions in the Commonwealth these advisory bureaus are very effective. They allow the man on the street ready access and an avenue to directions in which he or she can get common complaints redressed or receive guidance to agencies which will provide some redress and recourse to having their complaints investigated.

In Jamaica, these citizens' advice bureaus serve a very important function and Jamaica is a country which has an ombudsman. As a matter of fact, Jamaica has a special ombudsman dealing with political matters namely, they make the distinction of calling him the political ombudsman, whose role and responsibility is to deal strictly with political matters in addition to the office of Ombudsman which deals with the ordinary matters of investigations into complaints and injustices experienced in the bureaucracy. In addition to that they have these citizens' advisory bureaus.

I believe that our jurisdiction which is relatively small need not have all of these mechanisms; I mention the Citizens Advisory Bureau for the mere fact that it is a mechanism to which I have a great personal interest which I believe is also an effect way. If we check it, Mr. Speaker, many of the ordinary grassroots people who have to access information are intimidated under certain circumstances and they lack the knowledge and sophistication of knowing how to tap into certain of these resources. In many cases where it is necessary to have money in order to initiate certain investigations or to have certain complaints redressed, these people suffer because not in every circumstance are they in a position to provide what is necessary as a retainer to investigate into certain matters. So there is merit to providing some of these agencies and mechanisms.

Mr. Speaker, in the Cayman Islands, and until I have information to the contrary, I believe and I am suggesting that we could suffice with just the establishment of the office of Complaints Commissioner or Ombudsman.

Mr. Speaker, it is that point in time when my throat is getting dry, so I would welcome a break.

The Speaker: We shall suspend proceedings for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.46 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12.43 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Debate continues on Private Member's Motion No. 21/98, the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town continuing.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Prior to taking the suspension, I had been making the point that in some jurisdictions the complaints commissioner or the ombudsman is invested with the powers of the high court in terms of his authority to summons witnesses, to receive evidence on oath, to generally obtain evidence by entering appropriate premises, and requesting to inspect documents in the course of his investigation.

Mr. Speaker, I have to make the distinction here again. These are legalities from which Members of Parliament and Members of the Legislative Assembly are precluded. We cannot take these kinds of actions, so again I come back to the point that this is one of the distinctions between the two bodies. Also, it is a fundamental precept that the office of Ombudsman or Parliamentary Commissioner is constituted under the belief that the traditional structures which obtain in the bureaucracy cannot be reasonably or humanly expected to protect the administrative rights of ordinary citizens—hence the need for a special person and a special office which is set up to investigate into and with the specific ambit of protecting the rights which may be infringed upon or which in many cases it is deemed to be denied.

I am very familiar with the system as it exists in Canada and I want to take a little time now to say that nine out of the ten provinces in Canada have ombudsmen. The tiny province of Prince Edward Island being the exception. When I first learnt of the role and importance of the office, although I had known about ombudsmen before, it was actually when I lived in the society that I became very interested from reading the newspapers and from on one or two occasions reading the report of the ombudsman to the House of Commons and to the Provincial Parliament in Ontario.

I recall, Mr. Speaker, that there were a number of ombudsmen who made their mark in the Canadian system but two come to mind because I think more than anything else, that these two ombudsmen had vast international influence as well as national respect.

The first one was the ombudsman for Quebec, a gentleman by the name of Louis Marois. What is important is that—and I am going to make this point later—while it is seemingly natural for such a person to have a legal background, it is not entirely necessary. Indeed, the gentleman who was the ombudsman for Quebec, Mr. Louis Marois, was, prior to his being appointed Ombudsman, he was occupied outside of the law. One of the later ombudsmen of Quebec was indeed a Commissioner of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, but it was Louis Marois who set the trend because his reports to Parliament were later used as text books at colleges and universities as well as international references for those interested in articulating and developing the work of the ombudsman.

The other person, the ombudsman of Ontario, was a gentleman by the name of Arthur Maloney with whose work I became familiar, although I never really met him close up. He was a very prominent criminal lawyer before obtaining the office of ombudsman of Ontario. What is important about this man, I believe is, he, even more so than Mr. Louis Marois, set the office of ombudsman into a high profile. A very popular office which was accessible to all levels of the society and his reports to the Parliament were not only informative but they were entertaining.

I remember on one occasion there was a major development between an investigation which he conducted and the provincial Government of Ontario. It had to do with a decision regarding the Ontario Labour Relations Board. To demonstrate the independence of the office of the ombudsman, I think this is the classic textbook case, what happened was that Arthur Maloney, as ombudsman, made a ruling which the provincial Government of Ontario did not accept and did not accede to. As a result of that, there was a showdown. Well, one would realise that the funds for the establishment and running of the office of ombudsman comes from the Government, the parliamentary vote. So the Government, to prove its ultimate superiority and to show it was in control, because of what they considered an embarrassment they decided not to vote any funds for the Office of Ombudsman the next year. So the office had to close down.

It also happened that in that year there was a provincial election. The Opposition used the denial of funds and the closing of the Office of Ombudsman as a major campaign plank against the incumbent Government. Need I say that the incumbent Government of Premier Bill Davis lost the elections just on the basis that they refused to accept the report of the ombudsman because they saw it as an embarrassment and a slight against the Government. I think that is a classic textbook case which demonstrates how the office works independently of Government and how it is nevertheless an influential office, although funded by the Government.

The International Bar Association in its annual conference, and certainly those that I have researched, pay credence and high respect to the office of ombudsman in the various countries of the world. And I want to make a brief quotation from one of the attendees at the conference of the International Bar Association in 1978 dealing with the principal aim of the ombudsmanship and its role and function in those countries in which it is set up. Larry Hill, the attendee, states that the principal aim of the ombudsman is “the protection of the human rights of citizens in respect to complaints against Government. The Ombudsman is precluded from investigating matters pertaining to the policy of Government. His competence is thus limited to complaints related to the procedures and practices of the bureaucracy.” And he goes on to say that the ombudsman is a “tool for managing bureaucracy but not a generalist tool. The office specialises in those administrative reforms that directly impact on citizens.”

The following is given as some characteristic features of Ombudsmanship: “The Ombudsman is independent of the bureaucracy and reports only to Parliament. He is directly accessible to the citizen. And that is in the Caribbean as in most jurisdictions. The Ombudsman has powerful tools for investigation. He can inspect agency premises, examine agency records, examine witnesses, and require the production of documents. The Ombudsman can initiate an investigation and publish reports on his investigations both to the Parliament and to the public. Finally, the services do not carry a monetary value. It is important to note that the Ombudsman cannot overturn administrative decisions. He/she can only make recommendations."

In this section, I want to quote briefly from Arthur Maloney, Ontario's first ombudsman in his address to the second international Ombudsmen Conference. Arthur Maloney said, "It is often said that the Ombudsman is the voice of the ordinary man. The common experience of all of you, and certainly my experience, was that the great majority of cases that came to my attention came from people who are poor and disadvantaged." This is evidently so because of the need of such persons to interact with the bureaucracy because of their comparatively greater dependence on Government for welfare, housing, health, education and other social services.

During the break I was informally speaking with the Second Official Member, and he was telling me that he is very familiar with the concept of Citizens Advisory Bureaus. As an attorney in private practice he sometimes volunteered his services at some of the bureaus. You will recall my saying that in jurisdictions where these bureaus operate, people seeking advice are referred to attorneys and to legal counsel, which may not necessarily be available on a daily basis at the bureau. Appointments, however, are set up where they can confer with attorneys—usually volunteers who give their time free because they recognise that this is a kind of service that is necessary in the community and as good corporate and civil citizens they give this time. And quite often these are persons who a) either do not know how to access certain types of information; b) in many cases may not have access to the financial resources to get this information in the first place. I also said that it is not uncommon for these types of bureaus to act in tandem with the complaints commissioner's office, or with the office of the ombudsman.

In our case in the Cayman Islands, as per the Constitution, and as per this Private Member's Motion, we understand that we would have to make a law and that the ultimate appointment of such an officer would rest with the Governor. Indeed, the motion was worded so that it was extrapolated from the Constitution. It does not specify the making of a law, but if you read it in tandem with those sections of the Constitution referred, you will know that implicit in the motion is the necessity for a law to be made. It is also understood that the appointment will be made by the Governor, probably on the advice of the Executive Council.

Now, having said that does not in any way preclude the successful person, or the appointed Parliamentary Commissioner or Ombudsman; that does not preclude his/her independence. For it is understood that such an office, to be effective, must have a certain amount of independence. So what is my vision? I see this office and this officer acting in much the same way as our Auditor General acts now. The monies for the running of the Auditor General's office comes from the public treasury, but the Auditor General has a certain independence and while he is primarily responsible to the Governor, the complaints commissioner or the ombudsman would be an independent officer, similarly, and his responsibility would lie primarily with the Parliament, i.e., the annual reports would be laid on the Table of the House and in many instances many jurisdictions such reports are debated, but that need not necessarily be. However, the Parliament has access to them and in addition to that, the complaints commissioner, or the ombudsman, makes such reports available to the press.

I say that to say that there is nothing which says that the reports are confidential. They can be laid on the Table, and even before they are laid on the Table of Parliament, or simultaneous with their laying on the Table, they can be made available to the press. I contend that this facilitates and strengthens the democratic process. So I believe that if—and we have already accepted the Freedom of Information Act—I believe that the appointment of a complaints commissioner or an ombudsman is an important corollary to that Act. Indeed, I see it as a necessity, because I don't know how we can have an effective Freedom of Information Act without a complaints commissioner or ombudsman.

I believe that I have made it plain that such a position does not erode the authority or the work, or the influence of the Members of the Legislative Assembly; indeed, I see it as complementary. I have also laid out the fact that it is not an impediment to the Government by virtue of the fact that the complaints commissioner or the ombudsman does not have any authority to investigate into the policies of the Government. I have laid out the fact that it is usual that the complaints revolve around matters which Members of the Legislative Assembly and, indeed, Ministers, cannot deal with now, namely, administrative matters which may involve someone being denied a promotion; someone being denied an increment and matters to this extent which neither Members of the Legislative Assembly nor Ministers under our system has any legal or Constitutional authority to delve into.

As far as our jurisdiction goes, I do not see the establishment of this office as an impediment in any way to the system as it operates now, and I contend that as we evolve, particularly as we talk about reforming the public sector, we will see that the establishment of such an office provides an important and integral avenue which is not now available.

I hope that all Honourable Members will see the motion for what it is worth and I would expect to hear an informative and enlightening debate. Certainly, I respect the democratic right of Honourable Members to take positions different from those I have articulated. But in the interest of good debate I would expect that any—how should I put it—any reservations will be aired in an intelligent, informative and balanced view so that I can be in a position to provide an informed reply.

Mr. Speaker, I want to end on this footnote: In a manner of speaking, it really doesn't matter to me whether the motion is accepted or rejected. Let me put it this way: Of course, I brought the motion believing that it is the right thing to do, and it advances us along the route to which I think all of us are aspiring to go. But if the motion is defeated, I am of sufficient maturity that I will not take it as a personal affront. Indeed, all I will do, God willing, is wait until the six months are up and bring it back again. So, while I will be a little disappointed if it is rejected, I won't consider it the end of the world. And Honourable Members who know me know that if there is one quality I have, it is resilience.

Having said that, I implore all Honourable Members to approach this with an open mind and give it the best shot in the interest of improving our society. Thank you.

The Speaker: At this time we shall suspend proceedings until 3.30. It is my understanding that informal meeting commencing at about 2.30.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 1.05 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 3:37 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Debate continues on Private Member's Motion No. 21/98. Does any other Member wish to speak? The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Private Member's Motion No. 21/98 states, "BE IT RESOLVED THAT the Governor consider the appointment of a Complaints Commissioner as called for under Section 49N subsection (1) and (2) of the Cayman Islands (Constitution) (Amendment) Order, 1993."

The Cayman Islands (Constitution) (Amendment) Order, under those sections sets out the following:

- (1) Subject to the provisions of this Constitution, a law may make provision for an office, functions, jurisdiction and powers of a Complaints Commissioner.
- (2) The Complaints Commissioner shall be appointed by the Governor, acting in his discretion after consultation with the Executive Council, by instrument under the public seal.
- (3) No person shall be qualified to be appointed as a Complaints Commissioner if he is, or has been within the preceding three years, a Member of the Legislative Assembly; and, subject to such exceptions as the Governor, acting in his discretion, may authorise in writing, the Complaints Commissioner shall not hold any other office of emolument either in the public service or otherwise nor engage in any occupation for reward other than the duties of his office.
- (4) The office of the Complaints Commissioner shall become vacant—

(a) at the expiration of the period specified in the instrument by which he was appointed;

(b) if he resigns his office by writing under his hand addressed to the Governor;

[(c) if he becomes a Member of the Assembly;]

(d) if the Governor, acting in his discretion, directs that he shall be removed from office for inability to discharge the functions thereof (whether arising from infirmity of body or mind or any other cause) or for misbehaviour, or for contravention of subsection (3) of this section."

(5) "In the exercise of his functions, the Complaints Commissioner shall not be subject to the direction or control of any other person or authority."

Mr. Speaker, what the Constitution makes clear, is that before the Governor can be called upon to appoint a complaints commission, which may be a complaints commissioner... but subsection (1) makes it clear that there has to be a law that will make provision for the office functions, jurisdictions and powers of a complaints commission. So until that happens, and a law is in place providing for a complaints commission, then a commissioner, or commissioners, under that cannot be appointed.

The range of what is referred to in some countries as an ombudsman, in other countries as a commissioner, in the United Kingdom as a parliamentary commissioner, and what goes into that law can be considerably varied. I know that the mover of this motion has actually gone into some detail, for example with the Canadian Ombudsman. From the United Kingdom's point of view, and I would like to read a bit of this because it will give some insight into the approach that has been taken by the United Kingdom. It says:

"The Parliamentary Commissioner Act of 1967 provides for a Parliamentary Commissioner Administration be appointed by letters patent. In 1977, ten years later, the Government agreed that in future before an appointment was made it would consult the Chairman of the Select Committee on the Parliamentary Commissioner of Administration. His salary is charged to the consolidated fund. He may be removed on an address from both Houses and be excluded from membership of the House of Commons. He is an Ex-officio member of the Counsel and Tribunals."

The next two sections are important, and this I am reading from Hood Philips Constitutional Administrative Law, 7th Edition, page 655. "A person who thinks he has suffered injustice as a result of maladministration of a department or authority of the central Government may complain to a member of the House of Commons in writing within 12 months from first having notice of the matter.

The Commissioner has the discretion whether or not to conduct an investigation. An investigation is conducted in private. The principal officer of the department or authority concerned must be given an opportunity to comment on the allegation. The complainant has no right to appear, but the Commissioner may see him if he thinks fit. The Commissioner has the same powers as the High Court to require a Minister, civil servant or other persons to furnish information or produce documents excluding proceedings or papers of the Cabinet or a Cabinet Committee [the Cabinet is the equivalent of our Executive Council here].

There is no Crown privilege at the investigation stage, but a Minister may claim Crown privilege in respect of the publication or passing on of documents or information if there disclosure would in his opinion be prejudicial to the safety of the state or otherwise contrary to the public interests. The Official Secrets Act would prevent the Commissioner from including such information in his reports." That is in a concise way the breadth of the Parliamentary Commissioner in the United Kingdom.

The next section deals with departments and authorities covered. "The departments and authorities in respect of whom the Commissioner may investigate complaints are set out in Schedule 2. They include most of the central Government departments but do not cover local authorities, public operations, the police or the national health service. The list may be added to or reduced by order in Council. The instrument being subject to annulment by resolution by either House. Matters excluded from investigation are set out in Schedule 3 [and I will only be reading those that are listed here, but the list is fairly extensive].

"The excluded matters within the functions of the departments listed in Schedule 2, namely, foreign relations, action taken outside the United Kingdom except by consular officials, the Government of Her Majesty's Overseas Dominions, extradition of fugitive offenders, investigation of crime, security of the state, including passports, civil or criminal proceedings in any court, court-martial or international tribunal, the prerogative of mercy, medical matters, commercial contracts, personnel matters of the armed forces, civil service, teachers or police, the grant of honours and Royal Charters. The list may be reduced by order in Council."

So, firstly, it would appear that a law will have to be drafted setting out in some considerable detail exactly the extent within the Constitution that is sought for the commissioner, or the commission, I should say, to deal with. That has to set up a procedure whether we would follow that in the United Kingdom in which complaints are made to members and that is then referred onto the commissioner.

Then there is a hearing in private by the commissioner who has the power to allow a person to appear, if he wishes, or to produce documents, and then there is the question of disclosure, and the law would have to be specific on this, what could be disclosed, what could not be, and the categories of those. Excluded from this, is a list of many things: some that are relevant to us here as a dependent territory and some that are not. But quite a few of those included here, would be relevant. For example, it says personnel matters. We have no armed forces, but of the civil service, teachers or police. The reason there is... I believe, police and teachers are under separate areas of personnel. It also deals with matters which are before either court, civil or criminal matters so the sub judice rule applies to it. They do not cover local authorities, public corporations, the police or the national health service.

It says, "Where the Commissioner conducts or decides not to conduct an investigation, he must send a report to the member concerned. When he conducts an investigation he must send a report to the principal officer of the department concerned. If he thinks injustice has been caused and that it has not been or will not be remedied, he may lay a special report before each House. The Commissioner must lay a general report annually before each House on the performance of his functions. And he may lay special reports from time to time. The Commissioner's report shows annually a large percentage, often over 50, of complaints that fall outside his jurisdiction."

I don't think the example it gives here is relevant, because it dealt with the question of compensation of inmates of German concentration camps as opposed to ordinary prison camps.

So the principle, which is very clear and exists in the United Kingdom and in other countries, varies considerably depending on the jurisdiction, is one that is well accepted, it is in our Constitution. Obviously, what is set out in the Constitution here is fully accepted by the Government. And we abide by the Constitution.

The position as I see it, is that what now has to happen to operate this section is for a law to be passed in accordance with subsection (1) of the Constitution to make provision for what procedure there is. And I should say, obviously anyone can introduce a law in the House. Until that happens, Mr. Speaker, the Governor's power to appoint the complaint commissioner does not arise.

So I think the motion, regardless of what the intent may be, is one which deals with the appointments of a complaints commissioner. And under the Constitution, that cannot be done. In fact, the motion itself is outside of the Constitution because the Governor cannot appoint a complaints commissioner until a law is done. It will have to be looked at, obviously, in the light (I guess) of laws that have been dealt with in the United Kingdom and elsewhere. But from what I can see of the Constitution itself, the Constitution obviously being a United Kingdom legislative measure, an order in council, would appear to me to be based substantially on what prevails in the United Kingdom itself. I believe that a complaints commissioner, would serve a useful purpose. It has been accepted in the Constitution. It is one of the sections that does, however, require legislation to implement it. And I would think that it will, to a large extent, be legislation that would follow more along the lines of the English Parliamentary Commissioner.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: That's what you want!

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: It doesn't matter what I want. It is not a matter of what I want. Mr. Speaker, this is one example where perhaps if prior to the motion being brought — since we're always talking about communication — where perhaps if the mover had gotten together or tried to communicate with other members in the House, the motion may have been somewhat simplified. I'm just raising this... As you can hear Mr. Speaker, there is a lot of grumbling on the other side. But I am just saying, since we were talking about communication before, it goes both ways. The motion cannot be implemented under the Constitution because there is no law under which it can be implemented. Therefore, the motion, in my view, must fail and this motion should only properly be brought after a law is in place, because the Governor cannot, under the Constitution, appoint a complaints commissioner or a complaint commission (it would be his choice as to what he wishes to appoint) until the law is properly in place that would give the power to appoint a complaints commissioner.

So, the Constitution itself, Mr. Speaker, does not give the power to appoint a complaints commissioner. And that is basically what we're saying—under this Constitution there is no power to appoint a complaints commissioner, and therefore the Governor cannot appoint one. What is required is a law which makes provision for all of these functions to be put in place, after which an appointment could be made.

Mr. Speaker, I have tried to be brief on this because this motion as the Government sees it, is one which cannot be implemented at this stage. Thus, we will have no choice, under the Constitution, but to vote against it. Thank you.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? (pause) The floor is open to debate. The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Before attempting to justify the need for the creation of a complaints commissioner in the Cayman Islands, I just wish to do the best I can to explain the point that the Minister for Education was making in his contribution as to why the Government cannot accept this motion. The motion reads: "BE IT RESOLVED THAT the Governor consider the appointment of a Complaints Commissioner as called for under Section 49N subsection

(1) and (2) of the Cayman Islands (Constitution) (Amendment) Order, 1993."

When we looked at the motion—and perhaps I will have to use his same arguments, but looking at it with a different interpretation—When we did the motion and we referred to subsections (1) and (2) of section 49 N of the Cayman Islands (Constitution) Order, 1993, we specifically looked at subsection (1), which reads, "Subject to the provisions of this Constitution, a law may make provision for an office, functions, jurisdiction and powers of a Complaints Commissioner."

So when we asked that the Governor consider the appointment of a complaints commissioner as called for under this section, we not being lawyers, were looking at it from the point of view that once we made reference to this subsection that it automatically meant that a law would have to be made to provide for the office. Therefore, in asking the Governor under the provisions of the Constitution to consider the appointment of a complaints commissioner we knew full well that it meant creating a law.

Now the Minister is saying, at least my understanding of what he is saying when he spoke on behalf of the Government, is that because in the motion itself it does not say: BE IT RESOLVED that a law be made to make provision for the office, functions, jurisdiction and powers of the Complaints Commissioner, and then another resolve section asking the Governor to consider the appointment. If that is what the Minister is saying is wrong why the Government does not except the motion...

Mr. Speaker, on more than one occasion in here I have known the Government to make amendments to Private Members' Motions and to move amendments to Private Members' Motions. I am saying that if the Government were minded at this point in time to accept the intent of the motion, and if the Government is saying that the motion is not worded the way it can accept it, then certainly—and I have no doubt that the mover concurs with this thought—the Government has every option to move an amendment. I can speak only for the mover and myself, but if the Government only has that problem, let it move the amendment which allows it to accept the motion and certainly we will accept the amendment.

While I heard what was said, and while I have just explained why the motion is worded the way it is—because we presupposed the fact that a law would have to be made—if it has to be spelled out about the law, then we can certainly save a lot of time, take a short break, ask for your indulgence, get the amendment worded, get it passed out, and perhaps we can move on and look towards making that law. I wonder if we can get some indication from the Government if it is prepared to do that. (pause) We hear what we want to hear when we want to hear it, Mr. Speaker. It seems obvious that is not what the Government wants to do.

Mr. Speaker, I can assure you that this motion is another motion with pure intentions. One can almost call it apolitical. The motion is part of a vision and it was brought because there are those of us who believe that we need to be moving forward as a country toward the direction of transparency and accountability. We recently passed the freedom of information Private Member's Motion, and given what I have heard today, I am only led to suspect that the only reason the Government accepted that one was because it could not find a way out.

But, Mr. Speaker, the Government also mentioned communication, and that if we had perhaps discussed the motion with them in detail we might have had a different result. Let me walk on two sides of the road. Let me walk on the first side: Okay, so we moved the motion, or rather, we drafted the motion and it was passed out. We did not discuss it with the Government. So the Government is saying that if we had discussed it with them maybe they would have found a way to accept it.

Mr. Speaker, the Minister did have some slight informal discussion about the motion. Up until this morning it was my understanding that perhaps the motion could well have been accepted under the premise that a law would have to be created and then we would move on.

Again, Mr. Speaker, while I am not a lawyer, I do not concede that the Government cannot accept the motion because it would be unconstitutional to do so. The mere fact that the specific subsection which calls for the law to be created, mentioned in the motion (as far as I am concerned) reflects that we understand and accept that the law has to be made first.

Mr. Speaker, the other side of the road is, I say—and I have no choice this afternoon but to say—I don't know what happened in between the informal discussions and Government taking its position. I don't know who said what, or who got a different thought-process, but it is obvious now that the Government does not want a complaints commissioner in this country! The mover of the motion was quite eloquent and informative in his presentation. He explained in detail the role of the complaints commissioner, or the ombudsman as it is commonly referred to.

Let me just say, Mr. Speaker, that I caution the Government with the thought of making it obvious that they are not minded to support the appointment of a complaints commissioner. I cannot accept that the reason why they cannot accept the motion is because of the fact that a law has to be created before the Governor is asked to consider the appointment of a complaints commissioner. We just gave the Government the option.

In fact, I am going a little bit further now; since the Government would not answer me, Mr. Speaker, I am asking you for a short recess. The motion is not completed yet and we are going to create the amendment that they are saying has to happen and then we're going to see if they will accept the motion. So with your permission, sir, a short recess.

The Speaker: If that is the wish of the House we shall suspend proceedings for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.55 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. I will entertain a motion for the suspension of Standing Order 10(2) to enable the House to continue beyond the hour of 4.30. The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 10(2)

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I am pleased to move the suspension of Standing Orders to allow us to go on until 6.00 PM.

The Speaker: Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 10(2) SUSPENDED.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town, continuing debate on Private Member's Motion No. 21/98.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you.

I also wish to thank you for allowing that short suspension and on your advice, the amendment I mentioned prior to the suspension will be moved upon the completion of my debate on the motion.

Mr. Speaker, the complaints commissioner, or ombudsman as it is commonly termed, can be described as an official to whom any person aggrieved by an administrative act or omission can complain. The way that we envisage a complaint commissioner in these islands is not in line with what the Minister for Education referred to as the parliamentary commissioner in the UK. The way we interpret it would simply mean that the complaints commissioner would perform the kind of role of ultimate review when every other form of redress available to the citizen has been exhausted. Then there will remain the possibility of action being taken by an ombudsman.

Mr. Speaker, from time to time during my debate I will be using the term, ombudsman, but in context it is the same as called for in the motion, namely, the complaints commissioner. I just say that so it will not be misconstrued. Usually this office is established by the Constitution of a country or by a law of parliament. This is simply to ensure that the office maintains neutrality and total independence from the Government and the administrative organisations complained about. That is to say that the ombudsman or the complaints commissioner will be totally separated from whom he may have a complaint against.

My understanding is, and the way we would like to see it, is where the office receives and investigates complaints from the public against any part of the Government system; but also to have discretion to commence investigations of alleged mal-administration at its own initiative. In short, the complaint commissioner's office is an office of last resort for the citizen.

When his office finds a complaint to be justified, we see this situation where that office will recommend a remedy to the agency or organisation of Government concerned. And of course, it may publish a report on that investigation to Parliament, or to the complainant, or both. But to make it very clear, Mr. Speaker, that office, we do not see as making binding decisions. This is where we distinguish it from a court, from a tribunal, or from an arbitrator.

We see the ombudsman as being accountable to Parliament, but not to the government of the day — whoever that may be. As I said before, we see it as being very essential for the ombudsman to be independent of the Government. The reason is so that the public can have confidence in the ombudsman being totally impartial and that any investigations which his office might involve itself with, for instance the administration of Government, the people will not believe that it is impossible to get the right decision.

Of course the purpose of any investigation by the ombudsman would be to independently and partially establish the facts surrounding the complaint. And, Mr. Speaker, when we speak about the facts surrounding complaints, let's put it into our own perspective here. I will try to prove how valuable that post could be to all concerned.

On one hand we have in several different areas today... I am sure that as representatives we all hear people coming to complain about being treated unfairly in different given situations. We have situations to do with the Immigration Department, with Personnel, and we can go on down the line. On the one hand there are individuals in the public who will make accusations about the manner in which situations are handled by any arm of the administration. There seems to be no redress. Those of us who might politely try to investigate certain situations will obviously get the story in a different light from the administrative arm of Government.

On many occasions we, the representatives of the people, have to walk away from the circumstances. And if it should be known, we really don't know where the truth lies. We also face circumstances where, if we're not successful in our attempts to assist constituents, we either find ourselves thinking that we are impotent in the position, or perhaps the occasion will arise when there is some type of anger which occurs because the situation does not seem to end in a satisfactory manner. If we had such a post as a complaints commissioner or an ombudsman, whose office had access to the facts, circumstances which prevail in our country today would not occur in that fashion for several reasons— one of the most important being (looking at both sides of the coin), the people who are in the public and who complain if they know that there is an agency or an office that has access to all the facts, and will make independent judgment as to whether or not their complaint is valid, chances are if the complaint is not valid they are not going to take the chance because it would expose them.

On the other side of the coin, the various agencies in Government who perform their jobs, abiding by whatever laws or policies are in place will have access to prove that they have acted in every situation in the correct manner. I dare say on many occasions we do not find that happening and we find dissatisfaction right across the board.

So I believe that for all that may be said about the office of the ombudsman is very important. This office will not interfere in the administrative practices of the Government. It is simply there if a situation cannot be resolved by going through the proper channels; it will be there, should we get the office, to simply look into situations that cannot be sorted out by other means. Mr. Speaker, in today's world that is very important. And I believe that it is very very important for the people of the country.

The mover of the motion mentioned that the office of complaints commissioner should not be thought of as one which will interfere with the work that we as representatives perform for our constituents. He is quite right and I do trust that it will not be seen in that light. Mr. Speaker, I do not have a problem letting it all hang out and talking about it just the way it is.

Many times a big part of the popularity of representatives in this country has to do with how conscientious we as representatives are in trying to address the individual needs of our people. I do not have a problem with that because that goes with the turf. I have not been around as long as many others, but I believe I have been around long enough to be able to talk about that, because I live it too. But you see, Mr. Speaker, the beauty about what we're saying is that we do our best, given certain circumstances. When the road ends for us, if we have this office, then all is not lost for the members of the public if we cannot satisfy the situation that they put to us. So from that point of view I would hope that it is understood the role that we see being played by the complaints commissioner.

If we look at an example we will see that there is sometimes difficulty in regard to evidence. The person who is aggrieved might be unable to prove an injustice has occurred because he has no evidence-- no access to relevant documents or information in the possession of an authority or an official, or a department. It is possible sometimes that the official or department involved may make a decision without giving reasons. Consequently, the basis on which a decision is made might not be known. That person, or that department, might simply hide behind a wall of silence. I am not making any accusations, but we are talking about putting a system in place where there will be no room for doubt.

So when we say that if we had the office of a complaints commissioner it would serve one and all the right way. It is simply the last resort to resolve whatever the matter is, to satisfy all concerned. And while I make no accusations, there are people who have come to me and cited instances where they say they cannot get information. This has happened to them; they have been penalised in this manner. But they are not told why they are being penalised, they are not told why the decision is being made.

If you get enough of the public with that thought-process it is obvious that there will be a total lack of confidence in the system. And while one may be prepared to say that there are but few situations like that, I beg to differ. I am not saying that in all instances--or even in the majority of instances, that it is the Government agency who is at fault. I am not saying that. But I am saying that as in most other instances, perception becomes reality! This one tells the other one and by the time you know it you have a whole situation spread across your society whereby either an individual or a department of Government is said to be the worst thing that ever happened in the world. Having an office such as this would ensure that the truth is known. I believe that that is very, very important.

One of the other aspects to look into, is that one of the chief advantages of the complaints commissioner's office is the inexpensive and simplified procedure involved compared with the court system. In other words, the inexpensive and simplified procedure which is provided for the investigation of complaints made by those who feel they have suffered an injustice.

I have had several occasions where people came to me about certain situations. When I tried to look into it on their behalf what I ended up having to say to them was, 'Listen, I hear what you are saying and even if I believe everything you were saying to me the only way that you might get this matter resolved is to take it to the courts.' Chances are that nine out of 10 people who find themselves in that situation do not have the money to go to court. And it is not impossible for certain people who are making decisions to have knowledge of that and to weigh the odds and know that the situation will die there. So I am saying that we have a responsibility to the people of this country to provide for this office so that not only can natural justice prevail for them, but also to ensure the integrity of our system of Government because it works both ways.

When we talk about legislation having to be created as is called for by the Constitution, we would tend to believe that the governing words of the Ombudsman legislation would have to be faults in administration. Faults in administration cover many forms, and I will name a few of them: it might be a delay; it might be a bias; unfair discrimination; failing to give proper advice; discourtesy or harassment; failing to follow recognised procedures, or it might be that one is faced with harsh and unworkable procedures. While we would like to say that these things do not occur, we cannot say that. So as we keep widening the parameters under which we look into the situation, we find that there is just cause to look about creating legislation to allow for this office to exist.

I made mention in passing of The Freedom of Information Motion, the Private Member's Motion recently passed. If the country by way of whatever reforms and initiatives we're looking into now, is to move forward, we have to find ourselves in a situation where we have a legislation for freedom of information because this is very, very important.

Since some of us have started to tout the two words "transparency" and "accountability" I have noticed that some others have taken it on themselves to prostitute the meaning of those two words to try to suit arguments that they build. But, Mr. Speaker, I am a plain person and I do not have to 'frill up' words to talk about it. And let me say this here and now: When we talk of transparency and accountability there is a whole sequence of actions that have to take place in order for this to really occur.

The relevance of what I am talking about--to the office of ombudsman--is simple. Once we get freedom of information legislation in place, Mr. Speaker--and let us give an example that anyone can understand: that freedom of information means that the entire public sector has to act with transparency. What it means is, that outside of the given circumstances specified, any decision taken by any form of Government must be able to be shown to the public. It means that no longer will there be this shroud of secrecy. It means that when people have applications for whatever their endeavours are, they don't have to worry if this one or that one is on the Board because this one or that one don't like them. I hear it all the time. If Members choose not to address it like that, that's up to them. But I know I hear it all the time. Whether it's true or not, I hear it. And because we cannot afford to be seen to be operating like that, was the first call that we made -- which was a call for freedom of information.

Once that is in place, Mr. Speaker, when people try to go and get information, the other importance of the office of ombudsman is because you have to have something parallel to that situation which will allow for that situation to work... Meaning, if I go to any arm of Government to seek information and I am told that I cannot get the information, in order to ensure that that is working the way it should be working, there must be some office which can decide whether I have the right to get that information, or whether the Government agency which has decided not to provide information has a right to withhold information from me. This seems kind of complicated, but it is not. I pray to God that we get going, sir, because once we get the country working in that fashion so many things that cause trouble today are going to fall way. Believe me, they will.

So while it almost seems like a complicated situation, Mr. Speaker, it is with the people and functions of the Government in mind that we are calling for this additional legislation. There have been those in the past who may have seen this office as a whip for somebody's back, or for the Government's back. But we cannot look at it like that, because if the office is created and functions properly, if that office is a whip for Government's back then it should be—because it means the Government is not functioning the way it should.

If the Government is performing its task—and that is not just the elected arm of Government, let me make that clear; I mean the entire operation and the entire function of Government.

We have to create situations where we have checks and balances throughout the system. And this is one of them. In my mind, once we get to the point where such an office is created, after the euphoria of its existence falls away, its mere existence is going to assist in the smooth running of Government. People will know that if they deal with situations in a certain way—on both sides of the fence—that there is redress. In certain instances nowadays there is none.

Let us look at it. I am sure that all of us in here who are representatives of the people, have found ourselves in a position where we have had to throw up our hands and say 'I am sorry I cannot help you. There's nothing more I can do.' It happens all the time. I am not suggesting that we change to certain situations in order for that not to occur. I am saying that because of how we are, we need to incorporate the ways and means that the citizens of the country can have proper redress whenever the need arises.

Mr. Speaker, the mover went into a few ways of initiating an investigation. I don't think that I should go into that, but there are a few areas that I would like to deal with which I think are very relevant, to kind of open our eyes so that we can get a better picture of what I am talking about.

I would like to make a quick quote from a book called The Ombudsman Caribbean and International Perspectives. I won't bother to say which section or anything like that, but when I read it we will understand what I am saying. I quote: "I submit that if the first 11 years of ombudsmanship in Jamaica teaches anything, it is that we will best meet the cause of the ombudsman concept by searching for, and developing men and women who have faith in themselves and this institution; who substitute resolution for faint heartedness; and who are of a determined and courageous mind with firm opinions and the will to assert and pursue them. Men and women strong enough to look politicians in the eyes and disobey their peremptory commands; to sweep under the carpet the refuse from the Augean stables, and independent enough to resist their invitation for reward; to turn the lamp of scrutiny to other than dark, shadowy and obscure places; men and women imbued with a vision burning with a mission, motivated by a passion to let justice roll down as waters and righteousness as a mighty stream."

Those are some real powerful words. And perhaps a bit stronger than others may have chosen to quote from, because one could easily say that that was quoted referring to a certain country that has problems that we don't have. Mr. Speaker, it is for that reason that I sought your permission to quote from this book because I am saying, Let us do what is right so that we employ 'prevention better than cure'. That is what I am saying.

There are other areas that can be discussed. There were a few sections that I was going to quote from, but the mover 'bested' me because he moved the motion. But there are still just a few other pieces of literature that I would like to refer to, trying to prove the importance of such an office, even though we don't have it.

With your permission, Mr. Speaker, I would like to give a few short quotes from the Report of the Ombudsman for the Year Ended 30 June, 1997, in the country of New Zealand. The Honourable Third Official Member and I, fortunately for us when we were in that country in February we were able to visit the office of the ombudsman and get literature and we had a very informative talk with the gentleman.

At the beginning of this report it has Statement of Purpose, and I quote: "Ombudsmen are independent officers of Parliament appointed by the governor general [that is in their case] on the recommendation of the House of Representatives. Their function and sole output is to investigate and form opinions on the merits of complaints from citizens about the administrative acts and decisions of Government agencies at central, regional, and local levels and to conduct reviews of decisions, to decline to release official information requested under the Official Information Act." (Again, relative to their legislation).

They then quickly refer to the relevant outcomes of the purpose of the office. "The outcomes sought by the ombudsmen are: 1) to resolve grievances occurring in the process of public administration; 2) to improve the accountability of the public sector for its administrative actions and decisions; and 3) to enhance public confidence in public sector administration; and 4) to promote open Government by effective review processes for requests for information made under the Official Information Act and Local Government Official Information and Meetings Act."

While they have their own legislation, Mr. Speaker, what I have just read shows the purpose that the office serves in that country. And while I am not sold on everything that they do in New Zealand, certainly the principles which are touted here are easily principles which not only we could apply, but we should apply for ourselves.

Mr. Speaker, there are some other areas which I could address. But I know that the mover has more to say, and I believe that we have built a case showing at this point in time how important it is for the country to move forward by creating a law which will allow for this office of complaints commissioner to be created. I hope that members see fit to understand the importance of this office. God forbid that this motion is looked upon with political sides being drawn.

I want to say to the Government—and this was specifically mentioned. I notice it was mentioned twice by the Minister for Education about communication and co-operation. I am not afraid to say that what has been happening to us is what I refer to as the 'last-lick' syndrome. I know what has been happening to us. I'm not afraid to talk about it. The Government looks from its point of view by taking certain positions. Some members of the Backbench have found themselves looking at it in the same light. But I am not above being able to cooperate. Now, the Minister for Education will obviously have taken the line that it works both ways. But I can stand up and say the same thing too! And mean it just as much as he does! So let us see how we are able to coexist in the future.

I want to say that I personally do not involve myself in a motion just because it sounds good or looks good. I am not going to stand up here and build a case for something that I do not believe in. Trust Me. So I am part and parcel of this motion because I can see it starting me straight in the eye that at this juncture in our history that the office of complaints commissioner is very necessary.

I also understand the way it works. When we talk about freedom of information, and that motion having been passed, and we talk about creating the office of complaints commissioner if this motion is to see safe passage. I know it is going to take a while for it to happen but we have to start somewhere. If we don't start somewhere it will never happen. And so many things have been left like that, that it is time we were more conscientious about the needs that surround the country.

This is not one that any individual should look at to see how it will place him from his own political perspective. This is simply a situation that we believe is necessary for our people, and we see it having total benefit to the country — not just to the individual who will find himself with the ability to have redress in certain circumstances, but to the whole function of Government. It will certainly give more confidence to the people in the way the Government operates if we do have this office.

Mr. Speaker, I not only commend the motion, but I believe in the motion. I firmly believe in it. Just to remind you, sir, as I conclude my debate on the motion itself, that I am going to be seeking your permission to move the amendment.

The Speaker: Do you wish to move the amendment now?

AMENDMENT TO
PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 21/98
Leave Granted – Standing Order 52(2)

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, very much, Mr. Speaker.

In accordance with the provisions of Standing Order 25(1) and (2), I, the First Elected Member for George Town, seek to move the following amendment to Private Member's Motion No. 21/98, by:—

- (ii) inserting, at the commencement, the following resolve section: "BE IT RESOLVED THAT the Government consider presenting to this Honourable House a Bill to make provision for the office, functions, jurisdiction and powers of a Complaints Commissioner, as called for under section 49N (1) of the Cayman Islands (Constitution) (Amendment) Order, 1993;" and
- (iii) by inserting the word "AND" before the word "BE" in the existing resolve section of the Motion; and
- (iv) by deleting "(1) and" in the second line of the existing resolve.

The Speaker: Do you have a seconder?

Mr. Roy Bodden: I beg to second the amendment.

The Speaker: The amendment has been duly moved and seconded. The question is that Private Member's Motion 21/98 as circulated to all Members is now open for debate. Does the mover wish to speak to it?

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you.

These amendments are a result of the position taken by Government with the original motion. As I understand it, the Government's position was simply that it could not accept the motion as it was, because a law would have to be created before the Governor could be asked to consider appointing a complaints commissioner, meaning that section 49N(1) of the Constitution which reads: "Subject to the provisions of this constitution, a law may make provision for an office, functions, jurisdictions and powers of a Complaints Commissioner." That section would have to be acted upon before subsection (2) could be acted upon which reads: "The Complaints Commissioner shall be appointed by the Governor acting in his discretion after consultation with the Executive Council, by instrument under the public seal."

So, what we are saying is that as lay persons, when we thought to word the motion because the wording included subsection (1) and (2) of section 49N we presupposed that the motion included the making of a law when we talked about asking the Governor. The Government has said, 'No, you cannot do it that way.'

So when we move these amendments now the motion as amended will then read: "BE IT RESOLVED THAT the Government consider presenting to this Honourable House a Bill to make provision for the office, functions, jurisdiction and powers of a Complaints Commissioner, as called for under section 49N (1) of the Cayman Islands (Constitution) (Amendment) Order, 1993;" and BE IT RESOLVED that the Governor consider the appointment of a Complaints Commissioner as called for under section 49N (1) of the Cayman Islands (Constitution) (Amendment) Order, 1993."

What that means is that the amendments we have called for are putting everything in line. We are spelling it out. We are asking that the Governor, or, rather, sir, in order of sequence, that the Government consider presenting a Bill for safe passage through this Honourable Legislative Assembly to allow for a complaints commissioner. Once that is accepted then we ask that once the law is in place the Governor then consider the appointment of a complaints commissioner as called for under the relevant subsection.

The mover and I have done our best to put forward the case for a complaints commissioner. We have listened carefully to Government's position and understanding to the best of our ability the Government's position, we have sought leave of you, sir, to make the necessary amendment in order to allow the Government to be comfortable with the motion. We trust that as we understand this to have been the only problem, having solved that problem now the Government will consider accepting the motion as amended. We now wait to hear the verdict, sir.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak?

As the First Elected Member for George Town stated, I gave permission to waive the two days' notice that would normally be required for this motion to go forward. Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause) The floor is open for debate. Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause)

The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, Private Member's Motion No. 21/98, the Appointment of a Complaints Commissioner has been amended in such a way as to now conform with what is required by way of the Constitution in that it now encompasses section 49N (1) of the Cayman Islands (Constitution) (Amendment) Order, 1993.

I am not as familiar with this concept of ombudsman as other Members, and it appears that this particular institution has been floating around this country for some time. The concept of a complaints commissioner as we know it, or would like to know it in this country, . . . and it's important that we stress, as we would like to know it, rather than as it is known elsewhere since it appears that this particular institution functions slightly different depending upon the need which is recognised by the particular jurisdictions that have instituted such an office.

So I had a brief look at the reports of the Constitution Review Commission and some of the notes and concerns. When the Constitution was reviewed as a result of Private Member's Motion of 3/90 (I think) which led to this review of the Constitution two concerns that Members had were the need for a referendum law to be encompassed in the Constitution and for this particular office of ombudsman or complaints commissioner.

Apparently their concern was so genuine and so unanimous that it led to the two particular persons doing the review and drafting of the new Constitution and making the new amendments (Amendments to the 1993 Constitution) that these particular sections which I am now speaking of, the complaints commissioner, was placed within the Constitution. So the fact that it finds itself in the Constitution, the fact that this particular part of the Constitution has never been activated is the question.

Why would it find itself in the Constitution if there were not concerns by the Backbenchers--the National Team Backbench at that particular time it would have been called-- who were confronting the so-called Progress and Dignity Team at that time? The group somehow felt that in all fairness perhaps there should be an institution that is a bit more impartial in the way it deals with complaints from the public in particular, whether or not those complaints be made against the Government or other Members of the Legislative Assembly that were not part of the elected Government, or whether or not those complaints were made against members of the Civil Service, or whatever.

I think the fact that this motion is now before the House goes to show that there is a continuing concern for this particular establishment of a complaints commissioner's office and that this is the result of the fact that the problems which were noted back in 1991, or 1992 when the review was being completed, continue to exist today. In other words, these particular difficulties which a complaints commissioner would deal with do not appear and disappear as a result of any particular government being in power.

What is noticeable is the fact that the Leader of Government Business who was a Member of the National Team Backbench at that time, and who obviously seemed to have favoured the idea at that particular time, did not bring any Government Motion since 1992 (since they have been elected) to see that such a commission was set up.

Now that this is being brought by the First Elected Member for George Town, and the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, it would suggest that the Government is being helped and reminded of the fact that this complaints commissioner's office was something noted by all Members at that particular time. A great majority of those Members, are still in the Legislative Assembly today and form part of the elected Government. This particular need that they recognised is now also recognised by new Members of the Legislative Assembly.

So it goes to show that there is an agreement that somehow in the political arena in a democratic society, that somehow there should be some neutral organisation to which persons affected by the institutions in that society can make their complaints--persons who are removed as much as possible from partisan politics. To deny people that access; to say that it is not important because they have the reigns of power in their hands; to treat it as if it is something that can be postponed forever and ever; to not make a start with establishing this institution as we have started with the health insurance law, the pensions law; when we are explained to all the time that when these are started they are not perfect, but we have to start some place.

I think the same argument can be made in this particular case when the mover, the First Elected Member for George Town, is saying 'Let us make a start. We will put down this desire. You know what it is we want, you know what we need, you have been involved in recognising this need and going so far as to see that this particular need was already placed within the framework of our Constitution.'

So we all know what we need. We all know what we are talking about. What we have to work out is basically the semantics, the wording, the formula.

This motion is simply stating that we—

The Speaker: You are speaking to the amendment. I simply said you are speaking to the amendment, not the motion. If you wish to continue, go ahead.

Dr. Frank McField: The amendment is what I am speaking to... as I was saying, we are all conscious of what the desire is here. I think it is quite clear that what the mover and the seconder want to have established is for Government to begin going through the necessary motions to bring into being a complaints commissioner's office and that later on the Governor can appoint a complaints commissioner as is provided for in the Constitution.

Now, when we ask Why should people be given the [opportunity] to complain to a complaints commissioner rather than to the person they are complaining about? Because there is always a joke in this country that the persons you are complaining about are the persons you are complaining to. Now, the little man (as some people like to refer to the citizens out there) will understand this. The reason why this complaints commissioner's office is necessary, is so that people no longer have to complain to those they are complaining about. That is simply put. The little person who wants to complain is now protected—this law will protect that person by removing the situation away from us, the little person having to complain to the person we are complaining about.

There is not much more that I would want to say on this, other than that the Government knows well that when people complain about persons in Government they are usually directed to those persons they are complaining about. And that this particular institution—the complaints commissioner's office—would make it possible for the persons to complain to someone who will not have an interest in harassing them, or victimising them, or penalising them because of their complaints.

I think the justification in my supporting this particular amendment is that it would in time evolve an institution that would make it possible for the little man to be able to have his complaints listened to and attended to without the politicians working on them and perhaps then using it against them. Thank you.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? No other Member wishes to speak? Is it my understanding that we go on to 7.00 o'clock rather than 6.00 as we previously said? The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, it depends upon the will of the House.

The Speaker: What is the wish of the House? That we continue on until 7.00? Those in favour of going on until 7.00 please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

Does any other Member wish to speak to the amendment? If not, does the proposer wish to exercise his right of reply?

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you.

For the love of me I cannot understand why it has become a habit for the Government, seemingly out of disdain when they so choose, to not even address certain issues brought by other Members. But as long as I am here there is one promise that I make: I will not stop trying. Even if some others don't, I believe in what I am doing.

It is a pity that the Minister for Education is not in the Chamber. He sometimes believes that I say what I like to say when he is not in the Chamber, and I really wish that he were in the Chamber.

Mr. Speaker, I want to bring a matter to the attention of the Government. I have before me the notice of amendment which was Government Motion No. 4/93 entitled, Recommendations for Constitutional Change. That Government Motion was moved by the Honourable Truman M. Bodden, at that time the Member for Education, Culture and Aviation. It was tabled in the Clerk's office on 23rd September, 1993, and it was passed by the Legislative Assembly on the same day.

On page 14 of that document, and with your permission I will quote (it has already been quoted) section 23, . . . and bear in mind that this is a Government Motion and it was being moved by the present Minister for Education, who is the Leader of Government Business, who replied to the original motion calling for the complaints commissioner. Section 23 reads:

"The Constitution shall be amended by the addition, immediately following part V A, of the following new Part:

"PART V B Complaints Commissioner

Appointment of Complaints Commissioner

49N. (1) Subject to the provisions of this Constitution, a law may make provision for the office, functions, jurisdiction and powers of a Complaints Commissioner.

"(2) The Complaints Commissioner shall be appointed by the Governor acting in his discretion after consultation with the Executive Council, by instrument under the public seal.” (This was read before by the same Minister, but I am reading it again to show...)

“(3) No person should be qualified to be appointed as a Complaints Commissioner if he is, or has been within the preceding three years, a Member of the Legislative Assembly; and, subject to such exceptions as the Governor, acting in his discretion, may authorise in writing, the Complaints Commissioner shall not hold any other office of emolument either in the public service or otherwise nor engage in any occupation for reward other than the duties of his office.

(4) the office of the Complaints Commissioner shall become vacant-

- (a) at the expiration of the period specified in the instrument by which he was appointed;
- (b) if he resigns his office by writing under his hand addressed to the Governor;
- (c) if the Governor, acting in his discretion, directs that he shall be removed from office for inability to discharge the functions thereof (whether arising from infirmity of body or mind or any other cause) or for misbehaviour, or for contravention of subsection (3) of this section.
- (d) if the Governor, acting in his discretion, directs that he shall be removed from office for inability to discharge the functions thereof (whether arising from infirmity of body or mind or any other cause) or for misbehaviour, or for contravention of subsection (3) of this section.

(5) In the exercise of his functions, the Complaints Commissioner shall not be subject to the direction or control of any other person or authority.”

Now, Mr. Speaker, what I just read, as I said, is part and parcel of Government Motion No. 4/93 which was moved by the now Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning. It was passed in the Legislative Assembly. That means that the Government was in total agreement for this amendment to come to the Constitution.

As we have amended the motion, given the arguments brought by the Government, our humble submission is: If the Government has the disregard for its own actions that it is showing now, what else are we to expect? As far as we are concerned, if the Government in its wisdom in 1993 saw fit for these amendments to see safe passage through this Legislative Assembly—and, of course, that Minister is always one who treads very carefully when it comes to matters surrounding the Constitution...

Now what we are saying is that as the Constitution calls for this to happen, notwithstanding the fact that 49N(1) says “. . . a law may make provision for the office . . .” because I know they can come with their little funny arguments. But if the Government was not minded that such an office should be created, then it certainly would not have brought these amendments.

So I think it is fair comment that if the Government is not now minded to support this motion then it is because of who is bringing it! Then, that is pure politics! And the people of this country have suffered at the hand of pure politics for too long.

I want to say one more thing again: The motion and its amendment is purely brought to this Legislative Assembly with a firm belief that the country needs to move forward and this is one of the directions which will see us in better stead. For the Government to take this so lightly that it even refuses to talk about it is sacrilege to the people of this country. And the little people referred to by the Fourth Elected Member for George Town in his contribution, even though tonight as they listen they might not quite understand, because perhaps I may have failed as one of the people who spoke about the motion to put it in the right language—but they will understand. And if the Government chooses at this point in time to reject the motion then one of my jobs will be to show it up every time the need is exposed for such an office when the people of this country find themselves with no recourse to get justice.

Mr. Speaker, I am going to stay on an even keel. I am going to plead with the Government to support these amendments. I am not going to do what I might be tempted to do because I really believe that creating such a law and appointing a complaints commissioner is truly in the best interest of the people of this country. So I am going to leave it at that and I am going to send the plea out once more and ask the Government to support these amendments.

Not only do I ask the Government to support the amendments, but I ask all of the other representatives on the Backbench who will have listened to the arguments laid down to see it fit to support this Motion with its amendments in order that at least this will be one more hurdle overcome in our efforts to best serve the people of this country.

Thank you.

The Speaker: I shall now put the question on the amendments to Private Member's Motion No. 21/98. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES and NOES.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, can we have a division please?

The Clerk: Four Ayes, eight Noes.

The Speaker: The noes have it. The amendment has failed.

AMENDMENT TO PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 21/98 NEGATIVED BY MAJORITY.

CONTINUATION OF DEBATE ON SUBSTANTIVE MOTION

The Speaker: Continuing with the debate on Private Member's Motion No. 21/98. Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause) This is debate on the substantive motion. The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: The only reason I am going to exercise my right to speak is because I would like to make a remark about the fact that again the First Elected Member for George Town seemed to have taken the advice of the Leader of Government Business and made the amendment here in the spirit of cooperation, communication and compromise. But people use those words, and it does not necessarily mean that that is what we are going to get.

It is unfortunate that we cannot seem to get the support for this motion. I believe that the motion itself is supported by the fact that it was included in the Constitution and that, in fact, the now Leader of Government Business was the mover of the motion that amended the Constitution to allow this required section to be placed in here which would allow us to allow the Governor to appoint a complaints commissioner. But when persons are in the driver's seat they act totally different from when they are in the passenger's seat. It just goes again to illustrate the point that he who feels it, knows it, then the people suffer for it.

This motion is for the little people in particular. Although it could benefit everyone, it is really for the little people--the people we are beginning to forget. The fact that those little people put the National Team into power in 1992, and again in 1996, and that the National Team Government brought the amendment to the Constitution in 1993 to allow this, goes to show that the National Team Government at that time might have still been in touch with the people. But now they feel, perhaps, that that is no longer necessary, and therefore I assume they will not support this particular motion. But I certainly support it because I believe it could be a useful addition to our democratic culture.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? If not, does the mover wish to exercise his right of reply? The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I don't know what lesson we are supposed to learn. I don't know how the small-minded expect to inflict these kinds of decisions on us, those who stand for these kinds of motions, those who believe in the purity of what we do, those who are convinced that representing the people means bringing these kinds of motions and amending them as is necessary to meet the concerns of the Government. I don't know what kind of defeat the petty-minded think they are inflicting on us by voting the motions down. It amazes me, and all I can say is that it is sometimes difficult to describe the infinite wonders of the world to frogs who have not moved from the bottom of the well.

I believe that these kinds of motions speak to the necessity to have a social conscience in Cayman at a time like this. I believe that these kinds of motions set the necessary mechanisms for those people who do not have certain access and resources to get their problems and their daily concerns and struggles addressed. I believe these kinds of motions make those mechanisms--make those resource persons available to them, and by so doing, keep order-- keep the democratic society on an even keel because it does not perpetuate the sense of hopelessness which would otherwise be experienced were these mechanisms, agencies, and positions not available.

So, those of us who have supported this motion, those of us who have brought the amendment, those of us who have voted for it, have done our job. It is a contradiction to say that you are for democracy, to say that you are for transparency and to say that you are for accountability and to say that you care for the little people when no one can complain, Mr. Speaker. And for too long in this country the people have been complaining about Caesar to Caesar!

But I have been here long enough to know that all this talk of freedom and democracy and equality is only tokenism. The red Indians used to call it forked tongues. It is spoken with forked tongues because the intention is clear. It is not intended for these kinds of things to be made available. And you know, I resisted the urge to say this at the very beginning of the motion because I wanted to keep the debate fairly non-controversial and at a high plane.

Do you know why certain elements do not want this? Because they want the old system of patron/client—they want clientelism to continue so that all the little people who need problems redressed can run to them. Clientelism, Mr. Speaker, that is what these things are preserved to promote. Because then, you see, if there is an independent office, some people would lose their importance. They would lose their influence and they would not be able to call in certain favours when it comes down to crucial times. So I want to make it plain from the outset.

Believe you me, it is no skin off my bones! I am doing what I believe is right. I am but a facilitator, as are the other Members who voted in support of this motion. We realise that in a democratic society it is necessary for certain elements to have these offices available to them. We don't want to play God all the time. It is not necessary and it does the democracy no good. Indeed, I would argue that it defeats the purpose. Implementing this office would free us, the representatives of the people, to carry on just as important activities and would make us available to pursue the necessary things that we have to pursue and that we should be able to pursue.

I am saying that the way the system is now we are ineffective in redressing certain complaints. I really am alarmed. And God has blessed me with good ears. I couldn't believe that some people's approach to this is to play politics and to continue what I call this big boy/little boy relationship. It is not for me, the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, nor is it to the benefit of the First Elected Member for George Town, or the Fourth Elected Member for George Town, or the Elected Member for North Side. This is greater than all of us. It is a mechanism that would benefit the country as a whole. It's existence will go on long after we have left these hallowed Chambers.

How the Constitution outlines its existence precludes us from even benefiting from the office by being able to be appointed to the office. So let me lay it out: It is not for our benefit that we brought it and supported it. It was out of a sense of altruism, out of a sense that we know we are professing to reform the system, that we are professing that we should promote certain kinds of understanding and strengthen the democracy. There is a sense in which one can argue that these kinds of offices predicate the success of this whole visioning exercise of the whole reform movement we talk about.

And, Mr. Speaker, I have to learn this art a little better. I don't know how you can be like the Leader of Government Business and support the office of ombudsman when Private Member's Motion No. 5/89 was brought, and then bring the amendment to the Constitution, and dance away . . . and I noted that that Minister refused to speak on the amendment which, as far as I am concerned, was the height of great contempt. I suppose that is how he feels he can get away, by abnegating his responsibility and pretending, adopting the ostrich syndrome, pretending he didn't hear of it.

Trust me, Mr. Speaker, a day of reckoning is coming. And believe you me, I am not the longest serving Member here, but I have learned the game—politics. And trust me, I can play it well. So well, that I survived the onslaught, the blitzkrieg of the National Team. And, do you know what? I am preparing myself now because I am preparing my own onslaught. I want to see if they will survive that when I launch it, as well as I survived theirs.

We are all in this business together of promoting democracy, of serving the people, of representing our people well, and we can do it together irrespective of whether we are Government or Backbench—whether we are Government or Opposition.

We should come together in a non-partisan way on issues like this because all of us are going to benefit as I am sure the Leader of Government Business has constituents who come to him who could benefit from the office of a complaints commissioner or an ombudsman. But no, instead they stifle their consciences and play politics. Well, there are those of us here who will not let them get away because we believe in what Edmond Burke said: “All that is necessary for the triumph of evil is for men of goodwill to do nothing.” Mr. Speaker, there are enough men of goodwill on this side to do something, and to say something.

And do you know what? If we continue saying and doing, the numbers will improve until finally we will get enough to do what is necessary. And let me say that we are not faint-hearted. We believe in ourselves, we believe in the efficacy of the motions and amendments we bring, and, above all, we believe in the people whom we represent and we believe that our first call, our first duty is to do things and to bring things that will benefit, help and support them.

Let me say that we may be defeated by the numbers, but we are not disheartened. And believe you me, we will rally and we will return. I am disappointed that the Government, even when the necessary amendment was made, did not see fit to support it. I am disappointed that the Government was so successful in leading so many people astray. I hope that one of these days they will come to their senses and come back to the fold before it is too late.

In the meantime I take heart in saying that those people who supported the amendment, and who will support the motion, are like the Marines—the few, the proud, the brave. We are working for the people of this country and I am sure that the majority of the people will know that.

QUESTION 184
(Deferred)

No. 184: Miss Heather Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport when will construction begin on the launching ramp at the Spotts Tourist Landing.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, under Standing Order 23 (5) I would ask that this question be deferred as it is somewhere between one Ministry and another. I have not seen it.

The Speaker: I shall put the question that Question No. 184 be deferred until a later sitting. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The question is that Question No. 184 be deferred until a later sitting.

AGREED: QUESTION 184 DEFERRED.

The Speaker: Question 185 standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 185

No. 185: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning what is the Government doing to increase the number of Caymanians at the Cayman Airways office in Miami.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, the answer.

In the United States of America, Cayman Airways Ltd is regulated by complex legislation aimed at protecting individual rights and freedoms. These laws ensure equality and are monitored by numerous government agencies. Cayman Airways Ltd. has an internal policy of posting vacancies across its system. Internal employees, with the right to work in the United States of America, can apply for these positions and would be considered based upon qualifications. All vacancies in the United States of America are advertised and positions are staffed, under the regulations, based upon qualifications.

The Speaker: Supplementaries. The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Honourable Minister say where vacancies exist which would represent promotions, what steps are in place to ensure that Caymanians who work in the office have equal opportunity to become upwardly mobile as a result of these vacancies?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, the jobs are advertised in accordance with United States law, both internally — within the organisation — and externally.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Would the Honourable Minister say that the vacancies that are advertised and positions staffed under regulations in this question based on qualifications, should a Caymanian who is legally resident in the United States, works with Cayman Airways, has the same qualifications as someone who is not a —Caymanian— Are there any benefits to the Caymanian being offered that job?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I am not a lawyer in United States law. Therefore, I have to answer this question with considerable caution, because obviously it will be monitored by our competitors from the United States who fly in. All I can say is that from what I understand of the law, there has to be equal opportunity for everybody and that preference cannot be shown to any one person or group of people.

That is the way I understand it, sir, but what I have said is subject to the fact that we do comply with United States law, and if what I said is not correct, then compliance would be done with United States law. And I understand what the Elected Member for North Side is saying, but I hope that Member appreciates this is difficult ground for me to try to answer as I am not totally... I do not understand fully the complex United States labour laws — only to say we must comply with them when we do business there.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? If there are no further supplementaries the next question is No. 186 standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION 186

No. 186: Mr. Linford Pierson asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning to state to what extent, if any, will the installation of hush kits affect the performance of Cayman Airways' aircraft.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, the answer: Installation of the hush kits to Cayman Aviation Leasing Ltd's and Cayman Airways Leasing Ltd's (both owned by the Cayman Islands' Government) B737 aircraft leased to Cayman Airways Ltd, in order that it complies with mandatory United States of America regulatory Stage III requirements, will add 339 lbs. to each of the aircraft's empty weight. This minor addition to the aircraft's weight will have negligible impact on the day-to-day payload capability and fuel consumption. There will be no denigration to engine performance.

The Speaker: Supplementaries. The Third Elected Member for George Town.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I wonder if the Honourable Minister can say whether this proposed installation of the hush kits will inhibit in any way the proposed reconfiguration of the aircraft to provide for a first class or business class section.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, the answer is that it will not, sir.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Can the Minister state how long will the aircraft that needs to be hush-kitted be out of service? How long does the process take?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, the one that we have to hush-kit before the end of the year, CKX, is being hush-kitted while she is in the C-Check, so there would be no extra down time. But if hush-kitting has to be done without any other check going on, it is about five to seven days, I understand.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Can the Minister state what does it cost to hush-kit each of these aircraft?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, it is about US$1.2 million each.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Can the Minister give us an idea of when the other one will come due for that process to take place?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, at the end of 1999 we will have to hush-kit CAL.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Honourable Minister say whether Cayman Airways has the necessary funds to effect this hush-kitting, or is it that monies will have to be had from Government to do so?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, the two jets that are being purchased are being purchased into leasing companies which are owned by Government. Improvements to the aircraft such as this, should be carried out by the leasing companies as it is an increase on the capital asset of the plane.

So what should be happening is that Cayman Aviation Leasing, Ltd. and Cayman Airways Leasing, Ltd.—one of which owns the first aircraft that we are purchasing which has less than US$2 million owing on it. And CKX which is in the other leasing company, that we only purchased recently; those companies will have to deal with the hush-kitting. And if it becomes necessary—even though I think that maybe one or two of the guarantees given by Government may have included the upgrading of engines—maybe in the last one. But if not, and if it is necessary, then I would come back to Finance Committee in relation to that, sir.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? If there are no further supplementaries the next question is No.187 standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 187

No. 187: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works to state whether the Government has granted any company permission to import aggregate into the Cayman islands.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Permission has been granted to Caribbean Stone Products to import aggregate from Mexico for construction purposes subject to inspection by relevant Government agencies.

The Speaker: Supplementaries. The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, can the Honourable Minister tell the House what would such an inspection entail?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. It is my understanding that we would have to involve the Department of Public Works for inspection and that would be from the point of quality. We would also have to involve the Department of Agriculture ... the point of safety with regard to insects and whatever else that could contaminate our area and this would have to be done definitely before any importation would be done.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Am I to understand the Honourable Minister: Will this inspection take place in Mexico prior to this aggregate being shipped to Grand Cayman? If so, who will bear the expenses of these Departments having to travel to Mexico to do such an inspection?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. It would definitely have to be done before any importation takes place. It is my understanding that the owners of the company have agreed to pay the fees for inspection.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the Minister if the inspection will be done in Mexico every time there is a shipment of this cargo.

