Mr. Speaker, I have been asked to read from the Hansard of March 1993, where the now Leader of Government Business, the Honourable Minister of Education said: "One of the Members spoke, dealing with the training of teachers, and I fully endorse that. In fact, an example given was the Law School. I found that a compliment to me because as Members of this Honourable House know I was one of the early movers for the Law School to come in. It is an institution that I have a lot of pride in, the standards are very high and there is no reason why that cannot be done in relation to teachers and in other areas such as banking and perhaps insurance." [1993 Official Hansard Report, Vol.1, p. 182]

The members of the Opposition Backbench would like to know what that Minister has done to see that there is perhaps a training school. I know it was something that I stressed in my political manifesto, and it was something that a lot of people were interested in. In fact, I was basically relying on people who were choosing second careers, because for some reason we think that teachers have to come from people choosing first careers. In other words, you have to go from school to teachers' training school. You couldn't have gone into work, have a few children and come back to train as a teacher. Because even if a person spends ten years teaching, or has ten years left, . . . and, like I was saying, Mr. Speaker, about people being able to work longer, there is no reason why somebody shouldn't still be able to work even if they shared jobs as teachers until they are 65 or 70.

Even if we have women in the banking sector, and I appealed to them in my 1996 manifesto, saying, 'Hey, look, we would like to create a teachers' training college here, so that you don't have to go abroad and leave your children.' That is the reason why it would be good to have a school here, because it would make it possible for people to be able to fulfil their obligations to do that.

I have covered a lot of ground. I have done this because when given the opportunity to rise to speak, Members of Government acted as if they were willing to allow the debate to close. It has been more traditional here that I usually follow (in the Budget Address) the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town—the other Member of the Opposition—who feels compelled to speak on this particular level. Of course, as I said, we have our other Members who will continue to scrutinise this particular process.

I have a few minutes left, and I would now like to refer to the fact that in the Thursday (12 November 1998) paper we find that the Ministerial responsibilities were reshuffled. I feel that I should be able to have that decision explained in a way. If the efficiency of a Portfolio or of a Department is impaired because of the way in which a Member of the Executive Council relates to that department, we in the Legislative Assembly have a right to know, since the Ministers are accountable to this Legislative Assembly. If they are not accountable to this Legislative Assembly, Mr. Speaker, then this whole process is a fraud. For it not to be, we must not be able to talk, we must not be able to bark but when we have to bite we need to be able to do so.

I feel . . . and I am not trying to revive any debates but I feel that that decision needed to have been made and I congratulate His Excellency the Governor in having put Public Works under a Minister—

The Speaker: Could I just interrupt you a moment? I would like to call to your attention Standing Order 63(2). It says: "On the motion for the Second Reading of an Appropriation Bill, debate shall be confined to the financial and economic state of the Islands and the general principles of Government policy and administration as indicated by the Bill and the estimates." Please confirm to that. Please continue.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I am not going to argue with you on this one. I think that you allowed me so much leeway today that I would not do that at all. I think that I would move on to the economic state of the Island.

Perhaps the other part of the paper [Caymanian Compass, Wednesday, 4 November] I need to make mention of, is where it reports that the Ritz lease payment deadline has passed. I would. . . and the Honourable Minister responsible there says that his answer to the paper and to us, is that the complex set of legal documents has been delivered to the Legal Department which is now reviewing them, said Mr McLean about the lease extension and various other agreements and conditions between Government and the Ritz Carlton. Upon finalisation and signing of the documents, $4 million will be paid to Government, he stated.

Now, obviously, Mr. Speaker, if the Government had gotten their $4 million before they came to the Legislative Assembly, they might not be borrowing so much money, or they might not be taxing people. At least they might not be putting cigarette taxes and liquor taxes. So I think that this shows that the Government is incompetent because if it is so important . . . If I employed people, and I were in a difficult financial situation and there was money available out there, and I had to come back and tell those people, 'Well, I am sorry you can't pay your bills because I didn't finish my paperwork.' No! You see, this statement was made by the Minister responsible for lands, and this is a part of the economic situation.

To say that the complex set of legal documents has been delivered and not finalised. Now how complex and complicated could they be? And if they were so complex and complicated, how come we had access to some documents and we could discuss some of these documents? Then that means that what we were discussing were not the documents. Because if [the documents] I had been debating were not the correct documents that Government says were the—then I don't know. But, again, I believe it is an attempt to blame the management for the problems that the leadership creates. Management is about doing things right; leadership is about doing the right things. If the Government had been about doing the right things with regard to the Ritz Carlton episode, the Government would not have found itself in this embarrassing position today.

And so I say to the Leader of Government Business—who's the legal brainchild in this country, who's the genius—Where art thou $4 million today, sir? "Time Longer Dan Rope", Mr. Speaker.

I have hope yet that although I disagree with the development on the mangrove side, that the development on the Holiday Inn side will take place and that the Government will find it necessary to be a little more efficient in getting its legal paperwork together so that those people can pay them the money and we can get on with that particular part of the development. So, we could say at the same time that if we did not chastise them sufficiently, they would be doing things like this. . . . And being $4 million out is a lot. . . . In most jobs you would lose your job for that, Mr. Speaker! You would lose your job and the people of this country need to seriously take that into consideration.

They are going to pay? You are going to ask the people to pay for liquor and cigarettes? You are going to endanger your tourist trade when you know that their arrivals have not been increasing at the pace that they were before anyway? Because the competition is there as well as the expensive pricing, you are going to take the chance of putting the prices up on tobacco and alcohol and to destroy and to affect—perhaps—effectively do this? You are going to stand against other people and you could get $4 million and you didn't find the time to stay up nights and get the paper work done and make sure that could all be signed? What an excuse!

You see this is one reason why I find it. . . Me, Mr. Speaker, me? 'As for me and my household,'. . . this explanation, this is supposed to be truth! This is truth, Mr. Speaker, because this statement came from the Ministry. This is true! Bill Clinton—right now they want to impeach him because of what? [Members' laughter] Is this true? Can we hold them accountable? Should we? Can we? Will we? Yes we will.

Just like we held the Minister of Education, the Leader of Government Business, accountable for saying that he believed the taxation on these particular issues would hurt children and families and now he is doing it. Now he is doing it, Mr. Speaker! Although, if that Honourable gentleman had used part of his legal expertise he could have helped and assisted to get the paperwork in place to be able to collect $4 million.

Now what are the Caymanian people supposed to think about those persons that could have $4 million in their hands and worked so hard to get us to approve this thing and now all they have to do is get the paperwork finished and they don't have the paperwork finished to collect their $4 million? And you are going to turn around and tax the people? Well, I don't believe seriously that the Government takes its job seriously. The Government needs to come here and defend what it does.

When Government does things like this, Mr. Speaker, it is going to have difficulty with me. This is one reason why I bring certain motions in this Legislative Assembly. I don't bring motions to bring a motion to have a debate. I have to have passion for what I say. And when I have passion for what I say, I don't know anything other to say than what I said. It is quite obvious at this particular time that the pretence—the claims—the accusations that that side of the floor is competent, and that [on] this side of the floor [we are only] "rabble-rousers" is not true! We are only questioning. And should we not question when we have statements made like this?

Those of us who are doing our jobs know that we have to ask the question. . . because I am telling you, Mr. Speaker, we have so many educated Caymanians, we stopped counting. They are smart, they ask questions. I interact. People are questioning, 'Well, how come you are not doing anything about that? How come you are not saying anything about that?' How come you people don't see that?

These people out there, the kids out there . . . and nobody should believe that somehow to be a politician, you should have mastered the art of deception, because I believe that there is a possibility for a new way. There must be a possibility for a new way. There must be a possibility that we can be honest.

Serious questions face this country today. The question of how we are going to integrate and assimilate, or co-exist, with the large numbers of foreign nationals living in the Cayman Islands. Living here not as beggars, but because they are a necessary part of our own existence, and our own high standard of living, and our own contentedness. They are a complementary part of the package. How are we going to deal with this without dishonesty? How are we going to be able to 'bite the bullet,' as my cousin, A. Steve McField says, and say to the people "these are difficulties, these are the realities"—and to make the transition.

In ending, I have to say, I have one grandfather who is a Jamaican. I have only seen that gentleman once in my life—when I was going through Miami in 1964 to the United States to New Jersey. He met my grandmother, who is a Dixon from East End—Lyla Dixon—he met her in Cuba, Isle of Pines, Cuba. And he fathered my mother by her and one other daughter, and my Uncle O'Neil. So, if I look on my tree—on all my grandfather's daughters—not one of them married a Caymanian. This was back in the '30s, or whenever. One married Charles Barnes, one married some guy called Hunt. Mable married Evans and we don't remember that their father came from Belize or Jamaica. I mean, we don't want to think about that, Mr. Speaker. That's how fast these things take place.

All you have to do is know that by knowing comparative society. People will not dwell on these things. They will pass them by, they will forget about them. Therefore, we have to seriously begin to think about how we are going to integrate the people of the Island. Mr. Speaker are you going to....

The Speaker: We can take the afternoon break now.

Mr. Frank McField: Okay.

The Speaker: We shall suspend for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.45 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.15 PM

The Speaker: Proceedings are resumed. Debate continues on the Appropriation (1999) Bill, 1998. The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, in conclusion I would say that it is time the Government responsible for Immigration policy, understands that the process of recognising the importance of immigration to the Cayman Islands and the fact that immigration, in some form or other, is a permanent part and fixture of our evolving nation or society. And that it sets itself about seriously making the necessary types of aware development to be able to achieve maximum economic benefits without 'asset-stripping' which means using immigration as a temporary or transitional phenomena enabling them to get quick revenue from immigrants by way of work permits. And perpetuating that particular situation in order to continue to finance Government and to make the excuses that the Island doesn't have any kind of tax system. If we are to continue to grow economically without social integration, it will become the foundation for social and political turmoil in the future. I trust that this job will not just be left to the future Government, but that they will begin to work to find some workable solutions at present.

I would also like to recognise the fact that I haven't seen Mr. John Redman in the balcony since we started; I hope that he is on vacation and not that he is ill. And, Mr. Speaker, of course I do appreciate the fact that the Caymanian Compass has someone in the Legislative Assembly covering these debates, especially when it comes to the period of us examining the Budget.

I air my disappointment with CITN and the way in which they have related to this particular important event. I stressed this when I went to London, also about the concept of freedom of the press or a press that is responsible. They have to go through the same requirements and register of interests that we have to go through, and I think, Mr. Speaker, that we showed them a certain amount of tolerance. Too often I hear government ministers in particular making remarks about the press that I do not believe is in keeping with the democratic tradition.

CITN has a Government licence and I hope that they will continue—because I have my time on TV, I have my contract until the year 2000—because I am doing a job. So I can get on TV and I can get my point across. But all the Members here should be able to give the public their interpretation of the facts and of the reality.

If the Government is not interested in visiting the TV station, it should not cause there to be a situation where Members of the Opposition are not consulted. If the Members of the Opposition are invited to the TV station and we go, and the Government doesn't want to go and answer back, that's its business. The TV station is still doing its job.

I have the suspicion, Mr. Speaker—and I hope that these suspicions are not correct—that somehow the TV station—if you look at DayBreak in the morning that used to have a lot of political programs—that these things are not happening. So I am hoping that the media as a whole, feels that it can help us to disseminate the necessary information to the general public.

In conclusion, I would again like to say that in all fairness I believe that the credibility and integrity of the National Team Government is rapidly eroding. I believe that this particular Budget, the need for taxes, the way in which the Government is projecting revenue based upon unsubstantiated imperial evidence goes to show that we need to have more scrutiny, that the Members of the Opposition need to become more and more aggressive in their holding Government accountable. The people as a whole need to understand that the general culture of accountability and commitment by Government as well as the Opposition, is to the overall betterment of the parliamentary system.

What I have tried to do is to take my responsibility seriously. I have gotten up and spoken with the whole confidence that once I spoke, other Members would be given the opportunity, perhaps in a lot of cases, to learn something. I wasn't going to speak for this amount of time, but if nobody wanted to speak I figured it would not be a bad idea for me to use the time of others.

So, Mr. Speaker, I will now close and give the Government, the Leader of Government Business, an opportunity to answer back and just say that he should bear in mind when he answers, that he said in 1991: "It has one further Heading [meaning the Estimates] and that is the category which points very clearly to the fact that any new Government that takes over from this Government is going to have four of the most difficult years that any new Government has ever faced because the country is left and is now, in fact, in an economic mess and getting out of it stably and doing the consolidating that is necessary over the next four years is not something that is going to be popular." [1991 Official Hansard Report, Vol. III, p. 1224]

Now, we have to say this one year before he actually said it when the Government was going to change. So in getting up to reply, he should bear all of this in mind. He should not just say how useless some of the things I have had to say are; he should also make some comments as to the usefulness of some of the things that he also said in 1991. Thank you.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Thank you. Mr. Speaker. I rise to offer my contribution to the Budget Address, debate. When we look at the Budget before this Honourable House in the range of $309 million, I wonder if there were any of us who ten or fifteen years ago could ever project that we would get to this level.

Let me say, Mr. Speaker, that the Cayman Islands have always had resolve to maintain stability; to adhere to some financial policy and to get on with the job of governing these Islands, and to make this country safe for children to grow up and for our citizens to be safe from crime and to enjoy a good standard of living.

No matter how you cut this cloth, Mr. Speaker, the prosperity in the Cayman Islands is evident almost every street you turn down. And those streets where you don't find that amount of prosperity, the Government is trying its best to ensure that those who are less fortunate are also looked after.

There is a limited amount of resources so that latter statement is always debatable. But no one can get up in this House and successfully make a comment that the Government is not helping those who are less fortunate in this country: $309 million, Mr. Speaker—I heard some comments and I hope I heard wrongly. The revenue generated in this country is $282.6 million. That's the budgeted amount. The recurrent expenditure in this Budget is $238 to round it off, or $237 million. The revenue in this Budget covers both recurrent expenditure and statutory expenditure. We need to be sure that the public understands those two figures. We need not to sit quietly and cause them to believe that the revenue in this Budget is not sufficient to meet recurrent and statutory expenditures.

We are also making about $11 million, Mr. Speaker, as contributions to other reserves and statutory contributions, to public service pension fund. There are roughly $2 million in it for new services; and for capital acquisitions, meaning the purchase of vehicles, fire trucks, heavy equipment among other things, approximately $9.2 million.

There are times in this country, Mr. Speaker, when because of economics—because of the need to carry out significant capital work, be it the need for education buildings—where we know that in West Bay, the student population at the John Cumber School is bordering on 480 children; where we know that at Red Bay, there are over 400 children. My information tells me that many of the private schools do not have a great deal of vacant space to be occupied in September.

So, there is a need to ensure that children—where the country says in the Education Law that education is mandatory for children up to the age of sixteen, it is Government's responsibility to ensure that Education facilities, particularly in the public sector, are available for those children to have access to learning.

This 1999 Budget is one of those cases where there is a need to do a new primary school in George Town; where there is a need to deal with the Lighthouse School in this country. There is also a need to build a multi-purpose hall at John Cumber. When they have their graduation ceremonies, they have to go to one of the hotels because there is no building in West Bay that can actually accommodate them. Even their Christmas program has to be held on the playfield, or at some other facility on Seven Mile Beach.

The Speaker: May I interrupt you, for just one moment. We have reached the hour of 4:30. When you reach a convenient period then we will take a motion for the adjournment.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: We can take it here, Mr. Speaker, if you wish.

The Speaker: I entertain a motion for the adjournment of this House.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Boddin: Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until next Monday at 10.00 AM. I would also like to mention, as was discussed, that next week we will be sitting until 7.00 PM.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The question is that this House do now adjourn until 10.00 AM on Monday, Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House will stand adjourned until Monday morning, 23 November 1998 at 10 o'clock.

AT 4.32 PM, THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM MONDAY, 23 NOVEMBER 1998.

MONDAY
10.30 AM

[Prayers read by the Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning]

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed.

Item number 2 on today's Order Paper: Administration of Oaths and Affirmation to the Hon. Donovan W. F. Ebanks to be the Hon. Temporary Acting First Official Member.

Mr. Ebanks, would you come forward to the Clerk's table?

ADMINISTRATION OF OATHS
OR AFFIRMATIONS

OATH OF ALLEGIANCE

Mr. Donovan W. F. Ebanks, MBE

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: I, Donovan Ebanks, do swear that I will be faithful and bear true allegiance to Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II, her heirs and successors according to law, so help me God.

The Speaker: Please take your seat, Mr. Ebanks, as the Hon. Temporary Acting First Official Member. On behalf of all Members I welcome you here during the time of your stay. Item number 3 on today's Order Paper: Reading by the Speaker of Messages and announcements.

READING BY THE SPEAKER OF
MESSAGES AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: I have received apologies for absence from the Hon. Third Official Member, who will be arriving later this morning.

Item number 4 on today's Order Paper: Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. Question 197 is standing in the name of the First Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION 197

No. 197: Mr. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation to give a breakdown on the cost of the reconstruction of the George Town Hospital by year from its commencement to its anticipated completion at the end of 1998.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Health, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: The new Health Services Complex in George Town commenced in 1995 with engineering design then went into the construction stage in April 1996. Although the new buildings will be completed in 1998, the renovation to existing hospital buildings will not be completed until mid 1999. A cost breakdown of the project from commencement to the final year is as follows:

|                                |              |
|--------------------------------|--------------|
| 1995 actual expenditure was    | $ 1,261,219 |
| 1996 actual expenditure was    | 5,985,697    |
| 1997 actual expenditure was    | 11,895,899   |
| 1998 estimated expenditure is  | 7,157,816    |
| 1999 estimated expenditure is  | 2,687,851    |
| Total estimated expenditure is | $28,988,482 |

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister say if the estimated expenditure for 1999 is actually included in the estimates before us at present?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, to the best of my knowledge.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister, if possible give us a breakdown to date—i.e., as of the end of 1998—as to what funds were used out of general revenue for the project and what funds were dealt with by borrowings?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: No, Mr. Speaker, I do not have that information with me, but with the assistance of the Hon. Financial Secretary's office I will undertake to pass that to him and other Honourable Members.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I wonder if the Hon. Minister could give us an idea of what departments are operational at the Hospital and when will the others be brought on stream?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, those departments now functional...the philosophy is that once a section is ready and is operational we move into it. Those [functional] are: Maternity section, Paediatrics, Intensive Care Unit, the Operating theatres, Physiotherapy, Out-Patient Mental Health, Laboratory. The other sections will be finished this year. Once those are finished we will commission the new equipment making sure everything is tested and up and running. By early next year, God willing, everything will be functioning.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, could the Hon. Minister say if the estimated expenditure for 1999 is a result of a conclusion that the estimated expenditure for 1998 which is listed here as being the correct amount; or if the Minister at this particular stage which it is laid on (the year is just about concluded), could the Minister say then if the estimated expenditure here of over $7 million would be close to what the actual expenditure would be like, and therefore if he has done the figures for the estimated for 1999, based upon the estimated for 1998 being the actual for 1998.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, Mr. Speaker, the engineering and the project management team have estimated this and this is our best figure with the process which we are going through now.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Mr. Speaker, I wonder, for the sake of clarity, if the Hon. Minister could say whether figures are included in these amounts for any renovations on the George Town Complex, not just the Hospital. That is something that needs to be clarified.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: That is a good question, Mr. Speaker. As we said previously, this does not only deal with the completion of the new hospital, but when we move out of the existing ward that will be converted into geriatrics. We are also envisaging a hospice unit there and other areas; also, better capability to handle as a district health centre for George Town. These are part of the renovations we will be doing there which allows George Town to have a bigger and more comfortable space in which the doctors will be able to deal.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, is the Minister saying in fact that there will be a district clinic for George Town on that compound?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: It is envisaged that we will have a much enhanced general practice service available in that section.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, my question was whether or not there will be a district clinic for the district of George Town.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, not per se as a new building, but as the facilities available for the doctors to practise in there.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: So, Mr. Speaker, that I am clear in my mind, is the Minister saying that in these amounts are figures for buildings that have been renovated?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, Mr. Speaker, that is correct.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: So, Mr. Speaker, the amount of $28.9 million has not been spent on the new hospital as such.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: That is correct, Mr. Speaker, per se as of the new buildings, but the overall—what we see there is the Cayman Islands Health Services Complex and these renovations will complete the entire picture, which we have been lacking for over 30 years.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay

Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I wonder if the Minister could say whether the wards that are now being used are already fully equipped.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, if he would clarify whether it is the existing wards, or the new wards.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks: (inaudible reply).

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, I must say that these wards are exceptionally well-equipped. Just this morning—which made me feel good—there was a young lady on there who experienced the ‘world class’ service that we now provide there.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Once the Hospital has been completed, what is the projected recurrent expenditure for the Hospital—that is, running the Hospital. And how is it projected to cover this cost?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation. This is not a part of the substantive question: if you wish to answer it, you may.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Just to inform the Honourable Member, Mr. Speaker, that that is part of a substantial question that is coming later and I will give the details at that time.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Can the Minister say if included in these projected figures for 1999 are the figures for the completion of all the external works to the Complex?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Another good question, Mr. Speaker. Yes, it includes all of the final work.

The Speaker: I will allow three additional supplementaries.

The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Minister tell the House why the $6 million it cost to stop the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital is not reflected in any cost completion for the new George Town Hospital?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, that is outside of the project we are doing here with the new Health Services Complex. That is something that I have no comment on.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Can the Honourable Minister say whether all facilities are now in one area? In other words you do not have one site one way and one site another. There is no split-site system—if I am correct. Can the Minister say that?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Excellent question, Mr. Speaker! And if we had used the split-site facility as proposed by a previous Minister, I think that $6 million would look like peanuts when you would have the doctors and the nurses running from one site to the other trying to deal with seriously ill patients!

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, in a previous answer to a supplementary, I think the Minister undertook to get some information and pass it on with regards to the—I think it was the capital expenditure.

What I would like to find out from the Minister is, since he is about to embark on that, is if first of all we could have the answer in writing at early as possible convenience, and in so doing, could the Minister add to the request from the beginning of the reconstruction in 1995 to get the information with regards to what percentage of the Country’s total capital expenditure for each year was the expenditure on the reconstruction of the Hospital.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, I give that undertaking.

The Speaker: I did say three supplementaries, but the Fourth Elected Member for George Town has been trying to catch my eye, so I will give him an opportunity.

The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I certainly appreciate the solidarity in which the Hon. Minister is getting from the other Members that had to do with the stopping of the Hospital, but the question that I am really concerned with, Mr. Speaker, is whether or not the original estimated cost of the Hospital has now been exceeded and by what amount has this number exceeded that original estimated cost.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Gladly, Mr. Speaker, I will answer that question.

When the first estimate came out it was in the area of $22+ million. When we took the drawings, etc. back to the Steering Committee in which we involved all of the medical practitioners and technicians, they said to me and the Steering Committee on the whole, that for us to have a much better functioning facility, we needed to add some more space. At that time, Mr. Speaker, it was approximately an extra 2,500 sq. ft.

I know a number of colleagues here this evening and as soon as I found out about this additional space and cost to this Country, I invited at that time the First Elected Member for Bodden Town, the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, and I think the Second Elected Member from George Town. I brought them in and I showed them, and as soon as time permitted, I shared with the entire House the additional cost and the reason why it went up.

The Speaker: Question No. 198 standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 198 (Withdrawn)

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I would crave the indulgence of [the Chair] and the Honourable House to have this question withdrawn, seeing that the Minister just last week tabled the Cayman Islands' Student Drug-Use Survey, sir.

The Speaker: I shall put the question. Those in favour of this question being withdrawn please say Aye... Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The question is withdrawn.

AGREED: QUESTION 198 WITHDRAWN.

QUESTION 199

No. 199: Dr. Frank McField asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation how many district clinics have laboratories and how are they staffed and operated at present.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, West Bay, Bodden Town, East End and North Side Health Centres—each [Centre] has a room designated as a laboratory. Nurses at the Health Centres use these areas for various urine tests and glucometer testing.

The value of testing on site, particularly of blood tests for haemoglobin and blood chemistry is open to debate. It is more expensive than hospital testing and the results are of variable quality and not subject to the same rigorous quality control as is available at the main hospital laboratory. For laboratory technicians to maintain their skills, they have to have a certain volume of tests coming before them. This is not possible at present in the health centres. Also, it would not be cost efficient to duplicate the high technical equipment at both the hospital and the Health Centres.

Currently, blood samples are taken in all the district Health Centres during general practitioners' clinics. The samples are transported by porter service to the hospital and the results are sent back to the Health Centre where the patient receives his or her results. Results needed urgently are telephoned or facsimiled to the Health Centres from the laboratory.

The Health Centres were designed and built to cope with potential future demand of up to 15 years as well as existing. The need for district laboratory services will be reviewed regularly. At this point in time, utilising our porter service is the most cost effective way to maintain a high standard of test results while ensuring a timely notification of the result to the physician and patient.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries. The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, could the Minister say if in fact he had any indications previously that a laboratory was necessary for each health clinic and if he did not have this information why were they included in the designs and why were they built?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, we deliberately built these health centres to take care of the future needs and for possible expansion so that we would not have to go back—as we know the cost of building and construction these days. It was advised in the technical drawings and the people that deal specifically with this area, that it is better to put it in now, and we would not have to come back later and add it on.

The Speaker: Supplementary, the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, would the Minister say that the main answer which he gave somehow suggests that in fact it will not be variable within the next 15-20 years for there to be a laboratory used in each district clinic. Especially, Mr. Speaker, taking into account that we are dealing with East End, North Side and Bodden Town that are very close together. And that some areas like North Side and East End might be experiencing a decrease in population, rather than a growth in population.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, the Member may have a point there, but it's just the philosophy that we, the Ministry, and the health services technicians, said that it is better to have the space there... None of us (I think) can predict what is going to happen in the next 10-15 years—the way I see East End and North Side developing—that the utilisation of this could certainly be used and provide the services right there.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Would the Minister say to this House, Mr. Speaker, that the people's money was best spent in these particular cases?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation. I think you may be asking him for an opinion and...

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: My opinion on this—and I think the entire Legislative Assembly and the outer districts would support me—is that this is money well spent. When we all as a government looked at what was provided in East End and also North Side—a little cubicle. And as the Honourable Member mentioned, a toilet block. There is no doubt in my mind that this money was well spent.

We were trying to plan for the future, Mr. Speaker, and that is all we can do. Time will be our Judge as to how efficient and effective it was.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town, do you have a follow-up?

Dr. Frank McField: Yes, Mr. Speaker. I do not want to agitate the Minister, as the tone of voice suggests that perhaps he is not too pleased with this kind of questioning. But given the fact, Mr. Speaker, that we are dealing here with the Budget ...(Speaker interrupts asking for this to be turned into a question)...

What I am asking is: If we judge from the position that we are at today, regarding the fact that the Government has to raise revenue measures, that Government has to borrow money, that the Government has spent money and therefore does not have money because it has spent money, does the Minister still think that these were wise decisions?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, I apologise to the Member if he thinks that I am getting upset. This gives me a great opportunity to let the entire Cayman Islands know what we have done—the quantum leap that we have made in the provision of health services in these Cayman Islands.

I do not have to say this, but everybody knows that provision of proper health care facilities in these Islands have lagged behind and I am not blaming anyone for what ever reason. But, when we look at the future of this country, if anyone can tell me what can be more important than health and education, I would be pleased to hear. The part of affording, I can share with the Honourable Member.

When we first undertook to build the Health Centre in Bodden Town, that cost us in the region of $.5 Million. A little bit more over a year later when we did the ones in North Side and East End, with very small extension in square footage, those costs had risen to almost $1M.

Now, whether it was prudent to wait when the country moved forward at a time when we could afford these facilities, my view was the longer we wait the more expensive it became and when the Government is constantly being called on to provide services at nominal fees, this is where the problem is. But I am pleased to say to this honourable House that with the help of the people in the Health Services and the Financial Secretary's office, we are undertaking to look about improving the way we go about collecting fees. With the support of this House we will go forward and we do not mean to kill our people but we must face reality that the fees, at least, we should break even.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Thank you Mr. Speaker.

I wonder if the Honourable Minister would say if the district clinics have eased the long delays at the George Town Hospital as well as has made it easier particularly for the elderly people of the eastern districts to receive treatment without having to travel to George Town and is this in itself not reason for the money to have been well spent.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, that question was music....

The Speaker: May I beg you, while you are on your feet, to move a motion for the suspension of Standing Order 23(7) and (8) in order that question time can continue?

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 23 (7) & (8)

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, I move the suspension of this Standing Order so that questions may be taken after 11:00 AM.

The Speaker: I will put the question that question time continues. Those in favour please say Aye, those against No.

AYES:

The Speaker: The Ayes have it, Question time continues.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 23 (7) & (8) SUSPENDED.

The Speaker: Please continue Honourable Minister and I apologise for the interruption.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: That is fine, Mr. Speaker, I am in an excellent mood.

As I said, what that Honourable Member from North Side said was music to my ears. It confirms the way that we have been going forward and the philosophy that we have adopted now in the hospital by total involvement of the medical technicians and the way forward. Not 'me' as a politician nor 'us' as a National Team; it must be the people who are the caregivers. I can give an example: At the Monday night clinics in Bodden Town when...And this was the whole reason behind these facilities in West Bay, North Side and East End...When a parent goes home from work in the evening after 5 o'clock and finds his child sick, on certain nights we now have that [facility] where parents can take their children. And yes, Mr. Speaker, as was told at His Excellency the Governor's residence, there is significant improvement in the Casualty area of the waiting time and the bold attempt by the providers to reduce that time.

The problem we have, as anywhere in the world, is if there is an emergency, we must deal with that emergency. But we have significantly reduced the waiting time in the Casualty area.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker, and while giving the Minister for Health his just due, in giving those explanations I noticed the Minister for Education when the Minister for Health said, "What better way to spend the country's money than on Health and Education" and the Minister for Education was nodding his head. It is rather late in the day for him to be nodding his head.

The question I wish to ask that Honourable Minister— and I think it is just to clarify the situation—

[Interjection—Mr. Roy Bodden: I bet you have your match now!]

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I think perhaps there is a misunderstanding regarding the clinics and the space that has been provided for the laboratories. As I understand it, and perhaps the Minister will just clear that up for us so that we can be sure: these individual laboratories in the district clinics are certainly not equipped (or are they?) with the type of technical equipment that is used at the primary facility. So that in actual fact, the money that was spent in the construction was simply a matter of space and not into any heavy equipment, and that in the future if the need arises, it can simply be equipped. I just want to make sure, but I believe that might be a genuine misunderstanding.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. That was a good observation and this is what I am mainly referring to. The space is there when and if the need arises. We will just move the equipment in.

The Speaker: I will allow two additional supplementary questions. The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: It certainly was not my intention to suggest that the laboratories were equipped. I was under the impression in fact that there was space there for them and that they had not been equipped and staffed, or operational. I simply want to clear it up that in fact I believe that somehow this was a foresight on the part of those persons designing these clinics.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay caught my eye first, please.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I just want to say that I know that the people of my district, (i.e. West Bay), really appreciate their health clinic. I wonder, for the benefit of Members and the listening public, if the Minister could give us the opening hours of the district clinics, especially the evening hours.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, I do not have that readily at hand. We keep adjusting the hours as we see the need, but I will give the undertaking to pass it to all Honourable Members within their districts. Thank you.

The Speaker: I will recognise the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town. The Fourth Elected Member for George Town did not have a supplementary. This is the last supplementary.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, can the Honourable Minister tell the House what procedures are in place for collection of fees for services rendered at the clinics and also, to say if he is aware of any difficulties in such collections when services are rendered by virtue of the fact that there may not be a specially designated person with a cash float and arrangements for such collections.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, Mr. Speaker, we have recognised this difficulty. We will have clerical staff there shortly. In most of these we are also, as you know, with a link up into the George Town facility, providing computers. One of the things that we look at is the significant use of these health centres by entitled cases, and there are times when there is no money collected.

The Speaker: Do you have a follow-up?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Yes, Mr. Speaker. I certainly do.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Minister tell the House what happens in those cases when persons have to pay and come prepared to pay and there are no facilities for the collection of money and for the return of any change that may be necessary?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, to the best of my understanding, the clerical staff and the nurses will now collect these funds and whatever provisions need to be put there to make sure the fees are collected I will undertake to have it done.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, can the Minister say if this means that in those cases where procedures were not in place before the service was delivered gratis?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, not to my knowledge. The nurses are there and I would hope that they have collected whatever was supposed to have been collected.

The Speaker: The final supplementary now. The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker it is not a supplementary, it is just an observation for the Minister's knowledge, sir, that at least on one occasion when I visited the clinic there was such a case. The nursing staff found themselves in an awkward position because they could not give a receipt, and they were unable to collect any monies. It was also recognised that it was awkward for the nurse to be the server, the dispenser of the service, and also the cashier. I would hope that the Minister takes this into consideration and move. Would the Minister...

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: On a point of Order, Mr. Speaker, surely this is Question Time. Are we allowing long statements to be made?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Would the Minister undertake to ensure that this situation is rectified at his earliest convenience?

The Speaker: Moving on to question No. 200 standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, are you going to allow the Minister to give the House an answer, sir?

The Speaker: I thought you said you were just making an observation.

The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation, do you care to reply?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Yes, I will give an undertaking. I will investigate and attempt to rectify the problem.

QUESTION 200

No. 200: Dr. Frank S. McField asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation to list: (i) each doctor at the Government Hospital according to his or her area of speciality; and (ii) the number of patients each doctor treats each month and say how this compares with doctors in the private sector.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: A list of the doctors in the Government Health Services Department by area of speciality is attached to this answer (see Appendix). Unfortunately, it is not possible at this time to provide information on the number of patients seen by each doctor. The Ministry and Health Services Management Team recognise the fundamental importance of such a statistic and it is anticipated that we will be able to provide this information once the move into the new facility, the substantial improvements in computerisation and the addition of more clerical staff are complete. I am unable to provide any information on the patient load of private doctors.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries, the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, the supplementary question is if there is no empirical evidence at this time to tell the Minister the number of patients that a doctor is seeing, how is it that he is able to determine the level of fees that the hospital would be capable of collecting next year?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, that is a good question. Up to approximately two or three years ago this information was recorded manually. But, at some time a decision was made not to record this anymore. The increase in physician staffing relied very heavily on the recommendation of the former Chief Medical Officer. The Financial Consultants who are working on a strategic financial plan for the Health Services Department and the new Chief Medical Officer who takes up duty in January will be reviewing this and other value for money issues.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, for the sake of clarity, the Minister is therefore saying that he could not say the number of patients that the Government gynaecologist would be seeing each week, month or year?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, we do have statistics showing how many patients are seen annually, but not specifically by each doctor. This will be addressed and I give the undertaking to this Honourable House.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, could the Minister say if there are no statistics to say how many patients each doctor sees, how then can the Hospital Administration determine the number of doctors to work at the hospital in each speciality and the hours in which these doctors should work?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, as I mentioned earlier, the recommendation of the increase of the medical doctors was on the recommendation of the former Chief Medical Officer in consultation and I do acknowledge that there is a problem with this and we will address it.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I am willing to understand the Minister's predicament, but it is also important that if the Minister is coming to this Legislative Assembly for the approval of funds for the recurrent expenditure of this hospital and that this has to do with staffing, that the Minister be able to make an undertaking at this particular time to give us these statistics or as soon as possible. My question is: whether or not the Minister will now give the undertaking to see that the statistic data collection becomes a vital part of the hospital administration and policy.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, I am notified that the Manager of the Information System has this as his #1 priority. I do give the Honourable Member my undertaking to see that this is addressed post-haste.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? If there are no further supplementaries, we will move on to question number 201 standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION 201

No. 201: Dr. Frank McField asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation, if the Government has given any consideration to the impact that a private hospital might have on its health plans, policies and finances, and if so, what are the concerns, if any.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: The Ministry and Health Services Department have been discussing for some considerable time the possible impact that a private hospital might have. As a result, and in order to ensure that income, expenditure and utilisation of services are as accurately forecast as possible, we have contracted with District Audit of the United Kingdom to review, among other things, proposed services and staffing levels in light of the coming on stream of the private hospital.

This issue was also discussed by the members of the Health Strategic Planning Team when they met recently to update the National Strategic Plan for Health. Strategy 6 of the Plan reads, "we will develop and implement a collaborative process between the public and private sector for the provision of a comprehensive and efficient health care system". The Planning Team decided that an action team should be formed and tasked inter alia to review all the action plans in Strategy 6 in light of the imminent construction of a hospital in the private sector.

Government welcomes the advent of a private hospital. It is hoped that this facility will complement the services currently being delivered by the Health Services Department, further reducing the need for Caymanian residents to have to travel abroad for health care. We believe that competition is healthy and will improve efficiency and cost effectiveness in both the private and government services, thereby benefiting the population at large. My Ministry and the Health Services Department will review our health care provision annually and will take any action necessary to ensure the efficiency and cost effectiveness of the service.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries, the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, first of all let me say that I, too, welcome the advent of a private hospital. I believe that [some] competition is better than no competition, so the fact that so much of the Minister's answer I consider to be ideological, I would like to ask as a supplementary, How will it be possible to have the audit done when there are no statistics available for it to take place?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, it is just the one area that I touched on earlier in regards to the doctors, but we do have statistics for all of the other sections that would be affected by this.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I am not really going to pursue this any further because it is quite clear here what the problem is, but in the answer the Minister said, that the "District Audit of the United Kingdom to review, among other things, proposed services and staffing levels in light of the coming on stream of the private hospital", so if we do not know how many patients the gynaecologist is treating at this particular point, when the private hospital comes on stream, we are going to be almost incapable of making a comparison of analysis. That is clear to see. Is this not the case?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, the process which District Audit is doing is comparing what we have here, the services we provide, and comparing it with best practices elsewhere.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, that concludes Question Time for this morning. We will move on to Item No.5 on today's Order Paper. Government Business, Bills. Continuation of the second reading on the Appropriation (1999) Bill, 1998. Continuation of the debate on the Budget Address delivered by the Third Official Member on Monday, November 16, 1998. The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport, continuing.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

BILLS

SECOND READING

THE APPROPRIATION (1999) BILL, 1998

DEBATE ON THE BUDGET ADDRESS DELIVERED BY THE HONOURABLE THIRD OFFICIAL MEMBER ON MONDAY, 16TH NOVEMBER 1998

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

It's wonderful to hear blessings from heaven, as I am about to speak.

Before I continue my debate which I began on Friday afternoon, allow me to say that yesterday I was given a portion of scripture which is appropriate to share before resuming the thoughts I had last Friday afternoon. I believe the scripture verse unshackles my thoughts from fear and encourages me to tell the people of the Cayman Islands what they need to know—not what they need to hear! It is found in Ephesians 6:12, and it says, "Our battle is not against human forces but against the principalities and powers, the rulers of this world of darkness, the evil spirits in regions above." Let me read that verse again, "Our battle is not against human forces but against the principalities and powers, the rulers of this world of darkness, the evil spirits in regions above."

Today the people of the Cayman Islands will hear from me, without any fear of evil spirits, my analysis of the Budget, what it contains, and what I suggest it does not contain, but should, if we are to carry out the work of the people of these islands

Today is not about votes. It is, I suggest, about the future of the Cayman Islands, our children, theirs and our movement into the 21st Century. Today is not about continuing free this, and free that. Today is not about free education. Today is not about free medical. Today is not about patchy roadwork. Today is not about no safe remand for our children. Today is not about inadequate facilities in our primary and secondary schools. Today is not about the method of dealing with work permits should not be changed. Today is certainly not about lip service.

But today, in the name of Jesus, is a day to take action. Today is a day to step up to the front and proclaim that I am going to commit myself (or, we, ourselves) to a change that will provide the facilities, the programmes, the procedures to make this Cayman Islands a more caring community, a better place to live and to do business.

Thank God for the resolve in these islands to maintain stability, to practise sound financial policies, to get on with the challenges of governing these islands, making them safe for our children to grow up; for the citizens to be safe from crime; to enjoy a good standard of living; and to care for those who are less fortunate than ourselves. The 1999 recurrent expenditure provides for an increase in financial assistance to those social service cases causing a rise to $3.1 million.

We have to ensure that the prosperity in this country trickles down all the way to the bottom. There are many of us who for a variety of reasons are unable to work. And we have to ensure that they are taken into the equation so that we establish what is necessary in this country; that they are able to participate, and if for health or some other reason, they are not, we must ensure that they are cared for in the most reasonable way.

The 1999 Budgeted recurrent expenditure provides that the Government will 'practise what it preaches'. It will obtain health insurance coverage for civil servants, and others, thus a new item which adds $3 million to the recurrent expenditure. The 1999 budgeted recurrent expenditure includes money for an environmental study to be carried out on dredging in the North Sound which most people in this country wish to happen.

The 1999 budgeted recurrent expenditure also includes cost of living increases for civil servants and others of 2.7% for 1997 and 3.3% for 1998 so that the normal, annual increments to civil servants' salaries and wages, plus the cost of living increases will add another $16 million to recurrent expenditure over the 1998 approved figure. The cost of the personal emolument in 1999 which includes salaries, wages and allowances and other things of that type, now reaches $124.2 million.

The 1999 budgeted recurrent expenditure also includes a new item, $550,000 so that the census, which is held every ten years, can be conducted. The 1999 budgeted recurrent expenditure provides more money for scholarships, which provision is now reaching $2 million annually. The 1999 budgeted recurrent expenditure includes almost a $400,000 increase for subsidy to private schools, that sum now reaching $1.4 million.

So, Mr. Speaker, it is those sums of money that cause the recurrent to rise to $237.3 million. Can we now talk about cuts of recurrent expenditure? Where do we start with these cuts? It is not so easy to decide is it? When we think of the purpose for which those funds are provided in the 1999 Budget, which one of those sums do we cut? I will come back to this recurrent expenditure later.

Dealing with the statutory expenditure, the 1999 Budgeted statutory expenditure includes an increase from 4% to 6% in the Public Service Pension Fund, a sum of $1.9 million, causing the annual sum to now rise to $9.1 million. Additionally, there is a $2.3 million increase further in the public debt repayment, that now reaching $17.3 million. And there is an additional sum for self-financing loans.

Now, let me clarify the financial position as I read it in the Budget. We have budgeted the 1999 revenue to reach $282.6 million. And when we subtract the recurrent expenditure of $237.3 million, plus the statutory expenditures of $23.2 million, we end up with a surplus of revenue over recurrent and statutory expenditure of $22.1 million.

There are further contributions: $1.3 million to other reserve funds, and $9.66 million (or $9.7 million) to the Public Service Pension Fund. If you deduct those two numbers there is $11.1 million of recurrent revenue available for capital expenditure and new services. So let us not say that recurrent and statutory expenditure cannot be met from the revenue.

Just to go over some old ground, as a former Financial Secretary who served for ten years in that position, and a person who has been involved with the Budgets over the last 25 years or more, it is simply proper for me to make this statement: The system must be changed. We must change the system of fighting over revenue increases each time. If Government could recover the cost of the service it provides, all of our lives would be enriched. I am not suggesting that it be done overnight, but that we agree and establish a programme which improves the cost recovery every year. There is no magic wand. Either we agree to take the matter in hand today, or one day we will end up with some tax that all of us—I put it to all of you—do not want.

Let us look at some of these increases we have been talking about. The collection of garbage from our houses: It is normally collected twice per week, and we pay $50 per year. Do we realise that we are only paying 96 cents for a garbage truck to come to our homes and pick up the garbage twice per week? The cost to Government for providing this twice-weekly service is $191, or $3.67 per week. We are asking in the 1999 Budget that we all pay $100 in 1999, which is $1.92 per week for a truck to come to your house to pick up the garbage twice weekly.

I know a lot of things from the time I was six or seven years old. Today I am dealing with this one. The recurrent expenditure provided in the 1999 Budget for example, Environmental Health (and I am not picking on any department, I am just using some cases) is $5.5 million. How much revenue do we expect to collect from garbage fees next year? It is $3.3 million. So that particular Government service costs us $2.2 million more than we are collecting even when the annual increase moves from $50 to $100.

I wonder how much it costs when you go to Blockbuster and pick up a tape each evening? Is it very different from $1.92? I am using some examples. I think when we check it we will find that the condominiums along Seven Mile Beach also are asked to pay an increase.

Another example: The Planning Department is costing a recurrent expenditure of $1.9 million. I believe that last year they approved something like $300 million worth of development. Yet, the revenue that we collect is $905,000. The department is thus costing the Government $1 million more than we are collecting in revenue. And we know about the infrastructural fees and things of that sort. That is not what I am talking about.

Lands and Survey is costing Government $5.9 million to operate on an annual basis. And collecting $1.1 million in land registry and survey fees. I know they also do assessments for stamp duty purposes, but I am not talking about stamp duty. The George Town Hospital, and the district health services (and we heard figures this morning) where the Government is expecting to spend by the end of 1999 something in the range of $29 million providing facilities that are at a very high standard and have been, and are adding medical and other personnel so that the public will receive the proper quality of service which they require.

These services will have to be paid for and I am not suggesting any overnight quick fix. I am suggesting that there is a need for a programme to reduce the subsidised health care. I think the Bible does say that the poor you shall have with you always. And the Government has to be sure to bear this in mind and act responsibly in all future measures dealing with any kind of service it is providing. Certainly, the Government's decision to obtain health insurance coverage for civil servants and others is a major step to reduce the free medical care where the hospital does not collect any fees from those persons.

Yes, Mr. Speaker, there is need for the Government (and I am aware that the process is moving on in the Government at the moment) to carry out an extensive examination of the revenue and take control of this position now and in the future for development purposes and for the prosperity of our people. And I am not suggesting change only to the recurrent expenditure portion of the Budget; we must also change the budget system of dealing with capital development.

The Speaker: If you are going to a new point, would this be a convenient time to take the morning break?

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Yes, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: We shall suspend for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.47 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12.46 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport, continuing.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

When we took the break I was suggesting that we must also change the budget system of dealing with capital development. We have witnessed over a number of years that we have a tendency to put sums of money in the Budget. Most of the time not all of it is accomplished. Part of the reason is that we get too anxious, or maybe we expect too much and we don't assess the practicality of actually carrying out $25 million or more worth of work. I believe that there is a time when we should look at capital development over a period of two years and I am going to speak to that.

Let us take a good subject. We know that the traffic congestion in this country is one of the most frustrating items in our daily lives. And the Government (as well as the Members of this House), has a responsibility to take the necessary steps to have it corrected. And let us stop, please, giving lip service because we are going to do this, or we are going to do that. And when I say lip service, I am not pointing any fingers. We are all guilty of it to some extent, when we think that as far back as 1997 (looking at the average daily traffic in different areas of Cayman) West Bay Road was number one in terms of number of vehicles actually travelling that road. And on the West Bay Road, from Holiday Inn is rated number two in terms of congestion. West Bay Road to Sleep Inn is number three. So the first, second and third positions in terms of traffic congestion are from the Cemetery in West Bay to the Sleep Inn and Merren's Plaza (which is basically 3(a)).

It's not that we don't know what to do, it's that we kid ourselves by saying that we can use a Band-Aid approach and solve this situation. Then, after the Band-Aid approach is used, the problem is still with us. I believe sincerely that this country has reached a point in its development where these roads in particular which have been built—and I'm talking about the major roadwork in this country [using] hot mix—how many decades ago were they built? And when we drive in any part of this country, when you see the quality—you don't even have to get out of the car—when you see the quality of the roads you are driving on, the spider web cracks are very vivid. And then what happens? The first time we get a little rain, the spider web, all these little cracks just pop up and we're left with potholes.

Now, we can use the Band-Aid approach and say to Public Works, 'Please go and patch these holes we don't like our cars falling into these potholes, we don't want the rims of our cars to be bent. We believe we deserve more than that.' And quite frankly, Mr. Speaker, I believe that the public deserves better service than the Band-Aid approach, the patchy roadwork that has gone on in the past. I believe that the Government must come with a proper programme to resurface the major roads in this country, otherwise your patchy roadwork is going to cause you to end up spending twice to three times as much as we need to spend to correct it. We know that if you find a problem, and you don't fix it when it should be fixed, the longer you wait the more difficult it is to fix it, and the more cost to solve the problem.

The infrastructure in this country requires urgent attention. Education requires urgent attention. When you go to West Bay there is a lock-up. Young people who are juveniles are locked up in a cell because Government has not moved forward to put in place a safe remand centre which also gives the Juvenile Court (or otherwise) the flexibility, the option to deal with the young people in this country in an appropriate way. I want the public to hear me. That is why I am here today!

Mr. Roy Bodden: Preach, brother, preach!

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: You know, Mr. Speaker, we have had in the Budget for the last couple of years a hurricane centre in West Bay. We can't get it. And I have to ask myself why can't we do this? It sounds so simple. West Bay is a district with over 8,000 people, I think was the latest number I heard. We don't even have a public library! I don't believe that is proper. I don't believe that a Government that can put forward a budget of $200 million (or more) can't solve that problem.

I believe that when we talk about hurricane centres... and let me go on to talk about West Bay a little bit more... we cannot establish a public library in West Bay until we have alternate facilities. The West Bay Town Hall is slated to be the Library. But you can't use that for a library given that there is no other place in West Bay of that size that can serve as a hurricane shelter for 8,000 plus people. So we need the hurricane centre in West Bay as a first step so that we can go on to convert the West Bay Town Hall into a library for our citizens. No wonder there's traffic congestion—everybody is coming into town! Even when you want to visit the Library you have to come into town. And let me add that George Town is also in need of a civic centre and a hurricane shelter. I think it is right and proper for us to put it in place.

Coming back to roads . . . and I intend to tell these Members and the public my views on how we can pay for it too. What I am proposing on roads and other infrastructure, some of the money is in the Budget, some is not. But I am saying to the Members of this Honourable House that if we are to act in the best interest of the people of the Cayman Islands in the long term, please, let's act now. Let's not wait. I believe the capital development programme in the Budget needs to be enhanced.

When we think about roads, and we go back to this thought of major road resurfacing—and I am talking about resurfacing with hot mix, I am not talking about chip and spray; I don't subscribe to Band-Aid approaches. My father always said, "Son, if you are going to do something do it well. In the end it is going to cost you less." Or, put another way, you are going to get better value for it in the long term than if you fix it for today and tomorrow. Then one year from today you have to spend money to do it all over again, or replace the item because you didn't buy the right quality.

I am proposing that we have a three-year road resurfacing programme in this country where we resurface the major roads in this country with hot mix. If we were to do that—and allow me to just move in the direction my mind takes me, at the end I will cover what I have to say—the area from the West Bay Cemetery to Eastern Avenue, the cost of accomplishing that is $1.4 million. That's not a whole lot of money. There is an area of South Church Street Road, about 1.5 miles of it, that also requires resurfacing. We are talking initially of resurfacing the worst parts of the road. That will cost us $400,000. Red Bay to Spotts, 2.5 miles, $700,000. From Spotts to Frank Sound, my recollection is that it's about nine miles, but we are proposing in 1999 that we do four miles of it. The value of that is $1.1 million. From Frank Sound to East End is 2.5 miles, $700,000. Frank Sound to Old Man Bay, 1.75 miles, $450,000.

The total need for 1999 for resurfacing those roads I just mentioned adds up to $4.25 million (sic). That's not a fantastic figure to deal with. Realising that when you fix this in 1999 it's likely to go ten years before anything will have to be done again, which will give the Government the position to utilise funds to address some other infrastructural needs. So, for $4.75 million we can resurface 17 1/4 miles of our roads with hot mix overlay. If I am going to be responsible for roads in 1999 I want to be proactive not reactive.

Dr. Frank McField: Yeah!

Mr. Roy Bodden: Hear, hear! Sounds good!

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, and Honourable Members I am going to be a little bit repetitious. The people of this country want us to solve the traffic congestion problem. I propose that we can solve the traffic congestion problem by extending the Harquail By-pass to the Galleria, and by building the first phase of the Crewe Road Bypass. What, you ask, is the cost? The Extension of the Harquail to the Galleria is estimated at $2.5 million. And the first phase of the Crewe Road Bypass is estimated at $6 million; the first phase will take it from Tropical Gardens down to Bob Thompson Way.

Why is it costing so much? Because—most of us understand that we are travelling through swamp. You have to go down to the bottom and build it up above the water level before you apply any hot mix. We are not talking about a four-lane highway. We are talking about two lanes: one going east and one going west (if my directions are right).

Let me go on to add that there is a business way of dealing with some of these items. If the Government owns Crown land, and it is cliff, and we need rock to do this bypass, why not use it and reduce this $6 million to maybe $4 million or $3 million? It certainly makes sense for us to pursue this thought and to take it to the very end so that we will all understand what we are doing, so that we give to the public the most cost-effective way of dealing with this amount of money, and this amount of work that we intend to do.

And, Mr. Speaker, we know that in the Budget there is provision for roads in Cayman Brac and Little Cayman as well. So I want my people in Cayman Brac to understand that they are not left out of this equation. Mr. Speaker, there is a sum of about $438,000 for the continuing road projects in Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. And there is an additional new project sum of $250,000 according to what I am looking at. So Cayman Brac and Little Cayman will be looked after as well. I have always tried my best, as a Minister, to be responsible for all districts of the Cayman Islands.

Let me go on to mention the Budget we are dealing with has $1 million in it for district roads. One million dollars for district roads in Grand Cayman. Now, since they say I am responsible for roads, I have to ask the question, What am I going to do with $1 million? Mr. Speaker, what am I going to do with $1 million? Divide that by five and what do you get? Two hundred thousand dollars for the roads in the districts in Grand Cayman? After Hurricane Mitch and all the rain and the heavy trucks passing over them? And all of the chip and spray beginning to fade away? Mr. Speaker, my proposal is that for the larger districts, George Town, Bodden Town, West Bay, the sum should be $500,000 each, if we are to make any progress in it. And for North Side, $250,000 and for East End, $250,000 and let us talk about it. It's a proposal that I am putting forward.

I believe that if we are going to be responsible to the people in our districts and you go to them and say, 'I only have $200,000, so I can't do much', do you know what the answer is going to be? 'I know what I'm going to do with you! I just have to wait about 18 months and I'll be rid of you.' So all your good intentions do not produce anything.

The Speaker: You're doing so well, I hate to interrupt. But we need to get to lunch.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: There will be more of it, Mr. Speaker. But I am willing to take the break.

The Speaker: We shall suspend until 2.30 PM.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 1.10 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.46 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Debate on the Appropriation (1999) Bill, 1998 continues. The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport, continuing.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Thank you.

When we took the break I had been dealing with roads and I had put a proposal to this Honourable House for the resurfacing of the major roads in Grand Cayman, and also in Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. It will cost $4.75 million to do it in Grand Cayman. I also mentioned that in order to correct the traffic congestion in this country my proposal is that we need to extend the Harquail Bypass to the Galleria and we need to allocate a sum of $2.5 million to accomplish that. But that is only one side of the island.

I understand that the traffic backs up beyond Savannah most days...

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I am corrected, Mr. Speaker, they said it is sometimes up to the Guardhouse in Bodden Town. So in order to deal with it effectively, we have to address this Crewe Road Bypass. We have to do at least the first phase of it which would link Tropical Gardens/Lions Centre area to Bob Thompson Way which will then connect, if you turn left and go behind the schools, or you go right and come out on Smith Road. I believe that there are steps Government can take. I propose that the Government should look business-wise at this proposal, and if we have Crown land (which I believe most of us know we have) that we can utilise to get our rock to put down the proper base for this Crewe Road Bypass we should do it. I know I am focusing on the Crewe Road Bypass, but whatever we need, whether it is Crewe Road or Harquail, we take the decision to do it; or anywhere else for that matter.

I was also asking what I am to do with the provision in the Budget of $1 million for district roads. If you divide it by five, that's $200,000 for each district. My proposal is that for the larger districts we should increase it to $500,000—George Town, Bodden Town, West Bay—and for North Side and East End we allocate $250,000 for each because we know that in the districts those chip and spray roads, after all of this traffic and rain, that they are beginning to be in serious need of resurfacing.

I need to move on to one other item connected with roads. I have been hearing talk about Dorcy Drive in George Town. Most of us know where that is; it's the Industrial Park. When Mitch was in the area, and Pirates' Week wanted to have its Friday night firework function—and we remember the amount of rain that was around this country—I was glad that I was in my truck when I decided to go through it; the following night I decided not to do it because the water was so deep. The area does need to be fixed. We are talking about the area by the gas station in Industrial Park. All of us know where that is, and all of us know that we have waited long enough. If we are to provide facilities to deal with traffic congestion and to provide a smooth flow once the traffic gets into town you have to ensure that these streets are passable. Otherwise, you have not corrected the congestion problem. So there are some traffic improvements that I am also proposing.

One of the items that I did not mention is the junction at North Sound Road and what we know as Nixon Way, where when you come off the Harquail Bypass, turning left, and going to the junction of North Sound Road you sometimes take your life into your hands trying to turn right. If Government does not move forward to put the agreed roundabout in place, I fear that someone is going to lose his or her life at that junction.

So we have been pushing on this side to purchase an additional parcel of land to allow the roundabout to be constructed and we hope that the purchase of the property will happen shortly, meaning in 1998. Of all of the items I have mentioned in dealing with the traffic congestion, the roundabout just has to be part and parcel of the overall programme. Otherwise, the programme is likely to be ineffective.

There are other infrastructural needs that are not in the best interest of the public to—or not addressed in a proactive way. Education is one of those areas. As I mentioned on Friday afternoon, the West Bay School, John A. Cumber, according to my statistics (which I received from the Education Department, and Ministry of Education) their enrolment statistics for 30 September 1998 is 483 students. I know that the policy of the Education Department is to try to ensure that primary schools student population does not exceed 500 students. How close are we at John A. Cumber?

But let me make another point: What is absolutely necessary is that the school has a multipurpose hall so that assemblies can be properly done at that school. It is being proposed that that particular building happens in 1999. We know that we have talked about this on many occasions this year. We know that we all hoped that it would be done by December. We certainly hope that it will be done in 1999. And we must ensure that the facilities needed for our children are put in place without delay.

When we look at the statistics for the Red Bay Primary School, 416 children. It may be more now. This doesn't have a date as to when the statistics were put together, except that it says 30 September 1998. There are 416 children at Red Bay Primary, almost 300 children at Savannah, 422 at George Town. There is a need to ensure that the facilities in Education, dealing with the needs of parents with children of that age, that there is adequate classroom and administration space available in order to ensure that our young children are able to commence their learning.

Looking at the statistics for the private schools, which were provided by the Education Department, it suggests that not many levels, be they pre-kindergarten, kindergarten, or grades 1 through 6, not many schools have much availability. It therefore suggests to the Government let us be proactive. Let us ensure that another primary school is built in the George Town area, in particular, so that the children in George Town—that the facilities that are available between George Town Primary, Red Bay Primary and Savannah, that we add another school that provides additional space. We would be irresponsible, in my view, if we do not act to ensure that the school is in place and ready for activity and classes in September.

Mr. Speaker, we know that is not all. We know that we have been talking for at least two or three years about the need for a Lighthouse School that can accommodate more challenged individuals. We know the study has been carried out. We know that a building has been bought, and we also understand that there is a need to have a special facility for these challenged persons. We have a responsibility to put that building in place and to properly set up the programmes and facilities that are required.

We know too that there is a need for an improved Alternative Education Facility. No longer can the building behind the Library serve the real purpose. As I have said to the Minister, I think it is important that we ensure that we don't have two separate programmes operating in this country, that CIMI and the Alternative Education, which is being handled by Education, that we may be able to combine the two and ensure that the instruction of young people is what they need while at the same time avoiding any duplication of expenditure in this country.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Hear, hear!

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, we started a year or so ago air-conditioning the schools. Let us not take until the year 2001 to finish it. I believe that we have to step up to the plate, allocate the funds and deal with that matter in the best interest of providing facilities and accommodation and comfort, to ensure that our children are in an environment where the opportunity for learning is at its best.

We know that the day is coming when there will be the need for another secondary school. And we must come forward and make provision for that to happen. We must at least begin the process of deciding to do the drawings in preparation for the decision to break ground to provide additional facilities for our young people.

But in all of this there is also a need to look at the cost of operation of the Education Department. There is a need to not forget that education is an essential item to human development, as well as the development of a country. It is perhaps the most important ingredient. But we also have to look to see five or ten years down the road if we can really continue at the level we are doing today, or should we not consider causing book rental fees to increase when we know they are not realistic. Should we not look at making available textbooks that children can take home and study properly? I think we need to have that option for those who wish to purchase. Those who cannot afford to purchase can deal with book rental.

When we talk about this transportation thing, and the Omnibus travelling back and forth with passengers, they charge $1.50 from West Bay to George Town. When you think of the transportation that is provided for children and parents should we not be looking at some of it? Can you, the Government and the people of this country, continue to have everything free? Or should there not be some subsidised education? Should it not be that the parents can pay $1, or whatever it might be, for their child to get on the bus to go to school? That is basically what I am saying.

If we don't, one day we will get to the point where somebody is going to be afraid to come in here and say what is needed for the total cost of running the Education Department. If it is at $25 million today, what is the figure going to be five or ten years from today? And will we be in a position to fund it fully? We have to begin to be realistic and look at it carefully, realising (as I said before) that the Good Book says that the poor shall be with you always. And because my child is poor, he must also have the same access as any other child who is being paid for. It is the responsibility of the Government to ensure that that happens.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Oh, you're righteous when it comes to. . .

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, I touched earlier on the safe remand for juveniles, and talked about the lockup at West Bay which is really where you lock up a criminal. It is the responsibility of all of us to ensure that a safe remand for juveniles is provided in this country so that Justices of the Peace who are on the bench (or the Magistrate), have an option as to how to deal with the respective person. We know that sending people overseas to approved schools does not really provide any significant answer to the problem and in 1993 we provided $250,000 in the Estimates for that. Is it not better to leave the person in his, or her own environment and provide the service, the guidance, the care needed in order to cause that person to turn his or her life around? And in 1994 there was another $200,000 provided.

The 1995 Budget made provision for juvenile rehabilitation, $790,000. My recollection is that the former Minister for Community Development was the person who put this programme forward. I believe that a safe remand is urgent and we would be responsible to ensure that the allocation is in the Budget in order for that facility to be put in place.

I come back to the fact that capital development should be a two-year programme: that we look at a number of projects in 1999 and the year 2000—whatever that figure is—and we say for capital development what we are going to allocate is "X" million dollars, which begins to also bring some discipline that before a project can actually . . . Well, it will be on a first come, first serve basis. If you get your project brief, and your drawings and costings you move on. But you don't just put a project in because you dreamed up that we should have this. I believe that there will be a need for us to increase the loan in order to make sure this happens. And this is not anything new.

When we examine the past we even find precedents there. In 1971 or 1972, the Government borrowed approximately $5 million for a budget that was $6.6 million. Why did they do that? They did it because the infrastructure in the Cayman Islands needed to be put in place. The bottle-necks needed to be addressed. This building here needed to be built. The Courts Building needed to be built. The Police Headquarters needed to be put in place.

Mr. Roy Bodden: The Dock!

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Even the Dock needed to be built, thank you very much.

Some of us get frightened when we talk about borrowing—

[Members' inaudible interjections and laughter]

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: But let me say that in my view we should increase the loan; that the capital development programme which spans two years and is in the range of $54 million, that we should agree (since in the last couple of years the capital development has been approximately $28 million) that we could put a sum of $30 million as a programme, and that all of these projects that we talk about, that we know are urgent and need to be done, they have the crack to get their project moving, but that you cannot go higher than $30 million unless you come back here for approval.

The Financial Secretary in his Budget Address outlined the following, and I quote: ". . . total public debt was $82.9 million at January 1, 1998. This amount includes central government public debt of $66.4 million and $16.5 million in self-financing public debt owed by the statutory authorities but guaranteed by central government. After taking into consideration loan repayments of $11.4 million and total loan receipts of $20.6 million during 1998, total public debt is expected to rise to $92.1 million by year-end 1998."

"Mr Speaker, even though the total value of outstanding loans has risen over the year, total public debt service (principal and interest) remains at 7.2% of 1998 forecasted recurrent revenue which is below the internationally accepted 10% upper limit established by the Government."

Let us therefore examine the impact of a $30 million loan on the country's debt service ratio. And here again, I use total principal and interest to allow direct comparison to the Budget Address figure. The 1999 Budget includes an amount of $19 million to cover debt service cost in 1999. On this sum, $350,000 is interest on the proposed loan of $19.1 million, as is normal. Funds are drawn down when required, which is usually towards mid-year, therefore, only interest payment would become due in 1999.

Assuming that we raise the Loan Bill from $19.15 million to $30 million, and in order to compensate for this increase we include a further $175,000 for interest, and

$1 million for repayment, the reason being that we expect to draw-down earlier than mid-year because of the increased size of the capital development programme, this would result in a debt service ratio of 7.1%. When we take the total revenue of $282.6 million, the ratio comes out to 7.1%

You can't keep going to the bank unless you ensure that you have the ability to pay. It's just like when we go to the bank individually: one of the first things the bank wants to know is your ability to repay the loan. So when we talk about revenue measures it is absolutely important that we do not behave like some of the people in Miami who basically were reluctant to deal with revenue measures and after a while came to a position where they had a real financial problem. The State then stepped in to take over the whole issue.

Provided that what we are doing is in the best interests of this country in the long term, and provided that we are in agreement that the congestion in this country needs to be taken care of, that the facilities for our young people in schools need to be done, that a safe remand [facility] needs to be made available in this country for young people. And for Judges and Justices of the Peace to have options as to how to deal with the individual, rather than locking them up in the West Bay Police Station along with persons who have committed much more serious crimes. I believe that the public of this country will be with us.

Nothing, except the [air] we breathe, is free. It would be nice if the Government could wave its magic wand, and do all the things we want to do in the capital development programme, and find the money for it elsewhere. But what I do believe is that with the exercise I referred to earlier this morning, which the Economic and Statistic and Finance and Development basically has in motion, could very well be that we do not need any further borrowing than the $30 million.

This morning we are seeing the spread of the new tax items in the Caymanian Compass, and I do not propose to go through them in any detail because I believe that it is pretty clear that the increases are not horrendous. If we are to hold on to the sound financial planning and policies that the Government does, and has done in this country all along, we need to ensure that revenue is improved as we go forward in delivering the service to the people of this country. If you have no money, you can't deliver service. If you don't add to the revenue you will get to a point where the service that you deliver will have to be cut back—where the people you need to provide those services cannot be added to the Civil Service role.

I am assured that this country has the ability to practically carry out what I just said in terms of capital development. And the other thing, Mr. Speaker, we have over the last 10 or 15 years found ourselves building roads, or doing some amount of roadwork, in May, June, October, when all of the rain is generally here. My proposal suggests that in order to be cost effective let's begin this programme in January when it is dry, and it runs dry until April, sometimes May. And let us save some money in the process.

I wish I were in a better position to tell you that I have this money in my pocket and I could give it to the Government and not have to raise revenue, and not have to borrow more money. But if I told you that, Mr. Speaker and Members, you know it would be an untruth. And I am not here for that purpose.

What I want to also address—and I won't spend a long time on it—but I have had some views for some time on Immigration, and the Immigration Board. I believe that when you hit the volumes that they are dealing with, it is certainly time to examine the process, the methodology utilised to carry out the work.

When we think and we know that the Cayman Islands is the world's largest financial centre with a growing tourism and business industry, we are one of that five that they talk about. We are faced with ever-increasing problems of human resources to service the various industries. We could even say, with our very limited population, which is less than the total employees of many of the world's medium-to-large international companies, the problem of balancing immigration against local needs for labour is constant. There is a growing frustration in the financial, tourism, and construction industries relative to the difficulty—real or perceived—of obtaining necessary work permits and attracting competent labour from other foreign jurisdictions.

With low unemployment rates in Canada, the United Kingdom and the United States of America, it is increasingly difficult to attract qualified and willing persons to service the various industries in the Cayman Islands. One of the problems which has emerged appears to be the failure of certain organisations to manage human resources effectively and to lay down an upward mobility plan for qualified and energetic Caymanians during their period of employment with any particular organisation.

Unless the overall problem of immigration is solved, the quality of service in all industries will decrease and international organisations may begin to back off essential part of their operations to other competent jurisdictions, and may lead to a downgrading of Cayman and lead to further problems.

My suggestion is to address the problem of upward mobility for Caymanians. Business organisations should be required to prepare a three-year plan for the management of human resources and identify in that plan training and upward mobility for Caymanians. Organisations should be required to meet with their staff, discuss training and upward mobility, timing and salary increases for those who achieve the necessary goals. These must be realistic and individualised.

Without going into great depth, Mr. Speaker, what I believe is that the process in use at the present time, if I were sitting on the Immigration Board, would overwhelm me. And I believe that is their difficulty too. It makes sense to me to suggest that employers put together a three-year plan (or some other number, I don't have mine carved in stone) and go to the Immigration Board, present their plan and identify the number of work permits they will need over the next three years and automatically the Immigration Board should tie that approval to the training of Caymanians in every organisation.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I think the apple doesn't drop until it's ripe! Some of us say a lot of things in this House which do not happen, but I think if we all come together we can make things happen in this country. We can be proactive in a variety of areas.

Mr. W McKeeva Bush: [interjection]

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, I believe that if we establish that kind of a policy—not to say that because Tom Jefferson said it, that it must be that way—but we need to sit down and discuss it openly and commit ourselves to making a change because I do believe that it is in the best interests of this country to do so. How do you ensure that training of Caymanians takes place? It is a vehicle for that purpose as well.

I want to say that although we can always point to things that we need to do and things that are not in place, I want to say, thank God that I live in the Cayman Islands. I want to say that there is no other place in this world that I have visited—and I started out from the age of 17 going to sea—there is no other place in this world that I have visited that I would prefer to be other than right here. We have been blessed in this country.

The prosperity in this country is something that most countries do not have, and sometimes we have a tendency to take it for granted. We have to work at this. We have to work to maintain the social harmony in this country. We have to work to ensure that the Cayman Islands' financial industry or tourism industry continues to bear fruit year by year so that this prosperity that we have can be passed on to our children, and then to theirs. It's easy, sometimes, to see the negative. But if we look for the positive it's staring you glaringly in the face.

I would say that 90% of Cayman is right—90% of what we have in Cayman is right and every one of us has contributed to it being the way it is. I am not saying just us: our forefathers, and theirs, helped to bring it where it is today—the friendliness in this country, the competence in this country. Have a look around. Look at the young certified public and chartered accountants. It only began about 12 or so years ago. It hasn't been that long. But we need to ensure that there is a commitment for the training of our young people, both within Government and without. We need to ensure that the prosperity in this country, all this money we boast about—$400 million from tourism—we need to ensure that every one of us has an equal opportunity to earn from it.

When we think about tourism there is this thought that may come quickly—this hotel, that condo, or some bed and breakfast place. There is the transportation side. There is the watersports side, there are those who provide scuba diving as well as snorkelling. Foster's, Hurley's, Kirk's supermarkets. We can't survive at the level of commitment, financially, that's there without the tourism industry. Thirty five thousand people can't make them profitable.

We must ensure that competence prevails in the financial industry in this country for two reasons: because we want it to be, and secondly, because if we don't do so the competition is going to take the business from us. I believe that the financial industry and the competence in this country I would put up against anybody anywhere, in any city—London, New York or elsewhere. It's here. We need to encourage it. We need to ensure that they have an opportunity both to make money, which is the reason why they are in business, and we need to ensure that they commit themselves to training Caymanians in their operations, both on-the-job and in the University, or wherever the training is required.

When we drive around and look at the amount of construction going on in this country, do we not marvel? Do we believe that this is just so? It is because the Government has created the environment, and the people of the Cayman Islands have created the environment where people want to come and do business and some of them want to live here with us—be they temporary permanent residents or what have you. It is an environment—and I have been around here 50 plus years—that most people who come to the Cayman Islands would like to remain. That's how good it is. They get a little sand in their shoes, and they want to stay here.

Expense is a funny thing. If you go to New York and you want certain services, and they say it will cost $300 per day, do you not pay for it? Do you have a choice? I believe that if you deliver the quality of the service that the person is requiring, and be friendly and courteous with it, I don't have a worry that he/she is going to come back. I think that is the key—to ensure that the person in this island looking for service does not walk away feeling he got ripped off.

Sometimes we balk about the departure tax at the Airport (which they don't collect any more, but we remember the balking), US$12.50. Two weekends ago I was in Jamaica. Do you know how much money I had to pay coming back? Twenty-two dollars and fifty cents (United States Dollar) departure tax. Yeah, match it with Cayman's!

The responsible thing is to realise where we are in the financial scheme of things in this country and to ensure that we take the necessary action to allow this kind of environment which is conducive to doing business; is conducive to visiting; is conducive to raising children; continues. If we fail, I wonder what our children and grandchildren will say about us.

When I look at the imports coming into this country, another example of prosperity. Demand for goods is an indication. I hope I am reading this table right, but domestic cargo in this country was around 100 million tons in 1993. In 1998 it was 180 million tons. That's progress, Mr. Speaker.

When the need arises, every business in this country raises its rates. I wonder what you say about that? When you go to the lawyer and he says I can't see you for $100 any more, it has to be $125, or $150 per hour, what do you say?

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: No, you don't call it revenue measures, thank you. When you go to the accountant and he tells you 'I did the job for $500 last year, but this year it's $750', what do you say? When you go to the bank and the bank decides to increase the service charge on your chequing account what do you do? You pay it. You want the service; they are delivering the service; you pay it. It's no different with the Government. We are delivering a service to the people of this country. We need the funds to do it.

And I believe, as I have said before, a comprehensive exercise needs to be done. We should not wait. And I am not accusing anyone of waiting, but I know this happened in the past, even when I was there. We should not wait until September to start thinking about it. I think it has to be an ongoing exercise, which, I understand, is being proposed by the Finance and Development Ministry. We are doing everything else, why not that? We are dealing with health matters, strategic plans to deal with that; we are dealing with tourism, we are dealing with education; we are dealing with water and sewerage; we are dealing with ports. We need to round it out and make it comprehensive and deal with that side of the Government too.

Mr. Speaker, many of us know that at the George Town Port, the Finger Pier was badly damaged in February of this year. We had two possibilities: either just repair it... it's about 142 feet long, and I think about 40 feet wide—something in that range. And we know that when the—let me call it the 'blue ship' which I think is the Morrant Bay. When she comes in alongside the dock on the north side, at least one quarter of the ship extends beyond the dock.

If we say that we have vision—and we think about the vision that somebody had in the mid 1970s by building this dock—then we have to step up front and put it right. What is going to be the requirement in the next 15 years for port facilities in this country? The Port Authority examined it. They have taken the decision to increase the length of the dock and widen it so that two cranes can operate simultaneously, and at the same time the truck can operate. The medium size ship that we are likely to move to is about 450 feet long, according to my information. My understanding is that the Morrant Bay is 380+ feet long. So it would make sense for the Port Authority, in conjunction with the Government, to move forward to extend the dock so that what we build is built with the view to provide the space and facilities needed at the Port for the next 15 or more years.

I think it is the responsible thing to do. I have always held the view that when you have this opportunity you should not just use the Band-Aid approach and just fix the dock knowing that what you end up with is inadequate to deal with the present day needs of shipping in Cayman. So I make those comments in order to make Members and the listening public aware that the Authority is presently looking at the expansion of the Finger Pier. It will also be necessary to create additional storage space in the area to efficiently service the large vessels that can be accommodated.

One of the problems experienced by the Port Authority is the lack of container storage space on the dock. We have been able to cope with the increase, however we can expect to liaison a supply of empty containers to the ship if cargo increases continue. So that is part of what we are talking about in the extension. We are also looking to increase the space available at the dock, not just the Finger Pier.

It was heartening to see that the opening of the Taxi Dispatch area at Thomas Russell way has improved the traffic flow in central George Town. And it has improved the handling of cruise ship passengers. I personally want to express my gratitude to all the employees of the Port and all the taxi drivers and tour operators who co-operatively caused that move to happen without any difficulty.

We also purchased a crane in 1996 and commissioned it. The production, the number of containers handled per hour, has met our expectations. The volume of cargo continues to grow and has become evident that the expansion of the present facility is needed. Which is what I just said.

The Authority also purchased additional property adjacent to the Cargo Distribution Centre in the Industrial Park early this year, and is now in an excellent position to expand that area should the need arise. We have bought several acres and when looking from North Sound Way across the land to the Cargo Distribution Centre you may be looking at the land that we bought. We will also have access from North Sound Way into the Cargo Distribution Centre when, of course, it is necessary. We don't want to spend any money before it is needed. Facilities at the Cargo Distribution Centre have been upgraded. We actually doubled the storage space in the warehouse this year.

Another point to mention is that the Port Authority has also purchased property north of the port in George Town, namely the Fort Building. With the purchase of this property the Authority now has the option to expand to the north, and with the rapid growth being experienced in the Island and the strain on present dockside facilities, the expansion in this direction may have to be looked at in the very near future.

So at the Port Authority, just in summary, we have doubled the storage space at the warehouse for the cargo distribution centre. We have effectively rearranged the route that trucks will take into that area so that the public does not come in contact and that it is safe for the trucks and the public. The public enters through a different gate. When looking to the west from the Cargo Distribution Centre, we have purchased several different parcels of land which will allow the Port Authority, when necessary, to resurface more space, to add to the facilities at the Cargo Distribution Centre, and to eventually allow access of trucks from that side as well as from the Industrial Park side.

The extension of the Dock is something that we are presently working on. I believe it is in the best interest of this country, and the people of this country, to extend the facilities so that it will not be necessary [again] until the next ten, 15, or maybe 20 years.

The Speaker: Would this be a convenient time to take the afternoon break?

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Yes, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: We shall suspend for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.20 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce and Transport, continuing.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Sometimes when we are dealing with items we don't seem to be able to remember everything we want to say. And I found myself in that position when I was in the Common Room. I know that the public is concerned about the service being delivered in the collection of garbage because we have received a number of complaints. But Government does have provision in the 1999 Estimates, and has already given permission for additional, new—I emphasise new—garbage trucks to be purchased.

And may I say in addition, that the vehicles budgeted for in the 1999 Estimates, since that department now falls under my Ministry, we will be dealing with the purchase of the new vehicles. No used items, otherwise you spend the money in spare parts and then the service which the public requires, does not happen to their satisfaction.

I need to also mention that the land for the Cayman Brac Port is about to be vested in the Port Authority. And we have no difficulty in assuming responsibility for it because we believe that it is in the best interests of the public to keep those who have that kind of skill and knowledge running all the ports in this country. And I think it is probably required under the law as well. The Cayman Brac Port did sustain some damage during that same period in February when we had the heavy northwester, or probably more of a westerly movement of waves. That is due for repairs, and was due for that before this happened. We will be moving on to accomplish that in the very near future.

I come now to Tourism. I really want to say how pleased I am with the work of the Tourism Department. Last Saturday morning I presented to the Minister for Education Books 1, 2 and 3 of Social Studies in the Primary Schools dealing with Tourism Education in the Cayman Islands. And I have copies which I beg your permission to lay on the Table of this Honourable House so that there shall be a record in this country of that happening.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I have additional copies to pass around to all Members for viewing, rather than taking those items off the Table.

We have looked at tourism from a global point of view. We have looked at the results from what we call the Pacific Rim. We have looked at the results from Europe, UK, Canada, United States, and I have to admit that great work is being done by our people who are representing our country in those parts of the world.

The position of the United States—as at the end of October, 246,456 visitors had come to our shores. That is about 6.3% above 1997. From the UK we have almost 20,000 visitors. But when we look at the array of countries persons are coming to us from, and compare that with 1997, we find ourselves with increases all through the year, with the exception of March. I believe that is the result of Easter falling in April rather than March of this year. When we put those two months together, March and April, we have a very substantial percentage of persons visiting the Cayman Islands. But at the end of October, the air arrival figure is 6.5%.

In August of this year we decided to have a good look at South America. We led a delegation to Buenos Aires, Argentina. Someone once said that time spent in reconnaissance was seldom wasted. And I am a firm believer, after that visit, that that approach is correct. It is always good to see it for yourself; to be able to relate to it rather than being asked to take decisions about something that you are perhaps not very familiar with.

We carried out our first promotion in Argentina just about two weeks ago. The word on the street in Buenos Aires is Cayman Islands, and Cayman Islands. We look forward to activity in that area. We are not naïve, we don't expect a great volume to come tomorrow. But we know that in a courtesy call to the Secretary of Tourism (They have a similar style of Government as the US) in discussions with him, we are aware that 400,000 Argentineans travel to Miami. And it is not uncommon that they have two-stop vacations.

We also talked to regional managers in Buenos Aires for United, American, Lan Chile, for Aerolíneas Argentina, and we do know that they together with leading tour operators in Argentina are quite willing and pleased to sell the Cayman Islands to their customers. And quite frankly some of the tour operators have already come and visited to become familiar with the facilities in the Cayman Islands.

I think we are all proud of the website that we have put together for the Cayman Islands. It is attractive. We hope to continue to move enhancements to it to make it more user friendly, and to eventually take bookings from travel agents on it. We are careful that travel agents who have worked with us for many, many years and have, and continue to sell the Cayman Islands, and are friends of the Cayman Islands, that we do not step on any toes in this process.

MOMENT OF INTERRUPTION—4.30 PM

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, may I interrupt you for just one moment? We have reached the hour of 4.30. I would entertain a motion for the suspension of Standing Order 10(2) in order to continue. I understand it is the wish of the House that we continue until 7.00 PM.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 10(2)

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to move the suspension of Standing Order 10(2) to allow the debate to continue.

The Speaker: Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 10(2) SUSPENDED.

The Speaker: Please continue.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Thank you.

In the area of Tourism we also deal with Hotel Licensing Board activities. I must say that the partnership that has come together, and we continue to work with that industry and the people providing the service in the Cayman Islands. I am pleased with the results. I am pleased with the co-operation that is being received by the Ministry and the Department of Tourism in putting together various programmes that attract people to our shores, that lend to volunteers coming forward and assisting with promotions such as Aviation Week among others. I believe that teamwork makes the job easy and helps us to deliver the quality of service that the individual seeks to receive.

With all that I have said today, it is appropriate to say that this morning at 5.30 I got a message to read James 4:17. That verse of the Holy Book reads: "When a man knows the right thing to do and does not do it, he sins." So I was not prepared today, Mr. Speaker, to sin.

I believe, in summary, what we have put forward is that there should be a new direction, a new commitment in dealing with the service required by our local people as well as others who visit. There is a need for all of us to work together to ensure that the prosperity that we boast about sometimes continues to happen in this country, not just for us, we probably wouldn't be here that much longer, but to ensure that our children and theirs have the same golden opportunity that we have. It is fair to say that when I went to high school we had to pay for it. That tells you how this country has changed.

It is also important to not take for granted that prosperity, that standard of living, that social harmony that we have come to know just about all of our lives. We have to commit to working to ensure that it remains, for that is certainly in the best interest of this country. We have to ensure that today and in the future that the services we provide to the people of this country and others maintains the same high quality, so that when you have to raise revenue measures you don't become . . . I am tempted to say the wrong thing. Let me not do that. You don't weaken, but you step forward and tell the people what they need to know. This is not a day for moving backward. This is a day for forward motion.

Even when we talked about the cost of collecting garbage at my house twice per week (or your house), the manpower cost is $191 a year. It doesn't take into consideration the truck and the depreciation, and other things. So this ninety-six cents that we are paying on a weekly basis, I think it is reasonable to move to $1.92 per week. Even then, it doesn't pay for this $191. It would have to move to $3.67 a week. We must get accustomed that you cannot continue to deliver the service to the public unless somebody pays for it. It's the truth. Anybody who tries to tell the public differently knows it's not true. You know that you cannot continue to increase expenditure unless you have more income. And the way to get more income is to increase the revenue. And we must do it comprehensively and fairly as we move on, perhaps incrementally.

As I said earlier, if we can recover the cost of the service that we are delivering, there will be no problem today, tomorrow, or even 20 years from today. We are not looking to make a profit. There's no profit in this. But if we are to continue the same level of service we must have the same amount of revenue to deal with it as we move forward. We know that what a dollar buys today is different from what it bought ten years ago. We have to keep that difference in place as we move forward so that $100 or that $1,000 is increased to allow it to buy the same quantity or quality that you were seeking to buy.

The capital development in this country needs to be a two-year programme. We need a number of projects that we can commit to, as being urgent, in order to ensure that the infrastructure in this country keeps pace with the demand. So that when you leave your house in Bodden Town, at whatever hour, you can get to George Town at a reasonable time; it is just an example. When you leave your building at Cayman Kai coming into George Town, you can arrive at a reasonable time.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Preach!

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: What we are trying to say is: not only are you arriving on time, but you are arriving on good roads, comfort, not the potholes, not the patches, not the need for your shocks to be always in operation.

The programme that I have outlined for roads, I sincerely believe we need to act on now. We need to begin that process in 1999.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, for the Member's benefit, there are a lot of things we should have done before.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: The traffic congestion and how to arrest it: we have to deal with the extension of the Harquail, and put in the roundabout at North Sound junction. We also have to deal with the first phase of the Crewe Road Bypass that takes us from Tropical Gardens down to Bob Thompson Way where you will turn left and go to the schools, or turn right and come out on Smith Road. We have to do it, otherwise we are not going to arrest the situation.

I don't commit myself to any Band-Aid approach, Mr. Speaker. If they want me to do that, take the subject back, please! Take the subject back!

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: If we own land in this country, if we have Crown land that is capable of being the type that we need to crush and get rock to deal with the Harquail or deal with the Crewe Road, it's a business decision. We own it, why not use it? Reduce the cost. How much do we want to pay? They say it's $6 million, if we use our rock and our marl maybe it will be $3 [million], maybe $4 [million]. But it would make sense to go that route. Why spend extra money? We could use the extra $2 million or $3 million doing some other project the country needs.

And district roads, let me be there too. District roads. Mr. Speaker, take back the million dollars, I don't need it I can't do anything with $1 million on Grand Cayman!

The Speaker: We'll take it!

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: And it's not you that put it there, Mr. Speaker, but I am supposed to address you.

The Speaker: We'll take it!

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I believe that the district roads in George Town, Bodden Town and West Bay—each district needs at least $500,000, otherwise you cannot correct the problems in the districts. I believe that in North Side and East End you need $250,000 to correct the district roads. I believe that when you are talking about the road resurfacing (and I may have quoted the wrong figure) from Frank Sound to Old Man Bay, 1.75 miles, the amount we need is $450,000. We know that is the amount for 1999. We know that we have to duplicate that in the year 2000 in order to do it properly and do all that needs to be done. So I go back to that area to be sure that what I did say was correct.

I know that many Members across the floor have been asking for civic centres. Why can't we get it done? I know that Members across the floor have been asking for the Lighthouse School to be put in place.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Yeah! Now you're preaching!

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Community parks. Sporting facilities. Why can't they be done? We vote the money, why can't they be done? Are we handcuffing ourselves, or do we really want to get this done? I know there is a need for another Primary School in the George Town area because the three schools nearest to this area, George Town Primary, Red Bay Primary, and even Savannah, can't take many more children. Red Bay is at 416, I think, and George Town is at 422, and Savannah is close to 300. You need more facilities. We have to do it!

Which one of us is going to deal with the parents when the child is put outside under the grape tree, when the others are inside in air-conditioned facilities? I wonder who will be bold enough to deal with it.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, I know there are other Members who wish to speak. And I am not going to go on much longer, but West Bay Primary School multi-purpose hall...

[A Member's laughter]

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: ...must be put in place in 1999. West Bay Hurricane Shelter must start in 1999 because we want to get on with providing a public library in our district. We don't want all of our people coming to George Town to visit a library. We have 8,000 people.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I know that the Member across the floor, the Third Elected Member for George Town, in particular, is trying hard to get his George Town civic centre hurricane shelter. We should do it! We should do it! And the Minister for Education says he supports it, so what's the problem?

[General uproar!—laughter & inaudible comments]

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Please. Mr. Speaker, we have bought land in West Bay. We are reasonable people. We have bought land in West Bay for the second Primary School in West Bay. And we are going to move on with that as well. That's another project that has to get done by the year 2000.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I am going to, with the agreement of my colleagues, circulate this document I am talking about that has $54 million in it, and I am saying let's look at it as a two year project. Let's cap it at $30 million for 1999, and we know that it does not change the percentage of debt repayment. The percentage is 7.1%, and I didn't do this myself, I got the information from a very able finance person. So I don't have any doubt about what it says and whether it is right or not. I know that he has done this exercise many, many times.

We are able to go to the bank. We are able to borrow. We have the ability to look comprehensively at the revenue system in this country. We have to do all these things I have mentioned because we have to steer a different direction for this country. We have to ensure that the infrastructural needs in the Cayman Islands are put in place. What's the cost if you don't? Think about it.

What is the cost to all of us if we don't arrest the traffic situation in this country? What is the cost if we don't provide the schools for the children? We have to provide the facilities in order for the Cayman Islands to continue to be the country we are proud to live in; proud to raise our children; proud to attend church; proud to have a community of social harmony, a community that has very little crime. Let us all step up to the plate. Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, thank you very much.

I do not expect to be long, but I am pleased to be able to add my contribution to this very important debate on the budgetary proposals for the year 1999, God willing. It is important because whatever is agreed on this Estimates will do the work, we hope, in these islands for the very last year in this century.

It should be important because these are the plans that should be helping us in the new millennium. I should say that this is where I am disappointed: With all the good ideas and all the good programmes started, and all the goodwill of the people, the Government has become lame and is without cohesiveness—because of their own faults, of course. I believe that the Minister for Tourism spent yesterday (or Friday afternoon) and all day today showing us why. I doubt that the plans, projects and programmes will be affordable in the short term; I doubt they will be sustainable in the longer term. I certainly say they are unrealistic and unfair in the circumstances.

Now, Mr. Speaker, as Legislators, we must be fair in all that we say and do. In spite of all our problems, I believe that these Cayman Islands are the best little [islands] in the whole wide world. God has been good to us. We are blessed. When we consider the plight of others in this region, can we not say that God has blessed us? We surely can!

As I said earlier, the Government is getting deeper and deeper into a situation with the financial aspect of this country because of their own fault, that borrowing and raising fees seems to have become commonplace. But how far, or how much further can we really go before we begin to feel the negative fallout of such policies? I pose the question, Will the next decade be one of confronting the bills built up today?

I don't know much about economics and accounts, and I will leave that for those persons best suited. The policies of the Governments of this country have followed a prudent path over the years. The Budget, as we all know as parliamentarians, is constructed in two parts: current accounts and capital accounts.

The current account is likened to 'the housekeeping budget'—taking care of the payment of salaries, travelling, rent, interest and all the expenditures that occur from year to year, or throughout the year. I am told that it is a sacrosanct rule in prudent financial practices that this housekeeping budget of the country, the housekeeping expenditure, must be met from the revenues of the country.

The earnings of the country must be used to finance the recurrent expenditure and indeed not only should the earnings of the country finance the recurrent expenditure, but it should leave something over which can be used to help finance the other accounts of the Budget. That other account is the capital account which is where all the capital development work takes place, the productive programmes—the capital development that the Minister for Tourism was talking about.

We are borrowing money to close the gap. I don't know of a time when that happened. The Government cannot continue to use those loan funds, if I am understanding correctly, to fund the housekeeping expenditure. There is good, common-sense reason, that anybody can understand. If we, in our household budget, have to buy the supplies, that is take care of our families—food at the supermarket, transportation, mortgage/rent, school fees and other things like that—out of what we earn then we will have to borrow in order to make up the difference.

As I understand it, you can borrow for just so long to make up that difference, until one day the bank manager catches up with us and says, 'You can't continue to borrow by virtue of spending more than you earn. What are you going to use to repay what you have borrowed?' Borrowings can only be repaid from earnings. I will wait for others to explain it much better than I can, but from what I see, we are borrowing to close the gap.

We have to face certain realities. The question of borrowing is the same for the country as it is for a person or a family. It is not how much we can borrow, but how much we can afford to pay back. What we must always remember is that there is no such thing as two or three percent borrowing, or soft loans, anymore. I doubt that. I don't know if the Hon. Financial Secretary will get that kind of support in the country. I doubt it.

In March 1997 I was in Executive Council and the Government decided there had to be some borrowings and fees raised. I agreed at the time because at long last I felt that the position I had taken all of my public life was being taken up. For instance, if a man bought a Toyota Tercel in Miami, his duty should be less than a person who bought a Cadillac, Lincoln or some other big car. I could support that kind of increase. However, the money from such fee increases as duty and registration of vehicles was supposed to go to our roads network. But that didn't happen! And it didn't happen in the borrowings of November 1997 either when I was not in Executive Council. We all know what kind of prioritising the Government did.

They went away at the end of the year and came back with a list of items that was not included in the Budget that the Minister for Tourism said they would prioritise and bring back to Finance Committee. We all know that the kind of prioritising that took place was certain projects, like Pedro Castle—which was not included in the Budget—were handed large sums of money in the new prioritised list. Let me say that I don't agree with that move. I didn't agree with it then. It is that kind of 'me first' attitude that got us to this point. That money, as we agreed, and as was told to the country, should have gone on roads at the time. Then there would be no need to come here expecting us to put $10 million or $15 million on the roads now because the responsibility for roads has shifted.

I don't want to hear that I am against cultural programmes, or that I am against Pedro Castle. It is a nice, new, Disneyland type facility. However, it would have been much better for the country to have spent half that amount and given the country a more culturally oriented facility along with a decent conference centre. I do hope that since that was not done that the projections given to us by the Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, as to how much revenue we will make from that project, will be realised.

I say again, that is where the money went. This cannot be good Government. When the previous Minister for roads was also screaming for money, the money went elsewhere. Let us be honest and tell the truth. I say again that I am not against developing projects to enhance tourism because tourism is one of the main pillars of our economy, but I am against the amount of expenditure that has gone into Pedro Castle to make it this Disneyland facility it has turned out to be. We didn't need to do that at all, and far too much money has been spent on it.

We, who were the National Team way back in the early days, campaigned on a manifesto that said we would do something about getting the sports centre in George Town. We said we would do something about facilities in the districts. We said we would do something about roads. We said that we would do something about social development and the truth is, every candidate in that election campaign, campaigned on the same thing and said the same thing in their manifestos and publicly. But the National Team did not campaign on Pedro Castle. We had a mandate from the people to address other areas neglected for 25 years. There was no mandate to spend $10 million on Pedro Castle.

When we got elected to Executive Council in 1992 we started out on a course to put some money into the social infrastructure in such things as sports, which the Government and Opposition alike said was neglected—for 25 years, some said.

I remember proposing that we could tackle one area one year and another sector the next, rather than doing all sectors at the same time. But that did not work. No one wanted that. And if anyone believes that it is he who screams the loudest who gets, he is sadly mistaken. He doesn't know what takes place in the Glass House. In the makeup of the Executive Council, it was he who could get the support of certain players in Government who got the most.

While I was blamed for everything, and was the whipping horse for spending money, others were spending much larger sums than what I spent on sports and old people. That couldn't put us where we are today. Not that kind of expenditure over the five years I was in Executive Council.

Mr. Speaker, I was never a person to be easily disillusioned, but now that I have had some time to stand back and see what is really happening, I am really disillusioned with the way that I see the goings on, let's put it, and what scheming really goes on. I can really say that I am glad that I am not there. I don't want to be in a situation where anybody can be sacrificed, because that seems to be the way Government has been operating. But I am really sorry for some, and sorry for this country.

When I was in Executive Council I was too busy protecting others, trying to get housing, trying to get training, trying to get youth programmes, and sports. I took great interest in the work of the Hon. Financial Secretary to protect us from those who are so jealous of these islands that they would sink us. I had no time to scheme against my fellow man, not for praise, not for glory, not for re-election. Perhaps I was too busy for my own good!

But from what I see taking place, Mr. Speaker—and I say this hoping the Members of Executive Council take it for all it's worth: One of the fundamental problems that I see existing is that there is no cohesiveness in Government now. Each person is doing what he wants and the Leader of Government Business is left to take the licks and still keep everybody happy with expenditure; to still keep them together, while his Education Ministry goes lacking. He is taking the licks and everybody else is having a joyous occasion.

Is this good Government? As far as I am concerned this is not good enough. As I said, there is no cohesiveness. Therefore, with what I see going on, I doubt that the plans and projects as proposed, not just by them but by other people over the years that are now trying to come to fruition, programmes I doubt will be affordable in the short-term, and doubt will be sustainable in the longer term. And we know now, according to what the Minister for Tourism has spent the day telling us, that they are unrealistic, and, certainly, from what I see in the Budget, they are unfair in the present.

Mr. Speaker, we are all talking about changing the systems and what we should do to make Government work better. Let me say that no amount of accrual accounting or changing up the books will help us in the prevailing circumstances of the Government and the country when this kind of situation exists where so much cut-throat is going on. The country sees it, and the Members in this House see it. How can this inspire confidence?

Let me say that the country is the worse off for it, and will be worse off no matter what group is there when this kind of 'me-first' attitude prevails. I hope, sir, whether I am there or not—and I don't have to be there—that the next Executive Council, no matter who it is, things will be different.

You know, Mr. Speaker, I must agree with the Minister for Tourism: In spite of all the problems we have, this is still the only place that I would want to live—the only place I can live. And we still have a tremendous amount of goodwill in these islands from our people. Believe me, the people want things to work. Sure, you will find those who criticise everything. But the stark truth is, these people are in the minority.

Every one of us in this House wants the country to be good, wants the country to be workable, every one of us—Government and those of us on this side of the House as well. We have good civil servants to be proud of, good doctors, good teachers, nurses, clerks in the offices, good managers, good tradesmen, good people working in the churches, good people working in the service clubs, we have good labourers, even the street cleaners are doing a good job. We all want to see these Cayman Islands succeed because we live and have our being here. Thanks be to God, these islands are still the best place to be. But we must make it work for all of us today, and in the future.

I don't intend to be long on this aspect of the examination of the Estimates. I hope to have some time in Finance Committee to be able to get some questions answered. However, there are real fundamental mistakes in the Budget, as far as I am concerned; mistakes which I cannot condone and I hope before the entire exercise is completed mistakes will be corrected. Mr. Speaker, first of all, the funds projected are too much for use in the year 2000 for new projects and continuing projects which would be left over from 1999.

If we are having so much trouble funding what we are doing in 1998, where will the funds come from in the year 2000? I hear about borrowing larger and larger sums when the sums being borrowed in 1999 will presumably take the Government through 1999. For those new projects that are included in these papers before us for 2000, will we borrow in 2000 to start them in 2000? And raise fees to assist with payment of the loans in 2001?

There are consequences, as I understand it, for placing these projects in the Estimates for 2000. We cannot keep taxing the same areas. I guess that has been our sing-song for some time now. What will happen in 2000? In 2001? In 2002? In 2003? – to just look at a few years. Will the Government, then, whichever it may be, have to come to the country and make us pay for educating our children? I have always opposed that, and I always will, because I know full well that if we don't educate and train our young people, the Cayman Islands have no future. And if we tell the country that they have to pay for education in the public schools, then people will grow up much worse off than many of us who grew up years ago when we had no opportunity. The reality is that today the gap is widening between the haves and have-nots. And while we build castles, that kind of policy, with its attendant need for large funds, leaves room to attack the poor and middle-income [groups] in these islands with the kind of fees being raised, and raised again.

Mr. Speaker, when we examine the Estimates, that project is spending over $2.5 million this year, 1998. It will spend $335,000 for capital works in 1999. If we can believe that, because they started out saying $1 million this year (that was in November last year) and we see over $2.5 million spent. So we don't know. But in addition to $335,000 they also have a subsidy of $620,000.

While we spend $955,000 (if that is so) next year on the castle, the mental health clinic which was scheduled to be housed in the old West Bay Health Clinic now has no funds allocated. How long have we been trying to get a day care centre, clinic, or anything you want to call it, for the mentally handicapped? And we finally find a place which was agreeable to everybody, but it seems now that the castles and the jailhouses are so important that these poor people who are so unfortunate to be mentally handicapped again go without this facility. This is a disgrace for a country boasting of so much prosperity.

Our history cannot, and might not be written in great and bloody battles, but it can be written about how we progress the human condition by actions and advances gained. It is not charity to show respect and care for people. No, I agree that we don't want to be a welfare state. But, as I have always said, we must take care of the state of our welfare. It has been accepted that Education needs huge sums of money for new school facilities such as halls, and as I said, for general maintenance of school plant.

The Minister is quite aware of how Members feel about Education. It was always said to the Minister for Education at Budget time, and other times, "Truman, get what you need for Education, even if you have to borrow it." So goodwill has always existed to the extent that Members on both sides of the House have agreed at all times for expenditure on Education. However, we find that seriously needed school facilities are again not going to get attention in 1999, although I heard the Minister of Tourism saying that we must get it. How can we get it when the money is going elsewhere?

I wonder at the politics that exist, when, once again we find $100,000 in the Estimates for the Sunrise Centre. If this is for renovating the present facility, then I feel that it's money wasted. I haven't had time to talk to the Minister for Education. The Sunrise Centre needs a different facility as we keep saying. And I know the Minister for Education recognises this. The present one is unworkable, is unsafe and leaves no room for needed intelligent programmes to help those who attend it move ahead in life. Yet, all we can put for the Sunrise Centre is $100,000. What are we going to do when the Fire Department has condemned the present facility? And you are talking about adding $15 million to the roads, the Sunrise Centre—that kind of human condition goes without.

The Alternative Education Centre is slated to cost $1.3 million. That's what these Budgetary Estimates say. But it will only get $450,000 in 1999. There are no funds placed in the Estimates for 1999 for the Secure Children's Facility which is so badly needed. I sat there and I marvelled at the speech of the Honourable Minister for Tourism, and I said would to God that the Minister for Tourism had talked that way when I was in Executive Council taking the licks from people who did their endeavour best to stop the building of the remand centre—right within the Glass House, and outside of the Glass House. Would to God that I had that kind of support.

In fact, before I left there was a man brought in to advise on the facility and he has been working with the Social Services Department. Yet, again, there are no funds in the face of such need. And they recognise it.

I see that they have projected $5.6 million for the year 2000. How much money can be spent in the year 2000? I ask. Every one of these items as you go down the line, is 2000, 2000, 2000. And I wonder if it is not a grand exercise...begin in 1999 and have big openings in 2000...while people suffered for the many years that I attempted to get these kinds of things done. Do you know what we heard? We're spending too much money. So, no Alternative Education Centre, and no Sunrise Centre, and no Remand Centre. Good going, is it not?

Now, Mr. Speaker. I heard the Honourable Minister for Tourism mention that he didn't know whether or not the Alternative Education Programme should be with the Marine Institute. I believe he said don't duplicate efforts.

When we said that the Alternative Education Programme should be incorporated with the Cayman Islands Marine Institute, did I get the support then? What has brought this tremendous change of mind? I would like to know. I am not disagreeing, by the way.

What brought this change of mind now that the Alternative Education Programme should go in with the Cayman Islands Marine Institute? Is it so that they can borrow more money and get them the programmes they want—to be heroes? Got the remand centre, got the schools, got the halls, got the libraries? We were supposed to get these some time ago. I am glad that there is a realisation that we need them.

We said, don't put a project in because you dreamed it up. And that is a profound statement by the past Financial Secretary, the Minister of Education. You see the need. You even perhaps campaign on it over a period of years like we did, and begin to put them in place like we tried to do. But if you have people putting stumbling blocks in your way and cutting your throat you won't get them all done as happened to me. We couldn't get all those things before, but we can get them now. Just borrow the money. Just borrow it, they say.

Mr. Speaker, and Honourable Members, the worst situation that exists with promises is the John A. Cumber Primary School Hall. As far back as 1988 I have been trying to get that hall for that school. Nothing was done. The school hall has been needed and there has been nothing done. Every year I was in Executive Council, it was promised. Last year I practically begged the Government—in fact, I did, here in Finance Committee—to put its foot down. I asked the Minister to put his foot down, and in May this year I was being told that the hall could not be built within that seven-month period. That is, May to December—next month. I agree with the Minister for Tourism. I begged them; I argued with them in Finance Committee. No, they said, it would be built next year—next year, 1999. That was the promise.