The Speaker: The Hon. Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Mr. Speaker, I believe that we have competent people in the Department of Agriculture and in Public Works and once they go down and inspect the area and the quality of material and if they see fit to recommend that it is inspected each time, definitely it will be done.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the Honourable Minister if the permission granted is for the importation from Mexico solely, or is the permission also to allow importation from other jurisdictions?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. My answer was quite clear – aggregate from Mexico.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, not trying to be repetitive, but could the Minister say if any consideration is being given at this point to importation from Cuba as well?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Mr. Speaker, that supplementary is way out from the original question. And I do not think that I should actually give an answer to that.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Minister say whether any consideration has been given to an inspection at the destination end? Because there are instances where some insects and some animals have an incubation period, or where the incubation can be speeded up with certain environmental conditions namely, heat, or moisture et cetera, so that it would seem just as practical and certainly more attractive and more of a safeguard to have the inspection done at the destination end, thereby providing an almost absolute assurance that we were rid of any kinds of pests, or nuisances.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Most certainly, sir, especially when it comes to our shores we will take every measure possible to prevent anything and definitely we will have proper inspection.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I am going to follow this with a supplementary, but it is my understanding that the aggregate in question is going to be mined from quite a depth that would somewhat inhibit some live form or incubation of insects and other live forms. I wonder if the Honourable Minister could comment on that.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. It is my understanding that the material will be taken from a quarry that has been started over the years and in certain areas it is possible that the rock has been cut down something like 70 ft. I cannot say that that would prevent us from having something that is not right and for that reason that is why I have asked my two departments to make sure that we have the visit and we look at it to try to ascertain that nothing is wrong.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, what kind of guarantees would the Minister be offering this House that although this material is [mined] 70 ft. down that it is not stored on surface and that the cargoes that are coming in [are] not from a surface level.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. That undertaking will be given when the site has been visited and when we have the proper inspection done by the two departments.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Could the Minister state if it was necessary for Caribbean Stone Products to apply for permission to import aggregate, or if it was simply done out of courtesy to the Government? And if it was necessary, what were the reasons why they had to get special permission outside of their regular Trade and Business Licence and what is listed in the Customs Law as materials that can be imported?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. That is indeed a lengthy question and what I would like to say on it is, the application was made by the Company ... As far as I am concerned—and I am speaking my opinion now—I think that everyone in this country realises that aggregate is necessary for the country to continue on the progress we have been actually proceeding on.

As far as the Company taking the decision, I really cannot answer that part of it, because I guess that was a decision at the Board of Directors level with the Company.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Minister state then if it is necessary to get Government approval specifically to import aggregate?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. That is correct, and for the reasons which I have outlined—safety from pests (I think I have answered this before) and of course quality through Public Works.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town. Two additional supplementaries after this. Please continue.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, Could the Minister say, what will be the customs duty rate on imported aggregate?

The Speaker: That is really outside the ambit. If the Minister wishes to answer he may, or he may not know. Any further supplementaries? If there are no further supplementaries, that concludes Question time for this morning.

Item 4 on today's Order Paper : Statement by Honourable Members/Ministers of the Government. The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

STATEMENT BY HONOURABLE MEMBERS/MINISTERS

PUBLIC TRANSPORT

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Thanks for allowing me the time to make this statement on matters relating to the subject of public transport for which my Ministry has been charged with the responsibility.

The first item deals with Taxi Quota. Honourable Members of the Legislative Assembly will be aware that Regulation 4. 2(a) of the Public Passenger Vehicles Regulations, 1995 states that one of the prerequisites for the grant of a taxi licence is that the applicant is Caymanian.

For several years there was a quota imposed on taxi licences which was introduced by the former Commissioner of Police, and which limited the number to 250. The Ministry took the decision to increase the number of taxi licences in the Cayman Islands and with Government approval issued a public invitation to those interested to apply. The Vehicle Licensing Unit now has approximately 70 applications for taxi licences from Caymanians.

It has been decided that those Caymanian applicants who have a clean Police record will be eligible to sit an examination which they must pass in order to obtain their taxi licence. This examination will test, inter alia, their driving skills, local knowledge, ability to calculate fares and basic first aid skills. All applicants who pass this examination will be issued a taxi licence which will be valid for one year and subject to renewal annually.

The second item, Mr. Speaker, deals with Omnibuses.

The decision to organise a system for omnibuses which operate between the districts has been taken with the understanding that there is a desire among Caymanians that this area be preserved for them. Against this, the Public Transport Board has had to recognise the practical reality that currently there are a number of Caymanian-owned bus services which rely on non-Caymanian drivers.

Following the recent invitation for applications, which was recently closed, a decision has been taken that all Caymanian applicants who have clean Police records will be granted Omnibus Operators permits. As an operator, they will be permitted to drive the bus themselves or to apply for a Public Transport Driver permit for someone else to drive on their behalf.

In order to be eligible for a Public Transport Driver permit, the person must have a valid driver's licence for the category of vehicle he or she intends to drive; must be Caymanian with a clean Police record; or the spouse of a Caymanian with a clean Police record and must have been living in the Cayman Islands for a least four years.

The Public Transport Board's policy on evaluating what is to be considered a clean Police record, is to regard persons who have been living within the law for the past two years as meeting the minimum standard. This policy supports the precept that persons who have erred in the past but who are now making a bona fide effort to rehabilitate themselves must be given a reasonable opportunity to become productive members of society.

In the future, there will be a review of the system before the granting of additional permits.

The third item, Mr. Speaker, is the Bus Depot. This facility will be located adjacent to the Public Library in George Town and will be officially opened and operational in October of this year. This will serve as a central point for the assembly and despatch of omnibuses which provide service to the districts.

After consultation with the omnibus operators, the Public Transport Board has devised designated bus routes throughout Grand Cayman and these will be subject to regular reviews once operational. Initially, there will be six routes and these are as follows:-

Routes 1 & 2 both cover between the Bus Depot and West Bay.

Route 1 will go from the Bus Depot via Eastern Avenue, the West Bay Road, North West Point Road, Boatswain Bay Road, Hell Road, Reverend Blackman Road, Church Street, West Bay Road and back to the Bus Depot via Eastern Avenue.

Route 2 will operate from the Bus Depot via North Church Street, West Bay Road, North West Point Road, turning onto Water Course Road, to Boatswain Bay Road, Hell Road, Reverend Blackman Road, Birch Tree Hill Road, Capt. Reginald Parsons Drive, Mount Pleasant, Church Street, West Bay Road and back to the Bus Depot via North Church Street;

Route 3 will provide service between the Bus Depot and Bodden Town;

Route 4 will provide service between the Bus Depot and East End;

Route 5 will provide service between the Bus Depot and North Side via East End; and

Route 6 will be an inter district service in George Town which will cover the major roads in the district and will provide service to the Depot and to the buses headed to the other districts.

In the near future more details on the routes will be communicated through the media and this will include illustrations using maps. Initially, the Bus Depot will act as a timing mechanism, whereby buses will depart to West Bay every 15 minutes, every 30 minutes to Bodden Town and hourly to East End and North Side.

The Public Transport Board is now preparing a report for my Ministry on the implementation of formal bus stops and this should be submitted by the end of the year. Once we have agreed on a plan for bus stops the scheduling of buses will be further enhanced.

It is acknowledged that as we develop the Public Transport System for the Cayman Islands, there will be a need to ensure that the rules and regulations are rigidly enforced. In this regard it is intended to employ two Public Transport Inspectors in 1999. These persons will monitor the Bus Depot and will provide an inspection and enquiry arm for the Public Transport Board.

The creation of these posts is not intended in any way to diminish the role of the Police to enforce the law, but rather to provide an investigative service for the Public Transport Board which would allow for the administering of sanctions for improper conduct by operators without recourse to the Courts.

The fourth item, Mr. Speaker: Vehicle Licensing Units for the Districts. In keeping with the Reinvention of the Vehicle Licensing Unit and the intention to decentralise the services offered at the central location in George Town, a phased implementation plan is underway. The preparations for implementation of Phase I of the plan are almost completed and this will result in the opening of a Licensing Unit later this year in the Banks' Plaza in West Bay. Initially, this Unit will provide vehicle inspection and licensing services on Thursdays and Fridays from 1:00 AM to 7:00 PM and Saturdays from 8:00 AM to 2:00 PM. These hours should prove accommodating to residents of West Bay who may work outside the district during normal business hours. The business hours will be continually reviewed in order to be responsive to the needs of the public.

Phase II of the plan calls for setting up a similar Unit in the district of Bodden Town which will provide vehicle inspection and licensing services to the residents of the districts of Bodden Town, East End and North Side. Two sites are currently being considered for the placement of this Unit and a decision will be made in the near future. This phase will be implemented in 1999.

The fifth item, Mr. Speaker, is Vehicle Inspection. Draft legislation has been prepared by the Legal Department to allow for the inspection of vehicles under three years old and having less than 36,000 miles to be exempted from the vehicle inspection process. The draft legislation is presently being reviewed by the Ministry and should be presented to this Honourable House at its next sitting in November. In line with this new policy Vehicle Inspectors are presently exercising more discretion in the inspection of such vehicles. This will allow for a more efficient processing of the vehicle licensing system to the public.

In conclusion, and on behalf of the Government, I wish to express our gratitude to all Honourable Members of the Legislative Assembly and members of the public for their support as we continue to improve the Public Transportation System for the Cayman Islands. We look forward to their continued support in the future.

Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: Item 5 on today's Order Paper: Other Business. Private Member's Motion No. 23/98 entitled Referendum Law to be moved by the First Elected Member for George Town.

The First Elected Member for George Town.

OTHER BUSINESS

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 23/98

REFERENDUM LAW

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I beg to move Private Member's Motion No. 24 (sic) [23]/98 entitled Referendum Law which reads as follows:

"WHEREAS an increasing number of matters of national importance demand widespread public participation in the decision making process;

"BE IT RESOLVED THAT the Government takes immediate steps to bring to the Legislative Assembly a Referendum Law which will allow the public their democratic right to participate in this process."

The Speaker: Is there a seconder? The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I rise to second the motion, sir.

The Speaker: Private Member's Motion No. 23/98 has been duly moved and seconded. Would the mover wish to speak on it? The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Mr. Speaker, this yet is another motion, which we are bringing to this Honourable Legislative Assembly with a bigger picture in mind. Once again, we have brought this motion, like others in the recent past, simply with the view and with the hope that Honourable Members, including the Government, will see it fit for us to move forward with the democratic process and to allow opportunity for good government, for open government, for transparency and accountability to prevail.

Now, Mr. Speaker, before I go into giving arguments, I first of all need to address a specific situation which naturally occurs with bringing the motion with regards the Constitution.

If we look in the Resolve section of the motion again, it reads: “BE IT RESOLVED that the Government takes immediate steps to bring to the Legislative Assembly a Referendum Law...” And just like the previous Private Member’s motion which was debated, there were certain assumptions made on the part of myself, the mover, and I dare say the seconder, when we were wording this motion.

If I may read the section in the Constitution which applies to referendum, Mr. Speaker, I will make the point very clear.

In the Cayman Islands (Constitution) Order of 1993, in Part 4, under Powers and Procedure in Legislative Assembly, Section 29 (2) reads: “Without prejudice to the generality of subsection (1), a law may make provision for the holding of a referendum amongst persons qualified as electors in elections to the Assembly on a question declared by resolution. Adopted by a majority of the Elected Members of the Assembly to be a matter of national importance and specified in such Law.”

So, Mr. Speaker, my interpretation of this section in layman terms is that if a majority of the Elected Members of this Honourable House are inclined for a referendum to take place, then by resolution a Bill would be brought to this Honourable Legislative Assembly regarding a referendum on a specific issue on national importance.

That means that that Referendum Law would only relate to a specific issue. And while it does not address it, I am assuming once nature takes its course and such a referendum were completed then that Law would fall away until the next time, if there were a next time.

What this Motion is asking for, Mr. Speaker, is a little different. We accept that. Because what we are asking for in the Motion is for there to be a referendum law which will be—for lack of a better word—on the books all the time. And of course once the prerequisites are set, then a referendum can be held on any specific issue without the necessity of actually having to create another law.

We have not addressed in the Motion all of the specifics which would mobilise a referendum, or which would allow a referendum to take place, because we thought that that would be something that would be included in the Law. But again, like the other Motion, we face a situation where according to the way the Constitution is worded, what we have asked for cannot take place.

Now the difference with the previous Motion and this one is that we understand and accept that there would have to be what I would term a small cosmetic amendment to the Constitution. And I wish to address that issue right away, because it is not uncommon, Mr. Speaker, when we hear of amending the Constitution, that people get all rattled and nervous and begin to wonder what kind of radical changes one might be proposing. This is by no means any proposal for any radical change.

In short terms, Mr. Speaker, what we are proposing is to provide a vehicle by which a certain percentage, or a certain number—to be specified in any law that might be created—of the voting public—once that number is sufficient, for whatever the Law calls for—then the public can actually mobilise a referendum. And there are arguments for it, but I will get into those arguments in a little while.

Mr. Speaker, it is important that I do the best I can at this juncture to specify exactly what we have been talking about thus far. What we are saying, is, that we understand the way the Constitution reads, that what we are asking for cannot happen. I think the fancy terminology for it is, it is ultra vires the Constitution. We understand and accept that. And we in the Resolve section presupposed that if the Government were minded to accept, or if the Government were politically willing to help to undertake to allow the democratic process to move forward a little bit, that it would be part and parcel of whatever cosmetic amendment had to take place within the Constitution to allow for this to happen.

So, Mr. Speaker, when the Government replies—we are not telling Government what to do, because certainly we cannot do that. But we are asking for the reasoning, whatever the decision—whether the Government is prepared to accept the Motion or not—not to be that they cannot accept the Motion because its ultra vires the Constitution. We are saying here and now that we understand that.

Like what occurred in the previous Motion; we presupposed certain things, and I am not arguing whether that is right or wrong. But what we are making very clear now is that we understand exactly what the situation is, and we are asking the Government either to accept the Motion with its intent, or to show arguments why it cannot be accepted, but not because of what the Constitution reads; because we understand what would have to be done if the Government and/or the rest of the Members of this Assembly were to accept the intent of the Motion.

I am not going to say at this time that I would like to see the Government bring an amendment to our Motion to accommodate that, or if they did not want to deal with it—like they did with the other one, that we would bring the amendments—because the truth is, Mr. Speaker, we understand and accept that this is in actual fact, if I may take the chance to say so, a much more delicate issue than the one we dealt with before about the Complaints Commissioner.

All we are saying here is, if it is something that the majority of us want to see happen, if we want to give our public a mechanism by which they can participate in the democratic process when it comes to issues of national importance, then let us find the method to do so; let us not use the way the Constitution is worded as the way to prevent it from happening.

This may seem like an argument, Mr. Speaker, that should have been dealt with by the way the Motion is worded, but I am not standing here today as the mover of this Motion with any claims to perfection, or any over abundance of command of the Queen's English, or any special knowledge and ability when it comes to Law, but I know, and I understand what I believe we should be doing and this is part of the process that I am moving toward, Mr. Speaker.

So, thus the explanation for the Motion. As I said, we understand, Mr. Speaker, that there will have to be some slight cosmetic amendment to our Constitution—and I know the process that that calls for. But, Mr. Speaker, if one were to speak generally, one could say that when the Resolve section states: “BE IT RESOLVED that the Government takes immediate steps to bring to the Legislative Assembly a Referendum Law...” one could say that those steps would include whatever had to be done to allow for this Law to be brought. So, I am asking for us to argue at a different level which I believe is more important than to get into—almost what I would term as semantics, or—technicalities to decide on its fate.

Having said that, I will now make some attempt to justify the reasoning for bringing the Motion. Mr. Speaker, I want to go back a few years, because this is not the first time that this issue has been addressed, either on the floor of the Legislative Assembly, or by way of select committees. So, I just want to point out what occurred on a few occasions to try to strengthen the argument. And everything is not going to be done in chronological order, Mr. Speaker, because that is not the way I think that I should try to build the case.

First of all, Mr. Speaker, I would like to read from the Report of the Select Committee of Elected Members to Review the Cayman Islands Constitution Order 1972. This was during the 1991 session of the Cayman Islands Legislative Assembly.

On page 18 of that Report, Mr. Speaker, and Section 25, which was headed: Other Matters Provision for Referenda. As I said, this is a report of the Select Committee of Elected Members to Review the Cayman Islands Constitution Order 1972. And it reads:

By majority consensus it is recommended that:

- I. The new Constitution make provision for the holding of referenda.
- II. A referendum should only be held in regard to issues of national importance.
- III. The holding of a referendum shall be subject to the passing of a resolution in the Legislative Assembly by majority vote of the Elected Members.
- IV. A referendum shall be advisory in scope only.
- V. [ No. V is the important one here, Mr. Speaker] The Legislative Assembly shall in due course pass a Referendum Law.”

There can be varied interpretations of these recommendations, but the interpretation that I am taking with number V is that while it was not something that was considered an immediate necessity, that at some point in time, a Referendum Law should be passed in this Legislative Assembly. So, that was the 1991 Report of that Select Committee reviewing the 1972 Constitution.

Mr. Speaker, going back into that Report, looking at the fourth meeting of that select committee, which was on Friday, 4th January 1991, I just wish to quote two quick sections. Under the subheading of Voters Referendum – and Mr. Speaker, you might well smile during some of what I am saying because you were there and you might well remember some of the events that transpired. Unfortunately, I was not.

Under Voters Referendum, in the third paragraph, it quickly reads: “Mr. Truman Bodden supported a provision of a referendum and suggested that the Government had a fear of its introduction.”

The second thing that I wish to read, which is where I think is of vital importance, Mr. Speaker, and I quote from the minutes: “A proposal to hold a referendum should be determined by a majority vote of the Elected Members of the Legislature, or by a petition of a reasonable number of electors Mr. Truman Bodden advocated.”

Now, Mr. Speaker, I read through all of the minutes and the report on that section. And the Minister will probably think that I had this irresistible urge to pick out and quote what he said. But, Mr. Speaker, the Bible's truth is that I agree with him. I agree with what he said; I totally agree with what he said. That is why the Motion is here. Because, under the Constitution, at this point in time, Mr. Speaker, an electorate, no matter how large the numbers or what huge percentage it constitutes, cannot, cannot Mr. Speaker, do what the Minister was saying. They cannot by way of a petition trigger a referendum; not legally. This is what we are asking for in our Motion.

So, again, never mind our inability to craft it perfectly; it is obvious what we want to achieve. As we go along, we are going to try to cement the proof of what we are trying to achieve. So, I just quoted from those minutes, Mr. Speaker, to really just allow myself to read what was articulated by the now Minister of Education and to say in a nutshell that this, what I read – which is what he said – is exactly what we want to achieve.

I just wish to read it again because it is very short Mr. Speaker. It reads: “A proposal to hold a referendum should be determined by a majority vote of the Elected Members of the Legislature, [which constitutionally is allowed for now] or, by a petition of a reasonable number of electors, Mr. Truman Bodden advocated.” That is what cannot happen at this point in time, and Mr. Speaker, that is what we are hoping to achieve. What I think we really need to understand and realise (as is called for in today's world) is, that even when this review was done in 1991, which was 7 1/2 years ago, there have been many changes in our country since then. But all of those changes have not dulled in my view the need for the public to be able to exercise their democratic right. In fact, as far as I am concerned, events that have occurred since then, have sharpened the need for them to have that ability.

Mr. Speaker, the biggest reason for that is because I believe it is obvious to everyone that today's public is much more informed than the public of days gone by. People are now much more interested in the politics of their country, in the affairs of their country and in truth and in fact, Mr. Speaker, I think it is fair comment to say that many more individuals nowadays are more seriously interested in the future of their country. There are fewer people nowadays who simply take it for granted that everything is going to be all right.

People are at a level where they understand that they too have a responsibility and they too have a role to play in the future of their country. Mr. Speaker, because that is the case, I believe the concern alone that has been displayed should drive us on to understand and accept why it is good for us to do what this motion asked for.

Yes, Mr. Speaker, as I was saying, I believe that we should now if for no other reason than the fact that the public is much more informed, they are much more conscious, they are much more concerned. If for no other reasons than those which are obvious, then I believe that we should have some mechanism which would allow (when the numbers are sufficient) for the electorate to voice their opinion through a referendum to ensure that we as legislators understand the wishes of the majority of the people.

Mr. Speaker, going back in time Private Member's Motion NO. 11/89...I am going to do my best, sir. I am asking permission to quote certain things, but I am going to do my best not to quote too many. I will try to stick to the parts which are relevant. But I want to refer to this motion because actually reading about it enlightened me into this thing about having referendum.

I quote from page 579 of the 1989 Hansards. Mr. Truman Bodden and he says, "Mr. President, I beg to move Private Member's Motion No. 11/89 which reads (and I quote):

WHEREAS there is no law which enables a referendum to be held whereby the people of the Cayman Islands can give their view on important public issues;

AND WHEREAS it is considered that the number of important issues affecting the country is increasing;

AND WHEREAS it is considered that the people of these islands should be able to give their view clearly to their representatives in this Assembly;

BE IT THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT a Select Committee comprising all Elected Members and the Second Official Member be appointed to examine and to make recommendations on a referendum law which would give the people of the Cayman Islands the right to vote upon major national issues."

So it is obvious that at least the Minister for Education was mindful of this need at that point in time. Not quoting but realising right down below it, Mr. Speaker, the memory must be more vivid yet, because I see where your goodly self, sir, seconded the motion.

So anyway as that motion was brought in 1989—before I go any further, Mr. Speaker, let me again make this clear: The areas that I am going to be quoting from with this delivery are not just to be able to quote and say who said it but I believe, Mr. Speaker, it strengthens my argument and this is what it is all about, we quote other things that have occurred. While the thought that comes to mind immediately is that there will probably be a situation where someone will want to look at who agreed with the motion, who voted for and who voted against; that is no concern of mine. As I said, I was not here, but today I am part and parcel of moving a motion that seeks to achieve something very similar if not the same, and I am just trying to strengthen my arguments, to prove the validity of the case.

In his opening delivery, the now Minister of Education in a part of it, he says (and I quote), sir: "We represent the people of Islands generally (of course, when we see the word, generally, I didn't have to call his name, we would know who it was that we were quoting. Anyhow...) and there is no one in this House who can sit here and say on major national issues they can speak with total confidence as to what the people, the electorate of the Cayman Islands, actually feel and their views.

Therefore it is a Law for the humble because one does go back to the source that has put one in this House and one has to ask them what are your views on a major national issue. Believe me, that is one way of ensuring that big mistakes are not made in this country. Because if we get the guidance we need, it means as well that there has to be public debate, openly, some considerable time before the issue reaches this Honourable House and on several occasions here, I have once again felt the time may have been too short on some issues even though they may have fallen under the Standing Orders of this House.

There are issues that are so basic and important that guidance has to come from the people of these islands. When we get too big to ask for that guidance and even worse, too big to take it, then we fail to represent."

Very important words, Mr. Speaker. Some shorter quotes, sir, that I am just extracting. He says, "I would say this: if some of the national major issues that have come had gone back to the public, we could have saved many, many of the problems that we have had in the past." I agree with him, totally.

He says, sir: "What I see as being the major part of this type of Legislation, would be in a form of the machinery was in place and it would be set in motion, separately (this is what's important now because I read what was said in 1991, this is 1989.) by either a resolution of this House or by a substantial amount of persons who are on the voters list."

I don't think that I am making any serious assumptions when I say that while the words are different, what he meant here was exactly what was said in 1991. He is saying that there should be two options for referendum; either one, through this Legislative Assembly, or two, by way of the voting public, however and whenever that can be triggered by them. But there must be some type of option for the public.

Mr. Speaker, there is yet more profound, even though short statements. He quotes from a book, which was written by Roberts Wray (whoever that is, sir) and the book is called Commonwealth and Colonial Law. He says, "That has a very short, but very effective paragraph." It says, "...Submission to popular vote pre- vents hasty action." That is powerful, Mr. Speaker, and again I could not agree with him anymore.

He goes on in his delivery, and I have to have to admit, as he would on the odd occasion say to me, it was well researched! It is obvious, the delivery was right there. He says, "They may well find (and I think he is referring to the Legislative Assembly at this point in time or rather Select Committee) that it should only be triggered by a resolution of this Honourable House. In that simpler form, I would find it very difficult to understand why the people of this country are not regarded as sufficiently important so that they should be given that right." I mean, Mr. Speaker, it just simply gets better. He is saying that he would find it very difficult to understand why the people of this country are not regarded as sufficiently important so that they should be given that right.

Now, Mr. Speaker, the Minister of Education and I can differ with anything else but with what I am reading here and what I read he said in 1991, there can be no difference on this one.

He goes on to say: "Are we in here to take the advice from members of the public voters in the electoral districts, on major issues? Or do we believe that once we have come in here, we are so big that we can never humble ourselves to ask for guidance? In life generally, we must listen to people; we must learn to take advice before we can give orders. Without that, many times we could make decisions that could hurt the country."

Mr. Speaker, he then goes on to say, "Lastly, it will ensure that submission to the people will prevent any hasty action on a major, national issue."

Now, I believe that on this issue regarding referendum and had I known before about all that the Minister had said when he brought a similar motion, I certainly would have almost created history and I would have gone to that Minister and said, 'Mr. Minister, I have this notion, I have seen what you think of this, would you please, sir, either bring this motion from the Government bench or if you are not sure you have all of the support, allow me to bring it, sir, and would you create history and second it.' But unfortunately, the motion had already been submitted before I was able to read all of this, but I am delighted to have access to this information, Mr. Speaker.

In his summing up, after all others had spoken, he says, "But what worries me is that one good morning the people of this country are going to wake up and find that a major national issue has moved through this House with very little public debate. They could well be stuck with something which, if they had a right to give their opinion on, and if there had been the time to air it publicly and take their views the damage would not be done. Once the damage is done there is no way of reversing that type of damage. You can try but it only worsens it."

Mr. Speaker, I am nearly there, sir, and I thank you for your patience. Just two more short quotes before he winds up his motion.

He says, "But I know there are going to be times under this democratic process in this House, when I will be in a minority. There are times when the slowing down process to expose issues to the people is going to become crucial. I am not afraid of that process." And again, Mr. Speaker, that is heartening. So here is where we are at.

We understand with the motion that if we want to be technical, we could find reasons to reject it, although as I said, we are pre-suppose in our resolve section that whatever had to be done with regards to the cosmetic surgery to the constitution to allow for the law to be brought, that this was included in the resolve section. But notwithstanding that, sir, I believe and I hope that what is sought by the motion is totally understood. And with that in mind I hope that as I go on to try to cement the case a bit further, that Honourable Members will find it in themselves to support this motion, bearing in mind that whatever has to be done to cause it to be legal, as they would term it, could be done once the will is there to allow it to happen.

Mr. Speaker, after going through those quotations, I would just like to try to, if I may, put what I would call, the icing on the cake, by quoting a few short sentences from a book that is called Referendums Around the World. It is a book edited by David Butler and Austin Ranny. The very opening paragraph of the book reads: "In a referendum, a vast electorate votes on some public issue. A referendum can be initiated in many ways and can take many forms but most democracies have at some time held referendums. In some countries, referendums have been institutionalised into a regular part of government. In others, they have been ad hoc affairs designed to solve a specific problem." In our case, Mr. Speaker, we fall into the latter category, where constitutionally at this point in time, we can only deal with it on a specific issue. Whereas what we are seeking now is to have a law which will allow the public to participate, rather than for each time it is to done for there to be a law put into place.

One of the key areas that I wish to quickly quote here, Mr. Speaker, is one that I think we need to recognise and I think we also need to recognise not just within ourselves but we need to understand that the majority of people in the country feel this way. And I quote, he says, "In most countries, the decision to hold a referendum has laid with the party or parties in office and they have called referendums to suit their own political convenience."

So you see, Mr. Speaker, one of the reasons why we bring this motion is to prevent this thought by the people and once we are able to agree on it in this Honourable Legislative Assembly, neither the Government nor any Member in here can be accused of this, and I think that is very, very important.

You see, what this is also saying is that as it reads in most countries, the decision to hold a referendum has lain with the party or parties in office and they have called referendums to suit their own political convenience. What it is also saying without saying it, it is that they have not called referendums to suit the same reason. So what we are trying to be open and transparent about is, we are saying to the public that we are not going to hold it constitutionally as it is without giving you the right to trigger it if there are enough of you who believe that it should happen. That is what this motion is all about, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Speaker, I do have a few more things to say but I think the case has been put forward. I think in summing up, we are saying that we believe that our country is at a stage where the political consciousness of the electorate, the political awareness of the electorate, the concern of the electorate for the future of the country almost demands that we allow the electorate—it demands that we allow them to participate in the process by having a mechanism whereby they can voice their own choices in mass. Such a mechanism does not exist at this point in time.

As the Constitution reads, A law may make provision for the holding of a referendum amongst persons qualified as electors in the elections to the Legislative Assembly on a question declared by resolution. That is, a resolution in this Legislative Assembly adopted by a majority of the elected members of the Assembly to be a matter of national importance and specified in such law.

We don't have a problem with that; we don't have a problem with the fact that it must be an issue of national importance. We do not have a problem that what national importance is must be specified. We don't have a problem with the way the law should be structured so that we don't have the fear of certain sectors of your society triggering a referendum every two days of the week.

I understand that, that's not what it is all about, we are not saying that's what it should be. And as I said, Mr. Speaker, there are a few more arguments but I am going to leave them until the winding up because I think they will probably relate to what transpires with other speakers who will make their contributions to the motion.

Now, again in summing up: We are asking not only the Government but other members of this Legislature to accept the importance of giving the people this right and to allow for it to happen by whatever means necessary; to not let technicalities get in the way.

I have learned my lesson from the previous motion about the Complaints Commissioner. There is no argument that I am going to give about it now, except to say that this is not a game and if others think that it is, I am truly sorry for them because that's not what it is all about.

I am asking for it not to be taken lightly, not to be treated as a game. I have explained to the best of my ability the intent of this Motion and I am asking Members of this Assembly to accept its intent. And, if it is their wish that the intent of this Motion be manifested to support it, regardless of what arguments (if any), are used against the motion.

Mr. Speaker, those arguments, once they do not address the intent of the Motion, as far as I am concerned, should fall away because while we can argue about technicalities, I think that everybody knows what we are trying to achieve.

So if what we are trying to achieve does not find concert with the other members, then let them use arguments to say why what we are trying to achieve is wrong. But please don't use technicalities to say why you cannot support it. That's what I am asking for this time, Mr. Speaker, because it is important. I respect the fact that some others may have different views about a referendum but having looked at it and having listened to many others about it at this point in time, the mover and I are convinced that this is the right thing to do; it is the right thing for the country; it is in no way going to tie anybody's hands; it is simply enhancing good, open government.

I trust that the arguments suffice, Mr. Speaker, but I will wait to hear. Thank you.

The Speaker: Would this be a convenient time to take the afternoon break? We shall suspend for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.22 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.13 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Debate continues on Private Member's Motion No. 23/98. Does any other Member wish to speak? The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

— There are some legal issues involved in this particular motion, and so, as the Government's principal legal advisor, it is incumbent upon me to address those issues to the House. I should stress that I am only going to deal with the legal issues. It is not my intention to deal at all with the desirability, or otherwise, of the sentiments in the Motion.

The difficulty with the Motion as it is before the House, (and I am speaking of course about Private Member's Motion No. 23/98), is that it's the Constitution itself that prevents the implementation of the Motion. And I am sure that the mover of the Motion understands that and he has really alluded to that—in fact, stated it—whilst moving the Motion.

The difficulty is that those provisions in the Constitution set out exactly the circumstances and the method within which a referendum law can come to the Legislative Assembly. And the Constitution (which is the new section 29, subsection 2 of the Cayman Islands (Constitution) Order) . . . in fact the amendment that was made in 1993. And as the mover has said—and he has read it out, but it might be helpful if I read out the bits that are relevant to what I am addressing as the legal consequences. So I will leave out what does not really relate to that. It says: "... a law may make provision for the holding of a referendum ... on a question declared by resolution, adopted by a majority of the elected members of the Assembly, to be a matter of national importance and specified in such law."

What the Motion is seeking to achieve, I believe, is to have a law presented to and passed by the Legislative Assembly that would allow a referendum to take place. Well of course, Mr. Speaker, the section 29 that I have just read out of the Constitution, allows that already. But the section 29 makes it abundantly clear, that before a referendum law can actually come and be passed by the Legislative Assembly, then it has to be moved in the House. A resolution has to be voted and adopted by a majority. It has to relate to a matter of national importance and it has to be specified in that law.

So, what the Constitution does not allow is a general referendum law into which you can then slot the issue that you happen to want to have the referendum on. I think that is what the Motion is seeking to achieve. And as I say, I am not dealing with whether or not that is a desirable state of affairs, but merely whether you can actually have that under the Constitution. And in my opinion, you cannot.

If I have read the intent of the Motion correctly—and I believe I have—then the way that you can achieve that, is to actually propose an amendment to the Constitution. That is what you would have to do. And the amendment would have to allow then, what this Motion is seeking to achieve. It would have to allow a general referendum law not in accordance with the Constitution at the moment.

So, I think that is the problem and it is a problem the mover fully understands and maybe the seconder, too, because he's obviously referred to it in his moving of the Motion. But it is only right that I should point this out to the House that the Constitution would not allow the implementation of this Motion in the way that it is envisaged. And as I say, of course the issue of whether or not the referendum can be held in Cayman, is one that has already been addressed in this section of the Constitution – and clearly is allowed by the Constitution – that any referendum law has to be specific; it cannot be just a general law; it has to be specific for the particular issue that the referendum is seeking to deal with. Of course that is qualified by the fact it has to be a matter of national importance, but again the mover of course has referred to that as well.

So, I think that is the legal problem with the Motion – nothing to do with the desirability of it, or otherwise. But to achieve what I believe the mover and seconder intend by this Motion, in my opinion – in fact it was a Motion to amend the Cayman Islands Constitution in the way that I have just suggested. Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? The floor is open to debate. Does any other Member wish to speak? The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, with regards to Private Member's Motion No.24 (sic) [23]/98, The Referendum Law, we have just heard the Honourable Second Official Member say why a referendum law at this particular time is not possible without an amendment to the Constitution. So it could be said that we should not even be debating this issue as the reason why the motion cannot be accepted by Government places Government in an ideal position to reject the motion on a technical level.

But, if the Government were seriously interested in this Private Member's Motion... And the National Team Government should have been interested in a referendum law because as has been outlined by the mover of this Motion, the Leader of Government Business, in particular, has said that there is no truer way for the people to express their wishes than by periodical referendum.

In other words, if a referendum law had been—again like the Complaints Commissioner—something that seemed to have been dear to the hearts of leading National Team Members in the period between 1988 and 1992—when they were attempting to give the people the impression that they were good servants, to the extent where they would do all within their power to see that a referendum law was created in order to allow the people the possibility to periodically express their will in regard to issues considered of national importance.

If we reflect just briefly on the Ritz-Carlton Motion—taking into account the fact that this would have been a case in point when an issue of national importance whereby the people's position certainly would have been different from the Government's position. and the people having to live with the decision of the Government...

If in fact Members of the National Team Government were serious about their position with regard to a referendum law, we would have seen that it would not have been left up to the First Elected Member for George Town to bring a motion that can now be rejected as technically incorrect... But that the Government that had been voted into power, based upon the people's understanding that that Government was much more interested in listening to the wishes of the people than was the previous Government (between 1988 and 1992), we would have found that with the expertise that is available to the Government, for instance, i.e., the Attorney General who so ably got up here and said why this is legally an impossibility at this time— with that type of expertise, Mr. Speaker, there should have been the political will to have established a referendum law.

I am not so much arguing in my contribution the pros and cons as I am trying to make clear the predicament that we seem to find ourselves in. We seem to find ourselves in a situation whereby a great majority of the people now believe that the Government has become insensitive to their wishes and to their needs, that after two years of governing in this particular term like in most terms governments seem to somehow become dislocated and somehow disconnected from its voters, from its constituents, from the customers, from the shareholders of this country.

So if those persons continue to speak against the evolution of political linkages that would somehow link the Government to the Legislative Assembly and by that, Mr. Speaker, link the Government to the people, to the broad masses of the people, on a day-to-day level, on a week-to-week basis, on a month-to-month type of interaction basis; if the Government does not anchor itself somehow to the will of the people how can the Government guarantee the people that the Government will be a government of the people and by the people?

This Referendum Law, this motion for a referendum law is important because at this particular time it is almost like a last attempt to anchor the Government to the people somehow; to give the Government that kind of connection to the population that the Government especially at this time needs so badly; exactly as they so badly needed between 1988 and 1989 when the Leader of Government Business was discussing this particular need as one that was important and urgent.

So it would appear to me, after speaking to one of my concerned constituents today who was asking how she could influence the decision-making process in such a way that the decisions that are made would result in meaningful benefits and improvement in the lives of Caymanian people. How can she get involved at this particular stage? She seems to believe that when politicians are elected they tend to disappear from public view because the constituents no longer have the same type of access to their representatives, in particular to their representatives that are on the Government Bench who serve as Ministers between the hours of 8:30 AM and 5:00 PM.

So there is a real practical difficulty that the Government of this country faces in regard to the people's ability to express their opinions. What my constituent was really trying to find out was what might they do... And it was at that particular time also today that I reflected again on what the First Elected Member for George Town is doing in bringing this concern and what the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town has done in trying to support it.

Now, the technicalities can be worked out because somehow I believe that the responsibility is the responsibility of this Legislative Assembly as a whole. The responsibility to find a way to create that organ to create that means, that method, to allow the humble person, the poorer person, the person who is more removed from the decision-making process of this country, to allow them the ability to periodically express their wills in regard to major Government policy.

That should be the concern not just of the First Elected Member for George Town, and the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, but it should be my concern, it should be the concern of the Minister for Education, and the Leader of Government Business, and the Government as a whole. We are all in this together, and we have to evolve a method which will reconnect the people to this Legislative Assembly and to the Government. We have to find a method that will allow the people to feel somehow that they are not just to be consulted every four years, but they will have the ability to periodically express their will.

Now, when you are in a situation, Mr. Speaker. . . would you like [me] to give way?

The Speaker: I would entertain a motion to suspend Standing Order 10(2) so that we can continue beyond the hour of 4:30. The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 10(2)

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I move the suspension of Standing Order 10(2) so that we can continue until 5:30, which is the agreed time.

The Speaker: Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. We shall continue until 5.30 PM.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 10(2) SUSPENDED.

The Speaker: Please continue. I apologise for the interruption.

Dr. Frank McField: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. No problem.

What I am really trying to do is—rather than let us be defeated by the technicalities, rather than give the Government the possibility to say technically they are correct this motion cannot be entertained—to throw the ball back into their court and say technically you are right, but morally, politically you are wrong.

Morally and politically you are responsible and should have engineered that particular Referendum Law while you were in office for the first term—the first four years—and you are well into the second year of your second term and it had to be brought here as a Private Member's Motion. Now, we just have to go back to 1989 and what Mr. Truman Bodden at that time, the Leader of Government Business, Minister for Education said. He said, "We represent the people of the islands generally. And there is no one in this House who can sit here and say on major national issues they can speak with total confidence as to what the people, the electorate of the Cayman Islands, actually feel and their views." [Official Hansard Report, 1989, Volume I, page 579.] The gentleman's views in 1989 are almost totally identical to my views in 1998. All we have to do is switch it around and we have the same numbers, eight's and nine's—89/98. Identical views!

I hope that the gentleman, the Minister for Education, will agree that if they had been developed by the National Team Government a referendum law or had we gone through the exercises which were necessary to establish or to make possible the creation of a referendum law that this Ritz-Carlton deal would not have been successful because the people would have been given the possibility to vote on it.

Mr. Speaker, I can guarantee you, although we are saying that we cannot with confidence say as to what the electorate of the Cayman Islands actually feel and their views, I would bet that the views of the people would be to develop the hotel, and to leave the mangrove alone. In other words, not to do the golf course. So we have a case in point.

Of course, I am not trying to bring back the debate, but I need to use a case in point to show why the Legislative Assembly, why the Government would be better equipped to know the views of the people and to serve the interests of the people if we, even now at this late point, Mr. Speaker, were to attempt to make the amendments which are necessary in the Constitution.

The Honourable Minister for Education is laughing. (Pause) Mr. Speaker, the Honourable Second Official Member said, and maybe I misunderstood him but I understood him as saying that for there to be a referendum law there would have to be an amendment to the Constitution.

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Perhaps on a point of clarification. What I said was that for there to be a referendum law in the way this motion proposes it, in other words a general referendum law to be passed by the Legislative Assembly there would have to be an amendment to the Constitution. Not any referendum law because the Constitution provides for a referendum law, but not in the way this motion envisages it.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town, continuing.

Dr. Frank McField: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I thank the Honourable Second Official Member for his clarification on that. But what I am saying is that if we believe that a referendum law would mean that the Government of the day, or the majority in Parliament would first have to pass a Referendum Law, for instance, let's use the case of the Ritz-Carlton. They would first have to come in here and agree for a referendum on that; otherwise it wouldn't go down.

So that is not genuinely acceptable because it means that it is almost like saying the Government has to, first of all, agree in order to put the question before the people. And if the Government is of the opinion that it should answer that question, then it will not put the question before the people; it will do as it did in the case of the Ritz-Carlton—it will answer that question itself.

I would be more concerned with a law that would allow for the people to be able to express their opinions when they feel that the issue is one of national importance. And that in fact we would give an idea of what these issues would be like; whether it means forming a committee and working these details out, or however it is done. I am not an expert; I am not the one who brought this motion. I have not figured all these things out, and I confess my lack of detailed knowledge in regards to it; but I am not going to profess to know something I don't know.

One thing I do know, Mr. Speaker, is that the Honourable Minister for Education said in 1989 that a referendum law (what this Motion is calling for in fact), would be a good thing because those of us who are elected to the Legislative Assembly cannot always profess to know exactly the wishes and the views of the people. The fact that there has been no development or advancement in regard to this particular issue, has something to do with the fact that once people get in Government they forget that people do have views.

Again, I don't feel that the Government should be allowed to get away on technicalities with this issue. I believe that it should at least seek to give a solution as to what the compromise can be in this situation; that the political directorate should respond to the Motion and take responsibility for the fact that they started the consciousness and awareness in regard to this need from back in 1989. It should not be left up to the Attorney General to read out why it is technically not possible. Although it might be technically impossible, the Government still needs to talk about the values in regard to this particular idea. It cannot vote on this Motion and leave these Halls without expressing its political opinion in regard to this idea of a referendum law. Thank you.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I had no intention to speak on this particular motion, however, I was a part of the 1988-992 Backbench that is now being accused of not keeping our commitment to the people. Mr. Speaker, the amendment to the Constitution plainly makes provision in section 29(2). It says, "Without prejudice to the generality of subsection (1), a law may make provision for the holding of a referendum amongst persons qualified as electors in elections to the Assembly on a question declared by resolution, adopted by a majority of the Elected Members of the Assembly, to be a matter of national importance and specified in such law."

Mr. Speaker, how I understand that works is: If the Government, or even the Backbench, recognises that there is an issue out there of national importance, either the Government or the Backbench can move a motion saying, 'Okay, let's trigger this provision in the Constitution that calls for a referendum law.' But even if we went along, or even if the situation existed as is now called for in the Private Member's Motion that has just been recently moved, Mr. Speaker, it has to be triggered by a resolution in this House that is supported by a majority of the Members.

So I think, Mr. Speaker, that we are really attempting to mislead the general public into believing that the provision in the present Constitution does not make allowances for what we are calling for.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order.

POINT OF ORDER

The Speaker: Let me hear your point of order.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, as the mover of this motion and the person who has stated the case for the motion, it would appear to me like the Member is saying that I am making an attempt to mislead the House and/or the people of this country. And that is not true, sir.

The Speaker: I think you did state that. I think you should clarify that, please.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Mr. Speaker, I must apologise to the First Elected Member for George Town, because I really did not even hear his contribution. I was specifically talking—or referring to the Fourth Elected Member from George Town.

The Speaker: But just do not mislead the House. Just, please withdraw that.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Mr. Speaker, I do not have a problem with that. What I am saying is that what is being called for in this motion is possible under the present provisions in the Constitution.

Mr. Speaker, the other point that we have to keep in mind is that we go to a general election every four years. And the machinery that we have to put in place for a general election is basically the machinery we are talking about for carrying out a referendum. So, Mr. Speaker, we have to also take into consideration, cost. And that's a serious consideration. I, for one, am one of those elected representatives who likes to determine what the wishes of my people are, whenever an issue comes to this House. And at the present time, Mr. Speaker, if I feel so strong about that issue and I am not convinced as to what the desires of the majority of the people are, Mr. Speaker, I have the option of going to a district meeting, a national meeting, or whatever other forum I choose to adopt.

Mr. Speaker, as I understand it, the provision in the Constitution with regard to the Referendum Law is geared along the practice that obtains in the Mother Country. It is not geared along the lines of what I understand exists in such countries as Sweden. Mr. Speaker, I heard a comment today by one of the persons who did the briefing with regard to the financial reforms, that because of the existence of such, should I say, liberal policies or exercises in places like Sweden, they do not get a whole lot done. In other words, if you decide that you want to preserve the Cayman parrot—for example, in Sweden you would put that to a referendum.

Mr. Speaker, I think that the intentions of the First Elected Member for George Town and the Third Elected Member from Bodden Town are genuine, because they have a genuine concern with regard to the way I have heard the people in this country. I have no problem with that. Mr. Speaker, if the Constitution did not at present provide for such an exercise, then I would have no problem supporting this particular motion.

The other thing to keep in mind, Mr. Speaker, and the Second Official Member mentioned this, is that in order to accommodate the present request, it calls for an amendment to the Constitution.

Now, Mr. Speaker, I have been here for ten years and I can only recall—I may be wrong—a few amendments to the Constitution. In other words, Mr. Speaker, this is not an exercise you undertake every year. Hopefully what you do... What we did in 1990 was to go through an exercise of looking at the weaknesses of the Constitution, arriving at a position that reflects not only the views of the elected representatives, but maybe the people as a whole through a select committee process where you invite people in like we did, and get their views on certain issues.

Mr. Speaker, the last amendments (I believe) to the Constitution were in 1993, and this is 1998. Now as I said, if the Constitution did not call or provide for this mechanism in regard to referendum, I would have thought you would have been justified calling for an amendment. I am comfortable with the provisions in the Constitution. As I understand it, the process is that if I feel so strongly about an issue that I consider to be a national issue, I have the right to bring a motion to the Legislative Assembly, have it debated, have it voted upon, if it carries by a majority, then it triggers the drafting of the referendum law specifically to the issue I brought to the House and that goes to a referendum. Mr. Speaker, I am happy with that.

I think at this stage I cannot support an amendment to the Constitution to allow what I feel this motion is calling for, because even if that were the situation it still means that there would be a resolution required in the House. It has to be carried by a majority of the Members here before it can move forward. Mr. Speaker, most Governments have a majority. So if we have a Government sitting over there, I don't care what law you have in place. If in a majority the Government and its supporters decide that it is not going to go forward, it is not going to go forward.

[Inaudible interjection—Members' laughter]

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: No, I am not saying that the present Government would not support that issue, but as a fact of life, Mr. Speaker, that any Government in place... how it works is the Government of the day dictates what basically happens. If you come here and you don't get the votes, then it doesn't go anywhere.

So, I am comfortable with the present provisions in the Constitution, I believe it is sufficient and it does provide for those occasions when maybe between general elections we have to deal with national issues.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I, too, like the last Member speaking, did not plan to speak, and I only hope that when I get through, my tutor can feel that he tutored me so much that I won't kick him in the shin as the last speaker did his tutor. (Members' laughter)

The difference in what this Motion is trying to articulate, from what exists in the Constitution, is that it is true that the Constitution makes provision for a referendum. I think what this law wants to lay down, what this bill seeks to have adopted is what my colleague, the First Elected Member for George Town, often describes as a generic law. A law that will suit all and any occasion, when those occasions arise. And I contend that while it is true the Constitution now makes provision for a referendum, it is awkward.

Indeed, if one were to base one's argument on the fact that referendums are only to be used to decide important national issues, and if one were to take the recent past as an example, by the time one would go through this process of formulating the Referendum Law, bringing it to the Parliament, the issue would have long for whatever reason dissipated, become unimportant, or it may just have simply gone away.

What we are trying to say is that we need to have an instrument which can be readily applied because lots of times issues of national importance come up rather suddenly. And if we are in a position where we have the instrument which only needs to be drawn from the shelf, it would put us in a much better position where we would be much more easily able to rectify the issue and to ascertain what the public disposition is on the matter. So I think that we recognise that there is provision now. But what we are saying is that there may be those circumstances in which it may be necessary to have something readily available because we do not know...

This is not a matter which I think we should take lightly or frivolously. As the Honourable Leader of Government Business said when he, that honourable gentleman, brought the Private Member's Motion in 1989 calling for this and he called in for a referendum law. Mr. Speaker, he didn't call for provision to be put into the Constitution for a referendum, he called for a Referendum Law, a specific law. And I have to come back to this point, Mr. Speaker, because this is very important. That honourable gentleman is an attorney: an attorney of some experience, and some learning as he so often reminds us in this House.

I am saying that if he thought the matter could have best been addressed by provisions in the Constitution, I am sure that a man of his intellectual stature and bent would have brought a motion to reflect that. But he called for a specific law, Mr. Speaker, which is the point that we are making now.

So the Fourth Elected Member for George Town was correct in saying that ten years ago he was in the same position we are now. But that is perhaps why we can never catch up and be any more similar because when we arrive at the position he was, he moves back in time. Instead of advancing with us he retreats!

I contend, and although no one made mention of this, I want to say that one of the criticisms I have heard about referendums is that it is really not a part of the Westminster system. Well, let me put it this way—how it is expressed? Well, you know that referendums are really not a common practice in the Westminster system. I have to admit.

Mr. Speaker, I have to make a rueful admission that while that may be so, many countries that practise the Westminster system have instruments readily at hand where they can call for referendums. We need not go any further than Canada. They have had numerous referendums, some involving political issues of national importance, some involving other issues. Other countries in the Commonwealth—Australia—they have the provision. Indeed, they had a referendum several years ago and there are other countries as well. So, let us not delude ourselves into believing that provisions for a referendum are foreign to the Westminster style of Government for it is not.

Mr. Speaker, while it is true that some countries, namely, Switzerland, not Sweden, practise and carry out referendums frequently, in most cases where referendums are held those referendums have to do with serious issues. Switzerland is made up of cantons so they have a very loose federal system. It would not be accurate to say that they have had any referendums dealing with federal issues. But from my knowledge those issues that they have had where they called for referendums were serious issues. I think that both the First and Fourth Elected Members for George Town made the point that using the referendum as an instrument in our case would only be done on important national issues.

And I have to admit, and anyone reading the Hansards. . . I am saying that I would like to see a picture of the Leader of Government Business then, because if you read this Hansard, he was so enlightened. This argument . . . do you know what, Mr. Speaker? I am going to use this argument in classes. This is a textbook argument that he gave—it is flawless!

That honourable gentleman gave a flawless argument when he moved Private Member's Motion 11/89 promoting this referendum. I could see it was well researched and well articulated. And I am familiar with this text because he used it several times when we were together in those days of the famous seven Backbenchers. He quoted from Roberts Wray, Commonwealth and Colonial Law. This is important and I want to remind the honourable gentleman (if he doesn't remember) because this is important to us in this situation now. "Submission to popular vote prevents hasty action."

I wonder if that honourable gentleman still remembers that. I am saying that recent events, if this were the principle we had adopted in the recent past he would have been safe. I believe we are safe. He would have been safe, and the National Team would have been safe. So there is merit for this referendum law.

I would hope—because let me tell you what I see: I see this as a tool for the enhancement of democracy; a tool for the enhancement of open government; a tool to build the people's confidence in that they themselves have access to means which will influence, or guide, the Government in making decisions which the people would like to see made so that this is part of a package which has to do with open Government, which has to do with participation by the people and it strengthens the democracy.

Having made this instrument available to the people, they cannot call into question the transparency of the Government—because this is a tool of transparency. And given what we are talking about now about Vision 2008 and the public sector reform—this is providential that at this time we can be talking about a special referendum law.

I believe that this is not something to be taken lightly. While I appreciate the fact that the Government has sought to address it seriously as evidenced from the position taken by the Second Official Member, I have to agree with the Fourth Elected Member for George Town that technical reasons being what they are, the Government cannot expect that we are going to exonerate them; that we are going to excuse them just on technical ground; because we want to know where the political will is. What is their position? Does the political directorate have the will to do this? We are all in this business, we are all in here despite the positions we take sometimes. I believe that we are all in here operating under the pretext that we want the best for the country.

I am sure that there are those who say when we have passed on from the scene, we would like to know, we would like to be assured that we have left the best possible tools so that successive political directorates can carry on the business of running the country, so that successive political directorates can have the tools and means necessary. I believe that it is incumbent upon us to leave these tools, these instruments, as we see that it is necessary.

I am happy to see that we have reached that level of maturity where no one has gotten up, so far, and tried to play games about someone doing this because they want to change the Constitution, and I hope that that sense of maturity and seriousness, and that sense of soberness prevails because this is not gamesmanship. This is brought out of a genuine concern, out of perception, out of a vision, out of a necessity to see that this referendum law goes hand-in-hand with the other things we are trying to achieve—public sector reform, the Vision 2008 exercise. That is why it is so important for the political directorate to state their disposition as regards this motion, the disposition other than the technicalities given.

Mr. Speaker, you cannot say on the one hand that you are for these reforms, that you are for Vision 2008, and then on the other hand pour cold water on them by not accepting or not providing a substantiating and convincing reason for rejecting a motion such as this.

Just this morning I was reading a text, partly in preparation for the position I would take in this debate, but also for my own edification and my own knowledge and development. I was reading about the founder of democracy; one whom many people regard as the father of modern democracy. And I know that some people in here have a disregard and like to poke fun at philosophers. But philosophy underlies everything we do in life, believe you me. We can't get away from it. There is philosophy in medicine, there is philosophy in engineering, there is philosophy in teaching, there is philosophy in law and there is even philosophy in politics, regardless of what we may think of ourselves.

Pericles, who was the father of democracy, recognised that the essence of democracy lies not in the position or the education or the refinement of the leaders, but in their ability to tap into the desires of the people whom they were leading. It lay in the desire of the leaders to find out in what direction the people were disposed to be led. So from those early days . . . and I want to make the point again, because the point is important: No particular style of Government has the monopoly on being the best. There are many different variations of the democratic ideal. They all have their strong points, they all have their merits. And there are many variations of the democratic ideal and the Westminster system is but one.

To go back to Pericles in Athens for awhile, do you know what the strength of that democracy was? The city/state was constructed and made up in such a way that the leaders had ready access to the people. The style that we have adopted in here, this debating style, do you know where that took place? It took place in a public forum an amphitheatre where at a certain time of the week the citizens gathered and sat down and the leaders got up and expounded their positions. That is where we get words in the English language like, demagogue and pedagogue, because that is where they came from. They got up on their stone and they said, 'Well, here is the position we should take and why we should take it.' And then the floor was thrown open to the citizens. And at the end of that there was a vote so that we could say democracy itself evolved out of a referendum system.

This system underscores the democracy. I am saying that we are sufficiently knowledgeable and sufficiently learned to realise that to be effective it should only be used on important national issues. And it would seem, if the recent past is an indication, that we should have such a tool readily available. But I have to admit, if the National Team Government doesn't see the efficacy, doesn't see the strength, doesn't see the necessity in having this available, then I should not take the position where I am going to use a truncheon to drum it into their brains or heads, or into their style. It makes it easier for those of us who call ourselves Opposition to achieve what we want to achieve, that is, to one day soon become the Government so that when we get there, I can say that we will be sufficiently enlightened to see the merits of adopting such a system as is called for in this Private Member's Motion.

I want to say one thing before I sit down. There is no reason why we in the Cayman Islands cannot craft a system based on what we have. And we are only concerned about us—our people, the Cayman Islands—who use these tools to give us the most effective, the most democratic Governmental system. It does not matter, and I have due regard for other countries, that they do not have it in their systems. If we see fit to have it; if it enables our citizens; if it empowers our constituents; if it helps our constituents to be more educated; if it encourages their participation in the Government; then I say we should adopt it.

Mr. Speaker, this is a reasonable proposal. I would implore and beseech the Government to give it serious thought. Certainly we would like to hear from them. We appreciate the fact that the Second Official Member has stated the Government's position but we are interested. We knew about the technicalities we are interested in hearing their political disposition, what we talked about. We want to find out what kind of political will they have. That is what we seek to elicit. Thank you.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, the motion before the House is not much unlike the one that came in 1989 where, I didn't search the Hansard, but I believe that I supported the motion. Mr. Speaker, so many things have happened since 1989 that you have to stop and think about. But there is no doubt in my mind that we could be doing things to help educate our people and give our people more say in the affairs of running the country.

Nevertheless, I do recall that referendum was a hot issue during the constitutional discussions. Many different people had various views on what could be done and if I am remembering correctly at this time, the Commissioners said that they did not subscribe to putting it into the Constitution but that we could do a law.

Now, when we went to general elections—the run up to general elections and the campaign throughout—my feedback that I had in West Bay was that they would like to see it put in the Constitution. Therefore, when the National Team at that time got together we agreed to put in our manifesto the following statement: “We recommend that complete provision for a referendum be put in the Constitution, but if this is not done that a referendum law be enacted, and in any event that referenda be used only when necessary on major national issues to determine the public's wishes clearly and definitely.”

What I can't recall is exactly what happened on entering Executive Council and what was the UK's position. But I do know that we had some discussions with the United Kingdom on it and that we then, the National Team, agreed to put it in the Constitution. And whether that was right or wrong, it was certainly following the wishes, at least in the West Bay constituency, of the people who spoke in vast numbers at the time. Having put it in the Constitution then, as the mover and seconder have said, they understand the technicality and the matter of being (if we attempt to do this) ultra vires the Constitution and they are disposed to hearing what Government would now do with it.

Mr. Speaker, I, for one, would like to hear many times—because we have so many issues that everybody, especially Members in the House, and people get on the radio (especially with the talk show now) and say 'The vast majority or all of Cayman is for this or against that.' And I maintain that there is never any real knowledge of whether a majority of the people are for or against something. The most we can do is listen to people who talk and then, for me, I go to my constituency and talk to people by phone, people come to my house, people go to the office, people come to public meetings and we get various feedback as to the views of the public on any particular matter.

On the matter of referenda, from my way of thinking it would have to be a very serious issue to galvanise the public into, as it were, a general election situation where you go and talk for, or against an issue, and then the public votes on that issue. It would have to be a serious matter for that to happen.

For instance, if the last Government had changed the Constitution and attempted to put it in force before the 1992 General Election, many people were saying that that issue should go to a referendum before making any changes to the Constitution because there were so many issues pertaining to the Constitution. And, of course, everybody gets heated up about it. There is no hard and fast way of finding out what a majority of the public wants on any given issue.

I am in sympathy with the request, but there is a Constitutional problem, which the mover and the seconder have already identified, that if we did it this way it would be ultra vires the Constitution. Therefore, I cannot support it as it stands. But I would hope that we could find some way where serious issues, not just any frivolous matter to call as it were a general election on to get a vote on that particular matter to find out people's views, it would have to be a serious issue such as changing the Constitution.

Other persons have used development, saying that we could ask it about developments. I don't know if you could go that far. As I said, you have a Government at times and whether you like it or not, then as legislators you can only vote with them or against them. I, too, am concerned that we don't fling every system in the world into this country and think it can work, because that cannot happen in a community of 35,000.

So, while I am in much support and in sympathy with the mover and seconder of the resolution, by it being ultra vires the Constitution I would not offer my support at this time. Thank you.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Boddan: Mr. Speaker, I think we may only have about four minutes left. I am wondering whether you want me to start now.

[Members inaudible comments]

The Speaker: I am in the hands of the House.

Hon. Truman M. Boddan: I am just wondering how many minutes you have left.

The Speaker: I have eight according to my watch.

Hon. Truman M. Boddan: Mr. Speaker, this motion is very clearly a motion that is ultra vires the Constitution and basically unlawful, as such, as we look at the Constitution as a law, and it is one in which—

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order.

POINT OF ORDER

The Speaker: Let me hear your point of order please.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: The Minister has just said that the motion is unlawful. Perhaps what the motion is calling for is unlawful, but, sir, certainly, the motion could not be unlawful otherwise you would not have accepted it, sir.

The Speaker: Maybe that is a poor choice of words. Please explain what you were saying.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I said it is ultra vires the Constitution.

The Speaker: Just withdraw the word 'unlawful.'

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: No, Mr. Speaker, with respect, sir, the Constitution is a law. And if it is against the law, it is unlawful. I don't want to press the point, sir, but legally that ... I don't need to get into that area. But that is the position if we want to look at it from a legal point of view, sir.

The Speaker: Please continue.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: And what the motion is therefore seeking to do is one that cannot be done under the Constitution.

This motion is one that, to be frank (and I had better be careful saying that), speaking frankly, rather, is one that—

Mr. Roy Bodden: If you're gonna be frank with us that's really a change!

[Members' laughter]

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I will have to change some of my Parliamentary language, I guess!

But, Mr. Speaker, it is a motion that really is seeking to do what in effect can now be done under the process that prevails under the Constitution. And it is really not as if this is going to bring in the machinery for a referendum in the country. That machinery already exists under the Constitution at the present time, and is one which has not, whether deliberately or not deliberately, been used by the three Members of the Opposition—the First and Fourth Elected Members for George Town, and the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

The machinery (or the provisions in the Constitution) is very clearly set out. And this motion is (to put it politely) misconceived in what it is purporting to establish because if a little time had been taken to read and understand the provisions of the Constitution then there would have been... in fact, this motion would not have come.

While it is perhaps unfortunate that Members of this Legislative Assembly would bring a motion that is outside—totally outside—of the Constitution under which we have to operate, in other words, this Legislative Assembly is constituted by the Constitution, and we have to live under it and abide by it as law-abiding citizens in the country. Maybe it will be better if those three Opposition Members admit their mistake and try to correct it and save as much face as they can in doing so. [Members' laughter] But to push and try to justify this motion at this stage is, in my view, not justifiable under the Constitution.

The Speaker: We have reached the agreed time of adjournment. The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning, would you move the motion for the adjournment?

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until 10.00 AM tomorrow.

The Speaker: The question is that this Honourable House do now adjourn until 10.00 AM tomorrow. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AT 5.30 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM THURSDAY, 8 OCTOBER 1998.

THURSDAY
8 OCTOBER 1998
10.15 AM

[Prayers by the Hon Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation]

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Item No. 2 on today's Order Paper, Reading by the Speaker of Messages and Announcements.

READING BY THE SPEAKER OF
MESSAGES AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: I have received apologies for late attendance from the Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

Item 3 on today's Order Paper, Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. Question No. 188 is standing in the name of the First Elected Member for West Bay.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION 188

No. 188: Mr. W McKeeva Bush asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport what is being done regarding the Licensing of Vehicles in each District as was agreed.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: . Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The decentralisation of the services offered by the Vehicle Licensing Department will be implemented in phases. The preparations for implementation of the first phase of the plan are almost completed and this will result in the opening of a Licensing Unit later this year in the Bank's Plaza in the district of West Bay. Initially, this Unit will provide vehicle inspection and licensing services from 1.00 to 7.00 PM on Thursdays and Fridays, and from 8.00 am to 2.00 PM on Saturdays. These hours should prove accommodating to residents of West Bay who may work outside the district during normal business hours. The business hours will be continually reviewed in order to be responsive to the needs of the public.

Phase II of the plan calls for setting up a similar Unit in the district of Bodden Town which will provide vehicle inspection and licensing services to the residents of the districts of Bodden Town, East End and North Side. Two sites are currently being considered for the placement of this Unit and a decision will be made in the near future. This phase will be implemented in 1999.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W McKeeva Bush: Can the Honourable Minister say why he chose to read a statement yesterday, and not answer the question yesterday?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport, would you care to answer it?

[silence]

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, if the question seemed tongue-in-cheek I would just like to say that I take a dim view of placing a question on the Order Paper, or in the House to be answered, four weeks ago and not have it answered and have it answered first in a statement. I will explain to you, Mr. Speaker, that the matter of licensing and vehicle inspection goes a long way back in this House, as you, yourself may recall a Private Member's Motion brought by me being passed in 1989—

The Speaker: You will bring this to a question at the end please.

Mr. W McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, I did start off by saying, or intimating, that that is what I intend to do. I said I was explaining first. ...And one being moved in 1985 by myself, and one being moved in 1995 by the Third and Fourth Elected Members for West Bay. It's not who gets something done, Mr. Speaker, but to have the courtesy to the House or to Members to say this is what has happened. I thank the Minister for getting it done, but I still take a dim view and the question is, Why would you allow it to happen? Maybe I can't ask the Speaker that because the Speaker can't answer.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I am very pleased that having assumed responsibility for the vehicle licensing in this country that we are able after one year to do the many things the public wishes to have done. I undertook on many occasions when I issued a statement in this House to continually keep Members of this Honourable House up to date as to progress being made and Members will recall that on many occasions, as recently as this week, there were individual briefings on this subject.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, I would just like to draw your attention to the fact that the question was tabled on 31 August, and approved on 4 September. Thank you.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Can the Honourable Minister say on what basis the decision was taken to provide the vehicle inspection and licence services in the district of Bodden Town for the Eastern Districts rather than outside Breakers or somewhere in the Frank Sound area that would be more convenient to all three districts?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: That matter has not been finalised. We are still looking at two sites. It could be that even the two sites that we are looking at may not actually suit all the practical requirements that we need. So we haven't pinned down as yet the exact location. We basically came to the conclusion that being in Bodden Town is about halfway between George Town, North Side and East End. We looked at it from that point of view and also the fact that the fastest growing area in the island residentially is the Bodden Town/Lower Valley/Savannah area. Those are some of the things we took into our consideration. But let me reiterate that we have not finalised the location of this office as yet.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In the answer provided the Honourable Minister mentioned that vehicle inspection and licensing will be possible in West Bay. Can he confirm. . . I mean are you going to also be able to do inspection of vehicles? Exactly where would this lift be located?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: The office will be responsible for registration as well as inspection. The view of the Vehicle Licensing Department is that it is not always necessary to have a pit or a lift. There are other procedures that can be used to look underneath vehicles.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Having gotten this far with the service, is there going to be an extra charge for inspection or licensing?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: The charge in West Bay will be the same charge as we do in George Town. No different.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Can the Honourable Minister say the exact location of the two places he mentioned earlier on in the Bodden Town area that are being considered?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: As I understand it from the Licensing Unit, we are looking at the area near the Police Station and also the Bodden Town Post Office area. But there are difficulties with both locations.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: One of the recommendations put forward in the Private Member's Motion that I moved in 1995 on this subject was for Government to consider licensing garages in the districts for inspection purposes. Can the Honourable Minister say if this consideration has been undertaken, or are the police going to do the inspections and provide the facility themselves?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: The people in the district of West Bay, as well as in many other districts other than George Town are crying out for assistance in this area. We took the decision that we would carry out this inspection and registration from our own staff initially. Where we move will depend upon what the inspector finds when he is inspecting a vehicle. He may refer it to a garage which provides much more extensive inspection and maybe even repairs.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries the next question is No. 189, standing in the name of the Elected Member for North Side.