Well, what do we find in the Estimates for 1999? Lo and behold, for the construction of the Multi-purpose Hall at West Bay Primary School, $1 million, when the project is slated to cost $1,728,400! One million dollars for a facility that is going to cost that kind of money is placed in the Estimates for the year. For the year 2000, the amount of $728,405 is placed in the Estimates. Do you realise, Mr. Speaker, what this means?

I believe the Minister for Tourism realises what it means because he kept saying, "We have to get the hall!" Because of only having $1 million in the Estimates this year, and $728,000 for the year 2000, it means that the West Bay School hall would not be completed until the year 2000. Can you imagine that they would expect the public to swallow that? The children of the John A. Cumber Primary School would still be meeting on the field, or somewhere outside West Bay for their school functions.

Mr. Speaker, this is simply not good enough! I certainly expected that the Minister of Education was going to put his foot down to get those programmes through. But to top it all off (and I just can't understand how Government thinks), we can count at least five needed facilities that are not getting enough of the required funds—or none at all!—Alternative Education Facilities, Secure Children's Centre, Sunrise Centre, Mental Health Centre, and the John A. Cumber Primary School Hall, not to mention the other schools for West Bay because the present one is too small, not to mention other projects that are needed.

Look at the irony of the whole matter. We can't get the required amounts of funds to ensure protection and education for our children, and the sick. But alas, we find close to $1 million to extend the Prison! This really, really grieves me, Mr. Speaker! It really, really grieves me when the Government comes here raising fees, and borrowing money, as the Financial Secretary said, and then the Minister for Tourism gets up and says 'No, we don't need $20 million. Uh-uh. That's not good enough. We have to borrow more money.' It really grieves me, to raise fees, and borrow money to build a larger jail. Not with my support! And I can stand alone.

What we need to do is quickly be about rehabilitating these people who are committing the burglaries to pay their drug habit and then ending up at Northward and just escalate the need to build a larger prison. We don't need to put any more money in the prison, give that money to the Minister for Health and let him finish what he needs to do. That's what needs to be done.

I took a lot of ridicule from a lot of areas because I spent funds on a few social programmes. Let me say that I have never believed that we should do as much to create a welfare state, but these islands are far from that. It is not charity to look after the old who don't have pensions. It is not charity to look after those who are sick. It is not charity to care for and show respect for others—be they our supporters or not.

We talk a lot about Vision 2008, and the new millennium, and the National Team's central theme was "Building for the 21st Century." The great public works of the future will not be motorways as far as I am concerned, will not be roads. They will be investments in Education, investments in technology and social infrastructure. Does anyone believe that a policy of spending more Government money on tourism and finance, leaving out the social infrastructure, and then building a larger prison will continue to work? It can't!

You might hear some crying about the roads now, but when we got elected there was some cry about roads too. We want more roads. What was the cry then? We need to get young people off the street. The cry was to get crimes by young people down. I am not saying that what I attempted to do was the panacea for the whole problem, but, by God, I attacked it and I dealt with it in the face of much opposition and cut-throat from within the Government! I will never forget it.

And now they come in here with their swanky hymn-books singing a song of 'Come to the Altar, I need to borrow more money' That's good enough? I doubt it. It is not good enough. We are about people. To build a larger prison for $1 million? Sorry, Mr. Speaker, I shouldn't shout.

The young people of this country know better. And they are not going to be what we think. That they can just sit down and take it. It won't happen that way. They know better. The young people of this country and many others know what wellness of life means too. That people must be cared for. The young people know that. It is ironic and cruel that this major budgetary exercise which will lead us into the new millennium is forgetting about certain policies which we said we would push for.

We do have a duty to try to build for the 21st Century, for the future. These islands are a place of fairness and equity, and our policies should be about enhancing social development, not winding it back. Our policies and principles and positions should be about advancing all the needs of public education. No, we don't believe in handouts. But I am convinced that the state should exist to give people a hand up. That's me. What I see happening is that we are coming up short.

Mr. Speaker, as I said earlier, I don't intend to be long. I believe that we should continue to prepare these islands to be a premier tourist destination. I believe that. And I agree with attempts made by former Members responsible for Tourism, and some being made by this Honourable Minister of Tourism to accomplish this. I support efforts to move up the level income group to a higher end. I support all that. But we have come now to a time to examine the actual expenditure from our Budget. We are spending over $11 million on advertising? How do you make tourism work? How do we bring visitors here? We promote the Cayman Islands more strongly. But we don't do it alone. I have been saying that for a long time. We get the private sector and the Government together to market our islands. We have a good destination, yes.

These days there is much talk about reinvention. They even said that New Zealand is a good model. Well, I won't support everything that New Zealand does. But one of the things they do is that the private sector and tourism match dollar for dollar in promoting New Zealand. The Minister should look at that. I am not saying that that is the entire ratio we should look at, but I believe that earnest dialogue should take place between Government and the private sector in the sharing of advertising costs. I will say no more at this time about that.

Mr. Speaker, I sat back and I listened to my friend, the Minister for Tourism, when he said that we need to do training. There is a motion before the House about getting some training done. But I am going to be frank here today. Again I had to wonder about those pronouncements. I didn't hear a lot about it when I was taking the licks to try to get it done. I got a paper through Executive Council that said we would do certain things. But I couldn't get any money to do it with. I had little or nothing to do training. Couldn't get it off the ground no matter how hard I tried. While there were a lot of people saying 'I support you', there were not a lot coming up front saying 'This is how you do it. This is how you get it done. Here are the funds.'

The Ministry of Community Development at the time had no funds for training. In comparison, this year Tourism has $500,000 for local promotion. Local public relations $140,000. Information System Services, $252,000. Tourism development programme, $304,000. I don't see anything here about training in the other Ministry.

Training has now moved to my friend, the Minister for Education, and what do we have? They only gave him specialist training, $15,979. There is nothing here for training. I am not going to dwell long on it because I have a motion that I hope to deal with it in total.

The Minister for Tourism said the apple is not ready before it's ripe. Ha! The apple is rotten! It was ready to be plucked. It had ripened. It had come where we needed to move it to get it out so that people could smell it, feel it and eat it. What happened? They didn't give me the support. That's what happened.

Much has been said about roads. The Minister for Tourism, the new Minister for roads, said that we are going to do all the roads in the country. They all need to be done, put black top, or asphalt on them. We just did North Side some time ago, chipped and sprayed it, resurfaced it. And Bodden Town too; that was just resurfaced. Now they are going to asphalt it. Now, Mr. Speaker, it's all good and well when if you have loads of money or you have asphalt like Trinidad and Tobago. We could do that.

And I heard about resurfacing the West Bay Road. And, yes, that needs some attention. But is resurfacing the West Bay road the most important? Or adding one or two more lanes where they can be added so that the traffic flow is much easier? Or finishing the Harquail Bypass straight through? The truth is that from the cemetery in West Bay up, to a certain distance—let's say from the Governor's residence even—the road itself is not that bad. To make traffic flow easier, perhaps more lanes could be put in. It is better, as far as I am concerned, to spend and do what you can, rather than going having to borrow millions for some things and leaving other things behind.

Not to say that money does not need to be put on roads. What I am saying is that we just resurfaced Bodden Town Road in certain areas. The main road, not the entire Bodden Town district because that is in a bad plight as far as the feeder roads are concerned. I am talking about the main road. Anyway, they have the wheel. Let's see if the ship runs aground by putting in the roads or borrowing the money.

To get his point across, the Minister for Tourism gave the comparison that the Government is paying more to collect people's garbage than it is collecting from households. You can put it up $100 and we would have to pay. I hope that an allowance will be made for old people, so that they will not be expected to pay if they are not working.

That is a good excuse to get the extra $50 per year. I opposed that before, so they couldn't do it. They are doing it now. But what the Minister for Tourism didn't tell the House was—he didn't say anything about the situation with commercial businesses. He wouldn't say that last year in March when they wanted to put an increase on garbage I inquired about which businesses were paying. And when they completed that exercise, they found out that Government is subsidising business garbage collection by 50%. Whether that is so, that is what we were told. If they can subsidise any business, they can subsidise the households a little bit more. I wait to see if figures are brought up to show that they are not doing that. But that is my understanding.

I can't finish without talking about the hospital. I just want to be brief about it. The original estimated cost of the hospital in the swamp was $16 million. But coupled to that was some $11 million for the other hospital in George Town where it is now. Nobody seems to remember that. But why the country was in the uproar over the hospital was because the hospital was going to be a split site hospital—one in the swamp, and one at George Town, where it is now.

If any of us believe that building that hospital up there cost us anything to operate, [just imagine if we] had gone through with that programme that was set in motion where you didn't even have a kitchen—as I recall—at the one in the swamp. Maybe the Minister for Health can correct me. If there was one, it was not called a kitchen; it was called something else. [Member's inaudible comments] No. They don't call it a kitchen in a hospital I am being told. But I do know that the duplicity of services would have driven this country mad in recurrent expenditure.

When we got elected, the Governor was quick to say that this thing had to be stopped. The paper was put and it had to be stopped at the time. Now, it is left to see that where the present Minister has the programme, whether savings will be realised in the recurrent side of the project. But to say that what I did as the first Minister of Health, and what he came along and did afterwards, we did what the people asked us to do. If we all talk about doing what the people want us to do then we did that. But, you know, people change their minds.

I have no regrets about changing that, Mr. Speaker, because I went to that site in November 1996 and believe you me, you could sail the Adams around it. What I am concerned with is getting proper health care attention to those who need it. And we started out on a project and in the first year we said we'd build the district clinics, they will take the stress off the main hospital and it would be cheaper to an extent to service some needs in the communities rather than people tripping up and down in George Town and that sort of thing. And I don't have all the facts in front of me, but those were the general ideas going into the clinics.

The first thing I did was go to Bodden Town and look at the Bodden Town clinic which was right on the road and in a dilapidated condition. I said that was the first one that was going to be built. So, it was after I had left and the new Minister took over. I don't think that is so much an issue. It all depends on what the Minister and his civil servants do with the programmes that are there, and whether the recurrent expenditure is kept in line. If that is blown out of proportion, then the Minister knows that he will have to bear the responsibility.

Mr. Speaker, I can't forget the ordeal with the Budget in March 1997. When I talk about players in the Government and the Budget planning for 1997, as I said, came to the conclusion that on certain revenue raising and loans I agreed with some of this. But I didn't agree to remove duty from yoghurt and such products. We agreed to put fees on shellfish, let us say lobster and shrimp. I believe those items were then 15% for import duty at the time. We agreed to put a 5% increase on it because it could take it. That was not going to hurt the ordinary man.

What happened? They not only took off the 5%, but they took off a further 5%. In fact, they decreased the duty on lobster and shrimp down to 10% to import. And now they have the audacity, the temerity to play statesman and say we must borrow $30 million and then blame John McLean because they didn't get the work done for roads. Yes, Mr. Speaker, I agree that the former Minister for that subject was lacking. But the truth is, you have to have funds. Let's give credit where credit is due.

And some of the main people hollering today about 'We have to do this because we live here and this is our country.' That's true, but it was our country then too! As far as I am concerned, it's nothing but gearing up for the year 2000 election—do some of the projects next year, borrow enough this year to do some of it next year, and some in 2000, and they will all look good smiling going to the polls. That's a fact.

In March 1997 it was "Blame it on McKeeva's Budget." In November 1997 it was "Blame it on First Cayman Bank." I wonder who they are blaming this one on. My desire is to see things working right in these islands for all people; to see that needs are met from what the country earns. My objective is to help unite a strong guard. What greater challenge could there be than to help lead one country in times of difficulty, to put aside petty arguments and to focus on the much bigger goal of building a better Cayman Islands for all of our people, and for all those who chose to live among us? I believe "... that all things work together for good to them that love God...." And these little islands are not heathen. There is nothing we can't do if we work together for the same purpose.

Now, Mr. Speaker, I have asked the Government for support in certain areas. And I hope that I won't find that I can't get it because of what I have said. If I don't, if I can't do things for the people I represent because of people playing politics, then I will bring a motion to this House and expose them. It is as simple as that. We must all work together for the good of the country. We must all see that those who need most get.

I have much more to say, but I am going to finish at this time. I hope that we get a chance in Finance Committee to explore the Estimates for the country. Thank you, and I thank the House for going on this late.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause) The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I haven't risen to speak, but with your permission I would just like to mention that there is a function this evening for some of the Members at Pedro Castle. There are still a few who haven't left who would like to attend that function. I think it would be in order this afternoon with your permission, and that of the House, if we could close off at this time so that some of those Members could attend that function.

The Speaker: I am in the hands of the House. I was told until 7 o'clock, but if that is the wish . . . The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until Wednesday at 10.00 AM.

The Speaker: The question is that this Honourable House do now adjourn until 10.00 AM on Wednesday. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House do stand adjourned until 10.00 AM Wednesday.

AT 6.05 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM WEDNESDAY, 25 NOVEMBER 1998.

MONDAY

The Speaker: I will ask the Member for North Side to say prayers.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Mr. Speaker, before I say the prayers this morning I would seek your permission for the House to observe one minute of silence for the victims of violence, as His Excellency the Governor has proclaimed today, 25th November, as International Day against Violence against Women

The House observed one minute of silence

[Prayers read by the Elected Member for North Side]

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Item 2 on today's Order Paper, Reading by the Speaker of Messages and Announcements.

READING BY THE SPEAKER OF

NATIONAL DAY OF PRAYER

The Speaker: Today has been declared a National Day of Prayer by the Cayman Ministers' Association. At 12 noon today a religious service will be conducted in the Chamber. As a result, the House would suspend proceedings at 11.45 AM.

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: I have apologies from the First Elected Member for West Bay who is still off the Island.

Item 3 on today's Order Paper, Questions to Honourable/Official Members. Question number 202 is standing in the name of the First Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE

QUESTION 202

No. 202: Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning what is the total debt owed by Cayman Airways Limited to the Civil Aviation Authority for landing fees.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: As at 31 December 1996, Cayman Airways Limited owed the Civil Aviation Authority CI$372,739.62 for landing fees. As at 31 December 1997, Cayman Airways Limited owed the Civil Aviation Authority CI$1,500,356 for landing fees. As of 30 September 1998, total landing fees owed to the Civil Aviation Authority by Cayman Airways are CI$2,188,041.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries? The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister say if at any point since 1995 any landing fee debt owed by Cayman Airways to the Civil Aviation Authority has been forgiven?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Yes. When the restructuring was done (just after the new Government came in about six years ago), some of the debt that was owed, if not all of it, to the Civil Aviation Authority was issued as capital in Cayman Airways. It was capitalised. There was a substantial accumulation at that time and shares were issued for it. That's to my memory.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister say what that figure was—even if it is an approximate figure—and when this was done?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: It was in the 1995 accounts. As to how much that was, I don't have that. It is such a long time back I don't want to risk guessing on it. But I can get it and make it available to the Honourable Member. I will get somebody to look back in the 1995 accounts.

The Speaker: Do you have a follow up question? The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: The Minister stated that when the restructuring took place after the new Government came in (in 1992) that this debt was nullified through book-keeping purposes by way of issuing shares. And the Minister then said this was done during the financial year 1995. When this was done during the financial year 1995 was this for the debt owed prior to the "new Government" (as he termed it) taking over, or was this the accumulated debt up to that point in time in 1995?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I don't have that answer. I would have to have someone go back and look into the accounts. However, what I would say is that normally this has to go to Finance Committee, and it would normally be for at least a year prior to when the shares were issued. But I don't have the figures on that, and I don't remember that far back.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Can the Honourable Minister say if the $2,188,041 is listed in the books of Cayman Airways as a debt?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Yes it is. It has passed through the profit and loss account so this would have gone through the books of the company.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Can the Honourable Minister say if any penalties or interest are being charged by the Civil Aviation for this delayed payment and loss of revenue by the Civil Aviation Authority?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: No interest is charged either on what is owed by Cayman Airways, or what is owed by Island Air.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Can the Honourable Minister say if he is responsible to this Legislative Assembly for the Civil Aviation Authority?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Yes, I am, sir.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Would the Minister say whether or not he perceives this to be a conflict of interests? he being the final authority in both cases.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, there is no conflict of interest because the Civil Aviation Authority and Cayman Airways are both owned by the Government and the people of the Cayman Islands. I represent the people of the Cayman Islands. Therefore, where the ownership is common and similar, there can be no conflict of interests. The interest would be from one pocket of Government to the other pocket of Government. There is no conflict.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: That Minister is, of course, versed in finance. Would he say that it is prudent policy on the part of the Civil Aviation Authority not to collect monies of this amount, or not to charge late fees as is commonplace in the private sector?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, that's an opinion. Accountants do the accounts, and I stand on the audited accounts of both the Authority and of the airlines. What I would say, however, as we see neither Cayman Airways nor Island Air have been paying these debts, one has to question the common sense of adding interest to something that at present isn't being paid and, in relation to Cayman Airways, capitalised.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Would the Minister tell the House whether or not the Civil Aviation Authority experiences any inconvenience or deprivation as a result of such an outstanding amount? Might they not have problems replenishing or keeping up with state-of-the-art equipment and the offering of incentives and attractive salary packages to their staff so as to ensure that they attract and keep the best available personnel?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The debts owed by Cayman Airways and Island Air to the Civil Aviation Authority do not affect what staff should rightfully have. The Civil Aviation Authority has always had a surplus both in cash and in profit. However, the Member has quite rightly pointed out that it is a disadvantage to the Civil Aviation Authority to be owed money, and it obviously is an advantage to Cayman Airways to owe it. But as far as whatever is necessary for the Civil Aviation Authority—whether that is capital or recurrent or for staff or whatever—there are always sufficient funds. By and large, there is between $1 million, to maybe $2 million or $3 million a year surplus. This year there will be a surplus I would assume as well.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Based on the answer given, it would seem that by year end 1998 that figure should be $2.7 million, assuming that Cayman Airways hasn't landed any less in 1998 than it did in 1997.

Can the Honourable Minister say if there have been any plans put forward to or by the Government to retire this debt? If so, by what means?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: That's actually a part of one of the three questions on CAL. The answer to that is yes. They will be capitalising a part of that in shares from Cayman Airways. That will come out clearly in another question.

The Speaker: I will entertain two additional supplementaries. The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Since this debt seems to have been increasing since 1996, can the Honourable Minister say if he knows of any intention by the Civil Aviation Authority to collect these fees?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: That debt has actually been increasing since 1968, if we want to be a bit more accurate on it!

Cayman Airways has basically never paid Civil Aviation the fees. That is a fact. What I would like to do more than anything else would be to get sufficient money in Cayman Airways to pay off all of the past debt which, with the million [dollars] this year we are probably in the area of $17 million or $18 million. The fact is, with retiring the debt that was—I shouldn't say that Cayman Airways inherited, but that I found back six years ago . . . paying interest on a substantial part of that $18 million is a lot of money. What we have been doing is paying $50,000 per month, which is $600,000 per year, on the loan at Royal Bank. But beyond that, we cannot pay anything further. That's just a fact of Cayman Airways' position at present.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I am using up the last supplementary. I would like to ask the Minister if other airlines using the services of the Civil Aviation Authority are charged landing fees. If so, do they pay these fees? Is it the policy of the Civil Aviation Authority to aggressively collect these fees? And if this is done by the Civil Aviation Authority how can Cayman Airways then be able to calculate its efficiency and productivity in comparison to other airlines that are using the Civil Aviation Authority without paying the debt?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The airlines that are owned by citizens of the United States, the ones owned by citizens of Jamaica (Air Jamaica, that is), and also Island Air are charged fees, as I said before. Island Air also has a substantial debt that is current and owed to Government. As far as I know the United States airlines pay fees for landing here—the same as Cayman Airways and Island Air have to pay to the US Government when they land at US airports, or Jamaican airports. So the answer is yes.

As to whether the US airlines owe their own Government, I know in the past US airlines have because a lot of them have gone bankrupt over the years—Eastern, Air Florida, Pan Am, a lot of them that flew here. So that is about the best that I can reply.

The Speaker: Moving on to question 203, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION 203

No. 203: Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning to give an update on any proposed purchase of new aircraft by Cayman Airways Limited.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Since the Board's decision in May 1997 to pursue the acquisition of a suitable third aircraft, the management of Cayman Airways Limited has been involved in an extensive search. Cayman Airways Limited has technically examined a number of aircraft over the past eighteen months and is actively conducting further inspections on a shortlist of three aircraft and their respective technical records.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister say if the three aircraft on the shortlist mentioned in the answer are indeed compatible with the parts in store for the other two aircraft?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: For the larger part, yes. Not everything, naturally, would be compatible. But they are the same type of aircraft and you will find similar equipment throughout. Occasionally things like avionics in the cockpit may sometimes differ.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: It is my understanding that the two aircraft being used by Cayman Airways at present, while being Boeing 737-200s, are different in many respects. I also remember the Minister in previous discussions talking about trying to get all of the aircraft as compatible as possible, regarding parts and operations.

Can the Honourable Minister say if part of the plan in purchasing a third aircraft is to attempt to get three aircraft of the same type?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The answer to that is yes, with an explanation. What would be ideal, as the Honourable Member quite rightly said, is that we would get three aircraft that were literally exactly the same. In other words, near to the same year with similar avionics and everything. That is the ideal situation.

He is quite right that in relation to the cockpit the two aircraft that we have now are different. I wouldn't say that there are substantial differences, but there are differences. One has JTD-17A engines, and the other has – 15A engines. Even though they are interchangeable, the 17's can be reduced to 15's if that has to happen.

So the answer is yes, if we could get three aircraft alike that would be ideal. If we could even get two of them that are very similar that would be better than having three that are different.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Based on the Honourable Minister's answer, is there any thought, then, to offloading one of the existing aircraft with a view to purchasing two aircraft that will match the remaining one?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: If it was possible to get a transaction constructed in such a way that we could purchase two similar aircraft, and be able to sell the aircraft that was least compatible with those two, that would be a very good situation. What I should say is that we probably have to keep estimating it in the area of $300,000 to $400,000 more spares in inventory now than if the two aircraft were exactly alike. So the nearer together we could get the aircraft the less spares we would have to keep. It would be advantageous, as the Member has said.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Can the Honourable Minister say how this third aircraft will be utilised?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The third aircraft will do several things. One is that it will be support service for ensuring that our present routes are kept more on time. We will have a third aircraft and we would be able to schedule the aircraft at better times for maintenance, and have longer downtimes for maintenance.

Secondly, it will allow us to do better routes into Cayman Brac. Thirdly, it will allow us to have a third aircraft when we are dealing with checks such as D-checks, which are the heavy checks that take the aircraft out of service for a while. And we wouldn't have to pay the $1.1 million or $1.3 million to lease other aircraft during those heavy checks. It will also allow us to do more charters, some of which can be lucrative. It will give us all around better service.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: I have always heard that a ship does not make money tied up to the dock, and that an airline does not make money while on the ground. Can the Honourable Minister say if this third aircraft will be in the air long enough to at least break even on the cost?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The Member is quite right: The aircraft has to fly a certain amount of hours. And I give the undertaking—and I have that from the managing director who is here with me—that there will be scheduling that will allow that aircraft to fly sufficient time to break even and hopefully produce a profit.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: One last supplementary. With the coming on line of the third aircraft can the Honourable Minister say if the staff will be increased, and if Cayman Airways will be looking to employ young Caymanians who have qualified as pilots?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The airline would have to hire pilots and flight attendants for the aircraft. Whenever there are any Caymanians available, or residents locally available next, we would always employ them in preference to anyone else.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: The Minister likes to give undertakings, so perhaps we will start to call him the Undertaker!

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Going back to the supplementaries answered before, when the Minister was talking about compatibility with the aircraft, can he say if in the negotiations that are taking place now Cayman Airways is actively pursuing the hypothetical arrangement he put forward about purchasing two [aircraft] that are more compatible while trying to offload the other one?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Out of the three aircraft that I mentioned the answer is no. There are no others. But sometime earlier there were three aircraft that were similar. Unfortunately, we were unable . . . well, there were more than three aircraft that were similar. We were not able to purchase those singly, and they are either off the market or they are gone.

I would like to mention as well that we only have one non-Caymanian pilot at present. Actually all of our pilots, other than one, are Caymanian.

The Speaker: Two additional supplementaries. The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Just to follow up, in the answer the Minister said that they are actively looking at the shortlist of aircraft for a possible purchase. It seems like there is no possibility of linking two of them if they are the right aircraft to purchase along with another one. Is this the final lap? And is the thought that one of these three will be purchased, or is it very possible that we might not—not “we,” I take that back—that “they” might have to begin the process over again?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: It is always good to hear the Honourable Member referring to “we” because I believe that he has asked sufficient questions on Cayman Airways that at this stage he must feel a part of it!

The answer is that with the aircraft we are looking at now (they are three single aircraft) if it did become possible to find two similar, then, provided price and everything else was right, obviously that is the route we would go. We would then sell the one of the two we now have that is least compatible with those two.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town, this is the final supplementary.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: If you limit me to that, I am going to ask four in one.

The Speaker: Go ahead.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: This can't be another one because the Minister has not fully answered my previous question. I was asking if one of these three would definitely be purchased, or if it was possible that any of these three might not be bought and you might have to seek elsewhere to get an aircraft. I was trying to get that answer. So that is not an extra supplementary, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The answer is that we have no agreement, or no holding agreement. Normally what happens is that a small deposit is put down and there is an agreement where they take it off the market until the balance of technical checks can be made. We do not have an agreement on any. So it is quite possible, in the market that we have now . . . and it is difficult to purchase an aircraft out there. That's hard to believe. Even though one goes out with money to purchase an aircraft, it is just not easy.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: It's not easy to buy a Cadillac Saville, but [inaudible].

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: That's true. But at least I kept my 1985 Cadillac. I am not going to sell that. But he is quite right, sir. I mean, it is possible that we would have to start over again looking at other aircraft.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, my final supplementary, sir. If that is the case, then, surely Cayman Airways cannot be serious about changing the colours of the aircraft if they might sell one.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I think one message that has come through loud and clear is that Sir Turtle is a very important part of Cayman Airways. And while the decision is the Board's I believe that the Member will see Sir Turtle— hopefully in an enhanced form, perhaps a bit larger even than it is now—continuing on.

On the painting, I should say this would not be done until the three-year routine painting for the aircraft came up when we would have had to repaint anyhow. So it would be a long distance away. But we learned a lot from the questionnaires that went out and the fora, the group questionnaires that went out in relation to this, and there seems to be a liking of the Turtle. I would think that Sir Turtle will remain.

QUESTION 204

No. 204: Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning what the total subsidy given to Cayman Airways Limited by the Cayman Islands Government will be during 1998.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning, before you answer the question, I would ask that you suspend Standing Order 23(7) and (8) so that Question Time can go beyond 11 o'clock.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 23 (7) & (8)

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Since one Honourable Member was referring to "we" this morning, I will put this motion. I am happy to move the suspension of the Standing Order for Question Time to continue beyond 11 o'clock.

The Speaker: The question is suspension of Standing Order 23 (7) and (8) to allow Question Time to continue beyond 11 o'clock. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 23 (7) & (8) SUSPENDED.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: During 1998, Cayman Airways Limited received a total of CI$4.6 million in subsidy payments. Four million dollars of this was a general operating subsidy and $600,000 was earmarked especially for advertising.

In 1998 it is estimated that Cayman Airways Limited will pay to the Government leasing companies a sum of CI$3.25 million for rental of the aircraft, together with maintenance reserves which, when offset, is a net subsidy of CI$1.35 million.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: I will ask the Minister a pointed question: To that Minister's knowledge, was any other subsidy given to Cayman Airways by the Cayman Islands Government in the year 1998 besides what is mentioned in the answer?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The answer is that there is no other subsidy. However, the Government is paying $1 million to Cayman Airways that will be used to pay debts that existed prior to 1992. The only other payment that the Member may be referring to is what was discussed earlier, which is the Civil Aviation debt. Once again, shares will be issued for the million dollars as well as for the Civil Aviation Authority debt. So there are payments going in, but in return Government will get shares for it. Those are all of the payments that I know of from Government to Cayman Airways.

I should perhaps point out that Government does owe Cayman Airways money too. So this goes both ways—both for mail, as far as I can remember, also for travel on Cayman Airways.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: The Minister just mentioned a very interesting word, "travel." I know there will be a substantive question, but can the Honourable Minister say what Government's arrangement is at present in regard to airline travel? Is there a fixed arrangement with any airline, including Cayman Airways, or does Government use whichever is more suitable for official Government travel?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I would hope on the routes Cayman Airways flies that government civil servants would have the loyalty to fly Cayman Airways and would not be going on other airlines. I can assure the honourable member that I fly only Cayman Airways, and I pay for my tickets when I go personally. The policy is that government should use Cayman Airways on all of its travel abroad where Cayman Airways flies.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister say what the relationship is in regard to travel arrangements when made by any Government department for official travel? Is it done through Cayman Airways, or does each department have the latitude to make its own arrangements even if it is using Cayman Airways to fly?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, if I may interrupt. I am sorry. Obviously, the Minister is a bit puzzled. Maybe I can reword it so that he will understand what I am trying to say a little bit better.

Let me put it bluntly. It is said that by having to book through Cayman Airways it costs Government in excess of $300,000 every year because of not having the latitude to book through a travel agent, or make direct arrangements with an airline. Cayman Airways' routes are limited, obviously. Much of the official travel done by Government officials extends beyond these routes. It is only natural that if there are options where savings can be realised that this should be so. I am told that this is not the case, and I am asking the Minister to say whether or not it is so.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: This is probably getting into Personnel matters, but I do not know whether the allegation that Government is losing $300,000 [is true] or not. I would ask that it be checked out. What would have to happen is that what is lost in one area would have to be looked at from the point of view that Cayman Airways is owned by Government. So, when Government pays Cayman Airways for a ticket that would otherwise have gone on American Airlines, for example, it is saving the full amount that is paid—whatever Cayman Airways gets net, not just the difference.

So I guess you would have to take what is paid and what is lost and offset it. But there is a person in Government, in Personnel, who deals with Government's bookings and there is a person in Cayman Airways who also deals with Government's bookings.

The most I can do is to ask the Personnel Department whether or not the statement is correct; that whether as a result of booking Cayman Airways and another airline—which I think is what the Member is saying—that as a result of bookings on multiple airlines where Cayman Airways is involved, a loss does arise to the extent of just booking on one airline straight through (which is what I think the Member is saying).

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: The Minister is partially correct. What I was asking about was the cost to Government having to make the entire booking through Cayman Airways. I do not believe that anyone has a problem with using Cayman Airways where Cayman Airways flies. The problem lies after getting off Cayman Airways. I just had to clear that up. So the question is not a matter of loyalty to Cayman Airways, the question is the methodology in making bookings. One could always instruct the travel agent to use Cayman Airways wherever Cayman Airways flies, but thereafter make whatever arrangement can best be made.

I can assure the Minister that there is the loss that I am talking about. And we talk about budgets? Those are the hidden things that make everything cost more. I am sorry I didn't put that in question form, but it needed clarification based on the answer given.

My question is, Would the Minister give an undertaking to ensure that if this is the case, that it be stopped?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The most I can give an undertaking on—since I have been referred to as an Undertaker this morning—is that I will check the matter out and see what is happening within these areas. But the fares of Cayman Airways to these gateways are by and large competitive. But you do get a difference at times. I am not saying American Airlines might not be lower than us sometimes, or that we are sometimes lower than American Airlines. But I think one has to remember that every dollar paid to Cayman Airways is money back to the Government.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: A final supplementary, and I hope that the answer will make it final. The Minister just said that we need to understand that any money paid to Cayman Airways is money paid to Government. If that is the statement the Minister made, would the Minister please explain that, because I certainly don't understand that.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Government owns Cayman Airways, and it is therefore the owner of whatever funds are paid in there, indirectly. In other words, a person who owns a company ultimately benefits from whatever the company makes. That is what I am saying.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, the final supplementary.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Is the Minister then telling the House that because any money paid to Cayman Airways is indirectly paid to Government we should fly Cayman Airways for $10 (for the sake of argument), even when we could get a flight by another airline for $1?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: That is an extreme case, but if it is Government's staff, in other words if it is civil servants, then that $1 saved would be $1 made. To quote a well-known phrase of Dr. Roy McTaggart's, "A penny saved is a penny made."

If it is Government staff, yes, they should fly Cayman Airways. And I would ask all people in Cayman to please fly Cayman Airways—it's your national carrier. We will always try to be competitive and we will always try to give very good service. Please fly us rather than putting money into a United States' airline that just goes back out of the country and does not benefit this. The $1 left here is better than $10 going out of the country and anybody who can't see the economic common sense of that really has a problem. A dollar spent in Cayman is better—

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: [inaudible interjection]

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: [addressing the First Elected Member for George Town] I am not talking to you. You keep out of this.

A dollar put in Cayman, and spent in Cayman is far better than $10 spent with a US company that goes out of the country and benefits Cayman nothing.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, the Minister never ceases to amaze me, sir. That is not what I asked. I asked if the Minister is telling the House that it is better for the House to pay $10 to Cayman Airways to fly, primarily because Cayman Airways indirectly benefits the Government, when they can pay $1 to a competing airline and fly the same route. The Minister, in his usual way, has twisted the question around, sir.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning. This is the final supplementary now.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The Member shouldn't be asking me hypothetical questions under the Standing Orders anyway, so he gets a hypothetical answer. And that is the answer that I wish to give. A dollar spent in this country is better than $10 spent in the United States or abroad because it does not benefit Caymanians in this country.

The Speaker: Moving on to question 205, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

The Speaker: Question 205.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I hope this doesn't mean that the Minister is now preaching socialistic economics!

QUESTION 205

No. 205: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning to provide a breakdown of the number of suspensions from the John Gray and George Hicks High Schools over the past school year giving the nature of the offence, gender of offender, age and length of suspension.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: There have been 254 suspensions involving 107 boys and 33 girls during the last school year. Of that number, ten boys were given long-term suspensions because of gang-style behaviours.

| George Hicks High School |                 |                 |
|--------------------------|-----------------|-----------------|
| Year 7 Age 11+           | 15 boys         | 2 girls         |
| Year 8 Age 12+           | 41 boys         | 11 girls        |
| Year 9 Age 13+           | 40 boys         | 20 girls.       |
| Total:            | 107 boys | 33 girls |

The ten boys on extended suspensions involved one Year 7 student; five Year 8 students, and four Year 9 students. All of these students were suspended on at least two occasions.

Below is a breakdown of the suspensions.

|                                |         |          |
|--------------------------------|---------|----------|
| Suspended on one occasion      | 51 boys | 26 girls |
| Suspended on two occasions     | 14 boys | 5 girls  |
| Suspended on three occasions   | 18 boys | 1 girl   |
| Suspended on four occasions    | 7 boys  | 1 girl   |
| Suspended on five occasions    | 3 boys  | No girls |
| Suspended for more than 5 days | 4 boys  | No girls |

Suspensions lasting more than 7 days were served by 10 boys. No girls were on extended suspensions.

| John Gray High School:(1) Suspension – Boys 1997-1998 |                 |
|-----------------------------------------------------------|-----------------|
| Year 1014+ years                                          | 48 boys         |
| Year 1115+ years                                          | 40 boys         |
| Year 1216+ years                                          | 17 boys         |
| Total:                                             | 105 boys |

Some of these boys were suspended on more than one occasion and consequently a total of 187 suspensions were imposed during the school year.

Nature of offences:

- ◆ Repeated misconduct/refusal to obey instructions
- ◆ Theft
- ◆ Fighting
- ◆ Abuse/threats to teachers
- ◆ Drug involvement
- ◆ Possession of offensive weapons

Length of suspensions imposed by school ranged from two to seven days. The Chief Education Officer imposed longer suspensions on five of the boys for drug involvement and serious assault.

Range: Two to seven days. Number of girls suspended, 48.

The Speaker: Is it the wish of the House that we suspend for a few minutes until we get photocopies of the answer, bearing in mind that we have to suspend proceedings at 11.45?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I can ask—

The Speaker: Do you think we can continue? Okay. The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say what strategies have been effected to deal with what he has described in the substantive answer as “gang-style” behaviour?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: There has been counselling within the school. We also have psychologists. We have access to psychiatrists. There is normally a panel of teachers including, where necessary, psychologists and psychiatrists who have a look at the behaviour of children and case by case come up with what is necessary in their opinion to assist the child to get back to a normal school life. Whether it is in the suspension unit or in the Alternative Education Unit, the aim is always to continue to assess and review the child with the aim of getting them back into the normal stream.

I would like to point out, however, that out of the average of the two schools (860-odd) 99% of the students are very good children. They are very obedient children, and I guess it is unfortunate that we do have a few that are subject to these suspensions or other problems within the school. I hope that this does not mar the 99%, or the 835 good children who are in the schools, because we do have very good children generally in Cayman.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Minister also tell the House whether this “gang-style” behaviour, as he has described it, is a phenomenon experienced in both high schools or is it limited to one high school which he mentioned.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I understand that it is in both schools on a limited basis. I should have added before that we have been working with the Social Services Department because most of the time the gang-style problems we have been facing arise outside of the schools. In fact, we have set up a group of advisers to specifically look at the gang-style problem that has arisen in the two schools.

The problem has to be attacked both from within the school as well as out in the society. No matter how much we do in the schools, as the Honourable Member knows, if the children go back to homes where the necessary discipline or the necessary love is not there these problems will continue. I think it has to be a joint effort by both education and social services, and at times also the health services, because some of these children are also ill, in trying to bring about a solution to the problems of these children.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker could the Minister say if he knows of any reason why this lack of discipline and love in the family does not exhibit itself in gang-style behaviour at the primary school level?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker I have not heard of it at primary school level. Unless the Member has information that I do not have it has been restricted to the two high schools as far as I know.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I was really asking the Minister why it exhibits itself at the high school if it doesn't exhibit itself at the primary school level. He is saying that the environment is responsible for the existence of this delinquent or gang-style behaviour. If they have the same environment at the primary school level why does it happen that we get this extreme exhibition of gang-style behaviour in these particular children at that particular stage?

Has the Minister come to the conclusion that it is, in fact, the home environment that is responsible, or does the school environment also play some role in the failure?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker it is obvious that the school, the home, and also the child's mental and physical ability play a part in this. I was not attempting to say that the school doesn't have a role to play, it does. And we have tried to fulfil that role. But as the Honourable Member knows, these problems are never simple; they are complex.

Each child has to be looked at individually. But, speaking generally, I think it is part home and it is part school. The environment the child is in away from home also plays a role in how the child goes. Sometimes a family can raise a child in a very Christian way; yet the child at a later stage may not turn out to be as good as one would have expected. This is why I stress that there is a panel that looks at each child individually and tries to find out where the problems arise and what are the best solutions.

But I would like to stress again sir—and this was borne out—we invited all Members to the George Hicks High School. When you look at 400 children there and you see them singing, and performing skits, you realise Cayman has a lot to thank God for. We have some very good children. The vast majority are good. Unfortunately the press will only put in what one or two out of 852 . . . and this is unfortunate.

The press was not there the morning that we were at the George Hicks School. It would have been good if they had been there. I bet if there had been a fight, everybody would have been across there to headline things. So I am criticising the press, but I am also asking the press to please try to put forward some of the good things.

I guess I should not be criticising them today because yesterday they printed an extremely good editorial. But I am asking them to please try to put forward in the press, when I say that I mean all media—the radio, the television, the newspaper, the magazines—please try to put forward the 99% of good children's behaviour, the good things they do. We have a lot of good children in those schools and we have to thank God for that. Please don't let the six or eight or ten out of 860 or 880 children really hurt the character or taint the schools.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Would the Honourable Minister say if any action has been taken as recommended on a motion that was moved on the adjournment of this House, I think at the last sitting, to set up a task force to look at the gang related problems at our schools?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: A committee has been put together which is comprised of education, social services, and medical, to look at this gang area. It is the equivalent of a task force, which will look specifically at the gang problems. I am sorry if I didn't convey that earlier. I will have to get particulars, as it has only recently been done.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Would the Honourable Minister say if it is the intention of the Education Department to carry out a study in the primary schools to see if this problem starts in the primary school level and is then taken to the middle and high school level?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The most I can say on that is that I will put this question to both the Chief Education Officer and my Permanent Secretary and ask them whether they feel it should be done. If they feel it should be done then, by all means, we will do this.

We have extended, mainly through the Lighthouse School, a unit that actually begins with children who may have a problem beginning from about 12, 18 months of age, as the Member knows. They visit the homes of approximately 80. The new Lighthouse School will move that unit from where it is at the old buildings at the George Town Primary School to the Lighthouse School area so that the full unit will be together.

But the Member is quite right, these problems may be beginning earlier, and I will do what I can to do that.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: One last supplementary, Mr. Speaker. And I guess this is because I do not have the answer to the question before me. Could the Honourable Minister tell me how many of those students they have had problems with in his answer are girls?

The Speaker: Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: In the George Hicks School only 33 girls had problems and 107 boys. I do apologise for not having this answer. I did offer it, as the Member knows, to the person who asked the question. I am not certain why it is not here but, obviously, I am responsible for it, and I apologise. There were 105 boys in John Gray and 48 girls. So it is literally half the number of girls to boys.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? If not, maybe this would be an appropriate time for us to suspend proceedings until 2:15.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.35 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.20 PM

The Speaker: Proceedings are resumed. Item number 4 on today's Order Paper, Government Business, Bills, Continuation of Second Reading, Debate on the Appropriation (1999) Bill, 1998. The Third Elected Member for George Town.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

BILLS

SECOND READING

THE APPROPRIATION (1999) BILL, 1998

DEBATE ON THE BUDGET ADDRESS DELIVERED BY THE HONOURABLE THIRD OFFICIAL MEMBER
ON MONDAY, 16TH NOVEMBER 1998

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Before making my contribution to the 1999 Budget I wish to take this opportunity to join in thanking the Minister's Association for the very inspiring National Day of Prayer and Thanksgiving Service held in these hollowed halls.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Hear, hear!

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I trust that we will each resolve to concentrate more on good and sound debate, and less on what we usually term 'pounding up' our colleagues.

I would like to take an extract from a piece read today by one of the ministers entitled, "National Prayer of Consecration" and preface my remarks with these few words. It reads, "We remove ourselves from the throne of our lives, repudiating the god of self, and enthroning you, O Lord our God, who is and was, and who is to come, the Almighty." And it continues, "God of our life, take control of our minds, the foundation of our thoughts; our hearts, seat of emotion, and our actions. May we be motivated by love for God and neighbour, and in the urgency of the hour cast off all restraints as we move forward under the leadership of your Holy Spirit to fulfil the great commission of Christ in our generation through the power and grace of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ."

I don't want to appear to be preaching but I believe that this is so very important that it is worth repeating and that we should each try to emulate those wise sentiments in our own personal lives.

During my debate I will be calling on the Honourable Ministers and Members of Government to consider deleting in full the total amount of increase that has been placed on school fees and book rentals. I trust that those Honourable Members and Ministers will see fit to do so, and I trust that when I get to the subject I will be able to comment and perhaps justify that suggestion in more detail.

First, I wish to extend my sincere congratulations to the Honourable Financial Secretary, the Third Official Member, on his fine presentation of the Budget Address—that is, on the original 1999 Budget—and, equally, to the Honourable Minister for Tourism for his presentation of a more realistic 1999 revised Budget. I must say that whilst I admire the Honourable Minister's intestinal fortitude to speak out as he did, I must hasten to question whether or not he was a party to the preparation of the 1999 Budget.

However, in fairness, I can fully understand the difficulties facing him, having only recently been allocated the responsibility for roads and other subjects with insufficient funds to carry out the necessary work. But, my understanding of this predicament notwithstanding, I trust that in our national interest—as opposed to our portfolio or parochial interest—we will think more in terms of the needs of the country regardless of which Minister is personally responsible for a subject. In other words, if it is necessary for the current minister of roads to have additional funds for construction of roads etc., then this same need should have been quite evident when the former minister held the responsibility for roads. One has to wonder why, working as a Government, this matter did not receive more attention.

I have to also question where, for example, is the National Roads Plan that was promised to this House many, many months ago: Another indication of the dire lack of planning. This apparent lack of cohesiveness reflects very badly on the Government and suggests that there may be a serious division within the ranks of the elected Executive Council. Further, I am very, very concerned with the obvious lack of overall planning and prioritisation within Government as a whole.

That said, I also wish to associate myself with the very kind sentiments and good wishes expressed by the Honourable Third Official Member during his Budget Address to the people of Honduras and Nicaragua and indeed the other countries ravaged by Hurricane Mitch. My particular best wishes are also extended to the people of the Bay Islands, many of whom have very, very close Caymanian connections.

I am told that five of the most powerful hurricanes to come through the Caribbean in the past 100 years came within very close proximity of the Cayman Islands, with the 1932 Hurricane perhaps being the most damaging to these islands. The point of that information is to remind us of how very grateful we should be for the protecting hands of God in sparing us from the devastating effects that these very powerful hurricanes would have had on these three small islands.

In the introductory section of the Financial Secretary's Budget Address he mentioned the overall progress in the Cayman Islands. I wish to express my deep disappointment at the apparent lack of progress with preliminary matters relating to the Ritz Carlton. I was one of those members who supported this project—amid many objections—because I felt, and I still feel, that it will be good for our people in the long term. The economic benefits could be enormous, but I am most concerned over the unexplained delay in the payment of the $4 million deposit which should have been paid to this Government on entering into the agreement on the 31st October 1998.

I feel that it is only right that this Honourable House and, indeed, the people of these islands, be made aware of the legal status of this project. It would be interesting to know whether any provision was made in the agreement for this unexplained delay. Perhaps the Honourable Third Official Member, or maybe some other Member, could comment on this when I sit down.

Another point I wish to touch on during my debate is what I see as my role as a member of the Opposition, and what role an Opposition member should properly play in contributing to this debate, as well as in future debates coming before this Honourable House. Is it my role to mainly oppose for the sake of opposition? Or, instead, to offer constructive but pointed criticism? I propose to be offering some constructive criticism during my debate.

Also, I wish to make it clear that I appreciate each Member of this Honourable House has his or her own individual style of dealing with the issues that come before this Honourable House. Accordingly, I personally would be very hesitant to criticise anyone because he or she does not necessarily adopt my style of presenting views. I personally respect the fact that we each have our individual way of representing our people. That is as it should be.

During what I often refer to as my rookie days in this House, from 1984 to 1988, I was often chided for being too vociferous, and perhaps with much justification. I have matured not only physically, but hopefully mentally and politically, and I am much happier with the more level-headed approach that I now take in this Honourable House.

I like to feel that my behaviour in this House is influenced not only by my political maturation, but, indeed, by my previous experience as a Member of Executive Council and also my experience within the senior roles I filled in Government, as Deputy Financial Secretary and also as a Permanent Secretary for Health and Education. This experience has served me well. I believe that the benefits are reflected in my representation of my people in and out of this Honourable House.

On the role of the Opposition, I feel that the Opposition—as the alternative Government—must reflect credibility and therefore have a certain level of responsibility for maintaining good government. In this connection, it is the responsibility of the Opposition to give attention to the development and implementation of policies. This should also be reflected in contributions to the various issues brought to this Honourable House by any Government—regardless of which Government that is—bearing in mind that as the alternative Government we could indeed be sitting in those hot seats within the very near future.

In closing on this particular point, I am of the view that opposition should be constructive and not merely criticising for the sake of criticism. Please understand that I am not levelling criticism at any particular individual, I am merely stating my personal position.

As in the past, I will confine most of my contribution on the Budget to the state of the country's public finances. As a professional accountant with professional experience, I feel that I am well qualified to speak on this very important subject. However, before dealing with the full text of this subject, I wish to return for a short while to the contribution made by the Honourable Minister for Tourism, and, in doing so, to congratulate him for his presentation of a more realistic 1999 Budget.

It was most surprising to me, especially having had the experience of preparing Government Budgets in the past, to see that same deficit Budget (which reflected a deficit of $122 million, or there about) transformed miraculously within a very short time—perhaps a week—into a surplus position. That is one of the reasons why I must refer to this 1999 Budget, as I have done with past Budgets, as an unrealistic Budget. At least the revised Budget presented by the Honourable Minister for Tourism is a more realistic Budget.

I have heard blame thrown all around the place in the debates on past Budgets. I hope that I do not hear anymore blame thrown at the Financial Secretary that this is 'his' Budget. This has to be the National Team's Budget—because not only was it accepted in its original form, but now it has been revised with their blessings!

During the introduction to the Budget Address, the Honourable Financial Secretary stated, and I quote, "Today we take pride in being one of the world's largest financial centres, and in maintaining a high quality, up-scale tourism industry. Our people enjoy a high standard of living . . ." While I do not have any major differences with those sentiments, I nonetheless wish to draw a distinction between an apparent high standard of living and the quality of life one enjoys, as both should be inextricably linked together. One's standard of living must include the amenities and conveniences of life that constitute these same standards in other countries.

The infrastructure development of these islands is a key factor in determining the standard of living, and thus the quality of life our people enjoy. Basic examples of a good infrastructure development are good roads, good and reliable water supply, a reliable and good sewage system, a good educational system and facilities, etc. These should be available to all of our people. We have to be careful of how we boast of such a high standard of living when many of these amenities may be lacking or non-existent.

It is against this background that I cannot, in good conscience and in the interest of my people, object totally to all that has been contained in the capital package suggested by the Honourable Minister for Tourism during his debate on the Budget.

The Honourable Minister for Tourism is recommending a total capital package of $30 million to cover the necessary capital needs during 1999 with a $54 million package spread over a total of three years, that is, 1999 to year 2001. The Honourable Financial Secretary stated in his Budget Address that, after taking into consideration loan repayments of $11.4 million and total loan receipts of $20.6 million during 1998, total public debt is expected to rise to $92.1 million by year end 1998. He went on to say that even though the total value of outstanding loans has risen over the year, that total public debt service (that is, principal and interest) remains at 7.2% of the 1998 forecasted recurrent revenue, which is below the 10% upper limit which has been established by Government.

This information is crucial to the decision that I will take in regard to the public debt position of Government. I am well aware that this percentage of debt servicing is more important to good government than comparative statistics of the actual dollar increases of the public debt. My question is, Will the debt servicing on the total $30 million package being suggested by the Honourable Minister for Tourism for 1999 (and which, it is my understanding, includes the $19 million already in the Budget) exceed that 10% upper limit established by Government?

Just to quickly comment on that, I am told that the revised figure shows that the ratio is now about the same, and maybe a fraction lower when all matters are taken into consideration. We were told by the Honourable Minister of Tourism (and former Financial Secretary) that there would be very little if any change to that 7.2%. I wanted to repeat that.

Again, out of caution, and not to doubt the Honourable Minister for Tourism (a gentleman for whom I have a great deal of respect), I would wish for the Third Official Member, the Honourable Financial Secretary, to confirm this is the position during his winding-up debate. If the total debt ratio will now, even with the $30 million package, be only 7.2% of the total recurrent expenditure, then my position will have to be much different than if this were not the case.

If the figures that we have received are correct, then I feel that the members of this Honourable House should carefully examine the new capital package and the proposals that have been circulated by the Honourable Minister of Tourism. Further, I think that we would be doing not only an injustice to ourselves but also to our constituents and the country as a whole if we did not take careful note of those items that have been mentioned for the individual constituencies and districts.

I have had the opportunity to briefly examine the package, though not in detail, and in particular those related to George Town. I cannot in good conscience oppose all of the projects suggested for my district. I know that they are very badly needed. But I do appreciate that these expenditures will have to be very carefully prioritised. It will be very interesting to see what position individual members take on the suggestion when, on the one hand, we are saying we need certain things done for our people, but, on the other hand, we must appreciate that for us to get those things done it is going to cost money.

My support of this new capital package will depend on the level of debt service and burden that will be placed on the people of these islands—not necessarily on the amount of the debt. Let me explain that. In the same way that over the past ten years the budget of this country has almost doubled, we will have to appreciate that the public debt of the country, the actual amount, will increase especially in the absence of certain enhancement revenues that we are reluctant to include in the Budget. Mr. Speaker, I will deal with that in more detail as I move on.

Now I would like to have a little closer look at the state of our public finances. Before doing so, I wish to comment on the budgetary structure of these islands and to say that no amount of reform initiative will have any major impact on the financial operations of these islands in the absence of a serious look at the revenue structure of the country. For example, I have heard a lot about accrual accounting from a lot of people who probably don't even understand what that means. I can say as a professional accountant that accrual accounting is just a principle of accounting; it is just a method used, just like cash accounting. It doesn't tell you exactly how the funds will be managed. It is a historical thing.

What we need in addition to accrual accounting is for Government to say that these are the principles we have to follow. This is what we need to do to be able to take care of our recurrent and capital expenditure. And in order for us to do this we will have to restructure the whole revenue system. I am not here to suggest what type of restructuring will be necessary. I will suggest later on in my debate that perhaps the Honourable Financial Secretary will consider the appointment of a think-tank whose major job will be to look seriously at the revenue structure of Government. And to suggest that the majority of those members should be people who are leading people within their own profession within the private sector.

The current system that we are using is antiquated. We know that the system of revenue enhancement being used today is the most regressive form of revenue enhancement method. It hits hardest on those who can least afford it—the people paying import duties regardless of their salaries. A clerk making a $1000 per month and a senior executive making $20,000 per month go to the same supermarket to buy goods. It is time that we got away from this regressiveness and looked more widely to find ways and means of financing necessary projects in the Cayman Islands without squeezing our people to death.

There are other ways, and before anybody here thinks that I am talking about income tax, let me make it quite clear that I am not speaking about income tax. There are other ways we can get revenue for this country without having to put it on things like school books and other essentials, school fees and so on. That is the most simplistic of ways, and it seems to me that it was very rushed.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Hear, hear!

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: No time was taken to fully consider the impact of these increases.

On the question of the state of our public finances, I wish to refer to Table 1 of the 1999 Estimates of Revenue and Expenditure. It can easily be seen that had it not been for borrowings Government would not have been in a position to balance the Budget. This has been the situation for a number of years.

What is more disappointing is that three of the funds we had hoped would have been left to accumulate some money in were completely stripped. The Environmental Protection Fund should not have been gutted: Yet, of the $3.95 million there, $2 million was taken from it. That $2 million should have been specifically earmarked for the Environmental Impact Study that we have been talking about for so long. I can understand funds being taken from the Infrastructure Development for the roads, because the roads are an essential part of our infrastructure. But I find it difficult to accept that $2 million should have been transferred from the Environmental Protection Fund.

We see that in order to obtain a surplus position of $70,000, $19,150,000 had to be borrowed. This is not the only time that this has been done. I would like to refer you to the period of 1988 to 1992, which was perhaps one of the worst global recessions in recent decades.

During that period, the Government of the day had the foresight and good management so that our surplus position was higher than during a period of one of the highest economic boom periods the world has seen, and that is during the past five to six years. I will deal with the general reserves in a minute, but just to deal with this. . . when I became Minister (or "Member" as it was called then) of Communications and Works in 1988, I had to make some very unpopular, but what I thought were good, decisions for the country. In 1988 the deficit was $1.4 million. In 1989 we had a deficit of $600,000. Then, as the recession got worse in 1990, it went up to $14.9 million. In 1991 it was $15.4 million, and because of some very creative accounting on the part of my good friend, the Honourable Minister for Education, it then jumped to $21.7 million.

Alas, we are in perhaps the biggest economic boom period this world has seen in a long time, even though I will mention later on the problems globally which seem to be moving towards a recession. But we are not affected by Taiwan and Indonesia and those countries. We have been more directly affected by what occurs in the United States. And the basic fundamentals of the economy in the United States have been very good for the past five years. We have been the happy recipients of that good fortune.

It is not because of any sort of economic policies that we have done. We are not, for instance, like Alan Greenspan who decides to lower interest rates to boost the economy. We don't have that kind of economical mechanism in the Cayman Islands. We are just the happy recipients of what happened through external forces, and we have been getting some very positive external assistance. But what have we done with it?

In 1997, the deficit position of this Government was $27.6 million—much higher than any other period since 1984. In 1998 it is forecasted to be $21.6 million, which is equivalent to the worst period that we had during the last recession. The situation is not good. But it cannot be any better when you find that your recurrent expenditure is constantly outpacing your recurrent revenue. When I speak of recurrent I include statutory expenditure because this is something that must be paid. There is no choice.

For instance, in 1992, when the Government took over, there was an increased growth in revenue of 7%, but 12% in recurrent expenditure. In 1993, there was an increased growth in revenue, but also an equal increased growth in expenditure. Then you come to 1995, an increased growth of 15%, but 20% in expenditure. And then in this year, there is an increased growth of 14%, but 17% in expenditure. When you find that kind of disparity then the money has got to come from somewhere. This is the reason why Government has had to borrow, and borrow, and borrow.

The surplus position shown at the end of 1999 is a serious indictment on this Government. But, worse still, if a lot of the expense now being kept on an advance account—such as overseas medical cases, which I believe is some $12 million, or perhaps a little less now—had been written off the way it should be, then this small surplus would be reflected as a major deficit. While I do not intend to go into details on that, the Government must have that same intestinal fortitude to do what is right. If the people cannot pay this money it should be written off by Government.

I hope that the day will never come when any of our people are denied good medical attention because they cannot pay for it. God knows they are paying enough right now in health insurance. So there should be no reason why they should be denied proper medical assistance.

Now, Mr. Speaker, what is the general reserve position of this country? The general reserve is in a very sad situation. During the presentation of the Budget Address the Honourable Financial Secretary gave some very interesting and revealing information under the caption, "General Reserve Fund." He said, and I quote, "Mr Speaker, at the beginning of 1998 the General Reserve Fund balance stood at $9.0 million. This balance is expected to rise to approximately $10.5 million by year-end 1998 as a result of interest earnings and a budgeted inflow of $1.0 million from general revenue."

That tells me that by the end of this year our general reserve position should be around $10.5 million. But with a forecasted expenditure figure for 1998 (expenditure to include statutory expenditure of $233 million) that $10.5 million could serve only for approximately two weeks. With all of this economic boom, we have been able to put aside only enough money in our general reserves to carry this country through for approximately two weeks! That is a very terrible indictment on the good management and stewardship of this Government. They need some help, Mr. Speaker!

I mentioned earlier that the actual figure on the public debt is not really of as much concern to me at this point in time as is the ability of the Government of our country to service the debts that we have to incur. So, even with the forecasted $92.1 million at the end of 1998, to which will be added whatever amount agreed upon during Finance Committee—as long as we are able to comfortably service that debt and it is expenditure in the interest of our people—then I am prepared to sit down with the Government and look at it.

Having had a look at the expenses of Government, I think it is quite clear that serious attention needs to be placed on the overall stewardship and management of our finances, which will, of course, include prioritisation. Between 1993 to-date—and I am taking these figures from Appendix 8 giving the Financial Summary from 1984 to 1997 (it was circulated by the Honourable Financial Secretary), we would have borrowed over $90 million. That is not including the amounts for 1999.

I now wish to draw the attention of this Honourable House to the revenue enhancement measures. Whilst I understand the predicament of Government, I had expected that more consideration would have been given to some of the less fortunate. I hate to use the word 'little people' because a number of my colleagues like to put a spin on that to make it sound like it is a derogatory remark. But I am really referring to those on the lower rung of the economic ladder. Not 'little' at all as far as I am concerned. I believe that most of them know that by the way I treat them—I treat them like kings and queens. I don't treat them as if they are any less than the millionaires in this country.

If I were to stand here and say that I have a lot of sympathy for the duties on alcoholic beverages and cigarettes, I would be smothering my conscience. I have a lot of friends that smoke. I wish they didn't. I have a very good friend who just died. It is believed that much of his problem might have come from alcoholic beverages and other things. But nobody that has ever been addicted to smoking, or drugs, or who drinks alcohol can say that there is any virtue in it. It is a very bad habit when one cannot get through the day without smoking two packs of cigarettes, or drinking a bottle of gin, vodka, or worse still, white rum. Some of these people are hooked on this.

And when I hear politicians criticising increases just to get a few votes, that bothers me. I would rather take ten dollars and give it to them to buy a plate of food than to buy two drinks in a barroom. If I lose votes because I do not support the alcohol and tobacco habit, then so be it. But I would have spoken my conscience.

I agree with the Honourable Financial Secretary. That this is one way, perhaps, of cutting this dreadful habit—even though it is self-defeating for him. I say self-defeating because if he cures too many of them then he won't get the import duty he is expecting because he won't be selling the cigarettes.

In any country of the world this is normally referred to as a "sin tax." So let us not smother our consciences just because we hope it is the thing that will cause us to be politically popular. I do not support the use of tobacco and alcohol especially when it is used to the extent where it is going to hurt families. Children go without food just because their fathers and mothers can't do without a smoke or a drink.

On item 2 dealing with school fees, I have already spoken to individual elected members of the Executive Council, and I have asked them to consider deleting the increases on these school fees, and also on the school-book rental fees. Even though the school fees refer to non-Caymanian children, I think it is unfair for us to single them out to bear the brunt of this increase. Many of those people have been living in these islands for many years, and they should be treated with more respect. It is as if we are discriminating against them. On the one hand we are building an educational system so that all Caymanians and residents can have the benefit of a good education and, on the other hand, we are increasing the fees to such an extent that mothers and fathers will be forced to keep their children at home.

Without revealing the source of the information, I will say that I have been reliably informed that the amount of revenue from the rental of schoolbooks is something like $246,000. I feel that in view of the fact that the Financial Secretary factored into his budget the new revenue measures would total something like $11.8 million—and it now seems that it will be more like $12.8 million—there is no reason why that $246,000 cannot be adjusted against that revised increase of $1 million.

I see no reason why this amount cannot be re-considered. I think that the Government would go down looking very good indeed if it could show that it is thoughtful enough to reconsider the situation. Not only is it going to hurt the foreigners living amongst us—who should be treated with some respect and should not be discriminated against—but it is also going to hurt our own people. We might say what is $10? $50? Or what is $100? Let me tell you, when you are paying $5 from a measly amount each month, whether it is on an annual basis or not, and it jumps to $50—almost 1000%—then it means a lot. For somebody that does not have it, one dollar means a lot, especially if she has four or five children to look after. The Government would certainly go down very highly if it re-considered this amount.

I think it would be very thoughtful of Government to re-consider this increase because it will not affect the Budget that has been presented by the Honourable Financial Secretary. I would like to repeat again, because in his Budget speech he mentioned the amount of $11.8 million he had factored into the Budget, it is my understanding that the revised position on that is more like $12.8 million. So, you are looking at a difference there of $1 million, if you have to adjust three or four hundred thousand dollars against it.

I trust that the Honourable Members of Executive Council would go along with me in deleting the increases on school fees for non-Caymanian children because it was not increased for Caymanian children—only non-Caymanian children—and also the school book rental fees that will apply equally to all children.

On the question of Trade and Business Licenses, there are some people I know, especially the smaller people (and I have to be careful again how I say that, but I mean the smaller business people) that will be hurt by this increase. Today I was speaking to one such person and she told me that her business has never been so slow. I said, "You've got to be joking, this is a boom period." She said that a lot of people that used to buy from her are now getting visas and going to the United States and buying their own stuff. So things are bad.

We have to consider all of this, and I would be happy if that particular point was taken into consideration. The barbers, the hairdressers, the people that have a little shop in their homes, these are the people that are going to be hurt. I would be happy to sit with Government and recommend some of the areas that I feel would be more equitable for extracting the necessary revenue. I hope that I will be given that opportunity.

I am not going to go through all of these because I believe that some of them are well justified—areas such as the garbage fees. I don't think that we could ask for a better service than what we are receiving, but the cost that we have to pay is sometimes referred to as most unrealistic. It is my intention to go through this in further detail during Finance Committee, but I will not be going through all the details in regard to the revenue measures on each item.

Mr. Speaker, because some of these items are justified and some are not I did not take the precipitous action personally to have voted against these measures. (I am talking about myself. It would have been precipitous for me to do it.) That is why I abstained from voting until I could have time to study the measures. Even though I was criticised for abstaining, I regard myself as a fairly intelligent person and I have some amount of experience in this House, and when I take an action it is usually well thought out.

Now that I have had more time to study these measures, I must say that whilst I am very concerned about the structure of Government and, in particular, about what is going to happen in future years with any future Government—regardless of who comprises that Government—I am nonetheless supportive of certain areas. I realise that it is my duty as a representative to ensure that I do my part in presenting myself as an Opposition member in a sensible and creditable position.

That said, Mr. Speaker, it is nonetheless my view that these measures were very hurriedly drawn up. Substantiating the view that I have held for many years—and which is shared by many of my colleagues—that this Government in certain areas as is reflected in this Budget appears to be operating under crisis management rather than through carefully planned objectives.

When one speaks in this House it is recorded in the Hansards, and one has to be very careful as one's word may come back to haunt one. Whilst I do not intend to spend a lot of time on the indiscretions of my good friend the Minister of Education, as recorded in the 1991 Hansard—during the time that I was Minister, and during the time he took pleasure in making my life miserable—he used to look across at me Mr. Speaker and say, "You and I go back a long way, you know, Linford"; and in the same breath he used to pepper me to death. I wonder what he would have done if we hadn't gone back a long way.

But I would be remiss in my duties if I did not refer to certain statements made by that good Minister on 27 November 1991. I don't mind telling you, Mr. Speaker, that every night when I went to bed I prayed for you, because you were the only one who gave us a majority! So I used to pray for you to come out and keep us alive.

[Laughter]

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Our words often come back to haunt us. During the year before election—a year that you get a lot of politics being played just like you will find it next year—the Minister . . . I really don't have anything against him, he knows that. The Minister really out did himself. And this had to do with the same revenue package that is before us today, even though we did not go as far as to tax the children in the schools.

But, reading from page 1224 of the 1991 Hansard, Volume III, he said, inter alia, "The increase on liquor and cigarettes, while it perhaps is one of the easier areas to put taxes and import duties on, it has an indirect impact that has to be looked at carefully by Members of the Legislative Assembly.

"Yes," he said, "it is perhaps justifiable, more justifiable than others. But as has been said from time to time in this House, in different sessions, a person who drinks normally, is going to go out and buy his bottle of liquor or cigarettes, whatever, and the ultimate hurt is on the children and the wife who get less of the income. That is a reality. Not a nice one but it is." Mr. Speaker, I agree with him on that but the same thing applies today.

He also spoke about the impact on tourism. I am not going to read all of it, but I couldn't let the opportunity pass without reading this one. He said, "A new Head that the Member for Communication and Works [that was myself at the time] touted as being the brainchild of this Government was revenue of $2.5 million from Cable and Wireless." All I am going to say about that is that this was the revenue the Government received when Cable and Wireless renewed their contract. They were paying this Government nothing. And I made it quite clear to them that we would not renew it unless they had agreed to pay a license fee. And that license fee was something like 6% of gross revenue or 20% of net, something like that, whichever was the higher. At that time it was estimated to be $2.5 million.

But guess what. If you look in the estimates this year, $10.5 million will come from that same source—from Cable and Wireless revenue. It doesn't seem to have been such a bad idea. And it would be interesting to know how much they have collected since they came to power some six years ago.

The Honourable Minister also chided Government for increasing the taxes on companies, etc. That was one of the areas that was hit hardest in this package. I think the crowning statement of all those nasty little remarks he made about the person he said was his friend, was when he said, "This heavy amount of taxes has arisen because the Government has been incompetent."

I will not say too much more on this. I will leave that good Minister to his conscience, and the listening public to decide what is the true meaning of incompetence.

As mentioned, the $10.5 million included in the 1999 Budget is something like 400% more than it was in the 1992 Budget. Much more! There is an old saying, "What goes around, comes around." But in this particular case it would seem to be in much bigger proportions.

Mr. Speaker, in the event that the Honourable Minister would like to make reference to what I said about the $10.5 million, it is on page 4 of the Budget, and the Item is 63-020.

Where do we go from here? What does the future hold for these islands? Is the future as rosy as it is painted to be? I really do not think so. I am not going to go into some of the external pressures that are being brought against the Cayman Islands through various initiatives being concocted by OECD, G-7, and other powerful areas. I am not going to do that at this point because of the delicacy of the negotiations now underway. I would not wish to give the impression one way or the other of the status of those negotiations; only to say that I congratulate each Member of the consultative committee that has been assisting the Honourable Financial Secretary, and him, in particular, for his good leadership in this particular area and to join him in saying that I feel that there will be victory at the end.

The Honourable Financial Secretary in presenting the Budget asked a crucial question. He said, and I quote, "With such an impressive past, the question that comes to mind is: can we continue to be successful in the future?" And he went on to say, and I quote, "The short answer to this question is 'yes.'" Mr. Speaker for the sake of this country I really and sincerely hope that he is correct. I believe that he is, but the truth is that the same global prices which he eluded to could have a negative impact on the Cayman Islands economy. And this is not a contradiction to what I said earlier when I said that the direct impacts come from the United States. We could get an indirect whiplash in the Cayman Islands in that if the global situation worsens in Asia, and perhaps in Central and South America, and then Europe, it will have a direct effect on the United States.

The United States will have to continue to find a trading partner to keep it profitable and keep a positive trade balance. If that is not the case then the United States will start feeling the pinch. This is one of the reasons why the President of the United States has been visiting Japan and other places to try to boost the economies in those countries. It is in the national interest of the United States that the rest of the world is as buoyant as possible.

The global situation does not look good. It has been referred to in the Economist and Time magazine. Any reputable financial magazine will tell you that globally there appears to be a meltdown on the way. This is why I am questioning the optimism that seems to be exuding. Whilst I do not want to be walking around expressing negative thoughts, because this can be bad for the country also, I would hate for us to move away from the realism of what is actually happening around us.

How have we been preparing for this rainy day? I am not questioning our reserves, but I would like to see more concerted effort being made to bring our reserve position to the three-month level that has been set by this Government. If this were done our reserves would be looking more like fifty to sixty million dollars, and not ten million dollars.

As mentioned earlier, it is my intention to deal with the expenditures of this country in the 1999 Budget in far greater detail than would either be desirable or possible during my contribution to this debate. I will be looking in detail at the recurrent side of Government expenditure because the size of certain sections of Government has long been of concern to me, as well as the recurrent cost attached to those sections.

To say that those recurrent costs can be cut back is sometimes easier said than done. I have heard a number of people saying cut back on the Civil Service. What they don't realise is that many of their own people will be put out of a job and may have to be subsidised. Thus, in the long run, it does not prove to be an effective cut of expenditure, or savings.

That said, it is a basic principle of accounting that in order to increase the bottom line there are two or three basic things that can be done: 1) is to increase your revenue; 2) is to cut your expenditure; and 3) is a combination of both. In order for us to start seriously looking at the financial structure then some serious, and perhaps unpleasant, decisions may have to be made.

I trust that the Financial Secretary will find it possible to accept the recommendations and suggestions that a think tank can look into the whole structure of our revenue base. This year we were able to consider another revenue enhancement package, but can we do it next year or the year to come? How far are we going to take this? How much can the people bear? Such a think tank should be equipped with a term of reference to look specifically at the whole structure of Government's revenues and expenditures, and determine what effect that the present level of taxation or revenue analysis measure is having on the people; and, based on that, come up with a system that will be more acceptable and more equitable, a fairer system to our people. I think that this should be done without delay. We should not wait until a month, or three weeks, or four weeks, or five weeks before the next budget, it should be done right away.

As mentioned earlier, it should be comprised of some of our brightest brains in Government. It could be headed by some of our economists and other people, some of our financial people. We have some bright people in Government. But it should also have some of the leading people from the private sector.

I can only trust and pray that the good Lord will continue to bless these islands, guide and direct us in all that we do. And I trust that in my contribution to this debate I have been as fair as I can be. I have not tried to ridicule the Government, but I have tried to be as factual and as pointed as I could be in assisting them in trying to preserve and maintain good Government. I trust, therefore, that the Honourable Government will take these points into consideration. Thank you.

The Speaker: We shall suspend for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.28 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed.

I would entertain a motion for the suspension of Standing Order 10(2) in order that we can continue beyond the hour of 4.30. The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 10(2)

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker I am pleased to move the suspension of Standing Order 10(2) to allow the debate on the Budget Address to continue.

The Speaker: I should put the question. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. Proceedings will continue.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 10(2) SUSPENDED.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Miss Heather Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I rise to offer my contribution to the 1999 Budget Address delivered by the Financial Secretary, the Honourable Third Official Member, on Monday, November 16. But before I begin, allow me a moment to also thank the Cayman Ministers' Association for having a National Day of Prayer and Thanksgiving here in the Legislative Assembly. I am sure this afternoon a lot of us feel very uplifted after an inspiring hour of song and prayer.

I will first begin my contribution by saying that I too must join in with the Honourable Financial Secretary and offer my deepest sympathy to all those people in Honduras and Nicaragua who unfortunately suffered so much destruction and loss of life caused by Hurricane Mitch. Yes, once again this wonderful little place that we call paradise was spared. We have so much to be thankful for and I trust that many prayers and thanksgiving went up to Almighty God.

As the Honourable Financial Secretary mentioned in the Budget Address, and I quote, "As we look back over the past decade and take stock of our present situation there is so much of which we have to be proud. Our achievements have been truly outstanding."

Because of these achievements we here in the Cayman Islands find ourselves in a financial position to offer assistance to those in need here, and in our neighbouring countries. Amidst the many problems world wide, the people of the Cayman Islands have once again displayed their generosity and have come forward and provided food, clothing, medicine and building supplies to the people of Honduras.

Although no lives were lost here in the Cayman Islands, the lives of several persons in my district and other parts of the island were affected by flooding from both rainwater and saltwater damage. I am very happy to see that there is a budgetary allocation for an engineering study to be carried out with a view to preventing any further flood damage to the surrounding homes and yards.

On behalf of my constituents, I would like to take this opportunity to thank the Executive Council for taking the time to tour with me and see firsthand the areas in Savannah and Newlands that were badly affected.

I was especially pleased to hear the stand the Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport took on Monday. Like him, it is also my view that priorities must not only be in respect of recurrent expenditure but in the area of capital projects as well. I was particularly impressed by his move to improve the various transportation issues that we are facing here today in Cayman.

As mentioned by the Honourable Minister, there are a number of roads that need urgent attention. Not only are we faced with repairs and the maintenance of existing roads but from traffic congestion morning, noon and night. New roads corridors need to be identified and new roads constructed.

In the Honourable Financial Secretary's address, he indicated that the Planning Department had approved some 676 planning applications for construction mainly in the George Town and Bodden Town areas. It is a well known fact that the district of Bodden Town is becoming the fastest growing district in these islands. Whilst we welcome planned development, this continues to contribute to the traffic congestion that we in the eastern districts face and experience on a daily basis.

To my constituents who have asked for road repairs within our district that have been badly affected by the recent rains—and those roads are Orchard Lane, Old Yard Lane, Lemon Road, Connolly Road and Star Apple Road. I would like to say to those constituents: You will get those roads repaired as soon as possible. Money has been allocated for these as well.

I am indeed happy to hear that the Government intends to construct the Crewe Road bypass and to put in place a third lane from Spotts to South Sound. I believe this will go a long way in alleviating the daily traffic back-ups. These two road projects have my full support.

Because of the importance of Tourism to the economy of these islands, we must do everything possible to improve the traffic flow on the West Bay Road as well. The Harquail extension, the Galleria Loop, and the roundabout will, in my view, also help to improve traffic not only for our visitors but our Caymanian residents as well.

The Budget also indicates that the Government continues to place health as one of its top priorities. Recently we toured the new hospital with the Honourable Minister for Health and to everyone's delight were very impressed and pleased with the well-planned and modern medical facility. This will certainly be a facility all of Cayman can be justly proud of.

I was also very touched to see that thought had been given for the inclusion of a beautiful hospital chapel in honour of the late Captain Theo Bodden. The chapel has been tastefully decorated by his daughters, and gratitude must certainly be expressed to this family for providing such a special place for people who need to find solace and comfort in their hour of sorrow.

Not only is the hospital well equipped with state of the art equipment, but it is also staffed with competent and qualified personnel who demonstrated an admirable degree of loyalty and respect for the Minister and his ministerial staff.

The district health clinic in Bodden Town continues to be a well received and useful facility. The Health Department continues to monitor the needs of our people by extending the hours of the clinic and making sure the needs of everyone are met. Having this facility in the district of Bodden Town has indeed been another way to assist our people health wise.

Another attempt of the de-centralisation will be seen with the establishment of the Vehicle Licensing Unit in the district of Bodden Town. I know this will be a welcomed addition and I offer my full support to the Minister and his officials as well.

Education continues to be a high priority. It is very encouraging to see that the Bodden Town Primary and the Savannah Primary Schools are now air-conditioned. I trust that the other schools will soon be completed as well. For Bodden Town and Savannah this has been a long awaited project and the children are now able to learn and study in a much more pleasant environment. I was particularly pleased with this past summer maintenance programme as related to the Bodden Town Primary and Savannah Primary Schools. A tremendous amount of work went into ensuring that these two schools were painted, cleaned and put in proper order for the return of students at the beginning of the school year.

I was also very impressed when I visited these schools during the summer break. I found principals and teachers hard at work making sure that every square inch of the buildings and classrooms were painted and cleaned. The surrounding school grounds were nicely manicured as well. This was certainly a positive start for the kick-off of a new school year.

I would like to thank those teachers who took so much pride, and who continue to ensure that their students work and play in a clean environment. I always feel very proud in visiting these two schools, as well as the other schools, to see the interest taken by all concerned to maintain their schools in a proper manner.

Another evidence of Government's commitment to improving the wellbeing of all the students can be seen by the funding and the completion of the Bodden Primary School Bus Shelter. This too was a long awaited project.

I am also very pleased to see the allocation of funds and the estimates for the establishment of a Bodden Town District Library. This will certainly be music to the ears of the many school children that wrote to me about getting a library in the district of Bodden Town. Bodden Towners have always been known as avid readers and researchers, and having a district library will allow them to pursue their literary interest. Presently they have to travel to other districts to get the benefits of a library.

This Saturday, December 5th will undoubtedly be a very proud moment for my people and me when the Pedro St. James Castle will be officially opened. As the birthplace of democracy there is so much history within the walls and the immediate surroundings of this castle. The Minister can be commended for his efforts to preserve this historical landmark and for turning it into a tourist attraction. He has my full support with the funds necessary for the completion of this project.

I was also very pleased to see the road leading to Pedro Castle this morning begin to get its paved asphalt roads all the way into Pedro Castle.

I now move to speak briefly on the various recreational facilities that have been provided for in the Estimates.

The Haig Bodden Football Field is near completion but still requires bathroom facilities as well as bleachers. So it is encouraging to see the funds provided for these facilities in the estimates as well.

There also the need for the upgrading of the hard court facilities next to the football field because many of our youth use this facility on a daily basis and this too will soon be a reality.

There is also need for further upgrading and beautification of parks within my district and I am pleased to see funds allocated for these projects.

In winding-up, I would like to thank the Government, the Honourable Financial Secretary and his capable staff, as well as other civil servants that have contributed in the preparation of the 1999 Estimates. I am confident that these funds will undoubtedly go a long way in improving the lives of our people.

As always, I am truly grateful for whatever funds are allocated for my district. My people know I will continue to make sure the district of Bodden Town receives the appropriate funds in order to continue the upward trend in providing and enhancing the facilities for the people of Bodden Town. I look forward to the completion of these projects and assistance whenever possible.

May God continue to bless and prosper these islands. Mr. Speaker, I thank you.

The Speaker: The floor is opened to debate. Does any other Member wish to speak? The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Let me also add my vote of thanks to the Financial Secretary for his capable presentation of the Budget Address for 1999. I also want to add my praise to Almighty God for his protection and continued care of these beautiful Cayman Islands.

When I saw where the hurricane was located, I recall praying on a personal basis saying, 'Lord, send it left,' because I knew by the path it was taking we were in serious, serious trouble. I wouldn't have wanted to wish the devastation caused by Hurricane Mitch on any people, including the people of Nicaragua and Honduras.

I heard a firsthand account of that experience from a Caymanian that lives in the Bay Islands. Fortunately, his residence survived. But according to him, if Hell is any worse than the experience of going through Hurricane Mitch, then it must be an awful place. I got a call just yesterday from one of my managers who is from the Bay Islands, and she said at the present time many of the residents are taking shelter under the floors of homes that still stand in that area.

Let me also add that I personally do not agree with the position taken by Executive Council with regard to visas for residents from this area, in particular requests from residents associated with the Bay Islands. I am aware that many of the people who inhabit those small islands are direct descendants of the Cayman Islands.

I would like to say thanks to the people of the Cayman Islands who assisted by way of financing, supplies, materials and food. But I think as a people who have been so fortunate and so blessed that we cannot shut up our compassion against people like that who are in need. I trust that the Executive Council will seriously reconsider requests for visas from residents of the Bay Islands.

I believe one of the reasons why we are so blessed is because the people of the Cayman Islands have always had a heart. We have always reached out to those in need, especially those people who have been less fortunate than we are.

In the 1988 political campaign in the United States then Vice-President George Bush made a statement that came back to haunt him. The statement was, "Read my lips: There will be no new taxes." I think I am correct in saying that during his four years in office some of the most massive tax packages were produced.

Since 1988 when I was first elected, I have always promoted the philosophy that the Cayman Islands have to be extremely careful with the way we managed our financial affairs. It is unfortunate that the National Team Government took power in 1992 on the promise that they would ensure that some discipline was re-introduced into public financing. I recall in 1993 after the National Team took possession of Government, when we assessed the situation the conclusion we came to was that we didn't have any money to spend. We had to give the finances of the country some breathing room in order to recover. Our philosophy was that we would attempt to address, in particular, the capital needs of the country as we could afford them.

Shortly after the National Team took possession of the Government, and based on promises of public financial reforms and the other measures promised, confidence was restored, as far as the foreign investor was concerned. They came off the fence and they once again started to invest heavily in our economy. During the past five or six years we have experienced unprecedented growth with respect to sales in the real estate market. We have experienced like we have never experienced before a boom in construction. In the area of tourism we have seen some tremendous accomplishments by way of visitor arrivals to the Cayman Islands.

But, speaking on a personal basis, I am very disappointed with what I see taking place in regard to Government's financial position under the stewardship of the National Team. In 1992, one of things that we campaigned on—and I was a part of the National Team at that time— and we beat the last Government to death over was its reckless attitude toward public borrowings and taxation.

For my own personal information, I looked at the record of the 1988 to 1992 Government in regard to public borrowing and tax measures. I compared it with the goals and decisions that were taken by the National Team Government in regard to public borrowings and new tax measures. What I found was extremely interesting. And I did bring a copy of our Manifesto for 1996 which was very well done. That was a very charming group of candidates.

As I said, I am personally very disappointed that we—that is, the National Team—did more than what we accused the last Government of doing. We had on our platform a very capable and qualified group of candidates. Among our ranks we had a former financial secretary (for twelve years), we had a lawyer who has been very successful on a personal basis—two lawyers—and a number of other candidates who had tremendous experience and qualifications. If I must say so myself, it was probably the most qualified group, or team, of candidates that I have ever seen put together in this country. I believe because of that we gained the confidence and the support of the people of this country.

Let me repent over what I had to say about the last Government, that is, the 1988 to 1992 Government, because they were very reckless indeed. In this House from one day to the next, you did not know what was coming; so I don't fault the people of this country for removing that Government.

It was interesting to read from our Manifesto the following with regard to the financial position of Government, it says, "The last Government 1988 – 1992, of which Mr. Linford Pierson and Mr. Ezzard Miller were a part, spent $52.6 million more than they collected." I do not support that either. Almost all of the capital expenditure of $64.4 million was funded by loans, taxes, surplus, and the 1984 to 1988 elected Government's surpluses and general reserves of $30 million.

In 1992, the country was in a very sad state financially. In the manifesto, on page 8, the National Team was touting or boasting of the fact, . . . let me read it to you. Number two, "Borrowed only $6.6 million, but repaid over $16.9 million on loans that we inherited from the last elected Government." That is the kind of position I have always supported: You live within your financial means, you borrow as little as necessary. Government has such a good reputation credit-wise, that if it wanted to go to the bank tomorrow and borrow $100 million, somehow the financial institutions in this country would make it available. Borrowing money is one thing. Having the ability to pay it back is a totally different situation.

Another comment was "4. Imposed no new. . . taxes to burden our Caymanian people." I think it says in 1990 it was $10 million, and it came back in 1991 with another $10 million. So, they were accused of not only borrowing, but they were also accused of new taxes.

Here is a promise: "The future 1997-2000: As a prudent Government, we will continue our policy of only borrowing what is necessary and never exceeding the internationally accepted limitation for debt service of 10% of recurrent revenue (which now stands at 6%)." Because you have an artificial ceiling of 10% of recurrent revenue as a benchmark for your borrowings does not mean that you have to do it.

I would have been proud as a Member of the National Team to come up in the year 2000 and say, 'My Caymanian people, let me tell you a few facts: I recognise that we had some serious demands in this country in regard to new facilities and new services. But we did only those projects that were priority projects that we could basically cover from minimum borrowings and out of our local revenue.' In the same instance, 'We have in our general reserves $25 or $30 million just in case things slow down in this country to the extent that Government has to do something to stimulate the economy.' We would have money to spend.

When you boast of a Budget of $282 million and you are saying that you can only put aside $1 million a year, . . . that does not speak well at all for this Government.

It is unfortunate that we are all politicians in here. I mean, the paramount concern of most politicians is whether or not in four years we will be re-elected. That's paramount. It is amazing, that once one is elected, regardless of how tough things get in this House, no one wants to retire, no one wants to lose his seat at the polls—including me, Mr. Speaker. We have at the same time to be responsible financially.

One of the comments that I continue to hear is that it is becoming so expensive to live in this country. And I keep hearing comments to the effect that we are not catering to everybody, that we are only catering to a certain echelon of people on the outside. But you have plenty of poor people here in the Cayman Islands; people who live from one pay cheque to the next. So we have to be conscious of the fact that everything we do in this country affects our people.

Like I said before, I have become very disillusioned with the stewardship of the present Government. You know, I have many friends on the Executive Council. I count each and every one of them as friends on a personal basis. But the truth is the truth! They have not done a good job in managing the affairs of this country.

On Friday, last week, and on Monday of this week, the Minister of Tourism got up and did what I personally expected of him when I voted for him as Minister of Executive Council in 1992. I believe that members of the public and of this House feel the same way I do: That with twelve years of experience as the former Financial Secretary of this country, and as a Minister of Executive Council, he should have been playing a vital role in guiding this Government. And not only guiding this Government, but speaking out when he saw that the Government was going down the wrong road financially.

You know, Mr. Speaker, politicians believe that people are only going to support them when they tell them what they want to hear. I have learned over the years that people respect you when you tell them the facts, and the reason for your decisions, rather than being in a position where you think you are going to accommodate everybody. At the end of day, what happens? You make a mess of not only their lives but also the finances of the country that you are responsible for safeguarding.

Like I said before, the message that this Minister sent should have been preached a long time ago—since he was elected in 1992 to the Executive Council. It is a little late now. What I fear happened is that the Ministers of Executive Council recognised the position they were in and said to him, 'You know, being the former Financial Secretary for twelve years, you should get up and talk. The people will listen to you. You have credibility.' And they hoped he could sell the situation as it now exists to the people.

The feedback that I have gotten is exactly what I have asked, Where has he been all this time? Why is it that they are just now speaking along those lines? Is it because they find themselves in a very unpopular position with the people, and the elections are only two years away?

Do you know what has disappointed me as well, Mr. Speaker? When I was still a part of the National Team we put together a new revenue package from which we felt we could earn a certain amount of revenue. And when I give you my word on anything, you can carry that to Cayman National or Barclays or anywhere you want to carry it because I am going stand with you. But do you know what happened to that? The only thing that reminds me of it was when Jimmy Carter was President of the United States. He commissioned the Navy, or whoever it was, to go into Iran and rescue the hostages that were held there. There was a total debacle and it was a total flop.

What happened to that package was that the committee of the councils called a meeting at the Lion's Centre. They went up and they saw maybe five hundred people, and all of a sudden the Executive Council came back jittery, frightened in their boots. Not only were they frightened but they demanded we sit at a table and they told us what was acceptable as the new tax measures. The only tax measures that were put in place were those that affected the small man, like duties on liquor and tobacco. That was where the majority of the revenue would have come from.

That doesn't speak well at all for any Government. All leaders, I don't care who they are, will someday find themselves in a very unpopular position because when you are in leadership you cannot always be popular.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Tell 'em, Johnny!

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Because you come to me and say, 'You know John, I am sorry but I don't agree with you' I am not going roll over and say, 'I am sorry. Since you and I are friends, I am going to back off.' No!

If I believe it is in the best interest of the country, I am going to stand my ground.

We came back this year with new tax measures again, based on the same items that were introduced in 1997, I think it was. All of a sudden, we don't care who likes it or not, we are going to push it through. Why? Is it because we are so close to the general elections? Two years is a short time, Mr. Speaker.

You know, I am a 24-hour representative. I am out there. I get the feedback from the common person. People are upset with the new tax measures, particularly those relating to the schools. I was at my office yesterday and it was amazing the number of parents that came to me and asked, "What is Government trying to do? When fees jump from [I can't remember the figure that was quoted] to $700." I had one parent say, "I have four children that I am responsible for paying fees for."

Let me say this: I am one of those members who considers every dollar that we spend on education as an investment in our future. We should never allow to happen again in this country what I experienced as a boy, where only the privileged few got a good education. Only a privileged few were able to qualify for scholarships. Only a privileged few were able to get a university education in this country. That is not the case today because, thanks to the National Team Government, some things were done right.

One of things that we did was make a conscious decision to make funds available for our young people who wanted to go aboard to study.

I was talking to a young man yesterday in the common room and I mentioned how proud I was of what he and his brothers, and other members of the family were able to accomplish. He is a young man who comes from a poor family, like myself. But he had ambition, and the resources were made available to him and he was able to get a good education.

What I am concerned about is that if the new fees go into effect in regard to the schools, that some parents, because they cannot afford it, will keep their children at home. I am quite sure that was never the intention of the Minister of Education or the National Team when they put together the Budget, but that is the reality if the fees go into effect. We have to be sensitive to the position of our people in this country.

The thought was that we would impose the new increases on non-Caymanian children. But the reality of it is that a lot of those non-Caymanian children are children of parents who are married to Caymanians. In effect, what you are doing is hurting your own people. I join in with the Third Elected Member from George Town in requesting the Government to look at the issue of the new fees with regard to schools. If we need to find money, let us find it from people who can afford to pay for it.

Increasing fees on work permits, especially in the professional fields . . . I have no apology for anyone. Things are so good in this country it is easy for them to get work permits. Because of that they would prefer to pay $5,000 for a work permit than make an investment in one of our young people, training them and putting them in a position where they can hold a job in this country. We should make those fees $10,000 a year. I have no apology.

And it is amazing when you look at the ads for those positions, the qualifications that you need in order to qualify for one of those positions is remarkable. An ordinary Caymanian in most instances will never qualify for one of those positions. Why? Because of the way they have it geared and worded. So, make them pay!

The problem that we are faced with in this country is the constant demand for new services. Let me hasten to say that there are some new services which I support 100 percent. We have a constant demand for new roads, schools, increases in police patrol and surveillance, civic centres, sport facilities, just to name a few. But the message that has to be extended is this: Those services cost money. Unfortunately, we politicians sometimes give the impression that we can provide these services free of cost. I must add though that I fully support the money that we have spent in the last three or four years, five years maybe, on sporting facilities in this country.

We can now be proud of the fact that we have probably one of the most modern sporting complexes of any place in the Caribbean, that is, the Truman Bodden Sports Complex. With the image that we have of a financial centre nothing less is expected of us. And by providing that kind of facility, we are making an investment in our young people.

The other thing that was done was that we put in place salaries for national coaches for all of the major sports in this country. There is nothing wrong with that. That is not what has caused the present financial position that we find ourselves in.

Being a businessman, one of the first things that I attempt to determine is what my cost is. If I am selling a hamburger I must know what the cost is. How can I arrive at a price for my product if I don't know the cost? I believe that is one of the fundamental problems we have in Government: Government does not know the cost of its services. If you don't know the cost, then how can you determine what price your services should be?

Government should never be in a position where it is run for a profit. But in most areas Government should be in a position where it at least covers its cost. I know the Financial Secretary is now in the process of going through some financial reforms and that type of thing. I really applaud him on that because I think it speaks well for his stewardship and his sense of responsibility. It has to be done.

Now, if Government was in a position to say, 'John, for you to licence your car, it cost us $250.' And, if I may add, we don't expect to make a profit on this, but at least we expect to get enough back to cover our costs. If we had taken that approach in this country, we would not be here today talking about new borrowings, or new tax measures. Government would be in a position where at least it has the revenue to cover its cost of services.

I think the other thing Government has to be very careful with is ensuring that it gets value for money.

Every year we boast of $48 million, $49 million, $50 million in capital expenditure. I am not a builder, but I have heard enough to know that we could get better value for the money we spend on capital projects. I was told recently that the cost of construction for Government is in the region of about $260 per square foot. I don't know how accurate that is. And I was told that in the private sector, if it is $80 to $120, that was plenty.

What is the reason for the difference? Is it because they know Government is prepared to pay regardless of what it costs? Unfortunately, Government embarks upon projects where it has to compete for those construction services with everybody else. So, it puts Government in a position where it may not have the kind of bargaining power that it should have. If Government waited until things were less hectic and the contractors were less busy, it would probably get a better price.

I am told that there is a small group of contractors who bid on Government projects. What they do beforehand is get together and say 'Okay, you know I am busy so I can't handle it now. But tell me what you are going to bid on it.' The next person says, 'I am going to bid $100.' 'Well because I am not in a position to take it now, I am going to make sure that I bid $120 so that I do not get it.' But, Mr. Speaker, the $100 in the first place is an artificially arrived at cost. So it costs Government much more than it probably should to get the same things done that the private sector also gets done. We must remember at the end of the day, that the money that we spend is for the people of these islands.

One of the areas that has always been of great interest to me is the training of Caymanians. I recall in 1992 when we were running as a team our slogan was the training of Caymanians. It is amazing how that message got out there among the businesses in this country, that they had to do something about training. I recall speaking to the management of many of these properties. They would tell me what they had in mind with regard to establishing training facilities or programmes for Caymanians. They recognised that it had to be done.

I also support the fact that work permit requests should be tied to training. Like the Minister of Tourism said, maybe a three-year programme where you sit down and determine what your work permit needs are, and you tie that in with what Caymanian personnel you have, and what you are doing with respect to having them trained to eventually take some of the positions you are now applying for work permits to fill. I believe if we took that approach with regard to training in this country, we would see some significant results.

I really applaud those companies in the private sector who have a genuine interest in employing and training Caymanians. One of the companies that comes to mind is Ernst & Young, an accounting firm here in this country. It is headed up by a qualified Caymanian. He told me that they have six or eight young Caymanians now on full scholarships in the accounting profession. It speaks well for the company. In order for us to ensure that the stability we enjoy in this country continues, our people have to continue to benefit from the economic situation that we enjoy.

I believe that if we take that approach it would also lessen the workload for the Immigration Board in dealing with work permits. I would daresay that on a weekly basis, they probably handle in the region of 200-250, maybe even 300 requests for work permits. If they can approve a work permit and not have to worry about it for another three years, but be confident that there is also a programme in place to train Caymanians, hopefully after the three years are up it may not be necessary to renew some of those permits. Someone would have been trained to take that position.

I believe that Government has to lead by example. I recall in 1992, after the election, that there was talk about establishing a hotel training school. This is 1998 and I don't see it yet. I believe that is the approach we need to take. We cannot sit down and continue to just look at work permits from the standpoint of being a revenue earner. We need to ensure that our people understand the value of the tourism industry and the benefits from employment in that area. In order for them to enjoy those benefits, that is, at least some of the senior management positions, you will have to train your Caymanians.

I know the Minister of Education has training or labour now. I expect great things out of him, I really do.

In the last two to three years, I have heard very little about training. We are making scholarships available. That goes a long way, but what about on-the-job training? How do we ensure that those Caymanians who do find themselves in employment move up the ladder?

Vocational training is also an area we need to place new emphasis on. I was glad to hear that the registration for vocational classes at the Community College is increasing. I hope that's a fact. What our Caymanian young people have to understand is that you can make a very decent, honest living being an electrician, a plumber, a mason, or a carpenter. There is nothing wrong with that.

Unfortunately, what has happened to our young people is that the majority of them believe that unless they are wearing a white shirt and a necktie they are not successful. But those who find a job in a bank making $800, $900 per month compared to that plumber out there who's taking home probably $3,000 to $4,000 per month . . . there is no comparison. But we have not emphasised the importance of vocational areas to our young people.

Government must lead by example. I was told just recently that there is a young Caymanian in one of the departments here who has a genuine interest in the area that she is employed in. She has the academic ability to go off to school. Right now she is very frustrated because they are telling her that the budget for training has been cut. Now, I know our budget is tight, but when it comes to training, when it comes to education, this Member is prepared to vote whatever funds are necessary to ensure that our young people are not deprived of the training they need in order to hold responsible positions in this country.

To get back on the new revenue measures for just a bit, I just want to highlight what some of those new proposed measures are. The question that I have to ask is how did we arrive at these increases?

Schoolbook rental fees for the Primary Year 1 went from $5 to $50. That is increased ten times! It does not sound like a whole lot of money, but when you have four kids it costs $200 just for book rental fees. With regard to school fees, it says for non-Caymanian children in Government Primary Schools it is proposed to be raised from $450 to $750 per year; in the Middle School the increase is from $540 to $900 per year; while in the High School it is from $630 to $1200 per year.

I recognise that the Government needs money, but my question is what did they use to arrive at those figures? I have not looked in the Budget to see what it amounts to with respect to new revenue, but it is probably a couple of hundred thousand dollars. I don't think that we can run the risk of increasing revenue from this source—a couple of hundred thousand dollars—and jeopardise the educational opportunities of our young people.

With regard to new roads in this country, I have heard a lot said about the necessity of new roads in this country. I honestly believe that the people of this country would not only support but deserve new roads, good roads, in this country. It baffles me, though, why the information was withheld in regard to what it would cost us to put our existing roads back in order. Where was it held for so long? I was told (and I still can't understand it) that from one cemetery to the next along Seven Mile Beach it was going to cost approximately $1.8 million. If that is the case, my question is why haven't we done this before? Nobody told us how much it was going to cost either. I have never heard it before.

I believe the approach that we should take with regard to roads is the approach recommended by the Fourth Elected Member for George Town and myself in a Private Members' Motion that was moved here, I think sometime last year, whereby we establish a road fund.

The people of this country have to understand that we can't do it free of cost. I honestly believe that if we told the people of this country that if they allowed us to borrow $5 million we would be able to provide them with brand new roads throughout this country, but that it would cost them an extra $10 on their licences fees (which would go into this fund to finance or support the repayment of any loans that we would have obtained for this purpose), I don't think that we would have a problem. I honestly do not believe that we would have a problem with regard to support. People would be able to relate the specific task with a service that they need and they would be willing to pay for it.

The fact remains, though, that re-paving those roads is going to do very little to ease the traffic congestion in this country. It just means that we will have better roads to wait on in traffic. It is not going to solve the traffic congestion that we experience in this country. This time of the year it becomes most noticeable. I guess it is getting near to Christmas and we have a lot of visitors on the island and people going back and forth to the shops. Now, when you come by Seven Mile Beach between 12 noon and 2.00 in the afternoon, there is quite a line extended along there as far as traffic is concerned.

The other thing that the people of this country have to recognise (and I was talking to someone yesterday in my office about this) is that one of the ambitions of every Caymanian, especially young people in this country, is to eventually own their own car. You have some families in this country who have five or seven members of the family and each and every one of them has his own vehicle. I don't have a problem with that, but every additional vehicle that is brought into this country adds to the traffic congestion. So, it is just one of those evils that if we are going to enjoy the benefits of owning a vehicle, we are going to have to be prepared to suffer some amount of traffic congestion.

I do support the extension to the Harquail Bypass. I honestly do not understand why it is taking us so long to do it. I was told it was in the region of about $2 million in order to do it. That would be money well spent. Why has it taken us so long to negotiate the purchase of that piece of property necessary to do the job? Is it because we didn't have the money? I don't believe so. What's the reason?

We are going to go through another Christmas season using the same situation we have right now—people getting frustrated because they are sitting in traffic for an hour or two just to get between West Bay and George Town, or from the other districts into George Town.

The other feedback that I am getting, and it really concerns me, is that it is becoming very difficult to do business in this country. By that I mean having to deal with the Planning Department, having to deal with the Immigration Board, having to deal with the Trade and Business Licensing Board and other Government Departments.

I have heard examples of this. Let's say that I apply to the Government for permission to do my little subdivision, and that you, Mr. Speaker, submit an application at the same time basically requesting permission to do the same thing. For some reason the requirements for approval for your sub-division are totally different from mine. In your case, Mr. Speaker, they may require that you do sidewalks throughout your sub-division. On the other hand, there is no such condition associated with my approval. We have to be careful because we have to recognise that every additional requirement in that area adds cost.

I was talking to a young Caymanian the other day who has done a lot of development in this country, and has spent a lot of money in this country. He is totally frustrated, totally discouraged from doing anything. He said to me, "John, I honestly don't need this because the kind of money I have I could take a walk and live happily ever after. But I have a genuine interest in doing something in this country by way of development and as a Caymanian

I feel that I should be extended greater courtesy than I am."

One problem that we have (and I am not the only one who has echoed this) is that Caymanians are Caymanians' worst enemies. They see that you are doing a little business and they believe that you are making a lot of money. Do you know what they do? Whenever they are in a position where they can throw a stumbling block in your way, they will do it. They prefer to see somebody come in from the outside and rape this country and send it away to wherever they come from, rather than see another Caymanian get ahead in life.

That's a problem we have. No longer can we boast of the community where if George is building a house, Kurt, Linford, the other members, and I pitch in and help out. That's the kind of community that we enjoyed in this country. We assisted one another, we minimised cost and we helped our fellow man. We have a lot to say about the Jamaicans in this country; we have a lot to say about the Hondurans in this country; we have a lot to say about the Cubans in this country. But one thing you can say about those nationalities is that they stick together. They assist one another. That is why a lot of times they get ahead when we as individual Caymanians find it so difficult to get anything done or get ahead in this country.

As a representative I am constantly pushing, constantly negotiating and bargaining for Caymanians to be promoted. I remember one instance where a Caymanian at one of the hotels was promoted to personnel manager. I said "Great. Now at least I know he will look out for other Caymanians." I was never so shocked in my life. I recall calling that person looking for a couple of jobs for some of my constituents. He didn't have the courtesy to even return my call. That's the problem we have, and we as leaders have to be better examples for our people. We need to work together, we need to support one another, we need to be happy when we see other Caymanians make it in life financially and otherwise.

Like I said, some of our local people who are involved in development in this country are having a very difficult time. And it is not because they are asking for any favours. They have the ability and they are willing to pay their dollar like everybody else, but it just seems that there are totally different rules for them compared to some others.

I believe that we need to take a totally different approach to the annual budget of this country. As I mentioned before, I am aware that the Financial Secretary is moving ahead in that area, and he has my full support. I trust that the reforms he wants to see put in place will be done as expeditiously as possible because there is definitely a need for reform.

I did request information on Government's borrowings since 1993. For the record, let me mention what my findings were.

Back in 1993, that is, after the National Team took over the Government, we borrowed $825,897 in addition to the $16.7 million necessary for the survival of Cayman Airways.

In 1994, we borrowed $5,905,618.

In 1995, we borrowed $1,590,719.

In 1996, according to my information, the Government of the day borrowed another $20,204,986.

In 1997, under Capital Acquisitions—Local Loans, we borrowed $769,762, and again under Capital Development—Local Loans, we borrowed an additional $23,476,101 and from Capital Development—External Loans for the Pedro Castle, we borrowed another $1.2 million.

In 1998, it is projected that we would have borrowed another $19.5 million.

When you add all those figures together it comes to a handsome amount of money that we borrowed over those five or six years. I do not believe it is prudent for us to come here every year with a request to borrow money to balance the Budget. I would have preferred if Government had come to us this year and said, 'You know because of the financial position in this country, we only have $5 million, $6 million or $10 million to spend on capital development.' I would have been most happy if it meant that we did not have to go into extensive borrowings to balance this year's and next year's budgets.