QUESTION 189

No. 189: Mrs. Edna Moyle asked the Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works to state how operators of emergency vehicles locate addresses by using the numbering system that is now in place.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Mr. Speaker, the E-911 centre has currently available the following materials to assist their vehicle operators in location of properties by address:

1. The latest update of the computerised Street Address dataset.
2. Full-colour wall maps of all Islands, showing all road names determined to date.
3. A full listing of road names determined so far.

Operators, when experienced in the pattern of property number distribution universally adopted for the Cayman Islands (with only minor variations), will be able to pre-determine, almost exactly, the position of the property which they seek in the named road, entirely from the building number. This is made possible by the Street Address Committee's decision to create a uniform pattern of property numbering throughout the entire Cayman Islands, based upon a simple but unique set of rules.

Each time emergency vehicles are dispatched they are given the new street name and house number, but reference is also made to the old street name and this will continue until Officers become more familiar with the new names.

In cases where a responder has difficulty locating the address, the 911 telecommunicator will locate the address on the up-to-date map within the 911 Centre and give directions as necessary.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: I thank the Honourable Minister for his in-depth reply, but I am more lost now than before I asked the question. Were the operators of the emergency vehicles in this country on the Committee that decided to use this unique numbering system that now exists in Grand Cayman?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: I would appreciate if the Member could repeat that question.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: My question was: Were the operators or the departments—that is the police, ambulance, and fire, particularly the ambulance—on the Committee that decided to use this unique numbering system that now exists in Grand Cayman?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: We tried our best to put as many people as possible who had a wide knowledge of the necessary things for this country that would make the 911 system operate on the Committee. I don't know if we could have done anything better than that.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Can the Honourable Minister explain what he means by "based upon a simple but unique set of rules" to the house?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: We have rules in place that we hope will be, regardless of how it is interpreted, something that persons can interpret quickly and become very professional in their jobs. The 911 system has not been something that has been implemented by the Minister or the Portfolio; it has been something that we brought in professionals for, and the recommendations of how it operates has been actually put in place by the consultants.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: I don't recall asking a supplementary on 911. I do have a question on the Business Paper for 911, but my question refers to where in his answer he said, "This is made possible by the Street Address Committee's decision to create a uniform pattern of property numbering throughout the entire Cayman Islands, based upon a simple but unique set of rules." I am asking the Minister if he can explain to me and the House what is the simple but unique set of rules. That is all I am asking.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: If there is something that the Member is asking that I don't have, I will be happy to give it to her. But thus far the most I can say to her is that we have tried our best to make it as easy as possible for communicators throughout the Cayman Islands and if it is something specific that she needs, I will definitely have it given directly by the 911 system.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Can the Honourable Minister tell me from this simple, unique set of rules—when I drive through the district of Bodden Town and I look at the building just before one gets to the old Bodden Town clinic it is number 190 with a space just big enough to hold a car if it reverses into that space and then the old clinic is 186. How was that arrived at when we have certain Planning laws in this country that we are going to put another street number between those two buildings in a space of barely six feet?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: I was in Canada not too long ago, and I recall searching for a home. And on both sides of the road we have what we have here. It is just how the numbers are laid out. Not because we have a straight road that each building is going to have the same number. I am only saying what has been passed on to me, but I have at least seen it before, not only here in Grand Cayman, but in foreign places.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Can the Honourable Minister say if a number is placed at every 5.8 feet on a road? That is what I am trying to find out when we have Development and Planning laws in this country that do not allow us to build on that amount of land.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: First of all, I would like to say that I have no jurisdiction over the Planning laws or what happens and the plans that are approved. What I would like to point out is that we have to realise that we have just implemented a 911 system which is working well regardless of who wants to knock it. And the fact remains that we have done so because already in certain areas of the country, as she mentioned, houses have been built and it is my understanding that the system being used, is best workable for those areas. I am not a professional in this and all I can say is that the consultants were brought in by Government, this is what has been recommended, and this is what is in place.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say if this numbering system is used in any other country, and if so, can he give the House a list of these countries? And also, why was it decided not to follow the universally accepted principle in other countries where odd numbers are on one side and even numbers on the other side of the road.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: I cannot answer exactly what he is asking. But what I will state is, I will reiterate what I just said. It is my understanding that the consultants after coming to the Cayman Islands—and of course someone by Government to do so—this was the recommendation that was accepted and I can say no more than that on the matter.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: I think that this is important, sir. I am trying to ascertain whether the system that we use here is unique to the Cayman Islands or if there are any other countries who use this system. The importance of this question is in the fact that we have many visitors, residents and tourists who would be familiar with the universally accepted system of odd numbers on one side, and even numbers on the other.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: I take note of what has been said by the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town. But, again I would like to say that we have to realise, especially in certain areas driving through small villages like Bodden Town and, of course, my district (and I am sure we could go on to North Side), that we have houses that I am sure were built in some cases without Planning permission. As I understand, it was impossible for us to run odd numbers along the opposite sides of the roads.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Can the Honourable Minister say if it is Government's intention to equip all emergency operators with a GPS? [i.e. Global Positioning System]

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Sorry, Mr. Speaker, that is outside the ambit. We have Fire, which is under another Minister, and we have the Ambulance under another Minister, and I have no responsibility for that.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: This is another matter of passing the buck. The Lands and Survey Department comes under this Honourable Minister, and so does street numbering and the 911. I think there was an article in the newspaper that stated it was the intent to equip (this was by the Lands and Survey) all emergency vehicles with GPS which can put them in front of a building they are called to within two or three inches. I am asking if it is the intention of the Lands and Survey Department, which comes under this Honourable Minister who handles the street numbering and who handles the 911 to equip them with a GPS.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: In case that Member does not understand how things go, the Lands and Survey Department is prepared to do whatever it has to do. The point I was making was that the emergency vehicles do not fall under my Ministry. If we are requested, and funds are provided, we will definitely do whatever is necessary.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town. This will be the last supplementary.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Can the Honourable Minister say—because I think there is obviously some concern regarding the street numbering system—forgetting about the simple but unique set of rules... Can the Honourable Minister, in fairly short order, simply explain to the House exactly how the system works— how the numbers we see on the buildings are arrived at? There must be a basic formula which can be explained and which would allow one to look at one number and quite understand why the next number is what it is. I think that is what people really need to understand and although there has been some PR about it, I think it is fair comment to say, by and large, that people of the Cayman Islands really do not understand it. I think that is one of the things we want to find out. Perhaps the Minister can explain that.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: We will continue to do PR work and it is my understanding that the island was actually split into different sections in order to apply the numbers. The street-naming and the numbers have been working hand-in-hand with each other and it is my understanding that, especially with the numbers, it was very hard, especially in the smaller districts, or I should say the more developed districts where we could not in any way make it as uniform as possible. However, it is my understanding that it has been plotted in such a way that it is actually easy to find.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, sir, I know what you just said, and I simply crave your indulgence—

The Speaker: Do you have a follow-up?

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Please, if you don't mind, sir.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you.

The question was asked why the universally accepted system was not followed, meaning each parcel of land, basically has a number. We all understand there are some parcels of land that have more than one building, or more than one residence in some areas. So I don't think that anyone queries the difficulties that may have been encountered. But, from the answer the Minister just gave, (and I want the Minister to please take it for what it is), it seems like someone wanted to make the task more difficult to get more work to do. So my question is (and I am just telling you what it seems like), can the Minister explain by comparing what most of us understand would have been the system and what the actual system is, what was the exact reasoning behind using one, as opposed to the other?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: We constantly bring in consultants. Consultants were brought in and this was the recommendation which was accepted by Government. I understand what the Member is saying, but the fact remains that this was what was accepted and this is the system we have in place.

The Speaker: Moving on to question No. 190, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION 190

No. 190: Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning if there are any specific plans and/or a timetable for Government to address the increasing need for classroom space in the public schools.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: It is obvious from the enrolment figures that additional classroom space is needed in the public schools of the Cayman Islands. Accordingly, it is proposed that two new primary schools be constructed, one in the West Bay area, so as to bring the size of the primary schools in West Bay to no more than 350 students per school. The present enrolment at John A Cumber Primary school is almost 500.

The second primary school is to be constructed on a site, as yet to be determined, between George Town and Bodden Town, in order to ease the overcrowding in that area. This school would also be constructed so as to accommodate a maximum of 350 students with the majority of those students being drawn from the George Town, Red Bay and Savannah catchment areas. Both of these schools will need to be constructed prior to the September 2000 school term. I should mention if we can speed things up here, it should be done by September 1999, would be the best target.

Enrolment at the secondary schools dictates that a new high school should be completed and ready to take students in the September term of the year 2001. I would like to bring that down to 2000, if possible.

The construction of the Lighthouse School will begin shortly in 1999 with anticipated completion early in the year 2000. This will enable the students at the present Lighthouse facility to be transferred into this new facility which will more efficiently accommodate their needs.

The construction of the Administration Block at Red Bay, which includes teaching space, will begin by October 1998 and should be completed by Easter of 1999, thereby easing some of the pressures on the existing classroom space at Red Bay Primary. The renovation of the Cayman Foods building into the School Hall for Red Bay Primary School, will also give Red Bay Primary considerably more flexibility in scheduling events such as music classes, a canteen area and open space for other activities.

The multipurpose hall for John A Cumber Primary School will begin construction in 1998 and will be finished by September 1999 thereby providing some solution to the canteen problems at John A Cumber as well as providing open space for music instructions.

Construction of a two-classroom block for East End Primary School is scheduled to begin in 1999 and that block will be ready for occupancy by September 1999.

The Administration Block extension at George Hicks High School is scheduled to begin in 1999 and that facility should be completed early in the year 2000.

The renovations on the existing structure at the old Dr Hortor Hospital site for the new Alternative Education School is scheduled to begin, subject to safety and structural inspections, early in the year 1999 with an anticipated completion date some time prior to the opening of school in September of 1999.

While the completion of the purpose-built kitchen on the George Hicks High School hall will not give additional classroom space, this will give a purpose-built canteen for George Hicks High School and that project is scheduled to be completed early in 1999.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town .

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Perhaps the supplementary will start from outward coming in rather than from inward coming out. Can the Honourable Minister state, if based on the answer given to the substantive question, any projections have been made when all of these facilities are complete as to what additional recurrent costs are going to be involved on an annual basis?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: I would have to give that in writing. It is not something that I have prepared with me at this stage.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W McKeeva Bush: Can the Honourable Minister say what would be the size of the Alternative Education School?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: That is still in the design stage. It would be one building there and it would be designed to take probably in excess of 55 children.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: As the Minister stated in his answer where the two primary schools are expected to be completed by September 2000, and he is hoping, if possible, to move that up to 1999, bearing in mind that at least one of the two schools does not have specific property identified to this point, I suspect that plans have not been drawn at this point in time either. Can the Honourable Minister say, bearing in mind his projections and so that he will understand I hope along with him—no arguments there...Can he state if there have been any projections done given the historical data available as to when these schools are completed, what length of time it will take before they too will become overcrowded.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: The projections will follow substantially the increases that we have seen and unless there is, or I should say economists say, other things being equal, we should be on-line to cope with students for some years to come. I would rather come back on something more specific with that.

But what I would just like to say, the other thing that fluctuates that has to be taken into consideration... this year there were 269 extra students in the system. Only 66 of those went to the Government schools. The private schools took in another 203. This is why it is very important, extremely important. Those 203 children (if the private schools had not taken them) would have been entitled to come into the Government system.

So what has been happening—and this trend is very good from an economic point of view, a financial point of view for Government—if we multiplied that by, say, $5,000 or $4,000 per student that would be about $1 million recurrent, for example. But it is just about the equivalent of another school that would have to be built.

When we think of it, the private school grant is less than that per annum and what they lift off of us in recurrent expenditure is about $12 million per year. So what is in Government's interest is in these projections to try to keep the trend that Government deals with whatever students it has to, but that it also assists the private schools to take in excesses that Government cannot take in. So this has helped us tremendously this year. If the private schools had not taken in the 203 and we had had to be faced with 269 instead of 66 we could not have coped. I would just like to thank the private schools and say that their being there lifts one-third of the financial burden per annum off Government.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Just to be very clear on the answer the Minister just gave, . . . By the way, Mr. Speaker, if I may I would like to propose—

The Speaker: I will entertain the motion.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 23 (7) & (8)

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I beg to move the suspension of the relevant Standing Orders to allow Question Time to continue after 11 o'clock.

The Speaker: Suspension of Standing Order 23 (7) & (8). Do we have a seconder? The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: I beg to second that.

The Speaker: The Motion has been moved and seconded. Those in favour please say aye. Those against no.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. Question Time continues.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 23 (7) & (8) SUSPENDED TO ENABLE QUESTION TIME TO CONTINUE BEYOND 11 O'CLOCK.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: As I was saying, just to make sure I understand very clearly what the Minister is saying: In the entire public school system in the Cayman Islands, there were only 66 new bodies accepted in September of this year? Perhaps he could explain clearly.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I may not have made that clear. Last year in the Government school system we had 3,831 children and 1,861 in the private school system. This year we have 3,897 students—66 more students. So there are a lot more new students, but there are 66 more in number in this academic year than last year of the total. I am sorry if I did not make that clear.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I now understand. That means that we still have on an average yearly, an increased amount of new students coming in regardless of the proportions, public and private, or whatever. I have asked the Minister about how long the new schools planned will take before they are overcrowded and he answered that he would get specifics on that.

My next question to the Minister is: Is there any sort of planning being done in conjunction with both the Department and the Ministry to the point where this programme will be ongoing so that we don't have what we are talking about now finished and then we wait a few more years and go through the same problem again? Are we looking at this on an ongoing basis, so that, first, we don't have to find $50 million in one year and, second, so that we do what is supposed to be done in order to accommodate the requirements as the years go by?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The answer is yes. There is a forecast there and these three schools will give us considerable capacity. Unless, as I mentioned earlier, things change from the normal. In other words, it is hard for us to tell. For example, if one private school closed down it would really throw a very heavy burden on us, or if we had a very large influx, if the birth rate goes up, for example, or a large influx of students from abroad. But there is forecasting in there. Forecasting was done internally and there is also an external view on that. I will get that to the Member, sir.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: The Minister will think that I am being devious, but I am not. As the Minister knows, this is near and dear to me, and I have to make my point. My question is, as the Minister has answered that forecasting is being done regarding numbers (and I am assuming that is in line with what type of accommodation will be needed over a given time period). Can the Honourable Minister say how long this has been going on? And why has it taken so long to spur the action we see planned as outlined in the substantive answer?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The forecasting started about four to five years ago and it continues. I appreciate that the figure of $50 million for schools is high. But, as I have said in the past, I think health—which is extremely important—has had its share of the capital revenue and we have, thank God, an extremely good health facility/hospital and in each district. I would now like for a priority to be put on these schools. I appreciate that everything cannot be done at one time, but for us to work progressively towards that because two new primary schools and one new high school will definitely put us in good shape for some time to come. And I ask all Members to support as much capital each year towards that plan as we can.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Perhaps we can end the exchange on a good note. Perhaps the Minister could give a firm undertaking that as long as he is responsible he will not allow the situation which now prevails to reoccur.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Naturally, I can only work, with the tools that I am given. I will undertake to continue (as I have always done since 1976) to promote education, to avoid any recurrence of problems; whether it is this type or any other that we have had in the past, and to really push to develop education to its highest standard.

I must say, however, that the Cayman Islands are very lucky. When we go to other countries, in comparison many of them are a lot poorer than we are. We have been blessed. I can say that education has always been one thing that I have given my utmost to because not only do I have two young children that I have to ensure this country and the education system continues, but I also have spent a very large part of my life after leaving school getting education. And it is very near and dear to me, both personally and in the interest of the country. I give the undertaking to the Member that I will do everything that I can to promote education and give it my best.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries we will move on to question No. 191, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for West Bay.

QUESTION 191

No. 191: Mr. W McKeeva Bush asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation if the Government is aware that there are insurance companies which are now refusing to cover certain long-term clients whom they now see as high risk. This question might have already been answered in a supplementary several days ago.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: I thank the Member for making that observation, but we did prepare a formal answer: The Government is aware of certain cases in the past where insurance companies have not offered renewal of health insurance policies. Health and other insurance policies are annual contracts and there is no obligation on either party to the contract to renew on expiry.

All insurance companies review claims' experience under their policies, not only in health insurance but in all classes of business which they write, prior to offering renewal. If recent claims have been high, the total will be compared with premiums paid over, say, a ten-year long period, or since original inception of the policy. Where the claims' experience is considered unacceptably poor, then various forms of underwriting action may be taken, including non-renewal if the future outlook does not indicate hopeful prospects for an improvement in the claims experience.

To the Government's knowledge, the incidence of insurance underwriters in the past not offering renewal of health insurance is extremely low. However, as the members of this Honourable House will be aware, the position is changed now that the 1997 Health Insurance Law came into effect. Under section 12(1) of the Law, insurance underwriters are not permitted to cancel or refuse to renew a Standard Health Insurance Contract, except where the premiums are significantly in arrears or where there has been misrepresentation or non-disclosure of a material fact by the insured person. Therefore, insurance companies are no longer permitted to refuse renewal of the Standard Health Insurance Contract on grounds of heavy claim experience alone.

The Speaker: Supplementaries? If there are no further supplementaries that concludes Question Time for this morning.

Item 4 on today's Order Paper, Statement by Honourable Members/Minister. Statement by the Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

STATEMENT BY HONOURABLE MEMBERS/MINISTERS

DEPARTMENT OF TOURISM MARKETING EFFORTS

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Over the last several years, the Ministry and Department of Tourism have been concerned over the lack of growth in visitor arrivals from the Japanese market. Consequently, the Department of Tourism was asked to carry out a review of this market with a view to determining whether we could revive the market, or whether it was no longer feasible to have a presence in Japan. The conclusion is that Japanese travellers demand specific goods and services such as those they are accustomed to in their own country and are reluctant to visit countries that do not cater specifically to their needs.

It is perhaps also fair to say that it may be considered economically imprudent for both Government and its private sector partners to invest funds for this cause as it is unlikely to result in an acceptable rate of return on investment. It is also recognised that the overall economic situation at this time in Asia and Japan is not conducive to tourism development from these countries. And we know, too, that our major competitor for the Japanese market is Hawaii.

Government, acting on a recommendation from the Ministry of Tourism, has therefore decided not to renew its contract for tourism representation in Japan when it expires at the end of this year. I wish to inform this Honourable House of a new tourism initiative.

In keeping with the policy of Government to diversify our promotional and marketing efforts, and to expand the base of our tourism market, the Cayman Islands Department of Tourism is now well-established in the United States of America, Canada, the United Kingdom and Europe. In looking at other potential markets there were basically two geographical areas that remain to be considered, that is, Asia and South America. Given the poor economic climate that now exists in Asia, it was decided not to consider that area at this time for possible targeting.

The feasibility study then focused on South America and our research pointed to three main countries: Argentina, Brazil and Chile. We did not consider it financially prudent to try to establish a meaningful presence in three countries at the same time, so after further research, we concluded that we would target Argentina. This decision was based on the overall profile of the travel habits of the people, the prevailing economic conditions in the country and access to the US gateway served by our National Flag Carrier, Cayman Airways Limited.

In August 1998, the Ministry of Tourism led a delegation to Argentina with a view to investigating the possible viability of the Argentine tourism market in respect to the Cayman Islands. The delegation, which consisted of the Minister for Tourism, the Permanent Secretary for Tourism, the Director of Tourism, the US Director of Sales and Marketing, and the Manager of Special Markets, visited Buenos Aires during the period 15-21 August, 1998. The delegation met with senior managers of airlines providing direct service to the Miami gateway and included United Airlines, American Airlines, Lan Chile Airlines, and Aerolineas Argentinas. In addition, a seminar was held with the top producing tour operators in the Argentine market.

Without exception, there was a clear indication that there is definitely a market for Cayman Islands tourism in the upper level income of the Argentine market. All indicated a desire to do business with an upscale destination that is new to Argentina.

Following the visit to Argentina, Government appointed a company to represent the Department of Tourism in Argentina and several officials of the company have visited all three Cayman Islands to obtain firsthand knowledge of our product, and to establish contacts with our private sector partners. It should be noted that there is no proposal to increase the budget of the Department of Tourism to provide for representation in Argentina, but, rather, funds which were previously utilised in Japan will be diverted to the Argentine market as a result of the decision taken earlier to cease representation in Japan.

The addition of South America to our market will enhance the international exposure of the Cayman Islands and the Ministry looks forward to the anticipated performance of the Argentine market in 1999. Thank you.

The Speaker: Maybe this would be a convenient time to take the morning break. We shall suspend for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.20 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12.03 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Item 5, Private Member's Motion No. 21/98 (sic) [23]/98. Referendum Law debate continues. The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning, continuing.

OTHER BUSINESS

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 23/98

REFERENDUM LAW

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Continuing on from yesterday. The motion we have before the House is one in which it is not possible under the Constitution for this law to be properly, or to be put through the Legislative Assembly. The section is one that to me at least is quite clear and I would like to in due course look specifically at it.

In section 29 (2) of the Cayman Islands (Constitution) Order it says, "Without prejudice to the generality of subsection (1), a law may make provision for the holding of a referendum amongst persons qualified as electors in elections to the Assembly on a question declared by resolution, adopted by a majority of the Elected Members of the Assembly, to be a matter of national importance and specified in such law."

The ingredients therefore for having a referendum... and I would like to point out very clearly, despite what was inferred yesterday, there is a very clear and possible section in this to hold a referendum; it is not as if a referendum cannot be held in this country.

First, it says that there must be a resolution that is adopted by a majority of the Elected Members. That is the first point. It is not the full Assembly, and despite the references that were made when the Third Elected Member for West Bay was referring to the question of what passes the House, when dealing with this resolution it is only the Elected Members of the Assembly that pass the resolution as to a referendum.

Secondly, and this has to be made clear, any Member of this House—Government, Backbench, Official, Elected ExCo, any single Member of this House—can move a motion in this House to bring a referendum in. So let's make that abundantly clear. There can be no doubt that the machinery for bringing a referendum is very clearly set out in the Constitution and it is very workable. This is very important.

So, Mr. Speaker, I believe there have been more resolutions (at least in my last six years in here) brought by Members of the Backbench and Members of the Opposition than in any other House. Obviously none of them (and I am just dealing with the Opposition) wanted to have a referendum on any issue: otherwise the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, or the First or Fourth Elected Members for George Town—any one of them could have moved a motion in the House which if passed by the Elected Members—and I point that out, sir... Remember on this Government Bench here there are only five Elected Members and there are ten (including yourself, sir) on the Backbench of the House.

So the remarks made in relation to the Third Elected Member for West Bay, when looked at in the light of this, shows that it is very possible that under the Constitution a referendum can be brought. So the first ingredient is that there must be a resolution adopted by a majority of the Elected Members of the Assembly and it is to be a matter of national importance. That is the second ingredient, sir.

The use of the referendum has to be on matters of national importance for the simple reason that was very clearly brought out by both the First and Third Elected Members for West Bay. A referendum is, in effect, the same machinery as you have at a general election in regard to polling—it is neither a short procedure nor an inexpensive one. So those two issues would have to be looked at and that is why it has to be a matter of national importance. And, thirdly, it will obviously cause disruption to the country as do elections.

After that resolution is passed, what then happens is that a Referendum Law incorporating the question of the matter of national importance is then passed by the Legislative Assembly and in it the machinery. . . it's a very short law, really. And in that it would apply, the sections, I would assume, of the Elections Law that relate to the polling and all of that procedure.

So, in effect, the Referendum Law, I would think, does not have to be a very long law. Secondly, I know the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town tried to say that it would take ages for it to be drafted and brought to the House, but obviously the learned Honourable Attorney General would ensure, I am sure, that this law would come to the House, the Referendum Law, within a short period of time because if there was any delay on that it could affect the issue. I think an issue of national importance needs to be dealt with within a fairly short reasonable period of time.

So there is, and there always has been since this Constitution was amended in 1993, a section in there for a referendum that can be easily brought in by this House. So I would like to put it beyond a doubt because I know the Fourth Elected Member for George Town spent a lot of time talking about the National Team and what it should have done. But, surely, that Honourable Member is smart enough—or, I would hope he is smart enough—to have read this section and understood that he could have brought a motion in this House, as could any other Member, and I stress that again—any Member of this House can bring the motion on a matter of national importance to the House and get a referendum in the Cayman Islands.

I would like to reinforce what the First Elected Member for West Bay, and I think also the Third Elected Member for West Bay mentioned—that the National Team has kept what its manifesto said. The referendum is in the Constitution and I am going on to show what is in the Constitution and what was recommended by the Members of this House at the time in the Constitutional Selection Committee and what it recommended.

So the National Team has honoured what was in its manifesto, and we will always honour what is in our manifesto. I am not saying that there will never be areas that times or things change, but in relation to this there is a very effective section in the Constitution.

If there are a lot of people who feel that a referendum needs to be triggered on a matter of public importance, then obviously they can do that petition in to any Member of the House who could take the matter up, if the Member feels that it is a matter of national importance; or any Member of this House can bring the motion for a referendum and have it.

So it is wrong to state or to imply that unless the Constitution is changed there is no way of having a referendum in the Cayman Islands. I am not saying that anybody has said that, I am just saying it would be wrong to imply or to state that the Constitution would have to be changed to bring in a different system for a referendum because there is an effective way.

If 10% or 20% of the voting public petitioned a Member, if they feel a need for that sort of thing, then, obviously, the Member would put the motion in the House. And if it is accepted by the Elected Members, and I point this out again, the Elected Members of the House, then a referendum would take place.

The second point I would like to clear up, . . . and, Mr. Speaker, I stand by what I said in 1989 and all the other things that were read. I really don't understand why on this specific issue that there has been the attack, verbal attack I would say, on me in relation to this matter because I have always believed in the referendum and I have stated that time and time again. But the implication that was given by the Fourth Elected Member for George Town was that the Government must bring this referendum every time, it seems. There is no more duty on the Government to bring a referendum than it is on every Member of the Backbench on a matter of national importance if they feel it should be brought.

The second point I would like to make is that in the report of the Select Committee of Elected Members to Review the Cayman Islands (Constitution) Order 1972, which was a 1991 Session of the Legislative Assembly did a report to this Honourable House that was the 14th meeting on Thursday 18 July, 1991. I am sorry, it arose in that meeting, the date of the report was. . . there's no date on the report. (Pause) Mr. Speaker, it was to that session. I don't see a date where this has been signed by the Members who supported the majority report. Four Members and I did a minority report. But, anyhow, this is what was recommended by a majority of Members and it is paragraph 25 on page 18 of the Report. It says, "By majority consensus it is recommended that:

1. The new Constitution make provision for holding of referenda.
2. A referendum should only be held in regard to issues of national importance.
3. The holding of referendum shall be subject to the passing of a resolution in the Legislative Assembly by majority vote of the Elected Members.
4. A referendum shall be advisory in scope only.
5. The Legislative Assembly shall in due course pass a Referendum Law."

So what is now in the Constitution clearly falls within paragraphs 1 through 4 in that the Constitution provides for a referendum, it provides in regard to issues of national importance; it must be a resolution passed by majority of the Elected Members that the referendum shall be advisory in scope only; and that the Legislative Assembly shall pass a law to deal with the referendum. So what the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town and the Fourth Elected Member for George Town read, in considerable depth, that I had said, Mr. Speaker, I stand by.

I have always believed in two things: (1) any major issue/change in the Constitution of the Cayman Islands goes to a general election which is the normal way it is done in the United Kingdom. (2) The alternative, depending upon what was decided there by the UK, can be used on any issue, whether it is Constitution, or anything else, traffic, whatever, can be by a referenda provided that it complies with this section.

So, it is clear that not only what I said, but what the Members of the Legislative Assembly at that time— I appreciate that at that time the First and Fourth Elected Members for George Town were not Members of this—I am just looking now—

[inaudible interjection]

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Right. They were not Members of this, and obviously they may not have known of this. But, obviously, somebody did a lot of good research, Mr. Speaker. I don't know if it was done by those Members or if they had someone do it, to produce the mass of what I had said. But that was all said because I believe the three Members of the Opposition that spoke on this motion were of the view that I was going to stand up here and oppose the referendum. I fully agree with the referendum. I have always propounded that. I have moved motions on it, but what I am saying is that it is clearly in the Constitution and it isn't for me alone to use it; any Member of this House can use the referendum amendment that is in the Constitution.

Now, Mr. Speaker, this session and other sessions, but especially more recently on Monday, there have been no end of attempts to discredit me. I have been ridiculed, I have been humiliated in many ways. I sat on Monday afternoon after another barrage of ridicule had been levelled at me and I thought: when I oppose a motion the Opposition comes at me saying whatever it has to say, opposing me or trying to catch me out, or whatever; when I say nothing on a motion, it is the same barrage; when the motion isn't even mine, I am still blamed for what is done; and even worse than that, when I say nothing at all, I am still blamed. When I say 'attack', I mean orally attacked on the subject. But I must say this is really a new twist— because, as I said, when I say something I am blamed, when I say nothing, I am blamed, when it is somebody else's subject, I am still blamed. But here now is a motion that the Opposition has brought where it has obviously (in my view) made a mistake under the Constitution on it, and I am blamed; it appears as well with everything else that has been going on . This is probably the last scenario in which—

[inaudible interjections]

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: As the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town says, "politics." But the public is very aware that I am stable and I am continuous, and if I have to put up with this, okay, but I must say that this one now really beats me to understand. I don't know what the mover and the seconder thought about when they were bringing this motion, but what is very clear is that either they did not understand the Constitutional section—I can't believe that that was not understood—or the motion was brought with the intention of, I guess, trapping the Government into accepting and bringing a law which could not be brought because it was ultra vires the Constitution.

In other words, it could not be brought under the Constitution. Or, they made a genuine mistake, as everyone does from time to time. I don't know which of the three it was, but really, . . . and, Mr. Speaker, in this I was quite helpful (I would say), because about three weeks back I did mention to one of the Members that, 'there is a problem on this, have a look at this section.' But to turn around and blame me after I tried to be helpful in pointing out the problem and to say that we need some other amendment to the Constitution to bring in another type of referendum or whatever, is really beyond me.

The position is clearly that a referendum is very possible under the present Constitution. I would also like to point out that it is very important in the motion that comes for a referendum, and in the law, that the question that is put in a referendum is one of the utmost clarity. In other words, the question has to be very precise in a referendum so that the answer is a precise one, if Members follow what I mean, so that the results of that. . . there can be no doubt.

The Fourth Elected Member for George Town was talking about transparency and, by the way, I looked at the transcript it was really amusing to see that after the barrage that had been fired at me about this motion—which I am totally innocent of doing, merely of pointing out the impossibility under it—that the Fourth Elected Member for George Town went on to imply that if there was a problem with this motion now, why don't we just change the Constitution and bring it in.

Mr. Speaker, that is the biggest joke I have heard in many years. It shows clearly that that Member, in fact. . . I will just deal with that Member. . .that Member obviously doesn't have the ability as was stated to sit in the Executive Council seats if there is a lack of understanding of who makes the Constitution for the country. That is a very basic error.

In fact, criticism went on about this, talking about being a tool of transparency and does the political directorate have the will to do it . . . a total misunderstanding, Mr. Speaker, of a very simple clause in the Constitution. The Cayman Islands is a complex country now, and if basic sections of the Constitution such as this are not understood by Members of the Opposition at times, then God help this country the day that it is run by persons who either do not understand or who do not really read as carefully as they should sections of the Constitution. So, a lot of what was said is really not in my view relevant, because the Constitution does provide the machinery for a referendum.

I am not certain of what the reference was to transparency or what was meant there, but what is clear is that in another area of the Constitution and the law, transparency (and I am speaking generally), is also very important. Because, while there is an accepted practice that at a time when elections are on, election expenses are contributions to that, a year or two after the election, as we know in one instance where contributions are taken up from members of the public and used and no statement is made as to where it has come from or anything else, speaking generally, that is a real lack of transparency and the Constitution does provide certain sections in that for declaration of interests and the law provides in relation to these contributions. So all I can say is that one has to be careful that when talking about transparency that it applies to everybody, not just the Constitution, not just the Government, but all Members of the House and even outside of the House.

It seems to me that the road taken on this motion is one, Mr. Speaker, that is misconceived; it is one that definitely I cannot be blamed for. In fact I have tried to help point out the problem that existed with it. It is very clear that there has been a misunderstanding of the Constitution and hopefully now that it has been made clear, that the mover in his winding up will accept ... In fact the mover actually stated this at an earlier stage. I should say, sir – that the Constitution provides a very effective means of bringing a referendum to the Cayman Islands. The procedure that is set out, was first recommended in 1991 by all Members of the House (I would think) at the time and one that is provided in the Constitution.

Also, sir, I would just like to reiterate that the National Team has abided by our Manifesto, both in 1992 and the present one. The sections that are in the Constitution are in accordance with our Manifesto and we fully support them.

And most importantly, Mr. Speaker, now that the learned Attorney General in his opening has set out the legal position very clearly—even though I would still submit on reading this section—you do not have to be a lawyer to understand a section this simple. To me it is simple and it is one that is effective for bringing in a referendum. So, Mr. Speaker, I think rather than having aspersions cast on why referenda have not been held, the right exists in every Member of this House – not just the Government. Every Member of this House has a right to move a motion. And, Mr. Speaker, as we know, this time for example, there must have been nine or ten or something motions alone—seven this time. I don't have the earlier Order Paper, but there have probably been about 20 for this whole session of this year—or this part of this year—that have been brought on it. No one in this House can blame anyone else, Mr. Speaker, for a referendum not being called on any issue.

And to the Fourth Elected Member for George Town I would say again—before he begins to attack, or discredit or attempt to embarrass, it would be better if he reads the applicable sections, does the research, and tries to find somebody ... because the public is really tired and disgusted of the constant attacks by the Opposition, only levelled at me, Mr. Speaker.

As I said earlier, when I do not speak, I get attacked; when I speak, I get attacked; when I say nothing at all, I am still attacked. And this time a mistake made (or I assume it was a mistake made) by the three Opposition Members, I am even blamed for that as well. So I would say constructively, Mr. Speaker, this country is in a good financial position. We have been lucky because the world has been suffering financially and we must keep this country on an even keel. Whenever a referenda is required then provided it is a matter of public importance, as the Constitution states, the public of this country will have the referendum that the Constitution provides for.

Mr. Speaker, out of all these motions this is really only the second one that has not been accepted by Government. But there does come a time, as in this case, where it is impossible for the law that is called for, to be made by this Honourable House under the Constitution as it stands.

I would like to reiterate again that the Constitution of this country cannot be changed by the whims and fancies of a simple motion to the House. It is a Constitution passed in the United Kingdom by the Queen in Privy Council and one that has to go through the same procedure each time—as was done the few times that amendments have been made to it before.

So, hopefully, Mr. Speaker, having set out constructively the position on this, I hope that there is no attempt whatsoever to try to say otherwise on what is in the Constitution that an effective process to have a referendum is in the Constitution. It can be brought by a motion of any Member on any side of this House at any time on a matter of public importance.

Thank you.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? (pause) Perhaps this would be a convenient time to take the luncheon break. Proceedings are suspended until 2.15 PM.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.40 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.39 PM

The Speaker: Proceedings are resumed. Please be seated. Debate continues on Private Member's Motion 23/98. Does any other Member wish to speak? The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

My comments will be brief on this Private Member's Motion 23/98. However, before commenting on the motion, I wish to express my disappointment with some of the remarks I have heard outside of this House presumably made by certain Members of this House following my debate on the Ritz-Carlton Motion. I hold my colleagues in the very highest regard and it is disappointing to me when my remarks are deliberately misconstrued for whatever reason, be they political or otherwise.

Further, I see it as a lack of respect for one's colleagues, when one is not able to exercise one's democratic rights, even if that should differ from the views of others. It reminds me of when some of these individuals say you are free to exercise those democratic rights as long as those views agree with theirs. In other words, I accept your views as long as they agree with mine.

The other point I wish to raise is that I am also disappointed in any question that is raised as to my loyalty or any question on my integrity. They are two of the things that I cherish very dearly. I must say that in the past few days I have had some serious thought and I have been very down in spirit because of these vicious and malicious rumours that are being spread, in particular as to my loyalty to any group or position.

In this Honourable House, and I am well aware of the Standing Orders regarding reviving debate—I will not do that, I am only drawing reference. I made reference to my position on the Ritz-Carlton motion that I was not, in any way, connected to it. Yet, there are people out there spreading rumours that the reason I did not support the motion was that I have a vested interest in the Ritz. May I say again that nothing—I repeat—nothing could be further from the truth. I have no interest in any spa, or anything else connected with the Ritz-Carlton. If I hear this mentioned outside of this House I will know how to deal with it, if I can prove who is saying it. I now wish to move on as I believe I have made my point regarding this particular issue.

I feel that it is not right when a person of intelligence and integrity takes a position in this House for him to be likened or connected with any political group. If I agree with something the Government Bench brings, I am accused of being a National Team supporter. If I agree with something brought by somebody else, we are accused of being their supporters. But that is such an immature and juvenile approach to politics.

During recent debates I have seen a number of people in the gallery who support Team Cayman and other groups. It would be juvenile of me and very simplistic for me to suggest that the people speaking and the people who are apparently giving support to that speaker are one and the same and that they belong to the same group. We must be more mature than that.

And this little one-upmanship that is going around—the postulating, the sort of articulating of a lot of lies around the place is not good for this country. Neither is it good for the smooth development of this Honourable House. I trust that these few words on this particular point will not be wasted in this Honourable House.

Regarding the recent motion on the Ombudsman—again it is not my intention to revive debate on that—just to say that if I had not had an appointment at 6.00 (this House went on until 7.00) I would have spoken on that motion. It was my intention to not support that motion—not for the reason given by the Government Bench, that a law needed to be put in place, but because I personally did not think, and do not think, it is necessary.

They are my views regardless of who likes it. That is my position; it has nothing to do with the Government Bench. I am sick and tired of hearing that being told to my constituents and broadcast all over the place. I want all persons within the sound of my voice to know that when anyone calls and tells them that, that they should let that person(s) know that they would like to have me present when that sort of rumour is being spread. I will know how to deal with it.

On this particular motion dealing with the Referendum Law, the honourable mover and seconder of this motion brought it with all good faith, just as they did the Ombudsman Motion. I don't think they brought it here to waste the time of this House. But the fact that anyone gets up and opposes the motion should not suggest that it is a reflection on the intelligence, or otherwise, of the people bringing the motion. It is the democratic right of any Member of this House to take whatever route they deem necessary in dealing with any particular matter, be it a motion, a bill, or otherwise, brought to this Honourable House. We must stop playing politics!

This motion for a Referendum Law reads as follows:

“WHEREAS an increasing number of matters of national importance demand widespread public participation in the decision making process;

BE IT RESOLVED THAT the Government takes immediate steps to bring to the Legislative Assembly a Referendum Law which will allow the public their democratic right to participate in this process.”

I am disappointed that some compromise on this motion could not have been found, but then I am so afraid of being accused of 'boiler-room' politics that I decided not to have anything to do with it. But I feel that the motion was well-intended and I understand exactly what the mover and seconder were trying to accomplish. Somehow, I hope that the mover will not be disappointed if this motion is lost and that he will bring another motion, or will seek to have the Constitution amended—which, it was pointed out, is not very easy. And that is for a purpose: because if that were the case, any simple majority in this House could keep changing the Constitution as they pleased. I trust that something will be arranged that will be acceptable to the Honourable House where this section—that is the section of the Constitution—will be more flexible to allow for a matter to be dealt with on a resolution in the House.

The section of the Constitution is 29(2) and it reads: “Without prejudice to the generality of subsection (1), a law may make provision for the holding of a referendum amongst persons qualified as electors in elections to the Assembly on a question declared by resolution. Adopted by a majority of the Elected Members of the Assembly to be a matter of national importance and specified in such Law.”

Where I see a problem in this, Mr. Speaker, is if there were an urgent matter tomorrow by the time we could bring that matter to the House, have a law passed, it might be a bit late. So, I would like to see this relaxed some, where perhaps it would state that provision is made within this for holding such a referendum; stating that the provision is hereby contained in the Constitution for that purpose perhaps on the adoption of such a resolution. But, there again, it would mean having to bring a resolution here and have it dealt with.

So I would like to see some form of a referendum law, perhaps, formulated for the purpose we are trying to accomplish here. I believe this is something my colleagues on both sides of the House, particularly this side, can sit down and look at and we could perhaps bring a Private Member's [motion] to the House and have this dealt with if Government is not inclined to do so. But I would hope that the Government would see that this is the most important matter that would require a type of bipartisan cooperation. The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning, the Minister answering for Government, did say that he sees the need for a referendum on certain issues and I think he might have even eluded to the type of machinery by which this could be done.

So I haven't heard any major objection to what the mover and seconder are trying to accomplish with this particular motion. I agree that the way the motion is worded (as the mover, himself, recognised and said) it is perhaps ultra vires the Constitution. But there is no question of what it is trying to accomplish. I think that was made very clear. The only reason why I am unable to support the motion is for the very reason raised by the mover himself, that it is ultra vires the Constitution. This was also supported by the Honourable Second Official Member.

So for that reason, I find myself unable to support it in its present form. But I would hope, as I said earlier, that the honourable mover and seconder will bring back whatever is necessary [in the form of a] motion to the House that will be able to deal adequately with this situation and indeed so that we may be able to have the necessary referendum law put in place.

There is no question that this is needed. I also take the point, even though it is a little opposite to my position on this. But it was raised by the Fourth Elected Member for George Town (I know he is sleeping, but when he hears his name he will open his eyes) when he mentioned that if there had been a referendum law (I think I am quoting him correctly) that we might have been able to deal differently with the Ritz-Carlton motion. I can't fault that statement. Perhaps that is correct. But I could also say that the way the Constitution is worded there is nothing that stops any Member of this House from bringing a motion for a particular law under the Constitution because the Constitution is quite clear in its reading, it says, ". . . a law may make provision for the holding of a referendum . . ."

So if there is a specific issue, be it the Ritz-Carlton, or the new Dart project, or whatever, and we are opposed to it, then the Backbench, the same as Members of the Government Bench, have the authority to enact a law that will deal with that specific issue. So it is not that this cannot be done; provision is made within the Constitution so that anybody who feels that there is a matter of national importance that needs to be dealt with, it can be dealt with under the Constitution. My point, however, is that that process would not accommodate a situation of urgency and we must be able to get around that situation somewhat so that we can accommodate those situations.

As I said, had it not been for that little quirk in the motion, and the fact that it cannot be accepted in view of the Constitutional provision, I would have no problem with it. But under the circumstances, I am unable to support the motion.

Thank you.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? If not, would the mover like to exercise his right of reply? The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you.

I am very pleased to have heard the participation of other Members in making their contributions to the motion. Unfortunately, I find myself having to address certain statements that have been made in regard to the motion simply to clarify from whence we cometh with this motion.

I will go over a few things again, but before I deal with that let me just say that the intention of this motion, in a nutshell, was to find a way to allow for a referendum in this country to be triggered by the people. As it stands now, constitutionally, this cannot happen. Regardless of how else it can be put, that is what we were seeking. I will go into that in a little more detail but first I need to address a few statements made by a few people.

The first one was a statement made by the Honourable Minister for Education, I have to quote him to address it, Mr. Speaker. This was late yesterday afternoon. This was his parting last lick yesterday. ". . . in other words, this Legislative Assembly is constituted by the Constitution, and we have to live under it and abide by it [Fine!] as law-abiding citizens in the country. Maybe it will be better if those three Opposition Members admit their mistake and try to correct it and save as much face as they can in doing so. But to push and try to justify this motion at this stage is, in my view, not justifiable under the Constitution. [Hansard 7 October, 1998]

Now, that Minister, the Leader of Government Business, the Minister for Education, stood up here today and accused people like myself of, no matter what he did, as he termed it "beating up on him." Of course, he doesn't mean that literally, but what he needs to understand is that when he gets stuck with the 'last lick syndrome' it must transcend to other people. You know what I mean by 'last lick syndrome', Mr. Speaker. We all grew up. And the Minister for Education knows that too. But if he believes that I am going to let him get the last lick when I have the opportunity, he is sadly mistaken. He will have his day again.

But going back to what I read that he said, Mr. Speaker (and I will come to the crux of the argument, but I have to address that), prior to when he said that . . . well, he said it afterwards too. He alluded to the fact that he had mentioned the problem with the motion about three weeks ago. You see, Mr. Speaker, there is a saying, and I have to speak it how it sounds to make the point, but it is not rude, sir; it goes like this: "Wha good fi eat na good fi talk." I trust the Minister for Education understands what that means.

You see, Mr. Speaker, if the truth be known, the Minister for Education did not have to tell me what was wrong with the motion because long before the Minister for Education said anything to me about it, I, the mover, and at least the Elected Member for North Side, understood what the technicality we referred to in our debate was all about. We understood that. And as big a chance as I may be taking here this afternoon, I am going to explain that because I am not afraid ever to tell the truth. But you see, the reason I have to do that is because the Minister went on, and in his own lawyerly, generally speaking way, to try to make people like me look like I do not have too much between my two ears (and I know that deep in his heart he lives knowing better)... but when he gets his time he does his own little thing. And I am going to play at his same level so everybody can relax. At a level playing field, no lower or anything like that.

Here was the hitch: Knowing that we were not lawyers, and while some may think we have access to certain things, we talked about this thing. And we also know—some of us more than others—from past experiences that when you mention the word "Constitution" as history has shown, and one could easily go to the Hansards to prove it, there have been people in this House, including the Minister for Education, who have taken positions when the word has been used to try to make it look like certain people have certain aspirations regarding the Constitution. Now, I am not getting into no nastiness with it, but that is a fact! It is a fact!

So in our quest for the people's business—because we agreed that we thought the way the country was moving at this point in time that we would like to see some mechanism in place that allowed the people to have a say in a referendum before the referendum is called... Before it is called, Mr. Speaker, because we believe... and I won't bother to go into the long explanation about what the Constitution says at present because it has been amply explained. The Minister for Education did a fantastic job explaining that and that is fine! But we understood that!

Our thoughts were that we needed to find some type of mechanism that if the populace felt strongly about an issue of national importance that they didn't have to feel that if they went to the Fourth Elected Member for George Town, for instance, because they saw him as the people's champion, that even if he brought a resolution here because the makeup of the House was such that it didn't really make sense, you could only talk about it but nothing would be done. The way the Constitution is now it is possible that a scenario like that can happen and you still don't have a referendum to really hear what the people's views are. So we are thinking: find a method by which at a certain point of concern by way of numbers of the people that they can trigger a referendum.

But as I was talking about this business about the Constitution, the risk that we employed was knowing what was going to happen with the motion. It was important to us to find out what other Members thought about it. Unfortunately, whether this is a good thing to say or not, the mood in the Legislative Assembly today is not one which I find conducive to calling everyone together and saying, 'Listen guys, we need to sit down and talk about this.' It just hasn't been working this way.

The reasoning for that I am not getting into, because I can find a reason to blame someone and that person will find a reason to blame me. That is not important right now. But that is the case. So the risk that we ran was to deal with it in the way we did. Of course, insofar as the Leader of Government Business, in his efforts to try to make us look like we don't do enough research or we don't have enough sense . . . the truth is, again, that in the resolve section we thought we could have argued the case. That is where we said, "BE IT RESOLVED that the Government takes immediate steps to bring to the Legislative Assembly a referendum law". We were thinking that we could argue that regardless of what had to be done before the Referendum Law was brought, the steps we referred to included that.

I am not saying that that is anything anybody wishes to accept, but that is what happened. That is exactly what happened. When the Minister quotes three or four different scenarios of the reasons why this thing was done the way it was done, it just goes to show that he need not waste his time trying to figure people like me out. It is better he just ask me, and I will tell him the truth.

Anyway, what we have succeeded in doing now is that it has been made very clear that there needs to be some type of what I have termed (and I continue to term it because that is what I believe it is) some type of cosmetic amendment to the Constitution if we are going to allow the voting public in this country the right to do what we are asking to happen. So we have had the Government speak on the matter and we have had others of the Backbench speak on the matter. And I am going to make it very clear once more so that the public can understand, and so that all other Members here can understand. We fully understand what the Constitution allows to happen. Contrary to what the Third Elected Member for West Bay said yesterday afternoon, what we are calling for is not allowed in the Constitution. I am taking two minutes to quote the Minister for Education again from 1989 because what he said then almost epitomises what we are trying to achieve.

When he brought his own motion in 1989, and it is just two short quotes, when introducing his motion he said, "what I see as being the major part of this type of legislation would be in a form of or if the machinery was in place and it would be set in motion separately [this is where the whole key is "separately" and he gives the two options here] by either a resolution of this House [which is what the Constitution allows for now] or by a substantial amount of persons who are on the voter's list."

You see, Mr. Speaker... and what has been explained by them is that this substantial amount of persons who are on the voter's list, they can do up a petition and get a pile of signatures but they still have to bring it to a Member of this Legislative Assembly—any Member—who may bring a resolution. And then that resolution is voted upon by all of the Elected Members of the Legislative Assembly and if the majority doesn't carry the resolution, then the matter is dead. That is the way the Constitution works now. What the Minister for Education called for in 1989 is what we are seeking to be able to do when he said "or by a substantial amount of persons who are on the voter's list." We are asking that the public that we trust, regardless of what others may say that you have a referendum any day. A law can simply outline what will allow this to take place and you can take care of that to ensure it is a matter of national importance.

What we want to be able to achieve is that having set a percentage or a number in place in a law, if there are enough people who are concerned about an issue of national importance, they can ensure that the public has a right to vote on that matter so that there is a very clear indication to their representatives how the majority of the people feel about that specific issue. That is what we are trying to achieve. Presently, the Constitution does not allow for that to happen.

Now, mention was made of the expense which may be incurred. But let me say this: While we fight this case, and while we seek this for the people, I am not suggesting that the prerequisites should not be such that it really has to be a matter of national importance. I am suggesting that it be like that. And if you check historically, once the people understand exactly what this thing is all about and the procedures they will have to go through to see that this thing takes place, they are not going to waste their time and effort over a matter that is frivolous. It might even occur that they will make a few attempts, but they will understand in short order that it doesn't work like that because they are not going to get the support of the rest of the population. We have to trust that our people still have good sense. Of course we have to trust that. So, in reality, once this were to take place I believe that it would serve in the best interest of us, of our country and our people, and our future.

We all get tempted sometimes, and it is good when one is able to weigh the situation, understand one's responsibility and resist urges sometimes. As I said before, as has been said by the seconder, and as has been intimated by the Fourth Elected Member for George Town, this motion was brought simply because we believe that the people of this country have the right to exercise their democratic right in this fashion. And we believe that the time has come for all of our sakes that we provide a mechanism by which this can happen.

So now, we wonder what was the sense in bringing the motion. And I have to say something else, Mr. Speaker. Two Members of Government replied. The first reply was from the Honourable Second Official Member explaining the technicality we had alluded to. Fine! It was good of him to do that because it is good for people to understand why you can, and can't do certain things under the circumstances. Then, the Minister for Education got up after we implored that the Government simply deal with the intent so we could understand where they were coming from. But you know Mr. Speaker, it is a scathing indictment on the Government when being pointedly asked to deal with the meat of the matter that what we hear about this motion is who beats up on whom. I don't mind that. I know how that is. That's the last 'lick' business I talked about. I can handle that. I'm growing up too. Not to worry!

But after we hear a repetition, when the Government sends out their first runner, the Honourable Second Official Member, to explain it, we hear all about it all over again. But not once did I hear any sensible argument from the Government Bench either saying that they understand the intent and agree with it, or they understand the intent and don't agree with it. And if that statement is incorrect, perhaps I too may have fallen asleep, I am certainly willing to give way right now, sir, for the Government to state its case on the matter. If the Government gives me an indication, I will give way right now. I don't have a problem with that. (pause) I don't see any indication, so I guess I will have to move on.

You see, Mr. Speaker, everybody has his view, so do I. Because some people think that other people purely play games, and it's a game of chess, it is such a pity . . . because of that, my people suffer.

This motion is very, very important. As we mentioned earlier, this is a vital part of how we perceive this country should be moving forward. I guess everybody has his or her own reasoning behind everything. Some people talk and they want get upset, but, Mr. Speaker, it is like this with this boy: I know how I got here, and there is only one person who can tell me how I am going from here and that is God. But no man or woman inside this place can tell me that. God can do it, but not one of them. So I don't have any tie-ups that hook me to anything here. I deal with life as straight as I can.

But you know, when I sit down . . . and they are going to wonder now why I defend certain situations. It is not specifically because of who it is. But when I think of something as important as this and somebody from the Government Bench stands up and spends ten or fifteen minutes supposedly dealing with the motion and talks about transparency and who has gone and collected money from people and all that kind of foolishness [Members' laughter] . . . I mean there is a time and place for everything. I am serious.

Now everybody can take their pot-shots up inside of here and all like that too. But you know what else too? In his mind the Minister will leave here today figuring that as usual somebody has tried to take advantage of him, beating up on him. Listen, listen, listen. All that Minister has to do is retrace his history in the Hansards and put one score down the middle of a piece of paper and be truthful when he reads through those Hansards and mark on the left when he did it, and mark on the right when it was done to him. And I can promise you, his left hand is going to get tired.

We are beyond that. If we want to deal . . . a little bit of that has to go on. I know how it is because he and I deal with it. But I know unwritten between us, unless the matter really gets serious and somebody steps too far, we can live with each other and we can also conduct the country's business. And the same way he feels now . . . you see, somebody has to decide to draw the line. The same way he feels that somebody has done him an injustice so he has to deal with them back, what does he expect when that person comes next time? He is going to feel that he has to put it back on him. And for that, my people suffer and have always been suffering. So, fling that away. Let's deal with what it's all about!

I am getting back to the motion now, Mr. Speaker. To try to sum up, the Government knows exactly what we are seeking to accomplish. Those who have spoken on the motion from the Backbench understand what we are trying to accomplish. I dare say that everyone in here understands what we are trying to accomplish. Because of that inner fear we had about Constitution, we decided to stick our necks out to see how life would have been. And I think we have survived that.

So now, it doesn't have to seem like it is a major, major issue to try to accomplish this situation. The Minister for Education has again explained what an amendment to the Constitution entails. We understand that. But circumstances are a lot different from when we put this motion in. So, do you know what? Those of us who felt strongly about it from the beginning, to accomplish what we wanted to accomplish, are heartened because where we are now is that we see that we can get it done right as the Third Elected Member for George Town alluded to in his contribution. But we are not going to deal with it in the way that is expected.

The Minister for Education has said that if he says nothing he gets blamed for it. But the Minister for Education knows that whenever he gets blamed for not saying nothing is because he is supposed to say something! He knows that! Then, when he says that if he says something he gets blamed, he knows it is because he said the wrong thing! He knows that! It is the same thing he would say to me!

So what we are going to do to avoid that kind of problem now about bringing an amendment and not hearing anything about it, after serious consideration about the actual result we would like, and after hearing what others have had to say, what we are going to do now, sir—and as you know I spoke to you about it, under Standing Order 24 (14). We are going to move a motion to withdraw Private Member's Motion 23/98. But also, under Standing Order 24 (5) we are going to serve notice that we will make every attempt possible to word the motion satisfactorily so that we can accomplish what we wish, and bring the motion back again for the November meeting.

WITHDRAWAL OF PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION
Standing Order 24(14)

The Speaker: Do you have a seconder to your motion?

Mr. Roy Bodden: I beg to second that motion.

The Speaker: The question is that under Standing Order 24 (5) and (14) that the motion be withdrawn. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: I think the Ayes have it. The motion is withdrawn and permission is granted for it to be brought back in November.

AGREED. PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION NO. 23/98 WITHDRAWN.

The Speaker: Moving on now to item 6 on today's Order Paper, Government Business, Government Motion No. 2/98, The Development Plan, 1997. The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

MOTIONS

GOVERNMENT MOTION NO. 2/98

THE DEVELOPMENT PLAN 1997

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I move Government Motion No. 2/98, The Development Plan 1977. This consists of several parcels of property which are being re-zoned. Some of these, maybe the best thing is if I just read the motion, or I could do that when I speak. I just move it first.

The Speaker: Government Motion No. 2/98 has been duly moved. Do you wish to speak to it?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I would just like to read it:

"1. September 1997 the Central Planning Authority received applications for re-zoning of: Registration section West Bay Beach North, Block 11D Parcel 37 from Commercial zoning to Hotel/Tourism zoning; and, Registration section Colliers, Block 73A Parcel 17 & 21 from Agricultural/Residential to Low Density Residential zoning."

"2. At meetings of the Central Planning Authority in October and November 1997 the Authority resolved to proceed with amendments to the Plan, to wit:

To change the zoning of Block 11D Parcel 37 from Commercial to Hotel/Tourism;

To change the zoning of Block 73A Parcels 17, 20, 21, 77 & 78 from Agricultural/Residential to Low Density Residential."

"3. Public Notices of the Authority's intention to amend the plan were published, in each case, in accordance with Section 8 (2) of the Development and Planning Law. With respect to the first application, Block 11D, Parcel 37, the notices were published on the 5th, 7th, 12th and 14th of November, 1997. The latter application's notices were published on 2nd, 7th, 9th, 13th January, 1998."

"4. No objections or representations were received within the statutory period of two months by the Authority in regards to the proposed amendments."

"NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED THAT in accordance with Section 7 of the Development and Planning Law (1995 Revision), the Central Planning Authority hereby submits to the Legislative Assembly these proposals for alterations in the Development Plan 1997, a summary and map for each is attached hereto and which shall thereafter be and shall come into effect seven days after the passing of this resolution."

Attached to it is the report sent to me from the Director of Planning. And there were no objections to any of these, sir.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Craving your indulgence, sir. It is around that time for the afternoon break and because of dealing with the other motion I must admit that I did not look over this one very carefully. Perhaps, if no one has anything against it we could take the suspension and get a few minutes to look over this.

The Speaker: There is no problem with that, but I would ask Members to try to come back within 15 minutes. Proceedings are suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.38 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.09 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Debate continues on Government Motion 2/98. Does the Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning have anything further to say on it? It's open for debate. The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: I think I understand clearly about the first parcel to be re-zoned which is I think 11D and a part of parcel 37 which is on the West Bay Road. But just going over to the other two maps that are attached to the Government Motion, while I have read what it says, I am really not 100% sure of all of the reasoning behind what is being done and how the parcels correlate to what the intended development is.

Perhaps when the Minister is replying he could give us a general overview as to what the situation is with these two parcels in Colliers, along with the others that are planned to be re-zoned. It is not a question of there being a problem with it, I think it is just a question where some of us would like to have a clearer understanding just to ensure—and it doesn't necessarily matter that it has to be the Minister for Education and Planning who replies. If anyone else knows anything about it, perhaps we could hear.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause) Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause) Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause)

If no other Member wishes to speak, would the mover—

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Just an observation, sir. I think we are in a small dilemma and I do believe that Members really wish to understand. And because of the nature of the parcels concerned, I think it is necessary to have a member of staff from the Department, and I think there is an attempt to get a member of staff. I am not trying to hold up the business of the House but what is going to happen with us, sir, is that if no one can speak now because of no explanation coming forward, then the mover would simply have to wind up and no one will have an opportunity to speak.

The Speaker: Then somebody should speak.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: But if they speak, they will only be asking questions without any answers, sir. That is what I am trying to say. However, as you wish.

The Speaker: We have approximately 16 minutes until the adjournment for the afternoon. So, if it is the wish of the House we can adjourn until tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock

Mr. Roy Boddén: Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Boddén Town.

Mr. Roy Boddén: I would respectfully put forward that proposition, that we adjourn until tomorrow morning at ten.

The Speaker: I will entertain a motion for the adjournment, if that is the wish of the House.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until 10.00 AM tomorrow.

The Speaker: The question is that this Honourable House do now adjourn until 10.00 AM tomorrow. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AT 4.16 PM, THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM FRIDAY, 9 OCTOBER 1998.

OFFICIAL HANSARD REPORT
9 OCTOBER 1998
10.35 AM

[Prayers read by the Elected Member for North Side]

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Item 2 on today's Order Paper: Reading by the Speaker of Messages and Announcements.

READING BY THE SPEAKER OF
MESSAGES AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: I have apologies from the Third Elected Member for George Town who is off the Island.

Item No. 3 on today's Order Paper: Presentation of Papers and Reports. The Honourable Third Official Member.

PRESENTATION OF PAPERS AND REPORTS

THE GOVERNMENT MINUTE ON THE REPORT OF
THE STANDING PUBLIC ACCOUNTS COMMITTEE ON THE AUDITOR GENERAL'S 1996 REPORT

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, I beg to lay on the Table of this Honourable House the Government Minute on the Report of the Standing Public Accounts Committee on the Auditor General's 1996 Report.

The Speaker: I would ask that you suspend Standing Orders 77(7) as this did not come within the three-month period allotted.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 77(7)

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I so move Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: Those in favour please say Aye, those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 77(7) SUSPENDED.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Presentation of Papers: Review of Present Status and Plans for Substance Abuse Treatment in the Cayman Islands—Final Report. The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

REVIEW OF PRESENT STATUS AND PLANS FOR SUBSTANCE ABUSE TREATMENT IN THE CAYMAN ISLANDS—FINAL REPORT

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you Mr. Speaker.

I request permission to lay on the Table of this honourable House a Report entitled "Review of Present Status and Plans for Substance Abuse Treatment in the Cayman Islands" and to make a statement.

The Speaker: So ordered. Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you Mr. Speaker.

Members of this honourable House are asked to note that this Report, dated 15th January, 1998, arose out of a consultancy that was conducted in October 1997 by the Addiction Research Foundation of Toronto, Canada. The Foundation (since January of this year) has been renamed the Addiction and Mental Health Services Corporation following a merger with another addiction agency, the Don Wood Institute and two mental health organisations, the Clark Institute of Psychiatry and the Queens Street Mental Health Centre.

The Report itself concerns the proposed Breakers Drug Rehabilitation Centre and other elements of a treatment and rehabilitation network for the Cayman Islands. Members of this honourable House are hereby advised that on the 10th of August 1998 the Ministry of Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation received written notification from the Director of Planning that the Central Planning Authority approved its second application for the use of Government owned property in Breakers on Block 56B Parcels 92 and 93 as a residential Drug Rehabilitation Centre for approximately 15 adult males and females over 18 years of age.

Unlike the previous application for planning approval, no objections were received by the Ministry or the Central Planning Authority. On the strength of this apparent support for the project, the Ministry is now proceeding with plans, subject to the necessary funds being approved by Finance Committee, to renovate the existing main house and to landscape the immediate surrounds. After that, the necessary furniture, fixtures, staffing and other institutional arrangements will be put in place before clients are admitted for rehab in the second half of 1999.

The Ministry has recognised the need for timely planning and management of the various aspects of the project leading to its successful implementation and on-going operations. In fact, this need was apparent to the Ministry as early as 1996 when a proposed Breakers Rehabilitation Centre Steering Committee was established by the Ministry with the approval of the Governor in Council. The Terms of Reference for the proposed Breakers Rehabilitation Steering Committee are as follows:

1. To ensure that the project is implemented in accordance with Government's established procedures;
2. To overview the project to ensure that the facilities are provided at the required standard and appropriate cost and in an appropriate time frame.
3. To ensure that Government decision making is carried in an appropriate time frame that does not adversely affect the cost or completion date of the project.
4. To ensure the necessary efforts are made in the area of public relations to encourage and enhance acceptance of the project by the general public.

The Steering Committee held its first meeting on 27th February 1996 and comprised of the following members: Ms. Andrea Bryan, JP, Permanent Secretary in the Ministry of Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation; Mr. Colin Ross, Senior Assistant Secretary in the Ministry; Miss Betty Ebanks, Assistant Secretary in the Ministry; Mrs. Joan Scott-Campbell, Information Officer, GIS; Miss Julene Banks, Crown Counsel, Legal Department; Mr. Peter Riley, Executive Architect, Public Works Department; Dr. Franklin LaHee, Consultant Psychiatrist, George Town Hospital; and at the time, Ms Shirley Marchman, Drug Rehabilitation Coordinator, Cayman Counselling Centre.

Mr. Speaker, over the course of two and one half years, the Steering Committee has met on about 15 occasions. It occupied itself with the terms of reference provided but became concerned about the medical legal aspects of the project, having consulted the Chief Medical Officer on this and other concerns with Government's relationship in future with other providers of residential drug rehabilitation in the Cayman Islands. Various members of the Steering Committee had made enquiries throughout the Caribbean region and the USA including a visit to Bermuda by the Committee's Chairman and the Crown Council in October of 1996 which yielded very little useful information on how other countries dealt with such matters.

Therefore, in August 1997 my Ministry took the decision to contact the former Addiction Research Foundation which has strong links with the United Nations International Drug Control Programme (UNDCP) through its various projects in the Caribbean region. As a result, Professor Donald Meeks, an emeritus professor in the Faculty of Social Work at the University of Toronto, and a retired senior executive with addiction research foundation, was engaged by the Ministry to "provide technical assistance to the Ministry of Health Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation in its development of the new Breakers Residential Treatment Programme and in its development of a Treatment and rehabilitation TR Network."

Dr. Meeks' final report entitled, "Review of present status and plans for substance abuse treatment in the Cayman Islands" was submitted to the Ministry on the 15th of January this year. The Terms of Reference for the Consultancy are set out on page 2 of the Report. In February 1998 the Report was presented to the proposed Breakers Rehabilitation Centre Steering Committee which I mentioned earlier in this statement and it was well received by the Committee.

The Ministry also met jointly with the Director and Deputy Director of Social Services, the Director of Health Services, and the Chairman of the National Drug Council to consider the Report and the recommendations. Once again it was well received. Dr. Meek's report contains 19 recommendations in all, and Honourable Members are asked to note recommendations 5, 6, 9 and 14 in particular, also Figure 1 on page 30, and Figure 2 on page 34. Recommendation 5 is discussed on pages 26 – 30 and recommends (on page 29) that the Ministry establish a Department of Substance Abuse Programmes headed by a Director reporting to the Permanent Secretary and that the Director shall also be manager of the Cayman Islands Substance Abuse Services.

Recommendation 6 (on page 29) is "to realise administrative efficiencies to facilitate effective planning to effectively develop treatment options and to ensure continuity of care. It is recommended that all Government operated substance abuse treatment rehabilitation services be operated as a single multi-functional facility containing at the least, assessment, out-patient treatment, residential treatment, intermediate, example Half-way House, and after care components. Under this arrangement, the present Cayman Counselling Centre will cease to exist as a programme entity and its human and physical resources will be incorporated into the new programme structure." This structure is illustrated by Figure 1 on page 30.