It frightens me. It really frightens me, because one of the situations that you always have to be aware of is that when times are good and revenue is coming in, sure you can service your loan situation. But what happens if it slows down? Rather than being 7%, it can easily go to 15% or 20% of local revenue or recurrent revenue overnight. I am very concerned with regard to that position.

Do not get me wrong, I fully support the fact that there are needs or demands on this country for additional facilities. And I support them. I don't care which Government is in place, it needs a programme.

Governments are only here for four years at a time, and I believe that any Government that takes the reigns in this country should sit down when it is first elected and say, 'Okay, what is our programme now for the next four years? What should we attempt to accomplish? How much is it going to cost us? How are we going to finance those facilities and services that we have determined we will support?' I believe that approach makes much more sense than the present approach we take where, on an annual basis around June, July or August, we say, 'Okay now, let's think about what we are going to support or promote for our people in this year's budget' with very little thought to what those requests are going to be. We have to appear to be doing something in order to ensure that we continue to have the support of our constituents.

I have found the Cayman people to be very reasonable indeed. If you go to them with a programme and say, 'Here is what we intend to accomplish over the next two or three years; here's what it is going to cost, here's how we are going to finance it . . .' I believe personally that the people would not only support you but would appreciate that you came to them in the first place. I don't care what Government is in place, it cannot expect to accomplish everything that everybody needs—or wants.

One of the priorities in this year's Budget (and I believe there is quite a bit of money that has been set aside for it) is education. We need to ensure that our kids have the facilities, the books, the personnel that we need in our public schools. And the other thing I would advocate now, and I have advocated before, is that we do a recruitment with regard to teachers.

One of the approaches I think we should take is more recruitment from the Caribbean. I have been to Barbados, I have been to Trinidad and Jamaica, most of my teachers were either Caymanians or West Indians. And I don't believe that I have turned out so badly. I really don't! But I believe it's important for our kids to have teachers that they can relate to—similar backgrounds, similar principles and morals as we emphasise and promote here in the Cayman Islands. Like I said, I am aware that there are a lot of qualified teachers available from some of the other Caribbean countries.

The other thing that I think we need to do more of is to make a serious effort in trying to attract young Caymanians into the teaching profession. I don't know if it has been done, and I have heard it promoted for some time now, whereby teachers are basically taken out of the Budget as far as the salary scale is concerned and specific salary scale established for our teachers. A lot of us have the impression that teaching is not a very worthwhile vocation. But in this country there is no greater calling than that of a teacher.

Our teachers have to be well paid. I am aware right now that full scholarships are available for Caymanians who go into that area. I support that, and we do have some Caymanians who have taken advantage of that. Once they are qualified we must ensure that when they come back to take up their positions that they are encouraged to continue in that profession. The problem we have had over the years is that people have left the teaching profession and have gone into the private sector or even in Government in other areas where they can make more money. And you really can't blame them for that. We are all looking for ways of bettering ourselves financially and otherwise. But it is extremely important for us to have Caymanians teaching our own Caymanian students.

The other area in education I think we need to place more emphasis on is the area of early childhood education. I am aware that some of the other Caribbean countries, in particular Barbados, because of the recent findings as a result of research with respect to the abilities of the young child, have really made a conscious effort and an increased investment in the education of young children. I am talking about children between one and three, where it is very important that we provide that learning environment and those facilities the young child needs in his development. Like I said before, there is no greater investment than the investment in our children.

I honestly believe because the reception classes were abolished in our primary schools (other than a couple of schools which still have reception classes) that Government has to consider financially assisting parents who want to expose their children to a pre-school experience. At the present time I think the Government assists from three years, nine months, to four years, nine months, which is the last year before the child is legally able to go to a public school. Because of the recent findings I believe that assistance has to be given at an earlier age.

One situation that really concerns me in this country is the level of drug abuse. I know in my district (and I am quite sure the other Members can probably voice the same concerns with regard to their districts) I see young people. One young man came to see me yesterday at my office in West Bay, the man is younger than I am, but he looks like an old man. Why? Because of drug abuse.

I heard tales of somebody sitting on a fence post or a wall after 11:00 PM at night doing nothing, just sitting there talking and socialising. The police came along and grabbed him and gave him a urine test because they suspected that he was on drugs. If they can go to that extent with regard to somebody who is not involved, are you going to tell me they don't see these people like I see them in this condition and know what their problems are? I honestly feel that those people we see on our streets in that situation need to be picked up.

There is a philosophy that unless you want help, it will be no good to you. I personally do not subscribe to that philosophy because a lot of times when you are under the influence of illicit drugs you are not in a position to make any clear decisions with regard to your welfare. But, if you were picked up and put in a place of safety where counselling services and maybe rehab services were available, it must help. We cannot continue to just ignore the fact that we have a serious drug problem in this country.

One of the things that I campaigned on in 1988 was a proper local rehab centre. It is badly needed in this country. I am pleased to hear that we have finally made a decision with regard to providing that kind of facility in this country. The attitude of the former Member for Health was that if somebody needed to be referred overseas, Government was prepared to support that expense. That did not happen. We have run into many, many people who needed this service. But because of the cost of sending somebody abroad to a rehab centre, Government finds other ways of trying to assist. They will say okay to counselling, but unless you can put a lot of these people in a sheltered environment where on a daily basis they don't have access to that drug, it is of no avail. So, we need to make a rehab centre in this country a priority.

If the Government had come to this Legislative Assembly and said 'We need $2 million to build a proper rehab centre,' they would have my full support because I see it as a necessity. I see it as a priority in this country. But, like I said before, when you are in leadership you have to take some very unpopular decisions. This is a decision that I think needs to be made, and I am glad to hear that it is on stream now. But it should have been made a long time ago.

How many young people have we lost since I was elected in 1988? And drug abuse knows no colour; it knows no financial status. It affects families at every level of society. I have seen the ravages of drug abuse—even in my own family. If our people need help in this area, we must have the facilities locally to make sure that this is done.

Canaan Land has made a real effort to provide that facility. For whatever reason we have not given them the support that we should. At least until we get our facility in place, let's gladly support them. So, at least something is available. I had a situation the other day where a young lady in my district needed the service. I called Canaan Land and they said, "Mr Jefferson, we are sorry, we do not take females, it is a male institution." You have as many female drug abusers in this country as you do males—probably more.

We cannot afford to lose this country to drug abuse. But it is happening! I am very pleased to see that the courts are finally extending some severe sentences with regard to crimes committed in this country.

Crime is a situation in this country also that we need to seriously address. I was just looking at the Police statistics in their 1997 Report. Take theft, for example. In 1995 we had 22 reported cases of theft; in 1997, 191 cases. Total reported crimes for all offences in this area rose from 138 cases to 438 cases. That is an increase of 352 cases in three years.

I remember in 1992 the National Team Government decided this was one of the issues we would address—the issue of crime. We made an investment. We established a task force; we beefed up the Police because they said they needed more bodies in order to carry out surveillance and patrol. But even today with all of that, there are some districts, for example the eastern districts, where if you call a Police Station at a certain hour you do not get an answer. I tried it the other night. I hear now that they are on patrol. That's fine. Are you going to tell me we cannot employ an additional person to at least stay in the office to answer telephone calls? The excuse now is that they are all on patrol.

This country that boasts of so much wealth must be able to employ in the outer districts, that is, in North Side and East End and even West Bay, sufficient persons, administratively as well as Police, to answer whatever queries or concerns our citizens may have. It is not because of a lack of finances or support. I understand that as a result of the lack of Police presence in the eastern districts drug abuse and trafficking is becoming an increasingly difficult and prevalent activity.

One reputation the Cayman Islands enjoys is that it is a safe destination. I have heard that from many visitors. It is safe and will continue to be safe if we make a real effort in fighting and controlling crime.

One of the biggest crimes that we have in this country is the crime of burglary. I have never had it happen to me personally, but it must be a frightening experience to awaken during the night and find someone in your home. This is an area that I would encourage the courts to extend more severe sentences on, because no one has any business being in your home without your permission. I don't care who it is. Anyone who comes into your home to steal—and its normally drug related—is coming in to find your wallet with $25 or whatever he can find of any value and go out and pawn it for $5, $10 or $15. Anyone who comes into your home comes in there prepared to defend himself—even if it involves taking your life in the process. So it's all related to drug abuse.

There were some statistics recently on the findings of drug abuse at the prison. We have been saying it for a long time, and the administration has constantly covered it up doing whatever they could to hide the facts. I am glad that Government moved ahead and said let's see for ourselves. Once it was brought to someone's attention and the evidence was there, Government could see exactly what the position was, and they took action. Now, all of a sudden, it's down to where it is reasonable.

I was told by 'X' prisoners that when they were at Northward Prison they could get anything they wanted by way of drugs. Why should we send our young people to prison on drug convictions, when they can get it there? It doesn't make sense! And the message that I would like to get across is that it does not matter who is involved, it must be stopped. And if we really wanted to stop it, it would be stopped overnight.

Crime is an issue that has to be addressed in this country.

It is now 6:30 PM, and the Government has fallen asleep or has gone somewhere—they are not here. I wonder if it make sense for us to continue until 7.00 PM because it appears we don't really have a quorum.

Mr. Speaker I would be prepared to continue tomorrow. It's up to you.

The Speaker: It was our intention to continue until 7.00 PM. I would call for members to return to the Chamber so that we can continue, please.

If you are not finished, would you continue?

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: No, Mr. Speaker I am not finished. But I would appreciate at least some of the elected Ministers being present to hear what I am saying. That's the only way they are going to be in a position to address the concerns we raise in this House.

I want to personally congratulate the Minister responsible for Health. I had an occasion recently to visit the new hospital. The patient I wanted to visit was in the new facility, and I was very impressed. I support every penny that we have spent on that new health facility.

I think on Monday, a question was asked as to what it has cost us so far. I think it is in the region of $28 million. Before it is finished, it's probably going to be in a region of $30 million to $32 million. Health is a priority.

I don't understand how some Members can allow themselves to be used that way, but the old 'Ezzard' position is being constantly repeated. We could have gotten a hospital in the swamp for $16 million. Now we have one that has cost us $28 million. If we had gone ahead with that facility in the swamp, it would have cost us much more than that, especially with the split-site operation where you had some at the present site and some on the swamp. It couldn't work. We couldn't afford it.

Unlike his predecessor (that is, the 1988 to 1992 Minister for Health) the present Minister for Health sat down with those persons responsible for the day-to-day provision of medical services in this country. He asked them what they believed we needed in that facility. Because of that approach, he has not only provided a first class facility, but he has provided a facility that is very practical and he enjoys the support of the entire staff.

I have been talking to the Minister, and I believe that he will do whatever is necessary. The message that has to be passed on is that sometime next year the facility will be completed and fully operational. As I said, the Cayman Islands can then boast of a first class health services facility. But the message that has to be extended is this: That cost will probably be $32 million at the end of the day. We Caymanians, or anybody else, cannot expect to go there like the policy in the past and expect to continue to enjoy free medical services.

I am glad that steps have been taken to put in place a proper national health insurance programme. That should help. But Government has to take steps to provide the health insurance coverage for its own members, that is, members of the civil service. When they go to the hospital they should be in a position to pay like everybody else. You pay a premium, you present your card, and the insurance company pays for it. I am hoping that this facility will be in a position where it basically covers its own recurrent cost.

The Government has been kind enough to provide the facility, that is, the capital investment that was necessary. But we should expect that facility to take care of its own recurrent expenditure. Probably not in the first year, but over a period of time, because we have to get people used to the idea that they have to pay for the services.

What constantly baffles me is that when we go to a private doctor (and I have had occasion to do that) at the end of the visit he will write an invoice for $100 and we don't think twice about paying it. Why? Because we know that we are expected to pay. We should have the same attitude when it comes to the Government facility.

The other thing that I must applaud the Minister for Health on is that with our support he has put in place proper district health care facilities. My people in West Bay are so proud of the fact that it is now convenient for them. If they have a problem, rather than getting in a car, or jumping on a bus and going into George Town in order to get a Tylenol or whatever it is for flu, they can walk down to their health clinic. And right there, their needs can be taken care of. We have also extended the hours, so it is very convenient. Someone can come home in the evening, and in most instances the facility is open. I think it speaks well for that Minister and our people deserve no less a service.

It's amazing, when we want to get something done how we do it. I remember when we were going to host the Carifta games a few years ago. It was determined that we needed a sports complex. We voted the money.

It was done, and today we have a facility we can be proud of.

Since I was elected in 1988, one of the projects that I have pushed for in my district of West Bay is a civic centre and hurricane shelter. We have something like 8,000 people in the district of West Bay and we don't have a proper facility. We pushed the Minister for Education this year, and I am quite sure we are not going to get it done.

When the West Bay Primary School has a function, they either have to use the West Bay Town Hall field or they go to one of the private facilities along Seven Mile Beach. I expect them to get it done.

When it comes to my civic centre in West Bay, I don't know who doesn't want it to happen but somebody doesn't want it to happen. When I talk about a centre, I am looking at something like the Lion's Centre. My good friend here, the First Elected Member for George Town, knows all about this. That's what I am talking about, something that has a high ceiling. Not very complex, but something that is nice enough to have special functions and also where we can host games such as basketball and other in-door sports.

The last figure I heard on that facility was in the region of about $6 million. Why? Because somebody doesn't want it done. The Minister for Tourism told me, "John I promise you this year, that is going to be started." I think today is the 25th of November. I told him at the time, "You know, I am going to be there like the doubting Thomas." Remember him? When they told him that the Lord had risen, he said, "I won't believe it until I see it." It is not going to happen. I think in this year's Budget is another $1 million. If it is estimated to cost $6 million what are we going to do with $1 million? Somebody doesn't want it to happen. And that is not fair to the people of West Bay. It is not!

Mr. Speaker, with all due respect, I love Cayman Brac. But I see a big provision for theirs. What are the chances are that they are going to get theirs? I will be hoping to see that facility in West Bay in the year 2000. If I see it, I will be very pleased—but surprised.

One of the things that we chided the last Government about was the lack of such facilities. I remember how we chided the former Member for Education on the fact that he didn't have the foresight to see the need for additional classrooms in our district. Do you know where we ended up housing them for maybe a year or two? In the old town hall! And do you know what the attitude was? 'It was good enough for me, so it must be good enough for the children.' No, Mr. Speaker, we cannot continue to have that kind of attitude in this country. Education must be a priority.

One of the faults with the present Minister for Education—and he is a good man. But when it comes to Budget time, he always gives up in order for everybody else to get theirs.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Cautious lawyer!

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: As I said, he's a good man. He has the interests of our children at heart. But as a Government we need to set our priorities in order. Our priority from here on into the year 2000 must be education. We have our health facility and we are proud of that, but we need to now emphasise the educational facilities that we need in this country.

I understand that we bought the property for our new primary school in West Bay. That's good. Let's see it done. We have put it in the Budget. We have increased the provision for the new multi-purpose hall for West Bay Primary School. Let's see it done.

It is amazing, how when you want something done, you can get it done in this country. And then some of us find it so difficult getting anything done. Why? Because of roadblocks are thrown in our direction. I am serious about this. Under no circumstances am I prepared to see the children in this country suffer from the lack of facilities because we don't make education a priority.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I thought you thought he was a good man.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: He is a good man.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: But he's had responsibility for it for six years. It's past time. Anyway, I won't argue with him now.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Even in this area of education, what baffles me is the projected cost of doing a new school, now a primary school. It is only a building of block, a roof and some windows. I think the Savannah Primary cost us something like . . . It is projected, and we have just had some built, $250,000 for classrooms. For $250,000 the private sector would have marble on the floor. Okay? There is something wrong with our system.

And for political reasons a lot of our people are not prepared to say what has to be said. As a Government we really need to revisit the role of Public Works with regard to assisting Government with capital projects. I am told that it cannot be done. I don't see any reason why it cannot be done. I do support the proposal by the Member from North Side who says we make a mistake every year. Do you know what that is? We put together a Budget. And the Budget is $25 million, $30 million, and what do all those contractors do? We put in $3 million for a primary school. When they bid for that contract what are they going to bid? Three million dollars. And who pays for it? We do.

If we took a different approach with regard to capital projects I believe that we could get much more done with the money that we vote every year for those projects. It baffles me. It really baffles me. I know the cost of construction and the cost of living have gone up in this country, but not to that extent. I really do not believe it has gone up to that extent.

I was told Government has tried to assist the different sporting organisations and that type of thing. There is a little bathroom that was built for the Cricket Association. Nothing elaborate. I am reliably informed that this bathroom facility cost Government $236,000. Like I said, it must have 14-karat toilets in there, Mr. Speaker.

We cannot continue to do business this way. If we ran our own private businesses like we have a tendency to run Government, we would have been out of business a long time ago. But it appears that there are different rules when it comes to Government, and that should not be the case. As stewards of public funds we should be extra careful because at the end of the day our people have to pay for those facilities. I honestly believe that is why we are in this position today in regard to education. It costs too much to provide those facilities and there is only a limited amount of resources. So what are you going to do?

I heard that the George Hicks High School needs an assembly hall. What's the estimate? Two million dollars. Give me a break! But it is a facility that the school needs. Can Government afford it?

We have to do something. And I am not taking any pot shots at any Minister personally. I am not. That is not my style. I deal with facts, and if it gets near to whoever it is, that's fine with me. But I don't attack people personally, that is not my style.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: You have to do it in a Mohamed Ali style!

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: I was very careful and I thought about it a couple of times but I think this needs to be said.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: You don't want to wait until tomorrow for that one?

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Yeah, I think I will wait until tomorrow on this one. It's in regard to education. I am doing it in support of the Minister, I really am.

I believe that he has a very difficult time getting what he needs done with the personnel that has been provided for him. Mr. Speaker we will talk about that tomorrow but I think it needs to be done. What I am going to say needs to be said.

Mr. Speaker, it is 6:45 PM, if you want to . . .

I am not going to waffle. With your permission, sir, I would move the adjournment of this Honourable House until 10.00 AM tomorrow morning.

The Speaker: I am in the hands of the Honourable Members. If that's the wish, I would entertain a motion . . .

The Honourable Minister of Education, Aviation and Planning.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Boddin: Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until 10 am tomorrow morning, sir.

The Speaker: The question is that this House will now adjourn until 10.00 AM. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House will stand adjourned until 10.00 AM tomorrow.

AT 6.53 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM FRIDAY, 26 NOVEMBER 1998.

EDITED
THURSDAY
26 NOVEMBER 1998
10.40 AM

[Prayers read by the Honourable Temporary Acting Second Official Member]

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Proceedings are resumed. Item 2 on today's Order Paper is Reading by the Speaker of Messages and Announcements

READING BY THE SPEAKER OF

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: I have apologies from the Honourable First Official Member, who is presently Acting Governor of the Cayman Islands. I have apologies from the Acting Temporary First Official Member, who will be arriving later this morning. I also have apologies from the First Elected Member for West Bay, who is off the Island.

The Speaker: Item number 3 on today's Order Paper, Questions to Honourable Official Members and Ministers. Question number 194, a deferred question, is standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE

QUESTION 194

No. 194: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Third Official Member with responsibility for Finance and Economic Development for Government's total revenue and expenditure for the period January 1 1998 through August 31 1998.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, total receipts for the period January through August 1998 was $182.1 million, broken down as follows:

|                            |                 |
|----------------------------|-----------------|
| Recurrent revenue receipts | $162.6 million |
| Loan Receipts              | 19.5 million    |

Total expenditure for the same period was $167.3 million broken down as follows:

|                                 |                 |
|---------------------------------|-----------------|
| Recurrent expenditure           | $129.9 million |
| Statutory expenditure           | 17.5 million    |
| Capital acquisitions            | 5.1 million     |
| Capital development expenditure | 14.8 million    |

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you Mr. Speaker. Is the Honourable Member in a position to tell the House what the figures were, comparatively speaking, for the year before?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: For the same period, Mr. Speaker, the recurrent revenue up through the end of August was $149.9 million.

|                        |               |
|------------------------|---------------|
| Loans                  | $8.8 million |
| Recurrent expenditures | 117.3 million |
| Statutory expenditure  | 13.1 million  |
| Capital acquisition    | 3.1 million   |

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I wonder if the Honourable Member is in a position to state what the surplus and deficit position was at the end of August 1998.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, the surplus as at 31st August was $10,672,080.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr Speaker, I wonder if the Honourable Member could further say whether this takes into account any write-off of the approximately $11 million in overseas medical cases now pending on the advance account, which the Auditor General recommended be written off.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, it does not take into account the writing off of the balance of overseas medical cases. The Auditor General did not recommend the writing off, Mr. Speaker. What he recommended was a reclassification of that balance which means that it would be taken from advances and treated as expenditure.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I thank the Honourable Member for that clarification. I wonder if he could explain the significance, then, in regard to the surplus and deficit account, of taking the amount to expenditure as opposed to writing it off.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, it would amount to affecting the surplus and deficit account balance. Writing off the sum means that the sum would not be recoverable. If it is reclassified as loans those amounts that are recoverable would continue to remain as asset balances, which the Government would recover over a period of time. So the value of those loans would not be lost.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I wonder then if the Honourable Member can give an indication of what percentage of the overseas medical loans—which I understand is in the vicinity of some $11 million or more—he expects to be able to collect through the process of loans, and how much will be written off?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, we are presently waiting on the Health Services Authority to advise us of those figures. But my view is that this is a matter that will have to be dealt with by the Legislative Assembly.

I am not being evasive in terms of indicating what amounts will have to be written off. Although some persons who owe money to the Health Services Department are not in a position to pay the outstanding balance, these loans are secured. These are decisions that will have to be taken by the Legislative Assembly in terms of how such securities will be activated, or how the balances will be addressed. In light of the fact that these people may not be in a position to repay the amounts that are due, they have given securities—lands and other properties—to cover the outstanding balance.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, just to have this clarified. Is the Honourable Third Official Member saying then that he is not really quite sure of the estimated amount that will be recovered through loans, and that the office is now in the process of looking into these matters?

Secondly, Mr. Speaker, whilst I am on my feet, could he give an indication as to whether there may be any other expenses that may be on advance accounts that should also be written off?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, the Honourable Member is correct. At this point in time I would not want to give an indication as to what amount of the $11 million will be submitted to the Legislative Assembly for approval for these sums to be written off.

Mr Speaker, if we were to take a hypothetical case, a person could have a balance of $200,000 on advances. It is possible that that $200,000 could be fully secured. But, considering the income of the individual it is unlikely that more than $50,000 of that will be recovered. Now there is a differential of $150,000 that will have to be addressed.

The question is, should the Government continue to maintain a lien against that property until the person dies, before such property will be passed on to relatives? Should Government, seeking to recover that sum, activate the lien? Or will the Government take a decision to write that balance off? notwithstanding the fact that this loan is secured.

These are decisions that will have to be made in Finance Committee. We are waiting on the Health Services Department to give an indication as to what sum out of that $11 million can be safely regarded as recoverable. What is unsecured and also doubtful are the amounts that will definitely have to be written off.

We have been following up this matter since last year and the Government is anxious for this to be concluded.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Just to have this matter clarified further. I know that the Honourable Member stated that the matter is now being seriously looked into. But, with respect, I have heard for quite a long time now that the matter is being looked into. As a matter of fact, I can recall that for several years now the Auditor General has been questioning why this is still remaining on an advance account.

I wonder whether the Honourable Member may be in a position to give some kind of a timeline, or approximate timing, on when he expects to have this matter resolved.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, I would like to see this matter resolved, like yesterday. This matter was directed to the Executive Council for consideration. But, rightly so, a final decision could not be taken in terms of the way forward until this classification that is being carried out by the Health Services Department is completed. There is an urgent need for the classification of this outstanding balance to be completed as quickly as possible.

Mr. Speaker, I want to venture to say that I would believe that this could be done within a six-month timeframe. But it could be where I will then have to go back to the Accountant at the Health Services Department, after consulting with the Minister, and probably take advice in terms of the best way forward in dealing with this. We would like for this matter to be resolved as quickly as possible.

I would like to tell the Honourable Member, two months, three months, four months, or five months. But it poses a difficulty. I have been up to the hospital. I sat down with the Accountant General, and we spoke with the Accountant there, and also the individual assigned to deal with this. We were assured the matter was being worked on and that it was being expedited.

I know that this cannot remain outstanding indefinitely, and it will have to be resolved. Each year it remains outstanding, the balance continues to build. The substantial part of it may not be immediately recoverable and Government is at risk in terms of having its financial position distorted.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: This is my last supplementary Mr. Speaker, but just to find out from the Honourable Member whether or not he would agree with me that until these adjustments are made the financial position of Government is somewhat distorted.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, it will be distorted from the point of view that it does not take into account amounts that are unrecoverable at this point in time. This would be quite a significant portion of that balance.

But it is a question that I think the Legislative Assembly or Finance Committee will have to determine in terms of how the various segments of that balance will be addressed. What decisions will have to be made as to whether some amounts that are secured, as I said earlier, should be written off and Government gives up its right to those securities or other means?

I have ideas in my mind. But I would not want to mention them at this point in time until the full scope of this consideration is given as to exactly how this should be addressed.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, the Honourable Member may not be able answer this question, but I am going to pose it anyway. Could the Honourable Member say if when the health insurance comes on line that will decrease the possibility of the Government finding itself in this invidious position?

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: From all indications Mr. Speaker, I would say, yes, to the Honourable Member.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, we will move on to question 206, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Excuse me one minute, Honourable Member. I would entertain a motion for the suspension of Standing Order 23(7) and (8) in order that Question Time can go beyond 11 o'clock.

The Third Elected Member for George Town.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 23(7) & (8)

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker I so move.

The Speaker: Can I have seconder? The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: I second it, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The motion has been made and seconded. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 23(7) & (8) SUSPENDED.

The Speaker: Question Time, continuing. The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION 206

No. 206: Dr. Frank McField asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation if there are any special community based incentives fulfilling the needs of the elderly?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The Department of Social Services fulfils the needs of elderly persons through the community based services provided by the Adult Special Needs Program. The goal of the program is to provide services for the elderly in their own homes, where possible, and in their own district or community.

The services are provided in response to each individual circumstance and as the need arises. In addition to the various social work strategies, the program provides a number of services. The services may be full services, part-time, or partial services. The services are provided to elderly persons who are financially indigent, in failing health, and who have no family member willing or able to care for them and they are unable to adequately care for themselves.

Services include the services of a Community Care Worker for two to 24-hours to provide personal care; homemaker services; home practical nursing care; socialisation; supervision for the client in his/her own home or a residential setting. The residential homes are Sunrise Cottage in East End, Hillside House in George Town, Golden Age Home in West Bay, Farrington House in West Bay, and Kirkconnell Community Care Centre in Cayman Brac.

The West Bay Adult Daycare Centre programme is provided daily Monday through Friday, 8.30 AM to 4.00 PM. It provides socialisation, physical activities, structured timed sessions, outings, monitoring of health and personal care needs, a hot meal, transportation and supervision in a safe environment. The clients are primarily ageing, mentally and physically handicapped persons. The residents of Golden Age Home as well as a few other frail elderly persons also attend daily.

- Provision or assistance with a voucher for nutritional needs.
- Provision of all clothing and personal needs.
- Provision of special equipment needs such as wheelchair, walker, or cane as needed.
- Provision of household furnishings as needed to maintain the home and provide services (kitchen supplies, linens, and appliances).
- Provision of housing repairs to improve or maintain the structure of the house. After assessment, this is provided through the Public Works Department.
- Provision of assistance or payment of utilities (i.e., water, gasoline, and telephone) by the Department of Social Services or the programme budget where applicable.
- Clients are provided with free medical care and regular medical supervision by each district clinic.
- Pamper programme provides disposable undergarments to enhance the provision of care to bed bound elderly persons at home being cared for by family.
- Provision of full or partial payment of fees to The Pines if and when applicable.
- Home care and residential services are also available in Cayman Brac.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I would like to thank the Minister for that comprehensive answer. The answer, however, seems to describe the welfare part of the Social Services Department.

Are any preventative methods used in dealing with the elderly? For instance, are there any programs that deal with the whole process of ageing that begin at a stage where the person is neither indigent nor physically handicapped, or aged to the point where the person is considered to be helpless?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr Speaker, that was a good observation by the Member. These programs continue to be developed through the Community Development Officers who have a better grasp, being in the community and visiting these people before they get to the stage that I mentioned.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Could the Honourable Minister then say if there is any specific program, be it in the community-based programs, or directly involved with the Social Services program, that fulfils the required recommendations made as a result of the Family Study, which suggested that special public sessions should be arranged which dramatise and discuss the process of ageing? These sessions could also lead to community based incentives in fulfilling the needs of the elderly. Has there been any specific attempt to address this recommendation?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, some of these were undertaken, especially during the emphasis on the International Day in Recognition of Older Persons. And as the Honourable Member referred to, the Study done on the family is a stepping stone for us to continue to expand and build on.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Could the Minister say whether or not the community based initiatives consider the use of productive activities such as the making of crafts, and using these types of activities for elderly persons?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, Mr. Speaker, we encourage that. As we go forward into the development of these daycare centres for the elderly in each district, it can then be expanded.

I do know that through the Community Development Officer in the district of Bodden Town there is a group that works out of the Webster Memorial United Church. They are very well organised. They go on tours to the Botanic Park and different areas. They get together and meet.

This is being looked at for further expansion and involvement by the Social Services to assist. And with the involvement more of the community, I think it is better than Social Services coming and having a hands-on. We all know the pride of the elderly, how they like to do things on their own, and this is what we are encouraging.

The Speaker: The Second Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Miss Heather Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker, since the Honourable Minister mentioned the residential homes in East End, George Town, West Bay and Cayman Brac, could he give an update on the progress of the Bodden Town Daycare Centre? What stage are we at now?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, Public Works will be undertaking the initiative to clear the area, fence and secure the place, once we can make funds available for the development there. Also there are funds to get the North Side situation started, and we would like to start with the daycare in the Civic Centre and then expand into a more comprehensive thing in the district.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I wonder if the Honourable Minister could give the House some idea of the age when one is considered elderly?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, my understanding is that it is 65 plus.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I will put this supplementary into one question, it is two but I will put it one and the Minister won't have to be continuously standing and sitting. Can he tell me if the majority of the people his is providing all the assistance for are female? That's one.

Is the provision of this assistance (clothing, household furnishings, house repairs, assistance of payment of utilities, free medical) only provided to the elderly, or are there other people in the community being provided with these? And are the majority of those persons female?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker the majority in the first part of the question are females. There are some under the age that I mentioned who are helped after being assessed and it is determined that they are in need. Once again, the predominant is on the female side.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I would like to thank the Honourable Minister for that reply. I would now like to ask if this is becoming a concern to his Ministry that the number of women in need is increasing? Does the Ministry have any intention of doing anything to correct this problem?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: I attended a meeting in Miami in regard to this. It is a universal concern that is shared by all when dealing with the elderly and the significant expense to the country for the provision of medical services—in this case to Social Services—to help them. We will be looking at this. I would like to encourage those who can assist us—families specifically—to give that undertaking. It has always been the proud tradition in the Cayman Islands that families continue to help, and that Social Services is not left alone to bear the burden.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I wonder if the Honourable Minister could say if a survey has ever been carried out to see whether these younger women have the potential to upgrade their education standards so that they can become self-productive. Has the Education Department ever been approached by the Ministry to share the burden of this survey to see if we can get these women back into society making an honest living instead of relying on the dole?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, to my knowledge there has not been a survey undertaken. But when we come across these cases we try to provide assistance where possible for those who will take up the offer to improve themselves. I am sure that all Members in this Honourable House have been approached by younger people. I have. One of the first things I ask them is if they are computer literate, and if I or other members could arrange for them to go to the Community College or wherever necessary to improve their skills. I think this is one way of going forward to better prepare those who have difficulties at an early stage.

One of the feelings within my Ministry and throughout the Social Services is that we need to address this problem at an earlier stage—specifically in cases of pregnancy—monitoring these young women from the time they go in for delivery, keeping a tab on them, monitoring them, so that we do not see a continuation and a compounding of the difficulties. We need to try to address these difficulties at an earlier age thus providing better prevention.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Whilst not perhaps directly related it is connected to the question. I noticed in the answer that the Honourable Minister mentioned "provision of full or partial payments of fees to The Pines if and when applicable or where realisable." I wonder if he could, 1) let me know whether or not the Social Service Department has any sort of supervised controls in connection with the management of The Pines; and 2) whether or not there are any vacancies at the Hillside House in George Town for the elderly that may be in need of that facility.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, there are no vacancies at this time at the Hillside Home. And, in regards to The Pines, the adult special needs supervisor sits on the Board, but we do not have any direct input into the management.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: I wonder if the Honourable Minister could say if any seminars are conducted on the development of self-esteem and the improvement of self-concept; and if at the end of that seminar any stipulation is made to the young women that they have to improve themselves.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker when Social Services assists with seminars, specifically in regard to domestic violence, also through the Young Parents Programme (YPP) and other avenues, we stress the importance of this.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I can hear that the Honourable Minister's hands are tied in that he does not have sufficient funds, and I don't think his Social Services Department has enough staff to cover all the problems that are developing.

The Honourable Minister mentioned monitoring the young women whom become pregnant, monitoring them through the delivery. I think the Government has a policy now of accepting those young girls back in school. I am aware of a few young ladies that have returned to high school. But it is my understanding that they are not allowed to graduate. I wonder why?

Since the Minister monitors these young ladies, does he have any idea why they are not allowed to graduate? To me, that is a lowering of their self-esteem. They are working to graduate along with their friends, and at the end of the day you are going to tell them that they do not have good grades? They have made a mistake in their lives and are prepared to pay that debt to society, but you are going to tell them that they cannot graduate? I wonder why.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, that has recently been brought to our attention. I will undertake to discuss a resolution to this with the Minister of Education because I can see where the Honourable Member is coming from. It doesn't make sense.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town?

The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I would like to thank my colleague for waiving his right and letting me have his turn.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the Minister with this responsibility to tell the House whether any consideration has been given to effecting credible strategies with a joint effort between his Ministry (that is, the Ministry of Social Welfare), the Ministry of Community Affairs, and the Education Department. From what I glean, it seems that his Ministry is bearing the brunt of these attempts. Have any attempts been made for co-ordinating efforts? Cursorily, at least, it would seem to yield better results.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Yes, we are now working in collaboration with the other two Ministries—Community Development and Education. As a matter of fact, this very week we are doing a seminar at the Marriott Hotel in regard to parenting. The people that are within the schools, within the community development, are people that are participating and who will now go into the communities and share this expert knowledge with the parents.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Minister tell the House whether this collaboration is strictly on an informal basis, or is there a formality to it in which parameters are clearly laid out with the interconnection of the three ministries, and with common ground covered adequately, and with understanding of the responsibilities and obligations of each ministry clearly drawn out?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, seeing the number of areas that the three different ministries cross in providing services to those that need it, recently it has become more formal. I think he has raised a good point. It has to be more formalised. It has to be specific where the responsibility lies, with all of us working toward solving or helping to solve this difficult problem we have.

The Speaker: We have to limit it to two additional supplementaries. The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I wonder if the Minister would be willing to give an undertaking to place more emphasis on trying to deal with the early elderly—which means the age between 65 and, say, 75 (which is a ten year period)—to see that creative activities are involved that might also help to improve their income and to improve their self worth and self image.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, once again this is a good observation. We will be concentrating on this area because the better we can make this age group of people, the less difficulty we see for them down the line.

The Speaker: No further supplementaries? Moving on to question 207, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION 207

No. 207: Dr. Frank McField asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation to describe the present morale and image of the staff of the Department of Social Services.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Staff morale and the image within the Department of Social Services is presently fairly good. There have been a number of positive changes undertaken within the department within the last few years, both prior to and as a result of the various organisational changes recommended in the Family Study.

One of the major accomplishments during 1997 was the creation of a grading scale for Social Workers. This grading scale encompasses six levels of Social Worker: from Social Worker Assistant, Social Worker Graduate, Social Worker, Senior Social Worker, Social Work Supervisor, to Social Work Manager.

Prior to that, all Social Workers were on the same scale, regardless of the years of experience and responsibilities. Persons who acted in a supervisory capacity were never remunerated for their work and in most instances were being paid exactly the same as the persons they supervised.

The issue of Home Care Assistants, some of whom were on a wage scale and others in established posts, was also addressed. Staff is presently being evaluated for movement from the wage scale to established positions. Additionally, staff that were acting in the capacity of programme supervisors for areas such as Foster Care,

Community Development, Residential Care and Probation/After Care, have had proper supervisory positions created, and have been formally appointed to those positions.

It must be noted that these are all changes the department had been working on for a number of years and which the findings and recommendations of the Family Study supported as being critical to staff morale.

Training has continued to be consistent on Island, and staff has access to overseas conferences and training on a regular basis. Some areas in which training has been provided include mediation, conflict resolution, adolescence, parenting, stress management and the 1995 Children Law, to name a few.

Staff expressed concerns in 1997 at the existing structure for the management of intakes. Management critically looked at (a) staff concerns; (b) how the structure of services worked, or did not work; and (c) the need to make services more available and easily accessible to clients. The decision was made to implement an intake unit.

This unit comprises four Social Workers and a Social Work supervisor who deal with all initial assessments and investigations of clients who are either seeking assistance or clients who have been referred for a service. This intake unit usually handles cases up to a maximum of three months. Matters requiring casework for a longer period of time would be assigned to a Social Worker in the long-term team who would be responsible for further casework with the client depending upon the nature of the case.

These changes have significantly improved service delivery to our clients and have also facilitated staff development and skills in assessment at the intake level and long-term teams. It has also allowed for staff in the long-term teams to have more time to do full casework, rather than being split in doing intake and long-term work.

The department continues to examine all aspects of its work in an effort to continue improving service delivery to our clients and to build on and enhance staff morale.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I don't have a supplementary, but I would just like to thank the Minister for this very comprehensive answer.

The Speaker: Moving on to question number 208, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION 208

No. 208: Dr. Frank McField asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation what steps have been taken to present to the public an image of the Department of Social Services as an agency concerned with both welfare and prevention.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, the department continues to do public education presentations to promote public awareness on various topics, and to present an image to the public of the department as not only an agency concerned with welfare matters, but an agency committed to prevention.

A number of initiatives have been undertaken, specifically through the Community Development Unit. Programmes such as the summer play schemes, aimed at proper supervision and care of children during the month of August; community based programmes aimed at empowering people to get involved in addressing issues of concern to them, and to hopefully stem the development of further problems in their neighbourhoods. In addition, solid working partnerships have been forged with the police, education, health, the churches and other agencies on various projects.

Family life programmes for parents and members of churches have been undertaken; training programmes for after-school project workers; counselling in career planning and development for youth groups. An emphasis on building good programmes directed at high-risk youths is a major component of the Community Development Unit.

Close liaison is maintained between the Community Development Unit and the officers of the Community Liaison section of the Police Department.

Child month was launched in May 1997. During this month, special focus was placed on our children, highlighting the positive attributes of many of our children and youth. Throughout this month the emphasis is also on people having access to parenting forums which serve to enhance positive parenting and prevention of many of the familial problems.

As parenting is such a significant factor in prevention, the department has been holding ongoing workshops throughout the year, and has just embarked on a national parenting project under the auspices of Parenting Partners, which I alluded to earlier on, which is the Caribbean Parenting Group.

The staff of Parenting Partners is training the first local group of 30 trainers. From this core group other persons, both professionals and community members, will be trained. This is in an effort to develop a comprehensive training programme easily available and accessible to everyone. It is also clearly recognises the need for ordinary members of the community to join the Government in helping to address the many issues confronting our society as a result of poor or inadequate parenting skills.

Issues affecting our elderly also continue to be highlighted during the year and, in particular, during the month of October. Special emphasis will be given to the elderly over the next year as the International Year of Older Persons is recognised by the United Nations.

Just as an aside, Mr. Speaker, I do know that they have just finished working with the Savannah United Church on their parenting seminar there. I have been made to understand that it was very impressive and very well received and accepted by the community.

The Speaker: Supplementaries? The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

Dr. Frank McField: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Before I ask my supplementary I would like to say that this is a very comprehensive answer. It goes to show how the Department of Social Services is very conscious of the work that they are doing and they are able to provide us with comprehensive answers in a very short period of time. I do appreciate that.

Mr. Speaker, I would just like to find out whether or not the community development programme and officers are under Social Services, or whether or not they are under another Ministry?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, first of all I would like to say that I appreciate the kind remarks by the Honourable Member. I know the difficult times that Social Services goes through at times, and I know this will mean a lot for them. Most of the time there is constant criticism. I really appreciate that.

In regard to the community development workers, they are under the supervision of Social Services.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Could the Minister say how their pay and qualifications relate to those of trained social workers?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, as this is a new initiative, the community development workers were hired. What we are trying to do is in-house training. All four of them have recently been to courses in Jamaica. In regard to their pay scale, I would prefer to make sure, but I don't think they are paid as much as the Social Worker.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Could the Minister say whether or not he has information to suggest that the workload of a community officer might perhaps be more like the workload of a politician? It is not just from 9.00 to 5.00, but it could be evenings and nights as well. Can he say whether or not in considering their contribution they consider the fact that they have the additional skill of a motivator and are willing to give particular sacrifice? Although they might not have the college education, is their community-based experiences counted in the valuation of their jobs?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, the Member is quite correct in saying that the tasks undertaken by these community development workers result in some unusual hours. The actual assessment of what goes into their salaries is done by Personnel. But I feel that it should be looked at at some stage towards improving the grading of it.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Would the Honourable Member be able to say if the pay scale for a community development officer is provided with difficulties or, by reason of the civil servants pay hierarchy, is there any flexibility for the persons who do not possess the typical university qualifications to be rewarded according to performance rather than according to certification?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, I have an understanding of what he is saying, but I don't think I am in a position . . . I would prefer to get this information for him from Personnel through the Honourable Acting First Official Member.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, perhaps the Minister might then be able to say at what scale the community worker is presently graded?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, at this moment I don't have that. But I would undertake to pass it to the Honourable Member.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. This supplementary is for my personal enlightenment. The Honourable Minister more or less gave us a breakdown of the services provided by the Department of Social Services, which is not always respected for the high services it gives to the general public. Can he tell me how many of the social workers or members of staff are women?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, I would also acknowledge the kind remarks by the Member. All but five of approximately 30 are females.

The Speaker: Are there any further supplementaries? If there are no further supplementaries that concludes Question Time for this morning. We shall now suspend proceedings for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.40 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12.25 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Proceedings are resumed. Item number 4 on today's Order Paper, Government Business. Continuation of the second reading debate on The Appropriation (1999) Bill, 1998. The Third Elected Member for West Bay continuing.

DEBATE ON THE BUDGET ADDRESS DELIVERED BY THE HONOURABLE THIRD OFFICIAL MEMBER ON MONDAY, 16TH NOVEMBER 1998

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

When we adjourned yesterday, I had started to offer some comments in the area of education. One of things that I did mention with regard to education was that the feedback I had gotten from my people is that they are very upset. People who have children in our Government schools are very upset with regard to the new school fees that are proposed to come into effect. The problem is that we have some parents who are not earning a whole lot of money and they have three or four children. It has become extremely difficult to find the funds to make sure that these fees are paid.

I also fear that if the new fees are introduced then we will probably find parents unable to pay some of these fees keeping their children at home rather than attempting to send them to school. That would be a tragedy as far as I am concerned, because of the progress we have made in this country ensuring that every child in this country has an opportunity to get a first class education.

I also mentioned briefly the recent findings regarding learning and young children. What was interesting was that research has proven that we have to start at an earlier age to ensure that we take advantage of opportunities for our young children to maximise their learning experience. Mr. Speaker, when I went home I did some research. I would like to share some excerpts from a publication that I came across, and some of the facts with regard to this new research.

In a book entitled Rethinking the Brain, by Rima Shore, it says in the executive summary: "Brain research has been stimulated in part by growing concern about the status of children in America . . ." This is an American book, Mr Speaker, but I am quite sure that some of the same findings apply here. . . . "not only their academic achievement but also their health, safety and overall well being. There is growing consensus among decision makers in many fields that efforts to recast policy and reconsider the best use of public resources must begin at the beginning with clear-headed thinking about young children's brains."

He said, "What have we learned? Human development hinges on the interplay between nature and nurture." It says here, "Much of our thinking about the brain has been dominated by old assumptions that the genes we are born with determine how our brains develop, and in turn how our brains develop and in turn how our brain development determines how we interact with the world. Recent brain research challenges these assumptions."

"Neuroscientists have found that throughout the entire process of development—beginning even before birth—the brain is affected by environmental conditions including the kind of nourishment, care, surroundings and stimulation an individual receives. The impact of the environment is dramatic and specific: Not merely influencing the general direction of development but actually affecting how the intricate circuitry of the brain is wired."

It continues by saying, "It is during the first three years of life that the vast majority of synapses are produced." What this is referring to is the connections in the brain between the neurones. It says, "The number of synapses increase with astonishing rapidity until about age three and then hold steady throughout the first decade of life. A child's brain becomes super dense with twice as many synapses as it will eventually need. Brain development is then a process of pruning. That is why early experience is so crucial."

Mr. Speaker, we have seen here in the Cayman Islands where children who were exposed to a pre-school experience showed dramatic advancement when they entered primary school as compared to those who did not have that experience. I think it is important for us to be aware of how important this early experience is to the development of our children.

It says here, "In this way, early experiences—positive or negative—have a decisive impact on how the brain is wired. A great deal of new research leads to this conclusion. How humans develop and learn depends critically and continually on the interplay between nature, that is, an individual's genetic endowment and nurturing, the nutrition, surroundings, care, stimulation and teaching that is provided or withheld. It says "both are crucial."

And under the heading of "Early care has a decisive and long lasting impact on how people develop their ability to learn and their capacity to regulate their own emotions" it says, "The way that parents, families and other care-givers relate and respond to young children and the ways that they mediate children's contact with environment directly affects the formation on neuro-pathways."

Neuroscientists are finding that a strong secure attachment to a nurturing caregiver can have a protective, biological function helping a growing child withstand what is indeed learned from the ordinary stresses of life."

And it continues by saying, "Because the brain has the capacity to change there are ample opportunities to promote and support children's healthy growth and development." But timing, Mr. Speaker, is crucial. "While learning continues throughout the life cycle, there are optimal periods of opportunity, prime times, that is, during which the brain is particularly efficient at specific types of learning."

It says here, "Today, fully a quarter of American children under the age of six are growing up in poverty. The same figure holds for children under the age of three. Economic deprivation affects their nutrition, access to medical care, the safety and predictability of their physical environment, the level of family stress and a quality and continuity of their day to daycare."

Mr. Speaker, that is not as serious a problem here in the Cayman Islands because I must say that our children are entitled to free medical and free dental. If a mother finds herself in a position where she has a lack of finances, she is able to gather assistance through the Social Services Department by way of free lunches and other things that the children have need of. So, we are not too bad off in these areas.

I am aware that the philosophy of the Social Services Department with regard to children is that they don't see any colour or nationality. If a child needs, a child needs. And some of us would argue that maybe only Caymanian children should be assisted. That is not the policy of the Social Services Department: If a child needs, that need is addressed.

It says, "Study after study shows that intensive well-designed timely intervention can improve the prospects and the quality of life of many children who are considered to be at risk of cognitive social or emotional impairment. In some cases, effective intervention efforts can even ameliorate conditions once thought to be virtually untreatable such as autism or mental retardation."

"The efficacy of early invention has been demonstrated and replicated in diverse communities across the nation. Children from families with the least formal education appear to derive the greatest cognitive benefits from intervention programs. Moreover, the impact of early intervention appears to be long lasting, particularly when there is follow-up during the elementary school years."

So, we see how important it is for the young child to be in the right atmosphere and his physical and emotional needs addressed.

It says, "Promote the healthy development and learning of every child. If we miss early opportunities to promote healthy development and learning, later remediation will be more difficult and expensive and be less effective given the knowledge, methods and studies that are currently available."

Mr. Speaker, basically this is saying that prevention is better than cure. It is better for you to address the needs of the young child when he is young rather than dealing with those issues as a result of that child's needs not being addressed.

It says, "As we move into the next century, our children need and deserve policies and practices that reflect the importance of the early years, and that embody the principles that emerged from the Brain Conference. In particular, new knowledge about early development adds weight and urgency to the following policy goals.”

“Researchers have found that most childcare settings are of mediocre to poor quality and the nation’s youngest children are the most likely to be in unsafe, sub-standard childcare.”

We do have quite a few childcare centres here in the Cayman Islands, and I know an effort has been made to make sure that these are all properly licensed, and that the right atmosphere and environment are created for the care of the young child. But I think one of the problems we have—and this is why we have to learn from research and experience—is that we need to ensure that the basic requirement for anybody opening a early childhood centre is that they have a qualified member of staff responsible for the training of that young child. Not just a qualified teacher, but a qualified teacher in the early years as far as education is concerned.

And, Mr. Speaker, the other caregivers should be exposed to some type of training with regard to the young child. Issues like health and safety . . . there are a number of issues that have to be addressed. If there is a problem then the caregivers are in a position where they can address the issue in a very satisfactory manner.

Here we have a tendency to believe that when a child is very young, that is, between one and four (because the public schools do not admit young children until they are four years nine months) any facility that takes care of that child is basically offering a babysitting service. That should not be the position. The recent research has proven that in these critical first two or three years, with the right experience the child is well set for the rest of his life as far as stimulation and learning what he should be learning.

It says, “In short, new insights into early brain development suggest that as we care for our youngest child, as we institute policies or practices that affect their day-to-day experiences, the stakes are very high. But we can take comfort in a knowledge that there are many ways that we, as parents, as caregivers, as citizens, and as policymakers can raise healthy, happy, smart children.”

The Speaker: Could I interrupt the Member for a minute? I fully appreciate that everything considering our children is very important, but in accordance with Standing Order 63(2), which says, “On the motion for the Second Reading of an Appropriation Bill, debate shall be confined to the financial and economic state of the Islands and the general principles of Government policy and administration as indicated by the Bill and estimates.” It is very important, but I think you have elaborated quite at length. So, if you would bring this to a conclusion I would appreciate it.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker, I am glad you interrupted me at this stage because I am just about finished. But we are dealing with education and I am trying to emphasise the importance of us as policymakers being aware of the importance of our investment in our youth at an early age.

It says, “We can take heart in the knowledge that there are many things that we as a nation can do—starting now—to brighten the future of our children.”

So, Mr. Speaker, I fully support what I have said in this area. I believe that the emphasis now more than ever before has to be on ensuring that the facilities and the opportunities are made available to our children so that they can start at an earlier age.

Continuing with education . . . and I don’t know where to proceed, Mr. Speaker, because the ruling that you just made sort of handcuffed me. I was going to deal with the administration. I don’t know if I can deal with the administration since that does not have anything to do with finances. I think it is very important that somebody addresses the issues with regard to the administration as it exists in the Education Department.

The Speaker: You can carry on. I will stop you if you go too far.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, sir. I will watch your eye.

Mr. Speaker, I feel strongly about the education of our youth, and I believe that we need to do whatever is necessary to ensure that we are in the best position to get the job done with regard to education. I have been told that we have a problem in the administration at the Education Department.

I recall that sometime ago the position was that we had a Chief Education Officer, and then we had a Deputy or two Deputies, and then we had a number of additional officers that specialised in certain areas. I got the impression that that system was abolished, and what we have now is a Chief Education Officer and a number of Education Officers with specific responsibilities in specific areas. Now, my experience has been that when the Chief Education Officer is away or busy, there are very few others you can call to ask how to deal with a particular issue, or bring an issue to somebody’s attention.

It appears that the only person who has any authority in the Education Department is the Chief Education Officer. In any organisation you must have a plan of hierarchy. By that I mean if I am the president, I must have a vice-president who in my absence can continue to go forward.

I am aware that every member of staff in the Education Department is a Caymanian. They are all qualified Caymanians. Most of them were former teachers. Now, I think one of the mistakes that we have made is that whenever there is a vacancy to be filled in the Education Department with an administrative function or responsibility, what we do is go to the classrooms. We look around to see which teachers are the most efficient and we pull from that pool and say, ‘Okay, you are promoted to Education Officer’ or whatever.

Mr. Speaker, we are all different. Some of us have the ability to be good teachers, but very, very lousy administrators. I don’t know if that’s the case, but let me put it this way: Right now I believe . . . and I did mention yesterday that I think the Minister for Education is a good man. I think he has a genuine interest in ensuring that the children of this country have the opportunity to achieve a first class education. I honestly believe that, Mr. Speaker. But with the situation that now exists with regard to administration, something has to be done.

You only have two choices as far as I am concerned: The first choice is to say, 'Okay, we don't believe what we hear, that everybody in the Education Department is incompetent' and we set up a proper hierarchy and give them specific responsibilities and see what they are capable of doing. Make them accountable. Make them produce results—measurable results.

It is unfortunate that once you are in the civil service, and it appears that you are not doing the job . . . the politician has nothing to do with civil servants. Let me make that plain: The Minister doesn't have the authority to go in and fire whoever is not doing his or her job. He doesn't have that ability or responsibility. In the civil service, if you have a problem in a specific department, rather than doing what is done in the private sector by saying, 'Okay, George, I am sorry, man, you are not pulling your weight, here's two weeks' notice.' He would get a cheque and move on. What happens now, is that that "problem" in Education is then transferred to Customs, Immigration, or somewhere else. We don't address the issue!

Because of the importance of education, we cannot afford to tolerate that type of situation. I know the present Chief Education Officer. Either he does not have the support or he has a problem in delegation. It appears that he is doing everything. And regardless of who we think we are, one person is not capable of doing everything. Something suffers as a result.

Mr. Speaker, I hope that His Excellency the Governor is aware of the comments I am making because I am aware that he is ultimately responsible for the civil service. I have found him to be a very efficient, very conscientious and concerned individual. He takes his responsibilities extremely seriously. Now, if we have a problem in the administration of Education, I am asking that some action be taken.

I am aware that the Minister has, on his own, requested certain actions. To give him the subject and the responsibility for Education but not provide him with the personnel necessary to do the job is very unfair—extremely unfair.

One of things that I don't agree with . . . and, like I said, the Minister was not responsible for that . . . and I have heard the feedback. When the current Chief Education Officer was appointed I heard a lot of negative feedback: "We have regressed twenty five, thirty, forty years." "We have always had a Caymanian as the Chief Education Officer." The excuse that I was given was that there was nobody in the Education Department whom they felt was capable of doing the job. Now, are you only talking about an administrative position? Why is it you couldn't bring somebody from finance and put him as Chief Education Officer? It's an administrative position, that's all it is.

What you do then is surround yourself with people who are briefed in the area of education. It has to do with administration. And I think that's the fallacy we have been following all along, that the only person we can promote in Education is somebody who has an educational background. In most cases it is a teacher.

Mr. Speaker, I just got a very good example: The Minister of Health is not a doctor, but he does a fantastic job in the area of health.

The only message that I have for the present Minister for Education is this: You have the responsibility for ensuring that our children get the very best in education and don't allow anyone or anything to stand in your way. That's the message I would like to leave.

I have a couple of businesses and I employ probably close to sixty or seventy people. I have a very strange philosophy. That philosophy is this, and I have reminded my management and staff over, and over again: Do not be deceived by my niceness; if you are not doing your job, I will fire you. It's as simple as that. As long as you do what you are supposed to do, you and I are the best of friends. But don't take advantage of my friendship and believe I am going to let you slide on my job. I think that's the same philosophy that the Minister needs to take with regard to education.

It appears that the only real concern to most officers is a pay cheque at the end of the month. We need a real revolution in education. We really need a revolution. I am not talking about any military one either. But we need a serious shake-up in education.

The other thing that I have mentioned to the Minister before, and I know that he is very receptive to the idea, I am aware that on the primary levels our young people are exposed to daily devotions. When they hit middle school and high school, it changes. Because the school is so big I am told the Head of Year basically conducts the daily activities or devotions. A lot of time it has nothing to do with religious matters. They are briefed on what is coming up with regard to the school calendar of events and other issues. It is extremely important at all levels for our children to be constantly reminded of the importance of God in their lives on a daily basis. It is extremely important. I know when I was in high school and the school was not as big, every morning Reverend Gray conducted daily devotions.

I am hoping that we here in the Cayman Islands never adopt some of the policies I see in other countries. Here in the Cayman Islands we have a certain culture, certain customs, and our motto is "He hath founded it upon the seas." Who is "He?" God. So we have a very strong religious foundation here. Now, we have Muslims here, and I don't know what else. But, Mr. Speaker, if they come here to live and go to school among us then I don't care what religious persuasion they come from, they must be exposed to daily devotions.

I know that it is one o'clock, it is really a good time for us to....

The Speaker: We shall suspend proceedings until 2:30.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 1.02 PM*PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.59 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Proceedings are resumed. Debate continues on the Appropriation (1999) Bill, 1998. The Third Elected Member for West Bay, continuing.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

When we took the lunch break I was finishing up my comments regarding education. The last issue I was dealing with was consideration of appointing Chaplains for the middle and high schools to ensure that the young people are exposed to religious devotions on a daily basis.

The other issue I would like to just touch on (and I know my good friend from North Side is going to go into more detail) is the issue of the establishment of the office or desk for Women's Affairs. I recall when the motion was brought by the two lady members there was a lot of enthusiasm, a lot of excitement. I think the members here as well as the members of the general public were excited that something was finally going to be done with regard to domestic violence in this country.

We have a tendency to ignore the reality of certain situations, and I'm glad to see that we have finally acknowledged that we have a problem in this country with regard to spousal abuse or domestic violence. When we talk about domestic violence we automatically think of a man taking advantage of his wife or his girlfriend. But I have seen the reverse where the woman takes advantage of the husband or boyfriend.

Since that motion was passed, the former Minister for Community Development put in place certain things with regard to that office. There was an office rented in the Elizabethan Square, and it appears that very little has been done to address this very important issue. My concept of one of the main objectives of the office was that it would have been a shelter, or refuge, for spouses—be they male or female—who had suffered some abuse. They would at least be able to go in there maybe sit with a counsellor, even be offered some physical protection at the time even it was on a temporary basis.

I am aware—and this is hard to admit—that there are people in this country who for some reason or the other, including domestic violence and spousal abuse, are sleeping on the streets of this country. I was talking to someone recently who found herself in this position. She said, "Mr Jefferson, if you come out to the Port Authority docks between 1.00 and 6.00 in the morning, you will see exactly what I am talking about." I was exposed to that type of experience in places like Washington D.C. where I saw homeless people. I never expected to experience that here in the Cayman Islands. But it does exist.

The office of Women's Affairs has to play a very vital role in ensuring that especially those people who are subjected to physical abuse who are using the streets or the docks of this country as a getaway, that that issue be addressed immediately. There is definitely a need for some type of shelter for persons who are exposed to domestic violence or physical abuse.

I would like to go on to the issue of the environment, which is one of my pet subjects. Many of the people of this country share my concern. I was visiting an office the other day, and I happened to look through the window and what caught my eye was a mountain. I soon realised that the mountain that I had seen was actually the dump. When we are talking about a recycling program of any nature in this country, it is very expensive indeed, Mr. Speaker. I was told that in the last year Government has made one shipment of used oil out of this country. One shipment, at a cost in the region of $3 per gallon is very expensive indeed.

The alternative, if we can't afford to get these by-products off the island, would be to simply say let's act as if they don't exist, and let's throw them on the ground or let's bury them. That is what has happened in the past, Mr. Speaker.

Several questions have been raised recently in this House with regard to our recycling program. I remember a young lady coming down here in shorts, trying to impress the Members with regard to what was being done in this area. Very little has been done. I am waiting on the request to come to this House for funds to buy additional property for the extension of the dump in this country.

All members are aware that we had a gentleman in this country that was very interested in assisting Government with regard to this problem. Not only would he be responsible for ensuring that what had to be shipped out was shipped out by way of recycling, but in the process pay Government so much per pound, or gallon, or whatever, for what was shipped out of the country. The gentleman experienced no end of frustration. Why? Because of egos.

I tried to assist as much as I could with very little effect, because of egos. I made a comment in one of the meetings I arranged that the persons in charge were not from here, and if they allowed our environment to be damaged because of inability, or egos, they had an option to go somewhere else. I don't have that option.

The other thing to keep in mind is that the issue of the environment is so important to our tourism industry. In this country we brag of some of the best dive sites, some of the cleanest and most pristine waters of any place in the world. But it doesn't take much to damage that if we are not careful with what we do in regard to the environment. I am waiting to see what happens in this area.

To give an example of what I am talking about, it took this gentleman something like three years just to get an appointment with the Ministry. And the only reason why that happened was because I arranged it on a personal basis. I was at my office the other day in West Bay, and one of my West Bay constituents came in. It was his pet concern. He asked, "John, what are we doing about the garbage and the by-products we are creating in this county?" I told him what efforts I have made on a personal basis and the results, but many people in this country share my concern.

It doesn't matter to me who gets credit for what is done. It really doesn't—if, at the end of the day, the job is done. But it appears that in some people's minds unless they came up with the idea or the concept and they moved on and had it done so they could get complete credit, they are not prepared to do anything. I learned a long time ago that if you keep your mouth shut and you listen it is amazing what you can learn from others.

I also don't have the attitude that I know everything. I am not an expert in every field. But there are some people who believe that they are experts in every field. As a result, we run into the kind of situations I am talking about.

Mr. Speaker, yesterday I mentioned briefly the feedback that I am getting that it is becoming extremely difficult to do business in this country. That is, Mr. Speaker, dealing with the Planning Department for approval, dealing with Immigration Board with regard to work permits, dealing with the Trade and Business Licensing Board with regard to licences. I was invited recently to appear before the Trade and Business Licensing Board to express my concerns in this area. That Board was established with the objective to streamline and put Government in a position where it could deal with applications for licenses in a very expeditious manner. Mr. Speaker, that has not been the reality.

It is not uncommon for one to sit for three or four months, waiting on a trade and business license to be approved. It's not unusual. I have spoken to many people who have expressed their concern in this area. I have had personal experience myself. I said to the Board, "You know who I am. I have quite a few trade and business licenses in this country. You know who I am. I am not fronting for anybody." It took me four months to get a trade and business license. The only thing that I didn't have to do was provide the Board with a sample of what I was going to be selling in order for them to make a decision. Ridiculous!

The message I am trying to get across to them is that people in this country are generally very honest people; they want to do things correctly. But if it is going to take them four months to get a trade and business license, you are going to force people to go underground and do things illegally.

The other disease that I see creeping back into this country is things being done based on who you are. The policy should be, regardless of who is involved, whatever political persuasion they may have, if they apply legitimately for permission and everything is in order, they should have no problem getting approval.

The other thing that exists is that . . . and I am aware of this because someone told me that this had been his experience. There are certain members of certain Boards who are using their positions—or they are abusing their position—for personal advantage. I was told recently that on the Immigration Board there are certain members who get permits granted with the understanding that you pay for your permit yourself, and you work for free for a period of time; and if you ever step out of line, they go back and have your permit cancelled. In other words, they are holding desperate people who need employment hostage for personal gain.

That's wrong and I trust that those who are responsible will investigate and determine whether such abuse exists in these Boards.

On a lighter note, let me say that I appreciate some of the services and programmes that have been established for dealing with children who are deemed to be at risk, that is, programmes within the Social Services Department. I am particularly referring to the foster parent programme in this country. There are children in this country whose parents, for one reason or another, are unable to care for them properly. As a result, they come into the custody of the Social Services Department. The Social Services Department then attempts to find good homes for those children.

I am aware of the programme because my wife and I recently were approved as foster parents for a young Caymanian boy. Every Thursday evening, on a faithful and consistent basis, we attend a class that teaches how to better cope by first of all addressing the needs of these children, and also enhancing your parental skills. Like I said before, I am a person who feels that you can learn from anybody if you have the right attitude.

I must say that this is money well spent and the Social Services Department is doing a fantastic job dealing with kids in this country who find themselves at risk.

With regard to the needs of my district, that is, the district of West Bay, I am continuing to push for our new hurricane shelter/civic centre. I am going to continue to push for the multi-purpose hall and new primary school for the district. The other thing that I want to see established . . . and it is all tied in with the construction of the hurricane centre or shelter, is a district public library.

You know, it does not speak well for a country that boasts of such prosperity, where, for example, only recently we put one in North Side and I think one in East End and all we had was the one in George Town. One of the essential facilities in any district is a public library, a place where our young people can do their homework, have an opportunity to do whatever research they may have as an assignment. Adults go in there to casually read and spend time in a very productive manner.

The plan is that the West Bay Town Hall be converted into our district library. We cannot get that far because the district town hall is the only public facility in West Bay that can house any significant amount of people. So we can't turn that into a public library until we have a facility for that purpose.

I think we have done well with regard to roads at the district level. There are not a lot of roads left in our district that need to be done. I am aware that many of the other districts that had a problem in this area. Those needs are now being addressed, for example, in Bodden Town. So I think we have done well with regard to roads.

I opened my remarks by expressing concern with regard to the extent of Government borrowings over the last five or six years. According to my information, the total borrowing so far is in the region of $92 million. And this includes projected borrowings for 1999, it doesn't take into consideration the recommendation of the Minister for Tourism who is now in charge of Works with effect from the 1st January.

If it was wrong for the last government, that is the 1988 to 1992 government, to borrow excessively, it's wrong for this government to do the same. It doesn't depend on who is doing the borrowing, the evil is still there, the danger is still there. I think that we have to be extremely careful with regard to public borrowings and how we run up our public debt in this country. Like I mentioned before, things are good now. You can run to any bank and get any amount of money you want. But I believe that we have to be conscious of the fact that around us the world is experiencing financial crisis and chaos. Anything that affects the world will eventually affect us here in the Cayman Islands financially.

I am aware that there are needs that have to be addressed; needs with regard to additional educational facilities, new schools, new halls, etc. But I believe that in our enthusiasm to address these needs we have to be very careful how we go about doing that.

I also mentioned the need for Government to properly identify the cost of its services, so that services can be realistically priced. I know that everyone does not agree with my philosophy. If the general public knew the real cost and we were in a position where we provided a first class service, I believe that the general public is prepared to pay for the cost of those services.

I do not agree with the way that some of the new revenue measures have been arrived at, especially in the area of book rentals and school fees. Who went through and determined what the costs of those services are? And what do we have to get, to get it all in one go? We have had fees increased ten times the existing amounts, we have had fees doubling. When you take into consideration the fact that we have some parents who have three or four children in public school, it becomes extremely expensive.

What we in here have to keep in mind is that not everybody in this country makes four, five or six thousand dollars a month. There are many people in my district—and that's who I take my cue from—who are making $152 a week from which they now have to pay pension and health insurance; they have to feed themselves, they have to clothe their families; and in most cases they also pay rent. You and I are both aware of the ridiculous prices that people are now paying in this country for rent just because of the demand. People are expecting to get rich overnight at the expense of those persons who need such a service.

I believe that our elected ministers, most of them anyway, are doing a fairly good job with regard to carrying out their responsibilities. But, Mr. Speaker, there is a definite void, and a definite lack of proper leadership overall offered by Government at the present time. With the pace of development, with the pace of growth in this country, if ever there was a time when we needed vigilant and visionary leadership, it is today. I mentioned before that when you are in a position of leadership there are times when you are going to have to make decisions that are very unpopular. You cannot please everybody at all times.

It appears that one of the attempts of the present Government is to please everybody. And you know where that leaves us. It reminds me of the little story I mentioned before. When you try to please everybody what happens? Everybody falls in the river. It is impossible for you to please everyone.

My concern is that we ensure that the good ship Cayman continues to sail on the right course. Not only for those of us who are hitting our twilight years, looking forward to maybe soon being able to retire, but for the next generation coming up behind us who may not be as tolerant as we are in a lot of areas. We must ensure that we are able to pass on to our offspring a healthy comfortable environment where they can continue to earn an honest, decent living and where they can live in peace for many years to come.

Mr. Speaker, we really don't appreciate what we have in this country until we go somewhere else. When my eldest son was a student at Wesleyan Christian Academy, he was fortunate enough to visit Zimbabwe in Africa. You know he is a very quiet, very responsible young man, and he said to me, "Dad, we really don't appreciate how good we have it in this country." He said, "For a snack we think nothing of going to Fosters and picking up a Snickers or something like that, which we feel is very healthy." He said, "For a snack those kids chewed the husk of the corn." There are no roads, their schools are basically made of mud, but that was the best that they could do.

I think there was some controversy recently with regard to a letter written by some young lady basically saying we felt that we were special in this country, or blessed. And the message was that that was not necessarily the case. I am convinced that we are a blessed people. This didn't just happen; it is as a result of the fact that our history and our culture has always emphasised and acknowledged the need and the existence of Almighty God.

Mr. Speaker, I wish the Government well in carrying out its responsibilities for the next two years. But I would only caution that I am hoping in the next Budget—the Budget for the year 2000—that we are not faced with the same dilemma that we are faced with in the 1999 Budget where we have to constantly . . . and this has been the practise now over the last six years as far as this Government is concerned, where you borrow funds to basically balance the Budget.

Thank you, Mr. Speaker, for your time.

The Speaker: The floor is open to debate, does any other Member wish to speak. The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

As is my normal tactic in speaking on the Budget Address and the Throne Speech, I will not waste the time of the Members of this House by repeating what has been said before. Yet one has to be very careful, because maybe there are some items that should be repeated by each politician standing to speak in Parliament. I think my colleagues on the Backbench have covered those items very well. But there are one or two areas that no one has touched on as yet.

The first one that I will say few words on is on the introduction of the Financial Secretary's Budget Address. I think every Honourable Member who spoke before me touched on it, and that was his remarks on Hurricane Mitch. We must give God thanks that he spared us from the most dangerous hurricane in the history of hurricanes in our area. I had the opportunity to visit La Ceiba, having a brother who lives in Roatan. Thank God, nothing happened to his home or to him, other than running short of food—which his good sister jumped on the airline and took to him.

But La Ceiba made me think twice about the Cayman Islands. The situation is not nice. There are kids without food, there are kids without clothes, there are kids without shoes; there are kids without a roof over their heads. Some are living in tents. Some are living on the bare ground. I mention that because as a Caymanian, and a person who lives on an island in the hurricane's path, and looking at the disaster preparedness in my Budget for 1999 I can only find $100,300. Should a hurricane the force of Hurricane Mitch stay within the Cayman Islands area as long as it did in the Honduras and Nicaragua areas, sad will be the day for these islands.

I don't think we would have had the major damage to the houses, other than along the seashore, because I do think that our houses are built better. But it would have been severe damage. I am going to throw a challenge to the Financial Secretary and the Ministers of Executive Council that a National Disaster Fund be set up immediately for the Cayman Islands.

I do remember that my colleagues, the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town and the Second Elected Member for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, some time back brought such a motion. If it is not within the heart of the Government to start this National Disaster Fund, . . . I am not asking just for a hurricane. This disaster fund must include the loss of a home due to fire. It must include the loss of a home due to flooding.

I listened to the Social Services giving this Parliament a brief insight into the jobs that they have to carry out. It is unfair to expect them to manage disasters along the lines of the loss of homes because of fire, flooding or any other disaster.

I will go further and throw that challenge to the people of the Cayman Islands, that the Government start such a fund, and that each and every one of us donate maybe $5 per month, if that's all we can afford, $1 per week, whatever we can afford into that fund. Let us build that fund to be prepared for a disaster of the nature of Hurricane Mitch. God has been good to us. Hurricane Gilbert passed us by; Hurricane Mitch passed us by, and we pray to Him that we will be as lucky in the next hurricane season. But only God can say what will happen.

When I look at the vote for official travel, . . . I know we have to travel. I know the Government has to travel. I have no problem with that. But I see this vote increasing from $1.4 million in 1998, to $1,585,511 in 1999. Which is more important to us representatives of the people's needs—official travel, or preparedness in case of a disaster?

I know there are certain departments that must travel to bring in new business. I am quite aware of that. But I am certain that if each department decided to cut back its budget by $10,000 or $15,000, we could put those funds towards a disaster fund.

Today I am saddened to be standing in this Parliament, speaking to the people of my constituency, North Side, and to the people of the Cayman Islands. I am saddened because when I campaigned as a National Team Member in 1992, and in 1996, we were constantly out on the platform crying there would be no more tax increases, no more loan bills. We said we would cut the suit according to the cloth. Today, I am standing here with a tax package put before me, a loan bill put before me. When we sat there and said that the last Government had taxed the people more than any other Government, . . . we should take time and add the tax increases and the loan bills that the National Team Government—of which I was a part—has brought. I think it beats the Government we campaigned against by far.

The Bible says, 'Blessed are the children for they shall inherit the earth.' You know, I will say, 'blessed are the children of the Cayman Islands for they shall inherit the public debt.'

We are bringing another increase in the cost of alcohol and cigarettes. Let me make it very clear. I am not encouraging any person to drink or to smoke. I am not going to come to this Parliament to legislate the morals of the general public. They must do that for themselves. But the danger in the constant increase on cigarettes and alcohol . . . and it is unfortunate to say it, but the people that indulge are the people at the lower end of the income brackets.

You know, our increasing a package of cigarettes—that very quickly went from $2.50 to $3.50—and a glass of wine—that went from $3.00 to $4.50, in some places $5.00—is not going to stop the person that drinks or the person that smokes. My concern, being one who has always fought for the women of these islands is whether or not the wife at the end of the week will have less money to buy milk for the baby? Is the Government going to increase its financial assistance to those mothers who cannot meet the costs for the week because the man is still smoking his cigarettes and having his glass of wine?

If the increase on cigarettes and alcohol is to try and curb those persons who indulge, I think we should be big enough men and women, if this is what we want to achieve, to bring back prohibition. I don't think any of us are that big.

Another favourite subject of mine, having been the daughter of a farmer, is agriculture. I remember in the 1998 Budget Address it was said that these islands are now self-sufficient in bananas. I would have thought that in the 1999 Budget we would have been self-sufficient in another crop for the cost of agriculture to the Government. We have heard the entire world blame everything on El Niño. Why doesn't the Cayman Islands also blame it on El Niño? I hasten to add that there has been a little improvement. And a little improvement in my opinion is better than none.

When I look at the D-Plans, and I see that the department hosted a conference on the Convention of International Trade and Endangered Species of Wild Flora and Fauna. To me it would have been much better for that money to have been spent on holding a conference with other people in the agriculture section in the region to study the crop diseases seeing that we were told that El Niño, and various crop diseases, caused the setback in agriculture. But being a woman, and daring to step into the realms of a man with agriculture, I am only offering suggestions and my opinion. If I remember correctly (and I do not claim to have a photographic memory) a ten year agriculture plan was laid on the Table of this Honourable House by the present Third Elected Member for George Town, who was then the Minister of Agriculture. I am told that this plan was adopted by the present Government.

I have only had the opportunity to leaf through this plan very briefly, but one recommendation that caught my eye immediately was the recommendation that new farm roads continue to be built to open up new land for farming. I have searched the Budget document. I have searched the D-Plan. I assume the new Budget document that the Honourable Minister for Tourism spoke about when he debated . . . and I found in one, Mr. Speaker. Ten thousand dollars for farm roads in your district—which I have no problem with if they are needed. But I do not find one penny for farm roads in Grand Cayman. I find in the new budget document, $40,000 for farm roads in your district, Mr. Speaker, and if it is needed I have no problem. But I do not find one cent for farm roads in Grand Cayman.

There has to be something wrong. Whether the Minister responsible put the funds in the Budget, and in the cutting the farmers of these islands were not thought enough of to leave at least $25,000 to help them get new farmland develop their farms. Something is wrong. We cannot continue to expect the farmers to plant on the same piece of land, year after year, and have the same yield every year.

Mr. Speaker, I hope you do not gather from my referring to your district, which I know is very dear to your heart . . . maybe it is running through your mind, 'I hope the Elected Member for North Side does not intend to take the money from my district.' I assure you, I have no such intention. I do not look at your island as another country, I look at it as a district of the Cayman Islands.

A farm road was started in my district with $25,000 that I got the Finance Committee to earmark in 1998. I call upon the Government to provide sufficient funds in the 1999 Budget to complete that farm road. I call upon them because my Honourable colleague from Bodden Town on my right also got $25,000 for farm roads in Bodden Town. I call upon them that this road also be completed. If we are going to encourage farmers we must assist them, particularly with farm roads.

I will touch briefly on environment. Mr. Speaker, this affects members of my constituency. I see in the D-Plan that it is hoped to be able to declare Little Sound under the Ramsar Convention (or whatever it is) as wetlands. I wonder if prior to putting this in the Budget persons owning that property were notified. You know it is all well and good . . . and I support the environment and I support the environmentalist, to a point. But we must remember the one thing that the Caymanian father had to give his children was land. He had no riches; he had land. I believe that if we are going to declare this . . . and if it is necessary, I feel the people should be contacted. Proper discussions should be carried out and some form of payment given to those people.

Mr. Speaker, the 911 Emergency: I do not think any Member of this Parliament would disagree with a proper emergency system. It is necessary. But I do not think that any Member of this Parliament expected that 911 system to cost this country over $2,000,000. The question begs to be answered, Did the Cayman Islands get value for money? We have spent over $2,000,000, and they are still begging for money in the 1999 Budget to continue to build on the 911 system. I think it is time that someone—whether it is the Financial Secretary . . . because in my humble opinion, this may not be anyone else's. I feel with the finances of this country the buck stops with him.

We must take stock of how our money is being spent. We cannot continue the way that we are going. We are having problems balancing the Budget in 1999. God spare this country if the United States goes into a recession in the year 2000, because we will have serious, serious problems.

I do not have very much time left to stand here but I could not sit down without touching on a subject that stands very close to my heart—Women's Affairs. I brought a motion to this Parliament, I think it was Motion No. 1/95, to set up a Women's Affairs Office. Today problems affecting women in these islands have gone nowhere. We see in the Budget some $66,570. I have no idea what that $66,000 is going to achieve for women. When we look at the D-Plan under "Non-achievements of the Ministry for 1998," those non-achievements listed cost $191,458. I am certain it is the intention of the Ministry of Women to try to fulfil some of these non-achievements in 1999. But I would like someone to tell me how these will be achieved with $66,500 in the Budget when those non-achievements will cost $191,458.

Mr. Speaker, a shelter for victims of domestic violence in the Cayman Islands is now a priority. We can no longer leave these women in a situation where they are being abused day after day and expect them to perform or do otherwise. The biggest victims of domestic violence in these islands are the children. They are the ones that have seen grandfather beat grandmother, they have seen daddy beat mommy and therefore they think it is the correct way of life. If this present Government has the interest of the women in these islands . . . and I will remind them, they are the majority of voters in the Cayman Islands except for the district of North Side. I have more men, so I am not pushing it for the women to put me back in Parliament. I am saying, if the Government has the concerns of women at heart, give us a shelter and give it to us in 1999!

This morning the Honourable Minister for Social Services gave us some very interesting answers on his Social Services Department. But how much more can we expect that Department to take on? I am certain that if we go through the Budget the Social Service workers are probably in the lower salary scale. Is this because they are women? It makes me think so. We must put in place programs for the women in these islands. I am certain there are women in the Cayman Islands probably working as hotel maids who have the potential to get a high school diploma or even to go on to get an Associate's Degree which would allow them to make a better living for themselves.

We must put adult training in place for our Caymanians. We cannot continue every year to increase the uniform allowance, the school lunch allowance, the financial assistance allowance, the needy allowance . . . we must start to get our people educated and get them off the dole. In the United States, some states have put in place programmes. And the results are surprising. If this can happen in a country the size of the United States, why can't it happen in the Cayman Islands? I cannot forget—

The Speaker: Would you like us to take the break to give you a few moments, or are you ready to continue?

Mrs. Edna Moyle: That will be fine, sir.

The Speaker: We shall suspend for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.25 PM

The Speaker: Proceedings are resumed. Debate continues, the Elected Member for North Side continuing.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

When we took the break I was dealing with Women's Affairs, a subject extremely dear to my heart. I would like to read from the manifesto of the National Team. My picture appears on the cover, so I had quite a bit of input into what the National Team would try to achieve for women 1997-2000.

The first one was to "Establish a Women's Council to co-ordinate and support the Women's Affairs Office." In the D-Plans I see where they are going to continue trying to set up an advisory committee to deal with Women's Affairs.

Before I go on to read these out and deal with them, I need to register my upset over the fact that I brought a motion to this Parliament to set up a Women's Affairs Office . . . and I am not laying the blame at the lady Member now responsible. I guess I cannot lay the blame at the Ministers. That motion asked for a Women's Affairs Office. I see in the change of the name the word "Affairs" was not even considered to be put back in the title of the present Ministry. It now just refers to "Women."

Mr. Speaker, I leave on Saturday morning for a conference in South Africa. There is one subject to be discussed at that conference and it is "What is the role of the Legislative Assembly?" I am looking forward to that particular subject so bad that I cannot wait to get on the aircraft to leave. If a motion is passed and accepted by this Parliament to set up a Women's Affairs Office, that is what the title in that portfolio should be. I would ask the Governor to make every consideration to put back the word "Affairs," because it leaves us out there floating, "Women."

Number two, "Arrange specialised courses in non-traditional, vocational skills at the Community College."

Number three, "Continue to observe International Women's Day in March 1997." That is being continued Mr. Speaker. But I was a little bit dismayed when the Governor proclaimed November 25th as "The International Day Against Violence Against Women in the Cayman Islands" and I did not even as much as see an article in the local press concerning that day. And these are the things that make me concerned. Are we really interested in the problems of women?

Our problems do differ from men. And I have to say that women in the Cayman Islands are a lot luckier than women in a lot of other countries.

Number four, "Continue seminars and awareness programmes affecting women," some of this has happened.

Number five, "Develop a place of safety and increase counselling for women." I spoke on this place of safety before. But I have been told by reliable sources that there is a couple in the Cayman Islands who has offered to build a place of shelter for abused women, but the Government would have to staff it. I am saying to the Financial Secretary this afternoon, and to the Ministers of Executive Council, grasp this offer. If they will build this facility and if the Government staffs it, I think the women of the Cayman Islands in abusive situations will be thankful to you all for the rest of their lives.

I know when I brought that motion I did say that I wanted all this to be done in partnership. I still do. But we cannot continue to focus on gender. The Honourable Minister responsible for Social Services just laid the Family Study Report on the Table of this House, and that deals with all of us. What I am asking is for the specialist field to deal with women's problems.

There are NGOs out there who I am certain will come to the Government's assistance. As a matter of fact, I think the sixteen days of activism against gender violence kicked off today. If we can get the people from the community in, and we all get together, we can offer the women and children of domestic violence some shelter, some counselling. And I will go as far as to say I would love to see anger management offered to those people who abuse people.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 10(2)

The Speaker: May I interrupt you for a moment? Can I ask that you move a motion for the suspension of Standing Order 10(2), in order that we continue beyond the hour of 4.30?

The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation, and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Boddin: Mr Speaker, I move the suspension of the Standing Order to allow the House to go beyond 4.30.

The Speaker: I put the question Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 10(2) SUSPENDED.

The Speaker: Continuing, the Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: I apologise for the interruption.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: I would like to thank the Honourable Minister of Education for jumping to his feet so quickly to get an extension for me to go on beyond 4.30.

Number 8 in this manifesto was "Joint ministerial initiative to include segments on domestic violence, its causes and effects in the Family Life Education programme subject to recommendations of the relevant action team."

Number 9, "Liase with the Police to establish and train a Domestic Violent Unit."

I could go on and on, Mr. Speaker, but I can see that you are about to tell me that I must deal with the Budget and estimates. I could not pass up the opportunity to deal with matters that affect the women of the Cayman Islands.

Back in 1995, the Government brought a Ms. Magnapard to these islands to do a study on women. It is my understanding (and if I am incorrect I apologise to Executive Council) that this report has either not gone to Executive Council, or Executive Council did not accept it. I have tried to locate a copy. But, because it has not gone to Council and has not been approved to be laid on the Table of this Honourable House—and I will say I did not ask the Minister responsible, I asked other people who had access to the report—I could not get a copy. But it is my understanding that one of her first recommendations was a needs analysis of the women of the Cayman Islands. Have we had such an analysis done?

In suggesting and recommending the tax increases that we are doing here today in this Parliament we would have known . . . because there are some of these increases I cannot support. We have single mothers out there who make maybe $2000 a month, have four children—we can stand here and say she shouldn't have had four children; but she has four children we must accept that. For her to absorb the book fees of the schools is going to be particularly hard.

I have to make it clear, Mr. Speaker, I know my colleagues on this side do not support book fees. But, as the Honourable Third Elected Member for George Town said, when we speak we each speak as we feel. I support book fees. I understand that it cost this country $108 per student, just for grade one, to provide books for all subjects; and we are collecting $5.00. I would be the first person to say let us give everything free, but we cannot.

I took the opportunity to discuss in particular the primary schoolbook fee with my daughter who has a five-year-old in the Savannah Primary School. Even before this increase came to Parliament, she kept saying to me, "Mommy, why is it only $5.00 for books?" And yesterday I was discussing with her the people who may have four or five children. Her words were "Mommy, $50 a year is $1.00 per week." I have to agree with her, but we are going to have to assist those people out there who have a bigger burden than the salary they are earning. I am certain the Honourable Minister for Education will look at that very carefully.

I will now go back to women. On my trip to New Zealand I had the opportunity to meet with the women's group which the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association has of all the commonwealth women. I picked up this book Status of Women in New Zealand, 1998. It is going to be money well spent for the Cayman Islands Government to carry out such a study. It covers everything that affects women. It covers women in combat (which does not apply to us), it covers maternity leave with pay . . . and one good thing about that is that it covers both the father and mother. Whichever one wants take the leave to stay with the baby after six weeks, it could be either paternity or maternity. It covers the Government's response to the Beijing Platform for Action, which I understand Executive Council has not accepted as yet.

It covers:

- Definition of discrimination against women
- Anti discrimination measures
- Human Rights Act
- Domestic violence
- Health and disability
- Identifying and addressing the remaining barriers to equality
- Development and advancement of women
- Women's disabilities
- Acceleration of equality between men and women
- Sex roles and stereotyping
- Censorship
- Suppression of the exploitation of women
- Political and public life

It goes on and on. It has some sixteen articles all to do with women. I am prepared to give this to the Honourable Lady Minister responsible for Women's Affairs, and I am going to suggest and that this be one of the first projects carried out. Then we will know what we are dealing with in regard to women.

I would like to say thank you to the Tropical Gardens Lion's Club. Shortly after I brought the motion here to set up the Women's Affairs they invited me to their changeover, I think it was in 1996. In addressing the club, I gave them a challenge. I know that Government cannot do everything, and my challenge to them was to take up a health issue that affects women. Thank God they took up the issue of breast cancer. They are doing an excellent job. I would say to the entire public of the Cayman Islands, whatever assistance you can give to this club, whether financially, or of your time, it is a worthwhile project.

I will touch briefly on the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital. I supported the building of a new hospital, and I will not shirk my duty to try and say otherwise. But I must commend the Minister. He has done a good job, and I am sure he will continue to do a good job. I know that we all say things, but I know health is important to every one of us sitting in this Chamber. I think if the Government could collect the outstanding medical fees—I think it is somewhere in the area of $27 million—we could have paid cash for our hospital.

We have to realise that we have to pay for services. I think it was the Member for West Bay that said he went to the United States and went to the doctor and the doctor said $100. He could not leave without paying it. If we want the services, they are going to cost. We cannot continue to dwell in the past on the Dr. Hortor Memorial Hospital; we must deal with the present and look to the future for this country to move on. It is a dead subject, let's bury it.

I will touch briefly on the increase to civil servants. Having been a civil servant myself for some ten years, I know the joy in the heart of every civil servant when they hear of a salary increase. But are we giving them an increase with the right hand and taking it from them with the left hand by way of increases? This is my concern.

The other problem that I would like to speak on briefly—and maybe I will get shot down for this, but be that as it may. We have a situation in our civil service that needs to be dealt with and dealt with quickly. We have top management on a fixed salary who does not get one penny increase unless there is a salary review. We have the lower and middle groups with an increment every year so they are coming up. We have the civil servant who gets to the top of his salary scale and stays there for five, six, ten years. That is no incentive for a person to perform.

We must look at the situation, particularly with our top managers, sir. We have given the authorities in this island the right to fix their own salaries. We cannot leave top management who manages those authorities at a lower rate. Can you image what would happen to a bank if the bank manager made less money than his manager did down here? It is a matter that must be looked at, and looked at quickly. We have the ministers responsible for authorities and the directors make more money than the minister. I don't understand the rational.

If we did not have dedicated civil servants at the top brackets we would have lost every one of them. I am certain that the majority of them can go into the private sector and make much more money and get the same benefits. I implore the Ministers and the Financial Secretary, let us look at this problem before it is too late. We cannot continue with a system where this happens.

I will now turn to the other subject that is dear to my heart, and that is the little sleepy district of North Side. I have been saying in this Parliament for quite some time now—and nobody seems to want to listen to me—that the district of North Side is dying. When I say that, we have a lot of elderly. The Minister of Social Services will bear me out. We have the greatest number of elderly people. Our young people are leaving to come to George Town, it is closer to work, and it is nearer to this facility.

We do not have the traffic congestion; we do not have to drive for an hour. I will refer again to that helicopter ride that I took. I thought at least something such as a design for a road to make the travelling distance a bit shorter for my people. Today I implore the Government to assist us; put us in a position so that our young people can come back home and enjoy their district. Many of them don't want to leave, but I can understand when the mother has a child in school in George Town, and she has to pick the child up and drive to North Side to take the child home on her lunch hour, and then come back into George Town. Maybe at 5.00 when she goes home the child has a birthday party. These are the kind of things that are making that district die.

On the increase in trade and business licenses, there are two grocery businesses in the district of North Side. I think I speak here for the Honourable Third Elected Member for Bodden Town too, as there are some in that district. We cannot continue to expect them to pay the increases that you put in George Town. We need to go along the lines of the situation with Cayman Brac.

Mr. Roy Bodden: True!

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: We do not have the volume of people. When you have a simple grocery store just throwing out cardboard boxes which are collected by people who are going to send stuff overseas and we are charging them almost $900 a year for garbage. . . it is not fair.

I have come to the end of my contribution to the Budget. But, as I said before, I leave on Saturday for South Africa for a conference. I am going to leave the projects that are in the Budget for the district of North Side because they are not projects to get Edna re-elected. I do not expect the people of the Cayman Islands to pay to re-elect me. There are needs in the district—roads. According to reply to a question that I asked North Side got $15,000 work in 1998, yet $100,000 was in the Budget for the district. That $15,000 was cutting the side of the roads. It is not fair to my people—they pay the same car license, and they pay more gasoline tax because they have to use more gas. And we are going to increase that gas on them again by increasing the bulk fuel license. They bear the burden of any tax increase, so they must get their fair share. They are not begging for it, they have paid for it.

The senior citizens centre.... I would like to thank the Honourable Minister and Executive Council for accepting that project because it is needed. As I said before we have more elderly people in our district than any other district—and they are women, according to the Family Study.

So, Mr. Speaker, I will leave and hope to get back to catch the Finance Committee because I am certain the First Elected Member for George Town will probably ask someone to give him their time to speak on the Budget. If I do not get back, I implore the Government and my friends on the Backbench to see that the projects that have been included for my district are not cut to save money because they are needs—not wants.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The floor is open to debate. Does any other Member wish to speak? The Honourable Minister for Tourism, Commerce and Transport.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker I rise to speak, and suggest that we adjourn until tomorrow morning at 10.00.

The Speaker: If that is the wish of the House. If you will move a motion, we shall so do. Is that the wish of the House? Please move a motion.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I move that the House now adjourn until tomorrow morning at 10.00.

The Speaker: The question is that the House do now adjourn until 10.00 AM tomorrow. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House will stand adjourned until 10.00 AM tomorrow.

AT 4.50 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM FRIDAY, 27 NOVEMBER 1998.

EDITED

[Prayers read by the Third Elected Member for West Bay]

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Item 2 on today's Order Paper: Reading by the Speaker of Messages and announcements.

READING BY THE SPEAKER OF

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: I have received apologies from the Honourable Third Official Member who will be arriving later this morning. The Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture is off the island, also, the First Elected Member for West Bay.

Item 3 on today's Order Paper: Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. Question No. 209 is standing in the name of the First Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE

QUESTION NO. 209

No. 209: Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning to give a breakdown on capital expenditure for new public educational facilities from January 1993 to date.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The following is a breakdown of capital expenditure for new public education facilities from January 1993 to date. (See Appendix)

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister say if, based on the approved phased project for the Red Bay Primary School, the list of capital works completed from 1993 to 1996 follows the original plan? If so, what remains of the original plan to complete the school?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: What remains is the administration block, and as the Member knows that is now under construction, and the hall. As the Honourable Member knows too, money has been provided for that this year and applied for next year to finish. As I understand it, that should then complete phases for Red Bay School.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: The Minister answered a part of the question. The first part was if these works were in conjunction with the approved plan or have there been variations of what was approved in all phases of the project originally?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I can't answer that question definitely. I understand that this was approved in 1991 and to the best of the knowledge of the staff from the Ministry and Education Department that I have here, these two remain. Obviously, the hall would have been shown separately in the plans for building. In fact, I think the hall was to be built where the Admin. Building is going. But, as you know, the Admin. Building was shifted to allow, among other things, for a children's playing field and for increased parking.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister then say whether or not the plans were followed, what method was used to complete these works, or was each phase of the works just picked up out of the clear blue sky and done?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The planning on this is obviously done between the architects and engineers at Public Works and the Department. From what I can remember, for example, the Administration block is considerably larger now than what it was originally, because I understand that there will be other rooms in the block. As to whether it differs from 1991, I could give an undertaking to get a copy of whatever the plan then was and just see what they were looking at eight years ago compared to what is there now, and I am happy to do that.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Just to finish this part of the supplementaries, and so that the Minister will understand. What I am trying to determine by the line of questioning is: We know there was a plan originally. And while only a certain phase was completed by 1992, there was an overall plan that was approved. I am not questioning whether or not, as time went on, it was decided to make changes—appropriate changes—to the plans. The question is: Having had these plans, can we understand exactly what process has taken place in order to arrive at what works were completed? Where is the thought process? If the original master plan was not followed, what developed into another master plan? I am trying to determine exactly where the school is at. We cannot simply say we are going to do this now, and then do this next year. There has to be some master plan being followed. I am trying to determine if the master plan has changed or whether it is the original plan that is being followed.

Secondly, the Admin. Block is under construction now and the Minister referred to the hall. Can he clear up exactly where the location of that hall is going to be?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: To the first question, I can't answer as to what the 1991 plan was here now. I just did not come prepared for that, and the most I can do is call for it and we could compare it. As to the second question, the hall is being put in the Cayman Foods Building on land adjoining the Red Bay School.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: I think there were funds in the 1998 Budget for a school bus shelter for the district of North Side. I see no reference to the North Side Primary School at all on this list of schools that had capital projects since 1993, but there is a bus shelter for Bodden Town Primary that was in the same 1998 Budget as the North Side bus shelter. Can the Honourable Minister say what point the North Side bus shelter has reached?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The money is in there and what was to be done was an alteration of the area where the ambulance used to use. They were going to fill in the back and the sides. As far as I know, money is in there for it. I doubt if anything has been done. I didn't get there in this quarter, and I would have to find that out because the staff I have here do not know. But I understand that extra funds have to be vired from another source because there weren't enough.

But what I can tell you is that I have a lot more detail here and if I could just give this, if the Member would like, on the North Side School: In 1993 we upgraded the toilet facilities $8,167 and screened the hall. In 1995 we constructed storage facilities $18,150. In 1996 we re-roofed walkways, $8,316. In 1997 we installed fire exit doors, landscaping and fencing was $49,981. We installed security lights $925, new light fixtures, $1,913. We re-roofed walkways in 1998, $2,613. I think probably the last thing that remains is the bus shelter there, and I would undertake to find the funds to vire (in the supplementary) to try to get that done because she has asked for it, pressed for it I would say, for quite some time. In fact, we went there jointly when visiting the school and looked at the area.

The Speaker: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The Honourable Minister said that funds would be vired. That undertaking was given in Finance Committee in 1998. I want to know how the Education Department chooses which project, out of two which are the same for district schools, to complete and which one to leave? Seeing that Bodden Town was the same year and has been completed, but North Side is still looking for funds.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: We try to complete all the projects. At least from my point of view, I try to be as fair and equitable as I can. There are times when we have to wait for Public Works to slot in these works. I know the estimate that was originally given seemed to have been fairly high and they really haven't come back for a Finance Committee supplementary in quite a while now. But, naturally there has to be one, or probably two, before the end of the year—at least one. I can assure the Member, she's gotten everything else that she has asked for on the North Side School with no exceptions. I will get this one sorted out. Today I will check with Public Works to see what can be done to get this both speeded up and completed.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries the next question is No. 210 standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

WITHDRAWAL OF QUESTION NO. 210

Mr. Roy Bodden: I crave the indulgence of the House to withdraw this question, seeing that this Ministry is about to change hands early in the new year. It would be rather awkward and inconsiderate to ask the Minister now with responsibility to talk about what is going to happen in 1999 because his priorities might not necessarily be the priorities of his successor. That being the case, sir, I would be much obliged if you would allow me to withdraw the question.

The Speaker: I will put the question that this question be withdrawn. But before that, I need a seconder. The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

The Speaker: I put the question again. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The Motion has been withdrawn.

AGREED. QUESTION NO. 210 WITHDRAWN.

The Speaker: That concludes Question Time for this morning. Moving on to item 4 on today's Order Paper: Government Business, Bills, continuation of the debate on the Appropriation (1999) Bill, 1998. The second reading. The floor is open to debate. The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

DEBATE ON THE BUDGET ADDRESS DELIVERED BY THE HONOURABLE THIRD OFFICIAL MEMBER ON MONDAY, 16TH NOVEMBER, 1998

Hon. Anthony Eden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I rise to offer my contribution to the Budget Address delivered by the Hon. Financial Secretary on November 16.

In beginning my debate on this most important occasion, I would first of all like to say how wonderful I feel this morning. I had the opportunity to take part in a Heritage assembly of the George Hicks High School at the Chapel on Walkers Road. The scripture text on the front of their programme says, "If my people, that are called by my name, shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways; then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin, and will heal their land. II Chronicles 7:14"

Mr. Speaker, in the recent past people have wondered why and how the Cayman Islands have been spared the wrath of much devastation. When I went to the Assembly this morning, there were over 400 children at the first meeting, which is only half of the school; the other half would come later. I feel good about the future of our youth in these islands under the able leadership of the Principal, Ms. Adora Bodden. She has been successful in instilling into the students the sense of discipline. At times you could literally hear a pin drop in that church. That is not easy, Mr. Speaker, when you have that many children in an assembly.

But it bodes well for these islands--when I see what has happened, and is continuing to happen in the great United States where in certain circumstances they are not allowed to pray; they are not allowed to read from the Bible and refer to the Ten Commandments. Just this week we had the Ministers' Association meet with us here in this Honourable House--and once again I say it bodes well for these islands, if we can stay on this track.

Moving back to the Budget Address, some criticisms have been levelled at what has been put here. Mr. Speaker, as the Hon. Financial Secretary said, "As we look back over the past decade and take stock of our present situation, there is so much for which we have to be proud. Our achievements have been truly outstanding." Later on I will indicate some of those achievements that we as a government since 1992 have been able to accomplish over the last six years.

Last week these Islands had the honour of hosting the Caribbean Financial Action Task Force Council of Ministers and it made me feel so proud attending the official opening of that session when our own Financial Secretary took over as Chairman of that organisation. There are many plans for the CFATF. And when you see the international dignitaries that were there and the respect that the Cayman Islands have now achieved, it truly indicates the stature at which we are held in this region.

I was a bit disappointed in the Press coverage. I felt that something of this magnitude should have received more extensive coverage. Anywhere else in the world you go, something of this magnitude would have been blasted all over the papers: details, pictures, everything, because this contributes to the future well-being of these Islands as we go forward and deal with the constant barrage levelled at us. But I know, that under the leadership of the Hon. Financial Secretary and his faith in God... Let me tell you at all times he exhibits this faith wherever the meetings are. This is why I feel we have the degree of success we have. It is not by accident.

He also indicates in his Budget Address that in September 1999 the Commonwealth Finance Ministers' meeting will be held here in Grand Cayman--once again, for the first time. It will be chaired jointly by the United Kingdom and the Cayman Islands. Some 300 delegates from 53 countries throughout the world will be in attendance. Once again this will provide phenomenal exposure for little islands in the Caribbean with approximately 36,000 population.

It will provide a forum for the rich exchange of views and issues facing the world economy. Both Government and private sector are expected to benefit tremendously from this meeting of minds on a global scale. Once again Cayman will have a golden opportunity to showcase its significant sophistication and accomplishments as a leader in the international finance centre of the world.

Mr. Speaker, I continue to welcome the public sector performance reforms that we are now dealing with, with the assistance of a consulting firm from New Zealand. And if nothing else, I truly look forward to the day when the process we go through in preparing these budgets will be sorted out. The thousands of man/woman hours that go into the preparation are almost overbearing at times. But we have many dedicated people who never complain. They just keep going forward assisting and trying to cater to the many changes that we as Members of Parliament continue to make in budget preparation day after day, hour after hour, sometimes minute after minute. I truly look forward, Mr. Speaker, to when this process will be changed.

The other thing that is now being looked at significantly is the year 2000 problem with computers. As he said, it is quite a serious one. But we have formed a committee to look into this and everyone involved is now looking at this in much deeper detail and I would encourage both the public and the private sector to adequately address what can be done to resolve this major problem. I do know that the commitment by the Health Services department which is one of the more serious areas—we are literally working at it now fulltime and I have asked the Chairman of the committee to lend assistance wherever possible to make sure that when that hour arrives and we turn over to the year 2000 that there will not be any adverse problems.

I now turn to what in recent months has been one of the most serious situations these Islands have had to deal with and that is the OECD, G7 and EU countries and the effect of tax competition on the global economy. As the Honourable Financial Secretary said, “It is indeed, unfortunate, that the OECD, G7 and EU countries are seeking to take action on this issue. The term “harmful tax competition” has not been clearly defined; the arguments in support of the allegation appear to be quite tenuous; and the criteria for identifying alleged offending countries are not clear-cut nor are they being uniformly applied.” Mr. Speaker, this has been borne out, and with your permission I would like to quote a few paragraphs from a letter in the October Offshore Investment titled “Time to Question the Sanity of the OECD” by Dennis A. Kleinfeld, The Kleinfeld Law Firm, Miami, Fla., U.S.A.

“The OECD has announced a campaign against “harmful tax competition”. It calls for “severe countermeasures” which it intends to apply against tax havens that it feels are being used by people attempting to reduce their tax costs. The industrialised nations are urging that collection of local taxes should be enforced internationally by other nations with all the ferocity that they, collectively, apply to prohibiting the laundering of drug proceeds.”

He says, “Have these people gone nuts? I agree drugs are not good. But, how can competition, especially in taxes, be harmful? Competition to reduce cost is economically good. Tax is a major economic cost factor. Therefore, tax competition is good.”

“The tax burden is a substantial factor in every business decision. In the US alone, federal income taxes eat up 20% of the economy. Economists are now worried that the tax burden is stunting the growth of the US economy. Post-world war II, the federal tax burden has never been higher. As a result, businesses are voting with their feet and moving, if not their operations, at least their capital internationally. This is similarly happening in Europe where the tax burden has even more dramatic economic anti-competitive effect. Capital is flowing to where it can best be used and invested where the least burden of taxation. Just as it should be.”

Continuing, Mr. Speaker, “Now the US and EU members using the OECD as a front want to burden the offshore jurisdictions with the tax enforcement problems created by their own errant fiscal policies. Their call for cooperation on tax matters is a facade. What they really want is to have an agreement to keep taxes high and competition low.”

“The laundering of money is not created nor caused [and this is very important, Mr. Speaker] by the offshore financial centres and tax havens. They are caused strictly by activities within the industrialised countries themselves. Mostly, the OECD member states. Drug sales and the laundering of money starts in the industrialised countries and stops in the industrialised countries. At worst, the offshore jurisdictions are merely conduits for cash flowing between New York and London. Trying to tie international tax reduction by legitimate businesses with money-laundering from the illegal drug trade is a governmental scam.”

Continuing Mr. Clinefeld's article: “This international tax enforcement exercise is occurring at the same time that in the US members of Congress, presidential candidates, prominent economists and even newspaper reporters are all publicly proclaiming that the tax system in the US must be ended and replaced. “Put a stake through its heart”, one publisher has said. How can it be that on the one hand Government is seeking draconian international measures to enforce its tax law externally while on the other hand the tax law is roundly recognised internally as being a complete and utter disaster?” He terms this schizophrenic.

The last couple paragraphs by Mr. Kleinfeld: “While the governments of the industrialised nations act out their political insanity, perhaps the offshore financial centres can proceed with logic and reason. If not, they should at least proceed with an attempt towards self-preservation. After all, the OECD is not proposing tax harmonisation so as to benefit the offshore financial industry. They're trying to destroy it.”

“For any democratic society to continue in existence, the law must be just [and I emphasise] must be just and give equal treatment to everyone. The founding fathers of the United States knew this when they required taxes to be uniform. As any government is allowed to discriminate in taxation and abandon the rules of equality, that government inevitably becomes increasingly abusive. We see that happening in the US and the EU. Without a mechanism to check this demented governmental behaviour eventually freedom can be lost for everyone.”

“If the world has any chance to maintain some rational balance in the economic sense, then the offshore centres must stand up for the principle of equality. They must be the mechanism to maintain international sensibility. It is the logical action they must take for their own economic survival and, likely, for us all.”

I am very pleased, Mr. Speaker, with the proactive stance that the Honourable Financial Secretary and his group are taking on this and I feel that as we go forward, with the help of God we can address this very serious problem.

Continuing on the Budget Speech: It was very uplifting to see the advances put forward by this Government, especially now in the creation of the Cayman Islands Stock Exchange. It now has well over 122 listed issuers and has earned the status as one of the world's fastest growing exchanges. We look forward to gaining international recognition in due course which will make it much more effective and respected.

In the area of Tourism, I know that some Members feel that the investment at Pedro Castle may have been a bit extensive--but this, Mr. Speaker, is near and dear to my heart. What are we to do when we look at such a world class facility that preserves much of our heritage? It is well-known that this was the birthplace of democracy in these islands. When the Members who came to the CFATF meeting gathered there a few nights ago, everything was so very positive when they saw the wonderful job that has been done on the restoration.

Also, Mr. Speaker, the Botanic Park, no matter how down one might feel, if you go up there and walk through the grounds and just sit and relax, it is a very, very uplifting feeling.

Local Banking: It was interesting to note that there was a decrease of approximately 3% in loans. On the other hand, there was almost 13% increase in demand deposits and 7% on fixed deposits and savings accounts. Despite the 'prophets of doom' this indicates that residents are becoming much more liquid and are now more able to finance projects with their own funds and still put some money in C/D's and Savings' Deposits.

Mr. Speaker, when we come to the Construction industry, it is indicated that these two sectors surpassed expectations in 1998, as construction activity expanded throughout the year and the sale and transfer of property continued on a large scale. I vividly remember when I first sought office in 1992, things were down significantly. I will continue to remind this country of those days when construction was at a literal standstill; there were over 1,000 people without jobs.

Mr. Speaker, we have had our difficulties, and at times we have probably made wrong decisions, but we have come a long way since 1992. I thank God for where we have come and I know with the combination now of what I see in this Honourable House--the coming of minds together to make these islands a better place--to make future plans--we can still keep this going with the right and correct leadership.

The investor continues to have full confidence in the Cayman economy. What was pleasing to me, Mr. Speaker, was a 35% increase in development in Cayman Brac. This is really great news. I knew all along that if the Brackers were given a chance they could turn things around. And I must say to them, Very, very well done!

Mr. Speaker, despite some 'prophets of doom' we were still able to contribute part of our recurrent revenue to capital expenditure in the tune of an extra $11.7 million. This has not been as high as it was in the past few years, but it certainly helps and it reduces some of the borrowings that we will have to make this year.

If we need this infrastructure we cannot sit idly by and let the situation fall down around our ears-- roads that can become impassable, school system where (God forbid) the children may have to be taught under the trees--while we talk about affluence here and the billions of dollars that pass through these Islands. We need to put it right and address this problem. A couple weekends ago when the First Elected Member for George Town came in to a meeting with us, he spoke some very thought-provoking ideas and I think that this has now been planted in all of the Members of this Honourable House.

It is good to see that in 1999 we plan to put an additional $3.2 million contributions toward the 'past service liability' of the Public Service Pension Fund, which is expected to reach approximately $36,000 at the end of this year. We have made significant improvement in this area of Government's liability and I look forward to the day when we can have this well-funded and we will no longer have to take funds from recurrent revenue to pay for it.

It is the mature way to go about and I think by what we are doing here, we can set an example again for the world that we have taken the responsibility seriously to reduce this daunting figure which at one time was close to $100 million. It cannot come to the stage, Mr. Speaker, where Social Security was in the States some-time ago--on the verge of bankruptcy--when people who have given most of their lives to the Civil Service come to the stage when they should draw that money, that its not available. We must make sure it does not happen here.

Mr. Speaker, I welcome (very much) what was inserted in regards to the Civil Service in the Review of Salaries and Allowances which has not been done since 1989. It is good to know that we plan to give it this year, and it will be retroactive if, and when, we get time to hold a finance committee for ratification that 2.7% in Consumer Price Index adjustment, and also an increase next year.

I am concerned about the last two items the Committee reported on. That was an extensive review of allowances and other non-salary benefits. I look forward to the results of the job evaluation exercise combined with a comparison of salaries in the private and quasi-government sectors. If we do not do something about the major inequity between the public and private sector wages we cannot continue to attract quality personnel to the Civil Service especially at the middle and upper scales. How can we continue to have some heads of authorities and sections making significantly more than the Chief Secretary who is the head of the Civil Service? I urge that this is looked at and that this Honourable House assess what has been happening over the years and take the necessary corrective action. I understand that it will probably be less than an additional $2 million to initiate the first step of this correction of inequity.

Mr. Speaker, one item most welcome in the Budget, is the provision for funds to obtain health insurance for the public service and entitled cases. This will go a long way in reducing the major amount of money that Government has to put forward each year for health care. And we all know that it is just a pittance that we collect for services rendered at the hospital.

Mr. Speaker, at this time I would like to turn to my Health Services Department section and for the final time, Mr. Speaker, I would like to put to rest certain comments that I have heard recently.

I understand that there is a gentleman going around in my district of Bodden Town still passing out misinformation on the cost of the new hospital. Only God knows how many more times I can put those figures--and if they doubt me they can go to the Honourable Financial Secretary and have him verify. There is no reason for me to give inaccurate information. The Auditor General at some time will catch up, if I mislead this Honourable House. I heard that this gentleman is saying that this hospital is going to cost $50 million to build. This is bloody ridiculous! What I would like to one more time record in this Honourable House is the comparison between the Hortor Memorial and what we are doing at the Hospital--the present site.

Mr. Speaker, the Hortor construction contract called for $11,445,691; plus site-filling $1,615,109; plus furniture, fittings, equipment $2,788,622; plus contingency $150,000; plus professional fees $1,245,693. These figures did not include expenses and disbursements for the post contract stage which totalled $17,245,693; plus it did not include for access roads. Mr. Speaker, when we take this amount [$17,245,693] and add it to the $10,631,000 which was accepted by the then Chief Medical Officer, Dr. Martin Smith (now deceased), to be spent on the existing George Town site, the grand total becomes $27,876,693. This was approximately six years ago.

What I have quoted, Mr. Speaker, was in the area of $28+ million for a complete hospital one-site facility supported by the medical technicians and those who provide health care to these islands.

So how can some people continue to talk about this $16 million hospital? It was only an in-patient facility, Mr. Speaker, and I will give you an example. The materials management building which was designed for that site was 4,000 sq. ft. The first building we built in the new complex was 10,000 sq. ft. A year or two later, that is almost filled to capacity. I suggest that in very short order the Hortor proposal would now be undergoing extensions if the people of these Islands had not decided to stop it. Mr. Speaker, as I said, I have no intention of going over this again. It's history and the voters in 1992 were the ones who overwhelmingly consigned it to history.

Mr. Speaker, I would now like to touch on areas of the new hospital. On behalf of Government, we are pleased to see Dr. Tomlinson venture into a private hospital and wish him every success. When his hospital comes on stream, we will make any adjustment that is necessary to maintain cost effectiveness in the government sector.

But Government is not the same as private health operators. I do not want to, but I will compare it slightly with the situation we find ourselves in with Cayman Airways where at times we wonder why we have to keep this Airline flying. But we know in times of need, the importance of having this. Mr. Speaker, the Government has national obligations and one of these will be to provide those areas of health care that a private hospital will not cover.

Another [obligation] will be to provide health care for those, who for one reason, or another, cannot afford the services of the private hospital. For example, if we need to cut services, staff, or close beds, it can, and will be done. We are already working on these approaches if necessary with a U.K. firm District Audit, but Government must be ready for all eventualities. It is easier for a private hospital to decide not to offer these services which are not revenue generating. I am very aware of possible impact of a private hospital and as I said, we are using the services of the District Audit of U.K. who are experts at this sort of projection.

Mr. Speaker, despite response to a question earlier on, we do have significant statistics and very soon we will capture everything we need to know to manage the Health Services Department as cost effectively as possible. District Audit will take our figures, existing and projected, and match them with best practice elsewhere, plus factoring in the likely impact of the private hospital. No one can predict the future with 100% accuracy.

As I said, we now have in our possession over 88 pages of statistics we have collected which demonstrates that we do know a lot, and therefore can make projections, however, carefully. Cost effectiveness, Mr. Speaker, is one of the reasons the people asked the National Team in 1992 to stop the expensive reduplication in services and inconvenience that would have been brought about by the split-site system favoured by Mr. Ezzard Miller in 1992.

My Ministry and the Health Services Department are very conscious of the large sums of money incurred by the provision of health services in recent years. But, we are only making up for many years of neglect compounded by a mismanaged attempt to force something on a public which quite simply did not want it and said so in November 1992 in no uncertain terms.

Mr. Speaker, we know a lot more details now regarding the Hospital revenue: 63% of the users of the Hospital are exempt patients, 37% are paying. How can we effectively run a facility that has cost us [approximately] $29 million when we only collect approximately a third of the revenue that is due us? And this is why, Mr. Speaker, I so very much welcome the beginning of the approach to look at taking care of the entitled cases where my Health Services Department will not continue to look like a lackey by not collecting funds that we cannot collect.

Arrears of revenue at the 31st March this year were local receivables, $7,591,870.09; overseas receivables, $17,934,451.15; Faith Hospital, $249,841.13 which bring a total of over $25 million.

Mr. Speaker, we would not have had to borrow one red cent--one penny--if we had been able to collect these funds. This is a ridiculous situation. Some genuinely cannot pay and we understand that; but the majority can, and do not want to. Hence, taking out liens on property which some Members of this Honourable House do not like. But I do sense and appreciate that change and look forward to it. And just to indicate: In recent times, we have charges on 50 people's properties: 49 out of the 50 are paying off their bills now.

Mr. Speaker, Government does not want anybody's property. It wants to be paid for its services and everyone who has a charge on his property is making payment on his health bill. We do not want to refer people to the debt-collecting unit, but as I said, people who can afford to pay their bills must do so. We know that there are some out there who cannot. We will always have them, but provision is now being made to assist them.

In 1999, we aim to increase our revenue collection by increased collection through the Health Insurance scheme revising certain fees and adding others, and a more aggressive debt-collecting campaign. Eventually, a more comprehensive revision of the Health Fees Law will have to take place to reflect the true cost of providing health care services. Perhaps, too, the time has come for Government to give careful consideration to its policy on providing free medical care to so many people. At this time, Mr. Speaker, it stands at over 11,000. But as I said, this is now starting to be addressed in the 1999 budget.

Mr. Roy Bodden: [inaudible comment]

Hon. Anthony Eden: I will be asking that this be looked at. Possibly, it is a good point, Mr. Speaker. The Third Elected Member from Bodden Town said that when we do the census next year, this could be one of the areas we try to pick up on. I am not sure if it can be done, but this is what has been said to me.

Mr. Speaker, I am very pleased to say that since the enactment of the health insurance, over 20,000 people have been covered by health insurance as at the end of August. This is quite significant in a very short period of time; something we all can be pleased about. Health insurance to some extent spreads the burden of carrying the cost of health care, but Government cannot avoid its responsibilities and traditionally, in Cayman, never has. People who need health care and cannot afford it, as I said, still get it and this will continue.

Mr. Speaker, we continue to improve our services at the district health centres and it is significant to note that just over the first six months of this year, there has been increase of over 38% in visits to the health centres. If additional funds are approved, Mr. Speaker, we will renovate the old West Bay Health Clinic as a day care for the mental health.

To continue on Health Insurance...And I do know some Members of this Honourable House sometimes sound as if they think health insurance is a bad thing. It cannot be. We protect our new cars by taking out comprehensive insurance; we protect ourselves and others when we cause a traffic accident by taking out third party insurance; we protect our property against the threat of fires, theft, hurricanes by taking out insurance; many of us protect our families financial security by taking out life insurance so that they can get something if we die suddenly. Surely, Mr. Speaker, it is a matter of common sense that we should try to protect ourselves against ill health by taking out health insurance.

Mr. Speaker, the Fourth Elected Member from George Town is right to worry about cost of the premium eventually going up. Unfortunately, that is a fact of life. Just watch what will happen to property insurance in this region after hurricanes, Georges and Mitch. We cannot control these things, but it does not mean that we should not have insurance. We must all prioritise our needs and protecting ourselves against the financial calamities that can come about from illness should be right at the top of our list.

I have said more than once that I am as concerned as anyone about Government's increasing recurrent expenditure and of course health in the recent years has been a major player. We are planning on getting increased revenue in 1999 from more aggressive and creative recovery of monies owed, receipts from health insurance including the segregated fund which is for the indigent uninsurables, and the indigent partial uninsurables. This figure approaches $600,000 to $700,000 at this time which we will be able to tap into next year, reducing one of the burdens that we now experience. We hope to get more revenue as I indicated earlier, from revising some of our fees in a way that will not impact on the standard health insurance contract.

Mr. Speaker, I agree with my colleague, the Minister of Tourism, that Government must not only get paid for services, but the cost must be realistic. We will need to phase fee hikes over a period of years to keep abreast of real costs as happens anywhere else in the world.

The Speaker: May I interrupt you just one moment? When you reach a point where we can take the morning break ...

Hon. Anthony Eden: This will be fine, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: You can do it now? Okay, we shall suspend for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.40 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12.15 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Debate continues. The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation, continuing.

Hon. Anthony Eden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. When we took the break I was dealing with Health Services department.

In our undertaking within the Ministry and the Health Services department we will also be making sure that the department is a high quality, cost effective department. That is one of the reasons, my Ministry and the department have engaged the services of District Audit. They are experts in their field.

Mr. Speaker, when this new hospital that Government has just built was designed, the new private hospital did not even exist as a press release, or blueprints. So, of course now that it is here, we need to factor it in—which I alluded to earlier in my debate. But I am confident that between District Audit and ourselves, we will be able to make some adjustments, perhaps in staffing, programs, proposed services, so that the Health Services department and the new private hospital will complement each other rather than duplicate services.

Mr. Speaker, there will always be those who for one reason or another, will come to the Government Hospital, rather than to a private one. And Government has heavy and enduring responsibility to provide health care to all its citizens who need it.

Government must continue to collaborate with the private health sector. But this does not mean that Government gives its services away to the private health sector. If our facilities are to be used, then they must pay us the true cost in the same way that they charge us when we use their facilities. At present this is not happening and this situation cannot and must not continue.

Mr. Speaker, I am proud of what we have achieved in health services over the last few years, and I believe that most Caymanians would agree that there has been, and will continue to be, significant improvement. But we will not be sitting on our laurels. There is still much to be done. I have said that we will be focusing on quality and cost-effectiveness. Whatever it takes to achieve these I am willing to take the lead and see it through. We will work together—Ministry and Health Services—in a partnership to achieve our common goal—i.e. a first class health care system that is patient-oriented and delivers to the people of these islands value for money.

These things do not happen overnight. Particularly when you think of the past troubles the Health Services department has had to endure. But I guarantee that as long as I am Minister we will be committing ourselves 100% to achieving that goal.

Mr. Speaker, I think this Government and these islands can be proud of the world class facility we now have on the present site with its state-of-the-art equipment. I have had comments from doctors and nurses who have trained in major university health centres, not only in United States and Canada, but also in Europe. They have said to me that what we have provided here equipment-wise and other facilities, some of them do not even have it in their own countries. This makes me feel good, Mr. Speaker.

We have come a long way in a short period of time. There has been a quantum leap in the provision of health services in these islands. But, Mr. Speaker, I did not do it by myself and I am the first to tell you and the public that I have no medical training or background as I am often lambasted by a previous Minister. But I have had a fantastic staff to work with: a dedicated staff. Mr. Speaker, when we look back at where we have come from within the health services, what they have endured because of political maneuvering is a national disgrace. But thank God we have been able to turn that around. I have been given the opportunity over a span of six years (as we all know I did not take over until mid-stream in 1994) and with the help of my colleagues and Executive Council and this Legislative Assembly, we were able when it came to the provision of health services, to set politics aside and provide services which our Caymanian people have needed for over three decades.

Construction, Mr. Speaker, is in the final stages—mainly tidying up a bit more stuff out front—and by the end of this year that will all be finished. During the first few months of next year we will be equipping and staffing. And with the assistance of His Excellency the Governor, we look forward to an official opening in March.

[Inaudible comment by a Member]

Hon. Anthony Eden: Anything you say, sir! Whatever the people demand we will try our best to provide. But we will not be waiting until March to occupy. I have told the staff that once sections and departments are ready we will move into them. For those who have visited and seen the facilities there, I think the pride and joy is the Paediatrics [section] and of late I have been getting rave reviews on the Maternity section.

Just a few weeks ago, there were two sets of twins born there. A couple of them were very small. Traditionally, when it came to neonates, immediately they would have been air-ambulanced to a more sophisticated hospital (at this time Baptist Hospital in Miami, Pre-care). But because of the excellent equipment we now have in place here, that family was saved probably hundreds of thousands of dollars, because when it comes to intensive care for neonates [the cost] is massive.

Mr. Speaker, one area that has been asked for significantly is for the provision of training funds for the health services. We look forward to using some of this money to send and encourage...What we are trying to do, Mr. Speaker, is now to go into the schools and to share with the children—to encourage them. There are definitely increased interests in the medical professions.

One of my good friends in George Town, Mr. Steve McField, has a brilliant young man and we are trying to get assistance for him, also a couple in Jamaica in training, one in the University of Miami, and I welcome any of the young kids who wish to enter into the medical profession, because it would be a crying shame to have an excellent facility and we cannot get our own Caymanians to staff this. We must look in the long run to putting our people in there where we know they can build and continue to provide excellent services to our people.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to take this opportunity to thank the Director of Health Services, the Chief Nursing Officer, all the senior managers and all the staff for their hard work and dedication, especially over the last three years when we had to build around an existing site. Mr. Speaker, thank God there was never a complaint from those staff. It is hard to believe that you could add another 125,000 sq. ft. to an existing facility and to have the minimum—very, very minimal interruption while the building was going on.

Once again it was a team approach with project management and the senior managers of the hospital, where, whenever they needed to do something that would impact the services, they talked about it and crossed that bridge to deal with it so that there was very minimal disruption.

Mr. Speaker, I want to touch briefly now on Social Services. A lot of questions I answered over the last few days gives this Honourable House a better understanding of services that are provided there. The proactive approach that is now being taken by Social Services where they no longer sit and wait; no longer providing a service that says that we are on the dole. We are trying, Mr. Speaker, through seminars and meetings and whatever it takes, to educate the people in ways that will make them better prepared for providing for themselves.

Mr. Speaker, it is not an enviable department to have to deal with. The Director and her staff have done a superb job at times under very difficult circumstances and at times with insufficient funds. We look forward to extending our programmes for the elderly to North Side, East End, and Cayman Brac. The Honourable Member from North Side has said (as was revealed in the study done), that the district of North Side has the largest percentage of the elderly and also the fastest growing. We need to put in place whatever is necessary to make sure that those people who have committed so much to the development of this country will be taken care of properly in their golden years.

Further utilisation of the community development officers—and I must give the First Elected Member from West Bay his credit because this programme was instituted under his leadership. We look forward to having one in North Side, and I know there is a need to have an extra one in George Town and one in West Bay and it is a real blessing to have Mr. Tony Scott in Bodden Town. He is very proactive. He gets out there, gets the people out, provides the service not only for the elderly, Mr. Speaker, but he has done a marvellous job in assisting with the Bodden Town Youth Band which is a wonderful sound to the ears when you hear their performances—a very, very high standard! Programmes are provided at Christmas time and at Easter with the involvement of the community.

Mr. Speaker, this is the message we try to put forward at all times: If there are those who need help, Government will help, but Government cannot do it alone. We ask, and expect families and whoever is in the position, to make a firm contribution wherever possible: if it is no more than to sit and keep company with these elderly people in their twilight days.

One of the main emphases this coming year is the enactment of The Children's Law. There are significant ramifications for this, and I see this is going toward placing more responsibility on parents and families in the caring of the young. Mr. Speaker, this is where it has to start: at home. And I preach this and I will continue to advocate. Once that young child gets out there, after two, three, or four years of age, the formative stage in their minds...we cannot wait until these children go into the schools. We must start at home. We must know where our children are at—who they are keeping company with.

Mr. Speaker, it pains me sometimes when I go home from functions at some late hours of the night, and see young—sometimes toddlers walking on the street. How in God's world—how can parents allow this to happen? I know, and we all know that there are difficult times. There are difficult times, but those children the time that we spend with them is the greatest investment that we can make. And if we need to continue to educate and assist those families who are having difficulties for whatever reason—and a lot of times they are experiencing financial difficulties. But, Mr. Speaker, it is a God-given order that we take care of our children and they are not neglected.

And there is no excuse as far as I am concerned when you see young children walking the streets at all hours of the day and night; children walking up and down in George Town after school. I do know that the principals of the two major high schools have done their utmost to curb this and it has improved significantly. Once again I beseech the parents to get involved. Please know where those children are. Because when it comes to the stage that police and the courts are involved, it is a very, very expensive route to go. We have seen in figures here that to keep an inmate at Northward [Prison] is costing these islands approximately $20,000 per year. We cannot continue this.

Mr. Speaker, as I said, one of the areas that will be addressed under The Children's Law is the proposed Secure Remand Centre for these young people, in attempt to assist them. It went before the Public Sector Committee in August and it has had their blessings and has been passed on to Exco. It has been approved and it will be coming to the Legislative Assembly. I ask for the support of this Honourable House—that this is something we look at...

At present where these children are located in the West Bay lock-up—it is almost inhumane. We must address these areas. This is one of the projects that the Honourable Minister for Tourism has talked about when we go for some additional borrowings. This will not only be [used] as a secure remand; we also see a wing of this as a drug rehabilitation programme for juveniles which at the present is not being addressed. The one at Canaan Land and the one that Government has, both start at a more senior age, but with the help of God we hope to assist these young people.

At this time I would also like to thank the Director and all of her staff for the many hours—as we have heard about some of the ungodly hours—they have to put in, similar to us, politicians. They have done it gladly.

Mr. Speaker, I am moving on now to Cayman Counselling Centre and the services it provides. One of our significant accomplishments this year was to get formal planning approval for the Breakers Rehab. I know there have been some concerns, but I am pleased to tell this Honourable House that under the last application which was filed, there was not one single objection. I pledge to the people of Breakers that we will monitor this, which will prove immensely helpful to those people in our community who at this time we are sending overseas for help.

Mr. Speaker, the drug problem knows no respecter of persons. It doesn't matter what colour you are, where you come from, or what financial standing you have; we all have this problem. And it has certainly been proven that sending them to Northward does not produce the best results. We have to provide rehabilitation and a follow-up—not only when they come out from this rehab place. We must stay with them; I do know that this is a part of the plans and programmes that will be implemented.

Mr. Speaker, I must say that over the past few months we have been able to establish a much better rapport with Canaan Land. They now understand what we expect from them and how we can work in collaboration with other NGOs in this island to address the drug problem. With approval of this Honourable House, we will be asking for a grant of approximately $50,000 and looking forward as things improve, to increase that.

You see, Mr. Speaker, when the experts from the Addiction Research Foundation in Canada came down and talked with us, they said not only the general way—the traditional way of dealing with rehabilitation—but the religious approach is another area that some people will certainly benefit from. It was pleasing to see —

Hon. Anthony Eden: Absolutely. Absolutely, Mr. Speaker. It was pleasing to see that Mr. Peguero and others from Canaan Land were down at our recent update on our national strategic plan, and the involvement and support that we now get. What was very uplifting to me was the recent study undertaken by the National Drug Council on the student drug-use survey.

The National Drug Council, Mr. Speaker, as you know, came into being just recently, and this was their first undertaking. We needed a yardstick by which we could base our progress/no progress as we went forward. There was no statistical data on which we could say that what we were doing was the right thing, or the wrong thing. It was pleasing to see that 86% of children in the middle schools—private, and public, took part in this with the permission of their parents. Some of the areas highlighted by the press were—I think it was about 45% of the children who were doing drugs. But, Mr.

Speaker, the most uplifting thing...the message that came through to me was when we compared regionally, also Canada and the United States, our Caymanian children's use of abusive drugs was lower compared to most of these developed countries.

But, we must not rest on this. We must continue to make sure that programmes are in place; that intervention starts at an earlier stage. From primary schools, Education programmes must be put in place. And I must say with the creation of the National Drug Council, which has some extremely dedicated people who give freely of their time, this is now being addressed. They plan to do another survey—prison prevalence—and eventually a community needs assessment.

Mr. Speaker, it made me feel good last week when one of the visiting persons at the CFATF meeting—one of the gentlemen from United Nations Drug Control Programme, from the regional office in Barbados, said to me that the Cayman Islands National Drug Strategic Plan is now being circulated as an example in the region for a well thought-out community-based programme. They have also said to me that they now have a file—our National Drug Strategic Plan filed at the headquarters in Vienna. Mr. Speaker, we have come a long way, but still there is much more to be done. It can only be done through the community involvement, the concern of caring parents—parents going to the PTAs. I think it is very important, because this can be one of the primary and/or first indicators when a child starts to have difficulties. If there are problems within the school—when their grades start to drop—it can easily be picked up there; or other areas. But it is so important that parents attend the home, school, or PTAs.

Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to say to the Honourable Fourth Elected Member for George Town, regarding what he mentioned in his debate (which was on a motion moved by him), that the technicians have just completed the actuarial study for the establishment of a public-owned health insurance corporation. It will be taken to Executive Council and then the next sitting of the House, God willing, it will be shared with the Legislative Assembly.

Mr. Speaker, mention was made about the National Team, and I do know that some have strayed from the fold, but I would gladly welcome them back—those who would wish.

Mr. Speaker, when I look back over the past six years (four of them have been on Executive Council) and see some of the accomplishments, I think we have done a decent job. A rough estimate of capital expenditure over development and capital acquisitions total, nigh on to $200 million. We have spent money on the infrastructure and every one in these islands can see where this money went.

Just to name a handful of them, Mr. Speaker: The Botanic Park, Pedro St. James Historic Site, George Town Hospital, Bodden Town district Health Centre, East End district Health Centre, North Side Health Centre, West Bay Health Centre, Ed Bush Sports Complex (where for the first time in history, Mr. Speaker, I think we all as Caymanians were proud when Cayman was able to advance in the Shell Cup at the Ed Bush Sports Field a few years back), the Truman Bodden Sports Complex, East End Playing Field and finally in the final stage of the Bodden Town Playing Field. Mail-sorting facility, Department of the Environment Building, North Side Civic Centre, The Heritage Village in West Bay, Scholars Park in West Bay, Public Beaches in West Bay, Bodden Town, Spotts, Colliers, Gunbay (jetty and ramp in some of these areas).

Mr. Speaker, the Agricultural Pavilion where for many years there was no place for the farmers to exhibit their produce. Recently the Agriculture Department building, construction of the Harquail Bypass, sewage treatment plant at the George Town Hospital, at least $20 million spent on road works, air-conditioned civic centre at Bodden Town (and this morning we heard the Honourable Minister for Education saying that approximately $6.5 million have been spent on Education).

Mr. Speaker, there remains much to be done, but with a better understanding of the Government Bench and the Back Bench—and I have a feeling that its coming forward—we can do much, much more. And the ultimate beneficiaries of this, will be our Caymanian people.

Mr. Speaker, Who will pay for it? I was told—not being around in the olden days—when the determination was needed for certain improvement in the infrastructure, to build this building, the Courts building and one other one, we had to borrow. We have to look at it seriously; do we wait until everything is worn and gone and then try to borrow? We are at a stage in our development—and I do know that the Third Elected Member from West Bay did mention about borrowings. But, at this time, we are in a position to fund the borrowings and it is no use of us waiting until the roads are so deteriorated that we have to rip the whole thing up and redo everything. We cannot neglect our children, Mr. Speaker. Areas such as George Town and West Bay there is not a civic centre or hurricane shelter.

Mr. Speaker, we must make a decision where the ultimate benefit of what we do must be for the people of this Country. We can have a meeting of minds and look at this in the proper light. I am sure that we can arrive at a happy medium for the benefit of these islands.

Mr. Speaker, in closing, I look forward to the increase of funding, which was mentioned earlier in this meeting with the Honourable Minister of Tourism, to help pay for air conditioning the Breakers community hall, a decent post office in Bodden Town, a proper launching ramp at Spotts and above all right now our roads. We all know that Bodden Town, prior to 1992, our road infrastructure received little, very, very little attention. Until now, we are trying to catch up with the other districts.

And this is why, Mr. Speaker, you may hear me in the background whenever anyone speaks on Roads, I plead with Members. At one time my good friend the Elected Member for North Side and also my colleagues from West Bay assisted by giving Bodden Town a little share of their money. There are so many roads within the district of Bodden Town and we all know that it is the fastest growing district in the Island. Some of these roads have never been brought up to a decent standard. I beg for your support in helping us get better roads.

Phase I of the Crewe Road Bypass will significantly improve our rush hour traffic jams in the mornings and the evenings. Yes, West Bay has a problem, but the distance from North Side and East End is almost twice as long. And as the Honourable Member from North Side said, When you look at the consumption of gasoline while just waiting there, it's difficult, Mr. Speaker, to put this on our people.

Mr. Speaker, after witnessing the extensive flooding from the Savannah gully, I was able to have Executive Council go out and tour the area and see first-hand what had occurred. Also with us on that visit were the Second and Third Elected Members for Bodden Town, and (I think) the First Elected Member from George Town. Government has given the commitment to provide up to $50,000 for an engineering study of the area, and as I said, I do know my other two colleagues, the Second and Third Elected Members for Bodden Town also share the community's concern about future flooding.

Mr. Speaker, there is more that I could say, but at this time I would like to close. I ask the continued support of this Honourable House as we go forward to make these islands a better place.

And, finally, I would like to thank my extremely competent Permanent Secretary, Senior Assistant Secretary, Assistant Secretary and all the other staff in my Ministry; especially the Health Services Department, the Social Services Department, Cayman Counselling Centre, National Drug Council. And, Mr. Speaker, I cannot leave out the trying times and the assistance provided by the Honourable Financial Secretary and his Deputy (who is a brilliant young man). Also, head of Budget Management, Mr. Peter Gough, his staff, and I see Dr. Parsans and her staff are still with us. We thank you for all your support. As I said earlier, Mr. Speaker, God sparing life, when we go through this Budget session I am looking forward to not experiencing the trauma that I have encountered over the last three years since I became a Minister of Executive Council.

Thank you.

The Speaker: We shall suspend proceedings until 2.30 PM.

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.45 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Debate continues on the Second Reading of the Appropriation (1999) Bill, 1998. Does any other Member wish to speak?

The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you.

I am glad that one of the other Ministers finally decided to speak. If that had not happened, then perhaps we would have spent all afternoon talking to the Government about that. Fortunately, we have been able to avoid that. Nevertheless, my contribution this afternoon, as pointed as it may seem to be, will be dealing with, to the best of my knowledge, the facts.

This Budget for 1999, with all its inherent problems, is a culminating result, in my opinion, of the blatant mismanagement of the country's financial resources by the National Team Government, and not just now but, as I hope to prove before I am through, for the past six years. It shows a total lack of foresight and forward thinking on the part of the Government. And in my view it certainly reflects failure—total failure!—on the part of the policy-makers to lead us in any direction whatsoever, much less the right one.

It is an indictment. And if there were laws in the land dealing with fiscal incompetence, surely the Government would be convicted, prosecuted and sentenced to the maximum term possible. Worst of all, and very sad to say, it is stamped all over with the trademark of their leader, the trademark of the great Band-Aid Practitioner! [Members' laughter]

For a while I thought it was only those of us on the Backbench who saw through his disguise. But it is obvious to us that we are not the only ones who have finally seen it. As the Minister for Tourism quite appropriately put it in his delivery, and I quote from the unedited transcripts, "It's not that we don't know what to do, it's that we kid ourselves by saying that we can use a Band-Aid approach and solve this situation. Then, after the Band-Aid approach is used, the problem is still with us." [23 November, page 1157]

For years, as long as I have been here (which has not been that long, but if Memory serves me right this will be my seventh Budget Session), there have been those among us who have been preaching and imploring and begging for the Band-Aid practices to stop. Six years later the only slight bit of comfort we have is that [finally] one of their own has admitted it. That's a start.

It almost leads me to believe that the Government's view of the economy is this: If it moves, tax it. If it keeps moving, then regulate it. And, of course, if it stops moving then, by God, let's subsidise it! [Members' laughter.] I notice from the few addresses we have had, and in previous times, there is a lot of scripture quoted; I have a new slogan for them. Because when we look at the tax measures being put forward and when we look at the mismanagement of the country's financial resources and when we look at the continuous spate of borrowing, this must be their slogan, and that is, 'Blessed are the young, for they shall inherit the increasing national debt.'

As the Members who spoke before me mentioned, and those of us who, from time to time, read several of the international publications that keep tabs on the world's economy, we see where a lot of them are beginning to predict global financial meltdown. That's the fancy word they call it. Some of them go as far as to say that the second great depression of the 20th Century has begun. Bearing that in mind some of us on the Backbench—who are a lot smarter than I am—figured out a new slogan when it comes to the financial side of things. So this one is not mine originally, but I have been given the onerous task to say it (because it is so difficult for me to say things like this): "Depression is when you are out of work; a recession is when your neighbour is out of work; but recovery for all of us is when the National Team is out of work." So, hopefully, we will recover.

It is not really a pleasure to be, as they term it, "pounding-up" on the Government. The truth is, many of us don't really have very absolute aspirations in this thing that we call politics. There are those of us who take it seriously, but who are quite content to do what we have to do once the country continues to move forward. But when we see times like these, then the truth is, aspirations can easily be put aside because it is so obvious what is happening. Personally, beside all the fun and jokes we may have between each other— it frightens me! It really does.

If you have a friend, and time and time again you take that friend and you continually warn him 'Do not climb that fence, there is a dog over there and he is going to eat you'... It is bad enough if you are in a position where 'they' simply don't want to listen to you, and you let them climb that fence and whatever happens to them happens.

But our position is different because we are tied on to them, and if they climb the fence and the dog eats them, the dog is going to eat us too! As far as I am concerned, because that is the position, then no matter what it takes we have to stop them from climbing the fence. Whether it ends up in a fistfight, or whether it ends up with sensible dialogue it's up to them. But I know that I am not going over any fence to get eaten with them. That is where we are at today.

Before I go into any of the details regarding the Budget Address and the Budget, let me just make it very clear that we understand how the system works. And, lest anyone misunderstand our intention, I want to satisfy myself by saying it once. I don't want anyone to misunderstand. I remember last year we were having some problems with the Budget and we were talking about prioritisation and the whole spiel, and we were in the Committee Room. A slight little confrontation, nothing serious, but a little back-and-forth with some words went on between me and the Minister for Education. And when I asked him a pointed question about the Budget...he's come with his books, thank God, Mr. Speaker...about the situation regarding some part of the Budget, the goodly gentleman, without a blink of his eye or a stutter of one word said, "Don't ask me, it's not my Budget. It's their Budget." And he pointed at the Hon. Financial Secretary and his Deputy.

Thank God we had that little exercise so we won't hear that one again. But I brought that example up to make it clearly understood by one and all that we know that the Hon. Third Official Member delivers the Budget Address. We know that his professional staff put the document together. We know that their job is to make sure that all of the information there is correct; that all of the additions are correct; that there is nothing in the document that is given to us that can mislead us.

They also serve in an advisory capacity because they are professionals. But, Mr. Speaker, they don't have to tell me anything. My dealings alone with certain people make me understand clearly that as free as that advice is, it is rarely taken. So, whatever I am dealing with in regard to the Budget is totally linked and totally equated to the Government's policy and the policy that I am talking about is the policy of the Elected Government.

There might be, I don't know, out of the Elected Government someone who may also differ personally with what has been dealt to us. But I am not there with them. I do not know what their thoughts are. So, as of this point in time, when I am dealing with it, I have to say the Government, because I also know that they deal with something we call "collective responsibility." So, for ease of [reference], when I am talking, those who need to take it personally please feel free to do so; those who understand where I am coming from can do so also. I have made my point as clear as I can. From here on in, when I talk about the Government, it's the Government. End of story.

I would like to show the Government how concerned people are. I am not going to start off the way that might be expected, but with your permission, sir, I would like to read a letter that was passed on to me by a Caymanian professional, which he received from a foreigner who does business on this island and who visits this island fairly regularly. Obviously, the gentleman, while not being a Caymanian, is genuinely concerned. I would just like to read it because I believe it will begin to open our eyes as to how some people feel.

It is entitled and it reads: "Cayman Development—past, present, and future,"

"Grand Cayman is its own ecosystem in a fragile balance that has been tipping one direction, namely, toward complete physical development for far too long. Everyone, from the residents to returning visitors, comment on the obvious negative trends that are degrading Cayman. Yet, it seems that no one is taking the issue seriously because profit and money are driving the process, rather than rational, balanced dialogue.

"As Cayman nears the foreseeable end of its development cycle, good decisions become even more critical because of the resulting effects of those decisions. All decisions concerning present and future development need to balance the needs, requirements and interests of native Caymanians, local business, foreign business, tourism and infrastructure, including roads, parking, telephone, water, sewage and garbage disposal. In other words, Cayman as a whole.

"If we now question how well the process has worked lately by giving it a report card, serious questions become obvious. Development decisions, especially those of late, appear to be pushed through without weighing many aspects detailed above. Such decisions were not critical thirty years ago when the island still had dirt roads. But because of the degree of present development today's decisions have a far more dramatic impact than decisions of earlier times."

Continuing, Mr. Speaker: "An analogy can be made to whaling as pertains to commercial developers. [obviously the gentleman is drawing a parallel here] Cayman beaches, just like more whales, cannot just simply be created to accommodate the endless whalers/developers and their business interests in profit. The whalers approached the resource recklessly without thought to the future by claiming virtually all of the resource until it was virtually all gone. So too is it today with Cayman property."

I just want to pause for a second there to make sure we are with what the gentleman is saying. He is talking about the whalers, especially in Europe in the early 20th Century where it was a very lucrative business for quite some time. But, as usual, they ransacked the resources and very soon there were no whales to be caught because it was not done in a sensible and sustainable fashion where they could keep the stock replenished and they would keep having whales. They simply would not stop until there were none left. He is saying "So too is it today with Cayman property."

"Sensible development ought not mean that every inch of beach is filled to capacity with brick and mortar in the form of hotels, condominiums or even retail shops. Sensible development also does not mean bulldozing the mangrove, our island's natural wetlands. Sensible development requires an examination of the bigger picture, to fairly question and evaluate the impacts on Cayman as a whole with more than just a wink and a nod [that's funny, he mentioned a wink and a nod] to the negative impacts to the island and a frequent, ultimate financial windfall to a few."

"What is the purpose, and who benefits from continued development of any kind that only results in more traffic on roads already filled to capacity, with more pollution from the increase in even more vehicles? What is the effect of more traffic on roads we are having difficulty repairing today? What is the purpose, and who benefits from continued development requiring more imported labour for service positions resulting in more unfulfilled housing needs of those immigrants and more demand on water and sewage from the increased guests and staff?"

He clears the point up, because in reading it thus far, in that very last paragraph, one could begin to get nervous, but he goes on. He says: "This issue is not about being anti-development. The issue is about being pro-Cayman which is our home. Development demands balance and that balance has been sadly lacking as of late. By beginning today by committing to retain Cayman stature as the jewel of the Caribbean we have a chance, and only a chance, to safeguard the future.

"There are but few guarantees. One guarantee, and not a positive one at that, is the fact that if we continue to allow profit-driven developers to control and dominate the future of Cayman's scarce remaining property resources, then Cayman is doomed, much like the whales, to become an endangered, diminished, overdeveloped, overcrowded, cramped island with decreased quality of life for all."

Very profound.

It closes off by saying, "That is hardly the place tourists and business people are going to rush to. Additionally, as the overcrowding increased pressure reaches maximum density a larger disparity . . ." And this is very interesting, Mr. Speaker, because I have never laid eyes on the man; I have never spoken to him; I have never even heard of him. But someone who is not from these shores, who simply only visits, can have the foresight. I am going to read what he said because it is important. He says:

“Additionally, as the overcrowding increased, pressure reaches maximum density a larger disparity between the haves and the have-nots with the inevitable antagonism between those who live here and those who simply come to vacation and do business will further result in turning those away who seek a pleasurable experience be it on vacation, to do business, or both.”

He says, “Cayman’s very future is at stake. We need to balance all the needs fairly. We need to learn from similar situations in different places. The Cayman situation is certainly not completely unique. The available property is finite and will reach the developmental saturation point at some point. I only ask that the dialogues and decisions be on balance, fair and public long before that point is reached.”

I did not wish to bore the House by reading that letter, but it struck me as very important. Here we are, the bunch of us in here who claim to be the very pious representatives of the people of this country, and if someone who can certainly go somewhere else, but must see some good in us, and who is only a visitor, shows concern of this nature... And as I read what he says just about every line that I read I think, here we are, the country is facing all of these problems, and it looks like a fair amount of us who claim to be the people’s pious representatives really don’t care. Do you know what, Mr. Speaker? I wish I were somewhere else where I could aptly express myself, but I’ll be alright.

When I say that it seems like we truly don’t care, some of us, it is because the very same points that I am talking about, here are some of us chiming about these situations and we find that our words are falling on deaf ears.

Let me explain what I think. I do not believe that extremities on either side of the fence will work for this country. I am a realist. I understand the difficulties that we have. I know that we need to continue to attract development. I know that we need to continue to attract investments. I know that. But that is why it calls for more than it used to be in a position to make decisions because it is not like it used to be. There was a time when because nothing had hardly been touched that you could kind of go at it hoggishly and you didn’t notice much of it, so nobody was worried. That is the windfall the gentleman is talking about.

But we must understand and realise that we have passed that point now and are at the point where if we don’t stop and take stock, then sooner or later it will be all gone and we will have a mess on our hands. I don’t want to spend the rest of my life (if it is even what the good Lord promised us) saying “I told you so.” Or saying, “that old so-and-so should have known better.” I don’t want that to happen. That ain’t gonna help me.

So, Mr. Speaker, the words that the so-called Opposition are preaching are taking on a different light because we are in crisis. It is not going to be the ordinary situation where we know that they know better and they still won’t do anything about it and then we are going to simply sit down and just wait it out. The situation is much more perilous than that.

We talk about how much we care, how much we want to see things right. Every one of us [says], ‘Oh, yeah, man, yeah.’ But when it comes down to doing what is right, it’s a shame. It is a downright shame the way national decisions are made about the future of this country. I have no apologies to make. I don’t care who doesn’t like it, but what the gentleman says in the letter is true. So many decisions are being made purely driven by money, and how much can be made. And it is becoming much more frequent.

The word on the street is not, ‘I wonder if someone will hear my plight’ anymore. Do you know what the word is? It’s ‘Who do you know?’ because if you know the right people you can get through. That is not us! And I am not making that up. I am told that. People come to me wanting certain things done not knowing me well enough, and asking me if I know. I ask, know what? ‘Well, if you know so-and-so, you can lead me in the right direction because so-and-so got such-and-such and so done.’

Mr. Speaker, I am not casting aspersions. And I am not pointing fingers, but if my country is being thought of as another Banana Republic, I am not going to sit down, stand up, or lie down and leave it alone. I don’t care who it is and who doesn’t like it.

I know it is the Budget Address, Mr. Speaker. I accept that, and I won’t stray too far out. I get short-winded quickly, so don’t worry about that.

What we have to understand and accept is that the very future, the life’s blood of this country is at stake right now. In this letter the man mentioned the disparity of wealth distribution. Three years ago, I distinctly remember standing right where I am today, talking about it. I remember going on the political platform talking about it. I remember hearing every single soul that I talked to agreeing with me. But we are still turning around in here and we are making it worse, and worse and worse everyday. And then, when it all blows up in our face, we’re going to talk about how bad the people are?

When those people become how I am talking about, we will have created them. And let no man or woman inside this place ever believe for one second that he/she doesn’t share the responsibility. It won’t happen like that. We are the ones who say we want to represent the people. We go out there and beg them to vote for us because we will be such good servants.

Mr. Speaker, what is happening today is an injustice. We are making decisions; we are painting pretty pictures and there is total disregard for the majority of people in this country—not even partial disregard, total! They don’t exist!

Do you know when they are going to exist? When they are riled up and somebody needs to go talk to them to try and quiet them down. I hope it’s not me they ask!

When I am through I will hear people saying that I get up and preach gloom and doom. Hm! There is no more time. It is not such a thing where you can rest and look at it next year. It is happening to the point where the only thing that has saved us so far is our size. If we were a country or a nation with two or three times the population we have now, God help us. Right now that is how we would have been, given the fact that everything that has happened so far in this country will have happened. God help us if we had three or four times the population we have now.

We get up and make these pretty speeches about how much we care. About how much we want to see our people educated, how we want to see them trained, how we want to see them fill their rightful place in society and be all that they can be, and we sit flat and do nothing about it except preach. Yeah! but thank God, right now I have an excuse. That is all I can do now. But I guarantee you, had I been in a different position, I am not telling you that it would have been perfect, but I would have had, by now, many sleepless nights. Most of us really care, you know. But for the love of me--those who can actually do something about it--why can't we see it? And I don't want to hear any more about how difficult it is. I know it's difficult. If it's too difficult, go! If you can't deal with it, fine! I can't help that. But we can't continue to just talk about it.

This document which contains nigh on to $300 million of expenditure for this country for the year 1999, and the other attachments which include loans and what is nicely termed "revenue enhancement measures" to make sure the country has enough money to spend what this document calls for to be spent. Because of the way it has gone on, it is no longer how much money you have to spend, which used to be the big cry. The big question is, How well are you going to use the money that you have available to you? It is obvious from the position Government has taken that this is exactly what has happened.

Let me tell you what has happened, because it is not the first time—it's the second time this has happened in two years. Since the 1996 election, since they went around telling everybody "Give us four more years to finish what we started" . . . I heard them say that myself. Sure, give them four more years to finish us off!

But after they got through with that, in two years they have brought tax measures. Do you know how it works? They piddle about all over the place, totally disorganised, no forward planning, and they sit down and it's like you can see the fear building up in them—'Oh, when we get those requests from the various departments and they all add up, what are we going to do?' And they look at it...I am going to give them the benefit of the doubt.

After the whole business happens, if the policy-makers look at it two weeks before the date that you, sir, set the Budget session to begin, it's more than I know. Then they start to 'um, um, um', and go all over the place [Members' laughter] to try to make it work. And then, when they get to where they have done everything possible and they find that there is still a gap between recurrent revenue and projected recurrent expenditure, then it's 'Okay, what can we tax? Where can we get it from?' [Laughter] And they pull all the same old dead horses out of the cupboard, and they say, 'Well, we haven't touched this one in a little while. I wonder if we can get away with this.' I know.

But, Mr. Speaker, listen now, this is not to ridicule them, you know. They will see it that way, but this is not to ridicule them. I am coming to the real point. So they go through the spiel, and they do a little bit of test, and feel out to see how bad the damage is going to be—'cause they know there's going to be damage; they know that the public is going to raise a little hell with them. So they work along those lines. Finally, when they figure that they haven't pushed it too far—that it's really going to sink them: 'That's okay. Let's go with that.' The point that I am making is that I honestly believe that this is the way it has been for almost forever.

Where I take issue with the present Government is the fact that they have been here with all of us, they have been in better positions than us, they have been in better informed positions than us, and they have seen the trends within the country, but they sit down and do it the same way. I will venture to say that's why some of them haven't spoken before me. I know that. But that's cool. It will be like that for awhile. But if they didn't have some of us on the Backbench (called the Opposition) being thorns in their sides, it can be called an opinion or whatever, but until they are removed from there they will do it the same way. They wouldn't even think to do it differently. So any movement you see to do it in a different way is not by their volition. And that's what disappoints me.

I have to make that assumption because they didn't do it before.

Mr. Roy Bodden: True! True!

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: When we were hollering all the time before . . . 'Ah, don't pay them no mind, man. They were radical, old idiots.'

Mr. Roy Bodden: Defunct!

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Yeah!

But now, the public is becoming more informed, so they get a little more fearful. Two years' time from now they want to go back and say, 'Give us four more years to finish what we are doing.' Yeah! They want to try to balance themselves out through.

Mr. Speaker, do you know the difference with me? I am going to do the best that I know how, that I can understand how, that I can try and learn how, as long as I am here. And if that is not good enough, or if that causes me to lose face in the eyes of the public, I'll go home. But I will tell you a few things that are not going to happen to me. I will never be part and parcel of a decision-making process in this place when I know better when it comes to how it is going to affect my country either because of pressure from somebody, or somebody I think I owe a favour to, or somebody who I think I can work out a deal with. It can't happen!

Mr. Speaker, I am going to tell you something else. Any man, woman or child who tells me that those things I just said are not happening, is telling a lie. I know they are happening. Those things have nothing to do with systems. Those things have to do with people. It has to do with the very integrity of this country. And there is no one person, or any one group that has a total grip on that. This is my country too! This is the country of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town, and the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, and the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town. That is just to show you that it has nothing to do with sides.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Yeah, but that last one isn't in our group though!

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: That doesn't matter. It has nothing to do with sides! That's the point.

Let me tell you that this is a different time. There actually was a time when . . . and I am not ashamed of it because that's how life is. I remember sitting here knowing better, and trying to figure for hours how I was going to deal with it because I was afraid . . . I am not ashamed to say that. I was afraid because I didn't know how to deal with it, because I didn't want to upset this one, or hurt that one's feelings. Mr. Speaker, it is very possible that my thoughts were appropriate at those times because it is very possible that those times were not as crucial as now. But those days are gone.

This country, this land, these people have the potential to hold on to what no where else in this world has. But it is my job, along with others, to ensure that if that's what is going to happen, it's not going to be two people holding on this side and soon everybody else falling off. Uh, uh. Every man jack is going to be holding on all around. That's where the problem is. That's why everybody can get up and agree with what I am saying today. Sure. They don't want anything to happen to the country. But where the equation differs is that in not wanting anything to happen to this country they are thinking but of a few.

Mr. Roy Bodden: True!

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: There lies the fatal mistake for my country. Anytime that thought-process allows itself to fester, we've got plenty trouble. And I am not bothering to go into a pile of details this afternoon. We understand how that is.

So, where we are right now, Mr. Speaker, is: We have a budget. . . . And that's another thing, Mr. Speaker. I really don't want you to answer me, but which one are we talking about? Are we talking about the first one, or should we talk about the $54 million package? I mean, we have seen two different presentations, but. . . anyway. We'll deal with both. How's that? Maybe we can get down to it.

Okay, so right now, we have had a Budget Address by the Hon. Third Official Member. Basically it talks about a budget of close to $280 million. It talks about a loan of just under $20 million. It talks about revenue measures—or taxation to the people of this country—of just under $12 million. And it talks about capital expenditure (if memory serves me right without searching the document) of either $27 million or $29 million. In a little while I am going to get down to the figures because I am not fancy with them. But I know how to make them work. Right now what we are going at here is what the Fourth Elected Member for George Town and the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town talk about: the philosophy of the existence of this whole thing.

When we look across at Government and we look at the subjects they are responsible for . . . before I get into the details of the thing, let us just look at the scenario. We had one presentation, which came as it should have from the Third Official Member. Then, shortly thereafter, by the time the first Member from the elected side of Government got up to speak he painted a whole different picture for us. He talked about several things that weren't right (I quoted one of them earlier on). I am a truthful person, and I want you to know that when the Minister for Tourism delivered his address, I was forced to listen very carefully because there were a lot of things that he was saying that made a lot of sense.

As he kept speaking I remembered standing here so many times myself saying these same things, 'You can't do it like this, you need to do this, you need to do that.' I even thought to myself at one point that he must have gone and picked up all those Hansards and read them over again.

But the big difference in all of that is this: If we look at the make-up of the Government, we have the five elected Officials, and the three Official Members who form Executive Council. On most occasions the subjects falling under the Official Members are fixed. It's only once in a blue moon that something is switched. Most of the time it's fixed. But we know that the subjects assigned to the Elected Members are changed at some point in time.

Also, whenever there is a new election it is very possible that the combination of the subjects will vary depending upon who the elected Executive Council Members are, where their strengths lie, and they could well get together amongst themselves and find that after one election and then another election, the names of the Ministries might vary. Sometimes certain things stay together, but not always.

In painting that picture, there is also the principle of collective responsibility. So, anyone can answer this for me. Here is what happened with what was presented to us. And, by the way, I am not going to look to destroy the credibility of that presentation. But from where I sit certain things have to be explained. I will deal with it as best I can in its entirety.

The Speaker: When you get to a convenient spot, we can take the afternoon break.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I can do so now, sir.

The Speaker: We shall suspend proceedings for 15 minutes. I am asking Hon. Members to try to be back in 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.45 PM*PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.08 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Debate continues. The First Elected Member for George Town, continuing.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: When we took the break I was coming to the delivery made by the Minister for Tourism. I was saying that we had one Budget Address delivered by the Hon. Third Official Member, which included a certain amount of capital projects, and a certain amount of borrowing.

Now, when the Minister for Tourism delivered his Address, he set the pace by basically addressing the issue of medium-term planning. He talked about a change in the way we do the business of this country—something some of us have been preaching about for many years. And then, he delivered his ‘big change’ I would call it, to the original capital development programme that was presented to us.

He said, and I quote, “I believe that there is a time when we should look at capital development over a period of two years and I am going to speak to that.” He also said, “I believe that the Government must come with a proper programme to resurface the major roads in this country, otherwise your patchy roadwork is going to cause you to end up spending twice to three times as much as we need to spend to correct it.”

We all know that it was announced very recently that there was to be some shifting of subjects within the Ministries, and the Governor made the announcement that the subject of Public Works and the Department of Vehicle and Equipment Services were shifting from where they were to the Ministry of Tourism, Commerce and Transport. Let us assume the bright picture. Let us assume that since there was always a hitching between the subject of transport and the subject of Public Works, which is Roads, and Vehicle and Equipment Services, that it was simply a matter of continuity to put it all together. Okay. So that is done.

Now, in his delivery the Minister went on to say, “If I am going to be responsible for roads in 1999”... (I forgot to say that that switch becomes effective 1 January 1999). So he said, “If I am going to be responsible for roads in 1999 I want to be proactive not reactive.” And then he spoke to a revised capital development programme of $54 million which involves a tremendous amount of capital works on roads throughout the islands. He also went on to say that, and I am not quoting him now, I don’t want to waste time to really look at it. But the gist of what he was saying was that if he couldn’t get proper funding to do what he knows has to be done for roads in this country, then they could leave it where it was.

Here lies the big question mark in my mind and in the minds of many other people. Executive Council, the policy-makers, get together and decide on their policies—which means between them, they decide on the capital projects. If I am wrong, I will gladly give way for one of them to correct me. But that is the way I understand it. And that is the way it has always been. I will wait until Monday, unless time allows to get into the Medium-Term Financial Strategy which we have been preaching about, and the Public Sector Investment Programme. But for right now let me leave the whole line of argument to do with Executive Council and the way the policies are made and the way it is delivered to the country and I will pick up on Monday with that.

So, Executive Council has to get together and each Minister who is responsible for the various subjects has to put forward his plans, or what he considers to be national needs. And then they look at the funds they will have readily available and they take into consideration what type of borrowing (or what level of borrowing) is prudent. Then, when they figure out how much money they will have available to them, they decide, ‘Okay, we’ll do this, and we’ll do that out of the funds available.’ I am saying it pretty simply, but I think that is basically how it is.

Now, this I know. Every single bit of roadwork that is on this list presented by the Minister for Tourism was talked about before by the other Minister. The Department responsible for that has continually put forward what they know as professionals is needed. They know the final decision rests with the Government as to what they are going to put forward for capital projects. But each department has to put forward what, in their view, the country needs. So this is nothing new. But my question, sir, is this: If Executive Council is working together, as they should; if they share collective responsibility, as they should; if they understand the national needs and deal with the priorities in the right manner, then why, Mr. Speaker . . . I want someone to tell me: Why was it that all the time the requests were in, they were not dealt with because it was another Minister? But the moment the subject changes a wonderful programme is put to us. Somebody tell me why! They really don’t want me to venture why. Perhaps I will.

Mr. Speaker, what is politics? Is politics supposed to be a decision-making process done by a democratic process to do what is best, and in the best interest of the people you represent? There are other definitions, but I think that is pretty close to what I want to hear now. So there is one of two or three scenarios we are dealing with: It is either that the Minister who was responsible for it before and who kept bringing it to the Table didn’t holler loud enough, or ‘they’ didn’t care about his Ministry that much, or some of the rest of them had other priorities ‘they’ wanted to get out of the way first, or they didn’t know what they were doing. I could find a couple of others, but let me not bother with that any more.

Either way it goes, it shows that the decisions for this country that need to be made are not being made on the right basis by the Government. It shows that. But you see, it’s 1998. We are going into 1999. And, of course, we want to show that we are going to start the plan now. So while we are talking about 1999, we are talking about 2000 too. Once we can get this through, fellows—smooth sailing! Do you know why? Because we have committed ourselves straight in to the next general election. Clever move!

Mr. Roy Bodden: That's not good enough!

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Clever! I don't have a problem with that, Mr. Speaker. My question then is, between 1993 and 1998 there will have been...Hear me, Mr. Speaker, and I am using approximate figures... But there will have been in excess of $190 million worth of capital project done by the National Team Government. As I said, I am using approximate figures, but for my purposes they will suffice.

Out of all of those capital projects, to the tune of $190 million, in 1993 the Minister for Education in his [debate on the] Budget Address talked about knowing that for the last ten years they never had any roadwork programme, no sensible road maintenance programme. I won't bother to look it up, but that is what he said. Later on, if I really want to get down to it... Is someone suggesting that he didn't say it?

Mr. Speaker, the Minister for Education seemingly doubts me. I don't take chances. He should know that by now.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Put on your glasses now... [Members' laughter.]

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, on page 191 of the Official Hansard Report 1993, Vol. I, Government Business, Debate on the Throne Speech and the Appropriation Bill, 1993, continuation of the debate thereon, the Hon. Truman Murray Bodden said, "I know he has a difficult task because we all come to him with our requests for the roads which we know have not had a proper maintenance schedule in the last 10 years." If he wants me to table that, I will table that too, in case he doesn't have a copy of the Hansard—1993, I said that four times.

Mr. Speaker, it is just by chance that I mentioned that. But the point that I am making is that the Minister for Education in 1993 talked about no proper road maintenance programme. I am not going to bother this evening, but he had better read on the weekend because he said much more about roads. And because of what he just did, I am going to really read them on Monday morning for him. I am not finished with roads yet.

The point I am making is that politically every single Member of Government, at some point in time, has preached about the infrastructure, the need for roads. My question is: Why would it take six years to start talking about some type of mid-range planning for new road networks and resurfacing of roads? One hundred and ninety million dollars later—just in capital expenditure alone—and, all of a sudden, when the subject changes hands . . . What it almost looks like—and I beg not to be misunderstood by this statement. Do not misunderstand this statement. But from where I sit, it almost looks like a set-up. Thank God it wasn't me. But I will not go so far as to say it was so, because in all fairness I don't know that. But it comes to mind. It surely comes to mind.

Okay, assuming that it had nothing to do with that, let's not look at anything sinister, let's not even think about that. Mr. Speaker, all I am saying is that if there was a genuine feeling for these things to have been done, why has nothing come forward in the plans? If at least the other Minister, whose subject it becomes on 1st January, was thinking along these lines all along, where was his support for the one who had it?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Point! Point!

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Of course. You see, Mr. Speaker, all I am trying to show by this... and as I said, by the time I am finished it will be obvious that the intention is not to kill the credibility of the proposal. But I have my job to do too. And, Mr. Speaker, if people like me don't say anything, they will continue to do as they please when they please, how they please and why they please, and it's not working like that any more!

So, we have this proposal in front of us. This is how I believe they figured it out (because I was not among them). Mr. Speaker, hear me now. They said to themselves, 'Yes, if we do it like this, we have them fellas on the Backbench cornered because they can't say no. Because this is what they have been saying all along. So now we're doing it, so we got them in a spot. They can't say "no" because they know it makes sense. And then it puts us right through to the next time around and we are on a roll. Yeah!' And if none of them ever said it out loud, some of them were thinking it! Do you hear what I'm tellin' ya? Believe you me!

MOMENT OF INTERRUPTION—4.30 PM

The Speaker: We have reached the hour of interruption—the hour of 4.30 PM I will entertain a motion for the adjournment of this Honourable House.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until Monday at 10.00 AM.

The Speaker: The question is that this Honourable House do now adjourn until 10.00 AM Monday. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House do now stand adjourned until 10.00 AM Monday.

AT 4.30 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM MONDAY, 30TH NOVEMBER, 1998.

10.00 AM

[Prayers read by the Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation]

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Item 2 on today's Order Paper, Reading by the Speaker of Messages and Announcements.

READING BY THE SPEAKER OF

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: I have received apologies from the Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning. He is having car problems and will be arriving here shortly.

HOURS OF SITTING

The Speaker: Honourable Members, I would like to say this morning that punctuality is very important to the good and proper operation of the Legislative Assembly. From henceforth, this Legislature shall convene at 10.00 AM each morning for each sitting. We shall suspend for the morning break as close as possible to 11.15 AM, returning within fifteen minutes—and I wish to emphasise fifteen minutes—and we shall break for lunch at 12.45 PM, returning at 2.15 PM. The adjournment will be at 4.30 unless Standing Order 10(2) is suspended to continue beyond that time.

Our duties here are important for the future development of this nation and our responsibilities are great, and I ask for your cooperation.

Item 3 on today's Order Paper, Presentation of Papers and Reports. Report on the Work and Activities of the Cayman Islands Prison Service for the Year Ended 31st December 1997.

The Honourable Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

PRESENTATION OF PAPERS AND REPORTS

REPORT ON THE WORK AND ACTIVITIES OF THE CAYMAN ISLANDS PRISON SERVICE FOR THE

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Thank you.

I beg to table the Report on the Work and Activities of the Cayman Islands Prison Service for the Year Ended 31st December 1997.

The Speaker: So ordered. Do you wish to speak to it?

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Just briefly to say that Members and the public will find the report of value in terms of providing insight into the activities and programmes at Northward Prison. If, after having looked at the Report, there are areas of additional information that Members feel would be of benefit for inclusion, I would certainly invite Members to convey that to the Portfolio of Internal and External Affairs, and we will certainly be happy to attempt to oblige.

I would also like to draw Members' attention to page 19 of the report that provides a budgetary cost analysis, and shows that in 1997 the unit cost per prisoner (based on the average population) was some $54.29. While that represents a slight reduction, I expect it was largely gained by the unfortunate increase in population and related economies of scale.

I think it provides an alternative and, I would argue, a more informative way of looking at the cost of incarceration. I look forward, perhaps in the not-too-distant future as we convert to a service or output based appropriation and accounting, to when that $54 could perhaps be appropriated on the basis of $40 per prisoner for, say, custody and care, and $14 per prisoner for rehabilitative services, and the actual appropriation would be linked to the number of prisoners. I think Members would find it much more valuable to look at the changes in those unit costs rather than what we currently do, look at 18 or 20 items in the current format.

As I said, I welcome any comments that Members might wish to offer for the next report. Thank you, sir.

The Speaker: Housing Development Corporation—Report for the Year Ended 30th June 1997. The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

HOUSING DEVELOPMENT CORPORATION
REPORT FOR THE YEAR ENDED 30TH JUNE 1997

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you.

I beg to lay upon the Table of this honourable House the Housing Development Corporation—Report for the Year Ended 30th June 1997.

The Speaker: So ordered. Do you wish to speak to it?

Moving on to item 4 on today's Order Paper, Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. Question 211 is standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE MEMBERS/MINISTERS

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, I am glad to see a question for me this morning. I was concerned that in keeping with our Parliamentary process and our Constitutional and political responsibility that more attention was not being given to Parliamentary Questions. This is the first one since we started on the 16th of this month, and, indeed, some go as far back as June of this year—some five months ago.

QUESTION 211

No. 211: Mr. Linford A. Pierson asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation to state: (a) what contingency plans are in place to assist the poor and needy with the supply of plywood, manpower, and other essentials to secure their homes during the hurricane season or other natural disasters; and (b) what evacuation plans are in place to assist the victims of flooding and other natural disasters.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: (a) There is no contingency plan in place to assist the poor and needy with the supply of plywood, manpower, and other essentials to secure homes during the hurricane season. (b) If someone is affected by flooding, the first point of contact is usually 911, which normally contacts the Fire Service and Social Services Department. Fire Service assists with the evacuation of the individuals and the Department of Social Services sorts out interim shelter arrangements and any other immediate needs the affected persons may have.

In the case of hurricanes and tropical storms, the National Hurricane Committee is activated and any decision in regard to emergency provisions would be made by the Committee with the relevant sub-committee then directed to act.

Additionally, the Health Services compiles on an annual basis a special needs list of persons in the community who may require assistance in evacuation or who have special medical needs. This list is circulated to Fire Services, Social Services and within Health Services as well as the evacuation sub-committee of the National Hurricane Committee. This is done so that in the event of a hurricane the evacuation sub-committee would be aware of persons who would require assistance to get to shelters. For those requiring special medical assistance, each district has designated medical shelters.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I wish to thank the Honourable Minister for his comprehensive answer.

In view of the fact that the Social Services Department is well aware of the list of indigent and poor people, would it not be expected that the Social Services Department would be readily available to assist these individuals in case of natural disaster? It should be obvious that these same people would be in need of the assistance.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: I think the Member has an excellent point. At some stage we need to make a policy decision on this, as was brought out in one of the Members' debate, in regard to establishing a fund to deal especially with those people he mentioned in his question.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Perhaps this question is straying a bit, but I think it is worth raising. There are certain areas prone to flooding at present. In fact, just speaking for my District of George Town, I can think of three or four specific areas where flooding occurs whenever there is extended rainfall. There are some physical reasons why this is the case, and in most instances it has to do with development on the periphery of these areas.

While this might not necessarily fall under the ambit of his Ministry, is it possible for the Minister to see if some of these areas can be cordoned off with walls? I am not an engineer so I don't know exactly what the answers are. But I am sure there are reasonable answers.

Perhaps this is something that can be looked at. I wonder if the Minister would comment on it or lead the question to the right person.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: With your kind permission, Mr. Speaker, I know my colleague, the Minister for Agriculture, is now dealing with this. I would ask him to give an overview of what is going on.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: To answer the question, we realise that we have a problem in certain areas, as the Member mentioned. We have already created certain accesses for water to flow out into South Sound from the areas I believe he is talking about. We are also going to open up a dyke that used to be there before. We feel that with this we will have no build-up of water and the place will be drained at all times.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: That deals with a portion of my question. And I recognise the area the Minister is referring to, but there are other areas where I don't think it is possible to employ the same method. I believe the only solution is to put forward some type of barrier and lead the water that gathers in another direction. It's not a question of dealing with it on the floor of this House, but as one of the representatives I am certainly quite willing to show exactly where I am talking about. Perhaps the professionals will seek some type of solution.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: We are looking at all areas and all angles to curtail the problem we have. We realise that we do have problems in other areas and we are definitely looking at them. We have been putting in deep wells and we will continue to try to facilitate the persons in the area as much as possible.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister to whom the substantive question was addressed say whether or not he is prepared to encourage the Government to set aside special resources to be made available when such problems occur?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, Mr. Speaker. I would certainly support this policy.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: We appreciate the difficulties of the Social Services Department if they do not have available funds to assist with the needs we are here discussing, but in order to leave those in need with some degree of their dignity, I wonder if the Honourable Minister would undertake to have a survey, if this has not already been done, to determine those individuals in need so that the necessary funds can be provided in this year's Budget?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: This would be a significant undertaking, but with the involvement of Public Works and my Colleague the Minister, Environmental Health, and Social Services, I think it is a good point put forward and we need to establish this.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries the next question is 212, standing in the name of the First Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION 212

No. 212: Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works to give an update on the proposed National Roads Plan.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: The Public Works and Planning Departments' long-range unit have recently completed the exercise of identifying road corridors to be reserved for future construction. These corridors have been accepted by the Central Planning Authority and are included in the Proposed Revisions to the Development Plan 1998.

The next phase of the plan, which is currently underway, is to develop an access management scheme for the proposed road corridors.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I wonder if the Honourable Minister could state whether this proposed National Roads Plan will be incorporating the corridors in the composite maps and whether there is a costing for the land that these corridors will go through, etc.?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: The first part of the question, yes, it will be included in the map, but the cost has not been fully determined as yet.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Does this mean that the plans, the composite maps, will be gazetted and that the public will be made aware of the various corridors and the overall outlay of the Roads Plan?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: That is correct. Whatever is done has to be gazetted before it can be official.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister say if this exercise of identifying road corridors was an exercise that was done throughout all three islands?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: It is a National Plan, and it is my understanding that they did look at all three islands.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: In view of the fact that this National Roads Plan has been prepared by the Public Works Department and Planning in a similar matter to the Master Ground Transportation Plan (MGTP), and the Grand Cayman Roads Improvement Plan Study (GRIPS), I wonder if the Honourable Minister could give an indication of the cost in comparison with those two other plans?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: I mentioned a while ago that we did not have the costs, so I cannot give a comparison on it. Some of it has not been finished.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister say if, when this exercise was being done, the information that was on hand regarding the Master Ground Transportation Plan and the GRIPS Study was used as a base to work with, or was it done from scratch?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: I cannot say that the technical people did not utilise the plans the Member just mentioned. Of course, I was not really there to know exactly. So I really cannot give an answer to that.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: In view of the fact that it appears that most of the corridors now being used are similar to those that were recommended by Public Works in the Master Ground Transportation Plan and the Grand Cayman Roads Improvement Study, can the Honourable Minister say whether similar road corridors are being considered, and whether it might not now cost perhaps three to four times as much to put those corridors in place particularly in view of the increased cost of land?

I know this might appear to be giving an opinion, but it is more than an opinion because the cost of the land is made available to Government.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: I would say that the way things happen in Cayman in regard to prices, most definitely the Member is correct. I am sure it is going to be more costly. In regard to our utilising the corridors, I am sure that some of those are going to be utilised but I would not like to comment as to which ones.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Just a further supplementary, would the Honourable Minister, my friend, agree then that the present Government—who were the Opposition when the MGTP came in place—might have made a very grave mistake by destroying that plan?

The Speaker: I think you are asking him for his opinion. The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Mr. Speaker, I must answer my good friend (as he called me).

As far as I am concerned, he knew my stand on that at that time, and I wouldn't say that we destroyed the plan because if we destroyed the plan we would not now be willing to utilise it. It is my understanding now that there are certain corridors that have to follow in the same area because there is no other way to go.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, moving on to question 213, standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 213

No. 213: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs to state how the Government's Reinvention/Re-engineering Programmes fit in with the Public Sector Reforms which are currently being pursued.

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: The Government's Reinvention of Public Services (ROPS) programme was launched to generate improvements in the quality and effectiveness of public services by introducing new 'corporate management' concepts and skills. They were corporate in that they were skills which services could reasonably be expected to apply within the existing management structure of the Public Service.

The programme was developed locally and focused Government agencies on:

- What they do:           ⇒    Their services or outputs.
  - For whom they do it:   ⇒    Their customers.
  - How well do they do it: ⇒    Their performance measures.
- How they can improve their services or outputs: Re-engineering of service delivery processes.

Through a series of training initiatives catering to over 250 private and public sector individuals representing almost all Government agencies, the Reinvention programme has introduced a new stream of corporate management skills and thought processes. These are yielding improvements in the delivery of services by some agencies, for example, Broadcasting, Customs, Immigration, Planning, and Vehicle Licensing.

While Reinvention was never perceived as being the complete public sector reform package, it was felt that it could serve as a stimulus and facilitator of broader reform by making public sector agencies more comfortable with, and even eager for, broader and more fundamental reforms. In fact, from very early on some agency representatives questioned whether they could reinvent without knowing what type of Cayman we wanted to see ten to 15 years from now; or if the fiscal and human resource systems were not also 'reinvented.' These issues, of course, are the ambit of 'strategic management' rather than 'corporate management.'

The second reform initiative, Vision 2008, addresses the first of these issues. It should produce a clear perspective of what type of Cayman we should be seeking to achieve by 2008. In other words, it should provide the destination to which the public sector should contribute to reaching.

The final batch of public sector reforms involve:

- ◆ Fiscal reform
- ◆ Administrative and management reform
- ◆ Establishment of provisions to afford the public access to Government information.

The Financial Secretary, the Honourable Third Official Member, is to be commended for his enthusiastic leadership of the Fiscal Reform Initiative, and thanked for having provided an energising boost to the other two initiatives. The Chief Secretary, the Honourable First Official Member, and the Deputy Chief Secretary are heading the latter two, respectively.

As Honourable Members will recall, His Excellency the Governor has formed a Strategic Integration Group to provide oversight, coordination, and direction to all of these initiatives. The Reinvention Programme is ongoing and has been concentrating on assisting those agencies that are keen to move ahead with reengineering the delivery of some of their key services. While under the same direct leadership, the programme has been amalgamated into the Administrative and Management Reform initiative as part of the recent integration of the various initiatives.

The Governor Owen Award programme that will be launched in early 1999 is intended to recognise initiative and innovation in the public service. Those agencies that have invested in the application of the skills and concepts provided under the Reinvention Programme should be leading contenders for recognition.

There is certainly perceived to be a long-term need for the public service to maintain the capabilities to evaluate and enhance performance. The overall reform programme has the definite potential to yield a public service which is strategically focused and performance oriented. If it does, more agencies will seek the type of assistance that Reinvention now offers. In fact, what we have as the Reinvention Support Unit today could well become the Performance Enhancement Unit of the future.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Member say whether these exercises will lead to performance-based pay, where payment is based on achieving objectives set and providing services at the most attractive cost, thereby saving the Government money?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Certainly that is one of the potential outcomes of the overall programme. And until the administrative and management reform initiative gets a little further on, I really can't say that is the aim. But I would certainly hope that it would become so. Certainly there is a preponderance of the view that we need to move to an environment that provides the incentive for improving performance and, in turn, the opportunity for reward to those who are successful.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Just one final supplementary, can the Honourable Member say if there is going to be a corollary move so that the political directorate may be kept up to date and educated as to its responsibilities and requirements, so that the move which is bound to effect the bureaucracy can also be complemented by an aware political directorate?

The Speaker: The Honourable Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: Certainly the move to integrate these various initiatives and to provide an umbrella agency or organisation to oversee them all was specifically intended to not only ensure their coordination, but to ensure that all stakeholders were represented. That is why the Strategic Integration Group, specifically, has some members drawn from this Honourable House.

While by virtue of that we would expect those Members to provide some liaison to their colleagues, there is certainly the possibility for a more structured and regular briefing to take place. I would have no problem suggesting that, at the Strategic Integration Group level, if the Member feels that it would be beneficial to he and his colleagues.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: I would certainly ask the Honourable Member to give such an undertaking. The success will hinge upon its acceptance and understanding by the political directorate who has the capability of stymieing, or drowning, the achievements of the bureaucracy if it is so minded.

The Speaker: Do you wish to reply to that? The Honourable Temporary Acting First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. Donovan Ebanks: No, Mr. Speaker, I think he was simply accepting my offer to pursue it as I had suggested I was willing to do.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, moving on to question 214, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION 214

No. 214: Dr. Frank McField asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation to state the dates of the last five meetings between the Social Work Supervisor in Cayman Brac and the District Commissioner.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: The information obtained from the Social Work Supervisor in Cayman Brac (on 4 November 1998), indicates that his last five meetings with the District Commissioner were held on the following dates: 22 September 1998; 6 October 1998; 16 October 1998; 20 October 1998; 3 November 1998.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Can the Honourable Minister say if these meetings between the Social Work Supervisor and the District Administrator are the norm? Or has this been as a result of recommendations made by the Family Study Group?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: These meetings are always held, sometimes not as frequently as this, but it is now formalised with the District Commissioner, and they are held like this.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Can the Honourable Minister say what have been some of the most obvious results of these meetings?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Better communication between the Social Services and District Administration. Whenever something is seen by either Social Services or the District Commissioner they share with each other and then they go forward and make the necessary adjustments.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: That was a very vague answer. I was hoping that the Minister would have been able to enlighten me as to the positive consequences of such a relationship, since even if regular meetings were structured before the recommendation of the Family Study it is from the point of the organisational issues which the Family Study addressed.

It was seen as important enough to be pointed out here by the persons who made the reports that this meeting between the Administrator and Social Work Supervisor was to become almost as important as the meeting between the Social Work Supervisor and the Deputy Director of the Social Services Department.

What I am trying to find out, Mr. Speaker, if you will allow me to rephrase it, is how the structural relationship is beginning to evolve as a result of this close relationship between the Administrator and the Social Work Supervisor.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: There has always been an understanding between the District Commissioner and the various Heads of sections that it would not always be necessary to meet weekly if there was nothing to report.

She is, however, available at those times if required to meet. Many of the less pressing issues are being dealt with in the regular meetings of Heads of sections. The scheduled meetings, therefore, take the form of a reporting session dealing with issues pertinent only to particular departments. The more urgent matters are usually discussed at these meetings.

Once these meetings take place, the Head of Social Services in Cayman Brac then passes on this information to Social Services over here.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: My understanding here is that perhaps what the person who made the recommendation was getting at is that the District Administrator should play a greater role in determining the priorities and determining the way in which the resources were used to affect the necessary projects or situations. So I am trying to find out whether or not the District Administrator is playing a greater role in communicating to the Social Work Supervisor and the Department of Social Services as to the ongoing need in regard to development of the Social Services Department in Cayman Brac.

We spoke previously about things like the old people's home, the community development programme, whether or not there is the need to use crafts as a way of involving older people in dealing with the whole concept of ageing. How has this attempt served to localise the concern and give it the opportunity to be channelled back to the Department of Social Services in faster manner?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: The District Commissioner is involved, and in these meetings, as it is probably confidential, I am sure that there is collaboration with the District Commissioner. Ultimately, the Director of Social Services is the officer responsible for the overall programmes and any final decisions would be made by her.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: That is more in the line of where my thoughts have been going in my supplementary questions. I am trying to find out whether or not the District Administrator is in fact playing a greater role in determining the Social Services priorities in Cayman Brac.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, from the point of constantly keeping in touch with the designated person over there for Social Services. There is much more involvement. My understanding is that the problems would certainly be identified by the Social Workers in the district who would then go to their Head. Whatever is found to be needed and addressed would be shared with the Director over there and the District Administrator.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: I will use a situation in order to illustrate what it is I am trying to get at. For instance, with house repairs, a concrete example. How much of the decision depends upon the advice of the Island Administrator? Is it solely dependant upon the Supervisor or the Department of Social Services here?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: The situation is that Social Services will take referrals from anyone, including the District Commissioner. But the final assessment would have to be done by the Social Worker.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries we will move on to question 215, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION 215

No. 215: Dr. Frank McField asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation what is the present involvement of the Department of Social Services with initiatives for adult education and literacy classes.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Since this is not a direct responsibility of the Department of Social Services, it is not involved in any formalised programme geared toward adult education and literacy. However, the Department continues to support the Education Department's adult education and literacy programmes. The Department also assists that portion of its clientele attending the Young Parents Programme with continuing education and skill development. The Department has, from time to time, sponsored clients to pursue courses at the Community College of the Cayman Islands.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Can the Honourable Minister say if he is satisfied that this is a sufficient response to the recommendation by the persons who did the Family Study in regard to the need for an increase in the formal and informal contacts with sister agencies, organisations and bodies so as to assure a good understanding of the programme's goals? Was this a sufficient position in regard to recommendations made by the Family Study?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: We will continue to work with the Education Department in programmes as we continue to develop and go forward. As I mentioned in certain discourses this week, whatever we need to do to help especially the adults, we will support that. If they want to go to the Community College, whatever is necessary, we will work along with them to help improve them. But we must be cognisant of the fact that we have to work with what Education has in place.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: I apologise for having formed those supplementaries so poorly, but I am basing my questions on recommendations that were made by way of the Family Study. What I would like to try to achieve with this supplementary is to find out if there are any initiatives that the Department of Social Services now feels it might initiate itself to encourage the adult education and literacy classes.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, Social Services is now exploring the possibilities of developing skilled development in other areas. This is one of the areas we talked about last week, the Community Development Programme, where once these people are located in the districts they can make a better assessment of those people who would need this assistance.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: I am not sure that I understood what the Minister said, but I would like to ask the Minister whether or not Social Services has considered using after school centres in the different districts as physical premises in a structure where they could begin a decentralised approach to adult education and literacy classes.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, in collaboration with the Education Department we could certainly utilise these facilities.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town. Two more supplementaries.

Dr. Frank McField: This is a suggestion I am making, but I will try to phrase it in the form of a question. Would the Minister give an undertaking to see that the after school programmes or institutions, because of their knowledge of parents and children and their interaction, are used to identify the need and perhaps deal with creating some type of adult education and literacy programmes that would help to minimise the demand for care and support which parents find themselves having to do as a result of their lack of education?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, Mr. Speaker. I would certainly speak to the Minister of Education and in collaboration with him we would do this.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, moving on to question 216, standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION 216

No. 216: Dr. Frank McField asked the Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation to state the result of the most recent internal evaluation of the Young Parent's Programme.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation, would you move the suspension of Standing Order 23 (7) and (8) so that Question Time can continue?

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 23(7) AND (8)

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: I so move, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The question is that Standing Order 23(7) and (8) be suspended. Those in favour please say aye. Those against no.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 23 (7) & (8) SUSPENDED.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: The Young Parents Programme was evaluated after two years of operation, however, its aims and objectives have constantly been reviewed and the necessary changes have been made. The two most significant findings have been the need to: (i) introduce the American College Testing Programme examination set by Princeton University which will replace the GED, no longer offered overseas; and (ii) to encourage participation by the partners of the teen mothers in the programme in order to help them take up the responsibility of fatherhood.

The programme has recently been transferred to the Community Development Unit of the Social Services Department in an effort to develop a stronger link to the community and to pursue an expansion of the vocational programme and skills development. This expanded programme will also serve to benefit other clients of the Department.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: For clarification, can the Honourable Minister say if there has been any internal evaluation of the Young Parents Programme since their Family Study was presented to the Department of Social Services?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: [microphone not turned on]

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Is the Minister saying that no internal evaluation was done as suggested by the recommendations in the Family Study within three months after the study was presented to the Department of Social Services?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: As I said, the aims and objectives have constantly been reviewed and the necessary changes have been made. Wherever a problem is identified we deal with it.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: The question now is, how important was this recommendation by the Family Study group? How important was it to have an internal evaluation of the programme at the Young Parent's Programme in regard to the many proposals that were made?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: The evaluation is very important. As I said, to show the emphasis we have transferred this to the Community Development Unit of Social Services who will look at this in much more detail as put forward in the Family Study.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries that concludes Question Time for this morning.

THE APPROPRIATION (1999) BILL, 1998

DEBATE ON THE BUDGET ADDRESS DELIVERED BY THE HONOURABLE THIRD OFFICIAL MEMBER ON MONDAY, 16TH NOVEMBER 1998

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you.

When we closed off on Friday, I was putting together what I thought the scenario was in regard to the $54 million package. I had been discussing a little bit about roads, and I had told the Minister for Education, when he questioned certain parts of the Hansard I was quoting from, that I would read more things he had said about roads.

Perhaps I should change my tactic because time is flying, and I want to get into some very important areas. Suffice it to say about the roads and the infrastructure that from the time I have been here I have heard Members talking about the lack of road maintenance programmes, the lack of looking after the infrastructure. But just to quote one little area that that Minister said in 1993, . . . and the whole idea behind quoting from the Hansard of 1993 (just so that everyone will understand) is that it shows that even then the Government was quite aware of the situation with the roads. Here we are going into 1999, and all of a sudden somebody has some wonderful idea to try to deal with it.

I will prove later, by way of some statistics, that the Government has dealt with its priorities totally incorrectly. In fact, that has been thrown through the window and I don't believe it has exercised even the knowledge of what priority means.

On page 191 of the Official 1993 Hansard Report, Vol. 1, the Minister for Education said (in his debate on the Throne Speech and the Appropriation Bill), "I appreciate, and I hope the public appreciates, that the money is not very plentiful at this time but it has been a decision of this Honourable House to live within its means and there will have to be a progressive building up of money for maintenance on the roads and the upgrading of the roads. I have always believed that it has got to be a fallacy to build new roads when you cannot maintain the old. That is wrong. It leads to the problems we now face where major areas of the roads are reaching a stage where they are going to have to be completely redone."

Clearly, five years ago the position was accepted that this type of work had to be done, and it is only now that we are hearing about it since then.

If we go back to what the Minister for Tourism discussed when he brought this $54 million, he stated clearly that Education was a very important issue to be dealt with. He stated that very clearly. I know that for many years I have been trying to deal with the Honourable Minister for Education, telling him about the lack of physical facilities and the need to be dealing with that. Of course, we always hear from him that from the time he has been responsible for Education he has been doing everything possible; he has been doing his best.

The Minister for Tourism said, "There are other infrastructural needs that are not in the best interest of the public to leave, or not address in a proactive way. Education is one of those areas." [Hansard 23 November, 1998] And then he went on to read about the various schools and the lack of space and he quoted some statistics. All he was doing, basically, was verifying what some of us have been trying to say for many years.

Before we get into the argument about Education, let me say that the only plus I can give them is that, thank God, finally somebody seems to be willing to do something! What really strikes me as being funny though, is that the Minister for Education—who knows my position on it—let the Minister for Tourism deal with it. Nevertheless, I won't form any opinions about that. I am just making that observation.

When we talk about Education, I would like to just take a minute here to quote a few small excerpts from a report that was passed on to us. This is the "Final Report on the Mid-Decade Meeting of the International Consultative Forum on Education for All." This was held in Amman Jordan in June 1996. The report is headed "Education for all—Achieving the Goal." We are going to use these to highlight the importance of Education to the entire world.

It begins, "Education is empowerment. It is the key to establishing and reinforcing democracy to development which is both sustainable and humane and to peace founded upon mutual respect and social justice. Indeed, in a world in which creativity and knowledge play an ever-greater role, the right to education is nothing less than the right to participate in the life of the modern world. Aware of the power and potential of education, the international community committed itself at the World Conference on Education for All, held in Thailand in March 1990, to meet the basic learning needs of every individual."

It addresses some continuing challenges. And one of them is, and I quote: "The training, status and motivation of teachers continues to be at the very core of educational concerns. While we must make better and wider use of technology and media, they can complement, but never replace, the essential role of the teacher as the organiser of the instructional process and as a guide and example to the young."

The final area that I wish to quote here is very important. Under the subheading, "Much more attention needs to be given to literacy and non-formal education for youth and adults," it says, "Throughout the world the best predictor of the learning achievement of children is the education and literacy level of their parents. Investments in adult education and literacy are thus investments in the education of entire families. During the mid-decade review virtually all countries reported that funding for basic education is inadequate. This was largely echoed at the forum meeting by participants from developing countries. And despite the mass of research illustrating the high return of investment in basic education it continues to receive a very small share of most national budgets."

I want to read that one more time. "...it continues to receive a very small share of most national budgets."

"Mr. Maier called on all countries to invest at least 6% of their GNP on education." At least 6%!

He said. "The funds exist. It is now a matter of priorities. But it is also evident that much more can be achieved by better use of existing resources. 'Too often,' said Mr. Jolly, 'many of us fail to realise that most of the resources required are already there within the education system . . .'" and here's the big key, Mr. Speaker, "if determined leadership, cost-consciousness, and ingenuity can be combined to achieve the reallocations and mobilise the additional effort required."

So we see the scene being set internationally to put the case forward regarding the importance of education. If we look in the Estimates we see that teacher training for 1998 is supposed to cost $106,000. In the 1999 Estimates that figure goes down to $76,000. I have to admit that in the area of scholarships the Government is performing fairly well. But it doesn't end there.

In a recent question the Minister for Education was asked to give a breakdown of capital expenditure on public educational facilities from January 1993 to date. He listed them. At the end it reads, "Total new capital, 1993 to date, $6,483,348.50." So let's round that off to $6.5 million. Every one of them who has spoken (and all of us who speak) keeps touting Education. When I looked at an appendix prepared by the Budget Unit outlining recurrent revenue, recurrent and statutory expenditure, etc., and I added up from 1993 to 1998, total capital expenditure will exceed $170 million. That's capital expenditure. We are not talking about budgets, we are not talking about the $20-odd million that is in every Budget for the Education Department to function. That is recurrent. We are talking about capital with an ever-growing population.

In five years the country has spent $170 million in capital projects. And of that $170 million, only $6.5 million has been spent on Education. Giving them the benefit of the doubt, that is 4%. So where does Education lie in our list of priorities? Where do we get our priorities as to what has to be done first with our limited resources?

Now the Minister may never have known that before now, but I guarantee you that these two documents I am using are bona fide—one he gave me, and the other one is an appendix from a government department which is public information.

You know, Mr. Speaker, I should stop right here because this tells the tale. But I actually like the responsibility I have been given because I like the challenge. I don't like to jump all over people, but because of the responsibility I have been given I must speak about this, especially after so many of us have been talking about it for so long.

But the crowning statement after looking at all of this. . . and I know that two hands and two feet couldn't count the number of times we have (in my language) "hooked-up" in this House over the argument of public educational facilities . . .but the crowning statement is this: if come September 1999 we run out of space for the children, do you know what we are going to do? We are going to import pre-fabricated classrooms for the children.

Mr. Roy Bodden: What? Whose idea is that?

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: All I can say is God help us.

So, here we are with the situation as I have just mentioned. But Government is calling on us now to forget all of that. Now we are ready to trod the right path, so let's not talk about that any more. Let's just move on nice and smooth.

What they have done . . .and it's purely tactical—that's the part that gets me, Mr. Speaker. They come in now, preaching on all of the things that the country needs. What are we saying? That the country didn't need them before?

That "Pious Joe" attitude doesn't work with me. All that tells me is that they find themselves boxed into a corner, and the only reason they are reacting like that is because it is the only one they can hold on to that they will survive with. And that's not what it's all about. We are here to do what is best for the people of this country.

And when I bring out a point like I just made, for someone to cry 'ignorance' doesn't hack it. For someone to come back and spend an hour talking about the size that I am, or what I do, or whatever, that still doesn't hack it, Mr. Speaker. That doesn't change what we face. And it would not have been so bad if it had come like a hurricane out of the blue, and we didn't know anything about it. But for years it has been known! The Department gives them the facts! The Ministry does projections!

The Minister may wish to say that he didn't know this was the situation, but, unfortunately, the buck stops with him. It is in his interest to find these things out. So what do we do now? Perhaps we might take a break, and when we come back I will say what we might do.

The Speaker: We shall suspend proceedings for 15 minutes, and I ask Honourable Members to please return in 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.25 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 11.45 AM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Debate continues. The First Elected Member for George Town, continuing.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you.

When we took the break I was just concluding some facts and figures on capital expenditure in the area of Education. In summary, what I was saying was that from 1993 to date only 4% (approximately $6.5 million) of the approximately $170 million worth of capital expenditure was spent on Education. I think the point is very clear: There has been a total lack of concentration in this area. Yet, all of us, for more than one reason, are talking about the importance of Education.

I just want to re-emphasise the lack of concentration by the Minister for Education when it comes to the area of Education. I want to quote from his contribution to the Budget Address for the Estimates of 1992. In the Official 1991 Hansard Report, Volume III, page 1243, he said: "Can you imagine that? All the money that is in there for the Jennet L or T, whatever it is, for the hospital in the pond, and the Government is not spending the money that is necessary to renovate the fire alarm systems at the schools."

Mr. Roy Bodden: That's him! That's him!

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: It goes on to read, "Not included $2.2 [million], no electrical maintenance to schools outside of GT and WB areas [that's George Town and West Bay]. Can you imagine that?" That's what he said!

"Fires normally arise from electrical problems. So they are leaving the children in schools at risk. And it cannot be very much money to bring a fire alarm system up to date. I do not know what the Member for Education and Recreation is going to say on that, but that is appalling. Quite frankly, they had better just take the money from somewhere else, and I can tell them where they can probably get it from, and put in the few dollars necessary to possibly save the lives of our children."

That was in 1991, Mr. Speaker. But in 1998 we had to juggle funds around to complete it!

Mr. Roy Bodden: True!

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Seven years later!

According to what he said in 1991, [I guess] the children's lives weren't worth pittance to him since then. And you wonder where [his] priorities lie.

Someone said earlier on that it looks like so many things are going full circle. Well, this is one of them!

If I really wanted to I could pull more than that, but that is not the exercise. The exercise is to try to get in the minds of the people who develop the country's policies that they cannot continue to do it the way they have been doing it. I, for one, cannot stand by and hear one delivery from Government saying the same thing I am saying now—that I have been saying for the past six years—and just say, 'Okay, fine. Let's move on.' That can't happen because the Government has not—I repeat: HAS NOT!—by any means shown us either the will or the intention to do different, even when it says so now.

That is probably enough said about Education. The one last thing that I want to say, because by now I am familiar with the Minister's style . . . I remember on several occasions in recent times when he was softening us up for the blow—because that's what it was—it suddenly dawned on him that the immediate need for physical facilities in this country for public education was $50 million. He started to soften us up for the blow.

Here is how he did it. He kept saying that we were into this health thing. We were building this new hospital, and the country's resources were being taxed tremendously. We had to wait until we got that out of the way and then we could come and deal with this thing.

But let me remind the country that from 1993 to date we spent $170 million on capital expenditure. Of that, without going into exact figures, I believe a very decent approximation is that 20% of that $170 [million] has been spent on upgrading health facilities in the country. So if we are looking at $170 million, and we are looking at somewhere between $30 million and $35 million being spent on health facilities (call it $35 million), and giving him the benefit of the doubt of 4% being spent, we still have 70% of capital expenditure that has gone elsewhere.

The whole point in all of this is lack of prioritisation. They can come back and whine, and they can cry, and they can say whatever they want to say, but that will not change the fact.

Let us look at the way the country's finances have evolved over the past few years. If we look at the trend with the contribution to capital since 1993 from recurrent expenditure, I am going to show you a cycle. I need to quickly quote these figures: In 1993 the contribution from recurrent revenue to capital expenditure was $11.2 million. In 1994 it went up to $13.9 million. In 1995 it went up, yet again, to $16.3 million. And in 1996, higher yet, to $23.8 million.

But we look at 1997 and we start to come down again. The year 1997 comes down to $20.1 million. Then 1998 comes down more yet, to $15.7 [million]. And the projected for 1999 is $11.1 [million]. So you see, from 1993 to 1996 we were on an upward slope. But from 1996 to 1999 we are coming back down. What that is saying is that our recurrent expenditure is increasing at a faster rate than the recurrent revenue.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Formula for a disaster.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Those little figures that I just used show us exactly what has been happening to us. It is not a good sign. Everyone will agree. No one can argue that.

Just to show you why it burns me, why it grieves my soul, Mr. Speaker, . . . we are talking from 1993 to 1999. The Government was elected in November of 1992. I am looking again at the Official 1991 Hansard Report. On page 1225 of Volume III, where the now Minister for Education is making his contribution to the Budget Address.

He said: "This heavy amount of taxes has arisen because the Government has been incompetent. They have spent all of their time on spending and blaming other people for the problems of the country rather than putting in the time on trying to make some money, because there is a very clear principle in finance that any fool can spend money but it takes a wise man to make it. Here we have, as the Honourable Financial Secretary has in his professional and able way put it, the gap between expenditure and revenue widening so rapidly and so greatly that the coun- try is heading in due course for further serious financial problems."

This was 1991, Mr. Speaker. And that member—who is now the Minister for Education—was telling the Government at that time . . . and probably at that time he was correct. Probably that's what the figures showed. But what are the figures showing now? He mentioned this "heavy tax" business. I haven't even spoken about that yet. But he summed everything up in one little short paragraph.

I ask the question again, Where do we go from here?

Let us look at the other part of the country's finances. And I am going to be dealing with 1997, 14 November, where the Minister for Education . . . and, Mr. Speaker, I remember this vividly. It was during the time that I was dealing with this that I nearly got in trouble with you. And I apologised to you for that, sir. We aren't going to get into any trouble over that now, but when I am through explaining this I am going to ask the question again. If it is not misleading, then what is it?

On page 572 of The Official 1997 Hansard Report (Volume II), the Minister was going along his merry way . . . I don't even know what kind of dance I can call it now. But, anyway, it was one of those dances where you bend yourself out of shape because that is what was happening—he was bending everything out of shape to suit what he wanted the public to believe. He said: "The Civil Service Pension Fund has had approximately $33 million increase in the last five years and is now up to $40 million. [I'm not arguing with that] That $33 million, a large part of which pays back pensions because it was so badly under-funded."

The Minister wanted the public to believe that the $33 million he was referring to was being used to pay monthly pensions. This is what I am reading, Mr. Speaker. I didn't make this up. We all know that the fund was so badly under-funded (as he called it) that the contributions that are being made now to that fund are single-entry contributions because nothing is being extracted from the fund. There is nothing being extracted. The payments that are made for pensions come out of recurrent revenue.

That point is very clear. Nothing was being taken out of that money, and it is not being taken out of it this year. It just goes to show how recklessness can come back to haunt you, Mr. Speaker. That's what it shows.

Mr. Roy Bodden: True!

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: He went on to say: "The position has to be looked at from a point of view of the fact that the debts, or the borrowing this year, which is at about $19 million, which I doubt if we will really borrow that amount, the repayments of that are $17.5 million as set out in table 2(A), so that the net borrowing is only about $2 million . . ."

But here is how the guy . . . and the guy's good, Mr. Speaker. Do you hear what I tell you?

Mr. Roy Bodden: A Christian!

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Here's what he says, let me just go over this again. He is saying that the borrowing for this year (which is 1998) is $19 million. But the Government is paying back $17.5 million. Now, I know what he is referring to with that. And I want him to listen carefully because I heard him, and I understood him. I want him to listen.

He is saying that the Government was borrowing $19 million for 1998. But Government is paying back $17.5 [million]. Now, we all know that what he means is that the ongoing payment on the public debt is $17.5 [million] for 1998. He says ". . . so that the net borrowing is only about $2 million give or take interest [that's no big deal, "give or take"] on how much of the repayment of $17.5 million is actually principal and what is interest."

Mr. Roy Bodden: In Jamaica they'd call him the Samfie Man!

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: So he uses the Queen's English to make the country believe that we were only borrowing $2 million in 1998. That's what he was saying!

Mr. Roy Bodden: He's getting exposed now, though!

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Yet, the figures that we have here tell us that at year-end 1997 the public debt was $82.4 million, and the projected year-end for 1998 was $92.1 [million].

Accepting that while you are borrowing you are paying on your previous loans and have to start payments on the new ones, depending upon what time of year you borrow them, even with what went back on principal we are still going up by $10 million. Big difference! It's not what you do, Mr. Speaker; it's how you do it.

Then he comes on fancier yet. He turns up the burner a little bit, and he says, "Also, from 1993 to 1997 the borrowings, when you remove the amount for Cayman Airways, we saw that repayments over the period from 1993 to 1997 were $45,021,900, while the total borrowings over that period amounted to approximately $34 million or $35 million."

Here's what he said, Mr. Speaker: "So, far more has been repaid during our five years in Government than we have borrowed."

Mr. Roy Bodden: Wow!

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: A Sweeping statement!

"So, far more has been repaid during our five years in Government than we have borrowed." I don't even think that I should go into the specifics. But if far more has been repaid than we have borrowed, why is the public debt climbing?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Ask that again. Repeat that!

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, a very good friend of mine once told me that repetition bears emphasis. I ask the question again: If between 1993 and 1997—as the Honourable Leader of Government Business (and I quoted him) said—"So, far more has been repaid during our five years in Government than we have borrowed." If that is the case, why is it that every single year the public debt has risen? I wonder which bank they borrowed it from.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Creative accounting! Single entry!

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: It's worse than that!

Mr. Speaker, in 1993 the total public debt was $54.13 million. In 1994, the public debt was $61.16 million. In 1995 there was some special business which the Honourable Third Official Member can explain a lot better than I can, whereby there were some loans in different currencies. That had to get straightened out, so the public debt came down to $51.56 million. But in 1996 it went back up to $67.6 [million], and in 1997 it jumped again to $82.4 [million]. Yet, in five years we have repaid so much more than we have borrowed?

If we have repaid so much more than we have borrowed, there is no amount of interest in the world that could make a jump like I just stated.

Then he said, "I see there is a bit of smiling over there. [And I am sure he was referring to me, or perhaps the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.] But let me just point out, since I must give details to this, that in 1992 the repayments were $2.5 million; in 1993 repayments made on past debts were $9.5 million; in 1994 repayments made on past debts were $8.7 million; in 1995 repayments on past debts were $15.3 million; and in 1996 it was $10.1 million; and in 1997 it is estimated to be $13.9 million which gives a total of $58 million paid in the past years from 1993 to 1997."

His first fancy use of the Queen's English in that statement was to make the public believe that all of these payments were being made because he tacked in this thing about "past" debts—and he has this thing about "past" debts prior to 1992 when they got in. So he wants the public to believe (that is the way I am reading it here) that all of these payments are going to debts before this Government took over.

In his summary, Mr. Speaker, he said, "So, less than $30 million was borrowed during that period [and he's talking 1993 to 1997 now], and $58 million was repaid during that time." That is how he finished off his argument he'd built up before.

If that is not misleading, Mr. Speaker, what is it?

Now, Mr. Speaker, I chose to deal with that because it gives us a better picture as to what has been happening over the years, and how the country's finances have been dealt with. There was a time between 1992 and 1996 . . . and let me tell you now, Mr. Speaker, I am not afraid to speak the truth, even though it makes me look like an idiot. That's all right with me.

I am telling you that there was a time between 1992 and 1996 when the Government believed—especially the Leader of Government Business—that the combination of the Backbench was such that whoever was not on their side was not capable of understanding what they were doing. He believed that! And I am licensed to say he believed it because if he didn't believe it he wouldn't manifest it. And he manifested it! He tried it in 1997.

I have all of the rest before that, but I won't bother because it would get a little bit too boring. It was just a little bit different figures, but it was the same old song and dance business that I told you about, Mr. Speaker. It was the same thing all along.

He goes on—and this one is too good to pass. . . I want to prove the style and from whence it cometh. In 1991, again on page 1248 of The Official 1991 Hansard Report, . . . when I tell you that this is the way it has been going on, Mr. Speaker, this is the proof of the pudding. You can understand why some of us get irritated.