Recommendation 9 (on page 31) is that a physician, preferably a psychiatrist, should be appointed medical director at a level of seniority just below that of the director/manager of the Cayman Islands Substance Abuse Services. This is also illustrated by Figure 1 on page 30 of the Report.

The three recommendations which I have just mentioned all address the setting up of a new structure and improved administration of the Cayman Islands Government Treatment and Rehabilitation Programmes. This will bring the present Cayman Counselling Centre and the proposed residential drug rehabilitation centre and eventual halfway houses at Breakers under one department of Government. The present staff and facilities of Cayman Counselling Centre will become part of a new department of Government to be called the Cayman Islands Department of Substance Abuse Programmes.

The Governor in Council has accepted the recommendations and implementation has commenced. To begin with, the post of Drug Rehabilitation Coordinator at Cayman Counselling Centre has been upgraded to Head of Department level and was advertised locally by the Public Service Commission on the week beginning 5th October, and is also in the Caymanian Compass today.

Mr. Speaker, one other recommendation in Dr. Meeks' report (which is recommendation 14 on page 44) is that a continuum of care model be employed as the primary conceptual frame work for the planning implementation and operation of the Cayman Islands Substance Abuse Treatment and rehabilitation network. The network is described on page 33 – 34 of the report. With the proposed treatment and rehabilitation network, there is ample provision for government and private sector organisations to provide a range of services and treatment options to people of the Cayman Islands, from prevention on one end of the continuum, to custodial care at the other end. In between these two extremes, treatment and rehabilitation programmes, such as the Employee Assistance Programme and Canaan Land Home of Grand Cayman, will all have a vital role. The report acknowledges also the importance of the national Drug Council and its Committees in coordinating such a network. This was mentioned on page 38.

Planning for such a treatment and rehabilitation network should take into account both present realities and future possibilities. It should also take into account the need for assessment at multiple potential points of entry and the existence of various treatment options to which clients may be referred to for treatment or after care. Placing the assessed needs of the client first, referrals should flow in all directions within the system. To quote from the Report, “it will be important for all parties to think in system terms and not focus exclusively on their own programme.” The Ministry accepts recommendation 14, and through it now has a conceptual framework which confirms the basis for further discussions with respect to non-governmental organisations, present or future, that approach Government for an operational grant.

I am pleased to report that the Governor in Council has authorised my Ministry to discuss with the executive of Canaan Land Home of Grand Cayman possible parameters for a grant from Government. Once these discussions are finalised, and subject to the final approval of the Governor in Council, a request will be made to the Finance Committee of the Legislative Assembly for the approval of a grant in 1999 to Canaan Land Home of Grand Cayman. This grant is intended to assist with the cost of operations.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to say how pleased I am to have been afforded this opportunity to share with you and Members of this honourable House the report prepared by Dr. Meeks. I believe that in this way you will be better informed of Government's plan of action with respect to treatment and rehabilitation programmes and services in the Cayman Islands. As a follow-up to Dr. Meeks' previous consultancy, we have engaged his services for specific work with Cayman Counselling Centre and this process is on going. He will be returning to Grand Cayman for another week's work beginning on the 19th of October. I do hope to be able to provide further updates as we progress with the implementation of the recommendations in this report. Thank you.

The Speaker: For the information of the House, a new page 2 of the Order Paper has been circulated.

Item No. 4 on today's Order Paper, Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. Question No. 192 standing in the name of the First Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION 192

No. 192: Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Third Official Member Responsible For Finance And Economic Development to give an update on the Medium Term Financial Strategy and the Public Sector Investment Programme.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member Responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, before I respond to the Honourable Member, the Report that I tabled this morning was the Government Minute on the Accounts of Government for the year ending 31st December 1996 and not 1997.

Honourable Members are aware of the ongoing public sector fiscal reform initiative. It is expected that the Medium Term Financial Strategy and Public Sector Investment Programme will form an integral part of these reforms as it will bring a medium term dimension to our financial planning practices. Accordingly, the publication of the Medium Term Financial Strategy (MTFS) and Public Sector Investment Programme (PSIP) will be delayed and implemented along with Phase I of these initiatives which is expected to take place during mid to late 1999.

I am aware that this matter has been ongoing for quite some time. However, I humbly request the understanding of the House and wish to note the importance of implementing this document as part of an overall package of reforms in order to help ensure its usefulness and success over the longer term. The Government is fully committed to this.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you Mr. Speaker.

Can the Honourable Third Official Member say, in line with the reform initiatives, what changes will come about with the way that the MTFS and the PSIP is structured compared to how it was being worked on previously?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, the Honourable Member is aware that there is another significant dimension of the reform initiatives that will require a budget policy statement that will have to be presented to this Honourable House prior to the Budget itself. This is where the Government will outline its programme for the upcoming year. This will be tied into whatever emerges from the Public Sector Investment Programme and Medium Term Financial Strategy. All of these documents will be locked together by way of an integral part of the package of information. Obviously, if we are looking at a minimum three-year period of time (because three years is not by accident, it is the average life of let us say, a government capital project) this information will be forthcoming. Therefore, everything will be tied together.

So, the Budget although it will set out the requirements for one year it will be a part of this overall medium term document which will show different stages in terms to which the annual expenditure relate.

The Speaker The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, can the Honourable Third Official Member say if the method envisaged to prioritise the way the documents were being prepared previously will follow through in the way the documents are going to be prepared in line with these initiatives?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, it is likely that there will be variations in the preparation of the documents. For example, what should be the scope of the documentation required in order to properly set out Government's financial position or the financial position of the country over a period of time looking at the commitments into the future and taking into account current needs? All of this, Mr. Speaker, will have to be put together in a fashion where the document will have to fit the requirements as would be set out under legislation and also accompanying regulations.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: The Honourable Member stated that all Members are aware of the ongoing public sector fiscal reform initiatives. Can he say if the political directorate is doing its job to move these initiatives forward? Or is the political directorate trying to hold this process up?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, as the Honourable Member is aware, evidence abounds as to the Government's support for these initiatives. On Wednesday morning a presentation was made at the Marriott with the majority of Members of the Legislative Assembly present, and this included the Ministers of Government.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, we will move on to question No. 193 which is standing in the name of the First Elected Member for George Town.

Before we do....

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 23(7) AND (8)

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Yes, Mr. Speaker, I would like to move that we suspend the relevant Standing Order so that we can continue Question Time after 11 o'clock.

Mr. Roy Boddan: Mr. Speaker, I beg to second that sir.

The Speaker: The motion to suspend Standing Order 23(7) and (8) has been moved and seconded. Those in favour please say Aye, those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 23(7) AND (8) SUSPENDED TO ENABLE QUESTION TIME TO CONTINUE BEYOND 11 AM.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Mr. Speaker, I suspect we can call it epistle time rather than Question time.

QUESTION 193

No. 193: Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning to provide a progress report on the implementation of the 1995-99 Education Strategic Plan.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon Truman M Boddan: The progress report on the implementation of the 1995-1999 Education Strategic Plan was given at the third annual update last 15th October. That report is attached. The next annual update is scheduled for April of 1999 and the revised update document will be presented at that time.

[The Hon. Minister read the entire report See: Appendix IX]

Hon. Minister's Comments:

(Strategy IX (11)): I would like to thank all Members of the Legislative Assembly who attended the schools today for that special project that was going on.

(Strategy IX (12)): I know that the land is now being purchased which will deal with that project.

Thank you for allowing me to complete that.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Since this reply has been so long, I guess the supplementaries will be extended also. On page 6 number 5 "To reduce incidents of delinquency among the student population." It says, "Some schools have after school programmes and Summer School is now held each year at three centres." Can the Honourable Minister say if the North Side Primary School now has an after school programme? And which three centres are holding Summer School?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The answer to the first question is yes, there is an after school programme. The programmes are rotated. This year there was one in Savannah, one in George Town, and one in West Bay. But they are rotated. This year we will be adding . . . sorry, we had one at East End this past summer as well.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: [microphone not turned on]

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: That is what has been done and in East End that combined the whole of that area. North Side and East End were combined in one programme.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: On page [10], object plan 9 (Strategy VIII) "To improve second language skills among students." Can the Honourable Minister say why only three schools now have this programme, and which schools are these?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: There is one peripatetic teacher that serves all schools but she is based at the John A. Cumber School because . . . Sorry, maybe I should ask you what you are referring to.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Number 9 says, "To improve second language skills among students." And the implementation update says, "There are programmes at three schools dealing with the teaching of second languages." I wanted to know if these were primary schools, and which three schools.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: There are now two. One peripatetic teacher works with the primary schools and she is based at the John A. Cumber. The other teacher works with the high schools. Initially there was the George Town

School, the John A. Cumber School and the John Gray School.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: I yield to my colleague, the Member for North Side, who has a continuing follow up.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: I thank my colleague, the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town. I am still not getting the answer I think I should be receiving. John Gray already has Spanish being taught as a second language. Or do I not understand this correctly. I am assuming that programmes at three schools means three primary schools, to give these children a chance at a second language at an earlier age, seeing that it is the John A. Cumber the George Town primary, and now you are saying John Gray.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: This is where you have Spanish-speaking students, for example, who are weak in the second language—which is English. That is the reason it was based at the John A. Cumber School. They have to be taught English as a second language. That is the reason why in all schools, but mainly at the John A. Cumber School where most of the Cuban students are.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: I thank the Honourable Minister for explaining that because I am certain that when we are listening to the radio tonight everyone is going to assume that this second language is being taught at the primary schools, as English is the first language of the Cayman Islands. I thank him very much for explaining that.

If I may be allowed to ask one more supplementary, I will sit down and give way to my colleagues.

The Speaker: Please continue.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: On page [12], number 12 "To provide a central sports complex for Sister Islands Schools. No work has begun on this plan as yet." Can the Honourable Minister say if it is the intention to provide such a complex for the Eastern District primary schools in particular, seeing that North Side has no field to practice on for sports days. Students have to come to the Truman Bodden Complex. Can a similar facility be provided for the Eastern Districts to have the same opportunities as other schools?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I will answer this as best I can. This obviously would be handled through the Ministry of Sports, but playgrounds at the schools? By all means. As the Member knows, we have been trying for some time to get extra land at the North Side School to extend the school playground there. The question of the policy on a central sports complex for that area is something I cannot answer. I don't know.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: I understand the Honourable Minister's reply, but I was only using a sports complex as was used in number 12, which is for the Sister Islands Schools. I want to make it very clear that I do not object to this sports complex. What I am saying is that such a need for a combined facility also exists in the Districts of Bodden Town, East End and North Side, so that all of our children can be offered the same equal opportunity to excel in sports or otherwise.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The reason why a central sports complex was established for the Sister Islands is because it provides for the four schools. There are tracks, . . . and maybe I am missing something here about what the Member is trying to get from me, but in each district there is a non-school sports field. I think if the Member is saying there should really be one of those with upgraded facilities, like a track, and the other facilities to serve the three districts and therefore the three schools, or four schools, whether you add Savannah. If that is the case, I would have to ask the Minister for Sports directly. This was really done because these schools did not have good playfields. So we were looking more at the sports playfields when dealing with this.

Number 12 says, "Provide a central sports complex for the Sister Islands schools." For the schools, okay? So this was like the playfield that is at East End, North Side, Bodden Town, Savannah schools. This would have served those schools if they had none, which is a little bit different from what the Member is really asking about a central sports complex for those three districts which would be available not just to schools, but also to the community at large. I am just saying that that is under the Sports Ministry.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Can the Honourable Minister say if this particular item was in the original plan, and if so, why did it not include such a facility for the Eastern District schools also? Right now the students of the District of North Side have nowhere to run a 50-metre dash, the long jump, or the high jump. They have to travel to the Truman Bodden Complex to practice for the inter-islands sports. They have to hold the North Side District Primary School Day at the Truman Bodden Complex. That is what I am trying to find out. Why did this item not include the Eastern Districts as well as the Sister. . . Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, because we are no longer supposed to refer to them as the Sister Islands, I think. Am I correct? This is what I would like from the Minister.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I was really not a member of the Planning Team as you well know. I cannot say why. I am sure there are other plans that deal with sports for the schools. But I take the point that the Member has made. North Side does need the upgrading of the sports field whether or not there is a complex because it is inconvenient and they cannot develop to their fullest without a football size field there. I would support whatever we can do.

The Member knows we have been pushing to try to get adjoining property and I fully support that. The school has my sympathy in that area because I think that sports are extremely important to children. I will continue to try to get that. The Minister for Sports is here. I am sure that she has heard what the Member has said and will take whatever action the policy allows.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: I would like to thank the Honourable Minister for committing to provide the students of the North Side Primary School with some facility they can have easy access to. But he brought the Minister for Sports into this. The facility I am looking at is under Education. I am going to seek a commitment from the Minister for Sports for a swimming pool for the kids of the Eastern Districts. They don't even have the opportunity, particularly my district, to learn to swim.

I am asking him to take the commitment for the field for the North Side Primary School as an Education project and facility, and I am asking the Minister for Sports to deal with the other facility that is needed for a project under her Portfolio. Thank you.

The Speaker: Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: I would like to ask the Honourable Minister if implementation also means an assessment of the success of the objectives, and if it doesn't, can the Minister explain to the House what criteria are used to base the success of achieving the objectives? I have two specific incidents in mind that I would like to bring to the Minister's attention, but I would first like to hear the answer to that question.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: This is a living five year plan. Every year it is updated. But the Action Plans are also assessed. I think I am right in saying that there have been perhaps some plans that have not really worked the way they should have, and they have been altered. So the answer is yes there is a plan here—as Members can see a lot of work has not only been done by the Planning Team, but also by the Action Teams throughout this period. There is an annual update and assessment carried out by that Planning Team, which is basically the same people who produced this Strategic Plan and their duty is to assess. Because there are 105 of these some plans cannot be totally implemented, or they need to be altered. When that has to happen, then the Team recommends alteration of it.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say if objective 7 is limited to providing this knowledge, or if the objective is also to ensure that the knowledge is used in such a way as to eliminate risky behaviour which will bring the students or anyone else at risk.

And on page [12], objective 11 where the implementation says, “Students’ attendance is being monitored and children who are at risk are identified.” Can the Honourable Minister say what strategies are effected to help students who are at risk and to reduce the numbers who are at risk?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The strategy on page [5], number 7 says, “To provide students with knowledge on sexually transmitted diseases.” The update was that “representatives from the Public Health Department have been invited to discuss sexually transmitted diseases and AIDS. And this is done dependent upon the maturity of the students.” What is stated to them does deal with the question of prevention, of getting AIDS and of passing on sexually transmitted diseases.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: He has not finished his answer.

Mr. Roy Bodden: What I expected from the Minister and what I wish the Minister to inform the House of is the fact that this exercise does not just end with providing the information the Minister has said is provided. I understand that, and I think other Members also do. What I wish to find out is if the information is presented in such a way as to ensure that anyone practising risky behaviour will understand the consequences and cease, and also that those who are not practising risky behaviour will continue to practice the positive behaviours they are currently practising. To provide knowledge without showing the relationship between knowing something and then not adopting that knowledge (applied knowledge we call it) and not applying that knowledge to their behaviour are two different things in the learning field. So what I want to find out from the Minister if it is presented in that light . . .

because how it is set out here, sir, one cannot be absolutely sure.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Exactly what the Member has said: It is to avoid risky behaviour and risk to these diseases. That is the aim of it. I should say that a lot of time was spent by the Education Council on how that . . . we went through what Public Health was producing, the little brochure as well as the content to ensure that it was appropriate for the schools.

The Speaker: Before taking the next supplementary, we are long past the time we would have normally taken our morning break. Would Members agree that we continue without the morning break until 12.45?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Yes, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: Or 12.30 or something like that? We agree to go on until 12.30?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I move such a motion, sir.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: I second that.

The Speaker: The motion has been moved and seconded. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: THAT THE HOUSE CONTINUE FOR THE MORNING SITTING UNTIL 12.30 PM WITHOUT A SUSPENSION.

The Speaker: Supplementaries continuing. The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Can the Honourable Minister say if there is any material available, and if so what does this material comprise of in regard to number 14, the strategy to expose 100% of students to instruction regarding instilling a strong national identity and fostering cultural pride and appreciation of our Caymanian Heritage? Page [5].

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The Education Department has developed extensive resources in relation to matters set out in this such as a national identity, a history of the islands, and the civic side of life which is included in the curriculum.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: I was really concerned to know if there are any books. What are the titles of this literature?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: There are learning packages which have been developed for the students and these include what is necessary.

The Speaker: Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: The Minister is being very short and brief on this particular one, but it is an important aspect of the Strategic Plan. The reason I am asking is because here we have it suggested that volunteers have shared their knowledge, experience, and skills particularly in areas such as thatch and rope-making, quadrille dancing, and story telling. I would like to remind the Minister for Education that there is a little book called Time Longer Than Rope, and some stuff written by Mr. Wil Jackson and others, poems written . . . there is quite a little bundle of literature that has been accumulating in this country over the last twenty years. Maybe it is about time that the Chief Education Officer, or whoever is responsible for examining this, does so to see whether or not it could serve any kind of useful purpose in developing a pride and appreciation for our Caymanian heritage.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I understand that in developing these packages they have used local resources that are available in the form of books. The memoirs that have come from elderly people that have been given to the Memory Bank and whatever is available locally.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: First of all, the honourable Minister stated in his answer "the progress report on the implementation of the 1995-1999 Education Strategic Plan was given at the third annual update last October 15 . . ." I am assuming that is October 1997. And the report that he so eloquently read is that report of 1997. "The next annual update is scheduled for April 1999." Can the Honourable Minister say, since that seems to me to be eighteen months, how it can be called an annual update?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: That flexibility has been built into the Strategic Plan. I think what the Member should realise is that the Planning Team is made up (probably one-half) of people in the private sector.

[inaudible comment]

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Well, I am not on the Team. I mean this decision . . . I would like to make that clear, Mr. Speaker, this Strategic Plan has been produced by 353—

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Oh Jesus!

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: —members of the public. And the Team which comprises about thirty people—

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: [inaudible comment] You do what you please.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Well, sometimes Members of this House think—

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: I don't care. It's me not you, okay?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: —the Strategic Education Plan is Truman Bodden's Plan. It is not! It is put together by 353 educators and members of the public of this country. And I do everything I can to support it because it is a good plan. The fact that the team may delay a few months in dealing with the update is not in any way going to detract from it. That flexibility has been built into the plan.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Just so that the Minister will understand clearly, my job here—contrary to what he may think—is to simply ask questions about this plan to help to ensure its progression. I am not in any way trying to hinder it. So when I seem to try to put holes in it, it is not me trying to create the holes. I just want to know if they are there to make sure that someone becomes aware of it to get them plugged. Okay?

Now, I asked the question to ensure that it had that latitude. Don't call it an annual update. It is not annual at that point in time. But that is beside the point. I will move on.

Bearing in mind recent discussions regarding this plan (and there was a Private Member's Motion, and we talked about it for a while), can the Honourable Minister say (without being specific but just as he would term it, "speaking generally") how far behind the original timeline we are? That question is not asked to expose anyone. I am just trying to know where we are at and how we intend to deal with it.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: First I should mention that the October review was done in the last school year. And this is where a bit of confusion has come in. This will be done in this school year, but instead of at the beginning it will be done sort of mid-way through.

In general, we are up to date on some of these things. Some are not. I have set out in here, for example, where some of these have not yet been started. I think we are moving on within the area of about eighty of the action plans. So, yes, some are behind. Some have not been started on time. But generally the plan is fairly well on track in the vast majority of the action plans.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Miss Heather Bodden: Strategy V, “We will strengthen the relationship between parents, students and educators.” Can the Honourable Minister say if the principals and teachers are getting more cooperation from both parents in, say, the attending of PTA meetings, and helping with school activities, etc.?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: There has been and there continues to be improvement in that area. The vast majority of parents are good, they take interest in their children and they do come out. There are some, unfortunately, who don't take as much interest as they should. But the aim is to really reach those parents who need the extra support, both parents, to ensure that we reach the parents, or guardians, and get them out to Home School Association, and PTA reporting sessions. This is very important. We have to strive towards getting everyone there if we can.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: On page 1, Strategy I, plan 4, where it addresses the national curriculum. Can the Honourable Minister say . . . and let me explain here. I have read the answer. I understand what the answer is saying. But we have been talking about this curriculum for I think I can safely say many years now. I know it is an ongoing process. But what I would like to find out is if there is any light at the end of the tunnel regarding having this curriculum completed and integrated into the school system? Every time we hear of it we hear about specific areas. And I understand that. But at some point in time it has to come to where it is completed, and it has been going on now for a long time. So, can the Minister fill us in as to exactly where we are with it?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: By the end of this academic school year, we should have completed the curriculum 1 to 6 in the Primary Schools. Work is continuing, and I have been told that within two years there should be a completion on the George Hicks and the John Gray.

I would just like to explain (Members may know) that this has been a total re-writing and overhaul of the curriculum. It is a major job. Some of the fringe areas are not going to be completed within that, but the core of this is well underway. Like the Honourable Member asks, I ask about this a lot. Over the many years—I think this will give me sixteen years that Education has been in a Ministry or Portfolio of mine—it has been the one thing that I would really like to see completed and in place and tested as soon as possible.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Moving into the structure of the Department regarding the implementation of the Strategic Education Plan, can the Honourable Minister say if there has been any need to restructure the way the Education Department is set up in order to facilitate the implementation of this Plan in a better fashion? If so, can he explain what it entails and how it is being done?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: About four years back the Education Department was restructured in this area. The Chief Education Officer has kept it under review and it may well be that there may need to be further restructuring within that area. The Chief Education Officer has said to me that that is kept under review. But it seems that at least the structure from four years back has lasted a reasonable time.

This is too important for anything to get in its way and I give the undertaking that if it needs to be restructured and, naturally it has to be dealt with by the Chief Education Officer, obviously I would support that restructuring by him.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: I will ask a question by the time I finish, Mr. Speaker.

Some hold the view that some of the posts created to accommodate the implementation require special skills. For very valid reasons some of the individuals involved may not necessarily have those honed those skills required but, certainly, they are capable once the skills are provided to them to function properly. Has there been any look-see into this situation to see if any of the individuals involved may need any special type of training? Not necessarily for long periods of time, but specific types of training to be able to perform the jobs in a more efficient manner?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: We have sent staff off mainly on short-term training on several occasions. There are a few areas where we do not have the skills from within and the UNDP has let us have specialists within that area to assist. However, I think that it is very important to the ownership of that curriculum that the local staff with the skills (of which we have literally all the skills here) do take part so that when that curriculum is completed there will be a full acceptance and ownership of it.

The Speaker: First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: And just to follow up what the Minister has said, and with knowledge of the experts from UNDP who are seconded here for specific periods of time, as this process is an ongoing one can the Honourable Minister give an undertaking that when these people who have the skills leave our shores that within a reasonable timeframe other individuals who are left to deal with the same things are given the opportunity to acquire those special skills?

The Minister has said there are a few gaps. And these gaps are filled by outside help. That outside help is temporary. And I am saying for the remainder of the staff who are here all the time in order for them to fill those gaps there should be a need for specific training. I am asking for an undertaking that this will be done.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: I give that undertaking. It is being done and it will continue to be done. We must train our local staff to deal fully with this because the time will come in the not-too-distant future when some of these will have to be reviewed again. At that stage if we have the in-house expertise it will help to increase the ownership of it meaning that we would have become autonomous within that area. So I happily give that undertaking.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: On page 2, under Strategy II plan 1 where the objective is "to centralise professional services so that all children will have equal access to services provided by the multidisciplinary team." In the implementation update I see no mention of the Alternative Education Centre and I am not 100% sure whether that is included. Can the Honourable Minister enlighten us as to whether or not there is a specific programme for the Alternative Education Centre or if it is part and parcel of the centralisation of the professional services?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: While the facility is not specifically mentioned in these it is a facility that we have. It could well be that after a student was evaluated by the multidisciplinary team that he may go on to that Alternative Education Centre. It doesn't necessarily mean so. The vast majority obviously get back within the general school system. But it is definitely a part of the system and even though it may not be mentioned here, I take the point. We did mention the Lighthouse School, for example, but not that one. I can only assume that is what the team meant. They took it for granted, I guess.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: On page 3, Education Development Plan implementation report strategy 3. The strategy outlines that we will establish throughout the system individual and school accountability. Can the Honourable Minister expand on individual and school accountability? Does that transcend into the Department, or is it simply talking about the schools themselves and the staff of the schools?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: There's a little bit of confusion. Let me explain it. It is on page 3 where it has strategy III which reads: ". . .we will establish throughout the system individual and school accountability."

Mr. Speaker, sir, if I may say, it is that time when you said you would suspend and to be very truthful the answer is 14 pages long and while it may seem like we have spent a lot of time I certainly have not had an opportunity to ask supplementaries, so I would very much like to come back to complete them. That means the Minister will have time to research the one I just asked and he can answer it when we come back.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Actually, I can't find the one you referred to.

The Speaker: We shall suspend until 2.15 PM.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.30 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.43 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Question Time continues. Supplementaries. The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, I think, sir, that there is an attempt to try to complete the business of the House this evening. Since there were a few questions left, perhaps it might be in the best interest to be able to complete this evening if we move on to the other business and at the end, if time allows, we continue with questions. Failing that, we could simply get the remainder of the answers that we wish in writing, if it is the wish of the House.

The Speaker: Do you care to move that in the form of a motion?

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: I so move Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: Do you have a seconder?

Hon Truman M Boddén: I second it sir.

The Speaker: The Motion has been moved and seconded that the remaining questions be answered in writing and we will proceed on to the next item. Those in favour please say Aye, those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: THAT THE HOUSE MOVE ON TO GOVERNMENT BUSINESS; AT THE END THEREOF, IF TIME ALLOWS, CONTINUING WITH QUESTIONS; AND, FAILING THAT, THE REMAINING QUESTIONS BE ANSWERED IN WRITING.

The Speaker: Moving on the next item on today's Order Paper: Motions. Government Motion No. 2/98, The Development Plan of 1997. Debate continuing.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

MOTIONS

GOVERNMENT MOTION NO. 2/98

THE DEVELOPMENT PLAN 1977

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Hon. Truman M. Boddien: Mr. Speaker, just to thank Honourable Members for supporting the motion.

The Speaker: I shall put the question on Government Motion No. 2/98. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: GOVERNMENT MOTION NO. 2/98 PASSED.

The Speaker: Bills, First Reading.

BILLS

FIRST READINGS

THE PENAL CODE (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1998

The Deputy Clerk: The Penal Code (Amendment) Bill, 1998.

The Speaker: The Bill is deemed to have been read a first time and is set down for Second Reading.

THE CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1998

The Deputy Clerk: The Criminal Procedure Code (Amendment) Bill, 1998

The Speaker: The Bill is deemed to have been read a first time and is set down for Second Reading.

The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 46(1)

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The next Bill, The Proceeds of Criminal Conduct (Amendment) (Foreign Offences) Bill, 1998, has not run the full 21 days. It has only, in fact, been published for 14 days. So I would ask that Standing Order 46(1) be suspended to allow the Bill to be read a first time. And I would further ask, notwithstanding the way it has been set down on the Order Paper for today, that the Bill be read for a first time and be set down for second reading at the next meeting of the Legislative Assembly in November.

The Speaker: I shall put the question on the motion just moved. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 46(1) SUSPENDED TO ENABLE THE PROCEEDS OF CRIMINAL CONDUCT (AMENDMENT) (FOREIGN OFFENCES) BILL, 1998, TO BE READ A FIRST TIME AND SET DOWN FOR SECOND READING AT THE NEXT MEETING OF THE LEGISLATURE.

The Speaker: Bills, First Reading.

THE PROCEEDS OF CRIMINAL CONDUCT (AMENDMENT) (FOREIGN OFFENCES) BILL, 1998

The Deputy Clerk: The Proceeds of Criminal Conduct (Amendment) (Foreign Offences) Bill, 1998.

The Speaker: The Bill is deemed to have been read a first time, is set down for Second Reading and suspended until the next Meeting.

The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 46(1) AND (2)

Hon. Truman M. Boddien: I move the first reading of a Bill entitled The Community College (Amendment) Bill, 1998. I'm sorry. I am not certain if the Attorney General suspended for all Bills? No? Well, I move the suspension of Standing Order 46 (1) & (2) to allow The Community College (Amendment) Bill, 1998 to be given a first reading.

The Speaker: I shall put the question, as this one has not been gazetted. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED. STANDING ORDER 46(1) AND (2) SUSPENDED TO ENABLE THE COMMUNITY COLLEGE (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1998, TO BE TAKEN.

THE COMMUNITY COLLEGE (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1998

The Speaker: The Bill is deemed to have been read a first time and is set down for Second Reading.

Second Readings.

SECOND READINGS

THE LIQUOR LICENSING (AMENDMENT) (PROTECTION OF MINORS AND NEED FOR LICENSED PREMISES) BILL, 1998

The Deputy Clerk: The Liquor Licensing (Amendment) (Protection of Minors and Need for Licensed Premises) Bill, 1998.

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: In presenting this Bill, Mr. Speaker, I would draw to Members' attention the proposed committee stage amendments, which have been circulated. I would humbly beg your indulgence to comment on those proposed amendments because I think that is the most effective and expeditious way to deal with this matter.

In an attempt not to overtax Members at this late stage in the meeting I have also provided them with an amalgamation of the existing Bill and the proposed committee stage amendments. I would suggest, with your permission, that it would be more convenient to follow the net proposals against that document. I am confident that Members will find the net effect of these amendments more acceptable than the original Bill, and I would like to offer some explanation as to why we find ourselves in the situation of proposing such substantial amendments to a Bill that is itself of such recent vintage.

The situation has been largely influenced by Private Member's Motion No. 18/98 which the House considered earlier in this meeting. The debate on that motion and its subsequent acceptance by the Government provided both a stimulus and an opportunity to revisit this Bill and apply a little bit of reinvention to it. In fact, this amended Bill will actually give effect to the first Resolve section of that motion, and I trust that the House and the mover will appreciate this responsiveness.

It is also true that in revisiting the Bill a number of revisions were identified which could further enhance the objects of the Bill which is what we now also propose to attend to through the committee stage amendments which I mentioned earlier.

Turning now to the actual proposals. The first amendment relates to the short title which had been The Liquor Licensing (Amendment) (Protection of Minors and Need for Licensed Premises) Law, 1998. It is proposed to amend that title by deleting "Need for Licensed Premises" for reasons that I will come to shortly.

Clause 2 of the Bill provides for the insertion of three new definitions. But as will be seen from the amalgamated version those have now fallen away as they would have been made redundant by the proposed committee stage amendment which expands the geographical restriction of the original Bill to a total restriction throughout the Islands.

The original Bill and the amalgamated version propose an amendment to section 4 of the Law, which deals with licensing districts and licensing boards. The Law currently provides for separate Liquor Licensing Boards for Grand Cayman and for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman and each board is comprised of a chairman, a deputy chairman and three other members. Section 4 (5) of the Law prescribes the quorum of the boards to be three members including the chairman. But it should be noted from this prescription that even if the deputy chairman and three members are present a quorum is not realised. Obviously this nullifies the primary benefit of having a deputy chairman and it seems obvious that this was an oversight in introducing the position of deputy chairman and that the prescription of a quorum was not simultaneously amended to recognise this.

The proposed amendment to section 4(5) of the Bill (inserting "deputy chairman" after "chairman") will contribute greatly to the ability of the Liquor Licensing Boards to schedule their meetings in a timely matter and to honour those schedules in that they won't have to be totally dependent on the availability of the chairman.

The next amendment relates to section 7 of the principal Law where it is proposed to insert a new section 5 to enhance the current provisions in respect of defining bar areas. Specifically, this provision seeks to eradicate over the next 12 months and prevent a recurrence of the situation where premises holding both a restaurant and a retail licence require persons to transit through a bar area for access or egress, or of access to shared amenities, such as restrooms. The view is that restaurants and retailer bar areas can exist on the same premises but that patrons of restaurants should not have to transit retail areas or bar areas as part of a dining experience if they do not wish to. There are many good examples of layouts that already comply with this concept but, regrettably, there are also too many premises that do not. So the amendment seeks to provide a year within which those premises could correct those situations.

The next section of the Law which the Bill seeks to address is section 9, which deals with the requirements for licensed premises. As noted earlier, the insertion of a section to deal with whether the public was adequately served was proposed, hence the reference to that in the short title. It is now proposed to not include that provision so it does not show up under clause 4 of the amalgamated Bill and amendments. Additionally, it had been suggested to include certain restrictions on granting licences in certain geographical areas. These recommendations emanated from a motion which Government accepted some two years ago and would have required restrictions on the granting of licences in residential areas and within proximity of certain types of buildings.

Having also accepted the motion to expand that in one particular electoral district, Government is now recommending as an amendment total prohibition on the grant of new licences in any part of the Islands from the date of commencement of this Law until a date to be de-terminated by the Governor. Having said that, it is recognised that this prohibition will need to be supplemented in the near future with some provisions which relate to how, and under what circumstances and in what form it should be eased.

Certainly, it represents a definitive position in respect of the overall propagation in licences or licensed premises, but it also creates the opportunity for various other concepts and strategies to be pursued. It is a fact that the existing suite of licensed premises contribute about $200,000 per year to the revenue of these Islands. Certainly, the fact that retail facilities pay about $500 per year, or $1.50 per day, would suggest that those fees are currently not a serious factor in the expansion of the facilities or the sector. With this prohibition the stage is set where the Government would be able to give serious consideration to a system of perhaps introducing a quota of licences which could become available at certain points, and in turn that quota could be auctioned on an annual fee basis to get an indication from the market as to what it is prepared to pay for such licences. Certainly governments are never very good at deciphering these things—not just ours. In turn, what the market is willing to pay will obviously give us some worthwhile information as to how we should be increasing the fees overall.

The restriction, if supported in due course by other administrative and legislative provisions could create an environment and an opportunity for certain establishments, which may be marginal operators in terms of profitability, to realise some windfall and move out altogether. My recollection is that that is what happened many years ago when we had a quota for a period of time. So there are various possibilities that instituting this restriction creates and Government, having accepted [Private Member's] Motion No. 18/98 will, if this Bill is successful, obviously have to move ahead (I would suggest in the next six months or so) and carry out the full review of the legislation as it gave a commitment to do and provide the framework for some of these potential benefits to be realised. I don't think the Islands will suffer for six months if no new licences are granted.

But I should perhaps clarify that there are some limited exceptions to this prohibition. Those include the occasional licence, or what is commonly known as the temporary licence that is given for a specific function; and also exempt would be applications for a licence made prior to the commencement of this Law, or transfers of licences already in existence.

The next set of amendments relate to section 10 which describes the categories of licences and is simply proposed to introduce the occasional licence as had been previously more described in section 19 but not in fact included in section 10 as a category of licence. Moving on, section 19 would be amended by repealing authorisation (the Law now refers to occasional authorisation) and in turn replace that with occasional licence.

The final part of the amendments relate to section 21, and are all intended to better regulate in particular the access of persons under 18 to licensed premises. The Government is extremely concerned in regard to some of the situations that have arisen either at premises or, certainly, at events, which have obtained an occasional licence. What the amendment seeks to do is to substantially increase certain penalties in the hope of providing a serious deterrent to any activities which it is suggested persons under this age should not engage in, or should not be aided in engaging in.

It may be, as we move through the committee stage, that we may hear of the need to make a few other minor changes. But we think that the existing proposals certainly will go a long way to a better prescribing and effecting of what young people should be allowed to engage in.

In particular, there is a definite prohibition expressed that young people should not be in bars. And with the provisions which are being proposed in the earlier sections of the Law, section 4, and the opportunities being afforded for premises over the next year to better delineate their restaurant and bar areas then we see no reason why these proposals should not become fully workable within the next year. At least in that category of licence.

I appreciate that Members have not had a lot of time to consider these amendments in particular, but I trust that they will find them as enhancements to what was previously put forward in the Bill and that they will hold us to account to get on with dealing with the broader review of the legislation. Against that background I would hope that Members would find it possible to give the Bill with the declared amendments their support. Thank you.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled, The Liquor Licensing (Amendment) (Protection of Minors and Need for Licensed Premises) Bill, 1998 be given a second reading. It is now open for debate. Does any Member wish to speak? (pause) If not, would the mover like to exercise his right to reply?

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: I think you lost your time for that. The Honourable Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Mr. W McKeever Bush: You can always give way, you know.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: I want to compliment you.

Mr. W McKeever Bush: It might be a compliment.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: I don't have a problem with giving way, sir.

The Speaker: He had an opportunity. I called twice. Please.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: I would simply like to thank Members for their implicit support and look forward to hearing any other suggestions they may have for any further fine tuning when we move to the committee stage.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled The Liquor Licensing (Amendment) (Protection of Minors and Need for Licensed Premises) Bill, 1998 be given a second reading. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: THE LIQUOR LICENSING (AMENDMENT) (PROTECTION OF MINORS AND NEED FOR LICENSED PREMISES) BILL, 1998, GIVEN A SECOND READING.

The Speaker: Bills, second reading.

THE PENAL CODE (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1998

The Deputy Clerk: The Penal Code (Amendment) Bill, 1998.

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Thank you.

This Bill for a Law to Amend the Penal Code arises out of the recommendations from the Select Committee of the whole House, which reviewed the Penal Code over a period of time culminating in the final report being given to the House I believe in 1996. I want to say at the outset that whilst the majority of the provisions in this amending Bill arise from that report and the recommendations, and I will draw attention to those that fall outside that particular ambit, this Bill certainly does not encompass all the recommendations of that Select Committee.

The work involved in dealing with a comprehensive review of the Penal Code has been considerable, not least because of the amount of other legislation from other countries that is being compared with it and researched in order to come up with a comprehensive review. That particular exercise is still ongoing. It might assist the House if I say that legislative counsel has already prepared a first working draft. But that ran to some 350 clauses and 150 pages. My concern was that we were able to bring before this House today, in this meeting, the amendments that are so urgently required to the Penal Code. But that does not mean that we have dealt with everything that's in that Select Committee—there will be more to come.

[Inaudible interjection]

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Well, I can't say when it will be coming. It will be coming when it is ready, Mr. Speaker. So, I just wanted to make that clear right at the start.

I am going to go through the provisions because I think it is important that I move through them, and I will do so as quickly as I can.

Clauses 2 and 4 abolish the concept of common law offences in the Islands. We do not, in fact, charge common law offences in Cayman because all of our criminal offences are embodied in statute law, most of them of course in the Penal Code.

Clause 3 amends section 3 of the principal Law to provide a definition of "attendance order." An attendance order is an order made in respect of a young person under section 24 of the Youth Justice Law, 1995, to attend at a particular place for a stated number of hours.

The Committee recommended (that is, the Select Committee) that a person should be criminally liable for offences from the age of ten and not eight as in the principal Law. This recommendation has been included in clause 5. It was further recommended that a person under the age of 14 years should not be criminally responsible for an act or omission unless it is proved that at the time of committing the act or making the omission he had capacity to know that he ought not to commit the act or make the omission. In other words, he has to appreciate what he is doing and the fact that it is wrong. The age under the principal Law is 12.

Clause 6 amends section 16 of the principal Law (compulsion by husband) pursuant to the recommendation of the Committee that the section should apply to both genders. This is the compulsion to give evidence.

Clause 7 amends section 21 of the principal Law to include compulsory attendance orders as a form of punishment.

Clause 8 inserts a new section, section 23A, which provides, pursuant to the recommendation of the Committee, that where a person is found guilty by a court of committing an indictable offence for the second time, the court may sentence that person to imprisonment for life for the second offence. When determining whether it would be appropriate not to impose a life sentence in such circumstances the court shall have regard to the circumstances relating either to the offence or to the offender.

In accordance with the recommendation of the Committee, clause 9 amends section 38 of the principal Law to provide that when in the principal Law or any other law no punishment is specifically provided for an offence it shall be punishable with imprisonment for a term not exceeding four years. It further provides that where a person 18 years of age or older is convicted of an offence under this Law or any other law, and a person under the age of 18 is the accomplice or an accessory after the fact of that person in the commission of that offence, the court may in its discretion impose a penalty which is twice the maximum prescribed for that offence, except where the penalty is life imprisonment or death. This gives effect to, in short, a situation where an adult involves a juvenile in the commission of an offence. Then the penalty that that adult faces is double what the permissible penalty would otherwise be under the Law.

And, Mr. Speaker, we intend to also bring a similar amendment for the sake of clarity in the Misuse of Drugs Law which I hope I shall be able to bring at the next meeting of the House.

Clause 10 amends section 39 by removing the reference to corporal punishment, which is no longer a judicial punishment in the Islands.

Clause 11 amends section 64 of the principal Law and increases, upon the recommendation of the Committee, the maximum penalty from one year and a fine of $250 to five years and a fine of $5,000. That relates to the publication of false news that is likely to cause fear or alarm to the public.

The Committee noted that the United Kingdom has no legislation to protect its national flag from vandalism. In fact, Mr. Speaker, the United Kingdom does not have a national flag. The Union Jack is not a national flag. But it recommended that such protection be included in the principal Law. Clause 12 provides a new section 76A, which provides that a person who unlawfully destroys or damages the flag of the Islands commits an offence.

The Committee recommended that the penalty for offences relating to offensive weapons be brought in line with comparable offences. The maximum penalty in section 78 of the principal Law (restriction on the importation etc. of prohibited weapons) has been increased by clause 13 to a term of imprisonment not exceeding ten years and to a fine not exceeding $10,000.

Under clause 14 the maximum penalty under section 79 of the principal Law (restriction on carrying offensive weapons) is increased to a term of imprisonment for two years and a fine not exceeding $2,000.

Clause 15 amends section 80 of the principal Law by increasing the maximum penalty to $100 for refusing to accompany a constable to the nearest police station.

Clauses 16 and 17 increase the maximum penalties under sections 88 and 89 respectively for official corruption and extortion to imprisonment for five years and to a fine not exceeding $5,000.

Clause 18 amends section 90 of the principal Law to provide that where a public officer receives property to show favour he is liable to a penalty of one year's imprisonment.

Clause 19 amends section 91 of the principal Law by increasing the maximum penalty for corrupt public administration to two years' imprisonment.

Clause 20 amends section 93 of the principal Law by increasing the maximum penalty for abuse of office to three years' imprisonment, and to four years' imprisonment where personal gain is involved.

Clause 21 amends section 95 by increasing the maximum penalty for unauthorised administration of oaths to two years' imprisonment.

Clause 22 amends section 96 by making a false assumption of the office of notary public a criminal offence.

Clause 23 increases the maximum penalty for personating a public officer under section 97 to four years' imprisonment.

Clause 24 repeals section 105 of the principal Law and reforms the law relating to the offence of perverting or conspiring to pervert the course of justice.

Clause 25 amends section 109 by increasing the maximum penalty for a number of offences relating to judicial proceedings to four years' imprisonment.

Clause 26 amends section 121 of the principal Law which deals with the offence of disturbing religious assemblies to provide that the disturbance must be unlawful.

Clause 27 repeals section 125 of the principal Law. It reforms the law relating to the offence of rape and provides that a man may be the victim of rape.

Clause 28 reforms the law relating to the offence of indecent assault on a female by repealing section 130 and substituting new provisions. Under the new section 130 the maximum penalty for the offence is ten years' imprisonment.

Clause 29 increases the maximum penalty for insulting the modesty of a woman to three years' imprisonment.

Clause 30 amends the offence of administering drugs with intent to have unlawful sexual intercourse to cover offences committed against both sexes.

Clause 31 increases the maximum penalty forbugery or bestiality under section 142 to ten years' imprisonment.

Clause 32 repeals section 143 of the principal Law. It provides that it is an offence to make an indecent assault on a man. A woman may be prosecuted under this section. Further, the clause provides that a boy under the age of 16 cannot in law give any consent that would prevent an act from being an assault for the purpose of this section.

Clause 33 amends section 168 by re-defining the offence of promoting the superstition of Obeah.

Clause 34 amends section 190 of the principal Law to extend the duty of the head of a family to a child up to 17 years of age. It was previously extended only to a child of 14 years or less.

Clauses 35, 36 and 37 combine the offences of wounding and causing grievous bodily harm. Clause 35 provides that a person who unlawfully and maliciously by any means whatsoever, wounds or causes any grievous bodily harm to any person with intent so to do or with intent to resist or prevent the lawful apprehension or detainer of any person commits an offence and is liable on conviction to imprisonment for life.

Clause 36 provides that a person who unlawfully and maliciously wounds or inflicts any grievous bodily harm upon any person, either with or without any weapon or instrument commits an offence and is liable on conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding seven years.

Clause 37 repeals the offence of wounding.

Under Clause 38 the penalty for other negligent acts or omissions causing harm has been increased to two years and a fine of $2,000 is provided.

Clause 39 provides a penalty of two years' imprisonment and a fine not exceeding $2,000 for the offence of dealing with poisonous substances in a negligent manner.

Clause 40 deals with the offence of dishonestly using electricity without due authority or dishonestly wasting or diverting electricity. In accordance with the recommendation of the Committee the penalty has been decreased.

The Committee was of the opinion that the punishment for this offence was excessive. The clause therefore provides that the maximum penalty is a term of imprisonment of two years or a fine not exceeding $2,000 or both.

The Bill also contains new offences relating to property. This is one of the clauses. In fact, there are more than one but this is the start of the clauses that do not emanate from the recommendations of the Select Committee but are new offences or new definitions of offences that I and the Government deemed desirable to put in the Penal Code and I will explain why.

Clause 41 sets out the offences of evading liability by deception, obtaining services by deception, obtaining a money transfer by deception and dishonestly retaining a wrongful credit. There are some further offences that I will go through in just a moment which also relate to obtaining property by deception. These new offences have been included as a result of a House of the Lords' decision in the case commonly called the case of "Preddy" which was decided by the House of Lords in London in 1996, and interpreted the law at that time (which law of the United Kingdom is mirrored by the criminal law in Cayman, the Penal Code) which in essence said that where someone was defrauded and money stolen by means of an electronic transfer from one bank account to another, this could not fall within the definition of "property" and therefore did not fall within the definition of a criminal offence. So in that particular case the prosecution failed.

Within a matter of literally a week or maybe two weeks of that House of Lords' decision the House of Parliament in London had passed an amending piece of legislation to ensure that that loophole in the criminal law was plugged. And this particular clause that I am dealing with now and the ensuring clauses which I will explain in a minute do exactly that same thing. Fortunately we have not had that problem in Cayman. But that is to make sure that we do no have it in the future as well.

The Committee had recommended that the penalty for false accounting be brought into line with comparable offences. However in researching this offence in other jurisdictions such as the United Kingdom and the Virgin Islands, which has recently enacted a new Criminal Code, it was noted that there was a similar penalty of seven years' imprisonment, so the law was not amended.

Clause 42 re-defines the offence of making off without payment.

Clause 43 deals with destroying or damaging property. The Committee had noted that the penalty for arson is imprisonment for life, while attempted rape, robbery and burglary carry lesser penalties. However it was noted again that under the Virgin Islands Criminal Code and the United Kingdom Criminal Damage Act 1971 the penalty for arson is in fact life imprisonment.

Clause 44 amends the principal Law by inserting a new section 250A to provide for the offences of threats to destroy or damage property or possessing anything with intent to destroy or damage property.

Clause 45 makes repeals consequent upon clauses 43 and 44.

Clause 46 amends section 261 by increasing the maximum penalty for criminal trespass to a fine of $1,000 or one year's imprisonment, or both. Clause 46 also provides that a person who is convicted of the offence of criminal damage to trees and plants is liable to a fine of $2,000 or two years' imprisonment, or both, or if the offence is committed in a public park or a private garden to a $3,000 fine and three years' imprisonment, or both.

Clause 47, upon the recommendation of the Legal Department, amends section 262 by increasing the penalty for aggravated trespass to four years' imprisonment.

Under clause 48 the penalty for doing damage to or on unenclosed land has been increased from six months to two years.

Clauses 49 to 55 deal with the offence of forgery and counterfeiting. Some penalties have been decreased and others have been increased upon the recommendation of the Committee.

Clause 56 deals with attempts to commit offences. The Committee recommended that the punishment for an attempt to commit an offence be a set percentage of that which would be imposed for the offence itself. It was felt, however, upon an examination of precedents that the Criminal Law Act, 1977 UK provides appropriate penalties. Clause 56 amends section 303 of the principal Law to provide that a person who attempts to commit an offence, commits an offence and is, unless any other punishment is provided in the principal Law or any other law -

(a) Liable on conviction on indictment, if the offence attempted is murder or any other offence the sentence for which is fixed by law, to imprisonment for life;

(b) Liable on conviction on indictment, if the offence attempted is indictable but does not fall within paragraph (a), to any penalty to which he would have been liable on conviction on indictment of that offence; and

(c) Liable on summary conviction, if the offence attempted is triable either way, to any penalty to which he would have been liable on summary conviction of that offence.

A person charged with an attempt to commit an offence shall be charged under the section, whether of the principal Law or any other law, creating the offence under which he would be charged if the charge was of the complete offence.

A provision in any law, including the principal Law, as to the consequences which may or shall follow conviction for any offence, or as to the procedure or any other matter applicable where a person is convicted of an offence, is to apply equally where a person is charged or convicted of an attempt to commit the offence.

Clause 57 increases the maximum penalty for conspiracy to commit an offence to ten years' imprisonment.

Clause 58 amends the definition of "accessory after the fact" to provide that the spousal exemption applies to both men and women.

Clause 59 of the bill amends section 308 of the principal Law to provide that a person who is convicted of being an accessory after the fact is liable to imprisonment-

- (a) If the offence is one for which the sentence is fixed by law, for a term not exceeding ten years;
- (b) If the offence is one for which a person (not previously convicted) may be sentenced to imprisonment for 14 years or more, for a term not exceeding seven years;
- (c) If the offence is not included in paragraph (a) or (b) but is one for which a person (not previously convicted) may be sentenced to imprisonment for ten years, for a term not exceeding five years; and
- (d) In any other case, for a term not exceeding three years.

I have now been through all of the clauses in the amending Bill. As I said, the only one that falls outside of the recommendation . . . well, there was one recommendation by the Legal Department, otherwise the only clause that fell outside of the recommendations of the Select Committee was the one I talked about on the issue of obtaining property by deception, and clause 41 sets out a number of new offences that relate to that. We have also re-instituted the offence of obtaining services by deception as well and there is no indication or no intent to pay for them.

I don't think I have any more to say at the moment, but if any Members have any queries, obviously I will try to deal with those when I wind up. Thank you.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled A Bill for a Law to Amend the Penal Code be given a second reading. It is now open for debate. The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: My contribution will be very short as the mover of this Bill has explained in his initial delivery that only some of the amendments proposed by the committee are included in this Bill. My only question at this point in time, and while I respect that he cannot give me a definite answer, I think the Members of the House would like to know what follows from here on in with those other proposed amendments? Perhaps we can get some type of indication as to how they are proposed to be dealt with.

I understand that there were some other important amendments which is why the partial amendments are being brought now, but I think it is important because it has been quite some time, understanding all of the circumstances surrounding it. But I believe we should be able to get some type of finite answer as regards exactly what is going to happen with the rest of those amendments that were proposed by the Select Committee. Thank you.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause) Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause) If not, does the mover wish to reply?

The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Thank you.

I would like to thank Members for their support, tacit or otherwise. As to the comment made by the First Elected Member for George Town, I can certainly assure him that the research and some of the drafting of the other recommendations not dealt with in this Bill is underway. It is not in a finished state yet which is why it has not come to the House. I can say that there is no reason why those recommendations should not be dealt with in a further amendment during the course of next year. I will certainly be commending to my successor that he bring this forward next year.

As I said originally, in view of the number of clauses and the number of pages that were contained in the first draft, a decision will have to be taken whether it is brought in the form of an amending Bill, or whether it might be better to consider a complete new Penal Code and a repeal of the old one. I don't know. That probably will be a decision for my successor to make. But I see no reason at all from the point of view of time why those recommendations should not be addressed in amending legislation brought during 1999.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled A Bill for a Law to Amend the Penal Code be given a second reading. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

THE CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1998

The Deputy Clerk: The Criminal Procedure Code (Amendment) Bill, 1998.

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Thank you.

I think I can deal with this Bill very quickly. The amendments in this particular Bill, The Criminal Procedure Code (Amendment) Bill, 1998, are all consequential to the amendments to the Penal Code just passed for second reading. They are necessary in order to deal with that.

There is one recommendation of the Select Committee that was in fact not appropriate for the Penal Code but is incorporated in this amendment. So I will read this out. “This Bill amends the Criminal Procedure Code to bring it in line with the Penal Code as amended. The Select Committee of the Legislative Assembly to review the Penal Code noted that difficulties are caused by the number of cases which are required to go to the Grand Court in light of the limited jurisdiction of the Summary Court. Clause 3 therefore amends section 6 of the Criminal Procedure Code to provide that the Summary Court may pass sentences of imprisonment of 4 years and impose fines up to $2,000.”

In fact, Mr. Speaker, that is doubling the sentencing powers as they are at the moment.

“The First Schedule of the Code, which provides for the mode of trial for offences, and indicates whether offences are arrestable without a warrant, is also amended to reflect the changes made to the Penal Code in offences and the penalties for offences.”

Perhaps I can also reassure Members that the amendment which increases the sentencing powers of the Summary Court is something that I have discussed with the Honourable Chief Justice (the present Honourable Chief Justice) and he is comfortable with that and has given his support to it.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill shortly entitled The Criminal Procedure Code (Amendment) Bill, 1998, be given a second reading. This is now open for debate.

Does any Member wish to speak? (Pause) Does any Member wish to speak? (Pause) If there is no debate, does the mover wish to reply? (Silence)

The Deputy Clerk: The Community College (Amendment) Bill, 1998.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: This is a very short Bill. In effect all that it really does is provide for the change in the name of the “Principal” of the College to “President”, and the “Deputy Principal” to “Vice President”. And it also deals with establishing Deans of the College. The reasoning is in many respects that the students who finish their Associate Degrees will be going on to American universities. This is the reasoning on it. It also allows for entry into articulation agreements. That, I think, is basically what this is about. So it is basically dealing with a cosmetic side of the College.

The Speaker: The House will now go into committee to consider a Bill entitled The Liquor Licensing (Amendment) (Protection of Minors and Need for Licensed Premises) Bill, 1998, and three other Bills.

HOUSE IN COMMITTEE AT 3.55 PM

COMMITTEE ON BILLS

The Chairman: Please be seated. The House is now in Committee. With the leave of the House, may I assume that, as usual, we should authorise the Second Official Member to correct minor printing errors and such like in these Bills. Would the [Deputy] Clerk state each Bill and read its clauses?

THE LIQUOR LICENSING (AMENDMENT) (PROTECTION OF MINORS AND NEED FOR LICENSED PREMISES) BILL, 1998

The Deputy Clerk: The Liquor Licensing (Amendment) (Protection of Minors and Need for Licensed Premises) Bill, 1998.

The Chairman: In accordance with Standing Order 52(2) I grant leave for the amendments to the Bill to be moved.

The Deputy Clerk: Clause 1 Short title.

The Chairman: Amendment to title. The Honourable Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: I beg to move that the title be changed by deleting “and Need for a Licensed Premises”.

The Chairman: The question is that Clause 1 be amended. If there is no debate, I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: CLAUSE 1 AS AMENDED PASSED.

The Deputy Clerk: Clause 2 – Amendment of section 2 of the Liquor Licensing Law (1996 Revision).

The Chairman: The question is that Clause 2 do stand part of the Bill.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Mr. Chairman, I beg to move that Clause 2 be deleted and Clause 3 renumbered Clause 2.

The Chairman: If there is no debate, the question is that Clause 2 be deleted and Clause 3 renumbered Clause 2. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: AMENDMENT PASSED, THAT CLAUSE 2 BE DELETED AND CLAUSE 3 RENUMBERED CLAUSE 2.

The Deputy Clerk: Clause 3: Amendment of section 4 Licensing Boards and Districts.

The Chairman: I shall now put the question that Clause 3, which is now Clause 2, the new clause in accordance with Standing Order 52(8)—

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Mr. Chairman, I was wondering whether on this specific law, since there had been some discussions that were going on, the Chief Secretary, I should say, was looking at certain things with some of the Members, whether we shouldn't put the Committee stage of this to the end so that after the break we could look at the two new sections being brought in.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Chairman, the reasoning behind that, as I understand it, was that there was a need for other Members to be here. I don't see anybody else here who wasn't here before, so I don't see why we shouldn't continue.

The Chairman: My view is that we have already started it. I would like to continue if possible.

The question is that Clause 3, which is now renumbered Clause 2, do stand part of the Bill. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it. Clause 3 do stand part of the Bill.

AGREED: CLAUSE 3 (NOW RENUMBERED CLAUSE 2) PASSED.

The Deputy Clerk: Clause 4: Amendment of section 9, Requirements for licensed premises.

The Chairman: The question is that Clause 4 do stand part of the Bill. The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Is this Clause 4 of the Bill? So that Clause will now read “A Board shall not grant any new licences in any part of the Islands from the date of the commencement of this Law until such date as may be determined by the Governor who shall cause notice of that which shall be published in the Gazette”? Or is that . . . this is why I was asking . . . there are committee stage amendments, and that was one of them I understood . . .

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Mr. Chairman.

The Chairman: The Honourable Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Under the amendments it had been proposed that we insert as Clause 3 an amendment to section 7. I am just curious if that is what we next should be dealing with. No? Okay.

The Chairman: According to Standing Orders, amendments should be taken at the end of the Bill. All new Clauses were taken—

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Okay. Thank you, sir.

The Chairman: Will you move the amendment to Clause 4?

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Yes, Mr. Chairman. I propose to move the following amendments to Clause 4, that, first of all by deleting paragraph (a); and secondly that paragraph (b) be re-worded to read: “In paragraph (b) (i) by deleting (1A) and substituting the following: “(1A) A Board shall not grant a licence in any part of the Islands from 9th October 1998 until such date as may be determined by the Governor, who shall cause notice of the date to be published in the Gazette.”

The substantive change is that “the date of the commencement of this Law” would be replaced with “9th October 1998”.

The Chairman: The question is that the amendment do stand part of Clause 4. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: AMENDMENT TO CLAUSE PASSED.

The Chairman: The question is that Clause 4 as amended do stand part of the Bill. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: CLAUSE 4 AS AMENDED PASSED.

The Deputy Clerk: Clause 5: Repeal of section 21 and substitution.

The Chairman: The question is that Clause 5 do stand part of the Bill. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it. Clause 5 do stand part of the Bill.

AGREED: CLAUSE 5 PASSED.

The Deputy Clerk: Clause 6: Amendment of the principal Law – new sections.

The Chairman: The Honourable Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Mr. Chairman, I beg to move that Clause 6 be renumbered as Clause 8, and that it be amended as follows: [by deleting 21A. (1) and substituting the following] “21A. (1) A licensee shall not allow a person under the age of eighteen (a) to be in premises in a bar or licensed premises.”

And (b) be amended “No person shall knowingly cause, procure or attempt to cause or procure any person under the age of eighteen to be in the bar of licensed premises.” The substantive effect of that would be that the provision as small (a) to be in a premise to which a package or distributors licence relates would not be part of the amendment either in (a) or (b).

The Chairman: What about (c), (d) and (e)?

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Turning then to (c), I beg to move that (c) [in section 21A] be amended by inserting “the bar of” before the words “licensed premises” where those words first appear.

In respect of (d): By renumbering 21A (4) as 21A (5) and by inserting the following as 21A (4) “(4) No offence shall be committed under this section if the person under the age of eighteen is in a bar solely for the purpose of passing to or from some part of the premises which is not a bar and to or from which there is no other convenient means of access or egress.”

And (e) by inserting the following as 21A (6): “(6) Subsection (5) comes into force on 1st October 1999.”

And (f) by deleting 21C and 21D.

And finally (g) by renumbering 21E as 21C.

The Chairman: The question is that Clause 6 be amended as read. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: AMENDMENTS PASSED.

The Chairman: The question is that Clause 6, as amended, do stand part of the Bill. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: CLAUSE 6 AS AMENDED PASSED.

NEW CLAUSES —Standing Order 52 (8)

The Deputy Clerk: New Clause 3: Amendment of section 7.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Mr. Chairman, I wonder if I could just interject at this point?

The Chairman: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: I know we have already dealt with Clause 4, and the First Official Member proposed that a date be put in there; instead of the date of commencement, that a date be put in in three instances as 9 October. And I understand, of course, why that is going in. But it occurs to me that I think the date ought to be the 10th of October because we are dealing with applications made prior to that date. If we make that date the 9th, some applications might have already gone in today, and I don't think we would wish to stop those. So I think the date should really be the 10th which will mean that any application that went in today would be in order. Anything after today would not.

I believe that the Courts Office is closed now, but I am quite happy to say that yes we can say . . . [inaudible interjection] I think the Courts Office is closed. Well, that is the danger I am seeking to rectify. I think if we have the date as being today's date what we are actually doing is disallowing people's applications that have been put in prior to now.

The Chairman: Are you recommending that we recommit Clause 6? And take a further amendment as to dates?

Hon. Richard H. Coles: No, Mr. Chairman. Clause 4.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Mr. Chairman, if there is some concern, let's leave it as it is. It may well be that there are no applications made today. I have no idea whether there are or not. That was all my concern. Leave it as the 9th, and that means that any application that has been presented today will fall away.

The Deputy Clerk: New Clause 3.

The Chairman: The question is that new Clause 3 do stand part of the Bill. Will you read the amendment?

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: I beg to move that new Clause 3, Amendment to section 7, be inserted, and one minor amendment in the proposed subsection (5), that "toilets" be changed to "bathrooms".

The Chairman: The question is that this Clause be added to the Bill as Clause 3. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it. This Clause has been added as Clause 3.

AGREED: NEW CLAUSE 3 PASSED.

The Deputy Clerk: New Clauses 5 and 6.

The Chairman: The question is that new Clauses 5 and 6 [do stand part of the Bill.]

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: I beg to move that the following new Clauses be inserted as Clauses 5 and 6. "Amendment of section 10 – categories of licences. 5. Section 10(1) of the principal Law is amended by inserting the following new paragraph '(h) occasional'".

"Amendment of section 19—Occasional licences. 6. Section 19 of the principal Law is amended by repealing the word 'authorisation' wherever it appears and substituting 'occasional licence'."

The Chairman: The question is that these Clauses be added to the Bill as Clauses 5 and 6. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it. These have been added as new Clauses.

AGREED: NEW CLAUSES 5 AND 6 PASSED.

The Deputy Clerk: New Clause 9 (which should be Clause 10) Amendment of the Schedule.

The Chairman: The Honourable Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: I beg to move that the new Clause 9: Amendment of the Schedule—and it should be 9 rather than 10 (that was simply a typo)—"9. The Schedule to the principal Law is amended (a) by repealing the heading 'Authorisation' and substituting 'Occasional licence'; and (b) by repealing 'authorised' and substituting 'licensed'."

The Chairman: The question is that this Clause be added to the Schedule as Clause 9. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: NEW CLAUSE 9 PASSED.

The Chairman: Did the Member for West Bay have something to say?

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Yes, Mr. Chairman. Where are we?

The Chairman: We are acting in accordance with Standing Order—

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: I mean in the Bill. That was an amendment to the Schedule?

The Chairman: Your amendment says 10, but it is 9.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Okay.

Mr. Chairman, I am not a lawyer, and I know we have gone through the amendments and that type of thing, but just for my own clarity as the mover of the original motion calling for this moratorium on new liquor licences. I don't have a copy of my motion before me, I don't even have the Hansard extracts, but I recall specifically that the request was for a moratorium on new liquor licences in residential areas. And then subsequently this year the First Elected Member for West Bay and I moved a motion calling for a moratorium on the issuance of new liquor licences in West Bay, period. My question is in accordance with section 9 of the Law, as amended, it says "A board shall not grant any new licences in any part of the islands from the date of the commencement of this Law until such date as may be determined." We are saying from 9th October or whatever it is. But maybe I missed something, and that is why I am asking: Are saying that we are placing a moratorium on all new liquor licences—be it commercial, residential, whatever? Is that the case? If so, I need that confirmed, Mr. Chairman.

The Chairman: The Temporary Acting First Official Member explained that when he moved the motion, but I will ask him to repeat it please.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: That is certainly what we are doing, and I acknowledged that the motion which that honourable Member was party to did not call for a total moratorium on the whole of the islands, but, certainly, that is the Government's position and the position that the House adopted earlier.

The Deputy Clerk: A Bill for a Law to amend the Liquor Licensing Law (1996 Revision) to prohibit the sale of intoxicating liquors by or to persons under the age of 18; to widen the discretion of the Board in considering applications for liquor licences and for connected purposes.

The Chairman: The question is that the Title do stand part of the Bill. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: TITLE PASSED.

THE PENAL CODE (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1998

The Chairman: The question is that Clauses 16 through 26 do stand part of the Bill. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: CLAUSES 16 THROUGH 26 PASSED.

The Deputy Clerk: Clause 27. Amendment of section 125 - rape.

The Chairman: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Yes, Mr. Chairman, if I might request your permission under Standing Order 52.

The Chairman: Granted.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: The amendment is that Clause 27 be amended by inserting "(whether vaginal or anal)" in section 125(2) after "person".

The Chairman: The question is the amendment to Clause 27. The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Would the Honourable Member state the amendment again? I didn't get it.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Yes, Mr. Chairman, I will read it again, but it has been circulated. The Clerk will give you a copy.

The Chairman: I shall put the question on the amendment to Clause 27. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: AMENDMENT PASSED.

The Chairman: The question is that Clause 27 do stand part of the Bill. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: CLAUSE 27 AS AMENDED PASSED.

The Chairman: I would appreciate a motion for the suspension of Standing Order 10(2) in order to continue beyond the hour of 4.30. The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 10(2)

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I move the suspension of Standing Order 10(2) to enable the House to go beyond 4.30.

The Chairman: The question is that Standing Order 10(2) be suspended in order to continue until the business on the Order Paper is completed. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED. STANDING ORDER 10(2) SUSPENDED.

The Deputy Clerk: Clause 28. Repeal of section 130 and substitution - indecent assault on females.

Clause 29. Amendment of section 131 - insulting the modesty of a woman.

Clause 30. Repeal of section 135 and substitution - administering drugs, etc. to a person.

Clause 31. Amendment of section 142 - unnatural offences.

Clause 32. Repeal of section 143 - indecent assault on a man.

Clause 33. Repeal of section 168(4) and substitution - Obeah.

The Chairman: The question is that Clauses 28 through 33 do stand part of the Bill. The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Thank you.

I have a problem with [Clause] 30 which amends [section] 135 subsection (2), administering drugs, etc., to a person. Subsection (2) says: "No person shall be convicted of an offence under subsection (1) upon the evidence of one witness only unless that witness is corroborated in some material particular by evidence implicating the accused."

Who is going to administer drugs to somebody where there is a witness for them to be able to have sexual intercourse or carnal knowledge or anything else? Can you explain that to me please?

The Chairman: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Mr. Chairman, I don't think I can really deal with hypothetical offences. What it means is that there must be some corroboration.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Such as?

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Well, the corroboration could be the drug itself; a swab from the victim; it could be forensic corroboration; it could be DNA sample. It could be any matter of things.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: For doing drugs, injecting drugs into somebody? Isn't this what I am understanding? "Whoever applies, administers, or causes to be taken by another person any drug, matter or thing with intent to stupefy or overpower that other person so as to enable any person to have unlawful carnal knowledge of such person is guilty of an offence." This is what I am asking.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Mr. Chairman, the type of offence I can envisage being prosecuted under this is something that has become, unfortunately, quite common in the United States where there are substances available now that can be inserted into somebody's drink, they have no taste, they have no smell, they pass through the body extremely quickly, but they leave the victim, if you want to call her that, which is the right description, so that she is unable to resist this type of offence. Now, that is the type of situation—

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Well, thank you so much. That's not hypothetical is it?

Hon. Richard H. Coles: There may be others, but it is difficult for me to deal with hypothetical instances. That is what I envisage anyway.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: You're so nice. Thank you so much. That's not hypothetical. Now I understand.

The Chairman: Any further debate?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Chairman, just to follow up on that.

The Chairman: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: I am aware that in the UK there is a drug that is passed on at parties that is conducive to what they are talking about here.

The Chairman: Any further debate. If not, I shall put the question that Clauses 28 through 33 do stand part of the Bill. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: CLAUSES 28 THROUGH 33 PASSED.

The Deputy Clerk: Clause 34. Amendment of section 190 - duty of head of family.

Clause 35. Repeal of section 201 and substitution-wounding or causing grievous bodily harm.

Clause 36. Insertion of new section - wounding or inflicting grievous bodily harm.

Clause 37. Repeal of section 206 - wounding.

Clause 38. Amendment of section 209 - other negligent acts causing harm.

Clause 39. Amendment of section 210 - dealing with poisonous substances in a negligent manner.

The Chairman: If there is no debate I shall put the question that Clauses 33 through 39 do stand part of the Bill. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: CLAUSES 33 THROUGH 39 PASSED.

The Deputy Clerk: Clause 40. Amendment of section 233 - abstracting electricity.

Clause 41. Insertion of new sections - evasion of liability by deception, etc.

Clause 42. Repeal of section 237 and substitution - making off without payment.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Mr. Chairman, there is an amendment to Clause 43.

The Chairman: If there is no debate, I shall put the question that Clauses 40 through 42 do stand part of the Bill. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

The Deputy Clerk: Clause 43. Repeal of section 250 and substitution - arson.

The Chairman: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: I would like to move an amendment to Clause 43. The amendment is that Clause 43 be amended by deleting subsection (1) of section 250 and renumbering subsections (2), (3) and (4) as (1), (2) and (3) respectively.

The Chairman: If there is no debate I shall put the question that Clause 43 be amended. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: CLAUSE 43 AMENDED.

The Deputy Clerk: Clause 44. Insertion of new section - threats to destroy or damage.

Clause 45. Repeal of sections 257 and 260 - destroying or damaging property and threats to burn, etc.

Clause 46. Amendment of section 261 - criminal trespass.

Clause 47. Amendment of section 262 - aggravated trespass.

Clause 48. Amendment of section 263 - doing damage to or on unenclosed land.

Clause 49. Amendment of section 270 - imprisonment for life.

Clause 50. Amendment of section 279 - importing or purchasing forged notes.

Clause 51. Amendment of section 280 - falsifying warrants or money payable under public authority.

Clause 52. Amendment of section 281 - falsification of register.

Clause 53. Amendment of section 283 - false statements for registers of birth, marriages and death.

Clause 54. Amendment of section 285 - counterfeiting coin.

The Chairman: The question is that Clauses 44 through 54 do stand part of the Bill. If there is no debate, I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: CLAUSES 44 THROUGH 54 PASSED.

The Deputy Clerk: Clause 55. Repeal of section 288 and substitution - impairing, etc., current coin.

Clause 56. Repeal of section 303 and substitution - attempts to commit offences.

Clause 57. Amendment of section 305 - conspiracy to commit an offence.

Clause 58. Amendment of section 307 - definition of accessories after the fact.

Clause 59. Repeal of section 308 and substitution - punishment of accessories after the fact.

The Chairman: The question is that Clauses 55 through 59 do stand part of the Bill. If there is no debate, I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: CLAUSES 55 THROUGH 59 PASSED.

The Deputy Clerk: New Clause 11 – Discharge of offender without punishment.

The Chairman: New Clause 11. The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration, would you read the Clause again?

NEW CLAUSES—Standing Order 52 (8)

NEW CLAUSE 11

Hon. Richard H. Coles: The following Clause to be inserted is Clause 11, and the Bill be renumbered accordingly.

“Section 41 of the principal Law is amended by repealing subsection (1) and substituting the following - discharge of offender with (1) Where in a trial a court thinks that the charge is proved, but is of the opinion that, having regard to the character, antecedents, age, health or mental condition of the accused, or to the trivial nature of the offence or to the extenuating circumstances in which the offence was committed, it is inexpedient to inflict any punishment, the court may, without proceeding to conviction, make an order either (a) discharging the accused absolutely; or (b) if the court thinks fit, discharge the accused subject to the condition that he commits no offence during such period not exceeding three years from the date of the order as may be specified in the order.’”

The Chairman: The question is that new Clause 11 do stand part of the Bill. If there is no debate, I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, we would like to seek a compromise. Given the circumstances, we would like to know if the questions that are remaining—not the one that we were in the middle of, we will stop that one—could be asked again during the November [meeting].

The Speaker: I will put the question to the House that the remaining questions be answered orally in the next meeting. Those in favour please say Aye, those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. They will be answered in the next meeting.

AGREED: REMAINING UNANSWERED QUESTIONS TO BE ANSWERED ORALLY AT THE NEXT MEETING OF THE LEGISLATURE (THE FOURTH (BUDGET) MEETING OF THE 1998 SESSION).

The Speaker: That concludes the business on the Order Paper for today. My understanding is that this will be the last meeting that the Honourable Attorney General will be sitting in this Chamber with us. We wish to express our very best wishes to you and to thank you for your services while you have been here.

[interjections]

The Speaker: You will actually be here for part of the November sitting? Oh well, maybe I am pre-empting it.

I would like to thank all Members for their courtesies and tolerance to the Chair, there have been some heated moments during this meeting but I think we have all survived. I would like to thank the Clerk, the Deputy Clerk, all the office staff, the Hansard Officers and the Serjeant-at-Arms for their services and also to Anita for her kind services to us. I wish for all Members a little rest in between the two meetings. Thank you all very much.

I will now ask for the motion for the adjournment of this honourable House.

EDUCATION DEVELOPMENT PLAN IMPLEMENTATION REPORT

STRATEGY I We will establish a national curriculum with standards at every level which will fulfill the needs of students of every ability.

| PLAN | OBJECTIVE                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | IMPLEMENTATION UPDATE                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| 1    | To establish national guidelines to govern educational policies.                                                                                                                                                                | National guidelines were developed by the Curriculum Team and accepted by the Ministry of Education.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| 2    | To establish a committee which includes a cross-section of society, to advise on curriculum content.                                                                                                                            | A National Curriculum Advisory Committee has been established. This Committee consists of sixteen members. The Chairman of this committee is the Senior Education Officer for Curriculum and Test development. This committee has met on two occasions.                                                                                                                     |
| 4    | To provide a wide range of subjects, knowledge and experiences for students of all skills and aptitudes at every grade level.                                                                                                   | Work is continuing on the National Curriculum in four areas, Language Arts, Mathematics, Science and Social Studies. An Assistant Education Officer for Language Arts has recently been appointed. Learning outcomes for Years 1-3 have been developed in the areas of Mathematics and Science. Learning packets are being developed for each year level in Social Studies. |
| 6    | To provide programmes of work which promote mastery of basic language and mathematical skills at each grade level.                                                                                                              | These programmes are in operation and are ongoing.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| 7    | To incorporate in the curriculum strategies to promote cognitive, affective and psychomotor behaviour, self-motivation, self-confidence, independent and cooperative working and thinking, curiosity and other learning skills. | These strategies are in operation and efforts to achieve them are ongoing.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| 10   | To infuse key elements of Caymanian culture in all subjects of the curriculum.                                                                                                                                                  | Much effort is being made to infuse key elements of our culture across the curriculum. There is more integration of subjects. Older Members of the community have been invited to talk to students about life in these islands long ago and students have been on numerous field trips in order to learn more about our culture.                                            |
| 11   | To promote a sense of responsibility towards local and global environmental issues.                                                                                                                                             | Schools have been placing much emphasis on environmental issues. Most schools are participating in various projects or have formed recycling clubs. Students participated in a Caribbean Sea Project and won prizes. Field trips, beach clean ups etc. are ongoing activities. Much assistance has been given by the Department of Environment.                             |

EDUCATION DEVELOPMENT PLAN IMPLEMENTATION REPORT

STRATEGY II We will develop and implement a personal education plan for each student that ensures his/her success.

| PLAN | OBJECTIVE                                                                                                                                                           | IMPLEMENTATION UPDATE                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
| 1    | Centralize professional services so that all children will have equal access to services provided by the Multidisciplinary Team.                                    | There is a Special Services Committee and also a Multidisciplinary Evaluation Team in operation. These operate according to specific guidelines which outline their roles and functions. It is anticipated that we will have a computerized records management system soon. It is proposed that the new Lighthouse building will contain a diagnostic and treatment centre.                                                           |
| 2    | Develop a comprehensive, non-discriminatory evaluation policy for all students.                                                                                     | All Schools have School Based Teams that make referrals and assessments are done on regularly. Individualized education plans and individualized treatment programmes have been developed and are reviewed termly or annually. A policy for testing students was created, approved and used for criterion referenced tests. Monthly staff development training sessions were held and referral assessment procedures were formalized. |
| 3    | Provide a continuum of alternative placement and related services to meet the varied needs of exceptional students, from the least to most restrictive environment. | All schools with over 200 students have full time resource teachers. Other schools have part time help.The old teachers centre in Cayman Brac has been converted into a Unit for Special needs students. The Early Intervention Programme as well as Homebased Programme for school aged children continues.                                                                                                                      |
| 6    | To ensure that all personnel within educational institutions are suitably qualified and receive opportunities for further professional training.                    | Periodic Surveys are conducted to determine the topics that teachers would like to have addressed. As a result of this identification workshops are being held on inset days to address these needs.Only trained personnel assess students and implement specialized programmes.                                                                                                                                                  |
| 7    | Establish early detection screening procedures to identify developmental delays which may result in learning difficulties.                                          | Students who appear to be "at risk" are referred for comprehensive assessments. Entry behaviour tests are also administered to beginning students.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
| 10   | To establish a national policy on the education of the gifted and talented.                                                                                         | Guidelines have been created to identify the "Gifted" students, however there is the need for additional staff to implement these programmes.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |

EDUCATION DEVELOPMENT PLAN IMPLEMENTATION REPORT

STRATEGY III We will establish throughout the system individual and school accountability while preserving the unique character and effectiveness of each school.

| 1    | To establish a localised system which will preserve the unique character and effectiveness of each school.                                                       | At the end of each school year Principals do an inventory and submit it to the Education Department. Any furniture or equipment not fit for future use is referred to a board of condemnation.Annual reports from schools outline projects for the following year. This information is also attached the budget that is submitted each year. |
| 2    | To create an independent school inspectorate to ensure that standards are maintained.                                                                            | An independent schools inspectorate has been established and inspections began in November 1997.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
| 3    | To establish a community based School Board for each school to promote more effective schools                                                                    | An investigation of the viability of having school boards is being completed and efforts to establish them is scheduled for 1998-1999.                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| 4    | To establish and promote a system of consistent accountability for Principals in order to maintain efficient and effective management of schools.                | Summer sessions conducted by the Schools' Inspectorate and Education Department helped to focus Principals attention on self assessment and improve administrative procedures.                                                                                                                                                                   |
| 5    | To establish and promote a system of consistent accountability for teachers to ensure that maximum educational standards are maintained.                         | Teachers do maintain up to date information in the necessary record books. Lesson plans are seen/reviewed weekly. Principals hold conferences with individual teachers to discuss the appraisal system established by Government and to set objectives for each year.                                                                            |
| 6    | To establish and promote a system of parental accountability in schools to engender parental responsibility and develop a working partnership with schools.      | One school has developed a Parents Charter. Parents are kept up to date on student progress through parent conferences and other forums. Some parents assist their children with research work. Others have been instrumental in holding fun fairs to raise funds to buy playground equipment or organising events such as banquets .            |
| 7    | To establish and promote a system of consistent accountability for students in order that they be made aware of their role and responsibility within the school. | Student accountability is addressed on an individual school basis. All schools have discipline plans. One school has a Students charter. This charter is subject to review and update when it is deemed necessary. No central committee has been formed to standardize student accountability.                                                   |
| 8    | To establish a High School Council in order that the students may be aware of their role and responsibility within the school.                                   | School councils have been established in some schools. These councils include both staff and students who identify areas of responsibility and accountability. Students have input on behaviour, standards and the monitoring of these standards                                                                                                 |

EDUCATION DEVELOPMENT PLAN IMPLEMENTATION REPORT

STRATEGY IV: We will identify and counteract the social problems affecting our students education.

| PLAN | OBJECTIVE                                                                                                                                        | IMPLEMENTATION UPDATE                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
| 1    | To provide the students and parents, skills to cope with the trauma of family breakdown.                                                         | This area is being addressed through the Life Skills Programme or with the assistance of counsellors.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
| 2    | Teach parenting skills within the Life Skills Curriculum.                                                                                        | Topics on parenting are taught through the Life Skills Curriculum and parenting sessions have been held for parents in each district.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
| 1.3a | Develop an ongoing programme designed to establish greater communication between parents/guardians, students and educators.                      | Schools are now producing monthly/termly newsletters, conducting parents assemblies and home visits. They also have parents / teachers / principals conferences. Good news progress reports are sent home regularly. Workshops for parents have been conducted by the psychologists, school counsellors, overseas personnel and also cayman against substance abuse (CASA). Some schools have termly forums where parents and teachers freely share their concerns, thoughts and ideas. |
| 1.3b | Provide opportunities for parents to acquire necessary parenting skills in order for the parent to positively influence their children.          | This was initiated in February 1998 with workshops in all districts. This will be continued.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| 2.1  | To use all types of media, electronic and printed, to bombard the students and their families with positive messages.                            | The Ministry of Education and Planning hopes to develop a media policy. Some schools have produced their own newspapers and also supplied the media with much information on school activities. Currently there are still no student supplements in the local newspaper.                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| 2.2  | To provide parents and students with ideas on how they can effectively make use of the media.                                                    | This plan has not been implemented yet.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
| 3.1  | To motivate students to obey the rules of the school.                                                                                            | Students are encouraged to share their problems with their teachers and counsellors. Role models are invited to address students during devotions. Personnel such as the Police and Social Workers also assist in addressing students. School rules are prominently displayed in classrooms, assembly halls and lunch rooms.                                                                                                                                                            |
| 3.2  | To develop incentives intended to reward and reinforce good character traits and behaviour.                                                      | Incentives for good behaviour are given on a daily /weekly/termly/annual basis. Some schools operate a students of the month scheme. House points are awarded for good behaviour, punctuality, neatness and deportment.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
| 4    | To develop a support system for students, parents and teachers to increase their awareness of abuse and their ability to counteract its effects. | There is a Liaison Group that meets monthly with representatives of the Social Services Department to address these issues. This Group has made presentation to the schools and hopes to now make presentation to the PTA's                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |

| 5   | To reduce incidence of delinquency among the students population.                                                                                                                                                            | Students are constantly reminded to accept responsibility for their own behaviour. Schools have discipline codes that outline a system of rewards and punishments. Students also receive counselling on a regular basis. Some schools have after school programmes and Summer school is now held each year, at three centres.                                                                                 |
| 6   | To establish support for the Young Parents Programme.                                                                                                                                                                        | We continue to support in various ways the Young Parents Programme.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| 7   | To provide students with knowledge on sexually transmitted diseases.                                                                                                                                                         | Representatives from the Public Health Department have been invited to discuss sexually transmitted diseases and Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome. This is done dependent on the maturity level of the students.                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| 8   | To educate teachers, parents and students on the issues relating to suicidal tendencies.                                                                                                                                     | Issues relating to suicidal tendencies are addressed through the Quest/Life Skills/Social Education programmes at schools as well as through counselors.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| 9.1 | To collaborate with the Ministry of Health and Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation to ensure that all services and facilities currently available, and those proposed will include the needs of the student population. | Needs of students in relation to drug abuse is constantly being addressed by the Ministry of Health and Ministry of Education. Both Ministries share resources and support each others programmes.                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| 9.2 | Initiate a drug awareness programme involving all schools.                                                                                                                                                                   | A Health and Drug Curriculum is being implemented in schools. Several Quest workshops were held for teachers. We now have two trained trainers for the Quest programme. Schools participated in Drug Free Week, Police Week and No Tobacco Day activities. | 1    | To create a National Christian Religious Education Curriculum / Syllabus for all schools.                                                                                     | Work on the National Curriculum is being done in stages. Stage 1 of the National Christian religious education curriculum will begin in 1998.                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| 2    | To create an environment in schools aimed at promoting Christian principles.                                                                                                  | Weekly General Assemblies and daily classroom devotions are conducted by teachers, ministers and other community persons. Religious Education is a time tabled subject. There has been growth in religious assemblies/tutorials. School choirs continue to perform at Easter and at Christmas. A creative christian character award has been introduced in one school. |
| 3    | To foster enthusiasm for and adherence to Christian principles.                                                                                                               | Some schools have fellowship programmes at lunch time. These programmes are supervised by staff members and local pastors are invited to participate.                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| 4    | To involve students in clubs and societies whose aims include the development of spiritual and moral values.                                                                  | Clubs and societies are promoted through various avenues, eg. bulletins, t.v. radio and newspaper. Efforts have been made to establish clubs and societies in schools where none exist.                                                                                                                                                                                |
| 5    | To establish a structured counselling programme in schools.                                                                                                                   | In some schools all grades receive weekly counselling sessions. Counsellors do meet with teachers to identify unacceptable behaviour patterns and discuss ways of dealing with them. There is a strong team of counsellors that deal with extreme and difficult problem cases.                                                                                         |
| 6    | To establish effective, decisive disciplinary standards and practices at each school.                                                                                         | Systems of restrictions and punishments exist in all schools.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| 7    | To reinforce desirable behaviour through reward.                                                                                                                              | Desirable behaviours are promoted through various forms of public recognitions.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| 8    | To establish a programme which will alert parents and the community to the need for effective disciplinary standards and practices in the home, the school and the community. | Parents are constantly made aware of the need for students to be exposed to consistent, loving discipline. Forums used to provide awareness are Parent conferences, reporting sessions, and Parent, Teachers Associations/Home, School Associations. Cooperation and partnership is encouraged.                                                                        |

Recently a Facilities Officer has been appointed. New procedures have been devised.                               |
| 3    | To determine future building needs and develop a building Time-Line.                                                                                   | Future building needs have been determined by the Chief Education Officer and his team in liaison with members of the Public Works Department.                                                                                                 |
| 4    | To develop a school inspection team to inspect, report on, and follow up on schools' physical plant.                                                   | Our current inspection team has been strengthened by the addition of a Facilities Officer. Procedures have been developed.                                                                                                                     |
| 5    | To provide necessary facilities to achieve required standards in the teaching of curriculum and to enhance the educational environment of the student. | This is being addressed by the Monitoring and Maintenance Officers. However, enrolment is outpacing space requirements.                                                                                                                        |
| 6    | To develop policy guidelines for equipment and its maintenance with a view to possible standardization, "Life" expectancy and resulting obsolescence.  | A maintenance log is kept in each school and monthly reports are made to the Public Works Department. Work continues on developing standards.                                                                                                  |
| 7    | To create an interior physical environment that is conducive to learning.                                                                              | Classroom lighting has been upgraded and two schools have been painted with colours that stimulate learning. The painting of others will follow. All computer rooms have been air-conditioned and an airconditioning plan has been started.    |
| 8    | To supply and install proper play ground equipment at each school.                                                                                     | Some PTA's in liaison with the Assistant Education Officer, Monitoring and Maintenance have compiled lists of age appropriate play ground equipment and also purchased and installed play ground equipment with the necessary safety features. |
| 9    | To ensure safe and operable school facilities.                                                                                                         | A maintenance log is kept in each school and the Facilities Officer makes regular visits to schools.                                                                                                                                           |
| 10   | To upgrade and landscape the exterior of each school.                                                                                                  | Traditional Caymanian architectural features were used in the design of the Cayman Brac Teachers' Centre. A building colour scheme that will enhance the learning process has been                                                             | introduced initially at two schools. ( George Hicks and North Side Primary.)

| 11 | To cultivate students' personal pride in school and communal environments. | School have developed mottos and logos. They hold open days. They involve the Agriculture Department and local Nurseries in their garden projects.                                        |
| 12 | To provide a central sports complex for Sister Islands Schools.            | No work has begun on this plan as yet.                                                                                                                                                    |
| 14 | To provide an appropriate canteen at each school.                          | Kitchen facilities are at most schools and sanitary inspections are done annually by the Department of Environment. Reports are submitted to the Education Department and to the schools. |

MONDAY
16 NOVEMBER 1998
11.39 AM

[Prayers read by the Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture]

The Speaker: Please be seated. The Legislative Assembly is in session. Reading by the Speaker of Messages and announcements.

READING BY THE SPEAKER OF
MESSAGES AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

The Speaker: We would like to welcome Mr. Dalmain Ebanks back with us this morning after his illness.

Item number 3 on today's Order Paper: Presentation of Papers and Reports, Draft Estimates of Revenue and Expenditure of the Cayman Islands Government for the Year 1999. The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

PRESENTATION OF PAPERS AND REPORTS

Hon. George A. McCarthy: This morning I would like to commence by submitting an apology for the postponement of proceedings which should have started at 10.00 AM. There were a few changes that had to be made to the Draft Estimates, and these are currently being made. In fact, the Estimates document will be available to Members in the next fifteen to twenty minutes.

I would ask the indulgence of this Honourable House to commence with the reading of the Budget Address (which is the moving of the second reading of the Appropriation Bill), and during the course of the reading, the document will then be presented.

The Speaker: Would you then move a motion in accordance with Standing Order 86, to suspend Standing Order 63(1) in order that we can proceed with the first and second reading of the Appropriation Bill?

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I so move, Mr. Speaker.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 63(1)

The Speaker: The question is that in accordance with Standing Order 86, we suspend Standing Order 63(1) so that we can proceed with the first and second reading of the Appropriation Bill and await the arrival of the Estimates. The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. On a matter of procedure. I heard what the Honourable Financial Secretary said. However, the House does not have the Appropriation Bill before it. I understand that the Estimates will be later.

The Speaker: I shall put the question. Those in favour of suspending Standing Order 63(1) please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 63(1) SUSPENDED.

The Speaker: Moving on to item 4 on today's Order Paper: Government Business, Bills, First Reading.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

BILLS

FIRST READING

THE APPROPRIATION (1999) Bill, 1998

The Clerk: The Appropriation (1999) Bill, 1998.

The Speaker: The Bill is deemed to have been read a first time and set down for Second Reading.
Second Reading.

SECOND READING

THE APPROPRIATION (1999) BILL, 1998

The Clerk: The Appropriation (1999) Bill, 1998.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: I beg to move the second reading of The Appropriation (1999) Bill, 1998.

The Speaker: Please continue.

BUDGET ADDRESS

Delivered by the Hon. George A. McCarthy, OBE, JP Financial secretary

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, a mere three weeks ago the future of these islands was threatened by Hurricane Mitch, one of the most dangerous hurricanes in history to have passed through the south-western Caribbean. We have to be thankful that Hurricane Mitch veered west away from our shores and we were spared the wrath of a large-scale natural disaster. It is, indeed, quite unfortunate that the storm surges caused destruction to some homes, other property and infrastructure on Grand Cayman. The Government extends its greatest sympathy to all those who have sustained losses.

But while there was no loss of life in the Cayman Islands, this was not so for Honduras and Nicaragua. Our hearts go out to the people of these countries whose lands were ravaged by the storms and floods that accompanied Hurricane Mitch. It is very encouraging to see the outpouring of love for our neighbours by Caymanians and other residents of our community.

Mr. Speaker, this Budget Address being delivered today is a particularly significant one. It relates to the year 1999—the very last one in this century. As we look back over the past decade and take stock of our present situation, there is so much of which we have to be proud. Our achievements have been truly outstanding.

Today we take pride in being one of the world's largest financial centres and in maintaining a high quality, up-scale tourism industry. Our people enjoy a high standard of living and have ample job opportunities. Health and education facilities are expanding to meet the rapid growth in demand and the society as a whole maintains a healthy and wholesome lifestyle.

With such an impressive past, the question that comes to mind is: Can we continue to be successful in the future? The short answer to this question is “yes”.

Mr. Speaker, we are all aware of the crisis in the world economy and the numerous challenges facing the Cayman Islands, including the recent OECD, EU and G7 initiatives. I will discuss the details of these shortly when I address the world economic situation.

What we need to bear in mind, however, is that a “crisis” should not be considered in an altogether negative light. The word “crisis” in Chinese also means “change” or “opportunity”. Change is an inevitable part of life and we should not be afraid of the challenges posed by it. Our approach is a positive one—to assess the implications of change and manage it in a way to guarantee our future success.

I am pleased to say Mr. Speaker that over the past decade our financial industry and our economy have kept pace with progress internationally. We intend to continue along this trend in the years to come. Allow me, therefore, to apprise you of the planning initiatives and policy measures being undertaken to meet the challenges of the future.

In April of this year, a delegation led by His Excellency, the Governor and myself travelled to Brazil to conduct a seminar on “Financial Services in the Cayman Islands”. This initiative formed part of a wider market diversification strategy and its specific aim was to enhance recognition of the Cayman Islands in the Latin American region. The seminar proved to be an enormous success and others are being planned for the South American region.

To complement this initiative, a series of workshops is being organised locally for Cayman's financial managers on co-ordinated marketing strategies. The first of these was held 2 ½ weeks ago. It is hoped that these workshops will allow both the public and private sectors to develop a shared vision on effective, responsible marketing of the jurisdiction.

Over the next year, the Cayman Islands will become a focal point of attention in the international financial community as it prepares to host some major regional and world events. During the course of this week on 18-20 November, the Caribbean Financial Action Task Force (CFATF) Council of Ministers will hold its meeting here, at which time the Cayman Islands will assume the chairmanship due to run for one year. Our term as Chair is quite significant as the CFATF expects to implement the regional anti-money laundering project in 1999 together with many other valuable programmes.

In September 1999, the Commonwealth Finance Ministers' Meeting will be held here in Grand Cayman for the first time. It will be chaired jointly by the United Kingdom and the Cayman Islands. Some 300 delegates from 53 countries in Africa, Asia, the Caribbean, North America and the Pacific will attend this gathering, which is normally held on the eve of the IMF/World Bank Annual Meetings. It will provide a forum for the rich exchange of views on issues facing the world economy. Both Government and the private sector are expected to benefit tremendously from this meeting of minds on a global scale.

Mr. Speaker, for some time now the Government has been planning a number of important initiatives to prepare itself for the 21st century. This year, many of the ideas came to fruition as the Government introduced several integrated initiatives designed to meet the need for planning on a national scale and for financial and other administrative reforms in the public service.

In March of this year, H.E. the Governor, launched the Vision 2008 project, which aims to establish national goals and objectives for the Cayman Islands over the next ten years. Participation in this exercise has been extensive and all segments of the community are contributing to this project that is of obvious national significance. It is expected that a draft Ten-Year National Strategic Plan will be presented to the Legislative Assembly in March 1999.

Effective implementation of the Vision 2008 project will depend critically on a well-functioning public service and an efficient financial system. The need for financial reform has been discussed in this Honourable House on many occasions. Today I am pleased to say that this issue is now being addressed in a number of different ways—through the redesign of budgetary processes; better specification of departmental outputs; and a shift from a cash-based accounting system to an accrual-based one. A New Zealand consulting firm, Public Sector Performance (New Zealand) Ltd is facilitating the financial reform exercise.

It is expected that the extensive financial reforms will improve all aspects of financial management in government—planning and programming; budgeting; budget execution and accounting; and audit and evaluation. It is expected that administrative reforms will be phased in along with the financial and other reforms.

Two other large-scale projects deserve mention: the Y2K Project and the 1999 Census of Population and Housing. The Y2K problem is quite a serious one since it affects all types of electronic devices and applications, including computer systems, computer applications and embedded electronic control systems. In view of the wide and varied ramifications of the problem, Government has taken early action to address the problem comprehensively.

A Millennium Advisory Compliance Committee has been established to assist in the planning and corrective action needed to be taken in conjunction with Ministries, Portfolios and Departments. A Project Manager has also been appointed to provide advisory services on action to be taken. Considerable progress has already been made in each of the key phases of awareness, assessment, renovation, validation and implementation. Work will intensify in the coming months in order to ensure that all systems are millennium compliant before 1st January, 2000.

Finally, the Census of Population and Housing will be undertaken next year, with Sunday, October 10th, designated as "Census Day". This exercise, which is undertaken only once every ten years, is a vitally important one. It will provide us with current data on population size, work force demographics, the state of housing and a wealth of other information that are essential for effectively interpreting and addressing national needs. In view of its importance, I would like to urge every resident on these islands to participate fully in this national exercise.

THE WORLD ECONOMY

Mr. Speaker, economic and financial conditions in the global economy over the past few months have worsened in the face of deepening recession in Asia and Japan, and more recently in Russia. The spillover effects have been felt in world stock markets, various currencies and in weak commodity prices.

The Asian crisis has resulted in the fourth global economic slowdown in a quarter century. World economic growth of only 2.0 per cent is projected for 1998, a full percentage point less than the projection made in May. The USA is expected to grow by 3.4 per cent and growth in both the eleven Euro-zone countries and those in Latin America is not expected to exceed 2.8 per cent. In addition, Japan and the countries at the center of the Asian crisis, i.e. Thailand, Malaysia, South Korea and Indonesia—are all expected to show negative growth.

Given this evolving scenario, considerable uncertainty remains about the outlook for 1999. South Korea and Thailand have made some recent advances towards initiating recovery, but China appears to be slowing and many Asian countries continue to face difficult times.

Of particular interest to the Cayman Islands are the growth prospects for the USA. Alan Greenspan, Chairman of the Federal Reserve, has noted that US economic growth has "weakened measurably" in recent weeks, but many analysts agree that a slowdown rather than a recession is likely for 1999. The recent cuts in interest rates are expected to boost liquidity and although consumer confidence has fallen recently, there are no signs of panic in consumer spending. If no sharp reductions in consumption and investment are expected, then the US economy is likely to experience a mild downturn rather than a recession. A growth rate of 1.9 per cent is projected for 1999.

The contagion effects of the Asian crisis have demonstrated quite clearly what impact globalisation could have on the international economy. In fact, in recent years this whole process of globalisation has come under increasing scrutiny. One aspect that is being reviewed by the OECD, G7 and EU countries is the effect of tax competition on the global economy.

It is indeed, unfortunate, that the OECD, G7 and EU countries are seeking to take action on this issue. The term "harmful tax competition" has not been clearly defined; the arguments in support of the allegation appear to be quite tenuous; and the criteria for identifying alleged offending countries are not clear-cut nor are they being uniformly applied.

The Government has been invited to give its comments on the OECD Report, G7 Statement and EU Code of Conduct. It has recently provided an initial response but is currently working closely with the financial community to develop a more comprehensive one. In view of the seriousness of this issue, the Government intends to form a Secretariat to study the full implications of the various initiatives, to monitor developments as they occur and to advise on actions to be taken. This will ensure that we are always fully informed of current developments; our responses will be timely and appropriate; and the interests of all stakeholders will be protected.

THE DOMESTIC ECONOMY

Mr. Speaker, figures for the first three quarters of the year show buoyant activity in the construction and real estate sectors, good growth in financial and business services and increases in tourism. Overall growth in the economy in 1998 is therefore expected to be in line with the 5.0 per cent rate shown in recent years.

For the first half of 1998, the Consumer Price Index rose by 3.5 per cent compared to 2.4 per cent over the same period in 1997. This was mainly because of an increase in housing, specifically mortgage and rent payments. However, inflation is not expected to exceed 4.0 per cent in 1999.

I will now report on developments in the main sectors of the economy.

FINANCIAL AND BUSINESS SERVICES

During 1998, the Cayman Islands maintained its prominence as one of the world's leading financial centres despite the turmoil plaguing emerging markets.

Good foresight, ability to grasp new opportunities, flexibility to changing circumstances and a host of other factors continue to play an important part in the success of our financial and business services sector.

I am proud to announce that the Cayman Islands Stock Exchange passed its 100th listing in July this year, thereby earning its status as one of the world's fastest growing exchanges. The Exchange now has a total of 122 listed issuers with a market capitalisation of approximately US$8.9 billion. There is growing interest from Latin America; and the Exchange is also working on the development of facilities for the domestic capital market.

One of the main factors contributing to the Asian crisis has been the lack of adequate supervision and regulation of the financial sector. I am very pleased to report that, in an effort to comply with international supervisory requirements, the Monetary Authority recently expanded its supervisory framework and commenced on-site reviews of banks, trust companies, insurance companies and mutual fund administrators.

As at September 30, 1998 there were 584 banks and trust companies licensed to operate in the Cayman Islands—10 less than at the same time in 1997. The decline was mainly due to a number of institutions merging or restructuring their operations to focus on core businesses.

However, the trend was different in terms of total assets. As at June 30, 1998, the total assets of category "A" banks and trust companies increased from $506.9M to $569.5M or by 12.4 per cent over the June 1997 figure.

The strong growth of both the mutual funds and insurance industries continued into 1998. In the first nine months of the year, 243 additional mutual funds were registered and 40 new insurance licenses issued. These increases brought the totals to 1,928 and 473 respectively, 17.4 per cent and 6.8 per cent higher than the same period in 1997.

Increases in company registrations were also recorded in 1998. The total number of companies registered during January-September was 6,712, an increase of 259 or 4.0 per cent over the same period last year.

In order to ensure that the Cayman Islands keeps pace with innovations in the financial industry, two main amendments were made to the Companies Law this year. One affected companies holding insurance licences and provided for the legal separation between the individual participant cells of rent-a-captive companies. Another related to companies holding bank licences to include in the preferential debts in the winding up of a category "A" bank, the first $20,000 of a customer's deposits with the bank. Deposits in all currencies are covered and, with a few exceptions, all classes of depositors.

Turning to shipping, the Cayman Islands Shipping Registry continued to streamline its operations in 1998 and prepare itself to meet the needs of the twenty-first century. The first phase of a database for registration, surveys and accounts has recently been installed; office automation is in progress; and ISO 9002, a quality as-urance procedure, is being implemented. In addition, drafting continues on the revised Merchant Shipping and Pollution Law.

The restructuring efforts have already led to efficiency gains in the Registry and performance this year has been outstanding. Compared to the first three quarters in 1997, the number of registered vessels increased by 182 in 1998, and gross tonnage increased by 118 per cent.

TOURISM

Over the past 2-3 years, growth of air arrivals in the tourism industry slowed somewhat in line with regional trends. However, I am quite pleased to report that in the first nine months of this year, air arrivals recorded a higher than expected increase of 6.8 per cent—from 289,014 to 308,577. The high quality service being offered, excellent diving facilities and numerous attractions continue to make Cayman a favoured destination by tourists.

By contrast, cruise ship passenger arrivals declined in the first three-quarters of the year by 2.2 per cent — from 628,815 to 615,119. The previous two years were particularly good ones because of the diversion of ships from the Eastern Caribbean to the Cayman Islands due to adverse weather conditions.

In keeping with the policy to diversify and expand the base of the tourism market, a decision was taken this year to explore new markets in South America, particularly Argentina. The Government has appointed a company to represent it there and various marketing initiatives are being developed to promote the Cayman Islands in that market.

Another development in the marketing of tourism has been the launch of the official Cayman Islands tourism website. This very beautiful site is much more than a website. It is a destination management system designed to allow the user to request specific information about the Cayman Islands by searching the extensive database. It includes information such as accommodation, entertainment and attractions and also has a special focus on the Sister Islands.

Cayman Brac and Little Cayman are expected to benefit from the first ever Air Exit Survey conducted this year on those islands. The results of the survey will be critically important in the planning and formulation of an appropriate tourism policy for the Sister Islands.

In January of this year, restoration of the Pedro St. James Castle was completed. This project, aimed at promoting an appreciation of the history of the Caymanian people, is already welcoming visitors. It is scheduled for completion in early December with the addition of the Visitors' Centre, gift shop and restaurant.

AGRICULTURE

Following the deleterious effects of the "El Niño" weather phenomenon and the presence of various crop diseases, the estimated value of domestic agricultural production in 1997 was just $960,000. In 1998, however, this figure is projected to rise to a bumper $1.7 million. Significant increases are expected in the yields of plantains, vegetables and root crops.

In June of this year, the Department of Agriculture co-hosted the first "Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species of Wild Flora and Fauna" training programme for Overseas Territories. The different elements of the Treaty were discussed and participants were advised on the proper implementation of the Convention.

A fact-finding mission led by a UN/Food and Agricultural Organisation consultant visited the Cayman Islands in August to advise on the importation, distribution and regulation of pesticides. The need for a Pesticide Control Board and supporting regulation were recommended.

LOCAL BANKING

Total loans and advances to Cayman Islands' residents in the first half of this year amounted to $1.34 billion, a decrease of 2.9 per cent over the June 1997 figure.

The largest shares of these loans and advances were for personal mortgages (32.5%) and real estate (9.5%). These amounted to $435.4M and $127.9M respectively.

On the deposits side, demand deposits were $106.8M; savings deposits $78.9M and fixed deposits $226.0M—a total of $411.7M. All three categories showed increases, with demand deposits rising by almost one-third, savings deposits by 12.8 per cent and fixed deposits by 7.2 per cent.

CONSTRUCTION AND REAL ESTATE

These two sectors surpassed expectations in 1998 as construction activity expanded throughout the year and the sale and transfer of property continued on a large scale.

In the first three quarters of the year, the Planning Department approved some 676 applications for construction, mainly in the George Town (48%) and Bodden Town (28%) areas. The total value of approved projects as at 30th September, 1998 was $312.5M. This was $21.6M more than that approved as at 30th September, 1997.

The majority of projects were in the apartment/condo category ($142M), reflecting a 58 per cent increase over 1997. No significant increases were recorded in the other two main categories—residential and commercial—whose contributions were distributed fairly evenly at $58.6M and $61.9M respectively.

No major hotels were approved in the first three quarters of 1998, but in October approval was given for the Ritz-Carlton project, valued at $169M.

As at September 30, 1998 the value of land transfers was $253.3M. This reflected a 17.7 per cent increase over the $215.3M recorded at September 30, 1997. The value of lease transfers showed a decline over the same period—from $5.5M to $1.9M. But the duties collected from both land and lease transfers increased by 28.3 per cent or from $19.8M to $25.4M. This included a 35 per cent increase in Cayman Brac from $168,546 to $258,170.

ECONOMIC OUTLOOK

Mr. Speaker, growth forecasts for 1999 will depend to a great extent on the state of the world economy. If there is a slowdown in the United States economy, this may cause growth to moderate in the domestic economy. However, to the extent that growth in the United States affects the Cayman Islands with a lag, any moderation in growth will not be felt here until late 1999 or the year 2000.

Mr. Speaker, I shall now turn to a review of the public finances.

THE STATE OF PUBLIC FINANCES 1998 FORECASTED POSITION

Mr. Speaker, the Portfolio of Finance and Economic Development's forecasts for 1998 indicate total recurrent and statutory expenditure and contributions at $232.0 million, which is 2.2% less than the budgeted figure of $237.3 million.

Total recurrent revenue is forecasted at $241.4, which is 2.7% below the budgeted figure of $248.1. However, this will be partially offset by the brought forward accumulated surplus balance from 1997 of $2.3 million. This balance was $1.4 million above the budgeted figure of $0.9 million.

Mr. Speaker, after taking into consideration this favourable brought forward balance and the positive recurrent and statutory expenditure and contributions performance, the 'recurrent revenue available to capital expenditure' is expected to be as budgeted at $11.7 million.

Mr. Speaker, I now move on to capital acquisitions expenditure which is forecasted at $8.5 million and is as budgeted. The 'recurrent revenue available to the capital development fund' is therefore on budget at $3.2 million. (which is the $11.7 minus the $8.5 I mentioned earlier).

Total capital development expenditure is forecasted at $24.6 million which is 11.2% below the $27.7 million budgeted. If achieved as forecasted this would result in a capital development fund balance of $3.2 million at year-end 1998 rather than the $0.1 million that was budgeted. These funds would then be available to assist in financing the continuing projects under the 1999 Capital Development Programme.

RESERVE FUNDS General Reserve Fund

Mr. Speaker, at the beginning of 1998 the General Reserve Fund balance stood at $9.0 million. This balance is expected to rise to approximately $10.5 million by year-end 1998 as a result of interest earnings and a budgeted inflow of $1.0 million from general revenue. Honourable Members should note that the 1999 Budget also includes a $1.0 million appropriation for this Fund under Head 13: Portfolio of Finance and Economic Development.

Public Service Pension Fund

Mr. Speaker, the Public Service Pension Fund was established in 1990 to support the long-term pension liability of the Government under its existing "defined benefits" scheme. Honourable Members will, however, be aware that on-going pension payments continue to be made from general revenue until this Fund has been certified as self-sustaining based on an independent actuarial evaluation.

Honourable Members should note that the Fund's balance was $29.5 million at year-end 1997 and is expected to reach $36 million by the end of 1998.

Mr. Speaker, the Government recognises that the continued build up of this Fund is extremely important and has included in the 1999 Budget a sum of $1.0 million under statutory expenditure to increase the contribution by civil service employees from 4% to 6% of pensionable salaries and wages. In addition, the 1999 Budget also includes an additional $3.2 million contribution towards the 'past service liability' of the Fund.

Housing Reserve Fund

Honourable Members will recall that the Housing Reserve Fund was established in 1997 to support any calls that might arise from guarantees issued by the Government under the Guaranteed Home Mortgage Scheme. It is worth noting that so far there have been no calls on guarantees issued under this Scheme.

Mr. Speaker, the balance on this Fund is expected to be $0.64 million by year-end 1998, up from $0.42 million at the beginning of the year.

Mr. Speaker, it is worth noting that the 1999 Budget includes $100,000 towards the establishment of a Student Loan Reserve Fund that would work along similar lines as the Housing Reserve Fund. This new Fund would support any calls that might be made on the Government under the Guaranteed Student Loan Scheme. The next Finance Committee Agenda will include a request for approval to establish this new Fund.

OTHER FUNDS

Capital Development Fund

Honourable Members will recall that the Capital Development Fund was brought into operation on January 1, 1998 as a result of a decision of this Honourable House. The two main objectives underlying the creation of this Fund were: (1) to remove the uncertainty surrounding capital project planning and implementation activities which results from annualised approvals; and, (2) to support a medium-term approach to financial planning. Whilst these two objectives have yet to be fully achieved, the Government has taken an important first step along this path with the establishment of the Fund.

Mr. Speaker, the total forecasted inflow to the Fund during 1998 is $27.81 million, which is on target as budgeted. This amount is broken down as follows: $3.17 million from general revenue; $20.6 million in loan receipts; and a total of $4.04 million in transfers from the Infrastructure Development Fund and the Environmental Protection Fund.

Total expenditure against the Capital Development Fund for 1998 is forecasted at $24 million as compared to the estimate of $27.7 million. If achieved, this would result in an accumulated balance of $3.2 million on the Fund at year-end 1998, as compared to the budgeted sum of $0.1 million.

Infrastructure Development Fund

Mr. Speaker, the balance brought forward from 1997 on the Infrastructure Development Fund was $0.77 million. Forecasted income for 1998 from this source is $2.8 million. After taking into consideration the budgeted transfer from the Fund to the Capital Development Fund of $2.04 million this would leave a balance of $1.53 million to be carried forward to 1999.

Mr. Speaker, expected income on the Fund for 1999 is $4.0 million which, when combined with the forecasted balance at year-end 1998 of $1.53 million, would make available a total of $5.53 million available to assist with the 1999 capital development programme.

Environmental Protection Fund

Mr. Speaker, the balance brought forward from 1997 on the Environmental Protection Fund was $0.48 million. Forecasted income for 1998 from this source is $1.8 million. After taking into consideration the budgeted transfer from the Fund to the Capital Development Fund of $2 million this would leave a balance of $0.28 million to be carried forward to 1999.

Mr. Speaker, expected income on the Fund for 1999 is $3.67 million which, when combined with the forecasted balance at year-end 1998 of $0.28 million, would make available a total of $3.95 million available to assist with capital development projects of an environmental protection nature.

PUBLIC DEBT

Mr. Speaker, total public debt was $82.9 million at January 1, 1998. This amount includes central government public debt of $66.4 million and $16.5 million in self-financing public debt owed by the statutory authorities but guaranteed by central government. After taking into consideration loan repayments of $11.4 million and total loan receipts of $20.6 million during 1998, total public debt is expected to rise to $92.1 million by year-end 1998.

Mr. Speaker, even though the total value of outstanding loans has risen over the year, total public debt service (principal and interest) remains at 7.2% of 1998 forecasted recurrent revenue which is below the internationally accepted 10% upper limit established by the Government.

CIVIL SERVICE

Mr. Speaker, in March 1997, His Excellency the Governor announced in the Throne Speech that the Chief Secretary, on the advice of Executive Council would appoint a Salaries Review Committee ("the Committee"). This Committee would be charged with advising on appropriate salaries and allowances with effect from 1st January 1998.

The decision to conduct the review was in keeping with the acceptance of the Review of Salaries and Allowances, 1995 Report. That report had served as the basis of 'maintenance adjustments' to salaries at 1st January 1996 and 1st January 1997 based on movements in the Consumer Price Index only.

Mr. Speaker, while the Committee was charged with considering further changes in the Consumer Price Index, it was also expected to take into consideration salaries in the private sector and the results of the job evaluation exercise that had been ongoing since the early 1990's. This reflected the fact that the last 'structural adjustment' to salaries had been made in 1989 and implemented in January 1990. All adjustments in intervening years since then have been as a result of cost of living increases, or 'maintenance adjustments'.

The report of the Committee comprised 4 key elements:

1. a 2.7% Consumer Price Index adjustment to salaries, wages and pensions to reflect the actual 1997 increase in the Index, payable with effect from 1st January 1998;
2. an increase in employee pension contribution from 4% to 6% of pensionable salaries with effect from January 1, 1998;
3. an extensive review of allowances and other non-salary benefits;
4. the results of the Job Evaluation exercise combined with a comparison of salaries in the private and quasi-government sectors.

Items 1) and 2) of the above have been agreed by Executive Council but are subject to Finance Committee's approval. In addition, Executive Council also gave favourable consideration, again subject to approval by Finance Committee, to a 3.3% Consumer Price Index adjustment to salaries, wages and pensions with effect from 01st January 1999 to reflect the projected actual 1998 Consumer Price Index increase.

Mr. Speaker, the effect of cost-of-living adjustments for both years has been reflected in the 1999 Budget. In total, these adjustments ensure that the purchasing power of public servants will be no less at the end of 1998 than it was at the beginning of 1996 when the last cost-of-living adjustment was made.

Item 3) and Item 4) recommendations remain outstanding and are currently being addressed.

Mr. Speaker, it is important to note that the 1999 Budget includes a provision to obtain health insurance coverage for public service entitled cases. This includes public servants and their dependents, and pensioners and their dependents. Other areas such as veterans, seamen, indigents and prisoners will be addressed during 1999 with a view to also providing coverage.

1999 BUDGET

THE APPROPRIATION (1999) BILL, 1998

Mr. Speaker, the 1999 Budget total recurrent revenue is estimated at $282.57 million, up 17.1% over the 1998 forecasted figure of $241.4 million. This recurrent revenue figure, however, does include proposed revenue enhancement measures in nine areas totalling $11.8 million. If we remove the effects of these measures from the recurrent revenue, its growth would be 12.2% over the 1998 forecast. Mr. Speaker, I will outline these revenue enhancement proposals in depth during the introduction of the associated revenue bill.

The total recurrent expenditure is estimated at $237.2 million, up 17% over the 1998 forecast of $208.8 million. In addition, new recurrent services totalling $1.97 million are budgeted. These new recurrent services are spread over 23 departments but with an emphasis on the Education, Roads, Police, Prisons, Health Services, and Postal departments.

The total on-going statutory expenditure is $23.18 million and represents debt repayment, pension and gratuity payments. In addition, total employer and employee contribution to the Public Service Pensions Fund is $9.66 million.

Other Contributions from Recurrent Revenue (except the Pension Fund mentioned above) include: $1.0 million to the General Reserve Fund; $0.2 million to the Housing Reserve Fund; and, $0.1 million to the proposed Student Loan Reserve Fund.

Mr. Speaker, total expenditure against the Capital Development Fund is budgeted at $29.16 million and is financed as follows: a $3.18 million Capital Development Fund balance brought forward from 1998; $0.01 million; $5.0 million from the Infrastructure Development Fund; $2.0 million from the Environmental Protection Fund; and $19.15 million in new borrowings. These borrowings mainly relate to educational and health facilities development.

Mr. Speaker, the Environmental Protection Fund, the Infrastructure Development Fund, and the Capital Development Fund are all expected to have positive balances of $1.9 million, $0.53 million, and $3.2 million, respectively, at year-end 1999.

Mr. Speaker, I offer sincere appreciation to those persons who assisted in the preparation of this Budget Address, the 1999 Budget document, and the various associated Bills. In addition, I wish to express deep gratitude to the public service on whose support we all continue to rely.

There are some persons I would like to mention by name. First, Dr. Parson for the excellent job she has done on the economic section of the Budget Address, the Deputy Financial Secretary, the Director of Budget and Management Services, Mr. Gough, and his supporting staff, the Accountant General from the Treasury Department, Ministers and Members of Executive Council for their patience in terms of the discussions that we have had, and also the Members of the Legislative Assembly (as I mentioned earlier).

In effect, we should have started at 10.00 this morning, and this was the second leg of a postponement by approximately two weeks for which I am thankful to Members.

Before I move the recommendation of the Appropriation Bill, I would ask that a short adjournment be allowed now in order for the document to be in the House when the recommendation is made.

The Speaker: We shall suspend for ten minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.29 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 1.12 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. The Honourable Third Official Member Responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, once more I would like to crave the indulgence of this Honourable House to suspend proceedings until 3.30 this afternoon. This will allow for the Appropriation Bill and supporting documents to be finalised and available to Honourable Members. Thank you.

The Speaker: If that is the wish of the House. I shall put the question. Those in favour of suspending proceedings until 3.30, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House shall suspend until 3.30.

AGREED: THAT THE HOUSE SHALL SUSPEND UNTIL 3.30 PM.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 1.13 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 3.55 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed.

The Honourable Third Official Member Responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, Members have at this time the Appropriation Bill. So at this time I will just conclude.

Mr. W McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker—

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, on a point of procedure. I was trying to find the Appropriation Bill. I knew that they took it back. I don't have it.

The Speaker: Madam Clerk.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, continuing with that section of the Budget Address which, in effect, is the second reading of the Appropriation Bill, at this time I would like to recommend the Appropriation (1999) Bill, 1998 which proposes total expenditure of $278.99 million. This amount is broken down as follows: Recurrent Expenditure, $237.29 million; New Services, $1.97 million; Capital Acquisitions, $9.24 million; Capital Development Expenditure, $29.16 million; Contributions to General Reserve, Housing Reserve and Student Loan Reserve Funds of $1 million, $.23 million, and $.01 million, respectively.

As is normal, this total expenditure figure does not include statutory expenditure of $32.84 million which includes $23.18 million in ongoing public debt service, pension and gratuity payments and $9.66 million in employer and employee contributions to the Public Service Pension Fund.

Once more, I would like to conclude by thanking honourable Members for this opportunity to present the 1999 Budget Address and as usual I look forward to a congenial and fruitful deliberation under the guidance of Almighty God. Thank you.

The Speaker: Motion to defer the debate on the Budget Address. The Honourable Third Official Member Responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, I beg to defer the debate on the Budget Address until Wednesday, 18 November, 1998.

The Speaker: Do you have . . . The Honourable Third Official Member Responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, there is Government Motion No. 3/98.

GOVERNMENT MOTION NO. 3/98

THE CUSTOMS LAW (1998 REVISION)

THE CUSTOMS TARIFF LAW (1998 REVISION)

Hon. George A. McCarthy: In accordance with the provisions of Standing Order 69, and pursuant to section 74 of the Customs Law (1998 Revision), the following resolution is moved:

“BE IT RESOLVED this day by the Legislative Assembly, under the power conferred on it by section 74 of the Customs Law (1998 Revision):

“THAT the following exemptions from, and variations of the rates of, customs duty, and new charges of customs duty, under the First and Second Schedules to the Customs Tariff Law (1998 Revision) be made:”

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, on a matter of procedure. I don't have this [motion]. At least this one we should have. I am sorry to interrupt the Honourable Financial Secretary, but I would certainly like to have the motion in my hand. But I don't find it.

The Speaker: Has the motion not been circulated?

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: No, sir. Not yet.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, my apologies. I thought that it was circulated to Honourable Members. But . . . Mr. Speaker, I will just wait until the Serjeant—

The Speaker: Wait a few minutes until we get it circulated, please.

Madam Clerk, could we have copies?

(pause)

The Speaker: Honourable Third Official Member, you may continue.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: As far as I can recall, the Appropriation Bill was circulated with the Draft Estimates earlier this afternoon. And for Members who cannot find their copy, if they would look amongst those documents it should be attached to the Draft Estimates.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: We have the Estimates, the Appropriation Bill. It was the motion that he was reading that we did not have.

The Speaker: Okay.
The Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. To continue:

“AND THAT it is hereby declared that it is expedient in the public interest that this resolution shall have statutory effect under the provisions of the Customs Law (1998 Revision).”

Mr. Speaker, I so move this motion. Thank you.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, before you put the question, I wonder if you would permit a question.

MOTION FOR DEFERRAL OF DEBATE ON THE BUDGET ADDRESS

The Speaker: Before doing that, I would like to put the question on the deferral of the Budget Address. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The Budget debate is deferred until Wednesday and I will allow you to put one short question.

AGREED: DEBATE ON THE BUDGET ADDRESS DEFERRED UNTIL WEDNESDAY, 18 NOVEMBER, 1998.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, thank you. I would like to find out whether this has been discussed with the Hotel, Tourism and Restaurant Association and the Council of Associations, whichever one the Government is using. I think it is the Business Council which is the Government's Council. But, more specifically, the Hotel, Tourism and Restaurant Association.

The Speaker: I don't know if the Government can answer that, but according to the Law I am bound to put the question forthwith. In accordance with the Standing Orders, it is my responsibility to put the question forthwith. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES & NOES.

The Speaker: I think the Ayes have it.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, may we have a division?

The Speaker: Certainly. Madam Clerk, will you call the division please?

The Clerk:

[Prayers read by the First Elected Member for West Bay]

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Item 2 on today's Order Paper, Reading by the Speaker of Messages and announcements.

READING BY THE SPEAKER OF
MESSAGES AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: I have received apologies from the Honourable Third Official Member who will be arriving later this morning. He is attending an official function.

Item number 3 on today's Order Paper, Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. Deferred questions from the third meeting that we agreed would come forward to this meeting. I see that question 194 is directed to the Honourable Third Official Member Responsible for Finance and Economic Development. As he is not here we will move on to question 195. If he comes, we will go back to this at the conclusion. Question is 195, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION 195

No. 195: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning to state whether or not all Government Schools are now equipped with fire safety equipment.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: All Government schools are equipped with fire extinguishers. These are located in all classrooms, staff rooms, libraries, kitchens and halls. They are serviced annually by the Public Works Department personnel on Cayman Brac as well as Grand Cayman. In addition, the George Hicks High School and the John Gray High School have fully operational fire alarm systems. Red Bay Primary also has a complete system.

Work on the installation of fire alarm systems for George Town Primary, East End Primary, North Side Primary, Savannah and Bodden Town Primary Schools commenced on 1 September 1998 and were completed on 11 October 1998.

Installation for the John A. Cumber Primary School commenced on 7 September 1998 and was completed on 21 September 1998.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister say if the fire safety equipment that has been installed in these public schools is basically to meet requirements of Planning, or an extended agency of Planning, or is it something that is simply done as a policy within the Education Department?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: This was dealt with internally. And it does comply with the safety Fire Code for the Cayman Islands. But they would have had Planning permission, most of them, well before. However, as far as I can remember, we do have the Fire Department itself that goes and inspects the schools from time to time just to make sure they are properly equipped.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: So the Minister can say then that all of these schools mentioned in the answer have met with, as he mentioned, the Fire Code, and inspections that have already been done by the Fire Department have given all of these schools the green light in regard to the requirements?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I can't answer that specifically in the form of the question, but from what I understand if there were anything lacking the Fire Service would let us know and we would get that done. But as to whether they have inspected every building since we put this in, because some of this only recently went in, I can't say that. I could get the answer for the Member.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister simply give an undertaking to ensure that this takes place and perhaps indicate that to us by whatever means he wishes as early as possible as it is obvious that while the answer that has been given shows that there is some attention being paid, we have to ensure that the attention is sufficient.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I will give that undertaking. We will ask the Fire Service to look at all of these and give us an assessment.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister tell the House, now that the schools are equipped with fire extinguishers what other procedures accompany this to ensure that in the event of an emergency there is an orderly evacuation plan and that the affected persons would know what to do?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: At the beginning of each year and during each term, there are fire drills carried out in the schools.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Miss Heather Bodden: It is my understanding that at times children tamper with these alarms. Can the Honourable Minister say how this is being dealt with?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I know this has been a problem. Children can reach the alarms where they are put. I thank the Honourable Member for pointing this out. We discussed at one stage maybe putting them beyond the reach of the little children who sometimes go by, and seeing the nice-looking red gadgets, pull them. But being fairly new, I would rather give [the children] a couple of terms to see that the discipline gets in and that they get used to having the [alarms] without really touching them. If not, we will have to look at an alternative: maybe moving them a bit higher so that the older children can reach. However, it is important that at least the older children can reach them in case they are needed.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries the next question is 196, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 196

No. 196: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs to state what has been done to ensure that the required complement of coaches is maintained at the Lions Aquatic Centre.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Government has employed three full-time coaches at the Lions Aquatic Centre. These are assisted by temporary staff when necessary.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say whether this complement has some permanence because, as I vividly recall, prior to summer vacation there was a condition in which one of the coaches was under the impression that the contract under which he was operating was not going to be renewed. As a result there was some apprehension and even some discussion as to how some of those enrolled would be accommodated.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: It is my understanding that all but one are contracted officers and naturally are subject to renewal of contract. That would be on the recommendation of the relevant person in the Ministry, in this case.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: I wonder if the Honourable Official Member is in a position to say how many children are coached daily in swimming by each of the coaches.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: The information the Member seeks is apparently unavailable. But this can certainly be obtained if she so desires.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: I would wish to receive that if the Hon. Official Member can supply that to me. Maybe my questions should not be directed to him because I guess this question was directed to the First Official Member because of Personnel. So, I don't think I will put him in a position that he may not be able to answer me. I will bring my supplementary now in a question later on to the relevant Ministry.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W McKeeva Bush: Can the Member clarify whether or not these coaches are new?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: It is my understanding that all but one have been there for quite some time. There is one in a temporary capacity relieving someone who is on maternity leave. That person is new.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, we will return to Question 194. As the Honourable Third Official Member Responsible for Finance and Economic Development has still not arrived, would a Member of Government move the deferral of this question please, under Standing Order 23(5)?

DEFERRAL OF QUESTION 194

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: As the Honourable Financial Secretary is not here, I would ask the House Committee to put this on at a later date to be answered orally.

The Speaker: I didn't understand what you said. Would you repeat that please?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Yes, sir. It could go on at a later stage for answering as the Honourable Financial Secretary is not here. So if we could stand it down till a later date. . .

The Speaker: Yes, if you would just defer it under Standing Order 23(5) I will put the question.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Under Standing Order 23(5) I would ask for the question to please be deferred.

The Speaker: Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: QUESTION 194 DEFERRED.

The Speaker: That concludes Question Time for this morning. Item 4 on today's Order Paper, Government Business, Bills. Second Reading.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

BILLS

SECOND READING

THE PROCEEDS OF CRIMINAL CONDUCT (AMENDMENT) (FOREIGN OFFENCES) BILL, 1998

The Clerk: The Proceeds of Criminal Conduct (Amendment) (Foreign Offences) Bill, 1998.

The Speaker: The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Honourable Members will recall that this Bill received its first reading in the last meeting of the Legislative Assembly and was held over until this meeting for the remainder of its passage through the House. Mr. Speaker, my duty this morning is somewhat unusual because normally the presenter of a Bill, or an amending Bill, is describing to the House the various changes, certainly in an amending Bill, that the amendment makes to the Law and the beneficial effect that those changes will have and the consequences. But my presentation this morning is to do the exact opposite of that and to present to the House an amendment that will cause absolutely no change to the Proceeds of Criminal Conduct Law at all, and leave it as it is at the present time.

That might sound a rather odd situation and I will certainly explain why as I go through the presentation. But that is indeed the case, and the amendments that are before the House this morning are designed to maintain the status quo as far as the Proceeds of Criminal Conduct Law is concerned. So let me go through them and I am not just going to read out the Memorandum of Objects and Reasons. I may well do so towards the end of my presentation, but I think it would be easier if I take them in a somewhat different order to the way they are set out in the Memorandum of Objects and Reasons.

If there is any doubt in the minds of Members of this House, the Bill we are reading is The Proceeds of Criminal Conduct (Amendment) (Foreign Offences) Bill, 1998, which amends The Proceeds of Criminal Conduct Law. That is the purpose of it.

There are three amendments to the Law contained in this Bill. As I said, I am not going to go through them in the order that they are set out in the Memorandum of Objects and Reasons because I think it is more intelligible if I do it in a different way.

The first thing that I need to emphasise is that these amendments do not change the effect of the Proceeds of Criminal Conduct Law, and they are designed to do exactly that. The amendment principally removes from the schedule to the Law itself what has become known as the Fiscal Exemption Clause. Those of you who have a copy of the Law in front of you, if you turn to page 44, the Clause I am referring to is Clause 3(1) of the Schedule (there is only one Schedule to this Law). This amendment amends the subsection (b) so that it now reads: "References to conduct to which this Schedule applies are references to conduct which constitutes an offence to which this Law applies, or would constitute such an offence if it had occurred in the islands, other than drug trafficking offences." The Law at the moment goes on then to specifically exclude Fiscal Offences with some exceptions.

Now, let me say that this Schedule applies only to external confiscation orders. It does not relate to money laundering offences within the islands. The Schedule itself is headed "Modifications to the Law when applied to external confiscation orders and related proceedings." For an external confiscation order to be registered in Cayman, the country in which that confiscation order has been made has to be a designated country under the Law. And, Mr. Speaker, there are only two such countries—one is the United Kingdom, the other is the United States of America.

I have stated that the so-called fiscal exemption clause is being removed by this amendment. And for those of you with the green Bill in front of you this is accomplished by clause 5 of the amending Bill. The reason I say that this makes no change to the effect of the Bill is because the real test of whether or not Cayman can offer assistance, or is able to register an external confiscation order, is what is called the dual criminality test. It is something that I have referred to on a number of occasions in this House and I don't propose to go through it in detail other than to say that colloquially speaking it means that the facts giving rise to an offence overseas in another country, if those same facts were repeated in the Cayman Islands, they would give rise to a relevant offence in the Cayman Islands. The reason I use the expression 'relevant offence' is because the Proceeds of Criminal Conduct Law only applies to indictable offences.

That dual criminality test remains in place. So any request for the registration of a confiscation order in Cayman has to pass the dual criminality test. As Members are well aware, Cayman does not have any form of direct taxation. Consequently, there are no tax offences in Cayman. And so, a request to enforce by way of registration of an external confiscation order or, indeed, in any other way, a tax offence in another country would not pass the dual criminality test in Cayman. And so, the fiscal exemption clause is not needed. That is why it is being removed, and that is why the amendment is being brought.

The fiscal exemption clause is merely setting out specifically that Cayman would not enforce tax offences of other countries. And that has caused some problem for Cayman internationally because internationally that is viewed with some concern and was seen, I believe, by some jurisdictions that although Cayman was perfectly capable of enforcing the fiscal offences of other jurisdictions, it was choosing not to do so, and was emphasising that by putting a specific exemption in this piece of legislation.

This amendment gives a clear indication to those outside Cayman, that Cayman is making no exception as to tax offences, or fiscal offences, they have to pass exactly the same test as any other criminal offence. And only if they pass that test will Cayman enforce them. As I just indicated, they are not going to pass that test because we do not have those equivalent offences in Cayman. So that is why I say there is no change: Cayman has not enforced the fiscal statutes of other countries and it will not do so because those offences will not pass the dual criminality test. But it does avoid the remarks and positions taken by some other jurisdictions that in some way Cayman is making a complete exception and specifically excluding these offences.

Tax offences will have to run exactly the same gamut, exactly the same tests as any other offence. And because we have no direct taxation in Cayman, because we have no tax offences then they will fail that test.

I don't think I can put it any clearer than that, Mr. Speaker. I am also going to deal with some other amendments in this amending Bill because one of the concerns is that relying so heavily on the dual criminality test we have to be absolutely certain that we are able to apply it properly. And the way that we can ensure that we are applying it properly is to know that we are in possession of all the relevant facts surrounding the offence or charge, or whatever it may be.