For the Minister's edification, it's The Official 1991 Hansard Report, Volume III, page 1248. He said, "Realities are realities, and if Government knows that it has to come here for money then some estimate should have been put in the Budget to show realistically what Government's position really is."

Mr. Speaker, pardon me if I laugh. That was in 1991, and this is what the member (the now Minister for Education) was telling the Government. He went on to say, "The tactic, probably brought out by the Member for Communications and Works [who is now the Third Elected Member for George Town] who claims he is the only qualified one in here to come up with figures, and I am going to deal with that a little bit later [he says], they produce a Budget and shortly after they go and get supplementary expenditure so that they do not have to include it in the Budget."

Mr. Speaker, do you hear what I just said? Allow me, sir, please, just the very last part. "They produce a Budget and shortly after they go and get supplementary expenditure so that they do not have to include it in the Budget."

Mr. Roy Bodden: The Emperor has no clothes!

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: That was in 1991, Mr. Speaker.

If collective responsibility was not the order of the day, and knowing how truthful the Honourable Third Official Member (the Financial Secretary) is, if license were given to him he could talk about what I just read for hours to prove my point. But I won't go any further than that, because the same argument that was brought in 1991 is the same style that has been employed to date. So, do as I say, not as I do. I am the preacher.

But there is hope, Mr. Speaker. So if the Minister for Health thinks that I am going to spend all day preaching gloom and doom, I won't do that. There is a little bit of hope. But, it does not lie with the Government.

Mr. Roy Bodden: True!

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: I mean, it really amazes me sometimes when I look back in the Hansards.

Do you know what it proves Mr. Speaker? I am going to tell you what it proves. And as long as I am an elected representative I will stand the test of time with that. And if I fail, then they will do what they shall do with me. But it proves that people want to get their hands on power and their intentions are far from pure.

The Speaker: Let's not stretch that point too far.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Okay.

Let me say in a gentler way what it proves, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Roy Bodden: You better say "speaking generally."

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: I am reminded to use a term used very often by the Minister for Education, so I will say "speaking generally."

Mr. Roy Bodden: Now you're on the right track.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: What it proves, Mr. Speaker, is that people—

Mr. Roy Bodden: Politicians!

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: —who enter the arena of this thing called "politics" go to the public and ask the public to give them an opportunity to represent them. And when they get that opportunity they stand up when they are on this side of the fence and preach everything that is right, and the moment the shoe is on the other foot everything is forgotten. That is why I said that as long as I am here, wherever I fit I am prepared to stand that test. Do you know why? Because I have seen too much of it, and I know what is right and what is wrong. That's why.

And, Mr. Speaker, I can make a statement that is not straying too far, and I think it's a safe statement: For that attitude my country suffers! What it proves is that the national good is secondary, at best; it is not the primary focus. That's what it proves.

And now we have seen where some of the problems have come about. We have seen where mismanagement has caused us to be in the position we are in today. So a synopsis is—and I am referring to what the Minister for Education has said in the past—that Government from time to time, through lack of prioritisation, has spent the country's money on projects which, in its opinion, suited the political posturing at that time. And now it has put the country in such a situation where what was done cannot be undone; what was spent cannot be unspent. So now it comes to the country and says, 'Okay fellas, we know what to do now. Don't bother to row with us. Don't argue with us. Just hop on board because you all know that this is the right thing to do'—after the fact!

Truly, it is not my intention to be personal. But accountability is accountability. And, in all fairness, I believe that if one sheep is leading the flock astray they should have enough sense to dis 'im.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Dis 'im, yes!

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: It seems while they all head in the same direction, that they all want to head that way. But, again, we know how it is.

A little bit earlier I was talking about mismanagement. I don't want that to appear like the public managers are incompetent, because that is not what I am saying. I am saying the lack of policy direction . . . in fact, the lack of policies in general, and the total absence of political leadership is what is causing the problems.

When the Minister for Tourism brought the $54 million package (I referred to it on Friday), he said that we needed to be planning two-year programmes. And I have mentioned before—and I will not stop!—that Government shows a distinct lack of forward planning. The Minister for Tourism is finally saying that you cannot plan for just one year. That is basically what he is saying. That's nowhere good enough.

I come back once more to the Medium Term Financial Strategy and the Public Sector Investment Programme.

Mr. Roy Bodden: True!

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: The Honourable Third Official Member has been put on the spot by me in these Chambers on at least a half-dozen occasions, if not more, by my asking that question. Because he is bound by collective responsibility all he could do was bob and weave so as not to come out and tell it as it is. And I respect him for that.

But you see, when you are up in here for a certain length of time, plenty of times they know how to tell you. You can just see it by the reaction. But I know that the advisors of the political directorate—which are the senior public servants—have tried to sell this idea to the Government for at least the last five years. In fact, because I don't hold any brief for anybody, I know they tried to sell it to the last Government, and the last one going off. But there were a lot of problems then.

Mr. Roy Bodden: The recession.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: The recession was on, things couldn't work right and the political pressure was on.

The current Minister for Education would tell them all the things they were doing wrong—which he is doing now—so it didn't go far with them. But this Government has had five wonderful and glorious years to take this idea on board. They themselves boast how the country has never been better. I am not arguing with them. But the jam we are in now is a direct result of not taking that on board.

Let me, in my own little way, try to explain to the public the benefits of the Medium Term Financial Strategy (MTFS) and the Public Sector Investment Programme (PSIP).

The Ministries and the Portfolios that make up the Government all have their individual priorities, and all have their so-called vision for the future. What continuously happens, when it comes time for Budget and spending, is a lot of bartering. We get situations where he who hollers loudest gets the best results; we get situations where if one loses that one's loyalty he is going to be in a whole pile of trouble. And what we find is individual and parochial capital expenditure.

Again, for this my country suffers!

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: If they had taken on board the idea of the Medium Term Financial Strategy they would have been able to look at the country's financial resources in its entirety prior to making up a Budget—not afterwards. It's the same exact trap. Because it is done the way it is being done now, and when they find out afterwards that they can't make two ends meet, that's when they come with the taxes. And money has been spent where it need not to have been spent, because there were no priorities.

As I was saying, if they had adopted the principle that is preached by the MTFS and the PSIP they would be looking at the country's entire resources, they would have all of the priorities of the various Ministries and Portfolios. By knowing what resources are available, they would be able to put the capital projects in order of priority. At that point in time, they could be totally proactive when it comes to raising revenue for the country.

I need to side step a little bit here, since we are talking about revenue measures. I gave a brief explanation on Friday, which I believe to be the truth. It is only when they come down to where there are some things they know they have to do, and they find out that along with the recurrent—which they can't stop, they can only shave so much—there are certain basic things that have to be paid for in order for the country to run. After they shave the recurrent, after they find out what capital projects they can't wait any longer on, then the answer to the gap they have is to tax the people. And in dealing with it in such a manner, where it's last minute, you get all kind of fool-fool ideas coming out.

Let me show you where it just doesn't make sense. We boast of affluence in this country, and we talk about the earning power of individuals in this country being the highest in the Western Hemisphere and whatnot. Notwithstanding all of that, we also know that the largest percentage of the population is the smallest earners. Of course we know that. And the revenue measures that are continuously employed in this country are passed on to the same people at the end of the day.

Mr. Roy Bodden: True!

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: But, Mr. Speaker, you know the real bad part about that is that in doing that, . . . when you add up all of the extra payments they have to make to live—to buy their food, to buy their gas, to buy everything—their earning power will not increase accordingly. The Government knows it, obviously; because the same principle the Government has just applied to the civil servants—giving them a 2.7% increase retroactive to 1

January 1998, and as of 1999 a 3.3% increase in salaries—is only to bring the civil servants' earning power back to the level it was a few years ago.

So, in truth and in fact the raise that we are talking about is not a raise.

Don't get me wrong, when I'm talking about the Civil Service I am drawing a parallel to show that that is not what obtains in the private sector. That is not going to happen, especially in the small businesses.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Preach, brother, preach!

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: And when we do that, do you know what we do? We just look at the things that haven't been touched for a little while—the school fees and the book rentals.

Now, let's just hold on. I am not putting forward an argument as to exactly what these fees should be. I am not dealing with that principle now. The principle that I am dealing with is this: If the majority of the people in the country are in the lower income bracket, it means that they do not have the latitude to make too much movement with their fixed expenditures.

When you add certain direct expenditure to their budget it must throw them out of whack because they are not prepared for it. The majority of them are living on next month's salary anyhow. We know that. We don't want to expose us to things that we shouldn't be exposed to, Mr. Speaker, but it's the truth!

Mr. Roy Bodden: It's reality!

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: It is the truth!

And the Government gets up and says 'The country cannot continue to expect the Government to provide these services and not have to pay for it!' Nobody is questioning that. But it is how you do it. If it were not political posturing, and they were dealing with it diligently, they would be looking at small and sensible increases more often.

Mr. Roy Bodden: That's right!

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: But you see, we have elections every four years. So they figure all kinds of strategies. If you are going to lick 'em, lick 'em in the first six months after you get in. Then leave them alone until the next time around. And for that, my country suffers!

Mr. Speaker, they do not understand. However many degrees, however many years in Finance, they either do not understand—

Mr. Roy Bodden: Now you're talking!

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: —or they worship the wrong God. That is not meant literally, Mr. Speaker. They know what I mean.

Mr. Roy Bodden: They're reading the wrong books too!

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: We are left with a situation where the Government has dealt its hand. Then it comes to us with a package that we are to accept on behalf of the people because the line of argument is that these things are necessary—we need to do the roads, we need to build our educational facilities. Therefore, whatever the country has to pay for it, however we put it forward, we just simply must bite the bullet and deal with it.

I am not going to take that and just say yes. No way!

I want to bring out one more point. I want to show you how the line of argument is used to satisfy the immediate occasion, when in truth and in fact it does not paint the correct picture.

The Minister for Tourism, in his debate . . . (pause) I know what he said, and I can easily give the gist of it, but I would like to quote verbatim if I can quickly find it here. It has to do with that magical figure where the amount of debt service compared to the recurrent revenue and the percentage of recurrent revenue used to pay back on loans does not exceed 10%. In fact, he is saying with $30 million of loans for 1999 (if that is what we go for), that the amount that is included, and the way they have put it forward, puts it at 7.1% or 7.2%.

For the love of me, I don't seem to be able to find it, but I will go on. Let me use my own words.

The Minister was saying that with the debt service that we have now, if we engaged in $30 million worth of borrowing for 1999, . . . don't forget, now, he has brought a $54 million package so my understanding would be $30 million in 1999, and $24 million in the year 2000. That is his two-year plan.

What he was saying was that by the time we finish borrowing that $30 million during the course of 1999, and we have to pay on the interest (and he quoted some figures) during that time out of what our projected revenue is for the year 1999, our debt repayment will only be 7.1% or 7.2% of that projected revenue. Of course, the benchmark is 10%. If we are below 10% we are in a healthy financial situation.

Let me tell you what factors have not been outlined to the public. First of all (and historically this is a fact), whenever you employ revenue enhancement measures—meaning whenever you increase taxes to the people—your projected revenue for the following year is not always on target because you run the risk in certain areas of less consumption because the cost of the goods has gone up. Even in this Budget and these Estimates if you look at certain areas you will see where revenue fell short because of the previous tax measures.

So, the figure that he quoted was about 7.1%. First of all, in 1999 it might remain like that, but come the year 2000 it is possible that our projected revenue may be less. Also at that point in time we are paying on our principal too. If we have borrowed the $30 million by then, and if our revenue falls short and we are paying on that principal, that 7.1% can go through the window.

Don't forget too that it is not over yet. By the time you prepare the Budget for 2000 you are also borrowing $24 million more, minimum, if they don't come up with something else again. So, you will have to pay on that too. I don't believe for a second (and I hope God spares my life to come back here next year and prove what I am saying) that the recurrent revenue for the year 2000 is going to be any more than it is for 1999. I don't believe it! Those who are open-minded and fair (without my going into details) will understand why I said that. But I say that with good reasoning.

So by the year 2000 with the proposed borrowings, I will venture to say we will be past the 10%. But the idea is: 'The country needs these things, let us get going with it. Let us get involved in what we should be doing for the country; let us move on. We are basically hoping for the best afterwards. Once we get this roll now, by the year 2000 when election comes around we won't have that kind of problem, we will worry about that the year afterwards.'

If you want to break, Mr. Speaker, we can.

The Speaker: We shall suspend proceedings until 2:15 for lunch.

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2:20 PM

The Speaker: Proceedings are resumed. Debate continues. The First Elected Member for George Town continuing.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you Mr. Speaker. In capping off the discussion about the Medium Term Financial Strategy and the Public Sector Investment Programme, with your permission sir, I would just like to read one of the answers given to a parliamentary question that was asked in 1996. It was answered in writing on the 3rd October 1996.

The question was directed to the Honourable Third Official Member responsible for Finance and Development, and it asked him "to define the terms of reference under which the proposed medium term financial strategy is being developed."

The answer was, "Madam Speaker, the Medium Term Financial Strategy and Public Sector Investment Program is a medium term financial planning document which covers the initial period of 1996 to 1998 and which is intended to assist in allocating resources more efficiently among competing uses. In particular, the medium term financial strategy is expected to be a tool to aid fiscal decision making. It will address issues such as revenue generation, expenditure management, debt service capability and the level of general reserves."

Mr. Speaker, these are exactly the topics at hand. It will address issues such revenue generation (which is the tax package that has been dropped on us) expenditure management, debt service capability, and the level of general reserves.

"Within the context of this strategy, the public service investment programme will outline a list of capital investment projects in priority order."

I repeat: ". . . a list of capital investment projects in priority order covering all sectors of the economy. It will be formulated at one level within the context of the overall development objectives of the Cayman Islands, and at another within the objectives set for each sector."

What I just read is a finely tuned version of what I was trying to explain earlier on. That question was asked during the September 1996 meeting, which was the last sitting before the elections.

That was not the first attempt, because as early as 1994 I distinctly remember the Honourable Third Official Member explaining to this House what it was all about. So, the public service—the adviser to the Government—has been attempting for several years now to employ this strategy. Even when the Government comes with what it calls a two-year capital development package, it still doesn't even mention this.

So if they want us to even entertain the thought, the least they can do is to come to us with a proper plan. It is ludicrous in my view to simply deal with something over two years and not deal with all of the other issues at hand. Remember, the issues that are relevant and that have to be dealt with are: revenue generation, expenditure management, debt service capability, and the level of general reserves. So, if the Government wants to make some attempt to make amends for the miscarriage that has gone on over the years, then the least it can do is go to the public managers and say, 'Gentlemen, would you please put a package together for us?'

In essence, we have a ship-shod operation. The Government has at its disposal the expertise to deal with it properly. But, again, even when it makes vain attempts to cover itself to make it look like it is doing what it is doing right, it still leaves out the most important parts of it.

So, we have an original project with the proposed borrowing of $20 million. We have a few subjects changing within the ministries and suddenly we have a new proposed borrowing of $54 million over two years. Our priorities are different now. We know the right things we have to do. But, again I have to repeat, to make sure that we get the point, we are talking here of a revenue enhancement package of $12 million. That, in my view, is totally out of whack because it goes for the wrong dead horses.

We have a proposed capital expenditure over two years of $54 million, notwithstanding what else might be added in between, and they have not addressed the necessary ingredients to make sure that the picture is painted properly and completely.

We on the backbench are feeling for information. We have to beg and kiss-up people to get information that we should have. And these people have direct access to it and they will not use it! But do you know what is likely to happen after certain things have come to light? Just because it is not within them to admit that this is how they should really do it, they still probably won't do it even when they know it is right. Again, for that my country suffers.

Okay, let us look at the variables. What we are going to be dealing with now is a Loan Bill, which, if I understand the proposal correctly, will change from $19.5 million to $30 million for 1999. But the commitment that is going to be sought is for the complete package of $54 million. When you commit one end of it, you are committing the rest of it because you know that you are going to have to follow it up.

Then we are also going to be asked to vote on the rest of the tax measures, and then we are going to go into Finance Committee with a view to approving the proposed expenditures for 1999. That's what we have in front of us.

What we have diligently tried to show, thus far, is that while the country is functioning, and while all is not lost, there are certainly some areas that need to be addressed which we have been begging for years to have addressed.

We have shown that the Government is lacking seriously in fiscal policies. If we have not proven that by now, I don't know what else we should do. There is no joy in proving that. While I might rant and rave to make the point, . . . trust me, there is no joy because when my country suffers, so do I.

I do not know what the line of argument is going to be when they come back to us. Let me say that personally I am not prepared to accept the tax package as it is because it is not well thought out, it is not innovative; and it beats the same dead horses they beat all of the time.

I want to just use, if I may Mr. Speaker, two quick little examples to show you how they arrive at this wonderful tax package. Some people might want to disagree with my line of argument, but I am going to put it forward still because I believe that it makes a lot of sense.

Look at the garbage fees: Houses and apartments are going to go from $50 per year up to $100 per year. But condos and houses on Seven Mile Beach (which is cemetery to cemetery) are going to go up to $300 a year.

Now, my interpretation is that they figured, 'Well, from cemetery to cemetery—from West Bay Cemetery to Dixie—the rich people live there. So they can afford it.' But not only the affluent live between the two cemeteries. And if that was the thought process behind it, how many other areas are there where we have the million dollar houses?

So if the intent is to really capture that level to offset the deficit, then they should have done that properly too. I am not asking them to tax anybody any more, but what happened to South Sound? What happened to West Bay, where they call The Shores? And that's not pointing fingers, that these people should be charged more, I am just showing you the lack of the process. Whenever you are going to employ tax measures, it must be seen to be fair and just to all—even if there is resistance in paying. But it does not appear like that.

Then, we have truly the classic example of bulk water distributors. If I understand the chart correctly, the current rate is $150. It might not be the case, but I don't see any other figure for what it was previously. But, whatever the figure was, it has skyrocketed—that is, the annual fee for their Trade and Business Licence. It has gone to $25,000!

It may be the thought that the Cayman Water Company is doing good business. They are on the stock market, so that is good to go at. They are making some money. But there are other people who fall into this category, and it is not any personal defence of them because one might want to look and say, 'Well, they are doing all right too. They have some money.' But that is not the way we deal with it.

There are people who distribute water to offices and there are some homes in this town who are not hooked up to either the Water Authority or the Water Company and they use this type of water because it is the only potable water they have access to. Now, if anybody believes that the jump in this trade and business licence to $25,000 is not going to affect the price of that water, then they are sadly mistaken. But it does not end there.

The retailers today are able to import water, and what the water is contained in, duty free. So, if I am a supermarket and I import the water, the water is duty free. But if I bottle water here and sell it to the retailers, I pay 20% duty on all of the components that I have to use to deliver that water—the same components that contain the water that comes in duty free when you bring the water in. So they had best revisit that situation and look at it in the right light.

When I was talking about the importation (and I brought this up at least four years ago) . . . it cannot make sense. It cannot encourage local business. If that's the way we are dealing with it, we cannot do that. So, we see when we talk about increased duties and increased fees just by using those two little examples, it goes to show that the great minds got together in a hurry come-up fashion, and this was all they would deal with because they could not find anything else.

Other more palatable areas can raise much more revenue and will not reflect on the earning power of the people of this country.

We are not sleeping. We will deal with that when the time comes. But I am putting the Government on notice now that this package is not acceptable—not just because people don't want to pay anything more. No! But because Government's duty goes far beyond simply under a crises situation to come with a balanced budget, to shove these things out and expect it just to go like that. When in truth and in fact (as I said before) they are diminishing the earning power of the consumer. You cannot allow that to happen.

To make sure that when I say "diminishing the earning power" is clearly understood, I mean that the same money people get whether it is weekly or monthly, once these measures are approved it will buy less. Quite rightly, as I just heard my good colleague say, it affects their purchasing power. It is not about people paying for the increased services that the Government continues to provide. No one is questioning that. What we are saying is that when Government is looking to deal with revenue measures, they must be equitable, they must be fair, and they must be looked at in the best light for the people whom we serve.

And I contend today that this package does not display that. It does not! Perhaps at the appropriate time we can deal with some alternatives. We will see what Government's position is.

If I were selfish, I could easily say, 'Go ahead, let them do this. No problem. All it means is that we will have something to beat them up on the next time around when election is coming.' But we cannot think like that because that is exactly why I made the statement "for this my country suffers." It is this exact same type of tactic that has been employed over the years.

That is what we will have to deal with when approval has been sought for those and when it comes to the Loan Bill. So that they can understand that we understand, here is what will have to be done. We will need to see what our loans are, how the payments are secured, the length or the life-span of the loans that we have so far, and which ones end when. We will have to see a true projection, which has not been proffered thus far with this package. If we go with this package, what is the year 2000 going to look like when it comes to debt repayment? But, as is usual, they would like to have us jump on the bandwagon and worry about that afterwards. It doesn't work like that, and it will not work like that anymore.

Because I know that I am so right, the numbers do not matter. If Government chooses to deal with it differently, then we will simply go to the people and see who is right, that's all. But if they are going to expect us to sensibly deal with any two-year package that they have brought . . . As I mentioned before, I read what the Honourable Third Official Member explained about the Medium Term Financial Strategy and the Public Sector Investment Programme that has to be accompanied by that. And it should not be two years, it should be three years regardless of elections or not.

And that's another thing that we need to get out of our heads. We can't plan this country between elections. That's crap! It does not work like that. So, we have to come and deal with what the Medium Term Financial Strategy called for, which is a three year rollover programme. You have three years that you plan for, you plan all of the attachments—how you are going to fund it, where the revenue is coming from, what you are going to be able to put into your general reserves to build that up—the whole works. And as you complete one year and see how far you get, you add another year to the end of it, so that you are forever planning your life, that's how we have to do it.

So that has to accompany it if we are going to be dealing with any $54 million package. We have to understand what the loan payments are going to be, and we have to understand where we are with our public debt. And we have to see where we will be, having borrowed $54 million.

What I didn't really mention with the Medium Term Financial Strategy, but what accompanies that immediately, is discipline when it comes to spending the country's money. We won't be dealing anymore with 'I woke up this morning and I have this wonderful idea: East End needs a second civic centre, and I don't care how you deal with it, I am going to fix it up. So give East End a second civic centre.'

We are not going to wake up one morning where somebody who can holler the loudest figures out which road to fix, which place to build, which piece of land to buy so that we can look good.

As someone said earlier on, when it comes to politics you can't really get out of that entirely. Being a realist, I can understand to a certain point when representatives of various districts call for certain things to be done. I understand that. But, that must come after you have dealt with your national picture. That's what a Jamaican man called the 'braata.' That's not the main package. It cannot be. And what we have had to be dealing with is completely the reverse. And it is not like some of us have not tried to say so.

Mr. Speaker, I think we now have a clear picture of what we must be dealing with. I believe that the specifics of certain arguments, when it comes to the Loan Bill and when it comes to getting the tax measures approved, can be dealt with more appropriately at that time. So I do not think that we have to get into the specifics of that in this debate.

Mr. Speaker, two things come to mind. I am no expert on the first one by any means. But I wonder, perhaps when the Honourable Third Official Member is winding up, if he could address the 'Millennium Bug' and how that might affect us in the year 2000? Not limited to Government and the functions of Government, but out in the private sector and the international financial centres with regards to the possibilities of it causing us some problems. We have to bear that in mind.

I do not have the answers, but I think the question needs to be raised, because I am certain that there are some who are much more informed than I am, and we would like to know. If it is something that takes months to clear up, in the meantime what happens with all of these functions? So we would just like to know that.

Mr. Speaker, one of the other issues that I want to raise with the Honourable Third Official Member is that in his address he mentioned the Stock Exchange. He said, "I am proud to announce that the Cayman Islands Stock Exchange passed its one hundredth listing in July of this year, thereby earning its status as one of the world's fastest growing Exchanges."

"The Exchange now has a total of 122 listed issuers with a market capitalisation of approximately U.S.$8.9 billion. There is growing interest from Latin America and the exchange is also working on the development of facilities for the domestic capital market."

What I did not hear, Mr. Speaker (which would have been music to my ears), is that with the number of listings and the volume of capital listed, if the Exchange itself and the fees it was earning were to the point where it was not only self-sufficient, but it was making a contribution to the country's revenue. Perhaps we can get some type of explanation as to what situation obtains with the Stock Exchange. Just hearing what was said about it does not give us any idea on that side the coin.

Mr. Speaker, the Government, obviously is entwined in finding a way out. There are ways out. There is some glimmer of hope, which has come from what they are putting forward with their capital project package. But,

Mr. Speaker, there is still much left to be desired. They have the expertise and the knowledge at their disposal. Supposedly by now they know what to do. Let them put a proper package together—like they have never done before—and bring it to us and let's see how it works.

You see, Mr. Speaker, it is one thing to admit where one has erred—and when I know that that is the case with me, I am the first to do that because it takes me off the hook a lot quicker. But when people live with the thought that if they admit it then they are showing themselves up to the people so they can't admit it; it always will cause more problems. We have brought motions. We have made suggestions . . . . Not because it's us, Mr. Speaker. If they didn't even want to admit it or tell it to us, if they did it wouldn't be so bad! How are they going to organise their situation? Mr. Speaker, it's entirely up to them.

In case certain people who come to speak behind me start on another usual singsong about 'complaining about the problems but not providing any solutions', we, on the backbench, have our alternatives. And we are quite prepared to deal with them when the appropriate time comes. We can sit down and talk about it.

But, Mr. Speaker, what they must understand is that they will not be allowed to play their usual politics. I hope that they will find some other song to sing, because we can deal with alternatives! And, Mr. Speaker, had they listened to some of the ideas that have been put forward continuously for several years now, the country would not be in the situation that it finds itself in now.

To be truthful, it is not that all is lost. All that's happened to us is that we have not dealt with any forward planning. We have engaged in a lot of capital projects; we have not taken into account when those capital projects are completed what additional recurrent expenditure they are going to create, and we find ourselves with—as the Minister for Education who was opposing the government in 1991 said about them—an ever increasing gap between the recurrent revenue of the country and the recurrent expenditure. And to bridge that gap they are finding themselves in crises—because there is not one crisis. As the day goes by another one occurs for them.

They find themselves in these crises and they look without being able to think clearly and come up short with what they are supposed to be doing. I await their final picture, and to hear whether or not they are prepared to take on board some of the suggestions that have come forward.

Mr. Speaker, we know that Education is very important; we know the things that have to be done. And after we prove our point, we are not going to be the ones who stop the progress of this country. But, because of the poor track record that accompanies the Government at this time, our only way to react is to keep the pressure on to ensure that it is done right.

If transparency and accountability prevail, then there may even come the time when we will find something else to argue about besides what we have been arguing about in recent times, because they might actually start to do things right. If that situation occurs, Mr. Speaker, it will speak for itself. But I must say that there is going to have to be what those old people call a big 'right-about turn' to let me believe that the thoughts are changing.

The Honourable Third Official Member has alluded on more than one occasion to the Public Sector Reform that is getting in gear and financial reforms that are very, very necessary. And I take this opportune moment—because I know that the style of government that has prevailed is not conducive for this type of arrangement, and was not conducive to the discipline that things like the Medium Term Financial Strategy and the Public Sector Investment Program called for. But after they have gotten us in the jam we are in now, let us see if they have enough within them to allow the right things to happen. I wait patiently, Mr. Speaker, and I watch keenly.

There are other issues to be dealt with, but, as I said before, when it comes down to Finance Committee, when it comes down to the Loan Bill, and when it comes down to the revenue package, then we can deal with those and be more specific and get better results probably.

So, Mr. Speaker, to sum up, the Government has failed with its policies. I do not expect any one of them to agree with me, but I think that enough arguments have been laid down to prove it today—and before today, because others have spoken before me. What I will do now is sit and wait to hear the counter arguments that are coming, to see whether the points are salient, or whatever level they come at.

Let me just make one little thing clear, Mr. Speaker. We have painfully gone through the exercise of doing the best that we can to inform the public of this country what is going on—and they understand. And let no one fool himself (or herself) anymore by believing that he (or she) can come with any twisted versions and the public is going to believe him (or her). Perhaps if they fool themselves to allow that to happen, then the public will react accordingly. Thank you.

The Speaker: The floor is open to debate. Does any other Member wish to speak? The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: I first would like to thank the Honourable Financial Secretary and his staff for the Budget Speech. It was well prepared and sound. It has the solutions to problems, and was practical.

Running a country is different from running a business. It is different from running one's mouth as well. Where the hard facts of success are seen are in the results that emerge from the progress that this country has made.

To listen to the gloom and doom when the economy of this country is in the best position it has ever been in; when the economy is in an up-swing, when we are continuing an economic boom that has lasted nearly five years—that is unprecedented in the history of the Cayman Islands, because we normally have the ups and downs, the cycle every three years . . . any member of the public out there knows, as he looks around, that there is building [going on] all over the place. If you think it's easy to find a builder out there now to build a house or a building of any sort, go and try it. It's the reason why with a good economy the country has moved steadily forward.

The proof of any country's success is measured to a large part by its economy and the length of time it prevails moving upward at a steady, yet sure, pace.

The world economy, especially in the Far East, is undergoing severe strain. And I am sorry for countries in the Far East that just a few years ago were looked upon as the pearls of the economic world—places like Singapore, Australia, New Zealand, Japan, to name a few—countries that believed they had sustainable economies and touted these as examples of what the world should be doing.

But economies, like everything else in this world, are shrinking. And to put up any one country as having the only example, or any one person—as was clearly put forward by the First Elected Member for George Town, who appeared to know it all yet produced no solutions (and I will deal with that later on) . . . When one country gets to a stage (or one person) where it believes that it is the only example of a good economy, we get the harsh reminder that there is not only economics there is the good Lord. And, like everywhere else in the world, countries are subject to influences within the area.

Five years ago (four years ago, even) places like Japan and Singapore, New Zealand, actually sold their government framework as being the best in the world. Undoubtedly, they were good. Today, economies everywhere go up and they go down. That's why we have to thank God that in this country—despite the gloom and the doom that is painted within these hallowed Chambers—the Cayman Islands economy continues strong. And there is no one in this House, or outside, who can honestly stand up and say that the economy of the Cayman Islands is not good, and that it has not been good for the past four or five years.

It is a fact—one that is obviously hard for the Opposition to accept—that no one listens to extremes that are put up, as we have seen in this House, which can only hurt the country. And I will go on to show how other Caribbean countries have been destroyed because the economies of those countries have been attacked by Opposition Members in an effort to destroy the economy, thus destroy the Government.

History has shown that, and we are seeing it coming to light and raising its head again.

The duty of government is to provide opportunities for the people of its country who wish to work, to have the full opportunity of working in positions that bring out their full potential. In other words, anyone in this country who wants a job can get one. As we look around there can be no doubt that the foundation that was laid, . . . and I will show where we came from, because a lot has been said about 1991 and 1992. We came out of a very serious economic recession.

I am not blaming anyone for that, but the fact is that it took a while for the Government now, and the Government as we were before this, to pull the country out of the recession that it had been in. And this was obviously influenced by world factors. That is a part of it. That is why in debating this I intend to weigh the principles fairly, both in relation to past Governments and the present Government.

We have seen unprecedented steady controlled growth of the economy. It is always hard to get the balance right. But I believe the steady economic trend in the Cayman Islands has been good for it, and has kept the country's economy in good stead. The Honourable Financial Secretary said in his Budget Speech, and I quote, "As we look back over the past decade and take stock of our present situation, there is so much of which we have to be proud. Our achievements have been truly outstanding."

That is correct. The dark and gloomy picture painted by the three Opposition Members—the First Elected Member for George Town, the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, and the Fourth Elected Member for George Town—are extreme views that have been put forward in an effort to try to tear down the Government and thus hurt the country.

The Financial Secretary went on to say, and I quote, "With such an impressive past, the question that comes to mind is: can we continue to be successful in the future? The short answer to this question is 'yes.'" That is correct. With the help of the private sector—because it is not done all within this Chamber, despite what we may think—the Government in a joint partnership has moved forward with a very impressive economic situation.

I commend the Financial Secretary. We have seen that the Caribbean Financial Action Task Force, which recently held the meeting of its Council of Ministers here, is now Chaired by our Financial Secretary. He will remain Chairman, God willing, for one year. This is significant. It has sent a clear message to the world that the Cayman Islands is clean and that it will do its part in combating organised crime the world over.

And even more impressive is that in September of next year the Commonwealth Finance Ministers Meeting will be held here and jointly chaired by the United Kingdom and the Cayman Islands. There will be some 300 delegates from 53 countries assembled here to look at the finances of the world. There will be representatives from the International Monetary Fund and the World Bank, the different organisations from abroad. As the Financial Secretary said, both government and the private sector are expected to benefit greatly from this meeting of the minds on a global scale.

The Budget Speech also deals with Vision 2008. I will merely read the areas where this was mentioned. "In March, H.E. the Governor launched the Vision 2008 project, which aims to establish national goals and objectives for the Cayman Islands over the next ten years. Participation in this exercise has been extensive and all segments of the community are contributing to this project that is of obvious national significance. It is expected that a draft Ten-Year National Strategic Plan will be presented to the Legislative Assembly in March 1999."

"Effective implementation of the Vision 2008 project will depend critically on a well-functioning public service and an efficient financial system."

We know that the Budget process is now going through a redesign, based on advice from a New Zealand consulting firm. And we know that that will be dealt with, at least the first stage, in time for the next Budget. And I believe that we all look forward to a system where, instead of standing up in this House with the Opposition saying the country is no good from a financial point of view, and us saying the country is good from a financial point of view, it will for the first time bring about what we tried to do informally this time—put Members of this House together in a constructive way to sit down and produce a Budget which is then brought to this House and critiqued and debated. It will be a Budget that will hopefully be without a lot of the politics that now exist in the present process.

The financial reforms that are being looked at will, in my view, take us forward. It will provide a realistic balance sheet, and profit and loss very much along the lines of what we know in private business. It will show for the first time that the difference between the accrual accounting, where money put into assets is not taken into account basically through a cash profit and loss situation, but is actually applied towards capital and those assets increase in value as a result.

So the erroneous notion that where money is spent on capital it should all be paid out of one year's revenue—the same as saying a person building a building or a house, whatever, should pay for their house out of one year's salary—will all fall by the way. It will show what is capital and what is written in as recurrent, or what occurs every year. That will define the difference between the system we now have, which can be confusing . . . because what is happening now is that the Opposition will put forward that balancing a budget is paying for all capital in the year in which that part of the capital falls due, rather than amortising it over a period of ten or twenty years depending on whether it's short term or long term.

I look forward to that. Like I said, we will then see whether the Members of this House on both sides have the discipline to sit and go through a Budget together and by consensus, or otherwise, produce a Budget. The Financial Secretary will then present it to this House which, subject to whatever criticism either side may have, will go forward as a Budget of the country. It will remove what is an annual constant conflict—and always has been an annual conflict in this House—with different persons saying different things and many times the public is left in a confused state.

The overall growth in the economy in 1998 is expected to be 5% as it has been in recent years, as the Financial Secretary said. He also said that "figures for the first three quarters of the year show buoyant activity in the construction and real estate sectors, good growth in financial and business services and increases in tourism." That statement doesn't align at all with the three Opposition Members' gloom and doom of an economy that's failing. The economy is buoyant and there has been good growth in the financial and business services with increases in Tourism.

The consumer price index, with all that has been said about cost of living going up, in the first half of 1998 rose by 3.5 per cent. As the Financial Secretary said, however, "inflation is not expected to exceed 4.0 per cent in 1999."

Anyone who understands economics realises that this is a reasonably low inflation factor, and that the growth predicted has been good and it has been steady. It is wrong to try to alarm the public that the increase that we are looking at in measures that are coming in here are going to push up the cost of living tremendously. Half of the measures (or about half) do not impact locally anyhow. Therefore, a fairly sizeable part of it will not even touch the local economy as it relates to companies that are not formed, or not used by local persons, which are used overseas. But when dealing with the measures I will go back to that.

The Speaker: Would this be a convenient time to take the afternoon break?

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Yes, sir.

The Speaker: We shall suspend for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.00 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Debate continues. The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning, continuing.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: I had gone part way through looking at the economy and showing that the economy is good, and that was confirmed by the Financial Secretary in his speech. I would like to leave the economy at this stage and go on to deal with the Planning Department.

The Planning Department is very important to the economy of the country. It is very important that it operates efficiently and that it exercises the necessary conformity to the Development Plan in place. There have been a number of positive changes, but perhaps one of the more recent and one of the more important is that we reduced the processing time for Planning Approval for houses and routine matters from five weeks to three days. That is a very significant time difference—from five weeks to three days. That was done by delegating responsibility from the Central Planning Authority to the Director of Planning and, on certain matters, the Director of Planning and the Chairman of the Central Planning Authority.

The time for the issuing of certificates of occupancy has been reduced from two weeks to two days. This was a source of annoyance for a lot of people in that they would complete the house and it would take about two weeks to get a certificate of occupancy. Obviously, if it is a very large and complex building that could vary.

The increase in the efficiency of the department has been done with a minimal increase in budgetary expenditure. I have not come here and asked for a lot of extra staff or a lot of extra equipment or a lot of extra money to do this. It has been done without, or with very little, increase in expenditure.

Also, less than a year ago we reduced the time for Planning Approval from the Central Planning Authority from about 90 days to about 42 days, of which approximately 28 days are spent with the giving of notice to adjoining neighbours. It is not possible to get that reduced very much below that because of the statutory notice period of the three-week notice that has to be given. But there is a time for mailing or service that has to elapse before.

We are on track this year to collect over $1.5 million in infrastructure fees; $1 million in building permit fees; and over $800,000 in application fees. There has been continued improvement in customer service and response time throughout the entire department.

The Caymanian Compass, in their editorial of 11 June 1998, stated that the changes I mentioned earlier of reducing the time from five weeks to three days for houses and routine matters would, and I quote, “. . . bring about great rewards in customer satisfaction.” And so it has.

We have seen a continued Caymanianisation of the Department. We have initiated an apprentice programme in the Building Control Unit to provide young Caymanians with the opportunity to gain valuable on-the-job training in building inspection, electrical inspection, and plumbing inspection.

Perhaps the one real satisfaction I have had with this Department has been in seeing the Development Plan go in place nearly 20 years after the first Development Plan was passed in 1977. I am happy to say that I was a Member of that Government in 1977, and I was the Minister when the Development Plan itself was amended. It was long overdue and the amendments in some areas were very extensive and it took a lot of time. But we rigidly followed the law and, thank God, we now have an updated Development Plan.

We have started (and are probably nearly half-way through) the updating of that plan, and fairly shortly we will be going out to the public with further amendments, mainly in four zoning areas for a further updating of the Development Plan.

In relation to Cayman Brac and Little Cayman there has been no plan in either island, in fact, they are not subject to most of the regulations under the law. At present, both islands have started work on Development Plans. I think it is important in those two islands that they do formulate Development Plans which suit the people and are acceptable to the people in those islands to ensure the steady and organised development of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman in a way that preserves as much as possible of those two islands.

I believe [lessons can be] learned from mistakes that have been made in Grand Cayman over the years and I hope that we will see and acceptance of these within the next year.

The way in which we have been able to bring about efficiency in the Planning Department has been because of the planning that has gone into the department—knowing where we are going and exactly where we expect to be within the next three years. But there has also come a monitoring spreadsheet (of which I get copies on a monthly basis) that can tell the Director the time when an application has been received, the person who is dealing with it when it is moved from one person to the other; if there are problems brief notes will set out what the problems are; the time that it goes to the Central Planning Authority; when the decision is made, what it is; when notification is then made to the applicant; and when the final letters are sent out and fees paid. That is at least a part of the information. There are probably ten or twelve columns.

They are one line spreadsheets, but it allows either the Chairman of the Central Planning Authority or the Director, or our Ministry to see at any time how long an application has been in, what the problem is, who is dealing with it, and as a result of that, we have been able to speed up the process. As long as there is no system in place to allow you to find out what the problem is, you can't solve it.

If that the model (and it's been there for the past two years or so), and that type of monitoring were done by other departments in relation to applications and dealing with the public, then I believe we would have far better customer efficiency in those departments.

The Development Plans are, in fact, five-year plans. I think I may have mentioned three years earlier. There is a mandatory review period within those five years.

Before moving on I would like to thank the Chairman and the Members of the Central Planning Authority and the Secretariat, also the Director of Planning and his staff who are very efficient, for the efficient way they have accepted and become what I would say is a very good team in the department and it has been so clearly shown in the better customer service that has been provided over the years.

There is now a motion in relation to training that will soon be under my Ministry. But we constantly hear about the fact that there is not sufficient technical and vocational emphasis in the schools and in the College. I would like to spend a bit of time showing that this is not correct.

I know that I have invited Members of this House to the Community College at times. A few have come—the faithful few show up. For example, back about a month and a half ago at the George Hicks High School, unfortunately only the Ministers and the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town came for a tour. But tours such as that, where you have an opportunity to look at the College or the different schools, is an opportunity that should be taken. It would allow Members to see first-hand what is going on.

We constantly get the criticism on the schools and the hospital. We get criticism on everything, Mr. Speaker, mainly during Question Time, or on motions. But sometimes understanding what is there could lead to some enlightenment. I would just like to set out what the Community College offers at present.

On a full-time basis, there is Accounting Certificate; Computing Certificate; Construction Certificate; Electrical Certificate; Hospitality Certificate; and, by the way, there are seventy-five in that class which is very good and we have seen an increase in technical/vocational as was reported in the paper. On a part-time basis, Government, Nursing, Banking, Legal Secretary, and Computing, and Associate Degrees . . .

I see Members laughing, Mr. Speaker. I believe if they listen to this list that I have they will see, . . . looks to me like there are twenty-odd subjects provided, many of them are actually within the technical/vocational area.

In Associate Degrees the breakdown is, Computing Certificate, and I won't list all of these, but only to say that, for example, there is English, Maths, Banking, Accounts, Computing. At present there are 147 in the Associate Degree Programmes, and now in Accounting, Chemistry, English, Hospitality, Physics, Biology, Computing, Geography, Maths, Spanish, Business, Economics, History, Psychology and Sociology.

A list of subject requirements includes Accounting, Biology, Business, Chemistry, Computing, English, Geography, Hospitality, History, Maths, Physics, Sociology, Spanish, Psychology, Carpentry and Electronics. So there is a wide range of subjects provided by the Community College. And similarly, and with ever-increasing numbers, we also have the subjects within the schools. As we saw recently the Tourism Syllabus has been introduced, which is five different courses within the primary schools.

The results within the school system itself, as I will show at a later stage, are good. We have talked with the Caribbean Examinations Council (and I will give statistics on this later) and it shows very clearly that within the system, while there is an attempt to cater to every person to bring them to their fullest potential, potentials do differ. We basically have to do our best to get as much as possible from the students.

We have seen considerable increases in the area of tourism. There has been a steady movement upwards with tourism. The Honourable Minister for Tourism has done an extremely good job in very difficult times—especially when hurricanes are nearby. He has to act very quickly to deal with adverse publicity, which can hurt the country. He is also in a very competitive market, one where every Caribbean country—and every country in the world that is in the tourism business—competes.

Especially difficult is ensuring that we attract the tourists who are in a high enough economic bracket that they can leave the maximum amount of dollars in the country. And from that industry, and the considerable training that the Honourable Minister has carried out—and we have done a lot through the Community College . . . in fact, we have done joint training at times.

We have seen steady increases, which have kept tourists within a high economic bracket coming to the islands and contributing. Cruise ships as well as [air] arrivals have moved steadily upwards over the years. This has been despite difficult odds, such as the recent closing of the Holiday Inn as well as the Clarion. There has been continued and organised progress in that area and a lot has been said about plans, 'plan this, plan that.' There is a plan in tourism.

No matter what will be done at the end of the day with the Ten-Year Plan that comes out of the present exercise, it is critical that each specific area, such as tourism, has in place its own plan to deal with the speciality that that highly important, in fact most important (I would like to point that out) industry provides.

It has taken a lot of hard work, a lot of effort on the part of the Minister. The one thing that I don't think anyone here can say, despite the criticism, is that the Minister has [not] very effectively and very efficiently moved tourism forward because without tourism this country's economy will dry up. Some $400 million or more out of an estimated billion dollars now of Gross Domestic Product comes from this area. And it cannot be stressed too often to the people of this country how important the partnerships that the Ministry and the Department have forged and played a part in this.

MOMENT OF INTERRUPTION—4.30 PM

The Speaker: We have reached the moment of interruption. I would entertain a motion for the adjournment of this Honourable House.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until Wednesday at 10.00 AM.

The Speaker: The question is that this Honourable House do now adjourn until 10.00 AM Wednesday, 2 December. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AT 4.30 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM WEDNESDAY, 2 DECEMBER 1998.

EDITED
WEDNESDAY
2 DECEMBER 1998
10.05 AM

[Prayers read by the First Elected Member for George Town]

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Item 2 on today's Order Paper, Reading by the Speaker of Messages and Announcements.

READING BY THE SPEAKER OF
MESSAGES AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: I have received apologies from the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay, who may be arriving later this morning. He was not feeling well.

Item 3 on today's Order Paper, Questions to Honourable Members/Ministers. Question 217 is standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE

QUESTION 217

No. 217: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works to state how many applications have been received by the Ministry regarding dredging in the North Sound within the past six months.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Three new applications have been received in the last six months. These applications were from Caymarl, for 1 million yards of material; Moxam, for 2.12 million yards of material; and from Selkirk Watler, to widen and deepen the canal at Red Bay.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say at what stage the decision on these applications is?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: The applications are brought into the Ministry, and afterwards we have to take a paper to Executive Council. It is in a deferred mode with Executive Council.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable Minister say why Executive Council has deferred the decision? And can he inform the House what the next stage is, assuming that the applications have met with the approval of Executive Council?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: I am not privy to give the reason. And in regard to if and when it is approved, then the individuals will be notified.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: The Minister just said that "if and when" the applications are approved the applicants would be notified. Can the Minister explain what the process is for these applications to be either denied or approved?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: We will have to wait until we get a legal opinion on this and then the matter will be dealt with.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I wonder if one of the procedures is not that the application must first receive the approval of this Honourable House before the applicants would be notified that it has been favourably dealt with.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: The matter will be referred to the House. But, as the Honourable Member knows, it has to go through Executive Council.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable Minister explain what happens if such applications are brought to the Legislative Assembly and approved?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: As a result of a motion that came here earlier we now have to bring things back to the Legislative Assembly for approval. So when it comes back here, if it is approved the process would be for Government to give a licence, and if it is not approved to speak to the person and tell them that it was not approved.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Is the Minister then categorically saying that once such application is approved by the Legislative Assembly, that that is the end of it and the licence will have to be issued?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: He is partly correct. Once we have a legal opinion that everything is in order, then, yes.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Minister then state what role the Executive [Council] plays in the decision-making process with these applications?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: This is where the legal opinion comes in. Once the legal opinion is given through Executive Council and the matter is decided that it's a good project or a bad project, it goes in accordance with that.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: The Minister just said that this is where the legal opinion comes in. Is the Minister saying that the legal opinion presently being sought has to do with Parliament having the final say on the approval of these applications? Or is it Executive Council? Does it have to do with the specific application and the merits in regard to their approval?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: It was my understanding from the motion that we dealt with here that such matters would be referred back here to the Legislative Assembly for a decision. As I pointed out, the Executive Council's role would be to get a full legal opinion to say that it was legally okay or not, and then the matter would be referred here.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Bearing in mind the answer he just gave, can the Honourable Minister say if such legal opinion will be sought for each application? Or is the legal opinion being sought one where the Legislative Assembly has the authority to give final approval to such applications?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Whatever legal approval was given would mean that the opinion would state (as I pointed out a while ago) if we should do it, or if it is right or wrong. Definitely, it would be brought back here.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I am sure there are other supplemenatries, and I don't mean to hog the show, but I am trying to get a satisfactory answer. The answer the Minister just gave did not answer the question I asked. I will try to word it so that it can be answered.

Is the legal opinion being sought as to whether the Legislative Assembly has the authority to give the final approval for these applications or whether that authority rests with Executive Council? Or does the legal opinion being sought (as the Minister said "if everything is all right") have to do with the individual applications or are we speaking about a principle?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: It would be procedure and the answer to the rest of his question is, Yes.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Can the Honourable Minister say why it has taken six months for the Executive Council to process the applications and bring the applications to the stage where they could be debated as was the decision in the Legislative Assembly?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Let me say, once again, that I am not privy to take anything out of Executive Council. But the point that I would like to make is that if something is taken to Executive Council, that is my duty, once it happens to be under my Ministry. Once it is there and Executive Council decides to defer it, I can only deal with it when it is decided by Executive Council that it should be back here.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Can the Honourable Minister say if the six month period we are talking about in terms of the processing of these applications is longer than it was previously? In other words, is this the norm, or is this an unusual situation?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: What I would consider the norm, as he is talking about, is when Executive Council gives me the OK to indicate to my Ministry that things are right and they are prepared to approve what I bring to Executive Council. So I could not say it's six months; I can't say it's eight months. It is when Executive Council decides.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: I believe that since the Minister has dealt with similar applications before, he is in a position to assist the House by saying whether or not it is usual for applications to take a period of six months. If we know that this is not unusual, then we know what we are dealing with. It would assist the House greatly if the Minister could say whether or not this is an unusual period.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: I can only repeat what I have said. There have been periods of probably two months, three months or four months, but the situation has to be evaluated in each case. We know of the statement made by the Governor in the Throne Speech. I believe this is something that has deferred it further.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I heard mention made about legal opinions which, I would imagine, would be given to Executive Council on this matter (and I will be turning this into a supplementary). But as the approval has already been received in this House that the final decision would be given by the Legislative Assembly, I wonder if the Honourable Minister could state whether there is a policy now, written or unwritten, that no further dredging will take place in the North Sound until the Multidisciplinary Impact Study of the North Sound has been undertaken at which time there will be a guide as to what further dredging, if any, should take place in the North Sound.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: As I recall the motion, it is to refer the cases back here. Once all of the work is done on the departmental level, it will definitely be referred here.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Just to have the point I was raising clarified, if the Honourable Minister is in a position to answer that. There has been much concern about any further dredging in the North Sound and my question is whether Government will now await the findings of a study (whether it is my motion or other motions) the findings of the Multidisciplinary Study of the North Sound to determine whether any pending applications should be approved.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: I don't think that any pending applications will be approved. As I pointed out earlier, once all of the in-house work is done the matter will be referred here, and the decision will come from here.

The Speaker: I will allow two additional supplementaries. The First Elected Member for George Town. This is supplementary number 16.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you.

It has been Government's policy in the past with dredging applications to, if so minded, approve these applications in principle with certain conditions attached. Is this policy continuing whereby applications Government receives might still be approved in principle? Or is this policy discontinued based on the premise that final approval for these applications must be given through the Legislative Assembly?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: That is the reason. I pointed out that it will come back here. Approval in principle caused a lot of problems, as we all know. The Member is correct. It will have to come here.

The Speaker: The final supplementary. The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you.

Although the motion we have been talking about in the question and the supplementaries gave the Legislative Assembly authority to give final approval on dredging applications, can the Honourable Minister say whether Constitutionally these applications can actually be authorised by the Legislative Assembly, or is it for the Executive Branch of Government to give the final approval or denial?

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: I am not a lawyer. The most I can do is be guided by whatever the legal [opinion] says. I wouldn't want to tell the Member anything that is going to rile him. Although he seems to be thinking I took advice here, I didn't. Anyway, that is the way it is. It has to go through legal and once they give me an opinion on something that is what will be brought here.

The Speaker: Moving on to question 218 standing in the name of the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

QUESTION 218

No. 218: Mr. Roy Bodden asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs if the Government lifted any exclusion orders on previously prohibited persons to the Cayman Islands between 1996 to the present.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: The Government has not lifted any exclusion orders on previously prohibited persons to the Cayman Islands between 1996 and the present time.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable First Official Member say if any such requests were received?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: I am afraid that I am a little bit confused by that question. When the Government issues an exclusion order on a person that is the end of the matter. I am not sure what the Member is referring to. Perhaps he could elaborate a little bit more.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable First Official Member say if, when exclusion orders are issued, there are any possibilities for reconsideration at any given point in time? And also can he tell the House what some of these circumstances for reconsideration may be, if any?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: If an aggrieved person wishes to apply for a judicial review through the courts, then that is possible. But as far as Executive Council is concerned, the matter is final.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Can the Honourable First Official Member say if in the course of his experience this has ever been done?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Not to my knowledge.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Honourable First Official Member say (and I am hoping that I am not going so far as to seek an opinion) if, when it comes to spouses, Government at any point in time intends to look at the situation possibly with a view to rethinking the policy? Especially when the reasons for these exclusion orders are, if I may go so far as to say, possibly borderline rather than extreme, and where children are involved.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: The Immigration Law is quite clear in the circumstances under which a person would be declared a prohibited immigrant, or deported as the case may be. The law, as the Member knows, is before a select committee. And if it is the wish of the select committee to alter the circumstances, or to put in the law certain circumstances that would change what is currently there, then the matter can be dealt with by this Honourable House.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: I quite understand what the Honourable First Official Member is saying. Can the Member assist us by explaining if the law allows for an aggrieved party to appeal the decision to the Executive Council, or the Governor in Council, or any other arbitrator? If the law says that there is latitude for someone to appeal, then how can it be that no one has the authority to repeal?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: I don't have the relevant section here with me, but I believe—and my colleague, the Honourable Second Official Member will correct me if I am wrong—that in most things there is always the recourse of a judicial review through the courts. Now it happens from time to time that requests will come back to Executive Council for reconsideration after an order has been issued. But to my knowledge there been no case of one of these succeeding.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Just for purposes of clarity then, would the Honourable First Official Member state if Executive Council has the authority to reverse the decision? And if so, does Executive Council have the final say in making the decision to give an exclusion order?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: For the sake of argument, if new information comes to light which may alter the original circumstances I believe that Executive Council does have the authority to revisit the matter. But I expect that there probably needs to be new and special circumstances that would warrant this.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Just to make sure that we are very clear, a part of my question was whether or not Executive Council was the authority to give the final decision regarding an exclusion order, or whether or not it was straight through the Immigration Department.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: If I understand the question, the Member wants to find out whether or not it is the Immigration Department, or whether or not Executive Council is the final decision maker. Executive Council is the final decision-making body.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: To sum it up, Executive Council authorises issuance of an exclusion order. Outside of legal procedures, the same body is the only authority that can reverse that decision?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Yes, the Member is correct.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, question 219 is standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION 219

No. 219: Dr. Frank McField asked the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs what is being done to control the level of noise and offensive language used by prisoners at the George Town lock-up.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: No complaints have been received about the level of noise and offensive language used by prisoners at the George Town lock-up. If complaints are received the matter will be looked into with a view to finding solutions.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Is it the Honourable Member's understanding that there is a difference between complaints about something happening, and something actually happening? And whether or not there have been any complaints, is there any knowledge that there is a high level of noise and offensive language coming from that George Town lockup?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: I think it is very clear that a lockup is a lockup, and not a church. By that I mean that it is likely that people held in a lockup will make a certain amount of noise and perhaps use offensive language. But I have not been made aware of the problem there.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: It is very unfortunate that the Member has not been made aware of this. The fact is that the lockup is in the vicinity of the Motor Vehicle Licensing Department and the public use this facility on a very regular basis, since we have so many persons with cars and driver's licences in this country. The reason why I have brought this to his attention (and I won't disclose the source of the information) was to ask the Member to give an undertaking to look into this problem.

I know it's not a church. But can anything be done to prevent these occurrences from causing the public to be exposed to this situation? I am quite sure that is exactly why we lock people up—to protect the public. So can anything be done? People have brought this to my attention on a constant basis, and that is why I brought it to the attention of the Member. So I am just asking if something can be done.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Yes, Mr. Speaker. I will be happy to give an undertaking to seek a solution to deal with the problem. It had not been brought to my attention. Now that it has been brought to my attention by the Member, I will be more than happy to ask that it be looked into and see what can be done about it. I thank him for bringing it to my attention.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Perhaps both yourself, Mr. Speaker, and the Honourable First Official Member will allow me a slight bit of latitude. I think I will explain myself by the time I have finished.

The substantive question is not concerning my question, but it is my understanding that there are some physical aspects that need to be corrected at the new George Town lockup. I can tie it in by saying that if all of these could be corrected, perhaps the people who have to go there might not make so much noise, or cause so much disturbance.

Maybe the Honourable First Official Member could comment about what needs to be done there physically with the structure, if anything, and do we need to be appropriating funds?

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: It is my understanding that the only outstanding thing left to be done at the George Town lockup is the installation of the sprinkler system. That required some special equipment to be ordered. But that is for safety reasons and is still to be done. It is in hand; it is being attended to. But I am not aware . . . and my understanding is that everything that had been planned for the George Town lockup has been completed.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: One final supplementary from me, Mr. Speaker. I was made to understand some time ago that there were some problems—which could be major problems—with some of the plumbing fixtures and the tiling. I want to enquire of the First Official Member if that has been attended to.

The Speaker: The Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs.

Hon. James M. Ryan: Yes, I can assure the Member that that has been taken care of.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries that concludes Question Time for this morning.

THE APPROPRIATION (1999) BILL, 1998

DEBATE ON THE BUDGET ADDRESS DELIVERED BY THE HONOURABLE THIRD OFFICIAL MEMBER ON MONDAY, 16TH NOVEMBER 1998

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I have had two days to think over my approach to this Budget debate. I have come to the conclusion that on this debate I must not be pulled into the mud; I must keep to the high road.

Many years ago a senior Queen's Counsel told me that people who don't have the ambition—or the ability—to rise to where you are, tend to try to pull you down to their level. Therefore, despite what has been levelled at me by the Fourth Elected Member for George Town, the First Elected Member for George Town, and the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, I have to try to set an example in this country especially for the school children of this country.

One of the things that brought this back fairly harshly was in the middle of the debate that was going on, a school child said to her teacher, "Teacher, is that how we are supposed to behave when we grow up?" We have to set an example, Mr. Speaker, for the youth of this country, and we have to try to keep the debate in this House at a high level and try to debate issues rather than debating personalities. As saying goes, when a person has nothing to say, he talks about other people.

The Education system of this country is the best that it has ever been. This has been accepted throughout by the people of this country, many of them—353-odd probably—involving 2,000 people who have spent time dealing with the strategic planning for education. We have a five-year strategic Education Plan in place and that plan is continuously updated from year to year. It rolls from one year to the next, and at any one time we know five years in advance where we want to be.

A lot of stress was put on the fact that more should have been spent on the capital works for schools. I admit that. But schools are not made of just blocks and cement: It is the teachers, it is parents, and it is the community at large that will train those children how to act properly and be good citizens in the country. No one has criticised—and no one can criticise, Mr. Speaker—that a lot of money has not been put into teachers and resources within the school. Having four walls in a classroom that are very elaborate without having a high quality teaching staff—which we have in all schools here private and Government—without that the school cannot reach its highest performance.

The school Inspectorate is fully functional. We have two fully qualified Caymanian senior inspectors and we have a number of occasional inspectors. So far, four full school inspections have been carried out including one inspection of a private school. The summary inspection reports for the three Government schools have been released to the Chief Education Officer for release to parents and teachers. And the summary report of the private school has been released to the Board of Governors.

The cycle of full school inspections continues, and it is important to note that following an inspection the school is required to complete a plan of action within 30 days to show how it plans to address any deficiencies. This plan of action is then monitored by the Education Department staff and by the Ministry. So an inspection does not just look at the school and at the system. Following that, a plan of action has to be put in place to deal with any deficiencies within the system. This is the way towards progressing. It is one of the accepted standards under the action plan of the five-year Education Plan.

We have also installed a student record and data management system. This is partially installed, and the student demographics will be compiled for all primary schools. Secondary schools will be added by the first quarter of 1999. The strategic five-year plan required Government schools to complete their site based planning by the year 2000. At present, seven schools have completed their site plan. Several more have started, and the rest have theirs scheduled to begin the first half of 1999. The site based planning will look at the schools in depth and specifically, and they will then improve their own school in accordance with the plan.

As the implementation of the National Strategic Five-year Plan for Education continues, schools have reported significant improvement in areas such as parent involvement, discipline, community assistance, resources, training of staff, student performance and field trips that enhance and consolidate the curriculum.

At present, all Government schools have at least one connection point to the Internet. I would like to thank Cable & Wireless, and especially the Managing Director, Mr. Timothy Adam, for the assistance. I also want to thank him for what he has done for the private schools, and also local computer companies that have assisted with the Internet.

This year the National Education Conference featured teaching and technology. The speaker was the principal of one of the United States top ten technology schools. After the conference teachers could choose from a variety of workshops having to do with using technology in the classrooms for various purposes. This country's future generations will rely more and more on technology, and the schools are up to date on this in both the private and Government schools.

We have seen reading day in the schools and the book fair that was held at the Lions Centre. This was well supported by the whole community. The importance of reading with our children and encouraging them to read either to parents or their brothers and sisters is stressed for year-round to all parents.

In the performing arts there have been many opportunities to display the creative talents found in the schools. One of the major events of the school year . . . and I again invite Honourable Members to please attend reading day, and the festival of the arts. So many times we go there and I have staff ask me if any more of my colleagues are coming. The most I can say is that I hope so. I know they have an interest in schools. Sometimes, however, one wonders.

The National Children's Festival of the Arts was a success. The children also take part in Pirates' Week, Cayfest, Rotary's tree lighting, and the Governor's Christmas Carole evening. I would like to take the time to especially thank those teachers, students, parents and guardians who give so much of their extra time to the students' extra curricular activities which adds so much to our enjoyment of community events.

The curriculum team, a very important team, continues to make progress in developing a national curriculum. The curriculum is being developed in four key stages. The learning outcomes for key stage 1 in language arts, maths, science, and social studies has now been completed. Some of these are already in use. Key stage 2, learning outcomes from math and science, has also been circulated to teachers for comment. In the area of social services three learning packets have been developed and will be published. These will be for use in Years 1 to 3, and work has begun on the packets for the other primary school groups.

We have recently seen four booklets of the curriculum on tourism, which the Minister for Tourism and the Department for Tourism have developed. These are very good, and I thank them, once again, for this. This will be a part of the curriculum.

A fine arts curriculum committee to develop a common curriculum in music, art, dance, and drama has been established, and a curriculum committee for physical education has also begun to meet.

Government continues to support pre-school education. There are now 25 licensed pre-schools, all of which have been licensed within the last two years or so, and all of which have at least one trained teacher as required by the Education Council Guidelines. In 1998 the Education Department ran a two day workshop on Grand Cayman, and one on Cayman Brac for pre-school personnel.

The communication with Cayman Brac with the teaching staff has been very important. Unlike the early days, the Department has made an effort in that the Chief Education Officer does travel to the Brac about once per month. Also, the teachers from the Brac are brought down for the meeting of the Heads in Grand Cayman. Also, the Chief Education Officer goes to the Brac and holds meetings with the Heads when he is there, as well as going through the schools.

Both islands have now been integrated to where they are a part of festivals such as the National Children's Festival of the Arts. We have made a point to try to better bridge the communication between the two islands. The schools in Cayman Brac, the High School especially, excel in the CXC and the IGCSE exam results. I will speak on that at a later stage. The school itself is a first-class school in Cayman Brac. The classes are small and children get very individual attention. I think much has to go to both you, Mr. Speaker, and the Honourable Minister from the Brac who are responsible for Cayman Brac and the upgrading of not only teaching/education facilities and quality, generally, in the education system.

Eighty-three individuals attended the workshops that were held. The topic was "Setting up Learning Centres at Pre-schools and Making them Work." Training for pre-school personnel continues to be a high priority because the Education Department and I have stressed (from the first Education policies that came out in the late 1970s) that the foundation has to be laid at the beginning in primary schools in pre-schools. I will talk at a later stage about a programme that will attempt to reach children from about 18 months up who may need further assistance.

Training of pre-school personnel continues to be a high priority and the Department has begun to work with the regional Pre-school Association to strengthen this area. The completed Cayman Islands Pre-school Curriculum Guide, which has been piloted in schools over the past few years, has now been refined and is ready for distribution to all pre-school teachers. That is quite a giant leap, because children who come into the primary school, if they have not had a good base in pre-school, they come in at a disadvantage and it makes things more difficult for teachers at the primary level to deal with children with ranging abilities.

A lot was said. Later on I will deal with one remark which was extremely unfortunate, and merely a vicious remark. Since 1976 until the present—because Education was my responsibility first in 1976—I have done everything within my power to develop education to give the children of this country a good education, and to ensure the safety and welfare and benefit of school children. There is nobody in this House, despite the remarks that were made, who can influence the people of this country in any other way. My heart is in education, and I have put 20-odd years of my life in improving the education system.

We will be seeing the beginning of the Lighthouse School this coming year. I would ask all Members here to please support the funds in there for it. They have a specialist architect from the United Kingdom who along with Government's architects has now reached a conceptual plan stage. Discussions have started with the teachers and the parents in relation to this school.

It is very important that this school be done right. And it is going to be expensive. There is no use in me standing here and saying otherwise. But we have to give the special children out there the opportunity to reach their full potential in life. The Lighthouse School, as well as the Sunrise Centre which is a very important part of this programme, along with the early intervention programme where we are now having specialists go into homes to reach children at a young age who may need help, are vital to the education system here.

I believe that we will get a first-class school. One of the most important things was that it be near a primary school. That has now been achieved after much political bantering and delay, which has obviously caused the children to suffer. At least at this stage the way seems clear to move ahead.

I will also be looking at legislation, liaising with the Minister in charge of labour as well as looking at the Education Law to ensure that treatment in the workplace and in society is fair and that the children with special needs are given an equal opportunity to compete within the extent of their abilities.

On the more long-range side, there has to come a time when we have residential facilities for the older special students, and this has to be looked at along with the Lighthouse School and the Sunrise Centre.

On the short-term, the Sunrise Centre has to be better located. While we are looking at a location for the present Lighthouse School facilities we have to simultaneously look at finding long-term alternative facilities for the Sunrise Centre. Many of the children are now growing up in the Lighthouse School and there has to be a continuation of the care and services that they need.

I recently met with some of the parents and teachers at the Lighthouse School and discussed a range of concerns they had. I gave them the assurance that I would continue to move rapidly toward solving the new Lighthouse School, as well as enhancing the early intervention programme, which will actually be within the Lighthouse School itself, and also the Sunrise Centre.

A press release recently showed that we have an onsite coordinator at the George Hicks, Des McConvey. His duty is, as he put it, to find extra ways to make things better. Site-based planning is about focusing on the school—its needs, its strengths, its image—working to overcome areas of weakness. Goals established by a team of parents, teachers and students give a clear direction toward creating a better learning and teaching environment.

He went on to talk about building name recognition for the schools. This is what site-based planning will develop. And different ways in which children can be acknowledged when they excel, ways in which they can be moved toward greater heights. Also to get more parents input, which I must say in just about all the schools, but especially in the George Hicks, has been very good and I thank them for that and I thank the teaching staff and the other staff at that school.

The position at present is that there is very little space in any school—either Government or private. The building programme that has been put in the Budget is very important to getting in place, which I hope we will have place, all of the classroom space that we need. It is ridiculous for someone to imply that the Ministry has considered not building schools and importing prefabricated classrooms. The money is in the Budget for the schools. And I will push to see that schools are built.

The cost—

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order.

POINT OF ORDER
(Misleading)

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, will you give way?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I'll give way if it's a point of order, sir. I am not giving way on a point of elucidation.

The Speaker: Is it a point of order?

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, it is a point of order.

The Speaker: Let me hear your point of order.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: As far as I know, I am the only Member who has mentioned the importation of prefabricated classrooms. So when the Minister says that it is ridiculous for someone to imply that the Ministry does not want to build facilities, the Minister is saying that I suggested that in my debate. I have the Hansards, Mr. Speaker. I am saying that that is misleading because I did not say that, nor did I imply that. I suggest that he withdraw it, because it is not true.

The Speaker: Do you have the Hansard? Read what was said.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: I will read it. At the point where he refers to the prefabricated classrooms, and I won't read all of it, it reads “. . . and I know that two hands and two feet couldn't count the number of times we have ... hooked-up in this House over the argument of public educational facilities. But the crowning statement is this: if come September 1999 we run out of space for the children, do you know what we are going to do? We are going to import pre-fabricated classrooms for the children.” [Hansard, 30 November 1998]

And just to explain, sir, the only time in that scenario that I mentioned the Ministry is where I was referring to the Minister's knowing the position in regard to the need for classrooms. I said: “The Department gives them the facts. The Ministry does projections. Now, the Minister may wish to say that he didn't know this was the situation but, unfortunately, the buck stops with him.” That is what I said, sir.

The Speaker: I am assuming that that is what they were going to have to do, bring in a prefab. You are not saying that you knew for a fact that the Ministry was intending to bring it in. Is that what you are explaining?

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: I made no reference to the Ministry bringing anything in. And the truth is, I knew about prefabricated classrooms because the Minister told me that! So he cannot imply what he is saying.

The Speaker: Honourable Minister, I do not have a copy of the Hansard, but as I understand it he is saying that would be the only solution you would have. Were you implying that he said that was the actual intention of the Ministry? He is saying that was not. So if you would just clear that point.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: He said the buck stops with me. What more can you do but imply that the buck stops with me—the decision is mine? Don't you understand it that way, sir?

The Speaker: I do. But what I am not clear on is the fact that he is saying that if the classrooms are not built you will have to put up prefabs.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, if I may, please.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: I said the buck stops with him. And he knows the buck stops with him. But that has nothing to do with the Ministry. All the Minister is doing when he uses the Queen's English—as is his style—is to twist it to appear like I am trying to castigate his Ministry—which I did not, sir. And that is what he is saying. And he must withdraw the statement because that is what he is saying. And if you get the Hansard you will understand that from what he said.

The Speaker: I don't want to bring this into a long debate. Are you now explaining that the prefab statement was, in your opinion, the only alternative? In your opinion that would be the only alternative. Am I understanding you correctly?

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, that is not what I was saying. I was being kind enough not to say that the Minister had told me that. I was simply saying, in just two lines, “if come September 1999 we run out of space for the children, do you know what we are going to do? We are going to import pre-fabricated classrooms for the children.” I wasn't suggesting anything more than what I said. But the reason I said that was because that was the explanation the Minister gave to me when I asked him what he was going to do about space. It had nothing to do with the Ministry. And that is what he is implying. And it is misleading and it is everything else that isn't right.

The Speaker: This is complicated. I am going to have to get both Hansards. So I will defer my decision on that. Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning, please continue and I will give a decision on this point of order later.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I would just ask you to consider which buck stops with me when you are referring to prefab classrooms.

The results of the schools in this country speak for themselves. Nineteen students on Grand Cayman and Cayman Brac achieved eight higher-level passes in Caribbean Secondary Examinations Certificate, and ITCSE, GCSC exams that were taken this June. Eighteen John Gray High School students, and one student from Cayman Brac High School passed eight subjects with grades of 1, 2, or 3 (the new CXE equivalent of other exam boards grades A, B, and C).

Prior to this only one student from John Gray achieved eight such passes. I want to stress those results. Eighteen students (well, nineteen students in total) passed eight subjects with grades 1, 2, or 3 compared to one student last year who had eight such passes. That is outstanding.

The schools in this country have topped the Caribbean Examinations Council's Exams year after year. It speaks for itself and there is nothing the Fourth Elected Member for George Town, or the First Elected Member for George Town, or the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town can say in their effort to criticise the school system.

We have a good school system. The results are there. They may not want to believe it, Mr. Speaker—

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order.

POINT OF ORDER

The Speaker: Let me hear your point of order.

Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: What the Minister just said was that the Fourth Elected Member for George Town, the First Elected Member for George Town, and the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town made efforts to criticise the school system. Mr. Speaker, that is not true.

If the Minister is saying that he must substantiate it, otherwise withdraw the statement. None of us said anything to criticise the system. And he just made that statement, sir. If he is going to stick with that statement he must prove it, otherwise he must withdraw it.

The Speaker: I am really not understanding. Honourable Minister for Education, again, I need to refer to the Hansards to get the exact interpretation.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, if you wish to stop this often, I can go back and spend a lot of time going through their speeches. But, there is no one in this House who can tell me that there was no criticism of the education system. If I have to go back and look it up, I guess I will have to. But it's going to take time. I would rather get on with this if they would just let me get on with what I have to say.

The Speaker: I think it would be best to suspend proceedings at this time, whereby you can get some additional information. We shall suspend for 15 minutes, and I will make a ruling on this point of order later.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.23 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12.05 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. When we took the break I said that at the conclusion of the break I would rule on the points of order. I shall now do so.

SPEAKER'S RULING

On Point of Order raised by the First Elected Member for George Town

FIRST RULING

The Speaker: Reading from the Hansard [2 December 1998] the Honourable Minister for Education made this statement: "It is ridiculous for someone to imply that the Ministry has considered not building schools and importing prefabricated classrooms. The money is in the Budget for the schools and I will push to see that schools are built." That's a part of the statement. I consider that a statement of fact.

The First Elected Member for George Town rose on a point of order saying that it was not correct, referring to the Hansard of 30 November 1998 wherein he stated, "if come September 1999 we run out of space for the children, do you know what we are going to do? We are going to import prefabricated classrooms for the children." That is a statement he is making.

"And just to explain, sir, the only time in that scenario that I mentioned the Ministry is where I was referring to the Minister's knowing the position in regard to the need for classrooms. I said: 'The Department gives them the facts. The Ministry does projections. Now, the Minister may wish to say that he didn't know this was the situation but, unfortunately, the buck stops with him.'"

Going back to it, I think it is very clear that the Minister, in his just right, corrected what he thought was a misstatement, saying that it was not the intention and defending the policy of the Education Department and Government . . . that it was not being considered. It is a fact that money is in the Budget for the construction of school buildings.

Therefore, taking the all of this into consideration, I think he was right to correct something that he interpreted as being incorrect. Therefore, it is not a point of order.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

SECOND RULING

The Speaker: The other point of order referred to the Honourable Minister's statement referring to the good results of the passes, "This is outstanding. The schools in this country have topped the Caribbean Examinations Council's examinations year after year. It speaks for itself and there is nothing that the Fourth Elected Member for George Town, or the First Elected Member for George Town, or the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, can say in their efforts to criticise the school system." And I emphasise the word system.

"We have a good school system. The results are there. They may not want to believe it, Mr Speaker. . ."

The First Elected Member for George Town rose on a point of order saying the following: "What the Minister just said was that the Fourth Elected Member for George Town, the First Elected Member for George Town, and the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, made efforts to criticise the school system. Mr Speaker, that is not true and if the Minister is saying that he must substantiate it, otherwise withdraw the statement. None of us said anything to criticise the system." Again, I emphasise the word system.

"And he just made the statement, sir. If he is going to stick with that statement he must prove it, otherwise he must withdraw it."

If you refer to a dictionary, the definition of 'system' is "a group of interacting elements functioning as a complex whole." When you referred to the education system you refer to the whole complex thing—the buildings, the plant, the teachers, the students, the parents, the Parent Teachers Association, and all within it making up the system. When any part of that is attacked it is a criticism of the school system. Therefore, it is not a point of order.

Please continue, Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, on a point of clarification. Are you saying that the Minister is considered a part of the school system? Or is he part of the political system?

The Speaker: He is the Minister responsible for Education, and, as such, he is an integral part of the education system. That would be my interpretation.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, so on a point of clarification, if I criticise the Minister at any time, would it mean that I was criticising the school system?

The Speaker: We are not going to continue this debate. The system is what was in question. I have made my ruling. Please continue Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The results that I was speaking of clearly show that this year nineteen students received eight subjects in CXE compared to one last year. This is outstanding. Overall the students turned out a very strong performance. If you look at the results, 892 papers were sat at all levels in Grand Cayman and Cay-man Brac, and 38% posted grades I and II. So 38% were in a very high bracket of grades.

Thirty-five percent were awarded grade 3, which is a passing grade; and 27% earned grades IV and V, and no students received a grade VI. This is very important because the calibre of our students has continued to be at a very high level, with 73% passing with grades 1, 2, and 3. This is outstanding.

The results have covered very wide areas, and I would like to go into this because many times in here it is levelled that there is not sufficient technical/vocational education. A lot has been done in this area. The subjects of art, building technology, electricity, electronics, English language, English literature, food and nutrition, geography, history, information technology, math, office procedures, principles of business, social studies, Spanish, technical drawing, and wood were the subjects in which over three-quarters of the local candidates achieved grades 1 to 3. Other exams included biology, bookkeeping principles of accounting and typewriting.

In addition, the students showed very high levels of performance in religious education, child development, drama, physics, chemistry, and music which were administered through the United Kingdom Examination Boards, mainly the International GCSE.

I must thank the teachers in all schools, but especially the Principal of John Gray, Mrs. Nyda Flatley, and her staff for these outstanding results.

On Cayman Brac two honour students, Carol Britton and Stephen Ryan, led a Year group of 19 students. This is very outstanding for Cayman Brac. Carol gained eight subjects, and Stephen seven higher level passes. The Brac students excelled. I would like to thank the Principal there as well as all of the staff who were involved.

I would just like to read what the Caymanian Compass stated in an article on the 5th of November: "Students from the Cayman Islands government schools have once again scored better than most of their regional counterparts in this year's CXC exams."

"The percentage of Cayman pupils awarded grade I and II marks for their CXCs outstripped the regional percentage in the majority of subjects taken, some by a considerable margin."

"Cayman's results in art subjects were strong across the board. In English language at general level, 27% of Cayman's 124 entries, got a grade I's."

There is always this criticism, and quite rightly, that we have to teach the three R's. And there are some who do not succeed, obviously. I am sure that happens in every society. But in English level, a general level, 27% of Cayman's 124 entries got grade 1, and 18.5% were awarded grade 2. So that is about 45.5% of the 124 entries in English who received very good passes, and half of them excellent passes. The results speak for themselves.

One other area I would like to just touch on is, again, an article from the Caymanian Compass which says, "College principal, Mr. Sam Basdeo [and that's the Community College], was pleased to report yesterday that the number of individuals who signed up for year long certificate courses this year had jumped from last year's low 57 students to 86. That is a rise of just over 50%.” I listed those on Monday. But the certificate programmes are offered in seven vocational areas: construction, electrical installation, hotel operations, professional cookery, accounting, computing, and nursing.

To go on next to deal with scholarships, we have continued to give scholarships to any student who meets the requirement for entry into an accredited school. At present we have 121 students away on scholarships. This year, as you know, the Education Council granted a further 37 new scholarships. We will be seeing $1,471,060 going into scholarships. And this is money well spent.

We have always given full scholarships to teachers and nurses especially. Sometimes students also have student loans, which come from a different source. This also helps the students with their studying.

We are now extending to include an area that is much needed to allow scholarships for master's degree and also as was done in the past, but on a more liberal basis, the first three years of the pre-med. We have been giving scholarships for master's degrees where it was necessary to the profession, for example the extra year in psychology or professional accounting.

So this extension, along with the granting of local scholarships to the Community College, ICCI, and the Law School, will do two things: First, it keeps our young people in the islands for the first two years; then we are able to grant them the extra two years that are needed at a good college or university abroad.

The Community College has done a remarkable job, and I mentioned this on Monday, in establishing its associate degree. We have seen that there are actually universities in the United States that are rated highly competitive that accept the credits of the Community College. So, within the area of scholarships, we have done everything that we possibly can to assist our students. And, not only that, there is a follow up when they come back.

I have consistently pressed for . . . in fact the National Team's Manifesto states that something needs to be done to ensure that students coming back with degrees are paid a better salary than they are presently getting. We are losing a lot of very good students (well, not students, because they are then professionals). We are losing a lot of very good professionals who could be in Government and they have many times gone into the private sector. I am not saying that that is bad. That is good too. But it would be good to be able to attract them and keep them within Government because if Government doesn't function then the private sector will suffer. So it is in the private sector's interest to ensure that Government continues to function properly with the necessary staff.

The only other area that I would like to give bit of detail on is to show what it costs Government to run the schools. The 1997 figures showed recurrent expenditure of $21.1 million, and capital and capital acquisitions of $3.4 million for a total of $24.5 million that was spent. This averages roughly $2,705 per student in the primary schools (some are more, some are less), to $4,909 as the 1997 operating cost per student in the John Gray High School, with a little less at the George Hicks. This is a lot of money. Education is and remains free to all Caymanians in the three islands.

The cost in relation to transport averages at about $376 per child per annum. And the cost on books per annum ranges from $90 in Year 1, to $353 per annum in the High School. There has been an increase on the book rental fees and there has been a proposed increase on the non-Caymanian students. But what I would like to point out is that the increase is considerably less than the cost in both cases. So books are continuing to be subsidised even at the new cost, and non-Caymanian students are still being subsidised.

But the important point is one that has always existed—not with just this Government but with previous Governments—if there is a Caymanian mother with, let's say, several children who needs help with these fees, or on anything relating to the school, we have done everything in there from providing free breakfast and lunch at times where children cannot afford it. The welfare of the child is what is important.

It should not be looked at that these fees will hurt persons who may not be able to afford them. If that is the case, then it will be looked at. But the children will go to school; they will get their books. If they need meals, as happens quite extensively at some schools, then they will be given meals. But the children will be looked after and the fees that are being put here are small.

I go back to the cost in education. It is high. But a wise man once said, "If you think education is expensive, try ignorance." That sums up the justification for continuing a good education system. We have very high literacy in the Cayman Islands, and in the school system as I have shown by external examinations. This is not just Truman saying this. This is coming from external examiners in the United Kingdom and in the Caribbean where we have excelled time and again, not only in academics, but also in the vocational and technical subjects. I will continue to do everything I can to promote education.

The Caymanian Compass on 24th November 1998 wrote an editorial that I intend to frame. We normally get a lot of criticism levelled at us. Not very often does a politician get any praise or thanks. It is captioned "A quiet revolution." It said, "Last month with very little fanfare, reports on three local schools assembled by the School's Inspectorate were released to the public."

"The inspectorate, a wholly independent branch of the Ministry of Education, came into operation in 1997, its job to monitor and report on educational standards in Cayman. The publication of the Inspectorate's first three reports, for distribution to the schools and parents, is a highly significant moment in the history of education in the islands."

"The ministry had a choice to publish or not, and, to its great credit, chose to do so. Going public with the strengths and weaknesses of local schools is an admirably positive step towards transparency and accountability within the education system. It has meant that, for the first time ever, objective and independent assessments of standards at local schools are available to parents. That is information that all parents and guardians in every country deserve—or perhaps have the right—to have, but too often do not.

“Publication of the reports establishes the honesty of the Ministry of Education, gives much credibility to its stated aim of raising educational standards, and encourages trust between the Ministry and parents.

“Now the reports have been published, the schools are using their own self-assessment reports in conjunction with the Inspectorate reports to produce action plans. The purpose of these will be to bolster areas which have been identified as weak. The Inspectorate is to monitor the implementation of the action plans, and each school will continue to evaluate its own work on a regular basis.

“If staff at the schools concerned can remain motivated to see through their action plans in the coming months, it seems likely that real improvement in standards will quickly follow.

“It remains to congratulate the Inspectorate staff for carrying out its mandate with such thoroughness and professionalism. The inspectorate reports—detailed, concise, and objective as they are—provide an extremely valuable framework for upgrading the quality of education in the Cayman Islands.”

That, I must say, has been possibly one of the best accolades that I have ever gotten from the press. I get this at times from the parents. I must say that there are parents out there who genuinely appreciate the efforts we have made in education, and they thank me at times. I appreciate that. So there can be no doubt at all that the education system—all components of it in this country—is good. There are improvements. We must push on and get those improvements and we must continue to develop it. It must continue to grow.

But it is open, it is transparent; it has been assessed both internally and externally and it has come up to the highest marks. As I said a bit earlier, if we think that education is expensive, try ignorance. Perhaps we should add to that try arrogance as well, because there is not much difference between the two.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to just touch on a few short areas before the lunch break, before I go into some of the longer areas.

The Civil Aviation Authority has continued to function well. It is well staffed. I would like to thank the staff there. My Ministry will be transferring to the Ministry of Agriculture the Weather Department of the aviation side, as well as transferring the AIDB. I guess I am lucky in that regard because I have nothing being transferred to me. But the aspect of the Weather Station has worked well. It has proved its worth here in the recent hurricane that, thank God, did not hit us.

The improvements made by the Minister for Tourism at the airport have been very good. They have really assisted with processing air arrivals at the airport. There is always room for improvement, and at some stage extensions will have to come about. Extension to the airport and the turning circles for the newer 777s (larger jets) are underway.

We have seen increased traffic. The Honourable Minister stated that there was over 7% increase in tourism this year. This is moving well up. . . . Well, 6.7%, nearly 7% increase this year. It is important that the arrival and departure lounges at the airport are kept in good repair and sufficient.

Mr. Speaker, I was wondering what time you would like to suspend. I was going to begin with the economy, and that is a fairly long subject.

The Speaker: If this is a convenient time, we could suspend for lunch.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you.

The Speaker: We shall suspend until 2.15 PM.

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.27 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Debate continues with the Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you.

The economy of Cayman is in a good state. The accounts presented to this Honourable House, the Estimates of Revenue and Expenditure, clearly bear this out. There is very clearly a surplus, which is set out in Table 1 of the accounts, on page 1 (Summary of the 1999 Estimates of Revenue and Expenditure).

The recurrent revenue is $282.57 million. The recurrent expenditure is $237.29 million. So the difference between the recurrent revenue and recurrent expenditure (in other words, the surplus before the statutory expenditure) is in the area of $45 million. When you take off the statutory expenditure (which is the pensions, the payment to the public debt, and the self-financing debt) then we are left with paragraph (c), which says, “Accumulated surplus before contributions $22.1 million.”

There can be no doubt that there is a balanced budget, a budget which has an accumulated surplus. And this is clearly set out in the accounts. From that, contributions to the reserve fund are deducted, which is about $1 million, and what is being paid to pensions which is a very heavy amount being paid for past pensions of $9.66 million. I will deal with that later.

So the accumulated surplus after all recurrent, including the statutory, the pensions, and everything comes out, is still a surplus of $11.1 million that then goes toward capital acquisitions and capital expenditure such as schools and roads.

The accounts speak for themselves. Paragraph (c) shows an accumulated surplus before contributions of $22 million, and after contributions of $11 million. So there is a surplus of $11 million that will go towards paying the capital expenditure. And that is after putting approximately $11 million into pension reserves and general reserves.

I would like to mention that in past Governments, including Governments that I was in, the pension reserve was never built up. That is something that we have to acknowledge. It was always just relied on to pay for out of the recurrent revenue. So a very large deficit had built up in a backlog that would have been needed for pensions.

Instead of taking the $10 million that past Governments (including Governments I was in would have done) put in the general reserve, or using that to pay for capital works such as schools or roads, whatever, we have chosen . . . and I think I am right in saying that we are the first Government to have done this. When we came in about six years ago the pension reserve was somewhere in the area of maybe $6 million or $7 million and we have consistently put large sums in it until it reached $36 million in 1998. It is going to rise by another $9.6 million. So in 1999 it should be reaching in the area of $45 million.

That is clear money. It is a reserve that is earmarked for pensions, and that will have to go on for another eight years until the backlog of 50 years of pensions that have not been provided for will have built up.

It could well have been that instead of putting $9.66 million into reserve for pensions we could have put it into a general reserve. But if the general reserve was needed to pay pensions it would obviously have to be used. So it has to be looked at from the point of view that Government is prudent in providing for contingencies such as pensions, as we are doing here.

We have also continued to put $1 million into general reserves. That is building up. In 1998 it was $10.5 million. We are now putting in another $1.33 million, which $1 million goes in general reserves. So that has built up to $11.5 million into next year and, with interest, will probably reach $12 million. So the general reserve is coming up. But most important is the fact that a contingent liability . . . in fact I think the liability was $90 million for pensions. We are now funding it by putting in $10 million this year alone.

Also in this is the increase from 4% to 6% of pensionable salaries and wages going to the civil service. In the 1999 Budget there is an additional $3.2 million contribution towards the past service liability of the pensions fund. So money is being put aside for a rainy day and the total of the two reserves, the general and the pension, at the end of this year will probably be in the area of $50 million in total. That is the general reserve and the pension reserve.

I hear sounds, Mr. Speaker. I am reading from the Financial Secretary's place here showing the two reserves. One is $36 million at the end of 1998, and we are adding another $9.6 million to it. That brings it up to $45 million. I know that this is something that perhaps some Members do not want to hear, but these are the facts.

The Financial Secretary said, "Honourable Members should note that the Fund's balance [meaning the Public Service pension fund] was $29.5 million at year-end 1997 and is expected to reach $36 million by the end of 1998." That is also . . . well, it's the reserves for pensions. There is a general reserve fund that he said is expected to rise to $10.5 million by year-end, we are adding another $1 million to it. It will be $11.5 million. Together the two of those add up to $55 million, $56 million.

So the fund—which is free funds—the Public Service Pension Fund, which is free funds, to pay for a past contingent liability is an obligation of this Government which it must pay, not just this Government, every future Government, over a period of time. Unless the money is put in those funds or reserves, or whatever you want to call them, then there cannot be payments out for future pensions by future Governments.

In other words, what has happened is in the past, until this Government came in—and this is a fact—nothing except a pittance was put into the Public Service Pension Fund. I don't know what the exact amount was, but I believe it was in the area of $5 million or $6 million when we took over. That will now have moved to where it is in the area of $45 million. As I said, that is money that we could have put into a general reserve and continued to owe, as past Governments have done.

It's a change of bookkeeping, it is moving more towards the accrual system. The accrued liability is being offset by a reserve.

This country has helped young people under the guaranteed home mortgage scheme, and we are now building up reserves, or funds (whatever you want to call them) in relation to . . . in fact, they are called "reserve funds." That is how interchangeable the words are! The Financial Secretary said, "Mr Speaker, it is worth noting that the 1999 Budget includes $100,000 towards the establishment of a Student Loan Reserve Fund that would work along similar lines as the Housing Reserve Fund."

From what I can remember, the lines of credit on loans to young people—the scheme which this Government has produced—this Government has stood behind it. And, with all due respect, the First Elected Member for West Bay pushed hard to put this in place, along with all other Members of this House, but it was under his Ministry at the time. It is the scheme for young people to get a loan up to 100%, the upper layer of 35% of which is guaranteed by the Government. So getting a home is made possible for young people who otherwise would not be able to get a loan for that amount.

They may have to put down the deposit of 20% to 30%. I believe that those young people appreciate that. It is a scheme that we have to continue to support and it will be coming to this House for further guarantee facilities in the future.

The Budget that is going forward now carries with it a contribution towards capital of $11.1 million. And into that there is some borrowing which at present stands at $19.15 million, which is projected. The position in relation to capital is like anything else. If we go to build a house or a building for our business, we get a loan over a period of time. Government is no different. If Government is going to build roads, schools, civic centres, whatever, then it has to follow a similar process. But it has to be done within specific, prudent guidelines.

I can clearly show, as did the Minister for Tourism, very clearly, that the borrowing and the servicing of that borrowing by this Government is over prudent. If it weren't, we wouldn't have a line of credit out there with the banks, I can tell you. Some time back, the former Government could not borrow for the Cayman Airways loan of $20 million. So when Government's credit gets bad banks won't lend to it. That's the first principle.

This year we will pay towards public debt $17.25 million as set out in Table 1. That is made up of interest and principal. There is a borrowing of $19.15 million. So, the total amount being borrowed this year has to be looked at and offset by the repayments of principal and those netted out.

As I said earlier, if you are going to build a house you go and get a loan. I don't think there is any one person in this Honourable House who has built a house out of their one-year's salary and paid all of their other expenses.

[inaudible comments]

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Not even me! (I hear from across the room.) I borrowed for my house. Of course I did. You borrow the money and then pay it back over a period of time. Government is the same. There is not one Member in this House who has a home—at least I don't believe so—who can say they went out and paid 'X' thousand dollars out of their salary for that year and paid all their other bills and bought their house in one year.

Everyone has to borrow. That is the principle I am coming to because criticism has been levelled at borrowing for capital. That is not a problem. Borrowing when you have an asset—a school, an office building a road or whatever, is a clearly accepted principle.

Where the problem comes is if you have to borrow to pay for your recurrent expenditure. Thank God, that that has never happened in this country except in two years when there was a deficit in recurrent revenue of $1.2 million and $3.6 million. All I will say on that (because I don't want any controversy) is that it wasn't when I was in Government—only two years that this country has never had a balanced budget on the recurrent side.

Every other year, at least going back as far as this goes, there has been a surplus as there is this year—as there was last year, as there was the year before, and the year before, and the year before. When you worry is when you have to borrow, as an individual would, to pay for rent, or to pay for one's living expenses and that sort of thing. If you are borrowing for capital then you are living within your means. And we are within our means by $11.1 million because that is being contributed towards capital acquisitions, capital development and new services.

It is obvious that if we are going to get the necessary schools, roads and other things that are needed, then prudent borrowing has to be there. What are the guidelines to prudent borrowing? These were clearly set out by the Honourable Financial Secretary when he said (and I am paraphrasing), “. . . total public debt service (principal and interest) remains at 7.2% of 1998 forecasted recurrent revenue which is below the internationally accepted 10% upper limit established by the Government.”

We accept that if the servicing and payment of our outstanding loans go over 10% then that is time to worry.

At present, it is way under that. Even more important, most of those, . . . well, I can't say most, but many of the loans are medium-term loans. They are not long-term loans so we are paying on loans that may be eight or ten years instead of paying for 20 or 25 years. Which means that our repayments are far higher, but the debt will be serviced quicker.

I took that prudent approach even with Cayman Airways; the first jet is being bought on a loan that is for five years. We could have put it ten years, fifteen years, paid half the amount or a third less, whatever, but we chose to borrow commercially, so to speak, and that has increased the servicing of it. But it is still low. It is 7.2% in 1998, and what the Minister for Tourism mentioned is that it will be in that area next year in the 1999 forecast of what is being borrowed.

We see that Government is following a prudent course. I listened a bit last night to the NCVO. And in a country where you raise $73,000, in a country where the public gives the way they have in that area and other areas as well, the economy is good. There can be no doubt that the economy in this country is good. The Financial Secretary has said that, and I will quote a few sections in due course.

We have some problems on the horizon that we have to be careful with, but what I can say is that the finances of the country are sound. There is no doubt about that. The Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD) is a matter that has to be given careful attention. I believe that it has to be approached vigorously, and carefully because we are dealing with the largest nations of the world—the United Kingdom, United States, Japan, European countries and most of the other countries.

I was happy to be a part of the group that went to the United Kingdom along with the Honourable Financial Secretary, the Minister for Tourism, and the Third Elected Member for George Town. (There were others there as well I can't name everyone.) Those who are in this House and the others performed well. We were able to see firsthand that the problem, while it is one that is worrying, is one that if handled correctly can be managed.

The Members asked questions (all Members) and obviously handled matters in the type of environment that is accepted at the international level. It was good to have the Third Elected Member for George Town in that group and he contributed considerably to both the preparation and in the questioning that went on.

Since there is a bit of laughing over there, I will throw in a bit of a funny one as well. I looked at a television programme with the Fourth Elected Member for George Town as he went on to discuss the OECD. That honourable Member could not even get the initials of OECD right, and stumbled around and called it (I wouldn't say this) different initials. I thought to myself, How in the world could you have that type of blundering inside of an international forum, with countries such as the United Kingdom or representatives from the United States or Germany there? There is quite a contrast in professionalism between him and his colleague, the Third Elected Member for George Town, and his performance at the OECD.

Hon. Truman M. Boddan: Mr. Speaker, the one thing I do have is experience, relevant qualifications, and ambition, which is something that I have never lacked in my life. I have always worked and I continue to work day and night . . . well, I will get out of this, Mr. Speaker. I see what is happening across the floor. I am getting pulled down a little bit. Let me get back to the high level.

When this country sends representatives to talk in an international forum, it needs to have people making up that team (which I was very happy was there when we went to the OECD) who have the intelligence and the ability, and also the professionalism internationally. It's a different thing than coming in here talking about OECD, this thing and the next. It's a different atmosphere when you are facing some of the best attorneys or accountants, or specialists from the United Kingdom, or the United States or Germany, wherever.

This country has to ensure that the people they send to international negotiations have the ability, the manners—because it takes a lot of good manners in that type of forum—and also that they have the interest of the country at heart. One mistake at an international forum or one mistake in a matter where you are dealing with some of the G7 or OECD measures could mean a very serious cost to this country. And it is not a place for people to take it lightly. It takes a lot of preparation. It takes a lot of skill. That is what I am saying. It is important with this matter that we get it right.

The one thing that could damage the economy of this country most, and the single-most dangerous element that could damage this economy is any attempt to alter the stability of this country by advancing the constitution of the Cayman Islands. This country began in its offshore business when the Bahamas went independent. A lot of business moved from there to here.

We saw the shudders that went through the business world with the referendum in Bermuda on constitutional advancement. The one thing that can hurt this country internationally, and I have said this time and time again, is any move to advance the constitution of the Cayman Islands. Things are working well as they are at present. We have a lot of competition out there, the Bahamas is back, Bermuda is there, the British Virgin Islands, and it is very important that the people of this country do not allow instability to come in as a result of tampering with the constitution of the Cayman Islands.

In my view, nothing will send as bad a message to the investors in this country or to the banks, the funds, the insurance companies, than the belief that the Cayman Islands is getting ready for constitutional advancement. I pray that that will never happen. It is important for us to accept that nothing is perfect. God knows the constitution is not totally perfect. But it serves the country well. The country has done well with it. We are stable. To remain that way the constitution must remain.

We have heard a fair amount about the increases relating to liquor. I dealt with that relating to my own area, the school fees. But these and the 10% increases on permits are, in my view, reasonable. A substantial part of the eleven-point-something million dollars is actually increases in exempt and ordinary companies, non-resident, which will not affect Caymanians as such. This will be taken up by the offshore.

I have just one other area before I read more from the Budget [Address], because a lot of very good information has been set out in that. I would like to just say that while there has been criticism in relation to the country's finances, the fact is that Members press to get certain capital work done. Yet, on the other hand, there are some Members who say you must build a road, but you can't borrow the money. That is ludicrous.

If we are to do capital works, you can't have a person saying on one hand you can't borrow the money you must pay for everything out of this year's revenue—which is impossible (and I gave the example of a person buying a house getting a loan and not paying it out of one year's salary)—and on the other hand saying you must do this. With privilege goes responsibility. And provided that what is being done is reasonable, and I submit that what we have put forward, what the Minister for Tourism has put forward with the $50 million over two years, a two-year programme, is reasonable.

I will say here again that a lot could have been done this year if the Budget had not have been held up. I am asking Members of this House to try to get the Budget through within a reasonable time because it means schools, roads, other capital works. Until the Budget is cleared, the Financial Secretary cannot authorise spending. As we know, it ran well into the middle of the year when there was still controversy over the Budget. There are important programmes there and we need to get on with them. It is important that it does not get bogged down in politics and hurt the people of these islands as a result.

I would like to go on to deal briefly with Cayman Airways. Luckily, not very much has been levelled at it this time. But a lot was said about what was owed to the Civil Aviation Authority in a question that I answered. I actually have a list of some of these amounts which the Government also owes Cayman Airways, some of the departments are heavy. In fact, the Civil Aviation Authority owes Cayman Airways $87,000, some departments up to $92,000. So, on the side of Cayman Airways I would say that it looks as if this seems to be going both ways, each side is offsetting the other.

What is important with Cayman Airways is that the subsidy of $4 million, and I agree that there was the $600,000 or $700,000 for the advertising and PR, but the subsidy for Cayman Airways has remained at $4 million for six years. I think that says a lot because the price of travel has gone up. It is done to assist the Cayman Islands on a loss basis, I would say. The million dollars from last year that was given to pay for the past debts on which Cayman Airways pays the interest (that's probably some $16 million or $17 million remaining) is not in this year for Cayman Airways.

We are looking at getting the third jet. The close to $3 million a year being paid in rental for the two jets is coming back to Government and going into Government's leasing companies. They are building up equity in the two jets. That is something that since the sale back in the early 1990s of the 727-200s has not been done. It is a prudent approach that is being taken to finances.

In some years in the past over $12 million was paid out in pure rental fees. If that had come to Government the way these payments are coming to Government, then we would have been better off.

There seems to be confusion around the legal reasoning for having the leasing companies as separate companies from Cayman Airways. It just seems to create more and more confusion at many levels. As much as I have tried over the past few years to explain this, I think I have just about given up on trying to explain it. It has probably gone towards reducing the reason for which the legal framework of the separate companies was set up. And at some stage that will be looked at in some depth because if it's not going to be understood, if it's not going to work, if it's going to damage them there is an alternative to it.

I would like to thank the staff, the managing director, the board of directors of Cayman Airways. They have put in a lot of hard work and some very long hours. We have very good staff there, and I would like to thank them all for a job well done. The airline has now contained its losses. If the rental being paid to Government on the jets had been put in the capital rather than in the profit and loss of Cayman Airways' balance sheet, then the bottom line would have been a lot better. But we write off the full amount of the leases, as well as the reserves. And the reserves go towards increasing the value of the plane considerably, probably another million dollars in reserves, I would think, probably $4 million in total that is paid to Government that would go into increasing the value of Cayman Airways' balance sheet.

Especially important has been the reliance that had to be placed on Cayman Airways during the recent passing of hurricane Mitch. I think the Ministry of Tourism together with Cayman Airways and my Ministry really did a superb job in flying tourists out of here. It is perhaps the one time that the harsh reality of being able to rely on your own airline in a time of crises is so important. We did not get the help, and I do not expect that in the future we will get much help, from the American airlines or Air Jamaica. They are not national airlines, they fly elsewhere. So Cayman Airways will continue to be the backbone of any type of airlift such as that.

If indeed a heavy hurricane was coming here, it would have been very important, as it was even with a near miss, to have airlifted people out of this country. It does a lot to advance tourism, which is a mainstay of this country. In fact, Cayman Airways and its Sir Turtle emblem are known worldwide and it is good knowing that Cayman Airways is there. Out of the total Budget, the subsidy that goes in there has remained the same for the last six years.

I would like to clear one statement made by the First Elected Member for George Town relating to fire in schools and the lives of children. I must tell you that I never thought that I would have had allegations like that, because the one thing I have always done . . . and God forbid, I would never put anybody's life, even an elderly person's, in any risk. So I would like to explain what went on in the schools because I must tell you that I was astounded by the allegations on this. I really was.

However, the public of this country knows me and knows that I have always been for whatever in relation to what I can do to ensure safety not only in schools but throughout the island and also in the airline.

Prior to the introduction of the new fire code and the new building code, both of which were introduced by this Government, the schools followed a fire safety code as a guideline. This was followed. Since the codes were introduced we have ensured that we have upgraded the fire systems in all schools. There was one area of controversy (and I don't know if this could have been in anybody's mind) where there was talk about having two doors in each classroom. That is not what the fire code says. I would like to just read this. It is from the Director of Planning. He says, "Further to your enquiry I can confirm that egress from a classroom with an occupant load of less than 50 people with a maximum travel distance of 75 feet required one means of egress." Okay? Our classrooms don't go to 50; our classrooms are not within this code.

I don't know if that might have sparked it or not, but we have continued to upgrade and I will continue to upgrade all the schools, not just within the area of fire. I would never, and I know the public of this country believes that I would never put a child's life in jeopardy. That is something that I would never do in my life. I have two children myself. That whole thing, I must say, upset me to even think that allegations like that could be made. I guess politics has its hard knocks sometimes, but . . .

We have seen clearly that a lot has been done in the past five or six years. We have seen several school buildings that have been built, such as the Red Bay Primary, we've built in West Bay, and we've built in George Town. We have also seen good projects. And I was very impressed, I must say, with the Pedro Castle project when I went there. I haven't been there in a very long time but I have been there two or three times recently.

The George Town Hospital, the Minister responsible has done a sterling job there in his own quiet way. He is one of the most capable, competent and able people. He moves steadily forward and gets his work done. And that is what is important at the end of the day. Rather than a lot of talk, it is what people do. I guess sometimes not everyone has the ability to just push on with a very difficult job because that whole hospital system was very controversial and he took it and moved forward.