Now, there is already a provision for that in the Proceeds of Criminal Conduct Law, and that would be found in section 33 of the Law, on page 41. If you turn to the green Bill you will see that clause 4 of the green Bill repeals section 33 and substitutes a new section 33. And, if I may say so, a much tougher section 33. This new section 33 now specifies the information that has to be provided by any other jurisdiction seeking the assistance of the Cayman Islands under this Law. I will read it out because it bears reading out: "33. A request for assistance sent to the Attorney-General by the appropriate authority of a designated country [bearing in mind that those designated countries are the United Kingdom and the United States of America] shall- (a) be accompanied by a statement of the facts, either alleged or proved, in respect of which proceedings have been, or are about to be, instituted which have resulted, or may result, in an external confiscation order being made;"

In other words, we will require not just details of the charges being laid, not just details of the offences that have been committed, or alleged to have been committed, but the facts upon which those charges or offences are based, we will want to know all the circumstances that relate to that so that we can ensure the dual criminality test has been satisfied. If you remember that test calls for us to (and I am using this colloquially now) transpose those facts, put them into a Cayman setting and say if that had happened in Cayman, would it amount to an offence. So you will see that unless we know what those facts are and know in detail what those facts are we can't actually carry out that test. So it is very important that we know those.

Then it goes on to say in this new section 33 "and (b) unless the contrary is shown, be deemed to constitute the authority of the government of that country for the Attorney-General to act on its behalf in any proceedings in the Grand Court under section 30 or any other provision of this Law as applied by section 29(2)." Now that is a repeat of the existing section 33, in effect. But it is the one that I read out initially, 33(a) that is the new tougher section and ensures that we will have all the information to make that judgment. The section refers to the Attorney General, so that request for assistance comes to the Attorney General and it is the Attorney General and his officers that apply the dual criminality test to those facts to determine whether or not it meets the test.

But it doesn't end there because this amending Bill goes a stage further. If we go back again this time to clause 3 of the amending Bill, you will see why I did not follow the Memorandum of Objects and Reasons (because I am actually taking this Bill in the reverse order because I think it makes more sense like that); clause 3 amends section 30 of the principal Law. Section 30 can be found on page 39 of the Law itself. Section 30 deals with the actual registration by the Grand Court of an external confiscation order the way an application is made by the Attorney General on behalf of the Government of the designated country to the Grand Court and the facts and tests that the Grand Court has to carry out.

I will now read out the amendment contained in clause 3 of the amending Bill. It says, "(3) The Grand Court shall not register an external confiscation order made in a designated country- (a) where the Attorney-General has issued a certificate to the effect that the application to register the order is contrary to the public interest of the Islands; [that's a pretty wide discretion that is in there, Mr. Speaker. And then it goes on to say,] or (b) where the facts described in the statement made under section 33(a) [that's the new section that I have just been reading out] or in the affidavit made under paragraph 8 of the Schedule do not amount to criminal conduct."

In other words, there is a second hurdle here, that even if the Attorney General or his officers get it wrong and they think that the dual criminality test has been passed, that is not the end of the matter because the application has to go before the Grand Court. If the Grand Court is not satisfied that the test has been met, the Grand Court doesn't have any discretion. The Grand Court has to throw it out. It has to deny it. In fact, it has to refuse to hear it. So, there is a backup, a long-stop test that is performed by the Grand Court.

First of all, we have the full statement of facts, and an affidavit prepared and sent to Cayman by the designated country setting out all the surrounding and underlying facts of the particular case. Then the Attorney General considers it, comes to a decision as to whether or not this meets the dual criminality test, if it doesn't that's the end of it, it doesn't go any further. Even if he does think that it meets the dual criminality test and then makes an application to the Grand Court, he, on behalf of that overseas jurisdiction (the USA or the UK) has to satisfy the Grand Court judge that it does indeed meet the dual criminality test. And if the Grand Court judge is not satisfied, it gets thrown out again and it doesn't move any further.

There are, I believe, ample safeguards to make sure that Cayman is fully aware of the facts surrounding any requests that come to us from a designated country (as I say, the United States and the United Kingdom) and to make sure that we have the full facts and the full underlying basis for those offences and/or charges.

But even then, we have two tests, two stages that that request has to go through: first of all, the Attorney General and his officers have to look at it and be satisfied, and then there is yet a further stage, that even if it passes that, the Grand Court judge has to be satisfied. And only then would that external confiscation order not necessarily be granted because that would depend again upon the facts of the case. Only then would the individual facts and the decision as to whether or not it should be registered be taken. If it failed to meet either of those two hurdles, well, to use a baseball expression, it wouldn't even get past first base. It wouldn't get anywhere at all.

So that is the reason those amendments have been brought in the way they have. I can tell Members that the amending Bill was discussed at considerable length with the Financial Secretary's Private Sector Consultative Committee. Some months ago it was discussed before it came for its first reading back in June, and was approved by them. I have explained the reasoning behind at what first sight seems a rather odd amendment, when I say that here I am bringing an amending Bill that is designed to change absolutely nothing. I hope that Members now understand why it is felt necessary to bring this Bill and will feel comforted by the assurances that I have given as to the way the amendments have been crafted.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled The Proceeds of Criminal Conduct (Amendment) (Foreign Offences) Bill, 1998, be given a second reading. The motion is open for debate. The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I wish to thank the Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration for his very able presentation of this very important and somewhat delicate amendment Bill to our Proceeds of Criminal Conduct Law.

The amendment Bill, for the record and for clarity, is The Proceeds of Criminal Conduct (Amendment) (Foreign Offences) Bill, 1998. He has covered a lot of ground, so my contribution will be brief. But there are one or two points I wish to raise and hopefully the Honourable Member can clear these up during his winding up remarks.

One point that I feel the Member should consider, and should be considered by the House, is that this Government cannot afford on this Bill or any future Bill to be taking a reactive position. In other words, we should be moving forward with a proactive stance. We should not find ourselves in a position where we are reacting every time there is some pressure from overseas governments, be that the UK or any other country. We realise that in this Law there are two designated countries, the United States and the United Kingdom. By virtue of the position of the UK now in particular in the European market, we wonder what danger that might have in extending this privilege to some of those countries at a later date.

On the positive side, this Bill is particularly important in view of the scrutiny now being placed on the Cayman Islands, not only by the mother country, the UK, but also by her OECD member countries including the United States. Hopefully by the extension and removal of this fiscal clause it will also counter much of the criticism now being levelled against the Cayman Islands in particular in regards to the lack of transparency in our laws.

There is one particular point in regard to the designated countries that I wish to raise, and hopefully the Honourable Second Official Member will comment on this. Under the Schedule of the Proceeds of Criminal Conduct Law Designated Country Order 1997, and in sections 3 and 4 it is noted that as regards the designated country, the United Kingdom, that is, the point at which proceedings for an offence are instituted seem to be at the level of a Justice of the Peace. The point at which proceedings for an offence are instituted in regard to the United Kingdom is when a Justice of the Peace issues a summons or warrant under section 1 of the Magistrates Court Act 1980 in respect of that offence. Perhaps at some later stage this should be reviewed. I am not sure that this position should not be at a higher level when the point of proceedings would be instituted, that is in respect to the United Kingdom. It is not in any way to denigrate, or look down on the position of the Justice of the Peace, but I believe that this matter is so delicate and so important that perhaps someone with a legal background should be the person to issue such a summons or warrant.

The position in regard to the United States is slightly different. It states that the point at which proceedings for an offence are instituted are when an indictment, information or complaint has been filed against a person in respect of an offence. Even though I know that that particular point was not covered by this amending Bill, it is relevant to the principal Law and perhaps the Honourable Member would be kind enough to comment on that.

The Honourable Second Official Member has done a comprehensive job in explaining the reasons, the purpose of this amending Bill. Basically, it would seem to me that the most important areas would have to be section 30 as regards the addition of the statement of facts, and section 3(1)(b) under the Schedule to the principal Law.

The amendment to section 30 adds to that section a very important addition where the designated country cannot just receive information by requesting it, but must support such a request by a statement of fact to show that the request is warranted. This is very important. And I wish to congratulate the Honourable Second Official Member for piloting this change.

It basically states under 33(a) (the new section) “33. A request for assistance sent to the Attorney-General by the appropriate authority of a designated country shall- (a) be accompanied by a statement of the facts, either alleged or proved, in respect of which proceedings have been, or are about to be, instituted which have resulted, or may result, in an external confiscation order being made; . . .” The position before this amendment came about did not make any reference at all to a statement of facts. So this inclusion is most important.

Under the Schedule the removal, as mentioned by the Honourable Second Official Member . . . this section principally removes the fiscal exemption clause 3(1)(b) of the Schedule. This has caused a lot of concern. But, as mentioned by the Honourable mover upon presenting this amendment, this will not make a lot of difference because of the principle of dual criminality in the Cayman Islands. We do not now recognise taxation as an offence. So even though cosmetically this will be in line with what is expected not only by the UK, but by other OECD countries (and throughout the world no doubt), as regards the Cayman Islands because taxation is not regarded as an offence here this can hardly make a major difference in regard to these amendments.

Other than those points raised which I would wish the Honourable Second Official Member to look into, I certainly have no objection to this amendment Bill, and I give it my full support. Thank you.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, I too would like to congratulate the Honourable Attorney General in his presentation of this Bill. I feel that he has done a good job in seeing the matter through to this stage. I am particularly glad that he came to us so that we had some knowledge beforehand of the contents.

In the contribution by the Third Elected Member for George Town, he mentioned being proactive. And the Attorney General mentioned the OECD. This, presumably, is one of those international obligations that was talked about in the speech given by Mr. Cook (the Secretary of State) on the review of the Dependent Territories when he talked about our international obligations, particularly financial matters. I know that some people do not hold the same view as I do, but this has to be part and parcel of what the review is all about.

If that is so, and if I am correct, the only objection I have to the whole thing is that Government cannot continue to ignore important committees set up by this House. This House has set up a committee to deal with the review. And while we did have knowledge, I would like to see these kinds of things go through that stage in the future. All I am asking is for the Government to bear that in mind because if we are going to talk about being proactive, if we are going to talk about being transparent, that is what that committee was set up to assist us to do. And I completely agree with the Third Elected Member for George Town when he mentioned these things.

That is all I have to say on this Bill. I would, again, like to congratulate the Honourable Attorney General in seeing the matter through, and for those changes made. I agree with the Member for George Town regarding the Justice of the Peace and the summons. I would like to see that where somebody else would issue it. Thank you.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I will be brief, but I think there are just a couple more questions which the mover might want to address in his winding up. I think everyone knows that I am not very good at congratulating people in this Honourable House, so he will forgive me if I don't start with the same tone as the other two speakers. But it is not meant in a pointed fashion.

In his delivery, the Honourable Second Official Member spent a little time dealing with the dual criminality principle. While it is accepted by me at this point in time that the amendments will not affect this principle, I have to reiterate that we have to be very careful from here on in with the pressures that have been mentioned which may be coming from external forces to ensure that all of our laws relating to these offences must never, ever weaken the principle of dual criminality which we hold on to dearly here. It is the foundation on which we function in that area. So, I don't think too much emphasis can be put on that.

There is also a question of cost. And I am not 100% sure of the way the situation will work. But if I may use what the Honourable Second Official Member mentioned earlier on, my colloquial way to explain it, perhaps it can be addressed. If there are requests that are coming from other countries and we have to go through our court system, we have to do specific, what I call means tests, to decide on what action is to be taken; there must be costs involved. I don't know how these costs will be addressed and perhaps if it is something that does not happen very often, then the costs involved may not be something that you will really pay very close attention to. But, we don't know that that will be the case down the line. Hopefully it will. But in case it isn't, is this something that we find ourselves in a situation where we have to be budgeting special funds in that area to take care of these matters? I am raising these questions so that some explanation can be proffered so we can understand exactly what the whole thing will entail.

I have to admit, and I think probably most other people in here will understand that when it comes to these matters I am not the easiest one to deal with, and I accept that. I have good reasons, but that doesn't mean that I can't listen and understand. As the mover has presented the Bill, and not even grudgingly this morning, I have to admit that I accept the explanations for the amendments and this will not be one of the times when I am jumping up and taking anybody on about it. But if he would give a couple of those explanations in his winding up, I think to tie in with what the other two speakers mentioned, one thing I am sure he will explain is in regard to what was mentioned to a Justice of the Peace triggering the action. I think perhaps there may be cause for concern there and I certainly understand exactly where the Third Elected Member for George Town is coming from with the question.

I also believe that it is important for us not to fall into the trap mentioned by the Third Elected Member for George Town whereby we get paranoid once pressures start to come from elsewhere, regardless of where it is, because I hold the view that a lot of it is designed to be how they want us to be, and I think perhaps while we understand certain things have to fall in line we also must understand that at certain points in time, once we know we are right, then we must stand our ground.

So I think we have to kind of hold on to that thought in regard to these dealings as intricate and delicate as they may be. But I, for one, as nervous as the situation has been in the recent past, am by no means disheartened to the point where we are going to be caused total distress. But it certainly is a situation that we have to keep monitoring and this one I don't have a problem with. But perhaps the mover could give those few explanations that some of us on the Backbench have asked to be done.

I will support the Bill, and if all of them were like this perhaps we would have less trouble. Unfortunately, I am sure they won't be. Thank you.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause) Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause) Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause) If not, would the mover like to exercise his right to reply? The Honourable Third Official Member Responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Thank you.

I would like to first of all thank those Members who have spoken, and I will do my best to deal with some of the issues they raised. One thing that seemed common to all the speakers was their concern about the dual criminality test. Perhaps one of the many faults that people would express is that lawyers tend to assume that everyone they are talking to is another lawyer and we talk about these expressions and expect everyone to understand it. The dual criminality is something that I am very familiar with and most lawyers are. But it is a somewhat odd concept for non-lawyers to grasp. I will say this as much for the benefit of the listening public as the Members in this House. What I am going to say, perhaps for the benefit of lawyers, is that I am not giving a legalistic definition of dual criminality. What I am going to try and do is explain in layman's terms how dual criminality works.

Perhaps I can say, before I even start on that, that the principle of dual criminality really underpins the whole principle of international cooperation. This is not something just dreamed up by the Cayman Islands. This is something which is accepted as a fundamental international principle of cooperation, well understood by every other jurisdiction. So Cayman is just using an internationally accepted principle to establish a test in the Cayman Islands, and this principle has been used in Cayman every since international cooperation has been offered by the Cayman Islands, so it is nothing new.

For a criminal offence to be committed in Cayman, the criminal act has to have taken place. Someone has had to have committed some act which under our law, the Cayman Islands Law constitutes a criminal offence, or at least the prosecution alleged that it is a criminal offence, and alleged that that's what happened. And then it finds its way before the Court. If that act does not constitute a criminal offence, then probably the case will never get to court in the first place, and even if it does, the individual would be found innocent.

But, when these facts, and when the act itself takes place in another jurisdiction, normally you would be applying that other jurisdiction's law to the act. So if the offence took place in the United States, then their lawyers would be looking at the act that took place, the particular surrounding circumstances and asking 'Does that constitute a criminal offence under the laws of the United States?' or the particular state, or if it is Federal or State law. And only then would it be prosecuted.

Now what we are doing with the dual criminality test is taking the act itself which occurred in one jurisdiction and applying to it the law of another jurisdiction, in this case the Cayman Islands. And so we take the act, which in the case of these designated countries would have to have taken place in either the United States or in the United Kingdom. and we say if that act had taken place in the Cayman Islands would it offend a Cayman Islands criminal statute? Would it be a criminal offence in Cayman?

Ignore whether or not it would be a criminal offence in the United States, ignore whether it would be a criminal offence in the United Kingdom, that is irrelevant for our purposes. All we are interested in is the Cayman Islands law—would it be an offence in Cayman? If the answer to that is no, it would not, then that is the end of the story. That's it. It doesn't proceed any further.

It is only if we answer that question by saying yes, if those individuals had committed those acts in Cayman we too would be prosecuting them for an offence in Cayman. Then that is where the dual criminality test starts to be passed. More has to be done, but that is essentially how it works. So, there is no intention of abandoning this dual criminality test. And, certainly, it would never be my advice that Cayman should do so because it underpins the whole principle of international cooperation.

There has been talk about the Cayman Islands being proactive. I wholeheartedly endorse that. And the Cayman Islands has a history of being proactive. In fact, a history of being the leaders in financial services legislation—in legislation that promotes the finance industry and in legislation that regulates the financial industry. I believe that this amendment is yet another example of that.

I say that because I know personally that other jurisdictions have not passed this similar legislation. In fact, there are many jurisdictions that have yet to pass the equivalent of the Proceeds of Criminal Conduct Law, let alone an amendment like this. There are many jurisdictions that some would regard as competitors with Cayman who have no all crimes money laundering legislation at all yet. So Cayman really is at the forefront. And I do believe that this amendment, which is a significant one I think, internationally as well, will be a help to Cayman in the task ahead with the OECD and G7 initiatives. I think this is a step that will be some ammunition, if you like, that Cayman can use in those initiatives and show that Cayman does continue to lead. So I believe that it is, in fact, a proactive step and I think Cayman will continue to be proactive in these areas.

Now I have also been asked why there is a reference to Justices of the Peace in the designating order. I have to confess that I don't have a copy of the designating order in front of me, but that doesn't matter because I don't really need to see the actual wording of it and refresh my memory because I understand the principle perfectly well that Honourable Members are talking about. I will explain it, and hope that it will reassure them.

This relates purely and simply to the way that criminal proceedings are brought in England. I can speak, if I may say so, with some authority on that because before I came to Cayman I practised as a criminal lawyer in England. Justices of the Peace serve a very useful function in England, indeed, as they do in the Cayman Islands. But it is not quite the same function. In England, Justices of the Peace always sit in what we call Summary Court. And in England it is called the Magistrate's Court. Here, of course, we have Magistrates. But what we refer to as a Magistrate is a legally qualified, professional employed Judge, in effect. We call them Magistrates.

Now, in England that is not quite the same. In England, a Magistrate is, in fact, a Justice of the Peace—an unqualified, appointed individual. So, the Summary Courts in England have on the Bench, normally two or three, sometimes more, Justices of the Peace called Magistrates. Invariably they are not legally qualified, so they have to sit with a legally qualified Clerk. The Clerk that sits in front of them is either a barrister or a solicitor, qualified in England.

The Magistrates deal with the facts of the case much the same way as a jury does in Cayman. But the Clerk is the sole arbiter of what the law is, like a Judge is in the Grand Court here. So it is somewhat different and it is not just a question of an unqualified Justice of the Peace initiating proceedings. They are actually initiated in a court where there is a legally qualified Clerk who sits, not as a member of the bench of Magistrates, cause that would be entirely wrong, but very central to it. It is just the way criminal proceedings are initiated in England. There is no mystique to it. If there is a better way of defining it, I am sure we can look at that. But I wouldn't want Honourable Members to think that in some way the initiation of criminal proceedings in England was not done with the same scrutiny as is done here, or in the United States because it is. The process is just slightly different, that's all.

The final point raised was the question of costs. Well, this amendment will not affect the issue of costs, it won't increase or decrease the cost to the Cayman Islands of implementing and enforcing the Proceeds of Criminal Conduct Law. But I certainly can tell Honourable Members that the issue of the cost is one that I have given some considerable thought to and I have initiated some discussion on it as well. I am very conscious that all of these measures have a cost to Cayman in them.

Now, people would say, and to a large extent I agree, that that is a cost that has to be paid if you are the major player that Cayman is, in the international financial markets. This legislation is necessary and Cayman has to bear its share of the cost. I think we have to face up to that. But, we do have an asset-sharing agreement in place with the United States so that if money is forfeited or confiscated under the Mutual Legal Assistance Treaty, which works along side the Proceeds of Criminal Conduct Law, then we have a right to claim a share in those forfeited proceeds.

And we do recover money in that way. But we do not make a direct charge to the requesting country for cooperation, neither, I believe, should we make a direct charge. I think it is part of an international obligation that Cayman shoulders, and shoulders willingly.

But we always have to be aware that there is a cost implication, and if the costs are giving cause for concern, and they could do, we need to address it; we need to keep bearing it in mind, and we need to make sure that others are also aware of it because it may be a burden that Cayman is prepared to shoulder and does shoulder, but that is not to say that others should not be aware that Cayman shoulders it because we do. But I don't think it is wrong that we do so. Certainly this amending Bill does not increase the cost to Cayman.

I think with that I have covered the questions that came from the Honourable Members who have spoken, and as I said, I would like to thank them for their contributions and I would like to thank the other Members for their tacit support. I commend the Bill to the House.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled, The Proceeds of Criminal Conduct (Amendment) (Foreign Offences) Bill, 1998, be given a second reading. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

THE APPROPRIATION (1999) BILL, 1998

COMMENCEMENT OF DEBATE ON THE BUDGET ADDRESS DELIVERED BY THE HONOURABLE THIRD OFFICIAL MEMBER ON MONDAY, 16TH NOVEMBER 1998

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I would hope that the Honourable House takes cognisance of the fact that this is well into November and the business of the House would suggest, based on previous years, that if we don't manage our time wisely we are going to be here well into the Christmas.

I have always been prepared to lead off in these kinds of debates well recognising that there is a danger for the first person speaking. I believe that in this case the Government should have come forward since this is their Budget. And while it is true that the Financial Secretary read that Budget, the Government is bringing a loan package and some revenue measures which they should have taken the opportunity to sell to other honourable Members of the House, certainly to those who may have some difficulty, to those who may find these measures at this stage unpalatable. But I see that, as usual, the Government is unprepared.

Some time ago when I said that the Government was an 'ad hocracy', Members did not take it seriously. Well, I am going to say today that their performance substantiates that what is happening in this country is not anything planned, but as a result of crises management. It is an 'ad hocracy' in the most pejorative form, Mr. Speaker, meaning that the system has been seen as indicating disorganisation rather than praiseworthy of flexibility. And for that the blame has to go on the Leader of Government Business, the political leader of the country. Even though the Budget was read by the Financial Secretary, all and sundry know that it is not the Financial Secretary's Budget, but indeed, the political Government's Budget.

So close to the millennium and yet we are so far behind, so ill prepared, still floundering! I never cease to wonder what has happened to the people who came to power with such prominence, with such a sweeping mandate six years ago. What has happened to the sense of direction? What has happened to the Leader who promised that he would take the country from the doldrums in which he found it, and deliver the country to the promised land, to a place where the finances were all on the level, spending under control, the general reserves built up and all and sundry would be happy? Mr. Speaker, do you know what has happened? The Emperor has no clothes! The Emperor is naked, he has lost his clothes, he has lost his way and by the time I am finished, he is going to lose his will to fight!

This document, the 1996 Manifesto of the National Team, contains some promises that were well accepted by the country. But before I mention some of these promises, I want to remind the Honourable House of what happened on 27 November 1996. That was the swearing in, Mr. Speaker, almost two years to date. The Honourable Leader of Government Business stated at the Swearing In: "Our mandate from the people of the Cayman Islands to this House is clear. We have clearly set out in our Manifesto details of what policies we will bring in the next four years." Now permit me to reflect on some of those policies he said were set out in his Manifesto.

He boasted that they imposed no new duties or taxes to burden our Caymanian people. He said, on page 8, they were going to "pursue prudent and stable financial management of Government ensuring that recurrent revenue always exceeds recurrent and statutory expenditure thereby enabling us to make further positive contributions." I want to read that again for emphasis. He said they were going to "pursue prudent and stable financial management of Government ensuring that recurrent revenue always exceeds recurrent and statutory expenditure thereby enabling us to make further positive contributions" towards what? Mr. Speaker, he goes on, they were going to add at least $2 million each year to our general reserves. And then, the second point, he said,

“We are going to reduce spending without causing excessive damage to projects and exercise fiscal constraint.”

I wonder what happened to that little booklet since the 27th of November 1996. All of these things have gone by the wayside and instead the Honourable Leader of Government Business has ushered in an ‘ad hococracy’ the likes of which has not been seen since he led the Government beginning at that Swearing-in on 27 November 1996.

Today, the Cayman Islands is operating on a formula that is going to lead it to the World Bank, or the IMF if the situation is not corrected. And, do you know what, Mr. Speaker? The Leader of Government Business does not have the capability to correct that because leadership is not only theoretical, it is practical. And one of the ingredients in any good leadership has to be sound common sense, a quality of which that leader is most devoid.

Anyone can be a spin-doctor. Anyone can get up and sound good. Anyone can rise up when the situation is rosy and make all kinds of promises. But it takes sensible, strong people with foresight to discern and ascertain and set out clear priorities. The Budget speech read by the Honourable Financial Secretary clearly indicates that this country has lost direction. This country has lost leadership and there were those of us who were saying from years ago that we could not continue on the path we were going. And we are now on a treadmill from which we cannot easily get off.

Case in point: We are taxing the same old areas over and over. And I am going to come to this because it bears emphasis and repetition and exposure. The very same things that the Minister of Education and Planning, the Leader of Government Business, chided the Government that he took over for doing are the very same things he did! There is absolutely no excuse for that and history should not treat him kindly!

But I have to admit that I am not fooled. I am not surprised because I have studied that gentleman. I have listened to him, I have read his speeches and I know that he didn’t have a plan. That is why I split from him when I did. At my age and stage of intellectual development I am not going to let the plan-less lead me. The country is despondent. The country is surprised and waiting to hear his excuses.

When a policy fails, or when policies have failed, the Opposition has a special responsibility to point those failures out. When the leaders have fallen short those of us who are on the other side have a special obligation to point out these shortcomings. And I used to think that my old friend and colleague at that time, the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac, was an overly harsh critic when he would tell me “Don’t worry Roy, this thing is not going to last. Can’t you see we have five different Governments? Each Minister is a Government!”

But, Mr. Speaker, the Budget speech and the position we are in today confirm that there was logic to what he was saying because it seems to me that where we went wrong there was no one capable of marshalling the forces to sit and say, ‘We need to prioritise.’ Even when we reached that point when the Backbench sent them back to reprioritise, what came back? Something which was impractical and unworkable. And as a result we have a good speech, I have to admit, and it was well delivered, but the substance is foreboding.

The future is frightening because what I interpret out of what was read in the document I have is that the Cayman Islands is fast becoming a jurisdiction of contrasts and contradictions. Contrasts, because what I see happening is a widening of the gap between those who are fortunate, and those who are not so fortunate; and a jurisdiction of contradictions because on the one hand we are saying that we are one of the most successful financial centres in the world and at the same time we have to borrow money in order to meet our obligations. And we truly have to borrow money, one could literally say, to balance the Budget.

So it is a contradiction. If we are so well off, tell me why we have to borrow. And this is not the first time the ‘spin-doctor’ put us in this position. This is not the first time we have to borrow. This is not the first time ‘revenue enhancement measures’—what a euphemism, Mr. Speaker, that sounds nice! A euphemism for taxation! Revenue enhancement is still a dirty word. The same things, the same items! And I am going to read the Hansard back to him because, Mr. Speaker, I am good. I wouldn’t be a schoolteacher if I didn’t do this kind of research. The same items that he chided in 1991, the Government went on. When he was seeking to wrest the power from those who were in position then, he chided them and warned them with the same thing he came and did.

It reminds me of when I was a young boy growing up. My grandfather had an old friend, and this gentleman had a cow. He used to come and boast to my grandfather about how every year this cow had a calf. My grandfather used to say, “Do you know what is going to happen to you? One of these years your cow is going to have a calf and there is not going to be any grass. Either the cow is going to die or the calf is going to die.” My grandfather Scobel, wise old man he was, and his fear came to pass. One year, when the man came to boast to my grandfather about three or four months later came to my grandfather and said, “Scobel, you must have known something. Do you know what happened? I had to take the calf from the cow because I have no grass.” That is what is going to happen to us if we keep taxing—we are going to dry the well. And the people are already screaming. We are already a high-priced jurisdiction.

One would think that that honourable gentleman who boasts of a degree in credit management and administrative accounting would also have some semblance of creativity. I have said before that there is knowledge and then there is applied knowledge. You can have all the theories in the books, but that is not what counts. If you can’t apply it to the situation you are in you might just as well not have it. I know people who have graduated from universities and if you put them on a strange street corner they could not navigate from one block to the other. And I know people who are illiterate who would eat their name and not even know it, but be able to carry you all around the world.

So this business that we are in does not have anything to do with amassing degrees and being successful bankers, or successful attorneys. It has to do with managing: applied management. That is the track record. And, Mr. Speaker, I want to say this, because often it has come down this way. Nobody knows what I will do because I haven't been there. But I guarantee this: I would not have made the nonsensical mistakes that some people who boast of being superior have made because I know what applied knowledge is. So, I come back to this. It is a document, a budget of contrasts and contradictions. And I worry about these revenue enhancement measures because it is going to boil down to where the people who are the least prepared, the least well off will be the people who are most affected.

I have certain qualms and reservations. I don't smoke and I don't drink, but that is my personal choice. To some people, that is their only source of recreation, and I would vouch (although I am not a wagering man) that the persons who do that are going to be depriving their wives and children—not themselves. So those are the people who are going to be affected. But do you know what, Mr. Speaker? That is the same thing the Leader of Government Business said in 1991 when he was chiding the Government at that time. I better read that lest anyone think I am fabricating this.

Mr. Speaker, I crave your indulgence to refer to the Official Hansard Report, Vol. III of 1991. At that time this was the Budget Debate. This is what the current Leader of Government Business, the Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning, said to my good friend, the Third Elected Member for George Town. This is what he said on their tax package on pages 1224-1225: “The increase on liquor and cigarettes, while it perhaps is one of the easier areas to put taxes and import duties on, it has an indirect impact that has to be looked at carefully by Members of the Legislative Assembly. Yes, it is perhaps justifiable, more justifiable than others. But as has been said from time to time in this House, in different sessions, a person who drinks normally is going to go out and buy his bottle of liquor or cigarettes, whatever, and the ultimate hurt is on the children and the wife who get less of the income. That is a reality.” Spoken by the Leader of Government Business, the man who is bringing it now!

He went on: “It also impacts on tourism because we are rapidly getting to where I would think that the cost of liquor and cigarettes in this country to the tourist is probably higher than in most other destinations. So they are beginning to strike at the young and defenceless, indirectly, and they are beginning to strike at one of the basis of the economy, which is tourism.” Mr. Speaker, do you believe that? The gentleman should take an exit at this point.

He went on, Mr. Speaker, on page 1225: “This heavy amount of taxes has arisen because the Government has been incompetent.” Oh Mr. Speaker! “This heavy amount of taxes has arisen because the Government has been incompetent. They have spent all of their time on spending and blaming other people for the problems of the country rather than putting in the time on trying to make some money because there is a very clear principle in finance, that any fool can spend money but it takes a wise man to make it.”

Mr. Speaker, I can only say that the gentleman was talking about himself! Here we have, as the Honourable Financial Secretary in his professional and able way put it, the gap between expenditure and revenue widening so rapidly and so greatly that the country is heading in due course for further serious financial problems. In all seriousness, if I really wanted, I could conclude my debate with this, and that Minister would be finished as a politician because he prophesied on himself way back in 1991, and here it is! Here it is! [Members' interjections]

There is one thing I know. I may be 'defunct' but he is not 'Moses!'

[Members' laughter]

The Speaker: Would this be a convenient time to take the luncheon break? We shall suspend until 2.15 PM.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 1.03 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.43 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Debate continues on the Appropriation Bill. The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, continuing.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you.

I haven't quite finished with that dramatic introduction, although I have reached a stage where I am going to be getting into my more usual style of delivery. But permit me to make a couple of remarks which follow on to what was laid down in the introduction.

I think the time has come for us to decide what we are serious about in this country. The reflections in the Budget and the comments in the Budget Speech by the Financial Secretary set out the two bases of our economy, that is, tourism and the business of international finance.

Now, if we are serious about tourism, I have to beg the question, Are we not taking stock of what we are doing? This proposed increase in liquor and cigarettes results in the dramatic raising of prices. I would just like to crave the indulgence of the Chair to refer to today's issue of the Caymanian Compass on page 2 where there is a little box captioned "The cost of a bottle." I would like to read out some things, and I have to use a pun to describe this. This information is sobering! A bottle of Johnny Walker Black, as a result of the revenue enhancement measures will now sell for C$47.25, or US$59.00. Appleton Gold, and we are not drinkers but we know these things because in our business as legislators we have to familiarise ourselves with these things. Appleton Gold, which is a basic common rum—the rum which ordinary people drink, C$27.95, US$34.95 for a bottle. Smirnoff Vodka, US$36.25 a bottle. Bailey's Irish Crème, which is a liqueur preferred by tasteful ladies, $50.00 a bottle. Do you know what this is going to do our tourist industry? In less than a year we are going to see the dramatic effect this has.

Well, I tell you what, there is one good thing. We will become a nation of sober people because, believe you me, with these prices, no one will be able to afford to get drunk!

Now, if this is an indicator, I don't know what the Government is trying to prove. On the one hand we say that we want to increase tourism, we want to improve our standing. And on the other hand we are hiking the prices in this kind of way when it is common knowledge that we are already an expensive destination. And I want to take a little time to develop this.

I am not suggesting that we should become a Cancun or any of these other places that cater to package tourism. But we have a reputation to protect. Certainly, we haven't reached the point yet where we want to turn people away. And even if we had reached that point, this is not the way to handle it. These measures show a clear lack of imagination, well thought-out policies on the part of the Government, and I am surprised that the Minister for Tourism has allowed the Government to saddle him with this burden because he cannot deliver with this kind of burden on his back.

I am not advocating drunkenness because I said before, by choice, I don't drink. And I came from a home that suffered the ravages of alcoholism, so I am not advocating that at all. But I am sensible enough as a legislator to realise that there are people in the world with tastes different from mine who have the right to exercise choices other than the one that I choose to exercise. And for many of these people, this is a common form of recreation. If we are making it prohibitive to them it is self-defeating.

The final point I have to make on is this: Is this not counter-productive? Have we not reached the stage where the higher we put these duties, the less we collect because we are also discouraging the importation? I say, sir, that it is time for us to take serious stock, and there are those of us on this side who have been advocating that for many years now. The key—and many of us on this side have said it—lies in more responsible fiscal management.

Let me tell you the fundamental mistake the Government has made. In the years of plenty, the Government competed with the private sector firing up the economy, overheating it, when the Government should have been holding back feeding the general reserves in preparation for the time of the slowdown when the Government could then assume its rightful and responsible role in taking charge and instituting capital works projects that would ensure that our people had optimum employment. Instead, we had all these grandiose projects. And the Government has still not learned! As a result, our general reserves are not as they should be. They are negligible. And now we are killing the geese that have been laying the golden eggs. I don't know where it is going to end.

I don't want to sound like I am overly critical, but the blame must lie on that Minister who is the Leader of Government Business. The blame must lie at the feet of that Minister who has the responsibility of Leader of Government Business. The Parliament expects him to be accountable. I am surprised that such a crown prince of policies as he is . . . that he has been literally bankrupt of ideas.

You know, Mr. Speaker, this Government promised that it was going to diversify. I am going to say more about this. They were going to diversify the economy. The efforts, if they made any—and I would like them to tell us about this when they get up to speak—if there were any efforts they have been feeble indeed. And I am going to point out some areas where they have been feeble or next to none existent.

In 1993, and again I am referring to The Official Hansard Report, 1993, Volume I, page 17. In the delivery of the Budget Address at that time, this is what the Honourable Financial Secretary had to say: "The policy of our government has always been based on the philosophy that the public sector should be kept as small as possible without jeopardising the effectiveness of its operations. Inherent in this philosophy is that if all governmental functions, including central government and statutory authorities are guided by the principles governing efficient allocation of resources, waste and extravagance would be avoided, and the cost to our society, which is required to pay for such services, would be minimised."

Mr. Speaker, I have read several of these Budget Speeches and this year will mark ten years since I have been here, so I have heard a few. I am struck by the fact that there is no attempt at coherence. There is no follow on from one speech to the next. I have to wonder if that is the fault of the system, or the fault of the people who operate within the system. I went as far back as 1989 and read these speeches. I have come to the conclusion that the fault lies at the feet of the policy makers. It seems to me that Budget Addresses and Budgets are made up with no reference to previous years—just out of the blue out of sheer expediency. No forward planning, because at this point in time we still have no Medium Term Financial Strategy, let alone any further forward planning.

I am not an economist, neither am I an accountant, neither am I a lawyer! I am just somebody with common sense who sees that it cannot continue as we have been doing. This 'ad hococracy' (as I have called it) must come to an end. And the sooner the better!

Let me say, lest anyone believe that I am just preaching and have no plan, that those of us on this side who associate regularly are aware that there needs to be a better system than the present one. And we are prepared to explore avenues. But only a foolish man would lay his plan his out at this time for other to take and get the glory. But we realise that there has to be some system. That is why there were those of us who advocated that we had to begin by establishing some form of fiscal responsibility. That is why there are those of us who suggest that there must be more openness and accountability.

This Budget Speech, and this Budget, should serve to let all and sundry know that we have to remove the uncertainties. And when I deal with individual Ministries, and point out what I see as shortcomings, it will become crystal clear that we cannot continue in the mode we have been going in. I don't think anyone is advocating any advance. What we are talking about is better forward planning. It is simple, just better forward planning and the ability to be fair and consistent.

One of the things we have to be concerned about, which was obvious from the Financial Secretary's speech, is that we have reached a point in the country where recurrent expenditure is outpacing recurrent revenue. Everyone knows that a fundamental principle of economic survival is that you make more than you spend. Otherwise, you become bankrupt. While it is true that it is much easier for an individual to become bankrupt than it is for a country, we all know that countries become bankrupt too. What surprises me is that the Leader of Government Business and the other Ministers on his team know full well because they are quick, when they think that they have the advantage, to remind us of the countries in the Caribbean who have fallen on hard times through political mismanagement.

I have to ask: Do they believe that their political management is immune to this flaw? Do they think that it cannot happen to them? Well, it must be by the way they have managed and administered the country's affairs. We have reached a point now where we need to take stock. Indeed, we should have begun taking stock several years ago because we have obligations—education, health, tourism, community affairs—that we have to live up to. Yet, it seems that the resources upon which we have to draw are strained more and more each year in order to meet these needs. Consequently, we have reached a point where we are going to have to make some decisions of exigency. We cannot continue on the route we are taking.

Why I say it is a failure of the leadership, is because it is usual in these cases for the Leader to summon his Ministers and say, 'Listen, here is what we need to do. Set clear priorities.' Mr. Speaker, this Budget and the Budget speech are devoid of any clear-cut priorities and objectives. I have to say this, because this point needs to be emphasised: This Budget Speech and the behaviour of the Leader reeks of purchased loyalty. I believe that there are some people who only surrounding them people whom they can have the ultimate control over.

In other words, they don't want anything to do with people who may have independence of thought or ability so that they don't have to come running to them for every little answer they need. That is all right for running a village store. That is a village store mentality. But that is not the mentality it takes to run a country on the eve of the 21st Century.

This business of purchased loyalty cannot work any more. It has to be open. Each person has to pull his own weight and there has to be a mutuality of respect. Otherwise, it can't work. This is not a one-man show. This is not like the old Wild West when you had one-man shows. This takes a team effort. And it is clear that the wagon has broken down, and everyone knows that except the Leader.

Believe you me, Mr. Speaker, I have my powers of observation. And you don't need to be a rocket scientist to know that there is trouble in the camp! As the Fourth Elected Member for George Town will tell you, you couldn't have studied sociology without having some powers of observation. So one only has to look to see the kinds of relationships that exist.

I am not capitalising on that, you know, because if I were Machiavellian, believe you me, I could exploit that because I have a little piece of red carpet and I could dust it off and inveigle some people to walk across because the Promised Land is on this side. It is from this side that the next Moses is coming.

We cannot continue to operate like this. It seems to me from this document and from the Budget that there is a rivalry among the various Ministries, that there is no clear cut priority. Do you know why I say that? Even in the recent past, when we advised the Government--when they came here before under similar circumstances--to go and prioritise, what they came back with was sheer, utter unacceptable nonsense. Impractical! It couldn't work! And I have to express profound concern, because certainly with his years of experience one would have thought that the Leader was in a better position than he appears to be in at this point.

Mr. Speaker, just in July we were brought a document where we were told by the Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning, the Leader of Government Business, that we needed close to $50 million just to service educational facilities and needs. That, out of a Budget of (let us round it off) $300 million. How in the world are we going to catch up? When still, in this Budget Speech there is no clear prioritisation. We have been saying for the past six years that there had to be some such system.

If we were not alert, when the Minister brought this document in July 1998, had we given him the commitment, he would have had us in a box. If we had given him the commitment with this $50 million list that he brought. And as sympathetic as we were, we realised that to have done that would have been tying up this Budget in such a knot that we would not have been able to get out.

I agree that education must continue to get a majority share of the monies available. I agree that education must take priority in any Budget we have because we are committed to prepare our young people and the nation for the future. But I also realise that education is but one competitor among other important competitors. I am surprised that the Ministers, having all of the warnings and experiences that they have had in the recent past, were not able to come and craft a better document that what has been brought before us now.

I recognise the fact that we are trying—emphasis on trying—to change the system, to make it (how shall I put it?) more palatable to all of us. I respect the fact that there was some attempt at involving Members other than the Ministers. But I suspect that those efforts came only as a result of the problems that the Government was having. In the past, when they were in good shape, the Budget came here, the Estimates and the Speech, and we had no prior consultation and no attempt at consultation. Indeed, one year it went so far as to allow outside people to participate. But we were excluded completely.

What it comes down to is the fact that while the speech has much in it to give us hope and encouragement, the reality of the situation does not exactly jive and gel. I am concerned that again, we are only able to tuck away $1 million in the general reserve fund. I am concerned that we still have to borrow for major capital works, and on top of that borrowing, we had revenue enhancement measures. That is why I say that the document is a contradiction. We cannot, given that position, be as rosy as some people think we are. If we were, we wouldn't have to borrow.

Did we not borrow in 1997 also? Did we not borrow in 1996 and in 1995? This is becoming a trend. That is why I am saying that the path we are on is a road to the IMF and the World Bank. This is the fourth consecutive year we are borrowing over $20 million. Where will it end? I don't want the Leader of Government Business to forget that this is the same horse that he rode into the Legislative Assembly at the expense, in 1992, of the then Government. This is what he told the people was going to happen. And he told them, 'Listen, we're the answer, elect us. I'm the answer, elect me. I am going to turn this thing around.' And the people trusted him, they believed him, and they elected him. And what does he do now that he's there? Ride the horse backwards, bankrupt of ideas to right the ship, and he is doing the same thing. It is unforgivable!

He didn't deserve the chance. And let me tell you this: At one point he even had me convinced. I was on the hustings helping him out because I believed it. Certainly, the gentleman looked like someone. He had a record of good ability. But, "I saw the light"—like the song says!—and I quickly jumped ship. I got a flogging for that too! He called me a traitor, a deserter, and all kinds of stuff. But I saw this day coming and I have to hold the Minister accountable.

This Budget cannot be considered a good Budget. It is not what the people deserve; it is not what they expected at such a time, and it is going to hurt all of us. Twenty point six million dollars in loan receipts? No, Mr. Speaker. And then, not only that, we are taking away from the Infrastructural Development Fund and the Environmental Protection Fund. Those were funds set up at the insistence of the Backbench with our goading and our encouragement, and with our cajoling. We are taking away from that. We cannot continue. This trend has to be reversed otherwise it is a formula for economic disaster.

Other more eminent persons than me, other more experienced and authoritative persons than me . . . We quoted this document before, and we also tabled this document put out by the Dominion Bond Rating Service. In 1996 these people said that the debt levels, if they were not brought under control, interest costs would escalate and the country would start a debt spiral with interest costs chasing the debt. I am saying that we are approaching that point if we go by what is contained in the Budget Speech, and by what we see in the Estimates. We are approaching the debt spiral. As a responsible legislator, I have to be concerned, particularly as the traditional ways of raising revenue are all but exhausted.

Some of these Ministries are voted considerable sums. Quite frankly, I believe that in a modern world, in a country at our level of sophistication this is so. If we are to be serious about the direction the country is to take, we have to be prepared to vote these sums. But, in return, we also demand greater value for money spent. We also demand better accountability. And we are demanding a better sense of direction. When saying that, I am full of cognisance of the Westminster system of Government in that the Elected Government sets the policy. But that Government is accountable to Parliament, and we are saying that when we vote $22 million and sums of that magnitude to Ministries we want to see the best value for monies spent. And when it comes to the Parliament, we want proper accountability. We are holding the Government to account, Mr. Speaker.

In 1995, I vividly recall when the then Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and I, along with the then Fourth Elected Member for George Town (who is now the First Elected Member for George Town) brought the Fiscal Responsibility Bill asking for the Government to set out a system where we could go to accrual accounting where we would have clear cut fiscal policies; where the Parliament would at all times be apprised of the direction the country was taking. The Leader of Government Business beat us down saying that it was the policies of an independent country. It was an Act, and not a Law; saying that he was in the best position to decide where the country should go and what policies should be followed because he had all these years of experience plus all these degrees. When the vote was taken, we were defeated. Only three of us supported the motion. The rest of the Parliament was overwhelmingly against it.

Now, however, more sober minds have prevailed and we realise that we need to alter the course. I am not advocating any wholesale copying of what was tried in any other jurisdiction. And I have said many times that I don't have any degree in accounting or financial management. But I have enough experience to know that we have to be practical and we need to make some modifications. Again, the best testament to that is the Budget Speech and the Estimates, and this whole move we have now with revenue enhancement measures and borrowing. I have to say again that the record of the National Team in Government is not a good record. Indeed, I would argue that it is the worst in modern times because for the last four years consecutively they have had to borrow, and borrow, and borrow! Crises management, Mr. Speaker.

Let me say this: I don't want to dwell on the past but that is not the situation they inherited because the Government they succeeded way back in 1992 . . . remember, Mr. Speaker, that Government came out of a worldwide recession. So the National Team Government, the Government we now have, had years of plenty. And what do we have to show for it? The roads of this country are in the most deplorable state they have ever been in. We will need another $50 million again, or more, to get decent roads. We still do not have a satisfactory system for mooring cruise ships. We have a problem with sewerage, we have a problem with the landfill site that in five years, according to the reports, will be filled to capacity. We have a problem with cemeteries in the country being filled. Mr. Speaker, nothing has been done in the six years that this Government has had the reigns of the country to address these problems, and yet, we have a general reserve with less than $20 million.

It is a situation, believe you me, that would cause even Hercules to cry! And now, in spite of that, and in spite of the revenue enhancement measures, remember we have coming on line pensions and health insurance. How much can the proverbial 'little man' take?

I asked the question way back in the last meeting that was not answered as to what will be the inflationary effects of these two things coming on line? I haven't been given an answer. While the economy was being fuelled by the private sector the Government entered into a building spree, building this, and building that—competing. And, on top of all of this, we are spending millions renting office spaces. In the meantime the Government's own Tower Building, . . . when last, Mr. Speaker, have you been there? Believe you me, it is no exaggeration to say that it is soon reaching the standard of some of those old broken down tenement buildings in Brooklyn. It is a disgrace! It is crying out for maintenance. We are paying $3 million a year to lease office space.

The Leader of Government Business must not be allowed . . . history must not free him from the blame and responsibility in this case because he, single-handedly, led the people of the Cayman Islands to believe that he had the formula for our continued success.

I want the gentleman to understand that personally I have nothing against him. But he is the Leader! And Leaders have to assume responsibility. Shakespeare said "the crown bears heavy on the wearer's head." I have to hold him to account; otherwise I would be abnegating my responsibility as a legislator. He should have gotten his other Ministers in line.

I notice the leadership style. Lots of times he is up front and he takes all the responsibility. He assumes the authority. Well, if that is the situation he has to expect that when the praise comes he gets it, and he must also take the criticism when it comes. I know that this is his Budget. And I have to admire his courage because he is taking this alone now; everybody else has left him. He alone is taking this! I have to admire his courage. But what I have to ask is, Is leadership worth that much?

Mr. Speaker, if it weren't so serious someone could make a good theatre piece out of it. But it is far too serious for that. Every Ministry, if we take this Budget, has demonstrated that the management has, by and large, been that of crises. We can see by the allotment of funds, by the projects . . . I must remark about one thing that I am concerned over. I think it is a false premise to base economic survival on developing infrastructure and building, and building, and building to keep employment to optimal levels. I think we have to find another way of doing that.

I think we have reached the point in this country where the Government cannot continue to assume financial responsibility for everything and everyone. Maybe this is a good point to interject that we, in the Cayman Islands, can learn even from places that do not have the successful economic record that we have.

Mr. Speaker, I brought this to the attention of His Excellency the Governor some time ago, and I believe—I know—that he made some attempts to investigate. In Bangladesh there is a program. It was started by a man who was a university professor, a Bangladeshi. He returned to the United States. He set up a bank. This bank is called the Grameen Bank. It lends to people, particularly women who would not normally be able to get bank loans from the commercial establishments. It is a micro lending institution in that it has a ceiling that it doesn't lend beyond. This bank is so successful. It has a 98% repayment rate. Only 2% of the loans go into default. It lends to small business people to establish themselves—uniform shops, cottage industry, jam and jelly making, souvenir making. The institution is so successful that the United Nations sent missions to study its successful formula. Mohammed Yunis is the founder. He is someone who is sought out worldwide as a resource person. The bank has now grown to the stage where it has support groups in most of the industrialised countries. People from the inner cities of the United States went to study, and are begging Mohammed Yunis to come and set up similar establishments in their countries.

I read that when he started this gentleman got funds from an organisation in Boston called Action International to start this bank. I wonder if, as lucrative as we are, we could not in this country at this time set up some kind of system which would enable our people, particularly those who are minded to service the tourism industry, to establish themselves in such a way. When one considers that you go into the souvenir shops and pick up the souvenir and see "Made in Hong Kong" or "Made in Taiwan" on the bottom why we could not get raw materials from around here and encourage some of our craftsmen. There are woodcarvers here, there are people here who make all kinds of artefacts.

I noticed that on the Bodden Town District Day there were two displays, one of pottery, the other of the most beautiful . . . I have never seen that kind of straw work, and that standard of craftwork since I left Jamaica many years ago when I was a student there. The most beautiful baskets, placemats and other things made from straw—Caymanian Thatch Palm. When we talk of diversification we need to try these things. That is what I thought the Government was going to embark upon when they said some years ago that they were going to examine diversification seriously.

Such a venture would serve two purposes: It would give these people a sense of independence, because one of the things we have to contend with, according to trends that we see, and according to the Budget document, another thing we have to do is stem the growing welfare roles; the Government cannot be all things to all people. And yes, there are legitimate cases where people need help. But we cannot set ourselves up at this time to be Santa Claus to everybody. And we know, human nature is such that if we allow these people to develop their self-esteem, to earn their own livelihood, even if we have to give them interest free loans, even if we have to help them establish their businesses, that is the best way out. That frees the Government from direct obligation, and we have the numbers of contributing citizens growing.

I wonder why we can't do that. Why can't we teach our people how to fish? rather than giving them fish. I wonder why we can't have our version of the Grameen Bank. I wonder. It is not an impossibility, Mr. Speaker. And even if it has to wait until the next Government, I say to the people, hold on, because there are people on the Backbench who are so minded.

Here is why I am disappointed: There are institutions prepared, who have a record, who have a history, who exist solely for lending money to these kinds of institutions such as the Grameen Bank. That is why I contend that farming in the Cayman Islands will never develop any further than it has because farmers cannot afford to borrow money and pay at the commercial rate. Soft loans—that's what we have to look for. That's the kind of thing we have to get into. I would like to see us reach the point where we have a market where the tourist could come and talk to and watch the Caymanian craftsmen at work, where they could be bussed or take taxis and see Caymanian--made straw-work, shell work, pottery, woodwork, you name it. And do you know what? Our people would feel proud. They are good ambassadors.

I don't want us to develop hostages of politicians, where we have to wait until elections like it is in some other jurisdictions and the truck comes around with corn-beef and biscuits. No, Mr. Speaker! No! We are an independent people; we are a proud people. We just have to find a way to give the people the resources. Fiscal responsibility and the correct policies suggest that Government can no longer afford to be all things to all people.

That is why the political leadership has to change. Because those currently in that leadership lack the vision, lack the resolve and lack the political will to put those kinds of policies in place. That is why it may be time now for those whom they call 'defunct' to take the reigns of Government. That is why it is time for new stewards to come forth. That is why it is time for a different vision because the old vision, while it may have taken us to a certain point, has proven to be bankrupt, to be devoid of any kind of fertility that will take us to the next step.

I want to spend a little time now on education, its position in the Budget, and what I see its role being, going into the 21st Century.

The Speaker: Maybe this be a convenient time to take the afternoon break. We shall suspend for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.35 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.14 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Debate continues on the Appropriation Bill. The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, continuing.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Prior to our taking the break, I had reached the point where I wanted to deal specifically with the Ministries, beginning with the Ministry of Education, for obvious reasons. I would like to preface my comments on these Ministries and their works by saying that politics has to be about people. One of the concerns I have about the Budget and the Estimates is that from an analysis of the various Ministries the policies do not seem to be as people-oriented as they should be. This, perhaps, is borne out by the fact that it is a situation where we have crises management with no thought given to optimum effect of monies spent.

There is no better example than what is happening with education. We have in the Budget (and it is as it should be) the largest apportionment of the monies for education. But we have some problems in education that I am uncertain as to whether they are being addressed. The Minister just recently announced that he is launching efforts into greater use of computers in the schools, and computer-assisted education. When I read a report in the Caymanian Compass ( which was a result of an education conference recently held), I was minded to research my files because I remembered (and sure enough, I found it) back in 1993, November 23, 1993, immediately after a conference then, when the speaker announced the Strategic Plan Initiative (in Education). I wrote to the Minister suggesting that at a future conference he give some thought to computer assisted instruction and the use of computers in education as a teaching aid because this was the way the United States, Canada, and the other developed countries were going. Indeed, I also found in that file a book I had from 1984 entitled Computers in the Schools—The new Frontier, from a seminar I attended in New York where they were discussing the impact of computers on education.

So, in 1993 I wrote to the Minister saying that I thought this was, perhaps, a good area to get into. And I remember that one time, in debate in Parliament, I suggested that we earmark some funds to set up a pilot project, probably in one of the primary schools, where we could have a computer bank and see the full effect, and then from that pilot project we would be in a better position to know how to apply computers in the various other schools. Well, the Minister wrote back in January 1994 to say that he would pass the suggestion on to the relevant persons in his Ministry. I was disappointed, however, to know that this is now 1998 and he is just now reaching that point. It is an indication of the lack of policy and foresight, irrespective of the fact that the Minister is on record in the Hansards of this Parliament as saying he would not be accepting any suggestions from me as someone who came from an educational background.

Politics being what they may, I discounted that. But since 1993, . . . To know that he has just reached that point where he realises that computers can be a valuable tool in the dissemination of education is an indication of how far behind we are, of how far afield the Minister is in his leadership, his Ministry and also in the country by inference. We are compounded, we are faced with a myriad of complex and compound problems that we are not prepared nor equipped to address. So, the point I wish to make is that although we have a significant amount of money voted for education, and I support education because it is the vocation of my choosing and my preparation—I support that. All of the money in the world, without planning, without policy, without foresight, will be fruitless.

I am also reminded that in the Caymanian Compass, several issues back, there was an article saying that certain technical and vocational courses offered at the Community College are under subscribed. Even when the Government is offering a stipend of $200 per month, in addition to free tuition and free books. It is a symptom of a greater problem. I have to wonder what is the reason for this very obvious failure in education. Is it because the Minister has too much work? Or is it because he is busy playing Chief Minister? There is something radically wrong, and we have to reach the point where we demand greater returns. Someone has to be accountable. For if we are offering courses and the courses are under subscribed, then we have to get to the root of the problem. If in the United States the computer revolution started in 1984, and we now, in 1998, are just acknowledging that we need to get in on the deal, we are fifteen years late!

It boils down to this, Mr. Speaker, and this, again, is a contradiction: For all the resources we say we have financially, for all the lucrative position we claim to be in, we are not achieving the results we should be achieving. We are behind. We are treading water. We are not getting anywhere. Somebody has to acknowledge and accept the responsibility to lead us out of the morass that we are in, lead us out of the tunnel we are in. Otherwise, the 21st Century will come and we will be no further afield. We cannot continue in this vein.

Certainly, I am aware that efforts have been made, and I know that some success has been achieved. But I am saying that it is high time that we got better policies, greater insight into the problems we have. I think, too, that the mistake that has been made is that the assumption is taken that one man can have all the answers. It is impossible, Mr. Speaker! Suggestions are made in Parliament as to how things should be done, and undertakings are given, yet nothing comes to fruition!

I think we need to change our management style. I think we need to change our leadership style. I think we need to be more open, because if education fails the country will fail. And the results are not necessarily exclusive to success in examinations. We have to train and inculcate in our citizens a sense of community and responsibility because the greatest achievements are measured in other ways.

I am left to lament that in certain areas we are lagging. Perhaps the Minister could best begin by changing his style—stop deriding people who claim to be educated, by stopping his poking of fun at philosophers, and by understanding that if one is to be the right kind of leader, then one has to respect that there are people in other fields whose ideas are valid, whose ideas are valuable, whose ideas are worthy of being listened to.

So I would have to say that in many areas we are not getting value for money spent. We are not getting results for efforts expended. So there needs to be a re-assessment in some areas. There needs to be a change of philosophy, perhaps of leadership style. And there needs to be new insight into policies and problems.

I may be a harsh critic, but one of the things we need to do with education is to find a way to get more of our own people into the system; more of our own teachers to come into the system, and stay in the system. I would like to see a special recruitment drive. There is a program in the United States called Teach for America. They recruit just like the Marine Corps recruits. And a certain amount of money is expended each year.

When the Minister sits back there and criticises me and calls me defunct, these are the things he should learn from. I have valuable ideas. I am a trained education administrator. I had to undergo a gruelling four-hour oral examination in defence of my dissertation. So no one who is not at that level can tell me that I am defunct and convince me. These are the yardsticks that I measure success by. Thirty-seven million dollars! We should have more Caymanian teachers every year. We should have programmes, Mr. Speaker, being offered at the Community College where we can get our young people interested, grounded into teaching. We should have facilities for them when they go on: Bachelors, Masters, encourage them to study pedagogy and classroom management, and curriculum studies. If we fail at that level, we will never become the kind of society that we want to become.

We have to regard it as an investment in human capital that will yield those kinds of returns, and we have to realise that it is not good enough to come up and smart-answer Members who ask questions from the Backbench, or to give theses for answers in an effort to poke fun and derision.

I am tempted sometimes to take the attitude that it's no sweat on my bones. I know what I have to do, and I am going to do that. But what about those people who are less fortunate, who are less able to do that? What about those people who are not able to make their way, as I have made my way? When we don't do these kinds of things we become a society of contrasts and contradiction. If we are not able to elevate, if we are not able to provide the opportunities and the motivation, we could be spending $50 billion. That is why Northward [Prison] is full of young people, who we are warehousing. And we have to combat recidivism. It is one of the indications of the failure of the educational system, among other things.

So, Mr. Speaker, politics is about people, and the policies should be people oriented. And those who are in charge of the policy should be sensitive enough to realise that. There cannot be a gap. There has to be some correlation between the monies allotted in the Budget, the money spent, and the results obtained. There has to be greater involvement. There has to be greater input. And it is all well and good, Mr. Speaker, to surround one's self with professionals, and we need that. We need technical advice and expertise. But sometimes, the best advice comes from experience and from lay people--which leads me to make another important point.

One of the criticisms of the last Government was the amount of money spent on consultants. This Government has the worst record in professional fees. They have the worst record for employing consultants. And I am not saying that there is anything wrong with employing consultants. I am just saying that this Government cannot be self-righteous. This Government has lost its innocence—if it ever was innocent! This Government has lost track. So, while I commend the Minister for finally coming to the point where he realises that computers and computer aided instruction can play a vital part of the educational process, I have to chide him for being on the scene so late, for being such a late bloomer.

I hope, Mr. Speaker—and certainly I will give him all the encouragement he needs—I hope we can finally get to the point where he can set up some kind of pilot project in one school because it would be nigh on impossible to equip every school with the amount of computer equipment at one time necessary for an effective strategy.

Mr. Speaker, it is well nigh on to the adjournment hour. And you know that once I get started on education, I could go for a long time. So I will sit, and maybe the House would be so minded to take the adjournment now, sir.

The Speaker: I will entertain a motion for the adjournment of this Honourable House. The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until tomorrow morning at 11.00 AM.

The Speaker: The question is that this Honourable House do now adjourn until 11.00 AM Thursday. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AT 4.30 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 11.00 AM THURSDAY, 19 NOVEMBER 1998.

THURSDAY
19 NOVEMBER 1998
11.25 AM

[Prayers read by the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce, and Transport]

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Item 2 on today's Order Paper, Reading by the Speaker of Messages and announcements.

READING BY THE SPEAKER OF
MESSAGES AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: I have received apologies for absence from the Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works, who will be arriving later today, and also from the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town who will be absent today and tomorrow.

Item number three on today's Order Paper, Presentation of Papers and Reports. Second Interim Report of the Select Committee (of the whole House) to review The Immigration Law, 1992 (1997 Revision), The Local Companies (Control) Law (1995 Revision) and The Trade and Business Licensing Law (1996 Revision).

The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

PRESENTATION OF PAPERS AND REPORTS

SECOND INTERIM REPORT OF THE SELECT COMMITTEE (OF THE WHOLE HOUSE) TO REVIEW THE IMMIGRATION LAW, 1992 (1997 REVISION), THE LOCAL COMPANIES (CONTROL) LAW (1995 REVISION) AND THE TRADE AND BUSINESS LICENSING LAW (1996 REVISION)

Hon. Richard H. Coles: I beg to lay on the Table of this Honourable House the Second Interim Report of the Select Committee (of the whole House) to review The Immigration Law, 1992 (1997 Revision), The Local Companies (Control) Law (1995 Revision) and The Trade and Business Licensing Law (1996 Revision).

The Speaker: So ordered. Do you wish to speak to it?

Hon. Richard H. Coles: The second Interim Report relates to Government Motion No. 1/97 which reads:

"WHEREAS there is considerable inter-relationship between the Immigration Law, 1992, the Local Companies (Control) Law (1995 Revision) and the Trade and Business (Licensing) Law (1996 Revision);

"AND WHEREAS there has been considerable passage of time since these Laws were enacted or substantially amended;

"AND WHEREAS a Select Committee entitled 'Select Committee (of Elected Members) Control of Local Businesses' made certain recommendations in its final Report to this Honourable House;

"BE IT NOW THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT the Immigration Law, 1992, the Local Companies (Control) Law (1995 Revision) and the Trade and Business (Licensing) Law (1996 Revision) be referred to a Select Committee of the whole House, without prejudice to the final Report of the Select Committee (of Elected Members) Control of Local Businesses, for review to formulate principles in accordance with which specific amendments to these and any other relevant laws may be drafted and brought to this Honourable House by the Honourable First Official Member;

"AND BE IT NOW THEREFORE RESOLVED THAT, in considering the matter, the Select Committee seek input from the public."

Mr. Speaker, the Committee has met on a total of nine occasions, and the Second Interim Report reads as follows:

"STANDING ORDER 74(1) - SECOND INTERIM REPORT

"In accordance with the provisions of Standing Order 74(1) the Committee wishes to report that it has not yet concluded its work. In August this year the Committee published a Discussion Paper for public input. The Paper referred to four main immigration issues, namely: (i) long-term residents of the Cayman Islands and their dependants (including children born in the Cayman Islands to non-Caymanian parents); (ii) holders of Cayman Islands' Passports and no Caymanian status; (iii) moratorium on Caymanian status; and (iv) persons with close Caymanian Connections returning to live in the Cayman Islands. Members of the public have been invited to make written representation regarding the issues raised in the Paper, as well as any other issues which the paper may have excluded. The public has also been invited to make appointments to meet the committee in person to discuss any of the issues. As a result of various requests the Committee extended the deadline of 28th September 1998, for written representations and appointments to be made, to the 18th of January, 1999. All appointments made for persons to meet the Committee have been postponed and will be re-scheduled to commence the week 18th January, 1999.

“The Discussion Paper has been made available to the public since the 7th of August, 1998, throughout the Post Offices and Libraries of the six districts of the Islands as well as the Immigration and Legislative Departments.

“The Paper serves not as an exhaustive list of immigration topics for discussion, nor a policy paper of the Committee, but a Paper to stimulate healthy discussion among all individuals, groups, associations and organisations regarding particular immigration issues in the Cayman Islands.

“REPORT TO THE HOUS: The Committee agrees that this Second Interim Report be the Report of the Committee to this honourable House during the Fourth (Budget) Meeting of the 1998 Session.”

The Speaker: Item 4 on today's Order Paper, Continuation of Debate on the Second Reading of the Appropriation (1999) Bill, 1998. The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, continuing.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

BILLS

THE APPROPRIATION (1999) BILL, 1998

DEBATE ON THE BUDGET ADDRESS DELIVERED BY THE HONOURABLE THIRD OFFICIAL MEMBER ON MONDAY, 16TH NOVEMBER 1998

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you.

At the adjournment yesterday afternoon, I had reached the point where I was commenting on some of the objectives and the vote set out for various Ministries. I had begun to make some remarks on the various Ministries, which I would like to continue this morning.

Mr. Speaker, one of the objectives for Education, according to the documents, is to have a proper site developed for the Alternative Education Unit. That proposed site is what was going to be the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital. As a representative and as a Member of this Legislative Assembly I have some observations regarding that. First of all, it has to be taken into account that it may be more effective to have this unit sited on the compound of one of the secondary schools.

The reason I say that, is because educators and educational psychologists contend that for transitional purposes it is better to have these types of students as close to the normal classroom setting as possible, just like the principle which applies to handicapped students.

Therefore, I have to again complain about the logic of the Minister. He subscribes to that logic in dealing with the handicapped kids, so why is there a difference now? Again, this goes to show the disparity and contradiction in the crises management. Why not allow the same principle to obtain in this case? Why go to the extent of developing a site when those financial resources could best be used for some other purposes?

In the second instance, that site was mooted to be developed into a juvenile facility which we desperately need in this country. Quite frankly, I believe that that would be the better of the two uses. So I am calling upon the Minister to review his plans to site the Alternative Education Centre there, and to consider siting it at one of the secondary schools where those who make use of the facilities, the students, would be better motivated to behave in such a way that would allow them to return to a normal classroom setting. I make the point too, that to put them out there is going to compound the problem by stigmatising them and the situation will grow worse rather than improve.