Not only that (and this is to the benefit to the MLAs and the districts as well) we have seen medical clinics in Bodden Town, East End, West Bay and North Side. We have a very good hospital in Cayman Brac, an extremely good hospital there now which has been there for some time.

We have also seen a lot of sports areas where money has been spent, places like the Post Office at the Airport, which is a superb facility.

The MRCU, Department of Environment Building, Civic Centre at Gun Bay, property bought for the public beach in West Bay, Scholar's Park, Heritage Village, West Bay; Agricultural Building, Agricultural Pavilion, and then some of the larger blocks that have been done at the schools at George Hicks such as the arts, computer, changing rooms there. A lot has been done over the past few years and it has been done by a very large contribution of surplus from the recurrent revenue to pay for capital over the years.

I venture to say that there is no other time in the history of this country where we have seen such a period of controlled growth, of success in many areas. We have basically wiped out unemployment. Now, those who want to work, and who have the ambition to work, can get jobs. We have seen our people move up, both in education and in their jobs. This all goes towards what is a good economy. There is no one who can challenge that.

I have listened to a lot of debate by the Opposition Backbench. But no solutions have come from them, and in life that is important. I don't mind criticism. But what should constructively be done, the alternative solutions to problems, should be put up. It is a situation where talk is cheap, but actions speak louder than words.

At this stage we have seen no alternative solutions to anything in this Budget that we have put forward, and I mean major parts of it. There is no alternative to say how we can build schools without borrowing money. There is no alternative to say how we can build roads unless we have money for it. There is no alternative put forward to the small amount of taxes.

Mr. Speaker, let me just say this: What was raised in relation to 1991 it was over $10 million put on then which in real terms now would be as if we had put on $30 million or $40 million in taxes. So this is not an extensive, crushing amount of taxes that have been put on now. The Budget back in those days was probably only $100 million, so it was in the area of 10% of it. And this was the area, the excessiveness of taxes in those times that I criticised, and I think I was right in my criticism of it.

At present, the $10 million is approximately 1/27th of the Budget. So it is a very small percentage, maybe 3% or 4%, I don't know, of the total budget of the country. But as the Minister for Health said, we cannot expect to run the Government and have the money if, for example, $20-odd million is owed to the hospital. If schooling is going to be free—as it is—then we have to pay for it.

But criticising for the sake of criticising doesn't get us anywhere. What this House needs to do, because I heard certain ultimatums passed out by some Members of the Opposition, and I believe that some of that is going to be similar to what happened last year and it is going to slow down this process which means the Budget is going to be locked in for months and months the way it was last year . . . but the public knows who did that and they know who didn't get the capital done and who suffered.

The Speaker: Pardon me a moment. Would you rather take the break now?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Yes, sir, I'd rather take a break.

The Speaker: We shall suspend for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.28 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 3.58 PM

The Speaker: Proceedings are resumed. Debate on the Appropriation (1999) Bill, 1988 continuing. The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I would like to list some of the main projects that are in the Budget for this coming year (1999). There is $3.5 million for a new primary school for the George Town area, and $20,000 for the second primary school's design; $80,000 for the new secondary school design and plans; the programme which will substantially complete the air conditioning of the school classrooms is in at $800,000.

There are upgrades throughout to walkways, refurbishing of works, storerooms, fire systems, and a lot of minor works that would go on in the early part of the year and this relates to both Grand Cayman and Cayman Brac.

The art block and changing rooms at the George Hicks have been completed; there, there is $420,000 for George Hicks for the administration building, the extension and alterations, the converting of the hall to the cafeteria with the new kitchen $700,000; design work for new library block. There is a new renovations programme. There is $1.5 million in for West Bay's Primary School multi-purpose hall; and $315,000 for renovations at the West Bay Primary.

There is money in for renovations at Savannah Primary School, also for the storage facility renovations. At the Bodden Town Primary School there is a substantial sum in for new renovations $235,000. The final payment for the bus shelter is in. There is money in for the new classroom block at the East End Primary School, and also for renovations.

There is a substantial sum in for new renovations and money for re-roofing the walkways at North Side Primary School. At Spot Bay Primary School there's the sum of $400,000 for the multi-purpose hall together with renovations, roofing and fencing. At the Creek Primary School there is a small payment in for the new addition that has been done there, and that is a very nice facility at the Creek, Mr. Speaker.

At the West End Primary, there is money for renovations. At the Lighthouse School, $3.5 million has been put in for the beginning of that school. Sunrise Centre, $100,000. There is money in to start the new Alternative Educational facility.

Also, sir, for the Red Bay Primary School there is $900,000 plus, and there is money in for the multi-purpose hall at Red Bay and also for renovations.

So, Mr. Speaker, there is a very substantial amount of funds in the Budget to deal with schools. Together with the list that the Minister for Tourism has dealt with, it would mean that if we borrowed an extra amount we would be able to speed up things such as the second primary school and other areas that we need.

I would like to move from that to deal with an update on Vision 2008. There have been sixteen roundtable groups that continue to meet to develop the action plans for the Ten-year National Strategic Plan—Vision 2008. The groups have been meeting since the first week of October and they will continue until the 21st January when the action plans are turned in to the Vision office. There have been approximately 2,000 people who have contributed in some way, or gave comments on Vision 2008, which shows a very large cross-section of the public who have been interested in this very important ten year plan.

Over 240 individuals are attending the weekly roundtable meetings. Some groups meet twice per week. It has been calculated that in terms of hours spent by the planning teams and roundtable groups that two and one half years in man-hours have been spent so far.

Vision 2008 continues its focus on children and young people and getting their feedback on the kind of Cayman Islands they wish to see in ten years time. In 1999 we will have the first stamp issued on the Vision 2008 theme which was designed by children. We have encouraged young professional Caymanians in both the public and private sector to get involved in leading the roundtables, and we have been very gratified on how hard these young people are working and their commitment to the future of the Cayman Islands. In fact, there has been a lot of enthusiasm and these are going very well.

As I am sure members are aware, there are 16 strategies in the Vision 2008 framework. They apply to zero tolerance for crime and drugs, developing leadership in and programmes for young people, strengthening the family, providing the education and training to allow all young people to fulfil their potential, promoting Caymanian culture, a plan for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, open and accountable government, optimal infrastructure, growth management, the natural environment, the economy, both protecting and strengthening the financial and tourism industries, but also promoting diversification with a support plan for the health service contingency planning and immigration.

The action plans that are being developed will be presented first of all to the 30 member planning team in February, and, after assessing them using agreed criteria, the planning team will recommend the action plans to government for prioritisation and implementation.

I hope that implementation of the ten year plan will start in April 1999 with the first year of action plans. The civil service has already begun to gear up to effect the National Strategic Plan together with the other reform initiatives being proposed.

Vision 2008 has been an ambitious exercise designed to include all residents of the Cayman Islands in some way or another. I would like to express my deep appreciation to all those people who have taken part, and who continue to take part in Vision 2008. I would like to assure the public that the Government and I believe this legislature, stand behind Vision 2008, and we realise the importance of long term planning and prioritising projects. When completed in March, Vision 2008 will give the Cayman Islands well thought out projects and programmes to prioritise.

It is very important that this most important plan be wide based as it is with everyone having the right of input. I think it is also very heartening to the islands to have the young people taking part in actually leading the teams that are dealing with this. And when completed it will give the Cayman Islands a ten year plan that is well thought out which the people of the Cayman Islands have themselves moulded. It will be their plan.

One other point I would like to mention relates to the change in ministries that was commented on. Every two years it has been routine that ministries are reviewed by His Excellency the Governor and adjustments are made to provide better cohesion of the ministries' subjects. This year is no different from the other mid-term changes that have taken place.

As I mentioned earlier, I was happy to pass over to my colleague, the Minister for Agriculture, the AIDB as well as the Weather Service because these fit into the communication and emergency network that he operates as well as the fact that the board itself deals with granting loans to agriculture and other areas that his ministry is involved with. Luckily I did not get anything passed from another ministry to me. This is a routine matter.

There was some discussion in relation to that about collective responsibility or how Executive Council is functioning and I would like to take some time to deal with that.

I have been in Executive Council (this will be my fourth term) for 16 years and a longer period than that in the Legislative Assembly. In the early days as Acting Attorney General I was also the advisor to Executive Council and the Legislative Assembly and Government. I was the only advisor in those early days. I can say that this Executive Council has the best team that I have ever worked with. Executive Council works on the basis of consensus, not voting as we do in here. There has to be give and take. In other words, there are times when decisions are made that I may not be happy with, but collectively I am bound by the cabinet's solidarity, or collective responsibility, as we call it. I not only abide by those decisions I support them in public. And that is the whole principle of collective responsibility.

But I have also been in very difficult Executive Councils, and I understand what it is to have had the pleasure of working with colleagues in this both the colleagues at present and also the First Elected Member for West Bay during the six years the two Councils have been here.

I believe that anyone with experience will realise that the country cannot remain stable and progress well unless things are going well in Executive Council and we work in there as a team. We put forward our views. Sometimes we put them forward forcefully. But at the end of the day we accept the decision of the Governor in Council. The colleagues in there now, the Ministers and Official Members, have been and continue to be not only very efficient, very understanding of the system . . . because it does take understanding.

One cannot just up and get angry because one doesn't get one's way in there. That is not the way it works. There has to be give and take. There are times that some decisions may not be totally the way a member may like to see. But under collective responsibility the important thing is team work for the benefit of the country so that the decisions that come out benefit the country.

I am happy to say that is the way it is working. It is one of the best working Executive Councils that I have been in, and I first went into Executive Council in 1976. I am happy to say that I am very comfortable in there, I have been for the past six years, with the decisions that Council takes and with the team work in there.

The position of the Cayman Islands is a good one. The country has never been in a better financial and economic position. It is very clear that the country has continued for the past few years in an economic state of boom. There is investment all around. We have applied the surplus from the recurrent revenue towards good projects such as educating our young people, giving them scholarships, building roads, building schools.

When the Honourable Financial Secretary says “As we look back over the past decade and take stock of our present situation, there is so much of which we have to be proud. Our achievements have been truly outstanding.” Today Cayman is one the world’s largest financial centres. That has come about through a stable Government, a stable constitution that goes back to 1972, and we enjoy one of the highest standards of living (quoting the Financial Secretary) and have ample job opportunities.

To the question, Can we continue to be successful in the future? The Honourable Financial Secretary gave the short answer as, “Yes.” I fully support that.

A country always has to take stock of where it is going, what it is doing. And one has to look at the indicators of the economy from time to time. But, in summary, “we have seen quite buoyant [quoting the Financial Secretary] figures for the first three quarters of the year show buoyant activity in the construction and real estate sectors, good growth in financial and business services and increases in tourism. Overall growth in the economy in 1998 is therefore expected to be . . . 5.0 per cent . . .”

That is quite outstanding. Against that, inflation is not expected to exceed 4%.

We are undoubtedly one of the largest banking centres in the world. The number of banks, the number of insurance companies continues to grow. The Financial industry generally has continued to grow. From time to time we hear criticism or we hear suggestions.

I am reminded of a statement that Socrates, the Greek philosopher, made, that no man undertakes a trade that he is incapable of doing, even the meanest of trades. But everyone regards himself capable of the most difficult of all trades—running a Government. And that is so true because while there can be a lot of talk, at the end of the day the bottom line is, what has been done in the country? Has the Government moved it forward? Has the Government stayed within prudent lines of finance? The answer to those [questions] is clearly yes, Mr. Speaker.

The day that this country gets in a bad financial position, the 584 banks that are here will disappear very quickly. That is a fact. If we have, as we do, a good economy, then banks will increase. We have probably 46 to 48 of the 50 of the largest banks in the world here. That, in itself, has shown that this Government, and past Governments, have done the right thing.

The borrowings that have been set out, as I have shown from the figures, clearly indicate that we have a recurrent surplus of $11 million. It shows that we are contributing that to capital. It also shows that the borrowing that the Government has made, we are repaying substantial amounts each year as well. But it is well within the 10% of recurrent revenue that is internationally accepted. In fact, it is 7.2%. So it is well under what is necessary.

The Government continues to have very good credit in the country with the banks and financial institutions. We have shown how we have built up the general reserve fund, which this coming year will be close to $12 million. We have shown that we have put a very substantial amount, in fact possibly $30 million into the public service pension fund which could have gone into our general reserve if we had followed what previous Governments had done and left the liability there. This year alone there is $9.9 million that is going in there. We have been able to pay for the pensions that have become due out of this year’s recurrent amount. The increases from 4% to 6%, the pensionable salaries are also funded in this Budget and reserves have been put in for the scheme for homes for our young people where I think in the area of $20 million line of credit has been set up and a lot of it used.

So, we have, I think, shown clearly that there has been very prudent finances in the Government, finances which have kept us well within our means, and as I said, we are $11 million within our means and we have to continue this prudent course, which is the course that we are now taking. It is important that this Finance Committee Session and the remainder of this Budget Session does try to get through the budget in sufficient time so that the benefits of it can start early in the year. We had the example that was mentioned by the Minister for Tourism, of getting funds released for roads in the middle of the rainy season. That wastes money rather than saving it.

I am satisfied that while a lot is being spent on education, the saying I mentioned earlier (if you think education is expensive, try ignorance) is something that we need to think on. I hope that as this House continues the level of debate will be kept high, as I mentioned earlier. We are examples to the many school children out there, the youth of the country, and it is important that this House set an example and that we show through example what we expect our youth in the future to be.

I would once again like to thank the Honourable Financial Secretary and all his staff, and the staff of his departments for the Budget and his speech which brought out very clearly the good financial position the Cayman Islands is in. I ask God to guide these islands in the future to continued prosperity. Thank you.

The Speaker: I will entertain a motion for the adjournment of this Honourable House. The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until tomorrow at 10.00 AM.

The Speaker: The question is that this Honourable House do now adjourn until 10.00 AM Thursday, 3 December. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AT 4.30 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM THURSDAY, 3 DECEMBER 1998.

THURSDAY
3 DECEMBER 1998
10.15 AM

[Prayers read by the Honourable Minister responsible for Agriculture, Environment, Communications and Works]

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Item 2 on today's Order Paper: Administration of Oaths, Oath of Allegiance by Mr. David F. Ballantyne to be the Honourable Second Official Member. I invite Mr. Ballantyne to come to the Clerk's table. Will all Members please stand?

ADMINISTRATION OF OATHS
OR AFFIRMATIONS

OATH OF ALLEGIANCE
Mr. David F. Ballantyne

Hon. David F. Ballantyne: I, David Ferguson Ballantyne, do swear that I will be faithful and bear true allegiance to Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II, Her heirs and successors according to law. So help me God.

The Speaker: Mr. Ballantyne, please take your seat as the Honourable Second Official Member.

On behalf of all Honourable Members of this Honourable Legislative Assembly we welcome you to be the Honourable Second Official Member. Please be seated.

Item number 3 on today's Order Paper: Reading by the Honourable Speaker of Messages and Announcements.

READING BY THE SPEAKER OF
MESSAGES AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: We have apologies from the Honourable Third Official Member who will be arriving later this morning, and also from the Fourth Elected Member for West Bay who is sick.

Item number 4 on today's Order Paper: Questions to the Honourable Official Members and Ministers. Question number 220 standing in the name of the First Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTIONS TO HONOURABLE
MEMBERS/MINISTERS

QUESTION NO. 220

No. 220: Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse, Prevention and Rehabilitation to say the total number of persons by districts which the Government has sponsored in overseas drug treatment centres since December 1996.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. From December 1996, seven individuals were referred to drug rehabilitation centres overseas. Broken down by districts these are:

| DISTRICTS    | NO. OF PERSONS |
|--------------|----------------|
| West Bay     | 4              |
| George Town  | 3              |
| TOTAL | 7       |

SUPPLEMENTARIES

The Speaker: Supplementaries, the First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Can the Minister say after these individuals have been sent away for the treatment what is the procedure regarding follow-up?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The return and report to CCC where there is an after care programme. They are then monitored for up to one year.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Can the Minister say if out of these seven individuals who were referred overseas, the results to date show that the exercise was worth it.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, that's a good question. Yes, five of the seven are still drug free; we are not sure if the other two are still clean.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: I wonder if the Honourable Minister can say what was the cost of this treatment overseas.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker for the information of the House, I will give the actual breakdown of the cost for each attendee and where they went:

- ❑ Client #1 attended Sanderlands for six months which was US$6,619;
- ❑ Client #2 attended the same place for the same amount;
- ❑ Client #3 attended for six weeks $2,038;
- ❑ Client #4 attended Operation Power for four months which was $27,055;
- ❑ Client #5 also attended Operation Power for three months which was $20,250;
- ❑ Client #6 attended Sanderlands for one month $1,103; and
- ❑ Client #7 attended Sanderlands for two-and-a-half months $2,757.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, perhaps the Minister has on hand the total cost of that treatment.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, that's approximately $65,000.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you Mr. Speaker, Can the Minister tell the House. . . [Inaudible]

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, Mr. Speaker, most of them have to be referred to the States because of their chronic condition. This is why we are looking forward to when we can provide the services here.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Could the Minister say what are some of the considerations for making the decision to send persons for overseas treatment rather than to have them treated here?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, it depends on how many times they have attended the out-patient services at Cayman Counselling Centre, their ages, and physical assessments are made by a medical doctor as to their condition and what assistance can be provided.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Thank you. Can the Minister say if during the decision-making process to refer these individuals overseas, whether the situation arises where funds only allow for a certain number to be sent, or, it is simply a matter that after going through due process, this was the number decided on that needed to be sent.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, Mr. Speaker, the Member is correct; these people are processed similarly through the Health Services Department where they would do a financial contract signed to repay.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to hear that at least seven persons who suffer from drug abuse were able to be sent overseas.

I wonder if the Honourable Minister can say if there are any other clients pending an overseas visit.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, at this moment there are two.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Could the Minister say how long have those five persons who are now drug free, been drug free?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, between twelve to fourteen months up to this time.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Could the Minister say whether or not this is seen as a very good return on that investment?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: I think the Member is quite correct and I agree with him. I think if only one person is saved from this horrible problem it would be worth the effort.

The Speaker: Do you have a follow up? Go ahead, Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, I would like to have an undertaking from the Minister, if he is willing, to see if perhaps there could be a bit more aggressive pursuit of this particular solution because it seems to me that this is an amazing return. I am not sure how far on these persons were, with regards to addiction, in comparison with other persons who are on the street, but obviously this is a fantastic result. I would encourage the Minister to give an undertaking to pursue this in the future.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I fully agree with the Honourable Fourth Elected Member from George Town. Just to also mention that Cayman Council Centre has assisted other persons who have actually funded their own way--but the Ministry has become very aggressive. Many of us may have seen an article on CNN which says that rehabilitation is the way to go. Incarceration at Northward Prison for these people is not the solution. We are looking forward, with the support of this Honourable House, to having our rehabilitation facility ready next year.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I wonder if the Honourable Minister can give us an update on the drug counselling services that are being offered at the district levels.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker, I apologise for the delay. At present we are offering services in the following districts:

West Bay – Tuesdays and Wednesdays

East End – Mondays

Bodden Town – Thursdays

North Side – Tuesdays

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Mr. Speaker, I wonder if the Honourable Minister can say what times in the day these services are available?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, at the moment it is between 1 and 5 PM in the afternoons.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for West Bay. Do you have a question? Go ahead.

Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks: Mr. Speaker, I wonder if the Minister can say that it is shown that this counselling is really proving a success to the individuals.

Could you repeat the question, Fourth Elected Member for West Bay?

Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks: If the counselling service is proving to be a success.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, Mr. Speaker, I firmly believe that the counselling – and the sooner that we can get to that individual . . . The sad situation with this is, that until the person admits that he has a problem and wants to do something about it, we can send him there, but until he wants to really – using the terminology 'hit rock bottom' – is when he really realises that something can be done. And the counselling and support, especially within the families, is so very important.

The Speaker: Two additional supplementaries. The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Minister tell the House whether any group therapy sessions are being conducted especially for the benefit of those persons who have returned from overseas stays at counselling institutions, and whether any of these sessions also involve family members at some particular point?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, the answer is yes to both questions.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries we will move on to question number 221 standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 221

No. 221: Dr. Frank McField asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation if a Foster Care Unit, an Adoption Unit and a Foster Care Committee have been established as was recommended by the Family Study presented to the Department of Social Services in February 1997.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: The Foster Care Programme and the Adoption Programme were combined as one unit commencing 1st October 1998. This unit is now managed by the Foster Care Co-ordinator whose substantive post is now Adoption and Foster Care Co-ordinator. This officer also currently acts as secretary to the Adoption Board.

A proposal for the establishment of a Foster Care Committee has been developed. The Committee would be responsible for the ratification of each foster care application, thereby ensuring a greater level of accountability in the service.

Plans are in place to have the Committee established in the very near future.

The Speaker: Supplementaries. The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, the Minister has said that plans are in place to have the Committee established in the very near future. Could he say more precisely how near that future might be?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, the revision of certain laws and the Adoption Board and other factors are now being undertaken and we are hoping by the first quarter of next year to have this in place.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: I wonder if the Honourable Minister can say how many of our children are in foster care and whether or not there are needs for additional foster parents?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, currently there are thirteen children in the programme, five females and eight males. There are nine approved foster parents. The children come and go, but the need is always there for this type of coverage.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, could the Minister say if there is a policy in the Department of Social Services to encourage foster-parenting rather than institutionalising the youngsters?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Yes, Mr. Speaker, the Department of Social Services is very rigorous in pushing this idea.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Can the Minister say whether all of the Caymanian children who are in foster care programmes and who have been adopted are adopted by families here on the island or if there are any cases where any of these children have been adopted by families who have emigrated abroad?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, over the last three years I have been made to understand that all foster care children remain on the island.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, could the Minister say why there are only nine families approved as foster care parents, if the numbers in the institutions for children's care are probably to the extent that we could foster more children out to parents.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, there is a hesitancy on people to accept this responsibility. I think once we are able to better promote and educate the people we will see more support for this.

The Speaker: Do you have a follow-up? Because the Third Elected Member for West Bay had asked . . . Third Elected, do you have a follow-up? Go ahead, Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Could the Minister say if there are any financial considerations made with regard to foster-parenting and if so what are they?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: No, Mr. Speaker, we do not pay for the parents. We do give the children an allowance but we try to encourage the idea that families take responsibility and help.

The Speaker: Is there a follow-up? The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, would the good Minister give an undertaking perhaps to investigate the feasibility of creating the economic incentive since in other parts of the world it seems to help in terms of the fact that perhaps not just goodwill is necessary in this case, but also we need to look realistically at the burden which it might cause our families. Since we are paying anyway for the institutionalisation of the children it might be something that the Minister might be curious to investigate.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, because of the huge recurrent situation with dealing with this, I would not at this time undertake to, but at sometime in the future consideration may be given to this.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I wonder if the Minister can say how many children we have available for adoption?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, at this time there are no children cleared by foster care for adoption.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Minister give a brief explanation about the type of arrangement made between the Department and the foster-parents with regards to outlining responsibilities? I don't think 'contractual' arrangement is the correct word, but I think that might give the idea of what I am seeking. Is it something that is done in writing, or is it just a verbal arrangement? Also, what responsibilities go with the commitment from the foster-parents to take care of the children?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, there is a written contract and the general agreement is that the foster-parents treat these children as if they were their own.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Can the Minister state then what is the due diligence that is exercised by way of the Department to ensure that the contractual arrangements are satisfactory?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, there is a social worker assigned to each child. They make frequent visits to the families that they are entrusted to, and they are very closely monitored.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries we will move on to question 222 standing in the name of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

QUESTION NO. 222

No. 222: Dr. Frank McField asked the Honourable Minister responsible for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation what is the present position of the Department of Social Services with regards to support for a policy decision to institute minimum wages for selected jobs.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: [barely audible] The Department of Social Services would offer support for a policy decision to institute minimum wages for selected jobs such as those in the service industry as the Department is of the view that serious consideration needs to be given to the establishment of a minimum wage.

The Speaker: Supplementaries? The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

SUPPLEMENTARIES

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, would the Minister have any figures or would he be able to provide us with an estimate of what the wages are like for a person in the service industry – a female?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: No, Mr. Speaker, not at this time. My understanding is that there has been a select committee appointed to look at this in more detail and I don't think I should go into any more details until what the House decides on.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: For purposes of clarity, in the Minister's answer he said that the Department of Social Services would offer support for a policy decision while the Minister has just mentioned a select committee. Can the Minister state exactly where the authority and responsibility lies to create such policy?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, the ultimate responsibility rests with the Minister of Community Development. It would have to be an Executive Council policy decision.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, would the Minister agree that the work situation influences the family and it was from this position that the recommendation for the Social Services Department to become more actively involved in this particular pursuit was made.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, I would have to say yes to that. Social Services Department as I mentioned earlier in this sitting, is taking a much closer look at its clients in regards to the skills development to hopefully improve the way they are standing within the society.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, would the Minister say if in the case where we have the Social Services Department interested in preventive social policies that they have almost an equal amount of responsibility as would the Department of Community Affairs in this particular case since their specific interest would not be in the question of labour but in the question of the preservation of the family structure.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, once a policy decision is put forward I do envision collaboration between Social Services Department and the Ministry of Community Development to work together to bring this to a much better situation than what presently exists.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I am not so sure how this one is going to come out but I am going to make an attempt here. As the Minister keeps answering the supplementaries, the parameters widen and the word 'training' has been mentioned. So what we begin to see gelling is a situation between minimum wage, social harmony, preservation of the family unit and we are talking also about the possibility of introducing training into the whole affair.

Recognising that of all the things that we are talking about, if I am correct, there are actually three ministries involved – exactly the three ministers who sit in front of me right now. With regards to the question of developing a policy, could the Minister give an undertaking to possibly look into the situation in its entirety? Because I suspect that each part of the whole thing operating on its own, is not going to bring about results that are desired. It is obvious that you will find where one succeeds in one area, there's a lack in another area and there will need to be some type of gelling between the ministries.

So, perhaps what we are talking about here is important. I am asking the Minister if he could give an undertaking to try to see if he could get something put together that involves the whole situation. The need is there, and certainly a policy decision which encompasses all of these things must lead to better results than the situation that [exists] at present.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, I see this very similar to the collaboration that is now taking place in regards to youth and other programmes in which the Community Development Minister, the Education Minister, Social Services and Health Ministry work towards; I see us working at the same way with this once the policy decision is put in place.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The House passed a resolution to set up a committee on minimum wage. Although the Committee does not fall under him, I am wondering if the Honourable Minister – since there is this collaboration – might know what time the Government intends to start work on this all important committee.

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, I understand that once the House finishes sitting that the Committee will be brought together on the way forward.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, on a point of clarification, I would just like to say before I form my supplementary that the Department of Social Services was suggesting that they should support a policy decision to institute minimum wages for select jobs as this should have immediate impact on a number of persons requiring temporary financial assistance.

Could the Minister say if in fact the number of persons receiving financial assistance is on the increase, or the decrease?

Hon. Anthony S. Eden: Mr. Speaker, I would venture to say that there has been some increase. But as we said earlier... I know from the time the Honourable First Member for West Bay was there, that there were plans. It is within the ambit of the Social Services and the guidelines set down that we would be reviewing the qualifications and annually checking those people who qualify, to see if there has been any substantive change in their ability to provide for themselves.

The Speaker: If there are no further supplementaries, that concludes question time for this morning.

Moving on to item number 5 on today's Order Paper: Government Business, Bills, Continuation of Second Reading, The Appropriation Bill (1999) Bill, 1988. Continuation of the debate thereon. The floor is open to debate. Does any Member wish to speak The Honourable Minister for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

BILLS

SECOND READING

THE APPROPRIATION (1999) BILL, 1998

DEBATE ON THE BUDGET ADDRESS DELIVERED BY THE HONOURABLE THIRD OFFICIAL MEMBER ON MONDAY, 16TH NOVEMBER 1998

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The Honourable Financial Secretary in his eloquent Budget Address referred to Hurricane Mitch in his introductory remarks. I too would like to go on record for thanking Almighty God for his protection from the wrath of this most destructive hurricane. Had it given us a direct hit, it would not have only caused severe physical and environmental damage, but indeed would have caused havoc on our finances and our Caymanian society as a whole.

I extend my deepest sympathy to our neighbouring friends in Central America and congratulate the residents of these Cayman Islands for their generosity, compassion and willingness to assist the victims of the hurricane in this time of much need.

It was also confirmed by the Honourable Third Official Member that the Cayman Islands is one of the largest financial centres which maintains a very high standard of living. I believe that all Honourable Members therefore have a responsibility to do everything within our power to ensure that we in the Cayman Islands sustain this economic growth. I also believe, sir, that there are several proactive things which can be done in order to create and maintain a diversified economy with a view of achieving the goal of sustainable economic development.

Firstly, throughout the global village today, it is widely accepted that tourism is an essential element or contributor to a successful economy. Today, Cayman enjoys a very healthy upscale tourism industry. By way of comparison, I am informed that in 1992 there were some 241,000 air arrivals and 600,000 cruise arrivals; in 1997 there were over 380,000 air arrivals with some 800,000 cruise arrivals. This does not happen by mere coincidence, but as a result of the hard work and commitment by the Minister and his staff of Tourism and the professional way in which they seek to carry out their responsibilities. Not only here in Cayman, but indeed on a worldwide scale.

The Government in its wisdom deemed it necessary to further diversify its tourism base with various tourist attractions throughout these three islands. To name a few: the breath-taking Botanical Gardens in Frank Sound, the magnificent Pedro St. James in Savannah and the ever increasing popular Captain K. P. Tibbetts Dive Attraction on the Brac. I believe that the provision of the choice for our tourist attractions will encourage the various visitors to our islands to spend more time here with us and indeed more money and our people can only reap positive financial benefits as this is continued to be pursued.

Another area that can be further diversified in the area of tourism is the area of sports tourism. This is a growing area worldwide and when properly planned and co-ordinated can attract thousands upon thousands of visitors to the sporting event(s). It is therefore in my view, sir, that although in recent years tremendous strides have been made in the area of sports, we still have a long way to go as far as putting all of the necessary infrastructure in place.

As far as it relates to football fields, the Government has put in place modern fields in East End, Bodden Town, George Town, West Bay with some districts having two modern fields now in place and we are grateful for all of the efforts of the last Minister and the Government in this regard.

The last of the six districts which make up the Cayman Islands which will be getting a proper football field will be my own district, Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. Once this field has been completed, this will prima facie complete the Ministry's sports for all policies as far as it relates to the provision of proper football fields in all six districts of the Cayman Islands.

Of course as the policy of Government is to provide for the general well being of all of our people there is also need for other ancillary and/or their supporting sporting infrastructure in these islands. Thus far, the districts of George Town and West Bay are perhaps the most complete in so far as they have proper seating, storage and bathroom facilities and it is the Ministry's intention in this coming fiscal year to continue on this ancillary infrastructure developmental of sport programmes.

There are several other sports in addition to football which also provides fertile ground for sport tourism to be developed. For example, golf and basket ball, cricket netball and track and field and this is not an all inclusive list but just to mention a few.

Presently, there is only one swimming pool available in all three of these islands to be able to facilitate the swim programme which is bursting at its seams with youngsters.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker on a point of order, sir.

The Speaker: May I hear your point of order?

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I draw the Chair's attention to Standing Order 32(4).

The Speaker: I don't think the Member is reading it per se. Please continue Honourable Minister.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Indeed I am not creating a precedence, but patience is a virtue and I would prefer to be virtuous this morning.

As I was saying, there is much to be achieved still in the area of sports as far as the creation and the provision of various sporting facilities here in the Cayman Islands. As we have a policy for the provision of sports for all, it is the Ministry's intention to continue to work in this regard. I believe that as far as it relates to swimming, all Honourable Members will note that there is a three-year swim programme provided for in the 1999 Estimates. The general idea is for the addition of another swimming facility here for Grand Cayman in the year 2000: one for the Sister Islands and in the year 2001, an addition one for Grand Cayman. We believe that once this is put in place, we will be up-to-date as far as we are concerned with our swimming infrastructure development program.

Permit me also to take this opportunity to congratulate the swim team, the rugby team and the cyclists who travelled to represent the Cayman Islands this past September to Malaysia for the Commonwealth Games. I can truly say they did the islands proud. Not only was it a means for them getting a wealth of experience, but also they were able to advertise and be great ambassadors for the Cayman Islands by their mere participation. It was indeed a very memorable moment to see them march around the stadium before thousands of people in Malaysia, and indeed millions worldwide through the media and the TV, holding up the Cayman Islands' flag.

I believe that both the Minister of Tourism and myself can continue to work in this regard and we would have done well in the area of advertising and promoting these beloved Cayman Islands.

It is also my view that if the provision of proper sporting facilities is put in place here, it would give our athletes an equitable advantage when they travel worldwide because they would be familiar with competition level sporting infrastructure and they would not be in a disadvantageous position. This greatly comes out as it relates to swimming. Presently, we have a half size Olympic pool, and at competition level, there is a full size Olympic pool which puts the swimming athletics at a great disadvantage in the amount of time it takes to actually turn around and cut down the seconds on their competition achievements.

This coming year again, the Ministry will endeavour, subject to finances, to further develop and augment our national and women's youth programme. We are extremely grateful for the valuable contribution we are getting from the Commonwealth Secretariat. And the personnel in the Ministry have been working with other ministries as well as various volunteers within our Caymanian community to ensure that we reach as wide a base as possible in the putting together of a feasible, practical, and yet affordable Youth and Women's Policy.

I am also happy to say that in keeping with the Ministry's policy of providing a shelter for battered women, a few weeks ago I had an opportunity to meet with two local interested and dedicated persons who have offered to construct a proper facility to shelter battered women here on Grand Cayman. We are still in the process of negotiation, but suffice it to say, they are prepared to build such a structure, hand the keys over to Government and Government would then come in and take up the recurrent expenditure and offer this badly needed facility to the battered women in our society.

Having travelled to many different places in the world, I still believe that Cayman is perhaps one of the best places in which to reside, as far as it relates to the rights of women. I realise that there are lots and lots of criticism being levelled about the rights of women, but because of our sea-fearing history, we have come through a phase where a lot of our men had to go to sea and women, whether or not they wanted to, ran the country for a number of years and they have continued to excel.

In Cayman, sir, I dare say without fear of contradiction that our women enjoy a very wide range of rights and that many other women worldwide are still fighting for these rights. For example, our women have equal opportunity to education, equal opportunity to the jobs, to health and equal opportunity to the judicial system and indeed to the running of the Government. Indeed if one would take the time to properly analyse the available statistics that we have here in the islands, we would see that in many, if not most of the six districts that make up the Cayman Islands, that women make up the largest percentage of voters. So, it is not fair to level a criticism that women do not have sufficient representation in this Honourable House when the majority of the voters are women.

Whether or not I am criticised, I will continue to believe the statement which I am about to make, in that I strongly feel that no position whether it is in the Cayman Islands or in other places in the world should be given to a person based solely on gender. Persons should not be given a job just because they are women or men, but indeed there are many other factors that should be looked at, in particular, character, qualifications, experience and the potential to name some of these areas.

In Cayman, we have a lot to give God thanks for and indeed we can show our appreciation for the prosperity which he has endowed upon us by living and working together in unity and harmony and by supporting one another, be it the good times or the bad times.

Again this year we will seek to continue and develop the policy to provide grants to various organisations and groups. This policy which has been put in place before I took on the responsibility of the Ministry, of supporting after-school programmes and various church groups, is a policy which I (along with Government) continue to support. I believe it is a good policy and already there are many conspicuous and positive results that are evident from these grants to these groups.

We have also continued the policy of giving grants to various sporting groups, culture groups and the amount of the grants vary from time to time. Since taking over the Ministry, because I am a strong believer in accountability and transparency, I have introduced a concept of the issuance and signing of contracts to the various bodies which are recipients of the grants from the Ministry. As with all change, there is some resistance, but I do believe that Government should endeavour to get good value for the money spent and the utilisation of contracts is but one way in which I saw fit to augment the system.

The Ministry also continues to work with the various beautification committees in the six districts. We will continue this policy and indeed we are most grateful for the hard-working and dedicated volunteers who work from year to year to improve the aesthetic look of their community and to develop the various beautification programmes within their respective districts.

I would also encourage more persons to volunteer their services at a community level, both with the Community Development Committee and the Beautification Committee in the various districts. I believe, in so doing, if we take it at a district level not only can we enhance the beauty, but we can work at continuing to maintain the safety and the social harmony and development within the six districts.

Mr. Speaker, from a policy perspective, if their involvement is at a community level, then there is a large degree of ownership. And I have found that once there is ownership, there is a proven catalyst for motivation and I strongly believe that performance rides on commitment. If we can get sufficient committed volunteers, then I believe that we can only continue to go in the right direction with our communities.

I believe that this is one area where we can continue to create an excellent partnership between Government and the private sector and we can therefore move from an embryonic stage into healthy birth whereby Government can continue to provide partial and (in the relevant cases) full sponsorships or grants while the members of the private sector or the community can offer their expertise and skill and create a lasting partnership which will go way into the 21st Century.

Mr. Speaker, the Ministry also continues the policy of assisting the veterans with their monthly grants and quite frankly it is my individual view that since we have taken the decision to assist and increase the Social Services perhaps we should also look at considering increasing for the veterans seeing it was they who went to war to preserve our liberty, our freedom and our tranquility. I would be most grateful if at the appropriate time this was also duly considered.

The policy of mandatory education here in our islands is also, I believe, one of the keys to the success of these Cayman Islands. It has continued to work extremely well and I believe that in a cost associated with education, our cost would be well incurred because there are presently a number of various educational infrastructural needs that the country is faced with. I believe for the most part, these needs are now very urgent.

There is the need for at least two additional primary schools on Grand Cayman, another high school and in the district of East End there is need for at least two additional classrooms. All of this costs millions of dollars. This does not even take into account the recurrent expenditure which includes, but is not limited to, the emoluments. Subject to these projects being realistically costed and reasonably accepted construction bids, then we now need to face the music and put in place these badly needed education infrastructure facilities. I know that the present Minister for Education is indeed committed to this cause and not only here in Grand Cayman, but his commitment extends as well to the Brac and Little Cayman.

The costs associated with education as with any other costs are increasing as the years pass by and in order for the Government to meet these various educational needs, of course money has to be spent. Because education is mandatory under the education law, and it is also free, money therefore has to be derived from somewhere.

As we do not have any form of income or direct taxes, the only means of raising this money would be if there was a surplus with our revenue, which there is not sufficient to meet these educational costs, or if the Government saw it fit to raise it by way of loan funds. This is the direction that the Government on a whole has decided to go this year again (as with previous Governments) for capital projects including our educational projects is to raise the funds by way of getting loans. This gives rise to, How will these loans be repaid? As I said, because we do not have direct taxes, the Government then has to look at raising by way of revenue enhancement measures. Again this is a policy decision that the Government has taken and will be before the House in due course. At whatever the cost, providing it is reasonable cost and it is for the educational facilities, they have my full support. I am sure I can speak for most, if not all, Honourable Members in this House, that they too will support these badly needed projects.

Turning now to the Brac and Little Cayman, first let me say that the Second Elected Member from the Brac and I, are extremely grateful for the provision that Government made a couple years ago for the establishment of the Kirkconnell Community Care Centre. However, now there is a need for an extension of the said centre and we believe that the best direction for the Government to take is with the establishment of bed facility, because there are a number of our elderly [folk] within the Brac Community who are now on the waiting list to receive these services.

One additional area that I believe needs to be continually reviewed, is the area of more local recruitment and training. We are grateful to the Honourable Minister responsible, for his continued commitment in this regard.

Ever since the experience of Hurricane Mitch, the people of the Brac, your people and indeed my people, have been making various representations to us about the provision of a proper hurricane centre. As a representative...and since the advent of the hurricane, as I said...I have had various and numerous representations in this regard and I have sought to establish the funds in the Estimate for such a facility. Unfortunately, due to the physical and the environmental make-up of the three islands, all three islands are extremely low lying. Fortunately, we in the Brac have the added advantage that the bluff rises majestically to some 140 feet and this is our only protection within the three islands in the event of a storm surge.

Mr. Speaker, presently the situation on the Brac is as follows: There is the Creek Primary School which has been used from time to time, but in my humble and respectable opinion, it is most unfit to be used as a hurricane centre, because it is established in a fall with only one entrance. That same entrance is used as an exit which leads out closer to the sea and we all can envision what that would mean in the case of a storm surge.

The other disadvantage with it is that it is quite small. In addition to that, the restroom facilities are outside and again it doesn't take a Philadelphia Attorney to envision the dire straits one would be in, in the event of a hurricane, having to go outside to use the bathroom facilities.

The Spot Bay Primary School, as well as the Cayman Brac High School, which are also nice structures, are both on the beach and much too close to the water for any safety or comfort measures.

The West End Primary School is a very small building which is also used, but it is very close to the edge of the bluff and if I remember correctly, probably between 8 and 10 feet elevation at most. So, this again is not one of the safest places in which to put our residents.

We also have been using the Ashton Ruddy Centre and during Hurricane Gilbert, I am told from the person who sought shelter that the water was actually coming in the floor of the building because the floor is constructed at a very low level and in addition is constructed into a valley as it were. There were also some genuine concerns about the actual infrastructure to holding up hurricane force winds especially category five hurricanes as Mitch.

Now, Mr. Speaker, we have all read the predictions in the local newspaper, as well as in the international media, for a number of reasons the global warming, that the sea level is expected to rise in the up-coming years. There are also predictions for more strong and vicious hurricanes next year and coupled together with the fact that those Brackers who live on Grand Cayman whenever there is word of a tropical wave, not to mention a storm or a hurricane, head for Cayman Airways and over to the Brac.

So, because of that, we not only have to attend to the needs of the local community, but indeed we have a responsibility to the visitors as well as to returning Brackers and other Caymanians who would want to seek a higher elevation and a place of safety. So, I fully concur with the representations which I received from my constituents and I trust that all Honourable Members would see fit to support this worthy project on the Brac.

We also saw during Hurricane Mitch that a lot of our residents wanted to be transported to the mainland, U.S.A. In the event of another hurricane, the shelter in the Brac would also be an alternative shelter for anyone on Grand Cayman wanting to seek higher elevation but could not afford to go to the States or perhaps did not have a visa in time to make the travels. They are more than welcome to come and ride it out with us there on the Brac.

I also believe that the districts of West Bay and George Town are in also dire need of hurricane shelters and their civic centres. I also give them my full support having been in George Town during Hurricane Gilbert in 1988 (I believe) and being in and up the streets during even in the midst of the storm, I know that there was an occasion where there was physical infrastructural problems with one of the high schools where people were being sheltered. And George Town as in West Bay are perhaps the two largest districts and I believe that its long over due for these two districts to also look at providing and having establish proper hurricane and additional hurricane shelters in some instances.

The other districts I believe already have in place very equipped and modern hurricane shelters including Bodden Town. But in the respect of Bodden Town what I would say it being cognisant of the fact that it is perhaps one of the fastest growing districts in the Cayman Islands, that perhaps there is now need to re-assess the capacity situation within that district with a view of ascertaining whether or not they are up to speed with providing and catering to the need in the event of a hurricane. Because as we see during the passing with Mitch, the areas that I normally thought were quite safe in Savannah and Newlands proved not to be safe with the storm surge going in the Savannah, Lower Valley area. So, there is an urgent need I believe to look again to reassess the needs that we have.

In making these various observations, it is by no means an attempt to criticise or undermine but indeed it is out of genuine concern not only for my district of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman, but for the residents of Grand Cayman as well. Because having paid very close attention to what has happened in Central America, in the local media as well as on the internet, we can see that it is not a fairy tale. God forbid if one of these devastating storms came to our shores. I believe that prevention has to be much better than cure and the time to act is now.

However, we can only act within the fiscal constraints that are placed upon us and if we are going to take the policy of going into any loan funds, then I think that either directly, or indirectly, we are in fact crippling the potential to provide the necessary infrastructure for our constituents.

If I could now move to the issue of roads as it relates to the Brac and Little Cayman. There is from year to year, a need for the construction of various roads in both of these islands. As all Honourable Members are fully aware, the need for roads on the Brac fall somewhat in a different category than the needs for roads in Grand Cayman. Whereas Grand Cayman is fairly well developed, the need arises out of congestion and in some instances, I dare say lack of planning or putting in place a proper road plan.

The Brac's need for roads is more in the line of labour and planning for the future. I have always believed that it has to be much better to put in a planned road system before the development comes. It is easier and more cost effective to put in roads, and then buildings, as it is more difficult to put roads around buildings (as is now the case in Grand Cayman).

The added need for having funds voted from year to year for roads in the Sister Islands is that, it is not just a matter of a balancing exercise for the Budget if funds are cut for road projects on the Brac. But indeed what this translates to, is that there would be a number of families on the Brac who would be out of work because the Government is perhaps the biggest job provider in the Sister Islands and in some cases the only job provider for many of our people. So, I would ask Honourable Members to continue to look at the Brac and Little Cayman as a matter of priority and to continue to support in this regard.

Looking at the far spectrum of this scenario, if sufficient funds are not provided for roads and other capital projects, and our men once again have to be put in the position they were several years ago where there is not enough work—All this would mean that Government would be taking money from one pocket, placing into the other and that we would have more persons lining up in the indigent category for the Social Services Department in order to meet their daily personal expenditure. I am sure you will agree with me, that our people are very proud yet humble people and would much rather work to earn their living than to accept handouts from the Government. So, I would encourage all Honourable Members to support us in this regard.

Having said that, I fully support proper funding for roads in Grand Cayman. Mr. Speaker, are you minded to take a break? I was not sure...

The Speaker: When you reach a convenient position, we would take a morning break.

Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly: I thank you. Having said that, I fully support the roads programme that was put forward by the Honourable Minister of Tourism. Although it will cost us millions of dollars, it is perhaps the only solution that we have at this time with the traffic congestion that we are now seeing on a daily basis in Grand Cayman. This simply cannot be allowed to continue. The Ministry of Tourism I felt quite ably set out the needs of the roads and the appropriate estimates for Grand Cayman, which I fully support and hope that all Honourable Members will support as well.

As I said in my introductory remark, I still believe that these Cayman Islands are perhaps the best, if not one of the best, places to live and if we can continue to enjoy this standard of living if we would identify our problems and work together to find suitable, feasible, practical and financially prudent solutions.

With these few words, permit me to close by saying that we should all purpose in our hearts to seek God's guidance, his direction and commit that in so doing we can fully acknowledge and be fully cognizant of the fact that he shall indeed direct our paths that he will provide us with the requisite wisdom, knowledge and understanding and may God continue to bless these Cayman Islands. I thank you, sir.

The Speaker: We shall suspend proceedings for fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 11:50 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Debate on the Appropriation (1999) Bill, 1998 continues. The floor is open to debate. Does any Honourable Member wish to speak? The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, Environment, Communication and Works.

Hon. John B. McLean: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. First of all I would like to thank Almighty God for us having the opportunity once again to stand in this Honourable House and to debate a Budget of this magnitude for a country the size we are.

I would first of all like to congratulate the Honourable Financial Secretary and his able staff for what I consider a job well done. I have to differ with some of my colleagues when I listen to them. I sat over here patiently listening to them, hearing how they actually thought about such a good budget.

The economy of this country speaks for itself. We are blessed. Persons in this country today who are actually not employed, in my opinion, sir, they are not prepared to work. I believe that this Government has proven itself with this Budget and of course I have also sat on the Opposition Bench, therefore, I am aware of what their job is supposed to be.

When we turn to Education in this country today, we can compare what we are offering to our young people to any territory in this area. As a matter of fact, I have often-times heard foreigners—especially from the United States—praise the system that we have here in the Cayman Islands. The Government has always been very concerned and has tried to do as much as possible to make sure that our young people are educated. I would only encourage young people in this country to take into consideration what is being offered to them today and try to utilise it to its fullest.

Mr. Speaker, when I began attending primary school like others in here, we did not have transportation; we did not have air conditioning; we did not even have proper seats in the classrooms. Today each district in this country can literally boast of having transportation; we can boast of the classrooms being clean and in order; we can boast of the classrooms being air conditioned and all other facilities that are necessary for our kids to enjoy and of course to develop a very good education.

As I said a while ago, in this territory the Cayman Islands have as good, and in some cases better, than other countries. I was in a neighbouring territory just two weeks ago and when I saw children and where they were going to school, and then came back seeing exactly what we are offering here in the Cayman Islands, we have a lot to be thankful to God for. I support the Minister of Education in his effort. I think that his dedication has shown this country, the Cayman Islands, the great effort he has made to make sure that education is promoted in the Cayman Islands.

Once again, I will say that money spent on education in any country, once utilised properly as we do here, is money well spent. I am aware that lots of times persons maybe upset with regard to cost especially when we are talking about constructing buildings or indeed other things within the school, but the pittance being paid is nothing to compare to what is being offered. Any other area, any other school definitely demands more in money than the Cayman Islands do.

There are not too many territories that can boast that if parents are not in a position to give their children lunch money, those children can still go to school with proper arrangements. We must look at all aspects of this; we must look not only at food; we must look at buildings; we must look at the quality of teachers that we have in the Cayman Islands. And regardless of what is said, we have to face reality: if it were not for a good Minister of Education we would not have the qualities that we have.

I have known that good gentleman for a long time and I can guarantee anybody that he only stands for one thing and that's the best. We can look at the quality of passes that we have had in recent times in our schools; it speaks for itself. We can be compared and surpass a lot of people—a lot of territories—when it comes down to these sorts of things. And again I will reiterate: It is simply because of the dedication of a Ministry, dedication of the Education Department, we have excellent teachers throughout our islands and we should say thanks to God that we have such a service to offer to our young people.

The young people of today will be the old people of tomorrow—the persons who will take this country over. I will say again that any funds we spend on education in the Cayman Islands will be funds well spent.

This takes me to Health Services. We have voted a large amount of funds to continue health services in the Cayman Islands, but in any territory where we have healthy people and we have a high standard of health services, you are in good shape.

I recall some years ago, I took a group of farmers to the United States to a farm show. At that show it was thought that there was an outbreak of cholera from persons from South America. I never felt more pleased with myself than when I could go to the Public Health and take my group and say to them, "My group is clean because in my country we take cognizance of the fact that all of these diseases must be treated and our people are treated for them." It cost me a telephone call because I had get documents from home for some people, but the end result was that we were out of there before the quarantine of the hotel was over, because we had no right to be there. This shows that we have a standard in the Cayman Islands that we can be justly proud of.

We can look at what has taken place over the last few years with regard to providing services not only here in George Town, but the government of the day took a stand that we were going to look at all areas of the Cayman Islands. We have very, very nice health centres in Bodden Town, in East End, North Side, West Bay, and it goes on and on. We look here in George Town which is the capital and anyone who has visited our new hospital and does not see the qualities in there, they are blind because it is my honest opinion that when that facility is completed, we will have once again in this territory, a quality hospital. A hospital that will be offering the services that the people of our country need and most important, what they deserve.

It is a known fact that the people—especially of Grand Cayman, have suffered over the years, indeed not only for health reasons, but I would say because the funds were not available to us to do what we needed to do. With the good government, especially with my good colleague across from me, Mr. Tibbetts, we have the support to finish that hospital and we will be providing to this country a service that surpasses all other territories around. We have the dedicated staff, we have the qualities in the building, we have the supplies and we have the necessary things in there to make sure that we offer proper services to this region.

When the Government started the health centre in my district, it was far from my thoughts that when that facility was completed and opened that it would offer the services which it does. Today I am justly proud of what we have there, I am proud of what is in Bodden Town and other districts and I take my hat off to the Minister responsible for health because he has really and truly put his heart into it, well knowing that he had the support of his government.

Speaking of the economy of this country today, we can never lose sight of what tourism means to us. It is encouraging when we can boast and see for ourselves five tourist ships in the harbour some days. This did not come by chance. It took long, hard hours to make sure of what was happening to this country. When we look around at the hotels, when we look around at construction in general, let me say once again that we have a lot to be proud of.

I am pleased to know that tourism is booming in this country – not only by sea. It is encouraging to go to the Airport now. I recall years ago going and seeing two planes. Today you go out there and you can see probably five or six huge planes all bringing tourists to our shores. The economy of this country speaks for itself; contributing and spending are definitely happening in this country.

Talking about the economy, look at construction in this country today. Years ago we could say that construction was actually only in one area of the Cayman Islands. Today as you drive around Grand Cayman, Cayman Brac, Little Cayman, construction is booming in all areas. Never in my slightest dream did I think that the Queen's Highway would have been the way it is today. One of the best developments in this country is presently under construction and the other one is just about completed. No longer are we talking about Seven Mile Beach, we are talking about something that affects each and everyone throughout the island.

Let me also say that while we have the developments such as the ones I have mentioned which are hotel-related, never before in the history of this country have we had as many private developments, private homes being constructed at this time. Again I say, especially in that area persons who do not have a job do not want a job, because the opportunities are there. The opportunities have been provided by this Government to make sure that our people are in a good position and thank God it has been working.

I would like now to move on to one area that I am responsible for: Agriculture. Let me say first of all that in a few days we are hoping to open our new facility at Lower Valley—the new administration block. It is an open opportunity for all Members to attend. Of course, we will be sending out invitations to each individual, but I just would like to remind them that it was through their help in Finance Committee that I was able to have funds approved and able to give to this country such a facility. It is encouraging to see in this area, the advancement in this country. And I know that a lot of people disagree with me on that, but if they were there from the time I was there, they would realise that what we have today is nothing like what we started off with. And I will say again, we have quality crops and we have quality animals and it is all due to the co-operation of the farmers and the Department of Agriculture.

We have also introduced training for Caymanians and we have had a few that have actually taken it up, but we are aware that this is an area that a lot of our Caymanians try not to get into; I can appreciate that as a farmer. But the fact remains in each country, we must eat and if we have a strong area of agriculture it adds to us not having to spend money overseas. Thank God I can say today that the quality of our crops such as plantains, bananas, avocados, mangoes and of course the animals, surpasses anything that we import. May I say we still have to work towards being self-sufficient in it and that is our goal. We try to offer all assistance possible to our farming community.

It is a fact that we have a serious problem in this country especially with stray dogs. I appeal to the general public to try to assist the Department especially when traps are set not to molest them and instead, to contact the Department and make sure that they come and collect whatever is in the trap.

We have the same problem with other stray animals, such as cows. Anyone who believes that the job of the Department of Agriculture and indeed the Ministry of Agriculture is easy, it is not, because we find that people will call upon us all hours of night for such things as I have mentioned. Sometimes, when we arrive at the scene the traps are empty; however, it was because of some irresponsible person who would go and open the trap. So, once again I appeal to the public to assist the Department and work along with them so that we can try to work toward a happy goal with regard to this.

We also continue to offer services especially to persons with crops such as spraying for insects. We also encourage importers to be sure of where crops are coming from into this country. I need not say more than if persons who have listened this morning to what the Department actually had on radio... We continue to try to educate the public with regard to the dangers of the Mealy-bug but you know with all of that, I would say it takes all of us working together to make sure that we never have something like that in the Cayman Islands. This is serious. It has actually devastated crops in other islands and of course if we should have it here in Cayman, God knows how we would deal with it because many areas in this country being farmed, do not have proper accesses to them. We would be in serious problems trying to offer control.

We are also hoping to get on our way with the abattoir. This has been something that we have talked about for many years, but in each budget we have never placed the full amount for us to do the job. We have started to prepare the grounds and we are hoping that over the next year we will see that facility the same as the administration block – completed. So that we can ensure that we have a facility that will be as good as what is in the United States and provide proper tools for the farmers to deal with carcasses and make sure that we can cater to our public in a safe manner.

Another area under my Ministry that I must speak on, is garbage disposal. Let me say that this Department has actually asked in the Budget for certain funds to try to improve upon the vehicles we have which are old and out-dated and are costing the country lots of money. I am asking the Members here to consider and to agree and if anything, to advance what we have asked to a greater figure because we must all take into consideration what will happen to tourism and our financial sector if we do not have proper garbage collection. Thus far, again, we can be ready because we have provided a service here—a service that you cannot find in most other territories—a service that even when funds are not paid for garbage collection, the garbage is collected and disposed of.

This brings me to another point, we have a serious problem with regard to an area to get rid of our garbage not only here in Grand Cayman, but indeed in all three islands. It is a serious problem. But yet we are still charging funds way below what it is costing us to collect and what it is costing us to provide new vehicles. I have had the agony of trying to collect garbage throughout Grand Cayman with two trucks not too long ago, because the other trucks are worn out and they have to be in for repairs and of course it takes a while once you are dealing with piece of heavy equipment.

I honestly recommend that we look at providing the necessary [equipment], especially in that area, so that we can continue on the basis we have and not in any way deteriorate, because I have fear of our financial sector, tourism. And, of course, if we are not going to collect it properly we are going to probably end up exactly like other territories where we have outbreaks of diseases of different kinds. I fully recommend that Government realises the situation and that we take a decision and do what we have to do with regard to that.

Mr. Speaker, on Communications: The 911 system is up and running. As a matter of fact the reports that I have received definitely show me and allow me to feel good that that system has saved lives in the Cayman Islands. We must continue to improve upon communications throughout.

You know the other thing I was told about the other day, Mr. Speaker, was with regard to my taking the initiative to go ahead and establish street lights throughout Grand Cayman. Somebody said to me that I had lit his district too much, but of course when I questioned him as to the crime rate in that district, especially in the area that we lit, I was told, "Yes you're right!" Let me say that as far as I am concerned, light in this country has done something in regard to crime and even in the yard of the Hospital.

All of my enemies have sometimes talked about me in regard to streetlights, but my skin is thick; my shoulders are broad; and even those, who have approached me for lights in their various areas, I have done it with the best of heart. Not necessarily because of the individual, but taking into consideration the importance of lighting certain areas and making sure that when the populace of this country are walking or driving on the streets they are somewhat safe. As long as I am responsible for that, I will give the assurance that we will do as much as possible. As a matter of fact I believe this morning I authorised three for various areas.

Hon. John B. McLean: [In response to interjections] You've been getting all of them.

Mr. Speaker, I turn to Sports. Let me say that I have to compliment and congratulate Mr. McKeever Bush for his many efforts in making sure that throughout these islands we have sporting facilities—good sporting facilities in place. And at the same time, I say that with the greatest of respect to the present Minister. She, too, has been trying her best to make sure that these facilities are provided.

Let me say that in each district we have an area where our young people can get together and play various games. This is something that was long overdue. I have to say again that Mr. Bush has done an excellent job during his short time in there to make sure that those facilities were put in place. I would say on behalf of the young people of this country that they are grateful for his efforts. And, of course, he had the support of the Government of the day.

Hon. John B. McLean: Mr. Speaker, I turn to the Turtle Farm. May I say once again that I am so pleased with the Turtle Farm because today we can boast of supplying meat to the other islands, which was not done before. Along with that, let me tell you, Mr. Speaker, that we have an outlet at the Farmers Market where on any day anyone can walk in there and purchase it the same way they purchase beef.

Along with that, we have to take into consideration the fact that in order for the Farm to continue to promote turtle meat products and to provide for the people of this country, we have to do some upgrading. Presently, the Farm is in the hands of a very capable young man, Mr. Ken Hydes, and his deputy Joe Parsons. Let me tell you that we have gone from strength to strength and we will continue trying to make the Turtle Farm even better than it is. I am sure that I will have the support of Honourable Members in regard to that. Everybody loves turtle meat.

I turn to the Water Authority. Again, I am so pleased to know that action was taken by the past Minister to start the project going into East End. Of course, we will be going into North Side and we will also look at the Cayman Brac project and whatever is possible we are going to make sure is done.

The people of my district, East End, have provided the necessary water, which is trucked from the reservoir there to all other areas in Grand Cayman. I am so proud to know that Government, with the assistance of the Water Authority, has taken on the project that will pump water into my district.

As everyone knows, I will always continue to support projects for the other islands, Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. I will not go into this because my good friend, the Honourable Minister responsible for Community Affairs, Sports, Women, Youth and Culture, made a good presentation in regard to the district of Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. I am prepared to help in any way possible to make sure that we offer the necessary support.

I think she touched on something I would just like to reiterate, and that is hurricane shelters. Let me say that this is most important in the each district. I recall when I started the shelter in my district, everyone thought I was crazy. But when we had the hurricane in 1988, it was a good feeling that I could actually welcome tourists and persons from other Caribbean islands into that little shelter. We must take care of our people, and this is one area that makes a lot of sense.

We have to realise that in each district the population has changed from what it was in days gone by. Each district had a little Town Hall that was used for so many things, and has served the purpose. But we must realise that in each district the population has grown and it is the duty of any good government (as we are) to provide for the people in each district.

I realise that this country produces only so much revenue. I realise that the demands on the Government are such that in some cases it is very hard. But, for the sort of community we offer to our people, we must continue to keep our standards high.

Therefore, when we don't have the revenue people should understand that we have to seek loan assistance. The services to our people surpass the dollars. We must provide for our people. We must keep the standards of the Cayman Islands as they are, which we are all proud of when we boast of our financial centre and tourism. God has blessed us with good common sense from a long time ago: we must continue on that trend. While we may have a few voices crying in the wilderness, we must never, ever allow them to deteriorate something they did not assist in building in the first place.

It was rough trying to put this Budget together because of the demands. I must say that we have a very tolerant Financial Secretary who has worked long hours along with his staff, and today we have the document in front of us.

We have to look at areas where demands are made each day, especially when we speak of roads in the Cayman Islands: a necessity with the number of vehicles we presently have on the island. What should we do? No one who has actually talked about spending money on roads has a solution. I haven't heard anybody over there say that we should stop the importation of cars. And common sense would tell us that we can't because the fact remains that this is an area where we have independence in each family. They are independent and definitely decide on what kind of vehicles and when they should move in the vehicles. To change that, somebody would have to be worse off in his mind than I am.

I strongly suggest, as I have suggested before, and as is borne out in this Budget that we continue on a yearly basis to try our best to put in place what was there before and to make sure that each district benefits from roadworks and that we also tackle the highway we are trying to put through known as the Crewe Road Bypass.

We have a lot of critics who talk about the Harquail Bypass. But for those of us who use that bypass we well know that we may have little hiccoughs at the entrance, which is not completed, but you can drive that road and still save yourself 20-25 minutes from one end to the other from what it would take using the main road to West Bay. So the road is working.

I encourage Members of this House to see fit that we look at the eastern districts because, as they say about a tight pair of shoes, the only person who knows that feeling is the person who wears them. I drive that road each morning. Other Members also drive it. Let me tell you that sometimes it is very annoying. But what can we do with what we have?

I have tried my best. In certain areas we put in third lanes and that is still not enough because of the volume of vehicles that we have on the road. Mr. Speaker, again, I believe that maintaining and upgrading what we have presently is better than allowing it to deteriorate and then having to build other new roads, or going over and capping the full thing. This is what Public Works has tried to promote for a long time, as far as we were concerned, preventative maintenance is better than having to come and ask Government for a lot more to construct something else.

Let me say that with an economy such as ours, with the services we offer in tourism and finance, the monies we would spend on roads to make them safe especially with tourists driving on them, will be money well spent. When I started the road to my district, everyone thought it was a waste of money. But we must plan for the future. I would rather know that in the Cayman Islands we build one mile of road a year at the proper width that would offer our people and visitors safe traffic than for us to build five miles of something that would only encourage accidents.

I am pleased to know that going into my district (and everyone here knows it) thank God I had the foresight. We have opened it up and I only seek the assistance of my colleagues to continue it into that district and to try as we have done in the district of Bodden Town, areas where we can widen, we have been trying with maintenance to widen, and to try to make it as safe as possible. It is almost impossible in some areas and the job of Public Works is never easy. But I must congratulate that department on its work. It has carried out what every Member of this House has actually demanded.

The Speaker: Are you going to a new point at this time?

Hon. John B. McLean: I am coming to a close right now. Mr. Speaker, as far as I am concerned, we have a budget which is in the capable hands of our Financial Secretary and his staff. We can only work along with it. He knows, as well as the Government, what we need in the country. As we have done before whenever a need arises in any district, it is looked at. I would just go back, for example, to streetlights. When we started that, it was for the thoroughway of the Cayman Islands. But, with a good Government, like this Government, we took the stand that we would look at it from a different angle. Today we can be proud of that.

If we work our Budget as we have it, let me say that it is my belief that with God's help and good guidance of a good Government, we will definitely succeed. May God bless the Cayman Islands.

The Speaker: Proceedings are suspended until 2.15.

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.25 PM

The Speaker: Proceedings are resumed. Debate continues on the Second Reading of the Appropriation (1999) Bill, 1998. Does any other Member wish to speak? If not, does the Honourable Third Official Member wish to exercise his right to reply?

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Thank you.

The debate this year has been a particularly significant one. Throughout their respective contributions and deliberations, Members of this Honourable House have shown not only a very genuine concern for the issues that confront us, but also a willingness to help find solutions to the problems.

I would like to thank each and every Honourable Member of this House for his participation in this important debate. It was, indeed, heart-warming to see Members provide hard-hitting, but constructive criticism on the one hand, but then quickly blend in a special kind of camaraderie and good-naturedness. This is an indicator of our growth and maturity. We recognise that we might have different opinions, but respect each other's point of view. As we all know, the best approach is for us to put our heads together and to work constructively towards the betterment of these islands.

Throughout this debate numerous ideas were presented in many different areas. It is clearly not possible for me to comment on all of these. But I would like to address several Public Finance issues and a few other areas where Members have asked for clarification. Over the past two weeks, three pertinent Public Finance issues have dominated our discussions. Firstly, the size of a realistic capital development programme and its financing; secondly, the debt servicing requirements of an additional $10 million in loans in 1999 and $24 million in the year 2000; and thirdly, the controversial area of revenue enhancement measures.

On capital development and its financing, Mr. Speaker, in preparing the Budget each year, the Government, like most other Governments, faces the same problem—many competing demands and limited resources. However, this year the problem seems to be more complex. Resources had to be found for large infrastructural projects costing millions of dollars that are likely to run between the next two to three years.

We have heard about the millions of dollars needed to fund road resurfacing and new road construction. But road works are only one part of the capital development programme. There is a crying need as pointed out by Ministers of Government and other Honourable Members of this Legislative Assembly for a range of facilities to improve our social infrastructure. These are schools, remand centres, and mental institutions, just to name a few. We have to ensure that development for us does not just mean economic development. Promoting social development and maintaining a healthy, wholesome society are equally important.

The point has been made that we need to increase the size of our capital development programme and consider it within the timeframe of two years. This more realistic budget, as it has been termed, will seek to maintain the levels and kinds of services needed in the Cayman Islands. In order to finance the additional expenditure it is proposed that Government seek to borrow a further $10 million. This is in addition to the $19.1 million proposed in the Budget. The question this raises, however, is, What type of impact this is likely to have on our debt servicing. Let me explore this issue further.

I would like to make a clarification on the 1998 debt service ratio mentioned in the Budget Address. This ratio was stated as 7.2%, but revised estimates on debt servicing recently made available indicate that this figure is likely to be 7% and not 7.2%. The previous figure was based on the approved 1998 Budgeted Estimates, which showed total debt service payments slightly higher than what are now expected.

In computing future debt service ratios, there are two variables to consider: absolute debt service payments and recurrent revenue estimates. Depending upon the assumption we make in calculating either of these, the results may vary. Future debt service payments are calculated assuming a 6.5% interest rate for the next three years, and a ten-year repayment period. Given the current trend towards lower interest rates, we believe the 6.5% rate is reasonable. It is further assumed that borrowings would be $30 million in 1999 and $24 million in the year 2000.

A few loans, including two large ones, are expected to mature in the years 2000 and 2001. These have been taken into account. Annual repayments on these loans are expected to be approximately $657,000 in the year 2000, and $284,000 in the year 2001. They include the Cayman Airways Limited recapitalisation loan of $16.6 million which was taken out in 1993, and the Cayman Brac Port Project Loan of $1.5 million which was started in 1991. The Honourable Minister for Education mentioned that while debt service payments seem to be quite high, the majority of these loans are short-term loans. And the one especially for the recapitalisation of Cayman Airways bears this out, because as just mentioned, this loan will be paid off within the next two to three years.

On recurrent revenue estimates: Making projections on recurrent revenue is not an easy task. The recent period 1995 through 1998 has been one of relative prosperity both internationally and in terms of the domestic economy. During this time, growth in the domestic recurrent revenue averaged a healthy 11.4%. However, given current global economic conditions it appears that the world may experience slow growth in the future.

As mentioned in the Budget Address, any slowdown in the US economy may not affect us until late 1999, or the year 2000. But, as you are well aware, the US economy, contrary to some predictions, has not yet shown any signs of a slowdown. This is in terms of a decline in consumer spending or lower investment levels. Given this uncertain situation, two different scenarios are painted each with varying assumptions about the future.

The first scenario is a baseline scenario. It assumes revenue growth in 1999 to be in line with the budgeted projections, that is, 17.2%. This 17.2% includes a 12.2% basic growth, plus an additional 5% from the revenue measures. In 2000 and 2001 it is assumed that revenue growth slows considerably to 5% in these two years. The second scenario is a pessimistic one. It assumes slow growth rate of 11.4% in 1999 instead of the budgeted 17.2% and that there will be no growth in recurrent revenue in 2000 and 2001.

Based on these scenarios we now look at the debt service ratio. Our calculations show that the debt service ratio under the baseline scenario is expected to reach a maximum of 8.4% in 2001. Further, under the pessimistic scenario, this ratio increases to a maximum of 9.8% in 2001. In both cases debt service ratio does not extend beyond the 10% limit set by the Government.

We will be circulating a table for Honourable Members to see how these figures were arrived at and to test their logic, to demonstrate that the figures were not 'made' or 'fudged' to come under the 10% limit. Even with the most optimistic scenario, it is unlikely that if the Government implements the full capital development programme, the one referred to as a realistic capital budget, that there would be a need to consider having to borrow the full $24 million in the year 2000.

It is one of such where we do believe that the landscape in terms of the world economic situation is changing. But we can get an indication from the level of inward investment that is taking place in the Cayman Islands at this time, and what is contemplated, what is on the horizon, as an indication of likely economic growth. So far, I think we have reason to be optimistic.

One of the things I should point out—and we have to be very careful in terms of how we set ourselves up as 'prophets of doom and gloom'—although it is important that we be realistic, there is no point in burying our heads in the sand and thinking that a recession is not within the wider international community. What we have to be careful of, in addition to the variables influencing that recession, is that we do not add to that by talking ourselves into one.

We see, for example, that when it comes around to a Presidential election in the United States, that country goes into a mild recession. That is normal because the stage has been set and the atmosphere charged, and it could be the political will of the campaigners, but this always leads to a certain amount of fear and doubt. While we have to be very realistic, these are matters we have to consider very carefully.

I am happy to say, judging from all the contributions I have heard from Honourable Members of this House, that they have set out their concerns in a very constructive way. I must say I am very pleased. Members have pointed out areas that should be addressed by Government, and it is very important that Government turn its attention to these areas. We have seen on the fiscal reform side, we know it is very important. We know we are living in a day and age where we don't have to deal with guesswork anymore. We can use scientific reasoning. We know that we have people around with the acumen. We know the expertise exists. We find it very much amongst Members of the Legislative Assembly. It is time for us to sit down and take this better approach.

I should say, the Government is now committed to this. It is not a question of talk. Some of the Members of this Honourable House are active participants, on the committees that have been set up to deal with these reform initiatives.

Turning now to the controversial area of revenue enhancement measures. Mr. Speaker, there has been much discussion on the revenue enhancement measures presented in the Budget. Some Members have questioned the idea of increasing taxes, fees and charges as a form of raising revenue. Others have objected to specific areas of increases, or to the scale of increases. But amidst all of these criticisms, one basic point needs to be emphasised—the goods and services provided by Government cost money and they must be paid for.

One speaker gave concrete examples of how little we pay for some very essential services such as garbage collection. A similar situation exists in many other areas where fees have not been raised for the past 15 or more years.

One area that requires urgent attention is health services fees. The George Town Hospital cost several million dollars to construct and a range of new and improved services is now being provided there. Fees which will have to be increased include administrative services, such as medical autopsy, and medical examination reports; dental and eye clinic services; new services and procedures such as hip and knee replacements; clinics conducted by professionals allied to medicine such as psychologists, occupational therapists, and dieticians, and fees for non-residents.

Throughout the debate, several Members have pointed to alternative ways of generating revenue. The Government welcomes any suggestion Honourable Members of this House would like to contribute in this area. It is clear, as many speakers have pointed out, that the entire revenue situation needs to be examined comprehensively. We have to consider the cost of goods and services provided by Government in relation to fees and charges levied on them. We also have to examine the structure of revenue generation and new ways of generating revenue.

The Portfolio of Finance and Economic Development intends to give this top priority to this area of work in 1999. Connected with this is a proposal for the setting up of a think-tank. That is an excellent suggestion. In terms of the composition of that group, there are Members of this Honourable House who are ably qualified to be a part of that group when it is put together—Members of Executive Council, Members within our Economics and Statistics Department and within the wider community.

Mr. Speaker, this is one suggestion that is welcomed by the Government and it is one that will be acted upon. Not only in the area of generating revenue or probably putting forward constructive suggestions in terms of Government's overall fiscal management, but it is likely that this group will be able to make significant contributions in other areas.

Mr. Speaker, before closing I would like to comment on a few other points. The first point concerns the need for a National Disaster Fund—a suggestion made by the Elected Member for North Side. As we all know, we were extremely fortunate to have been spared the full wrath of hurricane Mitch. I recall this suggestion being made much earlier by the Honourable Third Elected Member for Bodden Town as well. Obviously, no one likes to entertain the thought of a hurricane passing through our islands. But our location places us at risk of such natural disasters.

We may not have control over the forces of nature, but we can certainly prepare as comprehensively as possible for such an occurrence. The establishment of a National Disaster Fund is very important. Such a fund will help to cover not only immediate needs for food, shelter and medical attention. But it will also assist in repairing and re-constructing essential infrastructure that is often destroyed by hurricanes.

The second point I would like to make is really a clarification on a statement made earlier, on the financial reforms being undertaken by the Government. Let me emphasise that these reforms will not merely constitute a shift from a cash-based to an accrual-based accounting system—nor just a movement towards output specification. The reforms will involve changes in our budgetary processes; in planning and programming our resources; and in improved specification of policies relating to expenditure, revenue, debt and general reserves. In general, they will contribute towards prudent and more effective fiscal management.

Mr Speaker, concerning the specific issue of the Stock Exchange, I would like to emphasise that the Exchange is still in its initial development phase, but has achieved notable success in attracting quality listings and memberships. Self-sufficiency in the long term depends upon the Exchange continuing its current levels of growth, while also maintaining its high standards of regulation. Revenue for the first eleven months of 1998 has increased by 53% over 1997, from $257,000 to $392,000. If the current levels of growth and revenue generation are maintained, the Exchange should be self-sufficient in four to five years.

Mr. Speaker, I have mentioned in this House on previous occasions that in setting up our Stock Exchange it was intended that to achieve completeness and to complement the range of financial services (the products that the Cayman Islands offer as an international financial centre) that caution had to be employed because we are still getting out of the gate. We do not want anyone within the international community, or slick operators, to feel that the Cayman Islands are somewhat vulnerable and bring on listings to our Stock Exchange that we will later regret. We are being supercautious. We are being exceptionally careful to ensure that the Stock Exchange is properly developed; while in its infancy we have reason to be quite happy and satisfied with the level of growth that is taking place. And we are experiencing this. It was pointed out from the inception that this was the approach the Government would be adopting.

One Member requested information on the Millennium Bug problem. The Chief Secretary is expected to provide a full statement to this Honourable House quite soon on this topic.

Mr Speaker, I look forward to a very interesting and rewarding New Year in 1999. The Government has a long agenda and many challenges to face. As we face those challenges, I will be reminded of all the constructive criticisms and helpful suggestions made over the past two weeks or so, in this Honourable House.

I would like to thank every Honourable Member for his contribution to this Budget Debate. I would like to thank you, Mr. Speaker, for your patience. I would like to thank the staff within the Portfolio of Finance and Development, the controlling officers who worked very closely with the Executive Council in putting the Budget together, and the Permanent Secretaries for their very valuable input. We are at that time of year when we feel that even the way the breeze is blowing, there is a spirit of goodwill in the air. And we are always mindful of our heritage.

In closing I would like to wish God's richest blessings upon you, the Government as a whole, every Member of this Legislative Assembly, the staff of the Legislative Assembly, the extended members of all of the groups I have mentioned, the entire Cayman Islands community, and to say thanks, especially to the staff within the Portfolio of Finance and Development.

This Budget has certainly been team work, not only for the Portfolio of Finance and Development, but for the Executive Council, Permanent Secretaries, participating for the first time, they, being in touch with their Heads of Departments, everyone was very much aware of the changes that were made.

We know that there are certain areas that Members are concerned about on the revenue measures. We will look at those very carefully. The Government is prepared to sit down with Members of this Honourable House to look at the proposed increases and to take suggestions on board.

At this time, Mr. Speaker, let me say thanks again to you and to Honourable Members. May God bless everyone.

STANDING ORDER 63(3)

The Speaker: The Appropriation (1999) Bill, 1998, together with the Estimates now stand referred to the Standing Finance Committee.

That completes the business on the Order Paper for today. I would entertain a motion for the adjournment of this Honourable House. The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of this Honourable House until Finance Committee completes its sittings and reports back to the House.

[Prayers by the Honourable Minister for Health, Social Welfare, Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation]

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. I recognise the Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

As I mentioned to you this morning, your permission is being sought, and Members' indulgence, to allow for a short meeting of Finance Committee to be convened. The reason for this is to consider the Government's end of year financial position and how this will impact upon the proposed borrowings of Government to finance the Capital Development Programme, and also the overall financial position of Government.

The Speaker: I shall now put the question that this House suspend until deliberations are completed in Finance Committee — which I hope will be extremely short. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

SECOND READING

THE FINANCE BILL, 1998

Deputy Clerk: The Finance Bill, 1998.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I beg to move the second reading of a Bill entitled, The Finance Bill, 1998.

The discussion on this subject during the debate on the Budget Address highlighted two very important issues: One point is that our expenditure levels have risen fairly rapidly in recent years as Government has moved to provide a wide range of services and to expand the infrastructure. The second point is that although revenue growth has been healthy over the years, our revenue base is quite narrow. Therefore, the Government's ability to raise revenue through taxation of necessity is limited in scope. We are all aware of the shortcomings of the indirect taxation system such as we have, but the Government is committed to a policy of no direct income taxes.

In this 1999 Budget, the Government relied on two ways of helping to fund the large expenditure bill. Firstly, through the raising of fees and charges, as now being proposed; and secondly, by borrowing. The Government is aware that raising taxes, fees and charges, is not a popular way of raising revenue. The decision to go this route was not an easy one for the Government. It was made after extensive deliberations and discussions with controlling officers, amongst Ministers of Executive Council, and taking into account the needs of all departments of Government. But, as mentioned, if the Government is to provide the quality and level of services needed, and presently being demanded by the community, these services must be paid for. Many of the services provided by the Government, as all honourable Members of this House are aware, are heavily subsidised and fees in many instances have not been raised for quite some time.

Turning now to the specific revenue measures. The package of revenue measures being presented today is expected to yield an estimated $11.8 million. It consists of fees in nine areas the details of which are contained in the schedule as circulated to Honourable Members at the initial presentation of the Budget Address. I will comment briefly on these.

Starting with alcohol beverages and cigarettes: The last increase in this area was some six years ago. The proposed increase is approximately 25% across the board. We should note that no duty increase was made for one of the most popular alcoholic beverages, and that is beer.

Secondly, turning to school fees: The increases proposed will affect non-Caymanian children only. These rates have not been raised since they were introduced in 1993. The proposed rates are $750 for primary schools, $900 for the middle school, and $1200 for the high schools. Even with these higher rates, the Government will still be subsidising quite heavily the education of non-Caymanian children in the schools of the Cayman Islands to the extent of between 70% and 75%. On average, it costs Government $2,705 per year to educate each child in a primary school, and $4,909 in the high schools. Although the proposed fees may seem high, they are still some 80% less than the private schools.

Turning to garbage fees: With the rate increase of $100 per year for houses and apartments, garbage collection will still be subsidised by approximately 50%. It costs the Government by way of direct expenditure $197 per year to collect and dispose of garbage at houses and apartments. This does not take into account notional charges, such as the cost of accommodation and depreciation of vehicles. So when these are factored in this amount of $197 will be exceeded.

Turning to schoolbook rental fees: These rates have not been raised since they were introduced in 1993. Like school fees, schoolbooks are also heavily subsidised. For example, for primary school children in Year 1, the fee moves from $5 to $50, but the cost of supplying these books is $90 which means that the subsidy is approximately 44%. In the high schools the fee moves from $17 to $150, and the cost of supplying these books is $350. The subsidy is approximately 57%.

Turning to Trade and Business Licensing fees: these fees have not been raised since 1990. A few new categories have been added and others expanded or modified. On the liquor licensing fees, these have not been raised since the mid-1970s. The proposal, therefore, is for the doubling of these fees.

Turning to work permits: With one exception, increases in all fees have been quite modest—just 10%. Domestic, manual and unskilled workers must now pay $150 instead of $100.

Turning to company and partnership fees: These fees were lowered four years ago. Increases in most categories are modest, amounting to approximately 15% across the board, thus maintaining the competitiveness of doing business or registering companies in the Cayman Islands.

Finally, on health practitioners and legal practitioners fees, increases have been made in all categories in these two areas.

We are aware of the fact that the motion moved under the Customs Law to put into effect the increases on alcohol and cigarettes has since expired. But as I mentioned earlier during the meeting of Finance Committee, it was never envisaged that we would still be debating the budget at this point in time; I think the best judgment was used in the assumption that all of the proceedings would have been completed before the beginning of the New Year. However, in good faith across the board, the fees have remained in place because although the motion would have expired, the increases to the public were effected immediately by the retailers and wholesalers. So, in effect, what is now being sought is to give retrospective consideration in order to make the fees applicable from the time of their introduction as provided under the Customs schedule, and in other areas to be effective as of 1st January.

At this time I would like to commend this Bill to all Members.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled The Finance Bill, 1998, be given a second reading. It is now open to debate. The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The position of the Government at this time with these proposed revenue enhancement measures reminds me of the position of Madame Bovary in Gustave Flaubert's Novel of that name. Madame Bovary was a staid and provincial young wife married to a respected doctor who came to the city of Paris and was awed by her surroundings and strayed from her vows and allowed sensuousness and ambition to destroy her relationship and herself.

The Government, like Madame Bovary, has lost its innocence and can no longer boast that its record of not raising taxes and imposing burdens on the people is intact. And I am quite surprised since that was one of the planks on which what is now left of the National Team, rode to office trying to trounce persons such as me when they published their manifesto boasting that they had imposed no new duties or taxes to burden our Caymanian people. And promising that they were going to reduce spending without causing excessive damage to projects and that they were going to exercise fiscal constraint.

Talk is cheap! And in the throes of election there are many who become euphoric and get taken up by these kinds of promises, particularly when they have audiences. But I say that these things are like chickens—they come home to roost! I wonder what they are going to say next time around. What promises are they going to make? Which government are they going to trounce?

I was even more surprised when the leader published, on October 18, a pamphlet entitled "Issues and Answers—A News Bulletin from the National Team", boasting that the Government's finances showed recurrent profit of $60.3 million. Alice in Wonderland! I wonder where that recurrent profit is now. I wonder what use has it been put to.

Long ago, the Leader of Government Business, the former Minister for Agriculture, Communication and Works (now the Third Elected Member for George Town), and I, brought a phrase to this Parliament describing that kind of accounting—single-entry bookkeeping! That is still applicable, and I am happy that that Member is here now off my right flank, experiencing a sense of déjà vu. I only hope that when it is his turn to speak he makes grand of his opportunity to remind certain people of how the chickens have come home to roost. I hear there are all kinds of proposals for marriages of conveniences. I am just reminding them that it is against the Immigration Law. And it may be against natural politics too!

Mr. Speaker, putting all jest aside, we have to take this seriously because the record of this Government should cause alarm in this country as far as raising revenue is concerned, for it was only in 1997 that the Government set the country in a state of flux and for the first time I saw 3,000 people assembled at the Lions Centre in protest against what the Government was imposing upon them at that time. I have here a pamphlet put out for that occasion by Deloitte and Touche, Vol. 1 No. 1 of March 1997, called "The Cayman Update", and it said it was for clients, staff and friends of Deloitte and Touche and it proceeded to analyse and set out the implications of the 1997 Budget.

What is important, and striking, is this: It set out the impact of these duties, fees and taxes on the Caymanian economic community at that time, and it catalogued them. But prior to cataloguing them it proceeded to make what I call some stark warnings and contrasts of where our society was heading if we did not get a grip on these matters. And it talked about the higher duties and all the effects they were going to have—the stamp duties, the duties on the financial services, the development impact fees, the building permit fees, firearms licences and permits, immigration fees, law school fees, garbage fees. Mr. Speaker, I am going to crave your indulgence to say something about this.

At that time the garbage fees imposed were mainly on larger businesses, hotels and restaurants. Private homes and apartments remained unchanged. Government has now taken the matter across the spectrum. Garbage fees now affect private homes and apartments which serves to indicate that there is a sense of desperation—'We have to catch all and sundry.' Of course, they established the environmental protection fee and then there were demands on the increased contributions from Government agencies, like the Civil Aviation Authority, the Port Authority, and the Water Authority.

The point I wish to make at the outset is this: We cannot continue to burden our people by taxing them through these traditional means. The brunt of these taxes are borne by the proverbial "little man." We on the backbench who have publicly announced that we stand in common against certain of these things which we have articulated through the media realise that this will have a negative effect. I was surprised, Mr. Speaker, when the Minister of Education, the Leader of Government Business—who sets himself up as a proponent of education, particularly education for all—allowed the introduction of an increase in fees which will affect school children.

Mr. Speaker, I want to go on record as saying that this is the beginning of the end. This is how it started in Jamaica. I take note that the Financial Secretary mentioned that it is only 8 per cent [sic] difference between what the Government is requiring and the private schools—80 per cent. That is a significant step. It could have only been one [per cent]. The principle is that it creates a frightening precedent. Here is why: Education, to many in this society, is the one avenue that people have to gaining parity and economic ability and independence. If we take that away from them through increased fees—irrespective of the percentage—we are depriving them of their ability to live in dignity, to be productive citizens and to bear their fair share of the development, and also to earn their way to economic respectability.

In any society people achieve economic social status by two means: either by ascription or by achievement. And we know the levels of those who have it in our society by ascription. Now by imposing these kinds of fees we are eliminating the possibility of a large number of people acquiring this status through achievement. I say 'it is a dark day in our history that this has come about.'

I look forward to the justification put up by the Minister for Education when he gets up; that Minister who in the past was so quick to label persons like me "defunct," and every other thing. I want to pause to interject that it doesn't surprise me. And that behaviour can best be described by an old and wise comparison. Do you know what I believe? There are many wolves running around here in sheep's clothing. Many!

I want to be made to understand why we have departed from all of the advice we have been giving about cutting our suit according to our cloth. I want to understand where all those people are who claimed to have been a part of the economic success and to have had part in crafting and designing the course that we had embarked upon. And who from the time I came here, never ceased to remind governments and backbench alike of the elements of our success.

Where are they now? Why this diversion? Why are we now throwing caution to the wind? Or was that plainly opportunistic? Were they speaking with no sincerity? I don't believe that. Indeed, I am convinced that there was much sincerity. I know some of those players and I have reason to believe that they meant what they said. Hence, I am further puzzled now by the change in this disposition.

Why are we entering into this era of economic mismanagement, putting revenue measure after revenue measure on the people? Some years ago (December 10, 1996) a publication put out by the Dominion Bond Rating Service said we were entering a debt spiral. We are now in the debt spiral, but we are also into a tax spiral. I am contending that this is too much for us to bear at this time. And this behaviour that the Financial Secretary spoke about in 1993 when he said "We will have to develop a credible strategy to effectively place limits on growth in public expenditure without seriously impairing the effectiveness of public sector programmes." There is more than a striking similarity to that little excerpt with the position taken by the National Team in their manifesto where they said they were going to reduce spending without causing excessive damage to projects.

So where is the effort? Is it in the revenue measures of 1997? Is it in these revenue measures now? I doubt it. You know what, Mr. Speaker? They have lost the vision, if, indeed, they had it from the beginning. There is one thing I notice here in this forum, myriad persons are getting up and making claims. I stand here a proud representative to say that I was in no way fooled from day one—from the 27th day of November 1996. I remember that day well, when some people who now seem to be courting the Government took me on, because I said that I would set myself up as a 'watchdog.' My position has been singularly consistent and I have barked every time I have had reason to, with I might add in praise to myself, great sense and logic.

It simply cannot continue. We cannot continue to overburden the people with taxes on the same areas. People are crying out. Tourism is affected. I spoke to some restaurateurs who are complaining. I spoke to other people in the hospitality business who say they are suffering the effects. These things are beginning to become counterproductive. Mr. Speaker, our revenue base, as far as the numbers are concerned, is very limited. The Financial Secretary has made that remark umpteen times. I would have thought that with all of the grey matter, with all of the expertise available to the Government, the political directorate, they would have set up some kind of think-tank, or advisory body which would allow them to broaden the revenue base.

Does it have to take a little rural Bodden Towner, such as this Third Elected Member, to drum the importance of that into them? Other people have been saying it for years. The Third Elected Member for George Town said it long ago. He has echoed it since his return here many times. I have heard my good friend and colleague, the First Elected Member for George Town, speak it numerous times; the First Elected Member for West Bay, and the Third Elected Member for West Bay—but nothing has been done now. You know the only thing that has been done? When certain advertisement hit the public about a group 'gelling' (that's a good old political saying) and forming themselves into a cohesive force, the Government proceeded to take fright and brought out one old scissors and found where it could trim. It now believes that it can come here and samfie us into believing that that effort in and of itself is good enough.

Mr. Speaker, I happen to know that when they were strong, the National Team was good at taking polls. They ought to take a poll now! It's easy when you have entities that you can sound off on. It is considerably more difficult when one has to use his or her own intuition and grey matter to craft policies and approaches which are creative and not onerous. The challenge was for the National Team political directorate to have done no less.

And, Mr. Speaker, you will pardon me if I keep playing this note: I remember distinctly in 1995 when some of us were visionary enough to say 'Here is what is happening in New Zealand, maybe we should pay some attention to this.' Do you know what my good friend, the Minister for Tourism, got up and said—following, I suppose the Leader of Government Business? That it wasn't his duty to know the laws of New Zealand, or to follow anything about New Zealand. After all, New Zealand was an independent country. And do you know what I now hear them saying? Well, if the New Zealand business was so good, tell me how come they are in the position they are now.

Do you know what happened, Mr. Speaker? The public sector in New Zealand went to rock bottom before they decided they had to do something drastic. And the reason they are running into a little turbulence now is because the economy of New Zealand—as every informed person knows—is tied intricately to the Southeast Asian economy. Anyone who reads Business Week, or The Economist, or listens to the BBC Asia Report, knows that the economy of Southeast Asia is as poor as a church mouse at this time. But, that does not mean that the reform efforts in New Zealand are not working, for if they were not working I want those critics to explain to me how people from all over the world are travelling to New Zealand to study and model the system. Trust me, that is not hearsay.

I said that to say that sometimes in this forum we should be a little less insular and a great deal more cosmopolitan in our thinking. I have a little saying: 'No longer can we run the country with the mentality of a villager.' We must have a broad mentality now. We have to be able to extrapolate the best. Countries worldwide are getting away from this system of 'beating the same horse all the time'. We have to broaden our revenue base; we have to effect creative strategies. Our people are taxed to the hilt. Soon we will have earned the reputation of being the highest taxed country in the world—well behind Canada, which I am sure would be glad to yield the reputation to us!

Mr. Speaker, I want to tell you something else, and I can say these things because I am not sure that I have much time in this forum. Do you know what the weakness here is? There are too many people who scoff and put down those who may have ideas to offer. Maybe they should read or re-read the Desiderata and they would understand that even fools at times have advice which could prove fitting and useable.

I look forward to the time when I can be extricated from the forum and catalogue the mistakes of all the experts, including the pretenders. I would be a hypocrite if I said that would bring me joy, because it pains me to see my country go down this path. It pains me to realise that the more we engage in this type of behaviour the greater the possibility is that we will wind up on that highway to the IMF and the World Bank.

Mr. Speaker, I am surprised. I am chagrined, that the political directorate of the National Team, which was so quick to boast of its record from 1992 to 1996 . . . and I know, because in my constituency a lesser man would have wilted under their pressure. They were so quick to boast of their success, and have not jettisoned that formula and seem to be masters of what my friend, the Third Elected Member for George Town, called “crisis management”—patching here, patching there; raising taxes on this and raising taxes on that. That is no way to run a country on the eve of the 21st Century. You have to have a plan. And the basis of that plan should be a long-term vision where the country is going—the prerequisite of which is a prioritised list of capital works.

I also want to say this, because opportunities for this kind of talk may be lessening for me: Way back in 1978, when persons like me proposed that the ill-informed and the uninformed (to be charitable) got up talking about socialists, red, pink, that only they talk about ten-year plans. Mr. Speaker, I came from the background where that was the popular trend. Today, the geopolitics of the world has changed significantly. And even capitalist countries, those who were most staunchly so from the very beginning, are the trend-setters now saying that this is the way to go, beginning with the mother of them all, the United States. So, if they can realise that, how much more so should we, who like to boast that we are such prudent managers? I well know that the absence of such a plan causes reactionary behaviour, the raising of taxes and continuous borrowing. And still, no apparent progress is being made.

I won't burden the House by reading and re-reading what has been said by persons when they held certain positions. I only want to say that I can never understand the difference between the preaching and the practising. It is a wide dichotomy. I would have thought that attaining certain positions would have provided a manifest opportunity for some of these practices that were so often preached about to be put in place. Is it lack of political will? Is it political expediency? Is it brinkmanship? Is it a total disregard? What is it? What explains this paradox between preaching and practice?

And now, Mr. Speaker, they are going to come and tell us that they are ahead of us because they are able to do this? Where is the discipline? Is the disciplined approach overruled by mere political expediency? Are we that shallow? Are we that fickle? Men, who stand over six feet tall, saying that we shed discipline for political expediency and fickleness? Is that what we are saying? Are we saying that we masters of doublespeak and doublethink are saying one thing and doing the next?

I am almost tempted to borrow the mantle from the Leader of Government Business and say, as a lawyer, that I submit that is what the Government is doing at this time. There is a trend to everything. I hope it is not that they sense a certain ominous doom and they are muddying the waters thinking we don't have the ability to clear them up. I hope it is not that.

There is a sense that in this kind of debate we should take no prisoners. I have always said that I didn't ask for any quarter, because when it's my turn that I am not prepared to give any—absolutely not. Do you know why? Because all the time I was being thrashed, no one poured any balm on my wounds. I vowed that I would speak my truth fearlessly and forthrightly. And that is what I am going to do.

I am alarmed at the state we are in. Garbage taxes on the proverbial ‘little man’, school fees on those people who are trying and being encouraged to ascribe to an education for their children, and book rental fees . . . Just yesterday a mother with three children in the school system asked me, “Am I going to be expected to come up with all this money one time when I am just a mother who has no help from the father? How am I going to meet these obligations? Were any thoughts given to persons in positions like I am?”

What are we trying to do? Is it good enough to boast that we are the fifth largest financial centre in the world and have the highest tax rate of any country? Is it good enough to say that the Cayman Islands are prosperous, but we have people who are struggling to keep up and are just treading water? Where is our sense of direction? Why should we embark on projects that make it necessary to inflict these kinds of taxes on our people at this time? Yet, when you ask the Government to prioritise it can only come back with a document that is reduced by $2.5 million. I am amazed. That wouldn't make sense even in the creation of crabs.

I want to pause here to interject. In 1993 the Financial Secretary said, "We cannot and will not achieve in one year or four years all we would like to achieve. Therefore, we must determine priorities, order them and make choices that are realistic and achievable." I have to wonder, as someone who comes from an intellectual background, what happens to these speeches once they are read. What is the purpose? Do successive political directorates go through these prior to embarking on budgets? Or is this just an exercise meant to entertain the audience? Are these things taken from year to year, from budget to budget, from policy to policy? Is anything extrapolated from them? Is any of this wisdom used to chart direction, or are they just folded once the budget session is over? Are they lost, except for people like me who like to peruse and sometimes have a mischievous sense of search? Or is it that the political directorate takes them prior to making up the succeeding one and says 'Now, let us see what we should embark upon; let us see what should be carried over; let us see if it is necessary to make any alterations.' I bet that at the interim moment when the budget debate and finance committee are completed, they are laid somewhere to gather dust and cobweb.

Past experience leads me to come to that conclusion, and the behaviour of the political directorate now in power confirms that. Because how could these things have been read? Not only was this read, it was underlined—not by me. I highlighted it. It was underlined by the presenter and we so obviously departed from what was sage advice. We have a primary practitioner in the Minister for Tourism. He left us with a lot of wisdom—wisdom that he himself, although spoken by him, did not take and is not taking. Maybe the mathematical equation does not allow him to take it. I don't know.

Politics being what it is, I hope that that Honourable Minister does not find himself in a position where he has to take dictates from the gentleman with 25 years' banking experience. It all boils down to this: If we don't find a different methodology we are going to wind up like so many others in history, who when the opportunities presented themselves, did not avail themselves to the best of their ability.

I want to say... I believe the same is true: One of the weaknesses people have—and it is probably a weakness that I will be quick to ascribe to myself because many of the things I say are as applicable to myself as it is to others. Believe you me, I would not be so arrogant, or so conceited, as to stand here and let anyone believe that I am without fault and demerits. I want to say that sometimes it is disadvantageous to be an expert because it too easily allows us to turn a deaf ear to those persons who may have good advice to offer, but whom we think may not be in our same category. Governments can learn a lot from people on the backbench, and vice versa.

I know the nature of politics being what they are, that it is sometimes best to be adversarial. But being adversarial does not mean that one is not constructive. The nature of the Westminster system thrives on a certain level of adversarial politics. But that does not mean that the Government should not sometimes heed what the Backbench is saying. I also contend that our country is too precious for all of us to be so taken up that we allow certain kinds of mistakes to be made.

Mr. Speaker, there is no need for me to be anymore long-winded than I have been on this occasion. I would like to record that I do not see it as my duty to impose at this time these kinds of taxes on my people. And with respect to the money, which the Government just recently said is available, I would suggest that that money be used in such a way that we could lessen the revenue package at this time. And, Mr. Speaker, what advice do I have for the Government? Prioritise and plan.

Some of us are keeping our eye on the year 2000, and we know that there is a great temptation to tailor one's political behaviour in such a way as to acquire certain advantages. In many instances there is nothing wrong with that. In this instance it is unacceptable because the country is put at great inconvenience, great expense and a great rift.

I want to footnote all that I have said by asking this question: Where are those people, who for so many years have boasted about their business experience and their business degrees, and their financial background, and who were so unflattering and so ungenerous as to remind some of us on the backbench that we didn't understand because we didn't have the degrees or the experience; who were also so quick to say that those who understood and found themselves qualified on this side had it wrong. Where are they now, Mr. Speaker? They are conspicuous by their absence. Their voices have almost been stilled.

Their behaviour reminds me of the farewell address that Commissioner Gerard gave, "When the weather is rough they batten down below; but when it's smooth they want to come on deck and take the wheel from the captain." The weather is getting rough now, Mr. Speaker. You will understand this. It's getting choppy. But you won't see them on deck with any oilskins; they're down below. I hope for their sakes that they do not get too seasick because I have a feeling it's going to get a little choppier than this.

Thank you.

The Speaker: At this time we will suspend until 2.15, and Members let us try to resume at 2.15.

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.22 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Debate continues on the Finance Bill, 1998. Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause) The Third Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I rise to offer my contribution on the proposed revenue measures that the Government needs this year in order to fund its massive capital projects programme. Government proposes to raise $11.8 million in new revenue from many of the traditional sources it has used over and over again. It is always good to remind ourselves as to where we are coming from and maybe get back on the right course.

I am one of those National Team members who has decided to part ways with the Government because it has basically gone off track in regard to the policies and principles that held the team together from 1992. I read with interest the 1992 National Team Manifesto which states the financial policies and principles we had when we started out. With your permission, Mr. Speaker, under "Our Policy" it states:

1. "We believe in living within our country's means and exercising fiscal restraint.
2. Any recommendations for expenditure proposed in this manifesto are subject to (a) wishes of the majority of our constituents; and (b) there being sufficient funds available for the projects."

That is a policy that I have always adhered to since becoming a member of this Honourable House, and I hold to that principle today.

What is sad is that the same National Team, of which I was a part until 1996, basically chastised the 1988 to 1992 Government in regard to revenue measures. On page 8 of that Manifesto, under "Financial Disaster of Last Elected Government" it reads, "They imposed $20 million new duties and taxes in 1990 and 1991 the burden of which fell mainly on Caymanians." I did a rough calculation on what the National Team Government has introduced by way of new tax measures. In 1997 I recall the Government imposed new revenue measures of some $10 million. And in 1999 we are now proposing that we take another $11.8 million from the public, from the traditional revenue sources. In my calculations, that is close to $22 million. We chastised the last Government (1988 to 1992) for imposing $20 million—we thought that was a sin! And here it is okay for the National Team Government, to impose $22 million in two years? Is it right because of who is doing it? If it's wrong, it's wrong.

The six Opposition backbenchers who have decided to join forces are not opposing the individual areas of new measures, that is alcohol and tobacco, and even garbage fees. We are opposing it based on the principle. The principle is that the present Government (and we have preached this from day one) has not done any different from any other government prior to it. There is a lack of forward planning.

What happened in 1999 is what always happens: When Government is in the process of putting together its budget, all of a sudden there is a certain amount of revenue recognised and a certain amount of expenditure that you want. There is always a gap. When it first started, I guess the gap was in the region of $29 million. They said, 'Let's borrow nineteen point something million dollars, and raise the other $11.8 [million] from the traditional sources—tobacco and alcohol.'

I also heard the honourable Financial Secretary say when he presented the Bill, that the proposed increases in school fees were not going to affect Caymanian students. That is not so. There are many Caymanians married to non-Caymanians and in a lot of cases there are children involved who belong to the foreign spouse who have been brought to live here in Grand Cayman. Naturally, they have to be schooled. Many of these parents are poor Caymanians. I have had a number of representations from these parents at my office in West Bay. One said to me, 'Mr. Jefferson, I have four children that I need to pay school fees for.' And at $750—even though it's per annum, I don't know if you pay it every quarter or every half year, but whenever it is paid it is still $750, times 4. That is $3,000 that particular parent has to find that may not be possible to budget for.

One of the things I am proud of in this country is the advancement we have realised in the area of education over the years. When I was growing up education was looked upon as a luxury, especially higher education, because only a favoured few had the opportunity to get a good education or to further their education. Even though it costs this Government to subsidise our schools, private as well as public, I feel that every dollar invested in educating our youth is a worthwhile investment. I would hate to know that a child in this country, be he Caymanian-- having Caymanian parents, or the child of a non-Caymanian spouse is deprived of having an education because that father or mother cannot find the $750 for the year in order to ensure that his/her child is registered in school.

It is easy to forget that some people have those difficulties when many of us reach the pinnacle of our financial careers and we can find money for anything we need. But I have always been an advocate of the average Caymanian because the rich can go anywhere and survive. So I personally oppose the idea of increasing the school fees for our children.

I was very surprised this morning, but pleased, to learn that Government all of a sudden found over $7 million. That is enough to take care of the raise in pay. I understand that was supposed to be paid for out of savings. What I am proposing for the use of that $7.2 million is, . . . and you know, the Government is clever, saying they will put $2.5 million in general reserves. That doesn't make any financial sense. None whatsoever. When you are talking about putting money on a fixed deposit – probably earning 5% – and then you go out and borrow the equivalent at 10.5% or 11% . . . It would make more sense to use that money to help offset the proposed new revenue measures Government is putting forward. Part of that $7.2 million could be used to offset the proposed increase in school fees. It could also offset many of the other new measures being proposed.

I saw an article this week about tourism setting new records. That's good. But just this past week I was talking with a business person who depends heavily upon tourism, and I not only heard it from this particular individual, it is around the place that business is off.

We don't seem to see as many people around the place as we usually do. I know, traditionally, the first week or two after Christmas, things are down, and normally come back the third or fourth week of January, and from there it's pretty strong. I hope that trend continues this year. But from all indications and from the people I have spoken to, that is not what was experienced this January. As a matter of fact, I was surprised when I was told that many of the major hotels, even in the month of January were cutting people back to two or three days per week because the business was not there to support their employment. The problem is that we are becoming so expensive as a destination that it is discouraging a lot of our tourists from continuing to come here.

The other comment I hear is that we have changed: we have overbuilt especially along the Seven Mile Beach corridor and people don't need to come here to see concrete, they can do that wherever they come from. I believe that we have to be very vigilant and sensitive of the fact that people do have a choice. I do appreciate those visitors who come here every year. The one positive comment I hear is that even though the place is becoming very expensive, the people are still very, very friendly as a whole. That will probably carry us for some time, because there is nothing worse than spending money for a vacation in an environment where you do not feel welcomed.

I don't see the need for the immediate sense of urgency the Government has suddenly adopted in regard to all of these capital projects. They are all good, but we cannot afford to do everything at one time. The problem is that when we come to the annual budget when the goodies are shared up, they all have their shopping lists. Everybody wants everything on his list. Not me! I was prepared to give up one of my projects in West Bay because I realised that Government could not do everything at one time. But that is the problem.

When I was part of the National Team, when we were sharing up the goodies, the only Minister who was prepared on a regular basis to make concessions was the Minister for Education. But we can't provide all things at once. I like Cayman Brac, and I have always supported Cayman Brac, and will continue to do so, but how many concessions have we seen in that area? I really don't understand the sense of urgency that has all of a sudden been adopted by the present Government.

Do you know what I believe it is? I believe we have become so conscious of the fact that the year 2000 is an election year, that we want to make sure that we do as much as we can so that when our people go to the polls we will be re-elected. That's the whole plan. It is a good thing that we have in this Legislative Assembly the type of opposition on the Backbench that we have. Otherwise things would be much, much worse. I have had to even question myself as to why I have not changed because I have been preaching the same message since 1988: We have to learn to live within our financial means. Okay? I believe that over the years that was one of the keys to our success. I recall the battles and the messages that the former Financial Secretary (the present Minister for Tourism) had. Year after year his budget address reminded the Government of the day of the importance of fiscal responsibility and constraint.

Personally, I was a little surprised and disappointed this morning . . . I don't know why they chose the Minister for Tourism to do it – maybe it was because they thought he could get more support on the Backbench. But for Government to come proposing initially that we borrow some $52 million over two years is totally ridiculous and unacceptable. And for it to be proposed by the Minister for Tourism on behalf of Government is disappointing, because I know that deep down that gentleman understands the reason for our genuine concern. We are not debating the Loan Bill, but I did a little rough calculation. This Government, the National Team Government, from 1996 to the year 1999 would have borrowed some $70 million. And we preached, and we pounded the last Government with the idea of excessive borrowing.

Many times when we sit until 7:00 or 8:00 in the evening, I leave early because I have commitments in my constituency of West Bay. Let me say that John Jefferson, Jr. does not have to buy any election. The people know where I stand and I believe that at the end of the day our people are prepared to return those Members whom they believe have a genuine concern for their financial, social and otherwise, welfare. As the former Member for Bodden Town would say, "Taxes, taxes, taxes." It would be bad enough if it ended with this year (1999), but I guarantee you that when the budget for the year 2000 comes around, Government will have to come back and borrow more again.

They have the numbers, Mr. Speaker. Even some on the Backbench will support these new revenue measures. But, you know, you can't talk out of both sides of your mouth at the same time. You are either for it or against it. The Fourth Elected Member for George Town has given his support for the capital projects, but he's already told the Government 'I'm not voting for your Loan Bill, I'm not voting for your new revenue measures.' That's sad. You either support it or you don't.

We have definitely – not 'we' – let me rephrase that. The National Team has definitely gone off the rails. Some of them are very close friends of mine. And I have a lot of respect for some of those Ministers, but they have gone off the rails. If I were in the position they're in . . . And I hear a lot about polls, but they haven't taken any recently. But if I were in the position they were in, I wouldn't worry about any re-election. I would do what I know is right for this country. Mr. Speaker, after you and I are gone, our children and their grandchildren are going to be left holding the bag financially. Debt! Taxes!

We have proposed this for so long, but nobody listens. We have proposed that Government establish a think tank committee to look at new sources of revenue. There are many new sources that we could be tapping at present if we would just take time out and forget about strutting around promoting how important we are into really recognising what is available. I was talking to a gentleman recently. If we ever put forward that committee, I am going to recommend him as a member of that committee. I am of the firm opinion that if Government had taken that advice we wouldn't be here today talking about borrowing any $26 million, or raising $11.8 million in new taxes. We wouldn't have to.

But we are so caught up with the idea of campaigning and local politics because 'we have to be re-elected'—forget about the country, we are prepared to sacrifice the country to promote our own personal political interests.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Go Johnny. Preach!

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: It angers me, Mr. Speaker. It really does, because we all know better.

I have always been a very practical person, very reasonable. But what is being proposed is not reasonable. It is obvious that the ministers of Executive Council do not circulate very wide in their communities because if they were to circulate like we do . . . the feedback out there is not very positive at all in regard to the financial pressures of life. It's very, very difficult. People are still genuinely interested in earning an honest living, but it's becoming much more difficult.

The comment that I always get is, 'Yeah, everything keeps going up. Government needs more money for its projects and that type of thing, but nobody is looking out to ensure that our wages keep pace.' We can go around boasting about having one of the highest standards of living of any place in the world—and that's probably true; but the one thing that we keep failing to mention is that the cost of living here in the Cayman Islands is probably one of the highest of any place in the world, and it's becoming much more expensive on a daily basis. And, Government, through the measures now being proposed continues adding to that cost of living.

I don't drink, but I think it's ridiculous when somebody has to pay $4, $5, $6, $7 or $8 for a glass of wine or a beer. That is a common thing here in the Cayman Islands. But we get around that by saying, 'We're not catering to everybody, you know. We are catering to the elite!' Nonsense! I see many, many people visiting the respective restaurants and they are just like you and me, Mr. Speaker: they save all year to have a little vacation for a week. They then take the rest of the year to pay for it.

I think we have to develop a sense of consciousness. We have to be much more sensitive. Mr. Speaker, I don't know what it is about Executive Council, and I tell you what, if I am going to change the way I have seen some ministers change since they have been there, I don't want to get there. I really don't. It appears that once you get into that little ivory tower you seem to lose all sense of reality, or lose touch with the people around you.

In closing I want to say that, based on principle, I oppose the new revenue measures. I believe that if Government had, as we preached for so long a time, some policy of forward planning they wouldn't find themselves in the position they are now in, where they have to borrow some $26 million. And that's only because through some streak of luck or a blessing from God they found $7 million.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: That's because they never got a chance to spend it — time ran out!

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: They have to borrow $26 million rather than $32 million. We said that we were prepared to support $25 million.

[Members' laughter]

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.: But, Mr. Speaker, do you know what is interesting? I heard a comment the other day on television. It was regarding the new NBA season. The reporter had apparently met with Michael Jordan who had insight into what was going on with the negotiations. And he made a prediction. He said the NBA season would start on the 1st of February. It wasn't long after that when the NBA commissioner announced that the NBA had resolved its difficulties with the players' association and the league would start on the 2nd of February. The only reason for that was to somehow portray the fact that there was a sense of independence.

I think the Executive Council is doing the same thing. What's the difference between $26 million and $25 million? Why not bring the Loan Bill for $25 million and do those things we suggested with the $7.2 million they all of a sudden found — as a gift?

I am quite sure that after I sit down there will be some who will be anxious to speak, so I thank you, sir.

The Speaker: The floor is open for debate. Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause) Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause) Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause)

If no other Member wishes to speak, does the honourable Third Official Member wish to exercise his right of reply?

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I would like to thank honourable Members for their support. We heard the comments and views expressed by the various Members who spoke. Their comments mirrored the contributions that were made on the Budget Address. The Government recognises quite a number of concerns as expressed to be valid. Attention is now being given through the reform initiatives to making a close examination of our revenue base.

At this time I would like to thank those Members who spoke, and those who did not, for their tacit support.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled The Finance Bill, 1998, be given a second reading. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES and NOES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, may I have a division please, sir?

The Speaker: Certainly.
Madam Clerk, please call a division.

The Assistant Clerk:

DIVISION NO. 20 /99
(Second Reading of Finance Bill, 1998)

AYES: 8

Hon. James M. Ryan
Hon. David Ballantyne
Hon. George A. McCarthy
Hon. Truman M. Bodden
Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson
Hon. John B. McLean
Hon. Anthony S. Eden
Hon. Julianna O'Connor-Connolly

NOES: 6

Mr. John D. Jefferson, Jr.
*Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts
Mr. Linford A. Pierson
Dr. Frank McField
Mr. Roy Bodden
Mrs. Edna Moyle

Absent: 3

Mr. W McKeeva Bush
Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks
Miss Heather Bodden

**Mr. D Kurt Tibbetts: One thousand times No!*

The Speaker: The result of the division is eight Ayes, six Noes. The Bill has been given a second reading.

AGREED BY MAJORITY: THE FINANCE BILL, 1998, GIVEN A SECOND READING.

The Speaker: Bills, second reading.

THE LOANS (CAPITAL PROJECTS 1999) BILL, 1998

The Deputy Clerk: The Loans (Capital Projects 1999) Bill, 1998.

The Speaker: The Honourable Third Official Member Responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, I beg to move the second reading of a Bill entitled, The Loans (Capital Projects 1999) Bill, 1998.

As I mentioned earlier, in moving the second reading of this Bill, honourable Members will recall that when this Bill was presented initially it was for a value of $19,150,000. As expected, there will be an amendment forthcoming. When the amendment is made it will have the effect of increasing the proposed borrowings by $6,850,000 to a value of $26 million.

This $26 million, when combined with other inflows into the capital development fund, as pointed out this morning in Finance Committee, will prove adequate to meet the financing requirements of the $42.53 million proposed under the capital development programme. The effect that this borrowing will have on the public debt, if the full amount is drawn down in 1999, will be to increase the end of year balance (combined public debt balance) to $101,566,450.

When this balance is broken down between the central government debt and the self-financing loans the specific balance as at the end of the year 1999 will be for central government, as at 31st December 1998 (or balance brought forward as at 1st January 1999) $70,760,134. Assuming the full amount will be drawn down $26 million; less repayments in 1999 of $11,035,405 (and this is repayment on principal only) therefore the central government debt if all of the borrowings are used up will be $85,724,729. The opening balance of self-financing as at 1st January, is $17,051,155. The proposed repayments in 1999 will be $1,209,435; therefore the expected end of year balance will be $15,841,720. This, when combined with the central government indebtedness of $85.7 million gives the overall public debt position of $101.6 million.

I should point out that as a part of its cash flow management Government will watch very carefully the inflow of revenue during the course of the year, and will keep the draw downs against the borrowings only to what is necessary to ensure that the capital development fund is fully funded at all times, thus avoiding an overspending against that account. As honourable Members will recall, when that fund was set up it was agreed that a separate bank account would be established. So it is necessary to monitor that account very carefully.

Members are fully conversant with the details of the projects as set out in the capital development schedule which will form a part of the estimates. As a result of that, I will not go into detail on an item by item basis because it is publicly known what the composition of that schedule is. A breakdown by broad classification can be found on page 194 of the estimates as follows, and this takes into account the amended amount per item:

|                                    |                     |
|------------------------------------|---------------------|
| Public buildings                   | $ 19,390,200       |
| Roads                              | 13,862,500          |
| Recreational & Cultural facilities | 2,983,800           |
| Cemeteries                         | 270,000             |
| Harbours & Docks                   | 320,000             |
| Purchase of Lands                  | 1,750,000           |
| Landfill Development               | 100,000             |
| Healthcare Facilities              | 3,600,000           |
| Agricultural Development           | 258,100             |
| TOTAL:                      | $42,534,600 |

This gives an overall total of $42,534,600.

I commend this Bill to honourable Members.

The Speaker: The question is that a Bill entitled The Loans (Capital Projects 1999) Bill, 1998, be given a second reading. This is now open to debate.

The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I was almost going to say "Mr. Chairman" because we were in Finance Committee for so long I forgot we had a Speaker in this Chamber.

I am going to begin to try to set a new precedent. I am going to try to make my speeches shorter and make the content of the speech the character of the speech, rather than the words that I might use.

In going through some notes for my Public Eye programme (which airs tomorrow night at 8:30 on CITN) dealing with questions of identity and nationality, I came across a statement that I think is very important. When, in fact, can we consider ourselves to be a society? We can consider ourselves to be a society when the particular interest becomes subordinate to the general interest. That is short and precise. When we talk about the rule of law, the necessity for the institution of government, it is in order that there is fairness once we hand in those particular interests in favour of the general interest, or the extent to which we do that.

All being that, when we talk about the general condition of a country, the improvement has to do with the ability of the government which is the collective consciousness of the people and their agreement to come together. It has to do with the institution of government being able to collect revenue, have resources at its disposal in order to disburse them for the general, not the particular, improvement of the population as a whole.

I did not get up to speak to the revenue measures because I said before that I would oppose them. But in regard to the borrowing, when I first started to debate the Budget Speech, I am quite sure that I was indicating that I might not be supporting the government's desire to borrow money. Two months have passed, and I have had some time to re-think this position. I have also had some time to reconsider what would be in the best interest of the people; what would improve the general interest rather than the political interest. Beyond a doubt, the improvement of roads at this particular time would improve the general interest.

The improvement of educational facilities would improve the general interest. Now, if we said at the same time that people were being burdened by this desire to improve the general interest, then the question must be whether or not the government at this particular time is reflecting what the people want them to improve in regard to the state of the country.

So, if people want schools, if people want improved education for their children in order for them to become more mobile socially and economically, it doesn't pay for us to argue that things are bad because we know things are bad. But things would be worse, the assumption is, if the general interest of the people was not improved by Government.

There are so many members of the Opposition at the moment, that I would not dare to compete to have the title of being a member of the Opposition. I leave that to the members of the National Team who are on this particular side; I leave that to members of the National Team who served in the National Team Government for almost six years. I leave the critique of their Government to them. What I would like to concentrate on is how short-sighted this whole political concept is. If we are not going to talk about money, we certainly cannot talk about services. The money must come from someplace. If I tell the Government that this indirect form of taxation will not be supported by me, and if I believe that these projects they have brought before Finance Committee and this honourable House are worthwhile, then I must support them in borrowing the $26 million. I will go on record as supporting this at this particular time because I know of no other way that Government could get the money to complete the projects that need to be started as soon as possible.

I have been an advocate of the Road fund. I have been an advocate of people paying for services directly. If people are going to use roads, that the taxes for roads are specifically used for those services. I do not understand with the type of tax base we have, how we have the good Members of the so-called Opposition arguing about the need to extend the revenue base. We need to know from them what these extensions will entail. But until we have the extension of the revenue base, we need to get on with our lives here; we need to continue to enable industry to function by not having congestion on our roads. Therefore, that is one of the main areas. We don't need to wait until the eleventh hour to build the additional primary school in George Town that is so badly needed at this particular time.

We need to take on many projects before it is too late. This does not excuse the Government. This does not excuse the performance of the National Team Government in my eyes over the last six years. But who am I to criticise them? All I am saying is if we don't have an alternative, if we don't have a way of delivering the goods and services the people have become accustomed to and badly need, we will create anarchy and chaos.

It is important to realise that in terms of borrowing at this particular moment in our history that there can be an alarm. I do believe that I have disagreed with the way in which the Government's finances have been presented, the way in which they do not take certain things into account. But while they don't take into account that they are responsible for the pension fund (which I so well called to their attention), at the same time they don't take into account the fact that the roads they build are assets. Once they borrow the money and build the roads they have created an asset in the country that has some value.

So when people go around saying the Government is broke, we have to be careful that we don't create havoc and anarchy because the assets are there. They might be cash poor. One reason why I am saying that now, is because of the peculiar way in which Government's finances are organised, that we allow Government to borrow $26 million in order to complete these projects.

All I can say is that it appears that Members of the Opposition, have suggested that $25 million be borrowed. Now the Government is saying $26 million. Are we going to split hairs between $25 million and $26 million? Or is it, 'as long as you can reach my formula I am going to move the goalposts'? I am not interested in that type of politics.

I have had to deal with my conscience, and I have done so very well. When the roll is called, when history is written, when we have to account, I am going to count because of the context, the character of my speeches and not because of the volume or flowery language or the flattery. I am going to go down with having an analytical approach to this whole situation.

If what we are dealing with here is the particular interest of the struggle for power then we can continue to split the hairs. But if we are going to deal with the general interest then the difference between $25 million, saying that they can borrow $25 million and they can't borrow $26 million is neither here nor there. I stand with my position as an independent Member of the backbench that is critical of the Government and its performance and will criticise other members as well in their professional capacity rather than their personal capacity, but I reserve the right to make critiques of their contributions as well, as they will make critiques of mine.

We don't have political parties in this country. We don't have political ideologies. The Opposition, as it is organised, doesn't have any alternative to what the Government has presented. I must vote along with the Government. Thank you.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, you will appreciate that this is a forum for democracy and that members are at liberty to state their positions and to vote as they wish. It is a privilege and a right that I would deny no man irrespective of my feelings. But I for one have always tried to base my positions on being consistent, and the records of this Parliament will show that there have been many times when I stood alone on issues, and have never been afraid. I have always been guided by my sense of what is best for constituency and country. In taking that position I am not saying that I have never been wrong. I have been wrong many times. I am saying that I have been led purely and primarily by my conscience and my assessment of the issues as they were presented.

Indeed, my position is so well-known that members of the National Team tried to destroy my political career that on many instances I opposed for the sake of opposition. My position, and the position of my colleagues, on this matter is based on principle. I say that there is a significant difference between borrowing $25 million and borrowing $26 million.

I am reminded of an anecdote. In 1969 I went to visit my favourite cousin in New York. We had much in common. He was then a student at Columbia University, and I had just graduated from college. He, his brother and I, were very close: we grew up here before his family emigrated to the United States.

We took a drive. He always kept a can opener in the car -- a little five cents opener -- because we were always stopping to buy refreshments on our trips to and fro upstate. Between his brother and me, we managed to misplace this opener. When Charles went to look for the opener and couldn't find it, he asked his brother and me to account for it. Neither of us could. He promptly opened the door on the passenger side and invited us to get out.

So, I, coming from the West Indies, tried to play on his good conscience, and asked him if he was going to do this to his cousin who was unfamiliar with the streets and behaviour of New York for a five cents opener. He, not being short of retort said, "No, my good cousin. It's not the value of the opener, but the principle of the thing." Even at five cents there is a principle involved.

So, Mr. Speaker, that is the position of us on this side. We are talking about a principle which, in spite of the Fourth Elected Member for George Town, was articulated very well -- I would say articulated flawlessly. How could we be responsible at a time like this encouraging the Government to borrow money, saddle the country with debt when they clearly have not prioritised their objectives? Do you think that as responsible people we should be party to this kind of financial management? I say No! One million times No! Six representatives can't be wrong. In this instance they are not wrong.

We will prove that we are not wrong. We have articulated our position clearly and flawlessly. I like to read. And I want to read from the Official Hansard Report of 1991, Volume III. In a debate which was taking place on the Appropriation (1992) Bill, 1991, this is what the Leader of Government Business had to say, and he was quoting the Financial Secretary. "On this basis I have concluded that there has been a marked divergence in the growth trends between realised local revenue and actual recurrent expenditure particularly in 1989 and 1990, and that if this trend is allowed to continue unchecked, public finance would be drifting in the wrong direction."

The Minister for Education, the Leader of Government Business, went on to say, "That statement is a very important statement because it points very clearly to the fact that this country is now reaching a stage in which it is spending so much more than there is made in revenue that the trend cannot continue in that direction. Something must be done to check it."

Mr. Speaker, he went on. "What it comes back to is that the Elected Members of this country must stop wasting public funds on their pet projects." Presumably he meant the Elected Members of the government. "They must understand that it is not only good economic sense, but it is basic common sense that they cannot keep spending year after year far more than they make and that they are heading the country towards bankruptcy." That was on the Appropriation (1992) Bill, 1991.

Now, let us look at the record of the National Team Government over the past years. In 1993 they borrowed $17.5 million; in 1994 they borrowed $4.7 million; 1995, $1.8 million; 1996, $22.4 million; 1997, $22.5 million; 1998, $20.6 million; and now they have a proposal to borrow $26 million. What kind of record is that? Did not the Fourth Elected Member for George Town notice? Borrowing every year, yet they are preaching prudence!

It is simple, basic common sense good housekeeping. No good housewife or manager goes and buys up more than she can afford. The logic in this is that we should have been prioritising. Why do we have to be borrowing at the same time we are raising taxes? That's a double no-no. Our people have always been practical. We have been the most practical people in the Caribbean if not in the world. Springing from a nation of seafarers, we know what frugality means.

We are not saying that we shouldn't have roads; the six Opposition members said what we think needs to be done. We said that: development of the Crew Road Bypass, second phase of the Harquail loop and other road works. And as for education, we made it clear that we wanted those policies and plans to go ahead because we realise that it is on that basis that the future of the country, particularly, works on. But we would be reckless, stupidly so, if we would encourage the Government to borrow and to borrow as they have been borrowing. We will not allow the National Team political directorate to take us down with them when they're swamping (by supporting them on that).

It's a simple principle. And so you ask, What is the difference -- 'splitting hairs' is what the Fourth Elected Member for George Town calls it -- between $25 million and $26 million. The difference is on a point of principle, which unfortunately escapes him, for whatever reason. But that is his business if he does not choose to see. And as for the business of accounting, I have been accounting for ten years now to my constituents. Obviously, they must have seen some merit in me; they keep returning me--last time in spite of overwhelming odds. So here is one Member who is not afraid to stand on his principles: Even that principle which is so meticulous that it insists on distinguishing between $25 million and $26 million when it comes to loans.

I am saying, as the Government has been saying, that we should live within our means; that we should prioritise. Why? Why should we insist on borrowing this amount at a time when we are raising $11.8 million in taxes? And they would have been borrowing more had they not seen our ad and gotten frightened. They had the target set at $35 million and then came down to $32.5 million. I am happy that they are now down to $26 million, but not happy enough to give them my green light. And I have friends over there, Mr. Speaker. Every one of those honourable Members are friends are mine. But you understand, politics being what it is, that if they want to commit political suicide, hey, . . . you know? I would hate to see them go, and perhaps I will shed a tear or two, but I am not going to jump in the grave with them, sir; not at all. I am not going to share their funeral pyre as the Hindus do. Not me, sir. Not me!

So, Mr. Speaker, that is what it comes down to: a point of principle. I am glad we have someone who can lecture us into the absence . . . or presence of political parties. I am always entertained by that kind of stuff. I am a good listener. Heaven knows, there is something about academia that always intrigues me. I can listen to that all day.

But that doesn't remove the fact that there are differences. There are philosophical differences, and it's true that we have no party system. But if there were no differences between us over here and the Government, we would be operating a one-party state. And I am sure that is not an idea that would please Westminster. So there is nothing wrong with some of us banding together because we see ourselves sharing common dispositions, common philosophies, and articulating those positions. Heaven knows there are places for independence. I respect a person's position. But you have to remember that when you walk in the middle of the road, you get hit by the traffic from both sides. There is a danger in that too.

I suppose I should say that I will not allow myself to be one-upped. So I am going to cut my speech short too. As a matter of fact, I started doing that a long time ago because the Hansards are full of my speeches. But there is one good thing about my speeches -- flowery words and all -- they make sense! They have substance and they always articulate my position, whether that position is against the majority or with the majority. I have every confidence in that. And you know what? I am a product of the institutions where I went and sat and sweated and toiled, and I am happy. Believe you me, if I were to stand up here and do any less than I do, there are those who would say that I would not be doing the institutions from which I came, justice.

I take a certain pride, and my constituents look forward to that. But even more than the flowery sounding words—and I consider it flattery—is the seriousness of the position that I hold. I am sensible enough to realise that the world's finances are shaken up; that the time has come for us to be very careful. It's not only me. We have people qualified and experienced in finance and accounting. We have successful businessmen echoing the same thing, expressing it much more accurately, and cogently than I could ever express it. They are saying the same thing. So it's not my vision alone, Mr. Speaker.

Why? Tell me why. Go and take a poll and find out how many people in the public are pleased that the Government is borrowing money and saddling them with taxes at the same time. Find out why, Mr. Speaker. I bet you if I were a wagering person, that you could not find a majority. They are concerned. We get representations from our constituents and the wider public. That is why we planned that we could not accept the raise because we are borrowing money and taxing the people and want to give ourselves a raise at the same time. The two are incompatible. That is principle, and I am happy to be associated with people who are so principled because I would have been disappointed if my colleagues had taken any less of a stance.

We are not scared. We are in for the long haul. And the people, our constituents and the country, are going to be the ultimate judges. When history is written we are not afraid to stand around and hear it interpreted and read out because we know that our principles are going to put us on the right track.

I will not support the Government in borrowing money at this time, placing a burden on my people at a time when they are already cringing—pumping up the national debt, putting taxes on them. No! We have to prioritise. We have to get this thing straight. It must be done.

I am not afraid. The country understands the problems with roads; they understand the traffic problems we have; they understand all these other infrastructural problems and needs. And they are practical. They are saying that we have to develop some order and arrive at some prioritised position. And we cannot, as I read out, continue because these loans add up. We cannot continue to borrow irrespective of how insignificant it might seem; someone has to pay. Do you know what? While we party, our children and grandchildren are going to have to pay.

I will not be party to that. I was not elected to yoke anyone, and I refuse to do that. I am confident that my constituents understand. I look forward to Thursday evening because I know that we are going to have a captive audience and I know that the six of us can not only deliver, but deliver convincingly.

I am always impassioned when it comes to these times. I like that. I am at my best when the country is on the line, when it is necessary to make a distinction, to take a stand. I am confident that this is not in the best interest. Whether or not some people call it splitting hairs, I call it principle and I stand by my principles. I have been doing so, and I will continue to do so. Thank you.

The Speaker: We shall suspend proceedings for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.45 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.23 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Debate continues on the Loans (Capital Projects 1999) Bill, 1998. Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause) Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause)

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Mr. Speaker, by my watch it's 4.30.

The Speaker: You are a little bit fast.

Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause) I do not want to deprive anybody of his or her opportunity to speak.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Mr. Speaker, seeing that the Government is not ready, maybe you can adjourn until 10.00 tomorrow morning.

The Speaker: It was my understanding that we wanted to go later this afternoon. So, we are not near the adjournment time.

Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause) I can't delay it much longer.

The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, I didn't have any understanding that we were sitting late. I thought that you were going to adjourn at 4.30. In fact, I made appointments with my constituents for that time.

The Bill before the House is seeking for Government to borrow, first of all they said $19 million, and now there is an amendment for $26 million. I don't know whether they believe this satisfies the House and in their juggling of funds they now say they are even borrowing less than they contemplated. It is good, as I said before, that they were able to find money, though I don't know why they didn't find it before. I do believe that what happened to the Government, having come under pressure from the House and the general populace they went scurrying and came up with the funds that they were going to use for pay increases.

The Government, while they will have the votes in the House to carry on, is in a bad position generally, not knowing that what they put forward can stand the test; not knowing from day to day what they are going to do. And that is obvious because they proposed a budget for one thing, set it all up, had their Financial Secretary put it in place, had the honourable gentleman come down to the House and deliver his magnificent speech. And then, Lo and behold all of a sudden they rose and said 'No. What the Financial Secretary said is not what we need, not what we are going to spend. We are going to do otherwise. We are going to borrow much more money because all these things need to be done, and need to be done now.'

There are no two ways about it. Many of them have been talked about over many years. But over many years the Government has said that it would prioritise and spend what the country could afford. This is not what is happening. I am not going to claim to be an economist because I am not. I don't know a whole lot about mathematics, but I can certainly add 1 and 2. And I certainly understand the trend that develops in Government. As sure as we borrow today, and as sure as they are raising fees—

The Speaker: First Elected Member for West Bay may I interrupt you for just a moment? We have reached the hour of 4.30. Under Standing Order 10 (2) I would like the House to decide how long we intend to sit, and we will have to suspend Standing Order 10 (2), (4) and 11[4] in order to continue beyond the agreed hour.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, I think there was some discussion about 5.30.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, that was discussed very briefly from the Government side with some of us. Not all of us were here, not all of the Government was here, and we left the discussion for Government to get back to us to let us know. We heard nothing more, sir. The Member who is speaking, if truth be known, was not even prepared to speak this evening. But because he didn't want it to close down. Because the Government is so lax and refuses to get up and speak, they forced this on us this evening.

The Speaker: Okay, let's solve one problem at a time—

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: I am solving it, Mr. Speaker. I am saying from our point of view, sir, 4.30 is 4.30 and we have no other provisions, not today.

The Speaker: Shall I put it to the vote? I would entertain a motion whichever way we go.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: I made appointments with some people.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I think it's quite obvious from the numbers that if you took a vote now the Government bench would win the vote. I am not sure that's the spirit that you want to have in the House. I think we should have a better spirit of cooperation. If there was a misunderstanding as to the time, some members felt it was 4.30, others felt it was 5.30, perhaps we can make a compromise without having to do it in an adversarial manner.

The Speaker: I would be prepared to suspend for five minutes, but that usually goes into thirty. I am in the hands of the House. Whatever motion is entertained—

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism, Commerce, Transport and Works.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Speaker, I don't believe that it sets any example for us to have rancour and fighting over an issue as simple as this. If the First Elected Member for West Bay who is now speaking has made appointments, if there was some discussion on the issue of 4.30 and it wasn't generally agreed among everyone, then I don't think we should behave in that way.

The Speaker: Would you move the motion—

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: I would believe that most people here should be prepared to speak. It's our job. Certainly there are enough numbers on the backbench in the Opposition for somebody who didn't have appointments to have taken over and to speak. So, if the Government refuses to speak, as it was just now . . . I mean the attempt has been not to close the meeting down, but I don't see what's so unreasonable about spending the extra time. I am quite willing to spend that time if Members want to spend that time. And I do not take lightly people making suggestions that are almost like suggestions of intimidation.

The Speaker: I would entertain a motion for the adjournment of the House.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, I am going to continue, sir.

The Speaker: If that's—

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDER 10(2)

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Then, Mr. Speaker, I would move the suspension of Standing Orders to allow the First Elected Member for West Bay to finish his speech.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: I want to thank the honourable gentleman for his kindness. But 'they' are not going to play games with me. I see what has happened between them and the Fourth Elected Member for George Town. They are not going to put me . . . I know what they are trying to do now. When we had an opportunity to behave they are going to come now with a load of – and try to soft soak us. No, no! Not to allow me to finish, for us to continue to the time they said. I am prepared to forgo . . . I will call my people and tell them I can't make it. I am here to finish this debate.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Tourism.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: I thought I was helping the Member. If we want to move it on to 5.30 that's fine. I can move a motion that we go on until 5.30.

The Speaker: I shall put the question that the House continue until 5.30. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: STANDING ORDERS SUSPENDED.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay, please continue.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Mr. Speaker, wonders never cease! The Government is moving in the wrong direction and is taking the country down a path that will cause generations to come suffer. This Government is no different from the last one with borrowing and raising taxes. They complained. We all complained, and we went to the public and the public said "No." We put out a policy that we would not spend what we did not have. This is what they said; they would exercise fiscal constraint. That is not what they said, that is what we said. This is what the public asked us to do. Now, having caught the winds of change they digress.

As I said earlier, I am not going to get into economics or mathematics, I am no economist. But the fact is that the Government should not spend what it does not have. It's no different with any of us in our own homes. We know when to say yes to expenditure and when to say no. All of us could want new cars, new clothes, a lot of new things all the time, but we know we cannot afford it. Therefore we shouldn't attempt to spend it. The Government is doing otherwise. I really don't see much sense in it trying to grab up and do everything at one time.

We have to consider that generations down the road will pay. They are saying that we can afford to pay. Is that what they are going to say next year? Is that what they are going to say the year after? All the while having to borrow and raise taxes on the people. Mr. Speaker, this is the trend the Government is now on. It is not something that they must do. Sure we can talk about needing more roads. I maintained a long time ago (and a lot of people disagreed with me), that building roads to the tune of the vast expenditure that we intend to do (not saying that we don't need to spend some because we know we do), is not going to cure the traffic ills in this country.

I take a different approach. There is a human element to Government—or there should be—and where those human elements have to suffer for these kinds of expenditures I don't agree. To do this they have to put school fees on people who are barely meeting their present costs. In fact, some of them have to borrow from others to do so. And we might think that in this country that is not so, and that McKeever is only blowing wind and stirring up people. You could form all kinds of excuses and give all kinds of reasons as to why I am saying that. But that's a fact. That's the kind of economy we are living in. I hope that Government will take a look at that particular aspect.

All they will say is that education is costly. Sure it is. But we started out on a 'free' foundation in this country and it has withstood the test of time. It has helped this country along, government after government. Without it being free some of us would be no better off and could not brag about this type of country. We would be no better off than other neighbouring islands that have a high rate of illiteracy.

Government should heed the warning bell. It is putting too much strain on the people of this country who can least afford it. Consider a person having five children, making $1,000 per month, but has a loan to pay, children to feed and clothe, electricity, gas, transportation costs. These are the necessities of life. If we don't do something about it and help to decrease the ever-increasing cost of living in this country, woe onto us!

I have people in my constituency who have come and laid their complaints on my desk. They ask 'What are you expecting us to do? Go out and steal?' I can't be part of that. And it's not just in my constituency. Those situations exist in every one of our constituencies. Every one! And they are not small numbers; we have to be truthful. We are not dying from poverty, but it is rising in this country. The poverty scales are on the increase. When you go out on the highways and byways of this country you see it. We face an ageing population. While we have a lot of younger people, the ageing ones are those who cannot help themselves: the vast majority of them.

Government has to spend on roads and other infrastructure. We all want that too. But it doesn't have to spend the vast amounts proposed at one time. I can't agree with the attitude 'Oh, we've asked for them for years and years and years; now we must get them cost it what it will.' I don't agree with that. Mr. Speaker, you might wonder where I am heading because this is the Loans Bill, and not the revenue raising. Ah ha! Well, Government can't do one unless it does the other. I know that, even if my friend the First Elected Member for George Town doesn't. One is dependent upon the other.

The other aspect that I would like to mention is that it is high time that Government sought lower interest rate loans. I believe that the honourable Financial Secretary goes out and does his best when Government says he must borrow. He does his best to get the best rates existing. But in this day and age, when it seems that interest rates are the lowest ever, why should we be borrowing at the interest rates that Government does? Why? Surely there must be other institutions, other means to lower interest rates.

The amount of money saved could do a lot of things that need to be done. So overall the policy is bad. Overall that is because the management of the policy is bad. So I can't agree, having put out a statement with other Members of the House concerning the capital works projects, the revenue package and the Loans Bill. It says:

"We, the undersigned backbench members of the Legislative Assembly wish to set out our position as follows:

"Capital works projects: We are not in support of the Government's capital works projects amounting to approximately $42.5 million as this places too great a strain on the society at a time when the private sector is operating at full steam. Our proposal is for the Government to move on with the needed capital works projects for education, which we estimate to be $12.5 million. We believe that these are necessary for the continuing progress of our young people. We propose that Government develop the Crew Road Bypass, estimated at $5 million, and further extend the Galleria Loop of the Harquail Bypass estimated at $2.5 million, which we see as essential to alleviate the congestion caused by traffic flows from the eastern districts and along the West Bay Road.

“We also support continuing capital development projects comprising public works, road works, public buildings, recreational cultural and healthcare facilities totalling almost $18 million. Further capital works development [and this is important] must be supported by our prioritised listing and the development of the Medium Term Financial Strategy (MTFS) as well as the Public Sector Investment Program (PSIP). These efforts must be complemented by a properly thought out strategy to broaden our revenue base.

“Revenue package: We are against any rise in taxes at this time as we believe that this places too much financial strain on our people. However, under Government’s current policy, or lack thereof, where recurrent expenditure outpaces recurrent revenue, our people can look forward to a future under the National Team Government of taxation, borrowings and unbridled expenditure.

“New loan package: We propose a $25 million ceiling on borrowing and are opposed to the Government’s proposal to borrow $32.5 [million]. In taking this position [and this is most important] we have many concerns which includes the rising level of national debt as well as the position of Cayman Airways Limited. Cayman Airways Limited is our prided national airline and we must find a sensible way to deal with its accumulated deficit of $45 million and its current liabilities of $22.5 million. This does not appear to have been given any priority by Government.”

The statement goes on to say everyone is invited to a public meeting on the Court steps in George Town this Thursday, February 11, at 7.30 PM. That is tomorrow night. I give you a special invitation to come, Mr. Speaker. Even the Government is going to be there!

[Members’ laughter]

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Mr. Speaker, in all of Government’s workings to find money, it hasn’t given a thought to the national airline. A lot of people – or let’s say not a lot, but there are people who might feel that we can do without it. I never ever took that position, and I will have to be shown how to take that position, but all we have to do is look at what’s happening with American Airlines. That’s a good example of what could happen to a small economy having to depend upon another airline. Government should be paying attention to how they are going to deal with this matter.

The Minister comes here and lets us know what the position is. So it is left for the Government to deal with this because it cannot continue the way it is going. Yet, it hasn’t found a way to deal with this in its borrowing. To be fair, nobody has spoken yet, but I will bet you that Government is not going to deal with it. It does not figure in its policy and it will have to ride the same wave hoping for the best. That’s not good enough. Either they have to make up their minds to pay off the liabilities and put it on a sound footing, or just let it drop to pieces. I don’t believe that’s what anybody in this House wants . . . The Minister comes and lets us know? . . . It has to take the position to do what is necessary; it cannot continue in the current situation.

I can’t agree with their borrowing. I didn’t agree with the taxation measures. Therefore I can’t agree with the loan package. The Backbench – the six of us – put forward a position that stated clearly what we would do, but the Government has ears that do not listen; it has eyes that do not see; it has a conscience that cares not, or else it would not be down this road today. Someone is asking what the Government feels with. Dare I say they have no feelings in this matter?

It is good for any government to have a policy to try to follow through on. But in following through on its policy it also has to explain it. A Government must not only explain its policy, it must also rebut what anyone in opposition has put forward. I dare say that Government cannot rebut the position that was put forward by the First Elected Member for George Town and the Third Elected Member for George Town, together with the six of us backbenchers in this written statement.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: [Inaudible interjection.]

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: No, that’s right!

Rome was not destroyed from without; all of us who read know it was destroyed from within—its policies—the way it did things—the way it would not listen to others. Therefore, that’s the crash course the Government is on. Borrowing and unbridled expenditure to save their electoral seats.

We have heard for a long time about broadening the revenue base. All the time that I was there, and all the time before and up until now, no one has come up with any measures that can bring the kind of revenue that we expect to spend. There are things that Government can do. Yes. And its job is to do so. As I said earlier, it cannot keep saying that it has not reached the level that the IMF has set as our economics, that is 10%. But we are well on the way there. What’s going to happen next year? Because this is what they have been saying every year.

From the time the Minister for Tourism was there, and the Financial Secretary before him, we remember them saying, ‘Oh, we don’t need to worry. We’re at low level.’ Remember when it was 2%? Then it crept up to 3% and it kept rising because all that had ever been done was to put a little bit more on the fees that taxed the poor people. So it kept rising a little bit more. What happens? Ten years from now we will be saying the same thing. It’s not an easy thing. I know that. We say so. I know it’s not easy. But there are things they can do that need to be done. One of these days, perhaps sooner than later, they will be told how it can be done.

I understand from what the honourable Financial Secretary has been saying that they will put together a group that will look at alternative ways of generating revenue. This is what I said in March 1997 in agreeing to put up fees on cars and get it stretched out according to the cubic capacity of the engines so that the smaller cars will not be taxed as much as the larger ones.

I also talked about the need to set up such a group, and this is what I had to say, on pages 84-85, 19 March, 1997: “There needs to be ideas and deep analysis of any proposal that would impact on long term growth and development. The truth of the matter is that no such mechanism exists. That is a fact. Operating in the 21st Century in a sophisticated economy, we need that mechanism.”

I went on to say, “We need to bridge the gap between the Government and the private sector. I feel it is necessary to tap into the experience of knowledgeable people in the private sector to create some form of communication between these two lines.”

“I want to propose that we create the economic council we talked about right away; that it consist of the private sector and all Elected Ministers. This matter of going to one Minister, with one Minister saying one thing, then going to the next Minister and he says something else, cannot facilitate proper communication. I believe that this economic council should be created forthwith."

"From an economic council ideas could come across . . . people who can give reasonable and rational debate and put forward reasonable and rational ideas that can work."

Some people thought that I was denigrating the people in the budgetary process and I nearly got my head beaten in for that. If Government had such a group and had sat down with that group before the budget and said, 'This is what we need; this is what we propose to do'—rather than coming here with a hopscotch situation— it would have been in a better position.

That has not been done because if they met with their economic council and the economic council told them to do this hodgepodge, hopscotch policy, then I would say to them 'Get rid of them and get somebody else.' But I believe that they did not run this situation through any economic council, and they are supposed to have one. After I left Executive Council I understand that something of this sort was created.

Well, if they have one, they didn't meet with it. If they have one, what did it tell them, if they met with it? Did it tell them to go ahead and raise taxes? Did it tell them to borrow these vast funds? They campaigned on setting up such a council. Did they do that? Have they listened to what their economic council has said?

And if they are not listening, why are they not listening if this is what the council is for? It would be good to hear how they handled it. I certainly believe, although this has been said many, many times, that at this point in time we have reached the position and we have said that we don't want to get to the position where we are saddling the future generations with growing amounts of debt. I try to keep up to date as much as possible with situations and events around me; internationally and regionally, we don't have to go far.

We don't have to go far to see examples that tell us that the path Council is taking us on is going to ruin us. Countries before that had millions of dollars in surplus are at the point where they must put their budgets in the hands of the International Monetary Fund and the World Bank. And they said McKeeva was just talking. But they read too, they've been around, some of them longer than me. They know the situation. I heard some of them saying the same thing in times past.

It is no different now from 1990. In fact, we should be better off in 1999 than we were in 1990. So they know what I am saying is true. Now, they can all come behind me and say something completely different to counteract what I am saying, but they well know the truth. No matter how much they try to explain away their actions, the proof of the pudding is in the tasting thereof. No one thought that some of those countries with their vast amounts of natural resources, and the vast amount of surplus would today be in that kind of condition. We are on the road to Hell and damnation, be it paved with good intentions or not. That will not suffice at the end of the day.

Mr. Speaker, taking one item . . . And someone said I wasn't ready to debate. They are going to have a lot of fun following my debate because I know it has not been in sequence.

I often wonder, when we say we need certain projects, how much have we looked to see what the need really is. Having looked in our suggestion, will those new roads, for instance, do the trick? Will that take up the slack? How much will it ease the traffic congestion? And for how long will it ease the traffic congestion? Some time ago, the Minister for Tourism said in a debate that he was going to get a study. I am not quite sure if they gave us the papers on that study or not, or if it has been completed. What did that say? What did that tell us? Are we sure that continuing the Harquail Bypass is going to cure, if not cure, how long will it stabilise the traffic congestion?

How many buildings do we know—

[Inaudible interjections]

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: No, I'm not going to finish this evening. That's right.

How many buildings do we know on West Bay Road causing the traffic congestion? It can't be condominiums because we build them hand over fist. Nobody complains. Do we know whether it is the large shopping centres that cause the traffic congestion? We certainly know that in and out of the two larger ones there is a tremendous amount of traffic. We know that. Are we putting in place any measures to stop the same thing from happening? Or are they afraid to touch that because it will rile up the people, or hurt someone's feelings: businessman, motorist, man on the street, whoever.

When we spend the kind of money we are proposing to spend, do we know what the end result will be? And for how long will it positively impact upon what we are trying to do? And what is the negative fallout?

It is easy to say 'We need this and we need it now.' I said we needed a lot of things when I was on the backbench before, and I said so when I was in Executive Council but we did what we could out of general revenue the vast majority of the time.

When you borrow money or raise fees, you tell the public this is what you are going to do with it, you are going to do item A. If you don't do that, you haven't been good to the public. We put vast increases on transportation. And what that money was supposed to do was to help to do something with the problem. That was two years ago. Today we are raising more—not on the same items—and borrowing more and the problem still hasn't been addressed positively.

When we talk about broadening the revenue base, have we taken into account how we are going to broaden it? Where we are going to get it? And have we taken into account how much we are spending and what we are spending it on and what the results will be? Those are the questions Government must come to grips with. There is no use telling us that we asked for years for a road in the sky and now that we can do it you are going to give it to us. That's what some of this amounts to: dreams of Alnaschar!

Mr. Speaker, can I call it 5.30?

The Speaker: I would think so. I will entertain a motion for the adjournment of this honourable House.

ADJOURNMENT

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, I propose that we stop the debate now and begin tomorrow at 10.00 AM.

The Speaker: I need a seconder.

Mr. Roy Bodden: I beg to second that, sir.

The Speaker: The question is that this Honourable House do now adjourn until 10.00 AM tomorrow. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AT 5.31 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM THURSDAY, 11 FEBRUARY, 1999

EDITED
THURSDAY
11 FEBRUARY 1999
10.29 AM

[Prayers by The Third Elected Member for George Town.]

The Speaker: Please be seated.

Proceedings are resumed. Item 2 on today's Order Paper, Reading by the Speaker of Messages and Announcements.

READING BY THE SPEAKER OF MESSAGES AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

The Speaker: I have received apologies from the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town who is off the island.

Item 3 on today's Order Paper, Presentation of Papers and Reports. The Honourable Third Official Member Responsible for Finance and Economic Development.

PRESENTATION OF PAPERS AND REPORTS

MOTION TO DEFER TABLING OF REPORTS

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Once again I would like to move the relevant Standing Orders and ask that the tabling of these reports be deferred. They are presently being finalised by the Clerk, and they may become available to be reviewed today and thus available for tabling.

The Speaker: Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: REPORT DEFERRED.

The Speaker: Item 4 on today's Order Paper, Government Business, Bills, Second Reading. Continuation of debate on the Loans (Capital Projects 1999) Bill, 1998. The First Elected Member for West Bay, continuing.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

BILLS

SECOND READING

THE LOANS (CAPITAL PROJECTS 1999) BILL, 1998

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Thank you. I am sorry that I was a little late this morning.

At the close of business yesterday afternoon I said that while I didn't get a chance to debate the revenue measures, I considered that the loan proposal and the revenue measures went together, as one depended upon the next; I also said that I was in complete disagreement with Government's proposals for revenue measures; and that Government had not fully thought out where it was going, that it was 'hodgepodging' and 'hopscotching' in its policy seeing that it made the Financial Secretary present a budget and then came afterwards tearing that apart and presenting its own budget.

I also reminded the Government of its sacred pledge to the country, "We believe in living within our country's means and exercising fiscal constraint." And the policy of having sufficient funds available for projects that those projects would depend on sufficient funds that the country was in possession of. This is not what Government has done.

Their claim is that people want these projects and have been asking for them for years. So they must now give them these projects. That's a vast departure from a written manifesto which says, "We believe in living within our country's means and exercising fiscal constraint."

The new leaders over there have somehow forgotten that they (and when I say "they" I include myself) pointed out the financial position of the country at the end of 1992. The conclusion to those reminders to the public at the end of 1992 was that the new Government would inherit this horrendous public debt. That was the reminder of the National Team to the country. Well, if that is so, what are they saying now? What do they believe will happen at the end of their term? New governments will inherit this vast public debt.

They have not thought their policy out. I know that is so. It's a fact, because in times past they made pledges. For instance, not to increase the fees for a domestic helper because of the situation in the country. So many people who would not normally have helpers have them because of not wanting to put their children (and not being able to afford to, especially when they have more than one child) into a pre-school. It is cheaper, somehow, from what people have said to me to have these helpers. The situation is that at the end of the day the people who can least afford to pay, are going to pay dearly.

In talking about this increase on domestic helpers, I am very glad that the church I am a member of has chosen to put out a statement in regard to the treatment of domestic workers. Perhaps I will get beaten with a stick for what I am saying, but it's not my policy to treat people badly. I know that some like to paint me that way, but those who know me know the difference—and that's a lot of people!

The situation that exists in this country in regard to domestic helpers is atrocious. People believe that because they hire them they can do as they please with them. Now I am not telling you that all of them are angels, but I do know that without them this country would not survive in more ways than one. The domestic help is one; but the fact is that a good many of them take care of the elderly in this country, and I count them as domestic helpers; not just those hired by Social Services, but also those employed by individual elderly persons.

People believe they can curse them and push them around; they believe that they don't need a good place to stay; they don't believe that they need any time off. Many of them have a tremendous responsibility in the country of their birth, or else they wouldn't be here. They are here to make a living.

I don't think I am preaching to the House, but I trust that the listening public will hear and not take it that I am talking down to them, but I hope that they understand and believe that I am talking some sense. We cannot continue in this country to treat domestic helpers this way. They play a great part in the upkeep of the country. Some people don't believe that, but that's a fact.

Years ago many Caymanian ladies could only do domestic work. That was all they could get. I am not ashamed to say that that's the end of the street that I come from. It's no disgrace. Today that is not the situation. Caymanians are being educated, there are jobs for all who want to work, so nobody is doing domestic work, as such. That is why we have so many of them. As I said, people who normally would not, have one for different reasons.

We have the situation where everybody is saying that we have too many people here: that the immigration problem is just too terrible with these Jamaicans. I will be open and frank. But everyone wants a domestic helper; everyone wants someone to help him or her in his shop; everyone wants one to be his gardener. So, Mr. Speaker, you are bound to have a lot of them, if everyone wants one. People in this country just cannot continue treating some of them the way that I know some of them are being treated. Especially those who come from the same side of the street I come from, who have domestic helpers; they should know better than anybody else how they need to treat people.

Perhaps this is a good place to say that I hope I can get enough support this year (not from Government, but within the community) to recognise the domestic helper in this country. I will say more about it in a different forum, and I believe there are people, and Members, who will join in to do something to show appreciation. There is nothing in the world like showing someone you appreciate what he or she attempts to do, or what he or she has accomplished.

The Government can say that the cost for a permit for a domestic helper is too low, and therefore they have to increase it. I said yesterday that Government can come with all kinds of excuses as to why they had to put on these tax measures. But those excuses don't cut with me. Government must prioritise. That word must have been said thousands of times in the last couple of months. But it is to our argument very germane. It is a fact that you can only spend what you earn.

The other matter that I think is part and parcel of these loans and Government's attempt at revenue measures is the argument that certain Government services are too costly. There is the argument that you have to take the financial assistance away from some and give it to others. The time that Government takes—for instance two years talking about looking at who's getting from who's not getting—this exercise must be costly indeed. People going around making these inquiries must cost the country a lot. It would be more cost-saving to spend that time doing rehabilitation work and getting people back into a position where they can be self-supporting, if only to a certain extent.

One of the most wasteful expenditures in my opinion is the probing into people's affairs by means tests and needs tests and other inquiries, quite apart from the indignity involved. It is no good waiting until next year to raise the financial assistance to the level we promised. I do not knock the minister; it is his responsibility. But it is a collective responsibility. It is not only at election time that people need. The cost of living continues to rise, and while salaries are increasing for some, and profits increase for others, old people on fixed income—or no income—fall further and further behind. We must be able to give to the elderly a sufficient amount to provide a modern standard of living in the face of today's cost of living. We should be able to guarantee them an amount to live in dignity and enjoy the winter of their lives, and help them to stop worrying how they will keep body and soul together. Surely we can do this for those whom we say have built the country.

There is the constant cry that children must do for their parents. It is even said that they will take children to court. We must remember that this society has changed so much—as much as any other society—that it is no longer possible in a great many cases for children to assist their parents financially, especially if there are two parents. I believe that the will and desire to make such assistance available when needed is still strong. And I have to ask if there is a child who has enough but would see his parents lacking anything? Usually it is just not possible for the average working person to do anything more than to try to take care of his own financial obligations. In days gone by, children and parents would live together until parents passed away. But apartment-living, smaller homes, or no home sometimes, has made this a thing of the past in most cases. The cost of living is so high that all most children can do is to support their own families.

I keep talking about the human element, and it's a fact that the Government is drifting in this matter. We talk about the amount we give in financial assistance, and because we spend some funds on social services and other programmes, we must not just up and say that this expenditure is sufficient. We have to consider, in looking at the human element in this country, not only the high cost of living in these islands, but the limited income and acute needs. The increases are going to hurt the poor people in these islands: the people least able to afford them.

The needs of families are greater today than ten or twenty years ago. In some instances salaries are less than what some people were making in the late 1970s and 1980s, for whatever reason. I consider it a shame and a disgrace in this country that up until now there is still nothing done about the salaries in the hotel sector. To think, Mr. Speaker, that we could contemplate raising Members' salaries by 30% and Executive Ministers by $40,000 a year, but they on that side do not have the gumption to deal with a situation that is glaring them in the face day in and day out. The minimum wage needs to be set in the hotel industry.

We completed an exercise, and albeit a new Minister took over, there has been sufficient time for that to be well underway. And if they were as serious as they said they were when I brought the motion for them to do something with the Committee's report. Remember that they amended my motion to bring it to the House. Up until this point, we have heard nothing about it. I said yesterday (and I will say it again) that the same dollar that Executive Council has to spend for gas, for their children, for food, for education, the poorer people outside have to spend that same dollar, but they have less means than those of us in this House.

These two matters really 'get my goat'—that is, this aspect of the financial assistance and what is happening in the hotel industry, especially at a time when there's an off season. This is the time when the hotel rates are lowered, they take home less, they get less days to work. There are fewer gratuities at this time. Government has to be innovative. If it can't support a total minimum wage, it has to be innovative and do something about that period of time as was my intention—as I said in this House, as I said in Executive Council, as I said on the street. But there doesn't seem to be any innovation as far as Government is concerned. It borrows and it spends; it taxes, and it spends; but never a raise in the income of the people we serve. And they say this is good enough? Not for me!

When we consider that this small country pays $5 million in interest on loans (that was last year's figure), yet we can't give our elderly people $400 per month, this is a tribute paid to financing on more loans. No matter what we say now, the Government will not change course. My mother used to say, "You can't hear? You can feel." At the end of the day they will feel. In closing, I will remind them of their sacred pledge to the people of this country, "We believe in living within our country's means and exercising fiscal constraint. Expenditures proposed will depend on sufficient funds available for the projects."

The country seems to be going full speed, but the revenue is not in tune with the expenditure. Therefore, we have to conclude that management is at fault. Those who say otherwise will have their chance now to say so. I will finally close by saying that the position put forward by the Backbench cannot successfully be challenged. A Government's duty is to explain its policy. Its next duty is to explain to the country the alternatives given by anyone. There was an alternative: Government cannot explain it because it can't.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause) Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause) I do not want to deprive any Member of the opportunity to speak; does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause) The Third Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I feel that I would be remiss in my duties as a representative if I did not take the opportunity to speak on this Loan (Capital Projects 1999) Bill, 1998, that is before us. But to say, in the same vein as the previous speaker (the First Elected Member for West Bay), that this Loan Bill cannot be taken in isolation as it forms a part of a general revenue package. So it is most appropriate for any Member speaking on this Bill, in my opinion, to also make reference to the taxation measures and indeed the manner in which these measures will be used.

But before dealing with these particular issues, I wish to make my general position fairly clear regarding my future actions and behaviour in this honourable House. While I will continue to show the very highest respect and regard for you, Mr. Speaker, and Members of this House, I want to make it abundantly clear that I will not sit back and allow any Member of this House to make unwarranted attacks on me and expect me not to say anything. I know that some of my colleagues refer to me as "the Pope" because they feel that I am longsuffering and that I try to make peace—

Mr. Roy Boddén: You always conduct yourself with a certain dignity.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: And I always try to conduct myself with a level of dignity. But sometimes that can be taken for weakness. Those people who know me, who have followed my political career, know that there is one thing they should not be mistaken about, and that is my ability to speak and defend myself appropriately, if necessary.

There is a certain Member of this House who feels that his way to the throne in the year 2000 is to pull down his fellow colleagues. It seems that every time he gets an opportunity, that honourable Member tries to attack me. It seems that he feels that his way to winning in the year 2000 is by attacking me. Real threats have also been made in and out of this House regarding that Member's future plans to derail me. Let me make it abundantly clear to that honourable Member—and the reason I am saying this on the microphone is so that the listening public will know that if they at any time hear me defending myself on this microphone, or in any public forum, against that individual or anyone else, then that individual cannot come crying on their shoulders.

I am putting it in the Hansards that from here onward I will be vigorously defending myself against him, or any other Member of this House. I hope that Member understands that this is not a veiled threat, this is a promise. I will defend myself whenever necessary. He feels that he is riding high on the wave of popularity at present, but I have been through many rough seas and have come out alive. With the help of God I intend to complete this term, and another (term) in this House. The people of this district in the island will be the judge as to my stewardship between now and then, and my past stewardship. I am not going to sit down and allow that Member (I won't call his name now, but I may have to do so at a later time) to in any way abuse me in or out of this honourable House. I think I have said enough on that.

I would now like to turn to The Loan (Capital Projects 1999) Bill, 1998. As I mentioned, this Bill cannot be taken in isolation. It forms a part of a revenue package which includes taxation and borrowings, and indeed the revenues that have been utilised to defray the cost of Government's expenditures, not only the recurrent and statutory expenditures but indeed the capital development expenditure including the continuing projects under capital acquisitions.

In trying to determine how the revenues and the expenditures are made up, I have gone through and done a simplified breakdown. This includes the surplus brought forward by the honourable Financial Secretary of $7.21 million, the taxation package of $11.8 million, the revenue package before the taxation package was included of $271.37 million giving a grand general total of $283.17 million. The borrowings that have been agreed upon of $26 million, total fund receipts of $9.87 million, and the breakdown of that is that $2 million came from the environmental protection fund and $7.87 million from the other infrastructure development fund.

Then, there was another amount of $4.06 million that came from the capital development accumulated balance fund. This gives a total general revenue position of $330,310,000. I will show you how this total $330 million will be utilised, and I will also show how it is a fallacy for any Member to get up in this House and say that he does not support the revenue package, but he supports the recurrent and statutory expenditures; he supports the contribution to reserve funds and public pension funds; he supports new services and capital acquisition; he supports the capital development fund, but he does not support the taxation package. It shows a lack of understanding of the finances of this country because out of that $330 million, $326 million is being used in expenditures with a surplus of only $4.53 million. You can check the table and you will see that this is correct.

So, Mr. Speaker, the mere fact that we are looking at a surplus of $4.53 million suggests that at least $7 million has been taken from the $11.8 million. Anyone getting up in here saying that he does not support the tax measures, but supports all other expenditure measures is either (1) misleading the public, or (2) displaying a lack of understanding of these figures.

That surplus that was brought forward of $7.21 million, I appreciate that this has been allocated to three areas. I will come to that as I go through my debate on this Bill, but the point I want to make very clear is that at least $7 million had to be taken from the taxation package. If any Member is supporting the recurrent and statutory expenditure (I will repeat it again), contribution, new services, capital acquisitions, and capital development fund, then they would have had to support at least $7 million of the taxation package.

I refer the Members of this House to Table 1 of the summary of the 1999 Estimates of Revenue and Expenditure that shows an accumulated surplus carried forward to the year 2000 of $4.3 million agreeing with the figures I just mentioned. All I have done was to rearrange those figures so that the public and the House will know that we are not just talking about two hundred and odd million dollars in revenue, we are talking about a grand total available to this Government of $330.31 million, the total expenditures of which are $325.78 million, leaving a total of $4.53 million. If anyone cares to dispute that, I am willing to give way at any time during my debate.

Another point I want to make on that $7.21 million is that (and this is based on the information given by the honourable Minister for Education) . . . he, in fact, said that we shouldn't worry, or something to that effect, about the taxation measures because $5 million was coming from exempt companies. That still leaves $7 million because the taxation package was approximately $12 million—$11.8 million to be exact.

Then our argument on this side of the House was that if there were $7 million remaining and Government had this big windfall of $7 million that they found at the last hour, why was that $7 million not used? I know some of my colleagues don't like the term 'applied' but why was it not applied to the taxation package to reduce that amount so that it would not be a burden on our people?

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Good argument!

Mr. Roy Bodden: Good argument!

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Why was that not done if they have the interest of the people at heart the way they say they do?

Mr. Roy Bodden: They must be doing single-entry accounting!

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: As I mentioned, the Loan Bill is only a part of the total revenue package. The wild borrowing is only a part of the imprudent taxation package.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Unbridled spending!

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: And unbridled spending! The Finance Bill, 1998, has and will create much hardship on our people. And it will have the effect of pushing up the cost of living. There is no question about that. Where do we think those who are being taxed will pass it on to if not the general public or their consumers, or clients? They are not going to absorb that in their overhead; they will pass that on. And if they pass that on to wherever, it is going to have the negative trickle down effect, hurting the end user which is invariably the less well-off individuals.

One Member got up and reminded me that I had said I could support increase on alcohol and cigarettes. I am not denying that, and that Member doesn't need to remind me – I have a good memory. I am not denying that, plus it is in the Hansards of the House. That same Member should have reminded the House that I also said that I would be vehemently opposed to any increase in school fees and book rentals. I went across the floor and told the honourable Ministers that I would not support the taxation bill unless something was done to reduce those fees. Knowing the honourable Members that they are, I feel sure they would be quick to say 'Yes, you did in fact say that.'

It was my intention to speak on the Finance Bill, but somehow I did not get that opportunity. I do not intend to utilise this opportunity for that purpose, but as I mentioned earlier it is relevant in that it forms a part of the whole capital projects bill as this is the funding for that. I think it is unconscionable for anybody to increase, regardless of the quantum involved, a fee from $14 to $150. That is over 900%. We may say that it's not a lot of money, but I contend that it is a lot of money when you are talking about a poor family with four or five children, having to budget every penny they are using. It means a lot. I also know that there are some families that have to even get assistance from the Social Services Department because they cannot afford to pay the present costs.

It is unconscionable to increase a fee from $5 to $50. Why was this not done in a more gradual way? You are looking at 900%. But they would be glad and quick to say, 'But the total amount from book rental fees is only $247,000.' My retort to that would be, If it was so insignificant, why put it on in the first place? And why could this not be taken off the backs of the poor people? This is the sort of thing that the honourable Member who always looks to have one-up on me should be talking about and trying to get some relief for the constituents rather than playing politics. And I am going to come to the question of playing politics.

One Member got up and said we were playing politics. But if that Member, and all others who believe as he does, feels that we were playing politics in this House with the MLA salaries (and I will come to that) then out of genuine concern and strength of character those Members should have voted against the motion brought by my honourable colleague, the First Elected Member for West Bay, and seconded by my honourable colleague, the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town. Who is playing politics when you get up in this House and vote against your conscience just because you think that if you don't do it you might lose some votes? Who is playing politics?

I am going to move on. I will now show that ever since the National Team Government came to power in 1992 that there has been a consistent trend of imprudent taxation, of wild borrowings, and of unbridled expenditure. Our people should say no to imprudent taxation, wild borrowings, and unbridled expenditure. I asked the question earlier: 'Why was the newly acquired windfall and surplus of $7 million not used to relieve the tax burden on our people?' Just for the record, let me say that I am aware of how that $7.21 million was used up—$2 million were placed in general reserves; $2.7 million went to the capital development fund; and $2.5 million went to defray the overseas medical expenses into a reserve. That is the $7.2 million. I assume that the $10,000 remains on the account.

As far as I am concerned, nothing has changed about that $7.21 million. The only thing that would have made any significant change is if that amount had been applied to the taxation package. It has worsened the situation because of the track record of the National Team Government. They will now go into the reserves, the capital development fund, and the $2.5 million for overseas expenses and use it if the necessity arises. But if it had been applied to the tax package we know that the chance of this happening would have been very remote.

Mr. Speaker, I have to ask, Can those who supported the revenue package, even the $7 million out of it, honestly say that their actions of imposing these taxes, the horrendous increase in book fees, even though they could get up here and say it's for expatriate children, they are non-Caymanians . . . there are many non-Caymanians who have made major contributions to these islands. Their children were born here and know no other place besides the Cayman Islands, why should they suffer? Is that the kind of country we are becoming?

We might say that the book rental fees will affect everybody, but have we sat back to talk? And I know some Members like to play on the term 'little man.' But they know the 'little man' when election time comes. To satisfy those Members who don't like that term, let me say the less well-off individuals. Have they sat with them to determine what impact this will have on those families? How many of the Members of the Backbench have spoken to the families about this, and told them that they voted to increase these costs on them? Are they being that honest with them? They are always talking about integrity and honesty. Well, tell the people who were a part of this taxation package. They might say that they didn't do the whole of it, but the amount of at least $7 million – which cannot be disputed – was agreed upon by certain Members of the Backbench.

On the question of Government's capital works programme, the main reason why this Loan Bill is in place is that a certain Member tried to poke fun at us, saying "What's the difference between $26 million and $25 million?" Maybe one million dollars doesn't mean much to that Member, but it certainly means a lot to our people, and it would mean a lot to me. But what the Member lost sight of, what totally escaped him and those who spoke like him, was that we were speaking about the principle of the matter. We are not here talking about adding up dollars and cents. We are speaking about the principle of the whole thing.

I want to make it quite clear that we on this side supported the total package, what we called the C package (for capital acquisitions of some $18 million), the continuing projects and an amount of up to $20 million. This wasn't something we came up with after a good night's rest and a good dream. We sat down and worked it out. The country could not afford the higher loans and borrowing that they were getting involved with together with the taxation package. It was based on that that we said there is already $10.18 million in the budget and we were prepared to agree to an additional $25 million at that point in time.

Somebody will quickly say, 'Well, that's a difference of $2.82 million.' That was also added in our calculations because we were told that there would be a surplus. At that time they did not know how much it would be. The $20 million we agreed on would have covered capital projects for education. We see that as a top priority of some $12.5 million. We put a full-page ad in the Caymanian Compass, so it's no secret. The Crew Road Bypass, $5 million; and the Galleria Loop of the Harquail Bypass of some $2.5 million, giving a grand total of $20 million, plus the $18 million on continuing projects.

That is exactly the position we have put forward. It wasn't guessing. So when anybody gets up here and asks, Why are the Backbenchers kicking up, it's only a difference of one million dollars? One million dollars means a lot to our poor people out there. To any of us it would mean a lot. It could provide needed facilities for our young people and for our poor people. It could provide housing for a lot of our people in need. Is that the kind of representation we need in this House?

Mr. Speaker, there is a Member across from me wanting to interrupt me. If he wishes, I can deal with him on this microphone too.

The Speaker: When you reach a convenient place in your speech, maybe we could take the morning break.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Yes, Mr. Speaker, thank you.

The Speaker: You have reached that point? We shall suspend proceedings for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 11.40 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 12.05 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Debate continues on the Loans (Capital Projects 1999) Bill, 1998. The Third Elected Member for George Town, continuing.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

On the break, I had just finished mentioning the details of clause 4 of the Finance Bill, 1998, which amends the Education Law (1977 Revision), and I had given some of the increases and the percentage applied to those increases.

The honourable Financial Secretary had also prepared comparative figures for this honourable House and last night in researching this I came across these figures. I will deal specifically with the school fees and the book rental fees before moving on. But even though it may be said by Ministers of Government, or the Government as a whole, that the school fees will apply only to non-Caymanian children, I see this as creating a hardship.

It should not be felt that these children are not now paying a significant sum to Government for the privilege of obtaining an education at the primary, middle and high school levels. The current rate at the primary school level is now $450 per year. And that rate has gone up to $750 per year. At the middle school level, it is $540 per year (and I am reading these figures from the information circulated by the honourable Financial Secretary), and the new rate will be $900 per year. At the high school level it is $630 per year, and that will go up to $1200 per year.

I did go through the increases in book rental where you find Primary, Year 1, going from $5 to $50; and in Years 2 to 6 a similar trend. The Middle School, first, second and third forms, show a major increase and then in the High School from the third, fourth, fifth and sixth forms also showing a major increase. I will not read these in detail. If anyone wishes to have these figures, I will be happy to provide this summary.

Mr. Speaker, as part of the whole expenditure programme, was the increase of the salaries evaluation exercise and this is believed to be obtained from savings. To date we have not seen any indication of exactly where these savings will come from. My contention is that in the absence of that information I can only conclude that we may have to come back here to Finance Committee to obtain the funds for the salary re-grading.

Mr. Speaker, I would just like to reiterate (because it was done before during Finance Committee) that it was not because the six backbenchers involved felt that we did not deserve the increase, or that we were somewhat below those others included in the same salary scale. Far be it from us. The reason was that it was our opinion, and I believe it is shared by the mass majority of residents that these islands cannot afford it at this time. We felt that as good representatives we should set the example. Indeed, one Member—and I am sure she doesn't mind my mentioning this—the Member for North Side had already said that she intended to utilise her increase for the good of her people in North Side.

The second thing on that was that we felt that the whole structure had a weakness in it in that it was not spread evenly across the board. The middle income persons within the service were almost completely left out. I think one person told me he got as little as $2 increase, some people got nothing in that middle management. The explanation I got for that was that their salaries were considered by those who did the evaluation to be fairly in line with the private sector. I cannot buy that, especially when you have some of the higher income people getting such a high increase in salary. It has to create some amount of concern among the service when some of them are left out.

That was the reason why a motion was brought by the First Elected Member for West Bay, seconded by the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town, and supported by six Members from this side. We intend to speak more on this tonight at our public meeting on the steps of the Court Building which starts at 7.30. We are giving a cordial invitation to all Ministers of Government and their supporters to be there. They will see that we will conduct a very good meeting, one we hope they will emulate so that we will set the right tone from here on to the next election.

When we oppose on this side, we try very hard not to involve personalities. We want to deal with the issues. I think it was Winston Churchill who said, when he was accused of giving some person hell, or the dickens, he said, "Mr. Speaker, I don't give them hell; I tell the truth and it just sounds like hell." We try to keep our debates at a very high level. There comes a time when we have to deal with issues like I did this morning. But that is part of the whole political process.

If I were asked to describe the National Team Government, the present Government . . . I have nothing against them personally. They know that. I respect every one of them over there. But I am sure my good friend, the Minister for Education, remembers when he was sitting over here, and I was a Member of the 1988 to 1992 Government, when he would look across at me and say "You know nothing personal. I am just dealing with the issues." So I just want to remind him that I am dealing with the issues now.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: He didn't tell you that in Hong Kong too?

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: He told me that in other areas, that he doesn't have anything personal. And I believe him, because he and I go back a long way.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Rather you than me!

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: But I think he would agree that his Government, since 1992, has been a Government of management by crisis. I think that the 1999 Budget emphasised and highlighted that. It was the first time in my period of Government and in politics—and I spent a number of years in the Finance Department as Deputy Financial Secretary and acted on many occasions as Financial Secretary, so I know about the budget—that I had seen two budgets coming within the same budget session.

The honourable Financial Secretary brought what I thought was 'the' Budget, and later on a revised capital expenditure budget was brought by my good friend the honourable Minister for Tourism, who was also a former Financial Secretary.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: One of them was Truman's budget, you know.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: My good colleague here said that one of those was Mr. Truman's budget (the Financial Secretary's budget) the first one. But the second one was the budget of the Minister for Tourism.

[Members' laughter]

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: But what was so frightening about this was that almost three months later (we started on 16th November) we have another $7 million that is being applied to the budget.

[Inaudible interjection]

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: The honourable Minister for Tourism is quite correct: the 16th of February hasn't arrived yet, and that is why I said almost three months. It's not far off. The longest budget session in the history of these islands. And it's not finished yet. I won't be too critical on that because I know that preparing the budget is not an easy job and it's even more difficult with the fiscal system that we have in effect right now.

Two things are needed. We are dealing with an old antiquated system; it's like our Constitution almost.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Truman, I hope you're writing that down.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: But I won't say much about that because I don't want to be misquoted. But we are dealing with a budgetary system that has been in effect ever since we started moving our financial sector ahead which would have been around the mid 1960s; around the time that the Bank and Trust Companies Law came into effect. The only difference is that there has been a bit more volume to the budget. But the same principle applies: You need a little money, you tax the people. They call it revenue enhancement measures. It sounds good but it's still taxation—a rose by any other name . . .

I want to make two points here right now, and I hope that honourable Ministers and the Financial Secretary will take this into account. Until the Government has the strength of character to bring forward a medium term financial strategy (I like to refer to it as a medium term economic strategy) together with a proper public sector investment programme, then we will continue to have the problems we see before us. We use these words, medium term financial strategy, public sector investment programme.

What does that really mean? I will tell you my understanding of it. A medium term economic or financial strategy will set the sort of guidelines that are required for the necessary revenues needed within a country to provide certain infrastructure facilities and other needed expenditures. It would also include the think tank that was proposed in this House many years ago and more recently in my budget debate.

I know that the honourable Financial Secretary has been very busy here with the budget and hasn't had time to properly deal with it, but it is important that it be put into effect, not tomorrow, but today because come November, or even in August as the budget is being prepared, we will be scrambling to find money again. And we will be scrambling to get loans to take care of additional capital expenditure. One only has to look at the projection from 1999 to 2001 and it is quite clear that for each one of those years vast amounts of capital expenditure is being projected. Where is that money coming from? Let's get that think tank into operation right away.

But, Mr. Speaker, the medium term economic strategy is the overall strategy that will determine what this country can bear – how much finances can be taken out of this little country. Then, only then can we say, 'If the country can only afford X amount, we can only spend X amount. We can't spend X plus Y.' So the public sector investment programme must be geared to the medium term financial economic strategy. That's the only way. That's the type of plan the Government needs to put into effect as quickly as possible. I know that my good colleague, the First Elected Member for George Town, has been asking for this for many, many months, even before I came back here in 1996. He has been promised that this will be put in place. But, to date, nothing has been done. At least if it has been done, it hasn't been brought to this honourable House.

One has to wonder why there is such an inordinate delay in bringing such an important plan for the guidance of these islands to this honourable House. Is it because of a lack of fiscal discipline? There is no use for us to talk about fiscal reforms if we are not prepared to look at the whole underlying question of our revenue base. We have to look at that and find ways and means of broadening the revenue base. That might require diversification into niche industries and so on. But so be it. We cannot continue to have increases that will be borne by our people.

Imprudent taxation, wild borrowings, and unbridled expenditure have been the history of this Government since 1992. One has to ask, Where are we headed? Is the present trend leading in the right direction? Where on average, expenditure exceeds your revenue? Is this the right direction when your current statutory and capital expenditure is every year exceeding your recurrent revenue? And, as I mentioned earlier, in order to find sufficient revenue we have to tax and we have to borrow.

Mr. Speaker, the irony of this whole thing is that these islands are experiencing the highest boom that the world has seen, or at least these islands, because of the United States. I don't agree with the National Team manifesto when they say they were responsible for the boom. They had nothing to do with it. We are affected here if America sneezes: we already have a cold. Whatever happens in these islands is caused by external influences, it is nothing that we do here. Just like when we had a recession from 1987 to 1992—and I will deal with that because my honourable colleague is always trying to capitalise on that.

We had a recession from 1988 to 1992 during the time I was in Government. At the same time the United States came out of that recession in 1992, we started benefiting, and we have been benefiting for the last seven years—just like the United States. It's one of the longest boom periods in the history of the United States, similarly in the Cayman Islands. I will deal with that and I will show that even during the recession that the last Government (1988 to 1992) experienced, we were able to put aside more money and I want the Minister for Education to hear this: We were able to put aside more money in our general reserves than they have done during the boom period. And you call that good management? Mr. Speaker, it is frightening when they will tell you that they have only $10 million in reserves which equates to just about two weeks of recurrent expenditure. On the outside that's what it is, Mr. Speaker.

They had promised for many, many years to bring the reserves up to at least three months of recurrent expenditure. That would be equivalent to $50 million–$60 million.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Yeah, promises, promises.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: But they are just telling you that they are going to put another $2 million onto it.

Mr. Roy Boddan: You have to be frightened.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: That would make it a little over two weeks. But that's after shouting for four years. They take the credit for the boom, but what they don't tell the public is that they have spent all the money. There's nothing being saved for a rainy day.

Mr. Roy Boddan: I wonder if my friend is writing that down too?

[Inaudible interjections]

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, I hear one of my colleagues on the other side trying to bribe my good colleagues over here with queen fish. But that's not going to work, Mr. Speaker, because he is not going to ease him up when he gets up to speak.

[Members' laughter]

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Between the years 1993 to 1999 the National Team Government will have spent $118 million in loans. I will refer them to the financial summary 1984 to 1997 that was circulated in Finance Committee by the honourable Financial Secretary so that they will know that these figures are real. In 1993 the loan amount was $17.5 million. And they said that some of that had to pay off CAL's debts. But I wonder what they said in 1996 when they borrowed $22.4 million. Was that also to pay off CAL's debts, or are there more debts accumulated by CAL? In 1997, $25.5 million. In 1998 $20.6 million. And in 1999, $26 million. Where are we headed? This country cannot afford to go in that direction. Management by crisis. We cannot continue.

The Government would also have people believe that they were so prudent. As a matter of fact, they talk about prudence in their 1996 manifesto. Let me remind them that during 1988 to 1992 these islands went through the worst recession in decades. But our records show that in 1998 (sic) we had general reserves of $11.2 million. In 1989 we had reserves of $18.2 million. In 1990 we had to draw down because of the bad recession, we had a balance of $12 million, but in 1991 it was $13 million. In 1992 we had the equivalent—in the worse period of our recession—of what they have at this present time in the best period of their boom period. Those figures speak for themselves.

But look at what they did when they got in in 1993: they tore the general reserves down to $3.5 million. Then in 1994, they didn't do much better, they had $4 million. In 1995 they had $4.4 million. In 1996 they had $7.6 million. In 1997 they managed to go to $9 million, and they are now telling us that they might carry it to $12 million.

Mr. Speaker, it is a very bad indictment on this Government that during seven years of economic growth in this country that they could not have saved more. And if they had, there would be no need for this loan bill today; there would be no need for the taxation package. What we have had since 1993 is a period of imprudent taxation, wild borrowings, and unbridled expenditure.

There is a little word that my honourable colleague from Bodden Town, the Third Elected Member, uses many times. I always have pleasure listening to him. I tell him he has such flowery language. But he knows, as an ex-school teacher, how to put it together. The word he uses is déjà vu. And just to make sure I used it right, I looked up the meaning this morning. It says, "Tedious familiarity; of having experienced the present situation." I think it is déjà vu all over again because the same problems we were experiencing during a crisis time in this country, a recession, the National Team Government is now experiencing in the very highest economic boom these islands have ever known.

In 1996 the National Team Government came out with a very impressive manifesto. It was called "Building for the 21st Century." The question has to be asked whether or not they understood the real meaning of the word "building." What I have seen, and what I have just read out to you would show more of a trend of tearing down.

One Member said (in the very best interest, I know) that perhaps I could rejoice because the National Team removed the Government of which I had been a part with the promise that they would make life better for Caymanians and other residents. But it is not hard to see that what they have done since coming to power in 1993 was to make life more difficult to the point where it is becoming unbearable.

The National Team said in its manifesto—

Mr. Roy Bodden: Read it! Read it! Read it out.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: They told everybody about the financial disaster of the last Government (referring to the 1984 to 1992 Government, the same Government that will replace them in the year 2000.)

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Hear, hear!

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: They said that that Government imposed $20 million in new duties in taxes in 1990 and 1991, the burden of which fell on Caymanians. Now, when they get up I want them to explain why between 1993 and 1999 the budget is $118 million when in fact they were telling the public that $20 million was such a bad thing.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Déjà vu!

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: And they were so brazen! They didn't even use a little diplomacy. They said in their manifesto "The last Government 1988 to 1992, of which Mr. Linford Pierson was a part, spent $52.6 million . . ." I mean, they weren't even a little kind to me. They put my name in print.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Do that with Truman!

[Members' laughter]

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: So, Mr. Speaker, it really doesn't hurt my heart when I have to remind them of their mismanagement. It doesn't hurt my heart when I have to (in the words of my good friend, the Third Elected Member for Bodden Town) remind them that 'the chickens have come home to roost.'

Mr. Roy Bodden: Oh, how true!

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: I think that the crowning glory of my good friend, the honourable Minister for Education, is that the Emperor is naked!

He said here, "Our accomplishment from 1993 to 1996 recorded [Mr. Speaker, I want to wait until he gets in; he's coming in the door now] a recurrent surplus [and he put in brackets (or profit)] of about $60.3 million." The honourable Minister knows better. He knows that I recognise him as a highly qualified person. Not only is he a lawyer, but he's a banker, and he knows a lot about accounts—he's an accountant. But if he had been a member of my society, the Society of Professional Accountants, and he had made that remark, he would have been struck off!

[Members' laughter]

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: He knows. He's a smart guy, I have to hand that to him. He can put figures together. But he knew he was giving the wrong impression. But what was worse, a gentleman for whom I have so much respect—even though I have to hit him sometimes—the Minister for Tourism, he came out and supported what he was saying. That is when I really got it right between the eyes because I thought he would have said, 'No, Mr. Truman. You can't tell the people that.' But he came out and said, 'Yes, that's true.'

And, do you know what? Because of their high profile positions people believed them. But now they are saying that if you had all of that $60.3 million, why do you need loans? Why are you not using some of that? Why do you have to tax people for $11.8 million? And why do you have to get a $26 million loan? Why not use some of that $60.3 million?

Mr. Speaker, the written word: it's all here in writing. I don't know how they meant it. I can't read their minds. I can only say what was written in their manifesto. There was no $60.3 million.

What was equally as bad was that the honourable Minister for Education came out with his version of what the overdraft position should have been like. What was bad about that is that his version was confirmed by the Accountant General!

[Members' laughter]

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Even some of the 'little people' on the street were confused. They said to me, "Mr. Pierson, if I have $100 in the bank, and I draw cheques for $90, even though those cheques are not all cashed, how much do I really have left?"

I said, "You really only have $10 left because those cheques are going to be cashed some time."

But, No! The Accountant General, and the now Minister for Education and the Minister for Tourism said, "No! What you have is the balance in the bank even though those cheques are not cashed. That is really the amount that you have."

Mr. Speaker, anybody can see that that is incorrect and false accounting.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: That is no entry bookkeeping!

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: That is not even single entry bookkeeping. If you have $100 in the bank and you draw cheques for $90, you have $10 left—whether those cheques are cashed or not.

They would not handle their own personal business like that. So why should Government handle its business like that? Hear what they had to say: "The 1995 Auditor General's Report, page 6 item 1.8, deals with the Treasury cash book position which reflects a $7.48 million cash book overdraft." And I am reading this because it relates to the whole question of, Why do we need to borrow if we apparently have so much money available to us? The $60.3 million is recurrent profit and all of this money in the bank.

"However," he says, "the more favourable position at the bank is attributed to un-presented cheques which amount to about $6.4 million as at 31st December 1995. This means [let's hear his explanation now] that the overdraft at Barclays Bank was in reality less than $1.2 million, i.e., $7.48 million minus the overdraft figures which was well below [listen to this now] the authorised limit of $4.5 million approved by the Legislative Assembly."

Now, my colleagues, most of you are not accountants, but you are very bright. Can you in your reasoning agree with the position that the National Team Government took in 1996? They are saying that the Legislative Assembly only approved an overdraft limit of $4.5 million. They had spent $7.48 million—way above the overdraft—but because a lot of those cheques had not yet been presented for payment it was okay; they were well below the limit. That is misleading. No question about it. I don't think I have to say a lot more about that, but it was very misleading.

Just for clarity, I wish to make it abundantly clear that we now have an Accountant General for whom my colleagues and I have the very highest regard. And it was not Mrs. McLaughlin who prepared these figures; it was her predecessor. She did not give this information. I think we are lucky to have such a fine person heading up our Treasury Department.

The Speaker: Would this be a convenient time to take the luncheon break?

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: We shall suspend proceedings until 2.15.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12.50 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2.34 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Debate continues on the Loans (Capital Projects 1999) Bill, 1998. The Third Elected Member for George Town, continuing.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Thank you.

I had reached the point where I was going to comment briefly on the economic outlook of these islands and in so doing to quote the sage words of our Financial Secretary in his budget address delivered on Monday, 16th November, 1998. He said: "Mr. Speaker, growth forecasts for 1999 will depend to a great extent on the state of the world's economy." I couldn't agree with that honourable Member more. He did not say that it would depend upon the workings of the National Team or anything they might attempt to impress upon this House or the listening public, but upon the state of the world's economy. And that is so true.

I made the point earlier that our economic situation is dependent upon, in particular, the economic situation of our good neighbour to the north of us, the United States of America. He went on to say in that speech, "If there is a slowdown in the US economy, this may cause growth to moderate in the domestic economy." The reason I mention this is to extend the warning that I gave earlier in my debate that Government should save up during the time of plenty for that rainy day that could be on the horizon.

We have seen the devastating effects of the recession globally; the global economy has been falling apart. The only strong economy on the west right now would have to be that of the United States, which has been doing very well. Even with the United States economy, it is generally felt that the vagaries of the economic situation of countries in Asia and South America and soon in Europe will have a negative effect on the United States economy, as much of the economic growth in the United States depends upon its exports. If those countries which import from the United States are in an economic shamble, it has to have a major negative effect on the United States balance of trade. So, my warning would be that Government should make every attempt at this time of plenty, to improve general reserves and other reserves within Government.

Based on our gross domestic product which is estimated at around $1 billion in 1999, it is estimated that the per capita income of our people will be in the region of $32,000. That is a lot of money when compared with other countries in this hemisphere. However, the question lingers: How many of our people are enjoying this prosperity? More importantly, what has the country done to put away sufficient funds for that proverbial rainy day?

As I mentioned earlier, Government had set an estimate of around $60 million, or three month's recurrent expenditure, as an appropriate general reserve for these islands. Sadly, even with the $2 million recently transferred to our general reserves, we are looking at approximately $12 million, which is just about two weeks' expenditure and far away from the three months that has been established as adequate for these islands.

I would also remind Government that it should look very seriously at the recommendations made in regard to putting top priority on the preparation of the medium term financial strategy and the public sector investment programme. Because without those bases and important guidelines it is impossible for Government to know from one day to the next what direction it is going in.

Such a guideline would avoid imprudent taxation. It would avoid the wild borrowings we see going on now, and hopefully with the public sector investment programme in place there would be a guideline as to what type of capital expenditure would be put in place thus avoiding the unbridled expenditure we now see going on in these islands. I know that the Government bench will be quick to say, 'But we're not outside the ceiling that has been set for the debt service ratio.' I would caution that Government should not just rely on that because when you look at the baseline scenario of debt servicing prepared by the finance department it is easy to see that if we continue the trend that we have followed in the past, the pessimistic scenario shows that by the year 2001 we could be up to 9.8% of the 10% ceiling. This is a serious situation. Caution and prudence is advised at a time like this.

Another serious point is the whole question of the cost of living in these islands. The question has been asked and deserves repeating: Are we pricing ourselves out of the financial and tourism markets? That subject could take a very long time to debate. I will leave that hanging, but repeat the question: Are we pricing ourselves out of the financial and tourism markets? And what are we doing to rectify the situation?

As mentioned, it is not good enough to say that we are putting in place financial reforms because in addition to financial reforms there are certain basic short to medium-term financial strategies that should be put in place immediately. An immediate and short-term strategy should be the establishment of the think tank that was mentioned earlier. I already mentioned that a medium term strategy should be the medium term economic strategy and public sector investment programme.

It is our intention at our public meeting tonight to mention and discuss a number of these topics including Government's capital works programme and to ask and answer the question, Can we afford it? We will also be discussing the MLA salary increase, and why we rejected it. The tax package: Is it hurting the people? The proposed loan bill: Are these loans driving up our public debt? And most importantly, the whole question of fiscal responsibility and an examination of our revenue base.

For the reasons stated, and in particular Government's inflexibility on the whole question of the taxation package, I now find myself unable to support this Loan (Capital Projects 1999) Bill, 1998. Thank you.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak? The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I would first like to welcome to the House the honourable Attorney General, the Second Official Member. He is leader of the Bar, a very able and experienced attorney. Sir, I am sure that all Members look forward to working with you, in the future.

Mr. Speaker, after months of Government being criticised by Members of Opposition about not running things right, and building up 'doom and gloom', the headlines in today's newspaper must surely have been a very pleasant surprise! The proof of the pudding is in the tasting.

Last year this country had a surplus of $7.2 million. And the public surely knows that if a country is not well run, and extremely well run . . . and I congratulate the honourable Financial Secretary and also the Accountant General despite the criticism made. Those figures are right and it surely must have brought shock to some of the critics to see that the country is in such a good financial position.

I have listened very intently, not only to the budget debate, but also to the different measures that have been before the House (the one prior to this, and this one).

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order, please, sir.

POINT OF ORDER

The Speaker: Let me hear your point of order please.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: My interpretation of what the Minister said just a few minutes ago is that there were criticisms levelled at the Financial Secretary and the Accountant General. My understanding of what he said was that we intimated that the figures that would show the surplus were not correct. If that is what the Minister is saying, that is not true, and the Minister is misleading the House. If that is what he is saying, sir, he must withdraw it because that is not what was said.

Mr. Roy Bodden: No! Absolutely No! And you know it!

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, that was what I understood the gist of that to be. What I would like to do is ask the honourable Financial Secretary to get—because he defended it—to get the transcript and look at that. And if I am wrong I will apologise, let me say that. If I am right I would like to go on. But what I do remember was that earlier figures were referred to as voodoo economics, or something to that effect. I remember the Financial Secretary basically defending those figures, sir. But I don't want to waste a lot of time. I don't want to get into a lot of arguments. I will leave it for the Financial Secretary to look at the transcript, and then we can go on.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker –

The Speaker: Just withdraw it for the time being and we will come back.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Sorry? I will just leave that . . . is that what you said, sir?

The Speaker: I would like you to just withdraw it and then you can bring it back if you have just reason to bring it back.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: [laughs] Well, Mr. Speaker, I don't want to waste time. But if that is the case, rather than withdraw it and bring it back (because that's only going to rake it up a second time) to just ask that the transcript on both the voodoo as well as the Finance Committee where the Financial Secretary defended be brought and have you look at them sir, and just let me know. Whatever you rule, I will abide by it.

The Speaker: Please continue then. In the meantime I will get the transcript. I will look at it carefully.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, the Opposition obviously . . . and I sat here and never took one point of order throughout all of the pounding that I got on this side. But sometimes I guess when one hits things like the $7 million surplus; when the forecast was so gloomy by the Opposition, I would expect reaction to it. But facts are facts.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: [Inaudible interjection]

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Well, you will get your opportunity, my friend, so . . .

And the public knows, Mr. Speaker, that when a country in a year turns a surplus of $7.2 million, the country is in good shape. And one of the things that was brought out very early by the Fourth Elected Member for George Town—and I endorse and support what he said—was that there are no solutions put up; no alternatives to the budget and the cuts that the backbench called for. The Opposition has had two months (and they have some good figureheads with them because half of the Opposition are ex-National Team Members), so when the Third Elected Member for George Town criticised the National Team and the manifesto, he has to look at the smiling faces on the front of that and realise that he is criticising not just the Government but half of the Opposition. And they are all still smiling over there so the National Team must have been good if they can produce both Government and backbench at the same time. [Members' laughter]

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: And in fact, Mr. Speaker, with the exception of two Members over there, they are all National Team and they are all still in the House, so I think we have had a very good basis for that.

But the bottom line is, despite all of the criticism there is no alternative. There is no solution put up by the Backbench. I will say this: Normally anybody can criticise, but it takes good, able people to not just criticise but come up with a solution. Most of the criticism is 'You haven't done this. You haven't done that.' To do things, one has to spend money. It has to come from somewhere. At present the difference between what the Opposition is saying, to borrow $25 million, and the jolt that they got when they realised that we only had to borrow $26 million to still do the large amount of capital works, that, together with the profit, has floored any argument that may be put forward by them.

To be frank, it was raised several times, and the question was asked, If you wish us to cut (in the days when we would have had to cut say $8 million or $9 million) what do you wish us to cut? But there was no solution to that. Basically we were told that we must do the cutting and bring it within the $25 million. So, indirectly, and with the help of a lot of hard work on our part, the same large amount of capital is now capably being done with the $26 million loan only.

I will show as we go on that this is not large compared to the amount of budgets now. I am going to look back at some of the past budgets, and I can assure the public that there has never been (from what I have seen from the records given to me by the Accountant General or the Financial Secretary), any time in the history of this country that the recurrent revenue has paid for all recurrent expenditure, all statutory expenditure, and all capital expenditure. If anyone can produce those figures, I would be grateful.

And I will also be able to show that only twice in the history of this country has the recurrent expenditure exceeded recurrent revenue and that was back in 1991 and 1992, I think. I will go into details on that further down. I will also be able to show that after the settlement of the losses that were left over earlier on (at least five or six years back in 1992), that what remained of the reserve was a little over $3 million. But we have consistently built that back up and I will show that as well.

Now the question of not borrowing an extra million dollars—and that's the only difference between what the Opposition is saying and the Government as far as borrowing goes $25 million as against $26 million—is really not much of an issue. Even at that, there is no solution put forward. If we are to cut $1 million, or cut all the taxes, which projects do we cut? And still we have not seen that. If the Opposition has which projects are to be cut to deal with these limits they have talked about, then I would say they should have shown these to us a long time ago.

If we look back to 1989—and I am dealing first with the reserves, and I have here an appendix V that came out with the Accountant General on November 9, 1994 . . . And I hope my good colleague, the Third Elected Member for George Town, takes this in the same vein that he mentioned to me. But I am just going to deal with the facts.

If we go back to 1989 we will find that Sir Vassel and Capt. Charles' Government left a reserve account of $18.2 million and a surplus of $11.8 million, totalling $30 million. If I have to I can put this in. When the 1992 accounts were brought in, it showed that the reserve had been reduced to $10.2 million, as the Third Elected Member for George Town quite rightly said. But it left a deficit of $7 million. So, from the $30 million in reserves and surplus, that honourable Member's Government had left only $3.2 million in total when it was balanced out.

Now, from that time, what happened then was that there was an adjustment of that $7 million deficit from the reserve account which left only $3.5 million in reserves in effect when the National Team Government took over in 1993. And the reserve has been moved, increased (and this is important), between 1989 and 1992 the reserve reduced considerably some $27 million of surplus and reserve was spent. And in 1990, for the only time in the history of this country, there was a recurrent deficit of $1.2 million and in 1992 a recurrent deficit of $3.6 million. These are all facts. Nobody can challenge these. If necessary, I can put in the tables.

So, it is hard for a Member of that Government to criticise this Government. And let us look at where we have come from. It clearly shows that at the end of 1993, after the adjustment of the $7 million, we began with $3.5 million in the general reserve. A bit was put aside each year and every year there have been increases. The first year what went on would have only been interest, but since that time the reserves have moved up to $10.5 million and this year $3 million will go in. Then we're up to $13.5 million. But more importantly, along with those general reserves are (and I am only dealing with . . . well, this would be 1998) . . . there is not only the $10.5 million reserves, there is $7.2 million in the general revenue fund. In other words, the surplus that we just referred to. We have $4.1 million in the capital development fund and also in the infrastructure fund another $3.9 million, making a total of $26.5 million.

But if we had done what Governments in the past did, and not built up the public service pension fund, which was a massive contingent liability, we could have put another $33 million in general reserves. In 1992 the public service pension fund stood at $6.2 million and today . . . well, as at 1998 it stood at $39.9 million and there is another $9.71 million going in this year. It will be up to $49.61 million—approximately $50 million. So, at the end of this year, if we had followed what other Governments, we could have put close to $44 million into general reserves. But it's short-sighted to build up a general reserve and not cover a reserve for areas where we have a definite contingent liability.

So the total of our general reserve, of our revenue fund, and the other funds we have, now totals $26.5 million. And you cannot take that in isolation to the general reserve because it was only since 1997 when the Fourth Elected Member for George Town suggested the infrastructure fund that this was established, and the fees as well as the environmental protection fund has money in it which would otherwise have gone into general revenue and could have been put into reserves. They don't show up on this table I have, because prior to 1997 those reserves did not exist.

But if you take together the general reserves and these other funds we have, as well as the public service pension fund, you are looking at approximately $76 million that sits there. This is important because at the end of this year the $49.6 million that's in the public service pension fund is money that Government would have to pay out in the future for public service pensions. Nobody can challenge that as not being good financial and economic planning.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: It's only right!

Hon. Truman M. Boddan: It's only right, as the First Elected Member for George Town admits. It is the right thing that we did. I do support that.

It therefore accounts for $44 million that we could have put into general reserves which is now reducing our contingent liability. It was a real problem. It's one that was criticised, by the way, by the United Kingdom especially after the problems they had in Gibraltar with pensions. This is money that has to be paid out. Back in a question answered in 1992, it stated that the Government's financial position in March 31 1992 there were contingent liabilities of $71,251,061, of which the larger part then was pension contingent liability. And no effort was made to touch that fund.

I will be frank. I was in two governments for eight years before that that did the same as the two governments that came after. Money was not put into the pension fund. I am being honest. We didn't put it in there because it looks better to put it in the general reserve. But it is money that has to be paid out and it's only fair that that money is isolated. Basically we cover our debt for contingent liabilities before we build it up in the general reserve.

So I hope I have made it very clear to the public that at the present time, if we had not established the capital development fund and the infrastructure development fund (there are two smaller ones, the environmental protection fund and the housing reserve fund), which altogether with the general reserve, the general revenue fund add up to $26.5 million, if we had not established those funds and contributed to the public service pension fund we could have had in the area of $76 million sitting in that general reserve fund. But it means that the general reserve fund would have to be used in a crunch to pay for civil service pensions as they come due.

What we are now doing is continuing to fund civil service pensions, and these have been accumulated over the past 15 or 20 years. It's not just this Government, or the Government of my colleague, the Third Elected Member for George Town, or the Government before him, or the Government prior to 1976. This has accumulated over the years. But it is money that ultimately has to be paid out. So I say it is wrong to try to isolate the general reserve fund from where contingent liabilities have been reduced by the use of the public service pension fund.

The public service pension fund . . . let me be honest because I fought to isolate that. It is money that is basically held for civil service pensions and it should not be gone into by politicians; it should continue to be built up. I can't remember what we are building it up at, but I think this year there were probably $8 million or $9 million that went (most of it) into this fund. So it is going to increase quite rapidly.

Despite the gloom and doom we have $7.2 million of surplus and when that is added into these funds we have about $76 million sitting between the general reserve and the public service pension fund. And nobody can dispute that. If anybody wishes to dispute it, I am happy to lay on the Table what all the Members have a copy of, which the honourable Financial Secretary handed out just recently.

So in the country there has been prudent planning. The thing I want to say about planning—and I think it was the First Elected Member for West Bay who said it in a different light—is that no matter how good planning is, or how good the intention is, at the end of the day the test is, What are the results? We have gotten good results and there can be no doubt. In fact, I was so proud of my colleague, the Third Elected Member for George Town who admitted that the country is in a boom.

If the country is badly run it cannot be in a boom. I accept what he says, partially, that North American economics play an important part with us. That's quite true. I have no qualms about that. But while the world around us, especially the far east (and I am sorry for countries there), while they are going into an economic downturn, an economic recession in some places, our economy remains strong.

And there's no doubt between the Government and the Opposition. The truth is the truth. The economy of this country is booming, and it has been doing so for the last four or five years which is very unusual because normally it's about a three or four-year economic cycle before it goes down again. So this has been a very long period of economic boom. Obviously, if North America gets into trouble, especially the United States, it will be felt here. That is a fact. It's not just us who say that. It has been said for years.

When I come to deal with the loans situation it will be clearly seen that there is not that much change, as has been made out, between the accumulated loan figure—in other words, the full amount that is now borrowed. I will show the amount of that which was inherited and also what the relationship of that was to the budget then, which was very significant at the time.

As far as being prudent, a lot of money has been put up for a rainy day, whether that rainy day is demands for paying pensions . . . and they are going to come on, Mr. Speaker. We had to bite the bullet and it hurt us, and continues to hurt us politically because the Backbench has made a lot of this. The general reserves are only, this year alone, $13 million or $13.2 million, whatever. That's true, but you have to look at the whole picture. And they have the whole picture before them, which is what I mentioned earlier. There are funds and reserves that total $76 million. When you look at that against a debt in the area of $100 million, of which a substantial amount was inherited, it is not all that worrying. In any event, no Member of this Government is going to do anything at all that is going to hurt this country financially. We would be naïve to do it.

I live in a world where I am very close to the financial centre aspects: the insurance, banking, funds. I also stay quite close to businesses generally, and whenever problems arise that we are moving away from the economic boom that we have channelled this country into. I admit that North America has helped, but believe me, Mr. Speaker, with North America being good, if the country isn't run right you will see a totally different economic picture in this country. Take it from me. Anyone who looks at business, a business that is badly run, no matter how much capital it has it will suffer. This country is in a good economic state.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Look at the countries surrounding us now.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, my colleague reminded me to look at the countries surrounding us in the Caribbean. They are subject to North America the same as we are. North America is in a boom; unfortunately many of them (and I am sorry for them) are in an economic recession.

I went to the Bahamas in February or March of last year to an economic conference, and I must tell you, it hurt me for the countries in the region because they are suffering and suffering considerably. Now some of them are similar to us in economic base, some are not. Some are agricultural. But there can be no doubt, with us having had the economic boom for the length of time that we have, it can only be achieved and retained with good government and the public is smart enough to know that.

If the Opposition were the Government they would be extremely proud of the position the country is in. I know they are really proud of it, but some things one can admit in politics, and some things one doesn't say. I am satisfied, and I believe that the public is satisfied that the country has moved forward. And we can't please everybody.

I would like to go on to touch on what has been said about the revenue measures. I think these have to be put in the right perspective, because only about half of the $11.8 million (and I am reading here from the Financial Secretary's estimates), the larger part of what is coming forward, is in companies' fees which are on non-resident and exempted companies despite a bit of a hiccough in the companies amending law. That will fall on offshore companies. That takes out (not quite) substantially half of it. So we are left with $6.5 million of which some will fall in some areas and some will not.

The things such as work permit fees, and I have heard the Opposition say this many times, put a percentage on. In this case it has been on the vast majority, I think it has been a 10% increase which is not very heavy. And it does make sense to gradually increase this. I don't disagree with that principle put forward by the First Elected Member for George Town, and on some of these one can take that approach, and this is an instance where we have.

A lot of the other fees locally are spread. But what I think is significant is that the $6.5 million, when taken on a base of $290 million recurrent revenue, works out to about 1.7%. But when we go back to 1990 and 1991 when $10 million were put on each year which worked out at that stage (because the base was much less, people were a lot worse off financially), to about 12% of the revenue. In fact, what was put on in 1990 and 1991 . . . and Mr. Speaker, I opposed that then as Opposition are opposing it now. It is merely the basic duty of at least some Opposition members to take this approach. But that was not just put on in one year, it was followed in the following year by a further $10 million which meant (in the second year) $20 million bit home, which would have been a bit less than double of the 12% of the revenue, probably 20% to 25% of the revenue. They were very large amounts. Without those amounts in 1990 and 1992 there were already deficits.

A lot has been said. In fact the main target has been levelled at me because I am the Minister for Education. But when we look at the fact that we are spending about $25 million on schools in recurrent and this year will be another $12+ million on capital or about $40 million on education, what is being raised is $160,000 on school fees in total, and $246,000 on school books. Let me say that if there is anyone out there who cannot afford either school fees or the book rentals, they get it free. I want to make that clear in the beginning. There is a method [available for those] who can't afford. Children will not go without books and they will not be put out of school as such, if there are problems. And that's Caymanians and non-Caymanians who may hit problems from time to time.