I don't know what excuse the Minister is going to come with for not making more progress on the development of the Lighthouse School and doing whatever is necessary to complete the playfield at the Red Bay School. Just this morning I remarked to the First Elected Member for George Town that there was an incident when I was crossing the Red Bay School. Not one ball, but two balls—football size balls. One looked like a soccer ball, and the other was a green plastic ball. Not one, but two, came over the fence into the road! Three other cars were travelling in the same direction I was, and we had to stop. The driver of a little grey Nissan Sunny going the opposite way also stopped, retrieved one of the balls and threw it back over the fence.

Mr. Speaker, that is a situation which is going to end up in a disaster if that playfield is not completed because those students were playing right out in the front. I couldn't see whether they were being supervised—whether it was a physical education class, because at the time I was passing the school it would have been past the normal play time. The school should have been in session. So I can only assume that it had to be some kind of organised physical education class, or game. But that situation is not good enough. The Minister has come to this Parliament and made all kinds of promises, and yet those children are still playing in a dangerous zone. It is absolutely not good enough!

The final point I wish to make on this is, let us not forget the Sunrise Adult Training Centre. It is bursting at the seams, and there are no provisions for any improved physical facilities at that. The Minister for Education needs to get on with his work. We have voted monies, we continue to vote monies, we continue to support him, budgetwise and otherwise, and he is not doing his work. He must be too busy playing Chief Minister!

The Parliament is going to hold him to greater account. If he cannot do the job, please let him move out of the way and let someone else who can do the job take it over. But this is clearly not good enough on the eve of the 21st Century.

I want to move on to an allied Ministry, and that is the Ministry for Community Affairs. One of the things we have to do in this country is decide what is the best value for the money we are spending. How can we get the best value? I have said this from day one: It makes little sense to invest in physical facilities if we are not going to complement that investment by investing in programmes.

So what I see happening is that we have good facilities, good playing fields, but we don't have any organised programmes. We don't have any organised system, or the system has not gone far enough where we have organised coaches and people who are willing and able to set programmes in place. And I am not talking as much about the national level as I am about the district level where there can be some continuity.

I say this, well respecting the fact that the Government cannot be expected to do everything. But I also say it from the point of view as one who is practising what he preaches because I spend a lot of my time in organised sports in my community, and have been since 1970. I made a vow that politics, or any other activity, would not stop me from giving certain time every month, every week, to help the young people. I continue to do so, but there is a need. It is crying out. It is glaring. And I think we have reached a point now where we need to spend more time and more resources in procuring trained people. And we don't need to recruit expensive coaches. We have a nucleus of our own we can develop.

To complement that, we can get people from the community, volunteers. As I recall in 1996 in the Manifesto of the National Team there was some mention of developing this kind of resource pool. I noticed that since the Minister has taken over, and she has done nothing to further develop this. We have reached a point now where the resources and the physical facilities are being wasted. They are under-utilised, and our efforts are counter productive.

I have to register disappointment with the development of the Women's Office. I see in the Budget... I don't think we are serious about it. We have to reach further than just an office. There is a glaring need for some house of safety for abused women. That is the least this Government could have done. I am even more surprised seeing that falls under the rubric of a capable lady Minister. I lament, and I hope that when the Government gets up to defend their Budget that someone will explain to the Parliament why this particular need is so glaring and not being addressed, and all the financial resources that we have.

Regarding the Ministry of Health and Social Welfare, I want to say something that I have said before. All the money that we have in the Budget—for the whole Budget—if we don't arrive at some sensible system could be given away. We have reached the point in this country where we need to have an index of poverty. We need to find out what is the poverty line, if there is a poverty line. We need to do a survey.

I see that the Honourable Financial Secretary mentioned in the Budget Speech that we are doing a census. Perhaps this would be a good time to arrive at a yardstick and include these questions in the census so that we can arrive at a point where we know exactly how many people we have in the country living below the poverty line so that the Social Services Department and the Ministry can better utilise the financial resources. Gone are the days when we can afford to give without knowing the extent, without knowing the numbers because the whole idea should be to rehabilitate and to salvage, and to bring these people up to the level where they can eventually come off the welfare rolls and be self-sufficient, and help themselves.

While on this point, I want to say that I believe, based on my experience, that the absence of this allows advantage to be taken of the resources we have, because we don't have any empirical measurement that we can apply. I know of at least two cases where a family left a million dollar estate which was bequeathed to someone outside of the family. But there are members of that family still alive. Do you know who is doing for those? The Government. That is grossly . . . we could never expect that to continue.

I know of another case where the estate is not valued near as much, but where the Government did for the person who left the estate for years on top of years, and the Government has nothing to show for it.

Now, let me make my position clear. I am not advocating that the Government go and deprive heirs and appropriate property belonging to people. But I am saying that it is unfair, and perhaps dishonest, for people to expect the Government to do for people who can afford it and then other people come and take everything. Because those same people, when Government can't deliver, will be first to cry the Government down and say they should be voted out of office, they should be cast out, or when the time comes that we have to bring in measures for the Government to raise money, 'Well, the Government is bad. I shouldn't have to do this, and I shouldn't have to do that.'

We have to be realistic; we have to be fair. I know there are people who need help, and I advocate that they get that help. But I am saying that we must have some empirical and consistent means of arriving at that. That is why I say (and I am going to dwell on this a little more) that it is time to look into some public sector reforms that will allow us to get to this position. It is not a one-way street. There is no such thing as a free lunch anymore—if there ever was.

Recently there was a reshuffle. Quite frankly, I think that is a euphemism for 'stripping'. I believe that what happened was that someone was stripped, but to make it look good the Government announced it was a reshuffling.

Well, Mr. Speaker, you know that the Parliament got no further information than what was in the media.

Be that as it may, however, I noticed that a very important department, Public Works, as of first January will be changing hands. But there is no special provision in the Budget for the development of roads. I am surprised, and I have to caution the Parliament and the country not to expect any better results because all that is going to happen is that we are going to continue to be frustrated because the new Minister who is succeeding with those responsibilities has no greater resources or tools with which to work.

I would have thought . . . and, quite frankly, if it were me, Mr. Speaker, I would not have accepted it unless I were guaranteed that I would have at least $5 million to $6 million to do the roadwork we so desperately need. This, again, is a contradiction: Here we are boasting that we have one of the most lucrative economies in the region, and our roads—fortunately for you, Mr. Speaker, you live on another Island, but the roads in Grand Cayman, I am sure from the limited driving you do here, Mr. Speaker, you realise that in some places the roads are deplorable.

So the shift of responsibilities is merely cosmetic. It is not going to put us in any better position. There was no mention made in the Budget Speech by the Honourable Financial Secretary. So I am saying that all that is going to happen is that we are going to continue to be frustrated, and the Minister who will be assuming the responsibility come 1st January, is going to find that his hands are tied and he, too, will be frustrated indeed. His performance may be lessened, stress will be greater because he already has a large Ministry to deal with, and then to add the frustration of not being able to develop good roads. I don't know what the Government's philosophy is, but that is not going to work unless funds are provided so that we can address roadwork. The shift doesn't make any sense, and won't make any sense.

I want to comment on something which is a corollary of that. Recently there was a big fanfare about the opening of a bus depot. Would you believe, Mr. Speaker, that I took a walk out there just yesterday? There is absolutely no place for those drivers to take a call of nature. No place for them to wash their hands, even if they wanted to comply with the most elementary sanitary conditions. I cannot believe it! I refuse to believe that all that fanfare and there is no place for the drivers to answer a call of nature. I thought, 'This is not Harlem.' I thought we were past the stage where you do certain things against the wall. [Members inaudible interjections.]

No, Mr. Speaker! And then people are going to let us believe that this is a good Budget and we are labouring under a good state of affairs? I spoke to some of the drivers. I said 'Gentlemen, where, where . . . ?' They said, 'Mr. Bodden, anywhere!' And, in all fairness to them, they understand, they want to be clean. They want to be sanitary. They want to comply. What can the people do? I hope that when the Minister who is responsible for that gets up to debate, that he tells Parliament that provision has been made—even a portable loo. I mean, one could argue that maybe for the passengers it is not so necessary, but for them too!

This business of crises, patchwork, putting band-aids over open heart surgery, has to stop in this country.

That is not good enough! And then we make a big hulla-baloo "We opened it!" Yes, but opened it how? With marble on the front, but you go through the back and it's empty? Just a wall? Not good enough, sir, not good enough! And when all this money is voted it is not being spent wisely.

What can I say about Public Works? The only thing I can say is that it seems that the Minister who holds it up to this point has been distracted now for some time because that Ministry, and his responsibilities have been the most discouraging for the last six years than any I have ever seen. Sometimes I wonder! The times he has been called out in this Parliament are too painfully numerous to recite. I have seen times when Budget Addresses are passed without that Minister making a contribution. And he holds the most important Ministry and portfolios in the country! He was responsible for having the longest Finance Committee Meeting in the country.

Mr. Speaker, for all the money we spend on agriculture, this is the worst state it has ever been in! There is absolutely no progress! The only concentration was on farm roads in some areas. And that is not good enough on the eve of the 21st century. We are calling for people to shoulder responsibilities; for people to act at the level at which they are; to be accountable—to give account for the public's money; to be transparent!

Politics is about people. The money should be spent on the needs of the people because it is their money. So I hope that the 'reshuffle', as it was euphemistically called, will allow that Minister to perform in the other areas.

And I have to come to this again. In answer to a Parliamentary Question over $2 million was spent on the 911 system. I want to go on record as saying that I am most displeased with that because for a country of 35,000 people in our limited geographical space, that is far too much money.

Do you know what I am doing, Mr. Speaker? I am trying to find out in comparable jurisdictions how much it cost to implement that system. And it might take me three or six months to get that information, but I am going to get it. I know it is going to be less than what we spent. It seems to me there was no system. No one sat down and said, 'Here is what we want to achieve.' It looks to me like someone said, 'Do this and, carte blanche, whatever figure you come up with is what we will abide by.' In this day and age we must have better value for money.

The Financial Secretary in his speech on that section where he discussed the economic outlook, page 11, said that "growth forecasts for 1999 will depend to a great extent on the state of the world economy. If there is a slowdown in the US economy, this may cause growth to moderate in the domestic economy." That there is going to be a slowdown seems a certainty because in the Caymanian Compass of Wednesday, 18 November, page 7, there is an article entitled, "OECD: World economy may screech to a halt" and on page 6, "The OECD sees the United Kingdom economy slowing sharply." And

I think in today's paper it says that the Latin American economy is going to shrink.

Well, given those predictions, might we not expect to feel some negative fallout here? If, indeed, that is the case, is not our budget too ambitious? Are we as prepared as we should be?

I focus on this to show the shortcomings over the years. Way back in the Budget Address delivered March 1993, the Financial Secretary then said, on page 2 of his speech, and I quote, "In short, our visions and aspirations may be bold and lofty, but in terms of resources and priorities, we have to "cut our suit to fit our cloth." And he went on to say, "...we will have to develop a credible strategy to effectively place limits on growth in public expenditure. ...we must determine priorities, order them and make choices that are realistic and achievable."

Later that year, in November, in another Budget Speech, the Financial Secretary said, on page 13 in the speech of 5 November 1993, "It is hoped that by gradually reducing its role in the economy government can improve its financial position without substantially increasing the tax burden to the public, and still provide incentives for public sector led growth." Then, on page 18 the Financial Secretary talked about prioritising projects on the Public Sector Investment Programme.

Mr. Speaker, I am saying that there has been a fundamental failure to prioritise and to plan, and to spend wisely. We have now reached the point, according to the documents before us, where the recurrent expenditure in the country exceeds recurrent revenue. Any housewife knows that if she spends more than she makes, the household will be in problems. We are spending in this country more than the Government is taking in, and so I say again that the Government is in problems.

I have to ask why this is so. Why? When the Financial Secretary himself, in 1993, outlined what we should have done, and what we should be doing. Where did it go wrong? Do you know where it went wrong, Mr. Speaker? There is an absence of a plan. No plan, no vision, crisis management. There is a litany of problems in this country that beg addressing currently, not least of which is this whole notion of prioritising. And we have a list: education, roads, welfare services, community affairs. We cannot afford to address all of these in their entirety at once. We have to sit down and develop some rank order.

It looks like the Government is operating the way the Chinese and Japanese people read—from the back to the front, instead of from the front going backwards. When are we going to reach that point? When it is too late? When the IMF and the World Bank demand that we sit down and prioritise? Are we going to wait until that point? Our hope lies in the reinvention of Government and the public sector reforms we are taking. But I want to say that the longer we take to reach the point of planning and prioritising, the more pressure and the more radical will be the reforms we have to make. And we have lessons all around us of countries that reached this point, and then when they had to take the radical medicine found it unpalatable.

It is not easy to tighten belts. It is not easy to tell people they have to pay more. It is not easy to be obligated to the borrower. Do you know what surprises me? All of the brains and experience which the National Team has at its disposal have apparently failed dismally. Or, advice was given, and they flaunted that advice. Now, what is it?

Somebody has caused the Financial Secretary to be cast in a bad light. I read what he stated in 1993, but there has been no attempt to abide by that. Instead there was a radical and obvious departure from those things. And we are still continuing on that path that is leading us to fiscal doom, financial straits. The country is under siege. And it is serious, because if we don't escape we run the risk of joining the others in history of poverty, deprivation, social degradation, decline, demise and I could go on.

We have reached a position generations of politicians warned us about and were successful in steering us away from, and now, Mr. Speaker, we have a National Team Government under a leader who claims to have all the experience and necessary degrees to make us the financial model, and here we are on the brink of disaster! I am reminded that in the campaign of 1996, that Minister, the present Leader of Government Business, the Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning, in a news bulletin from the National Team, 16 October 1996... and I am going to make a copy to lay on the Table in a while...it says: "Government finances show a recurrent profit of $60.3 million from 1993 to July 1996." I wonder where that profit was evaluated, and where now has it gone? Has it evaporated into thin air? Because we are not in a profitable position now, and haven't been for some time since for four years consecutively we have had to borrow in excess of $20 million to balance our budgets, and twice, since that time, we have had to bring revenue enhancement measures.

Where, Mr. Speaker, did this profit the Minister mentioned go? I have a feeling it didn't exist in the first place. And one time I heard the First Elected Member for George Town accuse this Minister of misleading the country. What has happened? Are we in a position now where we have to question what this Minister says when he tells us these kinds of things? Are we to believe him? Is he responsible for the financial mismanagement and mess of this country? Yes, Mr. Speaker, he most certainly is! He is the Leader of Government Business! He most certainly is responsible.

I am reminded too that when those of us who had some foresight said there is a need to change the system under which we are operating, and to bring in some kind of fiscal responsibility, that Minister got up in the debate, the Third Meeting of the 1995 Session, from 11-21 September, and said, "Fiscal responsibility, at the end of the day, depends upon the quality and ability of the people who manage the finances of the country." Let me repeat that, Mr. Speaker. The Leader of Government Business, the Minister for Education said, "Fiscal responsibility, at the end of the day, depends upon the qual- ity and ability of the people who manage the finances of the country."

He went on, as he usually does, to say, "I can speak with a considerable amount of authority. I am one who has continued to be active in my professions. I am a qualified banker for nearly thirty years, I hold a degree in banking. I am actively a banker. I hold a degree in credit management, one in administrative accounting, and, therefore, I can speak with a considerable amount of authority that I would never sit by and see fiscal irresponsibility in this country." Let me repeat that sentence again, "I can speak with a considerable amount of authority that I would never sit by and see fiscal irresponsibility in this country." Mr. Speaker, I wonder where the Minister has been for the last six years!

Well, it is true that he may not be sitting by, but he is standing by and seeing fiscal irresponsibility. Indeed, he holds the ladle; he is stirring the pot of fiscal irresponsibility! He is the person reading out the ingredients to go into the pot! I know one thing: He may be able to cook, because I believe he cooked up the finances, but the end product does not taste good! And I hope he is not going to offer us dessert! I would rather dine with the First Elected Member for George Town because you can eat the main course, and you can eat his dessert too.

Mr. Speaker, this Budget reminds me of one of the fables told by Aesop. A mountain was in labour, and all the world stood agog, and at long last it brought forth a mouse. The whole country was waiting, and when the Budget came there was gross disappointment, disenchantment, and frustration at the fact that we are borrowing again—$20 million...

I want to make a prediction. Before a reasonable amount of time has passed, we are going to have to borrow more than that because I am going to encourage the Minister with responsibility for Public Works not to take the Ministry unless they give him resources to do road work with because it will mean that he is going to lose his hitherto good reputation, and he is going to be frustrated.

When saying that, I am not encouraging him to borrow. I am going to give him some ideas where he can cut and have some savings! I don't want to be like the Leader of Government Business was in 1991, railing out against the increases on wine and cigarettes, and taxation, and then coming here and doing it twice.

What we have is evidence of fiscal irresponsibility of the highest order. I hope that when the Leader of Government Business answers, as well he should, he tells the country where the profit he told them we had in 1996 evaporated to; and tell them what he is going to do to right the dire straits, the dire economic and financial straits that this country is in now. I am surprised that for one who has touted for so long qualifications and experience is bankrupt of any ideas. One who has seemingly so much to lose is now finding himself in a position of hopelessness. One who claimed that he would never get frustrated is now showing obvious signs of frustration.

Mr. Speaker, I want to say something else: I really believe that the time is now approaching when we have to rely on movements like Vision 2008; when we have to put great efforts in to public sector reform. The Government has reached a stage where it can no longer be the 'be-all' and 'end-all' of everyone. We have reached a stage where we have to take serious stock of our position. I am associated with the Backbench, and it is not a formal association with persons whom... In the exchanges we have had refreshing new ideas for the direction we should take, and of efforts we need to make in order to come to a sensible financial management position, in order to administer the financial resources of this country where we get better value for money—where we have clear, cut and obvious national priorities.

I want to say, with the utmost of respect, that we need to find a way to raise funds outside of the usual and traditional ways. We can no longer afford to tax the people as we have been taxing them. Right now we have them under siege. Right now we have them under pressure because there is health insurance, there is pension contribution, and now we have a whole package of new and far-reaching measures. Where will it end? We are eroding their purchasing power. We are eroding their ability to save. We are eroding their ability to educate their children and to prepare themselves.

In the meantime, the Government is backing off certain things. There are initiatives in place . . . and we will come to these later on, but I want to mention them because they have a direct bearing on the Budget, the economy and the economic outlook of this country. The training initiative has gone dead!

Labour in this country . . . I was talking yesterday to an officer from the Chamber of Commerce. Labour is held hostage. And now, Mr. Speaker, do you know what my fear is? Guess who is now the Minister for labour. Ha! Believe you me, the future doesn't look good. It's dim and dark. Because if past performance is an indication, I hope that Minister doesn't do with the Human Resources Department what he did with the training initiative—kill it! We are at a point in this country where we need every contributing citizen to perform up to optimum. And to some of them we need to give incentives and take the burden off, not put more on.

Someone was telling me last night, . . . and I have to come to this because this is all the recreation some people can afford this is all the recreation they crave and indulge in. And while, personally, I hold moral principles someone was telling me that in some of the establishments around here it now costs $10.00 for a rum and Coke. Ten Cayman Islands Dollars! What I am coming back to again is this whole human aspect, the whole psychological and disincentive and discouragement aspect. If a person has to work all week and cannot afford to spend an hour or two indulging in something that he thinks he enjoys, do you know what will soon happen? He will soon have no incentive to work. If they cannot afford it, it doesn't make any sense. And then this whole business of the deprivation effect, . . . where is the deprivation that is going to be visited upon them by the rise in the exorbitant taxes going to end? With the housewife? The mother? The children? And we know that these things have a snowball effect, Mr. Speaker.

I hope that the Government, more specifically the Leader of Government Business, can tell us what he is going to do. How is he going to address the $50 million that he needs, according to the document he gave us sometime ago, to do the capital projects in his Education Ministry which he claims is so close to his heart? Where is he going to get that money? What are the plans? And, then, how are we going to fund the needed roadworks and all the other works?

Remember, we still do not know what inflationary effects are going to be brought on by the Health Insurance and Pension coming on line. And we certainly have not heard of any rise in the labour rates. So, what is going to happen to the proverbial "little man" with all of these taxes which the Government is visiting upon us? This Government that campaigned in 1992 on a record of restoring sense, fiscal integrity? . . . I don't believe it, Mr. Speaker. It is like a bad dream. The nation is faced with a myriad of intractable problems for which there are no provisions to address in the budget.

I can't conclude without mentioning this one. According to the Government Minute in response to the last Public Accounts [Committee], and the Auditor General's Report, the landfill site that we have in use currently only has a life span of four or five more years. And there is no provision for an alternate site. I have been told by people who are knowledgeable that it is going to cost about $4 million or $5 million to acquire and prepare a suitable site—the minimum! That is, if we seal it as it should be sealed in addition to acquiring the land, building the road. So, we are nowhere near the rosy position that the Budget speech paints us in. And if we go to sleep believing that we are, the reality that we will be waking up to will take more than one Advil and two Tylenol to clear that headache!

I hate to say this, but the future doesn't look good. But I knew. That is why in 1996 at the Swearing In on the 27th of November, I said that the people would soon find out that the National Team Government was not the Government they deserved—they had a good opportunity, they had a good mandate, but they squandered the financial resources of the country and made a mess of the mandate they were given. But there are capable persons, and I live with the hope that it is not too late to turn the tide; that it is not too late to save the good ship Cayman.

Believe it or not, I have said my piece. It is now left for the Government to get up and answer some of the charges I have laid and to tell the country what they plan to do. Where is their plan? Where is the priority? And how are they going to get us out of the economic mess that we are in? With all due respect to the Chair, I want to say that I hope the Chair will bear down on them because this is not the time to play waiting games. The Government should get up. Someone has spoken from this side. They should now get up and answer. It is their budget. They are bringing the taxes.

In conclusion let me say that we have some needs in my constituency. Outstanding is the library. We are waiting on that. There is the playfield to be completed and, of course, we have the usual roadwork needs as do other districts and constituencies in the Cayman Islands. While we are not unreasonable, it is only fair to expect that some, or all, of these needs which have been outstanding for so long are going to be addressed. I am not dwelling upon that now, only to say that I am cognisant of the needs as expressed to me by my constituents. When we deliberate in the Finance Committee I will have much more to say on these and how they will be addressed. I am prepared to be as reasonable as I can be. But I have to end with the warning that we cannot continue on the course which we have embarked upon and which we have been treading for the last six years. It is a formula for disaster and the country does not need that.

We talk a lot about honour and being honourable. Well, you know, I don't want to go into that because my notion of that is coloured by my studies and the experiences I have had. When it comes to honour, I am extreme. I am like the Romans. I believe that I should fall on my sword if I give you an undertaking that I am going to deliver, and I don't deliver. I am like the Romans and the Japanese. I think that that's it—kaput for me!

I wouldn't enforce my standards on other people. But I will say this: Honourable people who find themselves in this position would resign, would step down, would relinquish the leadership. Did you see what Newt Gingrich just did? He couldn't deliver for his party what he said he was going to deliver. He stepped down. The Leader of Government Business has failed. Let us see if he is honourable. Thank you.

The Speaker: I think this would be a convenient time for us to take the luncheon break. We shall suspend until 2.00 PM.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.31 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12.43 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated, proceedings are resumed. Debate continues on the Appropriation (1999) Bill, 1998. Does any other Member wish to speak? (pause) Does any other Member wish to speak? (pause) The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I rise to make my contribution in respect of the Budget Address for 1999 delivered by the Hon. Financial Secretary, Mr. George McCarthy. I rise reluctantly, because I had hoped that an attempt to give some type of structure to the proceedings, to give some type of validity to the discussions—that the Hon. Leader of Government Business would have found it incumbent upon himself, being in that position, to have answered the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town who I believe relieved us of the burden of having to prove that politics is, indeed, the art of deception.

I believe that my being here is a result of a blessing from the Almighty God. I believe that I cannot treat my position in these halls lightly. I believe, as someone who has hit the fifty mark, the half-century mark, that the well-being of the people in this country is more important . . . and it should be understood from the very beginning that it is philosophically possible to understand why the well-being of the people in this country is so important to the Fourth Elected Member for George Town, Dr. Frank McField.

Anyone who has watched my walk in life knows that it was not easy. And to come to be elevated to this position by the people of this country and fail my duties and obligations would be worse than an abomination. I treat my job seriously. I treat my position sacredly and I would not give up an opportunity at this historical time to address the Budget which has been brought to these honourable halls. It goes without saying that if we are going to play games with the Government, waiting for them to defend what they are empowered to defend, that we are wasting our time. They are seriously wasting the time of the people of this country and the money of this country.

We have to remember that every single one of us is paid by the people of this country to perform a duty. Under the Westminster Parliamentary system I understand that the duty of the Government is to make the policies and explain the policies to the people's representatives in the Legislative Branch of Government. Without a Government with a tongue, without a Government with a reason, without a Government that feels the obligation to defend taxation when they feel it is necessary, what are we dealing with?

Is it so easy to do? Would I not understand if the Leader of Government Business had gotten up and shown me why there should exist such an extreme contradiction between his prior position in 1991 and his position in 1997 and his position in 1998?

Mr. Roy Boddén: Preach, preach, preach!

Dr. Frank McField: I will explain my position in 1997 when I supported in this Honourable House measures to raise revenue, to enhance what I believe was a good job that the National Team Government was doing. I know history, and I know there is one thing one should not do with history, and that is lie about history. One should not speak untruth about history because it is always documented and it can always be referred to. So before the scribes quote to me what I have said, I will tell them what I didn't say.

I am trying to say that what the people of these islands are expecting, what the people of these islands should be able to expect in fact, is that there is an intelligent, constructive debate regarding the issues of this country. We are all supposed to have the tools. We are all supposed to be equipped with the qualities to be able to rationally debate the issues.

If this is so, why do I have to get up? Tomorrow is 20 November, the second anniversary of my being elected as Fourth Elected Member for George Town—at least it was the day the people of George Town actually went out and did the election. It was counted the following day. I am a youth, a youngster, a freshman, a freshman, Mr. Speaker, with only two years' experience! And yet, in those two years I have not missed a budget debate. And I will say that my contributions will go down in history, at least for the value they have, in giving an added perspective, an added dimension, to political discussion and debate in the political forum of the Cayman Islands.

It is not a bad thing to have someone with my sociological background in the Legislative Assembly. It is not bad, indeed, that I am not qualified as a barrister. It is not bad, in fact, that I am not a medical doctor because my knowledge and experience have a useful role, and as long as I am given the opportunity to make my contribution, I am quite willing to do so and pay the price, if necessary, for the fact that my mouth will not be silenced because my soul is not asleep!

I will not play games. I believe that the Leader of Government Business should have brought some type of concrete reality to the debate so that it (the debate) could focus on the Government's defence and what it is attempting to do with the financial management and policies of this country in the year 1999. I believe that rather than being a game, it would have been useful for all of us to learn in the exchange that could have taken place.

But, I believe that the Leader of Government Business, the Honourable Minister responsible for Education, will speak. When I was asked whether or not the Minister would speak, I thought that he would not, because I don't see how he can defend what they [the Government] are doing. I couldn't! He can't!

The best thing is to just sit there and let it pass; hope that the pain and torture is as short as possible; hope that not too many Members of the Opposition actually speak; hope that we can get through Finance Committee before Christmas; hope that we allow that 'old sinking boat' (which is sinking anyway) to sink, and let everybody have his 'piece', because nobody really wants the difficult task of trying to do the types of repairs which are necessary to put back in place this great ship—Cayman!

I believe that it is important to take the position of the Leader of Government Business into the debate. And I am not doing so from the point of view of personalities. I am doing so because in all instances I see the Leader of Government Business as playing a leadership role in this parliament, and in this country that the people need to understand within the context of the Westminster model of democracy. In that particular model we know that on that side we have the Executive branch of Government which at times forms part of the Legislative branch of Government, which, in a sense is on this particular side—me being one of those Members of the Legislative branch and people refer to us commonly as the Backbenchers.

The role of the Government over there is much easier, like all reality, if we have markings. If we go to the channel and we try to get through the channel, if there are no markers there, we have difficulties. The boat could go aground. If we are driving on the road we find that there are markings there. We are markings for the Government. We are basically that particular part of the democratic system that scrutinises the Executive branch of Government and therefore make the performance of the Executive branch of Government comply more with what we consider the general will—the collective consciousness—the consensus of the people. That is absolutely necessary.

I am saying that to say that when people inquire as to why we can't have more harmony in the Legislative Assembly, it's important that we are playing roles here, that the roles have been clearly defined by a tradition that is clearly superior to most traditions when it comes to Government. Although I realise that I am developing as a parliamentarian, that I am new to the job, and I believe also that this Parliament is new, that it is a new institution to the people of the Cayman Islands to an extent when it is compared to the long life of parliaments in other jurisdictions.

I believe also that as a new legislator I must learn, but I should also aspire to teach and to explain so that people will understand, so that when someone asks, 'How come you all can't agree?' That they will understand from the very beginning that part of my job is to scrutinise, to question and not to back-off like we commonly do in Cayman simply because someone disapproves of the fact that you are asking a question, or somebody disapproves of the fact that you dare question their sincerity, or that you dare question their integrity, or that you dare question their intelligence. It is my job to question. And just like the Police do not feel that they are breaking the Law, in fact, but are following the Law in questioning someone, I feel as a Parliamentarian that I am doing my job in bringing constructive opposition, in the role in which I play in this particular Parliament. So, by actually being a defined Member of the Opposition, I am doing a job that needs to be done.

I believe that Caymanians understand even more during the Budget Session what the role of an Opposition is, and the fact that the Opposition plays a vital complementary role in the democratic process. I believe that during times when taxes are being brought to bear upon the people that the people understand and sympathise most with the Opposition. I don't believe that the Opposition should give up the opportunity to constructively criticise the Government, but at the same time I believe that it is incumbent upon us to show that we have at least some ideas as to where the alternatives could come from. I believe that I can tell the Government because I am telling the people all the time. It should be no secret what my intentions are.

Now, if the Government is smart enough to use my suggestions, or what they believe to be my concepts and principles, then God bless them because I am here to serve the people and not to serve any other self.

My position is that I will talk, not just about what they are doing wrong, but I will talk about a new way, a new vision, and the necessity for this new way, and this new vision in this country.

Before I go on, let me say that I do not believe in being an Opposition that I will allow people to say that I will be opposing for the sake of opposition, because there were times when I supported the National Team Government, and there have already been remarks in this Parliament about the fact that I was supported by the National Team Government and that is true. There were Members of the National Team who gave me an incredible amount of support. And when I say support, I don't mean financial support, I mean moral support—they argued for me, against all odds, at times. I shall not forget that. But I am a servant of the people. I am a slave to the people. I can choose no other master for I can serve but one, and that must be the people.

I will not let it be said that I am a forgetful man because I am neither a forgetful man, nor a vindictive man. So I will read for the record my position regarding Government's revenue measures in March of 1997. I am quoting from the Hansard, page 54. I said, "I am not going to say 'No' to this Bill—although I might debate later on that the pension and insurance should be staggered and not brought in all of a sudden, and that perhaps we are getting a little bit too ambitious. At this particular time I am not going to vote against this Bill. I am going to vote for this Bill with the consciousness that we cannot continue to develop this form of taxation any further. Forty-five percent of the Government revenue comes from indirect taxation. If we put the price of anything up it will affect the consumer whether or not that consumer is a resident of the Cayman Islands or a tourist. Eventually it affects everything."

"There will be repercussions, but I am not saying that there would not have to be some law with regard to revenue measures. I am not saying that somehow I am not going to support the Government's attempts to balance their budget and to pay for these things. But I am saying that this is the last time."

"We have to find other means of raising money. We have to put our thinking caps on. I am asking the Honourable Financial Secretary to do whatever he can with his department to find other ways of raising money. The people of the Cayman Islands have paid enough! The poor people in this country—although getting something back by way of social, educational and health development—should be able to decide whether or not they should spend."

"I vote for and support this Bill, Mr. Speaker, with the hope and a prayer that the Government will do all within its power to see that this type of taxation is eradicated." [14 March 1997]

I was a real freshman at that time, and I took guidance from the people in whom I had developed some kind of confidence. And they said that these revenue measures were necessary. They said that, basically, it had to be done for the general good. And I did not oppose them for the sake of opposition. So my record stands out clearly and shows that I am capable (in most respects) of distinguishing between what is good and what is bad; what is necessary and what is not necessary.

So, if I voted for the measures then, saying that they should find new methods of raising revenue, and they have had almost two years and have not done so; they have not learned how to manage their resources; they have not put their house in order; I am therefore unwilling to go along with an estimate that will depend upon Government raising additional revenue by way of additional taxation.

I have thought about what could be done to give us the possibility to avoid this pitfall—the pitfall of so-called developing countries, the red pitfall, the debt pitfall. I have given serious consideration to what might be done in order for us to avoid these pitfalls. As I go on I shall elaborate on the fact that the real problem in this country is philosophical impoverishment, the lack of understanding of the role in which ideas play in motivating people, and defining for people goals and the motivating them to achieve those goals.

I have spoken about leadership, and I say that leadership is about doing the right things: management is about doing things right. We have in place in this country excellent managers in the Civil Service. But we have terrible, inefficient, incompetent leadership. The leadership does not know what things they do. They have no idea what things they do. They are more interested in the day-to-day survival of their political directorate in going from one crisis circumstance to the next without even showing that they are of noble birth, or that they have acquired nobility by way of their socialisation or education, or process through the college of life.

In other words, they have not shown that when they have turned up as failures and become defunct that they are willing to let go of the reigns of power and to go in the background and perhaps put somebody else to do it.

Now, if you would look at the political poverty, the philosophical poverty, the fact that these people do not even have anybody that they can even put up because nobody has trusted anybody enough to train him to do anything. It is devoid of planning in the most simplistic, primitive manner. The National Team Government with the Leader of Government Business as leader has shown us that philosophical poverty—intellectual poverty—is the worst kind of poverty. When we are physically poor we know how to amend that by using the power of the mind over matter—by faith. But when people ridicule the existence of ideas, not knowing that before the Parliament was a Parliament it was an idea, before the chair was a chair it was an idea, before the book was a book it was an idea, Mr. Speaker, the idea comes first. But for people to dismiss ideas, to cut themselves away from the 'idea' base of their civilisation and their existence is to create a damaging effect—not only upon their own existence, but upon the existence of the future generations.

Why am I saying that ideas are necessary? Those of us who are now exposed to American television watch CNN News and see Ted Turner Broadcasting to the world trying to connect the world as a common village. Those of us know that when we are talking about the Republicans, we are talking about the importance of social value in the political culture. When we are talking about the Democrats the debates are about values. The debates have been from the very beginning, from the American Revolution, about values. The debates have been from the 'Cromwellian' times in the creation of Parliament about ideas and values. Whose ideas and values should be cherished? Whose ideas and values will bring the greatest benefit to the most? Or to the few? Depending upon the political philosophy you are coming from.

I believe that the fact that God has blessed me with a good intelligence he must have intended it to be used for some purpose. Perhaps the early years of my life it might not have been seen to have been used in a particular way, I believe that it is being used. The Budget Speech contains ideas. It attempts to give us an idea of how our economic reality is structured—what is good about it, and what is not so good about it, and how that is connected with domestic and international finance movements or situations.

In saying this, the Government needs to develop a position . . . and we are very lucky, Mr. Speaker, because I am using comparative Governmental analysis. I am using comparative sociological analysis. In other words, I am comparing things. You know, we go to the market and say, 'This is an orange, and this is an orange. Let's compare them before we buy them and see which orange is the best orange.' We can do that with ideas too. We can compare ideas. We can compare ideas by looking at the track records of the institutions which those ideas have been a part of.

Now, we are talking about democracy. We are talking about us as Parliamentarians, as Members of the Opposition being able to constructively give the people an idea that there is an alternative to the National Team Government. There is an alternative to high taxation. There is an alternative to philosophical impoverishment. There is an idea, there is a hope, there is a possibility for tomorrow. There is the possibility that the economy of the islands can be improved and not put into depression and recession because of being smothered by excessive taxation.

We need to give the people hope, even in these darkest days when we must paint this picture of 'gloom and doom' that the National Team Government and the Leader of Government Business have brought this country into when they knew—when he knew—from the very beginning that taxation is not to be in the Cayman Islands. We need to make a decision about that, and we can.

We can, Mr. Speaker, because when we look into other countries what we see is people moving away from taxation. We see the middle class complain about taxation. We see the working class complain about taxation. We see that mothers and fathers on welfare would be better off working and being creative and proud of their productivity rather than waiting for somebody to give them something. We see grandmothers wanting to take up a role again in society, rather than getting $200 or $500 per month because people, life in its essence, is about productivity and creativity.

That is why I say that the National Team Government is philosophically impoverished—they can't think that way; they can't reason that way. And they think somehow that my thoughts are out of place. Well, Mr. Speaker, believe it or not, people seem to think that I am a good communicator, that they can understand what I am talking about.

You see, what has happened in this country is that for too long we have betrayed one another by giving each other the feeling that we shouldn't be critical, that we shouldn't talk that way. 'Oh, don't say that. Oh, he might get insulted. You're going to hurt his feelings.' This, that and the other thing. But we are only going to develop through a certain amount of friction. That is the only way to go forward. As long as we know how to keep it managed, then we know that it will be okay.

In the Budget Address the Hon. Financial Secretary said that our people enjoy a high standard of living and have ample job opportunities. We enjoy a high standard of living, Mr. Speaker. Yes, we do. And there is no reason why we should not enjoy a high standard of living, God has blessed us. But because God has blessed us and because we enjoy a high standard of living does not give the Government any right to tax us. The taxation should not be based upon the fact that we enjoy a high standard of living because that standard of living that we enjoy we have to work very hard for.

The average person in the Cayman Islands, some numbers, probably make less than $1,667, 53% as a matter of fact. More than 53% of our population earn below $1,667 per month. If we are going to say that the people of the Cayman Islands enjoy a high standard of living than the next thing I would do is say: 'Well, okay, if 53% of the people earn below $1,667 per month, what would be the cost of a mortgage?' People need some place to stay, and food to eat. So I have to ask about the cost of food. Then I have to ask about clothes. So we have to think about shelter, we have to think about clothing, we have to think about food. We have to think about all those things to really get an idea of what the quality of life is.

Now, I bought a house for $125,000. And I know that I couldn't get that today. I bought it two years ago. I was paying $1,306.34 per month mortgage payment. If the average person, if 53% of the Caymanian people make below this amount of money, could they pay for a $125,000 house? Could they qualify? No! So, if you take the standard of my house in Windsor Park and you say that 53% of the people can't afford that, then the question is what could that 53% of the people afford? We would find that that 53% cannot qualify for any mortgage that would put them in a position to own property because I just saw in the newspaper that an apartment is going for $85,000. An apartment for $85,000. If you look at the same mortgage payments, you will find that the person who is making $1,667 per month would not be able to afford that apartment.

So where do these people live? They would not be able to qualify for a loan from the bank. They have other things they have to pay for. Most of these people have children. Most of these people are expected to support their parents if their parents are old because we were even considering, or I heard people talk about the fact that children should be forced to support their parents, knowing that children can't support themselves with the wages they make. But because I talk about wages doesn't mean that I talk about minimum wages because I also understand the relationship between wages and interest, and the relationship between interest and prices.

If we are saying that what we have in this country is a situation, and we are talking about the economics of this country, we have to be looking at the high interest rates that makes everything a little difficult. Now the Government cannot afford to compound this problem with high taxation. In other countries where people might pay more to government, those countries have had over the last 200 or 300 years to build up, to accumulate capital and build up resources, and to have productive capacities that enable them to have more in reserves, and therefore, because they have more in reserves they can lend their reserves at a cheaper rate.

It was said in the Financial Secretary's address that "Total loans and advances to Cayman Islands residents in the first half of this year amounted to $1.34 billion, a decrease of 2.9 per cent over the June 1997 figure." That would mean that if we had 36,000 people, an amount of $37,000 plus per resident. They are talking that this money is lent to the residents of the Cayman Islands and I think that these are the type of figures that distort the picture because until we get statistics to know who these people really are, that this $1.34 billion was lent to, how it is really shared up, we come and we get a distorted view because if we look at the amount of money that is being lent there we get to feeling that there should be activity.

When I compare the amount of money that is lent in the Cayman Islands to the amount of money that we have on deposit in the Cayman Islands, there is a shortfall. It was explained to me that we get money lent in because of having these international banks. So, we get from the international banks. We, in the Cayman Islands, are in a good position in a way because the banks do not have to just lend the money that they collect locally. We, because of the international connection, benefit by our borrowing not being limited to the amount of money that we, as a people, have been able to accumulate over a period of, say, 30 years of development.

One of the miracles of our development is, in fact, caused by this situation whereby when we want our washing machine we don't have to save just like the Yankee man, or the Dutchman. We can go and get it because we can pull from their financial resources and what they have accumulated to buy their products. I kind of like that relationship. I like that partnership, and I would like to see that partnership continue.

However, I don't like the idea that somehow in a tax free jurisdiction where the Government is willing to go to task with its Mother Parliament, and its Mother country on the issue of confidentiality and other financial issues that are important to these international organisations, that they don't think more of us to the point where they would give us better interest rates for our businesses and in particular for our mortgages.

If businesses could get loans cheaper, wages would go further because industry would be able to pay people more money for wages. Therefore, you would not have to artificially try to effect wages by coming in with the concept of minimum wage, but the market factors and forces would operate better, just like a machine when it's greased. So we could grease the economic machinery by trying to negotiate with the banks to lower interest rates that would be more at par with the lending rates in the countries that these banks generate the majority of their resources from.

I believe that the Financial Secretary and the Government need to bring to the financial community the concept, not just speak the rhetoric that we're not a third world country, that we are a first world country—we are developed—but begin to walk the walk and go to these people and say, 'We are not the same risk that you would have if you were in some other countries where there is 40% unemployment; where there is political instability and all of that social decay and lack of infrastructural development.' We need to understand that in the next 40 years you can be here. Therefore, the banks should not feel any kind of necessity to recover their money so quickly, thereby you might have a possibility not just for lower interest, but for longer mortgage loans, rather than 10 or 20 years, longer 30 year loans.

When I talk to the people, I talk about creative solutions to the economic hardships. I do not come and try to paint a picture that we are all affluent because that is far from the truth. Now, it might be necessary for some people to paint that picture in order to attract more business, but those of us who have to have a grip on reality would really lose that grip if we didn't believe that the whole process of wealth distribution in this country is very, very devious. And it is beginning to also have its political difficulties.

I am saying that the Government needs to, rather than bringing taxes on the people, by saying that they are bringing these taxes on the people in order to afford the people improved facilities like sporting facilities, and health facilities, the Government would be better off effecting money in such a way that the people could afford to buy for themselves what they want, according to their choice.

From the point of looking at Government from my philosophical idea base (and when I use the word philosophical, I mean 'idea'), we are saying that we want less Government. We want the Government to define its core role and decide on its specific public goods and services it feels it can deliver to the people without increasing the burden of taxation on the people. I think I am being specific in defining what I am saying. I am saying that we want a Government that finds a way of improving the human condition, improving the standard of life for the people without increasing the burden of taxation.

For too long we have had these ideas, that: Government is benevolent; Government has a monopoly on knowledge; Government knows best; Government doesn't have to consult anyone and Government knows that it can only keep a social and political balance by giving people things.

But the Government doesn't give us anything. What the Government does, in fact, is take $1 and give us twenty cents because it loses eighty cents out of the dollar that it takes from us. So if we are going through that circulation process, it would be better if we allowed the people to keep the money in their pockets in the first place and purchase for themselves the goods and services that they want, whether or not that be garbage collection, or paying for books at school, or whatever. Let people be in the position to be self motivated, and self responsible enough.

We don't want one of these third world governments whereby you create the tendency of dependency. The tendency of dependency is when the politician who is running for election goes inside the bar and buys the beer—the people don't come to him; he goes to them. So they feel they got something. This is where the art of deception comes in.

When we come with promises, we have a wish list. 'What is it you say you want? Oh yeah, yeah, yeah, we should build this! Oh yeah, yeah, we should have that!' Everybody is telling the Government what it should do. Do you know why? Because the Government never told the people that the Government is not God. The Government cannot create anything. The Government can only spend what it has taken from the people. The Government has a choice—the Government can be socialistic and take from the rich and give to the poor, and the poor will sit by there like they are on the roles of welfare in the United States. We can benefit from comparative society and comparative Government. That, Mr. Speaker, we don't have to do. We don't want to do that.

So, obviously, the whole idea of taxation is of the past. If we are supposed to prepare ourselves for the 21st Century then I think it is absolutely necessary that we also prepare ourselves to redefine the role of Government, and to really begin to change our political culture and that comes by Government's accepting its responsibility to defend its Budget and to debate why it thinks taxation is right and why we think at this particular time taxation is wrong.

Mr. Speaker, if you would like to take a break, I am quite ready.

The Speaker: Proceedings are suspended for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.34 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.09 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Debate continues on the Appropriation Bill. The Fourth Elected Member for George Town continuing.

Dr. Frank McField: What I was saying when we took the break is that there needs to be a redefinition of Government in all areas. There needs to be a rebirth in the political culture of this country, we need to stop deceiving the people and we need to show them the reality, regardless of how unpleasant that might be. It is better that we do that rather than to begin to asset-strip in order to show that one particular political directorate has or is performing well. Basically it is called "asset-stripping".

What the National Team Government has done over the last six years is asset stripping; it has stripped the Cayman Islands of its assets by looking for immediate return rather than long term gains. We find that this is usually the case in badly managed companies. In order for them to get the performance which they felt they needed in order to say to the people 'Well, we did this, that, or the other thing', we find that they are leaving a lot of debts behind for the future generation, for the next Governments.

They have been borrowing for the last four years. They have enhanced revenue measures twice already; this will be the second time in their second term. And they are going to say to people 'Look, we have done all of this.' But anybody could have done this, Mr. Speaker, if they were going to take from the people to do it.

What we really wanted the National Team to do was to perform the miracle and give the people something without the people having to give up anything. That seemed to be what they were promising and that is not what they have done. If we are going to have a political culture that is stable and based upon integrity, honesty, and fairness rather than favouritism, we need to begin to talk honestly.

We need to say, 'Look, the world is about interdependencies.' We are all in society interdependent. These interdependencies mean that we all play different, but complementary, roles. We are all spokes in the wheel. Working together we make everything happen. But if we fall out of unison because the Government uses its position of power to intrude and interrupt the free flow and exchange of relationships between the people and the institutions it will cause, at some particular point, serious problems.

The economic policies of the Government are not sound policies. The social policies of the Government are one cause of the fact that the Government now has to resort to taxation. All that we are experiencing and all that we will be able to experience until the year 2000 are the repercussions of the National Team's political philosophies—the idea that you could become popular by making promises to people, without telling them that there would be consequences involved in your delivering those promises.

What we are experiencing here with this Budget... the Financial Secretary who brought this Budget, he, himself is going to find difficulties in defending it because somehow this Budget, this way of running a country, runs contrary to what is being required by the United Kingdom. So the redefinition of Government is not just something the New Vision group will be talking about. It is also something the United Kingdom has been talking about. We complement the United Kingdom and the Foreign Office in taking the initiatives to bring to these islands the realisation that sounder financial policies, fiscal policies, are necessary if we are to remain a stable economic and political environment.

The objective set back in 1993 by the Foreign Office to introduce jointly agreed country policies in all five Caribbean Territories to enable development priorities to be established, . . . what they were looking at, at this particular time, was to develop development priorities.

Now, we have heard about Vision 2008. And now the Financial Secretary has mentioned that it is expected that a draft Ten-Year National Strategic Plan will be presented to the Legislative Assembly in March 1999. Again, this Ten-Year Strategic Plan seems to be one of the results of the Vision 2008 Exercise which seems to be one of the results of the United Kingdom Government's Foreign Office fulfilling its objective of encouraging its Dependent Territories to develop a Strategic National Plan or national objectives.

We find also that there are several exercises going on at the moment. In addition to Vision 2008 we have the Re-invention of Government which is another exercise which seems to have been initiated by His Excellency the Governor, Mr. Gore, I think before he left. What is apparent is that the Governor has been playing a role as reformer and we have to compliment him and the Foreign Commonwealth Office for intervening because it is hard for me to imagine how any change would have taken place in this country if that change had not been introduced from the outside.

I am also happy that the Financial Secretary is able to report that the Government reform exercises are being successful and that they are coming forward on schedule; that somehow at the end of the day not only will we have a change for the better in terms of the fiscal policies and policies of accountability and transparency, but there will also be an improvement in regard to the Government knowing exactly what its assets and liabilities are, and not just what its cash balance is on a day-to-day level. We are certainly advancing, and I do, again, compliment His Excellency the Governor and the Foreign Office for these developments.

There is no way that the National Team Government can take credit for this. But those of us who understand that changing one thing most likely means that you will change other things, because things being as interconnected as they are, it would be difficult to imagine that we would have a change in terms of fiscal responsibility, the concept of accountability and transparency, without having a change in the political philosophy of Government. We would have to have a change in the political philosophy of Government for it to be accepted because at the end of the day we are responsible for the internal Government of this country. We are in a state of internal self-government and there will have to be cooperation between the political directorate and the administrative directorate—in other words, the office of the Governor, in other words the political directorate will have to cooperate with these initiatives if they are to truly be successful. They will have to cooperate with the new changes in the Civil Service and the way in which the Civil Service attempts to redefine itself and its roll in order to create or improve productivity and input in the Civil Service.

That will mean (if this can be achieved, of course) that we would have to pay less because we would be able to get more from one individual civil servant, or one department. We would be able to increase the efficiency to the extent whereby we would not necessarily have to be employing many people to do the same job.

From a distance I am saying that we have to deal with—and this is what the National Team promised—we have to deal with the human resources part of the Civil Service. We have to begin to treat them fairly. One thing is for sure, because everybody realises that the Civil Service is a large group; everybody realises that votes are important and all politics is about votes and gathering votes, so at the same time what we need to do is get off of that. We can still think about votes, but in a new way. I am talking about redefinition of the political culture.

Now, if you give the civil servants a raise, and then the prices rise 10%, . . . what the Government seems not to realise—and I have been saying this to a few civil servants—is that that increase is wiped out by the increases in the cost of living anyway. So if Government, when it puts up its taxes, gives you a little increase to keep you quiet and to get you to cooperate, it's not helping the civil servant any more than it is helping anyone. Do you know why? Because the civil servant has to buy its services from the general public. If we want a pair of shoes, we buy from the general public; if we want a car repair, we buy that from the general public. So the civil service is actually purchasing what it needs from . . . There is a situation of interdependency. The civil service does not exist by itself unaffected by other conditions that everybody else is affected by.

We have to get rid of that misconception and say to the Civil Service that we—the New Vision Group—have them in consideration and we do not expect to waste them. But at the same time we understand that if the Civil Service becomes too big, if a large percentage of Government revenue must go to pay salaries, then we know that we have a problem. The only way we are going to get the money to pay those salaries is to tax those very people we are paying the salaries to.

The civil servants are the people who are being taxed. The civil servants are the people who are going to smoke cigarettes, some of them. Some of them drink alcohol sometimes. Maybe some of them have a glass of wine at their dinner. They are going to be affected. Some civil servants have domestics. They are going to be affected by the increases in the work permit fees.

So all along we see that the little raise the Civil Service is getting—or that little understanding that Government seems to be suggesting that they have for the Civil Service—is being wiped out because it is an attempt to mystify the true situation. The true situation is that when we have taxation everybody becomes poorer. That is the reality. Using comparative Government we know that now.

I will be poorer as a politician dependent upon a Government salary because I also have to go out there and purchase goods. I don't get them for free; I have to buy them too. So we all are going to be worse off.

The question is, How do we balance it out? How do we see this kind of imposition of taxation upon the general population as causing an improvement when we know that the imposition of taxation will bring about difficulties?

The employer is already being taxed by way of being required to have a health insurance and pension policy—a health insurance policy which Government said that the minimum should be something like $50 that they could buy for the people. But at the end of the day the person who pays $50 for health insurance gets like $100 per year in out-patient receipts.

What is $100 going to be, especially when one of the things that is happening is that Government is going to also increase its revenue at the hospital by increasing the fees. Not only will the private doctors have to put up their prices because they use the laboratory facilities and so forth at the hospital, everything will go up. So how will civil servants be any better [off] in this country?

The taxation is going to affect the civil servants most. If we say that we are going to streamline and suggest that we have to arrive at a situation where the Civil Service needs to become smaller so that Government does not become a burden on the economy, or so that it does not kill the circulation, so that it does not smother the economic fires that are brewing; so that it does not stifle entrepreneurship, so it does not kill people's desires to create profits for themselves.

Why are we having so many young civil servants come home to Cayman and not be able to go away to pursue their Masters and get their Doctorates, and get whatever degrees they want to get? Some of them know that once they come into studying in a lot of cases it is best that they continue to do these things. But Government, being without ideas and inflexible, and lacking in creativity and imagination, finds itself in a situation where it says 'Well, you have to do time.' It's almost like indentured servitude.

Mr. Roy Bodden: True!

Dr. Frank McField: Remember indentured servitude? Where they used to bring the people down from Ireland and Scotland before they started bringing the Negroes from Africa. People had to come and work for a specific time on contract and could work for no one else without the employer's consent.

So what we are doing to our civil servants is almost like indentured servitude. We say, 'Look, we are going to pay for you.' And what really brought this home to me is that I have a sister who has a daughter who was a Miss Teen Cayman. One of the promises was that she would get a scholarship. Well, she thought that she won the scholarship. But, no, they said that she had to be bonded, 'You have to be bonded, you have to do this, you have to do that, you have to do time.' What does the student look forward to after the completion of the degree—four years? Doing time with the Government whether or not it can find a place for them. They are just around.

In a lot of cases we find that it kills, stifles creativity and initiative and all of those things. As a result, we find that rather than using the newly educated Caymanians to revolutionise the Service, to increase the output and increase the enthusiasm for working in the public service, what we do is we bring them back to this type of institution because we are afraid that the private sector might be able to get their hands on them.

We are not suggesting by any means that we put anybody in an imposition. But we are saying that there needs to be more creativity. I know that the time is up, and I know that there are some individuals who would like to pay their respects to the Hon. Attorney General before he departs, since this is his last day. I will leave this to a person whom I know is much more capable of paying these types of tributes than I myself. I will now sit down. Thank you.

The Speaker: I will entertain a motion for the adjournment, and on the adjournment we will allow any Member who wishes, to speak. The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until 10.00 AM tomorrow.

The Speaker: Do you wish to speak?

TRIBUTES TO
THE HONOURABLE SECOND OFFICIAL MEMBER RESPONSIBLE FOR LEGAL ADMINISTRATION UPON HIS COMPLETION OF TOUR OF DUTY

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I would like to extend my thanks and the thanks of the people of the Cayman Islands to the Hon. Attorney General for his many years of dedicated service to the Cayman Islands. He has very ably and faithfully performed his duties as Attorney General, as Head of the Caymanian Bar, as an ExCo Member, as a Member of the Legislative Assembly and as Government's legal advisor. I am happy to have worked with him in the Legislative Assembly, as well as ExCo and Government throughout his period of time here.

The Hon. Attorney General has also been a good ambassador abroad at legal and negotiating meetings, and he has been with us on many occasions when we faced very difficult negotiations, and his skill and ability as a legal advisor and at times with certain legal manoeuvres that are carried out at negotiations we very much appreciate.

It is also very good that in this Session he could complete the amendment to the Proceeds of Criminal Conduct Law, a law which he introduced a few years ago, and under which he has worked to advance and mature and develop the Cayman Islands as one of the foremost banking and financial centres in the world.

He will be missed. I wish for him and Karen all the best in the future.

He has been especially instrumental in dealing with the many problems we have had in Cayman Airways. He has served there in the capacity of (I would have to say) an observer to the Board throughout the larger part of that time. I left that to the last because some of the most trying times he has had were probably when the pressure came on and contracts for jets (or whatever), or even the negotiating of the contracts for employment that have gone on there. But this has kept things interesting, I am sure.

Again I would wish for you, Mr. Attorney and Karen, all the best, and hope to see you both back in Cayman in the future. God's blessings go with you.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Thank you.

I rise to echo the sentiments expressed by the Hon. Minister for Education as he expressed thanks to the Hon. Attorney General who completes his tour of duty with the Cayman Islands Government today. In fact, it has been six years since he began on 20 November 1992. I think I can say without fear of successful contradiction that he has probably given the best six years of his life to this country. For this we say, thanks.

I believe the adjective that best describes the gentleman is "humility". I believe that he brought a great deal of humility to the job and to the country. Going hand-in-hand with that was his willingness to serve, and to serve well.

I don't know if I have ever seen my colleague angry. That just never seemed to be a part of him at all. And ...

[inaudible interjection]

Hon. James M. Ryan: Yes, even when!

Often, as I sat next to him in Council and joined with my other colleagues (the five across the floor and the Third Official Member) in our demands for getting legal work done, for getting legislation drafted, and a host of other things, he would always sit there with a smile and willingly take on the task and performed to the best of his ability.

He has been a man who could be counted on. His word could be taken. If he took on a task, you could rest assured knowing that he was going to do his best to see it through to the end. I think this was evident, as was said, in dealing with the recent piece of legislation he completed yesterday.

So, on behalf of His Excellency the Governor, and the entire Civil Service and the country, we want to say a big thank you to the Hon. Attorney General and wish him Godspeed. In doing so, let me extend our good wishes to his good wife. We trust that we will see them back on our shores sometime in the not-too-distant future. May God's richest blessings go with them.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I suppose that someone should say something from this side of the House. I would presume to speak for some of my colleagues (I don't know that I am going to be the only speaker) to incorporate as much of what they might say, as I can.

We didn't know the Hon. Attorney General as intimately as the Government did, but I, on behalf of my colleagues who may not wish to speak, can certainly attest to the fact that one of the gentleman's qualities was his humility. Indeed, I used to observe him unobtrusively and wonder how he was able to maintain his composure and his colour so easily under trying circumstances, even when we conspired to put him under pressure.

I think that we will miss his presence in the Parliament. Again I have to compliment him on his ability to hold confidences and to hold the business of the Government. I think it was indeed an admirable quality, and I think that all of us were impressed by his ability to remain humble, to maintain contact with us and to keep us in a position where at all times we had his respect, even when we knew that his interests may not have been the interests of those of us on the Backbench.

I certainly join with those Members of the Government, Elected and Official, in wishing him Godspeed on behalf of my colleagues. And I have to say that I have never seen him dance as well as he did last evening. I can only attribute that to the fact that he is now free of the burden of dealing with all of us inside here, and perhaps consciously, or unconsciously, brought to my attention that he was happy to be rid of these responsibilities if only for a little while.

I would certainly echo the sentiments too, expressing my wishes that he may see fit to return to this jurisdiction sometime, if only for a passing visit, and to let him know that we shall miss him. We wish him journeying mercies whenever he is ready to depart, and Godspeed. While he is leaving us at a challenging time, we feel assured that we will be in his thoughts and in his prayers.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W McKeever Bush: Mr. Speaker, I thank you for the opportunity. The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town would have otherwise spoken for me if I did not want to refer to the fact that I worked for some time with the Hon. Attorney General in Executive Council. I guess I entered Executive Council just about the same time he did. At that time he was as much a freshman as I was, except that he had legal training and other background that I could not draw upon. But I want to say that I found the time working together, while not always easy, always cordial.

It is different in Executive Council than down here, because up there most of the time everything is done behind your back and then they come into Executive Council and talk about it a little bit and it's already, as the old people say, "cut and dried." Down here everybody has an opportunity to say, as the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town put it, even when we connived against him at times, he always was cordial.

I had the privilege also of worshipping together with him several times as he joined the United Church, the same church that I am a member of. I respected that aspect of his life. He and his good wife came and made themselves a part of us.

As I said, while I didn't always agree with him, and at times I guess I made him know that quite vehemently, we always could get along good together. I guess he learned about Executive Council as much as I did, that you have to do things you might otherwise not do, or say. But we had a duty, and so we had to do it.

I want to wish him and his family all the best. May fair winds be at his back, and I, too, would like to say that as far as I am concerned he is always welcome here.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I could not let this opportunity pass without also associating myself with the very kind remarks and sentiments expressed by the previous speakers, in particular I wish to associate myself with those sentiments expressed by my colleagues from this side of the House.

I believe that the best tribute that I can pay to the Second Official Member, the Hon. Attorney General, is that he is a gentleman through and through. I believe that in itself is testament to the conduct and the person I have known over the past few years.

Although I did not, like certain Members of Executive Council, have the opportunity and pleasure of working on a daily basis with this gentleman, I can also attest to the fact that one of the things I will most remember him by is his very humble and down to earth attitude. But though not working on a daily basis with him, I nonetheless will cherish the times we spent on a more, perhaps friendly and informal basis in the church and other areas of our lives.

I do believe that the Attorney General, in leaving the Cayman Islands, takes with him a little piece of Cayman in his heart. I think a big piece! And I also believe that within the not-too-distant future we will have the pleasure of him coming to reside permanently in these islands.

I too want to wish for him, and for his good wife, Karen, Godspeed. Certainly, I hope to see them again soon and hope that all their undertakings will be happy and prosperous ones. May God richly bless you, and your family. We hope to see you back here again soon.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? If not, I shall speak from this lonely position. Neither side included me, so maybe I should speak for myself.

Speaking personally, I want to express and echo the sentiments of both sides, the gratitude of this country to the Hon. Attorney General. Personally, I would like to express my appreciation for the assistance he has given me during the number of years he has been here while I served as a Member of this House, and in the last two years since I have had the opportunity of sitting in this Chair.

Your assistance and support throughout your time here has been greatly appreciated, and I sincerely hope that you will return to the Cayman Islands and also visit the other two Cayman Islands. Remember I always told you that there are three!

So, I want to wish for you and your wife all the very best. May God's richest blessings go with you.

I shall now put the question that this Honourable House do now adjourn until 10.00 AM tomorrow.

Oh, you want to reply? Please. I beg your pardon. The Honourable Second Official Member responsible for Legal Administration.

Hon. Richard H. Coles: Mr. Speaker, I wondered if I got the right to reply! [Members' laughter]

The Speaker: Absolutely. I've made the ruling!

Hon. Richard H. Coles: It was, of course, very gratifying to hear those kind words from Honourable Members. They are much appreciated, and something I will remember always. And to come from all areas of the House as well, I think makes it very special.

It has been a real privilege for me to sit in this Legislative Assembly and to serve the people of the Cayman Islands for the last six years. I have enjoyed my time here immensely. There is certainly too much sand between my toes for me to leave Cayman forever, I think. So, if I have the opportunity I will certainly be returning and looking forward to seeing Honourable Members then, and maybe keeping an eye on proceedings from up in that gallery— who knows? Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker.

[Applause]

The Speaker: Does anybody else need to say anything? I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AT 4.54 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM FRIDAY, 20 NOVEMBER 1998.

THURSDAY
20 NOVEMBER 1998
10.20 AM

[Prayers read by the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town]

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Item 2 on today's Order Paper: Administration of Oath of Affirmation, Oath of Allegiance to be administered to Mr. Samuel Bulgin, Solicitor General to be acting Temporary Second Official Member. I will ask all Members to stand. Mr. Bulgin please come forward to the Clerk's table.

ADMINISTRATION OF OATHS
OR AFFIRMATIONS

OATH OF ALLEGIANCE

Mr. Samuel Bulgin: I, Samuel Bulgin, do swear that I will be faithful and be a true allegiance to Her Majesty Queen Elizabethan II, Her heirs and successors according to law. So help me God.

The Speaker: Mr. Bulgin, please take your seat as Temporary Acting Second Official Member. On behalf of all Members of the House, I welcome you during your period of service with us.

READING BY THE SPEAKER OF
MESSAGES AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: Item number 3: We have apologies from the Second Elected Member from Bodden Town who is off the island. Other Honourable Members of the Executive Council, Ministers, will be arriving later this morning.

Item number 4: Government Business. Bills. Continuation of the debate on the Appropriation (1999) Bill, 1998. The Fourth Elected Member of George Town continuing.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

BILLS

SECOND READING

THE APPROPRIATION (1999) BILL, 1998

DEBATE ON THE BUDGET ADDRESS DELIVERED BY THE HONOURABLE THIRD OFFICIAL MEMBER
ON MONDAY, 16TH NOVEMBER 1998

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Dr. Frank McField: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I shall continue my deliberations on the 1999 Budget. Mr. Speaker you gave Members the opportunity to rise and nobody did.

I felt that the debate would cease if I did not take up the position. Now that I have taken up the position, I intend to use my allotted time without feeling that my speech is too long. The supporters of the Leader of Government business (on the outside, in particular), would like to say that 'my speeches are so long' and that 'we talk and talk and talk' and that 'talk is cheap' and 'why don't we get out there and let the Government get to do its business?'

But there comes a time in the history of a country when a thorough examination is necessary. Sometimes, Mr. Speaker, we can have short debates and deliberations and sometimes there is the need for lengthy debates and deliberations. It is just like going to the doctor: you go to get a massive check-up or you go to get a small check-up.

The Government of the day is now going to have a massive check-up; an extensive check-up; a thorough examination to see what the malfunction is. We can then give the diagnosis and prescribe the remedies. Of course part of the remedy has to be displacing that Government and legally replacing it with a new government.

Mr. Speaker, life is all about mutual dependencies—of people engaged in different, yet complementary roles in life and its ... And, as I explained briefly yesterday, the role of the Opposition is a complementary role in the democratic process. Without the Opposition scrutinising the policies of the Government, the Government would not be able to monitor its performance and therefore correct its direction at the appropriate time. It would be unfortunate of course if we always had to wait until elections in order for Governments to alter their positions, to adjust the gauges and to correct the course upon which they are set on leading the country.

So, again Mr. Speaker, those of us who do not understand the role of the Opposition, understand as I explained, that what the Opposition is there to do, is to constructively criticise the policies of the Government in such a way as to give it the possibility to amend its policies and to adjust its priorities without there having to be a new Government in place. So, the Opposition just does not put itself up as an alternative to the existing executive Government. The Opposition also projects itself as being competent enough to critique the policies of the present Government in such a way as to make its performance even better than it would have been without that particular critique.

Now, what is odd with regards to the Budget, is that when we begin to critique, it is said that we are opposing for the sake of opposing. The sense is, that somehow the function, as critics of the Government, is a useless one. Mr. Speaker, it irritates them basically because most of them do not really have the equipment to be able to answer back directly and specifically with regards to the type of examination that is being made in the in-depth analysis of the society, of the state of the economy and of the performance of the Government with regards to the state of the economy that is being put out here.

Now, I would like to show that the position, for instance, of the Leader of Government Business with regard to my particular role in this Legislative Assembly, that every time I say something, it is more or less suggested that I have nothing to lose because I don't have a business, or children. God has blessed me with being here and having a job. God is blessing me with a business and making sure that I put the business right next to the Legislative Assembly so that every time the Leader of Government Business comes here he can remember that I am mobile; that I am progressing. And the same thing that is happening to me, Mr. Speaker, regarding progression, we should allow to happen to other members of the society. This will only happen if we have an economy that does not become stifled by added government taxation. So, the same way God will bless me with the business, I hope one day He will bless me with children—I have not given up that particular thought.

So for the Leader of Government Business to talk generally and to try to discredit my contribution in this Legislative Assembly and this country because I don't have certain things that he has, Mr. Speaker—he has to remember that I didn't 'put the cart before the horse'. I first of all got an education; I grounded myself in certain principles that I believed in; I first of all went and found someone to marry; and I first of all found some way to support that particular home before I went out and did these things that I believe are unnatural—like procreating without having the right things to support the children. So I just want that to be clear to the general public that I am not an irresponsible person—that I am, and in fact have been, very responsible.

Now, with regard to this heavy amount of taxes which has arisen because Government has been incompetent. It (Government) has spent all of its time on spending and blaming other people for the problems of the country rather than putting in the time and trying to make some money. There is a very clear principle in Finance that 'any fool can spend money, but it takes a wise man to make it.'

Here we have as the Honourable Financial Secretary has said in his professional and able way, "the gap between expenditure and revenue widening so rapidly and so greatly that the country is heading in due course for further serious financial problems." Mr. Speaker, those words sound like they could be coming from me, but they are not from me. Those are the words of the Honourable Minister for Education—those were the words of the Leader of Government Business who was in my position in 1991 when he said that. He was the critic of the Government of the day just like I am the critic of the Government of the day, today. The interesting point was that he felt that his role as critic was a useful role; that his critique of the Budget Address was a useful critique; that he started to talk about taxation because the Government was bringing in tax measures at the point in which he was addressing the Budget. And yet it was not said of him that he had nothing to lose. He is talking about his excellence in finance and he gave us a lecture at that time, and I will read some of this—about what you do not do in a country—what the Government does not do with regards to the financial affairs of a country. And it is exactly what he is doing!

Mr. Speaker, when we were discussing the Ritz Carlton issue, there were Members of this Legislative Assembly that got up and mocked me for changing my mind and talking about changing your minds. Now can this Member say whether or not he has changed his mind, whether or not the mind that he has is the mind he had in 1991, or is it a different mind? Which mind is it? I am mindful to ask the Member whether the mind that he now has is the mind that he had in 1991, because... [Inaudible comment] Mr. Speaker, I have been advised that maybe the Member might want to rise and answer to that.

Mr. Speaker, all I can say is that I have to in this Address, address the creditability of my delivery by saying that my delivery with regards the financial state of this country is almost identical to that which the Minister of Education gave to this Parliament in 1991. So, if what I am saying is nonsense, then it would appear that what he said back there was nonsense too. Maybe all politicians do talk nonsense; that's what the general public seriously believes. They believe that we will come here and say things and then go and do the opposite.

We need to repair that tradition. We need to make healthy again our democratic and parliamentary tradition. We are not going to make it healthy, Mr. Speaker, when persons who said things like, "That crushing amount of taxes $20 million in six months is in my view unconscionable and unnecessary because if the Government had been doing what it should have been doing, it should have either reduced down its expenditure on very elaborate projects of the Elected Members of the Executive Council, or it should have found new heads of revenue that do not hurt the country, do not hurt the people, do not hurt the country."

In here, the Member is mentioning the Executive Council, and when I mention the Executive Council I want to bring the Government down. Frank McField, Dr. Frank McField, Fourth Elected Member for George Town wants to bring the Government down. That is what some of his supporters are saying—because I critique the policies of the Government just like he critiques the policies of the Government, I want to bring the Government down; I am power-hungry.

Well, I am as good as he is; I am a human being too; I should have the same rights; I am elected; I should have the same right to critique that the Minister of Education, the Leader of Government Business, has. And he critiqued the Budget delivered by the Honourable Financial Secretary who is now the Minister for Tourism—one of his colleagues on Executive Council—one of his National Team colleagues.

Mr. Speaker, after the Minister of Education critiqued the Budget, he ran with the same Financial Secretary that he was criticising in 1992, and has sat on the Executive Council with this Member ever since. Yet we are deceitful, inconsistent, power-hungry individuals. Mr. Speaker, we know history well enough to know that when it is recorded, it works wonders for those persons who are interested in truth.

Now, of course the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town mentioned the way in which the Leader of Government Business felt about tobacco, taxes on alcohol, the increase on liquor and cigarettes. He said, 'While it perhaps is one of the easy areas to put taxes and import duties on, it has an indirect impact that has to be looked at carefully by Members of the Legislative Assembly. Yes, it is perhaps justifiable; more justifiable than others, but as has been said from time to time in this House in different sessions, 'a person who drinks normally is going to go out and buy his bottle of liquor or cigarettes whatever and the ultimate hurt is on the children and the wife who get less of the income.' That is a reality, not a nice one, but it is.'

Mr. Speaker, we are debating the Budget. We are disputing the fact that the Government is claiming that our people are enjoying a high standard of living. We are saying that, in fact, taxation can erode and will erode whatever the standard of living is that the people are experiencing at the moment. This position is no different than the position which was held by the Leader of Government Business when he was, in fact, I might say Leader of the Opposition back in 1991. And since of course he is now Leader of Government, we will assume that he must have been Leader of the Opposition because we do not understand how the Leader of the Opposition could be anything else.

[Interjection—Mr. Roy Bodden: True, True!] At the end of day—but the leader of—you know...

So, I believe Mr. Speaker that my critique has given the Leader of Government Business credit because I believe that great minds think alike. I have been challenging that particular mind and saying that I am as capable and as competent and as stable as that mind because if you look at the fact that he made a statement in 1991 and now he is doing the complete opposite, does that show stability or instability? Now where is the particular degree of stability, instability coming from? What is it the result of? The fact that the Government is going to tax the people—has the Minister of Education worked out a formula whereby taxing the people he can improve the standard of life of the people? Mr. Speaker, in the Budget Address what is missing is some type of reasoning as to why this particular estimate will serve to improve the standard and the quality of life for the people in the Cayman Islands.

The Leader of Government Business will get up hopefully, and to show me, demonstrate. Demonstrating by using empirical evidence—not ideological sophistry—to show me why taxation is good at this particular time to, and for, the Cayman Islands.

Why is taxation necessary? Why didn't he take the advice that he gave the Dignity Government in 1991 when he suggested in fact that the reason why there was the need to tax was because of the debts at Cayman Airways? Because of the $16 million they needed to start the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital? He, at least at that time, admitted that that hospital was going to cost $16 million. But his Government is delivering to the Cayman Islands people, a hospital that is costing more than twice that amount! Does the necessity for his new taxes have anything to do with the fact that this hospital was dreamed up without any kind of real reality behind it? I wasn't a Member of the Ezzard Miller Government or the Ezzard Miller Backbench, so, I am here as an independent in that particular sense I can speak my mind.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, just on a point of clarification.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister of Health.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: The figures released to this Honourable House have shown that the maximum costing of the hospital was $28.8 million not $32 million.

The Speaker: Please continue Fourth Elected Member.

Dr. Frank McField: It's close enough, but I guess by the time we get it finished it will be over $32 million anyway. Quite possible. We are not finished with the Hospital yet, we will get there. But I think what I would like to basically comment on is the fact that the health service fees are going to... because when we critique the Budget, we always look about expenses, Government expenses. We have to also look on Government revenue because sometimes we have found that what Government is saying it will spend, is not correct.

We are going to revisit the East End Community Civic Centre/Hurricane Centre, the Gun Bay Community Civic Centre Project again, where I so clearly said that I wanted them to say exactly how much it was going to cost so that I could revisit it. I recorded it for the purpose of being able to refer to it, and we are seeing now that the Government has put into the Estimates additional hundreds of thousands of dollars for the Gun Bay Community Centre. So we know now that not only does Government bring incorrect estimates with regards to expenditure; we know that Government brings incorrect estimates with regards to revenues.

Now, if the health service is going to have an increase in $7,400,000—because the actual health services fees figure for 1997 was $3,289,692—and if we are going to an estimated figure for 1999 as $11,168,000, how does the Government come to ask and justify how this increase is possible? The voters of the Cayman Islands, the stockholders, let's say, the shareholders of the Cayman Islands, any company would fire the Executive, would fire the Board of Directors for these types of figures in here Mr. Speaker because they are not supported by any empirical evidence. How do I know that the Hospital can make...

I go to the bank to borrow money and the bank wants me to support by my feasibility study—in other words by empirical evidence—how I am going to make a certain amount of money to be able to pay back that money. I can't just pick a figure out of the sky and say 'This year I am going to make $2 million. I have to be able to ably demonstrate that and prove that point.

So, if we are going to make an additional $7,400,000 from the health service fees, how much are the fees going to increase? Are they going to double, triple, quadruple? And if they do, what sort of effect of raising revenue in this particular area—because that is basically what we are doing here, by selling the services, we are selling the service at a higher price. What kind of effect will it have on the health insurance payments in this country? Will it cause the health insurance companies to increase the cost of health insurance because the Government is wanting to sell medical care more expensively?

Now, I am not suggesting that the Government at present is selling at a correct market value, but I am suggesting that if you are going to raise your prices, especially in the case of Government—unlike if it were the private sector—the public sector in raising the prices gives people the kind of impression that the Government is using the raising of prices to raise revenue and the people see it as taxation. So, the predicament of the health service is fairly different here.

I am strongly suggesting, therefore, that these figures cannot be substantiated and I would like the defenders of this Budget to explain how they have come to the conclusion for instance, that they can make $13,925,901 more on fees which means fees such as company fees, resident company fees, non-resident company fees, exempt company fees, foreign company fees. In other words, they are going to expect to raise close to $14 million in company fees.

Now, they are going to raise this. How do they know that? Okay, that is the projected amount. But what is this projected amount based upon? I would like the Government to get up and show me the empirical evidence upon which its projections are based. Because certainly, Mr. Speaker, in the case of alcohol we found that we lost revenue last year (I think) because again what happens is the common theory that if you charge more, you will make more; but sometimes if you charge more you actually make less.

So, when the Government comes before us with a Budget that predictions are based upon consumption rather than stable fixed assets, rather than in situations in fact where Governments do tax assets that are immovable, in a situation where the Budget, the whole financial policy and structure of the country is based upon the taxing of movable objects, in that sense. We don't know at the end of the day whether we will have that increase, or whether we will have a decrease as a result. Because just like we have growth in an economy, we also have recessions and the Budget Address is filled with that particular pre-occupation of the recession. Because everybody knows that in the world (and the President of the United States I think is in one of those Asian countries today) that what the G-7 Countries have been doing over the last year or two years is an attempt to try to stabilise world economy so that growth will not be backwards.

The growth for the United Kingdom for next year is supposed to go below zero, or just above zero, and then it is supposed to pick up. But those are also the projections and the forecasts of an economist. Now economists are people who like every other profession, speculate. There is no real social science to the sense that it is life, or social life is that predictable, because there are so many variables.

So we have to question, first of all, the good judgement of the Government in bringing a Budget or organising its expenditure based upon what it thinks its income will be because we can seriously question whether or not that income truly exists out there. It can be made up. We can speculate, but there is no surety in fact that they will be able to collect these monies by way of these particular taxes on these particular types of activities.

We have to be cautious, Mr. Speaker, when we say that we are going to spend this amount and we are going to raise money to spend this amount, because apparently what we are not doing here, is—cutting our expenses. We need to be cutting our expenses rather than raising our revenues, because as long as we continue along the road of raising revenues which the good gentleman, the Leader of Government Business, Minister of Education, said when he was advising (as the Opposition) the Government in 1991, he advised them to cut expenditure not to raise revenue, because we know that never solves the problem. So, I am just trying to help them to get a tune-up because I know that they do listen to me. They might pretend they don't, but they do because they know that they need to clean up their act; they need to get the increasing spending of Government under control.

They need to find creative and imaginative ways of doing this, because even when they say here that the Cable & Wireless increase will be $3 million for 1999, they are saying that the actual [amount] in 1997 was $6,881,212. Now, it is going to increase. Where is that $3 million going to come from? How are they going to get an increase of revenue from Cable and Wireless? I don't see any place where the Government has told us about that. But I can say one thing that the Minister for Education said on November 27, 1991, "A new Head that the Member for Communication of Works touted as being the brain child of this Government was revenue of $2.5 million from Cable & Wireless. Well I notice that the Budget left that out because that is once again, like diesel, it is a tax on the people of this country. The $2.5 million that they are extracting from Cable & Wireless is passed on to the consumer of the use of telephones in the country because they are not absorbing that amount. It is the same when import duty was put on Caribbean Utilities. They merely passed it on to the local man." [Inaudible interjection by Member]

Mr. Speaker, he was talking about the Third Elected Member for George Town (I think) who was the Minister of Communication. Now we know how they got the Third Elected Member for George Town out of Government. Let's see if the formula works for them. Basically, let's see—because he said, "A new Head [a new Head in the Budget] that the Member for Communication and Works touted as being the brain child of [his] Government [the Third Elected Member for George Town Government at that time] was revenue of $2.5 million from Cable & Wireless. Well, I notice that the Budget left that out because that is once again, like diesel, it is a tax on the people of this country. The $2.5 million that they are extracting from Cable & Wireless is passed on to the consumer for the use of the telephones in the country because they are not absorbing that amount." Cable & Wireless will not absorb that amount they will pass it on to the consumer, that's what he is saying.

It is the same with import duty, they merely passed it on to the local man. Now I also see here where he says that, "The most crushing tax that has been put on the people of this country is the doubling of the price of diesel. Diesel is the one commodity that affects everyone in this country. It affects hardest the little man because unlike ..." He is talking about the 'little man' Mr. Speaker. The 'little man' says he does not want the title of 'the little man', because he is not 'little' at all.

The lower income groups, the people who have to work for low wages in this country, the people who are interested in becoming mobile and moving up the social and economic ladder (like Frank McField is getting the opportunity to move up a little bit). Giving us job opportunities, Mr. Speaker, and respecting our intelligence and giving the people of the country the confidence to say that they can do the jobs, and promoting Caymanians. We are not talking about Caymanisation but at the same time not really wanting to deal with the people.

So, if the Government is going to get increased revenue from Cable & Wireless, does that mean that Cable & Wireless' profits are going to increase by that amount, since I think Government gets something like—maybe— 20% of the net profits? Well I could be corrected on that, but I believe if the Government is going to get $3 million, then Cable & Wireless is going to make a lot of money! Now, where does the Government get these figures from? How can the Government say to the Backbench—to the Opposition—that it is in a position to predict what amount will be made from Cable & Wireless in 1999?

How can the Government defend its Budget, financial policies and management and say that it is competent—that this is the way it does books? If the bookkeeping methods are outdated and old fashioned, then it is the Government who is responsible. But I would like to know how it knows this. What kind of contract does it have? Because its contract with Cable & Wireless is of course on the internet now, so, we know! Government was always quiet quiet about that and couldn't tell us what the contract said and it's on the internet? Any person in the world can look into it and see what the agreement is!

So, what figures have Cable & Wireless communicated to Government? What is this telling us? Is there going to really be a restructuring of Cable & Wireless prices? And will that restructuring of Cable & Wireless prices lead to higher local telephone bills? That's the only thing that I can assume that's going to happen. That if Government is predicting its increase in revenue from Cable & Wireless, then it must be having an increase in revenue because of the increase in prices. We have to understand, Mr. Speaker, that if the Government asks Cable & Wireless to give more money, that Cable & Wireless is going to take more money from the consumer. The Leader of Government Business taught us that in 1991 when he delivered his brilliant critique of the then Government's Budget for 1992.

We notice also that there has been a decline of some $24,600.86 in motor vehicle duty that is estimated. There is actually a margin that there will be a decrease, which is a different trend. And we don't know what type of effect the increase in duties on automobiles have had on this. So, what I am saying is that when I talk about 'empirical evidence' for those who do not understand those words, they mean: actual, scientific, observable facts and data; not opinions and suggestions and innuendoes. It means concrete scientific facts. If I use this, therefore, as scientific proof, I could begin to suggest by this and a few other instances that the increase of duties or taxes actually leads to a decrease in Government revenue—rather than an increase in Government's revenue.

So, if we are going into the time when world recession... because I don't know how they can talk about world recession that 'we seem to get the cold a year after', that is nonsense! It becomes a little bit more immediate than that, because telecommunications and information cause us to all be alert and aware at the same time. The consumer begins to hold back at the same time in Cayman at the same time the consumer begins to hold back in the United States. So, that particular phenomenon might begin to change. We might begin to see a difference in that we might not actually have to wait that long before we feel the trickle-down negative effects of a kind of recession in the United States.

Now, as I said, there was a decrease in revenue on alcohol and with the new prices we will find most likely that there will be an additional loss in revenue there. The people who are in industry who are more aware of these things happening, are more so suggesting this. The increase in residents companies' fees, the fact that residents—those of us who are asked now to operate businesses in the Cayman Islands—the 'little' entrepreneur—the 'little' person like me, who wants to start a little business... With a little money now I can go to the bank and borrow because I got a little job security for a little while. I have to go and pay more to register my company, I have to pay more for my company which means the goods that I sell have to go up from what I thought they would be when I decided to go to create this company. I am going to have to pay more for work permits, Mr. Speaker, I am going to have to pay health insurance, I am going to have to pay pension. So all of that I have to calculate on the price of the goods.

So, if Government can just come in at any time (because of the power that it has) and demand more when everybody else has to work up to it and work a particular period of time... You have to be reasonable; you have to be competitive. If I want more for the ackees that I sell, I have to make sure that they are competitive. I can't go and get more for my ackees just because I want more, or need more. My ackees have to be good and competitive with the other man's ackees. But since Government seems to have a monopoly on one thing—not good sense—not knowledge—but it has a monopoly on the thing called force.

It uses that force unwisely in a lot of instances by forcing the population to pay taxes at times in which the population who experiences the economics more so than the Government—more so than the five, the fifteen individuals in here—the people have a much better grounding with the reality and should know whether or not they can at this particular time bear more taxation.

Why is it that we believe that people can still pay for the standard of living that we brag of having here? If we have single mothers and a lot of people divorced, people divorcing, women in the Caribbean in particular they have to...they stay and support their children, their two children, their three children. They have high mortgage payments like I was saying—impossible mortgage payments—higher mortgage payments than the people in America, England, or Germany. Higher mortgage payments! It is said to us every time that, 'but they don't have as high taxes as these people'. But what about the services that we are getting, that should matter too. You can't just put up taxes without showing us how you are going to improve the services.

It's like what happened on Smith Road: They came and built up Smith Road; they fixed it. And then Anthony Drive where I have to drive through, they destroyed. When the water comes, it all drains and settles there and eats out the road with all kinds of holes. I live on one of the worst roads in this country. So when people are talking about bad roads, I know about bad roads! Since [Hurricane] Mitch came, my car is just about ruined by that bad road, why? Because it's all a piece-piece thing. If they are going to fix one thing, they should fix the other, because it is going to cost more at the end of the day. You know why? Because they are going to have to fix more of it than they would have had to fix. If they had put two drains in there the cost would probably have been about $2,000-$3,000 okay? I put a drain in my yard and that cost me—because of the nice gentleman, Mr. Watler—that cost me $800 and it works well. They came into Windsor Park area, and built up the roads and didn't even think about the effect it would have on the property owners there. We need to plan by always thinking about what type of consequences our actions will have on the population. We have to have respect for the people. It's not shown that way when people go up to the Glass House and decide all of a sudden that they need these fees.

Mr. Speaker, it is interesting that I have in my possession one version of the Estimates that is not this version of the Estimates. It is interesting [to see] the differences in the amounts between what they want now, and what they said they could make in the other one. So, all you want to do is to compare these two books to understand the essence of Government's accounting. What you do is that when you make this one and it does not work out—because you see what happens is, you find your budget isn't balanced—so, you see that cannot work. The people would never accept deficit budgeting, so let's go and do a trick on them. Let's deficit anyway but not put it in the estimate, let's put it in the form of loans.

But that's deficit budgeting, Mr. Speaker, because it doesn't show up this way, it shows at the end of the day that this is balanced, but this is not really balanced because what you are going to spend is more than what you have and you can't change that reality. That is deficit budgeting. You cannot change that reality; this is what I have learned from the good Minister of Education. In his brilliant critique of the past Government in 1991...It is deficit budgeting. All you are doing is putting things in different columns! But if you take time enough, Mr. Speaker, to look in all the columns, you know what's happening. Do you know what's happening, Mr. Speaker? The same Government that is going to spend the money that it borrowed in loans, is the same Government that is going to spend the money that is raised in taxes. It is the same Government that is spending it.

So, the trick has been [Interjection—Members' laughter] the creation of statutory authorities. As I said yesterday, I compliment the Foreign and Commonwealth Office, (the FCO), I compliment His Excellency, the Governor, in trying to encourage and speed up the reforms in our financial management systems. Those of us who have been advocating changes in this country have been doing so not because we are reckless and careless and have nothing to lose, but because we are visionaries. We have a vision that things can be done for the people more efficiently and more profitably than they are now being done, or have been done in the last six years since the Government took over.

Now, if you create statutory authorities and when the time in which they were created...I don't suppose that the National Team Government created the first statutory authorities. I believe that this was not their idea; it was not the brain child of the National Team; it was the brain child of the government before.

But, actually what happened, Mr. Speaker, you know we celebrate Pirates' Week—and the Government learns fast. It says: Pirates! What do pirates do? They plunder and pillage! That's what has been happening in this country because of privatisation, the concept of statutory authority. The Government has turned [into] pirates and pillaged the companies and has sent them back out to borrow money to do the work that they have accumulated their money to do and this is 'deficit budgeting' too.

If you put all the debts that were owed out, what you would find at the end of the day is that we are past that ten percent that is considered to be okay to borrow to. We have passed that a long time, Mr. Speaker! — We exceeded that... but they put one in Column A and Column 3 and 3 and 3—and they confuse people!

Let me tell you I am not an economist, I am not an accountant, I am not a financier, but I have common sense. My mother was as good a shop-keeper as any in her days when she was keeping shop, whether it was in the old market when she was selling 'bread kind' that was coming from Cuba back in the '50s, or when she was at 'Top Star', a little restaurant and bar that we had at the corner back in the '50s and early '60s, or whether she was keeping refugees from Cuba, or whether it was the little shop she had "Gloria's Variety Store" afterwards.

I came from a small merchant family, too, because believe it or not, I have Jewish connections. I don't talk about that, but I do! All the way from Switzerland! So, my mother got that little bit of thing in her and I am telling you she is tight with money. She is so tight that she causes problems in the family. If we had her managing the finances of this country, we would never spend more than we have, because always she says: "Save for a rainy day and—don't hang your hat higher than it can reach".

Don't go telling people you have something and then when they come to get it, you don't have it to give to them. That is what the National Team has done. They went around telling the people that they have something and when the people come to get it, the Government tells them that they have to tax them to get it for them. [Inaudible comment] That's not right.

Now, with all of this, we are going to re-paint the tail of Cayman Airways. We are going to take off Jim Bodden's legacy—because that is his legacy—and I know he had to take enough licks in this country to keep the Airline there, to build it up. I am not a critic of the Airline, but I am one who likes to thoroughly look at the reality and lay it out. Why, with all the financial problems the people are having, why come now and tell them that you are going to bring taxes on them and at the same time, Mr. Speaker, you are going to change the design on the Airline? When I say one...

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, on a point of clarification.

The Speaker: The Minister of Education, please go ahead.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: On the Airline, all has been done sir, is that a press release has been made and has gone out to the public. As to what they prefer, there has been no decision to change anything on the Airline; that decision will come later on, if the Member would just abide within that, please.

The Speaker: Thank you. Fourth Elected Member for George Town. Please continue.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I thank the Leader of Government Business for his clarification and of course I do not see it as an interruption, because I don't believe that one can interrupt the flow of this thing. I believe somehow that the "rivers have met, the flows are saved".

I am saying exactly what the Minister said in 1991; I am taking a similar stand as the Minister. I am saying that the Government has to control its expenditure. It is only by cutting its expenditure can Government hope to manage and spare the people of the inconveniences which are caused by taxation and excessive taxation. He said it had to do with spending in 1991. I am saying it has to do with excessive spending in 1998. Oppositions are the same; we are only in different positions.

Now, as I said, I have tried to also show how the Government can become a bit more creative. So it is not just 'flying' criticism on them, I am saying that they need to become a little bit more creative. They need to leave the statutory authorities alone. They need to allow the statutory authorities to create surplus which might cause the reduction in prices. With the reduction in prices Mr. Speaker, the reduction in itself generates new economic possibilities, because the statutory authorities that supply the Island—supply the people with necessities—the reduction in prices would cause the people who are selling services and goods to also reduce their prices.

So, you can see, Mr. Speaker, the bad economics of the National Team. Never, have I seen a Government without any concept of economics: so devoid of it. I would like to see them get up and really argue with this particular theory. If they do not allow the Port Authority to decrease its prices by creating a surplus to enable that—because the surplus will be the result of efficiency—and the ability to not have to pay loan interest, the Port Authority having to always go back to borrowing, rather than coming to a point to use its own money, is being put at a disadvantage and therefore that is affecting the prices that we are having at the Port.

Now, if this had been privatised, we would have a completely different situation because a private company would never get involved in the politics of every time it accumulates a surplus to throw it away, or give it away. It would be all re-invested in increasing and improving the services of that particular company and making the services cheaper to the consumer.

So, the type of economics of the National Team Government is the same with the Water Authority. We are paying for the Water Authority and they go and take the surplus from the Water Authority rather than allow the Water Authority to build up its surplus so that it can sell water to the people at a cheaper rate.

The people are getting taxed two ways. The people are getting taxed because the Government brings direct taxation upon them and because it sets up companies to sell basic necessities to the people. The Government controls the prices and keeps them high. Government goes to these companies every year, pillaging them and taking away excess capital, in order that they can balance their budget; in order that they can come to the Cayman Islands' people and talk about prudent and competent management, because they have not.

The Speaker: When you reach your point, at your convenience we can take the morning break.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I could take that now.

The Speaker: We shall suspend proceedings for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11:28 AM
PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12:12 PM

The Speaker: Proceedings are resumed. Debate continues. The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. At one stage The Leader of Government Business called across the floor to suggest to me that perhaps its about time I spoke about some solutions rather than about the problems. I am quite willing to do that today, Mr. Speaker, provided that Member is willing to sign his resignation and hand it in. I will take his position [Members' laughter], and at that particular time...I think that is the way it works. So, if he has to ask me for the solutions, I think it is about time that he realises that he should hand in that resignation as was suggested perhaps by another Member yesterday in the Debate. There are so many things that we have to be critical of, that there is very little time to work for the benefit of that Minister by giving him all of the solutions to the dilemma.

One thing I find interesting is that the Civil Service Pension Fund is expected to be by the end of 1998 at $36 million—this is the fund for the Civil Servants' Pension Fund. But already in January of 1993 it was said that...and this is the Cayman Islands' Public Service Pension Board actuarial valuation of public servants pension of January 1, 1993 and it says here, "The past service liability measurement with allowance for future pay projections is equal to $121,658,000 using a 6% interest basis and $99,357,000 using a 7% interest basis. The resulting actuarial deficiency is $115,413,000 on the 6% interest basis and C.I. $93,112,000 on a 7% interest basis. In order to fund for the benefits provided to current participants the total actual cost under the projected unit credit cost method including amortisation of the actuarial deficiency over a period of 20 years is C.I. $17,283,000 on a 6% interest basis and $14,290,000 on a 7% interest basis. The required contribution rates are high largely because of the magnitude of unfunded past service liabilities."

The interesting point, Mr. Speaker, is that we need also to see this as a deficit—as a debt—because the service has been rendered already; the obligation has been entered into; therefore that is a Government debt. So, the Government debt is in fact not as it has been reported by the Honourable Financial Secretary at $91.2 million, but in fact Mr. Speaker, the debt is much over $200 million and when we bring in the statutory authorities we will find out that the liability of the Cayman Islands Government is past what would place the Cayman Islands Government in a position to go to the Caribbean Development Bank or any international or regional monetary authority because they would operate very strict, stringent guidelines.

So, for the problem not to have been corrected (if it were in fact a problem) that started to exist in this country in the '80s already, and if we have perpetuated that problem to the nineties and if we are going to perpetuate the problem into the year 2000, then, we are only shifting the disaster from this generation to the other generation.

That's all we are doing, we are impoverishing really the future generation in order that we might have the immediate gratification of saying that we have something, that we have a high standard of living, that we are rich, that we can afford this and that we can build this and Government has delivered this and Government has the capacity to deliver this and that.

So the capacity of Government to deliver presently, is the result of the fact that Government is subtracting and taking away from the future generations. It is interesting also that the Leader of Government Business understood this particular situation when he referred to what the 1991 Government was doing because he was basically also at that time suggested exactly what I am now suggesting is the fact that the Government of the day would not leave anything for future Government to be able spend and to manoeuvre with.

We cannot have this type of immediate gratification syndrome in the people and in the Government, because if it exists in the Government that should be leading the country, we will have it existing in the people—that we have to have everything today—everything must be done at one time and today... And partly, Mr. Speaker, if the National Team Government when it came to power in November 1992 was aware that the financial situation in the country was delicate, fragile... In fact, Mr. Speaker one reason why it was fragile was because there had been no attention paid to the promises which had been made to past civil servants and serving civil servants with regards to the pension payments; the debt which the Government really owed them. If I owed a debt—Mr. Speaker, if I promised to do something—if I owe you, you can come to me at any time to recover that promise, to collect it, and I should have the money available there to make sure that I can pay you. But if I somehow say 'Well, we are going to do it this way, we are going to pay into the fund something like half of what has even been suggested perhaps that is needed to bring it up even to par'...

I understand that the Government is doing whatever it can to get this situation repaired because it is not only Government who is responsible for that... but when you take over it is not one Government and the other Government, it's the Cayman Islands' people. It's the same administration really, it's the same treasury, it's the same book-keeping, it's the same responsibility; the responsibility really is there.

So, if you took it over and you knew that there was an outstanding debt in 1992 when you took over Government. That outstanding debt is the civil service pension fund. The fact that you have been paying pensions out of general revenue, the fact that your business has been so badly organised over a long period of time that you are actually taking from what's coming in to pay these types of responsibilities, which was not of course responsible book-keeping. Then you know you have a debt of over $100 million dollars. That has to be registered until it is rectified; that should appear on the books.

You should not be trying to say well you are going to go over and choose other priorities, that you are going to try to build a $32 million hospital, that you are going to be able to pay $34 million dollars a year to run the health centres when you have other obligations as well. You have to structure your priorities by first facing the reality. And the reality, Mr. Speaker, is on the books. Now, these are the ways in which people are deceived. This is one reason why when the Government got up in 1996 and said what a great state the economy was in and what a good job it [Government] had done in managing the public resources, how prudent it was as a manager... It never told people about all these things that are still its obligations.

The Port Authority debts are still the obligations of the Cayman Islands Government, whether or not it is servicing them. Because if I go out tomorrow... And I have had this happen to me where students have come to me and said 'Would you come Frank and would you co-sign for a loan?' and I am very reluctant to do that. I have had to turn a few people away. Do you know why Mr. Speaker? Because all the way back in 1978 when I was working with the National Council of Social Services I had a secretary at that time who actually caused me to co-sign, then left and went away to the States. Do you know what the bank did Mr. Speaker? It came to me for the money. They had a right, they could come and take my property, if I didn't... they could take me to court.

Now if they come to us for the Cayman Airways money, or the Water Authority money, or the Port Authority money, they can come to us, Mr. Speaker, we guaranteed it. It must be registered as part of our liability, and even in this situation I see the relationship as even being more significant, simply because Government is extracting from them every year excess capital that they accumulate, therefore, not allowing them to get to the capacity where they can borrow money on their own strength—where they need, in fact, a Government guarantee. So the Government's responsibility becomes even longer. Rather than trying to get rid of it by allowing them to service their debts, get rid of the debts and become independent from the point of view of having that thing, they revert back to this.

I am not saying that this is something that the National Team Government has done by itself, but I believe that we have come to the point in this country now where the economic strategies and the economic thinking have to change. We have to have a different way of doing things.

Now, I see where the Government is going to spend on health insurance for civil servants over $3 million. I suggested that the Government have an actuarial study done and that we look at the feasibility of Government creating its own health insurance or creating some kind of insurance scheme or captive insurance organisation. I have not heard anything back about that. But seeing this information in the Budget goes to show that they are not pursuing that idea. But nobody has come to us and said, 'Well, we are not pursuing it because A, B, C, D. We are spending all these million dollars to create health insurance which is about $90 per civil servant.' I mean these are rough figures I don't really know about $90 per civil servant. Now, that is pretty high if you consider the fact you are spending $3 million. Anytime you get that kind of spending with a company, if that's what you have decided to do, you should get a better deal than that. But that should be a real terrific health plan, real magnificent, terrific health plan.

Now, what we are saying is that we are going to spend the $3 million to create a health insurance for the public service rather than giving the public service the possibility to come to us and get medicine free, because we think that this makes better sense. They are saying it even makes better sense than Government having its own captive health insurance. But one thing that they have to think about is in the economics. You have to think about human behaviour because economics is all about human behaviour and being able to predict and forecast economic growth or decline has to do with being able to predict human behaviour.

Unfortunately, Mr. Speaker, human behaviour is not as predictable as a lot of people would pretend that it is. There are so many variables that are uncontrollable that it is very difficult in fact for us to say that there is a precise science that is capable of predicting human behaviour to the extent that we can predict behaviour of not natural things. So, once the civil service (government employees) get a health insurance plan, when they get sick they might go and seek private doctors—paid into private hands—they have a choice and that's not bad that they have choice. So the Hospital that the Government has is going to have to be more competitive in order to compete with the private sector in this particular case.

So, when we are organising, when we are talking about prudent fiscal management, we have to think about all these things. We cannot manage finances by keeping books. Prudent financial management is not all about solely keeping books. Keeping books is only the result. What will show upon the books is the result of prudent management. It is just history. The management has to come before that point. It has to do with your management plans, your organisational abilities, your organisational skills, your goals and objectives. That's what it is all about. And your priorities and being capable of prioritising and activating energy and motivating people to the extent that they can't implement those priorities—those policies.

We have been told in this Legislative Assembly that the National Team Government is competent in doing this. That is nonsense! They are the most incompetent in doing this! And I use the word 'incompetent' simply because the Leader of Government Business used it in his debate in 1991. He said that that Government was incompetent. I am saying that it is okay, that we try to help old people, that we give them a subsidy. But, Mr. Speaker, that is not the only possibility we have available to us.

I am fifty years old, Mr. Speaker, and if somebody told me that I had to retire in five years, I would get really insulted. I haven't even started providing for children yet. People are doing things later in life, Mr. Speaker. People are living until a grand old age. I am going to live until I am over 100. I know that is God's will. I am not going to question His will. I don't have to say that, He wills that. So, Mr. Speaker, would you like somebody to tell you that when you are 55 years old you have to pack up and go home and you cannot work any more?

Captain Charles Kirkconnell always says that 'the wine gets sweeter the older it is', and he would only hire people who have a lot of experience—which means that are old. And look at him and his productivity over the last ten years! And right now, today, look at his productivity! So, why is it that we are supporting a civil service concept that says that you have got to get rid of people when they are 55? We have the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay as a good example.

My father never would hear about retiring. He had to work until he died, because, as I was saying, there is nothing wrong with work. That is what gives us our human worth, our productivity. And if we take that away from older people in order to give them $200 a month or $500 a month, we are not solving the problem. So, I am saying to the Leader of Government Business, 'Here is the solution.'

We import fruits, vegetables—tomatoes, cabbage and all those things. We heard about backyard farming, we heard about cottage industries. The Third Elected Member from Bodden Town said it was not all about this as a solution but he didn't intend to break it down for the Leader of Government Business plus it's not his job. But just to show the Assembly and the general public that we are not devoid of ideas and that ideas, although they sound vague, are concrete and specific when we want them to be. It's safe.

We talk about Caymanian arts and crafts. We talk about our culture. We are always talking about culture this and that. But why aren't we encouraging the older people to somehow produce for this market that really exists here? Why isn't the Government helping to initiate this? To do the research and to encourage people and to be the motivators? That's the word — 'motivator.' We have to be self-motivators. But in some cases we need to motivate ourselves. We find these things happening. So, I am saying, Mr. Speaker, that somebody who is 60 years old, who is not wanted by the hotels anymore—because industries are coming to a point where they say 'Hey, the person is not competitive.' But the question is, What role should Government have in recycling labour?

Now if you go back to my 1996 manifesto, Mr. Speaker—and the Leader of Government Business should know I talked about that. I said that what we have to start doing is recycling labour. We can afford to do it in this country because we have over-employment. It would be difficult in Jamaica, where you have 40% unemployment, it would be difficult in England, in Germany and, to a certain extent, difficult in the United States, but not impossible in the Cayman Islands where we have so many people on work permits.

Now, although a person might not be able to perform to a particular extent in a particular industry, at a particular age, the person can work to keep himself alive in the mind, and the body functioning. I am standing up here, Mr. Speaker, at 50 years of age, and I feel strong as an ox. I wasn't this strong when I was 21, and I worked out in the gym every day. I work out in the morning a little bit because I know I have to do that to keep the body working, because the body is like a machine—you don't give it that kind of practice and things happen.

Look at my cousin, A. Steve McField, I am not going to tell how old he is without him saying that I can do that, because he might get a little upset. I think that's one of the biggest secrets in the Cayman Islands. It's a miracle how old that man is with age, but look at his body. Look at him, Mr. Speaker. And he is still in the Courts! In there like the little 25 and 26-year-old guys that are just coming back from Law school and they are struggling the same. Why? You know he's not going to get old as long as he has something productive to do. He will disappear from this earth, and you wouldn't even know he was old because his mind is focused on a purpose.

Why is it that the Minister of Education believes that philosophy is useless? Why does he not understand that life without ideas, life without a purpose is meaningless? Life, with bread, the Bible says, is not enough; we need more than bread. "Man shall not live by bread alone." It means something, Mr. Speaker.

So, why is it that we feel that somehow we have to just build up the welfare roles? We can begin to bring down that amount of money that we say that we need to find to pay to older people by creating and encouraging them to remain productive parts of our economic environment. It is the most dignified existence, Mr. Speaker, to work for thyself. And I can tell you that as somebody who was unemployed for so long, I would never want to retire from anything. When I retire, I retire in a hole. There is no life after work, and, believe it or not, although that has been preached in a lot of societies that there is life after work, people who have any ambition whatsoever, people who have any desire to live, know that there is no life after work.

Now, work doesn't necessarily have to be that you work from 9 to 5 and that somebody pays you a salary. Work could mean that you been occupied with something. It doesn't mean that you have to come to Legislative Assembly or go to a factory, or go to an office to work. You can work at home, you can work diligently, you know; a little basket, making a little basket, doing some thatch rope, or doing some other things: that might have been the traditional material that was used for the craft, but it doesn't have to remain the material that you use to make the basket for the rest of eternity. You don't have to be fixated and stagnated on any particular thing. You don't even have to do the same things. But you can use your hands, your creativity and your ingenuity to produce and to help the society to be able to maintain you, rather than they having to maintain you by taxing, and taxing, and taxing.

The most blessed thing about us in this Island, Mr. Speaker—and those of us who criticise the Government know this most of all—is that if we can get the Government to come to its senses before it is too late, we can actually save the day. We can turn things around, because there are so many things that have not been tried in this country.

You go on the road in Jamaica and you find the little guy starting as an entrepreneur. He begins with selling a coconut, selling an orange—all those people that you see in this unemployed country are involved in economic activities at all levels. All levels. Nothing is discouraged; nothing is looked down upon; no shame in cutting a coconut.

But when we come to this country the first thing you find...and I was unemployed in this country for a long time and I thought about things— 'Boy, if I could go sell a coconut.' But the first thing going to be said is that it makes the country look bad; it makes it look like Haiti. [Interjection—Mr. Roy Bodden: True, True!]

I tried. So the little guy that might really be able to make money that way and no other way, is discouraged from it because it does not fit the standard. It does not fit the image that we want to project of ourselves. What we have is this whole idea that rather than allowing the spontaneous creative and productive to exist, we are causing people to believe somehow that the only way they can advance is if they get something from the Government, or if they get something from the politician. [Members' applause]

At the end of the day, the only thing that the politician gives them is what he got from someplace else. The only thing the Government gives them, in fact, is what it got from someplace else—and that someplace uses the people through taxes, and taxes, and taxes.

I am saying that we could do a lot because we are coming to a point in the country now where we are getting people who are older. We are getting the whole concept of pension and health insurance, but we have to leave people on the job longer. We have to teach people, and educate people, and socialise people to know that it is not what you work for to retire.

There is no reason why you shouldn't enjoy work. There is no reason why you shouldn't train people to believe that there is a glorious task in being a complementary part of the whole productive aspect of your country and your society.

And regarding civil servants, the mass numbers that the Government has to pay pensions for, and they have to slip them out at a particular time as if it were the military that you have to be in top A-1 shape. They run the civil service like it's a military organisation still by their physical requirements and the age requirements and that kind of nonsense! You tell me that persons 65 and 70 years old couldn't be working with Cayman Islands Civil Service? They do it in cases when they really want to do it. But the only reason why people retired in other situations—in other countries—is to make way for new people. But we don't have that same situation here.

Now, I am not saying that people should get to the top and stay there for all those years, but there is no reason why you can't have a different kind of promotion. It could be lateral, somebody could move along, move into a different area or branch. A policeman does not necessarily, although he might have to retire at 55, have to retire from the service. He could continue to work until he is 65 or 70. We cannot afford to define the retirement age at the same level as a country like the United States or Germany that has the productivity and where there are taxes to pay for this.

We know that these are solutions to the problem, that if we get the managers that are so well equipped in the civil service to research these areas and to come back to us and give us their scientific opinions we can work something out of it. We have to start, as with everything, with an assumption. We have to start with belief. Margaret Thatcher says: "You've got to start with the belief." Always with the belief. And that is why the philosophy is so important.

Now the belief that I have started with in critiquing the Government, and to show how we might create some solutions, is to say that taxation is unnecessary in all countries. Its an unnecessary burden to the Government, an unnecessary burden to people, and a waste of resources. Its not getting and circulating the thing right and going to the thing. It is much better at the end of the day to allow people to purchase what they want, rather than taking from them to purchase what the politicians believe will cause the people to worship them and keep them in power.

I believe that the whole revolution in America, the Republican Revolution in America, was essentially a correct position. In fact, Mr. Speaker, we need less Government rather than more Government. And the Leader of Government Business needs to begin to listen to that philosophy and I will break for lunch now.

The Speaker: We will suspend proceedings until 2:15.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.45 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.40 PM

The Speaker: Proceedings are resumed. Debate continues on the Appropriation (1999) Bill, 1998. The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Thank you, Mr. Speaker, for your patience and indulgence. I felt, in developing this overview of the economic conditions in the Cayman Islands—as outlined by the Honourable Financial Secretary—and in using what I bring to the debate as a Member of the Opposition—(and of course it is my intention to give the Opposition a greater degree of creditability and usefulness) to show that Opposition's constructive criticism is in fact a complementary part of the Westminster Parliamentary Democratic System. And in causing there to be an evolution—an elevation in our political culture, it is necessary at this particular time to speak also with the intention of enlightening Members of the Government (and members of the public at the same time), as to the important role which debate does play in our ability to evolve the general consensus and to make it more obvious to the Government as it goes ahead in defining and re-defining policy decisions.

It has been my intention also to take into account the fact that the Foreign and Commonwealth Office and His Excellency the Governor are involved in the reform movements in this country, and to again say in giving my interview and to point out for the real necessity for reform especially when we see the reform in the budgetary process. But the fact that there are on-going reforms, does not necessarily invalidate, or critique, because without the political will, most of these reforms will die on the operating table as have many of the reforms that have been suggested to the Government of this country over the last twenty years.

Mr. Speaker I believe that we need to re-define and limit the role of Government and to make public agencies and their operations more effective, more transparent and more accountable. The fiscal management policies of this Government become a particular problem at this juncture in our development. The reason I say this is because of the way in which our political structure is organised. The Honourable Financial Secretary is responsible to this Parliament for monetary and fiscal matters. But, at the same time, money is really only that energy which causes activity to be possible.

So the reason why we have someone responsible for managing the money, is because we need the money in order to do things and there is a direct and supportive relationship between the policies of the Government, as they are to carry out and deliver certain goods and services, and the money management. The money management cannot be good and correct and sound if the policies that the Government is pursuing are not correct and sound. Therefore, there can be no attempt by the Elected Government to throw the blame on nominated Members of the Executive Council who are, in fact, outnumbered on Executive Council.

This is important for us to understand when we debate, because we have to understand that although the Financial Secretary is an Honourable and independent person, he is part of a process. And that process of bringing the Budget to the Legislative Assembly is not his sole responsibility; he's just co-ordinator; he is the one who ultimately, I would say, is responsible. But he is only one vote on Executive Council, and the Members who are nominated Members to the Executive Council exist as a minority on Executive Council. The majority are Members that we elected to the Executive Council in November 1996.

So, the Elected Members of the Executive Council that Government charged with the different portfolios, are the persons that evolve the Budget. They evolve the Budget by identifying what they consider to be the priorities of the Government; the priorities of the people of this country. The monies are collected or are sought to support those particular policies. There would be no need for additional revenue if the Elected Members of Executive Council had found some other way to evolve policies besides always feeding the desire for more, and more, and more.

So it is important for the general public to understand that although the Leader of Government Business can somehow remove himself from responsibility for fiscal management and reform, he is an integral part of this and he needs to become more co-operative, I would say—at least from what I have seen in terms of some of the seminars that we have been to with members from New Zealand. When they questioned, for instance, even the whole situation with Cayman Airways—when they asked, “Are you in the Airline business to create jobs for people, or to carry passengers?”

Mr. Speaker, I think those of us who understand social analysis, and system analysis, understand how essential that question is: Is Government here to create jobs for people? Does Government need to really exist as that institution that creates jobs for Caymanians, or can Government help to use its expertise and its resources to generate those better paying and working conditions in the private sector rather than somehow feeling that they have to develop within the institution of Government?

We are saying at the end of the day that our philosophy of what Government is, the role Government should play and the role that the people should play in supporting Government, differs dramatically from that of the Leader of Government Business and the National Team. And that is important when we are to show the people that there are differences. But these differences do not come about because of personal differences; these differences come about because of a different understanding of reality and what is necessary in order to maintain the status quo the general good.

So, in critiquing the situation where the Government finds itself depending upon growth, where in the Budget Address we are talking again about a 5% growth, the Financial Secretary mentions this growth and, again, if we are growing in this country it means that growth creates jobs, and it means that if more jobs are created, more people have to be made available to take those positions. And since we are not producing people at that particular level—and even if we do begin to produce at this time it will take awhile before those people would mature to the point where they would be capable of taking their places in the work world.

So, one thing we know, Mr. Speaker, if we are going to predict a 5% growth even with the economic crises in the world, even if we said to the Government ‘Yes, you are right in predicting that this revenue is possible because you are predicting it based upon a 5% growth within the economy,’ and if the English economy basically is going to only grow .89% or so next year, why is our economy going to be able to maintain this traditional 5% growth? I don't understand that. So... [Interjection—inaudible comment] The Leader of Government Business said, ‘because of good Government.’ In other words, he is a magician. He can defy reality. But the laws of reality, the laws of gravity apply to all human beings. Whether or not they see themselves as superhuman, the laws of gravity apply to all of us. Thank God for that.

Mr. Speaker, what I am saying is: If the country is to grow at this 5% and not to slow down, let's see it as a given. But then we need to bring in more people; and if we are going to grow at that particular rate (we are talking about some 36,000 people at the moment), we are talking about the year 2000. And what we are talking about 50,000 people? 60,000 people? I think it was 1998 or about then, the Third Elected Member from George Town had already made the prediction, because I remember at the Grand Old House he told me exactly what numbers we were going to have in this country by this particular time and by the year 2000 because their figures were somewhere along the line of 60,000 people—which is basically what is being calculated by the year 2005.

Now, growth leads to growth. People who come to this country don't come to take jobs, Mr. Speaker: they come and by assuming a position they create a job. You see this is a fallacy that we have. People take jobs, but they don't take jobs by their becoming involved and the society becoming more specialised and people becoming more interdependent. We create jobs.

For instance, the fact that women go out and work now means that there has to be somebody at home to make sure that our 'din-din' is cooked and to look after the little bit of, 'keeping the clothes together' and so we import a whole heap of domestic workers that a lot of people think is extravagant. But then if you look at how society really becomes more and more specialised and everybody just does what he is supposed to do, and look at the more sophisticated the society is, the more is the inter-dependencies, the more specialised we become.

So, the more sophisticated the Cayman Islands become, the more demand there will be for the people in the Cayman Islands. That is a basic economic principle, Mr. Speaker, that the good Leader of Government Business should know, as he claims to have the degrees in this area. I do not claim to have any degrees in this area.

So, if we have more specialisation, more sophistication, we are going to have more growth and more people. Yet we have not worked out what we are going to do in regard to our Immigration laws. We have not come to the people to try to show them a concept or an idea of how we can integrate and assimilate the early arrivals into the political or social order.

If we are to go forward and grow without having the philosophical or the political knowledge as to how to initiate the process of integration of immigrants and new arrivals, all we are doing is . . . that the poor group becomes smaller and the other group becomes bigger, Mr. Speaker. At the end of the day we have a few Caymanians and we have a lot of foreigners, and the reason why we have a lot of foreigners is because we do not actually make the process of assimilation and integration possible.

All of us would be foreigners in this country today if we did not make the process of assimilation and integration possible. We know enough about history to understand that at one particular time, for instance, a typical example is the American Negro who was not necessarily considered American. It was a process of assimilation and integration that took place that actually acted positively in stimulating the internal economics of the United States of America. The abolition of slavery in America helped to improve the entrepreneurial system.

Just like getting rid of this concept of indentured servitude labour in this country would be very useful in stimulating the growth of the entrepreneurial system in the Cayman Islands, that will work to produce wealth to be distributed in the society by way of free exchange rather than the Government holding civil servants to these types of rigid and medieval contracts, and for them to continue to rely almost completely on a work system that is tied to the same kind of philosophical concept.

The Leader of Government Business needs to know more about history. He needs to use more comparative analysis so that we can avoid some of the pitfalls that we seem to have been developing in this country over quite a long period of time.

Now, if we are going to put up the price of work permits, we are showing the people that we are depending upon increasing the number of work permit holders in order to make revenue in the country to finance the growth of the Government as an institution.

So when the Government goes out there and tells the Cayman Islands people that they are concerned about the growth of the numbers of expats in this country, but at the same time they are putting up and increasing their dependency—the Government's direct dependency on the increase in the number of expats in this country—it's a terrible contradiction, I think, indeed. It also goes to show that maybe the fact that people are not given Caymanian status is because the Government wants to create and maintain this whole archaic form of taxation.

The whole dynamics in terms of the fact that we must grow in order for the Government to get import revenue; we have to have bigger projects, we have to have the Ritz Carlton ($165 million as the Financial Secretary has addressed this in his Budget) rather than having a lot of small projects that would be very useful and still bring consumer benefits to the Government in the way of this form of taxation. Because you would have little people spending money rather than being dependent upon big developers coming into the Cayman Islands and doing these giant projects and making these elaborate promises to us. Because those persons have been on this Island for long periods of time might now be willing to turn their surplus that they have accumulated over the years and put that into the society and circulate that. That circulation would create new energy and new dynamics for the society.

I am not trying to slow down development. And this is where the Leader of Government Business and I differ, because he cannot understand that 'there are different roads to the village' as the African said. You don't have to take the same road. My road, my path, Mr. Speaker, is a little different. I am relying upon the entrepreneurship of the local people—of the local work force, and the people who have come to participate in this.

I have accepted as permanent already the relationships of inter-dependencies, because I can't do without the person who comes to look at my air conditioner, I can't do without my car mechanic, Mr. Speaker. I can't do without my barber, I can't do without my tailor. I cannot do without a lot of things because all I do is what I do. We are all specialised, and as a result of that, we create functions for one another and this is the whole essence of our society. It relates back to our work relationships, the economic relationships and to say that somehow tomorrow we are going to solve the immigrant question in this country by doing what? By denying status? By causing people to horde what they earn? By causing people to export their wealth, that should be circulated?

The immigrant question is a part of the economic formula of this country. We see that every time we talk about supporting Government, we talk about having to explain growth, we talk about having to maintain growth. And by maintaining growth, maintain the pull factor, as we call it in sociology; the factor that pulls people, attracts people to our jurisdiction. Of course, there are those factors in their countries that push them—like poverty and other things. But the main reason why people are here is because we need them here, Mr. Speaker. Because with all the poverty in their countries they wouldn't be here if there were no betterment for them here.

We create the attraction because we have provided the conditions for the growth of capital and the expression of capital development in our environment. So, until Government is willing to destroy the basis for capitalistic development, it will continue to attract people. And it will continue in most cases to be selective, according to Darwin's theory of the Survival of the Fittest, by selecting those who can be most efficient and most productive. Those are the laws of this economical system that we are a part of.

So, therefore, that Government needs to expect certain givens. They need to get off their sitting-down parts and go out and explain to the people how the society is put together—what we need—because, Mr. Speaker, time longer dan rope.

We have come far in 30 years, and not everybody understands. It is important to understand that what Government has done for the most time in this country is to confuse people about what is necessary for our existence; what is necessary for stability. What has been told is necessary for stability is that Frank McField doesn't get a job in this country; that Frank McField doesn't say this, and Frank McField doesn't say that. That has been for the last 20 years. Certain people do not take up leadership positions in this country. That is how we have sole stability when that has nothing to do with it, Mr. Speaker. Stability will only exist when we come to accept what shapes or conditions are necessary and sufficient for a high standard of living. Once you get that co-operation, once you begin to use the expertise in this country, Mr. Speaker—and in a lot of cases you don't have to pay for it because it came and it was trained someplace else. It comes here but rather than us seeing it as an asset, we see it as a threat.

The thing that really threatens us is bad leadership in this country, not bad management, because the managers are competent. The leadership, let's say they are not in their league as far as I am concerned, and that's my opinion. They need to show me that this is not the case.

Now, I am saying all of this to say that I am not devoid of ideas about how to solve the immigration dilemma, which is partly in this country a moral dilemma. I am not going to tell the Leader of Government Business my business. I am going to keep this, because while he said that I wasn't productive in my society, Mr. Speaker, I was very productive. If I weren't productive, Mr. Speaker, I wouldn't have these ideas today. How do you think they came? Why is it that I can speak for four hours and I am fluent? I am fluent, and I talk, talk, talk. And believe it or not it makes a lot of sense because I was practising. And sometimes people ask 'How do you do it?' I say it's by writing plays. When you write plays, Mr. Speaker, you have to do dialogues and when you have, like I did in "Time Longer Dan Rope", something like 17 characters, you have to keep all these characters in place and you have to put these characters in space and time, and you have to let these characters interact. That takes practise; you don't do it overnight. And that's the reason why there are not many people that have actually accomplished this sort of nonsense that the gentleman in charge of education would think that this is.

But there were times when I too felt that I would never be given the opportunity to expound upon some of the observations that I had been able to make as an outsider in this society, and also as an insider in this society. If I take myself back and look at how we have developed . . . it is very easy for those who have had that advantageous position to see the development, to be sociologists, because all we are, are observers.

People who came afterward, maybe they have to come back and study it. But most of us had the opportunity to observe these particular factors and these particular dynamics. We know that we can say that there has to come a time when the Government of this country decides that this is a permanent society; not a transitory society. A society in a state of change, but nevertheless a society that is permanent; a society that has its own basic indigenous roots and needs; a society that has built upon different economic and slightly social differences in relationships than other places.

The role of Immigration in the Cayman Islands, the role and the importance of Immigration in creating a prosperous society, not just from providing capital but providing expertise and providing even manual assistance in this society, has to be seriously taken into account and into the economic picture. We should have that as part of the picture, because if that were withdrawn tomorrow, Mr. Speaker, the society would collapse even quicker than if we had no Government.

If the foreign people in this country decided to take one day, one hour, off work, and shut this place down just for that time, it would not work. It goes to show that you are not considered to be important. We do not consider people to be important simply because of the fact that they have Caymanian status or not, but because of the fact that they become an integral part of the mechanism of the system in which we are dependent upon for our survival and improvement and our godliness.

Therefore, I cherish the idea that we will be evolving a concept of a nation, a concept of a state that will take into account the opportunity to grasp the expertise, and the abilities, and the enthusiasm which is around us today and not to push it away and bar it by putting up walls between us and them—these walls called “work permits.”

I see that Government has talked about the money which they have made on the stamp duties on selling land or the exchange on it. Every year we hear about how much land is being sold. But how many Caymanians are involved in these transactions when we really relate to it? Is it just because people are speculating with the land? If they are speculating with the land, the land is going and becoming priced in such a way that it affects the price of land, because you know how we evaluate land, the land is evaluated according to what land is selling for in particular areas. So, we are getting to the point where the Caymanian cannot afford to buy the land and where the foreigner is involved in owning the land. And when I say ‘foreigner’ I beg to use that generally when I understand that there are a lot of differences from the point of view of what people from different places are capable of affording.

I say this to say that on one hand Caymanians are concerned about retaining Caymanian status and not allowing the evolution of the society by making it possible for other people to achieve Caymanian status, but not many people are involved in saving their land. If you go to people tomorrow and say ‘Don’t sell your land, keep your land,’ but ‘What could you get for status?’ I have asked people. If you walk down the street you own nothing. You are a Caymanian, but what doesn’t belong to you personally, does not belong to you. There is nothing that belongs to the Government, in fact, to the total people, that you can collect individually in that sense.

Your only rights, the part of the covenant has to do with rights and obligations. It does not have to do with your being supported. So we cannot exchange for our status anything. But the piece of land is valuable because the piece of land is part of the means of production. It can be used to produce, it can be used to live on.

So if the country has developed no laws to retain land, and the country has pursued a policy of selling land and trying to sell more land and to brag about land sales in order to say we are making more money; if the country has done that, at the same time the country retains a rigid hold on the integration of people into the nation by way of giving everybody equal rights to help make decisions on a political level, and make decisions about at least the direction of the country, that is a vast contradiction that people have to learn to deal with.

But it’s the lack of intellectual ability of people that causes them not to see that somehow the boat is getting lop-sided and somehow the ship is going to break apart if we don’t manage her between the waves. We have to create a balance between growth, and our desire for growth, and our ability to weave a society by integrating people, and by integrating values, and by making the transition in values and ideas. This is where the role of ideas becomes very significant in this particular phase—this very challenging phase of our existence.

The fact that we have persons from New Zealand who are willing to come here to assist us in analysing our present structure, recommending reforms; the fact that they can come in and from the very beginning say that we have a revenue system, we have a need that cannot be supported. Its like the addict that has a need and can’t support it. You know what he does when he has a need and can’t support it? Do you know what she does? They go and break into somebody’s house. But we call that burglary and they go to jail. But the Government does it and we call it taxation—and Government gets away with it! But the analogy, I think, holds up.

It is the same thing, Mr. Speaker: Government has a problem; it has an addiction; it needs to feed that addiction and it goes out and uses the old traditional Caesar-thing saying, ‘We are the Government. We decide that we are going to tax.’ But the fortunate thing, Mr. Speaker, is that Parliament must decide if there is to be taxation. Parliament must decide if this amount of money that the Government desires is okay. Parliament must make judgement. Parliament has the authority to do this, Mr. Speaker, and it’s in this light that we make these observations at this particular time. And as we go into Finance Committee and into the other stages, there are persons among us who have their excellence in doing this thorough examination. I am sure it will turn every stone.

This is a good thing because it strengthens the people’s democracy. The people can feel more confident that we are not asleep, that we are scrutinising, that we are diligent, that the Government does not take this country totally off course.

I would also like to say that I am still concerned about the fact that the Government is collecting so much money, or a substantial amount of money, for motor vehicle duty—which is something like $8,805,107. Gasoline is close to $17 million. Motor vehicle tax is over $4 million, and the motor vehicle drivers’ licences are over $1,300,000.

Mr. Speaker, what is the condition of the roads of this country? Somehow discipline in Government will have to do with giving the consumer what they pay for, and to build up that trust in the consumer, because you have to understand that what we are beginning to preach, what the Government itself is being told, or what’s being discussed at the Glass House with regard to the reforms, is that we are seeing the public as customers and the Government as the deliverer of service, as we see it in the private sector. So the public sector’s concept is becoming very much like the private sector. If this is to be so you can’t have all the money that the people are paying for vehicles eaten out in other areas.

You can say that you need it for other areas, and that they are not paying enough for other areas. You can say that you need more money to go to pay for the expensive hospital and the expensive cost of running this hospital which is something like $34 million. And these are just estimates in my mind; it might be more. But, in any case, it is important that people see what they are paying for in direct relationship with what they get. That's a good policy to develop, to allow people to see directly what they pay, and what they get. It's sound.

Government must get away from this medieval, archaic concept that whatever it does is well done because the people have put them in power, therefore they have the right to make decisions without even consulting the people, and so forth, and so on. We have to become more like pragmatic persons that are willing to be like doctors—go out there and look for the symptoms of the problems and deal with the symptoms of the problems rather than trying to lead the country by our own personal opinions and our own personal will.

We need a new day. We need new faith. We need to, as I said... if civil servants want to go get Masters' [degrees], let them go. All of them would like to go to United States and not wait to have to go to Britain. There is no way we should continue to kill their enthusiasm and dampen their spirits. And a lot of times when they are already in the frame of mind for studying it is sometimes best to allow them to do that until they have completed their degree. And, of course, we are finding in the world that a first degree is no longer enough in most cases; we need, at least in the American system, the additional Masters'.

So, we want to encourage the Government to see that it does not have to send people off to school, pay millions of dollars for their education and feel compelled to have to employ these people themselves, because that is wrong. Give the people their freedom papers. Let them go out there and sign the freedom declaration, and let them go out there and help them to become entrepreneurs, to create new jobs.

A lot of them, as young people, would find difficulty in going to the bank and getting money because they come from poor families and perhaps don't have the land to get the security to start the business. But Government, if it is a creative and sensitive Government, if it is an intelligent Government, a competent Government, it would not hold up this expertise—would not try to monopolise on this expertise, but would make it available to the general circulation because that improves the wealth of the nation.

The wealth of the nation is not created by Government; it is created by people's initiatives, entrepreneurship. And if we hold that back, if we smoulder that, if we coop that up, if we pen that up, if we imprison that in the Glass House, and that Glass-House concept of creativity and productivity, Mr. Speaker, we are going to find that the country will be worse off.

Now, I have no solutions as to how to limit the numbers of jobs. As a matter of fact as long as the opportunities exist it means that we have a possibility to take advantage of them. If we don't take advantage of those opportunities today, we might take advantage of them in ten years. I think that I might be considered to be a good example of that—someone who might be considered to have not taken advantages of certain opportunities. But I waited a long time. Don't kill the opportunity simply because there is nobody there to take advantage of it. Allow the opportunity to remain there because one day someone might decide to take advantage of the opportunity.

So what is good is not necessarily that Caymanians are in jobs, Mr. Speaker. That is good, but that is not ultimately what we have to be looking at. We have to be looking at whether or not the opportunities are there, and as long as we have the economic dynamics we will continue to create those opportunities. Therefore, we will also be creating a pattern that will make it possible for Caymanians, when they are qualified or when they are born, to take up the position.

But I also want to say that in particular reference to the hospital, although it is something that I would probably like to research, I believe that we are in a good location to sell medicine, to sell health services. We are in a central place, and just like we have fulfilled a role in banking, just like we have fulfilled a role in tourism, we can begin to perhaps think about how health improvement and health care can be combined with tourism.

Now I would like to see perhaps some of the young minds in the Economic and Statistics Department begin to evolve these ideas, because when we come into Government in the year 2000 we hope that at least we would have given them enough signals to the direction in which they should be working. Obviously, we don't want to keep everything a secret because that would mean that we would have to do everything in a day. And since we are not interested in revolution, but in evolution, we need to give them a tip in the right direction.

Mr. Speaker, we can make good money if we allow doctors to come in, for instance, from places like the United States, Canada, Russia wherever they come from, with the great expertise that we need. We won't have, then, to fly our people over to Miami, but people in Miami might be flying over to the Cayman Islands—also people from Honduras, people from Argentina.

I see where the Department of Tourism is beginning to open some offices in South America. I see where the Financial Secretary has already gone there to look at this type of business. I would like for the Minister of Health to be looking for some business from these countries. Why not, Mr. Speaker? In order to be able to pay for the maintenance of our hospital, and so our people can get advantages as a result of this? I do not see the hospital at the end of the day, although I am critical in certain areas because I am saying we have a problem, let's deal with it. I am saying it is too expensive for us, the consumers of these facilities, to pay in the Cayman Islands. So we are going to have to think about a different concept.

Now, if we look at the situation whereby we say we are saving jobs for Caymanian doctors, we look at the fact that we don't have a medical school. We look at the fact that we don't have a school for teachers. How many teachers are we qualifying? And that's easier to do over these years. But doctors would be difficult to get into medical schools anywhere because most of the countries that have medical schools want to keep the spaces for their own people. There is a big competition out there. It takes a long time to qualify.

We could have it that good doctors come here, because we are not trying to protect jobs for anyone. Make it competitive. The medical care of the Caymanian people at an affordable cost is more important than any nationalistic principle, any false pride about saving jobs—for whom? Sperm? People not born? Come on, we have to deal with today. If we can get the best doctors in the world here and I get sick, I have a chance.

We didn't decide to buy a jet and put it on the airport to fly people off rather than building a big hospital. We built a big hospital that is going to cost a lot to manage, and we need to turn that into something that is commercially viable. We need to mix the public sector and the private sector; we need to integrate them somehow. And there are so many doctors in the world who are taxed so highly. Medical insurance is international. You can get treated any place and the insurance company will cover you. So Americans can come here and be treated. You could probably not just do it in those areas, maybe even plastic surgery or whatever it is, heart surgery. We can get a program together where we spend additional amounts of money, we can create this type of atmosphere and our people would benefit as well.

So there is still some hope for the health policies, but the Government will need to become a little more creative and a little more dynamic. And if you can go into the South American countries to do tourism and that sort of stuff, then you can do it in this way.