Even over and above that, we actually assist children who can't afford breakfast or lunches so it isn't as if this is a harsh system: it is a very loving and kind system. Children are looked at from the point of view that they should not suffer. Sometimes people can pay the fees, but they don't. And sometimes they may not be there to give their children breakfast but it doesn't matter. The schools make sure that the children have breakfast, that they have their books, and that life goes on for them in a very normal way. That is important.

And I don't believe that $50 a year in the Primary [schools for book rental fees] moving up between the Middle and into the High schools through $100 on to $150, are large amounts. People who have it and can afford it, I don't think will feel that this is not justified. To be frank, it either had to increase or be totally abolished because to collect $5 in this day and age is not worth the paper it is written on. So, it isn't as if this is a large amount. I would just like to repeat the school fees, as well as the book rentals—the large amount the $25 million is the book rentals.

I guess what it would come to is that those who can afford to pay $50 per year for their child, or $100 for their book rentals, Government . . . one of my colleagues just pointed out that that is about $4.17 per month. I really don't think they would ask Government to subsidise that for them.

Nobody likes touching this area, but people in this country understand (I believe) that if we are subsidising $35 million or $40 million per year in education, the payment in total of the $246,750 for book rentals surely is not going to hurt anyone when we know that those who can't afford it . . . the children will get their food, the children will get their books and will go to school. I don't think anybody in here can say that that is not what every school strives for. Into this are many other things, which are free, such as transportation and the cost of the school.

And, by the way, looking at the other area, if the private sector was that unhappy about the increase on liquor and cigarettes, which only raised $2,420,000, there would have been a serious outcry as before. But we have to remember that—

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: [Inaudible interjection]

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: [Addressing The First Elected Member for George Town] You'll get your turn.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: [Inaudible interjection]

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Why good order is kept in a court, is because one lawyer is not allowed to say anything to the other when he is speaking . . . there is a method by which one breaks one's train of thought by injecting these things. That's about where I am now. I have been trying to figure out what the Member has been saying, and I can't figure out where I was.

I was dealing with when the duty was last raised on liquor and I was trying to find my paper on that . . . I may just have to come back to it.

The Speaker: Would this be a convenient time to take the afternoon break?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: It sure would, sir.

The Speaker: We shall suspend for 15 minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3.35 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 4.06 PM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Debate continues on the Loans (Capital Projects 1999) Bill, 1998. The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation and Planning, continuing.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, as I was saying when I was so nicely interrupted by one Member of this House, whom I won't name . . . I have actually found what I was looking for. I was dealing with the alcohol and cigarettes which, as I pointed out, was really quite a small increase. I think that is the reason why it has been, with a few exceptions here and there, tolerated by the industries. But there had been no increase on alcoholic beverages since the 1991 Budget when they were really substantial, and I want to really point that out. What was put up last year, as the public knows, we withdrew after there was opposition. They were very small amounts.

For example, there was an increase of 38 cents on a litre of wine coolers, 84 cents on table wines per litre, which would be per bottle, sparkling wines $1.13 and on champagne 25% of the CIF value. So these are quite small. For example, if there are ten glasses of wine in a litre it would work out to eight point four cents per glass of wine. What's important is that beer has not been touched at all.

The large amount did come in on things like champagne. But there, people who buy champagne normally do not mind the extra amounts that go on. On a glass it would be very little, as I showed on a glass of wine it was only eight cents. I am sure that should not cause alarm, and should not cause prices to go up. If Government adds on eight cents . . . well, what people put it up to, as one Member is saying across the floor . . . maybe it went up $1.00. The thing is, only eight cents can be contributed to Government. You can add something to that, but even if you doubled it, say that they may have a bottle of wine on the shelf for a few weeks then it would only be sixteen cents per glass. I am saying it was very little, and there was nothing put on beer. And cigarettes went up 35 cents a pack. So I must say that was a fair amount.

There were increases on some other areas. Spirits wasn't in that list. Spirits went up $3.00 per litre on sweetened, flavoured, and that sort of thing. What was put on was small in several areas and well-spread. So it wasn't as if the massive amounts that were put on in the past were put on this time, and with the other increases in garbage fees, that only raised another $800,000. That was not heavy. The health services fees, I think, are actually new services that are being introduced with the new hospital. So, really, that area doesn't come into an increase; these are new services and therefore new revenue measures. So that million dollars is not an increase on any present services.

Really, only small amounts would have gone on. I should point out, because so much is levelled at lawyers: in the law the lawyers got probably one of the biggest increases on practising fees.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Ahhhh!

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Whether that was put on for me, or to justify . . . it went up from $500 to $800. It's quite a—

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: That's one of the larger ones?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Yes.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Ahhhh!

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: So, everyone was sort of caught up in that, and it's well-spread.

Mr. Speaker, as you know, you're a seasoned legislator yourself, it is never easy to do this. But when it is being done, provided the public can see where that $6 million being raised is going—and they will see it—while I don't want to go into these now, what has been done with the hospital, with million dollar clinics (just about) in each district, roads that have been done, and a lot more—schools, civic centres, playfields . . . you know, a lot has been done for small amounts that have been raised.

I find it a bit hard when you look at what was put on in the past, and you realise that what will impact locally is less than 1% of the gross revenue of the country, it is indeed quite small. The services continue to expand each year and I must say that I have heard very few complaints about these fees. I think most of the complaints that I have heard have been in here. People realise that in the real world out there, there has to be some increase as the services expand. These have been kept very realistic.

One of the Members mentioned that the small increase in offshore companies may affect, and there may be fewer companies. I make my living out there, because believe me I don't make my living solely out of my time in here, and the impact is not anything significant. There have been no outcries. The bringing it on quicker than usual, without maybe a year's lead time, was an area where I did get some complaints. But I know that this increase, which has been small, is not going to affect our position out there in the offshore centre and the forming of companies.

In any event, our offshore industry, like the tourism industry, deals with clients and tourists of higher incomes. We are really not in the business of forming very cheap international business companies as such, where some of the other jurisdictions do. It is costly to do that, and therefore we are basically not in the same bracket as some of the other territories in the Caribbean who are in mass tourism or the cheap, one-transaction companies. We just don't compete in that area because it's important to the professionalism of the offshore industry that we are well regulated. Doing that with 40,000 companies is one thing, trying to do it with 300,000 must surely be a nightmare. So I have no doubt that the impact of these revenue measures will not really be that worrying.

I guess I should say that the public would see the wisdom in the essential services that this $6 million will be put to. Things like the George Town Airport Park, the enhancement in the medical services, the schools that are going to be done. I don't believe anyone in here would say that what is in the capital budget should not be done. With only $1 million difference in the loan, it's just not worthwhile trying to look for $1 million to cut out of the budget to come down to $25 million because that seems to be a better rounded figure than $26 million.

To be frank, the Opposition should have taken the approach, 'Look at all these things the Government along with us will help you get,' rather than opposing the budget and taking the approach that for the $1 million difference between the $25 million and the $26 million that they would vote against what will be funding these capital projects. When these projects come on line, I hope that I don't hear the Members who took . . . I am not going to get into that area. But I think the public understands what I am saying.

To put it in a nice positive way, the public can thank the Government when that $40 million of capital comes on line for having stood all of this relentless pounding over the last three months; sacrificing part of our political careers to build the schools; to build the roads; to provide the health services; to keep the economic boom that everyone admits is going on. And they know who did all the work and fought the battles for them. That will affect not just the big people, but to use the words coined (I believe) by one of my colleagues from George Town, the "little man." Everyone uses the roads, not just the legislators, but the benefit is felt throughout.

Look at the increases the civil service has gotten. The politicians weren't very smart: they managed to lose what little they were getting. But I have found that in politics these things sometimes happen. The public generally will benefit from this.

It's different to put on revenue enhancement measures at a time when the country is in an economic recession—as we know it was, before this Government. It has been admitted that North America had a lot to do with it. But there's a difference putting the equivalent of 12% of the revenue in taxes from putting less than 1% now in an economic boom when the Government has provided the climate that people all have jobs; they are all doing well; their businesses are doing well, and the country is in a boom. So if there is a time when the country can sustain this best, it is at this time.

I believe that all of the hullabaloo that has been made over this very small amount of revenue enhancement measures . . . and a lot has been targeted at me because of education. But I am satisfied that what has been done was reasonable and necessary and that the vast majority of people understand that as we go on there will be times when the increase in services and capital expenditure does require smaller amounts.

While I will do that in the morning, I think that the amount of money, the twelve-odd million that is being spent on capital for schools, is money well spent. I think that is why the Opposition really has no solution to cutting the loan because it means that some projects will have to be cut and I don't think any Member of this House wants to go through and start taking a knife at cutting the schools and cutting things like important roads and the other measures that are in there.

Something was said about the minimum wage in the hotel industry. Quite frankly, since 1976 when I came into politics, I have heard talk about minimum wage. While it has never been my direct responsibility, I hope and I know one day it will come in. I believe the honourable Minister will deal with it. But we must remember that the Minister has just recently taken over a very difficult area such as this, which no Minister in the past has been able to effectively deal with, and there have been attempts. I think the First Elected Member for West Bay mentioned that. But it's not that easy to deal with and there's always a question whether there should only be a minimum wage for the hotel industry. What happened to all the other areas where people should also have minimum wages? One day the honourable Members of this House will probably have the task of looking at and determining what should be done in that area.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I am beginning to lose my train of thought again. There are rumblings on things that don't even relate to the people who are rumbling on the other side. (laughs)

Mr. Roy Bodden: That's your conscience bothering you!

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: My conscience is like my memory, Mr. Speaker, it's good!

On the minimum wage, I believe memories could be a little bit short, but really, I think that quite a bit has been done in this area that has been for the benefit of the public.

From there I would like to move on to a couple of other areas that were raised. There was mention about world economies and pricing out of the financial and tourism markets. I have heard that story time and again.

But, as I mentioned earlier, the markets that we are in clearly show that reasonable increases can be taken. I know the Third Elected Member for West Bay mentioned about not seeing people around George Town, that tourism must be down. But that's because we have been in the legislature for three months and it's very hard to figure out what's going on outside in the tourism world when we are in here answering questions.

All I can say is that the figures once again speak for themselves. The Minister for Tourism has done a sterling job. There are very good increases. Occasionally people complain, but by and large there has been a good steady increase, and I want to emphasise that. It's not a see-saw type of increase, but four, five, six, seven percent increases over the years which is a sustained increase that you get in a sustainable economy which the National Team Government, with the help of some of the back-bench National Team members, helped to put together to bring us forward with.

MOMENT OF INTERRUPTION—4.30 PM

The Speaker: May I interrupt you for a moment? We have reached the hour of 4.30. I would entertain a motion for the adjournment of this honourable House.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Yes, sir, I know that most of the Members need to go to a meeting. So I'm giving them a little bit of free advertising there.

[Members inaudible interjections]

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: A long time! I haven't touched the question of where the country has come as a result of our good government. I will deal with that in the morning.

The Speaker: Would you move the motion for the adjournment please?

ADJOURNMENT

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of this honourable House until tomorrow at 10.00 AM.

The Speaker: The question is that this honourable House do now adjourn until 10.00 AM tomorrow. Those in favour, please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House is accordingly adjourned.

AT 4.31 PM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED UNTIL 10.00 AM FRIDAY, 12 FEBRUARY, 1999.

EDITED
FRIDAY
12 FEBRUARY 1999
10.19 AM

[Prayers read by the Honourable First Official Member responsible for Internal and External Affairs]

Mr. Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed.

Item number 2 on today's order paper, Administration of Oaths or Affirmations. The Oath of Allegiance to be administered to Mr. A. Joel Walton, JP, to be the Honourable Acting Third Official Member.

Mr. Walton would you come forward to the Clerk's table? Would all members please stand?

ADMINISTRATION OF OATHS OR AFFIRMATIONS

Oath of Allegiance
by Mr. A. Joel Walton

Mr. A. Joel Walton: I, A. Joel Walton, do swear that I will be faithful and bear true allegiance to Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II, her heirs and successors, according to law, so help me God.

Mr. Speaker: Mr. Walton, on behalf of all Honourable Members I welcome you to the House for the time of your service here. Please take your seat as the Honourable Temporary Acting Third Official Member.

Please be seated.

The Elected Member for North Side.

PROCEDURAL MATTER

PROROGATION OF THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: I am rising on a procedural matter regarding the prorogation of the Legislature. The Constitution provides that the House has to prorogue within 12 months of the appointed day of the beginning of the Session (s.46(2)). I wonder if the Honourable House is prepared to meet until the conclusion of the business on the Order Paper so that the House can properly be prorogued for the new Session to start on the 19th day of February 1999.

The Speaker: The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation, and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: The Constitution, subject to looking at it, does not give any specific time for the proroguing. I would prefer to discuss the matter with the Member and with other Members to determine the consensus.

The Speaker: I would seek the co-operation of all Members to conclude the business on the Order Paper.

READING BY THE SPEAKER OF MESSAGES AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

APOLOGIES

The Speaker: I have received apologies for absence from the Second Elected Member for Bodden Town who is off the Island.

INTERIM REPORTS OF SELECT AND STANDING COMMITTEES

The Speaker: There are yet to be reported to the honourable House six Interim Reports of Select and Standing Committees. They are:

1. Minimum Wage
2. Freedom of Information/Official Information Act
3. To take input from the public on the Review of Dependent Territories
4. Privileges
5. Standing Orders
6. Elections Law

In the interest of time, I would entertain a motion to suspend Standing Order 81(1) to enable the Interim Reports to be considered and laid on the Table of the House following the commencement of the 1999 Session of the Legislature.

The Honourable Minister responsible for Education, Aviation, and Planning.

Hon. Truman M. Boddén: I move the suspension of Standing Order 81(1) to enable the Interim Reports to be considered and laid on the Table of the House following the commencement of the 1999 Session of the Legislature.

The Speaker: I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: STANDING ORDER 81(1) BE SUSPENDED TO ENABLE THE INTERIM REPORTS OF THE FOLLOWING SELECT AND STANDING COMMITTEES TO BE CONSIDERED AND LAID ON THE TABLE OF THIS HONOURABLE HOUSE FOLLOWING THE COMMENCEMENT OF THE 1999 SESSION OF THE LEGISLATURE:

1. Minimum Wage
2. Freedom of Information/Official Information Act

3. To take input from the public on the Review of Dependent Territories
4. Privileges
5. Standing Orders; and
6. Elections Law

The Speaker: Presentation of Papers and Reports. The Honourable Acting Temporary Third Official Member.

PRESENTATION OF PAPERS AND REPORTS

MOTION TO SUSPEND PROCEEDINGS

Hon. Joel Walton: I move that the House suspend its proceedings to enable the Standing Finance Committee to meet to consider its reports.

The Speaker: I shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: THAT THE HOUSE SUSPEND TO ENABLE THE STANDING FINANCE COMMITTEE TO MEET TO CONSIDER ITS REPORTS.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 10.28 AM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 11.18 AM

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed. Item 4 on today's Order Paper, Presentation of Papers and Reports. The Honourable Acting Third Official Member, . . . you wish to defer this presentation?

PRESENTATION OF PAPERS AND REPORTS

Mr. Joel Walton: Sorry about that, Mr. Speaker. Yes, if I could. Until the report has been changed and circulated, I would appreciate it if we could defer it.

The Speaker: I shall put the question. Those in favour of it being deferred until later please say Aye. Those against No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: REPORT DEFERRED.

The Speaker: Item number 5 on today's Order Paper, Government Business, Bills. The Second Reading of The Loans (Capital Projects 1999) Bill, 1998, and The Appropriation (1999) Bill, 1998, with debate continuing thereon.

The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

BILLS

SECOND READING

LOANS (CAPITAL PROJECTS 1999) Bill, 1998

(Continuation of debate thereon)

Hon. Truman Bodden: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The financial position of the Cayman Islands Government is the best that it has ever been. It was so good to see the newspaper headlines yesterday, "Budget Surplus $7 Million." As we know, that $7.21 million was surplus that the Government had last year. When you are showing surpluses, when you are showing profits of that size, it's not something that comes about without very hard work on the part of the Government as a whole—both the official Members and the elected Ministers, and also (I would have hoped) the other Members of the House who voted against the previous measures. Perhaps if they had known that such a rosy situation existed, they may have re-thought their position of a few years ago.

Mr. Speaker, the editorial in today's Caymanian Compass (and I must say the Caymanian Compass has to do its job, but it does take a fair stand when it feels that is justified) . . . I would just like to read a few parts of this, Mr. Speaker, and adopt it as it relates to this Bill before the House.

On page 4 it says: "Budget Surplus. Many people have expressed surprise at the discovery of a $7.21 million surplus in government finances announced in Finance Committee on Wednesday. The announcement came in Finance Committee just before the Legislative Assembly debates on a Loan Bill, which many think is too ambitious, and a new Revenue Law, which many think demands too much from the pockets. There is nothing suspicious in the discovery of the surplus."

This is what I want to stress: "There is nothing suspicious in the discovery of the surplus. The Budget proposal was prepared last year, long before the end-of-year figures for government finances were available."

So what they are saying there is quite right. How can you know what your surplus is at the end of the year before you get to the end of the year?

Mr. McKeeva Bush: Is that the editorial?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: That's the editorial.

Mr. McKeeva Bush: Oh yeah?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Yeah.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: You must have had a big input into that!

[Members' laughter]

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: No, I was watching television last night. I didn't have time to read it. [Laughter]

It goes on to say, sir. "The Budget session is usually concluded in November or early December, well before the existence of a surplus can be established." Quite true!

"This year's budget process was the longest ever, extended to a time when government accountants could say with some degree of certainty what the year-end position is. The figure is not yet audited but it should be fairly reliable."

That, I think, is a fair statement. I think it is unfair to criticise those figures in any way. And definitely, I have full confidence—as does the Caymanian Compass—in these figures. And I think, as they say, that they are reliable figures.

It goes on to say: "The distribution of the surplus is a legitimate matter for debate. It seems only right that in a year of prosperity some of the surplus funds should be moved into general reserves to be kept for a rainy day." Again, endorsing what Government has done.

And we know we are putting $3 million, which, as I showed yesterday and I will develop a bit further today, brings our general reserves up to about $13 million. But the overall total reserves, adding in the pension and all of the others, goes up to $26 million with the pensions, and another $49.7 million, up to $76 million of cash or securities that is sitting there. So they are quite right. You have to build up—

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Please. Give me a break, Truman.

POINT OF ORDER

(Misleading)

The Speaker: Let me hear your point of order.

Mr. Linford A. Pierson: The Honourable Minister, with all due respect, is misleading the House. He knows that general reserves are available for use by the government and the country at any time. But funds set aside for pensions and other matters are locked in and not available for use. So he is misleading the House. It cannot be touched.

It would be much clearer to the listening public if he would make that distinction. What we are talking about is general reserves that are available to be used by the country.

The Speaker: I understand what you are saying, but I think he is saying the combined total. He is actually saying that there are two different entities.

Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning, please continue.

Hon. Truman Bodden: Of course, Mr. Speaker. They are all the different funds. And I am going to deal with that in depth. I am glad that the honourable member raised that. It gives me an opportunity to fully explain it to the listening public.

The money that is put into the funds is cash, or, in the case of pensions, cash and securities. That $76 million is money that can be used to pay pensions that Government owes. This is the important thing. If the fund isn't built up, it has to come out of general revenue.

Yesterday I showed clearly that that $50 million at the end of this year ($49.6 million rounded to $50 million) is money that this government, if it had not been prudent and had followed the imprudence of the past governments, would have taken and either applied it towards loans . . . in which case I am going to show that this government (when you take that amount) has not increased the borrowings of the country when you offset the $50 million against it.

We could have taken the money and put it either into general reserves and it could have been used for anything else—but that would have meant that politicians would have spent it. So we were prudent. We blocked it in for civil service pensions and the other funds that are there. And what is being said here . . . (let me just move on because I got side-tracked, but I am going to come back to that very important point).

The Caymanian Caymanian Compass is saying: "It seems only right that in a year of prosperity some of the surplus funds should be moved into general reserves to be kept for a rainy day. It would be dangerous to get carried away by the long period of steady economic growth to a degree where one would disregard the certainty that a slow-down will come some time or another. It is also high time—"

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Well, Mr. Speaker, the Third Elected Member for George Town—who is a professional, a qualified accountant—stated very clearly, the country is in a boom. So I hope that the rumblings I hear are not detracting from that. This country—the Cayman Islands—is in an economic boom, there can be no doubt.

[Inaudible interjection]

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Well, I showed you, we have the $76 million.

"It is also high time that the bulk of the long outstanding overseas medical bills should be dealt with. [This is where a part of it has gone.] Without doubt a good proportion of these outstanding bills will never be recovered and these should be written off." That's what we are doing, Mr. Speaker.

And it goes on to say, "Using some of the surplus funds to cover those bills that cannot be recovered would eradicate an anomaly that has been continuing for too long."

You see, Mr. Speaker, we can't have our cake and eat it. And that goes for the Opposition. They can't say you must pay these hospital bills because there are too many outstanding, and on the other hand say you shouldn't take the money and pay for it. What we have done is very clear. The public understands that we are very prudent in what we are doing. And the Caymanian Compass fully endorses it in a very good editorial. I compliment them. One day, a budget surplus headline of $7.2 million, the next day saying we did the right thing with it.

I would like now to go on to deal with this heavy question of public debt that has been raised, and in doing so I need to refer to some tables. I will give copies to be laid on the Table.

The first point I would like to make is on a table that has been prepared by our very competent Caymanian Accountant General for the Honourable Financial Secretary. And I assure you there is nothing voodoo about this either, Mr. Speaker. These are very good, capable, civil servant figures. It begins showing the debt, the principal, and the interest. And to deal with the $26 million of that we only need 7.1% of our recurrent revenue. That's way under the internationally acceptable 10% standard.

Mr. Speaker, look at it this way, if you go to a bank as an individual to borrow a loan, say, to build a house, they normally will allow you a loan that 40% of your income can service. Okay? That is normally what they will allow you, up to [40%] of your revenue to service on a house. I can assure that if you go to a bank and you say to them, 'I would like to borrow X amount of dollars and all I need is 7% of it to service my debt,' they will give you that money right away.

We have to think of it in the context of an individual going to borrow. No one could afford a house, Mr. Speaker, if it had to be only 10% or even 20% of their income to service it. When you really think about it 7% of a person's salary is a very small amount. And that is why, Mr. Speaker, the lowest amount that has been internationally set is this 10%. And I hope the public understands that the amount of borrowing is very small. If any one of us can service all of our loans—principal and interest—on 7% a month (or 7% a year however it is), then we are in an extremely good position. It leaves 93% of our salary to be spent on other things.

About a year back, Canada's percentage (and that was of the GDP which in ours would be a bit higher than the 7% if you related it to that) was around 50%. And I know that at one stage New Zealand's was 37%. So this is a very small prudent amount. Nobody can dispute the fact that we are way under the amount it costs to service this. That is prudent.

On top of that, Mr. Speaker, the cost of the servicing of these loans is much higher than it is in most countries because they borrow over long periods. Some of these loans are only eight or ten years. They are between short- to medium-term, some of them. In fact, one of the largest loans I am certain was somewhere between eight to ten years. Had that been spread over 20 or 30 years, that 7% would come down.

I hope I am relating that it is like going into a bank to get a mortgage to buy a car over five years. You pay nearly as much as you would pay on a much larger sum, say, to put an addition on your house over 30 years or over 20 years. So when we look at this in the light of other countries, the 7% to service it is very low.

I would like to just point out the way that this will be reduced over the next few years: In 1999, the servicing of the total debt—this is all of the debt, sir, what this Government inherited. . . which I am going to show is a very large sum. It was quite a sizeable sum. And I am going to put those accounts in. Again, this is from the Accountant General's summary.

The balance when the Cayman Airways loan went in in 1993 (and this would be in 1993 because as you remember that could not be borrowed in 1992) was $54.1 million. And at the end of 1998, the total loans were $93.5 million. This is very important, Mr. Speaker. There was a little bit less than a $40 million increase in the loan since 1993 to 1998. So what we are paying here (the bulk of what was paid all the years) has been on a sum that is much larger than what we added on when you take our repayments from it.

The debt service ratio that I want to put in (I only have one copy of this, unfortunately) shows that the cost of servicing this will reduce in 1999 to 6.4%, and in the year 2000, 6.6%. In the year 2001, 5.4%. And it moves down, Mr. Speaker, in the year 2005 it will only take 2.8% of the government's recurrent revenue to service the debt.

This is very comprehensive. It sets out principal and interest. And the reason why it reduces so rapidly is because many of these are medium-term loans. They are not long-term loans, therefore the repayment is a lot quicker. (And I would ask the Serjeant-at-Arms, please to just put this on the Table.)

That 7% that was over 20 or 30 years, would probably be maybe 4% or 5%. There is no doubt about it. I mean that makes sense. You go and borrow the money for a car over five years and you pay a very large amount. If you borrow it for a house over 30 years, you can probably get three to four times the amount of money for the same repayment.

So, prudence dictates that you borrow medium-term and you pay it off faster. But you have much higher payments to make.

Now, Mr. Speaker, not only is the surplus of $7.2 million upsetting some members on the other side of this House, but I think the other shocking revelation was when we looked at the amount of cash that sits in the general reserves, and cash and securities in the Public Service Pension Fund that this government has accumulated . . . and with the help of National Team a lot of this was accumulated. I don't mind saying it. I mean, it has only been recently that there have been some changes of minds towards the National Team.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: It's been recently that the National Team's been mashed up!

Hon. Truman M. Boddin: In 1992 the Public Service Pension Fund only had $6 million in it. And at that time, I think it was something like $70 million contingent liability. No previous government had been prudent enough to put money in this fund. And I am going to go quickly on this because I am going to relate this to something different than what I did yesterday.

At present, Mr. Speaker, the year-end balances (and I would also like to lay this on the Table). . . and, Mr. Speaker, once again this is prepared by the Financial Secretary and the Accountant General so these figures are correct.

The general reserve fund as at the end of 1998 had $10.5 million, and as you know we have transferred another $3 million, so that is $13.5 million. The general revenue fund, which is the surplus that has been found after the prudent management has produced it, is $7.2 million. There is a Capital Development Fund of $4.1 million; Environmental Protection Fund, $0.1 million; Housing Reserve Fund, $0.7 million; Infrastructure Development Fund, $3.9 million; making a total of $26.5 million.

And the Public Service Pension Fund has been built up from $6 million in 1992 to $39.9 million at the end of 1998, and we know another $9.71 million is going in. Now, that makes in the Pension Fund, $49.61 million. And when that is added to $26.5 million we get approximately $76 million sitting in the reserves and the funds.

Now, Mr. Speaker, it is quite right (and I said this yesterday) that the money in the Public Service Pension Fund is there to pay pensions for civil servants. We have built that up for that specific purpose, and that is what it is to be used for. But if that fund did not exist for the future, the Government would still have to pay that money. This is a legitimate debt that is owed for pensions.

Mr. Speaker, when this Government started with $6.2 million, it had nothing to fund what I believe was $70 million or $80 million of contingent liability. At this stage, the $50 million is probably funded to the area closer to one-third of the total funding. Let me show you how prudent we have been, Mr. Speaker, because I have pushed to preserve this money for civil servants, and I hope they appreciate that.

I also tried to have this entrenched in the Constitution, because it is wrong not to put money in there when money is owed to civil servants for pensions. I have preached this over the years. They are probably, say, 30% funded. The money we are putting in the fund . . . no money is being drawn out to pay civil servant pensions now. We are paying that out separately. It makes sense! But we were the ones who did it, Mr. Speaker.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: That's right! But that's what I am saying. I am glad that one member on the other side believes it makes sense, because all of it makes sense if they will think about this carefully.

The present pensions are being paid out of recurrent revenue. When this is finally built up, Mr. Speaker, and it is totally funded, it will then fund all pensions and no more money will have to come out of general revenue.

Now, what happened in the past, Mr. Speaker—during my time between 1976 and 1984, during the time of my good colleague, the Third Elected Member from George Town (his 1988 to 1992 period), and the period from 1984 to 1988 with Sir Vassel, Captain Charles and Mr. Benson, their government—was that nobody put anything significant, if anything at all into this fund. They took the money and they put it either in a general reserve, which they could use for whatever they wished, or they just applied it against loans.

I will show that the difference between the loans in 1993, after the drawdown of the Cayman Airways loan (which was really a 1992 loan that they couldn't get), when you apply the amount of money put here, if we had put this in the loans our debt would be the same substantially (give or take a few million) as it was in 1992 if they had drawn down the $16 million for Cayman Airways. And that is a fact. But what I want to stress is that the $76 million in the General Reserve Fund and in the Public Service Pension Fund and the other funds is actually cash—and in the Pension Fund part of that is securities when I say cash. But this is money that hasn't been spent; it is money that has been saved, although it has to go for a specific purpose.

It is very important to know that our colleague, the present Minister for Tourism (who was then the Financial Secretary), is a gentleman who had the foresight to set this up at that time, and his advice has always been good. As it was then, it is also good now. And we are very happy that this was done. And you can see the wisdom and the prudence.

Mr. Speaker, if we had wanted not to be prudent, or if you want to find out about crises management, we would never have built this up. We could have applied that $44 million that we have put in this in the last six years against loans. The loans would have been $44 million less. In fact, the loans would have been less now than they were in 1993 when we took over. This is a fact, and I challenge anyone to tell me, based on the figures that I say are correct (and I have them in my hands and I am going to lay them on the Table). The balance as at 31 December 1993 (because the loan for Cayman Airways that was approved in 1992 . . . we had to get it early in 1993) was $54,126,799. And the balance (as at 31 December 1998) of all the loans, which is the public debt, self-financing loans and the IDB loans, stands at $93,556,448.

And I would like to lay that on the Table at this stage along with a copy of the financial summary showing the Public Service Pension Fund, that's to 1998, but we know there was this $9 million-plus that has just been brought in and that is going on to the public service pension fund.

Now I would like to just deal with the situation as it was sometime back, because these comparisons have been used. I will lay this on the Table at the end, and these are all government figures nothing but fully correct.

From 1984 to 1988 the government built up the reserves and the general fund, the surplus, to $30.1 million in 1989. Let me show you what crisis management and imprudent government is all about.

From 1989 and 1990, $6 million was taken out of reserves. There was only $17.6 million left and the surplus was down by $2 million. There was a drop of about $13 million in the first year. By 1991, it was at $17.3 million, and in 1992, there was only $3 million left. There was a general reserve in 1992 of $10.2 million, and a deficit of $7 million, when taken off, leaves $3.1 million dollars. So from $30 million, in less than four years the government of 1988 to 1992 had basically raided the Treasury and there was $3 million left.

Now, I accept there was an economic recession, but a good government can do things to ease an economic recession as well. And now, as I said before, this has been built up. Agreed, it is not necessarily moved the same pace in every year, but we saw that going from $3.1 million (and these are the figures I just laid there) in 1993, we got it up to $5.8 million. But we put also $3 million in the Public Service Pension Fund, that went to $9.3 [million]. In 1994, it went up to $6.4 million and the Public Service Pension Fund went to $12.7 million.

At present, Mr. Speaker, it stands at $26.5 million, the general reserves and the funds. And the Public Service Pension Fund as at the end of last year was $39.9 million, and at the end of this year will be $49 million.

So, Mr. Speaker, it is not possible to accumulate $76 million dollars of hard cash (and some securities in the pension fund but when I refer to cash I include that) that has not been spent and is sitting between our general reserves and the different funds.

Now, Mr. Speaker, when we look at the fact that we picked up debt of $54 million, which, by the way, Mr. Speaker, in 1989 was only $29 million and increased to $54 million with the CAL Loan in 1993. At present the total debt (as at the end of 1998) is $93.5 million and sitting against that difference of less than $40 million there is $65 million of reserves and in the pension fund. In other words, Mr. Speaker, we could have taken and kept the debt at $54 million by applying the $40 million, the $39 million to it, and we would still have had $20-odd million left for the general reserves and everything else that was there.

Mr. Speaker, there can be no doubt, as the Caymanian Compass very clearly stated—and they are the voice and the sounding board of many people—that this is prudent and that the course we are taking of building up the reserves in the funds for a rainy day is a very prudent approach.

Mr. Speaker, I want to deal with one other area before I leave this. Some comment was made about what was referred to in the manifesto about recurrent profit (and, by the way, when this manifesto came out, this was everybody in the National Team) which is in here at $60 million. Let me tell you how that is made up.

The contribution to capital, which is the surplus amount between the recurrent revenue and the recurrent and statutory expenditure (in other words, paying for all the salaries, all the expenses, and paying for all the debts that we have to pay in the year), that is the recurrent profit or the recurrent surplus—I use the word profit here because it is better understood.

[Members' laughter]

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I hear some cackling on the other side.

Never, in my fifteen years in government, have I ever had a recurrent loss or recurrent deficit. That only occurred in (let me get this right now) 1990 and 1992. So I should really be cackling on this side, Mr. Speaker.

Okay, the amount is made of this, Mr. Speaker, and this is on the paper that has been given out and has been laid on the Table.

- ◆ 1993, $11.2 million;
- ◆ 1994, $13.9 million;
- ◆ 1995, $16.3 million; and
- ◆ 1996 (because this only went down to 1996) was actually $23.7 million. (I only had $18.4 million because went only through July of 1996.) But the figure shows instead of $18.4 million recurrent surplus that was contributed to capital it was $23.7 million, which actually makes for just about $65 million.

So, Mr. Speaker, this is money that went to capital. It is a surplus that went to buy schools, buy roads, and apply towards buying vehicles and anything else that was there. At no time, and believe me the day that occurs, as it did only two times in the history of this country, then one really has to worry. That never happened.

That's the way the $60 million was made up and I am happy to say that even though we were only to July with $18 million, that was increased. Each year there have been further contributions to capital for the surplus: in 1997 it was $18 million, in 1998 was $17.9 million. And that $17.9 million, as we know, we also had a profit . . . sorry, a surplus (but a profit and a surplus are the same thing) of $7.2 million at the end of 1998.

If I could borrow a copy of the matter with the overdraft from the honourable member, my colleague from George Town, I would just try to address that.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: What do you want?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I don't have whatever the Third Elected Member from George Town read—the letter from Mr. Mason about the difference between an overdraft in a bank and the balance in your chequebook.

[Inaudible Interjection]

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Oh, it is in this! I am sorry. Yes. Was that what you referred to? I thought you were referring to a flyer that was put out. Okay, page 8. (Pause)

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: You can get assistance with that. Do you want a lawyer to show you?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I see there is just a reference. I see what was used, sir.

Mr. Speaker, the explanation on this, . . . the Accountant General is right. There are no two ways about this. And the way I will explain it is this: If you have a current account in a bank, a chequing account that has an overdraft of $100, and you write a cheque for $50. Before it is presented to the bank, the bank has a balance of $100 in it still, but your chequebook will show $50. There is a difference between a cash book balance and the balance in the bank. In other words, cheques that are not presented in the interim remain only in your chequebook balance and not in the bank balance.

It is nearly impossible with a large company that there are not a very large amount of very large cheques outstanding. And what the Accountant General said in a written report, or written letter, or whatever it was, "The bank overdraft of $7,479,639 is a figure shown in the Treasury cash book; whereas the Barclays Bank current account statement shows a balance of only $1,179,973 overdrawn as at 31 December 1995, compared to the approved overdraft limit of $4,500,000."

I couldn't see anything simpler than that in my life, Mr. Speaker. When you have issued cheques your chequebook balance never equals exactly what the bank balance does.

[Inaudible interjection]

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Well, that's good accounting!

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Which one do you use? You use your chequebook balance.

[Interjection by a Member: That's Voodoo!]

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: So, when we talk about a bank balance, it is a balance in the bank. Nothing could be simpler. You don't have to be an accountant to do that. And believe me, neither of our Accountant Generals have ever used Voodoo, I can assure you, especially not the present ones. All of the figures are right.

Let me go over that again, Mr. Speaker. The amount in the bank may differ from the amount in the cashbook or in your chequebook because until a cheque you issue is posted to the bank there will be a difference between the balances. And the Third Elected Member from George Town knows the difference between a cashbook balance and a bank account balance. They are two totally different things.

That is why when a person gets their statement, they go through and check off the cheques to see what has come in. Those that have not come in remain in their chequebook and the balance will be different from what it is in the bank. Very simple! I would not even have thought that I would have to explain that to my professional colleagues across there; but every now and then it helps to simplify these things.

Mr. Speaker, our finances, and our country are in an economic boom. And that is clearly admitted. Nobody in this House can say otherwise. It has been that way for a long time and with the help of the good Lord it will go on for a long time to come. But there are cycles. I admit that.

And that's why it is prudent to put money into the reserves, put money into the pension fund for the day that we have to draw on that pension fund to pay civil servants or general reserves to pay for expenses.

And it is significant, Mr. Speaker, that after the adjustment of the general reserves we have continuously built it up. We have never raided the general reserves; we have never raided or touched the pension fund. That's why it stands at nearly $50 million, Mr. Speaker. We are prudent, we are paying our way and we are saving in these funds.

I just want to say that the world out there is not quite as rosy as it is in Cayman. All around the Caribbean, countries are having economic problems. Even those countries that have been put up to us as the examples of what a sustainable economy is and, in fact, one of them that we are actually using as an example is now in an economic recession. A sustainable economy, Mr. Speaker, survives an economic recession, let me just say that. But it just points out how people can play with words.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: At the end of the day, Mr. Speaker, what is important is that the country has made a profit and that the country has put up money for a rainy day. And I am sorry for the other countries in the Caribbean whose economies are down and some of them relate to agriculture, which is different.

Take New Zealand and Singapore, which are the two examples that... And I am not saying anything about the system. Let me make that clear. I accept we are bringing in their system of finance. But they have now . . . and I am reading here from one of the reports where it states, "Following several years of very high real interest rates aggravated by the downturn in Asia after mid-1997, the economy moved into recession in the first half of 1998." So we see, Mr. Speaker, countries such as Singapore (and this is mainly the Far East), New Zealand, actually Australia is also in a similar situation . . . where other countries that have had very outstanding systems in place (this is the point I am making) . . .

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I can give this to you if you want it. It is called, "International Financial Outlook, Economics Department." My colleague here said you may want it.

The point that I making, Mr. Speaker . . . I keep losing my train of thought because it seems like some backbenchers are speaking longer than I am during my speech. I should probably get extra time for that, sir.

Going back to the point I was making, although they claim that the system in New Zealand or Singapore is the ideal system, those two countries have now moved into very serious economic recessions. Okay? And what I am saying is that at the end of the day, no matter what system you put in place, it is the people who work the system that produce the results. And the proof of the pudding is in the eating.

This government—the National Team—has clearly proved that we have saved; we have a profit, a surplus, for last year. Regardless of what criticisms are made, we get the right results. If you are doing the wrong thing, how can the results be right? The country is in an economic boom, it has a surplus; it has $76 million in cash sitting in funds or in the reserves. How can that be wrong? The world around us, with the exception of North America and parts of Europe, has continued to move downwards while here and in North America we have moved upwards.

The public clearly understands where the country is.

[Inaudible Interjection]

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I will deal with Cayman Airways. I heard what you said about that. Let me deal with that because there is a lot of confusion going around out there. Before I say what I have to say on that, let me just point out that I appreciate the support of this House and the good things that have been said about Cayman Airways. It is very near and dear to me, as is education and the balance of my ministry.

But there is confusion between an accumulated deficit and a shareholder deficiency. I hope the backbench adviser—the Third Elected Member for George Town, the accountant—will bear me out on this. If he hears anything that he feels is not correct, he can tell me.

In the balance sheet I have here, what has to be looked at at the end of the day, and what shows a netting out between assets and capital and liabilities, is the net shareholder deficiency which is right at the bottom of the balance sheet.

Now, what happens, sir, is that under shareholder deficiency (and if necessary I will have a photocopy of the Cayman Airways balance sheet) there is an accumulated deficit of $44,344,184, say, as at the end of 1997; and against that the share capital of $38,376,215. Now the total shareholder deficiency is $5,967,969. You take one away from the other. The shareholder deficiency does not bear relation directly (well, it bears it indirectly, I would say) to two things: the assets, or the amount owing in the company is a different amount. The two things are separate and they are under assets and they are under liabilities.

Now, let me just show you how that accumulated deficiency came about. As I have shown, we inherited I think it was $57 million of debt in 1992, or early 1993. So, we inherited a very large accumulated deficit. I will show you the way it is built up. Back on 30 June 1991, the accumulated deficit carried forward jumped from $13.5 million to $27.8 million because Cayman Airways' loss was $14.3 million. So it moved from $13.5 million to $27.8 million, and on 31 December 1991, six months (the account times changed) it moved up to $32.7 million. In 1992 it had reached $36.9 million. In 1993, which was after the biting of the loan for—and there was $16-odd million put in—the accumulated deficit was $40,951,000.

That is the accumulated deficit that I picked up in Cayman Airways. It now stands at $44.3 million or approximately $3-plus million more.

Now, Mr. Speaker, that doesn't mean that Cayman Airways owes $44 million. And this is the point I am coming to. What I have said about what is owed being in the area of $17 million to $18 million (whatever, it fluctuates a bit, but is substantially where we were), is down a bit because a substantial part of that is the Civil Aviation Authority debt, and we have been over that a million times.

Now, against this deficit of $44 million, there is share capital, of which $16 million went in in 1993 from the loan of $38,376,000. So the net shareholder deficiency (i.e., assets less liabilities taking into account capital) is $5,968,000 which is the difference between the accumulated deficit and the share capital.

Let me just show how it moved from the $40,951,000 to the $44,314,000. In 1994, Cayman Airways, after subsidy (this is all after subsidy), made a profit of $1,568,000. In 1995, it lost $1.1 million; in 1996, it lost $1.6 million; in 1997, it lost $2.1 million; and this year the loss dropped to under a million dollars. So, when you add the profit and take the loss out of it, it gives you the extra approximately $3.3 million that is loss less profit.

The liabilities (I will give you as at 1997 because this has been laid on the Table, I believe) at present stand at—total current liabilities are $19,159,000 a year ago.

[Inaudible interjection]

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Sorry?

[Inaudible interjection]

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: 1997.

[Inaudible interjection]

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Yes, that could well be so.

And, Mr. Speaker, until there is a consolidation (which is now happening) of the leasing companies with Cayman Airways, a true picture will not be seen. But remaining on the accrual accounting system that will happen, because there are assets that Cayman Airways had paid for that do not sit in its name.

I hope I put this beyond doubt, because there was a little bit of worry. Some people called me up and said, "How in the world could Cayman Airways owe $44 million?" It doesn't. And against the $19 million (or $22 million whatever it is now) there are assets of $15.8 million and that is where you get the deficiency of $5.97 million.

So, I hope I have explained that. And, Mr. Speaker, I really don't want to put Cayman Airways in politics, we have a good staff, and we have good people. But it is struggling. The Board is doing as much as it can, and I really appreciate the help of the House. I ask for the continued help there because for the first time I think in the last five years, while it has been a struggle, sir, Cayman Airways is now stable. When you don't see massive fluctuations like the $12 million to $14 million losses and we are containing them, and our effort now has to be to increase sales and to add a few more million on there so that we can reduce down the loss.

I think it is also significant, Mr. Speaker, that the $4 million that we got five years ago, we are still only getting $4 million that has not progressively gone up. So I think that is one good thing that Cayman Airways has done. And it is important to the island.

Mr. Speaker, I will be going on now to another topic. I am not going to spend a lot of time on this, but I want to stress again the position in relation to the revenue enhancement measures, just to show the approach that had been taken in the past by some members who really heavily criticised it.

The first thing to remember, Mr. Speaker, is that the company fees are $5.2 million and the Health Services $1 million. Health Services is a new service, these are not increases in fees; they are coming on line with the new hospital. The company fees do not impact as additions, as such.

Now you may say, 'Well, those services are gotten elsewhere,' which they were. People paid it, but they didn't pay it to the government; they would have gone to Miami to get those services. So out of it, $6.2 million comes and we are left with about $5 million to $6 million, of which half of that is really in liquor and cigarettes.

With the permits we did a 10% increase, which is something that all of us here, but especially members of the Opposition, felt was the way to go. And I agree. Smaller increases over a period are somewhat better than larger ones, but what I would like to point out is that it has not been unusual in politics or in governments for this to be done in the manner that we have done. I know it took a lot of criticism, but I would just like to show that when the people who criticise are in the same position how they dealt with it.

At the time when the current revenue was only a little bit over $100 million (in the budget that was presented on the 13 July 1990) there were fourteen different revenue measures proposed in the bill. And let me just tell you how wide it was and how heavy an impact it had. What has been done this time is nothing.

I showed yesterday that when you work it down nothing compared to what had been done in the past. It was 7% of the recurrent revenue, then it was 12%. The things that went up were (and I am reading from the speech of the Hon. Linford Pierson, page 883 [Official Hansard Report], 13 July 1990) cigarettes, Liquor, Planning Application Fees, Court Fees, Warehouse Fees, Traders' Licences, Sales of Laws, Visitor's Drivers Licence, Petrol Duty, Diesel Duty, Land Transfer Fees, Work Permit. And just to quote from page 883, he said, "With a total effect that between August and December 1990 [these were the days when the budgets went through quickly and you got a part in the year it came in] we are looking at $2.8 million on the low side and

$3.8M on the high side. So, it is not correct to say that we will be trying to take $9 million to $10 million out of the economy during 1990."

Here is the catch: It does not come out in 1990 because the budget was presented in July. It came out in 1991 and here, over on page 882, he says, "The Bill during the balance of 1990 [which is four or five months] contemplates to raise some $3 million to $4 million, and some $8 million to $10 million is contemplated for the year 1991." Ten million dollars, Mr. Speaker, everything in the world.

Some things here I didn't even remember we increased. And if that was not good enough . . . and I am not going to really dwell on this much longer, because it is just that my colleague touched on it and he needed an explanation, I am sure, of what we used to do many years ago.

Back then, the following year when the budget had shifted to December . . . I am sorry, I noticed that Mr. Haig always spoke after the Financial Secretary opened. [Laughter] The following year, this was the 11th December 1991, and at page 1357, the budget presentation said as follows: "The five areas with revenue-generating potential have been identified. These are annual renewal fees for registered companies; duty on diesel fuel..." The second time, one after the other. And I don't want to go into that. It was a very large amount. I think it moved for 13 cents to 25 cents, something like that. And then it moved from 25 cents to something. "These are annual renewal fees for registered companies: duty on diesel fuel; duty on alcoholic beverages and tobacco products [both had been taxed the year before]; and Planning application and Building Code fees."

So, Mr. Speaker, what has been done this year is really very soft when you think that having put $10 million of crippling taxes on in one year that touched everything in the world; the second year, we turned around and increased the taxes on exactly the same things. And it ended up, Mr. Speaker, with near riots in this country, in petitions, Motion 3/90, and everything else. And this was done in the middle of one of the worst economic recessions this county had, but it had to be done because the country did not have enough money to pay the salaries of civil servants, so to speak.

And, Mr. Speaker, when you look at what we have done, things like alcohol had not been touched since 1991. In fact, we had reduced company fees, we have added a little bit on to it, and we would never in life do something like that, Mr. Speaker.

Anyhow, I want to move off that because I don't need any more trouble with my good colleague. You know we all had those bad times in Government, we just need to remember them from time to time.

Now, Mr. Speaker, I know there are some people whose whole speech is going to be on Truman rather than the budget. I know because they continuously break my chain of thought over there.

Now, Mr. Speaker, the other thing I would like to touch on: A lot of the money this year—$30-odd million, close to $40 million—will go on education. But I would just like to read one thing that I have kept. Perhaps I should frame it, because as much as has been said about me I have been dedicated to improving education in the country and I have always been open and honest, and done everything I can for the school system of this country. And this year, a lot of money will be going there, and I thank the Legislative Assembly for that.

I appreciate it, and the most I can do I guess is to, you know, apologise for the increase in school fees. It was very small. It was $250,000 out of nearly $40 million dollars of budget. Mr. Speaker, I would just like to point out that the $5 and the other fees in schools had not been changed since 1983—approximately 15 years.

Mr. Speaker, I would just like to read this because I think this sums it up. Again, this is that good newspaper, the Caymanian Compass. It says:

“Last month with very little fanfare, reports on three local schools assembled by the School’s Inspectorate were released to the public.

“The inspectorate, a wholly independent branch of the Ministry of Education, came into operation in 1997, its job to monitor and report on educational standards in Cayman. The publication of the Inspectorate’s first three reports, for distribution to the schools and parents, is a highly significant moment in the history of education in the islands.

“The ministry had a choice to publish or not, and, to its great credit, chose to do so. Going public with the strengths and weaknesses of local schools is an admirably positive step towards transparency and accountability within the education system. It has meant that, for the first time ever, objective and independent assessments of standards at local schools are available to parents. That is information that all parents and guardians in every country deserve—or perhaps have the right—to have, but too often do not.

“Publication of the reports establishes the honesty of the Ministry of Education, gives much credibility to its stated aim of raising educational standards, and encourages trust between the Ministry and parents.

“Now the reports have been published, the schools are using their own self-assessment reports in conjunction with the Inspectorate reports to produce action plans. The purpose of these will be to bolster areas which have been identified as weak. The Inspectorate is to monitor the implementation of the action plans, and each school will continue to evaluate its own work on a regular basis.

“If staff at the schools concerned can remain motivated to see through their action plans in the coming months, it seems likely that real improvement in standards will quickly follow.

“It remains to congratulate the Inspectorate staff for carrying out its mandate with such thoroughness and professionalism. The inspectorate reports—detailed, concise, and objective as they are—provide an extremely valuable framework for upgrading the quality of education in the Cayman Islands.” (Caymanian Compass, 24 November 1998)

Mr. Speaker, there can be no doubt. I always strive towards transparency, accountability, and honesty. The money that will be going into the schools and the education system is the best that can be done in any country.

There is a saying, “If you think education is expensive try ignorance.” We must educate our youth.

Many of us older people didn't have the opportunities children have these days. I went to school in what was basically about a three-classroom high school. I think three or four teachers. We all suffered that way with joint classes and no resources, but we have all managed to do well for our country. It is our duty. That is why I feel justified in supporting this budget, and in supporting the borrowing and supporting the measures that will assist these schools in generating the best education that our children will have because they have a future, and they one day will sit here in this Honourable House and run the country.

Mr. Speaker, I am wondering if we may be getting near to that time.

The Speaker: I was planning on about another five to ten minutes, but if this is convenient, that is okay with me. We can suspend proceedings for lunch until 2:15 p.m.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 12:21 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 2:30 PM

The Speaker: Proceedings are resumed. Debate continues on the Loan (Capital Projects 1999) Bill, 1998. The Honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning continuing.

Hon. Truman Boddin: Mr. Speaker, the good results that this government has achieved have come about through proper planning, through taking the right decisions.

You know, Mr. Speaker, when the results are right such as they are now—surplus, plenty of money sitting in the reserves and the different funds—then you know that planning and the government's ability and hard work have gone into it.

At present, there are many, many plans in effect. And, like every other government, I guess we are not perfect. There are some that need to be done. But I am happy to say that many of the major plans are now in place: the Education Strategic Plan, the Tourism Plan, the Health Strategic Plan, the Drugs Strategic Plan, the Agricultural Development Plan—

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: The old-age plan?

Hon. Truman M. Boddin: —the Port Authority has a plan, the Water Authority has a plan. And, Mr. Speaker, as we know the Vision 2008 is well on its way, which will pull together and be an overall plan for the country.

And most important, I almost forgot, Mr. Speaker, after exactly twenty years we have a new Development Plan. I think this Government will go down in history as having achieved that, as well as the fact that there are another three draft plans which will shortly go out to the public. So there is a lot of planning in place. There has to be, Mr. Speaker, for us to continue in a boom.

We also have the Youth Policy, which has started, and it is well on its way. So there are many, many good things going at this stage.

In fact, Mr. Speaker, we have been talking about these three-year plans. To be frank, in a simple form it could well be easily and quickly put together based on the three years that are in the Estimates at this stage. But there are plans to be done and that is one of them, and there are other plans beyond just a financial strategy plan that need to go in place.

I know a lot of this debate has been about money, but there are many other important things in life other than money, and many of those plans are already in place—those which increase the quality of life for our children and our families.

But when reform is done, Mr. Speaker, it has to be done right. This is very important. It is not a matter of sitting down and just producing a plan. It takes a lot of time and effort. The Development Plan . . . and I agree that is probably the most difficult one because every one of our previous governments faced it and they were not able to do it. I mean, that is clear. No other Government was able to do this, and the National Team Government was able to put that in place and now we are about to come out with the second in Grand Cayman and one for Cayman Brac and Little Cayman.

So while there is work to be done, there has been a lot of reform. We are well on the way with the introduction of the plan relating to finance which will be very important. It will be a Cayman plan based on the New Zealand model. I think that when it is introduced and when we have accrual accounting it will go a long way towards showing that the country is in good shape.

Mr. Speaker, a lot has been said about the salaries and what I am going to say here I hope honourable members will take with a bit of humour because after a very good lunch, I feel in a fairly good mood.

[Some Members: Oh!]

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Now, when this all came up I could see after a while there was a move to try to shift some sort of blame or liability onto the Government. But as was said many times, just about all members (not all) sat down informally and looked at this. We came forward with it altogether, and subsequently there were second thoughts, motions in the House, that all members here supported, to leave the salaries where they were.

The area that was perhaps somewhat confusing was the first motion [that] referred to government finding the money. It is a duty of the controlling officers who handle money—politicians and MLAs do not handle the money of government. That was one of the things that we looked at.

What I found very interesting (and I won't say anymore on this, and it relates to nobody specific) was that some MLAs' salaries on the lower part of the rung would have been $81,000, and it ended up nearly $84,000. And even some said that it should be $91,000: Yet, when the pressure came on there was a bit of scrambling.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: At least with the Executive Council salaries we left them where they were in the scale.

And I want to just repeat again for everybody's sake: The salaries were done by an independent review of the civil service. Previous governments had pegged all salaries of MLAs and Executive Council Members in a certain bracket in the civil service. What was done by the civil service group ended with increases to both MLAs and to Executive Council Members. But Executive Council Members' salaries were going to be pegged where they are now in the bracket.

I would just make that one little point. We didn't attempt to move them up by another eight or nine or whatever over it.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: You didn't need to, at forty thousand dollars extra! [Laughter]

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: But like everything else, sometimes politicians have a way of spoiling their own pots, so to speak, and that is for the benefit of the country I am sure.

Mr. Speaker, a lot of time was spent on the measures that this present Bill before the House relates to. A lot of time was spent in the Finance Committee. In fact, we have not been in the open House for about the last two months; we have been sitting in Finance Committee.

Most of that time was spent with us answering questions on the recurrent revenue and the continuing projects. When the Opposition had an opportunity to say how they could achieve the $25 million of loan as against what was in our $32 million (but is now $26 million) . . . by the way, for the same amount of capital that the $32 million was for we found the savings and the profit that would bring this down to $26 million.

I have always been one to face my problems and try to solve them, because I have always believed that you don't get a problem solved by running from it. I think we had a golden opportunity to have asked . . . well, as we did from time to time I guess in the House and otherwise, saying if the Loan Bill is to be $25 million then what should be cut from the capital. I presume there would not be any cutting on the recurrent. And the Opposition had no solution to that problem, Mr. Speaker.

In fact, when we decided to vote on those new measures that affect this $26 million, some of the Opposition [members] walked out of the room and remained out of the House during that period.

I guess what I am saying here, Mr. Speaker, at least we have . . . well we didn't do what you said but I mean when you say something you should really have the solution to it. You should produce it and say you can cut the Loan Bill in this way, 'Take X amount out of schools, and X amount out of roads, or X amount out of whatever.'

[Inaudible interjections and general uproar]

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, it goes to show when you are the government decisions have to be made, and you have to make them. It is no good in sweeping decisions under the table. A lot is needed out there, and at least I am happy to say that the Opposition and the Government are really only one million dollars apart in relation to the loan.

Sometimes, as mentioned about principles, one does what one thinks. But I guess my view is that especially if you are going to run a government or any company, you can't sweep the problems under the carpet and say you can't do something, but you don't know what the alternative is. So with that I would really point out that the government did what it felt was right.

We had the same dilemma that the Opposition or anyone else would have had. All these projects are very important, they are needed. Nobody really wanted to sit down and begin cutting. But the harsh reality, Mr. Speaker, is that when you run a government the decisions have to be made, you can't really walk out and expect them to fix themselves.

Now, the National Team Government, and the previous one (when I say that I include really all the former members of the National Team), did a lot to assist people in this country. We have seen considerable increases in the relief assistance for the poor. We have seen that come up quite good. We have seen a housing scheme for young Caymanians. I think the total loans are in the area of $20 million. A lot of young people have been helped.

We have recently seen the Minister for Health and Social Welfare increase the $200 monthly allowance by $50, and we all supported that. And these are increases that have been fully supported by us.

I will admit that in many of these areas when the First Elected Member for West Bay was Minister he moved them and moved ahead on them. Especially in the area of sports, for example, where a lot of money was spent and a lot of good has come and will continue to come.

Now, the—

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Yeah, well he tells them that I spent all the money.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: No, no, no! I mean the money spent on sports, Mr. Speaker, I think is money well spent. The money we spend on our youth can't be better spent anywhere else.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: I know what you are doing.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: One of the other ministers will detail a lot of these things, but the government has put a lot of money back in the country.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: What you need to do is say who spent it. That's what you need to do. You're laughing?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: No.

Mr. Speaker, I think that if there is one thing that the National Team Government, the present Government, can go down for is that despite being very prudent, despite the heavy savings that we have—and we do have that $75 million between the pensions and the different funds, and the reserves and the balances on the accounts, the surplus—despite that we have put a lot back in that is very good. I just looked, for example, at health. I mean how important is that, Mr. Speaker? And look at what the minister has done. We have a first class hospital. We have clinics in every district.

Roads have been built all over. We have a lot of improvements in George Town, and we have a lot more to go. And schools, there has been a lot of improvement in education. There is so much that has been done.

I was quite heavily criticised yesterday evening at the meeting. I decided to pull myself away from the television where another backbencher was talking on the history of Cayman and other things, and to drive across there. And I hope members take this in the humorous light that it is given. But when I was going by and saw all those chairs, I thought there was a quite a lot of people. But I realised once I got there that there were a lot of chairs left.

I guess it goes to show you one of two things: I will give the benefit of the doubt here. Obviously the population is very satisfied when they don't come out to public meetings, especially from six powerful politicians as there were.

[Laughter]

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Or I guess I could give them the benefit of the doubt in a humorous way, they may have been at home watching television where another one of our colleagues was busy on the television.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Our who? Say that again Truman. [Laughter]

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: But, Mr. Speaker, I guess the conclusion one draws from this is one of two things. One of them has to be that the people in this country are quite satisfied. When people are unhappy, believe me, as we saw seven or eight years ago when we saw thousands in the streets, and we saw petitions signed by nearly 4,000 people—that's when you have to worry. But the public knows that the country is in good shape as the Financial Secretary has told them.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: When you can produce two budgets in one year? You're in good shape? Yeah!

[laughter]

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Therefore, the—

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Truman, you've said enough now, sit down.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: The position of the country financially is very good. This Bill to borrow $26 million—the only difference is $1 million between us and the Opposition—it's good for the country. The public will see schools, they will see roads, and that is where the majority will go. But the public is watching to see solutions to traffic. They want to see development in schools because we are schooling the future generations that will run this country.

Mr. Speaker, the government has been very prudent. We have built up total reserves and funds of $76 million of which—

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Where it is?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I will explain exactly where it is to that honourable member who asked me. Here we are.

Mr. Speaker, the Public Service Pension Fund which is money—

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Well, we can't spend that.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Yes, it can be spent for pensions because the Government owes pensions to the civil service and it owes a lot more than the $50 million that will be in this fund, $49.61 million. And that money, Mr. Speaker—

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order.

The Member generously said he would explain what he could do with it. Can he tell us then whether they can use that money—that $76 million—for building roads, schools or any kind of capital expenditure? Because surplus, as I understand it, is for that; or you can use it at any given point. But I don't understand what he saying, and he said he would explain it.

The Speaker: I think he is in the process of explaining it now. Honourable Minister for Education?

Hon. Truman Bodden: Yes, sir. I will. I am always happy to give way to my colleague to get an opportunity to vent a bit of his—

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Frustration!

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Frustration.

Mr. Speaker, the Public Service Pension Fund is a fund that will be used to pay for public service pensions. If it is not there, Mr. Speaker . . . well, it can be used at any time that it is needed . . . well, for public service pension. If the time comes—

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Get the Hansards!

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: What do you mean you can't use it for pensions? What is the Public Service Pension Fund for? It is for pensions. The aim of this—

[Inaudible interjection]

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, if I could just try to finish.

This government is trying to build up the Pension Fund because the government of this country owes to the civil servants a large contingent liability, which is well in excess of this $50 million. It is money that has to be provided for. That money can only be used for civil service pensions.

Now, what is being done at present, Mr. Speaker, is that we are putting in, as we did this year, nearly $10 million a year to try to build it up because over the last twenty years governments—including governments that I was in—did not do it. When this government took over there was $6.2 million and probably $70 million or $80 million of contingent liability to civil servants. That was not right. There was no money there, in the event of a crisis, that could have paid for civil servants' pensions.

This money has to be built up until the fund is fully funded. Then that fund will service the pensions of civil servants. At present, we have a double burden, and this is what I am coming to. This government, out of choice, because we not only pay civil service pensions out of our recurrent revenue and along with that amount, Mr. Speaker, $9.7 million this year is going into a reserve, a savings, a pension fund, whatever you call it, for paying for past debts owed to civil servants on pensions when they become due.

This year, the cost of just paying for civil servant pensions, that is coming out of recurrent revenue, is $3.5 million. Most governments, Mr. Speaker, only paid that. They didn't take this $10 million that we have taken. I want to point out here when we got in it was $6 million, and at the end of this year it will be nearly $50 million ($49.61 million), and this is cash and securities. And it is not money that has been spent; it is money that's put aside to pay civil service pensions. It can't be used for anything else and nobody should ever touch it.

But what had happened in the past was civil servants had been wrongly deprived of this money. And I hope the civil servants of this country appreciate this, sir, because this $50 million could easily have been applied against the increase in loans between 1993 and now. It is only $40 million. We would have had no loans. In fact, we put in $44 million and this is a fact in this pension fund. We could have taken that and put that against loans and we would have still had a further $10 million that could have gone into reserves and then the country would still have had $6.2 million and a large contingent liability for it.

But we are prudent. And we know that this money can't be used to pay for roads because while the public leaves this Government inside of this Legislative Assembly, Mr. Speaker, we do not need to go into this or any of these funds to get money to pay for recurrent revenue or other expenditure in the country, we have enough there. And this fund is one of the many ingredients of fiscal responsibility, proper planning.

[Some Members' Laughter]

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, if you want to see what proper planning is, you just take this:

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Let's look at the two budgets!

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: You just take this, Mr. Speaker: We came in when the civil service was owed $70 million to $80 million in contingent liabilities that would have been necessary to pay whenever a person retired. Instead of taking the $44 million that we have put in here and using it to apply it against the loans, . . . in fact, if we had taken this money there would have been no loan this year and no loan last year, and probably no loan the year before because the increase in loans (and I am going to show that) is less than the amount of money that we have built up in these funds here.

The money has to be used for pensions, Mr. Speaker. But it is still money that some government would have to pay. So we are providing for the future of this country and the future civil service of this country because the day the civil service of this country is not paid pensions or salary, the country grinds to a halt. And the continuity of this country depends on prudent financial management such as this.

We could have built $44 million worth of more roads, schools, and everything else and left nothing. But a future government would have to pay that money. This is the difference. We are prepared to prepare for the future. Some of this money will probably not have been drawn on for another five to fifteen years, whatever it takes.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Oh yeah?

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: And we have built not just for the 21st Century with this Public Service Pension Fund, we have built way into the 21st Century. When this finally reaches a totally funded state, the country will cease to have to pay from its recurrent revenue for pensions.

I hope this is very clear, Mr. Speaker. This is money that has to be paid in the future and we are—

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: We can't use it.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: You can't use it for political purposes, as one member is saying across the floor. You can't use it! Politicians should not be using this money. We have put it in here for the civil servants.

[Inaudible interjections]

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I have not read the law on this, but the intent (and I am not going to get into picking here) . . . everybody in this House knows the intent of this public service pension fund is to provide for future civil servants pensions, and it has to be paid by a future Government.

Can you image the amount of money it would take this country in another ten years, Mr. Speaker, if there was no fund here? In fact, if what it is being said is correct, that it has to be fully funded before any payment is made out of it, it shows how much further in the future we have planned for it. It means this may not be drawn on—

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Well, Mr. Speaker, I don't know if the public is hearing these comments, but I am replying to some of these. I am very happy that the Minister of Tourism, our former Financial Secretary, is a man who had the wisdom to put this in place.

And, Mr. Speaker, you and the members here know that I fought inside of this House to get entrenched in the Constitution that the civil servants' pension fund could not be touched because time and again politicians have taken and spent this money to the detriment of the country.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Including you, sir!

[Inaudible interjections]

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: And despite, Mr. Speaker, at this stage I don't know if the public can hear it, but every Opposition member who can talk on the other side is talking at the same time.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order. The gentleman is misleading and saying false things, sir, because I am not speaking, and Mr. Pierson is not speaking. I insist that he retract the comment, sir.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: And I am still waiting to hear him say that they are not going to use it!

Hon. Truman Bodden: Mr. Speaker, it was done in a sense of humour, and I am happy—

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, what about the point of order, sir? I wasn't speaking, and Mr. Pierson—
Mr. Speaker!

Hon. Truman Bodden: I retract it, Mr. Speaker. I apologise to Mr. Roy and Mr. Linford. They were studiously doing things. One or two others were over there making noise. So if we stop the noise we won't have to waste time on this. Now, if I may go on, sir.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: We're not noisy!

The Speaker: Please continue.

Hon. Truman Bodden: Mr. Speaker, on top of the $49.61 million in the public service pension fund is a total of $26.5 million made up as follows: There is a general reserve of $10.5 million (and we will be adding another $3 million this year); there is a general revenue fund, which is our profit or surplus from last year, of $7.2 million. There is a capital development fund, $4.1 million; an environmental protection fund of $0.1 million; a housing reserve fund, $0.7 million; an infrastructure development fund, $3.9 million, making a total of $26.5 million. And another $3 million, as I said, will be going on to this amount this year that we are transferring out of the large surplus that we have been able to generate in the country.

And these other funds as well, not just the pension fund, Mr. Speaker, but these other funds, like the capital development, infrastructure and the others, have to be used for the purposes they are established. But this money, if it wasn't put there, could be used either to put into just general reserves, as other politicians have done in the past—blown it on buildings and roads and everything else—but these are savings for specific purposes of which there are $76 million.

Mr. Speaker, if we had ended up with that hospital in the swamp, we would have really been in trouble with the pension fund now. We never would have had any money to put in there.

[Inaudible interjections]

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I figured that I would say something I could get the Opposition to agree with! [Laughter]

Now, on the more serious side, I have also shown (and I am just about to the end of all of this now)—

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Good!

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: —this government . . . and do you know what? I shouldn't just say this Government, but the National Team (up until maybe a year back or whenever) did a lot towards what I am saying here of keeping loans low and of providing these funds that are in there, the $76 million in cash.

Now (this is in summary) after the loan to Cayman Airways: Back in earlier mid-1993, and, by the way nothing was borrowed by this Government in.... (let me just have a quick look. If it was, it was extremely small.) Practically nothing was borrowed. It looks like maybe $1 million must have been hanging over from.... I am sorry, $800,000 was all that was borrowed in 1993. And in 1994, the loan was only $4.7 million. In 1995 (and this is coming from the summary that I have already laid on the Table) was only $1.8 million.

We picked up a debt of $54,126,799 from the past government and, Mr. Speaker, at the end of December 1998 it stood at $93 million, a difference of a bit under $40 million increase. As I said very clearly before, funds that are sitting in the $76 million could easily be applied to bring this back to exactly where—

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order, sir.

POINT OF ORDER

(Misleading)

The Speaker: Let me hear your point of order.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, the Minister has continually spoken about $76 million which the government has. The $76 million he is quoting about—and I am not going to argue against what he is saying—but the $76 million he is talking about is projected in 1999 at year-end. He is saying that it is had, and it is not had. He is misleading the House.

The Speaker: I don't think that's a point of order because he clearly stated what that $76 million is made up of repeatedly—time, and time, and time again.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, I hear what you are saying, sir. But he has continued to say the $76 million that we "have." This is a projected estimate; it is not money that we have. We don't know if it is going to be like that. Even if the projections become accurate, we will not know until it is realised, sir. And it is not realised so he cannot continue to say $76 million that we have. Surely, sir, that must make sense.

Hon. Truman Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I am in such a good mood, I don't really want to have any arguments. Let me just explain what the member would like me to explain.

As at the end of December 1998 what is sitting in cash is $66.4 million—cash and securities when I say that. That is sitting in cash.

What is projected for this year (and if that is what he wishes me to make clear—which I thought I had made clear before) is another $9.7 million. So $66 million is already in cash put in by this government, or our two governments (the last one and this one), and is sitting there. The $9.71 million is projected for this year—but it has been approved, Mr. Speaker, by members of this House.

Now, I can't say with absolute certainty that $9 million will go in. But, Mr. Speaker, look at how good our projections have been. When you project nothing literally, or $100,000 as a surplus, you end up with $7.21 million. Then it's nearly almost certain that, God willing, the $9 million will go in—and I believe it will.

Mr. Speaker, if we do as good this year as we did last year, we may be able to increase.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Yeah, you'll be able to settle that up.

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I hope that has been explained.

The Speaker: Excuse me one second. (Pause)

Please continue. I was going to address the First Elected Member for George Town but he has left. Please continue.

Hon. Truman Bodden: Thank you, sir.

So, Mr. Speaker, if all and all is taken when you look at the prudent fiscal management, and I agree that a very heavy amount has had to go for the Civil Service Pension Fund. But that is prudent. Future generations are going to reap the benefits. Some of those who will be going into this fund could be as far as fifteen years—even twenty-five years down.

So, Mr. Speaker, if I may just repeat this one last time because there seems to be confusion over on the other side of the House.

The money in this fund is being put there to pay for civil service pensions. It will pay for future pensions of civil servants in this country. If the money isn't put there by us then our children and our future generations are having to fund a pension for the civil service that is bankrupt. Do I have to make that plainer, Mr. Speaker?

Isn't it good management to put money into a fund to pay for your future debts—some of them twenty-five years down the line? Future generations of this country will benefit from the money we are putting in there. And yes, Mr. Speaker, the politician can't get in this pension fund and that is probably what is beginning to anger some of these politicians.

[General uproar]

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: They can't touch this fund, Mr. Speaker. They can't touch this fund to take and use for other purposes.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: You are forgetting that I was in Executive Council and how hard you had to fight to get it, so you better not start opening your mouth about who wants to use it. I know who didn't want to do it then.

[Laughter]

Hon. Truman Bodden: I am confused.

Mr. Speaker, so much as been said about future generations and that nothing will be left. This is a good example of putting money in the bank for future generations because this load of money will not have to be extracted from my children or our children.

And, Mr. Speaker, if I had my way I had asked the United Kingdom to put a blocking of this type of fund in the constitution. We got something in there but it did not specifically deal with the fund. The money is being saved and I think that the public by now, hopefully, understands very clearly the prudent fiscal management of this government.

We haven't squandered. We could have spent this money. They are talking about excessive borrowing, excessive this and that. Mr. Speaker, what we have spent has been prudent. It had to be if we can take and put away $44 million in pensions alone and another $26.5 million in cash sitting in the funds.

Now, I would like to just like to try to get my thoughts together to where I was really going.

The balance of the debt, Mr. Speaker (because this is what we are talking about at this stage), is loans and debt. What I am reading from has been laid on the Table of this House so that the public or the press or anyone can look at this if there is any doubt.

After the Cayman Airways loan in early 1993, the government owed $54,126,799, and nobody can dispute that. At the end of December 1998, the loans moved up to $93,556,448, or a little bit under $40 million increase in loans had been done. Because you remember, Mr. Speaker, in that first four years nothing literally other than $6 million to $10 million had been borrowed, whatever I call out a bit earlier. And this is very small because at present the cost of servicing the debt—of which more than half of it was inherited; $54 million was inherited and we added $40 million to it—is 7.1% of the annual recurrent revenue, which is way under what is prudent.

Now, two things are important to understand with this: That figure is high for the amount of money we borrowed because we borrowed the money short and medium term. As the public knows and the members know, if you borrow over eight to ten years you pay a lot more money back than if you borrow over 20 or 25 years, which is how long most governments borrow for.

Secondly, Mr. Speaker, it is a clear example that by and large a bank will lend on a loan to an individual up to 40% of the income, or jointed income normally because it is usually the salary of a husband and wife. This is only 7%. It is obviously very prudent. I am just trying to finish winding up here.

[Inaudible interjection]

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: Well, I know this hurts, Mr. Speaker. It's getting painful for me to keep my thoughts together now. [Laughter]

I have put in a table that shows how the repayments of that will reduce down so that in about seven or eight years' time it is way down to whatever it showed there of 3% or 4% of the recurrent revenue. And the 7% is very prudent.

Earlier I mentioned places such as Canada, for example (and I am dealing with the GDP now percentage, not recurrent revenue, because internationally the GDP is used instead of the recurrent), was in the area of 55%. I know at one stage New Zealand was in the area of 37%, those two I know because I have figures here for them.

The other important point, Mr. Speaker, is that we have contributed from the recurrent revenue into capital. It was $60 million up to the time (and I spelled this out) that our manifesto came out, and there have been further contributions to capital. In other words, the surpluses that we have contributed, in 1995 was $16.3 million; and 1996 we put another $23.7 million; 1997, 18.8 million. And that is in addition to the money that was put into the $66 million of reserve and pension fund that we now have as at the end of 1998. So that is a very substantial amount of money.

Mr. Speaker, in conclusion no one can say that this government has not been prudent. It is like saying the country isn't in a boom. Nobody can say that we are not in an economic boom; that's been readily admitted by everyone. The savings for these specific purposes are very high. The loan is quite low compared to what we could borrow to go up to the minimum amounts that are there. The money is being well spent, it is going on schools mainly and roads and many of the other areas, and prior to that a lot of money went on health.

Mr. Speaker, we have taken the approach of putting by very large funds of savings for the future generations of this country. Not just the next generation but generations that are not yet born will benefit from the pension fund either directly as civil servants or indirectly by not having to contribute the $50 million that at the end of this year will be there.

The figures that have been given are correct figures. They have been given by the Financial Secretary, the Accountant General, who is very competent, and the Deputy Financial Secretary who is now our Third Official Member in here today.

The figures are correct, Mr. Speaker, there can be no doubt about it and at the end of the day what is important, despite what may be said about planning or anything else, is the results. Mr. Speaker, the results of the economy of this country is that we have a surplus of $7.2 million and we have savings up to the end of 1998. And the different funds of $66 million with another $9.7 million going in, bringing up the $76 million that future generations, a larger part, will reap the benefits, and good planning takes into consideration what will happen to our children. The money being spent going in schools is the best that could be spent because one day the education of those children and the training will be what will be necessary to take this country forward.

So I would ask the Opposition, while it may be hard to do when the Government has brought down the Loan Bill from approximately $30 million to where there is only $1 million difference between what was put forward by the Opposition (to borrow $25 million) and we are at $26 million. . . .since we have come down so far that maybe the time has come for the benefit of the country and so that we can move forward as one team because this is very important. A lot of what is happening out there, the Opposition should be very happy and should basically go along with the many, many things that are being done to benefit the people of this country.

There is a $1 million difference and I think they should take a prudent approach and give this House the benefit of the doubt and vote for the $26 million Loan Bill.

Mr. Speaker, there is no other solution put forward by the Opposition. Nobody has said cut this that, or cut whatever because we know you cannot on the one hand say that the Government must do the schools, the roads, and then on the other hand say you can't spend it, as the fight came over the budget, or you can't borrow it or whatever.

I know that what is being done now as well as what we have done over the last six years, Mr. Speaker, is good for the country. And we are looking at planning for the future generation well into the 21st Century, in this instance up to twenty-five years down the line. And I believe that with God's help and guidance the economy of this country will be able to move from strength to strength and our people will continue to reap the benefits of a good economy. And that the aim of everyone here after everything is said and done has to be moving forward for the good of the country.

Thank you, sir.

The Speaker: I think this would be a convenient time to take the afternoon break. Let us try to limit it to fifteen minutes.

PROCEEDINGS SUSPENDED AT 3:29 PM

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED AT 3:53 PM

The Speaker: Proceedings are resumed debate continues. The second reading of the Loans (Capital Projects 1999) Bill, 1998. Does any other Member wish to speak?

The Floor is open for debate. Does any other Member wishes to speak? (Pause) The Floor is open for debate. (Pause) I can't wait much longer, does any other Member wishes to speak? (Pause)

I want to give every Honourable Member an opportunity but can't wait much longer. Does any other Member wishes to speak? (Pause)

[inaudible interjection]

The Speaker: I cannot wait much longer. Does any other Member wish to speak? (Pause) I am going to wait another two minutes and then I am going to call the Honourable mover to reply.

This is the final call. Does any other Member wish to speak? If no other Member wishes to speak, I will call on the Honourable mover to exercise his right to reply.

The Honourable Temporary Acting Third Official Member.

Hon. Joel Walton: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In keeping with the spirit that is already underway, I just wish to thank all Members who contributed to the debate on the Loans (Capital Projects 1999) Bill, 1998. I thank them for their contributions, sir, and say thank you for the opportunity That is it, sir.

The Speaker: The question is that a bill entitled, The Loans (Capital Project 1999) Bill, 1998, be given a second reading. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against No.

AYES and No.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it.

Mr. Roy Boddén: Mr. Speaker, a division please, sir.

The Speaker: Certainly. Madam Clerk would you call a division please?

DIVISION NO. 21/98

AYES: 9

Hon. James M. Ryan
 Hon. Joel Walton
 Hon. Truman M. Bodden
 Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson
 Hon. John B. McLean
 Hon. Anthony S. Eden
 Hon. J. O'Connor-Connolly
 Mr. D. Dalmain Ebanks
 Dr. Frank McField

NOES: 1

Mr. Roy Bodden

shall put the question. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: CLAUSE 1 AMENDED.

The Chairman: I now put the question that Clause 1, as amended, do stand part of the Bill. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it. Clause one as amended stands part of the Bill.

AGREED: CLAUSE 1 AS AMENDED PASSED.

The Speaker: The results of the division: nine Ayes, one No. The bill has been given a second reading.

AGREED BY MAJORITY: THE CAPITAL LOANS PROJECT (1999) BILL, 1998 GIVEN A SECOND READING.

The Speaker: The House will now go into Committee to consider the Bill entitled, The Financial Bill, 1998, and the Loans (Capital Projects 1999) Bill, 1998.

HOUSE IN COMMITTEE AT 4:00 PM

COMMITTEE ON BILLS

The Chairman: The House is now in Committee.

With the leave of House may I assume that as usual we should authorise the Second Official Member to correct minor printing errors and such the like in these Bills?

Would the Clerk state each Bill and read its clauses?

THE FINANCE BILL, 1998

The Clerk: The Finance Bill, 1998.
 Clause 1. Short title.

The Chairman: There is an amendment to Clause 1.
 The Honourable Temporary Acting Third Official Member.

Hon. Joel Walton: Thank you.

There was an amendment to Clause 1 as set out in number 2, which has been circulated. Basically it's that Clause 1 be amended by numbering the existing wording as subsection (1), and by inserting the following subsection (2):

"This law is deemed to have come into force at 9:00 a.m. on the 16th November 1998."

The Chairman: The question is that Clause 1 be amended. The question is open to debate. No debate? I

The Clerk: Clause 2. Amendment of Companies Law (1998 Revision).

The Chairman: The question is that Clause 2 do stand part of the Bill. There is an amendment. The Acting Third Official Member.

Hon. Joel Walton: Yes, thank you, sir.

This moves that Amendment number 1 as circulated (and if I could just refer to it as that as opposed to having to read the entire amendment) that number 1 stands part of the Bill. If that's possible, sir, as opposed to having to read the entire three pages. Thank you, sir.

The Chairman: The question is that Clause 2 be amended. This is open for debate.

Mr. Roy Bodden: You already passed Clause 1, sir?

The Chairman: Yes. The question is on the amendment to Clause 2. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: CLAUSE 2 AMENDED.

The Chairman: I will now put the question that Clause 2 as amended do stand part of the Bill. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it. Clause 2, as amended, stands part of the Bill.

AGREED: CLAUSE 2 AS AMENDED PASSED.

The Clerk: Clause 3. Amendment of the Customs Tariff Law (1998 Revision).

Clause 4. Amendment of the Education Law (1997 Revision).
 Clause 5. Amendment of the Exempted Partnership Regulations (1997 Revision).
 Clause 6. Amendment of the Health Practitioners Fees, Regulations (1995 Revision).
 Clause 7. Amendment of the Immigration Regulations (1998 Revision).
 Clause 8. Amendment of the Legal Practitioners Law, (1995 Revision).
 Clause 9. Amendment of the Liquor Licences Fees, Regulation (1998 Revision).
 Clause 10. Amendment of the Public Health Garage and Refuse Disposal Regulations (1998 Revision).
 Clause 11. Amendment of the Trade and Business Licences Law (1996 Revision).

The Chairman: The question is that Clauses 3 through 11 do stand part of the Bill. It is open for debate.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Chairman.

The Chairman: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: I would have to reach my Opposition so that they can be recorded in this aspect of the Hansards, since everybody already knows, but the aspect of school fees and the other areas in this . . . and therefore we the backbench—six of us—have already said we cannot support these fees: That is, Mr. Pierson, Mr. Roy Bodden, Mrs. Edna Moyle, Mr. Kurt Tibbetts, Mr. John Jefferson, Jr., and me.

The reasons have already been stated, Mr. Chairman. We cannot support these increases.

The Chairman: Any further debate? I shall put the question that Clauses 3 through 11 do stand part of the Bill. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against No.

AYES and NOES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Can I have a division?

The Chairman: Certainly.

DIVISION NO. 22/98

ABSENTEES: 3

Hon. David Ballantyne
 Dr. Frank McField
 Miss Heather D. Bodden

The Chairman: The results of the division: eight Ayes, six noes. The Clauses pass.

AGREED BY MAJORITY: CLAUSES 3 THROUGH 11 PASSED.

Hon. Joel Walton: Mr. Chairman, I have a suggested addition. No, I am sorry.

The Chairman: We have an insertion of a new Clause 12. The Honourable Acting Third Official Member.

Hon. Joel Walton: Thank you, sir.

Committee Stage Amendment number three as circulated, requires an insertion after Clause 11, of Clause 12, as set out in the amendment. I beg that this be included in Bill.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Sorry, we don't have that clause.

The Chairman: That was numbered number 3, and they were given out as a package.

Hon. Joel Walton: It was along with—it was actually 1, 2 and 3.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: I don't have it. The government gave out so many packages that . . . What was it about, Joel? I haven't seen it. Maybe you should read it Joel.

Hon. Joel Walton: The following clause, Mr. Chairman, reads as follows:

“12.(1) The imposition, recovery and application of the fees, customs duty and other charges at the rates specified in this Law on and after the 16 November 1998 is validated and is to be taken to have been lawfully imposed, recovered and applied.

“(2) This Law does not affect any order or determination made by a court before the coming into force of this Law.

“(3) If any proceeding for an offence committed before the coming into force of this Law was commenced, but not finally determined, before that time, or is commenced on or after that time, the proceeding is to be dealt with and determined as if this Law had not been enacted.”

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Mr. Chairman.

The Chairman: The Elected Member for North Side.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Mr. Chairman, I thank you for this opportunity, sir, because I was one of the persons who questioned the correctness of this. For clarity, I wonder if the Honourable Attorney General could just explain the situation with this particular Law?

And when he is explaining that, sir, the other amendment was that the Law came into effect at 9:00 am on the 16th and Parliament does not meet until 10:00 am, it gives me a little bit of concern.

The Chairman: Honourable Second Official Member can you comment on that please?

Hon. David Ballantyne: Mr. Chairman, in relation to the proposed amendment to the Finance Bill, I will comment on that first of all.

This is necessary because sections 74(1) of the Customs Law, and section 74(2) collectively mean that if after the resolution, which was introduced on the 16th November, fifteen sitting days elapsed with the Bill being read for the first time, or the resolution being renewed, then the resolution would, as I understand it, cease to have effect.

Even if that barrier is overcome, after a month the resolution would also cease to have effect and I think what happens is that although the matter was aired in the House by virtue of the debate continuing, the time was overtaken. And the matter was raised by a member of the House, and members may recall that it featured on the front page of the Caymanian Compass. Although I am not a Member of the Finance Committee, I had regard to those sections at that time.

The long and the short of it is that I gave certain advice relating to the fifteen day part but, of course, matters continued and I was not further involved. And it transpired that the month elapsed and it was therefore necessary to give legal effect to the resolution in another way. And that's what these amendments do.

Not all the charges were imposed, or intended to be imposed, as I understand it, from the 16th of November. Only those relating to customs duty. And it is only the customs duty that has this provision. But because there are other charges (and we are now into February) which were intended to have been introduced from the 1st of January, according to the Financial Secretary it's sensible just to have this operating from the 16th of November so that the charges are validated and will be properly imposed.

[Inaudible comment]

Hon. David Ballantyne: I am sorry, I missed that.

Oh! Thank you.

At any rate, I am satisfied—otherwise I won't associate with it—that this is a competent way of dealing with the matter. And in the circumstances it's the only sensible way to deal with it in order to effect the changes that the Bill contemplates and the resolution originally proposed.

I think it goes without saying that it would be better to observe the time limits, but I don't think this was a case of deliberately not observing time limits. I think that the passage of time overtook matters and this is a straightforward way of dealing with it.

If the situation arose again, I would suggest that it would be better to deal with it in other ways, as I referred to earlier: either by renewing the resolution or by reading the Bill for a first time. But, of course, if the debate goes on beyond a month anyway you are sunk because you know those other statutory time limits.

That's where we are, Mr. Chairman, and that's the explanation.

I wasn't very clear about the second part of the question and I wonder if I could be refreshed on that. Thank you.

The Chairman: The Member for North Side would you re-ask your second question?

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

I think I heard the Acting Financial Secretary make an amendment saying that the law took effect from 9:00 am on the 16th of November. And this is my personal concern: Parliament does not convene until 10:00 am.

Hon. David Ballantyne: I don't think, with respect to all concerned, that it is appropriate to say that a law takes effect from a certain time. The Interpretation Law will say, I think, that if a law is effective from a certain date that it is effective from that date. So subject to having the opportunity of looking at the Interpretation Law to confirm that point I don't think it is necessary to specify a time.

I mean court judgments, for example (just to give you a comparison), don't specify a time unless of course time was critical. But I think if it is stated to come into operation on a certain date; it is in operation on all hours of that day.

That is my general understanding but I am opened to correction if anyone, you know, is of a different opinion.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Mr. Chairman.

Mrs. Edna Moyle: Mr. Chairman, if I may, I just wanted another matter cleared up.

The Chairman: Please continue.

Mrs. Edna M. Moyle: We are saying that the law took effect from 9:00 am on the 16th of November 1998 for fees. This effect . . . I don't know how to word this. Let's use garbage fees, for instance, are they going to be increased from November or is it taking effect for 1999 fees?

Hon. David Ballantyne: No, as I think I tried to say, it is only the customs duty that would be effective from that date. The matters that were the subject of the resolution that was—

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Haven't been discussed as yet?

Hon. David Ballantyne: I am sorry. Yes. No, no. It does refer to all the fees but it doesn't mean that all the fees are operative from the 16th of November.

As I mentioned in what I said earlier, I understand that certain fees were to be introduced and effective from the 1st of January. You could distinguish if you want. You could elaborate this clause and say that in relation to customs duty effective from the 16th November in relation to all other fees and charges from the 1st of January, if that would make it clearer.

But I am not familiar with the dates of introduction of these other charges, as only based on a conversation that I had with the Financial Secretary about the matter. Perhaps the Third Official Member would be able to clarify that issue.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Chairman.

The Chairman: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Chairman, I think that the Honourable Attorney General's explanation is fair, but I think the government has found itself in a pickle.

Retroactive legislation is not good. And when we hear ministers of government blowing their horn about the management of the country this does not speak well for the management of the country when this sort of position has to be taken. It is a terrible day when a government finds itself in this position—especially with so many legal minds around on Executive Council.

Mr. Chairman, we do understand that it is a long session, but that does not say that government should not be prepared. Government must be prepared for these sort of eventualities, and it should not be caught having to put in place retroactive legislation—especially when it comes to money bills, because this is what this is all about.

It's a Parliament matter. In money matters you should not put in any sort of retroactive legislation—but especially money matters—and this was brought to their attention by the Deputy Speaker, the Elected Member from North Side.

Now, I know they can very well try to blame this side for the length of this meeting. But, as I said, Mr. Chairman, government has sufficient lawyers on that side and they should be prepared for any of these eventualities. It is just bad management.

They are saying that it has been the long session, meaning that they are trying to blame this side of the House. But the fact is that government itself proposed two budgets—the one that they sent down to the Honourable Financial Secretary to proposed, and then their long and drawn out budget, the one that we have had so many problems with. That is what caused the delay—not this side of the House. We didn't put forward any legislation.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Chairman.

The Chairman: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Chairman, I find it regrettable—and it is certainly a reflection on the elected government—to come here and expect conscientious representatives to assist them in voting for retroactive legislation that is burdening our people with taxes. And I pose a seminal question, Mr. Chairman. What is going to happen to all those people who have been conscientious and have paid the fees that they schedule? Is the government now going to expect them, through no fault of their own, to pay additional money?

Mr. Chairman, I hope that the people will be wise enough to be conscientious objectors in those cases. And the government need not try to say that it was because the session was long, implying it is the Opposition on the backbench who is to blame.

It is crystal clear, Mr. Chairman, that the government is not in sync with what is going on in the country, and I find it unfortunate that the government who just finished boasting how it is so organised and the affairs of the country are doing so well finds itself in a position where it has to be depending on retroactive legislation.

Mr. Chairman, it is a paradox. The government acclaimed spoken and the true position of having to depend upon retroactive legislation is out of sync.

I am leaving it to history and the memory of the Caymanian people. I certainly will not have this sin visible on my hands. I am not assisting the government in saddling the people with any retroactive legislation, and I am putting the elected government on notice that it better be prepared to defend its position.

Mr. Chairman, I have dusted off my old political soapbox, and I shall be going from one end of the country to the next letting the people know about the bad management and the retroactive tax legislation that the government has brought upon the people.

The Chairman: The Honourable of Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman Bodden: Mr. Chairman, the answer to the problem—I won't be long, Mr. Chairman, and why I don't have to be long is because the last two speakers gave the public the answer why this is retrospective. They have kept us in this House asking questions for two and a half months and that is why we couldn't get through any earlier.

Thank you, sir.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Chairman.

The Chairman: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: If the government had put forward everything as clear as they are supposed to, and in the right fashion as they are supposed to, we would not have had to asked such deep searching questions.

As I said, it was not the questioning that brought the retroactive legislation, it was the government's second budget, and its mismanagement to the extent that it presented one budget on one day and in a few days time came back and contradicted the government's chief spokesman of finance—the Financial Secretary—and brought its own budget. That is what has delayed this and that is what has caused this retroactive legislation.

And their bringing the second budget caused even more questions to arise.

The Chairman: I will now put the question that new Clause 12 do stand part of the Bill.

Third Elected Member for Bodden

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Chairman, before you put the question, sir, may I be permitted to say, if the Minister for Education is expecting me to be an extension cord, that I may be long and skinny, Mr. Chairman, but I am certainly not an extension cord, nor do I have any apologies for being conscientious and meticulous about the business of the people which I was elected to do.

If the government doesn't want fielded questions from us then it should come with a convincing budget. And the next time it brings two budgets here, I am going to double my quota of questions. So I am putting it on notice that when the next budget session comes around it had better decide to have only one budget, because the next time the Financial Secretary brings a budget and the Minister of Tourism comes with the second budget my questions are going to be quadrupled.

The Chairman: I now put the question that new Clause 12 do stand part of the Bill. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against No.

AYES AND NOES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it. Clause 12 do stand part of the bill.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Chairman, may we have a division, sir?

The Chairman: Madam Clerk, call the division please.

We have reached the hour of 4:30 PM. I would entertain a motion that we continue beyond 4:30 PM.

Hon. Truman Bodden: Mr. Chairman, I move that this . . . a . . . I am sorry, several people. . . um, . . . I move that—

[inaudible interjections]

Hon. Truman M. Bodden: I think some of the Members would prefer to go out. Unless you can finish in another five or ten minutes we could just leave it until Monday—

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Chairman, again the government doesn't seem to understand where it wants to go. It seems that we do not have much left on this Order Paper, let's continue and finish this.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Chairman, Mr. Chairman.

The Chairman: We will have to come back on Monday in any case because we have the reports to table.

Hon. Thomas C. Jefferson: Mr. Chairman, I will move the adjournment on this Honourable House until Monday morning at 10:00 a.m. We have other business—

Mr. W. McKeeva Bush: Mr. Chairman!

The Chairman: We will have to suspend the Committee. This concludes proceedings in the Committee and we will go back to the House.

The Speaker: Please be seated. Proceedings are resumed.

There are no announcements. Item number 3 on today's Order Paper, Presentation of Papers and Reports. Report of the Standing Finance Committee on the Appropriation Bill. The Honourable Third Official Member.

PRESENTATION OF PAPERS AND REPORTS

REPORT OF THE STANDING FINANCE COMMITTEE
ON THE APPROPRIATION (1999) BILL, 1998

REPORT OF THE STANDING FINANCE COMMITTEE FOR MEETING HELD ON 10TH FEBRUARY, 1999

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker I beg to lay on the Table of this Honourable House, the report of the Standing Finance Committee on the Appropriation (1999) Bill, 1998 and the report of the Standing Finance Committee of a meeting held on the 10th February, 1999.

The Speaker: So ordered.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Speaker, I would like to point out for the benefit of honourable Members that since exhaustive discussions have already taken place during Finance Committee on each Head of Estimates, rather than go through the details once more, it has been agreed that the report be tabled as presented.

However, Mr. Speaker, I would like to make two observations. There was a meeting of Finance Committee to consider the supplementary agenda at year-end. This is what is normally referred to as the clean-up exercise in order to make sure that approvals were in place for all-over expenditures on various Heads. And that amounted to a sum of $7,012,031 which is included in the report on the Appropriation Bill.

Secondly, Mr. Speaker, I would like to point out that initially when the Appropriation Bill was presented, it was for a value of $277,669,087. As Members will recall, there were several changes:

Head 26 for Health Services Department was initially presented for a sum of $37,323,587, and that was increased by $580,085 to a value of $37,903,672.

In Head 27, Ministry of Agriculture, Communication, Environment and Natural Resources were sums that were rightfully shifted to the Ministry of Education (Head 36). Accordingly, the sum of $4,671,641 was reduced to a value of $2,583,267 which increased the value of that Head which was initially presented for Head 36 ($9,464,163) to $11,552,537. So this was a compensating movement in amounts.

Also in New Services there was a reduction for the Lands and Survey Department and honourable Members will recall that one post was reduced by a value of $11,314. Therefore, the original New Services amount of $1,979,051 as presented was reduced to $1,967,737.

Capital Development was initially presented for a value of $29,159,469. That was increased by $13,375,131 to a value of $42,534,600.

As I mentioned earlier, the original Appropriation Bill which was for $277,669,087 is now reflecting a value of $291,612,989. All of these changes have been reflected in the report of Finance Committee.

The Speaker: In accordance with Standing Order 67(4) they have been deemed accepted by the House.

The House will now go into Committee to consider a bill entitled, The Loans Capital Projects (1999) Bill, 1998.

HOUSE IN COMMITTEE AT 10:35 AM

COMMITTEE ON BILLS

The Chairman: The House is now in Committee.

With the leave of the House may I assume that as usual we should authorise the honourable Second Official Member to correct minor printing errors, and such like, in these Bills?

Would the Clerk state the Bill and read the clauses?

THE LOANS CAPITAL PROJECTS (1999) BILL, 1998

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Chairman, I read the details of the report and made reference to it, sir, but I did not raise the question of the report being tabled. So at this time I would like to have the report laid on the Table.

The Clerk: The Loans Capital Projects (1999) Bill, 1998. Clause 1, Short title.

The Chairman: The question is that Clause 1 do stand part of the Bill. I put the question. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it. Clause 1 do stand part of the Bill.

AGREED: CLAUSE 1 PASSED.

The Clerk: Clause 2, Power to borrow.

The Chairman: There is an amendment to Clause 2.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Chairman, in accordance with the provisions of Standing Order 52 (1) and (2), I give notice to move the following amendment to the Loan Capital Projects (1999) Bill, 1998: That Clause 2 be amended in sub-clause (1) by deleting $19,150,000 and substituting $26,000,000.

The Chairman: The question is that Clause 2 be amended. The question on the amendment is open for debate. No debate? I shall put the question on the amendment to Clause 2. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: AMENDMENT TO CLAUSE 2 PASSED.

The Chairman: I shall now put the question that Clause 2 as amended do stand part of the Bill. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

AGREED: CLAUSE 2 AS AMENDED PASSED.

The Clerk: Schedule.

The Chairman: The question is that the Schedule do stand part of the Bill. This is open to debate. The honourable Third Official Member.

Hon. George A. McCarthy: Mr. Chairman. In accordance with the provisions of Standing Order 52 (1) and (2), I give notice to move the following amendment to the Loan Capital Projects (1999) Bill, 1998: That the Schedule be amended by deleting $19,150,000 wherever it appears and $26,000,000 be substituted therefor.

The Chairman: The question is that the amendment be part of the Bill. This is open for debate. No debate? I will put the question. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Chairman: The Ayes have it.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Chairman, can we have a division, sir?

The Chairman: Certainly. Madam Clerk can you call a division?

AGREED BY MAJORITY: THE LOANS CAPITAL PROJECTS (1999) BILL, 1998 GIVEN A THIRD READING AND PASSED.

The Speaker: This concludes the business on today's Order Paper. I would now entertain a motion for the adjournment of this honourable House.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker: The Third Elected Member for Bodden Town.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I stand here this morning in amazement to realise that the Government brought this House back at a time when we are on the eve of prorogation just for fifteen minutes.

I have to record my gross disappointment in what I call this tremendous irresponsibility on the part of the Government. It is no wonder that the finances of the country are not handled more appropriately if this is the Government's idea of effective time management.

Mr. Speaker, I am going to recommend that they take a seminar in Effective Time Management because it is a downright shame, a waste of time, a waste of the country's resources, and a misuse of the Parliament to come here in this vindictive and spiteful and inappropriate way—

POINT OF ORDER

Hon. Truman Bodden: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order, sir.

The Speaker: Let me hear your point of order.

Hon. Truman Bodden: He has referred to us bringing this back here as vindictive and spiteful; vindictive is unparliamentary.

The Speaker: I have to agree with that, please withdraw that word.

Mr. Roy Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I bow to your ruling and I will say that the approach is nothing short of worthless for the Government to come here and waste the time of the Parliament and the resources of the country.

Perhaps, Mr. Speaker, this is an effort to justify the request that the six of us on the Backbench denied them a short while ago. Mr. Speaker, it is the height of inconsideration and it should not go un commented upon, sir. I wish in the strangest of languages and the strictest of descriptions to voice my objection and my abhorrence to this kind of behaviour. And, Mr. Speaker, I would seize this opportunity to remind the Parliament that we were opposed to this—what we consider irresponsible management and imprudent borrowing—and now, finally, we are opposed vehemently to this misuse of time and the public resources of this Parliament.

Thank you, sir.

The Speaker: The honourable Minister for Education, Aviation and Planning.

Hon. Truman Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I move the adjournment of this House sine die and I would like to reply to the honourable Member, sir.

The Speaker: Please go ahead then, before we move the adjournment.

Hon. Truman Bodden: Mr. Speaker, I was very surprised to hear the honourable Member talking about wasting time. We have been in this honourable House, most of it in Finance Committee for three months. One day is not a waste of time, Mr. Speaker. If one day is, then there is ninety times the amount of waste of time because of the length of time that we have been here.

And, while I know the honourable Member may be annoyed that the Government is in a good financial position with a profit of $7.2M surplus and with savings of $66M with another $10M savings going in, Mr. Speaker, I don't see why a few hours on Monday morning really matters, considering we sat here listening to the Opposition questioning us and civil servants ad nauseam for three months. I don't want to get into any drawn out argument but I can understand the frustration on the other side after building up so much against the Government and having it destroyed when they found out we were in a profit/surplus with very large savings and only borrowing $26M when they said $25M.

Thank you.

The Speaker: The First Elected Member for West Bay.

Mr. W. McKeever Bush: Mr. Speaker, I am not going to try to carry on the debate that has already been debated several times over. But I will ask the Government to try to get the House in order for the new session. It behoves the Government to do that, Mr. Speaker. Politics or not, they can claim it, they can say anything but it is a shame the way this House and the country's business is being run. We are all big people and they are well versed—or should be well versed—in parliamentary procedures.

Mr. Speaker, what I am afraid of is that one of these days this House is going to be challenged through the Courts, simply because it is not adhering to procedures. Government is not doing the things it is supposed to do in the House with the procedures. One of these days that is going – as somebody said – “to come home to roost.”

So, Mr. Speaker, I hope Government takes it in the light that it is being said, and will try to get the House in order for the next sitting.

The Speaker: There is an adjournment motion on the floor. I now put the question that this House do now adjourn.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, is that to say that no one else is allowed to speak, sir?

The Speaker: Is it the wish that everybody speaks then?

[Members' interjections: Yes]

The Speaker: I thought they were objecting to being here so long. But, if that is the wish, please continue. The First Elected Member for George Town.

Mr. D. Kurt Tibbetts: Mr. Speaker, that is exactly the objection. But of course the Government never loses an opportune moment to spout out the twisted truths that they so like to do. I think it is only appropriate that the country understands the real truth.

The Minister for Education in his wonderful dissertation just a while ago was talking about the lengthy ninety days of Finance Committee and I think he used the word ‘ad nauseam.’ That’s a new one to me because I am not a lawyer but I can get the gist of what he meant.

What the First Elected Member for West Bay alluded to awhile ago, Mr. Speaker, was the House not being in order. If the Government had not brought us two budgets, and if all the information had been available to us, certainly it would not have taken the ninety days that purportedly it has taken.

Mr. Speaker, it is only fair for this country to understand that while the one-upmanship and the politics must go on to a certain level, not only is it our inherent responsibility but it is our sacred responsibility not to make any attempt at any time in any public forum to mislead the public into believing what is not actually so. And I contend this morning that this is another attempt, Mr. Speaker, at exactly just that.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak?
The Fourth Elected Member for George Town.

Dr. Frank McField: Mr. Speaker, since Mr. Bush would like to hear my voice again I would just say that I certainly am thankful that this sitting is over and that we are going to have the opportunity to begin anew on Friday. I am satisfied that what has been done in these Chambers over the last two months has been done in the right direction.

We know that there are a lot of things that are wrong with the way in which the system is working with regards to the way finances are administrated, and that there needs to be a lot of changes. But I, Mr. Speaker, feel somehow satisfied that the country is not in a desperate situation and it is unfortunate that some of us have to continue playing politics and not see the reality of the issues before us.

The Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak?
I want to be very democratic, giving everybody a chance. This being the last sitting of this Meeting, I would like to thank honourable Members for their courtesies and tolerance to the Chair. I would like to thank the Clerk, the Deputy Clerk, and her office staff, the Hansard Officers, and the Serjeant-at-Arms for their efficient services rendered to us. I would also like to thank Anita for the numerous meals she has prepared and the hard work that she has performed during this long session. Again I wish God's blessing on each and every Member.

At this time I will put the question that this House do now adjourn sine die. Those in favour please say Aye. Those against, No.

AYES.

The Speaker: The Ayes have it. The House do stand adjourned sine die.

AT 10.55 AM THE HOUSE STOOD ADJOURNED SINE DIE.
